New York, Feb. 18 .- James H. Hyde, the 29-year-old vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, has formally renounced his control of that $400,000,000 organization. He has consented to sell the stock of the Hyde family to the company at a price to be fixed by a committee of the directors. He has saved his official scalp and will continue as vice-president, but he and his family have lost their grip on the great financial institution, one of the greatest in the world. At a long and acrimonious meeting of the directors this afternoon Mr. Hyde consented to have the Equitable made a mutual organization in fact as well as in name. Hereafter the policy-holders, who number nearly 600,000, Lord Roberts in his article: "The Nineteenth Century, tells us that it would have been impossible fifty years ago to have brought such a campaign as the late war in South Africa to a successful conclusion. These matters, however, must be considered from a standpoint that half a century ago our late enemies, determined as they may have been, would only have mustered a few thousand fighting men, and their weapons would have been much inferior even to the primitive firearms of our troops in those days, An English military critic says that it is all a matter of comparison of the efficiency in war of various nations at different the meager training, the simple tactics, and the clumsy weapons of the British army were at any rate more ago, during the Peninsula, and Waterloo campaigns, and before that, again, in Marlborough's campaigns, 200 years ago, as Dr. Miller Maguire points out in a letter to the Morning Post of the placed the major portion of the blame 31st ult. At any rate, in wars against Centinental foes the "thin red line" generally got the best of the encounter when pitted against their dense, un-wieldy columns, and in those days victory was much more common than defeat for British armies. Since 1866. however, when Prussia opened every one's eyes as to the requirements of modern warfare, it cannot be said that we have kept pace with other great powers in general efficiency, battle training, or armaments. We have always waited for other nations to take the initiative. At the present moment, for instance, we are without modern artillery to oppose the quick-firers of our possible enemies, and altogether the British army is in no sense organized for war according to continental conceptions.

Discussing Lord Roberts' communication from another point of view, the military editor of the Ottawa Citizen

Lord Roberts has raised many important questions in a remarkable article in the Nineteenth Century. What may be called the informing idea of the article is found in its repeated insistence upon the need of higher intelligence in all ranks of the army. Officers and men must be taught to think and act for themselves, there must be the discipline of self-reliance, which is not gained in the rigid methods of the barrack-square. The responsibility thrown upon the officer is greater than at any previous time. When the fighting begins the immediate control of troops passes out of the hands, not only of the general in command, but of the divisional and brigade commanders and everything falls to the captains of companies and section leaders. Regimental officers are handicapped terribly by not having complete control of their men, while the men themselves feel the loss of the immediate support of their comrades. It is, however, upon the officer that the burden of responsibility and anxiety will fall. In him must be the initiative and courage to seize the advantages that may offer themselves. This is thoroughly in line with the Edward Wires Sympathy. how or other keeps in advance of the times in spite of a burden of years that would, put most men on the shelf.

the first year of the war with another defeat. It is now apparent that the attempt of the Russians last week to roll up the Japanese left flank was as complete a failure as former efforts of the Russian commander-in-chief. Incidentally, it developed a quarrel between Kuropatkin and Gripenberg, which culminated in the latter resigning his command, and returning to St. Petersburg. According to his side of the story, a great and decisive victory was within the grasp of the Russians had not Kuropatkin displayed unnecessary timidity, refusing reinforcements at the critical moment, and ordering a retreat which narrowly missed becoming a rout. The train did not leave Aylmer until 11 a.m. on Tuesday, long after the hour it was due in St. Thomas, so that when it reached its destination at 10 p.m. it was just one day and three hours late. About three miles from Aylmer the train became hopelessly stuck in a big drift. The snow was wind, quickly filled in all the space between the wheels and under the cars At this time there were five engines A succession of troubles ensued which, Mr. Reeve says, would have

THE YUKON ELECTION RETURNS

Names of the New Provinces To Be Alberta and Saskatchewan-Notes From the Commons.

Ottawa, Feb. 18. - Telephones and the alleged telephone monopoly was the most interesting subject under dis-ussion in the House today. Mr. F. Maclean, on motion to go nto supply, brought up the matter of Parliament in such large numbers ation day. The returning officer had followed precedent in acting as he did. them without consent of the municipalities. He urged that a general law should be enacted preventing the Bell of municipalities, compelling the company to give conhection with its long companies, and obliging the railway company to give, 'phone connection at their stations to private or municipal elephone lines. The Premier said in regard to the ivasion of Toronto streets by the Bell Company, the city solicitor had promised at a recent interview, to submit an amendment to the law which would prevent the company making further use of the streets without the city's consent, but so far no copy ever, were frozen hard. A farmer, who of the proposed amendment had been sent to him. If it were proposed to invade vested rights the matter of dealing with the Bell Telephone Company ould be a very serious subject for Two sessions ago Par-Parliament liament had enacted in the railway ect a clause securing municipalities in the control of their streets. As to the general law to govern the telephone business in the matter of public service and interchange he agreed that some such law should be demanded in the public interest, and it was the duty of the Government to look into the matter and formulate a policy n regard to it. Mr. Bourassa supported Mr. Mac-lean's velw. He gave an instance of the hardship imposed upon the public in his own country by the Bell Company's monopoly of 'phone connection at C. P. R. stations. There were two private telephone companies having lines running out into the country, but by reason of the monopoly f the bill these lines could not be connected with the station, as a result nerchants and others at a distance ad to phone to the village and communicate from there by message with the station, "and that," said Mr. Bourassa, "although the Bell Company hasn't a phone of its own in the station.

