The Mystery of Rutledge Hall "The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXXVI

Stephen was greatly distressed. Fully an hour must elapse before the train stopped again, and then it would only for a few minutes; and, looking at the colorless face against his shoulder, he began to fear that, if no help could be obtained before then, it would be too late to be of any use. To his eyes, inexperienced as he was in illness and its signs, Sidney's face looked like the face of a dying woman as the light from the railway lamp fell upon it, and he felt terribly helpless and despairing. Suddenly he remembered that he had his travelling flask with him, and that, on leaving Easthorpe on the previous day, the butler had filled it with cherry; he had had no occasion to use it since, and had forgotten it. Now remembered it with an almost passionate sense of gratitude; and, gently placing Sidney back in her seat, he took his bag from the netting, hastily unlocked it, and took out the flask.

"What is it?" she said, faintly, as he held the little silver cup to her lips. "Some wine. Drink it, dear child; it will do you good."

With a sudden eagerness, almost avidity, she took it from him and drained the contents of the little cup. It had contained barely a wineglassful of the wine; but, small as the quantity was, it acted like magic on her feeble frame; even a faint tinge of color came into the thin cheeks which had been so ashen-white the minute before; and she raised herself from the cushions, eager and anxious to tell him all before her strength gave way again.

Stephen went back to his seat beside her with a psalm of thanksgiving in his heart. Never had he been so glad of the thoughtfulness of his butler before.

"Now, Sidney," he said, cheerfully, "tell me all about it. What has made you leave Brighton so suddenly, without giving me any warning or bringing any attendant with you?"

She looked up into his face earnestly as she replied to his question by another.

"Were you going home to Easthorpe?"

"Yes," he answered wonderingly. "I have been to Dering on business and I am returning to Ashford; we seem doomed to meet at railway-stations, Sidney," he added, with a slight laugh which sounded forced and tuneless in the silent carriage.

"Do not go home," she said suddenly, grasping his arm with her trembling hands, burning hands. "Oh, Stephen, do not go home! Come with me, away—far away? Have you not heard?"

He looked down at her in intense bewilderment, without the remotest conception of her meaning; then a thought struck him and held him for a moment dumb with terror. Her brain had given way, he thought, and in her delirium she had left Brighton by stealth and come to Ashford. How fortunate that he had met her! Poor child! Alone and ill as she was how could she have found her way home?

He put his arm round her once more, and drew her tenderly to his side, looking down at the beautiful face with a love and tenderness he did not try to disguise; but he could not speak to her for a moment, for his lips were quivering somewhat, and there was a strange lump in his throat.

"Have you not heard?" she repeated, in husky awe-stricken tones—"have you not heard? They know—they have found out! I heard it last night at the ball, and I could not come sooner—I missed the train; but now that you are here, we can go away somewhere, and they will not know."

"My poor Sidney!" he said tremulously. "I shall not mind," she went on faintly—"not if you are safe. You will go away, Stephen, will you not? And—and I will go; you will not go without me, as you thought once—you will let me be with you?"

"My dearest, yes," he said unsteadily. "When you are stronger, I will take you away; but we must first go home to Easthorpe and let you get quite well."

"Not to Easthorpe," she cried, in intense alarm—"not there! They will be there looking for you! We will get out of the train when it stops, and go away—oh, so far away, Stephen, just you and I; and I will be such a good wife, so patient, so careful, that I will make you happy. You will trust me, Stephen?"

"My darling," he murmured, with humid eyes, touched by her pathetic eagerness and humility, "I trust you fully, and by and by we will go away together, and try to repair the mistakes of the past."

She looked up at him still; but in the sweet pleading eyes had come a look of puzzled impatience.

"Do you not understand?" she asked hastily. "Stephen, they know, and they—"

DRISCOLL—

She sank down upon her knees by his side, still clasping his arm with her little feverish hands, her eyes raised to his in wild appeal; but Stephen, who had no clew to the mystery, could only look at her in pitying compassion, and try to soothe her by a few softly spoken words and tender caresses. But she shrunk from his impatience.

"Will you not heed?" she said faintly. "Oh, listen to me, Stephen! I heard it last night at the ball—Lord de la Poer told me; it was in the newspapers."

"What was in the newspapers, dear?" he asked her gently, putting his arms around her, and holding the little trembling form in his tender clasp. "I am very stupid, Sidney; but I do not seem able to understand."

"Perhaps you do not know," she whispered, letting her aching weary head rest again his arm as she looked up into his face with miserable pleading eyes. "It has come—that which I have been dreading for so many long days. It has been long in coming; but it has come at last."

"What has come at last?" he said, in ever-increasing bewilderment, for Sidney's manner was so earnest and significant that he began to think that the delirium existed only in his fancy.

"Then you do not know?" she interrogated wearily. "Oh, Stephen, must I tell you? Will you not understand that it kills me to tell you? Oh, you must have feared it, even as I have!"

"I am afraid I am very dense," he said gently; "but I do not understand cannot even guess at your meaning, Sidney."

"Do you know?"—the little burning hands gripped and held him with a sudden fierce strength, the great passionate eyes were fixed upon his face in unutterable fear and misery—"do you know what the Earl said last night? Oh, the words have never left me for a moment since—they seem to dance before me in letters of fire! He said—the eager piteous voice sunk to a whisper, but every word was clearly and distinctly uttered—"that the mystery of the Ashford murder was likely to be solved very shortly, and—" that some startling and unlooked-for revelation might be expected, that the police were on the track. He said that—Oh, Stephen, how you will understand."

In her agony of shame at the accusation she thought she had made against him—of shame for his shame—her head fell forward upon his knee, while her hands still held him; in mute assurance that, no matter what his shame was, she would cling to him through it all.

But her husband, uncomprehending until now, suddenly divined her meaning, or supposed that he divined it. She feared for Frank Greville's safety, and perhaps, knowing something of his whereabouts, she was anxious to go somewhere where her evidence could not be obtained if it were sought for. There was method in her madness then, he thought bitterly; all her terror was for this man whom, unworthy as he was, she loved still, and who would ever stand between Stephen and his heart's desire while life lasted.

His face had altered strangely as he sat looking down in silence at the stricken head resting against his knee, at the little trembling hands holding him with such a convulsive clasp. All the tenderness died out of it—not the compassion—for it was not in Stephen's nature to look at a woman in trouble without pity—and in the sudden revulsion of feeling he dropped his arm from around her and drew back a little.

"You know now?"

"Yes," he answered, in a voice, so cold and changed that had Sidney's own agitation been less, she could not have failed to notice it—"yes, I know now!"

There was a moment's silence; the train rushed onward, putting the gloaming, the snow had ceased to fall the stars were coming out one by one in the clear deep blue of the sky. They had rushed through a station just then, and Stephen had seen the lamps burning, and had caught a glimpse of the waiting travellers, which he recalled afterward, thinking how strangely in "moments" of great excitement trifles seem to fix themselves on one's mind—and memory when greater matters fade from them.

"Stephen!"—the faint, broken voice fell upon the silence sadly—"you will go now?"

The New Viceroy of India

MR. EDWARD WOOD, MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE HONOURED.

The Government are giving one of their best men as Viceroy to India. It would have been difficult to make a better choice. A man of thoughtful character, with a high sense of duty and an agreeably dignified demeanour, Mr. Edward Wood has a combination of qualities which fit him for a position, both responsible and ceremonial, in which sympathetic understanding of other people as well as firmness are required.

His biography of John Keble is an index to his mind, and shows how he has inherited interests which have distinguished his father, Lord Halifax. Through his grandfather, who was Secretary of State for India in the last Administrations of Palmerston and Russell, he claims a link with its government.

An Earnest Reformer.

It has sometimes seemed to me that Mr. Wood corresponds in a special degree to the supposed ideals of the Young English party of Disraeli's early time. With his interest in the land and the Church he unites a deep concern in the "social state" of the country. The Prime Minister could have had no more earnest supporter in the cause of industrial conciliation.

Mr. Wood's interest in reform and the moderation of his views marked him out in the young Unionist group while he sat on a "back bench." His first office was that of Under-Secretary for the Colonies during the last eighteen months of Mr. Lloyd George's Government. Mr. Bonar Law took him into the Cabinet as President of the Board of Education, and in the present Cabinet he has had the difficult task of trying to find a new policy as Minister of Agriculture.

Fine Man in the Commons.

His speeches from the Treasury bench have been marked by their scholarlyness and literary shrewdness, and by gleams or humour amid dry detail. Always calm, courteous, and conciliatory, he has been respected and liked by the Opposition. He is, indeed, one of the best House

NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN

Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario. "I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep nor eat as I should and spent most time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years before Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my neighbor. Before I had taken five doses I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. During my sickness I had been obliged to get some one to look after my property for me, but thanks to the Vegetable Compound I am now able to look after it myself. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier in turn with the Vegetable Compound, and I certainly recommend these medicines to any one who is not enjoying good health. I am quite willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. SHEPHERD, 139 Jos. Janine Avenue, Ford, Ontario.

Nervousness, irritability, painful rheumatism, stiffness and weakness, and all symptoms to be noted, would arising from these troubles, which they would have, should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. All druggists sell this medicine.

of Commons men, and some observers have thought he might become a leading Parliamentarian.

There may be regret among friends that he abandons a career in the House for which he had a true instinct. In the course of nature, however, as the eldest surviving son of a peer, he was destined in any case to go to "the other place."

New Viceroy of India.

Born on April 18th, Mr. Wood was educated at Eton and Christ Church, and was a fellow of All Souls, Oxford. He is the only surviving son and heir of Viscount Halifax, the veteran President of the English Church Union. He served with the Yorkshire Dragoons in France during the Great War. As Under-Secretary for the Colonies (April, 1921, to October, 1922), he visited the West Indies to investigate conditions of life and the machinery of government on the spot.

A Happy Marriage.

He married Lady Dorothy Onslow, daughter of the Earl of Onslow, in 1909, and has three sons and a daughter. In 1904 he inherited the immense Ingram estates in the West Riding of Yorkshire, including the fine mansion of Temple Newsum, near Leeds, under the will of his aunt (Mrs. Meynell Ingram). The historic seat is the Templestone of "Yanboe," and within its walls was born Lord Dartley, husband of Mary Queen of Scots. The mansion was acquired by the Yeomanry in France during the Great War. As Under-Secretary for the time, presented to the city many of the valuable pictures which the building contained.

Mr. Wood is heir to his father's large property in the East and West Ridings. He is a freeman of Leeds and an honorary Doctor of Laws of Leeds University. His Yorkshire seat is at Garrowby, Bishop Walton.

Who Will Succeed Him?

Though the new Viceroy will not take up his duties till the spring (writes a political correspondent) he will at once give up his post as Minister for Agriculture and his seat in the House of Commons. A new writ will be moved for Ripon soon after Parliament reassembles on November 16th, and his successor will be appointed before that date. It is probable that

British Commons Enthusiastically Ratify Locarno Pact

Sarrail Claims Trouble in Syria is a Racial and Religious Revolt—U.S. Railway and Prohibition Agents Indicted for Violation of Volstead Act.

COMMONS ENTHUSIASTICALLY APPROVE LOCARNO PACT.
LONDON, Nov. 18. When Austen Chamberlain's motion to adopt the Locarno Pact was put to the House of Commons last night it was met with a shout of approval and the vote was 375 to 15 in its favor. Many Labourites voted with the motion after the Labor amendment had been voted down 332 to 130. Others refrained from voting. The Pact was lauded by both Ramsay MacDonald and Lloyd George, although both had made some criticisms.

SARRAIL'S EXPLANATION OF TROUBLE IN SYRIA.
PARIS, Nov. 18. The rebellion against the French administration in Syria is not simply an internal quarrel but the symptom of a vast religious and racial revolt that is sweeping through the Islamic world; according to a warning voiced by General Sarrail, the recently recalled French High Commissioner in Syria.

TOWERS GUILTY BUT INSANE.
WINCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 18. Thomas Towers, former first officer of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, was adjudged guilty of murder but found insane and ordered to be detained during the King's pleasure, at the conclusion of his trial for the murder of Capt. A. H. Clews, of the Melita, at Antwerp, on October 21st.

SEED FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE.
DUNKIRK, N.Y., Nov. 18. Fanned by high winds that scattered flaming embers over a half mile area, a fire, early to-day, completely destroyed the Dunkirk Seed Factory, with an estimated loss of $250,000.

BODY OF GERMAN ACE EXHUMED.
BADEN, Nov. 18. The body of Germany's ace of airmen, Baron Manfred Von Richtofen, who, during the war painted his plane red as a challenge to enemy airmen to single him out, and brought down some eight Allied planes, only to suffer a similar fate in 1918, had a triumphant return to the homeland today when his body, recently exhumed from the burial ground at Picourt, and handed over to Germany by the French, was conveyed to Berlin with full military honors to receive a permanent place with the honored dead of his country.

RAILWAY AND PROHIBITION AGENTS INDICTED.
CHICAGO, Nov. 18. Two indictments charging the Boston and Maine Railroad as a corporation, and 24 individuals, including Police Lieut. Albert Wing and three prohibition agents, with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, were returned by the Federal Grand Jury today in the beer syndicate inquiry.

