SAUGEEN PRESBYTERY.—The following important business was disposed of at the last meeting of the Saugeen Presbytery. It was agreed to transfer Burns' Church, Rocky Saugeen, from the Saugeen Presbytery to that of Owen Sound with the view of its being united to Latona congregation, and form one pastoral charge under the ministry of Rev. A. McDiarmid. It was also agreed to recommend the Presbytery of Owen Sound to take Williamsford and Berkeley, as these mission stations could be worked more naturally and easily in that Presbytery than in Saugeen. The following were appointed commissioners to the General Assembly:—Rev. Donald Fraser, Rev. John McMillan, Mount Forest; Rev. John Morriston, Cedarville; Rev. John Campbell, Harriston. The elders appointed were Messrs. Kerr, Harriston; Neil, Clifford; Crow, Mount Forest; and McKenzie, Holstein.

ODDFELLOWSHIP.—The Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ontario of I. O. O. F. has published an abstract from the semi-annual returns, from which it appears that the total number of lodges is 184; and that the total number of members installed during the half year ending Dec. 31, 1879, was 1,345; the present membership is 12,286. The number of brethren who received sick benefits during the same period was 1,211; and the widows relieved numbered 184. The total amount of relief paid out was $23,925.82; being an average of $130 per lodge. The receipts of subordinate lodges during the same period amounted to the handsome sum of $103,945.57. From this statement it will be seen that the Independent Order of Oddfellows in Ontario is in a healthy condition. Two lodges of Oddfellows, "Reliance" and "Progress" have long been formed in this city, and are now in a prosperous condition, with a long roll of members in each. Reliance meets every Monday evening, and Progress every Thursday evening. The order of Oddfellowship is extending, and the brethren of the three links are to be found the world over.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT. — The Literary Society in connection with the High School gave an entertainment on Friday afternoon. There were several visitors present, and judging from their countenances in leaving, they were not at all disappointed. The programme consisted of music and readings. The piano solos given by Miss Knowles and Miss Grant were well rendered, and spoke well for the musical abilities of those ladies. Mr. Harrington's reading, "The one horse shay," was very well read. In fact all seemed surprised at that gentleman's elocutionary powers. That very difficult poem of Tennyson's "The Charge of the Light Brigade," was read by Mr. Argo in splendid style. He entered fully into the spirit of his piece, and his reading was pronounced worthy of many first-class readers. All were enchanted with the pleading tones of Mr. McConnell in "Carry me back to Tennessee." That good old song was sung in first-class style. The "Auld Scots Sangs," sung by Mr. Strachan completed the programme, and all joined in singing "God save the Queen." The next entertainment will be given on Friday, April 2nd.

Osler, Q. C., and Mr. Gwyn for defendants. Motion for an injunction to restrain collection of tolls. Adjourned for a week.

THE ICE HARVEST.—Ralph Smith with a gang of men is still cutting ice at Rockwood, to be used in Guelph next summer. The ice varies from fourteen to sixteen inches in thickness. He has secured about 2,000 tons. A Stratford firm who had a number of men cutting ice at Rockwood have taken out about 3,000 tons which will be shipped for use in Stratford.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—This being "Holy week," as the week before Easter is called, there will be daily service at four o'clock each afternoon in this Church, save on Good Friday, when the services will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on that day. There will also be a special baptismal service at 3 p. m. There will also be service at 7:30 on Wednesday evening.

ARTILLERY BAND.—This Band, assisted by some outside vocalists, under the direction of Prof. Philp, will give a concert in the City Hall on the evening of Good Friday. The Band has been preparing some high class selections for the occasion, and with the assistance of the talent outside the band will give a concert well worth attending. Additional particulars about the affair will be given before Friday.

CROSSING THE LINE.—Old Sol crossed the line of the equator yesterday, according to the almanac authority, and now spring will soon be in order, but there may be unsettled weather for a week or so. The monstrous snow storms prophesied by the weather wise all the past winter do not appear to have made it convenient so far to come this way, and it is hardly likely that any will come now. It may not be out of place to note that about the 11th of April, 1872, a snow storm visited this neighborhood that blocked railway trains for two days.

At Anderson's sale to-night will be sold ready-made coats, vests, socks, shirts, &c.

The Government Banking Scheme.

The representatives of the banks held another meeting on Friday in Ottawa, at which they discussed the leading features of the Government's prospective legislation regarding currency and the renewal of the expiring bank charters. Resolutions expressing the views of the delegation were drawn up and concurred in. An interview which lasted nearly two hours was held with the Finance Minister, and point by point of the Government's propositions were considered and discussed. Ultimately, by both sides yielding somewhat in their demands, terms were agreed upon which were satisfactory to the bank delegates. Although the meeting was private, yet the corridor rumours appear to convey a very fair conception of what occurred. Sir Leonard wished to establish a bank of issue, but that proposition was abandoned in toto. He also desired to adopt the American system of basing the bank circulation on the quantity of Government bonds held by these monetary institutions. That desire was abandoned as far as the existing banks are concerned, but the principle will be applied to all banking corporations constituted after the enactment of the Government's measure. The banks have agreed to relinquish their right to issue $4 bills and all bills below $5. In future the bill holders will be secured by having a first lien on the bank's assets instead of the issue of bills being based upon bonds. It is understood that the delegation will have another interview with Sir Leonard Tilley on Friday morning, when the whole scheme will be considered in detail.

THE CHALMERS CENTENARY.—On March 3rd, the centenary of the Rev. Dr. Chalmers was celebrated by a crowded meeting in the Free Church Assembly Hall, Edinburgh, under the presidency of the Moderator of the Assembly, the Rev. J. Chalmers Burns, M. A. Letters of apology were read from Mr. Gladstone, the Duke of Argyll, Lord Shaftesbury, Lord Polwarth, and others. The resolutions adopted, which expressed thankfulness to God for the eminent service to the cause of Christian truth rendered by Doctor Chalmers both as a minister of the Church and as a professor in the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews, were spoken to by Lord Moncrieff, Principal Cairns, Professor Rainy, Lord Provost Collins, Sir Henry Moncrieff, Dr. Bonar and Mr. Taylor Innes.

Mr. Reid was for over 20 years Township Treasurer of Stanley.

A letter was received on Thursday by the last English mail from Mr. W. H. Adams, Ottawa's sleepless man. MANUFACTORIES FOR WALKERTON.—Last week a public meeting was held at Walkerton, to decide the best means of establishing manufactories in that town. A number of resolutions were passed offering exemption from taxation to new manufactories, also bonuses to those employing a certain number of hands. A committee was finally appointed to work up the matter and confer with the town as the taking of such steps as will secure the establishment of certain manufactories in Walkerton.

CURLIANA.

The Toronto Club Again.

The Orillia Times says:—"The Toronto curlers are distinguishing themselves. The Lindsay Post has successfully fastened upon them a piece of sharp practice in a match against the curlers of that town at the time of the Peterboro' bonspiel, and now the same gentlemen are in trouble with the Guelph players, with the odds in favour of their being in the wrong once more. In 1877 they carried off the Ontario tankard by virtue of their score being the only one returned in time; this year Orillia was in the same position, but some busybodies in Toronto took it upon themselves to extend the time. What is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander, you see. By the way, will Mr. Walker kindly publish the minutes of the meeting that assumed the right to over-ride the Rules and Regulations governing these contests? We are curious to know who were at it."

So are we. Perhaps a special clause was passed at that hole and corner meeting bearing on the Guelph case. It is becoming patent to more clubs than that of Guelph that Toronto holds, and has held, a monopoly in the administration of the affairs of the Branch of the Royal Caledonian club. Nearly all the officers are from Toronto and Messrs. D. Walker and J. S. Russell of the "Toronto Club"—who protested the medal with Guelph—stand as proxies for a large number of clubs, perhaps 20 more or less. The "Toronto Club" therefore can afford to enter protests against matches, provided they are not settled by arbitration and brought before the annual meeting. The difference arising between the Guelph club and the Toronto club is simply this, as appeared from telegrams bearing on the case read at a recent meeting of the Guelph club:—It was arranged between the two clubs that four rinks a side should be played in Brampton, and Mr. James Flemming of that place was chosen umpire. On the day previous for the match to take place (it had been postponed twice, mostly on account of Toronto) telegrams passed between the clubs all day. One of them stated that the Toronto club would be able to play four rinks in Toronto but on account of sickness, and that some of the men could not be absent for the day, they would only be able to play three rinks in Brampton. A meeting of the Guelph curlers was held, and a desire was unanimously expressed to go Toronto, but as the matter had long since been placed in the umpire's hands, it was considered that the Guelph club had no right to interfere in the matter and left the decision in the hands of the umpire. The Guelph club appeared on the Brampton ice—which had been in preparation for the match several days previous—at the stated time, and the Toronto club not putting in an appearance Guelph was awarded the medal.

The MERCURY and Herald rinks were to play a game on Saturday night, but on account of the Herald skip having to preside at the Association for the promotion of matrimony, the matron being badly "smitten," the match was postponed till Tuesday evening, weather permitting.

Mr. Philp's Proposed Removal.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—You are, no doubt, aware that Port Hope is trying very hard and holding out great inducements to secure the services of our present bandmaster. If I am correctly informed Mr. Philp held the position of bandmaster for fifteen consecutive years in that town, the position of organist in St. John's Church for eleven years, and was music master in the College for a number of years. That Mr. Philp gave very great satisfaction is evidenced by the intense anxiety displayed by the Port Hope people in trying to get him back again. The present Artillery Brigade Band is the best organization of the kind that Guelph has ever had, and I doubt if there is a better equipped or a finer body of men in any band in this Dominion. Now, what are the people of Guelph going to do about it?

Yours truly,
AMICUS.

Guelph, March 22, 1880.

THE FAMINE IN MAYO.—Redpath, the special correspondent of the Tribune, reports the result of his personal investigation in Mayo, and confirms the worst accounts. Charity alone prevents a famine equal to that of 1847. The entire population in many localities have no food excepting an allowance of Indian meal from the Relief Committees. No work is to be had, and potatoes intended for seed have everywhere been eaten. The funds already collected will enable the Committee to avert starvation until May. Then the gravest results may be expected should the contributions cease. The Government measures are inadequate to the emergency. If outdoor relief were granted by Boards of Guardians persons who are now able to support themselves would be pauperized by extra taxation.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY CRUSHED.—A dispatch from Peterboro', says: A few weeks ago the wife of Mr. J. Spencer, of Burleigh, blessed the happy husband with triplets. Heretofore it has been the custom to ask and receive the Queen's bounty of £3 sterling for the benefit of the fortunate, or unfortunate, person accomplishing so much maternity at one accouchement. The usual application was made on behalf of Mrs. Spencer, and a reply was received from Hon. Mr. Langevin to the effect that such cases in the colonies do not come within the Queen's rule on the subject, which is to give a small donation to poor people of good character on the occasion of triple births, where the children survive, the money being given to assist the parents in providing food and clothing immediately after the birth of the children. Could not the Governor-General show his appreciation of such cases?

At Anderson's sale to-night will be sold tweeds, men's shirts, shirtings, &c.

The Committee on Manufactures.

Since our article on this subject appeared on Saturday, we learn that the Committee appointed by the Council had a meeting on Friday night, and that they have prepared a report which will be submitted to the Council at a special meeting, to be held to-morrow night, mainly for the purpose of considering this report. We are glad to learn that the Council Committee are in favour of co-operating with the Committee appointed by the Property Owners' Association, and we hope that good results may follow their deliberations.

Toronto Grey and Bruce Railway.

We have already given a report of the meeting held in Orangeville on Friday last, at which were present representatives from every section of the country through which this road runs, and which it in any way affects in a commercial point of view. The object of the meeting was one of a most serious nature, not only as affecting the road, but also the interests of the municipalities through which it runs, and which made such liberal grants to aid in its construction. The Orangeville meeting was called in consequence of the action of the bondholders, who held a meeting in Toronto on the 9th inst., to consider what steps it was advisable to take since the government had resolved to give no immediate aid to railways. After the views of the Directors had been fully presented to the Board, and the matter thoroughly discussed, three resolutions were carried, which in effect were that a proposal having been made by the Directors for the changing of the gauge and the reconstruction of the railway without immediate assistance from the Government of Ontario, said proposal securing to the municipalities the same advantages as were formerly offered to them, but entailing greater expense upon the bondholders; and having been requested by the Company not to immediately take possession of the railway, but to allow the Company time to appeal to the municipalities to ascertain whether they will agree to grant the necessary bonuses required from them under the new scheme, they agreed that three months be allowed the Directors, in which to test the feeling of the municipalities as to giving aid for widening the gauge; and that at the urgent request of Directors the bondholders agree to postpone action as to closing the road until the first of June, at which time, if no arrangement has been completed, financial difficulties will then compel them to close it, as no income is now being derived by them from the road.

The proposition made by the Directors at the Orangeville meeting was to reduce the total expenditure to $661,000 of which $400,000 would be asked from the municipalities by way of bonus, leaving the balance to be provided by the bondholders, who had consented to the placing of $200,000 of postal bonds in part of their debentures. The scheme contemplated the widening of the track from Toronto to Owen Sound. It was also intimated that if the assistance asked for were not granted, and the road was given over to the bondholders, it would be sold or closed, which would be a serious blow to the business of the district.

Such is the position of the Company and the road at the present time. Its construction at the time, and on the narrow gauge principle, was a great mistake. But it was due to the ambition and all controlling spirit of the business men of Toronto, led by Mr. George Laidlaw, who had nothing to lose but everything to gain by the enterprise. It would have collapsed before this but for the bonusing and bolstering up of the Government. And now when this last desperate shift fails, we are threatened with a complete collapse of the whole concern, the bond holders taking possession of the property. In this crisis the municipalities are asked to raise $400,000 to widen the gauge and re-equip the road. We doubt very much if they will do it. They have been bled pretty freely already, and we question very much—even if the gauge was changed to-morrow—if the road for many years to come, would pay more than running expenses. However, the question is now before the municipalities interested, and it will be for them to say whether they will risk any more money in the enterprise. Even if it comes to the worst and the bondholders get hold of the road, the municipalities will not be worse off, for the bondholders would be sure to run the road in their own interest, and it would thereby meet the requirements of the people along the line as well as it does now.

THE Tories are very desirous of appointing as many young men to the Senate as possible in order to lessen the chances of the Liberals on their inevitable accession to power, having many appointments to that body within their control. On Friday Sir Alex. Campbell gave a notice of motion that within ten days after the re-assembling of the Upper House on the 30th inst., every Senator must subscribe again to the declaration regarding the property qualification. The object of the motion is to unseat several members of that body whose financial affairs have within the past few years unfortunately became embarrassed. The opposition to the motion was so intense that he thought it wise to withdraw it.

THE popular Chamber in Prince Edward Island has passed a Bill to abolish the Legislative Council by a vote of 22 to 3. Will the abolition of the Senate come next?

ALL sorts of stories are current about the troubles in the Quebec Government, but though there is nothing definite there is no doubt that matters are in a very bad way.

THE Liberals in Chateauguay have been circulating a requisition which they intend to present to the son of their deceased representative, and it is considered certain that Mr. Edward Holton will accept the invitation.

IT is said the Government, before the repeal of the Insolvency Law is assented to by the Governor-General, will bring pressure to bear upon the official assignees, a large proportion of whom are in default of the requirements of the law. By all means let those defaulting gentlemen be brought to time.

UNDER the heading "Don't Come," the Winnipeg Times gives advice to young men looking for soft jobs not to seek them in Manitoba. The advice is timely. Mechanics of a certain kind, laborers and farm hands no doubt can do well, but clerks and such like, as well as professional men are not wanted, as the market is already overstocked.

IN reference to the extreme interpretation of the Monroe doctrine by President Hayes in his message to Congress, and by the resolution of the Select Committee of the House of Representatives, the London Times rightly makes the remark that the world is entitled to ask the United States to make up their mind either to let De Lesseps build the Panama Canal himself by the resources at his command or to charge themselves with the task.

ON Friday a resolution was adopted in the Senate to adjourn till the 30th inst. By that time over half the time allotted to a session will have passed. The Senate will have hardly twenty-seven sittings of an average duration of one hour and twenty minutes. The cost for mileage, indemnity and actual disbursements in connection with the Senators will have been $70,000, or about $2,592 for each sitting. The Government business is all behind, and the Senators might as well be at home for the time being as remain here, but the expenses are going on all the time.

The New Duty on Wool a Humbug.

In the Budget debate, Mr. Mackenzie said:—One of the pretences of hon. gentlemen opposite in advocating the "National Policy" was that it would benefit the farmer. It was alleged that because the United States imposed certain duties upon our grains we should meet them with a counter duty, or, as the hon. member for Cumberland said, we should adopt the sincerest form of flattery by following their example. (Hear.) That the Government did so we know. Except under urgent circumstances or for particular reasons, no grain coming into this country paid duty on account of the tariff. This measure, of course, had not the effect of increasing prices, for we know that the price of wheat was relatively higher in Chicago and other western cities under the regime of hon. gentlemen opposite since the introduction of the tariff than before we had any duty upon foreign wheat. But while they were willing to make pretences to farmers of assisting them and meeting their views, hon. gentlemen opposite decided that it was necessary to impose a duty on some articles that might put money into their pockets. They have imposed the heaviest duties upon the poorest articles of woolen cloth, that made the poor man pay ten times as much as the rich man, inasmuch as the specific duty upon the finest cloths was the same as upon the poorest. They endeavored in that way to give protection to the woollen manufacturers, and the decrease in the quantity of woollen goods brought into the country since then shows how effectually that protection has been used. But now, driven by the complaints of hundreds of thousands of the honest yeomary who feel that they have been sold and imposed upon by specious promises—(cheers)—hon. gentlemen opposite have decided that something must be done, and they have imposed a duty of three cents per pound on wool of Cotswold, Leicester, and Lincoln sheep. I can hardly believe that the hon. Finance Minister does not know there is not a pound of these wools imported into Canada. (Cheers and laughter.) In order that there may be no mistake about it, I will read extracts from some letters I have received. One gentleman, who is probably the largest dealer in wool in the Dominion, says:—

"I see by this morning's Globe that Sir Leonard, in his Budget speech, proposes to put a duty on wool of 3c. per pound on combing wools of Leicester, Cotswold and Lincolnshire sheep. Mr. Tilley will not get one dollar of revenue from this source, as we do not import one pound of this class of combing wool into this country, and we are not likely to do so, as we have no machinery to manufacture the class of goods this type of wool is most suitable for, and we can buy wools from other countries at a great deal less and more suited to our trade. This is a transparent fraud on farmers and will be of no benefit to them or injury to our woollen manufacturers. The price of this class of wool is determined in England, which is our only competitor, for she produces over 100,000,000 lbs. and we produce about 8,000,000 lbs. I have been in this business twenty years and have only been able to ship this type of wool to England three times. Our market has always been the United States. I bought and sold 1,300,000 lbs. of wool in 1879, of which 900,000 lbs. went to the States and the balance was used in Canada. I will be glad to hear from you on this wool question, because I am interested.

Another letter from a manufacturer is as follows:—

"I see in the Montreal Herald this day that the Government intend putting a duty of 3c. per pound on Leicester, Lincoln and Cotswold wools by way of pleasing the farmers, but it will not benefit them one cent, as this class of wools, as a rule, are worth more generally than Canadian wools are here, and consequently are not likely to be largely imported. But there are wools imported of the long sample coarse hair which do not compete with Canadian in the manufacture of carpets, blankets, flannels and coarse tweeds and grey cloths, knitting yarns, &c. The wools I refer to are East India, China, Egyptian, Russian, Italian, Turkey, and many other kinds of coarse German and other Continential wools which are now used in Canada in the manufacture of blankets and other heavy goods. If it is really necessary for us to be protected, the farmer should have a share of it, and not such an imaginary portion as the proposed duty will be."

These letters go to show that the Finance Minister does not know precisely what he is talking about. (Cheers and laughter.)

The Approaching Elections in Britain.

The latest advices say that the Kingdom is completely absorbed in the elections. Parliament expires like a candle with an evil smell. It has been devoting its last hours to passing a Bill, forced through by Ministers, which facilitate corruption by legalizing cab-hiring, thereby enhancing the advantages of rich and unscrupulous candidates. Liberals consider that their position with the country has decidedly improved during the week. They say Beaconsfield's attempt to force them to assume the defensive has failed. The canvass is everywhere proceeding with redoubled energy, and the confidence in a Liberal triumph is daily increasing. It is expected that Beaconfield will announce some new and startling coup once Parliament has adjourned. Gladstone's Midlothian campaign is the central event of the week, and engrosses the attention of friends and opponents alike. The demonstration at his departure on Tuesday has been followed by others evoked by his progress northward. The present enthusiasm is quite as remarkable as that manifested during his November tour. His speeches at London, Grantham, York, Newcastle and Berwick have struck the key-note of the canvass. He insists everywhere on union among all opponents of the Government, waiving all minor differences. He urged the Newcastle electors to support Cowen, notwithstanding his Jingoism. His reception at Edinburgh, the Scotch papers say, surpasses previous demonstrations. The eagerness of the people to hear him is unabated. Tickets to hear him have been sold for $5. He speaks thrice daily until Wednesday next. The Times, though sneering editorially as usual, reports him verbatim by telegraph. The leading Provincial papers also give full reports minus the sneers. It is believed that the success of his Midlothian campaign is certain. A singular tone of confidence pervades his speeches. Lord Rosebery says a complete and careful canvass made before Gladstone started on his tour guarantees his election. The Tory scheme to make nearly 300 faggot votes has failed, owing to the suddenness of the dissolution. The nomination of Herbert Gladstone for Middlesex surprises the Tories, who expected a walk over. It is fresh proof of the growing confidence of the Liberals and their personal devotion to Gladstone. The movement originated with Forster and Samuel Morley; the City Liberal Club enthusiastically supported it, and Gladstone telegraphed his assent. A meeting of the leading Liberals ratified the nomination, and agreed to defray the expenses of the contest, about $50,000. Success is hardly to be expected, as the last Tory majority was double the Liberal vote.

Magazines Received.

Blackwood's Magazine for March, promptly republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., New York, besides the continuation of the capital serials which every one on taking up the number will be likely to turn to at once. Perhaps the title of one of them, An American Statesman on Irish Atrocities, will secure its immediate perusal; and the reader will undoubtedly be amused at this semi-serious attempt to institute a parallel between Great Britain and Ireland and Turkey and her territories—in both cases an alien race being camped in a conquered country. The other article which we would particularly call attention to, is that on the North East Passage, giving the narrative of Lieut. Palander, the commander of the exploring vessel Vega, which under the leadership of Prof. Nordenskiold, left Gothenburg July 4, 1878, and by the 28th of September the same year was only 170 miles from Behring's Strait, when its course was stopped by the ice, and it did not get away till July, 1879. The article is illustrated by a map, showthe track of the vessel, and the coast-line as correct by the survey. The article The Afghan War—Passages from the Note Book of a Staff Officer, brings to our notice other scenes in the southern part of Asia, where the soldier is contending with hostile tribes as well as with a rigorous climate. Conviviality is a description of feasts, or rather the drinking that has accompanied them, from the times of the Greek and Scandinavian deities to those described by Scott and Lever. Other able articles which we have no room to notice, complete the number.

The North American Review for April has for its leading article a paper entitled McClellan's Last Service to the Republic, which covers the whole period of McClellan's military career, from the flank movement to the James to the battle of Antietam. Sir Francis Hincks contributes a paper on the Relations of Canada and the United States. The author's principal object is to show that the recently enacted Canadian Tariff is not an act of retaliation against the United States for their refusal to establish reciprocal free trade between the two countries in products that are natural to both. Canada, he says, is desirous of renewing the reciprocity treaty, and is ready to concede all reasonable demands. The Rev. David Swing writes about The Failure of the Southern Pulpit. According to him, the Southern Pulpit is without influence on public opinion in the South, whereas it might be, and ought to be, a great engine for the moral and material regeneration of the people. The discussion of the Third Term question, begun in the February number of the Review, is continued in the present number by the Hon. George S. Boutwell. Charles Stewart Parnell sets forth the reforms in the laws of land tenure which are advocated by himself and his political associates, under the heading The Irish Land Question. The Book Notices are by Mr. Edward Cary. The above periodicals are for sale by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

HARPERS' MAGAZINE for April is an excellent number. The contents are:—Music and Musicians in England, Mrs John Lillie; Some Pennsylvania Nooks, Ella Rodman Church; La Villa Real de Santa Fe, Earnest Ingersoll; An Irish Fishing Village, J. L. Cloud; Shipwrecked—a poem, from the French of Francois Coppee, E. W. Latimer; Luca della Robbia and his School, E. D. R. Bianciardi; Before the Shrine—a sonnet, Louise Chandler Moulton; The Swiss Rhine, S. H. M. Byers; Homo Studies in Nature, Mary Treat. (All these are richly illustrated.) The old Mill—a poem, Thomas Dunn English; White Wings—a yachting romance, Wm. Black. With illustrations. Mr. Witherton's Romance, Phœbe Yates Pember; A Farewell—a sonnet, A. H. Louis; Early History of Bible Illustration, W. C. Prime. With illustrations. An Easter Card—a story, Virginia, W. Johnston; Navy of the United States, E. H. Derby; Mary Anerley—a novel, R. D. Blackmore; Madrigals, A. Bowman Blake, etc., etc.,

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and purely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See other column.

FIRE IN DURHAM.—On the morning of the 18th inst., a fire broke out in the residence in Durham occupied by James Prasser. The building which was owned by W. S. Vollet, was consumed, but most of the household effects were saved. Loss $1,000, insurance $600.

Political Quackery.

Dr. Orton may be and no doubt is an excellent medical practitioner, but all must admit who have paid any attention to his public career that he is a political quack. The Dr. like all political nobodies must have a hobby. Previous to the last election he rode the protection cry to farmers till he secured a seat in the House, when he suddenly dropped it, because the whole country was laughing at his efforts to make the farming community rich by an act of Parliament. He cannot, however, be without a hobby, and therefore takes up the subject of "interest on mortges," no doubt with a view of again tickling the farmers' ears, as an offset to the deception practiced on them at the last general election, when he promised to secure high prices at all times for their products. The Dr now wants "to regulate "the rate of interest on loans of money "on real estate or otherwise," and he has a Bill before the House for that purpose. The rate of interest he proposes to fix at seven per cent., and woe-betide the building society or the private money lender who takes a mortgage at a higher rate of interest, for in that case the Courts are to be empowered to cancel the obligation, and instruct the Registrar to enter a discharge. If there is a private arrangement by which more than seven per cent. is paid, while the hypothec nominally bears that rate, proof of the fact will also have the effect of making the obligation null and void. Dr. Orton's intentions are, no doubt, good, but he should know that the rate of interest cannot be regulated by cast iron legislation. In a new country like Canada where capital has to be borrowed to build railways and start innumerable new enterprises to develope the resources of the country, the ruling rates of interest must, as a natural consequence, be high. These things, like all matters of trade and commerce, are regulated by the principle of supply and demand, and Dr. Orton, or anybody else, cannot hope to place a limit on the rate of interest which capital shall be worth. In time, rates of interest in Canada will come down, but it is useless to attempt to force them down by legislation.—Berlin Telegraph.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JACK BORLAND PAYS A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP—HE FINDS THE FACTOR IN DESPONDENCY AND LEAVES HIM IN ECSTASIES—ANTHONY LANGTON PROVES IMPRACTICABLE—TWO OLD ACQUAINTANCES MAKE A MUTUAL RECOGNITION.

The first thing Mr. Bishop did on his return to the office was to dispatch a note to his sister, telling her to have a substantial dinner ready for him within an hour, as he had to go to the country on business. Then he shut himself in his room, charging Dobbs not to disturb him whoever should call, and considerably within the period he had named quitted his sanctum, left some hurried instructions with Dobbs as to the work of the day, and departed in such a peculiar state of suppressed excitement that Dobbs stared after him in wonder, and Pedwiper irreverently exclaimed,

"What's up with the governor? Seems as if he had got a factorship, instead of being about to lose one."

"I'm blest if I know what has come to him," said Dobbs, as he bit his pen reflectively; "there's a fair wind blowing from some direction, that is evident."

"Then that foreign looking chap must have raised it," observed Penwiper. "Who can he be? I caught sight of him among the trees last night when I was up at the Grange telling old Ramsay the governor had come home. He and young Langton seemed to be having a shindy on the lawn, I wanted to hear what it was about, but Ramsay wouldn't let me forward—the crabbed old buffer."

Heedless of the attempts of the Market Square people to get him into conservation, the lawyer sought his house in the suburbs with an air of animation very different from the dejected mien he had exhibited on leaving it. Grizzey's astonishment at beholding the change may be imagined, and she hasted to inquire the cause.

"Don't ask me, sister mine," he gaily exclaimed. "Don't ask me, for I can tell you nothing. All I can say is—Things are mending. You and every one will know how ere long, but at present the seal of professional secrecy is on my lips. Therefore, let me to dinner, and I promise you I'll make up for meagre breakfast."

Miss Grizzey's curiosity was scarcely proof against this repulse, but it was a real pleasure to her to see the amazing improvement in her brother's spirits, and she rejoiced at the same though denied a knowledge of the cause. Even nap recognized the alteration in his master's demeanor, and announced his discovery with barks of joy.

"You are going from home this afternoon," said Miss Bishop, as her brother devoured his plate of chops with silent celerity.

"Yes," was the laconic reply.

"Will you be late?"

"Can't say. I don't think I shall; still I may, and if I should be don't be alarmed. Ta, la, la, la, la!"

And actually the sedate, sober-minded lawyer went off humming a tune in the exuberance of his glee.

His destination was Cairnbank, and as the nearest way was through the Grange grounds, it was not long ere he was pacing the avenue and gazing on the closed windows and smokeless chimneys of the deserted mansion. Of late Mr. Bishop never passed this way without viewing with unutterable sadness the silent forsaken pile, the disconsolate aspect of which always sent a sharp pain to his heart. Now, he positively gazed at it with eager interest, and did not let its bright past come before him as a bitter contrast to its melancholy present. He rather thought of its near future when joy and gladness and the blessed activities of human life would again enliven the scene. Having such an anticipation to cherish, it was wonderful how the very building seemed brightened to his eyes, how it refused to present the sad look it had worn to him for many months, so completely do outward objects respond to the moods of those who behold them.

To-day Mr. Bishop could look over on the mossy seat in the Birch Dell without any great pang of compunction. Never, since the departure of Orwell, had he traversed the path along the brow of the ravine without imagining that every bush and shrub, every bunch of broom and blade of bracken uttered reproaches against him for terminating the sweet love scenes which the spot had witnessed. This afternoon no such reproaches were conveyed to his ear by the wind as it played with the leaves or caused the ferns on the slope to rustle at its touch. The fresh green of spring, mingling with the blossom of broom and whin, filled the dell with glorious hope and promise, and invested it with a tender interest in the lawyer's heart.

A curious change came over him as he approached Cairnbank. The outward signs of his elation and excitement were suppressed. He was once more the cool man of business, who keeps his feelings strictly within bounds, and allows only the sharp intellect to have play. Nevertheless, he anticipated with keen satisfaction the coming interview with Anthony Langton, whom he was to meet on terms which gave him a decided advantage compared with his position at a recent meeting. He had now the whip-hand of his antagonist, and resolved to use it with a power proportional to the recollection of former defeats. He was not now the anxious, disappointed, outwitted factor, but came armed with strength to surprise and baffle the schemer who had conspicuously triumphed over him. The lawyer would have been more than flesh and blood had he not in these circumstances experienced a personal pleasure akin to a feeling of successful rivalry.

As usual Mr. Langton received him in his business room, having no doubt that he had came on some matters connected with the sale. The money-lender knew what efforts Bishop had made to prevent him getting the estate. He was also aware that the factor had a strong suspicion of his plans and schemes, though he little knew the fulness and extent of the knowledge he had that day acquired. Now that he considered himself within a week of the realisation of his object, the old miser hardly thought it necessary to disguise his pleasure or to manifest much courtesy to his avowed foe, whose business transactions with him were so nearly closed.

Laying down his pen and removing his spectacles, Langton lay back in his chair, and watched for his visitor to state his errand.

BEGS TO INFORM HIS FRIENDS and the public generally, that he has removed his Bakery and Confectionery establishment from Wyndham street, opposite the Post Office, to the more extensive premises next Kennedy's Jewellery Store, on St. George's Square, where everything in his line will be found first-class. do

The St. Albans Advertiser, published on the Vermont border, gives alarming details of the manner in which the Canadian habitants are flocking into the States.

A blue book brought down on Saturday shows that there was an increase of 6,000 criminal classes in 1879 as compared with 1878, in the Dominion.

The wife of Mr. Melion Wardall, of Northfield, Brant County, while blackening the stove set her clothes on fire. The burns are so deep that there are very little hopes of her recovery.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

During last year 383,034 freight cars crossed Detroit River to and from Canada. These cars, if placed in line, would make a train 2,466 miles in length.

An order has been received by the Winchester Arms Co. for fifteen to twenty million cartridges for the Chinese Government. This is the first order ever given by the Chinese Government to foreigners for cartridges.

The failure of the ice crop in the West and Southwest has caused considerable activity in the ice trade of Montreal. Up to Saturday there had been shipped from that city 291 car loads of ice destined for Toronto, Hamilton, Sarnia, Cincinnati, nd Louisville, Ky.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Theodore Martin, author of the "Life of Prince Consort," has been knighted and made a K. C. B.

Gladstone's utterances against Austria created much irritation.

The Duchess of Marlborough has written to the Lord Mayor of London stating that there is now no fear of the famine in Ireland, but there is dire destitution in the mountainous parts and on the sea coast. There is great need of clothing and seed.

The eighty-third birthday of Emperor William was celebrated on Saturday. Private and public buildings were decorated; generals of the army, headed by the Prince Imperial and other German Princes offered their congratulations, followed by members of the Bundersrath, and by Bismarck. The Emperor is hale and well.

The Duke of Edinburgh has issued further instructions to coast-guard officers and men under his command on the west coast of Ireland, to assist in every way possible relieving officers distributing provisions and stores from any source or fund whatever for relief of the distressed Irish peasantry.

Australia has discovered a new industry. Its wine has just been pronounced by judges of the article to be superior to the very best brands produced in Europe. This will be a great blow to a California industry. For a number of years Australian wine and brandy has been imported into California, and then sent east as being the production of the State. The exposure will be a very severe blow to the "wonderful climate and products" of California.

The University Boat Race.

The annual boat race between the Oxford and Cambridge crews took place on Monday on the Thames. At 10.39 o'clock the two crews took up their positions. Oxford having won the toss, and taking the Middlesex side, the signal for the start was given, and both sped away. The race was keenly contested along the whole course, but the Oxford crew fulfilled the general expectation. At Hammersmith they took the lead, and they crossed the winning line four boat lengths ahead. Time, 21m. 23½s. The Press boat hoisted the winning colors and steamed rapidly down the river, conveying the news of the result, which the immense crowds received with great cheering. The betting on the race was four to one in favor of the Oxfords. This makes the 36th annual contest between the rival crews. Up to last year each had made a score of 17, with one dead heat; so that in deciding a tie the contest of this year excited more than usual interest. The result places the Oxfords once more in the majority.

MORE MASONIC EMBLEMS.—Mr. S. A. Zola, Grand Commander and President of the Scotch Ancient and Accepted Masonic Rite for Egypt, and Egyptian ex-Grand Master of Symbolic Masonry, has just examined the foundations of the Alexandrian obelisk, and has discovered another series of stones, which not only bear all the existing Masonic emblems, but furnish the key which has hitherto been lacking to explain the entire dimension and proportions of what proves to be an elaborate Masonic edifice, including the obelisk itself, the pedistal, the staircase and the harder foundations. Mr. Zola professes to be able by this discovery to throw a vivid light upon the ancient Egyptian origin of Masonic symbolism, hitherto so energetically disputed by many savants, and it is expected that a publication of his detailed drawings, will finally settle more than one of the problems which lie at the very foundation not only of Masonry, but of the obscure and complicated religious system of the early Egyptians.

Report of the Ontario Agricultural College.

The pressure on our space has hitherto prevented us from noticing the above, which Report is the fifth of this Institution, and which was received some two weeks ago. It is the most voluminous and important yet issued. First comes the report of Mr. Johnston, the ex-President, who gives a very full and satisfactory summary of the work performed by the students. It may be well to remind our readers here that in addition to the regular students there is a special course provided for farmers' sons who are working on their fathers' farms, and who, desiring to improve themselves without remaining the whole year, can attend during the Winter Session only, and by constant study overtake the year's school work. Being thus away only from the 1st October until the 31st of March, they can overtake the spring, summer, and most of the fall work at home, and yet obtain a thoroughly good education. Or if they desire it they can remain from the 1st of October until the 30th of June, returning home for the harvest months. After fully detailing the course of study during the different terms—which we have several times given at length in previous summaries of the Reports—Mr. Johnston adds:—

"Regarding the instruction I have nothing further to say, except that it was faithfully given and in most cases assiduously received. After four years' experience I am fully convinced that it is along the line of a correct course, and requires nothing to make it complete but expansion in the branches of agriculture and horticulture. Indeed the latter requires complete organization, and the appointment of a teacher upon the subject."

The number of pupils in attendance during the year was 162, and at the date of the report 92, hailing from every part of the Province. The applications for admission have been growing so numerous that latterly all aspirants outside of the Province have been rejected, and many others. In all, the applications for admission during the year were over 300.

Under the head of recommendations Mr. Johnston makes some valuable suggestions with respect to the endowment of the Institution, its affiliation with the University, enlargement of the buildings, &c., some of which the Government have adopted in the Bill passed last session. Following these we have a succinct but comprehensive summary of the work accomplished during his term of office, which we must say is astonishing, considering the short time in which it was done, and which forms the best evidence of Mr. Johnston's great energy and capability, combined with the active and intelligent co-operation of those associated with him. He bears willing testimony to the efficiency of these associates, whether as teachers in the class room or instructors outside, and he adds:—"There has not a jar occurred to mar the pleasant harmony which should always exist between those striving, though in different spheres, towards the attainment of a common end."

Respecting his resignation, Mr. Johnston closes his report by saying:—"The reasons for my decision have been entrusted to you, that at the proper time and place they may be made known; but I may be allowed to say here to the thousands of farmers whose acquaintance I have had the pleasure of making during the last five years, that they arise in nowise from want of faith in the institution or of belief in the great importance of its aims and objects. My work has been to assist in laying the foundation; others must rear the superstructure. In doing it I have made many mistakes, but can truthfully avow that I have done what I could faithfully and conscientiously, my main motive, my country's good, and have spared neither time, labor, or personal expense, that the work, small as it is, might be complete." And we can truly say that he has laid well the foundation of the Institution, that he lifted it out of obloquy and contempt and made it one of the most popular, as it is one of the most important, educational Institutions in the Province.

The report of Mr. Mills, the present President, who succeeded Mr. Johnston, is necessarily short, as he only entered on his duties on the first of October. He gives a sketch of the fall work, refers to the over crowding in consequence of the number of students, announces the issue of the College circular for 1880, and speaks of the number of visitors from Europe, including the English and Scotch farmers delegates, and closes by recommending additions to the buildings, with necessary alterations, for which the Legislature have provided, and which will be carried out this season.

CATTLE EMBARGO REMOVED.—Intelligence received by cable from England last week brings news of most important concessions on the part of the Imperial Government affecting the cattle trade. It will be permitted hereafter to the Grand Trunk Railway to carry cattle from the Western States to the seaboard, on condition that proper arrangements be made for watering. This is the result of a lengthy correspondence, and will be of the greatest advantage.

SAVED FROM DEATH.—A child aged four months, a son of Mr. R. Beatty, of Orangeville, swallowed a safety pin, some four weeks ago, and the little fellow suffered with a sore throat. Dr. Henry's services were called into requisition; and, for some time, treated the case as represented to him. Finding, however, that medical treatment was of no avail, he ventured further and discovered the safety pin lodged in the throat of the child. Its extraction by the Doctor saved a life.

THE winter of 1880 will long be remembered as the year of famine and starvation, and yet there was perhaps never so large a quantity of grain harvested on this continent as in the year 1879. Not only have we starvation in Ireland, but in Germany, Brazil, Turkey, Asia Minor and Persia, not to speak of the want suffered by the poor in the large and populous cities of Europe and even our own land. In many cities of Canada the poor never suffered so severely as in this winter, but their hardships are caused not so much by a failure of the harvest, as by a want of means to earn money by honest labor.

A narrative of the great Donnelly tragedy in Biddulph, one of the most atrocious crimes on record, has been issued in pamphlet form by the London Free Press.

News Items.

The Hamilton Times speaks of a chicken which, after picking the shell on the Mountain the other day, walked out on three legs. The bird lived three days. The regular legs and claws are perfectly formed; another leg grew out where the chick's tail ought to be, but dispensing with his caudal appendage seems to have killed the bird.

The death of Mr. Andrew Robertson, Q. C., of Montreal, who was struck down some days ago by an attack of paralysis, is reported. Mr. Robertson was one of the oldest and most respected members of the legal profession of that city.

There are two houses side by side on Elizabeth street, in Toronto, in one of which a weekly prayer meeting is held, and in the other the family are addicted to singing secular songs. Mutual complaints were made of nuisance, some of the neighbors holding that the bad singing at the prayer meetings was more disagreeable than the music at the Irishman's house. The case was remanded.

It has not yet been decided which Ontario Regiment will visit Quebec on the coming 24th of May. The choice lies between the 7th of London, the 15th of Hamilton, the Queen's Own of Toronto, and the Foot Guards of Ottawa. The chances are in favor of the Ottawa Regiment, the distance and cost of transport being against the Western Battalions.

A large number of railroad men are now in Ottawa in connection with the Credit Valley Railroad Bill. Mr. Hickson, of the G. T. R., has issued a circular against the Bill.

On Monday the Hon. Edward Blake was waited upon by a deputation from the Council of the Law Society of Canada and offered the presidency for the coming year. After some discussion as to the Society's objects, Mr. Blake expressed his willingness to accept the position.

Mr. Colby's Petroleum Bill provides that the fire test of coal oil shall be 110 degrees.

The Hon. Benjamin Seymour, of Port Hope, died this morning,

A bailiff the other day in Connecticut seized a whole train of cars, with its mail and goods. Surely there was nothing small about that bailiff. We are not informed whether the train was in motion or standing at a station when seized; but in any case it is an apt illustration of the strength of law when a steam engine of several hundred horse power, with all its belongings, is impotent to resist the man with the little bit of paper.

The Easter fair at Elora last week although rather thinly attended, was considered fairly satisfactory to sellers. Beef cattle were looked after keenly by buyers, and prices were a shade better than at any previous fair this winter. Prices probably averaged about 5 cents per lb.

On Monday, March 1st, while two brothers named Gustave and Ernest Janke were chopping on the farm of James Boyd, lot 18, con. 9, Sullivan, a limb fell from a tree and crushed them both to the ground. The heavy end struck Ernest on the head and crushed in the skull. He lingered until next day, when death put an end to his suffering. His brother escaped with a few bruises on his head.

Mr. John Lyons, of Garafraxa, is preparing a work on dairying, which promises to be of great advantage to farmers, merchants, packers, and in fact all who make, buy or use butter.

Martin Collinson is about as decent a man as lives either off or on the Roman line, Biddulph. He did not sign the Vigilant book, neither was he a member of the Cedar Swamp Parliament. Everyone will admit that it wasn't the Donnellys burnt his frame barn and woodsheds down last Tuesday night. Who was it then?

During the trial of a libel case in Court in Woodstock it came out in evidence that at a dance attended by the two young men who were parties to the suit the "lady fair" in question had detected the smell of whiskey in the breath of one of the rivals—a circumstance which led the learned judge to remark that it was customary under such circumstances now-a-days to smell only "cloves."

It it said that two days before he left for Ottawa, Hon. Mr. Holton was warned by Dr. Laberge, M. P. P., that he must be careful, having had a weak turn which compelled him to enter a store and rest.

A little child two years old, daughter of C. VanBrooklin, Brantford, while playing around the house on Monday fell into the cistern, and was drowned.

A rumour is in circulation that an Indian having cut a hole in the ice to fish, in the vicinity of the wreck of the Waubuno, he distinctly saw the engines and boiler and part of the hull of a large boat. Enquiries are being made to ascertain whether this report is true, but it is intimated that a reward is expected before the boat will be shown.

County Detective Pope has now been commissioned to take continuous charge of young O'Connor, the Crown witness in the Biddulph murder cases. The boy and his mother are boarding at a private house next door to the Central Police Station, and Pope accompanies him wherever he goes. His instructions are never to lose sight of him except when he is in the house.

The American section of the Irish Land League, through its Executive Committee, chosen by representatives of Irish Societies in the immediate vicinity of New York, has commenced active operations, looking towards a thorough organization of its ranks through the United States.

John Quinn, who took a prominent part in the Fenian invasion, was taken prisoner, and served six years in Kingston Penitentiary, committed suicide in a cell of the police station in Buffalo on Monday.

The New York Commercial Advertiser says it is among the possibilities that Jay Gould may capture the entire telegraph business of Canada.

Recently one of the children, now the wife of the heir of the German Emperor, had been ailing, and with maternal solicitude the Princess personally supplied the little invalid with many of its requirements. This innovation on German Court etiquette produced utter dismay, and was brought to the notice of the Empress, in answer to whose expostulation the Princess replied:—"If my mother, the Queen of England and Empress of India, can carry milk in to one of her children, who like it so much more because given by her, I think I may do so without forgetting my position."

The Boundary Award.

We have in previous articles referred to the position in which this matter stands by the action of the Dominion Government, in refusing to accept and ratify the award made by a court fairly chosen, and thoroughly disinterested. The Ontario Legislature in good faith acted on that award, by ratifying it, and making provision for the proper administration of justice in the territory awarded. For reasons best known to themselves the Dominion Government refused to ratify the award during the session of Parliament in 1879, or to allow to become law the bill passed by the Ontario Legislature for enforcing the due observance of the law in the new territory.

When the present session of the Dominion Parliament opened, several members sought to ascertain the views of the Government on the subject, but instead of ratifying the award, as they were in honour bound to do, they got their followers to agree to the appointment of a Special Committee to consider the whole subject. This meant that the award was to be contested, and that every conceivable obstruction was to be put in the way of Ontario getting her just rights. But the Government have gone farther than this, and as we now learn from the Globe, they have decided to introduce a Bill relating to the administration of justice in the North-West, which places under the operation of the Dominion laws and under the jurisdiction of Dominion magistrates all the territory lying west of a line drawn due north from the mouth of the Ohio River. It goes on to say :—"This is the most extreme easterly line ever contended for by the Dominion Government, and the shameless audacity of the proceeding can best be illustrated by reference to the fact that the line in question cuts off from Ontario the whole the settlements around Thunder Bay, including Silver Islet, Prince Arthur's Landing, and the Kaministiquia. Fortunately the Ontario Legislature, at its recent session, conferred upon the Government the means as well as the authority necessary to contest the matter to the end, and contested to all appearance it must now be. The award of the arbitrators, which should have settled the dispute, is in our favour, and that is of no small advantage in the struggle that is impending—a struggle which can only turn out adversely to us if the representatives from Ontario in the Dominion Parliament fail to sustain the rights of their own Province. The Bill introduced by the Minister of Justice will serve at least one useful purpose—it will compel every supporter of the Government from Ontario to vote squarely on the question ; for there is no possibility of evading the fact that to vote for the second reading of this Bill is to declare that the western boundary of Ontario must be drawn east of Prince Arthur's Landing."

THE N. Y. Times thus deals with one phase of protection :—Which is the most deserving of protection, the fractional industry employed in the protected manufactures, or the rest of the working men of the country? Any one who will glance at the statistical atlas of the United States compiled by the Census Bureau, will see that the green band, representing agricultural labour, covers more than one-half of every State, and nearly four-fifths of every Southern State, while the blue band, representing manufactures, nowhere reaches one-fourth. It is perfectly reasonable to argue that a very small portion of the latter cannot claim to be, in itself and exclusively, "American industry," for the benefit of which all the remainder of whatever class must be taxed.

Mr. Patterson, of Brant, in his able speech on the budget the other night, charged that the present administration instead of carrying out the pledges of economy made to the people, had made the estimates for controllable expenditure this year two millions more than the highest amount ever asked for by the Mackenzie administration. The lumbering, shipping and farming industries it was claimed had been injured by the new tariff, while even as to manufactures the benefit had been confined to certain lines such as sugar, cotton, woollen and rubber. Speaking of the sugar duties he said, that the refining of the total amount of sugar used in Canada would only give employment to six hundred or seven hundred men, while the people had to pay one million of dollars more for their sugar, and half a million of dollars were lost to the treasury. It would pay the country better for the Finance Minister to give each of the men fifty acres of land and five hundred dollars in cash to lie in bed and do nothing. The sugar duties, too, had had the effect of closing up a number of steam confectioners and steam bakeries.

LONDON Advertiser:—The Toronto Mail, in commenting on a paper by Sir Francis Hincks in the current number of the North American Review, considers that it proves conclusively that the tariff is not opposed to the United States any more than to England, and other countries. Well! Did not Mr. Tilley on his visit to England explain that the tariff was intended to be retaliatory against the United Satates, and was not intended as a blow at England?

Secretary Evarts is endeavoring to impress on leading Democrats his fears that the official assertion of the Monroe doctrine in regard to the inter-oceanic canal may lead to a war with Great Britain.

Inquiring into the Cause of the Tay Bridge Accident.

(From the New York Scotsman.)

One result of the inquiry which closed at Dundee on March 3rd was to show that those who lived nearest the bridge and were most familiar with it had the greatest distrust of it. Another result was the showing that good work and good material is as necessary in the construction of large work as in small work in iron. It will be remembered, doubtless, that in the first stage of the inquiry, held immediately after the disaster, a number of those living in sight of the bridge had such fears of its stability on the night of the great storm as to cause them to keep an anxious watch on the structure to see whether it would weather the storm in safety. In the second stage, testimony was given by men of a character not to be alarmed by idle fears that they considered the bridge dangerous. Ex-Provost Robertson, of Dundee, a man of intelligence, stated that so insecure did he deem the bridge that he had given up travel over it, although he had occasion to cross the Tay nearly every day. Others corroborated this testimony, and they also agreed in the opinion that the trains were run at too high a rate of speed, producing in the bridge not only a lateral motion, but a vertical motion so violent as to seriously alarm passengers. The highest speed allowed was at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, but the evidence of these men goes to show that trains were run even through the high girders at the rate of thirty-five and forty miles an hour.

With respect to the construction of the bridge, and the quality of the material, the testimony was equally damaging. Workmen from the foundry at Wormit testified to the fact that Cleveland metal was used, which is far inferior to Scotch iron in strength and fineness of texture, and that some of the columns were of unequal thickness, falling under the required standard in many instances, and also that some important defects were remedied by devices which served merely to hide, not to correct the evil. This was a serious indictment of the railway company, who placed upon the stand the assistant engineer who had charge of the work, to show that though columns might have come from the foundry defective that did not prove that they were accepted and that they were actually used in the bridge. On cross-examination, however, on being shown sections of the broken columns which showed inequalities of thickness, and others showing inferiority of material, he confessed his inability to account for their presence in the bridge, and frankly acknowledged that they were too defective to bear the ordinary strain to which they would be subjected. But there were other facts brought out still more damaging. It is in evidence that one of the columns was split from top to bottom, and that to hold it together, bands of hoop iron had been placed at intervals along its whole length. Other testimony showed that in numerous instances blow holes, cracks, and other defects in the castings, were filled up with lead so as to escape detection. Engineer Camphuis further testified that though, according to contract, columns should have been tested to bear a weight of 3,000 pounds, none of them were actually tested.

The most serious point brought out by the enquiry, and one which will not soon be forgotten, is that which bears directly upon the constructors of the bridge in respect of the quality of the material and the workmanship. The broken column held together by bands, and the blow holes filled up with lead, show conclusively that some one, during the whole life of the bridge, knew of an element of insecurity in the structure. As was evinced in the discussion on the paper of Mr. Day, which was reproduced a short time ago, the bridge was improperly constructed, and it was a mere question of time how long it would stand. The inquiry, however, which has now reached the close of its second stage, will be thorough in its character, and will be important as affecting the success of similar enterprises in the future.

PARLIAMENT adjourns from Wednesday till Tuesday of next week. Most of the western M. P.'s may be expected home this week in consequence of the adjournment. The prospects are that the present session will run fully three months. Little or nothing has been done so far.

A PARLIAMENTARY return states that all the chiefs and assistant inspectors of weights and measures recently appointed have been appointed on condition that they shall submit to such an examination as the Department of Inland Revenue may order at any time after the expiration of six months from the date of appointment. No examinations have as yet been held, but they will be as soon as the necessary arrangements for making them can be completed.

SPEAKING of the present exodus from the Dominion the Ottawa Citizen says: "If people generally would try to think down to the bottom of this matter, they might see less occasion for uttering melancholy wails over a movement which is at once beneficial and inevitable." Pray, how is it beneficial?

IT was considered a crying shame during the Liberal regime for employees in the public service to correspond for party newspapers, but now that the Tories are in power things have changed. It is well known among the heads of the departments that clerks by the dozen are corresponding for Tory papers, but that which was condemnatory under the former Government is commended now.

Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway.

Meeting at Orangeville—New Scheme Proposed.

A largely attended meeting of Reeves and Deputy Reeves and other representative men from the municipalities along the line of the Toronto, Grey, and Bruce Railway was held at Orangeville on Friday. The meeting was called at the instance of the Board of Management, for the purpose of having an expression of opinion as to the feasibility of a new scheme to raise funds to change the gauge of the road. As the Ontario Government did not come to the assistance of the Company during the last session of Parliament, the Board felt that they were compelled to either abandon the scheme for the changing of the guage altogether, or to place the entire burden on the municipalities and the shareholders, and as the latter have already given their assent to the arrangement, it remained to lay the matter before the electors. The meeting was attended by a large number of delegates, representing nearly every municipality on the line, as well as by a number of prominent gentlemen from adjoining counties. On the arrival of the trains from the north, south, and west, the party repaired to the Town Hall, where a sumptuous repast was prepared by the Company, to which nearly 300 gentlemen sat down.

After lunch the meeting was called to order, and Mr. D. L. Scott, Mayor of Orangeville, was called to the chair. The Chairman opened the proceedings with a few remarks explaining the object of the gathering, and called on Mr. W. H. Beatty, Solicitor for the Company, to address the meeting. Mr. Beatty explained to the meeting the position of the road, and the efforts the Directors had made to raise funds to widen the guage, and otherwise improve the line. He concluded by saying that the bondholders, who had received no interest for some years, were willing to make large sacrifices on their capital, and it was for them to consider whether it would not be well for them to make similiar sacrifice. The object of the meeting was to ask advice of the gentlemen present whether it was better for the directors to resign and hand the road over to a bondholder directorate, or whether they would vote the additional sum asked for, and have the benefit of a good working road. The amount to be asked from each municipality had not yet been settled upon, but the total amount would be $400,000. This included steel rails on the whole length of the line from Toronto to Owen Sound.

Speeches were made by Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, Messrs L. B. Bolton and others.

Mr. W. J. McFarlane, of Markdale, then moved the following resolution :—That this meeting, having heard the explanations on behalf of the Toronto, Grey, and Bruce Railway Company as to its present position and the proposal for changing the gauge of the railway, is of opinion that the Company should take steps forthwith to lay its proposal before each municipality, and use its best efforts to have the scheme carried out.

After a number of speeches in favour of the resolution it was carried, only three voting against it.

RUSSIAN SUPERSTITIONS. — A singular trial has, according to the Moscow correspondent of the Cologne Gazette, lately taken place at Novgorod. A Russian peasant named Alexeyeff and six women of his village, having accused another woman of having bewitched them, were sentenced by the district tribunal to four months' imprisonment, on the ground that they had pretended to be ill in order to give color to the accusation. The sentence was reversed, however, on appeal to the higher court, and they have now been liberated. The correspondent says that the belief in witches who injure men and cattle by supernatural power is very general in Russia ; there is scarcely a village which does not contain its "yurodivi" (inspired idiot), "kaldunya" (witch), or "klikusha" (screaming woman) ; and the fanatical sect of the "Chlisti," whose members reduce themselves to a condition of hysterical mania by constant fasting and castigation, is spread over the whole country. It is remarkable that this illness is only to be met with among the rural population, who as a rule are very healthy and strong, and that not a trace of it is to be found in the towns.

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and purely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. Eramosa Council.

This Council met at the Centre Inn, on the 15th inst. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read, and with a small amendment, confirmed. The By-law for the remuneration of Township Officers left over from the last meeting of Council, was again in Committee of the whole taken up and the blanks filled up, read the third time and passed, and numbered 93.

A By-law to appoint a Collector was passed after the usual number of readings, and numbered 94.

The clerk presented the tenders he had received from the printing houses in Guelph, for the printing of the voter's lists and minutes for 1880, and the Council accepted that of Messrs. Innes & Davidson.

The Council went into a Committee of the whole on a By-law to re-arrange, define and number the road divisions in the township, the blanks were partly filled up, the Committee rose and obtained leave to sit again at the next meeting of Council. The Council resumed, and the report of the Reeve and Treasurer was presented, from which it appeared that they had made arrangements with the Bank of Commerce for depositing the surplus funds of the township. The Council accepted the report, and after disposing of some other business of minor importance, on motion, adjourned, to meet again at the Centre Inn, on Monday, the 26th day of April next, at ten o'clock, a. m.

J. A. DAVIDSON, Tp. Clerk.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL HYMN.—The N. Y. Tribune says :—Lord Lorne, the Governor General of the Dominion, has written a hymn, for which Mr. Arthur Sullivan has composed music, and the whole production is dedicated "Canada." Of the hymn itself, we may say that it is neither a very good hymn nor a very bad hymn ; nor has it any great chance of being much sung ages hence, or even at present. His Lordship's production, which goes on, so far as metre is concerned, smoothly enough, contains, we regret to say, several thoroughly unallowable rhymes, of which the following are specimens :—"Dominion, union ; terrors, mirrors ; nurture, hurt her ; glory, o'er ye." We do not know why national hymns should almost always be mediocre ; possibly it is impossible to be prepensely patriotic and poetical at the same time. Usually, we suspect, a good national lyric is an accident, as the Marseillaise undoubtedly was.

"THE FIFTEEN."—"I have got it!" wrote my friend, a jolly bach., to his niece in the country. "It can be done." The niece replies, "Yes, it can be done, but I must go behind the door to do it. How is it with you, eh?" It is needless to say our bachelor friend, after several night vigils, has failed to do it again, and now there is a wet towel wrapped around his temples.

It is said that Mr. Scott, chief architect, will shortly visit British Columbia to inspect the public buildings there.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, MARCH 22.

For the fifth or sixth time, at the Government's request, Mr. Charlton's motion regarding the North-West land regulations and Mr. Blake's respecting the extradition of criminals were both allowed to stand.

The Government laid on the table replies to calls for some twenty-five returns, a number greater in fact than the whole they have hitherto presented to the House during the session.

After a brief discussion, during which Mr. Mackenzie objected to the length of the proposed Easter recess, a Government motion was passed that the House adjourn from Wednesday night of this week till Tuesday of next week.

As the Senate's request, a joint committee to consider the propriety of amalgamating the law departments of the two Houses was adopted.

A few evenings ago the Minister of Marine, backed by the Minister of Customs, charged Mr. Yeo, of Prince Edward Island, with having notified the Department of the resignation of an official in the island, who was afterwards dismissed by the present Government, and Monday Mr. Yeo submitted to the House documentary evidence sustaining the denial he had given to the charge. It is needless to say that both the worthy Ministers were speechless at the exposure of their lack of veracity.

The propriety of opening the Welland Canal earlier than usual this season was suggested by Mr. Mackenzie, but Sir Charles Tupper explained that it was impossible to do so, owing to certain works being in progress at several points along the canals course. It was, however, promised that efforts should be made to open the Lachine Canal as early as possible.

A Government Bill confirming the purchase of the Riviere du Loup Branch Railway passed its initial stage, and the Acts to incorporate the St. Clair and Lake Erie Navigation Company, and respecting the Great Western and Lake Ontario Shore Junction Railway, were read the third time.

A number of questions by members were answered, but the only statement of general interest made was by Sir L. Tilley that the Government would probably issue $20,000 in fractional currency of twenty five and ten cents denominations.

Mr. MacDonnell (Inverness,) moved the House into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions declaring the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island to have each claims and rights to distributive shares of the amount of the Fishery award handed over to the Government of Canada on the same principles on which the claims and rights of Newfoundland were recognized, &c.

Sir Leonard Tilley asked that the motion be allowed to stand, and he advanced as a plea for so doing that the Government wished to lay certain documents before the House relating to the subject. The motion led to a warm debate, which was protracted till after nine o'clock, when a vote on the amendment was taken. It was carried on a division of 111 yeas and 49 nays. The debate was chiefly confined to members from the Maritime Provinces.

About eleven o'clock an interesting discussion took place on a motion by Mr. Trow, on behalf of Mr. Skinner, for copies of all publications issued or purchased for distribution by the Government with a view to encourage immigration, &c. Mr. Trow read extracts from Hon. Peter Mitchell's pamphlet on the West and North West praising Minnesota, which pamphlet has been circulated by the Department of Agriculture, and a large order for copies of it given by the Hon. J. H. Pope. The Government evidently did not care to defend the pamphlet, nor did they care to trust their defence to the Minister of Agriculture alone.

Sir Charles Tupper was put up to raise a great dust of abuse so as to hide his colleague's retreat, and to charge the leader of the Opposition with having praised Texas as a field for immigration.

Mr. Mackenzie effectually disposed of the charge, as he had done more than once before.

Step by step the Government retreated, until at last, commencing by refusing to defend the pamphlet, they ultimately had the impudence to deliberately falsify the facts by denying that any purchase had been made, or that copies of the pamphlet had been circulated by the Department of Agriculture, or that any order had been given by the Department for copies of the pamphlet.

The Minister of Agriculture's defence was a mass of contradictions. He denied that the Department had circulated copies of the pamphlet, but when members produced copies sent to them by Mr. Pope's subordinates he admitted that a few copies had been sent to the Department.

After considerable further discussion the motion was withdrawn.

The House adjourned at 12:30 a. m.

The Princess Louise was out on Saturday for the first time since the accident, caused by the upsetting of the sleigh. Her Royal Highness attended the Canadian Academy of Arts exhibition.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JACK BORLAND PAYS A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP—HE FINDS THE FACTOR IN DESPONDENCY AND LEAVES HIM IN ECSTASIES—ANTHONY LANGTON PROVES IMPRACTICABLE—TWO OLD ACQUAINTANCES MAKE A MUTUAL RECOGNITION.

"Am I interrupting you in your work, Mr. Langton?" inquired Bishop, with a glance at the large business book over which Anthony had been leaning.

"Oh, I can spare you a few minutes, I daresay. It is, no doubt, a matter of business which has brought you to Cairnbank. I cannot suppose it to be an act of friendship. Our meetings of late have been rather the opposite of that character."

"You say truly, sir. I have no reason to desire intercourse with you beyond what is necessary. There is no need for me to state my reasons."

"Oh, none—none in the world. It is a matter of no consequence to me what place I hold in your thoughts and feelings; and as any business connection there is between us will soon be terminated, this makes the thing of still less importance."

"The early termination of our business connection is a very satisfactory prospect to me, I assure you."

"Ah! well, now that we have indicated our mutual source of pleasure, perhaps you will be good enough to state the business on which you have come. I cannot afford to waste more time than is necessary."

"Nor I, sir. But a few minutes will suffice for the present matter. I have come to satisfy your claim on the Grange estate. Please to discharge the mortgage deed and hand it over to me, and I will give you a draft for the money."

These words of momentous import were spoken by the lawyer with studied quietness, but his eyes keenly watched their effect. Langton heard them with a stony stare, and for some moments did not move or speak. Then he observed with a cold immobility which showed that he attached no serious meaning to the factor's language.

"I can take a joke when it is suitable and in season, sir, but this miserable attempt at one is neither well timed nor in good taste. I take no further notice of it, but ask you to state your business at once."

"I have just stated my business," returned Bishop. "I am here for no other purpose than that I have expressed."

Anthony Langton gradually drew himself up to an erect position, grasped the arms of his chair, and fixed on the speaker a motionless gaze.

"Are you mad, sir?" he slowly asked.

"Oh dear, no. Why should a man be thought mad because he comes to pay a mortgage. He is generally made welcome by the man who receives the money."

"Not mad—but, joking" ejaculated Anthony Langton, as alarm began to seize him.

"Perhaps this will convince you," remarked Bishop, taking from his pocket-book a slip of paper and unfolding it before the other's eyes.

"What—what is that?" gasped Langton, starting back as if something venomous had been placed before him.

"A bank draft for thirty thousand pounds. The money is lodged with Raleigh of Cairntree; so you will have no difficulty in getting it."

Mechanically, though with a trembling hand, the old man lifted his spectacles, put them on, examined the paper. A moment or two of horrid consternation showed him that the draft was real and genuine. There was the sum in figures and words, and the bank agent's well-known signature at the bottom.

"What — does — this — mean," asked Langton, his tone husky, his accents faltering, his lips livid.

"Mean! why, its meaning is obvious enough. You hold a mortgage over the Grange for thirty thousand pounds, that is the bank draft for the full amount. All I want now is the bond duly discharged."

"Where did you get the money?" was the hoarsely gasped question.

"As that is no concern of yours, you will excuse me not answering the question."

"No concern of mine! But I tell you it is a concern of mine. Take back your piece of paper, sir; I will have none of it."

"Indeed—why?"

"Because it's too late. The estate is advertised for sale."

"I know it is. But the sale has not taken place."

"It must go on now. Nothing can stop it. I defy you or any one to stop it. This is some knavish conspiracy, but it won't succeed."

"But, sir, you must be aware that——'

"Silence, sir, I will not listen to you. Leave my house, and stop the sale if you dare. There is your paltry draft; take it back to those who gave it you, and tell them I am not to be fooled."

"Mr. Langton," said the lawyer, in genuine astonishment, "are you serious in what you say. Do you absolutely refuse to take payment of your bond?"

"Absolutely and finally."

"But you must know that such refusal is as useless as it is illegal."

"I don't know anything of the kind, sir. There is a clause in the bond which empowers me to sell the estate by public auction if payment be not made when I demand it. I demanded payment six months ago, and it was not forthcoming. In the exercise of my right I brought the estate to the hammer, and to the hammer it shall go."

"You are showing your hand pretty plainy now, Mr. Langton," observed the factor, with a quiet smile. I am well enough aware of the motive which prompted you to lend Orwell Bruce thirty thousand pounds on the estate, but the world is ignorant of it. When, however, it is made public that you refuse payment and insist on the sale going on, the character of the transction will become patent, and your character will suffer accordingly."

"I don't care that for my character suffering," said Anthony Langton, snapping his fingers with a gesture of contempt. "What you or anybody may think or say won't affect me a bit. There, your arrow has missed the mark. Now I will thank you to quit my room."

"As you will," returned Bishop, giving his shoulders a careless shrug, "but if you expect to gain your point I must tell you——"

"Will you go, sir?" screamed the old man with frantic passion. "If you don't, I'll summon those who will compel you."

"What's this row about," cried an angry voice, and Ruben Langton burst into the room, his face in a flame. "What does it mean?" he demanded, looking fiercely at the lawyer.

"It means," roared his father, "that Bishop wants to pay off the mortgage when it is too late, and because I refuse payment and insist that the sale shall take place, he gives me all manner of abuse. I have ordered him to leave the house, and he won't go."

"Oh, yes, I will go," said Bishop, with perfect coolness.

"Wants to pay off the mortgage!" repeated Reuben. "Where has he got th money?"

"The very thing I asked him, but he refused to tell," exclaimed the old man.

"I refuse on the ground that it is no business of yours. If you get the money, that is all you have to do with it."

"Why, it must be a swindle," cried Reuben, insolently.

"Not at all. I leave swindling to you," returned the factor, with cutting significance.

"What the devil do you mean by that?" roared the youth, his blotched face becoming the colour of scarlet.

"Precisely what I say. I do not practise swindling, I leave it to you. You may pretend not to understand me, but you do, right well. Stand aside, sir, and let me pass."

"Not till you apologise for the words you have spoken," shouted Reuben, keeping his place in the doorway, and raising his stick in a threatening manner, the old man the whole time sitting by the table shaking with rage.

"Oh," said Bishop, with provoking coolness and an expression of withering contempt, "don't be so ill advised by passion as to offer violence. Thanks to the hoofs of the exciseman's horse, you are not in a condition to play the bully. Lower that stick, sir, or I may be tempted to send your false teeth where another hand sent your real ones—down your throat."

The shot told with as much effect as the lawyer could wish. The youth's arm which held the stick fell powerless by his side, and he staggered so far aside as to leave Bishop room to pass. Without allowing the youth time to recover, the lawyer stalked slowly—erect and dignified—from the room, fixing with his stern eye the quailing gaze of the confounded plotter, who saw by the factor's words that he had in some mysterious way come to know of the scene in the Paris gambling-house.

Workingmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

Change of Business

W. NEWPORT

BEGS TO INFORM HIS FRIENDS and the public generally, that he has removed his Bakery and Confectionery establishment from Wyndham street, opposite the Post Office, to the more extensive premises next Kennedy's Jewellery Store, on St. George's Square, where everything in his line will be found first-class.

An English writer thinks the American early potatoes will come to an end ere long, for as each new variety is claimed to ripen about ten days earlier than the other, the time between planting and digging will soon be used up.

He said he had wrought out the 13—15—14 puzzle, when a quiet looking individual remarked, "Stranger, I suspect you did it, if you say so; but if I were in your place I should feel kind o' proud of my abilities as a first-rate liar."

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

At one time the gossips set about a story that Lady Burdett Coutts was going to be married to the Iron Duke of Wellington. The late Sir Robert Inglis, wondering much at such a rumor, bluntly asked the Duke if he had really offered to marry her. "I said," growled his grace, "that she deserved to be a Duchess; I did not say I would make her one." "The Duke should have said 'could,' not 'would,'" remarked the Baroness, drily, when the story was related to her.

Two young men out riding were passing a farm house where a farmer was trying to harness a mule. "Won't he draw?" said one of the horsemen. "Of course he will, said the farmer; "he draws the attention of every fool that passes."

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

By command of the Queen, a stone cross has been erected on the spot where the Prince Imperial lost his life in Zululand.

The extraordinary cold winter has severely injured the grape vines in France, and it is feared that this year's crop will be very poor. The vines in Burgundy and more especially in Champagne, have suffered considerably.

The most stringent measures are being adopted against the Nihilists. A large number of suspected persons have been arrested, and the police make frequent domiciliary visits.

The Duchess of Marlborough's relief fund now amounts to £90,525.

Walter, one of the principal promoters of the great turf fraud, has been sentenced to 20 years' penal servitude for a series of forgeries on the various banks.

The Admiralty division of the High Court of Justice has ordered the certificate of Capt. Jones, in command of the Arizona when she ran into an iceberg, to be returned to him.

In Scotland the Liberals are avoiding the jealousies which lost them many seats in 1874, and are attacking their opponents boldly and at every point. The organization of the Conservatives is even more complete than that of the Liberals, but their spirits are evidently not by any means so high.

In the House of Lords on Monday the Duke of Rutland (Conservative) called attention to the depression of trade and agriculture. Lord Beaconsfield contended that the revival of trade was general. He believed it would last.

The Times says Parnell's determination that the advanced Home Rulers shall put forward new candidates in a number of constituencies to oppose the Moderate Home Rulers or Liberals who decline Home Rule pledges, has thrown Irish politics into a confusion which may benefit the Conservatives. This is in striking contrast with the discipline and method of the contest in Scotland.

At a Conservative meeting at Hackney on Tuesday, Sir Stafford Northcote severely condemned Mr. Gladstone for using offensive language towards Austria. He read a despatch from the ambassador at Vienna, stating that the Austrian Minister of Foreign Affairs desires to disavow the language attributed to the Emperor by Mr. Gladstone. Mr. Gladstone said the Emperor in a recent speech had called him a pestilent fellow.

At the dinner on Monday in honor of the Emperor William's birthday, the Czar said:—"On the anniversary of my accession the Emperor of Germany gave me renewed proof of his constant friendship by an official letter, which was immediately published, and also by a private letter, both of which deeply moved me. I reciprocate the sentiments expressed in them and count upon the maintenance and consolidation of the relations which have existed for more than a century between the two peoples. I drink to the health of the Emperor, my best friend.

MONTREAL, March 24.—At a meeting of the hardware trade held here, it was decided to send a deputation to Ottawa on Tuesday next to discuss with the Minister of Customs the question of difference between purchase and assumed market values at date of shipment for custom entries.

From Quebec.

QUEBEC, March 24.—Another snow storm has set in this morning from the east.

It is expected that fully 2,500 to 4,000 strangers will visit Quebec during the coming review on the 24th of May.

From Toronto.

TORONTO, March 24.—The approaching advent of Col. Ingersoll creates considerable excitement in religious circles.

Circulars from the headquarters at Philadelphia, about the movement of Irishmen against England, have been sent to at least one society here, but no response was made.

Shocking Accident.

ODESSA, Ont. March 24.—A shocking accident occurred near here a few days ago, from the effects of which Thomas Rayworth, aged about 70 years, lost his life. As far as can be learned the particulars are as follows:—Mr. Rayworth and his hired man, named Cook, were engaged in hauling a load of lumber. Cook, wished the load to be bound on, but Mr. Rayworth thought it unnecessary, and started ahead on foot, the team following, and on descending a hill the loose lumber shoved ahead on the horses, frightening them and causing a runaway. Mr. Rayworth being deaf was run over, from the effects of which he died this morning.

Local News.

THERE were no cases at the Police Court to-day.

A REDUCTION is to be made in the rent of Market stalls.

A MOVEABLE ticket office is to be erected at the entrance to the City Hall.

IT has been decided that the police will wear helmets during the summer.

THE City Hall has been thoroughly renovated and presents a cleanly appearance.

A BEAUTIFUL large butterfly was seen flying in a garden in the St. Patrick's Ward yesterday.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Northerly to easterly winds gradually decreasing in force; partly cloudy to clear cold weather followed to-morrow by milder weather.

MR. JOHN ANDERSON has been appointed travelling advertising agent for the Globe in place of Mr. Thos. Taylor, who was obliged to resign on account of ill health.

THE wood work at the Police Court is being cleaned. A lavatory is to be constructed in the room for the policemen's clothes and for property recovered from prisoners.

WANTED BY THE POLICE.—J. P. Capron, Chief of Police, Ingersoll, has sent instructions to the Police in various cities to arrest John Barker, an Englishman, and peddlar of fancy goods, who is wanted for some misdemeanor in that town.

OBSTRUCTIONS TO STREETS.—The City Council last night decided to notify all parties who had buildings encroaching on the streets to remove them immediately. In cases where valuable buildings are encroaching it was decided to charge a rental of fifty cents per year.

ACROSS THE TABLE.—During the discussion at the City Council on Tuesday evening Ald. Coffee referred to Ald. Bruce as "a poor appindex from St. Andrew's Ward." The latter gentleman seemed content after giving vent to the expression that a poor appendage was better than a general nuisance.

MILITARY CHANGES.—Major McDonald has been promoted to the command of a division of a Field Artillery to be formed in the city. Lieut. Nicoll has succeeded him in command of the Ontario Field Battery, being appointed to the office of Captain. Lieut.-Col. Moffatt handed over the stores and guns of the Wellington Field Battery to Captain Nicoll on Tuesday.

MANUFACTURES.—The Special Committee on manufactures of the City Council, reported on Tuesday evening. They recommend as an inducement to manufacturers to establish here, giving them free water rates and exempting them from taxation for a number of years. The report proposes advertising in the best trade journals setting forth these inducements.

RUNAWAY.—Rather an exciting runaway occurred this (Wednesday) forenoon. Morris Neagle, of Puslinch, left his team standing in front of Present's mill. They took fright and started at a furious pace up Huskisson street. At the railway crossing a tire was knocked off one of the wheels, and the waggon upsetting, the box was thrown off and broken. The horses continued running, going on to Carden street and around the City hall. While turning the south east corner of the City hall building one of the wheels came in contact with a post and was held fast. A whiffletree was broken, releasing one of the horses while the harness was torn completely off the other horse. They ran past the front of the City hall again on to the Market Square where they were stopped. The waggon and harness were badly wrecked.

ANOTHER PIONEER OF PUSLINCH GONE.—With feelings of regret we to-day record the death of Mr. J. Little, which sad event took place on Tuesday morning about 6 a. m. The cause of his death was a severe attack of cold, which turned to pleurisy. His complaint presented no serious aspect until eight days ago, then it was thought prudent to secure the services of Dr. Winn, who pronounced his case hopeless. At the hour mentioned his spirit took its flight to the mansions above. The deceased was born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, June, 1811. He emigrated to this country thirty-six years ago, and like the sturdy sons of Scotia, endowed with energy and perseverance, cleared his bush farm, and made a comfortable home for himself and numerous family; The partner of his toil, Mrs. Little, departed this life eight years ago, which was a shock of sore bereavement to them all. The deceased was highly respected in all the neighborhood, and his end was peace. He leaves eleven of a family to mourn his loss, they all bear the sore loss with faith and cheerfulness, in strong hope to meet him in the mansions of glory.—Com

Startling Revelations.

A Bruce County Indian Charged with Three Murders.

Dave Ritchie, an Indian, well known in the County of Bruce, is at present in the Walkerton jail for threatening to shoot a man. This has encouraged a friend of his to give the following startling revelations:—

In the year 1876 a quantity of lumber came ashore on the Peninsula of Bruce, and Ritchie took possession of the same, which, however, was stolen during his absence. In the same place shortly afterwards, in company with this friend, three Indians were seen approaching the land in a boat. Ritchie declared these to be the parties who stole his lumber, and said he would shoot them. The friend remonstrated, but he (Ritchie) said he would shoot him, too, if he said anything about it. He then, with one shot, killed two of the Indians, and with an oar broke open the skull of the third. The bodies were then put into the boat, to which they were fastened, weights attached, set adrift and sunk in a great depth of water. Constable Briggs, of Port Elgin, is working up the affair; and will doubtless obtain sufficient evidence to make Ritchie swing—something that has been long ago predicted for him.

Dinner to Sir A.

OTTAWA, March 24.—Quite a number of the members of Montreal left to-day for Montreal with the intention of attending the dinner to Sir Alex. Galt.

Orders for extensive castings for the Hudson Bay buildings, at Winnipeg, have been received by a firm here.

Report of the Ontario Agricultural College.

The report of Mr. Brown, Professor of Agriculture, deals with every department of out door work, and will prove of special interest to the practical farmer, dealing as it does with every department in agriculture, and giving the results of close and systematic observation and carefully conducted experiments. While he has a thorough appreciation of the value of lectures, he says rightly that neither these, nor instruction alone in a single department, but the repeated personal handling of every sort of farm work under a variety of conditions that alone can make the thorough practical and scientific farmer. In order the more thoroughly to carry out this, he recommends that the course of study should extend over three years instead of two. Even as it now is, the report shows that in the two years' course the pupil will put in 400 days of actual work outdoors, and will hear and take notes of 900 lectures on various subjects connected with agriculture. From the above it will be seen that the students lead by no means an idle life.

Mr. Brown furnishes this year some interesting charts relating to the weather, the quantity of grain grown and the amount of stock raised in Ontario as compared with Britain; also a comparison between the different breeds of cattle as regards the quantity of milk produced, and its richness, and the prolificacy of the different breeds. The result, in the order of desirability, is as follows:—Shorthorn grade, Shorthorn, Hereford, Polls, Devons, Ayrshire. What may be called the accidental superiority of the Shorthorn grade over the pure bred is, however, due to a chance want of prolificacy in an important member of the Shorthorn herd. The same test has been applied to sheep, which are placed in the following order of merit: Southdowns, Cotswold, Oxford Downs, and Border Leicester. In summing up his observations he says:—"Our experience says first for the South Down—the least interfered with breed of the lot in home history among the chalk hills, but with a very close competition from the very old, though not now so pure in their original blood, graziers of the Cotswold hills. The newness of the Oxford with us, remember, may be much of the character of most 'new brooms,' but as its four years' conduct has been permanent enough, we give it precedence of the good old English Leicester, per Border management stamp, but, nevertheless, with no less respect for said Leicesters even in this connection."

Reference is made to the success of the Farm stock—which are either on the place or have been sold—at different Exhibitions, and considering the short time since the new stock was obtained the record is a most creditable one. At all the great Exhibitions some of the cattle or sheep have been prize takers; and at the Chicago Fat Stock Show, last fall, the sheep beat all competitors, and threw the American exhibits entirely in the shade.

It was to be expected that a large space would be devoted to the experimental department, which is one of the most important at the Institution. As the results of the experiments made are fraught with the greatest importance to the farmers, Mr. Brown handles these with great ability, and it is evident all through that he has given the greatest care and attention to this part of his duties. Briefly summarized, we may say that the experiments with different kinds of manures on wheat gave the best results in two cases from farm yard manure and nitrate of soda together; the third best from farm yard manure and bone dust; the fourth from barn yard manure and gypsum, and fifth from barn yard manure and salt. The deductions from these experiments are that farm manure alone, costing $19.50 per acre, will give a crop of wheat and straw worth, at $1 for wheat and $5 for straw, $23.05. By adding bone dust worth $5.40 the crop is increased in value from $23.05 to $30.25. By adding $6 worth of nitrate of soda the crop is increased to $33. Of gypsum $1.06 worth added to the farm yard manure increased the crop to $28.65; and of salt 85 cents worth added to the farm yard manure gave a crop of $28.55. Of superphosphates it took $6.80 worth added to the farm yard manure to increase the crop to $26.50. The inference from this is that salt and gypsum are the cheapest stimulants the farmer can buy, but being stimulents only their continued use will impoverish the farm. The experiments show that bone dust is the best manure, and that superphosphate is about the dearest of all.

Experiments on the action of various manures on turnips gave 489 bushels as the product from an acre manured with farm yard manure; 353 bushels from mineral superphosphate and gypsum; 350 bushels from bone dust and salt; 333 bushels from bone superphosphate and mineral superphosphate; 328 from mineral superphosphate; and so on down to 75 bushels without manure, and 46 bushels from nitrate of soda.

An essay on wheat varieties contains a good deal of valuable matter. A comparison of the forage crop grown on the farm shows that corn yielded 25 tons, thousand-headed kale 15 tons, lucerne 14 tons, rape 7 tons, red clover 6 tons, rye 4 tons, and millet, prickly comfrey, and tares and oats mixed, 3 tons each. Lucerne is held to be proved profitable, and to succeed best broadcast. It has a season from April to October, being the longest in season of all the forage crops.

We must leave over reference to the remainder of the Report till another day.

Petroleum is now thrown up in Kentucky by volcanic action. There have been lately several outbursts of this kind in Cumberland county.

The wheat blockade in Chicago continues, the attempt to make Wilwaukee wheat receipts regular in Chicago having proved unsuccessful. J. R. Keene, who holds the corner, is one of the wealthiest men on the continent, and can probably afford to hold on a while longer.

The public will be pleased to learn that Mr. Vennor, the "Weather Prophet," is at present laid up with the measles.

Mr. Bathgate and a number of other persons in Winnipeg intend applying for a charter to constitute them a body corporate under the name of the "Western Printing and Publishing Company, Limited," with a capital of $25,000, for the purpose of carrying on the printing and publishing of newspapers and of doing job and general printing.

It is expected that the two sons of the Prince of Wales will be present at the review to be held at Quebec on the 24th of May.

First Presbyterian Church Social.

