FOUR RINKS FOR HOCKEY NO OTHER ICE AT VARSITY

Practice Starts in Mutual Street Rink—Club Notices and Gossip of the Game.

The University Athletic Association have decided on an innovation this year with regard to Varsity hockey rinks. Heretofore there has been skating accommodation provided for the students in general, with a certain part reserved for the hockeyists.

Teddy Marriot had over forty boys working out last night at the Mutual-street rink. He is expected that they will be ready for hockey on Thursday of this week. Only practice games will be played before the Christmas holidays.

The practice hours for this evening are as follows: 6 to 8—St. Michael's. 8 to 10—St. George's. 10 to 12—Argonauts. 8 to 10—T. A. C. Nobody has applied for the 9-to-10 hour.

Secretaries of clubs wishing to secure practice hours for the season at Mutual-street rink are requested to call and make their reservations at once.

The Elms will hold a meeting at the clubhouse, 49 Bellevue avenue, Wednesday night, at 8.15. All members are requested to be present.

The first practice of the Toronto Bowling Club hockey team will be held at the Mutual-street rink tomorrow night, from 8 until 9 o'clock. All last year's players are earnestly requested to turn out, and coaches wishing to make the team are cordially invited. The T. R. C. will play Senior O.H.A. only this season.

According to a Berlin despatch, Buck Irving, the hockey promoter, blew into Berlin on the cold east wind yesterday, and things began to happen. Last night representatives from Galt, Waterloo and Berlin decided to play a double check, the winners to play off with the champions of the eastern division for the Ontario title of Ontario. The games will be played in three twenty-minute periods, to keep the play fast all the time.

Prospects look good for Brookville having a professional hockey team after all this winter. The players of last year's Ottawa refusing to accept the cut in salaries made by the National Association are in correspondence with L. Watson, the Brookville magnate, who was informed that things looked rosy for an Ottawa team. Watson is expected to join, he signed his willingness to do so, and an organization meeting is looked for in the near future. DOES THIS LOOK GOOD?

The Baseball Magazine, Boston, picks the following All-American League team: Catcher—Thomson, Philadelphia. First base—Chase, New York. Second base—Lajoie, Chicago. Third base—Lord, Chicago. Shortstop—Wallace, St. Louis. Left field—Stone, St. Louis. Centre field—Speaker, Boston American. Right field—Cobb, Detroit.

Stanley Gun Club. That trapshooting is steadily gaining in popularity was evidenced by the large and enthusiastic number of shooters who took part in the Stanley Gun Club's regular weekly handicap. The club's regular members are increasing their scores, and several newcomers are showing high gun skills.

APACHE DUEL TO THE DEATH. Tragedy After a Dance Over Belts of Lower Life Orgy.

Another ghastly "Apache" crime has started Paris—a crime sordid in every detail. It was a quarrel between two "Apaches" over a woman known as Helen of the Golden Hair, a desperate fight with long knives and revolvers, a murdered man, and a fight. But this time the murderer is a soldier of France, and he shot his man with the ordinance weapon he was authorized to carry.

TALES OF THE DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Whenever, between seasons, a half-dozen ball players get together the talk is almost sure to be about incidents far removed from the technical side of the game, but incidents which are mightily interesting all by themselves. Several of these stories were told in the Waldorf-Astoria around a table at which a number of ball players and baseball writers were sitting one December day last year, waiting for the club-owners, who were in session upstairs, to adjourn. Some of the stories told are worth a place in baseball histories.

One day when the White Sox and Naps were having a "desperado" struggle at South Side Park in Chicago, the attention of the players was directed to a man, who, accompanied by several women, occupied one of the front boxes, and who whistled cheerfully every good play. The man was dressed in fashionable fashion, and when he would get up, swing his hat will over his head and shout his approval or disapproval of a play, everybody in the stands and on the diamond was forced to take notice.

In the ninth inning, when the score was 4 to 1 in favor of the White Sox, the Naps filled the bases, with nobody out. Up to this time Lejole had made three of the Naps' four hits. As Larry took his place at the bat, with a fellow player on every base, the man in the box arose, took off his glossy hat and faced the 3,000 people sitting behind him.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he shouted, "Permit me to inform you that this ball game is now over and that Cleveland wins by the score of 4 to 1." As a sort of an echo to this declaration came the crash of Larry's bat against the ball, and when Lejole had retired, the sphere out by centre field fence, the score was indeed as the fan had said—4 to 1 in favor of Cleveland.

