CHAPTER XIX.

THE SECRET WILL.
"Well, I always knew that my father highly disapproved of Miss Crawford's will, and when I found this document yesterday, it occurred to me that, fearing that one or both of us might refuse to carry out Aunt Eliza's plans, he determined to settle some money on you to make up for what you would lose. Of course, this is all guesswork on my part; but I've heard him fume many a time over the wrong to you and your family, and it would be like him to try to fix it right," Philip explained. "Now open

"The Only Cure for Piles"

Writes Mr. Taylor in Telling His Experience With Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. M. Taylor.

Because Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost immediate relief from the dreadful itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles, it is well worth the attention of everyone suffering from this annoying disease. In most cases, even after years of standing, Dr. Chase's Ointment makes a thorough and lasting cure of itching, bleeding and protruding piles. Mr. Maxwell Taylor, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "To all sufferers from piles in any form I would recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only cure. Over a year ago while in Boston I became afflicted with a dreadful itching. I went to a doctor, who gave me some ointment, which made me no better. A friend advised me to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and of the use of two boxes I was entirely cured. You may publish this statement in order that other sufferers may profit by my experience."
"Dr. Chase's Ointment can better prove its value by the relief it affords than by any other means we could use in its praise. 50 cents a box, all dealers." F. W. Mansson, Bates & Co., 4 Smith St., Toronto.

the mysterious document, and let us see if I have guessed rightly."
Beth broke the seal and brought forth a letter addressed to Miss Elizabeth Russell, and another paper also. She eagerly unfolded the letter, and together the young couple read the following:—
"My Dear Child: Your Aunt Eliza's will, the import of which she confided to me when she asked me to witness it, and made me one of its executors, was a heavy burden on my conscience for years. I begged her on several occasions to revoke it, and leave her money to her own kindred, to whom it rightly belonged, without imposing upon them any humiliating conditions. But she had set her heart upon marrying you to Philip, being determined to unite the houses of Russell and Walton, and turned a deaf ear to my appeals and arguments. "During her last illness, however, she sent for me to come to her, and confessed that my opposition and displeasure had so harassed and unsettled her that she was at last ready to do as I wished, and right the wrong she had done, by making another will, and giving her whole fortune to you, provided I would keep the matter a profound secret until the question of a marriage between you and Philip, on or before your twenty-second birthday, was definitely settled; or in the event that either married another before that date, then this later will, which I inclose with this for you, should take effect. "I was only too glad to make almost any promise to gain this point. Should you and my dear boy prove congenial, in later years, and voluntarily choose to marry each other, nothing would please me better, for your father and I have always been like brothers, while, from her babyhood up, I loved My Lady Beth as a dear daughter. But, whatever may occur on or before your twenty-second birthday, my heart is at rest in knowing that with this document in your possession you will be amply provided for. God bless you, dear, and give you only happiness in the years to come, either as the wife of my son or of some other good man. "Affectionately yours, "ARCHIBALD WALTON."

relations with others," Philip gravely assented, then smilingly continued: "And let us give Aunt Eliza her due also. She proved at last that blood is thicker than water by bequeathing her money to you, where it rightly belonged."
"Oh, but it was your father who made her do it, and now"—with a fond smile and glance—"you must have your share of it just as she first intended; for, even though we were a trifle late about it, we have really carried out her wishes."
Philip shot a look full of mischief at his wife.
"Allow me to disagree with you, Mrs. Walton," he began in a mock-udicial tone, "for that first will was made absolutely null and void because of your obstinate refusal to become my wife at the proper time. "Thus you have deliberately cheated me out of my share of that fortune." But Beth flashed back at him with a quick repartee: "You had boy to manifest such disrespect to your bride on her wedding day! But I have certainly proved that we did not marry each other for the love of money. The deed is done, however; you have burdened yourself with a fortune as well as a wife. It is all yours for—I, with all I have, am yours."
"Bless you, my dearest," said Philip fondly; "but I should have been more than satisfied with things just as they were before we knew of the later will. The one possession I most desired, the precious legacy I most craved, was—My Lady Beth."

One in a Thousand, BUT TRUE TO THE LAST

CHAPTER I.
BY OLD DEVICES.

"Oh, I say!" gasped Loys.
"And what did he say when you went down the garden?" I ask, with my usual blunt straightforward way of getting at the truth. Was he waiting for you?"
"Of course. He had got over the wall, and was calmly leaning against the lime tree, just as if the whole place belonged to him; and when I came down the walk under the trees, he took off his hat and asked if I was angry with him for presuming to come here."
"And what did you say?" we ask, eagerly, determined to spare Theo nothing. All the same, she is very willing to tell everything, to the most minute details, so innocent and heart-whole is she.
"Say? Oh, I said I thought it was awfully bold and wicked, and might get him into great trouble. But he said that I had made him bold, and that, if it was wicked to come and see me, he liked wickedness."
Evidently, Mr. Arthur St. Clair knows the ways of love-making, and knows them well.
"And he told me," Theo's fresh, young voice goes on, "that he has known me ever so long, and has watched us all playing at croquet. He knew my name, too, and all about me, and he said—oh, well, I can't tell you what he said; but—but he says he will love me as long as he lives!" Theo's voice dies away to a soft whisper, and she sits, as is her wont, gazing straight into the heart of the red, glowing fire.
Loys breaks the silence.
"Then," she begins, hesitatingly, "did he—kiss you?"
"I'm a year younger than Loys, and I laugh at the start Theo gives.
"He kissed my hand," says she, softly; then holds it out in the fire-light, and looks at it lovingly.
Loys and I are speechless. This love-making is becoming absolutely thrilling.
"There is the bell," said Loys, regretfully. "Do brush your hair, and try to look excited, Theo. Your face is like a red moon."
As Theo rises from the floor, I see her press the hand of Arthur St. Clair he has kissed to her lips, but I don't tell Loys about it. Theo plunges her face into a basin of cold water, which has the effect of making it more rosy than before; and, when she has tidied her hair, we all scamper off to tea.
"How flushed you look, Theo!" says Miss Burleigh. "Have you been sitting too near the fire?"
"I don't think so," says Theo, flushing more hotly than ever, and putting up one hand to shield her face.
"You must keep quiet after tea," Miss Burleigh continues, "there is nothing more dangerous than a rush of blood to the head."
At this I began laughing, and Loys gives me an admonishing kick, which has the effect of making me worse.
All night Theo can think and talk of nothing else but her wonderful lover; and she continues in the same excited state until the free hour on the following day, when, once again she goes down the garden walk to meet him. The weeks glide by, and the story ends—as all such stories do end—in a little persuasion from the man, a promise from the girl, and a plan of flight. One night Theo comes in, and tells that matters have come to a climax, and that she has promised to elope with him.
If Loys and I were older, we should see the utter folly and madness and wickedness of the plan. There is no necessity for it. Our father was never an ogre that we, his children, need fear to tell him our dearest hopes and wishes. True, as Theo's lover urges, she is very young, and most probably he will insist on a year's delay—perhaps twice that period of time; and, as he forcibly puts it, he loves her so dearly that he cannot live without her all that time. I say, if we were older, we should see the folly of our sister's determination; but, being as we are, mere children, we envy Theo immensely, and think an elopement a fine thing, and infinitely more romantic than a formal wedding, with half a dozen bridesmaids and good wishes from everybody, so we encourage her, and give her all the help we can in packing the small bag she intends to take with her; and, when all the preparations are made, we huddle together on the rug for a last long "talk" before she leaves us.

