HAVELOCK

Havelock, June 19.—Prof. Aaron Perry, of Sumnerland (B. C.), who has been taking a post-graduate course in Chicago, arrived here on Saturday evening for his vacation. Mrs. Perry arrived some weeks previously and is at present with her mother, Mrs. Charles B. Keith. They will visit Prof. Perry's old home at Washbrook Lake for a couple of weeks.

The evening a young lad called on Mr. Steeves and told him of the break, implicating himself in the robbery and said he had repented of his misdeeds. Mr. Steeves went to the shop and found the window open and a lot of stuff piled where it could be seen. He called up the shop and notified the police to get a watch.

On Sunday evening Rev. A. J. Archibald, M. A., preached a very eloquent and stirring address from the words: "What is Truth?" After the sermon an evangelistic service was held. The collections during the meeting amounted to more than $50, the greater part of which goes to the support of the home missions.

FREDERICTON

Fredericton, June 19.—On Saturday evening at about 8 o'clock, while paddling a canoe, Mr. S. S. Barker and John Bodkin had a narrow escape from drowning. They were below the highway bridge and nearly opposite the Star Line wharf, when the canoe turned turtle and plunged them into the water and only the timely assistance of the crew aboard the tugboat Hero saved them from a more serious fate.

Mr. Barker hung to the canoe and was carried down stream by the current, while he was picked up by two men who set off from the Hero in a raft boat, while Mr. Bodkin essayed to swim ashore and managed to get as far as the tug, aboard which he was pulled in an exhausted condition.

SALISBURY

Salisbury, June 19.—Wilfred Soden, a medical student of London, England, is spending a few days in Salisbury, the guest of his friend, John Kennedy. Mr. Soden was born and spent his early years at Wheaton Settlement, Salisbury, and is receiving a warm welcome from his old friends.

Mr. Barker hung to the canoe and was carried down stream by the current, while he was picked up by two men who set off from the Hero in a raft boat, while Mr. Bodkin essayed to swim ashore and managed to get as far as the tug, aboard which he was pulled in an exhausted condition.

REDUCED TO A SKELETON

DOCTOR SAID SHE WOULD DIE "Fruit-a-lives" Saved Her Life

Riviere A Pierre, Que., May 9th, 1910. "I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation. The last two years of my illness, I was confined to my bed nearly all the time. I was so thin I weighed only 90 pounds, and vomited everything I ate. Even water would not stay on my stomach. The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious. At the time, I was very strongly advised me to try "Fruit-a-lives" and how thankful I am that I did so. When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again and had gained 20 pounds. I have taken thirteen boxes in all and now weigh 150 pounds and am absolutely well—no pain—no indigestion—no constipation—my heart is sound and complexion clear."

KING AND QUEEN GIVE BRILLIANT BANQUET

Lavish Display at Buckingham Palace for Coronation Guests

Representatives from All Countries Present—Shakespearean Ball at Albert Hall Attended by Thousands—Their Majesties Had a Strenuous Day Attending Abbey Rehearsal—Protestant Churches to Unite in Religious Service.

London, June 23.—The most regal banquet, the palace of king or emperor ever witnessed, and a gorgeous Shakespearean ball under the auspices of noted society leaders were shining features of the second day of coronation week. The banquet at Buckingham Palace tonight was a scene of imperial grandeur, so far as the assembly of royal and eminent personages, the setting of costly magnificence and beautiful decorations could combine to make it.

The king and queen entertained the visiting English royalties, all the special foreign delegations, the foreign ambassadors and ministers, the officers of the state and the household, the members of the cabinet and former cabinet members, the heads of the church and judiciary, and of the army and navy.

The two largest apartments in the palace, the ball room and the picture gallery, which adjoin, were utilized as a banquet hall. On the tables was displayed the royal gold plate, used only on historic occasions, the cost of which is estimated at $15,000,000, and its weights eight tons. This plate for the most part was collected in the reigns of the four Georges, and the principal pieces is a massive peacock chalice, in one of the Indian wars, whose tail is studded with diamonds. Cut glass vases, silver, and old wines, dating back more than a century, were on the board. The gallery holds more than 800 pictures.

The Shakespearean ball was held in Albert Hall, which was elaborately decorated. The dancers numbered thousands, while 400 boxes were occupied by the representatives of foreign nations and the most prominent British officials. As many as twenty-nine quadrilles were danced simultaneously, the participants representing all groups of the coronation week. Shakespeare's play, "Leading actors and actresses took part in these quadrilles along with the leaders of the smart set. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Louis and Princess Victoria of Battemberg, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince Henry of Prussia, the Duke of Devonshire, the German Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm and the crown princess, the Turkish, Russian, Austrian, Japanese, Greek, Danish and American representatives were present.

These functions were only part of the day's events. In the morning the king received most of the foreign envoys formally. In the afternoon, with the queen, he went through a rehearsal of the coronation at the Abbey and later gave a special audience to John Hays Hammond who presented to his majesty a letter from President Taft. The king also received the Chinese, Japanese, Turkish and Persian envoys who presented decorations from their sovereigns.

The other important events of the day included luncheon to the Dominion ministers and mayors, a party by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, and a review of the colonial troops by War Secretary Haldane.

This has been a perfect summer day and the population is transformed to carnival spirit. Countless electric globes are arranged into various designs illuminate the streets, with from curb to curb are filled with hundreds of thousands of people. Through the masses navigate every sort of vehicle imaginable, motors, buses, drays and carts piled with sightseers, advertising vans with minstrels and donkey wagons driven by costers.

St. James Park and the West End Club region were jammed tonight to suffocation by costers.

BORDEN HITS HIS FIRST SNAG

Grain Growers at Brandon Outspoken in Demands for Reciprocity

Brandon, Man., June 20.—Mr. Borden had a strenuous day the first of his western tour. This afternoon he addressed a large meeting at Carberry, where he received a cordial reception and this evening he met the grain growers at Brandon, heard the expression of their views, made a reply, and later addressed a mass meeting in the public park at which 4,000 people were in attendance.

The grain growers were outspoken in their demands for reciprocity, increase of the British preference to fifty per cent, building of the Hudson's Bay road, and remedy of the evils in connection with the terminal elevators.

They also accused the Conservatives in parliament of obstructing reciprocity, and declared that the onus would fall on the opposition if the government was forced to the contrary.

In his reply, Mr. Borden said he was absolutely opposed to reciprocity, and if the grain growers volunteered to make him premier tomorrow he would support the pact, he would absolutely refuse.

As to the British preference, Mr. Borden said he did not think the grain growers were aware of the fact that the reduction of duties really meant. It had been the experience in the past that the lowering of the tariff did not always mean extra competition.

As the outcome of an appeal, by the Duke of Devonshire, to the "gentlemen of England" to realize at this time their responsibilities to the empire, a meeting was held tonight at Queen's Hall. Patriotic speeches were made and a message of loyalty was read to the king. Lord Loreburn, Lord High Chancellor, presided, while Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the Earl of Selborne, Baron Amptill, Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Earl Willington and the Archbishop of York attended. The Archbishop of Canterbury sent a letter in which he exhorted all to strive for Christian citizenship.

Churches Sink Differences. One of the most interesting features of the coronation is a compact by the established and free churches for joint services in many cities. This is the first time that the two bodies have united on such a scale for any purpose.

Much attention is being paid to the officers and men of the American battleship Delaware, which is now anchored with the other foreign warships at Spithead. Capt. Charles A. Gove and the six senior officers of the Delaware will come to London tomorrow as the guests of the admiralty to attend the coronation.