LEAGUE MAY UNDERTAKE REFORM OF CALENDAR.
GENEVA, Nov. 18. An appeal for help in reforming the calendar has been despatched throughout the world by the League of Nations, which especially craves assistance in the delicate task of establishing a fixed day for Easter. All Governments are requested to forward the views of their educational departments, and opinions of educators generally will be welcomed by the League.

ITALY TO RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD.
NEW YORK, Nov. 18. The loan of one hundred million dollars to the Italian Government, insuring financial support for a return to the gold standard, has been arranged through a group of American bankers, headed by J. P. Morgan & Company.

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

Wasn't Dr. Quack the famous duck doctor, hurrying to the dear Old Bramble Patch as we finished reading yesterday's story? Of course he was. Dear Uncle Lucky had sprained his little pinkie toe, you remember, and Lady Love had called up Dr. Quack to come over at once with his little black medicine bag and a fountain pen. She wished to make sure that he brought the latter along in order to write out a prescription. Poor, anxious little Lady Love. In her excitement she feared she might not be able to hold a pencil in the house. She even imagined that the ink bottle might fly!

As Dr. Quack hurried down the road on his fat, wobbly yellow feet, who should come by but Peter Pig in his donkey gig. "Want a ride?" enquired Peter kindly, pulling in his donkey. "Very kind of you," quacked the famous duck doctor, carefully placing his little black medicine bag in the cart. Then with a flutter of wings and a scramble, jumble, he seated himself beside Peter Pig. "Gid-ap!" clicked the old Pig's tongue against his teeth, with a wiggle of his long ears, off trotted the good little donkey, the creaky little cart swaying to and fro over the uneven road. "Who's ill?" enquired Peter Pig, as he flicked off with his whip a bothersome fly from the donkey's left hind leg. "Dear Uncle Lucky has sprained his little pinkie toe, the one with the rheumatiz, you know."

"Dear, dear, I'm sorry for him," replied Peter Pig. "No one in all Rabbittand is so well loved as the old gentleman rabbit. Always doing something for somebody. Never thinks of himself. Only last night Mrs. Pig was reading me a poem that made me think of dear Uncle Lucky. Wait a minute. Maybe I can remember it," and scratching his ear with his left forefoot, Peter Pig wrinkled his forehead for a minute or two. "I have it,

He seated himself beside Peter Pig. "Wither bound my friends?" "Dear Uncle Lucky has sprained his pinkie toe, the one with the rheumatiz, you know," answered Dr. Quack. "Too bad," exclaimed the old crow. "Give him my sympathy." Then away he flew to attend the meeting of the Black Feather Club at Turpie Hall in Rabbittand. On rattled the donkey cart along the dusty road as Mr. Happy Sun drew closer and closer to the Western Hills. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Mem-O-Rea and Majestic Artists Score Big Success

No one should miss seeing Tom Terriss's "The Bandolero," which came to the Majestic Theatre last night. Taken in Cuba and Spain, this picture is a story of hate, handiwork, love and intrigue against beautiful backgrounds. It marks the screen debut of a young Argentine, Manuel Granada. The cast includes Pedro de Cordoba in the title role, Renee Adoree, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Gordon Beggs, Dorothy Ruth and others. It is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, adapted by Mr. Terriss from the novel by Paul Gwynne.

Last night was a night of mystery, mirth and high-class entertainment at the Majestic Theatre. As anticipated, there was a bumper house. The evening's entertainment began with the picture as stated above, and it was really one of the finest any critic could ask for.

Rita Johnson, the world-famed dancer again delighted the audience with a series of dances. This talented dancer and her daughter are certainly in a class by themselves. Her exhibition of the Buck and Wing dance to say the least, was a revelation in terpsichorean art.

Mem-O-Rea's performance—as in the past—excited much interest amongst the audience and many were disappointed at not having had an opportunity to be interviewed by this famous man. This man is certainly the mystery that he claims to be. Not a few, naturally, were inclined to scoff at his predictions, but it is generally accepted now that he possesses some kind of extraordinary power which permits him to reveal facts which have yet to be disputed.

The same show will be repeated to-night. Don't miss it! The Pons Contest is exciting general interest daily. Hundreds of thousands of votes are already polled, and a lively race is likely to ensue. Just one other word. Don't forget the greatest picture ever screened "North of 36," which will be exhibited shortly.

Renowned Play at the Casino To-Night

"TWIN BEDS" BALFOUR STOCK CO. ATTRACTION FOR WEEK-END.

One of the greatest stage comedies ever staged is the play entitled "Twin Beds" which the Balfour Stock Company are playing at the Casino commencing to-night. This bill is made for laughing purposes and is one continuous scream from start to finish. A 14 kt. gloom-chaser and then some. "Twin Beds" is not simply a farce but a real play with a real story contained in it. There is a laugh in every line. Apart from the play there will be a complete change of vaudeville specialties. "Twin Beds" will run for the remainder of the week and at the Saturday matinee.

The Handling of Food

"There was, in fact, no such thing as stomania poisoning; food poisoning was due to infection by one of a definite, readily recognisable group of organisms—organisms which were not, with certain exceptions, inborn in the meat, but which gained entrance to it from the outside," said Dr. W. St. G. McClure, Deputy Medical Officer of Health for Manchester, in a speech recorded in the Manchester Guardian.

"Meat from healthy animals was for all practical purposes germ-free. It might become contaminated before it reached the consumer in many ways, but he did wish to emphasise the fact that the handling of food by human beings was the most serious source of contamination, and the one most likely to lead to outbreaks of food poisoning. Food at the present time was unduly handled, and handling should be avoided as far as possible."

The Story of 1924

The results achieved by The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada in 1924 as indicated by the figures given below will be very gratifying to policyholders and others interested in the Company's progress:

	1914	1919	1924
Assurances in force	$45,794,225	$92,634,158	$176,068,256
Assurances Issued	7,761,726	25,451,233	33,424,317
Total Assets	10,310,392	16,983,112	31,239,195
Premium & Interest Income	2,131,875	4,171,609	7,865,577
Policy & Annuity Reserves	8,130,560	13,892,960	26,249,613
Payments to Policyholders	469,724	1,531,319	2,857,184

The millions of dollars of Reserves held by The Imperial Life are calculated on so strong a basis that interest earnings of only 3% are sufficient to maintain them. The difference between this 3% rate and the 6.23% actually earned gives an exceptional wide margin for policyholders' profits and security.

Parents Beware

A WARNING FROM CHURCH AND STATE.

Statements of the church and nation emphasize again that the "perils ahead" are moral, and speaking at different times and places, urge that reform begin with the parents if the younger generation is to be kept safely on its feet in the swirling currents of changing conditions. The House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church, the President of the United States, Cabinet officers and the Chief Magistrate of New York City all draw the same conclusions and hammer the same lesson home—that parents may not wash their hands of the responsibilities of parenthood. "It is well," observes the Philadelphia Inquirer, when the President of the United States and the prelates of a great religious body agree upon the nature of the disease and the remedy. While the President deprecates a tendency to shift moral obligations on government and institutionalism, it is insisted elsewhere that government, too, has its part in effecting reform by improving unhealthy economic and industrial conditions.

A feeling of disquiet pervades the separate messages when they take account of conditions in the home. In their message of "love and counsel," the Bishops of the Episcopal Church, in convention at New Orleans, say they "see a weakening of the ties and a loosening of the standards of home life, due to lack of proper parental control and to the absence from homes of definite religious influence." They say further:

"We see in our land tens of millions of men and women who acknowledge no connection with religion, and, as a result a large proportion of our children growing up without religious influence or religious teaching of any sort. Can we fail to see the connection between this situation and the spirit of lawlessness, the startling increase in crime, and especially the increase in the number of youthful criminals now challenging our attention?"

And to President Coolidge, too, it is apparent that "there are too many indications that the functions of parenthood are breaking down." In his address to the international convention of the Y.M.C.A. of the United States and Canada, in Washington, quoted in full in the metropolitan papers, President Coolidge warns us further that "too many people are neglecting the real well-being of their children, shifting the responsibility for their actions, and turning over supervision of their discipline and conduct to the juvenile courts." He continues:

"It is stated on high authority that a very large proportion of the outcasts and criminals come from the ranks of those who lost the advantages of normal parental control in their youth. They are the refugees from broken homes who were denied the necessary benefits of parental love and direction. The home is the cornerstone of the nation, and any effective better-homes movement must begin with the training of the youth for those responsibilities, or we shall see the disposition to attempt in some way to turn over to the Government the responsibilities for the rearing of children constantly increased. What the youth of the country need is not more control throughout government action but more home control through parental action."

A similar warning comes from Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who, also speaking before the international Y.M.C.A. convention, says that "the flooding in of modern knowledge has cost religion heavily where it has not kept pace in intellectual respect and confidence," and that "out of our materialism has grown a series of philosophies which insist that materialism alone is the sole basis of human action and inspiration." Mr. Hoover explains that evidences of the trend of the times "lie in the weakening moral fiber, in loosening family and domestic ties, in youthful criminality, in the easy breaking of law by adults, in growing intolerance, in a leaning upon the State without corresponding willingness to bear its burden or suppress discontent instead of discovering the causes and removing them, in the intriguing of open purposes of groups to profit themselves regardless of the consequences to others and to the whole of society, in the complacency of millions over the wrongs and sufferings within and beyond our borders, in waste and extravagance." The indispensable requirement, believes the Secretary of Commerce, "is a measure of spiritual reinforcement that in adequacy is supplied only from the fountainhead of character—a new religion widely embraced with its ethical values supported." And he asserts that "if we let the churches, their auxiliaries, and the schools, fail, in this generation in vision, guidance and motive, the heritage left will afford little enough of what has made America a land of promise to humanity."

"We have got to get hold of the children between the ages of five and thirteen, especially, and try to reach them spiritually and morally," says William McAdoe, Chief Magistrate of New York City, in an article in the New York World on the cause of crime. Judge McAdoe speaks from long experience, and he writes:

"Great masses of young fellows in the twenties are practically all 'criminals' in the outlying class. They have no emotions of pity, love, friendship, gratitude or sense of responsibility. They despise their parents, the law and are in open war with officers. Young men and women in this country, going to work, are early economically independent parents and therefore insubordinate. Doubtless there is great force in this, comments the New York World. It does not believe that it goes far to say with Mr. Coolidge that "what the youth of the country needs is not more control through government action but more home control. For, observes The World, "if he means that the Government has no responsibility, he is quite taken. Why does home lose its influence? Partly through industrial accident and other causes which oppress the young. Partly through bad living, which makes home repulsive. Partly through divorce, which makes families asunder. Partly through economic conditions which force parents to seek employment. Partly because immigrants do not easily retain authority over their children. Government does something for home every time it strengthens housing-law, passes a widow pension act or attacks child labor; and it might do more."

However, touching upon family life, we may well admit that a change has been closed and strive to do better, and, thinks the Boston Globe, the old type of family which had common purse, ate three times a day at the same table, spent its evenings at its own fireside or went out to a squad to the same place of amusement has disappeared, says this and it would serve us best to look ward instead of backward. As the are now—

"Where family life has been really modern life they are struggling made so by personality. Old folk keep their capacity for wide time far better than under the old plan long hours of work. They can, being keen, maintain some sort of footing with their children. On relationships they can build a life not founded on the complex circumstances but based on a firmer thing—true friendship between old and young. Where this is there will always be a family steady and a helpful force in a world of change."

Everybody's Friend

TO THE FRONT ONCE MORE.
TO THE CIVIC ELECTORS OF ST. JOHN'S.

LADIES & GENTLEMEN—As you were kind enough to give me your valued support on the many previous occasions I sought election at your hands, I have decided to again solicit your esteem and confidence for four years more as one of your civic representatives.

During the several terms I have had the great honor of being a member of the Municipal Council Board I have consistently practised the policy of conforming to your desires in so far as the civic revenue permitted.

I shall be very pleased indeed to again do my utmost towards bringing about many more essential improvements that are still necessary, and, therefore, feel that as you have so highly approved of my civic record in the past you will be pleased to again remember me on polling day.

A SPECIAL WORD TO THE LADY VOTERS.
You may have many friends to choose from ladies, but as a special favor will each one of you please be kind enough to record a vote for me.

James T. Martin

S.U.F. Banquet

AT STERLING RESTAURANT.

Yesterday afternoon was devoted to the finalizing of the agenda paper, the session being opened by G.D.M. Langmead, in the absence of R.W.G.M. House. At the evening session at 8.30 R.W.G.M. House presided and for the election of officers transferred control of the Lodge to P.G.M. Curnew, who conducted the election, which resulted as follows:—

R.W.G.M.—Comp. G. House, re-elected.

D.D.W.G.M.—Comp. George Langmead, re-elected.

W.G. Chaplain—Comp. (Rev.) A. E. Talk, re-elected.

W.C.O.—Comp. R. Mugford, re-elected.

W.S.O.—Comp. W. Legge, re-elected.

W.Q.M.—Comp. Walter Rendell, elected.

W.G. Lookout—Comp. Harold Rowell, elected.

W.G. Purser—Comp. R. LeDrew, re-elected.

W.G. Secretary—Comp. C. T. James, elected.

