"Of the last," he answered, squaring his shoulders again. "We've come through the mill since then, sweetheart, but—thank God!—we're none the worse."

"Water!" He went on, darning the hat you can do only don't. "I've brought us a bottle of that same Burgundy, my dear. It's a lucky day."

All they said to each other but that most concerned themselves only. Over it may be stated, that when it was over, Quantance had ordered coffee, a special brew, to be made according to methods imparted to him by a merchant from Mocha whom he had once met on his travels. He told her all, looking about with eyes that were very friendly and well disposed toward the others there. And they were still sunk in such wordless contentment when a cherry voice recalled them from the clouds.

"Hello, Quantance!" it said, and they looked up swiftly at the grey-haired individual in very correct evening dress who had come forward and stopped beside them.

Quantance sprang to his feet, hand outstretched.

"Glad! I'm glad to see you, O'Ferral!" he cried. "Dagmar, this is a little surprise. I planned for you. I didn't know whether O'Ferral was in town till I phoned from the bank. A chair, waiter! Where's that coffee? Fetch me my coat—I want my cigar-case. Or will you have something to eat first, O'Ferral?"

"I've dined, thanks."

"Then have a cigar."

Quantance placed a hand into his breast pocket, pulled forth his case and a couple of letters which he would have tossed to one side had not caught sight of the postmark on one of them.

"Hi, Quantance!" he said, and kindled his own Havana, watching eyes on the envelope, "Then he'll sit open."

"Your pardon," he said to the other two, "but I want to read what this fellow says—and for me."

His wife turned to O'Ferral, to whom she had much to tell. Their voices sounded far away and indistinct to him as he stared, through a thin blue curtain of smoke, at the paper before him. And he stared at it long enough that she at length took him to task.

"What's the matter, Stephen?" she asked, and her eyes searched his face. He observed the bewilderment in her face. He looked at her for a moment as if she had been a stranger, and then at O'Ferral.

"I wish you would read that to me," he said in a puzzled whisper. "I don't seem to get the sense of it. That wine must have gone to my head."

O'Ferral glanced at the bottle, more than half full.

"You must have a very weak head, Steve," said he, and took the sheet from his friend.

But his expression also changed as he pursued the "epistle." He opened his eyes wide and pursued up his mouth.

"Read it aloud," Quantance ordered. "It's from San Francisco, Dagmar—from the lawyers there. Go on, O'Ferral. We're listening."

"Dear Sir," he began. "We duly received your favor from Paris, enclosing certificates of your marriage to the ward of our late client, Mr. Miles Quantance, as also proof of your identity, which we have since ascertained to be competent. And in this connection we beg to express our profound regret that we were misled into recognizing Mr. Dominic Scargy in your place, but, as you yourself were admittedly the chief contributor to that mistake, we trust you will hold us unaccountable."

"We note that you and your wife wished, at the time of your wedding, to forfeit all claim to our late client's property, and the steps you took to do so. You have evidently forgotten, however, that there is a considerable difference in time between France and the United States of America. The certified hour of your marriage was 12.10 a. m. on the 28th of the previous day, 7.05 p. m. in New York. We have taken the highest legal opinion on this point, and it coincides with our own, viz., that Mr. Miles Quantance, an American citizen, making his will in America and for the benefit of American heirs, did so on the basis, only and absolutely, of American time."

"We have therefore felt compelled, acting under our late client's explicit instructions, to forward the liquid assets of his personal estate to the bank in New York, to which you kindly referred us. And we wait your orders as to the disposal of the testator's real property."

Mormons in the West Threaten to Hang Two Men and a Woman—Mormon "Church" Rules the People.

Winnipeg, May 27.—The following dispatch has been received from Lethbridge: "A mob of thirty or forty Mormons yesterday mobbed, threatened to hang, and finally hanged two men and a woman at Magrath, a Mormon settlement about twenty-two miles southeast of here. The matter arose from the marriage a year or more ago of a Mormon girl to a 'gentile,' as the Mormons call all non-members of their church. H. Barclay and his wife, the couple concerned, after their marriage, lived in Calgary. Barclay, however, five months ago returned to her mother's home at Magrath and intended to return to her own home in Calgary. The three were taken, handcuffed, to the depot by the sheriff, who meanwhile had sworn in deputy sheriffs. They had been in the waiting room some time when a mob appeared. 'We're hanging you,' called out some of the mob. 'Get a rope.' The mob rushed the three 'gentiles,' knotted them down, kicked and beat them, pelted them with eggs and threw Harrison through a window. The top of one of his fingers was severed."

Barclay, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Bolderson of this city, and a friend named Harrison, went to Magrath to urge his wife once again to come back to him; she refused. He finally declared that if she would not come back he would leave his child, which he did.

