PINK AND PURPLE.

Pink and purple, arching over
Meadow slopes thick set with clover
Pink and purple and blue together—
O the perfect summer weather!
O the corn, with green leaves gleaming!
O the roses deep in dreaming!
Wherefore, darling, dost thou tarry?
Come and bind the spell of fairy!

Pink and purple slowly fading,
Fainter colors interlarding—
Hill in dusk, the insect chorus,
Tells that night is falling o'er us.
In the east a star is burning—
Signal, dear, of thy returning;
And the baby's eyes are weary:
Come and bind the spell of fairy!

Pink and purple gone together,
O the perfect summer weather!
O the dark blue, arching over
Meadow slopes, thick set with clover!
O the candles' light-dancing!
O the tessel'd bly-crowning!
And the love that does not tarry,
Making all a world of fairy.

KISSING THE SERVANT GIRL.

I confess I was very angry. Well, I may as well begin and tell the whole story. When I married Tom Wilkins all my friends said I had made a fool of myself, really thrown myself away—with all my advantages too. I could have done so much better, and much more to the same purpose. Well, to be sure, Tom is a big, stupid fellow, neither rich nor handsome, but I loved him, and what other excuse does a woman need for an act of folly? But Tom had one fault that troubled me—he was a most inveterate kisser. Before we were married he used to kiss all the girls who visited his sisters, and afterward, he kissed all my old school friends who came to the house, and even kissed mother, and you must conceive that a man is a great kisser that would kiss his mother-in-law. Well, all this I bore in silence, if not in patience, till one morning, coming out of my room, what should I see but Tom at the head of the stairs actually kissing Sarah Ann, the hired girl. That was a little more than human nature, or at least human nature could bear. I sat down till I had recovered myself a little, and allowed Tom to reach the dining-room. When at last I went down he advanced with his usual smile to kiss me, but I drew back angrily.

Why, Jessie, what's the matter? he asked, looking surprised, am I not to have a kiss this morning?

As you have already had the pleasure of kissing Sarah Ann, I think that will do for one morning. I should not fancy the flavor of your kiss after that.

Tom actually blushed. Oh, you saw that, did you, Jessie? Well, where's the great harm in that? It's my motto to imbibe sweetness wherever I find it.

Well, I fancy you did not imbibe a great deal from that source, and the harm is that it lowers your dignity as head of the family, besides giving the servants exaggerated opinions of their own importance.

What nonsense. I don't suppose Sarah Ann will ever think of it again, any more than I should if you had not taken me to task about it.

You seem to forget, Tom, that persons in her position are not so intelligent as those in ours. They judge almost wholly by actions, and I am quite sure Sarah Ann thinks you are quite in love with her.

Don't make a mountain out of a mole-hill, my dear.

Well, Tom, how would you like to see me kissing Old Eben?

Well, really, if you should ever have the least desire to kiss Eben, I don't think I could find it in my heart to object, laughed Tom, as he closed the door and went away.

Old Eben had come from my own neighborhood, was our man of all work, and the ugliest mortal I had ever set eyes upon. So I could not but acknowledge there might be a difference between kissing Sarah Ann who was really good-looking.

Well, I felt so bad that I could not help sitting down and having a good cry. In the midst of it I saw some one coming up the walk who was smiling and beckoning at me. It proved to be my brother John, who had been from home for years. We were expecting him, but not so soon. After the greetings were over, and we were a little quieted, he questioned me about my tears, and soon drew from me the whole story.

So they were not so far wrong in saying you made a fool of yourself in marrying him, eh, Jessie? Well, why don't you make him put himself in your place?

Oh, John, you don't mean for me to—

Kiss Old Eben?—hardly, said John, dryly, but you can put me in Old Eben's place for a few days.

Oh, John, that is just the thing. He was to have gone home last week for a few days, but his nephew who was coming to take his place was taken ill, and he was obliged to give up going.

Well, tell him you have got some one to take his place and get him off this forenoon, and now, before anyone sees me, I'll go back to the hotel where I left my baggage, and disguise myself a little.

Well, I sent Eben off, and soon John came back changed beyond recognition, with a blue shirt and overalls, and his hair combed back behind his ears and plastered smoothly to his head. He looked very funny, but he went about his work in such a stolid, indifferent way that some would have thought it the life he had always led.

When Tom came home, I casually remarked that Eben's nephew, Teddy O'Brien, had come to take his place, and he had at last gone home to pay his visit, and I was so pleasant and chatty that Tom concluded that I really had quite forgotten the occurrence of the morning and he was very amiable and sweet in consequence.

In the morning I was up betimes. Tom likes his morning nap, and while apparently unconscious he should not be disturbed. I at the same time took care to make noise enough to keep him wide awake though he lay with his eyes closed, pretending to sleep.

At last I heard a step in the hall, and opening the door cautiously, called Sarah Ann, but it was Teddy who answered me.

The top of the mornin' to ye, Missus; it's as fresh and swate as a rose you're lookin'; and what can I do for you, Mum?

Ah, Teddy, is it you? I'd like some hot water, if you'll tell Sarah Ann to bring it.

I'll bring it myself in a jiffy, said he, disappearing down the stairway. In an incredibly short time he reappeared with it.

Why, Teddy, how quick you are!

Shure, Mum, who wouldn't bestir himself for so swate a lolly as you?

Ah, Teddy, like all your countrymen, you have kissed the blarney stone.

Niver a stone, Mum, but I mind well where we were children together, many's the time I've kissed your sweet lips, ah, and I would I were a boy again.

What for, Teddy?

Shure, wouldn't I be doing that same again? Ah, Mum, this is for the sake of old times, and there, on this kiss with a noise little less than a clap of thunder.

Why, Teddy, have you taken leave of your senses. Do you forget I'm a married woman?

Me're the pity, Mum, but what's the harm? You will never miss the sweetness I stole.

Suppose my husband had heard you?

He—never fear, he's sleeping like an elephant.

Oh, you naughty Teddy, begone.

Going, Mum, and repeating the smack he disappeared down the stairway just as Tom called to know who was there.

It is I, dear Tom, I answered, sweetly.

And who else?

Oh, only Teddy brought up the hot water. Will you get up now before it gets cold?

You said no more, but I saw he was furtively watching me all the time I was dressing.

At length he said:

What sort of a fellow is this Teddy?

Oh, Tom, I exclaimed, the nicest fellow. I'm sure when you see him you will agree with me that it will be better to dismiss Eben and keep him instead; you know we were children together.

My dear Jessie, ain't you a little—I—thought I heard—

Ah, yes, I interrupted, that door does squeak dreadfully. I am sorry it woke you; but it won't make much difference, for it's time to get up, anyway. There, I have dressed before you place began, so I will go down and get some flowers.

When Tom came down I was in the dining room arranging my flowers. Teddy was standing by me, and as Tom came in, he, pretending not to see him, remarked:

Well, to my thinking, there's not a flower among them half so swate as you,—then receiving Tom, he pulled his fore-lock and scraped his foot in regular servant style.

Mornin', sir; it's the master I s'pose you are; fine weather, of the time of year.

Tom looked just furious.

It seems to me young man you don't know your place very well; in future, confine yourself to your own quarters, and speak when you are spoken to.

Shure I mean no offence, sir.

Will you go, and without replying? Tom stormed.

Why, my dear Tom, I remarked, smiling sweetly, what a strange dislike you have taken to poor Teddy. I was so in hopes you would like him as I do, and take him in old Eben's place.

If he don't mind what he is about, I'll kick him out of doors.