Following the election the Grand Lodge adjourned to the Sterling Restaurant, where a banquet was held and the annexed programme carried through:

THE KING.

Prop. . . . . R.W.G.M. House.

Resp. . . . . "God Save The King."

THE EMPIRE.

Prop. . . . . G.D.M. Langmead.

Resp. . . . . "Rule Britannia."

NEWFOUNDLAND.

Prop. . . . . Comp. W. Legge.

Resp. . . . . "Mid the Gem of the Ocean."

"SUPREME GRAND LODGE"

Prop. . . . . Comp. J. Foote.

Resp. . . . . R.W.G.M. House.

"DISTRICT GRAND LODGES."

Phop. . . . . Comp. J. L. Oke.

Resp. . . . . Comps. Randell and Parsons.

"ORDINARY LODGES."

Prop. . . . . Comp. J. G. Hodder.

Resp. . . . . Comps. Grouchy, Welsh, Toope.

THE PRESS.

Prop. . . . . Comp. Rowell.

Resp. . . . . W.G.S., C. T. James.

Prop. . . . . Comp. Curnew.

Resp. . . . . R.W.G.M. House.

"GOD SAVE THE KING."

The toast to the memory of Our Founders and Illustrious Brethren who have passed to the Grand Lodge above, was proposed by W.G. Chaplain (Rev.) A. E. Talk, and drunk in silence.

The toast list which evoked speeches of an eloquent nature was interspersed with musical selections and improvisations by Mr. D. Delmar.

The banquet closed with the National Anthem and on resignation of the Grand Lodge the officers elect were duly installed by R.W.G.M. Curnew and after the discussion of various matters concerning the Order the Grand Lodge was duly closed.

There will be a scene from "Cavalleria Rusticana" at the Eleanor Mews' Recital, Tuesday, 24th November.—nov19.1f

Cantata "Harvest Hall" at Cochrane St. Lecture Room

The members of the Mission Circle of Cochrane Street Church produced a most successful Cantata, entitled "Harvest Hall," in thanksgiving for the harvest of the year. There was a large audience in attendance, and the Lecture Room, where the affair was held, was fittingly decorated. The stage settings were pretty and showed quantities of all kind of crops grown during the past summer. The performers were quite at home in their parts and each character was faultlessly portrayed. The following was the cast:—

Goddesses:
Grain—Miss W. Grimes.
Fruits—Miss E. Grimes.
Father Time—Geo. Whiteley.
Mother Earth—Miss M. Mews.
Grandfather—George Hynes.
Grandmother—Miss G. Young.
Father—Ross Young.
Mother—Miss Julia Hopkins.
Boy—Lily Barrett.
Girl—Harold Drover.
Mr. W. A. Mews was musical director.

Candy and ice cream were sold during the performance and at the close the vegetables used in decoration were auctioned and realized a nice sum. The affair was very enjoyable and the Mission Circle ladies are justly proud of their efforts.

Come and have your tea at the Congregational Ladies' Aid Sale, Nov. 25. You will be sure to enjoy yourself.—nov19.2f

A Hotel Broadcaster

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I understand the management of the new Hotel intend installing a powerful broadcasting apparatus. I think it is quite time that Newfoundland be heard on the air, and feel sure it would prove an excellent entertainment.

I would also suggest that a temporary aerial be erected now, so that the station may be in operation all winter, and by the time the Hotel is completed, I venture to say that many thousands of people in Canada, U.S.A. and elsewhere will have learned where Newfoundland is and something of the attractions she has to offer to visitors.

Or, instead of having the station at Mount Pearl dismantled, could it not be secured by the management (or Government), and programmes broadcast direct from studio at the Hotel, using remote control.

Yours truly,

RADIO.

New Soviet War Chief Appointed

Command of the Soviet army has been entrusted to Clement Voroshilov, a former metal worker who was selected recently to succeed the late Michael V. Frunse as war Commissar.

Voroshilov is 44 years old and is the third of the Red army commanders, the first having been Leon Trotsky, who created the Communist war machine before his deposition from power by the Bolshevik leaders on a charge of having fouted the party creed.

During the civil war period Voroshilov commanded the tenth army operating on the southeastern front against General Denikin. He is a staunch adherent of the dominating group of the central committee.

Voroshilov relinquishes the command of the Moscow garrison to assume his new duties. He is a member of the Revolutionary War Council.

Middle-Aged Book-keeper Sails Around World

HAS MANY ADVENTURES IN 34-FOOT YAWL BUILT BY HIMSELF.

Los Angeles, Nov. 13.—When a pale, 50 year old book-keeper spends all his spare time reading about clipper ships, unknown coasts and the blue reaches of the South Seas, and takes to studying navigation at night in his bedroom—watch out for him.

Such a man is in a fair way to cut loose and find out if perhaps he can't make some of his dreams of the sea come true. And then he'll be ruined for book-keeping.

Harry Pidgeon, six years ago, was just such a man. He went to the library daily and immersed himself in books about ships and the sea. His horizon extended far beyond the dusty confines of his office.

BUILDS OWN BOAT.

So at last he went on the loose. He built a 34-foot yawl, mastered the art of sailing it and charting a course, and then sailed out of the harbour one day, all alone.

That was on Nov. 18, 1921. The other day he came sailing back. He was no longer a pale, stooped book-keeper, but a sturdy, bronzed navigator—and he and his 34-foot yawl had been "round the world!"

"I never had a bit of trouble but once during the entire trip," said Pidgeon. "Last April, while crossing the South Atlantic, I was nearly run down by a British tanker. I was asleep in the cabin, sailing under reefed mizzen and jib with a half gale abeam.

"Something bumping the side awakened me and when I went out on deck to see what it was, that big tanker was right alongside. A big roller came along and lifted the Islander higher than the tanker's deck. As she went down into the trough, her bowsprit was wrecked. I rode out the gale and then repaired the broken rigging.

"Aside from that, I never even parted a rope. That little boat can weather any kind of storm. Why, I would be willing to start out again to-morrow with her just as she is. I did go ashore just off Cape Town, Africa, but we were soon off again and the Islander wasn't even scratched.

FRIENDLY SAVAGES.

"When I started out, I went directly to the Marquesas Islands and then beat about the South Sea Islands for a while. All the savages I met were friendly. I don't believe there are any wild ones any more.

"Then I headed for Torres Straits, across the Indian Ocean and then went down the coast of Africa to Cape Town. It seemed as if I were almost home then. All I had to do was sail across the Atlantic, through the Panama Canal and up the coast home."

You have to watch out when a fifty-year-old book-keeper starts dreaming about distant shores and untraveller seas.

He's apt to take his dream seriously. Pidgeon will never be a good book-keeper any more.

Don't Say Paper, Say the Evening Telegram.

Feildian Ladies' Association Bazaar
AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS.

Bishop Feild College yesterday afternoon was the rallying point of a large number of citizens intent upon making the first Bazaar arranged by the Ladies' Association a record breaking event. Not for many a day has there been the scene of such enthusiasm, which was shared not only by those closely associated with the college but also by many public spirited citizens who regard the interests of any one institution as material to the general progress of the educational life of the community. In particular it was gratifying to see the school of the young Feildians, each rubbing shoulders with the president of the young Feildians, each doing his utmost to make the event an object of his intention to the limit of advancing the welfare of the College.

Equally enthusiastic and untiring were the ladies who from the moment of the opening of the Bazaar until late in the evening were kept busy supplying the needs of patrons. At 1 o'clock Lady Allardice, accompanied by Miss Allardice and Major Stand, arrived at the College, and was met by the Headmaster, Mr. R. R. Feild, who accompanied the party to the Hall which was already packed with people to such an extent that it was a difficult matter to move about. Here they were received by His Lordship the Bishop, the President of the Board of Directors, and Mrs. Andrew Carmell, the President of the Feildian Ladies' Association.

His Lordship's Address. In a brief address the Bishop expressed his gratification at the assurance of success of the event as indicated by the large number present and thanked the ladies who had worked so valiantly for the sale and those who had come to show their appreciation of their efforts and to support the object for which it was undertaken. As an old boy of the College, he spoke of the feeling of the wonderful growth of the school since he first entered its walls some 45 years ago, a growth which to-day necessitated the erection of a new building in order to cater to present needs and to enable the college to keep up with the requirements of education to-day. His Lordship then requested Lady Allardice to open the Bazaar.

The Official Opening. Lady Allardice expressed her pleasure at officiating on such an occasion, the attendance at which was such a splendid augury of its success. It was unusual she said to see such a large gathering at the opening. Generally the number of visitors only arrived towards the hour when tea was served. She felt certain that the same success which had rewarded the efforts of the Spencer Club would be achieved by the sister organization and was delighted to give all the encouragement she could to the worthy object in which the ladies were working.

During the Bazaar, said Lady Allardice was especially to the youth of to-day, and anything should be permitted to stand in the way of their obtaining it. It was pleasing to know that the college was soon to have properly equipped recreation grounds and she trusted that before long a new College building would be erected. She hoped the boys would take up the wider field, to which all point, and continue to play the game, at all times. Newfoundland had passed through strenuous times and there are harder ones to come, and if the future problems are to be met, citizens are needed who are able to take up the burden of making our country better than it ever was before. In declaring the sale open, she wished every possible success to the Association and to the College.

Lady Allardice at the close of her address was presented with a beautiful bouquet by Master H. House on behalf of the College, which she gratefully acknowledged.

The walls extended down both sides of the hall across the southern end and a hoop-la table occupied the middle. The articles formed a most varied assortment of novelties, clothing, articles of attire, and many others, and from the moment of opening sales were so brisk that by six o'clock there was little left in any of the booths. The tea tables were so well patronized that it was difficult to obtain a seat. However the supplies appeared to be inexhaustible and in time everyone was attended to. To Mrs. Carmell and the members of the Association as well as many other ladies who assisted the greatest credit is due for the great success of the undertaking.

Fire at Coal Shed
DUE TO SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

Shortly after seven o'clock this morning, a blaze was discovered in a shed of the United Coal Company, Water Street, and an alarm was sent from Box 35. The blaze was due to spontaneous combustion and fortunately was discovered before it had gained a headway. The all out was sent ten minutes after the alarm. A number of men are engaged shovelling the bulk of coal to-day in order to get at the seat of the fire.

The Motor Fuel of the Future

Coal and alcohol will be the sources of the nation's future supplies of motor fuel, it was predicted in addresses at an interstate symposium of the American Chemical Society held in New York recently. Dr. A. C. Fieldner, chief chemist of the U.S. Bureau of Mine, asserted that America must turn to coal when gasoline stocks begin to vanish. "For the United States, coal is the logical source of liquid fuel substitute for petroleum gasoline," Dr. Fieldner said. We read further in a press bulletin issued by the society:

"Dr. Milton C. Whitaker, of New York, president of the U.S. Industrial Alcohol Company, declared that the superiority of alcohol gasoline fuels is now safely established by actual experience."

"In the United States, Dr. Whitaker said, a struggle is going on between industrial needs and the beverage-taxing habit. He attacked what he called an attempt by prohibitionists to shift the costs of law enforcement to the new alcohol industries, saying:

"While our Government has been liberal, as governments go, in the extension of the tax-exemption to industrial alcohol, it must be said that the right of tax relief has been granted gradually, and the manufacture and use of industrial alcohol has been hampered by many expensive restrictions."

"These restrictions have been recently increased by the advent of a great social experiment known as Prohibition. A substantial proportion of the cost of Prohibition is already being loaded on to the alcohol producing and using industries—and the proponents of this social reform are insisting that they be permitted to load it more—and this at the very time when both the industries using alcohol and the economies of the fuel problem demand that that commodity be cheaper."

"The future of alcohol motor fuels is largely an economic problem, Dr. Whitaker said. 'It involves,' he added, 'the relations between cost of alcohol and the cost of gasoline.' The cost of alcohol is necessarily linked with the question of cost and available supply of raw materials."

"As gasoline becomes scarce, an economic balance is bound to be established between the price of gasoline, the price of alcohol and the price and the resultant supply of raw materials. As this economic balance is approached, alcohol will doubtless be used in the making of motor fuels."

"The ratio of alcohol production to gasoline production, Dr. Whitaker said, was 1 to 125, the total production of alcohol last year being 71,000,000 gallons, and that of gasoline 8,960,000,000 gallons. "Practically all the alcohol produced, he said, was required to meet industrial needs, about 147,000 gallons being left for motor fuel. 'The demand of the industries and for motor anti-freeze,' he continued, 'will naturally assert itself against any use of alcohol for motor fuels.'"

"Dr. Fieldner said that there seems to be no doubt that most of the country's great mass of unmined coal, constituting over sixty per cent of the world's reserve, will still be in the ground when all the petroleum available by drilling and pumping methods becomes exhausted.

"This mass, existing within 3,600 feet of the surface, aggregated, he said, the figures of the U.S. Geological Survey, three and one-half billion short tons. If this coal were all in one solid cube, it would measure eighteen miles long, eighteen miles wide and eighteen miles high.

"It is recognized," Dr. Fieldner went on, "that shale oil and alcohol from vegetable matter will contribute considerable quantities of fuel, but they can not carry the bulk of the load if we are to continue using anything like the amount of gasoline consumed to-day."