A mob got together and Barclay was seized by a man who called himself 'sheriff.' He, his sister, and Harrison were hauled before a Mormon magistrate, who gave orders that the child be returned to its mother and the three 'gentiles' leave the place on the first train. The three were taken, handcuffed, to the depot by the sheriff, who meanwhile had sworn in deputy sheriffs. They had been in the waiting room some time when a mob appeared. 'We're hanging you,' called out some of the mob. 'Get a rope.' The mob rushed the three 'gentiles,' knotted them down, kicked and beat them, pelted them with eggs and threw Harrison through a window. The top of one of his fingers was severed."

POLICEMEN HAD TO PAY FOR JOBS

Starting Evidence at Yesterday's Session of the Montreal Royal Commission

Montreal, May 27.—Starting evidence was given at the Montreal royal commission today by Madame Duvigne, the separated wife of Oscar Proulx, brother of Chairman Proulx, of the police committee.

Mrs. Proulx stated that while she was living with her husband several constables had left money with her for Oscar Proulx. She stated that this money was to be paid on the job of the police force. She named three men—Constables O. M. Fontaine, who had left several instalments of $10 each with her or her husband, as the price of reinstatement on the force after dismissal; another, Xavier Lacroix, had given her an envelope of money and told her it was for Aid. Proulx, part of the price of Lacroix's job on the force; another, Euchariste Roy, had told the story in order to secure money for the same purpose.

A determined effort was made by Mrs. Proulx to discredit Mrs. Duvigne's testimony and to prove that she was an abandoned woman who made her living by prostitution, but the witness denied this throughout a cross-examination, she thought, had treated her badly.

Detective Lacroix also testified that when the question of promotion came up he was sent for by Quartermaster Holland, of the police department, who told him if he wanted promotion, it would cost him $100. He, however, refused to pay a cent, and got his promotion.

A number of other detectives denied having been approached to pay for promotion.

Gurney Division Sons of Temperance Passes Resolution of Sympathy in His Death

The following resolution has been passed by Gurney Division, S. of T.:

Inasmuch as our venerable and honored member, Charles Everett, in the fullness of years, has gone to his rest, the members of the Gurney Division Sons of Temperance, in public sentiment, and in appreciation of his splendid services to the cause of total abstinence throughout his life, and to the development of public sentiment in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic:

For sixty-two years, Mr. Everett was a member of Gurney Division, having been one of its charter members. His life was a constant battle with the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil, and he died at the age of eighty-two years.

Mrs. Everett was a pronounced advocate of total abstinence when public sentiment was frequently hostile to such an attitude, and through his personal example and his untiring efforts, he was able to convince many of the members of our division, and of those who were not members, of the benefits of this course.

Mrs. Everett was a devoted wife and mother, and she will be missed by all who knew her.

Resolved, That the members of Gurney Division do hereby express their sympathy to the bereaved family, and that a contribution be raised for the relief of the widow and dependent children.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF SPORT

A sensation was sprung at the C. A. A. U. spring championships at Ottawa when it was announced that Frank Lukeman, the crack M. A. A. sprinter, would not be allowed to compete. As Lukeman had entered unattached, the decision had nothing to do with the M. A. A. A. but dealt solely with Lukeman as an individual. It is alleged that the Montreal athlete played in a manufacturers' hockey match last winter against professionals, thereby putting himself under the ban. Regret was expressed on all sides that such action had been taken, but the C. A. A. U. delegates were firm. Lukeman's entry being eliminated from the events in which he intended to take part.

Baseball, as a business, is the most unique in the world. It is an absolute paradox. For upon close analysis it will be found that the club's owner's partners in the game are his opponents as well. So one man's pie is another man's poison. There has got to be opposition in baseball, of course, and the strange situation arises of a partner trying to win the same game that is a business of gaining. On that account the business is hard to operate to the satisfaction of the partners.

ST. JOHN'S WON
Interesting Game Between St. John's and St. Joseph's in Inter-Society League

There was a good attendance at the game between the St. John's Baptists and St. Joseph's on the Shamrock grounds last evening. It was a pretty good exhibition of baseball with plenty of ginger in both teams.

CARLETON CORNET BAND MEET
PROVIDED GOOD CLEAN SPORT
Stubbs, of the Every Day Club, Won the Fifteen Mile Race Last Night—King Wins the Walk and Smith the Three Mile Run—Eleven Year Old Boy Runs Fine Race.

The Carleton Cornet Band indoor sports in the Queen's rink last night drew a fair sized crowd. The feature was the fifteen mile run, which proved a great contest. George Stubbs, of the Every Day Club, was the winner in the excellent time of 1:10, with J. F. Hornean second. A sensational happening was the third race, for which J. F. Hornean was runner. He went to pieces suddenly in the eighth lap and was unrecognizable when he crossed the finish line.

PRIZES PRESENTED TO LEAGUE BOWLERS

The Commercial Bowling League was wound up on Black's alleys last evening with a presentation of the prizes. Before the presentation, a game was played by the two McCreary teams for the last place in the league, for which they were tied.