The breakfast passed in absolute silence. As we were passing the pantry, on our way to the parlor, we heard Teddy's voice, and I made Tom stop to listen.

It's a fine looking girl you are, Sarah Ann, and I'd be after giving you a kiss, I would indeed, if your breath didn't smell so of onions.

Ingions, indeed; and who axed ye for a kiss? Do you s'pose I'd be wantin' one from the like of you when I can get them from my betters?

My betters! and who do you call my betters?

Shure and isn't it the master himself that kisses me every blessed mornin' of his life; and does he speak of ingions?—not much.

The master! Now it's joking you are, Sarah Ann; do you s'pose I'm fool enough to be have that?

Believe it or not, it's the blessed truth I'm telling you. Shure, if anything should happen to the mi sus, it's not long I'd be the servant here.

A d it's kiss-s you, you say he does; well, it's a queer creature you women are, anyway. Now men think it disgraceful to kiss and tell, and here you boast of it.

We waited to hear no more, but Tom's face was in a blaze, and he took his hat and left without a word to us.

The next morning Teddy and I managed to be in the same place on the stairs where I had seen Tom and Sarah Ann, and as he opened the door, Teddy kissed me loud enough to be heard all over the house and then hurried away while I went to the dining room. Tom came in presently with an awful frown, which I pretended not to see, and he pulled my face to be kissed, and he pulled me rudely back from him.

Why Tom? ain't you going to kiss me?

Do you think I'm blind, Miss Wilkins? I saw that Teddy kiss you just now, and it's not the first time either. Do you think I will stand such doings? No! I will break every bone in the rascal's body, if I hang for it, and you shall go home to your mother till you learn to behave yourself.

Now, my dear Tom, where is the harm in that? I believe it's imbibing sweetness wherever I find it; so don't make a mountain out of a mole hill.

You should have seen his face when I repeated his own words.

Look here, Jessie, he said at length, you have got the best of me, though it was a hard way of giving me my lesson.

No more severe than the case required, Tom. I only made you put yourself in my place.

Well, Jessie, if I fill it up with as intense disgust to me as Sarah Ann as it did me to see you kiss that confounded Teddy, I don't wonder you were angry.

Well, we talked the matter over at length and agreed to dismiss both Teddy and Sarah Ann, giving them a month's wages instead of warning.

I heard Sarah Ann mutter to Teddy, shure and I believe the missus suspects the master is swate on me.

Niver you fool yourself that way, said Teddy; it's him self as is sending us away.

Well at length they were off, and I had a new girl; but in all this time Tom had not kissed me, and treated with a aversion as though my sins were too great for forgiveness.

While we were at dinner brother John arrived. I was a little curious to see if Tom would recognize him. He looked at him with a puzzled expression, but said nothing; but presently he became so derisively gay, and indeed, almost brilliant. Later, when we were alone, he took me in his arms and kissed me, and whispered:

Well, Jessie, I see you have got Teddy back after all. Oh, if you knew the relief it gave me to see you had not degraded yourself.

Oh, you foolish Tom! do you think I would ever have descended to that, even to give you a much needed lesson? But see how inconsistent the man are; you have no forgiveness for the least false step a woman makes, even when she is only following your example to the letter.

A clerical gentleman in Oregon writes the following: As a minister's wife in—Oregon, was about to go out one evening, one of the children expressed a little uneasiness that he and his sisters should be left alone. The mother replied:

"It is important for me to attend a Woman's Suffrage meeting to-night, so be good children. I will not stay late."

On returning home at an early hour the mother met little six-year old Charlie as she entered the door, who, with a sad, inquiring look, said:

"Mamma, is the women dead?"

"What woman, child?"

"Why, the—woman that was 'suffering' so—the one you went to see?"

The "woman" still lives, and makes much noise, though she is not so strong as some women would like;

The Cannibal Tree.

CARNIVOROUS TREE THAT CRUSHES LIVING VICTIMS LIKE AN ANACONDA.

An eminent German Botanist, named Herr Karl Leche, has discovered in Africa what he calls a carnivorous tree, an account of which is published in the German Magazine.

While in the jungles of Madagascar his African guide described the existence of a single tree that fed upon animal life; under his leadership Leche proceeded to the land of the Mikados, a tribe of dwarfs, of a savage war-like nature, who formed no family ties, dwelt amid forests and caverns, constructing no habitations and having no other religious belief than an awful reverence for the cannibal tree, to which they offered human victims and accorded most absolute idolatry and worship.

One morning amidst the dense shades of a tropical jungle, they came suddenly upon one of the trees, to which their attention was attracted by a large crowd of natives, shrieking wildly, and screaming in shrill voices, which his guide explained as the preliminary ceremonies of a human sacrifice they were about to offer to the "Devil Tree."

From a distance they watched their proceedings, and while doing so, Herr Leche wrote a scientific botanical description of this wonderful tree, which we will endeavor to analyze into colloquial parlance. Its shape is like a pine apple, and its leaves when not taking their unnatural nourishment, are of a dark, dingy brown color, eight in number which hang towards the ground, are two feet thick, three feet wide and twelve feet long, taper to a sharp point, are covered with thorny projecting hooks, and in shape resemble the century plant. The apex of the truncated cone from which the leaves grow, is two feet in diameter, while its color is white, its form round and appears like a small plate set in a larger one, from which a series of long tendrils, seven or eight feet in length, stretch horizontally in every direction. From this apex exudes a clear syrup like liquid, possessing highly intoxicating and soporific qualities.

The shrieks of the natives grew louder and more fierce as they approached the tree; presently they gathered round a woman of their own number and with pointed javelins forced her towards it, and with a look of despair and submission she began to climb the stalk which was about eight feet, and as she reached the apex of the cone, the pendant tendrils of the tree raised themselves upwards and began gradually to twist themselves about her neck and arms.

"Tisk!" "Tisk!" or "Drink!" "Drink!" shouted their companions, threatening her with their javelins, and as she bowed herself to drink the homelike liquid a wild frenzied look spread over her features and convulsive shuddering shook her form. She assayed to jump to the ground in her agony, but the natives forced her back, and presently the leaves and tendrils closed about her, like an anacanda, crushing her in their terrible embrace.

Herr Leche says, "it was a representation of the Laocoon without its beauty." As her death had been accomplished the horrible savages crowded to the base of the tree, and gathered in a cup the syrup-like fluid mingled with her blood which flowed copiously down the trunk, unimpeded by the life-destroying leaves. They drank eagerly, and immediately grew frantic with delirium, giving way to indescribably disgusting orgies, until overcome with insensibility, presenting a scene horrible beyond all description.

After the withdrawal of the savage worshippers, Herr Leche examined a tree of the same species. For ten days he watched them closely, and whenever a monkey, a bird, or any other living creature rested upon the apex of the cone, the devouring leaves and tendrils closed upon them and held them fast until life was extinct, retaining their upright position until every trace of the victim had disappeared save the bones, the flesh and blood being wholly absorbed by the cannibal tree, and the leaves becoming pendant after this had taken place.

From this fact he argues that the nature of the Croton de Degenera is unquestionably carnivorous. So far as his investigations have gone, this singular tree is only fatal when living creatures rest upon its summit, as its murderous leaves and tendrils do their destroying work in an upright position while its liquor is intoxicating. Herr Leche held a post mortem examination upon it, the result of which he will submit to his friends by another letter. His sketch is written with that romantic enthusiasm without whose influence neither tropical or polar travel or exploration was ever undertaken, and while much allowance may be made for exaggerated statements, the main facts are doubtless true, and the botanical problem as to whether carnivorous trees exist or not is affirmatively answered.

