SIR ADAM AND HIS LEADER SNEER AT THE O.T.A.

Public Utility Linemen Strike; Switchmen May Follow

MAYOR SAYS THAT BECK AND SUPPORTERS HELD UP L. & P. S. INCREASES

MUST GO OVER UNTIL JULY, MAYOR CLAIMS

That Sir Adam Beck and his supporters on the ondon & Port Stanley Railway Commission were trying of yesterday's session of that body to "bunco" the proposed revision of wages of the employees of that corporation is the flat charge today by Mayor Wenige, member of the commission who, at the May meeting, seconded a motion by Commisisoner Donald Wright (Labor representative) that the complete pay list be available yesterday in order that a revision be instituted and increases inaugurated for deserving cases.

It is Mayor Wenige's belief that with a complete knowledge of this proposal, Sir Adam Beck and his supporters undertook in a barefaced manner to sidetrack a proposition whereby the wage of every employee of the . & P. S. R. would be considered.

"Everyone knew that this question was coming up as the chief item of business at yesterday's session," Mayor Wenige explains. "They should have remembered all about it. In fact Commissioner Donald Wright, the Labor member, moved at the close of the May meeting that the pay list would be available yesterday, when we would consider every person in the employ of the road. I seconded that motion and it was passed."

"Yesterday, however, Sir Adam and Commissioner Moore tried to tell us that we did not know our business and in effect did not remember our motion. We do know our business, but to me it looks as though it was a deliberate attempt to "bunco" the proposal to deal fairly with the workers on the London & Port Stanley Railway. There are employees of that department who are deserving of increases if any one is, but by the quibbling and stalling yesterday, Sir Adam Beck and his supporters managed to set this aside temporarily at least.

"At the May session Manager Richards submitted his recommendation for increases in four or five instances in the clerical department. Commissioner Wright suggested that all these be left in abeyance until yesterday's meeting, when the entire payroll could be viewed and all deserving cases be dealt with, inasmuch as circumstances and available finances would permit.

"But Manager Richards explained that it would be imperative to deal immediately with two of these cases as the men had been offered more lucrative positions elsewhere and could not wait until yesterday's meeting. In view of this we accepted recommendation. Donald Wright was quite willing and, as the seconder of his motion, I was also willing. There was one condition, however, the pay list was to be submitted in such time as we would be able to consider everyone yesterday, and treat the little fellows as well as the higher-ups."

"Now what happened? They have set back the contemplated revision of wages until July at the earliest. What assurance have we that anything of a definite nature will transpire then. Sir Adam and his supporters form a majority of the commission and if they chose they may continually block our desire for a revision of wages and set aside the proposal from month to month until the end of the term."

CLEARS HOSPITAL REGARDING DEATH OF LIEUT. E. PRINCE

Investigating Committee Finds Rumors of Carelessness Without Foundation.

PROBED ALL RECORDS

Evidence Disclosed Transfer of Erysipelas to Deceased Impossible.

The special Institute of Public Health committee of three which, on account of rumors in certain quarters, have been investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of Lieut. Ernest Prince in Victoria Hospital on Tuesday, May 22, have concluded that he did not die from erysipelas, that he did not contract erysipelas in Victoria Hospital from other patients, and that there is no evidence to show that erysipelas cases in the hospital were carelessly handled.

Shortly after the death of Lieut. Prince reports that he had died as a result of contracting erysipelas in the hospital through the careless handling of other patients infected with this disease were heard, and the hospital trustees requested Dr. H. W. Hill, director of the Institute of Public Health to searchingly investigate all available records that would throw light on the matter.

The committee was composed of Dr. Hill, Dr. F. W. Luney, chief of the division of pathology and bacteriology of the Institute of Public Health and Miss M. E. McDermid, R. N. chief of the division of public health nurses.

After looking into the nursing, the original hospital medication and the temperature records and other data concerning the cases the committee exonerated the hospital authorities of all blame in the death.

The committee members report that in their opinion the erysipelatous rash on the face of the patient was incidental to his general condition following that of May 11. The report also says there is much evidence as to the constant and careful attention of each of the three erysipelas patients who were in the hospital at the time, and in view of the incubation periods a transfer of the disease to Lieut. Prince was practically impossible.

EDWARD FLANNERY,

WORKMAN FRACTURES WRIST.

While working on top of a passenger coach at the Campbell street C. N. R. car shops this morning, William Sambell of 398 Salisbury street slipped and fell to the ground, fracturing his left wrist. He was removed to Victoria Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. S. G. Henry. Mr. Sambell's wrist is badly injured, and it will be a matter of six weeks or more before he will be able to resume his work. He suffered no other injuries, and his condition at 2 o'clock today was reported by hospital authorities to be satisfactory.

WOMEN AND THE O.T.A. ARE MET WITH SNEERS FROM SIR ADAM BECK

Sir Adam Beck, London's Tory candidate, looks upon the Ontario Temperance Act and the anxiety of the women of Ontario concerning it, with a sneering and contemptuous evasion patterned after the performance of his Tory leader, Howard Ferguson, to whom he seeks also to surrender the people's hydro as a Tory plaything.

This morning The Advertiser spoke to Sir Adam Beck regarding the O. T. A. His reply, contrasted with views held by London women, and an open letter by Hon. W. E. Raney addressed to Mr. Ferguson, are given below.

What Beck Says:

In front of the city hall this morning, The Advertiser asked Sir Adam Beck when he intends to tell the women of London his views on the O. T. A.

"OH, I'M GOING TO HAVE A MASS MEETING OF WOMEN SOON," SAID THE TORY CANDIDATE, "AND TELL 'EM ALL ABOUT HYDRO AND WASHING MACHINES AND CURLING IRONS AND WHAT-NOT."

"But the O. T. A.?" persisted The Advertiser.

"OH, I'LL TELL THE WOMEN ALL ABOUT THE O. T. A.—WITH THE WASHING MACHINES," SNEERED SIR ADAM, AND ADDED: "I'VE PLENTY IN MY CELLAR ANYWAY."

What Women Say:

Following this explanation of Sir Adam's stand, The Advertiser received from the following representative London women these expressions:

MRS. F. HARDING, treasurer of the Women's Labor Party: "I'm not giving an official statement, but my view is shared by a large number of women of Labor sympathies. The O. T. A. is the only thing, and its strengthening and enforcement is of the greatest importance."

MRS. GEORGE EDDIE, president of the Women's Labor party, expressed similar strong feeling against relaxation of prohibition measures.

MRS. A. E. TUTT, past president of the London Union Mothers' Club, and a prominent Conservative: "The O. T. A. looms as the big issue. My personal feeling and the feeling of a large number of Conservative women is that the act must not only be backed up but strengthened in every possible way."

MRS. JARED VINING, president of the London Women's Liberal Association: "The O. T. A. and keeping hydro out of politics are the big issues of the campaign, and I am putting the O. T. A. first."

The women of London will find little assurance in the contemptuous attitude of the Tory candidate, and the doubt is increased by the performances of his leader, Howard Ferguson, whose public utterances are dealt with in the following open letter addressed to him by Hon. W. E. Raney:

What Raney Says:

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson.

I have before me clippings from the Mail and Empire newspaper and other newspapers of reports of speeches delivered by you during the past few days in which very serious charges are made against me, against General Williams, commissioner of police, and against the provincial police generally. The charges are so serious that I think I ought to set them out in the exact language of the different reports.

The Mail and Empire newspaper reports you as having used this language at Spencerville on Monday, 28th May last:

"It was not thought necessary in those days to debauch young boys with whiskey to entrap offenders and secure convictions. There were no women of questionable repute engaged at the public expense to help improve the morale of the province.

"These things coupled with the employment of law breakers of the lowest type to enforce this moral law have debauched the dignity and majesty of the law and created disrespect and contempt for the law."

At St. Thomas.

At St. Thomas on Friday, 1st June, you were reported by the Mail and Empire as having spoken as follows:

"Fancy them paying a fifteen-year-old boy to get drunk in order that they might get a conviction. It is also on the records of the government books which you may see at the Parliament Buildings that public money was paid to street-walking, abandoned women to be used to induce men to break the law, to worm their way into the lowest dives in cities to secure evidence upon which to make convictions.

"Is it necessary to go into the lowest slums to get the worst characters in our province to secure convictions?"

Then at Stratford on Saturday, the 2nd inst., according to the Mail and Empire, you were even more explicit and emphatic, using the following language:

PRESENT FORCE NOT TO GO BACK, COUNTY MEN SAY

Expect Clean Sweep Will Be Made of Middlesex County Constabulary.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Motor Club Official Joins in Protest Against Methods of County Officers.

Not one of the present personnel of the Middlesex County constabulary will be appointed to the new force. This prediction is safe, county officials who will supervise the organization of the new force, have stated.

Too long, county officials and motorists of London and Middlesex say, have reports of alleged unfair methods of present members of the force, been reaching the city.

A few summers ago the persecution of motorists in the county came to an abrupt end, after a "lay off" order had come from Toronto, and a change in the handling of cases was announced.

Some of the constables who were fired have since been able to get back into harness by having two justices of the peace recommend their appointment by the senior county judge.

However, at last week's session of the Middlesex County council, this avenue of reinstatement was blocked apparently. The council resolved to request Judge Macbeth to ignore these applications signed by justices of the peace, so that the county might be able to limit its force to the desired number—sixteen constables and a high constable.

Must Be Recommended.

In order to get on the new force an applicant must be recommended by the reeve and deputy reeve of the municipality in which he is to be stationed, and then must meet with the approval of the special committee of the county council, appointed to consider such applications, and by the high constable.

Reports of loose methods of the present constabulary which have been reaching London, and which have reached the ears of the county councillors, have been responsible for the decision for a change.

Nightly, it is said, these officers go out to get their quota of speeders. At present London Township is proving a harvest field. Fanshaw's Corners on the fifth concession, east of Adelaide street, is said to be a county speed cop trap. Sideroads and laneways are being scoured by county constables, accompanied by special officers, who constitute a corroborative witness for the constables, for persons parking without lights.

Costs and Fines High.

Costs in speeding cases and other cases under the motor vehicles act, in the county are much higher than in the city.

For the ordinary speeder, the fine is $2 and the costs $8.15. If the constables recommend it, the magistrate imposes a $10 fine and the usual costs, one constable stated.

One report, which came from a very authentic source, was to the effect that officers operating on the Wellington road, had been taking numbers at random, while they were sitting in an auto, and that while they went to supper, they left a boy to take the numbers. He is reported to have obtained several.

Secretary C. E. Bernard, of the London Motor Club, stated the methods employed by the county officers were wrong, but that the provincial police on the highway were carrying out their work in a manner which was satisfactory to the motorists. They use a motorcycle and speedometer.

It is expected the special county council committee will meet at the earliest possible moment to reorganize the force. They will fire the 75 constables now on the list, and hire sixteen new ones.

One county councillor at the regular June session recommended the present force be fired immediately. He stated: "Even if there were no constables until the others were appointed we would be as well off as we are now."

TORIES WORRIED OVER LATE ENTRY AGAINST BECK

MOSSOP WON'T RUN

New and vexing problems confront the Tories at every turn. Now they are battling again amongst themselves—the latest tussle precipitated by the contemplated entrance of ex-Ald. Harry Winnett into the arena.

The latest East London prospect has certainly "thrown the monkey wrench into the Tory machinery." The well known pandemonium cut loose at Conservative headquarters last night and the order went forth to "get Winnett out of the race at all costs."

But ex-Ald. Winnett is not going to be hustled back-stage just because he does not please J. Cameron Wilson, Ald. William Wilson and the other slf-appointed leaders of the local party who hold forth at the Beck headquarters.

"I'm in the hands of my friends and supporters," he told The Advertiser this afternoon. "I have made no definite decision as yet. I am still considering the proposal and everything will depend largely upon the wishes of my friends, not only in this district but in other sections of the riding. The proposal that I should enter the field against Sir Adam came quite suddenly and I must take sufficient time to consider the question."

When informed that his nomination papers had been obtained from City Clerk Sam Baker, Mr. Winnett stated that he would not be surprised if some of his friends had not taken this step as many of them had been urging him to come into the fight. He will have a definite answer for them within a reasonable time, he assures, however.

While the little Free Press announced yesterday that there was a likelihood that W. T. Mossop would enter the race at the last minute as a straight O. T. A. candidate, Mr. Mossop informed The Advertiser definitely this afternoon that he would not be a contender for provincial honors.

"I will not enter the coontest," he stated, "and I have prepared a formal statement which will be submitted to the papers and which will explain my stand in the matter and why I am not entering the race."

PUBLIC UTILITIES POWER HOUSE MEN MAY LEAVE WORK

Report They Will Follow the Linemen If Grievances Not Remedied.

FOURTEEN MEN OUT

Manager Buchanan Says Men Refused To Arbitrate and Left Work.

Fourteen electrical workers, employed by the Public Utilities Commission have gone on strike.

Manager Buchanan, of the commission, says the strike has been local in character, and as far as can be seen is simply the quitting of a number of disgruntled workers who have demanded a wage increase coupled with a request for shorter hours.

Manager Buchanan said: "I have offered to arbitrate the matter if they were willing to take it up in a decent way, and promised that should it be decided that the men striking had a case, their readjustment of pay would be dated back to the 1st of June when they made their request. Mr. Ingles, their labor representative, refused to meet me in this, and for my own part I can see no reason why we should pay our linemen more than they would receive in proportion if they were working in Toronto or Windsor.

"They have elected to strike, but as far as our work is concerned we were never in better shape for a strike. Yesterday we had only one house to connect with the transmission wire, and today we have none. By a small reorganization we are able to carry on, and if the men do not come back to work at once they will be replaced."

The difference between the men and the utilities commission is an increase from a minimum of 66c an hour for a 9-hour day to 82c an hour for an 8-hour day. If this was granted, it is said, the men would be receiving more than they did in 1920, with living at its highest in that year.

Say Strike Unsanctioned.

Members of the Trades and Labor Council, when questioned about it said they knew no reason why the electricians should strike at present as they are well paid and work under the best possible conditions.

As far as could be ascertained this strike has no official sanction from the local unit of the Electrical Workers' Union of America.

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER $250,000 DEBENTURES

Mayor Calls Session To Discuss Public Utilities Commission Request.

Mayor Wenige has called a special session of the city council for Wednesday night to consider the public utilities commission request for permission to issue electrical and waterworks debentures to the extent of $250,000.

This question was shelved at the last session as sanction cannot be given without 75 per cent of the aldermen being in attendance.

While certain criticism was leveled at the council because this question was "shelved," Mayor Wenige declares that if there is to be any responsibility for delay it must be placed where he says it belongs—upon those members of the council who remained away from the last meeting.

DEMAND FOR 8-HOUR DAY BY ASBESTOS WORKERS

Special to The Advertiser.

Montreal, June 12.—Improvement in Asbestos Corporation at today's opening reflected the feeling of satisfaction in the street that the attempt of Asbestos workers to force a general strike is not being successful.

Though the demand for an eight-hour day, with the same rate of pay, which is equivalent to an increase of between 20 and 25 per cent, is being made only on the Consolidated Asbestos Company, it is realized that the principle extends to the whole field, and that the Consolidated has been chosen as a test case. Reports from Sherbrooke state that of 360 men employed by the company only 40 are off work, twelve of whom are voluntary strikers and the remainder believed intimidated.

FINES MRS. HAINES $50 FOR DISORDERLY HOUSE

Fines totalling $165 were levied by Magistrate Graydon in police court this morning when he was called upon to deal with a number of cases brought in by the police last night.

Mrs. Mary Jane Haines, 192 Hyman street, was fined $50 and costs for being the keeper of a disorderly house. The option was 21 days. Evidence given by Sergeant J. Oakley and P. C. Pilgrim disclosed the fact that the house was in the nature of a nuisance and that complaints had been made regarding it. Richard Haines, charged as an inmate, was assessed $25 or 21 days. One woman and two men were charged with being frequenters, and with the exception of one of the men, were fined $25, tthe fortunate member of the trio escaping with $10. A fourth man charged with frequenting, was dismissed.

William Johnston, 783 William street, and Cyril Atkins, 11 St. Patrick street, paid $10 and costs each for having acted in a disorderly manner on the public street. Chester Herald paid the same sum for having been intoxicated.

Walter Kelly, charged last Friday with being intoxicated, appeared this morning and was allowed to go on condition that he start work immediately and keep away from liquor. This he promised to do.

CLAIMS $760 SENT OUT TO WOMAN DURING WAR

An echo of the war was heard in the county court this morning when Judge Talbot Macbeth presided over the case of Frank Barlow, Russian, vs. Mrs. Annie Nye, in which the plaintiff is suing for $760.

Barlow, in claiming this amount, stated that it was money which he had sent home from overseas in the form of checks and assigned pay, as well as money received from the D. S. C. R. and other sources. Mrs. Nye admitted cashing the checks, but entered a counter claim for the same amount, claiming that the money was due to her for board and room, as well as for a gramophone which the plaintiff is alleged to have taken away when he left her house.

J. W. G. Winnet is acting for the defendant and Frank Curran for the plaintiff.

Cline, London Junction, by Inland Revenue Inspector Webbe, County License Inspector Bolton and Provincial Constable Stratton, photographed by The Advertiser staff photographer. The picture shows worm tubs and worm, boiler, barrel of mash, sack of corn, and two large barrels, also used for mash. Cline was fined $200 and costs in police court this morning.

Heard the Call For Police; Threw Stolen Watch Away

Carl Regis, being held in the local jail on charges of burglary, told the police yesterday when they were inquiring the whereabouts of a gold watch stolen from John Graham, 223 Burwell street, that he had thrown it away.

Asked to give a reason for doing this, the prisoner said that on the night of June 4, when he was in the home of Charles Wilson, 319 Central avenue, he heard the police next for and was afraid that they might catch him in the neighborhood, the response being so quick, and find the watch on his person. He therefore of the watch as 3307630, of Waltham from the Wilson home.

Detective Nickle gives the number had thrown it away while hurrying manufacture. It is of gold. If any citizen should find it, he requests that it be returned to police headquarters immediately.

DEFINITE REORGANIZATION AT HOSPITAL STARTED

MAKE NO CHANGES

R. F. Armstrong States Present Executives at Institution Are Satisfactory.

Definite plans for a thorough reorganization of the Voctoria Hospital administration went into effect this morning. R. F. Armstrong, of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, who for the past month has been acting as temporary superintendent and investigating conditions, announced today that the temporary heads of departments had been appointed and their responsibilities made known to them.

"There has been no change in the personnel of the various department heads," he told The Advertiser. "In fact we cannot wish for better executives—it is all a matter of rearranging things until a perfect working machine has been produced.

Those who head the departments are: Miss E. Ross, superintendent of nurses; Dr. Roy Kingswood, chief resident physician; A. J. McGuffin, purchasing agent and superintendent of works; N. D. Mills, accounting department; C. J. Martin, drug department; Miss M. Struthers, diet kitchen; Mrs. N. Trebilcock, kitchen stewardess, and L. Martin, pharmacist.

Detail Work Planned.

"The details for which these heads will be responsible has been blocked out," Mr. Armstrong stated, "and an organization chart is now being worked out so that all details will be tied in. There will be no overlapping, no loose ends and responsibilities at all times can be placed. Strong co-operation is being given by the heads of the departments, and within a few days everything should be operating in an efficient and satisfactory manner. There will be daily conferences between the hospital superintendent and the department heads, and a weekly meeting of all department heads, when general executive problems can be considered."

Asked regarding the appointment of a permanent superintendent of Victoria Hospital, Mr. Armstrong said that notices have been drawn up for publication, asking for applications for that position.

The reorganization plans drawn up by Mr. Armstrong also state that the executive officials will be prepared to place before the general superintendent for his approval their proposed department reorganization, the methods to be adopted, the personnel required, etc.

Service to Citizens.

"We are all striving to perfect an efficient administration, one that will be a real service to the citizens of London, and to obtain harmony in each and every department, and in the institution as a whole.

"The purchasing agent and superintendent of works will be made responsible for all hospital purchasing, fire protection, all outside work in connection with the hospital, including heating, laundry, repairs, gardening, plumbing, and other general outside work. The superintendent of nurses will be made responsible for what shall be known in future as "nursing details," while the chief resident physician will be responsible for "medical details."

Purchasing and stores—A stores and stock account system is being installed which will show in the accounting office where all stores are located, quantities, etc., and will show costs of private wards, semi-private wards, nurses' homes, public wards, helps' dining-rooms, etc. The cost per day of private, semi-private and public wards can then be worked out.

Control Collections.

Collections—Definite steps must be taken towards collections, and every effort will be put forth to collect accounts weekly. Several large outstanding accounts are now being checked up. Upon taking the matter up with the Workmen's Compensation Board in reference to a disputed account of 50 cents a day per patient, we are advised the government of Ontario is responsible for this amount.

Heating—The question of heating and operating the incinerator plant has been discussed with the city engineer with the object of doing away with the present dual control, which does not lend toward efficiency. The city engineer agrees that the plant should be controlled by one party, preferably the city, and suggests that an arrangement be arrived at whereby the city assumes full responsibility for the incinerator plant, fuel, etc., and sell steam heat to the hospital on a meter basis. Coal contracts should be considered at once, and a committee should therefore be appointed with authority to draw up an agreement with the city in reference to the heating and incinerator plant.

Stop Present Method.

Laundry—The present method of operating the laundry will cease on July 1, and negotiations are now under way to operate a plant as proposed in the report of the Citizens' Research Institute.

The report of Mr. McGuffin, who acted as superintendent of the hospital during the month of May, was received by the hospital trust at a meeting last night. It shows that 335 patients were admitted and 350 patients discharged during the month. There were 24 births and 23 deaths, and 223 patients were receiving treatment, while the free dispensary had 538 patients. The receipts for the month totalled $18,005.65, while the wages, not including laundry, amounted to $9,604.31. The laundry contract was $660.

According to the report of the superintendent of nurses, 23 applications were received for information regarding the training school. Fourteen nurses were ill during the month, and 30 were transferred from the intermediate to the senior class.

DECIDES TO DELAY FIRE DEPARTMENT SUGGESTED PROBE

Citizens' Research Institute Thinks Separate Survey Too Expensive.

INQUIRY IS HELPFUL

Committee To Await Further Action To Be Taken by Council.

The survey of the fire department by the Citizens' Research Institute which was agreed to by the council lately, has been temporarily held up pending a further meeting between the council and the Research Institute committee. The committee feels that to carry out a survey of one department by itself is not only too expensive, but also that it looks invidious. Why, they say, should any one department be singled out (for a survey, when it is admitted that there are other departments just as much in need of the help of the committee.

Tells Underlying Motive.

Col. W. J. Brown, chairman of the local committee of the Research Institute, stated to The Advertiser this morning the underlying motives of the committee. "First of all," he said, "we never refer to these surveys as investigations. There is no desire to turn a spotlight on any department, neither is there any wish to incriminate any one person. The whole thought and action of the Research Institute is to help by expert experience in relieving the departmental troubles of municipalities."

The colonel pointed out that the committee is in close touch with some 50 American and Canadian cities, and is conversant with their problems of government. The men employed by the committee under Brittain, who carried out the survey at Victoria Hospital, are all experts in their lines, and through long years in specialization are capable of helping the local officials in the rearrangement and reorganization of the various departments.

Had Proved Satisfactory.

Colonel Brown explained that the survey at the hospital had proved satisfactory to the people of London, and thought that a similar process in some of the other departments would be just as helpful.

The Citizens' Research committee has convassed many Londoners, and has been able to raise half the price of the surveys, so that the council will only be asked to provide the other half. When the committee asked the council whether they wished the surveys to be made, they expected that the council would want surveys of all the city departments. The council so far have only agreed to a survey of the fire department, and the committees have as yet taken no action in the matter, on account of the increased overhead expense that must necessarily follow the bringing of experts from Toronto merely to make one survey. Tomorrow night they hope to get the sanction of the council to conduct the surveys of the remaining departments.

UTILITIES MEN QUIT, OTHERS MAY FOLLOW

strike, volunteered the information that the fifteen men on strike is the whole "line staff," and that the work is now being taken on by Line Superintendent A. Alford and one ground. man. He would not discuss the cause of the strike, but said that dissatisfaction is general throughout the power plant and among the utilities' employees. He stated that not long ago the same trouble arose between the waterworks department, and Manager Buchanan, and that in their case Buchanan was forced to give in to their requests.

Switchboard Men Threaten.

An interesting feature in the situation is that while Manager Buchanan is to confer with E. Ingles, who is representing the strikers, at 3 p m., the switchboard operators at the substation on Horton street, have told the manager that unless their requests for better working conditions is met by 6 p.m. they will pull their switches and walk home. This will result in total darkness tonight if carried out.

E. Ingles, walking delegate of the Electrical Workers' Union, is acting as mediator between the men and Manager Buchanan, and refuses to make a statement.

It has been reported that the "ground man" who is supposed to be helping the superintendent do the linemen's work is none other than Bookkeeper Potter of the Public Utilities Commission.

FINDERS OF SKELETON CONTINUE THEIR HUNT

London Dentist Finds Teeth in Good State of Preservation.

Cecil and Tom Champness, who Sunday discovered a skeleton buried a few feet beneath the surface of the ground in Maitland sand pit, unearthed today a few more bones. It is the belief that the spot at which the skeleton was found was once the burial ground of the Attawandrian tribe of Indians, who inhabited that district some 200 years ago. A local dentist who inspected the jawbone and teeth of the skeleton, said that it was a remarkable thing that the teeth should remain intact for such a length of time. The teeth are in excellent condition, and this fact alone proves that the skeleton is that of an Indian, because their teeth were not open to decay to the same extent that ours are today, owing to the difference in food.

The two boys who discovered the skeleton are diligently working in the hopes that they will unearth another one.

LONDON CLERICS VOICE APPROVAL OF VOTE ON UNION

BEATTIE PLEASED

Rev. J. Garbutt Believes Step Will Prove of Untold Benefit.

Presbyterian approval of church union finds ready indorsation in the ranks of local Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists. Union is within a degree of becoming a reality as a result of the action of the general assembly at Port Arthur. And London clergy view the overwhelming vote in its favor as the most forward movement in recent Canadian church history.

The outcome of the assembly's action, according to prevailing local opinion, will be actual organic union within a period of two to three years. Rev. Dr. Beattie, minister of First Presbyterian Church, stated today that the committee appointed would now be obliged to seek the necessary government legislation for some months or years yet, but there was now no possibility of any extended delay.

"The Presbyterian vote," said Dr. Beattie, "was not actually on church union. It was rather a vote as to whether union should become our immediate goal or whether it should be delayed. The anti-unionists and moderationists combined and made up the minority vote. But it is safe to predict that now the vote has been taken the moderationists will fall in line. Only the recalcitrants are expected to offer a battle."

Rev. Garbutt Pleased.

Rev. J. Garbutt of the Dundas Street Methodist Church was pleased with the result of the Presbyterian vote. He thought the Presbyterian situation was an extremely delicate one, but believed unanimity would finally be achieved. There were great difficulties ahead yet, he said, but the necessary steps that would bring about actual union within a few years' period had been taken.

"The decision must go to the courts and the bill passed by each provincial legislature. This will entail quite a long period of time. I am delighted with the Presbyterian action, however, and believe it will prove to be of untold benefit to the church as a whole."

Rev. Matthew Kelly, representing the Congregationalists, expressed keen pleasure with the assembly vote at Port Arthur. He stated he had not expected such a large majority and believed the outcome would solidify denominational ranks to the advantage of the Dominion and the church.

Rev. H. B. Storey saw in the favorable attitude of the Presbyterians at Port Arthur toward union the final elimination of denominationalism in Canada. Canada, he declared,, was a pioneer in church union, but other countries would doubtless follow her action within the ensuing decade.

Rivalry Experienced.

"There has been a certain amount of denominational rivalry experienced by all three churches, and this will be entirely cut off as soon as union comes into operation. The three denominations will be known as the United Church of Canada, and with mutual co-operation wll be able to accomplish more for the benefit of their attendents than they have in the past.

"We only hope that the necessary vincial legislatures and the Dominion bills to be presented before the provincial legislatures and the Dominion government will be pushed through as rapidly as possible. The quicker we unite the better for Christianity, and the simpler the preaching of the gospel."

Other clergymen were equally enthusiastic. According to general opinion of laymen as well as ministers, the long struggle for organic union is now practically at an end and the church can look forward to a bigger field of work and a more fertile sphere for the service of mankind.

SWISS IMMIGRANTS ARRIVE IN DOMINION

Montreal, June 12. — Happy at reaching the land of their adoption, a party of 70 Swiss immigrants arrived at the Bonaventure station last night in a special Canadian National train from Halifax, where they disembarked on Sunday afternoon from the White Star-Dominion liner Pittsburg.

Of healthy stock, the new arrivals were for the most part young men already experienced in agricultural development. They are en route to the western provinces in charge of a conductor.

Toots' Admirers Continue The Merry Debate on Curls

"Buttercup's" Unthatched Dome Also Comes In For Some Criticism From Friends of the Toots-Casper Family.

Genial Jimmy Murphy drew down upon himself a heavy bombardment of criticism when he made Toots and her family an open issue with the great general public.

It now appears that Toots' particular style of hair-dressing was not the only source of grievance which friends of the Toots and Casper family had with the trio. Even Buttercup is coming in for his share of caustic remark, and the neighbors are beginning to observe upon the remarkably slow growth of his crown of glory.

Just listen to this:

Dear Genial Jimmy:

Just hang on to Toots' curls. They suit her charming little face to perfection and make me feel quite jealous. I think I shall visit the hairdresser too. That topknot was just too funny for anything, and by the way, isn't it time "Buttercup" started some thatch on his little baldpate. I do not admire that one lone sprout on the top of his dome. Yours for a better thatch.

TOOTSIE'S ADMIRER.

Some are prepared to go to all lengths in defence of the charming young wife. For instance this:

Dear Mr. Murphy:

Whose business is it anyway, if Toots fancies herself with a few curls piled up on the top of her head. By all means let the dear child have them. Women are entitled to the grand old privilege of changing their minds, so why not allow Toots to change the style of her hair-dressing. My wife and my sisters change theirs on the average of three times a week, and do I ever utter a word of protest? Nary a sound! I'm strong for Toots, whether she does her hair in curls or curl-papers.

Yours to a finish,

LITTLE BUTTERCUP'S UNCLE.

Of the Federal Advertising Agency, who was this morning elected a director of the Canadian Advertising Agencies Association.

KILLINGS AND UNREST RAMPANT IN THE RUHR

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Paris, June 12.—Two Germans and a French soldier were killed in the Ruhr today and another German died of wounds.

Four explosions occurred on railway lines, and sabotage and unrest appeared to be growing.

A French sentinel was shot and killed as he walked his post at Recklinghausen. Later a German civilian is reported to have been slain by French troops at that city. Another was killed at Dortmund, where one died of wounds received when the French shot 35 persons who were out after curfew.

SAY PIPER RESIGNATION WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED

Councillors Not Desirous of Losing Services of Valued Civic Employee.

While Building Inspector Piper's resignation comes before the board of works tonight, there is an even chance that it will not be accepted.

Understanding that Mr. Piper was operating his machine during his spare moments, contrary to regulations, Mayor Wenige directed his temporary suspension Saturday. The inspector accordingly tendered his formal resignation yesterday.

There were members of the city council who informed The Advertiser pointblank today, however, that they would not vote to accept his resignation. They hasten to explain, however, that they feel that he should be severely reprimanded for his breach of their regulations, but they do not desire more drastic action.

One alderman proposes that they should consider a proposal to relieve the inspector of his car, and even that he would everun,gmm mm m Mayor Wenige declared yesterday that he would favor the removal of city cars from all city officials or employees.

Other proposals will be submitted tonight, and some of the aldermen maintain that as Mr. Piper has been a valuable official to the city during the past ten years, a hard worker at all times, he should be retained after a suitable reprimand. They point out, also, that he has never received the remuneration that he was justly entitled to, and they are prepared to battle for his retention at all costs.

WILL TRY PUGILIST ON MURDER CHARGE

Chicago, June 12.—William "Sailor" Friedman, lightweight boxer, will go on trial here today on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Abe Rubin. William Cohen and Louis Rome are co-defendants.

Rubin was slain during a pistol fight in a saloon here eighteen months ago. The three men were tried several months later, but the jury failed to agree.

GUARD WITHDRAWN

Mother States Couple Will Wed Within the British Empire.

Special to The Advertiser

Buffalo, June 12.—There is a play running in Buffalo called "The Earl, the Girl and the Car." Its chief action consists in running away from reporters, so do its chief actors. The earl, of course, is the Earl of Northesk. The girl is Jessica Brown, once Mrs. Reinhardt, and late of the Ziegfeld Follies. The car is a "Moon" car, alas, not yet a honeymoon car.

Perhaps in honor of the earl's coming an enterprising jeweler has on Buffalo's main street a sign which reads "If you have the girl, I have the ring." The tragedy of the situation is that the jeweler still has the ring.

That may account for the color of the car; it is a deep, dark, melancholy, tragic blue. It may have come that way from the varnishers. More probably the blue is just a reflection of the earl's hope deferred. It is a paradox that though Lord Northesk and Miss Brown are seen constantly together, yet they are only seen in a "blue Moon." The earl is staying at a club on Delaware avenue. A few blocks farther up the avenue is Miss Brown, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Albert R. Starke, the wife of a Lackawanna steel magnate. The "blue Moon" is parked for the night near the earl's bedside. As soon as he leaps from his bed in the morning he leaps to the wheel, and in a few seconds toots his horn outside Jessica's balcony. Then for the rest of the day, followed by a cloud of dust, they vanish into the blue haze of the faraway horizon, the world forgotten but by no means the world forgot.

Gone Are the Days.

Gone are the days when lovers strolled through country lanes and sat leisurely under hawthorn hedges white with blossoms. Photographers now have to hustle for a living. Cupid dons a chauffeur's uniform and outdistances interviewers.

The earl does not know whether he is Scotch or English. Though English, he is too speedy for the American camera. Because he is Scotch or Scottish, he was on Sunday too canny for his pursuers. He gave them all the slip on the Niagara Falls speedway and took his bride-to-be or not-to-be to Ontario's Gretna Green. He stopped on the suspension bridge and wondered how much water will flow beneath it before marriage rescues him from unwelcome publicity.

