THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

And Still Goes. The square of a certain town to the south was located about a mile from the railway station. A negro named George had a boot blacking stand near the square. One day, while George was at work, a man came up and begged to quarrel with his customer. After some heated words, one of the men drew a revolver and fired at the other. Several weeks later, when the case came up for trial, George was the star witness. "Now George," said the attorney, "describe just how this shooting took place." "Yessuh, Boss, De geem man fired two shots, Yessuh, dey went bang, bang, Jes like dat, subh." "You say he fired two shots, George? Will you tell the court just what you were doing when those two

A Soldier of the Black Watch.

My face to the north, my back to the south. Scotland's the land of the brave. And I keep true where'er I may be. What to the Jew is his Jerusalem, My Scotland is to me. 'Till then I've turned, across the fields of France, From the dark trench and from the battle's glare. Only in dreams I've seen it, but I'm warned. My heart to know 'twas there. I've been here, and I've been there. Of some great deed; yet is death sweet to me. For King and Country. They were in the prayers. Learned at my mother's knee— With that old rhyme that lulling lullaby still: 'Me take to heaven for Jesus' sake, If I should die (O fitting soldier's prayer) 'Should die before I wake.' 'Fain would I on some heathery hill-side sleep— The lark's wisp song above, and bounding by. Thee dear feet. My heart will linger there.' Wherever I may lie. And if, as I've a fancy, Heaven holds all. We've loved and lost, and wearied long for, then Mine will have hills, and lochs, and heather, like My own dear Highland glen.

War Has Cost Canada Billion Dollars.

The war has cost Canada well over a billion dollars to date. This tally passed through the Finance Department. It does not include recent overseas expenditure for which accounts have not yet been presented. War expenditure by the Dominion since August, 1914, has been for the different fiscal years, approximately as follows: 1914-15, $66,750,000; 1915-16, 166,187,000; 1916-17, 306,488,000; 1917-18, 343,835,000. Seven months to October 31, 1918, $169,574,000. Total $1,046,844,000. The expenditure for war purposes last month was $66,510,000, as compared with $44,481,000 in October, 1917. It is explained, however, that the figures for last month include some overseas accounts that have been delayed in the mail. Revenue on consolidated fund accounts continues to increase. Last month it was $23,437,234, in comparison with $21,217,151 for October, 1917. During the seven months ending October 31, 1918, revenue was $168,434,136. This compares with $148,775,000, the revenue for the equivalent period last year. Expenditures on consolidated fund account was in October, 1918, $168,497,100; in October, 1917, $116,459,966. The total net debt of the Dominion on October 31 last was $1,287,042,000, an increase during the month of $65,807,616.

THAT CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. Godden Tells How It May Be Passed in Safety and Comfort.

Present, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. I had been advised to take Dr. Chase's Vegetable Compound, and was recommended to me by the best remedy for my troubles, which is surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way than I have been for some time."—Mrs. H. Godden, 222 Nelson St., Fremont, Ohio. Such annoying symptoms as heat flashes, nervousness, backache, headache, irritability and "the blues," may be speedily overcome and the system restored to normal conditions by Dr. Chase's Vegetable Compound. If any complications present themselves write the Physician Medicine Dept., Chase, for suggestions how to overcome them. The result of forty years' experience in all your service and your letter held in strict confidence.

A Tribute.

tribute to 'the splendid women work—and wait' comes from the of that versatile English journal—Horatio Bottomley, who found place when the war broke out. The article he wrote: 'Men must work women must weep,' says the old while the Harbor Bar is moored. Today the whole world is in a state of war—and men must fight as well as work; and women must weep, too, and wait. And how many they are doing their part!

Recessional.