The Social, given by the young ladies belonging to the Bible class in connection with this church, came off on Tuesday night, and was very successful. The church was well filled, and in addition to those belonging to it were many representatives from other congregations. After an excellent tea, which was admirably served by the young ladies, assisted by a number of young men, who acted as stewards, Mr. Stull, Superintendent of the Sabbath School, was appointed chairman, and prefaced the programme of the evening with a few suitable remarks. He was followed by Rev. Messrs. Ball, Mullan, (Fergus), Maxwell, Howie, Smith and Wardrope, who gave excellent addresses, in which the importance of the early religious training of the young was mainly dwelt upon. Other remarks of a general character, and partly in the humorous vein, were also well put, and well recived, and all expressed the earnest hope that under the pastoral care of the Rev. Mr. Torrance, and the superintendence of the Rev. Mr. Stull, the young people of the congregation might grow up to be of great service to the church. Between the addresses, the choir, under the able leadership of Mr. Black, gave several anthems in good style, Miss Annie Gowdy, playing the accompaniments on the piano. Instrumental duetts were also given by Miss Lizzie Torrance and Miss Bessie Armstrong, and Miss Annie Gowdy and Miss Tomlinson gave a vocal duet. The solos were given by Messrs. Black, Robt. Millar and Strachan. The musical part of the programme was of special interest, and both singers and players did remarkably well. Miss Keables gave one of her excellent readings—Mrs. Caudle's comments on Masonry—which was well received. The proceedings, which were of a very pleasant character, were brought to a close by singing the Doxology and the Benediction by Rev. Mr. Torrance.

The children belonging to the congregation have their social this afternoon in the church at 5 p. m.

Mr. Colby's Bill respecting the inspection of petroleum has been distributed. He has finally decided to make the test 115 instead of 110, as at first intended.

It is expected that next fall trains will be running over Mr. John Ryan's contract for 100 miles west of Manitoba.

CITY COUNCIL.

Special Meeting on Tuesday Evening.

Report of the Committee on Manufactures.

A special meeting of the City Council was held on Tuesday evening to receive the reports of the Special Committee on Manufactures and Standing Committees. There were present Mayor Sleeman, Ald. MacMillan, Burns, McLagan, Bruce, Tyson, Hart, Hewer, Fairbank, Hall, Robertson, Stevenson, Doran, Chadwick, Coffee.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Ald. McLagan, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported, recommending:—That C. E. Romain be refunded the the amount of taxes against his income tax for the years he paid the same under protest. They could not recommend the payment of the accounts of J. Allan till certified by the Returning Officer, nor the accounts of T. J. Day until the items are distributed among the different committees that obtained the good for which charges are made. They could not recommend granting the petitions of James Hutter, Mrs. Renn, Wm. Reynolds, R. M. Richardson, Mrs. Newth, and J. T. Cunningham. They recommended payment of $137.38, the amount claimed by the County Poor House Inspector for the maintenance of four indigent persons between July 1st and Jan. 1st, at $1.32 each per week. They have to recommend the payment of the accounts of Messrs. Hart, $25; Chadwick, $25; and Alex. Bruce, $80, for services rendered in connection with the arbitration award. In reference to the memorial of the South Wellington Agricultural Society the Committee are unable to agree as to what course should be adopted, and have to refer the matter to the Council for settlement.

The Council went into Committee to consider the report—Ald. Hart in the chair.

Ald. Doran and Stevenson moved that the report be amended by exempting Mrs. Renn and Newth from taxation. Lost.

There was considerable opposition to the clause recommending the payment of accounts to the valuators of the gaol at the time the City and County were being separated. The clause was finally passed.

The report was passed without amendment, and the Committee rose.

In Council,

Ald. Coffee and Doran moved that the report be amended by offering Mr. Bruce $40 for his services as valuator of the County buildings.

The amendment was lost on the following vote:—

YEAS—Ald. Coffee, Doran—2.

NAYS—Ald. Chadwick, Stevenson, Robertson, Hall, Fairbank, Hewer, Hart, Tyson, Bruce, McLagan, Burns, MacMillan—12.

On motion of Ald. McLagan and Bruce the report was adopted.

Ald. Chadwick and Robertson then moved as an addition to the report:

That the accounts referred to in the last clause of the Finance Report as being due for articles supplied to the Joint Committee appointed for the reception of the Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise be paid, and that the balance of $134 due by the Agricultural Society, be held against the said Society until they are in a position to pay the same.

The yeas and nays being called for on the resolution it was passed on the following vote:—

YEAS—Ald. Chadwick, Robertson, Hall, Fairbank, Hewer, Hart, Tyson, Bruce, McLagan Burns, MacMillan—11.

NAYS—Ald. Coffee, Doran and Stevenson—3.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Ald. Chadwick, chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, reported, stating that the committee had been requested by the Directors of the Arthur Junction Railway to assist them in Peel, and recommend that Messrs. McLagan, MacMillan, Chadwick and the Mayor be a deputation to render such assistance in strengthening the hands of the Directors as may be necessary in advocating the passage of the by-law in Peel township.

That all parties encroaching on streets and squares of the city be notified to remove the same immediately, and in cases where valuable buildings are obstructing, that a yearly fee of 50 cents be exacted as a rental.

On motion of Ald. Chadwick and Stevenson, the report was adopted.

MARKETS AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Ald. Hart, chairman, presented a report recommending paying the following accounts:—Geo. Murton, $18.40; James Shepherd, $27.99. The account of A. McBean & Co. was left over for reference to last year's Committee.

That a reduction in the rents of butchers' stalls be made.

That the petition of the Separate School trustees for the privilege of holding their meetings in the Council Chamber be granted. That some competent persons be employed to examine and report on the best and most economical method of providing additional egress from the City Hall, the improvement of the stairs, the erection of a moveable ticket office at the foot of the stairs, the enlargement of the Clerk's office and the construction of the necessary lavatories.

The report was adopted.

PARKS AND TREES.

Ald. Fairbank, chairman of the Committee on Parks and Trees, reported recommending that the accounts of R. Stewart for lumber, $5.62, be paid; that Mr. Marriott be instructed to enter upon his duties as caretaker, and gardener, on the 1st of April next, and that Mr. Congalton be requested to vacate the house at the Exhibition grounds before that date; that the Clerk be instructed to advertise for tenders for the delivery of trees.

The report was adopted.

POLICE.

Ald. Hall, chairman of the Police Committee, reported, recommending payment of the following accounts:—T. J. Day $5, Chief McMillan $10.94, Thomas Lynch $1.50, Shaw & Murton 50 cents, J. E. McElderry 30 cents. That the Police be furnished with new belts and batons, also that suitable summer caps or helmets be purchased for them. That a cupboard be purchased in which to store away police clothing and other articles not in use.

The report was adopted.

MANUFACTURES.

The Special Committee on aiding and encouraging the location of new manufactories in the City presented the following report:—

They have to state that at a joint meeting of the committee with the committee of the Property Owners Association, it was decided that the corporation should hold out inducements to manufacturers to locate in Guelph by agreeing to exempt their establishments from taxation, and also allow them the free use of water from the Water Works for a number of years.

The committee at present cannot recommend the granting of a cash bonus, believing the same to be unsound in principle, and almost invariably resulting in failure.

The Committee are of opinion that were the advantages which Guelph possesses as a distributing point for manufacturing purposes properly advertised in some of the leading trade journals of the United States, enquiries made might lead to the establishment of various branches of mechanical industry in our midst.

Your Committee have had before them a list of several articles that are not manufactured to any great extent in the country, and are largely used by builders, cabinet makers, saddlers, carriage builders and others, which are protected by a thirty per cent. tariff, and can be profitably manufactured in Guelph.

The Report was adopted.

APPOINTMENT OF A CARETAKER.

A by-law was introduced and passed its second reading, for the appointment of a caretaker at the Exhibition Grounds, at a salary of $250 annually.

THE DOG BY-LAW

The Dog by-law was read a second time.

The words "bearing the name of the owner" were struck from the clause describing the collar.

The committee rose, with permission to sit again.

OFFICIAL'S SALARIES.

Council went into committee on a by-law to fix the salaries of the City officials, Mr. Robertson in the chair.

WEDNESDAY EV'NG, MARCH 24 1880

The School Board and the Appointment of Teachers.

The Herald is unnecessarily exercised in reference to matters which have been under discussion by the School Board. As to the question of referring applications of teachers to the Principal and Inspector first, that was settled long ago by deliberate resolution of the Board, which is still in force. The Principal being held responsible by the Board for the character and standing of the schools, it was rightly felt that he should have an advisory power in the selection of teachers, subject of course to the ultimate decision of the Board. This is exactly the position taken now by the Board—no more, no less—and it is no more under the direction of the Principal now than it ever was. The plan has worked well hitherto, and we see no reason why it should not continue to work well in future. Those members of the Board who think that their dignity is offended by former practices of the Board had better lay their grievances before that body, and endeavor if they can, to mend matters by proposing some better mode of action.

What the N. P. has Done for Guelph.

The London Free Press wishes to make its readers believe that we are veering round in our views on the National Policy because we have urged on our corporation the desirability of doing something to foster local manufactures. This is strange reasoning from the protectionist, erstwhile free trade, organ. On the contrary we are urging the fostering of manufactures because the National Policy has done nothing in that direction as yet, and there is no prospect of it doing anything. It is surely a strange commentary on the alleged success of the N. P.—according to the Free Press—when we have sorrowfully to admit that mechanics are leaving the place every week, and that things are in a worse state than they were at this time last year. As to the shipment of oatmeal from Guelph, which we mentioned last week, and which the Free Press drags in as a proof that the N. P. should get the credit of it, we may tell our contemporary that it is no new thing such shipments—that in fact the products of the mill referred have been for years shipped to the British markets before the N. P. was dreamed of, or brought into force. The Free Press had better go somewhere else than to Guelph to get any evidence of the success of the National Policy, of which it was a life-long opponent until whipped into protectionist traces about two years ago.

The Currency Question.

It is worth while now and again to come across an unprejudiced opinion—on any public question—by an individual or a journal which is in no way interested in our affairs. We find something like this in the following plainly and honestly expressed views of the St. Paul (Minn.) Free Press on the financial schemes of our Government, and the wilder schemes of a few who advocate the issue of an irredeemable currency. In referring to the budget speech of Sir L. Tilley, the Free Press says :—

"The remedy which the finance minister proposes for his deficit is as worthy of attention as the measure that was the cause of it. The antidote, like the poison, is borrowed from the United States. Having gotten into trouble by imitating our tariff, the Canadian ministers propose to get out of trouble by imitating our paper money. Sir L. Tilley surrounds the unpleasant proposition with a good deal of sophism and rhetoric, but the bare fact is that he proposes to cover up the present and future deficits by the issue of paper money. The present statutory limit upon the issue of Canadian treasury notes is $12,000,000. At present the government is bound to hold dollar for dollar in gold on all amounts of currency issued over $12,000,000, and fifty per cent. in gold on all issued over $9,000,000 and under $12,000,000. The finance minister proposes in his budget speech to extend the statutory limit from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000, and make a gold basis of twenty-five per cent. on all issues, fifteen per cent. in gold, and ten per cent in Dominion or guaranteed securities at four per cent. It is argued that this will not only permit an increase of $8,000,000 of Dominion notes, and thus create a boom in business, but release a considerable amount of gold now held as a basis of circulation, and thus relieve the necessities of government. These arguments are specious and are hailed with delight by the infant, but noisy paper money party in Canada, though they are condemned by the Liberal and received coldly by the Conservative press. The influences that are sure to favor the project are active and powerful in Canada just now, and the government treads upon a perilous brink in adopting a proposition for paper currency. The existence of a small amount of treasury notes has had the usual effect of creating a political party who want an unlimited amount. Canada is full of schemes of internal improvement, seeking government aid, which would welcome a proposition to print cheap paper money in the hope to share generously in the distribution of it. A long season of business depression has created a feeling of discontent and poverty, that welcomes any means of relief without inquiring too closely into its efficacy. Altogether, Canada is in a promising condition to catch the paper money fever, and the ministers had better not play with infection. They should be satisfied with the result of their experiments with the American tariff, without venturing upon the American greenback.

Interesting Letter from Manitoba.

The following letter is from Mr. Robert Plummer, of Manitoba, to his brother in Nassagaweya, and contains some very interesting information about the country. He writes as follows:—

MEADOW LEA, Feb'y. 29th, 1880.

DEAR BROTHER,—I received your letter on the 17th of this month, and according to promise, sit down to write you a long letter and give my opinion of this far off North-western region. I will try to give you as true an account as I can, touching on both the dark and bright sides of the question.

There are many stories about this great lone land, but neither you nor any man can tell the truth about it until you have lived here about three years. There is any amount of land. I have seen hundreds of acres and the one-third of it is not fit for farming, lying low, being wet, and because of alkilie beds lying quite dry on top of the soil and seems to have no bottom. These beds run between the dry land and hay meshes. The best of the land is under water. There are some of the alkalie beds on the high land. During seeding time teams will get stuck in the mud.

The timber available for settlers to make improvements is of very poor quality, being too small. It is a hard matter to get logs twenty feet long and six inches through at the top. It is poplar, and will rot in four years. There are some fine patches of oak along the Assiniboine River. What timber there is would not make five acres fencing to every hundred acres of cleared land. Rail fencing is out of the question; wire is what they are fencing with. Stabling for stock is the worst matter to get over. The only material used in their construction is the small poplar logs. Half the stables you would not put your pigs in. The stables are roofed with hay or manure and banked around. In fact, the stables look like a heap of dung.

They told me when I came out here, the weather was dry in the spring and fall. Since I came here it has rained from the first of April to the first of July. The weather is hard on cattle in April, as they have to be kept in the stables on accofunt of storms. Cattle have been known to be driven ten miles with April storms.

Horses no not thrive in this country. The stables being bad while the hay is not good, and I think it is too cold for them. One-third of the Canadian horses die. The native and Mountain ponies are best suited to the country, as they can go through the meshes better than heavy teams.

The roads are very soft when the frost is out of the ground. Ten hundred pounds is a good load. I was hauling lime and had twenty bushels one trip and pulled through. The next trip I took thirty bushels and my waggon went down in one of the alkalie beds and I was three hours in getting it out. I have seen four yoke of oxen drawing a waggon through an alkalie bed. Sometimes when a waggon is stuck it has to be taken to pieces, the alkalie sticks so much. The best way of teaming is the native. They use a cart and one ox. I saw as many as seventy-five single oxen and ponies in one trail. The main road from Saskatchewan to Winnipeg is line with these freighters. You might as well have some half dozen Highlandmen playing the pipes as listen to the noise of the carts which are not greased. The freighters will be stopped when the C. P. Railway is finished.

The C. P. Railway will be built one hundred miles west of Winnipeg this year. It will run two miles south of my land.

I am thirty miles west of Winnipeg, and have three hundred and twenty acres of good prairie land. The bush land is two miles away. It is very low and wet. There is some good land along the river, in places, but not the amount represented in the newspapers.

I would think the average yield about ten bushels of wheat to the acre; oats, twenty; barley, fifteen. The land might yield more if well drained.

The seasons are very short. Winter sets in the 20th of October. Since then we have had freezing weather up till the present. Some times it was 50° below zero, but generally 30° below zero. Mostly every man one meets has his nose frozen, or has had it frozen. I have escaped frost bites so far. It is something desperate to be out in one of those blizzards. You cannot face the wind; you cannot see ten feet ahead and it will cut your face. I would like to have you here to experience one of the blizzards. You would have many a thought if you were out on the plains and not a house within ten miles of you. Oxen have been frozen stiff while standing in the yoke. Every other day this winter has been stormy. We have two feet of snow and no signs of a thaw yet; nor are there likely to be any till the 1st April.

I wish you were here to help me to shoot prairie chickens and deer. I shot a fine deer the day before Christmas and any amount of chickens, and I was out to Manitoba lake a week fishing. There were seven of us together. We had a tent and store and spent a jolly time. I caught nine hundred fine pike and three devil fish. The pike weighed about three pound each. We have any amount of fish to eat this spring and they are splendid. It is great fun pulling them out. We have to cut a hole through four feet of ice and the ice is said to be thin this winter. It is said to have been ten feet thick some winters.

This is a country of all kinds of people. We have the Indian wild and civilized, Scotch and French half-breeds, Icelanders, Mennonites, Norwegians, Irish, English, Scotch and Canadians. If you go among the half-breeds you can get any amount of vermin. In our settlement we have no half-breeds. The settlement is made up of people from Chinguscousy, and if I was with you a day I could tell you some strange things.

I may see you before two years as I intend to leave this part. I will sell out the first chance I get. I do not like this country, it is too cold and stormy and I cannot see how a man can make a comfortable home. You cannot grow any fruit trees.

We are all well at present, and hoping you are enjoying the same blessing, we send our love to you all.

Your affectionate brother.
ROBERT PLUMMER.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Mr. Charles Mighton, of Pilkington, has purchased fifty acres of land adjoining his own from the executors of the late Samuel Auger, for the sum of $2200.

The Provisional Council of Dufferin meets on Tuesday, 22nd, and promises to be a very important meeting. In addition to other important business it is supposed the clerk and treasurer will be appointed.

Nearly three thousand immigrants landed at New York on Sunday and Monday. The total this month thus far is nearly thirteen thousand, or more than double that of the corresponding month last year.

There is said to be no truth in the report that E. B. Eddy has received orders for matches, &c., from St. Louis, which will keep his large establishment running for night and day.

A party of immigrants numbering about forty-five left Penetanguishene for Minnesota and Dakota on Tuesday, where they intended taking up land and farming. They took with them about two car loads of live stock, farming implements, etc.

John Keys, a shoemaker of Ashton village, near Ottawa, deliberately shot at and wounded Hugh Conn, hotel-keeper, and W. J. Devers, clerk, as they were passing down the street on Tuesday. Keys, when drunk, is a dangerous character, and was under the influence of liquor.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 23.

A number of petitions against the Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister were presented. It is noticeable that the petitions against the Bill have been almost entirely confined to clergymen and adherents of one branch of the Protestant Church.

The whole day was occupied in debating the Budget.

Mr. White, Cardwell, spoke for about two hours. His speech as a whole was a creditable effort, although he was scarcely as conversant with the fiscal affairs of the Dominion as he claimed to be. He argued that the National Policy had not have a fair trial, therefore it should not be prejudged, and dealing with certain statements made respecting the depressed state of industries at St. Catharines, he read a number of letters respecting the special cases which had been cited. Taking up the question of sugar duties, he contended that the price of sugar, instead of having been increased under the present tariff, was actually less than under the old tariff, whereas Canada now had the advantages and benefits derived from refining the sugar.

Mr. Casgrain spoke until after recess, pointpointing out the ill fruits of the Government's general and fiscal policy, and directing attention to the advisability of not proceeding with the construction of the Pacific Railway in British Columbia until such time as the North-West had been fairly developed and organized.

Mr. Coursol gave utterance to the opinion that so popular was the National Policy in Montreal that if he were to enter into an election contest there now his majority would be double what it was last time.

Mr. Charlton, in a speech very moderate in tone, dealt at length with Mr. Thos. White's contentions, especially that portion of his speech in which he misrepresented the estimates of 1874-5, introduced by Sir Richard Cartwright. Mr. Charlton, in a happy manner, explained the exodus of Canadians to the United States by saying it was probably incited and assisted by the distribution of Yankee immigration literature by the Minister of Agriculture and the Postmaster-General. As the representative of an agricultural constituency, and one situated in the corn growing belt of Ontario he was competent to speak on the question of agricultural protection, and after carefully considering the subject in its various bearings he characterized the Government's attempts to impose agricultural protection as the veriest of frauds.

Mr. Plumb spoke until the House rose at 12.30 a. m., when the debate was adjourned.

A Revolutionary Appeal to Irishmen.

PHILADELPHIA, March 21.—A month ago a secret meeting was held in this city, at which a Committee was appointed to organize a revolutionary movement in America to free Ireland from England's rule. This committee issued circulars to one thousand Irish associations and organizations, inviting them to vote on a location for the holding of a convention. Two hundred and fifty replies, with nearly a thousand signatures, were opened at a meeting of the Committee today. Of the votes cast Philadelphia was the choice. It was agreed to hold the Convention in Philadelphia, to continue from June 24th to July 3rd. The call for the Convention will be issued in a few days. The text of the proclamation is as follows:—

TO ALL MEN OF IRISH BLOOD—

Seeing that the Old Land from which you sprang is made a beggar and a by-word of wretchedness among the nations of the earth by the rapacity of England, we solicit a representative from your locality at a Convention to determine the measures necessary to obtain for Irishmen the full, free, and independent government of their country. We deem it proper to solicit a representative from every Irish Society —Hibernian, Fenians, Mutual Alliance, the Skirmishers, Temperance Benevolent and Beneficial, and all societies having a membership of men desiring the freedom of Ireland. If any division, branch, club, or circle of a society has a constitution that prevents the society from taking action to send a delegate to this Convention, ten or more of its members can come together after adjournment of the society meeting, and act as men of Irish blood. When men of Irish blood do not belong to any Irish organization ten good men can come together, and in writing delegate one of their number to the Convention. Every man who will sign this call is expected to attend the Convention. If unable, he can send a substitute. Give your opinion as to the best time and place for holding the Convention. We shall respect the opinion of the majority.

This call was signed by representative Irishmen from every county in Ireland, and 10,000 copies were mailed in this country.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JACK BORLAND PAYS A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP—HE FINDS THE FACTOR IN DESPONDENCY AND LEAVES HIM IN ECSTASIES—ANTHONY LANGTON PROVES IMPRACTICABLE—TWO OLD ACQUAINTANCES MAKE A MUTUAL RECOGNITION.

Somewhat disconcerted, but under no real concern, Mr. Bishop walked down the avenue and along the footpath which led towards the Grange by way of the Birch Dell. His interview with Anthony Langton had assumed a character and reached a termination such as he had not anticipated. It had not occurred to him as possible that the money lender would refuse payment of his bond. He had fully anticipated the manifestations of chagrin, mortification, and rage, but not a refusal to take the money and cancel the deed. This course which the old man had taken caused a change in the situation of affairs which called for the lawyer's consideration, but gave him no alarm, and he had not reached the boundary between Cairnbank and the Grange ere he had settled with himself the mode of procedure to be adopted.

Down in the depths of the dell—near the mossy seat, sacred to the memory of a love that still lived, though under the shadow of separation, and the deeper gloom of the imagined shadow of death—Mr. Bishop found Jack Borland awaiting him. It was a meeting by appointment in order that at the earliest moment Jack might know how the lawyer had sped in his mission to Cairnbank.

Jack had been waiting fully an hour and had grown impatient. No sooner did Mr. Bishop's tall form appear on the crest of the slope than he leapt over the stream and came up the ascent to meet him.

"Have you been wearying for me, Mr. Wilson?" asked the factor as he seated himself on a grassy tuft round which bright-eyed primroses were blooming in profusion.

"Like a thirsty man for a draft of water," answered Jack. "It has surely taken old skinflint a long time to discharge the bond. He would feel it hard to part with it I guess. Did he storm and rave like a wild beast when its prey is snatched from its clutches. How did he look when you presented the draft? What did he say? How does he feel? Come tell me all about it."

"My dear sir, I must confine your imagination to the region of facts. He stormed and raved, and looked savage enough, but, he has the bond still."

"Has the bond," repeated Jack, with a look of consternation. "How is that?"

"Because he would not take the money, and insists on the sale going on."

This intelligence struck Jack all of a heap.

"Good heavens, sir, can he do that?" he gasped.

"He maintains that he can, according to a certain clause in the deed, I am very sure the Court would construe it against him, but it is not worth while to raise the question."

"Not worth while! Good gracious, sir, how can you say so. If you acquiesce, and the sale take place, he will secure it."

"Not necessarily," replied the lawyer with a composed smile. "In fact there is no danger of such a thing. Anthony Langton will make nothing by his refusal to discharge the bond. He gives us a little more trouble by insisting on the sale, but that is all. My first idea was to stop the sale at all hazards and let the law decide the matter, but on second thoughts I see it will be much the better way to let it go on; the trouble will be less, and the settlement all the earlier. You don't see that, I observe.

"I confess I do not," said Jack, with undiminished concern. "When the estate is set up he will be sure to bid high for it."

"He will, but you must bid against him."

"I!" echoed Jack.

"Yes; it will bring you into notice, but I think there is no danger of your identity being discovered. The utter alteration in your appearance and the change of name will prevent any old acquaintance recognizing Jack Borland."

"I'm not afraid of that," returned Jack. "What I was thinking of is the money. The truth is, Mr. Bishop, it took some scraping for me to raise the cash for the discharge of the bond, and however anxious I am to secure the estate for Orwell and Agnes, Langton may run it up to a figure which I cannot meet."

"Pooh! pooh! it does not matter what figure he runs it up to. You are bidding, not for yourself, but for Orwell; so whatever sum it is knocked down for—suppose a hundred thousand, instead of thirty, Anthony Langton can get no more than the sum named in his mortgage."

"Ha! I see it now," cried Jack, brightening up.

"Then you will appear at the sale and play your part?"

"Of course I will. Nothing will give me greater pleasure than to see the wretch's rage when I make advances on his bids. Oh, what would I not give to see him and his precious son properly punished for their cruelty and treachery towards Orwell Bruce."

"Ah! that will come by and by," said Mr. Bishop, gravely. "Neither you nor Mr. Orwell himself may be able to strike the blow. Yet inevitable retribution awaits him—you remember the words of 'the guid book.' 'Though hand join in hand, yet shall the wicked not go unpunished.'"

"And things would be badly ordered if they did," remarked Jack. "Well," he added, as they began to move down the dell, "Jessie and Agnes will have another week to wait ere receiving knowledge and happiness. I expected to make the grand discovery to them to-night after the cancelled mortgage was in your possession, but it must now be delayed till the evening of the day of sale."

"Yes, it will be better; you cannot be too cautious, considering the awkward position in which you stand, though your secret would be absolutely safe with Mrs. Borland and Agnes."

"As safe as in my own bosom," rejoined Jack. "But I resolved to myself that I would not tell them till the Grange was redeemed, and I must keep to the inward resolve."

"Do. It is only a week longer. How I do wish I could be present at the thrilling scene."

Jack shook his head. "It must be only when we are alone," he murmured.

"I am quite aware of that," said Bishop. "It will be too sacred for an an outsider to behold. Nevertheless, Mr. Wilson, you have to-day made me the happiest of men. You found me in the depths of despondency. If I had once more my dear boy back, whom I, had given up for lost, I would absolutely be without a care."

Having reached the vicinity of the mansion house they parted, Mr. Bishop proceeding on his way to Cairntree, and Jack turning eastward to cross the park to the cottage.

When he entered the little gate he found Agnes in the garden making up a bouquet of spring flowers—of primroses, cowslips, auriculas, and other early visitants of the parterres. She did not observe his approach, but the click of the gate caused her to look up, and on perceiving him a smile brightened her face—not the old bright smile of her happy days, for to that her face had long been a stranger, but one of pensive pleasure, which was as near an approach to gladness as her sorrowful face could show.

"I am so pleased you have returned, Mr. Wilson," she exclaimed. "Miss Elliott has come up from the schoolhouse to-night, and I wish so much for she and you to meet. You will be sure to like each other."

"I like her already from the report you have given me of her kindness and goodness," returned Jack. "I was going to ask you to allow me to go with you to the school some day; but as Miss Eliiott is here I shall sooner have the pleasure of seeing her. Of course these flowers you are gathering are for her?"

"How did you guess that?"

"Because I am certain she is fond of flowers, and I scarcely think they will bloom in any garden at the shore."

"You are right in both particulars. Dear Miss Elliott is passionately fond of flowers, and nothing but gowans and buttercups grow on the sea-braes. I mean to take her a fresh bunch every day so long as I have them to gather. But, alas! that will be but a short time now. Only four or five weeks, Mr. Wilson and then we must leave our dear-loved home."

The fair, pensive face clouded, and tears stood in her troubled eyes. Jack found it very hard to see the sadness and the tears and refrain from uttering the electric words which would change them into wildest joy. But the time for revelation had not quite come, and the rising lump in his throat had to be resolutely gulped down.

"Only a week," he thought to himself. "Only a week, and then——"

Agnes tripped in before him with the flowers in her hand, and next minute Jack was introduced to Miss Elliot, and was shaking that lady warmly by the hand.

"I consider you quite an acquaintance, Miss Elliot, said Jack. "Our two friends here have spoken so much of you that it seems as if I had known you a long time, and now that I see you I don't at all feel as if we had never met before,"

"I think, Mr. Wilson, that I may return the compliment," answered Miss Elliot, with a blush of pleasure. "Agnes is never tired of sounding the praises of her mother's lodger, and Mrs. Borland I find is equally enthusiastic."

As they thus exchanged greetings they gazed at each other with a curious steady intensity, a vague feeling suddenly arising in both their minds which did not seem wholly due to the knowledge they had obtained of each other from the warm and glowing representations of their mutual friends. On each side there was a dim consciousness that they were not, even personally, entire strangers—that they had met at some previous period of their lives. The impression startled both, but as neither could resolve it into anything real, they sank abruptly into their chairs and allowed the conversation to drift into a natural channel.

Neither Mrs Borland nor Agnes noticed anything peculiar in the manner of the meeting; it was therefore easier for the parties concerned to conceal from them the curious feeling which had arisen in their minds. The conversation that succeeded became animated, but during its course Miss Elliot and Jack frequently caught themselves regarding each other with earnest scrutiny; and as they did so the first feeling gradually grew into a conviction that they at one time knew each other—had in fact been closely associated together, as their struggling and groping recollection told them.

Miss Elliott was evidently the first to reach a solution of the perplexing problem as to when and where the acquaintance had taken place, for suddenly a deep flush rose on her cheeks, her eyes kindled with a new light, and an involuntary smile settled on her lips.

The blush, the glance, the smile brought to Jack's mind the sought for revelation, and in a moment he, too, was enlightened. The start which he gave, and the expression of consciousness which flashed into his face announced the fact so plainly that Miss Elliot understood the discovery was mutual.

Soon after she rose to go, much to the surprise of Agnes, who counted on her remaining to supper. "So I would, dear," she hurriedly explained, but this is one of my visiting nights at the shore, and if I did not present myself I know who would be disappointed. What beautiful flowers you have gathered for me. Are they not lovely, Mr Wilson? I am sure you have nothing sweeter in America."

"No, I don't think we have," responded Jack. "What is this one called?" he asked laying his finger on the fringe of blue which surrounded the nosegay.

"That?—Why, that is forget me not," she answered.

"Ah, I thought so," he said with a significant look, which brought the colour to Miss Elliot's cheek.

"Now you must not go with me to-night," she exclaimed, as Agnes was leaving the room to put on her bonnet. "If you do you won't be able to have Sbusie's little frock ready for her to sew to-morrow, and the little thing has been promised it, you know."

"I will just go to the gate of the park," pleaded Agnes."

"Very well, but not a foot further. I positively prohibit it."

"I hope the prohibition does not extend to me," remarked Jack, "for I mean to go all the way. I have no little girl's frock to put in shape."

"In that case I shall be glad to have you across the moor with me," she smilingly replied, and the arrangement was highly pleasing to Mrs. Borland and Agnes, who were glad to find their anticipations realized, viz., that Miss Elliot and Mr. Wilson would be sure to become good friends.

At the gate of the park Agnes said good night to her friend, and turned back, while Miss Elliot and Jack proceeded by themselves along the road leading to the shore.

W. NEWPORT

BEGS TO INFORM HIS FRIENDS and the public generally, that he has removed his Bakery and Confectionery establishment from Wyndham street, opposite the Post Office, to the more extensive premises next Kennedy's Jewellery Store, on St. George's Square, where everything in his line will be found first-class.

TORONTO DIOCESE.—It seems that the election of Dr. Sweetnam, as Bishop of that Diocese, has not allayed the trouble there. Speaking of his election and the new trouble springing up, the Mail says:—The compromise arrived at was creditable to both parties; especially to the clergy, who sacrificed much in making the concession. As many friends of the Church foresaw, however, the end was not yet. On the one hand, the determined persistence of the lay delegates in their adherence to Evangelical principles handed down from the Reformation was resented by the ordained preachers of sacerdotalism. This clerical distaste for lay intermeddling, as they regard it, with sacred things, has prompted a proposal to exclude all but communicants from the ordinary Easter meetings. It is questionable whether the new departure is sanctioned by either the law of the Church or the law of the land; indeed, Dr. Hodgins show satisfactorily that it would be contrary to both. Baptism constitutes membership in the Church of England; although it certainly does not, after the lapse of years, place the member in full communion. He cannot be elected to the Synod unless he be a communicant; and yet, for ordinary purposes, he is entitled to and cannot be deprived of the rights of membership. The object of the proposed canon is obviously to deprive the Evangelical party of its strongest support—the arm of the laity—by paralyzing it. In this diocese to drive a very large and devoted class of the laity out of the Church would of course strengthen the high-flying sacerdotal faction.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and purely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See other column.

It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Great Snow Storm in New Brunswick.

Alleged Murders at Cape Hurd.

A Bruce County Man Charged with the Murder of Three Indians.

WALKERTON, March 24.—A man named Abraham Davies was committed to gaol here charged with the murder of three Indians at Cape Hurd, on the northern shore of this county, Bruce, in January, 1874. The principal witness against him was his son-in-law, George Nelson, who swears he was with him at the time, and saw him kill the Indians. He claims that he concealed the matter through fear of Davies, who threatened to kill him if he told anything about it. The magistrate sent Nelson to gaol also in order to secure his attendance at the trial.

The freight cars were filled with cattle, horses, agricultural implements, seed grain and household goods. The party travel by the Grand Trunk to Chicago, thence by by the Chicago and Northwestern to St. Paul, and thence by the St. Paul and Pacific Railway to Winnipeg.

Local News.

HORSES FOR EXPORT.—George Smith, of Buffalo, ships a car load of heavy draught horses bought in this neighborhood by the G. T. R., for Buffalo to-day (Thursday.) This is the fifth shipment Mr. Smith has made from this city this winter. All the animals are in fine condition and cost on an average $110 each.

THE WATER WORKS.—The water works will be tested to-morrow afternoon. The firemen assemble at two o'clock, when the hose will be taken out. Branches are to be attached to hydrants at the highest and the lowest points of the city, in order to make a thorough test of the works.

BAND CONCERT.—Remember the Band concert to-morrow evening in the drill shed. The band will be assisted on this occasion by Mr. Harrington and family, Mr. Densem, Mr. John Crowe, and last but not least, our old friend Dick Smith, who will give us spoon, bellows and cornet solos. Admission, single tickets, 15 cents, two for 25 cents.

DOWN ON CORNER LOAFERS.—Rev. Father Bardou, of Brantford, at service last Sunday night, severely reproved the young men of his congregation who are in the habit of standing on the street corners after church is dismissed and insulting ladies as they pass. He threatened unless the practice ceased immediately to adopt means by which the guilty parties would be discovered and made known to the congregation from the pulpit. Father Bardou's example might be indicated with good effect by clergymen in Guelph.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES.—Services will be held in some of the churches to-morrow. Rev. W. Willliams will preach in the Norfolk street Church at 11 a.m. A special selection of music will be rendered by the choir. The collection will be for charitable purposes, including the Hospital fund. The Church of Our Lady will be draped in mourning and services will be held. In the evening a sermon appropriate to the occasion will be preached. At St. George's Church there will be, besides services at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., a baptismal service at three o'clock in the afternoon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PAPERS.—The Sunday School papers published by Mr. C. Blackett Robinson, Toronto, are well worthy the attention of those having to provide periodicals for Sunday Schools. The papers before us consist of the Sabbath School Presbyterian, Golden Hours for the Young, and Early Days—the latter published fortnightly. The printing, style of illustrations, and quality of reading matter, will be found quite as good as similar English or American publications, while the price is fully lower than the imported publications. Specimens sent to any address on application.

THE GROWTH OF MASONRY.—Col. Moffatt, the Deputy Grand Master of the Masons of Canada, in his address at St. Thomas, a few nights since, reviewed the growth of Masonry in this country. Twenty-five years ago the brotherhood had started out as an experiment in Canada, and the success it had attained was unparalleled. No other order in the world could exhibit such a result, not only in numbers, but financially as well. The total membership in Ontario was now nearly 20,000, while the treasury held some $80,000; and this large balance was not owing to any display of niggardliness. The contrary had been the case. The order had a benevolent fund, and the funds of this had been distributed with a liberal hand something between $7,000 and $8,000 being paid out each year among the widows and orphans of the Province. The prospects of the continued growth of the order were very encouraging. There were thirty-eight lodges in the London district alone, with a membership of over 2,000.

THE GARDEN.—How often has it been suggested to those having sufficient ground for a garden, and especially farmers, to pay increased attention to this important appendage of family comfort. Farmers, as a rule, are entirely too careless about their gardens, their whole mind being placed upon their field crops, stock, etc. The women would in most cases be competent and gladly willing to take charge of a large portion of the labor necessary to the proper cultivation of the garden, if the men would prepare the ground to their hands. Indeed, it is a fact that those who pursue the cultivation of the soil as their business rarely enjoy garden products in perfection, just because they appear to insist upon the error that they don't pay. Now is the time to think about how the garden can be enlarged and the number and quantity of the crops increased. The stuff can also be got ready for the additional fence, and the fence itself erected as soon as the weather will permit. The little hot-beds in which to raise your tomato, cabbage and egg plants, should now be repaired and got ready for sowing the seed as soon as the time arrives. One thing must be remembered, that there should be no sparing of the underlying stratum of horse manure in preparing the beds.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Winds shifting to south east and south; clear to-day followed by increasing cloudiness and milder weather.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The Public Schools close to-night for the Easter holidays. They will be opened again on Tuesday.

THE MARKET.—The grain and hay market to-day was much larger than they have been for some time, a fact doubtless due to the improved state of the roads.

THE Liliputian Opera Co. will give their operetta of "Jack, the Giant Killer," and the farce "Foodles" at the City Hall, on Thursday evening, April 13.

BAD STREET CROSSINGS.—The crossings on the Elora road at the corners of McTague and Mont streets are in very bad order, and in need of immediate repair.

PLOUGHS FOR MANITOBA.—Mr. Wagner, a farmer in this neighborhood, who purposes taking up his residence in Manitoba, has purchased a couple of ploughs from Thos. Gowdy & Co., to take with him.

THE MARKET STALLS.—The statement that the City Council decided to reduce the rent of market stalls is wrong. The Market and Building Committee could not recommend a reduction asked by the lessees.

CHILD BURNED.—A daughter of Mr. John Bergen, living on Galt street, aged 16 months, was badly burned this (Thursday) forenoon, Mrs. Bergen having occasion to go out for a few minutes left the child in the house alone. While the mother was out the child opened the stove door and started playing with the fire, which set fire to her clothing. When Mrs. Bergen returned she found her child in flames and screaming from the pain. After she extinguished the fire Dr. Brock was called in to attend the little sufferer. It was found that the breast, one of the ears, side of the neck and right arm had been severely burned, but no serious result is anticipated. Soothing lotions were applied, and the little girl is doing as well as could be expected.

SUPPLYING PRISONERS WITH TOBACCO.—On Wednesday, three C. V. Ry. navvies, who were sentenced at Fergus to Guelph gaol, were discharged, their sentence having expired. From their actions it was suspected that after their release they were going to assist the prisoners in the gaol to escape, and to prevent this being carried out, the police were notified and kept a watch about the gaol. The navvies did not return, but in the afternoon, Patrick Hollerin and Michael Kernan, went to the rear entrance to the gaol, the latter carrying a parcel. Chief McMillan, who was hiding at the entrance, ran after Kernan and captured him. The parcel when opened, was found to contain tobacco, matches and pipes, which it is surmised Kernan intended to smuggle into the prisoners.

POLICE COURT.

Before Mr. T. W. Saunders, P. M.

THURSDAY, 25th March.

PICKING POCKETS.

Sam. Soden appeared after remand for picking John Porter's pockets and relieving him of a purse and $12 at the Albion Hotel, last week. Having previously elected to be tried at a higher court he was only brought before the Magistrate for a preliminary examination. Mr. Dunbar appeared for the defence. John Porter and John Keough were examined. George Hood, who gave evidence the day Soden was arraigned, and who was at that time bound over to be present to-day, failed to put in an appearance. At the conclusion of the evidence Soden was committed for trial.

LARCENIES.

Alexander Maxwell Fergusson and Wm. Harold, each aged about 18 years, were charged with three separate charges of larceny. The charges were laid by Henry S. Watson, Alex. Blyth and John Hawes, all of Guelph township. Last night Fergusson and Harold, who live in the city on the Elora road, were given money to purchase a load of hay from Mr. Hawes, and they started out with a team obviously for that purpose. They stopped at the hotel in Marden and stole a pair of mits from Alex. Blyth and a whip from H. Watson, the articles being left in the buggies of the owners which had been left in the driving shed of the hotel. They then drove to John Hawes' barn and stole the hay, preferring that mode of obtaining it rather than paying for it. While returning to Guelph they were overtaken by Messrs. Blyth and Watson who suspected they had stolen the mits and whip. They were handed over to Constable Kennedy who took them to the police cells. The prisoners admitted the thefts and pleaded guilty at the police court. They were remanded till three o'clock this afternoon for sentence.

Hopes of reconciliation between the citizens and workingmen parties are daily diminishing in San Francisco. The Sand Lots has returned to its fulminations, the newspaper war has broken out afresh, and apparently all overtures have been thrown aside. Extremists of both parties appear to be in the ascendant. The rigorous sentence given Kearney and Gannon, it is supposed, contributed largely to this change of feeling.

The North-western Grand Trunk is doing so much Chicago business that the competing companies will soon be compelled to change their pooling arrangements and bring down freights. The Grand Trunk last week took nearly 15 per cent. of the east-bound freight from Chicago.

The Toronto Mail of Saturday last is responsible for the following: A young limb of the law, while arguing a case in the Chambers at Osgoode Hall a few days ago, was asked by the judge if issue had been joined. He somewhat startled the court by replying "Oh, Lord, yes," but recollecting himself in time he smoothed the difficulty over by ejaculating "I mean yes, my Lord."

The Stratford Herald says that Messrs. Livingstone, of Baden and Listowel, have leased the flax mill of Mr. Fuller of that town, which for some time has stood idle. As the Messrs. Livingstone are very energetic gentlemen, and the largest flax dealers in the Dominion, a revival of the flax trade in that section may be looked for.

Toronto lately produced a case which adds another proof that the relations existing between landlord and tenant require revision. The case was where a landlord sued a bailiff to recover the value of some broken furniture, consisting of two or three chairs, some old flower pots and a quarter of a bag of flour that he had refrained from seizing among the effects of some wretched family. The Judge described the action as "mean and heartless," and a verdict was found for the defendant.

A lady has been giving in Paris marvelous performances with four birds, trained to such a high degree of docility that they select from a series of cards replies to almost any question from the audience. These are invariably appropriate, and their originality is often striking. Altogether the entertainment, which has met with the approval of five crowned heads of Europe, maintains its character as an exhibition of perfect training, and the apparently disinterested manner in which the movements of the birds are secretly directed by the artist herself is as amusing as their intelligence.

THE CHINESE OATH.. In the Police Court case in Hamilton on Monday, in which a Chinaman was a witness, the Magistrate decided to swear him in the Chinese fashion, which was as follows:—Wah Lee knelt down and a china plate was put in his hand. His Honor then said—"You swear that you will tell the truth, the whole truth." The witness then stood up and smashed the plate with a will. His Worship continued—"And, if you do not tell the truth, your soul will be cracked like that plate."

Death of Mr. Charles Sharpe.

It is with regret we record the death of Mr. Charles Sharpe, which took place shortly before twelve o'clock on Wednesday night. The deceased took ill in September last, and was confined to the house for some time, but he improved considerably, and was able to be about again for a while, though it was evident that his trouble—liver complaint—had not been removed. He took ill again in January, and from the time he was confined to bed it was felt that he could not overcome the disease, and that his death was a mere matter of time.

The deceased with his brother came to Guelph in 1863, and started the seed business, having peculiar advantages in that line from their connection with their brothers in England, who are very extensive seed growers and seed merchants. It assumed extensive proportions, and would no doubt have prospered but for unfortunate grain speculations, which threw the business into other hands. The deceased, however, continued to take charge of it as long as he was able.

Since ever he came to Guelph, Mr Sharpe took a lively interest in all that concerned agriculture and horticulture. For years he was a prominent officer and member of the Horticultural Society, and for a number of years, after the organization of the Central Exhibition, he rendered valuable assistance as Superintendent in the main building. He was also an enthusiastic Mason, and was one of the charter members of Speed and Guelph Lodges A. F. and A. M., both of which he helped to organize. He was second Master of Speed Lodge, and some years ago was made an honorary member of Guelph Lodge. He was also at one time Grand Director of Ceremonies of the Grand Lodge of Ontario. He was ready at all times to do everything in his power to advance the interests of Masonry. We understand that the members of Guelph Lodge have been most attentive to him in his last illness, and that at his special request the funeral is to be under their direction.

Mr. Sharpe was, at the time of his death a comparatively young man, and he will be greatly missed, most of all by his widow, and young family of five children by his first wife, and also by his many friends and acquaintances, who valued him for his genial, kindly nature, for his frank and obliging disposition, for his free, open and liberal spirit, and for his numerous excellent traits of character.

From a notice in another column we learn that Guelph Lodge A. F. and A. M., will conduct the funeral. A cordial invitation is extended to all the brethren from the other Lodges. There will, no doubt, be a large turn out of the Fraternity. The Artillery Band will be present, and the funeral will be in accordance with the Masonic ritual.

LAW SUITS.—The Banner says: "Dundas is a first class town for law. We are hardly ever without a law suit on hand, and we might just as well levy a special rate each year for law expenses. At the beginning of the financial year, $200 was set aside for law expenses, it being supposed that we were about through with all such expensive follies—but already a bill of costs for defending the town in the Burniston case has been sent in which more than swamps the entire appropriation—we have the Fields case to settle, in which an appeal is to be entered—and now we are in the midst of a chancery suit with the town of Galt—and it is safe to conclude that no matter how these cases go the town will be a heavy loser. We have too much law altogether and too little common sense." Listen to that ye litigious councillors.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Mr. Herringer, butcher, of Neustadt, Grey county, met with a fatal accident on Thursday, the 15th inst. He died soon after and never spoke after receiving the blow.

Daily Mercury.

THURSDAY EV'NG, MARCH 25 1880

It is said that the trouble which the Quebec Premier is meeting with has been principally from his own bedfellows of olden times, Messrs. Tarte, Angers, & Co., the Ultramontane Conservatives, who have literally crucified him with persecution since he took two Liberals into the Cabinet. These gentlemen chafe at the distribution of patronage outside their own clique, which at one time found Mr. De Boucherville so willing a milch cow, and which more lately have the cold shoulder from Mr. Chapleau. Now the latter finds himself compelled to succumb. There is no doubt that important changes in Government are contemplated.

THE N. Y. Tribune, speaking of the revolutionary manifesto issued by the Irish in the States for a Convention to meet in Philadelphia next summer, to devise means for the subjugation of Britain, says:—The circular states that there is Irish blood enough in the United States to "beat England to her knees," but nothing is said of the impropriety and illegality of belligerent action on the part of the American citizens, albeit of Irish birth. As most of the thousand gentlemen to whom the circular was sent have sworn to respect the Constitution and laws of the United States, they are respectfully commended to a careful study of both.

CAPE BRETON was to have reaped fabulous benefits by the operation of the new tariff. The coal industry of the island was especially to enjoy such a boom of prosperity as it never knew before. What are the facts according to the report of the Commissioner of Mines?

THE feeling is prevalent in the Nova Scotia Legislature that the Dominion Government is determined to burk the Fishery Award question, and a member has given notice of his intention to move a resolution advising the sending of a delegation from Quebec and the Maritime Provinces to England to complain to the Imperial Government.

THE Senators do not appear to be disposed to give up the details of their indemnity and mileage. The total amount paid for mileage was $10,455, while the indemnity amounted to $73,320. Some idea of the extraordinary amount of mileage which the British Columbians receive will be shown from the fact that the late Senator Carroll was paid $918, and Senator Cornwall $858.

INVITATIONS will shortly be issued by the Ontario Government for tenders for new Parliament buildings. Work has been commenced already in the Queen's Park. The stand used by the Orange orators on the 12th of July has been torn down and excavations will be commenced early in April, and the work pressed forward with all possible speed.

THERE seems little doubt that the Bill legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister, now before the Commons, will become law. The Church dignitaries generally, who were believed at one time to be against its passage, now express their concurrence in its provisions.

THE landsharks are at work grabbing up the choicest sections of land in Manitoba and the Northwest Territory, and this in a large measure accounts for the diversion of emigration to the Western States from the central portion of the Dominion. It seems that the Government has permitted some of its particular friends to secure land which is now locked up from settlement. A number of instances in proof of this could be cited, but it is scarcely necessary.

FROM a return brought down to Parliament on Monday, it appears that for the first eight months of the present fiscal year there has been a large falling off in the receipts, even for Customs, as compared with this period of 1878-9. Sir Leonard Tilley's estimate of the deficit is likely to fall below the real amount to a very considerable extent.

IT is said that the Opposition are united on the question of opposing the construction of the Pacific Railway at present in British Columbia and will bring up a motion to that effect in both Houses of Parliament at the proper time this session.

HON. J. J. C. Abbott's seat for Argenteuil is to be contested on the ground of corrupt practices by the respondent himself and by his agents, wholesale intimidation and violation of the freedom of the franchise, and fraudulent tampering with voters' lists.

IT is said that Mr. Charlton's speech on the tariff on Monday night, was one of the ablest of the session. His exposure of agricultural protection was especially good.

IT is reported that Hon. Alex. Mackenzie was recently offered the registership of Sarnia. He declined the position, preferring the excitement of an active political life.

J. M. Browning, of the Montreal Warehousing Company, is now mentioned as the Conservative candidate for Chateauguay, C. P. Davidson having positively refused to run.

THE London Times admits that the strength of the Beaconsfield Ministry will be reduced at the approaching general elections.

THE report that the Hon. James Cockburn has been offered the Chief Justiceship of Manitoba is denied.

IT is expected that the session will last until the first week in May.

TORONTO Telegram:—The patrons of H. M. S. "Parliament" always applaud Alexander Macdeadeye when he says he is nothing but a plain man, and has no wish for a title. He may well say so, when he sees the way in which the noble knights at Ottawa engage in rough and tumble fights, and call each other bad names—not very knightly or dignified work for titled gentlemen to be at, or even for gentlemen who are not titled. Some persons seem to think that the refusal of knighthood by Messrs. Blake, Mackenzie and Brown was a bit of unjustifiable rudeness, not at all complimentary to the Queen. But as a matter of fact there was no rudeness about it. Mr. Gladstone was pressed to accept a title and declined; and to go farther back, Pitt, the younger, who was called the great commoner, also declined knighthood, although it was pressed upon him. These gentlemen were not anxious for titles, and nobody could blame them for declining to accept them. In the case of Canadian public men there is much stronger ground for declining, for, however suited to the old world these high-sounding titles may be, they are quite out of place on this side of the water, where feudalism has no foothold and a landed aristocracy is unknown.

APPARENTLY as a set-off to the Yankee buncombe in regard to the Monroe doctrine and the construction of the Panama Canal, Hon. Mr. Macdougall has given notice of the following motion:—That this House views with satisfaction the mission of Ferdinand De Lesseps, the successful builder of the Suez Canal, to this Continent, and trusts that it may result in the early completion of the long-delayed Inter-oceanic Canal, whereby the voyage between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Canada will be greatly shortened, the trade between the Canadian ports on these coasts facilitated, and new employment furnished to our commercial marine, already second in importance in the Western hemisphere.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 24.

The petition against the employment of Chinese labor on the Pacific Railway in British Columbia was ordered to be printed for the information of members.

The Minister of Justice introduced a Bill amending the Act to prevent cruelty to animals. Mr. Mills suggested that it should provide for the prosecution of the Government, but the Premier retorted that it ought to prevent long speeches from being made. Scarcely had the Ministerial applause which greeted this sally died away when the tables were aptly turned by Mr. Mackenzie, who naively added: Oh! the Bill refers to the member for Niagara does it?"

Amidst peals of laughter, the next order of business was called. Several questions by members were put to the Government. Mr. Casgrain was informed that there had been no formal correspondence between the Dominion Government and Mr. Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, on the subject of a commercial union between the United States and Canada.

The Premier promised Mr. Mackenzie that on Tuesday next he would announce the Governor General's decision in regard to the Insolvency Repeal Bill.

Mr Blake moved a series of resolutions on which to base an address to Her Majesty the Queen, representing that inconveniencies are caused by the non-operation of the Extradition Act of 1877, from which the Royal assent had been withheld on the plea that an Imperial Commission at that time was engaged in a consideration of the whole question of extradition. He explained that that objection had been removed because the Commission reported in 1878 on the result of their investigations. The Premier explained that the Government were daily expecting the arrival of despatches from the Imperial authorities, and they hoped to be able to introduce legislation this session on the matter. Therefore he suggested that the motion should be withdrawn or allowed to stand over. The motion was withdrawn.

Two motions for correspondence, &c., relating to the suggested reduction of rates on the Government railways in Prince Edward Island were adopted, after which a debate not much to the Government's taste sprang up, on a motion by Dr. Schultz for copies of all Orders in Council affecting the settlement of Dominion lands in Manitoba, &c. Instead of permitting the motion to pass without comment, Mr. Robertson, the junior member for Hamilton, was induced to assume the role of a pigmy assailant of the press. The Globe came in, as usual, for a share of abuse, not criticism, and especially its statement respecting the immigration of Canadians to the United States. Mr. Oliver sarcastically suggested that press gag resolutions should be introduced by the junior member for Hamilton, and above all the dreadful Globe should be muzzled.

Mr. Ross (Middlesex) read from the Official Postal Guide advertisements of lands, and claimed that it was through the distribution of such literature by the Government that the exodus to Dakota, which Mr. Robertson complained of so much, was due, and not to any fault of The Globe's, because it merely recorded as news the fact of the migration after its occurrence. Two other Ministerialists supporters spoke briefly, and the debate, which promised to be interesting, was cut short by Sir John calling out to the Speaker, "Carried," so heading off further discussion. The Ministerialist appear to be tired of the whole subject, and do not thank Mr. Robertson much for blunderingly affording the Opposition another opportunity of rubbing the truth in.

Mr. McDonald (King's) moved for a statement respecting the Northern Light, and this led to an amusing and somewhat noisy debate, in which the Government supporters from the Maritime Provinces withdrew nearly all the charges made in opposition by them against the efficiency of this vessel. The motion was carried.

After recess several private Bills were advanced a stage, and Mr. McCarthy's measures amending the Act respecting procedure in criminal cases and amending the Act providing that persons charged with common assault shall be competent witnesses passed through their final stages.

The same member's Bill amending the Supreme and Exchequer Court Act was considered in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Ives's measure to provide for the winding up of insolvent incorporated fire or marine insurance companies was read a second time.

An amusing debate occurred on Mr. Bechard's Bill to reduce the salaries and allowances of certain public functionaries. The sting of the measure was in a proposition to reduce the indemnity paid to members of Parliament, and its consideration led to scurrilous and abusive attack on the introducer by several members on the Government benches. So blinded were the majority by the proposal to reduce their allowance that not a single one of their number referred in the slightest degree, save Mr. Longley, to the suggested reduction of certain high functionaries' salaries.

Mr. Bergin moved the adjournment of the debate, so as to avoid voting on the main question, and after some discussion the amendment was carried.

Hon Mr Mackenzie moved that a writ be issued for the election of a representative for Chateauguay, Quebec. After a few remarks by the Premier, questioning the regularity of the motion, it was carried.

The British Parliament Prorogued.

The Queen's Speech.

LONDON March 24.—The British Parliament was prorogued to-day. Following is the text of the Queen's Speech:—

My Lords' and Gentlemen:

As the time assigned by law for the termination of the present Parliament is near at hand, I am induced by considerations of public policy and convenience to select this period of the session for releasing you from your legislative duties, with a view to an immediate dissolution and the issue of writs for a general election. I cannot part from you without expressing my deep sense of the zeal and ability which, during more than six years, you have constantly displayed in exercising your important functions, nor without tendering my warm acknowledgments for the useful measures you have submitted for my acceptance, and especially for the manner in which you have upheld a policy the object of which was at once to defend my Empire and secure the general peace of Europe. My relations with foreign Powers are friendly and favourable to the maintainance of tranquility in Europe. I entertain a confident hope that the measures adopted in Afghanistan will lead to a speedy settlement of that country. I have had much satisfaction in assenting to the Acts you have passed for the relief of the distress unhappily prevalent in parts of Ireland, and trusting these measures will be accepted by my Irish subjects as proof of the ready sympathy of the Imperial Parliament, I look forward with confidence to the restored prosperity of their country. I rejoice to observe indications of a general improvement in trade, and that the commercial depression which I have had to lament appears to be passing away. I have witnessed with the greatest sympathy the heavy losses sustained by various classes connected with the cultivation of the soil, and have viewed with admiration the patience and high spirit with which they have contended against an almost unprecedented series of disastrous seasons. I trust that with the blessing of Providence a more favourable harvest may be looked for, and that from the Commission which I have issued to enquire into the causes of agricultural depression, suggestions may come which will lead to a more profitable use of agricultural land, and a higher development of this branch of national industry. The electors of the United Kingdom will be called upon forthwith to choose their representatives in Parliament, and I fervently pray that the blessing of the Almighty God may guide them to promote the object of my constant solicitude, the happiness of my people.

It is formally announced that the writs for the new election were issued to-day.

Credit Valley Railway.

The Parliamentary Railway Committee met on Tuesday, and took up the Credit Valley Railway Bill, over which a lively fight will be made. The object of this Bill as our readers are doubtless aware, is to declare the power of the Governor-General in Council to control the alignment and disposition of the tracks of the Northern Railway within the City of Toronto, and to enable them to proceed from Queen street to their water lots. A large number of railroad men, representing the different companies, were present. Mr. Haggart opened the proceedings by stating to the Committee the object of the Bill, and the desirability of granting the legislation desired. Hon. R. M. Wells followed with a long declaration of the Credit Valley case, closing by quoting the opinion of Sir John Macdonald, that if the right of entrance could not be otherwise obtained, Parliament should be appealed to. D'Arcy Boulton next addressed the Committee on behalf of the Northern Railway contention. He did not think Parliament should interefere pending litigation. Mayor Beaty, of Toronto, addressed the Committee in the interests of the city saying that all it desired was that the Credit Valley Railroad should be allowed to get into the city, and the benefit of the $350,000 granted to the Company received. Mr. Fred. Cumberland, of the Northern Railway, followed with a protest against interference with vested rights. Mr. Bell, of the G. T. R., was the last outside speaker. The discussion then commenced, but had not been finished when the Committee adjourned.

The Bill came up before the Railway Committee again on Wednesday, and after some discussion was referred to a Sub Committee to see if some satisfactory arrangement cannot be arrived at.

Dinner in Honor of Sir A. T. Galt.

The dinner given in honor of Sir A. T. Galt, previous to leaving Canada for London, to fill the position of Canadian Minister in Britain, came off in Montreal on Wednesday night, and was quite a successful affair. There were about 200 guests present, many of these being members of Parliament. The Hon. James Ferrier occupied the chair. The members of the Government present were Sir Chas. Tupper and Hon. Mr. Pope.

In response to the toast of his health, Sir A. T. Galt said he believed his appointment as a representative at Court in London was made to strengthen, and not to weaken, the tie with the Mother Country. (Cheers.) The representative sent now was not, like Benjamin Franklin, to prepare for a separation, but to show that the interests of the Mother Counfry and the Colony were one. It would be impossible for him to touch upon the particulars of his missior so far as the policy of the Government was concerned, but he would give his own ideas of what his duties would be according to his own mind, and to point out how they will affect the country. They referred to financial matters, emigration and diplomacy. The time had come, he believed, when the Dominion should take care of its own finances in London. He would not speak of a scheme to be adopted but called attention to the fact that Canada's credit at London was now firmly established, and while feeling deeply grateful to the gentlemen who had so long administered their affairs, they would do better by taking themselves in hand, as other and more insignificant colonies had done. (Cheers.) As to emigration, they had the largest district of fertile land in the world. They had undertaken the laborious duty of opening up and bringing under cultivation that great district. It devolved upon the Atlantic Provinces to help in this, as they benefitted just as largely as did the others; but not only should they contribute, but Great Britain should also lend a hand, as the settlement of the North-west helped Lancashire and Tipperary as much. The settlement of the land could only be made at considerable expense, and emigration to be a success must be at an early day. It was only by railways they could colonize, and unless they had them soon they would see the sons of Great Britain emigrate and pass to the soil of a foreign nation. Canada had neither the people nor the money to settle the North-West, and she must enlist the sympathy and assistance of the Mother Country, which had asked Canada to undertake the duty, and she could hardly refuse. In two short years they would, he felt assured, have direct railway communication to a point two or three miles west of Red River throgh their own territory, and would thus be able to keep the emigrants taken through from the danger of contact with the agents of other countries. He could not pass on without showing what the result would be to Montreal, and was certain that by that line the great bulk of the traffic would teem from her wharves, as her position was in a direct line to Europe by the shortest route. (Applause.) Referring to the diplomatic duties, the new departure spoken of by Sir Chas. Tupper, he said that while the Act of Confederation made Canada practically mistress of her own legislation and tariff as to duties for revenue and excise, it was necessary that they should not strain too strongly the powers given by the Act. The wiping out of Canada's trade relations with France grew out of the fact that Great Britain by Confederation gave Canada the right to be a second party with herself to trade treaties with other nations, and had so considered Canada since 1867. The treaty between England and France was made with that understanding, and Canada not being represented was left out. (Hear, hear.) Thus it was of great necessity that some one should be in London to impress Canada's claims upon Great Britain, and had such been the case before the treaty with France Canada would have never been shut out. They would be glad to know that representations had been made such as would shortly result in a reconsideration of the matter, and the speedy admission of Canadian goods. He could say with a great deal of satisfaction that the office he was going to endeavour to fill had been made with the cordial approbation of the Home Government, and it was not one that had been pressed upon the Home Government, but had been accepted frankly by them in the belief that it would promote the interests of both countries. He was furthermore glad to say that the position assigned him by the Home Government was far beyond what he had a right to expect—("No, no," and cheers)—and it was significant of the high esteem in which the Government of Great Britain held this county. What would they gain by any more independent position? England possessed all the most improved machinery of trade, and he believed, aside from any sentimental feeling, that was to the interest of Canada to avail itself of that machinery and experience to promote her trade interests rather than stand alone with other smaller Powers. Passing on he alluded to the powers of the Governor-General, and said the Home Government found it well to have an officer to consult upon defence, territorial and commercial questions. He called attention to the recent admission of Canadian cadets to the army, and hoped to see naval stations for the instruction of Canadian sailors for the naval reserve. The territorial question was of much greater importance than any other. England had a population which must find vent some place, or else face social revolution, and when Canada offered good government, and peace and plenty to the surplus population, he felt that he was justified in asking assistance in populating the North West. The present was a very opportune time to push these claims. He proceeded at some length to detail the granting of responsible government to the Colonies as a most important step, foreshadowed a closer relationship between the whole of the Colonies and the Mother Country as a means of making her independent of any other countries, and alluding to the assertion that England would never tax food pointed to the Canadian North-West as a source of cattle and grain that alter that saying. In conclusion, he was glad that the meeting gave him the assurance that whether he succeeded or not he would not be misconstrued, and would not look forward to any duty that would compel him to say "farewell" to Canada, but simply "au revoir."

SWALLOWING A DOSE OF POTASH.—On Saturday night a mistake was committed by Mr. Hiram Miller, proprietor of the Anglo-American hotel, Toronto, which came near being a fatal one. Some half an hour after mid-night he went to the cupboard to procure a lunch, and taking up a spoonful of substance looking like pudding, he partially swallowed it. Before it passed his throat, he experienced most intense pain from its contact, and on the other inmates of the house being aroused, it was ascertained that the substance was strong potash. The unfortunate man's throat and mouth commenced to swell rapidly, until there was great danger of death through suffocation. By careful treatment he is, however, recovering.

FARMS SOLD.—Lot No. 1, concession 7, Luther, 200 acres, has been sold to Mr. Hugh McQueen, of Fergus, for the sum of $6,850—Mr. Jas. Taylor has sold the farm in Arthur, lots 25 and 26, 10th concession, 100 acres to Mr. Henry Cook, for the sum of $2,800.—Mr. Jesse Kaster, of York township, bought from Mr. R. Arbuckle, on Thursday, last week, lot 26, con. D Minto, 100 acres for $5,250.

Two Lawyers the Possessors of a Ronald Engine.

There is a brace of legal gentlemen in this city who are a deal better off than the Corporation of Hamilton, for the simple reason that they are the proprietors of a steam fire engine, and still they are not happy. This is how they became possessed of it. When Mr. Ronald came to town these lawyers had some business with him and endorsed a three months' note for $1,600. They discounted the document and handed over $1,400 to the engine man, as he had need of the money just then. They then gave him a chattle mortgage on an engine at St. Mary's which he represented as worth $3,500, to make up the difference in the transaction. The note fell due the other day, and the lawyers wrote to Ronald, asking him to take up the note, or else come down and see about it. He came down, and they cornered him in the law office. He said he wasn't in funds just then, and managed to keep three times as cool as the other parties to the affair. They threatened to sue, etc., etc., and as a dernier resort declared that they would sell the engine for $1,600—the amount of the note—and let him be the loser of the remaining $1,900. He replied, "Taat's just what I'd like, gentlemen; I've been trying to sell that engine for $800, and if you succeed in getting rid of her at the figure you say, I'll give you a liberal commission." Like the man who bought the white elephant, the lawyer's don't know what to do with their purchase.—Hamilton Times.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

SOUTH GREY AG. SOCIETY.—A meeting of the Directors of the South Grey Agricultural Society was held at Durham on the 20th inst., to make arrangements for next annual exhibition of the society to be held in Durham on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 30th and Oct. 1st. Nearly $900 will be offered in prizes. $60 will be given in prizes for brass bands. A committee was formed to improve the show grounds.

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and purely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See other column.

Mr. Robert Brown, father of Mr. Henry Brown, ex-Reeve of Elderslie, died last week at the advanced age of 91 years. For upwards of twenty-four years he was blind, but in other respects enjoyed good health.

Mr. James McCabe, an old resident of Amaranth, while returning from Shelburn the other day, was thrown from the waggon on to the hard road, and received such injuries as to cause his death shortly after.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Change of Business

W. NEWPORT

BEGS TO INFORM HIS FRIENDS and the public generally, that he has removed his Bakery and Confectionery establishment from Wyndham street, opposite the Post Office, to the more extensive premises next Kennedy's Jewellery Store, on St. George's Square, where everything in his line will be found first-class.

Two crack teams of Scotch football players, picked from the great football clubs of Scotland, and, perhaps, the best ever got together, are to visit New York in May and kick their triumphal way through the States and Canada. As two base ball nines, the Boston and Athletic, visited Great Britain, so two football teams instead of one come to America, so that in lack of local antagonists they may play against each other. Their practice games in Scotland and England, designed partly to perfect their prowess and partly to raise funds, have been witnessed by vast audiences with enthusiasm.

Guelph Markets.

MERCURY OFFICE,
GUELPH, March 25, 1880.

The citizens of Guelph have good reason to be pleased with their Band, and now that it has reached a high state of perfection, deserves the very best efforts of our citizens to aid it.

COLONIAL IMPLEMENT MAKERS AND AUSTRALIA.—A despatch from Melbourne states that the application made to the Government of Victoria by certain American agricultural implement makers for such revision of the Colonial tariff as will enable them to send their goods to Victoria markets at a reasonable profit, is receiving careful consideration by the Government, and that the probability is that the desired modification will be conceded. Otherwise the American makers say it will be no object to them to ship goods to the coming Exhibition at Melbourne, as their only purpose in so doing would be to build up a subsequent trade.

FIRE IN GEORGETOWN.—On Friday morning the marble shop owned by Mr. Samuel Phillips, and occupied by McKinley Bros., was totally destroyed by fire, together with the dwelling house occupied by Mr. John Langan, and owned by Mrs. C. S. Staples, of Erin village. The loss is total in both cases, excepting the furniture of Mr. Langan, which was mostly saved. Loss on marble stock, finished and unfinished, $1,200; no insurance.

DEATH ON EX-MAYOR MEDCALF.—Mr. F. H. Medcalf, ex-Mayor of Toronto, died on Thursday, at the age of 77 years, after a lengthened illness. Few men were better known or more highly respected than the deceased gentleman. He was born in the County of Wicklow, Ireland, in 1803. He started a foundry in Toronto in 1840. He very soon earned a reputation for himself and his establishmen by constructing the first threshing machine ever made in Canada with a cleaner and separator combined, and for which he took first prize at the first exhibition held in Toronto. In politics he was a strong party man of the old Tory school, and being a prominent Orangeman and a fluent speaker, he soon made a name for himself by taking a leading position in public matters. He held several principal offices in Toronto, and was Mayor for five years. He was also Grand Master of the Orange body in Ontario for several years, and was also Grand Master of the Black Knights of Ireland.

Steinway, of New York, has agreed to the terms of his striking men. They will probably resume work to-day. This ends the pianomakers' strike.

French Canadians are leaving Quebec at the rate of 60 to 70 a day.

The Canadian exodus to the United States is greater this year than during any year since 1870.

A regular thaw is in progress in Manitoba, and there are prospects of an early spring.

The most stringent measures are being adopted against the Nihilists. A large number of suspected persons have been arrested, and the police make frequent domiciliary visits.

The Water Works.

Second Test by the Firemen.

The second test of the water works was made on Friday afternoon by the firemen under the direction of Chief Armstrong. A large number of citizens witnessed the test, and they had ample opportunity of judging what the works were capable of doing in case of fire, four streams being simultaneously thrown from half-past two till six o'clock.

Branches were first attached to a hydrant at the Wellington hotel, to one at the Post Office, and to a third at the City Hall, and streams were thrown from these at the same time. The stream thrown from the branch at the Wellington Hotel went well on to the highest point on the roof of that building, which is the highest on Upper Wyndham street. The stream at the Post Office was sent over the flag pole and out to other adjacent buildings. The stream at the City Hall spurted over the dome, and at times reached the top of the flag pole. When the works had been tested for fire purposes at these points the two branches on Upper Wyndham street were detached from the hydrants and removed to the Market Square, where four stretches of hose were fastened to the hydrants. The firemen played on the various buildings in that neighborhood and the streams did not seem to diminish in force on account of being in close proximity to each other. After about an hour's playing in this way two of the branches were taken to the Central School, the other being left on the Market Square. With the hose in this position the works gave equal satisfaction, the streams at the Central School reaching high up on the vane. The test was continued until six o'clock, when the hose was taken to the engine house.

During the test the water pressure was kept at 155 pounds at the engine house, and at 140 pounds in the city. The steam pressure was 55 pounds, which is below what can be reached. The test was considered most satisfactory, and showed the efficiency of the works to better advantage than at the previous test. A burst occurred in a pipe at the corner of St. George's Square and Quebec street, which somewhat decreased the power of the works and flooded the road very badly at that point. Men were set to work repairing the pipes, but they have not yet finished.

AN INCIPIENT FIRE.

Its Mysterious Origin and Timely Discovery.

Two Tramps Connected with the Matter.

A fire originated in the residence of Mr. W. H. Mills, Queen street, on Thursday evening, which, but for its timely discovery, might have resulted disastrously. Mrs. Mills and her two daughters left the house about eight o'clock to do some shopping, and Mr. Mills being also away from home, the only occupants were two young sons.

About half past eight o'clock Ald. Fairbank's message boy called at the house to deliver some meat, and he observed that the rooms were getting filled with smoke. The smoke having grown gradually it was unnoticed by the occupants, but on the message boy calling their attention to it a search was made to learn if the house was on fire. On visiting the cellar it was found to be filled with dense smoke and the stairway leading to the kitchen was burning. They heard two men talking and ran upstairs and down to Ald. Fairbank's butcher shop. That gentleman went to the house, and by means of a few buckets of water extinguished the flames, but had they made headway for a few minutes longer they would have taken sure hold of the building. The men had by this time left the cellar, and a window through which they made their exit was found open. It is supposed they were tramps who had entered the cellar in order to get something to eat, and that while they were smoking they dropped a spark which set fire to some rubbish under the cellar stairway.

The Police were informed of the occurrence and set to work to procure the arrest of the miscreants. About eleven p. m. Michael Anderson and Edward Gettinge applied to Sergeant Dooley for lodgings, and were taken to the police station. The Chief had for some time been watching the men, and he saw one of them change his coat with the other before applying to the Sergeant. Enquiries were made of them as to how long they had been in the city, and they said they had just arrived, and the one who changed his coat denied having done so. They were then lodged in the cells. They appeared at the Police Court this morning and were each sentenced three months in the Central Prison for misdemeanour.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

The location of the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing over the Little Saskatchewan River is being now definitely fixed. A great fall in the price of Rapid City town lots has occurred, and now the town site at the actual crossing is about to be put in the market under the name of "O'Donah."

The Lower Provinces were visited Wednesday night and Thursday with the severest snow storm of the season.

The Late Charles Sharpe.

Imposing Funeral Ceremony.

The funeral of the late Charles Sharpe took place from his late residence, Waterloo Avenue, to the Union Cemetery, on Friday afternoon. It was conducted by Guelph Lodge of Free Masons, and the sister lodges in the city united in paying a last tribute of respect to the memory of their departed brother. The funeral was also largely attended by citizens and friends of the deceased.

The remains were enclosed in a handsome rosewood casket with silver mountings, placed on beir in the drawing room. The only ornaments were a few Masonic emblems in silver and some immortelles worked into pretty designs and placed on the lid of the casket.

The Masonic funeral services were conducted at the house by V.W. Bro. Hugh Walker. After the service the remains were borne to the hearse by Daniel Jackson, Cable Chase, George Murton, jr., S. Myers, Capt. Spiers and G. T. Marsh, who acted as pall bearers.

The mournful cortege then moved off in the following order:—

Dr. Herod.
Battery Band (in uniform).
Guelph Lodge, A.F. and A.M.
Speed Lodge, A.F. and A.M.
Waverly Lodge, A.F. and A.M.
HEARSE.
Members of the Agricultural Society and Citizens in carriages.

The procession was a very long one, including about forty carriages, besides the members of the Masonic lodges, who were on foot.

The route, which lay along the Waterloo Avenue, West Market Square, Carden, Wyndham and Douglas streets to St. George's Church was lined with spectators. The Band played a funeral dirge, forming a fitting accompaniment to the sad occasion.

St. George's Church was reached a few minutes after three o'clock, when the remains were carried to the interior and placed on a rest in the chancel. Rev. Canon Dixon here conducted the burial service of the Church of England, in presence of a large congregation. At the conclusion of the service the remains were borne back to the hearse. The procession re-formed and proceeded by way of Woolwich street and the Elora Road to the cemetery. Arrived there the Band played the "Dead March in Saul," and the casket was carried between the musicians to the grave. Here the Masonic brethren formed a circle around the coffin, while Canon Dixon conducted the burial service and V. W. Bro. Hugh Walker the last solemn rites of the Masonic fraternity. The remains were then committed to their last resting place while the brethren and friends stood round the grave with uncovered heads.

Band Concert.

A Splendid Musical Entertainment.

The drill shed was comfortably filled last night to hear the concert given by the Band of the Battery. Seats were nicely arranged, and afforded ample accommodation to all as well as giving plenty of room to promenaders. The Band opened the concert shortly after eight o'clock, and the music furnished was of the highest order. The Harrington family favored the audience with a quartette, which gave great satisfaction. Miss Phoebe Crowe sang a song very nicely and received much applause. Mr. Densem sang in good spirit "Let me like a soldier fall." Mr. Crowe favored the audience with a comic song entitled "If I was as young as I used to be," and received hearty applause. The absence of Mr. Richard Smith, of Galt, in his spoon bellows and cornet solo was noted, that gentleman not being able to attend. The concert altogether was a very enjoyable affair, and afforded a fitting wind-up for the day's enjoyments.

Our citizens had two good chances yesterday of forming their opinions as to the merits of our Band, and it is hoped for the good of our city and its company of trained musicians that they will receive all encouragement and support from those who hear them. The Band is now worthy of the best patronage at all entertainments they may give during the coming season.

Curliana.

The local game which has created the most interest of the season on the Guelph rink, was played on the forenoon of Good Friday, between the superannuated rink, and members of the curling club who had not in the two previous matches played against them. The challenge was given by Wm. Russell of the Guelph Club, and was accepted by James Barclay, skip of the superannuated team. The match was arranged for late on Thursday night, and at day-break on Friday morning the skip of the superannuated team might have been seen driving after the manner of Jehu to rouse his men in the country. At ten o'clock both rinks were drawn up in line, and the contest began in earnest. From the start the old bulwarks of the club took the lead, and kept it to the close of the game, when they came out one ahead. The playing of the two old vetrans Messrs. Wm. Mitchell and Adam Robertson, sr., was something exceptional and would have done credit to their younger day, while the efforts of the skip and his unbounded satisfaction at the result of the game is something more than can be described. The following is the score:—

THE name of Hon. T. N. Gibbs is mentioned in connection with the vacant Senatorship.

IT is understood that Mr. Botsford will hold the Speakership of the Senate until the end of the session.

FROM all accounts there appears to have been a lack of enthusiam at the dinner given to Sir A. T. Galt, such as one would expect Canadians should give to the first plenipotentiary sent from their shores, and to any one accustomed to judge public dinners the proceedings were more social than political in their significance and aspect.

LORD HARTINGTON at a meeting on Thursday night pointed out in what respect the policy of the Liberals differ from the policy of the present Government. He said they would not stake the interests or the honour of England on the maintenance of the independence and integrity of an unreformed Turkish Government. They would not treat the relations of the Turkish Government with its Christian subjects as a matter of interest only to Russia and Turkey. They would not try to disturb the concert of Europe if it was united as to what should be done. They would do all in their power to promote that concert.

THE news of the attempt to assassinate the Hon. George Brown at Toronto on Thursday, caused a profound sensation throughout the country. Everywhere the feeling was one of abhorrence for the foul, despicable crime. When the extent of his injury was learned, that no serious results would follow, and that he had, humanly, speaking, saved his life by his own prompt and decided action, there was a universal expression of thankfulness that the murderous intent of the ruffian had failed. Apart from politics there is perhaps no man more widely known or more highly respected in Canada, by men of all parties, than Mr. Brown, and his recent narrow escape from a violent death will be universally received with the greatest satisfaction.

IT is understood that the Ontario Government have promised to send to the Department of Agriculture, for distribution, a few thousnd copies of the Provincial Emigration pamphlet entitled "A Guide to Ontario." Possibly the distribution of this work may counteract somewhat the effects of the previous emigration literature circulated by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture. Only a few copies of Peter Mitchell's Minnesota immigration pamphlet were received by Department of Agriculture says its chief executive officer, but on Wednesday night from the Department there was sent to the House of Commons for distribution among the Conservative members a stack of Mitchell's pamphlets which by actual measure showed to be half a cord.

IN reference to the notice which appeared in an extra of the Canada Gazette of the disallowance of the "Act respecting the Administration of Justice in the northerly and westerly parts of Ontario," which was passed by the Ontario Legislature in the session of 1879, and received the assent of the Lieutenant-Governor on the 11th of March of that year, we may say that the notice of this disallowance was given to Mr. Mowat in time to enable him to ask the Assembly to repeal the law last setsion, but as he could not accept the reasons on which it was based he chose rather to throw on the Dominion Government the responsibility of taking action in the premises. The arguments of the Minister of Justice were stated by Mr. Mowat in outline to the Assembly a few weeks ago, but both the memorandum containing them and the rejoinder of the Attorney General will no doubt be at no distant day in the possession of the public, who will then be in a position to judge of the matter. Meanwhile, at Mr. Mowat's instance the Legislature last session passed a statute to take effect in the event of a disallowance of the former one, providing for the administration of justice in the same portion of the Province, and as this Act is certainly not open to some of the objections brought against its predecessor it cannot be disallowed on the same grounds.

TRIPLETS.—On Thursday night Mrs. Leonard Denny, of Wallace Township, was safely delivered of triplets, two boys and a girl, all living.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

One of the old landmarks of the London district has passed away in the death of Mr. Thomas Putnam. In politics he was a life-long Reformer, and during the troublous times of the rebellion of 1837 and 1838 he narrowly escaped with his life, and had for a time to keep in concealment to avoid arrest and imprisonment. His brother, generally known as General William Putnam, served under Sir Isaac Brock, and was one of those who attended on that hero when mortally wounded at Queenston Heights.

Being obliged to leave for the Old Country on the 1st of April, Count De Lesseps has telegraphed the Governor-General that he will not be able to visit Canada.

Attempted Assassination of the Hon. Geo. Brown.

He is Shot in the Leg by a Discharged Employee.

Prompt Arrest of the Criminal.

On Thursday afternoon about half-past four p. m., one of the most audacious and dastardly attempts at murder ever made in Toronto took place in the private office of the Hon. George Brown, in the Globe building. Fortunately, owing mainly to Mr. Brown's presence of mind and superior physical strength, the attempt was unsuccessful, the only result being a severe flesh wound in the thigh and the nervous prostration which is the inevitable effect of such an encounter. Had the miscreant who made the murderous assault been a little more prompt in taking his aim, or had the pistol been of a different construction, the result could hardly have resulted so favorably, for he persisted in his efforts to effect his bloody purpose until he was overpowered and the weapon was wrenched from his grasp. Geo. Bennett, the criminal, who real name is Dickson, is a native of Cobourg, being the reputed son of a colored man and a white woman. His appearance would not readily betray this mixture of blood, for although darker than the majority of people of Anglo-Saxon blood, he does not possess the negro cast of countenance. His features are, in fact, suggestive of Spanish rather than of Ethiopian extraction. He is much below the medium height, standing only five feet two inches. His features are rather thin. His eyes are large and black, and his nose is prominent, slightly drooping. He wears a large dark moustache and goatee. He left Cobourg when comparatively young, and spent a good deal of his time in the United States, where he acquired his knowledge of engineering. About five years ago he came to Toronto and secured employment as a night engineer in the Globe press room. Here for a number of years he gave satisfaction, proving himself to be a sober, intelligent young man. About eighteen months after his arrival in the city he became acquainted with a Miss Mary McGovern, and, as she alleges, eventually married her, the ceremony being performed by a clergyman in Yorkville. Their life proved a chequered one, at one time being marked by the appearance of much affection, while at another blows and black eyes were of the most ordinary occurrence. Along with these domestic troubles he became known as a periodical drunkard, and when under the influence of liquor was very noisy. His whole life lately has been evidently one in which the man had given way to every vicious passion—drunkenness and lust being the predominant vices. Month by month he grew worse in these respect, until his neglect of his duties caused him to be discharged from his employment in the Globe. On the evening previous to his discharge Bennett went off and left his engine unattended. Fortunately the night foremen's attention was called to the matter and he at once dispatched a messenger for the day engineer, who came and put matters right, but not before the building and its contents, including the employees then at work, were placed in the utmost peril. Just at this time his whole domestic life was laid bare by the woman who claims to be his wife. She brought him before the Police Magistrate on a charge of neglecting to support her, and at the subsequent investigation it was elicited that he was living a life of adultery with the sister of his alleged wife, and that the ceremony which had taken place at Yorkville was, on his own showing, a mock marriage. Mrs. Bennett claims that they were married by a clergyman, but this gentleman does not remember celebrating the marriage. The case is still pending. Bennett having been released on his own bail on the 20th inst. to appear again.

