Detectives were detailed to find the person or persons who had placed the bomb where it was found and their efforts were soon rewarded. The owner of the bomb readily explained all the circumstances in connection with it. He had picked it up on one of the Franco-Prussian battle fields a long time ago and had kept it as a relic although he was always straid of it and derived to get rid of it thinking it might some day explode. Late Wednesday he determined to throw the thing away. He carried it to Westminster bridge and when about half way across threw it, as he supposed, into the river. He apparently did not throw it far enough out and in falling it landed on the buttress where its finding resulted in starting a mild dynamite scare.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

Coinage of U. S. Standard Dollars to Be Resumed.

Dun & Co. State That Repeal Has Already Had a Good Effect.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—Important action was taken by the Treasury Department to-day in regard to silver. Orders were sent to the superintendents of the United States mints at San Francisco and New Orleans to resume the coinage suspended seme time ago of standard silver dollars. This action is taken under authority of sections of the Sherman law of 1890.

authority of sections of the Sherman is woll 1890.

It is for the purpose of utilizing the seigniorage that the coinage of standard silver dollars is resumed at one, which will give the United States treasury a seigniorage of about $500,000. In other words, the seigniorage bears the proportion of one-third to the amount of silver coined. It is the intention of the Treasury Department, as other mints become clear of gold coinage, to have them coin silver and thus increase the coinage from $3.500,000 to $4,000,000 this month.

of the country reckons it helpful, and the tone of trade is more confident. Bankors are already more liberal in accommodations, and merchants more hopeful in purchases. Industries could not be expected to make any material gain as yet, but the demand for the textile products has to some extent improved. The most astonishing shrinkage ever known in purchases by consumers has been at the bottom of the prostration of trade and manufactures, and as yet there is scarcely any sign of improvement in that respect.

Failures for the week number 358, against 238 last year.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Speaker says editorially of the repeal of the Sherman Act: "There is a feeling of relief in the United States and Europe. The repeal of the Sherman Act: are possible to the Sherman Act: browned to the Sherman Act: there is a feeling of relief in the United States and Europe. The repeal of the Sherman Act: will soon die out." The writer enumerates a list of reforms which he says are badly needed in the United States and ought to be undertaken at once—modification of the McKinley Bill, revision of the pension list, restoration of the $100,000,000 gold reserve in the treasury, and a complete overhauling of the national banking system.

The Statist insists that since the repeal

Detroit prohibitionists are putting a complete ticket in the municipal field.

Miss Annie Howard, who was to have been married to the late Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, next week, left Friday afternoon for her home in Biloxi, Miss.

The members of the Londen City Council, Board of Trade and either citizens who went by the M. C. R. to Ridgetown, where they took the Detroit River and Lake Erie Railway to Walkerville, by invitation of the directors of that road, whose offer to lease the L. and P. S. has been provisionally adopted by the board of the last-named corporation, returned at 11:40 Thursday night. Those who participated were: John Moule, acting mayor; Ald. Scarrow, Dreaney, Coo, Chas. Taylor and Jesse Welford; C. A. Kingston, city clerk; A. O. Graydon, city engineer; John Pope, city treasurer; E. Meredith, solicitor to the London and Port Stanley Board; J. A. Nelles, sceresary Board of Trade; W. R. Hobbs, Wm. Yates, John Bowman, Thos. F. How, manager Bank of Toronte; D. Department, as other mints become clear of gold coinage, to have them coin silver and thus increase the coinage from $5, 500,000 to $4,000,000 this month.

This seigniorage is so much clear gain to the United States treasury, and if it all could be placed to the credit of the Government at once it would increase the balance by $53,000,000. The ammount of silver subject to coinage is 140,000,000 ounces.

The silver builion to be thus converted into standard silver dellars is the silver purchased under the Sherman Act of 1890, and upon which the coin notes are issued. The coinage of the silver will increase money in circulation to the extent of the scipnorage, and without further legislation is the only means of increasing the per capital circulation to keep pace with the repeal of the Silver Purchase Act does good already. R. and Mr. Charles Young, a former Londoner, who is a trusted official of the road, were in waiting to receive the visitors. There was only a short time to stay, if return connections were to be made, but the period was embraced by several business men to talk over the standing of the line with Auditor Leslie. He volunteered the information that there were 84 miles of main track, running through a section supplying a very satisfactory amount of local traffic, and a large portion of which, before the line was built, unsupplied with rapid communication with the outside world. The road has 14 miles of sidings, 7 locomotives, 11 passenger cars, 15 box cars and 192 flat cars. The bonds are held entirely by Walker & Sons, the proprietors of the town of Walkerville, and Auditor Leslie informed the delegation that the road has paid from the start 6 per cent, on the original cash outlay.

Tremendous Business Done by It—A Surprise to Cfficials.

Chicaco, Nov. 3.—James J. Hastings, superintendent of the model postoffice in the Government building at the World's Fair grounds, made a report yesterday to Postmaster Sexton on the work of the office during the period of the exposition. It shows that during the sixmonths 7,987,-487 pieces of mail matter were dispatched and 7,121,916 pieces were received. This total has surprised all who had to do with the organization of the postoffice. It is as large a business as is done in a city like Deiroit or New Orleans.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eelectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruissi, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

Much enthusiasm was manifested when Mrs. Thornley, the president-elect, was escorted to the platform and the chair by Mrs. Cavers, the retiring president, and Mrs. Fawcett. In a voice unmistakably shaken with emotion, she told het sisters in the work of the rejuctance with which, though given up to the work, she assumed this new duty and responsibility.

A letter was read from Rev. A. Murphy, M.A., regretting his unavoidable absence, also a telegram of greeting from St. Stephen, N.B.

A school of methods was the afternoon programme, conducted by Mrs. Thornley, who gave an earnest address upon "Devetonal Exercises in our Unions." She becaught her hearers to lay great stress upon the devotional portion of the work, and antlined a number of particulars in which the ordinary prayer meeting could be improved.

The "question" box was then opened, not Mrs. Williams, Dominion superinendent, answered numerous questions.

The William Street Baptish Church was crowded in the evening, when the last evening meeting of the convention was held. An interesting feature was the presenting of the banner to the county union which has made the best showing for the past year. For two years Middleace has kept this bedge of superiority, but in the year just closed Carleton has increased from 12 members to 200, and by this dash has secured the prize. It was presented by Mrs. Thornley (herself of Middlesex), and gracefully received and acknowledged by Miss Hume, of Ottawa.

After a solo from Miss Phelps, Rev. W. F. Wilson, of McGaul Street Church, Toronto, delivered the address of the evening—a strong plea for the cause championed by the W. C. T. U. Mr. W. E. Hamilton addressed the ladies briefly on the advisability of establishing a government institution for the cure of drunkards.

The resolution committee then reported several resolutions framed in connection with the work, which were carried.

Rev. Arthur Murphy, M.A., was then introduced, and spoke briefly urging the members to press onward in a work upon which God's blessings was abundantly iall-

general business of the convention, SAVE THE BABIES.

Too Many Deaths!

Mothers Responsible!

Better Food Wanted!

WHAT SCIENCE HAS DONE TO SAVE BABY LIFE!

The press and thinking people of Canada continually cry out on behalf of "baby life." Too many deaths occur from day to day owing to the carelessness of mothers in the matter of feeding. Baby life with its weak digestive powers and undeveloped organs requires a food as near mother's milk as it can be made. Science has given Lactated Food to the world, for the sustenance and preservation of its little ones.
This Lactated Food is easily assimilated;
it never irritates the stomach and bowels;
it is a health giver and producer of fat, bone and muscle. Lactated Food saves from diarrhea and dysentery, and has the grandest record as a saver of infant life.
Mothers who have given this food one trial, never use any other. If baby is not doing well, we say, try Lactated Food, the mother's friend and infant's health-giver.

A cablegram from London says that the minutes of the Admiralty in the Victoria-Camperdown court-martial confirm the findings of the court. Capt. Charles Johnstone, of the Camperdown, is criticised somewhat severely by the Admiralty. The report closes thus:

report closes thus:

"The Victoria capsized owing to her watertight doors not being closed. Otherwise she would have remained afloat and reached port under her own steam. The general structure did not, by any fault in principle, contribute to her loss. Regulations will be issued to the fleet which, while maintaining the responsibility and discretionary powers of the commanders, will insure under special circumstances, especially when a collision is possible, that the water-tight doors and hatches shall be closed as far as possible, and that men shall be stationed at those necessarily kept be stationed at those necessarily kept

The minutes express the regret of the Admiralty that Capt. Johnstone did not show promptitude of decision in executing orders and in avoiding a collision. Special attention is directed to his failure to order at once extreme helm and full speed astern. The chief lesson of the great calamity is therefore that nothing should be taken for granted. The Vic-toria was sailing in smooth water, she was surrounded by her consorts, and the idea of her going to the bottom was the last thing thought of. Therefore, all the bulkheads were open, and the safeguards that would have been taken in battle or in a tempest at sea were neglected. Whether lives and of valuable property cannot afford om danger. It is the unex pected that happens.

-From the advance sheets of Erastus Wiman's new book, one is irresistibly led to the conclusion that it will cause a sensation when finally issued to the public. Mr. Wiman is a Canadian who made his mark in the busy commercial world during the last 25 years, and his views regarding the real conditions that surround business, and how the future is likely to be affected by these conditions, must prove of especial value in these days of change and progress.