Streets Swarm With Cheering Crowds, Whilst Throngs on Sidewalks and Stands Take Their Places to Wait for the Great Procession to Westminster Abbey This Morning—Sixty Thousand Troops, Besides Police, to Be on Duty Today.

London, June 21.—The British nation shows not the slightest sign of diminishing favor toward monarchical government. A half century of quiet life under Queen Victoria has been succeeded by a stirring decade, which has seen a coronation and two state funerals. Yet the public appetite is unslaked, but rather augmented, in the enthusiasm for royalty and kingly display.

win. It is not at all because the battle was unimportant.

In fact, the main object of the war makers of 1812 was to conquer Canada. They failed lamentably, partly because of the heroism of the Canadians and partly because of the discipline of the British troops; and hence our historians have for most unanimously agreed to forget the main object of the war.

A FRANK VIEW OF CHATEAUGUAY BY AN AMERICAN NEWSPAPER

New York Times Remembers Some Facts About 1812 Which Are Not Made Prominent in United States Accounts of That Struggle.

(New York Times.) While the Empire festivities have been going on in honor of King George V. there has been one long, loud, hoarse roar of laughter on this side of the Atlantic over the solemnity of our British cousins. For why? Because, in the morning, the solemnity of their, they have decided to omit from the Empire festivities the celebration of the battle of Chateaugay.

After this thing had percolated across the Atlantic and it had become known in England that not one American in a hundred had heard of the battle of Chateaugay, and that the miserable remnant would not feel offended if the thing went back on the list of the Empire festivities, it was so restored. But in the meantime the mystery had got across the Atlantic.

What is Chateaugay? wondered America. Why should John Bull be afraid to put on his feelings by mentioning it? And Boston Jonathan rubbed his battle-scarred leg, carefully searching for the place where mosquito bite that was made by Chateaugay.

Well, after all the laugh is on Brother Jonathan, not on John Bull. The reason why John has so solemnly carried the memory of the battle of Chateaugay, and the reason why we have conveniently forgotten it, is that the battle is one of John Bull's glories, and hence carried by his historians, whereas, it being a thing of disgrace to us, we dismiss it in a paragraph in the best of our histories.

London, June 21.—The British nation shows not the slightest sign of diminishing favor toward monarchical government. A half century of quiet life under Queen Victoria has been succeeded by a stirring decade, which has seen a coronation and two state funerals. Yet the public appetite is unslaked, but rather augmented, in the enthusiasm for royalty and kingly display.

Never before has this enthusiasm reached such a high pitch, and the ceremonies attendant upon tomorrow's great coronation of King George V., appear likely to be attended by a degree of excitement and public fervor unrivaled in the history of the Dominion.

A MANLY VIEW

Of course there are some people going up and down the country now, professional politicians for the most part (though there are some others with whom you know just as little about the matter), who are singing a song about blue ruin which is coming on our country through reciprocity with the United States.

THE CONSERVATIVES AND RECIPROCIDITY

From the course pursued by the Conservative party on the question of reciprocity it would be fair to assume that had they been in power during the last year they would have rejected the overtures of Mr. Tait and the American Congress for a trade agreement.

Not all the influence of the interests to which he is ordinarily so subservient, would cause him to hesitate. And in his eagerness to conclude the pact he would show wise judgment and play good politics.

There never was a party in Canada that was strong enough to reject such fair and reasonable overtures. It would be both unwise and absurd to do so.

GOOD HOMES, AND CHEAP

The model city is one in which most of the people own their homes. The ambition to own a home is a most natural one, and in too many cases it is discouraged or abandoned by a false estimate of the difficulties to be overcome.

MR. BORDEN'S FAILURE

Some years ago, when Mr. Borden began his ante-election tour of the Dominion, he fired the opening gun of the campaign in Nova Scotia by launching the so-called "Halifax platform."

tempt after attempt to deceive the electors by misrepresentation and by appeals to prejudice. The issue as it really stands does not appeal to him for election purposes, and so he deliberately distorts it.

Mr. Borden argues that the ratification of the agreement would mean ultimate annexation. There are some millions of Canadians who will warmly repudiate any such possibility, and who will be ready to say to Mr. Borden that a change in our tariff affecting about one-fifth of our business with the United States will have absolutely no effect upon the political destiny of this country.

A CREDIT TO ST. JOHN

The colonel and officers of the 62nd Fusiliers, and the men of the regiment, will be generally and warmly congratulated upon their successful visit to Boston and the fine impression they created there.

THE CORONATION

While today in the great gray minister—where sleep so many who have made England's history bright beyond all—the crown His Most Gracious Majesty George the Fifth, there will be a world to watch and an unmatched Empire to cry "God Bless the King!"

Trade, though Mr. Borden seems not to see it, is a mutually profitable transaction. In one part of his speech he speaks of the trade we now do with the United States which, counting what we buy as well as what we sell, amounts to some $300,000,000.

this $300,000,000 may become $600,000,000. This would seem to be an admission of considerable importance, for it is not difficult to estimate the advantage to this country that will arise from so tremendous an increase of our commerce.

Mr. Borden concluded his Winnipeg speech with the assertion that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not fit to represent Canada in London at this time.

A FRANK CONFESSION

"We were licked at Chateaugay—our destiny was turned southward for all time by an obscure British person named Salisbury, and naturally we are not advertising the fact.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The city's eyes are fixed upon London where the first of all the nations is about to crown its sovereign.

THE INVASION

The invasion of Boston by a Canadian regiment seems to have pleased everybody concerned. To make so perilous a trip without losing a man indicates rare endurance and high spirit.

WINGS OF PLANE ADVENTURES

BY J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

I-FLIRTING WITH DEATH AT 10,000 FEET

perceive enough to satisfy a man for a long time.

CLIMBING THE AIR STAIRS ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

I should like to have had him with me on my flight from Philadelphia for the altitude record—that fellow who said that it was "getting easier all the time." I remember that, therefore, when the papers record another altitude record in a few brief words, he would do as I do—shake his head and draw his breath in through his teeth at the realization of the ages of suffering that aviation must have undergone during his hour and some minutes of flying.

That man should have seen the beauty of it. I should also have seen the beauty of the man with me that day at Point Breese and she flew, without effort and with scarcely a tremor, in the first wide preliminary circles as I mounted the first two thousand feet.

Easy! That would have looked easy enough, certainly.

There didn't seem to be a bit of effort at all. I imagine the machine must have looked like a great ball or a hazy floating on the breeze, and I suppose I might have been sound asleep in her for all the spectators on the ground could have seen of motion or of effort on my part.

Then came the clouds and I worked my way up through them, hoping that they would not be thick nor last long, for above the clouds in the sunlight are the wildest quakes, and it means fight—fight all the time.

The hand of the aneroid barometer in front of me kept creeping round and round as I mounted the first two thousand feet. It rolled off quickly and then more and more slowly the indicator went as I entered the thinner strata of the upper air and began the struggle to pass the thousand marks. Three, four, five, six thousand I passed, each one taking an increasing length of time and requiring more of physical effort and mental nervous strain.

Soon the hand of the aneroid began to caper back and forth; I knew it was mounting steadily, but the little instrument did not show it and finally stopped back near the starting point and stayed there. The aneroid had evidently gone higher than it was ever intended to go and now was completely out of commission.

A barograph—which is a recording barometer, enclosed in a quite a fair sized wooden box with a glass front—had been tied about my neck and hung in front of me, just far enough down for it to rest easily in my lap as I sat in my seat. I took to such trust would threaten panic with my overstrung nerves, and panic would be fatal.