"Don't you feel very queer," says Loys at last, "as if it couldn't be true?"
"No," answers Theo, with a smile, "only very happy."
"Fancy, by this time next week you will be Mrs. Arthur St. Clair—a married woman!" say I.
"Ah—with a soft sigh—"I wish it was all over, safely over! Tomorrow Arthur is going to tell me a secret, one that will surprise me very much, but happily, he says."
"Why didn't he tell you to-day?" I ask.
"Because he wants to tell me tomorrow, just before—we are married!"—with the slightest hesitation in her voice.
"How funny!" says Loys, thoughtfully. "Where are you going for your honeymoon?"
Theo starts guiltily.
"I never once thought of it," she says, laughing brightly. "We never mentioned it, either of us."
"I would go to Paris, if I were you," remarks Loys.
"You always wanted me to go to Italy," I remind her.
"I shall go just where my husband chooses to take me," says Theo, with wifely dignity, mingled with submissive obedience, whereat Loys gives me a nudge expressive of intense enjoyment.
We have another long chat after we are in bed, and, just as I am falling asleep, I hear Loys' inquisitive tongue asking a final question:
"Theo, are you quite sure—perfectly certain, that is—that you care for him?"
I listen eagerly for the reply, and for a moment there is silence; then it comes through the darkness, soft as the break of day.
"I would die for him!" says Theo; "and I shall cease to love him when I die!"
Thoughtless, inquisitive children as we are, the answer silences us, and not another word is spoken, so that presently, I fall asleep.

Being Afraid to Be Happy.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"Cheer up, the best is yet to come."
 Not long ago I asked a young married friend of mine who, after a very stormy girlhood, had entered the safe harbour of a happy married life, and is the wife of a devoted husband, the mother of an adorable baby, and the mistress of an ideal little home, if she were not perfectly happy.

A swift shadow swept across her face like the brief darkening of the sun by an April cloud.

"Yes, I am," she said, "except that it seems too good to be true. I'm so happy that I'm afraid."

I think she expressed a feeling that is familiar to most of us. The fear of happiness is almost as old as the desire for it. We distrust happiness. We seem to hold our breath, as it were, lest we destroy the bubble of joy.

In "Anna of the Five Towns" Arnold Bennett says of Anna, who is so happy to find that Myrns is in love with her, that she can hardly believe in her good fortune. "Like most of us she lacked the high courage to grasp happiness boldly and without apprehension; she had not learned that nothing is too good to be true."

"I always dread to be happy," a very temperamental young girl used to say to me at college, "because I know that I'll probably be unhappy afterwards, and it's so hard to come down from the heights." I wonder how much she has fixed belief that she would have to be unhappy afterwards had in producing that result.

Is it right to feel in this way about happiness?

Is it grateful to the All-Giver to taint the happiness which he grants us by distrusting its continuance? Happiness is really the normal rather than the abnormal condition. When men and women keep themselves in touch with the laws of nature and in general live in a normal way, they have a pretty good chance for happiness. Children, who are the nearest to what God meant the race to be, are almost always happy. "Heaven lies about us in our infancy"; it is only around the growing boy that shades of the prison house of fear and distrust begin to close.

Nothing is too good to be true. Believe that and you will make it so for yourself. I cannot remember just who it was who used to say each morning, "I believe that to-day is the best day of my life," but I am sure he added much to his share of happiness by that attitude.

Now please don't say, "Oh just some more of that New Thought nonsense," and put it impatiently out of your mind.

Nothing is too good to be true. Not even that fact itself.

So cheer up, the best is yet to come.

Household Notes.

A good supper dish is made by buttering rounds of toast, then spreading sardine paste over them before the Welsh rabbit is poured on.

When a cloth dress becomes spotted, sponge it with equal parts of hot water and turpentine. Iron the parts when dry over a damp cloth.

Pieces of old kid gloves are excellent for mending the back seam of children's shoes. Sew the patch neatly on the inside of the worn place.

Chalotte russe is more appetizing and less sweet if flavored with sherry. This should be carefully stirred in, so as not to curdle the cream.

If a package of value is to be sent a great distance, it is an excellent plan to provide the box with a cover of unbleached muslin securely sewed in place.

The white of an egg beaten in lemon juice and slightly sweetened is a simple remedy for hoarseness. The mixture should be slowly dissolved in the mouth before swallowing.

To clean lacquered articles, brush with hot water and mild soap, wiping and drying before the fire and finishing with a soft cloth. Do not use alcohol or soda. It will remove the lacquer.

To mend rubber use soft kid from an old glove, and paste the patch to the gum with automobile paste. The leather adheres better to the gum than a gum patch.

If shelves and floors of closets are wiped with water which is hot with cayenne pepper, insects will be kept away. Borax and alum are good to put into the cracks.

To save gas, remove the tip and insert a small piece of cotton in the pipe and replace the tip. This lessens the pressure and a more even and softer light is obtained.

If you mix cornstarch in flour with sugar before adding it to your pudding, it will not be necessary to mix it with milk or water first, as is usually the method.

To keep sliced Spanish onions from falling apart, take toothpicks and stick them through each side to center, then dip in eggs and cracker crumbs and fry in batter.

When nuts have become too dry to be good, remove the shells, let stand over night in equal parts of milk and water; then dry them in the oven, and they will be fresh and good.