"The average oil shale yields little if any greater quantity of distillate per ton than may be obtained by the low-temperature distillation of bituminous coal, and coal has the big economic advantage of being mined near the centers of the population and in furnishing a residue that can be sold as a relatively high-priced smokeless domestic fuel."

"Most of our shale is found in the sparsely populated Western States, and the residue is worthless. The amount of alcohol that can be obtained from the fermentation industries is also limited."

"The diversion of any considerable acreage to growing vegetables or grain for motor fuel would cut too deeply into our food supply to be tolerated."

"The gradual failure of the yearly output of petroleum gasoline to meet the increasing needs of the automotive industries, with the consequent rise in prices of motor fuel, should stimulate the carbonization of coal by both high and low temperature processes."

"The automobile may yet help to bring about, to no small degree, that desired millennium when the atmosphere of Pittsburgh will be as free from smoke as when George Washington first beheld the beautiful valley of the Monongahela River."

"This ultimate aim can be accomplished by processing all coal, except perhaps inferior grades, by carbonization processes yielding gaseous, liquid and smokeless solid fuel."

"Dr. Fieldner said that the time for motor-fuel research is here. We may need some gasoline substitutes in five years, and it may be twenty-five years, he said, pointing out that both France and Germany have established motor-fuel laboratories."

Gompers

A BRITISH-BORN AMERICAN LABOR LEADER.

Those interested in labour conditions across the Atlantic will read in the biography of Samuel Gompers, the American labour leader. Gompers was born in London, and, as the Times reviewer states:

"No trade union leader in any country has wielded so much power for so long a period as Samuel Gompers. "He was president (except in the year 1895) of the American Federation of Labour from its formal creation in 1886, out of an older body, to his death, which occurred during the Pan-American Labour Congress, held in Mexico City at the end of 1924. His ascendancy in the Federation—the only large, stable, and lasting organization of the kind in America—had so increased with time, and the Federation had so increased in power, that he became a sort of sovereign invested, with a peculiar dignity and authority, it was a tribute to his length of service and his personality. He was a trade unionist of the old type."

"The family, which belonged to a Dutch branch of an old Austrian Jewish stock, had emigrated from Spitalfields to New York in 1863, when Samuel was only 12 years old and too young to know much about trade unionism. His views were gradually developed in the atmosphere of New York by working experiences, surrounding conditions, actual struggles, the influence of older men—for the most part neither English nor American—and, above all, by reflection. He tells the story in great detail."

"He had been apprenticed by choice to his father's trade of cigar-making—after a brief trial of shoemaking—when only ten years old, and he went on with it in New York. There were already cigar-makers' unions there, and he joined one as a matter of course, but he had then no conscious appreciation of the labour movement. When only 16, however, and in his first situation as a journeyman, he was chosen by the older men to present their grievances and demands to the employer. This shows that there must have been even then something exceptional about the lad, and his employer's regard for him. He began with ridicule and intimidation, and then tried bribery—but the boy was not to be moved. I stick by the

Moose Shows Lack of Ear

Huntress in Queens County Has Uncomfortable Close View.

CALEDONIA, Nov. 12.—Mrs. L. R. Gates, recently camping with her husband at Round Lake, near the old Annapolis Road, attracted the attention of a large male moose, which gave evidence of a desire for closer acquaintance. There had, previously, been no sign of moose, and Mrs. Gates, taking her shot gun, one morning, started along the main road to hunt partridge.

Hearing a sound as of carriage wheels, and not wishing to meet travellers, she re-entered the wood road. As she did so, she was confronted by a large moose, which stood regarding her with apparent interest. It was the sound of his horns striking against the trees, that she had heard.

A Wonder Microscope

The instrument with which two English investigators discovered what they believe to be the germ of cancer is illustrated and described in Conquest (London). Whether a cure for cancer will be the outcome of the researches carried out by Dr. Gye and Mr. Bernard, no one can say, this magazine admits; but of the importance of the advance they have made in the technique of microscopy it has no doubt whatever. It says of the instrument:

"Mr. Bernard's wonderful microscope objects measuring only 1-500,000th of an inch. By its aid bodies less than one-third the size hitherto regarded as the extreme limit of the powers of the microscope can now be detected."

"The instrument differs widely in appearance from the conventional laboratory microscope. Indeed, few at first sight would recognize it as a microscope at all. The most remarkable departure from the established methods of microscopy, however, is the arrangement adopted for illuminating the object. Only light of very short wave-length can make such exceedingly small bodies as the filter-passing bacteria visible, and in order to get light of sufficiently short wave-length Mr. Bernard employed a mercury lamp, the light from which falls in the ultra-violet range, and has a wave-length of 546 millimicrons. In order to obtain any detail of the form and structure of the micro-organisms, however, light of even shorter wave-length had to be employed, and the photographing of the cancer germ was done with ultra-violet light having a wave-length of 257 millimicrons. "Another noteworthy feature of the super-microscope is the method of combining direct and reflected lighting on the object. The combined dark ground and direct illuminator is attached to a micrometer focusing device having a divided head. An object focused in light of a known wave-length can be adjusted for photography by light of a different wave-length simply by rotating the divided head the requisite number of divisions corresponding to the difference in wave-length. The central stop which stops transmitted light reaching the objective while the apparatus is being used with the dark ground illuminator is withdrawn and the central quartz system comes into play."

U.S. and Rubber Control

MR. HOOVER'S "INVITATION."

Mr. Hoover, the United States Secretary of Commerce, in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce at Erie, Pennsylvania, recently, issued a significant "invitation" to foreign Governments to abandon control of production in raw materials.

He declared that the United States is spending $160,000,000 for imports which are subject to such control. He instanced rubber, coffee, silk, nitrates, potash, guano, iodine, tin, steel, some dyestuffs, quicksilver, and certain tanning extracts as being subject to price control by Government action, and he declared that if these practices continued they would inevitably set up "great malignant currents of international ill-will" and lead to trade wars.

He drew an alarming picture of the possibility of the wool trade being controlled by governmental action within the British Empire, and said that the United States, the "strongest of all nations," could retaliate by controlling prices of cotton, oil, and copper.

So far the United States, as a Government, had set up no such controls, and through the action of the Sherman Act had prevented her citizens from doing so. But were she to do so, an incalculable impetus would be given "to forces of evil in the commercial world which generations could not remedy."

An American Tariff.

American consumers to-day, he stated, are being "victimized to the tune of $60,000,000 by artificial prices established by foreign governments control over the production of raw materials."

Mr. Hoover's speech appears simultaneously with the publication in Democratic newspapers of significant allusions to the immense balance of trade favourable to the United States. Cuba, alone, it is pointed out, has lost in the past year $16,000,000 of her exports to the United States by "America's cut-throat sugar tariff."

Italy's 6,000 Mile

British Cable

The new Italian cable from Rome to South America, which was formally opened recently by Signor Mussolini, is a remarkable example of the combination of Italian enterprise and British workmanship.

The cable which is 6,000 miles long, begins near Rome and ends at Buenos Aires. The whole undertaking has been conceived, financed and completed within three years. Orders for much of the equipment, including submarine cable and instruments for the cable stations to the extent of £1,000,000, were given to England. Greenwich and Woolwich were chiefly concerned.

Between fifty and sixty British telegraph operators have already been engaged to staff the stations.

The newly formed Anglo-South American Association, 25, Haymarket, S. W. state:

Already the Prince of Wales's visit to the rich countries of South America has stimulated trade between those countries and Great Britain.

We estimate that the next twelve months' returns will show an increase in trade of from 15 per cent. to as much as 20 per cent. Already big contracts involving large sums have come to this country from both the Argentine and Chile; while, stirred by the Prince's words of how we are losing trade, British merchants are actively setting to work and sending out their representatives.

Within the next few weeks a deputation of Venezuelan business men is proposing to visit this country with the purpose of talking over a table with our own business men, to show them that although the Prince was not able to visit Venezuela, this little republic, which, for its size, has more British capital invested in it than any other of the 17 South American Republics, is determined that industrial intercourse between Latin America and this country shall be developed to the utmost.

The scheme for the reclamation of a large area of the marshes in Bermuda, British West Indies, has made such good progress that it has been possible to place orders in England for some of the plan and equipment needed for the undertaking.

The Horsley Bridge and Engineering Company, Ltd., of Tipton, Staffordshire, have been engaged for the past six months on the work of extending the wharf at Port Harcourt, Nigeria. The contract involves a sum exceeding £100,000.

Earth's Unknown Lands Beckon Explorers

When Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., sailed for Asia, early last summer, a young fellow standing on the pier remarked: "Well, he's off, but I'll bet he won't have as much fun as his dad did. Teddy, Sr., lived when there was still some real exploring to be done."

The highest mountain in the world yet may remain to be discovered. A fabulous radium mine may be awaiting a prospector. The most luxuriant valley on earth may be hidden between unknown rivers.

When Admiral Peary came back from his last trip to the Arctic, he told of several thousand square miles in the Far North where in summer there are miles of green grass, where musk-oxen, polar bears, foxes, seals, walrus, eagles, ducks, and geese have undisputed dominion. As yet they belong to no man. And only a few weeks ago Donald B. MacMillan returned out of the North after a vain attempt to explore by airplane a vast arctic continent thought to exist just below the Pole. Among other discoveries in Greenland he found the remains of ancient habitations of the Norsemen. Practically the whole of the polar regions is yet to be revealed and mapped.

Between Antarctica and Australia there lies a bit of land called the Kergueler Archipelago. On it there is room for three or four millions of intelligent human beings with prosperous farms and humming factories. Now it has a population of 50 sailors, once shipwrecked there.

Of the lands outside of the icebound regions, Africa is the least explored. Bands of nomads, black-velled desert robbers, alone, know the secrets of the interior of the Sahara that some one some day is going to change with a magic wand into great plantations. Dutch and English explorers have reported mountains in the interior of Liberia and French West Africa, but very little is known about them. Their altitudes have not been determined scientifically, and the animals that live on their slopes have not been identified.

In South America, too, adventurers, following up the courses of unknown rivers, may find queer beasts, birds, and men, whose like we never have seen. As for fossil finds, the possibilities are endless.

Aerial travel and photography will make exploration of the future a much quicker process than in the past. But the thrilling part of it is that it will be in our day. Adventure is still before us.

PURE FOODS

Purveyor of English Fruit to His Majesty King GEORGE V.
Jams, Jellies and Canned

All Chivers' preparations are of guaranteed purity, and are made in the fresh air of the country under ideal hygienic conditions.

Chivers' Olde English Marmalade

Only Selected Seville Oranges and Refined Sugar, but so skillfully blended as to preserve the valuable tonic properties of the fruit. "Your Olde English Marmalade... makes breakfast worth while," writes a user.

Chivers' Jellies

Flavoured with Ripe Fruit Juices. The family and visitors, children and adults, all delight in CHIVERS' JELLIES—they are delicious, wholesome and refreshing.

Chivers' Jams

Chivers & Sons own 6,000 acres of land, a large proportion of which is devoted to fruit culture. They use each year thousands of tons of fruit freshly picked from their own orchards and preserved as soon as gathered with refined sugar only.

Chivers' Custard Powder

Combines highest Quality with greatest Economy. It creams up into a nutritive Custard of exquisite flavour.

A Packet makes 1 Pint. A Drum makes over 100 cups.

CHIVERS & SONS, Ltd.

Troubles Are Tonics

Everybody in the world has some special trouble of which he, or she, hopes to be rid some day. You cannot talk to a man or a woman for more than a few minutes without hearing something about the "black beast" which is spoiling their happiness and darkening their lives. If only they could be free!

And yet my experience as a doctor has taught me that the loss of the "black beast" is often a great disaster rather than a great blessing. Instead of rejoicing when the burden at last falls from their shoulders, the majority of people pine and moan.

His Hated Partner.
The most striking example of that which I ever met occurred in connection with my own profession. A doctor friend of mine had a partner in his practice whom he had grown to hate. He could not get rid of this partner, and he spent his life lamenting the fact. The two men scarcely ever met and very rarely spoke to each other, and their houses were situated at opposite ends of the town.

Yet when, at last, his partner died, my friend seemed to lose his interest in life. He carried on alone for a year or two, and then sold out and retired.

I have no doubt that what kept him eager and alert was his desire to do better than his hated rival. The "black beast" in this case, was a blessing in disguise.

Boredom Quarrel.
Occasionally, I think, quarrelsome or troublesome husbands and wives serve the same purpose. A nagging wife, for instance, may be "very ill to the with," but she often seems to act as a spur to her husband's energies.

The husband of the most unpleasant woman I ever knew confessed to me once that, after her death, he felt that he had lost all his interest in life. That confession came back to my mind the other day when I happened to read a paper, written by a very clever woman, on the subject of monotony.

She has been making a special study of this subject and has carried out some most interesting experiments among other things, she has discovered that work in which there is keen competition is far less apt to be boring than work in which you have everything your own way.

The presence of rivals acts like a tonic. It keeps eagerness alive, and so it enables more and better work to be done.

Competing in Kindness.
The lonely toiler may be able to make his own pace, and suit himself about time, but he is sure to feel the "heavy hand of monotony" long before his fellow who has to keep his eyes open in order to get the better of competitors.