So I doggedly fixed my mind upon the magic figure "10,000" and mounted again. The flying was finally a haze which completely shut the earth from my view and I seemed like an impudent little fly, buzzing around helplessly in the vastness of infinity. The thought struck me as being rather droll, and I laughed aloud. Then I remembered how a friend of mine had come to me at the hangar before I started and, with a quizzical expression on his face, as though he knew I was not serious, asked:

"Are you really going for altitude today?"

"Yes," I answered.

My friend's quizzical look turned, I thought, to a smile of open disbelief as though he and I were sharing a secret from the waiting crowd.

"Do you think you have any chance of making it?" he asked.

"There's always a chance," I replied and jumped into the machine.

Since then I have thought over that short conversation a score of times and I have failed to find in it anything clever, or out of the ordinary, or even in the slightest amusing. Yet away up there in a loneliness whose vastness and impressiveness only Legagneux and I, of all living men, can appreciate, with the motor buzzing and whirling and humming and spitting, seemingly to accentuate the very vastness of the solitude and make it even more awe-inspiring than it is to the floating balloonist—away up there, passing close to the 9,000 foot mark, the two questions and their answers struck me as being the most droll things I had ever heard and I started to laugh and guffaw loudly, hysterically, coarsely, like a drunk sailor in a low tap-room.

The sound of my laughter had something uncanny in it and I suddenly awoke to a realization of the fact that I had been made in the election law and it was minutes and that there was nothing to laugh at after all.

"Crazy," I thought, and as the thought flashed across my mind with all the horrible possibilities of a loss of mentality and mental balance nearly two miles above the earth—with the slightest movement spelling awful death—I pulled myself together again and made a final desperate effort to cross the 10,000 mark. Finally, utterly exhausted and numb both in body and mind, I gave up the struggle and turned the nose of the Biernot toward the earth.

Unconsciously on the drop to earth.

I have no words to describe that descent. It would sound like the varied drivel if I should try for only a man trained to repression of superlatives could give an idea of its horror and making it seem like ailly exaggeration.

Every reader has probably gone down fifteen or twenty floors in an express elevator. Do you remember how dizzy and sick at the stomach it made you?

My descent was made at the rate of a vertical mile in about two minutes while I was traveling horizontally at the rate of seventy or eighty miles an hour. In other words, my vertical speed downward was about four times as fast as that of the fastest elevator and I had the added strain of the tremendous horizontal momentum.

The effect of this rapid descent is almost paralyzing. Those who have traveled under the new Pennsylvania Railroad tunnels to New York have felt the effect of the pressure of air against the ear drums. This is about one-tenth the effect that is made upon the ears when descending in an aeroplane from a great height. In my case, in coming down from 9,897 feet at my tremendous rate of speed, my ears felt that they would burst and the top of my head felt as though it would fly off at any moment. Added to this came the feeling of nausea, which grew and grew until my head swam and, just for one moment, I am sure, I lost consciousness. This occurred, I should say, at a height of between 7,000 and 8,000 feet.

Again I had to bring all my self-control to my rescue, but my nervous energy was ebbing fast and I remember wondering how much longer I could continue to fight back the utter collapse that I knew was coming soon.

You must remember that all this was occurring when I had only an approximate idea of how high about the earth I was and when I had absolutely no idea of my geographical position. After I had passed through the upper strata of clouds at a height of some 4,000 feet, I had not again seen the horizon and I was surrounded by patches of indistinct drab as I flew over the rifts in the vapor, and I did not know whether I was one mile or a hundred miles from Philadelphia. And now, I was descending to earth and I was sure that I could do nothing except keep the Biernot on the proper slant to give the best descent with the least possible strain.

Into the clouds again I went, circling now, with some vague idea that I had managed somehow to keep over the Point Breese field from which I had started. I knew that I should collapse utterly when I landed—supposing, of course, that I did finally land in safety—and I hoped that I would come down among my friends where I could be taken care of and where there would be none of the added strain and anxiety of explaining to strangers and getting into communication with those I had left.

ASTRAY IN SKYWARD.

By my first sight of the earth as I dropped from the lower fringes of the clouds showed me that I was doomed to another disappointment. Not a sign of a city was in sight. Not a single landmark that I had been told to look out for was to be seen. Instead, there was farm land and forest, ploughed fields and orchards and nowhere so much as a smooth meadow fit for me to alight upon without smashing up.

For the third time, I saw Death as it were, sitting grinning on the ground in front of me. My head swam and I seemed with that awful feeling of nausea, I was almost unconsciousness for a fleeting moment. Then the sight of a small building brought me back to my senses and I circled again to come up on it from its best direction.

Fortunately for me, I made a perfect landing. It was, probably, the manner that comes of long practice that kept me from smashing up on coming to the ground, for I know that my brain was as long as my arms and my muscles were capable of obeying a mental command. "I must have sat there helplessly in the machine for fully five minutes after I landed. I could not see to get my brain into working order again. I simply sat there staring vacantly ahead of me and muttering meaningless things to myself until I saw a woman coming toward me. Then I stretched myself, half rose and sprawled rather than climbed down from my seat to the ground. But even then I could not stand without help. When the woman came up, she found me leaning back and my face buried in my folded arms and my whole appearance suggesting the man who had been utterly ruined and beaten in a life's ambition instead of a man who had just broken a branch of sport.

I found that I had landed in a hay-barn of not more than two dozen loaves. My friend who that was named Oriana, told me that it was about fourteen miles northwest of my starting point in Philadelphia. Naturally, the news of the strange visitor from the skies spread about the surrounding country like wild fire and the neighborhood began flocking in all sorts of conveyances. But I wanted to get away from the crowd, so making arrangements with the village constable to guard my horse, I went with the woman who had first discovered me, to her home—the only house in the village that boasted a telephone—and from there I communicated to the officials at the aviation field by means of my landing. That evening they came for me in an automobile.

THE AFTER EFFECT.

For two or three days after that the thought of going again for altitude made the cold chills run up and down my back. My nerve was gone. Then came the disappointing announcement that a test of my bravery, in a word, reading of a record showed approximately 9,970 feet, gave me only a little more than 9,400 feet. The officials of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, under whose auspices the flight had been made, were so sure that a mistake had been made somewhere and so turned the instrument over to George S. Bliss, chief of the United States Weather Bureau in Philadelphia. His investigations and generous efforts of this official were the fact that the final official reading of 8,977 feet was given after tests to which a barograph had ever been subjected before. This was the world's record for only a short time, for a day or two later came Legagneux's wonderful feat when he ascended 10,460 feet and made it impossible for me to realize my fond hope of being the first man to pass the 10,000 mark.

But the fascination of altitude work is stronger with me than ever in spite of my awful strain and instantly increasing desire for more and next spring I hope to return to Philadelphia and beat any record that my then be in existence.

LAUGHING AT 10,000 FEET.

There was nothing for it, however, but to continue the flight upward. I set my teeth hard and again pulled the control against this decree by the Protestant world, that we do protest most strongly against the solemnizing of any marriage when performed by any officer authorized by the state; that we deny the right of any church, our own or any other, to cast doubt upon the validity of any marriage when solemnized according to the laws of our land, and would express our conviction that if necessary the most radical measures should be adopted in order to make forever void all marriages performed by the minister of any church when celebrated under the form of any provincial statute.

A communication from Rev. James Allan, secretary of the Missionary Society, enclosing a resolution of the General Mission Board, was first read, which was referred to the missionary committee of the conference.

The election of chairmen of the different districts was taken up and financial and Sunday school secretaries were nominated in each as follows:

Dr. Flanders; Rev. H. D. Mar, financial secretary; Rev. G. Earle, Sunday school secretary.

Fredrickson—Rev. J. C. Berrie, Rev. N. J. H. Hudson, Sunday school secretary.