After some further discussion the subject dropped. Mr. Perley brought up the recent militia order in reference to the service of members of militia department teuil, "that no employer in this country can have any of his men belong to the militia without suffering some detriment to his business. But this order," he added, "would produce an impression among employers of labor that would do the militia a lot of harm. He, therefore, suggested before these orders are put in force the minister should consider whether

Sir Frederick Borden replied that the reason that the order was made was that it would be manifestly inconvenient in time of stress, or of war, for instance, for officers of the militia department, who at such a time are more needed in their offices than at any other, to be compelled to go into the field. The Yukon Election.

The Prime Minister laid on the table of the House the communication that assed between Ottawa and the returning officer in the Yukon election. After reading the correspondence Mr. Borden said that there was no explanation of the circumstances that the returning officer postponed till the month of February opening the ballot boxes, whereas the proper time to open them was about the end of December. He hoped the Prime Minister would furnish this information at the earliest possible date. Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that according to the practice of the Yukon the delay was not extraordinary. According to the law there must be a full the petitions which had been sent to month between polling day and declar-

Master at Collegiate, Will Go to Guelph College.

Mr. Samuel B. McCready, science naster in the Collegiate Institute, received a letter from Hon. Nelson Monteith, the new Provincial Minister of Agriculture, yesterday, formally rati-fying his appointment to the faculty of the Guelph College. The appointment was made by the late Liberal Government, wholly on the merits of Mr. McCready, who is recognized as one of the best-equipped science teachers in the Province.

Mr. Monteith's letter was of a very cordial nature, saying that the writer recognized that the late Government had chosen the best man for the position, irrespective of politics, and that it gave him great pleasure to ratify it. Mr. McCready is in Guelph today in connection with his future duties. He will leave this city about the end of the month. Mr. McCready's departure is greatly regretted by all his friends this city, but by none more than the pupils at the institute, who apprecited his worth, and feel that he has left a vacancy that will be hard to

HIGH WIND DOES DAMAGE IN CITY

Causes Break in Power Wire Say They Must Have Assistance For You?" and Demoralizes Street Car Service.

One of the heaviest windstorms of the winter prevailed in the city yesterday. A fierce blow from the west piled the snow onto the street railway tracks in West London and Pottersburg to such an extent that the service on those sections of the system were demoralized for some time. In more than one way did the storm effect the street railway. About half-past 5 a fierce gust of wind broke the power wire on Richmond street. The wire was contracted by the frost, and when the first break occurred it caused t to fall from the hangers between Dundas and York streets. This cut off the belt line circuit in South London, and also affected all other lines south of Dundas street. The construction gang got to work quickly, and had the break repaired shortly after 6 o'clock, but most of the people living in the south end had walked home by that time. In West London at one time two ears were stalled in drifts, and had to be relieved by a gang with shovels. For a time it was impossible to keep the tracks clear to Pottersburg. One large sign over C. McCallum's store came down about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and a man and a woman who were passing had a narrow esca-110 at from injury.

Along the river the storm swept with several heavy iron girders were carried away by the force of the gale. The vind was not extremely cold.

CITY ENGINEER WARNS PUBLIC CITY ABOUT $2,700

Mr. S. B. McCready, Science Against Walking on the Rails No. 3 Committee Met and Awardof the Street Railway Company.

> The city engineer, begs to warn the ublic against the dangerous habit he otices, the practice of walking on the street car track, where the snow is etter removed than from the sidewalks.

> the intense cold, heavy loads on the cars and other reasons, the trolley wire very apt to break at any time, and should it strike any pedestrian on the head or vicinity of the spine it would kill them instantly. Although the dry snow is a non-conluctor, there is more or less ice in the treet car tracks, which makes a good enductor, and hence the danger, If the snow is wet, it also forms a good conductor, and the trolley wire might fall on a person walking on the dry snow, that is along the outside of the track, and not give more than a slight shock; but if he was on the ice in the track, or his foot come in contact with the rail, he would in all probability be

ICEMEN AGAIN WAIT ON COUNCIL

From City or There Will Be No Ice This Summer.

The local ice situation appears to be as complicated now as at the beginning. Today one of the dealers told a reporter that the icemen are cutting no ice on the north branch for their regular summer customers. What is being cut is for the big factories, and warehouses, he says. Diametrically opposite to this statement is that of another iceman, who informs Dr. English that the dealers are making every effort to cut enough ice for the people of London next summer, and that it is being stored in temporary houses on the north branch. It was also announced today that the icemen, accompanied, perhaps, by a number of prominent sympathizers. will wait upon the council Monday night and will again ask for assist-

"If the city doesn't help us, the the people of London will have no ice this season," said the iceman quoted above. "And maybe they will not think so much of the board of health if they are compelled to go down in their pockets for 35 or 40 cents a hundred a fracture of the left hip by falling on for artificial ice, supposing they are the icy sidewalk in front of Morphy's lucky enough to get any.

The surplus on policyholders' account, exclusive of uncalled but subscribed capital, is on the company's standard, $100,490 59. and after deducting paid-up capital, there remains a net surplus over all liabilities and capital, of $50,490 59, an increase of $5,955 26 for the year.

