LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

We take the liberty of making extracts from an exceedingly interesting letter which reached us recently, under date of 11th inst. It reveals more of Washington politics and general life than the writer imagined.

" Whether it is because the WESLEYAN comes from the hands of an old friend. or the intrinsic value of the paper, or that we still cherish fond recollections of the Dominion, or all three combined, I know not, only we appreciate it so much that we should miss it sadly if its weekly visits were to end. We perfectly agree on the fact of its being one of the very best we receive:

We are now having about as cold weather as we Washingtonians care to see and feel. The community are enjoying and it is taken advantage of by young and old rich and poor. Not having enough cold weather here to justify a skating rink, we would be at a loss for some suitable place if it were not that our Commissi ner of Public Grounds has commenced improvements in and around the Washington Monument grounds, (which you may remember were sadly in need of improvements) and the first is the formation of two beautiful lakes, one covering an extent of about four acres and the other three acres-which, of course, as s on as frozen over form a capital rink-and being Government property, is of course taken possession of by the people at large Congress again assembled vesterday noon ; we have had quite a lull in our political world for the past three weeks, owing to Congress adjourning over the holidays; but, bless you, this quiet wont last, for they have been gathering strength during the recess, and it is only the calm that precedes the storm. After travelling upwards of three thousand miles we are glad to announce the safe return of Rev. E. R. Young to his circuit and family. The press, in all places which he has visited, took special and eulogistic notices of the missionary services he attended, and of the work the Society is engaged in carrving on. I was surprised to find instances where the missionary Sabbath collegtions were not allowed to be included in the missionary contributions of the circuit but were appropriated to local puroses. MARRIAGE WITH A DECEASED. WIFE'S SISTER.

The vexed question of marriage with deceased wite's sister, which is forbidden by law in Great Britain, bat permitted in most if not all of the ulonies, has called forth a strong letter from the venerable African missionary, Dr. Moffat, addressed to the Secretary of the Marriage Law Reform Association. He says that, having translated the Bible into an African language, he has thoroughly studied every verse, and cannot conceive it possible for Biblical scholars to regard such marriages as forbidden by the Scriptures. He adds that he can hardly persuade himself to believe that his dear Scotch countrymen who are proverbially distinguished for their acquaintance with Scripture, are opposed to such marriages, and is convinced that they they will be compelled to take a leaf out of the Colonial records and acquiesce in the abrogation of so unjust

NEWS FROM THE CIRCUITS.

WEYMOUTH CIRCUIT. DEAR MR. EDITOR,-As circuit news is always acceptable to the columns of the WESLEYAN, I will improve a few leisure moments by noting two or three items from this busy sphere of toil. For some years our ministers have preached at Weymouth Mills, but no so-"cie:y was ever formed. On page 65 of our Discipline, a very sensible question is proposed bearing upon this matter, and a reasonal answer given in the negative. Not having any faith in expending time and labor where we cannot organize a Society, I decided in Oct. last to hold a series of services with a view to this o' ject. The interest soon deepened. Night after night the school house was filled with attentive worshippers. God was pre-eminently present with us. After three weeks seige we closed by baptizing nine of the converta.

and forming a class with sixteen members. Subsequently several of the parents brought their children and dedicated them to (fod in baptism. I shall always have a pleasant remembrance of those services. The people are now talking about build. ing a small church.

"'Tis worth living for this, To administer bliss, And salvation in Jesus's name."

Our church at Plympton is now being finished. For eight or ten years it has been in process of erection. I need not tarry to explain the causes of delay. We hope to have it completed and dedicated in June next. The whole property will be worth abou $2,500, and will improve the appearance of the village very much. In November we had a very successful Sunday school concert in our church at Brighton. Proceeds to liquidate a debt on the organ. The recitations and singing were admirable. I think I never heard children recite with greater accuracy and force. The entire performance reflected the greatest credit upon Miss Annie Mc-Neil, by whom the scholars had been trained. The audience showed its appreciation of her untiring patience and energy by tendering a unanimious vote of thanks.

The ladies of this church and congregation had a Christmas Tree on Christmas eve to help to defrav the expenses of furnishing the parsonage. They were much pleased at the close to find themselves in possession of $70.

