What is the Social Unit?

That Father Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, is fully up to the age he lives in, and that his great energy looks toward new enterprises is shown by the measure he proposes to bring to the attention of the Missouri Legislature. He has given thought to the women's suffrage question—a very live one though it is only a by-product of the general social trend towards an unknown goal, a drifting away from Christian ideals towards a refurbished paganism in one or another of its many possible forms.

The woman's suffrage question is involved in and depends for its solution on the answer to the further question of What is the social unit? Is it man as the family in its unity and trinity, or man as an isolated individual? As there is no other conceivable it must be one or the other of these.

The traditional Christian system, derived from the ancient Patriarchal system makes the family the social unit. The social unit should be itself a society; the family is a society. It is society reduced to its last analysis. Any further reduction destroys society and leaves only the isolated individual. This individual to be human must be a member of a family. Imagine him without any relative to a family and you find him abnormal, a monster or a new Adam. He is not society nor of the nature of society; he may be sociable but he is not social. At best he is only potentially social. To be social in fact he must be born of society, i. e., of the family. He belongs to human society only through the family, and without that familiar relation he is socially a non-descript. Adam was not society. Eve was not society. Cain came and there was then a family and consequently society. There society began and it represented human nature in its completeness.

But this first society, or human nature in its completeness, has a still more profound meaning. It is a symbol of the Divinity. God said: "Let us make man to our own image and likeness."

There is one God and three divine Persons, God the Father from eternity, God the Son proceeding eternally from God the Father, and God the Holy Ghost proceeding eternally from the Father and the Son.

Now this eternal truth of the supernatural order is symbolized, as far as the finite can symbolize the infinite, in the social being called the Family.

In time, there is Man the Father—Adam—the first person of the familiar trinity. Then Man the Mother, the second person of the familiar trinity, proceeding in time from Man the Father. Here we see the reason for what the infidel calls the "rib story." As the second person of the divine trinity proceeded from the first, so in order that the symbol should be perfect the second person of the human trinity must proceed from the first. St. Eve, Man the Second person, proceeded from Adam, Man the first person. Then as the Third person of the Divine Trinity, the Holy Ghost, proceeds from the first and second persons of the Divine Trinity, so the third person, the child, should proceed from the first and second persons of the human trinity.

Thus in that first Society and first family we have in the natural order, a symbol of the supernatural order, of God in His unity and trinity. In the old Dispensation the father was the head of the house. As the house developed into several families each had its head who was subject to the head of the original house from which he sprang. The head of all the houses was the Patriarch or Chief. These houses or families or blood relationship constituted a social community. The communities united constituted a tribe, and the tribes united, a nation. The head of the original house, or his descendant is the ruler or king.

Such was the development of governments or social forms, through natural instinct and habit. The individual was merged in the family and his relation to society was through the family. When peoples of different races were in the course of time intermingled the Patriarchal system gave place to the civil or territorial system. But these new forms did not repudiate the family as the social unit. The main difference between the old and the new systems consisted in the fact that in the old the laws bore directly on the subject and his obligations to the Chief were personal and followed him wherever he might go, without reference to territorial limitations. In the new system, the civil, the laws bore on the territory and on all who were within it, and reached not beyond. In the former the king ruled persons; in the latter he ruled over territory.—N. Y. Catholic Encyclopedia Vol. VI

Scarcely has one volume of the Catholic Encyclopedia been reviewed and the more timely of the thousands of articles taken note of for the leisure of a quiet evening, when another volume is ready for inspection and approval. Little more than a year ago three volumes were the total of the published work, and now Volume VI is taking its place beside the others on the library shelf. With splendid regularity volume has succeeded volume and in far less time than it will take to read and digest what is already in print, the entire fifteen volumes will be finished, and this greatest of modern Catholic literary movements will be an accomplished fact.

