FIRST MEETING OF NEW BOARD

Cooperation of Board of Trade Sought

Harbor Committee in Session for Purpose of Organizing

The committee on harbor improvement which was appointed recently by the Common Council will ask the Board of Trade to co-operate with it in securing the information necessary for the formulation of a comprehensive scheme of harbor improvement.

Yesterday's meeting at City Hall was mainly for the purpose of organizing the committee. The Hon. Mayor Bullock was elected chairman.

Yesterday afternoon Mayor Bullock received a telegram from the Minister of Public Works informing him that the local officials of the public works department would co-operate with the committee in obtaining information concerning the harbor.

There is every likelihood that the Board of Trade will assist the committee from the Common Council. The board claims to have very full information concerning the harbor of St. John, with the exception of data on the valuation of properties.

The board of trade for some time has been in communication with the Minister of Public Works. It is understood that Messrs. Hays and Moore of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway have informed the Minister that terminal facilities are what will bring their railroad to St. John and that Courtenay Bay is the only available site for such facilities.

If this is the case the Courtenay Bay wharves will become a matter of supreme interest to St. John and to the harbor committee in particular. It is likely that the committee will take steps to have the nature of the bottom of Courtenay Bay ascertained.

IN THE LAST STAGE OF CONSUMPTION CLARENCE McLAUGHLIN WITHOUT HOME OR MONEY COLLAPSES AT INDIANTOWN

A pitiful plight for a human being to be placed in, was witnessed at the Indiantown wharf yesterday afternoon when Clarence McLaughlin, in the last stage of consumption, fell in his tracks, being too weak to hold himself up. Having neither a home, nor money to provide lodgings, McLaughlin made his way to the wharf with the hope, it is believed, of running across some old friends. After he had fallen policemen placed him in the ferry house. Later a cab was called, and McLaughlin was taken to the Alms House, where he was attended by a physician. McLaughlin is well known in the North End and for years lived in Pkiook.

Yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in a house owned by Mrs. John Thompson, 194 Gullford street, West side, but was extinguished before any damage was done.

Mrs. Thompson occupies the ground floor, while Mrs. David Fitzpatrick, who was burned out a short time ago on Duke street, lives on the top story. About 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Thompson, who is said to take peculiar turns, informed the Fitzpatrick woman that she was going to burn a mattress in the cellar, and immediately started to carry out her object. Mrs. Fitzpatrick became alarmed, and after the mattress had been carried down stairs and placed in the basement, Mrs. Thompson caught hold of her and tried to prevent her from going. A lively tussle followed, resulting in Mrs. Fitzpatrick getting free. An alarm was then rung.

When the firemen arrived they found that the frenzied woman was determined they should not enter. By this time smoke was issuing through the roof of the house. The water was turned on, however, and when pointed at the stubborn woman she ran away, leaving the firemen a clear doorway to enter.

No damage was done to the building, and the fire, which was confined to the mattress in the basement and a few rag carpets, was soon put out.

HOLMES DRANK CARBOLIC ACID AND HIS COLLAPSE WAS SUDDEN

What appears to have been the end-mark of an attempted suicide happened at the rear of Chipman's restaurant, 183 Charlotte street, early last evening when Harry Holmes, of 12 Harding street, commonly known as "Cap," emptied the contents of a small bottle of carbolic acid down his throat.

Holmes was said to be under the influence of liquor at the time. About eight o'clock Fred Fairweather, who resides at 13 Broad street, and several other young men were playing pool in the pool-room at the rear of Chipman's restaurant. Fairweather on looking out a window saw Holmes enter the yard through an alley from Charlotte street.

Holmes stood for a while in the shade of the building, according to Fairweather, and then took a bottle from his pocket. He raised the bottle to his lips and after drinking its contents fell to the ground almost immediately. The boys rushed out into the yard, and on reaching Holmes, they could smell carbolic acid and at once it was clear that the man had poisoned himself. Fairweather hastened for a doctor and Holmes was left lying on the ground in a semi-conscious state. Dr. J. S. Bentley soon arrived and ordered the man to be carried into the pool-room. John Chipman, owner of the restaurant, brought milk, which was given to Holmes as an antidote and for some time the doctor worked with him. Officer Perry arrived at this time and called for the ambulance. Pather Holland was also summoned and saw Holmes before he was taken to the hospital.

After arriving at the hospital the most of the acid was taken from his stomach and later in the evening he was able to speak. When asked where he got the acid, he said that he was working in the afternoon for Fred Jones on German street, cleaning his furnace. He secured the bottle there and placed it in his pocket, carried it away. He said that he did not know what was in the bottle when he took the drink.

Holmes is known as an eccentric individual and the boys who were familiar with his conduct say that he often acted foolishly and drank a good deal. According to the story told by Bert Smith, who saw Holmes after he had taken the poison, he and several others were standing on Charlotte street about 1:30 when Holmes came along. One of the crowd said to Holmes: "Well, Cap, have you anything on your hip?"

Holmes answered that he had and produced the bottle of carbolic acid. Holding it up for them to see, Holmes said: "A few drinks of this will fix me all right." He then passed on.

