The Lusitania.

Civilization has long ruled that as far as possible war is to be directed only against the armed forces of an enemy. It is impossible to shield non-combatants against the indirect consequences of war; and such operations as siege, blockade, concentration and devastation, by which submission is forced by starvation or terror, have always been permitted. Belligerents have generally been required, before bombarding a city, to notify the unarmed inhabitants of an opportunity to seek safety. At sea, it was permitted to destroy an enemy's armed vessel with all on board, and an unarmed vessel might be destroyed on assuring the safety of her passengers and crew.

The rule of civilization has been, in the case of the destruction of the Lusitania, deliberately disregarded. The act which excites horror and indignation, Germany seeks in vain to justify on these grounds: Britain, she says, had declared the North Sea a war zone, with the object of starving the non-combatants of Germany. Germany had, by way of retaliation, declared a war zone about the coasts of Britain, and she had notified non-combatants and neutrals of the danger of passing by British ships through the prohibited waters. The German Ambassador had inserted warning advertisements in the American press. The war zone was maintained by submarines, which had no power to tow the Lusitania to a German port or save life.

The submarine is a new engine of war, the activities of which have not yet been defined. That the civilized world, when it deals with the matter, will permit a revival of the practices of piracy is not likely.

The purpose of the Germans, which was deliberate, can only be guessed. It is not likely that the act was done to provoke the intervention of the United States, and so end a hopeless war because a nation anticipating the negotiation of peace would surely seek the good will of the world. An explanation is perhaps to be found in certain scraps of news appearing in the press.

There seems no doubt that there are fears of the food supply. Bread is rationed, each person receiving daily the small portion of seven and a tenth ounces. The French papers report that many farmers have been punished for disobeying a law which forbids the feeding of grain to animals. The French also report a debate in the German newspapers of the wisdom of tightening all windows on the ground that it will be more economical to feed grain, roots and potatoes to the people directly, than to feed them indirectly in the form of meat. If such news is to be relied on, it is probable that the destruction of the Lusitania was a desperate attempt to terrorize the British into a relaxation of the restraint of Germany's import of food.—Weekly Sun.

Politics and Patriotism.

The Stratford Herald, a Conservative paper, says that the curse of Canada is partyism "carried to an extreme such as Liberal leadership in the habit of doing." It quotes this because it summarizes what many Conservative papers are saying these days.

For "Liberal leaders" substitute "Conservative leaders," and you will have a summary of what many Liberal papers are saying. Both sides are agreed that the curse of the country is extreme partisanship; but each side seeks to place the blame on the other. There is now a good time to begin an attempt on the part of all patriotic people to lift the politics of this country into a higher and better atmosphere.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

The Late Timothy Kelley.

A correspondent writes: "The death occurred at his home on lot 10, concession 1, Moss township, on Monday, May 3rd, of Timothy Kelley, a well-known and respected farmer and a loving father, after a lengthy illness. He lived on the farm where he died 35 years, and made many friends, being as good and obliging a neighbor as you would wish for. He had many relatives, most of whom were at the funeral to pay their last respects, there being 25 rigs of mourners. His brother William seldom left his bedside during the last week of his illness, as the brother wished him to stay by him till the last. His niece, Mrs. Moundrell, of Sarnia, was there two weeks, and glad to know he died 'safe in the arms of Jesus,' passing from this world of sorrow to the better land of peace and rest.

Mr. Kelley was 97 years old and leaves besides his wife three daughters and one son—Mrs. Chas. Blain and Mrs. Wallace Degraw, of Newbury; Mrs. Harry Fisher, of con. 2, Moss, and Lorenzo, on the homestead; also a cousin to the family, William Kelley, of Glencoe, whom they raised. Besides there are eleven grandsons and three granddaughters, also four sisters and three brothers, as follows: Mrs. J. Tait and Mrs. William Neal, of Inwood; Mrs. C. Degraw, of Rodney; Mrs. M. Root, of St. Thomas; William, of Croton; Abner, of Rodney; and George, of Michigan.

The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon. Service was held at the house and interment was made in the Simpson cemetery. The pallbearers were Peter Gardiner, A. Gardiner, Duncan McCullum, J. B. Jones, E. Roycraft and Dan Herby. The flowers were beautiful and included a wreath from the family and a wreath from a friend.

Death of James H. Clananhan.

After an illness of two weeks' duration, James H. Clananhan died on Tuesday night, May 11th, at his home in North Dorchester. Mr. Clananhan and his three-year-old daughter contracted pneumonia at the same time, and the little girl is still in a precarious condition. Deceased was a son of the late Andrew and Mrs. Jane Clananhan, and was born at Glencoe about 45 years ago. About twelve years ago he was married to Miss Grace Edwards, eldest daughter of the late Walter Edwards, of North Dorchester, and later moved to Alberta, where he lived until last fall, when the family returned to North Dorchester. Besides his wife he leaves six small children, three boys and three girls, the eldest aged eleven years, and his mother and one brother in Alberta.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from his late residence to Dorchester Union Cemetery.

Mr. Clananhan was well known and esteemed in Glencoe and vicinity, where he lived until recent years. There are many relatives here, including Postmaster R. Clananhan, who is an uncle. His mother, wife and family and other relatives will have the deep sympathy of their many friends in Glencoe and vicinity in their bereavement.

Helping Agriculture.

London, May 11.—The farmers and city people are realizing that the agricultural office, located in the Dominion Savings Building, London, is meeting their needs. The men in charge are graduates of the Guelph Agricultural College, as well as practical farmers.

This spring the demand on their time has increased to the extent that the Department has placed a third man in the county, to assist with the work. R. A. Finn, this year graduate, comes highly recommended for the work. He will be located in London, while F. Forsyth, who has been in the county since last November, will have headquarters at Ailsa Craig, in order to meet the needs of the north part of the county.

An outline of what is being done by this branch:—Meetings are addressed, farmers clubs organized and endeavor made to organize the various branches of farming, and milk and cream tested for butter fat. During the past three months twenty farmers have been induced to keep individual cow records and now report they would never go back to the haphazard way of guessing what the cows are doing. Drainage surveys are made and plans of drains given. Pruning, spraying and apple packing demonstrations are held, and during the last three years a remarkable change has been made in many orchards in the county. Ten times the amount of spray material is used now to what there was three years ago, and results in quality of fruit is correspondingly as great. Experiments are conducted in various parts of the county. An organization of young men who attended a four weeks' course at Strathroy, put on by I. B. Whale, are stirring things up in that vicinity. They are the Junior Farmers' Improvement Association. Watch them make a name for themselves. Already their parents and neighbors are co-operating with them for better farming.

School fairs are taking a lot of time. Seventy-five schools are organized in this county, 1,500 pupils receiving seeds to grow at home, the product to be shown at a fair in the fall. Last year results were gratifying. This year promises to be better.

On a single day 35 men have called for information on treatment of smut, pruning, spraying, seed selection, potatoes, gardening, live stock, etc., and not a day passes without at least eight or ten calling. Farmer or town man is welcome at the office. The work is increasing, but the agricultural staff are happiest when busiest.

An Intricate Question.

The Dunwich council has a rather intricate question to unravel. Some time ago the flock of sheep owned by Jas. Trothen was raided by two dogs. Seven of the sheep were killed and nine, or the remainder of the flock, worried. D. Cameron, the township valuator, placed the loss at $120, but Mr. Trothen asked two other parties, A. Liberty and J. C. Revell, to estimate the damage, which they placed at $178. The owner of one of the dogs has been ascertained, and now the question is how much should he pay of the loss and also whether the estimate made by the township valuator or the independent valuers should be taken as the basis. The council had the evidence of different parties, but was unable to come to a conclusion and the matter was finally referred to the township solicitor for his opinion.

Methodist Church.

REV. W. G. BOWSON, MINISTER
The Epworth League anniversary sermons will be preached next Sunday by Rev. W. J. Ashton, B. A., B. D., of Sarnia. Mr. Ashton is one of our rising young men, be sure you hear him. Special music will be rendered by the choir. A day of special interest is looked for. The public are cordially invited.

Woman Against Woman

or a Terrible Accusation.

She was absolutely beginning to conclude that Leslie Duravan must be mad to have given expression to such wild notions as he had only the night before. She glanced up at him. He was looking at her with a strained eager expression in his handsome eyes, but they dropped as they met her own.