A delicious sandwich filling is made from one part of shredded or grated celery, with a dash of salt.

Money Matters
Worry Methodists.

Toronto, June 17.—Salaries too small, salaries so much in arrears that ministers have to run into debt, antiquated methods of raising funds, obstinate finance boards blocking progress, are some of the conditions which the ministerial salaries committee of the Methodist church reported to the conference yesterday through their chairman, J. W. Flavell. To remedy these conditions, they recommended that weekly offering envelopes be universally adopted, that the stewards on each circuit be prompt with their payments, that finance committees be established and volunteers be asked from each conference to help the ministerial salaries committee. The conference adopted the recommendation of the committee that each circuit adopt a system of weekly offerings for ministerial support and that a superintendent with staff personally canvass each adherent of the church, also, it was quoted that the minister's salary be paid in full each month, and, if necessary, arrangements made for a bank credit if funds were not to hand.

Ireland for Ever.

An American was visiting Ireland for the first time, and, staying at an hotel in Dublin, sought to startle some of his acquaintances as to the height of the buildings in New York. Several very "tall" stories had been received in silence.

One brawny Irishman stood it as long as he could, and then queried: "There are certainly big places your way, but ye haven't seen our newest hotel, have ye?"

The American superciliously grinned, but politely said that he had not. "I thought not," said the Irishman. "D'you know, man, it's so tall that we had to put the two top storeys on hinges!"

This remark was backed by several acquiescent cries from different parts of the room. The American sat up. "What for?" he asked.

"So we could let 'em down till the moon went by!" said Pat.

An Advertising Tale.

It was the usual rendezvous, the smoking-room at the Blue Dragon; and gathered together there was the usual crowd—knights of the road, all of them; and between them they "travelled" in almost every conceivable commodity, from biscuits to hairpins.

The conversation, as conversation among such men is apt to, drifted round to the subject of advertising, and wondrous, amazing tales were told concerning the gentle art of "pushing" sales before the young man from America chimed in, and capped the lot.

"It was last winter," he began, in his confident, persuasive voice, "a bitterly cold day, over in Chicago, being frozen to the marrow, I slipped into a second-hand clothes shop, and bought a muffler. As I unfolded the thing, a packet fell out, containing a photograph and a note.

"Now, that photograph was a portrait of the most beautiful girl I've ever dreamed of. Hence, since the note gave her name and address, and said, 'If you are single, please write to me,' I sent off a letter forthwith.

"Three days later I received a reply: 'Sir, the Mary Smith to whom you wrote was my grandmother. She died nine years ago, aged eighty-six.—Yours truly.'

"That dealer, you know, gentlemen," concluded the young man from America, with a wistful sigh, "never advertised. Nearly broke my heart, he did!"

Notes and Comments.

The Daily News is much concerned because the opponents of the Government have directed attention to the wrong doing of members of the People's Party. The Editor is censorious because we have directed attention to some of the strange doings of his special patron, the Hon. Donald Morrison. We are charged with Muck-raking, in the elegant diction adopted from America by the Hon. John Alexander Robinson. But we would ask Mr. Robinson who provides the odorous matter we have raked up? Who wrote that Orange Bay letter? Who was it floated a company to exploit timber grants obtained from the Government? Who are the directors of the Company which obtained coastal contracts from the Morris Government? Who sold the spars? Who obtained the coal contracts? Who have been on Government benches? Who became annual pensioners (to use the expression of the Gibbs' organ on the West Coast) of the Government and sacrificed their independence? If it is offensive to bring these matters before the attention of the people, is it not an incomparably greater offence to be guilty of the reprehensible practices raked up? And is it not, after all, the duty of some one to give publicity to wrong doing in order to put an end to it? Is not timber limit grabbing on the part of an Executive man a heinous offence? Or does the offence lie solely in telling the truth about it? Is it not a crime against the electorate for a Government to be a principal in the waste of the public substance in order to create a band of pensioners? Must wrong-doing be hidden from the electors and the wrong-doers held up to public admiration as honourable, just and economical administrators? By their deeds politicians must be judged, and the Morris party cannot escape the verdict.

The Tory party of 1909 beguiled the electorate just as the Tory party of 1897. In 1909 it fooled them about the cost of the branch railway construction, just as it fooled them in 1897 about no further concessions to Reid. Mr. McGrath and Mr. Robinson were to the fore in both acts of deception. They also fooled the people with the promise of an economic and business-like administration and gave them the most wasteful administration the country has ever known. After the Reid Deal, the outrageous terms of which were kept secret until the day the contract was tabled, Mr. McGrath became a fervent supporter of it, and was regarded as an undivided supporter of it locally until it was discovered he had written the notorious letter in the Chicago Record. But all the support that Mr. McGrath gave to the Deal in the Herald could not make it palatable to the people. His advocacy had no other effect than to make the people more hostile to it, and when he found the people would not follow the way he was leading he prepared to "rat" and changed his party allegiance, and started shouting for the Bond Party and laying claim to the big things he was doing. After the elections he did as little as he could politically until the eve of the Election of 1900, and commenced shouting again after he had discovered the people were determined to put the Bond Administration back. Then he claimed the whole credit of the victory; and forsooth he had the impudence on more than one occasion to claim that he gave us the seat we won in Trinity Bay, whereas then as now he was most unpopular in politics. When he found the country was inclined for a change of administration, some three years later he rattled again, and when the change came claimed the credit of making the change, as if the electorate had no minds of their own and were only anxious to vote just as Mr. McGrath wished.

The Morris Party to-day is as unpopular as the Tory Party of 1898, 1899 and 1900 was, and to that unpopularity nobody has contributed more than Mr. McGrath. Not even Messrs. Morrison and Crosbie. If McGrath was as influential as he claims why did he not succeed in 1898, 1899 and 1900 in keeping the Tory Party sweet with the country. If he is as forceful now as he claims why has he not succeeded in keeping the Morris Party in good standing with the people. He could not do it. He had been a party to the cry of No Concessions to Reid and then became a party to the policy of selling out everything to Reid. If he had opposed the Reid Deal in 1898 the country might have had some faith in him. But he changed his pre-election cry of Down with Concessions to Reid into a laudation of the Reid Deal. The country felt they had been fooled. But the Evening Telegram stood by the people in the darkest hour of political treachery and aided them in their distress to fight for the right. The Evening Telegram came out flat-footed against the Reid Deal and fought it out. If Mr. McGrath is such an acceptable person with the people of the North, how comes it he was burnt in effigy amidst public acclamation in the erstwhile Tory centre of Bonavista, at the instance of delegates hailing from Trinity Bay, Bonavista Bay and the North, and representing the feelings of Trinity Bay, Bonavista Bay and the North adverse to him and the administration he weakens by his support. If ever there was a political "blow-hard" in the country it is the Hon. P. T. McGrath. He changes with the tide of public sentiment whenever he can, and then lays claim that he is the political sun and moon which moves the political tide. But his day of reckoning has come and he is now in a political whirlpool from which he cannot escape.

