THE unexpected so often happens that THE unexpected so often happens that it is difficult to know just what to expect. So many citizens early in the spring were perturbed, because as they supposed, there was going to be an extremely hot summer. And now it is to be supposed that the same citizens are positive that there will be a very cold, severe winter. The best thing after all, is not to cross bridges until they are reached.

A STRATHROY girl serving as nurse in one of the base hospitals in France writes home stating that the most striking thing she has witnessed thus far is the sheer gratefulness of the wounded for anything that is done for their comfort and the remarkably quick recovery, as if by magic, of the men, many of them suffering with terrible looking gangrenous wounds, that would salmost be regarded as fatal at home.

WATFORD has many things to be proud of, but one thing above others it has good reason to be proud of is the fall tair. Let us make this year's fair a record-breaker. It can be done. THERE will probably be a big demand for hay, oats and other fodder in Canada this fall. The British War Office, it is understood, is contemplating the purchase of large quantities of the above. The supplies are required for the British expeditionary forces and it is understood an expert buyer will be sent out to represent the War Office and confer with the government as to the best method of making the purchases referred to.

The war has cut down the attendance

THE war has cut down the attendance at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. It is expected that only 90 second year men will be back, 50 third year men and 40 fourth year men. This is a reduction of about 100 in these three classes alone. Of those who attended classes alone. Of those who attended college last year 60 are at the front or on their way there. This makes the total attendance at the college this year only about 300, as compared with something over 400 last year.

ALL editors and proprietors of news-ALL editors and proprietors of newspapers are in receipt of a red covered book from the Chief telling them that they must not print or reveal any information concerning movement of troops, and much other information mentioned. The book is to be kept as personal and private and not to pass into other hands, and be ready to produce it when called for by proper authorities. The fine for breach of instructions is $5,000 and five years in jail. If we should by chance violate the instructions no doubt we could easily be lead to jail, but watching could easily be lead to jail, but watching the authorities try to collect the fine would be an object lesson in high finance.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Snell of Brooke Parsonage will regret to hear of the death of Mrs. Snell's mother, wife of the late Rev. Geo. Webber, who died at her home, 6 Sultan street, Toronto, Sunday, September 12, after a brief illness. Mrs. Webber was well known to a large circle of friends in Western Ontario, her husband having served terms in the pastorate at Clinton and also at Exeter some years ago. Besides Mrs. Snell, three other daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) G. H. Patterson, of Carlisle, Pa; Miss Mabel, of Riverside, Cal, and Miss Bessie at home; also two sons, Mr. J. E. of Rochester, N. Y.; and Rev. Geo. G. Webber of Edmonton, Alta., survive.

ONE of the subjects that came up for serious consideration in the weekly section of the Canadian Press Association, tion of the Canadian Press Association, at the annual meeting held in Toronto this month, was the raising of the price of weekly papers from $1.00 to $1.50. This is a subject of vital interest to every newspaper reader, but to none is it so vital as to the publisher. Mr. Whiting, of the Owatonna, Minn., Journal, who has kept an accurate record of al, who has kept an accurate record of the cost of subscriptions for some years surprised the meeting when he told them that eyery $1.50 subscription costs him $1.96. Every newspaper publisher knows that there is no money in the subscription end of the business, and the raise in price is bound to come before very long. Few people stop to consider that weekly the people stop to consider that weekly appears are the only commodity selling at rew people stop to consider that weekly papers are the only commodity selling at the same price now as they did 25 years ago. This is necessary to secure publication. A contributor of real news is never ashamed to sign his name. Jokes and take-offs on your neighbors are not news.

The September meeting of the Brooke Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon Sept. 9th, at the home of the Misses McGugan, Walnut. A large crowd of ladies assembled including visitors from the Napier and Alvinston branches. The president presided and opened the meeting by singing a Patitors from the Napier and Alvinston branches. The president presided and opened the meeting by singing a Patriotic chorus. Several items of business were dealt with, and arrangements were made for completing the Red Cross sewing. The Alvinston ladies were then called on, who furnished the program for the afternoon. Two splendid papers were given. One on "Influence of Environment," by Mrs. Pray and "Life and works of L. M. Montgomery" by Mrs. Counor; both papers were very interesting and instructive. Instrumental solos by Miss Mary Benner, were very pleasing and much appreciated. The program closed with the National Anthem, after which the ladies repaired to the lawn where refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held on the second Thursday in October, at the home of Miss Pearl Maddock. Members are kindly requested to remember the "jam shower" to be given at this meeting, in aid of the wounded soldiers.

A sad death occurred last week when little Mina Roberta, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Reycraft, passed away after a week of painful illness borne with great patience. Her affliction was appendicitis, and although an operation was performed successfully she failed to rally and passed away on Friday last, aged 9 years, 3 months, 27 days. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from the family residence, west half of lot 24, con. 3, S.E.R., to the Watford cemetery. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. C. Forster, of the Presbyterian church. Much sincere sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Reycraft and family in the loss of their daughter and sister, who was a bright and intelligent child and a tavorite with all her acquaintances.