USE OF SILENCE.—It is a pity that so few people understand the full effect of well-timed silence! How eloquent it is in reality! Acquiescence, contradiction, difference, disdain, embarrassment, and awe may all be expressed by saying nothing. It may be necessary to illustrate this apparent paradox by a few examples. Do you seek an assurance of your lady-love's affection? The fair one confirms her lover's fondest hopes by compliant and an assenting silence. Should you hear an assertion which you may deem false, made by some one of whose veracity politeness may withhold you from openly declaring your doubt, you denote a difference of opinion by remaining silent. Are you receiving a reprimand from a superior. You mark your respect by an attentive silence. Are you compelled to listen to the frivolous conversation of a fop? You signify your opinion of him by treating his loquacity with contemptuous silence.

Again, how much domestic strife might have been prevented, how often might the quarrel which by mutual aggravation has, perhaps, terminated in bloodshed, had it been checked in the commencement by a judicious silence! Those persons only who have experienced them are aware of the beneficial effects of that forbearance, which to the exasperating threat, the malicious sneer, or the unjustly-imputed culpability, shall never answer a word. A soft answer turns away wrath; but sometimes erring humanity cannot give this soft answer in moments of irritation; in such cases, there stands the fortress of silence, with doors wide open, as refuge for the tired spirit until calmer moments come. Think of this seriously, you who glory in having "the last word."

OLIVE LOGAN, in one of her piquant articles on the stage, describes with minute detail that branch of public amusement which she denigrates—the "leg business." But the dancing she describes—the "piscotini," as the Arkansas man called it—is a very different thing from the ball that is given in Wyoming Territory, and in the Territorial region of this favored country of ours generally. Our city readers will read with pleasure a description of the toilettes worn at a recent ball at Sandy Run, which was attended by the "elite" of that place and towns around:

"Miss— from Wilder's Gulch, was elegantly attired in a handsome buff gros-grained buckskin dress with army-blanket over-skirt, bottom looped up with buckskin strings cut bias. Hair dressed a la Red Cloud, in which was twined a few sprigs of sage brush, the whole secured behind in a bunch with a handsome pin made with a pine splinter and a buffalo's ear. She wore an elegant mountain cat-skin cap, festooned with antelope tails, secured under the chin with a rattle-snake's skin. Her feet were incased in buckskin moccasins, ornamented with beads and soldier buttons.

"She created a big sensation as she entered the hall hanging upon the arm of Mr. H. Barton, of Hallville, who was dressed in the style of his locality—buckskin breeches in boots, hunting skirt of the same, ornamented with beads and tobacco juice, an army belt of the latest pattern around his waist, securing a pair of six-shooters and a large bowie-knife, which set off his gallant figure to good advantage.

"Envious glances from both sexes followed this handsome couple round the hall. Several ladies and gentlemen from the mining districts were present, and expressed themselves well pleased with the manner in which the party was conducted. Their frequent exclamations of delight, such as 'Red hot, you bet!' 'Ain't it fruit, though?' 'Hoop la' etc, plainly indicated that they were enjoying themselves in the best possible manner."

A few years ago a hungry crowd sat down at the well-spread supper table of a Sound steamer, upon which one of the dishes contained a trout of moderate size. A serious looking individual drew this dish toward him, saying, apologetically, "This is a fast day with me."

His next neighbor, an Irish gentleman, immediately inserted his fork into the fish, and transferred it to his own plate, remarking, "Sir, do you suppose nobody has a soul to be saved but yourself?"

In court, young Ketchum, an impudent limb of the law, trying to break down a female witness' evidence one day, said: "Gentlemen, the witness on the stand has brass enough in her face to make a kettle." She curiously replied: "And you're sap enough in you head to fill it."

A man in Minnesota recently set a fire in his barn to drive out mosquitoes. The insects probably got out, but two horses which were there were not so fortunate. They went with the barn.

Members of the editorial "corps" are proverbially men sedate. Of such is Mr. Faxon, who evolves from the depths of his inner consciousness the mental Champagne that spurts through the hydraulic of the Paducah "Kentuckian."

In accepting an earnest call from "many voters" to become a candidate for coronator, he says that "an experience of several years within the precincts of Cairo renders me an excellent judge of a dead man."

Mrs. Michael Morrow recently died in Pennsylvania, nearly a hundred years old, though for nearly seventy years she had been sure each day that death would come to Morrow:

Prospectus for 1874—Seventh Year.

The Aldine,

AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY JOURNAL, UNIVER-
SALLY ADMITTED TO BE THE HANDSOMEST
PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD, A REPRESENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF
AMERICAN TASTE.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Altho' each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view of the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.
The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos.
The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appear exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 29th, 1873.

Messrs. JAMES SUTTON & Co., Publishers, are delivered with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful reproductions of my mechanical process of the original paintings.
Very respectfully,
(Signed,) THOS. MORAN.

TERMS.

$3 per annum in advance, with 50 Chromos free.
For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reserved or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in case where the certificate is given, bearing the signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar

Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BIT-TERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system.
Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.

R. H. McDONALD & CO.,
Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and cor. Washington and Charlton Sts., New York.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means,
and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, St. John's, Kankakee, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary.
There is a cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored acid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflan-imation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offerings of Dyspepsia.
One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VIN-EGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetters, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald
Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthel-mintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Jaundice.—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work.
The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use VINEGAR BIT-TERS.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PINK AND PURPLE.

Pink and purple, arching over
Meadow slopes thick set with clover
Pink and purple and blue together—
O the perfect summer weather!
O the corn, with green leaves gleaming!
O the roses deep in dreaming!
Wherefore, darling, dost thou tarry?
Come and bind the spell of fairy!

Pink and purple glowly falling,
Fainter colors interchanging—
Hid in dusk, the insect chorus,
Tells that night is falling o'er us.
In the east a star is burning—
Signal, dear, of thy returning;
And the baby's eyes are weary:
Come and bind the spell of fairy!

Pink and purple gone together,
O the perfect summer weather!
O the dark blue, arching over
Meadow slopes, thick set with clover!
O the ceaseless insect droning!
O the tender baby-crooning!
And the love that does not tarry,
Making all a world of fairy.

KISSING THE SERVANT GIRL.

I confess I was very angry. Well, I may as well begin and tell the whole story. When I married Tom Wilkins all my friends said I had made a fool of myself, really thrown myself away—with all my advantages too. I could have done so much better, and much more to the same purpose. Well, to be sure, Tom is a big, stupid fellow, neither rich nor handsome, but I loved him, and what other excuse does a woman need for an act of folly? But Tom had one fault, that troubled me—he was a most inveterate kisser. Before we were married he used to kiss all the girls who visited his sisters, and afterward, he kissed all my school friends who came to the house, and even kissed mother, and you must conceive that a man is a great kisser that would kiss his mother-in-law. Well, all this I bore in silence, if not in patience, till one morning, coming out of my room, what should I see but Tom at the head of the stairs actually kissing Sarah Ann, the hired girl. That was a little more than human nature, or at least human nature could bear. I sat down till I had recovered myself a little, and allowed Tom to reach the dining-room. When at last I went down he advanced with his usual smile to kiss me, but I drew back angrily.

Why, Jessie, what's the matter? he asked, looking surprised, am I not to have a kiss this morning?

As you have already had the pleasure of kissing Sarah Ann, I think that will do for one morning. I should not fancy the flavor of your kiss after that.

Tom actually blushed. Oh, you saw that, did you, Jessie? Well, where's the great harm in that? It's my motto to imbibe sweetness wherever I find it.