Woodstock—Rev. R. W. Weddall; Rev. E. C. Turner, financial secretary; Rev. George Ayers, Sunday school secretary.

Sackville—Rev. M. R. Knight; Rev. Thomas Hicks, financial secretary; Rev. A. D. McCully, Sunday school secretary.

Chatham—Rev. Thos. Pierce, Rev. J. M. Rose, financial secretary; Rev. J. M. Rose, Sunday school secretary.

St. Stephen—Rev. W. Penna, Rev. Geo. Dawson, financial secretary; Rev. Richard Opie, Sunday school secretary.

Charlottetown—Rev. W. Harrison, Rev. F. A. Whitman, financial secretary; Rev. B. O. Hartman, Sunday school secretary.

Summerside—Rev. James Strothard; Rev. H. H. Johnson, financial secretary; Rev. J. G. Gough, Sunday school secretary.

Rev. Joseph Heaney, treasurer, read the report of the general young people's society's funds. This showed a total of $33.65. This was adopted. Rev. R. Opie reported for the committee on systematic giving recommending the adoption of giving by envelopes. This was adopted.

Rev. Mr. Steel reported that the superintendent fund was just $150 short of $1,000 and urged that members send their contributions soon so as to bring the total up.

Principal Palmer, in behalf of the committee on the condition of the public schools, reported for that body. They recommended that the conference cooperate with other churches in the matter. They asked that a committee of eight be appointed to meet with the committee from the Anglican body. This committee was to consist of Rev. Thomas Marshall, Rev. Dr. Campbell, Rev. W. F. Gaetz, Rev. Neil McLaughlin, Dr. Inch, Principal Palmer, J. Hunter White and R. T. Hayes. The report was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, that we express our full sympathy with the agitation now aroused conference were then appointed to send a telegram of greeting to the Nova Scotia conference.

Rev. J. J. Colter, of Fredericton, returned thanks for a resolution of congratulation passed on his attaining his jubilee.

Dr. Flanders for the committee appointed to prepare a message of congratulation to King George, he came to the conclusion that it was necessary and asked that the report be received and the committee discharged. This was acceded to.

Rev. Thomas Hicks next presented the report of the contingent fund, which was accepted.

The report of the committee on the non-temere decree was next taken up. Rev. B. H. Thomas read the majority report, and Rev. Mr. Barry submitted the minority report as an amendment. There was a prolonged discussion of the subject in which keen interest was manifested. When the vote was finally called, however, it was found that the minority report was defeated 29 to 20, while the majority report was adopted 55 to 11.

Memorial Service.

Last evening's session of the conference was taken up by the consideration of temperance matters and an impressive memorial service for Rev. J. N. Parker, of the St. John district, and Rev. Charles Stewart, D. D., of the Sackville district. The president, Rev. Mr. Knight, was in the chair, and Rev. William Lawson introduced a delegation from the New Brunswick and St. John county temperance federation to the conference.

The delegation consisted of Mrs. Seymour, C. Fraser, Mr. Tavish, J. R. Woodburn and Rev. H. O. Osher. On the invitation of the president, Mr. McLaughlin addressed the meeting, explaining the objects of the federation, and asking their help in procuring a prohibitory law for the province.

Rev. W. R. Robinson also addressed the gathering, after which Rev. Mr. Barry was heard.

At the conclusion of Mr. Barry's address, which was frequently applauded, Rev. Mr. Thomas introduced a resolution pledging the support of the conference to procuring a prohibitory law. This was passed unanimously.

The treasurer of the temperance and moral reform fund of the conference reported receipts of $499.78. This was an increase of $42.12 from last year. The assessment for next year by districts is as follows: St. John, $700; Fredericton, $427; Woodstock, $256; Chatham, $258; Sackville, $533; St. Stephen, $295; Charlottetown, $443; Summerside, $355. The total estimate for the coming year is $3,200.

The report of the sustentation fund showed the receipts totalled $2,027.11. The assessment for next year is as follows: St. John, $385; Fredericton, $151; Woodstock, $98; Chatham, $80.20; Sackville, $230.70; St. Stephen, $71.65; Charlottetown, $155.87; Summerside, $148; interest on legacies, $37.59; balance from last year, $29.88. The total for the year is $1,257.13.

The arbitration treaty committee reported favorably of the measure.

Wednesday, June 21.

The annual meeting of the New Brunwick and Prince Edward Island conference of the Methodist church adjourned yesterday afternoon. The next meeting will be held in Fredericton on the second Tuesday in June, 1912. The final session of the conference yesterday was closed by a half hour's devotional exercise.

At yesterday morning's session the report of the children's fund was presented by Rev. James Crisp, and Rev. J. A. Lives gave the report of the parsonage aid fund committee. It was decided that the latter fund should be placed in the hands of a permanent board of management. Rev. R. Opie was appointed secretary, treasurer and Rev. H. Harrison and Rev. J. M. Lamont auditors for the present year.

Rev. C. F. Stebbings in behalf of the committee on moral and social reform presented an important resolution. In this after commending the changes which had been made in the election law and the work done by the New Brunswick temperance federation, the committee asked that efforts be made for the strict suppression of the habit and cigarette evil among minors. The committee also recommended that the signing of the pledge in the Sunday schools be attended to more carefully by the superintendents and teachers.

The committee also recommended the public schools and approved of the abolition of the canteens in the military camps.

Rev. W. F. Gaetz, for the Epworth League committee, reported a decrease of seven in the number of leagues. The membership was 1,783, a decrease of 82. The receipts also showed a decrease of $48.92.

J. Hunter White read the report of the Laymen's Association. The officers elected for this association were as follows: J. Hunter White, president; J. M. Palmer, vice; R. D. Smith, secretary-treasurer; W. D. Baskin, P. J. Steel, A. C. Powers, A. E. Hamilton, G. A. Henderson, executive.

A telegram of congratulation was read from the Nova Scotia conference.

Statistical Report.

At the afternoon session Rev. H. S. Young presented the report of the statistical committee. This showed: Membership, 1,711; Woodstock, 1,076; Chatham, 1,133; Sackville, 2,577; St. Stephen, 701; Charlottetown, 1,295; Summerside, 1,709. The total was 14,203. The number of probationers in the different districts was given as 186. The membership showed an increase of 46 over last year. There were 699 infant baptisms reported; 94 adult baptisms; 377 marriages and 742 burials.

Rev. D. R. Chown and E. R. Mchum were then elected alternate delegates to the general conference. The list of missionary committees of the various districts throughout the conference was read out. The president nominated the following to the special committee of conference: R. D. Smith, E. R. Mchum, Dr. Inch, and C. A. Sampson. These were accepted. The president and secretary of the confer-about an hour and a half of the time of the Methodist Conference was taken up yesterday afternoon discussing the Ne Temere decree. After a keen debate in which Dr. Allison, Dr. Inch and some others took part, a minority report of the committee appointed to consider the resolution brought in by Rev. J. L. Batty and submitted to the conference on Sunday and published in The Telegraph yesterday, was defeated by a large majority.

The following, which was submitted as the finding of the majority of the committee by Rev. H. B. Thomas, was adopted:

"Whereas this conference views with great alarm the results which have followed the enforcement of the Ne Temere decree of the Roman Catholic church by which in this and other countries the firm foundations of the home have been disturbed, family relations have been disrupted and the burden of a heavy disgrace has been in some cases thrust upon innocent women; and

"Whereas the Methodist Church has always maintained and must continue to maintain, the supremacy of the civil law in determining the conditions under which the marriage contract may legally be made and which is involved in its faithful fulfillment; and

ROUSING LIBERAL RALLY IN ANDOVER

Pugsley and Robinson Chief Speakers—Minister's Hopefulness for Valley Railway Heartily Cheered.

