POETRY.

A Broken Heart.

A little china figure

On a little bracket sat,

His little feet were always crossed,

He wore a little hat;

And every morning, fair or foul,

In shine or shadow dim,

A pretty little household came

And softly dusted him.

She took him up so gently,

With such a charming air,

His china soul was melted quite,

He loved her to despair.

All day he sat and thought of her,

Until the twilight came,

And in his china dreams at night,

He breathed her little name.

One day while being dusted,

In his joy he trembled so,

To feel her little fingers, that

Alas! she let him go.

To vain she tried to grab him back,

'Twas willed it they should part;

He fell against the fender edge

And broke his little heart.

She gathered up the fragments,

And she told a little lie,

Expounding to her mistress how

The cat had made him die.

And on the following morning, when

The shutters back she thrust,

She spoke this little epiph:

"There's one thing less to dust."

CHAPTER XIII.—Continued.

That afternoon Constance was sitting by the table with a book before her,

the leaves of which, however, she had not turned for over an hour. After she had left the registry office she had walked down one street and up another, scarcely conscious of the people moving round her, her thoughts wandering from the strange things that had happened to her at Brakespear Castle to the great problem of what she was to do to care her living.

Every now and then she found herself wondering what had happened at the castle after she had left. What happened had Lady Ruth told the marquis, and had he believed it? Did

'Arol miss her, and was the marquis

sorry that she had gone?

She was going over it all, recalling the strange scenes in the drawing-room, and the marquis' passionate avowal of love, as she sat now with the words of the book dancing before her eyes. It all seemed to have happened so long ago; it was all so mysterious as to seem an intangible dream.

While she was trying to put the passage together, Mrs. Mervyn knocked at the door.

Constance started, and the pale and weariness of her beautiful face seemed to touch a sympathetic cord in the heart of the quiet, sad-looking landlady.

"I'm afraid you are still tired, Miss

Graham," she said, gently.

"Yes, I think I am," admitted Constance, trying to smile.

"Was it well to go out this morning?"

"Well, it was necessary," replied Constance, bravely, "and she sighed—

"it seems very difficult to get one-people are all so clever now, and do not want a stupid person like myself."

"Is there so much hurry?" said Mrs.

Mervyn in a low voice.

Constance flushed.

"Yes, there is," she said; "I am very poor. I have so very little money, and—"

"Mrs. Mervyn's thin hand patted the table-cloth nervously.

"Don't let that distress you so much,

Miss Graham," she said, timidly, "her face flushing too. "You are welcome to remain here if it suits you—if you like—until you meet with better for-ture, I mean—"

She stopped, and looked at Constance's face with a gentle,

deprecatory smile. "I have had trouble myself, and I know what it is."

Constance, her eyes full of tears, held out her hand.

"You are very good to me," she said,

allegedly, "that indeed, I could not

Oh, how can I say it without feeling ungrateful? and, believe me, I am not that! But I could not stay unless I paid you. Do you think I could now?"

and she smiled up at her.

Mrs. Mervyn's hand patted Constance's.

"Yes, I understand," she said in a low voice. "Forgive me for saying what I did; but—but I could not bear to see you looking so unhappy. I—

I remembered that I was young once myself."

"Why, you are not old now!" said

Constance, trying to speak brightly.

"Mrs. Mervyn shook her head.

"I am worse than old," she said simply. "But I didn't come in to speak of myself, Miss Graham, but to try and cheer you."

"And you have done so," responded

Constance, gratefully. "I feel twice as brave now. After all, I have scarcely tried to find anything to do

yet, and I am not quite shipwrecked.

To-morrow I will put an advertisement in the papers, and—" They both started at a double knock sounded at the front door.

Mrs. Mervyn was the first to recover herself.

"Perhaps that is good news for you already," she said, nodding encouragingly as she left the room.

Constance, as she bent over her book again, could not repress a sigh at the improbability of the suggestion, and she was considerably startled when Mrs.

Mervyn re-entered the room, and said:

"At any rate, whether it is good news or not, it is some news for you,

Miss Graham."

"For me?" exclaimed Constance.

"Oh, no, surely not!"

"But it is. It is an old gentleman

Britain in Africa.

