GILLETTS PERFUMED LYE. THE CLEANLINESS OF SINKS, CLOSETS, BATHS, DRAINS, ETC. IS OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO HEALTH.

Stella Mordant, The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XV. "My Dear Rath,—I know that you will be glad to hear that I am quite well. I should like to say also that I am quite happy; but I find that I miss the island and you very much. It is very cold and wet and foggy here in England, and I think of the times you and I used to sit in the sun, looking at the beautiful sea all green and glittering, and the sky all blue; and how kind and good you always were to me. And oh, Rath! though I am back in the big world again, I often wish myself back with you and the cows and the chickens, fishing and shooting and cooking the dinner. I hope you are quite well and happy, and don't miss me very much. Of course, I want you to miss me a little, but not to be unhappy. And I hope you remember your promise when we parted: That you wouldn't forget me while you could help it, and that you wouldn't fall over the cliff again or be reckless in any other way. "Your loving mate, STELLA." She read this at first laughingly; but as she went on, the laughter died out of her voice, her eyelids quivered, her eyes grew moist, and her breath came rather unevenly. And Rath sat and listened, his hands clasped loosely at the beginning, but gripping each other tightly towards the end. He did not know what was the matter, what ailed him, but there was a dull, aching pain in his heart which made him catch his breath. Did she know that she was inflicting such pain by this artless letter? As she did not look up she did not see his face, and he uttered no word and made no sign of the agony which rent him. When she had finished, she said: "There! That's the letter."

Dry Irritating Hack Of Bronchitis Instantly Relieved By "Catarrhazone"

No Failure, Cure In Every Case Treated By Catarrhazone. Catarrhazone can't fail to cure Bronchitis; its so healing, soothing and balsamic that every trace of the disease flies before it. When you inhale the pure piney vapor of Catarrhazone, you send healing medication to the spots that are diseased and sore. Isn't it rational to apply medicine where the disease exists? Certainly! and that's why Catarrhazone is so successful; it goes where the trouble really is, gets where a spray or ointment can't penetrate. For the relief and complete cure of bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, throat trouble, we guarantee Catarrhazone in every case. You don't take medicine—you don't take drowsy drugs—just breathe the balsamic essences of Catarrhazone; it

She was about to tear it up, but he took it from her gently. "It is a very good one, I should think," he said, quietly, and with such restraint that not a note indicated his suffering. He folded the paper into a small square, and put it in his breast-pocket. "Oh, you will soon be able to write as good a one if you are as quick as you are at your reading," she said, with sudden and suspicious cheerfulness; and she swept her hands across her eyes swiftly, as if to brush a tendrill of her soft hair from them; but her hand was moist after the action. "Now, you begin by making strokes like that. See?" "It seems easy enough," he said; "but, needless to say, his imitation was crooked and zigzag. "The pencil's so small," he apologized. "It's your hand that's so big," she retorted. "No, it isn't, Rath. It's a long hand, but it's not big—for a man's; at least, I think not. And you needn't hold the pencil as if it were a dagger," she added, as he had progressed to pothooks and hangers. "See, like this. Oh, you stupid! Here, let me guide your hand." She put hers over it, and the warm fingers closed over his in a soft embrace. "That's better." He paused in the middle of a line and reflectively regarded the hand which guided his. "What a small hand you've got, Stella!" he remarked. She drew it away quickly, and, holding it before her, regarded it critically. "It's a pity it's so small," he observed; "that is why you can't hold things properly. But it's—it's pretty, somehow, like a bird's claw."

"It's like nothing of the sort," she retorted, indignantly. "A bird's claw, indeed! Go on with your lesson, please, and never mind my hand." "Guide me again," he said. "I can do it much better when you are helping me that way." But she would not. "You must learn to do it without guiding," she said, severely. "That's a little better; and I really think you will learn to write presently." After a pause, he said: "Yes; but I don't see the use of it. I shan't want to write any letters, Stella."

"Well?" she asked, as if awakening from a reverie, though her eyes had been fixed on his painful efforts on the stony road of calligraphy. "Did you mean what you wrote in that letter to me, or was it only make believe?" A faint color rose to her face, but she said, indifferently: "What was it? I forget now what I wrote." "That you would miss me when you had gone away; that you were happy here on this island." "Yes, of course; wouldn't you miss me?" she replied, casually. "Yes," he said, slowly, without stopping his pothooks and hangers. "Yes, sometimes when I think of the time when you will be gone and I shall be alone, I feel dreadfully bad and—and mournful; as bad as when my—my father died." He was silent a moment, while his eyes rested on her down-bent face with a strange expression in their lovely depths, an expression which had something more than wistful tenderness in it. Then he went on. "It will be as if the sun had ceased to shine or the stream to flow from the rocks; as if the birds had given up singing forever, and it was not worth while to get the trout or the skins for the Indians; as if it were not worth while living. You said in that letter that I was not to forget you if I could help it; but I am afraid I shall not be able to help it. With you it will be different. You will be in the great world you talk of, and will have plenty of people to talk to and live amidst, but I shall be quite alone again. You see, I have only you, Stella." While he had been speaking, the girl's heart had responded like a harp whose strings are swept by an ignorant and inexperienced hand. Unseen by him, her colour came and went; but at the last words her face went pale, her lips quivered, and the long lashes hid the tell-tale tears in her eyes. Instinctively her hand stole out to him to touch him with a woman's consoling touch; for when a girl's heart is throbbing with pity and sympathy her fingers itch to express it. But something, of which she knew nothing, held her back. She drew her hand from him before it came in contact with his bare arm, and she said in a voice which, because of her effort to control it, sounded cold and indifferent: "I must go now. I can't leave my mother any longer. She is not well." He looked up at her gravely, as she stood beside him, tall and graceful as one of the Indian girls who sometimes accompanied the braves to the island. "What is the matter with her?" he asked. Her face was turned away from him as she answered: "I don't know. She is weak, and—and takes no interest in anything. And she eats so very little—I am hungry all day—and she scarcely speaks."