WATFORD DRUGGIST PLEASES CUSTO MERS

Taylor & Son report customers greatly pleased with the QUICK action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka. This simple remedy drains the old foul matter from the bowels so has been completed to the Pacific THOROUGH that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. It is so powerful that it is used successfully in appendicitis. Adler-i-ka never gripes and the INSTANT action is surprising.

WARTIME PARIS.

How the Women of France Endure These Trying Days.

War Paris is like a beautiful widow just recovering from the first shock of a great sorrow and wondering if her black gown is becoming. So is the war Parisienne. She weeps for her lost, mourns with the fine dignity of a Roman matron, but the light for life and beauty is still in her eye, where, indeed, it will shine forever. She is that sweetest of all things, a woman between tears and smiles, because the one opens her heart and the other mirrors her mind.

Let us consider her a little as she trips along the Rue de la Paix, for she really won't object. Why should she? That might be her arch reply, but she would say nothing, knowing the elo-quence of silence under admiration.

The Parisienne is naturally sensitive sympathetic, not merely to her surroundings, but to atmosphere, a more delicate element. Therefore she is wearing a vivandiere skirt, a coat or blouse with a high military collar, a hat having the air of a tattoo and long legged boots in brown or gray cloth. That is the general picture she makes, and if Napoleon, who understood women, could see her he would find her very appealing to his sense of generalship. Not an Amazonian touch, not the suggestion of it, for such would be a clumsiness unworthy of the Parisienne. And still there she is, with the war all over her, in plaits and tucks, and she never looked more taking.

If the Parisienne were placed in a new, strange world she would seize its fashions in a day and make them part of herself. That is her wonderful secret in the mysterious affair of dress. She never lets its vagaries tyrannize over her, but by some heaven system of sap and mine reduces them to her own characteristics. You don't notice until you stare that she has annexed the mode militaire, because there is no evident advertisement of the fact about her. But you know instinctively that she is dressed in the note of the time, and that means reverence, graciousness, imagination, a salutation to manly chivalry in the trenched field from beauty at home. There is no set intention of this and no desire to achieve a picture; simply natural feeling takes artistic expression as if by the wave of a fairy wand.

The recent slump in the price of flour has brought the price of bread down a little. In St. Thomas bakers are now selling, from the wagons, 17 loaves weighing 24 ounces each, for $1, in place weighing 24 ounces each, for $1, in place of 15 for $1, and 32 small loaves weighing 12 ounces each for $1. Care of the Baby In Summer

"Swat the fly!" This legend should be written on the wall of every mother's room, to re-mind her constantly that one of the great services she can render her baby is to protect him and his food from Every female fly may lay about 120 eggs at a time, which hatch in ten days into full grown flies, so that every female fly which is not destroyed will be increased many million by the end of the season. It is an impossible task to destroy them at this stage or to pro-tect the house and family against them. The only really effective results are secured when the eggs are destroyed.

The favorite breeding places of the common housefly is in horse manure In a pile of a thousand pounds there may be half a million maggots ready to hatch, unless they are destroyed in the larval stage, as the eggs are called.

Various substances have been suggested for use upon horse manure in order to destroy the fly maggots. Among these are iron sulphate, kero-sene, chloride of lime, hellebore and

The United States department of agriculture has recently recommended powdered hellebore as a cheap, safe and effective substance for the treat-ment of manure. "One-half pound of powdered hellebore mixed with ten gallons of water is sufficient to kill the larvae in eight bushels, or ten cubic feet, of manure. In most places helle-bore is obtained in 100 pound lots at a cost of 11 cents a pound. This makes the cost of the treatment a little less than seven-tenths of a cent per bushel of manure. A liberal estimate of the output of manure is two bushels a day dividual home as free from the pest as can be done with screens, fly papers, traps and swatters.

Garbage pails must be kept covered, and no refuse of any sort should be allowed to accumulate about the premises to provide breeding and feeding As in most other things, prevention is far better than cure. The time for preventive measures to be most effective is in April and May, when the fly crop is small. Fly swatters should be used contin-ually if flies get into the house, and poisonous and sticky fly papers will help to rid it of these pests. There are a great many kinds of fly traps on the market. Such traps can be made at home with little trouble, and the department of agriculture, Washington, will send directions upon request not only for traps, but for methods of destroying the eggs before they hatch into flies. (A homemade fly trap and a copy of Bulletin 245 are sent for 20

It is certain that typhoid fever is distributed by flies, and it is probable also that the germs of other diseases are carried in this way. It is, therefore, possible that the fly which falls into the milk or walks over the baby's mouth or alights on the nipple of the bottle may leave there the germs.

'The baby, like the rest of the family, should be protected by having the doors and windows of the whole house screened, if possible, and by having a screened porch on which to play and sleep. If this cannot be done at least the bedroom should be screened. If wire screens are too expensive cotton netting may be had for a few cents a

BLUNDERS IN BATTLE.

Cases Where Troops Have Fired Upon Their Own People.

It was at Beacon hill during the Boer war that there happened one of the saddest incidents in the history of the British army. The East Surrey were in a hollow between two hills creeping up the valley. The West Surrey regiment, half a mile away, caught sight of the crouching figures and took them for Boers.

