The Little Feet.
God bless the little feet that can never go astray!
For the little shoes are empty, in my closet laid away.
I sometimes take one in my hand, forgetting till I see
It is a little, half-worn shoe, and much too small for me;
And all at once I feel a sense of bitter loss and pain,
As sharp as when, two years ago, it cut my heart in twain.
O, little feet that weary not! I wait for them no more;
For I am drifting on the tide, and they have reached the shore.
And, while the blinding tears drop wet those little shoes so old,
I tried to think my darling's feet are treading streets of gold;
And then I lay them down again, but always torn and say,
"God bless the little feet that now can never go astray!"
And while I thus am standing here, I almost seem to see
The little form beside me just as it used to be;
The little face uplifted, with its soft and tender eyes;
Ah me! I might have known that look was born for Paradise.
I reach my arms out fondly; but they clasp the empty air,
For there's nothing of my darling but the shoes she used to wear.
Oh! the bitterness of parting never can be done away
Until I meet my darling, where my feet can never stray;
When I no more am drifting out upon the surging tide,
But with her safety landed on the emerald river side.
Be patient, heart, while waiting to see the shining way;
For the little feet in the shining street can never go astray.

servants uttered most piercing shrieks. The poor little children were too frightened to scream, but clung tremblingly to Mary.
Mrs. Gibbs was in great distress. She knew not at first whether it was an attack by friends on the camp, or an assault on the house by the enemy. She ordered the servant to cease their wailing and dress themselves. Then her husband and the children were prepared, and, while the cannon belled in quick succession, and the noise around the house grew louder, the father and mother consulted what was best to do. It was now evident the attack was made by their own friends, and its object was to dislodge the enemy. But Mr. Gibbs did not know that the house would not be fired upon, and he advised instant flight. He was carried to his chair and the whole household sallied forth from a back door.
The scene was terrific. The night was pitchy dark, and when, just as they stepped out, a sheet of flame belched forth from the vessels, it seemed to be almost against their faces. This roar shook the ground. The troops were too busy saving themselves to notice the fugitives and they pushed on as rapidly as possible. No one was sufficiently protected from the rain. Little Mary had the hardest part, for nearly all the children were in her care. The mud was deep. Some of the little ones could walk but a short distance at a time, and had to be carried—Mary having always one, sometimes two, in her arms. Several of the servants were near her, but none of them seemed to notice her or her burdens. The last hour had been driven off that very day, there was no escape but on foot.
Suddenly a ball came crashing by them through the trees! Then a charge of grape-shot cut the boughs overhead. They were exactly in range of the guns! It was evident they had taken the worst direction, but there was no help for it now—it was too late to turn back. In her agony the mother cried aloud on God to protect her family. Mary huddled closer the children in her arms, and trembled so she could hardly keep them. Another crash! The shot shrieked past them, striking the trees in every direction. The assault was fierce, the roar was incessant. The frightened family rushed on as swift as possible toward a friend's plantation, far back from the shore; but it was soon seen that they would not have strength to reach it, even if they were not struck down by the flying shot. The Americans were pouring their fire into these woods thinking the enemy would take refuge there. The wretched fugitives expected every moment to be the last. On they pushed through mud and rain and screaming shot.

They very soon found that they were getting more out of the range of the guns. They began to hope; yet now and then a ball tore up the trees around them, or rolled fearfully across their path. They reached one of the houses where their flesh-and-bone lived, with no one hurt; they were over a mile from the mansion, and out of range. The negroes said no shot had come that way. Unable to flee further, the family determined to stop here. As soon as they entered, Mrs. Gibbs felt her strength leaving her, and sank upon a low bed. Chilled to the bone, drenched, trembling with terror and exhaustion, the family gathered around her. She opened her eyes and looked about. She sprang up wildly.
"Oh, Mary!" she cried, "where is John?"
The little girl turned pale, and moaned; "Oh, mother! mother! he's left!" She broke into crying. The negroes quickly sympathetic, began to wring their hands and wail.
"Silence!" said Mr. Gibbs, with stern but trembling voice: The tears were in his own eyes. The little child now missing was very dear to them all, and, moreover, was deemed a sacred charge as he was one of the orphan children of Mr. Gibbs's sister, entrusted to him on her death-bed.
The wailing ceased; there was silence, broken only by sobs, and the master asked:
"Who is willing to go back after the child?"
No one spoke. Mr. Gibbs turned to his wife for counsel. As the two talked in low tones, Mrs. Gibbs called her husband's attention to Mary, who was kneeling with clasped hands, in prayer, at the foot of the bed. In a moment, the little maid rose, and came to them, saying calmly:
"Mother, I must go back after-baby."

