

HOOPIRON!

BOWRING BROTHERS, LIMITED.

FOR SALE
 By Public Auction,
 At the office of the undersigned, Tuesday, the 15th day of October, 12 o'clock noon, IF NOT PREVIOUSLY DISPOSED OF BY PRIVATE SALE, all that valuable Freehold Land, containing in all about 100 acres, belonging to the Estate of the late Mr. W. HUTCHINGS, and situated on the Topsail Road, seven miles from town. This is a most desirable investment, as apart from the large quantity of timber which may be cut from the foregoing land, the soil has been pronounced very superior for farming purposes.

The Lost Will;

OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER VIII.

She looked at him with tear-laden eyes, and Jack thought that never in his life had he received such a look, and might never again.

"I don't know what to say," she said. "In all my life I have never met any one so kind as you; it would be churlish to refuse to let you help me, though I don't know how you can. I mean—she blushed—that I have some money, enough to go on with. I think I shall be able to earn my living. I used to give music lessons in Australia, and I dare say I can get some pupils here. I was going to try to do so, but my father—"

Jack rose, though he was reluctant enough to do so; but he felt that he had no right to intrude any longer, on her grief.

"I'll take myself off now," he said; "you'd like to be alone. Oh, I know well enough how you feel. But you must let me come again, and soon. I am sure I could help you to get some pupils; I know a lot of people with kids. Good-bye, Miss Norton."

She rose and gave him her hand, and he pressed it with that mysterious, magnetic pressure which conquers so much to the woman—the strength, the tenderness, of the man.

Jack had reached the door; then, with an exclamation of penitence, he said:

"By George! I was forgetting what had brought me here. I beg your pardon; I'm awfully sorry. Here is the packet your father entrusted me with last night." He laid it on the table and she glanced at it listlessly.

"You don't know what it is, I suppose?" said Jack, making the question an excuse for lingering.

"No," she replied. "I do not imagine it is of any importance. You see, last night he was wandering in his mind, imagining all kinds of things."

"All the same, you'd better see what it is," said Jack.

She took up the envelope and opened it; then she changed color and looked from Jack to the things she had drawn from the envelope. There was a startled expression in her eyes; the color had faded from her face and left it white again.

"I—don't understand," she faltered. "These—these are bank-notes, are they not? English bank-notes." She held out the roll and Jack took it.

"Yes, they're English notes right enough, and for a large amount," he said, and he was almost as surprised as she was.

"But where did they come from?" she asked in a low voice. "My father was poor. We had only a little money—Oh, I don't understand! I'm afraid—frightened. It's—it's so strange."

"There's nothing to be afraid of in bank-notes," said Jack, encouragingly. "What's that paper you've got there?"

She opened the folded paper and looked at it; then her brows drew straight and she raised her eyes with a puzzled, bewildered expression.

"It looks like—a will," she faltered. "Oh, please—"

He took the paper and read it; then he dropped into a chair and stared straight in front of him.

"Oh, it's a will right enough," he said, in a curious voice. "Shall I read it to you?"

"No," she replied; "I—I shouldn't understand—my brain is in a whirl. Please just tell me what it means—though perhaps I have no right to hear."

"Oh, yes, you have," said Jack, with a little laugh, so strange and peculiar that she started slightly and gazed at him half fearfully. "It means that you are immensely rich. You are the heiress to Mr. Jesse B. Chalfont's fortune—my friend's. He made this will last night, and he left every penny he'd got to you."

CHAPTER IX.

THREE weeks later Jack, followed by Jim, went slowly up the steps of Chertson Hall. After Mr. Chalfont's funeral, which had been attended not only by the major part of the villagers, who had lost a good landlord and friend, but by a number of prominent City men, philanthropists, and so on, Jack had returned to his chambers. For Miss Norton, his mistress, had been duly installed at the Hall.

It had been a strenuous time for Jack, for not only had he been occupied in assisting Mr. Horton in the arrangement of the late Mr. Chalfont's affairs, but he had played the part of guide, mentor, and friend to the lonely girl who had suddenly become the heiress of Mr. Chalfont's vast wealth.

And he had played the part well and with all his heart; he had tried to comfort her in her distress; had, with Mr. Horton's assistance, made the way of her great change smooth for her, had seen to everything great and small, and, lastly, had procured for her a chaperon in the person of a Mrs. Feltham, a middle-aged lady who could act as companion and chaperon to the heiress. Mrs. Feltham was a distant connection of the Chalfonts, a woman of the world, kindly and gentle, and she had at once taken the lonely girl to her heart.

In fact, Jack's mind had been so fully engaged with the affairs of the dead man and his heiress that he had not had time to think of himself—which, perhaps, was just as well.

As he entered the hall of the house which had been so nearly his, Mrs. Feltham, hearing his voice, came out of the morning-room to meet him. With her white hair, aristocratic face and figure, she looked a model chaperon, and Jack, as she pressed his hand, congratulated himself upon having secured her.

"I am so glad you have come, Jack," she said.

"How is she?" he asked.

"Better, I am glad to say," replied Mrs. Feltham, in her soft, clear voice. "I have made her take plenty of rest, and, though she is still very pale—I should think she never has much colour—she has evidently got over the shock of things."

Jack nodded thoughtfully. "She's a good plucked one, I know," he said. "Poor girl!"