Andover, N. B., June 21.—A very large audience assembled in the court house last evening to hear Hon. William Pugsley and Hon. G. W. Robinson talk on the political questions of the day. The evening session was followed by an address by Pius Michael, M. P., and the local representatives, Messrs. Tweeddale and Burgess, and all of them obtained a splendid hearing, though the meeting lasted more than three hours. The meeting of the evening was held at the court house, which was impossible to wire a report worthy of the speeches, which will follow.

Dr. Richard Barrie, of Perth, was chairman and Pius Michael was the first speaker. He confirmed his attention to the question of reciprocity, dealing with it as an effective manner.

Hon. C. W. Robinson obtained a splendid reception and made a vigorous speech concerning the administration of provincial affairs. He was repeatedly cheered and found great favor with the audience, both of these subjects he handled generally. James Burgess, M. P., spoke for a few moments upon the operations of the wonderful audit act of the Hazen and Robinson construction was commenced on the St. John Valley Railway. It is not possible that it will not be my fault or the fault of my colleagues, or of the Liberal members of the province. Of the Liberal members of the province, I would like to see a vigorous speech that was well received and warmly applauded.

UPHAM RECEPTION

Upham, Kings Co., June 22.—The reception of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Reid, who were married in Berlin (N. H.) June 7, 1911, took place at the groom's home in Upham Tuesday evening, June 23, 1911. Although it was a very wet evening about thirty guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Reid received many very handsome gifts. A very enjoyable evening was spent in dancing. At 11 o'clock a dainty supper was served. Mrs. Reid was formerly Miss Dora F. Porter, of Mackville.

For two or three days after that the thought of going again for altitude made the cold chills run up and down my back. My nerve was gone. Then came the day of the coronation. I had a rough reading of which had shown approximately 9,870 feet, gave me only a little more than 9,400 feet. But the officials of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, under whose auspices the flight had been made, were sure that a mistake had been made somewhere and so turned the young man in the Aero Club, head of the United States Weather Bureau in Philadelphia. To the indefatigable and generous efforts of this official we owe the fact that the final official reading of 9,870 feet was given after tests to which no barograph had ever been subjected before. That in the Aero Club we owe the fact that the final official reading of 9,870 feet was given after tests to which no barograph had ever been subjected before. HON. H. H. ASQUITH
Prime Minister of England.

In brilliant uniforms, accompanied by bands, afforded almost as interesting a show as the procession itself, and then came royal carriages and coaches taking robed and uniformed men and daintily dressed women to the abbey for the ceremony.

The vicinity of the abbey itself was a brilliant scene. From time to time, up to the king and queen had passed the abbey for hours. Here troops had taken to their positions even before the earliest arrivals and formed a guard about the square. On one side of the horse guards, familiar figure in London, stood at the head of their black chargers. They were flanked by blue-coated marines and blue-jackets, with a body of Hussars in front to take charge of the officers' horses as they arrived with the royal procession. Ambulance men and white-aproned nurses waited about ready to render aid to any in need, while some were despatched to the abbey to be on hand should any of the distinguished personages there require their services.

Got an Early Start.

Soon after 7 o'clock carriages and motor cars began to crowd the entrance. The ambassadors and the ministers came in their own carriages and for two hours there was a continuous flow of vehicles came the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Teck, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince Christian and Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, all on chargers.

The arrival of their majesties at the abbey was the signal for a shout of greeting which was continued until they were lost to view and then repeated as King and Queen or some other hero was recognized.

Canadian Officer Injured.

The only serious accident occurring during the course of the day was that to Capt. Leslie Macoun, commanding the Canadian mounted contingent escorting the King to the abbey. He was thrown from his horse and badly injured. He was taken to a hospital.

Owing to the downpour of rain the illumination of the fleet at Spithhead was postponed until Friday night. All the theatres in London were closed tonight.

The Queen's Dress.

The dress worn by Queen Mary at the coronation today was indeed worthy of the occasion both for its beauty and magnificence. Made of rich white English satin, it was fashioned in princess style. A narrow border of oak leaves and acorns in dull deep gold, ornamented the hem all round and above this, with a small blank interval to emphasize the effect, was a deeper border of broken lines of bright gold, representing waves and intended to symbolize the imperial sea. A lotus lily, the Indian symbol of long life and happiness, and its foliage was embroidered in the centre of the waves. Higher in the skirt, in the centre, the star of India was raised in gold, with the five points set in a guard of diamonds, representing the motto of the Indian empire—Heaven's light our guide.

A striking and handsome design typifying the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland rose at each side of the skirt, showing Tudor roses in bright gold, this partly in dull and partly in burnished gold, and shamrocks in rich interlocking in light gold threads. This embroidery was continued up the bodice, in the centre of which stood out a Tudor rose with two thistles bent downwards below. The low neck was bordered all round with a design of shamrocks in dull gold, and there was a wide tucker of filmy gold lace over white silk tulle.

The sleeves were embroidered with thistles and shamrocks in the same design as those on the skirt, and gold lace was utilized to cover the openings. The back of the bodice, which was hidden by the long train, was also richly wrought in gold. The skirt was very full and the train round. A wide box pleat opened like a fan from the waistline, later merging in the train.

The train of purple velvet, ermine and gold was perfectly regal. It was attached to the dress at the shoulders by rich gold cords with tassels. It was lined with ermine dotted with black tails. Round the outer edge was a narrow border of ermine

The design of roses, shamrocks and thistles raised in dull and bright gold, was carried out all over the train, enriching the effects of the purple velvet. Near the centre were also worked in old English lettering the Queen's cypher in dead gold, and this was transfixed by a slender Latin cross with a trefoil at each end in bright gold. Above this was the crown in gold.

Altogether the robe presented an appearance of great magnificence and all present agreed that the picture of queenly dignity was complete when her majesty wore her crown after the ceremony of anointing.

The Music.

The musical programme performed during the coronation services in Westminster Abbey was for the greater part the work of representative British musicians and the performers were selected from among the most renowned English cathedral and college choirs, comprising the Abbey choir, and picked singers from St. Paul's Cathedral, the royal chapels of Windsor and St. James's, as well as a number of men from provincial cathedrals. The music was for the most part that usually associated by tradition with coronations, and it was arranged by Sir Frederick Bridge with the approval of the king.

Among the music always used on such occasions, and again rendered today, was Tallis's five-part Litaney, one of the most perfect pieces of harmony in existence. Merbeck's Nuncie cress, sung in the Communion; the Veni Creator, adapted to an ancient plainsong melody; and Handel's anthem, Zadok the Priest, which was composed for the coronation of George II, were also again utilized.

The principal novelty was Sir Frederick Bridge's Homage anthem, in which the old Lutheran chorale, Ein feste Burg, was very prominently. Sir Edward Elgar's setting of the offertorium, O Hearken Thou, was also prominent.

Dr. Alcock's Sanctus; Sir Charles Stanford's setting of Gloria in Excelsis, and Sir Hubert Parry's festal Te Deum were performed with great success.

Some striking hymns were specially composed for the occasion, including the Bishop of Durham's 'Lo! The King in State and Splendor, set to music by Sir Frederick Bridge, and Canon Ainger's 'O God, Who in the Days of Old, set to music by Sir Walter Parratt.

Another feature of the service was the saluting of the king and queen by the boys of Westminster school, who again and then a single line of burnished gold embroidery, while a second border was of acorns and oak leaves raised in dull gold, interspersed at frequent intervals by medallions bearing the rose, the thistle and the shamrock in turn. At each side of the train where it was turned at the bottom was a large medallion and three more of the same size in the centre at the end.