"Oh, my child," cried the mother in agony, "I cannot let you!"
"But, mother, I must," pleaded Mary. "God will care for me."
It was a fearful responsibility. The guns yet roared constantly through the darkness; the house might now be in flames; it might be filled with carnage and blood. Mrs. Gibbs turned to her husband. His face was buried in his hands. Plainly, she must decide it herself. With streaming eyes, she looked at Mary.
"Come here, my child," she called through her sobs. Mary fell upon her mother's neck. One long, passionate embrace, in which all a mother's love and devotion were poured out, and the clinging arms were opened without a word. Mary sprang up, kissed her father's forehead, and sped forth on her dangerous mission of love.

The rain had now ceased, but the night was still dark and full of terrors, or through the trees she saw the frequent flashes of the great guns.—The woods were filled with the booming echoes, so that cannon seemed to be on every hand. She flew on with all speed. Soon she heard the crashing trees ahead, and knew that in a moment she would be once more face to face with death. She did not falter. Now she was again in the fierce whirlwind! All around her the shot whirled and shrieked. On every side branches fell crashing to the earth. A cannon ball plunged into the ground close beside her, cast over her a heap of mud, and threw her down. She sprang up and pressed on with redoubled vigor. Not yet, that ball could make her turn back.

She reached the house. She ran to the room where the little child usually slept. The bed room was empty! Distracted, she flew from chamber to chamber. Suddenly she remembered that this night he had been given to another nurse. Up into the third story she hurried, and, as she pushed open the door, the little fellow, sitting up in bed, cooed to her and put out his hands.
With the tears running down her cheeks, Mary wrapped the babe warmly and started down the stairs. Out into the darkness once more; onward with her precious burden, through cannon roar, through shot and shell! Three times she passed through this storm. The balls still swept the forest; the terrific booming filled the air.
With the child pressed tightly to her brave young heart, she fled on. She neither stumbled nor fell. The shot threw the dirt in her face, and showered the twigs down upon her head. But she was not struck. In safety she reached the hut, and fell exhausted across the threshold.
And the little boy thus saved by a girl's brave devotion, afterward became General Penwick, famous in the war of 1812.—St. Nicholas.

LORD DUFFERIN GOES TO THE EAST.
—The Earl of Dufferin has been solicited by the Marquis of Salisbury to take part in the labors of the European commission contemplated by the Berlin treaty, and will have a special duty assigned him in connection with carrying out reforms in Asia Minor.
Lord Dufferin leaves Canada next week, and Gen. Sir Patrick McDonough will become acting Governor-General in virtue of his office of Commander-in-Chief of the Queen's troops. The Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise leave England for Canada in the first week of October. Lord Dufferin has held office in the East before, and is, in official circles, regarded as the probable successor of Lord Lytton in the Governor-Generalship of India.

A Storm Down South.
Richmond, Va., Sept. 12, 1878.—Special despatches received here to-night state that a most terrific and destructive tornado passed through the States of North Carolina and Virginia. The first account, which comes from Goldsboro, N. C., states that the course of the cyclone was from northeast and southwest, and that it struck a point three miles from that city about seven a. m. Its path was only about one hundred yards wide, but its fury and devastation are said to be unprecedented. Every house in its way was demolished, and timber, wearing apparel and bedding are scattered for miles around the country. One negro woman is reported mortally wounded and a negro man killed in Wayne county, N. C. The corpse of the man was blown a considerable distance from the scene of his death. Four white people in the same county are seriously injured. They are not expected to live; their legs are broken and they are internally injured. A large number of hogs, cows, and horses were killed, and barns, out-houses and dwellings blown down.

