Patti a Spendthrift. Patti makes a great deal of money, and she spends a great deal. At the rate she lives it must cost her something like a hundred thousand dollars a year. She has a retinue of people and a large suite of a retinue of people and a large apartments at the Windsor hotel—private table, of course—and her own chef, whom she brings with her. Then she has a castle in Wales to keep up, and that is an term her income. Even enormous tax upon her income. Ever when she does not live there she has ten when she does not live there she has ten or a dozen people taking care of the house, and as many more on the place. The castle itself is as large as a small hotel. It has forty five furnished rooms besides other rooms that are not furnished. It is a whim of Patti to keep up this place, and she has enough money to indulg herself in expensive whims. Besides the money that Patti earns, she has $200,000 that can never be touched; at least the principal never be touched; at least the principal cannot be touched; she has the use of the lay much stress upon. The income of $200,000 is a small item to a person who

A SENATOR ON SILVER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 .- Important discussion followed Hill's speech in the sen-ate to-day in favor of his silver resolutions. Hill regretted the tone and tendency of the advice given by the president and secretary of the treasury in regard to the discontinuance of the coinage of silver. He supported this resolution by a powerful

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—By the con ention concluded between the United States and Nicaragua, the United States undertakes to construct, in accordance with the survey and plans made under the direction of A. G. Menocal of the United States navy, a ship canal suitable for all demands and requirements of commerce, Ended in Disagreement.

Lendon, Dec. 15.—The trial of the divorce suit of Harrison against Harrison and Page ended in a disagreement of the jury. It is understood ten of the jury decided with Dr. Page, and believed that the elements of commerce, to begin at the port of San Juan, De Nicaragua, or Greytown, and to intersect the San Juan river above the Rio Celorado, and thence by the San Juan to Lake Nicaragua, and across the lake to the mouth of the River Delmadio, and thence to the Pacific ocean at the harbor of Brito. In consideration of this undertaking on the the alleged confession of Mrs. Harrison, which implicated the physician, was made while she was delirious from the effects of chloral.

An Embarrassing Situation.

Vienna, Dec. 15.—Distressing accounts of the explosion in the colliery at Oruna continue to arrive. Miners from other colleries wishing to descend to attempt a rescue were forcibly prevented by their wives and children while the relatives of the victims in the burning mine were kneeling imploring the rescuers to descend.

Less Money, Less Drink.

Some curious statistics have lately been nade public, which shows that in certain ocalities of England there has lately been marked diminution in the consumption of alcohol coincidently with a marked inrease in insanity. It is one of the silliest of the commonplaces of teetotalism to say that drink is a cause of insanity; and, if I were equally silly, I should be tempted to say, "Look how abstinence sends New York, Dec. 15.—Henry Levy & Son, importers and manufacturers of fancy goods, have assigned; preferences $65,000; tabilities $300,000, mostly foreign; assets said to be between $325,000 and $340,000.

say, "Look how abstinence sends people to the madhouse!" The truth is that, as Mr. Mott has recently shown, the diminished consumption of alcohol during the past few years has been entirely due to the dimished earnings of the people, and not at all to the spread of the people, and not at all to the spread of the people, and not at all to the spread of the people and not at all to the spread of the people, and not at all to the spread of the people of insensity, which, indeed, is but the breaking down of the brain under the stress of its trials. Such a collapse is more liable to occur in those who are under-fed; and so poverty and hard times, while they compel sobriety on the one while they compel sobriety on the one hand, produce insanity on the other. But it is pitiful to think in how many of these cases the daily modicum of beer, if it could have been procured, would have turned the scale in favor of the atruggling man, and would have preserved his resuntil better times came round.

Despite a small audience the Bandmann-Beaudet company did their best last night in the play of Hamlet. It is unnecessary to go into an elaborate critical analysis of No Prayers in Parliament -No Bible in to be Made Calling for Their the manner in which the various characters were impersonated. There are many different interpretations of how Hamlet and Ophelia should be acted; Mr. Bandmann, and Miss Beaudet gave us theirs. The company have a large and difficult repertoire; to night the Merchant of Venice is to be presented; to-morrow Richard III.; on Thursday Naccisse; on Friday the Lady of Lyons; and on Saturday Called Back. It is well to see as many different grades of actors and actresses as possible, and, therefore, Mr. Bandmann and Miss Beaudet deserve a hearing.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 16, 1881. University Consolidation from a Methedist Point of View.

