A GOOD PREMIUM. LONDON, Feb. 22.—The new United States loan was quoted on the Stock Exchange today at 5 1-2 premium.

TWO WEEKS OVERDUE. LIVERPOOL, Feb. 22.—Sixty per cent has been paid to reinsure the British steamer Istrian, which sailed from Liverpool for Newport News on Jan. 24, and consequently is about two weeks SENSATION SPOILED. PARIS, Feb. 22.—In the Chamber of Deputies today, M. Chautemps, Minister of the Colonies, in replying to questions, said that the report of the massacre of part of the African expedition under the command of Col. Monteil was an utter falsehood.

EMIGRATION NOT ENCOURAGED. LONDON, Feb. 22.-The Lord Mayor of London has issued an appeal for funds for the relief of the unemployed, but seeing the failure of the Mansion House emigrants at Montreal last year, emigration to Canada and all the colonies is expressly excluded from the remedies to be adopted.

COTTON PRODUCTION IN RUSSIA. ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 22.-The Imperial Minister of Finance has set apart a credit from the State Bank for the purpose of promoting the production of cotton in Russia. From the funds growers are to receive a working capital as a loan, and spinners and weavers are to obtain means of purchasing the cotton product.

A TOWN SWALLOWED.

LONDON, Feb. 22.-A dispatch from Odessa to the Standard says the town of Koutchat, near Astrabad, Persia, has been swallowed by an earthquake and several thousand persons have perished. This seems to be another version of the report conveyed to the Times in a Teheran dispatch on Jan. 26 of the destruction of the town of Kuchan, whereby 2,000 persons were killed.

"A FOOL AND HIS MONEY," ETC. LONDON, Feb. 22 .- J. S. Tasker, who recently inherited $3,500,000, has begun suit against Streeter & Co., diamond importers, for $86,500. He recently purchased $435,000 worth of gems from the firm, and claims they overcharged him the amount sued for. Among his pur-chases was the Hope diamond, valued at $160,000. It is said he was drunk when he closed the bargain.

A SCORE OF RIOTERS BEHEADED. LONDON, Feb. 22.-The Times, correspondent in Hong Kong telegraphs: A videspread plot to overthrow the Manchus has been discovered in Kwang Kung, Kwang Si and other southern provinces. H. M. warship Mercury has returned from Formosa. The British consul was assaulted during the Black Flag riots at Takau. The riots were quelled before the Mercury arrived, and 25 of the leaders were beheaded.

THE CRAITHIE'S CAPTAIN FINED. LONDON, Feb. 22.-A fine of 10 shillings and costs has been imposed by the maritime authorities at North Shelds upon Capt. Gordon, commander of the Aberdeen steamer Craithie, which ran into and sank the North German Lloyd steamer Elbe. The offense for which the fine was scored against Capt. Gordon' was that he navigated the Craithie to the north of mid-channel in the Tyne in going up that river last

THEY STICK TO GOLD. "11-BERLIN, Feb. 22.-The general assembly of German chambers of commerce has adopted the following resolution: "The general assembly adheres steadfastly to the resolution passed on March 12, 1886, declaring that the German gold monetary system is unassailable. The whole economical situation of Germany would be injured by a change in the monetary system. The nbly greatly regrets that the Reichstag has adopted a bi-metallic

FRANCE AND ENGLAND ARE FRIENDLY.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The Marquis of Dufferin. British ambassador to France, made the principal speech at the annual banquet of the British Chamber of Commerce this evening. He said that despite certain current criticisms from which it might be inferred that France and England were taking antagonistic courses in politics, there had never been a time since his arrival in Paris when the relations of the two countries were more friendly and more obviously conciliatory on both cides. He cited as an illustration the recent convention as to Sierra Leone, which, he remarked, showed clearly the reciprocal desire to discuss international questions in a just and generous spirit. The convention should be regarded, he thought, as a most favorable omen of pure. the settlement of other stubborn ques tions which were awaiting international treatment in Africa.

THE CARLYLE MUSEUM. LONDON, Feb. 22.-The Lord Mayor presided at the meeting held at the Mansion House today in support of the plan to raise a fund for the purchase of Carlyle's house, which is to be fitted up as a Carlyle museum. The meeting was largely attended, and among those present was United States Ambassador Thomas F. Bayard, who spoke eloquently of the debt which English-speaking people owed to Carlyle for teaching them their duty.
"If," said Mr. Bayard, "we are asked what three English writers had done the most good within the past half-century, I would say Thomas Arnold, Thackeray and Carlyle. The purpose of the meeting is to keep the memory of Carlyle green, and also to preserve the memory of his wife, who was unequaled as a writer of private letters. 'Sartor Resartus' was published in Boston in 1836 with a preface by Ralph Waldo Emerson, at a time when no British publisher would take the risk of bringing the work out." Mr. Bayard con-cluded by saying: "Washington said that God had made him childless so that the whole nation might call him father. So also was Carlyle childless in body, but the children of his spirit are everywhere. It is left to them to preserve his house as a memento of their affection and a temple of the respect of their children."

The Earl of Ripon said it was Carlyle to whom we owed our appreciation of Cromwell and Frederick the Great. Though he was often out of sympathy with the democratic methods of society, none saw clearer than he the governing genius of the Anglo-Saxon races, speaking in behalf of a great branch of which he (Ripon) was glad to see his old and honored friend, the United States Ambassador.

Right Hon. Leonard H. Courtney, M.P., and Robert Wallace, M.P., and Messrs. Leslie, Stephen, Garnett and Crockett, authors, also spoke in support of the object of the meeting and in eulogy of Carlyle.

FATAL FLAMES.

Three Women Burned to Death - A $300,000 Fire in Brooklyn.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 22.-Fire broke out in the Ledgerwood bakery on Ouachita avenue at 4 a.m. It is in the southern part of the city, where boarding houses abound, and in an hour three women had been burned to death, six boarding houses, several storehouses and nineteen cottages, in all worth $100,000, had been swept away. The dead are: Mrs. Laura Scammon, Mrs. Henry J. McLeod and Augustine Stivetto (colored). Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Brownson, of Macon, Mo., Mrs. Pea-cock and others were injured, but not dangerously. BROOKLYN, Feb. 22.-Fire broke out in the Arbuckle Bros', big coffee mills at John and Jay streets and the East River yesterday. A number of men and girls employed in the mills had narrow escapes. Half a dozen sustained burns and injuries from jumping, but there was no loss of life. The loss is etimated at $300,000.

THE GRANGERS

Elect Officers and Vote to Support Patron Candidates.

TORONTO, Feb. 22.-The Dominion Grange concluded their business tonight, after electing the following officers: Master, Davison Kennedy, Peterboro (re-elected); secretary, R. Wilkie, Blenheim; overseer, Geo. E. Fisher, Freeman; treasurer, P. Hopkinstall, Fordwick.

The Grangers passed a resolution in favor of a revenue tariff, and approving the action of the Dominion Government in regard to butter shipments

In connection with the Patrons of Industry, the Grangers resolved to support Patron candidates for Parliament, but not to merge their identity with them. The Grange will meet next year in London.

A HEAVEN-SENT CHILD.

Mrs. Wolf Had Been Praying for a Child and Found One in the Street.

NEWARK, Feb. 22 ..- A bundle with an old newspaper for an outside wrapper lay in front of a big store on Market street, near Broad street, yesterday af-ternoon about 3 o'clock. Hundreds of women passed in and out of the store. Some looked at the bundle curiously, but none attempted to touch it until Mrs. Charles Wolf came along. She picked it up and felt that it was warm. On opening she discovered a male infant about four weeks old. Its only covering besides the newspaper was an old piece of polka dot calico. Mrs. Wolf had no children of her own, and she was delighted with her find. She escaped from the crowd of women who gathered round her, boarded a car and went to her home at 89 1-2 Napoleon street. When her husband came home to supper she showed him the baby, and said she believed it was a gift sent her from heaven in answer to her prayers for a child.

He was surprised when he learned that she had hurried home with the infant without notifying the police. He and his wife went to the Third precinct station and told Police Capt. Daly about it. Mrs. Wolf seemed afraid that she would have to give up the child, but was relieved when told that she could keep it if the mother did not turn up to reclaim it.

A NORTH CAROLINA SENSATION. RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 22.-A great ensation was created here by the adoption in the Senate of a resolution by a negro that the Assembly adjourn out of respect for the late Fred Douglass. The resolution was passed by a vote of 34 to 20, all the Democrats voting

SIX PILOTS MISSING. NEW YORK, Feb. 22.-The pilot boat George H. Warren, No. 5, is still missing. She was last seen on Feb. 7, just before the great storm. None of her six pilots have yet brought a vessel to port, which would indicate that she has been blown far out of the course of the transatlantic steamers.

WOMEN'S NATIONAL COUNCIL. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22.— 'One Flag" was the motto of the Woman's National Council at its morning session today, and the committee on patriotic instruction had charge of the programme. Miss Frances E. Willard told of patriotism as a factor in the advancement of woman, and Mrs. E. S. Mussey, of Washington, read a paper on "What the Flag Has Cost Woman."

BROKE HIS BACK.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 22.-As the pupils of the school were returning home on Wednesday evening a number of them got on the sleigh of Mr. A. McIntyre, which was driven by his hired man. Edgerton Parker, aged 10 years, son of Mr. John Parker, was among the number. When they reached Mr. McIntyre's, and as they were turning into the gate, driving fast, the little lad attempted to get off, but in so doing the rear bob slewed around, and he was caught between it and the gate post, breaking his back and legs and killing him instantly. This sad bereavement comes with double force upon Mr. Parker, as the bright little lad was his only son. Mr. Parker also lost his wife a year and a half ago.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

-The Dominion Grange meets in London next year.

-If you have a good thing you owe it to the public to advertise it.

-J. H. Gregan was passed to Woodstock by the city today. He is a middle-aged unfortunate. -Mr. Marshall, M. P. for East Middlesex, has made another trip to Ottawa. Mr. Marshall is getting excited about some--There are bad spots in the best ads, the same as there are weeds in the best gardens. You can't cultivate your copy too often. -Ne. 3 committee of the City Council visited No. 2 fire station yesterday and tested box 62, although they did not call the brigade out. Rev. W. T. Herridge, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, has been compelled to suspend his pastoral duties owin to take a rest and recuperate. -The London Musical Society Ban 30 members, under Mr. Fred Evans, give a grand band concert at the W minster Rink on Wednesday eveni Patrons may depend on getting first-cl music.

to illess. The session arged Mr. Herrid

-Thos. Major was only released from jail yesterday after spending twenty days for drunkenness. This morning he was fined $5 for the same offense and went down for another twenty days. Robert Looney, a drunk, was discharged.

-Mr. L. E. Widder, of the Bank of British North America here, and who has been promoted to another branch, has been presented by his fellow clerks here with a beautiful silver-headed cane, accompanied by a congratulatory address, read by Accountant Hamilton.

-At Osgoode Hall Friday: Manley vs. London Loan Company-W. Cassels, Q.C., for plaintiff, appealed from judgment of Meredith, J., in favor of defendant in an action for redemption upon a question as to the sufficiency of a tender made by the plaintiff before action. No one appeared for defendants. -The eighth assembly of this season given last evening at the Palace Dancing Academy attracted the largest crowd of the term. The programme was carried out under Mr. James McCormick's direction and included the latest and most popular dances, which were executed in the finished style that marks the pupils and graduates of the Academy. Prof. Dayton's music was excellent. -The complimentary benefit to be tendred Mr. A. D. Holman, manager of the Princess Rink, will doubtless draw a large crowd on Tuesday evening. Mr. Holman is very popular with the patrons of the Princess. In addition to the full band of the Seventh there will be a three mile race for a handsome prize, between Charles Griffith, of London, and Dan Kennedy of Hamilton, both fast skaters.

-A social was given at the residence of Mr. Geo. Webster, No. 131 Oxford street. James' Presbyterian Church. A larg; number were present. Rev. Mr. Talling presided and introduced this programme: Instrumental, Miss Proudfoot; song, Mr. Peter Webster; reading. Miss Bernie; recitation, Mr. A. Jutson, quartet, Misses Prescott and Webster, Messrs. E. and P. Webster; reading, Mr. William Webster, solo, Mr. Cordingly; reading, Mr. J. Prescott; duet, Miss and Mr. P. Webster. Refreshments were liberally served and a most enjoyable time was spent.

Broke the Driving Rod. The railroads have had an extraordinary measure of bad weather during February. The storm of Wednesday night was very nearly as bad in its effect as the great storm of a ccuple of weeks ago-at least so far as branch lines were concerned. The L., H. and B. was closed from Wednesday afternoon, and it was reported last night that the line was again blocked by a snowed-up freight train. The Stratford branch was in operation yesterday, but schedule time was not made by any means. Railroad men are talking about the close call that No. 13-Pacific Express had at Princeton on Thursday night. Owing to the heavy state of the road she was made up as a double header, and just before coming to the bridge over the Grand River one of the driving rods on the pilot engine broke. The train plowed its way to a standstill on the bridge without harm being done. She was six hours late reaching this city on account on the accident. Joe Murphy at the Grand. One of the largest audiences of the eason filled the Grand Opera House last night, when the noted Irish comedian, Mr. oseph Murphy, was on the boards. Mr. Murphy never tires with London theatergoers. The more he comes to the city the greater grows his popularity. Mr. Murphy's entry was the signal for an outburst of applause, which was repeated at intervals. In "Shaun Rhue" he is probably at his best. The typical Irish humor of Larry Donovan permeating every act kept the audience in continuous uproar. Then there were the pathetic parts-where Larry is driven from home, the scene at his mother's grave and his return to the old home-all very touching, and bringing tears to the eyes of a large number. Mr. Murphy's singing of the well-known song, "A Handful of Earth" was very effective, and was vigorously applauded. In Mr. Harry Gorrein, Miss Rebecca Marren and Miss Jeannette Farrell Mr. Murphy has accomplished assistants. Taken as a whole, the company is a strong one, and the star feel assured of a bumper house on his next visit to London.

Patron Haycock Makes a Breezy Address.

No Remarks from the Leader of the P. P. A.-Mr. Marter's Speech and Reply by Sir Oliver Mowat.

> (Special to the "Advertiser.") LEGISLATIVE CHAMBER, TORONTO, Feb. 22.