The Dark Continent threatens to be soon slight at both ends. British diplomacy, which is coming in for a good deal of criticism just now, has succeeded, at all events, in fixing the Dresden and its African policy at a critical time. This will be most important if any difficulty should arise in the South which should give the German Emperor an opportunity to follow up his telegram to President Kruger. As these new stand Germany could hardly attack Britain in the South while a British column was marching to the relief of the Italians in the North. To do so, would be to run the risk of tearing the Triple Alliance to pieces, and giving Italy with her fleet to Britain as a ally. It will be hoped, however, that no difficulty will arise with the Boers. They are a brave people who like to live alone; and there ought to be room for them somewhere in Africa. Diplomacy can display its skill by settling the problem of the Uitlanders without inflicting a sense of grievance upon the pioneers of the Transvaal. Still the potent popularity of "Dr Jim" in England should convey a hint to that astute leader, President Kruger, to the effect that Mr Chamberlain has the "home" sentiment behind him in wishing for a readjustment of existing conditions to meet new circumstances. Diplomacy does not, as a rule, take the platform to defend itself. Secrecy is to it a vital principle; and hence it is unwise to decide that a Minister of Foreign Affairs cannot defend himself because he does not. About the only effective criticism of diplomacy is final failure; and even initial failure has yet to fall upon the foreign policy of the present British Administration.

Hebrew citizens commenced the celebration of their annual Passover festival on Saturday evening. A leading feature in the observance in the Passover is the scrupulous abstinence from all manner of leaven. In accordance with the Mosaic law no leaven is permitted to remain in a Jewish house during the Passover week. So scrupulously is this enactment observed by orthodox Jews that a most thorough house-cleaning takes place before the festival. Not so much as a crumb of ordinary bread is allowed to remain. Speaking of a house for Passover, Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson states that it is an institution which, if carried out, would do more to cut off the spread of diseases, the poisons of which lurk in the household, than any sanitary law a modern parliament could impose. Under the head of leaven are included all liquors into whose composition grain has entered.

Correspondents throughout the County are cordially invited to send us news from the various districts. We do not want empty gossip or scandal, but bona fide news of interest to everybody. Reports of church and society meetings, building and other improvements, and other information of general interest, will be gladly received. We aim to make the ACADIAN even a better paper than it is at present in this respect.

Dr Carman, superintendent of the Methodist church, preached his usual sermon at Ottawa, recently. He is reported to have said that it should not be difficult for the Anglicans, Roman Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists and all other Christian denominations to agree upon some form of religion to be taught in the schools of Canada.

Venezuela was the first part of the American continent that fell under the eye of Christopher Columbus. One year later—in 1499—Hugues sailed along the same coast, and seeing the Indian huts ranged along the lowlands in such a way as to suggest the characteristics of Venice, he called the country "Venezuela" or "Little Venice."

A letter from Riverside, California, says many of the orange growers there are cutting down their orange trees for firewood, and they are going in for hay growing. The last three years early frosts have spoiled two thirds of the total crop and the growers, many of whom are Canadians, are becoming discouraged.

American tourists will hereafter have to deposit the amount payable as duty on their wheels, when visiting Canada. If they return within a fixed time they can get their money back; otherwise the revenue of Canada will be increased.

A Bad Accident.

SHUBESACADIE, Mar. 31st.—An accident occurred here at 5.30 p. m. in the carriage shop of Logan & Foster, by which James Wright, an apprentice of six months, lost the middle, ring and little fingers of his left hand. For the first time he was allowed to use the tool-planer and he had a stick of hard wood to square. His instructor had just turned round when the young man attempted to make the last face better. Bearing on the end too heavily the knife sent the stick whirling by the instructor's head, letting his hand drop in upon the planer, mangled an amputation. Drs Weston and E. N. Payzant dressed the wounds under chloroform. A heavier stick must be the safest for the novice, who must needs learn the trick.

Halifax Notes.

The entrance of our first spring month was not marked by weather which would suggest to our minds either the "Lion" or the "Lamb." Its exit, however, was decidedly disagreeable, the rain and snow falling alternately, throughout its last day, made our streets and thoroughfares horrible to all who were forced to journey, and the atmosphere in its varying moods indicated almost everything but "beautiful spring." Such a visitation, however, was not altogether unwelcome when compared with the clouds of dust which had just previously discomforted us, to the great detriment of our persons and apparel.

Ever these notes appear in print the long talked of visit of Albani, the world renowned prima donna, and her two appearances before a Halifax audience will have become a thing of the past. Her first appearance on Monday night met with a most enthusiastic reception from outside of the City. The seating capacity of the Academy of Music was far from being equal to the demand. Money was no object when a choice of seats was in question and no end of sacrifice and discomfort were willingly endured to get within range of Albani's wonderful voice. Her singing is undoubtedly the grandest musical event of its kind that has ever taken place in our city.