Holmes has worked at several different things and lives with his mother on Harding street. He is 22 years of age and is well known about the city.

PLAN TO VANQUISH THE MONARCHS OF THE SELKIRKS

Early in July, when the Canadian Alpine Club assembles at Glacier, British Columbia, for its annual outing, the members who respond to the call of the mountain peak will attempt to obtain fresh thrills and furnish new material for the annals of the conquest of at least two of the unconquered monarchs of the Selkirks. The knowledge that there are unattained heights, whose whiteness, jagged heights rival those of the Swiss Alps in every respect, will be fresh to many people who have almost come to believe that only the summits of the Himalayas, rising into the rarified air of Central Asia, are bleak as the chains of the moon, remain to be surmounted.

Four very prominent peaks among a multitude of lesser ones in this region, are still virgin summits, although they have been attacked. They are Mount Pinnacle which was attempted three times in one season, but without success; the north tower of Mount Goodfellow, Mount Douglas and Mount Stanford, discovered two years ago by triangulation to be the highest of the Selkirks, and the Mount Blue of this section. All are worthy of the ambition of the most skillful climbers.

LONG JOURNEY.
The base of Mount Sanford has never been approached nearer than twenty-five miles. This mountain will be essayed by Benjamin S. Comstock of New York City, a veteran Alpine climber, who has visited this region for six years. He will be accompanied by a companion and two Swiss guides. The start for the summit of the 11,000-foot peak will be made on July 10. It is believed that it will take at least ten days to perform the feat, if it is accomplished. To reach the base the party will drop down the Columbia river twenty-five miles in a canoe to the mouth of Green River, forty miles from the mountain's base. Up stream they will push as far as possible before caching some of their food supplies and setting out on foot for the actual climb.

EFFORT WILL BE MADE BY MEMBERS OF THE CLUB ALSO TO SURMOUNT THE FATTOPPED "TOWER" of Mount Pinnacle, which rises to a height of 11,000 feet out of the glaciers. Last summer an unsuccessful attempt was made by members of the club to reach the crest of this tower of rock, 11,000 feet above sea level.

SPECIAL PARAPHERNALIA.
The train which bears the climbers into Glacier will dispense a quantity of baggage of a character that will defy the most energetic effort of the baggage smasher. Thick-soled shoes and smelling like an automobile or some other malodorous device; tough, ash-handled ice axes and thoroughly tested hammer ropes in bundles will be among the pieces of baggage slung out of the doors of the cars.

Mountain climbing, like other sports, calls for special paraphernalia. And like the follower of other sports, the expert have their own ideas as to what is what. The thickness of the soles, the kind and number of nails and the best kind of oil to use in connection with the footwear; the weight of the ropes and the best kinds of knots and the balance of ice axes are all topics which may be depended upon to furnish as much excitement around the campfire as the discussion of an anti-gambling bill. Indeed, there is more reason for having things just right in this sport than in many others, for life may be dependent upon the "correctness" of the paraphernalia.

IMPORTANT DETAILS.
A pair of properly nailed boots is considered to be the most important detail of a climber's outfit. They must be waterproof to their very tops. Every nail must be driven with a steady and individuality that amounts to an art. Care must be taken to see that the leather is firm enough to hold the nails after they have been driven, for it would be inconvenient to have them come out when the wearer was part way up a rock face which contained only two-inch footholds. Nails are very important when they hold the climber on the conquest of a mountain and precipitation into a glorious panorama spread out a few hundred feet below.

The rope is considered of the next importance by the expert. The position mountaineer, ambitious to be the first to reach the summit.

THE TROUBLE IN INDIA.

There is no immediate danger in India. Lord Kitchener the greatest military organizer of modern days, has not been idle during the past six years; his army, even making all allowances for possible but improbable disaffection among the native forces, is always ready, prepared to strike swiftly and strongly at whatever danger may threaten. Instead of a series of scattered units, ineffective excepting at two months' notice, it is a mobile body capable of taking the field within the hour, of moving en masse to whatever district may be named, and rendering effective service without the least preliminary preparation. Never was such an expedition in India organized, never such an order executed more promptly and effectively than the movement a few months ago against the Zalka Khela, of which the present Afghan rising is an outcome. The most recent expedition through the world-famed Khyber Pass seems to have been conducted with equal celerity and equal success.