"There is some medicine in the cupboard by the bed," he said. "I know; but she will not take any. She lies back in the chair all day as if she were half asleep; but I know that she is not sleeping, for I see her lips move, and sometimes hear her murmur some words." He nodded solemnly. "It is as my father was before he died." "Rath!" she cried, "you don't think that—that she is going to die?" He regarded her with pity in his dark eyes. "I hope not. But, Stella, why are you so frightened? Death is but sleep—my father said—sleep and rest. And you would not be alone as I was. I am here!" She looked at him enigmatically for a moment, then turned away. When Doctors Advise Operations. Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa. Canadian Woman's Experience: "Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. Wm. A. BUFFY, 631 South Vicker Street, Fort Williams, Ontario. she had gone, Rath took out the "specimen" letter, and tried to decipher it; but he could not do so. It did not matter, for he had it by heart.

CHAPTER XVI.

The lessons continued daily, and Rath made as much progress with his writing as he had done with his reading. But Stella did not guide his hand again. The subtle pain which had arisen within her when he carried her had been awakened by that close contact of the fingers, and, in a manner, she held aloof from him. As the days passed and the autumn glided upon them, Rath had less time for "school"; for the preparation for the winter—with three months to fill instead of one—demanded a great deal of his time. But, hard as he worked, he felt strangely happy, especially when Stella was by his side. She had become a real helpmate to this time, and there was scarcely any of his tasks which she could not share; but he seemed gradually to have recognized the fact that, try as she would, she could not be as strong and capable as he was, and he would not permit her to overexert or tire herself.

"You sit there and rest while I drag these logs down to the clearing," he would say. "And you can sing if you like. Somehow I can always work better while you sing."

And she would sit on one of the felled trees and sing "Robin Adair," or "Hail, Smiling Morn," or "Where the Bee Sucks;" and Rath, inspired by the sweet, lark-like voice, would work with renewed energy.

At night, when he parted with her, and went to his nest in the hollow of the tree—at Stella's instigation he had made a hut of it by walling round it—he often lay awake thinking of her, wondering what he would do when she left him; for in the autumn the Indians would be here, and he would be able to arrange for her departure; and the prospect of his loss if he would lay heavily upon him. Sometimes, in the middle of their daily work, Stella would become sad and thoughtful; for in the midst of her happiness her mother's condition came to her with a kind of compunction. How could she be so happy and contented while her mother was so ill? And one day she came running to Rath, who was repairing the cowshed with sweet-smelling pine logs. "Rath! Rath! my mother is ill—worse!" she said, pantingly, her lips quivering, her eyes full of tears. He leant on his axe and regarded her sympathetically. "You must come!" she said, half-distracted by her anxiety. "Oh, come at once, Rath! I am frightened!" (To be Continued.)

HOSTILE AIR CRAFT

LONDON, May 10.—Warning of the approach of air craft was given Southdown at 10 o'clock this morning. Several chimes took part in the raid whether they were Zeppelins or planes, residents were unable to see the weather was foggy. It struck houses in various parts of town, but no deaths have been reported. One man and his wife badly burned in a fire which started by an incendiary bomb. Resident told of three bombs being near his home, none of which caused damage. It is reported several shops were burned at Town, near Southdown. Four lines are said to have dropped fifty bombs there.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Speculation as to what the States probably would do against torpedoing the Lusitania developed among officials today. The general opinion was that the President would not let the policy be pursued in violation of the act as inexecutable. The extent of his action, which would go beyond an embargo phrased note or an actual suspension of diplomatic relations with Germany is still undetermined. When the President meets to-morrow, he will probably present to his cabinet his ideas of what the present policy should be. It is intended to call Congress in session. PRENS COMMENT.
The "Courier Journal" says: "Civilization should abjure its neutrality. It should rise as one mighty Godlike force, and as far as its moral influence and physical appliances can be made to prevail forbid the riot of hate and debauch of blood that, like a madman, is running amuck among the nations and unprotected. Every patriot in America should send prayer to God in protest. Every patriot should lend his voice in protest, and more than all, the Christian President of the United States, a cool and brave man, sprung from a line of heroes and saints, ceasing longer to protest, should act, leaving no doubt in the minds or hearts of any that he is not merely a leader in Christ, but a leader of men and of the nation, and that he holds aloft the sword of God and of Gideon."

HOSTILE AIR CRAFT RAID.