Over the train at the shoulders the Queen wore an ermine cape which reached Occasional heavy showers sweeping into the stands drove the people from their seats, but only temporarily. At last the second procession, the members of the British royal family, came half an hour later. The Prince of Wales received an enthusiastic greeting which he seemed to enjoy greatly.

The Royal Procession.

At 10:30 o'clock a royal salute announced the departure of the king and queen from the palace, and as the most gorgeous of the procession made its way through the troop-lined streets, a wave of cheering spread from one end of the route to the other. The sun made an attempt to break through the clouds and partially succeeded, so that the people were able to watch the progress of the king with the discomfort that had marred the earlier processions.

Immediately behind the royal coach Lord Kitchener in a field marshal's uniform rode beside the standard, and then claimed the privilege of greeting their sovereigns as they entered the Abbey with the acclamation "Vivat Rex Georgius! Vivat Regina Maria!"

At the conclusion of the service the national anthem was sung with an additional verse written by Mr. Martin S. Skedding, and the march played as their majesties left the Abbey was specially composed by Sir Edward Elgar.

At Hampton.

Hampton, N. B., June 22.—(Special)—Coronation day was suitably observed here by a religious service at St. Paul's church, Lakeside, at which there was a large congregation of people from far and near. Among them there were representatives of the municipal council, headed by Judge McLeod and county officials. A detachment of the 7th regiment in command of Captain F. Gagey, officers and members of Corinthian Lodge, No. 13, A. F. & A. Masons; the Hampton patrol of boy scouts in charge of Scoutmaster E. A. Schofield, two patrols of girl guides under Patrol Leaders Helen Scott and Jean Schofield, for whom special seats in the church were reserved. The societies paraded at the court house and marched to Lakeside, headed by the Hampton Cornet Band and marshalled by Captain R. A. March of the 8th Hussars in full military dress. After the service they marched back to the court house, where they drew up in order and gave round after round of cheers for King George V. and the old Lutheran chorale, Ein feste Burg, was also prominent.

Dr. Alcock's Sanctus; Sir Charles Stanford's setting of Gloria in Excelsis, and Sir Hubert Parry's festal Te Deum were performed with great success.

Some striking hymns were specially composed for the occasion, including the Bishop of Durham's 'Lo! The King in State and Splendor, set to music by Sir Frederick Bridge, and Canon Ainger's 'O God, Who in the Days of Old, set to music by Sir Walter Parratt.

Another feature of the service was the saluting of the king and queen by the boys of Westminster school, who again and teachers of the town schools assembled on Marks street school grounds, where they were presented with coronation medals by G. W. Ganong, then, headed by the Frontier Band, the pupils marched through the principal streets and returned to Marks street grounds, where interesting exercises by the pupils were witnessed. Venerable Archdeacon Newham delivered a stirring and interesting address.

Special services were conducted in Christ's church at 11 o'clock. At 12 o'clock a royal salute was fired and bells rung. This afternoon about 1,000 people went to the driving park to witness the horse races and a ball game between the Calais team and Thistles. Calais defeated the Thistles by a score of 8 to 1. Ryan, pitcher, and Carver, catcher, for Calais; Crowley, pitcher, and McGovern, catcher, for Thistles. Grace, of Fredericton, was umpire.

There were three horse races with half mile heats. Race No. 1, Annie Laurie, owned by A. T. Murchie, won in straight heats; Massie D. Groves, second; Pills, H. R. Haley, third. Best time, 1:12.

Race No. 2—Bushel, owned by W. H. Keys, first; Major Bull, G. A. Irvine, second; J. Gunn, F. McGilnehy, third. Best time, 1:13.

Race No. 3—Goldie, owned by J. F. Dutton, first; Lady Fondly, Hugh Lavo, second; Oakley G. F. Colleton, third. Best time, 1:18. Starter, Fred Graham; judges, M. McCormick, Frank Littlefield, George Thaddeus, Harry Ganong, William McGilnehy.

today and was in every respect a most solemn and beautiful testimony of loyalty and love for the reigning king and queen. The anthem was Praise Ye the Father, and in addition the national anthem was sung by the congregation, the Te Deum chanted and several hymns sung.

At Chatham.

Chatham, June 22.—(Special)—Coronation day passed by unheeded today with the exception of a special service in the Anglican church, which was effectively decorated.

The public buildings were draped and flagged extensively and two or three individuals did a little decorating but, generally speaking, no interest whatever was displayed in the event.

Across the river at Millbank festivities on an extensive scale were carried out at the Roman Catholic church grounds, the proceeds of which will be donated to the Hotel Dieu.

At St. Stephen.

St. Stephen, June 22.—(Special)—King's weather has indeed prevailed today and the citizens of the border towns have enjoyed a real holiday. All places of business and factories have been closed and there has been the most complete suspension of business seen here on a holiday for many years. This morning at 9 o'clock the pupils have such a celebration as it otherwise would. Coronation day was daily observed. The dominion building and the town hall were decorated with flags and bunting and many private residences were prettily ornamented. A religious service was held in St. Luke's church by the Rev. David Jenkins, which was well attended, the mayor and warden of the county being among the congregation.

Shortly before noon the Woodstock band gave a concert in front of the Dominion building. Mayor Ketchum delivered a brief address from the post office steps, calling attention to the great event occurring over the sea and predicting a glorious reign for the present monarch. At the conclusion of the mayor's remarks three cheers were given for King George.

After this part of the programme was concluded all the church bells in the town rang out a joyous peal. All the business places of the town were closed during the day and in the afternoon a monster picnic was held in Council Park, at which almost all the town attended. There were sports of all kinds and the band furnished music.

dropped from the lower fringes of the clouds showed me that I was doomed to another disappointment. Not a sign of a city was in sight. Not a single landmark that I had been told to look out for was to be seen. Instead, there were farm land and forest, ploughed fields and orchards and nowhere so much as a smooth meadow fit for me to alight upon without smashing up.

For the third time, I saw Death as it were, sitting grimly on the gasoline tank in front of me. My head swam and again, with that awful feeling of nausea, I seemed to lose consciousness for a fleeting moment, then the sight of a small field brought me back to my senses, and I circled again to come up on it from the best direction.

Fortunately for me, I made a perfect landing. It was, probably, the instinct that comes of long practice that kept me from smashing up on coming to the ground, for I know that my brain was no longer working and my muscles were incapable of obeying a mental command.

I must have sat there helplessly in the machine for fully five minutes after I landed. I could not see to get my brain into working order again and I simply sat there staring vacantly ahead of me and numbing meaningless things to myself until I saw a woman coming toward me. Then I stretched myself, half rose, and sprang rather than climbed down from my seat to the ground. But even then I could not stand without help. When the woman came up, she found me leaning over the fuselage, my face buried in my folded arms and my whole appearance suggesting the man who had been utterly ruined and beaten in a life's ambition instead of a man who had just broken all existing world's records in his favorite branch of sport.

I found that I had landed in a tiny hamlet of not more than two dozen houses. They told me that it was called Orland, and that it was about fourteen miles northwest of my starting point in Philadelphia. Naturally, the news of the strange visitor from the skies spread about the surrounding country like wild fire and the neighborhood began flocking in in all sorts of conveyances. But I wanted to get away from the crowd, so had my carriages with the village constable to guard the Heriot. I went with the woman who had first discovered me, to her home—the only house in the village that boasted a telephone—and from there I communicated to the officials at the aviation field the news of my landing. That evening they came for me in an automobile.

THE AFTER EFFECT.