"She is in the library with Mr. Horton," said Mrs. Feltham. "He wants to have a moment with you before you see Miss Norton. Oh, yes; Nora is growing stronger, more cheerful and resigned, every day. Of course, she doesn't yet realise the great change that has befallen her; but presently I am going to take her amongst the people of the estate, and perhaps up to London for the day. She wants very careful treatment, and tender treatment, Jack."

"And she'll get that from you, I know, Mabel," said Jack. "You like her?"

"My dear Jack, I love her; indeed, it would be very difficult not to do so; she is so sweet and modest—and yet there's nothing of the shrinking flower about her. I dare say you've noticed that little air of quiet dignity which is natural to her?"

"Oh, yes," said Jack; "there were few things about Miss Norton which he had not noticed.

"What I mean is that she has nothing of the nervousness, the gaucheness, which one might reasonably have expected in a girl in her position who has been raised suddenly from poverty to great wealth; indeed, she has stepped into her place so naturally, and yet so modestly, that every now and then I forget that she was not born in the purple, so to speak."

"Oh, yes," said Jack; "there were said Jack. "She'll fill the bill to perfection. Ah, here's Horton!"

Mrs. Feltham, murmuring an excuse, left the two men together.

"Well," said Jack, "how goes it?"

"Things are going very well," replied Mr. Horton—"better even than I expected. Miss Norton is easy to get on with, and I must say I am surprised at the little difficulty I find in explaining matters to her; and, of course, there's a good deal needs explaining."

"Just so," said Jack. "There was a pause; then he added, with his eyes on the carpet, "she does not suspect—I mean, she has no idea of how matters stood between poor Mr. Chalfont and me?"

"No," replied Mr. Horton. "That is—I think not. She is extremely intelligent, and, of course, when she came to think things over, she was surprised that Mr. Chalfont had left everything to her and had not made any bequests; she was evidently disappointed that there were no relations to whom she could give some of the money. And she mentioned your name."

"Oh!" said Jack, uneasily.

"Yes, I suppose she discovered that you were not only Mr. Chalfont's secretary, but a friend to whom he was very much attached, and she ask-

"Oh!" said Jack, uneasily.

"Yes, I suppose she discovered that you were not only Mr. Chalfont's secretary, but a friend to whom he was very much attached, and she asked me why you had not been mentioned in the will."

"Of course, you told her there was no reason why I should be?" said Jack, quickly.

"Yes; and I mentioned casually that you were a barrister—had your own profession." Jack grinned ruefully. "She appreciates all you have done for her, and is very grateful; in fact, she seems to rely on you and to regard me"—he smiled—"as quite a secondary individual; not that she isn't grateful to me, too, and she expressed her gratitude very prettily."

"Have you warned Thomson and Green, and the other servants, to keep their mouths shut?" asked Jack gravely.

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Horton, "and threatened them with all sorts of pains and penalties. She is not at all likely to hear anything of the other will."

"That's all right; let's forget it," said Jack cheerfully.

"Easier said than done," said Mr. Horton, with a frown. "That will worry me, Chalfont. I want to know which will was signed last, and what he did with the one we drew up—the one in your favour. He did not burn it, for there was no fire and there were no charred remains, ashes, anywhere in the room; I searched carefully."

"Oh, well, it doesn't matter," said Jack philosophically. "As I say, let's forget it. I'll go to her now, unless you've anything more to say."

"Only this," said Mr. Horton, somewhat hesitatingly. "I don't want to pry into your private affairs, Chalfont, but I've an idea—forgive me!—that you are not particularly well-off. I know what an uphill struggle it is for a man in your profession. If there's anything I can do—"

"Oh, rather," said Jack, with a laugh, but colouring. "You can send me some briefs, if you've pluck enough to trust me. I've got a pal—Tredgale, 'Jiggles,' you know—in the chambers below me, and I know he'd help me and keep me straight."

Mr. Horton nodded. "Yes, yes," he said. "I'll see what I can do." He paused a moment. "See here, Chalfont, I've not yet had an opportunity of telling you how much I appreciate the way in which you have taken this disappointment, and I know it must have been a very great one. Allow me to do so now."

He held out his hand, and Jack, shaking it, said:

"That's awfully decent of you, Horton; but, come to think of it, what else could I do?"

He crossed the hall and knocked at the library door, and Nora's low, clear voice bade him enter. She rose from her chair to meet him with her hand outstretched, and just the faintest colour in the ivory of her face.

"Oh, I'm so glad you've come," she said, as she motioned him to a chair; but she herself went to the fireplace and stood, leaning one arm on the mantelshelf. "There is so much I want to ask you. I am almost ashamed to say so, after all you have done for me." The colour had left her face again, but her eyes rested on him gravely, gratefully. "Don't suppose that any woman ever met with such a friend. You have been like a brother to me, Mr. Chalfont." Her voice broke for a moment, but she steadied it. "I do not know what I should have done without you. You came to me—Oh, I can't express what I feel!"

"Oh, that's all right," said Jack, awkwardly. "Are you better? You're looking more fit."

"Oh, yes," she said, stifling a sigh. "There has been so much to do that I have not had time to think, to brood. Mr. Chalfont, Mr. Horton has been explaining things to me. Have you any idea of the amount of money which has come to me so suddenly? It is so vast that I feel confused, bewildered."