LONDON, May 10. Warning of the approach of hostile air craft was given Southend at 2.52 o'clock this morning. Several machines took part in the raid, but whether they were Zeppelins or aeroplanes, residents were unable to state as the weather was foggy. Bombs struck houses in various parts of the town, but no deaths have been reported. One man and his wife were badly burned in a fire which was started by an incendiary bomb. One resident told of three bombs dropping near his home, none of which caused damage. It is reported that several shops were burned at Leigh Town, near Southend. Four Zeppelins are said to have dropped forty or fifty bombs there.

SPECULATION RISE AS TO WHAT THE U. S. WILL DO.

WASHINGTON, May 10. Speculation as to what the United States probably would do as protest against torpedoing the Lusitania, developed among officials and diplomats today. The general opinion is that the President would express in the policy he pursued in denunciation of the act as inexcusable under the laws of nations and humanity. The extent of his action, whether it would go beyond an emphatically phrased note or an actual severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, is still undetermined. When the Cabinet meets tomorrow, the President will probably present to his colleagues his ideas of what the Government policy should be. It is now certain that the President does not intend to call Congress in an extra session. This disposes, for the present at least, of the suggestion that Germany's action will cause the United States to declare war.

CORONER'S JURY INVESTIGATING

KINSALE, Ireland, May 10. The coroner's jury investigating the deaths attending upon the loss of the Lusitania, returned the following verdict: "The jury find that this appalling crime was contrary to International Law and conventions of all civilized nations, and we therefore charge the officers of the submarine and the German Emperor, and the Government of Germany, under whose orders they acted, with the crime of wilful and wholesale murder."

BEREFORD ON CHURCHILL

LONDON, May 10. First Lord of the Admiralty Balfour, said in the Commons today that Capt. Turner had acknowledged receipt of messages from the Admiralty, warning directions for the course he was to take. "The Admiralty had general knowledge of the German warning issued in America," he declared. From that knowledge and other information concerning submarine movements, it had sent warnings to the Lusitania and directions as to her course. "I think, however, it is not right to go into that matter in detail, as it is going to be the subject of inquiry. It might appear I was endeavoring to throw blame on the captain of the Lusitania in a matter which will be the subject of full investigation. Continuing, he said, this inquiry would be continued by Lord Mersey, assisted by skilled assessors, and would be opened without delay. Churchill's remarks were drawn by questions from Lord Charles Balfour and others, asking details as to what speed the Lusitania was making when she was ed States to be drawn into the European conflict. Considerations, such as military impotence of the United States to affect the course of struggle abroad, and possibly the entry of this country into war, would automatically cause reduction in supplies of ammunition to the Allies, because of greater need at home, have influenced many officials to the belief that disapproval of the United States can be voiced in a far more effective way without declaring war. The withdrawal of Ambassador Gerard, without actually severing diplomatic relations, has been suggested in some official quarters as one way of indicating the feeling of the American Government. Other officials intimate that a complete severance of diplomatic relations, until complete reparation and apology is made, probably would conform to the wishes of American public opinion.

AFFIDAVITS MADE BY SURVIVORS.

QUEENSTOWN, May 10. Affidavits made by Miss Jessie Taft Smith, of Braceville, Ohio; Dr. Howard L. Fisher, Major F. Warren Pearl, and Robert Rankin, of New York, are the only permanent records of the Lusitania disaster obtained by the United States Consulate here. All are brief, and none reflects seriously upon the behaviour of the Lusitania's crew, except what some witnesses consider a lifeboat fiasco. At Consul Frost's orders, the bodies of the identified Americans were removed from the scattered morgues and placed side by side in the Cunard Line Office on the waterfront. As they were carried through the streets by British sailors, crowds viewed the uncovered coffins.

FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORT.

PARIS, May 10. The French War Office gave out the following this afternoon: Three new German attacks to the North of Lombardzylve were repulsed yesterday to the East of St. George's. Our marine fusiliers took possession of Union Farm which was very strongly fortified by the Germans, and also of a portion further to the East; they made 300 prisoners. Dunkirk was again bombarded this morning, two shells being thrown in the region to the north of Arras. We have maintained all important gains reported in the communication of yesterday evening. Along the rest of the front particularly in Argonne and in Alsace, at Sillaker Wasen, there was a continuation of artillery fighting.

BONAR LAW SPEAKS.

LONDON, May 10. Our enemies have reached a degree of infamy, culminating in the destruction of the Lusitania, which is simply hopeless to attempt to describe, said Andrew Bonar Law, in a speech to-day. His remarks were delivered on the occasion of the presentation of a medal to Capt. Bell, of the British steamer Thorold, which rammed a German submarine off Bally Head in February. This is not an act of warfare, he continued, but simply murder, most foul and most unnatural. Saying that up to the present no effective protest had been made by any neutral country, he added, what will happen now, in the great pronouncement of the United States, the neutral country most closely affected by the latest outrage? It is a simple fact that citizens of that country have been barbarously murdered. I is not for me to say what their action ought to be, but I feel sure that the United States will be guided not merely by the monetary interests of the country, but by their feelings as to what is due a great nation among the other nations of the world. The sinking of the Lusitania had the effect he believed it would, on the feelings, not only of British soldiers, but of the whole nation, then we can thank the Germans for this last instance of their barbarous methods.