The electric cars are doing their work to the apparent satisfaction of all parties, at least thus far no voice is heard in opposition or adverse criticism to this system of transportation. No accidents have yet been reported save the loss of a solitary canine who unluckily presumed to oppose his body to the passage of a train. The extension of the service northward and westward is soon to be pushed forward and probably before midsummer cars will be running through all the principal streets of the City.

Easter comes somewhat later in the season than usual. Indications of its being at hand are not wanting. Easter beef, Easter flowers, Easter Hens and Easter literature—something befitting the season, and the physical, mental and spiritual natures of mortals—are being pressed upon our attention. "Something new for Easter" is quite the proper thing.

Felix L. Oswald, M. D., a wide awake physician who has long studied the tendency of the phenomenal growth of the population in cities, gives a realistic picture of a twentieth century city, in the Easter Number of the Youth's Companion. Dr Oswald draws a fair conclusion in stating that the development of this country's population can be calculated as accurately as the drift of clouds and winds by our Weather Bureau.

John B. Gibson and Mary E. Mitchell both contribute stories of exceptional quality. Timely and concise editorials, "Justice to Congress," "Beligerent Rights and Neutrality," "Gold Fields, Old and New" and Current Topics give to the more thoughtful readers of the Companion a page of unusual value. Gen. Nelson A. Miles is announced to write an article on "How I Served My Apprenticeship as a Soldier" for the week following the Easter Number.

The April number of the Delinquent is called the spring number and contains a splendid assortment of styles and fabrics that will be fashionable during the season. In the literary department a theme of particular interest to most women is first structurally treated in Margaret Noury's article on the Art of Preserving Youth. The second paper by Mrs Caldwell Jones (Mrs Frederick Robinson Jones) maintains the interest created by her March contribution on the Evolution of Dress. Mrs Theodora Satoro discusses brought to a conclusion in this number, There is a delightful sketch of Easter in a Southern Town, and timely directions for the making of Easter Egg Novelties, as well as for the Delft Embroidery, now so popular. There is also another of Mrs Haywood's papers on Ecclesiastical Embroidery. H. C. Wood tells about an original Leap Year Party. In addition to the regular articles on Seasonable Cookery, there is a practical paper on the Chemistry of Foods, by A. B. Longstreet. Household Sanitation from a popular standpoint, Mrs Witherspoon's Tea-Table chat, a review of New Books, and novel contributions in Fancy Work, Knitting, Lace Making etc., are among other features. Leave your subscription with the local agent for the Butterick patterns or address the Delinquent Publishing Co. of Toronto, Ltd., 83 Richmond St. West, Toronto, Ontario.

And still the country weeklies continue to offer the city weeklies with their own publications at ridiculous low charging rates. It seems hard to persuade the rural editor that he is simply pushing the city paper at the expense of his own. The local paper is either worth a dollar a year or it is worth nothing, and it is sure that it is not worth a dollar in advance. It is a mistake, moreover, to imagine that the city weekly is any great inducement for a subscriber to take his home paper. The subscriber to the local paper takes it because he wants the local news. Premiums and cut rates never make a successful paper yet, and never will. The only way to make a paper successful is by publishing a good paper.

A Sad Occurrence.

One home in our fair town has been called to pass through deep sorrow during the past ten days. Within that time Mr and Mrs Fred Armstrong have lost their twin children Irene E. and Etta A. aged 4 years and 10 months. Little Irene died on the 25th of March, after an illness of only two days. Little Etta was apparently well on the day her sister was buried; but two days after the sickness and, within twenty-four hours was cumbed to death on March the 30th. Together in life they could not be parted in death, and now are together forever.

The sympathy of the whole town goes out towards the parents thus unexpectedly bereaved.

Masonic Festival.

The members of St. George's Lodge, together with visiting brethren, held their annual dinner last Friday night. After installation of officers by D. G. McKenna the craft was called from labor to refreshments to be held in the American House, where ye host, L. E. Duncanson, gave forth none but the best as his tables showed and which all in attendance testified to with fervor. Prof. Adams furnished the music for the entertainment in his usual pleasing manner, instrumental and concertina solos, which were of high grade and repeatedly encored. At 10 p. m. the reception committee spoke the word, the overture was played and about forty-five sat down to do justice to the call. After finishing the excellent menu, the toast master, Worshipful Master Duncanson, assisted by Senior Warden DeWitt, proposed in a happy way the following toasts, to which healths were drunk.

