The Intercolonial.

A Surplus of $87,000 Shown for the Year Just Passed.

OTTAWA, July 31.—The net surplus of earnings over expenditure on the Intercolonial railway for the year ending June 30 last is $86,932. These figures were obtained from the minister of railways before he left for England this afternoon. It will be generally conceded that this is a very good showing when the record of the road under late government is taken into consideration. There is no difference in the system of book keeping from what was the case when the Conservatives were in power, and therefore it is very satisfactory to see a neat surplus of this kind instead of the big deficits which were annually recorded against the road when Mr. Haggart, who did try to make both ends meet, by starving the road, had charge.

The result of the year's operations has been even better than was predicted by Mr. Blair. The minister said that he expected a surplus of about $40,000 or $50,000, at the same time adding that he would not be surprised if it were a little better than that. It is just twice as large as Mr. Blair put it. As already stated in this correspondence, the road is in excellent condition throughout. The year's figures show the traffic, both passenger and freight, to be the largest on record.

A PLEASANT OUTING.

Americans Enjoy Their Outing on the Miramichi.

The party of American tourists who have been sojourning on the Tabusintac for the past two weeks arrived here Saturday. The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, Dr. and Mrs. Talson, Mrs. and Miss Jones, and Messrs. Thomas, Irvine and Stone.

They spent two weeks on the Tabusintac and Bartibogue, away from civilization and had a most enjoyable time and all are delighted with their trip. They caught enough trout to keep their table supplied. Mrs. Talson caught the largest trout, it weighed 4 1/2 lbs.

Monday morning Dr. Talson, Mr. Kendall and Mr. Stone left for Cal's Pond. Shortly after they had left the sad intelligence was received that Mrs. Kendall's father had died suddenly at his home at Cambridge, Mass. Word was at once sent to Mr. Kendall who returned at once and he and the ladies left yesterday for Cambridge, Mass.

Y. M. C. A.

Rev. Mr. McNichol addressed the meeting Sunday afternoon. His words of advice to young men were very much appreciated. (Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Plummer will be the speaker at same hour, 4 o'clock.)

CORONATION.

Preparations Proceed Apace—The Ceremony to be Curtailed.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—New preparations for the coronation of King Edward, which event is to take place Aug. 9, are proceeding apace. The erection of familiar steel barriers, the cleansing and decorating of the stands and the re-hanging of decorations are in order. The outward preparations are an old story, but public interest in the actual preparations is kindled by official assurance that the King is getting on fine and that His Majesty is ready to bear the fatigue of being crowned a week from today.

The publication of the official programme of the procession shows no special changes from the original arrangement, but the ceremonies in Westminster Abbey have been curtailed by the omission of the Litany and sermon, and by the recital of the recognition once instead of four times. A new series of rehearsals have begun at the Abbey, with dignified movements and recitals, and these are far more impressive than anything connected with the street spectacle. The city council of Westminster, in compliance with the King's wishes, have voted that no further expenditures be incurred in replacing the street decorations. The club houses, which line a considerable portion of the route, and most of the other buildings are being re-decorated; the Canadian arch is being re-dressed with fresh specimens of Canada's agricultural products, and the Indian contingent is erecting an arch on Parliament street. The illuminations on Coronation night will be largely as originally planned. The vicinity of the Bank of England, the Royal Exchange and the Mansion House will be a blaze of electric lights, and the Strand, Trafalgar Square, Whitehall, Pall Mall, St. James Square and Piccadilly will be gorgeous with illuminations, many of which will be displayed on Kitchener night, August 6, also.

Horse Show Features at The St. John Exhibition.

Arrangements are now concluded for an exhibit and display of horses at the St. John Exhibition, which will far eclipse anything in this line attempted in the Maritime Province. An enthusiastic committee of horsemen have the matter in charge, and as a recent meeting, outlined the following programme:

On Monday, Sept. 1st.—All the Labor Unions of St. John and other centres will parade the city and proceed to the Exhibition grounds, where they will pass in review before the Grand Stand. In this procession will be 200 mounted teamsters. Special prizes have been arranged for their horses, which will first be paraded and judged. Following this, a complete programme of sports, including horse racing, foot races, tug-of-war, etc. will be put on. Tuesday 9 a. m.—Judging of Melton Draughts, Heavy Draughts, Cyderdals, Shires, Percherons and Suffolk Punches; 5 p. m.—Judging of Carriage horses in harness (open to all carriage horses on the grounds). Wednesday 9 a. m.—Judging of Carriage horses (on the halter) and Standard Bred horses. Afternoon—2 1/2 Moosepath Park, 2 3/4 Class, trot and pace, purse $250; 2 28 Class, trot and pace, purse $250; 2 28 Class, trot and pace, purse $250. Thursday 9 a. m.—Before the Grand Stand, judging of Thoroughbreds, Hackneys, French Coaches and ponies. Afternoon—Moosepath Park, 2 40 Class, trot and pace, purse $80; Free-for-all, trot and pace, purse $50. Friday 9 a. m.—Brought competition, harnessing competition; 3 p. m.—Parade and judging of matched pairs and single carriage horses, owned in the city or county of St. John, followed by a general parade of all prize winning horses.

St. John Murder.

Another Brutal Murder Has Been Committed.

The body of William Doherty, aged 17 years, and son of Joseph Doherty, of No. 73 Brussels street, was found yesterday afternoon a little beyond Rockwood Park boundary, and there is every evidence that the young man was murdered in the most foul manner.

The body, when discovered, was a ghastly sight, the face being badly bruised, cut and blood-stained; so badly in fact, that persons who knew the young man well could not recognize him.

The case is one of mystery and Coroner Beryman and the police are working on it, but without a clue as to just how the death was caused or by whom. There is little doubt in the minds of those who have examined the body that it is a clear case of murder, but why or when the young man lost his life is so far a mystery.

JOHN NIVEN, In person.

HUBERT RUSSELL.

Young Son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Russell

DROWNED

Off the Steamer Miramichi While on an Excursion Down River.

Thursday evening about 7 o'clock the sad news was received here by a telephone message from Capt. Bullock at Black Brook, to Col. Call, that the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Russell had fallen overboard and was drowned.

Thursday morning a merry party left Newcastle for a trip down river. Among the party were—Mrs. Allan Russell with three children, her sister, Miss Copp, Miss Brooks and others, besides there were other parties with a number of children so that the boat had an unusual number on board. The day was very pleasant and all enjoyed the day at Bay du Vin.