Five thousand pages, each one crowded with information and alive with interest, are included in these six superbly illustrated volumes. Within the alphabetical range of Aachen-Gregory they set forth the history of Catholicity, its doctrine, dogmas, rites and usages, detail the biography of famous sons of the Church, present the Catholic view of controverted questions, explain Catholic philosophy and constitute, so far as they go, a complete and scholarly summary of everything included in the wide range of Catholic activities. Enough of the work has been completed to enable the world of letters to gauge its worth and usefulness, and it has already come to occupy a unique and honored place in the encyclopedic field; unique because it is the only source of information in English on the matters it has made its own, honored, because it represents the highest learning and most painstaking labor of three continents. The intellectual treasures which have been waiting in the rich storehouse of the Catholic Church are being poured forth in splendid profusion and the realization of what this means has caused the Catholic Encyclopedia to be placed on the shelves of public libraries, on the priest's library table, in the editor's sanctum, and in the home of the man of affairs.

Those who have watched the careful progress of the Encyclopedia and have come to a realization of all that it portends will not wonder at the enthusiasm with which the press, both religious and secular, has greeted each new addition to its volumes. With hardly a dissenting voice, the literary periodicals of the entire civilized world have spoken in a vein of praise by the Literary Digest in its review of Volume V: "The Catholic Encyclopedia impresses us as one of the best of modern reference books."

Admirably arranged, comprehensive in range of subject matter, generally scholarly, digested, and so far as compares with conviction, impartial in tone, it is a monument to the wisdom and temper of the church it represents. The standard of excellence maintained throughout Volume VI has led to this statement of the general worth of the Encyclopedia. Beginning with a scholarly article on "Fathers of the Church" by Dom John Chapman, which impresses us as one of the best contributions to patriotic bibliography which we have seen in some time, this newly-issued portion of the work proceeds forward alphabetically as far as "Gregory XI."

"France," by Georges Guyon, Associate Editor of the "Revue des Deux Mondes," and "Germany," by Franz Kampers and Martin Spahr, professors of history at the respective universities of Breslau and Strassburg, are the two articles of greatest historical importance in the volume, and by laying special stress on the events in which the Caesars have been concerned, cast a new and interesting light on the history of the two countries.

"French Literature" and "German Literature" are sympathetically treated by Rine Dumnic, lately elected to the French Academy, and Arthur F. J. Remy, Professor of Germanic Philology at Columbia University. The article on French Literature, in particular, is worthy of more than passing notice, as it sums up the progress of letters in France better than any work we can recall.

Among the many valuable biographical articles, "Fenelon," by Antoine Dager, "St. Francis of Assisi," by Paschal Robinson; "Garnet," by J. H. Pollen, "Ghirlandajo," by Louis Gillet, and "Gullone," by John Gerard, deserve special notice. The picture of St. Francis, drawn by Paschal Robinson, affords an excellent idea of the great apostle of poverty and humility, and the manner in which John Gerard discusses the supposed conflict of church and science is lucid and convincing.

"The Liturgical Use of Fire," by

H. Leclercq, "Flabellum," by Francis Mersman, "Gallican Rite," by Henry Jenner, and "Gradual" and "Greek Rites," by Adrian Fortesque, are liturgical contributions of no mean importance, the last-named summing up the differences between the rites of Alexandria, Antioch, and Constantinople.

Under the title "God" P. J. Toner considers the subject both in its theological and philosophical aspect, and after presenting the classic arguments for the existence of a Supreme First Cause, turns to the conception of the Deity afforded by Revelation. "Grace," by J. Poble, first takes up the nature of actual grace, and after passing to its properties closes with a summary of the controversies on the subject, with special reference to the relationship between grace and free will. "Free will" is considered by itself in another part of the volume by Michael Maher, and is a very clear and able exposition of a difficult subject.

The biblical articles in Volume VI are especially happy. The "Epistle to the Galatians," by C. Aberne, gives a succinct account of the North and South Galatian theories, explains the purpose of the epistle and discusses its textual difficulties. A. J. Mass is the author of two scholarly contributions on "Genealogy in the Bible" and "Genealogy of Christ," both of which very thoroughly cover their respective ground. The twenty-page article of Charles I. Souray on "Biblical Geography" is to all intents and purposes a monograph on the subject of which it treats, carefully planned and ably written, and the complete topographical list with which the article closes, as well as its extensive bibliography, will prove of great assistance to every student of Scripture.