On Friday evening last some of the members of this congregation assembled at the parsonage, and after a few hours social intercourse retired, leaving tangible roof of their affection and good will I am trying to persuade this generous people to improve their church property, so that we may have more efficient apparatus to do our work. A little enterprize and self-denial, just now, would help greatly to enlarge and consolidate our cause. There is much that is interesting about the work on this part of the circuit, My predecessor (Bro Robinson) laboured with great zeal and success last year, and most of the converts "continue in well doing'. We brought our Missionary meetings to a close in December. My people had not the pleasure of hearing E. R. Young, in consequence of a stormy night. Having been previously disappointed, I thought it better to "run" the meetings myself than to defer them. I am glad to say say that the receipts are a little more than double those of last year.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

Mr. John Dixon, C.E., the engineer who has undertaken the task of removing from Alexandria and erecting in London the Cleopatra Obelisk, lately gave an interesting lecture at the Unifed Service Institution, on the subject of his arrangements for the conveyance of the stone to England, and the plan he purposes adopting for placing it upon its pedestal, when a suitable site shall have been determined upon. Admiral Sir Erasmus Ommaney presided, In the absence of General Sir James Alexander, and read a communication from that office, detailing his initiatory efforts to secure the removal of the obelisk. Mr. Dixon premised his lecture by observing that, as this was his first opportunity of speaking in public since the accomplishment of the first portion of his task, it was only meet that he should place on record a warm acknowledgement of the kindness and liberality of the Khedive, who had afforded him every facility for carrying on the work to a successful issue, and also of the assistance so readily rendered, first by the Hon. Mr. Vivian, our Consul general in Egypt, and then by signor Demetrio, the owner of the land occupied by the prostrate obelisk. Cleopa. tra's Needle, as it has been termed, was the oldest monument existing which recorded upon its face a history dating from its birth, and as some persons had questioned the utility of taking such pains to possess it, he might, he thought, bring to their recollection a few of the principal dates with which the monolith was associated. Fifteen hundred and fifteen years before Christ, Thothmes III., the greatest 'monarch of his time, caused this stone to be quarried at Syene, some seven hundred miles up the Nile, and erected in the City of On, in celebration of a high festival, and engraved upon it hieroglyphics commemorating the event. Three hundred years later Rameses II., finding no more honorable place in which to inscribe a record of his achievements and virtues, added other lines of characters. Twelve centuries passed, and On meanwhile became the great university of the world. Joseph, and after him Moses, went there to learn and study all the wisdom and science of the ancient Egyptiaus; and after them Euclid, Pythagoras, Plato, and other men illustrious in the annals of ancient history. This brought the period down to the Christian era and the time of Cleopatra, with whose history the name of the obelisk was so intimately associated, and who, no doubt, instigated its removal to the Alexandria site, although she was not fated to witness its erection there For the further history of the obelisk, we were indebted to an inscription discovered on a claw of one of the brass crabs that formerly supported the stone on its pedestal. It of the reign of the Empercr Augustus, truth a work of rare value.

a certain Pontius-supposed by some to is well known and greatly beloved, and have been the grandfather of Pontius deservedly so. He is likely to be rivaled Pilate-to ornament the water gate of Caesar's temple. How the obelisk came to be thrown down was uncertain, but possibly it might have been for the sake I, and many others, too, affiliated the of abstracting the said brass crabs. The obelisk suffered no further vicissitudes until the year 1801, when the French endeavored, during their occupat ion of Egypt, to remove the mass to Paris, but were prevented from carrying out that intention by their defeat at the hands of the British troops. Mr. Dixon then glanced at his own connection with the present effort to realize Mehemet Ali's gift to the nation, and said that some years ago, in conjunction with General Sir James Alexander, whom he had found working in the same field, a plan of transport had been matured, and the preliminaries arranged, and there only remained the sinews of war to be provided. It was at this juncture that Mr. Erasmus Wilson came forward, and if the obelisk was destined to be erected in London, it was to that gentleman that the thanks of the nation were primarily due. Such being the history of the monu-