On the return trip, while the boat was running at full speed between Bay du Vin and Oak Point, Hubert Russell, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Russell, who was an active little fellow and had climbed up on the seat and rail, fell overboard and was drowned before his mother's eyes. The party were sitting on the upper rear deck and only women were in that vicinity. The engineer heard the screams of the mother and others and immediately reversed the engine and sent the boat full speed astern, but before a boat could be lowered the little fellow had gone down.

The scene at the wharf at Newcastle, on the arrival of the boat about 9 o'clock, was pathetic in the extreme. The father, to whom the news was gently broken, did not know which one of his boys he had lost until the boat arrived. The mother and party were prostrated with grief and were speedily transferred to a coach and driven to their home.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the family in their sad bereavement.

The officers and crew of the Miramichi did everything possible to save the Little fellow.

As we go to press word was received that the body had been recovered, it having been washed ashore near Church Point.

King to Return to London on Wednesday.

His Majesty Holds Investiture on the Royal Yacht at Cowes.

COWES, Isle of Wight, Aug. 2.—The beautiful weather that prevailed on the Solent today brought out scores of yachts to Cowes, preliminary to the royal yacht squadron regatta, which will take place next week. During the day King Edward was on deck on the Albert and Victoria, where the yacht club officials visited him and displayed the special prizes of plate for the regatta, offered by Emperor William and others. He was greatly pleased. King Edward held an investiture on the royal yacht today and conferred distinctions upon a number of recipients of coronation honors, the king now proposes to return to London next Wednesday.

King Edward personally conferred the decoration of the R. M. of St. Michael and St. George upon Michael Henry Herbert, the British ambassador to the United States, who was subsequently granted an audience by his majesty.

CUT OF THE DEPTH

The President of the Fair Commission has been elected to the position of President of the Fair Commission.

Mr. John Harvey, Mayor of Amherst, Ont., states: "Only persons who have experienced the torture of itching piles can form any idea of what I suffered from this horrible disease. I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and can positively say that it completely cured me. I tried every other remedy for piles, but none gave me any relief. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only one that has cured me. It is a waste of time and money to try substitutes. Go to a box, at all druggists, or to Mr. Chase, 100, St. George Street, Toronto."

There are several imitations of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but only one is the only preparation that will give you relief and cure you for piles of every form. You can rely on it absolutely. It is the only one that has cured me. It is a waste of time and money to try substitutes. Go to a box, at all druggists, or to Mr. Chase, 100, St. George Street, Toronto."

Dr. Chase's Ointment

A Word To The Great Army of Summer Toilers.

If You are not as Robust, Vigorous and Happy as Others in August, a Bottle or Two of PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Will Give You Health, Full Energy and Happiness.

Many men toiling in offices, stores and work shops during the hot summer weather, and women weighted with the work and cares of home, are critically near the breaking down point. The symptoms of coming sickness and disease are manifested in sleeplessness, nervousness, tired feelings, languidness, irritability, falling appetite and poor blood circulation.

Paine's Celery Compound is a precious boon to the ailing, sick and rundown in the August weather. A bottle or two used at once will quickly bestow the needed strength to battle against the weakening and enervating effect of the oppressive heat, and will enable men and women to go through the necessary routine of daily toil with heart, cool and energy. Paine's Celery Compound is especially distinguished for its ability to build up rundown systems in hot weather. Mrs. Mossop, of Winnipeg, Ont., says:

"I have much pleasure in giving my testimony in favor of Paine's Celery Compound. I was entirely broken down by hard work, anxiety and sleeplessness, and had pains all through my body. Doctor's remedies had no effect, and nothing but your medicine cured me. I feel like a new man now, and I would strongly urge all sufferers to use it, as it is the best in the world."

Is it a dumb child he is having? I think not. In fact, as I was passing his door just now the sounds I heard within rather led me to believe it was quite the reverse.

THE SAVINGS BANK OF HEALTH is lots of red and vitalizing blood to nourish and invigorate the body. If your blood is thin and watery use "Ferrozone." It supplies the necessary elements such as phosphorus and iron, and quickly restores lost strength and spirits. Ferrozone is an unequalled resource for the tired, sick and the run-down; stimulates appetite, aids digestion, soothes the nerves and makes the system healthy for disease to exist. No tonic does so much good in a short time as Ferrozone. Get it today from any druggist for 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Sold by A. E. Shaw.

He's going in for politics. Would he make a splendid diplomat, though?

What? Why, he's a deaf mute. Exactly. Just think how easy it would be for him to be absolutely dumb when it was expedient.

Yes, but then he could never talk without showing his hand.

Does the fact that I have money make any difference to you, dear? He asked. Of course it does, my own, he answered. It is such a comfort to know that if I should die you would be provided for. But suppose I should die? Then I would be provided for.

There's a burglar in the house Benjamin, said Mrs. Frett, arousing her husband in the dead of the morning. Hear that? She continued. It's surely the sound of a chisel. He's a safe burglar.

Wine of Tar, Honey and Wild Cherry soothes and allays all irritated conditions of the throat and promptly relieves the Cough. This preparation does not contain any injurious ingredients whatever.

You lent him the money to buy that rule from you? Yassin, answered Mr. Pinkley. It doesn't look like business, but it was such a good chance to get rid of the rule that I couldn't help advancing the cash.

Minard's Liniment is used by Physicians.

When ordering meats, remember that beef when boiled loses one pound of weight in every four and when roasted eighteen ounces. Mutton loses even more than beef. This should be thought of where much meat is used.

A GOOD THING, KEEP IT GOING. When you find a good thing, help it along, keep it going. Many users of Kerdrick's White Liniment cannot say too much in its favor. Have you tried it?

Do not have a cast iron rule that things in your home fitments must match. Often monotony is the result. Sometimes varying materials in harmonious coloring are very much to be preferred to those that match.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the House.

Those who are fond of old fashioned odors will enjoy a scent bag filled with the following mixture: A half pound of dried lavender, an ounce each of dried thyme and mint, two teaspoonfuls of ground cloves and caraway, and an ounce of well dried salt. Put into little silk bags and slip under the pillow or in a drawer of clothing.

Like other evil cramps and diarrhoeas come suddenly. Promptly give a dose of Perry Davis' Painkiller and the pains will go immediately. A bottle at hand will save hours of suffering—be prepared.

What is the office of the lungs? A teacher asked a small pupil in a class in physiology.

The chest, she promptly replied. And, said the teacher telling the story, I guess she was somewhat near right, for the lungs certainly do business in the chest.

He's going in for politics. Would he make a splendid diplomat, though?