COTTON STALKS DESTROYED.
All the cotton stalks were stripped naked and the loss of crops will fall very heavily on the victims of the tornado. The length of the disaster is unknown.

FURTHER SOUTH.
Accounts from Pender and New Hanover counties, further South, state that the damage and loss was very serious there. The other accounts come from Burkeville, in Virginia, but give no particulars beyond the mere announcement that a tornado swept over the Richmond and Danville road, one mile west of that point, demolishing telegraph poles, completely demolishing and clearing the woods in its track and creating great damage. Two houses were blown down, and wagons, fences and a large quantity of farm material were taken off. A calf was lifted up and blown about three hundred yards. Corn and tobacco fields were completely devastated. The country through which this tornado passed is inaccessible by telegraph, except at the points given above, so that the details of destruction cannot be obtained for perhaps several days.—Herald.

Indians on the War Path.
N. Y. Herald.
GENERAL MILLS' FIGHT.
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 13, 1878.—The Inter-Ocean has a special from a reliable correspondent with General

Miles, dated Mammoth Spring, National Park, September 9, which reports fighting with the Banook Indians on the morning of the 4th, in which General Miles, with twenty-seven men of the Fifth Infantry, and thirty-five friendly Crows surprised the Banooks at daybreak, and after a battle of two hours' duration thirty Banooks were killed and an equal number of their men, women and children taken prisoners and sent to Fort Keogh. Of General Miles' force, Captain Bennett, of Company B, Fifth Infantry of Little Rock; a French scout and one Crow Indian were killed. Twenty-two Indian horses were killed and 200 captured. It is believed that General Miles has thus closed the Banook war.

THE NORTHERN CHETENNES.
Omaha, Neb., Sept. 13, 1878.—General Crook will arrive here to-day from the East and immediately proceed to Sidney. The Chetennes from Camp Robinson and Standing Rock Agency about 200 in number, who are en route for the reservation in Indian Territory, are expected to arrive at Sidney this morning. They were undoubtedly, when they left the outbreak by the agency Indians, decline to go further.
All advices show that the agency Chetennes are desperate and determined and they are pushing forward night and day. It is believed by those best informed that they have had communication with Sitting Bull. It is learned through scouts that the stealing horses and ravaging the country in their path. General Pope is conducting the pursuit with all the means in his power, but the Indians are making fifty and sixty miles per day.

An Eastern Miracle.
How a Dead Hindoo was Brought to Life.
In India, shortly before the mutiny of 1857, a young officer of the English line, while passing through a native village, was annoyed by the importunity of a Hindoo beggar, whom no rebuff seemed to disconcert. At length, when the filthy vagrant succeeded his petition by laying his grimy hand upon the Englishman's arm, the latter, unable to control himself any longer, repaid the freedom from a straightforward blow from the shoulder, delivered with such force that he will that the poor Hindoo fell like a log, to all appearance stone dead. Before the assault could recover from its bewilderment at this unlooked-for catastrophe, a howling swarm of natives came rushing to the spot, and, with frantic cries of vengeance upon the murderer of their countryman, dragged him off to the local magistrate, carrying with them as evidence the corpse of the slain man. Matters might well look gloomy for the prisoner, for the body showed not the slightest sign of life, while the culprit himself, overwhelmed with horror at the fatal consequences of his momentary passion, faltered and trembled in a way that would have made any ordinary judge convict him on the spot. But, happily for him, the magistrate was a veteran, whom no contrivance, however unexpected, could find unprepared. He heard the story to an end without a word of comment, and then quietly remarked that before passing sentence he wished to be quite certain that the man was really dead. The Hindoo broke in with a terrible outcry at the idea of the sacred remains being touched by an unbeliever. "Oh, I don't need to touch him," quoth the judge, coolly; "I have a sure way than that."
Without appearing to notice the look of uneasiness that began to cloud the surrounding faces, he drew forth a stick of sealing-wax, lighted it, and let fall the burning drops upon the bare breast of the corpse. Instantly the murdered man started up with an ear-piercing yell, and, tossing his arms frantically, rushed out and plunged headlong into the river, while his inconsolable mourners ran almost as quickly in the opposite direction.

