You Can Afford to use 40c. Tea Just as Well as 30c. Tea if You Use 40c. Red Rose

A pound of 40c. Red Rose goes further than any 30c. or 35c. tea and it is distinctly superior in quality.

30c. and 35c. Red Rose Teas are good teas, so good that very many people say they want nothing better. But, if they would once try a package of the 40c. Red Rose they would use nothing else in future.

Just think, five cups of 40c. Red Rose Tea will only cost 1c. One lb. makes over 200 cups. Not a question of affording.

Everything Useful.

There's never a rose in all the world, but makes some green spray sweeter; There's never a wind in all the sky, but makes some bird-wing feather; There's never a star but brings to heaven some silver radiance tender; And never a ray of light but brings To crown the sunset splendor; No robin but may thrill some heart, His dewlight gladdening vision; God give us all about such, sweet way To set the world rejoicing.

IN THE FOG.

BY RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.

'Lord Arthur says now that when it was discovered he was no longer the heir, the money-lenders would come down upon him. The police believe that he at once sought out his brother to beg for money to cover the post-bills, but that, considering the sum he needed was several hundreds of thousands of pounds, Chetney refused to give it him. No one knew that Arthur had gone to seek out his brother. They were alone. It is possible, then, that in a passion of disappointment, and crazed with the disgrace which he saw before him, young Arthur made himself the heir beyond further question. The death of his brother would have availed nothing if the woman remained alive. It is then possible that he crossed the hall, and with the same weapon which made him Lord Edam's heir destroyed the solitary witness to the murder. The only other person who could have seen it was sleeping in a drunken stupor, to which fact undoubtedly owed his life. And yet,' concluded the Naval Attaché, leaning forward and marking each word with his finger, 'Lord Arthur blundered fatally in his haste he left the door of the house open, so giving access to the first passer-by, and he forgot that when he entered it he handed his card to the servant. That piece of paper may yet send him to the gallows. In the meantime he has disappeared completely, and somewhere, in one of the millions of streets of this great capital, in a locked and empty house, lies the body of his brother, and of the woman his brother loved, undiscovered, unburied, and with their murder unavenged.'

In the discussion which followed the conclusion of the story of the Naval Attaché the gentlemen with the pearl took no part. Instead, he arose, and, beckoning a servant to a far corner of the room, whispered earnestly to him until a sudden movement on the part of Sir Andrew caused him to return hurriedly to the table.

'There are several points in Mr. Sear's story I want explained,' he cried. 'Be seated, Sir Andrew,' he begged. 'Let us have the opinion of an expert. I do not care what the police think. I want to know what you think.'

'But Sir Henry rose reluctantly from his chair. 'I should like nothing better than to discuss this,' he said. 'But it is most important that I proceed to the House. I should have been there some time ago.' He turned toward the servant and directed him to call a hansom.

The gentleman with the pearl still looked appealingly at the Naval Attaché. 'There are surely many details that you have not told us,' he urged. 'Some you have forgotten.'

The Baronet interrupted quickly. 'I trust not,' he said. 'For I could not possibly stop to hear them.'

'The story is finished,' declared the Naval Attaché, 'until Lord Arthur is arrested or the bodies are found there is nothing more to tell of either Chetney or the Princess Zichy.'

'Of Lord Chetney perhaps not,' interrupted the sporting looking gentleman with the black tie, 'but there'll always be something to tell of the Princess Zichy. I know enough stories about her to fill a book. She was a most remarkable woman.' The speaker dropped the end of his cigar into his coffee cup and, taking his case from his pocket, selected a fresh one. As he did so he laughed and held up the case that the others might see it.

see it. It was an ordinary cigar case of well worn pigskin, with a silver clasp. 'The only time I ever met her,' he said, 'I tried to rob me of this.' The Baronet regarded him closely. 'She tried to rob you?' he repeated. 'Tried to rob me of this,' continued the gentleman in the black tie, 'and of the Catarina's diamonds.' His tone was one of mingled admiration and injury.

'The Catarina's diamonds!' exclaimed the Baronet. He glanced quickly and suspiciously at the speaker, and then, as the others about the table, he saw some evidence of no ordinary value. 'Yes, the Catarina's diamonds,' repeated the man with the black tie. 'It was a necklace of diamonds. I was told to take them to the Russian Ambassador in Paris who was to deliver them at Moscow. I am a Queen's Messenger,' he added.

'Oh, I see,' exclaimed Sir Andrew in a tone of relief. 'And you say that this same Princess Zichy, one of the victims of this double murder, endeavored to rob you of—that cigar case.'

'And the Catarina's diamonds,' answered the Queen's Messenger imperceptibly. 'It's not much of a story, but it gives you an idea of the woman's character. The robbery took place between Paris and Marseilles.' The Baronet interrupted him with an abrupt movement. 'No, no,' he cried, shaking his head in protest. 'Do not tempt me. I really cannot listen. I must be at the House in ten minutes.'

'I am sorry,' said the Queen's Messenger. He turned to those seated about him. 'I wonder if the other gentlemen—' he inquired tentatively. 'There was a chorus of polite murmurs, and the Queen's Messenger, bowing his head in acknowledgment, took a preparatory sip from his glass. At the same moment the servant to whom the man with the black pearl had spoken, slipped a piece of paper into his hand. He glanced at it, frowned, and threw it under the table. The servant bowed to the Baronet. 'Your hansom is waiting, Sir Andrew,' he said.