Today has seen the first of the debates of the eighth Legislative Assembly of Ontario-the preliminary measuring of swords which goes by the name of the debate on the address. It is a very formal affair as a rule. That it was not formal today was chiefly owing to Mr. Haycock, who, if he perseveres in his course, will make as great an irruption into the stald sobriety of the House as his party has into the politics of the country. The keen-eyed, rugged-featured leader of the Patrons is a capital stump speaker, and he imported some of his campaign methods into his first speech in the House with a decidedly breezy effect. Otherwise the speeches were not remarkable, for none of the speakers said anything very startling, and the debate was in the familiar form of mover and seconder, new members, both making their maiden efforts, the leader of the Opposition making his comments upon the policy of the Government.

The Premier replied, and this time a few remarks were made by the leader 15c YARD of the Patrons.

No speech was made by the leader of the P. P. A., so possibly Messrs. Mc-Callum and Gurd have not yet settled the delicate question of leadership.

As the members took their places, the change in the situation was very marked. The bank of Government supporters to the Speaker's right is still compact, dependent-who are not supporters of the Government, and who yet sit on this side of the House. But to the left the change was striking. Last session there was a fairly solid bank of Conservatives on the Opposition benches. Now there are but a melancholy two dozen, occupying a bare quarter of the House. Where last session the striking figure of Mr. Meredith occupied the corner seat, Mr. Marter sits. Mr. A. F. Wood is there no longer; Mr. Clancy, the faithful delver into figures, has disappeared; Mr. E. F. Clarke is no longer Small Fancy Back Combs, 5c to be seen-well night he whole Opposition front row is there no longer.

The sturdy colony of Government supporters who used to hold the lower end of this part of the House is shrunken, too, and is represented by but six, while in place of the solitary McNaughton, who last session used to sit in the remotest corner, there is a phalanx of Vandyke Braid, 12 bunches thirteen Patrons, separated from the Conservatives by the Liberals. The two P. A. members sit in the center of

Nor is this the only revolution, for old faces have vanished to an unprecedented extent, there being no less than 46 new members.

Of the speeches but little need be said.

Mr. John Craig, of East Wellington, opened the ball with a speech in which he reviewed the Queen's speech, and it may be noted in reference to the promised extension of the system of registration, really tried in the cities and towns. urged its further extension to the rural constituencies.

Mr. Donald McNish, of West Elgin, seconded in a speech that was a very creditable maiden effort, and in which he made a stinging reference to the work of the P. P. A. in the recent election and to the quietus which that body has received from London and Kingston. He rapped the Conservatives, too, smartly with reference to the "calf with a cough," which respect-able quadruped, he said, amid laughter, was likely to survive the public usefulness of its assailants. Mr. Marter's speech contained little that was new. He made a courteous and appreciative reference to the late Hon. Mr. Fraser, and by way of reply to Mr. McNish's sally on the topic of the calf brought up the silver medal bull story. Once more he reiterated his former charges of extravagance, and accused the Government of having won the London election by a union of the prohibition and liquor votes, but didn't himself take any very emphatic ground upon that issue. In reply Sir Oliver Mowat defended the Government from the charges made by Mr. Marter of extavagance, and in reference to his remarks upon the election at London pointed out the fact that even without the liquor vote Mr. Hobbs' majority would have been very large, while he also observed that he was unaware that liquor men should be dis-franchised. He further remarked that Mr. Marter had been the recipient of the liquor vote in North Toronto. He defended the Ontario Agricultural College from some insinuations of Mr. Marter's, and closed after a speech which, if not exhaustive effort, was an eftive answer to the attack upon the Government.

Mr. Haycock spoke last. His stump speech manners clung to him in rather an amusing manner, though it was an amusing manner, though it was purely a kindly feeling that he inspired. He began with the orthodox, "Mr. Speaker," but added the heterodox, "and gentlemen." He told a campaign story. He remarked that the platform of the Patrons was not like that of a railway car-useful merely to get in on -and in various other ways contra-vened the ordinary habits of the House. The climax was reached when he exressed the hope that the reporters heard him, and, appealing to the press gallery, asked of the astonished occupants thereof if he was audible. Nor would he be satisfied until a succession of nods told him that they were quite alive to what he was saying. Indeed, as a matter of fact, he was very clearly heard. He said some good things, however, in reply to Mr. Marter's claim that the Patrons represented Opposition to the Government. He remarked. tion to the Government. He remarked: "I don't just see how he figures it out." In an irresistible style and not unkindly way, he expressed regret that his party had made greater inroads upon the Conservatives than upon the Liberals. Their presence there was not a protest against the Government, but an indication of greater freedom of thought. They were not obstructionists. He turned on the Government next, and in comment on the establish-ment of the dairy farm in Algoma, re-marked that he hoped dairy farms

SNAP-SHOTS FROM THE CONVEN-TION OF THE CITY HIGH TAX LEADERS

There is a good deal that will interest the general public in the report of the London Conservative Association meeting which has been published in the organ of the party, albeit much that was said is suppressed. As usual, the meeting was barred to "Advertiser" reporters, the doors being tiled. But the published report suggests not a few reflections on the great change that has taken place in the city in recent years.

In the first place, Sir John Carling has finally been crowded out of public life. He told the convention that the act was voluntary on his part, but there can be no doubt that if Sir John could have relied on a support such as he was wont to get, he would again have allowed himself to be nominated. Four years ago he came near being set aside for another, when he was willing to be a candidate, and no doubt he reasoned that if he could not get the unanimous support of the Conservative Association it would be better for him to retire in advance, and that course he has now pursued. Mr. Richard Bayly told the convention that Sir John Carling was the strongest candidate the party could put up. There is no doubt that this view was honestly entertained by all lived a year since that time, and the when one learns that there is a chance the other experienced campaigners, but the old man has been moved by the logic of events to draw out of the race. ....

The candidates who are left to go before the convention are Mr. Thomas Beattie, Mr. Wm. Jones, Mr. Henry Macklin and Dr. Moorehouse. As explained by a member of the association to a friend last night, there is no very abiding faith on the part of the inner circle that either of these candidates will be able to defeat Mr. C. S. Hyman, M. P., when a man with the prestige of Sir John Carling was unable to do so. But this gentleman asserts that the defeated candidate will receive a salve in the shape of a senatorship. There is little certainty of that compact being carried out, however, as the new Government to be formed after next Dominion general election will not be distributing senatorships as rewards to defeated Conservative candidates.

Mr. I. F. Hellmuth said the coming election would be for "blood," and that the "first blood" had been drawn by his political friends. He is easily satisfied. Away back in November Mr. Hellmuth went on the platform in support of Mr. Essery, and at every stage of that campaign he expressed himself as drawing the blood of the Liberals, if boasts of the majority that Mr. Essery would get meant anything. Moreover, the Conservative rank and file were told in that campaign that they must win the Provincial election and "seize the City Hall" if they would win in the Dominion election. They tried hard to accomplish both feats, but failed in each instance. "Blood" did not draw. The bye-election came off, and the majority for Hobbs was 803. We heard no more of the "blood" in that campaign. History will repeat itself in the coming campaign. The municipal elections came off, and, as confessed by several speakers at last night's meeting, the Conservative managers made it a party struggle. No doubt of it. But did they draw blood"? Not a bit of it.

By the way, when the mayoralty election was on, Mr. Wm. Jones, who ran against Mayor Little, got hundreds of votes from Liberals whom he canvassed on the ground that it was a non-political contest. At the meeting last night Mr. Wm. Gray, president of the Young Conservative Club, and others, acknowledged that the Conservative leaders had run the mayoralty campaign on party lines. How do the hundreds of Liberals in No. 3 ward and in every ward of the city, who supported Mr. Jones on neighborhood and other nonpartisan grounds, like the manner in which it is confessed the wool was drawn over their eyes?

Ex-Mayor Essery spoke before Sir John Carling. Mr. Essery caused a mild sensation when he said that he would not withdraw till he saw who else stood, days, and not spend their money on and declared that he would "even the luxuries. He did not say what he rematter if the man who knifed him garded as luxuries, however. But was came out." This reference to the last it to bring back the primitive hardships Provincial election, in which Mr. Essery of the pioneers that the "N. P." was was defeated by the overwhelming ma- passed? Though most of the speakers spoke regretfully about Sir John Carling's retirement, it is noticeable that Mr. Essery said nothing that would indicate regret that the old man had been crowded to one side.

sire to crush the manufacturing industries of the country. This is a misrepresentation that will be believed by no intelligent man in London. A good half of the industrial establishments in this city are owned by Liberals, who have faith in the Liberal policy of a tariff for revenue only, and untaxed raw materials, and who would be the last men in the community to do anything to retard the legitimate progress of our manufactories. The same remark holds good of the workingmen of London. They know that this city made greater progress under a tariff for revenue only than it has done under the high tax policy. Of course, we expect men who are members of monopolies to be opposed to the Liberal policy. But it is always safe for the masses of the people who enjoy no special Government privileges to tax their fellows for their own benefit, to watch the side on which the monopolist is to be found, and vote the other way.

When it is proposed to readjust or reduce the tariff in any shape, we always have the men who are interested in unnecessary taxation putting on a poor mouth and threatening to shut up their shops if their political friends are not permitted to rule and to place the tar'ff as they demand. But we have many independent manufacturers in London; we have thousands of thinking workingmen, who know that the over-taxation resulting from the "N.P."

independent industries of the country.

Moreover, over-taxation has reduced the incomes of the customers of our factories, and has thus caused short time and lack of work everywhere.

Workers of London know this to be true, and no oil magnate can convince them to the contrary. Why, with our vast natural riches, and our constantly developing territory, there should be plenty of work and plenty of remuneration for the labor of everyone, but there will never be that while a few are favored at the expense of the many.

It remains to be seen if ten thousand dollars will be competent to lure from the waters a story which will be a rival of "The Manxman," and even attempt to cope with Du Maurier's latest. It is all very well for Mr. Bennett to

And my customers filled. The question is, "Will they?" Just as like as not they won't. That is, the plump ones won't-the real birds of genius. They will stay out in the middle of the pond, and look knowingly at the onions and sage, while their lean and more scraggy companions are rushing about trying to bag the prize.

This is but one more of those sad and instructive instances of the crankiness of genius. The thing doesn't seem to know what is good for it! It is the prosaic person who finds it difficult to contemplate with any degree of patience or calm the follies of genius. A the Dominion as $241,000,000. But that poet is a poor, helpless sort of make- pur was the net debt in 1893. I hear that so and so is offering big prizes for things done in your line. Sail in and get one; glad to see you

It is rather difficult to make the prosaic gentleman understand that the poet, with the aid of that mysterious afflatus in getting up the divine fire, is as cold and helpless as the kitchen range before the maid appears in the morning. Of this the prosaic personage usually understands nothing. When is a man's bosom ever to burn, and his face glow, if not at the prospect of a neat little sum in hard cash; and if these fellows must set their eyes "in fine frenzy rolling," and play such tricks with useful and respectable members of the bodily organism, let them do so when there is a prospect of earning enough by the gymnastic to pay an optician.

It would be very convenient and profitable for the genius were he able to control his muse and make it work for him, and just when and how he likes. But this never was and never wil be; and if some genius does not walk up and claim the $1,000 for an epic poem, do let Mr. Bennett flatter himself that he, and he alone, was the primary cause and inspiration of a sweet song. This happy, poet, novelist, or whatever he may be, simply happened to be on the top when the prizes were offered; and if the poem is really an epic which carries off the prize, it will be found that some trivial little circumstance such as when he found that bogus votes were a wind storm, a March violet, or a sunset, was at the bottom of it all. as he was accused of voicing them in WINTER RACING. A couple of races between local nags took place at Queen's Park track yesterday afternoon. The first was a matched race for $50, paced in three half-mile heats. The horses matched were Hueston's Bay Jim and Mann's Cyclone. Hueston's horse won all three heats. An open race for a fancy whip, half-mile heats, best three in five, was won by Brener's mare, with Coursey's horse second and Sharkey's horse third. There was a fairly good attendance of horsemen. RACING IN WESTMINSTER RINK. Three attractions at Westminster Rink drew a big crowd last night. There was roller skating on ice, a boys' skating race and the finish of the race between Brown and Lea. The roller race, which was called first, had four starters-A. Brown, Whit Thomas, R. Peacock and J. Jefferson. The distance was four laps, and the audience were kept laughing heartily by the ludicrous maneuvers of the skaters. A. Brown came in first, Whit Thomas second, R. Peacock third, and J. Jefferson fourth. In the boys' race four started-Bert Thomas, L. Fortner, P. Moore and P. Sims. Bert Thomas was expected to beat the others by three laps, which he did, coming in first (time 7:20), with P. Moore a close second and P. Sims third. L. Fortner dropped out early in the race. The race between Brown and Lea followed. Brown started off first and held the lead for the first 34 laps, when Lea passed him,

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Eight dogs were poisoned with strychnine in the dog show this morning. There has been more or less jealousy among the exhibitors of pet or toy dogs since the show began, and the distribution of prizes did not help matters. The dead dogs, which belonged to Mr. Senn, are: Belle, the winner of the first prize in the open class for Prince Charles spaniels; Mikado, the second prize Japanese spaniel in the open class for dogs; Japanese spaniel, Yokie, winner of second prize; Ki Ku, who was third in the open class for bitches, and Chin and Lady De Lena, both King Charles spaniels, were also poisoned, as was the Yorkshire terrier, Brandy. Mr. Senn said the loss amounted to $1,500. Mrs. Senn was almost heart-broken.

LONDON AT INGERSOLL. from the senior, junior and bankers teams, went to Ingersell last night and gave a team of that town some pointers as to the proper way to play the game. It was just a friendly match, and London had a decidedly easy time. They played superior hockey to their opponents in every respect, and came home with a victory of 13 to 4. In the first half the visitors took the Ingersoll goal man by storm, and shot the puck home nine times, most of the goals being made in one or two minutes, while the home team could only secure two. The second half was of only twenty minutes' duration, to allow Londoners to take train for home It opened by Blackwood breaking his skate, and to even up matters Steven was removed from the Landon side. The play was more brisk than the first half, and the crowd became hilarious. Beltz accidentally struck one of Ingersoll's players. The game was stopped, and Fred was in apparent danger. He proteste his innocence of any ungentlemanly act, d the rlay proceeded. The result of the f was, London 4, Ingersoll 2; total, London 13, Ingersoll 4. SOME MISQUOTED QUOTATIONS. Mistakes That Are Frequently Made Even by Well-Informed People. For those who agree with Henry Clay and prefer to be right rather than be president, these misquoted quotations have been prepared. It is hoped that they will be of material aid to seekers after truth. It is scarcely credible, but experience has proved it to be so, that not one well-educated person in one hundred can complete correctly Coleridge's line, "Water, water everywhere. The almost universal rendering of the next verse is: "And not a drop to drink." What Coleridge wrote was:

"Nor any drop to drink."