Well, I fancy you did not imbibe a great deal from that source, and the harm is that it lowers your dignity as head of the family, besides giving the servants exaggerated opinions of their own importance.

What nonsense. I don't suppose Sarah Ann will ever think of it again, any more than I should if you had not taken me to task about it.

You seem to forget, Tom, that persons in her position are not so intelligent as those in ours. They judge almost wholly by actions, and I am quite sure Sarah Ann thinks you are quite in love with her.

Don't make a mountain out of a mole-hill, my dear.

Well, Tom, how would you like to see me kissing Old Eben?

Well, really, if you should ever have the least desire to kiss Eben, I don't think I could find it in my heart to object, laughed Tom, as he closed the door and went away.

Old Eben had come from my own neighborhood, was our man of all work, and the ugliest mortal I had ever set eyes upon. So I could not but acknowledge there might be a difference between kissing Sarah Ann who was really good-looking.

Well, I felt so bad that I could not help sitting down and having a good cry. In the midst of it I saw some one coming up the walk who was smiling and beckoning at me. It proved to be my brother John, who had been from home for years. We were expecting him, but not so soon. After the greetings were over, and we were a little quieted, he questioned me about my tears, and soon drew from me the whole story.

made a fool of yourself in marrying him, eh, Jessie? Well, why don't you make him put himself in your place?

Oh, John, you don't mean for me to—
Kiss Old Eben?—hardly, said John, dryly, but you can put me in Old Eben's place for a few days.

Oh, John, that is just the thing. He was to have gone home last week for a few days, but his nephew who was coming to take his place was taken ill, and he was obliged to give up going.

Well, tell him you have got some one to take his place and get him off this forenoon, and now, before anyone sees me, I'll go back to the hotel where I left my baggage, and disguise myself a little.

Well, I sent Eben off, and soon John came back changed beyond recognition, with a blue shirt and overalls, and his hair combed back behind his ears and plastered smoothly to his head. He looked very funny, but he went about his work in such a stoical, indifferent way that some would have thought it the life he had always led.

When Tom came home, I casually remarked that Eben's nephew, Teddy O'Brien, had come to take his place, and he had at last gone home to pay his visit, and I was so pleasant and chatty that Tom concluded that I really had quite forgotten the occurrence of the morning and he was very amiable and sweet in consequence.

In the morning I was up betimes. Tom likes his morning nap, and while apparently unconscious he should not be disturbed. I at the same time took care to make noise enough to keep him wide awake though he lay with his eyes closed, pretending to sleep.

At last I heard a step in the hall, and opening the door cautiously, called Sarah Ann, but it was Teddy who answered me.

The top of the morning to ye, Missus; it's as fresh and sweet as a rose you're looking; and what can I do for you, Mum?

Ah, Teddy, is it you? I'd like some hot water, if you'll tell Sarah Ann to bring it.

I'll bring it myself in a jiffy, said he, disappearing down the stairway. In an incredibly short time he reappeared with it.

Why, Teddy, how quick you are!

Shure, Mum, who wouldn't bestir himself for so sweet a lady as you?

Ah, Teddy, like all your countrymen, you have kissed the blarney stone.

Niver a stone, Mum, but I mind well when we were children together, many's the time I've kissed your sweet lips, ah, and I would I were a boy again.

What for, Teddy?

Shure, wouldn't I be doing that same again? Ah, Mum, this is for the sake of old times, and there, on he kissed me with a noise little less than a clap of thunder.

Why, Teddy, have you taken leave of your senses. Do you forget I'm a married woman?

Mr-re's the pity, Mum, but what's the harm? You will never miss the sweetness I stole.

Suppose my husband had heard you?

He—never fear, he's sleeping like an elephant.

Oh, you naughty Teddy, begone.

Going, Mum, and repeating the smack he disappeared down the stairway just as Tom called to know who was there.

It is I, dear Tom, I answered, sweetly.

Ah, who else?

Oh, only Teddy brought up the hot water. Will you get up now before it gets cold?

Tom said no more, but I saw he was furiously watching me all the time I was dressing.

At length he said:

What sort of a fellow is this Teddy?

Oh, Tom, I exclaim'd, the nicest fellow. I'm sure when you see him you will agree with me that it will be better to dismiss Eben and keep him instead; you know we were children together.

My dear Jessie, ain't you a little—I—I—thought I heard—

Ah, yes, I interrupted, that door does squeak dreadfully. I am sorry it woke you; but it won't make much difference, for it's time to get up, anyway. There, I have dressed before you have begun, so I will go down and get some flowers.

When Tom came down I was in the dining room arranging my flowers. Teddy was standing by me, and as Tom came in, he, pretending not to see him, remarked:

Well, to my thinking, there's not a flower among them half so sweet as you,—then, pre-empting Tom, he pulled his fur-lock and scraped his foot in regular servant style.

Mornin', sir; it's the master I's pose you are; fuine weather, of the time of year.

Tom looked just furious.

It seems to me young man you don't know your place very well; in future, confine yourself to your own quarters, and speak when you are spoken to.

Shure I mean no offence, sir.

Will you go, and without replying? Tom stormed.

Why, my dear Tom, I remarked, smiling sweetly, what a strange dislike you have taken to poor Teddy. I was so in hopes you would like him as I do, and take him in old Eben's place.

If he don't mind what he is about, I'll kick him out of doors.

The breakfast passed in absolute silence. As we were passing the pantry, on our way to the parlor, we heard Teddy's voice, and I made Tom stop to listen.

It's a fine looking girl you are, Sarah Ann, and I'd be after giving you a kiss, I would, indeed, if your breath didn't smell so of ingenuous. Ingenuous, indeed; and who axed ye for a kiss? Do you spose I'd be wantin' one from your betters?

My betters! and who do you call my betters?

Shure and isn't it the master himself that kisses me every blessed morning of his life; and does he spake of ingenuous?—not much.

The master! Now it's joking you are, Sarah Ann; do you spose I'm fool enough to be luv'd that?

Believe it or not, it's the blessed truth I'm telling you. Shure, if anything should happen to the ma's us, it's not long I'd be the servant here.

A d d it's kiss-s you, you say he does; well, it's quare craytures you women are, anyway. Now men think it disgraceful to kiss and tell, and here you boast of it.

We waited to hear no more, but Tom's face was in a blaze, and he took his hat and left without a word to look.

The next morning Teddy and I managed to be in the same place on the stairs where I had seen Tom and Sarah Ann, and as he opened the door, Teddy kissed me loud enough to be heard all over the house and then hurried away while I went to the dining room. Tom came in presently with an awful frown, which I pretended not to see, nudged up my face to be kissed, and he pushed the rudely back from him.

Why Tom? ain't you going to kiss me?

Do you think I'm blind, Mrs. Wilkins? I saw that Teddy kiss you just now, and it's not the first time either. Do you think I will stand such dorgs? No! I will break every bone in the rascal's body, if I hang for it, and you shall go home to your mother till you learn to b-behave yourself.

Now, my dear Tom, where is the harm in that? I believe it's imbibing sweetness who never find it; so don't make a mountain out of a mole hill.

You should have seen his face when I repeated his own words.

Look here, Jessie, he said at length, you have got the best of me, though it was a hard way of giving me my lesson.

No more severe than the case required, Tom. I only made you put yourself in my place.

Well, Jessie, if it fill'd you with as intense disgust to see me kiss Sarah Ann as it did me to see you kiss that contumacious Teddy, I don't wonder you were angry.

Well, we talked the matter over at length and agreed to dismiss both Teddy and Sarah Ann, giving them a month's wages instead of warning.