ACTUARY'S REPORT. The valuation of the company's policies has been computed on the same basis as that employed for the previous four years, and assumes for all policies except those issued in the "Ordinary" Branch since Jan. 1, 1900, an interest rate ½ per cent more stringent than that required by the Government standard. The basis of reserves in the "Industrial" Branch is, so far as can be ascertained, higher than that adopted for such business by any other insurance company on this continent. In addition to the reserve liability, special attention should be directed to the item of accumulating profits in order to fully appreciate position of the company, as presented in the statement. For some years past "with-profit" policies of the company have been issued under distri-bution periods of not less than five years, and the usual method would be to the amount of profits accruing on such policies until the distribution periods should be completed. Instead of this, however, all policies are treated as if they were on the annual distribution basis, and the proper proportion of profits due at the end of the profit periods was computed on each pol-The accumulations under icy, and the total is included in the liabilities. this heading form a very considerable item of liability, which, if treated in the usual manner, would result in a largely increased surplus being shown

The rates under which the "Ordinary" policies of the company are now issued came into force on Jan. 1, 1900, and consequently the first profit distributions under these policies are made this year. It is satisfactory to note that these distributions are fully in accordance with the scale of profits issued to our agents five years ago, except that in the case of those policies where a provincial tax is imposed on the premium income of the company, the tax payable on such policies is deducted from the profits otherwise al lotted thereto. The interest earnings of the company having steadily improved since 1900, there is good reason to anticipate that the liberal scale of profits now in force is a conservative estimate and likely to be maintained some time to come. During the past year the policies of this company in force on Dec. 31 1903, were valued by the insurance department at Ottawa, as by law re-The result of this valuation shows that the company held at that date, reserves in excess of what is required by the present standard to the amount of $28,613 in the "Ordinary" branch, and $31,646 in the "Industrial" branch, or a total excess reserve of $60,259.

E. E. REID, B. A., A. I. A.,

Actuary. The president, Mr. John McClary, in moving the adoption of the report

The report of the directors and accompanying financial statement, are, as peretofore, very full, and present the affairs of the company in such man ner as to be readily comprehended. The new business of the year was the largest in the history of the company, and the increase in total insurance in force at the close of the year was likewise favorable. The cash income from premiums and interest shows good increase over the previous year, and payments to policyholders under the various headings also aggregate somewhat more than did the like payments for 1903, though death losses in the "Ordinary" branch were much more favorable than for the year previous.

Reference to the list of assets of the company will show that the funds of the company are invested in securities of undoubted character; and as the average rate of interest realized was 5.64 per cent on the mean invested assets of the year, the investments have proven fairly remunerative as well. The reserve and other liabilities of the company have, as is shown by the eport of the actuary, been taken account of in the most ample manner So much so is this the case as regards the reserve liability in particular, that word of explanation in this connection may be in order. In 1890, the Parliament of Canada passed an act changing the standard of valuation of life insurance policies as regards rate of interest to be employed, from 41/2 per cent to 31/2 per cent, from and after the 1st January, 1900, in respect of all new business issued thereafter; and in respect of the then existing business the companies are given until the 1st January, 1910, to bring the reserve valuations to a 4 per cent basis, and to 1st January, 1915, to come to a 3½ per cent basis, which will thereafter be the rate applicable in like manner as in the ease of new business issued since 1900. In order to comply with these requirements in a proper manner it is necessary to make provisions in the meantime for the extra liabilities that will have to be accounted for at the times above stated. It is a source of no little satisfaction to know that the valuation of all old business of this company is already being made on a 1 per cent basis, and that the company is each year setting aside a further sum towards bringing the valuation to a 31/2 per cent basis at an early date and hence the reason of the reserve liabilities, on the company's standard, being so much in excess of the Government standard, as is indicated in the report of the actuary. The surplus of assets over all liabilities and capital, amounting to $50,-490 59, being ascertained on the very stringent basis indicated in the actuary's report, is all that the term implies and not subject to any deductions whatever, as is so often the case in the make-up of financial statements.

I have much pleasure in moving the adoption of the report, The vice-president, Mr. A. O. Jeffery, K. C., LL. D., D. C. L., in seconding the adoption of the report said:

After the very exhaustive manner in which the president has dealt with the affairs of the company in moving the adoption of the report, no extended remarks in reference thereto would seem to be further called for. I would, however, point out that notwithstanding the very considerable increase in the new business of the year over any previous year of the company, the ratio of expense to income has not been materially increased but stands at 34.7 per cent for both branches, which is practically the same as for the year previous. In order to arrive at the ratio of expense to income respective branches, it is necessary to apportion the total interest income between the "Ordinary" and "Industrial" branches. On basis of the respective funds of the two branches the share of interest apportionable to "Ordinary" branch is $32,629 98 and to the "Industrial" branch $41,591 13. It likewise necessary to apportion the miscellaneous expenditure aggregating $48,444 89, which, on the basis of respective income, would be $16,169 78 for the "Ordinary" and $32,274 81 for the "Industrial," On this basis the ratio of expense to income of the "Ordinary" branch for the past year was 26.3 per cent and of the "Industrial" branch 39.2 per cent, which, having regard to the character and value of the business transacted and the exceptionally good interest earnings of the company, is a very good showing. There is one other point to which I wish to call attention, viz., that the 'Ordinary" claims for the past year amounted to only 81 per cent of the interest received from the investments of that branch, which, considering the age of the company, is very favorable. In the "Industrial" branch the claims exceeded the interest receipts somewhat; but amounted to a little under 23 per cent of the "Industrial" premiums received, and to only 19.5 per cent of the total premium and interest receipts of that branch. With these remarks I beg to second the adoption of the report.