In a moment a heavy volley rang out, and it was not until an officer, realizing the mistake, rushed out in front of the West Surreys that the firing ceased.

A nurse, writing afterward from the Estcourt hospital, said it was pitiful to see the West Surreys coming in one after another, bringing cigarettes, dainties, any present they could find, for the wounded men, then, hearing their groans, turn away, saying: "God forgive us! This is our work!"

One of the strangest cases of troops firing upon their own people occurred in Roumania in the year 1885. At that time Roumania was in a very disturbed condition, and bands of robbers-regular banditti-prowled over the country, raiding the villages and farms. The largest of these bands made its headquarters in the forest of Rhodope and gradually increased until it became 300 strong. It spread terror through the whole countryside, and at last the government sent a body of troops to hunt it down.

The robber band was located on top of a mountain, and the colonel in command of the troops split his forces and sent half up each side so as to attack from two points simultaneously. A thick fog fell, and the robbers took advantage of it to sneak away quietly by a path known only to themselves. The troops, unaware of this maneuver, continued their ascent, and the two bodies, each crawling along under cover of rocks and brushwood, met at the They at once opened fire and fought desperately for a whole hour before the mistake was discovered. Eighty were killed and 300 wounded.-Philadelphia Ledger.

GOOD NATURED ELEPHANTS.

Peculiarities of Some of the Herds of West Africa.

In 1905 I found myself near the Inzia river, an important affluent of the Kwilu, flowing through a fertile region which is infested by herds of elephants, a source of constant anxiety and frequent losses to the inhabitants. In a country like this, where he is not hunted by man in the ordinary way and the only means for his destruction are cruel but easily avoided pitfalls, the elephant is decidedly good natured. We were told by the mission boys at Pana that in the rainless season, when their usual haunts are dried up, the elephants frequently wander near the river and attack the plantations. The natives try to drive them away with sticks!

"But it is no good hitting them or throwing stones at them," I was told. "They generally refuse to take any no-Sometimes a mother with a calf will turn on us and chase us for a hundred yards or so, but no real harm is meant and the animal is not really angry, for all the signs of fury-spread ears and raised trunk-are absent. All the same, we do run away, although we know there is no danger. One day a boy fell when thus pursued, but the elephant only threw sand on him."

As I have myself seen a man just pushed out of the way by one of these good natured monsters, when the animal had more than enough provocation to kill him. I was inclined to accept this account as true.-Wide World Magazine.

Poaching an Egg. The food value of an egg is enormous, but an invalid tires of eggs served in the ordinary way. Here is a method involving some trouble, but worth it for the sick person's sake. Break an egg into a flat dish of cold water and let remain covered with muslin for twelve hours. Then pour the water off very gently indeed, so as to prevent the egg going with it. Now poach the latter in boiling water, adding just a tiny pinch of salt. This, nicely served, can be eaten by any one, for it melts in the mouth literally. Two might be cooked, for done in this way one egg is not much -Buffalo News port on the condition of all field crops at the end of August.

VIELD OF PRINCIPAL CEREALS, 191.

The preliminary estimate of this year's wheat crop in Canada is a total of 308,839-800 bushels from 12,986,400 acres, representing an average yield per acre of 23.78 bushels. This total is 147,559,800 bushels, or 91%, in excess of last year's inferior yield of 161,280,000 bushels, 77,-122,800 bushels, or 30 per cent, in excess of the previous highest yield of 231,717,-000 bushels in 1913, and 112,814,000 bushels, or 58 per cent, in excess of the annual average yield of 196,026,000 bushels for the five years 1910 to 1014. In acreage, average yield per acre and in total yield the present estimate is the highest of record for Canada. Of oats the total yield for 1915 is estimated at 488 million bushels from 11,365,000 acres, an average yield per acre of 42.94 bushels, the figures of yield also constituting records never previously attained for the Canadian oat crop. Barley is placed at 51,655,000 bushels from 1,509,350 acres, an average per-acre of 34.22 bushels. Rye yields 2,885,700 bushels from 112,300 acres, or 21.24 bushels per acre, and flax-seed 12,199,000 bushels from 11,009,600 acres, or 12.08 bushels per acre.

GRAIN HARVEST OF THE NORTHWEST PROVINCES.

GRAIN HARVEST OF THE NORTHWEST

The estimated production of wheat in the three Northwest provinces (Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta) is 275,772, 200 bushels as compared with 140,958,000 bushels last year. In Manitoba the total is 77,514,200 bushels as compared with 38,605,000 bushels, in Saskatchewan 155,233,000 bushels, in Saskatchewan 155,233,000 bushels against 73,494,000 bushels and in Alberta 43,025,000 bu against 28,859,000 bushels. Oats yield 301,051,000 bushels in the three provinces as compared with 150,843,000 bushels last year, barley 33,303,000 bushels against 19,535,000 bushels, rye 657,000 bushels against 514,800 bushels and flaxseeri 12,118,000 bushels against 7,083,000 bushels. The estimated production of wheat in shels.

It should be noticed that the foregoing It should be noticed that the foregoing preliminary estimates of yield are compiled from reports of correspondents whose judgment, based largely upon the luxuriant appearances of the crops in the field, may possibly not be sustained by the final actual returns from the threshing machine. Revised estimates of yield will be published in October and final estimates after the completion of the threshing at the end of the year.