After the excitement had subsided somewhat Mr. Brown gave an account of the attack made upon him, of which the following is an outline: The man came and knocked at the door. He was told to come in. He entered and proceeded to shut the door behind him. Mr. Brown stopped him and asked him what he wanted. The man seemed hesitating, but at last presented a paper to him and asked him to sign it. He said it was a statement that he had been employed in the Globe office for five years. Mr. Brown said that he should apply to the head of the department for the certificate, as he was not aware of the length of his services. Bennett replied that the head of the department would not give it to him. Mr. Brown then told him he should apply to Mr. Henning, the Treasurer of the Company, who had the books, and could tell how long he had been employed. Bennett pressed the paper upon Mr. Brown, and asked him to "sign it, sign it." Mr. Brown continued to refuse, when Bennett began fumbling apparently at his pistol pocket, whereupon it passed through Mr. Brown's mind, as he himself said, "that the little wretch might be meaning to shoot me." He got the pistol out, and then Mr. Brown grabbed him by the wrist, and turned his hand downwards. He had got the weapon cocked before he was seized, and he at once pulled the trigger, but the muzzle being turned downwards, the ball struck Mr. Brown on the outer side of the left thigh, taking a slanting direction and escaping about four inches below and towards the back of the leg. Mr. Brown thereupon closed with his assailant and they got outside the door still struggling. He pushed Bennett against the glass partition of the waiting room, at the same time calling for help. By this time the alarm had been given in the office, and a number of employees rushing down, the man was seized and quickly disarmed. While Messrs. A. Thompson and John A. Ewan held him, Mr. Brown wrenched the pistol from his grasp and then walked into his room, carrying it along with him. During the struggle in the hallway, Bennett repeatedly made other attempts to fire off his revolver, but he was prevented from cocking it by Mr. Brown, who, notwithstanding the fact that he had already received one shot, held on to his would-be murderer until assistance came and he was overpowered. The services of P. C. Gregory having been called into requisition, Bennett was handed over to his keeping, handcuffed, and conveyed to the Court street Police Station, where he was locked up.

The bullet, which must have dropped to the floor after it passed through Mr. Brown's leg, was found lying on the carpet in his room, several feet from where the wound was given. Inspector Stewart took charge of it after the surgeon had marked it for identification, and it is now in safe keeping at police headquarters along with the pistol.

Prior to the arrival of the constable, and while he was yet in the hands of the employees, Bennett maintained a dogged silence. As soon as he had the "darbies" placed on his hands he was taken before Mr. Brown, who exclaimed, in answer to the question of the constable, "That is the man who did it." Gregory then said to Bennett, "You hear that Mr. Brown has charged you with shooting him; what have you to say?" The prisoner, after mumbling some unintelligible words, blurted out, "I don't know anything about it." At the police station he was more communicative. He there stated to Inspector Stewart that he bought the pistol not to shoot Mr. Brown, but to "do for" Banks, the engineer, against whom he has long borne a grudge.

As soon as the news spread—which it did very quickly—the excitement became intense. King street in front of The Globe Office was soon crowded with vehicles, whose occupants had come to ascertain the facts of the case. By this time various rumours of a more or less exaggerated nature had got abroad, and the excitement became intense. The sidewalks were soon crowded with citizens eager to know the real condition of things. As soon as the full extent of Mr. Brown's injuries became known enquiries were furnished with the result of the medical examination. The news was also flashed all over the country and within half an hour from the firing of the shot, urgent messages began to come in from Ottawa and elsewhere asking for a correct statement of the facts, and a trustworthy account of Mr. Brown's condition. Amongst these was one from Rideau Hall, which showed that the perturbation caused by the incident had reached even the vice-regal residence.

Mr. Brown was taken in charge by Dr. Thorburn, and conveyed to his residence. Up till a late hour on Thursday night, he was doing as well as could be expected.

The Globe of this (Saturday) morning, says:—The wound which Mr. Brown received from the pistol shot is healing kindly, without any bad symptoms whatever. Mr. Brown has not suffered from nervous depression, is in good health and spirits, and will soon be relieved from his temporary confinement.

Meeting of Ratepayers in the Township of Peel.

Public meetings in the township of Peel, in the interest of the Arthur Junction railway, were advertised to take place at various points, for the purpose of getting an expression of the opinion of the electors upon the subject. The first of the series was held at Goldstone on Thursday. There were a very large number of ratepayers present. Mr. Geo. Close was called to the chair, and Mr. J. Cannen acted as Secretary. After thorough explanations from Messrs. Chadwick and McMillan, of Guelph, and Messrs. Anderson and Fraser, of Arthur, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

Moved by Mr. R. Stephenson, seconded by Mr. W. Brown,

That this meeting is strongly in favor of the Council of the Township of Peel submitting a by-law granting a bonus of six thousand dollars to the Arthur Junction Railway Company, for the consideration of the qualified voters, according to the terms and territory mentioned in the petition, and protest against any lapping in the interest of the Waterloo and Wellington railroad.

It was moved by Mr. Barkwell, seconded by Mr. Stevenson,

That this meeting pledge itself to support the by-law granting a bonus of six thousand dollars to the Arthur Junction railway, and use its influence to carry the same.

Another meeting was held at Alma village, on Thursday evening. There was a very large turn out of ratepayers, and resolutions similar to the foregoing were unanimously carried.

PAUL JONES:

THE ROVER OF THE SEAS

—OR—

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE RENEWED—JACK PAYS A VISIT TO DAN BRYCE—THE EMBERS OF A LONG-SMOULDERING LOVE STIRRED INTO FLAME.

The pair spoke few words while on that portion of the high road which ran between the Grange gate and the narrower path which diverged across the moor to the shore. There being but one feeling—one thought in the minds of both, any attempt at conversational talk was as difficult as it was meaningless. At the same time, the nature of the explanation about to take place demanded a place of strict privacy; and as that could be assured only on the open moor, Jack waited till they reached its brown expanse ere opening the subject which filled his mind.

Of course, even had she wished to do so it was not Miss Elliot's place to speak first of what was uppermost with them; but she understood equally with her companion how desirable it was they should be quite alone—free alike from observation and interruption ere the subject was entered on. Therefore she moved forward by the other's side under the same silent constraint, which was half amusing to both, causing them to give expression to furtive smiles and sidelong glances.

Fortunately the period of constraint was not of long duration. The distance they had to walk ere they gained the open moor was traversed in about ten minutes, and at length they gained a point where behind, before, and on either side of them was solitude.

Then as if by a common impulse they stood still, and turned face to face.

"You are Miss Asmstrong," said Jack, with a look of eager interest.

"And you are," she replied, "You are—I beg your pardon, but I knew you in the ship only under the name of Jack. You are the young gentleman who was the friend and companion of Paul Jones."

"Ah! then you do not know my last name."

"I must have heard it at the time, but do not remember it. In truth, Captain Jones seldom addressed you by any other name than Jack, and that alone has always remained in my memory. But," she added, with a smile, "it does not seem to me as if the other name sounded like Wilson."

Jack returned an answering smile, "No," he said, "not any more than Elliot sounds like Armstrong. It would appear that we both have made a change in that respect. Yet I am sure neither of us required to do so from any blameworthy cause."

She had only to look into his honest, manly face and clear sparkling eyes to be satisfied that he spoke the truth, and as her own conscience gave an equally exonerating testimony, she unhesitatingly endorsed his statement by responding—

"I am sure of that."

"But the alteration of name is the greatest change the years have made on us," said Jack in an animated tone. "When we met in the cottage we were not long in recognizing each other."

"Not long, but still we had a difficulty, and that is not wonderful. It is eighteen years past in October since the night on which we parted at St. Abb's Head, and these years must have changed our appearance very considerably."

"Am I very much altered?" asked Jack, a twinkle of mirth appearing in his eyes.

"To be sure you are," she replied, with a roguish smile. "You were then a raw boned youth, with neither beard nor whiskers. Now you are stout, bronzed, and—and your face is almost hidden under hair. Your eyes have not chaged, and they gave me the first clue to your identity. Now be equally frank, and say that I too am much changed."

"No, Miss Armstrong, you are not much changed either in figure or features. But—forgive me for saying so—the bright, happy, girlish expression you then showed has departed, and in its stead I see the marks of a deep, and if I may say so, subduing experience."

"It cannot well be otherwise," she replied in a low and sad tone, "for my experience has been deep and subduing."

"I cannot tell how surprised I am to find you here and in your present position. When you were in the Richard Paul gave me to understand that you were——"

Jack hesitated and blushed furiously.

"Engaged to be married you would say," added Miss Elliot, flushing likewise but free from confusion. "Yes that was true; but a quarrel arose, and the marriage never took place. I thought it a terrible trial at the time, but I now knew that it was fortunate for me, since it served to discover to me the serious faults in the character of the man to whom I was engaged, and saved me from future unhappiness. Strangely enough I was indebted for this to your friend Paul Jones."

"Indeed," exclaimed Jack, "how could that possibly be?"

"Because of the kindness I received from him, the intercourse I necessarily had with him, showed me how noble was his character, how patriotic and unselfish were his motives in fighting for America You remember his last words to me at parting contained a request that I would do him justice when I heard others malign him."

"I remember it well," cried Jack. "Everything connected with that time of peril and adventure, especially everything relating to your residence in the ship, is indelibly imprinted on my memory. I can now hear Paul speak as he said those words while we stood together among the dark and silent hills. I think I could repeat the very words of your answer.

"What were they?" asked Miss Elliot, in an earnest tone.

"Whenever my voice can be usefully lifted in evidence that you are acting under a high sense of duty, regard for truth and the recollection of your kindness will cause my lips to open and my tongue to speak in your defence."

"Truly my very words," she returned, It was a sacred promise, and gratitude as well as truth bound me to keep it. Nor did I fail to respect it, and I had ample opportunity of doing so. When I reached home every one I met was loud in denunciation of Paul Jones, calling him a cruel blood-thirsty pirate and buccaneer. I asserted the reverse, I proclaimed the nobleness of his character, the purity of his motives, and the humanity of his actions. My statements were received with anger and scorn. I was an orphan then, I had few friends left, and these few treated me as if I were guilty of a great crime. It did not matter. Whenever Paul Jones was maligned in my hearing—and people did it purposely to annoy me—I shrank not from uttering my conviction, and thus incurred further odium."

"Why, you were made to suffer an actual martyrdom," cried Jack indignantly.

"This was nothing to what followed," continued Miss Elliot. "Ere long my affianced came to visit me. He was a chief officer in one of His Majesty's ships, and was as violent and bitter as any one in his denunciation of Paul Jones. He had heard, of course, of poor father's death, and my imprisonment in France, and came fulminating anathemas against the author of our misfortunes, the private and renegade as he termed him, who neither feared God nor respected life and property. I calmly remonstrated with him for his prejudice and injustice, relating my experience of the kindness and humanity of the man he so unsparingly condemned, and gave it as my conviction, founded on knowledge and observation, that, however mistaken, Paul Jones was acting from strong conviction and a sense of duty. This was the cause of our quarrel. He told me that the woman who held such sentiments should never be his wife. That I must either abjure them or renounce him. I could not, even with such a penalty before me, prove false to truth and to my promise. The result was we parted never to meet again."

Jack's face flushed and his eyes gleamed at this recital.

The New Route to Europe.

The possible navigation of the Hudson's Bay and consequent opening of a new oceanic communication with the North West was taken up on Friday in the Committee of Railways of the Dominion Parliament. The discussion was brought on by the submission of a bill for the incorporation of a company for the navigation of Lake Winnipeg and Hudson's Bay, and the construction of a connecting link of railway. As the public is doubtless aware, the company in question proposes to construct a road from the head of Lake Winnipeg to Fort Nelson in Hudson's Bay, a distance of about 200 miles. This railroad will connect by ocean steamers with Europe on the one hand, and with Winnipeg, three or four hundred miles distant from its interior terminus on the other, by an uninterrupted water communication. In committee the granting of the proposed charter was opposed by Hon. D. A. Smith. Mr. Bannerman, the promoter of the bill asserted that Mr. Smith spoke in the interests of the Hudson's Bay Company, which was averse to seeing the North-West opening up. As far as we are aware the company which demands incorporation does not ask Government assistance. If this is the case, there can be no reasonable objection to the granting of the charter, unless the latter carries with it undue privileges. As this has not been alleged by Mr. Smith, whose sole ground of opposition apparently was that the navigation of Hudson's Bay is impracticable, the promoters of the company should not be hindered in their probably well-meant efforts to open up the country. The Hon. Mr. Blake, who took part in the discussion, suggested that the new road would divert traffic from the Canada Pacific, and would possibly need to be opposed on that ground. Have we built a $100,000,000 railroad only to nurse it?—Montreal Star.

The Ontario Timber Trade.

The quantity of timber manufactured in Western Ontario (says the London Free Press) during the winter is estimated to be four times larger this than for three years past, and it is very generally conceded that had there been sufficient snow to admit of more timber being brought out of the woods, the amount of feet would have been increased at least six fold. The "boom" has arisen from an increased demand in the United States and England. Some idea of the quantity to be shipped may be gathered from the fact that the Great Western Railway Company will be over six weeks in carrying the timber from the different points on their lines to the Hamilton wharf. The following statistics show the number of cars to be loaded and moved at the different stations on the main line and branches: 150 cars at Chatham; 100 at Alymer; 250 on the London, Huron & Bruce line; 200 on the Wellington, Grey & Bruce line, and 35 on the Brantford & Tilsonburg—in all over 700 carloads. A train of timber averages 24 cars, so that 30 trains will be specially run during the next month or six weeks by the G. W. R. Company to meet the exigencies of this important trade.

The Exodus from Nova Scotia.

Scarcely an exchange comes to us from the Maritime Provinces without an account of large departures of people to the United States. Indeed so large has the tide of emigration become that a serious decrease in the population of the provinces is mournfully apprehended. The Truro Guardian says:—

"The stream of emigration from our Eastern Counties to the West continues, the majority going, not to Manitoba, but to the Western States. Most of those who are going are stalwart young men, the bone and sinew of our population. Their loss is a serious matter to Nova Scotia. Not a few of them are Conservatives, who, disgusted with the utter failure of the present Government to fulfil even a tithe of their lavish promises, and seeing now what they were told two years ago, that the policy of protection is simply a policy of increased taxation for the benefit of a few monopolists, have resolved to go anywhere to get out of the Dominion. In one sense we do not blame them; but, at the same time we regret that they could not remain in Nova Scotia and help when the time comes, (not far distant) to oust the unprincipled place-hunters who secured power by false pretences. A brighter day will yet dawn over Nova Scotia. The reign of political charlatans and humbugs will not be tolerated much longer."

Extraordinary Crime in England.

A dreadful case in England has at once illustrated horrible inhumanity and given judicial sanction to the opinion, already scientifically established in medical circles, that alcohol is a poison. James Lewis Paine was convicted, after a trial of 8 days, of manslaughter, and sentenced to imprisonment for life for killing a woman, who lived with him as his wife, by slow poisoning by administering whiskey, brandy and gin. This extraordinary murderer seems to have acquired a peculiar power over his victim, and though at times she was reluctant to drink, she was unable to resist his urgency; in some cases he actually poured the drink down her throat in spite of her protestations. Partly by persuasion and—partly by the authority he had over her, he kept her continuously drunk for two months and a half, doubtless supposing that compassing her death by continuous intoxication simply would not be accounted as murder. He reckoned without his host; the medical testimony, which was long and exhaustive, showed that death resulted from alcoholism. The court charged the jury that the prisoner was bound to protect the woman as his wife, and that if he even simply allowed her to pursue such a course as resulted in her death, without intending it and yet without performing his duty in guarding her against it, he would be guilty of manslaughter. If he deliberately compassed her death by alcohol, he would be guilty of murder. The jury gave him the benefit of the doubt in a verdict of manslaughter. The precedent thus established is one of some importance, and possibly may prove available in wider applications in the protection of men and women from alcoholic poisoning.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.—The newspaper advertisement, an exchange truthfully says, is a never-tiring worker in the interests of its employer. When the bill distributor has disappeared from the streets and his bills are trampled into pulp, the advertisement is performing its silent mission in the family circle. It appeals to a constituency three or four times larger than the actual sale of the paper, for there are few newspapers which do not pass from hand to hand through three or four persons with every issue.

They are based upon scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbellecal, as well as Taricocele, at the advanced ages respectively from 65 to 22 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses for children as well as adults. Prof. H. defies the hernia that he cannot hold in its place. Mr. H's post office address is Albion, Orleans Co., N. Y. 27dwtd.

The Missing Boys.

OAKVILLE, March 29.—The Custom House officer reports that he has just been down to the lake with a telescope, and can see nothing of the missing boys or the boat from Toronto. The wind was strong from the north-west, and would probably take the boat to Port Dalhouise. Thomas Tinning, with a tug boat, went out on the lake to-day to try and find the lads who went adrift in a scow yesterday, but could discover no trace of them, and nothing has been heard of them at the ports along the shore.

ARTHUR JUNCTION RAILWAY.—We have reports of meetings held in the interests of this road in Peel Township, in connection with the proposed bonus of $6,000, which we are obliged to hold over till to-morrow.

It is understood the Fergus Council has purchased a new market site.

Consumption Cured.

Local News.

THE City Council will not meet to-night.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh to brisk north westerly to north easterly winds, partly cloudy to clear, cold weather.

REMOVAL.—Charles Walker, of Galt, for some time operator at the Dominion Telegraph office here, has been removed to one of the Company's offices in Buffalo.

TEMPERANCE.—Vice Chancellor Blake will lecture here under the auspices of the Dominion Temperance Alliance on the 25th May.

DISTURBING RELIGIOUS SERVICES.—Three young men are to be summoned to appear at the Police Court for raising a disturbance during service at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms on Sunday afternoon.

INTERIM SESSIONS.—The interim session for the county will open on Monday next before Judge Chadwick. The only cases for hearing are one against Sam. Soden for picking pockets, and another against Rowland Bell for the larceny of a pair of skates at Palmerston on March 1st.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—The closing exercises of this institution will take place to-morrow, at 2:30 p. m. A warm invitation is extended to citizens to attend. Hon. Mr. Mowat, Hon. S. C. Wood, and other members of the Ontario Government, are expected to be present. Hon. Mr. Mowat will distribute the prizes.

CUSTOMS SEIZURE OF TEA.—Last week over 6,000 half chests of tea were seized by the customs authorities at Toronto for an alleged attempt at evading the legal duty. The cargo was consigned to the Bank of British North America at Toronto, naming Roger, Lambe & Bro., as agents for the sale. The tea is valued at $90,000.

BUTTER PACKING.—A Montreal butter exporter writes warning farmers of Western Ontario not to use spruce tubs; as butter packed in them will be worth less by several cents a pound than if packed in white oak. The spruce tubs to which the correspondent particularly objects have loose fitting lids, and are made so poorly that they will not stand shipment. It is poor economy for farmers to purchase cheap butter tubs.

CENTRAL CONSULAR AGENCY.—Some time ago a petition was circulated in Guelph praying the United States Government to make the Consular Agency in the City a central one, and to establish a sub-agency at Palmerston. The petition was signed by almost every manufacturer and merchant in the City. It was afterwards circulated north of Guelph, and has received the hearty endorsation of grain merchants and millers along the main line of the Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway and Southern Extension of the line.

THE ARTHUR JUNCTION RAILWAY.—The Enterprise referring to the deputation which went from Guelph in the interest of the proposed Peel bonus to this line says:—"We feel very grateful for the lively interest which the people of the City of Guelph have always manifested towards the Arthur Junction, but owing to circumstances which have recently transpired, whereby a very large amount of trade, which otherwise would find its way to Guelph, is now forced to another outlet, it is now the duty of the City, in justice to itself, to secure by every reasonable means the construction of the Arthur Junction, and thereby secure the trade of a large section of country which otherwise may find its way to another channel."

MILITIA APPOINTMENTS.—The following appointments in the militia of this district have been gazetted:—1st Provincial Brigade of Field Artillery. The formation of a Provisional Brigade of Field Artillery, having its headquarters at Guelph, is authorized, to be designated the "1st Provisional Brigade of Field Artillery," composed as follows, viz., Wellington Field Battery to be No. 1 Field Battery; Ontario Field Battery to be No. 2 Field Battery. To be Major commanding, Capt. and Brevet Major Archibald Henry MacDonald, G. S., from No. 1 Field Battery. No. 1 Field Battery, Guelph.—To be Captain. 1st Lieutenant and Brevet Captain William Nicoll, G. S., vice MacDonald, promoted. Mount Forest High School Drill Company—Captain, J. J. Craig; Lieutenant, Alexander M. Shields; 2nd Lieutenant, George Allen.

GUELPH GAS COMPANY.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of this Company was held to-day (Monday) in the Council Chamber, Mr. D. Guthrie, President, in the chair. Mr. J. C. McLagan read the annual report and financial statement, which were adopted. A dividend of two per cent for the half year was declared. The following Directors were re-elected:—Messrs. Guthrie, F. J. Chadwick, Wood, Richard Mitchell, Innes, Massie and McLagan. Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring Directors, the scrutineers—Messrs. Swinford and Finlay—and to Mr. Yule, the Manager, for the very efficient manner in which he has managed the works. At a meeting of the newly elected Directors Mr. Guthrie was re-elected President and Mr. Chadwick Vice President.

On Friday night the barn and sheds of Charles Schreiber, Normanby, were destroyed by fire. Three horses, fourteen head of cattle, and fifteen sheep perished in the flames, together with a quantity of grain, and all the farming implements. Loss about $3,000; insured for $800.

Easter Sunday.

The Services at Some of the Churches.

Yesterday being Easter Sunday special and appropriate services to the occasion were observed in some of the churches.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—The services in this Church were probably never surpassed in point of beauty and appropriateness on an Easter Sunday. The Anthems, Hymns, Chants and Sermons were all imbued with the grand teaching of the day—"Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him." The sermon in the morning was from the text "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept." The Canon described in vivid language the feelings of the disciples on that miserable Sabbath after the crucifixion, compared with their triumphant exultation when they knew that "the Lord had risen indeed." In the evening the sermon was an exposition of the doctrine of the resurrection of the body—the most marvellous probably of all the teachings of Christianity. The choir evinced their admirable training in the correctness and precision with which they rendered the elaborate music of the day. Several new voices have been lately added. A very pure and delicate alto took some of the solos, rendering them with excellent taste. A large proportion of the congregation remained for Holy Communion at the mid-day service, and there was also an early celebration.

NORFOLK STREET METHODIST CHURCH.—In the forenoon Rev. Mr. Maxwell occupied the pulpit of this church, and in the evening it was occpied by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Williams. On each occasions Easter sermons were preached. The choir, under the direction of Prof. Harrington, rendered suitable musical selections, including a number of anthems. The services were largely attended.

CHURCH OF OUR LADY.—This Church was beautifully decorated, the altar being set off with numerous bouquets of flowers. Pontificial High Mass was celebrated in the forenoon by the Rev. Father Hamel, with Father Nolin as Deacon and Mr. Aylwar as sub Deacon. Rev. Father Hamel again officiated in the evening. At both services he preached on the Resurrection, dividing his sermons into two parts. At High Mass the full choir under the leadership of Father Fleck, rendered some beautiful music from Stabat Mater, and in the evening the same choir sang Grand Vespers, which was followed by the benediction. The instrumental music was furnished by Mrs Harkin, organist, Messrs. Vale and Lawrence, violinists, Mr. Emery, cornetist and Wheatley with the trombone.

PRISONERS ARRAIGNED.—The following prisoners were arraigned before Judge Chadwick on Saturday to enter plea and to choose the Court at which they wanted to be tried:—Sam Soden and Rowland Bell elected to be tried summarily at the Interim Sessions next week. Samuel Grey, charged with arson, elected to be tried by a jury at the Assizes.

IN INSOLVENCY.—Spriggings, late of Guelph, and now in Paisley, is in trouble—financially we mean. The Monetary Times says that about two years ago he purchased the business of Mr. Porteous in that village, who opened a private bank. But he was not long in trade until he discovered that his stock was entirely out of proportion to his capital which was very small. Since that time he has been struggling under difficulties, and is now attached with liabilities of $7,000, of which $2,500 is still due on the original purchase.

SHIPMENT OF HORSES.—The Waterloo Chronicle says: The horse market here has been very lively for some weeks back, the American buyers having found out that Waterloo is the centre of a splendid horse breeding country. Three car loads were shipped from this station last week making some 30 car loads from this point since New Year's. Two more car loads are to go this week destined for Pennsylvania. The others went to Manitoba and various parts of the States. The purchases aggregate over $40,000 to date.

THE MERCER CASE.—On Saturday judgment was given in the Ontario Court of Appeals dismissing with costs the appeal against the judgment of the Court of Chancery in what is known as the "Mercer case." The Mercer estate escheated to the Crown for want of heirs, and was appropriated by the Ontario Government. The appeal involved the prerogative of Provincial Governments in the matter of escheats, which question has by this judgment been settled in their favor, so far as the Court of Appeal can settle it. The case may be appealed, however, to the Supreme Court, and Council, before it is finally settled.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. MEDCALF.—The mortal remains of the late Mr. F. H. Medcalf, ex-Mayor of Toronto, were followed to their last resting place, on Sunday afternoon by one of the largest processions ever witnessed in this city. The various societies of which the deceased gentleman was a member, were strongly represented; but as it was known that the Loyal Orange County Lodge of Toronto had decided to take charge of the body of their departed brother, the Masonic fraternity did not attend as a society, but the members of the order were present in large numbers as citizens. Some idea may be formed of the length of the procession when it is know that it occupied three-quarters of an hour in passing the corner of Queen and Parliament streets.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

News Items.

There are 34 witnesses summoned to give evidence in the Donnelly murders trial.

Peter Macdonald, of the town of Wingham, M. D., has been appointed associate coroner for the County of Huron.

A second party of English tenant farmers, numbering about two hundred, have arrived in Manitoba.

Business was very lively at the cattle fair in Fergus last week. A large number of butchers and drovers were present, and they all came to buy and not to look on. Prices averaged about 5 cents, which was very good, considering that nearly all the fat heavy cattle had been bought privately for shipment to Britain in May or June.

The past week has been a very quiet one in business circles in Montreal, and notwithstanding that one hears a great deal about returning prosperity, a search reveals the same confined to one or two dry goods stores, the Redpath sugar refinery, and such other monopolies as have had the inside track.

A farmer away down in Maine married a love of a school girl who didn't know the first thing about house keeping or farming. The neighbors' wives did not like her, but before they knew it she had discovered on her husband's land a mine worth $40,000.

On Thursday evening another murderous attack was made in the Globe office. A young man (a feeder of a press) came into the press room smoking a pipe, and was ordered either to cease smoking or leave the room. He became insolent and threatened the superintendent. Seeing this the mail clerk jumped in and hit him. The feeder then seized a monkey wrench and struck the clerk over the head, inflicting a severe wound.

This the way the Walkerton Telescope speaks of the town council in an article on manufactures:—"Walkerton will yet become a manufacturing and commercial centre, but it will not be until the ratepayers rise up in their might and sweep the council chamber of the narrow-minded, small souled men who now control the destinies of the town. So long as the ratepayers will year after year elect men to control their interests who make a boast of it that the town is bankrupt so long they cannot expect it to prosper."

RESULT OF PERSEVERANCE.—The Stratford Beacon says: Mr. George Forman, of Stratford, has just obtained a pension from the U. S. Government of $96 a year for life—and $1,630 in a lump sum as arrears—for a widow, Mrs. Margaret Hodgkinson, of Brussels, who lost her husband in the late war. Mr. Forman has been engaged for some years in the case, the difficulty being (besides evidence from England) in tracing up and getting evidence of comrades of the soldier who were most of them dead or dispersed since the close of the war. This he succeeded in by pure perseverance. He has had many similar cases from all parts of Canada, and has been very successful in the business.

Dufferin County Council.

The Provisional Council of Dufferin met on the 23rd, when Mr. Robert Henderson, Reeve of East Garafraxa, was elected Warden for 1880.

Mr. Green presented a report of the Sites and Buildings Committee, stating that as they could find nothing of the firm of Griffith & Co., Toronto, they had awarded the contract for the erection of the County buildings to Messrs. Dobbie & Grierson, of Guelph, for $23,000, to be completed on 1st December next.—Adopted.

Mr. Soule, of Guelph, was appointed County Architect and Inspector of the County buildings.

The Warden read applications from A. Henry and J. C. Reid for the County Clerkship; and from J. C. Wheelock and Joseph Carbert for the office of County Surveyor.

Mr. Wilson presented the report of the Special Committee on Sites and Buildings as follows:—That the contract be prepared and signed by the proper parties; that not more than 80 per cent. of the work and material be paid, and then only on the certificate of the architect; that security be given by the contractors to the extent of $20,000; that the Registry Office be left in the hands of the Committee until they can communicate with the Government.—Adopted.

Mr. Green presented report No. 1 of the Finance Committee, which recommended that the Warden and Treasurer be authorized by this Coundil to issue the full amount of the debentures for the County buildings, the same to be payable at the Bank of Commerce in Toronto. Also that tenders for the highest price for said debentures be advertised for, and the amount deposited in the bank at Orangeville for the payment of the County buildings.

The question of appointing a County Treasurer then came up, when the following were nominated:—E. Hamilton, J. S. Leighton, and F. C. Stewart. A ballot on these was taken, when the first vote stood—Hamilton, 5; Stewart, 4; Leighton, 2. The second and third votes stood the same, after which the Council adjourned for fifteen minutes.

The Council resumed, and the vote was again taken and stood the same as before.

After considerable discussion it was decided to do without a Treasurer until the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. Green moved, seconded by Mr. Gillespie, that the Warden be empowered to borrow any money necessary to pay liabilities until the meeting of Council in June.—Carried.

After some other business the Council adjourned till Tuesday, 29th June.

The Wool Duty and the Manufacturers.

A prominent woollen manufacturer when asked as to the operation of the new duty on certain grades of wool as viewed from a woollen manufacturer's standpoint, replied that it would not be oppressive, as it did not protect the Canadian producer of wool. Possibly the only woollen mill in Canada which will be adversely affected by the duty is that at Cornwall, and there only in the single line of blankets. Without doubt the operation of the tariff will be to increase the price of blankets to the farmer. All the other mills in Canada saved that named can use such wool in their manufacturing as will not enter into competition with the Canadian farmer's product, and therefore will not be subject to duty. The farmers will in reality be injured and have their market crippled, because the effects of the tariff on wool as now framed will be to encourage the manufacturers to use wool of a grade different from that produced in Canada, and therefore the at present lucrative market for wool will be lost to the home farmer through the mischievous tariff tinkering of the present Tory Government. In connection with the subject of a duty on wool, it is understood that Dr. Orton, the champion of all protection, circulated a "round robin" for signature, asking the Government to place a duty on wool. The manufacturers learnt of the movement, and succeeded in effecting a compromise with the Government, which resulted in the adoption of the present hybrid system.

Erin Correspondence.

In November last by the zealous labours of Mr. McConkey, a total abstinence club was formed here with about 150 members. Since that time it has steadily increased until now there are on the roll something near 600. Among these are many who formerly were addicted to drink, but they have kept the pledge, and much happiness in their homes has been the result, as may be seen in the pleasant faces of mothers and children. We earnestly hope they will continue to do so. The regular meetings on Friday evenings are very largely attended. As a general thing the programme is very good. The choir certainly deserve credit, but it would be well if the committee would be more careful and see that the standard of morality be preserved, and exclude some pieces which have been recited and sung of late. If this caution is not observed we shall certainly lose the confidence of right thinking people who should always be at the head of such great moral reforms.

We have been told that some regard it as right to treat, although they have taken the pledge. Every member pledges himself to abstain entirely, and "by all honorable means induce others to do so. If abstaining themselves, and yet buying it for others is not a serious violation of the solemn pledge taken by them, then we are quite mistaken as to the design of the pledge, and of Mr. T. H. McConkey, its chief promoter. Morals with some here are so very low that they seem to have lost all sense of right and wrong.

Services were conducted on Good Friday in the Methodist and Episcopal churches.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Daily Mercury.

Conduct of the British Army in the Transvaal.

The British Government have issued an important despatch from General Sir Garnet Wolseley on the behaviour of the British troops in the Transvaal, which behaviour was animadverted upon by Dr. W. H. Russell, the special correspondent for the Daily Telegraph in South Africa. Dr. Russell, as it will be remembered, had written to the Daily Telegraph since his return to England emphatically asserting the truth of the charges he brought against the soldiers in his letter of Oct. 10, published on Nov. 21st last. It is in answer to the letter of Oct. 10 that Sir Garnet now sends his despatch. There are a number of other papers published with the despatch, but they all relate to matters covered by the general report, and are indeed detailed reports of cases which were asked for in a circular note sent by Colonel Brackenbury at Sir Garnet's request to the Landdrosts and Magistrates in the several districts of Natal in which Her Majesty's troops have been quartered. In the first letter dated January 2nd, Sir Garnet says:—"I have no hesitation in asserting that the statements contained in the article in question (that published in the Daily Telegraph on Nov 21)grossly exaggerated any acts of disorder which may have been committed by a few individuals among a large body of soldiers brought into townships for the first time, after a long sojourn in a wild country, where liquor could not be obtained."

The questions submitted by Col. Brackenbury to the Magistrates were as to the number of soldiers who had been committed for house-breaking, burglary, assault or robbery; the number committed for murder; the number of houses broken into; the number of women who fled on account of the conduct of the soldiers; and the number of soldiers who were convicted of crimes.

The answers to these questions are given in full, and Sir Garnet Wolseley sums up the matter as follows, which shows that the correspondent of the Telegraph must have been misinformed, or had exaggerated the conduct of the troops:—

Her Majesty's soldiers in the Transvaal are neither better nor worse than their comrades in other quarters of the globe. Freshly released from a long campaign in a savage country where for many months no drop of liquor other than the rare ration of rum served out on occasions of special fatigue had ever passed their lips, some of them were doubtless tempted to drink more than was good for them. It is to me a matter of satisfaction that so little crime resulted from this great temptation. The enclosed official reports of the Landdrosts bear the best testimony to the behaviour of the troops, and I trust that at least the same publicity may be given to this despatch that has been given to the article in the Daily Telegraph. The article has been copied into many newspapers, British and Colonial, and has been made political capital of by the enemies of the English Government in this country. At the date when it purports to have been written, the special correspondent of the Daily Telegraph was the guest of his Excellency the Administrator of the Transvaal. The officials of the Transvaal Government were always close at hand. The special correspondent of the Daily Telegraph could, at any moment, have referred to them or to myself, or the officers of my staff, for information as to the truth of any reports which might reach his ears. I cannot but deeply regret that so grave a slander upon the officers and men of Her Majesty's army should have been penned and published by one who has lived so much amongst soldiers, without his having referred to any one competent authority to enable him to prove or disprove the truth of the information. It seems to me inconceivable that he should have acted thus, unless, as I stated in my telegram to the Adjutant-General, he was the victim of a hoax, or allowed his imagination to be worked upon by some one who had the deliberate design of circulating false reports against the honour of Her Majesty's army.

Says the Sarnia Observer:—"The London Free Press of Wednesday built up a very sensational but airy castle upon an alleged rumor, said to have had its origin in Toronto, to the effect that a short time since Messrs. M. Fleming and Chas. Mackenzie, of this town, had been asked to approach Hon. Alex. Mackenzie with an offer of the Lambton Registrarship; that the former did so by letter to Mr. Mackenzie at Ottawa, and that Mr. Mackenzie refused to entertain the offer. Upon this foundation the Free Press goes on to advise Mr. Mackenzie to think better of the offer and accept it. There are just a few points in this story that are apt to spoil its reliability. Neither Mr. Fleming nor Mr. Chas. Mackenzie were ever asked to approach Hon. Mr. Mackenzie on the subject of the Lambton Registrarship. Mr. Fleming did not write to Mr. Mackenzie on the subject; and finally, the Lambton Registrarship is not vacant, so that the kindly advice of the Free Press is wasted."

It is reported that at the bankers' request the Finance Minister has decided to divide the draft Bill, and introduce two distinct measures—one renewing the bank charters which expire on July 1st, 1881, or another decade, and containing such amendments as are to be made to the law as applied to existing bank corporations; and the other dealing purely with such banking corporations as may obtain charters hereafter.

The Contest in England.

The religious services during Passion week in England were not by any means so well observed as formerly, in consequence of the great excitement attending the approaching elections. Churches were half empty, but the public halls were crowded. All classes are earnestly engaged in the contest, and merchants and tradesmen rival the publicans in political activity. The London correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune says that every public house in London is converted into a Tory headquarters. Many theatres were closed throughout the week; they would have been scantily attended if open. Picture galleries are deserted, concert halls are only half full, parks are desolate and shops are empty—beer shops excepted, where Jingo landlords and their customers carouse together. Every boarding is covered with political placards, and many private houses are displaying the bills of candidates. Cabs, vans, and other vehicles, public and private, even carriages, are similarly decorated. While the contest proceeds throughout England generally on broad public grounds, most of the constituencies are preparing to vote on local issues and interests. The Tory papers are trying to make all the capital they can out of the words used by Mr. Gladstone, that the policy of Austria was the most repressive and reactionary in Europe. Vienna telegrams have appeared continually saying that the public bitterly resented Gladstone's criticisms. This is true of the official world. The Court especially reflects the Emperor's anger on account of Gladstone's plain speaking. A late trustworthy despatch says the Vienna public believes that the peace of Europe would be a surer guarantee in a Liberal than in a Conservative triumph. Strange, too, that the French press generally support the Tory cause. Gambetta's paper on Saturday contained a fresh outburst against the Liberal chiefs, disclaiming the existence of a political solidarity between French and English liberalism. This hostility simply denotes French resentment for Gladstone's refusal to make war on Germany in 1870. The total number of candidates now reaches nearly 1,100, containing 499 Liberals, 495 Tories and 97 Home Rulers. The party managers say the contest is unparalleled in this generation. Betting at the Carlton Club, formerly 3 to 1 on a Tory majority, is now even. It is expected that more votes will be cast than at any previous election. Parnell is pursuing a very inconsistent course. While he admits that the sole hope for Ireland is the downfall of the present Government, he yet recommends opposition to several Liberals where opposition can only ensure the success of Tory candidates. Moderate Home Rulers deprecate this policy as vindictive and mischievous. The battle will be a desperate one, for as Fraser's Magazine says—"The issue is no question of an ephemeral policy. It is the grave and serious issue whether this country is to enter upon a new cycle and a new career of Militarism, or whether it is to make the best of the wild work of the last five years, and revert to that career of Industrialism, which, with very few breaks, it had followed consistently and evenly for upwards of half a century, until the present Government came into power. It is to be Militarism and Toryism, or Industrialism and Liberalism, for the next five years?"

The Fire at Mr. Mills' Residence.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Your notice of Mr. Mills' fire in Saturday's paper I wish to correct, for I was in company with Mr. Mills' two sons, and the smallest son (Harry) noticed the smoke first and thought it was dust. Just then the dogs began to growl and we heard men's voices, but took no notice of them, but tried to quiet the dogs. We took the lamp to go into the library to get a book. When we opened the door we were met with a cloud of smoke, so we set off to find the place where it came from, and found it to be in the cellar When we opened the cellar door the smoke came out so thickly that it filled the hall and we could hardly see. Then we went out into the verandah and sent little Harry down for Mr. Barry. Then Mr. Fairbank's son came up with some meat which Mrs. Mills had ordered about half an hour before. I took him into the house and showed him the cellar. He wanted to know what caused the fire. I told him I supposed that somebody had got through the window and set the place on fire. I told him to go down and tell his father to come up immediately, which he did. Mr. Fairbanks soon came up and extinguished the fire with a couple of pails of water. We then sent for Mr. Mills. When he came home we told him all we knew about it. I then went home.

Yours, &c., ALFRED MIMMACK.

HARRISTON.

The second anniversary of the dedication of Knox Church took place on Sabbath last the 21st inst. The Rev. J. L. Murray, B. A., of Kincardine, preached very able and appropriate sermons, which were listened to by a large and appreciative audience. The evening service was cancelled in Guthrie Church in order that all might participate in the evening service of Knox Church. The ladies held a social in the basement on Monday evening. As the reputation of the ladies has been well established by many previous efforts in catering to the general taste, it is only necessary to say they were not behind in their preparations on this occasion. The social being concluded the musical and intellectual part began. Rev. Mr. Campbell occupied the chair. Addresses were delivered by Revs. Messrs. Fraser, Mount Forest; Craig and Baikie, Harriston; and Stewart, of Arthur. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. James Cummings, with Miss McNevin presiding at the organ, performed some fine selections. Mr. Bristow, the leader of the Methodist church choir, sang a solo in good style. The affair throughout was highly successful, both socially and financially. The total amount realized was over $200, which is applied to liquidate the church debt.

The Young People's Mutual Improvement Association of Guthrie Church will hold a public entertainment in the town hall on Tuesday evening, the 30th of March, to consist of vocal and instrumental music, dialogues, readings, recitations, &c.

On Tuesday evening the 6th prox., the Y. P. M. I. A., of Guthrie church, will hold a debate in the church basement. Subject—"Resolved that nature is more attractive than art." Mayor Meiklejohn will occupy the chair.

The Harriston Browns are determined to take a front rank in base ball annals this season. They purpose purchasing a cup to be competed for by Canadian clubs.

Business has been dull for sometime, the principal cause of which is the almost impassable state of the roads. The want of sleighing is a serious loss to the country at large. There was a large demand here this winter for all kinds of timber, and as a good price, but unfortunately the absence of sleighing prevented timber being marketed.

The Game of Fifteen

A correspondent writes to the New York Herald:—The fifteen blocks used in the game of fifteen, when arranged with reference to each other, can be placed in 1,307,674,368,000 different positions. If sixty moves were made in a minute, for ten and a half hours a day and for 313¼ days in a year, it would take a fraction over 115,959 years to place these blocks in all the positions they are susceptible of. If sixteen blocks were used, it would take, at the same rate of speed, over 1,835,350 years to run them through their multifarious positions. The earth in its course round the sun moves in round number a the rate of 1,100 miles a minute, or about 597,556,000 miles a year. It would take the earth more than 2,260 years to travel as many miles as the blocks are susceptible of changes. If a salary of $1,000 per annum were paid it would cost nearly $116,000,000 to run the fifteen blocks through the different positions. I am not an applicant for the job. I give the puzzle up. Life is too short to spend in trying to solve it. I am willing to listen to "Pinafore," put up with the jaw of my mother-in-law, or assist in the management of an oyster supper in the basement of a church, and if the fool-killer comes along cheerfully leave everything and go with him in search of the inventor of "game 15;" but excuse me, if you please, from trying to solve it.

ONIONS.—From our own experience, and the observation of others, we can fully endorse the testimony of the St. Louis Miller, on the healthful properties of the above esculent. Lung and liver complaints are certainly benefitted, often cured, by a free consummation of onions, either cooked or raw. Colds yield to them like magic. Don't be afraid of them. Taken at night all offence will be wanting by morning, and the good effects will amply compensate for the trifling annoyance. Taken regularly they greatly promote the health of the lungs and digestive organs. An extract made by boiling down the juice of onions to a sirup, and taken as a medicine, answers the purpose very well, but fried, roasted or boiled, onions better. Onions are a very cheap medicine, within everybody's reach and they are not by any means as bad to take as the costly nostrums a neglect of their use may necessitate.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE RENEWED—JACK PAYS A VISIT TO DAN BRYCE—THE EMBERS OF A LONG-SMOULDERING LOVE STIRRED INTO FLAME.

"The villain—the harsh, brutal villain,' he muttered. "Forgive me, Miss Armstrong; but honestly I think you were well rid of such a man. He was not worthy of you. Had he cherished true affection he would have admired and loved you the more for your chivalrous devotion. Depend upon it he really did not love you."

"I soon had proof of that," rejoined the other. "I quickly learned that he had seized on this as a pretext for getting clear of an engagement from which he already wished to be free. In three months he was married to another."

"Ah!" exclaimed Jack. "I detected the falsehood of his heart in the brutality, of his conduct. But you—how bitterly you must have felt his desertion."

"At first I did; but it led me to see that our engagement had been a mistake altogether—that there had been no true, deep-rooted affection on either side."

"You had not loved him then," cried Jack, with startling vehemence and a look upon his face which told how eagerly he caught at the idea.

"I think not, but this I did not realize till afterwards. His desertion left me in a trying situation. I was destitute—I was without the means of support, and the few friends I once had were hopelessly alienated. The only one who proved kind and helpful was the parish minister, who obtained for me the situation of governess in the household of Mr. Bruce of Marston Grange. To avoid unpleasant results, he advised me to assume my mother's name of Elliot, and since then I have been known by no other. Here, far from the banks of the Tweed—whence I came a stranger and unknown—I was treated with the greatest kindness, and have known much happiness. I found genuine, loving friends; but in the death of my darling May—in the misfortunes of the poor youth Orwell Bruce, whose ruin and disappearance have caused us much misery, sorrows have again come on me, as they must come on the happiest of lots, for 'Man is born to trouble, as the sparks fly upward,' and at best this is a chequered scene of sunshine and shadow."

"Miss Armstrong," said Jack, in a low fervent tone, "your story interests me deeply—far more deeply than I can express. Little did I think that in the Miss Elliott whom I heard so warmly spoken of at the cottage I should find one whose memory I have never ceased to cherish."

"You sometimes thought of me then?" said the other, with a glance of pleasure.

"Thousands of times," was Jack's enthusiastic response. "But I always pictured you as the honored mistress of a happy home, surrounded by friends, beloved by all. Had I known the reality——"

Jack checked himself, and was silent.

"You would have pitied me," she added. "Yet you must not think I have had a hard lot. That first trial was sharp and bitter, but during the fifteen years I lived at the Grange my life was calm and happy. Then, indeed, was your picture nearly true, for I was nominally the mistress there, and every one was kind and affectionate."

"I know—that is, I can easily guess it," stammered Jack, his mind in quite a whirl of commotion. "I suppose," he shyly added, blushing like a girl, "you never at any time wasted a thought on poor me."

"Indeed, I thought of you often, of both Paul and you, and of the great service I had received at your hands. How could it be otherwise. I had been heartless and ungrateful could I have forgot those who succoured and protected me. I have eagerly tried to obtain intelligence of Paul Jones, but for years without success. I heard that he had gone into the Russian service, but that was all, until I read in the papers that he died in Paris last year."

"He did," sadly replied Jack. "His noble nature met only disappointment and neglect. Shattered in body and broken in spirits, he fell into ill health, and at last death released him from the malice of his enemies, and the ingratitude of those he had so unselfishly served."

"You were his companion through all his career?"

"No, oh no. We parted in America a year or two after you were in the ship. He had property there of which he wished me to become manager. When he left America he never returned. I never saw him again."

"How sad. And he died among strangers—perhaps uncared for and alone."

"Thank God, he did not. I am glad to tell you that in the last days of his life he was attended and ministered to by—by one whose ceaseless devotion lightened for him the gloom of the dark valley, and smoothed his passage through its woeful depths."

"It was a blessed task—one to be envied," said Miss Ellott; 'and, oh, how glad I am to know that he had a friend to comfort him at the last."

"It was a blessed task," said Jack, "and will bring to him who performed it a great reward. Never, perhaps, was human devotion so signally repaid. I for one would spend my last penny to serve the man who soothed Paul's last moments, and made his bosom his dying pillow. You will know more of this soon, Miss Armstrong—oh, I beg pardon—Miss Elliot, the old name comes so naturally I fear I shall utter it when I should not."

"Do you intend staying long in Scotland?" she asked.

"Not long—not more than a few weeks," he answered hesitatingly, reddening at the same time, and looking confused. Then after a few moments' silence, he exclaimed—

"I know I should be as frank with you as you have been with me. You cannot but perceive that I have thrown some mystery around me. The fact that I am not called by the name I bore when you first knew me is a proof that I am placing my personality under concealment. This is really the case, but in a very short time the mystery shall be removed. I am here on a difficult mission, and danger environs me——"

"Oh, pray, sir," said Miss Elliot, earnestly, "do not on my account enter into any inconvenient explanations. I have no claim to receive such. Doubtless you credit me with a woman's curiosity, but the exigencies of my life have long since taught me to keep that feminine attribute under perfect control."

"Nay, but you have a claim to my confidence—ay, a far stronger one than you know of. And as my secret will be perfectly safe with you I will at once reveal it."

"You must not," she cried, with increased earnestness. "I cannot comprehend your meaning when you say I have a strong claim on your confidence. If it be because of our former acquaintance or because I have given you these particulars concerning myself, that surely does not constitute even the shadow of a claim, and I beg you will not think so."

"But what if there are other grounds?" returned Jack, with a smile.

"There can be no other grounds," she rejoined.

Jack smiled again, and this time the smile had a mysterious character.

"Shall I convince you to the contrary?" he quietly asked.

"No," she laughingly replied. I positively prohibit you to do so."

"In other words," he added, with a grave and pained look, "you wish to convey the fact that I and my concerns have no interest for you. It were presumptuous of me to expect it."

"Now, you must not think that," she returned, her face at once assuming a serious expression. "You have an interest for me for two reasons. First, from our former acquaintance, and, second, from what you have just stated. But as you have also intimated that it was not your intention to make any revelations just yet, I am very anxious that you should not do so before the time you had fixed. Whatever may be the nature of the mysterious claims I have to your confidence—and I confess that I cannot conceive what they are—they cannot be injured by a short postponement."

"No; certainly not; except from the feeling that your frankness ought to have a corresponding return from me."

"I have no such feeling—no such thought. I will wait till your pre-determined time arrives, and then I shall be eager to see behind the veil of your mystery."

As she spoke her face wore a bright look of animation which filled Jack with delight.

(Elora Express.)

A few days ago an advertisement appeared in a Toronto paper which ran as follows:

WANTED—CLERK FOR GENERAL store, in a western town. Apply A. D., care of ——, Toronto.

In good faith an application was made, when a reply came in the shape of a circular, setting forth that by payment of one dollar the applicant's name would be placed on a list until suited with a situation. The affair smacks of swindle.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. A concert given by the Separate School children of Arthur last week in aid of the Irish distressed netted $48.

The first sitting of the Division Court at Arthur since the passing of the amendments to the Division Courts Act, was held in Arthur, on Tuesday, 23rd inst. The docket contained a large number of cases.

The barn of Mr. Bowman, Esquesing, which was burned last week, was set on fire by Mr. Bowman's daughter, who is insane. She is now in Milton gaol awaiting a vacancy in the Toronto Asylum.

At a christening, while the minister was making his certificate, he inquired the day of the month and happened to say:—"Let me see, this is the thirtieth." "The thirtieth" exclaimed the indignant mother "indeed, but it's only the nineteenth."

Unhappy King Cetewayo is confined in a narrow cell, and only permitted to walk on the ramparts accompanied by a sentinel. The parapet of the wall is high above his head, so that flight by this means is impossible, while the poor fellow has grown so stiff and unweildy from confinement, change of habit and diet, that it is as much as he can do to keep himself steady on his legs during the long and dreary promenade upon the stone pavement, with the two military guardians dragging their slow steps behind him. He is most desirous to cross the sea and see Queen Victoria, who he believes, will entertain him sumptuously, and punish the soldiers, who have destroyed his mealie fields, burned his kraals, and killed his young men.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending March 20th and 27th respectively, contain the following articles: Bishop Wilberforce, and The Romance of Modern Travel, British Lighthouses, The Halcyon's Nest, A Wild Irish Girl, The History of Writing, Something about Milk, and Artificial Production of Diamonds, Street Discords, Quarrels in a Library, and Mr. Bright as a Churchman, with instalments of "He that will not when he may," by Mrs. Oliphant, and "Adam and Eve," by the author of "Dorothy Fox." As a New Volume begins with the number for April 3rd, this is a good time to subscribe. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year,) the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, including the extra numbers of the latter, both postpaid. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

Agricultural and Arts Association.

The Council met again on Thursday morning.

Professor Brown, of the College af Agriculture, submitted a letter sent him by Mr. R. L. Denison, the Assistant Secretary of the Association, having reference to the Hereford herd-book regulation book, and claiming the right to the book and the fees derivable from it. After some talk he handed over the book to the Association.

The Executive Committee submitted their first report. They stated that they could not recommend the Council to petition the Government to relax the restrictions on the importation of cattle from the United States.

A Committee was appointed to wait upon His Excellency and H. R. H. the Princess, inviting them to be present at the Exhibition.

In order to save unnecessary expense, it was ordered that the President, Vice-President, President of Mechanics' Institute, the Art Committee, President of the Fruit Growers' Association Chairman of the Finance and Executive Committees, and Messrs. White and McKinnon, of the Gate Committee, should attend the grounds the first week of the fair.

The following were among the alterations in the prize list:

The Prince of Wales' prize of $60 was transferred to the best heavy draught stallion, any age.

A diploma and $25 will be given for the best herds of Herefords and other cattle, but for the Durham herd, $40.

For the best five fat steers, gold medal; fat heifers, gold medal.

For the best pens of Cotswold sheep, Canadian bred, $20; Leicesters, Canadian bred, $20; South Downs, $20; Shropshires, $20.

Four fat sheep, $15.

Best improved Berkshire boar and two sows, $20; do. Suffolk, $10.

Stallion, for agricultural purposes, of any age, diploma only; pair matched carriage horses, $15.

Five hundred dollars was voted towards the prizes in cheese and butter, on the understanding that the Eastern and Western Dairymen's Association grant $500.

Mr. Ira Morgan exhibited some samples of grain from the Northwest which he had received from Mr. Tupper, of Ottawa. The samples, which were fine and large, where wheat from Edmonton, and fifty miles west, and Fort Saskatchewan; oats from Fort Seskatchewan and Edmonton, 41 lbs to the bushel; barley from Lake St. Annes and fifty miles west of Edmonton; also, some new grain wheat from Edmonton. The samples will be handed over to the Commissioner of Agriculture for the purpose of placing among the samples for the Centennial Exhibition.

Professor Brown's scheme for bestowing medals for the best managed farm was set forth in the report of a Committee appointed for that purpose. The Council endorsed the plan recommended, which was that there should be a list of 42 farms, in a stated number of districts, made out and inspected. There are one gold medal, three silver medals, and ten bronze medals to be distributed.

Mr. Morgan moved that the sum of $1,000 be granted the City of Ottawa for the purpose of helping to defray the expenses the city was put to in preparing the Exhibition grounds and buildings for the Provincial Fair. The motion was lost and the Council adjourned.

The Session.

Ministers of the Crown take things very easy this session. It is the rarest incident in Parliament to find more than three Ministers in their places in the House at the same time, while the Premier makes his calls like those of the angels—few and far between. They seem to have adopted the policy of drifting through the session, and, if possible, avoiding all topics likely to provoke discussion or compel them to come to a decision. The session is now six weeks old, and still not one of the measures promised in the Speech from the Throne has been laid before the House. The question of insolvency the Government surrendered to a private member; the Banking Law is still in embryo, and all the other promises made in the Speech are, as Mr. Casey has aptly remarked, like Mr. Vennor's weather prophecies. Three times has the Hon. Mr. Blake allowed his motion on extradition to stand at the request of the Government; three times has Mr. Charlton been persuaded by Ministers not to press his land resolutions; three times did Mr. Macdonnell give way to Ministers and allow his motion in regard to the fisheries to stand over, till at last he very properly forced them to show their hands. Meantime the House has been dawdling, week after week, doing nothing, or next to nothing, while the questions Parliament was called to consider are kept in abeyance.

Our morning contemporary, under inspirations of contact, no doubt, gives us a hint of the reasons of the delay. Ministers are waiting for the spring to open with the hope that the general revival of business in the United States will have a corresponding effect in this country, and they may be able to take credit to themselves for whatever impetus the opening of the season may produce. This is a very old dodge, but the spring movement will be westward and southward, and must continue in those directions while the present Government incubus sits at Ottawa.—Ottawa Free Press.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

THE SALVATION ARMY.—The New York Sun says: Thus far there has been no astonishing rush of recruits for the British Salvation Army in New York, and it occasionally looks like some other armies—nearly all officers. It has its gallant commander Mr. Brig.-Gen. Railton: it has Miss Capt. Westbrook, and Misses Lieuts. Coleman, Evans, Morris, Pearson, Shaw and Price; but it certainly has a very small ratio of private soldiers. The cavalry uniform of the General and the artillery uniforms of the company officers have raised but a limited desire on the part of spectators to be arrayed like one of these, and even the blue banner with its enticing inscription "Blood and Fire," has proved small allurement to work under it. They have bombarded the Fourth Ward, attacked a stronghold of rum in force, and bivouacked in Jersey; they have sent lying columns to forage in Newark and to ravage Philadelphia; yet still on parade the army shows more officers than men. However, the army claims to have enlisted upwards of two-score recruits, only they are people who have business of their own to attend to. At all events, it is campaigning zealously, though not in the right spots.

An honest ignoramus, who had escaped a great peril by an act of heroism, was much complimented for his bravery. One lady said, I wish I could have seen your feat." Whereupon he blushed and stammered and finally pointing to his pedal extremities, said, "Well, there they be, mum."

Very red-haired passenger:—"I say, guard, why on earth don't the train go on?" Guard: "Good gracious, sir! put your head in; how can you expect it to go on while that danger signal is out."

A CENTENARIAN.—A reporter of the Port Hope Guide had an interview the other day with Mrs. Bovaire, who has reached the extreme old age of 110 years. She seemed bright and cheerful, and said there was no doubt about her age. She was born in Connecticut, her father being a Tuscorora Chief, and her mother of Scottish birth and origin. Latterly she lived in Mallorytown, and was passing through Port Hope to Beaverton to live with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas McCullough, who is 51 years old. The venerable old lady has been twice married, and is now a widow. She is a devout christian and a member of the Methodist church.

Attempted Escape of Three Convicts from the Penitentiary.

We learn from the Kingston Whig that on Thursday evening last three convicts all attempted their escape. The guards were conducting 31 convicts from a farm near the Penitentiary, where they had been working. While on the road a convict named Doyle stooped, and taking a handful of dust deliberately threw it in the face of Guard Bryson, which partially blinded him, and before the latter had time to think of anything he was hurled to the ground, overpowered and pummelled about the head and face. James Mills, sr., another guard, seeing the state of affairs, and imagining that his companion was being murdered, came to the rescue, and dust was thrown in his face. The gun which he carried was wrested from him, but not before his hand and arm were injured in the scuffle. His arm, near the elbow, was nearly broken, and a deep cut was made between the thumb and the forefinger, from which the blood flowed freely. The excitement was never more intense among the convicts. Some cheered, while others, with a grim smile, looked on and took no part in the affray. The three convicts—Doyle, Winslow and Gow—who succeeded in nearly stunning one guard and blinding another, now made a bolt for liberty, carrying with them the gun taken from James Mills, senior in doing so raised the gun to his shoulder and attempted to fire it. The rifle would not go off. Mills did not lose his presence of mind but hauled out his revolver and fired in the air with the intention of frightening Winslow; but it was no go. Winslow made several attempts to discharge the rifle, but when he failed he flung it from him, threw up his hands and surrendered. Doyle and Gow, while this manœuvring was going on, hid themselves but were captured—Doyle further on in the marsh and Gow in a hay mow in a neighboring barn. By some means Doyle possessed himself of a full suit of brown denim, which he must have had on him, for as he ran he divested himself of his prison garb. Gow is from Welland and was in for five years for robbery. Winslow was sentenced to seven years for house breaking and arson.

COUNTERFEIT DOMINION BILLS.—Counterfeit Dominion $1 bills are in circulation in Montreal and are plentiful. They are of July 1st, 1870, issue, and must be closely looked at to be detected. They are marked "D," with the number four alongside, and the red ink numbers are "ragged" on the edge as though printed with poor ink. The word "one" on the lower side of the bill also looks daubed, while the green tints have a faded appearance. The bills would easily be passed in a bundle.

THE ICE HARVEST.—The Free Press says:—The ice men have abandoned operations in taking out ice at Acton. About 64 cars have already been shipped, and 3,200 tons are in ice houses, which will be shipped as soon as cars can be secured. Between $1,500 and $1,600 have been paid to the men employed in the work.

The Election Squabbles in Ireland.

Attack on Parnell.

The Fight Among the Home Rulers.

ENNISCORTHY, March 29.—The cause of the riot here yesterday was as follows:—The Chevalier O'Clery, member for County Wexford in the late Parliament, seeks reelection as a Home Ruler, while Parnell has nominated two other candidates as Obstructionists, one of whom is very unpopular. O'Clery's party, some 10,000 strong, took possession of the platform, and, when Parnell arrived, accompanied by members of the Enniscorthy Club. The meeting was arranged for two o'clock, and the point of vantage was already occupied by O'Clery and six priests. Parnell's party had decided that the Rev. Mr. Kenny should preside, but the meeting selected Rev. Mr. O'Gorman, who was assailed by a man named Murphy. A scuffle ensued, and the priest flung his assailant off the platform. At this moment Parnell and Barry were seen advancing at the head of a large crowd with a band and green banners. The assembly numbered not less than fifteen thousand men. Amid great disorder Parnell struggled to the front of the stand. Groans and cheers filled the air, rotten eggs were thrown at the agitator, and one struck him on the beard. The chairman said, "We will hear Mr. Parnell, but we will not allow him to be our dictator." A rush was made for Parnell, but he clung to the railing and the priests protected him. The crowd caught him by the legs endeavouring to drag him down, and in the struggle his hat was battered and his trousers split up to the knee. At this stage a large force of police armed with rifles, advanced. There was a lull, and Parnell tried to speak, but was interrupted by cries of "You went to America to beg for Ireland, but not for Wexford." Go home and mend your trousers." Amid much confusion Parnell retired. Brodie, Parnell's candidate, was rejected.

Parnell indignantly denied the outrages of which he was the victim, and announced his intention to speak next Sunday.

DUBLIN, March 29.—The Home Rule League to-night passed a resolution declaring that the treatment of Parnell at Enniscorthy by hired mobs reflects the deepest disgrace upon O'Clery and all who took part in the outrage.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

The Lost Toronto Boys.

Found Dead in the Boat Near Niagara

NIAGARA, March 30.—Two boys were found dead in a boat two miles below Niagara. Presumably, the boys drifted into the lake from Toronto bay. Mr. Rainer, father of the boy Rainer who was one of those drowned, has started for Niagara to bring home the remains of the unfortunate little fellow.

The Breaking up at Mackinaw City.

MACKINAW CITY, Mich., March 30.—Ice has broken up, and there is open channel extending from Mackinaw Island as far as can be seen with the glass from McGulphin's light. The south channel is full of ice, but seems to be breaking up, and a good westerly wind would clear it out.

Sudden Death.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 30.—Timothy McCarthy, a well known merchant, latterly engaged in coal and shipping business, died suddenly in bed at three o'clock this morning. He was sixty years old. Congestion of the lungs is supposed to be the cause of his death.

Accident at Nagel's Engine Works.

The Erie (Pa) Despatch of Thursday last, says:—A young man named Joseph Murchy, a machinist, employed in Mr. T. M. Nagel's Engine Works, met with a serious accident last evening at about 5 o'clock. He, with others, was hanging a large grindstone, and had raised it a portion of the way up when the blocking gave way, precipitating the stone upon the young man's legs and pressing him to the floor or against a lathe. The unfortunate man was released as soon as possible and taken to Mrs. Hunt's boarding house on West Eleventh street, at which place he is stopping, when Dr. W. K. Cleveland was called and rendered assistance. Both bones of the right leg between the knee and ankle were broken, and although the left leg was caught beneath the falling stone, no bones were broken.

Mr. Murchy came to Erie from Canada a few weeks ago and has a wife residing at Guelph, Ontario. She was informed by telegraph of the unfortunate occurrence and is expected to arrive today. Mr. M. is a sober, industrious man and is well liked by his employer and shopmates. The young man bears his afflictions without a murmur." Mr. Murchy is well known in Guelph, and worked for many years in the foundry of Messrs. Inglis & Hunter.

Curliana.

The return match between the Superannuated team and a rink of the club skipped by Mr. Wm. Russell, was played on the rink this (Tuesday) morning, from nine till twelve o'clock. At the close of the match the superannuated team had the satisfaction of beating their opponents by six shots, which fully upholds the narrow victory which they gained a few days ago against the same team. The Superannuated team have good reason to be satisfied with the victories they have gained over this rink, not only from the fact they are all comparatively young and active men, while most of the Superannuated team have long since seen their best days, but also from the fact that the opposition rink contained a skip, the winner of the Gow Cup for this year, one of the acknowledged first players on the rink, and two good general players. The "old birkies" feel that they are able to compete with the best players that can be brought out, and are patiently awaiting another challenge. The score is as follows:

SUPERANNUAVED	CLUB.
A Robertson, sr.,	Geo. Patterson,
Wm Mitchell,	A. Bruce,
Jas. Anderson,	J. Mitchell,
J T Nichols,	A. Robertson, jr.,
Jas Barclay, skip—19.	W. Russell, skip—13

AWNINGS.—The Chief of Police desires to warn merchants against fixing the awnings in front of their stores too low. If they are not kept sufficiently high to admit of pedestrians passing under they will have to be removed.

THE FIREMEN.—A photograph of the steamer company of the fire brigade was taken by Mr. W. Burgess on Good Friday. The photograph is a fine, clear and true one. The steamer forms the back ground and on it are the driver and engineer. In the foreground is the company numbering nine members, with the Chief and Assistant Chief at either side. Mr. Burgess intends polishing and coloring one of the pictures to exhibit.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—This Railway Company, it is said, is about to put on a "lightning express," to leave Fergus at an early hour in the morning to run through to Toronto without change, leaving that city on its return about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Should this be the case, the Western will doubtless retain a large share of the traffic which at present it stands a good chance of losing on the branch south of this city owing to the advantageous arrangements the C. V. R. and G. T. R. have made for carrying passengers to Toronto.

VESTRY MEETING.—At the Vestry meeting of St. George's Church, on Monday, Mr. J. M. Bond was appointed by the Rector as Warden, and Mr. George Murton was elected by the Vestry. The financial report was the most satisfactory for many years. For the past four years, the offertory had steadily increased, until it was almost double what it was at the commencement of that time, though the past years have been the most severe financially experienced in Guelph. Mr. A. A. Baker, was appointed delegate to the Synod. A Committee was appointed to take immediate steps towards securing the assistance of an efficient curate. As additional sidesmen Mr. Morehouse, Mr. Foster, Mr. Goldsmith and Mr. Albert Stewart were appointed. Reference was made in the report to the fact that the Church, through the zeal and liberality of some of its members, was entirely freed from debt, and had been consecrated last summer, having no claim of any kind upon it. If a man's religion compels him to pay his debts, you may be sure it is genuine.

STABBING AFFRAY.—A dastardly assault was committed by Thomas Kenny on his father, who lives on the Dundas flats, south of the bridge and east of the Brock road, on Monday night. It seems in the evening the old man Kenny came home with a new shirt he had bought for a younger brother of Thomas's. The latter who was in the shanty at the time, being drunk, became maddened by this favour being shown his brother and attacked his father with a knife. He slashed around him in all directions with the weapon, making several attempts to take the old man's life. He drew the knife along his victim's neck, immediately below the left ear, inflicting a severe gash over two inches in length. Several stab wounds were also inflicted on the left arm which the old man had raised to ward off the blows of his infuriated son. He received a black eye in the tussle and was otherwise bruised. As soon as he could escape from the house he did so and ran to the police office, where he informed the chief of what had occurred. He was taken to Dr. Nunan who stitched the gash in the neck and dressed the other wounds. Though the victim shows traces of the brutal assault which caused him a good deal of pain he fortunately escaped without very serious injury. The assailant is well known as a hard character. He has served several terms in the gaol and Central Prison for vagrancy, and was only released about a month ago from Penitentiary, where he was sent for attacking his father with a knife. He escaped from the house before the arrival of the Police, and has not yet been arrested, but they have a good clue as to his whereabouts.

"That," quietly replied the court, "is a question of fact, and not of law, and so I shall not pass upon it, but let the jury decide."

The discussion upon Mr. Girouard's Bill to legalize marriage with a deceassd wife's sister has given rise to some curious and amusing questions. A living instance of this piece of inconsistency has been exhibited in the House of Commons.

From the North West.

A letter dated Winnipeg, March 24th, received from Mr. W. Palen, late from this office, gives some readable notes in reference to that part of the world. Speaking of the temperature, the writer says:—"It was so cold one day last week that the thermometer could not speak, and after warming it the least bit it rose to 35° below zero, but soon went out of sight again. This was at noon. Mr. P. says about 1,000 emigrants arrived in that city on Sunday week from Ontario, which made the place look like the great metropolis of the West for a few days, but a great majority of the new comers soon made their way further in. The writer thinks most of them will wish themselves back again before they get through the summer, as many of them do not seem to be of the stamp that are able to meet the difficulties they will have to encounter. Only good strong fellows that are determined to breast wind and storm, and the worst of all difficulties, the muddy roads that will be there until good roads are made, are those that will get along. The snow is beginning to melt just now, and that makes things look dreary, especially to the new comers. Mr. P. writes, that last summer in one settlement near Winnipeg, the mosquitoes were so numerous that many horses died from their bites. The Northwest is a lively place in winter, the writer adds, parties and dances are innumerable among the "breeds," as the natives are called there, and many a jolly time has been spent, the female part of the community making everybody, especially strangers, feel at home for the time being. Mr. P. writes that the Black Hills can be reached from Winnipeg in about three days travel, and some Winnipegers contemplate undertaking the journey, the prospect of making money there among the mines being the great inducement. Our correspondent closes with the remark that he has done well since he arrived there, but the extreme cold is too much for him, and although he has been strongly tempted to take a trip to the Black Hills, he thinks the next place he may be heard of will be from New York.

Halton Assizes.

Two Seduction Cases.

MILTON, March 29.—The Spring Assize Court for the County of Halton opened here to-day before Mr. Justice Morrison, and as no prisoner was found in gaol awaiting trial His Lordship was presented with the customary pair of spotless gloves. The civil docket embraces three cases, two of which were heard this afternoon. These were both actions for seduction, and the circumstances and parties connected with them formed the subject for a good deal of talk to-day among the people of the town and county.

The first case was brought by one Wm. Little, whose daughter was seduced by a young man named John Scott, the son of a well-to-do farmer in the township of Nassagawaya. The girl has lived in the family of the defendant's father for nine or ten years past, being considered much as a member of the family. She is twenty-five years of age, and the young man—who, by-the-way, presented a gay and dashing appearance in Court—is some two years her junior. The evidence of the unfortunate girl only was offered, and a verdict was returned in favour of her father. The amount of damages awarded by the jury was $600.

The second case was from the same township. The parties are quite young, each being now only nineteen years of age. The defendant, John Barber, who is said to be studying medicine, paid considerable attention a year or so ago to the daughter of a neighbour, Kenneth McLeod, and his affection for the girl being considered honourable by her parents, he was permitted to remain up with her at nights after the family had gone to bed; hence the source of the unfortunate accident. His Lordship, as he had done in the former case, reminded the jury that the assessment of too heavy damages upon a young man who had no immediate prospect of being able to pay them tended to defeat the object which such an assessment had in view. The verdict in this case was $500. The young man is said to be worth nothing financially.

Mr. Laidlaw appeared for the plaintiffs in each case, and Mr. Robertson, Q. C., was counsel on the opposite side.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—The Montreal Spectator in referring to the course of study pursued at this Institution, says:—"Education in these matters is to be theoretical and practical. The student will first learn what to do, and then do what he has learnt under critical eyes and guiding hands. Nothing could be better in a country like this. If parents would send their boys there as preliminary to life on a farm, it would be much better than sending them to those colleges where they learn just enough to unfit them for everything that is practical and bread-winning. All the professions are crowded, every branch of business is done to death—everything but farming. I would say to young Montreal and young Toronto, by all means go to College, but go to the "Ontario Agricultural College," and then—take a farm."

THE EDITOR of the Penn Monthly, in discussing the subject of Mr. Parnell's mission to America and Irish grievances, gives the following estimate of the agitator:—"He shows no statesmanlike grasp of the whole subject. His friends and sympathizers in this city tried to force upon his attention the immense importance of the other industries to the welfare of Ireland, and to show him that land reform would be but a half-way measure, unless something were done to undo the evil effects of that English legislation for the suppression of Irish manufacturers, which was adopted in 1698 and the following years, and was renewed in substance at the Union. Mr. Parnell goes back to assure the Irish people that a new land law is all that is needed to make them prosperous, when in truth any land law that the brain of man can devise would leave them nearly as poor and discontented as they are at present."

TUESDAY EV'NG, MARCH 30, 1880

Has Confederation been a Success?

There will of course be a wide difference of opinion on the question whether Confederation has been a success, or has answered the ends in view when it was carried into effect. There are so many considerations involved that at best but a qualified answer could be given. Viewed from a merely provincial standpoint, very few in Ontario would be inclined to deny that this Province is largely the gainer by the change. We well know how, under the old Legislative Union, Upper Canada provided the much larger portion of the public money which was spent in Lower Canada. The basis of representation was unjust, and the Conservative Government which almost without interruption ruled the country from 1854 till 1863, managed, by pandering to Lower Canada rapacity to retain a large majority of its representatives on their side, which, together with the subserviency of the Conservative members from Upper Canada, enabled them to retain power so long. It was through the indignant rotests of the people in the west that an end was put to this state of things, and which led to the negotiations which in time bore fruit in Confederation. Since that time—since Ontario had the management of its own affairs—the Province has made immense strides in all that pertains to healthy, steady and permanent progress, and there is no doubt that from a purely Provincial point of view we have been greatly benefitted by the change in our political system.

But the larger question as to the effects of Confederation in its widest sense is another matter, and these remarks have been suggested by a significant paragraph which we find in the Ottawa correspondence of the Sarnia Observer in reference to this subject. The correspondent's attention was called to the subject by an allusion in Mr. McDougall's speech on the late Hon. Mr. Holton, in which he referred to that gentleman's opposition to the Confederation scheme when it was first proposed, and while it was under consideration. That opposition was based on the fear "that the change would involve us in political embarrassments," and, added Mr. Macdougall, "I do not known but his prevision has been verified by events." The correspondent goes on to say:—"Mr. Macdougall in saying this was only giving voice to an opinion which is gaining ground here every day, that there never was a time since Confederation when the bond of union between the various Provinces was more frail and brittle than at the present moment. Representative men, in the House and out of it, from the Maritime Provinces, say that unless the tariff is speedily modified so as at least to approach a fulfilment of one of the promises under which they were induced to enter into the federal union, there will be a strong agitation in favour of a system which will allow them to frame their own fiscal policy. The fact is that thirteen years of Confederation have done little in the way of coalescing these Provinces with "Canadan" as they still presist in callingOntario and Quebec. There is little more in common between them and us than there is between British Columbia and any of the Eastern Provinces. The introduction of a high protective tariff at this particular time, and the utter failure of the scheme for the establishment of inter-Provincal trade—which was held out to these Provinces as a bait to induce them to swallow the tariff—are likely to arouse discussion which will put in abeyance for a time the question of our future relations as a people."

The judgment delivered in the Court of Appeal onSaturday byJustices Patterson and Burton, have the effect of confirming the Ontario Government in possession of all that part of the Mercer estate not handed over to the appellant, who claims to be the legitimate son of the late Andrew Mercer.

At a meeting of the Liberals of Chateauguay on Saturday, Mr. Edward Holton was unanimously chosen their candidate. Dr. Laberge has been selected standard bearer of the Conservatives. The writ for the new election has been issued. The nomination is on the 10th of April and the polling on the 12th.

The Monetary Times has a letter from Charlettetown, P. E. I., complaining bitterly about the condition of trade on the Island. The writer says that in an experience of over a quarter of a century, he never knew so many seeking employment, and "the feeling is general that that Province made a bad bargain when it entered Confederation."

The Manitoba Free Press remarks that one of the most striking evidences of the tendency of the people of Manitoba to become homogeneous has been given lately by a petition from the English-speaking settlers of Clear Springs to the Lieut.-Governor praying to be included in the Mennonite municipality ot Hespeler.

The United States Senate has been discussing what to do with the nearly ten millions surplus of the Geneva Award for which no proper claimants have been found, and a proposition has now been made to refer these claims to a Court, with power to distribute the money on the basis upon which it was obtained from Great Britain. Should all efforts fail to find a rightful claimant for the money, such an honest idea as to return it to Great Britain will probably never strike the mind of American statesmen, and yet that would seem the proper thing to do.

Report of the Ontario Agricultural College.

The portion of Mr. Brown's report, in which he deals with the question what foods and forms thereof are the best for the rapid production of flesh in animals—also what breeds are best under like conditions—is a very important one to the farmer. The experiments in cattle relate to two distinct grades, namely, five Durham grades, and five Hereford crosses. On 6th December, 1878, five steers were purchased of the stamp called Durham grades, or the first cross by a thoroughbred Short Horn bull out of a Canadian cow, ageing then, as near as could be ascertained, about 29 months; and also, five Hereford cross steers, that is, the produce of a thoroughbred Hereford bull out of a Canadian cow, the average age of which was 35 months. As the experiment was conducted solely with a view to testing increase of flesh, irrespective of cost, it is unnecessary meantime to enter upon the latter.

In order to allow the animals to settle down and get accustomed to changes—the food given being the same as in the future experiment—twenty-one days were passed ere weighing for entry, so that on the 27th December we had the following:

5 Hereford crosses..... 6,245 lbs.

There were, theretore, of the Herefords, on an average, 166 lbs. per head more than the others, two of them weighing no less than 1,402 each, the lowest being 1,051 lbs., or 20 less than the smallest Durham.

The duration of the experiment was for 151 days, ending 6th May, 1879. Food consisted of, daily:—90 lbs. pulped roots (turnips from 27th December to 28th March; mangolds from 29th March to 6th May); 10 lbs. cut straw and hay, and corn fodder; 10 lbs. meal of pease and corn (9 lbs. of pease meal from 27th December to 6th March; 10 lbs. of corn meal from 7th March to 14th April; 13 lbs. of corn meal from 15th April to 6th May).

Without going minutely into the regular and repeated weighings, we may say that the grand result in the case of the five Durham grade steers was an increase from 5,416 to 6,415 or 999 lbs. in 151 days, being 1⅓ lbs. per head per day; and for the five Hereford crosses there was an increase from 6,245 to 7,334, or 1,089 lbs. in 151 days, being 1 3-5 lbs. per head per day—making therefore 9 per cent. in favor of the Herefords.

The report next goes on to deal at considerable length with sheep feeding, and the values of different kinds of food as tested at the Farm. The kinds of food used in these experiments were linseed cake, palmnut meal, pease and corn.

On the 10th March the following selection of three classes of shearling wethers was made:—

4 Cotswolds, pure bred.
4 South Downs, pure bred.
4 Oxford Down crosses, out of Canadian grade ewes, by a pure bred Oxford Down ram.

For one month previous the animals were similarly treated to hay, bran and mangolds, in the pens set apart for this experiment, and for the last week of that month each class received the special experimental food that was to be continued during the first stage of the regular experimental period. The result of this latter proof was a diminution in weight in every case except two, as follows:—

" " Corn	" 265 "	254
South Downs, on Linseed Cake	" 173 "	167
South Downs on Palmnut Meal	" 153 "	159
Oxford Down crosses, on Mixture	" 296 "	293
Cotswolds, on Mixture.	" 289 "	296

The regular experiment began on 17th March by placing the animals, two and two together, in order to duplicate each sort of food, so that in estimating the results, you will understand that all were checked by alternating, not only with different breeds, but also with different animals of the same breed every three weeks. They had access at all times to water and rock salt, and were fed daily at 7 a. m., 11.45 a.m. and 5.30 p.m.

The course extended to eighteen weeks, or six stages of three weeks each, and for the first four stages all the animals, in addition to the experimental foods proper, were supplied with the following per head, per day:—

Hay	2 pounds
Bran	½ "
Mangolds	5 "

and for the remaining two stages, in place of hay and mangolds, green fodder, of red clover and lucerne, was given without stint.

Without going into all the minute details respecting the values of the different kinds of food, we may sum up the result by saying that the sheep on linseed cake gained on an average 6¼ lbs. per stage; on psalm-nut oil, 6⅜ lbs; on pease, 5¾ lbs; on corn, 7 lbs; and on all the above mixed 2¾ lbs.

Over all the changes of food the following hold good in order of merit by increased quantity:—

1st, Oxford Down Cross.. 8½ lbs. per head per stage.
2nd, South Down..... 5 "
3rd, Cotswold..... 3½ "

As regards Breed against Breed, it results that the Oxford Down cross is 143 per cent. over the Cotswold, 70 per cent. over the South Down, and 100 per cent. over the mean of all.

Mr. Brown's observations as to how much should be paid for steers to fatten are worthy the earnest attention and consideration of farmers. He sums up his experience as follows:—"It appears then that after debiting and crediting every possible item, it does not pay to purchase steers at 4½ cents per lb., feed them on some of the best of materials, and at the end of five months dispose at 4 2-5 cents per lb. live weight. It will be asked, how was it that hardly any advance per lb. was obtained for better beef; two reasons: the one formerly mentioned, (1) that extra expenses were incurred in purchasing, and (2) the animals had to be sold at a time when the market was unusually low by reason of the uncertainty of the trade with Britain during the cattle plague restriction. There must not be only increase of weight, there must also be an advance of price per lb., and this, I need hardly say, is always the case with well-doing animals.

There are a number of calculations of great interest under this head of feeding stock, which are too lengthy for our columns, but they ought to be carefully perused by farmers, and should form the subject of discussion at their meetings, clubs, etc.

It is a remarkable fact that the slight agitation against the Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister or a deceased's husband's brother is principally confined to the Maritime Provinces, and only to a section of the Episcopal church there.

Mrs. Kennedy, mother of John Kennedy, one of the parties awaiting trial on the charge of murder in the Donnelly case, died suddenly on Friday. She was an elderly woman and lived in the township of Biddulph.

The Grand Trunk's Connection with Chicago.

The Chicago Tribune of Saturday says: General Manager Hickson and the other officials of the GrandTrunk now in the city held another meeting on Friday at the Palmer House and completed the reorganization of the various roads forming the Chicago extension of theGrand Trunk, and after this the new road will be known as "the Chicago & Grand Trunk Railway Company." The signs at the freight houses were changed on Friday. The new road will for the present be used for freight traffic only, and the passenger business will not be opened until the new depot of the Western Indiana on Twelfth street has been completed, which, it is expected, will be in May or June. All possible efforts are being made by the Grand Trunk managers to perfect their Western facilities and place their road in a position to be able to compete successfully with the New York trunk lines for the western traffic. In addition to their all rail facilities they will have superior facilities by lake. A new line of steamers and barges to run between this city and Ludington has just been put on, and during this week two propellers and a barge took out about 50,000 bushels of corn. At Ludington connection is made with the Flint and Pere Marquetti, which turns the freight over again to the Grand Trunk at Flint. A daily line of steamers will also run in connection with the Grand Trunk between this city and Sarnia, which will be able to take care of an immense amount of business. Besides this the Grand Trunk has a line of steamers running between Toledo and Sarnia, a steamer leaving there every other day, and another between Cleveland and Sarnia that makes trips twice a week. Thus it will be seen that the Grand Trunk is well prepared to stand a fight with the eastern trunk lines if the latter should declare war upon this company.

The St. Catharines Board of Trade, the towns along the Welland Canal, and those interested in the shipping trade, are petitioning the Government to abandon the tolls on all the canals. The petition sets forth that owing to competition the rates of freight between Kingston and Montreal were reduced to such an extent as to have little or no profit, while the commercial value of the shipping has been almost decimated The abolition or modification of these tolls is asked for, in order that Canada may be enabled to keep to herself that through traffic which naturally belongs to her.

Says the Ottawa Free Press:—The audacity of the Government in proposing a Bill to make the western boundary of Ontario conterminous with a line drawn due north from the mouth of the Ohio River, is unparalleled in the history of Dominion legislation, and shows what a farce was the appointment of Mr. Dawson's Boundary Committee. The principle established by the present Government for the spoliation of the Provinces to keep up the extravagance of Dominion expenditure is well illustrated in this bill, but it is doubtful if the Provinces will submit to the extent Ministers seen desirous of pushing it. The pliability of the Ontario contingent in the Commons is well known, but we doubt whether they will venture to the length of sustaining the Government in the outrage now contemplated.