If you paid $1 for a can of milk and proved it to be three-quarters water, would you be satisfied?

If you paid the price for a silk sweater coat and found it nine-tenths cotton, wouldn't you complain?

The makers of Zam-Buk believe you should buy your medicine as critically and carefully as you buy food and clothing. When you buy Zam-Buk you get a remedy that is 100% medicine—not a small proportion of medicine and the balance animal fat! See the advantage?

Again, animal fats won't keep for very long; yet how often do you need to use a whole box of ointment right away? Zam-Buk's absolute freedom from animal fat prevents its turning rancid. It will keep for months and yet retain all its medicinal powers.

These are but two of the many reasons why Zam-Buk is the most widely used ointment. It has been proved best for all sores, eczema, bad legs, ulcers, abscesses, scald sores, boils, pimples, ringworm, blood-poisoning, piles, burns, scalds, cuts, stiff neck and rheumatism. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25. German Circulars in Fruit Basket.

A few weeks ago, says the St. John N.B. Telegraph, several circulars arrived at a certain business office in this city. These circulars contained a list of prices for fruits for preserving. The prices seemed fair and even attractive and the result was that several of the gentlemen in the office, including the manager, decided to order some of the fruit offered for sale.

The next day an order went in to this Ontario firm for several baskets of the fruit advertised in the circulars. The goods arrived yesterday in good condition and on opening the baskets the gentlemen agreed that they had secured a bargain. When the manager arrived home with his fruit he emptied the basket and underneath the fruit he found a second circular. This circular, however, was not written in English as the other had been and was in the German language. It is now being translated and the gentlemen will soon know the purport of the message in the circular.

It is understood that each basket of fruit received contained a similar circular printed in German. These gentlemen have a suspicion that the firm selling the fruit or some agency unknown to the firm is using the goods to circulate German literature. It is understood that the matter is now being investigated by the proper authorities and if there happens to be anything amiss in the message contained in the circular the Ontario firm will be asked to explain the presence of these pamphlets in the fruit which they are exporting to this province.

WAR REVIEW.

Bulgaria is definitely out of the war and Turkey virtually cut off from communication with her allies and almost with annihilation in Palestine. It is likely soon will be forced to sue for a cessation of hostilities against her. Meanwhile the Entente Allied forces from Belgium to Verdun on six battle fronts are registering victory after victory over the Teuton arms, and of the enemy front almost everywhere is crumbling; notwithstanding the desperate resistance that is being offered on various sectors. Seeing eventual defeat staring her in the face through the swift progress of the Serbians, Italian, British, Greek and French troops in the reclaiming of Serbia, and the invasion of Bulgaria for territory, the Bulgarians begged for an armistice reserving to themselves no conditions. All the territory now held by King Ferdinand's men is to be evacuated, the Bulgarian army is to be immediately demobilized, and all means of transport in this kingdom even along the Danube is to be given over into Allied hands. Thus, in addition to the isolation of Turkey, the back door to a direct invasion of Austria-Hungary is flung wide open to the Allies, and doubtless the time is not distant when advantage to the Allies will be taken of the new avenue through which the enemy can be reached. With the debacle in Serbia and Bulgaria complete, the Aus-

Bulgaria Surrenders Unconditionally

German Connection With the East Severed, and Turkey Cut off From Her Friends—Allied Victories on Six Fronts—The Hun Now Receiving His Just Due.

LONDON, September 30.

Speaking at the Guild Hall to-day Andrew Bonar Law, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, said a Bulgarian convention had been signed by which hostilities ended at noon to-day. Bulgaria, by the terms of the agreement, gives up completely the control of the railways, the Chancellor stated. By this convention it seems, said the Chancellor, that communication between Germany and the East in that direction has been cut off, and that the German dream of a German middle Eastern Empire has gone forever.

PARIS, September 30.

A Salonika despatch states that General Franchet D'Esperry, the Allied Commander-in-Chief in Macedonia, signed for the Allies, and the Bulgarian delegates for their Government. Instructions have been begun by the Government that General D'Esperry proceed immediately to the execution of the conditions of the armistice.

LONDON, September 30.

The armistice concluded with Bulgaria by the Entente Allies is a purely military convention and contains no provision of a political character. Bulgaria agrees to evacuate all the territory she now occupies in Greece and Serbia, to demobilize her army immediately and surrender all means of transport to the Allies. Bulgaria also will surrender her boats and control of navigation on the Danube and concede to the Allies free passage through Bulgaria for the development of military operations.

WAR REVIEW.