An equally well-known quotation suf-fers in the first line instead of the second.

"'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour," is the most popular reading. What the poet actually says: ever thus," etc. This particular bit also has a certain number of quoters who interject the adjective "happy" between

'childhood's" and 'hour. "Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed," is the condensed and prevalent perversion of Morton's lines, "Approba-tion from Sir Hubert Stanley is praise indeed." One of the most interesting of the mistakes that are heard every day comes from no less a source than Shakespeare. As generally quoted: "Now is the winter of our discontent," is made to mean "at this present time we are suffering," whereas the following line, "made glorious summer by this son of York," shows that the "now" qualifies the verb "made," and this of course gives the words a diametrically opposite meaning.

The household rhyme that is known throughout Christendom, "Now I lay me," etc., has been in the past the subject of much discussion. The facts seem to be these: In the edition of the New England Primer, which was published in 1777, the first verse read: "Now I lay me down to take my sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep."

In the edition of 1784 the first line was altered to read: "Now I lay me down to sleep," and the remaining lines were left unchanged. But in the 1814 edition the second and fourth lines of the first stanza were altered by the substitution of the pronoun "thee" for the article

It is matter of common mistake that Samson said he had slain a thousand men with the "jawbone" of an ass. He said nothing of the sort. In Judges xv., 15, he says: "With the jawbone of an ass, heaps upon heaps, with the jaw of an ass have I slain a thousand men." Even with this text before their eyes people will fail to notice that the word after "jaw" is omitted in the last line of the verse. These examples are, of course, only a few of the many that might be collected. They are, however, so common that mistakes which occur in their use should enforce upon the mind an invaluable rule-namely, never use a quotation until you have verified it. In ordinary conversation a departure from this precept may possibly be tolerated, but in written matter never.

Surprising Success of the Latest United States Loan-More Confidence Felt, but Little Actual Improvement Shown.

DUN & CO.'S REPORT. NEW YORK, Feb. 22.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says the surprising success of the new loan and the great confidence it has given to investors on both sides of the water and business men here encourages many to believe it is the beginning of a real recovery, although Government revenues are still deficient, and that domestic trade shows scarcely any gain as yet. The industries are not enlarging production, nor have prices of farm products increased, but a very important source of apprehension and hindrance has for the time at least been removed. The volume of domestic trade represented by exchanges is not much larger Local Market.

Reported by A. M. Hamilton & Son
LONDON. Feb. 23.73
Grain receipts were small today. Roads are reported heavy, and to this is due the falling off in receipts. Wheat and oats formed the bulk of the grain deliveries. There were moderately good offerings of butter and eggs, and values were about the same as on Thursday. Chickens were very scarce, and sold at 60c to 70c a pair. The supply of meat was good, considering the roads, and prices steady. Supply of potatoes and other kinds of vegetables steady and demand firm; prices unchanged. Hay was quiet at $8.50 to $9 pe ton. General prices for today were as follows:

—The will of the late George Barker, the famous landscape photographer of Niagara Falls, formerly of this city, was accidentally found the other day by his eldest daughter, Miss Mary Bar-ker, in a lot of old papers. It was a lucky find for her, as by the pro-visions of the will she is given the homestead and $40,000 in cash. To his eldest son, George M. Barker, who ran away from home when a boy, and has never since been heard from, he left 50 cents. To his other son, Raymond C. Barker, he left his business and valuable photographic apparatus, together with a brick business block and its furniture, besides several shares of stock in companies. To his other three daughters-Constance B., Louise S. and Dorothy M.-he left substantial cash bequests and property. The principal legatee, Miss Mary Barker, is the fiancee of Mr. Samuel Devlin, a prominent young society and business man. The will names Miss Mary Barker and Mr. Christopher M. Young as executors. The Valkyries' Concert.

The concert given under the auspices of the Valkyrie Baseball Club in the East End hall last night was patronized to such an extent that the large hall was filled to the doors. Mrs. McCarthy Loses a Purse and Some Money

And a Huckster Is Out $13 - Young Man Arrested on Suspicion - The Crowd Ga e Chase.

Things were very lively around the market and the City Hotel at 11 o'clock this morning. Appearances pointed to an almost complete desertion of the market, but in fifteen minutes everything had regained its usual quiet. and the hucksters paid attention to their produce and customers. At the hour mentioned Mrs. McCarwas purchasing some butter from a dealer on the west side of the Covent Garden Market. She handed a $5 bill in payment, and upon receiving the change—over $4—put it in her purse. Mrs. McCarthy had hardly returned the purse to its proper place when she felt a hand thrust into her pocket. She felt for the pocketbook, but it was gone. Then Mrs. McCarthy turned around in the crowd to see if she could discover the culprit. An alarm was given, and a young man heading westward on the square was marked as the thief. "There he goes," was the cry from many quarters, and a crowd started in pursuit. Every second the numbers rapidly increased, and into the City Hotel yard they surged. Detective Rider took a well-dressed young man into his charge as the guilty one. Chief Williams, a sergeant and a policeman were soon on hand, and had all they could do in keeping the crowd back. The supposed thief proved his innocence, however, and was given his liberty.

The onlookers just then began to realize that the police had been caught in a very simple game generally practiced by pickpockets. One of the "pals" had pointed out the wrong man and thus assisted the thief in his escape. An arrest was made later on. A young man said to have been in the company of the man who escaped was locked up shortly afterwards on suspicion. The police refuse to divulge his name, however.

Mrs. McCarthy is not the only weman who lost her pocketbook. A huckster had noticed a young man standing near her rig. He suddenly went, and the woman discovered that her pocketbook had gone with him. It contained $13. Mrs. McCarthy called at the police station and had a long interview with the chief. She stated that she could not positively identify the thief. She would know her pocketbook, though. It is since learned that the young man arrested on suspicion is Edward Reardon, a Hamilton glass blower.

She ocked very pale and tired; but there was a deep joy in her face. With her light curls dropping over her white dressinggown, she stood beside him, a vision of to marry. Why didn't my mother prevent me, as she tried to prevent your marriage? But mine was all right—or she thought so -as she thinks still. I've got a handsome house, horses and carriages, butler, three footman and a page. Didn't I dodge them all c everly? crept out in the dark of the afternoon and took a tram-me, Mrs. Alexander Thomson—a common street tram—to the railway. What would Mr. Thomson have said? Ha! ha! I wish he knew it, if only just to vex him!"

Roderick sat down by his sister, grieved and sad. She was in such an excited state that he did not attempt a single question, but she went on rapidly talking.

"What a hunt there'll be. Not that he cares for me, not two straws, but it isn't respectable to have one's wife running away. And they will think I have gone mad and killed the baby—he knew I hated it. But I'm not mad, I am quite in my sober senses, Rody-is that a noise? I told the girl to bolt the door, somebody might come after me, though I don't think it. And they never would imagine I had come here

A brute, too, as I say. Roderick"-clutching him by the arm-"you, a man with a wife of your own, and-yes, I know - would you believe that the very day before that poor little wretch was born, he—he struck me?"

Roderick sprang to his feet. "Don't get furious, you can do nothing, nobody can. It's only the drink. He's dec nt enough, just a fool at most, till he drinks, then he's a devil; and I hate him as I hate the devil. It's right.

"Right or wrong, you must be quiet," said the brother, himself making a violent effort at quietness and self-control. "My wife"the instinctive appeal which had become habitual now- 'my wife, come here. Silence came, with the small bundle, piteously still, as if only half alive, in her arms. She had been going in and out of the room with it while they talked.

"Your bed is ready. Come, sister."

Bella, occupied with herself and her brother, had apparently forgotten her brother's wife. When Silence stood before her-the young mistress of the house the woman with the womanly heart, which that forlorn babe seemed to have already found out, for it was fast asleep on her warm breast-this other woman, the miserable fine lady, the mother with the uumotherly soul, was struck with a mingled feeling, half surprise, half companction. "Yes, of course we are sisters. But I

At the suggestion of President Plat the secretary will write to Toronto ad ask the Board of Trade there to ssist them in bringing the questionof bank liens on merchants Government. The law as it stood gve the banks undue advantage over oler creditors in case of failures. A barer could go in and take a lien on the try goods the wholesale men had sold tohe insolvent merchant, and freeze the atter out. The liens were not registed in mercantile agencies, owing to a aw in the act.

Mr. T. R. Parker mentioned a schme of the advertising committee to beutify the park. He urged that the flowrs, trees and shrubs should be labeledfor the benefit of students, and, instea of keeping up a costly greenhouse, the florists of the city might be aske to keep the plants through the witer months. They would introduce a seat variety of flowers and plants. The ranagement of the park was criticled. Promenades at concerts, walking orthe grass and short cuts should be stoped, strangeness which, notwithstanding the c'osest tie of blood, rises up after awhile between those whose lives have drifted they said, and the ranger should be made to label the different trees and shrubs, as he has be n ordered to bythe council. Mr. Parker will place hi re-

30686888888883 DEATH CAUSED BY A JOKE.

Somebody Covered the Chimney and John Buerk was Smothered.

RED BANK, Feb. 22.-John Buerk, a machinist, was found dead in his room on Wednesday. A chimney, which was used by persons on the floor below, passed through his room. An naused stovepipe hole in this chimney, opened into Buerk's room. James Walsh, chief of police here, has found two men, Martin Sheughnessy and Wm. Chandler, who both say they saw a stone slab over the top of the chimney after Buerk's death. The slab has been removed since. No one can be found who knows when or how the slab got on or off the chimney, but the roof of the building is flat and handed the young gentleman a magnifieasily accessible from adjoining houses, and it is evident that Buerk's death was caused by some practical joker.

A Young Forger's Sentence.

Hamilton, Feb. 23 .- Henry Stewart, who yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge of forgery, was brought before the magistrate to receive sentence. He said he was 22 years of age and had come here about two weeks ago from Kansas City. His every success in the future. Yours, in two weeks ago from Kansas City. His father, he said, was dead, but his mother was alive. He said his home was in Scotland, and that he forged the check to raise money, as he was penniless, and the friend he had expected to find here was gone. The of his friends to tender him a complimagistrate said he was very sorry to have | mentary concert in the Opera House to pass sentence on such a young man. He prior to his departure from the city. could be sent to prison for fourteen years. He then sentenced the prisoner to the Central Prison for two years, less one | She Found It.

Pinemalt, the New Medicine.

Pinemalt is a new combination of medicinal agents, an up-to-date remedy for the cure of coughs, colds and all throat, bronchial and lung ailments. Promptly relieves the most distressing symptoms. In lingering cases ask for Pinemalt and Hypophosphites instead. "Have tried many remedies, but Pine-malt excels them." So says Rev. A. Fisher, rector, St. John's Church (new), Beechville, Ont.

The genius of misfortune, which seems to have pursued the members of the Methodist denomination in this city lately, overtook a bus load of them Thursday night near Springbank, and wrought confusion in their ranks. A number of young people out for an evening's pleasure, were ignominiously dumped near Springbank, through the loosening of a ccupling pin, and the party were severely shaken up. Upon arriving at their destination, near Byron, where the injuries were examined. it was found there was nothing more serious than scratched noses, bruises, and a few broken plates. The party arrived home next morning about 9 o'clock, preferring not to venture the journey in the dark.

A Pretty School Teacher Imprisoned With a Bear-Horses Terrorize Elephants - Did You Ever See a Cat With a White Tail? - Elephants Who Mind Babies—Chasing the Giraffe.

IMPRISONED WITH A BEAR. writes: Katie Rankin is a pretty 20year-old school mistress in Cummings township, this county. She is also a heroine, as an adventure in which she was a leading character, has proved. A 250-pound black bear was the other actor in the affair, and Katie's school house was the scene of combat. The structure in which pretty Miss Rankin conducts her school is situated near the banks of Pine Creek, in a sparsely settled district. Just back of the onestory school house stretches a forest, up and across the mountain, which rises 500 feet or more. It is no uncommon thing to see bears or catamounts in these woods. The knowledge that there were wild beasts about caused Katie Rankin to carry a revolver, for her boarding place is fully half a mile distant from the school house. Diligent practice has made her a proficient markswoman. One night last week snow fell in that locality to the depth of twenty inches. Next morning Miss Rankin started for her school, going quite early so that she could have the room warm before the pupils began to arrive. The task of trundling though the deep snow for half a mile was more than she had counted on, and when she arrived at the door of the little school house she was nearly fagged out. On opening the door she was surprised to find one of the windows in the rear of the room wide open. It had apparently been open all night, for the snow had drifted in. Hurrying up the aisle to make fast the window, she was startled to see a big black bear lying on the floor close to the stove. She screamed, for she thought the form that of a tramp who had taken shelter in her school room from the severe storm of the night before. She was about to flee when the black form raised up, and she was still more surprised to find it not a man, but a big black bear. Now here was a predicament. Run she must. She sprang to the door, but behold! in her hurry to get inside when she arrived, a minute before, she had failed to remove the key from the outside. The peculiar make of lock made it an impossibility to open the door on either side without the aid of the key after it had sprung shut, and thus was the now thoroughly alarmed girl made a prisoner-with a big black bear as a companion. Old bruin sat up on his haunches and blinked at the terrified girl. It was evident that her screams had awakened him from a sound sleep, and that he was still drowsy was more than apparent from his lazy attitude. The bear had found the window of the school house open, and the aperture thus afforded being not more than three feet from the ground, he easily got inside. That he had made himself at home was evidence from the topsy-turvy condition of affairs.

A lunch basket left by one of the pupils, in which several extra pieces of cake remained, was on the floor empty; and books, and maps, and slates were thrown promiscuously about, and as the impertinent fellow sat looking at the timid schoolm'am he seemed sorry for the disturbance he had caused in her school room. At last, having surveyed to his entire satisfaction, bruin gave a loud grunt, showed two rows of teeth, then turned and shambled towards the open window. With his forepaws on the sill he looked back over his shoulder at Miss Rankin, who stood trembling at the door, then he raised his ponderous form and slid out into the snow. It was then that Miss Rankin bethought herself and rammed her hand into her coat pocket for the revolver. With this as a helpmate, and the bear on the outside of the building, all her bravery re turned. She knew that bruin could not get back if she barricaded the windows. and she did want to shoot a real true bear so badly. On going to the window she was surprised to find that the bear had not yet gone more than ten feet toward the wood. The snow was so deep and of such a feathery nature that it was next to impossible for the woolly-coated creature to move. He first stood on his hind legs, and with his forepaws beat the snow from in front, but when he attempted to move forward he invariably tumbled head foremost into the snow, which at that point had drifted four feet high.