"The Queen."

"The Prince of Wales, The Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of England."

"The Grand Lodge," responded by D. D. G. Masters McKenna, Caldwell and Wallace.

"Our Sister Lodges," C. P. Rockwell and A. L. Dodge, Kentville Lodge; Messrs Miller and Payzant, Scotia Lodge, Canning.

"Our Visiting Brethren," T. E. Berry, Amesbury, Mass.; C. E. Starr, Malden, Mass.; J. A. McNeil, Canoe; C. Fenwick, Sussex; John Godfrey, Barrington.

"The Ladies," proposed with the song, "The Ladies, oh the Ladies," had coupled with it the names of Messrs Dixon, Torrie and Harvey. The former, in the role of a lady spoke from that standpoint. The latter later variety to the program by giving recitations of merit, locally applauded.

"St. George's Lodge," responded to by Worshipful Master W. H. Duncanson, Senior Warden DeWitt, Senior Deacon Faville.

"Past Masters St. George's Lodge," C. R. H. Starr.

"Our new Craftsmen," responded to by Messrs Taylor, McDonald and Young.

"Our Absent Brethren," D. R. H. Starr. Other toasts were proposed and healths drank forth the last toast "Happy to meet, sorry to part. Hope to meet again," closing with "Auld Lang Syne" all joining with one accord a most pleasant evening among the brotherhood.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., APRIL 2, 1896.

Local and Provincial.

Good Friday.

Soon be time for fish stories!

The regular monthly meeting of the Fish Co. will be held in their rooms this evening, at 8 o'clock.

The trout fishing season opened yesterday. Trout shall not be fished for or caught by any other means than by angling with hook and line.

Case Ladies' Wrappers opened to-day at Caldwell's.

Mr and Mrs Armstrong wish to express their thanks, through the ACADIAN, to the friends who have given help and sympathy in their time of severe affliction.

Messrs B. H. Landis & Co., of Halifax, are now in town. Their business is the renovating of old silk hats, and they bring with them a recommendation for first-class work. See their ad in another column.

Have you not some pictures to frame? Bring them along now. Wolfville Book Store.

A meeting of the Town Improvement Association will be held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, April 9th, at 8.30 o'clock. A full attendance of the members and all interested in the improvement of the town is requested.

A number of Wolfville's music-loving people attended the concert given by Madame Albani in the Academy of Music, Halifax, this week. They were all delighted with the performance of the great prima donna and her excellent company.

Room paper at 4 cents per roll at the Wolfville Book Store.

Over 150 different patterns Room Paper to select from, at Wolfville Book Store.

Mr W. H. Duncanson purchased from Mr Geo. Harvey, of Grand Pre, this week a handsome pair of oxen for the Easter trade. They are exceptionally good ones. The chances for Easter dinner to obtain a prime roast for $1000 this year are good.

Carver's, Windsor, N. S., take pleasure in sending their customers samples and price lists when requested.

Don't forget that we are selling out a lot of Room Paper at less than half price, at the Wolfville Book Store.

Last week we recorded the sudden death of a little daughter of Mr and Mrs J. F. Armstrong, of this town. On Sunday her little twin sister was taken ill and died on Monday. The case is a most sad one, and the doubly bereaved parents have the heart-felt sympathy of the community at large. They were bright and pretty children of nearly five years.

No need of it—to go out of town for a bicycle. You can buy the best at lowest prices from the Wolfville Book Store.

FOR SALE.—Two new Houses on Gaspean Avenue, of 7 rooms each. Apply to C. A. PATRIQUIN.

Rev. Edwin Crowell, president of the King's County Prohibition Convention, is to give an address, explaining the object and working of the Convention, in Temperance Hall on Monday evening of next week. Mr Crowell is a pleasing speaker and the subject he will discuss is before the voters of this county. The public is cordially invited to be present, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

Personal Mention.

Mr. William Hill, son of C. R. Hill, Esq., of this town, left on Friday last for Nings, Manitoba.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Kempton, of Dartmouth, will regret to learn of the present illness of Mrs. Kempton.

We are glad to see our enterprising and popular young jeweller, Mr. A. H. Westover, out again. What would Wolfville be without "Westy"?