CONDITION OF FIELD CROPS

CONDITION OF FIELD CROPS CONDITION OF FIELD CROPS

A notable feature of the past growing season has been the steady maintainance from month to month of high figures indicating condition. From May 31 to August 31 the figures for wheat, oats, barley and rye have been maintained at over 90 per cent of the standard representing a full crop. For the whole of Canada the figures of condition at August 31 also exceeded 90 per cent for mixed grain; they were between 80 and 90 per cent for peas, beans, buckwheat, mixed grain, they were beaus, buckwheat, flaxseed and root and fodder crops and were below 80 per cent only for corn were below 80 per cent only for for husking (79) hay, clover (71). ditions for harvesting in the west were described by correspondents as generally favorable during August. Towards the end of the mouth severe frosts did some injury, but fortunately they came too late to cause widespread damage to grain. In the Maritine provinces and in other parts of Eastern Canada excessive rains delayed ripening or interfered seriously with the ingathering of hay and grain.

"On The Field Of Honor"

The publishers of The Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal, are making a strong bid for that beautiful picture, full of pathos, entitled, "On the Field of Honor." It is assumed the publishers of the Family Herald have in mind using it as a presentation plate. If that is so there is a great treat in store for readers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star this autumn. In past years The Family Herald of Montreal has been noted not only for the wonderful excellence of that journal but for many beautiful pictures it has presented to its readers. The Family Herald has a name for succeeding in anything it undertakes, and we feel sure if it is humanly possible to secure "On the Field of Honor" that the publishers will succeed in getting it. "On the Field of Honor" is attracting widespread attention in Europe. tion in Europe.

More Cash Needed

For Patriotic Fund

The Canadian Patriotic Fund is now beginning its second year of work. There are now about 20,000 families on its lis are now about 20,000 families on its list of beneficaries and it requires over $375, 000 per month to meet their needs. In a statement that has just been issued with regard to the work generally it is pointed out that, although in the early months of the war subscriptions to the fund were in excess of the demands made upon it and a considerable surplus are upon it, and a considerable surplus ac upon it, and a considerable surplus accrued, this latterly has not been the case for since May these reserves have beer subjected to an ever-increasing drain. During June, July and August, the deficit amounted to $400,000. If the war continues for another year there will be required during that period not less than five million dollars to care for those entrysted to the care of the fund. entrusted to the care of the fund.

McKay-Lucas

McKay—Lucas

A very pretty event was solemnized at the home of Mrs. J. H. Lucas, Sutorville, on Wednesday, September 8th, when her eidest daughter, Violet, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Joseph McKay, a prosperous young farmer of Warwick. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. P. Irwin. Promptly at 2.30 o'clock to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Pearl Lucas, cousin of the bride, the bridal party entered the parlor, the bride leaning on the arm of her brother. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of white duchess satin, with lace and pearl trimmings, and carried a shower boquet of white asters. After the congratulations were over, Miss Pearl Lucas sang, "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. The guests, numbering about twenty, repaired to the dining room, where a dainty wedding dinner was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents, among them was a mantel clock from the choir of Christ Church, Sutorville, also a silver berry spoon from her Sunday School served. In the Anglican Church, Arkona, the rector, Rev. W. Ashe-Everest, will preach the last of a series of sermons on the Lord's Prayer on Sunday. The congregation are to have the pleasure of hearing Miss Tuck, the English soprano, who will sing a solo at the service. All are welcome.

There were very few of the choice lightweight butcher heifers on hand, though these were wanted at slightly higher prices than yesterday. The large bulk of the butcher cattle offered went below $7. A consignment of 11 cars of Northwest range cattle was received to-day.

The stocker trade continues quiet and prices easy. It is expected that the embargo at Buffalo may be lifted some time this week and that this will induce a more active market in stocker cattle.

Light lambs are steady to strong, but heavy lambs and sheep are dull and lower. Hogs steady but firm.

lst Battalion Sergeant Writes About Capt. Swift

The following extract from a letter written by Sergt. Guorley to Mr. Wm. Swift, Ireland, and forwarded by him to his brother, Mr. E. D. Swift, of Watford. is the latest information received about Capt. T. L. Swift, of Watford. The letter is dated Aug. 28th and will be read with

is dated Aug. 28th and will be read with interest:—

"At Givenchy, June 15th, Lieut. Swift led his platoon in the charge. The distance across to the Germans was not great—something under 100 yards—but the shrapnel and machine gun fire was terrific. Very few in comparison actually made the German trenches and such was the dash of our leading men we soon had possession of their lines. Lieut. Swift was up at the head directing the men who were left. At 6.15 I came across him and the machine gun party and we stuck together nearly three hours, hanging on to what we had gained and anxiously awaiting reinforcements and bombs, for our ammunition had nearly all gone. The Huns had by then reorganized and were pouring in such a fire from each side that no one could cross from our British front line to us. Scores tried to but perished. 'Twas nearly nine o'clock when, with ammunition expended, we were counter-attacked with strong bombing parties and had to withdraw. In crossing again to our own trench-we lost heavily and Lient. Swift was wounded whilst still in the German trench. When I last saw him he was unwounded and calmly directing his men, not many yards away from where Lient. Campbell (died of wounds; V.C.) was operating his gun. Nearly everyone at that point is either missing or killed so we cannot learn definitely what happened, but some say that he was seen wounded in the legs in the German trench. There is every reason to hope that he is a prisoner of war. I feel sure that if this is so he would be well treated for our boys showed great consideration for the wounded Germans in that trench, bandaging them up, etc. They would acquaint their convented of Fate Turned Them Away.