The present trouble in India is somewhat confusing to one who has not closely followed the trend of affairs in that restless country. It arises from two distinct causes. The Zalka tribes are typical mountaineers, always ready for a fight, always prepared to become firm friends with the British. They take occasional splices of excitement and make trouble for their neighbors. It was determined to punish them for their raids on more peaceful tribes and General Willcocks, commander of the punitive expedition, the story of which is well known. The Zalka people were promptly put in order, but the fighting spirit displayed by them has affected their not-distant neighbors, the Afghans, who for some time have been awaiting an opportunity to make trouble. The Afghans have grievances. Britain some little time ago entered into an agreement with Russia, one portion of which dealt with the Indian frontier. It was arranged that Afghanistan should be excluded from the sphere of Russian influence, that all negotiations between Russia and Afghanistan should be conducted through Great Britain, that the latter country should countenance no influence hostile to Russia, and that she should exercise a peaceful influence over Afghanistan, both Britain and Russia to have equal commercial advantages there. To this agreement the Amir did not subscribe; he was offended at the way he had been treated during the negotiations and it is not beyond possibility that he is in some measure responsible for the present outbreak. An expedition of twelve or fifteen thousand men must have been organized by someone, and if not by the ruler of the country it will easily be put down by the British troops with his help. If on the other hand the Amir is responsible, another Afghan war may develop, but this time without the former dread of Russia advancing on the border. This attack on the part of the Afghans should not be confounded with the more serious danger arising from disaffection among the Bengalees and certain other Indian peoples. No one but an Indian can fathom the Indian mind, and the depths of intrigue which exist form the most difficult problem with which British administrators are called upon to deal. Because of real or fancied grievances, leading members at the great Indian congress held two years ago commenced an active campaign against British rule. Since that time a boycott of all British manufactures has been in progress resulting in considerable loss. And apparently spread until it now appears to be confined to the many parts of it.

DISCIPLINE ON WARSHIP WHICH IS GOING DOWN

No Such Thing as Panic on a British Warship When Disaster Occurs

The recent accident which resulted in the loss by sinking of H. M. S. Glaxier, will perhaps cause many to wonder what the procedure is when "abandon ship" is the order of the day. Let us suppose, then, that we are on board H. M. S. Russell, a type of battleship which is very common in the Royal Navy. Her tonnage is 14,000 tons, and her armament consists of 4 12-inch guns and 12 6-inch guns, and her crew is 715 officers and men. She is on her way, in company with the rest of the Channel Fleet to Gibraltar, having sailed from England two days previously, and when they reach Gibraltar, they are to take part in the Tercentennial celebration of the capture of the impregnable fortress.

Ahead of her are two ships, the Albatross and Cornwallis, the latter ship bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral Sir R. J. Chilchester, V. C., C. V. O., C. M. G., while astern of her in the same line are three more battleships, slightly larger, H. M. S. Formidable, Bulwark and Irresistible. Parallel to this line and streaming about three cables away in the same direction is another line of battleships, which consists of H. M. S. Exmouth, Montagu, Glory, Duncan, Albion, and Vanguard. So we see that our partner, so to speak, in the other line, is H. M. S. Glory who is just a trifle heavier than we are, owing to her greater thickness of armor.

Suddenly from the Flagship's after bridge, two flags are seen flying up the Halliards, which the keen eye of our signal boy picks out for "R. 2," the signal meaning "Stop Engines" and reports it as such to our captain, by name Robert Drake, who orders "stand by them." As the signal is handed down, our engines cease to vibrate and a kind of uneasy stillness pervades the ship, as the persistent hum, which has been going on for over forty-eight hours dies away and gives place to one of deadening silence.

In the general pause which ensues, the Flagship makes a signal to the effect that the Fleet will pipe "Hands to bathe" for 20 minutes, and then will carry out tactical exercises and manoeuvres, after which they will carry on to Gibraltar, arriving there about 3.30 p. m. on Monday evening.

So for about half an hour, the ships become glorified bathing boxes, and from every projecting point in the ship, from the very Jackstaff on the foremast to the cover of the captain's stern-walk, unclad muscular figures can be seen diving into the blue gray waters, and climbing out again by ropes, looking like human Newfoundlanders. When, however, the retire is sounded, and the signal "manoeuvres" is seen floating from the Flagship's main truck, all thought of play and enjoyment is given up. Officers and men alike turn their thoughts to the grim reality of work, for this signal means "Admiral intends to proceed at forty-eight revolutions," or, in common parlance, that the fleet is about to get under way again at a speed of 8 knots, in order to carry out manoeuvres.

Now, to the lay mind, these manoeuvres, even when actually performed before its very eyes do not seem to be of very much significance, but when one gets "behind the ropes" so to say, and begins to know something about "Things Naval," one soon finds out that in all the vocabulary of the Successful Executive Naval Officer, there is no more important word than "manoeuvre," and to their credit be it said, naval officers are usually very good in that particular science, whether exercised on the bosom of the ocean, with ten or 12 for playthings, or manoeuvring a girl at dinner.