'The necklace was worth twenty thousand pounds,' began the Queen's Messenger. 'It was a present from the King of England to celebrate—the Baronet gave an exclamation of angry annoyance.

'Upon my word, this is most provoking,' he interrupted. 'I really ought not to stay. But I certainly want to hear this.' He turned hurriedly to the servant. 'Tell the hansom to wait,' he commanded, and, with an air of a boy who is playing truant, slipped guiltily into his chair.

The gentleman with the black pearl smiled blandly, and rapped upon the table. 'Order, gentlemen,' he said. 'Order for the story of the Queen's Messenger and the Catarina's diamonds.'

'The necklace was a present from the Queen of England to the Czarina of Russia,' began the Queen's Messenger. 'It was to celebrate the coronation of the Czar's coronation. Our Foreign Office knew that the Russian Ambassador in Paris was to proceed to Moscow for that ceremony, and was directed to go to Paris and to turn the necklace to him. But when I reached Paris I found that he had not expected me for a week later and was taking a few days' vacation at Nice. His people asked me to leave the necklace with them at the Embassy, but I had been charged to get a receipt for it from the Ambassador himself, so I started at once for Nice. The fact that Monte Carlo is not two thousand miles from Nice may explain to you my instructions so carefully.

'Now, how the Princess Zichy came to find out about the necklace I don't know, but I can guess. As you have just heard, she was at one time a spy in the service of the Russian government, and after they dismissed her she kept up her acquaintance with many of the Russian agents in London. It is probably through one of them she learned that the necklace was to be sent to Moscow, and which one of the Queen's Messengers had been detailed to take it there. Still, I doubt if even that knowledge would have helped her if she had not also known something which I supposed no one else in the world knew but myself and another man. And, curious enough, the other man was the Queen's Messenger too, and a friend of mine. You must know that up to the time of this robbery I had always concealed my despatches in a manner peculiarly my own. I got the idea from that play called 'A Scrap of Paper.' Is it a man wants to hide a certain compromising document, he knows that all his rooms will be secretly searched for it, so he puts it in a torn envelope and sticks it up where any one can see it on his mantel shelf. The result is that the woman who is ransacking the house to find it looks in all the unlikely places, but passes over the scrap of paper that is just under her nose. Sometimes the papers and packages they give us carry about Europe are of great value, and sometimes they are special makes of cigarettes, and orders to court dressmakers. Sometimes we know what we are carrying and sometimes we do not. If it is a large sum of money or a treaty, they generally tell us. But, as a rule, we have no knowledge of what the package contains; so to be on the safe side, we naturally take just as great care of it as though we knew it held the terms of an ultimatum or the crown jewels. As a rule, my confreres carry the official packages in a despatch box, which is just as obvious as a lady's jewel bag in the hands of her maid. Every one knows they are carrying something of value. They put a premium on dishonesty. Well, after I saw the 'Scrap of Paper' play, I determined to put the government valuables in the most unlikely place that any one would look for them. So I used to hide the documents they gave me inside my riding boots, and small articles, such as money or jewels, I carried in an old cigar case. After I took to using my case for that purpose I bought a new one, exactly like it, for my cigars. But to avoid mistakes, I had my initials placed on both sides of the new one, and the moment I touched the case, even in the dark, I could tell which it was by the raised initials.

'No one knew of this except the Queen's Messenger of whom I spoke. We once left Paris together on the Orient Express. I was going to Constantinople and he was going to stop off at Vienna. On the journey I told him of my peculiar way of hiding things and showed him my cigar case. If I recollect rightly, on that trip it held the grand cross of St. Michael and St. George, which the Queen was sending to our Ambassador. The Messenger was very much entertained at my scheme, and some months later when he met the Princess he told her about it as an amusing story. Of course, he had no idea she was a Russian spy. He didn't know anything at all about her, except that she was a very attractive woman. It was indeliberate, but he could have possibly guessed that she could ever make any use of what he told her.

Municipal Council.

The principle on which their lordships had given judgment, was that the law afforded no remedy from injury resulting from nonfeasance. If malfeasance could be shown, the injured person had a remedy at law. In other words, if the Municipality had left undone the things which it ought to have done, the person injured thereby could not recover damages. If the Municipality, however, had done the things it ought not to have done, then damages could be recovered.

In the present case, Mr. Roscoe said, there was no malfeasance. The bridge had been properly built in the first place. In process of time it had naturally decayed. The Municipality had failed to have it repaired, which constituted a nonfeasance. Under the circumstances, he could not see that Mr. Webster had any claim against the Municipality.

Mr. Webster asked if he had any recourse against anybody.
Mr. Roscoe said that the Council might be indicted for maintaining a public nuisance in the form of a dangerous bridge. If that procedure were taken the Warren might be imprisoned.

Cous. Reid suggested that the bridge was under the 'Smaller Bridge Act,' and the provincial government, not the Municipality, was responsible.
Cous. Hamilton moved that Mr. Webster be paid $125. Coun. Covert seconded.

After some discussion the motion was lost, six voting for and nine against.
A petition that road in New Minas be retraced was ruled out of order.
Bill of Fred R. Clark, claiming $50 for damages for land taken for road, Saxton Street to Canning, read. Mr. Clark's name did not appear among those to whom damages were awarded at January session of Council and an act of the legislature has since been passed validating those proceedings. This would seem to preclude Mr. Clark's claim. It was resolved that Cous. Roscoe and Griffin be a committee to enquire into the facts of the case and report at next session of Council.