By RUDYARD KIPLING. God of our fathers, known of old, Lord of our far-flung battle lines, Beneath whose awful hand we hold Dominion over palm and pine— Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget! The tumult and the shouting dies; The captains and the kings depart; Still stands thine ancient sacrifice, An humble and a contrite heart. Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget—lest we forget! Far-called our navies melt away; On dune and headland sinks the fire; Lo, all our pomp of yesterday Is all one with Nineveh and Tyre! Judge of the nations, spare us yet, Lest we forget—lest we forget! If, drunk with sight of power, we loose Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe, Such boasting as the Gentiles use, Or lesser breeds without the law— Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget—lest we forget! For heathen hearts that put their trust In reeking tube and iron shard, All valiant dust that builds on dust, And guarding calls not Thee to guard, For frantic boast and foolish word— Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!

the captain of the citadel is a clear-eyed little woman, who against enormous odds is spreading, health and strength and beauty in a mighty effort to carry on. There are no imaginary pictures. Such shining episodes, indeed, are the common places of our wartime existence. Come with me, if you will into the streets of our cities, our quiet suburbs and remote villages, and I will show you the same thing—not as rare episodes, but as the common rule—the patient heroism of women fit to rank on level terms with the finest valor of the finest men; and I can say that no higher tribute

FLAVOR-FULL

KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE TEA

Undoubtedly there are degrees of flavor. Take Fruit for instance—you select an orange, and on eating it you find it to be flavory, certainly, but sharp—said; choose another, a riper more matured fruit, and it is luscious, the flavor is mellowed and rounded—it is FLAVOR-FULL. Nature has made a better job of the second orange. Exactly the same is true of Tea. Nature is not equally kind to all. It requires expert knowledge and continual study to select the best tea. From KING COLE'S Orange Pekoe. If you love your cup of Tea, unusual pleasure awaits you in KING COLE'S Orange Pekoe. Ask your Grocer for it by the full name—King Cole Orange Pekoe—The Extra in Choice Tea. Sold in Sealed Packages Only.

Nervous Ailments. Few people realize that nervous ailments often arise from some reason to digest food properly. Then the system languishes and the nerves become exhausted in striving to continue their work. Impure blood also causes nerve troubles, but frequently it is to the stomach where the mischief starts. As the nourishment is carried to the nerves by the blood, it will be seen what an important connection exists between the stomach, the nerves and the blood, and how such troubles as nervous headache, nervous dyspepsia and insomnia may begin. In such cases relief is easily obtainable by means of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills replenish the blood with the food elements on which the nerves thrive; at the same time they exercise a tonic influence on the digestive organs, enabling the system to derive nourishment from the food taken. By this perfect natural process nervous ailments are daily dispelled by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you are suffering from nerves, or require a blood-making tonic, give these pills a fair trial, and see how quickly the best of health will be yours.

Seed Wheat. Never in the history of Nova Scotia were there so many fine fields of wheat as in the past season, and never was the temptation so strong to grind it into flour, bran and shorts. Most of the Nova Scotian wheat this year is of fine quality, having fortunately escaped the wet weather. The Department of Agriculture is advised that many farmers plan to mill all their wheat, saving none for seed. It is hoped that those who have first class wheat will use as much as possible to supply themselves and sell to their neighbors. The home grown seed, this year particularly, will be much preferable to that which can be imported. It cannot be too strongly urged, both from the patriotic and the business points of view that a good share be saved for next year's seed, should there be a surplus then it can be stored into flour at a time when the shortage of imported flour will be sore and felt at present.

Nurse—"Oh, come! I say! That's not very polite to us."
Editor—"Never mind, nurse, put it down. It'll please her."

Miss Jolie—"How can I dear. I'm not just sure that Charlie will prove."

He Cannot Sleep

If it's the body that craves rest, but the mind. When you are bodily tired you can usually fall to sleep at the first opportunity. But when the nerves are irritated by anxiety and worry rest and sleep seem to be impossible. The mind seems to be most alert, and you are thinking, thinking, thinking—first of one thing and then of another—often matters of little or no importance. But you simply cannot sleep. Sleeplessness is the most common and often the first indication of a breaking down of the nervous system. The object of sleep is to allow the body to rebuild tissue and the nerves to recover tone. Sleep is the ideal condition for this process. If you cannot sleep you worry, and worry breaks down nerve cells at a tremendous rate, so that instead of laying up nerve force for the demands of the day you are using up the reserve. The nerve centres are sometimes likened to storage batteries. If you continue to consume the nervous energy in reserve, without paying back, these centres become sooner or later depleted, and you find yourself a nervous wreck. After a sleepless night you get up

WOLFVILLE, N. S., NOV. 22, 1918.