and they have on makes the preventing of a collision an impossibility. We cannot turn to the right or left, for there are ships there too, and as we cannot go back we must go forward. To paraphrase Macaulay's lines: "The ship astern cries forward. The ship in front cries back," so the captain shouts "Ring the fire bell." Bugler sound, "Collision quarters." Boat's mate, pipe "all hands on deck," which sends a quiver through their whole frame, she seems to rise out of the water for a moment, then give a lurch and sink to her former position. The Glory, meanwhile, has dropped from the hole she made in our bows, and the whole of her fore-castle is buckled up like paper. But for ourselves matters are much worse, the Glory begins to pour in through the rigging, and the ship gradually, very slowly, but as surely, begins to settle down by the bows. The captain sees this and with a shrug of his shoulders recognizes that it is all over and gives the order to "abandon ship." Previously to this all the large boats—boom boats—as they were called, were being got out and were floating alongside the ship, and now the smaller boats—cutters, gigs, galleys, etc., are lowered, and the men fill them up according to their stations; first the steam boats are filled, with indeed "good measure, pressed down, running over the brim," and the launch, cutters, etc., all are loaded with their human cargo until at last the ship is empty save for the captain and his A.D.C. and the sick men. These are lowered into the galley, which is the boat provided for the captain's personal use, the A. D. C. goes on board, and then the captain, having ascertained that nothing of value to the ship's fame and name that could be saved, has been left behind, takes one last long look at that which a quarter of an hour ago had been an intricate, delicate, deadly machine but was now merely a mass of scrap iron, salutes the flag which remains flying proudly to the last, and then as the list of the ship by the bows gets more decided, and the steam is beginning to get denser from the engines, showing that the water is getting nearer to the boilers, he slides down the rope to the boat and orders give way together.

Towed by the steamboats, all the other boats move away from the sinking vessel, towards the other ships which have already lowered boats to help them if need be, but all at once, as they gaze with bated breath and strained expression at the pitiful sight, a huge explosion is heard, followed by a tremendous cloud of steam, and when the latter has cleared off all that remains of the $5,000,000 plaything of the nation, which has been their home for the past few months, is a few planks and bits of wreckage strewn across surface.

Luckily for us the other ships quickly take us on board and look after us, after which the fleet reforms without its missing member and continues on its way for Gibraltar, but on the hearts and minds of all an impression has been created which will never be effaced.

It is a fitting feature of the discipline displayed by the chief petty officer in the ship that she is a certain girl at dinner.

GIRL'S 'MERRY WIDOW'

ABLAZE ON HER HEAD

Leaned Over to Pick Up Veil and Gas Jet Set Fire to Hat

CORNING, N. Y., May 6.—Leaning over to pick up a veil she had dropped Miss Edna Market's Merry Widow hat touched the 'flame of an unshaded gas jet and in an instant the hat was all ablaze today.

It was intended to be Corning's biggest and most dazzling "Merry Widow" and had just reached town from New York. Miss Market was getting ready to go shopping and astounded the natives with her newest millinery acquisition. She was almost prepared for this expedition when the accident occurred, and unable to quickly extract the hatpins, she ran down stairs with her head seemingly all ablaze. Finally tearing off the hat she smothered the flames with a rug. No greater piece of destruction in millinery could be imagined. Then Miss Market sat down and wept. She didn't go shopping.

THE KIRK BROWN CO. IN THE ETERNAL CITY

At the Opera House last evening the Kirk Brown Company presented in a splendid manner the dramatization of Hall Caine's Eternal City, with Mr. Brown in the role of David Rossi, and Miss Fields as Roma. The latter carries the burden of the play throughout and her work last evening was deserving of the highest praise. She sustained an exacting part with much dramatic force, and added to her already large share of popularity, Mr. Brown, as usual, gave a most satisfactory interpretation and was repeatedly applauded. Among the other members of the cast particular mention should be made of Mr. Crosby who appeared as Baron Bonelli, the prime minister, and Theodore Bird as Bruno Racco. Both had good parts, and shared with Miss Fields and Mr. Brown the honors of the evening. Particular mention should be made of the fine stage settings in several of the scenes, especially in those representing Bonelli's palace and the Vatican gardens. The lighting effects were also good, and the piece was attractively costumed. The Eternal City will be repeated this evening.

TO ENCOURAGE TOBACCO GROWING Expert Will Teach Canadians How to Grow and Cure the Leaf

OTTAWA, May 6.—The Government is starting a vigorous campaign for the improvement of Canadian tobacco. Two years ago a tobacco expert, Mr. Felix Cloutier, was brought from France to see what were the possibilities of Canadian tobacco culture. He has been conducting careful experiments in Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia and has found that a high yield of tobacco can be produced but that the past have been defective in the curing process.

PLAN TO VANQUISH THE MONARCHS OF THE SELKIRKS

Early in July, when the Canadian Alpine Club assembles at Clackier, British Columbia, for its annual outing, the members who respond to the call of the mountain peaks will attempt to obtain fresh thrills and furnish new material for the annals of the conquest of at least two of the unconquered monarchs of the Selkirks.

of some well-known peak, and dependent upon the pushing and pulling powers of guides in the accomplishment of his ambition is likely to think it superior in rank to his footgear. The popular idea of the use of the Alpine climbing rope, with its strands of red, is sometimes amusing. One valuable young man at Zermatt was heard enlightening some friends in this fashion:—

JOINING THE PARTY.

"Ah, yes! They use the rope to prevent them from losing each other, and when they come to the glacier they take hold of it and climb it." Others have an idea that the guides attempt to rival the Indian fakirs who according to report take a coil of rope, throw it into midair, climb it and then pull the loose end up after them. In reality, of course, it is used not so much as an adjunct to climbing as a means of safety for the whole party, which attached by the rope, spreads out its base over the dangerous ground.

