The following address was recently deliverered by the Rev. S. D. Waddy, Presideut of the British Wesleyan Conference, at Salford, where he was present to witness the laying of the foundation stone of new Wesleyan schools: He said,-The question of the education of the children of the poor is the question of the day. What shall we do with our rising population, and how shall we overtake the wants of the people, religiously and intellectually, are matters of grave and serious consideration in the minds of statesmen and divines. There have been numerous national education for this country, all of ence to that matter, and therefore the necesattempts made to establish some system of national education for this country, all of matter factor in the fluctuous for the country, all of matter factor in the fluctuous for the country, all of matter factor in the fluctuous for the green striped.—New Brunswicker.

To that scheme all the religious bodies of this country raised very serious and valid objections. It was not their purpose or interest to communicate merely secular knowledge without the privilege and advantage of communicating such moral and religious instruction as they considered to be essentially necessary to the success of even secular knowledge. The next great scheme introduced was the Factory Bill of Sir J. Abundant provision was made in that bill for religious instruction, but it was to be exclusively communicated by the Ministers of, and in accordance with the principles of, the Church of England. It was well known from the beginning that we had been the friends of all, the enemies of none. We have never joined in any raid against the Established Church of this country. John Wesley himself was a clergyman of the Church, and our feelings of respect and friendship for the Establishment and its Ministers have been expressed again and again in our printed documents and public acts. And whilst we would stand between the Church and any rude opposition, so far as we have the power to do so, and would be far from engaging in any such opposition ourselves, we claim for ourselves and people the rights of grant, and it was proposed that the masters, a separate, distinct, and independent church. While we can see much in the Church of England which we can admire very sincerely, we feel convinced that for ourselves and out that the master made the school, and that our own people there is no provision made they had better diminish anything rather by that Establishment which can successfully substitute the greater advantages furnished by our own church. When we look upon the children of our poor, we feel that instruction in connection with the Methodist Church, its doctrines and practice, is more important to be provided for them than even the children of the rich. It is a mere matter of expense to a rich man. If he does longing to their communion. not find a school within a certain distance to suit him, he can at a trifling additional cost send his children a few miles further off, and he can always within a moderate range find a school suited to his wishes, and conducted The Ban upon the Bible in India. upon the principles of the Church to which he conscientiously belongs. Not so, however, with the poor man. He cannot send his children twenty, fifty, or a hundred miles away; and unless a school is provided within a certain distance of his own residence. he is reduced to one of two expedients-he must either deprive his children of the advantages of the education which they so connected with those religious provisions which belong to the Church of which be as been done to inform it both dealing with Russian subordinates: and when much need, or seek for such advantages unsympathy for the children of the rich in this matter, I feel greater sympathy for and with subjects, and wherever the requisite infor- officers in a state of half-mutiny because the children of the poor, because their circumstances do not allow them to seek for themselves at a distance what they are as anxious to secure as are the children of the rich. The expense of such a work is that it will cheapen negroes and enable the majority of the whites at the south to become slave-owners, and so acquire a personal interest in the institution. There is undoubtedly danger to slavery in this concentration of slave property in the hands of the few, and it may be designed by Providence as one of the chief means for the altimate overthrow of the institution. DREADFUL TORNADO - Chicago, June 4 .- A errible tornado swept over Eastern Iowa and Northwestern Illinois, on Sunday night, which has caused more destruction of life and property, especially at Clinton, lowa, than any similar visitation remembered. The towns of Camanche, Iowa, and Albany, Ill, were completely demolished. In the tormer, thirty two dead bodies have already been discovered, and there are still a number under the ruins of the demolished buildings. In Albany, five or six dead bodies have been found, and there are some fifty persons wounded—some seriously. The destruction was equally great in Morrison, Illinois At Lyn den several persons were killed and 15 persons in the vicinity were badly injured. The storm passed two miles north of Amboy, and it is reported that over ten persons were killed there and a number badly injured. The tornado was almost due east. From the Mississippi to Rock River, track of half a mile in width left standing. The total loss of life cannot be less than sixty. The loss on property has, of course, not been ascertained, but must be very large. - Chicago, June 6 - The tornado was more destructive than was at first supposed. It travelled ninety miles in lowa, seventy miles, in Illinois, and extended portions of Missouri and Kentucky. So far as known, over one bundred and fifty persons were killed, and millions of property destroyed. Many towns, villages and bamlets were partially or totally destroyed. So great was the force tha at one instant it lifted a heavily loaded freight train of ten cars and dashed them to pieces.