borated in the terrible crime. "I propose to ask the Jury," he continued, "to return the only verdict possible for a self-respecting jury, that the men in charge of the German submarine were guilty of wilful murder."
The ship's bugler, Livermore, testified that the watertight compartments were closed, but that the explosion and force of water must have burst them open. He said that all officers were at their posts, and that earlier arrivals of rescue craft would not have saved the situation.
Captain Turner testified briefly. The coroner asked him: "You were aware threats had been made that the ship would be torpedoed?"
"We were," the Captain replied.
"Was she armed?"
"No, sir."
"What precautions did you take?"
"We had all the boats swung when we came within the danger zone, between passing the Fastnet and the time of the accident."
The coroner asked him whether he had received a message concerning the sinking of the ship by submarine. Turner replied that he had not.
"Did you receive any special instructions as to the voyage?"
"Yes, sir."
"Are you at liberty to tell us what they were?"
"No, sir."
"Did you carry them out?"
"Yes, to the best of my ability."
"Tell us in your own words what happened."
"After passing Fastnet, the weather was clear," Turner answered. "We were going at 13 knots. I was on the port side, and heard second officer Hefford call out, 'Here is a torpedo.' I ran to the other side, and saw clearly the wake of the torpedo. Smoke and steam came up between the last two funnels. There was a slight shock. Immediately after the first explosion there was another report, but that may possibly have been internal. I at once gave orders to lower the boats down to the rails and I directed the women and children should get into them."

torpedoed; whether there was a patrol boat in that locality; whether all points where vessels arrive and depart are now patrolled; what provision was made in the case of the Lusitania in view of the warning issued in America; whether Churchill was aware, previous to last Friday, that German submarines had for some time been actively at work on the south coast of Ireland; and finally what arrangements, if any, were made to convoy and protect the Lusitania. Churchill replying to further questions, spoke as follows: The shocking exception of the Lusitania should not divert the attention of the Commons and country from the fact that Britain's entire seaport trade had been carried on without appreciable loss. The general principle regarding the providing of escort is that merchant traffic must look after itself, subject to general arrangements by the Admiralty. There is no reason to suppose that this principle is not entirely successful. Bonar Law asked if an answer had been received from the captain of the Lusitania showing that the Admiralty instructions to the liner had come to his hands. Churchill replied that both messages had been acknowledged. The second acknowledgment came a short time before the attack was made. Balfour asked if Asquith had received his letter of April 15th, warning him of the peril that had met the Lusitania, and whether this warning had gone unheeded.

CHURCHILL SPEAKS.

LONDON, May 10. Winston C. Spencer Churchill said in the Commons to-day, that a Board of Trade inquiry will be held to determine the circumstances attending the loss of the Lusitania. In the meantime it is premature to discuss the matter, he continued; but I must make it plain, that in no circumstances will it be possible to make public the naval dispositions or patrolling our coast. Our resources do not enable us to provide destroyers and escort for mail and passenger ships.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

LONDON, May 10. The Governor, Newfoundland; the General French reports May 8th, fighting continues southeast of Ypres. A trench lost on the day before was recaptured. The enemy violently attacked our trenches between Ypres and Poelcapelle and Ypres-Menin Roads. Fighting proceeded until the report on the 9th states that enemy attacks east of Ypres, continued. All were repulsed with heavy loss, and our lines are firmly established. Our first army attacked the enemy's line between Bois Grenier and Pottshert, gaining ground south-east towards Fromelles. Fighting continues. Our armies raided various points successfully. The British destroyer Maori struck a mine off the Belgian coast on Saturday. The crew were captured as well as the crew of boats from the destroyer Crusader, attempting a rescue; in all 7 officers and 88 men. The French Government report considerable progress north of Arras and south of Carancy. In the latter region, on a front of seven kilometres, two or three lines of the enemy trenches were captured. The village of La Targete and half the village of Neuville Saint Vaast were taken. Advances at some points were four kilometres deep. Over 2,000 prisoners and six guns were taken. The Russian Government report occupation of Libau by the enemy after PARIS, May 10. (Official.) To the north of Arras, in spite of German counter-attacks, we have maintained all our gains, yesterday. We have enlarged it on certain points notably between Carancy and Cauchez. Our success is developing. The total number of prisoners up to three o'clock to-day exceeded 2,000. Among these were about 40 officers, including a Colonel. We have captured the last two days more than ten cannon and fifty machine guns. At Berry au Bac a German attack has been repulsed, as well as one in the forest of La Pretre.

GERMAN COMMUNICATION.
BERLIN, May 10. The following despatch has been sent by the German Foreign Office to the German Embassy at Washington: Please communicate the following to the State Department. The German Government desires to express its deepest sympathy with the British Government, which through its policy of starving the civilian population of Germany, forced Germany to resort to retaliatory measures. In spite of the German offer to stop submarine war, in case the starvation plan was given up, British merchant vessels being generally armed with guns have repeatedly tried to ram submarines, so that previous search is impossible. They cannot therefore be treated as ordinary merchant vessels. A recent declaration made in the British Parliament by a Parliamentary Secretary in answer to a question by Lord Charles Balfour, said that at present practically all British merchant vessels were armed with hand grenades, besides it has been openly admitted by the English press that the Lusitania on previous voyages carried large quantities of war material. On the present voyage she carried 5,000 cases of ammunition, while the rest of her cargo consisted chiefly of contraband. If England, and her allies, are unable to prevent the Lusitania from being sunk, it is their responsibility for human life on board the steamer, which, owing to its armament, was liable to destruction, the German Government in spite of its heartfelt sympathy for the loss of American lives, cannot but regret that Americans are more inclined to trust English promises, rather than pay attention to warnings from the German side. Signed by the Foreign Office.

