DR. P. D. McLEOD IS NOT GUILTY

Jury in the Famous Boston Dress Suit Case Trial Acquitted Him This Morning.

RESULT REACHED LAST NIGHT.

Hunt and Crawford Pronounced Guilty and Sentenced to "Not Less Than Six and Not More Than Seven Years Each"—Verdict Was Hardly Expected Even by Dr. McLeod's Friends.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—A verdict of not guilty was reported in the superior court today in the case of Dr. Percy D. McLeod, charged with being an accessory after the fact to the illegal operation which resulted in the death of Susan Geary, the victim in the suit case tragedy with concealing the crime. The prisoner was discharged. The case was given to the jury at 4.45 p. m. yesterday, and a conclusion was reached at 10.15. In accordance with the instructions of Judge Stevens the verdict was sealed, and was reported when court opened today. William E. Hunt and Lewis W. Crawford, who pleaded guilty several days ago to the charge of being accessories after the fact to the illegal operation, were then brought into court, and each was sentenced to not less than six years nor more than seven years in state prison. Judge Stevens expressed regret that the public statistics reflected him from making the penalty heavier. (See also page 9).

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN TALKS

Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia, passed through the city at noon on his private car attached to the Atlantic express. To a Times man Sir Frederick said he was not on any official business, but was simply going home to Canaan, N. S., with his family. Asked regarding his scheme of military drill for the schools, he said he had been talking the matter over with his colleagues but no definite scheme had been considered as yet. In reply to a question as to whether he intended introducing any new militia bill in the house next session he said he had none to submit, as the matter had been fully covered in the recent despatch that cruisers would be purchased by the Canadian government, he said that the bill had probably originated in the brain of some newspaper man, though he added as an afterthought that St. John journalists would not do such things. Regarding the vacant senatorship for New Brunswick he said he knew nothing, as that was usually in the hands of the New Brunswick minister and the premier.

DESPAIR GOADED MIN YONG WHAL TO SELF-DESTRUCTION

Cousin of Late Queen of Korea and Special Envoy to Victoria's Jubilee Took His Life at Servant's House. Realizing the hopelessness of his cause, Min Yong Whal went early this morning to the house of an old retainer and committed suicide. He was a special envoy from Korea to Queen Victoria's Jubilee and the coronation of Emperor Nicholas II of Russia. He was also formerly Japanese minister to the United States, once editing Chin Poon Yee, when the latter was transferred to Hawaii. Within the last few days Min Yong Whal headed a body of 200 others who gathered first at the residence and later at the scene court to protest against the Japanese government. The emperor ordered them to leave both places and disperse.

DR. E. A. PRESTON AND HOWARD D. CAMP ARE BROUGHT INTO COURT

They Appeared Before Police Magistrate This Morning, and Were Remanded Until After the Inquest—Body of Unfortunate Clarke Girl Interred—The Jennings Case in West End.

Dr. Preston spent last night in a very restless manner, as he says that the bed-bugs in his cell were very annoying, and kept him awake during the greater part of the night. The doctor also complained, it is understood, that his cell was damp and cold. Bed clothing and a dressing gown were brought to him from his home, and he was made more comfortable. On an order from the court this morning, both Dr. Preston and Howard D. Camp were brought into court and occupied seats on the prisoners' bench. The doctor, who seemed quite composed, was well dressed, having a white bow necktie on, black clothes, a heavy black overcoat, and patent leather boots, while in his hand he carried a silk hat. Although the police book states that the prisoner's age is 37 years, the doctor's hair is very white. Howard D. Camp, the other prisoner in the case, was well dressed and very much composed. He sat on the bench some distance from Dr. Preston, who, when he arrived in court, talked privately with his counsel, Merrill & Gerow. When Judge Ritchie called out the name, Edward A. Preston, the doctor stood up. The judge said that he would simply read the charge, which stated that the prisoner was charged with using means with intent to procure an abortion. The name, Howard D. Camp, was then called out and the charge read to the effect that the prisoner was charged with counselling means used with intent to procure an abortion. Both prisoners then sat down, and the court remanded them, which means that they can be detained in the jail without being brought into court until Wednesday morning. The court's object of remand is to await the result of the coroner's inquest. Dr. A. W. Macrae, who represents Howard D. Camp, was in court, and asked the court about bail for the doctor. Judge Ritchie stated that bail would not be considered in either case until after the coroner's inquest. Scott E. Merrill asked if the remand did not mean that the prisoners would be detained in the jail, and he was informed that anyone placing them in the cell again would be liable for damages, he has remanded them to jail. There were only about twelve in court to speculate. Miss Clarke's Funeral The funeral of Edith Clarke took place this morning at 10.30 o'clock from the residence of her parents, Adelaide street. The last and final service was performed by Rev. R. P. McKim, who officiated both at the funeral and at the interment, which was made in Cedar Hill. Rev. R. P. McKim, when asked by the Times with reference to further developments in the case, declined absolutely to discuss the matter, saying, "I have said all I had to say to satisfy the inquest."

FIRE TODAY IN YORK MILL Much Damage Done by Smoke and Water But Blaze Was Slight.

A fire in the York Cotton Mill, near Courtenay Bay, at noon today, caused some excitement and not a little uneasiness for awhile. The firemen who were summoned quickly subdued the blaze, though considerable damage was done by water. The fire started in the mill room, on the top floor of the building from an overhead bearing. The oil from the bearing, which had become overheated, fell on the machinery and the fire spread along the machinery and on to the roof, causing a dense smoke, which made the blaze a difficult one for the firemen to get at. The fire, however, was put out without much damage, but the immense quantities of water which were poured in did considerable damage, especially on the second floor. The Salvage Corps did good work and covered up much of the stock, but there was a lot of the goods damaged nevertheless. Manager J. B. Cadell said the fire would not interfere with the mill's work in any way, as they had a good supply of yarn stored, which they would use to work this afternoon to get the mill going. He said that the fire was not so bad as what their loss would be. A NARROW ESCAPE Mrs. Hazen Steeves Might Have Been Burned to Death This Morning. Mrs. Hazen Steeves, of Coverdale, narrowly escaped being burned to death this morning in W. S. Cody's house on Main street, North End. About eleven o'clock Mrs. Steeves went to the kitchen to burn a newspaper. In putting it into the stove she pushed it down on the coals in order to make room for the cover, when it suddenly took fire, the flames catching her flannel waist, running up her right arm across, in about half a minute she was screaming "My God, I'm on fire! I'm on fire! I'm on fire!" Mrs. Cody instantly smothered the flames and her guest escaped without any serious injury.