For two or three days after that the thought of going again for altitude made the cold chills run up and down my back. My nerve was gone. Then came the day of the coronation. I had a rough reading of which had shown approximately 9,870 feet, gave me only a little more than 9,400 feet. That in the Aero Club we owe the fact that the final official reading of 9,870 feet was given after tests to which no barograph had ever been subjected before.

Dr. Richard Earle, of Perth, was chairman, and P. Michaud was the first speaker. He confined his attention to the question of reciprocity, dealing with it in an effective manner.

Hon. C. W. Robinson obtained a splendid reception and made a vigorous speech concerning the administration of provincial affairs. He was repeatedly cheered and found great favor with the audience, nearly all of whom had him for the first time.

James Burgess, M. P., spoke for a few moments upon the operations of the wonderful act of the Hazen government, and was followed by Hon. W. Pugsley, minister of public works, who made a speech of more than an hour, dealing completely and effectively with the Valley Railway question and reciprocity.

Both of these subjects he handled in masterly fashion and evidently entirely to the approval of the eagerly attentive audience, who interrupted him again and again with hearty applause.

Those who have heard the minister speak frequently, said he was never more at home upon questions of the day than this evening. Repeated cheering greeted him when near the conclusion of his references to the Valley Railway, he said: "I can assure you, ladies and gentlemen, that the time is near at hand when construction will be commenced on the St. John Valley Railway. If it is not done it will not be my fault or the fault of my colleagues, or of the Liberal members of the province of New Brunswick."

Mr. Tweeddale followed Dr. Pugsley in a vigorous speech that was well received and warmly applauded.

SUN ADDS GLORY TO CORONATION PROCESSION

WESTMINSTER BRIDGE, LONDON, DECORATED FOR CORONATION DAY.

LOYALIST CITY IN GALA ATTIRE

The afternoon parade of the national societies and Polymorphians was one of the most elaborate and the longest ever seen in St. John. Throughout the long march the streets were lined on either side by admiring citizens and the men in line looked their best. With few exceptions they were garbed in the regulation parade dress, black clothes, silk hats, white ties and gloves, and certainly they made a fine

These were: F. J. Punter, E. Britain, Geo. Tange, G. W. Mansuety, George Hife, C. Willis, A. L. Stephens and Fred Byfield. The model of the battleship Niobe on a float, driven by Ernest Chapman, was ten feet in length, painted a dainty drab color and with the complete equipment of the first ship of the Canadian navy, including wireless telegraph outfit attached. This float attracted much attention and was accorded hearty applause as it passed along.

Lodge, No. 12, the largest float of the parade on which rode a group of children who produced the coronation ceremony in St. Luke's church, was drawn by several horses. Murray Hatheway represented the King and Marjory McKim the Queen. During the parade the children sang God Save the King and this proved an attractive feature.

The best feature of this parade was that it got away sharp on time from King street east and the thousands who were waiting along the line of march were not wearied with long delays. The Sons of England in the lead turned into Wentworth street soon after 3 o'clock and the whole parade soon got in motion. The Orangemen had come from German by way of Carmarthen and were lined out, giving the Polymorphians an opportunity to get in close to King square. There were hundreds of people watching the start along Wentworth and Orange street. The large vacant lots on the corner of Carmarthen and Orange street were black with the crowds who wished to get an early glimpse of the parade. The crowd was not so large in Queen square, but from the time the marchers turned into Charlotte street they were not without an audience. The crowd was dense in King square and encroached on the street going down King, leaving but a few feet for the parade. On Market square the St. Luke's float stopped for repairs and unfortunately the parade broke in two. Half of the Orangemen followed the Sons of England until Adelaide street was reached when the break was discovered. The vanguard of the procession had made the circuit around Adelaide, Victoria and Main and were ready for the return march before the last half made their appearance. Ald. McLeod got over the difficulty by stopping the rear guard and facing them about in Adelaide street, allowing them to fall in behind as the others moved along. On both sides of Main street there was a solid wall of people and windows were thrown up in many houses in order to get a good view of the procession. The afternoon was rather warm for marching, but there was a gentle breeze which helped matters somewhat and the footing was good. The parade made good time while it was in motion, and turned into Main street on the return at 4:30 o'clock. This portion of the city was also crowded, as was also both sides of Brussels street. The Polymorphians dropped out of the parade at Haymarket square and the societies disbanded in King street east. The Sons of England with the two mounted marshals, Ald. McLeod and Ald. Wigmore, and the miniature "Niobe" had their pictures taken.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE, THE LONDON RESIDENCE OF THE KING.

The marching was good and the long route did not seem to daunt the veterans in the parade who finished as fresh as the youngsters. Ald. N. P. McLeod acted as grand marshal and provided very efficient. One little hitch occurred when a large float had trouble in going down King street and the first half of the parade left those behind the float in the rear, but this was remedied when the turning point was reached in the North End and the return was without any further delays. Barouches, containing members of the common council, County Secretary Kelley and City Engineer Murdoch, led the procession. Ald. McLeod rode in front of the parade with St. Mary's Band also in the van. Then came Marlborough Lodge, No. 207, Sons of England, illustrating "To Have and to Hold." Charles Ledford was leading a British bull dog of the typical breed and A. G. Logan also walked ahead of the banner as sword bearer. Then came about sixty members of the lodge in regulation dress, followed by eight members dressed as Canadian seamen.

These were drawn from the North End, Fairville and Carleton lodges of the Protestant Association of Prentice Boys. About seventy-five second and first degree members from the three lodges followed, marshalled by Chip Sweet. The Prentice Boys wore their regulation uniforms with the silk aprons and looked very nice. The Carleton Cornet Band were given a place in the procession at this point and led the large representation of Orangemen. Twenty-five members of Trinity Preceptory, R. B. K. of L. in their elaborate uniform, led this order. About thirty members of the Scarlet Chapter were next in line, followed by the lodge in turn, each with a silken banner. York, No. 3, led with George A. Earle, W. M., at their head and about thirty in line. Johnston, No. 24, had about the same number turning out. Carleton, No. 1, was represented by six team members, while Dominion No. 141 had about sixty in line. As a part of the showing of Havelock

The Polymorphians. As an officer of the club, J. A. Brooks, mounted, led the Polymorphians, who were also accompanied by the St. John Pipe Band, which rendered excellent music throughout the parade. Different opinions were expressed in regard to this portion of the parade. E. Stockford, the secretary of the club, was mounted and represented a Zulu chief. He commanded fifty savage warriors as dusky as himself, and all garbed in a terrifying costume, black tights and each wearing a cow's horn with a crown of impossible hair. These men and boys were all armed with spears and during the parade amused themselves and others by antics wild and fearful.

Then came the Queen Mab float, with a pretty girl crowned with flowers and surrounded by twelve or fifteen other girls equally as pretty. Queen Mab was followed by an escort of thirty young men in shirt sleeves, but with the national colors wrapped around them. The Mikado rode in a sedan chair and had a body guard of nearly fifty lads dressed in oriental costumes. Then came the Tambourine girls in a pretty float and there followed thirty young men, also in shirt sleeves, but each playing a fute. An old-fashioned stage coach or tallyho, in which rode E. Stockford, the secretary of the club, attracted considerable attention. The guards were armed with rifles in true western fashion and ex-Pohseman London supplied the comedy. Twenty Boy Scouts dressed as Indians and eight or ten South African heroes gave a picturesque touch to the parade.