Charlie Comiskey was about the only player on the Old St. Louis ball park, when one day at the St. Louis ball park, when Von der Ahe was seated in a box with his pretty young wife near the bench occupied by the home team, he overheard some remark attacking his personal appearance. He thought it had been mouthed by one of the St. Louis players. Turning quickly in his seat, the German manager discovered several of the local cohorts clustered in conversation nearby. Comiskey was among them. Chris called him over to the box.

"Who was it said it?" asked the St. Louis boss.

"Zaid what?" retorted Comiskey.

Von der Ahe told Comiskey what he had heard—he thought—coming from the direction of the "home players' rendezvous. Then, pulling out a fat roll of greenbacks, and flinging off a century case note, which he brandished dramatically, Chris facing his tormenter, "but I'm going to now."

And it is part of baseball history that the next ball pitched to McKean was hit so far over into the next ward that it was never recovered.

"Say, you Georgia Peach, why don't you steal a base now and then?" yelled a young man in Philadelphia one day last summer, when the race between the Tigers and Athletics was awfully close.

The remark, of course, was addressed to Ty Cobb, who just then was perched on first base. The tone in which the enquiry was pitched aroused his old fighting spirit. On the next ball pitched he stole second, on the ground ball pitched he stole third, and on the third ball pitched, which was hit for a sacrifice fly—he galloped home with the run that won the game.

Then the socky young man in the grandstand was sorry that he had not kept still.

Hung Himself.
PETERBORO, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—The lifeless body of a young Englishman, whose name is not known, was found hanging from a tree this morning about eight and a half miles from Peterboro. The circumstances point to suicide.

JOHN CATTO & SON 55 to 61 King Street East. TORONTO. BEARDS SOCIALISTS IN DEN Prof. Kyle Addresses Them on Menace of Socialism.

A large and zealous audience of Socialists greeted Prof. Kyle in the Socialist meeting rooms on Alice-street last night, to hear his lecture on the "Menace of Socialism."

Prof. Kyle tried to show that the present conditions must be remedied by reform, and not by a complete turnover of society. He declared that conditions for the working man were much better nowadays than they were years ago.

After his address the usual discussion started, and Prof. Kyle's arguments roused him from limb. One man agreed as to the desirability of cheerfulness, "especially," he said, "when we are all in the cold and without work, on account of capital's greed."

A series of lectures have been arranged, and several university men will address the Socialists during the winter.

YORK TOWNSHIP COUNCIL The York Township Council met yesterday. LODGED A PROTEST

President of Great Waterways Appeals to Ottawa and Washington. WINNIPEG, Dec. 5.—(Special)—W. R. Clarke, president of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway, to-night lodged a formal appeal at Ottawa against the confederate bill now before the Alberta Legislature. He also appealed to the authorities at Washington. The bill provides for the confederation of some eight million dollars subscribed by Americans for the building of the railroad, the bonds having been guaranteed by the Alberta Government.

"VITAL" MAN IN GREECE.

New Cretan Leader of Chamber the Idol of the People. M. Venizelos, the Cretan, who was recently made leader of the Greek Chamber, is the idol of the people, partly because he has had the courage to risk his reputation as a statesman in order to obey his country's call, and partly because he is not only a man, but the personification of an idea. "If for years Greeks have borne with misgovernment, mismanagement, and corruption, it is because they lacked a leader to put their aspirations into action," said a Greek deputy.

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION

Paulist Father Rebukes Universities Built by Christian Money That Encourage Denials. At the mission to non-Catholics in St. Paul's R. C. Church, Queen-st., last evening, Rev. Father Gillis, after a rather brief but graphic summary of the career of Christ, maintained that it was a matter of infinite moment to Christianity to know precisely what was the nature of Jesus; whether He be only man, or, as orthodox Christians have always believed, veritable God.