The report was adopted unanimously. A cordial vote of thanks was tendered the agents and other employes of the company for the very satisfactory manner in which they had discharged their several duties during the past year. The election of directors resulted in the re-election of John McClary president; A. O. Jeffery, vice-president; Judge Bell, W. Bowman, W. F. Bullen, Thomas H. Smallman, George C. Gibbons, A. S. Emery and Thomas

A United States Court Decides It To Be Illegal.

San Francisco, Feb. 18. - Superior Court Judge York has decided that Japanese photograph marriages are illegal in the United States. This decision was rendered in habeas corpus proceedings instituted to take a Japanese girl from the custody of the Japanese woman's home. The girl, 15 years old, was sent to this country against her will, she declares. Her parents told her she was to become the bride of a prominent Japanese, to whom she had been married by photograph.

The girl will be returned to Japan. It is alleged that the photograph marriage scheme is used for the purpose of importing Japanese women for immoral purposes.

Annual Banquet of the London Association-Visitors Present.

The London Poultry Fanciers' Association held its annual banquet last evening in the Oriental Hotel. The affair was a complete success, and one of the most enjoyable that has ever been held by the association. Although the weather was uninviting, about forty of the well-known poultry-lovers of the city were present. The chair was taken by President William McNeill, who introduced a long programme of interup to 35 cents, surprising the buyers, esting speeches. "I wish you had done as I said-I don't think much of these 'just as good' grecers anyway-I want the flour that is purified by electricity for I believe it is healthier. However. since we have got this, I suppose we might as well use it," and she had the barrel rolled into the pantry and opened up. "Looks pretty good," she said to herself. "Madam," spoke up the Honest Flour Barrel, "even flour experts can't tell about flour just by looking at it. Any flour, if there is no other flour to compare it with, looks white and nice-but, if you bake it into bread and then bake 'Royal Household' into bread you can see the difference.

"Now, the truth about this flour is, it is made of cheap wheat, in a cheap mill by a cheap process. Flour that is not hightly purified contains a lot of stuff that isn't flour and the process of taking all of it out is expensivethat's why pure flour costs more. "Pure flour is worth all it costs and

HELEN KELLER

The World's Most Remarkable College Graduate

The story of Helen Keller's life is the biography of two wonderful women-the blind, deaf and dumb girl, who for over twenty years has fought against awful odds; and the kind, ingenious and patient teacher who has led her charge into the sunlight of knowledge and of kinship with humanity. In 1886, when Miss Annie Sullivan was called to Tuscumbia, Ala., to assume the care of Helen, the child had been living for nearly five years in the mental darkness that followed her treble affliction resulting from convuisions. The task of education seemed well-nigh hopeless, for the one sense through which the child's mind was to be awakened to consciousness was her sense of touch. But in June, 1904, eighteen years later, Miss Keller graduated from Radcliffe with distinction, and received her degree of B. A.

This fairy tale of education, this romance of the conquest of obstacles, is a superb triumph of concentration. At her entrance examination in June. 1900, as if Nature had not sufficiently handicapped her efforts, she had to submit to two additional trials. The questions were given her in the American Braille system of writing for the blind, with which Miss Keller was only slightly familiar, having learned the English Braille-the two systems being as different as two distinct systems of shorthand. This delay in puzzling out the translation of the questions was further aggravated by the fact that her little Swiss watch with raised figures had unfortunately been left at home, so she had no means of gauging the time, yet her typewriter clicked out the answers and she "passed" with flying colors in every study.

During her college course, in many studies Miss Sullivan repeated the lesson while Helen's fragile fingers feathering their way over her mentor's face, translated the muscular motions of speech into ideas. She studied English, Latin, French, Greek, German, political economy, logic, higher mathematics, chemistry and all the other myriad phases of college wisdom, through her wonderful fingers.

She uses the typewriter in five languages, has learned to speak with lear articulation, can swim, row play care and perform a hundred other seemingly impossible things. Her memory is marvellous, her temperament sunshiny and happy; her mind is wonderfully broad, subtle and thorough, and her book, "The Story of My Life," besides being great as a biography, is the most important work of the century on psychology as a revelation of the human mind, its methods and possibilities. Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1904, by W. C. Mack, at the Department of Agriculture.

Pretty Girl's Net.

Cariou. Story of a Little Miss Who Fled With $2,000 Belonging to Mother.

Paris, Feb. 17 .- Marquis de la Fonenaye has returned to this city from Brussels a pocrer and wiser man, and entirely cured of his desire to marry an heiress. The Marquis left here for Brussels some time ago in search of a girl with money, and was shown to a matrimonial bureau located in a magnificent mansion on Boulevard Bishopsheim, where he was introduced to a was Mlle. Josephine de Courbevole, a wealthy heiress. In his delight at having met with such success the marquis spent $1,000 in presents for the girl and their betrothal followed.