caused the monument to be erected by

ment, he thought no one could say that the efforts to preserve it from destruction had been misdirected. Passing to the more scientific part of the subject, namely, the engineering appliances adopted in connection with the transport and erection of obelisks, Mr. Dixon says that the Egyptians left no decisive record of their plan ; but in the erection of the St. Peter's obelisk before the Vatican, the Romans employed for a month the united power of fifteen hundred men and one hundred and forty horses. The French method in 1835 was not materially different, although they economised labor better, both consisting in building a timber framework around the obelisk, and hauling it into an upright position. But with the advent of newer and better mechanical appliances, he thought it would not be to the credit of English engineering if he followed a similar plan in the present Mr. Dixon then went on to describe the construction of the vessel built to encase the Cleopatra Needle and the calculations involved, and the incidents of the launch, which have been already made public. He argued that the voyage of the vessel had fully borne out the conclusion formed as to her perfect seaworthiness, and that they were running no risk whatever in trusting the obelisk in such a structure. But for the unfortunate shifting of the ballast in the Bay of Biscay all would have ended well, for the ship remained perfectly sound and water-tight. She was now at Ferrol, in Spain, but they might reasonably hope before long to witness the arrival of the needle in the Thames. -Sc. American. THE English correspondent in the Nashville Advocate, takes up an allusion made by another correspondent to Rev. M. C. Osborn. At the same time he gives two or three interesting particulars from over the sea. He believes M. C. Osborn should be a D. D. Well, perhaps he ought, and perhaps he may. He is an excellent and eloquent preacher, and Connectionally he stands very high-possibly not far from the chair of the Conference. Ministers less deserving may have been D. D.'d. I could name Wesleyan clergymen who have even strongclaims to such recognition if I corer rectly understand what constitutes such on the Atonement I referred in a recent letter, would certainly honor a D. D. from any university, and Joseph Agar Beet would enhance such a diploma if conferred upon him. Your readers possibly never heard of this gentleman's name before, but they will hear of it. He has been only fourteen years in the ministry, but has successfully attempted to explain St. Paul's most difficult epistle, that to the Romans. The volume would do no discredit to any theologian or Biblical scholar. It is unique and original. The London Freeman, a piper that would not, if it could help it, praise anything bearing the stamp of Methodism, says of Mr. Beet's commentary that it is "devout, fresh, related that, during the seventh year and suggestive." It is really and of a ious bosh of Plymouth Brethrenism. Why doesn't Mr. Müller stop saying that he solicits no aid for his institution. No institution in the world is more effectually alvertised. " ALMOST."

Some five years ago I knew a young disciple of the Lord Jesus, who labored zealously for her Master, and won many precious souls. But I have one particular instance to relate :---

She was at school, where she had, by her consistent conduct, won the confidence of all her fellows, and among tian. them she had formed a nightly prayermeeting. On one of these occasions, her little band were singing the hymn, "One more day's work for Jesus," she noticed a girl weeping hitterly. She drew her aside, and found that a brother of the sobbing gtrl was very near to death ; "And," sobbed the sister, " he is so far from the Kingdom that I weep for his soul ; I feel that as he is he will never kneel at 'Jesus' feet." My young friend found that the dying man had heard of Jesus Christ, but kept putting off the day of selvation. till, like many another, he was almost lost. She was for a moment perplexed as to the course to be pursued ; but she commended her way to her Father, feeling sure that he would open up a means whereby she might aid the sinking soul. And at last it was decided that she and the sister should leave early the next morning, and by midday they had reached the end of their sad journey.

quite a contrast to George Müller. He professed to visit the United States and Canada in the interests of his Orphanage, and to seek aid for it. Mr. Müller

disowns all attempts to solicit aid, but just believes and the work is donewhereas, he advertises far more exten sively than Mr. Stephenson. It is bosh, pure and simple-the sanctimon.

Then there is Thomas Bowman Stephenson, who would have been elected into the Legal Hundred at the last Conference if he had been present. He was in Canada looking after the interests of his large family. He presented

You may think this was nothing wonderful to do; but by leaving school in the term Matty lost all chance of the prize which everybody felt was almost hers. Yet she could have lost the best prize ever offered to gain the smile of her Lord.

Matty entered the darkened chamber, and after a few words began to pray. As she prayed she gained eloquence her pleading seemed to gain immediate response, and Christ was truly in the room where, before, nothing but groans and despairing sighs prevailed. "Oh,' said the young disciple, "there is one Physician that can heal all your wounds, who even now will save you and give you new life." "Ah, I neglected him claims. Mr. Randles, to whose work | in my youth, and a short time ago I was almost persuaded, but now it is too late," gasped out the dying man.