I heard Sarah Ann mutter to Teddy, shure and I believe the missus suspects the master is swate on me.

Niver you fool yourself that way, said Teddy; it's himself as is sending us away.

Well at length they were off. Tom had not kissed me, and treated with aversion as though my sins were too great for forgiveness.

While we were at dinner brother John arrived. He was a little curious to see if Tom would recognize him. He looked at him with a puzzled expression, but said nothing; but presently he became moderately gay, and indeed, almost brilliant. Later, when we were alone, he took me in his arms and kissed me, and whispered:

Well, Jessie, I see you have got Teddy back after all. Oh, if you knew the relief it gave me to see you had not degraded yourself.

Oh, you foolish Tom! do you think I would ever have descended to that, even to give you a much needed lesson? But see how inconsistent the man are; you have no forgiveness for the least false step a woman makes, even when she is only following your example to the letter.

A clerical gentleman in Oregon writes the following: As a minister's wife in— Oregon, was about to go out one evening, one of the children expressed a little uneasiness that he and his sisters should be left alone. The mother replied: "It is important for me to attend a Woman's Suffrage meeting to-night, so be good children. I will not stay late." On returning home at an early hour the mother met little six-year old Charlie as she entered the door, who, with a sad, inquiring look, said:

"Mamma, is the women dead?"

"What woman, child?"

"Why, the— the woman that was 'suffering' so—the one you went to see?"

The "woman" still lives, and makes much noise, though she is not so strong as some women would like.

The Cannibal Tree.

CARNIVOROUS TREE THAT CRUSHES LIVING VICTIMS LIKE AN ANACONDA.

An eminent German Botanist, named Herr Karl Leche, has discovered in Africa what he calls a carnivorous tree, an account of which is published in the German Magazine.

While in the jungles of Madagascar his African guide described the existence of a single tree that fed upon animal life; under his leadership Leche proceeded to the land of the Mikados, a tribe of dwarfs, of a savage war-like nature, who formed no family ties, dwelt amid forests and caverns, constructing no habitations and having no other religious belief than an awful reverence for the cannibal tree, to which they offered human victims and accorded most absolute idolatry and worship. One morning amidst the dense shades of a tropical jungle, they came suddenly upon one of the trees, to which their attention was attracted by a large crowd of natives, shrieking wildly, and screaming in shrill voices, which his guide explained as the preliminary ceremonies of a human sacrifice they were about to offer to the "Devil Tree."

From a distance they watched their proceedings, and while doing so, Herr Leche wrote a scientific botanical description of this wonderful tree, which we will endeavor to analyze into colloquial parlance. Its shape is like a pine apple, and its leaves when not taking their unnatural nourishment, are of a dark, dingy brown color, right in number which, hang towards the ground, are two feet thick, three feet wide and twelve feet long, taper to a sharp point, are covered with thorny projecting hooks, and in shape resemble the century plant. The apex of the truncated cone from which the leaves grow, is two feet in diameter, while its color is white, its form round and appears like a small plate set in a larger one, from which a series of long tendrils, seven or eight feet in length, stretch horizontally in every direction. From this apex exudes a clear syrup-like liquid, possessing highly intoxicating and soporific qualities.

The shrubs of the natives grew louder and more fierce as they approached the tree; presently they gathered round a woman of their number and with pointed javelins forced her towards it, and with a look of despair and submission she began to climb the stalk which was about eight feet, and as she reached the apex of the cone, the pendant tendrils of the trees raised themselves upwards and began gradually to twine themselves about her neck and arms. "Tisk!" "Tisk!" or "Drink!" "Drink!" shouted their companions, threatening her with their javelins, and as she bowed herself to drink the home-like liquid a wild frenzied look spread over her features and convulsive shuddering shook her form. She assayed to jump to the ground in her agony, but the natives forced her back, and presently the leaves and tendrils closed about her, like an anacanda, crushing her in their terrible embrace. Herr Leche says, "It was a representation of the Laocoon without its beauty." As her death had been accomplished the horrible savages crept to the base of the tree, and gathered in a cup the syrup-like fluid mingled with her blood which flowed copiously down the trunk, unimpeded by the life-destroying leaves. This they drank eagerly, and immediately grew frantic with delirium, giving way to indescribably disgusting orgies, until overcome by insensibility, presenting a scene horrible beyond all description.

After the withdrawal of the savage worshippers, Herr Leche examined a tree of the same species. For ten days he watched them closely, and whenever a monkey, a bird, or any other living creature rested upon the apex of their cones, the devouring leaves and tendrils closed upon them and held them fast until life was extinct, retaining their upright position until every trace of the victim had disappeared save the bones, the flesh and blood being wholly absorbed by the cannibal tree, and the leaves becoming pendant after this had taken place. From this fact he argues that the nature of the Crinoid Dugensis is unquestionably carnivorous. So far as his investigations have gone, this singular tree is only fatal when living creatures rest upon its summit, as its murderous leaves and tendrils do their destroying work in an upright position while its liquor is intoxicating. Herr Leche held a post mortem examination upon it, the result of which he will submit to his friends by another letter. His sketch is written with that romantic enthusiasm without whose influence neither tropical or polar travel or exploration was ever undertaken, and while much allowance may be made for exaggerated statements, the main facts are doubtless true, and the botanical problem as to whether carnivorous trees exist or not is affirmatively answered.

USE OF SILENCE.—It is a pity that so few people understand the full effect of well-timed silence. How eloquent it is in reality! Acquiescence, contradiction, difference, disdain, embarrassment, and awe may all be expressed by saying nothing. It may be necessary to illustrate this apparent paradox by a few examples. Do you seek an assurance of your lady-love's affection? The fair one confirms her lover's fondest hopes by compliant and an assenting silence. Should you hear an assertion which you may deem false, made by some one of whose veracity politeness may withhold you from openly declaring your doubt, you denote a difference of opinion by remaining silent. Are you receiving a reprimand from a superior. You mark your respect by an attentive silence. Are you compelled to listen to the frivolous conversation of a fop? You signify your opinion of him by treating his loquacity with contemptuous silence. Again, how much domestic strife might have been prevented, how often might the quarrel which by mutual aggravation has, perhaps, terminated in blood-shed, had it been checked in the commencement by a judicious silence! Those persons only who have experienced them are aware of the beneficial effects of that forbearance, which to the exasperating threat, the malicious sneer, or the unjustly imputed culpability, shall never answer a word. A soft answer turns away wrath; but sometimes erring humanity cannot give this soft answer in moments of irritation; in such cases, there stands the fortress of silence, with doors wide open, as refuge for the tired spirit until calmer moments come. Think of this seriously, you who glory in having "the last word."

OLIVE LOGAN, in one of her piquant articles on the stage, describes with minute detail that branch of public amusement which she denominates "the leg business." But the dancing she describes—the "pirouette," as the Arkansas man called it—is a very different thing from the ball that is given in Wyoming Territory, and in the Territorial region of this favored county of ours generally. Our city readers will read with pleasure a description of the toilettes worn at a recent ball at Sandy Run, which was attended by the "elite" of that place and towns around:

"Miss—, from Wilder's Gulch, was elegantly attired in a handsome buff gro-grained buckskin dress with army-blanket over-skirt, bottom looped up with buckskin strings cut bias. Hair dressed as a Red Cloud, in which was twined a few sprigs of sage brush, the whole secured behind in a bunch with a handsome pin made with a pine splinter and a buffalo's ear. She wore an elegant mountain cat-skin cap, festooned with antelope tails, secured under the chin with a rattlesnake's skin. Her feet were incased in buckskin moccasins, ornamented with beads and soldier buttons.