Heavy Steers.—Two fat cattle, fed by Mr. J. Russell, 7th concession Pickering, were sold for the English market, and weighed the enormous weight of 5,000 lbs. being 2,600 and 2,400 lbs., respectively. It took two days to walk them to Duffin's Creek. The buyer had found that there was only one beast in Canada heavier, and in order to beat it, he agreed with Mr. Russell to take the heaviest back and feed it for another year, at $9 per month. Mr. Russell had a conveyance made to carry it back in.

Plucky Girls.—James Hall, of Chaffey Township, has during the past winter taken 260 saw logs from the bush. He cut the trees down himself, and they were sawn into logs by his two daughters, Maggie and Nellie, aged 18 and 14 respectively. The logs were hauled a mile by a team of steers aged three and two years. The two year old steer was exchanged every day or two and a cow substituted. The girls had to walk a mile and a half to their work, and like lumbermen in similar circumstances had not a warm dinner.

Fire at Merriton.—The fine residence of Mr. John Riordan, paper manufacturer, was partially destroyed by fire on Monday evening. Mr. Riordan was in possession of a large number of valuable works of art, principally in statuary and oil paintings, all of which were more or less damaged, and as they may not be easily replaced the loss in this respect is serious. The costly furniture was also considerably damaged by water and smoke. The loss will probably reach $10,000, but is fully covered by insurance—$10,000 on the house and $9,500 on the contents. The fire originated from a defective flue connected with the hot air furnace.

The Old Story in Biddulph.—On Saturday night last Robert Donnelly, of Biddulph, borrowed William Donnelly's horse and buggy to drive to the Kennedy homestead, where old Mrs. Kennedy, William's mother-in-law, was lying dead. He left the buggy some distance off while he made his visit, but on coming out found that the buggy had been maliciously broken to pieces by some enemy.

A son of Mr. Cuff, of Seaforth, had his leg terribly crushed the other day by it being caught in a horse power, and died in consequence.

"Rev. Mr. Breeze Again."

Rev. R. W. Wallace, of London, writes to the London papers as follows: "Breeze had been collecting in several places for the building fund of the Alton Church, but lined his own pockets; whereupon the church withdrew his commission on Feb. 16th, 1880. And then at a church meeting, held on March 1st, it was resolved, "That whereas the Rev. J. T. Breeze has absented himself from this church so long, and not reported to the church what he is doing, and in consequence of certain influences at home and abroad against him, this church deem it expedient to sever the connection as pastor and people." This resolution was carried unanimously, Breeze turned up in London on March 9th, having been turned out ignominiously from the pastorate at Alton six days before, and succeeded in gulling the editor of a certain sheet in this city, into believing that he was still pastor of the Alton Church.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE RENEWED—JACK PAYS A VISIT TO DAN BRYCE—THE EMBERS OF A LONG-SMOULDERING LOVE STIRRED INTO FLAME.

"You do feel an interest in me then?" he ardently exclaimed.

"A very strong interest, and an interest not altogether prompted by curiosity. There, I hope that satisfies you," she added, laughing and colouring at the same time.

"So satisfied that I am tempted to prove it by telling you all now; but as you have prohibited me, I will obey you on one condition."

"Which is——"

"That you allow me to make you the first recipient of my revelations."

"I am too much flattered by the preference to decline."

"Then, will you meet me here this night week—at what hour shall I say?—yes, at five o'clock."

"That is next Tuesday afternoon—why, next Tuesday is the day of the sale."

"It is," said Jack, with a meaning look, which produced in her mind a feeling of wonder. For several moments she gazed in silent astonishment and with an expression of interest strong and real beyond all doubt. Till that moment she had not connected his presence at the cottage with the sale of the Grange; but his words, his look clearly suggested such an idea, and its effect was powerful—almost sufficiently powerful to cause to take back her prohibition and seek the promised revelation at once. Her power of self control, however, asserted itself, and she forbore.

"I shall not fail to be on the moor next Tuesday at the hour you name," she said, in a tone which evinced the strength of her inward feeling; and the promise was received by Jack with unfeigned delight.

During the progress of the conversation they had been slowly walking forward, and were now within sight of the schoolhouse and the chimney tops of the highest of the shore houses. Their walk had therefore naturally reached its termination.

"We shall now say good night," said Miss Elliot. "Yonder is my little abode, and the fishermen's houses are just below. I am afraid Dan Bryce will think I have forgot my promise to come and see him, but it is not yet too late, and I must keep it."

"Is Dan Bryce still alive?" asked Jack in a tone of suprise. "That is surely impossible."

"You—you once knew him then?" remarked Miss Elliot. "That is an indication that you have been in this part of the country before."

"Fairly caught," laughed Jack. "This is the second time I have inadvertently forgot my part. Fortunately the slips have caused me no harm. The fact is, Miss Armstrong—there I go again—Miss Elliot, I mean, the fact is, disguise is not natural to me. It is so foreign to my inclination to appear what I am not, that during the time I have lived with Mrs. Borland I have had the greatest difficulty in preserving my—my—what shall I call it?"

"Your incognito perhaps," suggested his companion with a smile.

"Well, yes—my incognito. It has been a great effort to me to keep on my guard, and with all my care there have been forgetful moments when discovery had almost taken place. I am thankful to know that in another week the irksome task will be ended."

"I can well understand your difficulty,' said Miss Elliot. "I had some experience of it, as you may well believe. But your assumed part seems to be far more comprehensive than mine, as well as more critical. I could not sustain a changed name and a foreign personality on the banks of the Tweed."

"In my case," went on Jack, "I have run no danger of recognition except from my own blundering. It is twenty years exactly since I left the locality, and the change I have undergone is so great that my closest acquaintances of former times have failed to recognize me. To be sure the circumstances under which I left make it almost impossible that they should, for it was believed that I perished in the Solway. And is it really possible that Dan Bryce is still alive? Why, he was an old infirm man then."

"Nevertheless he is alive still, though bedridden and helpless, and I frequently visit him to try to lead his mind to thoughts befitting his condition."

"Does he relish your efforts?"

"I fear he relishes better the tobacco I take to him. Dan is not a promising subject for repentance, but I think it my duty to go and talk to him."

"And you are going to-night," said Jack.

"I am going there now," she replied. "I sent a message by one of the school girls, and as I am later than my usual he will be fretting."

She held out her hand as she spoke, which Jack took, but not trsat to a parting shake. He held it in his own and said,

"Would you object to me going with you to Dan's house? I should like to see the old man once more."

"Would it be safe for you to do so. His mental faculties are as sharp as ever. He might recognise you."

"I have no fear of that. I am no more like the lad he once knew than an oak is like a sapling. If others who knew me far better have not recognized me, how should he? Besides you will introduce me as Mr. Wilson, a stranger, just from America. Really there is not the slightest danger."

"If you think so I have not the least objection that you should accompany me. One thing I must ask of you. Do not give him money, for he would spend it on drink, and that would do him much injury."

"Oh, then he has not abandoned his old habit. I am very glad you told me, for most likely I would have offered him a trifle to increase his comforts. Well, I shall take a better way to benefit him. Poor Dan, his life has been a rough one."

Arrived at the top of the brae, they took the nearest path to Dan's cottage—not, however, without becoming the objects of curiosity to a few of the fishermen who were lounging about on the slope. These looked at Jack with a curiosity which amounted to actual sensation, following him with their eyes and whispering excitedly to each other till he and Miss Elliot disappeared within the threshold of Dan's dwelling.

The old man was lying as usual in the dingy recess which formed his bed. In the twilight the apartment was dim to obscurity, but in the gloom Dan's harsh voice was heard in querulous complaint.

"Is that you, Miss Elliott?" he gruffly inquired. "Hech, but ye hae been lang."

"Have you been wearing for me, Dan?" asked his visitor, in gentle tones.

"Deed have I. Ye tell't Leezie ye wad be doon."

"So I did, Dan, and I am sorry I am so late, but I have been at Mrs. Borland's, and was kept longer than I expected."

"It wadna hae maittered gin ye had sent a wee bit baccy. I'm clean oot, and greenin' for a smoke. A smoke is a' my comfort now-a-days."

"Well, here is some tobacco for you, and as it is so late I will not stay to talk, but I will come again soon—to-morrow evening perhaps."

Without taking notice of this promise, Dan raised himself half up and eagerly stretched out a bony hand for the cherished weed, when for the first time he observed Jack's dark form, and quickly exclaimed—

"Wha's that wi' ye?"

This stranger, Dan, is Mr. Wilson, a gentleman who has come all the way from America."

"Ye dinna say sae? Odd sake, licht the cruisie and let me see him."

It was wonderful the interest Dan evinced when the visitor's name was announced. He drew himself quite up, and pushed his head over the front of the bed. Miss Elliot was not much inclined to assist the old man's inspection by the aid of the lamp, but as he urgently called for it she knew not how to refuse. Still, if Jack himself had not endorsed the request, she had made up her mind to evade it.

MAUD.

Maud Muller on a winter's day,
Went out upon the ice to play.

Beneath her Derby gleamed her locks
Of red banged hair, and her crimson socks,

She straddled about from ten till two,
And then a hole in the ice fell through.

On the bottom of the pond she sat,
As wet and mad as a half-drowned rat.

A man with a hickory pole went there,

And her mother is said to have thumped her well,
Though just how hard Miss Maud won't tell.

And hung her over a stovepipe to dry,
With a thumb in her mouth and a fist in her eye.

Alas! for the maiden; alas! for the hole,
And 'rah for the man with a hickory pole.

One of the greatest mysteries in nature is the hole in the heel of a stocking. How it gets there no one knows; the need of it no one sees; the philosophy of it no one can explain; the logic is, "Darn it."

Darwin acknowledged himself sold when his little neice asked him, seriously, what a cat has that no other animal has. He gave it up after mature deliberation, and then the sly puss answered, "Kittens."

Old Mrs. Lawson was called as a witness. She was sharp and wide-awake. At last the cross-examining lawyer, out of all patience, exclaimed, "Mrs. Lawson, you have brass enough in your face to make a twelve quart pail." "Yes," she replied, 'and you've got sass enough in your head to fill it."

A Yankee came running down to a pier just as a steamer was starting. The boat moved off some four or five yards, so he took a jump, and coming down on the back of head on the deck, he lay stunned for twolor three minutes. When he came to, the boat had gone the best part of a quarter of a mile, and raising his head, and, looking to the shore the Yankee said, "Great Jehosaphat, what a jump."

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

SHOCKED.—The Mail says:—A funny incident occurred on Saturday morning to an able bodied policeman of that city, which he will remember until that period when he shall be required to shake off—not his uniform but "his mortal coil." Observing a wire of the fire telegraph alarm lying across the street he proceeded to break it, in order that horses in passing might not become entangled in it. He tugged manfully at the wire, and finally broke it, but the next moment he was coiled completely up, with both ends of the wire in his hands and a powerful stream of electricity being injected into him. He tried to shake the "darned" thing off, but it stuck to him like a leech, and whilst wrestling with the electric fluid, he keeled over in the mud like a broken down gladiator, soiling his new clothes. Just think of it. Solicitous spectators advised him to let the thing go, but this was what he could not do. Occasionally, as he bent double, the poor fellow exclaimed, "Oh! oh-o!" He was being "wired" into with a vengeance, but at a lucky moment the current was broken, and he dropped the wires, vowing that he would never again touch a wire during the rest of his natural sojourn in this vale of tears and electricity.

GEORGE MURTON

Arthur Junction Railway.

The Directors of the Arthur Junction Railway are determined, if possible, they will secure a railway from the North to make a connection with the Southern markets. First they submitted a by-law to the electors of Luther for a bonus of $12,000, which, for some small objection, was defeated. They, however, succeeded afterwards in carrying a bonus of $10,000 to the railway. Arthur Township was next approached on the matter of granting a bonus towards the line, and a by-law being submitted for a bonus of $10,000, it was carried. The Council refused to ratify the by-law, and the matter is now in Court for decision. Peel refused to sanction a by-law for $6,000 towards the line, but the Directors are again urging the passage of a second by-law for $6,000. The Waterloo and Wellington Railway are also asking the Council to submit a by-law for $24,000, over about three-fourths of the township. Both parties appear before the Council of the township on April 20th, in the interest of their respective Companies. The difficulty is that both Companies claim the central part of Peel, which intensifies the struggle between them. Meantime the Directors of the Arthur Junction Railway decided to leave the opinion of the residents in the disputed territory, as to which line they are in favor of aiding. With this view a series of meetings are being held in the township, the first being at Goldstone on Thursday, the 25th, there being a large attendance. Mr. George Close occupied the chair, and Mr. M. J. Common acted as Secretary. Messrs. Chadwick and McMillan, Guelph, and Fraser and Anderson, Arthur, explained the objects of the meeting, and the claims the Arthur Junction Railway Company had on the township. Resolutions in favor of the bonus were passed, which will be found in a short report we gave on Saturday.

A meeting was held at Alma the same night, which was called to order by Mr. Miles Jackson and Mr. Thomas Collum moving Mr. George Hill Lewis to the chair, Mr. W. Smith being appointed secretary on motion of Mr. Collum seconded by Mr. Blunkard. The chairman introduced Mr. Fraser, president of the road, who showed the advantages of the scheme. Mr. Anderson came next, and was frequently applauded during his most interesting speech. He was followed by Mr. MacMillan, who gave his views as a representative of Guelph. Mr. Chadwick, vice-president, in a forcible and excellent speech, which was received with evident satisfaction by those present, went into the matter in practical review of the whole situation. This meeting was most enthusiastic, giving credit to Mr. Anderson and his friends for their exertions in the interests of the ratepayers of Peel. Mr. Anderson called upon the meeting to give expression to their views clearly and freely. After a careful consideration of what they had heard the result was that the resolutions submitted were carried unanimously, being respectively by Mr. Joseph Smith, seconded by Mr. Collum, and by Mr. George Blunkard, seconded by Mr. Walter Smith. Considering the state of the roads and the short notices which were given the meetings held have been very well attended, and much interest was manifested by the yeomanry of Peel.

A meeting took place at Harcourt's school house, on 16th concession, on Friday afternoon. There was a fair representative meeting of the electors of that section present. Mr. Andrew O'Callaghan was called to the chair and Mr. Riordan appointed secretary.

Mr. Fraser opened the meeting, followed by Mr. O'Callaghan, who spoke briefly and retired in favor of Mr. MacMillan, who made an excellent speech in favor of the scheme. Mr. Chadwick came next, and Mr. Anderson wound up in reply to various questions from those present.

The resolution pledging the meeting to support the by-law was moved by Messrs. Norris and Riordan, and carried.

A resolution, moved by Mr. Riordan and seconded by Mr. Gainer, protesting against the "Lap" or Waterloo and Wellington railway, was also carried.

In the evening the party visited Rocky Mountain and held a meeting at the Harp of Erin. Mr. John D. Mahon took the chair, and Mr. Patrick Coffee acted as secretary. Mr. Secretary O'Callaghan gave a sketch of the position of the Arthur Junction. Mr. MacMillan and Mr. Anderson followed in capital addresses, when those opposed to the scheme were invited to speak. No one took advantage of the opportunity except by asking the usual questions, which were replied to by Mr. Chadwick, who brought the debate to a close, and resolutions similar to the above were moved by Messrs. McGowan and Chricton.

The result of the meetings held so far is considered to be highly satisfactory, and the council will no doubt be guided by the expressed wish of the ratepayers in the section, more especially those residing within the limits of "the Lap."

Meetings will be held on Wednesday next at Parker, and on Thursday at Jackson's school house.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

The Reeve has been instructed by the Council to defend the suit entered in the Division Court against the township of Peel.

An old sinner who gave much trouble to his neighbours, took ill. A neighbour looked in one day and inquired of Mrs. Brown how her husband was. "Deed he's no vera weel," she replied, "the fact is, he's deein', and he's gie frichted to face his Makker." "Tell him frae me," said the neighbour, "if that's a' that's troublin' him he needna fash, as he'll never see Him."

The Superintendent of Education in Pittsburg in his annual report holds that the use of the daily paper as a text-book in the hands of a teacher cannot be overestimated.

Suicide at Clifton.

CLIFTON, Ont., March 31.—Louis Rohmer, of Hamilton, Ont., shot himself in his room at the Frontier House, American side, last night. He had been staying there for the past ten days, and on going to bed last night expressed his intention of going to Hamilton this morning, and requested to be called in time for the seven o'clock train. Receiving no response to repeated calls at his door, entrance was made through a window, when he was found lying dead with a revolver in his hand, the ball having taken effect in his forehead. His room was on the third flat, and the discharge of the revolver was not heard by any person in the house. Financial troubles are supposed to have been the cause of the rash act.

The Fall of the Waubuno Found.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., March 30.—The party who started this morning in search of the wreck of the ill-fated steamer Waubuno returned at 8:30 p.m., having found the hull about five miles north of Moose Point, and a longer distance in towards the main shore than was generally supposed. The hull lies bottom up in a small bay in eleven feet of water, ninety-four feet shows about two feet out, the rest not more than one foot under. The whole of the starboard bottom is completely destroyed. The port side and keel, as far as can be seen, have not a scratch. The engines and boiler cannot be in her, as the hull has floated at least four miles from where the wreckage was picked up last fall. It is difficult to imagine how the hull floated to the place where it now lies. The bottom, as far as can be seen, is quite sound.

The Bodies of the Missing

They are to be Buried by the City.

TORONTO, March 31.—A large number of people congregated at the G. W. R. station at 10:15 this morning, when the bodies of the two boys, Burgess and Rainor arrived from St. Catharines. Mr. Samuel Price, step-father of the boy Burgess, and Mrs. Rainor were present and appeared to feel keenly the sad blow which has fallen upon them. The bodies were removed to the homes of the parents. A great deal of indignation is expressed because a tug was not sent in search of them. They will be buried by the city.

From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 31.—The Emperor of China, it is understood, has assented to his appointment as Consul General of that country, in Canada, to be located at Montreal.

Mr. Bentley has taken a deep interest in improving the trade relations between Canada and Brazil and in a very few months a subsidized steamer will ply between the two countries, calling at the West India Island. A Montreal house purposes establishing an agency in Brazil with a view to the further development of trade with that country.

Dr. Shultz says carpenters get from $2.50 to $3 per day in Winnipeg.

The Premier of Manitoba is at present conferring with the Dominion Government with reference to the erection of new Parliament Buildings at Winnipeg.

The contractor for the bridge over Red River, at Winnipeg, Mr. J. C. MacDonald, left last night for Manitoba. He will go on with the construction of the work at once. He took with him a number of men and some plant.

Sandfield Fleming will shortly proceed to British Columbia in connection with the Yale Kamloops branch of the Pacific Railway.

Accidental Death.

Mr. John Canning, an old and respected resident of Markham township, met with an accident on Saturday, which terminated fatally last night In turning a team of horses attached to a waggon the wheels became locked, upsetting the vehicle, and throwing Mr. Canning under the box, and he was dragged about 200 yards and then picked up in a horribly mangled condition, the bone of the left leg being fractured in two places—in fact the bone from the knee to the ankle was all splintered.

Fire in Markham.

The house of Jno. Hogg, farmer, on the 3rd con., Markham, and about eight miles from Toronto, was burned to the ground on Tuesday night. Loss, $1,200; no insurance.

The Markets.

March 31.—The Liverpool market suffered a decline of from 1d to 3d on wheat, and Beerbohm reports floating cargoes as inactive and very heavy. Chicago opened lower, and prices continued to drag most of the day, with, however, a little firmer feeling at the close. New York was irregular and lower, in sympathy with Chicago. In Montreal there was very little change in the local breadstuffs market. Canada spring wheat was quoted at $1 40 to $1 41. Peas, 82c on the spot; 87½ for May delivery. Oats, 31c. Corn, duty paid, 68c to 70c. Barley, 55c to 65c. Rye, 79c to 80c. Ashes, $3 70 to $3 75. Seeds—Timothy, $3 40 to $3 50. Clover, $3 80 to $4. Flour was dull and easier; the only sale reported on 'Change was 400 brls spring extra, at $6. In Toronto holders of flour and wheat had the blues, and but very little business was transacted. Buyers and sellers are very much apart, and until outside markets become more settled very little business is expected. Flour is lower, with sales of superior at $5 65 f. o. c.; and it is not likely that over $5 55 would be paid for extra. On the street market the receipts were small and prices of wheat easier. There were 400 bushels of wheat, which sold at $1 25 to $1 26½ for fall, and from $1 25 to $1 28 for spring; 150 bushels of peas at 68c to 69c; two loads of oats at 40c and 45c, the latter prices being paid for seed oats.

A CURE FOR SMALL-POX.—"I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man," wrote Edward Hine to the Liverpool Mercury, "if the worst case of small-pox cannot be cured in three days, simply by the use of cream of tartar." It has cured thousands, never leaves a mark, [illegible] blindness, and avoids tedious lingering.

FIRE.—A small fire occurred in the rear part of the Western Hotel stables about two o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon, but for its timely discovery might have resulted in a serious conflagration. At the conclusion of the examination Stewart and Cussack were committed for trial at the assizes, and Henderson was placed under arrest till he can furnish bail for his appearance to give evidence at the trial. Mr. J. P. McMillan appeared on behalf of Cussack, and Walter McDonald for Stewart.

THE LATE FIRE AT GEORGETOWN.—In reference to the fire in Georgetown on Friday last, we might say the shop was owned by Mr. A. C. McKinley, previous to his brother Mr. Angus McKinley taking possession, and that he had some marble stock in it at the time of the fire. This, with what stock Angus had, was consumed. Loss over $1,500, and no insurance.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

FIRE AT PORT ELGIN.—On Tuesday afternoon a fire broke out in the Baptist church of this place, completely destroying the building, which was frame, and valued at about $800. There is no insurance. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, as it was first discovered under the floor.

On former occasions of this kind it had been customary to issue invitations, but this time they had extended a general invitation. When he (Mr. Mills) arrived at the College he found the affairs in a most comfortable and satisfactory state. If he should fail in some respects in his management, he hoped he would never fail to do credit to the man who had placed the Institution in so prosperous a condition. He thought that the Agricultural College in Canada was perhaps the best on the continent, being emphatically an Agricultural and Farmers' College. In the curriculum of some Agricultural Colleges they pretended to teach more, but he must give credit to Mr. Johnston for the wisdom he had shown in preparing the curriculum of the Ontario Agricultural College. Less prominence was given to the study of English and mathematics than at some colleges. Some enlightened farmers had turned against giving their sons a high education because it weaned them from farming. The Agricultural College was a place where farmers' sons could get an excellent education and yet retain their liking for the farm.

Hon Oliver Mowat was then asked to distribute the prizes. The winners in the various subjects came forward as their names were called and received their prizes, a list of which will be found below.

After the distribution of the prizes Hon. Mr. Mowat spoke for about half an hour, giving the students some excellent advice as to how they should conduct themselves on leaving the college. He did not know that he had any special claim to speak on agriculture. He could not lay claim to being brought up a farmer, but if he made a tolerably good statesman now, if he had been brought up a farmer he might have made a better one. He could, however, say that his father, who had gone to his rest, was a farmer, and to show his appreciation of the calling, he had put one of his sons to learn farming. He was glad that other arrangements had allowed him to be present at the closing exercises of the College. Farming he regarded as of the very highest importance and was the first step a nation made towards civilization. There was nothing on which the character of the nation depended so much as the character of the farming population. In an official position he was bound to recognize farming as one of two interests on which the nation depended. The other interest to which he referred was lumbering. He was not speaking with reference to the N. P. now, the warmest advocates of which policy would not deny his statement. He had always joined with pleasure in voting Legislative grants for the promotion of agriculture. He was glad to perceive the interest students felt in the success of the prize winners, and hoped they would remain attached to this country and would cultivate a spirit of patriotism. There was every reason to be proud of this country. It must be remembered that the United States had the population a century ago Canada has to-day, and he thought that we would advance in a century as rapidly as they had done. We had entered the lists with them in agricultural products and compared well with them. According to the population we raised more wheat and cattle and horses than they did, and we have no reason to envy them or apprehend any danger from their competition. We measured peaceful swords with them at Philadelphia two years ago and carried off many prizes. He was glad to know of the prosperity of the United States, but he also rejoiced at ours. He was willing to adopt anything of theirs that was good, but he wanted to retain and promote what was good of our own. There was no reason to envy any agricultural institution either in England or the United States as compared with this one. He was willing to give credit to a Government of political opponents who had conceived the plan of establishing an Agricultural College in Ontario. In the first Principal of the college they had not a very suitable man, but he was bound to recognize the services of the late President who had made his value in it felt, and it was with great sorrow they parted with him. But he left behind an excellent Professor of Agriculture, and they had found in Mr. Mills a very efficient successor to Mr. Johnston, and the other officers of the staff had also done their duty well. He had not come so much to speak to-day, but to see the students. He was glad to hear good accounts of them. It was a worthy ambition to aim at winning prizes. Among the industrious those who won prizes were the most industrious, and among those worthy of such prizes were the most worthy. A technical education was good, and when the students left the College they should carry the theories they had learned into practice, and thus be a service to the country. He hoped they would maintain a good character, and that it would never be said that anyone who left the college lied or cheated, or did a dishonorable act, but that they might be known as honourable men. He hoped they would make good friends, neighbours and citizens, and in expressing that wish he expressed the highest in his power.

Mr. Ballantyne, M. P. P., for South Perth, was next called on. He was proud to see so many young men entering the noble pursuit of farming. There was a certainty and independency about farming not connected with any other pursuit. While in the professions and in business, men often envied and tried to injure their neighbours and could not often well help doing so in consequence of the opposition in business, a good farmer benefitted all his neighbours. The neighbourhood of Guelph showed the influence done by a good farmer. The late Mr. Wingfield introduced fine pure bred stock to this district and the result was seen to-day. With reference to the experiments on this farm their benefits could not be over-estimated. No report excited half the interest in the country as that of the Agricultural College, which was sought after by the farmers, and read and studied. He hoped the students when they left the college would follow the excellent advice given by Mr. Mowat and be honest, truthful and industrious.

Mr. Laidlaw, M. P. P., for South Wellington, being called, expressed his great satisfaction with the success of the closing exercises, and was pleased to see so many ladies and gentlemen present. He was glad to know that the College was gaining popularity in the country. The way in which its importance was recognized was showed by the grant made at the last session of the Legislature without one dissenting voice. He looked to this Institution to work two radical changes. He had great faith in the experimental department, and he was sure the country would benefit from these experiments which were so faithfully and efficiently carried out and made known to them. He referred to an experiment made with Russian wheat which had been grown successfully. The seed was purchased by farmers and scattered throughout the Province, and had put thousands of dollars in the pockets of the farmers. He believed that the farming population was being depleted by the education farmers' sons received at High Schools, and he thought the College would tend to prevent such a depletion. The college was bearing good fruit in different parts of the country. In St. John, N. B., a short time ago, the matter of establishing an Agricultural College in that province had been discussed, and they had determined to go on with the scheme. He advised the students not to leave with the idea that they had learned all they could, and if they pushed onward there was no fear but they would succeed in the world.

Mr. Wm. Johnston, ex-President, was next called on. He need not say he felt himself entirely at home for he had been intimately connected with the College since its establishment. He had seldom seen a more successful session or a more pleasing termination. He might say that the exercises of to-day closed the examinations which had continued for two weeks, on the lectures delivered during the session. By the honour list it could be seen that a large number of the students had obtained over 60 per cent. of the marks required, showing that both scholars and teachers had done well. It gave him great pleasure to know that the college was held in high estimation by the Province at large. He was not inclined to take the credit which had been given him of making the college the success it was. He believed that success was due to a deep seated conviction in the population of Ontario that agriculture was the mainstay of the Province and that knowledge in agriculture must advance with the times. This feeling found expression in periodicals which showed a new epoch was dawning. We were to-day reaping the benefits of a race passing into the grave, and we must know and appreciate that they have made a freeman's nation. It could be easily seen that this was an epoch of capital and profits, and while those who came here without a shilling in their pockets were "passing to that bourne whence no traveller returns," the thing for them to do was to keep the home their fathers had made. We had now to compete with countries where the cost of production was less than in this country, and capital lower. In what way could the competition be met? The soil in this Province was deteriorating, and only one thing could help us—by using everything in the way of improving it. There was no royal road to success. All Legislative acts were in favor of the farmer and tended towards his success. We must not only have the means for carrying on agriculture but also men to use them, and farmers required such an education that they may follow their calling with an intellect as good as those who engage in other industries. Therefore the Ontario Government did a wise thing when they established this College to train young farmers. As had been well said by Mr. Laidlaw—we must use all improvements on the farm and give those used anywhere a fair trial. It was impossible for each to carry on experiments on their own farms, and it was wise and liberal of the Government to carry out such an undertaking here. About three per cent. of our youth received their education at our High Schools, and of these but very few turned farmers, but drifted into the professions and into business. This College was required to give young men as good an education, but which would not entice them away from farming. While he did not believe that the curriculum was all that it should be, it would not be safe to change it until the time came when the College would be recognized throughout the whole Province as a necessary as well as useful institution. In some of the departments it would be necessary to appoint additional instructors in order to give a more practical training. It would require more men to oversee the outside departments instead of one at present. There was one great trouble connected with the establishment of the College. That was that the agitation with reference to it had not been kept up long enough before it was established. There were times when a Government had to lead, and there were times when they had to follow. In this instance they had led, and although the country was in need of an Agricultural College, there had been no pressure outside the Legislature brought to bear in favour of its establishment. There were some objections raised to teaching English and Mathematics in the College as being said students had learned those subjects before entering it. The majority of the studentswere from the country and had not opportunity of attending school the whole year through, and it would be foolish to let them leave the College without brightening them up in these subjects. The time would come when Canada would be the most powerful nation on the Western continent, if not one of the most powerful on the whole earth. We should endeavour to continue the success our forefathers had instituted. He was a selfish man who only thought of himself, and each one should try to leave the district he was in better than he found it. The aim of our existence should be not to be rich, but to be honest and true, and we all could do that.

Mr. Innes presented the honor certificates in chemistry. He afterwards expressed his extreme pleasure at being present, and thought the success of the closing excercises must be gratifying not only to the faculty and students but to all present. It was extremely gratifying to himself to see such a gathering, and he hoped now the Institution had got over all its difficulties that it would continue in its prosperous career, and become of more value every year to the farmers and to the Province.

Prof. Buckland, while presenting the honor certificates in agriculture, took occasion to congratulate the faculty, Government and Province on the great success of the College He referred briefly to its early difficulties and was glad to know that they had been overcome. He spoke of his connection with this county in its early days, and of having helped at the raising of a barn for the late Mr. Murton on the Elora road in 1843.

Mr. John Prain, Warden, presented the honor certificates to those in the second year in the agricultural class. In doing so he spoke of the College as being an honor to the county.

Rev. W. F. Clarke, while presenting the honor certificates in English, referred to the deep interest he had always taken in the progress of the college. As an evidence of its prosperity he pointed to the fact that there were 200 applications for admission over the number that could be taken. He advocated establishing three or four agricultural colleges in the Province, and wished for the present one unbounded prosperity.

Mr. J. C. Chadwick, while presenting the honor certificates in mathemathics, recommend the students when they left to practice fair dealing in all their transactions, honesty being at the bottom of all that was good.

Rev. W. F. Clarke moved, seconded by Mr. Chadwick, that a vote of thanks be tendered the Attorney-General for his presence.

The motion was unanimously carried.

Hon. Mr. Mowat in accepting the vote of thanks, said he was glad he had fought for the College, and his being present at the closing exercises had given him fresh zeal to work in its interest.

The company, on the invitation of the President, then adjourned to the dining room, where Miss Dunn, the housekeeper, had prepared an excellent tea, which was heartily relished by all. Afterwards Mr. Mills gave the usual loyal toasts which were drunk in good tea or milk. To the toast of the Army, Navy and Volunteers Mr. Johnston responded on behalf of the Ontario Field Battery. To that of the Dominion Parliament and Ontario Legislature Hon. Mr. Mowat, Messrs. Ballantyne and Laidlaw made suitable responses. The toast of our Educational Institutions brought out excellent speeches from Rev. Canon Dixon, Rev. Dr. Wardrope, and Rev. Messrs. Williams and Coutts.

The company then broke up, all highly pleased with the proceedings.

THE EVENING ENTERTAINMENT.

At 8 p. m., when most of the visitors had departed, the students were regaled with a sumptuous repast, provided and laid down in a most tasteful and attractive manner by their most excellent matron, Miss Dunn.

The Hon. Mr. Mowat and the late President of the Institution, though both much pressed for time, yet kindly favored the students with their presence during the earlier part of the evening.

In response to a vote of thanks and "three times three," which was most heartily given by the students, the Hon. Mr. Mowat made a brief speech, in which he referred to the students in the most flattering terms and wished them every success.

Mr. Johnston, who on rising was received with loud cheers, gave some most excellent and practical advice to the students, and hoped they would prove themselves worthy of themselves, the College and the country.

The health of Mr. Mills, which was next proposed by the Premier, was no less heartily received and gracefully responded to.

After the usual toasts had been drunk, Mr. Brown proposed that of Agriculture, and coupled with it the names of Messrs. W. F. Clarke and Alex. Macdonald. To this Mr. Clarke responded in a most able manner, and Mr. Macdonald favored the company with a song.

Then followed toasts to the ex-students and to the prize men.

On the health of the officers of the Institution being proposed Messrs. Mills, Brown, Panton, Mactavish, Johnston and Mahon responded. Mr. Mactavish's remarks were specially worthy of note from an oratorical point of view, glowing as they did with poetic and classic quotations of a most appropriate character.

The second year students then presented Miss Dunn with their photographs elegantly framed and glazed, and a very happy evening was brought to a successful termination by the drinking of the health of the ladies and the rendering of "God save the Queen."

Montreal Live Stock Market.

MONTREAL, March 29.—Owing to the large number of cattle bought up by city butchers in Easter week, the sales aggregating 640 head, there was very little demand for live stock. At St. Gabriel market to-day the receipts consisted of nine carloads. Prices were fully $1 per cwt lower. T. Ritchings sold two cattle for $50 each, and one for $60. R. J. Hopper sold three cattle for $112, and three for $175. Charles Peers sold one at 4c per pound, live weight. A few sales were made as low as 3½c, but the average range was from 4c to 5c. E. B. Morgan sold a four lot of cattle to S. Price at about 4c to 4½c. Mr. McShane bought twelve head at $50 to $75 each for shipment. He offered 5c for some good steers, but the holder wanted $5½c. Sheep brought $7 to $8, lambs $2 to $4, and calves $2 to $3.

Credit Valley Railway.

Right of Way into Toronto Granted.

The Credit Valley Sub-Committee of the Railway Committee of the House of Commons had the Toronto Esplanade question again under consideration on Tuesday, and agreed, after considering the important evidence given by Mr. Chamute, Chief Engineer of the Erie Railway, on the 24th inst., that it was unnecessary to call any more experts. His opinion was that the Credit Valley should have a line into the city outside of all existing tracks, if possible, but that if land for this purpose could not be obtained, there was plenty of room for it on the hundred feet set apart for the entrance of railways from the West. He thought that seven independent tracks could be laid with safety within this strip of land, and that the best place for the Credit Valley line would be on its southern side. This testimony was so convincing in the eyes of the sub-Committee that the managers of the Northern was constrained to offer the Credit Valley running powers from Bathurst street to Brock street, the real point in dispute on terms to be mutually agreed upon, or to be agreed upon by arbitration.

THE elections by acclamation in Great Britain return seven Liberals and five Conservatives.

THE tariff is not satisfactory to the Montreal hardware men. Messrs. Darling, Fairman and Saunderson, of that city, are now in Ottawa for the purpose of urging upon the Minister of Finance certain changes.

THE decrees against the Jesuits and other unauthorized religious bodies were officially published in France on Tuesday. The decrees are explicit in language, and leave no loophole of escape for the societies in question. The clerical organizations threaten a legal resistance against the enforcement of the decrees. The regular clergy, formerly opposed to the Jesuits, take sides with them now, because it is said this conflict offers the last chance to the Church to resist with any degree of success the supremacy of the State.

Mr. Edward Holton was visited on Tuesday by a deputation of about fifty gentlemen from the county of Chateauguay, tendering him a requisition to allow his name to be put in nomination at the approaching election for member of the Dominion House of Commons. The deputation represented all classes of the constituency, and received Mr. Holton's affirmative answer with much satisfaction. He will leave upon Thursday next for the county, and the campaign will commence. Dr. Laberge, his opponent, is a Tory of the old-fashioned kind, ready for anything that the Macdonald faction may require at his hands, and hence is by no means fitted to succeed a gentleman who, by his abilities, his experience and bon homme, earned for himself the respect, admiration and esteem, not only of his friends but of those whose opinions differed from his own.

SOCIAL ON TUESDAY NIGHT.—A parlor social was held on Tuesday night at the house of Mr. Alex. Bruce, in aid of the building fund of Chalmers' Church. There was a good attendance. Mr. Stirton presided. An excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music was provided. Mr. Maitland, the leader, of psalmody in the church taking a prominent part. A very pleasant evening was spent.

Not only was Canada the first to bestow a national contribution to the relief of Irish distress, but her gift is the most handsome one yet subscribed. The sum of $100,000 is no mean amount in addition to Provincial and private beneficence. To give proportionally, as much, the United States Congress would have to subscribe a sum ten times as large, since that is the proportion between forty millions and four millions, the respective populations of the two countries. To give in the same proportion would require a round million of dollars from the States, and yet their contribution is only $300,000, a goodly sum, we will admit, but not one-third so liberal as that of Canada when the disparity of population is considered, to say nothing of the relative resources of the two countries.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE RENEWED—JACK PAYS A VISIT TO DAN BRYCE—THE EMBERS OF A LONG-SMOULDERING LOVE STIRRED INTO FLAME.

"To be sure," he observed, in a cheery voice. "Light the lamp, Miss Elliott, and let the old gentleman have his wish gratified. I suppose," he added, addressing Dan, "you don't often see people from the other side of the Atlantic?"

"Ye may swear that, my birkie. There's plenty folk gangs awa' to Ameerika, but few o' them comes back. Haud forrit the licht, Miss Elliot—closer lass. My een are no just sae guid as they were."

To humor him, Jack took the lamp into his hand, and went close to the side of the bed. The grizzly face on which his eyes fell startled him not a little. It reminded him of a wild beast glaring from its den, the likeness being rendered all the greater by the keen, intense, searching gaze with which Dan regarded him. Dan's eyes opened to their widest, gleamed from under his shaggy eyebrows with a fixed, breathless stare, as if he would devour every lineament of his visitor's face. Jack grew rather uneasy under such close, earnest scrutiny; nevertheless, with a well assumed smile, he observed—

"Well, what do you think of a real genuine Yankee?"

"That will dae. Ye can pit doon the lamp; I'm satisfied," was all the answer the old man vouchsafed. Having spoken these enigmatical words, he produced his pipe from some receptacle within the bed, and having filled it coolly asked Miss Elliot to "stick it atween the ribs" of the grate that it might be kindled at the embers.

"Ay, man; and ye are Maister Wilson frae Ameericka?" he remarked, as the lighted pipe was placed in his selfish old fingers. "Just that, na; just that."

The two visitors looked at each other, and seeing that the room, whose atmosphere was already heavy enough, would soon be rendered unbearable by tobacco smoke, they beat a precipitable retreat, Dan hardly vouchsafing to say "Good night" as they departed.

"Ah, Dan is far gone in his dotage, I see," remarked Jack, as they ascended the slope.

"I never saw him act so strangely before," returned Miss Elliot. "He is always gruff; but to-night he was rude and uncivil.

"He is an old pagan, Miss Elliot. You will never make anything of him. All his desires now is for tobacco and whiskey, I dare say, when he can get it. To awake him to higher things is a hopeless task."

The subject of these remarks, I was at the moment being eagerly questioned by two or three fishermen, who evidently being on the watch, entered Dan's house as soon as his visitor disappeared over the crest.

For some moments the old man returned no answer to their eager interrogations, being too much occupied in enjoying the luxury which many years' use had made a necessity of his earth-bound existence. At last he paused in his whiffs, took the black stump from between his teeth, and said—his head nodding an emphatic accompaniment to every word—

"Dick Pringle was richt. He's just Jack Borland."

Ignorant of the all-important discovery which has been made concerning him, Jack and Miss Elliot were bidding each other good night under the beams of the evening star, which lay large and lustrous above the western horizon. As they spoke the words the pair were conscious of a strange warmth of feeling which made the tone cordial and impressive.

"Remember Tuesday afternoon," was Jack's parting injunction.

"Doubt not I will be punctual," was the other's reply.

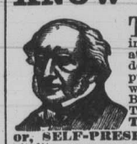
Thus they parted, Miss Elliot speeding towards the school house, and Jack after bestowing a lingering look on her receding figure, turning away with rapid strides in the direction of the moor.

In his walk to the cottage he underwent one of the deepest experiences of his life. For seventeen years the embers of a strong but hopeless love had smouldered in his heart so quietly and unobstrusively that he had long since ceased to consider it alive. From being an active and consuming passion, it had become but a memory, yet sufficient in its influence to keep all other love at a distance. During their week of intercourse on board the Richard Jack had learned to love Miss Armstrong with an affection strong and upright as his own nature. He early knew his love could not be returned, that she was engaged to another, and that therefore it was a moral crime to let his affection centre upon her. But when was the reason able to command the heart's affections. Even the conscience must be strong which is able to keep them within bounds. Now Jack, with all the faults of his youth, had never defied conscience, and when it told him that his love for Miss Armstrong was misplaced, and therefore wrong, he obeyed its dictates so far as to confine the knowledge of that love to the secresy of his own bosom. He could not crush it out of existence, but he could not stifle its expression, and this he did, allowing, as he thought, nothing in his manner to betray the state of his heart. But he could not help the influence of his presence and manner from being felt by the object of his secret attachment, who, if she did not suspect the truth, had a respect for Jack which amounted to a positive liking and admiration. His care for her; the attention he paid to her wants; the anxiety he showed to promote her comfort—these things won their way to her heart, and caused her to remember Jack through all after years with kind and pleasurable feelings.

But poor Jack, unaware of the impression he had made, had such a poor opinion of his own merits and position that even had Miss Armstrong been free he would have considered it great presumption—an ignorant and uncultivated youth such as he then was—to aspire to the notice of one so far above him. Though his own heart was hopelessly enslaved, he had not the vanity to think he had obtained any place in her thoughts, and when they parted, and he believed he had seen the last of her, he closed up his heart for her sake against the entrance of another similar affection, and never again came under the influence of the tender passion. True to his first love, he had remained unmarried, resolving that as he could not obtain the woman of his choice he would lead a single life.

But what a revelation and revolution had that day produced. He had met again the object of his long cherished attachment. She was free, he was now her social equal—might he not still win her.

The thrill which this thought sent through his being was indescribable. After all these years of silent resignation was he to obtain the object of his heart's worship. Oh, the ecstatic hope, the transporting possibility. Jack crossed the moor and traversed the park as if he trod on air, and when he reached the cottage his radiant countenance and exuberant spirits caused Mrs. Borland and Agnes no little astonishment.



Shall we venture to inquire what impression that evening's strange encounter had produced on Miss Elliot. That it had given her great pleasure we may take for granted, that it had roused her curiosity, enlisted her interest, and set her powers of cogitation to work was evident by the sleepless hours she spent that night, and by the manner she questioned Agnes next day about the Uncle Jack she had lost long ago, who was a wild, wayward youth, and who one night, twenty years ago, perished in the Solway while engaged in a desperate smuggling adventure. Carefully concealing her motive, Miss Elliot obtained from Agnes all the information the latter possessed, and after comparing it with certain parts of the conversation with the so-called Mr. Wilson, she believed she had made the discovery that this gentleman, her old acquaintance, of the "Richard," was none other than Uncle Jack himself.

This being the case, it need not be added that she longed with feverish impatience for the arrival of Tuesday evening, when her conjectures would be set at rest, and the mysterious words which had been spoken fully explained.

FRASER SELLS CHEAP. dw

Strange stories come from India of the feats performed by a native mesmerizer, named Buni, whose magnetic power would appear to be found quite irresistible by the lower animals, upon which he exclusively exerts it. He gives seances, to which the public are invited to bring all manner of ferocious and untamable wild beasts, and holds them with his glittering eye. In a few seconds they subside into a condition of cataleptic stiffness, from which they can only be revived by certain passes which he solemnly executes with his right hand. A snake in a state of violent irritation was brought to Buni by a menagerie proprietor, enclosed in a wooden cage. When deposited on the platform it was writhing and hissing fiercely. Buni bent over the cage and fixed his eye upon its occupant, gently waving his hand over the serpent's restless head. In less than a minute the snake stretched itself out, stiffened, and lay apparently dead. Buni took it up and thrust several needles into its body, but it gave no signs of life. A few passes then restored it to its former angry activity. Subsequently a savage dog, held in a leash by its owner, was brought in, and, at Buni's command, let loose upon him. As it was rushing towards him bristling with fury, he raised his hand, and in a second the fierce brute dropped upon its belly as though stricken by lightning. It seemed absolutely paralyzed by some unknown agency, and was unable to move a muscle until released from the magnetizer's spell by a majestic wave of his hand.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

A SARNIA SENSATION.—On Friday afternoon, as some boys were playing on the beach near Point Edward, one of them found buried in the sand a rough wooden box containing the skeleton of a child, evidently a girl of eight or ten years of age. A string of beads and a quantity of long, fair hair was found in the box, but no trace of any clothing. No evidence is as yet forthcoming whereby the remains can be identified.

LIVELY SCENE IN AN AUSTRALIAN ASSEMBLY.—The Irishman's "discussion wid sticks" had its parallel at a recent sitting of the Victoria Assembly. The row arose in consequence of the Sir Bryan O'Loghlen ordering the galleries cleared during a discussion on the "Embassy vote." "Shame! shame!" "The Ministry's applying the gag law again," shouted the Opposition, and the Government members retaliated in kind, among the latter Mr. Ferguson, of South Bourke. Mr. Ferguson dyes his whiskers, and has often been taunted for it, and therefore when he replied to the Opposition in sonorous and provoking tones, Mr. McIntyre shouted: "We'll give you a wig to match your whiskers." This was too much for Mr. Ferguson, and he strode to the table and tried to wrench away the wooden stand from the mace, but he couldn't. Then he seized a big volume of statutes, and struck at Mr. McIntyre, but the blow fell on a peacemaker who rushed to part the belligerents and received a bruise for his pains. Then Mr. McIntyre, threw Mr. Ferguson, who lying on his back clutched his opponent's whiskers. He was dragged away, much to the detriment of Mr. McIntyre's beard, shouting all the time: "Let me go; let me go at the blackguard!" Subsequently he apologized and the House took no notice of the little unpleasantness.

GEORGE MURTON
Proprietor

What Mr. Gladstone has done for Ireland.

In his valuable "History of the 19th Century" Mr. Robert Mackenzie very clearly summarizes Mr. Gladstone's two great measures for the benefit of Ireland as follows:—The disestablishment of the Irish Church freed Christianity from a scandal; and if the disendowment had given full effect to the intentions of Parliament, it would have freed Ireland from a perennial source of irritation. But the Church was wiser in her generation than the world. However imperfectly furnished with the harmlessness of the dove, she proved herself on this occasion to be amply endowed with the wisdom of the serpent. Mr. Gladstone provided that no new interests should be created after the bill was passed. But five months elapsed from the introduction of the bill before it became law. During that precious interval the Church lengthened her cords and strengthened her stakes. Her bishops "laid hands suddenly" on every youth who could be persuaded to accept holy orders. When the bill passed the curates of the Church had increased from five hundred to fully nine hundred; and the incomes of very many of her clergy had undergone a sudden and unprecedented augmentation. It resulted from these very questionable manipulations that the sum which the Church had to receive was little short of thirteen millions. After Maynooth and the Presbyterian Church was satisfied, the sum gained for the general good of Ireland was little over three millions. The church stooped to the inevitable disestablishment; but accepting disendowment she contrived to discharge from it nearly all that was offensive to her. She carried off, to solace her widowhood, nearly the whole of the endowments which had made her union with the State attractive.

The tenure of land was of extreme importance in Ireland, where more than one half of the people gained their subsistence, such as it was, by agriculture. Irish crime was in a large measure agrarian. The land-owners were few in number, mainly poor, and non-resident. The cultivators of the soil were tenants at will. There was no law to protect them from being ejected, and the improvements they had made from being appropriated by the landlord. The unduly harsh exercise of the proprietor's rights was tempered chiefly by the tenant's power to assassinate.

In course of ages there had grown up certain customs which had gained, in the opinion of the tenant-class, a sanction equal to that of law. In Ulster, for example, where there was no lease, the tenant claimed a right to occupy his holding on payment of rent, just as the owner claimed a right to receive rent. This shadowy right, although unknown to law, was so effectively supported by public opinion, that it had a recognized money value, and was always saleable at a price equal to several years' rental of the property. But there and elsewhere the landowner occasionally declined to recognize this right, especially when it was vested in a tenant who failed to pay his rent. He further declined to compensate the man whom he expelled for the improvements which had been made upon the land or buildings, or he utterly destroyed the value of his tenant's right by laying upon him an unreasonable increase of rent. The aggrieved cultivator thereupon drew public attention to his wrongs by the slaughter of the landlord, or of the new tenant, as circumstances counselled.

Mr. Gladstone in 1865 undertook to reduce to order the chaos of centuries. The customs which had grown up to shield the tenant were now converted into law. The landlord might exempt himself from their dominion by giving a lease of thirty-one years. If he did not choose that course, and wished to be rid of his tenant, he must pay him a sum which ranged from two up to seven years' rental. He must also pay for improvements effected by the tenant. Loans of public money were offerred to the occupier who desired to purchase his farm, and to the owner who desired to reclaim waste lands, or to make roads and erect buildings.

Ireland was now a country without a grievance, and Britain expected that she should become immediately a country without a complaint. Britain looked only at the ample justice which she had done, at the lavish kindness which she has hastened to offer in the hour of her sister's extremity. But Ireland thought of the past. Centuries of cruelty, which even the rhetoric of her patriots could not exaggerate, branded deep into her heart a hatred of Britain. The cruelty has long ceased, and in its place there has come an earnest desire to deal justly and tenderly with Ireland. The hatred bequeathed by many generations of sufferers cannot pass so quickly. Ireland may still for many years cherish feelings which have long been without warrant in existing circumstances. And Britain must be patient, remembering that these feelings have their root in the evils perpetrated by Englishmen of a former day.

"My boys," said a kind Oil City teacher, "if you would be president of the United States you must be good and studious." "Who wants to be president?" yelled out a young chap from a back seat. "I'd ruther be Buffler Bill, and shoot an Injun." And the boys all chorused:—"Them's our sentiments."

It costs nearly $50,000 per annum to supply Toronto with gas.

The United States have ratified a treaty with France for the appointment of a Commission to arbitrate on French claims arising out of the late war between the North and South. The United States Government refuse to accept responsibility for the acts of Confederates, or for any loss on account of slaves.

The Halifax Herald (Tory) says that there are only two more ridiculous members of Parliament than "Tom Robertson." This is hard on our junior representative for Hamilton.

CURLIANA.

Items of Interest on the Ice.

Harriston beat Mount Forest at curling last week by 23 to 12 points. The Harriston club secured a second victory over Mount Forest in a return match defeating the latter by 17 to 16.

The Barclay and Russell rinks—superannuated and non-superannuated players—are bringing the game down to a fine point now, and have commenced to play off one man against another, and should the weather favor their intentions, they expect to get through before the first of July. Wm. Russell, skip of the picked team from the club, and Jas. Anderson, of the Superannuated rink, in accordance with a challenge given by the former to the latter, had it out on the rink on Wednesday morning, when the hearts of the "old chaps" were again made glad by a victory for their side. The score stood, Anderson, 22; Russell, 9.

It is rumoured that the price of oysters have increased 20 per cent. in this city since the superannuated team took the field this season. On interviewing the fish stores it is gleaned that there is no truth in the rumor, only that a very lively market has been found for these bivalves.

A murderous attack was made the other night in Brantford on John Wright. His assailants had been lurking about his house, and he ran out to capture them. He soon after came up to where the men were, and without a word of ceremony, the largest of the two caught hold of him about the neck, and commenced hammering him on the head with a brick until he had almost murdered him. When after satisfying himself that he had injured Wright sufficiently, the ruffian made off, and has not yet been arrested.

From Toronto.

TORONTO, April 1.—The Liberal gains in England is received with demonstrations of joy by the Canadian Reformers. Should Beaconsfield be defeated, a demonstration is being contemplated by the leading Reformers of this city. It is felt that a change of ministry in England will be fatal to the Canada Pacific Railway, and strengthen Mr. Blake's hands in his assaults upon the Government policy.

From Quebec.

QUEBEC, April 1.—Miss Poston, of this city, composed some time ago a funeral march, in memory of the late Prince Imperial, a copy of which was sent to Eugene. Miss Poston has lately received from Her Majesty a very flattering recognition of her courtesy in the shape of a letter of thanks, and enclosing a copy of the last photograph taken in Natal of the late Prince Imperial.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Local News.

THE seed and horse show under the auspices of the Puslinch Farmers' Club, is being held at Aberfoyle to-day.

WEATHER PROBS.—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly between west and south; partly cloudy weather, with local showers of rain.

The lumber to be used in constructing the sidewalk on the Brock Road to the Agricultural College, has been delivered, and the work of building the sidewalk will be commenced at once.

REMEMBER the entertainment to-night in the lecture room of the Norfolk street Methodist Church. Singing by the old folks, the young folks, and children; singing in English and Indian; readings by the old and young. A good time. Admission—Silver collection. d1

THE GAOL.—There are at present twenty-four prisoners in the gaol. Of these a large number are awaiting trial at the Assizes which open this week. A number of prisoners committed for trial have been released on bail, so that there will be a pretty heavy criminal docket at the Assizes.

THE CATTLE TRADE.—Messrs. O'Donnell and O'Keefe, of St. John's, N. B., who for the past few years have bought cattle largely in this county and Waterloo for export to Britain, ships three car loads of cattle by the Grand Trunk Railway for Britain to-morrow. The cargo will be shipped from Halifax for Liverpool.

UNION CHURCH, GALT.—The Reformer says the design of Union Church to be erected in that town, prepared by Ald. Hall, is very handsome. The plans are now open for inspection at Mr. Todd's office, and tenders will be received till noon of the 8th prox. The building is to cost about $14,000.

RELEASED ON BAIL.—George Douglas, who was committed to Guelph gaol a few weeks ago on a charge of forgery and embezzlement, has been released on bail. The bail is $6,000, made by three parties in $2,000 each. The trial is expected to take place about the 13th of next month. The Georgetown Herald was wrong last week, in saying Douglas had been sentenced to five years in the Penitentiary.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday afternoon Reinhardt Arnold, a middle aged man, fell into a cistern he was excavating at a house near the General Hospital. He received a number of bruises through the fall, the principal on the chest, which caused him great pain for a time. He was taken to Dr. Herod's office where he was attended to and was afterwards able to proceed to his home, near the South Ward school.

CASE WITHDRAWN.—It was mentioned yesterday that William Bittle was sentenced to two months in gaol for stealing pigeons. Hugh Kennedy, a lad who accompanied Bittle on the stealing expedition, was not in custody when the latter was arraigned. After he was sentenced the charge against Kennedy was withdrawn. It seems strange that the authorities should allow a charge to be withdrawn and allow any culprit to go free, but especially so when a companion in crime had been sentenced.

EMBEZZLEMENT.—Alex. G. Duncan, insolvent, of Elora, appeared at the Police Court to-day (Thursday) charged by J. G. Haffner, Official Assignee, with omitting to mention in his statement of assets and liabilities some of his property, with embezzling money to the value of over $100, and with neglecting to account for money owing him by his brother William Duncan. Mr. Jacobs, of Elora, appeared on behalf of the prisoner and Mr. Peterson, County Crown Attorney, for the prosecution. The case was adjourned till Thursday, Duncan being admitted to bail on his own recognizance for $400 and two sureties of $200 each.

WHO ARE THEY?—A Guelph man drove to Galt last week with his wife and two children. He got drunk here and although his wife, whose condition was such as to render it dangerous for her to risk the accidents of a return trip at night, objected, he insisted on going home. Before he had driven more than a few hundred yards he upset the buggy, throwing the occupants upon the ground. The poor woman was severely bruised about the head and otherwise injured. She and her children were conveyed to a hotel for the night and medical attendance called, but the drunken husband drove out of town.—Reformer.

JUMPED OFF THE TRAIN.—As the mid-day train on the Grand Trunk was proceeding westward on Tuesday and had passed Acton station, one of the passengers, a girl about fourteen years of age, got up from her seat where she had been sleeping, in one of the forward cars, and walking out on the platform she stepped off. The train was stopped immediately on the alarm being given, and several gentlemen went back to search for the girl. She was overtaken at a distance of nearly a mile, and was walking on the track in the opposite direction. She appeared to be considerably stunned, and did not seem to have any idea as to how she came to be in that position, but beyond being dazed she was quite uninjured. She was taken back to the train and restored to her parents, who were overjoyed at such a miraculous escape. The girl belongs to a family who were emigrating to the West.

A HORSE attached to a buggy belonging to Mr. Torrance, ran away on the Brock Road near the Model Farm yesterday afternoon. It was stopped shortly after starting, the buggy being slightly damaged.

CITY OFFICIALS.—The city officials and school teachers are being paid to-day, the latter receiving their quarterly salary. There are twenty-nine teachers, and the City Treasurer has been kept busy handing out cheques.

THE EXODUS.—The fact that the American Consul in this City made out seven certificates this forenoon for persons about removing to the United States is an evidence that a portion of our population is leaving Canada, the alleged benefits of the N. P. notwithstanding.

THE MACCABEES.—The Supreme Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees is now located at Brantford, not London, as previously reported. Thomas Elliott, of Mohawk Tent, is the Supreme Commander to whom all communications must be sent.

THE "GLOBE" PRINTING COMPANY.—The annual meeting of this Company was held on Tuesday, and we learn from the Globe that the annual statement to the 31st January showed that after the expenditure of a considerable sum in new plant and maintaining the machinery in full efficiency, a dividend of sixteen per cent. on the capital stock of $500,000 was paid, leaving a balance on hand of $1,736. The debts of the company were shown to amount to $61,308. The balance sheet was shown to be prepared and dividends paid, not on estimates of the value of assets, but on actual cash receipts. It was explained that the new presses about to be brought into use would largely reduce the working expenses of the establishment, and a belief was expressed that their cost would be easily defrayed out of the profits of the next two years. As a measure of precaution, however, it was, after consultation, resolved that the quarterly dividends should be suspended for the present year and a half yearly division of profits substituted.

ARRIVALS OF IMMIGRANTS AT NEW YORK.—The Tribune says:—The capacity of Castle Garden for the accommodation of arriving immigrants was fully taxed on Monday, and if the arrivals continue to increase it is feared that the building may not prove large enough. Mrs. Eslinger, who has been there since 1855, said yesterday that she had never seen such crowds of immigrants in March before. The total arrivals on Monday were 1,885. Of these the City of Berlin had 1,184, the largest number brought on any one steamship since the Board of Emmigration was organized, with the exception of one instance in 1873, when the Egypt landed about 1,400. The Spain, from Liverpool, had on board 447, and the Maas, from Rotterdam, 254. There have arrived at Castle Garden lately more than a thousand Slovaks, from Hungary, all of whom are utterly destitute. For all excepting 126 employment has been secured through the Commissioners.

GENERAL SMITH'S SUCCESSOR.—From reliable information it is learned that the Government have appointed Major-General Luard as successor to Lieutenant-General Sir Edward Selby Smyth in the position of chief officer in command of the Canadian forces. The new Commander-in-Chief entered the army in 1845, and was promoted to the rank of Major-General in October, 1877. He served in the Crimea in the 97th Regiment, from March 1855, and on the staff as Brigade-Major to General Straubenzee, and Deputy Adjutant-General at headquarters from June, 1855, including the siege and fall of Sebastopol. He also served in China as Brigade-Major in the 2nd Brigade in 1857-58, and was mentioned in the despatch as being the first person on the walls of Canton. He was in Halifax as military secretary to Lieutenant-General Sir O'Grady Haly, after which he was Assistant Adjutant-General of the Northern Division in England, since which time he has been unemployed.

THE FINANCIAL PUZZLE.—The Galt Reformer has received the following solution to the financial puzzle—"Don't you O us a $ or 2?":

You sigh for a cipher, but I sigh for thee;
O sigh for no cipher, but O sigh for me;
O let not my sigh for a cipher go,
But give sigh for sigh for I sigh for you do.

Exports to the United States.

Decrease in Value for the Past Quarter as Compared with that of 1879

Mr. W. A. Worden, American Consul in this city, has supplied the statement given below of the exports to the United States during the month, also the total ending March 31st this year, and that for the same quarter in 1879. Room in the Churches for Elegant Sinners.

Last Sunday in preaching upon the parable of the "Prodigal Son," Dr. Talmage said: There is plenty of room for elegant sinners, for sinners in velvet and satin and lace, for sinners high salaried, for kid-gloved and patent-leather sinners, for sinners fixed up of hairdresser, pomatumed, and lavendered, and cologned, and frizzled, and crimped, and curled, and "hanged" sinners, plenty of room! Such we meet elegantly at the doors of our churches, and we invite them into the best seats with Chesterfieldian gallantries; we usher them into the house of God, and put a gilt-edged prayer book into their hand, and pass the contrbution box before them with an air of apology, while they, the generous souls, take out the exquiste Parisian portmannaie and open it, and, with diamonded finger, push down beyond the ten dollar pieces, and delicately pick out as expression of gratitude their offering to the Lord of one cent! For such sinners, plenty of room, plenty of room. But for the man who has been drinking until his coat is threadbare, and his face is erysiplased, and his wife's wedding dress is in the pawn-broker's shop, and his children, instead of being at school, are out begging broken bread at the basement doors of the city—the man, body, mind and soul on fire with the flames that have leaped from the scathing, scorching, blasting, blistering, consuming cup which the drunkard takes, trembling, and agonized and affrighted, and presses to his parched lip and cracked tongue, and his shrieking yet immortal spirit no room.

A MYSTERY AT POINT EDWARD.—The Point Edward correspondent of the Sarnia Canadian says: Last Friday, as some boys were digging in one of the sandhills on the lake shore close to this place, they came upon a human skull evidently that of child. Near the skull was found some hair, which appeared to be in a state of good preservation, for it retained its natural golden color and wavy character. Quite close to this relic was found a skeleton, and further on a box containing another which was very much decayed, owing to the presence of lime which seems to have been employed to expediate decomposition. Both skeletons represented children—one about nine or ten years old, the other much younger. Close to the positions occupied by these remains was found a logging chain. A gentleman accustomed to judge of the effects of exposure to wet upon iron, gave it as his opinion that the chain had not been very long buried in the sand. The whole affair is shrouded in mystery. I understand that L. Ernst, Esq., J. P., was informed of the facts, who ordered the remains to be buried where they were found; he writing down at the same time, a full account of the discovery, which he has filed away for future reference in case any enquiries should be made hereafter. The matter has caused quite a sensation in the village. No one attempts an explanation. At first it was supposed that the remains might be those of Indian children, but the wavy golden hair found close to the first discovered skull negatives such a supposition.

A labouring man named Ellerton, who for some time past has been employed by Mr. Owen McCarron, residing in the tenth concession of Trafalgar township, committed suicide on Wednesday by hanging himself in the barn.

Railway Matters in Parliament.

The Railway Committee met on Wednesday. The Bills to incorporate the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company and the Canadian Telegraph Company were referred to a sub-committee, and it was suggested that the two Companies proposing to build a line from Winnipeg to Hudson's Bay should be amalgamated. On the Canada Central Railroad Bill, which provides for an extension of the road to Sault Ste. Marie, a stormy demand was made by Ontario members for running powers being given to Ontario roads. Sir Chas. Tupper thought that the Government should have running powers, but that the question of giving running powers to other roads should be deferred until the company asked for public aid. The further consideration of the Bill was deferred. The Bill to incorporate the Quebec and Ontario Railroad Company developed the fact that an attempt is being made to amalgamate the Toronto at Ottawa Grand Junction and other existing charters with a view to the building of a through line between Toronto and Quebec. The Bill was referred to a Sub-Committee.

Death of Mrs. Wm. Benham, Senior.

It is with regret we also record the death of Mrs. Wm. Benham, sen., of Guelph Township, which took place on the 26th ult., at the advanced age of 84 years and 5 months. The deceased had been in poor health for more than a year previous to her death, and for the last three months had been confined to her bed. Though greatly wasted she bore her sufferings with great patience and resignation. The deceased was born in the County of Middlesex, England, and with her husband came to Canada in 1828—the year after the first tree was cut where Guelph now stands. They landed in Guelph Township in August of that year, and settled on the farm which they occupied for so many years, and on which the bereaved husband now lives. At that time their nearest neighbors were two or three families on the first Eramosa line, and there was not a settler west of them in the Township till they came to the Scotch Block. The deceased was a sharer in all the struggles incident to the settlers in those days, and aided and cheered her husband in his labors. She reared a family of nine children, six of whom lived to grow up. Three only are now alive—one son and two daughters. She was an attached member of the Congregational Church, and was greatly respected by her friends and neighbors. The funeral took place on Monday and was largely attended.

The Late Mrs. James Black.

It is our duty to record the death of an early and esteemed settler of the Township of Eramosa, Lois Humphrey, wife of Elder James Black, who died at the homestead, in the Township of Eramosa, on March 25th, at the age of 71 years. Mrs. Black was daughter of the late Capt. Norris Humphrey, and was born March 7th, 1809, at a place known as the Narrows, on the Chippawa River, in the County of Welland, Ont. She was married Feb. 11th, 1828, and in April, 1830 with her husband moved to the Township of Eramosa, where in a short time they settled on the farm upon which they lived continuously, and where the surviving partner still has his home. Being amongst the earliest settlers of the Township they were subjected to all the hardships and privations common to pioneer life of those days. Naturally of a strong constitution and having decision of character not common to her sex, she was peculiarly adapted for the duties she was afterwards called upon to perform. No sacrifice was too great for her to make in her attention and kindness to the sick and needy, and no stranger ever left her door hungry, if their was a bite in the house. She was noted for her unselfish attention to the distressed and ungrudged hospitality to the stranger. Such was her self-denial and love for the well being of the race, that she would struggle with the work of the farm and her young family that her husband might have an opportunity to go for weeks at a time and preach the words of eternal life to the settlers in the districts around, and it is only those early settlers who had to do their own carding, spinning, weaving and tailoring, who can form any idea of the self-denial and hardships that she and such as she encountered. Mrs. Black raised a family of eight sons, six of whom survive her. Two of them, John and Hugh, are farmers in Eramosa, and occupy responsible positions in the township. Two days before her death she was able to ride out some miles to visit an old friend. Her remains were deposited in the Everton cemetery on the 27th inst. The funeral was largely attended, about one hundred teams following in the procession. At her request no outward show or unnecessary formality was observed. She was greatly beloved by her family, and highly esteemed by her neighbors and acquaintances, and died in the full triumph of faith. Her bereaved husband and family have the sympathy of a large number of friends and acquaintances.

THE DESERT MURDER.—The particulars of the horrible murder up the Gatinean in December last are fresh in the memory of the public, and much comment was made in regard to the supineness of the Quebec authorities in taking the matter up and endeavoring to bring Brisbois, the known murderer of Hennessy, to justice. At last they were moved to action and a couple of weeks ago Detective Groulx started on Brisbois' trial, and traced the murderer to the woods in New York State, where he was found. He was arrested in an iron mine about thirty miles distant from Ogdensburg. In an interview the murderer confessed that he had killed Hennessy, but says he did in self-defence. They quarrelled about a gun, when Hennessy drew a knife on him and said, "One of the two had to die." After he had made a pass at him Brisbois picked up a tomahawk that was on the floor and hit him three times on the head with it. He has been taken to Ottawa.

The Elections in Britain.

The Liberals did better on Wednesday than their most sanguine friends expected. The total result so far is the election of 71 Liberals and 59 Conservatives, and the Daily News says the net Liberal gain is fifteen, and there is every reason to believe that these gains will be increased. Lord Hartington, the Liberal Leader, was elected for North-East Lancashire without opposition. The Times says the Conservatives must admit that the prospects are very grave and discouraging. The balance of gains and losses is, on the whole, decidedly in favour of the Liberals. It is obvious that if the tide of success flows as strongly as it did to-day in favour of the Opposition the whole Ministerial majority of 1874 will have melted away. This is more ominous for the Ministry because it acknowledged that the loss of several seats in Scotland and Ireland—certainly a dozen, and, perhaps, a score—is inevitable.

The Expulsion of the Jesuits from France.

The decrees issued by the French Government for the expulsion of the Jesuits from that country are sweeping in their character, and are naturally creating great excitement not only in France but in the other continental Catholic states. Not only are they to be expelled but their establishments are to be closed, and vacated within three months from the date of the issue of the decrees. Educational establishments under their auspices or control are to be allowed two months more. And not only this, but the decrees cover all other religious societies unauthorized by the Government. This is not carrying into force any new law, but the enforcement of an old one, which for a long time has been allowed to remain a dead letter. The members of the Society were once before expelled from France, as they were from Spain, and not long ago from Italy, for when Victor Emmanuel entered entered Rome their establishments had to be vacated. Preparations are being made in Spain for the reception of those expelled members who may take up their abode there. It is also expected that many of them will seek an asylum in England, where the Roman Catholic aristocracy are ready to receive them with open arms.

The Jesuits, backed by the entire Catholic Episcopate in France seem inclined to contest in the Courts the legality of the decrees, on the ground that they are based on laws that are obsolete. L'Univers and other clerical organs unanimously counsel the Catholics to make common cause with the Jesuits, and proclaim their intention to oppose the execution of the decrees. La Gazette de France says it is not necessary for these congregations to ask authorization, as they are protected by the common law. In Les Desbats John Lemoine, referring to the Jesuits, says the present struggle is not a new one. It was more bitter under the Monarchy than under the Republic. It is a struggle for sovereignty. Le Union, Count de Chambord's organ, and Le Monde, the organ of the Papal Nuncio, declare that the Catholics will vigorously resist the enforcement of the decrees. Le Pays M. Cassagnac's paper, Bonapartist, says the decrees are only preliminary to the reestablishment of the guillotine for political adversaries. Le Ordre and Le Liberte, also Bonapartist, admit the legality of the decrees.

The Pacific Railway in British Columbia.

Probably no more important motion will come before the House of Commons this Session than the one Mr. Blake intends to move as an amendment to the motion to go into Committee of Supply, that it is not desirable at the present time to proceed with the construction of the western section of the Pacific Railway through British Columbia. The resolutions in full have not been received, but we cannot be far wrong in our conjecture that the chief objections will be that Canada cannot at present afford to build this portion of the road, and that from a Dominion point of view it would be of very little use even if it was built until the line east of the Rocky Mountains is constructed. The Ministerial press, fully estimating the gravity of the subject, have already commenced their attacks on Mr. Blake for alleged inconsistency in the course he proposes to pursue. They take the ground that because he was at one time a member of the Mackenzie Government—which took a favourable view of the proposal to build this western section when the country was in a position to do so—and because he was a general supporter of that Government's policy, it is wrong and dishonourable for him now to come out in active hostility to the scheme. But they forgot that Mr. Blake scarcely favoured the construction of this section of the road in British Columbia, and above all that he was from the first strenuously opposed to the wild scheme of borrowing millions on millions—as the present Government propose to do—in order to force a railway through to the Pacific before the requirements of the country demand it. These are the views Mr. Blake held years ago—before the Mackenzie Government had an existence—and he has never altered or departed from them.

The organs of the Government, will of course, raise the cry that the Liberals are shifting ground on this question. We cannot see on what good ground the accusation can be made. They never objected to the scheme, but they from the first did object to the wild and rash promise made by the Macdonald-Cartier Government to build the entire road in ten years. They have all along objected to the construction of the western section until the road was stretched westward from Lake Superior through the great plains, and as far as the line of land cultivation extended east of the Rocky Mountains. And they now strenuously object to the construction of this most expensive and least useful portion of it at the present time. They object to the mad haste with which the contracts were given out just before the session opened, in order to commit the followers of the Government irrevocably to the work. They object also to the grievous burdens its construction will entail, which will force the Government into all sorts of wild financial schemes to raise the money. The Government will find that Mr. Blake's exposure of their reckless and extravagant policy will find an echo in many a quarter where they least expected it. We are sure that the great majority of the people in all the Provinces, except the only one interested in that section of the road, have no desire whatever to see this part of the Pacific Railway constructed until at least the resources of the country will warrant, and we shall be surprised if Parliament does not endorse this sentiment.

THE Governor-General will to-day attend Parliament in person and give his sanction to the Bill repealing the Insolvency Law.

THE rumor gains ground that the Hon. T. N. Gibbs, who is now at the Capital, will shortly succeed to the vacancy in the Senate caused by the lamented death of Mr. Seymour.

THERE was laid on the table of the House, on Tuesday, correspondence respecting the trade negotiations with France, conducted by Sir A. T. Galt. That with Spain, not being concluded, was not presented. The total expenses incurred between the 15th November, 1878, and the 15th April, 1879, were $5,093, while the amount paid to Sir A. T. Galt was $3,208, and to Lieut.-Col. Bernard, $933. Without going into particulars we may state that the negotiations with France were an entire failure, while the Spanish Government desired a postponement.

How Mr. Crooks has gone to England, ond it is believed that an important part of his mission is to secure a successor to Dr. McCaul, President of the Toronto University, whose resignation has for some time been in the hands of the Minister of Education. It is no easy matter to get a fit person for this position, who will leave England and come out to Canada for the salary paid to the President of the University, which we believe is only $2,800 per annum. We are afraid that better inducements will have to be held out before a Professor will be secured who would do honor to the Institution.

THE letter in which Lord Derby announced his determination to act in future with the Liberals was very short, and showed how reluctant he was to sever his relations with the Conservative party. "I have been long unwilling," he wrote, "to separate from the political connection in which I was brought up, and with which, notwithstanding occasional differences on non-political questions, I have in the main acted for many years. But the present situation of parties and the avowed policy of the Conservative leader in reference to foreign politics leave me no choice. I cannot support the present Government, and as neutrality, however from personal motives I might prefer it, is at a political crisis an evasion of public duty, I have no option except to declare myself, however reluctantly, ranked among their opponents."

ACCORDING to the Ottawa Free Press it turns out Mr. Underdonk is not the possessor of the fabulous millions which he was said to be willing to risk on the Canadian Pacific Railway. A telegram from New York states that he is merely the agent of a Mr. D. O. Mills, who is a Simon Pure millionaire. This bit of information will be received with less thankfulness because of its coming through the columns of the Montreal Gazette, but it naturally leads to the enquiry—who is behind Mr. Mills? It is said that this is a question which is just now taxing the power of Sir John Macdonald to unravel. This whisper, as it goes, is to the effect that behind the sagacious Mr. Mills is a member of the Cabinet and an Engineer of great wealth and experience. The beauty and simplicity of such an arrangement is obvious at a glance, and must commend itself to the admiration of all business men. Contract broking is certainly a fine art, but, after this, it ought to rank with the sciences. Before such a development of genius the little printing matter fades into insignificance, the Pacific Scandal is reduced to a fleabite, and railway politics crowned with the most solid triumphs.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 30.

Parliament re-opened to-day after the Easter recess. In the House of Commons the debate on the Budget was resumed by Mr. Snowball, who criticized the claims of Mr. White (Cardwell) as a financial oracle, and replied at some length to that member's defence of the duties on imported sugars, and in conclusion claimed that the tariff had not beneficially affected either the Dominion or manufacturers as a whole.

Mr. Fleming from a revenue tariff standpoint, assailed the National Policy and criticized the Government's attempts to protect the agricultural industry.

Mr. Farrow followed in opposition to the views advanced by the two members who immediately preceded him. He caused some amusement by crediting the incorporation of Guelph and St. Catharines as cities to the development of Ontario under the fostering care of the National Policy. Those who know when the cities named were incorporated will readily understand why the House laughed at such a ridiculous pretension.

Sir Leonard Tilley evidently wished two or three members of the Opposition who have not spoken to continue the debate, but as they were not present they could not well do so. Sir Leonard desired to reply, but he was afraid of being followed, so he held back so long that the Speaker thought that he did not purpose speaking, and the motion for the second reading of the resolution reported from the Committee of Ways and Means was declared carried. No sooner was this done than the Finance Minister rose to reply. His rising was greeted with ironical cheers by the Opposition. He proceeded to speak, when Mr. Mills asked whether it was understood that other members would be permitted the same privilege. To this Sir Leonard demurred, and then the Speaker's attention was directed to the fact that the motion had been declared carried. He ruled discussion out of order, unless with the unanimous consent of the House. Sir Leonard then caused the items of the resolutions containing the tariff changes to be read. On the first item being put, he rose to speak, but instead of addressing himself to the item, he proceeded to make a general reply. No objection was taken to his doing so if he permitted those members who had not spoken to also speak on the general issue. Sir Leonard refused to grant the request, and the debate was discontinued. The several items of the tariff changes were adopted with little discussion. The proposal to increase the duty on bituminous coal was carried on a division. The resolutions were read the second time and concurred in.

The Minister of Justice moved the third reading of the Bill providing for the appointment of two additional judges of the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

Mr. Blake moved in amendment to the effect that the Bill should not be then read third time, but that it be resolved that by the equalization of the work in the judicial districts of the Province the present staff would not only be sufficient but its efficiency would be increased.

The amendment was lost on a vote of 43 yeas and 98 nays. Mr. Longley (Conservative) voted with the minority. The Bill was read the third time on the same division.

The House concurred in the resolutions amending "The General Inspection Act, 1878," so far as it relates to smoked herrings, and a Bill embracing the same was introduced and read the first time.

OTTAWA, March 31.

Sir John Macdonald, in answer to a question, said it was not the intention of the Government to issue instructions to the Crown timber agent in Manitoba, so that permits may be dispensed with in the cutting and taking away of dead timber, whether fallen or standing, on Dominion lands.

Mr Stephenson moved for returns showing the names and date of appointment of all persons appointed by the Dominion Government as commissioners, secretaries, or otherwise, in connection with the Canadian exhibit at the Paris Exposition, held in the year 1878.

Mr. Anglin moved for a return showing the quantities of sugars sent over the Intercolonial Railway from Halifax to all other places in the Dominion in the year ending December 31st, 1878, and in the year ending March 11th, 1880. Carried.

Mr. Hesson moved for copies of all papers and correspondence between this Government and the Government of Ontario in reference to the award made under the British North America Act, dated September 3rd, 1870, in so far as the said award relates to the Upper Canada land improvement fund. Carried.

Mr. Girouard moved concurrence in the amendments made in Committee to the Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister.

At the request of Mr. Langevin, further consideration of the Bill was postponed until Wednesday next.

Mr. Orton moved the second reading of the Bill to regulate the encumbering of real estate by loans of money or otherwise. He remarked that the fact that a large proportion of the real estate of this country was encumbered by heavy mortgages had a very detrimental effect, not merely upon the agricultural classes, but upon the general community. The interest paid upon these mortgages to loan societies and other lenders was exorbitant, averaging from 7½ to 14 per cent., and it constituted a drain upon the resources of the country which ought to be stopped before it paralyzed more completely than it had done the energies of the farming community. There could be no return to the farmer who borrowed money from these societies at the very high interest they charged, and the effect of the present state of affairs was that the majority of our farmers was merely the tenants of the loaners of money, who were generally residents of a foreign land. He read a number of letters he had received detailing the injustice done to borrowers by the exactions of usurious loan societies, and went on to say that these borrowers were compelled to pay not merely simple interest on the loan, but a rate which, everything considered, frequently amounted to fifteen per cent., in spite of the contract originally made with the borrowers. He would like to know what would be said of a merchant or professional man who would charge one per cent. per month upon overdue accounts. He hoped that the Government, who had a large majority at their backs, would interpose in behalf of the oppressed borrowers of the country, especially as these iniquitous loan societies were already making their appearance in the North West, there to complete the evil work which they had carried on so successfully in the older Provinces of the Dominion. He explained that the Bill provided that no higher rate of interest should be chargeable on loans or real estate than seven per cent., and that any mortgage or lien upon which a higher rate was charged should be null and void. It also restricted the charges for the valuation of property, and prevented agents from acting for both borrower and lender. He remarked that many of the persons who were officers and directors of these loan societies held their heads high up in society, and made liberal grants to charitable purposes, but there were no class of men who were responsible for more misery to their fellow-men. They sometimes had the assurance to say in their reports that they were aiding in developing the resources of the country, but they could more truthfully say that they were eating the vitals of the community, and driving our best men from the country. He concluded by expressing the hope that some means could be devised of ascertaining the exact amount of the real estate of the country that was under mortgage to these societies.

Mr. Mills said this Bill dealt in reality not with interest but with real estate, and was therefore a matter of civil right, under the jurisdiction of the Local Legislature, and entirely beyond the purview of this House.

Mr. Blake said that without considering the question of the jurisdiction of this House to pass such a measure as this, he was opposed to any attempt to regulate the rate of interest. He thought that any one who had watched the course of affairs with regard to lending money on real estate must have come to the conclusion that free trade in money was the best policy to abide by. He alluded to the difficulties arising from the system adopted by the loan companies of charging fines on loans which were not paid when due. He thought that competition among money lenders would do much to cure the evil; but the greatest phase of the evil was that loan societies under the present system could make more by allowing the loan to be overdue, and therefore they took no particular care with regard to the collection of loans. This was injurious to the farmer as well as to the loan society, as it gave the former the use of that portion of his profits which should have gone to pay the amount of the loan due, and upon which afterwards he had to pay not only interest but a fine as well, and it reduced the security held by the loan company. After referring at length to the subject he concluded by saying that the whole theory of the Bill was vicious, and he should vote against it as injurious to borrowers as well as to the lender—in fact an injury to the whole community.

After a lengthened debate the motion for the second reading was carried, 67 voting for and 60 against it.

SALE BY AUCTION—ANTHONY LANGTON DOES NOT PROVE THE HIGHEST BIDDER—JACK BORLAND MAKES HIS FIRST REVELATION.

It had never been known for the quiet town of Cairntree to be so full of people—except on market day—as it was on that particular Tuesday on which the estate of Marston Grange was to be sold by auction. The sale was to take place at one o'clock in the Bell Inn, and before the hour of noon vehicles of various descriptions had begun to enter the market square and draw up in front of the hostelry. It was remarked that none of the county gentry appeared on the occasion, just the gigs and noddies, spring waggons, and carts of large and small farmers belonging to the neighborhood, a number of whom also rode in on horses. Clearly none of these were in a position to bid for or purchase the large property which was to be disposed of, and they must have come out of curiosity or some other motive of interest.

Even now, when it is common enough for land to be in the market, the sale of an estate by auction in a country inn is a rare occurrence. Much more was this the case towards the end of last century, when the law of entail was almost universal in its application. It was, therefore, quite an extraordinary event which was that day to take place, and it caused corresponding attention and excitement.

The feeling was increased by the peculiar circumstances connected with the sale—the ruin of its youthful owner by gambling, his disappearance and unknown fate, the share which Reuben Langton was supposed to have had in Orwell's misfortunes, and the reported machinations of his greedy, grasping father to obtain possession of the estate. These things invested the sale with a strong interest, which manifested itself in the large concourse of people which it drew to the Bell Inn.

A select number of those who came had deeper, because a personal interest in the matter. These were the tenant farmers on the Grange estate, to whom the transfer of ownership was of no little importance, and who viewed the anticipated change with justifiable apprehension. Of course no one doubted that the property would be knocked down to Anthony Langton. The upset price—thirty thousand pounds—was the sum he had lent on mortgage, and no one believed that a higher bid would be obtained. It was, therefore, a foregone conclusion that Anthony Langton would be the purchaser, and those who would thus come under him as their landlord were far from being enamored of the prospect.