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

What a difference Letween that which is behind and that before us! We move on from day to day in grooves that it would seem will be veriasting. Then suddenly we make a sharp turn. There is a saying, "It is the unexpected that happens." The eason for the adage is that now and again the unexpected does happen and

The unexpected happened with me ne summer, and it was the most imortant event for me between birth and death. It was not only unexpected, but unintentional. It was not only unintentional, but contrary to my determination. Fate, ignoring my reso-Intions, led me into a trap, and be-fore I was aware of it, presto, change! I was not the same man I had been

In the first place, I did not wish to go for a summer outing. I was much interested in a business scheme, and it required not only a doctor, but my other, to drive me away from it. In the second place, I had repeatedly told my mother that my home would be with her and her alone so long as she lived. No third person, especially a yoman, should come into the house to usurp her place as its manager. In the third place, if I must go away for a rest I proposed to get a rest and rould go where no one would interfere with my quiet. Now, mark you how these intentions went awry! I chose a summer hotel in the mountains in which I understood there were to be a medium number of guests. I did not wish too small a number, for a few persons under one roof are liable to wrangle. I did not wish too large a number because in that case one cannot be quiet. I was driven from the station to the Chuchihooche inn, alighted from the cab on to the steps leading up to the porch, handed a small satchel to a hotel attendant. paid the cabman and turned to go up on to the porch. A pair of feminine arms was thrown around my neck, and a pair of lips ressed to mine.

Taken by surprise, I acted as nature prompted. My embracer was too close to me for me to determine whether she was beautiful, but the impulse of her act indicated that she was young. The lips, too, were not within my vision, and their sweetness might have been due to imagination. But what mattered the cause since they were sweet? Nor did I meditate upon what person the lady might be, whether cousin or intimate friend. I returned the embrace with something of the fervor with which it was given. That is, I began the return thus, but before it was concluded my own test was su-perior to that of the lady.

"Oh, Tom," she exclaimed, "what a joyful meeting after so many years' separation!"
"Delightful!" I stammered, unwilling to seem irresponsive till I could come to a better understanding of the proved." "I'm so glad you think so! I feared you would be disappointed in me." This brief dialogue occurred while we were pausing up on the porch. Had it not been for a disinclination to dash cold water upon the girl's happiness, to turn it into mortification, I might have told her that she must surely have mistaken me for some one else. This is the reason I give for not having done so, but there was another more powerful reason that I will not put in words. Nevertheless, I will say this: I defy any man who has tasted a pair of sweet lips of a girl who has made a mistake in his identity to turn upon her immediately and announce the fact.

I took a seat beside the young lady on the porch, but when she began to ask questions which would undoubtedly betray me I beat a retreat, telling her that as soon as I had got some of the dust of travel off me I would return to her. Entering the house, I was shown to a room on the second floor overlooking the porch. I was performing my ablutions near a window when I saw a cab enter the grounds and stop at the steps below. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED A young man alighted as I had alighted a few minutes before, and I witnessed a scene that chilled the very marrow in my bones. Leaning out of the window that I might extend the RESIDENCE - ST, CLAIR STREET | sange of my vision. I saw him anproach the young lady I had recently "Aren't you Belle Lawrence?" he asked.

"Why, yes," doubtfully. "I'm Tom, Tom Underwood, Don't "You Tom Underwood?"

"Certainly. You received my telegram, didn't you?" "Your telegram? Yes, I received your telegram, but"-"But what?" The girl stood as if bewildered, then ed the way into the house, and I saw To tell the truth. I was relieved that would not have to explain to the girl that she had made a mistake and that—well, that I had not at once disabused her of it. Nature is very strong, and I confess that the ascendant feeling in me was antagonism to the fellow who was doubtless receiving a duplicate of the kiss given me. At the same time I felt that I occupied an equivocal position. I did not like the idea of meeting the girl again How would she regard me? Doubtless as an impostor. If I passed her on the porch or elsewhere about the house or grounds she would cut me with one contemptuous glance.

And now I must make a confession a confession of cowardice. There is something of the coward about one who has wronged another, and I felt that I should cringe before this girl I had permitted to think I was her lover. True, I did not kiss her. She kissed me, and so quickly that I could not prevent her doing so. But I acknowledged to myself that I would not have prevented her if I had had no end of

I did not dare go downstairs to supper, but ordered a meal served in my room. Contemptible creature that I was, I did not dare go out of it, intending to get away by an early train the next morning.

About 9 o'clock there came a knock at my door, and in walked the man I personated. He resembled me, but it seemed to me there was considerable difference in our appearance. There was a thundercloud on his brow. "I'm in for it," I said to myself; "but, thank heaven, it's not the girl I have to face!"