POWERS SELECTED UNWISE THE FOR THE ULTIMATUM

Diplomatic Opinion That Turkish Situation is Much More Serious Than Generally Believed—Turkey Reported to Be Willing to Fight. CONSTANTINOPLE, Wednesday, Nov. 29.—(Delayed transmission)—Speaking to the Associated Press today, a prominent diplomat said: "The people of America or the people of Europe do not realize the seriousness of the present situation. The tension between the Sultan and the powers is growing daily and the general feeling of uneasiness is increasing, though there is probably no room for anxiety so far as the safety of foreigners is concerned, especially in the capital. The powers could not have chosen a worse time than the present for their ultimatum. They might as well send an ultimatum to the Pope during holy week as to expect the Sultan to consent, without a moment's delay, to the terms of the ultimatum. The Sultan and his ministers are now engaged daily from 3 o'clock in the afternoon in listening to fanatical discourses by the Mullas, (or priests) who dwell on the past greatness of the empire in a manner which undoubtedly inspires their audience with the impossibility, certainly with the undesirability of yielding to the powers. "These performances will soon be over, however, when matters will probably assume a more sane and normal course, but there is no doubt in my mind that the Sultan will, on this occasion, much prefer to fight, if he is content enough to see certain terms in the possession of the powers rather than see his hold on the last of his European possessions weakened. "This feeling naturally is shared to a certain extent by the higher army authorities, who would be very much distressed to see Turkey's territory ceded, or anything equivalent to such a concession, without a struggle. "Should it be reduced to a question between Turkey and Bulgaria, Rumania or Greece, or between Turkey and all three, Turkey, most assuredly, would be found willing to fight. She has between 300,000 and 400,000 men in European Turkey today and she could easily and quickly concentrate 600,000 there. Although Bulgaria has a well-trilled and well-equipped army, Turkey's great numerical superiority would count for much. "Turkey clearly is eager to fight on this matter with the bordering countries and every day that passes without witnessing a settlement of the present difficulties makes it increasingly harder for either the Sultan or the powers to give in. "American interests in Macedonia are somewhat inconsiderable. With the exception of a few scattered missionary establishments, they hardly extend beyond Salonica and Dele-Agach. "At the great reception, Nov. 28, on the occasion of the festival of Bairam, the foreign diplomats were not permitted to occupy the usual seats, but were assigned to others from which they could see nothing. As a consequence most of the diplomats, including Mr. Leishman, the American minister, left the hall of audience. According to reliable reports, there have been nine hundred political murders in Macedonia during the last eleven months.

CORPSE FOUND IN THE HARBOR TODAY

An Unidentified Body Taken From the Mud Flats in the Rear of Carpenter's Store.

FOUND BY A LAD THIS MORNING.

Judging From His Dress and Appearance He Was Evidently a Laborer or a Sailor—Thought to be One of Laborers Brought From Montreal—Mrs. Costigan Tells of a Man Who Called on Her.

The residents and merchants of Mill street and vicinity were startled this morning when the dead body of a man was discovered on the mud flats back of Carpenter's meat store. The man's name is unknown, but the supposition is that he is one of the lot of laborers brought here from Montreal during the recent trouble between the longshoremen and steamship people. Dr. Roberts after viewing the body ordered its removal to the morgue on King street east, where it at present rests. The body was discovered about half-past eight by a boy named Leonard Dwyer, who happened to see it while he was in the alleyway between Carpenter's store and the Real Estate Postoffice. He immediately notified Thos. Armstrong, who was in that vicinity at the time, and through him word was telephoned to the police. Young Armstrong then went down by means of a ladder and found the man lying face downward in the mud, the lower portion of the body resting in the outlet of a sewer. His hands were doubled under him, and his face was half buried in the mud. The body was frozen almost stiff. Sergeant Kilpatrick and Officer Ward answered the summons for police, and the sergeant and young Armstrong carried the body over the mud, a distance of about 50 feet, to an opening alongside of Carpenter's barn, from which it was hoisted by means of a rope and placed in the bath until the arrival of the coroner. Many people viewed the corpse but were unable to identify it, though some men said they had seen the man about Water street a few days ago, and were of the opinion he was one of the men that came from Montreal; others thought it might be a sailor. The man was dressed in a suit of blue overalls and jumper, with the suspenders of the jumper, and wore a pair of boots pretty well worn. He is of medium height and appears to be about 35 or 40 years of age. He has black hair and a long moustache. Coroner Roberts, after viewing the body, ordered it removed to the morgue. There are many conjectures as to how the man came to his death, some concluding that he fell over the wharf in connection with the fire, and that the body was washed there, and some are of the opinion he might have fallen over from the region of Carpenter's barn. Again there is the contention that he might have fallen from a boat, or that he fell over from some other portion of the waterfront and the body washed in there. Some are also inclined to think that the man may have climbed down on the mud when the tide was out or have fallen down in endeavoring to find his way out while in an intoxicated condition, had fallen and strangled himself. The cramped position of the body was found would seem to suggest the latter. There did not seem to be any evidence of foul play, but a post mortem examination will be made and an inquest may be held. Dr. Roberts had not decided whether an inquest would be held or not. Mrs. Costigan's Story Mrs. Costigan of North street informed the police today that a man whose description compared pretty closely with that of the body found, the only difference being that he wore an overcoat, called at her house Thursday. She described the man as being of medium height, sandy hair, light moustache, wore dark overalls, dark outer and light inner shirt, the latter being of a greyish color and having a fine striped pattern. A few grams of wheat were found in the pockets of the clothes found on the body, which would seem to indicate that the man had worked about the elevators or on the steamers. Mrs. Costigan added that the man after being some time in her house ran out calling "Nelle," and seemed to be mentally distressed. This happened day before yesterday. "Footprints could be seen in the mud leading from a position near the boat-house in the rear of McDermid's shed almost to the spot where the body was found. From this it may be inferred that the unfortunate man had fallen into the water and managed to keep afloat till he had gained footing where the marks appeared in the mud; then walked to the rear of the shed and had fallen where his body was picked up. Later Dr. Roberts said this afternoon that there would be no post mortem or inquest in connection with the finding of the dead body on the mud flats near Mill St. this morning. Later Mrs. Jones during the past week, of which it was male and 10 female. Fourteen marriages were recorded. SHIPWRECKED CREW WERE WITHOUT FOOD FOR NINETY-SIX HOURS

Cast on Ice Coated Island in the Great Lakes They Suffered Terrible Hardships—Steamer Grounded in Snowstorm. PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 2.—(Special)—Captain McIntyre and the remainder of the crew of the Monckhavan, which was wrecked on Pitt Island, were brought here last evening, and they tell of hardships such as few sailors ever experienced. For ninety-six hours the men were without food, and it is a great wonder that they did not perish, as it was freezing hard and they were scantily attired. When they landed on the island it was found that the seas had completely covered the land, and ice many feet in thickness had formed covering all the trees. Fortunately on an exposed part they came across a part of an old house, and they set up and it afforded sufficient shelter to keep them from freezing to death. The men shopped out the ice and secured enough small wood to build a fire. There was so little heat from it however that several of the men in their endeavors to get warm burned up their clothing by crowding on the blaze. When Captain McIntyre managed to climb on board the steamer and procure some food some of the men became ravenous and ate it before it was thawed out. This made them sick, some of them almost being driven insane. Captain McIntyre states that it was one of the worst storms he ever experienced. He had become frozen up, and in the dense snow blizzard they got out of their coats, and before they knew where they were they were on the snow. They got in the trough of the sea and were driven on the rocks. The Monckhavan has a big hole in her bottom.