LONG JOURNEY.
The base of Mount Sanford has never been approached nearer than twenty-five miles. This mountain will be essayed by Benjamin S. Comstock, of New York City, a veteran Alpine climber, who has visited this region for six years. He will be accompanied by a companion and two Swiss guides. The start for the summit of the 11,600-foot peak will be made on July 10. It is believed that it will take at least ten days to perform the feat. If it is accomplished, to reach the base the party will drop down the Columbia river twenty-five miles in a canoe to the mouth of Green River, forty miles from the mountain's base. Up this stream they will pass as far as possible before caching some of their food supplies and setting out on foot for the actual climb.

SPECIAL PARAPHERNALIA.
The train which bears the climbers into Glacier will disgorge a quantity of baggage of a character that will defy the most energetic effort of the baggage smasher. Thick-soled shoes studded with nails like a castle door and smelling like an automobile or some other maledorous device; tough, ash-handled ice axes and thoroughly tested hippen ropes in bundles will be among the pieces of baggage slung out of the doors of the cars.

Mountain climbing, like other sports, calls for special paraphernalia. And like the follower of other sports, the expert has their own ideas as to what is what. The thickness of the soles, the kind and number of nails and the best kind of oil to use in connection with the footgear; the weight of the ropes and the best kinds of knots and the balance of ice axes are all topics which may be depended upon to furnish as much excitement around the campfire as the discussion of an anti-gambling bill. Indeed, there is more reason for having things just right in this sport than in many others, for life may be dependent upon the "correctness" of the paraphernalia.

IMPORTANT DETAILS.
A pair of properly nailed boots is considered to be the most important detail of a climber's outfit. They must be waterproof to their very tops. Every nail must be driven with a steady and individuality that amounts to an art. Care must be taken to see that the leather is firm enough to hold the nails after they have been driven, for it would be inconvenient to have them come out when the wearer was part way up a rock face containing only two-inch

There are many kinds of knots used for joining the members of the party together. The necessity for doing this stoutly and surely, is illustrated by an incident told by Mr. Comstock. Mr. Comstock was a member of a party of four last summer which were endeavoring to climb Mount Aberdeen in the Selkirks. They were using a short rope. The last man on the line (Mr. Mitchell) was in the middle of a couloir, or deep gully. The snow slid from beneath him, leaving him slipping in the bare ice without footing. The couloir terminated in a precipice, and a body falling would have descended at least a thousand feet. As Mr. Mitchell's weight came upon the rope it untied. Fortunately at that moment he had managed to grasp the rope with his left hand, his ice axe being in his right. He succeeded in holding fast until in some way he managed to retie himself and was helped across the couloir to the rocks in which the remainder of the party were clinging.

EXPERT CLIMBERS.
The amateur often has to be initiated into such details as the proper part of the body about which to tie the rope. It was fortunate for a party of four mountaineers being conveyed across a much canvassed snow-covered glacier in the Alps that they met a party of experienced climbers. They were being led by a Swiss who was ignorant of the business of guide, having undertaken the task in the absence of his father who was experienced. He had directed the members of his party to tie the rope about their necks. The expert climbers set the innocent right before mischief had been done.

AXE FIEND.
There is in mountain climbing such a person as an axe fiend. He carries his axe with a degree of carelessness that may destroy the eyesight of a person coming up behind him. A bag, a holding lantern for use in making early starts, goggles, a fine cup, a good compass, feet, fasks and warm clothing not consist the more climber, but will keep among the requirements of a mountain climber. form. P to return start.

FANATICS ARE AT BOTTOM OF INDIAN TROUBLE

Mullahs Stir Up Tribes—Ameer's Conduct Puzzling—Troops Engaged

SIMLA, India, May 6.—It seems certain now that the uprising of the Mohmands and the invasion of India by the Afghan fanatics is an aftermath of the Zakkai Kheh uprising a few months ago so speedily put down by the troops under Sir James Willcocks.

POOR REPUTATION AS FIGHTERS. From a military source in close touch with the Indian frontier, the star correspondent is informed that if they so desired the Mohmands can assemble about 10,000 men.

Second Brigade: 2nd Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers, 53rd Sikhs, 7th (White) and 8th (Black) Bn's, A. Coy. of No. 1 British Field Hospital, and No. 101 Native Field Hospital.

General Willcocks is the general officer commanding, with Brigadier-General C. Anderson, Major-General A. Barrett, and Brigadier-General J. G. Ramsay commanding the three brigades.

Colonel Dick is to command the lines of communication. With General Willcocks is Major Ross Kempel, known to his familiar as "The King of the Khyber," whose knowledge of the frontier is surpassed only by his daring and his influence with the Pathans.

LEADERS OF UPRISING. News from Malakand confirms the reports of unrest in the Bajaur district. The Mohmand mullahs, who are responsible for the present state of affairs, have sent messengers and written letters to the leading men in the Swat district, including the mullahs who head the fanatical Khel of 187. Their endeavors, however, appear to have been fruitless.

On the night of April 23, while he was asleep in his tent, he was awakened by a roaring sound which he is said to have mistaken for a tornado. The bar was caught up in the vortex and was whirled around with such rapidity that he became giddy and clung to the floor to maintain his equilibrium.