For a few mi tongue lashing such as I have never heard before or since. At first I bowed before the storm, but presently my anger began to rise. Not one word did I speak during that tempestuous interview, the hurricane blowing all one way, till, like a thunderbolt, I fell upon my visitor and sent him sprawl-

He rose with blood in his eye and was coming for me when he suddenly restrained himself. "This is no place and no way to settle so important a matter. You will hear from me pres ently."

With that he went out, slamming the door, and I heard him stamping down the corridor. It was 11 o'clock when a young man who gave his name as McCabe came to my room with a challenge. I was expected to meet Mr. Thomas Underwood the next morning at sunrise at such place as I might designate. Not seeing how I could refuse, I consented to do so, provided Mr. McCabe would act as my second as well as that of my opponent. I also wrote a note to be given the young lady at such time as McCabe thought proper, apologizing for not having made her instantly aware of her mistake. Having settled these matters with my visitor, he departed. I sent word to the office that I should be called at an early hour in the morning, then turned in, and, my mind having been relieved by my apology to the lady and punching her lover, I fell into a comfortable slumber.

The next morning as I went out on to the porch who should be waiting for me but the young lady whose blunder had made all the trouble. She advanced toward me.

"Where are you going?" she asked.
"To leave by train," I replied, brave-"No, you're not. You are going out to fight Mr. Underwood." "Did he tell you that?"

"No, but I suspected it. I have lain in wait for you to stop this nonsense. I couldn't do anything with him. I'm going to see if you have better sense." I wondered for a moment, then told her I owed Mr. Underwood satisfaction for knocking him down and felt obliged to give it to him.

"Very well," she replied. "I'll go

At that moment Mr. McCabe appear ed. He seemed much surprised to see Miss Lawrence and was not averse to her going with us to the grounds with a view to stopping what he considered an unfortunate affair. We walked half a mile, then turned off the road and, passing into an open space behind some trees, found my en-emy waiting for me. Underwood, on seeing Miss Lawrence, looked thunderstruck.

"Tom," she said, "you are about to act very unjustly on account of what was not this gentleman's fault, but mine. You are going to punish me through him. I wish you to apologize to him for having said anything to him about a matter which was mine, not yours."

"I'll do no such thing," said Underwood savagely. "If you prefer him to me say so and have done with it." "I certainly prefer the way he is acting to the stand you take." "Then you choose between us and choose him.' "I certainly don't choose you unless you come to your senses.' "If I can't fight him here I'll fight him elsewhere." "If you fight him at all you may consider all off between us."

"So let it be." And, turning his back on us, he strode away bristling with anger.

I never saw Mr. Underwood again, but I saw a great deal of Miss Law-rence. Indeed, instead of spending my outing alone I spent it with her constant companionship. When I returned to the city I informed my mother that I had gone back on my volunteered promise to live with her alone so long as she lived. Fortunately she had the good sense to resign her position as head of my house and cheerfully turned it over to my wife.

Napoleon Bonaparte said, "I will con-trol circumstances." Since he failed in doing so I feel excusable for going back on my resolutions.

Another use to which the tam is put is expressed in a hat of black milan, whose brim is extended by a two inch band of maline. Black velvet is arrang ed in a puff suggestion to encircle the crown and to flap over on the brim at the right side. The left is elevated so that there is a double decker effect. A bunch of white cambric raisins with white leaves balances the low side.

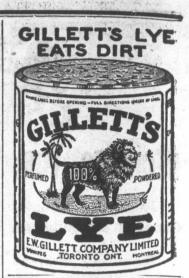

On account of the entrance of Italy into the European war it is anticipated that Paris will favor the intense green which is the predominating color of the Italian flag. It is a color that contrasts well with almost any dull tone, such as is naturally used for the main composition of a fall hat, and also it lends itself very readily to the development of entire chapeaux intended for gala occasions. Already Italian coque has been used by French milliners to deck summer models. *********

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Playroom for the Kiddies

Recause the rich man fits up a playroom with every expensive mechanical toy that ingenuity can devise or talent invent there is no reason why, for lack of these luxuries, there should be no playrooms at all in the home of theaverage breadwinner, a place which can be in every sense the children's own special domain.

Very little money will go a long way in fitting up a playroom that will adequately answer all of the reasonable lemands of the children.

The first thing to be considered is plenty of light. A room with a southern exposure is, of course, preferable, but not essential. The walls should be a plain, restful color with a few attractive pictures, hung rather low, showing harvest scenes, country fairs, dogs, horses, sheep and rabbits. Some attractive playrooms have dadoes of Kate Greenaway pictures, with the upper walls plain. Besides these, there are also charming playroom wall papers illustrating Mother Gooss rimes and fairy tales. The stained floor should have its rug. tacked to prevent tripping and falling:

over upturned edges. New furniture is an abomination to the children's sanctum, and by a little effort of the imagination they convert an old sofa into an automobile, a steam engine or whatever the moment demands of it.