SAY HE HAS RESIGNED

Reported That Eben E. Davis Has Left Maritime and Works—Mr. Perkins Won't Talk. It was rumored this morning that Eben E. Davis had resigned as manager of the Maritime and Works. Mr. Perkins, who is superintendent of the works, is a little too premature. "Is the report true?" queried the Times man. "I have nothing whatever to say about it," was Mr. Perkins' reply. Nothing very definite could be learned from other sources at the time. Charles Fulton arrived on the Atlantic express today from Montreal. He was called home on account of the serious illness of his wife, Robert Fulton, at the West End. Mr. Fulton is no better today, having had a very bad night. Mrs. J. Arnold Kerr of Montreal is visiting Mrs. William Calhoun, Duke street.

(Continued.) "I am only a lieutenant," he said, "but in these days, monsieur, you know—there are possibilities. He laughed gaily as he waved his gloves in the direction of Russia, across the river. But Sebastian's face dimpled, and Charles, who was quick and sympathetic, stammered that point in his argument almost before the words were out of his lips.

"I have a little money," he said, "in addition to my pay. I mean, you, monsieur. You are an orphan?" said Sebastian, curiously. "Of the Terror?" "Yes, I—well, one does not make much of one's own money in these rough times—mon Dieu. Your father's name was Charles—like your own."

"The second son?" "Yes, monsieur. Did you know him?" "One remembers a name here and there," answered Sebastian, in his quiet manner, looking straight in front of him. "There was a tone in your voice—" he began, and again perceiving that he was not in a fair way to break in on the other, he stopped. "If love can make madamelle so happy—" he said; and a gasp of surprise came from the French girl. "It is not for nothing that she has broken in on her duties," he said, and a gasp of surprise came from the French girl.

BLACKWOOD ACQUITTED. Moncton Manslaughter Case Ended Yesterday—Prisoner on the Stand.

Dorchester, N. B., Dec. 1.—(Special)—The manslaughter case occupied the entire time of the county court today, resulting in the acquittal of Blackwood. Promptly at 10 o'clock when court opened the trial resumed. D. I. Welch made a motion that the prisoner be at once discharged on the grounds that the crown had failed to make out a case against the prisoner. Judge Wells ruled that the case should go to the jury. Mr. Welch in opening the case extended to Solicitor-General Jones a cordial welcome from the barristers, this being his first official visit to this part of the province. The prosecution called Joan Sullivan, A. J. Tingley, chief of police, who was also on the stand. John P. Palmer was sworn and stated that the gun which figured in the case was destroyed in the furnace of the cotton mill. Blackwood took the stand in his own defence and substantiated his claim that he was on his way home when he met the Howards on the fatal day. A few moments after coming up to the party they were making inquiries as to game when a man said, "Your gun is cocked." He repeated my gun was cocked and took it from my arm to examine it, when just at that moment it discharged. "I turned round and saw an awful sight," the juror was trying to get up. "I put a handkerchief in the wound and brought them to go for a doctor quick. We placed the boy on a cot. Howarth said to me, 'Let's load the gun and have it out.' I went to the Howarth house. I bore the expense of the funeral. I asked Howarth to have an inquest. He replied he did not want one. I gave myself up to the custody of Chief Supt. I don't know where Howarth is. I would prefer having him here." Blackwood at different times broke down and wept bitterly while giving his evidence. The address by the solicitor-general was forceful and well sustained his reputation at the bar. The judge's address was mainly a charge to the jury to weigh well the evidence in their own minds. He made some very strong remarks directly against the prisoner. The jury were not more than half an hour in arriving at the verdict of not guilty and the prisoner was at once discharged. After partaking of a hearty supper in Hotel Windsor, Blackwood went to Moncton on the Maritime express.

THE V LUE OF CHARCOAL. Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everyone knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize the value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose. Charcoal not only purifies the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestine and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath, after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetable. Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic. It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh. All drugs will charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered vegetable charcoal, and other harmless antiseptic in tablet form or rather in the form of large, thin, wafer-like lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey. The daily use of these lozenges will soon remove all impurities from the system, improve the general health, better complexion, sweeten the breath and purify the blood, and the beauty of the face is thereby secured. Charcoal from their confined use, but on the contrary, great benefit. A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the value of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some cases a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

The Cry of the Cities

What Should be the Attitude of the Churches Towards the Problems Which Have to be Solved in Great Centres of Population?

(Dr. Amory H. Bradford in The Christian Observer.)

The New-World cities are exceptionally cosmopolitan. Irish, German, Polish, Hungarian, Italian cities are all condensed in New York and Boston and Chicago. Emigrants from beyond the Alps and the Balkans, from Sweden and Sicily, with their own languages, their own customs, their own little municipal spirit of corps. They have come here for what they can get. Society has done little for them, and some of them are their enemies. They do not know our language, and have no care for our institutions. They herd in tenements which make virtue and decency impossible. That they are not worse than they are is a tribute to the inherent nobility of man. A downward ward in any great city is a congeries of tenement houses, on the ground floor of which are shops, while on their upper floors are rooms in which human beings nearly lose their identity and their humanity. There are found views which would have shamed the insane (Caesars; gentiles that Torquemada would have blushed to commit; depots of infamy that Dante could not have exaggerated. Such people infect others with the virus of their wickedness. They have votes, and make their own relations to the community. They rear families in an environment which defies the church and threatens the conditions of the state. While these classes are flocking to the cities in ever-increasing throngs, those who appreciate higher and finer things, who make more healthful environments, are going to the suburbs. The urban life is steadily deteriorating; the suburban life is steadily improving. Consequently, in the districts deserted by good citizens, wickedness organizes; the police become heathens on those whom they ought to protect, and government degenerates into a farce. Exaggeration in treating this subject is difficult. New York, Boston and Chicago, even more than London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, are a confluence of races, and a babel of tongues. Where are bred the revolutions? Where the faces of the poor are ground in the factories. Where is the birth of the poverty? Where modern Sisylocks open sweatshops and grow rich at the expense of those who live in cellars and attics. Where rises the bitter cry of the unemployed? Where the walls are multiplied, whose stoppage means starvation to thousands who would receive more than starvation wages. The modern city is the standing menace of civilization—yet without the city there can be no civilization. It is the strategic point in the contest against wickedness. If that be taken for righteousness the salvation of the world depends on it; if that be lost the redemption of humanity may be deemed impossible. The Duty of the Churches. What should be the attitude of the church toward the city and its problems? Jesus was more troubled in mind on the earth than in some far off Heaven. What was his cause his heart to break. And he wept more over Jerusalem than over any other city. He entered the city and went into the very heart of its wickedness, touched its open sores with his own hands. The only way to cure humanity is to touch it. The city needs good men in its politics and business more than it needs even divine Christendom. Jesus was no connoisseur in religion. He went on his tours of curing the world's misery had better kept out of it. Pious curiosity, with no serious purpose behind it, hinders more than it helps. The world needs more men with the spirit and method of Jesus, those who are ready to enter the mastery, vice, crime, and live and die there. Anarchists and the unemployed will have to those who sympathize impartially and who speak out of accurate knowledge. If the cities of the world are ever made the cities of our Lord, the credit will belong to those who