What was probably meant to be the feature came towards the last of the parade and formed what was called the Darktown fire brigade. There were several pieces of apparatus including an old projector or hand engine and white-washed horse which caught fire several times during the parade, all for the sake of the brave lads showing their skill in dragging little Eva from the flames. The rear section, in charge of W. J. Crawford, represented country life. Leading this part of the procession were forty mounted bushmen who gave evidence of training under P. Pyle and F. Mullatt. There followed the plow driven by Wm. Peters, with Wm. Watson as the county councillor, the mowing machine, the raking machine, load of hay with the whole family, the village blacksmith, handled by Joe London as nurse, F. McCleesley as the churning girl. Three musicians on this float, Percy and George Friesse and Thomas Stack, dispersed sweet airs during the parade, besides other features.

The military parade. The crowds of people who waited patiently along the line of march of the military parade in the morning were well rewarded for the city has rarely seen such a fine turnout of local troops. With more than 1,000 in line and four bands, the militia units that marched from the Barrack square were cheered repeatedly along the whole route of march. A large crowd commenced to gather at the starting point more than an hour beforehand, and as one after another of the corps formed on the green there were expressions of admiration on all sides. All branches of the service were represented, cavalry, artillery, infantry and Army Medical Corps, to say nothing of the hundreds of youthful soldiers, such as Scotch Cadets and Boy Scouts. The various colored uniforms made the scene one of great brilliancy. The new regiment, the 28th Dragoons, attracted much attention. There were twenty of them under command of Major Herbert McLean, who had Lieut. J. S. Tait, acting captain, and Lieut. Taylor, acting troop leader. The men looked splendid with their red tunics with yellow facings and trousers of khaki, ocher and leather leggings. There was some little excitement caused as the horses were being saddled. Among the number was a restive animal, which was taken in hand by Drooper Pettus, a former north-west mounted policeman. The animal reared and plunged, but could not shake the rider, but finally the horse was replaced by one more docile. The boy scouts, also a new feature in military processions here, turned out about 200 strong, headed by Scout Messenger Clarence, mounted on a white pony. The lads came in for most hearty commendation. The Scotch cadets also looked well. The St. Stephen's church boys carried the new colors presented to them by Loyalist Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. Each Scotch company had a pipe band, the St. Stephen lads the St. John Pipe Band, and the St. Andrew's the Caledonia Pipe Band.

To get the units in position for the start was no easy task and consequently it was done to 12 o'clock when the start was made. In the line the Fenian Raid Veterans with their grey hair, and in some cases, bowed heads, formed a striking contrast to the youthful soldiers of the present age. The procession started out in the following order: Lieut. Colonel Baxter, 3rd Regiment, O. A. senior officer in command (mounted). Major Percy, 2nd Regiment Fusiliers. 28th Dragoons, in command of Major McLean (twenty men). Three carriages containing twenty-five Fenian Raid veterans. Gun carriage (47). Long Tom drawn by six horses with outriders, and in command of Captain Frank Magee (mounted) and Sergt. Lamb (mounted). Artillery Band. Major B. R. Armstrong, in command of Artillery (mounted). 4 Battery, in command of Captain L. T. Allen. 5 Battery, in command of Major S. B. Smith. 6 Battery, in command of Major Barker. 2nd Band and bagpipe band. Lieut. Colonel J. L. McAvity (mounted). Captain J. R. Miller, adjutant (mounted). Staff officers—Captain Anglin, medical officer; Captain McMillan, paymaster; Captain Smith, quartermaster. 1 Company, Captain Peters. 2 Company, Captain McArthur. 3 Company, Captain Dunfield. 4 Company, Captain Morgan. 5 Company, Captain T. McAvity. 6 Company, Captain H. E. C. Sturdee. 7 Company, Captain May. 8 Company, Captain Fleetwood. Caledonia Pipe Band. St. Andrew's Scotch Company, in command of Major Magee, with Captain Jones. St. John Pipe Band. 1 Company, Captain Spear. 2 Company, Lieut. Morrison. St. Luke's Cadets, in command of Lieuts. Lindsey and Galt. Army Medical Corps, in command of Surgeon-Major Walker (mounted), with Captain Dursi (mounted). Clarence Bonnell, scout messenger (mounted on white pony). Two hundred scouts in command of Asstant Scout Commissioner Rev. G. F. Scovell. Companies from St. Paul's church, Centenary, St. John's (Stone), Trinity, St. Matthews, St. John Presbyterian, German street Baptist, Carleton and Y. M. C. A.

The route was by way of Wentworth to Broad, Broad to Charlotte, Charlotte to St. James, St. James to Prince William, up King to Charlotte, south side of King square to Sydney, King street east. One of the features of the parade was the review of the troops by Colonel Blaine, long active in militia affairs. With the royal salute was fired off by the detachment, simultaneously with the firing of a feu-de-joie by the remainder of the artillery and infantry. The royal salute consisted of the firing of twelve guns from the 47 heavy naval twelve pound muzzle loading guns, with which the artillery was recently equipped, and which were placed in position before the parade started. The crowd cheered as the salute was given. At the same time the salute was fired all over the British dominions.

The "Irish Potato"
When the intensity of the world's annual consumption of white potatoes is given serious thought, it would seem that Europe should be particularly grateful to Sir Walter Raleigh for introducing into this country the potato. It is a crop so prominent in the average dinner table, both in England and Ireland have cause to remember Sir Walter's voyage of discovery, and the world still gives notice to the potato. CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY DEFINES

THE POSITION OF CATHOLIC CHURCH ON THE QUESTION OF MARRIAGE

Has Been Much Misunderstanding and Not a Little Misrepresentation of the Catholic Position, They Say—The Matter Explained.

Halifax, N. S., 15th June, 1911. To the Editor, The Times, St. John. Dear Sir.—We ask you to give to the enclosed statement of the position of the Catholic church on the marriage question, the same publicity in your columns that you have given the pastoral letter of the Anglican House of Bishops and to the resolutions of various ministerial associations condemning the action of the church.

cannot interfere with the civil law. Consequently, a mixed marriage contracted before a Protestant minister, though invalid in the eyes of the Catholic church, is not illegal, except in the province of Quebec for the reasons stated below. In that province, if one of the parties were to desert the other or attempt to marry again, he or she would be liable to the penalties prescribed by the civil law. It is not true that when the Catholic party to a mixed marriage desires reconciliation with the church, he or she is required or advised to abandon the partner to the union and the children that may have been born of it. In such cases, the parties are urged to have the union validated in accordance with the laws of the church.

As there has been much misunderstanding and not a little misrepresentation of the position of the Catholic church on the marriage question, the Catholic Truth Society of the Archdiocese of Halifax authorizes the following statement: 1. The Catholic church does not, as has been falsely stated, regard as invalid the marriage of two Protestants by a Protestant minister. On the contrary, she has always upheld the validity of such marriages as being contracted in good faith. The best proof of this is the fact that when married Protestants decide to enter the Catholic church they do not have to be re-married.

2. The Catholic church does regard as invalid the marriage of two Catholics, or of a Catholic and a Protestant, by a Protestant minister or by any civil authority, which has been contracted since the promulgation of the ne temere decree. The main object of that decree is to prevent hasty and ill-considered marriages, and the many evils admittedly resulting therefrom. Matrimony being a sacrament of the Catholic church, she has the right to lay down the conditions for its valid reception by her own children. 3. The Catholic church does not and cannot interfere with the civil law. Consequently, a mixed marriage contracted before a Protestant minister, though invalid in the eyes of the Catholic church, is not illegal, except in the province of Quebec for the reasons stated below. In that province, if one of the parties were to desert the other or attempt to marry again, he or she would be liable to the penalties prescribed by the civil law. It is not true that when the Catholic party to a mixed marriage desires reconciliation with the church, he or she is required or advised to abandon the partner to the union and the children that may have been born of it. In such cases, the parties are urged to have the union validated in accordance with the laws of the church.