"She created a big sensation as she entered the hall hanging upon the arm of Mr. H. Barton, of Hallville, who was dressed in the style of his locality—buckskin breeches in boots, hunting skirt of the same, ornamented with beads and tobacco juice, an army belt of the latest pattern around his waist, carrying a pair of six-shooters and a large bowie-knife, which set off his gallant figure to good advantage.

"Envious glances from both sexes followed this handsome couple round the hall. Several ladies and gentlemen from the mining districts were present, and expressed themselves well pleased with the manner in which the party was conducted. Their frequent exclamations of delight, such as 'Red hot, you bet!' 'Ain't it fruit, though?' 'Hoop la' etc., plainly indicated that they were enjoying themselves in the best possible manner." —[Harper's Magazine.

A few years ago a hungry crowd sat down at the well-spread table of a Sound steamer, upon which one of the dishes contained a trout of moderate size. A serious looking individual drew this dish toward him, saying, apologetically, "This is a fish with will me." His next neighbor, an Irish gentleman, immediately inserted his fork into the fish, and transferred it to his own plate, remarking, "Sir, do you suppose nobody has a soul to be saved but yourself?"

In court, young Ketchum, an impudent limb of the law, trying to break down a female witness' evidence one day, said: "Gentlemen, the witness on the stand has brass enough in her face to make a kettle." She curiously replied: "And you're sap enough in you head to fill it."

A man in Minnesota recently set a fire in his barn to drive out mosquitoes. The insects probably got out, but two horses which were there were no fortunate. They went with the barn.

Members of the editorial "corpus" are proverbially more sedate. Of such is Mr. Faxon, who evolves from the depths of his inner consciousness the annual Champagne that spurts through the hydrant of the Paducah "Kentuckian." In accepting an earnest call from "many voters" to become a candidate for coronor, he says that "an experience of seventy years within the precincts of Cairo renders me an excellent judge of a dead man."

Mrs. Michael Morrow recently died in Pennsylvania, near a hundred years old, though for nearly seventy years she had been sure each day that death would come to Morrow.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.

Over 50 bodies have been recovered from the disaster to the steamer "Pat Rogers" last week.

The grasshoppers have destroyed the crops in a large portion of Nebraska territory. The New York Evening Post's article says: "There is an increasing volume of business in mercantile places, and the prospects for the fall trade are satisfactory."

GOLD 109 3/4.

There never was so much money in the West as now, and New York bankers were never less solicitous than this year respecting the drain upon this city for money to handle the crops, of which the all important one is wheat. Within the next three months the farmers will receive pay in cash for at least one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat. This vast fund will all at once be immediately invested in purchase of merchandise and payment to local merchants—the western farmer, when he has money, being a free and generous purchaser of the comforts and luxuries of life. The inference is that eastern manufacturers and merchants, and those who deal in imported fabrics as well, will be in receipt of large sums from the coming fall trade. This imports the commencement of an active and heavy business in all the industries of the Eastern States, and the consequent renewal of the full tide of prosperity which was rudely checked in last autumn's financial crisis. A SURPRISE.—A lady who resides at the north end, was considerably surprised a night or two ago upon going to her bedroom, to find a gentleman's clothing distributed around her room—and still more surprised to find the gentleman himself soundly sleeping in her bed. The lady did not go into hysterics, as most ladies would have done, but seeing at a glance that the intruder had evidently made a mistake, she awoke him, and demanded to know what he wanted there. He was confused: told who he was and where he was from (St. John); that he boarded at the "Hotel," in which he then firmly believed he was. When convinced of his mistake he felt decidedly foolish, and the lady retired to allow him time to dress his clothes. This he did as quickly as possible and retired with a thousand apologies, and a request that it should never be mentioned—and it wasn't. He had been "seeing his friends," with the result stated. (Halifax Express.)

CROP PROSPECTS.—The report of the Department of Agriculture of the United States for the month of July has just been issued. The following is a brief synopsis of the average condition of the various products:

Oats.—The average condition for the whole country is ninety.

Rye.—Full average or above in most of the States, and very nearly the average in the remainder.

Potatoes.—The average is above two per cent in advance of last year.

Tobacco.—The severe drought prevailing in the sections devoted to tobacco culture, together with the destruction of plants by insects, has reduced the average to less than one half of that of 1873.

Apples and peaches are both reported below an average.

PIRIEST VERSUS BISHOP AT LAW.—Father O'Keefe, an Irish priest, having been the victim of certain fulminations uttered by Rev. Dr. Moran, Roman Catholic Bishop of Ossory, brought suit for libel against his superior, on the ground that the Bishop had made false and libelous statements. The case was tried at the Kildare Assizes, Father O'Keefe conducting his own case without the aid of counsel. He was successful, the jury giving him a verdict with damages at $250. The Church not only appears to have won without, but discussions within.

The St. John News says that two young men, named respectively John Reynolds and Robert Wilson, sons of Messrs. James Reynolds and John Wilson of Claree Ridge, parish of St. Patrick in Charlotte County, met a watery grave in Birr's Lake, in the said parish, on Sunday last, under the following circumstances: Wilson had gone into the water to bathe and in wading into the lake stepped suddenly into a hole several feet beyond his depth, and Reynolds, who was on the shore, without waiting to divest himself of his clothing rushed impulsively to the rescue of his friend. Neither could swim. Reynolds was in his eighteenth year and both were the eldest sons of large families. They bore irreproachable characters and were universally liked. Their death has cast a deep gloom over the entire settlement in which they resided.

A WOMAN ON THE RAMPAGE.—It is happily an infrequent occurrence in our town that a woman gets into a fight with one of the opposite sex, and if she does she generally gets the worst of it except indeed it is merely a war of words. But the other evening a woman not only fought with one of the opposite sex, but beat him—cut him with a stick, and knocked down the man who came to his rescue. As is usual in the case of a row here quite a large and respectable gathering was on the spot. The woman was in our cell the other day and we are glad that we were very polite to her.—[P. E. 1 paper.]

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, AUG. 12, 1874.

HEAVY RAIN STORM.—The weather which had been very fine for some weeks, changed suddenly on Saturday morning. Rain commenced falling (Wind S) at 4 a.m., Barometer 30.00; at midnight of the 8th the wind increased to a violent gale, with very heavy rain which continued with slight intermission until 8 o'clock of the 10th inst. The barometer raised high for the first forty hours, then fell gradually. The total rain fall was four and a half inches, (4.50). The foregoing has been handed us by Dr. Gave, Observer at this Station. The rain has been, we learn, injurious to some crops in low lands, and many persons had grass down in swarth, which however, was not much injured. Fears were entertained at one time that the freshet would carry off some of the smaller bridges, but up to the present we have not received any report of damage to these structures.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS were opened on Monday last after the summer vacation. We are happy to record that they are well attended, with prospect of increased attendance. The teachers came to their work somewhat refreshed after their brief holidays, and commenced their labors with renewed vigor. During the recess, the Trustees had the school grounds graded, making them a pleasant spot for recreation, during play hours of the pupils, as well as adding to the appearance and attractiveness of the place.

For some changes and dismissals on the Intercolonial Railway, Mr. Brydges is blamed, and rather roughly treated by a portion of the Press, which formerly spoke in terms of commendation of his management and ability. If, as asserted, Mr. Brydges has been appointed by the Government to investigate, and report upon the management of Railways, and that some dismissals have taken place, it is not just cause why he, Brydges, should be condemned, or berated by some of the Press, he can have no preferences, and is only performing the duty of a faithful servant. One fact is undoubted, viz.: that he is intimately acquainted with railroad affairs, and has had a large experience in their management, and knows how many officials it requires to any line. There appears to be too much party feeling mixed up in the discussion.