One day, however, while the couple were at dinner in the palatial home he was roughly undeceived by an indignant matron, Mme. Normand, who came in and told him that the supposed Mlle. Josephine de Courbevole was her daughter, Henrietta Normand, and that she had no desire to have the marquis for a son-in-law

The marquis had the girl arrested, and in court it was found that Mlle. Normand was sent to the bank by her mother, who lives at Verviers, to deposit $2,000. Instead of doing this she went to Brussels, where she rented the palatial mansion and with rare business ability she soon had a flourishing matrimonial agency in full blast, Her customers all belonged to the highest society. She soon earned over $7,000 a week. When the marquis called she happened not to have a suitable partner for him, and therefore had maid pose as an aunt and introduce her as Mlle, de Courbevoie, All arrangements had been made for their marriage when Mme. Normand appeared.

On the strength of his bride's fortune the marquis bought a magnificent set sent to his chateau, and for which he had paid with a promissary note for $65, 00. Owing to her youth the girl was let off with a severe reprimand by the judge, and turned over to her mother who promised to give her a good oldfashioned spanking, and the marquis returned to France almost completely crushed. His father, the old marquis insists that he must now go to America in search of a bride.

"When the ter-ritories were established," he added, provision was made for education, and according to that provision the minority, if it so pleases, can have its separate schools. If the Catholics are a minority in any particular localty, and want a school of their own, i permissible, if in another locality Protestants constitute the minority, they, too, can have their schools, This arrangement has existed for sevral years, and there never has been any trouble that I am aware of. FANNIE M. LOTHROP

The Author of Our "Famous People" Series We take pleasure in announcing to our readers that with this issue we begin a series of remarkable, illustrated, biographic sketches of famous people—men and women who are making the history of the times. This series is by Fannie M. Lothrop, the well-known author and the ablest writer in this line in America to-day. For several years she has been a writer and critic on the leading publications of New York and Philadelphia. For this work Mrs. Lothrop has a double fitness; from the literary side her knowledge of the great people of the day and her original way of putting things, and from the artistic side, her close acquaintance with the world's famous people fits her pre-eminently to select the best possible views of her subjects. To her belongs the distinctive honor of possessing the largest collection of portraits in the world, now numbering over 400,000—a treasury of portraiture unapproached by that of any museum or library in existence. The time, patience, concentration of purpose, industry and systematic attention to detail expended in arranging such a collection is remarkable.

"Mrs. Lothrop," says a famous critic, "has unusual ability in presenting the vital elements of a man's character so cleverly, so deftly, and subordinating dates and details, that from her pen we get in a few lines living biographies that show the real man, his qualities and his life, more effectively than in whole pages by other writers. Some artists can give more in a thumbnail sketch than others can present in a panoramic painting."

Mrs. Lothrop passed her girlhood years in Wisconsin, her native State. Her father, I. F. Mack, a New England gentleman of that class we fondly term "the old school," was a lawyer, educator and thinker of rare power and singular clearness of mind. He founded the public schools of Rochester, N. Y., and was identified with all local movements during his residence there, removing thence to Wisconsin, where he became prominent and wealthy by reason of his legal talent. Mrs. Lothrop's mother is a cousin of John Pierpont, the American poet, who was the grandfather of J. Pierpont Morgan.

For two years Mrs. Lothrop was a student of Oberlin College, standing highest in her class, and a graduate of the Normal College of Chicago, where her musical genius early attracted attention. She is brilliant in conversation and well informed on all topics of the day, though not a "new woman" in sense of the word. In the library of her home in New York, filled with the best works of the best thinkers, she does all her literary work.

Government Disavows the Scheme.

London, Feb. 17. - The House of Lords this evening discussed at great length the action of Sir Antony Mac-Donnell (under secretary for the lord lieutenant of Ireland), in insistraven's reform scheme for Ireland. Sir Antony himself was present in the public gallery. The matter came up by Lord Dun-raven calling attention to the Solicitor-General's speech, charging collusion between Sir Antony and the devolutionists. Lord Dunraven said Sir Antony did not originate the scheme and when it was found that the chief secretary for Ireland, Mr. Wyndham, ued any connection with it.

Foreign Secretary Lansdown warm-ly defended the under secretary. He said the Government disavowed any devolution scheme, but did not charge Sir Antony MacDonnell with disloyal ty in approving it. Lord Lansdowne tony's work in an effort to "break down the barrier between Castle and the people." Secretary said it was in this spirit that Sir Antony MacDonnell visited Lord Dunraven and discussed and approved the devolution scheme. Lord Lansdowne added that Sir Antony was mistaken in sanctioning it, but he was too useful an official to be too severely Smuggled Furs.

Wyandotte, Mich., Feb. 17.-A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Gus Baumler, a prominent saloonkeeper, in connection with the rob-bery of about $600 worth of furs from the Bishop Fur Company. A quantity of the stolen furs was found on Wednesday in the possession of a man and wife living in Amherstburg, Ont. The furs had been smuggled across the river on the ice at different times during the winter, and left with the understanding that they were to be sold and the proceeds turned over to Baumler. It is unknown what action if any, will be taken against the Amherstburg people.

An Experienced Bachelor Gives His Opinion of Tweatleth Contury Girl's Haste to Marry.