She had lost part of the conversation between brother and sister; but as she forced herself to listen again, she heard Mrs. Duravan saying:

"We must have a dinner-dance, Lloyd; it is so much nicer than a ball. Fewer people, you know, and Alisa will get to know them better than the evening is over. You dance, Alisa, of course?"

Alisa colored when she heard Lloyd's question.

"No, she stammered, 'I have never—'"

"Oh, how stupid of me to forget!" exclaimed Mrs. Duravan, leaning over and patting the girl's hand gently. "Of course you don't dance, but I tell you, what you do. With your natural grace, it is simply impossible that you should not know it in one of two lessons. I'll play on the piano, and Lloyd and Leslie shall teach you the steps, and you shall be ready every night until you learn. Then we'll have the dance. Won't Muriel be wild?"

She clasped her hands in evident delight over the annoyance she was about to cause her sister, and Lloyd Ogden laughed loudly.

"What a little fiend you are, to take such evident pleasure in the widdow's of another. Our sister is not such an ogre as she is painted, and I think Alisa here will not think Ethel means half she says. They are absolutely devoted to each other, only you could not imagine they were more unlike."

"I am glad you add that," cried Mrs. Duravan, leaning like a spoiled child, but doing it with the sweetest ingenueness possible. "I wouldn't be like Muriel for all the world."

And then, rather to her horror, the door opened, and Muriel entered the room. There was something so extraordinary in the appearance of this new edition to that strange Duravan family, that Muriel started as her eyes rested upon Muriel Ogden's face.

She was tall, slight, willowy, with a beautifully set head, and rounded, sloping shoulders that gave her a certain grace all her own. She was dressed for the street in an inconspicuous, tailor-made gown that fitted her with a perfection that suggested modeling. Her skin of that clear, creamy white, without a shadow of color, and yet not in the least unbecomingly, was the eyes that held one as if fascinated.

They were not beautiful eyes, although they were large and darker than Alisa's own. They were prominently set, curious eyes that sent a thrill of distrust to the girl's very soul. They looked keenly at other, coldly, earnestly, and Muriel Ogden knew the thoughts that were passing through Alisa's mind as Alisa knew them herself. An antagonism was born of the moment, and Alisa could never have told.

She did not hear Ethel Duravan introduce them, but a peculiar tremor crept over her as she felt the touch of Muriel's soft, cool fingers upon her hand. They did not touch her as hands usually meet, but with a strange, gliding motion that made her shiver, and she knew that she was being looked at.

And then she saw Muriel turn to Leslie Duravan, saw his eyes light with the same expression she could not fathom, and then, totally ignoring the presence of his wife and her own brother, Muriel turned and began to talk to Muriel Ogden, and Alisa found herself forced into a conversation with the brother and sister.

CHAPTER VIII.

The old life, the life of toil and heartache, and starvation, was left as completely behind as if it had never existed. There was not a single thing in this world to remind Alisa of that. Had she been suddenly transferred to herself to any temporary world, she would have contained a great similarity.

She thought of that only with a shudder and yet Heaven knows, she was far from happy in this. Not that every one was kind to her, and considerate of her. Even Muriel Ogden had gone out of her way to show Alisa that she was not alone, but the spirit of mystery which pervaded everything, the atmosphere of unreality which hung about the house, and the feeling of remorse so tinged at her heart by the unconscious wrong she had done, that it seemed to her there was rest of mind upon her night no more.

She rarely ever saw Leslie Duravan, and then only in his wife's presence. She was not admitted to any of the family affairs, and he seemed to understand and appreciate her position.

For some time she had done, and then only to drive with Mrs. Duravan, excursions in which Muriel never intruded herself, and on these occasions she observed that Mrs. Duravan never lost an opportunity to say some cutting remark about her, and Muriel Ogden, with which, but for the expression of those singular dark eyes, Alisa could not have recognized her.

To the surprise of Mrs. Duravan, Muriel did not even object to the dancing which took place in the evening. At first Leslie had withdrawn himself from them because he saw plainly that Alisa desired to be on the evening, and before the ball he entered as the legion was about to begin, and Muriel Ogden had been rather a devoted attendant before, but had offered himself too cheerfully as the hostess, and as Leslie Duravan saw the flushed expression upon her cheeks upon that last evening, he had decided to stand by.

"Miss Veleworth will learn your step so easily that she can dance with no one else," he said, carelessly. Let me, my friend, be about to advance some argument, but his sister, from the piano stool cried out:

"Let her try with Leslie!"

Ogden stepped back and Duravan took his place. It was the first time that he touched Alisa since her entrance into that home, and as he held his arm about her waist, clasped her hand once more, she felt the old thrill pass through her which she hoped she had conquered. She knew then how useless a struggle it had been, knew that all her love for the wife could not conquer that wild desire of the husband, and faltered in her step as she realized all the hopelessness of her position.

Down the room they floated to the strains of "Mon Reve" played in that exquisite, dreamy way, down the long hall that was kept for dancing purposes alone. She could feel his breath upon her cheeks, she knew that his arm was tightening about her. They had reached the end of the room and were about to turn. He bent his head intuitively she knew that the was about to speak, to break the silence, the sweet, exquisite silence that had well-nigh suffocated her, and against her will she laughed.

"Have you forgotten?" he whispered. She looked into his eyes just a moment. Alisa why had he done it? "You bade me do so," she replied, severely conscious of the spot on her cheek. He turned again in the old way down at the end of the room. "Mon Reve" was swelling out in plaintive reverie.

"And yet—I would not have you do so for ten thousand worlds. Answer me, Alisa, have you forgotten?"

Yes—forgotten his wife, that sweet friend whom she had already loved; forgotten Muriel, forgotten her, forgotten every thing but him. It was only a gasping monosyllable.

He stopped suddenly down there and released her. To her surprise, Muriel was standing there, standing in the large doorway that led to the conservatory. She gazed slightly as she caught the curious expression in the great, dark, staring eyes, but the girl came forward with a smile upon her lips, such a curious smile that Alisa's heart stood still.

"You are quite a perfect waltzer," she said, slowly, "but you dance better with Mr. Duravan than with my brother."

There is more poetry, more rhythm in the movement. I hold a theory that there is a certain grace in such a partner as that."

She knew her remark was absurd, but she had shivered her tenderest kindness. For the first time in her life Alisa felt like a traitor. Before she knew of it, she had promised herself and that sweet young girl that their friendship should occupy the first place in her heart, when she had felt so strong in the bond that she had felt the bond of sympathy and affection, to yield to the first temptation that had been thrown in her way. What indeed was she that she should have done suddenly out of her life, and she hated herself with fierce passion that she had never before.

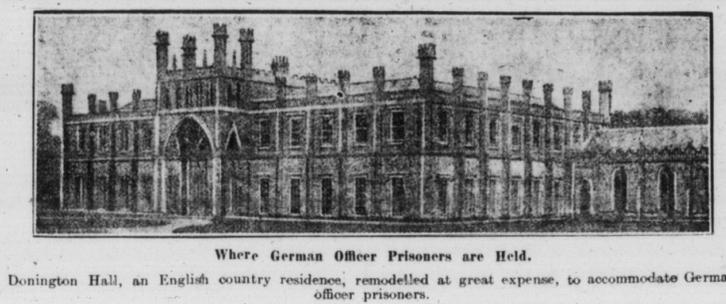

It never occurred to her to blame Duravan. The center was all of herself. And a feeling of humiliation such as she had never known filled her heart as she looked into Muriel's steady, unflinching eyes. Yet she forced herself to answer lightly as she said:

"I think you attach too much meaning to mere physical attainment. The soul governs the mental part of us rather than the body, does it not? I confess I am an Alisa sure that the mere fact of winning the prize is a thing to be proud of."

She laughed slightly and joined the other leaving Duravan and Muriel alone.

But there was no rest for her that evening. She went up to her own room and to bed; but the thought of her guilt stood before her with a new despair. She loathed herself. She realized, toward morning, that she had done wrong, and she was not alone in that house who needed her, and she must go. She had left behind her, back to her father and mother, the thought of her father and mother, the thought of her father and mother, the thought of her father and mother.

A GIGANTIC UNDERTAKING

HARBOR WORK IN TORONTO WELL ADVANCED.