This is not just an opinion; it is a fact. I wish that some of my friends who are always talking about the "horrors of cut-throat competition" could hear about it.

The truth is that rivalry is one of Nature's ways of keeping us alive. Rivalry in love gives the best lass to the best lad, and rivalry in work makes every man and every woman a better worker.

Not only that, but rivalry adds spice to life, and so makes it happier and more cheerful. That I am quite sure, is why the people with the most money are so often the most miserable.

In saying that, however, I do not mean that it is good for anybody to have to play the part of "under dog" all the days of his or her life. Rivalry is a benefit only when it takes place among equals.

This was proved by an experiment which was carried out recently in a great factory. It was found that, if a very clever workman is placed beside a group of beginners, so that these young folk are made to feel how clumsy and ignorant they are, they do not make progress.

All work, whether in the factory, the office, or the home, is monotonous of itself. What makes it joyful is the spirit in which it is done.

When we are going on holiday a railway timetable becomes more exciting reading than any novel.

It follows that those who complain of being "fed-up" are people who are living wrongly.

The only cure which is likely to do them any good is a change of spirit. Rivalry in one form or another is the best medicine they can possibly make.

The World's Largest Wood Pipe

Users of treated timber may not know, says The Wood Preserving News (Chicago), that for some time among holders of "world's largest" records, because the world's largest wood pipe-line was constructed of preserved wood. Now this record has been broken by a treated wood-stave pipe-line built in northern California for the California-Oregon Power Co. We read:

"This line connects two cement-lined tunnels which carry water from the company's diversion dam to the new plant, located one and one-half miles below Copco on the Klamath River. The plant, which generates 4000 horse-power, serves fifty communities. This pipe is sixteen feet in inside diameter, or two feet larger than the line that formerly held the record. It is 1,316 feet in length, and made of Douglas fir staves four inches thick, treated with eight pounds of creosote per cubic foot. The pipe-line is supported in steel cradles and is entirely open to the air. The maximum head of the line is sixty feet. It discharges 2,000 cubic feet of water per second, or more than 100 gallons of water per day for each of 12,000,000 persons. It is interesting to note that the use of creosote for wood-pipe staves is far exceeding original expectations. It was assumed at first that only a small percentage of pipe used for irrigation purposes could be treated. But now most of the wood-stave irrigation lines are constructed of preserved wood. No objectionable taste remains after the free creosote has been flushed out. This pipe-line is considered practically a permanent installation, provided the steel cradles and bands are painted from time to time."

In the Supreme Court of Newfoundland.

Between Newfoundland Banking & Trust Corporation, Limited, Plaintiff and The Reid Newfoundland Company, Limited, Defendants (Newfoundland) Limited and Newfoundland Power & Paper Company, Limited, Defendant.

(Concluded.)

On October 28, 1921, while Mr. Reid and Mr. Conroy were in London and were engaged in the Armstrong negotiations, the Trust wrote Mr. Reid about the commission due to it in connection with the Light & Power Company loan. Mr. Conroy, at the request of Mr. Reid, met the Directors of the Trust on the 3rd of November and discussed with them matters then outstanding between the Trust and the Reid Company. The position as regards the Trust had not altered since Mr. Greenwood's letter to the Reid Company on July 4th, 1921, sent by cable to the Trust in regard to its commission, except that Mr. Greenwood had on July 21st and 22nd written Mr. Reid, suggesting that the rate of commission of the Light & Power bonds be arranged. The Trust knew at the time of the meeting with Mr. Conroy that negotiations were proceeding between the Reid Company and the Armstrong Company in relation to the Humber Project, but it did not know, nor did Mr. Conroy inform them, of the nature of these negotiations. As a result of the meeting, Mr. Conroy wrote the Directors of the Trust on the 15th of November, saying:—

"Formally acknowledging your letter No. 55 of 28th October to Mr. H. D. Reid and referring further to say my interview with your Directors on the 3rd instant. I beg to say that I have consulted my co-Directors both here and in St. John's, and am authorized to state as follows:—(1) As to the proposed bond issue of St. John's Light & Power Co., Ltd., we confirm that should the money be obtained through Messrs. S.P. W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., Ltd., or other parties, introduced by you, commission will be payable to the Trust at a rate to be determined by agreement, or, in default, of agreement by arbitration, notwithstanding that the definite negotiations resulting in the sale of the bonds will have been conducted by us directly and not through the Trust. (2) As to the Humber Valley project the position is somewhat similar; the commission payable to the Trust under the Minute passed by the Board of the Reid Nfd. Co. Ltd., when Major MacDonald was in St. John's, will not be affected merely by the fact that our negotiations with the Armstrong Co. are conducted direct instead of through the Trust. (3) As already intimated by me, your Directors on the 3rd inst., we consider that by bringing us into relations with Messrs. Armstrongs and the British Metal Corporation the Trust has performed a very useful function, but that having regard to all the circumstances we believe it would be in the interest of everybody concerned that the Trust should now go into voluntary liquidation. (4) We are, however, willing to consider the alternative course suggested by your Directors on the 3rd inst., viz. the purchase by someone representing the Reid interests of the entire share-holdings in the Trust, including the shares to which Messrs. MacDonald, Thomson and Greenwood are entitled under their option from the Trust, provided the matter could be arranged on a satisfactory basis.

"As it is quite possible that our London negotiations regarding the Humber and Power bonds may lead to nothing, and that we may have to conclude arrangements with our New York friends, the purchase of the Trust shares is in the nature of a gamble and the price would therefore have to be quite a reasonable one. Payment by instalments would have to be provided for, and first payment could not very well be met inside of three months from now.

"Perhaps your Directors would take the matter up with the shareholders and let me know what options can be obtained on the various shareholdings, so that we may be able to give the question fuller consideration."

On November 18th the Trust replied:—

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of November 15th, and am instructed by the Directors to inform you that your proposals in Clauses 1 and 2 are satisfactory. The same remark applies to Clause 2.

"As regards Clause 3 of your letter, the suggestion that the Trust should go into voluntary liquidation is one that the Directors would have to give careful consideration to, as there are several phases of the situation which would tend to indicate that this procedure might not be beneficial to everyone concerned.

"As regards Section 4, the Directors are favourable to negotiations along the lines suggested, but there are several features in connection with the proposal which they would very much like to discuss with you as early as possible, which they consider might facilitate the situation materially from your Company's point of view.

"To this end, I would be glad if you could notify the Trust so that the Directors could meet you as soon as possible to discuss this phase of the situation." Mr. Conroy, again met the Directors of the Trust and discussed the purchase of their shares in the Trust with Messrs. MacDonald, Greenwood and Thomson, but the shares were not bought.

The agreement made in November, 1921, they intended as a settlement of the question, what, if any, remuneration the Trust was entitled to be paid for its services in respect of the Light & Power Company's loan, and the Humber Valley project. It settled that question by the Trust's accepting the proposal made in Mr. Conroy's letter of November 15th. I have already stated that the Trust was not entitled under this arrangement to be paid for its services in respect of the Light & Power loan. Now as regards the Humber project: Mr. Conroy's proposal was that "The commission payable to the Trust under the Minute passed by the Board of the Reid Co. Ltd., when Major MacDonald was in St. John's, will not be affected merely by the fact that our negotiations with Messrs. Armstrongs are conducted direct instead of through the Trust." The commission payable under the Minute of the Reid Company, or what I have called "The Commission Agreement," was ten per cent. of the purchase price. If the negotiations with the Armstrong, Whitworth Co., that resulted in the agreement of the 12th of October, 1922, had been conducted through the Trust, it would, under the Commission Agreement, have been entitled to be paid ten per cent. on the purchase price received by the Reid Company on the transaction. But as a matter of fact, the negotiations with the Armstrong, Whitworth Co. were conducted by the Reid Company direct instead of through the Trust—the only difference being the medium of negotiations. That being so, the Trust is entitled to be paid a commission of 10 per cent. upon the purchase price, by virtue of the settlement agreement of November, 1921, which provides that the commission payable under the Commission Agreement will not be affected merely by the fact that the negotiations with the Armstrong, Whitworth Company are conducted by the Reid Company direct, instead of through the Trust. This view is confirmed by an examination of what had previously happened in respect of the Trust's claim to be remunerated for its services in respect of the Humber Valley project.

From the time that Mr. Conroy declined to Mr. Greenwood in St. John's his letter of the 2nd May, 1921, notifying him that should a new agreement be made, with Mr. Blakstad, a new arrangement with the Trust in regard to commission would have to be made. The Trust throughout maintained that its agreement in regard to commission could not be altered except by consent of all parties. In July, 1921, Mr. Greenwood had an interview with Mr. Conroy on the subject and as a result of that interview, he sent on July 4th, to the

Trust in London, with Mr. Conroy's consent, a cable saying "Reid declares that if he negotiates Humber with Armstrong Whitworth and Co. and finalises deals, Trust gets 10 p.c. commission." The Reid Co. at that time hoped the Armstrongs would take Mr. Blakstad's place in the scheme. I think Mr. Greenwood's cable of July 4th, sent with Mr. Conroy's consent, and the hope of the Reid Co. that the Armstrong Company would take Mr. Blakstad's place in the Humber scheme have an important bearing on the intention with which the settlement of November was made. It is perfectly clear that the intention was that if the Reid Co.'s negotiations with the Armstrong Co. resulted in the sale of the properties, the Trust would be entitled to be paid 10 p.c. commission on the purchase money received from that sale. A sale did result from them and the Trust is entitled to be paid its commission out of the purchase price. I am unable to accept the suggestion made by Mr. Conroy in his evidence that because the negotiations going on with the Armstrong Whitworth Co. in November were directed only to making with that Company a contract to construct the works involved in the Humber scheme and to secure its co-operation in raising the money needed to pay for them, and consequently no sale was contemplated and no purchase money out of which to pay the commission, I do not think such an interpretation can be entertained for a moment. Mr. Conroy did not inform the Directors of the Trust of the nature of the negotiations with the Reid Co. when they conducted with the Armstrong Co. or that they did not contemplate a sale out of the purchase price of which the Trust was to be paid its commission. It is clear that the settlement contemplated that the Trust might earn its commission as a result of the negotiations with the Armstrong Co. If Mr. Conroy did not intend the Directors of the Trust to understand that the negotiations with the Armstrong Co. might result in a sale, his whole proposal was illigible and deceptive. Mr. Conroy in his evidence says that he had at the time the settlement agreement was made in November he had in the back of his mind a hope that a sale of the property would ultimately be made through the Armstrong Whitworth Co. I think no other meaning could be placed on this settlement than that the Trust would be entitled to its commission under the Commission Agreement of August, 1920, if the negotiations between the Reid Co. and the Armstrong Co. resulted in a sale. I must therefore hold that the Trust is entitled to be paid a commission of 10 p.c. upon the purchase price of the Humber Valley property received by the Reid Company itself or through the Mines & Forests under the agreement of the 12th of October, 1922 with the Armstrong Co. as and when the same are received by them. Now what is the purchase price received by the Reid Co. and by the Mines and Forests as a result of this agreement? I understand purchase price to mean the equivalent received in return for what was given. In the final analysis the Reid Co. gave to the Products Co. as arranged under the name of the Nfd. Power & Paper Co., lands and timber and water rights and concessions it owned and held in its own name or in the name of Mines & Forests of the Products Co. and received in return the following:—

(1) 15,000, 8 1/2 p.c. Non-Cumulative Preference Shares of the Products Co. of $100 each.
(2) 24,000 Ordinary Shares of the Products Co. of $100 each.
(3) 26,600 Deferred Ordinary Shares of the Products Co. when they are transferred to the Reid Co. under Clause 8 (2) of the agreement of the 12th October, 1922.
(4) The several royalties payable to Mines & Forests under Clause 9 of the agreement.
(5) The option given to the Reid

Co. under Clause 10 of the agreement.
(6) $88,000 paid by the Armstrong Whitworth Co. for the shares transferred to it under Clause "G" of the agreement.
(7) The rights given the Reid Co. and the Mines & Forests under Clause 11 and Clause 16 of the agreement.

I do not, however, include in the purchase price received by the Reid Co. the 75,000 8 1/2 p.c. Preference shares transferred to the Trust under Clause 7 (2) of the agreement because these shares were held by the Trust, free from the rights of the Reid Co. therein, for the account and benefit of the Products Co. (that is the Nfd. Power & Paper Co., Ltd.), and not for the benefit or account of the Reid Co. as the 35,000 deferred ordinary shares were held. I do not include in the purchase price the $500,000 paid to the Reid Co. by the Products Co. in discharge of its debt for survey work, etc., because this was paid not as a part of the purchase money, but in discharge of a debt that was due it by the Products Co. It was paid by the Armstrong Co. under an agreement between it and the Products Co. and charged to the Products Co. to be repaid to the Armstrong Whitworth Co.