MINISTER TO HIS PEOPLE

(Toronto Globe) "Wherever there is suffering and sorrow, there I believe in my first place. Never expect me anywhere else while I am a minister." This may be said to have formed the keynote of the message which Rev. C. B. Owen delivered to his congregation yesterday morning in the course of his first sermon as pastor of St. Andrew's Church. He thought it best, he said in opening, to make known right at the start what his conception of the duties and responsibilities to which they had called him and of their duties together as minister and people. He believed that Christ had set this forth in the words, "What I see not that I must be about my Father's business." His work and purpose must be their work and purpose. They must recognize the necessity for a division of labor. Their conceptions of what the labor was might differ, but there was one work in which they must stand united, and which stood out above all other things, and which was to save the lost and upbuild men into the higher life. The minister must recognize that he should be in sympathy with all the activities of men, except those which were sinful and unwholesome associations, for there were those who were carrying their liberty over into license. The worst enemy of the present age, he believed, was not atheism, nor was it agnosticism, but an indifferent agnosticism. With any who were passing under the cloud of doubt he could sympathize as one who had passed through that experience. If the pulpit was to throw with real life, it must know the life of the people. He could not be about his Father's business by simply preaching to them, and he had no idea of being fixed to that pulpit to write every Sunday. It was his idea to go out and mingle with the people of the congregation in their homes, in the world and in the great battle of life. He could never hope to do his best work in that pulpit until he knew every member and sentiment of the congregation. He believed that congregation had special opportunities, and special moments, and special times to achieve the great purpose that he believed lay before them. It could be only in the one way that would be great among you, he believed, your minister; he would be your servant, and I do not call simply for your means, your sympathy and prayers," continued the preacher. "I call for yourselves. It is the one thing that we need—concentration of personality. When the call came to

DEAL MINISTER'S WIFE

"Well, she isn't prim and proper. But she doesn't care a cent for that. What I saw. She's so innocent of wrong. That she's happy all day long. On her way. "She's no realist or fanatic. She doesn't try to win ecstatics. She's a woman through and through, and she's willing to do what she should. "So! She may not be ideal. But, what's better, she's real. And I want her. She's no dreamer of a dream. Nor a poet's ideal theme. On her fact."

THE ANSWER

"Pier," asks the soul, "that which is, shall be." That which was not, persists eternally? Faith falls before the mortal eye. Yet more miraculous miracle was this: The mortal, grasping immortality; The finite, grasping the infinite; The transient eye, fixed on Eternity; The transient ear, fixed on Eternity;—Once, Bitter Channing, in The Century.

MANITOBA GOVERNMENT WILL REVISE TAXATION

Will Make Railways, Express, Insurance, Telegraph and Telephone Companies Pay More Taxes—Will also Ha Telephone System Under Joint Provincial and Municipal Control.

In a speech delivered last week, Premier Roblin of Manitoba outlined the policy of his government with respect to taxation of railways and corporations, municipal ownership and government telephones. He said the Great Northern Railway would hereafter have to pay taxes, and then went on: "I suppose you are aware that the principle of taxation of corporations is one that holds a very prominent place in the administration of the legislatures of the states to the south of us. I desire to give you some figures showing you what is being realized from taxation of railways in a few of the states to the south of us. "Take, for instance, the state of Minnesota, which has immediately to our south. Last year they secured, from a three per cent. tax on the gross earnings of railways in that state, a revenue, in round figures, of $2,000,000. Last session they increased the tax to four per cent. on the gross revenue, and they expect this year to receive at least $2,500,000. "The state of Michigan collected from railways last year $2,508,677. Nebraska secured $1,122,223. Then we take two states, also lying immediately to the south, North Dakota collected last year $640,485, and Montana $977,453. "In Ontario last year they collected $187,792. In Ontario they collect on a basis of 85 per cent. of the total mileage of every railway that has any portion of its system in that province. "Manitoba only collected last year $58,450.27, all of which was paid by the Canadian Pacific.

Principle Recognized "From the figures that I have given you, you will see that the principle of taxation of railways is recognized, generally, to be right and proper, and I may say that the taxation thus levied does not appear to affect the railway corporations that contribute, to any appreciable extent, for we find every $100 of the common stock of the Great Northern Railway, which contributes largely to those amounts, is worth $200. The Northern Pacific $100 stock is worth $200, and in our own country the C. P. R. $100 shares are worth about $175, and consequently the taxes levied on the roads have evidently not worked an injury to the shareholders or to those who have invested their money in that property.

Government's Stand "It is not the intention of the government, in the readjustment of the taxation upon the railways in this country, to act in any manner that will work injury to the vested rights of anyone, but we believe that the railways and other corporations should contribute a fair share, by way of taxes, to the cost of civil government, the administration of justice, and educational institutions and other public works as are necessary in a well organized country, such as our own. "Not only do we propose to adjust the railway taxation on a new basis, but also on other corporations as well. For instance, express companies in the state of Minnesota pay $25,000; in Ontario, $5,000. In Manitoba they only pay $300. We think the express companies can, if we may judge from the rates they charge, well afford to pay a larger share for the business they do in this country than they have done in the past, and we propose to readjust their taxation.

Tax Telephone Company "Coming to the telephone companies, in the past they have only contributed some $1,800 or $1,700 a year in taxes, while in the state of Minnesota, last year, the rate of this source was over $35,000. We feel that the high prices charged by the telephone company enable me to say that a much larger proportion of taxes can be fairly claimed than that which they have hitherto been paying. "Finally, as regards the insurance companies, we find that in Minnesota, last year, the insurance companies paid $275,000 to the general revenue of the state in Ontario, $116,000, and in Manitoba they paid less than $20,000. We feel that in the general readjustment, the insurance companies doing business here must be prepared to pay more than they have been doing in the past. "At all events, it is our intention to revise this taxation so as to get a more equitable and fair taxation than we have at the present time, with a corresponding benefit to the ordinary taxpayer.