Miss Rankin judged that this was her chance. She did not stop to think that bears are not usually shot with a revolver. She watched bruin flounder in the snow, and knew that he could not get back to her, even though the first few shots did no more than injure him. She waited until he stood upright, when she leveled the pistol at his head and fired. Simultaneous with the report of the firearm the bear jumped into the air several feet, then went rolling into the snowdrift. An instant later he was again on his feet, this time with his face towards the school house window. The sight of his pretty tormentor and the pain of the bullet wound in his head maddened the fellow, and his attempt to flounder through the snow back to the window was terrific.

Again Miss Rankin raised her pistol, this time taking aim for the bear's eye. The bullet went "home," and the bear fell again into the snow drift. This time he was slow to rise, and before he accomplished this another bullet went plowing into his body, and he lay down

The shooting at the school house was Upon arriving at the school house they were quickly acquainted with the situation. The man with the gun made his way to where the bear lay, and found that the beast was not dead. He raised his gun to fire the finishing charge, but was stopped before he could pull the trigger by Miss Rankin, who exclaimed, "Here,

I want to kill that bear." The man stepped back, and Miss Rankin from her position at the window. sent another bullet into the woolly mass that lay partly hidden in the snow drift. That shot "fixed him," as one of the men said, when telling of the plucky girl's thrilling escapade. Miss Rankin will have a rug made of the bear skn. It is an exceptionally fine one, and it will ever prove a ready reminder of the day that she was made a prisoner in a country school house with a wild beast for her only com-

.... HORSES A TERROR TO ELE-

PHANTS. Elephants are extremely afraid of horses, writes Major John Butler in Travels in Assam." To that fact he ed the deliverance of his wife and l ld from a terrible death. With them

A Williamsport, Pa., correspondent when about midday I heard behind me a general cry of alarm, and hastily rode to the scene of danger. It seems that just after I had passed, with the coolies who had cut down the jun-gles, a huge Mukna elephant rushed from the jungle in a terrible rage and pursued the little baggage elephant, which was just behind my wife and child. The little elephant screeched and fled for its life straight ahead. Fortunately a pony was led beside the palkee which contained my wife and child. wild elephant was close upon them and they closed their eyes in horror, expecting to be dragged from their places and trampled to death. At that moment the great beast caught sight of the pony. It stopped short, turned aside, and fled back to the jungle as if pursued by an evil spirit. The men were filled with astonishment. Most of them had fled to the protection of sheltering trees, leaving my wife and child

HUNTING THE GIRAFFE.

The bush is horribly dense and thorny, and the thorns are of such a nature that the strongest cord breeches can scarcely withstand their assaults. The old giraffe bulls, with hides nearly an inch thick, care for no thorn in the forest, and plunge through the armed thickets as though they were black currant bushes. There is only one thing to be done-to forget the sickle thorns and follow them. The spurs go in, the gallant pony springs forward, and the chase begins. It is truly headlong. Crash go the tall giants, their long necks rising and falling rhythmically, their heads bending sometimes low to escape a bough which all but scrapes

It is wonderful how such monstrous game can evade branches and tack this way and that among the interrup-tions and obstacles of the forest. It is a tough gallop, indeed, but in ten minutes the hunter has driven his pony right up to the tail of the nearest bull, and, from the saddle, has fired his shot. He falls behind a little, then closes up and fires again. Both bullets, planted close to the root of the tail, have plowed deep into the short part of the giraffe and done their work. The painted giant falters, sways, and then in an instant falls crashing to earth, carrying with him in his ruin a stout sapling.

Dark chestunt of coat (almost black with age upon the back), this old bull, measuring nineteen feet from the hoof to the tip of the false horns, forms a noble prize indeed. As he lies there in the long yellow grass he looks, surely, the strongest of all survivals of the fauna of the Dark Ages; a priceless and pathetic relic left to the modern world by the ravages of time.—The Saturday possesses to which little attention has been paid, and that is the power of scent. With some horses it is acute. as with the dog; and for the benefit of those who drive at night, such as physicians and others, this knowledge is in-I never knew it to fail, and have ridden hundreds of miles of dark nights, and in consideration of this power of scent this is my simple advice: Never check your norse at night, but give him a free head, and you may rest assured that he will never get off the road, and will carry you safely and expeditiously. In regard to the power of scent in a horse, I once knew one of a pair that was stolen and recovered mainly by the track being made out by his mate, and that after being absent six hours or eight hours.—Tait. . . . .

NO CATS WITH A WHITE TAIL. As you seem to be interested in cats, and as I am. too. I make bold to ask you a question. Did you ever see a cat with a white tail? I have been looking for one, simply as a matter of curiosity, for about fifty years, and have never seen one, although I have seen many pure white cats, except that their tails or part of their tails, were not. I was asked this question when a small boy by a person probably as old as I am now, and he said he had never seen one though he was induced all his life to look for one, just as I have, and for the same reason, so this would make a search of considerably over a century on this question of natural history, and as in this long space there is no authentic account of any one ever having seen a cat with a tail all white, I am almost tempted to believe there is no such thing.

ELEPHANTS TENDING BABIES. Weakness appeals powerfully to the friendly protection of the strong, and even among brutes-at least the nobler kinds-the appeal is not often in vain, says a writer in the Pittsburg Dispatch. In the curious relations between monster and midget we not infrequently see the fable of the lion and the mouse repeated without words. There is nothing by any means uncommon or incredible in the stories which have been reported about the children of a mahout being cared for by the mahout's elephant. The whole family of the mahout become, as it were, parasites to the elephant, by whom earn their living. I have seen a baby placed by its mother systematically unelephant's care, and within der the reach of its trunk, while the mother went to fetch water or to get wood or material to cook the family dinner. No jackal or wolf would be likely to pick up and carry off a baby who was thus confided to the care of an elephant: but most people who have lived a life in the jungle know how very possible it is for a jackal or wolf to carry off a baby when lying in a hut when the mother's back is turned. The children thus brought up in the companionship of an elephant become familiar with him and take all kinds of liberties with him, which the elephant seems to endure on the principle that it does not hurt him, while it amuses the child. You see a little naked black child about two feet high, standing on the elephant's bare back and taking it down to the water to bathe, shouting all the time in the most unbecoming terms of native abusive language. On arriving at the water the elephant, ostensibly in obedience to the child's command, lies down and enjoys himself, just leaving a part of his body, like a small island the elephant's trunk promptly child stands and yells, and yells all the more if he has several companions of his own age, also in charge of their elephants, all wallowing in the water around him. If the child slips off his island the elephant's trunk promptly replaces him in safety. The little urversing the jungle over an replaces him in safety. ### Food of the Future

Some Original and Important Discoveries-Lamentable Ignorance of the Average Person on the Subject of Edibles - Contrivance for Measuring Energy Produced by Various Kinds of Food.

How will the coming man be fed? The Department of Agriculture has become interested in this question newly, and before long will publish a series of bulleting on the subject. of bulletins on the subject. They will be prepared by such well-known experts in this branch of research as Prof. W. O. Atwater and Dr. Edward Atkinson. The former gentleman has been engaged to conduct certain investiga-tions of an original and highly scientific character. At the bottom of the whole inquiry lies the fact that the people of this country do not know how to choose the foods they eat or how to cook them afterwards.

This burden of ignorance falls most heavily upon the wage-workers, who, taking an average among them, use one half of their money to buy food with, this estimate not including the cost of cooking. The poor man wastes in pur-chasing provender; his wife wastes in providing it for the table. When an intelligent person buys a coat he has a pretty fair idea as to whether it fits him and how it will wear. But when he invests in meat and potatoes he has little information as to how much nu-triment they contain, or whether it is of a kind suited to his bodily require-

Prof. Atwater has an apparatus at the Wesleyan University for measuring the physical income and outgo of human beings. It is a metal box, inside of which a man is placed. He stays there several days, during which he is fed on carefully-weighed quantities of certain foods. A current of air is then drawn through the box by a machine pump. Not only is all the waste of the body analyzed and weighed, but the air is subjected to analysis before it goes in and after it comes out of the box. By the latter analysis it is discovered just what elements and how much of them have been given off by the lungs of the man in breathing. Everything that goes into the body of the subject being known, as well as the outgo, it is easily ascertained what has been used to build up the tissues, to make blood, etc. The man in the box, which has glass windows, may spend his time in idleness, or he may be occupied actively several hours of the day. In this way comparisons are obtained as to food consumed and results accomplished under varying conditions. Most educated people have queer no tions about foods. It is generally imagined that an egg contains as much nutriment as a pound of lean beefsteak. As a matter of fact, it has two per cent. less untriment, pound for pound. Beef sirloin is only 75 per cent. as nu-tritious as peas and beans. Chicken and turkey are ahead of peas and beans make much of the farm, so re it in this respect, being the most nutritious up and came to town to tryet a food known. Shad and mackerel are too in the factory.

as nutritious as sirloin steak. Lean beef is nearly three-fourths water. Dealers say that the demand for fish is actually increased to a considerable extent by the popular belief that it is a good brain food. The reason for this is supposed to be that fish contains a great deal of phosphorus, an element that is more abundant in the brain and nerves than in other parts of the human body. But the fact is that there is no special abundance of phosphorus in fish. If there were it would be of no importance. The widely circulated phrase, "Without phosphorus there is no thought," was originated by a German half in jest. On one occasion the elder Agassiz delivered a lecture on the importance of fish culture-it was in Boston-and remarked in a joking way that fish was an excellent brain food. From this saying and from the oft-quoted phrase of the German scientist above referred to has been derived the accepted idea on this subject. In truth, there is no cause whatever for believing that the eating of fish promotes cerebral activity. But, speaking of the relative value of foods, it is interesting to know that a pound of ean beef and a quart of milk as it comes from the cow contain about the same amount of nutriment material. However, the nutrients in beef are more valuable for ordinary use. Prof. Atwater has invented a new contrivance for measuring the energy produced by certain foods. The food selected for trial—a definite quantity of it—is burned in a vessel surrounded by water. A thermometer of extraordin-ary delicacy registers the rise in the temperature of the water, the quantity of which is known. Then an equal am ount of the same food is burned in the human body. Of course all food digested undergoes a process of chemical com-

If the amount of potential energy developed in the man is equal to that indicated by the rise in the temperature of the water it is proved that the energy power of any human being is precisely equal to the energy power that has been absorbed in the shape of food. Surplus energy, however, may be stored as fat in the body. The fat is stored fuel. Americans store excessive quantities such fuel by eating too much starch, sugar and fats. It is a self-evident proposition that the cheapest food to buy is that which contains the greatest amount of nutriment for a given price. With a small equipment of knowledge on this subject the poor man could select his articles of diet on the market with a vastly greater economy. In other words, he could live much better for less money. He ought to be taught to select such foods as cornmeal, beans, milk and the cheaper cuts of meats. To start with, it is easy for him to realize that highpriced foods are in general uneconomical. The maxim that the best is the cheapest does not apply to foods. The average man, leading a moderately active life, needs 59 ounces of food per diem. He consumes 37 ounces of water and absorbs in breathing 30 ounces of oxygen from the air. His total bodily income, therefore, is about eight pounds daily. What he needs for his support each day is 4 1-5 ounces of flesh-forming albumen, 2 ounces of fat, enough to make a fair-sized candle-11-2 ounces of sugar and starch, fourfifths of an ounce of mineral matterssuch as common salt, potasssium, etc., -2 quarts of water and 159 gallons of oxygen. So much water is contained in solid foods that we may be said to eat as much as we drink. In order to supply the substances above mentioned a man should eat daily 20 ounces of bread, 8 ounces of beefsteak, 30 ounces of potatoes, and 1 ounce of butter, with 1 quart of water, or the equivalent. A human being is composed mostly of water. The body of a man weighing 154 pounds contains, 96 pounds, or 6 quarts of water. To complete his make-up must be added 13 pounds of albumen, 10 pounds of gelatine, 23 pounds of fat, 8 1-2 pounds of phosphate of lime, 1 pound of carbonate of lime, three ounces of sugar and starch, 7 ounces of fluoride of calcium, 7 ounces of phosphate of mag-nesia, a trifle of chloride of potassium and a little ordinary table salt.

The bulletins to be issued by the Department of Agriculture will attempt to teach people not only how to choose market, but also how to as they advanced. I was a the dignity of being mahouts and eventually arrive at the dignity of being mahouts of all of these by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Are you all tired out, do you have that tired feeling, or sick headache? You can be relieved of all of these by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Sir Henry Thompson, a noted English physician, has expressed the opinion that more mischief in the form of diseases and shortened life is caused by bad habits of eating than by alcohol It may be that some day experiment stations for making trials of methods for preparing foods will be established in this country. Scientific work of this kind is already carried on with much profit in Germany. Ordinary processes of cookery involve enormous waste. -Philadelphia Times.

COOKING WITH ELECTRICITY.