What? Why, he's a deaf mute. Exactly. Just think how easy it would be for him to be absolutely dumb when it was expedient.

Yes, but then he could never talk without showing his hand.

OVER THE WIRES.

Died on The Train.

Trooper Gregson, of the second mounted rifle, who belongs to Brandon Man., died on an Intercolonial train Friday afternoon coming to Montreal from Halifax. The trooper was thought to be sleeping and was discovered to be dead when the conductor attempted to get his ticket. Heart disease is supposed to have caused his death. He was 19 years old and his widow's mother is in Brandon. A brother is with the fifth Canadian contingent.

Cholera and Storm in Philippines.

MASHA, July 27.—During the 48 hours ended this morning 150 fresh cases of cholera were reported in Manila. No reports regarding the disease were received from the provinces, owing to the storm. The typhoon which prevailed over central Luzon is subsiding. Telegraph and telephone wires are prostrated. Floods have prevailed in central Luzon and considerable damage has been done.

Mrs. Youngwed—Yes, Mr. Youngwed didn't feel at all well this morning, so I just made him stay home from the office.

Mrs. Naylor—Indeed! I notice all your carpets are up and your back shed's painted and—

Mrs. Youngwed—Yes, I got Mr. Youngwed to do all that while he was home to day.

You played nothing but tragedies, said the friend.

They were worse than tragedies, answered Mr. Stormington Barnes as he stopped figuring his expense account. They were financial catastrophes.

The bird lover had noticed that the family which had moved into the house on the adjoining lot owned a parrot of an exceedingly rare breed, and he made bold to call at the house for the purpose of getting a nearer look at the bird.

I beg pardon, madam, he said, by way of introducing himself to the woman who came to the door, but I am something of an ornithologist, and—

Then you have come to the wrong place, she interrupted him. We have not found a bug of any kind in the house yet.

I see that the report that the actress who married the capitalist a few months ago had left her husband and meant to go back to the stage, is denied.

What was said to be the cause? It was alleged that he had run through all his money.

Oh I see. The story was a little premature.

They say he courted her ten years before asking her to be his wife. I guess it was about that long.

What in the world was the matter? Well you see, being a lawyer, I suppose he didn't want to give up a good case as long as it could be worked.

Say, Reilly, I hear you had trouble with Boggs.

Yes. We were down by the lubly creek. He sez, the water is Reilly this mornin'. What do you mean sez I. I mean, sez he, it's very dirty, an' wid dat I swung me right.

The barkeepers had a dance the other night.

Well! First number on the programme was Coming Thro' the Rye.

John is so domestic in his tastes! said the Billville matron.

He is? Yes, he's been all day in the hot sun trying to kill a rattlesnake to get a rattle for the baby.

Yes, said the engaged girl, Dick is very methodical. He gives me one kiss when he comes and two when he goes away.

That's always been his way, returned her dearest friend. I've heard lots of girls comment on it.

Thus it happens that they cease to speak to each other.

Mrs. Fondma—Sorry to disturb you at this hour, doctor, but we can't imagine what ails the child Doctor—Cold, perhaps. Did you have him out today?

Yes, but only to his grandmother's.

Ah! Overfed, that's all!

He sleeps.

"Has your husband a good ear for music?" asked Mrs. Oldgirl of Mrs. Newed. "I am afraid not," replied Mrs. Newed. "He seems to think everything he hears played in church is a lullaby."

And Eleven Good Sense.

Howitt: That rich old fool wouldn't get the happy life, wouldn't. Jewett—Well, he may be rich and old, but he's no fool.

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

A MENACE TO THE LIVE STOCK TRADE.

The attention of live stock exporters, breeders and the press, is called to the case of H. F. Page, of Mission City, D. C. who was compelled to pay $1000 duty on ten Percheron horses exported to the United States through the port of Sumas, Washington, in October 1901. These horses were all accompanied by the proper registered papers of the American Percheron Horse Breeders Association, as required by the laws of the U. S. The contention of Collector Huestis was that, inasmuch as the animals were imported to be offered for sale they were subject to the duty. Mr. Page appealed the case, and the testimony was heard by Judge DeVries of the Board of Appraisers, whose headquarters are in New York. This board have the case under consideration, and will render their decision some time in August.

The action of Collector Huestis has been rather severely criticised by the Ranch, a well known agricultural paper of Seattle, Washington, to which journal he contributed the following defense of his action: "H. F. Page, the importer you mention is an alien stock breeder residing in British Columbia. On October 18th, 1901, he imported at Lumas four stallions and six mares, making entry for same as pure bred stock, and claiming that they were entitled to free entry under the provision of article No. 475 of the existing tariff, which provides that any animals pure bred of a recognized breed, duly registered and certified as such by the regulations of the Hon. Secretary of the Treasury, shall be admitted free when imported specially for breeding purposes. Pedigree certificates were presented with the entry, but as the animals were evidently imported for sale, the importer was required to deposit the amount of duty that would accrue in case the animals were found not to be entitled to free entry, and was given an opportunity to produce satisfactory evidence that they were intended specially for breeding purposes, which said evidence was lacking on entry. Neither the deputy collector at Sumas nor this office questioned the genuineness of the registration papers as intimated in your editorial, and Mr. Page well knows that was not the reason that he was required to deposit the duty. (Note:—Mr. Page says "he was never so informed") It was purely a question of evidence on the point of the purpose for which the animals were imported. As you are aware, Percherons are valuable for draft horses, and a proper enforcement of the tariff, as well as regard for the protection of American stock raisers alike demand a full investigation of the facts."

Immediate action should be taken by our live stock associations, and a strong protest entered against such unfair ruling. As the "Ranch," very pertinently says "it is well known that many firms make a business of importing from Canada and from the old world pure bred stock of all kinds; and that such stock is permitted to pass in free, provided it is accompanied by the proper certificates of registration. The Government does not follow such stock after it leaves the custom office, and the importer is free to dispose of this stock to any one he likes, and at whatever price he can get. If collector Huestis is upheld in this contention that pure bred stock must be imported for breeding purposes only, and cannot be sold or worked, it will paralyze the whole business of importing horses and injure the trade in other lines. We think that the various Breeders Associations should act on this case, in order to bring properly before the board of appraisers the wide spread injury an adverse decision in the Page case would have on the whole breeding industry.

ECONOMICAL PORK PRODUCTION.