The Franciscans have been well taken care of in this volume. Besides the life of St. Francis of Assisi, already mentioned, Paschal Robinson has contributed a brief synopsis of what the name Franciscan implies, and explained the various orders included under this general head. Livarius Olliger has added a four-page article on the "Rule of St. Francis," and, lastly, Michael Bibl, has treated "Friars Minor" at great length, and discussed the heretics "Frateielli," which at one time promised to disrupt the entire order.

We might go on indefinitely multiplying the examples of erudite and careful authorship, but there are so few of the articles that we could not gladly praise that the task would prove invidious. One thing, however, impresses us as more and more as we look over the Encyclopedia—namely, the universality of the knowledge collected within its covers.

The list of contributors reads like a roll call of world scholarship, and hardly an institution of learning throughout the world fails of representation in its pages, from the Antonio de Souza School of Bombay, from which place Marcel F. X. D'Sa writes, to the Catholic University at Washington which is represented by a score of authors. Franz Kampers, from the University of Breslau, P. Ladeux, from the University of Louvain, Johann Kirsch, from the University of Freiburg, John Phillimore, from the University of Glasgow, John Bickaby, from Stonyhurst, P. J. Toner, from Maynooth, Paul Lejay, from the Catholic University of Paris, Umberto Benigni, from the Urban College, Rome, Camillus Orvelli, from the Instituto Cientifico of the City of Mexico, A. J. Mass, from Woodstock, Jeremiah Ford, from Harvard, assure that the Catholic Encyclopedia shall be, as a professor, a work of international scholarship, as well as a credit to the century which is producing it.

Pope Pius Jokes About The North Pole.

Rome.—An amusing incident occurred the other day when Bishop Kennedy, Rector of the American College here, introduced to the Pope in private audience W. F. McCook of Pittsburgh. Pope Pius evidently having misunderstood the name, looked him in the eyes, saying with a smile, "Cook? Cook? Is it you who discovered the North Pole?" and on finding out his mistake was visibly amused. Cardinal Strolli, who has been seriously ill in Milan, is rapidly recovering his normal strength, but the doctors say to recover perfect health he will need a sea journey, so that he is thinking of asking the Holy Father to allow him to return once more to America, which he hopes as his second country, had where he has so many warm friends.

Federal Rats Sprinting.

As the date for the opening of the second session of the eleventh parliament of Canada draws near the political situation becomes more complex. The rats are leaving the sinking Liberal ship. Mr. Calvert for some years the chief Liberal whip has sought a safe retreat on the Transcontinental Railway Commission, where for the paltry sum of $7000 a year he will cheerfully lend his vast knowledge of railway matters to a political body which is supposed to be building the lame leg of the undertaking. That the leg is not only lame but needs to be amputated is the opinion of Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, but that subject has been dwelt upon before in these columns. Suffice to say that it is doubtful if Sir Charles has lost that proverbial "nasty taste" regarding the eastern section of the Laurier monument.

Two more deserters from the rapidly sinking Laurier craft are Mr. R. F. Sutherland, formerly speaker of the House and Mr. A. K. Maclean, the well known member of the "dark lantern brigade" who with E. M. Macdonald of Picou, Fred Pardee of Lambton and Alex Johnston of Cape Breton used their bullying tactics in the committees of the House especially that devoted to Public Accounts, to prevent the truth from coming out when ever that truth cast any reflection upon the tactics of the government. Mr. Sutherland goes to the Bench, Mr. A. K. Maclean has resigned and become Attorney General of Nova Scotia with the premiership of that province in view, Fred Pardee is to get the job of chief government whip, E. M. Macdonald is slated for a cabinet position, so soon as Sir Frederick Borden has the dignity to retire from the treasury benches, while Alex Johnston was relegated to the oblivion of a political "has been" by the votes of the people of South Cape Breton at the last elections. So it will be seen that even the members of the "dark lantern brigade" are seeking for a soft spot on which to fall, and most of them have succeeded in finding it.