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION

"Furthermore," said Father Gillis, "if Christ be not God, all traditional Christianity which has held Him as God, has been the most persistent and inexplicable of all errors. There are entire churches calling themselves Christians who relegate the question to obscurity, as if it were matter for some medieval logic-chopping; there are universities built and maintained by the money of Christian people who tolerate and encourage professors who deny the divinity of Christ, or regard it as a matter of no more than a few minutes of the gospel whose private convictions or public utterances, or both, contradict this cornerstone of the Christian religion. They are more concerned about the identity of the author of the plays attributed to Shakespeare than the hero of the gospel narrative; they investigate closely every detail of the career of Napoleon Bonaparte, but set aside as unimportant the question whether Christ is God or man. They are concerned about the details of the death of Socrates, and the teachings of Plato, but if you ask them 'Is Christ God?' they answer with a frown that they cannot waste valuable time meddling with inscrutable theological problems."

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION

"Father Gillis gave several proofs of the divinity of Christ, dwelling particularly on the testimony afforded by the Gospel of St. John. He would probably not have done so had he not been told that in so doing he would probably meet with hostile criticism of those who declare that the Gospel of St. John is a 'theological meditation' and not an accurate historical record of the sayings and doings of Jesus. He would not allow that statement without contradiction, for the sake of argument, the Gospel of St. John, which was written to express purpose of proving that Christ is God, is a literal verbatim report of the sayings of Jesus, nevertheless it is inconceivable that any Christian writer of the apostolic age could have maintained a thesis that was a denial of the fundamental tenet of Christianity, and could have imposed idolatry on the universal Christian church from the very first century of its existence.

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION

"The answering of questions was continued by Father Conway. Among these he answered last night, 'A hotel-keeper leaves $20,000 for masses for his soul and a poor man can afford nothing. Which has the better chance to get out of purgatory?' 'Why don't priests marry?' 'Do unbaptized infants go to Hell?' 'Is it better to be a Catholic than to be a non-Catholic service?' He closed by inviting all who attended to place questions in the question box.

Teaching a Lesson With the Sister Siate. With that "swank" which the Britisher charges up against them, the American sinners who are every day clamored to lead the world in shoe-making, so thoroughly had they imbued themselves with this idea that they traded the high tariff for a low tariff on hides and sole leather, or for free hides, in fact.

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION

To-day their market is being invaded by both English and Canadian shoe manufacturers. A very low tariff at 10 per cent is an invitation which the large shoe manufacturers could not resist. The Slater Shoe Company of Montreal, first in the opening, has for many months ago they cleverly put in motion an organization to cover the U. S. market. They are meeting with great success, and every mail brings inquiries from shoe merchants in all the big cities in the United States, including Buffalo and Detroit, as far west as California and not excepting Boston, the heart of the American shoe trade.

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION

There is reproduced in another column of this paper one of the Slater advertisements which is creating such a furore in the United States market. Among the Anglo-Saxon brotherhood of nations there will be no prejudice to contend with in entering Uncle Sam's territory, Canada buys so much from the United States each year that a Canadian-made shoe will be received on its merits. The two million Canadians now in the United States will be ready customers, for they know by experience the great difference in wear quality. All over America the "Sign of the Slater" is accepted as would be the King's seal on a new baronetcy.

AT THE THEATRES

At the Princess.

Maude Adams. With two such brilliant dramatists as Sir Arthur Pinero and James M. Barrie writing for the British stage there can be no room for any fear of decadence in this respect. After the notable performance of "The Thunder-bolt" a short time ago, the production of Barrie's, "What Every Woman Knows," at the Princess last night gave Toronto players an opportunity to contrast the work of the two men at their best, and in characteristic plays. Maude Adams was supported by a highly capable company, and except for native Scotsmen who could scarcely fall to take exception to Miss Adams' dialect, the presentation of the piece was flawless. The scenes that every woman knows is sufficiently clear, the not given expression until the last act—"He loves to think he does it all himself." The first act propounds the problem in a piece of humor than which nothing richer ever came out of Scotland. Whatever it may appear to those of other nations, there is not an improbable word in it for those who know Scotland. The three brothers conspire to get their sister married, but she has reached the hopeless age (for Scotland) of 28. The manner of her betrothal, the bargain behind it, the consummation of it, and the lapse from the scene of the self-made man reaches a seat in parliament, and secures a system. Barrie uses the idea familiar in "A Woman's Way." Maggie, the adoring and devoted wife, arranges to have the lovers spend two weeks at a friend's, where they become so sick of each other that the tangle is easily unraveled at that point. But there is a much more difficult knot to untie. John Shand, splendidly played by Arthur Byron, the matter-of-fact man totally unswayed by his wife's whimsy. His awakening is one of the exquisite bits of the play. Shand is absolutely without the sense of humor. "Are ye serious minded?" he is asked. "I never laughed in my life."