The report of Supervisors of Public Grounds in Cornwallis in reference to the widening of North Avenue in Canning was read, giving statement of amount of land required from different parties for said widening. Petitions that the street be not widened read. Interested parties and delegates from the Canning Board of Trade were heard.
Mr. Roscoe said that the papers before Council contained nothing in keeping with the statutes. If the road was originally four rods wide the duty of the supervisors was to make orders that obstructions be removed. If the road had been laid out no wider than at present, the procedure to get it widened would be the same as in laying out a new road. Private arrangements might be made with holders of land, who might be willing to agree to give up their claim for a small consideration rather than run the risk of having to give it up for nothing.

On motion of Cous. Covert and Tilley it was resolved that the matter be referred back to the supervisors, they be directed to proceed in the matter exactly as required by law.
Read report of A. E. Coldwell, Commissioner, in re road from Brown's Corner in Ward 1 to Six-rod Highway; damages $161.38.
On motion of Cous. Covert the report was not adopted.
Report of A. E. Coldwell in re road Kingsport to Longwell Creek, read. Proceedings confirmed and road established. No damages.
Letter read in re memorial tower in Halifax and contribution thereto, no action taken.

Cous. Parker moved, seconded by Cous. Brydon, that motor vehicles be (Continued on page 4.)

GOOD BLOOD GOOD HEALTH

Just a Little More Rich, Red Blood Causes Most Ailments.
The lack of sufficient red, health-giving blood doesn't end merely in a pale complexion. It is much more serious. Bloodless people are the tired, languid, run down folk who never have a bit of enjoyment in life. Food does not nourish, there's indigestion, heart palpitation, headache, backache, sometimes fainting fits and always nervousness. If anemia or bloodlessness be neglected too long a decline is sure to follow. Just a little more blood cures all these troubles. Just more rich, red blood; then a bounding health and vitality and pleasure in life. To get more blood the remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. No other medicine increases the blood supply so quickly or so surely. The cure actually begins with the first dose, though naturally it is not noticeable. This is not a mere claim. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been doing this over and over again in Canada for years. This is why thousands of people always have a good word to say about this medicine.

The following is the experience of one of the many who praise this medicine. Mrs. J. Thibodeau, Bathurst Village, N.B., says: 'Some years ago while teaching school I became so run down that I could hardly walk. My breath was short and I had fallen in weight and lost color. I had to rest several times on my way to school and during school hours it took more than all my strength to fulfill my duty. My doctor advised me to give up teaching and take a long rest. But at this time a friend persuaded me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got six boxes. I hadn't finished the first box when I felt a little better and by the time I had used the six boxes I was fully recovered and enjoying the best of health. At a later date I was troubled with eczema and my faith in Pink Pills led me to try them again, and I was not disappointed, as they cured this trouble also. I can't praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too much for they have done me a power of good.'

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAY 13, 1910.

Death of King Edward.

Last Friday night, with lightning speed, the sad tidings flashed through the civilized world that Edward the Seventh, King of Great Britain and Ireland, of British Dominions beyond the seas, and Emperor of India, was dead. Despite all aid from medical skill, the disease by which His Majesty was stricken down proved too malignant for the recuperative powers of his system to overcome. Threatening complications followed the first attack. In the evening premonitions of dissolution brought forth faint though trustful words long to be cherished, of hope of duty done; and before midnight, watched in that sad chamber at Buckingham palace by his sorrowing family, the tragic struggle ended, and death brought to his royal victim that calm relief from suffering and freedom from care earthly triumphs are powerless to bestow.

By this untoward event, for the second time before the first decade of the twentieth century has run its course, the British empire is plunged in profound grief at loss, by death, of the sovereign head of its constitutional form of government. The passing away of Victoria was fittingly marked by universal sorrow. Still the nation realized that her death, closing, as it did, a reign of unexpected length and prosperity, was but inevitable payment of the debt due to nature, an ingathering of golden grain ripe for the garner.

In contrast to the long reign of his illustrious mother, that of Edward the VII. has been prematurely closed. But if the actual reign of King Edward has been all too short, for more than a generation he discharged no smaller share of the public functions of sovereign. And how well such duties were done, is known to all. By general acclaim, King Edward has been a model constitutional king. Heedful to take occasion by the hand, he was always ready to speak the fitting word, and do the called-for act at the most opportune time, and in the kindest manner. Few were his equals in knowledge of the institutions, possessions, and history of his country; while his appreciation of the character, interests, pursuits and passions of his countrymen was unequalled. These, with many other traits of character, endeared King Edward to the British people, and turned sternest censors into warmest friends.

In international politics, the King has played an active part in keeping with the traditions of the empire. With all Europe armed to the teeth, his influence was always on the side of peace. All diplomacy of the blood and iron type was alike repulsive to his principles and instincts. His aim was to keep the temple of Janus always shut, and to his illustrious heritage he has added the noblest of earthly titles—that of peacemaker.

Short as the reign of King Edward has been, it will, nevertheless, be memorable. Time, the great arbiter, awards justly. Even now, as the body of the King lies in the first stillness of death, millions mourn his passing as a calamity, and devoutly implore that Power, mightier than the mightiest, in whose sight earthly glory is as dust, to overrule that calamity for good. And all, too, in sympathy, trust that the strength of the widowed Queen may be in proportion to her great sorrow, and that his successor—whom may God bless—may tread in the steps of his illustrious father.