In addition to the specific defences to the claims made by the Trust for remuneration for its services rendered in respect of different property, the Reid Co. by paragraph 23 of the Statement of Defence, charges the Trust with wilful breach of duty and misconduct in the course of their agency, in that

(1) It entered into a transaction with Mr. Blakstad for a profit out of the Humber deal beyond that payable to them; by the Reid Co.
(2) In May it requested the Bank of Montreal, whom they knew to be a creditor of the Reid Co.

to bring pressure on the Reid Co. to enter into an agreement with Mr. Blakstad.
(a) To the detriment of the Reid Co.
(b) From which the Trust would derive a profit from Mr. Blakstad in addition to those they hoped to receive from the Reid Co.
(c) On or about the 8th of April, 1921 the Trust by telegram requested Mr. H. D. Reid and Mr. C. G. W. Conroy, who at that time were Directors of both the Products Co. and the Reid Co., to join with them in defrauding the Products Co. and the Reid Company.

As to the first allegation: The transaction referred to in the agreement between the Messrs. Thomson, MacDonald and Greenwood made on the 5th April, 1921, by which Mr. Blakstad undertook to transfer to each of them, personally $500,000 of the shares in the Products Co. which he would be entitled to under the Humber agreement of that date. I have already stated the facts of this transaction. I have now to say whether these facts provided a justification of the revocation of the authority of the Trust, but whether they constituted such misconduct on the part of the Trust as to be a defence to all claim on its part to be paid for services rendered in connection with the Humber transaction. I do not pretend to justify the transaction in itself. It must be remembered, however, that Mr. H. D. Reid, President of the Reid Company, who was then in London, duly authorized for the purpose of getting through the Blakstad agreement was informed of the transaction some days before it was completed that he and his legal adviser, Mr. E. M. MacDonald, K.C., gave their consent to the Directors of the Trust receiving these shares from Mr. Blakstad and that, when it was completed, copies of the letters exchanged between the Trust and Mr. Blakstad were given to Mr. Reid in the presence of Mr. MacDonald, K.C., and that Mr. Reid, by letter, expressed his concurrence with them. Later, after the Humber agreement with Mr. Blakstad had failed through the refusal of the Government to guarantee the issue of the bonds though the Reid Co. did not confirm the action of its President at no time, so far as the evidence discloses, was the Trust informed that its authority was drawn because of this transaction between them and Mr. Blakstad.

As regards the second allegation: This charge is stated in three different forms, all of which refer to the same matters, that is to the interview and discussions that took place between Messrs. Blakstad and Greenwood and the officials of the Bank of Montreal when they visited the Bank of their return from St. John's in April, 1921. I have already said that

"EVEN AS YOU AND I"

There is a familiar and highly popular saying, "figures lie." It is popular with people who either do not like figuring and therefore say: "Oh, what's the use of bothering with figures; figures lie anyway," and also with people who do not like what some particular figures are trying to tell them.

I challenge that saying. Figures never lie. The interpretation of figures often varies to be sure (just as the interpretation of passages in the Bible), but figures themselves are staunch truth tellers. If we were willing to face them more often than we are, we should know better than we do where we are going.

They Felt They Would Save Money. Some neighbors of ours grew tired of their shabby, middle-aged house and decided to build a new smaller the first place, they didn't sell the old house for quite as much as they expected and the new house cost a little more. In the second place, while the new house didn't need so many repairs as the old it needed even more in the way of grading, new shades and all the equipment a new house can unexpectedly command. In the third place, not being quite so well built as the old, it used almost as much coal; and in the fourth place, "things like that" never did materialize at the end of two years they find they haven't saved any money. On the contrary.

Figures tell the truth, if you give them a chance. It's the figures that aren't there that do the lying. The J's were strong on figuring. They planned to put a comparatively small equity into a two-family house, and make the apartment they rented carry all the costs. When someone wondered how an investment of $5000 could bring them a return of $700 a year (the rent of their own apartment if they rented it to someone else) they answered that they had it all figured out. That was five years ago. The J's did not work out as they should. Did the figures lie?

The Figures They Didn't Put Down. Not the figures they put down, but the figures that they didn't put down, the hundred here and there for lost rent when they were changing tenants, the hundred here and there for doing over the house when they could not get new tenants to pay the large rent they had set down in their schedule, unless things were just so.

Figures will tell a lot if we will give them a chance and treat them fairly. The trouble is that most of us don't want to hear what they are trying to tell us. And small wonder. Perhaps it is part of our adjustment to the hard facts of life that we shall not see too clearly. Who knows?

Labouring men and other outdoor workers should have their boots soled with Muskoka Sole Leather. It's extra good. You can get it at BOWRING BROTHERS, LTD., Hardware Dept. nov16,61

Britain Nearly Went "Dry"

WAR CABINET SECRET OF 1916

The fact that early in 1916 the British Government proposed to introduce prohibition for the period of the war was disclosed recently in a speech by Lord Stevenson, managing director of John Walker & Sons, Ltd., distillers, at the annual dinner of the Old Lancers Association in London. He said:

"In the very early days of 1916, Mr. Lloyd George, who was then Chancellor of the Exchequer, sent for me and told me that it was the intention of the Government to stop distillation and to introduce prohibition for the period of the war. I said, 'Oh, then you expect the war to last a week.' He said, 'What do you mean?' I said, 'I want you to realize what is involved in what you are saying. First of all if you stop distillation there will be no anaesthetics for the wounded. There will be no solution for the dilution of T.N.T. Moreover, there will be no bread for the people.'

"Mr. Lloyd George said, 'What do you mean?' and I said, 'It takes the distillation of 25,000,000 gallons of spirit a year to produce the yeast from which the bread of this country is produced. The total yield of industrial alcohol is something in the neighbourhood of 3,000,000 gallons, and if you introduce prohibition you will be faced with producing 17,000,000 gallons of spirit for bread alone.'

How Trees Heal Themselves

WOUND GUM.

In order to discover how a tree protects itself against disease when branches are cut or broken off, the Botanical Department of the University of Leeds has made a series of investigations.

When a cut is made, states Prof. J. H. Priestley (professor of botany at the university), the living tissues divide to form new cells, which in time cover the exposed surface; but this process may take months, and in large branches many years.

In the meantime the spores of disease organisms may settle on the wound, germinate in a few days, and then are able to penetrate into the healthy tissues of the tree, with fatal results.

Such an organism is responsible for the disease known as "silver leaf," which enters by cuts or wounds, and even cuts small twigs and causes incalculable damage to valuable fruit and timber trees.

The Live Cells.

In the investigation branches were cut from trees of different varieties during each month of the year; and the cut ends on the trees examined each month for at least a year.

It was laborious work, for it meant the microscopic examination of at least 144 specimens, and actually many more were examined. The investigation was largely in the hands of Mr. T. Swarbrick.

It was found, states Professor Priestley, that a month after the cut had been made the sap pipes near the cut surface gradually became plugged and blocked by a substance known as wound gum.

This wound gum appears first in the living cells which surround the pipes and then in the pipes themselves, and is assumed to be a product of the starch which these living cells contain, for this starch disappears from the neighbourhood of the cut surface at the time the plugs form in the pipes.

Practical Value.

The chief practical importance of this work lies in the observation that the block occurs quickly or slowly, or not at all, according to the time of year in which the cut is made.

In May and the early part of the summer there is a rapid-plugging of the pipes; during late summer and autumn this takes place much more slowly, while if the cut is made in the winter there is no attempt to form a block until the sap begins to rise again in the spring.

In late spring and early summer the block occurs so soon after the cut is made that disease organisms have no chance to enter. This danger is made possible later in the year, while during the winter it would appear that the tree opposes very little resistance.

These facts may be of importance

RICHARD HUDNUT

UNKNOWN.

An ailing pilgrim came to town, and, having come, he laid him down and passed to other spheres; they hurried, then, the unknown brave, and no one stood beside his grave to shed a set of tears. "Oda bones," I said, "we ought to try this pilgrim to identify, that we may mark his tomb; perhaps some wives and sisters wait to welcome home this poor old skater, and they should know his doom. Perhaps he has an aunt or niece who will not have a moment's peace until the truth is known; and loving hearts in some abode may wait his coming up the road, while he sleeps here alone." My neighbors all agree with me; some other fellows ought to see that something's done on time; to plant a stranger when he croaks and not attempt to find his folks in strangely like a crime. To take a poor dead nameless skater and dump him in a cheap pine crate—it certainly looks bad; and so we twitter for a day, then each one goes his weary way to nail another scud. And so the unknown pilgrim awoke, because he comes no more; perhaps some sad-eyed children say that with their dear old dad away, estate is a bore. Perchance there is a gray-haired dame who lovingly repeats his name, and prays for his return; and in some window, every night that he may find a welcome light, a lamp for him may burn. But no one has the time to find the relatives he left behind, when he set forth to roam; he had no troubles in his bag, and so he goes, without a tag, to his eternal home.

Relation of the Liver and Kidneys

Such that each suffers when the other is deranged—Both regulated by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

When the liver becomes sluggish or torpid in action, the kidneys have to help out with the work of filtration. When the liver fails the kidneys have all the work to do.

Hence the beginning of trouble is usually biliousness, indigestion and constipation, and after a time the kidneys begin to be affected and there comes backache, urinary derangements and kidney diseases.

The remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is due to their unique combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. They get at the cause of trouble and remove it no matter how complicated it may be. Promptly and thoroughly they cleanse the bowels or intestines, arouse the liver action and thereby relieve the overworked kidneys.

In the Supreme Court

I can find no evidence of any such request by either Mr. Blakstad or Mr. Greenwood. The evidence rather shows that the bank officials and Mr. M. MacDonald acted, during Mr. Blakstad's visit to Montreal on this occasion, to bring the parties together again after the breach that had taken place in St. John's; but this was not at the request of either Mr. Blakstad or Mr. Greenwood.

As to the third allegation: The telegram referred to in this is that sent by the Trust in London to Mr. Conroy in St. John's on the 8th April, 1921, two days after Mr. H. D. Reid and Mr. Blakstad and Mr. Greenwood had left London. The Blakstad agreement called for a total area of about 2,000,000 acres of land, but the Reid Company did not then have or control more than between 200,000 and 300,000 acres of that quantity of land. One of the objects Mr. Reid, Mr. Blakstad and Mr. Greenwood had in going to St. John's at this time was to secure the land necessary to make up the full 2,000,000 acres required by the agreement. Before Mr. Reid left London he discussed this question with the Directors of the Trust. Mr. Thomson told him on that occasion that he thought an area of between 110,000 and 120,000 acres, belonging to a family of a Mr. Wallace would be available and that an option on them might be obtained through Mr. Stewart of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in St. John's. Mr. Reid then asked Mr. Thomson to cable Mr. Conroy to secure an option on them if possible, and to inform Mr. Conroy that he, Mr. Reid and Mr. Conroy would be protected for a profit on the resale of the Products Company. Mr. Thomson accordingly communicated Mr. Reid's instructions to Mr. Conroy by the cable of April 8, 1921. He regarded the reference to making a profit as a matter internal to the Reid Co. in which neither he nor the Trust was interested. The whole idea of a profit originated with Mr. Reid without the knowledge of Mr. Conroy. These matters were all to be arranged in St. John's without the participation of the Trust or its directors. Mr. Reid seems to have forgotten all about it and was unable to throw any light on the subject. I am satisfied after carefully considering the evidence that the allegation that the Trust requested Mr. Reid and Mr. Conroy to join in defrauding the Reid Co., and the Products Co., is entirely without foundation.

In regard to all these charges of misconduct against the Trust and its Directors, it is surprising that the evidence of Mr. E. M. MacDonald, who was connected with all three of them, was not obtained and placed before the Court. Further all the facts upon which these transactions were based were known to the Reid Company when it made the settlement agreement with the Trust on Nov. 15, 1921, in regard to the payment of its commission out of the purchase price of the Humber Deal and the Light and Power Co.

Another claim by the Plaintiff is that in or about the month of January, 1921, the Reid Co., through Mr. H. D. Reid, agreed with the Trust that in consideration of the Trust's taking new and enlarged offices in London at an increased rent, the Reid Company would pay the sum of £175 per quarter towards its office expenses. The Trust took more expensive offices and the Reid Co. paid the agreed sum of £175 per quarter until and including the payment due on the 25th of March, 1924, when it discontinued them and refused to make further payments. The Trust now claims payment of the said sum for the quarters since then and until judgment in this action. The Reid Co., by its defence, admits making the agreement, but says that the rentals to which the said agreement referred to were payable under a lease for a term of 21 years from Jan 1st, 1921, with the right of termination by the lessee at the end of 3, 7 or 14 years thereof on giving to the lessor six months previous notice of its intention to do so. The Reid Co. on the 23rd day of November, 1921 notified the Trust of termination of its agreement to pay the Trust £175 per quarter. The agreement between the Trust and the Reid Co. under which the £175 was payable is embodied in a letter from the Trust initiated by Mr. H. D. Reid to the Reid Co. dated February 5th, 1921. This letter says in regard to this agreement, "that you agree to pay the Trust a sum of £175 per quarter for office accommodation and services of the staff at the above address from the 24th January, 1921." The Reid Co. did not use the offices or the staff after it notified the Trust on the 23rd of February, 1921 of termination of the agreement. The first three years of the term of the lease under which the Trust held the offices ended on the 31st December, 1923. The Trust had therefore ample time after it received from the Reid Co. the notice of November 23rd, 1921, to exercise its right to terminate the lease at the end of the third year thereof. It did not do so and I think it cannot hold the Reid Co. responsible for the payment of £175 after the end of the first three years of the lease but continued the lease at its own risk and expense. I therefore disallow this claim of the Trust.

