RED TAPE IN FRANCE.

It Entangles One Even In Getting the

Gas Turned on In a Flat. France is at once the paradise and the inferno of bureaucracy. For example, I wanted the gas to be turned on in my flat. A simple affair! Drop a postcard to the company telling the company to come and turn it on. Not at all! I was told that it would be better to call upon the company. So I called.

"What do you desire, monsieur?" "I am the new tenant of a flat, and I want the gas turned on." "Ah! You are the new tenant of a flat, and you want the gas turned on. M. Chose, here is a new tenant of a flat, and he wants the gas turned on. Where should he be led to?"

About a quarter of an hour of this, and then at last I am led by a municipal employee sure of his job and his pension to the far distant room of the higher employee appointed by the city of Paris to deal with such as me. This room is furnished somewhat like that of a solicitor's managing clerk.

"Good morning, sir." "Good morning, sir."

"It appears, sir-M. Bennay, fourth floor, No. 4 Rue de Calais, sixth arrondissement, is it not?-that you want the gas turned on. Will you put yourself to the trouble of sitting down, M. Bennay?" I sit down. He sits down.

"Ah! So you want the gas turned on! Let us see, let us see." * * * Hundreds of such applications must be made every day. But the attitude of this ceremonious official might be put into words thus: "A strange and interesting application of yours, to have the gas turned on! Very remarkable! It attracts me. The case must be examined with the care and the respect which it deserves."-Arnold Bennett in Metropolitan.

JOYS OF A RUSSIAN HOTEL.

Nice Lofty Rooms With Sealed Windows and Smoke Laden Air.

Writing of the great Russian city of Odessa in Harper's, Sydney Adamson tells of the somewhat primitive arrangements of even the modern hotels. "For our ignorance of Russian we had the privilege of paying over twice the legal fare for our drive to the hotel. The porters obligingly arranged the matter and quite cheerfully kept the difference. How like the rest of the world! We felt at home at once. The large, lofty bedchambers and corridors of the hotels make it just possible to live in rooms that have double windows sealed with putty, which are never opened from the beginning of the winter till the spring thaw is in the

"As there are no open fires the only ventilation is from the slightly better air of the corridors. A framed notice on the wall informs the visitor of all the privileges he is graciously permitted to pay extra for, among them the joy of being clean at the rate of 10 kopecks for a jug of hot water or 50 kopecks for a bath. But the greatest mystery of all was a samovar at 25 kopecks. In time it was discovered that your true Russian, having a taste for much tea or other warm refreshment, rings for a lighted samovar and prepares his own beverage if he is not fortunate enough to possess a wife to do it for him.

With the lady managing a flery, innumerable cigarettes, with perhaps a visitor to help, one can easily imagine -not forgetting the hermetically sealed windows-the atmosphere in which some worthy Russians go to bed."

--River Bed Patterns. Ideas for the colors in the best Scotch tweeds are found in the bed of the river Garry, in the Pass of Killiecrankie, said Thomas Welsh in a paper read before the textile congress at Hawick, Scotland, recently. Granite, porphyry and jasper are found there in rich reds, grays and greens, beautifully mottled and mixed in finely contrasted colors. "Heather mixtures," he said. "were asked for by sportsmen, who inquired for colors which resembled their shooting grounds. The first order of weeds sent to London in bulk was pieces of black and white check unde in Peebles."-Argonaut.

Curious Result of a Tax. A curious thing happened when the English auctioneers were taxed. At first £5 a year, the duty was raised to flo by Peel, but he relieved them of the necessity of taking out a license for beer, spirits, etc., when they sold these articles at auction. The consequence was that everywhere the auctioneers carried on the sale of beer and spirits for thmselves until the abuse was stopped in 1864.

Cutting Him Short. "Little one," he began, "you are too pretty to be shooting biscuits in a beanery. You ought to be on the stage."

"Been there," snapped the waitress briefly. "What'll you have? Gimme the particulars of your ten cent order." -Louisville Courier-Journal.

Econimy. "I would suggest giving our new mayor three cheers." announced Si Waffletree at the first meeting of the new town council.

"Make it two cheers," suggested Hiram Waffle. "Remember, we are pledged to economy all along the line."-Washington Herald.

Introduced Himself. She-I beg your pardon, but I can't remember having met you before. He -Oh, yes. Last night at the ball some one trod on your toe. That was me --Fliegende Blatter.