That the barn was carried through the air for a long distance until by a freak of nature the tornado reversed its motion, greatly to his discomfort, and returned the barn to the place from which it came.

That in a gentle and careful manner, the whole structure settled back upon its foundations so that not even a chicken was disturbed upon its roost, and not a joint was sprung.

That all this took place in the space of less than an hour and was not noticed by the members of his family in the dwelling house 100 feet away. Peculiar freak in storm motion might properly be called the Swedish movement.

MEANEST MAN'S HEART IS MOVING. ELLIOTTSTOWN, Pa., May 6.—One of the meanest men in this vicinity is old Isaac Black, and yet the slight of a hungry boy moved his heart. Of course, it did not move it very far, as it was a novel feature in tribal warfare, reported from several sources, is that the enemy was possessed of an organized transport, and supply train to bring food, ammunition and cash mostly from Afghan territory.

Major-General Anderson reported from Shunkangar, that the whole line of foothills had been occupied by the enemy, who had kept up a desultory fire throughout the day. A large body of tribesmen advancing on Ghahsadar had been dispersed by shells.

General Anderson also reported that the Sikh Mullah, and his son, with 2000 men, had reached Gundabulma, and that the general attitude of the Mohmands had become more aggressive.

A telegram from Sir James Willcocks states that the enemy attacked the Adisar bridge and were repulsed. One Sepoy was wounded, Shakkard was also slain, and a sharp attack made on Mata, one Sepoy being wounded.

The enemy looted the village of Katal, five miles inside the British border, and also attacked Gava Sar, being four killed and seven wounded.

There is no doubt that the tribal lawbreakers are of a fanatical and aggressive character. Political reports point to the whole area between the Katur River on the west and the Panjkora River on the east up to Jandol on the north, as affected by the preaching of a Holy War.

A large band of Afghans and Bajauris, led by prominent Mullahs and Shellas, are reported as joining the Mohmands.

His landlord did not bother much until he found another tenant, who was referred to get the place and who offered real money. Then he tried to find no fault with it and preferred to remain upon the same old terms.

Finally the landlord offered to move Thompson free of cost. The tenant would not consider it. There were many references, and at last, when he was offered $5 to leave, Thompson agreed, just to show that he was anxious to be accommodating.

WIFE SPERCHLESS. HUBBY TALKS NOW. JACKSONVILLE, Pa., May 6.—After a silence of fifteen years, Isaac Hollar was moved to talk to his wife a few days ago.

Mr. Hollar had taken a vow never to speak to Hollar after a quarrel, in which he declared that she had enough talk to do for both and had crowding the family cists. So, for fifteen years, he kept silent.

He was moved to change his mind only after a distressing accident had happened to his wife. While she was in an excited frame of mind and was engaged in reminding him of his shortcomings, her tongue suddenly became paralyzed, so that in a second she became speechless.

TORNADOES AND TEARS THE LATEST HELPS IN MOVING.

Then There's the Touching Story of How the Meanest Man's Heart is Moved—Storm With the Swedish Movement.

TORNADO BRINGS THIS BARN BACK. GREEN VILLAGE, Pa., May 6.—Yon Yensen was compelled to make an affidavit before his friends would believe the slightly extravagant story relating to his experience of last Thursday.

Even at that there are scoffers who refuse to be convinced. Mr. Yensen deposes and says that: On the night of April 23, while he was asleep in his tent, he was awakened by a roaring sound which he is said to have mistaken for a tornado.

That the barn was carried through the air for a long distance until by a freak of nature the tornado reversed its motion, greatly to his discomfort, and returned the barn to the place from which it came.

SCOTLAND YARD HAS GRIP ON ANARCHISTS IN LONDON

Elaborate System by Which Groups of Reds Are Kept Under the Eyes of Noted Detectives

LONDON, May 6.—The denunciation of Anarchy and Anarchists by President Roosevelt and his recommendations that there should be further repressive legislation dealing with the problems presented by Anarchy, will probably increase the attention with which these "enemies of mankind" regard England as a place of domicile. In this country, however, a silent but keen battle, in which on one side vigilance is never relaxed, is continually going on between Scotland Yard and the Foreign and English Anarchists who reside in London and the provinces.

The number of Anarchists in England, chiefly owing to immigration from other countries, where more stringent police methods prevail, is certainly greater today than was the case a few years ago; but although they are not actively interfered with, practically every man among them, by their plans and their movements are known to the detective officers who belong to what is known at Scotland Yard as the special branch.

WAS A TOTAL WRECK FROM HEART FAILURE.

Heart disease is characterized by its stealthy approach and its variety of forms, yet in all its forms nature gives unmistakable signals which warn us of its presence. One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again there may be the most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. You may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief, such speedy restoration to health that no one need suffer.