Then he put foot on the soil of a province that ties love knots even more tightly than they tie them in England, almost too tightly, in fact, for the fumbling hands of the senate to undo. The pair, however, returned to Buffalo without trying this guaranteed almost indissoluble Ontario wedding.

Seeks Fugitives.

Yesterday The Advertiser decided that the fugitives after a day's uninterrupted privacy ought to be willing to talk to London. It appealed by phone to Jessica's mother. It was only nine in the morning, but they had gone into the country, gone for the day, perhaps to a justice of the peace or a parsonage.

It seemed too improbable, it seemed too early, so The Advertiser called on Mrs. Starke, pronounced Starkie. From the other side of the door came a furious barking. This was Lion, Miss Brown's Belgian police dog. Whoever loves her must love her dog.

The Advertiser gingerly pacified cerberus. Then Miss Brown's mother generously confessed to a fib. Jessica was upstairs sleeping. She was quite willing to tell the truth to a Canadian. She already had a decided British preference.

"I was just trying to save the dear children," she said. "The reporters won't give them a moment's privacy," but she recognized that Canadians are different. We have a reputation for tact and discretion, particularly in love affairs. It seems that the American public wants a 15-minute bulletin service on a matrimonial engagement as on a ball game.

Lion Withdraws.

Lion withdrew to guard his sleeping beauty, and Mrs. Starke made an astounding revelation. Lord Northesk's fiancee is Canadian born. As soon as he can marry within the law he is going to marry within the empire.

"Yes, Jessica was born in Canada," said her mother, "at Harriston Hot Springs. Her father, Frederick Antonio Brown, was born in Kingston, Ontario.

"We were married in Buffalo and he went to British Columbia at the time of the gold boom. He discovered and organized the Winnipeg Consolidated Mine. I wanted to call our daughter Alexandra after the queen, but he insisted on Jessica. Miss Brown's grandfather was Alexander McDougal Brown, one of the Red River pioneers, commonly known as Sandy and noted for his fine penmanship. He was Winnipeg's first city clerk. The present city clerk is Charles J. Brown, an uncle of Jessica. His wife, Teresa Brown, is English born and, acting as Winnipeg's first lady, officially received the Prince of Wales on his tour.

WARN SMUGGLING INTO DOMINION IS ON THE INCREASE

Members of Tariff Committee of Canadian Manufacturers' Association Present Report.

NATIONAL SCANDAL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 12.—Smuggling of manufactured goods into Canada has reached alarming proportions and a great smuggling organization with heavy financial backing is in existence and engaged in operations that are creating a national scandal, according to the report of the tariff committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at the annual meeting of that organization, which is continuing today.

The report says that silk fabric and silk garments are especially involved in these smuggling operations. It is remarked that, despite the efforts of government authorities, only a few of the offenders have been convicted and these, generally speaking, have received very light punishment.

Co-operation of all law-abiding people in an effort to end this smuggling is advised.

In the discussion of the tariff committee's report today particular attention was given to the matters of sales tax, customs and trade treaties. General indorsaion was given by various speakers to the sentiments expressed by President Shaw yesterday that higher tariffs were necessary to protect Canadian industries.

Hear Addresses.

This morning the association heard addresses by Sir George Foster, as president of the Dominion Fire Prevention Association, and St. Bastedo, superintendent of the government annuities branch.

This afternoon the delegates attended a reception at Government House.

The development of export trade was an interesting phase of the report of the commercial intelligence committee. The need for cultivating amicable trade relations with Europe, Asia and South America was strongly stressed. The report stated that foreign trade was gradually assuming greater importance as a factor in Canadian commercial life and the future of the country rested largely on the extent to which this is developed.

Regret Fire Losses.

The insurance committee regretted that fire losses to industry during 1922 were the worst on record and advocated better precautionary measures employed by business executives. They also urged members of the association to make fuller use of the insurance department in equipping plants and seeking information relating to insurance affecting manufacturers.

W. H. Miner, chairman of the education committee, in his report, took up the question of scientific and industrial research. As a result of the committee's efforts a conference to consider the advisability of establishing a research institute was held. The proceedings of the conference received much publicity, which stimulated interest in the project. The committee suggested that the annual meeting discuss the question of research for the purpose of ascertaining the views of the members.

The recent reductions in freight rates met with the approval of the transportation committee, and in its report it presented statistics showing the business done by various forms of transportation.

Principle Vindicated.

The tariff committee report declared that the policy of extending the principle of trade preference in the empire has been vindicated by the results so far obtained. But it emphatically protested against further extension of any preference at the expense of Canadian industry. In fact, it was questionable whether there had not been some injury already done through the tariff reductions made during the past two years.

The introduction of the sales tax in 1920 was the subject of the committee's observations. The committee suggested that the operation of the tax be clarified as much as possible. The trade treaties between foreign countries and Canada, recently made by Hon. Mr. Fielding, were heartily indorsed. Smuggling and the alarming proportions it has reached in Canada was freely commented upon, and it was recommended that the penalty for smuggling be increased.

The membership committee informed the association it had maintained the membership above that registered last year in spite of numerous resignations, and the total strength was now 4,288.

PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY VOTES UNION

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY VOTES IN FAVOR OF CHURCH UNION, ANTIS DECLINE TO ABIDE BY DECISION

SPIRITED SPEECHES

Canadian Press Despatch.

Port Arthur, June 12.—The Presbyterian General Assembly definitely settled the church union question yesterday. Closure was applied, and the debate, which opened on Thursday afternoon, and which was continued through sessions on Friday, Saturday and today, was abruptly closed. The struggle to reach the platform was exceedingly keen all through the day, and there were many undelivered speeches when the hour set for the vote arrived.

Two votes were taken, and the difference in the results was not as great as was expected. On both votes the assembly divided on the straight issue of union. The first vote was taken on the question of an amendment involving a halting of the negatiations, which was proposed by Rev. Dr. Drummond of Hamilton. This was defeated by 416 to 137. The second vote, on the main motion to adopt the report of the union committee, was carried by a vote of 426 to 129. It was apparently decided in conference early today that the debate must end today in order that progress might be made with the ordinary business. It was therefore moved at the forenoon session that the vote be taken at 3 o'clock. On this motion the assembly split almost evenly, and Principal Murray gave notice that at 4 o'clock in the afternoon he would move for the termination of the debate. This was done, and the debate was concluded, with the exception of the final address on the subject by Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon, who moved the main motion.

Antis Put Up Battle.

Two incidents marked the closing of the discussions. Rev. Dr. Scott of Montreal made a hard fight to have the vote taken by ballot. Rev. Dr. Gandier said that the vote might be taken by secret ballot by unanimous consent, otherwise the ordinary rule of the church must be observed which provides that votes are taken by a show of hands unless a demand is made of the calling of the roll, in which case the roll must be called, and the custom of the church has been that the reply must be made by word of mouth. Dr. Scott maintained that the roll might be called, and that each commissioner might reply by depositing a ballot. When this was refused by the moderator, Dr. Scott appealed from the ruling of the chair, and when the moderator was sustained by the assembly he read a protest which was so worded that Rev. Dr. Gordon entered a most earnest protest. Rev. D. Scott, is was said, reflected seriously on the honor of the assembly.

At another time Judge McKay of Port Arthur made a hard fight to get before the assembly an amendment to the main motion, and to secure the opportunity to make a speech. The moderator ruled that he was out of order, but Judge McKay persisted. He appealed from the ruling of the moderator, and the ruling was sustained. Judge McKay still persisted, and finally obtained permission to read his amendment. When this was rejected he moved that the main motion be laid on the table, and this was defeated. The roll of the assembly was then called, with the result indicated.

How They Voted.

Sydney, 7 to 3; Inverness, 3 to 0; Pictou, 7 to 3; Wallace, 5 to 1; Truro, 5 to 0; Halifax, 15 to 1; Lunenburg, 4 to 1; St. John, 8 to 2; Miramichi, 7 to 1; Prince Edward Island, 7 to 3; Trinidad, 1 to 1; Quebec, 6 to 2; Montreal, 18 to 5; Glengarry, Ottawa, 9 to 2; Lanark and Renfrew, 7 to 1; Brockville, 5 to 2; Kingston, 11 to 2; Peterboro, 7 to 0; Lindsay, 6 to 1; Whitby, 2 to 1; Toronto, 22 to 15; Orangeville, 4 to 2; Barrie, 5 to 6; North Bay, 4 to 0; Temiskaming, 4 to 0; Sudbury, 3 to 0; Algoma, 4 to 0; Owen Sound, 7 to 0; Saugeen, 6 to 0; Guelph, 9 to 1; Hamilton, 7 to 11; Paris, 8 to 0; London, 10 to 3; Chatham, 6 to 2; Sarnia, 4 to 2; Stratford, 5 to 2; Huron, 5 to 0; Maitland, 6 to 1; Bruce, 3 to 3; Manitoba, 4 to 0; Winnipeg, 20 to 0; Rocklake, 4 to 0; Glenboro, 4 to 1; Portage La Prairie, 6 to 0; Dauphin, 4 to 0; Minnedosa, 5 to 1; Brandon, 7 to 3; Yorkton, 1 to 1; Kamsack, 4 to 0; Abernethy, 3 to 3; Qu'Appelle, 6 to 0; Arcola, 4 to 0; Almeda, 2 to 0; Weyburn, 2 to 1; Assiniboia, 2 to 1; Regina, 4 to 2; Moosejaw, 5 to 2; Saskatoon, 10 to 0; Prince Albert, 3 to 2; Battleford, 5 to 0; Kindersley, 6 to 0; Swift Current, 2 to 0; Vermillion, 4 to 0; Edmonton, 8 to 2; Peace River, 1 to 0; Lacombe, 2 to 0; Red Deer, 2 to 4; Castor, 2 to 1; Calgary, 5 to 2; Medicine Hat, 2 to 0; High River, 1 to 2; MacLeod, 3 to 0; Kootenay, 2 to 2; Kamloops, 2 to 1; Cariboo, 1 to 0; Westminster, 12 to 7; Victoria, 3 to 1; Honan, 6 to 1.

Leaders in the assembly who are favorable to union stated tonight that the effect of the favorable vote would be immediate. The great effect will be the union at once of a considerable number of congregations especially in old Ontario. In the presbytery of Lindsay there are said considerable number of congregations, who are ready to unite with five Methodist congregations, and which have been waiting for the vote which was cast today. The same thing is true to some extent, it is stated, in almost every presbytery of the province of Ontario. Co-operation will also at once become closer in every department of the church life and work.

To this council the assembly will elect 150 members, and a committee named by the present assembly will consider the manner in which these members of the council will be named. The date at which the general council will hold its first meeting cannot be predicted. It will depend on developments, and especially on the date at which legislation from the federal government and the provincial government can be obtained. It is possible that all the legislation will be obtained at the sittings of parliament and legislatures next winter. In this case actual union would not be long deferred.

The afternoon sederunt of assembly began in the solemn hush of prayer led by Rev. John Griffith of Honan. The commissioners evidently felt the gravity of the occasion and many joined silently in the prayer for Divine guidance as the assembly looked forward to the hour of voting at four o'clock.

Dr. Drummond was allowed ten minutes to explain further his amendment under discussion. He assured the court that he had never feared that the church would break apart, as he believed that even yet the unity of the church would be maintained.

No bitter word had yet been spoken in the debate and he believed that some way of escape would be provided.

Pleads for Co-Operation.

He pleaded again for co-operation in weak fields and congregations. He thought also that co-operation might be employed in the college work of the negotiating churches. But for a union in all respects the difficulties in the way were exceedingly great. A federal union something after the political union of the Dominion might be adopted with a general counsel as the advisory and executive head. Nothing could be devised that would satisfy everybody, but his amendment would stir up less bitterness and division than other schemes suggested.

Rev. Dr. Strang rose to make his first speech on the subject of church union, and he expressed himself as decidedly in favor of consummating organic union, and expressed himself as decidedly in favor of consummating organic union at the earliest possible time. He rejoiced in being a lifelong Presbyterian. The amendment of Dr. Drummond was impossible in his judgment because it put off union for an indefinite period. The condition of church work in the west demanded immediate action. Union had already taken place to a large extent in southern Saskatchewan. Yet he deemed it wise to lay the resolution of the union committee on the table until the assembly of 1924. Let us stay together, was Dr. Strang's closing appeal.

Rev. John Mutch of Truro said that if anything could be done consistent with his conviction to keep the church together he would agree. He had two objections to the amendment. The first was that in prospect of continued delay in consummating union no provision was made for carrying on effectively the work of the church. Work was pending in many ways that waited on definite action by the assembly.

His second reason for objection was that Dr. Drummond's amendment does not provide for the religious convictions of the church. There is a religious ideal in the minds of many people that calls for the sinking of denominationalism before a common loyalty to the kingdom of God.

Favors Mediating Amendment.

Principal McKay of Winnipeg supported a mediating amendment, which he hoped might find favor in the assembly. He disliked to take action that might be followed by disruption. But he felt that the church had come to the parting of the ways, and it was too late in the time at the assembly's disposal to deal amply with another amendment. Separation, he felt, was inevitable for him as a supporter of union, the only thing was to press on and let the future take care of itself. He asked that his amendment might be withdrawn.

W. A. Cameron of Saskatoon, superintendent of missions, spoke for the minority. He asserted that there were only 55 independent churches in Canada. These were not sufficiently manned. The union affected thus far was largely a system of co-operation which could be indefinitely extended without organic union taking place. Union would not appreciably relieve the western problem. Money was necessary for the solution of the problem, and union was no guarantee that the liberality of the church would be stimulated.

Four o'clock having arrived, Principal Murray moved that the vote be now taken. This carried unanimously.

Dr. Scott moved that the voting be done by ballot as affording the best method of securing the conscientious convictions of the assembly. The moderator ruled that unless the wish of the assembly was unanimously for voting by ballot the amendment would be ruled out of order. It was determined then to vote by calling the roll. Dr. Scott dissented from the moderator's ruling.

Dr. Pidgeon was then heard in summing up the debate. The resolution already published was read. He pointed out that the resolution approved only of the general principle of the bill and left room for change in its details.

Two things are essential, first, that the church go forward into union; second, that the church go forward now. Immediate action that will be decisive was necessary.

Union must be consummated or given decent burial. The arguments of the minority do not appeal. Their threats of secession weigh heavily on our hearts. Yet we cannot consent to allow denominationalism, much as we love the Presbyterian Church, to take precedence over the cause of union.

Points Out Advantages.

Dr. Pidgeon dealt with Dr. Drummonds's proposal of a federal church. It offered nothing constructive and simply sickened the heart with hope deferred. Federation prevented solidarity and sustained the sense of denominational cleavage. "The church has held back since 1912 for sake of the feelings of the minority with no good results." He said rather harm has been done our work by delay and fairness has not been shown to the other negotiating churches. Nothing diner in the history of denominationalism has been shown than by the patient temper of the Methodist and Congregational Churches during the long period of waiting. If we continue to temporize large sections of the church will take the matter into their own hands. The interests of our work demand the present settlement of this question.

"It is a crime against the interests of the Kingdom of God to waste men and money by perpetuating denominationalism. It is vital that the three negotiating churches should go solidly into union. This the enabling bill is intended to secure, and this is one of the chief criticisms against it. It cannot be believed that any other form of legislation will give effect to what the general assembly has provided. The argument that the church is not represented by its courts is unfounded, but no better expression of the church's wisdom can be found. Out of 56 presbyteries, 52 had declared in favor union.

"Five synods pronounced on union, all in favor. Make all allowances, these decisions constitute a remarkable manifestation of the church's mind.

Pleads for Decision.

"This bill leaves each congregation in charge of its own affairs, and no change will be made without the action of the leaders in charge. The bill makes full provision of the testing of doctrinal standing of the ministers of the united church contrary to objections taken in this respect.

"We are aware of the gravity of the situation, but we feel that no other course is necessary. Co-operation has reached the limit. Defeat of this resolution will break the heart of the church. Acceptance of the resolution will be an inspiration to the church. If any are opposed irreconcilably, let us part in peace. The church cannot stand the suspense and agitation now so long continued. It belongs to the realm of conviction that our relation to our Divine Head demands union with our brethren."

Antis Refuse To Give Up Presbyterian Identity

Canadian Press Despatch.

Port Arthur, June 12.—Immediately after the action of the Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday deciding to prosecute organic union on the basis of the proposed bills, a representative gathering of those opposed to such action met and issued the following statement:

"The general assembly of 1923, without a mandate from the people, has, by a majority of the commissioners, voted to transfer the ministers, members, property, and trust funds of the Presbyterian Church in Canada into a new organization.

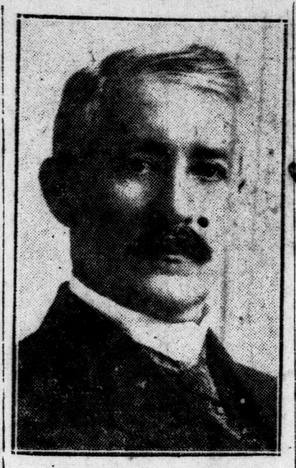

"Eminent counsel are of the opinion that this action of the assembly is beyond its powers, unconstitutional, and illegal. In any event, the Presbyterian Church is to continue in Canada. We count on all who value civil and religious freedom to stand fast in this hour of crisis, and we heartily assure all who may be called on to make personal sacrifice for our church at home and abroad of our organized comradeship, encouragement and practical help.

"We send forth this declaration in solemn dependence on the gracious favor of Almighty God.

(Signed)

"D. J. FRASER, Chairman.

"J. W. MacNAMARA, Secretary."

DR. CHARLES E. JARVIS DROPS DEAD AT HOME

Prominent London Physician Expires Suddenly From Heart Trouble.

Dr. Charles E. Jarvis, a prominent physician of London for the last 36 years, dropped dead yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock at his home, 715 Dundas street, from what is thought to have been an acute attack of heart trouble.

He was out on his usual rounds in the morning and called on several patients. He returned home about 1 o'clock, and after lunch spent some time in his office, after which he went upstairs to his room to lie down.

A few minutes later his housekeeper heard him walking around and then heard him fall. She ascended the stairs and found Dr. Jarvis lying on the floor. Dr. P. J. Sweeney was called to attend the stricken man, but when he arrived found that he had expired, death being almost instantaneous.

Dr. Jarvis was one of the most prominent of London physicians and had a host of friends in the city and district. He was in his 65th year, and graduated with the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Queen's University in Kingston in 1882. He practiced in this city for a year or two after, and then took up the study of homoepathy under the late Dr. J. J. Lancaster.

He practiced for short periods in Ingersoll and Kingston, but finally made his home in London. He was for many years past intimately connected with the Oddfellows, and served as the lodge physician for Chorazin Lodge. He was a Liberal in politics, and an active worker in the First Congregational Church.

His wife and one son predeceased him some years ago. He is survived by one brother, C. G. Jarvis, of the firm of Jarvis & Vining, barristers, and one sister, Mrs. H. P. Allen, both of this city.

Dr. Jarvis was one of the few physicians in the province practicing homoepathy.

The funeral arrangements have not been made definitely yet, but it is expected interment will be made Thursday.

WILL TRY TO PREVENT SMUGGLING OF LIQUOR

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, June 12.—How to prevent smuggling of large amounts of liquor from Canada in view of New York's repeal of her prohibition code will be one of the questions discussed at the conference of governors on prohibition which President Harding will hold before going to Alaska.

Prohibition officials and dry leaders are not only wrought up over the condition along the border brought about by New York's action, but fear other states will follow New York's example. The action of the lower house in Wisconsin in voting for repeal has added to their apprehension.

FIRE SWEEPS SETTLEMENT NEAR NEWCASTLE, N. B.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Newcastle, N.B., June 12.—The settlement of Red Bank, about fourteen miles from here, was swept by fire yesterday. Starting in a house owned by Isaac Blackmore, and fanned by a high wind, it swept through the village destroying some 25 buildings. Details are difficult to get, as the telephone wires are down.

Four or five hundred men are fighting the fire, which is still burning fiercely. The smoke is dense at Newcastle, causing discomfort and grave fears for other settlements in the line of the fire.

ASKS LAST DOLLAR BE GIVEN TO HELP NEEDY VETERANS

Hon. S. F. Tolmie of Victoria Makes Stirring Entreaty in House of Commons.

DISCUSS PENSIONS

Hon. H. S. Beland Proposes Establishing Appeal Boards For Ex-Soldiers.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, June 11.—That the ex-serviceman and his dependents were entitled to something more than a rigid interpretation of the pensions act, was asserted in the House of Comons last evening by members discussing a vote of $32,500,000 for European War and active militia pensions. The debate, which started early in the afternoon and continued throughout the evening sitting of the house, was productive of a number of suggestions by members regarding features of the pensions act, which were inadequate to meet present conditions. In view of the fact that the government proposes to introduce amendments to the act at an early date, many of the speakers spoke briefly, reserving their more lengthy speeches until the measure is brought down.

Asks Aid for Veterans.

Various speakers voiced the opinion that the people of Canada were opposed to anything which savored of unfairness in the treatment of the men. "We should," said Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Conservative member for Victoria, "make an effort to the extent of our last dollar to do justice to these men and restore their usefulness. If it is not in the power of the pensions board to deal more sympathetically with cases, the pensions act should be amended to give it this power." Other speakers, while not blaming the board, advised more leniency in dealing with applications for pensions. Numerous cases of injustice were cited, and emphasis was placed on the widespread dissatisfactions existing among ex-soldiers and their dependents.

Provide Appeal Boards.

Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, stated that of one thousand cases he had submitted to the pension board for review, the board's decision had been changed in only two or three per cent. The only appeal at present, he said, was from the pension board, and he proposed to remedy this by providing for appeal boards. It was proposed to do away with the doctrine that the man discharged as A1 must remain fit all his life.

After passing the item, the house went into committee on the resolutions amending the insurance, pensions and department of soldiers civil re-establishment acts, carrying out the recommendations of the Ralston Royal Commission.

SPEEDING MOTORIST IS KILLED BY RADIAL CAR

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 12.—Leonard Curtis, aged 38, garage man of Richmond Hill, was instantly killed and his companion, Gideon Ramsay, also of Richmond Hill, probably fatally injured yesterday when a northbound sedan driven by Curtis swerved off the pavement south of Thornhill, and skidded into a southbound radial car.

The two men were on their way home from Toronto and their car was said by Provincial Constable Sutton to have been travelling at a speed of 37 miles an hour when it passed Lansing, a nearby village.

The constable followed the car on his motorcycle, arriving just after the accident. Apparently, when the auto had left the pavement it had careened over and struck the front steps of the radial car. The auto with its occupants was dragged along about 110 feet. The body of Curtis was found under the rear truck of the car, while Ramsay was lying across the west rail right under the center of the radial car.

Ramsay was taken to the Toronto General Hospital, where it was found that his skull had been fractured and that he was in a precarious condition.

WOODSTOCK IS GUESSING ABOUT HIGHWAYS BLUNDER

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, June 12.—There has been much speculation locally as to the cause of the error made last week by the provincial highways department in sending to the local county council the figures of the cost of the county's share of the provincial highways for 1922. Now comes the explanation from W. A. MacLean, deputy minister of public highways, that a clerk in the department made the error, that he sent out the total amount for three years, $95,000 instead of $33,000 for 1922.

MINERS RUSHING TO NORTH QUEBEC IN BIG GOLD HUNT

About Two Thousand Prospectors Reported Already on Spot.

APPEAR OPTIMISTIC

Diamond Drills Being Used to Determine Value of Claims.

Special to The Advertiser.

Quebec, June 11.—With between 1,500 to 2,000 miners and prospectors already on the spot, and scores more trekking in daily, the new Quebec gold field section promises to shortly become the most popular spot in the entire east of the Dominion. Prospectors, miners and many other kinds of men interested in mining have their claims staked out, and the only thing that seems to put any limit to the influx of gold seekers is the inadequate means of communication. Yet even so, there is a steady stream of men traveling in daily.

As matters now stand, a great majority of the prospectors are coming in by rail to Kipawa, and then by steamer to Ville Marie, road to Gillis Bay, across Lakes Desquinze and Expanse, up the Ottawa River for a spell, and after a quarter-mile portage through Lakes Kenojavis and Rouyn to the new settlement of Rouyn right in the heart of the gold mining district.

The bulk of the advance guard already on the spot came from the province of Quebec and Ontario, but there are some Americans there, too.

Prospectors Optimistic.

After a personal visit to the new gold fields last week, and a canvass among the prospectors, it has been ascertained that there exists the fullest optimism among the prospectors who are camping on the spot, all of them expecting that their claims will turn out to be regular Eldorado's.

Large tracts of land have already been staked by prominent mining companies who have extensive interest in mining properties in other sections of the country, especially Cobalt and Porcupine.

The Noranda Mining Company already holds claims amounting to over 2,000 acres, including those of A. H. Cocheres, J. H. S. Waite, W. A. Chadwell and the Powell's claim, and a great deal of trenching and survey work is being done on these claims.

While none of the people mentioned what figure the one that has taken out assays, it is said by those "in the know" that it exceeds seven dollars per ton, while others report that a fair portion of ore taken from the first pits dug show a portion of native gold.

First Discovered.

One of the best deposits in the district is the Horne deposit or claim which was the first to be discovered, and was responsible for the interest that is now being shown in the new gold fields is being actively worked and mineralization extends in some places to forty feet in width. With a view to ascertaining the full value of their claim, the Horne people have placed diamond drills in operation, and very shortly exact figures as to what the ore is assayed and how much virgin gold shows will be drifting in from the spot. A rich percentage of gold has been discovered in an assay made on a number of claims on which diamond drilling is also proceeding. The Robert Cocheran location, the Lyman syndicate of Cobalt, and Boston, carrying on extensive operations.

Claims are held by the Dome Mines people of Cobalt. M. J. O'Brien, Limited, owners of the O'Brien mine in Cobalt, in addition to mines in Gowganda in large numbers.

FIVE HAMILTON CHILDREN ARE POISONED BY CANDY

Hamilton, June 12.—Victims of poisoning, five children of Mr. and Mrs. Pettie, were rushed to the General Hospital last night. The three older members are not in a serious condition, but Dr. E. Bradshaw, who was called, stated that the two younger children were seriously ill.

Candy is believed to have caused the illness, although the parents are of the opinion that it was spaghetti which had been warmed after having been standing for some time.

STEPHEN GRANT, former assessment commissioner of the City of London, who passed away at his residence, 862 Wellington street, last night about 11 o'clock, following an illness of nine weeks' duration.

STEPHEN GRANT DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Former City Assessment Commissioner Expires Following Heart Attack.

Stephen Grant, one of London's most prominent public men and a well-known figure in city hall circles since 1882, deid at his home, 862 Wellington street, last night, about 11 o'clock, as the result of an extended attack of heart trouble. He had been ill nine weeks.

Shortly after arriving here Mr. Grant joined the police force, which then comprised but ten men. He remained on the force for eleven months, and then entered the service of the London General Hospital. After twelve years on the hospital staff he became an employee of the assessment department, and served faithfully in this capacity for many years until his retirement.

DEFER SELECTION OF NEW PRINCIPAL FOR COLLEGIATE

School Board Will Consult Department of Education Before Making Appointment.

DISFAVOR MOTION

Members Consider Resolution of Urban Trustees' Association Too Radical.

No successor to Principal Moone of the Central Collegiate has been appointed yet, despite the fact that a special meeting of the board of education was called for yesterday afternoon to deal with this appointment and other matters of moment. Previous to the meeting there was a full attended meeting of the special committee appointed to select a principal. This committee, after carefully considering all the applications, decided that, in view of the extreme importance of the appointment, and in consideration of the extensive knowledge of the men applying, it would be safer and surer to hold a consultation with the Department of Education before committing themselves along any definite line.

At the meeting of the board later in the afternoon, the finding of the special committee was indorsed, and it was agreed that Trustees Silverwood and Warner should serve as a delegation representing the board to go to Toronto and consult the Department of Education in regard to filling the position. The delegation will leave Wednesday it is hoped, and that the matter can be cleared up before the end of the week. The selection of the new principal is important and urgent, owing to the fact that the board at its last meeting decided to leave the whole reorganization of the staff of the school to his discretion.

The board also decided to postpone the appointment of the new teacher in the Central Collegiate until after the decision on the other appointment had been made.

Discuss Resolution.

A resolution was presented to the board known as the "James" resolution. It was passed at the Urban Trustees' Association meeting held a few weeks ago in Toronto, and was moved by F. T. James of Chatham and seconded by F. B. Edmunds of Toronto. The resolution recommended that the present public schools and should be amended so that school boards or boards of education in urban municipalities would have authority to include in the annual estimates such sums as may be necessary for permanent improvements, including the purchase of school sites, erection of buildings and additions thereto, not to exceed 50 per cent of the total yearly estimates, and further that where additional accommodation is required and a request for debentures made to the council, the board may request the department to issue a certificate approving the proposed site and plan of the building. The resolution called for a two-thirds vote by the board in favor of the plan, and proposed that when this had been accomplished the council should be forced by law to grant the debentures asked.

London's board after some discussion, which was to the effect that the resolution was entirely too radical and savored of the methods of the man with a pleasant, friendly smile and a good thick club up his sleeve, dealt with it in the following resolution:

"That we, the London Board of Education, while not concurring in the spirit of the resolution, and unable to indorse it, realize that a real problem does exist in some localities and we would submit that the idea of Inspector Greer, that there should be a committee of the department of education who could be called upon to arbitrate where there is a difference between the board and the council, would be the best and most reasonable solution of the problem."

The resolution will be forwarded to the secretary of the Urban Trustees' Association.

Will Attend Lunch.

A letter was received from Colonel Garishore asking the members of the board to attend a lunch in the Tecumseh Hotel on Thursday at noon to Sir Robert Jones, the eminent English orthopaedic surgeon, who will be in the city under the auspices of the hospital trustees and in the interests of the Children's Hospital.

The board also expects to be able to settle the question of the purchase of the site of the London West school today. The deed of sale, however, is still in the hands of the city solicitor and the board members, after expressing themselves strongly on the dilatoriness of the procedure responsible for the deed not being ready postponed the decision to their next meeting.

Mrs. McCully, chairman of the St. Thomas Board of Education, who was in the city for an inspection of London's kindergarten system, addressed the board for a few minutes, expressing pleasure with the London schools and wishing the board success in its various undertakings. Last November the London teachers were the guests of the Windsor Board of Education, and the London board agreed to return the invitation to the Windsorites some day in the autumn.

London Advertiser

"I, Even I Only, Am Left."

The advertising which is being done on behalf of Sir Adam Beck in London contains the following sentence:

"Ontario has no member of the legislature representing the power consumers. It is up to London to elect Beck."

Whom, then, do all the Liberals, Conservatives, U. F. O. and Labor men in the Ontario Legislature represent?

That statement must mean that there is not a member of the Conservative representation in the Ontario Legislature who is capable enough or honest enough to represent the power consumers—in other words, the people—of this province.

Can it be that Sir Adam Beck makes that statement in all seriousness? Is he in reality the Elijah of 1923 who feels impelled to cry out, "I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life to take it away"?

That statement that there is "no member of the legislature representing the power consumers" takes in Hon. Howard Ferguson, Mr. Beck's own leader.

We hope Sir Adam Beck can come out and blame that boastful statement to some over-enthusiastic publicity man. It is certainly putting it on with a trowel or a scoop shovel.

"It is up to London to elect Beck because Ontario has no member of the legislature representing the power consumers."

We hope the members of the Conservative party who are running as candidates in this election appreciate what Sir Adam Beck thinks of them.

We hope the Conservative members who sat in the last legislature appreciate what Sir Adam Beck thinks of them.

The Greatest Church Debate.

Not in years has a church had such a momentous discussion as the Presbyterians have been waging for days at Port Arthur. The fighting blood of the Kirk is up on both sides, for union and against it.

On the whole the discussion has been on a high plane, worthy of the history of the church. Men's souls have been gripped by the possibilities one way or the other, and there has been fire and vigor unearthed in that gathering that has surprised those inside and outside the church.

No matter what may be the outcome, the ministry and the leaders of the church have shown an ability to debate this highly-contentious matter in a big way, meeting argument with argument and sentiment with sentiment.

From the point of fine debating it transcends anything that a Canadian parliament, federal or provincial, has done in years.

Bargaining With the Hired Man.

The Advertiser has several complaints from farmers in this district, two of the latest being from Oxford County and from a farmer in Dorchester, in Middlesex County. The trouble is that in both instances these farmers have been left in the lurch by their hired men, who have picked up and gone to the city when they found it possible to get work there.

One farmer, writing to this paper, states his case, which is practically the same as the other:

"I hired a man in December, when there was not much work to do on the farm. I thought by so doing, and giving him a place the year round, I would have a man when the seed and harvest time came. There are some months in the winter and spring when it is a loss to me to carry a hired man, but thought it would be better taking a chance of getting one just when I wanted him for three or four months. Today I am without a man, and we are just at the season when I most need him. He left the day after pay day, and the only reason he gave was that he was pretty sure he could get a job in the city. I know of other farmers not far from me who have had the same experience. One man two farms over from me holds back a certain amount of the pay each month and gives it in a lump when the harvest is over. I tried to do that, but could not get a man to come under those conditions."

The Advertiser took occasion to make some inquiries about this matter, and one farmer in London township north of the city explained that he used the system the Dorchester man had not been able to make go. "I pay a winter and a summer wage," he stated, "and have had very little trouble since then. Last year, and I am doing the same this year, I paid $20 per month in the winter months and $40 in the summer. That makes the pay the most attractive at the season of the year when I want it to be attractive. We also have a written agreement for a year's work, although we have not had to use that yet. Last year, when the work was pretty well through, I gave the man an extra month's pay because he was well worth it. Needless to say, I have the same man yet. I can't see any reason why the winter and summer pay idea cannot be worked in other places."

The Advertiser passes the idea on for what it is worth, although there must be a good many farms where the plan is already followed. It is certainly a poor look-out for a farmer who has kept his man all through the lean season to find out at this time of the year that he is alone in the work.

Make the Crooks Fear London.

Sergeant Percy Last of the London police force saw a man on the street at four in the morning. He stopped him to ask what he was doing.