One of New Docks Completed, Waste Land Reclaimed, Western Sea Wall and Ship Channel Progressing Rapidly.

The harbor commissioners of Toronto are proceeding with the expenditure of $24,190,000 on improvement of the harbor and the creation of a new waterfront calculated to meet the needs of shipping for a long period of years to come while also keeping in view the idea of developing the city's attractiveness.

Work began in the spring of 1914 and at the end of that year one concrete dock 600 feet by 176 feet had been completed, 75 acres of land reclaimed in the industrial district and served by railroad sidings, 4000 feet of the crib foundations for the western seawall completed in readiness for the concrete super-structure and over 5,000 feet of the foundations for the retaining walls in the ship channel made ready for the concrete super-structure, 5,600 feet of permanent concrete docks built along both sides of the channel into the harbor. The entire cost of the works completed to date, including the new dock referred to, amounts to about $1,653,000, of which sum $900,000 has been spent by the harbor commissioners and the balance by the Dominion Government.

Agreements with the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway have freed the western half of the inner waterfront from their control and makes it available for development.

The work undertaken by this lake port, a city of 500,000 population, for the purpose of developing its maritime trade and encouraging the establishment of industries furnishes an object lesson in the way of courageous building for the future. In 1910 an ocean tramp sailed from Scotland with a cargo of scoria blocks for Toronto. The steamer reached its destination, but found upon arrival that there was no public dock where the cargo could be landed, that for accommodation at privately-owned docks, that after paying these charges there was not sufficient water alongside the dock to accommodate the vessel, and a big part of her cargo had to be lightered to the shore at a great additional expense.

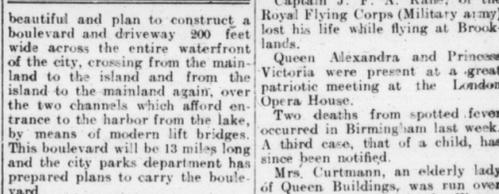

The captain laid the case before the Board of Trade, whose president was Lionel H. Clark. The

WOMAN'S RESPONSIBILITIES

ON THE BROAD HIGHWAY TO LEADERSHIP.

Even the 'Style-Makers Have Given Frocks That Develop an Upright Figure and a Martial Aspect.

The woman left at home with added responsibilities by this inhuman war must of necessity develop into higher types. It is claimed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts, give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

But they are—so closely, in fact, that the most optimistic leaders of the woman's movement gasp at the strides their cause is making. And nobody can say where it will stop. For woman appears to be on the broad highway that points to unaffectioned leadership in human affairs. The powder and shot which is moving men down in Europe and, according to the eugenic experts, making the foreign soldiers inferior physically, is raising woman in this country and abroad to a point of physical and mental efficiency which will make her eventually the ruler of the world. Several inches may be taken from the stature of man, but for each one lost another will be added to the make-up of woman, either physically or mentally.

The conflict abroad which is stunting the growth of young manhood and making coming generations inferior physically is giving woman new responsibilities and accomplishing for her brain more than any other force in the history of the world. It is making her tall, straight, alert, keen and vibrant with power.

Styles, you will admit, are not altogether of woman's choosing. War times or peace times, they are as inevitable as the changing of a skirt hem. Now at last they are making woman a rule of destiny instead of a slave to the modistes.

War has changed affairs abroad and even here and the effect on fashions has given woman such an upright figure that she has assumed the military bearing almost unconsciously.

An evidence of the manner in which women are rising to their new sphere is found in a news item from England. Thirty-three thousand women have registered for special services—not to fight, but to do men's work. They will fill positions vacated by men now on the firing line.

If, as the eminent scientists predict, the coming man is to be several inches beneath the normal height, the coming woman will be several inches taller—for so circumstances are training her mind and so Dame Fashion has cunningly fashioned her costumes.

It will take merely a glance at the season's styles to show how the wartime bulletins have transformed the curved and languid fashion plate of a short time ago into a form as upright as that of any valiant Tommy Atkins on the battle fields.

Braids and buttons, buttons and braids, used as profusely as on a uniform are seen everywhere. They ornament coats, silks, delicate and dainty garments—always aiming to keep milady's courage up and make her sex supreme.

Your jacket must be piped with braid on the edges and on collars and cuffs; there must be braiding on your pockets, braiding on your lapels and belt and even braiding on your skirt hem. And wherever the braid goes you may expect to see buttons, small military ones of gold and silver on waists and blouses, larger ones on sash ends and coats and still others buttoning the collar or stock far up under the chin.

Take a peep at the collars which are covering milady's throat and neck, so long exposed recklessly to wind and weather. They are high around the chin and ears, higher and stiffer than they have been for years, and buttoned up tightly they keep the neck erect and inflexible.

Hats are small, close fitting and martial looking; and the woman who is fond of the rose-trimmed garden hat with shadowing brim will look as if she had stepped from some picture frame of the past if she insists on her favorite headgear.

Whatever happens no one can say that when the measurements of European woman are made larger and finer and become less hampered by styles and traditions that the race will suffer.

Agent—I came to deliver your book on "How to Play the Piano." Lady—But I didn't order any. Agent—Haven't you a next door neighbor named Brown? Lady—Why, yes. Is it for her? Agent—No; she ordered it for you.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. STOPS TRAIN IN OWN LENGTH

Almost Instantaneous Method Is Adopted.

A brake that will stop a train of twelve steel cars weighing 2,000,000 pounds going at sixty miles an hour within 1,000 feet, practically in its own length, and do it without jolting the passengers, has been adopted by the Pennsylvania Railroad, according to a bulletin issued recently.

One has to know how air brakes work before it is possible to understand how an almost instantaneous stop can be made without a jar. This is well explained in one of the railroad's recent bulletins.

The air brake apparatus controls a flow of compressed air through the train and to and from the brake cylinders on each car. A system of levers transmits the force exerted by the compressed air to the brake shoes—that part of the brake which comes in contact with the wheel. As the controlling force of the brake is air and the control itself is given from the engine, brakes on the first car apply first, on the second car next, and so on to the rear of the train as the flow of air travels from car to car.

About eight seconds elapse from the time the brake application is started by the engineer until full braking force is obtained on the last car of a twelve-car train. This serial action results in surges and shocks throughout the train during brake application, the shocks increasing in severity as the train length is increased.

The new brake differs from the old mainly in that the control of the compressed air is electric, with the result that the brakes are applied at the same instant on all cars. The full braking power of the train is exerted in two seconds after the engineer turns his lever.

Thus it is not the sudden stopping of a train that causes the jar, but the slowing down of the cars one after another, those in the rear of the train not feeling any of the brakes until about eight seconds after those near the engine have slowed down.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food That Will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Eastern woman writes: "I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested.

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change diet.

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

The Soldier's Safety Muzzle.

Hardly less fatal in effect than the flying fragments from bursting shells charged with high explosives are the fumes that are given off at the moment of explosion. The poisonous gases pervade the immediate locality, and themselves have often even killed men outright. The fumes are, of course, peculiarly noxious in confined spaces, such as in the trenches and in bomb-proofs and dug-outs. To save life, a special respirator—a kind of muzzle—has been adopted, and soldiers are shown above wearing it. Its feature is a small valve in the upper part which opens and shuts automatically as the wearer draws breath or exhales.

His Host Smiled.

A tourist recently stopped for a drink of milk at an Irish cottage. He noticed on a dresser a brick with a faded rose on the top of it. "Why do you keep these?" "Sure sir," was the reply, "there's memories hangin' about them. Do you see this big dent in my head? Well, it was the brick done it, sir." "But the rose?" asked the tourist. His host smiled quietly. "The rose, sir, is off the grave of the man what threw the brick."

SAVED BABY'S LIFE

Mrs. Jos. Desrosiers, St. Alphonse, Que., writes: "I cannot say too much in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, as they saved my little one's life. Before giving him the Tablets he was greatly troubled with worms and was like a skeleton and cried day and night. The Tablets soon expelled the worms, and now baby is the picture of health. Baby's Own Tablets also break up colds and simple fevers, cure constipation and indigestion and make the teething period painless. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To be in proper keeping with the demands of the times, Miss Phyllis Squall had had a patriotic song especially compiled for her. In due time the night arrived for her to present the new song. She was just finishing the third and last verse when she decided to call up every possible effort for one final spurt in the last line, which was the title of the song—namely, "I wonder if he'll miss me?" She rendered this in such a way that it seemed to have a direct appeal to the audience.