The Late Thames Disaster.
The following are a few of the incidents connected with the terrible disaster in the Thames regatta, by which (the loss of the Princess Alice) some 600 persons were drowned.—
Inspector King, of the Thames police, states that he had a week's holiday, and went down to Gravesend yesterday for the day's excursion and returned in the ill-fated vessel. He had with him his wife, two children, father, mother, and brother, the latter being an old Waterloo pensioner with a wooden leg. At the moment of the collision, he was asleep in his barge, the "Charity," of Rochester, when he heard the crash of the collision, and upon getting on deck saw the "Bywell Castle" and the "Princess Alice" in collision.

The cut-water of the "Bywell Castle" had struck the "Princess Alice" right on the port-paddle-box, and literally cut her in halves. With the help of his mate, Alfred Larnes, he pushed off his barge, and managed to save three men and one woman, who were in a very exhausted state, the female being in such a fainting condition that the police took her away in an improvised stretcher made of a couple of stout-ropes. All attempts to save others were rendered impossible, the very multiplicity of boats coming to the rescue preventing any successful attempt in that direction, each boat impeding the other.
Perhaps one of the saddest scenes was a poor young girl named Palmer who had lost father, mother, two sisters, and a brother, and who had been left at home to mind the house. She had not even money to pay her fare to Woolwich to identify her lost relatives, and Mr. Towse, the secretary, gave her passes to and fro.

The "Princess Alice" was one of the largest vessels belonging to the London Steamboat Company, and has for many years formed one of their saloon squadrons. She was sister-ship to the "Albert Edward." She was of the size of 252 tons, and was licensed to carry 899 passengers, a number far in excess of that of the persons on board when the painful fatality occurred.

Death of Robert Emmett's Executioner.
On the 7th of August, a man named Barney Moran, 90 years of age, was buried out of the Ballina Workhouse. If his own statement be true he was one of the soldiers who accompanied Major Sir to Mr. Murphy's house in Thomas street, and took part in the capture of Lord Edward Fitzgerald. A more odious and detestable performance than that he enacted on the scaffold in front of St. Catherine's Church, when he assured the superintending staff of the Ballina Union, he was the executioner of Robert Emmett. Moran stated that he was doing duty as a soldier in Portobello barracks when he accepted the blood money for hanging the most beloved of the Irish martyrs of liberty.

It would not be very difficult to disprove or confirm the dying revelation of the base and sordid mercenary; the records of Portobello barracks, and the names of the men stationed there in 1803, would throw light on the disclosure. If it were known what regiment Barney served in, it could thus be obtained. The Govt. did not handsomely reward his brutal servility, since he passed his useless years in ballad singing and tramping as a beggar, and perhaps, also, as a thief, when there was any thing to steal with probable safety.—Dublin Irishman.

A Sure Remedy for Toothache.
An American homoeopathic practitioner states that he has found in the Plantago Major a sure remedy for toothache. It is, he says, the large-leaved plantain of the doorkweed, hitherto a nuisance. He gathers it when the rod has grown to full perfection. The leaves are clipped finely, packed closely in a bottle, and covered with strong alcohol for a week. By this time the bright green color has changed to a brown, and it is fit for use. In using it a piece of cotton wool is saturated with tincture and inserted in the cavity, and four drops of the same put in half glass of water of which a teaspoonful is taken. By rubbing it on the gums, it (on rubbing) was found to ameliorate the painful process of teething; and when inserted in the ear is said to be equally efficacious in earache. As there are doubtless many plants of whose medicinal virtues we are perfectly ignorant, and as toothache is one of those torments which often baffle all the attempts of the physician to cure it, it may, says the Medical Press and Circular, be worth while to give this reputed remedy a further trial, a trial which need not be delayed in the case of such a common complaint as that of toothache.