Government Owned Utilities "The matter of government ownership has been discussed by the previous speakers in an academic way, and your applause is evidence that you believe it to be the true policy. "I am aware that I am making no new announcement, nor saying anything that will be surprising, when I state that the policy of the government of Manitoba is that all public utilities should be, so far as possible, owned and controlled by the people, and that the municipalities should be encouraged to own and operate all the necessary appointments conducive to the convenience, comfort and health of the people who live in such municipalities. Where it is not practicable for municipalities to do so, then we believe it is the duty of the government to acquire and regulate such utilities for and on behalf of the people. This is the policy, not only of the Conservative party in Manitoba, but also that of the party in the wider field of dominion politics. "I am led to this reference by the fact that last season an effort was made by certain parties to secure a charter for an independent telephone company for the province of Manitoba. The members of the legislature, in declining to grant such a charter, after careful enquiry into the matter, directed that the executive, in the excess, should enquire fully into the case and into the operation and management of telephones generally, with a view to establishing a telephone system in the province of Manitoba owned and controlled by the government and the municipalities.

Proposed Telephone System "In pursuance of that order, the members of the government have been quietly enquiring into the matter. Mr. Rogers has made two trips to the east and has examined the systems that are in force there, while I have made a trip south to Minneapolis and have gone into the matter carefully with Mr. Malton, the president of the Twin City Independent Telephone Co. Mr. Rogers only returned a day or two ago from another trip south, with the result that the government is now prepared to recommend to the legislature the establishment of a telephone system in the province of Manitoba to be owned and controlled by the municipalities and the government jointly, as may be found most advantageous to both. "We have made such progress and feel so confident that a great advantage will result to the people, that we have engaged one of the most competent telephone experts in America to commence work almost immediately in the way of preparing details for active construction. This gentleman that we have engaged comes from San Francisco, California, and we believe is one of the most competent men on the continent of America. We have reached this conclusion from the fact that a municipality should necessarily own one of the natural monopolies, and yet is one of the most desirable and necessary facilities for the conduct of business and for the convenience and pleasure of the people. Therefore the price of telephones should be made so low that laboring men and artisans can have the convenience and advantage of the telephone, as well as the merchant, the professional man and the gentleman of wealth and leisure, and it is our intention to recommend to parliament a proposition of this kind with a view of giving a telephone system to all classes at cost, plus the amount for maintenance, operation and interest. "That is what we propose to do. The government believes that with the cooperation of the towns and villages, as well as the rural municipalities, telephones can and should be put in the homes of our farmers all over this country. I need not spend time in pointing out the advantages of telephones to farmers in rural districts, because they are so manifest that it would be only repeating what the people generally know. I shall not go into any further details other than to say that we believe that the municipalities in towns and villages should own the local centres and the government should build and own the trunk lines from place to place. The long distance connections can be secured at a cost very much below that of today.

Does Your FOOD Digest Well?

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body and the purpose of eating is defeated; no matter how good the food or how carefully adapted to the wants of the body it may be. Thus the dyspeptic often becomes thin, weak and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, snap and vim are lost, and in their place come dullness, listless depression and languor. It takes no great knowledge to know when one has indigestion, some of the following symptoms generally exist, viz: constipation, sour stomach, variable appetite, headache, heartburn, gas in the stomach, etc. The great point is to ensure it, to get back bounding health and vigor.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Is constantly effecting cures of dyspepsia because it acts in a natural yet effective way upon all the organs involved in the process of digestion, removing all clogging impurities and making easy the work of digestion and assimilation. Mr. R. G. Harvey, Ameliasburg, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with dyspepsia for several years and after using three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was completely cured. I cannot praise Burdock Blood Bitters for what it has done for me. I have not had a sign of dyspepsia since." Do not accept a substitute for B. There is nothing "just as good."

WATER AND SEWERAGE BOARD

Lake Latimer Syphon Scheme Under Consideration at Yesterday's Session But Board Adjourned Without Taking Action.

The water and sewerage board met yesterday afternoon, and discussed an offer from B. Mooney & Sons to supply pumps to lower Lake Latimer at a rental of $130 a day. Various suggestions to meet the difficulty of lowering the lake were made but after much discussion the board adjourned until Monday without taking any action.

Mayor called him up and told him to delay securing the necessary number for the syphon until after the meeting. He thought the syphon was not a good idea. He thought the syphon was not a good idea. He thought the syphon was not a good idea.

A letter was read from B. Mooney & Sons, in which they offered to furnish pumps and all apparatus for lowering the lake at a cost of $130 a day. There was a provision that in the event of any headwater the city should be responsible.

Mr. Hunter in reply to a question said he had suggested the pumping method to Messrs. Mooney. The board had voted three weeks ago to lower the lake at once and the contractors had been at him ever since. He had attempted to get a price for the work from Messrs. Mooney, but had not succeeded. It would take three weeks to lower the lake. He understood there were three 2-inch pumps and two 3-inch pumps available. He did not think the contractors could successfully use a coffee dam as the outlet was 200 feet into the lake.

DR. MCLEOD'S FATE IS IN THE HANDS OF THE JURY

Boston, Dec. 1--(Special)--The fate of Dr. Percy D. McLeod, who today told his story of the suit case mystery in the Superior Court, is in the hands of the jury. Whether he is to be judged innocent or guilty of being an accessory after the fact to the death of Susanna Agnes Geary, the victim, will probably be determined by the jury.

Dr. McLeod made a good witness, not only on direct examination but cross-examination. He denied what Dr. Pettie, Hunt and Crawford charged him with, so far as any criminal connection with the case was concerned, admitting only that he performed the laparotomy operation and that his principal motive in doing this was to save life.

After Suffering For 10 Years With Pain In The Back He Was Completely Cured By "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" cures diseased and irritated kidneys when all other treatment fails.

The proof that "Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest kidney cure known to science is demonstrated by these tablets removing all pain in the back--making the kidneys healthy--and curing chronic constipation.

Do you know that every drop of blood in your body goes to the kidneys to get rid of some of the impurities? When the bowels don't move regularly, the blood takes up poisons in the bowels and carries them to the kidneys.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the Kidneys--cleans, heals and strengthens them--makes the liver give up more bile to move the bowels regularly--and stimulates the glands of the skin to increased action. These rid the system of all poisons and every trace of Kidney Disease disappears.

Recipes by Which Fragments Left on Mutton Joints of the Turkey Carcass Can be Utilized for Another Meal.

At this time of the year, when turkeys and large joints of meat are so frequently necessary on the home bill of fare, the housewife welcomes some new way in which to serve up the fragments that remain.

Turkey in Caps.—Butter half a dozen tablespoons, sprinkle with bread crumbs and fill them half way to the top with turkey meat, chopped finely. Whip two eggs gently and season with one tablespoonful of salt, a pinch of pepper, a few drops of onion juice, and a little finely-chopped parsley.

Turkey Soup.—After every bit of meat has been removed from the bones, break the latter and boil together with a quart of water, a few peppercorns, salt, a pinch of mace. As soon as the broth is reduced to one-half, strain it through a cloth and return to the fire. Now add some stalks of celery, chopped fine. While the soup is boiling, mix together one tablespoonful of flour and one of butter and heat over the fire with a cupful of milk.