An Experimental School in England Which is Proving Suco

Black and White. Cooking by electricity sounded almost too good to be true, but when I heard that at one place in London-and only one place—its practicability was being daily demonstrated by Miss Fairclough, a diplomee of the National School of Cookery, I set forth to behold the miracle. If she had lived a few hundreds of years ago she would very likely have been drowned or burned at the stake. This statement requires an explanation-but perhaps if I describe a certain table and a few little ovens (which look like safes) in the large, bright class-room kitchen, it may explain itself. The table was an ordinary one (to the casual observer) of unpainted wood. Miss Fairclough stood beside it, rolling pastry, while in front in a neat little row were six cooking utensils. All were of bright and shining copper and steel, from the kettle to the fluted "gril-ler," and they simply stood on the table, without any fire or apparent signs of heat. Yet there, on the griller, was a chop cooking gaily away, "with an independent air;" in the kettle water was boiling; on the "hot plate" scones were toasting; in a frying pan potatoes were frying; while two little pots were occupied by stewing bird and simmering jam. I touched the table. It was cold, and I found I could lay my gloves and handkerchief upon it with impunity. I noticed, too, that a bowl of chrysanthemums was not in the slightest degree disturbed by the neighborhood of the

I learned that all the cooking at the Gloucester road school is done by electricity; that the two-months' trial has resulted in a brilliant success, and that, though the weird table and its contents suggested a scene from fairyland, where all the viands are prepared by enchantment, it was all very simple and practical, indeed. No other means of cooking is so eminently satisfactory free from all disagreeable accompaniments, according to Miss Fairclough, Unless a house is lighted by electricity the preliminaries are expensive; afterward the process has been proved most

Fully protected wires, connecting at ly up the top of the table, and each cooking utensil is especially made to connect with its "knob" (would own particular little that I knew the technical name! but there are six of them) beneath the overlaping edge in front. Then the kettle, or griller, becomes as hot as may be required, and the process of cooking is triumphantly accomplished. The ovens, too, though not as startling in appearance were soon proved to my satisfaction to be equally delightful. Each one (and Miss Fairclough has several) contains six shelves, which admit of an infinite variety of roastings and baking going on at the same time, and as the ovens, heated by electricity, retain their warmth for an almost incredible time after the electrical current has been removed, their many advantages need no recounting I insisted on touching them before l would believe, against Miss Fairclough's advice, and the consequence was instant conviction and-a blister.

A COUNTRY OF CONTRASTS.

What a country of contrasts Russia is! They are building gigantic railways here. They are watching across the frontiers of India the movements of the Englishmen. Russia has her agents in the bazars of Calcutta and Constantinople with their fingers on the pulse of the people. She showed Europe the other day a ceremonial eclipsing in grandeur and solemnity anything this century has seen. And yet over 75 per cent. of her population are illiterate. Even in great cities like Moscow and Odessa 45 per cent. of the inhabitants can neither read nor write. Some curious statistics came to light the other day as to the scarcity of medical men in certain districts of the empire. It would seem that in Russia more than in any other country in Europe the tendency of the doctors is to gravitate to the towns. In the large and populous government of Saratoff, for instance, there are only 120 doctors, or one to every 30,000 of a village population. As an instance of the insufficiency of the hospital accommodation the same province is cited where only one hospital bed exists for every 2,000 patients. In some of the more northerly provinces the proportion of population to doctors is still more excessive, a state of affairs which is anything but creditable to the medical profession, especially when we read that in the city of Kief there is a doctor for every 300 inhabitants.

NERVOUSNESS AND SLEEP-LESSNESS THE CAUSE.

Paine's Celery Compound Brings Sweet Rest and Sleep.

MRS. ANNA DAWSON. Modern civilization and life is marred and saddened owing to the great prevalence of nervousness, sleeplessness, irritability, depression of spirits and nervous headache. Women are the chief sufferers. The constant cares and crosses of daily life in the home, and the worries and exactions of society, all tend to disturb and break up the nervous organism. Medical science has given to the world Paine's Celery Compound, a true nerve food, vitalizer and builder; the only medicine that can restore health and bring sweet rest and natural sleep. Mrs. Dawson, of Wilkesport, Ont., who was once a great sufferer, testifies as follows:

"I consider it a pleasure and duty to put on record what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I have been afflicted with nervousness and sleeplessness, and at times have been withou sleep for 50 hours. All ordinary medicines failed, and nothing met my case until I used Paine's Celery Compound. Now I never miss a night's sleep. I strongly recommend your medicine to all nervous sufferers."

HOME NURSING HINTS.

THE PATIENT'S ROOM AND HOW BEST TO ARRANGE IT.

The Importance of Thorough Ventilation in the Care of the Sick-Nell Tells How to Secure Abundance of Pure Air Without Draft.

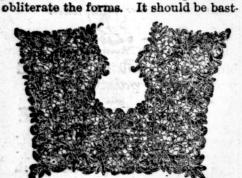

In regard, first, to the room: Have it as large and cheerful as possible, with a southern or eastern aspect, to get the benefit of the morning sun. If your patient is not suffering from a contagious disease there is no reason why floor and walls should be bare. Fresh, dainty paper and quiet toned carpet add much to the appearance, as well as actual comfort of a room. The dust raised in sweeping a carpet may be urged as an objection. Well, go over your floor every few days with a cloth wrung out of warm, soft water. Then when you sweep, take a newspaper, soak in water, wring very dry, tear in little bits, and scatter over the floor, and you will be surprised how little dust rises. Keep a whisk broom and dust-pan handy, and take up all the bits of lint, dust, etc., and you will not need to sweep nearly so often. One of the most important things is the proper ventilation of the sick room. Nine times out of ten the window will be the only means, and when you attack that you find that it won't open at the top, and when opened at the bottom there is a direct draft on the bed. The open fireplaces of our grandfathers' time were a boon to humanity, for with their capacious throats they ventilated their rooms willy nilly. Remember that pure air and plenty of it, without drafts, is of paramount importance to your sick one. If your window be such as I have described, get a piece of board three or four inches wide, to fit snugly under the frame of your window when the lower sash is raised. The air then comes in between the upper and lower sashes. Or, raise the window three or four inches and tack to it two thicknesses of gauze or cheesecloth, with a layer of absorbant cotton between, fastening it down to the window sill at the other side. Any woman with a head and fingers ought to be able so to arrange matters that the air of the sick room will always be pure, and yet her patient not exposed to cold. The only time when the window should be closed is when the patient is getting up, being bathed, or having clothes changed .-Nell, in American Agriculturist.

Hand-Made Lace Collars.

Large sums are now being lavished by our wealthy sisters on the recentlyrevived taste for large lace collars. The old point of different kinds, especially Venetian and Flemish, and busy fingers are set to work to carry out the designs from machine-made braids brought out expressly in great variety to suit these styles of lace, these same busy fingers needing only an ordinary needle and linen thread to weave these filaments which are so exquisitely lovely and so lacelike in their effect. When executed in cream color it is sometimes hard to distinguish them, without a very close examination, from valuable specimens of real lace.

The entire cost of making one of these collars will not exceed eight dollars; the simpler patterns calling for less material may be made for about five. When finished carefully they are worth, according to the elaborateness of the design, from thirty to one hundred dollars, but it must be remembered at the same time that they are worth nothing at all if every stitch is not placed exactly where it belongs. The expenditure of $5 includes the pattern on paper muslin traced by hand in ink, so that friction in working will not ed on to a sheet of wrapping paper, not too thick, but of the kind that does not tear easily. This gives the necessary firmness required to avoid risk of puckering. The illustration is a magnificent specimen of modern lace-making, closeiy resembling an exquisite piece of old Venetian point. The braid should be sufficiently heavy to give a certain weight to the finished work, for anything like firmness would greatly de-tract from the beauty of the design. Rings and buttons of various sizes are combined to give finish to the work, and cannot in this instance be dispensed with, as they form an integral part of the pattern. A variety of lace stitches are employed to fill the spaces; they may be varied at pleasure, avoiding only these that are entirely solid. The bars are buttonholed and enriched with picots. These bars are somewhat tedious to work in comparison with twisted bars, but they are incomparably superior. This particular shape allows the dress sleeve to rise high between the points front and back.-Sara Hadley, in Ladies' Home Journal.

WOMEN IN THE ARMY.

Many of the Heroic Deeds Performed by the French Cantinieres.

In the list of decorations given by the French Minister of War on January 1st, there appears the name of Mme. Cordier, the cantiniere of the Seventy-Second Regiment of Infantry at Amiens. She received the military medal. Judging from her heroic acts she is well worthy of it. She distinguished herself during the war of 1870-71, and after the craitulation of Sedan she saved several officers by hiding them in her wagon. Before that she followed her regiment to Africa and took part in more than one expedition. Mme. Cordier is one of the oldest cantinieres. The oldest of all is Mme. Vialard. She served thirty-seven years, went through four campaigns, and received two medals. She is a Lorraine woman, and began her military career in the Crimea.

One of the most celebrated cantinieres was Mother Joay She was in the Crimean, the Italian and the Mexican campaigns. Generally she went on foot, and supported all the fatigues of the march like a man. She was the cantiniere of the Third Zouaves, and died at Blidah at the age of seventy-four years. She also received the military medal.

Mme. Vialard, whom we have mentioned above, received the military medal in 1866. Before her, Mme. Under fire they followed their battalion, picking up the wounded and quenching their thirst, and often consoling the dying.

As one can easily imagine, under such conditions the life of the cantiniere is not without danger. Many of them were not spared by the bullets. Mme. Rajan, the cantiniere of the Second Algerian Rifles, received four wounds during the last Franco-German war, and another cantiniere, Mme. Massey, was also wounded. In regard to this latter, there is one act of heroism that is mentioned by the Courier des Etats Unis. The mother of a soldier in her battalion asked her to watch over him. He was killed. Mme. Massey ran up to him, kissed him, and, crying out, "You shall be avenged!" rushed to the front rank in the place of the dead soldier, and was among the last to fire a shot.

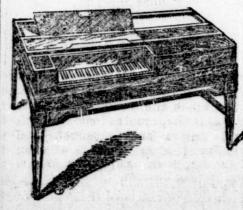

Mme. Telman, cantiniere of the Second Regiment of Zouaves at Reichshofen, lifted up Col. Detrie, who was badly wounded, and did so under the very lances of the Uhlans. She took part in a memorable defense of Bitche. The poor woman is now blind.

Finally, we have Mme. Bondu of the Thirty-Fourth Regiment of the line, who distinguished herself in the combats of Patay and Coulmiers.

A few days after these battles, in which she displayed the most remarkable courage, she gave birth to a son. Speaking of the baby she said: "That's a chap that will never be afraid of the rattle of artillery!"

There are also cantinieres who are decorated with the Legion of Honor, among them Mme Jarrethout, the cantiniere of the Free Shooters of Chateaudun.

Every mother knows the trials of that day of downpour when restless babies drive her and nurse to the edge of distraction, and when all wonted diversions fail any longer to amuse.

Cut out a circle of card board four times as large as the cork, and draw two lines at right angles across the disk. That will leave it divided into four quarters and these quarters are to be painted blue, yellow, green and red. Bore a hole in the centre of the disk and slip the blunt end of the match through it until the card board rests upon the cork. Next cut another, but rather thicker slice from the cork, bore a hole in the centre and stick the blunt end of the match through, pressing it down till it touches the card. This will leave about an inch of match to be taken between finger and thumb for spinning this fascinatingly beautiful teetotum.

Cutting long slices through the middle of the cork leaves pieces, which, with the aid of Bobby's paints, can be turned into a beautiful set of dominoes. and by cutting out square pieces one can make a beautiful set of noiseless dice to be used with the backgammon board.

Te tests have been the means of discring a peculiar coincidence, viz., thate resilience of the majority of air tiresthe same at twenty pounds as at fortpunds; this being so, my advice is toep the pressure as low as is consistewith the weight to be carried.

Tump too hard means to sacrifice comt, and from my own experience ther less liability to puncture a properly lated tire than one blown very hardndeed, I believe that hundreds of tires ve been ruined by too much attenti with the inflator.

A pound pressure shows a resilience of aht 84 per cent, which steadily rises ntil with a 25-pound pressure 85 per ct of resiliency is obtained. At 271-nnd pressure, 91 per cent is reach. This is the acme of resilience, and im this point a steady decline sets in. 430 pounds, 87 per cent is reached; at 40 unds, 85 per cent; at 45 pounds, 82 peent; at 50 pounds the drop is rapido 77 per cent; at 54 pounds, 74 per at and at 60 pounds pressure only 67 pecent of resiliency is obtained.

THE requisites of protective painting for structural iron work have been made the subject of careful investigation by Mr. Wallis, of the Association of Engineers, Virginia, and the results of his studies in this direction have now been published. He recommends, as essential, that the first coat be of red lead ground in raw linseed oil, and used within two or three weeks after mixing, being also kept thoroughly mixed while in use, this coat drying in from 24 to 30 hours. If the finish is to be black, the next two coats should be made up of a paste composed of 65 per cent. of ment and 35 per cent. of raw oil, the pigment to consist of 65 per cent. of sulphate of lime, 30 per cent. of lampblack, and 5 per cent. of red lead as a dryer, the whole being thinned to a proper consistency with pure boiled oil. If the finish is to be red or brown, the paste should be composed of 75 per cent. of pigment and 25 per cent. of pure raw oil, the pigment to consist of 65 per cent. of sulphate of lime, 40 per cent. of oxide of iron free from sulphur and caustic substances, and 5 per cent. of carbonate of lime as a drier, the sulphate of lime to be fully hydrated. The estimated cost of such paint, ready for use, is about 60 cents per gallon.

SUPPLEMENT TO DAILY ERTISER .-- SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1895.

Motto for the Week:

"I pity the man who has never failed; he has missed seeing God from one of the finest views of him."- [Rev. J. M. Gibbon.

Spiritual, not a "Spirit" Heaven.

Ordinarily it would seem as if there would be nothing very remarkable in the fact that the distinguished pastor of the Madison Square Presbyterian Church, this city, should preach a sermon from the text in John xiv., 2, —"I go to prepare a place for you."

It is a good text and has often been preached from. But either because of the distinguished character of the preacher or by reason of the peculiarity of his views, a sermon on this text delivered on Sunday of last week attracted the attention of the newspaper press. In this sermon, we may premise, the preacher insisted upon death. Into such a 'and may Christ part of Carlyle's "Gty," society the material nature of heaven, making bring us all in his own good time! it as substantial as the city of Jerusalem of the present day. In printing their respective reports of the sermon on the following day the Tribune headed its account in large capitals-"An Interesting Heaven;" and the Times announced to its readers the news that "Heaven Is a Locality"—as it undoubtedly is.

We do not take up the theme at the present time for the purpose of bringing together all the evidence showing heaven to be an actual, material locality-to do that would require a volume-but rather to direct attention to one of the greatest misconceptions of the time-the misconception that both heaven and the resurrected saint are immaterial products-spirit creations-heaven being in the speech of some "purely a state," and the resurrection body a ghost, or as it is termed, "a spiritual body." It will be evident at a glance that these two great result- now in Japan is the Red Cross Society. ants are interdependent and of like The common people who do not character. That is, if the resurrection understand English seem to be ignorbody is immaterial, then heaven is wholly unsubstantial, and is therefore only a state; a ghost body does not need a substantial "mansion," and there is no occasion for Christ to "prepare" one for its occupancy. Conversely, if the bodies of the saints are material and tangible, then they can not only make use of mansions but will need them.