WATER SPOUT AND TORNADO - Vesterda evening we were visited by a tearful tornado. A singular phenomena was observed in the South east. A black cloud bellying down like a bag let drop from the lower end a long tongue like a water spout, which whirled and swayed as the descriptions say a water spout does. It passed about a mile and a half South of the centre of the city, or just beyond the outskirts, dealing death in its course. All around in the vicinity rails were blown about like feathers, large trees twisted round and broken off, and fences blown such hail stones have very rarely been seen in this region. All were very large, and many of them fully as large as bens' eggs! Luckily they fell very sparsely, or we should have had few window lights and very little fruit left. The track of the tornado was apparently but three or four hundred feet in width, and within it the destruction has no doubt been very great.-In dianapolis Journal, May 30.

It subsequently appeared that these volunteers united in one body, and under the command o Major Ormsby they were mounted and number ed 105 men. This force, on the 12th inst., at 4 P. M., came upon Indians at the bend of the Quichie river. The Indians were in ambush at a narrow pass through which Major Ormsby's party were proceeding, and numbered, it is supnot less than 500, all having fire-arms plenty of ammunition, and 1,500 horses within a convenient distance. They opened fire upon the troops from their safe hiding places; Major Ormsby ordered a charge, but the Indians continued to skulk, firing occasionally from behind the rocks and sage bushes, and doing damage, without suffering much in return. This condition of things continued for some two hours, when the ammunition of Ormsby's party gave out. The Indians seeing this, closed upon our men, pouring in volley after volley, killing many on the spot, and the balance retreated, scattering in all directions over the bills and among the sage bushes. They were pursued twenty five or thirty miles by the mounted Indians, and many detached parties cut off. The survivors came straugling into Virginia City during the two sub-sequent days. The exact number killed is not yet ascertained, but it probably exceeds fifty. Among the siain is Major Ormsby. The Dying Girl. My mother ! oh, my mother, Draw closer still and near, Till you list the glorious minstrels; That's dropping on my ear. Music, rich and rare and soft, Is chaunted at our door, And white-robed angels, fair and bright, Are standing on our floor."

" 'Tie but the rushing wind, my child-The moaning of the breeze; Tis but the wind that's driving wild Against the leafy trees. Oh ! let me chafe your clay-cold hands, And soothe your aching head. My love, it is poor mother stands Beside your weary bed."

"Ob, no! oh, no! 'tis not the rain I hear to night, my mother-Ah! brightest in the angels' train, I see our infant brother : He bid's me say my little prayer, You taught me years ago. Oh, mother, let me see your face, And kiss me 'fore I go."

The mother stooped and kissed her love, Bent, and pressed another— The poor-soul floated far above. And joined its angel brother. -From the German of Uhland.

The Clergyman's Adventure. PRUSSIAN STORY.

On a dreary autumn day in the reign o of Frederick William, a heavy travelling carriage was slowly lumbering slong the muddy road from Potsdam to Bertin. Within it was one person only, who took no heed of the slowness of the travelling; but, leaning back in a corner, was arranging a multiplicity of papers contained in a small portfolio and making notes in a pocket book. Since he was dressed in a plain dark military uniform it was fair to suppose that this gentleman belonged to the Prussian army, but to which grade of it nobody could determine, as all tokens of rank had been avoided. A chilly November evening was closing in, and though the rain had for a time ceased, yet dark masses of clouds flying through the sky gave werning that "weeping" darkness was at hand. The road grew heavier and heavier, at least so it should have seemed to a foot traveller who was ploughing his way through its mire; and so doubtless it did seem to the carriage horses, who floundered along so slowly that the pedestrian whom they had overtaken, kept easily by the side of the coach, the occupant of which, looking out of the window and perceiving the stranger, called out in rather an authoritative tone of "Hallo! young man whither are you bound this stormy looking night?" That is more than I can tell you, no being at home in this part of the world. My wish to to reach Berlin; but if I find a a short pause the stranger said-" If it pleases you to rest on the step of the carriage for a few minutes you are welcome so to do, Herr What's your-name." " My name is Heinrich Meyer" replied the young man, "one of those who wisely never reluses the small benefit because the larger one is not to be obtained." From inside the window the next question put to Heinrich was-What are you going to Berlin for ?" "To hunt for some cousins," was the

"And pray who may they be?" asked the unknown.

"Well, to tell you the truth, I have no an idea who they are, or where to look for them. Indeed, it is more than doubtful whether I have so much as an acquaintance in Berlin, much less a relation."

The questioner, looked amused and astonished and be said --"Surely there must be some other motive for your going to Berlin, or what could have put this idea into your head?"