Bulgaria is definitely out of the war and Turkey virtually cut off from communication with her allies and almost with annihilation in Palestine likely soon will be forced to sue for a cessation of hostilities against her. Meanwhile the Entente Allied forces from Belgium to Verdun on six battle fronts are registering victory after victory over the Teuton arms, and the enemy front almost everywhere is crumbling; notwithstanding the desperate resistance that is being offered on various sectors. Seeing eventual defeat staring her in the face through the swift progress of the Serbians, Italian, British, Greek and French troops in the reclaiming of Serbia, and the invasion of Bulgarian territory, the Bulgarians begged for an armistice reserving to themselves no conditions. All the territory now held by King Ferdinand's men is to be immediately demobilized, and all means of transport in this kingdom even along the Danube is to be given over into Allied hands. Thus, in addition to the isolation of Turkey, the back door to a direct invasion of Austria-Hungary is flung wide open to the Allies, and doubtless the time is not distant when advantage to the full will be taken of the new avenue through which the enemy can be reached. With the debacle in Serbia and Bulgaria complete, the Austro-Hungarians in Albania soon will be put to the test and when their evacuation of their own borders is accomplished, the Allies will have welded an iron semi-circle about the Central Powers from the Black Sea to the North Sea. Viewing the situation in all its aspects, success of the great offensive in Belgium and France, the blotting out of the war soon in the Balkans, the cutting off of the Turks from intercourse with Germany and Austria-Hungary, except by the long route through the Caucasus and Southern Russia, and the steady gains that are being made by the Allies in making Russia once more a factor in the struggle, the darkest days of the war seemingly are faced by the Austro-Germans. Although it had been officially announced that hostilities against the Bulgarians ceased at noon on Monday, the French official communique on Monday night said French cavalry had entered Uskub, one of the most important communication centres in Serbia. It is not improbable that the French reached this town before the armistice became effective. On all the sectors under attack from the Belgian Flanders to the region of Verdun, the German front is gradually bending back under the violence of the attack of the British, Americans, French and Belgians. In Belgium, the advance of the troops of King Albert and of Field Marshal Haig have pierced so deeply eastward that Germany's tro-Hungarians in Albania soon will be put to the test and when their evacuation of their own borders is accomplished, the Allies will have welded an iron semi-circle about the Central Powers from the Black Sea to the North Sea. hold on the entire Belgian coast as far as Ostend. From Dixmude south-eastward a wide wedge has been driven into the enemy positions, and at last reports the Allied forces were within less than two miles of the important railway junction point of Roulers.

ANOTHER PEACE MOTION.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 30. A proposition that the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the Parliaments of belligerent and neutral states shall be invited to meet for an unbinding discussion of the basis of peace has been introduced in the Lower House of the Austrian Parliament. The motion, says the Vienna message, was introduced by Herr Neumäkin, a Liberal Deputy. It would empower the President of the Chamber of Deputies to convey the invitation to the Parliaments of the belligerent and of neutral states. The meeting would be held at a place agreed upon.

BRITISH PRESSED BACK.

LONDON, Sept. 30. (British official).—On the front north west of La Catelet German counter attacks pressed the British back to the outskirts of Villers Guislain while to the south west of La Catelet similar pressure sent Field Marshal Haig's troops back to the edge of the village of Bony.

MOVED FROM SOFIA.

PARIS, Sept. 30. King Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, is expected to reach Vienna soon according to a General despatch quoting Innsbruck advices. When the two daughters of King Ferdinand reached Vienna late last week they stated that they expected their father to follow them shortly. The two princesses arrived at Vienna on Saturday night from Sofia and were met by Empress Zita. They brought with them large quantities of baggage.

IMPORTANT CAPTURE BY FRENCH.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN CHAMPAGNE, Sept. 29.—The capture of Mont Cuvelet and Boucouville by the French is most important and has already borne fruit. These heights permit the French to overlook the valley of the Aisne and the important railway junction of Charlerange. They also can see the mouth of the valley through which flows the river Aire. Along this river a railway runs eastward from Mouron to Grand Pré. It is the only route possible for troops passing through the Argonne forest. South of the Aire the forest is a mass of impassable swamps. The railway at Charlerange is under fire and the Americans on the other side of the forest who are steadily approaching Grand Pré. Yesterday's fighting was not in vain. The enemy right flank in the Champagne is weakening.

FIGHTING SIMULTANEOUSLY FIVE BATTLES.

PARIS, Sept. 30. Marshal Foch is fighting five battles simultaneously and successfully, a feat unparalleled in the history of war. Each battle is so timed and placed that each army supports another, all forming indispensable part of the whole. There may be more battles tomorrow all inter-related and working as smoothly as the cylinders of a well adjusted automobile engine. All are directed to the same end to wear down the enemy strength. Marshal Foch alone knows when the Allies will strike the decisive blow. The enemy is still fighting well. He is still offering splendid resistance west of the Argonne, but how long can he keep it up. Expert commentators agree that the enemy's withdrawal to a shorter line probably that of Antwerp, Brussels, Messines and Metz is imminent. Some believe he has hung on too long and that he will have great difficulty in preventing his retreat from degenerating into a rout.

FRENCH PROGRESS.

PARIS, Sept. 28. (Delayed).—The text of the final statement issued by the War Office to-night says: "South of St. Quentin our troops have attacked on the front from Urvillers to Cerisy. The enemy who made an energetic resistance, was ejected from these two villages, which are in our possession. We have crossed the St. Quentin-Laferre road and

SERBIANS REACH BULGARIAN BORDER.

EASTERN THEATRE, Sept. 28. During the course of the day the left wing of the Allied armies in the east continued their advance toward Kichev. The enemy rear guards have retreated to the heights north of Resna and the village of Ochridd. The Serbian army has gained ground to the north and to the northeast of Velos and Kochana. They have also advanced toward Uskub and Kumando. Serbian cavalry have reached the Bulgarian frontier. The Angli-Greek forces are moving forward north of Strumitza in the direction of Passcevo. They are advancing toward Patrick.

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS.

