About sixteen years ago he first began to show signs of the insanity which caused him to commit the tragedy on Saturday afternoon, About that time he joined the Salvation Army, and he threw himself heart and soul into its work. The nature of the army's sermental malady grew. He began telling those around him that a power beyond soul, and that he knew it was the Spirit of God. He imagined that his and a couple of years later had to be placed there again. Once he attacked one of his brothers. Then he seemed to grow better, and he again became a member of the Baptist Church. One year ago, however, Robert again joined the Salvation Army. He was a great reader, a student of the Bible, and has extraordinary knowledge of the English language. He often had friend. ly arguments with his brother upon religious matters and, although their opinions differed, their love for each other never grew less, as the mother herself today testified.

CHURCHILL'S PLOT AGAINST PARTY

Others to Overthrow the Baliour Ministry.

London, March 27. — A remarkable story of a political "plot," of which Winston Churchill, M.P., is said to have been the life and soul, was told by Mr. Wanklyn, M. P., to his constituents at Bradford last week.

In November, 1902, said Mr. Wanklyn, Mr. Churchill invited him to assist with others in overthrowing the Conservative Unionist ministry, in order to let in a weak Radical ministry. This, in its turn, was to be over-thrown, and then Mr. Churchill and his assistants were to lead back to place and power a rejuvenated Conservative Unionist party.

Mr. Churchill's main argument was that the Duke of Devonshire. George Hamilton, Mr. Ritchie, and Mr. Chamberlain were all of them too old at 60, while Mr. Balfour and Mr. Brodrick could easily be overthrown upon the public inquiry after the war. Lord Hugh Cecil and Mr. Ernest Beckett were mentioned as prospective ministers in the cabinet to be formed by Mr. Winston Churchill. 'I declined even to consider the plot. said Mr. Wanklyn "or even to done what I regarded as a political felony. I told Mr. Churchill that I work. The nature of the army's services worked strongly upon the introspective mind of Robert and his Hugh Cecil from his nefarious Sun rises..6:39 a.m. Moon rises..1:07 a.m. Moon sets..10:58 a.m.

A long struggle ensued between Mr. his control had taken hold upon his Winston Churchill and himself for the "corpus" of Lord Hugh Cecil, and the noble lord being ultimately satisfied friends and relatives were against him, with the evil designs of his quondam and at times he grew violent. Some ten associate and ally, Mr. Winston years ago he was placed in the asylum. Churchill, had returned to the Conservative camp, never to leave it. The "plot" was indeed hatching in the brain of Mr. Winston Churchill, who had an inherited passion for intrigue, months before the epoch-mak-ing speeches of Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain, and long before the fiscal question had been raised. Mr. Churchill, in his defense of his secession at Bradford, attributed his attitude to the fiscal question, but the fact was that he had been plotting and scheming long before that was brought before country. There was only one explanahis conduct, and that was that Mr. Churchill himself had not been invited to become a member of Typhoid Fever at Toronto.

Toronto, March 25.-Andrew Miscampbell, ex-member of the Legislature, and Conservative party organizer for Ontario, died here this afternoon of typhoid fever. Mr. Miscampbell had been ill since the elections. He represented East Simcoe in the Legislature following the elections of 1890, 1894 and 1898, and was well known throughout the country, where he was interested in lumbering around Midland and Orillia For two years he was manager of the Northern Navigation Company, and in Gunshu Pass, March 26. - Everywhere along the front there is complete and ominous quietude. Collisions have been reported today. A nurse arriving from Mukden today states that the reports by Chinese of ill. treatment of Russian sick and wounded after the evacuation of Mukden are entirely unfounded. The Japanese treated all who fell into their hands in the most kindly manner, and gave the nurses permission to return to the Russian army, saying there were no women of that avocation with the Japanese advanced column. They provided the nurses with credentials, dicated the roads by which they might travel, and warned them that they might be under fire west of the railway. Several doctors, sisters and attendants remained with the wounded at Mukden.

Combination of American and Canadian Lines Talked Of.