Ob, how Matty pleaded for her Master! She showed how that he came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." How that he was tenderness, all mercy to those who should seek him acknowledging their need of him. "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you," "even now," urged Matty, even though you have tarried so long by the way, our Father will let you in." Blessed words to the poor weary soul ! "I see it all now," he murmured with a radiant smile, "He died for me because 1 am almost lost ; I shall not die now, for I feel he has given me everlasting life. Tell them all I have found the Lord Jesus when I had almost given up." And then trying to sing solved. It appears to be the purpose of Providence to gather men more and more into cities and to save them there. City philanthropic and religious effort for the masses of plain and poor men in cities is demanded, and will certainly be honoured of God. So far as my knowledge extends, the most important advances that have been made in America, in reaching the unchurched masses in large towns, have been effected through the Young Men's Christian Associations and city tabernacles.

Five things appear to me to be incontrovertible :

I. That the American Church, as organized under the voluntary system, is not reaching the unchurched masses in our large cities with due effectiveness. 2. That the unchurched masses or unseated parishioners in great towns, have, often in many cities of great Britain and the United States been reached effectively when addressed earnestly in tabernacles and in free halls for evangelistic services by Young Men's Christian Associations, or by the union of churches.

3. That if the American churches can reach the unchurched masses of our cities, they ought to do so; and that to neglect an opportunity, growing wider every year, for the management of the perishing and dangerous populations in a Christion way, is a crime. We have opportunity open in one direction. It does not suit us, or not all of us ; but it is the instrumentality which has thus far been most successful; and, until some more fruitful method of labor offers itself. Providence seems to indicate that tabernacles have a mission.

4. That when the masses who do not attend the churches have been reached through the tabernacles, they are more easily reached through the regular churches.

5. That there ought, therefore, to be no more rivalry between the work of Young Men's Christian Associations and city tabernacles conducted with evangelical and earnest leaders on the one hand and the work of the regular churches on the other, than between the fingers and the palm.-Rev. J. A. Cook.

We are now observing the week of prayer. Had an interesting meeting last evening. I want to make them preparatory to other services. I trust that ere we close Jesus will be exalted in the increased purity of his people and in the salvation of sinners.

Yours, &c., W. H. EVANS.

DON'T GIVE UP.

A gentleman travelling in the northern part of Ireland heard the voices of children, and stopped to lister. Find ing the sound came from a small building used as a school-house, he drew near; as the door was open, he went in and listened to the words the boys were spelling.

One little fellow stood apart, looking very sad. 'Why does that boy stand there?' asked the gentleman.

'Oh, he is good for nothing,' replied the teacher. 'There's nothing in him. I can make nothing of him, He is the most stupid boy in school.'

The gentleman was surprised at this answer. He saw the teacher was so stern and rough that the younger and more timid were nearly crushed. After a few words to them, placing his hand on the head of the little fellow who stood apart, he said. 'One of these days you may be a fine scholar. Don't give up : try; my boy-try.'

The boy's soul aroused. His sleeping mind awoke. A new purpose was formed. From that hour he became a fine scholar. It was Dr. Adam Clarke. The secret of his success is worth knowing : ' Don't give up; but try, my boy-try.-S. S. Visitor.

WESLEYAN.

JAN. 19

THE WESLEYAN. SAPURDAY, JANUARY 19, 1373.

THE PROFESSIONS.

Our plans are well matured toward publishing a series of articles on the various openings presented for young men in the M ritime Provinces. It is our desire to present, from a standpoint of observation and experience, and by representative men whose writings can command both respect and confidence. such a manual as will serve to guide young men who are looking forward to active life. H nce, the articles, after being published in the WESLEYAN, will be bound in one volume, and sold at the cheapest possible rate.

Our systems of free education have awakened a nong our young people a healthful ambition, which, though really a cause of gratitude, may yet lead them to build upon false hopes. The youth who would have been content twenty years ago to toil on upon the farm, or, fuling there, to become a serwant to strangers in some other country, now finds himself qualified by the advantages of our common schools to fill a higher place. He is now exposed to error of two kinds-firstly, to that which meets him in the foolish prejudice against manual occupations, and secondly to the equally fallacious hope that the learned professions afford a sure highway to every young man who qualifies himself by education. There are many favourable and unfavourable conditions connected with the several professions, which outside observers can not detect and, indeed, few inside really understand. Our own conviction is that the professions are, generally, overcrowded; that our surplus young men-those who cannot stoop to mechanical or agricultural in ustry, which really means "stoop to conquer" -should look beyond the Maritime borders toward the great, British, (though Canadian) territory of the Northwest. Industries will soon open yonder requiring many leaders. The training of our young men, at least of a large class, should therefore have a view toward the enterprizes of a new country. Of this conviction, however, the truth or otherwise will be soon clearly seen as wiser writers present facts and figures to the public. It has been exceedingly gratifying to us to find that several gentlemen whom we have approached on this subject, have expressed a warm approval of the plan and a willingness to co-operate in carrying it to a good issue. We are not in a position yet to say at what intervals the articles shall appear, as our desire is to consult primarily the convenience of the writers, with a view of securing for our young men the best possible information and counsel.