OTTAWA, To-day.
When shall we French Canadians cease to attach ourselves to political parties? asked Armand Lavergne, Nationalist Lieutenant, at a gathering of over seven thousand members of his race, gathered to celebrate the Sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the Ottawa Branch of St. Jean Baptiste Society. In these words Bourassa's aide struck the keynote of the whole meeting. The union of the French Canadians of Canada was the pre-eminent thought of all the addresses with promise of a solid support to their Quebec compatriots in Ontario in the fight for bilingual schools. Asselin, President of the St. Jean de Baptiste Society of Montreal, charges French Canadians with having brought on the present situation and the immediate necessity of fighting for their rights upon themselves, by their lack of solidarity.

Judges, lawyers, policemen and spectators were sent scurrying to cover in the criminal court here, when Ray M. Stewart, aged eighteen, fired three wild shots in an attempt to shoot up the court. Justice Stafford had just refused to release Stewart on probation after a conviction for attempted highway robbery. The boy whipped out a 32 calibre automatic pistol and fired three shots, two of which narrowly missed Assistant of State Attorneys Hawlin and Given, and policeman Moffatt. He was in the attitude of turning towards the Judge as if to shoot, when a witness sprang upon him and choked him into insensibility.

"Mayme" at Rossleys.

A Splendid Act.
Before a crowded house last night the talented Lorraine Buchanan and Billy DeVan presented "Mayme," a melodramatic act that simply held the large audience spell bound. There is no doubt that this is one of the very finest acts seen here in a long time, and the patrons of Rossleys are not slow to respond to the display of artistic acting on the part of the performers. Billy DeVan sang a German song, and the duet by Mr. DeVan and H. Ingram brought them round after round of applause. The pictures are splendid, and the Star orchestra played some very excellent music.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. Richard Pike, who had been here for a couple of weeks from Winnipeg, on a visit to his mother and sister, left for home by Saturday afternoon's train. It is 21 years ago since Mr. Pike left home, then a young man of 20 years of age. He has prospered in his western home, and your correspondent wishes him a continuation of success.

Rev. Mr. Muir preached an able sermon at St. Andrew's Kirk yesterday morning, and the Rev. T. B. Darby a very able and forceful discourse in the evening.

Mr. E. Parsons, M.H.A., who lately returned from the Presbyterian Congress, held at Toronto, entertained the children of the Sabbath school yesterday afternoon with a brief account of the interesting meetings held. Mr. Parsons was very pleased when at Toronto, to see the Telegram and to read the Harbor Grace Notes therein.

Mrs. Alfred Bradbury, who spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. K. Mills, of N. E. Arm, N.B., is now in town and hopes to regain her health which has not been very good of late.

The Bell Island steamer Othar came in on Saturday with a number of workmen who spent the day with their friends and returned to the island by the same steamer in the afternoon.

The C.H.E. examinations commenced this morning in St. Paul's Hall. A goodly number of bright, determined children sat for the exams. Success to them all.

A small quantity of caplin were sold in town on Saturday. This was the first for the season.

The funeral of the late Edward Kennedy took place on Saturday afternoon. The K. E. Brigade attended.

We regret to report that there is very little if any improvement in the condition of Mr. R. D. McRae, who was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago.

The Misses Gorhorne left by Saturday's train for St. John's, en route to Nova Scotia, on a visit to their sister, Mrs. Owens.

Messrs. T. & J. Dunn's new purchase, the schooner 'Whills', is now in port and is a fine stanch looking schooner. We wish the enterprising firm much success in their fishery business.

Baseball Meeting.

A meeting of the Baseball League was held last night, at which a great deal of business was accomplished. For all future League matches two umpires will control the game. A booklet has been issued by the League and will be on sale at the game tomorrow, containing the Bye Laws and Constitution of Baseball, and as the publication is limited, it has been decided to sell it at the nominal sum of five cents each, so that they will not be distributed indiscriminately and will reach those who are interested. A selecting committee, consisting of a representative from each of the town clubs in the League together with the official umpire as chairman, was appointed to pick out the City "Nine." J. W. Wallace was appointed captain pro tem. The following nights were selected by the clubs for their regular practice on the Ball grounds:—

Thursday	Wanderers
Friday	B.I.S.

It was decided to erect a row of seats just inside the fence surrounding the diamond, and to charge 10 cents a seat during the game. Positively no seats will be reserved and tickets will have to be purchased on the grounds. Special seats will be reserved for the newspaper men and reporters. After various other minor matters had been settled the meeting adjourned.

To-Morrow's Game.

At 3.45 to-morrow afternoon the third game of Baseball in the League fixtures for the Allen Cup, will take place at the Ball Grounds, St. John's Field, when the B.I.S. and Wanderers will try conclusions. As each nine has a victory each to credit an exciting game is looked forward to. The following is the lineup:—

Fish Demand.

The accompanying letter has been received by the Board of Trade from Oporto: "During the past fortnight there has been a slight improvement in the demand for British cure but the consumption of Norwegian cure has been less owing to the scarcity of inferior qualities. An arrival from Norway has now taken place. . . . and small parcels continue to arrive from Germany and Scotland. The demand this week has commenced badly but should improve when the Norwegian steamer is discharged."

Marine Disasters' Fund

An executive meeting of the Marine Disasters' Fund Committee was held yesterday afternoon at the Board of Trade Rooms to consider applications from certain people who had not received money from the funds, and who thought they were entitled to contributions. After considerable discussion the matter was left to stand over, nothing definite being done owing to the absence of members of the committee.

The Regatta.