In the past some objections have been raised by the packers re the use of storage plants and roots for pork production, but the light of recent experiments would seem to show their fears or objections groundless; in fact, the good influence of a considerable proportion of green food or roots in the ration of a pig can scarcely be overestimated. It has long been known that skim milk has a most beneficial influence upon the thrift of the porkers, and quality of the pork, even when the amount fed, forms only a small part of the ration. Green food and roots seem in a large measure to be capable of supplementing the now—in view of the tremendous expansion in the Canadian bacon industry,—quite inadequate supply of dairy by-products, for use in pig feeding. The farmer whose conditions permit may go even further than to use forage plants as a supplementary food. He may even make them the chief item of his pig feed if he is careful to use a good proportion of grain, (oats, peas and barley), during the last month of the feeding period.

As the season is rather far advanced for an exhaustive discussion of forage crops suitable for this purpose, I shall confine my remarks to such as are still seasonable.

Clover:—Probably no crop is better adapted to young pigs than clover, and a bit of stubble used for this purpose will give very good returns. So far as our experiments go, the pork so produced is of good quality.

Rape:—Of all the crops used here so far for pasturing pigs, rape quite easily stands first. The principal points in its favor are: (1) its quick growth, (2) its wide range, as it grows well on almost any kind of land, (3) its long season, as it may be sown as late as September and still do fairly well, (4) its evident palatability, as the pigs eat it greedily, and (5) its good effect upon the quality of the bacon, producing as it does, almost invariably a good firm carcass. Rape may be expected to be fit for pasturing from 6 to 8 weeks from date of sowing. It should be sown in rows about 24" apart, since when so grown it gives the greatest return per acre, and is best adapted for pasturing. It should be sown fairly thickly in the rows, say, three lbs. of seed per acre. An acre may be expected to carry from 20 to 40 pig through a season, depending on the season and the condition of the coop when the pigs are turned in.

Vetches:—Vetches also are valuable as forage for swine, and may be, under exceptional conditions, sown late in the season. Especially is this true of the hairy Vetch, which species has the peculiar quality of growing up again after having been cut off or eaten down.

Oats:—Probably no green crop will give a better return in pork as oats. They may be sown late or early in the season at the rate of 5 or 6 bushels to the acre and the pigs turned on about a month after they germinate. The fault of this crop is that it lasts only a short time, as it does not seem to be able to recover when once eaten down.

Artichokes:—Another crop of great value for pork production is the artichoke. It should be sown late in the fall or very early in the spring. They will do the harvesting themselves. This is a most excellent crop for brood sows in spring and autumn.

Almost all varieties of juicy forage crops are suitable for pork production, the sorts mentioned above being probably the best for Canada.

The question as to the advisability of allowing pigs to graze, or shutting in a small pen and feeding them the green crops, does not seem to have been positively settled yet, for while greater daily gains may be expected where animals are kept in close quarters, there is always the item of extra labor for cutting and carrying the forage.

Another item of some importance to the feeder is the comparative economy of Winter and Summer feeding of pigs. According to various experiments conducted here recently, pork may be produced at about $1.00 per hundred pounds, live weight, less cost of green feed, as well as to low temperature, which must be overcome by food or artificial heat.

BRAIN POWER. HOW IT MAY BE STRENGTHENED AND INCREASED.

The brain is a great nerve battery that presides over all the powers and impulses of the human body.

Very frequently as a result of poor blood it becomes feeble and a general weakness of the entire system follows.

No remedy possesses the marvelous brain strengthening power that Ferrozene has demonstrated in thousands of cases.

It contains abundance of phosphorus and iron which are essential to the formation of red vitalizing blood, and in this way supplies the brain with extra power to perform its numerous and important duties.

Ferrozene is the best preparation for brain workers, and those inclined to a sedentary life. It improves the appetite, insures good digestion, regularizes the bowels and helps the stomach to do its work.

Lawyers, ministers, and those whose occupation entails much thinking and brain labor, will find Ferrozene of immense value, because of its power to stimulate mental activity. Students who take Ferrozene regularly, find, it not only clears the brain, and makes it more receptive, but makes them strong in body as well as in mind.

A medical student of Toronto University who has proved the good qualities of Ferrozene, says: "On my study table there is always a place for Ferrozene. I find by keeping my digestion in perfect order, my mental activity is increased, and I am enabled to accomplish a great deal of hard work. I consider Ferrozene at the same time food for the brain, blood and nerves, and can highly recommend it."

Very few are so strong and healthy as a result of Ferrozene would not hesitate. It is good for the young and old alike, and is prepared in convenient tablet form, price per box 50c, sold by all druggists, and N. C. Johnson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The greatest rest comes from freedom of mind. We can keep our minds free if we will but learn how. Let them take up one thing at a time and be content.

A FAMILY NECESSITY.

Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chas. E. Grove's Kidney Liver Pills are the most powerful and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose, 25c. a box.

EASING THE CHEST.

It is the cold on the chest that causes people and makes them sick and sore. The cough that accompanies the chest cold is racking. When the cold is a hard one and the cough correspondingly severe, every coughing spell strains the whole system. We feel sure that if we could only stop coughing for a day or so we could get over the cold, but we try everything we know of or can hear of in the shape of medicine. We take big doses of quinine until the head buzzes and roar; we try to sweat it out; we take big draughts of whiskey, but the thing that has its grip on the chest hangs on, and won't be shaken loose.

If the irritation that makes us cough could be stopped, we would get better promptly, and it is because Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is so soothing and healing to the inflamed throat that it is so efficient a remedy for coughs and colds. This really great medicine is a very simple preparation, of natural extracts of burdock and roots, and a never deceives. It heals the throat and the desire to cough is gone. When the cough goes the work of cure is almost complete. All druggists sell Adamson's Balsam, 25c. Try this famous Balsam for your sore chest and you will find prompt relief.

Clover for pillows needs to be well dried, and only the blossoms used, and should be packed first in slips of stout muslin.

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30.00, cured him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT, and sold him in four months for $85.00. Profit on Liniment, $54.00.

DO YOU BELCH GAS?
If you have uneasy sensations in the stomach, a bad taste in the mouth, headache—remember that ten drops of Polsen's Nervine in sweetened water is a quick and certain cure. Nervine aids digestion, dispels the gas, makes you comfortable and free from distress at once. Nervine is splendid for cramps, colic, dysentery, stomach and bowel troubles, and is only 25 cents. Better try it.

If you can get some cedar dust, sprinkle it on your stove while cooking vegetables that have a strong odor.