WAR NEWS

The following alarming t legram came this week to the associated press :-

NEW YORK, January 14 A London special says that the crisis the East is near at hand. The situation has become greatly complicated within the past few hours. gltaly and Germany have suddenly brought E: gland face to face with a new issue more startling to her people than any event since the be-John had, up to May last-church seatginning of the war.

We presume, however, that there are some two grains of truth in the story, and possibly the correspondent who sent the despatch guaged pretty well the feelings of Germany and Italy towards England, even if these feelings are not expressed openly. Germany is undoubtedly jealous of England's naval power, and no doubt her rulers are foolish enough to entertain the absurd hope that some day or other Germany will be able to meet England on the sea. Italy has recently been making tremendous naval preparations and constructing vessels of a huge size to carry the largest kind of guns. Unfortunately the crack ship of Italy, the Duilo will not float with her armour and armament on board, so that her usefulness as a cruiser and a check to the British navy is likely to be somewhat impaired. We do not know that an enemy of Germany and It aly could hope for a worse thing than that they should send their fleets to the Dardanelles to oppose the English fleet. It would teach these powers a wholesome lesson and take out of them some of that conceit with which they have become so saturated from one or two successful campaigns. Before the Italians undertake to rival England on the sea they would do well to put down brigandage at home, and make it possible for a man to pass through their country without being in danger of having his throat cut. . The Morning News makes this just comment on recent reports of the situation :-The poor Turks are sorely bestead. They have been badly beaten on every side. There is no hope for them save in the mercy of their conquerors. It was from the very first a foregone conclusion that, if left to fight out their quarrel to the bitter end unaided by foreign help, they must at last be utterly crushed. The odds against them now is something tremendous, and they are anxious enough to stop the fighting. But the Russians are evidently desirous of dictating peace from Constantinople. They will feel sorely balked in their career if compelled to stop short of that point, by interference from without. Very active operations are not reported at present. The Turks have bombarded Theodosia, south coast of Crimea, and Anapa, on the Black Sea. Other towns have also been shelled. Two Paschas have left for Kesanlek, to negotiate with Grand Duke Nicholas, who says he has fall powers on the question of conditions of peace. Russia has ordered 42 more torpedo

THE WINTER PORT question has been brought partly to an issue by the report of Mr. G. P. Black, just returned to Halifax from a visit west in the interests of this as a grain-shipping port. There seems to be at length an opportunity to test the advantages of Halifax by the shipment of at least two cargoes of grain. > WE notice the recent death of the Rev. Mr. Annand, a few years ago Pastor of Windsor (Presbyterian), more recently of Halifax. He had been for some years a Pastor in Boston, and seems to have been the victim of some one of the many forms of fever which haunt the crowded cities. Indirectly Mr. Annand was injured by hard work. We say this from what we have known of that good, conscientious, devoted Minister of Christ. He was just another instance of the sword cutting away its scabbard.

Where should economy begin, even if the times are hard and trying? Not with the church paper, surely. Any one who belongs to a Christian church, especially one having a family, ought to have a good religious paper, a paper that will afford an intelligent view of what religion is doing among mankind,

NEWS IN BRIEF.

NOVA SCOTIA.

A little girl, six years of age, daughter of Mr. Edward Spencer, Cow Bay, C. B., was so badly burned on Saturday, 29th ult, by her dress catching fire while she was handling a red hot poker, that she died in eight hours after the accident.

The only paper published more frequently than once a week, outside of Halifax, in Nova Scotia, is the Berwiok "Star," now issued semi-weekiy. The proprietor is to be congratulated on this evidence of prosperity. Four poorly clad and apparently half-starved children have been begging from house to house during the past week. The vourigest-a little boy-had no boots on, and was tramp ing about in his stocking feet. It is said that these children belong to parents who formerly lived near Mill Village and are now residing at Broad River, and that they clothe the childsen in rags, and send the children forth begging.-Liverpool Adv.

DISCOVERY OF AN ANCIENT CITY IN COLORADO.