CURIOUS BIBLE FACTS.—The learned Prince of Grenada, heir to the Spanish throne, impressed by order of the crown for fear he should aspire to the throne, was kept in solitary confinement in the old prison at the Place of Skulls, Madrid. After twenty-three years in this living tomb death came to his release, and the following remarkable remarks taken from the Bible, and marked with an old nail on the rough walls of his cell, told how the brain sought employment through the weary years: In the Bible the word Lord is found 1,858 times, and the word Jehovah, 6,855 times, and the word Reverend but once, and that in the ninth verse of the 111th Psalm. The eighth verse of the 117th Psalm is the middle of the Bible verse. The ninth verse of the eighth chapter of Esther is the longest verse—thirty-fifth verse, eleventh chapter of St. John is the shortest. In the 107th Psalm four verses are alike—the eighth, fifteenth, twenty-first and thirty-first. Each verse of the 136th Psalm ends alike. No names or words with more than six syllables are found in the Bible. The thirty-seventh chapter of Isaiah and nineteenth chapter of Second Kings are alike. The word Girl occurs but once in the Bible, and that in the third chapter of Joel. There are found in both books of the Bible 3,886,483 letters, 773,693 words, 91,373 verses, 1,179 chapters, and 50 books.

mission embrace, in which all a mother's love and devotion were poured out, and the clinging arms were opened without a word. Mary sprang up, kissed her father's forehead, and sped forth on her dangerous mission of love.
The rain had now ceased, but the night was still dark and full of terrors, or through the trees she saw the frequent flashes of the great guns.—The woods were filled with the booming echoes, so that cannon seemed to be on every hand. She flew on with all speed. Soon she heard the crashing trees ahead, and knew that in a moment she would be once more face to face with death. She did not falter. Now she was again in the fierce whirlwind! All around her the shot whirled and shrieked. On every side branches fell crashing to the earth. A cannon ball plunged into the ground close beside her, cast over her a heap of mud, and threw her down. She sprang up and pressed on with redoubled vigor. Not yet, that ball could make her turn back.

She reached the house. She ran to the room where the little child usually slept. The bed room was empty! Distracted, she flew from chamber to chamber. Suddenly she remembered that this night he had been given to another nurse. Up into the third story she hurried, and, as she pushed open the door, the little fellow, sitting up in bed, cooed to her and put out his hands.
With the tears running down her cheeks, Mary wrapped the babe warmly and started down the stairs. Out into the darkness once more; onward with her precious burden, through cannon roar, through shot and shell! Three times she passed through this storm. The balls still swept the forest; the terrific booming filled the air.
With the child pressed tightly to her brave young heart, she fled on. She neither stumbled nor fell. The shot threw the dirt in her face, and showered the twigs down upon her head. But she was not struck. In safety she reached the hut, and fell exhausted across the threshold.
And the little boy thus saved by a girl's brave devotion, afterward became General Penwick, famous in the war of 1812.—St. Nicholas.

LORD DUFFERIN GOES TO THE EAST.
—The Earl of Dufferin has been solicited by the Marquis of Salisbury to take part in the labors of the European commission contemplated by the Berlin treaty, and will have a special duty assigned him in connection with carrying out reforms in Asia Minor.
Lord Dufferin leaves Canada next week, and Gen. Sir Patrick McDonough will become acting Governor-General in virtue of his office of Commander-in-Chief of the Queen's troops. The Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise leave England for Canada in the first week of October. Lord Dufferin has held office in the East before, and is, in official circles, regarded as the probable successor of Lord Lytton in the Governor-Generalship of India.

A Storm Down South.
Richmond, Va., Sept. 12, 1878.—Special despatches received here to-night state that a most terrific and destructive tornado passed through the States of North Carolina and Virginia. The first account, which comes from Goldsboro, N. C., states that the course of the cyclone was from northeast and southwest, and that it struck a point three miles from that city about seven a. m. Its path was only about one hundred yards wide, but its fury and devastation are said to be unprecedented. Every house in its way was demolished, and timber, wearing apparel and bedding are scattered for miles around the country. One negro woman is reported mortally wounded and a negro man killed in Wayne county, N. C. The corpse of the man was blown a considerable distance from the scene of his death. Four white people in the same county are seriously injured. They are not expected to live; their legs are broken and they are internally injured. A large number of hogs, cows, and horses were killed, and barns, out-houses and dwellings blown down.