At the Royal Alexandra

"The Little Damsel." "The Little Damsel" as produced last night at the Royal Alexandra proved itself to be a fascinating comedy. Billed by Henry W. Savage as a new play by Monckton Hoffe it grips the audience from first to last, simply on account of the strong individualization. It opens up part of the Bohemian side of life and in this it embodies something of the character associated with DuMaurier's famous Trilby, but it places it in a new aspect and reveals how much of human nature remains in circles far removed from the conventionalities of ordinary life. The heroine of the play is Julie Hardy, daughter of the contractor in the Chief Architect's office, London. Her charms bring her many admirers, and when the play opens she is engaged to Captain Neil Partridge, who finds that he would be better wedded with one more kin to his own station. Fearing the publication of his love letters, he bargains with the Hon. Fitzroy Lock to take Julie off his hands. The price is $10,000. But Julie, while she accepts the situation, is true to her real love and the curtain falls to a rather conventional ending. This, however, is not reached without fluctuations which arouse and sustain the interest of the audience to an unusual degree. There is no doubt that the play has strong gripping power, as was sufficiently shown by the way the audience responded to the story and the clever dialogue, which always adapted itself to the situation and general tenor of the play. Miss May Buckley, in the role of the "Damsel" showed herself to be a very versatile artist, able to interpret all the varying moods of the role with real sympathy. Miss Mary Bell, as Sylvia, played with much charm and grace. Cyril Kelzhtley as Rocklaw Pool rose to the height of the occasion. His role is a lens, a powerful play, wonderfully well acted, and the story enjoyed by the large audience present. The play exposes the inner workings of a woman's heart—a woman so deeply in love with her husband as to go to any lengths to please and to satisfy him. Marie Louise (blanche-shirey), the wife, has a passion to possess her husband, she has expressed his admiration of her friends because they "looked so nice" and "dressed so becomingly." Marie Louise, for fear of losing the love she holds so dearly, determines to hold it by dressing in a manner to attract and interest her lover. Her husband is not rich, and clothes cost lots of money. So she buys dresses she cannot pay for, and in order not to be found out, she borrows from her dearest friend, whom she is visiting. The name is laid on her friend's son, who, because of his love for Marie Louise, confesses to the crime. But the husband is not satisfied and questions his wife more closely, with the result that, a torture of agony, tears and supplications, she finally confesses that she and not the boy is the thief. The husband is thunderstruck. He denounces and casts her off. The wife, brought up to the highest pitch of anguish, threatens to hang herself in the window. She is restrained and made to confess to the woman from whom she stole the money. The disgrace to the husband is too much to bear, however, and he decides to leave the country. Before going he forgives his wife and she accompanies him to begin life anew. Miss Shirley, as Marie Louise, gave a splendid interpretation of the role, and was given a splendid support by Hallet, Tompkins as the husband, W. A. Whitecar as "Raymond Lagarde," Frederick Clayton as "Fonand Lagarde," and Isabella Sherman as "Mrs. Lagarde."

At the Grand.

"The Thief." This commandment was the inspiration out of which "The Thief" was born. As presented at the Grand last evening it is a tense, powerful play, wonderfully well acted, and the story enjoyed by the large audience present. The play exposes the inner workings of a woman's heart—a woman so deeply in love with her husband as to go to any lengths to please and to satisfy him. Marie Louise (blanche-shirey), the wife, has a passion to possess her husband, she has expressed his admiration of her friends because they "looked so nice" and "dressed so becomingly." At the Star

With Mae Hadley, Rosalie and Frank Murphy, and an aggregation of top-notchers behind them, the "Star Show Girls" Company delighted two packed houses in the Star Theatre yesterday. Beginning with "The Reception of Willie Green," a comical hotel burlesque, in which the intangible John T. Baker shines in his favorite role as a "Rube," the show is a succession of laughs and musical surprises. It introduces one of the best trained and best looking choruses that have appeared this season, while the jokes will pass muster with the censors. The olio is as good as a whole vaudeville performance, presenting the Lockwood Sisters in songs; the Musical Stewarts, who drag melody from a variety of odd things; Rosalie, in a soubrette act; Chas. E. Retted and Mae Hadley in dialog and song, and Frank Murphy & Co. in an uproarious one-act farce entitled "His Colonel Saved Him." The entertainment concludes with a big one-act scream entitled, "A Model Surprise," by the whole company. The staging and costuming are pleasing to the eye.