The methodist church of Canada is justly proud of its rapid growth, great influence and encouraging prospects. Its history and precent position are phenomonal in view of its very small and comparatively recent origin, and if it fails to hold for generations to come a leading place amongst the churches it will be because of persistence in a policy based on a mistaken view of its functions. Preaching the gospelis unquestionably its great mission, and no work of a secular kind should be undertaken or persisted in which interteres with the effective discharge of its duty as a missionary church.

been carrying a heavy burden of higher secular education. It was justified in assuming such a burden at that time, because another protestant denomination had seized the state endowment set apart for the promotion of higher education and converted it to its own use. It would have been justified in dropping the burden less than ten years afterwards when King's college was secularized and its endowment restored to the people. The roots of Victoria university had not then sunk very deep, but there was abroad in those days a very moderate conception of a university education, and it was thought that the church would be able to maintain its university with credit and profit to itself. For its sake the facilities for imparting a good theological training to methodist ministers was comparatively neglected, and something like reproach was in this way incurred by the church.

How completely the whole situation has changed within the past twenty years only close observers know, but the truth will soon dawn upen the methodist masses if a mistaken policy is persisted in by the leaders of the denomination. In 1864 the attempt of the denominational universities to get a share of the surplus revenue of the provincial university failed, for the best of all reasons, that there was no surplus to divide. A few years later, the then newly created legislature of this province deliberately withdrew all the annual grants to denominational colleges. For fifteen years Victoria has depended for an income on the liberality of her friends. They have struggled nobly to keep her from deteriorating, and they have done so, but they have not succeeded in keeping her in the front rank of American universities where she could once boast of standing. Small blame to them for a failure, which can be asserted with equal correctness of the much wealthier Provincial university. That failure is not due to any falling off in the Canadian standard, but to the recent rapid elevation of the American one. The founding of Cornell with a gigantic endowment of land and money; the stimulus which it gave to the friends of Yale, Harvard, Michigan and Columbia; and the more recent endowment of Johns Hopkins by the generous bequest of him whose name it hears, have all co-operated in bringing about a state of affairs which we may envy but cannot ignore. The sober truth is that the time has almost come, and it will shortly be here, when America will distance the world in the facilities she affords for the performance of a high class of university work. The great obstacle now is not the want of means with which to operate, but the want of the proper material to work on in the shape of students with a good preparatory training. But the universities are fixing the standard for the secondary schools, and the schools are be ginning to work up to it. The question for Ontario is the simple one: Shall we attempt to keep our position in the university front rank where we have always had an honored place, or shall we quietly and ignominiously fall to the rear? If the former, how can our position best be main tained-by dissipating our resources, du plicating our machinery, and dividing our selves into groups with different; if not opposing, aims; or by consolidating our resources and substituting co-operation for antagonism? We can have one great university in Ontario : can we have more than one that will permanently rival the leading American universities, not merely as they are now, but as they will become in the future at their present rate of growth? The privilege and responsibility of answer ing this question rests largely with the methodist church, which at this moment holds the key of the situation.

Two courses now lie open to the church, one of which it must shortly decide to take The first is to remain isolated make a gigantic effort to raise an endowment fund for Victoria, and go on staggering secular education, doing neither effectively in comparison with the work of either the great secular or the great theological salls of learning on this continent;

the second is to fall in with a general continent without hard labor. Certainly under the double burden of theological and the second is to fall in with a general cooperative scheme which will east the burden and responsibility of higher secular cal school in Ontario which shall be and to none. At present Victoria is furnishing at less than cost a secular education to people who do not come within lonal pale; under a more advantageous system she might relieve nerself not merely of this burden, but also of the whole cost of the secular education of the methodist ministry. What is the objection, from a methodist point of view,

There is no guarantee from a religious point of view of the character of the teaching in the provincial university, say some. One university is not enough for the province, say others. To abandon ecular work at Victoria would be a lowering of methodist prestige and a confession of methodist inefficiency, say a third class. And to be absorbed in another university would be to snutt ourselves out to commit academical suicide, say ourth. These objections to amalgamation are all that we have seen or heard urged from the methodist side. How much there is in them we shall try to show hereafter.