"Now, please, mother dear, don't reeat that old, crusted proverb about parrying in haste and repenting at eisure. It is true Jack and I have only known each other six weeks; but we love one another so very dearly that we are only happy when together, and you can make both of us happier still by allowing our marriage to take piace in a month's time."

"Mother dear" made a feeble protest against such "hustling" marriage methods, but she was overruled by the pleadings of her daughter. It was a great pity that she was a widow, and consequently without the support and advice of a husband. Friends who ventured to talk of the folly and danger of such a hasty marriage were given to understand that their lectures nd advice were not required, and the wedding ceremony took place a month fter it was first mentioned. The result was what everybody feared would happen. Six months after the wedding the mother came to me and confessed how unhappy her daughter was. She repeated the arguments some of which I have quoted at the beginning of this article-used by her daughter in favor of a speedy riage, and plaintively remarked that child was so unhappy with her hus-ments in each other.

The serene and ideal married life which they had pictured to themselves during their too brief courtship was disturbed, and consequently quarrels followed. Fortunately, quiet talks and discreet suggestions led the wife to see where the faults lay, and caused her to make every effort to try and remedy matters, with the result that their home life is now becoming to try and remedy matters, with the result that their home life is now becoming much smoother and happier.

It is not every hasty marriage which turns out badly, however, which can thus be set right. The "old crusted proverb" back is covered, if not more, at least applies as much to marriages today as it did when it was first written, whenever applies as much to marriages today as it as much as the from, especially did when it was first written, whenever tween the shoulders. t Much Sickness Prevails - The Polar Bears Suffer Most From Dampness--All Well Cared For.

"No conscientious man in charge of zoological park, or of any other collection of dumb animals, can rest easy by his own fireside on a cold winter's night unless he knows that the animals under his charge are sheltered and comfortable.

These words were spoken by the head of one of the biggest zoological parks in America, or, indeed, in the world, when he was asked the other day what precautions were taken to safeguard the health and comfort of the animals during the winter. "Generally speaking, the animals in American zoological parks are well cared for during the cold weather," he "It is the first care of the man in charge. Because it is Economical.

Red Rose Tea is composed of what are known in the trade as "high-grown" Ceylon and Indian teas. These teas are grown at high altitudes on the mountain slopes, where the tea bushes grow more slowly and are more carefully cultivated than in the valleys, where the climate is warm and humid.

High-grown tea is not only a finer quality, but contains much more tea juice or extract than valley-grown

This can be easily proved by comparing a drawing of Red Rose with any other tea. By doing so you will find that a pound of Red Rose Tea will spend as far as 11/2 to 11/2 lbs. of other teas.

His queen, Anne, was both actress and manager in the masques performed at court, the expenses of which often exceeded, indeed were ordered not to be limited to, £1,000, "Excellent comedies" were played before Prince Charles and the Prince Palgrave at Cambridge, and the members of St. John's, Clare, and Trinity acted before the King and in 1615, when the illustrious guests were scattered among the coleges, and twenty-six tuns of wine were consumed within five days! The lawyers alone were offended at the visits of the court to the amateurs at Cambridge, especially when James went thither to see the comedy of "Ignoramus," in which law and lawyers are treated with small measure of respect. When James was prevented from going to Cambridge he was accustomed to send for the whole scholastic company to appear before him, in one of the choicest of their pieces, at Royston. Roving troops were licensed by this play-loving king to follow their vocation in stated places in the country, under certain restrictions for their tarrying and wendi a fortnight's residence in one town being the time limited, with injunction to play "during church hours."

In London at this time a house with £20 ($100) in it was accounted a "good use" at either the Globe or Blackfriars. When the actors at the Globe produced Middleton's "Game at Chess," in which the action is carried on by black and white figures representing the Reformed and the Roman Catholic parties, the play dealing as it did with religious and political differences then vexing the public mind, drew £100 nightly. We know, therefore, that its receipts, being five times more than the average, the play was a huge Sam Mayo, a singer in the English concert halls, is attracting considerable attention over there by a rather unusual achievement he is undertaking. Mayo has signed to appear nightly at nine different halls. He begins at one hall at 6 o'clock and concludes at this same hall at 11 o'clock. Seven other houses are visited in the interim, and during his rounds Mayo sings 24 to 30 songs every evening. He makes his trips from one house to another in a motor car, and has so timed his schedule that there are no hitches or delays in any of his engagements.

BICYCLE BILL, At the London Vaudeville All Next

Peter Francis Dailey, sometimes re-ferred to as a comedian, but held in esteem in familiar circles as the rapidfire jokesmith of his time, and who was seen in London with "The Show Girl" three seasons ago, has again un dertaken the vaudeville cold plunge, preparatory to getting into something bigger. Dailey appeared at Hammerstein's in New York last week, in a sketch entitled "The Inspector." It is the usual nonsensical affair, with Dailey as the prime fun-maker. Ward, it is understood, will go out ahead of his own show, and Vokes will likely form a partnership with Will West, and continue in the line of cemedies the stars have made familiar for the last ten years.

The death is announced in London of Charles Henry Stephenson, in his day an excellent and popular actor. He was the original Father Tom of "The Colleen Bawn" - a character in which he made a great hit - and the last surviving male member of the cast which presented Boucicault's suc-cessful play in the Adelphi Theater in New York nearly 45 years ago. Curiously enough, all the ladies of the cast, Mrs. Boucicault, Mrs. Billington and Mrs. Alfred Mellon (Mill Woolgar) are still alive.