Our New King.

The proclamation of the accession of King George V. took place in London on Monday, May 9th, with dazzling and imposing ceremony. The quaintly garbed heralds from four points in the City, with all the fantastic ceremonies of antiquity, proclaimed the accession to the throne, of His Majesty George V., King of Great Britain and Ireland and the Dominions beyond the seas, Emperor of India, Defender of the faith, Sir Alfred Scott-Guthrie, Garter Principal King of Arms, read the proclamation from the balcony of St. James' Palace where for centuries English Kings have been publicly proclaimed. The Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshall of England, then called for three cheers for the King and the crowd's response with deafening hurrahs and the band of the Coldstream guards which had taken up a position in the court yard struck up “God Save the King.”

Meeting of Board of School Commissioners.

The Board of School Commissioners for Kings county met in the Court House, Kentville, on Tuesday, May 10th, at 10.30 a. m.

Commissioners present:—James Hillz, C. E. Sanford, L. Dev. Chipman, S. S. Strong, J. W. Robinson, Dr. N. Fuller and Henry Shaw. L. Dev. Chipman was appointed chairman for the ensuing year. In reporting upon the condition of schools the Inspector referred briefly to the schools as he found them thirty-seven years ago as compared with the schools of the present term. In 1873 when he became Inspector there were 93 schools, taught by 99 teachers, now there are 135 schools by 144 teachers. The increase in number of schools has been 42, in teachers 45. School buildings have undergone a great change, and been very much improved. As an example Kentville was referred to. In 1873 there were two schools and two teachers only. Now there are 17 departments taught by 11 teachers. Almost all the school-houses in the county have either been built or enlarged and repaired during this time. New furniture has been provided for most all of the school-houses. Now the times demand a new brick school house for Kentville in order to retain the Academic Grants.

Many of the schools are provided with good libraries and apparatus for experiments in chemistry and physics. Another feature, namely, the number of schools that are graded and have more than one teacher, indicates plainly the progress and quality of work done. There are now in Kings county 18 graded schools, 14 have two departments each; one, three; one, four; one, six; and one, eleven; total 52 departments.

Three sections were reported with, out schools, namely, Clermont, Davison Street and Dalhousie Road.

On motion it was voted to continue the same Poor Section List for another year.

S. S. Strong, A. S. MacDonald and W. B. Roscoe were appointed a committee under Section 13 School Act. The Inspector reported the condition of the School Land Fund as follows:—In hands of Inspector on deposit receipt $808.74, in hands of Treasurer $492.47, total $1301.21. There is to be paid from this fund to the vote of the Board, at last meeting, for year ending August, 1910, $500. On motion the Board voted the following sums from this fund for the year ending August, 1911:—$300 to Chipman Brook to aid in building a school-house, on the condition that the trustees keep the house insured; $75 to Pine Woods to be expended, under the direction of the Inspector of schools, to keep a school in that section; and $25 each to the seventeen poor sections in the township of Cornwallis, providing they keep their schools open throughout the year.

By vote of the Board the Inspector is to draw the balance, in hands of the Treasurer, and put it with the balance in his hands, after paying the $500 voted for the year ending 1910, on deposit receipt in the bank, and should he retire from the inspectorship it shall be handed over to his successor in office.

COLIN W. ROSCOE, Clerk of Board.

More Deadly Things Than Comets Here.

There are said to be thousands of people fearful that the comet will destroy them by destroying our planet. The cold north, north-east and east winds that sweep this country this time of the year are a greater menace to human life than the comet. There are people who are fearful that the comet will kill them, that are harboring at their back doors that which is a thousand times more dangerous than the comet, such as filthy closets, sink holes, cess pools, pig pens, and other breeders of deadly disease. There are people calling upon the Lord to save them from the comet that will not use the means at their disposal to remove pest holes from their doors. If certain people wish to become more Godly because of the comet's visit, they would improve their efforts by adding cleanliness to their devotion, for in very truth it is said to be next to Godliness.—Exchange.

The Deep Wood.

The deep wood is a beautiful smelting ground this month. Near the entrance one meets M'sieur Squirrel perched on the extremity of the longest branch, twirling (if one is early enough) his breakfast roll between tiny claws, or hurling chattered invectives against the intruding human. And within such a fall chorus of robin and song sparrows is welcoming. Lovely colorings of early buds blend with the deeper shades of moss and shaggy trees now bright with the rains. The sunniness is all boded for early summer bloom. There is gold-thread spreading tiny palms over the mossy banks, and little, bold Indian-pogony buds, and pale spikes of tuberoses pushing timidly from the unfolding sheath, as if uncertain whether warm sunshine or cold east winds would greet them. Now and again there is the whirr and flash of partridge wings, as the intruder struts one of this long suffering species from his resting place. And enveloping everything is the sweet, sprightly solemnity of the forest, fragrant and joyful with new life.

Premier Murray, the condition of whose health has caused a great deal of anxiety during the past few weeks, has been obliged to suffer amputation of one of his legs above the knee. His condition is now, we are glad to note, rapidly improving; and he is said to be on a fair way to recovery.

Memorial Service.