Last evening, the race boat Shamrock was launched for the first time for the season on Quidi Vidi Lake in the presence of rowing enthusiasts. W. Brown's amateurs had the maiden spin in her. The boat is in the pink of condition and rows splendidly. It is expected that the Nellie R's amateurs will have their trial spin this evening. The Brigade crews will soon commence practicing. The 'Herald' will row the Shamrock, we learn in the Press Race. The Myrtle is undergoing repairs and will be put on the pond for practice to-morrow afternoon.

SYDNEY, June 23.
Four Syrians from Newfoundland, on their way to the annual pilgrimage at St. Anne De Beaupre, were held up here by Immigration officer Young. Ottawa has confirmed Young's action. An appeal has been filed by the Syrians, who will be held pending final decision.

PARIS, June 23.
President Poincare left the French capital to-day for London, where he is to pay his first official visit since his election. He is to pass four days in London, where elaborate arrangements have been made for his reception by King George, the government and the municipality; in fact everything possible is being done to make the meeting of the two members of the entente cordiale as impressive and significant as possible.

LONDON, June 23.
What is suspected to have been a militant suffragette attempt to wreck the express train from London to Plymouth in the tunnel near Devonport on Sunday, is reported to-day. A motor belonging to the London Southwestern while proceeding through the tunnel, came in contact with a heavy obstacle. The motorman made a search and discovered sleepers wedged between the metals over which the express train was supposed to pass. The sleepers were removed just as a long train thundered through the tunnel.

into loving hearts the venom dire of hate. Be not so lavish with the breath that forms the words of woe, the words that bear the chill of death and lay true friendships low. A word is but a slice of air that's fashioned by your tongue; so never let it bring despair or grief to old or young. But give to it the note of love and it will surely seem the symbol of the life above, and of an angel's dream.

Riding Without Lights.

Last night Const. Nugent found a young man riding up and down the western promenade using a bicycle on which he had no lights. His name was taken and he will be summoned. Another who was there got away early when he saw the police move up the beat. Cycling without lights is of frequent occurrence both in this place and on LeMarchant Road, and we are glad to see the vigilance of the police in the premises.

Damaged the Auto.

Yesterday afternoon, a horse attached to a flat cart proceeding down Water Street was hauled out opposite Connors' drug store to escape a motor car standing there when an east bound street car collided with the flat cart, threw it in on the automobile, knocked down the horse and did some damage. The plate glass screen was smashed in the auto and other damage done but the horse escaped.

Special Notice.

We take pleasure in announcing the appointment of Mr. Richard C. Power as our Newfoundland Representative for the sale of one of the most attractive securities that we have marketed during the long period of forty years in which we have served the investing public.

We refer to the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Maritime Mail Company, Limited, a prosperous corporation operating at St. John, N.B., with the largest output of any single mill of its kind in Canada.

This issue is unusually well secured by assets appraised at $160 for every $100 share of Preferred Stock, exclusive of the amount covering the Bonds outstanding. The earnings record of the issuing Company is alike exceptionally strong and rapidly expanding under the present efficient management. Two other desirable features are the 50 per cent. Common Stock Bonus and the alternative plans of payment, cash or instalment.

A fully descriptive circular has already been mailed to our many Newfoundland patrons. We advise these friends of the circular and further particulars may be had. His office address is given below.

To-Day's Anniversary.

To-day makes the 416th anniversary of the discovery of Newfoundland by John Cabot. In 1892 His Grace Archbishop Howley was consecrated Bishop by the late Bishop Power. June 24th is also the Feast Day of St. John the Baptist, and to-day at noon the joy bells at the R. C. Cathedral pealed forth a merry tune.

Here and There.

ADVENTURE AT PHILADELPHIA.—The S. S. Adventure is now at Philadelphia loading coal. She is expected to leave for this port to-morrow.

RETURNED TO TOWN.—High. M. P. Gibbs, and Mr. A. Squires, H.A. who were at Lower Island Cove on professional business, returned to the city Saturday.

POLICE COURT.—A cooper, drunk for the sixth time, was fined $5 or 14 days. In an affluence case, bonds were given. A drunk and disorderly was fined $2 or 7 days. Two seamen for desertion were put on board their ship.

GOING TO VANCOUVER.—Mr. A. Coffin, who has been here all the winter, which he spent in his native place King's Cove, leaves shortly for Vancouver. He resided there four years and followed the halibut fishery doing very well at it.

ORPHANS FOUND.—Two boys, aged 14 and 12, who escaped from an Orphanage, were found by Constable Keeffe, at an early hour this morning, wandering the streets. They were brought back to the institution they came from to-day.

FOGOTA'S PASSENGERS.—The Fogota's passengers outward were Lieut. Dawe, S.A. C. Norris, Alan Barrett, Rev. H. T. Martin, Miss J. Turpin, Mrs. Newman, Victor T. Fortaville, O. Norris, Mrs. T. North, Miss Templeman and 12 steerage.

BRUCE PASSENGERS.—The S. S. Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques this morning bringing W. J. Fox, Wm. O'Brien, Rev. S. T. Bartlett, O. T. P. Fould, W. H. Taylor, J. P. Chetwynd, F. A. Bennett, E. Z. Sherwood, Mrs. J. Carey and Dr. J. Edicott.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.—Master Chad, Meehan, son of Mr. Meehan, of Canada, was operated on yesterday at the General Hospital for appendicitis. His school-mates of St. Bon's College will be glad to learn that the operation was successful.

STARTED AGAIN.—Mr. T. J. Allan, whose house and grocery were burned in the fire of a couple of weeks ago, re-opened his grocery store this morning. Mr. Allan is also getting his house fully repaired, and his many friends will be glad to hear that he is now again started.

Regular Monthly Meeting of the International Shoe Workers' Union will be held in the Mechanics' Hall this Tuesday evening, June 24th, at 8 o'clock. By order, F. W. KAVANAGH, Rec. Secretary.—June 24th

LOST HER MAINMAST.—The sloop Bagdad, owned by Thos. Wheatley of Haystack, P.E.I. while on her way from the home port to go fishing north, this morning in the heavy N.W. wind which blew, was hit with a sudden squall and her mainmast was carried away from the deck. She had to put into this port and will get a new spar to-day.

MEETING POSTPONED.—The meeting of the Highland Games Committee, which was to be held to-night, has been postponed until Thursday, at 9 p.m., in the Presbyterian Hall. M.A.L. COLM PARSONS, Sec'y. June 24th Gentleness.

