For Her Sake... The Murder in Ferness Wood.

CHAPTER LXVI. He longed to gather her in his arms, to hold her to his breast, to kiss away the quickly falling tears, to comfort her with loving words.

"It may be no business of mine," he continued, with a proud movement of his handsome head; "I would never interfere between man and wife; but I solemnly swear that if he ill-uses you, as surely as the sun shines in the heavens above, he shall suffer for it!

"He does not! Oh, Lisle, you frighten me! He does not! It is my own fault that I am not happy."

"You must not stay here, Lisle; you must go."

words told him—what a confusion they were of love, of weakness, and of fear. "I have enough to bear. You must not stay here."

CHAPTER LXVII. The arrival of Sir Lisle was a source of universal surprise, and to Lady Cameron—who remarked that the only thing she had needed to make her perfectly happy was the presence of Sir Lisle—one of infinite pleasure.

"What do you wish me to sing, papa?" she asked; and Sir Lisle heard the tears in her voice.

"Do you think that he positively ill-uses her?" he asked; and the suppressed passion in his voice might have warned Lady Cameron.

"I call it ill-usage," she replied—"at least, I suppose scolding and swearing and shouting at her constitutes ill-usage."

"Does he do that?" he asked. "He does little else," replied Lady Cameron. "Diana has much more sense and self-control than I imagined her to possess."

"What does Mr. Cameron really think and say of it?" asked Sir Lisle. "He says nothing," she answered; "but I am sure he thinks a great deal."

"It is horrible!" cried Sir Lisle. "They were interrupted by the entrance of several of the guests, and could say no more. But Sir Lisle found that all he had heard was perfectly true."

After dinner, when the whole party were in the drawing-room, Peter Cameron asked his daughter to sing; but she declined, making excuse that she was tired.

"Why do you not sing when you are asked?" he said. "What do you mean by refusing?"

"I presume I am at liberty to please myself!" she answered, quietly. "You are not; you are bound to please me," he retorted, "and no one else. I insist upon your singing."

She could see that Sir Lisle had withdrawn from the brilliantly lighted room into the shadow of one of the great bay-windows; and she was glad that she had sung no sweet weak love words that could bring him pain.

Coaker's Bell Island discussed--U. S. Government Mines -- German Responsibility -- Uncle Sam Again

MONTREAL, Nov. 28. Commenting on the reported statement of W. F. Coaker as to the proposed increase in the export tax on iron ore, the Star says, "Should Newfoundland Government embark upon a project at this time it would be of vital importance to the Dominion Steel Corporation and Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., Ltd., which between them control the entire iron ore exports from the island. It is thought that any action by the Newfoundland Government in the way of lowering the export duty on iron ore at this time might seriously disconcert the plans of the two companies. Not only might it make unprofitable an increase in the initial production to carry out trade agreements made for a large export trade, but it might also affect the price of finished products at their Canadian plants."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. The seizure of the bituminous coal mines where the owners do not show disposition to co-operate in increasing production and the use of troops to protect all miners who desire to work has been decided upon by the government in an effort to end the bituminous coal strike, it was stated officially. In the mines seized the government the fourteen per cent wage advance agreed upon by the cabinet will be put into immediate effect, it was said. These plans the government were agreed upon after the cabinet last Wednesday. Officials said, so as to meet the situation resulting from the refusal of the operators or miners or both to agree to the government wage increase proposal.

LONDON, Nov. 28. The Government won a sweeping victory in the House of Commons today when the motion of William Lloyd George, Labor leader, calling for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the cost of production, output and prices of coal was rejected. The Government returned 264 against 59 for the measure.

BERLIN, Nov. 28. It is stated in authoritative quarters here that Germany will not comply with the demands of the Allies.

COAKER'S WILD CAT POLICY.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28. Commenting on the reported statement of W. F. Coaker as to the proposed increase in the export tax on iron ore, the Star says, "Should the Newfoundland Government embark on such a project at this time it would be of vital importance to the Dominion Steel Corporation and Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. Ltd., which between them control the entire iron ore output of the island. It is thought that any action by the Newfoundland Government in the way of raising the export duty on iron ore at this time might seriously disarrange the plans of the two companies interested. Not only might it make difficult by an increase in the initial cost of production to carry out proposals made for a large export trade but it might also affect the price of finished products at their Cape Breton plants."

MINES SEIZED BY GOVERNMENT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. The seizure of the bituminous coal mines where the owners do not show disposition to co-operate in increasing production and the use of troops to protect all miners who desire to work has been decided upon by the government in an effort to end the bituminous coal strike, it was stated today officially. INQUIRY INTO COAL PRICES.

LONDON, Nov. 28. The government returned 254 against 59 for the measure.

GERMANY WILL NOT MEET DEMANDS.

BERLIN, Nov. 28. It is stated in authoritative quarters here that Germany will not comply with the demand of the Entente for four hundred thousand tons of docks, dredges and tugs as an offset to German warships sunk at Scapa Flow. It was indicated that Germany would stand pat on her proposition to refer the dispute to the Hague tribunal. It is claimed that Germany should not be held responsible for acts of marine forces at Scapa Flow.

TO RESTORE THE HAPSBURG.

PARIS, Nov. 28. Prince Ludwig Windisch Graetz, former Austrian Minister without portfolio, and intimate friend of former Emperor Charles, is reported to have declared in Berlin that the re-establishment of the Hapsburg dynasty in Hungary is only a matter of machine guns. The Entente not being able to prevent it, according to a despatch received here from Geneva.

U. S. WILL NOT REVEDE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. Although further investigation of facts will be made, the United States Government has no intention of receding from its position in the Jenkins case, Administration officials declared today. The government, they said, is prepared for the next step which may take the form of an ultimatum to the Mexican Government.

BIG FIRE IN BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 28. The group of buildings formerly occupied by the John Hopkins University and also a score of other structures in the Square bounded by the Howard Ross monument and Eutaw Streets were either destroyed or wrecked by fire early today, entailing a loss roughly estimated at a million dollars.

BRITAIN SAYS SO.

PARIS, Nov. 28. Great Britain has given Jugo-Slavia assurances that the Adriatic question will soon be taken up by the Supreme Council and that Great Britain's influence will be used to secure a just and equitable settlement in accord with the life and interests of Jugo-Slavia, according to private despatches.

PLENTY OF GOLD IN RUSSIA.

LONDON, Nov. 28. Russia's gold reserves are unprecedented, the Soviet Government is prepared to pay four hundred million rubles in gold for food, machinery and necessities, according to a statement ascribed to colleagues of Maxim Litvinoff, by the Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail.

A MATTER FOR CONSIDERATION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. Mexico has replied with an argumentative diplomatic refusal to the American Government's demand for immediate release of William O. Jenkins, Consular Agent, imprisoned at Puebla. The official note was delivered here today, but not made public. There is no reason to doubt that it agrees with the copy given out by the Mexican Consul General at El Paso. No comment was forthcoming to indicate how the State Department regards this answer to what was considered one of the sharpest warnings yet sent to Mexico, and neither was there any indication of what the Government's next step would be.

JUST FOR PROTECTION.

PARIS, Nov. 28. The Japanese peace delegation is announcing today that Japan was sending a light cruiser and two torpedo boats to Fuchow, China, for the protection of Japanese subjects, said instructions had been given the commander of the squadron forbidding the landing of marines or the use of arms except in case of absolute necessity.

READING A CRISIS.

PARIS, Nov. 28. According to advices received by the Jugo-Slav peace delegates, the Italian population in Dalmatia is in a state of great agitation. Italians at Hara are said to have informed all families having relations with the Serbian army that they must leave the town. The city is virtually closed so far as business is concerned, according to the report, and all families are remaining indoors.

IRISH BANK CLERKS STRIKE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 28. The announcement is made that the Bank Clerks' Union will notify its members on Monday to strike after business hours on Wednesday in consequence of circulars issued by the bank directors, calling upon their clerks to state individually whether they intend to strike in accordance with the resolution adopted by the delegates of the Union here on Sunday. This circular is interpreted as a threat of dismissal of any who do not reply. It is reported the Irish Ministry of Labor is arranging to arbitrate in the matter.

BREAKS OFF SOVIET RELATIONS.