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 25. Rumors are current here that the New York Central is forming the greatest electric railway merger ever attempted. Apparently reliable information is that the international railway system which recently changed hands from the Ely to the Pierce interests, is now under New York Central control. It is further stated that the syndicate, of which Frederick Nicholls, of Toronto, is the head, and which owns the Electric Development Company of Ontario, the Toronto and Niagara Power Company, the Toronto and Hamilton Railway Company and the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto system is acting for the New York Central in combining Canadian electrical interests for the coming intercry, national merger. It is said that the new Toronto and Hamilton Railway will be used to give the New York Central a four-track route to Toronto. Watch them pass their plates along. new Toronto and Hamilton Railway Anniversary Services—Sermons A to Young Men-Treating and Smoking.

In two of the local Presbyterian churches anniversary services conducted on Sunday. At Knox Church, South London, the morning service was conducted by Rev. Pro-fessor John McNaughton M.A., of Queen's University, and that of the evening by Rev. Dr. Ross, of St. Andrew's Church. At the King Street Presbyterian Church, Rev. W. J. Clark ccupied the pulpit in the morning and Professor McNaughton in the evening. Large congregations were present and the services were of exeptional interest. At King Street the occasion marked the second anniversary of Rev. James Rollins' induction

Prof. McNaughton's evening sermon was delivered before a congregation that completely filled the edifice. The keynote of his words was to love one's neighbor as himself. This would be a true religion, he said, and would cover everything else. Petty prohibitions did people no good. There were two many don'ts" handed out and not enough directing what should be done.

An interesting sermon upon the duties which a man and women who have entered the conjugal relation owe owards each other was delivered in the Askin Street Methodist Church last evening by Rev. W. G. Howson, who ooked at the question from the practical standpoint. A large congrega-ion was in attendance. Rev Mr Livingstone, pastor of the Wellington Street Methodist Church, preached impressively to young men ast evening. He appealed for purity of living. During the service, music was rendered by the Arion Club, and heir singing was very acceptable. Following are the members of the club Mr. W. Nixon, W. Mathews, W. Trace H. Fetherston, F. Parsons, tenors; H. Boyce, A. Bendel, baritones; H. Taylor, W. Taylor, J. Suhr. C. Jones, bassos. The singing of the club was much admired. The pieces given were 'In That Bright Land" (Smart); "Art Thou Weary" (Bullinger), and "Far Away" (Parks).

In the course of a sermon addressed Church last evening, the rector, Rev. Dyson Hague, touched with strong endemnation upon two evils, the reating custom and cigarette smokng. The preacher thought that legislation upon the latter was very much show how prevalent the cigarette habit

ROUGH EXPERIENCE WITH RUNAWAYS &

Back Somersault That Was Not on the Bills-Spurt on Dundas Street.

Talking about that happy spring eeling, did you ever notice how it iffects the equine race? These are the days when human beings, in this latitude, begin to walk with sprightlier of steps, take deeper breaths, raise their houlders and chests higher and exchange greetings in smarter accents on the streets. But this is also the time when the horses start to lift their hoofs nigher, extend their nostrils wider and become more frisky in general. ourse, this is partly explainable by the fact that about this time the owners begin to "feed up" their animals n order to get them in trim for spring ork or spring sales.

Saturday afternoon a West Londonhad a rather unpleasant experience with his horse. He was driving the animal, which is of a high-spirited nature, in a racing sulky. The seat of the rig has no back, which proved rather unfortunate. The horse was about to cross Blackfriars bridge at the foot of Ridout street north, when a small, vicious dog ran down the stens, familiarly known as "Jacob's adder," and began to snap at the animal's heels. The horse gathered himself together and then "lit out" with both his hind feet as hard and as far as possible. The cur escaped, but the driver was knocked off the smooth seat and took a back somersault into the very dirty road. The horse started for home, without waiting for him but ran against the ironwork of the bridge, eceiving several gashes in the side. I was caught before any further damage ould be done, and the owner was one the worse for his feat, except that his back and neck were liberally coated with mud.