Among the list of names of "Sweet girl graduates" of Dalhousie College for the present year appears the name of Miss Mary McKay, daughter of Alex. McKay, Inspector of Schools for Halifax city. Mr McKay was formerly principal of the Wolfville school.

C. E. Starr & Son have now in a supply of extra quality Salmon Trains, for fishermen's use.

What's the matter with the town of Wolfville having some baseball this year? Two good teams could be formed without any trouble, and a series of games might be arranged for the championship of Main street—those employed in the stores and offices on the right side of the street vs. those on the left side. Just imagine! "Champions of Main street" wouldn't the possibility of having his team win that title, spur every man on to play with his utmost ability? We would be glad to hear what our young men think about it?

President—Mrs R. V. Jones. Vice Presidents—Mrs Thomas Harris, Mrs R. Reid, Mrs L. Sloop. Recording Secretary—Miss L. Denovan. Cor. Secretary—Miss Minnie Fitch. Treasurer—Miss Annie S. Fitch. Auditor—Mrs J. C. Gibson.

Next meeting in Temperance Hall Thursday, April 9th, at 8.30 p. m. The meetings are always open to any who wish to become members.

Gospel Temperance meetings, conducted by members of the W. C. T. U., are held every Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, in the vestry of the Methodist church. All are welcome.

A Short and Ever True Story.

The official board of a prominent Methodist Episcopal Church was in session, discussing the advisability of giving letters to twenty-seven of its members who wished to withdraw because the Church opposed their prohibition sentiments.

"I don't understand what these fanatic prohibitionists want," said the Hon. Mr. Smith, "Our Church, as a Church, has declared that the liquor traffic cannot be legalized without sin, and nothing stronger than that could be uttered. The man who sells liquor for a living is worse than a—"

Just then a sharp knock at the door. "Come in," said the pastor.

The door opened, and the portly form of the publican from across the street appeared in the doorway. He said:

"Gentlemen, knowing this to be your regular meeting night, I decided to come over and inform you that I and my family have made up our minds to join your church, and help along the good work you are doing."

This speech was greeted with dumb astonishment by the members of the board. Dr. Williamson (the pastor) was the first to speak.

"Have you given up the papist-house business?" said he.

"No, sir," replied the publican.

"Are you going to do that? On what ground does your church refuse to admit publicans?"

"On the ground that they are engaged in a business that could soon be hell," replied Dr. Williamson. "The Bible says that no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God, and, therefore, no drunkard can be a member of our church."

"The publican, in an angry tone, asked, "Do you know that a great many of your members are regular customers of mine?"

"I have heard that some were," said Dr. Williamson.

"Do you know that two of this official board, now in this room, are among my regular customers?"

No reply; but two very red faces showed who had been hit.

"Do you know that I get my license from Judge Grant, who sits right here, for which I paid the regular license fee?"

"Hold on," said Judge Grant; "I did not make the law, and I am compelled by the licensing laws to grant licenses; therefore I am not responsible."

"Well, the law was enacted by Mr. Smith there and other voters."

"You can't place the responsibility on me," said Mr. Smith. "I carried out the wishes of those who elected me. Had been elected on the prohibition platform. I would have voted for a prohibitory law. My party voted for high license, and I voted for the law."

"I understand that fully," said the publican; "but I voted for you, so did Judge Grant, so did Dr. Williamson; so did the rest of this board and a great majority of the voters in your church. I look it for granted that all that voted for you believed in license. Now, I am politely told that I cannot join the heaven-born band, and that I shall go to hell. Dr. Williamson here voted for you, Smith, to pass license in what compels Judge Grant to give me a license to go to hell. I am the fourth party to the agreement, and without the consent of you three I could not engage in the liquor business. Gentlemen, if your Bible is true, and I go to hell for selling liquor, you will go with me for voting to give me the legal right to do so. Good night."

The members of the official board looked steadily on the floor; each one was doing some pretty serious thinking, when Dr. Williamson ended the silence by saying slowly:

"Brethren, the publican has told us some terrible truths. Let us go home and pray for light."—Waldwood.

The Devil's Philosophy.

1. To become strong in resisting sin you must put yourself where you will be strongly tempted to commit sin.

2. To understand the horrors of drunkenness you must go to the saloon and get drunk.

3. To be fully aware of and capable of resisting the wiles of gambling, you must witness the races and know how to play cards.

4. To fortify your boy against the saloon and its associations you should have him spend several evenings loitering around the bar.

