Preamble of the One Big Union

Modern industrial society is divided into two classes, those who possess and do not produce, and those who produce and do not possess. Alongside this main division all other classifications fade into insignificance. Between these two classes a continual struggle takes place. As with buyers and sellers of any commodity there exists a struggle on the one hand of the buyer to buy as cheaply as possible, and on the other, of the seller to sell for as much as possible, so with the buyers and sellers of labor power. In the struggle over the purchase and sale of labor power the buyers are always masters—the sellers always workers. From this fact arises the inevitable class struggle.

As industry develops and ownership becomes concentrated more and more into fewer hands as the control of the economic forces of society become more and more the sole property of imperialistic finance, it becomes apparent that the workers, in order to sell their labor power with any degree of success, must extend their forms of organization in accordance with changing industrial methods. Compelled to organize for self defense, they are further compelled to educate themselves in preparation for the social change which economic developments will produce whether we seek it or not.

The One Big Union, therefore, seeks to organize the wage worker, not according to craft, but according to industry; according to class and class needs. We, therefore, call upon all workers to organize irrespective of nationality, sex, or craft into a workers' organization, so that we may be enabled to more successfully carry on the everyday fight over wages, hours of work, etc., and prepare ourselves for the day when production for profit shall be replaced by production for use.

Workers of the World Unite.

Holding Meetings

When the meeting is the outcome of a previous meeting, the delegate or camp committee must see that all proper arrangements are made.

If the meeting is called by the delegate, committee or members, be sure and give as much notice as possible so that every one who is interested can have the opportunity to attend. Make all necessary arrangements for the holding of the meeting.

Attend and open the meeting on time.

The delegate, or secretary of camp committee, will open the meeting and call for nominations for Chairman. Any one can nominate and it does not require a seconder.

After calling sufficiently for nominations the temporary chairman declares nominations closed, or someone present moves to that effect, which, being carried, if there is only one nominee, he takes the chair. If more than one is nominated the acting chairman calls for a vote for and against each one, in the order in which they were proposed. If the members desire to have some one for chairman who was nominated second, or later, they must vote against the others as their names are put to the vote, if not, as soon as one nominee has more votes for him than there are against he is declared elected and the others are not voted upon.

As soon as the chairman is elected, he takes the chair, and if there is not some one already elected to act as secretary he calls for nominations and follows the same course as in the election of chairman. Usually the camp delegate, or the secretary of committee, if there is one, will act as secretary of the meeting.

If there has been a previous meeting the minutes of it will be read and a motion made that they be adopted as correct. Before putting the motion any one can challenge the accuracy of the minutes but cannot discuss any action or question in them, the only question before this meeting is, are the minutes correct? If so, then the vote is to adopt them, or if not a true record they can be corrected and then adopted.

In dealing with correspondence, each piece is read; if unimportant it is filed. To save time the Chairman can say, "If there is no objection the communication will be filed."

If the members desire to discuss the contents they should first make a motion recommending some course of action be taken in connection with the matter referred to in the letter, or they move that the letter be received, and this motion must be seconded before the letter can be discussed. After a motion is properly made the Chairman repeats it so that everyone clearly understands what the proposal is; he then asks, "Are you ready for the question?" and it is then open for discussion.

So as to clearly understand the contents of the letter it is quite in order to ask for information concerning the contents, which question can be answered by anyone who can do so. If necessary, an amendment to the motion can be made; also an amendment to the amendment, but these must not be directly opposite to the previous motion. For instance, you cannot move to "do something" and then move as an amendment "that we do not do so." For you could secure the same end as proposed in the amendment by defeating the original motion. Except the mover of a motion, who may speak twice, no one should speak more than once on any question. They should learn to say all they wish simply, clearly, and completely, and not say one thing and then sit down and a moment after get up to say something else which had been forgotten. Certainly no one should speak twice, whilst someone who has not spoken wishes to do so.

If for some reason it is not desired to discuss some piece of correspondence at the time it is read, it can be referred to new business, or some other part of the proceedings, and will then come up for consideration under that heading of business.

Under new business first take up anything referred to this time for a previous order of business unless there is some reason why it should be left till later.

Under Good and Welfare practically any question can be discussed.

When possible, before closing a meeting, fix the time and place of next meeting.

If there is no further business it is moved to adjourn.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

It is not good to allow any motions to be made after the amendment to the amendment, except certain privileged motions which are always in order. Make the speakers stick to the question before the meeting and not talk about other things which the members are not at that time considering.