SCORES OF USES.
While L. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful cure for over exertion, sore throat and piles, it is found to be an almost daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chapped lips, sunburn, burns, scalds, and cuts, and every form of itching, irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

Some of the western papers are already attacking the proposed conference of the members for the maritime provinces, and condemning its work in advance. This is unwise because it has a tendency to produce dissatisfaction in these provinces and to justify the belief that they are of no account in the Confederation. The people of the West are too much disposed to think only of themselves and to imagine that Ontario and Quebec are only to be considered. While the people of the Maritime Provinces are quite willing to admit the superiority of Ontario and Quebec in some respects, they are not willing to be entirely kept out of view and regulated to the inferior position. Their interests are as dear to them as those of Ontario and Quebec are to the people who live in those Provinces. It is very evident that in framing the act of confederation many things were left out of view and a number of mistakes were made. The amount of money granted for the maintenance of the Maritime Provinces was not sufficient, and it is the duty of the representatives of Canada to have this rectified. It would be well for the Western papers to wait a little and see what the Maritime Conference really proposes to do before condemning it.

"The cultivation of deer is another fad of the millionaire sportsman, as are also artificial trout-streams and salmon-fisheries. One club in Nova Scotia is the most exclusive in point of wealth of any in this country. It is on the Restigouche, and its members among its members the Vanderbilts, Webbs, Pierpont Morgan, William C. Whitney and others."

The Cosmopolitan.
We are not sure that the author of the article from which we clip the following is a resident of the town of Chatham in this county or not such an inference would seem to be justifiable from the fact that Newcastle happenings invariably appear in the St. John papers as Chatham news. Be this as it may the Advocate will mail to the author a Souvenir with a map of this Province. Also a request that he read up the history of this Province enough to learn that the Restigouche River is not Nova Scotia and that the text book American schools are not as complicit as they should be.

FIREY PROTECTION.

We are glad to learn that our remarks in reference to the unprotected state of the Northwest have had the desired effect, and that now that river is being carefully guarded.
We understand that when the wardens were appointed last spring and the Dominion Inspector was in Chatham for that purpose, Mr. M. Sutherland had just a list of the men required, but in conversation with the Commissioner in the Inspector concluded that the local government and the lessees would guard the Northwest from Redbank to the Big Hole and that no Dominion officers were required, but when Overseer Sutherland learned the state of affairs he promptly ordered one of his men to look after this section, which he is now doing.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS.

OTTAWA, July 31.—The customs revenue is still growing. A statement given out by the department tonight shows that the revenue for the month of July, which closes today, was $225,000 larger than for July of last year. The figures for the month were $2,652,241, as compared with $2,427,247 for the month of July last year.

Late Literary News.

It is not often that one finds a love-story which is absolutely satisfactory, and a fine love-story ending in remembrance is a still rarer thing. Such, however, is "Broken Toys" with its Roman setting and its atmosphere of noble love and tragic renunciation. Another story which will interest readers of the August Cosmopolitan is "The Soul of Mozart" which centers in the theme of transmigration of souls, a problem fascinating even to the ancients. It is a tradition that society stories are written by those who have never moved in society; but Mrs. Poulton Bigelow writes "The Story of a Scented Note" from within the charmed circle. The tale of Heine's passion for Mathilde by Richard Le Gallienne, and a pretty little Japanese romance help to make the number an interesting one for reading on cool verandas by the sea or within the city's walls.

Hunting on Miramichi.

Henry Braithwaite, the guide and hunter, has leased from Timothy Lynch the fishing and hunting privileges on Lynch's lumber limits on the Clearwater and other branches of the South West Miramichi. The terms under which Braithwaite secures the leases are, it is understood, that he will protect the property and in return he has the use for his hunting and fishing parties of all Lynch's camps and other privileges. Braithwaite expects to return to the Miramichi as soon as the condition of Mrs. Braithwaite will permit of his leaving home for any length of time.—Fredericton Gleaner.

DIED.

At Chatham, N. B. Friday, August 1st, 1902 Mrs. Annie Johnston, relict of the late Robert Johnston, aged 87 years.

So Thoughtful of Her.

Young Husband (picking up bundle from table)—What have you here, love? Something for me?
Young Wife—Yes, dear. I went downtown this morning expressly to buy them for you. I hope you'll like them.
Young Husband—Like them? Of course I'll like them if you bought them. But what are they?
Young Wife—They're nightcaps, dear. I heard you tell Sparkies this morning that you'd go down to the club this evening with him and wet a nightcap, and I made up my mind right away that I'd save you that trouble by seeing that you had some in the house. Just open the parcel and try them on, won't you, love?

Most Important.

"I thought you said this was a life or death case?" growled the sleepy druggist, who had been awakened at 3 a.m. by a man who wanted a two cent stamp.
"So it is," declared the man; "so it is. I've got to mail this letter to my wife at once that she may get it in time to postpone her return home long enough for me to have a new mirror put in the parlor and the hall repapered. Some of the boys spent the evening with me tonight."

A Turkish Custom.

Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cemeteries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have basins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead and, like everything else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to curry their favor.

Oil for the Children.

Give them oil—cod-liver oil. It's curious to see the result. Give it to the peevish, fretful child, and he laughs. Give it to the pale, anæmic child, and his face becomes rosy and full of health. Take a flat-chested child, or a child that has stopped growing, give him the oil, and he will grow big and strong like the rest.

This is not a new scheme. It has been done for years. Of course you must use the right oil. Scott's Emulsion is the one. Scott's Emulsion neither looks nor tastes like oil because we are so careful in making it pleasant to take.

WHITNEYVILLE.

A series of special meetings are being conducted in the Baptist church here, by the Rev. Mr. Hurst and Mr. Geo. H. Bosman, the Baptist evangelists who have recently been engaged in evangelistic work in Lytleton. The meetings are very well attended, and very helpful to many in the community. Mr. Bosman is accompanied by his wife.

Miss Maggie J. Dunnet returned on Saturday from a very pleasant visit to friends in Montreal and Campbellton.

Miss Beatrice Brown of Newcastle spent a part of last week visiting friends here.

Mrs. Wm. Tozer of Lytleton is visiting her numerous friends in this section.

Miss Maude Menzies has gone to Nelson to make a visit.

Mrs. M. McAllister of Lytleton spent Sunday with friends here.

Mrs. James Parks and children of Redbank, recently spent a day visiting in this community.

The marriage of Mr. Benj. McTavish to Miss Lottie Parke, both of Whitneyville, was solemnized at Newcastle by the Rev. T. G. Johnstone on Wednesday last. Their many friends here unite in wishing them a happy wedded life.

Mr. H. S. Whitney, who has been spending some time at his old home here, intends leaving on Thursday for Benton Harbor, Mich., to again resume his duties there.

DOAKTOWN.