The question of naval defence still seems to be a thorn in the flesh of the Liberal party. They are at sixes and sevens about it. Mr. Borden has put the case so clearly before the people of the country that the Liberals are seeking some loophole. In the words of the Conservative Leader, so far as the opposition is concerned the question of Canada's participation in the organization and maintenance of an Imperial Naval defence rests to day exactly where it did when the unanimous resolution of parliament was passed on March 29 last. It is worthy of note that that resolution was so modified at the instance of Mr. Borden that it permitted of a special contribution in the time of emergency. As Mr. Borden sets forth in his latest statement on the subject, whether such emergency existed then or exists now is within the knowledge of the British government and the Canadian government. Mr. Borden strikes a high note of statesmanship when he declares that Canada should take no action which does not receive the unqualified approval of the British naval experts.

The latest in the naval question is that Hon. L. P. Brodeur has sent his son Victor to take a course of training on the government cruiser Canada. The Canada has one gun and with Mr. Brodeur junior will have a fighting force of two officers. This will undoubtedly be hailed in the province of Quebec as another instance of that province pouring out its life blood in Imperial wars not of their own making.

The British Budget.

In the Imperial House of Commons, on Friday night last, the budget which had been before the House for a long time, and had brought out strenuous debating on both sides, passed its third reading by a vote of 379 to 149. The Irish Nationalists for the most part refrained from voting. A larger attendance has seldom been seen in the House than on this occasion. The peers, and diplomatic galleries were crowded to their utmost capacity. Tense excitement prevailed. The Premier, Chancellor, Lloyd-George and Mr. Balfour, Leader of the Opposition made strong speeches during the evening. The occasion seems to have been regarded by all present as of a historic character. The bill immediately passed to the House of Lords, where it formally passed the first reading on the 5th. It will come up for second reading, in the Lords, on the 22nd inst. It is not unlikely that a debate of unusual length for that chamber will take place on the occasion of the second reading. The greatest possible interest attaches to the matter, and the action of the members of the Upper House is anticipated with no small amount of anxiety by the Government. What the Lords will do is, of course, matter of conjecture. They are not supposed to have any constitutional right to tamper with the money supplies voted by the Commons; but it is not denied that they may make recommendations or perhaps offer some amendments to the bill; but what they shall do no one now can tell. It is stated in the press, that Lord Lansdowne, Leader of the Opposition in the Upper House, may move a resolution setting forth that, in consequence of the several new forms of taxation incorporated in the bill, it should not be passed by the Lords, until it has been endorsed by the electorate. The passing of that resolution would undoubtedly precipitate a general election. That seems to be as far as the public have conjectured on the matter.

It is reported from Halifax that an extension of the labor contract, for a further period of two years, between the P. W. A. and the Dominion Coal Company, has been signed at Glace Bay by General Manager Duggan of the Company, Stephen McNeil and Grand Secretary Moffat, for the men. The contract has been renewed, just as it stands, the same terms and conditions as were contained in the award of the Conciliation Board of 1908. It is generally considered that this will bring about the final collapse of the strike of the U. M. W. A. that has existed for some months. It is to be hoped this will prove true.

The Liberal newspapers are striving hard at the present time to create the impression that Mr. Borden, Leader of the Opposition has alienated the sympathy of some of the leading Conservatives in the country by his attitude on the question of naval defence. They tell us with sensational head lines that Premier Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers of Manitoba are ready to jump at Borden's throat on this question. Against these vaporings may be placed the statements of Mr. George Bradbury, Conservative member for Selkirk, Manitoba, who recently reached Ottawa to attend the Parliamentary session. He speaks enthusiastically of the results of Hon. George E. Foster's tour of the West and the affect of his explanation of the history and policy of the Conservative party. "Mr. Borden has no more loyal supporters in Canada," he says, than "The Premier Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers, and the whole of the Conservative West is of the same opinion." He considers that Mr. Foster's lecturing tour has advanced his party's interests in the Prairie Provinces very considerably.

Canada's Finances.