MADRID, Nov. 28. Spain has broken off all relations with the Soviet Government of Russia. It was announced in the Cortes today by the Minister of foreign affairs, who said this step had been taken because the Spanish Embassy in Petrograd had been twice attacked and the Charges D'Affaires forced to leave Russia. Socialist Deputy Savorin protested against this action which he declared to be tyrannical.

JUST QUIBBLING.

Clemenceau refers to alleged official announcements issued in Paris Sept. 20th, stating that allied and associate powers had decided to anticipate the date of the ratification of the treaty as far as the repatriation of German prisoners was concerned.

THE TANK INVENTOR.

LONDON, Nov. 28. The Royal Commission inquiring into the claims of tank inventors had awarded Sir William Tritton and Major Wilson fifteen thousand pounds jointly. These are the principal awards. There are others but smaller for minor contributors. The Commission expresses regret that it cannot recommend an award to L. E. Demeole who in nineteen twelve reduced to a practical shape a brilliant invention which anticipated and in some respects surpassed that actually put into use.

THE MATTER OF COAL.

LONDON, Nov. 28. What was regarded as a vote of censure on the policy of the Government in connection with the control of coal output of the United Kingdom was moved in the House of Commons at noon today. The motion, introduced by William Brace, Labor member, called for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the cost of production, output and the prices of coal. Behind the resolution the full strength of the Labor Party was marshalled. There was a full attendance of the House. In presenting the motion Mr. Brace declared the Labor Party had been trying to co-operate with the Government in this grave and difficult financial problem, but

DISPOSING OF GERMAN SHIPPING
PARIS, Nov. 28. Discussing the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow and the compensations to be obtained therefor, the Supreme Council today admitted in principle the demolition of the units still in the hands of the Allies, but the question of the distribution of the scrap iron resulting from the breaking up of the ships was not decided. France and Italy, whose shipbuilding yards have been idle since 1914 will receive certain units intact as compensation for tonnage lost during the war.

THE ITALIAN ELECTIONS.
ROME, Nov. 28. The directors of the Socialist Party today adopted a motion declaring that the Socialist victory at the general election is an act of complete solidarity with the Soviet republic of Russia. The resolution declares that the Socialist programme was won "for damage inflicted by the party realization of that programme being a pledge taken by the party before the elections."

Can YOU Puzzle It Out?

FOR Johnny's birthday his mother presented him with a dandy rifle, and Johnny took the four targets that came with the rifle and went out to the back yard to try his skill. Shortly after, his mother came out to see how he was getting on. Johnny knew how to use his gun. Upon examining the targets, showing all the holes made by the bullets, and being a little-aching woman, she exclaimed, "Why, Johnny, what a good shot you are! Do you know that you have made every target a word? Can you tell me what each target spells?"

What Others Have Done, YOU Can Do!

Now are the names of any a few of the boys and girls who have won prizes for solving this puzzle?

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

FIGHTING GHOSTS.

"I have a feeling," a neighbor of mine said to me one day, speaking of her mother-in-law, "that she thinks I don't spend as much time as I should on the house. If she ever says it to me I know just what I'll say. I've got it all planned. When I think how hard work to keep the children neat and help John with his accounts, it makes me boil to think of her talking I don't spend time enough on the house. I guess if I had her house and nothing else in the world to do and not even a husband litter it up, I could keep it as nice as she does hers."

She Had a Feeling It Was So.

"But what makes you think she talks you don't keep your house neat enough? I mildly expostulated. She didn't ever say so, did she?"

"No, she's never said a word, but she has a feeling she thinks so. She's so poison neat herself, she probably doesn't see why I can't be. I'll tell her all right if she ever says anything."

A veritable battle light was in my neighbor's eye and a call to battle was in her voice. To battle against what? Against a point of view that she felt someone else held.

I have an idea that a great deal of energy is wasted in ways like this.

Another woman once told me that before she recognized the folly of it, she used to let her thoughts run for hours on what she would like to say to a sister-in-law whom she did not like or approve of. She would conduct long mental conversations in which she freed her mind of all the disapproval that she had been storing up in it.

Watch yourself sometime and see if you ever hold any of these imaginary conversations, or if you are all ready to do battle against some idea which you think some friend or relative holds in regard to you.

And if you do, just stop and ask yourself if there could be a more foolish waste of energy, a more ridiculous way of raising the blood pressure and wearing out your arteries.

The Worst of It Is You Keep Doing It.

Of course, you don't get as angry as if you really talked the matter out with these imaginary offenders, but you do get more wrought up than you realize. And the worst of it is, that you don't do it and get it out of your system, but you do it over and over again.

One cannot help disliking and disapproving of certain people, one cannot help feeling that certain people judge one unfairly, but one can help dwelling on such matters in a way that does no one any good and oneself much harm.

THE SIMPLER LIFE.

Go for the honors if you will, And treat the stony heights to fame; Fight for the rich rewards of skill, And seek life's jeweled crown to claim. But as for me, I'll plod along Where humble people pass the way And find my joy in simple song And common pleasures gay by day.

Fight for the glory of the great And clamor for their brief success; I know a little swinging gate That leads to lasting happiness, I would not shirk my duties here, Nor fall the purpose of my birth, But I would live from year to year And claim the lasting joys of earth.

I choose to know my children well, Where men and women nod and smile, Not over eager for men's praise, Nor over fond of pomp and style, But glad when I can play the friend, And proud when men are friends to me.

Contented that I've time to spend With any man who'er he be.

I choose to know my children well, To life my little life at home, To take from toil a resting spell, And let who will forever roam, I'll find beneath my roof tree gay The sweet and simple joys that live, And reap along the humble way All that a span of years can give.

Big Fights for Titles.

Legal Squabbles for Peerages.

John Rackstraw, a Sunderland bricklayer, is claiming the Lennox peerage and estates, with a rent-roll of some £36,000.

This is the first big claim of the kind since the war, but so lately as 1911, William Ward, a Melbourne builder, was claiming the title and estates of the Earl of Dudley. He claimed direct descent from Thomas, son of the eleventh Earl Dudley—Thomas, who was the black sheep of the family, and who became known as "the bold smuggler of Plymouth."

About the same time the great fight for the Sackville peerage was in full swing. The claimant was Ernest Henri Baptiste Sackville-West, son of the famous Spanish dancer, Pepita.

The claim failed, and three years later the claimant, out of his mind with distress at the death of his wife, shot himself.

Everyone remembers the Druce case, the great claim for the dukedom of Portland by Mr. George Hal-lambly Druce. Seldom has the public imagination been so stirred as by the amazing story of the mock funeral followed by fifty coaches, and the lead-filled coffin. A company called Druce, Ltd., was formed to purchase the claim, but in the end the shareholders were disappointed.

One of the greatest of peerage trials was connected with the Earl-dom of Anglesey. It lasted for fifteen days. The circumstances were most romantic, for Richard Alkam, the then Lord Anglesey, who was believed to be illegitimate, had kidnapped his nephew, the rightful heir, and sold him as a slave to a Virginian planter.

Although the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, the latter had no funds to prosecute his case, and the wicked earl remained in possession until his death a few years later.

SOME DAY.

Some day good sense will reign again, so let's throw up our hats; some day we'll all be sane again, our bell-fries free from hats. Some day we'll quit our foolery and buckle down to toil, cut out the rant and droolery, and make the kettle boil. Some day we'll tire of clamoring and pawing up the ground, of knocking and of hammering, of yawps and empty sound. We'll tire of all the driveling of loud wind-jamming men, and we'll go swiftly swivelling to our old jobs again. The brawny handed carpenter will pass the windmills by; his plane, when he has sharpened her, will make the shavings fly. The blacksmith blithely, gaudily, will make his bellows roar, and he will fire out bodily the strike-suggesting bore. The rows of kings embattled us and drew us from our place; the big commotion rattled us, and got us off our base. We've all been wildly capering since war received the alms; we've all been vainly vaporing, and talking through our lids. Our old time jobs are calling us; let's get to work again, or coppers will be hauling us to poor-farms in the glen.

Report of Arbitration Board.

IN REID DISPUTE.

To the representatives of the Reid-Newfoundland Company and members of the boilermakers' and blacksmiths' union of the said company:

Gentlemen.—Having been appointed at your request to arbitrate on the following questions in dispute, viz:—

- 1.—The recognition of unions.
- 2.—The classification of labor.
- 3.—The rate of wages.
- 4.—Overtime.
- 5.—Retrospective pay.