Turkey Meat with Peas.—Chop the remains of a cold roasted turkey. Add two tablespoonfuls of softened butter to each cupful of meat and rub to a smooth paste. Next add a cupful of soft bread crumbs, half a cupful of blanched and chopped peas, a dash of onion juice, a teaspoonful of paprika. Mix together thoroughly and fry in round lard. Roll in flour, then in beaten and fine breadcrumbs and fry to a light brown in boiling fat.

Mutton Hash.—Pass one pound of lean cooked mutton and a small quantity of lean bacon through a fine mincer and place in a mixing bowl. Add half a teaspoonful of onion, and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Whip one egg until light, mix together with the prepared meat, and roll into an oblong cake on a floured board.

Stuffed Mutton.—Cut some rather thick slices from the remains of a leg of mutton, remove the fat and skin and trim them so that they are the same size. Allow an hour before they are required to place them in a deep dish with a few slices of onion between the pieces of meat. Sprinkle a little black pepper and nutmeg over them and cover with oil and vinegar mixed together in the proportion of three tablespoonfuls of oil to one of vinegar. Season a small quantity of fine white breadcrumbs with celery, salt and pepper, and mix together with onion and minced parsley. Wipe the slices of meat when they are taken from the pickle, dip them into beaten egg and cover them thickly with the prepared crumbs. Allow the crumbs to harden on the slices of meat for ten or fifteen minutes and fry quickly in plenty of boiling fat. Drain and serve with spinach or cabbage and a plain sauce.

Mutton on Chueverle.—Cut some moderately thick slices from a cooked leg of mutton, remove all fat and skin and pickle as in the previous recipe. Fry together for fifteen minutes, one and a half ounces of butter, a sliced onion, a tomato, a few small peppers. Stir in by degrees three tablespoonfuls of flour and add gradually two cups of boiling water. When the sauce has boiled and thickened, draw this pan to the side of the stove and allow it to simmer for twenty minutes. Place the meat in an earthen casserole and strain the sauce over it. Cover with a piece of buttered paper and bake for two and a half hours.

Mutton with Rice.—Line a buttered baking dish with a wall of cooked rice about an inch thick. Fill the centre with cold roast or boiled mutton, chopped rather fine and freed from bone and gristle. Season with salt, pepper a little onion juice and gravy to make slightly moist. Cover with a layer of rice and bake half an hour in a moderate oven. Remove the cover, spread lightly with melted butter and allow the top to become a delicate brown. Serve very hot with tomato sauce.

Beef Ragout.—Pass some roast beef and a small quantity of cooked ham through a mincer. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg, and mix together with a small amount of chopped parsley and a little amount of chopped celery. Moisten the ingredients with some thick brown sauce and roll into small croquettes. Wrap the croquettes in a layer of puff paste of medium thickness, roll in fine dry breadcrumbs and stand aside for a quarter of an hour. Brush the rolls over with beaten egg and fry in boiling fat until a golden brown.

Chicken Balls with Peas.—Cut a pound of chicken into small pieces and pass through a mincer. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add a small quantity of finely minced onion and a dessertspoonful of parsley, also finely chopped. Mix the ingredients together and add two tablespoonfuls of cream sauce and one egg, and spread out on a flat dish for two hours. Make into balls and add a small quantity of finely minced onion and a dessertspoonful of parsley, also finely chopped. Mix the ingredients together and add two tablespoonfuls of cream sauce and one egg, and spread out on a flat dish for two hours. RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS.

Will Find a Certain Cure in the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism is a disease of the blood. Every doctor now admits this to be the fact. Doctors used to think that rheumatism was brought on by acids in the joints and muscles. Now they know that could never happen. Rheumatism could only be cured by curing the bad blood which causes it. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always cures rheumatism, because they actually make new, rich red blood which drives out the poisonous acids, loosens the stiffened aching joints and muscles and restores the rheumatic sufferer to health and happiness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands and thousands of rheumatic sufferers, some of whom were almost hopelessly crippled. Mr. T. H. Smith, Colleton, Ont., says: "For a number of years I was badly afflicted with rheumatism, and was so crippled I could scarcely do any work. I tried quite a number of medicines, but they did not help me. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised as a cure for this trouble, and got a supply. After I had taken a few boxes I saw that they were helping me, and I continued taking the pills throughout the winter, and am now completely cured. I have since worked out of doors in cold weather without a coat, and did not feel even a twinge of the trouble."

If you are suffering from any disease due to bad blood or disordered nerves, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure you, because they make new rich blood, which goes right to the root of the disease and cures it. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such troubles as anemia, indigestion, palpitation of the heart, neuritis, headaches and backaches, kidney and liver troubles, St. Vitus Dance, paralysis, and the special secret ailments of childhood and womanhood. SMART STYLES FOR ELDERLY WOMEN

THE ELDERLY WOMAN AND HER WARDROBE

Never were styles more kindly to elderly women than now. The clinging softness of the new materials, the gile and silver splendour, colour and cut, all point the way to becoming and dignified fringing. For there lies the gain of the elderly woman's get-up. It must be different above all things, and this meaning suitability to years, becomingness is implied. Beginning with fundamentals, the woman of forty and more requires handsomeness, in point of quality, should always be avoided, for it is far better to wear a gown that is slightly passé but of good material than a new gown in cheap stuffs.

To fall into poetic hyperbole, "the woman of advancing years," says a French writer, "should exude her personality as if upon an altar. Her gown, her bonnet, her mantle, all should express a rich and delicate splendor, which is like a crown. The very fall of her train should be a command."

The soft and saucy clothes now the mode are the royal right of those no longer in the hey-day of youth. A handsome dress of cloth, or silk velvet, is indispensable for the woman of middle age, and the present styles suggest many long graceful coats which conceal ungracious lines.

The cut of the skirt is also a very necessary point, for it is an easy matter to spoil a dress utterly with the wrong skirt cut. Narrow panels are always diminishing to size, and for really old ladies a more top to be finished with a draw string. Kindly cuts for hips which are too large show a bottom paneling of pleats on many of these skirts. The upper part of the skirt fits smoothly, and from the hips down it hangs with great looseness.

In point of color, black is pre-eminently the elderly woman's choice. But there are many delicate fair types for whom black is too severe and for these, soft grays and the many beautiful shades of purple now in fashion, are advised.

The Cut of the Skirt is a Very Important Feature of the Elderly Woman's Costume and Panel Effects Tend to Give a Slim Appearance -- Long, Loose Coats Conceal Ungraceful Lines.

BY MARY DEAN

and French deities are the chief words of these days. Some very charming house gowns are effected through a combination of cashmere and dull silk frequently appearing for mourning.

When it comes to the street wrap, there is so little distinction between the elderly and youthful cuts that in many cases color alone makes the difference. The Empire models are one exception, for these are distinctly for youth, but all the quieter nuptial and domestic styles are approved. In some of the long silk coats which are worn in the evening or with reception dresses, there is sometimes a faint tinge of flaire influence in the cut of the body portion, but this hint is too vague to flatter itself as being too youthful. There is only a pretty, quiet, smart style to be chosen, and this style also stopping short enough to give a glimpse of beautiful lace underneath.