Ireland Will Come Out Second Best. There is a point beyond which English forbearance in the matter of dynamit will not go. If this last outrage, the one at London bridge, is traced to a fenian source, whether Irish or American-Irish, Englishmen will not stand that kind of thing much longer, and they will seek some summary way of putting a stop to it, and wreaking vengeance on the perpetrators. No one will suffer so much in such an event as the tens of thousands of Irishmen who are settled in England and make a living there. They will be suspected, they will all be crowded out. A Crom wellian rule in Ireland will again be inaugurated, and Irishmen be distrusted gener ally. It cannot be otherwise, If these xplosions are traced to American fenians a way will yet be found to get at the perpetrators. Englishmen when forced to ave themselves will be found of much nore sterner stuff than Englishmen trying orule Ireland. And those same plotters and their devilish schemes against Engand that are now tolerated in the United States will be turned against the union ome day with tenfold effect. The people of the United States have just as much to car in the long run from anarchists as any nation on this earth. The condition of Ireland has been gradually ameliorated by iberal men like Gladstone; dynamite only retards the process.

The Cost of Education. From the Lindsay Warder we see that in important topic was discussed at a recent meeting of the board of education in that town. Mr. Barron moved that in that town. Mr. Barron moved that in Toronto, Dec. 15, 1884. the opinion of that board of education the sime has arrived when the present system of education in higher grades should be reconsidered and remodeled with the object of introducing some plan whereby, without losing altogether the benefits of higher education in our schools, the present high and increasing cost of education can be reduced and prevented. He purposely framed his resolution in a general way, he aid, in order to induce a wide and general

Mr. Barron has hit the right nail well on the head. There are anomalies in our public school system despite the fact that it has been so universally praised. The principal of these is that those parents who are obliged to recall their children of his money by carrying people across East river, New York, and no day out of rom school after a certain, and that very young, age, have still to continue paying as on Sundays. The present Vanderbilt is not a very poor man, still he does not think whom, from the very fact that they are able to bestow upon their sons and daugh-

There are two remedies for this: Firstly, let the parent pay according to the number of his progeny who attend school and only for the time during which they do attend; than any other class, and called very respectable men too.

J. C. BEAVIS. secondly, let the education dispensed by our government schools he simply of an elementary character, so that those who wish to put their sons into trades or professions and their daughters into school teaching can do so at their own expense.

A third course is possible, viz., a combination of these two methods in the same school, by which higher classes could be be made to pay a high fee for that higher grade of tuition,

Tax Exemptions Again. We hear on good authority that another public meeting re abolition of tax exemptions is to be held at no very future date, under the auspices of the anti exemption

The aim of this association, we take it is to lead public opinion in this direction To do this they must fan the smouldering embers with no weak breath. They must sink particular differences and advocate the utmost possible curtailment of exemptions as these now exist. His worship told them on Saturday that their platform was too broad. Practically perhaps this is so. is the catalogue. And it would be well for Theoretically it is not. As we have to deal with the practical perhaps we had better agitate to get what is within dur better agitate to get what is within our There is one question reach, rather than agitate for something like to ask, and that reach, rather than agitate for something beyond it. Half a loaf is better than no bread; and if provincial and dominion government property and incomes can be brought within the reach of the tax gatherer we need not trouble ourselves just at erer we need not trouble ourselves just at imperial government property and in-mpossible to put one's self in the place of the two unfortunate men who laid themselves open to the charge of murder.

It is enough to take away a Sabbata rian's breath to read that Prof. Blackie has been delivering a Sunday lecture in lasgow, taking for his theme so unsanctified a subject as "Scotch Love Songs." The next thing we know Scotchmen will be heard whistling upon the Sabbath.

Rochester papers report that the attempt to heat the street cars has been a complete success in that city. We are not so nguine as to expect anything so comfortable in Toronto. In all their dealings with citizens the street railway people of Toronto are decidedly cool.

Both Scottites and antis are a good deal amused by the small cunning of a city sion of the act everywhere except in Toronto. It is palpable that our contemporary desires to avoid a local contest that might make trouble between itself and those upon whom it more immediately and the second secon newspaper, which advocates the submisthose upon whom it more immediately depends for patronage.

Editor World: The answer to A Poser or Mathematicians I make out to be Love. Am I right Square Root? Have you worked out the army problem in Thursday's issue? by the day's issue? by the AUTHOR.

in love. Here is a harder one. The product of first two numbers is half of the product of the last two. The sum of the second and third is a third of the product of the first two; the sum of the first and second is one more than a sixth of the product of the last twe, which is half the earth's longitudinal degrees.

What is the word.