We beg to submit the following unanimous findings:—

Recognition of Unions.

This arbitration board orders that the Reid-Newfoundland Company shall:

- 1.—Recognise the right of their employees to organise themselves into labor unions for the purpose of collective bargaining, and also for the purpose of adjusting industrial differences and all minor conditions governing their employment.

- 2.—That this right, however, is not to be considered as a right to the closed shop, the present labor conditions in Newfoundland being what they are.

- 3.—That the Reid-Newfoundland Company shall not be required to negotiate except directly with their own employees or representatives of their own employees.

Classification of Labor.

This arbitration board orders a three-fold classification of labor.

Such classification of labor, however, in order to prevent unjust discrimination shall be made by duly appointed responsible representatives selected by the employees on the one hand and by the company on the other. Should such joint committees fail to arrive at a decision, the matter in dispute should be referred to an arbitration board. If, however, a permanent arbitration board be not already established such a board shall be composed as follows: One representative to be appointed by the employees of the particular department concerned, one by the company and the third to be selected by these two.

Rate of Wages.

The arbitration board has not deemed it wise to make any general change in the schedule of wages since it finds that the larger number of the Reid-Newfoundland Company employees are apparently contented with the present scale of payment, and further that said scale has only a short time to run. But in view of the fact that the board has ordered three classes of boilermakers and three classes of blacksmiths it thinks it proper to fix their rate of wages. The arbitration board therefore, orders that first class boilermakers receive 50 cents per hour; second class boilermakers receive 46 cents per hour; third class boilermakers receive 42 cents per hour; and that first class blacksmiths receive 50 cents per hour; second class blacksmiths receive 46 cents per hour; third class blacksmiths receive 40 cents per hour.

Overtime.

This arbitration board orders that in view of conditions discovered by its examination into similar industrial conditions outside of Newfoundland, and by reports received by it from labor leaders:

- (a)—That overtime at the rate of time and a half be allowed for work outside of regular hours up to midnight, and double time after midnight.

- (b)—That men called to work after regular hours shall receive double time for actual time worked.

- (c)—That with respect to holidays that time and a half be allowed on the following legal holidays:

St. Patrick's Day, Empire Day, Labor Day, Regatta Day, and all other gazetted whole holidays. Should any of the above mentioned holidays fall on a Sunday, the day proclaimed by the Governor shall be observed. Double time will be allowed for all Sundays, Christmas Day, New Year's Day and Good Friday.

From December 1st to May 1st, double time will be allowed for men working outside of regular hours at exposed work on dry docks and on ships. Men will not be laid off during regular working hours to equalize overtime made.

- (d)—Men who while working, are told to continue to work after shop hours or who are told to come back and work overtime commencing not over one hour after shop hours will not be considered to have been called for work after regular hours.

Retrospective Pay.

This arbitration board orders that the men who went out on strike shall receive retrospective pay from April 15th to date of strike.

In bringing these matters to conclusion, we wish to express our appreciation of the friendliness and reasonable spirit, which has prevailed throughout our discussions—Respectfully yours,

DOUGLAS HEMMEON, Chairman.
S. J. WHELAN, EDGAR JONES, Secretary.

Wedding Bells.

FOLEY-MERCER.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Thomas's Church, on November 18th, by Rev. C. A. Moulton, when Miss Sarah F. Mercer, daughter of Mr. Henry Mercer, Upper Island Cove, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to ex-Pte. John J. Foley, of Burin North. The bride looked charming in a dress of pale pink satin and overlaid with bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. R. G. Green. The groom, who a few months ago returned from overseas, where he had served with the Royal Nfld. Regiment, was attended by ex-Lt. Cpl. George H. Mercer, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the party drove to the home of Mrs. R. G. Green, 41 Scott Street, where tea was served and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The bride was the recipient of many costly and beautiful presents. The happy couple went out by train to Upper Island Cove to spend a few days with the parents of the bride, from there they will return to their future home in Burin North.

Vaudeville

"VOIX DE VILLE" said Jean Chardavoine, a French musician; and thus came into being three hundred and fifty years ago what to-day we call "Vaudeville".

Vaudeville is the melting pot of the dramatic and musical arts. In it nothing is out of place; it includes drama, comedy, tragedy, farce and burlesque; and every form of music from grand opera to jazz is heard upon its stage.

Every city has its favorite vaudeville house. But you—who live at a distance from the great cities—can have vaudeville right in your home, with

The Opinion of a Patient.

"I had always dreaded going into a hospital, but this has been more like home than an institution, and I shall have no fear in this respect in the future."

Operating Room, London Maternity Hospital, (operated by the Salvation Army.)

You Will Be Surprised to Find

The great number of benefits that come from a Maternity Home. It helps to cut down the number of premature births—it gives instruction to mothers in diet, regularity and cleanliness for themselves and their babies—it increases modern medical facilities—it provides a new opportunity for young women desiring to consecrate themselves to lives of sacrifice and service as maternity nurses. It will aid in putting Newfoundland on an equal footing with other communities of equal size as regards maternity facilities. It helps to protect citizens from indiscriminate charity. It will reduce the death rate. It will save hundreds of lives. It will be a permanent asset to the Dominion—and an institution to which the citizens can point with genuine pride. You will also be surprised to find—

How Close Home These Benefits Come to You.

The hospital will benefit every responsible citizen in the community,—and the benefits do not extend only to mothers and babies, poor and otherwise, but also to husbands, fathers and brothers of the patients. Here is a brief glimpse at the long list of those who will be benefitted:—
 Poor mothers and their babies, unable to pay anything at all either in their homes or in the hospital for medical and nursing care during confinement.
 Mothers and babies in modest circumstances—able to pay only in part for such care.
 Mothers and babies able to pay only actual cost of such care.
 Wives and babies of men who have served in the Military and Naval Forces.
 Mothers in good circumstances—able to pay full-hospital charges, and desiring up-to-date facilities for themselves and their babies.
 Husbands, fathers, brothers, guardians and friends of women and babies, who, at a most critical time, desire the best accommodation and treatment for those who are dear to them.
 Mothers, sisters and friends of the patients who have the burden and responsibility both of the sick mother and child in the home, and also the other cares of the household which may include husband and children, the aged, sick or infirm.
 Doctors, ministers, public officials, business men and citizens generally—to whose attention needy cases are constantly being called, and who feel the burden and anxiety of such cases until properly cared for.

Adventures of the Great Seal.

From all time the Great Seal of England, used to seal certain important Government documents, has been regarded with almost superstitious reverence. The first known was nothing more imposing than a small piece of lead attached by a silk thread to a charter of Edward the Confessor.

But now the Great Seal consists of two deep and heavy plates of silver. They fit closely into one another, and are embedded in velvet in a box about 8 inches square, on the lid of which are the royal arms in gold.

Taken apart, the silver plaques show the two sides of the seal. The obverse shows the Sovereign enthroned and surrounded by figures symbolical of the virtues; the reverse displays the Sovereign riding in state on a wonderfully-trapped horse.

Although the Lord High Chancellor may not allow the Great Seal to leave the Kingdom, it has had no lack of romantic adventures in the centuries that are gone; but none more humorous than one that befell it when in the custody of Lord Brougham.

The Chancellor had gone to Scotland for a holiday, where he was a guest of the Dowager Duchess of Bedford, and he kept his precious charge in his bedroom.

Used to Make Pancakes In!

One day the young ladies of the house-party took the Seal from the bedroom and hid it. Brougham was desperate when he discovered his loss, and did not recover peace of mind until the pretty thieves promised to lead him to it if he would consent to be blindfolded.

With his eyes bandaged he was conducted to the drawing-room, and there he discovered the Seal hidden in a box. So overjoyed was he at its recovery that he consented to the young ladies' suggestion that they should adjourn to the kitchen and celebrate the joyous event by making pancakes in the Seal.

Lord Eldon was so fearful that the Seal would be lost or stolen while in his custody that he never went to sleep without first satisfying himself that it was safe in his bedroom.

One night he was roused from his slumbers by cries of "Fire!" Jumping out of bed, he snatched up the Great Seal and, rushing into the garden, buried it deep in the middle of a flower-bed.

Recovered From Thames by Fisherman.

Next morning, however—so exciting had been the experiences of the night—he had completely forgotten in what part of the garden the emblem of Sovereignty had been hidden, and it was only after his entire household had hunted for hours that it was at last run to earth.