How Did You Get a Job?

I hired a man once just because he was conscientious, modest and respected the rights of others. I witnessed several little things that went to prove this while he was awaiting his turn to be received and interviewed, such as offering his seat to a man who was older than he, giving way to the pressure of crowding, thus losing his place in the line rather than to appear ungentlemanly. I knew from his appearance that he needed the job, but that he recognized the fact that the others needed work as well as he, and was willing they should have equal chances with himself. All this the others did not seem to be conscious of, as evinced by their elbowing and selfish crowding. He made the very sort of employe that I wanted—one that was reliable and of a retiring manner. It was the kind I expected to get when I picked him out.

"See here, Rastus," said the new arrival at the hotel, "do you mean to tell me that this egg is fresh?" "It was when hit was laid, suh," replied the waiter. "And when was that, pray?" demanded the guest. "Ah dunno, boss," replied Rastus. "Dis year is mah first season at his yere hotel, suh, and therefoah Ah cain't tell."

She Soon Gained Forty Pounds

DAME BOUCHARD FOUND NEW HEALTH IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Now She Is Advising All Her Friends Who Suffer From Kidney Disease to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Portneuf, Hamilton Cove, Saguenay Co., Que., May 10th (Special).—Perfectly cured by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, Dame Rene Bouchard, well known and highly respected here, is advising all her friends who suffer from kidney disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. "When I commenced to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, I was so run down I only weighed eighty pounds," Dame Bouchard states. "I only took four boxes in all but they brought me back to health and now I weigh one hundred and twenty pounds. You may publish what I say if you wish, for Dodd's Kidney Pills have done wonders for me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills do wonders for run-down people because they cure the kidneys. Cured kidneys strain all the impurities, all the poison, out of the blood and the pure blood carries new nourishment to all parts of the body. That's why so many people say, "Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me a new lease of life."

Glass Houses.

Not a few architects are recommending that houses and apartment buildings be made of glass bricks and a shell. Gliding across the water like a flat pebble, it is said to have a range of ten miles. It contains a charge sufficient to destroy dreadnaughts or a breakwater, and can be fired either from a torpedo tube or a twelve-inch gun. The method of firing is simple. It can be effected from a conning tower without the use of a telescope. Its value as an effective agent in war remains to be demonstrated.

Planning a New Projectile.

The French Ministry of Marine has had submitted for consideration a new projectile—a cross between a torpedo and a shell. Gliding across the water like a flat pebble, it is said to have a range of ten miles. It contains a charge sufficient to destroy dreadnaughts or a breakwater, and can be fired either from a torpedo tube or a twelve-inch gun. The method of firing is simple. It can be effected from a conning tower without the use of a telescope. Its value as an effective agent in war remains to be demonstrated.

Economical Methods of Purchasing Supplies.

Nothing in municipal history excited more interest than the recent adoption by the City of New York of the C.P.R. method of purchasing supplies. New York orders for municipal purchases total $22,000,000 worth of good each year and found that there was much duplication and waste, some of the departments paying retail prices for the same goods as were purchased wholesale by others. Under the C.P.R. system everything is centralized so as to cut out the possibility of duplication either in purchasing or in payment of goods, while the terms are naturally all the more in favor of the railway. New York City sent a special investigator round the Continent to study methods of purchasing supplies, and he decided that the C.P.R. system was "the best for efficiency and saving." This was naturally the source of much gratification to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who was himself at one time purchasing agent for the C.P.R., and established the present system. The New York expert investigator has been busy ever since answering letters from other American municipalities. They pour in at the rate of about a hundred a week, all wanting to know about the C.P.R. and its model purchasing department, with a view to the adopting of similar methods in other cities. It has been calculated that the adoption of C.P.R. methods by American cities has saved Uncle Sam a waste of over a billion dollars.

Following Instructions.

The phone bell tintinnabulated. "Is this the office of the Daily Squawk?" asked the voice. "Yes! Well then I want you to put in my dear husband's death notice." "Gone to rest" in an appropriate place. And next morning it read: "Gone to rest in an appropriate place."

Don't Spare Words.

Most people are so sparing of the use of languages other than their own that they have little idea that there are more than four thousand languages in the world. There are six languages common in Austria-Hungary, and Emperor Franz Joseph is master of them all. It is said that there are sixty vocabularies in Brazil. In Mexico the Nahuatl is spoken in seven hundred dialects. There are hundreds in Borneo, while in Australia there is no classifying the complexities.

According to the latest statistics, English is at present spoken by 130,000,000, German by 100,000,000, Russian by 70,000,000, French by 40,000,000 and Italian by 30,000,000. Spanish is spoken by 40,000,000 and it is constantly on the increase owing to the increase in commerce in Spain.

His Son's Father.

At a very fashionable and equally expensive tailor shop about town a certain middle-aged, out-of-town customer discovered that he lacked sufficient change to pay for his humble purchase—a pair of gray gloves. "May I charge them?" he asked. "I find I haven't my checkbook with me." "What was the name?" demanded the rather displeased tailor in peremptory manner. "He was told the name and address." "Oh, that's all right, sir," exclaimed the tailor, now beaming with exaggerated affability. "Your son trades here."

Pleurisy Pains Vanish! Chest Colds Cured!

NERVILINE HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE. Don't Suffer! Nerviline is your relief. Nerviline just rubbed on, lots of it, will ease that drawn, tight feeling over your ribs, will destroy the pain, will have you smiling and happy in no time.

"I caught cold last week while motoring," writes P. T. Mallory, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep, and I woke up next morning fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my traveling kit, and I will never be without it."

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, or you can easily get the 25c. trial size from any dealer.

Not To Be Expected.

Underdek—His argument was mighty weak. Gobang—That's strange, too, when he has such a strong voice. "I see that the police have orders to arrest all suspicious persons," said Gayboy. "What of that?" asked his wife. "Well, you had better look out, that's all."

Getting On.

"How did you come to buy that second-hand table?" exclaimed Mrs. Clumber's husband. "We don't need it." "That shows how much you know," replied his wife. "In one of the drawers I found a bunch of the most select visiting cards in the city. They will look lovely in our hall."

Suspicious.

Mrs. Roxley—I'm afraid there's not much energy in that young man who is calling on our daughter. He doesn't seem to have much shap. Mr. Roxley—No, but I think he'll after one, though.

Will Quickly Cure Any Sour Stomach

Relieves Fullness After Meals.

"When I was working around the farm last winter, I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fullness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

DRAKE'S DRUM.

It Still Hangs at Buckland Abbey Awaiting the Great Armada.

Will Drake's drum be beaten now for the third time? In the great hall at Buckland Abbey in Devonshire, a few miles from Plymouth—the ancestral home of the family of Sir Francis Drake—the drum hangs in the tower of a pattern not known these three hundred years. It is the famous drum of the great English sea fighter, his companion throughout his whole adventurous career. It beat the signals on his flagship when he scattered the Spanish Armada; it went with him on the first British ship that went round the world, and it sounded the taps when, after his death at sea in the West Indies, his body was committed to the waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

When Drake lay dying, so runs the tradition, he commanded his brother, who was a captain of one of the ships in the British fleet, to take his drum back to England, and hang it in his hall at Buckland Abbey. Whenever danger threatened Britain let him sound on that drum, and his spirit would enter into the British admiral and scatter his country's foes as he had done in the days gone by. His brother did as he was commanded, and after three centuries the drum still hangs in Buckland Abbey, which is now in the possession of a descendant of Drake's brother.

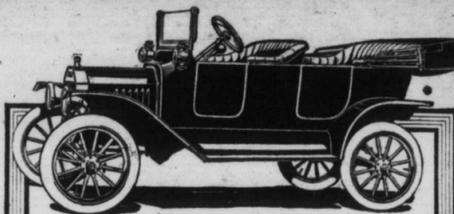

Twice, runs the legend, has the drum been sounded—and not in vain; once, in the generation after Drake's death, when the Dutch sought to wrest the control of the seas from the British; and the other time, when Tromp sailed up the British Channel with a broom at his masthead, to signify that he would sweep the English from the ocean. At its sound the spirit of Drake entered into Admiral Blake, who triumphed over the conquering Dutch. Again, when the genius of Napoleon threatened the very existence of the British Empire, the drum was sounded, and Drake's spirit animated the greatest of English sea fighters—Admiral Nelson.