Questioning him made the policeman suspicious, and his suspicions were justified when a young man came along the street with the report that his home had been robbed.

The policeman took his man to the station, where he confessed to at least six recent burglaries in London.

London police force has done some very good work lately. It is well, perhaps, that citizens who are inclined to be very critical at times should stop to think that there are men walking and riding around the city streets all night ready to pick up the suspicious-looking individual.

And no doubt the people on the street where this man was arrested at four in the morning could truthfully say that they had never seen a policeman on their street.

The Way to Hold Conventions.

The method of calling a Liberal convention in Southeast Toronto has been questioned by Mr. Hartley Dewart, who, failing to get the nomination, states that he will now run as a Liberal candidate, regardless of what the convention did.

Mr. Dewart favored the calling of an open convention which would give ballots to any person vouched for by two members of a committee of twenty-five. The plan followed was that a convention was called at which delegates had to be vouched for by five members of the executive. Neither of these plans is perfect, although the first gives greater scope for getting a convention favorable to any particular candidate who is prepared to busy himself to see that his friends get the ballot papers.

The ideal way to have a convention is that each division in the riding shall name its own delegates, and that they shall be vouched for by the chairmen of these divisions. There is little opportunity for "cooking" things by that method. Moreover, when a convention is called it should come together with an open mind. If there are men brought before the nomination meeting they should have a fair and even chance of securing the nomination on their merits.

There is nothing that has worked more mischief in political parties in the past than that poor old habit of trying to arrange all things beforehand. No matter how quietly and how secretly the manipulators may get in their work beforehand, it is bound to come to the surface in the long run.

It is hard to see where Mr. Hartley Dewart finds grounds for his claim that the Liberals of Southeast Toronto jockeyed him out of his position. The convention that decided against him seems to have been organized on a fairly equitable basis.

General Public vs. Newspapers.

At the week-end some person in Hamilton started a rumor that the Prince of Wales had been thrown from his horse and killed. The rumor spread to other cities, and by Sunday night a number of cities were in possession of this piece of information.

The newspapers may give assistance to a few wild rumors at times, but when the newspapers are not present at the week-end, and the dear general public take the rumor business into their own hands, they surely make a real job of it.

Getting Out the Reserves.

Col. John A. Currie has taken to the stump. When Hon. Howard Ferguson went to West Simcoe on Friday night, there he was.

The trouble with such a speaker is that he is immediately on the defensive, and it was that way with Col. Currie. He felt he had to apologize for the seven or eight hour speech he made in the legislature when he blocked redistribution. He also gave the assurance that "I wasn't tired." The fact that the country was not only tired, but disgusted, seems to enter into his reckoning not at all.

Col. Currie even went farther in his second apology, that of retaining and using a letter that he knew was the property of another man. This incident was regretted by the best element of the Conservative party; they did not, and do not, approve of such small tactics. Hon. Howard Ferguson, though, is ready to approve of Col. Currie and all his letter-snatching methods, and places the stamp of approval on him by appearing on the same platform.

The campaign cannot be going well when it is necessary to bring Col. Currie out on the platform with Hon. Howard Ferguson.

Note and Comment.

Every time there is a wreck now on the National Railways we start to figure out how much we have lost.

Who says the world is not getting better? They are going to allow bull fights in New Orleans and give some of the proceeds to charity.

Sir Adam Beck and Mayor Wenige were both fined ten cents for being late for Rotary Club lunch on Monday. So that time they were both on the same pay list.

One of Silverwood's trucks ran into a London street car and knocked it off the tracks. We'll have Bert Silverwood understand that he's got to leave our street cars alone.

All of which is quite right, but being able to carry a burning broomstick in the parade of winners is almost worth being snubbed by your neighbors for a couple of weeks. EDIT. One Wife at a Time.

SETTING UP A STANDARD.

(From The Independent, New York.)

Few will think themselves wise enough to predict the outcome of the clash of religious views now taking place. The Independent has received many letters evoked by its editorial, "A Godless World and Brotherly Love." Those dissenting from its views have intimated that we were opposed to all social service on the part of the church. There was of course nothing in the editorial which could be so interpreted. The Christian Church from time immemorial has given thought to its poor and has attempted in various ways to play a part in the daily life of the community. What we objected to was the tendency among radicals to make humanitarianism the be-all and end-all of religion, and we asserted that religion in such hands was almost sure to develop into nothing more than a great materialistic philosophy. The question has been greatly confused because of the proneness of agnostic radicals to refer to the teachings of Jesus, as though these, even when dealing with purely human relations, were not actuated by His spirituality. There has been altogether too much hiding behind Jesus on the part of those to whom the spiritual—the relation of man to God—means little or nothing at all.

Christianity, if it is to persist in anything like the spirit in which it has come down to us, must make two fundamental assertions—that God is and ever shall be, and that a constant fight between good and evil goes on in the breasts of us all. Let radicals bring their religion to the test of these tenets and we shall then know where they stand.

She looked far too athletic.

Quebec, June 11.—"Our object is to transform the Canadian National Railway into a source of revenue and a subject of pride for the people of Canada. HUMAN PROGRESS.

Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou shalt make princes in all the earth.—Psalm xlv., 16.

The most perfect example of pure socialism is a swarm bees, where personality is nil, every member gets the same pay—board and lodging—and the only object is to perpetuate the swarm and keep the hive full.

But without the aid of man they never produce a better bee or a more perfect hive. Is humanity to come down to that level? another says grace." Is it much better than a world where everybody

What real good appears in the mere continuance of any community unless you think of the men and women and children who live there, each one the inheritor of a spark of the Divine Life, which may be cherished and enlarged into a flame of beautiful and potent light?

There is your reason for service.

HOW TO GIVE FIRST AID WHEN SOMEONE IS POISONED.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

When somebody has been poisoned the first and most important thing to do is to calm the fears of the victim. There has been almost as many deaths from fright as from poison. To reassure the sufferer and to gain his confidence is half the battle.

Dr. Copeland.

Even when the poison has been taken for suicidal purposes, the temporary aberration of mind that made such a foolish deed possible has disappeared, and the would-be suicide begs for life. So he needs calming, just as does the poor chap who has taken poison by mistake.

Poisons differ in their nature. Some are corrosive. They may be acids or like acids in their effects. They burn their way into the tissues and act instantly. There are poisons which act slowly but surely upon the tissues and organs of the body, producing gradual destruction.

Then there are poisons which paralyze or derange the nervous system, rendering the victim unconscious or else throwing his body into spasms.

Sometimes a badly-poisoned person is found with an empty and unlabeled bottle beside him. The nature of the poison is then, of course, unknown. In such a case no antidote can be given, because nobody knows what should be counteracted.

Under these circumstances you must act on general principles. The best thing to do is to give an emetic. If the stomach can be emptied, the poison not already absorbed will be removed from the system.

Mustard is to be found in every house. To a cupful of warm water add two tablespoonfuls of mustard. Make the patient drink this, and repeat the dose every ten minutes till he vomits.

If mustard cannot be had, use ordinary table salt in the same way. Sometimes the person can be made to throw up by running your finger down his throat. Be careful about this, because you may injure the tissues of you are rough.

If you know the poison is an acid, give strong soda solution. Follow this with milk and white of eggs.

In mercury poisoning white of eggs is the best antidote. One egg, for every four grains of the poison is the rule.

Iodine poisoning is rather common. For this starch, if it can be had, or flour, should be given. Make into a paste and feed a lot of it. Then try to induce vomiting.

Opium poisoning calls for black coffee and artificial respiration.

Food poisoning, from cheese, ice cream, fish, mushrooms or olives, calls for an emetic.

In every case of poisoning send for the nearest doctor, explaining the nature of the accident, so he will be prepared. He will come with stomach tube, antidotes and stimulants.

Keep the patient warm, using hot water bottles or blankets. Needless to say, where the corrosive poisons have been taken there must be wise after-care. Soft foods and fluids must be given, but your doctor will direct you what to feed the patient.

Answers to Health Questions.

ANXIOUS: Q.—For the past eighteen years I have been troubled with paralysis in my right leg. Will you please tell me if this condition can be cured?

A.—If the cause can be found the chances for a complete cure are favorable. Consult a neurologist or apply at a clinic for an examination and treatment. Follow the advice the doctor gives you.

A DEVOTED READER: Q.—I have dark circles under my eyes. What causes this condition?

A.—Dark circles may be due to indigestion, constipation, eye-strain or loss of sleep. If any of these conditions exist, correct them, and your symptoms will disappear.

A. A. A.: Q.—I have had a hard lump on the side of my jaw for some time. Will you please tell me what you think this is, and what to do for it?

A.—This may be a wen. You should consult a reputable surgeon for an examination to determine the nature of the lump, and follow his advice in regard to treatment.

L. L.: Q.—I have had a number of boils on my lower lip, which have caused several small lumps to form under the skin. Is there anything you would suggest to remove these lumps?

A.—If you have not already done so, have your lip examined by a skin specialist, and he will advise treatment.

H. A. N. Q—Will you please tell me if —— is being used for ——?

A—Yes, this is being used for the condition you mention. You should take whatever treatment your doctor advises after a careful examination.

M. J. Q—Will you please tell me what to do for a small vein in my leg which burst?

A—You probably have varicose veins. You should wear an elastic stocking or bandage and keep off your feet as much as possible.

A READER. Q—Will you please tell me what will promote the growth of the eyelashes?

A—Yellow oxide of mercury ointment, 1 per cent., will help to improve the growth of the eyelashes. Put this on your eyelashes before retiring.

E. P. Q—Will you please tell me what causes nosebleeds?

A—Nosebleeds are usually due to ulcers on the nasal septum. In persons over 40 they are often due to high blood-pressure. You should consult a nose specialist for an examination and treatment.

H. R. Q—I am a young man and am troubled with a very poor memory. I smoke cigarettes and drink a great deal of coffee. Will you please tell me if this would cause my trouble?

A—Both habits may have some bearing on this condition. Stop smoking and do not take more than one cup of coffee per day. Also try committing some verse of poetry to memory each day. This will help you.

M. B. N. Q—I have severe pains at the base of my spine. Will you kindly tell me the cause of this condition?

A—I would suggest that you consult a physician for an X-ray and follow the advice he gives you. This condition may be due to a displacement of the coccyx—the small bone at the end of the spine.

A. F. I. Q—Will you please tell me if there is anything harmful in ——?

A—I cannot advise you about the preparation you mention, as I do not know anything about it.

MRS. S. L. Q—I am troubled with pains in my left side. I have been told that this is nothing to worry about, but I am afraid that my heart is causing the trouble. Will you please tell me what to do?

A—If a physician advised you not to worry he probably was right. However, it would be well to consult a specialist in heart diseases to make sure there is no organic trouble present.

MRS. G. Q—My baby is one year and four months old. Will you kindly tell me when to wean him?

A—You should wean your baby now, but do it gradually. If he cries at night do not nurse him but give him water instead, and in a couple of nights he will not cry.

L. J. Q.—Will you kindly tell me how to remove freckles from my face?

A—Nothing can be done to remove freckles, but applying lemon juice to the spots may help to make them less noticeable.

A Reader. Q—My little girl, 2 years old, can only say small words, and very few of these. Do you think her very backward?

2—She has only grown four inches in the past year. What should I do for this?

A—I would not worry about this condition. She, no doubt, will talk very plainly and rapidly after she starts.

2—I would advise you to take her to a physician for an examination. Glandular treatments are often helpful.

Mrs. W. R. Q—What causes chills to run through my head very often?

A—This is probably due to nervousness. Build up your general health by a good mixed diet, plenty of fresh air and deep breathing, and as much sleep as possible.

K. B. Q—What can I do for small purple veins in my face?

A—You should consult a skin specialist, who will advise you if there is a possibility of treating these.

J. L. C. Q—Will you please advise me regarding the best treatment for a bad attack of photophobia?

Looking Abroad

Princess Louise of Belgium Forced To Bring Suit To Recover Possessions Pawned by Prince Philip—She Knew Nothing But Sorrow From Earliest Childhood.

Memories of an almost forgotten royal tragedy were revived by news from Vienna that Princess Louise of Belgium, former wife of the late Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, is once more in financial straits. The slump in monthly allowance of 60,000 marks granted her by the Grand-Duchess of Schleswig-Holstein, and recently doubled, is quite insufficient to pay her expenses. To increase her revenue the princess has brought suit against the heirs of Prince Philip for the restitution of several objects of her personal property which he pawned, including her bridal gown.

Louise of Belgium, eldest daughter of the late King Leopold, knew only sorrow from her earliest girlhood. She was brought up in the lax moral atmosphere of the Belgian court, where her father's amours and his ill-treatment of his queen were common gossip. Leopold always disliked his eldest child, and when Philip of Coburg, her senior by fourteen years, came to Brussels and wooed her, the king insisted that Louise listen to his suit, although she felt a pronounced aversion for him from their first meeting. Tears and entreaties were of no avail. Leopold, deaf to her pleadings, told her that princesses were not in the world to do as they liked but as they were told to do; so at the age of seventeen she was married to a man she loathed.

Philip of Coburg was a dissipated fellow, whose proudest boast was that he could drink more beer than any other man at Bonn University. On his wedding day he was so drunk and so grossly insulted his young bride that she fled to her apartments and refused to see anyone but her old nurse. Philip's ill-treatment was such that within a few months after her marriage Louise begged her mother to help her get a divorce. This her royal father absolutely refused.

Philip, enraged at his wife's actions, subjected her to increased humiliation, bringing his mistresses into the palace and forcing Louise to entertain them. Once she reproached him and he struck her, and when she rebelled he seized a riding-whip and thrashed her before the servants till the blood flowed. Again the hapless princess appealed to her parents, but "reasons of state" made them refuse her a divorce.

As a last resort Louise determined to drag the family name in the mud. She, who had shunned the gay court life, plunged into it, and became one of the wildest of the revelers. She gambled at the races and sought the companionship of the rakes who were her husband's intimates. Philip saw nothing until an especially scandalous flirtation with a young nobleman led him to obtain the dismissal of the latter from the court. But Philip never thought of divorce, for that would have meant the relinquishing of his wife's large fortune.

Then something decisive happened. At a court ball Louise met Lieutenant Geza von Mattachich-Keglevich, and in a short time the two were deeply in love with each other. Determined to force the issue of a divorce, Louise went one night to Mattachich's apartments and then sent word of the fact to her husband. Philip hastened to her apartment and she defied him. He struck her and left. The Emperor of Austria was informed of the incident. He sent for Prince Philip and told him he must do one of two things: sue for a divorce or fight Mattachich. He chose the latter course. Mattachich wounded the prince in a duel and the princess telegraphed her congratulations.

Then Louise went to London. Mattachich joined her there. She intended to apply to Queen Victoria for money, but the queen had gone to Nice. In the meantime forged notes bearing the name of Princess Stephanie, sister of Louise and Crown Princess of Austria, were discovered and Mattachich was accused of the forgery. He and Louise went to Lobos, in Croatia. Efforts were made to separate them, but without avail. Then Mattachich was arrested, and Louise was dragged off to a lunatic asylum, a commission of court-paid doctors declaring her insane. Mattachich was tried by military court-martial and sentenced to six years in prison and the loss of all his titles and rank. He finally was pardoned, through the influence of his cousin, Koloman von Mattachich.

For six years Louise was kept confined in the asylum in Coswig, near Dresden, actually a prisoner under close guard. There was nothing to prove that she was really mad, but her husband, Philip, circulated reports as to her mental unsoundness, and his story was believed by all the world.

As soon as Count Mattachich was freed from his military prison, he worked ceaselessly for the escape of Princess Louise from her living death in the asylum. After innumerable discouragements and defeated attempts to release her, he finally enlisted the aid of a few trusted friends, and on an August night the rescue was successfully carried out. A number of automobiles were used to mislead the asylum attendants. While one of these motors was speeding with the happy couple in one direction, a half dozen others of precisely the same description were severally going in another direction, each of them having likewise two muffled passengers inside. By this stratagem the police, who were soon in hot pursuit, were foiled in their researches for several days, and meanwhile the eloping couple were in safety.

Lack of funds finally resulted in the ultimate separation of the lovers, and Louise, since then, always in debt, was forced to accept the annuity granted her by the Grand Duchess of Schleswig-Holstein, and which today, through its inadequacy, is responsible for her suit against the heirs of her detested husband, Philip of Cobourg.

How a Polish nobleman accidentally discovered that he possessed one of the Flemish painter Vandyck's portraits of Queen Henrietta Maria, the wife of Charles I. of England, was described during the hearing of an application in the Geneva courts for an injunction restraining his father's creditors from selling the picture.

It is said to be the portrait formerly in the Hermitage Museum at Petrograd. It came into the hands of Count Karnicki, who deposited it in the vault of a Geneva bank. After his death creditors claimed the picture, and it was sequestrated, but Count Karnicki's son, who lives in Poland, lodged a claim for it and which the Swiss courts have now upheld. The value of the canvas is variously estimated at from £10,000 to £20,000.

Catherine II. of Russia bought the portrait of Queen Henrietta Maria as part of the collection of Sir Robert Walpole. It represents her standing beside a table, and in the Hermitage was a companion picture to that of Charles I., also by Vandyck.

"The Ten Books I Have Most Enjoyed"

By BURTON E. STEVENSON.

Author and Editor; compiler of "The Home Book of Verse."

Poetry aside (which includes Shakespeare) I have enjoyed and profited deeply from the following: "Mount St. Michel and Chartres" (Henry Adams); "Rise of the Dutch Republic" (Motley); Dumas' d'Artagnan romances (with the Valois romances a close second); "Outline of History" (Wells); "Don Quixote" (Cervantes); "Anna Karenina" (Tolstoi); — (Yes, and "War and Peace"); "Les miserables" (Huga); "French Revolution" (Carlyle); "La Debacle" (Zola); Sienkiewicz's trilogy, beginning with "With Fire and Sword."

But when I look over this list, I realize how inadequate it is, for I have left out Balzac and Hardy and Meredith and Anatole France, to say nothing of Ibsen and Turgeniev and Dostoievsky and Shaw and—but why go on?

It is quite impossible for me to name the "Ten books which have meant the most to me," because my keenest enjoyment is in poetry, and the poems that I love are scattered through many books, a great part of whose contents does not interest me at all. I have tried to get these poems in an anthology of my own, and if I named any single book of poetry, I should be compelled to name it, which would be most unbecoming; but even this is being constantly outgrown and needs repeated revising. For I am constantly digging for gold among the new volumes of verse as well as in newspapers and magazines—a most exciting occupation—it is surprising how many nuggets may be discovered there—though most of them, of course, are very tiny.

Dandelions

By ANNE CAMPBELL.

The dandelions thickly grow
Upon the lawns, as children know,
For eagerly their hands enfold

How brief their sojourn on the grass!
Their happy brightness soon will pass.
It seems sometimes just over night
The dandelion blooms turn white.

But ere their powdered heads lie low
Their days with happy moments glow;
Each fleeting life is so worth while
If it can make a youngster smile!

What Raney Says:

"Jailbirds and Convicts."

"Above all things the enforcement of the O. T. A. should be upon a moral basis. But instead of enforcing the act in that manner Mr. Raney has gone into the gutters of immorality to select jailbirds and ex-convicts in the hope that they are the types of citizens who can help to build up the community.

"Hon. Mr. Raney says that such things are necessary; but my opinion is that his judgment is bad, and that his mind must be warped. Would it be the rule to get the scum from the very pools of moral corruption to enforce any law? Should it be the rule to convict a man at any cost? Or should the spirit of the law be to help the man if possible? The spirit of the attorney-general appears to be to treat as a convict every man who gets drunk; and if the main objective of the law is to get a conviction, then the respect for the law must be destroyed."

And the following is an extract from the Toronto Globe report of your speech at Niagara Falls on Monday, June 4th:

"Is not Ontario getting pretty weary of all this veiled hypocrisy? Race track gambling and liquor are denounced by this little Napoleon who persecutes everybody, as the curse of humanity, and yet he is in partnership in the whole game and looking strictly after his share of the profits all the time. Hypocrisy? There never was the like of it in the world before."

"Cesspools of Vice."

Finally, according to the Toronto Star, at Chesley on Friday, 8th inst., you said:

"I will not go to the cesspools of vice to recruit my police force."

And on Saturday last the same paper reports your Walkerton address. I extract as follows:

"His biggest flings as usual were reserved for 'that narrow-minded, venomous chap, Raney,' who had, he said, restored a method of law enforcement which rendered it a sort of medieval institution, 'he comes believing in the water cure.'"

As you are aware from having heard the evidence before the public accounts committee on the Lennox charges last year when you were assisting Mr. Lennox to make out his case, my instructions and the regulations of the department in such matters as drinking by officers or the employment of women in the enforcement of the law are very strict. You will, I am sure, recall the memoranda of instructions issued by me to Mr. Flavelle and to the commissioner of police that were read to the committee, and you heard the evidence of Mr. Flavelle and Mr. Ayearst and other senior officers of the department who were appointed before the present government came into office, that nothing of the kind now alleged by you had ever happened within their experience.

The Charges Made.

I am bound, therefore, to assume that the charges:

1. Of "paying a fifteen-year-old boy to get drunk" in order to get a conviction.

2. Payment of public money "to street-walking, abandoned women to be used to induce men to break the law;"

3. Permitting officers of the department "to get drunk in the course of their duty" and paying them "for getting drunk"

are founded, if they have any foundation at all, on things that have happened since the report of the public accounts committee on the Lennox charges. But whether I am right or not in this assumption, I think I am entitled to ask that you will at once give me the particulars of these charges.

Who was the fifteen-year-old boy who was made drunk by our officers and by what officers and when and where?

Who were the women who were employed for the purpose you mention and by whom were they employed and when and where?

Who were the officers who got "rip-roaring drunk" or who got simply drunk without rip-roaring, and when and where?

You also allege that I say "that such things are necessary. Please tell me when and where and to whom I made any such statement.

Against General Williams.

And, most sweeping of all, you tell the public that General Williams is recruiting his police force from the "cesspools of vice," and that he is getting "the scum from the very pools of moral corruption to enforce the law." Please tell me what grounds you have for these statements, because I find regulation No. 39 of the Ontario Police reads as follows:

"Officers must not tempt any person to break the law, and must be truthful, honest and sober. Intoxication while on or off duty will be sufficient ground for dismissal."

and General Williams informs me that almost 90 per cent of his men saw service overseas and my reports from him and from every other source are to the effect that the present Ontario Police Force is composed of as fine a body of men for the enforcement of law as can be found anywhere in the world.

I request now that you will just as soon as possible communicate to the public the particulars in the matters of these charges so that I may have an opportunity of investigating and answering them, because you will appreciate that I cannot answer charges which contain no names or dates or places.

A Challenge.

I notice that you are booked for a meeting at Fergus on the afternoon of Thursday, the 21st inst. I am not willing, of course, to wait until then for the particulars I am now asking, but I suggest that you be prepared at that meeting to restate your charges with particulars and that I be given at that time an opportunity of answering you. I have an appointment in another part of my riding for that afternoon, but if you will agree to my suggestion I will cancel it.

You will, of course, realize the very serious effect upon public respect for the administration of justice that would result if the people believed that officers of the law were themselves recruited as you allege from the lowest class of law breakers and were then encouraged by their chiefs to be law breakers themselves.

You will therefore, I trust, lose no time in putting this matter in a position where the people will be able without any difficulty to come to a conclusion either that your charges are true or that they are without any foundation.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) W. E. RANEY.

The subject of the debate was, "Resolved, That Compulsory Military Training Should Be Adopted in All Secondary Schools in Ontario," and the affirmative side, taken by Knox Church, South London, won, with Messrs John Argo and Preston Minnice as representatives. The opponents were Miss Helen Patterson and J. Gorwill, representing New St. James' Church. Dr. Dearle and Rev. (Col.) Beattie and Professor Kingston acted as judges. Firm lips

Closed even when she smiles. All because a cloudy film dims the luster of her teeth.

An open smile

What Women Lose By Dingy Teeth—Why Do It?

Dingy teeth rob women of a major charm. Not beauty only, but that added grace which lies in the open smile.

Millions of women have found a way to whiter teeth, also to better protection. You meet them everywhere today—with teeth you envy, maybe.

Will you not learn how they get them—by this delightful test?

Due to film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is what clouds them. And it often wrecks them. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to that unsightly film.

Ways to end it

Tooth troubles were increasing until very few escaped. So dental science sought for ways to fight that film. In time two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved those methods. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two great film combatants were embodied in it.

The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent. Careful people of some 50 nations now employ it daily, largely by dental advice.

What must be done

Research also proved two other things essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Old-time tooth pastes, it was found, seriously diminished those great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

Watch it act

Use Pepsodent for ten days. See for yourself what it does. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then decide by what you see and feel. Judge what is best for you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

HYMAN COMPANY PAYS INCREASED TAXATION

City Treasurer Announces There Are Twenty Firms Still in Arrears.

At least one of the industries in the annexed districts of East London has evidently decided not to combat the increased school tax, levied by the 1923 city council.

City Treasurer James Bell announced this afternoon that the C. S. Hyman Company has paid their entire tax without further question.

There are more than twenty other firms affected by the increased tax, who have failed to do this, the city treasurer explained. He is preparing a final detailed statement for the consideration of Mayor Wenige and members of the finance committee Wednesday night.

His Worship states that the city will not lose this increased assessment without a fight, and that a test case will be staged in the courts in order to ascertain definitely whether the city council is right.

There is some question among the city authorities as to the most satisfactory manner in which to proceed. One proposal is to select one of the factories at random for a test case, while there are those who believe that a blanket case would be more effective, incorporating all the industries involved.

WILL CONSIDER APPEAL OF STREET RY. COMPANY

Two sittings of the court of revision will be held this week, Wednesday and Friday. An appeal from the London Street Railway Company will likely be heard on the latter day, and if dissatisfied with the verdict the company has still recourse to the county judge. This would mean another survey of the lines by independent engineers, and the company would have to abide by the decision.

Tecs War Bonnets Awry But Have Plenty of Fight

Open Engagement At Home Reserve Today With Kazoo, and It May Be Turning Point in Bumpy Journey.

The wandering tribesmen led by Lee Mackey arrived back on the home reserve with their war feathers in some disarray, but with plenty of fighting spirit still left and ready to start a new chapter with Kalamazoo today as the material to work on.

The latter part of the week they'll have a chance to get some revenge, as Bill Powell's greedy Flint club will be here.

The shake-up in the Tecs hasn't altogether materialized yet, as most of the new players garnered in have not reported, and will not be here until the end of the week at least. Then they'll have to show more than many of the others who have been tried this year and found lamentably lacking.

The Tecs are still an enigma to those fans who try fairly to seek out the reason of their long stay in the cellar. There are obvious changes which could be made and which would strengthen the team up, but there are always a few weak spots in any baseball machine. The Hams are in the same boat. With practically the same team that won a pennant last year and trimmed the winners of the Central League, they are crowding the stuffy quarters occupied by the local Braves. "Hump" Pierce's scalp is being loudly called for by Hamilton fans—it must be a quartet, judging by attendance figures down under the mountain—but "Hump" got fairly good results with the burlesque teams, and he can't have slipped so far in so short a time. Pitching, of course, is the obvious trouble with the Piercemen, as it has been partly with the Tecs, but even when the Ham hurlers have a good day the Hams fail by close margins to slug their accustomed way to wins.

The way the Tec pitchers started, they looked plenty good enough for any minor league, but they haven't delivered according to the dope. Apparently, if the cases of Luque, Ehmke and other big league stars, of which there seems to be more than the usual season's array, are to be taken as a guide, no manager is much to blame when a pitching department goes shot all on its own without any apparent cause.

The infield started patched up. It is still just that, despite the efforts of the directors all season to plug up the holes.

On the offensive the team has gone a little closer to specifications, but here again, while keeping its batting averages fairly well up and often piling up enough hits to win ordinary games, the punch wasn't there, and, if it was, that's where the faulty defensive stepped in and more than offset it.

The London team has been "wrecked" many times conversationally, but the critics have never undertaken the job of rebuilding. So many losses make the season seem older than it really is. With a little luck in the dragnet the directors threw out, by the end of June the Londoners should be making good time on a climb to the upper regions. Their stay at home should see them make a start the other way, and it should be an interesting event for the fans to watch develop.

TECS LOSE THIRD TO FLINT BY 4-2

Special to The Advertiser.

Flint, June 11. — London fell by the wayside in the final game of the series here Monday by failing to make the best of hits. The loss, 4 to 2, was the third straight since coming to town.

The Tecumsehs smacked Shepherd for a dozen blows, but could make only four of them count. Boyle got around in the second on his double to center and Churry's single to the same spot. Thut tallied the other one in the sixth. He forced Mostade, who had hit, moved up on Boyle's out and crossed the rubber when Churry singled to right.

That was as far as the Mackey crew could go. In every inning, except the ninth, the boys hit, but they didn't have the right system of scoring. It just happened that Shepherd tightened up in the pinches, and was ably backed by his mates.

At the same time Flint took McCallum for fourteen hits, including a double, triple and homer, yet only four men scored. Jahn hit for the circuit to untie the existing knot in the sixth. It was a drive to the Club House. Warwick made it good in the eighth by tripling to the same spot, and scoring on Runser's single to left.

Three of London's batters collected two hits each, while Churry led the attack with three. Stricker had a big afternoon against southpaw pitching, getting three hits. But the bottom section of the batting order turned the trick. Joe Cote, former South Michigan leaguer, has replaced Jack Brauer as umpire. He worked Monday and went well. He had a run in with London in the eighth, when Manager O'Leary checked Warwick at third on his triple, but won out.

Grand International Opens At St. Thomas Traps Today

Entry Not Quite So Large, But Big Shoot in 41st Year Is Still Classic of Continent—Shooters Will Be Filmed.

St. Thomas, June 11.—"Scatter gun" artists from all parts of the United States and Canada began to arrive in the city for the 41st annual grand international handicap trap shoot that will get off to a good start here Tuesday morning promptly at 9 a.m. Although the attendance is not expected to be as large as in former years, the event promises to be made up in enthusiasm and interest what it may lack in numbers.

The shooting grounds at Pinafore Park have been elaborately outfitted for the occasion. Shooters will not be required to leave the grounds as an army of waiters and other helpers have been secured to cater to the needs of the visitors. Large tents have been erected in the event of rain, but the shoot will be staged rain or shine. The trap shoot at St. Thomas is considered one of the big events of the year on the North American continent.

Manager W. J. McCance of the local gun club has spared no pains to make the shoot one of the best yet. Under his direction the club has made arrangements to accommodate a great number of spectators. Seats have been placed in a semi-circle and the school children have been especially invited to be present. The club during the past two years has endeavored more than ever to create interest in clay-bird shooting among the younger element and the event this year for those in their teens should be one of the features of the two-day shoot.

The first event on the program will be the 16-yard event at 100 targets, and in the evening a similar event will be staged. Awards of silver tea service sets will be competed for in these events with a trophy for high gun. Wednesday morning another 16-yard event will be staged, and in the evening the grand international handicap will be pulled off. There will be nearly $300 worth of cash prizes for Wednesday competition as well as several trophies.

A special prize will be given the ladies' high gun, and the boy under 19 years making the best score of the day. One of the outstanding features of the shoot will be the filming of the shoot as in action by the Pathe Film Corporation of Toronto. The screening of the shoot will take place Wednesday afternoon. The company also plan to film the Galt-St. Thomas baseball game that will be shown in all parts of Canada and the United States, and will be a great advertisement to the Flower City.

SPORT SNAPSHOTS

"Wid" Matthews, who has ousted Tilly Walker from his outfield post with the Athletics, gave up school teaching for baseball. Matthews was with Milwaukee in the American Association last year.

Matthews looks more like a college student than a big leaguer. He bats left-handed, is fast and mixes them up at the plate. He can drag, bunt or take a healthy swing, as the occasion demands.

* * * *

Moses Yellow Horse, once with the Pirates, but now on the Pacific Coast, is one of the few pitchers who will run out their hits. Most pitching men spare themselves on the bases. They wear big sweaters, baby themselves generally and feel aggrieved if managers do not treat them as privileged characters. Yellow Horse knows that there are only nine players on the team and that he is one of the nine. Therefore teamwork is uppermost in his mind. He dashes around the bases like a human catapult, as if he likes to do it.

WILDE'S FINGER EXERCISES AMAZE

Plays "Air" Piano After Each of Stunts.

IS IMPRESSIVE

"Fighting Atom's" Chances Considered Much Brighter.

By WILBUR WOOD.

New York, June 11.—"Wot's de idee of playin' de piano dat way?" growled a rough-looking citizen who had edged his way into the People's Palace at Jersey City to watch Jimmy Wilde, world's champion flyweight, go through his training stunts. "Dese furriners and dere fancy doin's gives me a pain," went on the rough-looking citizens. Nobody ventured to dispute the statement and he subsided without further complaints.

Privately, however, others who were observing the curious behavior of the little Welsh boxer as he lay on the mat going through some bending and breathing stunts, were just as much mystified as the rough-looking citizen by what he termed Wilde's "piano playing."

The champion, in a sitting position, would reach forward to his toes with his hands and then drop back flat on the mat, bringing his arms back so that he stretched at full length. Then he would inhale deeply and noisily through his nose and exhale with a sharp blast that sounded a great deal like steam escaping from the boiler of a locomotive. As he exhaled he would describe a semi-circle with his arms, bringing them to his sides. Then would come the "piano playing." Jimmy would drill away lightly with the fingers of both hands after the fashion of someone learning to play the piano. After a few seconds of this he would start on his exercises again.

When the opportunity presented itself we sidled up to David Hughes, the affable gentleman who is Wilde's partner in several business enterprises, and who made the trip with the champion to handle the business end of the invasion, and made discreet inquires as to the meaning of this "piano playing."

Helps Relax Muscles.

"Why," replied Mr. Hughes, "that is just Jimmy's way of relaxing all his muscles. He is a great one for relaxing, taking the strain off his muscles. I myself don't know where he picked up the idea—whether he evolved this system himself or was told of it. But he finds it very useful."

All this time Wilde was going through his stunts, always drumming away on the mat with his finger tips at the conclusion of a round of movements. And certainly it was enough to make one smile to see this sturdy battler drum away so seriously.