First, and briefly, as to the resurrection body. It is "a spiritual body;" is is not a spirit body—which is quite an other and very different thing. A spiritual body is not a spirit body, but a body adopted to the wants of a perfect spirit. Christ took such a body with him into heaven; but it was a material body-one that could be and was both seen and handled. What marks the difference between a spiritual and an earthly or "natural" body is not that the one is immaterial and the other material, but that one is incorruptible and the other corruptible; the opposite of spirit is not matter, but corruption. This distinction is unperseived in many quarters, and has led to false conceptions of matter and spirit and of the heavenly state as well.

Secondly, as to heaven. As the believer in entering heaven is not unsions." The necessity of the case and the express deciarations of the Master call for a tangible, substantial, material heaven; and why should it not be so? When God entered upon his great creative work he formed matter; and when he had made a world he fashionso honored matter, in the first creation | still continued to write. of the world's genesis, why should he dishonor it in the new creation ?-havhe put aside one part of his nature as types. other forms of error, this perverted sense of the nature and functions of matter and spirit manifests itself in two manifestation of matter in motion, who thus dishonor God who created both mind and matter and who married them, thenceforth to be united forever.

No; as our preacher has said, a world that is simply a spirit world is not a world that we can think about with any safety, or that we are qualified to have any interest in. There is no warrant in Scripture for thinking that the more unlike this world we imagine a thing to be the more heavenly it is. From out the shadow of such perversion let every believer in Christ place himself as he appropriates the comforting and blessed truth that beyond all earthly disappointments lies a hand of surpassing loveliness, a fitting shifts the divinely andmarks of abode for spiritual beings—a land right and wrong.—[Ap Trench. abode for spiritual beings-a land where eyes shall gaze in eyes long closed, shall clasp hands long cold, and where the tongue long silent shall breathe forth words of love in the old familiar tones never again to fall un--[The Christian Work.

The Red Cross Society.

A very highly valued correspondent, and one of the best authorities on the subject, writes the Outlook appreciatively of a recent mention in these columns of the Red Cross Society, and incloses the following item concerning that society in Japan: The facts mentioned below correspond with the information received from other sources. While there seems to be little doubt that occasionally the Japanese have given way to their former barbarism. yet, on the whole, they have shown the influence of Christianity and civilization in a very remarkable degree. Our correspondent writes as follows:

In a letter from —, dated from Osaka, Dec. 10, she says: "After the army, the most popular institution just ant of its Christian significance, and speak of it as the 'Red Ten-Letter Society,' as the cross is the character for ten im Chinese and Japanese. The Empress is its most enthusiastic patron, and all officials, excepting the lowest are obliged to belong to it. There are a large number of Chinese prisoners at Osaka. An official of the local government asked the missionaries to go and see how they were treated. They wore the Red Cross Society clothing, with the badge of Christianity on their arms. We had Chinese Bibles and other books for distribution, and both Chinese and Japanese attendants were delighted with them and with the sympathy of the Americans. We must praise the Japanese for their kind and just treatment of the Chinese and Coreans and their noble aims. Of course there is an inordinate desire for praise, but the nation is taking great strides forward and entering into the races with Christian nations.'

Little Brother (confidently)—Oh, who matter is all you needn't worry about sister. She thing spiritual only a spiritual only

How much wholesoll accounts is ( But when a woman who has had advantages of birth and civilized training equal to my own walks into my parlor and tells me that my children look like Sioux Indians, that my best friend is a woman of bad character, and that I was invited to Mr. Blank's dinner party only to fill a vacant place, then there is a call for Christian self-respect and Christian sincerity on my part, and it becomes straightway my Christian duty to drop the "peculiar" lady from my visiting list, and thus give her more leisure to display her peculiarities to those who find a pleasure in excusing inexcusable things—a very dubious sort of virtue, let me say.

A great deal of what we call Christian charity is, in plain English, very un-Christian moral cowardice. We tolerate insult, humiliation and radeness, and say to the world of resentful sinners: "Behold! how great is the length and breadth, the depth and height of my Christian charity!" And all the while, if you are honest with yourself, you know that the motive actuating you is not charity, but the meanest of cowardice. You are afraid that if you quietly drop the "peculiar" person from your circle of friends, the malicious tongue that spits venom on the reputation of your neighbor will attack yours next; that stream of "false witness" that flows from those lips may turn in the direction of your door; that the base insinuations that have prejudiced you against other women will be whispered against you. So in fear and innocent victims, and thus make yourself one of those who "call evil good and good evil; that put darkness for light and light for darkness." It is a little singular that the sweet charity we bestow so graciously on grown-up sinners is entirely withheld from little children—the beings of all others who have an indisputable right to expect it of us. How promptly does the impertinent, the ill-bred child meet his just deserts. If he be our own, there are switches and slippers and dark closets for his reformation. And if he be a neighbor's—especially a neighbor who is not in society-how quickly do we instruct our darlings to ostracise him from the charmed circle of their back yard. How firm and decided and heroic we are in calling our precious pets into the house whenever the "bad boy" or the "bad girl" appears on the scene of their innocent

Ah, if we were only brave enough to use such wholesome sincerity in our intercourse with the "bad man" and the "bad woman," there would be few peculiar people outside of lunatic asylums, and life would become infi-

There is another word, whose Latinity so cloaks its real meaning that a very shameful thing seems very innocent and respectable. The word is ment beforehand, a judgment before knowledge, or to put it still more worthless, more contemptible, than such a thing? Yet men and women, apparently perfectly sane, rational beings in all other respects, will unblushingly acknowledge a prejudice against a certain thing or person. Their manals. They are quick to repay adness ner would indicate that a prejudice is something that no well-conducted person can afford to be without, or something that only a very superior person can get up. They not only govern opinion founded on ignorance, but they would like to force the whole civsame way. A prejudice! if you have one, hide it as you would the skeleton in the closet. Do not let your bosom friend know you have it. Treat it as Mary indulges her peculia-ities o the you do the blot on your 'scutcheon. Mourn over it in secret, and think of it when you kneel in church to acknowledge your "manifold sins and transgressions" against Almighty God. And finally feed the uncanny creature to death as soon as possible on a good, wholesome diet of absolute truth and certain knowledge, two things that are sure death to all prejudices.

There has always been to me a ment she properly deserves, what a words bermerkensverteste, erhebungslinien. They are so plain, so frank, so all-expressive. They bear the same nums commits a breach of courtesy English some word of this kind that make the wheels of every reform fairly spin. There would be less of expressed opinion and more calm research and study; our newspapers would not teem as now with articles written by women who declare that they don't know anything about a certain question of the day, that, moreover, they don't want to know any thing about it, and yet they are totally opposed to it; there would be less argument and more work, and the eign of reason would at once set in.

Suppose we begin to use opinionfounded-on-ignorance instead of the word prejudice. Try the effect of it at the first opportunity. Say with your politest air and most winning smile: "Ah, I see you are governed by an opinion founded on ignorance.' Then mark the lowering brow and offended start of the man who would only have smirked in flattered complacency if you had accused him of a prejudice. Dress makes as much difference in words as it does in people.

If we call a thing by a name which makes it appear to be something it is not, we are lying. If any reader feels shocked at my coarseness in using that emphatic word, let him tone up his nerves by re-reading the quotation at the head of this article. Our aversion to calling things by their right names has brought us to such moral decadence that the name of an odious thing is more shocking to us than the thing itself. The words lie and liar are striking examples of this. The words themselves are strictly tabooed in polite conversation, while the liar and his lies are treated with distinguished toleration and exquisite courtesy.

"Sister told a lie," exclaimed a small boy, rushing into the parlor one day when I was calling on his mother.

"O, Tommy!" exclaimed his shocked parent, "what dreadful language!" And when "sister" was ist, in the House of Commons. I do not believe there is a case on record of a man being knocked down for lying. This punishment is received for the man who merely calls his fellow man a liar. Centuries hence, when some philologist writes on the Study of Words, he will cite, as a proof of the moral degeneracy of the nineteenth century, that it was a worse offense to mention a lie than to tell one.

One day last summer, in the board of lady managers, a member stated an ugly fact in unequivocal language.

There was a great hue and cry. "But isn't it true?" asked a spec-

"True? Yes; but such language i unparliamentary.'

"But the truth ought to be parliamentary," persisted the unlearned one. Parliamentary law does not govern society, but one would think it did to hear the evasions and shifts practiced by people who cannot call a spade a spade. Who can measure the harm done to a child's moral nature, when he is instructed to call a lie a "story"? No wonder he comes to think that a lie is next door to a fairy tale, and that in telling one he elevates himself to the rank of a juvenile novelist of the realistic or romantic school, according to the nature of his "stories." It good breeding is not compatible with the sternest verbal sincerity, then good breeding is the most immoral thing in the world. If politeness demands that we call a thing that which it is not, then politeness is nothing but gross insincerity, and polite society but a vast human machine for the manufacture of lies.

Of the Day === With the Thinkers and Workers.

Latest Intelligence from W. C. T. U. Fields of Labor.

January, 1895 brought to a close our fourth year of work in connection with the "Golden Rule" Band of Mercy. The year just closed has heen the best one in the history of our band. Not only has the interest in the lessons been well sustained, but it has found expression in numberless kind deeds to all with whom the members have owing to the crowded condition of the school, literally become two bands, each of which receives a regular lesson fortnightly, so that instead of threequarters of an hour spent in the work an hour and a half. Seventeen regular secretary, Miss Young. meetings have been held during the year, at which we have spoken of the structure and habits of squirrels, pigs, bats, rats, etc. These talks have been and have, in several cases tended to foster a love for natural history which will not be uprooted. In order to try and secure the active co-operation of the parents in our work, and so make every home a complete band of mercy in itself, an evening meeting has been held once a month, when parents and children come together. The attendance at these has been fairly good, and we are sure that the seed thus sown will bear fruit some day.

The annual meeting was held on the evening of March 21, and was pronounced a decided success. Short addresses were given by Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Cummings, and Miss Sims, after which Mr. R. S. Baird presented six books donated by this society. At the close of the meeting a treat of fruit and cakes was given the band by several lady members of the Humane Society. Needless to say, the treat was highly appreciated. We are year by year raising our standard of work, and for past four months acts of kindness the home have not been recorded. We wish in this way to teach the children that it is their duty to do all they can for those at home. We have always felt the need of employment for the band during the long vacation in summer. This year we asked the members to look after coops where chickens were exposed for sale, and, if necessary, offer to fill their dishes with water, to supply the sparrows and other birds with fresh water daily, and to attend to canaries whose cages were hung in the glare of the sun. This plan at once commended itself to all, and at the close of the holidays some 60 reported that they had not once forgotten their promise. Whilst we are very much pleased to be able to state that the aged and infirm are invariably treated with the respect due to them and helped by all in many little ways, we know it will rejoice the hearts of all to hear that kindness and consideration for the dumb creation is growing rapidly.

The total number of acts of kindness for the year is 2,369, and of this number fully two-thirds are connected with animals. Many an interesting story is simply told at our meetings of some real kindness done to some sufferer, not for price nor reward. One small boy found a sick dog, carried it to school, parted with his last copper to buy meat for it, nursed it carefully all day, and finally announced his intention of adopting it because it had become so used to him. This is but one case out of scores.

Our visiting committee has also rendered excellent service. It looks after our own sick members and also attends to sick children through the ward. The of Curfew Bell-Mrs. S. G. E. A correspondent incloses a clipping (taken from we know not what source) which will well bear reprinting:

"Sir William Gull states that in conditions of fatigue it is a mistake to fly to alcohol; much better to drink water or take food. He himself, when faing the wine, and he adds, I have had a very large experience in that for thirteen years. He turther states that a great deal of injury is being done by using alcohol in what is considered very moderate quantities. 'It leads to degeneration of tissues. It spoils the health and it spoils the intellect. I do not think it is known how alcohol acts on the human body, but I know it as a most deleterious poison. A very large number of people in society are dying day by day, poisoned by alcohol, but not supposed to be poisoned by it.' It produces many diseases of the liver, from which arise disordered conditions of the blood, then diseased kidneys, diseased nervous system, or gout, or diseased heart. I hardly know any more potent cause of disease than alcohol.

"If Sir William Gull is right in thinking that a great deal of injury is done by the use of alcohol in what is considered a most moderate quantity, what shall we say of the injury that is done by the 'soaking' use of alcohol, which is involved in taking it between meals, before breakfast, and at all sorts of odd times?"

Manifesto

To the Prohibitionists of the Province of Ontario:

Another step has been taken in the settlement of the question of the jurisdiction of Provincial Legislatures over the liquor traffic. The Supreme Court seems to be equally divided.

It is of the utmost importance that this matter should be speedily settled. The immediate future of our cause in Ontario depends upon the final decision regarding it. The Provincial Legislature cannot be expected to enact laws regarding which their authority is uncertain. Even in reference to the passing of local option bylaws, there is anxiety and uncertainty as to our position.

A deputation from the Alliance executive recently waited upon the Ontario Government and was assured that the Privy Council would be it is hoped that a decision will be arrived at in June of the present year. We shall then know exactly where we stand, and will be in a position either to call upon the Provincial Govern- laid down ment to redeem the pledge given a year ago to prohibit the liquor traffic as far as the courts would warrant them so as to restrict the liquor traffic far within its preset limits. In view of this uncertainty it has been thought wise to defer the annual convention of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance until the decision of the Privy Council. There will then be issued immediately a call for a general convention to which six years ealth has been carried every temperance and prohibitory organization, every church and young people's Christian society will be asked to send delegates, and at which the whole situation will be considered with the full knowedge then in our possession, and we can decide upon a definite policy of immediate aggressive provincial prohibition work,

In the meantime a most important duty is upon us. A general election for the House of Commons will be held before long, and it is imperaigued, eats the raisins instead of takto make that election tell for the advancement of their cause. It is to be regretted that neither of the political parties as such, has taken now pufind panting and slipping the position upon this question which its importance demands, and which the advanced public sentiment of the moment then, with a scream of Dominion would warrant. How Money is Used and Wasted. There was published in the New York Voice of Jan. 10 an interesting and instructive diagram and table showing the annual expenditure of the United States on different articles for different purposes. The contrast between the outlay for foreign missions and that for strong drink is very startling. In explanation of the table the compiler says: The cost of liquors and tobacco at ratail is based upon the internal revenue reports for the fiscal year 1893, and the other items are estimated for the same year. The estimates for foreign missions and church work consisting of the amount raised annually of the oted brakeman, who dodges for all purposes, including ministers' salaries, buildings, repairs, general with suising dextering, leaps on one expenses, etc., are by Rev. H. K. who was in charge of the church statistics in the census of 1890. The estimate for public education is based upon the latest returns of the commissioner of education. The estimates of the cost of potatoes, sugar and molasses, and flour (used for bread) are based upon the reports of the secretary of agriculture for the year 1893. The cost of the annual consumption of meat is estimated from data given by Mulhall in his "Dictionary of Statistics." The estimates of the annual cost of brick, though oken limbs, lodged branches silk, woolen and cotton goods, furniand de trees, follow his descent with ture, boots and shoes, printing and order to secure the nomination of prohibition candidates our friends to proproduct of these industries was added a fair percentage of the retail cost and the difference three years (to 1893) would make in ports or imports of any of the above articles affected their total consumpfind a fore suitable bill of fare, or a tion. Cape Cod Turkeys. Teddy Dean was going to move. He stood on the street saying goodbye to all his playmates.