During the past week some articles were lost by persons in town, and due publicity given by handbills and advertisements. A Ring was lost in the street, and a belt with a clasp, near the Circus grounds, for which rewards have been offered, but up to the present the finders have not claimed the rewards. Anyone who would retain a lost article after it was advertised, would not hesitate to steal. Only a few days ago a young lady lost her purse on the front street, missed it immediately, and offered a reward for its being returned to her, minus the money, a few dollars, but the finder quietly pocketed all. Such conduct is to say the least disgraceful.

THE NEW DOMINION MONTHLY for August, contains the usual amount of interesting reading, original and selected. The frontispiece is of Father Hyacinthe and his base, which the engraver has evidently done justice to. The old gentleman appears to look with a degree of pride on his offspring, which is a laughing and fat chubby boy. "A Life History" is the title of an interesting serial story which is begun in the August number; the poetry is also above the average. Price $1.50 per ann. Published by J. Dougal & Son, Montreal.

Complaints are daily reaching us of the sad want of repair upon the Provincial post roads. "A traveller" says that he is "still obliged to go several miles out of the direct road to St. George, simply because of the unnecessary delay in repair the Digby-Danvers Road Bridge, which might and should have been repaired last May, at the latest; and that he knows members of the Government who also complain of the state of the roads which are immediately under Government control." Where there is so much fault found, here and elsewhere, there is surely some ground for complaint. Persons who drive over the roads say so, and it is to be hoped that the Board of Works will attend to these matters before the fall sets in, if the money can be obtained.

MAGNINLEY & CO'S CIRCUS gave two performances on Friday last. The entertainments gave much satisfaction, and the Menagerie with its huge Elephant was the centre of attraction. The outside shows were a separate charge; we mention this because one ticket did not admit to all.

We learn from the North Sydney C.B. "Herald" that on the 28th ult., Capt. Le Blanc, of the "Mary Kate" preferred a charge against Mr. Edward Bown, Preventive Officer of that Port (in the Customs Department) for unnecessarily and maliciously destroying property aboard said ship, while performing his duties as Preventive Officer. Captain Le Blanc testified that a tarpaulin had been unnecessarily destroyed by Mr. Bown, together with one or more barrels filled with salt, in the alleged performance of his duty in searching for smuggled goods. His mate and an ordinary seaman gave similar testimony. S. L. Purves, Esq., on behalf Mr. Bown ignored the legality of summoning any officer in the Customs employ unless served with a month's notice, and rested his case upon the law, "verba cum litera," which gave to the Customs Officers indisputably the right to most carefully search any vessel or vessels suspected of smuggling. Justice Forbes gave judgment in favor of the Defendant Bown with costs. The plaintiff's attorney gave notice of appeal.

The Quebec Government have one of the most barefaced scandals on their backs that ever took place; and these are the men who in unmeasured terms condemned the N. B. School Act, and used every effort to induce the Governor General to disallow the Act. No wonder that such men do not want free schools.

JAMES PATERSON, Esq., L. L. D., for many years Principal of the St. John Grammar School, died on the 10th inst., aged 79 years. The Dr. owing to failing health, retired a few years ago, from teaching. His literary and scientific contributions to the Mechanics' Institute, of which he was for several years the President, were of a high order. He was a native of Glasgow, and came to this Province in 1818.

Disastrous Floods.

The two heavy floods which have recently occurred at Eureka, Nova, and Pittsburg, Pa., have been so terribly destructive to life and property that they may be fairly classed among the extraordinary calamities of the year. They are beside phenomenal in their nature, one being due to a greatly overcharged cloud breaking against lofty ranges of mountains, and the other to the meeting of two vast masses of vapor which united in a deluge which is described as resembling the descent of a torrent. Both storms appear to have been local in destructive effect, although heavy rains and freshets have taken place over Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, and have everywhere caused damage.

The report of the Nevada deluge states that, within ten minutes after the beginning of the rain, Eureka was flooded. The water poured through the streets for half an hour, tearing up houses and uprooting trees, damaging property in the end to the extent of $100,000, and killing twenty people.

In Pittsburg, the destruction was much more extensive. From the descriptions given of the rising of the storm, two great black clouds appeared at opposite points of the compass and slowly approached each other. Blinding flashes of lightning shot between them as they neared, until the gradually narrowing space appeared a mass of fire. The meeting was heralded by a terrible thunderclap, followed by a few heavy rain drops, and then down poured the deluge with fearful fury. Pittsburg lies at the junction of two rivers, and its suburbs, built on the hillsides and valleys adjoining the streams, are traversed by gulches and natural water courses, which form channels for the rain to run off. Several ravines empty into Butcher's Run Valley, about two miles north of the centre of Allegheny City, along which numbers of houses had been erected. Here the damage began, and the flood rushed down the bed provided for it by nature, sweeping away everything in its path. In other valleys deluges appeared, working like disaster, and small streams suddenly became roaring torrents. Over one run, two new iron bridges and five wooden ones were carried off. Large salt works, refineries, and factories were destroyed, and barges and vessels in the rivers were torn from their fastenings and swept away. The total loss of life is placed at 219 persons, and a rough estimate places the pecuniary loss at $3,000,000.

Both floods, besides being owing to the phenomenal circumstances mentioned, were also greatly due to the situation of the towns, Eureka, at the foot of the mountains, receiving the deluge pouring down their sides; and Pittsburg, also in a valley surrounded by high land, lay in the path of the torrents which naturally sought to empty into the rivers.

The Perils of Flying.

M. De Groof, the flying man, lost his life recently at London, England. He had ascended in a balloon, and his part of the performance was to fly down to the earth after the balloon attained a great altitude. The unfortunate inventor had constructed a pair of wings made of cane and silk, each 37 feet long by 4 feet wide, and also a tail 18 by 3 feet in dimensions. The wings were inserted into two hinged frames, which were attached to a wooden stand, upon which the aeronaut stood and manipulated them by means of levers. The theory was that, when started from any high altitude, the machine would reach the earth by a very gentle incline, passing over a great distance and eventually landing without concussion. At a first trial of the device, on being dropped from a balloon, the earth was reached in safety, but on the present repetition of the experiment, De Groof seemed to lose control of his wings, and the apparatus collapsed and fell, dashing the man to pieces on the street pavement below.

THE POLYMERIC SHIP.—This is the name of a novel vessel, recently invented in England by Mr. Charles M. Barnes. The bottom is flat and fitted with three inclined planes with square ends, the effect being as though three teeth of a gigantic saw were moved through the water with the sloping portion of the teeth first. The inventor has tested the device by means of small models impelled by rockets. A 7 pound model was driven, by a 3 pound 3 ounce rocket, a distance of 405 yards in 3 seconds, or at the rate of 63 knots per hour. The motion is said to resemble sliding over ice. There is scarcely any water disturbance, and the decks were apparently motionless. When drawn slowly over the water, the vessel offered more resistance than models of the ordinary shape; but when the equilibrium, between the horizontal pressure of the inclines forward and the pressure of the water in the contrary direction, is destroyed, the model at once rises in the water and passes over the mass of biltharta obstructing fluid.