If thou hast crushed a flower,
The root may not be blighted;
If thou hast quenched a lamp,
Once more it may be lighted;
But on thy heart or on thy lute,
The string which thou hast broken,
Shall never in sweet sound again
Give to thy touch a token.

If thou hast loosed a bird,
Whose voice of song could cheer
Thee,
Still, still he may be won
From the skies to warble near
Thee;
But if upon the troubled sea
Thou hast thrown a gem unheeded,
Hope not that wind or wave shall bring
The treasure back when needed.

If thou hast bruised a vine,
The summer's breath is healing,
And its cluster yet may glow
Through the leaves their bloom revealing;
But if thou hast a cup o'erthrown
With a bright draught filled—O, never
Shall the earth give back that lavish wealth
To cool thy parched lips' fever!

The heart is like that cup,
If thou wast the love it bore thee;
And like that jewel gone,
Which the deep will not restore
Thee;
And like that string, or harp or lute
Whence the sweet sound is scattered—
Gently, O! gently touch the chords
So soon for ever shattered!

Absentmindedness.

The Newfoundland Government appears to be suffering from a fit of absentmindedness. A British salvage firm has sent a powerful plant in order to float the steamer Glace Bay, which lies aground off the Newfoundland coast. But the Government have demanded duties on all the material to be used on the job of no less an amount than 35 per cent. A more absurd imposition could not be imagined. If the demand is persisted in, the only possible result will be that shippers will refuse to take the risks of trading to Newfoundland at all. Indeed, the premiums required by underwriters would render it impossible for them to do so. As Newfoundland does not produce salvage plant, there can be no question of protecting home industries, while, as for the revenue to be derived from such a source, for every pound received the Government stands to lose a thousand by the taffing off of trade which would inevitably follow. We hope Sir Edward Morris and his Ministers will bethink themselves.—Patt. Gazette, May 25th, 1913.

The Servant Problem.

In view of the ever-increasing difficulty of obtaining and retaining satisfactory domestic servants it is highly important to adopt every means which will reduce the work of the house.

It has been proved by the experience of many that the use of gas for cooking, heating and hot water supply, makes it possible to do with fewer servants, easier to keep those you have, and a less expensive matter to have none.—Ine10,ed,tf

Confessions Of The King's Bootmakers.

More than nine-tenths of our customers were men. We, of course, made boots and shoes for ladies, but it really requires a shoemaker who has specialised in ladies' footwear to turn them out properly.

As a matter of fact, for nearly a hundred years we absolutely refused to make a boot or shoe of any kind for ladies. In the beginning we were really military bootmakers, and the greater part of our trade was in connection with officers in the Army.

It was not, therefore, till Queen Alexandra came to the Throne that we did any great amount of work for her. Before that the Queen had most of her footwear made by a ladies' shoemaker, though we occasionally made a pair of boots for her to wear when she accompanied shooting-parties at Sandringham and elsewhere. These were laced boots, and were really what we call a "lady's man's boot"—that is to say, a man's boot, but much lighter in make.

Shoes at £2 2s. a Pair.
Queen Alexandra prefers an embroidered shoe above anything else. While in town she practically wears nothing else, only wearing boots when holiday-making, as it were.

The Queen's shoes are made of finest black kid, and cost her £2 2s. a pair. The toes are embroidered in gold, silver, and black jet, spangled on in the most wonderful and beautiful designs. These spangles are very similar in appearance to those used on ladies' dresses, and every one has to be carefully sewn on by hand by women who specialised in the work.

Before the shoes are made an artist draws out designs for the embroidery on the toes, and a number of these designs are submitted to the Queen. She is an artist herself, and often throws out a suggestion for improving the design. The shoes are, of course, ordered several pairs at a time.

The whole work in them is extremely delicate, the soles, for instance, not being thicker than a new sixpence, and the inside of the shoes being lined with silk. The bows are spangled in the same way as the toes are. The Queen only wears her shoes half a dozen to a dozen times, as a rule.

Special Boots When in Mourning.
Jet and gold are her two favourite colours for the embroidery work. She always wears jet embroidery shoes, by the way, when she is in mourning. It is not very well known that whenever the court goes into mourning special mourning boots and slippers are worn.

These boots have plain back cloth uppers, and are worn by everybody moving in society on the death of Royalty. When the Duke of Clarence died the whole court, peers, M.P.'s, and so on, went into the deepest mourning. On that occasion we had every single man we could spare turning out mourning boots as fast as they could be made.

The first time I actually called upon Queen Alexandra was about the time of her Coronation. I had with me half-a-dozen pairs of shoes for her Majesty, intending to leave them and call again later to see if they were all right. It was an unwritten rule that only the head of the firm actually attended on kings and queens while the chief assistant called upon minor Royalties, as it were.

When King Edward was Prince of Wales, for example, I often waited upon him, but when he came to the Throne the head of the firm would go to the Palace himself whenever possible.

When I arrived at Buckingham Palace Queen Alexandra's attendant told me that her Majesty wanted her shoes tried on at once. As I had no idea that I might be called upon to fit the shoes on I had come out in my old working-coat. I pointed this out to the attendant, and also told her that my employer would rather attend himself.

The attendant explained the position I was in to the Queen, who promptly replied: "Never mind how he is dressed so long he can tell whether the shoes fit or not. I don't judge a man by the clothes he wears." She also gave orders for her attendant to telephone to the shop, and explain that "The Queen had commanded Mr. Bulley to try her shoes on."

But all my nervousness vanished when I was in the presence of the Queen. A more gracious lady doesn't exist, she was literally worshipped by all who had to wait upon her, and for everyone she had a kindly word and smile.

Only those in her confidence have the slightest idea of her charity and her constant thought for the poor. Her secret charity is boundless, and she spares no trouble or worry to help those who need it whenever she can. Queen Alexandra is indeed the "Queen of the Poor," and the heavy sorrows she has suffered lately have only made her feel all the more keenly for those in distress.

Among all the newspaper reports which appeared on the fiftieth anniversary of the Queen's marriage I was unable to trace a mention of one of the greatest of the celebrations in her honour.

Burnt a Ship in Her Honour.

On the night of March 10th, 1863, the wedding night, I witnessed such a scene from Plymouth Hoe that will never be forgotten. Thousands of sightseers gathered from miles round Plymouth and Devonport. The first part of the programme showed Plymouth Sound illuminated by fireworks. Suddenly a large three-masted ship, with all sails set, was fired at about nine o'clock.