The Assessment.

The time for making another assessment upon which the taxation of the town is to be based is again at hand, and it behooves citizens generally to take some interest in the proceedings. Forms to be filled up for the information of the assessors will soon be placed in the hands of ratepayers. That the assessment of not only the town but of the county in general has been very badly made in the past is generally admitted, and it is certainly time for a change. A great deal of the trouble is due to the fact that many departments of county expense are borne pro rata by the county and town, and there is, hence, a desire and effort on the part of all to have the proportion as low as possible. So far as Wolfville is concerned, and the same is undoubtedly true as regards other municipal ties of the county, there would be plenty of money at a moderate rate of taxation to provide all the funds necessary to carry on public affairs, if a fair assessment were made of all the property and a great deal of the property is assessed at a ridiculously low figure. A case in point is that of the Maritime Telephone and Telegraph Co., which probably owns more property and does a larger business than any other organization in the town. Reference to the assessment roll shows that last year the company was assessed for the magnificent sum of $380. The annual income of this concern, which recently made a further reach into the pockets of its patrons, is probably not less than twelve thousand dollars for its Wolfville business, and the plant, we undertake to say, represents a valuation of not less than twenty thousand dollars. The professional man who receives an income of from fifteen hundred to two thousand dollars is assessed for every possible dollar and this wealthy concern is let off with the payment of a mere pittance. If the concern were a local one, trying to bear its share of public responsibility and, evidencing an interest in local affairs it might be expected to receive some consideration, but such is not the case. On the other hand they are encumbering and disfiguring our streets, and giving a very inefficient service with their obsolete equipment. The addition which was recently made to the building is an architectural offence to citizens, and a member of the Council referring to it recently, stated that the Town Clerk should have an increase in salary as a compensation for being compelled to look upon it from his office window. It is to be hoped that the assessors when making up the new roll may make such a valuation on this and other institutions as will do justice to the town and its citizens.

The Victory Loan Campaign in Kings county proved a great success, the total amount subscribed being $245,000, while the amount allotted to the county was $650,000. All parts of the county did splendidly, and nearly every place exceeded its allotment. The amount subscribed in Wolfville district was $302,450 as follows: Wolfville, $216,250; Grand Pré, $37,500; Gaspereau, $37,500; Greenwich, $10,750. Each place not only won a flag but a crown to put on it. Wolfville did exceptionally well. Estimating the population at 1500 it means that the average amount subscribed by every man, woman and child in the town was $144. Can any town in Nova Scotia or in Canada beat this record?

Following are the flags and crowns won in the county: Wolfville, Grand Pré, Gaspereau and Greenwich, each a flag and a crown. Port Williams has won a flag and five crowns, Canard a flag and crown, Canning a flag, and the Petean, Kingsport, Scotts Bay district a flag and crown. Kesville also won a flag and crown. Berwick, Harbordville and the Grafton-Someset district each won a flag. Aylesford has four crowns for its flag and Kingsston has three.

Victory Loan Success.

The Richmond, Virginia, Times-Dispatch pays this warm tribute to an English Princess, Queen Marie of Roumania, daughter of the late Duke of Edinburgh and cousin of His Majesty King George V.

When the right time comes all the victor nations should write in formal tribute to Marie, Queen of Roumania. Among the faithful she has been faithful. Amid cravens yielding to brutal power her courage never has faltered. With her treachery all about her, she has kept her honor and that of her country unscathed. This world war has developed no more majestic, heroic or beautiful character than hers, and she should know of the love and admiration felt for her by brave and honorable people.