Why," replied Heinrich," I have just become a clergyman, without the smalles chance of getting anything to do in my own neighborhood. I have no relative to help me, and not quite money enough to find me

"Certainly, with great pleasure," was the prompt reply; and Heinrich, taking a tinder-box out of his wallet, immediately began to strike a light. Now, the evening was damp-so damp that there seemed little enough prospect of the tinder's lighting: moreover, the wind blew the sparks out almost before they fell.

"Well, if your cousins are not more easily to be got at then your light is, I pity you, young sir," was the sole remark to which the stranger condescended, as he watched Heinrich's laborious endeavors.

" Nil desperandum is my motto," answered the young man; and when the words were scarcely uttered the light had been struck. In his delight at succeeding Heinrich jumped up on the carriage step; and leaning through the window, thrust the tinder eagerly in the direction of the gentle man's face. "Hurrs, sir, puff away !"

After a short pause, during which time the stranger had been puffing at his pipe, he removed it from his mouth, and addressed

Roman Eye Balsam, FOR WEAK AND INFLAMED EYES.

OPHTHALMIA, OR INFLAMATION OF the eye, is of two kinds—one proceeding from disease of the Eye, or parts adjusting, and the other from external injuries, such as blows and wounds on the Eyes, exposure to bleak winds, smoke of pit-coal, wood, turi, &c., the long application of a strong light, fixed attention on minute objects, or the introduction of irrita-ting bodies under the eye-lids

This Balsam was used for many years in the private practice of a celebrated Ocurret with the greatest success. In cases where the eye-lids vered with blood, it acts almost like magic, and removes all appearances of inflammation after two or three applications. There is a numerous class of persons that are peculiarly exposed to accidents or diseases that weaken and inflame the Eyes, and perhaps destroy the sight, such as miners, operatives in metals, and other mechanics, who, from the nature of their employ ments, are compelled to work in a cloud of dust and grit. Such should never be without this Balsam.

Where the Eyes have been injured by close application to study, or by too fixed attention on small objects, its use will afford immediate relief. Many cases of partial blindness have been completely cured by it. In this case, "seeing is believing," and persons suffering should seemember that delay in disease of the Eye is always dangerous. from HENRY BROMLEY, Missionary is a constitutional disease, a corruption of the blood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated, weak, and poor. Being in the circulation, it pervades the whole body, and may burst out in disease on any No organ is free from its attacks, nor part of it. No organ is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not destroy. The screfulous taint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, filth and filthy habits, the depressing vices, and, above all, by the venereal infection. Whatter, we be its origin, it is hereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children unto the ever be its origin, it is nercentary in the constitu-tion, descending "from parents to cluidren unto the third and fourth generation;" indeed, it seems to be the rod of Him who says, "I will visit the iniquities of the fathers upon their children." Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of corrupt or ulcerous matter, which, in the lungs, liver, and internal organs, is termed tubercles; in the glands, swellings; and on the surface, eruptions or sores. This foul corruption, which genders in the blood, depresses the energies of life. so that scrofulous constitutions not only suffer from scrofulous complaints, but they have far less power to withstand the attacks of other diseases; sequently, vast numbers perish by disorders which, although not scrofulous in their nature, are still ren-dered fatal by this taint in the system. Most of the consumption which decimates the human family has its origin directly in this scrofulous contamination; and many destructive diseases of the liver, kidneys, brain, and, indeed, of all the organs, arise

Scrofula, or King's Evil.

One quarter of all our people are scrofulous; their persons are invaded by this lurking infection, and their health is undermined by it. To cleanse it from the system we must renovate the blood by an alterative medicine, and invigorate it by healthy food and exercise. Such a medicine wa supply in Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla. the most effectual remedy which the medical skill of our times can devise for this every where pre-vailing and fatal malady. It is combined from the most active remedials that have been discovered for the expurgation of this foul disorder from the blood, and the rescue of the system from its destructive consequences. Hence it should be employed for the cure of not only scrofula, but also those other affections which arise from it, such as ERUPTIVE and SKIN DISEASES, St. ANTHONY'S FIRE, ROSE, OF ERYSIPELAS, PIMPLES, PUSTULES, BLOTCHES, BLAINS and Boils, TUMORS, TETTER and SALE RHEUM, SCALD HEAD, RINGWOLM, RHEUMATISM. Syphilitic and Mercurial Diseases, Droisy, Dyspersia, Debility, and, indeed, all Complaints ARISING FROM VITTATED OR IMPURE BLOOD. The popular belief in "impurity of the blood" is founded truth, for scrofula is a degeraration of the blood. The particular purpose and virtue of this Sarsaparilla is to purify and regenerate this vital fluid, without which sound health is impossible in con-

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF oughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and fo the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease. So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerouse the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate discases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its yintues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the adlicted they can never forget, and produced cures too