Once at least the Great Seal has been at the bottom of the Thames, and would be there to-day but for a lucky accident. It was when the Second James was fleeing from England and the Prince of Orange to France, in company with Sir Edward Hales.

He had intended to take the Great Seal with him, but as he was being rowed from Lambeth to Vauxhall a better idea occurred to him. He would fling the Seal into the river, and that would place it once for all out of

New Treatment That Knocks Rheumatism

75c. BOX FREE TO ANY SUFFERER

Up in Syracuse, N.Y., a treatment for rheumatism has been found that hundreds of users say is a wonder, reporting cases that seem little short of miraculous. Just a few treatments even in the very worst cases seem to accomplish wonders even after other remedies have failed entirely. It seems to neutralize the uric acid and lime salt deposits in the blood, driving all the poisonous clogging waste from the system. Soreness, pain, stiffness, swelling just seem to melt away and vanish.

The treatment first introduced by Mr. Delano is so good that its owner wants everybody who suffers from rheumatism or who has a friend so afflicted, to get a free 75c. package from him to prove just what it will do in every case before a penny is spent. Mr. Delano says: "To prove that the Delano treatment will positively overcome rheumatism, no matter how severe, stubborn, or long standing the case, and even after all other treatments have failed, I will, if you have never previously used the treatment, send you a full size 75c. package free if you will send your name and address with 10c. to help pay postage and distribution expenses to me personally."

The President's Address.

The address delivered by President Coaker to the eleventh annual convention of the Fishermen's Protective Union is remarkable in many ways.

It is only with that portion dealing with politics and Dominion affairs that the people of Newfoundland, who are not members of the Fishermen's Protective Union, are concerned.

In enumerating the appointments under the Crown, given Union candidates elected to the House of Assembly in the new Government, Mr. Coaker names Mr. W. W. Halfyard, as having been made head of the Department of the Post Office.

For a long time prior to the elections, the Reids came in for a considerable share of abuse and condemnation because of the alleged inadequateness of the railway across country to cope with existing trade conditions, and the Company was roundly censured for neglect and incapacity.

having apparently come over the spirit of his dream. In connection with railway affairs he uses but very few words. Here they are:

"The condition of the railroad calls for prompt attention, and will probably be considered (note the reservation) the coming winter. It is a difficult problem and requires considerable consideration, but I believe it is your wish to have this matter dealt with as speedily as possible."

Vastly different from the pre-election fulminations of the President.

Coakerism prevails in Newfoundland to-day, and the authority for the statement is the President. The answer of the electorate, he says, has been decisive and conclusive.

St. Andrew's Day.

St. Andrew, Apostle and Martyr, Patron Saint of Scotland, was born at Bethsaida in Galilee, and was brother to Simon Peter.

At the Majestic.

"One of the Finest" is certainly no misnomer for the picture put on at the Majestic Theatre last evening. Featuring Tom Moore—the inimitable Tom—this story is possibly the best one screened for some time.

"Ferm" Enquiry Concluded.

The Marine Court of Enquiry has at last finished its enquiry into the stranding of the s.s. Ferm. Yesterday afternoon Hon. M. P. Gibbs concluded his address on behalf of Capt. Trinderup.

The Project Launched.

Maternity Hospital Now a Live Issue.

The good ship "Maternity Hospital" was successfully launched at the Methodist College Hall last night, under most favorable auspices for a quick voyage to its destination.

The chairman then called on the Prime Minister, Hon. R. A. Squires, to address the gathering, and on rising the Hon. Mr. Squires received a cordial reception indeed.

The ladies in charge of the various tables were most attentive and ably looked after the needs of their friends. In this direction a squad of C.L.E. lads rendered valuable aid.

Table listing names and amounts: W. B. Grieve $2,500.00, Bowring Brothers $2,500.00, T. & M. Winter $2,500.00, Walter S. Monroe $2,500.00, Job Brothers $1,500.00, Ayre & Sons, Ltd. $1,500.00, Royal Stores $1,000.00, Bishop Sons & Co. $1,000.00, Joseph Sellars $1,000.00, John Browning $1,000.00, Jas. Baird, Ltd. $1,000.00, D. Munn $1,000.00, Hon. Philip Templeman $1,000.00, Total $23,500.00

Total of other sums subscribed $13,500.00

Total amount now in hand to commence drive $36,000.00

A number of other large subscriptions have been promised, and will be announced at next meeting.

The chairman then called on the Prime Minister, Hon. R. A. Squires, to address the gathering, and on rising the Hon. Mr. Squires received a cordial reception indeed.

Mr. Dunbar then explained in detail the methods of the drive which are somewhat similar to those held last summer.

The members of the various teams then got busy and a goodly sum was subscribed. The collectors commenced early this morning and so far their efforts have been highly successful.

No meeting will be held this evening, but on Monday, at 9 a.m., the teams will report at the College Hall.

A pleasing feature is the work of the war veterans to help obtain the $100,000. Our heroes never do things half-heartedly, and in this undertaking they will do their utmost.

To-morrow will be observed by the churches as Maternity Hospital Sunday, when special prayers will be offered and sermons preached.

It was inspiring as well as interesting to present last night. Many of the faces were familiar at such undertakings for not a few of those in attendance rendered valuable service in the drives last summer and to their efforts the educational and church matters greatly benefited.

It was evident that St. John's is not lacking in its desire to help along worthy objects. The Maternity Hospital is a necessity in this city, the want of it has been felt for some time and now that a concerted effort is being made to establish it there is no doubt that it will become an accomplished fact.

At 10 o'clock the singing of the National Anthem closed the proceedings.

Advent.

To-morrow, Advent Sunday, is the beginning of the ecclesiastical year in all Christian churches but the Greek.

As a church season of definite length, however, with its proper lessons, gospels and other appropriate observances, it cannot certainly be traced back to an earlier time than the latter part of the sixth century.

Poultry Show Closes.

The seventh annual poultry exhibition was brought to a close last night. His Excellency the Governor, Lady Harris, Hon. R. A. Squires, the Minister of Agriculture and Mines and the officers of the Poultry Association being present.

Train Accident.

The incoming express will not reach town before ten o'clock to-night, the delay being due to three cars and a diner leaving the rails near Cook's Brook. Two of the cars were replaced on the track last evening.

In Memoriam.

There passed from amongst us on the 25th of October, Mrs. Edmund J. Ryan, formerly known as Miss May Ryan, daughter of the late John and Ann Ryan, of Baccalieu. Deceased. Her early years and school days were lived at Carbonear and Littledale at which latter place she spent three years. The late Mrs. Ryan possessed many estimable traits of character that rendered her a general favorite and model to all of her kind. As we knew Mrs. Ryan her endeavors in the line of good were deep and sincere, and her social relations were always deemed striving to observe that happy men so rare in these days of superficial refinement, these days we might say, was a constant aim to verify a maxim so much out of date in these dangerous times of selfish zeal and friendship, and yet so socially and publicly beneficial. "In essentials, unity, in non-essentials, liberty, and in all things, charity."

The deceased lady's kindness was proverbial gracious to all, offensive to none. A community can ill afford to lose such, but the ways of Providence which so often draws good from evil are to us inscrutable, and it may be that we appreciate the good in others better when life's journey is ended than before. So much the better if the lesson is not merely passing.

"The good are taken away before the face of evil." In what a different world would we live it, instead of empty praises or criticisms of others, we would all lay to heart the above significant warning and the hint it conveys to the living, who are yet afforded the privilege of life and its opportunities to strive more than ever after the better things and for delivery from evils threatened. The deceased leaves to mourn her, a husband, at aged mother and a brother, Frank, who is the present light hope of Baccalieu, besides a large circle of other relatives and life-long friends.

Many relatives and friends, past and present, of the late Mrs. Ryan, will not forget to keep in memory the soul's great need of suffrage. May she rest in peace.—Com.

BOY SCOUTS' COLUMN.

THE MONTH.

The last month of the year 1919 will soon be upon us, and the Christmas season will be here. To all of you Scouts Christmas ought to signify a time of extra good turns, and indeed the whole spirit of Christmas is Good Turns. The Christmas spirit as typified by Dickens, is that of good turns. Let us all be the image of transfigured Scrooge.