The public accounts of the Dominion, for the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1909 were published on the 2nd inst. They show total disbursements amounting to $122,441,524, divided as follows: Consolidated fund-expenditure $84,064,232. Capital expenditure $42,593,166. Railway subsidies $1,785,887. Other charges including bounties $4,998,237. The receipts were $85,093,404 so that there was a bookkeeping surplus on current account of $1,029,171, and a deficiency on disbursements of $45,969,419. The net debt of the Dominion at the close of the fiscal year was $23,930,279, or an increase of $45,969,419 over the figures of March 31, 1908. The principal items accounting for this increase are: National Transcontinental Railway $24,892,315. Other railways, Canals, and Public Works $15,659,997. Railway subsidies $1,785,887. Bounties $2,467,306. A considerable portion of the introductory report is taken up with details of the loans which the government found itself obliged to contract during the year. The list is as follows: 33-4 per cent loan of 1908, maturing 1912, 5,000,000 pounds. 3-1-2 per cent loan, of maturing 1930-50, 5,000,000 pounds. 3-3-4 per cent loan, maturing 1919-9, 6,000,000 pounds. 3-1-2 per cent loan, maturing 1930-50, 6,500,000 pounds.

In all since 1903 there have been placed on the London market new issues amounting to $1,331,298 pounds. In addition certain obligations have been assumed which bring the total up to $4,492,851 pounds. During the same period loans amounting to $4,169,790 pounds have matured, leaving a net increase in the debt of 10,323,060 pounds. During the fiscal year one loan of $21,900,000 matured, over $9,000,000 of it being defrayed by new issues. A number of miscellaneous transactions are noted. The guarantee of G. T. P. bonds now amounts to $5,200,000 pounds; of this sum 2,000,000 pounds were issued in October, 1909. The Montreal Commission obtained in the course of the year an advance of $1,030,000 while the Quebec Harbor Commissioners are paid an advance of $87,254. In September, 1908, capitalized subsidies amounting to the sum of $2,394,000 were paid over to the Province of Quebec, this was the outcome of an old agreement and interest had been paid on the sum for some years. In December, 1908 the Government took over the Quebec Bridge and Railway Company, thereby incurring a liability of $8,424,781 which becomes an addition to the debt of Canada.

McBride's Prospects.

Advices of the 7th from Victoria, B. C., contain the following regarding the prospects of Premier McBride in the general Provincial elections now pending: The provincial campaign is going ahead rapidly. The Conservatives claim that they have 27 safe seats. Premier McBride missed an inaugural meeting at Kamloops owing to the death of his son, and his place was taken by Hon. W. J. Bowser, attorney general and Mr. Taylor, minister of public works. The premier ended his series of meetings at Revelstoke Wednesday, and with Mr. Bowser is addressing one, two and in one case three meetings throughout the province. He has accepted nominations in both Victoria city and Yale, his opponents being two Liberal leaders, John Oliver and Stewart Henderson. Hon. Price Ellison, provincial lands minister, is taking charge of the campaign in Okanagan and Similkamen districts. The Liberals will probably allow eight constituencies to go by default and in others join with socialists, local option and so called independents. The socialists expect four seats, while the labor party has but one candidate in the field, W. Dodds, of New Westminster. J. Pearson Shaw will oppose H. W. Vasey, Liberal, in Kamloops. The premier is offering the people a definite railway policy secured by contract, while the Liberals have enunciated an intangible programme which in effect means that they will support the construction of railways already subsidized by the Dominion Government, and will, if returned to power, be prepared to give further subsidies to those railways. Numerous proposed branch lines in this province have been subsidized for years by Federal authorities, but there are no indications of construction work being commenced. While the election will primarily be fought out on the question of rival railway policies, considerable attention will also be paid during the campaign to Asiatic exclusion. In a House with a membership of 42, Premier McBride's last legislature had a majority of sixteen. Throughout the province the Conservatives are splendidly organized. The premier has announced his intention of visiting all principal centres during the campaign.

Creamer Children Found.