"Nothing is easier," says Ezra Kendall, "than to tell a story. Now, for instance, just suppose yourself traveling on a railway train, no diningcar and the worst kind of eating rations. A Modern Foundry-Open-Hearth Process Converting Pig Iron Into Steel Is Fear-Inspiring.

There are three methods of converting pig iron into steel: The Bessemer process, in which the iron and other necessary ingredients are melted together and then poured into a large iron pot or "converter" and a fierce blast of hot air forced through it, consuming the carbon and leaving comparatively pure steel; the crucible process, in which iron, and scrap steel are fused together in a closed crucible in a charcoal fire (the product of which is the highest grade of steel obtainable), and the open hearth process, which is the one described here.

These furnaces are similar to large brick ovens set on piers 16 feet above the foundy floor. The four are side by side, and a steel platform extends along them, and to the wall of the building 30 feet away. It is from this platform that the furnace men conduct operations; throwing in the materials, and watching the heat through spy-holes in the sliding iron doors. These doors are about three feet square, and when opened up reveal a sight that is too appalling to be beautiful, and which can be seen in no other process but the open hearth-a sea of bubbling, heaving liquid steel, white, glaring, raging with the heat of 4,000 degrees.

Although this heat is no greater than is attained in the Bessemer converter, it appears more evident, more pronounced, more oppressive to the senses There is none of the glittering beauty the scintillating dash and flow of the Bessemer process; not a spark to relieve the mysterious, heaving and quaking sullenness of the fearful pool. It is as if some living creature were beneath its surface, writhing in tortuous struggles to release itself from this concentrated hell.

Just outside the main building stands the gas plant, consisting of the usual retorts and apparatus for baking the coal, making the gas and forcing it through the furnaces.

Returning to the foundry floor we see rows of flasks along the entire length of the building. These are the boxes in which the molds are formed to receive the metal; simply boxes without top or bottom, usually of thick wooden plank-sometimes of iron. They are of all sizes; some so small that a man can easily carry a pair of them: mold for the 30-ton flywheel of some Where nought excels the shaving but— Plucks off the curling honors of thy head. great engine.

The gorgeousness of the gleaming cascade is set in a ring of brilliant scintillation, as myriads of sparks dart over the edge of the ladle, lighting up the great building from end to end, and bringing the brawny workers and ponderous cranes into sharp relief.

And, above the cracking of the merry sparks and the heavy bass of the falling metal, is heard the chattering of the sparrows, hundreds of which have colonized among the uppermost trusses of the great roof and nightly greet the brilliant disturbance with shrill and vehement scoldings.

In five or six minutes the light fades down and the run ceases. The furnace is emptied and ready to be recharged. When the metal is cooled off and the flasks are opened, the castings which the mole was are far from attractive. They are rough, ragged and blackened with many particles of burnt sand which adhere to them. Again the cranes come into use; the castings are hoisted on to cars and shifted to the end of the building, to be chipped and cleaned. For a long time after that the boy sat in front of the fire and thought of the girl. She would go home with his rival, and they would part at the door. The boy's face flushed and his hand clinched as he thought of that parting. Would she— He rose and went to the door and flung it open. Outside the stars were blotted out, the wind raged and the snow swired. He felt as if between him and the girl there was the barrier of an unknown world. He had done his duty, and she had not understood. If she cast him off for that, let her go. He had cared for his sheep!

He went in and lay down in front of the fire, with his greatcoat drawn over him.

"Let her go, let her go!" sang the roaring flame. "Let her go, let her go!" raged the wind outside. Then came the soft consolation from within, "You cared for the sheep, you cared for the sheep. He would sheep the position. Later on this visitor married the young woman, and rose to be a minister of state.

In the morning he broke a path down the mountain. The sun shone and the sky was blue, and the world sparkled him the problem of the fire of the sheep was observed by a visitor who had come to condole. "I did not see her face," he sai

"The presence of lines in the hand may be compared with the grain of wood. If the grain of wood is beautiful that wood becomes known as excellent material; and if the lines in the hand are beautiful that hand is obviously well constituted. Therefore a hand cannot but have lines on it, those which have lines being of a higher order than those which have none. Fine and deep lines mean success; coarse and shallow lines mean failure. Of the three lines on the palm, the uppermost answers to heaven; it connotes sovereign or fa-ther, and determines station in life. The middle line answers to man; it connotes wisdom or folly, and determines poverty or wealth. The lowest line answers to earth; it connetes subject or mother, and determines length of days. If these three lines are well defined and unbroken they are of days. If these three lines are well defined and unbroken they are are well from History," published in the twelfth gury of happiness and wealth. Wertical lines in excess mean a rebellious nature, and calamity; horizontal lines in excess mean a foolish nature and all success. A vertical line running up the finger means that all plans will turn out well; random lines, which cross the creases of the fingers, mean that they will fall. Lines which are fine and resemble tangled silk mean wit and beauty; coarse lines, like the grain of the scrub oak, mean stupidity and a low estate. Lines like scattered filings mean a bitter life; lines like sprinklad as mandrake and butternut, known to gury of happiness and wealth. Werti-rice husks mean a life of joy."