A Colorado correspondent of the Chicago "Times" reports that a gold seeker who was exploring the San Miguel and Doloros valleys in search of gold last year, discovered on the west bank of the Doloros river the ruins of what had once evidently been a large city. Ancient ruins and fragments of Pottery were scattered in every direction, and the foundation walls of some of the principal buildings were still standing in a good state of preservation. In the centre of the ruins and standing in a clear open space, were the remains of a temple which had evidently been devoted to the worship of the sun. The walls were of hewn stone, and so closely laid together that it was hard to detect a joint. The plaster on the walls inside was still bright and fresh looking. The temple measured three hundred feet in length and one hundred and twenty feet width, and the walls were adorned with rough representations of men and animals, with no persective, while over one of the windows was the rude figure of a dove bearing a twig or branch of some kind, and flying toward a mountain in the distance. The explorer found the ground covered for acres with cut stones and broken crockery-ware, and houses and walls of solid masonry, showing strangers in the city and the small means which had been left them were soon gone. The cold weather came on and the little boy was taken from school to earn what few pennies he could by running on errands for neighbors. But this brought in scarcely enough to buy a loaf of bread every morning. The mother became so downcast with sorrow that she could not leave her bed, and the work of providing for the family was placed entirely in the hands of the two little ones. From a neighbor lady the girl obtained enough worsted and material to make three or four home mottoes, and the lad went from house to house tryingto sell them at 40 cents apiece. He met with small success, as nearly every one at whose door he knocked, seemed angry at his bothering them, and turned him off with an uncharitable word. It became so that he was almost afraid to ask sny one to buy his little frames, and he would go around to the back doors in order to avoid those whom he thought would treat him unkindly. He said that his little sister and himself had eaten no full meal for nearly two days, and he was afraid they would have to die if he did not sell a frame before night. During his narrative, his eyes had become red with weeping and the good lady herself was in tears at his story. After giving him a hearty meal of substantial food, she filled a large basket with needful articles and set out in company with the lad to his home.

She was the angel of mercy to that starving household. Their wants were looked to and provided for, and the good woman will have the lasting gratitude of that little family as long as she lives.

This is but one of a hundred cases of destitution and want that really exist right in the midst of this great city the vast majority of which are never noticed.—Cleaveland Leader.

THE PSALMS OF DAVID.

Among all compositions these alone leserve the name of sagred lyrics. These alone contain a poetry that meets the spiritual nature in all its moods and all its wants, which strengthens virtue marks of skilful workmanship, baving with glorious exhortations, gives anwithstood the ravages of time for unelic eloquence to prayer, and rises to the scraph's joy in praise. In distress and fear, they breathe the low, sad murmur of complaint; in penitence they groan with the agony of the troubled soul. They have a gentle music for the peace of faith; in adoration they ascend to the glory of creation and the majesty of God. For assemblies or for solitude, for all that gladdens and all that grieves, for our heaviness and despair, for our remorse and our redemption, we find in these divine harmonies the loud or the low expression. Great has been their power in the world. They resounded amid the courts of the tabernacle; they floated through the lofty and solemn spaces of the temple. They were sung with glory in the hills of Zion; they were sung with sorrow by the streams of Babel. And when Israel had passed away, the harp of David was still awakened in the Church of Christ. In all the eras and ages of that Church, from the hymn which first was whispered in an upper chamber until its anthems filled the earth, the inspiration of the royal prophet has enraptured its devotions and ennobled its rituals. And that has been not alone in the august cathedral or the rustic chapel. Chorused by the winds of heaven, they have swelled through God's own temple of the sky and stars; they have rolled over the broad desert of Asia in the matins and vespers of ten thousand hermits; the have run through the deep valleys of the Alps in the sobbing voices of the forlorn Waldenses; through the steeps and caves of the Scottish Covenanters; through the woods and caves of primitive America in the heroic hallelujahs of the early pilgrims.-Scottish American.

WOULDN' MARRY A MECHANIC.

A well-dressed and well-behaved young man began visiting a young woman. One evening he called when it was quite late, which led the young girl to enquire where he had been.

"Had to work to night."

"What ! do you work for a living ?" she asked in astonishment. "Certainly," said the young man. "

am a mechanic." "I dislike the name of mechanic."

> and she turned up her pretty nose. That was the last time the young man visited the young lady. He is now a wealthy man and has one of the best of women for his wife.

The lady who did not like the name of mechanic, is now the wife of a miserable fool, a regular vagrant about grogshops, and the proud, verdant, and miserable girl is obliged to take in washing to support he rself and children.