A memorial service in honor of our late beloved king was held last Sunday morning in St. John's church. The church was draped in black, and will remain so until after the funeral. Appropriate hymns were sung by the choir. The Rev. R. F. Dixon spoke of the loss to the Motherland by the death of the king. In England, during the present crisis, the influence of the king had been an invaluable, steady factor. He was the shrewd, experienced pilot of state. So deep and widespread was the public confidence in his prudence, sagacity, honesty and integrity of purpose that everyone felt that while he held the reins of the Empire was safe. The loss to the British crown was the one force that held the Empire together, and without it and the influences that centre and radiate therefrom, it would not stand for twenty-four hours. He was a loss to the world at large, because he was one of the very few living world statesmen. His political character gave him an unrivaled influence, and it had all been used for the best and highest interests of mankind. “He sought peace and ensured it.” This would be his epitaph. Other kings have written their epitaphs in letters of blood, his would be written in letters of gold. But great as was our loss we must not despair. At the death of the late queen we had hardly dared to hope that her place could be filled. But the unexpected had more than happened, and so, as loyal Britains and Canadians, let us rally round his successor, for whom thousands of fervent prayers would go up from thousands of loyal hearts that he might follow in the footsteps of his two predecessors. As loyal subjects of King George V. we would call upon them to sing the first verse of the National Anthem. There was a very large congregation.

Graduating Recital.

The graduating recital of Miss Helen Arabella Knowles, completing artist's course in piano for certificate at Acadia Seminary, took place on Friday evening last, and was a most successful and artistic affair. This was the first recital of the series, and the first to be held in College Hall, which was well filled with appreciative friends of this most popular young lady. Miss Knowles has a charming and graceful stage presence and her rendition of the various numbers on the program was characterized by sweetness of tone and brilliancy of execution. She was assisted by Miss Eva Frodsham, soprano, also of the Seminary, whose selections were very well given and received well-merited encores. Miss Bertha Hefey proved a most effective accompanist. Following is the program as given:—Concerto op. 16, first movement Grieg Miss Knowles (Second piano by Mr. J. C. Ringwald) The Fairy's Lullaby Needham Woodland Sketches MacDowell (a) Will of the Wisp (b) To a Water Lily (c) Told at Sunrise Miss Knowles (d) O for a Day in Spring Miss Frodsham (e) Etude op. 25 No 11 Chopin (f) Etude op. 25 No 9 Miss Knowles (g) Titania's Cradle Lehmann (h) Valse de Concert op. 3 Wieniawski Miss Knowles

Sciatic Rheumatism

Unable to work or sleep—Six years of suffering—Cured by Dr. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD. Mr. Alex. Ehlzer, Jr., Clarence Creek, Russell Co., Ont., writes:—“My nervous system was run down to such an extent that I suffered a great deal from weakness of the nerves and sciatic rheumatism, and at times was like one paralyzed. I could not walk, was unable to sleep, and had no appetite. “Nothing seemed to build up my nerves until I made use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After having used about $12.00 worth of this medicine I feel like a new man. I can walk all right, do a great deal of work, have a good appetite and sleep well every night. “When you have tried of experiments, you can turn to Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food knowing that persistent treatment is bound to be rewarded with hastily beneficial results. But you must get the genuine, bearing portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., 60 etc. at all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.”

A Socialist's Tribute.

London, May 7.—The Socialist Member of Parliament, Mr. Crooks, addressing a public meeting here last night, paid a notable tribute to King Edward, who then lay dying. He declared that one of the King's greatest characteristics was his care for the common people.

Memorial Service at Lower Horton.

A very interesting memorial service was held on Sunday evening last at the Methodist church, Lower Horton, in honor of our late beloved King. Rev. Dr. Borden, the pastor of the church, presided, and the audience filled the body of the church and galleries. At the rear of the pulpit there was a draped Union Jack. Principal Gregg, of Acadia Villa School, led in appropriate prayer, after which Mr. C. A. Campbell, M. L. A., was called upon and gave a most interesting and polished address. He was followed by Dr. George Johnson, whose remarks were especially interesting from the fact that he had met and conversed with the late King, to whom he made most touching reference. Dr. H. Chipman, the last speaker, gave a splendid address. Dr. Chipman is a thorough imperialist, and pronounced himself in favor of one king, one flag, one army and navy. In all the addresses was evident a fervid patriotism, and all in fitting terms spoke appreciation of the life and work of the dead king, and the warm place he held in the affection of his people. The music, which was of a high order, included an exceedingly well rendered solo by Miss Edith Woodman, 'He Giveth His Beloved Sleep.'

The Comet.

It has been predicted that on the 18th inst, the poisonous gases in the tail of Halley's comet will or may swipe the human race, or part of it, from this planet. I do not know nor care whether this will be so or not;—some catastrophe of this kind is certainly spoken of in the Apocalypse—but, as he is a fool who is not prepared for the merely possible occurrence, I suggest that we use our common sense, if we have any, and be prepared at that time and stay prepared, for our certain journey to the cemetery and to eternity at any time. I think we will do well to be all 'packed up and ready.' And what does that imply? To be 'saved,' as it is termed, that is, to be 'saved from sin.' That only can be 'salvation,' and saved from 'the sin that doth so easily beset us,' from secret and 'settling' sin, whatever that sin may be, so that we are free from sin; free from the very desire and inclination to commit it. This is the teaching of Jesus, and of reason and common sense; e. g. we must be saved from covetousness and the love of the world; from 'fleshy lusts, that war against the soul and drown men in perdition,'—so prevalent to-day—from all ill will and the spirit of revenge; from ferocity and the love of drink; from selfishness, the love of self; from all uncleanness, in thought and deed; from the sins of the soul that are contrary to the spirit of Jesus Christ. Now we will do well to be ready by the 18th. 'Oh, I have faith,' some will say. Very well; but your faith does not bring Christ into your heart to save you from sin, which was his mission to earth, it is utterly worthless for this world or the world to come.