Our readers may remember the mysterious disappearance of the Creamer children from their home at Peacock Settlement N.B. about three years and a half ago. Two children a boy named Ralph, aged four years, and a girl named Olive aged six, on Sunday May 13th, 1906, strayed away from their home, and for a long time it was supposed that they were lost in the woods. They left the house and followed a young man going into the woods after cows. The children were turned back, and it was supposed that they had afterwards kept on to the woods, becoming lost. When the children were missed their parents were frantic and search was made in every direction, but no tidings of them was found at all, despite the fact that large searching parties for weeks scoured the woods in an effort to find the missing tots. At the time of the mysterious disappearance there were many theories concerning the possible whereabouts of the children. The search was finally given up, and hope of ever recovering the two youngsters had been given up. Now word comes that the mystery surrounding their disappearance seems about to be cleared up. Mr. F. E. MacDonald, superintendent of the Boys Industrial Home, at Croucheville, N.B. has received word from a friend in Boston, that the children are alive and are at present in Boston, with relatives. The communication states that Creamer children were taken aboard a vessel at Sackville, where the N. B. and P. E. Island railway ends after serving the country in which the children lived and disappeared. They were received, it is said, by a captain who was a friend of their father, and were taken direct to New York.

Northcliffe Favors Caution

Lord Northcliffe speaking before the Canadian Club at Ottawa Saturday uttered a word of warning regarding the proposed Canadian navy. He pointed out that the Japanese were the only nation that had made a success of building a new navy. Their plan was to send men into all countries to examine methods and types of ships and the information acquired was put into practice, but it had taken fifty years to build that navy. He advised Canada to go slowly, otherwise they were liable to make many mistakes. As to sailors for ships he said that from his observation those of the Maritime Provinces were equal to any in the world and the raw material as good as could be found anywhere. Touching upon immigration, he criticized the general class of immigrants now coming to this country and the United States. He said they were not the class of men who had built up this country, they were not hardy pioneers. They had left the Mother Land not because they objected to certain conditions, but because they were not strong enough to make a living in their own country.

Deadly Tuberculosis.

That approximately 25 per cent of the deaths of persons whose occupations expose them to municipal or street dust and to general organic dust, are due to tuberculosis, is the startling fact disclosed in a bulletin prepared at the Bureau of Labor Washington, by Frederick L. Hoffman. Though the statistics studied by Mr. Hoffman indicate that municipal and general organic dusts are less serious in their effect, than metallic or mineral dust, the consequences to health and life, he says, are sufficiently serious to demand most careful attention to the whole problem of dust prevention and removal. According to insurance mortality experience, 25 per cent of deaths in occupations with exposure to municipal dust were due to consumption, and in occupations exposed to general organic dust the proportion was 28 per cent. As compared with these proportions, 14.8 per cent of deaths of males, 13 years of age and over in the registration in the United States were from consumption.

Shocking Accident.

A terrible accident happened a young man named Noel, from Shippigan, Gloucester county, N. B. in Beringer and Chapuis, shingle mill Saturday morning. The large circular cutting off saw went to pieces and the flying parts struck Noel, cutting off one arm and shattering the other so badly that it was found necessary to remove the injured member. The muscle of one leg was torn badly from the knee to the hip and the nose was split. The injured man was taken into a house and Dr. Ferguson and Donette dressed the wounds. At night Noel felt no pain and was bright and conscious. He has been married but a few months.

Thought to be Lost.

Washington Hull, a Brooklyn architect, and two other men whose names are unknown, put out from Lawrence beach, Long Island, last Wednesday in the sloop yacht Commodore for a sail to New York harbor, to place the vessel in winter quarters and since then the party has been missing. Mrs. Hull fears that her husband and the other two men have been lost at sea. He was a member of a Columbia University crew which defeated a crew from England several years ago, she said, and was a good swimmer.

"The Home of Good Hats" is quite a name for a hat department; but I think the largest and best is entitled to it. What do you think? Everything in headwear is here, and rightly priced too.

Nearly four years ago the barge "Rembrandt" belonging to the Dominion Coal Company, while on her way from Lunenburg coal laden disappeared with her crew of six men. Nothing was heard of her since then until quite recently. After last week's heavy gale wreckage was discovered floating near St. Peter's Bay, and a resident of that locality went out in a boat and towed to the shore part of a ship's hull. It was found the name "Rembrandt". The mysterious disappearance is thus solved by the deep find of its wreck.