COTTON STALKS DESTROYED.
All the cotton stalks were stripped naked and the loss of crops will fall very heavily on the victims of the tornado. The length of the disaster is unknown.

FURTHER SOUTH.
Accounts from Pender and New Hanover counties, further South, state that the damage and loss was very serious there. The other accounts come from Burkeville, in Virginia, but give no particulars beyond the mere announcement that a tornado swept over the Richmond and Danville road, one mile west of that point, demolishing telegraph poles, completely demolishing and clearing the woods in its track and creating great damage. Two houses were blown down, and wagons, fences and a large quantity of farm material were taken off. A calf was lifted up and blown about three hundred yards. Corn and tobacco fields were completely devastated. The country through which this tornado passed is inaccessible by telegraph, except at the points given above, so that the details of destruction cannot be obtained for perhaps several days.—Herald.

GENERAL MILLS' FIGHT.
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 13, 1878.—The Inter-Ocean has a special from a reliable correspondent with General

Miles, dated Mammoth Spring, National Park, September 9, which reports fighting with the Banook Indians on the morning of the 4th, in which General Miles, with twenty-seven men of the Fifth Infantry, and thirty-five friendly Crows surprised the Banooks at daybreak, and after a battle of two hours' duration thirty Banooks were killed and an equal number of their men, women and children taken prisoners and sent to Fort Keogh. Of General Miles' force, Captain Bennett, of Company B, Fifth Infantry of Little Rock; a French scout and one Crow Indian were killed. Twenty-two Indian horses were killed and 200 captured. It is believed that General Miles has thus closed the Banook war.

THE NORTHERN CHETENNES.
Omaha, Neb., Sept. 13, 1878.—General Crook will arrive here to-day from the East and immediately proceed to Sidney. The Chetennes from Camp Robinson and Standing Rock Agency about 200 in number, who are en route for the reservation in Indian Territory, are expected to arrive at Sidney this morning. They were undoubtedly, when they left the outbreak by the agency Indians, decline to go further.
All advices show that the agency Chetennes are desperate and determined and they are pushing forward night and day. It is believed by those best informed that they have had communication with Sitting Bull. It is learned through scouts that the stealing horses and ravaging the country in their path. General Pope is conducting the pursuit with all the means in his power, but the Indians are making fifty and sixty miles per day.

An Eastern Miracle.
How a Dead Hindoo was Brought to Life.
In India, shortly before the mutiny of 1857, a young officer of the English line, while passing through a native village, was annoyed by the importunity of a Hindoo beggar, whom no rebuff seemed to disconcert. At length, when the filthy vagrant succeeded his petition by laying his grimy hand upon the Englishman's arm, the latter, unable to control himself any longer, repaid the freedom from a straightforward blow from the shoulder, delivered with such force that he will that the poor Hindoo fell like a log, to all appearance stone dead. Before the assault could recover from its bewilderment at this unlooked-for catastrophe, a howling swarm of natives came rushing to the spot, and, with frantic cries of vengeance upon the murderer of their countryman, dragged him off to the local magistrate, carrying with them as evidence the corpse of the slain man. Matters might well look gloomy for the prisoner, for the body showed not the slightest sign of life, while the culprit himself, overwhelmed

MIRAMICHI FOUNDRY, CHATHAM, N. B. MANUFACTURER OF Steam Engines & Boilers, GANG AND ROTARY SAW MILLS, GANG EDGERS, SHINGLE MACHINES, AND GENERAL MACHINERY. SOLE MANUFACTURER OF POND'S WISCONSIN Patent Rotary SAW CARRIAGE. This invention pronounced the "No Plus-ultra" of Saw Mills, is destined to sweep all rivals from the field. Interlocking hook and lever dogs are used, by which the logs are dogged and canted automatically.—The Head Blocks move forward and slide racks, which work on the back, and by this means, long sweeping logs can be cut to the greatest possible advantage. When the log is sawed, the head blocks are run back by friction ready to receive another log as the carriage is returning. The whole of this work is performed by a man who rides on the carriage. By a man who rides on the carriage. This mill has shown itself to be an actual competitor, capable of rivaling one of the best Ganges in New Brunswick, and excelling every other for speed and accuracy.