Mr. Dennis Carr, Geary, N.B., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you a few lines to let you know the great blessing your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been to me. I was a total wreck from heart failure, my wife advised me to take your pills, and after using two boxes I was restored to perfect health. I am now sixty-two years old and feel almost as well as I did at twenty."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

colony of Jewish Anarchists, who possess a club house and publish two journals. The former has a circulation of about 3,000 and the latter of 5,000. Both are printed in Yiddish. There is also a Russian group in the East-end. The total membership of the various London groups is between 3,000 and 4,000. Groups have also been established in thirty provincial towns, including Liverpool, Leeds, Sheffield, Hull, Norwich, Birmingham, Manchester, Swansea, Glasgow, and Edinburgh.

INCREASED PAY FOR U. S. ARMY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Senator Warren today reported to the senate a complete agreement of the conference on the army appropriation bill and it was adopted. It makes a flat increase of $500 a year in the pay of officers and of $35 in the pay of enlisted men in the army. The bill is finally agreed to $55,382,246. The additional appropriations made by the senate for supplies and incidental expenses for the quarter master's department, construction of barracks and quarters for the field artillery for the organized militia, manufacture of arms and other items were scaled down and $3,463,162 eliminated from the bill.

Lamson Pride.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.) Seymour frowned savagely into the fire and rumbled his hair with impatient fingers. "If you would listen to reason," began Pauline, argumentatively, but her fiance interrupted her. "Reason!" he snorted contemptuously. "There is no such word as reason in a woman's vocabulary!" Miss Lamson arose from her seat and surveyed him with cool hauteur. "You forget yourself, Mr. Seymour! Remember, please, that you have not now, and never will have, the right to address me in that manner! I beg you will excuse me, sir. Good night!" She swept from the room while Seymour stared miserably after her. "Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed and Pauline did not return. Then Seymour got upon his feet, and taking his hat and stick, left the house with a sense of deep injury, somewhat tempered by the knowledge that he was entirely in the wrong. If Polly wanted the dining room on the south side of the new house they were building, what matter? His own wishes were for a cool, shady dining room on the north side of the house, while the library occupied the sunny southern exposure, where Pauline could have blooming plants in the windows and where he could see her bright head bending over her sewing when he looked up from his work. What evil spirit had tempted him to argue the question with her and to act like an unmanly brute? Now there would be no home at all. He turned in at the club and spent the evening in solitary wretchedness. Miss Lamson made dignified haste to her own room, where she locked the door and confided to her pillow that Bob Seymour was a sour, cross, crabbed old thing, and that she was glad they would never be married. Upon this reflection she sobbed more bitterly.

Finally, when the fury of her brief mental storm had subsided, she heard the closing of the front door and the echo of familiar footsteps on the pavement dying into silence. She sat up energetically. "Pauline Lamson, you are a little fool!" she soliloquized. "If Bob wants the library on the south side of the house, what difference does it make to you? He has to work in there most of the day, while the dining room is only used at meal times and it doesn't matter where it is. Now there won't be any library, north or south, nor any dining room, nor anything, for I cannot go back on my word; a Lamson never does that!" She sobbed herself into a most unpleasant slumber, which was broken by frequent lapses into wakefulness, and at last a gray morning dawned. And all the mornings and afternoons were gray as that, for Bob Seymour did not come to see for pardon, and neither did Pauline send the little note which would have brought him repentant to her feet. It was Seymour's pride against Lamson's pride, and so Love drew his rosary malleable about his neck, and spread his wings to be about other and more profitable business.

"I came by the new house today, Pauline, and it is a dear!" Emilie Raymond helped herself to another bonbon from the dish on Pauline's tea table and nibbled it appreciatively. "Yes?" Pauline's voice was faint and there was a pink flush in either cheek. "Yes!" mimicked Miss Raymond petulantly. "Your indifference is well assumed, Polly, dear; but—" "Emilie, I must tell you—I haven't told another soul—that Bob Seymour and I are not going to be married!" Miss Raymond uttered a surprised shriek. "Polly Lamson, what do you mean? Why, I was talking with Bob not five minutes ago—he was standing on the steps of the new house—and from what he said—he seemed with embarrassment and embarrassment with the bon-bon dish. "What did he say?" Pauline's tone was feebly cold. "Why—now, dear, of course I don't

CHIEF ENGINEER I. C. R. EXPLAINS CONTRACTS

OTTAWA, Ont., May 6.—Under examination before the public accounts committee this morning, as to Wallberg's contracts with the intercolonial at Moncton, Chief Engineer MacKenzie stated that Wallberg was paid 88 cents per cubic yard for excavations and $12.75 for concrete work, while Rhodes, Curry and Company got only 25 cents per cubic yard for excavations and $12.75 for concrete work. MacKenzie explained that the work was done under different conditions, in the Wallberg contract he had made changes such as deepening the foundation and widening the wall, which had increased the cost of the Moncton structure by $10,000, but this was necessary to increase the stability of the buildings.