At the Majestic

A remarkably good bill is given at the Majestic, where, in the afternoon, the prices are 5 and 10 cents, and in the evening from 15 to 25 cents. You can get the best money's worth in town. Baby Helen, a five-year-old wonder, who made a big hit last week, is again heard in a number of cunningly-learned songs. Exciting stunts are performed by Davis & Co., sharpshooters. John A. Hall & Co. offer a mer-torious dramatic sketch entitled "The Last Scene." Sharp and Sharp, possessing young ladies, sang and chattered in an oddly amusing way. Charles Kemp has a musical specialty, and the Regoras perform thrillers on the Roman rings. Then there are moving pictures.

At the Gayety.

There's only one Behman show, and the name is synonymous for all that is best in the burlesque field. Its reputation here was sufficient to crowd the Gayety twice yesterday. The principals are of the highest calibre and the stage settings and novelties introduced could not be improved upon. And the chorus! Such a prettiness. There are quite a number of pleasing musical selections, notably the "Moving Picture Man," "Ragtime," "Boulevard Gilde," "Spain," "Silver Bell" and "Play the Barber Shop Song." A two-act farce, "Palm Beach," is presented, in which Will Kennedy, Irish comedian, Lou Hassall, as "Happy Manley," with a great flow of slang, George Slesman as "Colonel Blood," a typical southerner, and Victor Casmar, Spanish nobleman, are especially prominent. Among the remaining attractions, Billie Gray, in the bright particular star, and her dancing numbers and pianologue were particularly applauded. A feature of the production is the presentation of Jim Corbett's great vaudeville sketch "Pala." It is given in first-class style.

"SHE BURNS GREEN."

How the Phrase Came to Be a Classic Yell Among Prospectors. Altho the prospector is generally supposed to be associated with the search for precious metal his attention is by no means confined to that. A writer in the Los Angeles Times tells of a group of valuable claims in the Silver Mountain mining district, which include the whole of Black Mountain. It was long considered worthless, until an up-to-date prospector recognized it as "cement rock," the principal ingredient from which Portland cement is made.

Another example is furnished by the discovery of borax in Death Valley, one of the most valuable strikes ever made in California. The discoverer, Aaron Winters, was at the time living in a lonely little shack on the Amargosa flats at the south end of the valley. Thither attracted by the light, came one night a yagran prospect, from Nevada. He had with him a sample of borax brought from a small deposit in the desert. This miner instantly recognized as being the same curious stuff which he had seen lying in great beds in Death Valley, but of which he had never known the name. Adroitly questioned, the wanderer explained to Winters the simple but little known test for borax. No sooner had Winters tested the sample than Winters and his wife, carrying a food and water, a pick, a saw and a food tin of alcohol, set out on foot northward to the valley. At nightfall the next day they arrived at the first of the strange beds.

Without even waiting to molest his parched throat Winters fell upon it. He had attracted by the light, a handful of the loose stuff, piled it in a saucer, moistened it with alcohol and struck a match. An instant later he hurled his hat in one direction, his pick in another, and seizing his wife, whizzed that astonished lady round the strange, flickering flame, whooping: "She burns green! She burns green!" Winters realized a fortune from his discovery. Even to-day the map of the valley lighting upon something new heralds his find with the classic yell, "She burns green!"

UNIVERSITY CHANGES DESCRIBED BY DR. ELIOT

How Educational Methods Have Improved Since the Civil War—Lessons To Be Learned.