The above are a few tenets in the devil's philosophy. How do they strike you? Are they sound? If they are, then saloons, horse races, gambling dens, brothels, prize fighting, etc., should be sustained and encouraged as educators in morals. Strange, indeed, that some professed Christians think the devil's philosophy is sound.—Religious Telescope.

OUR BELOVED QUEEN.

Our beloved Queen Victoria; God bless her and preserve her to her loyal and loving people.

Few homes can boast of having a really good and recent cabinet photo of Her Majesty, who will soon attain her 77th year.

The Wells & Richardson Co., manufacturers of Diamond Dyes, have made special arrangements with the publishers of Our Home, Canada's best, purest, most interesting and most entertaining family paper, now in its fourth year of active and progressive work, whereby they are enabled to make the following special and generous offer, good for one month only:

An elegant full cabinet photo (from a recent copy taken by royal command) of Her Majesty Queen Victoria; a four-page pamphlet, giving dates of births, marriages and deaths, and other items of interesting and useful information relating to the Royal family, that but few people have access to; six Diamond Dye balls with six extra dyes, and a card of forty-five samples of dyed cloth, showing colors of Diamond Dyes—will be sent free to every man, woman and child who will send in 25 cents in money or stamps for one year's subscription to Our Home, a paper that thousands declare to be worth a dollar.

The cabinet photos of the queen are worth 40 to 50 cents each, and can be obtained only as premiums with Our Home.

If you desire to have pure and wholesome reading matter for one year, and the premiums as promised above, send your name and address at once. The whole cost, remember, is only 25 cents. Address Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, P. Q.

The Stupid Yankees.

The stupid and fatuous conduct of certain American officials who imagine themselves to be charged with the task of depriving the United States of good citizens and good work, because they have mixed with its seething and varied population. We are sorry enough that they have gone. We believe, and the vast majority of them now see, that they were woefully mistaken in going. Many thousands of them are coming back, and are showing the path to not a few Americans who want to make a home and who have found out that our prairies offer them immensely better chances than the alkali plains of the Western States.

And we are not such stupid fools as to pass a law to keep them out. We want good citizens in this country, and it is appalling to find that our own officials are doing nothing to help the American public from all sides, demanding solution on pain of national death, make it imperative for the Americans to secure a larger leaven of just such citizenship as Canada supplies.

Yet they have passed a law and are paying officials to keep it out.

Nationally, we can have no quarrel with them for this. We want emigration stopped, even though now it be but a dribble. We want those men to stay at home. Personally, this law, especially the method of its enforcement, is intensely offensive. It creates bad feeling, and what the Americans have to gain by industriously fostering a hostile sentiment among their next-door neighbors is as hard to see as it is to find common sense in the alien law.—Montreal Star.

Beyond Recovery.

The Boy LaFlamme—His Cure was a Surprise—A few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Piquettesville, March 30, (Special). The father of the boy LaFlamme is one of the leading merchants here and willing to talk of his son's cure, he says: "My little boy Arthur, after several fever attacks, was never recovered and his ailment ran into a kidney trouble. His body was swollen to twice its natural size. The sufferings of the little fellow were very severe and we all had given up hope of him. But three months ago we commenced giving him Dodd's Kidney Pills, and to-day he is romping and playing with other boys." This is an instance of prompt cure is very remarkable.

Present indications point to a heavy tourist travel between Boston and the provinces next summer, and patrons of the various lines will be served better than ever before. In the opinion of Boston tourists the first important summer hotel in the provinces should be erected at Digby, for there is to be found a charming environment of sea and an atmosphere that is as sweet and wholesome as the breezes of Paradise. With all these natural advantages Digby is almost unknown to the Yankee traveller, who is at all times seeking new fields of exploration. So says the Boston Herald.

"Our whole neighborhood has been stirred up," said the regular reader. The editor of the country weekly seized his pen.

"Tell me about it," he said. "What we want is the news. What stirred it up?"

"Ploughing," said the farmer.

One of the best places to locate hives is in the orchards, as usually there the bees will be more free from annoyances and will be less likely to annoy anything else.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

Why should you yearn for fame? Maybe, when death has ended earthly life, posterity may blush to see Your name adorning some one's pills.

Every one can master a grief, but he that has it. Wiggles—Is that a good business college where your son is being educated? Waggles—I guess so. They're very prompt about tending their bills.