You dislike the name of mechanic. eh ? You whose brothers are but welldressed loafers !

We pity any girl who has so little brains, who is so simple, as to think less of a young man for being a mechanic-one of God's noblemen-belonging to one of the most dignified and honorable classes of God's creatures. Jesus Christ himself was a me chanic. Beware, young lady, how you treat young men who work for a living, for you may one day be a menial to one of them yourself.

Far better discharge the well-fed pauper, with his rings, jewelry, brazen ness and pomposity, and take to your affections the callous-handed, intelligent, industrious mechanic.-Selected.

THE BROOKFIELD HARVEST.

The Rev. Mr. Sawyer, of West Brookfield, Vt., possesses a unique treasure in the person of a small boy. whose inventive powers and devotion to his parents have rarely been parallel. ed. "He is not precisely what you would call a good boy," remarked his ather on one occasion, when his son was led home by the ear by an irate Minister of the Methodist denominaation, and charged with having fastened thirty two distinct cats in the ministers study, but his heart 1s full of love for whatever is just and right. This eulogy was fully merited, for although Master Sawyer was in no respect like the good small boy of literature, he lately did a wise and noble act for which the language of ordinary praise is far too feeble. In northern Vermont that peculiar form of social outrage formerly known as a "surprise party" but of late commonly called a "Bulgarian atrocity," is still lamentably frequent. On a cold evening in the first week of the present month, Mr. Sawyer and his family were seated quietly by their social hearth, enjoying one another's society. The clergyman was reading aloud the bishops' pastoral letter; his wife was busy calculating how to cut up her husband's old overcoat so as to supply him with a new waistcoat, the clergyman and his wife. They spread their cake upon the table, and devouring it without plates, scattered the crumbs over the new carpet. One young man, baving laid a large piece of jelly-cake on the sofa, subsequently sat down on it, and Mrs. Sawyer felt that she would gladly join the Church of Rome on condition that the medieval tortures of the inquisition should be revived. and she herself delegated to ap. ply them to that particular young man After having reduced the furniture to that state of grease that it was no longer safe to sit down, the miscreants gathered around the piano and same "What shall the havest be?" until Mr. Sawyer, mild as he was, regretted that he could not take a saarp scythe and reap an immediate and bloody harvest.

While these blood curdling eutrages were in progress in the parlor, the good small boy kept himself carefully out of the room. He was not, however, wasting his time in idle rage. He, too, heard the melodious inquiries as to the harvest, and remarked to himself that they would find out all about the harvest if they would only wait a few minutes. Meanwhile, he was busily en. gaged in carrying pails of water and emptying them on the front step and along the walk leading from the front door to the gate. The night was cold and the water froze rapidly. Under his admirable management the ice acquired an unusually smooth and slippery character, and when the work was thoroughly done, the small boy retired to the second-story front window and waited for the surprise party to break up.

The moon was at the full, and shone brightly when the first pair of miscreant's-the young man who sat on the jelly-cake and a heavy young lady to whom he was affianced-issued from the front door, and instantly sat down with tremendous emphasis. Close behind them came the rest of the raiders, who with one accord, strewed themselves over the ground, until in some places they were collected three or four deep. The shricks of the ladies and the stronger remarks of the men filles the air. No sooner would a struggling wretch regain his feet than he would sit down again with renewed violence. The affrighted clergymen and his wife gazed with wonder at the appalling spectacle, and the good small boy never ceased to sing, "What shall the harvest be," at the very top of his lungs. It is generally believed that there will never be another surprise party in Brookfield, and it is under contemplation among middle-aged house-holders to present Master Sawver with a service of marbles and life membership in the Foreign Missionary Society, as a testimonial of their gratitude and esteem .- New York Times.

THE PASSWORD.

During the late war a noble band of Christians, called the Christian Commission, at the head of which was Mr. Stuart accompanied the army wherever it went, and, amidst the sick, wounded and dying, did much work for Jesus. Late one night Mr. Stuart had to pass the lines of the two armies, and before starting he asked the colonel of the regiment for the password. 'Chicago' was given him, and away he rode, feeling all safe. At the line a sentry challenged him with the usual 'Who goes there-friend or foe !' 'A friend,' said Mr. Stuart. The sentry presented his rifle and demanded the password. 'Chicago!' was the confident reply. Without moving, the sentry said, 'Mr Stuart, it is my duty to shoot, for you have given the wrong password. Ride back to the headquarters and get the right one, for it would be death for me to give it to you.'