AWAITING AUSTRIA'S REPLY.
PARIS, May 10. The Government of Italy to-day awaits the final reply of Austria, says a Rome despatch to the "La Liberté". In the interim the publication of important decrees which were signed at the last meeting of the cabinet, has been withheld. I learn from an excellent source that unless the Austrian answer arrives before midnight to-night, or if the reply is unfavorable, Italy will consider the negotiations terminated.

May 10th. In German works captured yesterday near Lens we made hundreds of prisoners. At Bagatelle, in Argonne, our troops repulsed three attacks, one during night of 7th and 8th and other two yesterday.
Midnight—Between the sea and Niessport the Germans attacked but were repulsed suffering heavy losses. The British troops have advanced in Fromelles District. We realized substantial progress north of Arras, in direction of Loos and south of Carancy; in the latter district we captured on a front of 7 kilometres two and even three lines of German trenches strongly fortified. We have captured the village of Targete and one half of Neuville Silvast village. Our advance in depth reaching on certain points 4 kilometres we have taken over 2,000 prisoners and 6 cannons. In Champagne we repulsed an attack near St. Thomas, on the border of Argonne. At Bagatelle we have been able to verify the importance of the losses suffered by the enemy during their attacks of yesterday. Germans again used asphyxiating bombs and fiery liquids without any success. On remainder of front, especially at Le Pretre Wood and Sillskerwasen, artillery contests.

In the evening a reception was held and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The couple were the recipients of quite a number of presents, which were very useful as well as extremely pretty, and spoke very highly of their popularity. CAPTAIN TURNER'S EVIDENCE.

I also had all bulkheads closed. Capt. Turner continued, between the time of passing the Fastnet about 11 o'clock and the torpedoing. I saw no sign whatever of any submarine. There was some haze along the Irish coast. When we were near Fastnet, I slowed down to 15 knots. I was in wireless communication with the shore all the way across. Capt. Turner was asked whether he had received any messages regarding the presence of submarines off the Irish coast. He replied in the affirmative. To a question regarding the nature of the message, he replied, I respectfully refer you to the Admiralty for an answer. I also gave orders to stop the ship. Capt. Turner continued, but we could not stop. We found the engines were out of commission. It was not safe to lower the boats until the speed was off the vessel. As a matter of fact, there was a perceptible headway on her up to the time she went down. When she was struck, she listed to starboard. I stood on the bridge; when she sank, the Lusitania went down under me. She floated about 18 minutes after the torpedo struck her. My watch stopped at 2.36. I was picked up from among the wreckage afterwards, and was brought aboard a trawler. No warship was conveying us. I saw no warship and none was reported to me as having been seen. At the time I was picked up, I noticed bodies floating on the surface but saw no living person. "What was a lookout kept for submarines, having regard to previous warnings?" "Yes, we had double lookouts." "Were you going a zigzag course at the moment the torpedoing took place?" "No. It was bright weather, and the land was clearly visible." "Was it possible for the submarines to approach without being seen?" "Oh, yes, quite possible."

By the foreman of the jury.—In face of the warning at New York that the Lusitania would be torpedoed, did you make any application to the Admiralty for an escort? No, I left that to them. It is their business, not mine. I simply had to carry out my orders to go and I would do it again. Capt. Turner uttered the last words of this reply with great emphasis.

By the Coroner.—I am very glad to hear you say so, captain. By a jurymen.—Did you get a wireless to steer your vessel in the northern direction? No, replied Capt. Turner. Was the course of the vessel altered after the torpedo struck her? I headed straight for the land, but it was useless. Previous to this the watertight bulkheads were closed. I suppose the force of the explosion forced them open. I don't know the exact extent to which the Lusitania was damaged. Was any warning given you before you were torpedoed? None whatever. It was suddenly done and finished. With regard to threats against his ship, Capt. Turner said he saw nothing except that which appeared in the New York papers the day before the Lusitania sailed. He never heard the passengers talking about the threats, he said.

TOO PROUD TO FIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA, To-day. President Wilson gave a gathering of 4,000 naturalized Americans to-night the first intimation of the course, which the United States Government probably would pursue in the situation, resulting from the loss of more than a hundred American lives, on the British liner Lusitania. He spoke by implication, but his hearers interpreted his remarks as meaning that while the United States would remain at peace, it would seek to convince Germany of the injustice marking the tragedy of last Friday. America, said the President, must have a consciousness that on all sides touches and touches and touches hearts with all the nations of mankind. The example of America must be a special example. It must be an example not merely of peace because it will not fight, but because peace is a healing and elevating influence on the world and strife is not. There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as being so right, it does not need to convince others by force that it is right.

LYOYD GEORGE'S LIQUOR BILL.