The book will have for its title

Chances of Success: Episodes and Incidents in the Life of a Busy Man."
"It is," we are told, "a recital of the most vivid incidents in the averyday life of an observant, thoughtful man; energetically engaged in numerous pursuits; from a point of observation unequaled; in contact with the most promi-nent people; and imbued with a desire to discover the elements of success and the causes of failure in a country so blessed with abundance. Equally will there be an interest in this book excited in the minds of young men about to commence business or choose a vocation. The complete reversal of the ons they must encounter, as compared with those which existed when their parents stepped on the stage of life, is of immense importance, especially in view of recent events which have so convulsed the commercial world. The causes of overproduction, the result of unbridled comcombination and the resulting exhaustion of opportunity are all points for most serious consideration, and which are fully discussed in the forthcoming book. Inci-dental to these graver subjects, the book will be enlivened with business episodes, frequently of a character foreign from ab-

Though this least, far, far away. neasure has been long delayed it must not be imagined that the English people have stood still in recent years. The remarkable progress which they have made in local self-government was ably set forth by Right Hon. H. H. Fowler, president of the Local Government Board, at a recent banquet in his honor in the busy town of Wolverhampton, which he represents in Parliament. Mr. Fowler pointed out that in 1818, when the population of England was nearly 12,000,000, the expenditure on the relief of the poor was £7,350,000. In 1871, upwards of 50 years later, with a population of nearly 23,000,000 the expenditure was practically the same, or not over £7,750,000. The returns for 1892 show that, with a population just under 30,-000,000, the country is spending £8,500,000 on the relief of the poor, and Mr. Fowler assures us that they are thoroughly well relieved in the present day. In 1803, the poor rate pure and simple was 3s 41d in the pound. In 1871, it was ls 51d, and last year it was ls 111d, and that was further reduced, as far as local burdens were concerned, by upwards of 4d in the pound by subvention from imperial funds. This couraging. Though there is still much to ture in the last 25 years, including school board rates, the sum is only now 3s 8d in the pound, the present average throughout the kingdom being less by 23d than in 1817, and only 4d more than in 1868. These figures represent first the decreasing burden upon the industry of the masses, and then an enormously increased expenditure for the benefit, happiness, security, elevation and enjoyment of the people.

The present local debt of England is £200,000,000. This sum seems large, but Mr. Fowler says that at least half of the debt is a reproductive expenditure. It is an investment of capital that is bringing in a large income to the community, while at the same time conferring on it great benefits. Of this £200,000,000 England owes £31,000,000 for harbors and docks, £38,000,000 for water, £15,000,000 for lighting, and £5,000,000 for markets. In Wolverhampton they have paid back the capital for markets and are receiving a large income from them. Then £1,000,000 has been paid for tramsthe old country word for street railwaysand Mr. Fowler believes that this amount will be added to in the near future, Another safe, reproductive expenditure is nineteen millions which are owed for schools. For sewerage, twenty millions; for hospitals, asylums and cemeteries, seven a tempest at sea were neglected. Whether on sea or on land those in charge of valuable lives and of valuable property cannot afford to omit one precaution necessary to secure to omit one precaution necessary to secure wents twenty-nine millions have been border to omit one precaution necessary to secure wents twenty-nine millions have been border to omit one precaution necessary to secure wents twenty-nine millions have been border to omit one precaution necessary to secure wents twenty-nine millions have been border to omit one precaution necessary to secure with a sea were neglected. Britain's imperial debt was incurred, in the main, for war purposes. The country borrowed £120,000,000 in the foolish war with the American colonies and £600,-000,000 to carry on the frightful European war against France which extended for so long a period into the present century. Mr. Fowler rightly holds that this expenditure would not be countenanced to-day. "No party, no Government, no statesman, would ever sanction such an outpouring of national treasure as was sanctioned 60 or 70 years ago, It is different with the local debt of the country. That debt has been incurred for the happiness and improvement of the people, for fighting the battle against ignorance, vice, disease and misery, and for elevating the whole community, for raising it in the truest and best sense, and diffusing an amount of happiness greater than ever prevailed at any prior period in the history of England." Apparently Mr. Fowler believes that the "good old days" in England are now.

Turning to the assets, Mr. Fowler pointed ont that, though no accurate return of the national property existed in the early part of the century, in 1818 the rateable value of England was £40,000,000. In 1841 it rose to £62,500,000. There ended the petition, the consequent tendency toward "protective" tariff era, and the era of free trade began. In 1868, the rateable value of the country had risen to £100,-000,000, and in 1891 it reached the enormous figure of £152,000,000. This the president of the Local Government Board was able to show that though there struse theories, and calculated to beget an interest not usually attempted in a work of this economic character." That the tax-papers take kindly to the new way, is shown by the fact that four-fifths of the taxes for 1893 are already paid into the treasurer's hands. When the first call was made a discount of 3 per cent, was allowed to all paying their taxes before Aug. 31. This was liberally taken advantage of by the citizens. The next installment was due by Oct. 31, and all who paid up by that date saved the payment of 5 cents additional on every dollar. A Meeting of Determined Temper ance People at Ailsa Craig.

The Enormities of the Liquor Traffic Fully Recognized-No Talking Needed to Heighten This Impression-Complete Organization of the Riding Mapped Out.

It was a thoughtful, appreciative and earnest body of men which assembled in the town hall of Alta Craig yesterday afternoon for the purpose of conferring together on plobiscite organization. Rev. John Holmes, of Parkhill, took the chair. The general feeling of the meeting seemed to be that an association be formed to be mbrace the whole north riding of Middlesex. Very little speaking will be done—the orator, whether imported or local, was discountenanced—but hard, carnest, uncompromising work throughout the whole district. Those at the meeting seemed to think that the people generally recognized the hideous character of the liquor traffic—an impression which could not be magnified by mere talk—and that the chief desideratum wasto see that a full vote, year or nay, was given.

THE ORATORICAL ELEMENT.

The feeling of the meeting seemed to be adverse to the importation of outside talent tor oratorical purposes. Speakers of this class were not conversant with the question as it affected different localities in the riding. One minister said that, being a minister, he should have considerable faith in talking. But talking was not going to win this victory. The plebiscite would be carried by agreater majority if the chief effort were reserved to bringing out the note. Every effort should be bent in this direction. Another gentleman did not think that the opponents of prohibition were goint to make any public combat, and on this account strict attention should be given to securing a clean and irreproachable election. —Several local sportsmen who have read all the evidence thus fur published, and who are familiar with the spot where the body was found, advance the theory that Detective Alien met his death at his own hands. They contend that he must have shot the deer with the right barrel and reloaded it again before cutting the deer's throat. Allen was not an experienced hunter, and with both chambers loaded the hammer had fallen on the left barrel, discharging the contents in his head. This is the only manner in which the two reports can be accounted for.—[Woodstock Sentinel Review.

This afternoon the football club from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, will play the final game for the intermediate championship with the London team. This is the firet time in the history of football that the final has ever been played outside of Toronto. A cheap rate has been secured on the railways and the home players may look for about 200 enthusiasts accompanying the visitors, well supplied with tin horns and everything necessary to cheer up their crack team. The home club will be very strong, having secured the assistance of that king of half-backs, Barry, of Water-loo. It is expected that this will be a hardfought match. Being the final, the winning club will receive a handsome silver cup.

humored her still. And not content with that, had insisted that everyone else should humor her.

If Carrie had not been a good, sweethearted girl she must have been spoiled, and then she would not have been troubled with her eventral history.

It is impossible to spoil some natures, just as it is impossible to kill some plants. All the indulgence which had been lavished upon Carrie had made her willful, capricious, a little proud, not a little fond of her own way; but it had not ruined her sweet, loving nature, which atoned for all her faults.

There was a special grace about her which, more even than her beauty, bewitched and enthralled one.

There are some girls, for instance, who, try as they will, can never manage their hair properly; Carrie would give a careless twist of her soft, nut-brown hair round her shapely head, and look, on the instant, like a Hebe. There are some girls who, give them the most costly and fashionable apparel, never look well dressed; Carrie would appear in a cotton frock of the simplest description, and look as if the garment had grown on to her. Some girls nover know what to do with their hands and their feet: Carrie had the most perfect, yet unconscious, command of those members, and possessed, still unconsciously, the secret of assuming a hundred graceful and natural posses in almost as many minutes.

Then her voice! Philippa said that it was like the lark's; but it wasn't; the lark has only one note, or two or three at the most; Carrie had a score or more, and all were musical.

Her laugh drove her admirers to the point of sittle propers.

STOMACH AND LIVER CURE

The Wonderful HEALTH BUILDER & NERVE FOOD Chronic Diseases are caused by Deranged Nerve Centres at base of the Brain.

T ATE discoveries have absolutely Lungs, and indeed all internal organs, are controlled by the nerve centres at the base of the brain. The manufacturer of SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE has studied this subject closely for more than twenty-five years, and has lately demonstrated that two-thirds of our Chronic Diseases, are due to the imperfect action of nerve centres, either within or at the base of the brain and within or at the base of the brain and not from a derangement of the organs themselves; hence that the ordinary methods of treatment are wrong.

As all know, a serious injury to the spinal cord, will at once cause Paralysis of the body below the injured part, it therefore will be equally well understood, how the derangements of the nerve centres, will cause the derangement of the different organs of the body which they supply with Nerve Elevied or Nerve English.

they supply with Nerve Fluid or Nerve Force. The wonderful success of South American Nervine is due alone to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principle. The use of a single bottle of this remedy will convince the most incredulous. It is indeed, a veritable Nerve Food and Will Relieve in One Day the varied forms of Nervous Disease and Stomach Troubles.