Now this question of salvation is of such vast and incomprehensible importance that if we had but an indistinct rumor of it all, he would be blind and deaf and dumb who would not immediately sacrifice all, if necessary, including life itself, to make sure of eternal life, to fulfil his God-given best—as the comet and the stars are doing! THE SARRA.

King George Wouldn't Sell Newspapers. A well known lawyer in St. John is under personal obligation to King George.

It happened twenty-seven years ago. The lawyer was proceeding to Halifax by way of Annapolis. He wished to see a Nova Scotia morning paper. The only sign of a news dealer that he could see was a lad at the end of the car with several Halifax papers.

The lawyer picked up one, and handed the boy the price. It seemed that the lad was not a good salesman. He did not take notice.

'Here is your money,' said the man from St. John.

'You are quite welcome to the paper,' was the reply. 'I've read it.'

The lawyer insisted, but finding the lad resolute took the paper and walked off to a seat by a friend.

The friend was the late 'Doug' Woodworth, a most interesting and able politician, then representing Kings, N. S., in the house of commons, having beaten the present minister of militia.

'Nice appearing lad that,' observed Mr. Woodworth.

'Yes,' was the reply, 'but he wouldn't take my money for the paper, because he had been reading it himself.'

'Do you know that newsboy?' 'Why—no.'

'He belongs to a very good family. Did you ever hear of his grandmother?' 'No, who was she?'

'Her name is Victoria. She rules this country.'

So it was. Prince George, then a midshipman or perhaps a lieutenant, had been on a fishing trip in western Nova Scotia, and was returning to his ship.—St. John Standard.

Death's Doings.

The death of Mr. Robert E. Duncan occurred at Grand Pre, on Friday afternoon last, after a lingering illness. Mr. Duncan, who was in the sixty-fifth year of his age, was a son of the late John Duncan, formerly of St. John, N. B. Many years ago he came to reside at Grand Pre, with his mother, who was a native of that place, and in the years that have intervened made many warm friends, who deeply regret his demise. Mr. Duncan was a most gentlemanly, and a good citizen. He was an active worker in the temperance reform, and ever interested in whatever led to the promotion of the cause of righteousness. For many years an active member of the Wolfville Board of Trade, and formerly a frequent visitor to our town, he will be much missed here as well as in his home community. He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Agnes Stuart, of Grand Pre, and many relatives and warm friends to mourn their loss. The funeral took place on Monday morning and was very largely attended. A brief service by Rev. A. C. Borden, D. D., was held at the home of Mr. W. C. Trenholm, his brother-in-law, where he had for some time made his home, after which the remains, followed by a long procession of sorrowing friends, were taken to the railway station and embarked for St. John, where the interment was made on Tuesday afternoon.

At his late residence, Main street, this town, at 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning, after a lingering illness, passed away Mr. Edward Hennessey, in his forty-second year. Mr. Hennessey was a native of Halifax, but spent practically all his life in Wolfville, having come here when quite young on the death of his parents. He was a steady and industrious young man and had many friends. He leaves a widow and two children to mourn their loss. The funeral takes place from his late home at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

After a long and painful illness at the home of her sister, Mrs. Valentine S. (Mrs. M. Alfred) Sanford, for many years bookkeeper for George F. Richardson at Newton Centre, died on Sunday. She was the daughter of the late Wilkins Sanford and was born at Summerville, Nova Scotia, coming with her sister to this place about 16 years ago. She was a young lady of exemplary character, cheerful and companionable, who made many friends in the community. She was a member of the Congregational church, and led a consistent Christian life. For some years she has been a patient sufferer, but maintained her cheerful disposition to the last. She is survived by a brother, Rev. Lewis Santor, and a sister, Mrs. Valentine Swail.—Massachusetts paper. [Mrs. B. S. Coldwell, of this town, is a sister of deceased.]

Baseball. The Victoria played their annual game of baseball with Acadia Villa School, at Hortonville, on Wednesday, winning by a score of 16-2 with the game unfinshed.

Summary: Strike outs—by Henshaw, 11; by Fisher, 6. Two-base hits—Victoria, Eagles; for Acadia Villa, Fisher and R. Woodman. The line-up of the teams was as follows: Victoria. Acadia Villa.

C. Webster c. Fluck E. Henshaw p. Fisher Robertson 1b. Mr. GREGG C. Robinson 2b. Mr. F. Woodman E. Baras 3b. McAnn B. Eagles s. S. Seacle S. Shaw c. f. Jones N. Wickwire 1. f. Mr. R. Woodman H. Evans r. f. R. Borden

The visitors were cordially entertained in the dining-hall of the school.

Billtown. On Sunday last the writer had the privilege of worshipping at the Billtown Baptist church, of which Rev. A. Whitman is the earnest and energetic pastor. The church edifice is one of the best in the county. It was erected a few years ago and is of modern pattern and very artistic and convenient. There was a large congregation present and the music was inspiring and helpful. It being Temperance Sunday, the pastor gave an address appropriate to the occasion, taking as his subject 'The Liquor Traffic, what it is and how it may be successfully combated.' The traffic was described as the enemy of God and man, and in the earnest and convincing address the speaker emphasized the duty of every Christian respecting its suppression. The address was listened to with attention by the large congregation. Rev. Mr. Whitman is apparently carrying on a very successful work. He has a large Men's Bible Class which is well attended and which he makes very interesting.