Another Dangerous Spurt. Messrs, Clarke and Will Smith, jun. undertakers of Dundas street, had an exciting time with one of their horses Saturday morning, and it was almost a miracle that neither was hurt. They were driving in their buggy from London East on Dundas street, and when near Maitland, one of the shafts beespecially to men in the Memorial came loose from the whiffletree and began to rattle on the wheel and to strike against the horse's side. horse, which is a large and spirited animal, bolted and came down Dundas street as hard as it could go. There was a large palm plant in the rig needed. He quoted from statistics to and it hindered the drivers' view. The two men see-sawed the bit, but it was until Wellington street was reached that the animal began to slacken speed. Here P. C. McRoberts an out and helped to stop the horse. If the race extended into the center of the city no doubt someone would have been hurt. FAR EAST PEACE

Wyton Home Last Week. The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Blight, Wyton, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, March 22, when their second youngest daughter, Bessie, was united in marriage with Mr. John Stapleton, eldest son of Mr. Fred Stapleton, Devonshire, England, in the presence of the immediate family relatives of the contracting parties. Promptly at half-past seven, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Etta Blight, of London, the bride and groom took their places in the parlor, which was decorated with ferns and carnations, and were married by Rev. David Rogers, pastor of the Thorndale Methodist Church. The bride, who was unattended, was prettily gowned in white organdie with over-lace trimmings, and carried the usual shower bouquet of white roses. After the congratulations had been tendered, all repaired to the diningroom, where a dainty wedding luncheon was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents, including a tea set from the room's parents in England

School Question. autonomy bill threw a flood of light up. on several aspects of the school question which have been overlooked or purposely obscured by the majority of the opponents of the educational clauses. We think he has defined more clearly than others the difference between the original and the amended clauses which, in his opinion, is the difference between sectarian and national schools. To appreciate this distinction it is necessary to compare the school system of the Northwest Territories as it is today, with what it was in its incipient stages.

right of separate schools, a complete dual system was established, the separate schools being directly under the control of a Roman Catholic board of education, which regulated the course of studies, and made these schools sectarian and clerical to the core. Gradually the Legislature curtailed the privileges of the church, with the purpose, not explicitly avowed, of bringing the separate schools into conformity with the public schools. In 1892 the policy of nationalizing the schools was openly adopted, and the dual system of administration swept away. The Roman Catholic clergy appealed to the federal authorities to disallow the ordinances of the Northwest Legislature of 1892, supporting their petition with a mass of documents and an array of legal opinion. The petitioners, among other things, complained because separate schools had been placed under a Protestant superintendent of education while Judge Rouleau found that there was no separate school system such as was provided for by the act of 1875. In Mr. Sifton's opinion the Northwest Legislature, in the process of assimilating the separate schools with the public schools, exceeded the powers bestowed upon it by the act of 1875. Sir John Thompson was also of opinion that the rights of the minority had been abridged, but the federal authorities declined to interfere. For a coneise and lucid description of the ordinances of 1892, which are the framework of the present school system in the Territories, we cannot do better than quote from Mr. Sifton's address: "Let me give what I conceive to be an accurate resume of the principles which are enforced and carried out by these ordinances. We have one normal school with uniform normal training for all teachers. When I say all teachers I mean teachers of ail schools, separate and public. There grade; uniform text-books for all been a messenger boy at one time." schools whatsoever; uniform qualifications of teachers for all schools whatsoever; complete and absolute control of all schools as to their government and conduct, by the central school authority set up by the Legislature under the ordinances; complete secularization of all schools between 9 o'clock in the morning and 3:30 in the afternoon, except for the fact that any school, if the trustees so desire, may be opened with the Lord's Prayer; distribution of the legislative grant to all schools according to educational efficiency, on principles set out in chapter 31. Then when there is a public school the Protestant minority or the Roman Catholic minority may organize a separate school; but every Spring dons a robe of tender green, school is subject absolutely to all the foregoing provisions, and is in every sense of the term a public If the Protestants are in the minority in a district their school is called a separate school; if the Catholics are in the minority in a dis-trict their school is called a separate school; but both are public schools. They are absolutely similar, save for one distinction: where the trustees are Protestant there is Protestant teaching from 3:30 to 4, and where the trustees are Roman Catholic there is Roman Catholic teaching from 3:30 to 4. That is absolutely the only distinction between these schools."