"When Jimmy is in the ring," Hughes continued, "it is his custom to let his muscles relax completely the moment the bell rings for the end of the round. He will slouch back to his corner like an old man, dragging his legs and with his arms hanging loosely and his shoulders sagging. His idea is to conserve himself as much as possible. No need to stay keyed up between rounds. He believes in relaxing to get the full benefit of the minute's rest.

"When Jimmy first came to America and stepped into the ring to box he went along at a fast clip during the first round and then, when the bell rang, relaxed and slouched back to his corner. He was not the least bit fatigued. When the fans saw him dragging himself back to his corner they got the idea he was just about exhausted and so did his opponent. But what a surprise they got when Jimmy stepped up for the second round, fresh as a daisy! Then Jimmy slouched back to his corner again and the fans once more began to call for a knockout. That trick of relaxing completely fooled the crowd.

"After that bout Jimmy learned that in this country a boxer is expected to skip back to his corner lightly and spring just to show how good he feels. And so now, when boxing over here, Jimmy does as the American boys do. He skips back to his stool with as much alacrity as any of them and waits until he is in his corner before he relaxes."

Wilde is a most remarkable character. All boxers do certain things in certain ways of their own. Wilde is no exception. But not one boxer in a hundred can tell you his reasons for doing those things in his own particular way. Not so the little Welshman. He has a sound reason back of every move he makes and can explain it satisfactorily. Most decidedly the champion uses his head for something else than a hatrack.

Wilde in Great Shape.

Not a few followers of fisticuffing profess to believe that when Wilde emerges from his contest with Pancho Villa at the Polo Grounds on the night of June 18 the flyweight crown will be missing from the head of Wilde and reposing instead on the top piece of the little Filipino boy. Maybe so, but we advise a visit to Wilde's camp before jumping to any such conclusion.

The champion seems to be in great shape, despite the fact that he has not had a real bout since that much discussed knockout at the hands of Pete Herman in the seventeenth round at London on January 12, 1921. Wilde is a light and careful eater at all times, and, he says, never has weighed more than 116 pounds. He scaled at about 119 yesterday and expects to be at that figure when he weighs in.

He is in good shape right now. If he were not he could not step as he does in his daily sparring bouts. Wilde is a serious little person, even in his sparring. He asks no mercy and gives none. That is the reason Hughes had to call in Frankie Burns to keep the champion supplied with cannon fodder. The sparring partners never come back. One day of boxing with this baby is enough for any of them, and we can't blame them, for Jimmy certainly can sock—and does. He doesn't object the least bit if he gets a jarring wallop himself. Watching him spar in the gymnasium is better fun than going to most boxing shows. You can see him in a real fight any day he puts on the gloves.

And, unless we miss our guess, it will be some battle when Wilde and Villa clash—one to be remembered. Both boys can sock and both can take it. You know what that means.

By George O'Neil.

"Golf's Greatest Teacher," Says Harry Vardon. "O'Neil Made Me Champion," Says "Chick" Evans.

Since the long, straight drive results from rhythm in the stroke more than from any other single factor, it is well for the player to employ the "forward press," which is a helpful little knack of ushering in the stroke. The forward press is in itself a rhythmic motion that invites further rhythm. It consists of pressing the hands forward a trifle, while the clubhead rests on the ground back of the ball, then starting the upward stroke from the former point. Some players believe this motion introduces a wrist-snap into the stroke at the moment the clubhead strikes the ball. I do not take much stock in the wrist action in the wood club shot, but the movement does help the player into rhythm. The forward press introduces into the golf stroke the same arm and wrist motion you would make in throwing a baseball. Take a ball in your hand, and go through the motions of throwing it. You will observe that your first movement is a forward pressing of your right hand. You then draw hand, wrist and arm backward, and after the ball flies from your hand, your hand will go forward again, exactly as it did in the original forward press. Throwing the head of a golf club is not greatly different, in a muscular sense, from throwing a baseball.

WOODSTOCK AGOG OVER FEUD BETWEEN NAGS

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, June 11.—A large number of horses arrived at the local track tonight from Simcoe for the Wednesday afternoon racing. Many of the horses are filling their last engagement in Ontario before crossing over to the States to go down the short-ship circuit. Already seven or eight entries have been received for the free for all, the 2:17 trot or pace and the 2:30 pace.

Alby Robinson has the track in fine shape and it is expected that Pal Pointer will just about crack the track record in the free for all, although the followers of Billy Bishop and Jean Bingen are confident that the American horse will not be first to catch the Judge's eye on Wednesday.

EUREKAS WIN.

The Eurekas had little difficulty in solving Web Thompson's slants tonight in a city league fixture and gave the Ramblers, the league leaders, their first defeat of the season. On the other hand Leo Flynn held the heavy hitting Ramblers to five safeties. The score was 9-4. Don featured the fielding while Pitcher Flynn was handy with the bat, hitting out three safeties in four trips to the plate. The summary: R.H.E.

A QUERY.

Sporting Editor, Advertiser:

To settle an argument, will you kindly answer the following question?

Two men are out, with runners on second and third. The runner on second is caught in a box between second and third, and is finally put out. In the meantime the runner on third has crossed the plate. The answer we would like to know is whether runner scores or not. Yours truly,

J. E. STONEHOUSE.

Ans.—Runner scores.

Even sentiment for Gibbons is already switching. Resentment at his even attempting the feat of knocking Jack Dempsey out from in under his crown has changed to the age-old desire to see the champion topple. Gibbons as a type should also find a large following as far as sentiment goes, but still probably sympathy when it's expressed in bets.

Deacon Scott and Casey Stengel, considered as feeble old gentlemen and all through by many ball clubs, rejuvenated under the Giant atmosphere. Maybe Hank Gowdy, veteran catcher and first major league ball player to get to France, where he had a lonesome time as far as meeting other ball players was concerned, will experience the same rejuvenation. He has been traded for "Oil" Smith, who gushed over the training rules too often to suit McGraw, and finally gushered himself right into the hands of the Braves.

Tonight—St. Peters vs. St. Marys.

St. Michaels trimmed the Marconis last night at Sunshine Park, 10 to 4, and incidentally crept closer to the middle rung of the Senior C. A. A. A. ladder.

St. Mikes' batters found the offerings of three Marconi hurlers much to their liking, running up a total of nine hits, and in the seventh, in addition to the safeties garnered off M. Sansone and W. Miles, took advantage of errors for seven runs.

Brennan pitched airtight ball up to the last frame, when he began to weaken. Marconis collecting three runs with none gone from his serves. Richard, who relieved him, retired the side in order without further damage.

IT'S DEFEATED CHAMPS GET BOUTS THESE DAYS

By FAIR PLAY.
Copyright.

New York, June 11.—Some funny matchmaking has been in progress of late. And some funny near matchmaking. Harry Wills has been shunted into the background now that Jack Kearns made the proper use of his name. By this, it is meant that Firpo affixed his name to the dotted line of the contract for a Willard meeting which Rickard held under the Argentino's nose. It looks as though Harry would have to do some more waiting unless he wishes to fight Jack Johnson.

But to proceed with the line of thought as to matchmaking, we find the champion flyweight of the world preparing to meet the ex-title holder. What about the present flyweight king, Frankie Genaro? Echoes answer, what? Then the winner of the featherweight championship of the world, Gene Criqui, will meet the defeated junior lightweight champion of the world, Dundee, for the featherweight title next month. If this means anything, it means that matchmakers are no longer regarding titles lost on the basis of decisions as having any great significance.

Luis Firpo looked surprised when Italian Jack Herman dropped in the second round of their proposed fifteen-round bout in Cuba on Sunday. This suggests that Luis had agreed to carry Jack, say until the eighth or tenth round in order to make a fight of it, but that Jack decided to earn his money easier than that.

If Firpo persists in his intention of going on to Cuba for another battle before returning to this country to prepare for Willard, he will be making a mistake. Time will be getting short then and Firpo's well-wishers think he ought to begin to make tracks for these parts. Willard is already here and has set about plans for the hardest sort of training for the bout which will determine who Dempsey's next opponent will be, assuming, of course, Jack beats Gibbons.

But nobody can tell Firpo anything. He has developed the idea that all he has to do to beat Willard is to get into the ring with him. Happen he should run into a right uppercut such as sunk Floyd Johnson, and the big Spiggoty would not know for the time being whether that great South American liberator Bolivar was a general or a doughnut.

Jess, by the way, is reported to be looking fine. He says he has been taking care of himself, that is to say exercising a little every day. And he looks as though he had.

ASSEMBLY VOTE UNITES 3 GREAT CHURCHES

THREE CHURCHES UNITED BY PRESBYTERIAN STAND AT GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Long and Determined Struggle Comes to a Close at Port Arthur Gathering—Methodists and Congregationalists Already Prepared To Enter Into Union—Several Years Believed Necessary To Get Bills Through Parliament.

CONTINUE ROUTINE BUSINESS OF SESSION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 12.—The action of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which yesterday voted 426 to 129 in favor of church union, will unite the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches into the United Church of Canada after twenty years of negotiation on the matter. Numerically the Methodist and Presbyterian denominations are two of the three strong Protestant churches of the Dominion, the other being the Anglican or Episcopal Church. The Congregational is also a fairly large and active denomination.

The proposal for union was accepted without any serious opposition by the Methodists and Congregationalists, but a long and determined struggle has marked its progress with the Presbyterians. Twice the issue has been sent down by the General Assembly to the people. In 1911, the vote stood approximately 113,000 for union and 50,000 against. In 1915, the vote for was also about 113,000, while the vote against was 74,000. The assembly the following year decided, on account of the division over the question to postpone action until after the war. In 1921 the assembly took the question up again, once more going on record as in favor of the union, although with an active opposition present.

Vote for Action.

A joint committee of the uniting churches was authorized to have lawyers prepare drafts of the bills to be presented to parliament, giving statutory effect to the union. With these drafts before it, the General Assembly voted yesterday to go ahead with the union without delay.

While the completion of actual organic union will take several years, it is believed, owing to the necessity of getting bills through parliament and the great amount of detail in the fusion of the various departments in the work of the denominations, in a lesser way, the effect will be immediate. A number of congregations will unite with Methodist or Congregational congregations almost immediately. In fact, many individual unions of churches in scattered districts have already been effected.

It is not expected that many churches in the cities will pass out as the result of organic union of the three denominations.

Aids Rural Districts.

One of the great arguments in favor of the union was that in rural districts, particularly sparsely settled ones, struggling congregations of Methodists and Presbyterians side by side would be much stronger and more effective in Christian work if united.

In dogma and ritual the three denominations are so nearly alike in this country that the men behind the union proposals had no serious difficulty in reaching a settlement satisfactory to the majority of the people in the uniting churches. However, in the church organization it was less easy. A compromise was reached which perpetuates the names held dear by each denomination and yet produces uniformity. The name, for example, of the presbytery will be retained as indicating the group of congregations in one locality, while the larger organization, more or less province-wide, will retain the name of conference as now used by the Methodists.

Greatest Difference.

The greatest difference was in regard to the placing of ministers. In the Presbyterian and Congregational churches the call system is in vogue; whereas, in the Methodist Church the stationing committee fixes the pastorates, and they are changed every four years. A compromise has been reached on this point by permitting ministers to be called, but providing a stationing committee to oversee so that there be no charges without preachers while there are preachers available.

The churches unite their property holdings. The supreme court of the new church will be called the council, and thhe present assembly will consider the manner in which the Presbyterian representation on this council will be named.

A number of congregations of the Presbyterian Church will not go into the union. Opponents of the fusion made this clear in a statement handed out last night. Accordingly, provision for any congregation to vote itself out of the parent church and the new united church is provided for. There will also be an understanding in regard to property holdings.

It is expected that these congregations will retain the name "Presbyterians."

REPORT FAIR PROGRESS.

Port Arthur, June 12.—The clerks of the Presbyterian General Assembly stated at the close of the morning sederunt today that although the ordinary business of the body had apparently been thrown somewhat out of gear by the prolonged debate on church union, fair progress had been made.

The actual work and business of the body is largely done in committees on whose reports the assembly acts. These committees have been sitting steadily in spite of the engrossing debate on church union and now have all the details well in hand. The items can therefore be put through rapidly and it is claimed that there is no reason why the reports of the various departments should not be passed on in time to allow adjournment to take place about the usual time.

Committee In Session.

A small committee which was named last night to take under consideration items in connection with the legislative enactments regarding union, was in session during the forenoon and considered the manner in which the 150 commissioners to the first council of the United Church will be named and will report at some point during the day. They will continue in session, however, probably to the close of the assembly.

The first departures of commissioners from Port Arthur will be made at midday on Wednesday. Payment of expense money begins at that time, and certain commissioners who must for various reasons be allowed to go will obtain special permission to do so. The attendance at the morning session was not as great as was the case through the continuance of the union debate and from now on will gradually dwindle.

Fraser Presides.

The Presbyterian Church Association, composed of commissioners who are opposed to church union, held a meeting this morning and one last night. About one hundred commissioners were present. Rev. Dr. D. J. Fraser, principal of Montreal Theological College, presided at the gatherings. It was announced that no injunction would be asked for from the courts to check at once any movement towards organic union. Committees will be named in each of the nine provinces to formulate a policy for the future, and the work of finding supporters and friends for the policy of a continuance of a Presbyterian Church in Canada will be vigorously carried on. The meetings, to which the press has not been admitted, are said to have been of an enthusiastic character and marked by a determintion to secure the largest possible following.

Ordination of Women.

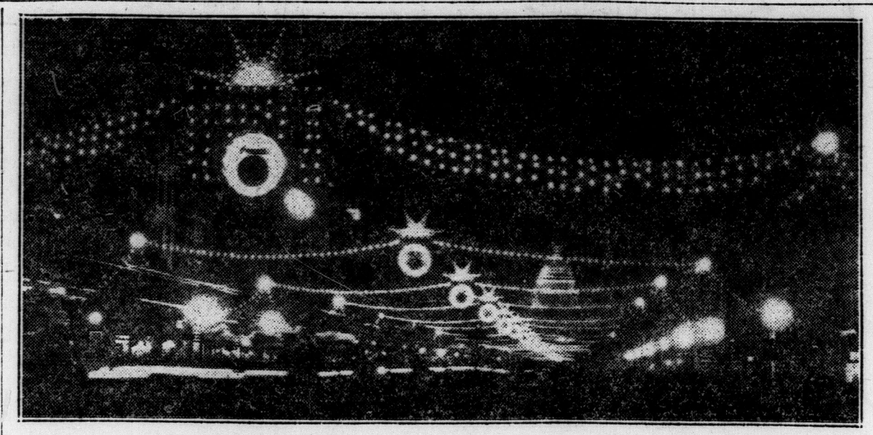

The assembly committee on bills and overtures, reports favorably on the question of the ordination of women. This is an issue as highly contentious as church union, and under ordinary circumstances would be as warmly debated. The matter is raised through an overture from the Presbytery of Saskatoon. That Presbytery is desirous to facilitate the work of women engaged in religious teaching and social work among the new Canadians, especially those of Ukrainian birth, and believe that if ordination was possible greater success would be obtained.

This committee on bills and overtures also reports favorably on a report coming from the Presbytery of Swift Current to improve the standing in the church of those ministers who for various reasons have retired from active work. This is a difficulty, especially in the Presbyteries of Toronto and Montreal, where there are a considerable number of retired ministers. In Toronto, if they all had complete status, they might in the Presbytery constitute an element which would out-vote the ministers in active pastorates. In any case they might be a deciding factor. The committee on bills and overtures recommends to the assembly that the status of these ministers be improved.

High Cost of Living.

The present high cost of living is said to be one of the factors leading to the decision of the church in favor of church union, although this matter was not mentioned in the debates. The minimum of salary in the church is now $1,800, and there are a good many churches in the east as well as the west, which find it impossible, however willing they may be, to secure this amount. Rev. Dr. R. W. Ross, of Halifax, who was formerly opposed to church union states that this circumstance had compelled him to alter his attitude. A number of congregations in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, he stated, are in this position. They desire to remain Presbyterian, but their means are limited and there is no prospect of the arrival of new Presbyterian families.

Methodist churches are in the same plight, and there is no solution except in union.

HOW WASHINGTON WELCOMED THE SHRINERS

Washington, advertised as the most beautiful city on the continent, was ablaze with light last week, flashing an electrical welcome to the thousands of members of the Mystic Shrine who assembled to attend the meeting of the Imperial Council. This picture, brought back by one of the nobles of Mocha Temple, shows a section of Pennsylvania avenue, "the road to Mecca," at right. As this scene was practically duplicated on all the principal thoroughfares of the city, some slight idea of the general magnificence of the electrical display can be gained.

SAYS ECONOMICAL HIGHWAY UPKEEP SHOULD BE FOUND

Hon. J. L. Perron Speaks at Good Roads Convention at Hamilton.

BETTER PAVEMENTS

J. A. Duchastel States Present Types Have Not Kept Pace With Motor.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, June 12.—Members of cabinets of practically all the provinces of Canada attended today's sessions of the Canadian Good Roads Association. Hon. J. L. Perron, the president, was in the chair. He said the organization had now achieved its original purpose in the construction of good roads all over the Dominion. The problem now was that of proper economical maintenance The motorist did not pay in fines and licenses for one-fiftieth of the roads they wore out.

Among those registering today were: F. S. Keith, Montreal; L. H. Neilsen, Lansing, Mich.; Ralph Benedict, Springfield, Ill.; C. D. Campbell, Belleville; C. W. Dill., Toronto; George P. Soutar, Montreal; C. England, Toronto; N. D'Winn,, Toronto; George Kellam, Nashville, Ont.; B. E. Smith, Toronto; E. A. Jarvis, Toronto.

J. A. Duchastel, de Montrouge, Outremont, gave a paper on "Test Road Experiments." He said highways had not kept pace with the evolution of the motor. Higher types of pavements in many parts of Canada were almost impossible as yet because a majority of the districts were altogether agricultural. Solid rubber tires did the most impact damage to highways and pneumatic tires the least, however great the speed.

London Shriners Pleased With Trip To Washington

The rear guard of a party of 123 local Shriners who attended the great international convention in Washington last week arrived back to London this morning.

Still dazed by the magnificence of the spectacle which greeted them upon their arrival in the American capital, the London devotees of Allah could hardly express their delight with the colorful and inspiring gathering from which they had just returned.

Some of the impressions they brought home with them, however, are interesting. A new conception of the ability of President Harding was gleaned. William Abbott, recorder of Mocha Temple, said all Canadians were immenseiy impressed with the president's speech and general demeanor at the conference. The spectacular parade, said to surpass all others in costuming, was viewed by 200,000 people, and taken part in by 25,000 Shriners.

Dressed in the brilliant costumes of the east, Canadian pilgrims of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, evoked continuous applause as they swung along Pennsylvania avenue, called the "Road to Mecca." The "Garden of Allah," with its lotus and papyrus columns, its swaying palms and flowers in profussion, presented a scene of unparalleled beauty, according to London Shriners who returned today. Altogether, it was a tableaux of magnificence that will remain a gorgeous memory to everyone participating.

An unexpected feature of the convention in which more than 300,000 Shriners took part, was the aridity of the American capital. Newspapers had published sensational stories of the thousands of gallons of liquor being moved to Washington for Shriner consumption. Recorder Abbott declared today the orderly conduct of the Shriners testified to the falseness of reports of huge liquor traffic. He and others paid a tribute to the Volstead act as being extraordinarily effective in eliminating any possibility of disorder.

"There were 300,000 Shriners there an entire week," Mr. Abbott said, and not a single arrest was made."

Before leaving Canada, the Mocha Temple representatives joined the Rameses Temple of Toronto. According to Washington newspapers, a great hit was made by the pilgrims from Mocha and Rameses, as they swung along the "Road to Mecca," some in kilts, their band playing Scottish and English airs. They received much applause, and many in the stands arose in token of welcome to the visitors.

Next year's convention will be held at Kansas City. Local fez-capped nobles believed it would be an impossibility for Kansas City to equal the splendor of the Washington carnival, but they intend, nevertheless, to invade the new Shrine convention oasis next year with as many Shriners as can be urged to come.

GETS FIVE-YEAR TERM IN STOLEN BOND CASE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 12.—Findlay McLeod was today sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Judge Coatsworth in the criminal sessions court for receiving stolen bonds, valued at approximately $100,000, knowing them to have been stolen. On being found guilty by a jury two weeks ago McLeod was informed by Judge Coatsworth that any assistance he gave the police authorities in recovering the stolen property would be considered in pronouncing judgment on him. He was, therefore, given one week to "think it over," but when he again appeared before the judge for sentence he declared that he had given the police all the information he possessed.

Judge Coatsworth, however, still further intimated his desire to show consideration to the accused, and sent him back on remand in order that he might decide whether he had any further information to disclose.

BRITISH IN PALESTINE ATTACKED BY BRIGANDS

Two Gendarmes Killed on Escort Duty With High Commissioner.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, England, June 12.—A despatch to the Times from Jerusalem says ten British gendarmes, returning after having escorted the high commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuels, to the northernmost Jewish colony, Mutallah, were ambushed by brigands. Two of the gendarmes were killed, two wounded and one was captured.

Constant anxiety prevails in official quarters concerning the safety of High Commissioner Sir Samuels, who is camping with a party of native Palestine gendarmes, who took over the duty from the British gendarmes just before the ambush occurred.

WIFE IS KILLED, HUSBAND DYING IN FAMILY FEUD

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Catharines, Ont., June 12.—One killed and another dying in the hospital is the result of a domestic tragedy at Allanburg, a village a few miles from here.

Mrs. Reginald Stewart, aged 24, was shot dead, it is charged, by her husband with a shotgun in their bedroom early this morning, and Stewart immediately put the gun to his head and shot himself. The charge did not kill him, however, and he was rushed to Welland Hospital. The Stewarts have been living with the husband's parents.

Mrs. Stewart had, it is said, been trying to get her husband to get a job, but it is said he persisted in refusing.

This morning at 5:30 the wife arose and suggested that her husband should get up and look for a job. He, it is understood, jumped from the bed, seized a shotgun and shot the woman dead as she stood. He then turned the weapon on himself.

Coroner John Herrod, Thorold, at 10 o'clock this morning opened an inquest on Mrs. Stewart's body. An adjournment will be taken pending the result of Stewart's injuries. According to police officials, Stewart had not been working for some time.

At the Welland County Hospital today it was stated by Dr. Reeves that Herschell Stewart would live. X-ray photographs were taken of his wounds, showing that the bullet entered on the right side and penetrated the adbominal wall.

Stewart is a well-developed man of great physical strength, and well equipped to withstand the shock. He has been conscious since his admittance to the hospital, but up to noon had not spoken a word.

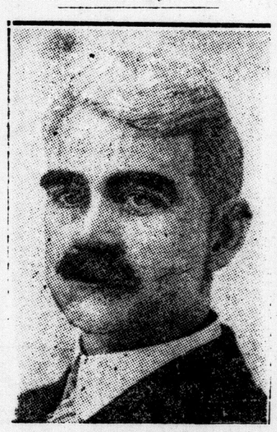

When a newspaper man entered the ward he was partially raised, his head resting on his hand, and beyond a tired look upon his face, his appearance was quite normal. County Constable J. B. Stephens is guarding the man.

LONDON-MADE MODEL TRAIN PLEASES C. N. R. PRESIDENT

A short time ago an Advertiser photographer secured a picture of an ingenious model of a locomotive and coal car, built by George Holt of London. The name "Canadian National Railways" was lettered on the side.

LONDON JUNCTION OWNER OF STILL PAYS $200 FINE

MUCH EQUIPMENT

Officials Find Apparatus Scattered All Over the House.

William C. Cline, London Junction, was fined $200 and costs by Magistrate Graydon this morning, following the capture of a full-fledged still at his home yesterday afternoon by Inland Revenue Inspector Cecil Webbe and Provincial Officer T. Y. Stratton. No defense was offered, the man pleading guilty.

The still, which was one of the most complete seized here for some time, consisted of a copper boiler, top complete, a many-coiled worm, worm tub, sack and a half of corn, half barrel of corn mash and two large empty barrels, both of which gave evidence of having been used for the making of moonshine.

According to Mr. Webbe, the still was not found in any one portion of the house, but was scattered in many rooms. The worm and tub were down the cellar, the boiler in the kitchen and the cover in another room. Upstairs the officers came to a locked door, and after having been told by Mrs. Cline that she did not have the key and therefore could not open it, Constable Stratton broke the door open with his shoulder. Inside were the barrels and the mixture of mash. Mr. Webbe then went and phoned for a truck to cart the stuff away.

While he was gone, Cline returned and was surprised at seeing the officer on his premises. Asked for his name, he told Mr. Stratton that it was Dolf and that he was merely a boarder at the house. A few minutes later he said that it was Mossop, but finally admitted that it was Cline and that he was the owner of the still. He claimed, however, that he had only brewed eight gallons of liquor, which he had used himself. He stated that he bought the materials for the still from a Jew some time ago.

Cline was then placed under arrest and taken to the jail.

Mrs. Taylor had sailed from this port on one of her regular European trips at noon Saturday. The Adriatic was stopped and a two-hour search was made for her body, but in vain.

LONDON SHOWING A RAPID RETURN OF GOOD TIMES

REPORT COMPILED

Assessment Department Official Submits Interesting and Encouraging Statement.

London is certainly getting back to normalcy with a vengeance if the number of real estate transfers and building permits can be accepted as an indication.

The 1922 real estate and property transfer record for January to May inclusive has been eclipsed, according to figures submitted today by Assessment Commissioner Harry Bennett.

Mr. Bennett explains that the increased number of real estate turnovers is ample evidence that the financial situaation locally is becoming easier as time passes. When people engage in the real estate transactions, as they have been doing since the first of the year, it is a safe sign that they are not afraid of the times, he says.

He points out that in 1921 when the Richter scheme of municipal assesment was first inaugurated and applied in certain sections of the city, the number of real estate transfers, decreased to a remarkabble degree from the previous year. Last year they started to increase a trifle but this year they are coming back with a big stride.

"It is a safe indication that the people are not alarmed any longer over the higher tax rate," he explains. "And they have become used to the increase"

January	86	106
February	99	105
March	129	139
April	176	198
May	200	245
Total	690	793

And coupled with this encouraging report is the building record to date, which is far in excess of last year, and from present indications 1923 will be a banner year for London.

As an instance, the building and alteration permits issued in June of this year reach an aggregate total of proposed expenditure which exceeds the entire month of June 1922.

Inspector Piper's report for June shows permits issued from June 1 to the value of $321,165.00, compared with $317,180 for June 1922.

Chocolate Bars and Ice Cream Treating System Makes It the Feminine Destiny To Be Fat.

It is one of the greatest of modern ironies that the national feminine ambition is to be thin, while the national feminine destiny is to be fat.

The modern woman simply can't keep thin. Her environment is all against her. Everything conspires against her figure—the street cars, the motor cars, the confectionery shops, the delicatessens, the tea rooms, and the overstuffed furniture. Everything tends to make exercise less and less necessary and food more and more accessible.

Confectionery has a great deal to do with it. Our foremothers were content with an estringent lozenge or an ascetic peppermint. Our generation eats chocolates—great fat, black chocolates with hearts of melting cream. They sit on little glass plates in alluring candy shop windows, all ready to be turned into adipose tissue, and no woman of normal impulses can resist them. What chance has a self-denying silhouette in the confectionery district on Dundas street?

But it is our inertia more than our indulgences that is costing us our slimness. Too little vigor and too much figure is our trouble. We hear a great deal about the energy and hurry of the present age, but this is only another of the great popular misconceptions. Our mechanisms hurry, but our population doesn't. The steam engine is a thing of appalling energy, but the lady who rides somewhere behind the engine, the lady in the pullman car who is sunk into fleshiness and indolence, the lady who is unmistakably and deplorably stout, there is no energy whatever about her. The motor car hurries, to be sure. But this tabernacle of flesh in the back seat doesn't hurry. She sits there growing more and more somnolent while the springtime flashes by at thirty miles an hour, growing more and more somnolent, and getting fatter and fatter.

Civilization waits hand and foot on the modern woman, and in accepting the service she is bound to accept the consequences. "Work or starve" was the alternative offered our ancestors, and the alternative, quite as uncompromising, which is offered to us is "Work or get fat." Self preservation, which is the first law of nature, is also the first law of self-reduction. The people of past generations who were obliged to busy themselves in gathering together the essentials of existence weren't fat. That was the real age of hurry and energy. It was many years afterwards that machinery was invented, the pork-packer came into existence, the can-opener was introduced, and embonpoint started.

And today we are fat. And we are getting fatter. In every ready-to-wear department of any store there is always a rack of outsizes for stout figures," and a sales clerk once told The Advertiser that the sale of outsizes had doubled in recent years. Will the day come when we are all outsizes?

Undoubtedly it will unless we begin to take precautions at once—stop the treating system and abolish the chocolate bar; sell our motor car to our slim neighbor, and give away our washing machine; stop sitting on committees as a form of recreation and begin walking in the country. The silhouette, like success, comes only through the pursuit of the strenuous life.

DUFFERIN HALL GIRLS PLAN GARDEN PARTY

Hold Fete On June 19 To Raise Funds For Relief Work.

Dufferin Hall will be the scene of an attractive garden party on the evening of June 19, when members of the London Life Women's Club will be the hostesses. A splendid program has been arranged, which will include dancing on the green to music furnished by a men's orchestra from the company staff. In addition to this dancing, in which the guests of the garden party may take part, there will probably be special dance numbers furnished by small children. Two short playlets, presented by the girls of the club, will also be part of the evening's offering.

Two booths are to be erected on the lawn, and from them will be sold ice cream and novelty drinks as well as home-made candy. The club members are congratulating themselves that the Victoria Park is near, and expect a big trade on the night of their fete.

The committee in charge is arranging very attractive decorations. Japanese lanterns, in which electric light bulbs will be concealed, are to be strung across the lawn and other decorative schemes carried out.

Miss Carrie Fitchett is general convener, assisted by Miss Hazel Stone. The garden party is being given in aid of the relief work which the club hopes to continue next winter.

Other conveners are: In charge of grounds and fortune-teller, Misses Eula D. Abbott and Gladys Hynd; in charge of booths, Misses Muriel Atkinson, Agnes Aikenhead, Jennie Dicks and Joyce Gibberd; tables for ice cream, Misses Mabel Craik, Madeline Pollock, Cora Hayne and Norma Springett; program, Misses Frieda Stephens and Lotta Fisher. The orchestra is under supervision of Mr. Elmer Heighway. Miss Edith E. Jones is the president of the club.

KNOX HOPEFUL GLEANERS.

The Hopeful Gleaners of Knox Church are holding a sale of home-cooking at the home of Mrs. W. J. Brown, Wortley road, on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Wynn acting as general convener.

Soft, Curly, Wavy Hair Now Easy to Have

Beautiful, fluffy, natural-looking curls or waves, without the use of the ruinous curling iron, are now possible for every woman. Yes, not only possible, but very easily and quickly acquired, and with benefit to the life and health of the hair. It is only necessary to apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose. The hair will have a most delightful curliness and lustre, without the least suggestion of grease or stickiness, and will be quite controllable, no matter what the style of coiffure. As a few ounces of liquid silmerine from the druggist will last for months, it is quite inexpensive to use.—Advt.

EXHIBITION AT RIVERVIEW

A very fine exhibition of sewing was given at the Riverview School this afternoon, when the work of pupils of the South London Collegiate as well as the public school pupils will be shown under the direction of Miss Isabel Craig. Tea is being served, and many are expected to visit the school and look over the clever needle-work of the children. No less than seventy small dresses for two-year-olds are on exhibition, as well as underwear in quantities.

Mothers and Their Children

A Patty for Patricia.

My little daughter who needs such food as rice and hominy but does not fancy them, is beguiled by a dish we call Brown Patty. To a small dish of rice or hominy I add two eggs, beaten, a little butter and milk, or left-over gravy, and seasoning. This I bake in a buttered dish until brown. It is nice, also, served with a thick tomato sauce.

SIR ROBERT JONES WILL VISIT CITY FOR CHILD CLINIC

INVITES DOCTORS

Through the efforts of the War Memorial Children's Hospital Committee, and the Academy of Medicine of the city, Sir Robert Jones, M.D., K.B.E., C.B., of Liverpool, England, now attending the convention of the Canada Medical Association at Montreal, will visit London Thursday as the guest of the committees of the War Memorial Children's Hospital, and the Western Ontario Academy of Medicine.

It is for advice and encouragement in orthopaedic surgery to put his stamp of approval upon the children's hospital that Sir Robert Jones is coming to this city.

Sir Robert is probably the greatest authority on orthopaedic surgery, which consists of the recognition and practice of definite principles of treatment, whether operative, manipulative or educational, which lead to the restoration of function in nerves and muscles, and in deformed or disabled limbs the orthopaedic mind is trained to think in terms of function.

It is Dr. Jones' intention to see and give consultation to as many children as possible during his short stay here. Physicians of Western Ontario having such cases as might be benefitted by consultation will be accorded the privilege of seeing Sir Robert by arranging that these children attend the Out Patient Department of the Children's Hospital between 9 and 12, on or before Tuesday, June 12. None can be accepted after this, as two days are required for preparation for presentation. Such cases as are helpless will be cared for by the hospital. Physicians are asked to exercise care in the selection of cases, to notify the secretary at once of the type they are sending, and to have a complete history accompany the patient.

MRS. E. LEWIS ADDRESSES CAYUGA MISSION SOCIETY

Special to The Advertiser.

Cayuga, June 11.—The June meeting of the W. M. S. of Knox Church was held in the church Wednesday afternoon and two interesting addresses were given. Mrs. E. Lewis spoke on "The Nations of Europe Coming to Canada," and Mrs. R. MacLennan finished her account of the meeting at Windsor. Mrs. Lewis' paper was of special interest, as it will probably be the last she will give this society, as the family are leaving Cayuga in July. Their removal will be deeply felt by the residents of Cayuga, and especially by the congregation of Knox Church, of which Mrs. Lewis has been a most faithful worker, especially in the department of missions.

Your Home and You

By HELEN KENDALL.

YOUR TREE AND YOU.

A gentle, gracious old woman sat on the doorstep of her New England homestead, surrounded by her children, her grandchildren and her great grandchildren. Many times she had been urged to leave the old place, but she had steadfastly refused.