PURITY FLOUR And Its Keeping Qualities. SOME people find it necessary to buy a considerable quantity of flour at one time—sufficient to last for a long period. Naturally they are anxious to procure a flour of the kind best adapted to lengthy storage. There are two important reasons why PURITY FLOUR possesses these qualities. One is that it is made entirely from Manitoba Hard Wheat. The other lies in the fact that the careful milling necessary to produce 'Purity' absolutely excludes all low-grade particles of the wheat berry. It's the high grade Manitoba Hard Wheat Flour that keeps—stands longest storage. That's 'Purity.' 'Purity' flour may cost a little more, but is more than worth the difference. Try it. Watch results both for quality and yield. 'More Bread and better Bread' WESTERN CANADA FLOUR MILLS CO., LIMITED Mills at Winnipeg, Outlook, Brandon.

Minister Who Tested Zam-Buk.

READ HIS DELIBERATE OPINION.

Rev. P. F. Langill, 'The Manse,' Carp, Ont., writes: 'Some considerable time ago I began using Zam-Buk with a view to testing it thoroughly. I am troubled with eczema, which is always worse in the early part of winter, and seems to leave me about spring. I tried Zam-Buk immediately by my hands started to break out, and am pleased to say that it checked the disease, which is more than I can say for anything I have ever before tried. We now have Zam-Buk in the house continuously. The children use it for scratches, cuts, and any skin in jury or disease, and I carry a small sample box in my pocket. One evening I happened to look in where an old man had met with an accident a week before and had lost a finger nail. His wife was dressing the wound. I dressed it with Zam-Buk and left the little sample box with them for the next dressing. I have seen the old gentleman since, and he has now the same high opinion of Zam-Buk as myself and my family have.'

'On another occasion a farmer called at the Manse, and I noticed a rag on his finger. Enquiring about the injury, I learned that he had some how taken a piece of flesh off, and the wound had taken to fester. He was afraid it would make amputation necessary. I gave him about a third of a box of Zam-Buk and he applied it. A few days later I saw him, and he said 'That's great salve of yours, my finger is now doing fine.'

This is a Scotchman's opinion; it has taken a good while to convince him, but he wanted to make sure of Zam-Buk's merit before endorsing it. 'It is well worth recommending.'

'This is exactly the kind of testimony we most appreciate. Test Zam-Buk! Don't go by hearsay! You will find it gives the best results in all cases of eczema, ringworm, festering sores, piles, cuts, burns, marces, eruptions, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores, soap box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, but return cheap and harmful substitutes and imitations.'

The Mysterious Nerves.

How like electricity is the mysterious nerve force which courses through the body controlling the movements of every muscle and the working of every organ. The secret of keeping the marvelous nervous system in health and vigor is found in the use of Dr. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. These tablets are sold by Rand's Drug Store.

Screen your Doors and Windows.

Do not neglect to screen doors and windows with wire, in order to keep out flies and mosquitoes and the moths and bugs that fly about all night. This is a necessity, as flies are a menace to health, as well as a destroyer of comfort. If you have no frames for the windows, let the whole opening be covered, tacking it on the outside of the frame, then the window can be opened from top or bottom. Do this as soon as the windows are cleaned for the spring.

John D. Rockefeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough, Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is simply impossible, and so save every one that has used it. Sold by Rand's Drug Store.

Handling Cookies.

The best cookies are handled the better they are. A good plan is to roll the cookies directly on greased sheets of tin on which they can be baked. Have the piece of tin as large as the oven will hold. Mark the cookies off with parallel lines after the dough is rolled out. The minute the cookies are taken out of the oven they should be cut into oblong pieces and taken off the tin.

Municipal Council.

not allowed to run on the highways of this Municipality on Saturday and Sunday of each week.

The motion passed after a long discussion.

Coun. Parker moved that P. Innis, Esq., be appointed appraiser for the Municipality for lands taken for right-of-way, etc., for Centreville to Weston branch of the Dominion Atlantic Railway.

Mr. Ross Chipman and Mr. A. S. Macdonald were also nominated.

On the first ballot Mr. Macdonald had seven votes, Mr. Innis five and Mr. Chipman three.

A second ballot showed eight votes for Mr. Macdonald and seven for Mr. Innis, and Mr. Macdonald was declared elected appraiser.

Couns. Parker and Hamilton filed notice of reconsideration at the next meeting of Council.

Solicitor Roscoe spoke in reference to the outbreak of smallpox in Ward 9. There had been seventy cases with but one death. Disinfection and fumigation have been attended to with the exception of one building, a combined house and barn affording shelter for a family of ten persons, two cows and a horse. The family have recovered from the disease, but, as it was impossible to disinfect the building, they were not allowed to go among the neighbors, working for whom was their chief means of livelihood. It had been proposed that the building should be burned. This he thought, neither Health Officer nor Council had power to order without the consent of the owner. This consent might be obtained for a consideration.

After a prolonged discussion it was resolved that Couns. Hamilton, Anderson and Griffin be a committee to investigate the matter and take such action as seemed to them wise.