LONDON, To-day. The Commons, this evening, passed the second reading of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George's Bill to amend the Defence of the Realm Act. The Bill originally was designed to place a heavy surtax on wines, spirits and beer, but under pressure from the Irish Party, its provisions were amended, giving the Government control of the sale of liquor in areas where munitions of war are being made. Under the Bill, a Central Committee will be set up for Scotland and England. It will act on recommendations of the committees of employers and workmen in the districts affected. Lloyd George proposed to appoint a committee to inquire into the charge of drunkenness among workmen, and all parties, including Laborites, have expressed their satisfaction with the Bill. The Government will absolutely control the sale of liquors in selected districts, including that dispensed at clubs and grocery stores. A Commission under the Chairmanship of Lord Dunsedin, will deal with the question of compensation to liquor dealers for losses.

DROPPING BOMBS NEAR PARIS.

PARIS, To-day. A German aeroplane of the Taube type flew over St. Denis, a suburb of Paris, this morning, and dropped two bombs. One missile wounded five persons, while the other fell on a building without causing damage.

TRUCKS LOSE 45,000.

LONDON, To-day. The Allied troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula continued to advance on Friday and Saturday, according to an Athens despatch. Troops are reported to have occupied several important positions in spite of the desperate resistance offered by the Turks, whose total losses are estimated at 45,000 men. Hospitals in Constantinople are said to be so crowded that wounded are being sent to Kouhlin, Asia Minor.

SINKING OF THE LUSITANIA.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The sinking of the Lusitania and the situation resulting from that act, continued to-day to hold undivided attention in the White House, where it was expected the President would give some indication to his advisers as to what course the States will pursue in the present emergency. To-day's Cabinet meeting is the first to be held since the Lusitania disaster.

RUSSIAN CRUISERS IN ACTION.

LONDON, To-day. A Petrograd despatch says: A squadron of cruisers of the Russian Baltic fleet, while cruising in the Baltic Sea in the region of Windau, a seaport in Courland, exchanged long distance firing with a hostile cruiser and torpedo boats, which took advantage of their superior speed to escape southward and avoid engagement.

DRAFTING TREATY.

TOKYO, To-day. The Japanese Foreign Office is drafting a treaty with China based upon the acceptance of the provisions in Japan's ultimatum, including the restoration of Kia Choo. Admitting that the public is displeased with the results of negotiations, the Conservative press wishes the Japanese to exercise self-restraint with regard to China. Advised from Peking state it is believed Russia will demand privileges in North Manchuria similar to those granted Japan in South Manchuria.

STRONG OFFENSIVE.

GENEVA, To-day. A despatch says that the Russians have begun a strong offensive movement at Tarnow, as well as in Courland and of the Strv, driving back the Austrian and German forces with heavy losses.

CONFLICT SEEMS UNAVOIDABLE.

LONDON, To-day. Although negotiations with the Central Empires are still pending, there is a bare possibility that the influence of the former Premier Giolitti may avert war. Military preparations pointing to Austria as an inevitable antagonist are so thorough and vigorous that a conflict seems unavoidable. Even discussions among the opposition parties have virtually ceased and only irreconcilable socialists still oppose Italy's participation in the war.

PROFOUND INDIGNATION IN GREECE.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Athens says that the torpedoing of the Lusitania has aroused profound indignation throughout Greece.

SAILINGS AS USUAL.

NEW YORK, To-day. No general cancellation of sailings of steamers or of passengers engaged from New York to European ports has followed the sinking of the Lusitania, according to agents of the steamship lines here. They say, however, that there has been an increase in the popularity of vessels flying the neutral flag. The fact that the American line has stopped booking third class passengers for the St. Louis, due to leave here Saturday, was cited as an evidence of this.

Trap People.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain type of person which reminds me of a trap. I refer to the person who by skillful flattery lures you into talking about yourself and then judges you for doing so. "She's so terribly satisfied with herself," I heard one woman say about another. "She talks about herself and her children all the time."

My mind reverted to the last time I had seen these two women together. The critic had deliberately drawn the other woman on to talk about herself; she had simulated an ardent interest in her affairs that had evidently gone like champagne to the other woman's head. And then when the other woman had responded to this flattery—even as you and I—the woman who was responsible had blamed her.

Baiting a Trap With Flattery. If you bait a trap with flattery you will never fail to catch plenty of victims, but the shame is yours as much as theirs.

Our friends in their relation to us are not wholly themselves but partly what we make them. In their relationship to others they may be quite different people. For instance, I know a woman who is considered brilliant by most people. Another woman told me that she found her stupid and uninteresting. I could hardly understand it and I got for the psychological interest of the thing I asked the first woman how she liked the other (without, of course, telling her that she had been criticised). "I can't get on with her at all," she answered frankly. "She affects me like a wet blanket."

How Energy Breeds Inertia.

A very energetic girl went on a trip with a girl of less active temperament. The energetic girl came home complaining (after the manner of her kind who do things for people and then blame them for permitting it) that the other girl left all arrangements, etc., to her. Now I happen to know that the other girl isn't usually like that. It was simply the association with the energetic one who rushed ahead and did things which made her inert.

So flattery breeds conceit, an unresponsive manner breeds dullness and super-energy breeds laziness, and so on through all the qualities that act and react in the chemistry of human relationships. Be careful not to blame anyone for a fault unless you are sure you didn't help breed it.