And now, when Britain is involved in the greatest war of her history, it is said that Drake's drum will again be sounded—to raise up, if the legend be true, the spirit of the old captain for the third time. The old tradition is the subject of a well-known poem by Prof. Henry Newbolt. The poem makes the great sea fighter, dying in his berth, exclaim:

Take my drum to England, hang it by the shore,
Strike it when your powder's runnin' low;
If the Dons sight Devon, I'll quit the port of heaven
An' drum them up the Channel as we drummed them long ago.

Dyeing War Horses.
Ever since the war broke out experiments have been made by the British War Office with a view to dyeing the coats of white horses, but simple as it may seem to the uninitiated a satisfactory result has not yet been obtained. Numerous inventors have been forward with wanted dyes, but after the preliminary tests only one liquid seemed to resist the rain satisfactorily. A battery of twenty-four white horses was consequently treated, and sent out on duty in all weathers. When they returned after a week or ten days all the beasts were of a beautiful bottle green, and are expected to retain that hue for some time to come.

Compulsory Service.
In the Channel Islands alone of British possessions compulsory military service for home defence has been the rule from time immemorial.

Empire in the Orient.

China having yielded to the demands of Japan, the war cloud in the Orient passes. Japan, it seems, takes advantage of the occupation of the European powers in war to establish a suzerainty over China. The demands of Japan, which have been granted, are drawn to give the Japanese virtual control of the Shantung peninsula, and of South Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia. The Chinese are not to lease islands or harbors without the consent of Japan. The Japanese acquire large rights of holding property in all China, railway privileges are acquired, also the right of exploiting mines. Railway and mining concessions are not to be made without the consent of Japan, and China is not to borrow without consulting her neighbor. Besides, the principal places of China are to be jointly policed. China is also to purchase fifty per cent. or more of her munitions of war from Japan. The Western nations are assured by the formal guarantee of what is known as the open door in so far as that has been conceded by or wrung from China. In short, Japan lays the foundation of a complete political and commercial control, and seems to reduce China to a state of vassalage.

It is, of course, what we term a step of empire. It is curious to note that the Japanese use the language with which Germany has made the world familiar. If they have not an iron ring about their breast, they are cramped and expansion in what is their natural field is in their view imperative. What will be the end of it all, no one can say. China has often submitted to control, but has survived all her conquerors. With a free field of enterprise in China, Japan will, it is to be assumed, relieve America of her anxieties about Japanese immigration and settlement.—Weekly Sun.

Bonds and Their Yields

Offer Unique Opportunity, Combining Greatest Safety With Substantial Yields.

In many respects municipal bonds meet the requirements of an ideal investment. They are obtainable usually in various denominations, many being issued in the popular "baby" bond form. They offer in an unusual degree stability of price, and are available at rates of interest to suit a great variety of investors. In the matter of ready convertibility into cash they compare well with other high-class securities, and offer a fair opportunity for moderate speculative profits on the turn. Most important of all, the security behind the investment is the best and the investor is practically certain of the return of his principal at the maturity of the issue. For there is no other form of security so safeguarded as the municipal bond.

Municipal bonds, that is the issues of cities and towns, and in a few cases, of townships, are indirectly a first lien upon all the property in the municipality and take precedence over every form of mortgage or judgment lien. This lien ranks ahead of all real estate mortgages held by individuals of the community, and is enforced through a tax levy to meet interest and principal, and this tax levy, the courts will compel in case a municipality should attempt to repudiate its debt. Provided the bond is properly executed and its issue is valid under the existing laws, there is nothing to fear in the way of repudiation by Canadian municipalities of their bonds.

All the Elements of Safety.

In the purchasing of municipal bonds, however, the investor should see to it that he is buying a bond of a town which is ephemeral in character and which, after a local "boom" has passed may cease to exist overnight. In considering real estate mortgages, the mortgagor usually makes sure that the property collateral to the loan has a real and existing value, and is not a wild-cat proposition; so must the investor in municipal bonds see to it that the municipality, the bonds of which he is purchasing, is a real town and not one dependent for its existence solely upon a "boom." When this precaution is taken, the investor in the Canadian municipal bond can rest easy to the security of his principal and interest. When a bond is valid, i. e., legally drawn up, and protected by a sufficient taxing power, its principal and interest is as secure as the municipality which issues it, is secure in its continued existence.

There are several points which should be taken into consideration in investigating a municipal bond. One of these is the proportion which the total net debts of a municipality bear to the assessed value of the taxable. In Canada there is, in most cases, a limit fixed by Act of Parliament beyond which the city or town in question cannot go. In some cases this is ten per cent, and in others there is a sliding scale. Another thing to be considered is the purpose of the issue. If the money is required for reasonable projects, it can be safely inferred that there will be no question of regularity of interest payment, providing the balance sheet of the city shows small net debts accumulated in the past.

In this connection it is always well to inquire as to the proceedings under which the bonds were issued, for if the entire Council was in accord there is little likelihood of the taxpayers at any time calling in question the wisdom of the issue. The form of bonds, their execution, and the legal details must all be in accordance with law.

Most of this latter investigating is attended to by the bond houses, which has its own legal counsel make full inquiry into the legality of the issue before buying itself. All the details essential to a thorough investigation of an issue are usually in the possession of the bond houses, which afford every facility to their clients to find out the standing of any particular bond.

Yield is High.

In the matter of yield, there are few bonds which combine so high an interest yield with absolute safety of the principal involved. The bonds of the larger Canadian cities are actively dealt in, and because of keen competition the price is usually high, and the yield correspondingly low. But even the most active Canadian municipalities offer a good rate of interest at the present time, and the advancing bond market offers a turn of one to five points in six months or less.

Bonds of smaller less well-known municipalities may, however, be purchased at quite substantial yields. While the market for these bonds is not so active and the convertibility of such securities not so good, this is compensated largely by the increased rate of interest and the comparative stability of price. Come good times, come bad times, the inactive small-town municipality holds its price well. And there is always a good trading market for this class of bond by private sale through the bond dealer.

Usually municipalities prefer a long-term bond to one maturing in a short time. During the past few months there have been issued many short-term notes. These have both advantages and disadvantages. The short-term note because of its early maturing will have a certain stability of price throughout its course; but in a rising bond market such as the present, an investor often prefers to buy a long-term bond, as he can hold the latter indefinitely and will not be forced to buy some other security in a few months' time at a higher price. But for the business man who must have maximum convertibility into ready cash, the short-term note seems specially adapted. But whether the selection shall be a long-term or a short-term bond depends entirely upon the needs of the investor himself; each bond complies with certain definite requirements known best to the prospective buyer himself.

About the Household

Selected Recipes.

This is a good recipe for cheese puffs: In a saucepan of boiling water melt two tablespoonsful of butter. When the water and butter are boiling, stir into them four tablespoonsful of flour, wet with cold water, and four tablespoonsful of grated cheese. Cook for three minutes, stirring all the time. Remove from the fire, and when the mixture is cold add two eggs and beat hard for 15 minutes. Line a baking dish with greased paper and drop the mixture upon it, a spoonful at a time, leaving ample space between each puff for the swelling caused by baking. When puffed up and brown they are done and must be eaten at once.

When making toast it improves it both in taste and digestibility if the slices of bread are laid in the oven for a little while before toasting them. They will toast better and more evenly for the advance treatment.

To make chicken croquettes take some cold chicken, which should be cut from the bone and minced fine, then season with salt, pepper and juice of a lemon. Let this stand one hour, then make a batter of two eggs to a pint of milk, a little salt, and flour enough to make a batter not too stiff. Stir the chicken in this and drop it by spoonfuls in boiling fat. Fry brown, drain and serve.

These toasted cheese wafers are very nice for the afternoon tea table: Get the round soda crackers; with a thin knife split them in half and put them for a moment in cold water; remove from the water and place in a buttered pan. Dot with bits of butter and put in hot oven until a golden brown. Then sprinkle grated cheese over each wafer and replace in the oven until the cheese is slightly melted. Serve while hot.