"I could leave this little old house, perhaps," she said, "for it has changed so since we first built it that it isn't the same any more; but I could never leave those two elms. We planted them when we were first married, your great grandfather and I and they have stood guard over us all these years. I think I understand why a home is spoken of as a roof-tree! These trees have been our real home."

Possibly if more of our young brides and grooms would plant roof-trees, there would be more permanent homes in this country, and less moving about from one house to another. It is a wonderful thing to bring children up under the shade of a well-loved tree. Do you remember May Sinclair's "Tree of Heaven," wherein a great spreading tree is almost the most important character? The whole life of one interesting family was enacted under its boughs.

One of the articles in the bylaws of the Garden Club to which I belong provides that "each member shall be required to plant a tree each year." With what care and deliberation we select the tree we shall plant and the place in which it shall be put. With what special interest we watch the growth and progress of the tree, feeling it our own personal possession, the keeping of a promise, our contribution to the beauty around us.

If you have children in your family, or even if you haven't, plant near your abode the most beautiful tree you can think of that will thrive in your locality. Choose the individual sapling yourself, plant it yourself, make it your "roof-tree," if that is at all feasible. You will find it growing to be a member of the family, as companionable and sympathetic as a dear friend.

A large number from the medical profession of London and Western Ontario, as well as the heads of the women's organizations represented on the Children's Hospital Committee, will attend as privileged guests.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Rumball, Dufferin avenue, leave today for Whitby to attend commencement at Whitby College, Wednesday, when their talented daughter, Miss Lorne Rumball, will give a dramatic reading as part of the program. Miss Rumball also plays the leading role in the school play, which is being presented tonight at the college. This charming London girl graduates from the college this year, having won the gold medal in languages and dramatic art. She will leave for Boston early in September to complete her education at the Emerson School of Expression.

Elephant Up in the World.

New York, June 11.—There is a new use today for the fascinating little carved ivory elephant, which carried a tiny crystal glove on his back. Formerly this elephant merely stood on the boudoir dressing table. Now he dangles effectively as a lavalier on the end of an ivory-colored cord.

TECUMSEH MOTHERS BEGIN BASEBALL AGAIN

Play First Game of the Season in School Grounds Tonight.

Members of Tecumseh School Mothers' Club, enthusiastic baseball fans, are playing their first game of the season this evening, in the school grounds, beginning at 7 o'clock. The teams will be captained by Mrs. A. Bryce and Mrs. E. Knowles. Playing will take place each Tuesday evening, it is expected, until change is announced.

The Tecumseh Club has been famous among the mothers' organizations in the city for the lively, active interest manifested in baseball, and the fact that the members play with zest, which would do credit to their school boy and girl sons and daughters.

The teams, however, are not "closed corporations" or "limited companies," tied down by any special league rules and regulations. They are good, old-fashioned, free-for-all club members' teams, with just as many on each side each evening as want to play.

MRS. WM. GARTSHORE IS HOSTESS OF FETE

Col. and Mrs. William Gartshore were the hosts of a happy gathering on Saturday last, when from two to three hundred mothers and their children from families of the McClary Manufacturing Company employees, were entertained in the pretty garden of the Gartshore home, South London.

A special punch and judy show had been brought all the way from Hamilton to the delight of the small guests, who shouted with glee over the entertainment. Even greater joy was shown when ice cream and cake became part of the program.

The mothers were equally delighted at the party, chatting together and drinking tea in the garden, while their small charges romped about and played games under the supervision of Miss Brenton of the kindergarten staff of the public schools.

The party itself was convened by Miss Mallock, welfare nurse at the factory, and Miss Douglass, who looked after all the arrangements.

LADIES' AID MEETS.
Special to The Advertiser.

Hyde Park, June 11.—On Wednesday afternoon the members of the Methodist Ladies' Aid were entertained at the home of Mrs. Walter MacGibbon. The president, Mrs. Austin Winter, called the meeting to order, and after a short business session a social hour was spent, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

WEDDINGS

HUDSON—FOSTER.

A pretty June wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, Varna, at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, June 6, when Laura Hortensia, only daughter of Rev. J. L. Foster and Mrs. Foster, became the bride of Mr. Milton B. Hudson of London Township.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. John Whiting of Parkhill, wore a suit of navy tricotine, with a gray hat and veil, and her corsage was of roses. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by Rev. W. H. Moss of Benmiller.

As the bride entered the drawing-room, Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus was played by Mr. Reginald Hudson of London. The ceremony was performed under an arch of flowers. During the signing of the register, Mrs. W. H. Moss sang "God Made You Mine." Later a wedding dinner was served, during which Rev. W. H. Moss acted as toastmaster. Mr. J. E. Hornwell proposed the toast to the bride, and Mr. Reginald Hudson proposed the toast to the groom. The guests numbered thirty and the tables were tastefully decorated with roses, white lilacs and snowballs, which were also used throughout the house.

The groom's gift to the bride was a French ivory toilet set, to the soloist a barpin, and the pianist a pair of gold cuff links. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson will reside in London Township.

JEFFREY—TECKOE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday, June 4, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Teckoe, 9 Wilmott street, Niagara Falls, when their only daughter, Laura Gladys, was united in marriage to Mr. G. F. Jeffrey of Sarnia, the Rev. H. L. Roberts of Lundy's Lane Methodist Church officiating. The wedding march was played by Miss Amy Seburn of Longwood.

The bride looked charming in a gown of cocoa flat crepe and picture hat, carrying a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Little Miss Esther Gray of Ayr made a dainty little flower-girl, carrying a basket of roses and lily of the valley.

The bride received many beautiful gifts, among them being a table lamp from the Sunday school, a cut-glass bowl from the choir, a basket of roses from the Epworth League of Lundy's Lane Church, and an electric percolator from the Hydro employees with whom she worked.

After the wedding dinner the happy couple left for Hamilton, Toronto and other points, the bride traveling in a navy blue poiret suit with hat to match, and a mink neckpiece, the gift of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey will make their home at 111 Essex street, Sarnia, Ont.

WRIGHT—BOYLAN.

A pretty but quiet wedding was celebrated at Victoria Ave. Methodist parsonage on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Reta O. Boylan, of Chatham, was united in marriage to Mr. Clinton M. Wright, also of Chatham, the Rev. A. E. Jones officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Everett J. Boylan attended the bride and groom. After a trip to Toronto and eastern points, Mr. and Mrs. Wright will reside in Chatham.

DENT—NICHOLS.

On Saturday afternoon, at Victoria Avenue Methodist parsonage, in Grand Ave. east, Chatham, the marriage was quietly solemnized of Miss Jennie Nichols of Blenheim and Mr. John Charles Dent of Merlin. Rev. A. E. Jones performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Alfreda L. Thompson of Blenheim, and the groom by Morell R. Mason of Leamington. After a trip to Niagara and points east, the young couple will reside in Merlin.

LIEVAN—THOMPSON.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place Wednesday, June 6, at high noon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Thompson of Oil Springs, when Florence Olivia, their eldest daughter, was united in marriage to Donald Archie Lievan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Lievan of Strathroy. Rev. Mr. Monds of Petrolea, performed the ceremony, which took place under an arch of white lilacs and bridal wreath. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her wedding dress of white crepe de chene veil of brussels net, caught at each side with lilies of the valley and bridal wreath. The bridal bouquet was of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley, and the groom's gift a rope of pearls. The wedding music was played by Miss Ida Germaine of Petrolea. After their return from a motor trip to New York the bride and groom will reside at 61 Windsor avenue, London.

SULLIVAN—KAIRNS.

A wedding of much interest in South Dunwich was solemnized in St. Helen's Catholic Church, Wallacetown, on Wednesday, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Catharine Kairns became the bride of Patrick J. Sullivan of Mount Carmel. Father Basil Sullivan, brother of the groom, performed the ceremony, assisted by Fr. Finn, parish priest. Miss Annie Kairns acted as bridesmaid, while John Kairns supported the groom. During the signing of the register, Miss Margaret Liberty sang beautifully "Let Joy Be Thine." After the ceremony the immediate relatives gathered at the bride's home, where a wedding dinner was served. The happy couple motored later to St. Thomas, taking train for Buffalo and New York state. On Friday evening previous to the ceremony the bride-elect was showered with many beautiful gifts, and the members of the church presented her with a handsome case of table silver.

WEARRING—McNAUGHTON.

A very pretty June wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McNaughton of Turnberry Township at noon Saturday, when their youngest daughter, Lila, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur B. Wearring of Wroxeter. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Ferguson in the presence of a few relatives and friends.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly gowned in gray canton crepe. Her niece, Miss L. Aikenhead of London, was a charming little flower girl.

After the wedding luncheon the young couple left by motor for Cannington, the bride traveling in a gown of navy silk, blue hat and light coat. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wearring will reside in Howick Township.

PLATT—LAKE.

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday, June 6, at 5 o'clock, when Thelma Viola Alma Lake, eldest daughter of Mrs. J. Leids, Dorinda street, was married to William Kitchener Platt, only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Platt, Ashland avenue. The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. J. Leids, wore a gown of white ivory satin, with pleated side panels, a white hat and a colonial bouquet of lily of the valley and fern. Little Miss Ruby Moss, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl, and was frocked in blue organdy, with lace, and carried a basket of bridal wreath. The bridesmaid was Miss Myrtle Lake, sister of the bride, wearing a white crepe de chine gown. Mr. Lewis Hessel acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Platt left on an extended motor trip, the bride traveling in a navy blue suit with sand shoes and hat. Upon their return they will reside at 17 Glenwood avenue.

wife of the new prime minister of Britain, who is now the hostess at No. 10 Downing street, is very popular in London society.

Paris, June 11.—Some fascinating blouses are shown today for wear with sports costumes, as much care being spent on their design as on that of whole evening frocks. One such bit of perfection is of white georgette, made with long sleeves. In front and back are panels of printed white satin, the designs being Persian and in the soft Persian colorings.

The Scallop-Shaped Bead.

Paris, June 11.—It is only a short time since the scallop-shaped pearl bead made its appearance, and yet this odd ornament is seen today on every sort of gown. Row upon row of these lovely, lustrous beads are used for evening frocks and also to form deep borders on evening cloaks.

The Newest Nightie.

London, June 11.—Among the night gowns shown in a chic lingerie shop here today was one dawn-pink crepe de chine, with empire waist line and a tiny square neck. The nightgown was inlaid with embroidered tulle, the tulle being cut out in fanciful scroll shapes.

Worsted Trims Dance Frocks.

London, June 11.—Some of the newest dance frocks show an odd combination of taffeta and worsted. If the frock is in pearl gray or white taffeta, it is quite likely to be adorned with several large flowers worked in worsted and in different colors.

Rechnitzer-Jarvis Wedding Is Happy Event of Today

An interesting wedding took place this morning at 11 o'clock at the First Methodist Church, when Jean M. Jarvis, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. D. Jarvis, was married to Eric A. Rechnitzer, son of Mrs. C. S. Hyman, Rev. J. F. Reycraft officiating.

Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus was played by Mrs. A. D. Jordan as the pretty young bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was of white georgette fashioned in simple lines and richly embroidered with pearls. Her becoming hat was made of white silk faille, with ostrich trimmings, and she also wore white slippers and hose, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Jarvis wore a gown of orchid shade georgette with a large black hat and a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Rechnitzer left later by motor on a honeymoon which will be spent in the Eastern States and Quebec, the bride traveling in a smart coat dress of sand shade crepe cloth, trimmed with brown. A hat to match, and a marten fur piece completed her costume. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Rechnitzer will reside in William street.

At the Movies Last Night

"Ebb Tide."

Three men in a boat, a somewhat feckless old boat, with a cargo of one per cent champagne and 99 per cent water—with the one per cent champagne responsible for some harrowing adventures—this is the tale that "Ebb Tide" at the Allen tells in its screen adaptation of the story by Robert Louis Stevenson.

To this story, Noah Beery, Raymond Hatton and George Fawcett add sufficient crisp and salty tang to redeem a picture which left to the tender mercies of the other two stars, James Kirkwood and Lila Lee, might prove more insipid than invigorating.

Lila Lee, usually very winsome, appears singularly apathetic, and Kirkwood has at most times the appearance of a man completely disinterested in his surroundings.

It is Noah Beery as Attwater, George Fawcett as Captain Davis, and Hatton as Mr. Huish, who really put the punch into this picture of the South Sea Island. And where a word for Jacqueline Logan, who, although she looks like anything in the world, other than a South Sea beauty, manages to be quite inspiring as "Mist of the Mountains."

While it may be the real thing, the scenery has the mussy appearance of an over-crowded studio set, and none of the rare beauty, which most photographers have managed to film in the South Sea Islands. Only the scenes of the Farralone at sea are memorable.

To say that in spite of these obvious drawbacks, "Ebb Tide" is a good picture, is to pin much glory upon the three characters already twice mentioned.

"Fog Bound."

The singers who headline the vaudeville at Loew's the beginning of the week have established a certain amount of popularity in the city on a previous appearance, to judge from the warm greeting they received at yesterday's performances. Both have voices of strength, quality and power, so that the two operatic selections are decidedly agreeable. As well as seeming to keep its friends, the act makes quite an impression on strangers. The preceding acts set a good pace for the headliner to follow.

In "Fogbound," a film of mediocre possibilities, Dorothy Dalton does some of her usual good work, making up for a certain scantiness in the general equipment. Dorothy Dalton maintains a steady popularity by means of her consistently excellent work. In a story which brings together the Florida of the millionaire colony and that of the hard-working orange-grower, she drags the audience through the everglades with her on one exciting night. Though the outcome is more or less obvious, she manages to make it really exciting from the point of view of the audience, and so, after all, "Fogbound" may be considered a picture which passes swiftly and with enjoyment.

David Powell, Maurice Costello and a Negro "Mammy," the last new to us, handle themselves in a very convincing way in support of Dorothy Dalton.

"Driven."

A list of the season's most powerful pictures will with very little doubt find "Driven," the Universal picture showing at the Patricia, well to the fore.

Magnificently set in a sweep of the Kentucky hill regions, it tells with poignant realism the tale of Tommy Tolliver and Essie Harden, leaving an audience vaguely stirred at the sight of Maw Tolliver, resolute in the strength of her sacrifice, throwing defiance at her husband for the shattered wreck of the past and thrusting out a bold dare for the future.

"Tommy" and "Maw" Tolliver are played by two well-known Grffith players, Charles Emmet Mack and Emma Fitzroy. The latter appeared just recently in "Fury." Mack was the song-writer in "Dream Street."

The choosing of this cast alone ought to be considered one of the season's accomplishments. The four "black, snarling" Tolliver brothers are revolting in their realism, making even more appalling the hideous contrast between "Lem" Tolliver and the gentle Essie Hardin.

The word "human" is so sadly overdone that it becomes almost a burlesque, but nevertheless it seems to be the only word which adequately expresses the exact shade of difference between "Driven" and the average tale of the Kentucky mountains, with their stills, their primitive hatred, and whole-souled love.

WOMAN IS INJURED THROUGH COLLISION

Stratford, June 11.—An accident occurred this morning about 10:30 o'clock, when a car and a truck collided at the corner of Cambria and Erie streets. Mrs. J. Wettlaufer of Tavistock, who was in the car, had her face slightly cut in the collision. The car, which was driven by Mr. Wettlaufer, suffered a broken fender. The car was going west on Cambria street, and the truck which was driven by Mr. F. Montgomery was traveling south on Erie street.

For the Bridesmaids.

New York, June 11.—Attractive dresses for bridesmaids are now designed in taffeta with large loops of the material on the hips, to form a bustle. Narrow frills of taffeta, the same shade as the dress, and picoted, are criss-cross to form losenge patterns or curled to form serpentine design.

CONTEST CANDIDATES.

Ryans joined Phillips in the garden. Spring weather demanded that the weekly conference or contest or confab of the two old school men should be held in the open, and Phillips clung to his garden.

Ryan seated himself on a boulder that made the background for the rose briars Phillips was coaxing toward the way they should go, and lighted his pipe with difficulty. He used three matches which was always a bad sign.

"What's gone wrong?" demanded Phillips taking the other end of the big stone and lighting up cheerfully.

"I'm put out. McNab got another charge against him today. Miss Anne gave it to him for speaking in history recitation, and that counts him out of the essay contest. And he was a sure winner!"

"But what has his speaking out in the history class got to do with his entering the contest?"

"He's got ten charges against him," groaned Ryan, "and how can I let a boy who has ten charges against him represent the school in the county contest?"

"Ten charges? And is out of jail yet? Clever, I'd say," grinned Phillips with a chuckle and a long puff.

"Ten charges is nothing to be proud of! Besides it cost the school that prize, and I'd set my heart on winning it. Now you'll get it, I suppose, and my McNab is better than anything you've got."

"I don't see why McNab has to be excluded from the contest simply because he has ten charges against him for speaking out or whispering or dropping papers in the yard or forgetting his tie in the morning. I don't see that those breaches of the public peace ought to count against his trying to write. I'd let him enter and try his best. It means a lot to him if he wins that prize."

"Yes," said Ryan brightening. "A scholarship. It means he can enter college, and if he gets a start I'll back McNab to the finish." Ryan had forgotten his pipe, and had to light up again. This time, one match.

"I'd let him enter. If I were entering the flower show for a prize for color and impudence and audacity and daring beauty, I'd enter that poppy down there. She has no manners, but the prize is not offered for manners. If so, I'd enter that nice bit of mignonette.

"This is a contest of writing power. I'd enter McNab if I were you, but he hasn't any chance. I'm entering Isaac."

"What? That boy? He's worse than McNab ever dared be. I've never seen him with his hair combed, and the reports that Miss Anne gives of him! Says he's six sorts of a nuisance."

"She could make it a dozen and not stretch her conscience. But he has the pen. It's an eagle's feather. I've been grooming for the contest for the past month. He'll tie McNab to the perch!"

"By the bones of the owl, he won't," thundered Ryan, smacking his palm with his pipe.

"By the eagle's pen feathers he will," chortled Phillips, "and may the best bird win."

Heart Palpitated And Was Short of Breath

Through one cause or another a large majority of people are troubled more or less, with some form of heart trouble.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure and ask for "Mulsified." Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.—Advt.

Hill Says Health Was Almost Wrecked Before He Got Relief From Dyspepsia.

"About three years ago I was almost on my last legs, but the Tanlac treatment made a new man of me, and I have been feeling fine ever since," is the characteristic statement of Fred Hill, 349 Thames street, London, Ont., well-known mechanic for the Canadian Pacific.

"I had about given out altogether, and was going down hill so fast I thought nothing could stop me. I never ate more than two light meals a day, and even then suffered untold agony from indigestion. My nerves were wrecked, every bone in my body ached, I couldn't sleep right, and just felt sick all over.

"Well, Tanlac fixed me up so I could eat anything from soup to dessert without having indigestion, and all my other troubles vanished like smoke, too. I picked up twelve pounds in weight, and never felt better. I never thought anything could do for me what Tanlac did."

Chief of Police Serves Detective With Warrant On Charge of Perjury

B. F. Honsinger, St. Thomas, Enters Action Against Barthlow Young, Employed by Mrs. Rose Pinfold As Private Detective, Following Loss of Recent $40,000 Suit.

Special to the Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

St. Thomas, June 11.—Barthlow Young, private detective of Toronto, who has been acting under the name of J. P. Phillips, in the interests of Mrs. Rose Pinfold, in the Pinfold-Honsinger $40,000 breach of promise suit, has had an extremely busy afternoon, facing a series of charges and appeals from charges.

In the police court this afternoon he was charged under the detectives act, with acting as a detective without a provincial license. As no evidence was offered, the case was dismissed.

Only one witness was called, namely, a member of the city police force, who testified that Young had told him he was a provincial officer.

"I don't see where the evidence will sustain the charge," decided Magistrate Maxwell. "I cannot see the defendant was trying to accomplish anything."

This case was dismissed also.

Charge of Perjury.

As Young was about to walk out of the courtroom, the chief of police served a warrant on him, charging him with perjury. The information had been sworn out by Benjamin F. Honsinger, a prominent cigar manufacturer, and defendant in the action for $40,000 heart balm, brought against him at a recent session of the supreme court, by Mrs. Rose Pinfold, widow, and former hotelkeeper at Rodney.

W. H. Smythe, K.C., of Toronto, counsel for Mrs. Pinfold, defended Young. Mr. Smythe, in acting for the detective, waived examination, and asked for bail. Magistrate Maxwell decided two sureties of $1,000 each would suffice. Young gave one, and Chester Mansfield Brown of Aylmer, the other.

Young had elected to be tried by a judge without a jury. Immediately he went before Senior County Judge Duncan Ross. Mr. Smythe asked for trial on June 27, but as the judge found he would be busy on that date, he, Mr. Smythe and Crown Attorney McCrimmon agreed on June 29, at 11 a.m., as the trial date.

The Appeal.

The appeal reads that Barthlow Young, of the city of Toronto, "Did in the city of Toronto, assert as a matter of fact, I was informed by Mr. Henry Borbridge, boot and shoe merchant, of St. Thomas, that he knew that Milbert was at the time of trial indebted to the defendant, by affidavit, in judicial proceedings wherein Rose Pinfold was plaintiff, and Benjamin F. Honsinger was defendant, such assertion being known to such witness, Barthlow Young, to be false and being intended by him to mislead the court."

On May 5 he had been arrested on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place. He was fined. The offence was alleged to have been committed on April 13, the information was laid on April 30, and a warrant executed on the afternoon of Saturday, May 5. Evidence against the detective was given by John Fleet, William Meredith and Frank McShea. In defence was the evidence of the detective, of Charles Mansfield Brown, and of Reginald Barker.

Respectable Men.

Mr. Smythe contended that as the defendant and his witnesses were respectable men, the defendant should be given the benefit of the doubt.

The offence was alleged to have been committed in the Talbot Hotel, and the information had been laid against Young, who was a guest at the hotel at the time, by the porter, 17 days after the offence was alleged to have been committed. Counsel thought that on the face of it something was wrong.

Judge Ross promised to give the matter his best consideration. Under the O. T. A. amendment of 1921, new evidence cannot be brought into an appeal under the act, but the judge can decide whether he, as a magistrate, would convict on the evidence before him. Judge Ross stated he had read the evidence twice, but would read it again. His decision was reserved.

When Young was arrested on a warrant charging him with being intoxicated in a public place his revolver was confiscated. As he had a permit, which did not expire until May 8, and as he was arrested on May 5, the police today were ordered by Magistrate Maxwell to return the weapon to him.

Echoes of the recent $40,000 breach of promise suit were heard when eight of the jurors in the case were examined before Magistrate C. F. Maxwell as master in chancery in city police court. It is expected some of the evidence will assume the form of re-echoes when the appeal for a new trial is taken to Osgoode Hall by W. H. Smythe, K.C., counsel for Mrs. Rose Pinfold. Although Colin St. Clair Leitch, counsel for Benjamin F. Honsinger, defendant in the recent action, did not act officially in the interests of any of the witnesses called, he raised most strenuous objections to the examination as a whole, and interrupted Mr. Smythe throughout the hearing.

Says No Order.

In the first place, Mr. Leitch objected to the examination on the ground that there was no order for it. "I am attending merely because of an appointment served on me," he explained.

"There is a motion pending before the divisional court (the appellate division) for a new trial. These gentlemen are being examined as witnesses," Mr. Smythe declared in giving his reasons why the hearing should proceed.

Mr. Smythe assured Mr. Leitch that the witnesses would not be examined as to discussion or strife which took place in the jury room in regard to evidence given at the trial. "I will take the evidence subject to the objection raised by Mr. Leitch," Magistrate Maxwell ruled.

Not Clients.

"These witnesses are not my clients," Mr. Leitch declared. "I would ask that the other witnesses be excluded," said Mr. Smythe, when William Demeray, who had been called as a juror to the supreme court at the session of the court early in the year, but who had not been on the Pinfold-Honsinger jury, was called.

"Why?" queried Mr. Leitch, "they are his own witnesses. This is not an examination for discovery. He had no right to exclude anyone."

"I don't see any reason why they shouldn't be excluded," the examiner decided.

"I don't think you have any jurisdiction," Mr. Leitch retorted. Demeray was put on his oath. He is a resident of Aylmer.

"Did you have any conversation with E. E. Martin a few days before the trial?" Mr. Smythe inquired.

"Yes."

"What was he speaking about??"

Not On Case.

"I didn't think there was anything to it. I was not on the case."

"When did he say this?" Demeray was questioned.

"What did he say?"

"He said he didn't think she would get anything," Demeray declared.

"Did Mr. McKenna speak to you?" Mr. Smythe queried.

"Yes," answered Demeray.

"He said he didn't think that she (Mrs. Pinfold) would get anything."

"Did he say: 'Ben has paid enough?'" Mrs. Pinfold's counsel continued.

"Something to that effect," replied Demeray.

"Anything else?"

"Did anyone attempt to discuss the case with you?" Mr. Smythe began.

Gives Negative Reply.

Sinclair gave a negative reply.

"Did you know Malin Hale?" Sinclair was asked. "Just as a juryman," the witness answered.

He knew Gilbert, another juryman, in the same capacity.

These two men were in the room and were asked to stand."

"Did either of these men say anything detrimental to Mrs. Pinfold or her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence, not brought out in evidence?" Mr. Smythe wanted to know.

"I could not say," Sinclair replied.

"Did you hear anyone say, 'to hell with the notes, let's figure how many times he should be with her,'" Mr. Smythe queried.

"Well, I heard a remark about how many times he was with her," said witness.

"Did you know it was not in the evidence?"

"Yes."

Didn't Hear Anything.

Leason admitted he had told Phillips something about some remark, but was not positive as to what it was. He said he could not bring it to mind.

"Why did you speak to Mr. Phillips?" Mr. Smythe asked.

"Phillips asked me," replied Leason.

Mr. Smythe's examination of Leason did not meet with the approval of Attorney Leitch, who, turning to Mr. Smythe, remarked: "If I was a witness I would not allow you to treat me like that."

"How would you prevent me, as a witness or counsel, either?" inquired Mr. Smythe, adding, "I am not afraid of you or anyone else."

Henry Dadson, ex-juryman, did not remember any statements he had made, or had heard anyone else make about the case.

"Didn't you say you didn't belong to that 'bunch of black crooks'?" Mr. Smythe asked him.

Didn't Remember.

"I don't remember," Dadson told him.

"If you made the remark that you didn't belong to that bunch of black crooks, were you referring to the jury?" Attorney Smythe inquired.

Mr. Leitch objected. "I want you to be fair with the witness," he remarked.

"I have every idea of your fairness and intention to be fair," Mr. Smythe replied heatedly.

Finally the question was allowed.

Dadson was asked if he made the remark to C. M. Brown.

"I don't know him," he stated. "Did you tell Phillips?"

"I don't remember, I might have," Dadson continued.

Neither Herbert Hales or Gordon Tunks, members of the jury in the case, had heard anything derogatory to Mrs. Pinfold's character, outside of evidence that they had considered. Harvey Hevener gave similar evidence.

Mr. Leitch Objects.

All I heard was: "He was jollying her along for his own purposes," declared James Leitch, another member of the breach of promise case jury.

"I don't know who said it."

Cyril Williams, another member of the jury, declared he had heard remarks damaging to Mrs. Pinfold's character. He could not swear as to exactly what was said.

Malin Hale was asked to stand up. "Did he make the remark?" Mr. Smythe inquired.

Mr. Leitch objected, stating an action for slander was pending against Hale, and he meant to protect his client. Mr. Smythe assured him Hale had protection at the examination, the same protection as the witness in the box, counsel, or the judge had.

Gilbert, another member of the jury, was also asked to rise to his feet.

Leitch did not know who made the remark. Anyway, it did not influence him, he asserted. "You wouldn't like any one to say anything like that about your family?" Mr. Smythe asked, alluding to the remark Leitch said he had heard.

"No," witness replied.

"I am not calling Malin Hale or Gilbert," Mr. Smythe declared. "They are merely here for the purpose of identification."

Phillips, the detective, will stand trial this afternoon on a charge of practicing without a provincial license.

Crown Attorney McCrimmon came to court this morning prepared to proceed with the case. Mr. Smythe, who is acting for Phillips, assured the crown he had arranged with him to have the case tried this afternoon. The crown denied this flatly.

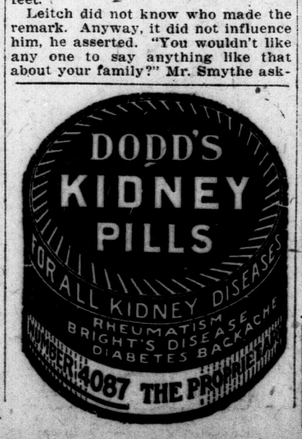

Used in Application.

Mr. Smythe declared he knew positively that in a telephone conversation the crown had agreed as a matter of convenience to try the case this afternoon. As there was no serious objection by the crown, the hearing was set for this afternoon.

The hearing of the jurymen concluded at noon. Their evidence will be used in the application at Osgoode for a new trial.

The two hearings today are the results of a breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Rose Pinfold against Benjamin F. Honsinger at the assizes early in the year for $40,000. Mrs. Pinfold, a widow of this city, formerly kept a hotel at Rodney. Honsinger is a well-known tobacconist and cigar manufacturer of St. Thomas.

At the trial before Hon. Justice Mowat the judge told the jury that to bring in a verdict for Honsinger, dismissing the case, meant absolute disbelief of Mrs. Pinfold's evidence.

DRURY COMPARES TORY CHIEFTAIN TO A CHAMELEON

STANDS BY RECORD

Special to The Advertiser.

Owen Sound, June 12.—A political chameleon is the classification in which Premier Drury placed the Hon. G. H. Ferguson to the most enthusiastic audience that greeted him in Owen Sound last night. The premier arrived in the city from Orangeville about 10:15, and immediately opened his address at the Savoy Theatre with few preliminaries. He reviewed the government record, and the record of the late government, particularly going after the leader of the Conservative party.

Premier Drury was greeted by long and sustained cheering as he stepped into the theatre. He said that the government must stand on its record, and by the same reasoning it was right to expect that the opposition should stand on such records as it had. There had been four years of construction work, he said. In the matter of education there had been increased help to all branches to help relieve the burden on municipalities and upon parents.

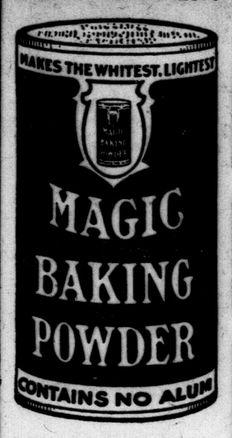

The rural credits scheme had been a boon to agriculture, and would lead to the co-operative marketing of all farm products.

There was no question as to who had been responsible for the removal of the cattle embargo. For 30 years the opposition had been trying to get this removed without success. In one year, Hon. Manning Doherty, through an appeal to the fairness of the British people, had secured its removal.

In forestry the revenue to the province had been increased by the reorganization of the department by getting scales that would scale and cullers that would cull. Fire loss had also been reduced on an average.

The premier explained why he had opposed the Conservative scheme of provincial roads, which provided for only one trunk line through the province, at an estimated expenditure of $30,000,000. The present government plan called for 1,800 miles of improved roads as main arteries of travel, and 1,200 miles of this was of good gravel construction.

Windsor, June 12.—Two Windsor school boys, both 11 years old, confessed yesterday, the police say, to shoplifting at Detroit department stores. They were arrested, following the theft of watermelons, a case of strawberries, pencils and books, from Windsor stores. They admitted taking these goods, it is said, and then volunteered the information that the running shoes they were wearing were stolen from a Detroit store. One of the boys, the police say, recently attempted to burn his way out of a cell at police headquarters here.

ROADS PROVIDE SPECIAL SERVICE FOR PICNICKERS

L. & P. S. and Steam Lines Give Extra Accommodation For Large Parties.

The attention of picnicking organizations in all parts of Western Ontario has been attracted to Port Stanley with the reopening of the season at "the Coney Island of Western Ontario," and the abolition of wartime restrictions on excursion rates on the steam railroads.

Many societies, clubs, churches, and industrial organizations, which for years have been conducting their picnics at less attractive places, are planning this year to give their members and friends a day of particular enjoyment at Port Stanley.

The plan is one much more easily accomplished than is generally understood.

The London & Port Stanley Railway and all the steam railroads have a fixed schedule of rebates or commissions paid to the larger picnics to enable them to meet the costs of advertising and promotion, and as a result it is a simple matter to arrange for unusually attractive programs at Port Stanley.

Give Special Service.

Since the lifting of the ban on steam railroad excursion rates, special one-day round trip tickets can be secured through from any point in Western Ontario to Port Stanley via London or St. Thomas, and in the cases of the larger organizations arrangements can be made for a fast and convenient train movement each way without charge of cars.

The London & Port Stanley Railway has just issued a bright and beautifully illustrated folder describing Port Stanley and its attractions. Copies of this booklet together with all information may be had without charge on application to the London & Port Stanley Railway picnic bureau at London.

Port Stanley this season boasts of many notable improvements that have been the subject of much favorable comment among visitors to the lakeside. The first Sunday band concert given last Sunday afternoon at Invererie Heights by the famous band of the Royal Canadian Regiment attracted hundreds of music lovers.

The Western Ontario Regiment Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster A. W. Slatter, made a splendid impression in connection with the events held to celebrate May 24. The First Hussars Band, conducted by Roselle Pococke, which is really the same fine organization of musicians as the Mocha Temple Band, has returned from the great Shriners' conclave at Washington, D.C., and is preparing special musical numbers for Port Stanley on Dominion Day.

EXCRUCIATING PAINS, CRAMPS

Entirely Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Eberts, Ont. — "I started with cramps and bearing-down pains at the age of eleven years, and I would get so nervous I could hardly stay in bed, and I had such pains that I would scream, and my mother would call the doctor to give me something to take. At eighteen I married, and I have four healthy children, but I still have pains in my right side. I am a farmer's wife with more work than I am able to do. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel that it is helping me every day. My sister-in-law, who has been taking your medicine for some time and uses your Sanative Wash, told me about it and I recommend it now, as I have received great relief from it."—Mrs. NELSON YOTT, R. R. 1, Eberts, Ont.