"Are you glad you are going, Teddy?" asked Arthur Mitchell. "Yes, I guess so," answered Teddy, doubtfully, "if there are some boys down there!" "There are boys everywhere, said

Tommy Dutton, assuringly, "an' there are things nicer than boys down on Cape Cod, too, Did you know that, Teddy?"

"No," said Teddy, "I didn't." "Well there are," said Tommy. "Guess them," he urged.

"Plymouth Rock," said Arthur. "No," said Tommy. "Guess something that comes in November."

"Thanksgiving," said Teddy. "No, it's something that we eat on Thanksgiving."

"Turkeys?" asked Teddy, slowly. "Yes," said Tommy. There's heaps an' heaps of turkeys down on Cape Cod, an' I guess they are the very best ones, although I'm not sure. Mamma went to lunch with Mrs. Bowman, an' she lives on Chestnut street, in that great big house, an' when I asked mamma what she had for dinner, she said, 'Cape Cod turkey, my dear!' "

"Isn't that splendid!" exclaimed Teddy, clapping his hands. "I'm glad as I can be, 'cause my papa is going to

Trink's Chucky.

One day, long, long ago, there was a very happy little girl staying with her grandmother in the country. She had such a long name for such a short, chubby girl that everyone called her "Trink." As Trink's father and mother had gone across the great waters to Europe, she had been left with her grandmother on the farm away back in the country.

In pleasant weather Trink played out of doors all the day long. She had no playmates to help her pass the time away; but the birds in the lovely green-leaved trees, the velvet-coated bees buzzing among the flowers, the grasshoppers and toads, and the funny little squirrels ...ith their bushy little tails were all her friends. I really believe that the bees would rather have almost every other pursuit during the stung one another than harm a hair of century, the science of housekeeping of the time, for tarmers are very busy

One day Uncle Jack went off to Young People hunt, and in the afternoon he came home with something soft and small tucked down in the bottom of his game-bag. "Trinket," said he, "I'll give you three guesses at what I have in my bag." "Oh! oh!" cried Trink, patting the outside of the bag, and finding that it held something very soft. "Do tell me what it is, Uncle Jack. Something for me? What color is it? I'm sure I can't guess."

"Well," said her uncle, "you may have it if you can guess what it is. It's about ten inches long, has black hair on it's back, sort of a chestnut red colored breast, thick, short legs, bushy tail, rather flat head, long whiskers, and looks as if it had no neck at all. Now

Trink laughed. "I never heard of such a funny animal. 'Tisn't a cat, is "Ho!" laughed Uncle Jack. "That would be a funny cat, surely. Two more guesses now.' "A rabbit?" asked Trink.

"Wrong again-one more guess." "I'm sure I don't know," said Trink, wrinkling her brow as she always did when thinking hard. "Do tell me." So Uncle Jack untied his bag, and, opening it, took out something which looked like a muff. "I suppose you'll have to have it, even though you didn't guess. Now look," said he; and Trink, bending over, found it had bright little eyes staring up at her. She was afraid to touch it until Uncle Jack laid it in her arms, saying that it wouldn't bite unless she hurt it."

"Oh, how lovely and soft!" exclaimed Trink. "Why, I never saw anything like it. What is it, Uncle Jack, and where did you find it?"

"It's a young woodchuck," explained her uncle. "I shot his mother in the clover field this morning, and found this little baby trying to get back to his house again. Woodchucks, you know, Trink, dig deep holes in the hills for their houses, slanting them upward so that the water won't run in, and then stay in them all winter, sleeping. When the And tooles to prune the trees, before juired of us in the moment when warm weather comes, they wake and leave their houses to look for food, go-For practice had lent her surprising ing back to them to rest and hide. So Trink gave her new pet as much bread and milk as he would eat, and She failed to effect the desired trans- fixed a basket for him to sleep in. After a few days he became very tame, and Trink taught him many tricks. He would beg just like a dog, sit up on his hind legs, charge, and play hideand-seek by the hour with his little mistress. She would give him vegetables of all kinds, and clover for a treat once in a while; and when autumn came, Chucky had grown to be quite a large animal. It was funny to see Trink running about with That shone on her "company" side all | Chucky under one arm and Blue Kitty under the other, but I dare say they The caller no sooner had hurried away all enjoyed it. Woodchucks always retire to their houses to sleep all winter at that time of the year, and he felt, I ruppose, that he ought to keep up the habits or his forefathers. At night Trink would put him in the stove-oven after the fire had gone out, and it was just warm enough and in the morning he would be as bright as a button. Alas for poor Chucky! One night, before going to bed herself, Trink placed Chucky in the oven and shut | Shon Campbell went to college, the door. Unfortunately for the little animal, cook made a hot fire in the stove early the next morning before Trink was dressed, and never thought of poor Chucky. When he was taken out he was baked too much, and he never came to life again. Trink shed buckets full of tears over his untimely death, but she was comforted after a while by the hope that Uncle Jack would some day find another in his clover-field. To this day (and Trink is grown up now) Uncle Jack has never brought her another woodchuck; and I ought to know, for I used to be Trink .-The Outlook.

The Boston Herald says that while Gen. Butler was in front of Petersburg he received the news that his favorite horse, "Almond Eye," had been accidentally killed by falling into a ravine. Thereupon he ordered an Irish servant to go and skin the animal. "What! Is Almond Eye dead?"

asked Pat. "What's that to you? Do as I bid you, and ask no questions." Pat went about his business, and in an hour or two returned. "Well, Pat, where have you been all this time?" sternly demanded the general.

"Skinning the horse, your honor." "Does it take nearly two hours to perform such an operation?"

"No, yer honor; but then, you see, t tuck bout half an hour to catch him," innocently replied Pat.

Gen. Butler cast upon his servant such a ferocious look that Pat thought he meditated skinning an Irishman in revenge for the death of his horse.

Unselfishness of True Growth. God has placed us here to grow, just as he placed the trees and flowers. The trees and the flowers grow unconciously and by no effort of their own. Man, too, grows unconsciously, and is educated by circumstances. But he can also control those circumstances and direct the course of his life. He can educate himself. He can, by effort and thought, acquire knowledge, become accomplished, refine and purify his nature, develop his powers, strengthen his character. And, because he can do this, he ought to do it. Yet we must add that mere growth is not all. There is something more. "Grow up." "Grow up in all things;" but also "Grow up in all things into him who is our Head, even Christ." This is what Goethe, with all his wisdom, failed to see. This is what makes the apostolic maxim wiser than his. To grow up is an end, but not the final end. That is, since Christ is another name for generous love, cultivate and unfold all powers in order to do good, for the sake of helping, saving, inspiring, guiding, animating, encouraging other souls. In the following story the power of kindness is beautifully illustrated: "Go away from there, you old beggar boy! You've no right to be looking at our flowers," shouted a little fellow from the garden.

The poor boy, who was pale, dirty, and ragged, was leaning against the fence, admiring the splendid show of roses and tulips within. His face reddened with anger at the rude language, and he was about to answer defiantly, when a little girl sprang out from an arbour near, and looking at both, said to her brother: "How could you speak so, Herbert! I'm sure his looking at the flowers don't hurt us." And then, to soothe the wounded feelings of the stranger, she added: "Little boy, I'll pick you some flowers if you'll wait a moment," and she immediately gathered a pretty bouquet, and handed it through the fence. His face brightened with surprise and pleasure, and he earnestly thanked

Twelve years after this occurrence the girl had grown to a woman. One bright afternoon she was walking with her husband in the garden, when she observed a young man in workman's dress leaning over the fence, and looking attentively at her and at the flowers. Turning to her husband she said:

"It does me good to see people admiring the garden; I'll give that young man some of the flowers;" and, approaching him, she said, "Are you fond of flowers, sir? it will give me

The young workman looked a moment into her fair face, and then said, "Twelve years ago I stood here a ragged little beggar boy, and you showed me the same kindness. We are wholly unable to sympathize fully with either China or Japan in the amazing war now raging in the far East; but it is with a feeling of positive pain that we read a letter like the terrible one from the Gulf of Pechili, published in the Times of Wednesday morning, accounting for the defeat of the Chinese. Englishmen seems almost incredible. The safety of the State has been deliberately sacrificed to official greed, no man employed in the departments of supply buying good weapons if buying interior ones would enable him to pocket a larger commission from contractors. Quick-firing guns, for example, were rejected in favor of slowfiring, for this reason alone; millions were spent at Chefoo on useless dedefenses because the Governor there wanted his share of contracts; and finish the defenses in that direction. armament, the soldiers were starved in the way of supplies. Even in the throes of the war itself, with the position of the great officials themselves at stake, the passion for stealing cannot be kept down.

There is no doubt, either, that while thousands of employes in France are marked by exemplary probite, maintained under circumstances of exceptional temptation, there is ground for the public distrust, and for saying that the scene we now see in China might, if degeneracy went only a little further, be seen also in European monarchies and repub. lics. ### The New Woman.

Miss Florence Balgarnie really had an astonishing audience on Sunday afternoon at Westbourne Park Chapel, when she spoke of the "new woman." The combined virtues of Mr. Frederic Harrison, Mr. Graham Wallas, and Mr. Cyril Dodd, O.C., on a previous occasion did not call out one quarter of the audience which came to hear the right. Their treatment of women was a reaction against the licentious period which they succeeded. Even the Eve of Milton's "Paradise Lost" was affected by this reaction. Dr. Clifford, speaking at the close of the address, said that Miss Balgarnie was very hard on Milton. Milton, like other men, took women as he found them from experience, and Milton's experience was "multitudinous."

Man Always a Carver

History does not treat of a time when carving was not apparently well known. Tradition does not appear to approach much nearer to its genesis. Carvings were well executed during the period of man's early occupation on the caves of Europe, and most persons who have tamiliarized themselves with archaeological research know the figures of fish or seal engraved on the canine teeth of large carnivora, and the bear, reindeer, muskox, horse, mammoth and other animals carved on reindeer horn implements or on plates of ivory, the figures of animals being at the time cut fully in the round and found in the lowest strata of the caves, under many feet of cave earth and stalagma, and associated with the bones of a quaternary and, at times, an arctic fauna. The similiarity of the Eskimo production of the present day has given rise to innumerable theories concerning a common origin for both peoples.

Little Mabel Dorety Cured of St. Vitus Dance After Four Physicians Had Ineffectually Treated the Case.

(From the Niagara Falls Review.) In speaking to a friend recently we were asked if we had heard that little Mabel Dorety, the 8-year-old daughter of Mrs. Dorety, Ontario avenue, had been miraculously cured of St. Vitus' dance. We replied in the negative, but stated that we would investigate the case and acertain the facts. Accordingly we visited the home of Mrs. Dorety, when she related the facts as follows: "My little girl has had a miraculous experience. It is about two years and a half since Mabel was stricken with St. Vitus' dance, caused by the weakening effects of la grippe and rheumatism. much of this cave work with much of | Three local physicians were called in, as was also one doctor of considerable reputation from Niagara Fails, N. Y., but in the face of the prescriptions of these physicians and the best of care, Mabel grew rapidly worse. She could not be left alone an instant and was as helpless as an infant, as she had no control of her limbs at all. She could neither walk without assistance nor take food or drink. At this stage one of the attending physicians said, 'Mrs. Dorety, there is no use in my coming here any more. There is nothing that I know of can be done for your little girl.' Well, matters went on that way for a short time with no better results till one day I was sure the poor child was dying. I remembered having seen accounts of St. Vitus' dance cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I determined to try them. I was skeptical as to the effect and only tried them as a last resort, but was soon agreeably surprised at the result. It was not long before they had a good effect and I then felt certain I had found a remedy that could cure my little girl if anything could. In less than three months she was so much better that the dread disease had almost disappeared, and the pills were discontinued. In a few months, however, she showed that the symptoms had not been entirely eradicated from her system, so I had her again commence the use of the Pink Pills. I feel certain that all traces of the awful malady will be swept away, for she goes to school now and we have not the slightest anxiety in leaving

BOYHOOD OF THE FUTURE EMPEROR.

Abrupt and Quarrelsome In Disposition, With No Regard For Neatness of Attire. Lacked the Scholastic Trait-His First Entry Into France.

[Copyright, 1895, by John Clark Ridpath.] II. - BOYHOOD.

Napoleon may be said to have had a threefold life. He was an Italian by descent, a Corsican by variation, and a Frenchman by nationality. He was the last by a close contingency; for Corsica had only become French a few months before his birth. We may here glance briefly at the aspect of the world at the date of his apparition.

The Bourbon monarchy of France was in its hectic heyday-knowing little, and fearing nothing. Its wisest organ was the minister of Foreign Affairs, the great Choiseul. Louis XV. was in the forty-sixth year of his reign. Italy consisted of distracted principalities, over which the papal power still extended its scepter in spectral majesty. Clement XIV. had reached the third month of his pontificate. The Hapsburg Joseph II. was in the fourth year of that imperial rule which had now become a shadow and illusion on the disk of time. Great Britain, gaining rapidly by conquest on foreign shores, had for ruler George III., then in the thirty-first year of his age. In America the rebels of New England had been outlawed by Parliament for their "rash and hasty proceeding" against the tax on tea. Only a few miles from the birthscene in the house of Carlo Buonaparte was stationed a Provencal lieutenant with his regiment of Lorraine, and his name was Mirabeau!