He conceived it to be his duty to protest against possible restoration of these privileges, even to the extent of resigning office. He objected also to the clause which required that the school moneys derived from the land fund should be "applied to the support of public and separate schools in equitable shares or proportions," He maintained that under this clause, if the Province of Alberta undertook to appropriate $250,000 to build and equip a Provincial University, a proportionate amount of money would have to be set aside for a separate school university, Against such an endowment of sectarian education he protested, and the Government modified the clause. In its amended form it provides for an equitable grant of public funds to a separwith the law of the Provincial Legislature, and has reached the state of efficiency required of public schools.

The Protestant people of Canada could say to the Roman Catholic people: "You cannot convince us: we cannot convince you: but there are more of us than there are of you, and we are going to vote you down." A proposition of that kind, Mr. Sifton put aside. No greater misfortune could befall the Conservative party than to take office in support of it. A PECULIAR MESSAGE. Sunday morning Mayor Campbell received a very peculiar telegraphic message from Englewood, Ill., and he is still cudgelling his brain to find out what it means. It was signed Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell," The message, of course, might have been wrongfully addressed, and may be in a private cipher code. One by one the lamps of the park went out, but the moon shone on, lustrous and splendid. First he reviewed his odd adventure in the archbishop's gardens. He had spoken to princesses before, but they were women of the world, hothouse roses that bloom and wither in a short space. The atmosphere which surrounded this princess was idyllic, pastoral. She had seen nothing of the world, its sports and pastimes, and the art of playing at love was unknown to her. Again he could see her serious eyes, the delicate chin and mouth, the oval cheeks, and the dog that followed in her steps. Here was an indelible picwhich time could never efface. Something stirred in his heart and he Occasionally they had corresponded.

"Well, to bed," said the young diplomat. "This has been a full day." And, like the true newspaper man he was, for all his diplomacy, he emptied the bottle and entered the room. He was about to disrobe, when some one rapped on the door. He opened it, and beheld a man in the livery of the Grand Hotel. He was breathing hard.

"Herr Carewe?" 'Yes. What's wanted?" "Herr Hamilton-"

'Hamilton? Oh, yes. Go on." "Herr Hamilton bade me to tell your excellency that in returning to the hotel he sprained his ankle, and wishes to know if Herr would not be so kind as to spend the night with him." "Certainly. Run down to the office, and I shall be with you shortly." Again alone, Maurice opened his trunk. He brought forth a pink flask of brandy, some old handkerchiefs to used as bandages, and a box of salve he used for bruises when on hunting expeditions. In turning over clothes his hand came into contact with his old army revolver. He scratched his head. "No, it's too much like a cannon, and there's no room for it in my pockets." He pushed it aside, rose and slammed the lid of the trunk "Sprained his ankle? He wasn't gone more than an hour. How the deuce is he to see the king tomorrow? Probably wishes to appoint me his agent. That's it. Very well." He proceeded to the office, where he found the messenger waiting for him. "Come on,

There were no transoms. The corridor was devoid of illumination. The porter struck a match and held it to the pane of a door under which a thread of light streamed. This is it, Herr," he bawled, so loudly that Maurice started. There was no need of waking the dead to tell me," he growled.

My Offer to Kidney Sufferers

will give you a full dollar's worth of my remedy free to try without cost or deposit or promise to pay.

I could not make this offer-a full dol lar's worth free—if mine were an ordinary kidney remedy. It is not. It treats not the kidneys themselves, but the nerves that control them. The cause of kidney troubles lies ALWAYS in these nerves. The only way to cure kidney trouble is by strengthening and vitalizing and restoring these kidney nerves. That is exactly what my remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—does. Therefore I can make this offer with the certain knowledge that every kidney sufferer who makes this trial will be helped.

There is a good deal of comment just now on the exclusive attitude of certain New York churches. In some it is impossible to purchase a pew or even a sitting. The demand for pews in Grace Chruch is so great that names have been on the waiting list for years. In several other fashionable houses of worship the condition is the same. Some newcomers of great wealth eager to touch elbows with the most orthodox of respectability, secure pews by sublease, but this is a costly kind of enterprise. It is not uncommon to hear of pews selling for $1,500 or more. Indeed, within a week or two pew 40 of Grace Church sold for $1,-550. In St. Thomas' Church single sit-tings sell for $150.