Speaking in London on Canada's Commemoration Day to an assemblage of 400 officers gathered together to celebrate the 4th anniversary of the arrival in England of the First Canadian Contingent, Lieut-General, Sir Richard Turner, V. C., paid the following noteworthy tribute to the Overseas work of the Canadian Y. M. C. A.

"Out people in Canada have from the drop of the hat responded nobly. It is their effort that has provided 300,000 Canadians—in addition to the thousands of reservists that had settled in Canada, but on the outbreak of war had to report to their fighting depots. And wherever you go you find the Red Triangle, and to the devotion of the Canadian Y. M. C. A. thousands of all ranks bear willing testimony. Canada's outstanding lessons are 'Efficiency, and the proper application of man-power.'"

The dinner was held in the Criterion Restaurant, Piccadilly. General Turner himself presided, other speakers being Sir George Perley, Lord Beaverbrook and Mr. Donald Macmaster, K. C., M. P.

Earlier in the day a Commemoration Service was held in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, attended by about 1000 Canadian troops representing all the divisions and training units. At this service conducted by the Rev. D. F. Warner, senior Canadian chaplain in the London area, the lesson from Revelation 21 was read by Lieut. Col. G. W. Birks, Chief Supervisor of the Canadian Y. M. C. A. Overseas, and the address delivered by Colonel the Rev. J. W. Almond, C. M. G., director of Canadian Chaplain service.

Russian Instinct.

Kerensky, says a liberated Russia, will rise like a Phoenix from the Tonic Bolshevik ruin. His confidence is supreme in the "unshakable Russian will to be free."

Kerensky's faith seems well founded. After long years of tyranny, torture, taxes and terror; after Cossack whips and Siberian horrors; after living in the domain of dungeons and the shadow of death—the Russian people may be expected to save themselves, though the throes of readjustment at present resemble objectless chaos.

Russia's persecuted peasantry is governed by instinct. Instinct is ever fallible than reason. It is the unerring guide of nature. Russia hears and is striving to heed its call. German corruption and disruption has sharpened the briars along the way, but they will serve to hold the stragglers to freedom's fresh-blazed trail.

Guard the Children From Autumn Colds.

The Fall weather is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next is wet and cold and unless the mother is on her guard the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mother's best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose will prevent cold or if it does come on suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will quickly cure it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The November issue of Rod and Gun published by W. J. Taylor Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is on the news stands and is replete with good things for the sportsman reader and lover of outdoor life generally. 'Canadian Game Trails' by Hubert Hutson, 'The Moose Call', a story of two narrow escapes, by G. F. Hiltz, 'Carcass', the record of a unique experience in the winter wilds, by A. Sturtzel, and 'Humors of the Hunt' by George E. Belton, are some of the contributions to the story section of the magazine. Other articles follow and the usual departments are well maintained. An article on the making of moccasins is illustrated by F. V. Williams who is also the cover design artist. Guns and Ammunition contains the first instalment of 'The National Matches at Camp Perry' by C. S. Laidie. Rod and Gun Mechanics for Trappers is a page of illustrations and supplements the department. Along the Trap Line which is continued in this issue.

Now that peace is here you will find The Nation an almost indispensable journal. With the coming of peace the problems of thoughtful citizens will be even greater; if that may be possible, than during the war. All the great issues of readjustment and reconstruction will be discussed by leaders of progressive thought in the pages of The Nation. Published weekly at $4.00 a year.—H. P. Davidson, the Magazine Man, Phone 201.

A striking proof of the increasing wealth of Canada is furnished by the monthly report of Canadian banks. At the end of September there were $26,000,000 more on deposit than at the same time last year. The increase in savings deposits is $69,000,000 and in demand deposits $117,000,000. During September alone savings increased by $23,700,000 and demand deposits by $34,000,000, a total of $57,700,000. During September, 1917, the increase was only $25,500,000. Much of this money should find its way into Victory bonds.

Wedding Bells.