Hitherto the Grange tenants had been liberally dealt with. Rents were moderate; improvements were not stinted; conditions of leases were easy; and honest, well-doing occupants were not ejected. This pleasant state of matters, it was expected, would now end. Anthony Langton was a hard, exacting man, who would introduce at the Grange the same selfish policy he had pursued at Cairnbank—who would screw out of them all that he possibly could, and impose on their acceptance the harshest and most ungenerous of terms. Such a prospect was well calculated to make them anxious, and among those who streamed into the large room a Grange tenant could easily have been told by the length and gravity of his face.

Among the earliest to enter the Market Place and pass into the inn was Jack Borland, whose presence excited little notice. A stranger more or less on such an occasion was not remarkable, and the few who noticed and made enquiries about him did not receive answers sufficient to excite further curiosity. He was described as a stranger, who had been a week or two in the neighborhood, and was lodging with Mrs. Borland. This was all that seemed to be known about him, though some of the shopkeepers in the square called to mind that a week before they had seen him in conference with Mr. Bishop, by whom he seemed to be treated with great cordiality. But when they subsequently questioned the factor about him, the latter had spoken in a tone of indifference, which led them to suppose that the man was of no consequence, though on a closer inspection he seemed to be a strong good looking fellow, rather rough of aspect, and free and manly in his bearing, and with a certain independent look about him which betokened anything but rustic simplicity.

A little before the appointed hour a marked commotion was created among those in front of the inn by the arrival of a dingy brown carrriage, drawn by one horse, from under the leathern hood of which emerged Anthony Langton and his son, each manifesting an air of but half suppressed satisfaction, showing they already counted themselves the proprietors of the Grange, and betraying a consciousness of being the heroes of the day.

When they alighted the old man was quite profuse of smiles and nods, directed to such of the bystanders as were personally known to him. These it must be confessed, received his advances with coldness and looks of ill-concealed aversion, which he either did not notice or did not care for. His son, however, was less indifferent to the reception they met with, and scowled round him as he limped by his father's side to the inn door, where admission was rather difficult, owing to the number of people who filled up the passage.

"Good day, Carter," said Anthony to the landlord, who had just appeared on the scene. "I am afraid your room won't hold all the people who have come."

"It will be very crowded, sir," returned the innkeeper.

"Much more than there is any occasion for," remarked Reuben, snappishly, as he caught sight of Jack standing within the threshold, and bestowed on him a wrathful glare. "I see people here who have no call to be, and who will only occupy room to the exclusion of their betters. That fellow, for instance, he exclaimed, pointing his stick at Jack, what business has he to attend to this sale? The people of the district are naturally interested in it, but it can be no concern of his. I don't think, Carter, that you should allow any one into the room but farmers and others connected with the agricultural interest."

"And how do you know that I am not connected with the agricultural interest?" returned Jack quietly.

"You!" cried Reuben, scornfully. "An idle, provoking fellow whom nobody knows anything about. This, father, is the vagabond who gave me so much insolence at the Grange the other night."

"Then he should not be admitted," said Anthony, in an angry tone. "Landlord, you must positively turn him out."

"My opinion is," said Jack dryly, yet without losing his temper, "that I have as good a right to be here as you or anyone else. At all events, I have come to the sale, and I mean to remain."

"Carter," stormed Reuben, "you won't allow such insolence in your inn, especially as the fellow has no right here."

"Excuse me, sir," returned the landlord, "but this is public sale, and I can exclude no one till the room is full."

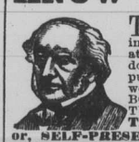
"Oh, it doesn't matter, you can at least clear your passage and allow us to enter."

"Certainly. Gentlemen, will you either go into the room or stand aside, to allow Mr. Langton and his son to pass?"

As this request was reasonable, some stood aside while others entered the sale room, among the latter being Jack, who strode in with a careless swagger, and took his seat in a corner without deigning to bestow further attention on the two whose wrath had been raised by his presence.

Shortly after streamed in the bulk of the audience, so suddenly and so fast as to be explicable only on the theory that the auctioneer had put in an appearance. This was indeed the case. He had just driven up to the inn door, delivered his equipage to the ostler, and was now in one of the private rooms, no doubt having a glass of something to prepare him for the work in hand. Such was the charitable construction which the bucolic mind put upon his non-appearance in the saleroom for some minutes longer, the truth being that he was closeted with Mr. Bishop, engaged with that gentleman in settling some preliminary matter which required readjustment.

By the time his round, red, good-humored face was seen pushing its way through the crowd, the room was full—all the wooden seats which crossed it from the table at the top being packed, and every inch of standing room by the side of the walls taken up.



In the wake of the auctioneer came Mr. Bishop with a bundle of papers in his hand, who, having with the principal official of the day, reached the clear space at the table, cast his eye round the room somewhat anxiously till it lighted on Jack seated in the corner. Then the slightest twinkle appeared in his eye, and he sat down at the table close to the right hand of the auctioneer, laying his papers before him. On the other side sat Anthony Langton and Reuben, their position making them conspicuous to all present—a fact which they seemed to regard with great complaisance, as well as the fixed attention of which they were so largely the object.

The auctioneer being in his place, a deep silence of expectation followed, all eyes being turned on his familiar figure, all faces wearing smiles in remembrance of the jokes they had heard him crack at displenishing and other sales in the district.

It was not he who inaugurated the proceedings, however, but Mr. Bishop, who rose from his seat, his tall, thin form becoming visible to every one even to those at the door.

Mr. Farrow made a speech on Tuesday afternoon, and in the course of it, while alluding to agricultural protection, sagely argued that the farmers were well satisfied with the tariff, because the Dominion Grange had passed no resolution against it. This point somewhat lost its force when Mr. Rymal shouted across the floor that by the rules of this organization politics are strictly excluded.

JAMES McLEAN, Clerk.

Hespeler Correspondence.

THE SKATING RINK.—We are happy to state that the skating rink here is still in good condition, and that since its first inception it has been well patronized by the young people of the village, who spent a good many evenings in a very pleasant manner while indulging in this joyous and healthy exercise.

SOCIAL HOP.—On Easter Monday evening a social dance was given in Glick's hall, under the auspices of the Hespeler brass band, which we are informed came off pleasantly.

THE ICE BUSINESS.—The exporting of ice, at which a lot of our men and teams have been engaged for the past few weeks, has now fully terminated, but not without benefiting the village to the extent of some $1,500. Most of the ice was shipped to Buffalo. The contractor was a young man named Walsh, who settled up all scores here very honorably previous to his departure on Tuesday morning last.

EXAMINATION OF P. S. PUPILS FOR WATERLOO COUNTY.—The examination of public school pupils for the county of Waterloo, for the purpose of promoting from 4th to 5th and from 5th to 6th classes, took place on Tuesday last, March 23rd. I send you a sample of the work which the pupils in our neighboring county are expected to perform previous to promotion. We furnish the subjects of arithmetic and grammar in each class, other subjects mentioned on the programme being in same proportion. The time given for working arithmetic papers in both classes was one hour and three quarters. Mr. John T. Anderson, of the Hespeler High School, worked correctly within the time every question from 5th to 6th with the exception of the complex fraction question, which he did not quite complete, but was correct as far as he went, thus gaining 113 marks out of a possible 120. There, however, is a pupil in the village of Ayr—a Miss Anderson—who, we believe, completed every one without an exception.

The Conservatives of Lennox are a queer lot. A meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association was held at Napanee on Saturday night last, at which Mr. Hooper was present. Everything was discussed excepting the real business of the meeting, viz., Mr. Hooper's location. He did not see fit to refer to it, his friends would not broach it, and the meeting adjourned without any reference having been made to it.

The Premier of Manitoba is at present conferring with the Dominion Government relative to the erection of new Parliament buildings in Winnipeg.

At the first meeting of the directors of the Egremont Agricultural Society for 1880 it was decided to offer liberal prizes at their fall show for penmanship.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

Guelph Markets.

MERCURY OFFICE,
GUELPH, April 1, 1880.

This week again there is very little to be written on the market either as to prices or deliveries.

In the former there is very little change, but the tendancy is downward, and the latter has been very light in consequence of the bad state of the roads and weather, which up to yesterday was very stormy; as we write, however, it looks more settled and spring like. How long it will continue so we of course cannot tell.

From enquiries we are pleased to learn that in this immediate vicinity at least, there is no apprehensions of the condition of the fall wheat, and should the coming month prove favorable, it is hoped the crop will prove satisfactory, a matter to be anxiously wished for.

There are no material alterations in prices since our last weekly issue. Any there are will be found appended. The outside figures represent the highest prices paid on this market up to 3 of this afternoon.

FRIDAY EV'NG. APRIL 2, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The collection of Chinese works in the British Museum includes 20,000 volumes.

Lord Rivers is dead.

Mr. T. H. Clifton, nominated for Parliament by the Conservatives for North Lancashire, is dead.

The Pope has sent Monsigneur Cologresi on an extraordinary mission to the Mexican Government.

By an explosion of fire damp in a colliery in Belgium on Wednesday a large number of persons were killed. Twenty corpses have been recovered, and there were a hundred and fifty persons in the pit.

It is rumoured that 1,500 Chinese crossed the eastern Russian frontier at Ussuri, south of the Ameer, and that 30,000 are concentrated on the western frontier.

Election riots have occurred at Port Adown, Newcross and Tredgar.

The Consul at Malaga, Spain reports that the consumption of American provisions in Spain is rapidly increasing, but they are all bought at second-hand of English merchants, and there are no direct importations from the United States.

The results of the elections in Great Britain have produced the most profound sensation in Berlin.

The War on the Jesuits.

PARIS, April 1.—The war on the Jesuits continues with unabated violence, neither side showing evidence of yielding. Les Debats this morning John Lemoinne has another article on this much discussed subject. He says that under Republican Government the Jesuits have always been more leniently treated than under a Monarchy, and it is only when the Republic itself refuses itself to be expelled by them these arch plotters and conspirators raise a cry of persecution and talk of Nero and Diocletian. Le Soleil to-day publishes a circular letter from the archbishops and bishops, who are the founders of the great Catholic University, announcing their intention to continue the educational work of the institution undismayed by the provisions of the recent law on higher education. The fee for admission will also be lowered. It is estimated that there are 20,000 pupils of the unauthorized religious congregations in France, one half of whom are taught by Jesuits. The decrees promulgated by the Government order the parents and guardians of these pupils to withdraw them from the teachers of their choice, and thereby cause them the loss of a systematic instruction consonant with their principals.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

The Attempt to Shoot Hon. George Brown.

TORONTO, April 2.—George Dickson alias Bennett, was placed in the dock at the Police Court this morning, charged with shooting at Hon. George Brown with intent to kill. Mr. Brown was unable to appear, and the County Crown Attorney stated that the wound had become very painful of late, and in all likelihood would keep the patient confined to his room for two or three weeks yet. Bennett was remanded to gaol.

The Infidels it is said intend to take advantage of the presence in this city, of a large number of their friends from outside, on occasion of Ingersoll's lectures, and hold a convention of the Free Thinkers of the Province on Tuesday or Wednesday.

There are 240 applications this year for tavern licenses. According to the population as shown by the last census only about 165 can be granted.

Lambton Central Railway.

WYOMING, April 2.—A meeting of the ratepayers of this village was held Thursday evening, for the purpose of considering a proposition to grant a bonus of seven thousand five hundred dollars to the Lambton Central Railway, providing the same should pass through Wyoming. The meeting was almost unanimous in favour of the bonus being given.

Fire at Belle Ewart.

LEFROY, Ont., April 2.—The Belle Ewart rustic factory was burned last night. Loss about $2,000; no insurance.

Customs and Inland Revenue Returns—Canadian Pacific Railway—The British Elections.

MONTREAL, April 2.—The Customs Receipts at this port for March last were $553,923.10; for the corresponding month of 1879, $268,858.85, showing an increase on last month of 285,064.25. The Inland Revenue receipts for March, 1880, were $91,394.77; for March, 1879, $78,704.36; an increase of $12,690.41.

Col. Ingersoll's lecture there last night was but sparingly attended.

The contractors of section B, Pacific Railway, have engaged 250 men here at $1.60 per day, to work on the line. They leave by special train to-night for Winnipeg.

There is great interest taken here in the results of the English elections.

Local News.

A TENT of the Knights of the Maccabees has been established at Harriston.

THE CASE AGAINST MRS. Soden of selling liquor to an Indian, has been enlarged for a month.

THE McDOWELL Dramatic Company have engaged the Winnipeg City Hall for a season of four weeks, commencing on the 20th of May.

MRS. BITTLE wants the world to know that her son only stole one pigeon and not a pair of pigeons, as stated in yesterday's issue.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly easterly to southerly, partly cloudy to cloudy weather with local rains.

KENNEDY'S Concert at Brantford, on Wednesday evening was largely attended, a number from Guelph and places north on the W. G. & B. Railway being present.

THE Great Western Railway expects to derive an increased business from Harriston this summer. Among the manufacturers who will ship largely by that line is the Guelph Barrel Company.

A DUTY FOR SPRING.—With the approach of Spring comes the annual recurrence of house cleaning and the necessity for cleaning out alleys, back yards, sewers, and streets, to get rid of the accumulated filth of winter and aid in preventing disease in the hot months.

AT the last meeting of the Brantford Board of Trade, on Wednesday, the matter of appointing a Hide Inspector in that city was discussed. The excitement created here some time ago on a similar discussion by the Guelph Board of Trade and butchers seems to have died out.

FALSE ALARM.—The Brigade was called out about 7:30 last evening, an alarm being occasioned through a chimney on the house occupied by Mrs. Scarrow, Perth street. The hosemen made very good time, reaching the house in less than four minutes after the alarm was sounded. The services of the firemen were not required.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—The regular monthly meeting of this Society, was held on Thursday evening, the President, Mr. A. H. Goodeve, in the chair. It was decided to hold a concert on the evening of St. George's day instead of a dinner as formerly. A special committee was formed to make arrangements for the annual sermon to the Society on the Sunday preceding St. George's day.

CURE FOR THE WOOPING COUGH.—For the last three months the gas house has served as a temporary hospital for persons afflicted with the whooping cough. The whooping cough has been very prevalent and patients were sent by their physicians to the gas house to be cured, and it has been infested by both old and young people. They were placed in the gas purifiers and the gas given off the mixture of sulphur and ammonia [illegible] the effect of making them cough and vomit. This gas is regarded as the best cure for whooping cough.

WAGGONS FOR MANITOBA.—Messrs. Goold & Henry appear to be working up a good trade in the manufacture of waggons for Manitoba. They have entered into a contract with Messrs. Harris & Son, Winnipeg, who carry on business in Brantford, to supply about one hundred and twenty "Prairie Belle" waggons for that Province. Two carloads of the number have been shipped, one is to be shipped on the 19th April and another early in May. The waggons are furnished with a double box and are one quarter less in weight than ordinary waggons. The same firm have orders for 125 sleighs to be shipped as soon as they can be made.

NORFOLK STREET METHODIST CHURCH.—An entertainment was given in the basement of this church last evening by the Superintendent and Teachers of the Sunday School. It was very largely attended, and was the most successful affair of the kind held in the church for a long time. The programme comprised a number of anthems given by choruses made up of old, and those made up of young people. Prof. and Claude Harrington gave a good reading, and a reading by Alfred Schofield on the "Irishman on Philosophy" was extremely laughable. An Indian song by Mr. Schofield, his son and two daughters was the feature of the evening. At the close a vote of thanks was tendered to those who got up the entertainment and those who took part in it.

PRESENTATION TO MR. NATTRESS.—At the close of the examination in the Parliament street school, Toronto, the headmaster, Mr. Natress, late English Master at the Agricultural College, was waited upon by a deputation of young ladies representing his female class, and presented with a neatly bound copy of the Holy Bible, as a small token of the esteem in which he was held by the class. The young men belonging to his class also presented Mr. Nattress with a handsomely executed gold locket, bearing a suitable inscription, in recognition of their appreciation of the valuable services rendered the class by their esteemed teacher. Mr. Nattress made a suitable reply, expressive of the pleasure he had felt in the success of the class entrusted to him by the School Board.

Board of Education.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday evening, there were present:—Messrs. Murton, (chairman,) Innes, Burgess, Newton, Inglis, Leonard, McKenzie, Gowdy, Wilkie, Hart, Robertson, Harvey, Swinford and Keating.

SENIOR GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The Committee on School Management submitted the following report:—

The Committee on School Management beg leave to submit the following report with reference to the various applications for the vacancy in the Senior Girls' School, referred to them for selection by the Principal, Inspector and Chairman, being ten in number from amongst the various candidates; that they carefully examined the same, and after careful consideration consider it to be their duty to recommend the appointment of Miss Margaret Mills to the position. Without detracting from the merits of the other candidates, which are of a very high order, they consider that those of Miss Mills were unsurpassed by any others.

Miss Mills holds a first-class certificate (non-professional,) but has had a course of professional training at Toronto Normal School. She is an undergraduate of Toronto University in Arts of the standing of first year, and has had nearly two years experience in teaching in the Hamilton city schools. She passed the examination of McGill University, Montreal, in 1877, obtaining senior certificate for the Standing Associate in Arts. She received her education in Hamilton schools, passing through all the grades of the public schools and completed the curriculum prescribed for the Hamilton Collegiate Institute. Amongst her testimonials are very commendatory ones from Dr. Spencer, Prof. of Chemistry at the University of King's College, Nova Scotia, and formerly Science Master, Hamilton Collegiate Institute; from T.C. F. Armstrong, M. A., Modern Language Master, Hamilton Collegiate Institute; and one of the 17th of March inst., from George Dickson, Principal, Collegiate Institute, Hamilton, the latter observing that she is justly regarded as one of the best teachers they have, that when appointed she received the highest position vacant—one of the divisions of the Fifth grade—and that the salary offered by the Guelph Board, and the opportunity of doing a higher kind of work, induced her to apply for the position advertised in Guelph. Your committee deemed it proper to secure a personal interview with Miss Mills and, from their opinion formed at this, and the high testimonials submitted, consider her in all respects competent to discharge the duties of her position.

The report was adopted on motion of Mr. Leonard, seconded by Mr. Swinford.

The Secretary reported that Miss Mary J. Lavery had applied for the position of teacher advertised as vacant in the North Ward School.

On motion of Messrs, Innes and Leonard she was appointed to the position.

The Board then adjourned.

FUNERAL OF THE CASTAWAYS.—The two boys who lost their lives on the lake by being cast adrift in a boat from Toronto bay on Saturday, were buried on Thursday. The boys were buried side by side. The grief of the mothers of the lads as the coffins were lowered into the grave, where they were laid side by side, was heart-rendering, and young Rainey's sister, who is a teacher in the Union Sunday School, corner of Queen and Bathurst streets, had to be almost carried to and from the grave. Many of the spectators were also melted to tears. Miss Rainey's grief at the loss of her brother is the more severe as on that fatal Sunday morning, feeling unwell, she requested him to go and inform the Superintendent of the Sunday School that she could not attend that day. She imagines now that perhaps if she had not asked him to do this for her he might have remained at home. This, however, is improbable, as he was in the habit of going out every Sunday, generally to the same Sunday School.

ACTION FOR SLANDER.—At the Elgin Assizes an action for slander was tried, on Wednesday, in which Dr. Cascaden, M. P. P., was plaintiff, and Mr. John Edgecombe, of Port Stanley, was defendant. The evidence for the plaintiff showed that on the 29th March, 1879, the day after the first Reform Convention for the West Riding of Elgin, defendant was with others in the store of Mr. Robert Goulding at Port Stanley, and he then stated publicly that Dr. Cascaden had tried to pass off a forged receipt upon him (the defendant); that the receipt was a forgery, and he (the defendant, could prove it. These statements were repeated at different times by the defendant, who stated also that Dr. Cascaden dare not bring an action against him. The opinion was expressed that the statements were put forward by defendant with a view of injuring plaintiff's chances at the forthcoming election. Verdict not yet returned.

The Elections in Britain.

LONDON, April 1.—There was polling in 76 constituencies to-day and nominations in 48.

The net Liberal gain in the election is now twenty-nine seats.

The Standard declares that the results of to-day's voting only served to increase the Government's losses. The Conservative majority has well nigh disappeared. The question no longer is whether the Ministry will be able to hold their own, but whether the Opposition will secure such a majority as will enable them to take office with a reasonable prospect of carrying on the business satisfactorily.

The Pall Mall Gazette admits that the Government is defeated. The Echo says that the total votes cast thus far aggregate 343,568 Liberal, and 231,370 Tory.

The Telegraph (Liberal) says no such sweeping change is manifested as that which struck down the great party in 1874, but the result cannot be predicted from one day's polling.

The Times says that about one-third of the entire number of members of the House of Commons have now been elected. The apparent result is that the Conservative majority will be replaced by a Liberal majority.

Lloyd's Newspaper says:—"With respect to the issue in the contest, it may be mentioned that in no single instance since the passing of the Reform Act of 1832 has a Conservative Administration appealed successfully to the people at the polls. In January, 1835, when Sir Robert Peel dissolved the Parliament which had been returned to support Earl Grey, a Liberal majority was returned. In July, 1852, Lord Derby appealed to the country, and the verdict was an adverse one. In April, 1859, when Lord Derby was again in office, a similar incident was followed by a like result. In November, 1868, when Mr. Disraeli was Prime Minister, the majority against him in the new Parliament was doubled. On the other hand, only twice has a Liberal Prime Minister gone to the country and been defeated—Lord Melbourne in 1841, and Mr. Gladstone in 1874. Lord Palmerston has been the only Premier who twice dissolved Parliament, and each time returned with an increased majority, viz., in 1837 and 1865."

TRESSPASS.—David Stewart and John Cusack were before the Police Magistrate to-day for trespassing on the property of Mrs. Bell, Grange street. The former was fined $1 and $3.85 costs or ten days in gaol. Cusack, who is in jail awaiting trial for larceny, was discharged on the charge of tresspass.

SOMETHING RICH.—The ignorance as to local events, of those who do not read good local newspapers, is strikingly demonstrated by a perusal of the Herald yesterday. The Elora Express this week copied the paragraph which appeared in the MERCURY some days ago regarding the petition to the U. S. Government for a central consular agency here, but forgot to credit us for it. The Herald yesterday copied the item from the Express and gave that paper credit for it.

SERIOUS BURNING ACCIDENT.—On the 24th April a four year old daughter of Mr. Andrew Fisher, Harriston, was severely burned. She with a small child had been left together in the house, and she commenced about the stone, when her clothes caught fire. The screams of the children soon brought the parents in, when they discovered the little girl surrounded by flames. The child's clothes were soon torn off, but not before her little breast and waist were most fearfully burnt. A doctor was sent for immediately, who did all that was possible to alleviate the sufferings of the child, but the most serious results are feared.

It is also understood that the Princess will visit Hamilton at the same time if her health will permit.

At the Peel Assizes on Thursday, a breach of promise case was tried. The parties to the suit, Miss Mary Rusk and Mr. George Brett, are both comparatively young, the maiden having barely completed her twenty-second year, and the defendant, although since the rupture of the alleged contract he has entered the estate of matrimony with another woman, is only a year or two older. Verdict for the plaintiff, $400.

Seed and Horse Show at Aberfoyle.

Under the Auspices of the Farmers Club.

The third Semi-annual Seed Show under the auspices of the Farmers' Club was held at Aberfoyle, on Thursday. It was very well attended, there being about three hundred people present, showing that an interest is felt by farmers in the show. The show of seed grains, including all kinds of cereals grown in the township, was good, and there was also a fine display of potatoes. There were quite a number of entries and the articles occupied the greater part of the Town Hall. A variety of oats known as the Jersey Black, shown by Nicholas Norrish, of Nassagaweya, was rare and attracted considerable attention. They sold at 45 cents a bushel after the show. Some varieties of choice wheat sold as high as $1.50 a bushel, and the barley brought 75 cents.

Wheat—Alex. Smith, 1st; Duncan MacFarlane, 2nd.
Peas—John Evans, 1st; Alex. McCaig, 2nd

There were offered $60 in prizes, and the Farmers' Club had a prize of $12 for the best general purpose horse. The show was the best ever held in that section, the entries numbering fourteen.

The Dog By-Law.

The Council has had before it for some time a By-law, the object of which is to restrain and regulate the running at large of dogs within the Corporation. The intention of the Council is a very commendable one, and if the By-law is not rendered vexatious in its provisions, it will have an excellent effect in reducing the number of dogs in the city, and in enforcing a proper surveillance ever those which are kept. The By-law has been read a second time, and it will likely come up for its third reading at the Council meeting on Monday night.

We have already published the By-law in order that the ratepayers may have an opportunity of becoming acquainted with its provisions. After a careful perusal of it we think that a simpler and less troublesome method of registration and indentity could be devised. The clause we refer to is as follows:—

"That every person owning, possessing or harboring a dog or bitch shall annually, on or before the first day of June in each year, report such fact to the Chief of police in the said city, and procure such animal to be registered, numbered, described and licensed for one year, from the first day of January preceding, in a book to be kept for that purpose in the office of the said chief constable, and shall cause such animals to wear around its neck a collar bearing the name of the owner, to which collar shall be attached, by a metallic fastening, a metallic plate, having engraved raised or cast thereon the letters C. L. P. (city license paid), and the figures indicating the year for which the said license has been paid, together with a number corresponding with the number under which the said animal is registered in the books of the said chief constable, and every such person shall pay to the said chief constable for the use of the corporation a tax of one dollar for every dog, and three dollars for every bitch owned, possessed, or harbored by him or her in each year, together with the sum of thirty cents for each dog or bitch, to cover the expenses of registration, and which latter sum shall in all instances be received by the said chief constable for his own use."

We think the provisions of this clause are of such a nature that there will be difficulty in enforcing them, and it would be well if the By-law Committee or the Council could fall on some less cumbersome mode of registration, which while answering all the purposes required will give as little trouble as possible. Those who have dogs which are worth keeping will be willing to have them properly registered, but the mode of securing their identity should be as cheap and simple as possible.

The other provisions of the By-law do not call for any special remark. We believe that if amended in the direction indicated it will have an excellent effect in reducing our dog population, which we all know is far too numerous. There are dozens of curs roaming about this city which have scarcely an owner, and which have to prowl around and steal what miserable subsistence they get. The sooner they are put out of the way the better. As to the discriminating charge between dogs and bitches, we are afraid that part of the By-law won't work well. We remember a good many years ago a similar regulation was passed by the Council, and if our memory serves us right the assessors next year out of all the number returned had only five or six bitches on their list!

The Elections in Britain.

The Liberals keep gaining as the elections proceed in Britain. The latest returns up till Thursday night give the Liberals 146, the Conservatives 102, and the Home Rulers 8. From the dispatches we gather the following:—In Edinburgh the Solicitor-General has been defeated by a majority of of 1,000. Mr. Gladstone headed the poll at Leeds, his majority being over 1,000. The Liberals have gained one seat at Oxford, Nottingham, and Chester. The Conservatives have gained one in Sheffield. The Liberals have returned all their candidates for Manchester. The O'Donoghue (Home Ruler) is re-elected for Tralee by a majority of 52 out of a poll of 360. Mr. William E. Foster, Liberal, has been re-elected at Bradford; Mr. Wm. J. Ingram, Liberal, proprietor of the London Illustrated News, has been re-elected for Boston. Right Hon. Robt. Bourke, Conservative, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has been re-elected for Kings Lynn. Mr. Chas. E. Lewis, Conservative, the Orange leader, has been re-elected for Londonderry City.

The Liberal victory at Birmingham was unexpected. The Conservative triumph at Westminster would have been irretrievable if the Liberals had not considered that all the resources of the Government, and especially of Mr. Smith, were thrown against them, and also that the Jingo element had extraordinary strength in London, the only Conservative metropolis in Europe. All the four members, Alderman Cotton, ex-Lord Mayor, Mr. J. G. Hubbard and Alderman R. N. Fowler have been elected by large majorities. It is said Lord Beaconsfield has made up his mind to stick to office in spite of defeat, until Parliament meets, which will be at a comparatively early day. On the occasion of his last defeat he resigned immediately, without waiting for a formal vote of want of confidence, and his example was followed by Mr. Gladstone at the last general election. The London correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, speaking of the bearing the elections may have on the Irish question, says it is certain that whether the Liberals or Tories win, the Parnell trash is ended.

THE Insolvent Act expired on Thursday, the Governor-General having on that day given his assent to the Bill for its repeal.

THE Catholic Bishop and clergy of Cork have denounced Parnell's interference in their constituency, and his persistent attempts to spread disorder.

THE Irish papers are puffing Sir John Macdonald to the skies for the $100,000 voted by Parliament, to the relief fund, just as if the money came out of his pocket.

THE news of Mr. Edward Holton's acceptance of the nomination for Chateauguay has been joyfully received, and a warm reception awaits him on his arrival in the County.

THE motion respecting the qualification of Senators has been postponed for a week. Sir Alexander Campbell said that while he granted the postponement, it was his intention to ultimately proceed with the matter.

London Advertiser:—"The architect of the Dominion and of some of the mightiest public works of the world," are the titles which the Stratford Herald believes people a hundred years hence will give Sir John Macdonald, forgetting "his disappointment of office-seekers, and his weakness at times on the social scale." Hadn't our contemporary better make the title complete by adding what is not the least interesting chapter of the Chieftain's history, and dubbing him "the engineer of the Pacific Scandal?" One-sided historians have never been looked upon as worthy authorities.

Montreal Star:—"It is not only skilled labour that is moving to the more prosperous cities of the Union. Many of our merchants and business men are following the example, their excuse being that they are only losing money in Canada. They feel that the great improvement manifested in all branches of trade in the United States will not extend to this country for some time, and meantime they claim they are only expending their capital, which might be used to better advantage on the other side. Canada is not only losing the best skilled labour; she is also losing many wealthy capitalists, and the exodus still continues. Where it will end it is difficult to foretell, but it is a problem which is forcing itself upon the consideration of the people for solution."

SIR John Macdonald has introduced a bill for the appointment of a resident representative Agent for Canada in Britain. Its provisions are as follows:—It shall be the duty of the High Commissioner to act as representative and resident agent of the Dominion in the United Kingdom, and in that capacity to execute such powers and to perform such duties as may from time to time be conferred upon and assigned to him by the Governor in Council. To take the charge, supervision, and control of the immigration offices and agencies in the United Kingdom under the charge of the Minister of Agriculture. To carry out such instructions as he may from time to time receive from the Governor in Council respecting the commercial, financial, and general interests of the Dominion in the United Kingdom and elsewhere. The salary will likely be fixed at $10,000 per annum.

THE speech of Mr. John White, M. P., for Hastings, on Dr. Orton's Usury Bill, created a small sensation among the Government supporters He has always been looked upon as one of Sir John's staunchest followers, but the castigation he administered to the occupants of the Treasury Benches will not soon be forgotten. He declared was an insult to the House that the most important members of the Cabinet should be absent while such important subjects was being discussed, and complimented Mr. Blake on the course that he had taken. Messrs. Macdonald, (Picton) and Bowell looked at one another significantly when Mr. White said he would support a Government lead by Mr. Blake, because he wanted to see an honest Irishman at the head of affairs. The Tory leaders were out of their seats when the Bill was up for discussion, and shirked this question, as they do all others which might have the effect of making them unpopular in some sections. Their conduct contrasted strangely with Mr. Blake's outspoken and practical utterances, which elicited a eulogium also from Mr. Plumb.

New Books.

THE SCOT IN BRITISH NORTH AMERICA, by W. J. Rattray, B. A. Vol. 1: Toronto, Maclear & Co.

We received a copy of this handsome book a few days ago, and are highly pleased with a hasty perusal of it. We had been led by previous reports to form high expectations of the work, and this the first volume fully realize them. Mr. Rattray has evidently entered on his task with enthusiasm, and has treated his subject with marked ability. The work of collecting the necessary information was in itself no easy one, as books and public documents at the best supply only a meagre account of the men about whom it is of the first importance to gather facts. Judging from the first division of the work before us the editor has been most industrious in this department, and he has been very discriminating and judicious in his use of them. His style is, moreover, clear and attractive, and his extensive reading and fine literary taste are very apparent in his many happy quotations. Apart altogether from its national character, we regard it as one of the ablest literary efforts ever issued from the Canadian press.

In the part now before us, and by way of introduction we have an interesting chapter on the Scottish National character; another on the physical geography of Scotland; another giving a sketch of the various races. Then follows a brief review of the romantic course of Scottish history, exhibiting that constant struggle for existence against feuds of class and race on the one hand, and the unceasing attacks of external foes from every quarter, on the other. Then we have an account of the conspicuous part which religion has filled amongst the influences which have moulded the national character, and given it that peculiar tone or bent which belongs to it. The migratory tendencies of the Scot are also the object of a chapter, showing the prominent positions attained by Scotsmen in foreign lands, and this naturally introduces the conspicuous part taken by soldiers and statesmen of that nationality in the early conquest and administration of Acadia and Quebec. Sir William Alexander, who first attempted to found the British colony of Nova Scotia, and Sir David Kerkt, who took Annapolis and afterwards Quebec, were both Scotchmen. At the final capture of Quebec under Wolfe the Scots were represented by the Fraser Highlanders who scaled the Heights of Abraham and took part in the memorable conflict that sealed the fate of New France, having previously participated in the capture of Louisbourg under the same gallant leader. Other famous Scottish regiments who rendered themselves conspicuous in that war were the 42nd, better known as the "Black Watch," and the 77th or "Montgomery's." The former distinguished themselves at Ticonderoga and the latter at the capture of Fort du Quesne, where Pittsburg now stands. At the close of the war very many of the men belonging to these regiments settled in Quebec and intermarried with the habitans, their descendants being merged in the French-speaking population. At a reunion of the clan Fraser, in 1868, it was stated that there are in British North America 12,000 of the name, of whom many are descendants of the Fraser Highlanders. There was a very considerable element among the U. E. Loyalists who settled in the Maritime Provinces, including McDonalds, McKays, Mackenzies, McLeans and McPhersons. The County of Pictou is distinctively Scottish. The work traces subsequent Scottish Colonization in the Maritime Provinces which had left such a marked impress upon the character of the people. The careers of Gen. James Murray, the first British Governor of Quebec and of Sir James Craig, Lieut-Governor from 1807 to 1814, are briefly sketched. The writer finds little to record regarding the Upper Province between 1791 and 1812, the most notable Scotchman connected with the colony in that early day being Lieut-Governor Peter Hunter, who assumed office in 1799. He died in 1805 in Quebec.

The above brief sketch will give our readers a faint idea of the book. It is embellished with a very fine portrait of Lord Elgin. The type is beautifully clear and large, the binding is very handsome, and the whole "got up" is exceedingly creditable to Canadian art. The work deserves, as we are sure it will have, a very extensive sale.

The three volumes to follow will be issued at an early date and will contain the more recent history of the country, together with biographical notices of prominent Scotsmen in every walk in life.

CHAPTER XXXV.

SALE BY AUCTION—ANTHONY LANGTON DOES NOT PROVE THE HIGHEST BIDDER—JACK BORLAND MAKES HIS FIRST REVELATION.

"Gentlemen," he observed, with his usual deliberation of speech, "you are assembled here in consequence of a public advertisement intimating that the Grange estate, for which as you know, I am factor, would be sold by public action. Most of you are probably aware that this is in consequence of a mortgage on the property, which the proprietor could not meet when payment was demanded."

"Hear, hear," exclaimed Anthony Langton, while Reuben nodded his head in pleased confirmation. A low murmur of disapprobation passed through the assembly, which was quickly hushed as the factor resumed.

"By a clause in the deed of mortgage the holder could demand payment whenever he pleased, and in the event of the owner not meeting the claim he had the power to throw the estate into the market. That power the mortgagee, Mr. Langton of Cairnbank, has seen fit to exercise. In bar of sale, however, I have now to tender Mr. Langton a bank draft for thirty thousand pounds, which sum clears off the mortgage and renders the sale unnecessary."

Utter astonishment produced for some moments perfect silence, then tremendous cheering burst forth, the vehemence of which caused the walls to vibrate. In the midst of the noise Anthony Langton rose to his feet with furious countenance, and the moment silence was restored he exclaimed—

"I refuse to take the money. The sale must go on. I told you so before," he added, shaking his withered hand in excitement at the factor.

The old man's words produced a painful revulsion of feeling, satisfaction gave way to disappointment, and all eyes were turned to Mr. Bishop to see what would follow.

"It is quite true, gentlemen," explained the factor, "that a week ago I offered Mr. Langton this same bank draft, the amount of which, as Mr. Raleigh can testify, has been lodged in the bank."

"Quite true," said the banker, who was seated near. "It is also true," went on the factor, "that Mr. Langton would not receive the money nor discharge the bond, declaring then, as he has declared now, that the sale must go on."

"And I repeat the declaration," cried the old man, who was still on his feet.

"You finally refuse to take the money and discharge the bond ?"

"I do," was the answer, in a decided tone.

"The I offer no further opposition to then sale going on, and Mr. Dowling can now proceed."

"This intimation brought a look of intense satisfaction akin to malignant triumph on the faces of Anthony Langton and Reuben, who concluded that they had finally won the day. Mr. Bishop, however, did not appear defeated when he sat down with such perfect calmness as only a man conscious ot being master of the sit uation could display.

The articles of roup being read, the auctioneer began his work. In this he was significantly brief. Instead of launching forth in his usual florid and elaborate eulogies, he merely said—

"Gentlemen, I do not require to describe to you the character and value of the estate now to be sold. You know the place as well as I do—many of you much better. The upset price is thirty thousaad pounds. Does any gentleman offer that sum ?"

"Yes, I do," cried Anthony Langton, with eager promptness.

"Thirty thousand is bid. Any advance on thirty thousand ?"

There was a dead silence, and the triumph in the two Cairnbank faces increased.

"Then, gentlemen, if no advance is made, the upset price having been bid, I must sell the estate at thirty thousand pounds. Going at thirty thousand—once—twice—"

The hammer was raised, but it did not fall. In the breathless silence there came from one corner, with clear, distinct articulation, the words—

"Thirty thousand five hundred."

A start like the force of a shock passed from end to end of the room, and a great rustle was heard as every head was turned in the direction of the sound, while a universal effort was made to catch sight of the speaker. Each seemed to think that he had been been the victim of hullucination, it seemed so impossible that any one present except Anthony Langton could be a bidder.

The effect on the two Langtons was prodigious. The satisfied smile on their faces gave instantaneous place to a look of consternation, and two pair of gleaming eyes were set towards the corner whence the words proceeded.

Now was Mr. Bishop's turn to wear a complacent smile, and cast a quiet glance of triumph across the table.

The auctioneer, having purposly allowed a few moments for the sensation to have its full effect, gave Jack a nod, exclaiming —

"Thank you, sir; thirty thousand five hundred is bid. Any advance—no advance. Going then at thirty thousand five hundred! Once, twice——"

"Thirty-one thousand," cried Anthony Langton, with a nervous scream.

"Thirty-one thousand," repeated the auctioneer, turning towards the corner.

"Thirty-two thousand," cried Jack in a moment, and this time the speaker was discovered. When Reuben Langton saw whom it was he leapt from his chair in the extremity of wrathful amazement.

"This is a trick," he shouted. "That fellow is only making sham bids; he has been hired and bribed to do it."

"Indeed, sir," said the auctioneer. "Have you any proof for that assertion."

"Proof; why you have only to look at him to see the proof. How should a fellow like that be able to bid for the estate."

"Why should he not. I see nothing in the gentleman's appearance to ridicule the idea. However, it is for the exposer alone to object if he is not satisfied. Do you object, Mr. Bishop?"

"No."

"But I do," roared Anthony Langton.

"You have no right," rejoined Bishop.

"Yes I have; I am the mortgagee."

"The mortgage money has been already lodged in the bank by this gentleman. Your claim is therefore met, and your right to object is gone."

"I rule that is so, said the auctioneer. "Going then at thirty-two thousand."

"Thirty-three," screamed Anthony, with desperate energy.

"Thirty-five," called out Jack, with imperturbable calmness.

"This is a great conspiracy," yelled Reuben.

"It is," said the factor, "but the conspirators are on your side of the table, and are beginning to see that they are baffled."

"I am bid thirty-five thousand," said the auctioneer, who evidently enjoyed the situation. The delight of those in the room was now intense. It had become apparent to them that the miser of Cairnbank was to be run hard, and all now eagerly hoped that the stranger would be the purchaser.

Who is he? What is he? were the questions flying round the room respecting Jack. But no one could give an answer. They looked at his frank, open, honest face, and were sure he would prove a better landlord than Anthony Langton.

"The last call at thirty-five thousand," went on the auctioneer, preparing to bring down the hammer.

"Stop—on your peril, stop," screamed Anthony, with frantic vehemence, "I want to know who is to benefit by this competition. The former ownership is extinct. Who is to receive the surplus money ?"

"What business have you with that ?" demanded the lawyer.

"Nane ava," roared several voices at once.

"Doon wi' the hammer, Dowling," called out others.

"Going at thirty-five thousand!" exclaimed that gentleman, with a flourish.

"Th—thirty-six!" gasped Anthony, his eyes protruding with the effort.

"Thirty-eight!" came at once in the clear voice of Jack.

The old man sank into his seat with a groan and gesture of despair. Reuben gave vent to a fearful oath; and the auctioneer's hammer fell on the table, amid rapturous applause.

"The sale is invalid!" screamed Anthony, again starting to his feet. "I will contest it."

"On what ground, sir ?" asked Dowling, sharply. "I have conducted the sale strictly according to rule. If you dare to assert the contrary I shall sue you in an action of damages."

"I demand that the name and position of the purchaser be declared," he roared, glaring furiously at Jack.

"This gentleman is acting as agent for another," explained Mr. Bishop.

"Agent for whom, sir ?—agent for whom ?"

"For Mr. Orwell Bruce," exclaimed the factor, in a loud voice. The reply petrified the company into silence.

"Orwell Bruce!" ejaculated Reuben Langton, livid with dismay.

"I give this information," went on the factor, not in answer to Mr. Langton's demand, but for the satisfaction of this company, who, I am sure, rejoice to hear that he is alive and well. He is at present in America, but I have no doubt will return ere long to reside amongst us, and prove as kind and generous a landlord as his father."

The factor's voice was drowned in deafening cheers. It would be vain to try to describe the scene which followed—the wild excitement, the shouts of joy, the handshakings, the congratulations, the extravagant demonstrations of gladness. People in the market-place were astonished at the outburst, till those inside who were nearest the door rushed out with the tidings. Then the news spread, and within half an hour it seemed as if Cairntree was holding a jubilee.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 1.

When the House opened the Usher of the Black Rod appeared and intimated that His Excellency the Governor-General desired the presence of his loyal Commons in the Senate Chamber. The House repaired to the Senate Chamber, where His Excellency was pleased to sanction the Bill repealing the Insolvency laws.

A Bill to repeal the Act amending the Maritime Jurisdiction Act of 1877 was introduced by Mr. Patterson, Essex; also a Bill by Mr. Richey, providing for the sentencing of juvenile offenders to confinement in the Halifax Industrial School; and a Bill by Sir John Macdonald, providing for the appointment of a Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom.

Although it was a Government day, the order for resuming the adjourned debate on a private member's motion relating to the fishery award was called. Mr. Richey, of Halifax, was about to speak to the order, when Mr. Mackenzie, protested, on the ground that it was a Government day, and the Government business was so backward that it was inexpedient to delay it at such a late period in the session. After discussion, the Government yielded, and were forced to proceed with the regular business, instead of holding it back to the end of the session, to be then rushed through without proper consideration.

Mr. Masson moved the second reading of the Bill to amend the Acts relating to Militia and Defence of the Dominion of Canada. The principal feature of this measure is a clause practically substituting the Governor-in-Council for the magistracy in calling out the militia in cases of civil disturbances, and further providing that each militiaman so called out shall be a special constable without taking any oath of office, and shall be amenable only to the orders of his immediate commanding officer.

Mr. Mills objected to the Bill as unconstitutional, because it provides for the appointment of special constables or peace officers, which was a matter pertaining to the administration of justice and within the province of Local Governments.

Messrs. Blake and Mackenzie objected to the clause of the Bill referred to in the preceding sentences, because it was an attempt to substitute martial for civil law in certain cases, and remove the maintenance of order from the magistracy or municipal authorities to the Governor-in-Council.

This led to a long discussion, in which the objectionable features of the Bill were severely criticized, after which it was read the second time.

The remainder of the sitting was occupied in considering a Bill by Hon. Mr. Baby, consolidating and amending the Acts respecting the Inland Revenue. As several of its clauses dealt with the excise duties on native tobaccos, a debate in French relative to the encouragement of tobacco-producing and manufacture was carried on. Ultimately the Bill passed its second reading, and was considered clause by clause in Committee of the Whole, after which progress was reported, and the House adjourned at midnight.

The citizens of Moorefield and Maryborough are agitating for the erection of a town hall in Moorefield. This is something the township has long been in need of.

A deputation waited on members of the Government at Ottawa on Thursday in the interest of reduced canal tolls and pilotage fees. The Ministers admitted that a strong case had been made out, but they feared that the finances of the country would not permit the Government to make any reduction at present.

Alfred Thompson, druggist, of Palmerston, was on Monday, 28th ult., charged before Justices Potts, McDowell, and Kee, with disposing of liquor without keeping a book of record as required by the Liquor License Act. The only evidence was that of License Inspector Moore, which did not prove the charge, and the case was dismissed.

THE BRUCE MURDER CASE.—The Telescope says:—We have reason to believe that the story in circulation about Dave Ritchie is unfounded, and that the foundation of the story is to be found in the following paragraph concerning Davis:—A man named Abraham Davis, a white man, is at present in jail awaiting trial on the charge of having killed three Indians in January, 1874, on the Indian Peninsula. The charge, though made by a son-in-law of the prisoner's, seems a very improbable one, the more especially so as no one remembers that such Indians were missed, and that at the time of the year named it would have been almost impossible for strange Indians to come in on a boat from the other side of the water. Nelson the man who makes the charge is confined in jail to secure his appearance at the trial to give evidence in the case.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway.

On Wednesday, the 31st ult, Alderman Dickey and Mr. Beattie, solicitor, met the Harriston Council on behalf of the Directors of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway, with reference to obtaining a bonus to assist in the widening of the gauge and reconstructing the road.

Mr. Beattie addressed the Council, explaining the proposed scheme, the amount of money required from the various municipalities, also the amount to be supplemented by the Bondholders and Directors. Orangeville being asked for $15,000; Mount Forest, $15,000; Arthur Village, $8,000; Harriston, $8,000; Wroxeter, $8,000; Teeswater, $8,000; Minto, $10,000; Howick, $20,000; Arthur Township, $15,000; Luther, $30,000.

Mr. Dickey also addressed the Council at some length upon the subject.

After some discussion by the Council the following motion was put and carried:

Moved by Mr. Brisbin, seconded by Mr. Patmore, "that this Council recognize the importance of widening the gauge and otherwise improving the T. G. & B. Railway, feel disposed to assist in carrying out the scheme to the extent of our ability."
—Tribune.

Terrible Weather in British Columbia.

The Victoria (B. C.) Colonist of March 20 says: The latest despatches we have received from the vast central and northern districts of the mainland announce the continuation of a terrible winter. From Dog Creek alone, from the Fraser to its source, the horses of the Indian tribes have perished in the snow. The plains of Chilliwhack and the prairies of Kamloops and Okanagan and the rich valley of Nicola, famous for its pastoral resources, are covered with dead cattle. Fodder is scarce all over the district, and the settlers from Clinton to Cariboo fear that they will lose at least sixty per cent. of their stock before the snow disappears. From the letter of a farmer residing in the vast snow-covered country we make the following extracts, because we believe it is useful information for every man engaged in stock-raising in the upper country: "The loss of cattle this year in the district will be ruinous to the settlers, and the misfortune is the result of their imprudent dependence on the weather. Two or three fine winters in succession is sure to ruin such farmers as ours. Two farmers in this district have plenty of fodder within five miles of the place where their cattle are dying for want of food, but it is impossible to get the stock over the ocean of snow three feet deep." Another correspondent says: "The snow from Peace River to Soda Creek varies in depth from three to six feet. We travelled on snow shoes and killed deer with our knives. The picture of desolation on which we gazed was beautiful, but awful.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

The International Park.

ALBANY, March 31.—The report of the State Survey Commissioners on the preservation of the scenery of Niagara Falls was transmitted to the Legislature yesterday. The plan suggested by these gentlemen, and approved by the Commissioners and the Canadian authorities, is simply to restore the banks of the river on either side, so that an observer standing either above or below the Falls shall see nothing but water, sky, earth, and vegetation. He will see the Falls as Father Hennepin saw them more than two centuries and a half ago, and first made known to the world the existence of this stupendous work of nature. The Commissioners also recommended that the State acquire the title to the debris slopes under the cliffs from the American Falls to the railroad Suspension Bridge for the purpose of preserving and restoring the woods that border this part of the river. As the land is worthless for building, it can doubtless be obtained for little or nothing. And further, that the right be secured to plant and maintain a narrow belt of trees with a walk at least a mile in length along the edge of the cliff below Suspension Bridge. This planted belt need not be over twenty-five or thirty feet broad. The plan necessary for the changes on the Canadian side is the same in general outlines.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Rev. E. J. Stobs, of Collingwood, writes that the people of Parry Sound District are suffering through failure of crops last year. They are almost starving.

New Brunswick has a debt of about $920,000. The ordinary estimates for the present year amounted to $230,000.

The Pacific Railway contracts were laid before the House on Thursday, including those for the British Columbia sections. It is rather amusing to see our superloyal Government consenting to place Government contracts amounting to ten or twelve millions of dollars in the hands of American speculators. This is not in accordance with "N. P." principles.

Mr. H. J. Attrill of Goderich salt well fame is one of the proprietors of the enormous hotel now being built at Long Island. The site cost $300,000, and the building will at least cost $500,000. It will require 45,000 yards of carpeting, and it will hold 1,500 permanent guests, and 7000 transient or day visitors.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The Dublin Mansion House Relief Committee announce that the total amount received to March 27 was £130,704.

A St. Petersburg despatch says that the success of the Liberals in England produced considerable satisfaction. The indefinite postponement of Skobeloff's departure, with the belief that no actual expedition to Turkistan will be undertaken this year, as well as a despatch of the Russian division to Kuldja, is regarded as significant of indecision in Russian Ministerial circles, probably in view of the possible results from the success of the English Liberals.

The hero of the hour at Paris is Prof. Nordenskjold, who arrived there on Friday morning. He was accompanined by the gallant Captain Pallander, sharer of his adventures in the far North. The preparations for the reception of the eminent explorer at the station of the Northern Railway were of the simplest kind. He was welcomed by all Scientific Societies. At his lecture before the Geographical Societies in the evening, 3,000 people were present, representing all that is most notable in the Parisian world of science, literature and art.

A Berlin despatch says the Emperor is very ill and the physicians in attendance upon his Majesty do not conceal their grave anxiety.

A Paris despatch says the Francais affirms that a complete understanding exists between the religious confraternities of the Episcopacy and the leading Conservatives, of resistance to the decree of the Government in relation to unauthorized congregations.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

From Montreal.

MONTREAL, April 3.—Madame Corntois, the boarding house keeper, where the late Recorder Doxton resided, has taken an action against the corporation for $900 damages, sustained from the fire on the premises which plaintiff alleges was through the carelessness of the corporation watchman.

A number of Roman Catholic clergymen left this city for Paris, France, to attend a meeting of the General Chapter of the Brotherhood of the Holy Cross.

Navigation promises to be open in a very few days.

Large Fire in Thorold.

THOROLD, April 3.—About half past three o'clock this morning fire broke out in an old shed in rear of the city hotel, and in a short time the hotel with stables, ice house, Brown & Williams' livery stable, J. Rogers' residence and stables, —all frame buildings—were in flames. The roof of McIntosh's blacksmith shop caught fire, but being brick and covered with shingles laid in mortar, it stayed the further progress of the fire towards the east. Brown & Williams lost among their stock all their cutters, four new buggies and six hundred bushels of oats. Following is a list of the losses as near as can be ascertained:—City hotel, loss $4,000; furniture and stock, loss, $1,200. Brown & Williams' livery stable, loss, $2,000; stock and contents, loss, $4,000. J. S. Rogers' house, loss, $2,000; furniture loss, $100; stock and contents loss, $1,200. All the insurances are in American Companies. Hendershot's row was badly damaged, but is covered by insurance. Geo. McIntosh's loss on building damaged, $1,000; no insurance. W. F. Ellison, who occupied rooms in the city hotel, loss, $500; insured for $200 in the London, Liverpool & Globe Companies. The furniture of Wm. A. Walker, E. L. Iddycoat, D. A. Macfarland, and Chas. Linen, living in Hendershot's row, were somewhat damaged by removal. Cause of fire unknown. Messrs. Goold & Rogers intend rebuilding as soon as possible.

From Toronto.

TORONTO, April 3.—The Mail will occupy their new building, and from to-day, the paper will be published from the new office, which is considered to be one of the finest for the purpose on the continent.

There were no less than 19 persons charged at the Police Court this morning with drunkenness.

From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, April 3.—The Boundary Committee met this morning and examined Judge Armour, whose evidence is somewhat favourable to the Federal Government's contention.

Sir John Macdonald has given notice of a bill for the final settlement of claims to lands in Manitoba by occupancy under the Act 33, Vic.

The St. Mary's Argus says the Mitchell organ factory has again closed up.

Local News.

ATTENTION is directed to Hugh Walker's new advertisement, announcing the latest arrivals of fruit and vegetables.

PERSONAL.—Mr. S. W. Galbraith, formerly of the MERCURY is now city editor of the Sunday Democrat, Flint, Michigan.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—Rev. W. S. Ball and Dr. Keating attend the General Hospital next week.

THOS. SIMPSON was before the Police Magistrate to-day for being drunk and was fined $2 and costs or ten days imprisonment.

MEASLES.—In many of the rooms at the Central School there are only about half the pupils in attendance, the remainder being laid up with measles.

FURNITURE.—John Worsfold & Co. announce to-day a full stock of plain, fine, and artistic furniture for the spring trade. All orders promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—To-morrow the services, music, &c., will still have reference to the great festival of the Resurrection. There will also be an early administration of the Holy Communion at 8:30.

SPRING.—The frogs have commenced chirruping already, and a nightly chorus may be expected till next fall. Robins, blue birds and grey birds have returned. All of which seem as pleasant reminders that spring is here.

HOW TO SHINE IN SOCIETY.—The Toronto News Company have sent us this little work, containing a good deal of valuable information as to how persons should conduct themseves in society, and the laws and usages of polite conservation. The price is 25 cents.

S. S. ANNIVERSARY.—Sermons in connection with the Dublin street Methodist Sunday School will be preached to-morrow, morning and evening. The collections will be in aid of the funds of the school. For programme of Monday evening meeting see advertisement in this paper. The children of the school will provide the service of song.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The Young Men's Association of this church held their fortnightly meeting last night, Honorary President, Rev. J. C. Smith, in the chair. Recitations were given by S. Gordon, Mr. Gibbon, and John J. Findlay; readings by J. Davidson and Mr. Kelso, and a song by G. Gordon. The programme was well carried out and those present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

FIRE HOSE.—The following particulars of a test made in Toronto, on fire hose of different makes, will prove of interest to the firemen here, and may serve to enable them to judge as to the best kind to buy when requiring new hose. The pressure each brand stood is as follows:—Maltese Cross, 540 lbs.; Eureka, 525 lbs.; Akron, 510 lbs. The length put in by the Maltese Cross Company was taken at random from a consignment going through to Manitoba, while the Eureka length was sent for to the manufactory.

MUFFINS AND CRUMPITS.—Mr. W. Newport sent us down this morning a sample of his excellent muffins and crumpits to let us see how he turns flour into this shape. They were very nicely made. But how in the world—he must think editors and reporters have no tastes—he forget to send down the delicacies with them, or even tell us what to do with them, we don't know. Anyway, delicacies or no delicacies, the boys made a lunch off them and worked all dinner hour on account of Newport's benevolence. Success to Newport in his new store.

ENTERTAINMENT.—A very interesting and instructive entertainment was given by the High School Literary Society, Friday afternoon. Piano solos were given by Misses. Thompson and Wardrope; Mr. G. Gordon, read an essay on "The advantages and disadvantages of City and Country Life." A pleasing and rather amusing part of the programme was an impromptu debate on "Resolved that the Farmer is more beneficial to the community than the Merchant." Messrs. Harrington and Argo spoke on the positive, and Strachan and Wright on the negative sides. After the subject had been fully discussed, the decision was given in favour of the positive. This finished the programme, and the meeting adjourned.

GRIP.—This week's number of our witty contemporary is capital. The principal cartoon is entitled "A little thing on ice, or Sammy Tilley deserted by Galt." The Finance Minister is depicted as a small boy, nervously gazing on a "danger" placard stuck in a big hole marked "currency scheme.' Sir Alexander skates away remarking, "The little fellow will have to shift for himself now." Mr. Wallace, with the rag baby on arm, says, "Don't be afraid Sam, strike out boldly"; and Mr. R. W. Phipps, looking amusedly at the little financier, says "Wouldn't you like ME to take you in hand now? But I shan't!"

A friend sends us the following good joke about "cheap papers." He says:—Mr.—— subscribed for a mean trashy concern published on the other side, because he got it for a dollar a year, whith four chromos thrown in. The chromos were received and one copy of the paper, after which it stopped. Our friend concludes: "just fancy a man introducing into his family such trashy stuff because it is cheap, instead of subscribing for a good journal, which would be worth to him and his family the subscription price twice over! Why, sir, the only cheap thing in this business is the subscriber, and he feels decidedly so!"

JERRY O'CONNORS was to-day sentenced by the Police Magistrate to four months in the Central Prison for drunkenness.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Fresh to brisk winds, mostly easterly to southerly; warm cloudy weather, with rain.

FINE CALF.—J. & R. Millar have on exhibition in the market the finest calf seen there this season. It was bred and fed by James Wright, of Paisley Block, who sold it at a good figure to James Hays. Messrs. J. & R. Miller bought it from the latter.

LIEUT. G. B. HOOD and the other members of the Ontario and Wellington Field Batteries, who had been attending the Kingston School of Gunnery since Jan. have returned to the city, having finished a course of three months.

SENTENCED FOR LARCENY.—The Interim sessions opened on Friday before Judge Chadwick. David Stewart and John Cusack, two lads committed for trial by the Police Magistrate for the larcency of three whips and a quantity of harness oil, were arraigned. They pleaded guilty, and after being severely reprimanded by the Judge, were sentenced to one hour's imprisonment, the nominal term being given in consideration of their youth.

THE BYSTANDER.—The April number of this spirted monthly has been received. A better name for it would be Mr. Goldwin Smith's general review of current events, for the magazine bears interal evidence that it is entirely his production. In his free, off-hand and nervous style we have his views on all the questions of importance before the Dominion Parliament; Sir A. T. Galt's mission, the Rag Baby, etc., etc. The Ontario Legislature and its work come in for a share of attention; the situation in the United States is discussed, and the election in the Britain, the Remusat memoirs of the first Napoleon, Renan on Christianity and other matters receive their due share of attention. As a free and fearless commentary on public affairs, no better periodical could be found, and while the reader may dissent from the views and conclusions of the writer, he cannot but admire his vigorous and robust style, and fearless expression of opinion. The Bystander is for sale at the bookstores.

Marriage with a Deceased Wife's Sister.

The following is a Protest of the Metropolitan and the Bishops of Nova Scotia Ontario, Quebec, Niagara, Montreal, and Toronto, against the proposed change in the Marriage Laws of the Dominion.

To the Honorable Members of the House of Commons of the Dominion of Canada. now assembled at Ottawa, the petition of the Metropolitan and other Bishops of the Ecclesiastical Province of the Dominion of Canada

HUMBLY SHEWETH:

That your petitioners have heard with surprise and alarm that a Bill has been introduced into your Honorable House to legalize marriage with the sister of a deceased wife, and also to legalize the marriage of a woman with the brother of her deceased husband.

Your petitioners submit, that many serious evils would arise from thus tampering with the fundamental law of marriage, which has declared that the two become by marriage one flesh, and the immemorial custom founded upon this law, that prohibited degrees of affinity and consanguinity should be identical.

Your petitioners further submit that there is no more fruitful source of corruption of morals in a State than laxity on the subject of marriage; and they have great reason to fear that if the proposed Bill should pass into an Act, other cases of unlawful union will speedily arise, which it will be difficult if not impossible to reject; and that general immorality will be promoted. For these and other grave reasons which your petitioners forbear to urge, your petitioners earnestly pray your Honorable House not to consent that the proposed Bill should become law, and your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

John Fredericton, Metropolitan of Canada; H. Nova Scotia, J. T. Ontario, J. W. Quebec, T. B. Niagara, W. B. Montreal, A. Toronto.

BAPTIST COLLEGE.—We learn from the Baptist that the negotiations for the purchase of a site for the new Theological Hall, to be erected by the munificence of Hon. Wm. McMaster, for the training of the ministry for the Baptists of Canada in Toronto, are completed by the payment of $10,000, the price of the land. The University authorities made an exception in this case and assented to a sale, instead of a lease by reason of the fact that the lot was to be occupied by a Divinity School which would avail itself of certain classes in the University, in much the same way as Knox College does. The site is on the Bloor street front of the University grounds, in Toronto, and less than ten minutes walk from the University door, and very near the new Parliament Buildings. The lot is 250x250 feet. It is the crown of a beautiful knoll covered with a grove of magnificent pine trees, most of which can remain. The building will be commenced the present season, and it is hoped that it will be under roof before next winter. The gift of such a site and building by one man is an era in the history of the denomination.

London Spectator:—"All Europe follows German example, and arms and watches and waits, until unable to move, or to rest, or to sleep for its own armor, it feels like the sentry who, as the night draws on, would almost welcome a shot as a relief from the monotony of his watch. It is the end of the nineteenth century, and the half of State resources and a tenth of the working time of all nations are devoted to the keeping of armor ready for the battles which may come."

There is no truth whatever in the report that Donnelly's buggy was maliciously smashed to pieces at Mrs. Kennedy's wake in Biddulph. It turns out that it was purely an invention of Bill Donnelly's, for the purpose, no doubt, of getting sympathy.

On Friday morning the remains of a man horribly mutilated, were found on the track about one mile west of the Beamsville station. From papers found in pieces of his clothing his name is supposed to be William Rennicks, stone cutter.

It is reported that the Hudon cotton mill, Montreal, is shortly to enlarge its working capacity and staff operatives, by building a new wing, adding 250 new looms, an extra engine of great power, and 200 more hands. They are to restrict themselves to the manufacturing of plain cotton.

"Well, I was trying to find a paper." "A paper? Oh! I don't take in any papers. Mrs. Disraeli, I believe, takes The Court Journal. But do you want to see anything in particular?" "Yes, I rather wished to——." Well, there's my butler takes in The Daily Telegram; he's a tremendous Radical, and I daresay he like's to see his master thoroughly well abused?"

A ROW AT AN INQUEST.—Dr. McKay, of Ingersoll, was lately called to attend a child of John Mackenzie, at Putnamville, and performed the operation of tracheotomy for croup. The child died and was buried, when Drs. Bowers, Ingersoll, and Murray, of Thorndale, insisted upon the holding of an inquest, suggesting foul play, and they got Constable Carroll of that town to lay an information before Murray, who is a Middlesex coroner, and who at once ordered an inquest. The jury assembled, when an application was made that Dr. McKay should be present at the post mortem. This was refused by the coroner but sustained by the jury, and a serious embroglio ensued. The crowd refused to let the body be exhumed. The constable threatened to arrest the parties, but the crowd raised the cry of "tar and feathers," and the coroner was hissed. Dr. McKay tried to explain matters, alleging that the affair had been trumped up.

Senior Girls School.

Presentation to Miss Walker.

A very pleasant occurrence took place at the Senior Girl's School on Friday afternoon at the close of the school. It being the closing day of Miss Walker's duties as teacher, the pupils embraced the opportunity of presenting her with a handsome silver fruit dish, bouquet of beautiful flowers and address, as a mark of the appreciation in which they held her as a teacher, and the love and esteem they entertain for her personally. There were a number of visitors present to witness the presentation, including some who have passed under Miss Walker's training to the High school, and others who received their education under her, and have at various periods left the school.

Mr. Tytler, Principal, Rev. Mr. Torrance, Inspector, Mr. George Murton, Chairman of the Board, and all the teachers in the different schools were also present. Miss Gertrude Dietz, read the address, and Miss Lillie Thompson made the presentation. The address is as follows:—

DEAR MISS WALKER.—In common with all who take an interest in the success and progress of our schools, we have learned with deep regret that you are about to leave the position which you have so ably and successfully filled for the past seven years. We know, to some extent at least, how faithfully and zealously you have labored for our improvement, and how entirely you have been devoted to your arduous duties. We are deeply sensible that we have not availed ourselves as we might, of our opportunities, and that, while you were anxiously endeavoring to promote our rapid and steady progress, we have too often failed to do our part in the work of the school. But now that you are about to leave us, we trust you will endeavor to overlook and forget our deficiencies, and keep in your memory only the recollection of what has been pleasant in your walk among us.

The thought of your evident anxiety and earnest efforts for our advancement in learning, and your constant watchfulness over every department of our school life, will stimulate us to renewed exertions in the future, and after we have left school, will, we are sure, be gratefully remembered through all our lives.

Though you are henceforth no longer a teacher in the Guelph schools, we trust you will continue to take an interest in their success, and that your thoughts will often turn back with pleasure to the days spent here.

We hope that your future life may be a happy one, and we assure you, that, wherever you may be, we will continue to regard you, as we do now, with affection and esteem.

We would ask you to accept this fruit dish as a slight token of our regard, and a proof that we are not ungraetful for the continued zeal and earnestness with which you have labored for our welfare.

Signed on behalf of the school by

GERTRUDE DIETZ,
LILLIE THOMPSON,
BERTHA HATCH,
AGNES WILLIAMSON,
TOTTIE FOSTER.

Guelph, April 2nd, 1880.

Mr. Tytler replied briefly and feelingly for Miss Walker, and after the formal proceedings, and when Miss Walker was alone with her pupils, she thanked them for their handsome present, and wished them every happiness and success in life.

The present was purchased from Mr. D. Savage, and a suitable inscription has been engraved on it.

Miss Walker has also been the recipient of many gifts by individual pupils, who wished by these to show their respect and esteem for her, and who in common with the parents and the ratepayers generally, regret her retirement from the position she has so long held with credit to herself and advantage to the city.

OUTRAGE AND MURDER.—A terrible affair is telegraphed from Bulstrode, a village about eleven miles from Athabaska, on the Grand Trunk Railway. It appears that on Tuesday morning a young girl named Odelite Desilets left her father's house to go to the residence of a neighbour named Lachance, about forty acres distant from her own house. Next day her body was found in a well, head downwards, and upon examination it proved that she had been the victim of a horrible outrage before her murder. Her face was covered with blood, and bore marks of many gaping wounds, while her hands were cut, and upon the neck and chin were also several knife wounds. Her disordered dress also gave evidence of a desperate resistance, and altogether the spectacle was a harrowing one to look upon. The news spread through the village with the rapidity of wild-fire, and every one was on the alert to discover the murderer. Notwithstanding their vigilance no trace has been found.

SATURDAY EV'NG, APRIL 3, 1880

The Liberals Triumphant in Britain.

The Beaconsfield Government Doomed.

The third day's election returns have largely added to the Liberal gains. On Friday they carried 61 constituencies, out of a total of 88 in which elections took place, the Conservatives being only successful in 22, and the Home Rulers in 5. The numbers now stand, 207 Liberals, 124 Conservatives, and 18 Home Rulers. The total number of Liberal votes polled up to Friday evening was 720,000, and the Conservative votes 521,000, showing an increase in the Liberal vote over the last election of 154,000, and the Conservative vote of 55,000.

The result is a surprise to many, but it shows the deep seated feeling of hostility to the policy of the Beaconsfield Government, and it also serves to show how uncertain the verdict of the people is under the ballot, and how changeable public feeling is. We glean the following items of interest from the despatches: For Southwark, Mr. Copen, Liberal, and Prof. Rogers, an extreme Liberal, has been elected to Parliament, receiving 9,696 and 9,621 votes respectively, against 7,163 and 7,674 for the Conservative candidates. This gives Southwark a Liberal gain of two. For Chelsea, Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke, proprietor of the Atheneaum, Radical, has been elected, receiving 12,406 votes, and Mr. Firth, Liberal, has been elected, receiving 12,146 votes, a Liberal gain, the Conservatives receiving 9,666 and and 9,488 votes respectively. The Liberals were successful in Finsbury, returning Mr. McCulloch Torrens and Alderman Lusk, who were both members of the late Parliament. In the Tower Hamlets, with its forty-one thousand voters, the election has resulted in neither gain or loss to either party. Dr. Kenealy has been defeated at Stockupon-Trent. Mr. J. Passmore Edwards, Liberal, proprietor of the London Echo, has been elected at Salisbury. Hon. James Lowther, Chief Secretary for Ireland, Conservative, has been returned from York. Mr. Bradlaugh and Mr. Labouchere, Radicals, have been elected for Northampton. At Clonmel Mr. A. Moore, Home Ruler, has been returned, and at New Ross, Mr. R. B. O'Brien. Home Ruler, has been returned, while at Ennis Mr. L. J. Finnegan, Home Ruler, has also been successful. Mr. Justin McCarehy, Home Ruler, the well-known author, has been re-elected to Parliament for Longford county without opposition. A Liberal has been elected in Dundalk in place of Mr. Callan, Home Ruler, the former member, who was rejected.

The Times says it will be for Lord Beaconsfield to advise the Queen who is to be official chief Parliamentary leader of the Liberals. It Lord Granville, who has every claim on the ground of past services, rank and ability, become Premier, Lord Hartington will hold an important position in the Cabinet and lead his party in the Commons. The Manchester Guardian says: A strange idea prevails that the Queen will send for Lord Hartington instead of Lord Granville. It is certain she will not summon Mr. Gladstone. A Ministry formed by Lord Granville would certainly include Mr. Gladstone, but Lord Hartington, not Mr. Gladstone, would lead the House of Commons. If the Liberal majority should fall below twelve or fifteen, the next Parliament will probably be short-lived. Lord Hartington, the Liberal leader, in a speech, in Lancashire, said if the Liberal Cabinet is to be formed at once, the question of Premiership should be decided by the party and the wishes of the Queen.

The stock market in London was affected by the elections, and several stocks, especially water companies' stocks, fell heavily. From abroad the despatches from Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Rome represent that disappointment and uneasiness are felt at the success of the Liberal party. At St. Petersburg the news was received with the utmost delight. At Berlin and Vienna it is considered that England will be isolated if Mr. Gladstone becomes chief of the Cabinet.

The relative party strength at the beginning of the session of the last Parliament was distributed as follows:—Out of a total membership of 650, Conservatives 345, Liberals 305. The total number returned up to the close of the polls on Friday is 328, leaving 327 yet to be elected. Thus far the Liberal majority is 85. A bare majority of the House is 326. It follows that out of the 327 members remaining to be elected, the Liberals must return 122 in order to obtain a majority of one. At the rate of their present gains they will come to the House with an exceptional majority of more than 150, but it is not to be anticipated that success will carry them so far. In the above gross estimate the Home Rulers are included under the head of Liberals, and on a division of the House it by no means follows that the two elements will invariably hold together on a Government measure.

It is said that the triumph of the Liberal party in England has plunged the Tory Cabinet in Ottawa into impenetrable gloom. Is it because of the forecast that awaits them sooner or later.

Dr. Clarke's new brewery at Palmerston is said to be the best establishment of its kind in that part of Ontario.

Mr. Blake's position with reference to the construction of the British Columbia section of the Pacific Railway is that the Dominion as a whole cannot be expected to bankrupt itself for the benefit of British Columbia in particular.

It is said that Hon. Mr. Pope is trying to discover exactly the injury done to Canada by his advertisements and recommendations of lands in Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska, all paid for at the public expense. He calculated easily enough the cost of the printing and distribution of the notorious pamphlets. But he cannot ascertain whether one thousand or ten thousand settlers who would have come to Canada were sent by him to the American Union.

The question why so many people are leaving the Ottawa region for the United States has been partly explained by the fact that the Immigration Pamphlets issued by the Minister of Agriculture, and which contained advertisements puffing up the Western States, were largely distributed in that quarter. And yet the Government organs wish us to believe that these pamphlets had only a local circulation, while the truth is that stacks of them were distributed.

The Government Banking Bill is being recast. The features of it are substantially as telegraphed, with the exception that the question of inspection has not yet been settled. The banks do not want any scheme of inspection, but the Government has not yet yielded this point. The charters will be issued or ten years, and will only apply to banks in existence, and any new banks will be subject to a law something like the National Banking law of the United States.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 2.

Mr. Wallace (Norfolk) introduced a Bill providing for the equitable distribution of the estates of defaulting debtors.

On the order of going into Committee of Supply being called,

Mr. Rykert expressed a desire to defend himself from the charge made in a previous debate by Mr. Ross (Middlesex) of having been guilty of political immorality while a member of the Local Legislature, and of receiving money from private individuals for Parliamentary services. These charges were read from the journals of the Ontario Legislature by Mr. Ross, and appeared in the Hansard report. In order to neutralize the effect of the statement there made, Mr. Rykert favoured the House with his version of the affair.

Mr. Ross (Middlesex), in a brief speech, pointed out that the minority report signed by Messrs. M. C. Cameron and Meredith in the journals of the Ontario Legislature was based on the assumption that Mr. Rykert did receive the money. He was proceeding to say it might be shown that the member for Lincoln had been engaged in other questionable transactions if the records of the law courts of Ontario were searched, when Sir John A. Macdonald rose, feignedly towering with rage, and began to assail Mr. Ross. He accused him of being out of order, and hinted that he was only allowed to speak by the courtesy of the House.

Mr. Mackenzie here rose to a point of order. The Ministerialists began to show a noisy disposition. Sir John Macdonald losing his temper refused to give way at first, but subsequently cowed by the determination manifested by the member for Lambton. Mr. Mackenzie said that as it was the motion for going into Supply Mr. Ross had a perfect right to speak. Sir John refused to verbally admit his error, but by cutting his remarks short virtually did so. Mr. Ross then concluded his remarks. After a few remarks in behalf of Mr. Rykert by Mr. Boultbee, the House went into Committee of Supply.

In Supply, several hours were occupied in the consideration of the following items:—$40,935 on account of Administration of Justice; $13,000 for Dominion Police; $313,711 for Penitentiaries. On the item of $288,963 under head of Legislation, an amusing debate occurred, during which the Speaker of the House admitted that last year his political friends over-powered him in demands for positions for their friends on the sessional staff, and expressed thanks to Mr. Charton because he made a motion asking for the return showing the names of all employees, and consequently a reduction in the staff was effected. In order to elicit these admissions Mr. Blake put a number of queries but to the astonishment of the House Mr. Hesson, a young member, had the impertinence (for such it was) to inform the member for West Durham that he was occupying too much time in speaking. Mr. Blake, in the course of succeeding remarks, made a covert allusion to the result of the English elections as indicating what might be expected in Canada—an allusion which elicited cheers from the Opposition. After passing the item, the Committee reported progress, and the House adjourned.

Loan Companies and Dr. Orton.

(From the Hamilton Times.)

The time of the House of Commons was largely taken up on Wednesday by a discussion on the measure introduced by the quack of Centre Wellington for the purpose of regulating the affairs of loan companies. Though he was opposed by the Government—or, more strictly speaking, by the two or three Ministers who were not junketting about town—he carried his Bill through a second reading and had it sent to the committee which deals with such matters. An undeserved importance is lent to the measure by the fact that, in spite of the attitude taken by Sir Charles Tupper, an Act which is admitted to be vicious by many of those who voted for it, has been forced through a House more than two-thirds full. There is no doubt that a feeling, whether justified or not, is abroad that some of the more greedy companies exact from borrowers exorbitant rates of interest which are adroitly concealed in the method devised by which the annual or other payments are made. But, as Mr. Blake ointed out, the evil, if it exists, will bring about its own cure. Money is plentiful, and competition is keen. Those companies, no doubt, which deal fairly and liberally by borrowers, and there are such, will make these inducements known, and the result will be that the more grasping and existing ones will go to the wall for want of business. That competition is keen is proved by a statement made by Mr. Blake, who said that some of the companies employ agents to search the registry offices to find good properties upon which comparatively small loans have been secured by mortgage, the object being to find the owner and, by loaning him a larger sum, induce him to pay off the mortgage and give one to the company which has been interesting itself in his affairs. Mr. Blake opposed Dr. Orton's Bill as he believes that whatever danger there has been has nearly passed away. Nevertheless he threw out a suggestion as to the rate of interest charged on loans which may yet be incorporated in the measure if it goes to a third reading, which we much doubt. It has so many faults and so few commendable features that unless it is cut to pieces and altered into a very different shape it will not command the sympathy of the majority of the members in a fuller House. The result of the division, however, is but another slap in the face of the Government given by the Tory back benches. Dr. Orton has been one of its strongest supporters, having been the inventor of protection to agricultural interests, yet he is able to defeat it with ease with what it admitted to be a vicious bill. In short, as the session wears along one is continually being reminded that the Government is like the lazy dog which allows his tail to wag him at will.

The Working Classes in England.—Much has lately been said about the distressed state of the English working classes, which is hardly borne out by actual statistics. In reality, despite the occasional pressure of severe privation, their condition has been steadily improving ever since the cotton famine of 1862. The statistics of the small savings banks, always a sure criterion of the state of English labor, tell their own story. The number of depositors in 1863 was 3,080,402, and the total of their deposits £29,187,401, an average of less than £9 ($45 per man.) By 1873, the former figure had risen to 4,002,567, and the latter to £68,471,412, or nearly £16 per man; while the statistics of the past twelvemonth, notwithstanding the marked depression of trade, show a considerable advance in both. The "Friendly Societies," too, which have an aggregate of 1,787,291 members, and a total capital of £8,630,525, are largely recruited from the working classes. Even the agricultural laborers, the worst paid of all—field wages in Wiltshire, Dorsetshire, etc., being only 25 cents a day—have formed an association of their own, on the model of the trades unions, and this movement, although but partially successful as yet, is not without significance.

Testing a New Brake.—An exhibition of a new patent car brake, the invention of Dr. Smith, of Stratford, took place on Thursday at Toronto, on the passenger train going north on the Northern Railway. The different railways terminating in that city were represented. The railway gentlemen present watched with interest the admirable working of the brakes, and the ease with which they were applied and the quick manner in which they were thrown off. A trial of the brake was made on the Richmond Hill grade, which is the steepest on the road, running forty miles an hour, making a full stop in forty seconds. This brake is well adapted for freight as well as passenger cars. The cost for each freight car will be from five to six dollars, and when used will save the necessity of brakemen going on top of the cars when running. The principle of the brake consists of being worked by a continuous wire rope from the tender of the engine to the rear of the train, the connection between each car being made by a clip similar to a bell cord coupling. The power is applied by hand or steam by the rope passing through the levers under the centre of the cars.

The Credit Valley Railway and its Creditors.

A commercial traveller writing to the London Advertiser, charges this Company with scurvy treatment of their creditors all along the line. We believe his statements are quite correct, and that the parties suffering feel very keenly the injustice done them. He says:—

It got the largest bonuses of any line of its length ever built in Canada, and nearly half a million dollars of Government subsidy, but where all the money has disappeared to is what puzzles hundreds of people between Toronto and Ingersoll, who have been waiting impatiently for the past three years, and some of them even longer, to get their share of it. Some say the directors have deposited it in the banks, and draw the interest for their own special benefit. Others say it is invested in mortgages for the same charitable purpose. At all events it is notorious that they have never paid out any money for anything if they could possibly help it, and the injury they have done to many innocent people all along the route is simply irreparable. The road is certainly well named, for they seem to have done everything on credit. And the way they gulled many of the farmers would put the cleverest patent right man to shame. They have paid scarcely anything for the right of way yet in the majority of cases, this is the modus operandi of that part of the business. The writings were drawn up and signed by the farmers, and often only one dollar was handed him to bind the bargain; and as soon as this was done the navvies pulled down the fences, tore up the fields, and destroyed his crops, and he could whistle for the rest of his money till they choose, if ever, to pay him. If he went to Toronto to the head office for it, he was politely informed that Mr. Laidlaw had just gone out of the city, and would not be back for a few days.

I could enumerate scores of cases where farmers and others have been almost ruined by this road, but one will suffice this time. About three years ago a farmer near Ayr furnished them with supplies to the extent of several hundred dollars, and expecting to be promptly paid for it he built a new barn. But he was destined to be severely disappointed, and he had actually—rather than mortgage it—to rent his farm for half what it was worth so as to get the money in advance to pay for the building of his barn, nor has he received a red cent from Laidlaw & Co. to this day.

The road has been opened now for several months, but it has been no accommodation to shippers yet for the want of rolling stock. A man can send a box of eggs or a tub of butter over it—simply that, and nothing more. But there is any amount of timber, lumber and produce waiting for cars to carry it to the city, and at the lowest estimate the road is losing $500 a day in this way, and the loss to shippers is incalculable. But the funniest thing about the few cars that run now—and tell it not in Gath—is that every car is marked in large letters on both sides, "The property of ——, Toronto," so that the creditors of the road can't touch them!

I believe in having as many railways as we need to do the carrying trade of the country, but very few places are benefitted by the C. V. R. Railway competition seldom makes much difference in fares or freights, except at a few principal points, and it is only when water communication comes in contact with them that lower rates are obtainable. But special advantages were claimed for the C. V. R. It was to be a shorter route from the central counties of Western Ontario to Toronto than the Great Western, but if Woodstock is taken as a focus the distance on the C. V. R. to Toronto is 85 2-5 miles and on the G. W. R. 86¾ miles. Only a little over one mile longer, and this is all the people of Oxford get for a stack of debentures.

We also find from a letter written by a section man in Galt, and published in the Irish Canadian, that the Company has pursued the same system with the section and gravel train men. He says:—Of this class there are upwards of about one hundred men on the main line from Toronto to Ingersoll—the present terminus of the road—who are employed at one dollar per day, and are supposed to be paid on the works on or about the 15th of every month—the Company by this rule keeping fifteen days' back pay. But the truth is, we have received little or no money since October, 1879—the last time we had the honor, or rather the good fortune of being visited by that most important functionary the Paymaster. As a consequence, the poor man with a family, having no money, is obliged to appeal to the better generosity of the proprietor of the nearest produce store, who gives him food upon his own responsibility. The single man, owing four on five months' board, fares no better. While paying the highest possible price for his living—because he, too, gets it upon credit, and has no money to pay for what he has got—he is compelled to sit down to a starvation meal—a mere hand out reluctantly set before him by the landlady.

The Best Way to Fatten Cattle.