The Allied guns dominate the plains beyond both Meun and Roulers, important railroad junction points for the supply of the German armies, north and south, which are virtually in the hands of the British and Belgians, and seemingly soon will fall. From Meun to St. Quentin the British Americans again have delivered successfully, hard smashes against the German front, including the remaining portions of the old Hindenburg line. The Germans here are offering most strenuous resistance, and in counter attacks compelled the British on one or two sectors to withdraw for slight distances. The British are in the process of clearing up the front, and having penetrated the suburbs from the north west and south west. In the region of St. Quentin the British are fighting with the British, the old Hindenburg line has been cut, and penetrated to a depth of three miles, over a front of eight miles, in conjunction with the Somme. The Germans have begun the evacuation of the Chemin Des Dames, and the French now hold half this famous defensive position. Likewise there is an indication that the enemy intends to give up the remaining positions held by him along the front to Rheims. In Champagne the French troops west of the Aronne Forest everywhere are pressing forward, and likewise west of this position, the Americans are moving northward in Union. Already the big forest is virtually outflanked, and apparently soon will be made a part of the Franco-American line. From the St. Mihiel sector the Americans are heavily bombarding troop trains, which are being hurried to the front. Reports from Amsterdam are to the effect that Emperor William has accepted the resignations of Count Von Hertling and Admiral Von Hintze, and has named Imperial Chancellor and Foreign Minister.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S WALL.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 30. Emperor William has addressed the following to Count Von Hertling: Your Excellency is reported to me that you no longer find yourself in a position to remain at the head of the Government. I will not hide from myself your reasons, and your further cooperation. You are certain of the thanks of the Fatherland for the sacrifices you made in undertaking the Chancellorship in grave times, and for the services you rendered. I desire that the German people shall cooperate with you to the end, and in deciding the fate of the Fatherland. It is therefore my will that the man, who has been borne up by the people's trust, shall in wide measure operate in the rights and duties of Government. I beg of you to terminate your work by continuing to conduct the Government's business, and prepare the way for measures desired by me until I have found a successor to you.

PROMOTIONS FOR CANADIANS.

TORONTO, To-day. It is reported from an authoritative source that General Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps in France, will be given command of a British Army, and that Major General Sir David Watson, in command of the 4th Canadian Division, will succeed General Currie as Corps Commander. It is stated that the promotion will be made in the near future. Sir David Watson was the last Canadian officer to be given command of a division, and it is stated he has shown exceptional ability in directing the operations of the 4th Division.

THE BEGINNING OF THE END.

PARIS, To-day. The capitulation of Bulgaria, says the Journal Des Debats, is the beginning of the end for the Central Powers. Germany, it adds, will have the greatest difficulty in concentrating forces upon the Belgrade-Nish line, in an attempt to carry her communications with the Orient and the Central Powers are incapable of occupying Bulgaria or setting up a puppet Government to resist the Allies. Ferdinand is doomed, it continues, as his subjects will never pardon this disaster. Formerly the Central Powers threatened to dominate the Balkans and the Eastern Mediterranean, but the present Bulgarian debacle bids the Central Powers menace on all the Balkan fronts. The feeble Austrian garrisons, remaining in Serbia after Bulgaria's withdrawal, will be annihilated. With the capitulation of the Bulgarians, the Austrian Slavs will rise against their despotic rulers, and the fate of the Hapsburgs will be accomplished. An uprising in Bosnia and Herzegovina is a necessary sequel to the freeing of Serbia. Turkey must follow the example of Bulgaria, and thus the Berlin-Bagdad dream disappears.

ANTHRACITE SHORTAGE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Anthracite coal production decreased 841,000 tons, during the week ending Sept. 21, as a result of a strike, miners, the fuel administration announced to-day. Bituminous production for the week was 12,650,000, a slight decrease to the preceding week, but 218,000 tons greater than the output in the corresponding period of 1917.

A TRINITY OF AVIATORS.

Mr. Valentine Chiro, former foreign editor of the London Times, and a well known publicist, in an article in the Times, warns the Allies of the necessity of dealing sternly with King Ferdinand of Bulgaria. So long as we remember that our first duty is to our Allies in the Balkan Peninsula, says Sir Valentine, we can treat the Bulgarian people leniently, but in the interests of the Bulgarians themselves we cannot deal too sternly with the ruler whose sinister influence and example have blighted the fair promises Bulgaria held forth during the early years of her emancipation from the Turkish yoke. If ever there has been a ruler personally and directly responsible for having plunged his country into disaster, it is Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and if it is one of the chief war aims of the Allies to make the world safe against militarism and autocracy, Ferdinand, who is the living embodiment in the Balkan Peninsula, of all that is worst of them, cannot be allowed to retain his throne.

REID'S BOATS.—The Argyle left Placentia at 5 a.m. to-day on the Red Island route. The Clyde was not reported since leaving Port Union, August 22nd. The Dundee left Lewisporte at 11 a.m. yesterday. The Elsie left Flower's Cove at 8.55 p.m. yesterday, going north. The Home left Lewisporte at 11 a.m. yesterday. The Elsie was not reported since leaving Port Union. The Fogota left Fushthrough at 8.05 a.m. yesterday, coming east.

Coopers Rush.—A very large bunch of coopers' rushes received by Mr. J. F. Downey was exhibited in the Board of Trade Rooms this morning. The rushes, which measure 4 feet, were grown by Mr. John Downey, St. George's District, and reflect much credit on him. Once again it demonstrated that the Newfoundland is not, and should not be, merely a land of fish, but we can hold our own with other countries equally endowed.