Stomach Trouble "Indigestion"

Relieved by

Burdock Blood Bitters

The sufferer from dyspepsia, indigestion or other stomach troubles who has to pick and choose his food is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little that is eaten causes much torture, and is digested so imperfectly it does but little good.

Before you can eat heartily and enjoy your food, you must put your stomach right so that it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

Mr. Wm. Kruschel, Morden, Man., writes: "Some time ago I had quite a serious case of stomach trouble, indigestion. I could scarcely eat anything, outside of some light food, and even then I generally had pains after each meal. I tried many different medicines, but without any improvement, and had almost given up hope of ever being well. A neighbor recommended Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it a short time I felt much better, so I continued to use it until I was completely relieved. I can honestly say that B. B. B. has done wonders for me after all other medicines failed."

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble. CUT THIS OUT.

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic "acid stomach," says a well-known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach, it soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.—Advt.

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

By JOHN W. KANE.

Kane Applies For Parole Under the Law He Got Passed, But Is Refused

SYNOPSIS.

Curly Kane wins his way to regeneration while in prison. A wild lad, he killed two carmen in a hold-up and after 17 months in Murderers' Row got a new trial, with a life imprisonment sentence instead of death. He studies law, reads, trains himself to be a magazine writer, and conceives the idea of a law permitting parole for life prisoners who serve 15 years. By finesse he gets it passed. A new warden, with modern ideas, makes Kane his private secretary.

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE.

For a moment I sat there, awaiting their notice of me and also waiting for the words that would mean either months or years more of detention or immediate freedom. The members of the board seemed to be discussing some point of fact as related to another case on the docket. At length—perhaps the time seemed longer than it was—the governor, who, as chairman, was sitting at the other end of the long table, adjusted his glasses and looked at me. Then he turned to Justice Frewin on his right—the same man who had helped to defend me at my last trial—and said in a moderately low voice that reached me:

"Justice Frewin, will you inform Mr. Kane concerning the action of the board?"

All eyes, including those of the warden and the clerk of the board, who were seated at a side table, turned toward me.

"Mr. Kane," began Justice Frewin, who, though elderly, spoke in a clear, firm voice, "your petition asking for parole or conditional release has been considered by the board and the governor requests that I inform you of the board's decision. I believe that along with your petition as embodied in the filled-in application blank, you inclosed a brief communication to the board setting forth a hope on your part that your case may at this time be construed as coming within the scope and meaning of certain sections of the revised statutes, did you not?"

"I did," was my answer.

The Board Says No.

"It would appear to the board, then," the speaker proceeded, "that your petition is not one looking to clemency other than that as allowed to you under the law touching such cases as yours."

"That is true," said I, when he paused, evidently waiting for me to speak.

"In that event then," he went on, "the board finds itself unable to place a construction upon the law and the facts which would entitle you to a release at this time; therefore, Mr. Kane, for the present your petition is denied."

There was a moment of silence, and I knew that every man present was watching me narrowly in order to see what effect a denial after so long a time in prison would have upon me. Whatever inward emotions I might have had were, I think, kept well hidden.

"Is that all for the present, may I ask?" I questioned quietly.

"That's all," the justice answered.

I arose then, but before passing out, said: "I wish to thank the board for having considered and passed upon my application."

No one replied. Justice Frewin nodded slightly in recognition of my words, and I passed from the room.

Upstairs, in the silence of my own room, I sat down to think. My chief disappointment was due to having played and lost, even though I knew in reason that the losing was for the time being only. With all the help of friends—in the way of letters, petitions, personal appeals and pledges to the board—my long-deferred application for release had been flatly denied. My enemies—for there was strong opposition to my release—had surely won that round. Well, let them rejoice; it could not be for long.

How It Hit One Man.

The warden and I held an hour's conference that evening.

"Well," he leaned back in his chair, and questioned: "How do you feel about it, Jack?"

He laughed heartily. "You're taking it a lot easier than some of those one-year men who were denied. There's a new man inside, who hasn't been here yet five months, and because his petition was just laid over until next month, he's rolling on the floor and bellowing."

"That ought to help some, I opined. "How would it be to send for the board members, so they might witness his agony?"

"Oh, that wouldn't do," returned the warden in a like vein; "the members of the board need sleep; and after seeing him, they wouldn't be able to sleep. But the poor fellow is terribly disappointed," he concluded more seriously, "and I'm sorry for him."

"I am too—in a way," I returned; "but he'd just as well learn along with the rest of us, that whoever violates the rules of the game will have to pay a forfeit."

"But as to your own case—you already know without my telling you that they denied you mostly because you lack a few months of having the full fifteen years in."

"Yes, I believe that. And they perhaps also had in mind the fact that a denial at first might kind of appease the wrath of my opponents."

Four Months To Wait.

"Well, you know as much about human nature, no doubt, as I do—though I wouldn't like to go on record about that part. But the main thing is, if you can hold out a little longer—how much longer is it till the fifteen full years have been served?"

"Next April—the 19th."

"Four months isn't like fourteen years and more, is it?"

"Indeed not," was my answer. "If a man has a fifteen-mile journey to walk, and if he gets over fourteen and three-fourths miles, surely he ought to go the other quarter."

"In a pinch," chuckled the big-hearted man, "he could crawl the rest of the way—couldn't he?"

"Yes—even with a broken leg."

I, however, had no broken leg. I felt as sure of winning that up-hill game in the next and last inning, as I felt sure that the morrow's sun would rise.

The sun did rise on the following morning, Sunday, and I put in the whole day and far into the night writing letters of explanation to my friends over the country. Answers to those letters came, and each writer—may Heavens richest blessings come to each one!—pledged anew full support and full faith in me. Then, as the winter days dragged by, I began to lay the ground carefully for my next attempt at securing liberty.

Of all things for which I was thankful, the main thing was that my aged parents, both of whom were still living back at the old Missouri home, knew nothing about my attempt at getting free. With them hope deferred, the hope of seeing me again in this life, had often made their hearts sick.

I Have a Vision.

I knew well that, even though the shadows for them were growing long, they were sustained chiefly by the hope of seeing me once more. And it was due to my thoughts of them that one night in February of 1919 I arrived at a decision that was as inspiring to me as it might have seemed strange to others.

Far into the night I lay thinking over what I had decided to attempt. At last the morning came. I went to the warden's office.

As was my custom, one that I had early found suited the head of the place best, I went in quietly and did not speak to him. He read his mail for a few minutes, while I busied myself with filing away some unimportant paper; then suddenly he looked up.

"Well, Mr. Man," he inquired, "did you sleep all right last night?"

"I did not."

"What was the trouble with you?"

"No trouble; it was happiness that kept me awake."

He leaned back in his chair and surveyed me inquiringly. "Have you just made a bunch of money or been married—or something?"

I told him: "I was happy because I put in most of the night living out a dream-hope of mine. And if you feel just right for hearing it—and if the work isn't too pressing—I'd like to tell you what that dream-hope is."

His eyes took on that well-known humorous sparkle as he fumbled for another cigar.

"Say!"—he struck a match and glanced toward me, then with a few long pulls at the cigar had it in full blast—"haven't you been with me long enough to know that I'll quit work any time to hear a dream?"

A Visit Home.

"So would Long Bill Dowling, whom I used to know back in Missouri," I told him, happy in the thought that I had found him in that frame of mind. "Only Long Bill would quit work and get out under a tree and have a few dreams himself—regular sleep dreams at that."

"Long Bill must have been a true philosopher," he remarked. "But let's hear the whatever-you-call-it."

"I'll be brief, warden"—I cast aside all levity—"and I hope that you'll hear me all the way through, and that you'll then see fit to give the matter your usual careful thought. All the way from the beginning up to the present my case has been different from most others of its kind. I don't believe that a lifer has ever before done a warden's secretarial work. But I'd like to have an opportunity to do something still more unusual for a life prisoner. I'd like to take a step that will prove that the judgment of you and others relating to me is sound. In short, I'd like to make a visit to my old home in Missouri. I'll promise to be back by any day you set. The question is, Will you take my promise?"

The warden told me he'd let me know. Others would have to be consulted.

The suspense that night was terrible. Was I to be trusted? It would be a crucial test of the success of all my plans toward ultimate pardon and release.

What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875. I am now 83 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

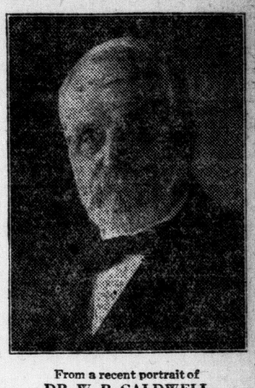

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Laxative Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. I say family laxative because all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is on every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. Calomel, a mercurial that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived; salt waters and powders that draw needed constituents from the blood; coal tar disguised in candy form that causes skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years I have never seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Laxative Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping, and without shock to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It lowers your strength 28 per cent, hardens the arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope but go to a druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Laxative Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite or sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

GOOD SUPPORT GIVEN TO RAILROAD STOCKS

Uncertainty Exists Regarding Industrials and Prices Are Under Level.

By STUART P. WEST.
Special to The Advertiser.

Wall Street, New York, June 12.—In oday's stock market the same distinction was maintained as on previous ays between the railroad stocks and e industrials. The former were bet- r supported, and at intervals were irly strong. The latter moved with onsiderable uncertainty, and, while ithout being weak, were selling most the time under the level of Mon- ay's close.

Most of the initiative was supplied pools and a few large operators try- g to pull the market out of its rut making the railway group the aders. Southern Railway once again eemed to be the most confidently ought of any. It is now figured out at the entire 5 per cent dividend on e preferred was covered in the first uarter of the year, and that, allow- g for seasonal variations from now , the surplus available for the com- on at the close of 1923 will be some- ing over $8 a share.

This is enough to permit dividends, ut there are many who doubt, in view f next year's prospective agitation gainst the railroads, whether a man- gement so conservative as the South- n Railway's would undertake to begin istribution on the junior shares.

All sorts of guesses were current as to hat the New York Central directors ould do on Wednesday. The majority pinion was that the rate would be aised to 6 per cent, in which event he stock would be high enough. If 7 er cent were paid, as some think it ill, it would undoubtedly arouse fresh nthusiasm for the railway list in gen- ral. If the opposite thing should hap- en, and the present 5 per cent be aintained, the effect would be in all robability to cast a damper upon ef- orts to prolong the upward movement the rails.

Copper stocks were not affected by e improvement in the price of metal, nd steel shares continued to neglect e evidence afforded by the recent ton- age figures that new business did not ll off last month to anything like the xtent that the street was reckoning pon.

Oil shares were heavy, with one or wo exceptions, but not as much de- ressed as on other days.

WALL STREET FEATURES.

American Ice—Highly favorable earn- ngs are not the only factor in the uying of American Ice common. In- erested people also look for an an- nouncement regarding some sort of a ommon share recapitalization. Net ncome applicable to the common stock s said to be running at the rate of pproximately $30 a share. Dividends f $7 annually are now paid.

Tire Stocks.—For the weakness which ppeared in the rubber and tire group gain today, following Monday's sharp reak in this class of stock, there ppeared only two causes. Chiefly, here was the reduction in the price of ires by the Firestone Company and he report that a price-cutting wave ad swept the trade. Then, too, crude ubber has taken another dip. This ast actually has been less of a factor, o far as earnings of the leading tire ompanies are concerned, than was gen- rally believed.

BRITISH FINANCIERS ARE LOOKING OVER CANADA

State Time Is Ripe For Dominion To Re-enter London Market.

Special to The Advertiser.

Montreal, June 12.—Viscount Maidstone and Mr. R. H. Collis, of the London financial house of Kitcat & Aitken, returned over the week-end from their inspection of the hydro-electric plants at Grand Mere, Shawinigan Falls and Quebec. Yesterday they visited the Cedars plant of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company. They seem rather amused at some of the theories that have arisen on the street as to the object of their visit. Mr. Collis calls attention to the fact that, prior to the war, the business of the house with which he was associated was large- y Canadian. He feels that the time is ripe for Canada to again enter the London market for financing, and it is or the purpose of getting in touch with the Canadian situation with this n mind that the present visit is mainly attributable.

He states that Canadian securities re favorably regarded in London, but ntimates that the world's greatest inanciers will be found more discriminatory with regard to flotations than it has been in the past. Such incidents s the Grand Trunk debenture case have naturally had their effect upon he general situation, but London is ready to finance meritorious Canadian enterprises. The house with which Viscount Maidstone and Mr. Collis are connected with has specialized to an extent on hydro-electric securities. Mr. Collis is impressed with the strides that have been made in this province, not only as to the development of new horsepower, but the manner in which new production has been absorbed. He commented particularly upon the turning of electrical energy to use as a steam generator by many of our paper companies.

Mr. Collis was reticent as to the likelihood of any new financing going to London as a result of the present visit, but such a development would not be surprising.

SUGAR

New York, June 11.—The early raw sugar market was unsettled by the sharp decline in futures, and in the absence of transactions prices were nominal.

The continued weakness in the European market and only a light domestic demand for refined sugar led to renewed selling in raw sugar futures, with prices at midday showing declines of 24 to 27 points.

There were changes in refined sugar prices. Only a moderate inquiry was reported, with buyers inclined to hold off, owing to the unsettled conditions in the spot market. Prices were quoted at $9.75 to $9.90 for fine granulated. Refined futures were nominal.

CHIEF INTEREST HELD BY NEW AUSTRIAN LOAN

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, June 11.—Price movements in today's trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange were within narrow limits, with the undertone holding firm. Chief interest centered in transactions in the new Austrian government 7 per cent. These bonds offered at 90 and accrued interest sold 1¼ higher at one time and closed at 90⅜.

Most of the foreign governments' bonds sold slightly lower. United States government bonds moved within narrow limits, most of the liberties showing slightly improvement.

Industrial liens were dull and inclined to yield.

Total sales (par value) were $8,652,000.

BELGO-CANADIAN ISSUE MEETING GOOD DEMAND

Wood, Gundy & Co. and Newman, Sweezey & Co., Limited, and their associates, who are offering the new issue of $8,000,000 Belgo-Canadian Paper Co., Limited, 6 per cent first mortgage bonds, state that the issue is being very quickly absorbed. Approximately one-half of the issue was disposed of in the United States, and of the remainder the large proportion was sold by the first day of offering. The bonds are being offered at 99 and interest, yielding nearly 6.10 per cent.

FIRM TONE PREVALENT AT MONTREAL TRADING

Asbestos Recovers Much Ground Lost During Recent Operations.

Reported for The Advertiser by Johnston & Ward.

Montreal, June 12.—A slightly firmer tone prevailed on the Montreal Stock Exchange in the first part of today's session, although there was no special activity in any particular stock. The outstanding feature was provided by Asbestos Corporation common, which regained a good part of the ground lost in the past week or so. From a close of 54¾, the stock opened at 55 and jumped to 58, subsequently reacting to 57½. The action of the stock would seem to indicate an assurance on the part of shareholders that the dividend will neither be cut nor passed. One interest close to the company makes the statement that the present is rather early in the year for consideration of a change in the disbursement rate. This source stresses the fact that even though the dividend is not being earned at the present time, the financial position of the company is such that the payments could be maintained for some time even with operations completely closed down at the mines.

Another strong spot on the local list was Consolidated Smelting, which has reached a new high level on the present movement, touching 27½ on a turnover of approximately 150 shares.

Twin City duplicated its recent high level of 80, and all the public utilities were firm, with Bell Telephone at 121½, Brazilian Traction at 49, Illinois preferred at 91, Detroit United at 75, Montreal Power at 123, Quebec Railway at 23½, and Shawinigan at 120¾.

Pulp and papers were rather soft. Abitibi sold down ½ to 64½, Brompton declined ¼ to 39¼, while the Spanish issues were inactive but firm at 91 for the common, and 101½ for the preferred. Price Brothers was traded in at 44½, and Riordon at $2.50, a gain of 60 cents from the recent level.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 12.—With the exception of Barcelona, in which 600 shares changed hands, trading was very light on the local stock exchange this morning. There was no definite trend to prices, fluctuations being very narrow. Barcelona, opening at 31¾, advanced to 32 and held there during the morning, while Bell Telephone, opening at 122, declined to 121½ at noon. Duluth-Superior was half higher at 48½. The only sale of Bank of Hamilton stock was at 167½, a gain of 1½ over the last previous sale.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 12.—Trading was heavier on the Standard Exchange this morning, and the market was considerably strong all round. Two of the gold leaders, Hollinger and McIntyre, suffered losses, however. Hollinger was 10 lower at 13.40 and McIntyre 20 at 19.50. Dome Mines gained 25 at 39.25, Teck-Hughes 2 at 147, Goldale 2 at 63½, Clifton and Argonaut 1 each at 22 and 93. Silvers were also strong, Nipissing being 15 higher at 6.00, Crown Reserve 2 at 59, and Peterson Lake 2¾ at 13.

MARKET CONDITIONS SLOWLY IMPROVING

Steel Industry Active With Most Mills Operating at Capacity.

Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News says:

To say that market conditions are better than anticipated would be an exaggeration. But, nevertheless, the past week has, without doubt, shown improvement.

Though the improvement may be slight, it is an indication that conditions are likely to be fairly consistent for the third quarter, with a tendency, if anything, for the better.

Buyers of iron and steel have not as yet gained sufficient confidence in existing activities to warrant the issuing of orders for material in quantities other than for immediate needs.

On the other hand, the activity of the industry as a whole is illustrated by the fact that most of the large steel mills and engineering concerns are working to capacity and have enough orders on hand to keep them busy for some time to come.

The crop situation is very favorable. Farmers report that the steady, though slow growth of the grain is one of the best signs that the 1923 harvest will be a record one, not only in volume but in quality.

The buying of farm implements by the farmer will depend greatly on the returns he receives from his crop. If his returns are up to expectations, the implement industry can look forward to a healthy season of prosperity.

This, in turn, will revive, to a certain extent, the inactive departments of the steel industry, thus increasing the total expenditure for labor, which will result in a consumer-buying trend not apparent at present.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, June 11. — There was not much activity and little volume to the wheat market here today and outside of spreading business there did not appear to be any feature to the trade.

The market opened firm and a lot higher, but gradually eased off and closing figures were 1⅛c lower for July and ⅝c down for October.

There were no signs of export buying, and Seaboard reported a quiet trade over the week-end. The heavy advance of last week seems to have halted foreign traders for the present.

There is a moderate trade in coarse grains, but values were following the wheat trend and closed unchanged to fractionally lower. Flax was strong throughout the day and closed at an advance of 3⅝c for July.

Buyers were indifferent on the cash wheat market, the demand was poor and trading exceptionally light. Spreads were unchanged to ⅛c lower for the top grades. Cash oats and flax were in good demand, but barley and rye continued quiet with trading limited.

Cash prices:

CHICAGO

Chicago, June 11.—Prospective hedging sales of wheat lead to price setbacks today that more than wiped out early gains. The market closed steady, but ⅛c to ⅝c net lower, with July $1.11⅛ to $1.11¼ and Sept. $1.09¼. Corn finished at a range varying from ⅜c decline to ½c advance, and oats lost ⅛c to ⅝c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 7c higher.

With receiving houses reporting that country shippers were asking for prices on new wheat to arrive, it was generally assumed that hedging pressure would be much in evidence by the week-end. This circumstance more than counterbalanced a decrease of 1,666,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total, and the market seemed to sink under its own weight as the day drew to an end.

Corn and oats were governed for the most part by the action of the wheat market. Commission house purchasing of the December delivery of corn, though, was on a large scale, and that delivery closed at an advance.

Cash prices:
Rye—Nominal.
Barley—60c to 69c.

TUESDAY'S OPENING PRICES.

Chicago, June 12.—With better weather for harvest in the Southwest, lower prices on wheat formed the rule today during the early dealings. The fact that Liverpool quotations were easier had some additional bearish influence. Besides, there was no aggressive buying. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼c decline to ⅛c advance, were followed by a general setback to well below yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats tended downward in sympathy with wheat. After opening ¼c off to ⅛c to ¼c gain, the corn market underwent a moderate decline all around.

Oats started a shade lower to a like advance. Later all futures showed a slight loss.

Futures opened:
Wheat—July, $1.11; Sept., $1.09¼.
Corn—July, 81⅜c; Sept., 77⅜c.
Oats—July, 41⅞c; Sept., 38⅜c.

TRADING WAS QUIET AT TORONTO MARKET

Prices Hold Steady in Both Butcher and Export Sections.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, June 12.—Trading was a little on the quiet side in the cattle market today. Packers bought heavily late yesterday, and today were taking time for the yardmen to check up. The run was light, and the commission men were inclined to hold a few cattle over until tomorrow's market. Prices were solding good and steady in both butcher and export sections.

Exporters note that yesterday's cables intimated lower prices in the British cattle markets. This may mean a temporary slackening in the demand here, though it is not thought there can now be many of the winter's stall-fed cattle left in the country.

The fact that a recent shipment of cattle from Toronto market has been purchased for the King's Sandringham estate is cause for general comment and satisfaction in the local market.

The hog market is unsettled, packers talking lower prices, but holders are confident of holding steady or better.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts today, 56 carsfi, with 892 cattle, 316 calves, 843 hogs, 287 sheep and lambs.

Good fat cows reached a top of $6.25. The bulk of the medium good kinds were sold for $5.50 or better. Common cows that could be used for butcher purposes brought $4 and up. One heavy breedy bull brought $5.50, and a couple of very young bulls were sold for $6. Medium good kinds were mostly from $4 to $4.75.

Woodstock, June 11.—The price of live hogs dropped to $8.50 a cwt. on the local market today, with smaller offerings. Calves brought from 5c to 7c a pound, according to quality.

SHIPPING RATES LOWER AND SPACE PLENTIFUL

Montreal, June 12.—Far from the shipping companies having raised their rates or put up any other bar to cattle shipments since the removal of the cattle embargo, rates have gone down since last year, and there is plenty of space available, according to Duncan Campbell, one of the biggest, if not the biggest, cattle exporter in the Dominion, to whom the question was put by The Advertiser this morning. The inquiry arose out of the statements freely circulated in some quarters as to rates having been raised, and shipping companies refusing space for cattle going to England since the embargo was lifted.

"All nonsense," said Mr. Campbell. "Rates have gone down instead of up. Rates on cattle were around $25 a good part of last year. Today the rate is $20 everywhere, so the rate has gone down considerably. And there is plenty of space available for everybody that wants it. All that talk about holding up cattle shipments and refusing space is nonsense."

ALLIES PLAN TO SEND JOINT REPLY TO BERLIN

Germany To Receive An Answer Soon To Latest Reparations Proposals.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, June 12.—Evidence of negotiations between the allied governments with the purpose of arranging for a joint allied reply to Germany's last reparations note is seen in the fact that after the cabinet council last night it was decided any statement in parliament should be postponed for a day or two. The proposed debate in the House of Lords tomorrow, on the subject, also has been indefinitely delayed, so as not to embarrass the government in the pourparlers.

Lord D. 'Abernon, the British ambassador at Berlin, is in London assisting the ministers with advice, and in the meantime no official statements are being issued.

Special to The Advertiser.

Montreal, June 11. — At the special meeting of shareholders of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada a bylaw was passed, guaranteeing $1,750,000 of bonds of the West Kootenay Power and Light Company as part of an issue of $7,500,000. This action was a slight change from the ratification given by the shareholders at the annual meeting when the company has guaranteed the bonds of the West Kootenay Power and Light to amount not exceeding $2,000,000. At that time there was no intention of securing authority to exceed $2,000,000 as the total authorized issue, but since then it was decided to secure authority for $7,500,000, of which $1,500,000 was to be issued at once.

It was thought that the authority given at the annual meeting to guarantee $2,000,000 of bonds of an issue of just that amount did not give authority to guarantee $1,750,000 of an authorized issue of $7,500,000.

TICKER TALK

STOCKS.

Post & Flagg—The outlook for the week seems to promise further improvement.

Laidlaw—Trading tends to broaden out.

Jones, Easton, McCallum—The rails again constituted a big part of the market today. The entire market is in a good technical position, but needs something to stimulate public interest. We strongly lean to the view that basic conditions are sufficiently sound to take a position on the long side of the market.

GRAIN.

Harris Winthrop—Wheat news is regarded as bullish.

Lamson Bros.—A bull market hinges on export buying and better speculative support.

Bartlett Frazier—Expect higher prices for wheat. Corn is inherently strong.

Stein Alstrin—We look for sustained firmness in wheat and oats, but feel that corn may ease off.

Jones, Easton, McCallum—There may be some delay in harvesting on account of heavy rains, but, taken as a whole, the wheat crop, both winter and spring, is benefited rather than harmed, by the weather. This view of crop outlook, plus the apathy of the foreign buyers, leads to only one conclusion, namely, a sagging tendency.

The monster was harpooned Saturday evening, but put up a struggle that required a constant fight until late yesterday to land it.

CONVINCED THAT SOVIET GOVERNMENT IS STABLE

Special to The Advertiser.

Moscow, June 12.—"All I can see convinces me of the stability of the Soviet government," Irvine T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminal, New York, declared in an interview here yesterday. The American financier, who has been inspecting Russian industry, added he was most favorably impressed with the good condition of things in Russia at the present time.

"In my opinion, the United States and Russia will sooner or later be connected by business relations," Bush said. "At the present time, however, America hardly is a suitable market for the products Russia exports."

Perrins traded places in the standing of the Manufacturers' League with Murray Shoe last night, and got the better of the deal, when they defeated the "Shoesies" 9 to 4.

While it did look like anybody's game around the second inning, with the score 4 to 3 in Perrins favor, the "biscuiteers" ran in one more in the third, and scored twice in each of the fourth and fifth, putting all doubt out of reasonable reach. Murrays scored one in the last, in a rally that had threat written all over the face of it, but two of the would-be runs were cut off around the middle sack, and Sylverstein, who had tripled to center, was thrown out at the plate.

Oliver was found for 8 safe hits, walked four and hit three batters, while Chantler allowed six bingles and walked two. Oliver was given better support than Chantler, having only one error behind him, while Perrins erred thrice.

ASKIN GIRLS DEFEAT SPARK PLUGS 30--19

Other Y. W. C. A. Softball Game Declared a Tie.

Two fast games were played in the Y. W. C. A. Softball League at Alexandra School last night. Askin Street defeated the Spark Plugs 30 to 19 in a regulation 7-inning affair, but the second game, Smallman & Ingram Thistles vs. Brownies, was declared a tie and was called at the end of the 8th.

Askin Street girls went about their work early, and were leading 20 to 3 at the end of the third. Askin Street added 7 in the 4th, and Sparkies began an uphill fight too late. In the last two frames, the Spark Plugs sent ten counters across, but fell eleven short of the necessary number to annex the game.

The score:

Askin Street	11 54 733 x—30
Spark Plugs	2 10 601 9—19

The line-up:

Askin Street—I. Shoebottom, E. Essex, M. Townsend, M. Dunn, M. Horwood, R. Heximer, L. Luney, D. Knapton.

Spark Plugs—V. Summers, M. Stock, F. Morley, H. Johnson, E. Scafe, W. Willoughby, H. Stein, E. Carroll, E. Lewis.

Umpire—J. B. Ferguson.

The Smallman & Ingram Thistles' encounter with the Brownies has a history of its own, and several additional chapters may yet be written before the end is sighted. On the previous meeting of these two teams, no decision was awarded, and the game was ordered replayed last night. The disputed game went 9 good frames, and the girls insisted that last night's mix should, in all fairness, go the same distance.

At the end of the fifth last night, the Brownies were chuckling over a 17 to 5 lead they had safely tucked away, but the S. & I. Thistles turned around in the sixth and spoiled everything by running in an assembly of 17 tallies.

The game remained close until the first of the ninth, when Brownies again stretched into the lead. However, Umpire Blay ruled that moonlight ball might be hard on the eyes, and ordered the game to be replayed. The game will be replayed likely at the end of the season.

The line-up:

S. & I. Thistles—M. Graham, 1b; Rene Curnoe, c.f.; Doris Thorne, p.; Anne Hazelgroove, r.f.; Audrey Speiran, c.; B. Williamson, 3b; M. Trothen, 2b; M. Colbert, s.s.; Billy Graves, l.f. Spares —Irene Putherbough, Evelyn Putherbough.

Umpire—W. Blay.

Select Senior Manager After Tonight's Workout

The Senior O. B. A. A. squad will be out at Tecumseh Park tonight for the first workout of the week, and it is expected that there will not be an absentee.

Saturday's game with Stratford gave London fans a glimpse of a smooth working machine, but the oil must still be applied.

After the workout tonight, the players, along with Charles Ivey, William Greene and J. J Foot, will attend a luncheon-meeting and it is altogether likely that a new manager will be selected. That course was decided upon at last night's meeting of the L.A.A.A. baseball sub-committee held in the Forest City Club rooms.

The boys used the willow Saturday in approved fashion, and interjected hits in the most opportune moments of the game. But a perusal of the summary of the game disclosed the fact that London had four earned runs, as against Stratford's five earned runs. True, earned runs didn't win or lose the game, and Stratford was kind enough to fall all over some otherwise easy outs.

That kind of reception may not be offered London even at Woodstock on Saturday. The tail-end club oftentimes has a way of making things nasty when it comes to winning games, and you never can tell when Woodstock is going to start off on a little mission like that.

London played errorless ball Saturday. Burgess was charged with a slip, but it was almost a crime to have to charge him with it. Taking all this into consideration, London still needs practice, and lots of it. A baseball machine can't become too smooth.

Soccer Notes

By BILLY BISSET

Thistle Juniors have in their ranks this year quite a few promising players who only took to the "dribbling code" game within recent years, and who will undoubtedly make their mark in Ontario senior soccer football circles in the no distant future.

* * *

We wish at this time to introduce to our readers three of the "Jags" star players with a brief history of each player appended.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Dave Smith—Vice-captain of the "Jags. Dave needs no introducing to London soccermen. This season the popular Dave is showing great form as attack leader for the Jags.

* * *

Along with Dillon and Fisher he formed W. O. R. Juniors half-back line last season. Is a hustler from start to finish, and along with Billy Martin is "Jags' leading marksman. Dave is also a boxer of repute.

* * *

Roy Fisher—Although the irresistible Roy only took up soccer in the season 1921-1922, before which time he had never kicked a football, he is now claimed by the critics, both in London and St. Thomas, as being the best left half playing in London and district.

* * *

Roy is that type of player who never lets up until the last toot of the whistle. Win or lose the elusive Roy is just the same, and he is usually the first to congratulate the winners.

* * *

Although a half-back he has already scored two goals this season and fully intends to—ah, well, the others will be counted up later on in the season.

* * *

This column has been informed that Westminster Hospital F. C., will be unable to play Maple Leafs in the postponed L. and D. Free Press cup-tie proposed for Wednesday, June 13, at Springbank Park.

* * *

An executive meeting of the London and District Junior Football Association will be held in the "Y." tonight at 8 p.m. The meeting is open for club representatives only.

* * *

St. John's Rovers of St. Thomas, in winning over St. Thomas United Vets by 2 goals to 1 in a City League soccer tilt, played on Woodworth Ave. ground Saturday last, now attain the league leadership.

* * *

A meeting of the L. and D. will be held in the chamber of commerce board rooms, Wednesday, June 13, at 7:30 p.m., when all officers and directors are urgently requested to attend this important meeting.

* * *

The Michigan Central F. C. will be at home to the Caledonian F. C. tonight on the armory ground, when the fans can be occured of a hard ninety-minute grind between the two elevens.

* * *

The following will be the line-up for the M. C. R.: Dawson, Martin, Skelding, Robertson, Sunderland, Donnell, Medlyn, Smethurst, Rickston, Branston and Senior. Spares, Rutter, Burkley and Beales.

* * *

Over in the land o' purritch and peas bros' they are talking of organizing a Scottish Third Division League. The idea is meeting with much favor and it would not be surprising if the movement was to take practical shape.

* * *

There is nothing like competitive soccer to stimulate interest, as has been proven in English football for years.

* * *

Teams mentioned for the proposed Third Division are: Queen of the South, East Stirling, Leith, Athletic, Dykehead, Galston, Beith, Dumbarton Harp, Peebles, Nithsdale Wanderers and Mid-Annandale.

* * *

Owing to the close season many noted British association football teams are now on tour. Raith Rovers frae the lang toon o' Kirkcaldy, Scotland, left Friday last for the Canary Islands.

* * *

* * *

Glasgow Rangers, winners of the Scottish First Division League for season 1922-23, are also on a tour in Switzerland, while Glasgow Third Lanark are now in the Argentine.

* * *

By the way, speaking of Third Lanark it is announced that should the team play any extra games while it is away the money will go to the club and not to the players, as was the case when the Warriors toured Canada in 1921.

Douglas Thompson, who prior to the great war played for Winnipeg Scottish, who played remarkable games for Aberdeen, Scotland, last season, has transferred his soccer services to Grimsby. After a little episode a few months ago he was given a free transfer by the Wasps.

Pedalling

By Cyclist

Bill Coles, Dominion 10-mile champ, raced for six years before getting his title.

* * *

* * *

Norm. Tucker has ridden for three years. He has won a "pot" in every race in which he has competed. He is only 17 years old now.

* * *

This is Frank Graham's first year in the racing game, and he has the making of a real good rider in a year or so.

* * *

C. Henshaw, who pulled fastest time in the 21-mile road race, is one rider. We will see more of very soon. He is learning the game right. This is only his second year of riding.

* * *

We would like to see some of the old riders back on the track again, such as Harold Vick, Oscar Kraul, Lawrence Inch, Webster Cousins, Hilton, Godfree and Mike Emi.

* * *

There are many men in London who can ride 20 miles in the hour if they would come with the boys.

* * *

G. Davies has been training a little too hard. If he will ease up a little he will soon have th enecessary pep for the longer distance races.

* * *

L. Inch, who used to be with the fast ones, is thinking of getting back in the game again. That's one good bit of news.

RUSSO-BRITISH CRISIS NOW BELIEVED PAST

Soviet Requests Conference Be Held To Discuss Difficulties.

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

London, June 11.—Danger of a break between Russia and Britain has been definitely avoided by the conciliatory tone of a note from the soviet delivered to the foreign office here today, it was learned on reliable authority.

The Russian note requests a conference at which difficulties which have arisen between the two countries, and which led to the delivery of a sharp British ultimatum, may be straightened out.