Doaktown is building up very fast but its outskirts are getting trimmed by fire. In May, Miles Storey had his house burned. Valued at $200 and no insurance.

In the same month D. Minor had his house burned, valued at $300 and no insurance. In July, D. Betts had his house and barn burned valued at $1000. Eight hundred dollars insurance.

There was an agent here last week doing our town and vicinity who happened to overstep the law in one of his transactions and he was visited by an officer at the Murray Hotel on Saturday morning.

■We hear a lot of remarks through the local papers and otherwise about favors being easily obtained from the government in times of election, more especially in the matter of roads and bridges. Now I wish to state my experience in this matter. Since 1880, fifteen years, I have been By-road Commissioner, and I cannot say that any demand I made on our local representatives for money to do any necessary work was always immediately attended to, it mattered not whether the election was coming or going. Now, my dear people, let us try and have a better opinion of our members and not to picture ourselves neglected in the long period between elections. During my term of office as road Commissioner, I corresponded with several members, chiefly Hons. M. Adams and J. P. Burchill who always found time to give a favorable reply.

POKEMOUCHE.

Messrs. Thor, Power, Wm. Power and W. Reid returned to Newcastle recently. They have been engaged for some time in completing the Pokemouche R. C. church. The church, which was built some years ago, is 60x45 with a vestry 40x24, with a spire. The church was built by Mr. P. Connors of Chatham, and the Plastering by Mr. Jas. Howell of Bathurst. The spire and interior finishing were designed and built under the superintendence of Mr. Thos. Power. The interior is of Gothic architecture, with large and spacious gallery. The whole work reflects credit on Mr. Power and his two able assistants.

Also on the energy of the pastor, Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald and his congregation at Pokemouche can now boast of having one of the neatest churches on the North Shore.

The annual church picnic will be held on the church grounds on August 10th and 11th.

Since the warm weather set in the crops are progressing favorably. May especially will be a fine crop this season.

Blueberries promise to be a plentiful crop. They are canned largely by Messrs. A. & R. Laggie, Inukman.

JANEVILLE.

We are having a few fine summer days at last which is good for the crops. We had a very heavy thunder shower on Tuesday evening but no damage was done.

The roads are very good now and a great many wheels are to be seen on them.

The salmon fishing still continues very poor. It has been a failure this summer.

Miss Charles Smith and son, Mr. Stafford Smith of Teteogouche are spending a few days with Mrs. H. A. Coire.

Mr. Ephraim Scott was in Bathurst one day last week.

Mr. Henry Roy of Bathurst, is spending a few days with his cousin Mr. Murray Morrison.

Miss Ida Payne is visiting her aunt Mrs. Joseph Scott.

Mr. Fred Roy went to Bathurst on Saturday last.

Mr. Wilson Daley of Clifton spent part of last week at Mr. H. A. Coire's.

LYTTLETON.

A very enjoyable time took place at William Matchett's, when Mr. Jacob Silliker of Lytleton, was united in marriage to Miss Clara Matchett of Red Bank, oldest daughter of William Matchett. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Murray of Redbank. The happy couple then drove to the bride's home where tea was then served. Quite a number of friends were present and a very good time was spent. The groom was supported by Mr. Byron Tozer. The bride was accompanied by her sister Susan. She received a number of nice presents.

The Release Of No. 201

BY DAVID H. TALMADGE

Copyright, 1902, by D. H. Talmadge

The accommodation train, No. 201 of the schedule, on the branch road was stuck in the snow, and there seemed to be no relief for it. No provision had been made for such a contingency because the branch, sheltered by trees and bluffs, had been considered proof against such misfortune. The engineer, who had been on the run for twenty years, was too astonished for words when the small locomotive failed to cut the drift into which it had plunged so confidently, and he sat on his seat staring dumbly at the conductor, who swore shockingly and gestulated with his arms.

In the coach were two passengers, both young men. One was the type of commercial salesman sent out by small jobbing houses, well dressed, self-assured, crudely philosophic; the other, by appearance, plainly a farmer. He wore a baggy, shiny black suit, and his white collar was attached to aingham shirt by a white bone button, sewed with black thread. His appearance was enhanced by a carefully trimmed shock of hair and whiskers.

The commercial salesman had arisen when the train stopped and had walked to the door.

"I guess," he remarked after a minute, "that we're stalled."

He whistled a popular melody as he walked down the aisle and held with some amusement that the other man was clutching the back of a seat, his eyes filled with consternation.

"Provoking, isn't it?" the drummer said as he lighted a cigar and drew a paper covered book from his grip.

"Yes-by-gee!" the other stammered. "Say, do you mean that we're stuck?"

"That's it exactly. Here's the conductor now."

The conductor glammed the door viciously and shook the snow from his cap. "We're up against it, gentlemen," he announced in disgust. "The coal-founded tankette is doing like a sick pig out there in a drift no bigger'n a mountain. Two miles from Dilkport, and the snow's so thick you can't see your hand before your face. Lucky we've been to supper."

"Then we won't get out tonight," asked the farmer anxiously, looking at his watch.

"That's the size of it. We're up here on this pea vine the section men won't learn what's the matter with us till tomorrow. We've got plenty of coal. It might be worse."

"Yes," said the farmer. "I s'pose it might, but I don't see how it could be much worse for me."

He picked up an overcoat.

"You see," he explained, fastening the buckle, "I've got a business engagement tonight up at Dilkport, and if this train ain't going I've got to hoof it."

He put on the other shoe and rose, reaching for the wistful coat which dangled from one end of the parcel holder. The conductor and the salesman contemplated him in astonishment.

"But, man, you can't do it possibly," said the conductor. "You'll fall through a bridge or something, and the whole'll freeze to death."

"I reckon it's a bit risky," admitted the farmer, "but I ain't at all sure it wouldn't be riskier not to. You see, my wife's at Dilkport, and she's sick. She may be dying. I've got to go to her."

An expression of sympathy came upon the conductor's face, and that of the salesman took on a sudden gravity.

"There are certain circumstances," the former continued in explanation, "which make it more important that I should see her than you might naturally think from the plain fact of her being sick. I haven't treated her just right, to tell the truth. I've been stupid and unreasoning. We were married only a year ago. I won her away from three or four other fellows. Any one of 'em would have made her a better husband than me. Funny how such things go, ain't it?"

"It's a blooming queer old world," said the conductor, nodding his head sagely.

"And the queerest thing in it are girls," added the salesman in the tone of an authority.