One of the best papers submitted at the recent convention of the Farmers' Institute, Mason, Mich., was given by Mr. Shearer, a noted feeder and breeder of Lansing township. The first principle was to get good feeders. Straw-stockers two or three years old would not pay. Scrubs would beat you every time. Cattle dealers and butchers are not liable to be deceived—they know the difference between natives and well-bred steers. We have often bought steers on which there was a total loss. Good feeders are so scarce that myself and Mr. Baker are obliged to breed our own. We adopt the plan of having them ready for the shambles at from 16 to 20 months old. We find no difficulty in making them weigh from 1,000 to 1,200, and done better. This, recollect, is the result of the first cross of a full blood shorthorn bull upon the common stock of Michigan. From higher grades we get even better results. He advised farmers to get rid of their straw-stockers first. Texas and Colorado beef beat them every time. Take the good calf, shelter from cold storms and hot suns. Skimmed milk will do at first, adding a little bran shorts or oil meal. You will scarcely fail at six months old to bring the calf up to 600 or 700 pounds. Then commence the winter's care. Provide a good warm dry shed or stable, properly littered. Feed what good hay they will eat; also, four quarts of cornmeal and oats, ground together; if bran is fed instead of oats, feed enough to make it equal to the oats. At twelve months they will weigh from 800 to 900 pounds. They will do well in a good pasture until August or September when feeding should be commenced moderately and increased, and by the time cool weather sets in they will be in a good condition to digest food and lay on fat all over. They should be in yards or stables by themselves. To feed, tie them in the stable and feed each animal the amount he is capable of digesting, and no more. Provide a convenient watering place near at hand. Make them as comfortable as possible, bearing in mind that the last 100 pounds is that part that increases the price nearly, if not quite one half. In 1878 we sold four steers on the 21st of December, fed as above. They weighed 1,225, 1,200, 1,100, and 1,160 lbs., and were 627, 606, 582 and 614 days old.

The N. Y. Sun estimates that the recent strikes in the piano trade cost the workmen $100,000 in wages, and the manufacturers $80,000 of loss.

CHAPTER XXXV.

SALE BY AUCTION—ANTHONY LANGTON DOES NOT PROVE THE HIGHEST BIDDER—JACK BORLAND MAKES HIS FIRST REVELATION.

Vain also would it be to attempt to describe the chagrin, the mortification, and rage of the baffled plotters, Anthony and Reuben Langton, to whose ears the shouts and huzzahs were maddening. Their discomfiture was all the greater and more galling because of the public manner in which it had been inflicted. Never was triumph more complete than that of Mr. Bishop, and never did any man more thoroughly enjoy it. He had no pity for the disappointed schemers, for they deserved none, and he had not forgot the humiliations he had endured at their hands. As Shylock received no commiseration, when he was baulked of his revenge, so Anthony Langton was assailed only with jeers and taunts when the overthrow of his selfish and treacherous scheme was effected. As for Reuben, his face was distorted by passion, and his heart quailed under its guilty fears. The knowledge that Orwell Bruce still lived, and might soon call him to account for his many treacheries, filled his dark soul with well-grounded apprehensions. For the outrage offered to Agnes Borland he knew Orwell would demand a heavy reckoning, though he had already been pretty well punished for that by broken limbs, weeks of suffering, and a lameness which was like to stick to him for his life. On him also no pity need be wasted, for the faintest dawning of repentance had not visited his soul.

When the room was cleared, Anthony Langton stretched his lean body over the table and viciously demanded from Mr. Bishop his money—thirty-six thousand pounds.

"With pleasure, Mr. Langton," was the factor's bland rejoinder. "Here is the draft you have twice refused. You will accept it now, I presume?"

The old man stretched out his withered hand to clutch it, but the lawyer quickly drew it beyond his reach.

"Only in return for the dischargod bond," he said.

"I havn't the deed here; I will send it to you."

"That won't do; I must have it in my hand ere I part with this draft."

"Then curse you! come to Cairnbank to-night and you shall get it."

"No; I had the trouble of going to Cairnbank on this errand already. You must come to me now. My office hours are from ten to four."

Saying which he, with another aggravating smile, lifted the draft and placed it in his pocket-book.

"You infamous ruffian!" hissed Reuben, clenching his hand in the factor's face.

"Hard words break no bones, though you know from experience what does," retorted Bishop. "I would advise you, however, not to make further demonstration with your fist, unless you wish to be committed for a breach of the peace. And instead of applying this epithet to me, you ought to be greatful for my forbearance. Had I proclaimed in this room your treachery to Orweil Bruce, these honest men would quickly have proved his rough avengers. Be thankful that I spared you this, and quit the town as quickly as you can."

"Would you incite the mob against us?" said both in a breath.

"God forbid, but enough is now known to raise popular indignation. The crowd I see is gathering fast. If you wait much longer you may have cause to regret it."

This was a hint they did not think proper to neglect. Looking from the window into the square they resolved to depart at once. It was no more than time, for a loud groan greeted their appearance at the inner door, and they drove off amid the hootings and yellings of the multitude. A stone or two were also thrown after them—sufficient indication of what might have been their fate had their departure been delayed.

Meanwhile every one was inquiring for the stranger from America who had proved the beneficent hero of the day. But Jack, fearing and dreading anything like a public demonstration in his favour, had made his escape from the inn by a back entrance, and gaining a lane at the bottom of the garden had been able to leave the town almost without observation. The time had now come when he was at liberty to make himself known to Miss Elliot and the inmates of the cottage, and in view of this thrilling experience his heart beat fast and strong with tumultuous emotion.

By dint of smart walking he entered the confines of the moor a little before the hour appointed, and saw in the distance the form of Miss Elliot on the narrow intersecting path which led between the shore and the Grange gate. At sight of her Jack's heart throbbed still more violently with the warm tender feelings which he had sealed up there long ago without the hope that they would ever be released. During the past week his early passion had revived with intense force, for now it was accompanied by the hope that the object of his first and only love might possibly be won. To his maturer mind the Miss Elliot of the present was as charming and attractive as the Miss Armstrong of the past. The intervening years had developed the qualities which had captivated his fancy, while her ministry of kindness and devotion at the Grange, which he had heard spoken of first by Orwell and of late by Mrs. Borland and Agnes, proved to him how noble and true she was, making her therefore more dear and precious to his heart, and causing that heart to yearn towards her with trembling aspiration.

While yet a considerable distance off he waved his hand to her with animation, a signal to which she frankly responded, and when he came nearer still, she smilingly advanced to meet him.

"I hope I have not kept you waiting," he said as they grasped each other's hands with a warmth of pressure which testified their mutual pleasure at the meeting.

"I have been waiting for some time," she answered, "but you are not to blame for that, seeing that I came to the trysting place before the appointed hour. I suppose you will take this as a proof of my eagerness to understand your mystery, and charge me with possessing a full share of that feminine curiosity which I half disclaimed at our former meeting."

"I am vain enough," responded Jack with an ardent gaze, "to attribute it to a kindly remembrance of our former acquaintance. I should have been much mortified and greatly disappointed had you cherished no recollection of the uncultivated youth whom you met as the companion of Paul Jones."

"Ah, that would only have shown my own heartlessness and ingratitude, and if I have any knowledge of myself, I do not think these defects are in my nature."

"I am very sure neither these nor any other defects are in your nature," said Jack with a bright smile and a beaming look.

"Oh, dear me, she laughed. "You must not think me perfection. I have many faults I assure you."

Jack smiled again, and shook his head incredulously.

"Oh, but you must believe it, for it is true."

"We will not argue the question at present," he playfully rejoined. "This is my hour for confession, not yours. I have come direct from Cairntree from attending the sale."

"I thought you would be there," she cried, "and I am so anxious to know the result. But I need not ask. Of course Mr. Langton, of Cairnbank, is now the owner of the Grange."

"Indeed he is not."

"No!" she exclaimed in eager astonishment. "Who bid against him?"

"I did."

"You," gasped Miss Elliot, stricken with amazement and unable to utter another word.

"That must appear to you very extraordinary—perhaps incredible. The idea of a fellow like me bidding for a large estate is too preposterous, is it not?"

"Oh—I—I did not mean that," said Miss Elliot in confusion. "Only such an idea never occurred to me; but I am glad—oh, so glad—that you have got it, and not Mr. Langton."

"Well, that sentence at least is very flattering; but I must not allow you to remain under a false impression. I have not bought the Grange. My bidding at the sale was on behalf of another."

"Of—another!" she ejaculated.

"Ay—of one with whose ownership you will be a thousand times more satisfied than with mine."

"Who can that possibly be?" she exclaimed with increasing amazement.

"Before I utter his name it is necessary that I should refer to a much more humble individual—myself. I must tell you who I am."

"Suppose I have guessed that already," she blushingly returned.

"Nay, that is impossible," he said, with an assumed smile.

"Will you put me to the test?"

"Readily. Now, Miss Elliot, who am I?"

"You are—Jack Borland."

Jack recoiled a step, his eyes opening wide, his face expressing the utmost consternation.

"Ah!—I see I am right; I was sure I had guessed truly."

"Good heavens! Miss Elliott, how did this supposition strike you?" he faltered in the extremity of bewilderment. "It must have been suggested to you. Therefore I am in danger."

"Nay, do not be alarmed because I have guessed it. The suggestion did not come from any one who suspects the truth. I evolved it from my inner consciousness, as the philosophers say."

"How could you possibly do that?"

"By the exercise of a little reflective and connecting power. It was yourself who first put me on the track of discovery. When you admitted that you belonged to this place, and had not seen it for nearly twenty years, I know that you must have newly left at the time I found you in the ship with Paul Jones. Then I remembered hearing that Paul Jones had been in the Solway immediately before, and I had often heard Agnes speak at her uncle Jack, who was supposed to have been drowned in the Solway on the very night when Paul's ship was first seen there. Next it flashed on me that your last name—which I heard once or twice when on board—was Borland, and if further confirmation of my suspicions was required it was supplied by what I had heard Mrs. Borland say about her lodger—that he had a wonderful resemblance to her husband. Putting these things together I came to the conclusion that Uncle Jack had not perished in the Solway, but had been picked up by Paul Jones, whom he had known when a boy, that it was Uncle Jack I had met in the ship, and that it was Uncle Jack himself who was at the cottage incognito. There, the explanation is, you see, very simple, though it would have appeared wonderful had I made a mystery of it."

"Miss Elliot, you are a close and cogent reasoner," responded Jack, admiringly. "You have anticipated my first revelation. I am that scapegrace and ne'er-do-weel, Jack Borland, who had to leave home to escape a charge of murder."

"But of which you were innocent," said the other hastily.

"So I now understand; though until a very short time ago I was not aware of the important fact. That I was innocent of intentional murder I knew, and God knew all along; but I did not doubt that I had accidentally killed the Revenue man, and knew that the law would make no distinction. It was merited punishment, Miss Elliott, for the wildness and folly of my youth, for which I have repented with many tears over poor Adam's grave."

"He knew and believed in your innocence."

"Yes; and I have thanked God for it. The sorrow I gave him has been the bitterest drop in my cup of exile. Yet, Miss Elliot, it is wonderful to think how God has made that folly of mine the means of blessing to myself and others. But for my going to America and achieving wonderful success there, the Grange would this day have fallen into the hands of Anthony Langton—a great calamity, you will say; yet not the worst that would have happened but for this same wild escapade of my youth. I am coming now to a revelation which you have not anticipated—a revelation which, necessarily made in the saleroom, has already filled Cairntree with wild excitement, and is being now spread like wildfire through the county. I have come hither without loss of time lest the news should precede me—should reach the cottage before me. I fervently hope for the sake of Agnes that this is not so."

"Oh, Jack—Mr. Wilson I mean——"

"No—not Mr. Wilson from you—call me Jack, I beseech you, nothing but Jack."

"Your words bewilder me," she cried with growing excitement. "What can this mean? What is the intelligence which is spreading so quickly and producing such sensation."

"I told you I was acting at the sale on behalf of another."

"Yes—who—who?"

"Miss Elliott, your perception is quick and keen. You have begun to guess, to suspect."

"No no—I dare not—it is too transporting. Oh heavenly mercy, what do I read in your face? Encouragement to my hope, Mr. Wilson, Jack—Jack, is it true? You smile, your beaming eyes declare it—Orwell is alive."

"And the owner of the Grange still," cried Jack, sharing sympathetically in her strong excitement.

She clasped her hands, uttered a cry gasped violently for breath, and burst into tears.

"Miss Elliot—dear Miss Elliot," exclaimed Jack, greatly alarmed, "I am so sorry to have caused this. Pray be composed, be calm."

Impelled by his own feelings he stretched out his arms, and she unresistingly sunk into them, laying her head on his shoulder and sobbing with hysteric vehemence, while Jack's whole being thrilled and tingled. Losing all sense of self-control he pressed her closely to his bosom, and laid his burning cheek against her hair.

"Oh, the joy—the joy," she murmured. "It is so great it has overcome me. Orwell alive! Say it again. Oh, I shall think it a dream if you do not."

"It is true. He is safe and well in America."

"Why has he not written? Why has he kept us in ignorance so long?"

"That was due to his feelings of remorse and shame. He learned of his sister's death a day or two after he was ruined in the Paris gambling house, and the tidings distracted him. For days he was prostrate and delirious. He was then in the lodgings of Paul Jones."

"With Paul Jones!" cried Miss Elliot, looking up in wonder.

"Povidence brought Paul acquainted with Orwell's ruin, and the treachery by which it was accomplished. I will give you all the details when time serves. Suffice it to say that Paul found Orwell in the first hour of his distraction—when I verily believe he would have committed suicide, took him to his lodgings, and gave him advice and hope. Poor Paul was then himself very ill. He lived only a few weeks, ministered to by Orwell."

"Ah, then it was Orwell of whom you spoke a week ago, when you told me of Paul's death?"

"Yes, he it was who soothed his last hours, and received his last breath. It was glorious service, and had a speedy reward. Paul charged him to come to America to me—not telling him who I was, but assuring him that in me he would find a friend and helper. He came, and told me all. Now, you have a general idea of the facts, and can guess the revelations that took place. I raised money at once to pay Langton's mortgage, and started for Scotland. I have much to tell about it all, but the first thing now is to break the truth to Agnes and her mother. How shall it be done, to give them the least shook?"

"Oh! the joy, the joy," again murmured Miss Elliot more calmly, but still under the influence of strong emotion. "If it has so overpowered me, what will its effect be on them—on both, especially on Agnes, to whom it will come as life from the dead? Oh, my darling, what rapture is coming to you in your sorrow. Your grief will end now; your happiness that you deemed gone for ever will return, never, I trust, to be again clouded. Come, Jack, you dear, good fellow, who has brought all this joy to us—come, and complete the work by revealing yourself at the cottage. Oh, this is no time for conventionalities I am behaving very improperly I know, but excitement like this defies the cold rules of propriety, and I know you will not be a severe judge o my conduct."

"Your conduct meets my unbounded admiration, Miss Elliot——"

"Nay, you must call me Lotty since I have called you Jack."

"Is Lotty your first name? A thousand thanks for telling me, and giving me permission to use it."

"Then you forgive me for the unbecoming conduct which I have been guilty?"

"I cannot allow you to call it such. To me it was delightful, natural, admirable; and, believe me, I think all the more of you for showing it."

"I am glad it has not shocked you. But I am calmer now, and must think of Agnes. Mrs. Borland will be greatly moved, but on Agnes the effect will be indescribable. Poor darling, I fear the shock of joy will be more than she can bear at first."

"That is what gives me excessive anxiety," returned Jack. "And I am going to ask you to go in alone and break the news. I could not do it. Now that the time has come I feel the thing as I never did before. Do this for all our sakes, dear Lottie, and when they know that I am Uncle Jack and that Orwell is alive and well, give me the signal, and I will appear."

To this proposal Miss Elliot readily agreed, and when they entered the park she went on before, Jack keeping out of sight by passing under the shadow of the wood, where he could approach the cottage without being perceived. Here he took up his position to await the moment when, the thrilling revelation made, he should take Jessie and Anges to his heart and let its long bent-up emotions flow freely forth.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.—Anthony Golding, a farmer living in the 8th concession of Tyendinaga, County of Hastings, has laid information against George Litten a neighbor, charging him with attempted murder. The complainant states that on Tuesday morning, when at work in the woods on his farm, a bullet whistled close by his head, striking a stump. He proceeded to where the smoke came from, and found Litten lying behind a stump. The latter rose and fired a shot from a revolver at Golding and struck him with his clubbed gun, breaking the stock. They closed, and Litten got the advantage, but a nine year old son of Golding turned the scale in favor of his father, who struck his antagonist, rendering him partially insensible, and took the gun and revolver and went home to get his wounds, which are quite serious, dressed. Litten has not yet been arrested.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

The last act in the Cool Burgess-Widgery shooting affray has occurred and will be a surprise to the admirers of the well-known negro minstrel. He has apologized to his wife for his unjust suspicion of her conduct and freely exonerates Widgery, and he with his wife has started a fruit store in New York, dropping the stage for the present. A suit in chancery for maintenance, fyled by his wife in Toronto will probably be allowed to drop as the children have left Toronto for New York to be cared for by the father.

SHAW & MURTON

WOOLENS.

SHAW & MURTON WOULD RESPECTFULLY announce that having placed their orders for imported and Canadian Woollens, for this Spring's trade, early last fall, they are enabled, notwithstanding the great rise that has taken place in all classes of goods during the last few months, to take orders for clothing at old prices.

SUITINGS.

They would most especially direct attention to their Worsted Coatings and Scotch Tweed Suitings, which this season excel both in quality and design. Also to a new style of English Hard Felt Hat, which is much finer in quality, and lighter in weight than has been manufactured in Britain heretofore.

FURNISHINGS.

In the Furnishing Department we have a new make of Spring Kid Gloves, equal in quality to the celebrated Dent's Gloves, and much cheaper. Also French Cambric Shirts—the nicest colors ever introduced. A general assortment of fine Furnishing Goods can always be obtained from,

Yours most respectfully,

SHAW & MURTON.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

From Ottawa.

The Ottawa Fire—Hon. T. N. Gibbs Called to the Senate.

OTTAWA, April 5.—Vigorous measures are being taken to discover the parties who set fire to the churches yesterday, but as yet no arrests have been made.

J. T. Duncan, demonstrator of anatomy, Ontario Veterinary College, has been awarded the prize for the best essay on pleuro pneumonia, and contagious diseases in cattle, given by the Minister of Agriculture.

Hon. T. N. Gibbs has been called to the Senate, vice Seymour deceased.

The Printing Committee met this a.m., and occupied the greater portion of its sitting in reading evidence. Mr. McLean, of McLean, Roger & Co., was called out, but his examination had not proceeded far when the committee adjourned.

The Arrest of Lewis.

Detective Murphy, who arrested Lewis, who it is supposed knows something of the Biddulph murders, was himself arrested by the American authorities at Port Huron, for attempted kidnapping, but quickly got off and brought his man along. Some startling developments are hourly expected from other parties concerned. Some kind of confession is looked for in an unexpected quarter. Every one is on the qui vive for it.

Another Fire in Thorold.

Narrow Escape of Three Children.

THOROLD, March 5.—Another fire occurred here about one o'clock this morning. As two men were returning from a wake they observed flames issuing from the roof of the dwelling of Mr. Carr, known as the Sligo house, on Front street. The men burst in the door and awoke the children just in time to save their lives. The parents were away from home at the time. There was nothing saved. Insurance not known. Fire supposed to have originated from the chimney.

Arrest Suspected Murderer.

LONDON, Ont., April 5.—A Frenchman named Edward Gallipo, has been arrested at the village of Dresden on suspicion of being the murderer of the Indian Ben, who was lately found in his shanty in the township of Dawn, stabbed to death in about twenty places, and covered over with leaves and earth. It is reported that he has confessed to the murder, but that he did it in self defence.

Attempted Suicid

TORONTO, April 5.—Charlea Anderson, a Swede, was brought before the Police Magistrate this morning, charged with having attempted to commit suicide. The prisoner was on his way to the northern pineries in company with a party of French Canadian raftsmen. When near Toronto the Frenchmen wishing to play a trick upon the Swede, produced a rope and said they were going to hang him. He became very much alarmed and drawing a knife attempted to cut his throat and inflicted a slight wound which is not considered dangerous. He was remanded.

A sailor is not a sailor when he is abroad; a sailor is not a sailor when he is ashore; but he must be either ashore or aboard: therefore, a sailor is not a sailor.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Fresh to brisk westerly to northerly winds; partly cloudy, slightly cooler weather.

THE ASSIZES.—By an error in Saturday's paper, it was said the Assizes opened to-morrow. They do not open till Tuesday of next week.

STALLION SOLD.—Mr. Hector McCaig, of Puslinch, has sold his stallion, Marquis of Lorne, to Mr. Chas. K. Pratt, of Lowel, Indiana. The price paid was good.

ONTARIO VETERINARY COLLEGE.—At the closing exercises in this institution at Toronto last week J. Donnelly, of Palmerston, and U. Springer of Waterloo, among other successful students, were awarded diplomas.

THE gentleman who took a new fur cap with otter band, peak and ears, from the Ont. Agricultural College on Tuesday, 30th ult., will oblige by calling at the College and exchanging said cap for his own, which he left in the lobby of the College class room. d1w1

NON-PAYMENT OF A FINE.—Matthew Sheady was arrested on Saturday evening for non-payment of $7:60, being the balance against him on an old commitment at the Police Court. This (Monday) morning his mother paid the amount, and the prisoner was released.

RUNAWAY.—The horses attached to the City Hotel omnibus, which had been left standing on Wyndham street, in front of Jackson & Hallett's store, this morning, ran away. They only proceeded as far as St. George's Square, when they were captured, having occasioned no damage. A passenger made a desperate attempt to reach the top of the 'bus from the inside through one of the windows, but did not succeed.

INTERIM SESSIONS.—The Court of Interim Sessions is being held to-day before Judge Chadwick. Up to three o'clock the Court was occupied hearing evidence in the case against Sam Soden for picking John Porter's pockets at the Albion Hotel, on the 16th March, and relieving him of a purse and $12. John Porter was examined, and while he was giving his evidence George Hood, of Guelph Township, who is a witness in the case, was instructed to leave the room. After doing so he returned and was committed to goal for a short time for contempt to Court. The case is still in progress as we go to press.

WELLINGTON BEEF AT OTTAWA.—In its notice of the Easter meat market at Ottawa, the Citizen after speaking in the very highest terms of the display made by Satchell Bros., thus refers to the calf bought by George Hood for that firm from Messrs. J. & R. Millar, and of the heifer bred by Henlock Young:—"Among the prominent features of the display is a two-months old calf, bred and fed by the Messrs. Millar, of Guelph. Without exception it is one of the finest and best proportioned pieces of veal that has ever been suspended from a meat hook. Then there is a two-year old Durham heifer, weighing 1,980 lbs., which carried off the gold medal at Guelph, and which is a perfect beauty in every respect. No better beef has ever been seen on the Ottawa market, and it was observed that many of the choice morceaux were secured for Government House, Sir John Macdonald, the Rideau Club, the Russell House, Windsor House, Hon. John O'Connor, and many prominent citizens."

S. S. ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—Yesterday sermons were preached morning and evening by the Rev. W. J. Maxwell, pastor, in the Dublin street Methodist Church, in aid of the Sabbath School funds. The attendance in the morning was not so large as the evening, at which time the church was well filled. The children lead the singing both morning and evening, and it was especially pleasing to hear them in this part of the exercise. The text in the morning was "The way of the transgressor is hard," and in the evening, "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not." Both subjects brought out discourses alike profitable to old and young. The school children were nicely arranged on a gallery erected for the purpose at the back of the pulpit, and many had to take seats in the galleries. The remarks of the rev. gentleman at both diets of worship were specially pleasing to the children, who heartily enjoyed the services. This evening the Sabbath School anniversary services will be held in the church, commencing at 7:30. The children have been highly trained for the occasion, and there is not the least doubt but that the church will be well filled. Admission fifteen cents. The receipts at the door go towards the funds of the school.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

Arrest of an Important Witness.

LONDON, April 4.—Detective Murphy last night brought to the city from Port Huron, Mich., one Wm. Lewis, an ex-resident of Biddulph, who is looked upon as a most important witness for the Crown in the Biddulph murder trial. Lewis worked for a man living close to the Donnellys, but mysteriously disappeared on the forenoon after the tragedy. The police traced him to the States, and he was arrested at Port Huron last week on receipt of a telegram from London. He is confined in gaol pending the arraignment of the prisoners. It is said that his evidence will go hard with some of them. What his knowledge consists of is of course kept secret for the present, but the opinion is that he can tell something of the movements of the parties in question on the fatal night. The man has anything but a relish for his position, and labours under intense excitement, being completely upset by the idea of being called as a witness against those with whom he associated.

ROW ON A TRAIN.—A row occurred among the 300 men who had left Montreal for Manitoba on Saturday. After leaving Napanee several of the men, who were drunk, commenced fighting, in which some seventy or eighty engaged. The train stopped at Belleville and the Grand Trunk authorities and employees interfered, but without success. Finally the local police arrived, and succeeded in ending the quarrel. Several men were badly cut on the head and face with bottles. Others received severe kicks, and one was cut with a razor. Four of the party were arrested, and the train proceeded after about three hours' detention.

FIRE IN BELLEVILLE.—A boy employed by Simpson, Anthes & Co., in their furniture factory, went down about one p.m. on Saturday to get some oil in the cellar, underneath the building occupied by the firm as an office and furniture warehouse. The lamp the boy carried had a chimney not in a very sound condition, and by some means the oil in the cellar got ignited, and the boy had to run. The alarm was given, and the engines were soon on hand, and with the exertions of the employees of the factory a very serious fire was prevented. The loss is principally upon the removal of the furniture, probably $400; insured.

CYCLONE IN THE WEST.—A cyclone last Friday evening swept over Ottawa, Kansas, demolished several residences, injured many others, destroyed many barns, tore the roof off the railroad freight house, and overturned several freight cars. In North Ottawa fifteen residences were totally destroyed or badly damaged. The evening train from Lawrence was caught north of the town, and a passenger car and two freight cars upset. One passenger was seriously injured. The storm then proceeded to the northeast, destroying four farm houses. Many persons were seriously injured and one child killed. Lumber and furniture were scattered for blocks. Horses, cattle, waggons, and even persons were hurled through the air.

FIRING CHURCHES IN OTTAWA.—A diabolical attempt to burn several churches in Ottawa was made on Saturday night. The first attempt was made on Bank street Presbyterian Church. It appears that during the night an incendiary went to the rear of the church and cut the glass of a basement window and entered. The church had not been used for three days, and therefore no fire could have originated from the furnace. The flames had obtained considerable headway before the brigade arrived, and they ultimately succeeded in conquering them, but not until the church was completely gutted. The building, which is of stone, is a fine structure. It is insured for $14,000, and the damage done is estimated at one-half that amount. The congregation on Sunday held their religious services in the Orange Hall. This was not the only the fire. St. Joseph's Catholic Church was next tried. On going to the church early on Sunday morning the caretaker discovered a candle tilted so as to set fire to the altar, which is of inflammable material. He stamped out the fire and lighted up the church, when he noticed a man in the gallery looking down at him. As soon as the incendiary saw that he was discovered he rushed down the stairs and out of the front door before he could be caught. An attempt was also made to gain an entrance into St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, at the corner of Kent and Wellington streets, but the iron work protecting the window proved to be too strong. Other rumors were in circulation that attempts had been made to fire St. Alban's among other churches, but these rumours do not appear to be well founded.

The Proposed Issue of Paper Money.

(From the Bystander.)

But still more ominous is the announcement by the Finance Minister of his intention to increase, or take power to increase, the amount of his issue of paper without increasing his reserve. This is not a currency measure, and the advocates of Fiat money need not flatter themselves that it is. It is, in effect, a forced loan, and like all such loans, is likely, while it seems cheap, to prove in the end far dearer than borrowing in the regular way. The Finance Minister would no doubt be startled and shocked if he were told that he had taken the first step in a calamitous descent; yet a careful survey of financial history will show him that such is the certain verdict of experience. He thinks that when he wants gold he will be able to get it at New York; but it is precisely when you want gold, unluckily, that it is not to be got. He thinks, also, that he can fix the limit beyond which inflation shall not go; but he has no control over his successors, who may be, and indeed are pretty sure to be, in greater straits than himself. His measure, though he would not like to admit it, involves a breach of faith to the holders of existing notes, who have taken them on the assurance of their being secured by a certain reserve. If a Bank were to do the same thing, its conduct would be deemed fraudulent, and it would be restrained by law. That it can be restrained by law and compelled under penalties to keep faith with its bill-holders is the great advantage which a Bank has, as a medium for paper circulation, over any Government and especially one which is always liable to fall into the hands of unscrupulous politicians. A Government with an obedient majority can always set itself free from its engagements; it can always by declaring its bad paper a legal tender force it into circulation, and thus despoil those who are compelled to take the paper for the debts due them. It can, in fact, commit fraud and robbery pretty much at its pleasure; and we know from abundant instances, both in the Old World and in the New, that neither by dishonest kings, nor by dishonest demagogues will the power be allowed to remain unused. Issuing bank bills is no more part of the necessary duty of a Government than issuing cheques or promissory notes; nothing is a part of the necessary duty of a Government but stamping the coin of the realm; the English Government does not issue bank bills, it charters a particular bank, which is an institution distinct from the Government, though employed by it, and is really and effectively subject to the law. A wisely-framed constitution, especially in communities as ours, instead of directing the Government to issue all the paper money, would perhaps restrain it from issuing any paper money at all.

The Empress Eugenie's famous pearl neckless is now the property of one of the richest women in Europe, Countess Henckel. The Empress had the pearls sold in London. One of her ladies accompanied by two friends of the Imperial widow, carried them to an English jeweller, who bought them and disposed of them to the Countess Henckel for 300,000 francs. The lady had some of the pearls less beautiful than the others removed, and added two other rows; one, which came from the jewels sold by the Queen of Naples, the other, from the neckless of the Virgin of Atocha, sold by a great Spanish personage. At present the suite of pearls belonging to the Countess, earrings and broach included, is worth 800,000 or 900,000 francs. It is said to be the finest set of pearls in the world.

An old woman, who had resided all her lifetime in a rural district in Aberdeenshire, was lying on her deathbed, when, as usual under the circumstances, the parish minister paid her a visit. On being pressed to give a reason for this strange request, she answered:—"Weel, you see, I'm grown' very frail noo, an' at the last day I wud like to be up amo' the first o' them, an' be oot o' the throng."

The British Elections.

The Liberals still Gaining.

The result of the elections on Saturday seals the fate of the Beaconsfield Government. The returns up to that night give the Liberals 235 against 187 Conservatives and 16 Home Rulers. The Liberal neat gain is now 56 seats. The best opinion now is that Earl Beaconsfield will resign shortly after the return of the Queen from the Continent. His health is far from good, and his spirits are said to be much depressed by the results of the elections. His immediate resignation is rendered impracticable by the absence of the Queen. It is believed that he will recommend the Queen to summon Granville to form a Ministry. Whether Granville accepts depends on the decision of the leading Liberals and the general sentiment of the party. Hartington and Forster expressly say the question is open. It is admitted that it would be extremely difficult to form a Ministry without Gladstone, and almost equally difficult to offer him a subordinate place. Indications abound that Gladstone's personal influence is paramount with the constituencies, for his popularity is now unquestioned. His magnificent vote at Leeds was intended, and is accepted, as an answer to the calumnies regarding him, and dispels for ever this ridiculous allegation of his unpopularity. The Times admits that he is the most potent politcal force in the country, and considers the contest a direct issue between Gladstone and Beaconsfield. The advices from Midlothian, on Saturday, says that his election is perfectly safe.

Sir Stafford Northcote, Chancellor of the Exchequer (Conservative), has been re-elected without opposition. The defeat at York City of Right Hon. John Lowther, Conservative, and Chief Secretary for Ireland, is received with wild delight by the Home Rulers and Nationalists of Ireland. Sir John Lubbeck, Liberal, who was defeated at Maidstone, will probably stand for Radnor district in the event of the Marquis of Hartington being successful in North-East Lancashire, the latter having been elected for Radnor district and not for Lancashire, as previously announced. The N.Y. Tribune's cable says that each day's polling makes the Tory disaster more complete. Great popular boroughs like Birmingham, Glasgow, Manchester, Chelsea, and Leeds show a scarcely more significant increase of Liberal strength than small towns like Shaftsbury, Wareham, and Stamford, where the predominating Tory family influence was overcome. The Tory victory in the City of London was due largely to the vote of liverymen—an artificial franchise; also to the popularity of Beaconsfield at the Stock Exchange, which favours whatever policy produces a constant rise and fall in stocks. Constituencies of the most varied character pronounce with equal emphasis against the Ministry. A large proportion of the present Liberal gains was wholly unexpected. It is expected at the Liberal headquarters that the total gains will reach a hundred seats. The enthusiasm, excitement, and confidence of the Liberals are daily augmenting. It is remarked, especially, that the Liberal gains have been hitherto exclusively English. The Liberals never expected to expel Beaconsfield from power without the help of the Scotch and Irish boroughs. But against the aristocracy, the stock gamblers of the City of London, the landowners, the powerful military caste, professional politicians, diplomatists, Russophobits, publicans, tradesmen, assailants of co-operation, Catholics, self-styled moderate Liberals, dyspeptic Whigs of the Earl Grey pattern, who were all staunch supporters of Beaconsfield's policy of fantastic adventure and safe swagger in Europe and dreams of unlimited empire in Central Asia—against all these there rose up the sound common sense of the nation, longing to return to a policy of honesty and good faith abroad, and reform and economy at home.

The Times is already veering round, and ventures to give advice. It says:—"We do not hesitate to predict when the Liberal Government comes into power that its policy respecting the external relations of the Empire will be precisely coincident with the counsels we urged upon the Beaconsfield Ministry." The Times advises the satisfaction of the claims of Greece, guarantees for the better government of the Christians in Armenia and other parts of Asiatic Turkey, and withdrawal from Afghanistan as soon as a strong frontier is secured and peace restored in Cabul.

The Ontario Agricultural Commission.

At the opening of the Ontario Legislature in January, the Lieut.-Governor in his Speech announced the intention of the Government, at an early day, to appoint an Agricultural Commission, whose duties will be to take evidence and obtain information on all matters relating to agriculture. The Opposition at the time sought to fasten on the proposal a political complexion, but from the first there was no ground for this, and the subsequent action of the Government have shown that their sole object in creating the Commission is for the purpose of promoting that most important interest in Ontario, namely, agriculture. The Government deserve all credit for their thoughtfulness and anxiety for the welfare of the Province in this respect, and we have every hope that the labours of the Commission will be followed by the best results in throwing a flood of light on this most important industry.

The Commissioners will give their services gratuitously, their actual expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties only being paid. The Commission is a large one, but it is thought that this will allow of a subdivision of labour, by which both time and expense will be economised, and meetings of the whole of the members except at pretty long intervals be rendered unnecessary. As will be seen by looking over the names of the Commissioners the appointments are non-political, and have been made simply on the ground of qualification, and with a desire to consult only the public interests. The object in view is to present a clear and succinct report of the agricultural advantages and resources of the Province, and the progress, condition, and defects of the method of farming generally or locally, in vogue. An exhaustive inquiry into every branch of the subject would involve much longer time than such a body of gentlemen could be reasonably expected to devote to it, and require a far larger expenditure than the vote of the Legislature evidently contemplated. It will therefore be suggested to them when they meet that the work to be undertaken should, in the first instance, as far as possible, be limited to such matters of practical and immediate importance as may be disposed of effectually within the current year, in order that a report as nearly as practicable complete in itself may be presented to the Legislature at the next session. The leading subjects which will come under inquiry will be the soil, climate, cultivable area and products of the several sections of the Province; the progress and condition of husbandry; grain growing; stock raising; dairying; bee-keeping; forestry; cultivation of special crops; drainage; manures; insects and insectiverous birds; labour and labour-saving machines; ownership as compared with renting; stock laws; fencing; agricultural book-keeping and education; societies, grants and shows; agricultural statistics; and the functions of the Bureau of Agriculture.

The Government have exercised much discretion in the appointment of Commissioners, each one being particularly well up in some special branch of agriculture. The Hon. Mr. Wood will be the Chairman of the Commission and the medium of communication between the Commissioners and the Government, and of course exercise a controlling influence in all matters of expenditure. Mr. Dymond will be Secretary, and will discharge the more directly executive duties of the Commission, manage the correspondence, collate and arrange the information collected, and conduct such portions of the inquiry as may from time to time demand close and continuous personal attention. The appointment of Mr. Wm. Whitelaw, we regard as a compliment to Wellington. His intimate knowledge of sheep breeding—a branch of farm industry which he has made a study for years—and his experience in all other matters pertaining to agriculture, will be of great service to the Commission. The following are its members:

Hon. S. C. Wood. Provincial Treasurer and Commissioner of Agriculture.
Thomas Ballantyne, M. P. P., Stratford.
J. B. Aylsworth, Vice President of the Agricultural and Arts Association.
Wm. Brown, Professor of Agriculture at the Agricultural College, Guelph.
John Watson, Ayr.
Thomas Stock, Waterdown.

The Printing Contract.

The Parliamentary Printing Committee are now engaged in getting at the bottom of all the scandal and corruption in connection with the Government Printing contracts. On Friday morning Mr. Roger, of the firm of McLean, Roger & Co., Government Printers, was the first witness called, and detailed how MacIntosh had first made overtures about the matter, how (Roger) had written out MacIntosh's tender and also that of Charlton, and how the former was to have a certain undefined interest, which amounted, as events proved, to $12,000. Witness did not think he would have had to pay so much; expected to get MacIntosh's interest; it was necessary in tendering to have more than one tender in order to offset bogus tenders; knew that Hope, one of his tenderers, had been paid $100 per year five years ago, by Mortimer, to withdraw his tender for the binding; paid $3,000 for Boyle, and had always supposed, until the latter swore to the contrary, that it had been paid; there was one note of $500 in the Boyle matter still to be met; had paid $16,450 and a suit of clothes worth $24 in all for the contract. Mr. MacIntosh next took the stand, and stated that his interest was to be estimated by the amount at which the contract was obtained. The work was being done cheaper than before. He withdrew his statements about Ross (Middlesex) having advised him to withdraw. He thought it was customary for publishers to unite in cases of this kind. Boyle's tender was under his control, and he gave that individual $100. The Committee adjourned until Monday.

On Saturday there was considerable canvassing among Government supporters in relation to the coming vote on Mr. Blake's resolution, and it is said many Ontario members have again asked that the whips shall be withheld. A Ministerial caucus it is said will be held on an early day this week to consult on the question.

Mr. Keeler is "going for" the Senate again. Not content with getting a statement of the Senators' mileage and indemnity for 1879, he is now moving for a similar statement for 1877 and 1878.

The immigration pamphlets issued by the Department of Agriculture were laid on the table of the House on Friday. Strangely enough, all the advertisements of American lands had been religiously cut out, while Peter Mitchell's pamphlet, which Mr. Lowe said had been ordered, does not appear at all. This shows how much reliance can be placed in returns furnished by members of the present Government.

Rumour states that the Senate is to play the obstructive role of the House of Lords, and reject the Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister.

A return shows that the number of official assignees appointed since the advent of the present Government to power aggregate thus:—Ontario, 110; Quebec, 74; Nova Scotia, 6; New Brunswick, 11; Prince Edward Island, 3; Manitoba, 1; and British Columbia, 2—total, 207. The question is what are all these gentlemen to do now.

Coal Oil Tests.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—During the past three weeks considerable excitement has prevailed amongst the coal oil dealers, regarding the testing of coal oil found in the different parts of the country and inspected by the local inland revenue and custom house officials, and by them said to beunder the required Government fire test.

As your journal circulated the reports of the several tests made will you kindly permit me as a refiner, through the same medium, to state what I have observed at the several tests made. For a period of fifteen years the refinery has been in operation, and for eight years the same excise officer has had charge of it. On no occasion during that space has his mode of testing been questioned either byhis superor officers, the proprietors of the refinery, or the public. The requirements of the law, in every respect, so far as he read the same, were fully complied with. New regulations were issued from time to time, as the department changed the law, regulating refined petroleum. Our invariable custom has been to become familiar with these and govern ourselves accordingly. The tests made prove conclusively that the fault does not lie entirely with the coal oil. In short the whole secret is that no two officers from Ottawa to Petrolia adopt the same method of testing. In one place the directions in using the Potter pyrometer are adopted as the infallible; while in another locality no particular method or rule is observed beyond filling the bath with water the cup with oil, the alcohol lamp lighted and the thermometer run up as hastily as possible, and the taper applied, while in another place a departmental circular issued in 1875, no. 94 is the guide selected, and read differently by every one who has seen it. All these systems I have seen tried, and the result varies from one to ten degrees.

I had occasion to test the mode adopted in Guelph as to whether it was correct or otherwise; oil that stood 111 degrees here, in Ottawa stood scarcely 90 degrees (the system of testing being so different.) Samples of the same were sent to Collector Dixon, of Toronto division, in which division Guelph now is, and by Mr. Inspector Morrow pronounced to stand vapor test of 106 degrees and a fire test of 112 degrees, his system being evidently the same as that of the officers here. In Hamilton, at a test there, the same oil according to Mr. Fortier, flashed at 96 degrees, and by Mr. Schram at 99 degrees. Here then is an extraordinary difference, which has not and I am told cannot be explained away.

I have found no two instruments alike in every particular, which I am certain has considerable to do with the matter. Some officers believe that it is the fire test and not the vapor test that they should adopt, and refer you to the regulations as to how barrels are to be labelled.

The matter has now been fully ventilated, and it is to be hoped that in the interests of the public as well as for the purpose of obtaining uniformity, the Inland Revenue Department will at once issue standard certified instruments to their officials, uniform rules for testing for their guidance, and so thus avoid such unpleasantness as has recently taken place between the various inspectors, refiners and their customers.

Should they decline doing this, to whom are the refiners to look for authority? for if one inspector passes the oil by his instrument, by what right has any other officer to interfere? Every refiner has to pay a heavy fee for inspecting each barrel, and if we are not secure from fault finding from another officer in some rival city or town, what is the use of such inspection and spending of money for same?

Yours, etc.,
J. C. McLAGAN,
Wellington Oil Refinery.

The Reason Why I can Undersell my Competitors every Time.

Because I have attended close to my own business and let other people's alone; and buy for cash instead of on credit, thereby saving the cash discount, which amounts to a good deal in a year.

Because I live free of rent, which is a large item; am independent in buying; go into the market with the ready money, and am able to take advantage of a bargan when it offers, and because I know how to buy, and am able to pay prompt cash, thereby getting the choicest goods and at lower rates than the man who has to buy on credit.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

MOURNING TURNED INTO JOY—THE CUP OF HAPPINESS FILLED TO OVERFLOWING—A PROSPEROUS LOVE SUIT—JACK BORLAND IN THE HANDS OF JUSTICE—REUBEN LANGTON'S TRIUMPH.

The cottage of the Borlands was that evening the scene of paroxysms of joy, an adequate description of which could not be penned. It was a happy thought of Jack's to depute Miss Elliot to communicate the astounding intelligence to the widow and Agnes. When the time drew near for his revelation to be made he came to realise the difficulty and danger of the task. At first he had looked forward to the hour with most pleasurable anticipations, but when he saw the heavy burden of sorrow which Agnes carried, and that she had ceased to cherish the hope and expectation of Orwell's return, he grew alarmed for the effect which his announcements were likely to produce, and became solicitous as to the manner in which these should be made.

After his meeting with Miss Elliot it occurred to him that she could become the best medium for the gradual conveyance of the flood of happiness, which if allowed to flow forth with a sudden burst might overwhelm the sorrowful hearts upon which it came. Her womanly tact and instincts, quickened by her deep affection and intimate understanding of all the circumstances, peculiarly fitted her for the discharge of the delicate task. Yet even she felt it as a task on all the capacities of her nature, and though admirable skill and infinite gentleness characterised her procedure, the shock—broken as was its force—was tremendous. Fortunately both Mrs. Borland and Agnes had strong self-possessed natures, which enabled them to bear it as few could have done; and the deeply-rooted religious faith which they possessed is always a sure safeguard against the heaviest pressure of sorrow or of joy.

It is impossible, however, even for the most fortified souls to bear such a burst of radiance as was now unveiled with the utmost gentleness which love could devise with a demeanor approaching to calmness. As bit by bit the facts were disclosed that their lodger Mr. Wilson was the long-lost Jack Borland, that he had brought news of Orwell, who was in America, and that he had come direct from there to save the Grange from the clutches of Anthony Langton, their senses became bewildered from excess of transport. Amazed looks, incoherent exclamations, wild excitement, frantic emotion but poorly describe the feelings they manifested, and when at last the rapturous knowledge took hold of their minds, and power to speak and act was granted, they rushed simultaneously to the other room to verify the tidings at the lips of their author.

"Where is he?" came in piercing tones from the room within.

"He is here," cried Miss Elliot excitedly, and Jack flew up the path just in time to meet Mrs. Borland in the porch.

"Jack, Jack," she cried falling half fainting into his arms.

"Jessie," was all Jack could utter, and his bushy head covered the widow's white cap, as, straining her to his heart, he pressed a long kiss on her trembling lips.

"Uncle Jack," said a low sweet faltering voice beside them, and in a moment Jack's right arm was thrown wide, and Agnes was enfolded in the same strong embrace.

With what passionate intensity they clung to him, and sobbed and wept on his broad bosom, Jack too wept, but his falling tears did no dishonor to his manhood. Hard as the nether millstone is the heart which could maintain composure while passing through such a scene.

When the first gush of emotion had a little subsided, Mrs. Borland raised her head and gazed into his face with searching intensity.

"Yes, it is Jack," she hysterically exclaimed. "And to think you have been here so long and I did not know you. Why did I not guess it when I saw you had Adam's eyes and that your figure so much resembled him."

"Because you never dreamed that poor scapegrace Jack was still alive. Oh, Jessie, I have been heavily punished for my willfulness in leaving you and Adam and wee Agnes yon April night twenty years ago. A thousand times did I rue that sinful act. Now I ask your forgiveness as I have asked that of Adam over the turf which covers his grave."

"Oh, Jack, if Adam were here he would take you to his heart as I do and bless God for His great goodness in restoring you to those who have never ceased to love you. But this," she added with a fond and grateful look, "this is not the not the return of the prodigal in rags and hunger. You have returned with blessings and benefactions. In bringing us news of Master Orwell you atone a thousand times over for Adam's grief and mine. Poor boy, how he too has suffered. Oh, how much, how much you have to tell us, but indeed the joy is too great to bear. Jack, dear Jack, my heart is like to swoon with its happiness. And Agnes too, you know not the deep, deep joy you have brought to her."

"Ah, but I think I do know it," returned Jack, as he kissed the glowing lips and tear-suffused face that was turned to his with panting eagerness. "Orwell, my darling, has told me of all your love and and self-sacrifice. But there is no barrier between you now, and if the long letter I have brought from him does not plead his cause successfully, then Uncle Jack must take the matter in hand and become his intercessor. You won't stand out against us both, will you?"

"Have you—a letter?" gasped Agnes her frame trembling with the joy that filled it.

A long, long one full of confession and penitence. "Poor lad, he erred greatly but he was more sinned against than sinning. He was the victim of cruel, selfish plotters, whose schemes, thank God, have come to nought. Here is Orwell's letter. I have kept it safe in my bosom all this time and the postage is a kiss from the receiver."

Agnes took the thick packet with a spasmodic gasp, flung her arms round the giver's neck, and with a fervently uttered, "God bless you, dear Uncle Jack," she kissed him twice, and ran off with the precious epistle to Miss Elliot, who had seated herself under one of the trees of the park a happy spectator of the unparalscene of love and joy.

Then Jack and Jessie sat together in the porch, pointing out to each other the fulness of their hearts.

"You may guess how hard it was," he said, "to keep my secret all these days—denying both you and myself happiness. But I had to exercise the utmost care even for my own safety, knowing that I ran the risk of being apprehended for the murder of the Revenue man."

"No, no, Jack—it was not you who killed the sailor. It was Bob Andrew; he told his companions so with his dying breath."

"I know that now, but might not be able to be prove my innocence. Hence the necessity for concealing my identy under another name, though it is the name I have always borne in America. Even now discovery would be fatal; and I must leave the neighbourhood as soon as possible."

"Leave us again?" cried Jessie, with a look of sorrowful anxiety; "leave us after making us so happy? Oh, you surely will not do so. There is no danger of discovery. Since I failed to recognise you no one ever will. No, no, you must not leave us. I cannot part with you."

I trust we shall not have to part for many a long day. I expect to take you with me to America."

"To America," echoed Mrs. Borland in genuine astonishment.

"Yes. Orwell expects me to bring you and Agnes when I return."

"Is Master Orwell not coming home?" she anxiously inquired.

"He has no intention of doing so, though I have no doubt he will ere long. You see he does not know that the Grange has been saved. He thinks it has gone into the hands of Anthony Langton. I did not tell him that I was taking as much money with me as would pay off the mortgage. He thinks he is poor, and means to work manfully to support himself and you an Agnes, believing that now in his poverty Agnes will not refuse to be his."

"The dear boy. How he will stare when you tell him the Grange is still his. But, oh, Jack, you must have grown very rich in America to be able to do this."

"For some years past I have had extraordinary luck. With my first savings I bought a farm. Land was very cheap then, and it did not cost me very much. But eight years ago a town began to rise on the spot, and my property has risen to a hundred times its original value. Well, as I was saying, Orwell does not know that the bond on the Grange is paid off, and therefore does not expect ever to see Scotland again. He wishes Agnes to come to him and be his wife, and looks forward to happiness with her on the other side of the Atlantic. I hope she will indeed go with me and become his wife, her marriage portion being the thirty thousand pounds which I have paid to clear the bond."

"Oh, Jack. Thirty thousand pounds—for—for Agnes."

"It is a matter of infinite joy to me to be able to give it to her. Adam's daughter is as dear to me as if she were my own!"

"Bless you, dear Jack, for saying so. But I have not had time to ask you if you are married."

"No," he gravely replied, "I am not married." "Ah, I remember you used to say you had no thought of marrying. Have you never seen a woman whom you could love?"

"Yes—one," answered Jack, as his eyes wandered to the two figures under the tree.

"And—and—why did you not marry her?" "Circumstances were against it," he returned with a sigh.

"Poor Jack. And is she utterly lost to you?" "I once thought so, but hope has returned, and I am cherishing a dream of happiness, which I pray God may be realised."

"I too will pray for your happiness, Jack." "Thank you, dear Jessie. You were ever kind to me in the old wilful days. Shall I tell you the name of the woman on whom my love is set?"

"I would not know her if you did," laughed Mrs Borland.

"But you do know her."

"I, Jack. Why who can it be?"

She looked in his crimson face and understood the significance of the gaze he unflinchingly directed across the park.

"Miss Elliot?" she eagerly and excitedly whispered.

Jack nodded assent.

Beet Root Culture in New Brunswick.

The report of the New Brunswick Secretary of Agriculture deals at some length with the question of the cultivation of the sugar beet and the establishment of factories for sugar-making—the opinion expressed being that this industry can be profitably pursued in the Province. The best experiments reported, however, hardly bear out this conclusion. A trial made at Fredericton, in which all the vegetables received equal attention and culture, resulted in a yield of 456 bushels or 13 tons of beets to the acre, 547 bushels of carrots, and 320 bushels of potatoes. At $5 per ton, the price paid by the Maine factory, this would amount to $68.40 for the beets, as compared with $164.10 for the carrots at 30 cents per bushel, and $128 for the potatoes at 40 cents. Nine trials made at Mangerville, Sudbury county, on a more extensive scale, resulted in an average yield of 17⅞ tons per acre at a cost per ton of $3.52½, which would leave a clear return of $87.18¼ per acre; but this experiment cannot be regarded as conclusive, as it is stated that in calculating cost only, one half the value of the manure is charged. The Secretary thinks the cost of production in the above trials too high, and that cultivation on a larger scale would much reduce it. The report urges the erection of beet sugar factories, the desire for which among the farmers is said to be general. The New Brunswick Government made an importation of seed last year from Germany, only a small portion of which was used, and it is hoped that the remainder will be sown this spring. As regards the value of sugar beets for stock-feeding, the yield is said to be smaller than that of mangolds or turnips, and the cost per acre about the same, but it is thought that the smaller crop of beets will be quite as valuable for general feeding purposes, and much better for milch cows than the other vegetables.

THE NEWSPAPER AS A TEXT BOOK.—The Superintendent of the Pittsburgh schools highly commends the use of the daily paper as a text book. The lively interest the pupils would take in the geography and history of affairs connected with daily events, would serve to impress both studies deeply upon their minds. Ample illustration of the interest possible in such studies is afforded by that which was aroused in the minds of many readers during the war of the rebellion, the Franco-Prussian war, and to some extent, the late Russo-Turkish war. The curiosity excited in the places at which great events are transpiring is taken advantage of by business men; for during both the Prussian war and the Turkish war not only were cheap maps designed and sold, but insurance companies and other concerns advertised themselves by means of maps of the "seat of war," which they distributed gratis. The human nature which shewed men of business understand, might well be worth the study of those who engage in the instruction of youth.

THE GIRL THAT LEOPOLD MAY MARRY.—Another blow is about to be struck at the Royal Marriage act, if we may trust the rumors which reach us of the betrothal of Prince Leopold, the youngest son of Queen Victoria, to the most brilliant beauty and greatest heiress of the current season in London, Miss Francis-Evelyn Maynard, the eldest daughter of the late Hon. Charles Maynard, son and heir of the last Viscount Maynard, of Essex, who predeceased his father in January, 1865. Lord Maynard, as descendant of the great lawyer, died three months after his son, when his titles became extinct and his great estate passed to his eldest granddaughter, the young lady who is now said to be engaged to Prince Leopold. Miss Maynard has just entered her nineteenth year, and on her presentation at a recent drawing room held by the Queen she seems to have taken London by storm, not only by her extraordinary beauty, but by a grace and stateliness which are not always the leading characteristics of British debutantes.

Fears are expressed that should the present exodus from Nova Scotia to the United States continue the consequences will be very serious to those left behind. The emigration seems to be general. Railway officials in Montreal estimate the weekly exodus from that city to the States exceeds one thousand.

Good Night.

Little children come to rest,
Cease your merry play,
See! the sun is in the west,
Sinking silently.

Flowers have drooped their little heads,
In the evening breeze,
Birds sleep in their leafy beds,
High among the trees.

Little stars come one by one,
Through the heavens so blue,
Care and turmoil all are done,
Play and laughter too.

Peace and rest are over all
Earth and sea and sky,
Only night winds softly call
Sweetest lullaby.

Little children, kneel and pray
To the God above,
Thank him for the livelong day,
Thank Him for His love;

Thank Him for His tender grace,
Thank Him for His might;
Upward lift each little face,
Softly bid—"Good-night."

Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

A CURIOUS DENTAL OPERATION.—Dr. Rosenthal recently performed the curious medical feat of grafting a colored man's healthy tooth in a cavity in a white man's mouth. It is well known that the teeth of colored men are sounder, as a rule than those of white men, and cases like the above have occurred, though they are not frequent, for reasons that are understood. The other day Dr. Rosenthal drew the tooth of a white patient, and immediately went down to the restaurant under his office, on Fourth street, opposite the Grand Hotel, and found a colored man, with whom he bargained for one of his teeth at $10. The colored man went up stairs, took his seat, had his tooth drawn, and received his $10. The tooth was then placed in the patient's mouth, where it is expected to take root.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

THE WHEAT.—The Galt Reporter says:—While there is yet no great cause of uneasiness with regard to the winter wheat, it is undoubted that it has failed more within the past two weeks than it did during all the winter months. The fine bright days and frosty nights have browned the plant to a great extent, particularly on heavy lands; and farmers generally express more fears at the present time than at any previous period. It is generally felt, however, that the worst of the season is past, and should the spring continue open and fine it is hoped that the fear expressed will not be verified.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

There have been some remarkable changes in the membership of the British House of Commons, which was dissolved last week. Of the 652 members elected at and since the election of 1874, 65 died in the duration of last Parliament, 29 resigned, 21 was elevated to the Peerage by inheritance or creation, 5 abandoned their legislative for judicial positions, and 5 retired on accepting office. The great number of deaths—ten per cent. in six years—may be accounted for by the mature age of the majority of the public men of Great Britain.

The average salary for teachers in Manitoba is about $400, the highest being $86, and the lowest $25, a month. The supply of teachers in the Province is equal to the demand.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Prof. Hotchkin's Trusses are practical, rational and economical. The object is immediate relief and eventual cure. They are based upon scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbelical, as well as Faricoeele, at the advanced ages respectively from 65 to 92 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses for children as well as adults. Prof. H. defies the hernia that he cannot hold in its place. Mr. H's post office address is Albion, Orleans Co., N. Y. 27dwtd.

THE DOG BY-LAW.—In their consideration of the proposed dog by-law, the City Council struck out the clause providing that the names of the owners of dogs should be placed on the tag to be worn on the collar. If the by-law is to pass at all it seems that that clause is one that should have been preserved. Although, when a dog is registered the tag is numbered and a corresponding number entered in the book of registration opposite the name of of the owner, that will not prevent endless trouble in enforcing the law. As the law is interpreted by the Chairman of the By-laws Committee, a ribbon or leather strap may be used in place of a collar. In that case the tags will be stolen from good-natured canines at the outstart and attached to some other dog, and this practice will be continued. With the name of the owner on the tag, the transfer might be easily detected, but it will be a more difficult matter to detect it by the number alone.

LILIPUTIAN OPERA COMPANY.—The following facts relative to the members of the Liliputian Opera Company, who appear here next Tuesday, will be of interest:—The combined weight of the eleven little people of the Liliputian Opera Company is but 438 pounds, while Col. Orr, the giant, tips the scale at 650 pounds. The Liliputs of the Liliputian Opera Company are quite numerous this season. Miss Jennie Quigley, height 30 inches; Miss Sarah Bolton, 33 inches; Miss Emma Bernhart, 36 inches; Miss Harriet Rose, 38 inches; Miss Eva Mills, 38 inches; Admiral Dot, 28 inches; Col. Speck, 30 inches; Gen. Totman, 29 inches; Prince Louis, 36 inches; Major Davis, 34 inches; Col. Steers, 34 inches; Col. Orr, 9 feet. In every city where the company have appeared they have met with an encouraging reception, and the press speaks flatteringly of their operatic talent.

An action, brought by Messrs. Jenks & Co., of Michigan, to recover the value of a promissory note for $200, made by John and Martin Doran—the former of Rockwood and the latter of Guelph,—in favour of Alfred Anstee, the evidence in which was taken on Monday, was continued to-day and is still in progress. TESTING COAL OIL.—The Hamilton correspondent of the Globe on Friday, says:—At the request of Messrs. J. S. McMahon & Co., of this city, further tests of oil were made by Mr. Schram, Inland Revenue officer, of some car loads which had just arrived for that firm. Royal City white brand, manufactured by McLagan & Co., of Guelph, excised half month 18-80, marked 108° test, flashed at 125°. Another sample of the same brand, excised half mo. 15-80, part of which was reported under the standard, and since been resteamed or extra refined, and now stands the test of 120°. It was formerly marked 111°. The Silver Star brand, manufactured by Messrs. J. L. Englehart & Co., Petrolia, excised half month 18-80, marked test 110°, flashed at 118°. Another car load of the same brand as the last named, consigned to Messrs. Young Bros., excised half month 17-80; marked 110°, flashed at 128°. The above tests are very satisfactory, both for the consumer, dealer, and refiner.

Sabbath School Anniversary.

The anniversary services in connection with the Dublin Street Methodist Sabbath School took place on Monday evening. The attendance was good—considerably larger than on any previous occasion. The Rev. Mr. Maxwell occupied the chair. Prof. Philp presided at the organ, and Mr. Wm. Wheatley was the leader of the musical department, and each gave general satisfaction. The programme, as published, was carried out in its entirety, and the pupils, in nearly every piece, acquitted themselves in a manner that showed they had received no small amount of training by the teachers. The welcome address, by Master Gladstone McLean, recitations by Miss Laura Campbell, Masters J. Copp, J. Stoneham and E. Dixon, and the valedictory, by Master Willie Turnbull, were given in a capital manner, and elicited great applause, while the singing by the school was much admired. A dialogue, "I wouldn't, would you," by four young ladies; a colloquy, "The world of bliss," by five young ladies; and "The Altar of Incense," by six young ladies, were very well carried out, although at times the articulation was rather too indistinct to be heard generally. The singing by the infant class, under the direction of Mrs. McConnell, was a pleasing and attractive feature of the entertainment.

The Secretary, Mr. Jas. Garbutt, read the fifth annual report, which stated that the number of officers and teachers was 36; number of scholars, 311; average attendance, 184. Bible class, 200; average attendance, 113. The increase during the year was 193; removals, 21. Number of verses recited during the year, 7,159; periodicals taken, 360. Number of volumes in Bible Class Library, 255; school library, 504. The receipts of the year were $196.35; expenditure, $174.82—leaving a balance on hand of $21.73. The proceedings were brought to a close by the school singing "Gathering Home," the National Anthem and prayer. The anniversary was in every respect the most successful that has ever been held in the Dublin street Church, and reflected the highest praise on all engaged in getting up the entertainment.

Guelph Curling Club.

Presentation of the Gow Cup and Stirton Medal.

A meeting of this club was held in John Haugh's City Hotel on Monday evening. There was a fair attendance of curlers present. The chair was taken shortly after eight o'clock by Vice-President A. Robertson, jr., when Secretary Geo. Murton read a communication from the Toronto club anent the dispute arising between the two clubs about the award of the Royal Caledonian medal. After some discussion it was agreed to settle the matter by arbitration if possible, and a resolution was passed appointing Mr. Matthew Anderson, of Fergus, to act on behalf of the Guelph club.

After the business had been transacted, Mr. Adam Robertson, sr., was chosen to present the Gow cup to the winner, Mr. Alex. Bruce, which he did, and complimented Mr. Bruce in a few appropriate words on being able to win such a valuable prize. Mr. Bruce briefly replied to the remarks of Mr. Robertson, after which the cup received its first baptisement. Postmaster Stirton was chosen to present his own medal, a very handsome gift to the club to be played for annually and known as the "Stirton" medal. This he did in a fitting manner and congratulated Mr. Mackenzie on being the lucky winner of the medal for the year. Mr. Mackenzie in replying said that he considered it a proud honor to be the winner of the Stirton medal, and the club were greatly indebted to the consideration of Sheriff Gow and Postmaster Stirton in giving the club such trophies to compete for.

The winners of the Gow cup and Stirton medal have just cause to feel proud of their success in winning these prizes, for in every game they were competed for with the keenest interest, and won by fair majorities.

After the presentations had taken place the members of the club present sat down to an excellent supper, spread out in first class style by mine host of the City Hotel, who spread around his friends all the comforts that could be desired.

After the supper had received ample justice, the company adjourned from the dining room, when Postmaster Stirton told some of his best stories in his most imposing manner, and Messrs. Fyfe, Rutherford and John Anderson sang some capital songs. Thus the evening slipped away till near the "sma' 'oors" in the morning, when the company adjourned highly satisfied that they had given the curling season a suitable wind up in every respect.

The Biddulph Murderers.

Forthcoming Trial of the Prisoners.

LONDON, April 5.—Chief Justice Wilson arrived here from St. Thomas this evening, and will open the Middlesex Assizes tomorrow. Mr. Irving, Q. C., was at work all day arranging the preliminaries for the trial of the Biddulph prisoners. He was in consultation with County Crown Attorney Hutchinson and Mr. James McGee, representative of the Government, for some time this afternoon, and it is understood that they have decided upon a plan of action. It is thought that the Crown counsel will have the prisoners brought before the Grand Jury as soon as possible, probably to-morrow; and if, as is generally expected, the jury returns a true bill against them, Mr. Irving will immediately apply to the Court for a change of venue. The application will, of course, be strenuously opposed by the counsel for the defence. The opinion is that the change will be ordered by the presiding judge, and that Toronto will be selected as the place best suited for the trial.

City Council.

The Dog By-Law Receives its Second Reading.

The Usual Budget of Petitions.

The City Council met on Monday evening; present—Ald. McMillan, Burns, Gowdy, McLagan, Bruce, Tyson, Hart, Hall, Hewer, Fairbank, Robertson, Stevenson, Doran, Coffee, Chadwick, Lamprey.

The Mayor being absent, on motion of Ald. McMillan and Stevenson, Ald. Chadwick was called to the chair.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The chairman read a communication from Thomas A. Heffernan and others, asking for a sidewalk on Bristol street.

A communication was read from Walter King, Market Clerk, stating that John Crowe had refused to pay the usual fee for weighing iron. His account amounted to $4.44, and this Mr. King had to make good to the City Treasurer out of his own pocket.

Ald. Hart explained that John Crowe had spoken to him about weighing a car load of iron at the market scales, but would not pay the usual price. Ald. Hart told him he would see if the fee could be reduced, knowing that if it was not the iron would not be weighed. He found out that the fee could not be reduced, but meantime John Crowe had it weighed. If the latter was not willing to pay the amount in question Ald. Hart would.

PETITIONS.

Ald. Bruce presented a largely signed petition from St. Andrew's Ward asking that the proposed Dog By-law do not pass. It set forth that the present By-law was sufficient, and that the proposed one was impracticable. The main objection was to the clause enacting that each dog should wear a collar.

Ald. MacMillan afterward stated that the By-law did not intend that each dog should wear a collar, but that a ribbon or leather strap would do as well.

Ald. Burns—From W. H. Byers and others asking that a sidewalk be placed on Albert street.

Ald. Burns—From John Dooley and others asking that a sidewalk be placed on the southeast side of Inkerman street.

Ald. Lamprey—From Thomas Holliday and others asking that the culvert on Waterloo avenue be completed.

Ald. Coffee—From the Separate School Board asking that the Council place $1,000 to credit of the Board.

Ald. Fairbank—From Agnes Lynch asking remission of taxes, including $2 Separate School tax, she being a Protestant.

Ald. Fairbank—From Mrs. Scarrow asking remission of taxes.

Ald. Fairbank—From Mary Gribbon asking remission of taxes, amounting to $6.

Ald. Hart—From Louis Wideman and others asking that a sidewalk be placed on Tiffany street, and that the street be graded.

Ald. Hart—From Rev. Dr. Wardrope and others asking that a lamp be placed at the corner of Dublin and Emma streets.

Ald. Hewer—From the Sec.-Treasurer of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, asking the Council to liquidate a balance against the Society of $78.

Ald. McMillan—From Mrs. Emma Fisher, asking remission of taxes.

Ald. Hall—From George F. Walters and others, asking the construction of a sidewalk on the north side of John street.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ESTIMATES.

The chairman read the estimates of the Public and High Schools for the year, the total being $14,221.

EXHIBITION GROUNDS.

The By-law appointing John Marriott caretaker of the Central Exhibition Grounds, was read a third time.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS.

Ald. Gowdy, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee, reported, recommending:—That some small alterations be made in the Engineer's kitchen, at the Engine House, cost not to exceed $10; that the following account be paid George Murton for coal, $34.85; that six new rubber coats be purchased for the engineer and firemen, at a cost of $4 each; that a lamp be placed in front of the residence of the Chief of Police, for the accommodation of parties requiring him at night.—Carried.

PARK AND TREES.

Alderman Fairbank, chairman of the committee on Parks and Shade trees, recommended that Alex. Congalton be paid $30 for improvements made in the caretaker's house at the Exhibition grounds.—Carried.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The chairman read the first report of the Board of Health. It stated that the Health Inspector was present at the meeting, and reported that the sanitary condition of the city was satisfactory. The Board recommended the appointment of a person to empty and clean water closets, cesspools, &c.—Received.

DOG BY-LAW.

The Council went into Committee to consider the proposed dog by-law. Ald. Hewer in the chair.

The clauses left over from last meeting were taken up. In that referring to a charge of twenty-five cents for registration motions were made to reduce the amount and to strike out the clause, which were lost. The by-law passed its second reading unchanged save that portion enacting that the owner of each dog should have his name engraved on the tag to be worn on the dog's collar.

Ald. MacMillan then moved that by-law 144 be repealed excepting clause six. This clause provides that on the appearance of hydrophobia or any other dangerous disease among dogs, all dogs shall be shut up.

The motion was carried.

MANUFACTURES.

Ald. McLagan and Bruce moved in effect that in accordance with the report of the special committee on manufactures, the Clerk be instructed to publish in the Trade Journals an advertisement, to be prepared by the Joint Committee of the City Council and Property Owners Association, setting forth the advertisement offered for the establishment of manufactories here. Carried.

TUESDAY EVNG, APRIL 9, 1880.

Mr. Gladstone Elected for Midlothian.

Nine nominations were made on Monday and twenty-two pollings were held. The net Liberal gain was five seats, and they lost only one. Most of the elections were held in the county constituencies, which accounts for the number of Conservatives elected. Up to Monday night the neat gain of the Liberals is 59. Mr. Gladstone has been elected for Midlothian, receiving 1,979 votes, and defeating the Earl of Dalkeith, Conservative, who received 1,868 votes. The contest was the most spirited one ever fought in Edinburghshire since the passage of the first Reform bill. Each party used its utmost endeavors and 2,947 voters came to the polls, 148 more than in former elections. Herbert Gladstone, son of Mr. Gladstone, who stood for Middlesex, was defeated. Mr. T. C. Baring, Conservative, of the firm of Baring Bros., for South Essex, has been re-elected. so also has Lord Elcho for Haddingtonshire. Mr. Lowe, Chancellor of the Exchequer in Mr. Gladstone's Government, has been re-elected for London University.

The leading papers are already speculating about the formation of the new Government and the complexion of the Ministry. The Observer says:—We understand that there will be no decision whether the Government shall resign at once or await the adverse vote of Parliament until the exact number of the Liberal majority is ascertained. After the result of the polling on Friday, it is known that a special messenger was sent to Baden-Baden with despatches to the Queen. We have reason to believe that Mr. Gladstone disapproves of the suggestion that he accept a subordinate office in the new Administration. He still adheres to the intention of not resuming office, but will cordially support the recognized Liberal leaders, Earl Granville and the Marquis of Hartington. The Daily News says it is impossible that Gladstone should hold any office except Premier.

The Times says it is manifest that the Opposition has now secured a clear working majority, even if the Home Rulers are entirely left out of account. The Queen, it is reported, will return between the 16th and 22nd of April. The Colonial Secretary left on Saturday for Baden-Baden to act as Minister in attendance on the Queen. From the visit, it is inferred by some that he will communicate the Cabinet's decision to resign immediately.

The Home Rulers are bravely fighting among themselves. A Cork correspondent says that Parnell has declared open war against Shaw, the Home Rule leader, by nominating Kettle, of the Land League, against him and Colthurst for the county of Cork. It is believed that Parnell has been defeated in Cork. The Liberal victories have utterly disconcerted the Parnell party, which now sees that it does not hold the balance of power, and must fight the Liberals in the next Parliament as it fought the Conservatives in the last. This is why Mr. Parnell tried to oust Mr. Murphy, the Liberal, instead of contesting a Conservative district. In all the Catholic churches on Sunday, the priests deprecated the idea of a stranger trying to force himself on Cork and divide the Liberal ranks.

HON. T. N. GIBBS, the defeated of South Ontario, is now a Senator.

LORD LYTTON has been so closely identified with the Beaconsfield Goverement that his prolonged tenure of office as Viceroy of India is as little possible as desirable. The name of Lord Northbrook is mentioned as his successor. But it is said he does not wish to return to his old post.

WE received some days ago a pamphlet on "Money and Paper Currency," by Mr. Geo. E. Casey, the promising young member for West Elgin. It is a valuable contribution to our currency literature, the whole question being ably and clearly dealt with. He makes out a strong case in favour of honest money and a sound currency.

THE latest news from Chateauguay is of the most encouraging character, Mr. Holton's candidature having been everywhere hailed with enthusiasm. His supporters are increasing in number and influence, not a few who had previously voted the Conservative ticket co-operating with his friends. Both parties are earnestly exerting themselves, but Mr. Holton's success appears to be assured.

TORONTO Telegram:—The obstacles in the way of the consolidation of our colleges are sectional jealousies and vested interests, and the longer the present arrangement continues, the deeper will the roots of these obstacles grow down and the more difficult will it be to tear them up. A consolidated university has been the dream of many friends of collegiate education for years; but the likelihood is that it will never prove anything but a dream.

THE Liberal victory in Britain owes much to the personal popularity of Mr. Gladstone. Wherever his name is mentioned in any of the meetings, the speaker has to pause to wait till the cheering is ended. In fact the English instinct for veracity and downrightness is rallying the people to his support, and outside of London and the places its opinion influences, his showy but insincere rival is beginning to discover that in the long run men pass for what they are, and not for what they seem.

IT is reported from Washington that Mr. COX, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, expects at least that six of the eleven members of the Committee will favor reporting a joint resolution authorizing the President to appoint three Commissioners to ascertain and report on what basis a treaty of reciprocal trade for the mutual benefit of the people of the United States and Canada can be established. It will be simply a resolution looking to the gathering of information for the enlightenment of Congress on the subject.

OTTAWA Free Press:—Extremely amusing is it to hear the organs talk of the Opposition as obstructionists, when day after day they have been urging Ministers to bring down their measures, but without success. The session is now nearly two months old and only four Government bills have been presented. The Opposition have fairly clamored for business, yet Ministers hang back as if they feared to unroll their programme before a House whose subserviency they seem to be conscious of having tested to the fullest extent. Where are all the measures mentioned in the Speech from the Throne? Echo answers where.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 5.

The measure providing for the winding-up of the Stadacona Fire and Life Insurance Company passed through its final stages.

Mr. Trow, a few evenings ago, was charged in the heat of debate by the Minister of Agriculture with having profited by the issue of his letters on the North-West in the form of an immigration pamphlet. Mr. Trow at once denied the charge, and after enquiry for proof the Minister of Agriculture withdrew it. To the surprise of many the Montreal Gazette on Saturday referred to Mr. Trow's disclaimer, and asserted that notwstanding that he netted $1,500 by the pamphlets. This statement was professed to be based upon an official return, but an examination of the return shows that instead of the money being paid for the pamphlet it was paid by the Department to printers in the Province of Quebec, whom Mr. Trow never either saw or heard of till Monday, for printing the pamphlets, when he directed the House's attention to the paragraph, and gave it an emphatic denial. Although he did so Mr. Thomas White had not the courage to admit that unintentional error had been made.

Among the questions by members was one by Mr. Skinner of considerable public interest. He asked what church is referred to as "the Established Church" in Section No. 358 of the regulations and orders of the Militia of Canada, recently published by the authority of the Hon. the Minister of Militia and Defence. "Hear, hear, came from the lips of several members, and others appeared to be amused at the question; but all manifested eagerness to hear the Government's reply. Hon. Mr. Masson said that the regulation was an exact transcript of the Queen's regulations, but as there was no Established Church in Canada the Government would take such steps as would procure an amendment to the regulations.

Mr. Charlton moved certain resolutions declaring the expediency of disposing of the public lands of Canada by selling them, as far as practicable, to actual settlers only. The debate which ensued was interesting, and a flood of light was thrown upon the operation of the obnoxious land regulations in the North-West and Manitoba. Mr. Charlton in opening laid down the principle that it was imperative in the interest of the country to secure the most rapid settlement of the public lands possible, and proceeding he claimed that the result of the Government's land regulations was the very reverse of that. Another desideratum of paramount importance was that the territory should be held in as many hands as possible, but the land regulations in practice tended to build up large land monopolies. After quoting an array of evidence and facts to support these views he freely condemned the locking up of lands by speculation as a most discreditable pursuit, and one which no Government really desirous of maintaining the interests of the country would tolerate.

Sir John replied generally to the arguments advanced by Mr. Charlton, but the principal portion of his speech was devoted to a statistical prophecy of the development of the North-West. His object appeared to be an insidious attempt to anticipate the coming debate on the Pacific Railway, and give his revolting followers a few reasons for continuing their adherence to the scheme for the immediate construction of the Pacific Railway. He claimed that the influx of population in the North-West would increase from 34,000 persons in the present year, to 75,000 persons in 1890—an annual proportionate increase of 5,000. Mr. Blake here interrupted, and made the appropriate suggestion. "Why don't you make it another 10,000?" From railway lands and pre-emptions the Government expected in the decade to have $38,000,000 paid, and $24,712,000 unpaid, but due, on account of pre-emptions and railway lands sold, making a total of $71,000,000. From this sum about two millions of dollars must be deducted for cost of surveys, leaving $69,000,000, one half paid and the other secured by real estate. The Government estimated the cost of constructing the Pacific Railway from Lake Superior to the Pacific Ocean to be seventy-five millions of dollars. This estimate was greeted by the Opposition with ironical cheers.

Mr. Anglin, in a neat and pointed speech, showed that the Premier had in his estimates left out of consideration the increasing interest on the capital expended on the road, which this year amounted to $750,000, and in 1891 would amount to $4,500,000. By a few apt figures he showed the proportion of this interest which each of the immigrants in the Premier's estimate would have to bear.

Mr. Trow, whose personal acquaintance with the North West Territories enabled him to speak with authority, gave instances from personal knowledge showing how already large tracts of territory have passed into speculators hands, and he dilated at length upon the evils of the system.

The Government were evidently undesirous of voting on the issue presented by Mr. Charlton, so Mr. Domville moved in amendment that the House do pass to the order of the day.

Mr. Casgrain argued that the Government should take steps to prevent the depletion of the population of the Province of Quebec, independently of its efforts to induce emigrants to go to the North West.

Mr. Thomas White presented a defence of the land regulations from a Ministerial point of view, and after advancing the routine charges of unpatriotic and disloyal conduct against the Opposition, he moved an amendment to the amendment endorsing the Government's land regulations and affirming them to be beneficial.

Mr. Scriver referred to the exodus of Canadians to the United States, and he said that while a portion of those who went were merely on a temporary visit, yt it was undoubted that others intended to reside there permanently. He gave a few reasons why such a phenomenon existed.

After a few remarks from Mr. Boltbee,

Mr. Mackenzie in a vigorous speech cleverly took up the Ministerial cry of disloyalty against the Opposition, and turned it against the Premier. He said the Premier who claimed that the first land regulations were perfect, admitted that by the opposition of the Globe he had been compelled to act so unpatriotically as to withdraw the regulations which, he says, were in the public interest and substitute others. Mr. Mackenzie also directed attention to the manner in which the Premier had lugged the Pacific Railway question into the debate, as if he had some ulterior purpose in view. That purpose was disclosed by rumours, which affirmed the existence of discussions in the Ministerial ranks respecting the Pacific Railway policy.

Mr. Donald A. Smith, a Manitoban representative, admitted that the Government made a mistake in introducing their first regulations, but although they were better now still they would bear improvement.

Mr. McDougall expressed a desire to vote for the amendment, because he did not care to affirm, as the amendment to the amendment did, that the present regulations were the best regulations. However, for reasons, which he gave, he determined ultimately to vote for the latter.

Mr. Charlton closed the debate by exposing the preposterous character of the Premier's estimated receipts on account of land sales.

A vote was taken on Mr. White's amendment to the amendment, which was carried on the following division:—Yeas, 120; Nays, 40. Majority for, 80.

The party lines were closely drawn. The highest Government majority in this Parliament on a straight party vote was 88.

The main motion as amended was carried on the same division.

COULD NOT SUCCEED.—The Monetary Times says: A short time ago a farmer named Gavin Burns commenced operating in grain and cattle with the proceeds of the sale of his farm, and about six months ago he opened a general store at Drayton, where he did not succeed well. He afterwards went to Douglas, and is now attached. He knew nothing of the business, and his little experience of mercantile life has been a sore lesson to him.

At a very successful meeting of the North Grey Teachers Association last week, it was decided to establish a library in connection with the Association.

THE MCMULLEN MURDER CASE.—Since the McMullen inquest at Seeley's Bay, near Kingston, in the McMullen murder case, spoken of a few weeks ago, there has been a feeling that all the facts were not elicited at the Coroner's enquiry. Accordingly the Chief of Police at Kingston and County Crown Attorney have instituted a rigid enquiry concerning the circumstances. The conflicting statements made by Mrs. Daly, daughter of the deceased, had given rise to much public comment. In giving her evidence before the Coroner, Mrs. Daly stated that she was not in the house when the old man received the wound which caused his death; that when he and the son commenced to quarrel she ran out. Another court of inquiry was held on the 1st inst., and the witnesses gave other versions of what Mrs. Daly said she saw. She told the doctor to make it as light as possible, to say it was a fall that caused her father's death. Altogether the evidence was such as to warrant a commital of the prisoners and they were lodged in Kingston goal. John McMullen, son of deceased, is committed for murder, and Mrs. Daly for being accessory after the fact. A poker, which several persons saw in McMullen's house, was taken possession of by the police.

SALE OF LANDS IN THE NORTHWEST.—According to a Parliamentary return, the following exhibit relates to the sales of public lands in Manitoba and the North-west during 1879: (a) Total number of acres sold during the year, 247.315. (b) Total number of purchasers of the same, 882. (c) The number of acres sold in quantities of 640 acres or more to each individual purchaser at one or more times during the year aggregate 83,490 acres, and were divided among 123 purchasers. (d) Five persons purchased more than 960 acres each, but the purchases are not given. (e) One Charles J. Gregory purchased 2,075 acres. (f) There were 7,667 acres sold wherein the purchases were more than 960 acres each, on which a portion of the purchase money still remains unpaid.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

THE TEA SEIZURES.—The Mail says:—The controversy concerning the tea seizures in Toronto has been settled by the decision of the Customs Department. The tea seized has been restored to the consignees, with the exception of a consignment from Hiogo of about 1,700 half chests, which manifestly did not fulfil the conditions of the law, the consignment having been made to Canada after shipment for the United States, which the papers proved conclusively. The fact that the rest has been released does not, however, condemn the seizure, since the release has been made only after the production of documentary evidence, which was some time forthcoming, but which was produced at last. It is understood that the persons interested, who went down to Ottawa, have expressed themselves satisfied with the treatment received at the hands of the Department, which was simply acting in defence of the law, the revenue and legitimate trade.

Mr. Jessop, of concession 8, Peel, cut down on his farm lately a large water-elm that measured six feet in diameter at the base, and was over 100 feet high, and out of which was cut eight cords of stavebolts and about twelve cords of firewood.

At present 400 houses are to let in St. Catharines, and the commercial condition of its people is unprecedentedly depressed. All this in spite of the fact that the Welland Canal works are still in progress and will take another year for their completion.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

MOURNING TURNED INTO JOY—THE CUP OF HAPPINESS FILLED TO OVERFLOWING—A PROSPEROUS LOVE SUIT—JACK BORLAND IN THE HANDS OF JUSTICE—REUBEN LANGTON'S TRIUMPH.

"Oh, how delighted I am to hear it. Miss Elliot told us about you having known each other in Paul Jones' ship. Was it then you first loved her?"

"It was then; but she was engaged to another, and I hid my affection in the bosom which cherished it. I have remained true to that affection ever since. She is free now."

"And you mean to win her?" cried Jessie, breathlessly.

"I mean to offer her a heart that has long been hers," he answered; "but she may reject it."

"Heaven forbid that she should! You could not find in all the world a better wife—she could not obtain a worthier husband. It seems as if heaven had ordained you for each other. Oh, I do hope you will succeed in winning her?"

"I shall if heaven has ordained it," said Jack with a slight laugh. "But I own I have not courage to believe that very firmly. I feel that she is to good for me."

"Too good for you, indeed? I wonder who is too good for you now, Jack? You are so different from what you were twenty years ago. You are—oh, so very much improved—not like the same boy, except in heart, for you had always a true heart, Jack, though you would have your own way."

"Hush! they are coming," said Jack, "Not a word of this in their presence."

What a radiant beauty was on the face of Agnes Borland as she and Miss Elliot came hand in hand up the garden path. Her cheeks, so lately wan and pale, were mantled with a rosy hue; her fine eyes sparkled with gladsome lustre; her whole face wore an expression of joyous happiness,

"Ha!" cried Jack, "I see Master Or. well has not pled his cause in vain. Come to me, dear Aggie, and tell me what you mean to do."

He seated her on his knee and put his arm fondly and tenderly round her.

"I will do whatever you wish, Uncle Jack," she whispered in the fullness of her happiness, and hid her blushing face in his bosom.

"Then I wish you to go with me to Orwell and heal his stricken heart, as only you are able to do. You will find him immensely better for his trials. The discipline has been salutary: it has strengthened his character, weaned him from folly—in fact, made a new man of him."

"Only think, mother," said Agnes; "he was here at our window one night, and we never knew,"

"Here—Master Orwell, and did not come in."