A reader friend sends the following suggestion for use in big families. She is to consider herself cordially thanked. Remember, this column is always open—wide open—to readers with suggestions to pass along. If you have an idea or a scheme or a thought that might help, don't be selfish with it, pass it along.

We are a large family; our homes are scattered over many states; we have a circulating letter that goes to all the brothers and sisters and many of the grandchildren also write. There are ten children; all have families and father and mother always write, too. So you see it is very interesting. Each one takes out his former letter, writes another and sends it on, often enclosing a new kodak picture.

Rev. G. J. Bond, D.D., CALLED TO COCHRANE STREET CHURCH.

We are pleased to learn to-day that the unanimous invitation extended to the Rev. G. J. Bond, D.D., of Halifax, by the Cochrane Street Church Official Board to become its pastor in June of next year, had been accepted by the reverend gentleman. Those who had the privilege of hearing the learned Doctor during his visit to the city last month in the interests of missions will not soon forget his thoughtful and earnest addresses. The Monthly Greeting for May says of him: "Dr. Bond retains all his old snap, spice and energy, and his old friends were delighted to hear him again." We congratulate the officials as well as the congregation on obtaining the services of such a distinguished preacher. Rev. Dr. Bond is a Newfoundlander and a brother of the Right Hon. Sir R. Bond, K.C.M.G.

Lieut. Clift was employed at the Bank of Montreal when the call for volunteers came and he resigned his position to enlist. We understand that he was recommended by Lieut. Col. de Burton. There they will remain a week or two and then go to the Dardanelles. This information was received from an officer of the Scots, it being on their order list. The men are greatly excited, as they are tired of inaction, and though they fully realize what is before them, all are anxious to go."

Sagona Returning.

The S. S. Sagona left Port Saunders at 1.30 p.m. yesterday returning from the Straits. Capt. Gooch reports having reached Flower's Cove but was unable to make any ports of call on the Labrador side owing to ice conditions. The winter ice is still in many of the harbours and the drift hangs close to the land. The Sagona is expected to reach Humbermouth early this evening.

The C. L. MARCH Co., Limited,
House Furnishers, Cor. Water and Springdale Streets.

At the House.
MAY 10th, 1915.
Petitions were presented by Mr. Kent in relation to the contract of the Newfoundland Products Company now before the House; by Messrs. Grimes and Stone re Prohibition by Mr. Jennings from Government on the subject of Timber Reserves and by Mr. Hallyard asking for a bridge.
A message from the Legislative Council stated that the Bill re Imposition on Estates of Deceased Persons had passed without amendment.
The General Hospital Bill was read a third time and ordered to be sent to the Upper House for concurrence.
The House then went into Committee on the Resolutions of a Contract between the Government and the Nfld. Products Corporation.
Mr. Morine wished to deny allegations made outside the House that he opposed the Resolutions on the ground that the Reid Company were connected with them. He understood the Harmsworths were not opposing the Bill as a Bill but were merely protecting their interests. He contended that the document was discreditable from the standpoint of draftsmanship and that the country would be injuriously affected by giving the unlimited franchise contained in the Resolutions. He considered the absence of information before the Committee a shame and an indecency. In reply to the points raised by the Premier he contended that the freedom of taxation granted in the '98 Contract was entirely different from exempting the property of the Products Co. from taxation as it was merely a consideration given for operating the railway. He contended that the Premier was discreditable in attacking the Solicitor of the House for framing the Resolutions, but said that other competent legal men would have assisted the Government in drafting the Bill. Referring to the Humber drainage areas he pointed out that no protection is provided for other companies in the Humber region who purchased from those holding timber licenses who were supporters of the present Govt. He contended that the Premier was expropriating. He could not conceive how the Government could deal with a Company that had no shareholders and no limited liability. In conclusion he urged that the matter be deferred until the Resolutions are in proper and constitutional form to proceed with.
The Premier held that the amendments did not justify the insinuations made and that wrong constructions were put upon them, that they did not alter the sense of the Contract but simply made clear points where there was possibility of doubt. He contended that ample protection was made for the rights of others and that any damage done would be assessed by arbitration. As to surplus of waterpower he said the Company would need an enormous power and would if they had any to spare be able to see to their own needs and supplied themselves and he did not see that there should be any objection to that. After dealing with certain statements of Mr. Morine, he expressed the opinion that restrictions in the Contract were not good as they tended to threaten the industry and make it harder to borrow the money. He was sure that when the Company was established 1,000 men could be got from the Labrador and 2,000 of those working in the mines of Cape Breton and Nova Scotia. He said that as far as he could see the Company were not getting a certain class of land for a certain purpose and could not destroy other property that was going to be protected. He contended that the country was going to get large considerations from the Corporation, that ten millions of dollars was to be spent at Labrador and on the West Coast and that that was the best proof of the bona fides of the Contract.
Mr. Lloyd asked if the Government Engineer had been called upon to make any reports in connection with estimates of waterpowers, etc. This question cited a negative reply.
Continuing the Premier started to show in defense of the Arbitration clause how the Deer Lake Company not developed their land for years said that they surrendered their rights a year ago.
Mr. Lloyd then asked if the document showing that the Company had surrendered could be tabled, and was promised that it would. Regarding the lack of information before the Committee the Premier said that they had all that could be afforded and that specific and scientific information would mean great expense.
Mr. Kent said that at the present juncture it was impossible to deal with some sections of the Contract owing to the absence of information, which these sections warranted and emphasized that as full and complete as possible information should be given to the House before proceeding on the subject that involved so much to the Colony. We have really before us now no information at all, continuing the Leader of the Opposition, beyond what the Prime Minister says and we must trust to the general knowledge we have on subjects of this kind. But that was not sufficient for such a far reaching and important issue. He thought it was the desire of every one in the House, as it was his personal wish to see the undertaking established and become a success, but he was not prepared to sacrifice the rights and interests of the people of the country to any undertaking before he saw where he was heading. Therefore, he wished to know the extent of the privileges and concessions to be granted the Newfoundland Products Company and the returns the country is going to get for the concessions that are granted and when we know, he said, that in dealing with the development of water power that it will affect all our industries and their future possibilities for ever and for ever, then the only and best possible information for the House to get is scientific information derived from absolutely independent sources. It is no answer for the Government to make that such a course will mean a lengthy and expensive investigation and that it will mean the employment of expensive engineers, because if the people's rights are valuable and everybody admits they are valuable, then you are not justified in dealing with them until you have made the enquiries suggested. We are the trustees of the people of the country, emphatically stated Mr. Kent, and are not supposed to go gropingly into a project of this kind. If you stop and consider what this means, you will find that it does not mean only the granting of the waterpower, it does not mean only the granting of the right to divert, stop or dam up any stream, lake, or water course within the drainage area of the Humber River, but you must remember there are independent interests that are not conserved and matters that should be enquired into first and foremost. He pointed out that our forest areas devoted upon the water supply and upon its distribution and if ignorantly disturbed by the Products Co. would be ruinous to other allied industries. He reiterated that members of the House did not know what they were doing at present owing to lack of necessary information.
The Committee then rose and took recess till 8 o'clock.