Mr. Stuart turned his horse's head galloped back to the colonel's tent, and rushing in said, 'Colonel, you gave me the password 'Chicago,' and it is wrong.'

'How could I be such a fool?' said the colonel; 'that is the one for yesterday ; to-day's is ' Massachusetts.' I am deeply sorry for the mistake, Mr. Stuart.'

Again he approached the line, and again the challenge met him, 'Who goes there-friend or foe ?' 'A friend.' said Mr. Stuart. "Have you the password ?' 'Massachusetts,' was the reply. At once the rifle was lowered, and the word given, 'Pass.'

As Mr. Stuart rode up to the sentry, numbered centuries. A wall fifty feet thick, apparently several miles in circumference, was visible in many places. In places houses were found completely covered in the earth. In one of these houses the explorer found an opening, and by means of a rope let himself down into what he considered the upper story of a building of enormous size. There were at least a dozen different apartments, some of them very large. The floor was of solid cedar logs, hewed and fitted closely together.

ONLY ONE AMONG MANY.

"Won't you please buy this, missus?" In the cold, biting wind of yesterday, thin-faced, poorly-clad little boy knocked timidly at the door of a Prospect street residence, and thus address ed the lady who came to answer his summons. He held in his hand a little frame enclosing the motto "Home Sweet Home," worked with coloured worsted upon perforated paper. The lady was touched by the pitiful appearance of the lad, and kindly invited him to come in and warm himself before the fire. His face beamed with a look of thankfulness as he sat down rubbing his hands together. His eyes wandered about the apartment as if surprised at the many comforts he saw around him, and then turning to the window, he gazed wistfully out at the falling snow, and appeared suddenly sad and thoughful.

"What are you thinking about, my little boy ?" quietly inquired the lady, who had taken a seat opposite him. "About my mother and little sister." answered he, bursting into tears and quickly drawing the sleeve of his ragged coat across his face, as if to hide his emotion.

After quieting the little fellow, the lady placed her chair close up to his, and putting her arm around him in a motherly way, drew from him his pitiful story.

Drunkenness in the public streets is of very rare occurrence. It is held to be more and more discreditable in social cir. cles. Reform clubs and public opinion are seconding the efforts of the authorities to lessen the evils of the traffic. So thoroughly has the law been enforced, and s) ready have juries been to convict upon necessary evidence, that over 300 violators of the law are now serving out their sentences in jail-sending daily petitions to the governor for pardon, which is invariably

Not one of the family was prepared to receive visitors. Mr. Sawyer had on his dressing gown and slippers; Mrs. Sawyer had let down her back hair to give freedom to her mental processes. and Master Sawyer had temporarily slipped off his trousers to supply his mother with a pattern, while he wrapped the hearth-rug about him. Suddenly, and without the least warning, more than four dozen people of all kinds and sexes, including men, women, reformers and theological students, burst into the room, carrying cake and devastation with them. Master Sawyer fled howling: the clergyman pushed back his spectacles and tried to smile; and his heroic wife, by hurriedly twisting her back hair with both hands, and holding her comb between her teeth, managed to avoid uttering the welcome which the invaders expected, but which her conscience forbade her to express.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

IOHN'S FIRST PARTY.

There was a fire on the broad hearth. and that, with the tallow candles on the mantle piece, made quite an illumination in the room, and enabled the boys who were mostly on one side of the room, to see the girls, who were on the other, quite plainly. How sweet and denure the girls looked, to be sure. Every boy was thinking if his hair was slick, and feeling the full embarrassment of his entrance into fashionable life. It was queer that these children, who were so free everywhere else, should be so constrained now, and not know what to do with themselvcs. The shooting of a spark out upon the carpet was a great relief, and was accompanied by a deal of scrambling to throw it back into the fire, and caused much giggling. It was only gradually that the formality was at all broken, and the young people got together and found their tongues. John at length found himself with Cynthia Rudd, to his great delight and considerable embarrassment, for Cynthia, who was older than John, never looked so pretty. To his surprise, he had nothing to say to her. They had always found plenty to talk about before, but now nothing that he could think of seemed worth saying at a party. "It is a pleasant evening." said John.

"It is quite so," replied Cynthia. "Did you come in a cutter," asked John, anxiously. "No; I walked on the crust, and it was perfectly lovely walking," said Cynthia, in a burst of confidence.

"Was it slipperv ?" continued John. " Not very." John hoped it would be slippery-