At Quill Lake Saskatchewan John Mead an employee under arrest for murder, He says he murdered George Thomas his wife and mother, because the woman would not give him an ough to eat and because all three made sarcastic remarks about his appetite, was the extraordinary explanation John Mead gave for the triple crime at the inquest. Mead's conduct suggests an unusual mind. He seemed absolutely cold-blooded when describing the crime and told of the murder as though it were a matter of course and not a crime. Excitement still prevails in the village and the prisoner is closely guarded.

Ostensible Discovery.

Berlin advices of the 6th say: The serious charge that Great Britain was involved in machinations against Germany at the time of the Dogger Bank affair on October 22, 1904 is brought by former chancellor of legation, Von Rath who served at Baras and Constantinople, in today's issue of a local paper. The Dogger Bank incident referred to, was the firing on the Camerock trawling vessel of Hull by the Russian Baltic squadron under the delusion as alleged that the fishing smacks were Japanese torpedo boats. Herr Von Rath accused Great Britain of having stationed warships off Vigo and six submarines in the vicinity of Heligoland preparatory to sinking the German warships in the event of Germany taking sides with Russia in the then expected war. The commanders of British vessels according to the writer had direct orders from Downing Street to watch the Germans and to blow them into the air in the event of such an occurrence. The other papers this afternoon comment upon the article from varying viewpoints.

A huge touring car plunged into the river at Jackson Boulevard, Chicago last Sunday night while the bridge was turned. A man and woman were seen to come to the surface and float down stream, the man endeavoring to save the woman by carrying her on his back. After drifting more than a block both sank with last despairing cries for help. That three others, perhaps four, went down with the automobile is the belief of the bridge tenders. The other victims are under the machine at the bottom of the river. The automobile was speeding twenty-five miles an hour and when it struck the water it dove into the mud at the bottom of the river.

A FEW BOY'S SUITS---PRICE CUT.

I am placing some excellent bargains in many departments this month—loose ends and overstocked lines. Men's Summer Suits are now where attention is centered. They're selling while they last at one-third off, or just the same as if you paid me $10 for a suit and I would hand you back $3 1-3 cents for every dollar given me. It should be worth saving—should it not? The suits are splendid and were all the rage this season, being worn by the most particular. Materials are light and dark grey Tweeds, single and double breasted, two-piece. Price $8.25 to $14.50.

THE HOME OF GOOD HATS

Odds and Ends in Every Department is Intended to Boom Business for This Month. EXCELLENT VALUES IN SUMMER SUITS.

THEY'RE SOME BROKEN LINES---PRICE CUT.

They're some broken lines—some without a full range of sizes. They will not last long. Get your choice before they are gone. Our customers say there's a saving on every boy's suit sold here. You are the judge. But it's quality we are aiming at—a suit is worth nothing if it's not worth wearing. Our boy's suits are, we think, the best value for the money in this city. See for yourself. Fancy Belts and Fancy Hosiery at one-third off for a short time. Store Open Evenings till 8 p. m.

WARM WINTER OVERCOATS

PATON'S SUITS & OVERCOATS

THERE IS INDIVIDUALITY IN PATON'S CLOTHES FOR MEN

We do not mistake freakishness for individuality. But we do succeed in getting into the Suits and Overcoats that bear the Paton label a certain distinction that is a characteristic of the apparel of the best dressed man—and that is not commonly to be had in clothing bought ready-to-wear.

All of this clothing is made expressly for us, and made in special ways which we prescribe. Choice of high grade and attractive fabrics; of cold shrunk canvas for interlining; of the best grade of buttons, tapes and other tailor's "fixings" are the first step.

But the artistic and scientific cutting of the cloths and the careful and intelligent hand tailor work by skilled craftsmen are what give to Paton's Clothes their individuality and assure long service to the wearer.

Each week we make endeavors to do better than in the seasons past. This season we believe we have better Clothes than we or any other store ever had to offer for the prices. There is a full range—we make especial effort to have Clothing of the proper proportions for men of many builds.