THE NEW CENTRAL COUNCIL.
The meeting of citizens, Scoutmasters and Assistants is slated for Wednesday, the 3rd December, at 7.45 p.m. in the C.C.C. Armoury, and we hope to have a good attendance of prominent men to help us out of the rut we are in at present. All friends and supporters are cordially invited to attend by the committee in charge.

HANDBOOK FOR CANADA.
Dick's Bookstore kindly sent us over a copy of the new Canadian Official Handbook. This book is one we can safely recommend to every Scout, as it is rumored it will be adopted as our Official Handbook by the new Central Council. The whole make-up of the book is deserving of great praise. From the attractive front cover to the more attractive back cover it is the best yet. The book is filled with information of interest to every boy, whether he is a Scout or a non-Scout. It is interesting to note the changes made by the Canadians in some of the Proficiency Badges. The price of this little (?) book is very cheap when you consider all the dollars worth of information you get from it. They charge 90c. for it. Get it, everyone of you Scouts.

SCOUT NOTES.
2nd St. John's (S.B.C.)—This troop held a record meeting on Tuesday at their headquarters in the C.C.C. Armoury with only four Scouts absent without leave. The Scoutmaster inspected the troop and announced some promotions. The patrol leaders are training their own patrols.

WOLF CUBS' MEETING.
Editor of the Boy Scout Column
Dear Sir,—We had our meeting as usual this week and signed up 5 more Cubs. And after some physical drill to warm them up, I instructed them in signaling and in boxing the compass. We had about 20 minutes at leap-frog and other games. It is my intention, some time next month to have a concert, which I think will be the first Wolf Cub concert put on in St. John's, and now they will have a chance to show you what they can do. We have issued hand-books to all the boys.

Yours sincerely,
DONALD G. LEWIS, Scoutmaster.

Wedding Bells.

HARNUM—BRAKE.

A very pretty wedding took place on Thursday, Nov. 27th, when Miss Violet Harnum, of Hearts Delight, T. B., now residing at St. John's, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. John Brake, of Bonne Bay. The ceremony was performed by the Rector of St. Mary's Church, South Side. The bride, who was handsomely attired in cream silk with all over net, and a white fox fur with hat and veil to match, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, was given away by Mr. James W. Crawford, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. John Rose. The bridesmaids were Miss Maria Crawford, Miss N. Pardy, Miss M. Joy, and Miss P. Dawe, while the brides boys were Mr. Stephen Reid, and Mr. F. Pottle. After the ceremony the contracting parties motored to the bride's parents residence, 209 New Dover St., where a sumptuous feast was partaken of and the health of the bride and groom were proposed. A number of guests were present. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents, including a handsome piece of silver, a beautiful tea set from the gentlemen boarders and many other costly presents. After the wedding supper was partaken of a dance was given, which was kept up until the wee sma' hours of the morning. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Brake join in wishing them many years of wedded life.

BOUCHER—UPSHALL.

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Paul's Church, at St. John's, on Tuesday afternoon, November 24th, when Miss Hannah Boucher, daughter of Jonathan Boucher, Muesel St. Arm, and Walter Uphall, son of Mr. Nelson Uphall, The Tinkles, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. A. Shorter, R.D. The bride, who looked beautiful, dressed in sage blue silk with lovely white hat and veil, was given away by Mr. Nelson Uphall. Miss Matilda Masters acted as chief bridesmaid, the groom being supported by his brother, ex-Pte. Charles Uphall. Lily Slade, Ella Uphall, Bella Uphall and Hannah Hann acted as bridesmaids, and Llewellyn Uphall, Edward Reid, Peter Slade and Ernest Reid as brides boys. After the marriage ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the groom's father, where a delightful supper was partaken of by the many guests, and games, music and dancing kept all employed till the early hours of the morning.

Collection for Christian Brothers To-Morrow.

The annual collection for the Christian Brothers of the Roman Catholic Church takes place to-morrow at all the Masses at the Cathedral, St. Patrick's, Mount Cashel, St. Joseph's and Ignatius. The cause is a great one, and the need for liberal donations very urgent. The finances of the Order fell on perilous times during the past year, so many amounts having been given to charitable needs.

To-morrow, give freely. Remember the late Brother Holland, the late Brother Flemming, the late Brother Kennedy (and double your giving in honor of the late Brother Hurley), and Holy Cross boys do not forget Brother Brennan, but double your giving, and make Brother Ahearn's superlative worthy of the man.

Market Notes.

CODFISH.—The current price for Labrador has been fixed at $9 per quintal for shipments off the coast, though the same cure was selling in St. John's during the week at $8.50. Shore Cure Merchantable is in good demand at $12 and Madeira at $10.

COD OIL.—The foreign market shows no advance and there is an all-round disinclination to stock up. Several large shipments from output buyers came in during the week. A steady demand at $250 per ton is predicted.

PROVISIONS.—High Patent Flour is quoted at $14.50 to $15, with War Standard in poor demand, though prices have been toned down to $13.00 per barrel. Pork and Beef prices, locally, rule as follows: Ham Butt, $61; Short Mess, $60; Fat Back, $56; Boneless Beef, $38; Extra Family, $44. Sugar is on the up grade, and $20.00 per hundred pounds for American Granulated is freely spoken of in trade circles. Molasses is in good demand, though stocks are becoming low. Fancy Grocery is worth $1.10 per gallon, according to quality.

Coughs and Colds are very prevalent at present. Try Phoratore at STAFFORD'S, Theatre Hill.—oct6,19

Kearney Takes The Field!

MY MESSAGE:—
Next week begins my great Xmas Campaign based on the "KEARNEY FIRST" idea, for this Campaign is backed by months of special preparedness—honest effort—to make this

"My Victory Christmas."

I have the goods—I bought them myself—selected them myself. I have been to England's greatest markets—America's greatest manufacturers—men I know as well as I know my own customers. From these I have gotten a Xmas line that is remarkable in its completeness—in its quality.

One Man said to me—
"You have done what I could not do!"

Yes, I have done it, because I knew how. Because behind me are years of experience. Because I could rush in at the crisis; because I could evade the climax; because I am "KEARNEY FIRST!"

Next week my greatest effort begins. If you wish to get the advantage of my buying; if you want Xmas goods that English manufacturers can no longer produce—watch my announcements. Better still, come to see the goods.

I welcome competition—it will prove the effectiveness of my buying sense. I fear none. I look to the future—my "Victory Xmas."

I AM "KEARNEY FIRST."

Jewel Superstitions.

Precious Stones That Bring Good and Bad Luck

Almost from time immemorial there have been superstitions concerning precious stones. Opals, in particular, have been credited with malignant powers, and brave indeed is the woman who, even in these enlightened days, will wear one of these gems—unless she was born in October.

The most famous opal of recent times, says a writer in 'John O London's Weekly,' was owned by the Empress Josephine. This stone was called "The Burning of Troy," on account of a red, fiery light which flickered over its surface, and it has been said that it was the finest specimen of its kind ever seen. We all know the sad fate which befell the unhappy Josephine; but perhaps it was not all due to the opal.

An Unlucky Possession.

The Royal Family of Spain was at one time possessed of an opal which was supposed to have brought them bad luck, and in consequence this stone was eventually given away. The story goes that King Alfonso XII, presented an opal ring to his Queen, Mercedes, on their wedding day, and her death occurred shortly afterwards. He then gave it to his sister-in-law, the Infanta Christina, and she, too, died very soon after her acceptance of the gift. The King then wore the ring himself, and before very long he also was in his grave.

Strange to relate, there was a time when the much-maligned opal was credited with possessing occult powers for good! Its name—opal—was said to be only another name for the ophthalmus (eye-stone), and the possession of an opal was supposed to preserve the sight and brightness of the eyes. It was also once believed that the wearer of an opal was rendered invisible if he so desired.

The onyx was another precious stone once credited with evil powers, the superstitious folk of the Middle Ages asserting that any wearer of the onyx would be visited by demons and evil visions at night, and worried by lawsuits and quarrels by day. The remedy for this, however, was to wear a sard at the same time, which would neutralize the evil influence of the onyx.

Among the Brahmins the ruby was a favourite jewel, as it was supposed to possess the power of attracting all other precious stones. If any number of jewels was dropped into the sea, they said, and a ruby let down below the surface of the waves attached to a string, the other stones no matter how widely dispersed, would soon be drawn to it. The Brahmins also imagined that the ruby acted as a charm against fire.