AFTER RECESS.
Mr. Kent resumed his speech after recess. He emphasized the principal points previously brought forward by him and showed that the amendments that have been brought in did not remove all the objections raised by the Opposition. The matter of exemption from taxation, rights of water-powers and the possibility of the Company entering into competition with the people of the country in the general trade of the country were dealt with at length. He also pointed out that the Contract does not compel the Co. to operate the industry continuously. Mr. Morine was the next speaker. He laid particular emphasis on his remarks of the afternoon, and criticized strongly the amendments regarding labour with which the agreement was shrouded so as to make it popular.
Mr. Downey then followed and made a speech in support of the Resolutions. As representative for the District of St. George's he thought that the industry would be immensely valuable to that section of the country.
At the request of Mr. Coaker the debate was adjourned until this afternoon. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Statute Bill which passed the Committee without amendment, and will come up for third reading this afternoon.
The House also went into Committee of the Whole on the Permanent Marine Disasters Bill, which evoked considerable discussion in which the Premier, Messrs. Kent, Coaker, Bennett, Jennings, Chitt and Higgins took part. There was no diversity of opinion on the main points of the Bill, but some necessary amendments will be made so as to maintain the original object of the fund in view. All the speakers paid a high tribute to the excellent work of the Committee in charge of the fund.
The Newfoundland Patriotic Association Bill was read a second time and will come up for second reading on Friday next.
The other matters on the order paper being deferred the House adjourned at 11.10 p.m. until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?
"Nothing. I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured me. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."

There is a great deal of speculation just now as to what position John Burns will hold after the war is over. Very few people are aware that in his younger days Mr. Burns went out to the Niger as an engineer's foreman to the Niger Company. On one occasion he was the chief actor in a thrilling little scene which showed the sterling stuff of which he was made. He and a fellow workman were travelling up the river on a small steamer when the vessel stuck in the mud and they lost their propeller. The water was filled with crocodiles, and for a time things looked somewhat black. At last Mr. Burns' companion determined to jump overboard to rescue the propeller, but he had only just begun to take off his coat when he felt an iron grip on his arm. "Stop!" said Mr. Burns. "You are a married man. I'm single—that makes all the difference." The next moment he was in the water, and, in spite of the crocodiles which might have fastened themselves upon him at any moment, he returned shortly afterwards with the missing propeller safe in his possession.

Extracts From Letter
FROM REV. ANDERSON WELLS TO HIS MOTHER.

The following is taken from a letter received by Mrs. Wells from her son, the Rev. Anderson Wells, Chaplain with the 1st Canadian Force, and stationed now at No. 2 Hospital, some where in France:

"My Dear Mother,—
"Just a few lines, so that you may know that all is well, and that I am keeping in the best of health.
"I wonder if I told you at any time about getting a German-English book from one of our German prisoners? I sent home a few notes about it to the Winnipeg Free Press, and to one of the English papers here. It created quite a sensation in England, and all or many of the Canadian papers copied it. The Chronicle (England) has issued a small book based upon it, which has had a great sale. I have received a cheque for $50.00 for my letter and the use of the book. I received a letter from Prof. O'Ryan, from Marlborough College, England, a few days ago, saying that he wished to make use of some parts of the Poek in a History of Documents relating to the war which he is publishing, so you see this small matter has kindled a great fire."
Rev. Mr. Willis' friends in Newfoundland will be glad to learn that he is well, and doing his best to alleviate the misery and suffering caused by this sanguinary war.