Nervous Diseases.

This class of diseases, is rapidly increasing each year, on account of the great wear our mode of living and labor imposes upon the nervous system. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir, are dependent upon nervous exhaustion, impaired digestion, and a deteriorated and impoverished condition of the blood. The SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINI is a great nerve food and nerve builder and this accounts for its marvellous power to cure the varied forms of nervous disease, such as Neuralgia, Nervousness, Nervous Prostration, St. Vitus's Dance, Nervous Choking, Nervous Paroxysms, Twitching of the Muscles, Hot Flashes, Mentai Despondency, Forgetfulness, Sleeplessness, Restlessness, Nervousness of Females, Palpitation of the Heart, Sexual Weakness, etc., etc.,

South American Medicine Company.

Gentlement I received a letter from you May 27 stating that you had heard of my wonderful recovery from a spell of sickness of six years duration, through the use of South American Medicine Company.

FROM NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Would have vomiting spells, and there would be from eighteen to twenty days at a time that I could not retain anything on my stomach. Many consultations were held by physicians over my case, but they all agreed that I would never leave my bed. During the years I lay sick, my folks had an eminent physician from Dayton, Ohio, and two from Columbus, Ohio, to come and examine me. They all said I could not live. I got to having spells like spasms, and would lie cold and stiff for a time after each. At last I lost the use of my body — could not rise from my bed or walk a step, and had to be lifted like a child; all the time suffering intense pain, and taking almost every known medicine. Part of the time I could read a little, and one day saw an advertisement of your medicine and concluded to try one bottle. By the time I had taken one and one-half bottles I could rise from my friends could scarcely believe it was I. I am sure this medicine is the best in the world. It was a god-s nd to me, and I believe it saved my life. I give my name and address, so that if anyone doubts my statement they can write me, or our postmaster or ny citizen, as all are acquainted with my case. I am now forty-one years of age, and expect to live as long as the Lord has use for me and do all the good I can in helping the suffering.

Will a remedy which can effect such a marvellous cure as the above, cure you?

PETERBORO, Ontario, June 27, 1893.

To the Proprietor of South American Nervina.

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in recommending the great South American Nervina of all who are afflicted as I have been, with nervous prostration and indigestion. I found very great relief from the very first bottle, which was strongly recommended to me by my druggist. I also induced my wife to use it, who, I must say, was completely run down and was suffering very much from general debility. She found great relief from SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE, and also cheerfully recommends it to her fellow sufferers.

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITUS'S DANGE.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Indiana.

My daughter, twelve years old, had been afflicted for several months with Chorea or St.

Vitus's Dance. She was reduced to a skeleton, could not walk, could not talk, could not swallow anything but milk; I had to handle her like an infant. Doctors and neighbors gave her up. I commenced giving her the SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONG, and the effects were very surprising. In three days she was rid of the nervousness, and rapidly improved. Four bottles cured her completely. I think the SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE the grandest remedy ever discovered and would recommend it to everyone.

I have been for about ten years very much troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, have tried a grent many different kinds of patent medicines, and have been treated by a number of physicians and found no benefit from them. I was recommended to try South American Nervine. I obtained a bottle, and I must say I have found very great relief, and have since taken two more bottles, and now feel that I am entirely free from indigestion, and would strongly recommend all my fellow sufferers from the disease, to give South American Nervine an immediate trial,

The givings were far in advance of any previous year. They reached about $350—1 larger sum than was contributed last year by any church in Canada, except one Toronic church. The congregations have been very large of late, and there is urgent need of more room. The Sunday school also is overcrowded and is greatly in need of a new and much larger building.

The expression, "You know a good thing when you see it, and you see a good thing when you know it," can properly apply to the play "Ole Olson," which comes to the Grand Cpera House Wednesday evening, Nov. 8. This piece has stood the test of time, and now entirely relies on ite moritorious features for its success. Big, burly and brave is this honest and simple burly and brave is this honest and simple son of toil from over the sea. There certainly has not been produced in recent years a play that embraces as much satisfying power as is intused in this faithful portrayal of the adventures of this unsophisticated youth. The play is not only itself meritorious, but its numerous added novelties have made it complete in every detail. What's in a Name?

Clissoid (an ex-Londoner) is proprietor and publisher, contains the following: "A 7-year-old Boston Iad, building 'better than he knew,' invented the other day a new and exceedingly appropriate name for the ordinary run of city saloons. The little fellow knew that we bought tea at a tate a store and boots at a boot store. So this kind of unconscious analogy guided his speech. At the table the other day he broke out with the news: 'I seed two men coming out of a drunk store and one of them was oxticated.'

However, the company will hold a meeting to-morrow evening, and it is probable a decision will be made. Of course we can't blame the London people for being careful in the selection of lessees as nearly $500,000 of London capital has been sunk in the road already, and it is an important matter to them. No legal right to the money was claimed, and the application was again laid over for a month. At the last meeting of the committee the proposition of the London Street Railway Company to electrify their system was referred to the chairman, who, if possible, was to meet the representatives of the company and see if a better offer could not be made. No meeting had been held, and the matter was again laid over. W. R. Harding appealed against assessment on some Queen's avenue property. Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 2.—The third annual convention of the lay workers and Sunday school teachers of the Diocese of Huron opened yesterday afternoon at the schoolhouse of New St. Paul's Church. The Bishop of Huron was in the chair, and there was a large number of delegates present. J. J. Hall, Woodstock, and J. M. McWhinnie, of London, were appointed secretaries; Very Rev. In his opening address the Bishop of Huron desired to wolcome all to the convention. The importance of the Sunday school and the power that it formerly possessed was forcibly pointed out. The church had awakened much from the torpor of the past, but at present many signs of church work indicate that there is now an amount of extrestness that was wanting in

The first paper was read by the Rev. Arthur Murphy, M.A., rector of Holy Trinity Church, Chatham, on the subject "The Sunday School the Ally of the Church." Leigh, of Rodney. Canon Richardson put in a good word for the Christian Endeavor Society. There was considerable difference of opinion as to the efficiency of the leaflet in Sunday school teaching. Mr. James Wood said that leaflets had a legitimate place in the Sunday school, and that was in the waste basket by the door. There was too much in it. No questions should be put such as could not reasonably be answered by the pupil. Some of them could not be answered by a doctor of divinity. But the leaflets had a place to assist in home teaching.

The first paper of the morning was by Mr. James Woods, a prominent Sunday school worker of Galt. His subject jwas
"A lay reader's qualifications."
Mr. Walter Crawford, of Lendon, urged the necessity of consecration of lay workers to their work.
The bishop said it would have been good for the Church of England if she had awakened to the subject of lay readers' long age.
The value of honest lay readers' work could not be over-estimated.
At the afternoon session Mr. Allan M.
Dymond, or Toronto, read a paper on "The place of foreign missions in the life and work of the Church of England." The writer claimed that there was nothing that took away the thought of the separation of Christian bodies more than the work that writer claimed that there was nothing that took away the thought of the separation of Christian bodies more than the work that is being accomplished in the foreign field. The paper was discussed by Mr. Walter Crawford, London; Rev. John Downie, Watford; Rev. G. C. Mackenzie, Brantford; Mr. Jumes Woods, Galt; Mr. Charles Jenkins, Petrolea; Rev. W. T. Hill, London, and Mr. A. H. Dymond.

The bishop congratulated the lecturer for his address and spoke of what was being done in foreign missions at the present time in India, Africa, the Sandwich Islands and other heathen lands. Among the reasons that could be offered in favor of missions there was the great reason, his

Dr. R. Gibson, of Watford, gave a paper on "The use of the Prayer Book in the Sunday school." He said that all the vital principles of the church would be found in the Prayer Book, which was founded on the Bible, and it ought, therefore, to be used in all Sunday schools.

Rev. F. G. Newton, of Strathroy, thought the Sunday school was only preparatory to the church.

Miss Gower, of London West, stated what parts of the Prayer Book were used in St. George's Church.

Rev. W. Hart deplored the want of familiarity of the Christian with the Prayer Book.

Rev. W. Craig, Petrolea, pointed out the danger of the Sunday school usurping the place of the church.

The evening session was held in the town hall at So'clock, a large number being present. The bishop was in the chair. There were two excellent addresses given—the first was by Mr. Charles Jenkins, of Petrolea, on "The Scriptural basis of church giving," and the second by Rev. H. C. Dixon, of Toronto, on "Mission work among the massee."

The bishop in closing stated that the work of the diocese was seen in this convention, and returned thanks for its service, and hoped that the result would be to make us labor more earnestly in the great field where the lost were to be found.

Prohibition and Labor.

A Straight Discussion of a Fair Question.

Do the Working Masses Lose or Gain?

[Written specially for these columns by T. W. Casey.] "Would not the enactment of a prohibition law deprive a lot of laborers of their means of living?" is sometimes honestly questioned. Canada has not an overplus of labor, by any means, if only the capital were available to give it buildings and men. employment in a large number of industries the country now much needs. The capital now invested in liquor-making in the Dominion would, if invested in almost any less harmful and more legitimate business, give employment to a much larger number of laborers. Very few lines of business give employment to so few laborers as the liquormaking business in proportion to the capital invested and the profits derived from the business.