A CIPBER.

Editor World: There is one grievance ters to The World. When their duties repair, and he now has a tready lost two pair, and he now has to make use of his law bag as a receptacle for his dry goods carrying it around with him and thus keeping them safe. Hoping this may be seen by the above "gentleman?" and he may thereby see the error of his way, I am,

Sunday Work. Editor World: I see by your Saturday morning's issue you get red-hot shot for daring to think that it would be well if the postoffice could be kept open certain hours

Now, without going into the question of which may be the correct Sabbath-the gentile Sunday or the Hebrew Sunday (i.e., Saturday)—I should like to answer A. Johnson's question of Did you ever know any person having much money in a savings bank who worked on a Sunday? We don't know whether he put his money in a savings or any other bank, but for one we will name the late Commodore Vanderbilt, who certainly was a financial success and ade much money. He made a great deal tion for those children, the parents of of stopping his trains on Sunday.

Again, this A. Johnson seems to be very rash in his assertions, for in the same article he thinks murder to be a less evil ters a longer period of tuition, are really than working on Sunday. Such cranks have produced more evil than any labor may have been done or is do Sundays or any other day. I can produce at once hundreds of men that are making more money from their Sunday business

The Public Library.

Editor World: There are a great number of useful books in the reference depart. ment, but how can a person tell if any particular book is in, and if so, where can it be found? When he asks for the refer ence catalogue he is directed to an object which looks like a bureau on a small scale. formed, the pupils attending which should To this he makes his way, and seeing a number of drawers which are lettered, he the book he wants ought to be; he then discovers that the whole library is divided into a number of divisions, and under each of these are the various works by different authors on that subject. There seems to b ittle method in this mode of division. For instance, in turning over the cards I came across one division headed "The Emotions." The librarian had found a work by a certain author on The Emotions, and in doubt as to how this should be classified, he was non-commital, making a sep-arate class for this one work. This is only one of the many examples which might be quoted. Frequently, too, cards with the names of books on them have got mixed up and are found under heads where they have no business to be. If there is anything in connection with a library that should be prepared with care and study it the chief librarian to read an article or this important subject which appeared in a late number of one of the Reviews.

The Grand Old Man. London Correspondence Chicago Times. Mr. Gladstone, the statesman, has been repeatedly described, but it is not often that we see anything of Mr. Gladstone, the man. He is a prowler. He loves back streets. It is no unusual thing to see him looking into the windows of a bric-a-brac store. On summer days he often strolls from parliament to his house in Harley street, an interested spectator of all that goes on around him. He is not well dressed. His trousers are generally baggy at the knees. His tall collars are already familiar.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that as been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh

The way to get the better of the bilious system without blue pills or quinine is to take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as appetite craves, in as much cold water which a number of law students have experienced to their sorrow, and which so far none of them have mentioned in their letters to The World. When their duties require them to go to Osgoode hall they are forced to leave their coats, hats and gloves in the halls. Some light-fingered gentleman then makes his round and gathers up the gloves, especially if they are kid ones, and the owner sees them no more. One student whom I know has already lost two pair, and he now has to make use of his law bag as a receptacle for his dry goods. the throat it does not burn or draw the throat it does its medical work with-out harm, and when the stomach is clear of food has abundant opportunity to work over the system thoroughly.

At about 10:30 a.m. Babu Keshub Chunder Sen expired at his residence at Lily Cottage, and immediately after his remains were laid out on a new sandal wood bedstead, which was covered with marigolds, jessamine and roses. The corpse was dressed in a white silk dhott, and at intervals some of the disciples of the Brahmo leader sprinkled rosewater on it, and placed garlands of flowers all over. At noon the bier was removed to the new chapel, adjoining Lily Cottage, which was being erected for the late Babu Keshub Chunder Sen's private devotions, and at 8:30 p.m. a photodevotions, and at 8:80 p.m. a photographer came and photographed the remains which were then lying an object of touching regard to hundreds of the Brahmo leaders, disciples friends, and admirers. Shortly after this the male mourners and visitors were requested to leave the chapel to allow the entrance of a number of the female relatives and llowers of the deceased, who then entered and gave vent to their feelings of grief and sorrow at the death of their