Dr. C. W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, addressed a representative gathering of educationists at Convocation Hall last night. President Falconer of Toronto University, in introducing the orator, said: They had always regarded Harvard as at the head of the educational life of the United States, and with this the personality of Dr. Eliot had been inseparably associated. Dr. Eliot spoke on the "Development of the American University." At Harvard, the greatest changes had occurred since the close of the civil war. The civil war had decided two great questions: "It had put a sudden end to human slavery and given a new aim to the nation. At that time Harvard had about a half of one professor for the department of philosophy compared with five now. The first phenomenon of the new development was a great increase in the amount and variety of instruction. The next great feature was the development of the elective system. The students were permitted to make their own curriculum by the selection from optional courses. Many experienced educators condemned the elective system. The discussion diverted the public from the fact that the great increase in the amount and variety of instruction rendered an optional system inevitable. Dr. Eliot took all the courses when an undergraduate at Harvard. A few years ago a complete course of all the subjects would involve 50 years of study; now, a bright, active student might undertake it all in a hundred years. (Laughter.) A fundamental fact was that the increase in the amount and variety of instruction had changed the quality of the medical profession. Under the old curriculum, the student recited a lesson. It required a different kind of professor to give advanced instruction by the Socratic method of asking and answering questions. Both in professors and students, it had developed a different kind of man, and made the aim of the American university comparable to that of the European. Formerly, there were no laboratories or department of applied science, except the dissecting room for the students of medicine and a few associated scientific institutes. The change at the American universities was well

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL SCHEME OF THE FUTURE

Country Cannot Go Beyond Its Income, Says Hon. G. P. Graham. OTTAWA, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—In moving in the house of commons for copies of certain correspondence with the government concerning the reconstruction of the C.P.R. bridge across the St. Lawrence at Lachine, Mr. Monk took occasion to call the attention of the government to the delay in furthering the Georgian Bay-Ottawa-Montreal canal, thereby making Montreal a national port of first importance. Every year's delay added one million dollars to the estimated cost of the Montreal terminus. He also reproached the government for having made no step towards connecting Montreal with the National Transcontinental Railway. Hon. George P. Graham, in reply, said that the canal was one of the big schemes of the future, and the country could not go beyond its income. With regard to providing a connection with the National Transcontinental, he said that a subsidy had already been offered for a line, and added that, by utilizing the present railway connection to Ottawa, the Canada Atlantic and the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, with little work, a connection would easily be provided. Dot and Trousseau. From The London Globe. Dealing with the weaknesses of actors, some noted for meanness, a Paris contemporary relates a good story of Frederick Lemaître, the celebrated actor, who was somewhat parsimonious. When his daughter was about to marry, Lemaître agreed to provide the "dot" and the trousseau. "Dot," it may be observed, is the French equivalent for the English "dower," or Scottish "tocher." When the notary came to complete the contract and was reading the terms of the marriage, the daughter of Frederick Lemaître has no need of a dot, Monsieur Le Notaire, strike out the dot. The prospective son-in-law was present and he had the courage to reply: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaître can easily clothe herself with the fame of her father, Monsieur Le Notaire, pray strike out the trousseau." Successful Help. To realize conditions different from one's own, and to realize mental progress different from one's own, is the beginning and ending of successful and helpful dealings with others.—Frances in London T. PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless you do not have to work close to the stove, which is usually far from the window. You can work where you wish, and be warm. You can work on dull winter days in the full light near the window, without being chilled to the bone.

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

OTTAWA, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—In the house to-day, answering W. D. Stape (Manitoba) Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he had given utterance to the following, or similar words at Winnipeg, on July 12 last. "You have been told that I was an enemy of Manitoba. You have been told that I don't want to give justice to you. I have written to Mr. Roblin, and I repeat here, let him come to Ottawa, where he can discuss with me what is fair and just, and see if we can agree upon what is proper, either in land or in money for the increased territory of Manitoba. What more can I do? If the province of Manitoba continue to be on the map, a postage stamp, the fault will not be mine, the fault will be his."

The premier read correspondence which had passed between himself and the premier of Manitoba regarding the question of the extension of the boundaries of that province. Premier Roblin wrote to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Oct. 17, 1910, as follows: "Altho I have Oct. 22, '11 will be very happy to meet you and to resume negotiations on the question of the extension of the Manitoba boundaries. I noticed that you continued my not continuing the correspondence as an act of discourtesy. This is an opinion which I cannot entertain. At all events I respectfully decline any such intention."

A WOMAN'S BACK.

Not One Woman in Twenty Has a Strong Back.

The kidneys are to blame nine times out of ten. Mrs. A. H. Hutton, Jr., McCreary, Man. writes: "Two years ago last spring I had a very severe pain in the small of my back. When I would rise it seemed as if my back would break. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and I would have to get up three or four times during the night. I took one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they effected a cure."