JOHNSTON-BILL.
A very pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ingram E. Bill, Nisga Man, on Friday evening, Nov. 8th, when their second daughter, Arabella Rebekah, was given in marriage to Arto Welbert Johnston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Mayse, Baptist pastor, in the presence of friends and relatives.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the room to the strains of Lock-in's Bridal March softly rendered by Miss Dorothy Bill, sister of the bride. The room was tastefully decorated with white drapery and toilage, the wedding party standing beneath an arch banked with flowers.

The bride looked charming in an evening gown of cream satin with trimmings of seed pearl embroidery and tulle and veil crowned with orange blossoms. She carried a shawl bouquet of cream roses and maiden hair ferns and was attended by her sister Miss Violet, becomingly attired in fish palette silk with touches of pearls and carrying a bouquet of pink roses and fern. The groom was ably assisted by his cousin, Mr. Haden Cardno, of Darlington. At the close of a pleasant evening spent in musical selections a dainty buffet lunch was served.

The groom's presentation was both costly and beautiful, his gift to the bride being a handsome diamond necklace and a ring; to the bride a diamond and ruby ring; to the best man a tie pin set with whole pearls; and to the maid a cameo ring set with diamonds.

The numerous and expensive gifts and abundance of good wishes showered upon the happy couple by their host of friends revealed the high esteem in which they were held among the people of the community.

Owing to the influenza Ban Mr. and Mrs. Johnston were obliged to postpone their wedding tour to the coast for some future date. They will reside on the Johnsons farm north of Nisga.

[The bride was a one time a visitor to Wolfville and her friends here extend congratulations and good wishes for her future happiness.]

Particulars have been received of the exploit of a French-Canadian who gave his life and won the V. C. over in Flanders. He could not speak a word of English.

Shoes That Stay the Route

It isn't the flash of the first two rounds of freshness that counts. Shoes may look good on your introduction to them; in the pink of condition; fit for the routes; but they may only LOOK it. What they do when you get into them, how they stand the grueling of wear is the point. Hart Shoes are built for any route and all sorts of feet. They have the unaffected punch of real style, quality, workmanship and a fit that stays right, through to the finish.

Buying Upon Faith

UNLESS you are an expert, you cannot judge the quality of a shoe by looking at it. It is possible to take most of the wearing qualities out without changing its appearance. Shoes are bought largely upon faith in the integrity of dealer and manufacturer.

In these days of high-price levels, your confidence should be well placed. Go to a reliable dealer, whose judgment you can trust. Get his candid advice as to values. Buy for the best service at the price which you wish to pay.

Look for the manufacturer's trade-mark on the shoes you buy. It is a sign that the manufacturer himself has confidence in the shoes, and that they are worthy of your confidence. A responsible manufacturer will not jeopardize his reputation by placing his business signature upon an unworthy product.

Buy shoes of a brand you know, from a dealer whom you know. Buy for service rather than merely for appearance. Thus you may be assured of Quality Shoes at Fair Prices.

A. H. M. Win-Tone Selections offer Special Service Values for Men, Women and Children. Ask your dealer for them.

Greenwich.

On Monday afternoon, November 11th, the day the grand news of Victory and Peace was proclaimed, a number of our patriotic people met at 4 o'clock at Greenwich Corner, where they enjoyed two splendid addresses given by Dr. DeWolfe, of Acadia, and Rev. Mr. Watts, pastor of the Wolfville Methodist church, on the grand news and the Victory Bond.

Private Hospital.

Dr. Avery deWitt, who has purchased the estate of the late W. F. Parker for the purpose of a private hospital, has decided to name it 'Westwood Hospital'. A thoroughly up-to-date hospital equipment is being installed, providing for six or eight patients.

Our church was re-opened last Sunday, and Rev. Mr. Watts gave a stirring and patriotic sermon as a thanksgiving sermon for Victory. Those who were absent missed more than an ordinary sermon.

Greenwich school re-opened this week, pupils and teacher gladly resuming studies. Our Red Cross knitting circle will meet at the home of Mrs. A. K. Forsyth on Wednesday evening. If the weather is fine and a good number of ladies present a knitting contest will take place; if not it will be held next Wednesday evening.