Letitia di Buonaparte was not quite nineteen years of age when her war-god was born. Incidents in the first years of the Napoleonic childhood there are none recorded. We are left to himself and to his schoolmate Bourienne for our knowledge of the earliest characteristics and events of his life.

The Corsican had a prodigious memory, and it reached back well toward his infancy. When in after years he spoke of himself-as he was much given to doing-he generally used exaggeration; but we may not doubt that there was always a vein of sterling truth under-

CARLO BONAPARTE, FATHER OF NAPOLEON. running his dramatic recitals. We know indeed, out of the nature of the case, that his representations of his own child-character were in the main correct.

The young Buonaparte was from a babe abrupt and quarrelsome. His willfulness was extreme. The likelihood is that he never once in his life willingly obeyed anybody! Near his death, at Longwood, he declared that he was never afraid. His child-passion was frequently excited against Joseph, over whom he exercised a censorious sway from the time when they toddled together in the birth-room or fought in the yard. He appears to have loved his mother, and to have obeyed her in a morose and mathematical way; but in his last talk he indicates that his conduct as a child toward the mother was rather prudential than affectionate. He bears witness that the Ramolino lioness was tender in the treatment of him, as well as severe and just.

To their fourth child, Carlo Buonaparte and his wife gave the name of Napoleon. At the first it was Napoleone. In this form the possessor retained it until, flaring up in Paris in the character of a young Jacobin, he threw away the Italian and aristocratic fictions in his name, to become plain, republican

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE. The first teaching of the child Bonaparte was given by his mother. Then he was sent, in his sixth year, to a child's school kept by a woman. He went from the parental threshold in that same arbitrary and belligerent mood which characterized him ever. He fought with his schoolmates, among whom he appeared with no sign of neatness in his a cousin of Letitia, the mother. As for manner.

At this time, beside his parents, he had two important relatives. One of these was Lucien Buonaparte, brother of his grandfather Joseph; and the other was Joseph Fesch, afterwards the Carfinal Fesch, half-brother of his mother. The latter was a studious lad of swelve, who took an interest in his sister's son; and the former had wealth and influence in the island, both of which he was willing to bestow on the Bonaparte schoolboy. Young Fesch aided him with his lessons, and exercised a conservative influence on his temper. How little might it be foreseen that the younger of these twain, with his surly look and long hair and stockings down over his shoes in the dust of the playground, should one day, from an imperial palace in the most splendid city in the world lespatch his elder playmate as ambassador to the Pope of Rome! What were the civil and social influces around the schoolhouse of Bons- of & "-Indianapolis Journal.

parte? The sentiments of that place are among the most potent and enduring forces of life. The child nature imbibes unconsciously the prevailing principles of the hour; and the character is forming while the first hesitant words are conned from the primer. The boy Napoleon had around his schoolroom—as around his cradle-an agitated atmosphere. It was banked with the receding clouds of revolution. There was lightping on the rim, and blood on the The majority of the Corsicans had accepted the French dominations. Some still remembered Genoa with affection; and many sighed for independence. Among the latter were the Buonapartes. The feeling of regret for the lost cause began to wane about the time that Napoleon was sent to school; but there was still in his heart a drop of inherited bitterness on account of the French conquest. He looked back angrily at the terrible conditions surrounding him in his childhood. As late as his twentieth year he broke out in passion. "I was born," said he, "while my country was Him. dying. Thirty thousand French, vomited on our shores, drowning the throne of liberty in waves of blood-such was the horrid sight which first met my view. The cries of the dying, the groans of the oppressed, tears of despair, surrounded my cradle at my birth." The utterance shows how hardly the future emperor of the French himself in youth became a

Frenchman. When, from the sixth to the ninth year of his age, the boy Bonaparte attended school in his native town, three lines radiated before his feet. One of these was dim and clouded, but glorified with patches of extreme light. It was the way into the kingdom of that New Philosophy which was just then revealing itself with such brilliancy in France. A second and well trod way led straightly to the Church. Rome was great and honorable. Her rewards of diligent ambition were rich and certain. The young aspirant who entered the colleges might well expect emolument and reputation. The third path led dangerously to the military life. None might at that time discern the coming upheaval of society, with its concomitant reign of the sword. But the agitations of the epoch were sufficient to encourage war, and to offer a measure of inducement to follow in the path of military glory. The taciturn schoolboy of Ajaccio had these three open ways before him. From the first, he was precluded by the dispositions of his family, intensified in himself. He never had the scholastic trait. His abilities as a pupil, and afterwards as a military cadet, showed noth-Church, he had an inbred admiration for Rome; but the kind of life offered in the priesthood was without attractions priest's surplice offered the slightest attraction to his imagination. The condition of the Buonaparte family about the years 1776-78 was critical. Carlo, the father, had given an interested adhesion to the French. He had his hopes from the annexation. He would keep his titles and recover the properties formerly belonging to the family. The Buonaparte estates in Corsica had been mostly lost. Some had been confiscated by the Genoese party and converted into Jesuit schools. The recent revolution had reduced Carlo's means almost to naught. He was himself of no reputation as an economist. His family had rapidly multiplied. Two children died in infancy between the birth of Napoleon and that of Lucien, in 1775. The family was brought almost to penury.

Carlo de Buonaparte could not get back his properties. The privilege of writing his name with a de did not compensate for his losses. He struggled with adversity, and sought the aid of influential friends. Among these the most available was General Marbouf. The latter in 1776 appealed on behalf of his Corsican friends to the authorities in this do no mighty works, and it is unbe-Paris for the privilege of educating the lief that both keeps sinners under con-Buonaparte boys in France at the expense of the royal treasury. This thing might be done-provided the applicants should be under ten years of age, and be able to show four strains of noble blood in their veins! In the case of the boys Buonaparte, this could not be proved; it seemed as if the vessel must go down and affairs in the homestead went from bad to worse.

At this juncture history, rather than man, came to the rescue. France was on the verge of bankruptcy. One finance minister after another was appointed, and one financial scheme after another answer. Hear Him also thanking the Faexploded in the hands of the inventors. It became necessary to call together, at de Buonaparte was chosen a representative from Corsica. In going to perform his duty at the French capital, he took with him, to be distributed en route, his two sons, Joseph and Napoleon; also, the boys' half uncle, Joseph Fesch; also, clothing, and nothing debonair in his Fesch, he was to be left as a student at Aix. The cousin had been appointed to an office in the church at Autun; and at that place the distracted father determined to drop his two sons at school. This was in the year 1778. The company set out by way of Florence, Genoa, Marseilles, Lyons. The youngest of the company was a sad-faced, big-eyed boy, in such apparel as could be furnished in the house of an impecunious nobleman. The boy's head was bent forward as he walked. His foot now for the first time touched the continent. He was in his tenth year. He muttered broken ejaculations to his companions. It was Napoleon Bonaparte on his way to Autun -and the world.

38. They are now at the grave, or cave, with a stone upon it, and again He groans within Himself. We are reminded of the words in Rom. viii, 23, "Ourselves, also, which have the first fruits of the spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves waiting for the adoption-to wit, the redemption of our body."

39. The stone is between Him and the dead body of His dear friend, and that they can take away. It is ours to take away everything that may be between Jesus and the soul that is dead in sins. No matter who may object, because of the seeming impossibilities of the case, let us get away all the obstacles and bring the sinner face to face with Jesus.

40. The greatest of all hindrances is unbelief. In one place He could because of demnation and keeps saints from entering into rest (John iii, 18; Heb. iii, 19). In spite of feelings or circumstances or all that our eyes can see we must believe God. To the man whose little girl had just died, Jesus said, "Be not afraid, only believe" (Mark v, 36). In the storm at sea, when with all on board, and there was nothing to rest upon but the word of the messenger, Paul said, "I believe God."

41. The stone being taken away, Jesus glorifies His Father by acknowledging Him as the one who was about to work, and He thanks Him beforehand for the ther in Math. xi, 25; Luke x, 21. He ever made it manifest that the words and works Versailles, a council of the nobles. Carlo | were not His, but those of the Father who sent Him. He would have us to believe and make it manifest to all that "it is God who worketh in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure" (Phil. ii, 13). 42. He always pleased the Father; the Father always heard Him, because He sought only the Father's will and glory (John vi, 88; viii, 29, 50). It is our privilege to be well pleasing in His sight, and so to abide in Him that we may ask what we will and receive it (Heb. xiii, 21). 43. The same voice that said in the beginning, "Let there be light;" that spoke to Israel from out of the mist of the fire on the mount; that spoke and it was done, commanded, and it stood fast; that same Voice now cries, "Lazarus, come forth!"

44. The mighty word gave life, and suddenly he that had been dead stood at the mouth of the cave alive and well. What a word it was, what a word it is! There is nothing like it on earth. God is in it. The Bible, the word of God, not only was inspired, but is inspired. It is forever settled in heaven, it is true from the beginning, and it shall stand forever (Ps. exix, 89, 160; Isa. xl, 8).

45. Many will still believe on Jesus when they see real life and liberty in those who bear the name of Jesus, but a mere name to live where there is no real life will never honor Christ nor win people to Him. But as in the context this miracle stirred up the hatred of those who were merely religious without any reality we may be sure that real life will work just that way still.

FOR BOYS ON THE FARM

A DISQUISITION ON SNARING IN THE SNOW.

How to Hunt Birds and Rabbits in the Winter Without Powder and Shot -Jay Birds in the Snow - Blinded Crows-Sparing Br'er Rabbit.

"When I was a boy," remarked Uncle Jack, who found Peter sulking by the sitting room window because his father had forbidden him to borrow Micheal's, the stableman, gun, "I lived in the country too, and used to bag all the game I wanted in snares and traps of my own making."

Peter only grunted.

"Yes," continued his cheerful young ancle, "and I'd venture to say I could start out to-day, set a few good traps under the trees and along the edge of the woodlands and catch more rabbits and birds in twenty-four hours than Michael can shoot in a week with that eld blunderbuss of his."

"And all this snow on the ground; bet

you wouldn't," said discouraged Peter, who was growing interested in spite of himself. "Why this is the perfect trapping season," insisted Mr. Jack Bowles, "with four or five inches of well packed snow over everything, nobody but a few squirrels and chipmunks know where they will get their next square meal, and the majority of these snow-bound animals will venture into the most suspicious looking nooks for the sake of a few crumbs or a bit of meat. Did you never try catching crows and jaybirds in snow pits? They are about the simplest snares I know of and the easiest made."

Peter confessed he felt some curiosity on the question, and his uncle explained that with his thumb he must break through that part of the snow on which a crisp crust has formed, making a neat, round little hole not more than one inch and a quarter deep. Into this sprinkle a few grains of wheat and await developments. If two or three of these holes are made near, or under a tree in which jays collect to scold and quarrel during the afternoon, they will be sure to spy out the little feast, and some of them will feast and some one of them will stick in an inquisitive blue head. All goes well until he attempts to draw back when his proud top knot catches like the barb of a fish hook and the bird is held as firmly as if you had him in your hand.

"Now for the crow a simple sheet of white commercial note paper will do. Roll and paste this in the form of a cone with an opening at the top measuring at least three inches across. All along the inside edge of this opening smear a little bird lime, and this you can buy already prepared at any bird shop, or fill its place by boiling down some linseed oil until it is very thick and sticky. Press the paper cone up to its very edge in the snow and drop a few well cracked grains of corn into the bottom. When the crow thrusts his head in for one luscious mouthful his disgust and surprise are unbounded as he finds he cannot withdraw it, for the paste on the cone holds him as securely as the jaybird's top knot, and only human hands can give him relief.

"Another favorite trick of mine was catching birds with an owl, an old stuffed fellow I possessed and would fasten on the limb of a tree, smearing the branches about him with home-made bird lime. As perhaps you know, it is only during the day, when he is stupid with sleep and blinded by light, that the smaller birds have no fear of an owl, and if they find one recklessly wandered forth from his knot hole retreat, or discover his daylight hiding place, they will gather and punish him soundly for his midnight depredations. My dummy owl never failed to attract a congregation of birds and when once settled on the branches they stuck there until I came to pluck them off.

"However, I always preferred to catch birds in snares or coop traps that I made for myself. An ordinary coop trap set with the figure four triggers and a little meal answers for the small hedge birds and famished little fellows that hop about on the lawn. For quail wire snares are the luckiest and most quickly made. To set up the best of this kind drive the stout stakes, each sbout a foot and a half long, into the earth three or four feet apart. From top to top stretch taut a length of heavy twine. At spaces five inches along this twine fasten a series of slipping nooses made of any flexible wire with the opening of every noose as large as a tea cup saucer. Let them all hang at least a fourth of an inch above the ground and sprinkle about a handful of oats or whole wheat. Such a trap is best up at the edge of a woodland or where the long meadow grass is high above the snow. Here the quail run back and forth in search of food and sometimes a hurrying rabbit will come to grief in the wire net work.

"To snare rabbits though you cannot do better than take lessons of the English poachers who build the cleverest. simplest twitch up snares in the world. A knife, a few thick shingles, some twine and wire are all the materials needed for building one. Select a spot which you suspect the light-footed. Molly cotton tail frequents and drive Gray, deeply into the ground a piece of shingle nearly a foot long, half an inch thick and two inches broad. Insert this about four feet distant from a tough little oak or hickory sapling that is not more than three feet high and from which you must lop all its branches. Now cut in the upright stick, just where the sketch I am making shows a square notch into which will fit the long pointed bait stick, that has an angle notch at one end te correspond with an angle notch in the top of the upright stick. Putting the bait and upright stick together fit into their notches a third bit of stick called the catch piece and then, tying a bit of twine to the top of the sapling bend it over until it leans in the form of an arc and the other end of the twine can be fastened to the catch piece.

"From the same sort of wire as that used in the quail snare make a running noose to hang over the bait end of the long stick and attach this to the twine that holds the sapling. Cut what remains of the shingles in strips and drive these into the ground around the trap, in the form of a pen, on three sticks, and so force master rabbit to take the first nip at the bait only by poking his head through that wire noose. He will be sure to venture and within an instant after his hungry tongue has touched the dainty morsel triggers and springing upright, will hang the poor beast as neatly as a regular gallows. But twine will snap out of place and the sapling, remember whatever else you do never set a snare for any of these animals with your bare hands, wear a pair of clean old gloves and prepare all your triggers, stakes and wires anywhere else but on the ground where you intend to lay your trap, for even a starving rabbit will think twice before venturing in where too ostensible preparation has been made for his coming."