BALLOON'S MAGAZINE FOR SEPTEMBER.—The September number of this popular magazine is issued, and is fully as attractive as ever. It contains more variety, and is filled with more live stories than any other magazine in this country, and this is what makes it such a favorite with the people. The illustrations are reasonable and the descriptions well written and instructive. Just glance over the following list of contents and see what a treat is before the reader: The English Field Daisy.—The Sparrow's Nest.—She went to gather Flowers.—Hunted, or Florence Livingston's Oath.—The Gift of Christ.—The Moccasins' Prize.—Life's Contrasts.—In Shadow.—Back to Back.—The Viol.—E. glish Ivy-Legged Bob.—Morning and Evening.—Will She Marry Him.—My Love.—A Golden Fetter.—Enclosed.—Mandy's Boarder.—Hated to Death.—Nancy of the Hill Farm.—A great Conqueror, and many other interesting stories. Thomas & Lalbot, publishers, 35 Broadfield Street, Boston, and for sale at all the news depots in the country.

The "Central News" states that it is likely the Imperial Government will in a short time sanction the appointment of a qualified military officer of high standing, whose duty it will be to have control over the Militia and Volunteer forces of Canada.

SUMMARY.

The Rev. G. W. M. Carey, returned from Great Britain in the "Caspian," and preached on Sabbath last, in Halifax.

A verdict of wilful murder was rendered against Jas. McCann, Jr., of Woodstock, by the Coroner's jury for the murder of Squire Mr. Wm. Smith, Deputy Minister of Marine, is at present in Newfoundland.

MONTREAL was visited by a heavy fire on the 10th inst., destroying upwards of $100,000 worth of property. It commenced in a saw mill on Canal Bank. One man was drowned. The McAdam-Gillmor Scrutiny we were informed some days ago, had been abandoned. The "bitter end" has therefore melted away for want of "larger." The animus is still the same,—but it's all over.

Discussions are still taking place on the proposed Reciprocity Treaty, which should it pass in its present form, will entail a heavy loss on the Dominion, which will necessitate an Income tax, to make up the deficiency. This will be a most unpopular measure. There is no doubt that should Congress approve of the Treaty, it will be the Confederation, be carried at all hazards. It is announced that Mr. and Mrs. Algernon F. C. Sartoris will visit the United States in October, to attend Miss Sherman's wedding, and that a fine suit of rooms is being prepared for them in the White House.

—Mr. A. S. Finnie, formerly a clerk in the Halifax branch of the Bank of B. N. America, has been arrested at San Francisco on a charge of embezzling funds to the amount of $8,644.72 from the branch of the Bank there, in which he was employed as clerk.

The Colfax Times, of the 7th inst., says, "The body of a woman was discovered in the water near Gate's Wharf about ten o'clock to day. The woman was apparently between 40 and 50 years of age; supposed to be a Mrs. Paul formerly of Robbinston. In the preliminary examination that has been held, no marks of violence have been discovered, it is thought that her death was the result of an accident."

—The St. Stephen Engine Company have got a new uniform.

—The lumber interest is complaining everywhere that there is no demand for lumber. They can't sell, and so they are piling it up as mountains to a wait a demand.

—The six mill operatives at Belfast, Ireland, have struck, and they paraded the streets and mobbed several bakers. The government has been called upon for aid.

—It is stated that Italy has made a demand upon France for the recall of the war vessel Orontique, which has been permanently stationed at Cinto Vecchio as a refuge for the Pope in case of necessity.

—Several members of the Chicago common council are to be indicted for corruption, having sold their votes in the recent election of architects for the new court house.

—The two American base ball clubs now visiting England gave the first exhibition match at Liverpool, and the attendance was large. The Athletics of Philadelphia, beat the Red Stockings of Boston in ten innings, by a score of 14 to 11. The play was much admired and called forth considerable applause from the spectators.

The Guelph Mercury of the 23rd ult., says: "Who can read without emotion the story of two little girls in Green Bay, Wisconsin? The eldest was seven years of age, the youngest only five. A drunken father left them alone in their room for six days, with a small loaf of bread for food. When the children were found, the eldest sister was nearly dead, having refused to eat of the bread, so that her little sister might not suffer. We hear a great deal of heroines; does history furnish an example equal to this?"

A village of hostile Indians was broken up by a force of troops under Captain Bates in Wyoming Territory a short time since—Twenty five Indians were killed and one hun-dered wounded. Two soldiers were killed and three wounded.

MARRIED.

At Andover, 3rd inst., by Rev. L. A. Hoyt, R. W. L. Tibbets, Esq., of Salmon Falls, Vt. Co. to Sarah Ann, youngest daughter of Samuel Clark, of Andover.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Customs, and under the provisions of the 8th Section of the Act passed in the 31st year of Her Majesty's reign, intitled: "An Act respecting the Customs," His Excellency by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, has been pleased to Order, and it is hereby Ordered, that the following item in Schedule C of Customs Tariff Act as amended by the Act 37 Vic, cap. 6, viz.: "Woods unmanufactured, when chiefly used in drying" be and the same is hereby declared to be intended to apply to "Woods" used for the purpose mentioned in the said item, which may be imported free when simply ground or chipped as well as in solid pieces or sticks, such grinding and chipping not being considered such a manufacturing as would take the article out of the exemption.

And it is further Ordered, under the authority aforesaid, that the item "Ratan for chair makers" mentioned in the said list of free goods (Schedule C) be, and the same is hereby declared to be, intended to cover Ratan imported for Whip manufacturers.

W. A. HIMSWORTH, Clerk Privy Council.

A happy people has been found by a British man of war on one of the Islands of the New Hanover Group in the South Pacific Ocean. They live as did our first parents in the Garden of Eden, and such a thing as an article of clothing was not found on the island.
Knowing the evils which follow in the wake of civilization, it seemed a great pity that this people must soon be sacrificed.

Two men named Vinson and Elliot, have been living at Oak Bluff in Martha's Vine yard with two married women not their wives.
They were threatened with tar and feathers and Vinson left. Saturday night a party visited the house and seized Elliot, when he drew a pistol and killed "Club Smith," a brother of the two women. The murderer surrendered himself to the authorities.

The German Government is actively engaged in negotiations for the suppression of Carlist insurrections. It has exchanged opinions with the Russian Government, but the Czar is opposed to intervention. Germany is now trying to bring about a concurrence of the great powers in recognition of the Spanish republic.

"In the Province of Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick no person shall, during the months of July and August, fish for catch, kill, buy, sell or have in possession any soft-shell lobsters or female lobsters with eggs attached, nor shall lobsters of a less size than nine inches in length, measured from head to tail, exclusive of claws or feelers, be at any time fished for, caught, killed, bought, sold or had in possession, but when caught by accident in nets or other fishing apparatus lawfully used for other fish, lobsters with eggs attached, soft-shell and young lobsters of a less size than nine inches shall be liberated alive, at the risk and cost of the owner of the net or apparatus, or by the occupier of the fishery, on whom in every case shall devolve the proof of such actual liberation.

His Excellency has been pleased to cancel the fishery regulation established by Order in Coun-

The Aldine,

AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY JOURNAL, UNIVER-
SALLY ADMITTED TO BE THE HANDSOMEST
PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD, A REPRESENTATIVE
AND CHAMPION OF
AMERICAN TASTE.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the latest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Altho' each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromes besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view of the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thomas Moran and J. D. Woodard. The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artists' scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appear as exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20, 1873.
GENTLEMEN,—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderful & successful reproductions by mechanical process of the original paintings.
Very respectfully,
THOS. MORAN.

TERMS.

$4 per annum in advance, with 50 Chromos free. For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in case where the certificate is given, bearing the signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar

Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation,

made chiefly from the native herbs found

on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom

without the use of Alcohol. The question

is almost daily asked, "What is the cause

of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BIT-

TERS?" Our answer is, that they remove

the cause of disease, and the patient recov-