Removal Notice.

MR. M. O'REGAN, Meat Dealer, LeMarchant Road, wishes to inform his many patrons and the public generally that he is about to transfer his business to that store on Duckworth Street recently vacated by the late M. Connolly. On Wednesday, October 2nd, he will be open at the new stand and prepared to cater to customers.

In soliciting a continuation of public patronage, Mr. O'Regan would emphasize that the same faithful service which for so many years characterized the LeMarchant Store will be carried on in his new premises. Together with taking care of the requirements of citizens he will specialize in the supplying of ships.

The new quarters are the most up-to-date in the city, having been built with a view towards the utmost cleanliness, fitted with modern refrigerators and other useful appliances.

With sincerest appreciation of the patronage of the past a hearty invitation to the new stand is extended to all.

ABOUT SHOES.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

On a shelf in my bedroom sits a pair of shoes. I have had them for a week and I can't bear to wear them. Not because I don't like them, but because I like them so much. They are so immaculate, so unscarred, so trim in their perfect shapeliness.

I love shoes. Don't you? To me there is no other garment that has the fascination, the allure, the rich promise of a pair of new shoes. Perhaps it is because (in my case at least) no other garment has so brief a tenure of newness.

Those Shabby Shoes of Our Childhood. Perhaps it is also because, as a child, my shoes were almost always shabby; for when there are several pairs of small feet to keep decently covered, and means are not unlimited, there must be a limit to the number of shoes per year each pair of feet can have. And, alas, I was, as I so often heard my mother say, "terribly hard on shoes." The shoes that should have looked well for three months were shabby in three weeks, until the time of renewing, the effect of my best frock and prettiest hair ribbon was inevitably marred by the scuffed and scratched shoes in which I ingloriously terminated. I think I conceived a hunger in those days for pretty shoes that I shall still be slaking when I am a very old lady (if that, by any chance, ever happens).

Shoes Are So Wonderful Nowadays. Then again, shoes are such a wonderful thing nowadays. Don't you remember the days when for the average person shoes were either tan or black—usually the latter? And today—well if you are reading your paper on the trolley, glance up and see how many of the feminine shoes ranged opposite you are plain black like the shoes of yesterday. I doubt if there is a woman who reads this who does not own shoes of some other hue. If she has no shoes of bronze or soft grey or brown or any of those delicate confections in the line of shoes that are so fascinating, she has at least a pair of white shoes. And I can remember when the only white shoes were kid slippers and when most people had those only to be married in.

Romance in the Shoe Shop. The last time I was fitted to a pair of high shoes I encountered, in my search for just the right pair, a wonderful old gentleman of a shoe clerk. I asked something about the wearing qualities of the shoe and he straightened up and said, "Madame, I have been with this firm forty years and I know there is nothing but good stuff in their shoes." "You must know a great deal about shoes," I said.

A shine of genuine tenderness came into his face. "I love a good shoe," he said. "A fine shoe is as beautiful to me as a yacht or a beautiful woman is to some men."

Now wasn't that a touch of drama to find in a shoe shop?

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gents.—A customer of ours cured a very bad case of distemper in a valuable horse by the use of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Yours truly, VILANDIE FRESSES.

Household Notes

Mixed vegetables can be canned and they will be very handy in making winter soup.

When remaking wool garments be sure to brush and cleanse the material thoroughly.

Potatoes served as adjuncts to meat and fish neutralize the acids of the protein foods.

Machine stitching with heavy silk makes a pretty trimming for silk blouses or dresses.

Sew a killed skirt to the little boy's middle to make a good school dress for his sister.

A good rule for salting butter is four level tablespoons of salt to one pound of butter.

Put a few cloves into the pan in which prunes are cooking to give them a different flavor.

When making sauces, use cayenne sparingly. It destroys all other flavors and your own taste.

Steam yarn thoroughly while in the hank and garments made from it will not shrink when washed.

Renew the worn chemise by cutting off the upper part at the bust or waist line and add a new top.

LOVE AND SERVICE. Love is the mother of laughter, and duty is the father of peace.

Freedom from care shall come after the roar of the cannon shall cease. You may ponder philosophies many, and follow each thought, wave and curve, But this shall outlive each and any: as you love you are willing to serve.

As you love you are willing to labor, as you love you are willing to fight; You will answer the call of a neighbor, no matter the hour of the night.

The mother will slave for her baby, the father will sweat for his son; Whatever the grim duty may be, if you love it is cheerfully done.

For all that we strive for and care for, is joy for the ones that we love. Great burdens we readily bear for the lives that we think the most of. Men may brag of their love for Old Glory and pray that its beauty shall live.

But the proof of their love is the story of service they cheerfully give.

Love and service are mother and father of all that is splendid and true. Not by words are they mated, but rather by deeds they are willing to do; They toil and they never grow weary, danger be fanger but never they swerve.

This shall prove yours a rich life or dreary—as you love you are willing to serve.

THE MORNING EXERCISE.