Amber was the first precious stone made use of for the purposes of personal adornment. Homer mentions "the gold necklace hung with bits of amber" which was offered by the Phoenician trader to the Queen of Syria, and Nero, in one of his badly-composed verses to Poppaea's hair, described it as of an "amber" shade. The Romans valued amber highly, not alone for its beauty, but also for the medicinal qualities which they believed it to contain. In their opinion, an amulet of amber, worn round the neck, was an infallible cure for ague or chills; ground up with honey and rose-oil, amber was a specific for deafness, and ground with honey a remedy for defective sight.

The carnelian—or, as it was called in ancient times, sard—was, according to Pliny, so named after the place Sardis, where it was discovered. This theory is probably incorrect, however, as it is far more likely that its name is derived from the Persian word "sard," which means yellowish red. The modern name, carnelian, is supposed to be derived from "carni," meaning raw flesh. Many years ago this stone was credited with the power of curing tumours, and all wounds made by iron. It was also imagined to be an unfailing remedy for the staunching of hemorrhages, and to this day, in some parts of Italy, rings cut from the carnelian are used to cure bleeding of the nose.

Pearls as Health Barometers.

The ancient Hebrews held that the possession of an emerald invariably brought bad luck to its owner, while another of their quaint superstitions concerning it was that if a serpent fixed its eyes upon an emerald it became blind. Both jade and the amethyst were considered by the ancients to be lucky, the old Greeks and Romans believing that wine drunk out of an amethyst cup would not intoxicate.

As regards pearls, there is a superstition even to-day to the effect that their colour varies according to the physical condition of the wearer. A necklace of pearls worn around the throat of a woman in good health will, it is said, always retain its purity of colouring, but if once the wearer falls in health the pearls immediately become dull and lose all their milky whiteness and lustre. Curiously enough, there is much the same superstition concerning the turquoise, and among the ancient Macedonians the belief prevailed that, if anyone wearing a turquoise at any time had a fall, the stone itself cracked and, by some strange magical power, warded off any injury that he might otherwise have sustained.—Tit-Bits.

What Sheffield Owes to Steel.

THE ANCIENT CRAFT OF THE CUTLERS.

When, recently, the Premier went to Sheffield as guest of the Cutlers' Company of that city, he was merely conforming to an old custom which decrees that a member of the Government in power shall attend the cutlers' annual feast.

Incidentally, it is an unwritten law of the Company that the visiting Minister's speech should deal with trade matters, and not with politics; hence Mr. Lloyd George's pronouncement regarding the brighter industrial outlook.

Precisely how long Sheffield has been identified with the cutlery trade is not easy to say. Historians affirm that products of the Sheffield cutlers' art were forthcoming as long ago as the time of Chaucer—the fourteenth century.

At any rate, there is no doubt that the trade is one of considerable antiquity, and by it Sheffield has grown from a straggling village to be one of the greatest steel and cutlery-producing centres of the world.

The history of the Company of Cutlers in Hallamshire—as that part of Yorkshire was at one time known—is rooted almost as deeply in the past, although it would seem that the Company was not placed on a firm footing until 1624, whence it has steadily risen to its existing place of importance among the guilds of this country.

The office of Master Cutler of Sheffield is one of the most coveted positions in the North. In order of precedence among the city dignitaries it ranks next to that of Lord Mayor, and the high repute in which the office is held has always attracted men of the highest standing in Sheffield business circles.

Romance of Mark Firth.

Among the Masters Cutler there have been not a few men of humble birth who have found fame and fortune in their native city. Such a one was Mark Firth, whose life-story is interwoven with the romance of a huge business.

Firth was the son of a working man, a smelter with the old firm of Anderson. He left school, and went to work with the firm at a pound a week. On being refused a rise, he determined to start in business for himself. There were struggles and bitterly hard times ahead, but in the end perseverance triumphed and Mark Firth died worth many thousands of pounds. In his life-time he founded almshouses, gave his city a forty-acre park, and endowed the college which has since developed into Sheffield's University.

The Cutlers' Feasts have taken place annually, almost without omission, since 1648. Cutlers' Hall, one of the three principal buildings in the city, is the scene of these celebrations, at which the Master Cutler presides, attended by the officers and fellows of the Company and many important guests.

The Master Cutler himself retains the chair of the Company by a series of stages. In the first place, he is chosen by the Company to be an assistant or ordinary member. Then he becomes a Searcher (the title formerly bestowed on those whose business it was to search for goods that did not conform to the rules of the Company); next, a Junior Warden, then a Senior Warden, and in the following year Master Cutler, unless, by paying a substantial fine, he seeks to be relieved of the responsibilities of the office, the financial obligations of which are extremely heavy. This year's Master Cutler is Lieut. Colonel H. K. Stephenson, D.S.O., M.P.

That Sheffield cutlery is pre-eminent in the world is due in no small measure to the efforts of this ancient guild in the interests of its members. In the early days of the trade a great deal of piracy, in con-

Another Soldier With a Complaint.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Allow me space in your valuable paper to ask why the Civil Re-Establishment Committee is so backward in looking after the returned man. Speaking from my own experience, I consider I have been treated anything but fair. For the last eighteen months I have been continually applying for a course, and have been turned down every time. The last course I applied for I had an answer back saying that my application was considered at a meeting of the Civil Re-Establishment Committee and the committee concluded that my disability was not of such a serious nature as to prevent me from continuing my former occupation. But I would like to tell the committee what they made such a statement as that they are a long way out, and I defy any man on the committee to tell me that I am fit to continue my former occupation. If they say so they don't know what they are talking about. There is one question I would like to ask the committee, and that is, why should I be granted a pension from the Medical Board of ten dollars a month if I am fit to continue my former occupation? Is it charity money they give me? If so they ought to be ashamed of themselves, because I consider if I (or any other man) am fit for a pension, then I say by all means that I am fit for a course, and if I am not fit for a course then why am I granted a pension? I say that pensions should go to the men who are minus a leg or arm, and not to be given for charity. When a man applies for a course after his papers are filled out, he has to be examined by a doctor. I know Dr. O'Reilly examined me or at least thought he did, and thought to himself, well, he is looking good so he must be feeling good. But I would prefer to have Dr. Furneaux the vet. examine me. He at least would give me a thorough examination. It all goes to show something must be wrong if there is three doctors on a medical board, such as there was on the last board. Dr. Paterson, Dr. Tall, sr., and Dr. Duncan, I think, were the three medical men who examined me last. Now then previous to that examination, I was receiving eight dollars a month, and the last medical test I had it was increased to ten. Now then, why was I granted ten dollars a month from these three doctors as a pension, and turned down by Dr. O'Reilly and the Civil Re-Establishment Committee as to getting a course? You have to fight so hard to get a course that one would think the committee were paying it out of their own pocket. Then again, there is a day school for the education of returned soldiers and sailors. Take up the daily papers and you will read that any returned soldier or sailor is entitled to free admission to the day school, and when application is made the same thing applies as to other courses. You must have your papers filled out; then be examined by Dr. O'Reilly or Dr. Parsons, and if they feel like giving you a course then you get it; if they don't, you won't. People talk about lack of education in Newfoundland; no wonder. If the merchants on Water Street or any other street can't find employment for returned men, why not the Civil Re-Establishment Committee get busy and give every man that wishes to embrace it the chance of a course at the day school. Now the winter is coming on, and hundreds of returned men are walking around and can't get anything to do, and still we have a school here just for a few. With all due respect to those who are getting courses, I say go right in it, boys; you have to go some to get all you deserve. But it isn't fair to have young men walking around when they can be given a course at school to enable them to get ahead in life. But it's like everything else in Newfoundland, when you're down they keep you down. I suggest the G.W.V.A. should call together all returned soldiers and sailors, whether members or not members of the association, and fight shoulder to shoulder, and see that something be done, either for employment or education for all, and the sooner the better, as it seems there are only a half dozen or so running the whole show. We may have a big job to get our rights by fighting for them, but we will never get them by keeping quiet. For the past year or two the cry was, P. T. McGrath won't give us the course, but he is out of it now, so we will expect something better. But I doubt if P. T. was the only one that prevented us. There were others.

I have come to a close now, Mr. Editor; thanking you for your valuable space, and trusting something will be done in the matter, I remain, Yours truly,
P. KEEFER,

Familiar Phrases.