The bier, with the remains, was then carried in procession along the roads from the chapel to Nimtollah Ghaut, followed by thousands and thousands of natives of all castes and creeds, and by a very numerous gathering of leading European gentlemen in Calcutta. At Nimtollah Ghaut the body was, with Brahmo rites, placed on the funeral pyre, which was composed entirely of sandal wood. After cremation the ashes were collected and placed in an urn, which will be deposited in the de-ceased minister's private chapel. The procession was headed by a disciple, who bore in his hands a banner, bearing on it the words, "New Dispensation." Brahmo Mandir in Colootollah, the body was put down and a hymn chanted, "Glory be to the man who has got a pure heart"; and the same ceremony was repeated when the procession passed the Sadhyaram Somaj Mandir, the chant being repeated at intervals till the burning ghaut was reached. No better proof could be found of the respect and esteem in which the late Brahmo leader was held than in the thousands who followed the remains to witness the cremation ceremony and in the thousands who visited Lily Cottage, in Circular road, to see the last of the remains of the great Brahmo leader, among whom was his son-in-law, the Maharaja of Kuch Behar, and other most prominent natives in Calcutta. - Calcutta Englishman.

O singer, pouring out thy heart Sing my sweet sentence through pane; o sweet 't is sad, so sweet I do thee wrong, And doubt thy message till 't is sung again

The whole wide world lights with the sudder flame, Love kindled by this wondrous song of thine;
So changed it seems no more to me the same,
Made beautiful by this sweet hope of mine. She loves me, runs thy plaint; O little bird, Whence came the sweet intelligence to thee? Perchance upon the rose's breath, unheard, It hoated till thy song revealed to me.

Or did the violets, when she bent her head To kiss their perfumed faces nodding low. Woo the sweet words she would have left un-said. Then tell the secret only I should know? Mayhap she slept where apple blossoms wasts. In clouds of sweetness, until: truant dreams. Her sleepy syelids kissed, and bade thee haste.

And bear the secret which so precious seems.

Fil lay these modest violets at her feet,
And tell my love that as their sweets ascend,
So from my life goes out her life to meet
A prayer of love that knows ne time or end. Thus will I prove thy tidings, little bird, Carrolled so sweetly at my window side, Nor cease my pleadings till her heart is stirred. And sweet confession is no mere denied.

Why She Didn't Want to See Him Killed.

"My dear," said Mr. Topnoody to his wife, as he looked up from his paper, "I see here that Henry Bergh is in favor of the whipping post for husbands who beat their wives. I don't think, though, you would like to see me led to the whipping-post."

"No, Topnoody, I would not. It might not be so severe on me to have you suffer to some extent, but I don't want to see you killed."

"Killed, my dear? It doesn't kill a man to whip him at the post."

"No, Topnoody, not under ordinary circumstances; but if you had to go to the whipping post after I got through with you, in case you attempted to beat me, I feel more than confident it would, be a larger dose than your constitution

A "Knee" Plus Ultra.

It was a Jefferson Avenue car. A young gentleman rose and gave up his seat to a lady, and his chum, who occupied the next seat, tendered him a position on his knee, which he accepted. They were drolling back and forth about a knee-sy seat, and so on, when the car stopped and a young lady entered. The force of habit was too strong for the Detroiter. He forgot that he was uncomfortably perched upon his friend's knee, and, jumping up gallantly, said in his most persuasive tone:

"Take my seat, Miss." Lightning shot from the fair one's eyes, and the rest of the passengers buried their faces in their handkerchiefs or looked out of the window. The friend however, settled the matter by vacating nis seat, and peace was restored .- De

Thomas Jefferson was sitting on the lawn in front of Monticello one evening,

-Like all sterling remedies, Northrop Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure deserves a fair trial. It would b absurd to suppose that this or any other medicine of kindred nature could produce instantaneous effects. For the thorough removal of chronic dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, and other allments to which it is adapted, its use should be continued some time, even after the chief symptoms are relieved. That it then effects complete cures is a fact established by ample and respectable evidence.

RAINER & CO., Guelph, Ontario.

The undersigned respectfully announce that on the 9th 'ay of April, 1884, Joseph F. Rainer dissolved partnership with Frank Sweetnam and John Hazelton, as piano manufacturers, and that said Joseph F. Rainer, in connection with his son, will continue to manufacturer the original cross-scale Pianos, of which the said Joseph F. Rainer is the sole inventor.