Here are the facts: According to returns the amount of capital now in-Canada is $15,368,953. The number of persons employed is:

essavists, with some preachers, laboring under the delusion that they are political scientists, are wasting their strength and precious time in trying to overcome inevitability. They persist in ignoring the truths: First, that drunkards are the product of drunkardmakers, and second, that so long as drunkard-makers are kept at work, their product will continue to come forward regularly and abundantly. When these theorists have developed a method whereby decayed fruit can be made fresh, rotten timber be made sound, and diseased meat be made healthful, they may then find out a way to maintain drunkard-makers without a crop of drunkards. If, however, they believe it to be the true aim of government to perpetuate and increase the crop of drunkards, we admit that there can be no more effective method to that end than in governmental partnership with and protection to drunkard-makers. If government plans and plants for that either; it's a kind of crop that, if sown, will grow anywhere, and in great abund

Alcohol and Sparrows. A Cuero, Texas, dispatch says: 'The English sparrows have proved a nuisance in the cotton country, for as soon as the bolls open they pick out the cotton and carry it oft, and some planters have lost, as they claim, undreds of pounds in this way. There is one man, however, in De Witt county that has not lost much. When he found the sparrows were committing depredations he procured a quantity of wheat, soaked it in sweetened whisky, and strewed it along the rows. The sparrows found it, and thought they had a picnic. So they had, but in fifteen or twenty minutes there was the tipsiest lot of English sparrows ever seen on the face of the earth. They rolled about the ground, falling on their sides and back and kicking their neels into the air like a parcel of drunkards, all the while uttering the most comical squeaks. They did not have long to squeak, however, for the boys gathered them up and threw them into bags. The first day they gathered two bushels of drunken sparrows. Three or four days later the experiment was repeated with almost equal success, and from time to time since. They made excellent potpie, but the urvivors have come to regard the lantation as hoodooed, for now very BELWOOD, Oct. 24, 1893. At the late prohibition convention in the city of Toronto, arrangements were completed for a thorough organization of every county and city in the Provace of Ontario with reference to the plebiscite to be taken on the first of anuary next. In accordance therewith a meeting of two sessions of all the ministers, presidents of Christian Endeavor Societies and Epworth Leagues, and all other temperance workers of the Centre Riding of Wellington, will be held in the Town Hall, A good many legislators, editors and Fergus, on Monday the 6th day of November, at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m., for the purpose of organizing for the campaign. Mr. F. S. Spence of Toronto paign. Mr. F. S. Spence or 1000000 will address both meetings. A large attendance is urgently requested at both meetings. Pastors of churches will please announce to their congregations and urge a full attendance. J. C. Madill, convener; P. J. McLaren, secretary.

> Now Is the Time. [From the Industrial Banner.]

It will soon be in order for the hotelseepers of London to be friendly once more to the blue label union cigar. The plebiscite to be submitted to the people of Ontario to ascertain their views on the prohibition of the liquor traffic will be voted on at the next municipal election. The hotel-keepers may be expected to show a smiling face to workingmen and cigarmakers in particular. They will all be friends of the blue label and in hearty sympathy with all efforts of the wageearners to better their condition. This was the old trick last year, and they received the support of the Cigarmakers' Union and carried their point for The cigarmakers fooled-that was the fault of the hotelkeepers; if they are fooled again the fault will be their own. Meanwhile the hotel-keepers are on trial, the mass of evidence is against them. It may become necessary in defence of its interest for organized labor at the next municipal election to throw every vote in its power in favor of the prohibition plebiscite. The rum power has been tried and found wanting. Organized labor must act prompt and united. If the liquor traffic is unfair to labor and stands in its way, it must be swept out of existence, and the sooner the better. The people who make promises to the workingmen and then go back on them be taught a lesson. You can fool us once, gentlemen, but you can't do it the second time.

The Duty of the Hour. [From the Christian Guardian.]

There is an earnest of victory in the daily news that, in all directions, the friends of temperance are organizing to bring out a strong vote for the abolition of the liquor traffic, on Jan. r next. Hearing of these associations suggests the question, what are these organizations aiming to accomplish? What is the work they are to do? The main object is to secure an overwhelming vote for prohibition, how is this to be achieved? We may safely assume, that all sound prohibitionists who believe the liquor traffic A correspondent in the 'Toronto to be a great evil will require no more, for feeding purposes. They find it worth more to them in that way than in selling it at any such prices as the Canadian brewers now give.

To show how largely it is now consumed for feeding and other domestic purposes the following official figures are to the point:

Total bushels of barley exported..5,201,215 Total bushels for liquor making..1,475,090

Total..............6,676,305

Deduct that from the quantity produced in the country, and it leaves nearly 14,000,000 bushels on hand, all of which was either used for seed or teeding purposes. Every farmer now knows that the barley he wishes to sell is just worth what it will command for whatever deficiencies it has in Portland recty on the issue of the hour. Person gets any more than that for it from the Canadian brewer or distiller.

The name of Josephine Butler stands in the foremost rank of the women of to-day as one who has fought a good fight in the cause of her fellow women, and whose name will act as a trumpet call, should need for similar action again arise. When that may be, who can say? The foe she fought, though was necessary that it should be atvanquished, is not dead, and may yet tacked, and that without hesitation or rise his ugly head in the midst of us, if fear. The plague spot was in our we cease our watchfulness for one Josephine Butler comes of that mixed Saxon and Celtic race from which the world has received some of its brightest ornaments.

Her mother was descended from a Huguenot family, who fled to England after the Revocation of the Edict of Her father, John Grey, of Dilston, was of old Northumbrian stock, an ardent reformer and lover of freedom. Both parents had known what it meant to struggle for liberty of conscience, and they brought up their children to love liberty and truth, and to detest all arbitrary power.

When quite young she married the Rev. George Butler, who was successively lecturer at Oxford, vice-principal of Cheltenham College, principal Liverpool College, and canon of Winchester. They had four children, three sons and a daughter. It was the ter-ribly tragic death of the latter which seems to have been the means of leading Mrs. Butler to take up her life's work. Her tenderly loved and cherished daughter was dead, but there were other women's daughters, not tenderly loved, and with no one to cherish them-hopeless - helpless forsaken—and her hungry mother's heart turned to them with the pitying love they so needed, recognize common bond of womanhood between them, recognizing, too, that they were often less to blame for their terrible fall than many a more happy woman is for the errors which sit so lightly on her conscience. In all her dealings with the fallen, Josephine Butler has been animated by a strong and divine love of the sinners, and by a passionate desire to develop the latent possi-bilities for good in them, however overgrown and hidden by ignorance and vice; acting always in that spirit "Neither do I condemn which said: thee; go and sin no more."

From what the writer knows of Mrs. Butler she believes her to possess three of the strongest elements of character necessary to the effectual fulfillment of such a work as hers: Honor and reverence for womanhood; trust in the people; and a deep-rooted love of justice. It is to the first of these she owes her success in rescue work, and the power she had of inspiring to purer lives those she rescued. The woman's soul is there still, even in the fallen body of the grossest sinner. Mrs. Butler perceived this, and therefore she mas ever striven to awaken the latent waged are, besides being evil in themwomanhood into active life. lute trust in the people and a strong dislike of officialism. Brought up among the hardy and independent Northumbrian folk, those sturdy de-scendants of the old Borderers, and imbibing her politics from her father, who was far ahead of most men of his day, it was but natural, nay, it was inevitable, that she should see in the people the force which was to regenerate the country and that she should place confidence in them. But the master passion of her soul-that round which all the others center-is love of justice. Neither for the outcast nor for women. neither for the English workingman nor for the Irish peasant and patriot, does Mrs. Butler crave boons at the hands of the State; she asks for simple jus tice and fair play, that no exceptiona laws shall be made for one nor for the other, but that all may have a fair field, and that liberty which is the common right of every citizen of whatever sex or Hence it is that Mrs. Butndition. is an ardent suffragist and also a ng Home Ruler. To all in au-

But it it is not with politics properly called that Mrs. Butler's name will

Mrs. Butler and her band of heroic fellow-workers came forward, forgetful of themselves, and did battle in the cause of the saddest and most suffering of their sisters. Space fails me to tell of the long and fierce struggle, the hosts of darkness gathered thick around, when it seemed as if the dawn would never come. Not in England only is her name known, her work has spread all over the continent. During the early part of the struggle she went abroad to inquire into the working of the infamous "morals police" system and to collect facts for the campaign in England. These visits have resulted in drawing around her the enemies of the acts in all nations and in the formation of a the abolition of State-regulated vice in all countries. This locomotive consists in principle of a steam engine driving a dynamo which supplies current to motors which effect the propulsion. The engine was tried on a stretch of line about one and one-quarter miles long which contained curves of 250 feet radius and stiff slopes. The shortness of the run prevented any high speed being attained, but at speeds of from 20 to 25 miles an hour the running of the locomotive was remarkable. In shop trials the machinery has been run at a speed corresponding to 60 miles per Trials of the combined efficiency of the engine and dynamo motors were made on the return of the locomotive to the shops.

Dreams and Smelling.

I should be much obliged to you and to your readers, writes a correspondent, if they can throw any light upon a subject which has much engaged my attention of late. Why is it that one never dreams of smelling, although, no doubt, certain perfumes (say that of cooking) might produce a dream, say, of a delicious dinner? I have men tioned this subject to a number of my friends, who all acknowledge that my statement is true, but, without advancing any theory on the subject, they agree that one dreams of eating, talking, walking, flying, hearing both conversa tion and musical sounds, but never of smelling. I spoke to a couple of doctors, who also said, "How interesting, and perfectly true! Odd, it should never have struck us before !" I asked, "Where are the olfactory nerves?" Hypnotism in Church.