HOW THEY ORIGINATED.
The expression "Running the gauntlet" is really a corruption of the phrase "Running the Ghent-race." Ghent, of course, is the famous Flanders town; and here, in days gone by, a military punishment was devised which gave rise to this term. The defaulter's regiment was drawn up in two ranks, facing each other, each soldier present being provided with a cane. Down this human lane the delinquent, stripped to the waist, was compelled to run, receiving his progress a smart cut from each of his comrades.

In the case of the Navy, in which at one time a similar punishment obtained, short lengths of rope took the place of canes.

Paying on the Nall.
"Paying on the nall" is a term often used in these profiteering days, although few of those who use it could say whence it came. The explanation, however, is fairly simple. The counters of old-time shops were frequently studded with brass nails; hence the phrase in question, denoting of course, a cash transaction.

The quaint and oft-used "it-for-that" is merely a corruption of "this-for-that," while to "sleep like a top" is believed to have been derived from the Italian word topo, meaning a mouse. As the word embraced all the mouse species, including the dormouse—which sleeps through the winter—it is generally accepted that the phrase owes its origin to this source.

Crocodile's Tears.
The expression "run amok" is in almost daily use, and yet probably not one person in a thousand knows its rather obscure origin.

It appears that once upon a time certain South Sea Islanders were wont, after gambling away their possessions, to drown their troubles in drink and opium. In this condition they ran wild, and, at the same time, not infrequently resorted to the use of the lance or muck. Hence the term "to run amok," which we use to-day.

Another common phrase, "crocodile's tears," is derived from a purely legendary source. A seventeenth-century dictionary has it that "the crocodile is an harmful beast . . . hatched of an egg and groweth unto a wonderful greatness. He will weep over a man's head after he hath devoured the body, and then will eat up the head also."

Therefore the term "crocodile's tears" is applied to sorrow that is feigned, or, as the same quaint dictionary has it, "to tears that are spent with the intent to deceive."

And when we declare our intention of doing or getting a thing done "by hook or by crook" we are—in most cases unwittingly—recalling the names of two eminent lawyers of the time of Charles I. Messrs. Hooke and Crooke, who, it seems, were so celebrated in their day that it was frequently said that the only way to win a difficult case was "by Hooke or by Crooke."

King George in Disguise.

OFFERING HIS MAJESTY A JOB.
From time to time all Royalties like to shake off the trammels of the rigid ceremonial and etiquette that continually surround them and see and enjoy life as ordinary mortals.

One of King George's first experiences in disguise was when as Prince of Wales he went at night to visit a goods yard at one of the big London railway termini. His Majesty was accompanied by the late Sir Arthur Ellis; both were roughly clad, and presented the appearance of a couple of good-class working men.

This incident happened at the end of November, and it so chanced that on this particular night the railway company was engaging some temporary hands to deal with the Christmas goods traffic. There was a group of about thirty men assembled near where the Prince of Wales stood as a railway official took their names and addresses; the official, when he had passed the Prince and his companion, looked sharply at them and said: "You look a likely couple for this job. Where were you last employed?" "Oh! answered the Prince, laughingly, "both of us are in jobs. We came here only because we expected to see a friend."

In the Pit of a London Theatre.
The official looked suspiciously at them for a few moments, but said nothing, and passed on. He had no idea, of course, of the identity of the two men he had spoken to. He learnt it later from a railway inspector who knew of the Prince's visit to the yard that night. "Well," said the official, "I was on the point of turning them out of the yard. I'm glad I didn't now."

As Prince of Wales the King visited Paris incognito on several occasions in company with Queen Mary. During one of these visits their Majesties purchased some old coloured prints at the shop of a famous dealer, but when it came to paying for them the King made the discovery that he had only half a sovereign with him, and the Queen had no money.

For a moment their Majesties were nonplussed. They did not wish to disclose their identity, and they wanted to take the prints with them. At the juncture the owner of the shop came

The Sympathetic Game.

By P. O'D.
(In the Imperial Life-Guard.)

If at tennis you drive a ball into the net or slug it out beyond the court—occasionally in moments of recklessness we have driven it upon a neighboring house—your opponent displays no particular sympathy over the mishap. Neither does your partner. In fact, we have known nice girls with whom we have been paired glare at us on such occasions in a way—well, in a way in which no nice girl would glare at anyone but her husband. The same applies to baseball, only much more so. The fielder who muffs a fly, the man on second who misses a pick-up, neither of them gets any sympathy—certainly not from their team-mates. And the manager!—one's imagination is really appalled as to what the manager might be led to say on the unfortunate player in the first wild rush of indignant rhetoric. This least he would suggest would be that the bone-head should get a job in the afterworld, where, after he has been hit with a red-hot bat, and the umpire wears horns and a spiked tail.

But golf is different. Golf is the one really sympathetic game. When one hits a drive intended to go at least three hundred yards, only to have the ball glance off the toe of the club into the creek; when the approach shot which should have sped to the flag like a laden honey bee to the door of the hive, picks out a swamp or a clump of bushes to crawl into and die; when the two-foot putt grows tired and quits just on the edge of the hole; when any one of the forty thousand possible calamities of golf occurs, one hears nothing but expressions of kindly regret—except, of course, the expressions one uses one's self. These are apt to be sulphuric and of a nature to raise a blush on the cheek of a stevedore. But everyone else is sorry—deeply and soothingly sorry. The social atmosphere becomes suddenly filled with yearning and with love.

"Rotten luck, old man," says your opponent, doing his best to look as though he hated to think the stroke would be counted against you, and nothing but the inexorable rules of the game could compel him to take advantage of your mishap. Then he mildly suggests that you must have taken your eye off the ball at the critical moment. He says it in a tone which subtly conveys the impression that taking one's eye off the ball is the fault to which men of alert mind are particularly liable. It is the bright and winged spirits which are apt in their eagerness to let their vision flash too swiftly to the goal.

Incidentally, what is it that a ball does the moment you take your eye off it? A fraction of a second before you look up, the club-head is swinging down upon the pathetic pliff with deadly precision. Then you shift your gaze, and in that infinitesimal period of time the ball manages to climb down off the tee or slip over and hide in an ant-hole. How does it manage to do it? And how does it contrive to get back again just as your eye falls upon it again, and the long black anathemas come thundering down upon its scared and dented head? This is a thing we have never been able to understand.

Anyway, that is what your opponent usually suggests as the explanation of the dismal fiasco you have made of the shot. Or sometimes he assures you that you had a rotten "lie," and intimates that Harry Verdon or Chick Evans could hardly get a ball out of a hole like that.

All this is very refreshing. It is balm to one's tortured spirit. But it has its disadvantages. It is apt to be very debilitating. A fellow begins to get the idea that he is a victim of fate, and a certain soggy soul. Instead of fixing his eye on the ball with the ferocious scowl of Trotsky looking at a man in evening dress, instead of swinging on it like a circus tent-pegger, he lapses into the languorous fatalism of a tired yogi. One must be resigned to the stern decrees of destiny. Wherefore should one struggle against the inexorable laws of nature? He even ceases to swear, and after that, of course, his game goes completely to the damnation bow-wow. When a golfer doesn't take interest enough in it to fuss, there is nothing left but to lend him home to the club-house verandah and get one of the lady members to lend him her knitting.

We went out with one of those sympathetic fellows the other day, and—well, we know whereof we speak. He ruined our game. And it started so auspiciously, too. Our first drive was a beauty. We had as usual approached the club-house in an agony of dread. We knew that the sixty-seven ladies sitting near it would stop their chatter just as we got ready to swing, and that a soul-shattering silence would descend upon the place. We knew that our knees would shake, and that our stare would become glassy. But fortunately it was a fixed stare—fixed on the ball—and our guardian angel guided the club for once. We caught the ball a splendid wallop and pathetic golfer. What's more, if we catch our opponent trying to sympathize with us on any pretext whatsoever, it is our firm intention to bash him on the coco with a cleft.

The kind of man we intend to play with is some red-necked fellow with hairy hands, who, when we miss a shot, will turn to us with a scowl and say: "Why the devil ever told you you could play golf, you poor dog-fak? Why don't you eat some meat and get a little pep into you? If I had an eye like yours, I'd . . ." Then we will get really mad and play the game of our life.