A cheap pine table of the kitchen variety should have the legs sawed off five or six inches and the chair legs reduced to conform to it. Have ing these of a commutable height is most restful and sall-factory to the little ones. The table should be place against the side wall and its drawer contain slate, drawing book, colored pencils and a box of paints. Keep some back number magazines and weeklies here and offer the children a prize of bat and ball or doll for the most artistically colored print, the contest to last a month. The time spent in coloring the pictures saves the grownups many an hour of nagging.

Even the cheap and commonplace clothespin may be converted into an absorbing playroom diversion for very little children. With a pen and ink features may be drawn on their wooden heads, movable pasteboard arms fastened on with pins, and with bodies clothed in colored tissue paper, assisted by the paste pot, they evolve into beruffled maidens or brave looking sol-

A kaleidoscope costing a quarter is a never ending source of wonder and entertainment, and the playroom should also have a checkerboard. Each child may have his own postcard album for 10 cents, and a soap bubble pipe costs but a penny. But of all inexpensive playroom treasures the lump of modeling clay is the most fascinating and holds the attention of the players longest. The possibilities of the clay as a means of amusement are almost infinite. Even the tiniest child may be pacified and kept spellbound with interest if he may "make something" out of the plastic material. It is a delight to children to illustrate a familiar fairy tale or nursery rime by modeling the characters and grouping them on the table as if enacting the scene. They will consume hours in shaping the forms of Little Red Riding Hood her old grandmother and the hungry wolf, and in this way many of the better stories, like "Beauty and the Beast," "Snow White" and "The Ugly Duckling," may be indelibly impressed upon the memory.

Inscriptions also serve a good purpose in the playroom. Cut large capital let ters from a publication and paste them on the playroom door in the form of this inscription: "Who slams me hurts everybody." You should paint these letters red—nay, vermilion—so that be who runs may read. - delicates

A Comedy of Love

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Trentham people always called the 6:36 train "the Cupid express," because it invariably carried one or more bridal couples.

It was the close of a March day, exactly 6:36 p. m., and the Cupid express had just snorted away cityward with two of Trentham's fair brides and incidentally the newly made husbands. The Faber twins had just been mar-ied. It was a double wedding, and all the town had turned out to send the carriage. "Where is Edith?" she repeated sternly as her niece took her place in the surrey.

Cora Morris' voice was guilty.

"Not alone?" declared Mrs. Blake in the decisive tone of one who knew. "With Harley Lane," confessed Cora, "Ah!" Mrs. Blake's tone was freezing. She sank back in her seat and "I wonder why your mother is so set against me," remarked Harley as he tucked Edith's hand under his arm and marched down the street.

Edith's eyelashes flickered as the surrey passed them at a corner where a street lamp shone brightly. "I don't believe she really hates you, Harley," she said, "but some one has whispered a bit of ancient history to me. Years ago mother was engaged to marry your father. They quarreled and neither forgave the other. Both softly.

One April afternoon Mrs. Blake returned from her euchre club to find the house strangely silent.

"Miss Edith?" repeated Jane, the maid. "Why, Miss Edith left the house an hour ago. She carried a suit case and"- "No, ma'am. I wouldn't have known about it only I heard the front door close, and I looked and saw Miss Edith running down the walk. A cab was there. She jumped in and was off!"

She will telephone to me no doubt." The clock in the hall chimed the quarter after 6, and mingled with it was the sharp, insistent tinkle of the telephone bell. Winona Blake's voice shook a little as she lifted the receiver from its hook. "Yes?" she inquired. It was Edith's voice, speaking in "Mother!" Edith's voice was stricken. "Where are you?" asked Mrs. Blake.

"The railroad station." "Wait until I come!" ordered Mrs. Blake, and, hanging up the receiver, she rushed from the house, still wearing train. Her lips tightened.

'Edith is a minor, and"—
"Here, madam!" A conductor almost lifted her to the steps, and as she staggered across the platform into the coach a shower of small particles fell stingingly upon her face.

"Rice!" called somebody from the coach behind.
"Where's the bridegroom?" some one asked in a loud whisper.

"The old party in the gray overcoat.

See the confetti on his hat?" And at this moment Mrs. Blake collided with some one in the aisle, They grasped each other and swaved with the moving train. "You?" glared Mrs. Blake.

"You?" glared Judge Lane. A murmur ran through the car. Smiles spread from face to face, for was not this the honeymoon train, and did they not recognize a bridal couple? They did.

There was the handsome middle aged pair in gala attire; there was the confetti, rice. Somewhere in the rear a light headed youth whistled the wed-ding march from "Lohengrin."

Furiously embarrassed, angry and quite helpless in the face of so many whole hearted strangers, Judge Lane accepted the nearest proffered seat and pushed the equally embarrassed, angry and helpless lady into it.

"We may as well sit down," he snap-"Yes!" she gasped. "Of course you know why I'm here?" "I'm on the same errand. I was earching the train when I met you. Harley telephoned me for my blessing before they were married. Bah!"

"Tickets, please!" smiled the conduc-Mrs. Blake suffered a cold chill. Her pocketbook was at home. Could she ccept money from John Lane?