Somebody has discovered that church sleepiness is to be explained on scientific principles. It is, in fact, a condition of hypnotism, and so far from indicating inattention to the sermon, shows rather complete absorption by it. Fixing one's mind on the voice of the minister in the otherwise complete silence of the audience-room produces just the conditions necessary to domination by another's mind, and the nodding head and drooping, heavy tertimonials of his powerful influence. Thus, one by one, are hoary traditions

Archbishop Lewis,

Strong Utterances of the New Archbishop of the Church of England In Canada—A Strong Plea for Prohibition.

Some years ago the newly-elected archbishop of Canada (Anglican), when his hands were less full of the official affairs of the church, was a very active and successful temperance worker and advocate for prohibition. Of late we have not heard so much of Rev. Dr. Lewis in that capacity.

While a resident of Ottawa, a dozen or more years ago, Bishop Lewis gave a very able and logical address on prohibition before a Sunday afternoon temperance meeting in that city, which was pretty fully reported in the late Father Stafford (Roman Catholic), of Lindsay, with the bishop's consent. We have not now space for a full reproduction of the excellent address, but will give some of the most striking arguments, which apply quite as torcibly to-day as they did years ago.

He said: "After 23 years' experience in Canada I state my opinion that the sin and miseries resulting from the use of ardent spirits are as rife and as appalling as ever they were. . . . I start them from the position that my faith in the success of temperance so-cieties as eradicators of this evil is not strong while I see the vice everywhere rampant with all its horrible concomi-tants. Neither have I hope in our Christianity effecting a moral reforma-tion as regards this vice unless our religion impels us in the direction I advocate to-day. A man must be sobered before he can be Christianized. You might as well preach the Gospel to an army of maniacs as to an army of drunkards. And here I willingly concede to temperance societies their true value. They have been, in many instances, in rendering men fit subjects or religious teachings. They have cast out the demon sometimes, and anything we hasn't got. land the bride, who was the daughter of a general, cut the bride's loaf with her father's sword.

Law will interdict drunkards from the management of their own affairs, and thus rival interests will be created in families and fraud and fanaticism will magnify the moderate drinker into an habitual drunkard."

Prohibition and Abolition. "The only great social or political revolution to which I can at all compare a prohibitory law is the law which abolished slavery in the empire. The advocates of slavery pleaded the immense amount of capital invested in its trade on the faith of the nation. So do the makers and sellers of strong drink.

The slave dealers urged that employment was given, and plantations worked by their trade, which would otherwise decay. So precisely is it was a strong that the proposition of the strong decay.

It is an example to us who are striving against a most deadly form of slavery—intemperance. It may take a long time, but let us be encouraged by the thought that even if we fail the process of educating the people to the point requisite for the passing of the law will of itself be beneficial, and we shall, besides, have the consolation that we have, according to our lights, tried to do our duty."

IACK, THE FISHERMAN.

Jack thought, I say, gravely of this girl. He never once took her name in vain among the fellows; and she had not been a very good girl either. But Jack reflected that he was not very good himself, if you came to that. His downright honest nature stood him in stead in this moral distinction; there was always a broad steak of generosity in him at his worst; it goes with the cemperament, we say, and perhaps we say it too often to give him half the She was a pretty girl, and she was very young. She had told Jack her story, as they strolled about the bright Boston streets on comfortable winter evenings; when he took her to the variety show, or to the oyster shop, and talked together. Jack pitied her. Perhaps she deserved it; it was a sad little story—and she was so very young! She had a gentle way, with Jack; for some reason, Godknows why she had trusted him from the first, and he had never once been known to disturb her trust. That was the pleasan part of it.

On this evening that we speak of, Jack was sober. He was often sober when he had an evening to spend with the Boston girl; not always—no; truth must be told. She looked as pretty as was in her that night; she had black eyes and a kind of yellow hair that Jack had never seen crinkled low on the forehead above black eyes before; he thought her as fine to look at as any been called Christine once, in her country home; she even told Jack she had been baptized.

"I wasn't, myself," said Jack, "I roared so, they darsen't do it. My mother got me to church, for she was a pious woman, and I pummeled the parson in the face with both fists, and she said she come away, for she was ashamed of me. She always said that appointed her, too. I was an awful baby."

"I should think likely," said Teer with candor. "Do you set much by your mother?"
"She's dead," said Jack in a sub-

"That's so," said Tack.

The two took a turn in silence up and down the brightly lighted street; their thoughts looked out strangely on their marred faces; they felt as if they were in a foreign country. Jack had meant to ask her to take a drink, but he gave it up; he couldn't somehow.

"Was you always a fisherman?" asked Teen, feeling, with a woman's tact, that somebody must change the current of the subject.

"I was a fisherman three generations back," Jack answered her; "borned a among the praying people, and stood fisherman, you bet! I couldn't 'a 'ben nothin' else if I'd drowned for it. It's Mother Mary looked very white and a smart business. You hev to keep your wits about you. Fishes is no

So they went into the quiet place peaceful; she was a tall, fair woman; room was filled with poor creatures gathered about her like her children, while she talked with them and taught and the gentle words that women need. Mother Mary's husband married them next day at the mission meeting; and Mother Mary sat down at the melodeon in the corner of the pleasant place, and played and sang Toplady's great hymn for them, as Jack had asked her. A Customer Secured.

A young man in a drygoods store was endeavoring to sell a customer some goods. He had a quantity on hand which he much desired to dispose of, as they were not of the freshest style, and the man seemed inclined to take them, says an exchange. When the goods had been examined and the bargain was about to be concluded, the customer inquired: "Are these goods the latest style?" The young man hesitated. He wanted to sell the goods, and it appeared evident that if he said they were the latest style the man would take them. But he could not tell a lie, and he replied: "They are not the latest style of goods, but they are a very good style."

The man looked at him, examined ome other goods of later styles, and "I will take those of the older style, and some of the new, also. honesty in stating the facts will fasten me to this place.'

The man not only sold his goods and kept a clear conscience, but he also retained a customer whom he night never have seen again if he had not spoken to him the exact truth. There is no permanent gain in false-hood and deception. Righteousness and truth are a sure foundation.

What One Girl Did.

The girl was just 20. It had always been enough for this girl to be alive and happy. Her sweet looks and her sweet ways had been so pleasing to her father and mother, her near future—a natural barometer prothers and cousins, that she never felt the need of trying to do them any good. When at school, the same ways and sweet looks had made her popular, and it did not occur to her that she was to exert her influence on her companions.

It probably never does occur to the matter of being fragrant and attractive. It simply lives its life.

In the summer home, however, Girlie, as her father liked to call her, found that everybody was on the qui vive to help everybody else. Her aunt and her girl cousins all had their work among the poor, or they read to sick people, or taught in Sunday Two cousins were very much interested in a working-girls' club, 100 girls gathered from a factory in the hottest part of the town. For a long time, it appears this interesting phenomenon was inexplicable, but on an analysis of the stone it was shown to be a fossil mixed rose of a pansy that it has any duty in with clay and containing a portion of rock salt and nitre. This fact being known, the explanation of the changes became easy; the salt, absorbing the moisture, turns black when the conditions are favorable for rain, while the dryness of the atmosphere must as naturally bring out the salt from the interior of the stone in white spots on the surface.

On Sunday evening last, Rev. Isaac Tovell, of Gore Street Methodist Church, Hamilton, preached to a large congregation in his church on "Our Duty in the Coming Plebiscite Struggle." Among other valuable points he gave these figures: "The drink bill of the Canadians amounted to $38,000,000 annually, that out of this vast sum 20,000, poor families could each be presented with a neat brick cottage worth $1,000; that each family could get ten tons of coal with which to keep themselves warmduring the winter, they could receive another large sum annually per family for pro-visions, and could lay up the balance -$13,000,000—in the savings bank for their benefit in old age.' The inference to be drawn from Mr. Tovell's remarks was, that if a majority of votes is cast in favor of prohibition in the approaching plebiscite traffic will very soon be abolished.

cost of Farm Crops.

Cost of Farm Crops.

At the Nebraska station an effort was made to ascertain the actual cost of farm crops. The crops were given ordinary farm treatment. Labor was charged against the fields at the uniform rate of 15 cents per hour. The profit on a crop depends upon its cost asel if s market pies. The cost is more largely under the farmer's control, the masket price being affected by demand and supply. Hickman wheat, yielding 405 bushels per acre, cost 167 cents per bushel in the granary. Grain In the Stack.

It is not a wise plan, says The Prairie Farmer, to have the grain in a stack any longer than is absolutely necessary. It is subject to many dangers there, which are very nearly done away with when the grain is thrashed and put in the barn. No matter how well the stack is built, it may be upset by a storm, and then wet and warm weather will quickly higre the grain. Grain In the Stack

RAPID PLOWING

Authorities Express Themselves on the Subject—Some Helpful Statistics.

A good authority on the subject of plowing says that 24 miles an hour is as fast as any team ought to walk in the plow. In clay ground two miles is fast enough, kent up for 10 hours a day. In plow. In cay ground two must is rast enough, kept up for 10 hours a day. In loose, loamy soil, when the object is simply to stir up the surface, wide furrows can be taken, the team can move off at a rapid walk, and a large area can be plowed over in a day.

A team walking two miles per hour plowed over in a day.