Sweet potatoes stuffed and glazed form a tempting dish. Cut baked sweet potatoes and mash; return to the shells; boil one-fourth cupful of milk, add one level tablespoonful of butter together for three minutes. Brush the tops of the potatoes with this syrup, and put them back into a quick oven to brown. If properly done there should be a rich golden glaze over the top.

Mock terrapin, a tasty luncheon dish, may be made from cold calves' liver or from roast beef. Make a roux of two teaspoonfuls of butter and two teaspoonfuls of flour, and then add two cupfuls of gravy or two cupfuls of soup stock. Let the mixture boil up once and then add four cupfuls of cold meat, cut in cubes, and simmer slowly for half an hour. Season highly, adding a little cider or sherry, if one wishes. Pour on a hot platter and garnish with four hard-boiled eggs sliced.

The real Scotch scone is made with buttermilk as follows: Put a pound of flour into a basin and make a hole in the middle of it; put in a teaspoonful of soda and half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, then pour in a pint of buttermilk, or enough to mix to the consistency of common dough; roll out to the thickness of an inch; cut the scones out with a tumbler; place on a buttered and warmed griddle, and bake and turn until nicely browned on both sides.

Clear soup is a stimulant rather than nutriment, and should be served either with a substantial dinner or have added to it such nourishing food as a poached egg. The egg may be poached in some of the soup, put on toast in the bottom of the soup plate and the clear soup poured about it. The first essential in soup-making from meat is to draw out the juices of the meat and retain the flavor. The former is accomplished by putting the meat—cut in small pieces and the bones saved or broken—to cook in cold water. A good flavor is obtained by slow cooking. Never boil but simmer for several hours, the length of time depending upon the meat to be cooked. The meat should cook to pieces and become colorless. The vegetables may be cooked with the meat and stock if enough time is given them so that they do not boil during cooking.

Gelatin things are always good when made right. Here is a good dessert recipe: Milk, one quart; gelatin, one ounce; flavoring, two heaping tablespoonfuls; white sugar, three-quarters of a cupful. One quart of milk, one ounce of gelatin, a tablespoonful of almond flavoring, with a tablespoonful of rose water, three-fourths of a cup of white sugar; heat the milk to boiling, turn in the gelatin, which should have been previously soaked for an hour in a cup of the milk; add the flavoring and stir all together 10 minutes before putting in the sugar. As soon as the gelatin has dissolved, remove from the fire, strain through a thin muslin bag, wet a mold with cold water, pour the blanc mange into and set in a cold place till solid.

Useful Hints.

Grass stains on any material can be removed if moistened with a solution of chlorate of tin, and then washed immediately in plenty of cold water. It is wise always to keep a bottle of this solution. If the stained article cannot be washed, then alcohol must be used.

Flowers wither quickly in the heat, but a small piece of camphor in the water will keep them fresh much longer.

Freckles, if objected to, can be removed by taking a quarter of a drachm of powdered borax, half a drachm of sugar, and one ounce of lemon-juice, mixing thoroughly, and letting the mixture stand for two or three days in a bottle to clear. Dab on the face three times daily, and the freckles will go.

Cakes get very dry in warm weather, but if placed in a tin box with an apple, they will keep moist. Renew the apple when withered. The cake will not "taste."

Rain spots on cloth need not be regarded hopelessly. Wipe off the way of the nap with a silk handkerchief or very soft brush. If this be done quickly, no marks will remain.

Sunburn is not becoming, but it can be removed by washing the face in warm water in which a lemon has been squeezed and a pinch of borax added.

Fruit stains are very "springish." To remove them from white material, boil milk and hold the stained part in it for a minute. On linen apply powdered starch at once, and leave for a few hours.

Hot and stuffy rooms can be made cool and fresh by suspending a sheet wrung out in cold water over the open doorway. If a visitor comes it can be removed in two seconds, and your friend will surely remark how deliciously cool your room is.

Perspiration—excessive—is a trial to many. Extreme cleanliness, and dusting with powdered boracic acid mixed with fine starch is the best preventive.

Soup quickly goes sour in the warm days, but it will keep sweet if a pinch of carbonate of soda is added to every quart.

Face feeling is another warm-weather trouble. To prevent this beginning, lightly rub the face before going out with a little fresh cream. At night rub in a little good cold cream.

Sunstroke—Cold-water rags should be applied to the head, which should be kept well raised. Clothing should be removed from the neck and chest. No stimulants must be given.

Untidy hair is, of course, more noticeable in sunny, hatless days than in winter. The following will really keep your hair in curl. You could make it yourself, but if you hand the recipe to a chemist he will do it quite cheaply. Carb. of potash, one drachm; powd. cochineal, half a drachm; liquid of ammonia, one drachm; essence of rose, one drachm; glycerine, a quarter of an ounce; rect. spirit, one and a half ounces; distilled water, eighteen ounces. Mix well, leave for a week, frequently stir, and then filter through fine muslin. Moisten the hair with it while dressing.

PERSONAL POINTERS.

Chatty Facts About Famous Men and Women of the Day.

The Kaiser possesses 323 decorations.

Lord Rosebery suffers from insomnia.

Mr. Bonar Law is an admirable chess-player.

King George, when Prince of Wales, acquired some of his naval knowledge directly from Vice-Admiral Sturdee.

General Smith-Dorrien has taken part in every war in which England has been engaged since the Zulu campaign.

The Lord Mayor of London is such a keen devotee of the royal and ancient game, that his telegraphic address is "Goifing, London."

Queen Mary, writing in a confession album, records that the quality she most admires in a man is that of modesty.

Mr. A. J. Balfour has had plenty of experience of the exaggerating little ways of newspapers. One day he helped to launch a boat that was putting off to sea in an oarless craft. The newspapers got hold of the story and printed it—at first pretty accurately. Then it went the round of the world's press, each time with a slight addition, till in the end a Japanese journal published a thrilling narrative, relating how gallant Mr. Balfour swam two miles with a couple of unconscious boys on his back.

Mr. Fred Terry, who has just made a welcome reappearance in London in "Miss Wilful," owns a mascot of a very interesting character. A friend, to whom he read "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," bet him a suit of clothes that the piece would be a failure. Of course, it was a great success, and Mr. Terry won the suit, to which he became so attached that he kept the coat, and always wears it when he takes part in a golf match. It is patched and mended, and as shabby as possible; but he regards it as a mascot, and declares that he would not sell it for fifty pounds.

Mr. Seymour Hicks, the most popular of all actors among the Tommies just now, has confessed that one of his chief recreations is attending the Law Courts. He has seen nearly every famous trial of late years at the Old and New Bailey. Mr. Hicks tells a good story apropos of a tremendous echo in one of the courts. "The first sentence," he says, "I heard my favorite judge, Sir Charles Darling, pass there of six months, was repeated from wall to wall, his lordship saying, 'Six months—six months,' and the prisoner at the bar shouting, 'Eavens, my lord, eighteen months!'"

Mr. Lloyd George is an ideal fighter, for he realizes that participants in the great game of politics must be quick-witted, especially outside the House, when fighting for the votes of their own and their rivals' supporters. Mr. Lloyd George knows that to get one's audience into a thoroughly good humor is three-fourths of the battle of successful electioneering, and that to lose one's temper is to appear foolish, and to imperil position and dignity. A capital example of his good-natured banter occurred once when he gave a speech with the words, "I am here—" and a noisy interrupter chimed in with, "So am I!" "Yes," retorted Mr. Lloyd George; "but you are not all there!"

LAWS OF THE SPIRITUAL LIFE

Blessed Are They Which Do Hunger and Thirst After Righteousness.

The difference between the mortal and immortal life is not made by death. The immortal life is the life which pain, sickness and death cannot terminate. It is the life of faith, of hope, of love. Such life is immortal life, because mortality cannot touch it.

The body is always dying; it is in an ever-perpetual process of decay; but the spirit of faith, hope and love is in no process of decay; it is not mortal. It is eternal; because it stands in no time-relation; not because it begins beyond the confines of time—there are no confines—but because it has no time boundaries. Christ was as immortal when hanging apparently helpless on the cross as when He rose from the tomb. Death could not hold Him, because there was something in Him which death could not lay hands upon. He was always immortal.

All life has its laws. If we obey the laws of the spiritual life we have a right to spiritual life. There are laws of the body, and if one complies with these laws he has a right to health. So there are laws of the spirit, and if one obeys them he has a right to expect spiritual life, which, because it is the life of the spirit, is a deathless life.