Russia accepts Britain's figures regarding compensation for seizure of fishing vessels, and agrees to withdraw soviet agents wherever it is proved they have indulged in anti-British propaganda.

BALTIC STRIKES ROCK, HAS TO ABANDON TRIP

Associated Press Despatch.

Liverpool, June 12.—The White Star liner Baltic, which struck an obstruction, apparently a submerged wreck, two hours after leaving Queenstown for New York Saturday, and put back to port, reached Liverpool yesterday morning. It was arranged for her ot be docked for an examination as to the extent of the damage.

The Baltic's passengers were unaware anything had happened until they were informed the ship was heading homeward, and there was no excitement whatever on board. The passengers will resume their journey tomorrow on the Majestic from Southampton.

BILLY GODFREE FIRST IN BIKE ROAD RACE

Little Billy Godfree added another feather to his cap last night, when he finished first in the 7 1-2 mile road race held under the auspices of the Friendship Cycling Club. Billy, who claims just seven years, did the distance over the road from McCormick's to Crumlin and return in 26 1-2 minutes, starting from the 10-minute mark.

Bill Coles, Dominion 10-mile champion, riding from scratch was second to finish, and at that almost caught up to Billy. Coles covered the distance in 17 minutes and six seconds. Coles' mark from scratch, was 1 1-2 minutes better than that set by Billy Godfree, senior, five years ago. However, the course now is practically all paved, so that the feats might be figured comparatively equal.

C. Henshaw (scratch), was the second to cross the tape, finishing one length behind Coles, and Norm. Tucker, two lengths behind Henshaw, was third. Graham, who had 30 seconds start, was 4th and a 14-year-old boy, Sherlock, starting from the 1 1-2 minute mark was fifth, in 19 minutes even. Sherlock was to have been given 2 1-2 minutes start, but was late arriving. Had he been away on time, with the additional minute start, he would have been a neck and neck finisher with Coles.

As it was the finish of the seniors was close. The first three seniors to cross all rode from scratch, and four wheel lengths was the scant difference between first and third.

The big weekly meet for Wednesday night is attracting entries from all sections of the city. Some twenty entries are already in for the seven events, and from past experiences, it is almost certain that there will be several post-entries.

WANT AD TIPS

Co-operative Livestock Want Ads

A good, proved plan for livestock breeders located in the same district is co-operative Want Advertising. Two or more farms can participate. The cost is shared.

The benefits derived are numerous. To begin with, several swine breeders, for example, co-operating, can run very economically a Want Ad several times as long as any one of them as an individual probably could afford to. This means that each participant in the Want Ad plan gets the benefit of large space. Many more see and read the larger Want Ad. Each swine breeder, individually, has more inquiries, makes more sales.

Then there are the benefits of prestige. Each Want Ad will be headed with a brief explanation of the code of the association—how it stands for fair prices, how members guarantee satisfaction, how the association insists that each member maintain a reputation for square dealing with customers.

This will carry a good deal of weight—much more than similar assertions made by an individual concerning himself.

Following this general matter will come a list of members, addresses, what they offer, and prices.

If there are special features of the advertiser's district which constitute good "talking points," they should be used. Healthful environment is something that appeals to buyers, and often can be used. High, dry land, free range, for instance, people associate with strong, vigorous stock, in the case of poultry.

In some cases, convenience to buyers is the best talking point. If the advertiser's locality is close in and has frequent car service, that should be told. On the other hand, a far-out district can offset location disadvantages by advertising to meet inquirers and provide transportation. One fact of possible importance is that in these days of automobiles, a paved highway may be as favorable an asset as a carline.

RIVERVIEW GIRLS WIN TILT AT SOFTBALL

In the final play-off for the girls' championship soft ball team of the city schools, the fast-going Riverview girls defeated the Chesley avenue maidens by the close score of 1 to 0. The game was snappy and exciting till the final player was retired, and the large crowd that turned out to witness the tilt last night at Alexandra school grounds was evidence that a great deal of interest is being manifested by both young and old in this healthy form of amusement. Pearl Fortner, pitching for Riverview, played a brilliant game, and was given good support by her teammates, while the girls from the East End all played good baseball.

Owing to a dispute arising over a decision, the Riverview girls were not officially declared the winners until late this morning. The play in question was that of Hazel Daniels, catcher for Riverview, who catching a ball after it had hit the netting at the back of home plate, threw the ball to one of the fielders, who tagged a runner out for the losing team. However, this morning everything was smoothed out in a satisfactory way, and the girls from over the river were declared the champions of the city's schools for 1923.

RUNAWAY TEAM DRAGS YOUTH ACROSS FIELD

Special to The Advertiser.

Lion's Head, June 12.—To be dragged under a set of harrows across a field by a runaway team on the farm of his employer, Henderson Loughead, Eastnor township, today was the painful experience of Stanley West, son of James West, of Lion's Head.

The boy was released from this somewhat uncomfortable position when the team ran into a disc harrow in the field, the harrows to which the runaways were attached, overturning as a result of the impact. He was severely bruised and cut about the face and head, but escaped serious injuries.

NEW STEEL TO SARNIA READY BEFORE JULY 1

Work on New Rails Commenced May 1, and Progress Has Been Rapid.

The laying of new steel from London to Sarnia on the Canadian National will be completed by July 1, it is understood. This large undertaking was started on May 1, and railwaymen in London are agreed that the rapidity with which the work has been put across establishes a new record in the laying of new track in this division.

When the work is finished, the extra track gang will be divided. One section will be employed in leveling the rails and the replacing of worn ties, while the other section will be employed in putting in new switches along the entire track from London to Sarnia. When the whole undertaking is completed the C. N. R. will have a new main line to Sarnia.

Did Tory Speech Bulge Walls?

Special to The Advertiser.

Watford, June 12.—New steel supports have been placed against the outside walls of the Lyceum building. The reason given for this being necessary is that the volume of overheated oratory of the pre-election political conventions and meetings has a tendency to cause the walls to bulge. These steel supports made their appearance shortly after the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson's recent oratorical effort in the Lyceum.

THE KIRK IN CONCLAVE

Church Struggle Comes To An End With Victory For Unionists.

By R. E. KNOWLES.
Special to The Advertiser.

Port Arthur, Ont., June 12.—The twenty years war is ended and the unionists have won. With a resolution that nothing could stick, a tenacity not to be relaxed, the advocates of union held together, unmoved by appeal, undismayed by prediction of chaos.

The longest and greatest debate in the history of the general assembly came to an end at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was a splendid struggle, justifying the hazard that no other church in Canada could have furnished as many debaters of as high an order.

The great sweep and impress of the church were emphazied, while debate rolled on. Now a professor from the Atlantic Coast; now a missionary from the Pacific shore; again, a glowing commissioner from the northern zone, and after him a dark-skinned soldier of the cross from beneath Orient sky, while merchant prince, and ponderous judge, and pulpit orator, a rural pastor, all had their part, as the tide of battle waxed and waned.

Spirit of Highest.

The spirit of the contest, too, was of the highest. Sometimes a flash of feeling; occasionally a keen sword thrust, as the blade flashed in the light; often stern impact with the clash of arms, but almost throughout all the tingling hours a self-rectifying sense that the struggle was between Christian brethren, and that all alike were seeking to know, and to do the will of God.

The last day was great. The opening prayer was made by Griffith of Honan, the passion of a missionary's faith breathing through his faltering words.

Then came Drummond, speaking by privilege, defeated at every turn as he had been, but strong, earnest, noble to the last.

Supt. Byrnes, too, of New Ontario, had his place at pleading for the help union would bring to the struggling settlements of the north, with almost desperate intensity.

Has Added 57 Men.

Really, what can you do with a man, or against his cause, when he smites you between the eyes with the fact that an infant union policy has added 57 men and saved $40,000 a year in his diocese alone? And there comes another superintendent from the plains, Dr. Peter Strange of South Alberta, advocating in turn that the whole scheme be sent again to the people.

John Mutch of Nova Scotia, ardent and forward bent; Principal McKay, of varied allegiances through the years, with his caveat against coercion; Supt. Corine of Manitoba, eager for an onward bound; Robinson, from the outmost confines of Saskatchewan, echoing the plea of a Presbytery covering more space than all Britain; Cameron of Prince Albert, opposing the scheme entirely; Pidgeon, again to the fore with a final speech of masterly scope and power; over all Gandier, self-possessed and eager and conciliatory. All of these men and things, blending theology and philosophy and geography and humanity and sternity in a wonderful way, united to lend strength and color to a scene that has passed into history, to be forever remembered in history making in itself.

Too Early to Speculate.

It is too early to appraise the situation, or to speculate upon the final issue. The one thing which fills the eye of the church and the nation is the monumental fact that a new church has been born into the world, and that upon the breeze-swept northern shore of this great inland sea, something has been achieved, never before attempted or accomplished in the history of the world. And what is that separate thing? Unions have there been before, and unions there will be again, or rather reuionns have there been. In Canada, and across the sea, divided sections of the same dismembered family have come back to the ancestral home and returned to the unforgotten fireplace. But this is different.

For the first time in church history three great churches have set forth in an uncharted sea. Pioneers in the great adventure, these churches, two of them among the greatest in the world, have renounced their identity and their name that they might find themselves aney in a larger life, as they believe, of a blended church, which presents to the world the miracle of a world-wide ideal triumphing over a local pride.

Wider Fellowship.

Laying aside all estimate of the merits of opposing principles and claims, the fact remains, sublime in spectacle even to those who held aloof from it, that today, by a vote of 426 to 129, a church that glories in its noble history, its stateliness of worship, its range of scholarship, its wealth of martyr lore, did lay it all aside, so far as titular preservation is concerned, to achieve a wider fellowship, to do a vaster work, to indulge a broader vision, and, in effect if not in work as the tedious balloting went on, did set its trembling lips to sing:

"All the vain things that charm me most,
I sacrifice them to His blood."

The words which I have written are penned in loneliness and grief, not of hopelessness or regret, but in the strange consciousness that the Presbyterian Church in Canada, as we have known it so long and lovingly, has ceased to be; what survived of her glory in an unexpiring remnant there will be I do not know, nor does anybody know, nor is any amongst us able to predict what of confusion and babel may ensue. For the moment this may surely be forgotten.

Jewel of Sincerity.

The maelstrom seethes feverishly, of course, at the foot of every cataract, and this is one of the great waterfalls in the stream of time. The keenest may not fathom the depths of the sea, when storm has kneaded it to fury. But it was Jeffrey, a bitter "Auld kirk" man, who, from his sick bed in 1843, when the great free church secession passed before his door, broke into tears and cried: "I thank God for my country; no other could have done what these men have done today."

And as in this pregnant hour, it is surely left to every defeated nonunionist, heart sore and lonely though it be, to conceive the jewel of sincerity to the hundreds who loved, and still love, the old church as much as we, yet who, in devotion to a great ideal, inspired or misguided as you will, have maintained long years of loyalty to their cause, passed through a great debate without bitterness or hate; laid aside what they knew to be dear for what they believed to be best, and cleft to their pathway through such cloud and storm as our church has not known before.

More Majestic.

The Presbyterian Church, in both the sections which now rest at least temporarily from battle, has emerged from the great struggle more majestic than before. In intellect, spirituality, generosity, dignity, she stands before men clothed with a fuller grandeur than ever in the days of yore. And the atmosphere that marked the scattering throngs today, after the great fight was ended, the restraint and courtesy and control visible as foes and friends met and mingled, the dignity amid the grief and the smile, even through the tears, all seemed to promise that in coming days both sides alike will seek to extinguish animosity, to learn the will of God, and try to do it, to better themselves, "With malice toward none; with charity for all, and with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right" in the great days that lie before.

Canadian Manufacturers Are Decidedly Optimistic, See Big Business Boom

REPORT PROGRESS

Toronto, June 12.—Optimism appears to be a controlling thought in the deliberations of the 52nd annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which at the opening session yesterday brought together one of the most representative assemblages in the history of the organization.

The big item in the opening day's program was the comprehensive review of Canadian trade conditions from the president, J. R. Shaw, who sounded a note of confidence in the future, and appealed for a more friendly attitude on the part of the public towards the men who are endeavoring to establish the manufacturing industry in Canada.

That the organization has had its difficulties in the post-war years was shown by the report of the executive committee, which revealed that resignations were numerous in the last two years owing to the business depression, and consequently very large sums have been carried on the books as arrears of fees. However, this loss was partly offset by the addition of 1975 new members in the last four years. It was reported that the C. M. A. now has an office staff of 59, with offices in Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Montreal and Amherst, with subsidiary offices in Ottawa, Hamilton, Quebec and Victoria. The revenue of the year was $215,129.21, and there was a surplus of $18,625.93, the executive committee reported.

The reports of the legislation and industrial relations committee and the treasurer were also presented this afternoon and adopted. Following the afternoon adjournment, the members and their wives motored to the pavilion at Sunnyside, Toronto's lakeside resort, where tea was served, followed by a concert, "Canada in Song and Picture," presented in the Pompeian room of the King Edward Hotel, in the evening. The convention will resume at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

The Importance of the "Once Upon a Time" People and Their Saturday Page.

"Once upon a time!"

"Once upon a time" is when a fellow gets up at 4.30 in the morning picnic day, for fear he'll be too late. What if his eyes are almost too tired to keep propped open when it's time to start? He isn't losing any of that great and glorious day.

"Once upon a time" the world is a wonderful place in which almost anything may happen, such as discovering Spanish gold under a tree on the banks of the Thames. The tired looking circus lady in her hot red and gold garments is a princess royal on a snowy prancing steed, in the admiring eyes of the small girls gazing at her from the sidewalk.

"Once upon a time" the world is a place of wonder and adventure, a treasure house in which new and amazing things are continually being found. There are endless interesting things to do, if only one can find them, and innumerable ways of doing things, right and wrong. It's a pity to try the wrong ways, because it's such a waste of time.

"The Adventures of Piffles and Snood" by Lone Crow, the thrilling story of the Indian boy, taken on a mysterious trip to the mountains, were brought to a close for the present last week, but something else just as fascinating is going to spring a surprise next Saturday.

Everyone knows it is much more fun to make things yourself than have them all ready made for you, if you are of "once upon a time" age.

In "Tool-Craft," Frank I. Solar is showing each week all sorts of things for boys and men to make, and each step, so there can't be a mistake. Last week it was a lawn bench. Think what busy, happy holiday hours that would occupy!

Numbers of young people, readers of The Advertiser, are very familiar with the habits of horses, pigs, cows, chickens, dogs, cats, rabbits, and they feel quite well acquainted, through frequent visits, with the animals at the Springbank Zoo.

"Inside facts," which have the thrill of secrets, are told each week in the children's page about ugly "Mr. Hippo," or the wrinkly skinned camel which "humped" along the street in the procession when the circus was in town last week.

Stories, puzzles, games, drawing lessons that rub your funny-bone, comics to develop a real sense of humor, and news of boys and girls of other nations around the world, all these interesting things are contained each week in the Saturday page for the boys and girls.

Great people to keep up with the seasons are the Doo Dads! Last Saturday they went fishing and along came the old steamboat captain and spoiled everything with his racket, just as the fish were biting. Wouldn't that aggravate a fellow?

But, The Advertiser doesn't just wearily wait for Saturdays to pay respects to the citizens of "Once upon a time." Every day endeavor is made to minister to the education, interest and pleasure of a rapidly growing army of boy and girl readers. Every single day in six week days they have their "Children's Hour" when Thornton Burgess tells them a story. Every day they see what their old friends "Reg-lar Fellows" are doing. Every day, mothers and fathers get hints from Angelo Patri, and in the little picture talks, "Mothers and Their Children" with regard to better understanding and helping, and making the world a more worth while place for the children.

LONDON RINKS ENTER ST. THOMAS TOURNEY

July 11 Is Date Slated For Railway City Bowlers' Competition.

St. Thomas, June 11.—Among the entries received by the tournament secretary, Fred W. Judd, for the big annual bowling tournament to be held July 11 are two rinks from London. R. D. Hiller and Ed Weld have sent their entries in already.

Weld won the Times-Journal Trophy last year by turning in the third win. The cup became the permanent possession of the London Rowing Club. A new trophy has been donated, and apparently he is determined to take this one, if there is a possible chance. Arrangements are being made to make this event one of the biggest in the history of the club, as the event will be staged on the new greens on Metcalfe street.

ST. MATTS BOWLERS BUSY.

Rommel Not Going As Well This Year With Better Support—Walberg Might Yet Humble Giants?—If Detroit Had Ehmke Now.

By JOHN B. FOSTER.
Copyright.

New York, June 11.—All the elements of a baseball thriller hang today on the work of the pitchers of the Philadelphia Americans. The situation has been shaping toward the sensational ever since the Athletics began to indicate their ability to be runners-up in the American League. Rommell, best pitcher on the club in 1922, and seventh best in the whole league, had a brilliant future outlined for him before the season began. But he is not doing so well as he did last year, although he is ravenous for work. He has pitched in more games than any American League twirler so far this season, but he has not won as consistently as he did last year.

But look at Naylor on the same team. He won 10 and lost 15 games last year. This summer up to today he has won 7 and lost 1. It more than recompenses for what Rommel has not done. Then there is Harris, who has won fifty per cent of his games. Last year Harris lost twice as many as he won. Quite a turnover, and a juicy turnover for Mack who begins to see a pitching staff at last, after trying so many years to get one.

Now enters Walberg, the left-hander, who was forced from the Giants by the May 15 cleaning-out edict. He is not kindling the horizon, but he is proving that he is a worthy young man to whom to tie. All the northeast said the Giants had found a good man when they took him, but someone had to go, so McGraw decided it should be Walberg. Philadelphia grabbed him. Would it not be the irony of fate to have Walberg prove to be the winning southpaw of the Athletics and to help them into first place by his pitching success? It would be a story with all the calcium scintillating, if to wonder some more, Walberg should happen to get into a world series against those Giants who cast him off, and be the lustrous solitaire of that affray.

Watch the Athletics' pitchers carefully and you'll get the best idea from now on as to their chances for the championship, because those Mackmen compose a well-equipped team in other ways.

The chaps who could not see them in the spring are beginning to see them now. One great point in their favor is the splendid reserve material. Hale's hand was smashed and his ankle turned, but Riconda could and did hold the fort at third, and Scheer is so good that he is almost the equal of Dykes at second. Incidentally, Dykes and Galloway have fortified the Athletics around the keystone as well as any team is fortified in either league.

There is another pitching story on the American League, which is not so pleasant, and it is one reason why the claws of the Detroit Tigers are somewhat dulled even though they can rise on their hind legs and smash the ball with resounding thumps.

Had Ehmke come through for the Detroits in 1922 they might have won the pennant. He faltered more than once, however, in the decisive games, so he was traded to Boston, and for Boston, most of this season a tail-end club, Ehmke has won at the rate of .600. That kind of a pitching percentage by Ehmke in 1922 for the Tigers might have meant the snapping of the league pennant over the Tigers' field instead of that of the Yankees.

Cobb took from Boston Pat Collins, a pitcher who had formerly been with the Yankees, a burly, broad-shouldered chunk of Texas flesh, who has the strength to pull a balky mule forward, and who has won one game in eight starts for the Detroits.

It is pitching of no consequence that ails Detroit more than anything else, and the fact being well known to the players has affected their nervous complexes. Of course, they should not have nerves, but there are bad cases of them among the Detroiters.

By DANIEL.

He's rather sedate now, is Edward Trowbridge Collins — settled in his 37th year, baseball wise and silent though thoughtful on the field in his 17th season in the American League. Not half so sedate, a chatterbox in battle, was Eddie Collins, shortstop of the Columbia varsity in 1906 — that after he had been quarterback of the Columbia eleven of 1905.

Many a star has come and many a star has gone in baseball since Collins broke in with the Athletics in 1907 but Eddie still is on the job, the headiest infielder in the game, still hitting hard, with an average of .369 so far this season, still faster than the youngsters, with 19 stolen bases and the major league leadership in that pretty specialty to his credit.

Eddie is the perennial Collins, the star whose light refuses to diminish—the Collins who played with the White Sox in the world series of 1919, and still is out there playing second base for a much changed Chicago Club. It is to be regretted for the sake of Collins and the Yankees that the deal which was to have brought him to New York last winter fell through. But perhaps all the better for the game that Collins remained to give some lustre to the forces of old "Kid" Gleason.

Never Out of Shape.

A peculiar sort of ball player is this man Collins. He is never out of shape, never sulks, never complains without reason—almost a major league paragon if there be such. He is married and happy, and has a fine home down near Philadelphia. When the season is over Collins does not go into hibernation, taking on pounds and pounds of excess baggage and slowing himself up. He keeps himself in condition all winter with work in a gymnasium, handball being his specialty. Knowing himself to be fit Eddie never reports with the early birds at the training camp. He waits until it is almost time to begin playing games—in recent years these games down there in Texas have been with the Giants.

Alias Sullivan in 1906.

On the road Collins rooms with Schalk. They make a strange pair when they come down to breakfast, looking like a couple of salesmen about to go out for their day's orders, rather than a pair of star ball players. The other Sox call Collins "Cocky"—for the same reason that the other Giants call Nehf "Thoughy." The reason is—they aren't.

Our statement that Collins broke in with the Athletics in 1907 is correct and then not quite correct. As a matter of fact Eddie played with Connie Mack's club in 1906. He dropped down to Philadelphia for a trial and played under the name of Sullivan against the White Sox at short and third base.

In 1907 Collins returned to the Athletics, this time under his own colors. His signing with Connie Mack created considerable surprise as it was not thought that he would go into professional baseball. As we remember Collins at Columbia, he was quite a player, but somehow nobody figured him as a potential major leaguer. The Columbian, who was watched by major league scouts that year was Young, a catcher—the best backstop in the colleges that year, and there were quite a few good ones. Young got offers from half a dozen teams, but he turned a deaf ear to them.

And It Was Collins.

And it was Collins — the talkative, scrappy little Collins, who had come to Columbia from Tarrytown, N. Y., who took a place on the bench of the Athletics. Eddie wasn't needed by Mack then. So late in July Connie sent the collegian away to Newark for a week. He played a great game in the old Eastern League in that short spell and was yanked right back to step into a possible opening. There was another Collins with the Athletics that year — the great Jimmy, one time greatest of all third sackers, who was acquired in a trade with the Bostons for Jack Knight, who later came to the Yankees.

Eddie watched Jimmy that season—and old Lave Cross—and saw the Athletics, with Waddell, Bender and Plank, run second to the Detroits. In 1908 Collins (Eddie from Columbia) celebrated his coming into his majority by breaking in as a regular, playing second, third and short, and sprouting out as a coming star with a fine fielding average and a batting percentage of .273. In 1909 he settled down as the regular second baseman and had a rip roaring season, hitting for .346 and stealing 67 bases — an unheard of performance in these days of the jack-rabbit ball and the unscientific, slamming game.

Walter Hagen's Golf Primer

If any amateur is to win the British open championship I rather fancy that this individual will be Roger Wethered, the amateur champion. I am not picking Wethered to beat out all others on the strength of what he did two years ago, when he tied Jock Hutchison for the title, but rather on account of the brilliant game I saw him play at Deal a month ago.

Wethered is a magnificent player and one of whom we will hear a great deal of in days to come. He will always be winning big championships or will be thereabouts.

During the last fortnight I have had time to think over the work of this young man, who though but 24 years old, is a player of experience and skill. Wethered told me that his visits to America were fruitless as far as making a favorable impression in golf was concerned, yet he was certain that the trip had done him a lot of good and was the beginning of a change in style which led to his victory in the British amateur at Deal.

His failing to qualify in America was difficult to understand, especially since twice he failed to play sufficiently well to land a place among the first thirty-two.

He admits, and very frankly too, that watching Americans play had a lot to do with changing his game to meet more rigid requirements. He has altered his putting style to suit conditions. Instead of standing in a crouching attitude with the ball far out in front of the left foot, he has modified this very much. He uses the pendulum swing without the slightest suspicion of a jerk or a hitch. Ouimet was his model, so he says, and he regards Francis as the most perfect putter on the links.

A lesson can be learned from Wethered's driving. At Deal he was not hitting as long a ball as can be hit, by any means, and many of the gallery were surprised to see Harris in the final out driving him three times out of four. Wethered has been rated as the longest driver among the amateurs.

Wethered explained this very easily afterwards. He admitted that he had always pressed for distance from the tee and found that it did not cash in any dividends. His driving had a tendency to frighten the life out of his opponent at times, but when long hitting got him into more or less trouble by being off the line half of the time he felt it was time to call a halt.

Instead of long hitting from the tee he went out after more control. He is not content to play for position rather than for distance. In his Oxford days he no doubt would consider it an affront if any man had dared to hit a ball further than he did.

The new champion has remarkable iron shots now. I remember of seeing him hit a long iron to the green at the twelfth that no pro could have beaten. Vardon in his best days could have done no better. Wethered has proved himself quite good enough to win the British, and I am certain he is good enough to win our own title in America.

If this young man should win the open at Troon it would be a novelty to hold both championships at the same time, but it has been done before. John Ball, the grand old man of British amateur golf, did it back in 1890 and 26 years later, Chick Evans performed the same feat in America.

Ball won the open only once, while H. H. Hilton has annexed the title twice. No other amateur has come through nor even tied for the title in the past twenty-five years except Wethered. He is good enough to repeat his performance this year, and may walk off with the big end of the honors this time.

17 Events Down for Ontario Championships Here Aug. 4

Half-Mile Collegiate or High School Feature Should Attract Hamilton's Famous Quartet—Other Specials Are Added.

The events for the Ontario track championships which starts off London Old Boys' big week's program of sport have been announced by Secretary A. T. Taylor, of the track meet committee of the L. A. A. A.

There are some specials added to the usual regulation list of track meet events which will give the meet a big local angle and insure probably one of the biggest crowds ever to witness the Ontario track championships.

These championships will bring together most of the Ontario athletes likely to make the Canadian Olympic team and it is possible that in addition, some of the noted track stars of the continent will be brought to the city to give exhibitions though this has not been decided upon.

The "special event" is the half mile high school relay race, and while this distance is half a mile short of that favored by the famous relay team of the Hamilton Collegiate, it is expected that Capt. Cornelius' collection of stars will not pass up this event.

At any rate, the London Central Collegiate relay team, which has given the Hamiltonians more than one good brush and not always under favorable conditions, hope they won't. Other collegiates, notably Sarnia and Windsor, are likely to break into this event as well.

The city playgrounds, which are going full swing by August and with rivalry between them at its highest, have not been overlooked. A half mile relay, four boys to a team, and a 100-yard sprint, have been put down for them.

Entry blanks may be obtained from the secretary of the L. A. A. A., or the Ontario Branch Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, 46 Richmond street west, Toronto.

The entries will close July 30th.

The events are:

100 yards dash, 220 yards dash, 440 yards run, 880 yards run, one mile run, five mile run, two mile walk, running high jump, pole vault, running broad jump, running hop, step and jump, throwing 16lb. hammer, throwing 56lb. weight for distance, putting 16lb. shot, throwing discuss, throwing javelin, 120 yards hurdles, 10 hurdles, 3 feet 6 inches high.

SAYS HE DECLARED HE WAS NOT HURT

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, June 12.—William Green, a Detroit man, was charged with criminal negligence in the police court today in connection with the injuries sustained by James Batte of this city, who, it is alleged, was knocked down by Green's car as he alighted from a street car here at Louisa street on Thursday. Green's identity was learned through information that the car which hit Batte carried a Michigan license.

In court today Green claimed that he stopped and asked Batte if he could do anything to assist him and offered to drive him home. He stated that Batte declined, declaring that he was not badly hurt. He then drove to the next corner, he claims, and turned back to the scene, but upon arriving there found that the man had gone. He would have reported to the police, but he did not think the matter of any consequence, since the man assured him he was not hurt.

The case was adjourned a week and Green allowed out on $100 bail.

FINDS RUMRUNNER GUILTY OF SHOOTING

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, June 12.—Arthur J. Ryan of Petite Cote, said by the police to have made a fortune from dealing in liquor, was placed on trial Monday in the police court on charges of shooting at an officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and assisting a companion to escape from custody.

Ryan pleaded not guilty.

Mounted police officers told how they arrested Ryan and Ellery Paine, also of Petite Cote, the night of May 7, at Ford, after seeing a man leave Ryan's motor car with a jug of moonshine whiskey. When they arrived at the police station at Ford, Ryan and Paine were told to get out of the car. Instead, they speeded up the motor and escaped. Two shots were fired at the police from the automobile, while the officers fired half a dozen shots to stop them.

Ryan was found guilty of having committed an indictable offence. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

REPLY UNNECESSARY TO GERMANY'S NOTE

France, However, Willing To Enter Discussion on Reparations.

Paris, June 11.—No reply to the recent German note is considered necessary, so far as France is concerned, it was announced at the foreign office this forenoon, but if the Allies desire to improve the opportunity to resume a general discussion of the reparations question France is ready.

A reply by the Allies in common, it is held in official circles, would require probably several weeks' of negotiation because of the impossibility of their uniting in an answer until they themselves come to an agreement.

The only united action by the Allies now feasible in the view of France, it was said, would be a common notice to Germany that she must cease her passive resistance to the execution of the treaty of Versailles. Afterward the Allies would have leisure to go all over the problem if they were disposed to do so, but France will insist that if the discussions are resumed, they proceed on the basis of the French conditions as set forth at the Paris conference in January.

A Tramp in Paradise

Not Lonesome Lou and Weary Willie and Dusty Rhodes of the old-time joke books—the knight of the blind baggage, the brake rods, and the bumpers.

Not the wandering brother who dodged the woodpile, and sometimes caught the stone pile, who marked the friendly house for all visiting delegates.

Frying fish over a pine fire a thousand miles from the town we are fed up with once in a while.

Out where the west begins, or the east shows us something we didn't know was eastern.

Up among the gold mining boys of the north, or down to the land of Evangeline.

For a week or a month, for the whole summer, just You and Me, brother—a couple o' tramps in paradise.

And a carton of Strollers along to keep the taste in tune, and plenty more to cheer us up, anywhere, when those are gone.

Was the Mysterious Woman Passenger a Man After All? Police Begin Investigations

On the slippery, skiddy journey to East End two men—professional policeman and amateur criminologist—did not talk much. A few comments regarding the sudden advent of fiercest weather; a remark, forcedly jocular, from the chief, that murderers might be considerate enough to pick better weather for the practice of their profession—and that was all. Thus far they knew nothing about the case, and they were both too well versed in criminology to attempt a discussion of something with which they were unfamiliar.

Spike Walterse saw them coming—saw their headlights splitting the frigid night. He was at the curb to meet them as they pulled up. He told his story briefly and concisely. Leverage inspected the young man closely, made note of his license number and the number of his taxicab. Then he turned to his companion, who had stood by, a silent and interested observer.

"S'pose you talk to him a bit, Carroll."

"I'm David Carroll," introduced the other man. "I'm connected with the police department. There's a few things you tell which are rather peculiar. Any objections to discussing them?" a

In spite of himself, Spike felt a genial warmth toward this boyish-faced man. He had heard of Carroll, and rather feared his prowess; but now that he was face to face with him, he found himself liking the chap. Not only that, but he was conscious of a sense of protection, as if Carroll were there for no other purpose than to take care of him—to see that he received a square deal.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Carroll. I'll be glad to tell you anything I know."

"You have said, Walters, that the passenger you picked up at the Union Station was a woman."

"Yes, sir, it was a woman."

"Are you sure?"

"Why, yes, sir. I couldn't very well be mistaken. You see—o-o-h! You're thinking maybe it was a man in woman's clothes? Is that it, sir?"

Carroll smiled.

"What do you think?"

"That's impossible, sir. It was a woman—I'd swear to that."

"Pretty positive, eh?"

"Absolutely, sir. Besides, take the matter of the overcoat the—the—body has on. Even if what you think was so, sir—that it was a woman dressed up like a man—and if he had gotten rid of the woman's clothes, where would he have gotten the clothes to put on?"

"H-m! Sounds logical. How about the suitcase you said this woman had?"

"Yonder it is—right on the front beside me, where it has been all the time."

"And you tell us that between the time you left the Union Station and the time you got here a man got into the taxicab, was killed by the woman, the woman got out, and you heard nothing?"

"Yes, sir," said Spike, simply. "Just that, sir."

"Rather hard to believe, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir. That's why I called the police."

"S'pose we take a look at the bird, David," he suggested, nodding toward the taxi. "That might tell us something."

Carroll nodded. The men entered the taxi, and Leverage flashed a pocket-torch in the face of the dead man. Then he uttered an exclamation of surprise not unmixed with horror.

"Good Lord!"

"You know him?" questioned Carroll, easily.

"Know him? I'll say I do. Why, man, that's Roland Warren!"

"Warren! Roland Warren! Not the clubman?"

"The very same one, Carroll, an' none other. Well, I'm a sonovagun! Sa-a-a, something surely has been started here." He swung around on the taxi-driver. "You, Walters!"

"Yes, sir?"

"You are sure the suit case is still in front?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well"—to Carroll—"that makes it easier. It's the woman's suitcase, and if we can't find out who she is from that, we're pretty bum, eh?"

"Looks so, Eric. You're satisfied?"—this to Walters—"that that is her suitcase?"

Carroll swung the suitcase to the inside of the cab. It opened readily. Leverage kept his light trained on it as Carroll dug swiftly through the contents. Finally the eyes of the two men met. Carroll's expression was one of frank amazement; Leverage's reflected sheer unbelief.

"It can't be, Carroll!"

"Yes—it is!"

"Sufferin' wildcats!" breathed Leverage. "The suitcase ain't the woman's at all! It's Warren's!"

"Find the Woman."

The thing is incomprehensible, yet true. Not a single article of feminine apparel was contained in the suitcase. Not only that, but every garment therein which bore an identification mark was the property of Roland Warren, the man whose body leered at them from the floor of the taxicab.

The two detectives again inspected the suitcase. An extra suit had been neatly folded. The pockets bore the label of a leading tailor, and the name "Roland R. Warren." The tailor-made shirts and underwear bore the maker's name and Warren's initials. The handkerchiefs were Warren's. Even those articles which were without name or initials contained the same laundry mark as those which they knew belonged to the dead man.