TRINITY AND WYCLIFFE A REPLY TO S. H. BLAKE

Provost Macklem Points Out That Only Offer Wycliffe Made Was Soon Afterwards Withdrawn

Provost T. C. Street Macklem of Trinity College writes The World: Kindly allow me to reply briefly to several points in Mr. Blake's recent communications to the press in reference to the efforts made by Trinity College to bring about better relations with Wycliffe College.

1. If Mr. Blake is correct in saying that Trinity College, some thirty years ago, refused a fair offer for union with Wycliffe, I think Trinity made a serious mistake, and I am glad that her spirit and attitude to-day are very different.

2. If Wycliffe College, not thirty years ago, but in the 20th century, when the rancor of old theological controversies has died out as far as most persons are concerned, refuses a fair offer for union with Trinity College, then I think that Wycliffe is, in her turn, making a serious mistake; and I hope it will not take her thirty years to recognize the fact.

3. But did Trinity College really refuse an offer from Wycliffe? The facts, as I gather them from the records of Trinity College, are these: On Feb. 14, 1880, a communication was received from the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School (as Wycliffe was then called) containing the proposal referred to by Mr. Blake. Three days later the corporation of Trinity College met, when the communication was read and a committee appointed to consider it and report at the next meeting of the corporation. The next meeting was held in regular course, on May 13 following, and in the minutes of that meeting the first item after routine business is as follows: "Letter read from Mr. Hoyle, secretary of the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School Corporation, withdrawing the proposal contained in the communications of the board of management of that corporation of Feb. 14 last."

4. In parts of his letter Mr. Blake is so vague as to be unintentionally misleading. He speaks of Trinity not accepting the offer, when apparently he means that Wycliffe withdrew the offer. In one and the same breath he refers to matters of thirty years ago as if they were of to-day, without differentiating them. He speaks of "a vague something which he understands it, 'is still open to Trinity,' as if it were some kind of union or amalgamation proposed by Wycliffe. How far from fact any such idea is an illustration will serve to show."

5. Mr. Blake makes a mistake, which is most pathetic, when he supposes that financial considerations are these which weigh chiefly with Trinity College in seeking union with Wycliffe and in proposing to move to Queen's Park. It may be difficult for one of Mr. Blake's temper to understand it, but the simple truth is, that in these matters we are seeking peace, and the well-being of our church, with financial considerations occupying a secondary place.

WHITE CATS OFTEN DEAF.

For This Reason Dark Haired Ones Are the Best Mousers.

"I have possessed white cats that could hear, but they have been the exception, and that applies as much to the short haired pet of the fressie as to the aristocratic long haired of the shows," says a writer in The Scotsman. "Moreover, I have observed that the white cats dilute of hearing are those with blue eyes."

"The cats with orange eyes which I have had could hear quite well, those having odd eyes—that is, one orange and one blue—could hear a little, but not well, and those having blue eyes were quite deaf, altho all have come from the same litter."

"All kittens have blue eyes until they are about six weeks old, when the eyes change to their adult or permanent color. But, show how widely the permanently blue eyes differ in hue from the other eyes, I may say that immediately the eyes of white cats open they will shine bright red in the dark, and neither the ephemeral kitten blue nor any other color eye does this."

"One peculiarity of deaf cats is that they seem to have an exaggerated sense of feeling in their feet pads. It is very difficult for a heavy walking animal, such as man is, to approach a white cat from behind without giving it warning, and this I attribute to the extreme sensitiveness of the cat's feet, recording the slightest tremor of the ground, and so to a certain extent taking the place of hearing."

"It is a belief held by some country people that white cats do not make good mousers, good mousers or rat catchers, even if they do hear. I am inclined to think there is a foundation for this idea, and I would go further and say that dark colored cats make the best mouser and rat catcher, because they hear best."

Why the Grand Trunk Commands the Montreal Trade and Remains the Popular Route.

It is the shortest route. It is the only double-track line. It is a fact that a double-track contributes to safety and comfort. It runs along the shores of Lake Ontario and River St. Lawrence, and thru the principal towns and cities. It has an unequalled road-bed, and with 100-lb. rails. It operates Pullman "up-to-date" sleeping cars with their great reputation. It runs handsome vestibuled modern coaches. It has a "dining car and parlor car" service that cannot be surpassed. It has polite and attentive conductors and porters. It is the route of Canada's fastest and best train, "The International Limited."

Always in the lead, it deserves your patronage. Four trains daily each way, the a. m. and 10.30 p. m. (Business Man's train) being the winter.