The ship had previously been covered with pitch and tar, and in her hold were tons of inflammable material. She was fired at several points, and as the sailors rowed away from her she burst into flames from stem to stern. In a few minutes the rigging, masts and sails were ablaze, and I saw for the first and probably the last time a ship on fire at sea.

As the flames sank to the water's edge thousands of schoolchildren sang "God Bless the Prince of Wales."

I was one of the children.

Strange Loss of Memory.

London Doctor Knows Cases Equal to Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Are there in actual existence cases of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?" A remarkable article in the current number of the Practitioner by Sir George Savage, lecturer on mental diseases at Guy's Hospital, seems to indicate that phenomena of dual personality approaching very nearly Stevenson's famous phantasy are occasionally discovered by those whose studies bring them in contact with the mysteries of the abnormal human mind.

The article is entitled "Automatism," which the writer defines broadly as "the condition in which complicated mental processes give rise to complicated reactions to the surroundings, which are not recollected in the ordinary waking and normal state."

Sir George divides his cases of more serious automatism into three groups. In the first there is no epilepsy, in the second fits are followed by automatic acts, and in the third replaced by them. He gives two terrible instances of the first two groups. In one a man killed his wife, in the other a mother wounded her child with a knife. Both man and woman were unconscious of what they were doing.

"In the third group," continues the writer, "we find cases like that of a certain country squire of middle age, of healthy active habits, with no hereditary history of any neuritis, who came to London to consult his solicitor on a certain Tuesday morning. The lawyer asked him to call again at three o'clock. He did not return, but finding himself near his lawyer's office some days later about half-past three, he went there, believing the day still Tuesday and that he was only half an hour late as result of his watch having stopped. He could not believe that the hour was half-past three and the day Friday. He then recognized that he had not shaved, but he seemed to have washed, dressed and eaten regularly. He certainly had not been drinking. He could not trace where he had been or what he had done, but it is clear that there had been nothing abnormal in his conduct to lead any one to suppose him to be out of his mind."

Not the least interesting part of this extraordinary questing of automatism, dual personality, loss of memory—whatever may be the correct title for each instance—is its legal aspect, and how far the author of crimes committed while in an abnormal state is amenable to the criminal law. To what extent must Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde suffer for the misdeeds of Mr. Hyde? This is Sir George Savage's view:—"I have on several occasions been asked to defend female kleptomaniacs on the plea of unconsciousness, but I generally declined although I admit it is possible for thieving, adroitly done and with apparent endeavor of concealment, to follow an epileptic seizure."

Another famous mental specialist, asked his views on this point, said:—"Serious crimes as well as petty thefts can, of course, be quite unconsciously committed and no memory of what had been done may be retained. This was a theory in the notorious, Jack the Ripper cases." "And Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde? Do they—or does he—exist?" "I have known of cases so extraordinary," was the reply, "that the actual physical appearance of the patient is different during his period of aberration. I have known a physically sound and normal man to develop paralysis of an arm or some other limb; or alteration of facial expression in sympathy with the abnormalities of his mind."

Bicycle Takes Charge.

Goes Over Carter's Hill and Driver and Boy Narrowly-Escaped Death.

During the past few months the danger of people trying to bring bicycles over the steeper streets of the city has become manifest. Already one death and two narrow escapes have occurred from such a proceeding and it is now about time that a stop be put to it.

Shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday evening Mr. Paul Mackey, of Plank Road, came down over Carter's Hill on his cycle with the brakes held firmly down, and was about three quarters down the steep grade when the brakes gave out and the machine shot over the street at lightning speed. Mr. Mackey tried to get the bike down around to Theatre Hill and up New Gower Street to the level when a little lad named Nicholas English, of Moore Street, aged 6 years, suddenly shot across the street, the bike collided with him, he was thrown violently several feet and rendered unconscious and Mr. Mackey himself was pitched a considerable distance and was severely hurt. A man named Murphy picked up the unconscious child and ran with him to Dr. Stafford's surgery where Mr. Mackey followed. The boy was badly cut about the forehead and face and was bruised about the body and lost considerable blood; several stitches had to be inserted in the wounds, and for a while last night he was still unconscious. Mr. Mackey was also badly cut and his clothing was torn while one of his fingers were broken. The mother of the child suffers from epilepsy and in an attack Sunday last had her arm badly scalded by a vessel of boiling water going over it.

French President to Dine the British King and Queen.

Four Tons of Valuable Plate Comes to London for the Occasion.

London, June 20.—Four tons of priceless gold and silver plate, china and glassware, the property of the French nation, arrived in London last night in readiness for the state banquet at which the French President is to entertain the King and Queen at the French Embassy on Wednesday evening next, during his state visit to England.

No fewer than 115 cases were required to contain this valuable property and these were packed in four patent sling wagons in which they travelled from Paris. A number of French and English detectives accompanied the wagons, and at Charing Cross when the cases were unloaded for removal to the embassy, a large staff of station police as well as officers from Scotland Yard and Bow Street were on duty.

By special arrangement the cases were passed by the customs authorities who checked the initials of the republic, "R. F." marked in white characters on each of the wagons, being a sufficient passport.

A sealed padlock was found to be missing from one of the cases when it was being unloaded and the case appeared as if it had been tampered with. Anxiety was allayed, however, by the contents of the box being at once checked and found to tally with the register of the contents. The padlock was not found despite a vigorous search. Among the cases were several containing wines and liquors of the finest vintage from presidential cellars.

The Voyage

Before me lies the troublous deep,
Life's ocean, tossed by many a storm;

Behind me, hush'd, the billows sleep,
Whose calm, wild winds no more deform.

I tempted childhood's laughing waves
And reckless, toyed with danger nigh.

I trod upon the gaping grave
And smiled at fear, yet, knew not why.

In youth I sought a brighter path,
Yet caused to gaze at childhood's beam;

Fled was the angry lightning's scathe,
For peaceful is love's early dream.

What danger's press on manhood's prow!
His barque is tossed by every gale.

The shoals of folly thicken now,
And perils rise, and cares assail.

Yet manhood past, how slight appear
The terrors strown on manhood's way.

Night's covering phantoms disappear,
And broad and brightly shines the day.

Before me lies the troublous deep,
The sea which angry waves deform.
Yet faith shall bid the billows sleep,
And Hope shall soar above the storm.

Notriety.

By H. L. RANN.