"We were married at Dilkport, where she was raised, and we went to my farm to live. We were happy as could be for maybe a month, and then I noticed that something was wrong with her. A sort of cloud came over her. It was nothing but homesickness, I s'pose, but I couldn't see it any other way than that she was sorry she'd married me. And one day I happened to find a sheet of paper—a part of a letter she'd been writing—that had dropped from her portfolio, and I read it."

"There weren't many words on the sheet. The first one was 'disappointed,' ending a sentence she'd begun on the sheet that went before. And then it said: 'It is not as I had pictured it. I wish to go home.' And right there it ended. I said nothing to her. I didn't think it was necessary to have a scene, as they call it. But I was hurt—hurt clean to the core—and in trying to cover up my feelings I s'pose I was unkind, maybe cruel. After two or three days of brooding I got into a regular bad state. I told her she'd better go home to her folks; that I'd decided we weren't made for each other. When she tried to put her arms about my neck, I wouldn't let her. When she asked for my reasons, I told her she knew well enough and turned my back. I was an unnatural, unreasonable brute."

"Correct," said the conductor frankly. "Well, she went. For four months I've been backin' it on the farm, growin' crabapple every day, and this mornin' I happened to meet a young chap in Dilkport at the Peppercorn place. He was my wife's folks. He lives at Dilkport when he isn't traveling around the country selling things."

"I s'pose you've heard from your wife this mornin'?" he asked me. "No," said I, with a sigh. "I haven't."

"I've just come from home," said he, and there was a report on the street when I left that she was liable to die. The kids all right, though."

"The kids?" I started to death. "The kids?" "Yes," said he, looking at me in a sort of peculiar way. "Didn't you know there was a kid born yesterday?"

"Why, yes, of course," I said, shamed into the lie. "It was that I didn't know my name for a minute."

"Your wife's a fine woman," the young chap went on, listening like one in a dream. "I sent her a patent dish washer about a week ago on trial. It didn't suit her, but she didn't do as most women would have done. She wrote me a real nice letter, telling me that it had disappointed her; that it wasn't what she'd pictured it. She said she wished to go home to Dilkport for a visit in a short time and that when she came she'd bring it up with her, saving me the express charges. I tell you, a fellow in this agency business learns to appreciate little things like that."

"And then in a flash I saw it all. The letter I'd seen was the one she was writing about that dish washer. I hurried home and sprung up a little and got somebody to care for the stock, and I'm going to get to Dilkport tonight in spite of blazes; that's all there is to it."

He left the coach, followed by the conductor and the salesman, who felt impelled by sympathy to see him off on his perilous trip. They climbed over the freight cars through the blinding storm toward the locomotive.

"Look out for the next car!" called the conductor. "It's loaded with oil barrels. Better let me go ahead with 'em."

The farmer stopped. "All right," he said. "Is there any oil in the barrels?"

"They're full of it. Why?"

"I was just thinking that once I bought a barrel of oil, and on the way home the sled tipped over in a drift, and the bung came out of the barrel, and the oil ran out to the snow. It was a pitch dark night, and I didn't have a lantern. I was in bad shape, but I crawled together a pile of sawdust that had been in the sledbox and lit it with that oil-soaked drift was melting."

"If the belly green light!" exclaimed the conductor as the other's idea became clear to him. "Do you suppose we could do it?"

"I'd be willing to stand the expense of three barrels of oil toward trying it."

The conductor jumped into the cab and hid the plan before the engineer, who had stubbornly refused to leave the engine until compelled by the call.

"It might work," said the engineer at last, with a reluctant deduction. "Reckon like as if we were buried. We've just tumbled up a little; that's all. If I could get a start, I'd go through. Jim!"—addressing the fireman with sudden energy—"coal up! Make her hum!"

The conductor called the two brakemen and the express messenger, and with the assistance of the two passengers three barrels of kerosene were rolled from the car and carried to the front end of the train. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and the oil was scattered upon the snow by pailful and shovelful. Then, when no more remained, the conductor lighted a great handful of greasy waste and threw it upon the drift. It spluttered a moment, flickered, all but went out. The farmer rolled one of the empty oil-soaked barrels within reach of the burning waste.

"It's no go!"

There was a blinding glare, followed by a sizzling, hissing roar. The drift melted as if by magic. The flames licked the drive wheels of the locomotive and reached almost to the cab.

"Coal! Coal! Coal!" shouted the engineer to the fireman.

The conductor jumped up and down excitedly, waving his lantern. "All—!—!—!—!" he yelled. "Half an hour later the train pulled into Dilkport."

The conductor received a note the next day. It read: "Everything's all right. She's been getting better from the minute I got here. I wanted to go down to the station to see you, but I can't seem to tear myself away from her and the baby. Send me bill for the oil."

To which the conductor replied: "Glad to hear you're O. K. We all of us want to shake hands with you. The company pays for the oil."

Taken by Surprise.

There are some hospitable creatures who are greatly disturbed if they cannot meet every demand made on them, although there are cases when it is ridiculous to expect them to be able to be equal to the occasion. Recently a barn took fire on a large estate, and the firemen of the village worked hard to put out the flames. After it was all over the husband asked the fire fighters into the house to partake of coffee and whatever edibles were on hand. His wife welcomed the men with steaming cups of coffee, doughnuts and pies; then she said apologetically, "Oh, if I had only known this was going to happen I would have had a lot of things baked up."

"AS LIZA LOVED THE KING"

By Curran R. Greenley

Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company

The old red brick mansion stood up primly, its harsh outlines of uncompromising squareness half hidden by a riot of Guelder roses that climbed and threw long green arms of loveliness around the small diamond panes of the windows. A sturdy box bordered path led down to the gate through an avenue of beeches where the sunlight fell in lance rifts down upon the blue grass fresh with the green of May—Maytime in old Kentucky in the year of our Lord 1833. Beyond the rustic gate a broad, white road set out to west.

Those were strange processions that wound along the great highway, the artery of trade from the east over the Alleghenies to Kentucky and the south—era of the great fur trade, the era of the wilderness—long trains of white covered wagons filled with a medley of women, children, household goods, with their escorts of stalwart men on horseback. Already the hegebra to the west had commenced, often a tribe of Choctaws bound for the wigwam of the great father, grim, dusky faces under nodding plumes, animated bundles, with smaller bundles behind to their backs, astride of the ponies, silent as ghosts, and passing, always passing, up the long white road.

Twice each day, with the long tannara-rara of the bugles and the clatter of whip and hoof, came the stagecoach, a flash of color from east to west, and again the quiet of earth and sky.