Hilloo. Is this the feed store? Will, stand up at once a bale of hay, two quarts of bran and a bushel of oats. Who is it here? Ah, don't get gay. It's those the horse!

I had always been an American until I went round a curve in a cable car this morning.

What difference did that make? Then I became a Laplander.

In place of that constantly tired out feeling, Ayer's Sarsaparilla will give you strength.

Old Mr. Fussy—Matilda, has that young man gone yet? His daughter—Why, yes, papa. Old Mr. Fussy—Hm! you were so still that I thought he was still there.

Strawber—I have been figuring all the morning on my accounts for 1895. Singlerly—How much has it cost you? Strawber—I wasn't figuring that. I was figuring how much it cost my creditors.

Johnny Greenleaf—Tommy Jones is learning French now. He told me lots of things, like café—that means coffee. Farmer Greenleaf (who has been to Boston)—Does it? I thought it meant beer.

Not worth your while That false, sweet smile, Which o'er your features play; The heart of steel— I can reveal. By my catholic rays.

Vitality, exhausted by overwork or disease, is quickly restored by use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Julia—Louise showed me those beautiful landscapes. She says she had no trouble at all painting them. Mabel—No. All she had to do was to sign her name after her sister finished them.

Watts—How did you ever get the notion that Briggs was thinking of joining the prohibitionists? Potts—Got it from his talk. He had taken to calling his sideboard his medicine chest.

Minards Liniment is used by Physicians.

Railroad official—You may not believe it, but this dining car cost $25,000. Planter—How long has it been running? Just a week. Paid for itself yet?

Edith, called out from the sitting room, are you stirring that flour into the batter as I showed you how to do it? Yes, mamma, said the little girl, but my arm is getting awfully tired. Would it unmix if I stirred it the other way for a while?

Minards Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

Mother—Elsie, your sister tells me you took a second helping of pudding at Mrs. Brown's to-day. Little Elsie—So I did, mamma. Do you think that was was right, Elsie? Yes. You know you have often told me not to contradict anyone, and Mrs. Brown said, I know, Elsie, you will have a second helping of pudding, and I couldn't contradict her, could I?

Keep Minards Liniment in the House.

Do you ever go to church? I asked a city missionary of a woman who had applied to him for assistance. No, I don't, was the reply. The fact is, I ain't fit things to wear. My husband's been out of work so long I've run out of things; and, anyhow, me an' my husband have such different views, I'd have to go alone if I went at all. What are your views? Why, I am a Methodist, and my husband, he's one of these here Knights of Pythias.

I BELIEVE MINARD'S LINIMENT will cure every case of Diphtheria.

Riversdale. Mrs. REUBEN BAKER. I BELIEVE MINARD'S LINIMENT will promote growth of hair.

Stanley, P. E. L. Mrs. CHAR. ANDERSON. I BELIEVE MINARD'S LINIMENT is the best household remedy on earth. Oil City, Ont. MATHIAS FEIST.

A well-known lady, en route to the last drawing-room found herself hopelessly blocked in a line of carriages, containing those important people who had not the entrance, to which she herself was entitled. Much annoyed that the policeman on duty would not allow her to break through the crowd of vehicles, around her, she leaned out of the carriage window and said to him in some what imperious tones: "Perhaps you don't know I am the wife of a Cabinet Minister?"

"If you were the wife of a President," minister," was the answer, "I could let you pass."

Granby Rubbers

It is no wonder that rubbers, which are not the same shape as the boot, should be uncomfortable. It costs money to employ skilled pattern makers but the result is a satisfactory fit. Each year new patterns are added, to fit all the latest shoe-shapes, and Granby Rubbers are always "up-to-date."

They are honestly made of pure rubber, thin, light, elastic, durable, extra thick at ball and heel.

Don't Draw the Feet They Fit the Boot.

A worthy farmer in the northeast of Scotland had a "masher" and somewhat capricious son who was an under-graduate at Aberdeen University. When at home for the holidays on one occasion the young hopeful elucidated some friend's intention of going in for the Church, that being the best profession they would have expected a youth of his habits and tastes to choose. The old man, who was possessed of a rich fund of dry, sarcastic humor, quietly remarked, "Ay, jist des yet hat, lad, and I'll give ye a text for your first sermon. Well, what may that be? The Lord opened the mouth of the ass."

"I'll kiss you for my sister's sake. Pray don't forget yourself, she said. I straightway took her at her word, and kissed her for myself instead."