Like every other good thing in the world, exercise can be abused or used ignorantly. The first thing we must learn is that the object of any exercise is to send the blood to some particular part of the body. If we exercise the arms we send the blood to them and develop the arm muscles. If we exercise the ankles for suppleness we send the blood to them. We must not, therefore, steal the blood from any part of the body which needs it in its own work. For instance the stomach is almost the hardest working member of the body, and to do its work well must not be interfered with. After eating, therefore, is no proper time to exercise. Instead, if you can sit in an easy chair and relax for half an hour after each meal, you will be doing the best thing possible for both health and complexion.

As a first step take the waking up exercise. Lying on your back, straighten out in bed, without stretching and take ten deep breaths. Let out to their fullest capacity all the natural yawns that come and supplement them with some artificial ones. Throw out the arms and stretch the legs wide apart. Do this five times, then bring them together and bend the knees up so that the feet are flat on the bed. Repeat this ten times.

Now you are ready to jump out of bed in just as vigorous a fashion as you wish. Of course your bath follows next, but after that you should have ten minutes of really vigorous movements to stir your blood. An excellent exercise is a very near imitation of the occupants of a monkey cage. Stand erect, then squat down on the heels, at the same time throwing the knees wide apart and the arms out sideways. Raise the body and repeat, but thrusting the arms forward this time. Alternate in this fashion until the muscles are tired.

Retreat a dozen miles! It's true the German crushed the Russ; the Russ was like a child, betrayed by his own parents and by Prussian lies beguiled. I wonder if Herr Ludendorff has got it in his head that citizens from freedom's shore can thus astray be led, that they will fall for German bunk as fell the childlike Slav? Such hop-joint visions in their heads, the German leaders have. Or does the doughty Ludendorff imagine for a space that he has strength enough at hand to whip the Yankee race? One war tale I've inferred, and if occasion calls for it, he will take on a third. Oh, Ludendorff, begin to crush! You've told what you will do, so now hitch up your pantaloons, and put the matter through. You'll need your bombs and poison gas, and all your snickernecks; the crushing graft will prove a frost when Yankees are crushed!

Are You Master. Steer and Everything. A motoring authority in Denver, having nothing better to do, propounded a series of technical questions the other day to a group of feminine drivers. He says the results were amazing. No affidavit accompanies his report, but he's supposed to be a person of unquestioned veracity.

Here are his questions and some of the answers he says he got: Q—If your brakes failed to work going down hill, what would you do? A—I would jump out and throw a rock under the wheels.

Q—Which side of a car going in the same direction must you pass? A—Always pass on the safest side.

Q—If your engine stalled on a car track, what would you do? A—Telephone my husband to come and fix it.

Q—When the car is standing which side should be next to the curb? A—The side nearest the sidewalk.

Q—What precaution should be taken in backing your car? A—Reverse the engine.

Q—What is the accelerator? A—A thing that has something to do with something inside the car, when you step on it, or something.

Q—When the batteries run out what must you do? A—Run after them or get new ones.

Q—Why must you keep grease and oil off the wheels? A—Because it gets your hands and clothes dirty.

Q—What is the office of the spark plug? A—The office of the spark plug is the office where it is made or sold.

Q—How far must you stop from a fire hydrant? A—Far enough not to scratch the varnish.

Q—If your engine stalls going up a hill, what do you do? A—Try to start it.

Q—What would you do if the steering gear broke? A—Drive to the nearest garage and have the man fix it.

Q—What is the speed limit in the city? In the country? A—Not over forty miles an hour in the city. Slower in the country, because the roads are bad.—Montreal Star.

CRUSHING THE YANKS.

Old Ludendorff to gaping German ranks: "You saw how we the Russians crushed; so we shall crush the Yanks." Then to his weary warriors he said, with a sickly smile, "Fall back, my brave invincibles!"

Retreat a dozen miles! It's true the German crushed the Russ; the Russ was like a child, betrayed by his own parents and by Prussian lies beguiled. I wonder if Herr Ludendorff has got it in his head that citizens from freedom's shore can thus astray be led, that they will fall for German bunk as fell the childlike Slav? Our American Letter.

Boston, Sept. 22.—The Americans are continuing their bombardment of the Metz fortifications and are using artillery of superior calibre and effectiveness. The Germans already assert that the stronghold is being hammered by a gun which exceeds in range the famous 75-mile cannon with which Paris was bombarded. The early fall of Metz is not looked for as the city is a second Verdun and we may have to wait sometime before victory for the attacking forces is achieved. General Pershing is taking an especial pride in his attack on Metz as the city is the key to Alsace-Lorraine where his forefathers were born. It will be a proud day for America when she succeeds in winning back for France her lost provinces and repays the debt which this country owes to the gallant Lafayette in the days of the Revolution. The President's brief but emphatic reply to Austria's peace note has virtually slammed the door in the face of the treacherous Hun. It voices the sentiments which every human being not under Teutonic domination is holding to-day. There can be no peace with murderers and ravishers and hostilities will not cease until the Hun surrenders unconditionally and is ready to receive the punishment which is due them for their crimes of horror. President Wilson has practically told Austria that it is impossible for the United States to treat with the Central Powers in the manner accorded a brave and chivalrous enemy. The Huns have placed themselves outside the pale of civilization and decency and they must be treated only as mad dogs. The vile beast must first be slain before any kind of peace can be considered.