Not all men wish for immortality. They wish to live forever, but living forever is not immortality. Immortality is living the life of the spirit. If we wish to believe in such life as a life hereafter we must believe in it as the life worth living here; if we wish to possess it hereafter we must wish to possess it here. Do we?

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." Do we hunger and thirst after righteousness? "Add to your faith—virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness love." Is this the sum in addition which we are really making in our lives? Or is it, add to your house lands, and to your lands furniture, and to your furniture luxuries living, and to your luxuries living stocks and bonds, and to your stocks and bonds social position?

Paul promises eternal life "to them who by patient continuance in well-doing seek for glory, and honor, and immortality." How can anyone who by perpetual compromise with evil-doing, seeks for wealth and place and fame expect eternal life? "We look," he says, "not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

If we habitually look on the things which are seen and are temporal, what reason have we to expect that we shall have faith in the things which are not seen and are eternal? Faith in immortality is looking at the things which are not seen. It is not a conclusion reached by demonstration; it is a habit of mind.

Immeasurably pathetic to me is my experience in receiving letters from men and women who have lived a self-satisfied and self-contented life until suddenly death has come and taken away the child or wife of mother or husband, and then comes a longing for something better, and the letter to me asks, "What book can I read, what argument can you give, that will prove immortality?"

Immortality cannot be demonstrated, like a problem from Euclid, on a blackboard. How can I prove the spirituality of Beethoven's music to one who has never cared for music? Life comes first, before astronomy, flowers before botany, language before grammar, and religion before theology. We must live before we can believe.

If I would have a right to the tree of life, if I would have a right to know that there is a tree of life, I must seek this immortal life here, and seek it from the God who is here, and seek it through the channels that He opens for us. If we live here and now the immortal life, then, if we are mistaken and there is no life after the grave, still we shall have been immortal. It were better to live an immortal life and be robbed of the immortality hereafter by some superior power than to live the mortal, fleshy, animal life, and live it endlessly. Who would not rather have a right to immortality than be immortal without a right to be? For myself I can think of no doom so terrible as that I should live on an endless and worthless life, like the wandering Jew, condemned to wander through all the ages with nothing in life to live for. What would life be without faith or hope or love?

If we are to pluck the fruit from the tree of life we must have a right to it. If we would have a rational hope in life hereafter, we must have faith in immortality. We must practice immortality.

Blackheads. A good complexion, like a strong constitution, is often the gift of fortune, and it may persist in spite of all that its possessor can do to ruin it. A perfectly hopeless complexion, again, is usually a curse, that we cannot escape. Not even the strictest obedience to the laws of hygiene can make it really good, although it may be possible to improve its appearance. Then there are the complexions that most of us have; we can make them good by care and right living, or as bad as the worst by neglecting nature's laws.

One sort of bad complexion, which is usually of the third class, is marked by a rather coarse skin, with wide pores, from which issues a secretion that becomes mixed with dust and forms "blackheads." At first it is easy to squeeze out these little formations; but if the skin is neglected, the blackheads become harder and larger, the skin inflames, pimples form, and a true acne appears.

The treatment of this condition—and the earlier it is begun the better—is more hygienic than medical. It is not wholly a misfortune, for it encourages its victim to begin those practices that will be of benefit throughout his life. The careless schoolboy, who has been satisfied to give his face a brief mutual "lick and promise," will keep it properly clean with water and some good, mild soap when he understands that his blackheads are a confession of uncleanness. The high-school girl who would be so pretty if it were not for her complexion, will learn a lesson of restraint in regard to candy, cakes, and pies that many lecturers would fail to teach her. She will throw open her windows when she realizes that stuffy bedrooms make muddy skins, and she will practice proper habits of breathing in order to promote that good circulation of the blood on which beauty so much depends.

It is sometimes useful to bathe the face with very hot water, in which there is a little Castile soap and a few drops of ether. Follow this with a dash of cold water, and then apply lightly diluted lemon juice. Avoid all strong astringents. The blackheads will soften in a few days, and you can press them out with the finger nail, guarded by a soft handkerchief. If simple measures fail, consult a dermatologist, for the condition may pass into true acne if you neglect it.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON.

MAY 16.

Lesson VII. David Snares Saul.—I Sam. 26. Golden Text: Luke 6. 27.

I. David in Saul's Camp (Verses 5, 6).

Verses 6, Ahimelech the Hittite—He is not mentioned elsewhere. Uriah was also a Hittite. The Hittites were the descendants of Heth. For references to the Hittites, see Gen. 23. 2; 26. 34; Josh. 3. 10; 1 Kings 10. 29; 2 Kings 7. 6. Our chief information concerning the Hittites comes from Assyrian and Babylonian inscriptions. They are also mentioned in the Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Abishai the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab—Abishai and Joab were David's nephews, sons of his sister. They were famous as warriors (see 2 Sam. 23. 18; 3. 30; 2 18; 10. 14; 18. 2, 5, 12; 21. 17; 1 Chron. 18. 12; also 2 Sam. 16. 9; 1 Kings 1. 7; 2. 28-34).

II. Saul in David's Power (Verses 7-12).

7. Came to the people—That is to Saul's army.

8. Hath delivered up—See 1 Sam. 24. 18.

9. Jehovah will smite him—The king's person was inviolate. He was in Jehovah's hands. David knew Saul ought to meet a violent death, but he dared not lay his hands on him. (Compare Nabal's sudden death, 1 Sam. 25. 38, with Saul's death, 1 Sam. 31. 3-6).

10. Crush—A small cup or jar.

11. A deep sleep from Jehovah—A sleep caused "supernaturally." (See Gen. 2. 21; 15. 12).

III. Taunting the Bodyguard of Saul (Verses 13-16).

13. Stood on the top of the mountain afar off; a great space being between them—David was taking no chances. He trusted Saul more now than on the former occasions.

14. That erect to the king—Abner recognizes David and upbraids him for his effrontery to speak even to the army of Saul. "Who are you but an outcast, daring to call on the name of Saul?"

15. Art not thou a valiant man? and who is like thee in Israel?—David returns Abner's insult with biting irony. "There is no one, to be sure, who can even approach you in valor. Yet to what extent did you protect your king?" (See 2 Sam. 2. 8; 3. 31-34, 38).

16. Worthy to die—In Hebrew the phrase is: "Ye are sons of death," that is, practically dead, so far as any protection they could render the king.

Similarity. "Bragson makes me think of a river."

"Where's the similarity?" "When a river's head is swollen you are made aware of the fact by its mouth."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Diphtheria.

Diphtheria sometimes begins in a very mild way. Nature does not always give a loud warning of danger. Unrecognized nasal diphtheria of a mild type is largely responsible for the outbreaks of this disease in schools, institutions and communities. It is important therefore to be on one's guard at the first sign of a sore throat with fever, especially when the disease is prevalent. Send for a doctor and have him take a culture in throat and nose in season. This means of preventing the growth and spread of diphtheria is usually within easy reach of all. Do not neglect it.

ABOARD A SUBMARINE.

Some of the Difficulties With Which the Captain is Beset.

The London Times recently described the difficulties that confront the officers and crew of a submarine during actual warfare. The captain of the submarine must lie in wait for his quarry with the nose of his boat pointing in the direction in which he expects the enemy's vessel to pass. Then he has to estimate the speed of the approaching ship and her distance and to fire his torpedo at the point at which he calculates she will have arrived when the torpedo has finished its run. Probably he will discharge another torpedo a few seconds later to make doubly sure.

In the discussion roused by the letter sent to the Times last June by Admiral Sir Percy Scott, Admiral Bacon, himself an expert and experienced handler of submarines, said: "If any of your readers wishes to appreciate some of the difficulties of submarine work let him sit down under a chart of the channel suspended from the ceiling, let him punch a hole through it and above the hole place a piece of looking glass inclined at forty-five degrees. Let him further imagine his chair and glass moving sideways as the effect of tide. Let him occasionally all the room with steam to represent mist. Let him finally crumple the chart into ridges to represent the waves and then try to carry out some of the maneuvers that look so simple when the chart is spread out on the table and looked down upon in the quiet solitude of a well lit study."

MAMMOTH AERATORS.

How the Water in the Catskill Aqueduct Will Be Purified.