These Pianos have now been before the public for 23 years, and have always ranked among the very best, and are celebrated for quality of tone, great power and durability of action, prompt elastic touch, fine finish and elegant style of case, combined with every known improvement. The most complete and unbroken list on record, embracing a period of 30 years, and made up of 28 first prizes, medals and diplomes received at the principal exhibitions in Canada—Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton and London. At the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, we secured a medal and diploma for our piano. The great fayor with which the cross-scale pianos have been received for so long a period, and the reputation they bear, has induced others to imitate them. We therefore caution intending purchasers and dealers wishing to obtain the original cross-scale piano to see that the name of "Rainer & Son" is on each instrument. We make the Upright and Square Grand Pianos.

There is no sweeter and more interesting character, whether in fiction or real life, than the spinster who has, for some eing now past the hour of old maid. The ordeal through which she has passed seems ordeal through which she has passed seems to have refined her feelings, and of itself insensibly drawn to her the regards of all who know her history. Such a one is eminently lovable and sympathetic, forward in all good works, the warm friend of married men and women, the confidants of many a tender passion. Age does not wither the beauty of her disposition. She prever slanders, never retails ill-natured gossip; but, on the other hand, though prompt to put in a sensible word on a crisis, does not deem it her mission to set all the people around her right. She makes an does not deem it her mission to set all the people around her right. She makes an admirable aunt, and is very necessary to a large circle of cousins. TONKIN BROS., TORONTO.

The Mayoralty.

YONGE ST.

To the Ratepayers of the

CITY OF TORONTO.

GENTLEMEN: Having been personally requested, and requested also by a requisition signed by many thousands of you, to stand as a candidate for the Mayoralty of 1885, I have, after due consideration, agreed to do so.
My views upon the subject of municipal government are tolerably well known to many of you. As a large property holder, I have always done my utmost, in and out of the Council, to place the administration of the finances of the city upon a business-like by which I mean that the revenues should be expended with all the care and thrift that private citizen exercises in the handling of his own money. Toronto has made rapid and gratifying progress during the past four years. This has necessarily involved extensive local improvements, such as new pavements, new sewers, and the like, and imposed fresh burdens of no little weight upon the people. But aside altogether from these works of necessity, there has appeared in the ouncil a marked tendency to increase the debt by carrying out enterprises not strictly required by present wants, and I fear that nless this extravagance is summarily checked we shall be loaded with obligations that will prove onerous to the taxpayer and detr o the welfare of the city. The depressed con lition of trade with the cessation of pub vorks, necessitates very careful and pruden expenditure, both public and private, for son being reduced, although a large sum has been realized annually from the increased assess ment, while a very great addition has been mounting to about one million two hundred HALLE nousand dollars, which, with expenditures inder control, will bring it up to about two millions of dollars, for which the ratepayer is specially taxed over and above the ordinary rate of taxation. This branch of finance demands, it seems to me, much closer attention than has hitherto been devoted to it.

I need hardly peint to the rapid growth of the general expenditure. The annual cost of the police force has more than doubled within the last ten years. In 1873 it was $51,000, while it is now upwards of $115.000; and I for one will not admit that there has been any increase in the efficiency of the force at all commensurate with the increased outlay. I do not say this in any carping spirit, or with any intention of reflecting upon the members of the force individually; but I am satisfied that there is something: radically wrong in the management. In former times when crime was committed, the perpetrators were, as a rule, brought to justice, but of late burglars and thieves appear lobave had the upper hand, and the hard-working citizen loses his property without redress, though compelled to pay roundly for its protection. I think that with proper organization and discipline the police should be able, not only to cope successfully with criminals, but also to relieve the city of the extra expense now entailed by the employment of special officers to enforce the sanitary by-laws.

The waterworks, which cost an enormous sum of money, are in a most unsatisfactory condition, endangering the health of the city, and should be renovated without delay.

The cleansing of the public streets I regard as a matter of great importance, and some economical system should be adopted for accomplishing this desirable object.

Regarding the abolition of exemptions, I consider that every citizen should bear his fair share of the taxation, and that all lands should be assessed. But I am also of opinion that in connection with churches or charitable institutions the buildings should be exempt.

In conclusion, I may state that my only object in consenting to he a candidate for the illions of dollars, for which the ratepayer i cially taxed over and above the ordinar empt.

In conclusion, I may state that my only of ject in consenting to be a candidate for the Mayoralty is to insist upon retrenehment it every branch of municipal expenditure, and to give to the citizen the maximum of efficiency in the public service at the minimum.

I have the honor to be, Yours obediently, ALEX. MANNING.