A team walking two miles per hour for 10 hours will plow as follows, according to width of furrow: Furrow 5 inches wide, 1 acre; 6 inches, 1.2 acres; 7 inches, 1.4 acres; 8 inches, 1.6 acres; 9 inches, 1.8 acres: 10 inches, 2 acres, and so on, increasing two-tenths of an acre for each inch increase in width of fur-row. With a furrow 7 inches wide a team must walk 14½ miles to plow an acre. With a furrow 12 inches wide a team will walk only 8½ miles to plow an acre, and in walking 20 miles would plow very nearly 2½ acres.

The speed of the team in plowing varies greatly. The Ohio Farmer says that horses naturally fast walkers will travel 20 miles a day in the plow without exhibiting any more fatigue than others that walk naturally only half as far and accomplish only half as much. With a 9 inch furrow a team that walks 1½ miles an hour will plow an acre in 7 hours and 20 minutes, while if it walks 2½ miles an hour it will finish the acre 24 miles an hour it will finish the acre in 4 hours and would plow 2½ acres in 10 hours. Most of our modern two horse walking plows are made to cut a 10 inch furrow, and they will turn 12 inches by breaking 2 inches, but this adds too much to the draft, especially in stiff soil.

At the walking contest on the state much to the draft, especially in stiff soil.

At the walking contest on the state fair grounds at Columbus, O., in 1889, the first prize mare pulled half a ton of coal at the rate of over five miles an hour, and her owner said she would keep that gait up all day. This would be impracticable in the plow, but 3 or 3½ miles are the provided that the property of the provided that the provide would not be impracticable, and the gain over the 11 mile team is apparent from above figures.

The time lost in turning is considerable. The advantage of long pulls in this respect is seen from the following figures: With a furrow 234 feet long the time lost in turning in 10 hours' work is 5 hours 11 minutes; furrow 447 feet long, time lost in turning is 2 hours and 44 minutes; furrow 600 feet, time lost 2 hours and 1 minute; furrow 822 feet, time lost 1 heur and 28 minutes. The time lost in turning, however, is not all time lost in turning, however, is not all lost time, for the team requires some "let up" from the constant strain that exists in this work.

NOVELTIES IN READING.

FRUIZALOWERS Dr. Von Holst, the eminent German historian, who has lately taken up his residence in this country, will furnish to the November Forum a slashing criticism of the TREES ON THEIR OWN ROOTS.

The first volume of McClure's Magazine closes with the November number. Among the contributors to volume II. will be: The idea that in order to get good varieties of fruit we must bud or graft from existing trees that are known to be such prevails so extensively that no other system of propagation can be said to be in general practice. Not a few of our fruitgrowers are suspecting that the practice of budding and grafting has a tendency to degeneration and is at least a cause equally potent with climatic changes and soil exhaustion for loss of vigor and the want of a power to resist unfavorable influences, in which the fruit trees of the olden time were superior to those of the present.

That grafting or budding on stocks and roots is the only certain method of reproducing exactly the variety we wish to perpetuate is freely admitted, but may it not also be true that the practice should become more general of raising fruit trees from selected seeds? In case

THE HACKNEY FORM.

An Expert Gives Information In Regard to Hackney Points.

I send you herewith a diagram of the points of a hackney horse which you will perhaps find useful about this time. The outline given, being that of a stout hackney, appeals more to lovers of the hackney than if we gave the points on the outline of the thoroughbred. You will notice that the sketch gives the "peculiar hackney lookout," the "npstanding attitude," the "lay of shoulder," the "roundness of turning," the "crest," the "short back," the "almost but not quite horizontal croup," the "position of dock," the "curve from dock to gaskin," the "triangle from hip to dock and stifle," the "nuscling of arms and thighs with-out cartiness," the "construction of knees and hocks," the "shortness of bone," the

'obliquity of pastern."

Of course in the sketch all this is given in outline only, but the manner in which the body is divided, I think, will draw attention to the points fairly well and will cause the public to look for defects which without the diagram they might have passed over.

A standard measurement between points cannot of course be taken as a criterion, because all measurements will differ, according to the peculiar type of hackney presented for measurement. It is type, and then performance at the walk and trot, and then conclusion as to quality, strength and substance that govern in a class shown to halter. The harness classes decide the rest.

suppose decisions at fairs will be I suppose decisions at fairs will be made on the basis of the best looking horse and the best goer. If so, I hope that the judges will allow at least 60 per cent for action in the stallion and 40 for his shape, but in the mares 60 for shape and 40 for action, the latter because she is the gradia in which the fool.

cause she is the cradle in which the foal must lie and develop.

I would like to have had time to give you a brief account of the origin of the hackney, but I must refer you to the introduction of our studbook. As to color, I think the rich, dark chestnut is now popular among stallion owners, especially in England, but the brown and dark browns, such as Old Fireaway used dark browns, such as old rheady to get, are holding their own, while the beautiful bright or the mahogany bay is a color which is much liked in this country, and especially the bay with black

A little white pastern or two is a good mark to have when the judges are look mark to have when the judges are looking for high action, and especially if both fore feet are marked alike, as of course it does not do to have one white foot seemingly going higher than the black one, and the same can be said about the hind feet. The white star or crescent in the forehead or the narrow trip in the face and the fairt spin on strip in the face and the faint snip on the nose are often carefully looked for as proof of direct blood from some famous are as are the few gray hairs in the flank or the white spot un-der the belly in some strains of hackney der the belly in some strains of hackney blood. Blacks are favorites with some people, but others believe that they do not summer well when turned out, and their coats require a deal of working on to get into show condition. onack run or quanty and tine action is a pretty sight and a strong one to beat.

The blue roan has always been called a strong one, and for use on general purpose mares never fails to make triends around the call fails to make a strong one, and to doe on make purpose mares never fails to make friends among the old fashioned country breeders, but quality is what he must have in a remarkable degree to hold the judges, and roan is a color that does not always do itself justice in this particular. The red or strawberry roan carriage team with snap and style can run the price up very high, but when shown in hand the shade is against them, and here again they must have an unusual amount of quality to win. A piebald or skewbald we do not often see now, and I do not think there are any "magpies" or "movements" on this side,—A. H. Godfrey in Breeder's Gazette. -A. H. Godfrey in Breeder's Gazette.

February Pigs.

One advantage in having the pigs come in February is that they have that much longer time to grow before cold, freezing weather sets in the next fall or winter. The brood sows must be kept in a good, thrifty condition, and it will not require a very much larger amount of food for her with a litter of pigs than without. If the sow is well fed while they are suckling, so as to induce a vigorous, If the sow is well red while they are suckling, so as to induce a vigorous, thrifty growth, the pigs will usually be ready to wean by the time grass makes a good start to grow. When they can have the run of a good pasture, they can kept growing at a low cost.-Ex-

GROWING PIG PORK

Methods of a Man Who Spent Eight Years Learning the Right Way. "How long have you been growing swine?" I asked.

"I have made it a specialty for 17 years," said he, "but have given it particular attention for only eight years, more particularly as to the adaptation of foods and getting two crops a year. "Did you ever try to work in more than two crops a year?"

"I tried once to bring in litters a little closer. My pigs had been coming in May, and I wished to breed so that I could get early fall pigs. To do this I must breed while the pigs were suckling, but found it was not a success."

"When do you wish to have them come?"

"I've cows were milked two weeks each by two competent milkers. One knew the milk was being weighed and did his best to get every drop. The other milked as usual. The one aware of the experiment got 267 pounds the more milk."

Between March 20 and April 10 as a rule—to be exact, in the last week of Msrch. I have had them come in Feb-ruary and toward the last of April, but these dates do not serve my purpose so

"Why do you prefer the dates named?" "For three reasons: 1. The pigs are ready to go into grass by the time it will do, which as a general thing will be about weaning time, when they are 10 weeks old. 2. I can fatten them out early in the fall before cold weather, when they are from 6 to 7 months old—during October—and feed them on grass.

3. In this way I can breed for a second litter and have them come in the first half of September. I want the sow to rest about three weeks after the pigs are weaned before she is bred again.

"Pigs coming early in September get a good start on grass before cold weather ets in. I feed the fall litter off in April or early in May. I never run over 10 days in May. After that time I never wait for a rise in the market. Again, they are ready for market in the fall before the packing season commences and before prices have been crowded down, and in spring they sell after the packing season is over, when there is a demand for prime block hogs, and packers are pushing the market up for their stocks.
Until last fall I always got the highest prices of the year in this way. A great item in this arrangement is having grass to grow both crops with. I make preparations for fall and winter pasture for the winter feeding and aim to have No. 1 pasture. If my farm were large and I could have blue grass for early spring pasture, I would prefer it."—Interview Rural New Yorker with O. A. Cory

Stable Vices.

Stable vices may be considered to include the following long list of offenses against the code of laws made for the stabled horse and enforced by the stablemen. They are: Getting loose from the headstall, hanging back, leaping into the manger, turning round in the stall, lying under the manger, halter casting casting in the stall, kicking the stall post, weaving, pawing, eating the litter, kicking at man, biting, crib biting, wind

Hanging back in the collar is an at-Hanging back in the collar is an attempt to get free by bursting the throat latch or collar rein, and in some cases great force is applied in this way—so much so that many horses have broken their hips from the sudden giving way of the halter, letting them back so that they fall over and injure themselves irremediably. The only cure is a strong they fall over and injust themselves in-remediably. The only cure is a strong chain and a headstall that no force will break, after trying to burst which a few times the horse will almost always de-sist. If the manger is not very firmly placed, another ring should be fixed in the well by progreging it and screwing a the wall by piercing it and screwing a nut on the back.—Horseman,

HOW TO MILK.