Suits and Overcoats $6, $7.50, $8.50, $10, $12.50, $13.50, $15, $18 and $20.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning that it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures kidney and liver troubles, relieves the back and builds up the whole system.

A Pending Trade War

An authority on fiscal matters, writing in an American magazine, predicts that the new Payne bill will result in a trade war with Canada before a year has passed.

Purifying Water by Electricity

The motion presented by Alderman Hinchey at the city council last night is worthy of consideration.

It is claimed that a method has been discovered, known as the ozone system by which water can be rendered practically pure at a cost of only twenty-five cents per million gallons.

An Ancient Sepulchre

A sepulchre discovered recently outside the Church of St. Cecilia, in Rome, is interesting on account of the inscription engraved on it.

The inscription is formed of capital letters without any intervals between the words. Prof. Marubbi after some difficulty succeeded in dividing the words and reading the entire inscription, but the last word is almost a mystery.

The inscription runs as follows: "Here lies in peace Arg-otis, who lived for fifty years in this sepulchre, which was erected for her by the Abess-Gratiana, who prepared it for herself while she was alive. I conjure by the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost and by the terrible day of the Judgment that nobody dare violate this tomb wherein I lie, and if any one dare despite this conjuration may he be cursed like Judas and Repropransmyriabot."

Prof. Marubbi proposes two readings of the word. He divides it in the first into "Repr ansmayri abot" and explains its meaning as a threat that the face of Haman the Syrian should befall the violator of the sepulchre. Haman was hanged on the gallows fifty cubits high which he had made for Mordecai as related in the Book of Esther.

The second reading is as follows: "Repra," a mistake, instead of "lepra," "Naman Syri abot," and it refers to the laproxy of Naman, captain of the host of the King of Syria (II. Kings).

This single inscription which dates from the sixth century, has importance topographical and historical, but more than all it is of interest as it shows how careful the early Christians were not to have their tomb-violated and how their wishes were respected for fourteen centuries until the advent of modern archaeologists.

Plans of recently constructed warships have disappeared from the Admiralty office, and it is presumed that the Germans have them. This sort of thing is presumably to be expected from time to time.

There are many phases in the profession of arms, whether by land or sea, and we have Dreyfus' case and incidents like this in the British naval service. In this latest case it is doubted if the lost plans will be of much value to those who have them; and probably what is true about them is true of most stolen plans.

The strained relations between the European powers last spring over Austria's attitude towards Serbia brought some ridicule on Britain. With France she supported Russia against German aggression, but all three seemed to have backed down eventually.

Here is Professor Harcourt's view of the situation: "In the hour of temptation England and France ultimately gave such a clear proof of their sincere love of peace that the confidence of Europe in their moral strength was enormously increased. Such action cannot fail to have an abiding effect; it will most favourably influence the relation of these great powers to Germany and Austria, even if new situations should arise."

An eminent member of the Society of Jesus, Father Baroux has made a thorough study of the language and ethnology of the Eskimos. He calls the language of these "glacial men" the Inouit tongue.

He has reduced it to writing and composed a dictionary of it and a grammar. He says that the Inouits are not from Japan, as is commonly believed, but "are beyond all reasonable doubt one of the oldest races in the world."

The Jesuit father entered Alaska in 1886, and proceeding later to the country of the Eskimo, they gained a foothold there. The Eskimo converts now number about thirteen hundred.

The Jesuits have charge of the new Biblical Institute established in Rome. The faculty composing it will consist of eleven members. The Jesuit universities and colleges throughout the world have been laid under contribution to furnish those professors.

Accordingly they will be men of first-class ability, and this means that the higher Biblical Studies, to promote which the Institute was founded, will be prosecuted in the most efficient manner.—Casket.

It would not be rash to predict that Spain is at the opening of a new era of national vigor. If we remember that the secessions of the Americas was followed by the era which produced Pitt, Nelson, Wellington, O'Connell, O'Connell, Coleridge, Wordsworth, and M... not to speak of