SIR WILFRID BUSHY WITH DEPUTATIONS

OTTAWA, May 6.—A deputation from Chatham and Newcastle, New Brunswick, saw Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Sydney Fisher this afternoon and asked for the grant of $50,000 for the Dominion exhibition for 1909. Fredericton has already applied. Deputation wants the grant also, and today's deputation urged claims of the northern section of the province. A deputation of prominent Irish Catholic Liberals from different parts of Ontario and Quebec waited on the premier today to urge that the Irish Catholics should have further representation in the Dominion cabinet. Sir Wilfrid received the deputation cordially and said he would take the matter into his consideration. The deputation was in charge of W. J. O'Reilly of Toronto.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Senator Lodge today secured favorable action in the senate committee on foreign relations on three propositions looking to the purchase of a building in Paris for use as an American embassy.

At the regular meeting of County Carleton last week the delegates were chosen to attend the High Court which meets in St. John on the 12th inst. The delegates are Rev. W. P. Dunham, H. J. Clark and H. T. Schooley. It is reported that the pulp mill will shut down for a few weeks, during which time needed repairs will be made on the mill. The company have not given out any information relating to the period during which the mill will be shut down. Unless heavy rains fall within a short time, there is danger of the company's large cut of last winter being "hung up" for want of water as the tributaries of the main river are very low. The mill has been running to the limit of its capacity and huge piles of manufactured pulp are on the wharves. It is understood that this will be shipped.—Greenside.

NO NEW BRUNSWICK MAN ON THE BISLEY TEAM

ON THE BISLEY TEAM

The Highest Score Made by Marksman from this Province Was Fifty Third in the List

The names of the members of the Bisley team competition which were announced yesterday show only one Maritime man on the team and one on the waiting list.

The leading man on the New Brunswick team came fifty-third in the Bisley aggregate at the Dominion meet. The local marksmen are naturally disappointed at the showing made. In forty years it was not unusual for the Maritime Province to have several members on the Bisley team, but for the last few years there has been only one New Brunswick man at Bisley. Last year Major Wetmore won a place on the waiting list and as enough others dropped out got a place on the team.

Three years ago Capt. Forbes won a place on the team but was not able to go to England. There are a number of conditions which make it difficult for the local men to make a better showing. Shooting conditions in St. John are not as good as in Upper Canada on account of the more variable winds and the presence of fog which makes practice difficult. Some system of interesting more of the younger lads in the sport would probably help to increase the average efficiency.

Last year, owing to the number of leaders who were unable to go to Bisley, the thirty-fifth man on the list got a place. As the highest score made by a New Brunswick man in the Dominion meet was fifty-third on the list, it is certain that no one from this province will go to Bisley this year.

HAROLD GREGG DIES

PROM EFFECTS OF GUNSHOT WOUNDS

Popular Young Man Who Was Hurt Last Saturday Passed Away at the Hospital This Morning.

As the result of gunshot wounds received last Saturday, while duck shooting, Harold H. Gregg died at the Public Hospital this morning.

Mr. Gregg received the injury which resulted in his death when he was in a boat with Charles and Roy Carvill at Long Reach, Queens Co. He was pulling a shot gun towards him in a boat, when the trigger caught and discharged the gun. Part of his hand was blown off and some of the shot entered his abdomen. His wounds were dressed by Dr. Gilchrist, of Greenwick, and he was then brought to the city and placed in the hospital. It was thought at first that the wounds were not serious, and until last night his friends fully expected him to recover. Two operations were performed to remove the shot, but yesterday peritonitis set in, causing Mr. Gregg's death at eight o'clock this morning.

Mr. Gregg was eighteen years of age and has been teaching school for the past year at Long Reach. He was regarded by his friends as a young man of great promise.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Gregg, of Snider's; H. M. and P. D. at home, Charles, a student at Mount Allison, and S. B. of St. John; and four sisters, Mrs. J. Chown, of St. John, Mrs. Vernon Patterson of Coles Island, Queens Co., Mrs. Roy Guphill of Kastalla, Grand Manan, and Miss Eva at home.

The remains will be taken to the home of his parents by the I. C. R. tomorrow morning, and the funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon to the Methodist church cemetery at Snider's Mountain.

CONSTABLES MUST BE NEATLY DRESSED IN COURT

This morning there was a session of the civil court with Judge Ritchie presiding. At each session a city constable is in charge to keep order. It happened that the constable whose turn it was to perform these duties this morning was Constable Cody. The elderly officer took his stand at the witness box. He was not very neatly attired, and the judge took exception to his appearance, saying: "You are the constable of the court this Thursday, but in future I want training tomorrow morning, and the constable to be properly attired, and not to come here as if he were going to saw wood."

The old man stuck to his post, called "order," and the business proceeded.

PLANNING FOR THE BIGGEST EXHIBITION YET HELD

The executive of the Exhibition Association will meet tonight in their new rooms on King street. R. H. Arnold, the manager of the association, will submit his preliminary report and steps will probably be taken to formulate the policy for the coming year, and lay down definite lines for the work this season.

It is likely that the prize list will be increased to provide more generously for some of the classes and give encouragement to a wider scope of exhibits.

The new manager has taken hold of his duties in an energetic manner and already keen interest is being displayed in the big fall event.

Efforts will be made to make this year's exhibition distinctive and interesting. The various departments, such as live stock, poultry, agriculture and manufacturing products, will all receive careful attention, and it is expected that the local industries will receive more prominence than usual.