A wide, loose puffing is often employed upon these coats, and sometimes a little silk cape will have a collar finished with light fur frills. Properly disposed, there is no trimming more beautiful than a deep, knotted silk fringe.

Especially are models in the new fur pieces which may be had at a reasonable price, but the bigger models in the best gimp or two tails, and the muff and the roll of ten seasons ago. Some little crevasses with raffled cascade fronts in Persian lamb are stylish and becoming fur pieces which may be had at a reasonable price, but the bigger models in the best gimp or two tails, and the muff and the roll of ten seasons ago.

Black and silver lynx shapes some of the handiwork of the season's sets, and the plain black lynx, for which there is quite a furore, is especially handsome for mourning. Lynx is far cheaper than Persian lamb, which, though made up in the most useful garments, is, with its child, broadtail, essentially an old lady fur. Some extra dolmans made up with an astonishing dolman are seen in Persian lamb, but the mink cape, many of which are also offered, are much scarcer in cut than these.

If the purse is limited, though these expensive garments are left aside, cloth mantles with fur sets being worn instead. To make these comfortable for the severest weather vests of grey or silver wool could be worn underneath, these feather-light little garments being recommended as perfectly impervious to cold. They last a lifetime, though the first paying $7.50 may seem dear. And since we are on the subject of wool vests or sweaters of any sort, remember that a broad ribbon binding is a very relieving touch around the neck, all knitted garments being trying at this point.

In choosing a fur set, much, of course, depends upon the wearer's type, and if a more youthful look is desired a fox is to be preferred to the shaggy tip-top. Very stunning cravats can be had in lynx from $17 up, the muff for these being in the usual flat shapes and costing about $3.

To go with sets in chinchilla a gown in a new material might be suggested. This is chinchilla velvet, a radian texture which is imported in black and white, and in chinchilla shadings with beautifully silvery reflection. A grand toilette suggested by a French journal for an old lady of elegant tastes was of a quaint cape of the fur. This covered a soft little bodice of silk and black and white lace, the front of the cape ending with long scarfs of the black lace. With this superb toilette should be worn a black bonnet, in jet and tulle with a white crepe.

When it comes to the street wrap, there is so little distinction between the elderly and youthful cuts that in many cases color alone makes the difference.

Black and silver lynx shapes some of the handiwork of the season's sets, and the plain black lynx, for which there is quite a furore, is especially handsome for mourning.

If the purse is limited, though these expensive garments are left aside, cloth mantles with fur sets being worn instead.

In choosing a fur set, much, of course, depends upon the wearer's type, and if a more youthful look is desired a fox is to be preferred to the shaggy tip-top.

To go with sets in chinchilla a gown in a new material might be suggested. This is chinchilla velvet, a radian texture which is imported in black and white, and in chinchilla shadings with beautifully silvery reflection.

Keep Your Grip On Health

WHEN PHYSICAL BANKRUPTCY THREATENS BUILD UP WITH Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Gloomy forebodings, fear of the future, apprehension of something dreadfully to fall you, worry over little things, restlessness, insomnia, irritability—these are the indications of an exhausted nervous system. They tell more plainly than words, these plain, but certainly the nervous force of the body is being consumed more rapidly than it is being created. They point to the most exhausted and discouraged sufferer.

There are certain elements of nature which go to form new blood and nerve cells—create new nerve force, the foundation of life, energy and vitality. These elements are so combined in the Chase's Nerve Food as to be readily assimilated by the most weakened human body.

Being composed of such ingredients, Chase's Nerve Food cannot possibly fail to be of benefit to you, and its regular use will build up and revitalize the most exhausted and discouraged sufferer.

You cannot compare Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with any medicine you ever used, for it cures by the building up process, whereas most nerve treatments merely soothe and deaden the nerves. Use this treatment by noting your increase in weight.

"I can say that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food entirely cured me of what I believe was the beginning of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. My nerves were very bad and at night I could not sleep at all, nor could I control my arms and legs. They seemed to fairly jerk me off the bed.

"For six months I was in this way, and cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is a pleasure to recommend this great medicine to any one suffering as I did from nervous disease."

Prohibition in Prince Edward Island is Enforced

(Special Correspondence of Montreal Herald.)

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Nov. 23.—"It is a boomtown and place where you can't get your pint of beer, we've searched the boomtown and found only three per cent. staff" was the lament of the British excise squadrons to Charlottetown recently.

The liquor men at first did not regard the measure very seriously. They in a temperance people doubted the value of such a radical law. "Good in principle but very difficult to enforce," they said.

Shortly after the inception of the Act the change was made from the measure had been a distinct blow to the prosperity and moral welfare of Charlottetown, that it had resulted in a visible increase in drunkenness, perjury, blackmail, contempt of law and that it is developing a race of hy-crites.

Every impartial observer who has followed the working of the Act must admit that since the introduction there has been a great change for the better in the city, and it seems only fair to give prohibition a generous measure of credit for the improved condition of things.

In the liquor license, 1871, there were 720 licenses for drunkenness, and were committed at the rate of two a day, assaults at the rate of one a week, street brawls, incendiary fires were two per cent. frequent, and the police force was double its present strength.

Not long after the Act became law, the liquor men decided to fight it in the courts. A conviction had been obtained against one Angus MacDonald, and an application was made on July 22nd, 1901, to the Supreme Court for a certiorari to remove the conviction on the ground that the Prohibition Act was inoperative by reason of its being ultra vires the Legislature.

A similar case, viz., The Attorney-General of Manitoba vs. Manitoba License Holders' Association, was up before the Privy Council and the Judges of the Supreme Court reserved their decision until the highest court in the realm was given. The Privy Council declared the Manitoba Prohibition Act ultra vires, and the Supreme Court soon after gave similar judgment respecting the Island Prohibition Act, which was modeled after the Manitoba Act.

The prohibition machine naturally disclosed weakness in the course of its operation, but the weak parts were strengthened by amendments unanimously passed at successive sessions of the Legislature, and it is now almost as perfect as the most ardent prohibitionist can desire.

All liquors containing over three per cent of alcohol had been placed on the prohibited list. One of the most radical amendments passed last session is that requiring the Stipendiary Magistrate to examine under oath each person brought before him charged with being drunk, and to compel them under pain of contempt of court to tell where they got the liquor, and the giving of this information not to disqualify any of such persons from being a witness in any prosecution against the liquor sellers.

The operation of this amendment has led to some interesting disclosures, the most important being that doctor's certificates have been indiscriminately given to persons whose only ailment was a thirst for alcoholic stimulants. This subject of doctor's certificates has been a theme of general discussion in the press and in temperance organizations.