Messrs. J. D. Martin, Edgar L. Foster and Levi R. Clarke were appointed a Board of Revision and Appeal.

Council adjourned to Friday, May 27th at 11 o'clock.

Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Peppin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Parra, Birmingham, Ala. The "Chemics" of Bread

LET us look a bit into the chemistry of bread. For we want our bread not only to seem good but we want it to actually be good. And as bread is a question of flour and flour a question of wheat we see that wheat is where we have to begin.

Starch, water and phosphates, are the principal component qualities of wheat. And in proportion as these qualities are more or less present is the wheat more or less valuable so far as nutrition is concerned.

The nutritive and bread-making qualities of wheat are the things that make it more valuable than rye or oats or barley or corn as human food. The quality of nutrition, too, is what makes one brand of flour more valuable than another.

If it were not for nutrition and bread-making qualities any flour would be as good as any other. We wouldn't have to care whether it was made from good wheat or poor wheat, from Spring wheat or Winter, from all wheat or part other cereals.

A chemist will tell you that ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is richer in high quality gluten than flour made from low grades of wheat. And for that reason it is better for food, hence more valuable than ordinary flour.

And actual tests in your kitchen will tell you that it produces more and larger loaves to the barrel than ordinary soft wheat or blended flour made from hard Red Eye wheat is more expansive and more absorbent.

It is plain, common-sense that flour made from the finest hard wheat in the world and scientifically milled must produce the finest bread in the world. And it does. Try it. Prove it.

Bring Him to Me.

Bring him to me, his heart is filled with madness.
Prom dem chains ye cannot set him free;
The well of peace, the very spring of gladness is mine. Bring him to me.
Bring him to me, his hurt is past your healing;
From death, from death's black doom you cannot free;
The word of hope, the doom of death repeating, is mine. Bring him to me.
Bring him to me, your boy is surely dying;
Life's stream runs low, the dim eyes cannot see;
The fount of life, the cure for all heart sighing is mine. Bring him to me.
Bring him to me, day's last sad beams are fading,
Dark night falls thick and shrouds life's troubled seas;
Look up! the dawning day that knows no shading, is mine. Come home with me.

Life Expectancy of the Man Who Drinks.

It is generally known that total abstinences are better insurance risks than those who drink liquor to any degree, but perhaps there are not many unfamiliar with the insurance business who have any idea to what extent this is true. A certain Dr. Newsholme has been making a computation based upon the figures in possession of a great many British life companies, and his statements will no doubt be startling to some. He has found that, averaging the figures furnished by all the companies examined, the death rate for non-abstainers is never less than 5 per cent to 55 years than 45 per cent, higher than that of abstainers. At some ages prior to the 55 years it even reaches 90 per cent. higher. After 55 years of age the percentage of difference between the drinker and the non-drinker gradually decreases, but even between 60 and 65 years there is a difference of 32 per cent in favor of the total abstainer. Putting the matter another way out of every 100,000 abstainers at the age of 20 years, 53,044 are due to reach 70 years, while out of the same number of drinkers only 42,109 are due to reach the same age. These figures, of course, are absolutely actual, and are propagated. When we think of the non-abstainers not collected in the interests of any temperance in mind those who drink to any extent whatever, these figures are certainly startling enough.—Ex

Cigarettes and Spine Disease.

Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the well known writer, remarks on the frequency with which spinal curvatures are to be found in Holland. She says: 'There is one curious thing which I have noticed in Holland and Belgium, and for which I would like an explanation. That is, the remarkable frequency of curvature of the spine among the inhabitants. I have counted as many as six humped backs in a single promenade, and no day passes that I do not see at least the number of these unfortunate. It seems, too, to be more prevalent among men than women.

'I have wondered if the very early age at which young boys begin smoking here can account for it. Small boys, not over six or seven years of age, are constantly seen in these countries smoking, not cigarettes, but cigars.

The young men are, as a rule, of low stature, which is another result (so physicians tell us) of early smoking. Mentally, physically or morally the boy who begins smoking before he attains his growth is injured.

'In fact, the only evidence of conditions which induce physical maladies observable to a traveller in Holland is this large percentage of people afflicted with spinal curvatures observable in the streets.

'I wish some statistician would give exact figures in this matter. It would be interesting to know if the malady prevails to the extent it seems to me, after a month's observation, and if so, why?'—Christian Globe.

WHOLE COUNTRY AMAZED AT "FRUIT-A-TIVES."

Wonderful Cure Made by These Remarkable Fruit Juice Tablets.

Morefield Magistrate Says "The Days of Miracles Are Not Passed."

His cure seems a wonderful thing to his family and all his friends.

Mr. Henry Speers, the well-known J.P. of Morefield, Ont., suffered for two years with Chronic Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which brought on a serious Heart Trouble. He wasted away until he was nothing more than a skeleton. Two physicians gave him up to die.

Then his son made him try "Fruit-a-tives" and now Mr. Speers is entirely well. As he says "The days of miracles are not passed and I am convinced that "Fruit-a-tives" will cure Stomach and Heart Trouble where doctors and everything else fails." See a box, 4 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa, which the Roman Catholics are establishing for the training of priests. It is a large gift, and the donor will be regarded as very generous. We are wondering how many families were impoverished, how many homes brightened, how many young lives brightened, how much crime caused, how much and how widespread the wretchedness and misery produced in the accumulation of the money which enables this brewer to make so large a donation to his church. Who can tell?