She did, for without asking her permission he opened a bulging pocketbook and paid for both tickets. Grinningly the conductor punched the rebate checks and gave them to the man. "Congratulations, judge," he said as he moved along. "I knew the Cupid would catch you some day!" A cold horror settled upon the two in the seat. So they were supposed to be a newly wedded pair! Both were thinking of one day thirrs ago when they nli troth in the apple orchard beneath a

And now, each one in pursuit of an eloping child, they had met after all these years. People believed they were a honeymoon couple! "Absurd!" declared Mrs. Blake aloud. "Ridiculous!" huskily agreed the

"Perhaps you had better see if they are on the train," suggested Mrs. Blake after awhile. "That's a good idea!" and Judge

Lane escaped to the rear coaches. After awhile he came back. "They are not on the train," he said slowly.

"How odd!" cried Mrs. Blake. "But, then, Edith didn't say she was married. She only asked permission, and as she was telephoning from the rail-road station I concluded they were going to take this train."

"So I inferred from Harley's message," responded the judge stiffly.
"I hope they are not married. It is out of the question!" went on Mrs. Blake.

"Out of the question," agreed the A silence fell between them, and then Mrs. Blake felt a blush creeping over her smooth, pale cheek.

Was he looking at her? Slowly her eyes turned toward him, until, through her lashes, she could see his blue eyes regarding her with an odd wistfulness. "Absurd!" she chided herself sharply.

"Winnie," he whispered suddenly,
"you haven't forgotten, after all?"

"I never could, John," she whispered in return.

"Then let this be our wedding trip," he urged after awhile. "But we must return tonight," she

"And Harley," he added. fly corrected herself.

When the 11:15 train from town drew into Trentham that night it found two anxious young people pacing the platform.

They will never forgive us for luring them aboard that Cupid train," said Edith nervously.

"They might," Harley smiled cryptically, "Here they are, Edith! Together—and looking sheepish! Why, father," he said reproachfully, "I've been worried to death about you Where have you been?"

The judge blushed and clung to his wife's hand. "Why, we've been get-ting married!"

"Married!" echoed Edith. "Without saying a word to me? Why, mother!"
"But you and Harley have married without consulting us"-"Married?" interrupted Edith innocently. "Why, mother, dear, I wouldn't marry without your blessing. And I want a home wedding, with all my friends and heaps of presents-and we shall take the Cupid express, shan't we, Harley?"

A smile flickered on Harley's face. "Sure we will, if dad doesn't ob-

But the bride and bridegroom, walking ahead, were so absorbed in each other that they never answered the question. But, as Harley told his sweetheart, it was one of those questions that answered themselves.

For Sprains and Bruises.-There is nothing better for sprains and confusions than Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It will reduce the swelling that follows a sprain, will cool the inflamed flesh and draw the pain as if by magic. It will take the ache out of a bruise and prevent the flesh from discoloring. It seems as if there was magic in it, so speedily does the injury disappear under treatment. m

A Prayer For Peace

The cannons roar on sea and shore the bombs keep on a-droppin'; the bullets zip and tear and rip without a sign of stoppin'. On field and hill they maim and kill; the trails they leave are main and kill; the trais they leave are gory. And everywhere the soldiers fare it is the same old story. They leave their plows, their nags and cows, their chickens, pigs and cattle; each raw recruit went forth to shoot and mow men down in battle. They used their guns like valiant sons, they scattered lead like water; 'twas their delight when in a forth to make an awful slaughter. Each water; 'twas their delight when in a fight, to make an awful slaughter. Each day we read of thousands dead, and we grew sick and tired, and hoped that we the day might see when no more guns were fired. But still they scrap and change the map, and keep right on ashootin', the drums still beat to marching feet and bugles keep on tootin'. Oh, let us pray to speed the day when guns shall quit their sputter; when war shall cease, and man, in peace, shall earn his bread and butter!—E. A. Brininstool.

Who Are Sick

One of the best known ministers in the Hamilton conference is the Rev. Chas. E. Stafford, of Elora, Ont., who freely admits that he owes his present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Stafford writes as follows:—'Some years ago I was severely afflicted for a period of nearly four months. The leading physician in the town in which I was then stationed diagnosed my case as one of complete nervous prostration, brought on by over-work and which superinduced intercostal neuralgia and muscular rheumatism, from which I suffered the most excruciating pain night and day for weeks. So weak and helpless did I become that my attendants had to handle me like an infant, raising menp and laying me down with the greatest care, so intense were my sufferings. Acting on the advise of my doctor, and taking his medicine, I did not seem to improve. One afternoon, while suffering great pain, the editor of the paper published in the town, and who was a member of the church of which I was member of the church of which I was member of the church of which I was an then pastor, urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was sceptical as to the medicinal qualities of all proprietary medicines, but on the try of forty-six years, I asked the Hamila ton conference of the Methodist Church to grant me superannuation relation, which it did, but for more than two High School, of which the Chairman took notes for the use and guidance of the several committees of the Board.

That my heart beats true;

I'm longing and praying
And living for you,
So come back, little Laddie in Khaki."

PRINTERS' INK, it was declared at a meeting of the American Public Health Association, is the best medicine for human ills. It is a specific for the prevention of social diseases and it controls epidemics; it mizes well with common sense and scientific theory and can be administered in large doses without fear