ST. JOHN'S RUEL TO BELAY
READER AT HARTLAND

Hartland, N. B., May 26.—Arrangements have been effected whereby Episcopal services will be resumed in the village. F. H. J. Ruel, of St. John, who is acting manager of the Bank of Montreal, has consented to act as lay reader and the first service will be held in the evening of June 6. This parish (Brighton) is under the charge of the rector of Woodstock, but since that parish no longer supports a curate, services here have been neglected.

ARRANGE FOR BAPTIST ASSOCIATION ANNUAL

At a meeting of the executive of the New Brunswick United Baptist Association yesterday afternoon arrangements for the annual meeting were completed. The meeting will be held in the church in Gibson, York county, opening on July 14. Rev. F. E. Bishop, of Fairville, will preach the association sermon. It is expected that the sessions will be interesting, as there are a number of very important matters to be discussed. The proposed Canadian union will be voted upon, as will also a proposal from the Nova Scotia church looking towards the amalgamation of home mission interests in the maritime provinces.

No arrests were made by the police on Thursday. The magistrate this morning was to be the arbitrator of the quarrel of two women from Castle street, who were at loggerheads over a clothes line, but the principals settled the dispute amicably without recourse to his honor, whose decisions in the quarrel of women are not always favorable to either of the parties interested.

Before Chief Justice Barker this morning, A. A. Wilson, for Robert Seeley, trustee of the Fred Seeley estate, applied for an injunction to restrain the Francis Kerr Co. Ltd., coal and wood dealer, from using a wharf adjoining the Seeley property in South East, which the firm recently leased from the city. The trustee contends that the company's buildings interfere with access to his property. C. N. Skinner, K. C., opposed the application, and adjournment was made until June 7.

The links of the St. John Golf Club are in prime condition for the summer's sport. The caretaker of the grounds has been busy at work with a new lawn mower since early in the spring, and the result of his efforts is apparent in the splendid appearance and excellent condition of the links. Club members are enthusiastic over the prospects for the coming season, although as yet no outside matches have been arranged. The first match this year will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 on the links. It will be an inter-club contest match play against bogie.

ST. JOHN'S EXPORT TRADE

Valuable Information in a New and Interesting Board of Trade Publication

The St. John Board of Trade, through Secretary W. E. Anderson, has issued an interesting booklet dealing with St. John's trade and opportunities for reaching the markets of the world afforded to manufacturers who locate here.

The first page of the booklet shows in a striking manner St. John's steamship connections with Liverpool, London, Manchester, Havre, Antwerp, Glasgow, Bristol, Dublin, Belfast, Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, Mexico, Havana and the West India Islands, Boston, Halifax, Digby and other Nova Scotia ports. The inner pages show a summary of St. John's winter exports for 1908-1909, presenting the volume of export trade as $24,864,840. A comparison of the exports of Montreal, Halifax, Quebec and St. John as taken from the customs returns for the fiscal years 1908 to 1909 inclusive, shows St. John's export trade has increased in a greater proportion to its volume than any of the other ports named. This can best be shown by the figures of these ports for 1908 and 1909, which are as follows:

Table showing export trade figures for Montreal, Halifax, Quebec, and St. John for 1908 and 1909.

The whole booklet presents St. John's case in an admirable fashion, and Secretary Anderson and the Board of Trade are to be congratulated upon it. It will be distributed to all upper Canadian boards of trade and newspapers and to the principal marine and trade papers of Great Britain and the United States.

SALOON KEEPERS MUST OBEY NEW LAW

No Devices of Any Sort Will Be Permitted Which Will Prevent an Unobstructed View of the Interior of all Liquor Saloons

At the resumption of the proceedings against Peter Mahoney, William Savage and George Gamett, proprietors of saloons on Main street and Thomas O'Brien saloon keeper on Mill street, before Judge Ritchie this morning G. A. Henderson for the prosecution stated that the informations were preferred for the purpose of eliminating obstructions to an entire view of saloons as directed under the new law.

Mr. Henderson further said that drawings were noticed on saloons on the south side of Main street and as these were also devices they would not be tolerated in such instances where drawings were never before installed over the saloon windows.

Mr. Henderson stated that he inspected the premises of his clients late yesterday afternoon and they removed all obstructions at his bidding. He asserted that there were no screens, blinds, colored or ground glass and that they removed all obstructions at his bidding. He asserted that there were no screens, blinds, colored or ground glass and that they removed all obstructions at his bidding.

FISHING SEASON IN THE HARBOR

The fishermen in the harbor and Piscataway report an improvement in the catches yesterday and today. This morning about 2,000 shad were brought to the dealers here, from Piscataway and yesterday about 1,000 were taken. The price shows little change, however, owing to the brisk demand for the fish in the west and most of the catch is being shipped away.