The great Catskill aqueduct of New York city is to have two immense aerators. One is to be at Ashokan, where the water can be purified before it enters the aqueduct, and the other at Kensico, where the water will be purified a second time just before it reaches New York city.

The second aerator will be in the center of a three acre basin, 400 feet long and 240 feet wide in the widest part. Into the floor are set, in row after row, 1,000 nozzles, each of which will throw a jet of water from fifteen to twenty feet high. The jets will strike each other and thus break up the water into clouds of spray and bring every drop into contact with the air and help free it of impurities. This thorough aeration will be especially beneficial in the autumn, when the water from the lakes and ponds is likely to have an unpleasant taste, owing to the presence in it of microscopic vegetation.—Youth's Companion.

Italy's Premier.

Antonio Salandra, premier of Italy, who steers his country in neutral channels despite war pressure in Europe, comes from the southern region of Puglia and has thirty years of parliamentary training to assist him in the undertaking. He is in the prime of life, and his lifelong legal training, his quick sense of humor and a quiet, aristocratic contempt for mental vulgarity and demagogic politics of every kind give him the happy mastery which revealed itself since the first days of his difficult leadership at the chamber of deputies.

Electroplating Mirrors.
A new method of silvering mirrors consists of depositing the metal on the glass by means of a high potential electric current. A plate of metal is placed against the glass; this is laid flat on a table, and the air above it is exhausted to a high degree of vacuum. Then a small quantity of hydrogen gas is introduced, and the current is turned on through a negative pole attached to the metal plate. In thirty seconds the glass has been silvered.

The War in a Nutshell.

You can hardly put a foot outside your own door without finding some one who is sacrificing something. Yesterday to the collecting station organized by the Lyceum club came a woman with a man's overcoat. Put it down, it was a fine coat. "For some men," she said firmly. "It was my son's. And he's been killed." So the soulless widow walked away tearless—London Chronicle.

Baths Without Water.

To have a bath without water is one of the latest novelties. A thick robe is outwitted with wires, and when put on a current of electricity is passed through the wires. The wearer of the robe soon finds his body getting warmer until in a little while he perceives as freely as if he were in a Turkish bath.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1915.

Appin

Appin, May 9.—The postponed meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Taylor. Eighteen members were present. May 20 has been appointed as "Fruit Day." All interested in the hospitals for soldiers are asked to contribute canned or preserved fruit, jam or maple syrup. The contributions may be left at the home of Mrs. Douglas McIntyre, to be packed there on May 20. A committee was appointed to interview Mr. Banks regarding the securing of apartments in his house to be used as a permanent meeting place for the institute meetings. Mrs. Munger, of Mount Brydges, district president, was present and conducted the election of officers, which resulted as follows:—President, Miss Annie Patterson; vice-president, Mrs. James Allan, secretary, Mrs. Frank Nicholls; treasurer, Miss Jessie Eddie; librarian, Mrs. John Jones; auditors, Mrs. James Lotan and Mrs. John W. Macne; reporter, Mrs. J. S. Macraul. The May meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Macraul on May 27. Mrs. P. McArthur, ex-president of the Women's Institute, has been advised by her physician to take the rest cure. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery to health.

Robert Lotan is lying seriously ill at his home in Ekfrid. He is in his 80th year, and little hope is held out for his recovery.

SLEEPLESSNESS.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Farnelle's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

CAIRO.

A. Wehlann has commenced the manufacture of brick and tile, with a strong gang employed.

Joseph Clifford had the misfortune of losing a valuable horse on Friday.

Mrs. E. McGugan is improving under the care of Nurse Rycraft.

John Randles was somewhat shocked to find on entering his stable on Sunday morning that one of his team, a fine mare, was dead. Cause, unknown.

In the Presbyterian church on Sunday Mr. Craig, the pastor, delivered another of his inspiring discourses, to a fairly filled house, although the organist and several members of the choir were absent to the church opening at Alvinston. Miss Myrtle Annett presided at the organ and executed her part well, the impromptu choir rendering one harmonious melody.

MIDDLEMISS.

Wm. Stevenson, and family are moving into the Lethbridge house. C. Miller is improving his lot by building a new fence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fletcher spent Sunday at Alvinston.

The recent heavy rains have delayed the preparation of the land for planting.

J. A. McDonald has built a large addition to his store, where he will stock machinery, buggies, etc.

Donaldson Bros., of Lawrence, have purchased a Maxwell automobile from J. A. McDonald.

H. B. McArthur, who has been laid up for two weeks with a cold in the head, is able to be out again.

Wm. Carroll, of Pleasant Valley, will erect a new house this summer.

J. G. Lucas was home last week.

Old settlers in this vicinity say they never saw grass so good at this time of the year.

The frost on Sunday night did considerable damage to the tender crops.

It is usually safe to say that when a child is pale, sickly, peevish and restless, the cause is worms. These parasites range the stomach and intestines, causing serious disorders of the digestion and preventing the infant from deriving sustenance from food. Miller's Worm Powders, by destroying the worms, corrects these faults of the digestion and serves to restore the organs to healthy action.

Newbury

Gilbert Fletcher, in a letter to his parents written a few days ago, states that fifty men have been selected from the company he is in at Brandon to go into reinforcements, and he is one of the fifty. They expect to leave very soon. We know "Gib" will do honor to his country. May he return safely.

The annual meeting of the Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Stephen Fennell on Friday, 14th. Election of officers and other business will make this an interesting meeting.

Expressions of sorrow for a brave boy who had died for his country were heard on every side Thursday when the news was received of the death from wounds of Charlie Blott, a Wardsville boy, but known to many here. Sympathy will be extended to his parents, sisters and brother from the people here.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Blain, Mrs. Degraw and Mrs. Fisher in the death of their father, the late Timothy Kelley, who passed away last week.

Conquers Asthma.—To be relieved from the terrible suffocating due to asthma is a great thing, but to be safe-guarded for the future is even greater. Not only does Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy bring prompt relief, but it introduces a new era of life for the afflicted. Systematic inhaling of smoke or fumes from the remedy prevents relapses and often effects a permanent cure.

Wardsville

A. G. Linden had two fingers of his left hand smashed while unloading freight one day last week.

Miss Vera Palmer returned on Saturday from Norwich, where she had spent the millinery season with Miss Anderson, of Bothwell.

The Wardsville district meeting of the Methodist church will be held here on the 19th and 20th of May. Rev. T. George, of Thamesville, and W. J. Ford, of Glencoe, will give addresses at a public meeting on the evening of the 19th.

Mrs. Potter is visiting her sister, Mrs. O'Neill, in Beamsville.

Wardsville, May 10.—Mrs. Matt. Armstrong and daughter Alberta, of Newbury, spent last week with her mother, Mrs. E. Wilson.

Miss Eva Faulds, of London, spent last week with her grandmother, Mrs. Gibb.

Corporal J. H. Conquest and Private C. Constant, of the 33rd Battalion, London, spent the week-end with friends here.

The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the town hall, April 29. There was a large attendance, which indicates the worth of the organization. Mrs. O. Munger, the district president, was present. After the business was over new officers were elected for the coming year.—President, Mrs. (Dr.) H. A. Wilson; vice-president, Mrs. Bilton; secretary, Mrs. F. Henderson; treasurer, Mrs. J. O'Neil (re-elected); directors, Mrs. O'Malley, Mrs. O'Hara, Longwood cemetery. Mrs. A. Douglas, Miss E. Campbell.

A GOOD MEDICINE requires little advertising. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil gained the good name it now enjoys, not through elaborate advertising, but on its great merits as a remedy for bodily pains and ailments of the respiratory organs. It has carried its fame with it wherever it has gone, and it is prized at the antipodes as well as at home. Dose small, effect sure.

MELBOURNE.

Melbourne, May 5.—Miss Lizzie McNeil, daughter of John McNeil, residing just outside of Melbourne, died on Monday morning, after an illness of two or three weeks, aged 58. She was well known in the town and surrounding country. Interment was made at Longwood cemetery. She is survived by her father, four brothers and four sisters.

Annual Victoria Day picnic in Melbourne on Monday, May 24th. Dinner will be served from 12 to 2 p. m. A good programme is being prepared. Music furnished by the Dutton Band. Baseball, basket-ball and other sports during the afternoon. Admission, 25c.