The Defendants in their statement of defence, paragraph 1, say that the claim of the plaintiff was duly discharged and satisfied by payment to it of the amounts stated in particulars of that paragraph of defence. These payments were made under special agreement and for special purposes and not in discharge or towards the payment of remuneration for the services rendered by the Trust which are claimed in this action. I must therefore hold that this defence has not been established by the Reid Co. and must therefore be disallowed.

I have come to the following conclusions upon the several issues raised by the pleadings in this action:—

- (1) That the oral agreement alleged in paragraph 2 of the statement of claim has not been proved.
- (2) That the Plaintiff is not entitled to remuneration for its services in respect of the Gander Valley negotiations by way of either commission or a quantum meruit.
- (3) That the Plaintiff is entitled to a commission of 10 p.c. upon the purchase price received and to be received by the Reid Co. and by Mines & Forests from the Humber Valley transaction.
- (4) That the Plaintiff is entitled to nov17,31,tu,th,s recover from the Reid Co. amounts to be assessed for services rendered by it in connection with:

(a) The draft of the proposed Company's Act after it was sent to England for transmission to the Attorney General in St. John's.

(b) The negotiations conducted by it in England with a view to interesting English Capitalists in their future operation of the Railway.

(c) That the Plaintiff is not entitled to any remuneration in connection with the plan of carrying out the policy of the separation of its assets effected by the Reid Co. in 1920.

(d) That the Plaintiff is not entitled to any payment in respect of the agreement between the Government and the Reid Company of June 9, 1923 for the purchase of the Railway assets by the Government and the settlement of disputes that existed between the Reid Co. and the Government in connection with the Railway. (7) That the Plaintiff is not entitled as against the Defendants or any of them to an order to transfer the shares in Little Bay Mines referred to in Paragraph 17 of the Statement of Claim.

(8) That the Plaintiff is not entitled to recover from the Reid Co. the amount under the agreement of January, 1921 regarding the payment of £175 per quarter for office expenses set out in paragraph 17 (a) of the statement of claim.

(9) That the Plaintiff is entitled to recover such sums as may be found by the Registrar to be due to it for expenses or disbursements under the heads stated in particulars "G" of the statement of claim.

(10) That the payment set out in the particulars of paragraph 21 of the defence were not made in discharge of or on account of any services for which remuneration is claimed in this action. I therefore direct judgement to be entered as follows:—

(1) That the Reid Co. transfer to the Plaintiff 1500 fully paid 5½ p.c. Non-Cumulative Preference shares in the Products Company of £100 each and 2400 fully paid Ordinary shares of the Products Company of £100 each.

(2) Declaring as against the Reid Company that the Plaintiff is entitled subject to the conditions upon which they are held by the Trust appointed in pursuance of the agreement of the 12th October, 1922 to have transferred to it by the Reid Co. 3500 fully paid Deferred Ordinary shares of the Products Company of £100 out of the 50,000 such shares transferred to the said Trustee; and when the same shall have been transferred to the Reid Company.

(3) Declaring as against the Reid Company and Mines & Forests that the Plaintiff is entitled to ten per cent. upon all and each of the royalties stipulated for under clause 9 of the agreement of October 12, 1922 as and when they or any of them is received by Mines & Forests.

(4) Declaring as against the Reid Company that the Plaintiff is entitled to participate to the extent of ten per cent. in the options and rights given or conferred upon the Reid Company or Mines & Forests by clauses 10, 11 and 16 of the said agreement of and when and to the extent to which the Reid Company or Mines & Forests or both shall exercise them or any of them.

(5) That the Reid Company pay to the Plaintiff the sum of $68,550, 10 p.c. upon the amount paid by the Armstrong Whitworth Company for the shares in the Products Company transferred and to be transferred to it.

(6) That the Plaintiff recover from the Reid Company an amount to be assessed for services as above stated connected with (a) The Draft Companies Clauses Act, (b) The negotiations as above stated as regards the Railway conducted by it in England in the early part of the year 1921.

(7) That the Plaintiff recover from the Reid Company such sums as may be found by the Registrar to be due to it for expenses as set out in particular's "G" of the statement of claim.

(8) That the claim of the Plaintiff for remuneration in respect of the Gander Valley negotiations be dismissed.

(9) That the claim of the Plaintiff for remuneration for its services rendered in connection with the agreement with the Government of Newfoundland dated the 9th of June, 1923 for the purchase of the railway and other assets of the Reid Company and the settlement of disputes and in respect of the planning and carrying out of the policy of separation of the Reid assets effected in the year 1920 be dismissed thus:—

(10) That the claim of the Plaintiff

Finance of Wembley

£100,000 PROFIT ON TATTOO

(Daily Mail, Nov. 3)
The dismantling of the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley began yesterday, when an area which only the day before was one of the tidiest spaces in Britain became in an hour or two a wilderness threaded with jumbled columns of horse and motor lorries.

The general upheaval of the palaces and pavilions sent colonies of rats and mice on trek. Stray cats were also parading everywhere, and before night 400 of them were removed by women workers of the Royal Society for the Protection of Cruelty to Animals and similar organizations.

Next Tuesday the exhibition site buildings will be put under the control of a committee of liquidators, who will realize the assets and discharge the liabilities. Lord Stevenson and his board relinquishing control. It is expected that the liquidators will be Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P., Sir James Cooper (appointed by the Treasury as financial controller of the exhibition), and Sir Arthur Whitney, of Messrs. Whitney, Smith, and Whitney, chartered accountants, Frederick's-place, Old Jewry, E.C., with whom will be associated Mr. H. A. Beckenham, secretary of the exhibition.

The Loss.

The financial loss on the exhibition will not be ascertained until early next year, but it is estimated as between £1,750,000 and £2,000,000. The deficit is guaranteed to the extent of £2,250,000, the principal guarantors being:

- The Government £1,100,000
  - Sir R. McAlpine and Sons, the principal contractors 150,000
  - Lloyd's underwriters 100,000
  - Five joint stock banks 50,000
- The balance of £800,000 is covered by 2,000 guarantors, with an average undertaking of £400 each.

The Tattoo proved a financial as well as a patriotic success, the profit being estimated at £100,000, after paying expenses. This profit will be shared equally by the exhibition and the Department of Overseas Trade, jointly responsible for the production. It is understood that there was a profit on the exhibition from May 9 to October 31. Against this, however, must be placed the cost of upkeep and preparation during the period between last year's and this year's exhibitions. The daily £100 prize competition had undoubtedly the effect of attracting visitors.

A railway company, it is understood, has offered to purchase the south-western section of the grounds and buildings including the "Palace of Housing and Industry." Apart from the Stadium, the only other permanent building is the British Government Pavilion, erected on a site for which only a temporary lease was given.

A month has been given the exhibitors in which to remove their goods and leave the ground as they found it, but at yesterday's rate of progress a fortnight should be sufficient.

Paid "Screamers."

Of the 8,000 men engaged on removal and clearance work, 200 were in the Stadium lifting the 2,000 tons of ashes which covered the ground as surface dressing throughout the Tattoo performances. Next week ploughmen will be brought in, and before Christmas re-turfing will begin in preparation for the Football Cup final on April 24.

The fate of the proposal to continue the Amusement Park as a London playground was obvious from the haste with which the owners set about dismantling the entertainments. The main equipment, like the overhead racers, is to be distributed to various parts of the country, and it was practically settled yesterday that the scenic railway will be sent to Belle Vue, Manchester.

The thousands of exhibition workers now out of employment yesterday enrolled at labour exchanges. Some difficulty was met with in classifying a party of women from the Amusement Park, who, it happened, were professional "screamers" on the joy wheels and the like, engaged to provoke excitement.

In the Silent Hours

AND THE AFTER LIFE.

"For myself, apart from all questions of creeds and dogmas, the natural religion of my youth remains. I believe that man is immortal because he can conceive of immortality. I believe in the voice which in the silent hours bids me hope that death is not the end of all things," writes Mrs. Max Pemberton in the Weekly Dispatch.

"Many years ago, when walking across a great sea marsh in Norfolk, rejoicing in the immensity of its horizon, a famous novelist said to me: 'It is in such a place as this that I am able to realize how my life has been shaped and guarded by the Unseen! This also is my faith. I believe that there is a Divine assistance, and beyond that I know nothing.'"

George M. Cohan
Dramatic Success on Silver Screen

"Little Johnny Jones," a Romance of the Turf, starring Johnny Hines, the race track and the queer denizens it harbors—all the intrigues, betting, romance and speculation followed there, fortunes won and lost in the twinkling of an eye—figures as the setting of the strong comedy-drama announced by the Nickel Theatre management. It is the famed "Little Johnny Jones," which commences to-day.

This is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, an adaptation of the popular stage play of the same name written by George M. Cohan himself around the career of Tod Sloan, America's most renowned jockey. Johnny Hines has the starring part. Even before he assumed this role, critics had dubbed him the "George M. Cohan of the screen," by reason of his buoyant and effervescent humor. He is said to give the film version what his prototype gave the stage one. Those who know his previous work cannot doubt his ability to give the role every bit of comedy and sparkle and punch it deserves.

"Little Johnny Jones" is, briefly, the story of an intrigue by a gambler to rob Johnny Jones, the Yankee jockey, of his reputation, and nip the bud of his romance. Robert Astaire, a gambler, is afraid of losing a huge sum of money if Johnny is permitted to run his horse, and he has also attempted to win the affections of Edith Smythe. The plot is whipped into shape and Johnny is accused of agreeing to throw away the race. His backer, the Earl of Bloomsburg, insists on proof; Johnny is searched and a planted code is found on him. His guilt seems conclusive, but he is able to vindicate himself at the last moment and with the girl who had almost been wrested from him.

The greatest thrill of the contest was shown by Miss Dorothy Esbary who bombarded Headquarters with 2,875 votes, the greatest number turned in during one day since the contest opened. Rumour has it that Miss Esbary has wonderful supporters and will be a serious contender for first place. Miss Marion Moore has been a favourite throughout and with a creeping barrage of 1,200 votes to-day threatens to occupy second place. Misses Fanny Condy and Lillian Dwyer who entered recently are showing great strength and their prospects of gaining higher honors look exceedingly well.

"The Peril of the White"

"It is necessary for us all to realize that the progress of mankind is due not to masses of men, but to a mere handful of exceptionally gifted people, and that a white man pressing a button to produce a great electric arc is worthier in the act than a Malay or a Hindu, neither of whom any more than he have invented the appliance."

"We must remember that it is not more difficult for a Japanese than for a man of Essex or Surrey to learn how to manipulate either a weapon or an appliance which not one of the three possesses the genius to devise."

Sir Leo Chiozza Money in The Peril of the White.

Sir L. Chiozza Money, always great at figures and statistics, and always keen at proving his case by a steady array of facts, deals with the colour problem in his new book The Peril of the White. The diagrams and the evidence the author provides students of politics and economics will find invaluable, and Sir Leo Chiozza Money's suggestions for the only remedy are also worthy of study. Here are some of his statements in the chapter entitled "The Maintenance of White Civilization":

"Jazzing! It is the just word. It is not yet in the dictionary, but a place must be found for a term which so perfectly expresses the spirit of these unhappy days. To jazz is the order of the day, whether in the arts, in morals, in manners or in industry."

"The trades of jazz produce fat dividends, while coal and steel and ship-building languish. It is better to be a shareholder in a cheap snery firm than in an engineering shop; more profitable to deal in flashy rubbish than in solid worth. In the grave British unemployment records of 1925, the sorriest feature is that the noblest industries make the worst showing."

"From the many sorry and sordid factors of our modern life, we turn with relief and pride to the work of the wonderful men who, during a period of several thousand years, have arisen amongst the White races, and the fruit of whose genius is our common inheritance. With our eyes upon such monuments, we can regain hope and confidence that what is good and true must prevail."

"Contemplating the glories of Western art, philosophy and science, we feel justified in holding dominion. But the empty of the White can only rest upon worthy leadership, and that leadership cannot be maintained unless European respect not only each other but the races they seek to lead."—Public Opinion.

Joseph Berry was a great problem to the local parson, who had almost given him up as a hopeless case. He had been kind to Joe, he had been severe to Joe, but it all left Joe completely as he was before. Joseph Berry, as he said himself, was no church-goer.

Imagine the parson's surprise, then, when one Sunday evening he observed Joe sitting in one of the pews in the rear of the church. The parson was so surprised that he gave out the wrong hymn number.

During the course of the next day he had to make a call in the village and whilst passing the local inn he ran into Joe, who was on the point of leaving.

"Why, Joe," he said, "what's happened to you? I saw you in church last evening."

The perplexed frown on Joe's face gave place to a look of pleased enlightenment as he replied: "That's where I was, then—I've been wonderin' where I got to!"

Fez the Ancient and Sacred City

By CARLETON ASHWELL.