Prohibition is here to stay. Public sentiment is behind it. The law was passed by a Liberal Government over five years ago, and neither political party since has dared to advocate its repeal. Of the thirty members in the Provincial Legislature scarcely a man can now be found who will openly declare himself an anti-prohibitionist, whatever he may think.

Prior to prohibition, license, Scott Act a period of free run, the Liquor Regulation Act, and license had successively prevailed in the city. That total prohibition was the outcome of the Scott Act is quite obvious, and it is equally evident that the disgusting effects of the free run period hastened the coming of the present law.

The Scott Act was the great educative power which aided by the pulpit, the press, and temperance societies and such strong organizations as the Temperance Alliance led to the granting of a prohibition public. There was a large majority in favor of securing such a law, and a bill was introduced into the Legislature.

The original Act was assented to June 10th, 1900, when the late Hon. Donald Parqumson, a staunch temperance man and a fearless prohibitionist, was Premier of the Province. It was modeled after the Manitoba Act and the main clause read: "No person shall by himself, his agent, servant or agent, directly or indirectly, on any pretence or pretext, sell or barter or in consideration of the purchase of any other property give to any person any intoxicating liquor."

The Act allowed sale by vendors in wholesale quantities.

DISPENSARY SCANDAL IN SOUTH CAROLINA

The Discussion Between Dr. Cromer and Senator Tillman—Scandals Have Resulted from the Law as Now in Force.

The Winnipeg Free Press, a couple of weeks ago, published an article dealing with the situation in South Carolina in regard to the dispensary system which has been in operation for thirteen years. The state controlling and conducting liquor selling and the profits going to the public treasury. The committee of investigation which was appointed to enquire into the charge of corruption in connection with the carrying on of that system has now been nearly a month at work, and has uncovered an extraordinary amount of graft, corruption and bribery. The evidence shows that liquor contains a hoopoe of graft, corruption and bribery. The evidence shows that liquor contains a hoopoe of graft, corruption and bribery. The evidence shows that liquor contains a hoopoe of graft, corruption and bribery.

Senator Benjamin B. Tillman, the father and chief defender of the system, and those who were identified with him in introducing it into South Carolina, held that it would drive the liquor traffic out of politics and reduce drunkenness. Nevertheless, since the day the system went into operation, "charges of corruption have been laid against it," says the Charleston News and Courier. "But the people were not allowed to suspect that dishonesty could ever enter the dispensary." Naturally, the greatest disclosures have stirred up abroad in South Carolina the whole question of legislation in connection with the liquor traffic, and a notable debate has been going on between Dr. George B. Cromer, a leading prohibitionist of the state, and Senator Tillman, both men using the Charleston News and Courier as their medium of addressing the public.

Dr. Cromer writes in part: "Our Supreme Court, in its famous decision upholding the constitutionality of the dispensary law, said down the following as a fundamental proposition, and said that if this proposition is not true the law is unconstitutional: 'That liquor in its nature, is dangerous to the moral, good order, health, and safety of the people, and is not to be placed on the same footing with the ordinary commodities of life, such as corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco, potatoes, etc.' Kansas says to her children: 'The liquor traffic is dangerous to the moral, good order, health, and safety of the people, and therefore we will sell liquor at all the money we can for the schools.'

"The business of the saloon-keeper was becoming disreputable in this state, and saloon-keepers were beginning to find it difficult to justify the business in the eyes of their children. The dispensary system attempts to make the traffic respectable and reputable. How can the children of our schools answer the sophistry of it? I say it down as little short of a crime that any restrictive system that takes control of a traffic that is dangerous to the morals of the people, and controls it such a way as to make it respectable, is a virtuous and dangerous substance. In reply to this plea for the closing of the dispensaries and the enactment of prohibition, Senator Tillman writes:—'The dispensary law properly administered does reduce drunkenness. It does conduce to temperance and good morals, and teaches men the use of liquor rather than the abuse of it. That the state board of control is now under suspicion of corruption, with many things pointing to the belief that the suspicion is well grounded, and that the local dispensary have been debauched because of the lax administration of the local administration of the law, proves nothing. Everybody recognizes the evil of drunkenness, and how to minimize or to prevent it is the whole question. You say prohibit the sale. I say sell by bond of officers under stringent regulations, in the daytime only, and have the law enforced; the profit, which is an incident and not a purpose in this sale, to go where it is most needed; that is, into the school fund of the state. It would make no difference if it went into the fund of the general treasury, and the school fund increased from other sources. But that is a subterfuge. No one drinks any more or patronizes the dispensary because the profit goes to the school fund. I can not see any harm or evil in obtaining revenue from a traffic that is irrevocable. The United States supreme court protects each citizen in the right to import for his own use, and no law of the State can prevent it. The poorer and more ignorant classes, who can not obtain liquor, have been, and always will be, supplied through some local agency, no matter what the law against selling liquor may be. Senator Tillman refuses to take any other view than that the dispensary system, even with the maladministration there has been, has proved that it affords more protection against the vice of drunkenness than any other system, for any other system." He quotes statistics at length, and declares that great as is the amount of good it has done, it would do vastly more "if such men as Dr. Cromer and his friends would give to the enforcement of the law their great moral support." Dr. Cromer and his friends, however, are unable to see the dispensary system in the light which Senator Tillman sees it in, and are confident that if the whole question is left to the people to decide, prohibition will carry the day.

USED MEN AT THE OFFICE UP AND TIRED OUT

Every day in the week and every week in the year men, women and children feel all used up and tired out.

The strain of business life, the cares of home and social life, and the lack of study cause terrible suffering from heart and nerve troubles. The efforts put forth to keep up to the modern "high pressure" mode of life in this age soon wear out the strongest system, shatter the nerves and weaken the heart.

Thousands find life a burden and others an early grave. The strain on the system causes nervousness, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, depression of the mind, dizziness, sleep, loss of appetite, and irregular pulse, constipation and sinking spirits, etc. The blood becomes weak and watery and eventually causes disease.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are indicated for all diseases arising from a weak and debilitated condition of the heart or of the nerve centers. Mrs. T. H. Koiden, Ont., writes: "For the past two or three years I have been troubled with nervousness and heart failure, and the doctors failed to give me any relief. I decided at last to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and I would not now be without them if they cost twice as much. I have recommended them to my neighbors and friends."

LOCAL OPTION IN TORONTO

The question of the reduction of tavern and liquor shop licenses in Toronto will go to the people on January 1. The council adopted the by-law for the submission of the question by an overwhelming majority. The bills to reduce the tavern license from 150 to 120 and the shop license from 80 to 40 were each given a final reading, but were denied the usual second reading by a unanimous vote of the council. To obtain two readings of the bill at one sitting a two-thirds vote was necessary for the second stage of the bill, and this the supporters of the temperance measure could not obtain. The way was left open, however, for the passage of the two bills through the final stage of this year at the next meeting of the council, and they will be ready to supply time for the two questions which they contain to be submitted to the electors on New Year's Day.