Over the hills, whose dim, blue line encompassed her world around, the child's heart went each day with the dying echo of hoof and bugle; over the hills, where the gold lights of sunset kissed the pink limestone cliffs, brightening to emerald green the tufts of meadows in the deep clefts, and farther up, where the mists caught and held them, deepening into the evening's violet crown.

A slim, shy maid of barely fifteen, in her long and prim kerchief drawn tightly across the childish breast, the small brown hand shading her level brows, she watched with wistful eyes up the long ribbon of road where Anne, with her peach blossom face and soft gray eyes that had dared to look under their long black lashes at a face that was the face of a people's hero; not all the people, for Anne, her father's house Anne had heard fierce denunciations and even curses against that name. But when had politics anything to do with a maid's romance? Deep down in her heart the girl cherished the memory of one summer evening, when all alone the great man reined in his horse and sprang from the saddle to walk and talk with the pretty child two years ago.

The reins dropped on Harry Clay's neck as Andrew Jackson rode along side just in time to catch her as she reeled from the saddle, and then, with her head against his heart, the little maid sobbed out her story, while the sweet face grew pale and the wild roses died from the pretty cheeks as the drip, drip of the blood went patter down.

The grim, dark face hardened into steel as he beckoned to the negro that rode a little behind him.

"Go back to the farm and tell them to make ready, and, mind you, lose no time in sending for the doctor." Very rarely and slowly he rode, bearing the light weight, while the still face lay against his breast, smiling dreamily.

At the farmhouse all was bustle and stir. Mistress Hungerford's capable hands laid the wounds and made all neat and clean in the chamber where they carried her to await the coming of the doctor.

Very quiet and still she lay when he came to bid her farewell. His face was sad and stern when he bared his face with a pretty smile. The young maid came and stood over the great Anne, hunched and dreamed of here as did that Lisa in far-off Italy of her king.

The evening shadows grew longer and the sun vanished behind the hills as the flicker of walls chimed up from the pasture. With eyes still dreamy, Anne wandered out and across the road to where the spring bubbled up from its mossy pool. A little rustic summer house sheltered it, and the little stream lost itself in a dense thicket of hazel bushes that grew close up to the spring. The girl's light foot made no sound as she entered and dropped down upon the seat. Voices of soot and mud moved her as a low murmur came from the head copse.

The best place is where the road comes through Hungerford's woods, this side of the mill."

Then another voice: "I don't like it. It's doing all the dirty work and getting the kicks for pay. Let them as want him out of the way put him there."

And the first voice answered with an oath: "What's the risk to you? The men that want Andrew Jackson dead ain't the men's risks nuthin'."

"Andrew Jackson," Anne's heart gave a great bound, then almost stopped, as there was a rustle among the bushes. She strained her ears to catch the last words.

"He'll likely spend tonight at Hungerford's, leaving there by daybreak."

"No," they hadn't but one blazer along. He don't like company a-travelin'."

"And the low chuckle died in the distance."

It was nearly dark as Anne crept out from her hiding place and glanced fearfully up the long white road. She knew that Hungerford's lay fifteen miles away as the crow flies, and to reach it would mean a ride through the night—something would be too late; knew too, poor child, that in the hearts of those about her dwelt the bitterest hatred of the man that she would have risked her life to save! Not that they would have lifted a hand against her, but they would have laughed her story down and bade her hush, as children should.

Alone in her little white curtained room she knelt and prayed her simple prayer. She had always been afraid of the dark—the dark that was like whispering lips in your ear and the touch of soft fingers clutching at your gown—but the life of her hero was the high guardian of the deed.

One by one each door was closed. She heard her father's chair pushed back and knew that he was laying his pipe on the mantelshef; heard her mother setting the house in order, and then it all grew still. The tall clock ticked louder and louder through the dark with an accusing voice—ten eleven, twelve, and at the last stroke a single figure hurried across the path to the stable, where Harry Clay, the bay gelding, whinnied softly in his loose box. He knew the little fingers that slipped the bit between his velvet lips, and he laid his handsome head against her curls in mute caress as the saddle was girthed. Harry Clay had never carried that weight before, and when the flapping riding skirt struck his withers the fine ears lay close as he reared and pawed the air, with the thin nostrils flared, but a whisper, a touch upon the mane, and he dropped into a light canter along the footpath, his feet making no sound upon the turf.

Fifteen miles to Hungerford's, and four hours yet until the dawn. Harry Clay quickens his stride as a clock from a farmhouse chimes out, "One, two," and they have passed the brick church at the forks of Otter creek, where she had knelt so often at her mother's side. "Three," the white road runs backward under the flying hoofs. The moments speed, and they gallop into the shadow of Hungerford's woods. A dim old moon was shining, and a break in the trees let in the light full on the girl's face. There was a rustle in the shadows of the roadside, and the same rough voice cried out: "That girl of Montague's on the bay colt—stop her! Wagon, there!"

But Anne brought the whip down on Harry Clay's flank. Not quite swift enough, for a pistol shot rang out, another and another, and she felt a dull shock as Harry Clay, maddened by the reports and the insult of a blow, tore down the white stones of the road, the fire flashing under the iron shod hoofs—and on, while the miles rolled back in the dark and the gray of dawn came over the hills. There was something warm and wet that trickled down the great bay's shoulder as the little figure swayed and clung to the saddle. As the gold broke along the east a horseman rode out of the woods in the opposite direction, the same that had walked his horse and talked with the pretty child two years ago.

The reins dropped on Harry Clay's neck as Andrew Jackson rode along side just in time to catch her as she reeled from the saddle, and then, with her head against his heart, the little maid sobbed out her story, while the sweet face grew pale and the wild roses died from the pretty cheeks as the drip, drip of the blood went patter down.

ANOTHER TESTIMONY

To the merits of

GATES MEDICINES.

Black River, Jan'y 4, 1902

MESSES. C. GATES, SON & CO.,
Middletown, N. S.

Dear Sirs:—

Not long ago I had a severe sore on my leg, which became so troublesome that I was obliged to go to the hospital at St. John. After remaining some time, however, I left no better, notwithstanding the careful treatment there received, your agent here, Mr. R. Power, then asked me to try Gates' Medicines.

I began a course of your Bitters and Syrup to purify my blood and made external applications of your Nerve Ointment and Canadian Liniment to the sore. When I had used 6 bottles of Syrup, 6 boxes of Ointment and 2 bottles of Liniment the sore had entirely disappeared from my leg which was completely healed except a very small spot. I feel very grateful for the wonderful cure this effected and I certainly think your medicines "can't be beat."

Yours truly,
JAMES SCHEIDT