"He says he had not the courage to present himself. The shipin which he sailed to America was becalmed in the bay for a night, and he came ashore to weep at May's grave he never knew; that she was so ill—that she was dying, Reuben Langton kept the truth from him."

"How wicked, oh! how wicked," said her mother. "And the dear boy came to our window and did not let us know he was there. Ah! he, too, always had a warm, generous heart.

They sat in the porch till the sun went down, heedless of the passing hours in the absorbing interest of their talk. They never even thought of food till Jessie suddenly remembered that Jack had not got tea—perhaps had even got no dinner. He had eaten nothing since midday, but the excitement of the succeeding events had banished all feeling of hunger. They were all ready to declare that they were too happy to eat. Neverthless Jessie went inside to prepare the evening meal, leaving the others to continue their talking in the porch.

In the gloaming came David Ramsay, under the influence of strong excitement, produced by the news of what had taken place at the sale. The intelligence had spread far and wide that Orwell Bruce was in America, and that the estate had been bought for him by the stranger who had for a week or two lodged with Mrs. Borland. The exciting news, however, did not reach David Ramsay until well on in the evening. He had been hard at work within the high walls of the garden all the afternoon, sadly reflecting as he plied the rake and hoe that the Grange with all its belongings was that day passing into an alien's hand. This made his thoughts both sad and bitter, and kept him in the garden till near sunset, he having no wish to hear how triumphantly Anthony Langton had carried himself at the sale.

After quitting the garden he repaired to his solitary room, and having got ready and eaten his evening meal, was sitting by the window, nursing the same sad thoughts, when his mediations were suddenly broken in upon by one of the labourers at the Home farm, who entering in haste, loudly demanded why he was not outside rejoicing with the rest of them. Then, in answer to his wondering questions, the astonished tidings were communicated which sent him across the park in amazed excitement to Mrs. Borland's cottage.

They saw him in the distance, and his coming was an increase to the pleasure of the hour. It just wanted his presence to complete the inner circle of their private joy.

"You need not be afraid to trust him with everything," said Mrs. Borland. "David would rather die than divulge the secret."

"I always meant that he should share my confidence," said Jack. "In fact, I half betrayed myself to him already, by inadvertently letting him understand that I had once worked in the Grange garden.

Now, he shall have his natural curiosity fully satisfied."

"Well," cried Jack, cheerily, as David came, hot and breathless, up the garden path, "are you still resolved on leaving your situation at the Grange?"

"Nae fears o' me," cried David. "But what is this o't? Oh, sir, let me hear it frae yersel that Master Orwell is in America, and that the Grange is still his."

"It is true, David; perfectly true. My mission is fulfilled, and I am now free to throw off the mystery."

"What say ye now, Mrs. Borland? Did I no aye tell ye that Master Orwell lived and wad come back?"

"So you did, David. While we were all desponding you were confident,"

"Had you any special reason for your confidence, David?" asked a happy voice beside him.

He turned and saw the face of Agnes Borland radiant with joy.

"Oh, my pet," he exclaimed, "but I am glad to see you happy like that. The roses will be back to yer cheeks sune noo. If I wasna a' dirty just as I cam' oot o' the garden I wad tak' ye in my arms and gie ye a hearty kiss."

Ere the words were spoken Agnes had her fair arms round his neck, and her warm lips pressed to his.

"Tell me," she earnestly continued, "tell me if you had any particular reason for believing as you did that Orwell would return?"

"Yes, dear, I had. There can be nae harm now in lettin' you oot that I saw him ae munelicht nicht in the park, and doon on his knees outside the kitchen window.'

"And you never told us," said Agnes, in something like a reproachful tone.

"No, dear; I thought I had nae richt to dae sae."

"Did you speak to him? Did he forbid ye?"

"He never saw me; but frae the way in which he cam' and went it was plain to me that he wanted his veesit to be unkenned. I felt I wasna at liberty to mention what I had seen; but I went as far as I could in aye speakin' positive o' his return."

"And often your assuring words kept us from falling into despair," said Mrs. Borland, as she gratefully took his hand. "Now you must share in the fulness of our joy. Who do think this is?" she added, drawing him forward to Jack.

The Railway Agitation in Peel Township.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—I see in your issue of this week the account of very enthusiastic meetings in Goldstone and Alma, in favor of the "Arthur Junction Railway," at the former of which it was "unanimously resolved to protest against any overlapping of territory" in favor of the Waterloo, Wellington and Georgian Bay Railway, with regard to the sectional bonuses for these roads.

Now sir, the means used by this Arthur Junction Company to defeat the W.W. and G. B.R.R. scheme is both unfair and contemptible. On the 7th of May, 1879, the Peel Council submitted a by-law to the electors for the consideration of the propriety of granting a $6,000 bonus to the A. J. R. Co. to assist in building a road from Arthur to Goldstone, distance seven miles This by-law was defeated, and this winter the Council submitted another by-law to grant a bonus of $30,000 to the W. W. and G. B. Company, which was also defeated by a majority of eighty-three. Upon investigation it was found that in the Arthur ward there was only one vote for this by-law, and 109 against it, thereby causing its defeat. It was now resolved by the W. W. & G. B. Co., to submit a sectional by-law, striking off this Arthur ward and part of two concessions in the North, and to reduce the bonus to $24,000. thereby leaving the rate of taxation exactly the same as if the $30,000 had been carried on the whole township in order that the friends who had voted for the road should have no reason to vote against it now.

The necessary petition to the Council was at once numerously and influentially signed, and placed in the Reeve's hands. All this time the A. J. R. affair had been unheard of, its friends however, maintaining a "dog in the manger" sort of opposition towards the W. W. & G. B. R. scheme. As soon, however, as they heard of the sectional by-law they made all possible haste to get up a petition for a by-law, also sectional, to grant their bonus of $6,000, taking great care to take in a good part of the territory already expressed in the petition now in the Reeve's hands. Not only this but persons who took around this petition told some confidentially that the object was not to get the $6,000, as they would never be asked for it, but to defeat the by-law for $24,000 for the W. W. & G. B. R. by any means they could.

Now, sir, with regard to the respective merits of these roads, it is necessary to say but little; but we might briefly glance at the benefits arising from the construction of these roads.

The W. W. & G. B. Company propose to build fourteen miles of road in the township, a branch of the Grand Trunk, the acknowledged railroad of Canada, at a total cost of about $90,000, crossing the G. W. R.—the second best road—almost in the centre of the township, thus giving the great advantage of competing lines direct access to Guelph, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and other of our cities, making direct connection at Buffalo, N. Y., with the principal New York lines, and giving through shipment to the sea-board for our products. These are some of the advantages the people of Peel were to secure by voting for the $30,000 bonus. And not only this, but they were to have $90,000 expended in this township on a great public work, whose benefits were not confined to any particular part of the people, by paying $30,000, not a single dollar of which was to be paid till the road was completed and the cars running upon it. This latter was certainly enough to convince the most prejudiced that no fraud was intended by the Company.

On the other hand, what the benefits are to arise from the construction of a railway from Arthur to Goldstone, we in the south cannot see, nor have we been told; what meetings have been held in its favour, have been held in the north without, as knowing anything of them. Perhaps this road would enhance the value of town property in Arthur a little, which perhaps accounts for the deep interest Mr. Chadwick and some of his friends take in the matter.

In short, the Arthur Junction Co'y. knowing that even with $6,000 from Peel, they cannot build their "line," they console themselves by throwing every conceivable obstacle in the way of the other and more deserving scheme, which is neither fair nor gentlemanly. With regard to the resolution adopted at Goldstone last week, if there is any "overlapping" done, the Junctionists are the aggressors, as they did not draw up their petition till after the petition of the others had been signed, the bounds of territory struck, and the petition in the hands of the Reeve, who very prudently wishing to save the expense of a special meeting, waited till the regular meeting of the Council—during which interval the Arthur people in conjunction with their powerful neighbors of Alma, got up their petition and presented it.

In conclusion, if the people in the north are so enthusiastic over the Arthur Junction Railway, as is represented, why is the Company not satisfied to take in the territory excluded in the second petition of the people in the south? There is just sufficient to make the $6,000 with exactly the same rate as their southern neighbors are willing to pay for their road. If they consider this seven mile link the missing one in the railroad chain of the country and without which it is incomplete, why, all we have to say is, have it, and pay for it. The south perhaps is as able to pay $24,000 for what will certainly be a universal gain, as they are to pay $6,000 for what is comparatively speaking, a nuisance.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for the valuable space in your columns trespassed upon.

I am, yours sincerely,
FAIR PLAY.

Grain from New Zealand.

The other day we received from Mr. W. B. Beney, late of Guelph, and now agent for Mr. W. J. Lyon in New Zealand, eight samples of prize grain, which he sent from that country, with the request that we would make the best use of them we could. We at once sent them to Prof. Brown, of the Agricultural College, who will thoroughly test them in the experimental plot at the Farm. Mr. Brown acknowledges their receipt in the following letter:—

ONTARIO EXPERIMENTAL FARM,
April 3rd, 1880

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I beg to thank you for eight samples of grain-wheat, barley and oats, received from Mr. W. B. Beney, of Oamaru, New Zealand. I propose to sow one half of each and retain the balance for reference, and of course the results will be given to the MERCURY at the proper time. Meantime, it may interest your readers to hear what the different samples are like.

Of wheat, there are White wheat, Red straw, Red chaff and Tuscan. The berries of the white wheat are remarkably circular, that is, they are about as broad as they are long; it took first prize as a special exhibit, and may then be something new even to the New Zealanders. It is the best colored of the lot,—all the others having a dullish tinge, or a medium between our best fall and spring sorts. Of course you will remember that the Australian islands have no need to distinguish times in sowing wheat, and so they speak only of one seed time. These wheats do not possess the same beautiful colouring and plumpness of our Soule, nor are they so dark and lanky as some of our best spring sorts. Except the Red chaff, all are inclined to be flinty; the Tuscan and Red straw are largest in berry, and naturally have a more open bosom, and not so thin skinned as the others. In some respects they resemble a few of the American wheats more than any Canadian ones.

The one sample of barley is Chevalier, a two-rowed variety with us, and in England. This New Zealand specimen is very fine indeed—uniform in colour, thin skinned, well filled, and altogether not second to anything they generally produce. May it be that the lightish volcanic soils of that country grow barley better than some wheats?

The oats sent are white, of three kinds, Canadian, Potato and Danish; the poorest is the Danish, resembling many of our own in length; Potato is not equal to the kind of the same name in England, but about equal to those grown in Canada under this name; it is however fairly plump, but not too long, well colored, and has the same thick skin as ours. I cannot speak too highly of the appearance of what is called the Canadian kind. A more even, plump, and bright colored sample is rarely to be met with. I should like to have 100 bushels of them at any price almost. Of course they have been well got up for exhibition—probably hand picked. They have an old taste.

Along with these grain samples you have sent me what is said to be the growth from one grain of wheat. There is a bunch of straw, with roots, about five inches in diameter, and showing no fewer than 80 distinct plants. This is, of course, extraordinary tillering or stooling. Such things are, however, very deceiving, as unless the grain had been specially planted and watered, it is not safe to say that one would give even the half of this; there is now no means of checking this fact of one or more grains having had to do with this specimen of reproduction. It is not impossible but very unusual; if common in New Zealand, it tells of a most propitious soil and climate and partly of the peculiarity of some kinds of wheat and oats especially. It reminds me of the rank growth of oats upon new land. We shall place it in our museum

In the name of the school, I beg again to thank you for those interesting New Zealand samples.

W. BROWN.

Farming in New Zealand.

Mr. Beney also sends us the following letter, which he received in reply to some inquiries about farming in New Zealand, and which will be of interest to our readers:

OAMARU, NEW ZEALAND,
26th Feb., 1880.

DEAR SIR,—Agreeably to your request, I pen a few particulars of farming in this district. My brother and I own 260 acres, which cost £13 15s 0d. per acre three years ago, and at that time had been laid down to English grass for a like period. To work the farm we have seven horses, two double furrow ploughs, one brake of six leaf harrows, three farm drays, &c. &c. This season we have 255 acres in crop, viz., 40 acres of wheat, 30 acres of barley, the balance in oats, the whole being spring crop. Ploughing commenced in the month of June, and finished seeding by the middle of October, the work being done by my brother and another hired hand. Harvesting commenced the first week in this month, and will finish about the end of the month. The threshing will take about a fortnight, and will mostly be done from the stook, very little of the crop being stacked. The machines used for harvesting are a W. A. Wood's reaper and binder, and a local made manual back delivery reaper. The quantity of seed sown was: Wheat, 1 bushel per acre, oats 2 bushels and barley 1½ bushels. The yield of wheat I estimate at 50 bushels per acre, but on account of the spring and summer being more moist than usual the oats and barley have suffered a good deal. This has been the case more especially on heavy land, while it suited lighter soils. Ours is of the former description, and on account of the immense growth the greater portion of the oats and barley are laid. This of course will materially affect the yield as a whole. The standing oats I estimate at 80 bushels (the previous owner one season threshed 90 bushels from the same ground.) The laid oats I cannot estimate at present. The standing barley looks like 60 bushels. The laid barley like the oats I cannot form any idea of. Any other information I shall be happy to give at any time.

I particularly wish to hear from any one who may try the new variety of wheat handed to you, and as you saw it growing you can say it is an average head, by no means the best, as I have picked those for seed.

P. S.—I have got a few grains of American wheat to try next season, the "Champion" and two other varieties, one of them a bearded wheat.

I am, sir,
Yours truly,
GEORGE M. BRUCE.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

FATAL ACCIDENT.—About a week ago, Conrad Crook, of Albemarle, met with an accident that cost him his life. He and his brother were scoring timber, and Conrad getting in too close proximity to his brother's axe received a terrible gash through the calf of his leg, which severed the main artery and nearly half the bone also. He was taken home after a considerable lapse of time, the wound having in the meantime been imperfectly bandaged, but he died before medical assistance could be procurred.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

FATAL FRACAS IN COLLINGWOOD.—Colin McDonald, of Nottawasaga Township, went into the Dominion Hotel, Collingwood, on Saturday evening, in a state of intoxication, and asked the proprietor, H. Cameron, if there was any money left for him. Cameron told him he knew nothing of it, to go upstairs and ask Mrs. Cameron, which he did, and on being told there was nothing for him, he commenced using abusive language. Cameron went upstairs, where he and McDonald had some altercation. They then started down stairs, where McDonald called Cameron some improper names and made a kick at him. Cameron caught his foot, which caused him to fall down stairs, fracturing his skull, from the effects of which he died in three hours.

WOOLENS.

SHAW & MURTON WOULD RESPECTFULLY announce that having placed their orders for imported and Canadian Woollens, for this Spring's trade, early last fall, they are enabled, notwithstanding the great rise that has taken place in all classes of goods during the last few months, to take orders for clothing at old prices.

SUITINGS.

They would most especially direct attention to their Worsted Coatings and Scotch Tweed Suitings, which this season excel both in quality and design. Also to a new style of English Hard Felt Hat, which is much finer in quality, and lighter in weight than has been manufactured in Britain heretofore.

FURNISHINGS.

In the Furnishing Department we have a new make of Spring Kid Gloves, equal in quality to the celebrated Dent's Gloves, and much cheaper. Also French Cambric Shirts—the nicest colors ever introduced. A general assortment of fine Furnishing Goods can always be obtained from,

Yours most respectfully,

Are Always the Lowest

The Reason Why I can Undersell my Competitors every Time.

Because I have attended close to my own business and let other people's alone; and buy for cash instead of on credit, thereby saving the cash discount, which amounts to a good deal in a year.

Because I live free of rent, which is a large item; am independent in buying; go into the market with the ready money, and am able to take advantage of a bargan when it offers, and because I know how to buy, and am able to pay prompt cash, thereby getting the choicest goods and at lower rates than the man who has to buy on credit.

The money is made in the buying, and I am satisfied with small profits at

Local News.

POLICE COURT.—There was a clear calender at the Police Court to-day.

MAYOR SLEEMAN is not yet able to leave his house.

THOMAS KENNY, who assaulted his father with a knife last week, is still at large.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Fresh to brisk northerly to westerly winds, partly cloudy, continued cool weather.

DOMINION TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—This Company have opened offices at Preston and Glenmorris, in Waterloo county.

THE BOY'S OWN PAPER, an excellent periodical, published by the Religious Tract Society of London, has been received at Day's bookstore.

APRIL CATTLE FAIR.—The monthly cattle fair held to-day (Wednesday) was not very largely attended by either buyers or farmers. There was a very fair number of cattle offered, but with few exceptions they were only second class animals. The market was quiet and prices lower than at the Easter fair, the average being $4 per 100 lbs. In a few cases $5 per 100 lbs. was paid. About one hundred head changed hands.

MUNSON'S PHONOGRAPHIC NEWS.—We are in receipt of this monthly magazine for February. It contains a report of the seventh annual dinner of the New York Law Stenographer's Association, embracing a number of speches on the value of shorthand to the press and courts of law. It contains a number of excellent speeches on shorthand, besides Editorial paragraphs and a learner's department. Copies may be had by addressing James E. Munson, P.O. box 3722, New York City.

REDUCTION IN TELEGRAPH RATES.—Both the Montreal and Dominion Telegraph Company's have made reductions in their night rates for messages to cities in the Eastern and New England States and to the Maritime Provinces. The night rate to the Maritime Provinces is 20 cents and to cities in the Eastern States 25 cents, being a reduction of 15 cents on each message containing under 12 words.

SALE OF FANCY SHEEP.—Mr. George Hood sold four sheep of the border Leicester breed, the other day to Mr. John Kelly, Jr., of Shakspeare. The animals are well bred. Two of the ewes were imported by Hon. George Brown, for Bow Park, from the celebrated flock of Lord Polwarth. Mr. Kelly is going somewhat extensively into breeding this class of sheep, and is a formidable rival to prominent breeders of the same class in this district.

SPRING FLOODS.—Since the recent heavy rains both the Speed and Eramosa rivers have swollen very much, but the flood is not so great as it generally is in the spring. A great portion of the flats below the junction of the rivers has been under water, but within the last day or two the water has lowered somewhat. As the rivers are clear of ice the bridges, some of which are not too secure at any time, will not be in any immediate danger of being taken away.

SUCCESSFUL EXAMINATION. — We are pleased to learn that Mr. N. L. McPhatter, of Fergus, has just passed his final examination before Trinity Medical College in a very successful manner, having taken first-class honors in most of the subjects. This examination will admit him to the Degree of Fellowship of that College, which will be granted him in the course of a few days. We congratulate him on the success he has attained, and the more so when we learn that his examination embraced the work of third and fourth terms. We understand it is his intention during the coming year to visit the principal hospitals of Europe for the purpose of further completing his medical attainments. We tender him our best wishes, and hope his visit may be as interesting, as no doubt it will prove instructive.

EMIGRANTS FOR MANITOBA.—The flow of emigration to Manitoba and the Western States continues. This (Wednesday) forenoon two trains filled with Canadians from Eastern districts passed through on the Grand Trunk Railway. The first train was composed of fifteen freight cars and five passenger cars drawn by two locomotives. On the second train were eleven freight cars and two passenger coaches. The freight was principally farming implements, household furniture, seed grain and live stock. It was expected the number of emigrants would increase considerably before the trains reached Sarnia. Two trains are following these and will pass through towards evening.

RUNAWAY.——This (Wednesday) forenoon a horse attached to a buggy belonging to Wm. McMillan ran away from the American Hotel. The buggy collided with the Wellington Hotel omnibus, which was standing in front of the hotel. The runaway horse continued on its career and when opposite the grocery store of Loch ran into his waggon. The buggy was broke and was dragged on its side as far as the post office, when the horse was stopped. The harness was somewhat damaged and the buggy broken in various parts. The only damage besides caused by the runaway was the breaking of a spring on H. Loch's waggon.

The Manitowaning Expositor (27th ult) says:—On Sunday evening last R. A Lyon, M.P.P., accompanied by Ed. Borron, arrived here on his way home, after a somewhat perlious trip. He left Owen Sound on the tug Prince Alfred on the 6th inst. at 5 p.m. which was frozen in near Tobermorey. After waiting four days the passengers started on foot for Owen Sound (86 miles), where they arrived Saturday evening; Monday morning Mr. Lyon left Meaford by train, arriving at Gravenhurst the same evening; he took stage from thence to Parry Sound; from there he started for Bying Inlet, where he arrived Friday afternoon; Jas. Buck volunteered to drive the party from thence to Killarney, and they arrived at Collins' Inlet Saturday; on Sunday they drove through to Michael's Bay via Killarney and Manitowaning in one day, having made a round of 500 miles on account of the unlucky storm which drove back the tug when Mr. Lyon was almost within sight of his own door.

Asbestos has been found on the lands of Wm. Banbreau and Thomas Greatrix, near Bridgewater, County Hastings. W. L. Clapp in the same locality, who found an iron mine on his farm, has leased it to an American company for twenty years.

Forty thousand dollars have been expended at Barrie by men engaged in securing the ice crop. Sixteen houses, containing from 14,000 to 18,000 tons each, have been filled.

Middlesex Assizes.

The Biddulph Murders.

LONDON, April 6. — The Middlesex Assizes opened at one o'clock this afternoon, before Chief Justice Wilson. More than ordinary interest was manifested in the proceedings. The alleged murderers of the Donnellys were among the prisoners, and it was anticipated that his Lordship would make special reference to them in his charge to the Grand Jury, which he did, and at considerable length. The first charge on the criminal calendar is as follows, and refers to the Donnelly tragedy:—The Queen v. James Carroll, John Kennedy, Thomas Ryder, John Purtell, Martin McLaughlin and James Ryder.—Murder.

After the Grand Jury was sworn, His Lordship charged the Jury at considerable length, reviewing the whole circumstances connected with the murder of the Donnelly family, and the duty of the jury in the premises. He said: If you think the evidence is sufficient you will find a true bill, and even if you doubt whether it is sufficient for that purpose it is better to find the bill than to ignore it, because the case will, upon the bill being found, be more fully considered by the Court and the petit jury and a final disposition made of it, which cannot be made by a Grand Jury.

The affidavits and other documents necessary for the change of venue, are all prepared, and will probably be supplemented by a speech from the Crown officer. The necessity for a change of venue grows more and more obvious every day. In the large crowd that attended the opening of the Court not a word of sympathy for the Donnelly family could be heard. The feeling was all for the accused, and more than one man said he would not hang them if the evidence was ever so strong against them.

There was a large number of Biddulph people in town and many of them visited the prisoners, who are said to be in good spirits but anxious for their trial to come on.

Bill Donnelly arrived in the afternoon, and was closeted a short time with Mr. Irving, who had also a number of other Crown witnesses before him.

SOCIAL.—The Ladies' Association of Dublin Street Methodist Church will hold an after tea social on Thursday evening, April 15th.

THE net receipts of the late band concert amount to $52.25. The band will repeat the concert on the evening of the 24th of May, with a much more attractive programme.

A MUSICAL union has been formed among the members of St. George's Society. The meeting called for this evening will have to be postponed on account of the delay in securing suitable music.

JOS. MURPHY who has been confined in the Penitentiary for seventeen months for committing an indecent assault here, will be liberated on the 6th of May, when his term of imprisonment will have expired.

ERAMOSA ROAD.—As usual at this time of the year the Eramosa road is almost impassable with mud, and there are a number of ruts in the roadway which make travelling dangerous to vehicles.

GRAIN MARKET.—This market was larger to day than it has been for some weeks, and produce was readily disposed of at current prices.

INTERIM SESSIONS.—The arguments in the case of Jenks & Co., against Doran, were concluded on Tuesday evening, which closed the business of the session. Judgment was reserved.

A FEE ON HAWKERS.—Until quite recently hawkers were allowed to sell on the Market Square without paying a fee for the privilege. The injustice of allowing those who pay nothing towards the revenue of the city, to sell without being licensed, while resident auctioneers who paid taxes had also to pay a license fee, has been already referred to by us. It is satisfactory to learn that an arrangement has been made by which hawkers will pay a fee of $1 every time they offer their wares for sale.

SUSPICION OF LARCENY.—On Friday, James Farrel, an old soldier, received his pension money from London, and after drinking pretty freely, went to the house of Patrick McTague, St. Patrick's Ward, in a state of intoxication. While there, fourteen dollars in bank notes were abstracted from his pockets. Information of the theft was conveyed to the Chief of Police, and he went to the house and searched the clothes of the occupants. The money was found under the chair on which Mrs. Mullin was seated, and she is suspected of stealing it.

DEATH OF A BASE BALL PLAYER.—News has been received in this city of the death of Harry L. Spence, an old base ball player, who at one time belonged to the Maple Leafs. He died at Savannah, Georgia, of consumption, about six weeks ago, after a lingering illness. He was twice married, first to Mrs Spence of this city, who sued him for divorce and won the suit some months ago, and a second time to a Rochester woman in Lockport, N. Y., some months ago.

Marvin Knowlton, of London, was arrested on Monday for being drunk and dangerous. He was remanded to jail until the 12th inst. Knowlton was formerly an extensive lumber dealer in London, but took too much liquor; subsequently he reformed and became an eloquent temperence lecturer; but the old demon seems to have got hold of him again.

The Earl of Dunmore, who has just arrived in New York, is the most eminent stock raiser in Scotland. He is going west to start a cattle ranch in Montana. He intends to buy several thousand head of cattle in Texas and have them transported to his ranch during the coming summer. It is his further intention to import two hundred or three hundred bulls of his own favorite breed, and he is sanguine of raising a stock of cattle second to none. His ultimate intention is to ship beef to England preserved by the refrigerating process.

It is rumoured that the witness Lewis, in the Biddulph murder case, who was brought from Port Huron has been removed to St. Thomas gaol for safe keeping.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 6.

Sir John Macdonald introduced a Bill for the final settlement of claims to lands in Manitoba by occupancy.

Mr. Abbott introduced in blank a Bill to provide for the distribution of the assets of Insolvent traders. r. Wallace (Norfolk) had previously introduced a Bill to the same effect, and Mr. Abbott's was withdrawn.

The debate on the motion to go into Committee of Ways and Means was resumed by Sir Leonard Tilley, who submitted several amendments to the tariff for adoption by the House. He then claimed the right to reply to the criticisms of the financial statement made during the Budget debate. After presenting a comparative statement to show that his Estimates for the next fiscal year were actually less than those introduced by Sir Richard Cartwright—a result he arrived at by eliminating all the special votes from his estimates, but retaining them in Sir Richard Cartwright's—he proceeded to claim that the taxation per capita had not increased so much under the National Policy as the Opposition claimed. Alluding to the constitution of the Pacific Railway, he admitted that during the present and approaching fiscal years the Government intended to expend ten millions of dollars annually on the road so as to complete the Thunder Bay branch immediately; but afterwards it would be reduced to five millions of dollars annually. The remainder of the road from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains is estimated to cost thirteen thousand dollars per mile. After recess he concluded his speech, and in the course of his remarks admitted that the Conservatives had tried to make the N. P. in the Ontario local election an issue, but had failed to do so.

Sir Albert Smith followed. He reviewed the anti-Confederation utterances of Sir Leonard when he was advocating the entrance of New Brunswick into the Confederation, and pointed out the utter failure of his predictions. Alluding to the stigma cast by Sir Charles Tupper upon Sir Richard Cartwright, that he was king of deficits, Sir Albert turned the tables by showing that Sir Alexander Galt had to declare, when Finance Minister, the largest deficits within the experience of this country, and yet he was now the man whom the Tories delighted to honour. In conclusion, he dwelt at length upon the prejudicial operation of the tariff on the lumbering and shipping interests of the Maritime Provinces, and especially New Brunswick.

The debate was continued by Mr. Tasse (Ministerialist) and Mr. Gillmor (Liberal). The latter dwelt more particularly on the effects of the National Policy in New Brunswick than in the other Provinces, and gave facts and figures demonstrating beyond question that the shipping and lumbering interests had been seriously affected by the Government's fiscal policy.

HARRISTON.

The first public entertainment under the auspices of Guthrie Church Young People's Association since its organization, took place in the town hall on Tuesday evening of last week. Mayor Meiklejohn occupied the chair. The programme consisted of dialogues, readings, recitations and music, both vocal and instrumental, all of which was well performed. Mr. Geo. Bingham, Principal of the Harriston Central School, gave a fine recitation. Readings by Messrs. Blackwood and Henderson were all well rendered, and elicited enthusiastic applause. The Rev. John Baikie delivered a very appropriate address on the object of the Association. The entertainment, which was successful in every particular, concluded with "God save the Queen."

The ladies of the C. M. congregation held a social in the vestry of the church on Thursday evening of last week, in aid of the building fund, in connection with which the Rev. J. R. Gundey delivered a lecture on courtship and marriage. Mr. J. Grain occupied the chair, and opened the proceedings by calling on the choir for a piece of music. Afterwards he introduced the lecturer. The Rev. gentleman dwelt very eloquently for about an hour and a half on the features that should characterize courtship, especially when a matrimonial union was contemplated. Also the manner of preparing for the wedding day, and how it should be approached, and the day being over how life in the new home should be begun, and the duty the newly married pair owe to each other. The lecture throughout was good, having in it many points well worthy of the consideration of those who have already or who purpose entering into matrimony. The meeting closed by singing by the choir, and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Baikie.

Notwithstanding the unpropitious state of the roads and the inclemency of the weather, the cattle fair on Friday last was very largely attended, and was the most successful of the season. Good cattle were in large demand, and brought good prices, consequently a large amount of money changed hands. Horses, too, were in good demand, and quite a number changed hands. One good feature in connection with the fair was that fewer animals were driven home unsold than on any previous fair for sometime.

Dr. Harvey has removed his office and residence to the residence recently purchased by him and formerly occupied by D. McDougall, on Webb street, nearly opposite St. George's Church, where he will carry on the practice of his profession.

A. & J. Meiklejohn, hardware merchants, have laid in a large and well selected stock of general hardware for supplying blacksmiths and the country generally, which, being bought in the best markets on the best terms, they will be prepared to sell as cheap as can be got elsewhere. This old established firm is bound to keep the lead.

Erin Correspondence.

The Erin quarterly fair, held in Erin Village to-day, was largely attended. Notwithstanding the large number of cattle that have been bought up in this section for delivery in May, there was quite a number offered, which met with ready sale at good prices. A number of milk cows were disposed of, and some horses were offered. There was also more than the usual quantity of farm implements on exhibition.

In the afternoon a public meeting was held, pursuant to notice, in the Town Hall, for the purpose of taking into consideration the propriety of changing the fair from a quarterly to a monthly one. The meeting was largely represented by farmers and others. On motion, Mr. D. McMillan was elected chairman, and Mr. R. Wood, secretary.

It was moved by Mr. H. Milloy, and seconded by Mr. John McMillan, that a monthly fair be held in Erin Village. The motion was supported by short speeches from Messrs. Bordwell, Milloy, McMillan, McNaughton, Wood, Robinson, Binnie, Glover, Teeter, Sutton, Smith, &c., and carried unanimously.

Moved by Mr. T. Wansbrough, that the fair be held on the Monday before the Guelph fair. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Milloy, and seconded by Mr. McLachlan, that the County Council be petitioned to pass a by-law to that effect. Carried.

The Municipal Council was in session to-day.

The fourth Annual Spring Show of stallions will be held at Hillsburgh, on the 20th inst.—open to the Province.

Erin, April 5th, 1880.

The Markets.

APRIL 7.—In Liverpool a small business was transacted at lower prices, while Beerbohm reports floating cargoes of wheat and corn as firmer. In Chicago very little business was done, but prices were firm. New York dull and steady. In Montreal, the local grain market continues dull and unchanged. Canada spring wheat was quoted to-day at $1 37 to $1 39. Corn 58c. duty paid. Peas, 81c to 82c for May delivery, 86c to 87½c are quoted; some fine samples are held at 89c to 90½c. Oats, 32c. The provision market was without animation. New butter was quoted at 22c to 25c for good to choice. In Toronto, very little was done on Tuesday, and the demand for produce has almost wholly disappeared. Several lots of superior flour sold at $5 70; extra is nominal at $5 60; and 100 barrels of spring extra offered on 'Change at $5 65, with $5 50 bid. The receipts on the street market were 100 bushels of wheat, which brought $1 24 for fall, and $1 23 to $1 25 for spring. Peas are steady and dull, with no sales reported.

FATAL FIRE.—The Orangeville Advertiser says: It is reported that the house occupied by Mrs. Ferguson, a widow woman living alone on the 2nd line, Mono, was burnt to the ground on Wednesday night and that the poor woman was burnt to death.

Death of an Old Eramosa Man in California.

We learn from the San Diego Union of March 26th, of the death of Mr. Robert Rea, brother of Mr. David Rea, who left Eramosa in 1872 for the benefit of his health. The following notice of his death is from the Union of that date:—The melancholy intelligence was received yesterday morning of the death of Mr. Robert Rea at his ranch near the Cajon Valley. The remains were brought into town during the day, and taken to the Masonic Hall. The funeral will take place to-day at two o'clock, under the direction of San Diego Lodge No. 36, A. F. & A. M., of which he was a member. Mr. Rea had been a resident of this county since 1872, and was one of our most sterling citizens—a good and a true man in every relation of life—one whom the community could ill afford to lose. His bereaved family and relatives have the warm sympathy of all, in their great affliction. The following just and feeling tribute to his memory is offered by one who knew him intimately from the time of his arrival in San Diego until his death:

Robert Rea was born May 15th, 1850, in Wellington county, Ontario, Dominion of Canada, where he resided until his removal to this county. The rigorous winters of his native land had so much impaired his constitution and health that he deemed it necessary to seek a milder climate, which he did, making this county his choice, arriving here in September, 1872, in feeble health. Under the influence of this mild climate his health steadily improved until it appeared that he had completely regained it. Nearly three years ago while residing on his farm in the vicinity of Ranch Cajon, he from overexertion while the weather was exceedingly hot, received injuries which superinduced a return of his old malady, from which he could not recover; but bore it with remarkable fortitude to the end. The writer of this communication became acquainted with him on the day of his arrival here and has known him intimately ever since, and most willingly bears testimony to his unwavering business integrity and solid worth as a citizen. He leaves a widow and two small children to mourn their great affliction in his loss. His closing days were as peaceful as his life had been sincere and noble; and he died in triumphant hope in a blest immortality.

Separate School Board.

The board of R. C. Separate School Trustees held a regular meeting in the senior boys' class room. Present,—Messrs. John Harris, Jas. Mays, E. O'Donnell, J. E. M'Eldery, Jas. Ryan, N. Burns, Jas. Collins, W. S. Heffernan, D. O'Connor, Rev. P. Hamel, S. J. Mr. O'Donnell presented the report of the School Management Committee. They had visited the schools, and were very favourably impressed with the order and general management of the girl's school. The report was not very flattering as to the order kept in the boy's class rooms, and recommended that the local Superintendent enquire into the matter, and see that better order is observed. The committee estimate their expenses for the year, as follows:—

Senior boys' school, salaries	$700 00
Junior boys' school, salaries	300 00
Girl's school, salaries	400 00
Caretaker's salary	50 00
Wood	63 50
Prizes	50 00
Incidental expenses	60 00
Total	$1,623 50

Accounts for repairs amounting to $4 50 were ordered to be paid.

The attention of the Board was called to an article which appeared in the Irish Canadian of the 17th ult., referring to the returns sent by Separate Schools to the Education Department. The Local Superintendent will report on this matter at next meeting.

A vote of thanks to the City Council for granting the use of the Council Chamber for the holding of the meetings was passed.

The meeting adjourned.

MRS. J. T. DALTON (nee Miss Sallie Holman,) is dangerously ill at Ottawa, and her recovery is despaired of.

Within the past ten days four infants have been deserted, in Toronto.

Three hundred immigrants arrived by the Hibernian at Halifax on Monday.

A by-law passed its second reading at the last meeting of the Winnipeg City Council, imposing a tax of $100 each on travellers for merchant tailors, who are reported as taking $8,000 per annum out of Winnipeg.

Another strike is reported on section 15 of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Back pay and a guarantee for $2 per day for the future are the reasons assigned for the strike.

The Bruce Spring Assizes opened at Walkerton on Tuesday before Judge Armour. There are eight civil cases and seventeen criminal on the docket. The most important of the later is one of murder.

To show how French domination exists it has but to be stated that in the Government workshops at Ottawa the foreman of the carpenters, the foreman of the cabinet makers, the foreman of the painters and the time-keeper are all French Canadians, while the majority of workmen employed is of the same nationality.

WEDNESDAY EV'NG, APRIL 7, 1880.

More Gains for the Liberals in Britain.

The elections on Tuesday resulted in the return of 16 Liberals, 6 Conservatives, and 14 Home Rulers. The latest returns from all over show the election of 227 Liberals, 163 Conservatives and 35 Home Rulers, giving a net Liberal gain of 68. The total Liberal vote so far is 1,288,000, a gain of 328,000. The total Conservative vote so far is 908,000, a gain of 110,000.

Messrs. T. Dillon and Patrick Smith, Home Rulers, have been elected to Parliament for Tipperary county, a Home Rule gain of one. Smith is the best speaker among the Home Rulers, and favours repeal of the union. For Cork city, Daly and Parnell, Home Rulers, have been elected, receiving 1,928 and 1,505 respectively, defeating Mr. Goulding, Conservative, and Mr. Murphy, Liberal. Messrs. Goulding and Murphy represented Cork in the last House. Mr. Parnell only announced his determination to contest Cork at the end of last week in order to oust Murphy. He declared the present aspect of the elections rendered it necessary that the Irish party in Parliament should be strong enough to force concessions from the Whig Government as it had done from the Tory Government. He asserted Mr. Murphy, as a Whig and a supporter of Lord Hartington, was unworthy of the suffrages of the Irish people. Mr. J. O'Connor Power, Home Ruler, has been re-elected to Parliament for Mayo county. The election in Cork passed off without any exciting incidents, though there were the usual number of small fights in the evening. The Tory journals in England unanimously hail the important fact that the Liberals have secured a clear working majority without taking into account the Home Rulers, who had hoped to hold the balance of power and turn the scale their own hands.

The Liberals are preparing for a great demonstration in honour of Mr. Gladstone. It is rumoured at the Carlton Club that Beaconsfield will advise the Queen to send for Gladstone. The difficulty about his position will probably be settled by his becoming head of the new Government with the understanding that after a year or two he shall retire from Parliament and be succeeded by Lord Granville. No Minister could lead the House of Commons with Gladstone in the position of irresponsible dictator. He must represent the Government in the Commons, go to the House of Lords, or quit public life. The Times commenting on his election in Midlothian says:—This Liberal victory is a heavy blow to the territorial influence of the Duke of Buccleuch, who, at the same time, has seen the candidate he favoured beaten in Dumfriesshire, which was believed to be much stronger than Edinburghshire as a citadel of ducal conservatism." The Telegraph says: "Midlothian has been wooed in vain. The fiery, exhaustless ardour of Mr. Gladstone's eloquence has seduced, we had almost written ravished, the Scotch county. The great house of Buccleuch has been defeated upon ground that was once thought unassailable."

Mr. Wm. P. Adam, the Liberal whip, has been re-elected for Clackmannshire. Messrs. Lalor and O'Connor have been elected for Queen's County, a Home Rule gain of two. In Waterford county, Lord Charles Beresford, late the Conservative member, is defeated. Roscommon has returned Mr. Commins and Mr. O'Kelly, both Parnellites, the O'Connor Don being defeated by 370. Mr. McKenna has been elected for Youghal.

It is generally believed Lord Beaconsfield will only announce his resignation in the first sitting of the new Parliament. On the formation of a new Cabinet, Parliament will adjourn for a fortnight, to permit of the re-election of Ministers holding seats in the House of Commons. It seems that Beaconsfield, with that strong belief in the fates which has always characterized him, was confident his policy would be endorsed by the country. Tired of the vexations of public life, he had, according to the latest mail advices from England, as long ago as the 24th ult., resolved to retire into private life immediately after the summer session.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times states that the news of the Radical triumph has been received with a feeling of dismay and disappointment in India, which is about universal. Beaconsfield holds Lytton's resignation as Viceroy to take effect absolutely in case the elections are adverse to the Government. Beaconsfield might therefore appoint his successor. But he probably will not, as the new Ministry would almost certainly cancel the appointment.

How the National Policy affects Galt.

The Reformer thus replies to the references made by the Guelph Herald to that town, as an example of the benefits of the National Policy, and its statements have not yet been called in question by our neighbor: "If Galt be, in the Herald's opinion, one of the brightest examples of the beneficial effects of Protection, our cotem. is deluding itself by pictures which are nothing like the reality. It is true that two establishments in town are in a more flourishing condition than they have been for years. One of these, the saw factory, has largely increased its business every year since its establishment, but the rate of increase is no greater now than before the adoption of the National Policy. The other, the edge tool manufactory, has unquestionably been benefitted by the new tariff, although part of the increase of business is due to a revival of the lumber trade. But apart from these two instances, there has been no evidence of the benefits of the N. P. in this town. Our large engine and boiler and wood working establishments employ fewer hands than during the last year of the Mackenzie regime, and a falling off is noticeable in nearly all the other manufactories of the town. Nor have the workingmen received the slightest benefit in the way of increased wages. In fact, taking all our manufactories together and comparing the number of men employed now with the number employed in Mr. Mackenzie's time, it will be found that instead of an increase there has been a considerable decrease. These are facts which we challenge the Herald to make full investigation into, and contradict if it can. And what is true of Galt we believe to be true of the majority of Canadian towns. In believing that the N. P. has fulfilled the sanguine predictions made regarding its effects the Herald is simply hugging a delusion."

MR. LOWE, in his address to the English electors, speaks of the old Tory Protection laws as "laws for creating artificial famine."

THE people of San Francisco have said that the Chinese shall not go, for the crushing defeat of the Sand Lots party in that indicates a change of popular opinion which will doubtless prove greater elsewhere. The desertions from the Workingmen's party must have been very numerous, and will destroy its prestige. If the Citizens are firm and make good use of their advantage, the election will prove the beginning of the end of communism in California.

ON the Pacific Railway survey and district engineering staff there were employed last year no less than one hundred and forty persons at salaries varying from $30 to $375 per month, the average salary being $100.

ACCORDING to an official return submitted to Parliament the following list shows the number of employees on the Intercolonial Railroad between Riviere du Loup and the Chaudiere Juncion. French Canadians, 225; Irish, 10; English, 9; Scotch, 8; New Brunswickers, 3; Nova Scotians, 2; Norwegians, 1.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD has a short memory. He promised last session when attention was called to the fact that the printing of the Library catalogue had been taken away from the contractors and given to the Citizen office, that no more than contract rates would be paid. Notwithstanding this promise confidential rates were paid, and when questioned the other night Sir John coolly told the House that he had forgotten all about the promise he had made, and could not now promise that the matter would be remedied.

FOR all the attempts made by the Tory papers in Canada to belittle Mr. Jenkins, late member of Parliament for Dundee, Scotland, it seems that he was very popular in that city. At a meeting there, at which he announced his intention to retire from public life, over 6,000 persons were present and Mr. Jenkins was received with great enthusiasmt He was asked by the meeting to reconsider his decision, and on remaining firm to his resolve was requested to come back again, should he ever feel so inclined. The Mail will please make a note of this.

THERE is a great deal of good sense in the following from the Stratford Beacon, on the position of the Liberal party with reference to the Pacific Railway in British Columbia:—"It is a great pity that the Liberal party allowed themselves to be committed to this most outrageous scheme. It may not be too late even yet to change our policy in regard to this work. Any member who will come boldly forward and stand between the ratepayers and this huge undertaking, which threatens to crush the country, will deserve well of all parties. We don't see why Mr. Mackenzie might not change his policy in this regard. There is no disgrace connected with an honest change of opinion. Mr. Blake is understood to have always been opposed to the construction of this road except in so far as it was necessary to meet the requirements of the settlers in Manitoba."

A BILL has been introduced in the U. S. House of Representatives, which we think can have no chance of passing. It relates to the transportation of merchandise from points in the United States over Canadian railroads to other points in the United States, and provides that it shall be unlawful to carry merchandise from any point or port in the United States through the Dominion of Canada over Canadian railroads. The object of this Bill is mainly to keep in the United States the ten or fifteen millions of dollars now annually made by the Canadian railroad system out of American shippers. The bill is so exacting and one-sided in its nature that we cannot think Congress would ever give its sanction to it.

A lunatic named James McGinnis living in the sixth concession of Tyendinaga, Co. of Hastings, escaped from the custody of his friends on Monday morning, and mounting a horse rode off at head-long speed. After going some miles the horse fell from exhaustion, and Dr. McLaren, of Shannonville, approaching with a team of ponies, the madman turned them short, throwing the doctor out. He then seized the animals and drove off, and when the vehicle broke he took one of the ponies and rode off, but was finally seized and taken back to Belleville.

The North West Land Regulations.

The debate in the House of Commons on Monday on the North West Land Regulations was one of the most important held this session. Mr. Charlton, the mover of the resolutions, ably pointed out the many pernicious effects of the regulations, laying particular stress on the unfair manner in which they work in the case of the actual settler, who has the misfortune to settle alongside the speculator who holds land for a rise. It e out in the course o the debate—and the confession was reluctantly extorted from Sir John Macdonald—that it was through the indignant representations of the Globe that the unjust regulations agreed on by the Government last summer were in a couple of months changed to those now in force. Sir John Macdonald replied to Mr. Charlton, but he failed to upset his arguments or weaken his case. Among other things he made the curious calculation that there would be no difficulty in building the Pacific Road by means of our railway lands, but, as pointed out, he omitted from his calculation such important items as the amount necessary to pay the interest on money borrowed to build the road; also, that the population going into the country was not a foreign element, but came from Ontario. All will remember the fate which befell the glittering Pacific Railway resolutions introduced by the Government last year. The present delusive calculation is not likely to be any nearer realized. As a proof of the injurious effect of the present land regulations in Manitoba we need only cite the evidence of Mr. A. H. Taylor, an agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, who accompained the last party from Ontario through to the Northwest, and who has just returned. He states that the great majority of the party were composed of men who desired to settle in Manitoba, but found that they could not get lands within a reasonable distance of the capital of the province, and so declined going back from one to two hundred miles, paying a dollar an acre, when for the same price they can buy lands in Dakota within a few miles of the railway. Such are the fruits of the policy adopted by the Government and defended by its head. Instead of the tide of immigration flowing into Manitoba, the illiberal regulations of the Government are driving the best class of settlers from its borders, and they seek for land and a home in the States, where land can be got on the most favourable terms, and where every possible inducement is held out to the immigrant to settle.

A TALE OF

CHAPTER XXXVI.

MOURNING TURNED INTO JOY—THE CUP OF HAPPINESS FILLED TO OVERFLOWING—A PROSPEROUS LOVE SUIT—JACK BORLAND IN THE HANDS OF JUSTICE—REUBEN LANGTON'S TRIUMPH.

"Well, I dinna ken wha he is but he said as muckle ane day a let me ken he was nae stranger to the Grange garden."

"And from that moment," smiled Jack, "you suspected that John Wilson is not my real name."

"Tae tell ye the truth, I did."

"Have your suspicions gone further?"

"No. It beat me to think wha ye could be."

"Well, I am Jack Borland—Adam's brother."

"My guid gracious me," ejaculated David, "when I first cam' here I was tell't that Jack Borland was drowned in the Solway."

"So did everybody believe, so must they believe still, for it would be very dangerous to me if it became known that I am Jack Borland. I need not ask you to be silent, for I have not the slighest fear that you will betray me."

"Oh, sir, you must trust me. But when will Master Orwell return, and mak' oor happiness complete?"

"I cannot say, David, but when he does come I believe he will bring his wife with him."

"His wife, echoed David, looking aghast. "Is he—is he married?"

"Not yet but he expects to be soon."

"In America," added the old man.

"Yes," returned Jack, trying not to smile.

"Guid keep us a'," ejaculated David, turning a look of consternation towards Agnes, whose face of rosy red could not be clearly seen amid the evening shadows.

Jack burst out laughing, and the others joined him.

"Come inside and hear all about it," he exclaimed, his heart smiting him at the grave concern depicted on David's face. "But to at once remove all plain and apprehension from your mind, I must say that the bride whom Orwell Bruce brings to the Grange will be one whom you will welcome there with gladness and satisfaction.

In the kitchen round the amply spread table, with the lamp lighted, the curtains drawn, and the doors closed, David was fully informed of the plans which had been proposed by Jack before his arrival. Thus enlightened, his satisfaction was unbounded, and his honest face resumed the delighted aspect which sat upon it ere Jack's enigmatical words scared it away. The hour which followed was full of intense happiness, for the conversation to which it was devoted was made up of dear reminiscenses and bright anticipations. All could contribute to the general sum, for each had been intimately connected with the events of the past twenty years. It was Jack's experiences, however, which constituted the staple of the talk. His description of the scenes through which he had passed fascinated and chained them, especially his description of the adventures of the memorable night of his departure—the fight between the smugglers and revenue men—the fatal shot—his seizure—the arrival of Adam on the scene—the embarkation—his escape from the cutter—the sea fight—his rescue from the water by the men of the Ranger—and the meeting between him and Paul Jones. Then followed an account of the adventures experienced on board Paul's ship—the bloody battles and brilliant victories which he had witnessed and shared in. Here Miss Elliot could strike in with her adventures in the same connection, and recall with Jack all that had occurred from the capture of her father's ship to her parting from Paul and Jack at the lonely promontory of St. Abb's Head.

What could the other's do but listen with bated breath and parted lips to these thrilling narratives, well able from the vivid descriptions to imagine the various scenes, the dangers, and horrors. David Ramsay sat like one entranced. To a man whose life had been so circumscribed and uneventful, such adventures fell nothing short of the marvellous. At the chief points he could only sit gaping with astonishment, which he occasionally gave vent to by ejaculating—"Did ever anybody hear the like o' that. Losh me! Losh me! What some men see. What some men dae."

At length after the enthralling conversation had lasted longer than any of them knew Miss Elliot rose with a start, declaring that she must proceed to her home on the top of the shore brae. Of course the idea of her going alone had no possible existence in any of their minds, and without a word said, Jack put on his hat and made ready to accompany her.

As they left the lighted kitchen Mrs. Borland gave Jack an expressive look, and when their visitor was bidding good-bye to Agnes managed to whisper—

"Dear Jack, I fervently hope you will succeed."

Jack responded with a look of eloquent meaning and the next minute the long-separated strangely re-united pair were walking arm-in-arm down the path by the side of the wood.

It was a soft, delicious, spring night, very different from that same boisterous snowy night twenty years ago when our story began. As Jack inhaled the balmy mildness, and lifted his eyes to the beaming stars, the remembrance rushed upon him, and he seemed again to hear the angry sough of the wind and feel the cold flakes beating on his face as they had done when he was tossing on the Solway in the cutter's boat. How fresh and vivid were his recollections of that memorable night—all the details came back to him as if but a few hours and not twenty years stretched their long length between then and now.

He told his companion the nature of his thoughts and found that she could enter into his feelings with deepest sympathy.

"But, oh, Jack," she earnestly said, "there is one thing I want to warn you about. It seems scarcely possible, yet I am impressed with the fear that Dan Bryce recognised you; he has been so strange ever since, and speaks about you with nods and winks of peculiar influence.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

A deputation will shortly wait on the Government to urge the matter of establishing a life boat service with branches at the chief lake ports.

Mr. Gladstone's Popularity.

(N. Y. Tribune's London Correspondence.)

On Tuesday morning, the 16th ult., Mr. Gladstone set out from London for the north. The hour was ten o'clock in the morning. By eight the station at King's Cross was beset by people whose numbers, as the hour drew near, had to be computed by thousands; all of them, no doubt, eager to prove once more how unpopular Mr. Gladstone is. Their hostility took the form of cheers and enthusiastic acclamations, with much inconvenient crowding upon the object of their dislike, and a great interference with the orderly conduct of the ordinary duties of the station. These tumultuous persons carried their animosity so far as to offer a bouquet to Mrs. Gladstone, and demand a speech from her husband. They would hardly allow Lord and Lady Rosebery, who were Mr. Gladstone's travelling companions, to make their way to the train. When Mr. Gladstone remarked that he knew this expression of feeling was no mere personal sentiment the crowd applauded the observation.

In its rush along the length of the island, the train which bore Mr. Gladstone and his fortunes stopped at some of the largest towns in the Kingdom—at Grantham, at York, at Newcastle, and at Berwick-upon-Tweed. At each of them multitudes had gathered, as they gathered in November at the places on the road from Liverpool to Edinburgh. At each of them Mr. Gladstone spoke briefly. If you look through these brief addresses you will find they constitute a sort of table of contents of the more elaborate speeches to be delivered in Midlothian itself; always, however, with an apt sentence or two for the particular place where he happened to be speaking. At times came an autobiographical touch, as at Newcastle where that typical Jingo-Liberal, or Liberal-Jingo—I really don't know which is the more proper term—Mr. Cowen, is again a Liberal candidate. Mr. Cowen has lately been saying hard things of his former leader; which did not prevent his former leader from commending him cordially to the united support of the Newcastle Liberals. Among other forms of expressing his disapprobation. Mr. Cowen said that the late Earl Russell had left Mr. Gladstone under his political malediction. It is true enough that Lord Russell, in a fit of ill health and political ill temper, put on record his momentary dissatisfaction with Mr. Gladstone's views of foreign policy. The querulous old man muttered something toward the close of his life about Mr. Gladstone's measures having tended to convert England into a cotton manufactory. He repented of it later. "I wish to tell you," said Mr. Gladstone at York, "that four days before the death of Earl Russell, my wife and I saw that illustrious man and received from him an affectionate farewell. At that time he said to me spontaneously: 'I wish you were in the Government.'"

Of the reception of Mr. Gladstone in Edinburgh, I will quote what the Scotsman says: "Great as was the assemblage which greeted him in November last, the spectacle of last night was, if possible, even more imposing as the expression of a people's good will." Of the speech made last night I can quote nothing. The report of it fills five columns. It is as fresh, as vigorous, as varied, as full of interest as if he had not already made a dozen speeches to almost the same audience. It is, in fact, absolutely the same audience, for now as before there is no journal of importance in any part of the Kingdom which does not print the speech in full. What will most impress the country in it is the spirited vindication of the Liberal claim to an enlightened, firm, consistent foreign policy.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

Where can we get Shorthorn Bulls.

(To the Editor of the Globe.)

SIR,—As anticipated by many of our leading men one and two years ago, Ontario is now in the fever of a dearth of pure-bred Shorthorn bulls. I presume it is because this institution is being looked upon as the centre of most agricultural information that I am in daily receipt of an average of two letters, and of a daily visit of one person, asking for such animals. Some of our own breeders are among the enquirers, which shows that they are also being pressed from many quarters. What is to be done? The demand is simply extraordinary and I have no doubt several are asking high figures by reason of the demand; this is self and not patriotism, and I dare say is no uncommon thing anywhere in the world. An average bull ageing from 12 to 20 months is well worth from $120 to $200. The average farmer should study these figures:—

Service	$ 5 00
Dam's keep for nine months	30 00
Keep of dam and calf for six months	45 00
Keep of calf for ten months	35 00
Loss, proportionate, by deaths	7 00
Actual cost of 10 months' old bull	$122 00
	$162 00

It is certainly most gratifying to know that our farmers are now rousing up to the conviction that beef-making is the business of the day. They may be assured it is hardly possible to overdo it; but they are asking for bulls.

What is Bow Park doing? Where are our Stones, Taylors, Gibsons, Hunters, Watts, Russells, Millars, Beatties, Hopes, Thompsons, and others? What am I to say to the hundreds who want Shorthorn bulls?

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

W. BROWN,

Farm Manager.

Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, April 2, 1880.

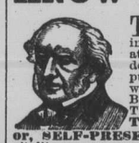
Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

At a meeting between the Rev. A. J. Bray and Ingersoll, in Montreal, the former gentlemen challenged the latter to a public discussion—Christianity vs. Infidelity—offering to secure the hall and giving the Colonel all receipts. Ingersoll, however, declined, informing Mr. Bray that if he ever entered into a public discussion it would be with no other than an orthodox Presbyterian.

Henry Clay, of Clifford, formerly of Mount Forest, has absconded, leaving a few liabilities.

Induction at Erin.



On Monday, March 29th, the Rev. Mr. Fowlie was inducted to the pastoral charge of the Presbyterian congregation at Erin and Ospringe. The services were held in the church in Erin village. In consequence of the snow storm on Saturday those living in the surrounding country were, for the most part, able to come in in sleighs, and the somewhat novel sound of bells announced the approach of these comfortable vehicles from all quarters as the hour for public worship drew near. Rev. Mr. Mullan, of Fergus, preached an excellent and appropriate sermon from 1 Tim. 2-5. "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." Rev. Mr. Millican, of Douglas, who acted as Moderator on the occasion, having put the customary questions to the pastor elect, and having received satisfactory answers, inducted him by solemn prayer to the pastoral charge of Erin and Ospringe. Appropriate counsels were tendered to the pastor by Rev. Dr. Wardrope, and Mr. McCrae, Elder, addressed the congregation, setting before them clearly and sincerely, their duty to their pastor, financially, socially, and religiously. The congregation which was even larger than the ordinary Sabbath congregation, manifested the deepest interest in the whole service, and very heartily gave to their pastor at the close the right hand of welcome. He was accompanied to the door by the Rev. J. C. Smith.

In the evening, a social meeting was held under the auspices of the ladies, the congregation again filling the church in every part. This was a complete success. The provision for tea was most bountiful, and the attendance by the waiters, and the music by the choir, all that could be desired. Addresses were given by Revs. Messrs. Reid and Rogers, of Erin; and Rev. Dr. Wardrope, and Revs. Messrs. Mullan and Smyth, members of Presbytery. During the evening Mr. Young, the treasurer of the congregation, was called on, who came forward and in a very appropriate manner presented Mr. Fowlie, in the name of the congregations of Erin and Ospringe, with a quarter of a year's stipend in advance. Mr. Fowlie replied in a very feeling and suitable manner.

On the following evening a tea meeting was given to the children of the Sabbath School and congregation, when upwards of 150 children, accompanied by their parents and others, were present. Mr. Wood, Superintendent of the Sabbath School, introduced Mr. Fowlie to the children, impressing upon them their duty towards their pastor. Mr. Fowlie replied in a kindly manner. Short speeches were given by Rev. Mr. Rogers and others. Excellent music was given by the choir and most enjoyable evening was spent. These tea meetings were considered the best ever held by the congregation. Mr. Fowlie enters upon his new field of labor under the most encouraging circumstances.

Mr. Craig, of Listowel, has asked the Kincardine Council how much bonus the town would give him for the erection of a large flour mill.

The Paris Transcript says: The expenses of the Brantford Inland Revenue office have been lately increased from $2,700 to $4,000 solely in order to give places at the public expense to the sons and brothers-in-law of John Joseph Hawkins. No fewer than five hands are now employed in that office, all the duties of which might, admittedly, be performed by two. The country is simply making Hawkins' friends and relatives an annual present of over $2,000.

LARGE FORGERY.—L. Cooke Hovey, late clerk of Urbana, Ohio, was arraigned before Judge Hughes in chambers at St. Thomas last week, being charged with forging and uttering bonds to the value of $50,000 while clerk of Urbana, and with altering the records and documents of the city to issue of $15,000 worth of bonds to suit the fraudulent issue he placed upon the market. The Judge felt it incumbent upon him to report the prisoner as liable to extradition on the charges of forging and uttering.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Paisley and North Bruce joint stock company for agricultural exhibition purposes, the directors were given authority to raise $1,000 to pay off present indebtedness and make further improvements to the grounds and buildings.

The Reason Why I can Undersell my Competitors every Time.

Because I have attended close to my own business; and let other people's alone; and buy for cash instead of on credit, thereby saving the cash discount, which amounts to a good deal in a year.

Because I live free of rent, which is a large item; am independent in buying; go into the market with the ready money, and am able to take advantage of a bargan when it offers, and because I know how to buy, and am able to pay prompt cash, thereby getting the choicest goods and at lower rates than the man who has to buy on credit.

The money is made in the buying, and I am satisfied with small profits at Caution to Canvassers.

A lady in the neighborhood of Alton was promised by a publishing firm in the State of Maine, a premium of a lady's gold watch and chain worth $60, in the event of her securing and forwarding the names of 100 subscribers together with the amount of their yearly subscription. She duly fulfilled the terms of the offer, which she had received in printed forms, but judge of the surprise and chagrin, she must have felt after all the time and trouble she had expended in furthering the interests of the fraudulent publishers, on receiving in lieu of the promised reward a bogus article worth at the furthest two dollars. We hope this exposure may lead to put others on their guard against being similarly victimized.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

As many of our subscribers are still in arrears for the Daily Mercury, we have to request that payment be made at the earliest moment. We do not like to be compelled to collect, but there are some of our subscribers who are a long way behind, and to such we will just say we must have our money, and if costs are incurred they will have themselves to blame.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

A man named Strasser, cashier with Rothschild at Vienna, has been arrested for the embezzlement of over 1,000,000 francs.

The Queen will leave Baden-Baden on the 15th inst., on her return to England.

Queen Olga, of Greece has been delivered of a daughter.

A letter from Aleppo of March 18th says that in consequence of the famine 4,000 Koords descended from the mountains, plundered the town of Marden in Asiatic Turkey, murdered a number of priests and nuns, and some European merchants.

A Vienna despatch says the Governor General of East Siberia telegraphed to St. Petersburg that it was irregular Tartars who invaded Russian territory. They unsuccessfully attempted to cross the Amoor. The Chinese Government will punish the Tartars sharply.

Prince William of Prussia, eldest son of the Crown Prince and future heir to the Empire, is now twenty-one years old, a few months younger than his betrothed, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein-Augustenburg. The marriage, which is a love match, is not very much liked by the people, who think the heir apparent might aspire to a bride of higher rank. The parents of the young man, however, approve the alliance.

A meeting at Torquay on Monday, at which Sir Stafford Northcote spoke, became so disorderly that it finally broke up in confusion. The Chancellor of the Exchequer was assaulted by roughs on his way home.

The widowed Duchess of Newcastle was married in London on Tuesday to Mr. Theobold Hohler, son of the late Rev. F. W. Hohler, rector of Colesbourne, Gloucestershire, who is well known in the operatic world.

The most brilliant entertainment of the winter season, which has just practically come to a close in St. Petersburg, was the carnival ball at the British Embassy. Between two and three hundred invitations were issued. In Russia the mazurka supplies the place of the cotillon or the schottische. The Ambassador and Lady Dufferin mastered the intricacies of the difficult step and figure of this dance early in the season, and the spirit with which the mazurka was danced at the Embassy could not be rivalled in the most purely Russian entertainment.

It is reported that when Bismarck sent in his resignation the Emperor refused to accept it, using the word "never." A Berlin correspondent says no one believes he earnestly desires to withdraw, as he has too much unfinished work on hand, nor is it believed that the Emperor could accept his resignation. A Berlin despatch reports that Bismarck is so ill that he has not slept for several nights, and he walks or stands with difficulty. At a council of the Emperor and the Crown Prince it was determined that Bismarck should remain in office.

On Tuesday evening Forstall's cooper shop, London, was burned. Loss $4,000; partially covered by insurance. This fire was the work an incendiary.

Local News.

The Clifford Arrow will henceforth be issued on Saturday.

The Mount Forest Confederate chronicles the death of Stephen Kemp, aged 72 years. He came from Suffolk, England, in 1853, and settled in Eramosa. After a time he removed to Mount Forest, where he has resided ever since.

Going West.—Over 200 persons went West on the Great Western Railway for Dakota and Manitoba on Tuesday. Among the emigrants from this section were:—Guelph—Alfred Fair, Eli and Enoch White; Galt—Robert Millar. He will be admitted to a fellowship of that College in a few days.

Policemen's Belts.—Messrs. Beattie & Dyson have made new belts for the police after the pattern of those worn in the New York police force. They are handsome and well made of pebble leather, being furnished with silver mounted clasps and buckles. Unlike the old belts the new ones have no pockets for the batons, which are more easily got ready for use when not placed in a pocket. The belts will be inspected by the Police Commissioners.

A Precious Relic.—The Spectator says: The Rev. Mr. Cooke, of Hamilton, has just received the revolver which was taken from the body of his brother, the late Col. Keeling, of the Winnipeg Free Press who purchased it from an Indian trader.

Fitzimmons at a supper on Tuesday evening of last week, prior to his departure for Toronto, where he intends opening a large fruit store. After supper a few hours were spent in a fitting manner, the programme being interspersed with toasts and songs. Mr. Fitzimmons is an old resident of Guelph, and his parents still live here.

The Bengough Bros., publishers of Grip, Toronto, are about to embark in another enterprise. They intend publishing a sixteen page (6x9 in.) monthly shorthand magazine, to be called the Short-hand Canadian. The services of a practical phonograper, experienced reporter and correspondent, have been secured as editor and conductor. The price will be $1 per annum.

Galt Reformer.—A Guelphite, with some of that town's "liquid gas" on board, was found lying against one of our fences the other day, and as it was cold we shook him up. "I'm goin' to Manitoba," he muttered. We signified our approval, and warned him of his evil ways. "Got heaps of money," he said. This knocked on the head our belief that he was a Herald reporter, and when he mumbled something about "not catching a weasel asleep," we knew he must have been a member of the city police force.

Canadian History.—We have received from the publishers, Dawson Bros., Montreal, a neat little volume in paper covers containing one hundred questions in Canadian History, and the answers of Henry Miles, who was awarded a prize by the Montreal Spectator. It is valuable because dealing with the most prominent events in Canadian History, while the answers are complete and to the point. The Water Works.—Arrangements have been made for supplying locomotives on the Great Western Railway with water from the water works.

Weather Probabilities.—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly northwesterly to southwesterly; clear to partly cloudy weather, higher temperature.

A lecture on the "Beauties and Blunders of Ingersoll" will be delivered in the Royal Opera House, Toronto, on Friday evening by Rev. W. F. Clarke.

Westward Bound.—Two large trains passed west on the Grand Trunk yesterday afternoon, and three during the night with immigrants and freight bound for Manitoba and Nebraska.

On a Trip to England.—Thomas Todd, commission merchant, Galt, leaves on a trip to England on Saturday. He goes on business and will be absent two months.

Sale of Household Furniture.—The valuable household effects of Mr. John Horsman, who is about leaving the city, will be sold at auction by Messrs. W. S. G. Knowles & Sons to-morrow. See advt.

Disorderly Conduct.—John C. Sheehan appeared at the Police Court to-day (Thursday) in answer to a summons for being disorderly at the Mitchell House stables on Sunday evening. He pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and $4.60 costs.

Prolific.—Four ewes belonging to Jas. Davidson, Speedside, have given birth to three lambs each within the last two weeks. One of the ewes has since died. The others and triplet lambs are doing well.

Wall Paper—T. J. Day, stationer, to-day received from the Customs Department the returns for 65 cases of American good purchased by him for the spring trade. They contain some beautiful patterns.

Masonic Ball.—The Masonic ball to be held this evening promises to be the best ever held here under the auspices of the fraternity. A large number of tickets have been sold. The lodge room will be open for amusements, and the Caledonian rooms will be used for dancing. Music will be furnished by a good string band.

Stone for the Streets.—Up to the present time there have been about two hundred cords of stone broken for the streets. The city has given employment breaking stone to a number during the winter who could get nothing else to do, but most of the stone required for the streets has been broken now, and these men will have to seek other employment shortly.

For the Central Prison.—Michael Anderson, Edward Gettinge, Jerry O'Connor and William Harold recently sentenced by the Police Magistrate, to terms in the Central Prison, left for that institution to-day in charge of a Government officer. The two former who were sentenced as vagrants, were suspected of setting fire to the residence of W. H. Mills. Jerry O'Connor was sentenced for drunkenness and William Harold for stealing hay in Guelph township. The officer had also in charge a prisoner sentenced at Berlin.

Paul Jones.—Readers of the story now running in the Daily Mercury will no doubt see that it is near the end. The last three chapters given have been most interesting, and in two more the end will have been reached. Jack Borland alias Mr. Wilson is now in the toils of the officials of the law, and they do their duty independent of the feeling of the friends. The trial eventually comes off and it is proven that the crime was committed 20 years and one day (one day over the time allowed by the law then in force, for the arrest of criminals) before the alleged criminal was arrested, and even then it was proven beyond a doubt that Jack Borland did not fire the shot, as the bullet found in the dead body was far too large for the revolver seized at the time of the murder and found in the hands of Jack Borland. The two following chapters give a touching account of the reunion that took place between the lovers on this side of the water, and of the happy results that followed. As it is not the desire to foretell the conclusion of the story our readers will look with interest for the concluding chapter.

The second charge against George Gray for carrying on illicit whisky manufacturing operations came up for hearing on Tuesday. After considerable evidence was taken the case was again adjourned for a week.

Probable Fatal Accident.

Another Victim to the Grand Trunk Railway.

A serious accident occurred at the Kent street crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway track this (Thursday) morning to Joseph Gallagher, aged about 11 years, and it is feared he will not survive his injuries. The lad is a son of Michael Gallagher, section man on the Grand Trunk Railway, who lives near the junction of that line with the Great Western Railway, a short distance west of the city.

The circumstances attending the accident are as follows:—The unfortunate boy got on a special frieght train going east about 8:30 this morning to ride into the city. When at Kent street he jumped off the back part of the van, but retaining his hold on the railing of the car was drawn into the cattle guard on the west side of the street before he released it. The train was moving rapidly at the time, and the lad was thrown violently into the cattle guard alighting on his head. The train was stopped and the boy removed to the house of Mr. Richard Mahoney, in the neighborhood. He was in a semi-unconscious condition and unable to speak. Dr. Keating was sent for, who on examination found that the head had been injured internally. There were no bruises visible either on the head or body, and he must have fallen in soft ground. His condition was such that it was found almost impossible to remove him to his home on a lounge, which was done. As stated above the docter has serious apprehensions as to the extent of his injuries. At last account his condition had not improved.

Merciless Conduct of a Woman.

According to the Huron Signal, Gorrie has had an affair which for unfeeling brutality is hard to exceed. Chas. Boggs, a young man 24 years of age was married last fall, to a Miss Bowyer. It did not prove a happy one and "spats" were of frequent occurrence. Boggs has recently been sick. A week ago last Saturday, which every one will remember as a snowy, stormy day, and while yet weak, emaciated and but thinly clad his wife and mother-in-law turned him out of doors. By clinging to the fence for support he made his way to a neighbor's and was afterwards assisted to the house of his sister, a Mrs. Dunlop. Dr. McMichael was called in on Sunday and found Boggs dying from the result of exposure. At St. Stephens church when the pall bearers were taking the remains out, the widow accompanied by her mother forced their way next the coffin, thus heading the procession. This enraged Mrs. Dunlop (sister of the deceased) and she took hold of the widow and tried to force her out of position when a lively tussle ensued, the sister remarking: "You killed my brother and you shan't walk next his body." No inquest has been held owing to Mrs. Boggs denying the alleged inhuman treatment. The Coroner has, however written County Attorney Lewis for advice. It is supposed the body will be exhumed and a post mortem and inquest take place.

Seizure of an Illicit Still—The Mount Forest Case.

Owen Sound, April 7.—W. J. Graham, Collector of Inland Revenue, and Mr. R. A. Hartley, Deputy Collector, made a visit yesterday to an illicit distillery situated in the woods in rear of Mr. J. Gordon's, lot 3, on the 3rd concession of Euphrasia. The distillery which consisted of a large underground chamber and a frame structure above, was most ingeniously contrived, and was entered by means of a secret trap in a closet. A portion of the plant had been removed. There was a considerable quantity of spirits in the place, the greater portion of which the officers destroyed. The premises were said to be owned and operated by a party named Wm. Shaw.

Mount Forest, April 7.—Mr. Geo. Gray, whose premises were seized a short time ago for containing an illicit malting establishment, was yesterday tried before a bench of Magistrates on the charge, and fined $100. Mr. Cavan, Collector of Inland Revenue of Goderich, was the prosecutor.

The Wheat.—The Galt Reformer says: The wheat which in this neighbourhood stood the winter remarkably well, was subjected to a severe trial during the severe weather of last month, when hard night frosts and sunny days destroyed the young clover, but we are glad to say that notwithstanding fears to the contrary it has come through in good condition. The warm rains of a few days since have given it a green and healthy appearance. Clover flourished during the warm weather of January, but a few cold nights in February, followed by rain and thaw in the daytime, completely destroyed all but the youngest clover, and even that, except on high ground and loose soil, is killed out.

The Council of Shelburne met a deputation of the directors of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Wednesday evening, and after hearing the explanations afforded them, unanimously decided to submit a by-law towards the change of gauge for a sum of $6,000.

The Biddulph Murderers.

True Bill Against the Prisoners for the Murder of John Donnelly.

Change of Venue not Yet Asked For.

London, April 7.—The case against the Biddulph prisoners was advanced a stage to-day. The indictment charging James Carroll, John Kennedy, Martin McLaughlin, Thomas Rider, John Purtell, and James Rider, jr., with the murder of John Donnelly, was laid before the Grand Jury, who, after examining William Donnelly and his wife, Martin Hogan, and Johnny O'Connor, returned to Court at four o'clock with a true bill. This announcement fell upon the Court in silence and surprised nobody. It was what people expected. The indictment was endorsed with the names of the witnesses who will be examined in the case, as follows:—Wm. Donnelly, Norah Donnelly (his wife), Martin Hogan, Wm. Blackwell, Dr. Flock, Chief Williams, Enoch Murphy, James Feeley, Robert Ross, John O'Connor, Patrick Whelan, Ann Whelan, Mary Hastings O'Connor, Michael O'Connor, County Constable Pope, County Constable Hodge, Detective Phair, and Martin Hogan, jr. It is probable that the defence will have fully as many, if not more. Father Connolly is reported to be one of the number. Mr. Hugh MacMahon, Q. C., and Mr. W. R. Meredith will defend the prisoners. They have, it is said, material for making a very strong case.

From what we can hear the Crown counsel will not move in the matter of changing the venue until the Grand Jury have reported upon the indictment respecting the killing of the four other victims of the Roman line tragedy. They will, it is understood, take it up in the morning and finish by noon, when Mr. Irving will probably have something to say to the Court on the change of venue—a question that deeply interests everybody, but about which absolutely little information can be obtained.

The prisoners received the news of a true bill having been found against them in the case of John Donnelly with apparent indifference. They seem to have every confidence that they will be acquitted, no matter where the trial takes place. This confidence is accounted for partly by the favorable reports concerning the state of public opinion conveyed to them by their friends, and partly owing to the fact that they believe the Crown cannot bring any strong and direct evidence against them, very little reliance being placed either by their sympathizers or themselves on the statements of Johnny O'Connor, and Bill Donnelly.

A rumour is in circulation that some startling developments in the shape of a confession from one of the accused may be expected in a few days, but this is all nonsense. They are too well posted by their counsel to say one word that might criminate themselves or others, and their friends laugh at the idea of any of them turning Queen's evidence.

Obstructed Sidewalk.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

Sir,—For several weeks past, a large heap of building stone has occupied the sidewalk at the junction of Norwich and Dublin Sts., and during that time pedestrians have been compelled to risk life and limb by climbing over or walking around in several inches of most tenacious mud. The attention of the authorities is called to the matter to have the stone removed and the sidewalk made good again.

A Norwich St. Resident.

Guelph, April 7, 1880.

St. Andrew's Church, Galt.—Rev. Dr. Wardrope, Messrs. Ball and J. C. Smith, attended a meeting of the members of St. Andrew's Church, Galt, an Monday evening. The meeting throughout was interesting, and after a considerable discussion of matters, it was decided by an almost unanimous vote to amalgamate with Union Church congregation, and a Committee was appointed to confer with the latter congregation in regard thereto.

Mrs. Mary Smith, who was burned so seriously recently at Merriton by her mother, while crazy, throwing coal oil on her while asleep and then setting fire to it, died on Wednesday.

Lillie Denver, aged six, of Paterson, N. J., endeavored to jump a rope 250 times three years ago, and brought on a disease of which she died. On Monday her sister attempted a similar feat, and on Wednesday died of the same disease.

In regard to the death of Colin McDonald, of Collingwood, a coroner's inquest was held on Wednesday, and a verdict returned by the jury that he was killed by accidentally falling down stairs, in Cameron's hotel.

A school near Beamsville has been closed on account of the impassable state of the roads. What next?

An Assured Majority for the Liberals in Britain.

The returns up to Wednesday night give the Liberals 298; Conservatives, 180; and Home Rulers, 41—giving the Liberals a majority of 77 over the combined strength of the other two parties. On Monday the Liberals won fourteen seats, and lost only one. The net gains so far is 81 seats. Referring to the extraordinary change of feeling the Pall Mall Gazette says: "Another crushing defeat of the Government is inevitable in a few years. The fact is we have created a democratic system and must bow to it. The fickleness of the Democrats is part of the oldest experience of the human race. After discarding old favorites with every appearance of disgust and contempt, they return to them with ardor in a year or two." Gladstone writes to the News deprecating the demonstration preparing by the Liberals in his honour, on his return to London. Herbert Gladstone, Liberal, son of W. E. Gladstone, who was defeated for Middlesex, will stand as a candidate for Leeds, his father, who was returned for Leeds and Midlothian, having elected to accept the latter.

The Changes in the Tariff.

In the discussion on the tariff in the House on Tuesday, Sir L. Tilley moved several amendments, the chief of which is the alteration of the duties on malt from two cents per pound to fifteen cents per bushel. This is merely assimilating the Canadian tariff on this item to the American tariff, and is done, we presume, to remove from the American maltsters a ground of complaint which has existed. It is well known that the Americans use an immense quantity of Canadian malt. Sir L. Tilley stupidly placed a higher duty on American malt coming into Canada than was charged by the Americans for Canadian malt. This argument was used by the politicians at Washington, who clamored for an equal duty on malt as was charged in Canada, and the Government seeing their stupid mistake were obliged to yield. By the new regulations Sir Leonard Tilley puts them on the same basis as those in force in the States, but if he had made them a year ago, he would have left the Opposition very little ground for complaint.

Some Government Returns.

From several returns ordered by the Ontario Legislature, we learn that the amount of fees received and disbursements made by the Sheriff of this County for the half year ending 31st December, 1879, are as follows:—Amount of fees received, $2,790.75; disbursements, $1,215.50; net amount of revenue, $1,575.25 for the half year. A return made by order of the Legislature shows the aggregate fees received by each Judge of the County Court in Ontario, in connection with his duties as Judge of the Surrogate Court. The County Judge in Wellington received in 1878 as fees as Judge of the Surrogate Court, $320.50, and in 1879, $500.75.

The Public Printing Scandal.

In the Printing Committee some strange disclosures took place on Wednesday. Mr. McIntosh was further examined, but gave no new information of interest. Mr. Hope, of Ottawa, was next called. He testified that if he was awarded the contract he intended to do the work. He received a cheque for $1,500 to give a withdrawal letter to a person to hand to the Committee. He appropriated the money to his own use. He gave the letter of withdrawal to Mr. Charlton. He was introduced to him as a printer from Quebec by a member of Parliament. He declined to state who that member was. Mr. Ross insisted on an answer. The Chairman considered that an answer should be given. Witness did not think he should drag in other persons. He would have no objections to giving the name of the gentleman if he did not object; he was not in the room at present. Hon. Mr. Bowell quoted precedents in the Northwest Committee to show the extensive powers of the Committee. The witness must decline to answer unless he got the consent of this gentleman. Hon. Mr. Bowell said that the witness had better answer the question. If he did not it would necessitate the taking of unpleasant proceedings. Witness finally stated that the man was Poupre. M. P., and gave $600 of his $1,500 to Mr. E. C. Barber, of the Finance Department; Barber had prepared calculations for him and was to have received $400 per year if witness got the contract or else be taken into partnership; paid Barber $600 for services rendered and as his share of the withdrawal money; would have paid him in proportion had a larger sum been received; his contract was $6,000 per year less than McLean, Roger & Co., and by his withdrawal the country lost this sum.

At the Immigration and Colonization Committee on Wednesday. Mr. Lowe, Secretary of the Department, was examined with reference to the cattle trade with England, giving the result of his observations and enquiries during a visit to the English cattle markets. He stated that cattle of the Polled Angus breed were most thought of in England, and recommended the breeding of that variety. He had ascertained from official sources that the receipts of United States cattle at the port of Liverpool were 4,633 less than the previous year, owing to the "slaughter clause" of the Cattle Bill; while the imports from Canada had risen in the enormous proportion stated by the Minister of Agriculture in his report. With regard to dressed meat, it was found difficult to transport long distances in our climate, owing to the alternate freezing and thawing impairing its quality. He found that beef from this country was quite equal to the average of that from the United States. There was a great deal of Canadian meat got into the hands of the English dealers, who passed it off as British meat.

Representative Hurd's Bill to stop the transport of American goods over Canadian railways has created some excitement at Washington. There are rumors that Gould and Vanderbilt are pushing it; but whatever the former may feel disposed to do, the latter—who himself controls a Canadian road—has too much interest in the opposite direction. The provisions of the Bill are too ridiculously absurd to procure for it support from any enlightened quarter. The Bill has excited a good deal of interest among stock jobbing Congressmen and their outside congeners, who were circulating reports at the Capitol that the Bill was likely to pass and all such stuff. No one should be deceived by such reports. Even the stock speculators in Congress have not the slightest idea that it will be considered favorably by the Ways and Means Committee, to which it was referred, to say nothing of House and the Senate.

SAYS the N. Y. Tribune:—We are not surprised to learn that the principal object of the Convention of Irishmen which is to meet in Philadelphia on the 25th of June will be to raise $2,000,000 or $3,000,000. the same to be expended in freeing Ireland from British rule. Ostensibly, this trifling sum is to be used in purchasing 100,000 rifles, and some of it, perhaps, in hiring men, particularly offiers, to engage in an invasion of the Emerald Isle—upon paper. We would respectfully suggest that it would be better to employ the millions which it is proposed to raise in buying breadstuffs, bacon and other edibles to be sent to a starving peasantry which in its present condition is hardly likely to rise in rebellion to any purpose. However desirable it may be to free Ireland from British rule, there is not the least prospect of accomplishing that miracle. The island is an integral portion of the British Empire, and has been so for centuries. It has been in the past shamefully governed, but is so no longer; and whoever tries to engage it in a civil war is guilty of a great crime or a great folly.

SAYS the Detroit Free] Press: Since the "N.P." was introduced into Canada the lake marine of the country has visibly declined. With a few more years of protection the Dominion fleet will have gone to meet our navy.

The West Wellington License Inspector on his Muscle.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—Having had a copy of the Guelph Herald of the 29th inst. handed to me, containing a scurrilous letter, in which reference is made to mens License Inspector, I would wish to reply as briefly as possible, as the writer is scarcely worthy of notice.

In one part of his letter he charges me with not doing my duty, and in another part with over doing it, by not allowing the poor tavern-keeper to sell a glass of beer on the Sabbath, and with having taken with me, for help, a half-witted youth. It is true, some time since, I took with me my hired man, one who had been in my service for nearly two years, and on our arriving at Peel I sent him ahead, where he called at two taverns and asked for a glass of beer which he paid for and drank. We then went to Maryboro', where he obtained a glass of beer and paid for it; then on to Drayton where he obtained a glass of beer and drank and paid for it. In the evidence before the Magistrates, on the day I prosecuted, not one of the four hotel keepers would swear he did not receive pay for the beer. In each case the Magistrates imposed a fine of $20 and costs, which were all paid.

Martin Fox, of Drayton, appealed against the decision of the Magistrates, and carried his case to Guelph, Messrs. Drew and Jacobs acting as Solicitors for Fox. He lost the case at this court, as before, and I have not heard that either of the above named gentlemen has since become a lunatic. I think you will agree with me, Mr. Editor, that any man would be an unprincipled, unfeeling scoundrel who would bring that subject again before the public, as the writer has done, to harrow up the feelings of an affectionate wife and family as in Dr. Emes' case, he having been one of the presiding Magistrates alluded to.