Why the Kaiser

WANTED TO GET TO LONDON—SECRETS OF A BANK'S STRONG-ROOM.

Lying in a strongroom of a London bank or safe deposit, are seven large steel-bound boxes, which the ex-Kaiser would give a big sum of money to possess. As is well known, the great banking houses of London have in their possession numerous deed-boxes containing securities that have laid unclaimed for years. In a great number of cases the depositor has died, leaving no trace behind of the deed-boxes that he had carefully stowed away in his banker's strong-room; and without the authority of the safe custody receipt voucher, nobody is allowed to interfere with the deposits that lay in the bank's vaults.

These seven deed-boxes are said to contain the manuscripts of the third and most important volume of the autobiographical memoirs of Prince Bismarck, together with a valuable collection of confidential papers and correspondence. They also contain several hundred letters written by the ex-Kaiser to the Iron Chancellor, and reports of various plots and intrigues at Vienna in which the Kaiser was mixed up.

Bismarck intended to publish the third volume of his memoirs during his lifetime, but the Kaiser, greatly alarmed by the tone of his first two volumes, threatened him with dire penalties. Bismarck managed, therefore, to smuggle the manuscripts of the third volume, and his most precious papers, out of the country over to England in order to save himself from the Kaiser's wrath.

But it is very evident that the Kaiser knew of what had happened to the documents, for frequently during his reign he made efforts to recover them. It is known that during the war he offered a big reward to the airman who succeeded in dropping a bomb on the bank where they were deposited.

Towns Killed by Strikes.

London suffered severely during the recent railway strike, as did most other places; but luckily the dispute did not last long enough to leave behind it any permanent ill effects.

Not infrequently, however, it has happened that towns have been seriously crippled, or even wiped out of existence, as a result of labour wars.

For example, the metropolis of the cotton industry of the North is, of course, Manchester. It ought by rights, however, to be Preston, for up till 1853 this town was easily first as regards the number of its spinning mills and output.

But in the early part of the year above mentioned owing to a wages dispute between employers and employed, the whole of the mills there shut down, and remained closed for thirty-six weeks.

The result was that Preston was for the time being ruined. Grass grew in the once busy streets. Two-thirds of the shopkeepers had to put up their shutters. And when the long-drawn-out dispute was at length brought to an end, and business was resumed, Preston found, to its dismay, that Manchester had usurped its place as England's premier cotton-spinning town.

A Three Years' Dispute.

In 1831, again, Clitheroe elected to emulate Preston's bad example. The Tents of the strike are felt there to this day.

The dispute kept the mills closed for twenty-five weeks, and the result, misery and distress were appalling, to say nothing of the loss of trade, the latter being by far the most serious outcome of the unfortunate affair. In fact, it was asserted at the time that Clitheroe had thrown away its chance of becoming a second Blackburn.

When this is taken into account, it is certain that Wakefield, once the centre of the woollen industry, similarly threw away its chances in favour of Leeds. The old-time spinners there set their faces against the introduction of machinery. Strike succeeded strike. The town got into bad odour amongst the mill-owners, so much so that Titus Salt, who had originally fixed upon it as the site for his bure factories, built them elsewhere; and in the end, Leeds—which welcomed the new machinery—forged ahead and Wakefield decayed.

The pretty little Welsh village of Bethesda might have been a large and prosperous town by now, but for the strike of the quarriesmen employed in Lord Penrhyn's slate quarries there. This most regrettable labour dispute broke out in 1890, and lasted for three

How to Test Eggs.

A USEFUL HOME HINT.

The international committee of experts which has recently been sitting in London to decide what a "new-laid" egg is has not been able to give a definition. The object of the committee was to standardise eggs all over the world, but they have failed because the idea of what a fresh egg is varies so much in different countries.

There is no need, however, why the ordinary British housewife should not be able to tell the age of an egg without actually cracking it. All that is required is a glass of water.

If the egg is perfectly fresh it will remain resting in a horizontal position on the bottom of the glass. If not quite fresh it will remain with the larger end raised higher than the small. The higher the larger end of the egg, the older the egg. A three-months-old egg, for example, rests vertical, while if it is one of those unfortunate eggs which have been too long in the world it just floats.

The reason for this is that the older an egg is the more the inside dries up and creates a big space in the large end of the egg, thus making it more and more capable of floating.

"Reg'lar Fellers"

Mechanic to Millionaire.

There is more than a little romance in the life story of Henry Ford, the man who made his millions out of motor cars.

Few men have had the luck or the good fortune to become millionaires in sixteen years, yet this is what Henry Ford succeeded in doing.

Sixteen years ago he was just an ordinary mechanic, working for a few dollars a week like thousands of others. To-day he employs many thousands of other mechanics.

Like all big men, Ford had a knack of taking pains with any work that he had in hand; he worked hard and developed his ideas.

As a lad he worked on a farm during the summer and in factories during the winter, earning a small wage. Even then it was evident that he had a natural inborn genius for mechanical work.

He tried many jobs without finding an outlet for his mechanical genius, for he did not believe in sticking to a job when he could see no prospects ahead. Then, when still a very young man working in an engineering shop, he heard that a foreman's job was vacant. He immediately applied for the job. The manager thought him too young, and said so. But Ford had ideas of labor-saving, and told the manager about them. The result was that he eventually got the job, and within three months his salary was doubled.

Working Fourteen Hours a Day.

Always thinking, always planning, he spent his spare time in experimenting. The motor car was then in its infancy. Ford knew that the world at large would soon want cheap cars, so he began to plan and experiment.

At last, after years of hard thinking and working, he succeeded in building a model car. This, however, used up practically all the money he had saved, and he consequently found himself without the capital to put his car on the market. His struggle now was to find somebody who would be willing to finance him. For years he searched, but the big capitalists would not look at Ford or his car. However, when he was almost despairing he came across a not very wealthy man who furnished him with some capital.

With this Ford opened a small workshop and started making cars. As fast as he could make them, he sold them. In those days he worked fourteen hours a day and more. Then that small workshop began to grow until, at the present time, the Ford factories are the largest of their kind in the world.

To-day, Henry Ford, it is said, enjoys the respect of all his workmen. He will, even now, find time to work with his men in his factories, and chat with them. There is no "side" about him. He still works hard, and may be found experimenting in his own private shop almost any morning before breakfast.

Not Like Englishmen.

The attack made by a crowd of Londoners on "Pussyfoot" Johnson, the American Prohibition leader, which has resulted apparently in the loss of an eye, is not in accord with English traditions, or in accord with the character which Englishmen believe themselves to possess.

Freedom of speech and fair play are mottoes constantly on the English tongue, and no matter what the case may be, so long as it is not subversive of morals, religion or the social order, its advocate has a right to a hearing, according to a much cherished English belief.

Many, many years ago, a very prominent citizen of the United Kingdom, a good and true man, crossed the Atlantic to America and was given a most warm and courteous welcome. His name was Father Matthew, and the "Boston Post" thus refers to the two cases:

File for Shame!

An English mob pelted "Pussyfoot" Johnson with bags of flour and broke up his meeting. Johnson is the American teetotal agitator who went over from this country to help make the United Kingdom a "dry" place.

It was hardly a nice return for the way this country welcomed the great temperance apostle of the Kingdom, Theobald Matthew, the last century, at a period when New England rum sailed the seas, and when whiskey was almost as common a beverage as coffee was.

To preach total abstinence in those days required a brave teacher. Father Matthew's tour in this country was a continuous triumph. Americans heard him courteously. In Boston where the smoke of many distilleries chimneys clouded the sky, he received a chilly reception in some quarters; but it was because of his slavery views, and not on account of his war on the Demon Rum.

Reciprocity, if not hospitality seems to entitle Mr. Johnson to at least a respectful hearing. The publisher of to-day doesn't love his job and stout any more passionately than the Yankee of Father Matthew's day loved his toddy.—Acadian Recorder, Nov. 22nd.

PYORRHEA.

Of all the poison taken into the blood, the germs and pus contributed by diseased gums (Pyorrhoea) are the most destructive to the human system. If every red blood cell is forced to fight against numbers of germs to the cell, the blood cannot attend to the building up of the body, and if allowed to continue the system is bound to break down, and eventually you are an invalid. Kidney, stomach, heart trouble, rheumatism and many other diseases are brought on by diseased gums and teeth.