This Man Says Cows Have a Good Estr For Music. A milking experiment is thus reported in a London paper:

"Five cows were milked two weeks

A "competent" milker leaving nearly a half a pound of milk in every cow he milked! How much would he have to leave to be called incompetent?

In milking a heifer the first year I want her milked rapidly to the end and stop. I do not want her stripped much. A heifer loves to be stripped if she is satisfied with her milker, and she soon learns to hold back the milk so as to make a long job of it. When she finds there is to be no puttering, she lets the milk come down to the end.

Rapid milking satisfactory to the cow is what gets the milk. A cow that has been quickly milked often refuses to give half her milk to a slow milker.

Many dairymen forbid any talking during milking. It is a pretty hard rule to enforce. Any talking or noise that cows are perfectly familiar with does no harm, providing the milker does not slack his milking. Hold! I mean any noise that means no harm to the cow. I believe with a herd of 40 good cows it would pay to expend $2 a day for some good music, both vocal and instrumental, at milking time, and let the milkers join in. The tunes of course should be lively. It has been proved to me that cows have an ear for good music. I can sing:

"I'll chase the D— round a stump, And give him a kick at every jump," and my cows will just pour out the milk, so I sing it lively, and my hands keep good time. A cow will never do her best for a slow milker even if he claws out the milk. claws out the milk.

A rapid milker may also be a poor milker, if he milks with a jerking motion or brings his fingers upon her teats in a manner disagreeable to her. Not one in a score who claim to be good milkers really is. I have been milking half a century about as regularly as I have eaten my supper and breakfast and claim to be an expert. An excellent milker who treats the cows kindly is what I always am ready to employ at big wages. The difference in the milking of 12 cows one season by a fair milker or an excellent one will almost pay his wages.

Milk with dry hands. I would not have my herd of cows milked one season with their teats wet with milk for $10 a cow. In one case only do I ever wet a cow's teats with milk. When a cow leaks her milk badly, wetting with milk thoroughly after milking her will sometimes stop it.—A. X. Hyatt in Breeder's

Cleansing the Separator. Hot water, soda and a stiff scrubbing brush will do the business. Two corndents of The Rural New Yorker give their respective methods as follows:

After the milk has run through the machine pour warm water through till it begins to come out clear; then take the bowl apart and wash the inside and inside fixtures in water in which has been dissolved a small quantity of soda, scrubbing the parts with a brush—not a soft paint brush, but a stiff one made for the purpose. Cream can be handled all right in the hottest weather without ice if you have plenty of cold water. When the cream is sepa-rated, run it into common shotgum cans and immediately set them in water which will cool the cream down to 60 degrees or a little below. Held at that temperature, it ought to keep sweet for 48 hours. It is better to mix before it becomes sour, but if this is not done before it should be mixed 24 hours beeven ripening of the whole, for this is absolutely necessary to get an exhaustive churning. For the past two years I have used a farm separator in my dairy. The milk is separated at the barn as fast as it is milked from the cows. Doing as I have stated, 10 minutes' time is enough to clean the separator by one who is used to it. We have water from a well at a temperature of 50 degrees, pumped with a windmill, and have no trouble at all in handling the cream .- C. P. Goodrich. I use hot water and soda, and with a stick and rag the cleansing of the bowl is quickly done. The bowl is then rinsed in cold water and dried until wanted for the next separation. I have had no ex-perience in handling cream and butter without ice and would not attempt it. If the U. S. separators are operated under the directions sent out with each machine, there will be no trouble. My ex-perience is that all vessels after being used for milk should be cleansed with hot water and soap or hot water and soda, rinsed in cold water and aired until wanted.—W. H. Lawson.

the Victoria people; and had I known what I know now, I would have ordered my impis to take all they could lay their hands on belonging to the whites, to recompense are withheld from me."

Of course the whites could not surrender the hundreds of men, women and children

Of course the whites could not surrender the hundreds of men, women and children who had fied to them for safety, to be murdered by the Matabeles. At the same time, the Governor of Cape Colony and the authorities of the company were ordered, by the Colonial Secretary in London, to stand strictly on the defensive. No aggressive movement would be approved by the home government, unless the whites were attacked.

But the Matabeles have ever since been bent upon forcing the fight. Lo Bengula declined to take the last installment of his subsidy, on the plea that he would not

The years ago 200 British pioneers, guided by Mr. Selous, the famous South African hunter and traveler, crossed the Limpopo River in big ox wayons and toiled over the hills and across the river valleys of the lofty Mashonaland plateau, till they reached the base of smountain which they named Mount Hampden. Not far from this spot they built Fort Salisbury, now the largest settlement in Mashonaland. The party was the vanguard of the stream of immigration that, under the anspices of the British South Africa Company, has keet pouring in until the road, seen on our many has become a well beaten highway. Over 3,000 men, women and children are now living among these highlands around the forts that have been built along the road. At and near these centers the people are opening gold mines and developing agniculture. The future of the vast gold field is assured. The farmers have proved that all the small grains and every kind of regetable thrive in this elevated region. Many substantial brick buildings have arsen at Salisbury and Victoria, and good welly newspapers are printed in both well are printed in both welly newspapers are printed in both well are provided that all the small grains and every kind of regetable thrive in this elevated region.

settlers, for whose safety the company is held responsible by the Imperial Government, repressive and even retaliatory measures were required. British troops were therefore placed at the disposal of the British South Africa Company. Mr. Selous was of the opinion that 500 well armed and well mounted men could settle the trouble. The company, however, did not intend to risk defeat with this meager force. On October 1 it had 1,000 men and 600 horses at its disposal, and several hundred troops were en route from Cape Town.

The white population of Mashonaland are eager for the fray. They believe the military power of the Matabeles must be broken or white enterprises will never be safe. If the Matabeles remain their near neighbors, they must be made harmless. It will not be surprising if the present safe. If the Matabeles remain their near neighbors, they must be made harmless. It will not be surprising if the present trouble results in the expulsion of Lo Bengula and his warriors from Matabeleland. Early in this century two great bands of Zulus had a terrible three days' battle, and the defeated party pushed on far north, to the high plateau west of Lake Nyafsa, where their sons are living to this day, the scourse of all the surrounding tribes. It raids. It is supposed that 300,000 ple lived on these rich uplands when Matabele Zulus, led by their great war ef, Umziligazi, câme from the south and the great war ef, Umziligazi, câme from the south and the light west of them. Every part of ashonaland has been overrun, sorres of anes, by the impis (regiments) of the Matabeles, in their raids for slaves and cette. Two-thirds of the people have been eterminated; and the wonder is that Lo Bengula, the king of the Matabeles, ever consented, peaceably, to admit the whites ito a region whose inhabitants he called is slaves. Selous believes that Lo Bengula is the son of the great chief who led them into the country, and made them the terror of a region as large as France and Germany. Trained as warriors from francy, the men delight in raids and plunder, despise the arts of peace and regard their neighbors as beasts of the chase.

MAP OF THE SEAT OF WAR

there is only one pass through them on the south Matabeleland, proper, is about as large as Germany, and is believed to contain about 20,000 people.

Missionaries long tried in vain to get a foothold in the country; and though they have tenderly nurtured the three stations they were at last permitted to plant, it is not known that they have ever made a single convert. Only once have the Matabeles been conquered, and that was by thirst. An ill-fated impl, sent across the desert, 800 miles to Lake Ngami, perished almost to a man while struggling across the scorched country on the homeward march.

The issue of this war will confer a lasting blessing upon the natives of Mashonaland. Nobody knows why they are called Mashonas. The name is not known in their country. The petty chiefs who now rule the scattered remnants of the natives are the descendants of men who once ruled large and powerful tribes. A century ago the people lived in many thousands of huts, whose foundations, where they still exist, show that they were three times as large as the wretched tenements in which their timid and terrorized descendants dwell, on the top of hills and rocks, where they watch for the coming of the dreaded enemy. In almost every valley are the traces of their great rice and maize fields, and on almost every hill are the ruins of the stone walls which eneircled the ancient villages. Once rich and prosperous, with large flocks of sheep and herds of goats and cattle, the people have now fallen to a very low estate. The Matabeles are the authors of all their misery. Since the British occupation they have had a brief respite from the assegal and torch. Hope had begun to grow in their hearts, and fear and despair were giving way to more manly sentiments, when their troubles were renewed in July last. Their herds have been growing and their agriculture expanding; and the prospects are bright that the valley of this rich country will soon echo, for the last time, the dreaded war cry of the socurgers of Mashonaland.

GRANDMOTHER SAID.

"Always set your chair back when you are going away; Don't leave it in the middle of the room or standing carelessly."
This is what grandmother said, as often, when I jumped up and ran out of doors a reckless hobble-de-hov.

"Always set your chair back when you are going away;
Don't leave it in the middle of the room or standing carelessly."
These words, repeated long ago, ceme ever fresh to mind,
When little duties are o'ericoked or left to lag behind.

In the daily walks of busy life, when we think we haven't time
To be orderly and almost look upon politeness

Chairs away.

But it will be found that daily life will be more worth the living

If we blend, in harmony, the precepts of receiving and of giving:

If we heed the tender chidings deals out in childhood's day,

And always "set our chair back when we are going away."