The documents captured in Russia by American agents have caused a sensation. They prove conclusively the treason of Lenin and Trotsky who sold their country for the sum of $2,700,000. They also show that Germany, by means of paid assassins, disposed of many loyal Russians who were opposed to the treacherous crew now at the head of Russian affairs. One letter speaks of the lack of enterprise shown by one of the hired assassins in failing to murder certain generals and officials and expressed the hope that the deed would be finally consummated. Under German and Bolshevik control thousands are being massacred daily or thrown into loathsome dungeons to perish miserably. And these are the devils who have the presumption to ask us to sit at the same table with them for a discussion of peace terms. They shall sit at a table one day in the near future with shackles upon their wrists and the hangman's noose dangling in the distance. The Imperial hell-hound who stalks through the corridors of Potsdam Palace will on that day know the retribution of an outraged world.

It is expected that Spain will finally throw in her lot with the Allies, judging by the trend of affairs in that country. German propaganda has misled the Spaniards but they are beginning to see the light at last. That so brave and chivalrous a nation as Spain is, can continue to remain neutral under such trying conditions is unthinkable. The entrance of Spain into the conflict would mean an additional army of 1,000,000 men within striking distance of the foe. America, which fought the Spaniards 20 years ago and found them to be gallant and knightly foemen, would be proud, on this occasion to fight side by side with them against the common enemy. It is the belief that Holland will eventually be forced into the fray as there is no question that Germany intends to invade that country unless something unforeseen occurs. And after Holland will follow Denmark, Norway and Sweden and perhaps Switzerland. The Hun will finally go down in defeat before the united forces of the entire world.

I came across in a Cornhill bookstore the other day a copy of "West Amid the Fogs," by Lt.-Col. McRae, who, I believe, was an artillery officer in St. John's in the later fifties. The writer shows considerable animus toward Newfoundland and exhibits a great deal of prejudiced feeling. This volume was reviewed in the Newfoundland press many years ago and is now out of print. One interesting chapter tells the story of the duel at Robinson's Hill and the tumultuous trial which followed. Some day a real history of Newfoundland will be written, not hodge-podges of what and what, principally the latter, which at present take the place of scholarly and exhaustive records.

Rev. Moses Harvey's history is at present the only standard work on Newfoundland, and is given this place because of the beautiful style of the gifted author. Prowse's history is impossible and the books which followed are merely the work of amateurs. Newfoundland has a stirring tale to tell and some future limner will tell it in the proper way. —W. M. DOOLEY.

Lords Protest Against Easy 'Honors' List.

A letter appears in the London Times, stating: "Even in the midst of the anxiety arising from the war we think it necessary to point out in public the serious danger which may arise from a continued bestowal of honors without any real safeguard against abuse."

"A new Order that of the British Empire, has been instituted, and in a recent Gazette the names cover no less than sixty quarto pages."

"We make no suggestion of corruption in connection with this Order, but the wholesale scale upon which it is granted makes it obvious that no responsible Minister can control the selection of the recipients, much less that it is a real mark of his Majesty's favor."

"Our feelings is that unless the bestowal of honors and titles is protected from this sort of cheapening and is unmistakably cleared from the danger of a peculiarly mean kind of pecuniary corruption and reserved for real merit, honors may come to be regarded as dishonors, leaving no way out except their entire abolition." The signatories to this protest include Lords Balfour, Beresford, Loreburn, Sydenham, Parmoor and many others.

What About These Coal Shares?

The opportunity is a good one. $25,000.00 worth of stock has been placed on the market, and to the purchaser of each one of these shares three extra shares are given free of cost.

This makes the purchaser of each one dollar share the owner of four fully paid up shares in the company. The company also guarantees that none of the above shares will be subject to any further call.

The opportunity to invest is open to everybody. Get busy before it is too late; no bonus shares will be given after the present allotment is disposed of.

You can't lose. Invest to-day. For every single dollar you invest in this proposition you get four 1 dollar shares in return.

Household Notes

Flannels to be used in illness can be wrung out of boiling hot water by means of a fork and a potato ricer.

Oil the meat grinder or the egg beater with glycerine, then there is no danger of an oil taste in the food.

Stockings worn at toe and heel, but perfectly good everywhere else, should be refooted and worn with high soles.

September is the proper time to start rose slips. Cut the soft shoots, put them in sand and turn a glass jar over them.

"An Autumn chill is in the air,
 The Winter cold will soon be here,
 And whilst the burning question's Coal,
 Still must you have warm Underwear."

Men's Winter Underwear

is a specialty of ours and we advertise it a lot, as there is always, somehow or other, a lot of winter around Newfoundland. And sometimes people say, "Are you agents for Stanfield Underwear?" And we say, "We are sorry we aren't." We suppose the reason we are asked this is because we are always advertising that Stanfield's Underwear is Real Good Underwear.

Perhaps we stock more Stanfield's Underwear than any other Underwear, but we also carry a large stock of Men's New Knit Underwear.

The "New Knit" is made by St. John's labor, and many lines are good value, and that is what we are always endeavouring to get for our customers as well as rendering them the best service possible in those strenuous times.

Our Prices
 for these two makes of Underwear in Winter Weights are as

Low as Obtainable Anywhere,
 Perhaps even lower, and we carry a full range of the various qualities and sizes, so that you can always be certain of our being able to take care of your requirements. If you require

Boys' Winter Wool Underwear
 we stock it in

Stanfield Makes, and we have also CHILDREN'S STANFIELD COMBINATION SUITS and SLEEPERS in stock at the moment.