What Did You?

When the war has been won,
When our duty is done,
When our sailors come sailing the seas,
When our men of the air
And the guns are there
All the Nation is welcoming home;
They will come to your door,
The young winners of war,
They will look you up, over and through,
And in word or in thought,
They will ask, like as not,
Well, we did quite a lot—
What did you?

When the years have gone by,
And the pages are dry,
That the story of struggle record,
With democracy sure,
When we're living secure
In the strength of our soul and our word—
Is that glorious time
To your knee there will climb
Then a boy, or a girl, or the two,
And will say, 'Some were brave
On the land and the wave,
Some their everything gave—
What did you?'

Or it may be at night
You will sit by the light
Of a fire in a home that is free,
You will sit all alone
Near a roof of your own
In some year of the future to be,
And a voice down inside
Will say, 'Some of them died,
Or they suffered their duty to do,
And the ones who could not
Give their all, gave a lot,
Gave their money—say, what,
What did you?'

The Victoria Cross.
When Queen Victoria created this order at the time of the Crimean War, 64 years ago, she decreed that the cross should be worn in the sash hanging by a blue ribbon and in the army by a red one. Now the difference between the two armed services is done away with, and the red ribbon will be worn with the Victoria Cross by sailors as well as by soldiers.

If you are unhappy, it is probably because you have so many thoughts about yourself, and so few about happiness of others.—Mary Lyon.

A Quick Relief for Headache
A headache is frequently caused by faulty digestion. Therefore, a good remedy is one that acts on the stomach and the bowels, and is absorbed by the blood which in turn influences the nerves and causes painful spasms called headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc. It is the only drug of its kind that acts on the stomach and bowels, and is absorbed by the blood.

History of Christmas Tree Difficult to Trace.

The history of the Christmas tree is difficult to trace. It has been connected with Yggdrasil, the great tree of Norse mythology, and Christmas trees and Maypoles are known to be relics of that famous Scandinavian Ash. The roots and branches of Yggdrasil, the world-tree, or as it is sometimes called, the Tree of Time, bound together heaven, the earth, and hell. From it, all tribes of nature received nourishment. According to the Scandinavian legend of great antiquity, the Christmas tree owes its origin to the service-tree which sprang from soil that had been drenched with the blood of two lovers who had been foully murdered. During the Christmas season flaming lights that no wind could extinguish, sprang mysteriously from its branches at night, and the practice of illuminating the Christmas tree may, perhaps be traced to this tradition, which, no doubt, was strongly influenced by the fact that lights were, and still are, a feature of the Jewish feast of the Chanukah or Lights (December 10). Among the Greeks Christmas is called the Feast of Lights.

From the earliest times Scandinavia was inhabited by two distinct peoples, the Swedes in the north and the Goths in the south. They spoke similar language and were of the same stock. In the fourth century the territory occupied by the Goths extended from the Baltic to the Black Sea, but this vast state was broken by the Huns, whose borders then overran Europe. To the dispersion of the Goths may be attributed the spread of Scandinavian customs over the continent, and the fact that the Christmas tree is sometimes said to have originated with the Germans.

Sir George Birdwood has traced the history of the Christmas tree to the ancient Egyptian practice of decking houses at the time of the solstice with branches of the date-palm, the symbol of life triumphant over death, and therefore perennial life in the renewal of each bonnetous year.

Used for Shaving.
Many men are troubled, more particularly in cold weather, with a sort of roughness of the skin, or eczema, caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble, and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this Ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

Laying Hens Require Some Animal Protein.

For best egg yields hens need some animal protein supplement in connection with corn. Meat scrap and tankage may be used for this purpose. Hens fed 1 1/2 pounds of meat scrap in one feeding fed conducted at the Ohio Experiment Station produced an average of 92 eggs in 1 year. Another lot given 11 1/2 pounds of meat scrap produced 141 eggs per hen in the same time. The extra feed costing 19 cents a hen returned a profit of 74 cents.