A Wonderful Timekeeping Automaton. One of the most wonderful timekeepers known to the horologist was made in London about 100 years ago and sent by the president of the East India company as a gift to the emperor of China. The case was made in the form of a chariot, in which was seated the figure of a woman. This figure was of pure ivory and gold and sat with her right hand resting upon a tiny clock fastened hand resting upon a tiny clock rasteness to the side of the vehicle. A part of the wheels which kept track of the flight of time were hidden in the body of a tiny bird, which had seemingly just alighted upon the lady's flight.

Above was a canopy so arranged as to conceal a silver bell. This bell was fitconcean a silver bell. This bell was ne-ted with a miniature hammer of the same metal, and although it appeared to have no connection with the clock regu-larly struck the hours and could be made to repeat by touching a diamond button on the lady's bodice. In the char-iot at the ivory lady's feet there was a golden figure of a dog, and above and in front were two birds apparently flying before the chariot. This beautiful ornament was made almost entirely of gold and was elaborately decorated with precious stones .- St. Louis Republic.

The first known dictionary was of the Chipses larguages contained 40 000 charonly at the spot where heat is applied without the whole mass taking part in the explosion. Nitroglycerol, dynamite, gun cotton, picric acid and the new German military powder are examples. This is said to be because they are bad conductors of their own explosive wave. If, however, the same substances are subjected to a violent shock by the ex-plosion in their midst of initial charges of mercury fulminate, the shock seems to affect all the molecules of the explosive at once, and the whole mass of the latter explodes with enormous violence. -New York Sun.

The Pearl Oyster. Very few people are aware that the pearl oyster is not in any way like the ysters which we eat. It is of an entire-y different species, and as a matter of fact the shells of the so called pearl oysters are of far more value to those engaged in pearl fishing than the pearls. There are extensive pearl fisheries in the gulf of California, and some of the finest pearls have been taken from those waters. In 1881 one pearl—a black one—was sold for $10,000, and every year since that time many pearls have been taken from the beds in the California gulf valued at over $7,500 each.—Chicago Herald.

LESSON VI, FOURTH QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, NOV. 5.

Text of the Lesson, I Cor. xv. 12-26-Memory Verses, 20-23-Golden Text, I Cor. zv, 57-Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

12. "Now if Christ be preached that He rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?" The resurrection of the dead is one

19. "If in this life only we have hope in 19. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." Faithfulness to Christ and His gospel will always provoke opposition from a world lying in the wicked one (John xvi, 2, 33; II Tim. iii, 12; I Jøhn v, 19); it will give us anything but a pleasant time, as far as friendship and surroundings go. Therefore if there be no future, rest and recompaneawe are most miserable and great fools.

friendship and surroundings go. Therefore if there be no future, rest and recompense we are most miserable and great fools. But see Rom. viii, 18; I Pet. xii, 13.

20. "But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept." Hindreds of His followers saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His resurrection, and Stephen, Paul and John each saw Him after His ascension (verses 6, 8, with Acts vii, 55, 63; Bov. 1, 17). He was the first to rise from thedead never to die again (Acts xxvii, 23; Rev. 1, 5), the first fruits typified in the sheaf presented to the Lord on the morrow after the Passover Sabbath (Lev. xxiii, 18, 170; since by man came death by man came also the resurrection of the dead." By one man sin entered into the Warta ablessing it would be to humanity, the standard season of a month are given, and certain sof a month are given, and cer Christ shall all be made alive." All without exception are in Adam, and consequently by nature children of wrath and dead in trespasses in sins (Eph. II, 3, 5), but not all are in Christ, as that position necessitates the new birth—the receiving of Christ as their Saviour (John iii, 3, 5; i, 12). All who are truly in Christ shall surely be made alive as to their bodies and take part in the first resurrection (Rov. xx, 6).

23. "But every man in his own order Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's, at his coming." The word translated "order" signifies a company or band or legion and is used only here. It is suggestive of the various companies who shall take part in the first resurrection, more definitely referred to in Rev. v, vii, xiv. Observe the long period covered by the word "afterward." It is now over 1,800 years since Christ, the first fruits, rose, and we still wait for the "afterward."

24. "Then cometh the end, when He shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when He shall have put down all rule and all authority and power." As the "afterward" has already covered so long a period, so the "then" will cover at least the thousand years during which He with us will subdue all things unto Himself (Rev. v, 10; xx, 6).

25. "For He must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet." He is able to subdue all things unto Himself, and He will (Phil. iii, 21). To Him every knee shall bow (Phil. ii, 10). Yea, all kings shall fall down before Him. All nations shall serve Him (Ps. lxxii, 11). He is now at the Kather's right hand on the Father's throne Qiev. iii, 21).

-'29. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." It would seem from Isa. lxv, 20, that there will be death during the thousand years, for it is not till the end of that period that death and hades shall be cast into the lake of fire (Rev. xx, 14). Deserve that death is an enemy, and we are nowhere taught to love it. Let us never think of death as in any sense the coming of Christ. At death the believe

A SCCIETY'S NOBLE WORK.

How the Ancient Order of Foresters Saved a Brother.

The Startling Experience of Mr. Isaac Briggs, of London-A Sufferer icz Four Years-His Lodge Came to the Resoue After Doctors Had Failed-He is Again Abie to be Out,

[From the London Free Press.]
The home of Mr. Isaac Briggs, at ,501 Charlotte street, this city, is one of the most prettily situated and well kept of the many homes of the workingmen of London. The front is carefully boulevarded, and at the side and rear of the cottage home is a statice work covered with vines, and there is also a girden. Within view are fields and woods, and in fact there was nothing needed upon the occasion of an autumn afternoon visit to make the lot of a sick man smid such surroundings as pleasant as possible.

And so it was not to be wondered at that Mr. Briggs was found in a cheerful mood. But a conversation with the gentlemen revealed the fact that there were very good reasons why any man were very good reasons why any under the same circumstances, and under the same circumstances, and enjoy ing the same bright hope, could not but allow his face to beam forth with what he felt. The story as told will be found most interesting, and that it is absolutely correct there are many of the friends of Mr. Briggs will testify, should such testimony be needed. Mr. Briggs has been an invalid for four years, and has been unwell and under medical testings. such teatimony be needed. Mr. Briggs has been an invalid for four years, and has been unwell and under medical treatment for eight years. It was in 1885 that he first felt the twinges, the aches and the pains that foretold trouble. He secured medical actual and the pains that foretold trouble. He secured medical attendance and learned that his liver was out of order, his kidneys were bad and than audered from dyspepsia. However, he worked along for nearly four years, when the terrible malady affected his system in a way painful to relate. It came directly after an attack of "the grip." Mr. Brigg was yot in his "fifties," and to all appearances was a well-preserved and strong man. But almost without warning the joints in every part of his body were as solid and immovable as though they had bren padiocked, and the strong man became as helpless as a babe. Many doctors were consulted, and they all promised relief and occasionally a slight relief did come. But it was only temporary, and the unfortunate man, in consequence of these relapses, was gradually loosening his hold upon hope. The days were long and weary that he spent upon his bed, with the dismal prospects ahead of being held a close prisoner, to be released only by death.

The family, tee, began to lose faith in medical skill. They had given a trial to some of the foremest practitioners of the cty, but always with the same unhappy result. Patent medicines of various descriptions were likewise tried, but in vain. Then about Christmastide came news that had almost been expected. Mr. Briggs had not long to live, the doctors said. Gradually he grew weaker until still he said. Gradually he grew weaker untile early in the spings so seriously ill did he appear to be that the end was daily looked for.

Court Forest City, A. O. F., of which Mr. Briggs is a member, proved just at this juncture to be a friend indeed. During all his illness the brethren had looked carefully after his wants, and had been very attentive. And no one regretted more than they the unhappy prospect. One night the court was discussing the case when it was suggested that Pink Pills should be tried. Stories had been told of what they had effected in other cases. Then why not in this? Finally the court agreed to present one dozen boxes of the pills to Mr. Briggs The attending doctor told his patient that the pills were only good for cases of paralysis, but he consented to their being given a trial as a last hope. Accordingly Mr. Briggs began taking them. Very soon a change was noted. He grow more cheerful and subered much less. His whole system seemed to be awakened to new life, just as was the world outside, for it was the glad spring-time of the year.

With renewed strength came renewed hope, and the invalid began to lock upon Pink Pills as his deliverer. He used them faithfully, taking six a day. In a month he was able to leave his bed, and he did so with a thankful heart. Only those who have been forced to undergo long confinment between bedclothes can realize the pleasure and joy there were in that first day spent in the neal little parlor, seated in a big arm chair beside the window where the sun sent in its warm, bright rays. Since then Mr. Briggs has been about daily. He uses crutches yet, but he grows stronger every day. Now he can use his hands, eating with a knife and fork, and the joints continue to grow looser and pliable, giving only a faint idea of the veritable knots into which those of the hands and fect were tied. There was a cessation of the pains, too, a most pleasing fact to the invalid—and the blood vessels that had become lost to view and dried up are now quite healthy-looking.

bill for medical attendance shows a marked decrease.

Mr. E. W. Boyle, druggist, 652 Dundar street, who is also treasurer of Court Forest City, was also interviewed with respect to the case, and his statements were all confirmatory of what Mr. Briggs had said. He said he had a tremendous sale of pills. No other similar medicine ever approached to the same demand.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, caring such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxis, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration, and the tired feeling therefrom, the after effects of la grippe, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic crysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions, and are a specific for the troubies peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature.