Carroll's face showed keen interest. This newest development had rather startled him, and made an almost irresistible appeal to his love for the bizarre in crime. The very fact that the circumstances smacked of the impossible intrigued him. He narrowed his eyes and gazed again upon the form of the dead man. Finally he nudger Leverage and designated three initials on the end of the suitcase.

Carroll turned to the dazed Walters.

Spike's teeth were chattering with cold.

"I don't hardly understand none of it, sir. 'Cording to what I make out, that suitcase belongs to the body and not to the woman."

"Lordy, Mr. Carroll, I couldn't be knowing that."

"You're sure the woman got into your cab alone?"

"Absolutely, sir. She came through the waiting-room alone, carrying that same suitcase——"

"You're positive it was that suitcase?"

"Yes, sir—that is, as positive as I can be. You see, I was on the lookout for a fare, but wasn't expecting one, on account of the fact that this here train was an accommodation, and folks that usually come in on it take street cars and not a taxi. Well, the minute I seen a good-lookin' well-dressed woman comin' out the door, I sort of noticed. It surprised me first off, because I asked myself what she was doing on that train."

"You thought it was peculiar?"

"I see. Go ahead!"

"Well, she was carrying that suitcase, and she seemed in a sort of a hurry. She walked straight out of the door and toward the curb, and——"

"Did she appear to be expecting someone?"

"No, sir. I noticed that, particularly. Sort of thought a fine lady like her would have some one to meet her, which is how I happened to notice that she didn't see to expect nobody. She come right to the curb and called me. I was parked along the curb on the right side of Atlantic avenue—headin' north, that is—and I rolled up. She handed me the suitcase and told me to drive her to No. 981 East End avenue. I stuck the suitcase right where you got it from just now; and while I ain't sayin' nothin' about what happened back yonder in the cab, Mr. Carroll, I'll bet anything in the world that that there suitcase is the same one she carried through the waitin'-room and handed to me."

"H-m! Peculiar. You drove straight out here, Walters?"

"Straight as a bee-line, sir. Frozen stiff, I was, drivin' right into the wind eastward along East End avenue, and I had to raise the windshield a bit because there was ice on it, and I couldn't see nothin'—an' my headlights ain't any too strong."

"No, sir. Wait a minute—I did!"

"Where?"

"At the R. L. and T. Railroad crossing, sir. I didn't see nor hear no train there, and almost run into it. It was a freight, and travelin' kinder slow. I seen the lights of the caboose and stopped the car right close to the track. I wasn't stopped more'n fifteen or twenty seconds, and just as soon as the train got by, I went on."

"But you did stand still for a few seconds?"

"Yes, sir."

"If anyone had got into or out of the cab right there, would you have heard them?"

"I don't know that I would. I was frozen stiff, like I told you, sir; and I wasn't thinking of nothin' like that. Besides, the train was makin' a noise; an' me not havin' my thoughts on nothin' but how cold I was, an' how far I had to drive, I mos' prob'ly wouldn't have noticed—although I might have."

"Looks to me," chimed in Leverage, "as if that's where the shift must have taken place; though it beats me——"

Carroll lighted a cigarette. Of the three men, he was the only one who seemed impervious to the cold. Leverage and the taxi driver were both shivering as if with the ague. Carroll, an enormous overcoat snuggled about his neck, his hands thrust deep into his pockets, his boyish face set with interest, seemed perfectly comfortable. As a matter of fact, the unique circumstances surrounding the murder had so interested him that he had quite forgotten the weather.

"Obviously!" he said to Leverage, "it's up to us to find out whether the people at this house here expected a visitor."

"You said it, David; but I haven't any doubt it was a plant, a fake address."

"I think so, too."

Three minutes later Leverage was back.

"Said nothing doing," he imparted laconically. "No one expected—no one away who would be coming back—and then wanted to know who in thunder I was. They almost dropped dead when I told 'em. No question about it, that address was a stall. This dame had something up her sleeve, and took care to see that your taxi man was given a good long drive so she'd have plenty of time to croak Warren."

"Then you think she met him by arrangement, chief?"

"Looks so to be. Only thing is, where did he get in?"

"That's what is going to interest us for some time to come, I'm afraid. And now suppose we go back to town? I'll drive my car; I'll keep behind you and Walters, here. You ride together in his cab."

Walters clambered to his seat, and succeeded, after much effort, in starting his frozen motor. Leverage bulked beside him on the suitcase of the dead man. The taxi swung cityward, and immediately behind trailed Carroll in his cozy coupe.

As Carroll drove mechanically through the night, he gave himself over to a siege of intensive thought. The case seemed fraught with unusual interest. Already it had developed an overplus of extraordinary circumstances, and Carroll had a decided premonition that the road of investigation ahead promised many surprises.

There was every reason why it should. The social prominence of the dead man, the mysterious disappearance of the handsomely-dressed woman—all the facts of the case pointed to an involved trail.

If it were true that the woman had entered the taxi alone, that the man had come in later, and that the murder had been committed by the woman in the cab before reaching the railroad crossing, the thing must undoubtedly have been prearranged to the smallest fractional detail. That being the premise, it was only a logical conclusion that persons other than the woman and the dead man were involved.

Interesting—decidedly so! But there was nothing to work on. Even the suitcase clue had vanished into thin air, so far as its value to the police was concerned.

That suitcase bothered Carroll. He believed Spike's story, and was convinced that the suitcase which they had examined out on East End avenue was the one which the woman had carried from the train to the taxicab. There again the trail of the dead man and the vanished woman crossed; else why was she carrying his suitcase?

The journey was over before he knew it. The yellow taxi turned down the alley upon which headquarters backed, and jerked to a halt before the ominous brown-stone building. Carroll parked his car at the rear, assigned someone to stand guard over the body, and the three men, Leverage carrying the suitcase, ascended the steps to the main room, and thence to the chief's private office.

The warmth of the place was welcome to all of them, and in the comforting glow of a small grate fire, which nobly assisted the struggling furnace in its task of heating the spacious structure, Spike Walters seemed to lose much of the nervousness which he had exhibited since the discovery of the body. Carroll warmed his hands at the blaze, and then addressed Leverage.

"How about it?"

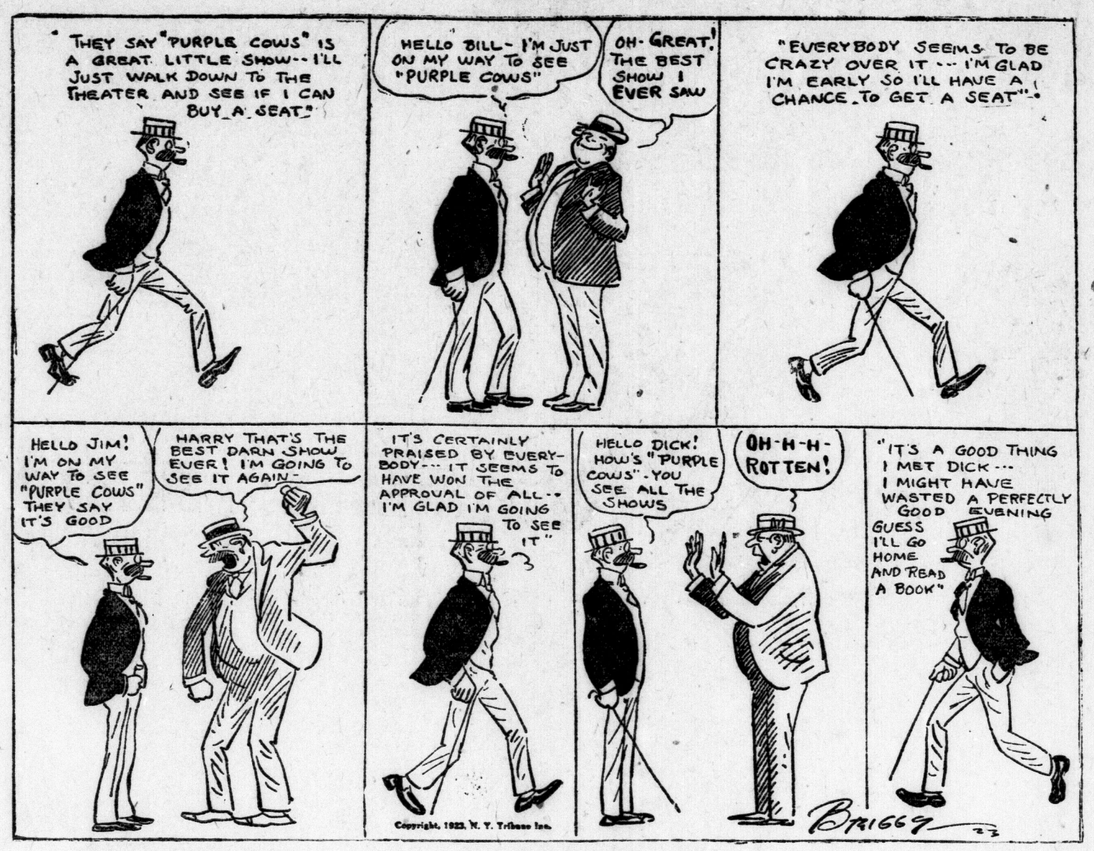

"You want me to butt in on it?"

"Want you? Holy sufferin' oysters! Carroll, if you didn't work on it, I'd brain you! You're the only man in the state who could——"

"Soft-pedal the blarney," grinned Carroll. "And now—the suitcase again."

The CHILDREN'S HOUR

LITTLEST BEAR IS LONESOME.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The lonely fill life's saddest part,
For loneliness is of the heart.
—Old Mother Nature.

Littlest Bear, who had run away, took a long nap in the tree which she had climbed. When at last she awoke, she didn't remember at first that she had run away. She had had a good nap, and she was feeling fine. She looked around for Brother and Sister, and at first she didn't know what to make of it when she couldn't find them anywhere in that big tree. Then she remembered. Such a queer feeling as she had when she realized that she was all alone.

At first it was a very fine feeling. At least she tried to think it was.

"I can do just as I please now," said she. "I don't have to stay up in a tree unless I want to. I can go where I please when I please. I guess Mother Bear is sorry now that she treated me the way she did. Yes, sir, I guess she is sorry. And I guess Brother and Sister wish they had treated me better. I guess they wish they hadn't grinned at me when I had to stay up in that tree while they were feasting on fish."

Littlest Bear scrambled down the tree. When she reached the ground, she sat down and tried to decide which way to go. There really was no choice. It didn't make any difference which way she went. You see she was so completely lost that she hadn't the least idea where she was. One direction was as good as another.

So presently Littlest Bear started off aimlessly. She wandered this way and that way, stopping to examine whatever caught her attention. It was afternoon, and very pleasant there in the Green Forest. Littlest Bear poked her inquisitive little nose into hollow stumps and holes in the ground, and stopped to look at everything new she came across. She was in a strange port of the Green Forest, and there were many things to see.

But after a while Littlest Bear began to miss Brother and Sister. She felt just like having a romp, but there was no one to romp with. Always she had had someone to play with, and she really didn't know how to play by herself. Littlest Bear was growing lonesome. She wouldn't admit it to herself, but nevertheless it was true. She tried to pretend that she was glad Brother and Sister were not around. But the more she tried to pretend this, the more she kept thinking about them and wishing they were there.

She was hungry. She tried not to think of her stomach, but her stomach made her think of it. She dug up a few little roots, and these helped. But she didn't know where to look for plenty. Always she had depended on Mother Bear. Somehow never before had the Green Forest seemed so quiet. She kept stopping to listen for familiar sounds, but there were none. There was no wind.

Not a single Merry Little Breeze was stirring. Not a leaf moved. And quite suddenly the sunshine disappeared and it began to grow strangely dark. All of a sudden Littlest Bear wanted Mother Bear and Brother and Sister as never before had she wanted anything in all her life. Not in all the Green Forest was there anyone as lonesome as Littlest Bear.

Only $30 More.

All the badges, with the exception of three, those for Slow Aunt Kate, Mother's Only Girl, and English Edythe, were sent out last week. The order was sent three short. These will be sent out, however, by tomorrow, as I ordered another supply immediately. I am hearing nothing but expressions of delight from those of the Boxites who have received the pins. And of the remaining $81 at the last announcement, Boxites, over $50 has been raised, so let us put forth an extra effort to raise the remainder and have our cot duly brass-tagged and labelled "Cynthia Grey."

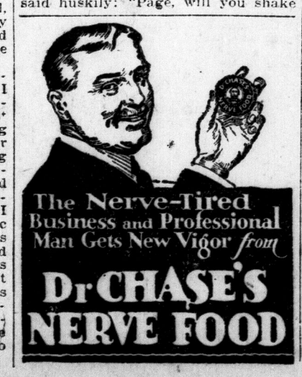

Wandering Into Byways.

Dear Miss Grey.—You were asking the Boxites to tell which ten books they had enjoyed the most. First and foremost, I would put "The Water-Babies." I had it given to me on my tenth birthday and I am now twenty, but I have read it every year since then, and I expect I will read it always, at least once a year. It had a nice bright blue cover when I got it, but the cover has long since passed away and the leaves are dog-eared, but I still like it better than any other book. In a weekly paper that we take there is a quotation from Emerson to the effect that whenever a new book comes out, read an old one. That is what I do, I guess. The next two books I would say are "The Three Musketeers" and "Vanity Fair."

Perhaps if well-educated people read this letter they will think that I am displaying very poor taste, but they'll only know me by my pen-name, Miss Grey, and these are the books that I really and truly like. When I was about fourteen, I was reading all the "Mrs. Meade" books that I could lay my hands on, but now I would hardly count them as my favorites. Unlike most girls, I never did like the "Elsie" books. One of my favorites is the book by Frank Packard, the Canadian writer, about "The Grey Seal." I think it is the best mystery story I have ever come across. Then I should say Conan Doyle's short stories about Sherlock Holmes and other things, "Henry Esmond," Washington Irving's "Sketch Book," "The Scarlet Pimpernel," and "T. Tembaron" (I think by Frances Hodgson Burnett). What do you think of this as a selection, Miss Grey? I go to the library regularly every week and take home two or three books, so you see I do a lot of reading and it is hard to make a selection. There is a book I should very much like to find out about. I noticed it in a library once, when I was away from home on a visit. I don't know the name, but it contained the story of Sohrab and Rustum which we took up at high school, "The Rubalyt," and a great many Persian poems. I should like to find out where I could get it and the name.

THE BOOKWORM.

I am glad to find such a ready response to the request, Bookworm. I can't help being very much interested in your selection. You must have done a great deal of rambling in the literary side-roads during your twenty years, rather than following a straight and narrow path of reading. I believe I myself have read every book you mention, with the exception of the Persian poems, and I am going to inquire at the public library for you about it. It is years since I read "The Water-Babies," and all that I can remember about it is that Tommy (or was it Tommy?) got into such thrilling adventures through his episode with the chimney-sweep. But I have already decided that I am curious about those adventures and am determined to read it again.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

THE RIGHTEST THING OF ALL.

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

"It's a funny old world—whiles kind, whiles cruel. Must be it keeps books with itself," Jane Merry said, throwing down the county paper only partly read.

Her niece Bertha smiled roguishly at her saying: "Text, please! Of course the sermon has one."

Jane nodded. "And one mighty pat," she said. "Page Newton. You remember how he was hounded away from his home county? Now it's getting up a big reception for him when he comes home next week—yet he didn't do any particularly heroic thing—nor get a wound worth speaking of."

"He stayed over there—don't you call that heroic? I do." Bertha flung back. "Think of staying on years and years, where all things are topsy-turvy—where simply getting enough to eat is a matter of contrivance, even when you have Uncle Sam for a side-partner of sorts. It would be clean beyond me—no matter how badly I might have seemed to be needed. His job wasn't a taking one—just a matter of endless accountings—trying to straighten tangles that will never be straight—and letting his own farm here at home go to seed—"

"His conscience kept him," Jane interrupted.

Bertha shrugged. "I am mighty glad I have one of another sort," she said.

Jane gave her a keen, narrow look, saying meditatively after it: "Maybe that's the main reason he stayed on when the other boys came home."

"What folks don't know they can't tell—except sometimes," Bertha flung over her shoulder as she darted away.

Jane shook her head slowly, heavily, and swallowed something that kept rising in her throat. She was but a year older than Bertha. Being brotherless, they had adopted Page Newton in short frocks, and stood by him loyally when the storm broke. He had been accused of forgery—of signing a receipt for money he claimed to have paid. His creditor had refused to prosecute—had said it was a matter between two gentlemen—only that and nothing more. Gossip had made so much more of it Page had begged frantically for legal action. The other man had smiled restrainedly, saying, "Better go somewhere else, my friend. I'll never make you any trouble; but it won't be pleasant for you here."

Bertha would have married him out of hand just then if only he had asked her. He did not ask. He would never ask any woman to bear his name until he had cleared it. Jane understood and thrilled with sympathy. She had seen for a year where he had given his love, so had locked her own neatly away, resolving to keep ware of all things that might in the end help him. Then, though exempt by slightly defective eysight, he had volunteered in the last year of the big war. Getting overseas, he stayed there all through the after-armistice turmoil, mucking and delving, doing his duty as he saw it—in his brief notes to Jane never even hinting at return.

Suddenly, a bolt from the blue, something had befallen. Thanks officially from the highest source for his work, his value, his incredible patience. On top of that—this homing. Naturally it had stirred the community—all the more, perhaps, because it had come to feel it had done him gross injustice. A man who might have got away with millions, and nobody the wiser, wasn't the sort to steal a paltry $300. Even Joe Gardner, who "had not remembered" getting the money, now said as much publicly—after that, big doings were inevitable.

Bertha rejoiced in them—Jane resented them fiercely. She wanted Page also to resent them—he ought to refuse to be forgiven the wrong that had been done him. Still, she knew it would be wiser to let bygones be bygones. He would come back empty-handed—of that she was certain—and it would be well to have neighborly co-operation in setting to rights that run-to-seed farm. Joe Gardner could give it best of all. He was still a bachelor, still thriving mightily, though he had brought back from the trenches only a left arm—plus a cross. And he had tried tentatively to make up to the Merrys. Jane knew Bertha was the magnet, and so knowing, deduced something else. Bertha was high and merry with him—flouted him half the time, smiled on him the other half. Jane swore—inside—over the smiles—they were such black treachery to Page.

The reception turned out to be "Hamlet" minus Hamlet—Page had left the train ten miles from town and motored home across country. Thus he came upon the Merry girls all unawares—and found them offering a rather chilly welcome to Joe Gardner, who had come to tell them of Page's defection. It was no open slight—the committee had meant to surprise him, take him in triumph to the town hall, where everybody would cheer for him and crowd to shake hands. Fate perhaps knew what game she was playing when she interfered. Certainly there was dramatic fitness in the gathering of the four within the wide, comfortable Merry living room, every face tense.

Bertha kissed Page warmly, Jane merely offered a tremulous hand. Gardner stood back for them, then straightened, cleared his throat and said huskily: "Page, will you shake this left hand because of what happened to—the other?"

Gardner paled to the lips. "Because I don't deserve to have you," he said. "And right here and now I'm going to speak truth. I knew you had paid that money—knew well I asked you to sign the receipt, as I was to busy. Not that I wanted to do you great harm—only to help myself rob you.

"I thought—with you out of sight—away for good—I'd have a chance with—Bertha. I knew I had none so long as you stayed. It was a coward's trick—dastardly. I realized how dastardly there in the trenches—and I tried to live through, so as to make amends. Now—I've set you right here before her. And I'll tell you, I haven't been able to make her forget you—though I've tried hard—"

"That is—not until now," Bertha said giving him a melting look. "Joe, don't you see that old affair wasn't real—not actual man and woman love? Just boy and girl fancy. Page does, I know—or else he wouldn't have stayed so long away—"

"How did you know?" Page interrupted, then, wheeling upon Joe: "You don't know how glad I am at what you've done. Out in the after war mixings I ran across somebody—the strange fellow who heard you ask me to sign your name, there in the bank. I helped him a bit—we got chummy after he was on his feet—then he remembered me—remembered everything, said he thought at time what a risky thing I did then—and wondered if doing it had ever made me trouble. I—passed it up—no need to spread the matter further. But then and there I said I'm going home to face Joe—and see what will happen. The right thing has happened, the rightest thing possible. No need of wishing you joy—you'll have it certain as you get Bertha—"

"But you're all wrong about this being the best, the rightest thing," Bertha broke in with a deep, lovely blush. "Now you'll see what ought to have been plain from the beginning—Janey is worth a dozen of me any day in the week."

"Nobody else ever had one," Jane whispered back. So four happy people sat down to a splendid supper—and there is reason to think they will live happy ever after.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH SO MANY COMPLEXIONS?

Body ills are often due to a wrong diet—indeed, what we eat has largely to do with good or bad health. But there is one disorder that we can definitely trace to faulty food, a pimpled or erupted skin. Even beauty culturists admit the cure must come from within—balms, lotions, ointments being external agents to relieve but not to banish.

Especially in summer must the diet be watched. White flour, meats, sweets, and refined cereals are "Excess Acid," and "Excess Acid" food cause acid blood. Acid blood is the direct cause of unsightly complexions.

Roman Meal is the natural corrective of this skin condition, because it is the richest in alkalis of any grain product. In fact, it is the only alkaline grain product now sold. This is because it contains the dark flour from three whole grains, and the dark flour is the part of grain that carries these alkalis. The white, dainty, refined flour and cereals have these mostly refined away, hence acid blood and unsightly skin conditions. In hot weather acid foods are especially baneful to the skin, because the skin is then so active in throwing off blood acids through the sweat glands.

Roman Meal corrects blood acidity, soothes, heals, and clears the skin. For hot weather icy-cold BROSE-O-CHOCOL-O, JELL-E, made with Roman Meal, are especially delightful. With milk, cream, whipped cream, honey, preserved or fresh fruits they are all hot-day treats made in ten minutes. Prevents indigestion, relieves constipation. At grocers. Advt.

"THE FRENCH."

The term is new to many, but the summer season follows summer season, the words spread, and the meaning is passed along. Two hundred and fifteen miles north of Toronto, on the Canadian Pacific main line to Sudbury, the mighty French River rushes on its way to Georgian Bay, there to lose itself amongst the Thirty Thousand Islands that dot the bay. From Lake Nipissing and adjoining waters, it takes its course for 60 miles through one of the most beautiful camping and sporting countries to be found in Ontario.

The country appeals to all those looking for the big open place. There is wonderful fishing to be had—bass, maskinonge, pike and pickerel. In season, there is the finest deer hunting, some bear, and good bags may be obtained of the small animals and game birds. Boats, canoes, all equipment and guides, can be obtained for excursions to the head waters of the river and Lake Nipissing.

This year, the Canadian Pacific Railway is building a Bungalow Camp, convenient to the railway, which will be conducted along similar lines to the Bungalow Camps which the company has been operating for some years in the Canadian Pacific Rockies. The descriptive folder, "Bungalow Camps in Ontario," contains full information. There are also other camps, conveniently located, privately-owned, with accommodation for large or small parties. All camps are well conducted. Accessibility to the railway provides the camps with fresh food.

"The French" should receive your careful attention when planning your own or your family's vacation. Any Canadian Pacific agent will be pleased to quote you fares and assist you in making arrangements. A concise descriptive folder on the French River District, quoting rates at camps and hotels in the towns, will be gladly mailed on request. Write W. Fulton, district passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Toronto. —Advt. J12,15

New Stories By O. HENRY

A STARTLING DEMONSTRATION.

What a terrible state of affairs it would be if we could read each other's minds! It is safe to say that if such were the case most of us would be afraid to think above a whisper.

As an illustration, a case might be cited that occurred in Houston. Some months ago a very charming young lady came to this city giving exhibitions in mind reading, and proved herself to be marvelously gifted in that respect. She easily read the thoughts of the audience, finding many articles hidden by simply holding the hand of the person secreting them, and read sentences written on little slips of paper by some at a considerable distance from her.

They went to housekeeping and for a time were as happy as mortals can be.

One evening they were sitting on the porch of their residence holding each other's hands, and wrapt in the close communion of mutual love, when she suddenly rose and knocked him down the steps with a large flower-pot.

He arose astonished, with a big bump on his head, and asked her, if it were not too much trouble, to explain.

"You can't fool me," she said with flashing eyes. "You were thinking of a red-headed girl named Maud with a gold plug in her front tooth and a light pink waist and a black silk skirt on Rusk avenue, standing under a cedar bush chewing gum at twenty minutes to eight, with your arm around her waist and calling her 'sweetness,' while she fooled with your watch chain and said: 'Oh, George, give me a chance to breathe,' and her mother was calling her to supper. Don't you dare to deny it. Now, when you can get your mind on something better than that you can come in the house and not before."

Then the door slammed and George and the broken flower-pot were alone.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION by Felice Davis

THE PERFECT MAN

Harriet—No, I don't want to marry the best man alive!

Arthur—I'll join the church!

Harriet—No.

Arthur—And become a Sunday school teacher—

Harriet—No.

Arthur—And in a little while I think I can become a deacon.

Arthur—And then I'll organize Bible classes.

Harriet—No.

Harriet—No.

Harriet—No.

Arthur—I'll take up missionary work.

Harriet—No.

Harriet—No.

Arthur—I'll—I'll do all this because I love you!

Harriet—If you did all those things you'd be the best man alive!

Arthur—Yes, it will be hard, but——

Harriet—And then you'd be the very thing I said I wouldn't marry.

Arthur—You mean, the best man alive?

Harriet—Yes, because I'm no saint myself. I'm a red-blooded woman.

Arthur—Yes?

Arthur—That description fits me just as I am!

Harriet—And that's why I want to marry you, dear! We'll fight and we'll love and we'll live real lives and be happy forever after!

MAY INSTITUTE SIMPLER METHOD OF RESUSCITATION

Fire Department To Give Thorough Trial To "Prone Pressure" System.

WILL TEST WELL

The pulmotor method of resuscitation after drowning and electric shock, which has been employed by the London Fire Department for a number of years, may be shortly supplanted by a more modern and simpler order called the "prone pressure method."

Dr. W. S. Downham, M.O.H., explained the method to the members of the Board of Health at their regular meeting last night, and they seemed favorably impressed with its simplicity. Acting upon his recommendation the board will lay the matter before the fire department for a complete test.

In the monthly report read before the meeting, Dr. Downham told of his attending the convention of the medical officers of health in Toronto recently, and of the demonstration at the session of the prone pressure method.

Dr. Downham declared that this method seems to be much in advance of older methods and that by using this system a patient was revived after being in the water fifteen minutes. It was formerly considered hopeless if the patient had been in the water five minutes.

He stated that lungmotors and pulmotors were strongly condemned by the convention, and made the recommendation that the members of the fire department be instructed in the prone pressure method and that the use of the pulmotor be discontinued.

Water is Impure.

Tests made of samples of water from ponds and wells at Springbank recently, showed that the Colville well was contaminated, and on a number of occasions tests showed the water to be impure. The board will instruct the public utilities commission to investigate the source of water supply, and recommend what is to be done.

E. V. Buchanan, general manager of public utilities, assured the board that he and the other members of the commission were only too anxious to co-operate with the health department in upholding the sterling reputation for good water that the city has always enjoyed.

He advanced the opinion that surface water flowing into the well might be the cause of the contamination, but said that the bad water might seep in from the wells. Mr. Buchanan pointed out that to keep the surface water out a curb would have to be built around the well, but pointed out that there was absolutely no use in spending thousands of dollars for a curb until the matter had been thoroughly investigated to discern the cause of contamination. The board members agreed with him in this.

It was decided to take 16 tests of the water, making note of weather conditions, within the next month, and a report will be made at the next board meeting.

Plan Remedy.

Chairman Douglass pointed out that according to the tests the water was not satisfactory, and it was only fair to the citizens that the trouble be remedied immediately or the well closed. Dr. Buchanan added that the chlorination process is being rigidly adhered to by the commission, and that all water used in London is pure before it reached the citizens.

The citizens of Vauxhall street have petitioned for a sewer, and the board will recommend that sewer facilities be installed in this district.

In his report Dr. Downham stated also that he did not consider any of the drinking fountains in the city strictly sanitary, and recommended that those constructed so as to allow any part of the face to touch them while drinking be replaced with others more sanitary. The board instructed Dr. Downham to confer with the public utilities commission with a view to replacing the unsanitary fountains.

The reports of the plumbing inspector, veterinary inspector and public health nurse were also read.

MR. BIGGS MAKES SPORTING OFFER REGARDING ROADS

Offers Guelph People a Hat If Tax Challenge Is Made Good.

HE LAUDS DRURY

Mahon, U. F. O. Candidate, Declares Ontario Taxation Has Decreased.

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, June 12.—A vigorous defence of the administration of the Drury government in general, and the department of highways, of which he is the head, was made by Hon. F. C. Biggs, speaking to an audience of 300 men and women electors in the city hall auditorium last night, in the interests of T. J. Mahon, U. F. O. candidate in South Wellington, in the coming provincial elections.

Referring to the charges of increased taxation because of road expenditures, Mr. Biggs became sporty, and made a standing offer to any one present that if a tax paper could be produced showing that a single dollar had been added for road expenditure, except the 20 per cent which the municipalities are asked to pay for provincial highways, he would buy the person producing such a paper the best hat ever sold in Guelph. He also declared that had his bill been allowed to go through every municipality and suburban road area in the province would have been relieved of any further expense in connection with provincial highways.

There was no necessity for municipalities paying further, he said, as the money coming in for motor licenses was ample, and car drivers were the persons who should pay for this work.

He characterized Premier Drury as a manly and courageous premier for taking the life of his government in hand by introducing a redistribution bill, because he knew if it passed he would lose from 10 to 15 seats because of the larger proportion of the population being in the urban centers.

"This measure was blocked for one purpose only by the Conservatives," he said, "and that was their hope of being returned to power when they would provide for a gerrymander instead of a redistribution of seats."

Mr. Biggs declared that Premier Drury was four-square on all questions, and the people always knew where he stood. He characterized Howard Ferguson as a man with a past record that would bear looking into, and a man who is now regarded as the "wet man's man," while he referred to Welington Hay as a party leader who had everything on his platform to offer from shoe tacks to a ship.

U. F. O. Candidate Speaks.

T. J. Mahon, who is the third of a trio of candidates in South Wellingdeclared that the charges leveled declared that the charges levelled against the Drury administration of extravagance and of hindering the development of hydro were absolutely false, and any one who took the time to analyze the allegations could come to no other conclusion. The fact that the Drury government had expended $74,000,000 on hydro was the best evidence that the government was behind this great public enterprise. Premier Drury could not be stampeded into squandering public money on hydro radials until he was satisfied the railas were required. However, he said, because of his attitude, the province had been saved millions of dollars. Without giving figures to support the statement, Mr Mahon declared that taxation in Ontario had been decreased, and not increased as has been alleged under the Drury administration.

W. A. Amos, Palmerston, provincial president of the U. F. O., devoted the most of his address to the O. T. A., and the courage with which Hon. W. E. Raney had enforced it. Mr. Amos maintained that neither Hon. Howard Ferguson or F. Wellington Hay would exercise the same courage as Mr. Raney.

Mr. Amos declared with emphasis that notwithstanding Mr. Hay's statement that he would have no understanding with the U. F. O., the dearest wish of the Liberal leader was to so absorb the Farmers that they would completely lose their identity.

As president of the U. F. O. he said he would fight any attempt to bring about such a condition to the last ditch.

J. A. Cockburn, defeated U. F. O. candidate in 1919, occupied the chair.

Owing to the prevailing conditions in Europe the makers having accumulated stocks over and above immediate requirements, this meant either sacrificing stock on hand or laying off the peasant workers who are the producers of this handiwork, thereby disorganizing their routine of work. You no doubt have often thought of acquiring a cluny luncheon cloth or possibly a new set for the buffet and center for your dining table, bedroom scarfs, or perhaps your buffet is an extra size, 2 yards wide, and to buy the scarf in the regular way the price seemed excessive. CARL HERRICK MEETS DEATH AT AYLMER

Special to The Advertiser.

Aylmer, June 12.—A lad named Carl Herrick, about 11 years of age, only son of Mrs. Charles Herrick, a widow residing in Aylmer, met with a painful death last evening. Little Carl, with two other boys about the same age, had gone down to the creek swimming, and while returning along Dingle street, about a quarter of a mile from the city, they were playing with one another, and so engrossed were they in their frolics that Carl failed to note the approach of an automobile and ran directly in front of the vehicle. He fell on the road and the wheels passed over his head, causing fearful injuries.

The boy was carried into the house of Leslie Crane, but he only lived a few minutes. The auto was driven by Herb. McTaggart, to whom no blame is attached, and with him in the vehicle were Mr. and Mrs. John Grant of Springfield.

The coroner, Dr. Sinclair, considered that an inquest was unnecessary.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, June 12.—The steamer Mount Carroll arrived yesterday with 26,000,000 German gold marks, valued at $6,193,200 for the International Acceptance Bank. The money is to cover treasury bills given to Belgium on the reparations account.

UNDISGUISED DRY SLEUTHS ROUND UP BOOTLEGGERS

New York, June 12.—Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, New York's super dry sleuths and masters of disguise, achieved another clean-up by the simple process of dispensing with disguises.

Blind pig operators had long ago learned to beware of bewhiskered old men, ash-cart drivers, dandified club men, monocled Englishmen, Kentucky colonels and yowling hucksters—for these were some of the favorite disguises of Izzy and Moe.

Having operated in disguise so long, Izzy and Moe figured their natural faces had been forgotten to the bootleggers. As usual, Izzy and Moe were correct. They rounded up 17 operators of speak-easies.

CATERPILLAR PLAGUE HITS SASKATCHEWAN

Canadian Press Despatch.

Regina, June 12.—A plague of caterpillars is reported from the MacLean and Qu 'Apelle districts. Millions of the insects are eating the leaves off the trees and crawling into the houses, according to reports reaching the provincial agriculture department.

While the outbreak seems to be most serious at MacLean and Qu 'Apelle, the caterpillars are reported at a number of other points.

Bathing Gowns! If You Please.

New York, June 11.—Except fo the length, it is growing a bit diffi cult today to distinguish the bathin suit from the afternoon gown. On of the new suits in black and whit satin has a bodice of white and skirt of black and white pane banded in black.