The hand, says the author of "The Divine Art," is used for taking hold and this causes lines to appear on it. If these lines are long the nature will be kindly and generous; if short, mean and whose hand. and grasping. A man whose hand reaches below his knees will top his generation; but one whose hand reaches only to his waist will ever be poor and lowly. A small body and a large hand portend happiness and emolument; a large body and a small hand, purity and poverty.

The Chinese, however, do not confine their investigations to the palm only; they examine carefully the lines on the back of the hand, thus making "cheiromancy" a better term than palmistry. Nor do they omit the nails, each variety of which has its own signification. Tapering nails mean brains; hard and thick nails mean old age; coase, stumpy nails mean duliness of wit; broken and sloughing nails mean disease and ill-health; bright yellow nails mean high rank to come; dark thin nails mean obscurity; bright greenish nails mean loyal-ty and goodness of heart; nails like sheet conner mean nown and glory; pails of a copper mean pomp and glory; nails of a half-moon shape mean health and happi-ness; nails like copper tiles mean skill in arts and crafts; nails like the end of a plank mean stanch sincerity; nails with sharp-pointed tips mean cleverness and refinement, and nails which are rough like stone mean profound stupidity. In conclusion it may be pointed out, in simple justice to the Chinese, that the wonderful system of identification by finger prints, which is forcing the modern burglar to carry on his trade in gloves, was in force in China many centuries be-fore it was heard of in Scotland Yard. Title deeds and other legal instruments Title deeds and other legal instruments are often found to bear, in addition to signatures, the finger prints of the parties concerned; sometimes, indeed, the imprint of the whole hand.

SIGNALS OF DANGER.—Have you lost your appetite? Have you a coated tongue? Have you an unpleasant taste in the mouth? Does your head ache, and have you dizziness? If so, your stomach is out of order and you need medicine. But you do not like medicine. He that prefers sickness to medicine must suffer, but under the circumstances the wise man would procure a box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills and speedily get himself in health, and strive to keep so.

11 1860 Dr. A. W. Chase was a practicing physician in Ann Arbor, Mich., but such was his reputation that he could not confine his practice to Ann Arbor and vicinity or even to the State of Michigan, for people heard of the remarkable cures that were being brought about and wrote for advice and treatment.

It was this demand from people at a distance which led Dr. Chase to put up for public sale a few of the prescriptions which had proven so successful in his private practice, and backed by the integrity of character and honesty of purpose of Dr. Chase, these family medicines soon acquired a reputation for reliability which has won for them the confidence of the best people of the land.

For some years previous, Dr. Chase had made a hobby of collecting, studying and experimenting with receipts and prescriptions, and the result was the publication of Dr. Chase's famous Receipt Book, which has had a world-wide circulation. This work, together with marked natural ability and high technical knowledge as a physician graduated from two of America's leading medical colleges, at Ann Arbor and Cincinnati, gave him undoubted qualifications for the extraordinary success he achieved as a

Take for example Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have become so wellwith the latest troopship practice, with known as a family medicine to be depended on for the cure of liver disorders, kidney lisease and constipation. Here is a letter from a Canadian who obtained treatment neater for sterilizer, etc. A special from Dr. Chase personally in 1867. In accordance with the latest and best mercantile practice in this coun-

Cured by Dr. Chase in 1867.

MR. G. W. Parish, Sturgeon Bay, Ont., writes: "In the year 1867 I was very bad with my kidneys. I could not work on account of my back being lame, sore and painful all the time. Though I carefully followed the directions of our family doctor, he was unable to do me much good. At this time Dr. Chase was becoming known as an especially successful physician, and on the advice of my uncle, Charles Williams, I went to Dr. Chase at Ann Arbor, Michigan, and he gave me a box of his pills for kidney disease.

"You can scarcely imagine how much good they did me. They helped me so much that I went back to the doctor and bought a dozen boxes. In my mind there is not a medicine half so good as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney trouble and headache. We always keep them in the house as a family medicine, and I would not think of using any other."

From the small beginning in Ann Arbor in the sixties the output of Dr. Chase's medicines increased at first slowly, but later by leaps and bounds wherever their merits became known.

While the advertising has been confined solely to Canada and the United States the reputation of these great family medicines spread abroad until it was necessary to establish an office in London for the British Isles, while orders have been received at the Canadian offices from such far away points as Belgium, France, Australia, New Zealand, Dutch West Indies, British Guiana, Nyassaland, Central Africa and Aden, Arabia.

Nothing short of genuine merit can account for such enormous demand for Dr. Chase's Medicines, every one of which was prepared by Dr. Chase on the principle of not merely relieving, but positively curing disease, by removing the cause, and to this principle is due, we believe, their phenomenal success.

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, Ont., and the Dr. A. W. Chase Med. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his

Restricting the inquiry to palmistry only, an attempt will be made to show what the Chinese people have to say

When your child is ill you dislike to make it take bad tasting medicine. Hence it is well to know that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is very pleasant. But it is a medicine, a strong medicine.

Time and time again we have published the formula of this cough medicine in the principal Medical Journals of this country and Europe, and have mailed it to nearly every physician in the United States.

So it follows that when your doctor orders it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, or consumption, he knows precisely what he is giving.

Physicians recommend their families to keep it on hand.