Tankage was a satisfactory substitute for meat scrap in the ration for laying hens in another test and reduced the cost of production. White hens fed meat scrap along with corn and bran laid 121 eggs per hen in 1 year, others fed tankage in place of meat scrap produced 122 eggs per hen at a slightly lower cost.

"Isn't it glorious here?" she exclaimed when the water had taken their orders.

"Do you think so?" he replied. "It's perfectly lovely. Everything is in perfect harmony—the location, the trees, the swaying lanterns, the music—everything is ideal. It's like fairyland."

"I'm glad you like it."
"I'm simply enchanted. Doesn't it make you feel as if you had stepped out of the every day world into something strange and new?"

"Not a bit."
"What's the matter? You don't seem to be enjoying yourself."

Coalless Monday

By MARCIA MEREDITH

"Will you please get out of the wire?" The voice, though gentle and feminine, was not entirely pleasant.

"I believe I took my receiver off first," came back good-naturedly. "I am trying to get the janitor. Are you the janitor's wife?"
"How ridiculous! Where is the elevator boy to answer the phone? I want the janitor."
A laugh came back through the telephone. "Everybody wants the janitor. The last I heard he had gone out to try and buy soft coal. I dare say you're in the same boat that I am—frozen to death in your apartment. You know it won't do any good to kick, but like me, nothing else will keep you warm."

There was no answer. Freda Tilson's receiver slammed back on the hook that held it, and if she had been inclined to talk to herself in her little apartment she might have muttered something about an impatient creature who dared to talk to a girl when he did not know her, and that she hadn't the most remote idea who this housekeeper made for him that was talking to her. It was the young man who dwelt in bachelor state in the somewhat more spacious and luxurious apartment in front of her own, the greater luxury and higher rent of his apartment being due to the fact that while he managed to draw to himself a weekly check for $75 for writing "thrillers" for a popular weekly, she pounded a typewriter somewhere in the "downtown" district to the tune of sixty a month.

To her, having an apartment of her own, with a little place she could call home, was a luxury that she had earned by much economy in the way of amusement and pretty clothes. Her living there was put down to his New England origin, for Victor Paige was more of a miser than a spendthrift, and he would rather dine alone on the simple fare that his visiting colonial housekeeper made for him than to spend many dollars in dining restaurants. Now it happened that the typewriter that Freda Tilson pounded in the very office, whether Victor Paige occasionally stroled to deliver his manuscript, and maybe chit with the editor. Perhaps she felt a secret grievance, because, though she had noticed the coincidence that he frequented her office and also abode under the same roof, he had sought no excuse to speak to her as they passed in the halls going home or venturing forth. It does seem strange that Victor never sought the excuse for Freda would have been good to speak to. And there was nothing repelling in her round blue eyes. But Victor came from New England, and as Freda performed the task of dusting and straightening up her little apartment, and to the clinch in a sweater and wearing gloves on her hands as she worked, she listened intently for a ring at her doorbell that would mean that the letter she was waiting for had come. When all chances of the delivery was over she descended to the entrance to make sure that the boy in attendance there had not failed to deliver it to her. Strange that Victor Paige should have gone forth at the same time. He waited while she made her complaint.

"In the first place," she said, "it is perfectly ridiculous that on the one day in the week when we have to be home, and when it would really seem that apartments and houses ought to have enough coal to make them comfortable, we should be made to suffer in this way. How I am ever going to write on my typewriter, with hands stiff from cold, is more than I can tell. It seems most extraordinary that my manuscripts did not come by the mail this morning. My office is closed, and it is absolutely necessary for me to typewrite some revised manuscript that the editor was sending by special delivery. Are you quite sure nothing has come for me?"

The dusky-skinned attendant nodded in the negative.
"And if there's no hope of any heat? Again a negative nod.
"Well, then, the only thing for me to do is to go and get some oil. Thank goodness, I brought a stove."

