KITCHENER VS. MAD MILLAR

In an Interview in Rome Says He Might Organize a Somaliland Campaign.

COL. SWAYNE'S FORCE NOW SAFE

It Was Not Attacked During Its Retirement.—More Troops Being Sent.

Rome, Oct. 23.—Lord Kitchener, now en route to India, in an interview-to-day, admitted that if the situation in Somaliland grows worse, he might pause there on his way to India and to the United States campaign. Thus the man, who, as Sedar, crushed the Mahdi, may be the one to wipe out the Mullah and his fanatic followers.

KARL INGER AT BUDAPEST.

Vienna, Oct. 23.—It is stated that Karl Inger, a former officer in the Russian army, is now in Vienna, acting as the chief lieutenant of the Mad Mullah in Somaliland, has been playing the Mad Fish for some time.

MORE THROTS TO BE SEEN.

Simla, India, Oct. 23.—Besides the Second Bombay Grenadiers, and the 1st Buffs, the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the Fomalland-to-day, a native field hospital will sail for the same destination Saturday. The 28th Baluchis have also been ordered to be added.

ESCAPE FROM THE MARCH.

London, Oct. 23.—A message received at the Foreign Office here today from Gen. Manning, dated Berbera capital of Somaliland, British East Africa, announces that the force commanded by Col. Swayne, which was threatened with destruction by the Somali tribesmen, has been rescued and has reached Bohotte in safety.

Gen. Manning's message adds: 'Col. Swayne's force was not attacked during its retirement. The situation is now quiet and satisfactory, but I do not cancel the orders warning a Punjab regiment to be in readiness in case it is required as further developments warrant.'

are all doing well, and no anxiety concerning the wounded officers need be felt. The Aden detachment is expected to-day, and will go forward to-morrow." The news from Somaliland arrived great satisfaction here, and relieved the keen anxiety felt as to the fate of the British expedition. Gen. Manuk's message was promptly forwarded to King Edward.

West Being Overrun By Landseek
ers and Traveling Delegates.

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—Immigration and land offices were all crowded to-day with land seekers and delegates from the United States. The number to arrive by the regular Great Northern train was 80, and almost as many came in over the Canadian Northern. The majority of them were from the States of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, Iowa, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Illinois. The number included farmers, lawyers, real estate men, merchants and traders. Only 50 per cent. of the number claimed American nationality.

Son of Col. McLean of Port Hope Succumbs to Injuries.
Port Hope, Oct. 23.—One of the saddest events in Port Hope for a long time occurred this morning; when Grant McLean, sixth son of Col. and Mrs. William McLean, succumbed to peritonitis, after a few days' illness, at the age of 16 years. A week ago last

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

In these days of hostility between capital and labor, bitter antagonism too often characterizes the attitude of employer and employee towards each other, and it is therefore decidedly refreshing to hear of the avoidance of a great strike by means of an appeal to the common sense of the would-be strikers. The details of the case to which we refer are these: The American Tin Plate Company was on the verge of having to shut down because of the unsatisfactory condition of the trade, and outside competition. One thing would save the situation, and that was the obtaining of a huge contract for tin cans from the Standard Oil Company. The manufacturers in Wales were able to greatly underbid the American Tin Plate Company, but the latter concluded that on one contract they could tender low enough to get the contract away from the Welshmen, and that one condition was that the company's employees would accept a cut of 25 per cent. in wages.

The company thereupon put the case before its employees, endeavoring to convince them that the proposed cut would be to the mutual advantage of the company and the men. The proposition amounted simply to this—that in order to retain the men work at all the wages would have to be cut down. The local labor lodge and the Steel and Tin Workers for long refused to agree to the reduction in wages, but the company has at last prevailed. So influential a representative of labor as President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association, on looking into the circumstances of the case, advised the men to accept the reduction. And as a consequence the American Tin Plate factory at Elwood, instead of shutting down, will run full time, and perhaps over-time, on the Standard Oil contract, which was in danger of going to Wales.

There is a ray of hope in this settlement which constitutes a valuable object lesson to capital and labor all over the continent. If employers and employees can be got into the habit of sitting down together and bringing the light of reason to bear upon their recurring differences, a great stride towards the general amelioration of the existing labor conditions will have been made.

And, while we are upon this question, we recall that Andrew Carnegie's remedy for industrial unrest really constitutes an amplification of the principle observed in this concession of the tin workers. Mr. Carnegie, who should be an authority on labor troubles, for he experienced some in amassing his millions, advocates the mutual adoption by masters and men of the "sliding scale" system of wages. As long ago as 1880 the iron king, in an address to workmen at Bradnock, Pa., championed the sliding scale, and he afterwards successfully adopted it in his own extensive works. His Bradnock remarks he repeats in his "Empire of Business," recently published, and from these remarks we quote:

"The trouble is that the men are not paid at the rate of the competition proper to that time. All large concerns necessarily keep filled with orders, say, for six months in advance, and these orders are taken, of course, at prices prevailing when they are booked. This year's operations furnish perhaps the best illustration of the difficulty. Steel rails at the end of last year, for delivery this year, were $29 a ton at the works. Of course, the mills entered orders freely at this price, and kept on entering them until the demand, growing unexpectedly great, carried prices up to $35 a ton. Now the various mills in America are compelled for the next six months or more to run upon orders which do not average $31 per ton, at the seaboard and Pittsburgh, and say, $24 at Chicago. Transportation, iron stone and prices of all kinds have advanced upon them in the meantime, and they must, therefore, run for the bulk of the year upon very small margins of profit. But the men, no longer in the papers the great boom in steel rails, very naturally demand that the share of the advance and under our existing faulty arrangements between labor and capital, they have secured it. The employers, therefore, have grudgingly given that which they know, under proper arrangements, they should not have been required to give; and there has been friction, and still is dissatisfaction, upon the part of the employers. Reverse this picture. The steel rail market falls again. The mills have still six months' work at the prices above the prevailing market, and can afford to pay men higher wages than the then existing state of the market would apparently justify. But, having just been underpaid, the men, in consequence of labor, which they should not have paid, they naturally attempt to reduce the wages as the market price of rails goes down, and there arises a discontent amongst the men, and we have a repetition of the negotiations and strikes which have characterized the beginning of this year. In other words, when the employer is going down the employee insists on going up, and vice versa. What we must seek is a plan by which men will receive high wages when their employers are receiving high prices for the product, and hence are making large profits; and, per contra, when the employers are receiving low prices for product, and therefore small, if any, profits, the men will receive low wages. If this plan can be followed employers and employees will be in the same boat, and calling into play their fortitude together in adversity. There will be no room for quarrels, and, instead of a feeling of antagonism there will be a feeling of partnership between employers and employees. There is a simple means of producing this result, and to its general introduction, both employers and employed should steadily bend their energies. Wages should be based upon a sliding scale, in proportion to the net prices received for product by month. It is impossible for capital to defraud labor under a sliding scale."

The Carnegie plan has not proven a panacea where tried in the old country, but whatever deliverance from the present industrial unrest may be brought by time, whether compulsory arbitration or sliding wage scale be the ultimate solution, one thing is likely—and that one thing is that the future will be a good deal affected by the outcome of President Roosevelt's anthracite strike commission. No doubt this unique commission will lay down rules and establish precedents that will exert a far-reaching influence on the relations between capital and labor. The pronouncements of the commission are, therefore, awaited with general interest.

CENTRALIZE LIVE STOCK TRADE.

We quote below the statement of one of the most practical men in the United States dead meat industry, who speaks from experience gained by long attendance to the business.

"Packer would always rather handle low-priced beef," said Mr. J. Ogdin Armour, "because more of it is sold, and there is a larger percentage of profit in it. Prosperity in the fresh meat business depends upon low, or at least moderate, prices, and the packing industry of to-day is actually dependent upon by-products for its dividends. It is simply because nothing must go to waste that we are constantly bringing out new things, and bringing down the business to the closest detail. It is only by handling enormous quantities with great economy and system that money can be made in the meat business. Cattle only yield on the average 50 to 60 per cent. of dressed beef, and it is necessary for us to utilize every particle of the remainder of the carcass."

These words, from such a source, give added force to the letter from "Farmers," recently published in these columns. No one conversant with the live stock trade can say that Canadian utilize their by-products on up-to-date lines, and Mr. Armour's statement proves conclusively that the low prices prevailing in Canada, compared with those paid in the United States, are attributable to waste in by-products, and to no other cause.

From Mr. Armour's assertion it is apparent that concentration of the slaughtering trade is what enables the Americans to utilize their by-products as they do; and it is equally apparent that concentration of the Canadian slaughtering trade would go a long way towards overcoming the present waste in that trade. The farmers are the ones who suffer from this waste, and the sooner they recognize this, the sooner will the loss be stopped. What the live stock industry needs is the concentration of the slaughtering trade at Toronto. What have Hon. Mr. Dryden and the Ontario Government to say about it?

We would reiterate our words under "Farmers" letter of September 30th: "The World would like to see an immense dead meat industry centered in Toronto, not only for cattle, but for sheep, and poultry, and mutton as well." The farmers of the Dominion will not regret their fair share of the profit from raising and feeding cattle, hogs and sheep until the country has packing houses similar to the progressive establishments across the line.

MEDICAL PHILANTHROPY.

The Austrian expert, who the other day performed a bloodless operation for hip disease on a Mr. Armour, gives us a glimpse of the method of the Viennese did the same service for a child of the poorer classes. Seventy-five thousand dollars was the fee he charged the millionaire, but of the pauper he asked nothing.

The performing of the operation on the poor child did not constitute an unique act, for every medical man in the course of his practice does more or less philanthropic work. What was specially commendable about the Vienna specialist's second Chicago operation was that he performed it in the presence of several hundred other physicians and surgeons. His method of setting the hip joint was one of his own discovery, but for the sake of humanity he freely gave his hard-earned secret to the medical fraternity.

The medical profession is one of those desirable pursuits in life, wherein the getting of money is not necessarily the primary object, and such men as the Austrian surgeon in question do much to keep a high ideal of practice before the eyes of the whole fraternity.

MR. GOOCH ANSWERED.

Editor World: In looking thru your Wednesday issue, I came across a letter to Mr. Gooch, who was a police man, which, to say the least, was most surprising. Why Mr. Gooch should waste his time in trying to belittle what was beyond all question a "true instance of bravery," is difficult to comprehend. Even supposing it had been a "salver of money," had not the policeman already taken a pretty big risk in following and stopping the rig in the way he did, and in his attempt to capture the one? Desperate characters of this kind do not go around unarmed, and, in the probability, it was a revolver that was pointed at the policeman. Had he resisted, his life might have been taken, and in consequence, Mr. Gooch, with other readers, would have read in your next issue, "Tragedy on Wood-street: Police Officer Shot Dead. No Clue to Murderer." Mr. Gooch should remember that a life is a valuable asset, and that a policeman is as much a citizen as a private man. The quotation at the close of Mr. Gooch's letter shows inconsistency on his part, and it entirely nullifies his previous remarks, and proves in a few simple words the wisdom of the policeman in his display of non-resistance.