Notriety is a man of the grave and fresco his with slander. If a member church in good standing in case of malt extract for the of a sick wife, the expression be two blocks down the street six neighbours will be willing an affidavit that he returns night before last in a taut state and tried his night bed outside cellar door. This accotriety is harder to live down reputation for frequenting cheapers in the company of a do appetite.

Notoriety.
By H. L. RANN.

Notoriety is a fictitious form of advertising which some men are willing to contract for at scale rates, while others attempt to snoop it by jilviding their property with the plaintiff.

There are several kinds of notoriety, any one of which will pursue a man to the edge of the grave and fresco his memory with slander. If a member of the church in good standing orders a case of malt extract for the sole use of a sick wife, the expressman won't be ped blocks down the street before his neighbours will be willing to make an affidavit that he returned home light before last in a tangle-footed state and tried his night key on the outside cellar door. This kind of notoriety is harder to live down than a reputation for frequenting church suppers in the company of a devastating squire.

Another popular brand of notoriety is that which a man gains by walking down the street with somebody else's wife. By doing this twice in succession an esteemed citizen will establish to the perfect satisfaction of all concerned that he is a desperate and hardened flirt and should be labored with by the viceroy.

An easy and inexpensive method of securing notoriety is to own the only pair of white duck pants in town and spring them with an apologetic look upon an outraged community. It requires more moral courage to perform this simple act than to walk up to the cannon's mouth and die in small fragments for one's country. If the white duck pants that now lie buried in cedar chests, after one timid sally on Main street, could be brought to life and beauty, they would form a limp procession that would reach from coast to coast.

Newspaper notoriety consists of a large, plain spoken scare head, followed by a column and a half of agile guessing on the part of the reporter staff. Sometimes the reporters guess so close to the facts that the accused is glad to compromise by serving six months in the county jail and paying the attorney fees.

Two Birds One Stone.

Norah had arrived from Erin's Isle but a week, and was with difficulty being "broken in" to the routine of an English household. Cleanliness was not a very strong point with her, and her cooking, apart from "spuds" was hardly all that could be desired.

"If you are not quite sure on any point, come and ask me at once," said her mistress.

Dinner was just about to be served, when there was a clatter along the hall, and the breathless Norah poked her head round the dining-room door.

Had Rabbit Sold.

A Matter for the Game Board. Complaint is being made that some of the canned rabbit that is marketed is unfit for consumption. A few days ago a city grocer who bought a shipment of the stuff, found that the contents of twelve tins in one case only were in a bad state of preservation, with a strong odor from them, hence they could not be retailed to customers. In the first place the owner of the goods has been victimized as the number of tins containing the poisonous food are left to remain unsold without any returns whatever. The grocer referred to intends to report the matter, we understand, to the Game and Inland Fisheries Board for investigation. All that is known at present is that the article was put up some where on the West Coast of the Island, but the matter of bringing the violation home to the right party is a question that will probably remain unsettled. Whilst the packers of rabbit were granted permission by the Game Board to carry on business yet their tins are not labelled for the protection of the purchasers, nor are the packers names registered numerically as in the case of the salmon and lobster industries which are controlled by the Marine and Fisheries Department and are so stamped that in the event of infractions of the law being reported, the guilty parties are easily traced. It is now up to the Game Board to do something.

C. E. I. Defeat St. Bon's

The St. Bon's and C.E.I. were the contestants in last night's football match. There was a fair attendance but the high wind that prevailed made it unfavorable for a good exhibition. Shortly after the opening the St. Bon's scored and after some fast play the Institute boys sent in the equalizer. After changing ends a better game was witnessed. During a scrimmage the St. Bon's notched up their second goal. The C.E.I. then became aggressive and added two more goals to their score. The game ended—C.E.I. 3 goals; St. Bon's, 2. The players were:

C.E.I.—Goal, Volsey; backs, Stick, Hussey; halves, Drover, Fox, Churchill; forwards, Bartlett, Evans, James, Oliver, Churchill.

St. Bon's—Goal, St. John; backs, Rennie, Byrne; halves, Ryan, Higgins, Cleary; forwards, Templeman, Robertson, Kent, Keating, Callahan.

What Did He Mean?

Last year, when the time for his annual holiday came, Mr. Hounsell retired with his wife and family to a little farmhouse down in Dorset, where quiet and rest seemed likely to be assured.

Close by, however, was a pig-sty, a very piggy sty, the presence of which was indicated unmistakably under certain wind conditions. When planning, therefore, to revisit the farm, again this year, Mr. Hounsell wrote to the landlord, saying that he would take the place once more, but only on condition that the piggery was first attended to.

The farmer's reply was concise and to the point:

"Can accommodate you easily. There have been no pigs on the place since you left!"

Advantage of The Red Indian.

Most people have one leg shorter than the other, and this is proved by the fact that people when they are lost in a fog wander round and round in a circle, said Dr. Oxley, in giving evidence in a workmen's compensation case in Bow County Court recently.

"Don't they attribute this to the development of the brain?" asked his honor. "Red Indians can walk straight in a fog."

Dr. Oxley explained that the Red Indians walked with the feet flat and the toes straight, while civilized people turned their toes outward.

Brigade Match.

To-night's match between the C.L.B. and C.C.C. is being looked forward to with interest, as a fast game is expected. The players will be:

C.L.B.—Goal, F. Marshall; backs, Bradbury, Ryall; halves, Newman, Whiter, Trebble; forwards, Keats, Readell, Andrews, Hunt, R. Marshall.

C.C.C.—Goal, H. Phalen; backs, J. Walsh, Thompson; halves, Christie, W. Hart, Kavanagh; forwards, Reardigan, Hart, F. Phalen, Evans, Woods.

Big Price For A Liqueur.

What is probably a record price for a liqueur was obtained recently when a parcel of yellow Chartreuse, the product of the ancient monastery in France, was sold under the hammer by Mr. H. E. King, of the firm of auctioneers, Messrs. Bashfords, Limited, at the London Commercial Sale Rooms, at 305s. per dozen.—London paper.

Nothing Will Do But

Penco, 1869.

Dealers, Builders, Architects and Engineers, who want the BEST, insist that their Metal Roofing, Ceiling or other Metal Products bear this mark of quality.

PENCO Sheets are the kind that are used on the warships of the U. S. Navy—the kind that you will find East-West-North or South—even in the mountains of Asia.

They cost no more than cheaper grades. Let us quote you.