Do not permit personalities or abusive language.

Always make the speaker address the Chairman and ask any questions through him which it is wished to put to another member.

If a member shows a tendency to monopolize the whole meeting see that he does not do so, and give everyone an equal chance. If necessary, limit the time that any person can speak. No one can speak until the Chairman has recognized him and given him the floor. When more than one gets up at a time the Chairman shall give the floor to the one who first arose and addressed him. A member cannot stand at the same time that someone else is speaking.

Speakers must not be interrupted except by the Chairman on a point of order, or unless someone rises to a point of order, in which case, he says, "I rise to a point of order." The Chairman asks him to state the point of order and he must reply briefly and to the point, showing that the speaker whom he interrupted was not conforming to the proper procedure. He cannot enter into any discussion upon the question before the meeting but must confine himself to the point of order. The Chairman then rules his objection to be either well taken (correct), or not well taken (incorrect). In the former case the original speaker who was interrupted proceeds with his speech, but has to refrain from following the line to which objection was raised, but if the objection was not well taken the speaker follows along with his talk as if the interruption had not taken place.

Any one can appeal from the ruling of the Chairman, in which case someone else takes the chair, the objector states his reason for the appeal, the Chairman gives his reason for his decision. No one else has anything to say on the matter, the acting-Chairman says, "The question is, shall the ruling of the chair be sustained? All in favor say 'aye,' all opposed, 'no.'"

After the vote the original Chairman resumes the chair and the meeting proceeds in conformity with the decision of the meeting as to whether the Chairman's decision was upheld or not.

When a discussion has proceeded for a reasonable time, and it is desired to curtail the discussion, someone can call for the previous question. There can be no further discussion until the motion has been put by the Chairman, who says, "The motion is, 'Shall the main question now be put?'" If the majority vote is in favor of the previous question being put there can be no further debate and the original motion is then voted upon. If, however, the motion for the previous question is defeated, then the discussion can be continued.

The Chairman must be impartial whilst he is in the chair; if he wishes to discuss the question he must vacate the chair and put someone else in his place.

When the Chairman has declared the result of a vote as carried, or lost, any member can call for a show of hands which must then be counted by some other person appointed for the purpose.

No motion shall be debated upon until stated from the chair.

Any member speaking shall rise and respectfully address the chair. He shall confine himself to the question and avoid personalities, and under no circumstances make use of abusive language.

When a question is before the meeting no motion shall be received except, 1—to adjourn; 2—to lie on the table; 3—for previous question; 4—to postpone; 5—to amend. These motions have precedence in the order they stand arranged. The following privileged questions are not debatable: 1—to adjourn; 2—to lie on the table; 3—for the previous question; 4—to read matter pending a question; 5—to reconsider; 6—all questions of order arising after a motion is made.

Instructions to Delegates

Members of any district can pay dues to any Camp Delegate.

When old members pay dues, Delegates must be sure and give the full letters which go with the number of every member, otherwise it may be very difficult to trace his membership record owing to each district office having a different letter to record its members by. Unless this information is given endless confusion will result. Give both ledger and O.B.U. number.

The Delegate will send his report to the office which issued his credentials. If Delegate moves from one district to another he should get new credentials from the office of the district he moves to, giving the number of his old credential so that his previous record can be completed.

The Delegate should draw a receipt when he makes a payment on account of his own dues.

Be sure and place carbon paper between the white and pink receipts, and another between pink and green receipts.

Leave green receipts in book and return the book to your district headquarters when finished.

Ex-service men, or those carrying cards in good standing, are admitted without payment of entrance fee. In such cases write on the receipt, ex-service or union.

Examine books of all members in camp regularly to see they are up-to-date with their dues.

Write plainly. Print the name, thus, J. SMITH.

Spell the name correctly; when in doubt ask the member to write it himself.

Give good notice when you will need more supplies.

When you send in a list of payments which includes any who are coming to town, tell headquarters to hold the receipts in office.

If folders, or receipts, are sent you, of members who have left the camp, return them to headquarters promptly.

If you leave camp turn your supplies over to someone who will act as delegate, and leave written authority for him to collect your mail which may be en route from headquarters.

See that all papers and literature from headquarters are properly distributed.

Members before leaving camp should report to the Camp Delegate.

Don't hesitate to make suggestions for more effective methods of carrying on the organization.

Return cancelled duplicates to office.

Use all receipts in book before commencing another book.

Delegates are entitled to a commission of 50 cents for each new member they sign up.