Now it was Victor's turn. Having heard Freda's plaint and the unsatisfactory replies, he did not mention the right atmosphere that prevailed in his apartment as well as in hers.
"I say, Obadiah—beez pardon, I forgot your name was Hamnah—you haven't seen anything of a stray messenger boy with a typewriter, have you? Of course you haven't. But you see, the place I usually dictate my copy is closed, and I was going to pound it out for myself today, so I sent for a typewriter. But I guess they had too many orders before mine. Well, if there's no hope for heat I'll have to burn oil."

And he returned to his rooms, calling the name of Obadiah, who came every day to keep house for him, blessed, because she had suggested to him that when steam had failed the temperature could be improved by burning oil stoves.

The fact that fate had some deep design in choosing to have Victor Paige and Freda Tilson take apartments in the same house really might have been suspected when a quarrel of an hour later, another accidental meeting occurred. It was at the corner grocery. Freda came hurrying in with the base of an old stove, her self-consciousness at having to carry this awkward burden only making her cheeks pinker and her eyes rounder.

"Please fill this with oil," she told the grocer's boy, and then blushed a little rosy as she realized that Victor Paige was standing at her elbow. He took his hat off, and then, when Freda averted her look he awkwardly waved his hat in the air and stroked the end with the brim of it to try to convince himself that he had meant to take it off anyway, and that he was not a bit embarrassed by Freda's hauteur.

"We ain't got no oil—all sold out," came from the grocer's boy, just as Victor Paige was inquiring of the grocer himself whether it happened that oil stoves were a part of his equipment. In the grocery store he recalled that such trifling articles were always sold. And as the grocer assured him that the only places to get such things were the household furnishing stores, and they were all closed because it was coalless Monday, he confided to him. He knew the grocer didn't care, and he didn't care whether he did care, but he spoke in a loud, clear voice. Could it have been that it was for Freda's benefit?

"You see, the woman that keeps house for me suggested that if I bought some oil I could manage to keep warm, even when the steam was not up in the apartment, and I was such an ass as to forget that I really needed something to burn. I have a gallon of oil, but what good does that do?"

Freda did listen, and for just one moment she was tempted to tell her neighbor that between the two they might manage to get some sort of result. But she didn't tell him. She hurried home, walking faster and faster as she heard his footsteps behind her. He overtook her just as she reached the landing off which both their apartments opened, and would have spoken to her only that she closed the door rather unceremoniously in his face. She knew she had been rude, but for some unaccountable reason she took satisfaction in her heartlessness.

A half hour later, when Victor Paige answered a slight ring at his doorbell, he wore a skating cap, a bathrobe, an overcoat, hockey stockings and galoshes. He found Freda Tilson on the landing. She was very sorry to disturb him, she told him, but she had received word from the editor in the office where she worked that, because he had been unable to dispatch some copy for her to do at home, he would like her to put in the day taking dictation on the typewriter from Mr. Paige. Wasn't it funny that Mr. Paige happened to be connected with the same office? Did he wish to come into her apartment, or should she come into his? There was small choice; both were tragic.

Ten minutes later Victor Paige, carrying an odoriferous gallon of kerosene, some ill-kempt notes on scraps of paper, and a dish of apples—Victor could not write without apples for refreshment—went into Freda's small apartment. When lunch time came Freda had forgotten her resentment, and Victor, truth to tell, was as much in love with her as he had ever been with any girl.

"If I had some eggs I'd make an omelet and ask you to lunch," she said, just a little timidly.
And although Victor knew that his Ditch was coming to make lunch in his apartment that day, he hurried to get some eggs that he was just guessing she had left in his ice box. And so they lunched, and so they worked on through the afternoon.

"What's the use of resisting the inevitable," he said as she handed him the last page of his manuscript from her typewriter. "We can't either of us get along without the other. We would both have been miserable today alone."
"It does seem strange. Do you believe in fate?"
And apparently Victor did, for he was always sure it was fate that brought him and his wife together that coalless Monday.