Fez, for the possession of which the Rifis Agif el Krim are contending, is a story with a long history. Below Mr. Carleton Ashwell describes it, and tells something of its real significance. Fez, towards whose crumbling ancient walls the Rifian hordes are advancing rapidly, is a city of ancient dreams. Once its white walls dominated the whole of northern Africa, for it was at once a great trading centre whose caravans went out to imbutku laden with gold, ivory and leather, and a sacred city famed throughout Islam for its Mosque of Muley Edris. Fez, stands in a "second" only to Mecca—which makes the present great battle for its possession a matter of paramount importance. On the issue depends the future of France in northern Africa, for should Fez fall, then every tribe will be in arms against the infidels and France will find herself with the concerted rages of northern Africa in conflict with her.

It is not saying too much to say that France's African empire and her huge reserves of coloured troops upon whose organization she has spent so much skill and money may go if Fez, the Sacred City, is invested by the Rifis. There is no hint of the West in this strange oriental city. Its narrow sunless streets, thronged with Arabs, Berbers, negroes and Jews of mixed race, are those of the East of ten thousand years ago.

Fez has been for many centuries two things; a famous centre of Islamic religious training—it possesses a unique library of sacred books containing some forty thousand volumes; and it has been, as I have said, a trading centre. Scholars gravitate towards Fez, and in the university of the Mosque of Muley Edris embryo priests study the sacred learning.

Ringed about by fertile land Fez is indeed a picturesque city. In the lush orchards all about the city are stretches of olive groves, oranges splash their vivid colour under the burning sun and pomegranates ripen to perfection. It is a fertile and desirable terrain, and its proximity to the Atlantic seaboard—it is but a hundred miles from the coast town of Ragat—make it strategically of prime importance.

In the Fifteenth century Yussuf Ibn-Tashfin proclaimed Fez capital of an independent kingdom. A century later it was incorporated with Morocco, from which time its decline as city of first rank started. Decay has laid a destructive hand upon its ancient buildings, the ancient palace of the Sultans is rapidly crumbling, its old walls are ruinous, its streets uneven and its houses decrepit.

Yet at the moment it stands as the guredon of the two factions fighting for its possession. If it, as it were, the Ypres of northern Africa, and upon the present battle depends the whole issue of the long-drawn-out fighting with the redoubtable chieftain Abd el Krim.

Tons of Fish Perish

MYSTERIOUS DESTRUCTION ON THE BROADS.

Recently practically the whole of the fish of Hickling Broad and Helgham Sound, Norfolk, has been destroyed.

Water from the Broad has been taken for analysis, and some of the dead fish are being examined to find the cause of the death.

Live bait used by fishermen dies as soon as it enters the water, which has acquired a noticeably green tinge. Cattle have been stopped from drinking it.

For some days thousands of eels, bream, pike, and rudd have been observed floating down the Thurne, an affluent of the River Bure. Both sides of Helgham Channel, Kendall Dyke, and the Thurne have been covered with dying fish. Most of the fish come to the surface in a half-dead condition and then die.

Pike weighing 15lb., eels over 7lb., and bream up to 6lb. have been picked up. It is estimated that of eels alone several tons have been destroyed. Fifteen stones of fish were found dead in one of the eel catcher's nets.

Thousands of herring gulls and a number of carrion crows have invaded "Hickling Broad" and Helgham Sound, feasting on the fish.

One theory is that the very low barometric pressure on the day before the trouble began may have allowed marsh gas to be released from the bed of the broads.

New Expedition to Seek for Gold

COCOS ISLANDS BURIED TREASURES WORTH MILLIONS IS OBJECTIVE.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Despite scores of failures and disappointed hopes, one more expedition is about to endeavor to wrest the romantic secret of Cocos Island and recover the £14,000,000 treasure known to be buried there. Its leader is Lieut. F. W. Kealey, who organized the Pacific expedition which recently returned to England in the steam yacht St. George. He will adopt novel methods, will use the latest scientific appliances, and will draw on the most recent scientific discoveries. In this way he hopes to succeed where others have failed. There are at least three vast pirate hoards in Cocos—a little island, fourteen miles in circumference, 600 miles west of Panama. Doubtless, bars of gold and silver, sword hilts encrusted with precious stones, Church plate, and a life-size golden figure of the Virgin are among the treasures which await discovery. One of the hoards has been found and lost again.

Old Mr. Carter Helped by Simple Mixture

"After taking Adlerika I feel better than for years. At my age (60) it is ideal—so different from other medicines." (signed) W. W. Carter. Adlerika is a simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., which removes GAS in ten minutes and often brings surprising relief to the stomach. Stops that full, bloated feeling. Brings out old waste-matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for chronic constipation. Sold by all leading druggists.

For Music

"The Board of Trade have decreed that in fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain storms every vessel at sea shall make as much noise as possible, and so we find that immediately fog clouds the horizon the bridge officer, heaving a sigh heavy enough to close a church door, lets loose upon the world a shriek as of fearful agony," says a writer in the Nautical Magazine.

"His shipmates in the watch below toasting about on lumps of horsehair and oakum give up all hope of sleep when once they hear that bellow of pain, for they know that being a conscientious navigator the man on the bridge will obey law and faithfully jerk the siren siren every two minutes, making the night a long drawn out agony of discordant hooting and shrieking."

"A fog watch must be experienced to be believed. It is a terrible four hours, punctuated one hundred and twenty times by a long blast on a steam whistle made in Germany and toned by one of their arch plotters with designs on the nerves of those who man Britain's Merchant Marine. "Away on the port quarter comes the deep toned growl of a lordly liner, heralding her approach to the man who somewhat ahead is responsible for a tramp steamer's wail in F. ship."

Mixed up with these is the indignant snorting of a South-bound coal boat, the musical double note of a Scandinavian four-poster, the asthmatical wheezing from a couple of tugboats and the fishing fleet's piping treble.

"To these the bridge officer contributes his quota, and altogether it sounds to him as if he is lost amid a whole fleet of every type of ship on the ocean surrounded by every sort of steam whistle known to man, yet, helpless to do anything but listen and look—at fog."

Attorney Questions Right

TO MURDER IMBECILE DAUGHTER

Joel E. Stone, fifty young prosecuting attorney in Littleton, Col., has outlined to a jury the route by which he hopes to send an aged physician to prison for life for the murder of his deformed and imbecile daughter.

"Who are we to say that any person put on earth by the Supreme Being shall cease to live?" the young attorney asked recently.

It was the opening of the trial of 61-year-old Dr. Harold Blazer, the man who chloroformed his 32-year-old daughter Hazel, to end her suffering and to prevent her becoming a burden on society.

Defense and State attorneys, weary after two days of wrangling over the venue, agreed to the fitness of the thirteenth man, a substitute in case of illness of one of the regular jurors, and one of the most sensational murder trials ever held in the West began.

On the jury are four farmers from the foothills of the Rockies, one laborer, one garage man, two carpenters, one druggist, one blacksmith, one baker, one auditor and a pool-room owner. Two of the thirteen are unmarried, and one is a widower.

One Ever Changing Universe

Among publications of long standing the practice of re-publishing items from their issues of the distant past is widely established. These items, if thoughtfully perused are an education in social history. The London "Observer," a weekly more than a century old, often reprints old news paragraphs that are remarkably suggestive of social change and contrast. Recently it published four extracts from its issue of October 2nd, 1825, which threw a searchlight on the past.

The most important of them was an account of the efforts which were being made one hundred years ago to combat the infant movement of Trade Unionism. It was a report of a meeting of Bradford and Halifax woolen manufacturers at which it was resolved to require the signature of all the men in their employment to an undertaking not to contribute to the support of members of a Union. The manufacturers also decided not to employ any workman who had not a written discharge from his late employer, certifying that he was not connected with a Union. Naturally these resolutions were met by counter resolutions from the wool-combers and weavers, who met and proclaimed that it was "no part of their duty to submit to such unprincipled oppression." They declared that they would not suffer themselves and their children "to remain in the abject and degraded condition of irrational animals" or "abandon that noble resolution of their ancestors that Britons never shall be slaves, either to foreign or domestic tyrants."

Clearly the "masters" never expected to see the day when Trade Unionism would become the basis of one of the most powerful political parties in Great Britain and when negotiation would take the place of suppression.

Another item which illustrates the changes that have taken place in a hundred years, records that public whipping of a colored thief who had stolen some lead from a building in Fleet Street. He was whipped at the cart's tail in the presence of thousands of spectators for a considerable distance through London streets. Even then the humanitarian movement was making headway. Previous to the victim's being tied to the cart a white man appeared stripped his back, and offered to undergo punishment in place of the black. When refused he poured such a volume of abuse on the City Marshal that he was locked up.

The beginnings of the age of electricity were also apparent in 1825 for there is a note about a meeting held in the Exchange Committee Room, Manchester for the consideration of a proposal to establish telegraphic communication between Liverpool and London, via Manchester. This was a full decade before the invention of what we know as modern telegraphy, and the plan must have been based on earlier systems on which experiments had been in progress for fifty years. There is no record that the meeting reported in action of any kind.

The glimpses we get of the rise of labor organization, humanitarianism and electrical invention, are supplemented by a curious insight into the public attitude toward royalty in 1825. There is an account of a visit, in company, of the King of Prussia to Paris, and his appearance at the Italian Opera to hear a forgotten opera by Meyerbeer. The "Observer's" correspondent notes, as an extraordinary circumstance, that his attendants did not pay him "the obsequious and reverential attention generally shown to monarchs." As proof of this, "it adds, 'we may be mentioned that the playbill slipped through from the front of the box, and His Majesty stooped down himself to pick it up.'

Imagine any newspaper of to-day remarking it as extraordinary that any royal personage should himself recover an article he had dropped on the informal a possession. But these were days when many of the thoughtful citizens still believed in the theory of divine rights.

Jewel Search in Whiskey Ship

$60,000 WORTH SAID TO BE ABOARD.

Customs officers boarded and searched the schooner General Serret, which, after a series of adventures, had its cargo of whisky removed at London and is now lying near Greenwich awaiting sale, following the service of a writ of attachment. It is understood that the search, which proved fruitless, but will be continued to-day, was the result of information that jewels, said to be valued at $60,000, are concealed in the ship—the proceeds of a raid on a diamond merchant's premises in Antwerp, when the vessel was under other ownership than its last one. Before the ship left Antwerp with its whisky cargo officers for a passage were—it is understood, made to the officers by a man who declared he wanted to sell at any price. The officers were declined. The officers, who at that time were unaware of the theory that the jewels were on board, state that other persons subsequently offered to buy part of the fittings of the schooner, including her five masts.

Premier's Salary

MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD OF HIS INADEQUACY.

In the course of an article in English Life on "The Prime Minister of England," Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald, the Socialist ex-Premier, in discussing the emolument of a Prime Minister, writes:

It is safe to say that no Prime Minister in modern times, when the extravagance of the Georgian days has been greatly diminished, has had his salary multiplied, or his savings in any way adequate to bear the burdens he takes with him when the door of 10 Downing Street closes upon him.

Ten Downing Street makes a heavy burden upon and is not an addition to the salary; and Chequers, that gracious gift of peace and retirement, though it may properly be added to the enjoyment of the office, must be regarded, in spite of Lord Lee's endorsement and a body of the most generous and considerate trustees, as a minus quantity in its emoluments.

The Prime Minister's salary is now £5,000, and not a halfpenny more, and of that the State deducts about £1,500 in taxes.

STRUGGLE WITH DEBT.

It may be that the spirit of public service is thriffter and extravagant in personal possessions, or that it leaves no time—though Mr. Gladstone apparently found it—to watch the bank and keep expenditures within the limits of income; or it may be that the wear and tear of public life need a heavy expenditure to make them good in mental and physical comfort, but the common history of all men of modest possessions in public life is a never-ending struggle with debt. If the public would only understand, I am not at all sure that the fact is to be greatly deplored.

Earthquake Shocks Are Registered

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—One of the most severe earthquakes of the year was recorded to-day on the seismograph at Fordham University. The exact distance could not be given, yet experts of the University said it centred more than five thousand miles from New York.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 10.—Seismographs in Buenos Aires registered violent earth shocks to-day. The tremblings began at 11:47 a.m. and continued intermittently for fourteen minutes, at an estimated distance of about 1600 miles. The centre of the disturbance is said to have been in Southern Peru or Northern Chile.

Progressive Leader and Dunning to Enter Cabinet

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—The night edition of the Toronto Telegram publishes the following:

"It is reported in local Liberal circles that several surprises are all ready to be sprung by Premier King in the formation of the new government.

"The first surprise, it is said, will be the entry of Robert Forke, leader of the Progressives, into the Cabinet as Minister of Immigration.

"Mr. Charles Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, is coming to the Capital also to take a seat, according to the report, and it is said the Prime Minister himself is going to run in Russell when the time comes. Right Hon. George P. Graham will not be in the new cabinet after the first session."

Nine Girls Poisoned

AT A PARTY FROM EATING FUDGE.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Officials of the State board of health were asked to investigate the poisoning of nine young women, all Ohio State University students, at a party given by Miss Helen McDermott, Stockport, Ohio, Wednesday night, at the home of her sister here.

No food or liquid except some candy had been served when the illness seized the girls.

The candy, a quantity of fudge, was made in the McDermott home before the party and was partaken by all of the girls who became ill. Samples of the candy were submitted to the board of health for analysis.