I beg to state, I have been License Inspector for 36 months, have had 44 prosecutions and 36 convictions and fines to the amount of $720, and out of the 44 prosecutions, only 7 were licensed tavern keepers. He complains of my neglect of Arthur, Maryboro and Peel, which seem to be about the extent of his travels. First as to Arthur. I have had 14 prosecutions and 10 convictions and fines $220; 2nd, Maryboro, 8 prosecutions, 7 convictions and fines $140; 3rd, in Peel, 7 prosecutions, 27 convictions and fines $140. Now I must think this miserable correspondent must have left his few brains in Hollin when he sat down to pen his long list of charges against me, and I now challenge him to prove one charge and I will give him $100.

With regard to Curless, of Goldstone, "Traveller" might have mentioned in his letter, that on December 11th, 1879, I prosecuted him for selling liquor without license, when he was convicted and fined $20 and costs, since which time I have been to his place with not as good success.

Now if this "Traveller" would make himself useful as well as ornamental he might become a great auxiliary in carrying out this greatly abused liquor law, and be aware of the facts, and a Provincial License Inspector, to whom he can make his complaints.

Dame Rumour says it would be as well for this great "Traveller" to descend from Mount Hollin to the Valley of Drayton where, by attending to his own business and watching me, he might stand a better chance of stepping into my appointment than one of his Arthur Tory friends did a short time ago, when he found to his chagrin that his time was not yet come.

I presume "Traveller" is aware that we are now provided with a Division Court Inspector, one we can apply to at any time for redress, and see that all books correspond with the poor mans' old receipts, and as this great man wishes to have all these matters well attended to, I will shortly lend him a hand to do so, for I know he is interested for the public good.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE MOORE,
License Inspector.

Arthur, March 31st, 1880.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

The contract for the construction of the new Roman Catholic Church in Galt was let to Mr. James Patterson, Mr. E Radigan to do the painting. The church is to be of brick, 78x44 feet, steeple 78 feet from the ground, and will seat 300 persons.

Report of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Our notice of Mr. Brown's Report, which we gave last week had reference entirely to the feeding of stock. This week we will give the result of his experiments with fodder, which is an important factor in the maintenance and feeding of stock. He says:—We have now proved the thorough adaptability of the Lucerne to this country—in hardiness, prolificness, and value as a soiling crop. That drilled in Spring of 1876 is now beginning to show the need of a more substantial manure than diluted farm-yard liquid, so now we have given it a heavy application of manure. Five cuttings gave only 8 tons per acre, but I am sure whatever the weather may be next year the crop will certainly be more. In order to ascertain whether the produce would be more by broadcasting than drilling, a part of a field was seeded both ways, in Spring of 1878. The land was not particularly clean; liquid manure was applied on 27th May and 5th August. The growth was regular, but not particularly vigorous, as the soil is somewhat stiff for the character of the plant; that drilled was always strongest and particularly so towards the end of the season. Still the results at the end of the season showed that for five months from May to October inclusive the yield by broadcast sowing was 32,120 lbs., and by drilling 23,480 lbs., or 16 tons, 120 lbs., from broadcasting, and 11¾ tons, 480 lbs., from drilling. Were the produce to go by the actual surface occupied, the broadcasting should be two thirds more than the drilling and it now remains to be seen whether under the disadvantage of non-cultivation the broadcast will continue this superiority. We obtain a more tender but less vigorous plant, and altogether I am of opinion that in consideration of the expense and trouble of having to cultivate at times when other work presses, it would be best to broadcast, providing the land is thoroughly clean and in good heart.

Fall Rye coming early in spring is always a safe and profitable soiler, though running early out of our reach by maturing—getting tough and rough.

Red Clover, either from small spots in the neighborhood of the buildings, or from a well laid down rich field of the farm, is always a welcome change to housed animals—succulent, sweet and crisp.

Tares and Oats come in for horses as well as cattle at a time when the two plants grown together make a bite, fresh, medicinal and enjoyable to all.

Millet has to be taken early and cannot be called a regular green fodder, though leafy and tender before heading, but maturity comes fast with woodiness.

Corn is available at all times after the 1st July, and as its value for feeding increases with age, and its immense bulk per acre is a strong point, its soiling deserves more attention in a country where the maturing of the grain is exceptional.

Rape has to be carefully handled with sheep or cattle, but when associated with old grass neighborhood—to which the animals should have free access—it is an excellent improver of condition.

The Thousand-Headed Kale, or Tree Cabbage, is, like most other cabbage, difficult to rush out of the reach of insect enemies, but, getting a hold, the amount of produce and feeding value should call for a fair trial throughout the Province.

The comparatively new plant called Prickley Comfrey is new to us this year. We obtained 100 sets from Carter & Co., of London, England, and planted them three feet apart every way so as to ensure thorough cultivation and room—for what we knew not. Having to give the plants good footing two light cuttings were taken on 3rd July and end of August.

In continuation of our test of the conduct of 20 varieties of grasses and clovers sown separately in Spring of 1878, I beg to report as under:

Sweet scented Vernal—One-half winter killed, and so severely handled by drought in August, that on 20th September following the whole appeared to be dead. It is a remarkable stooler and re-seeder under favorable conditions even here.

Rib Grass—This stands the winter well, and is strong and fleshy as in more temperate climates.

Bent Grass—Doing well all over.

Crimson or Scarlet Clover—Now entirely killed out.

Crested Dog's Tail—Few plants remaining either from unsound seed or tenderness.

Espersette (seed from Switzerland)—Did not come well at first, irregular, but it is now spreading and none winter killed.

Red Top—A hardy variety, doing well.

Lucerne—Luxuriant and hardy.

Perennial Rye Grass—About half winter killed and otherwise very poor.

Meadow Fescue—Has done remarkably well, and given the closest and most fresh sward throughout the season.

White or Dutch Clover—In grand order, and completely matted.

Italian Rye Grass—About one-half winter killed, but during September the remaining plants were in very fair show.

Alsike Clover—Good, seed was poor.

Kentucky Blue Grass—Has greatly improved since last year, and is now in good bottom.

Bokhara or Sweet-scented Clover—Very strong and prolific.

Brome—All killed.

Timothy or Meadow Cat's Tail—Excellent, as usual.

Yellow Oat Grass—Stands the winter well, but seed seems to have been poor.

Orchard or Cocksfoot Grass—Good, fresh, hardy and strong.

Fan Oat Grass—Appears to be equal to Timothy and Orchard Grass in productiveness.

A good time of the year to note the conduct of grasses and clovers is during early growth when they are emerging from the winter's battle.

J. M. Schaberleon, of Ann Arbor, Mich., reports the discovery of a comet.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

MOURNING TURNED INTO JOY—THE CUP OF HAPPINESS FILLED TO OVERFLOWING—A PROSPEROUS LOVE SUIT—JACK BORLAND IN THE HANDS OF JUSTICE—REUBEN LANGTON'S TRIUMPH.

"I hope you are mistaken," said Jack, anxiously. "If your supposition be correct I must lose no time in taking my departure. I may have been imprudent in paying Dana a visit, though even if he guessed who I am I scarcely think he would betray me."

"I have no faith in him," returned Miss Elliot very decidedly. "He is a vicious, ill-natured, ungrateful old man. I am quite losing hope of doing him any good."

"Ay, his is indeed a hopeless case," observed Jack. "His long hardened heart is now shut up and sealed. Since he resists your influence, all human effort is spent on him in vain. I know one," added Jack in a voice which softened and faltered, "I know one who does not resist your power. Would to God you could be induced to spend your labour on him, and see the good return that would follow."

"Who is this promising subject?" she asked with a nervous laugh.

"Can you not guess, dear Lottie? he tenderly whispered. "Oh, forgive me for speaking thus with such seeming hastiness, but my untoward position urges me—forces me to make confession without delay. Will you believe me, dearest, that you have been the sole object of my heart's love for twenty years. When we parted at St. Abb's Head I loved you with all the strength of my soul, though then I would have died rather than avow it. Though believing my passion to be utterly hopeless, my heart refused to let your image depart from it. It would suffer no other affection to enter there. Meeting you so strangely, unexpectedly, in circumstances which do not forbid the avowal of my affection, the sealed up fountains burst with uncontrollable force, and if you can give me no return I shall henceforth know a deeper misery than I have yet experienced. If I had only time to win your love, my darling, I would be patient and persistent, but fate denies me the opportunity, and alas! I fear this precipitancy will turn your heart against me, when otherwise it might have learned to regard me with favour. It it so, dear? Must I go away into worse exile than before?"

He ceased, and several moments of silence followed, but he felt the arm within his tremble, and he saw her head bend slowly forward. Then she looked quickly up, and turned her face full upon him.

"Jack, Jack," she answered. "Why should I dissemble. My thoughts of you in the old days were more tender than I durst confess even to myself. And when the man to whom I was affianced proved so faithless I found myself contrasting him with you, and saying to myself that you would not have proved so ungenerous and unkind."

"God bless you, darling, for this thought," murmured Jack. "I would have loved you all the more for your brave advocacy of a slandered man."

"I know you would; and if I loved you then, Jack, I love you much more now, for the noble work you have done—for your unselfish devotion, your matchless generosity. Dear Jack, your words have made me proud and happy beyond my power to express."

Her words threw Jack into a very delirium of joy. He caught her to his heart, he hugged, he kissed, he caressed her; the mild stars looking silently down on the scene, and the soft April wind gently floating past them in its passage over the moor.

"And you are mine, really mine, after all those years," he murmured in a tone of tenderness and emotion. "Oh, what happiness has come to me."

"And at our age, too," said Lotty, looking up at him with an arch smile. "I don't know how old you may be, Jack; but I have long since ceased to consider myself young."

"The heart never grows old my darling," he fervently responded. "And we are still young enough for the enjoyment of our delayed happiness."

Jack must surely have been right when he said the heart never grows old, for the two lovers, though a little over forty, had as much ecstasy in their betrothal as if twenty years had not gone over their heads from the time of their first acquaintance. Their happiness had perhaps a more subdued demonstration than it might have had in youth's prime, but it was as deep, as true, and as satisfying; perchance more so, for closer acquaintance with life and duty enabled them the better to understand the exceeding preciousness of such love as theirs, and the value of the gift which each received from the other kept their imaginations from casting a false halo round their prospects, and shed in its stead the steady, lasting light of a matured affection on their anticipated union.

When Jack returned to the cottage the light sparkling in his eyes told Jessie that he had succeeded in his suit, and she hastened to give him her warmest congratulations.

"What a day of blessing this has been to us all," she exclaimed in accents of devoutest gratitude, and in all sincerity of soul. Agnes and Jack echoed the pious acknowledgment.

That evening ere retiring to rest Jack for the first time took Adam's place and conducted their simple worship, lifting up their hearts and his own in thanksgiving to Him who had made darkness light before them, and crooked things straight, who had turned their mourning into joy, and disappointed the fears that had so long oppressed them.

Yet a terrible trial was before him still. Next morning, after they had finished breakfast, and when Agnes was about to depart for the school, David Ramsay rushed into the kitchen breathless, agitated, and greatly excited.

"Oh, sir, flee, flee!" he exclaimed, "ye hinna a moment to lose, for they'll be here immediately." "They—who?" asked Jack, starting up in vague alarm.

"The constables. They are coming to tak' ye. It has come oot that ye are Jack Borland. Reuben Langton heard it frae some o' the fishermen, and he was aff this mornin' by screich o' day tae the Fiscal. They are comin' by the shore gate, and I ran a' my micht through the park to warn ye."

This intelligence threw them into a panic of terror. Urged by the frantic cries of his companions to flee, Jack impulsively seized his hat and made for the door, but a moment's reflection showed him the folly of such a course. He might elude the officers for a time, but could not ultimately hope to escape, and the baffled attempt would be strong evidence against him.

"No," he said, pale and calm. "I shall not go. I shall not make matters worse for myself by a useless flight."

"Oh, Jack, they will take you to prison," wailed Mrs. Borland.

"I know they will. Reuben Langton will see to that—this is too good a chance of revenge for him to miss it. Ah! yonder they come, and that cur with them to enjoy his triumph."

With cries of dismay, the other three rushed to the window and beheld a dark, square built vehicle coming toward the cottage at a sharp pace, preceeded by a gig occupied by only one person, who drove it himself. This latter was Reuben Langton, whose hateful figure they recognized at a glance.

In the larger conveyance sat three men besides the driver, who was perched in front—three stout men in dark blue official-looking clothes, one of them being dressed in a superior manner to the rest. He was the chief constable for the county, and the others were ordinary constables, or policemen as we would call them now.

The agitated gazers from the window had but little time to take cognizance of the intruders, for in a minute or two after they came in sight they had drawn up in front of the garden gate, where the chief and his two assistants leaped promptly to the ground, threw open the gate without ceremony, and came smartly up the path—Reuben Langton, who had to fasten his horse on the railing, coming limping a step or two behind.

"At least I shall prevent them invading the sanctity of my dead brother's home," said Jack in a husky voice, and strode calmly forth to meet them, the others following in violent distress.

"There's your man," exclaimed Langton, exultantly, the moment Jack appeared in the porch.

"What is your business with me, gentlemen?" demanded Jack in a calm tone.

The chief gazed at his fine manly form and handsome face with surprise and respect. He had not expected to find in the man whom he had come to capture on a capital charge such a specimen of well developed manhood, and for a moment he was silent.

Quickly recovering himself he asked—

"What is your name?"

"I am called Jack Wilson."

"That's an alias," exclaimed Reuben, viciously. "His real name is Jack Borland."

"How do you know that?" demanded Jack sternly, turning on him a witheringly scornful glance.

"Ah!—can you deny it?" chuckled Reuben.

"Can you prove it?" retorted Jack.

"Yes, I can prove it. Dan Bryce and several of your old confederates are ready to swear to your identity."

"Are they; then I shall save them the trouble by owning the truth. I am Jack Borland."

Here a stifled scream came from within the porch, and David Ramsay was seen trying to keep Mrs. Borland back.

"Then, sir," said the officer, "it is my painful duty to tell that you are my prisoner. I have here a warrant for your apprehension on the charge of murdering one of the men of His Majesty's revenue cutter Hawk in a scuffle with smugglers many years ago."

"It was not Jack who killed the man," exclaimed Mrs. Borland, bursting forward and wringing her hands. It was Bob Andrew, who was killed that same night. He told it to the others with his dying breath. Oh, gentlemen, do not take Jack to prison for he is innocent."

"Hush, Jessie," said Jack, pushing her gently away as she vehemently clung to him; "such words avail me nothing. I must go and face the charge as best I can. I can only trust to heaven to have my innocence made manifest."

He kissed her and held out his arms to Agnes, who flung herself into them with violent sobs.

"Oh, can nothing be done to save you?" she agonizingly asked.

"I'll rin and tell Mr. Bishop," cried David Ramsay.

"Do," said Jack. "Give him the particulars of my arrest, and he will assist me as far as possible. But first see that miserable reptile off the estate," he added, darting another stern glance at Reuben Langton.

"I will," returned David, eyeing the informer with a menacing look. "He has nae business here, and had better mak' off at ance. If ilka ane gat their deservin's he wad hae been inside a jail lang ere this."

"Gentlemen, I am ready to go with you," said Jack, releasing Agnes from his embrace and turning to the officers with calm dignity.

The chief motioned to his two assistants, who laid each a hand on Jack's arms and led him away between them.

"Why don't you handcuff him?" cried Langton.

"Because I don't consider it necessary," returned the Superintendent, coldly, as he turned on his heel and took no further notice of the speaker.

Jack sprang with active step into the vehicle, the officers took their places beside him and as they drove away Jack gave a final cheery nod to the weeping women.

David would have received the same adieu, but he was at the moment fully occupied in ordering Reuben Langton to mount into his gig and leave the park by the nearest gate.

Agnes and her mother watched the departing cavalcade with streaming eyes, and when it was lost to view they returned into the cottage to give way to tears and lamentations, accompanied fervent prayers to heaven for Jack's deliverance.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, April 7.—The Supreme Court will have a special session on the 9th inst., when the Selkirk election case will be taken up. The constitutionality of the Scott Temperance Act will also be attended to.

The Printing Committee met and examined Mr. Hope, bookbinder, of Ottawa. He stated that out of the $1,500 paid to him for withdrawing his tender, $600 was paid to Mr. E. C. Barber of the Finance Department for assistance in preparing calculations.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 7.

In reply to Mr. Ives, the Premier announced that in addition to the Provincial corps there would attend the review at Quebec on the Queen's Birthday a regiment from New Brunswick and one from Ontario, but the regiment had not yet been selected.

Last year Mr. Rochester, member for Carleton, placed on the notice paper a motion asking for a committee to examine and investigate into certain charges made by Mr. Rochester, member for Carleton, in his place in the House respecting interference and intimidation by the Hon. R. W. Scott, a member of the Senate, and then occupying the position of Secretary of State, in the last election of a member for the county of Carleton. At that time he permitted the notice to stand on the paper, although it, by imputation, assailed two gentlemen who were not in the House to defend themselves or guard their interests. Mr. Rochester having renewed the motion, moved it, and in reply to Mr. Mackenzie, he explained that the charge was that Mr. Scott had provided money to defray the expenses of the candidature of Mr. John May, providing that he supported the then Government. Mr. Mackenzie ridiculed the charge as now modified. Mr. Rochester continued speaking until recess, when the debate was interrupted, and the order remained on the paper.

After recess the debate on the proposed motion of Mr. Macdonnell (Inverness) that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions declaring the Province of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island to have each claims and rights to distributive shares of the amount of the fishery award handed over to the Government of Canada on the same principles on which the claims and rights of Newfoundland were recognized, etc., was resumed by Mr. Richey, who, after some discussion on a point of order taken by Mr. Killam, argued that the Fishery award should be either specially appropriated for the benefit of the Provinces at the seaboard, including Quebec, or handed over proportionately to the Executive of each Province. In conclusion he moved an amendment embodying his contentions, claiming that each Province's proportion of the award should be handed over to its executive.

The debate was continued for several hours, principally confined to Maritime Province members, who irrespective of politics, all appeared to agree on the main propositions, although slightly differing in opinion as to whether the award should be handed over to the Local Government or funded for the benefit of the Provinces.

THE MONTROSE ALLEGED CHILD MURDER.—The Reformer says Mrs. Stadelbauer, of West Montrose, was brought before His Honor, Judge Miller, on Thursday, charged with an aggravated assault upon her little daughter, since dead. There was however no direct evidence to convict the mother of the charge, and she was discharged. But from the evidence of the doctor at the inquest, it was shown that the child was in a very emaciated and bruised condition shortly before its death, being seriously injured and cut about the head.

TORONTO AND THE CREDIT VALLEY RAILWAY.—At a special meeting of the Toronto City Council on Wednesday, a by-law was submitted to pay over the $50,000 already sanctioned by the ratepayers, on receipt of the certificate of Mr. Shanly or the Government engineer that a right of way had been acquired and an independent line of railway had been built from Queen street to a point within 1,000 feet from Bathurst street, and completed and made ready for traffic. The by-law was passed.

J. D. WILLIAMSON & CO

The freight traffic on the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway is very much greater this season than it was last. From the 1st January till the end of March, this year, there have been moved about 400,000 bushels of grain. In the same time last year there were only about 250,000 bushels moved. The quantity in store in warehouses along the line is about the same this year as last, namely, about 250,000 bushels.

Guelph Markets.

MERCURY OFFICE,
GUELPH, April 8, 1880.

This week up to to-day deliveries of produce and grain, etc., on this market have been on the light side. To-day, however, the Market Square was pretty well crowded with teams loaded with all kinds of merchantable articles, which, as usual in Guelph found willing and ready buyers at the prices we give hereunder. Peas were in good demand, the best samples being anxiously purchased at our outside quotation for seeding purposes; cheaper and almost unmerchantable grades sold as low as 60c.

Barley, since our last weekly issue has somewhat advanced in price, the present current figures now paid for fair samples being 60c., principally for malting purposes; oats remain about the same as last week as may be noticed by reference to the figures appended; in wheat there is not much doing, as there is not a great quantity offering. Prices are lower than last week, the highest offered for best samples of fall that we heard of to-day being $1.24, and spring $1.22 per bushel; potatoes rule low here, the outside price obtainable now being 40c, per bag for the best kinds:

Very few dressed hogs arriving at present, the range in prices varies from $5 to $5.50 per 100 lbs., and are generally bought for local purposes.

No material changes in prices of other articles. We here give the correct and latest prices paid on the market up to 3 of this p.m.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

LILIPUTIAN OPERA COMPANY.—The Toronto Telegram thus speaks of a performance of the Liliputian Opera Company in that city:—"It is safe to say that the majority of the great audience at the Royal Opera House last evening expected to see a great deal of the Liliputians and very little opera; but, as a matter of fact, the entertainment was simply immense! The singing and acting was a surprise to every one, and was made additionally enjoyable from the personality of the cast. Their voices are of superior quality and of astonishing volume, while the acting is easy, graceful and natural. The little folks show a keen appreciation of the humor of the situation in which they find themselves, and sustain their parts with a self possession which is laughter-provoking. By all means see the Liliputians."

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH CHOIR.—The annual meeting of the choir was held by invitation at the rectory on Thursday evening, Rev. Canon Dixon, President, in the chair. After the reading and adoption of the Secretary-Treasurer's report, seven new members were balloted for and elected, making the total strength of the choir thirty-one. The following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Choir master, Mr. J. W. Benton; Deputy choir master, Mr. J. J. Densem; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. G. W. Garnham; Librarian, Mr. H. Harland; Assistant Librarian, Master G. Saunders. At the conclusion of the business refreshments were served and a social time was spent.

MASONIC BALL.—About fifty couples attended the Masonic ball last night, and though the company cannot be said to have been large it was select, and the affair passed off very pleasantly. A very well arranged programme of dances was carried out in the Caledonian Hall, the music being furnished by an efficient string band from Toronto. An excellent supper, prepared by Mr. W. Newport in his best style, was partaken of in the Masonic Hall. The arrangement of the tables was something above ordinary on such occasions. During the evening the chapter room was used for playing parlor games in, and quite a number found sufficient amusement there to enjoy themselves thoroughly. Dancing was continued till about four o'clock this morning when the last of the company dispersed.

HON. GEORGE BROWN.—The Mail of Friday says:—For several days past, the condition of Senator Brown, who was recently shot in the leg by an assassin, gave some alarm to the friends, but it will be gratifying to the public to learn that there was a marked improvement on Thursday, the pain in the limb having abated very considerably.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

No Bill Returned on Thursday.

LONDON, April 8.—Contrary to expectation, the Grand Jury did not report to-day upon the indictments against James Carroll, Martin McLaughlin, John Kennedy, Thomas Ryder, John Purtell, and James Ryder, jr., for the murder of old man Donnelly, his wife, son, and niece. They examined the boy Johnny Connor, Bill Donnelly, Martin Hogan, sr., Martin Hogan, jr., James Feehy, Patrick Whelan, and Mrs. Whelan, all of whom gave evidence at the preliminary investigation. The examination of these witnesses occupied four or five hours, and shortly after three o'clock the Grand Jury adjourned till morning.

There was a sensation at the gaol this forenoon. Shortly after breakfast James Carroll, the alleged ringleader of the gang who butchered the Donnellys, was seized with a sudden illness, which terminated in a fit. For a while he lay on the floor of his cell as if lifeless, his face being as pale as death. It was with some difficulty that the gaol surgeon, who was immediately sent for, restored the stricken man to consciousness. At noon Carroll was reported to have quite recovered. He says he is subject to these fainting fits.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 8.

Mr. Abbott introduced a Bill to provide for the winding up of insolvent banks and insurance companies. He said this Bill had been rendered necessary by the repeal of the Insolvent Act, which contained machinery for the winding up of these institutions. There was now, therefore, no measure in existence to enable an insolvent bank or insurance company to be wound up. He had always held that a bank or insurance company was in a different position from any ordinary trading firm or corporation, and he thought it expedient that more caution should be exercised in the appointment of liquidators for these institutions than was done in the case of ordinary trading firms. The principle proceeded upon by the Banking and Commerce Committee in reference to the winding up of the Consolidated Bank was followed in this measure. It provided for the appointment of a liquidating board of three members, on which the public, the shareholders, and the creditors would be represented—the representatives of the public being appointed by the Government. This board of liquidators would be simply substituted for the directors of the bank.

Sir John Macdonald asked that the Bill just introduced should be allowed to pass both its first and second readings to-day, and that both this Bill and that of the hon. member for Richmond and Wolfe (Mr. Ives) should be sent to the Banking and Commerce Committee at once, it being understood that both Bills would be sent to a sub-Committee. The Government would assume the responsibility of aiding the hon. gentlemen in having the measures deliberated upon.

The Bill passed its first and second reading, and was referred to the Banking and Commerce Committee.

The debate on the Budget was then resumed and occupied the rest of the sitting.

Quebec is agitated over a report that the Government intend removing the North Shore Railway workshops from that city to Montreal.

MARRIAGE WITH A DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.—A meeting was held in Montreal of those in favour of this Bill, and a resolution was passed to get up a monster petition in its favour. The Montreal Presbytery met the same day and agreed on a petition to Parliament praying that the Bill do not pass into law until the Presbyterian Church which is to meet in General Assembly on the ninth day of June prox., shall have had an opportunity of considering its provisions and of taking joint action thereon.

The Murder of the Indians in Bruce.

Judge Armour on the Currency Question.

WALKERTON, April 8.—The Grand Jury to-day brought in three true bills against Davis, the man charged with having murdered three Indians, and then set their bodies adrift on the lake in a boat with a hole stove in the bottom. In each instance the indictment charges him with having "murdered a person to the jury unknown." Owing to some Indian witnesses, which the Crown desires to bring forward, being at present in Manitoulin Island, the Crown Counsel, Mr. Colin McDougall, of St. Thomas, had the case postponed till next Assizes.

In connection with the trial, on Thursday, of a person on a charge of having fraudulently passed a Merchant's Bank note, Mr. Justice Armour took occasion to remark that, like a great many other old-fashioned people, he thought that no bank notes ought to be issued which there was not gold to redeem. He did not see why banks should be trusted in regard to that any more than private individuals. He did not want to be compelled to carry a bank note dictator about in his pocket in order to avoid such a contingency as occurred in the case of a friend of his, who, by the suspension of the Bank of Upper Canada, was left without money to pay his way home. He thought that the Government should be responsible for all the note currency of the country.

Rev. Mr. Maxwell on Billiards and Cards.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Mr. Maxwell has no more sincere friend and admirer than the writer of these lines. But my appreciation of his character and abilities increase my regret that he should at any time be illogical and unfair in his public teaching. I conceive that he was so in the course of his otherwise excellent sermon to the young which I heard him deliver last Sunday evening. He denounced all who by their example encouraged the young to play billiards and cards; and was particularly severe in his censure of those people who being wealthy enough to afford the purchase of a $300 billiard table, had one at their homes. I could wish that he, and other public teachers, who indulge in similar denunciations, would clearly distinguish between the right and wrong of these things. In the games themselves there is no evil whatever. It is the associations that have unfortunately become connected with them, which are objectionable. If gambling and social drinking had never been concomitant of these games, no reasonable fault could be found with them. I have seen Mr. Maxwell play croquet, and there is no essential difference between one game in which a ball is propelled by a mallet, and another in which it is propelled by a cue. I have heard Mr. Maxwell warn his hearers against the games in question many times, but I have never yet heard him clearly define the evil of gambling as connected with them. Clear instruction on this point is greatly needed, for there are religious people who would on no account touch cards or cue, who do not appear to see any harm in certain forms of gambling. A good Christian man in this city, told me on Saturday last he had lost a hat on the result of the English elections, and it is a very common thing to hear even church members say, "I bet you a dollar," and the like. Playing a game of any kind for stakes, or betting on any uncertain event, has in it the immoral element of gambling, which is the chief thing open to condemnation in regard to the games in question.

There are many truly Christian people who believe that the church should have the good sense and justice to discriminate in regard to these matters; and if there are innocent and refreshing recreations, which the devil has managed to curse with bad associations, the evil spirit should be exorcised and the good retained. In this conviction some who would not dream of going to a billiard saloon, have private tables in their houses. If billiards are a wholesome recreation, I do not know why it is not just as proper for those who can afford it to pay $300 for a table, as for a piano. But this game can be enjoyed without any such extravagant outlay. I know some Guelphites who give credible evidence of being as consistent as the general run of christians, who play billiards at home; but their outfit did not cost much, if any more, than a first-class set of croquet. But the effect of Mr. Maxwell's discourse was to hold them up to reprobation as tempters and corruptors of youth. I am the father of a family, and my children know very well that I do not disapprove of the games in question, when played apart from evil associations. They are sedulously taught to eschew gambling in every form,—even to the disuse of the two common phrases, "You bet," and "I bet you," but I cannot so far sacrifice my reason as to participate in wholesale condemnation of games which are only rendered harmful by the abuse of them; nor will I so completely part company with charity as to brand with the stigma of being corruptors of youth all who indulge in them. Recreation is a necessity of our nature, precisely as food or sleep. Let us banish the evil concomitants from our recreations, just as we do, or ought to do, unhealthy viands from our tables and foul air from our bedrooms. Then we and our children can play with the same freedom that we eat and sleep. I veil my personality behind the name of an ancient patriarch who did not prohibit pastimes to his children, but sought to purge the evil out of them, and subscribe myself,

Guelph, April 6, 1880.

NARROW ESCAPE OF LADY DUFFERIN.—A dramatic story comes from St. Petersburg, to the effect that Lord and Lady Dufferin with several persons belonging to the Imperial Court were hunting in a forest the other day, when suddenly a ferocious bear, which had been concealed in the underbush, sprang upon Lady Dufferin. She would undoubtedly have been killed, the report states, had it not been for the gallantry of Lord Hamilton, an attache of the embassy, who came to the rescue. After firing several shots from his revolver he succeeded in despatching the brute.

The cheese factories in Hastings will commence operations about the 15th instant.

The British Elections on Thursday.

The returns on Thursday night give a total of 300 Liberals, 191 Conservatives, and 39 Home Rulers, making altogether a net gain to the Liberals of 85 seats. The Liberal successes in the English and Scotch counties increase the surprise occasioned by the borough elections. A Liberal majority, independently of the Home Rulers, is now assured. Specific charges of intimidation and undue influence by sub-agents among Lord Derby's tenantry in favor of the Liberal candidates are published. It is stated that Parnell will retain his seat for Cork City for which he has been returned in conjunction with Daly. O'Gorman, Home Ruler, who was defeated for Waterford city, will stand as a candidate for Meath County, for which constituency Parnell had been nominated. Bitter contests are waging in the counties of Mayo and Cork, where Parnell's candidates, brought forward at the last moment, are opposing the moderate Home Rulers. The Parnellites already elected for other constituencies are stumping these counties, and inflammatory placards and broadsides are being distributed, bitterly attacking the moderates. The Daily News says there can be no doubt the country has declared, not only in favor of the Liberals, but for Mr. Gladstone as chief of the Government. If the Queen does not send for Mr. Gladstone, the first thing Lord Granville or the Marquis of Hartington or whoever receives the royal commission, must do will be to wait on Mr. Gladstone.

The Pacific Railway in British Columbia.

The report of Mr. Marcus Smith, Assistant Engineer of the Pacific Railway, in which he discusses the route of the line through British Columbia, makes its appearance at an opportune time. Mr. Smith's report discusses at length the question of the location of the line west of Winnipeg, and warmly advocates the construction of the line through the fertile belt. He condemns the selection of the Burrard Inlet route, and speaks in favor of the Pine River Pass route. The line by the Yellowhead Pass to Burrard Inlet he condems on these grounds :—As a colonization line; it possesses no advantage over American lines for commerce with Asia; it is not even a good provincial line, as it would serve but a very small portion of British Columbia, avoiding the mineral districts, which are the chief sources of the wealth of that province; the cost of constructing the railway would be heavy.

His arguments in favor of the Bute Inlet route, via Pine River Pass are summarized as follows :—The railway would not be dependent on through traffic for its earnings, although being on the direct route to China and Japan the traffic with these countries might in course of time be of importance. From Duck Mountain to Pine River, a distance of fully 900 miles the railway would traverse a belt of the richest agricultural lands of the Northwest Territory. Pine River Pass through the Rocky Mountains is so low, the distance is so short, the work of construction would be so moderate, and the gradients so easy that the difficulties of crossing the mountain barrier would practically be annihilated. In British Columbia the proportion of agricultural lands is small on either route, but on this it is all available for railway purposes—while on the other, being accessible from the coast by the waggon road to Cariboo, the land is all taken up. The minerals are the chief source of wealth in the province, and the railway on this route would give good access to the richest mineral districts both on the Mainland and on Vancouver Island. It would be really a national line, running through the heart of the country, and terminating at one of the best harbors for foreign commerce on the Pacific Coast. It would afford by the construction of a branch line from one of the points before mentioned the most direct practical route across the American Continent to China and Japan. From a thorough knowledge of the country he states without hesitation that no other line will be found with so many advantages and so few drawbacks, and it might be reasonably expected that apart from its advantages as a colonization railway, which are incalculable, it would before many years yield a profit and prove a good financial investment.

This report, so directly opposed to the policy adopted by the Government, will no doubt form a prominent subject of discussion when the matter comes up in debate in the House on Mr. Blake's resolutions relating to the construction of this part of the line in British Columbia, but the more important question will overshadow it, whether it is wise or prudent at the present time to build any line through that Province. The charge will no doubt be made that the Liberals and their leaders are inconsistent if they go back on their former professions, but as the Dundas Banner says :—"It is of very little moment to our people what view Mr. Blake, Mr. Mackenzie or Sir John took of this matter years ago. The question ought to be, what ought now to be done? Can Canada afford to go on borrowing millions of money annually with very little prospect of ever being recouped for such an extravagant outlay, for the mere purpose of proving that this politician is consistent or inconsistent? We think not, and it is high time that both Conservatives and Reformers in the House and out of it should throw aside their desire for petty squabbling, and endeavor to grasp this subject of the advisability of proceeding with the construction of the western section of the Pacific Railway with a single eye to the welfare of the country. We hope to see this view taken of the question by our representatives in Parliament and by the press of both political parties, so that the best interests of the Dominion may be conserved irrespective of what effect the determination arrived at may have upon the records of the leading politicians of either political party. It now seems to be admitted freely by some of the leading men of the ruling party that it would be madness to proceed without the guarantee of substantial aid from the Mother Country, and the discussion which will be brought on when Mr. Blake's resolutions come up for consideration will probably be the most important event of the present session of the Dominion Parliament."

It is supposed that Sir Alexander Campbell will be made Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, and Hon. T. N. Gibbs takes his place in the Government.

It is thought there would be several free fights in the American Congress the other day, but after the irate members had let off steam by calling each other liars the excitement subsided.

Hon. J. H. Pope, Minister of Emigration to Minnesota and Dakota, is now receiving at his offices in Ottawa 20,000 copies of a pamphlet entitled, "Manitoba and the North-West," containing an advertisement of Minnesota railway lands.

Sir John Macdonald's speech on Wednesday night on the Fishery Award is said to be the best he has made for a long time. The house sat till 4:30 on Thursday morning, and the wearied members passed the time by throwing blue books at each other.

Mr. Tasse, ex-M. P., has been trying to get the Clerk of the Privy Council removed and himself appointed. This Mr. Tasse has already got a brother, two brothers-in-law and his father-in-law appointed to offices, and now he wants to get an appointment himself worth $6,500 a year. Tasse must be commended for his cheek.

The Tories on the Parliamentary Printing Committee on Thursday became remarkably fidgetty and alarmed when Senator Haythorne contended that the case of Messrs. McIntosh and Barber, who it is sworn traded upon alleged influence over members of the Committee, was analogous to that of Grissell, recently imprisoned in Newgate gaol by the Imperial House of Commons. The Tories could not see the analogy, but ordinary minded people can. From the evidence it appeared that Mr. McIntosh promised Mr. J. C. Boyce, one of the tenderers, a Government situation, and when a position suitable for Mr. Boyce was vacant, the latter wrote a letter reminding Mr. McIntosh of his promise. This that worthy characterized in his evidence as an attempt to blackmail.

Waterloo Chronicle :—Dr. Orton has introduced a bill to fix the rate of interest payable for loans on real estate security, at seven per cent. He might as well bring in another to fix the price of wheat at $1.25 per bushel. Everybody will admit that $1.25 is a fair price for wheat, fairly profitable to the farmer, and not too oppressive to the consumer. Why then should not Parliament fix this fair, honest price for our great agricultural staple, so that the farmer may be sure of a proper reward for his industry? From Dr. Orton's point of view, this logic would be unanswerable. The difficulty is that the price of wheat is the point where the necessities of the world's buyers and the supplies of the world's providers chance to meet. Prices of wheat are self-regulative, and why not prices of money too? There are occasions when money is worth far more than seven per cent., and there are others when it is not worth so much. If the Dr. wants to do borrowers any good he will not interfere between them and lenders. Interference hurts both parties.

We quite agree with the following from the Hamilton Times :—Some of our contemporaries seem to be of opinion that the Liberal party is reduced to the extremity of being at the beck and call of a newspaper. There never was a greater mistake. Each Liberal newspaper has its right to criticise favorably or unfavorably as the circumstances may warrant, and to use its influence as it sees fit, but none of them claims nor possesses the power to take matters of policy out of the hands of the leaders or carve out platforms for them. The members of the party owe their allegiance to leaders whose acts are public property and who can be made responsible, and not to any irresponsible body. It is arrant rot to say that any newspaper can control the Liberals of Canada and drive them at its sweet will. Can the Tories say as much for themselves?

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

The following has been perpetrated by somebody, who styles it "A maiden's soliloquy" :—'Tis wondrous strange how great the change since I was in my teens; then I had a beau, and a billet-doux, and joined the gayest scenes. But lovers now have ceased to vow; no way they now contrive—to poison, hang, or drown themselves—because I'm thirty-five. Once, if the night was e'er so bright, I ne'er abroad could roam, without—"the bliss, the honor Miss, of seeing you safe home." But now I go, through rain and snow—fatigued, and scarce alive—through all the dark, without a spark—because I'm thirty-five.

An old miser, who was notorious for self-denial, was one day asked why he was so thin. "I do not know," said the miser; "I have tried various means for getting fatter, but without success." "Have you tried victuals?" inquired a friend.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

MR. BISHOP TO THE RESCUE—THE PROOFS OF INNOCENCE—A TRIUMPHAL RETURN—WESTWARD HO!

Great was the alarm, nay the consternation of Mr. Bishop when David Ramsay was ushered into his private room and informed himof Jack's apprehension and the circumstanees connected therewith. He immediately put aside the work on which he was engaged and prepared to throw all his energy into the more incumbent duty of rescuing their common benefactor from the dangerous position in which he was placed.

First he examined David as to how the discovery had been made, with a view to understand if there was sufficient proof to establish Jack's identity, but he soon saw that any hope founded on this point was cut away by Jack's own admission to the constables that he was the individual named in the warrant.

"How stupid of him to make such an admission," cried the lawyer, with natural professional vexation. "He should have kept his mouth shut and made the Crown prove that he is Jack Borland."

"Aweel sir," observed David. "it's owre late to think o' that now, for he avowed the truth in the plainest o' words. But for a' that I canna see that they can dae anything to him, for it was ane o' the smugglers ca'd Bob Andrew that shot the King's man."

"Ay, if that could be proved," returned the lawyer. "But it can't. Perhaps none are alive who heard Andrew making his dying confession. Even if there be, their evidence will weigh nothing against that of the men of the cutter. Why, Jack himself never doubted that it was he who fired the fatal shot. I would not say so to every one, but I may tell you, David, that, so far as I can see the evidence will convict him,"

"Guid keep us," ejaculated David with a horrified stare. "And they will hang him after sae mony years."

"The length of time may reduce the sentence to transportation."

"Mercy me, the ane is near as bad as the ither. Oh, Maister Bishop can naething be dune for him? Wull ye no try to save him? Think o' what he has dune for Maister Orwell and the Grange."

"I do think of it, David, and be assured that I will spare no energy, no expense in his behalf. Of course I will be fought at all points by the Langtons, who, out of revenge will pursue Jack to the death."

"The deevils that they are," groaned David in righteous indignation. "I wonder, sir, hoo Providence alldos sic wickedness to flourish."

"Ah, that is not a question for a lawyer to answer. Return to the cottage and assure Mrs. Borland and her daughter that I will use every possible means in Jack's behalf."

"Wull I tell them that ye think ye'll be able to get him aff?

"I sincerely wish I could authorise you to do so. But that might raise false hopes, and make disappointment more bitter. No, David, you must not mislead them, even for the sake of allaying their present apprehension."

"Very weel, sir I'll no do it," sighed David, as with a despondent aspect as he took his departure.

No sooner was he gone than the lawyer gave instructions to his clerk as to the day's work in the office. Then he despatched Penwiper to the house with a note to his sister telling her that he was called away on urgent business, and might not be home till late. Finally he seized his hat, locked up his private drawers, and crossed the square to the inn, where he hired a horse and gig, and, acting as his own driver, left Cairntree at a smart trot going eastwards.

The county town, to the prison of which Jack had been taken, lay in the opposite direction, and it was Mr. Bishop's intention to proceed thither ere the day was over; but first he wished to see Dan Bryce and such of the fisherman as had been Jack's associates on the night when the man was killed, especially those who had heard the dying words of Bob Andrew, in order that after gleaning all the particulars which could be obtained he might know how to conduct Jack's defence, and what prospect there was of success.

When he set forth on this mission the lawyer wore a grave and anxious look, but when he returned in less than two hours the aspect of his countenance was considerably brighter. When he descended from the gig at the door of the inn, he told the ostler not to unyoke the horse, but to give him a good feed as he would start again in a few minutes. Having given this order he crossed the square with a hurried step, and entering his private room was for the next quarter of an hour deep in the consultation of a number of large law-books which had not been taken from their shelves for many a day. The result of this examination of professional literature was eminently satisfactory, and when he again mounted the gig and drove out of Cairntree by the west road his face had entirely lost the anxious expression it had worn in the morning.

The road he was travelling was a cross country road from Cairntree to the main highway which led to the county town containing the prison and the Sheriff Court-house. Along that road Jack had been taken several hours before in the official conveyance with the constables by his side—his thoughts, as may be imagined, of a nature far from enviable.

He and the chief constable had frankly discussed the matter, for Jack having owned his identity had nothing to conceal concerning the old crime for which he had been apprehended. On the contrary, he entered minutely into the particulars so far as he knew and remembered them, admitted that he had raised the pistol at the moment the man fell. When he saw the flash and smoke, heard the report, and beheld the result, he was filled with amazement and horror; for he was not aware that his hand had been at the moment on the trigger. Seeing, however, that the seaman fell mortally wounded, he never doubted that he had fired, and was as much in the belief that he had done the deed as were the Revenue men who seized him. It was only, he added, on his return to Scotland a few weeks ago that he learned that one of his smuggling associates, who had been mortally wounded in the fray, had declared to those who watched his dying moments that he and not Jack Borland had fired the fatal shot.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

Cereals for the West.

In the region of western Kansas, where there is liable to be a lack of rainfall in any season, and where corn especially must have plenty of moisture to produce a crop in paying quantities, a grain that will not merely be a succedaneum, but will absolutely take the place of corn, has been experimented with during the past three seasons, and it is believed to be demonstrated beyond a doubt that it will add very much to the value of western lands.

This grain is called here Egyptian, or rice corn, and, so far as known has not been cultivated in any other part of the United States. The seed was obtained from the display made by the Egyptian Government at the Centennial Exposition. The name is derived from the resemblance of the grain to rice, and, so far as it has been experimented with, has proved a success, both in wet and dry seasons. While growing, this crop can hardly be distinguished from sorghum; the seed forms at the top of the stalk in large bunches, and, as it ripens and gets heavier, bends over and hangs down, not unlike a cluster of grapes. It belongs to the sugar cane family and is cultivated in the same manner, and as easily as sorghum or broom corn. One bushel of seed is sufficient for five acres, and it has been put in here with a wheat drill. In harvesting, the heads only are gathered, and a good threshing machine will clean ready for market two thousand bushels a day. The specimens raised this year weigh sixty pounds to the buehel. The yield per acre in 1878 was from sixty to seventy-five bushels. This season, which, as said above, has been a very dry one, the yield was forty to forty-five bushels per acre. No scientific analysis has been made of this new grain as yet; indeed it is scarcely known, except in some two or three counties in western Kansas, where it has been known by several farmers who desire to find some grain that would serve in the place of corn as a food for stock. The trial by these men has satisfied them that for horses, cattle, sheep, or swine it is superior to maize, and farm animals to which it is fed give it the preference to corn when both are laid before them. When ground into meal, the rice corn is about equal to a mixture of one-third wheat flour and two-thirds corn meal.

The value of this new grain to the people of western Kansas can hardly be estimated when considered as a sure yield in any season, and it will enable the stock raiser to fatten his herds at home instead of shipping them east, as has hitherto been mostly the custom for fattening. The vast plains in the western portion of this State, so celebrated as grazing grounds by reason of the buffalo grass with which they are covered, and its excellent climate, will be doubly valuable if further experiment confirms the value of this hitherto unknown grain.—Letter to Chicago Times.

A REPORTER IN A TIGHT PLACE.—A reporter of the Philadelphia Times interviewed Captain Shirley, of the "Salvation Army," while the evangelist was at dinner with his lieutenants. When the scribe had put up his pencil and was about to take his leave, Mrs. Shirley startled him with the query, "Now, my brother, how is it with you? Have you given your heart to God?" The reporter was non-plussed, and tried laughingly, to evade the question. But the earnest woman was not to be put off. Laying one hand on the shoulder of the reporter and grasping his right hand with her own, and looking earnestly into his eyes, she said: "We never let an opportunity go by. We never meet a person without trying to lead him to the Lord, even those that we meet and talk with on the street. We are going to pray with you before you go." And pray they did, with a fervor that would have excited a camp meeting assemblage, all the female lieutenants joining in the responses, and interspersing the supplications with snatches from Moody and Sankey songs. The newspaper man avers that he finally escaped from the most peculiar and trying experience of his life, in a very heated and flushed condition.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

Some time before the death of George IV. he acquainted himself with all the minutiæ of the family sepulchure, and declared to the Duke of Wellington that "he'd be d——d if he'd lie on a shelf among the juniors while his predecessor lay in the middle," and left very special directions that he, too, should repose in the centre.

The editor of the London Truth thus moralizes:—"As I was walking along St. James street on the morning of the Drawing Room, I observed a group surrounding a brougham. In it was seated a lady alone. Never have I in civilized society and in the daylight seen a lady with so small an amount of clothing. At least she might have covered her nakedness with a shawl."

Here is Bishop Wilberforce's sketch of one of the inevitable features of a British drawing room:—"There was Lady ——, the type of a class deeply worldly, beginning to age, but fighting against it to desperation and playing off two daughters of very great beauty, but seeming to be decked out for victims—played daily, hourly, minutely in this their sweet girlish youth by a clever, reaching mother for coronets and a settlement."

Newfoundland appears to be getting restive under the treatment it is receiving as a colony. The North Star, of St. John's, is outspoken in its references to the matter, and must certainly have had its patience sorely tried before it could declare that "the country has been disgracefully and disreputably treated by the Imperial Government, and by the stepmother country to which it has so long religiously and sentimentally adhered. And in return for all this spirit of tolerant patience we have been spoiled and plundered in the most open and barefaced manner, not only of our territory, but of our money and means. Her Majesty's Government might play the role of a foot-pad with equal merit to itself."

The Town Clerk of Windsor, was suspended from office at the Council meeting on Tuesday evening, his official conduct for some time being underhanded. There was an apparent deficiency in the dog tax of $160, part of which the clerk offered to refund at once and give security for the balance. He has lived in Windsor 17 years, and had the confidence and respect of the citizens up to the present.

Josh Billings.

He gives Some very Sagacious Advice to "Quire" Singers.

DEAR MISS:—This is a important epock into your life. The fust thing to make a good quire is to giggle a little.

Put up your hair in curl papers every Friday nite soze to have it in good shape Sunday morning. If your daddy is rich you can buy some store hare. If he is very rich buy some more build it up high upon your head; then get a high priced bonnet that runs up very high, at the high part of it, and git the milliner to plant some high grown artifishels onto the highest part of it. This will help you sing high, as soprano is the highest part.

When the tune is giv out, don't pay attenshun to it, and then giggle. Giggle a good eel.

Whisper to the girl next you that Em Jones, which sets on the 2nd seet from the front on the left-hand side, has her bunnet with the same color exact she had last year, and then put up your book to your face and giggle.

Object to every tune unless there is a solow into it for the soprano. Coff and ham a goodeel before you begin to sing.

When you sing a solow shake the artifishels off your bonnit, and when you come to a high tone brace yourself back a little, twist your head to one side and open your mouth the widest on that side, shut the eye on the same side jest a triphle, and then put in for dear life.

When the preacher gits under hed way with his preachin, write a note onto the blank leaf into the fourth part of your note book. That's what the blank leaf was made for. Git somebody to pass the note to somebody else, and you watch them while they read it, and then giggle.

If anybody talks or laffs in the congregashun and the preacher takes notis of it, that's a good chants for you to giggle, and you ought to giggle a great eel. The preacher darsent say anything to you bekaus you are in the quire. If you had a bow before you went into the quire, give him the mitten—you ought to have sumbody better now.

Don't forget to giggle.

DOMINION ALLIANCE.—The following are the officers elect of Dominion Prohibitory Alliance: Hon. Senator Vidal, President; Rev. Thomas Gales, Corresponding Secretary; Rev. John Wood, General Secretary; Mr. Geo. May, Treasurer. Mr. J.R. Dougall, of Montreal, was elected chairman of the Executive Committee. At the meeting of the Alliance on Thursday, a resolution was passed to the effect that it was highly desirable that the Canadian Temperance Act should be submitted in every constituency in the Dominion, so that a popular verdict might be obtained.

The old Beehive building in Rochester, N. Y., the greatest structure in that part of the State over half a century ago, took fire on Wednesday and was burned to the ground. It was occupied by more than a score of mechanical industries, and situated right in the heart of the city. It was built in 1827, when Rochester was only a prosperous village. When built it was long used as a flouring mill.

School Reform.—The Galt Reformer this week has an article proposing several reforms in the school system, and supporting some changes to be made by the Galt School Board. The following are some of its objections to the present school system: That it aims at cramming pupils with a vast array of facts, instead of real education, or the development of reason or real inventiveness; that the cost of education has increased in consequence of fewer pupils being put under each teacher; that scholars are confined and kept too closely to their studies at a time when physicial development is most essential to the building up of a sound body and a vigorous mind. The Reformer recommends the proposal of the School Board to allow the scholars more time during school hours for outside exercise.

Reported Lease of the Great Western Railway.—It is reported in New York, on good authority that the Wabash system, of which Jay Gould is the controlling spirit, has leased the Great Western Railway of Canada, guaranteeing the bondholders a certain rate of interest. This will give Gould a through line from the West to New York, the Erie road being in his hands.

"Do you know who I am, sir, that you dare talk so to me?" said an irate father to an impudent young hopeful. "Yes, I know who you are," was the reply, "but Mr. Brown, who lived next door, doesn't, for I heard him say only the other day that you were an old ass."

After a telegraph pole had fallen on a Savannah negro's head, he threw up his hands and shouted: "Don't hit him again wid yer club, Mr. Policeman. It wasn't me that stole der chickens. It was Deacon Henry." Then he looked, saw what hit him, and walked off, saying: "Golly, I'se in luck dis morning." I 'spected dat de policeman had me shuah dat time."

At the London Assizes on Wednesday, an action was brought by John Vincent against Peter Lawson to recover damages for the alleged seduction of his daughter. Both parties are farmers in the township of North Dorchester. A year ago she was living as a domestic at the house of the defendant, who has a wife and two children; and while there she alleges to have been seduced by her employer. The girl gave birth to a child last January. After evidence was taken, and before the jury retired Miss Vincent exhibited her baby to their gaze. It bears considerable resemblance to defendant, which fact doubtless had its effect on the jurors. They awarded plaintiff $300 damages.

The exodus of Canadians to Dakota, both from the older Provinces and from Manitoba, we regret to observe, still continues, notwithstanding Sir John Macdonald's denial. Mr. C. Patrick, a Middlesex man who has settled at Pembina on the American side, fairly states the case in a letter to a London contemporary:—"There's a very large emigration to the country. I think from appearances that it will continue through the summer. Most of our emigrants are from Canada that settle in the country. * * * * There are a great many coming from Manitoba and settling in Dakota on account of there being so much land, or I might say the best in the country, held by speculators, who try to exort a high price from those that come there to procure homes."

The Liberal Triumph.

The New York Herald speaks as follows of the political situation in Great Britain:—

"All the progressive spirit, all the vigorous intellect, all the energetic elements of English life are Liberal; all the adhesion to old institutions and old ideas without regard to their advantage, all the inherited dignity and nearly all the inherited wealth, all the supercilious spirit of the nation and two-thirds of its arrogance are Tory. All the virtues of the nation are not to be found in the Liberal party, nor all the vices, weaknesses and vanities on the other side; but if the parties were analyzed thoroughly as to the elements of the national mind and character to which they appeal it would be found that all that has made England great and keeps her so, all that has led her out of the wilderness of feudalism by the sure path of constitutional freedom, came from the same impulses that now inspire the Liberal party; and all that has oppressed her people with tremendous burdens of taxation and keeps many of them to-day in a condition of quasi slavery, all that has been on obstruction in her path to progress, all in her policy and history that is a comfort to tyranny and injustice anywhere, has been Tory in origin and in spirit."

Mr. John Hill, of Pilkington, on Monday last, fell from a mow, breaking two or three ribs.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. MR. WM. MANN deserves praise for the handsome bouquets of flowers which adorned the tables at the Masonic supper on Thursday night. They were tastefully arranged and formed an important part in the display.

A YOUNG lady surprised the "gentlemanly clerk" at one of our dry goods stores the other day by offering him fifty cents in payment for a dollar purchase. "It amounts to a dollar, if you please," said the clerk. "I know it does," was the answer, "but papa is only paying fifty cents on the dollar now."

FAST DRIVING.—The police got word yesterday afternoon that Richard Emery, was going to leave the city in order to escape trial on a charge of furious driving, and arrested him. He was afterwards bailed out, and appeared at Police Court to-day (Saturday) when he was fined $1 and $3.50 costs.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—Tenders will be received by the Department of Public Works, Ontario, up till the 21st inst., for completing the main buildings, dining hall and dormitories of this College, and for building three cottages on the Model Farm. Plans and specifications can now be seen at the College. See advertisement.

LOCAL LEGAL.—At the County Court in Walkerton this week, an action was brought by George Vogt, a tavernkeeper of Neustadt, against John Bryle, a subcontractor on the Stratford and Lake Huron Railway, for board, lodging, and liquor supplied to plaintiff for defendant and his men. Defendant resisted payment of liquor drank by his men in the tavern, on the ground that no action could be brought for same, and also that the writ was not brought in the proper court. The court held that a tavernkeeper could recover in the County Court for liquor supplied by him to his guests.

THE COW BY-LAW.—The By-law which prevents persons from allowing cows to run at large, is a sensible one and should be enforced in every season, but more especially during the spring and summer months. During that time when the trees are out in leaf and the grass green, cattle do more damage than at any other time in the year.

HANDSOME MONUMENT. — Messrs. McQuillan and Hamilton have just completed and placed in their show yard a beautiful monument. The monument is to be placed in the Union cemetery, on the family burial plot of James Mr. Hough, and will be one of the handsomest there. It is of highly finished continental marble and is considered equal to granite for durability. The monument reflects much credit on the workmen.

THE IRISH DISTRESS.—A meeting of the Irish Relief Committee was held at the Albion Hotel on Friday night to receive the returns from the collectors for the relief fund. Mr. J. M. Bond occupied the chair. The collectors for St. Patrick's Ward reported collecting in the neighborhood of $200; those for St. John's Ward, $51.60; and those for St. George's Ward $26. It was arranged that the collectors should proceed at once to collect in all the wards, and the Secretary was requested to notify them to that effect. The committee then adjourned.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—An adjourned meeting of St. George's Society was held in the Society's hall, Upper Wyndham street, last night, there being a good attendance of members. The only business of importance considered was the arrangement for the annual sermon to the Society, and the manner of celebrating St. George's day. It was decided that the Society would attend the Norfolk Street Methodist Church in a body a week from to-morrow, in the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Williams promising to preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The anniversary of St. George's day will be celebrated by a concert in the evening, at which Messrs. Kennedy and Baker, Brantford, will take part, besides talented local performers. The concert will be under the leadership of Prof. Philp.

Referee Blaikie has decided to have the Hanlan-Courtney-Riley race rowed on the Potomac, above Washington.

JOHN ROSS, of "A" Battery, Kingston, is here on two weeks leave of absence and will return at the expiration of that time.

MR. MITCHELL TODD showed us a small white butterfly which he caught on the street this morning.

PROF. HOTCHKIN, of springless truss and supporter notoriety, has arrived at the Royal Hotel, Guelph. Go and see him. He defies the hernia that he cannot hold.

TRESPASS.—In the case against Robert Soden, cab driver, for soliciting passengers on the Grand Trunk Station platform, the Police Magistrate to-day imposed a fine of $4 and $3.10 costs.

MR. McDIARMID, M. A., of Toronto, in connection with the Disciples of Christ, will preach in the Y. M. C. A. hall to-morrow at 11 a.m., and 6.30 p.m. All are invited.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—The Rev. R. N. Grant, of Ingersoll, will occupy the pulpit of Chalmers' Church to-morrow, in place of the pastor who goes to Ingersoll to preach missionary sermons.

Thoughtless Marrying.

A great many men marry who have not the means to wrrrant them in taking the step, and regret it, consequently, all their life long. It is the habit of a number of match-makers and pro-connubialists, generally women, to scout the idea that any man is too poor to be a husband, and, in due season, a father. They have a deal to say about the ability of two—the two are apt to become four or five, or more—to live as cheaply as one, which is, in general, obviously false, as they must know. There are at this moment thousands of couples in the city who have had, and still have, a hard, continual, dreary, hopeless struggle, because they believed in that mischievous fallacy. Luxuries are not, it is needless to say, essential to matrimonial contentment; but a certain amount of money is essential—sufficient to be at least respectable. Neither men nor women of any sensibility can be at peace if they are ceaselessly occupied with the question of how they shall get on, with carking thoughts of dollars and cents. Sordid anxieties will in time wear them out physically and mentally, and the mass of husbands and fathers are doomed to be tormented by them to their grave. The bulk of educated, healthful, industrious married men in this great city can barely earn on an average $1,500 a year, if so much—$1,100 or $1,200 would doubtless be nearer the mark—and with that amount they will be lucky if they keep out of debt. Most of them are on salaries—comparatively few men can push their own fortunes in any way—and if they are thrown out of a situation, as they are liable to be, they are in a desperate strait. A man alone in the world can manage to tumble or crawl over rough places somehow, but as a husband and father the rough places tax his patience to the utmost. Marriage is in some sense a luxury—it certainly is not a necessity—and they who feel that they cannot afford it should wait until they can. If they should wait they might find that they never can afford to enter a state which is to an extent a co-partnership, and which should not be undertaken without assets proportioned to the necessarily many liabilities.

A QUESTION OF BIDS.—A dispute occurred at the sale of a residence in Oshawa recently, says an eastern exchange, which, if carried to the courts, will decide a point that often arises at sales by auction. A man had bid $2,700, and just as the auctioneer knocked the property down to him, another man claimed that he had made the same bid. The auctioneer put the property up again and knocked it down to the second man at $50 an advance. The first man protested against this, made an offer of the required deposit, and demanded to be put in possession of the property. He contends that the second man's bid was not valid, in that it failed to reach the auctioneer, and that, if his bid were admitted to be good, it would enable anyone to break up a sale by claiming to put in a bid.

Messrs. Lingham & Son, of Belleville, have shipped from New York, Boston, and Baltimore since the 12th November last over 12,000 head of cattle.

The hands in Hyman's shoe factory London have struck for an advance of 10 per cent. The employers refuse to pay it, and threaten to close the shop.

Articles of consolidation of the Indiana Railway Company, the Michigan Railway Company, the Chicago and North-Eastern Railway Company, and the the North Western Railroad Company were filed in the office of the Secretary of State Illinois on Friday. The title of the Consolidated Company is the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company, and the capital stock is $6,000,000.

Physicians are often importuned by restless mortals for something that will make them sleep—especially for something that has no opium in it. The following "sleeping potion" has been recommended. Temperance people may object to some of the components, and scholars may object to the Latin. But then we can't please everybody. Those who don't like the prescription can leave it alone; and those who don't like the Latin can dislike it:

The Downward Sliding Scale.

Between a married couple:

"Take me to the opera to-night dear?"

"I'm afraid I can't, pet."

"Why not, love?"

"I'd rather not, sweet."

"But why not, darling?"

"Because I can't afford it, precious."

"Why can't you afford it, Mr. Smith?"

"Because it costs too much, Mrs. Smith."

"Costs too much! Why the Browns and Joneses go ever so many times a week, man."

"The Browns and Joneses are fools then, woman."

"You needn't be more common than you can help sir."

"I don't mean to be, ma'am."

"If you won't take me I'll go all the same, husband."

"I think not, wife!"

Here they found they could call one another nothing worse, so dropped the subject.

Mr. Chisholm, M.P.P. for Peel, has generously offered to the Board of Agriculture, a prize of $100 for the best Farm House, out buildings and grounds attached. He says in his letter:—The Board can, if they think proper, supplement this amount, and offer a First and Second Prize; and also arrange details as to the time the competition shall take place.

The corner stone of the Channing Memorial Church at Newport, Rhode Island, was duly laid on Wednesday, with impressive ceremonies and with many feeling tributes to the memory of the preacher.

A laughable incident occurred in one of the churches on Easter Sunday. The clergyman announced that the offertory would be applied to reducing the debt on the church. During the singing of the music, while the collection was being taken up, the tenor, who is a German, had a solo, in which occurred the words, "and the dead shall be raised." He succeeded in electrifying the congregation by giving out at the top of his voice, "Und ze debt shall be raised in ze twingling ov an eye."

When a brave voltiguer of the Imperial guard wrote from the Crimea to his father in Alsace, asking him to send him a pair of strong shoes and a five-franc piece, the father, bethinking himself of the telegraph's speed, put the money into one of the shoes and hung the shoes upon the wires. An ill-shod fellow coming along soon afterward made an exchange; and the old man, upon discovering the substitution, went home to tell his wife that their boy had not only received his new shoes but had returned the old ones!

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

A Disgraceful Affair.

An Undutiful Wife Elopes With Her Paramour.

The police have been notified of a most disgraceful affair which occurred here this week, the parties implicated being Mrs. McIntosh and one George Stevens. The name of the former was prominently before the public some time ago in a case of attempted abortion on a girl who afterwards married Thomas Fennel in the gaol. Since she was released from custody on that charge, and prior to that time Stevens has been living with her in a house on the Edinburgh Road. On Wednesday the couple eloped and have not since been heard of here.

To fully understand their position it is necessary to go back some four or five years when the woman came from Montreal where she has a brother. She married Mr. McIntosh, a farm labourer, in the employ of Mr. F. W. Stone, shortly after her arrival, but there could have been nothing in sympathy between them owing to a disparagement in their ages, he being about 50 years old, while she was only aged 32. He was a steady, plodding man, while she led a fast life, as is proven by her subsequent conduct. After establishing her in the house on the Edinburgh road Stevens went to board with her, while her husband lived at the farm, and paid an occasional visit home. It is alleged that in his absence the woman kept a disreputable house, visited by all sorts of dissolute characters.

On going to the house on Thursday Mr. McIntosh found it vacant and the furniture removed. On enquiry it was learned that his wife had made an auction sale of the furniture on the Market Square on Tuesday and flown with the proceeds the following day to other parts. The cruelest part of the whole affair is the theft of $200 in cash, the poor man's earnings, which was removed from his trunk. He could not learn which way the couple had gone, but the case is such that if he had a knowledge of their whereabouts he could not prosecute his wife.

A Strange Story.

Among the '49ers en route to California for gold was W. H. Clark, of Henry county, Mo. Near where the Santa Fe trail crosses the Arkansas river he died of the cholera epidemic. The party accordingly dug a grave in the sand seven feet deep, and in lieu of a coffin the body was wrapped in bark stripped from cottonwood trees, and buried beneath their shade. The graves was covered with two logs to keep the wolves and coyotes from disinterring the body. This was the last seen of Clark by any of that party, and his property was taken care of by his comrades and returned to his friends. But now, after a lapse of 32 years, it is found that Clark was not so dead as he was thought to be, nor so securely buried as he might have been. Mr. Jere Embrey, formerly of Henry county, but now a citizen of Helena, Montana, while working a mine at Prickey Pear City in 1868, employed Clark, and found out he was from the same place, well acquainted with prominent citizens and notable events there. It appears that after the emigrants had moved on the Indians, with which the Arkansas valley then swarmed, resurrected and revived Clark and nursed him back to health, and that he lived among them for many years and learned to speak fluently the languages of the Snakes, Sioux and Cheyennes. The Indians, desirous of getting the blankets, clothing or anything else buried with a man, often dug them up after their friends had left them, and in this case were the means of bringing a man as good as dead back to life.—Graphic.

Coroners' Inquests.

The duty of coroners under the Act passed at the late session of the Ontario Legislature is set forth in a letter from Mr. F. Fenton, County Crown Attorney of York. Mr. Fenton points out that under the old Act an inquest could not be held unless it appeared to the coroner that "the deceased died from violence or unfair means, or by culpable or negligent conduct either of himself or of others under such circumstances as require investigation, and not through mere accident or mischance." Under the new Act the coroner cannot claim fees unless prior to the issue of his warrant for holding the inquest he makes a declaration in writing under oath, "stating that from information received by him he is of opinion that there is no reason for believing that the deceased did not come to his death from natural causes or from mere accident or mischance, but came to his death from violence or unfair means of culpable or negligent conduct of others under circumstances requiring investigation by a coroner's inquest." The Act further provides that this section is not to apply to an inquest held on the written request of the County Crown Attorney, nor to inquests on prisoners dying in jail. As a matter of fact the new Act requires nothing more from the coroner than that he shall swear that he entertains the opinion than an inquest is necessary, and there must have been the same ground for holding every honest inquest for the past 30 years. There is therefore no humiliation in observing this new formality, which has been adopted to prevent the expense of needless inquests, held often through a mistaken notion of their duties by some of the 700 coroners in the Province. There is no intention of subordinating the office of coroner to that of County Attorney, but in cases where an inquest is held at the written request of the latter, fees can be obtained without any preliminary affidavit.

The balance of 350,000 shares of New York Central stock, purchased from Vanderbilt by the New York Syndicate a few months ago, was disposed of by private sale on Thursday. Gould, Field and Dillon were heavy purchasers, and it is believed they now hold over one-third of the capital stock of the New York Central. There is a suspicion that Gould and Vanderbilt are working in harmony to establish a monopoly from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The Elections in Britain.

On Friday twenty-seven elections were held; of these the Liberals gained 19, and the Conservatives 8. The total Liberal gains are now 97, and the Daily News estimates that they will have a clear majority of 80, independent of the Home Rulers. The Marquis of Hartington, Liberal leader, and R. W. Grafton, Liberal, for Lancashire North-East, are both elected; Liberal gain of two seats. The Marquis of Hartington had already been returned from Radnorshire. Parnell will sit for Cork city in the next House. It is stated that Right Hon. Col. Taylor, Conservative, who has been re-elected for Dublin county, will be raised to the peerage, and Sir A. B. Guinness, who stood for Dublin city, will be the Conservative candidate. The O'Conor Don, who stood for Roscommon, will be the Liberal candidate for the vacancy thus caused in Dublin county. The Times says the Queen is expected to arrive in England by the end of next week. We may therefore expect that a very few days will see the formal close of the Beaconsfield Administration. The proposal to tender an ovation to Mr. Gladstone, on his return from Scotland, meets with such popular and influential support, that it is believed he will hardly be able to refuse to accept it. Many prominent Liberals of London and throughout the country express the opinion that in the case of so signal a victory for the party as the late elections have witnessed, Mr. Gladstone owes to his friends to throw aside, for the moment, his disposition to decline a reception, and to permit them to signify their sense of the obligation the Liberal party is under to a man, without whose able and eloquent efforts it could scarcely have succeeded. The Liberal Executive Committee has appointed a deputation to urge Mr. Gladstone to consent to the public reception.

N. Y. Tribune:—Mr. Parnell and the unreasoning Irish agitators who go with him seem disposed to strike hands with the Tory party. But the same sort of alliance is an old story here. A certain class of Irish voters have for years patiently served as the willing tools of Southern slave-holders and aristocrats, and, while pretending great love for freedom, have done what they could to crush human freedom here. If wiser legislation in respect to land tenure is ever to come in Great Britain, it must come from the very party which Mr. Parnell now seems so impatient to defeat; and, from the Homestead bill and the Emancipation proclamation to the Election law passed for the protection of the rights of voters, every practical step toward the enlargement and defence of the freedom of citizens in this country has been taken by the Republican party. The Northern Democrats who have been hewers of wood and drawers of water for the Southern aristocracy, these many years, know how galling the yoke has been, and the Irish voters who look to Tory leaders for amelioration of the condition of Ireland may serve quite as long, with the same contempt and the same slender reward. Toryism, on either side of the water, cares much for power, but nothing for humanity or justice.

If our politicians possessed the earnestness, the sense of responsibility and high moral feeling that Mr. Gladstone does we would have a much better set of public men, better legislation, no corruption. How few of our public men hold sentiments so pure and lofty as are expressed in the following peroration in one of Mr. Gladstone's great speechs recently delivered in Midlothian during his canvass:—"I have spoken, gentlemen, and I must speak in very strong terms indeed of the acts done by my opponents, but I will never ascribe these acts to base motives. I will never say that they did them from vindictiveness, I will never say they did them from passion, I will never say did them from a sordid love of office, I have no right to use such words. I have no right to entertain such sentiments. I repudiate and abjure them. I give them credit for patriotic motives—I give them credit for those patriotic motives which are so incessantly and gratuitously denied to us. I believe that we are all united, gentlemen—indeed it would be most unnatural if we were not in a fond attachment, to the great country to which we belong, to this great Empire, which has committed to it a trust and a function given from Providence as special and as remarkable as ever was entrusted to any portion of the family of man. Gentlemen, when I speak of that trust and of that function I feel that words fail me. I cannot tell you what I think of the nobleness of the inheritance that has desended upon us, and the sacredness of the duty of maintaining it. I won't condescend to make it a part of controversial politics. It is a a part of my being, of my flesh and blood, of my heart and soul. For those ends I have laboured through my youth and manhood till my hairs are grey. In that faith and practice I live; in that faith and practice I will die."

MR. RICHEY'S Bill to prevent and punish wrongs to children, provides that no person taking charge of children under sixteen years of age shall allow them to be employed for exhibitions of a dangerous or immoral kind. An exception is made, however, to musical training.

Engineer's Report on the Pacific Railway.

The Report of Mr. Sanford Fleming, Chief Engineer of the Pacific Railway, was laid on the table of the House on Friday. It is brought down to the first of the month. He refers to his recommendation of the Burrard Inlet route, and its adoption by the Government. He contrasts the American lines—built and projected—with the proposed Canadian one, and his opinion is that of the four lines stretching across the continent within the limits of the United States, no one of them is marked by general summits so low, or gradien.s so moderate, as the line to Burrard Inlet. The examinations of the prairie regions during the past year were divided into five sections, and the whole of the reports are that the land is generally good, with occasional inferior belts. The country lying to the south of the 52nd parallel is devoid of timber. This disadvantage applies to the whole district from the Touchwood Hills to the Foot Hills of the Rocky Mountains, a distance of fully 500 miles. Much fine timber is found along the flanks of the Rocky Mountains, whence it may be floated down many of the larger rivers. Coal is of frequent occurrence. Brown nodular iron stone is reported in various localities, but not as yet in workable quantities. The new projected line will follow a northerly course west of Battleford to Fort Saskatchewan, and then passing up the valley of Sturgeon River, finally intersect the old line near the River Pembina. He again recommends Selkirk as the point for crossing the Red River, because it will avoid the contingency of interruption to traffic by inundations and the possible cost of reconstruction of works swept away by floods. The length of line now under contract consists of the following sections:—Fort William to Selkirk, main line, 410 mile; Emerson to Selkirk, Pembina branch, 85 miles; west of Red River, main line, and Winnipeg branch, 100 miles; British Columbia, main line, 127 miles; total, 722 miles. The rails are laid 186 miles west of Fort William and 90 miles east of Selkirk. Traffic trains are regularly run from Emerson to Cross Lake, 161 miles. Up to April 5th, 1879, there had been 43 contracts entered into. Since that time 23 more have been added. The total amount paid out so far for the work, that is up to 31st December, 1879, was $3,479,979.

THE papers generally approve of the personnel of the Ontario Agricultural Commission.

THE name of Jerry Merrick is freely mentioned in connection with the shrievalty of Prescott.

THERE has been a changing of seats in the Commons, whereby Sir Albert Smith will occupy the late Mr. Holton's chair, Hon. Mr. Blake takes Sir Albert's, and Mr. Fleming will move into the one vacated by Mr. Blake, so that the latter is now settled in the front seat beside Sir Richard Cartwright.

IN the Supreme Court on Friday the case of the Western Insurance Company vs. Johnson, was argued, Jas. Bethune, Q. C., appeared for appellant, and O. Mowat, Q. C., Attorney-General of Ontario, and Dalton McCarthy, Q. C., for respondent. The case was an appeal from a decision of the Court of Appeal of Ontario, and involved the question of the constitutionality of statutory conditions prescribed by the Provincial Legislature of Ontario for the fire insurance policies of companies doing business in that Province.

IT seems that the two sons of Mr. Rufus Stephenson, M. P., for Kent, have granted to them the pleasant and profitable task of publishing the "Dominion Postal Guide," an official pamphlet "revised and published monthly by authority of the Postmaster-General." This "Official Postal Guide" is made to do duty as an advertising medium, the profits from the advertisements being one of the perquisites of the publishers. These young men are, of course, not very particular as to the nature of the advertisements they insert so long as they are well paid for putting them in, and it is not surprising therefore to find the "Official Postal Guide," which is revised and published quarterly by authority of the Postmaster-General, and circulated by his Department, made the means of circulating at the same time captivating announcements about Kanass railway lands and disparaging remarks about the wild lands of Canada. The same firm are about publishing another pamphlet which, like the "Guide," is also to have the benefit of Departmental revision, and they make their announcement to the advertising public by circulars sent out from Ottawa at the public expense. In their circular they describe themselves as the "Publishers of the Dominion Postal Guide," and they save postage by sending them abroad under the frank of Rufus Stephenson, M. P. No doubt Rufus regards this as one of the "casual advantages" to which his position entitles him.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 9.

Mr. Anglin resumed the debate on the Budget He made a long and able speech. He concluded by reviewing the condition of the various industries of the City of St. John, contending that when the Minister of Finance visited that city, as at the present time, more than two-thirds as many people were employed there in skilled labor, and not more than one-half the amount of wages was paid as in the years before the fire, and he was sorry to have to believe that the same state of things existed in many other parts of the Dominion. The miners of Cape Breton were doing a smaller business and were in a more distressed condition than for many years back. What was the report from the city of Halifax? It was that business was declining, and that the number of empty houses was largely increasing. The distress among the fishermen of Nova Scotia was getting to be something appalling. In St. John the ugly words "to let" stared one upon every street, and corner business places were unoccupied. The distress among the working classes was increasing. The harbor was wanting in the activity which it had displayed a few years ago. The fact that the direct importations of New Brunswick to-day were less than two-thirds of what they were fourteen years ago meant a serious decline in the commerce of St. John as a distributing point. From Montreal they heard similar reports, and so with Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, and other places. The National Policy had proved an utter and deplorable failure. It had utterly falsified the promises of those who had foisted it upon the public.

Mr. Gault followed in support of the Government.

Mr. Mills next spoke. He discussed the whole question in an able manner. He concluded by saying:—Altogether apart from the inherent viciousness of the system a government was in this day of invention utterly unequal to the task of affording general protection. The inventions of genius set their protective tariffs at defiance, and they must adjust them year by year to counteract what from a protective point of view were injurious effects. He wanted to see all classes of our population stand upon a footing of perfect equality in the struggle for life, to see the country prosper, and to see our waste lands occupied. But this end they could only accomplish by getting out of debt and greatly reducing the cost of governing the country. Financial and fiscal reforms were the necessities of the hour.

Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir L. Tilley, and Mr. Mackenzie followed.

The House went into Committee at 3:20 a. m., and adopted the tariff resolutions.

THE other day Mr. Killam referred to the Finance Minister as a walking compendium of ignorance on the requirements of the ship building interests.

An ocean freight steamer, the Syria, bound from New Orleans for Liverpool, had to be abandoned in mid-ocean on the 4th inst., having received severe damage during a gale.

Courtship of The Princess Alice and Prince Louis of Hesse.

The following is from Theodore Martin's book, "The Life of the Prince Consort":—

On June 8, 1860, the Prince writes to Baron Stockmar an interesting piece of domestic news:—"'. . . . We returned yesterday from Ascot Races, which, unfortunately, were made more tedious than usual by incessant rain. The two young Princes of Hesse-Darmstadt leave England to-day, and have just taken leave. There is no doubt that the eldest (Louis) and Alice have formed a mutual liking, and although the visit fortunately has passed over without any declaration, I have no doubt it will lead to further advances from the young gentleman's family. We should not be averse to such an alliance, as the family is good and estimable (grav und achtbar), and the young man is unexceptionable in morals, manly, and both in body and mind distinguished by youthful freshness and vigor. As heir presumptive to the Grand Duchy his position would, moreover, not be unsuitable. . . . The Queen and myself look on as passive observers, which is undoubtedly our best course as matters at present stand. . . . . I must now once more take my leave. Our Reform Bill will be sent back again like a useless hack to its stall for this year; no great loss.'"

December saw the Princess Alice betrothed to the Prince Louis of Hesse. The Queen's Diary presents an interesting picture of how the Princess Alice was won (30th November)!—

"'After dinner, while talking to the gentlemen, I perceived Alice and Louis talking before the fireplace more earnestly than usual, and when I passed to go to the other room both came up to me, and Alice, in much agitation, said he had proposed to her, and he begged for my blessing. I could only squeese his hand and say 'Certainly,' and that we would see him in our room later. Got through the evening, working as well as we could. Alice came to our room . . . . agitated but quiet . . . . Albert sent for Louis to his room—went first to him, and then called Alice to me in . . . . Louis has a warm, noble heart. We embraced our dear Alice, and praised her much to him. He pressed and kissed my hand, and I embraced him. After talking a little we parted, a most touching, and, to me, most sacred moment.'"

Three days afterward (3rd December) the Prince wrote to Baron Stockmar:—

"'Close on the heels of my last letter comes this, to announce to you the betrothal of Alice to the Prince Louis of Hesse. You, like ourselves, will have expected this event, but you will not the less share our joy at it, when you are told that the young people are sincerely attached to each other, and justify the hope that they will one day find their mutual happiness in marriage. We like Louis better every day, because of his unaffectedly genial and cordial temper, and great modesty, and a very child-like nature, united with strict morality and genuine goodness and dignity.'"

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION IN HAMILTON.—On Monday last, a deputation of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario was received in Hamilton by the Parks Committee and representatives of the Agricultural Societies of the county. The report of the deputation states that there will be required larger accommodation for cattle, horses &c.; that the main building is too small and a building for stoves should be erected to relieve it, double the present accommodation is required for machinery exhibits; and a building for agricultural implements and an art gallery are recommended.—*N. Father Chiniquy has left for New Zealand en route for America. A farewell meeting was held which was well attended. In the address presented, several conversions from Roman Catholicism were spoken of as the result of his visit. It was also stated that in the colonies £4,790 had been contributed to his mission in America, of which £2,200 had been given by New South Wales.

Mr. Simon Beattie, of Markham, has imported this season five Clydesdale stallions.

The expression, "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," is absurd, because no sensible King ever goes to bed with his crown on. He always hangs it on the back of a chair with his vest.

Of Mr. Carlyle's Christian feelings the Rev. W. H. Channing writes: "Within the past year two most pathetic letters from the venerable Sage of Chelsea have been printed, (1) expressing his gratitude for 'The Lord's Prayer,' which he finds more richly significant to-day than when he was a boy; and (2) declaring his loving admiration of the heroic manliness of Jesus."

The Young Men's Liberal Conservative Association, Woodstock, seems to feel the disastrous effects of the N. P. Two of its members were this week sued for stores purchased for the rooms.

The last authentic bon-mot of Dumas fils is thus reported: Speaking of a belle of former days, he said to a friend, "Poor Madame de——! Chatting with her the other day, she brought all my youth back to me, but, helas," the wicked man added, "she did not bring back hers!"

The London Graphic says: "Every boy and girl in Elizabeth's time had to learn a trade or calling, and the male remained in apprenticeship till twenty-four, and the female till twenty-one. Now, in manufacturing towns especially, lads go into the iron works and factories and earn at thirteen, nine and ten shillings a week. At seventeen or eighteen they are without skill in any one thing. When depression in trade comes they are helpless to do anything, and look to soup kitchens and charity for support.

It was recorded by Chambers that when Mrs. Siddons, the great tragic actress, was in Edinburgh, on the occasion of her first appearance, the audience had been, to English notions, singularly undemonstrative of their approbation. Yet during one scene the whole house was held spell-bound and breathless, when there was heard distinctly from the pit, a voice from some canny, cautious Scotch critic, "Ton was no' that bad;" and at that word the whole house burst forth into a perfect tumult and uproar of applause.

Stories are told of Mr. James Lockhart, at the Salt Market, in Glasgow, who was a good specimen of the old-fashioned morality of bygone times. One day a country girl came into his shop to buy a pair of garters. Having asked the price, Mr. Lockhart told her they were fourpence. The girl said: "I will give you a farthing more than three pence for them." "Weel, lassie, you'll not get them," replied the shopkeeper. Shortly afterwards the girl returned and said: "I'll noo gie ye fourpence." "Gang awa lassie; gang awa," replied Mr. Lockhart, "and no tell lies."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

MR. BISHOP TO THE RESCUE—THE PROOFS OF INNOCENCE—A TRIUMPHAL RETURN—WESTWARD HO!

"Now sir,'" said Jack in conclusion, "I have told you everything exactly as I know it. What is your opinion of the case? Is my chance good or bad? Speak plainly and tell me exactly what you think?'

"Well," returned the officer who had been greatly interested by Jack's recital, and favourably impressed by his free, manly bearing, "I think it probable that the truth is exactly as you have stated it, but the evidence is meagre and doubtful, and I question much if, though forthcoming, it will stand against the testimony of the revenue men, several of whom I know are still in the neighbourhood, and will be summoned to appear against you."

"In a word," said Jack, "you think my chance is a bad one. Your experience tells you so."

"Nay, my experience does not include a case like yours, which is extremely peculiar. I may tell you that the Sheriff will be at the Court-house to-day, so that your examination will take place at once, and I have no doubt you will be committed for trial. How a jury may view the evidence I cannot pretend to say."

"If I am convicted what then?" asked Jack with a rigid face.

"Ah, I cannot tell; the length of time since the crime was committed may be in your favor. I sincerely hope so. Though I must do my duty, you have my sympathy and best wishes."

"Thank you," returned Jack, and relapsed into silence. From the conversation he had not derived much comfort, and the dark prospect was made doubly bitter by the bright light of love had risen on his life. It seemed as if the full cup of happiness had been held to his lips only to be dashed away when he was about to taste it. His naturally stout heart sank into despondency. He thought the sins of his wayward youth were rising up in terrible judgment against him. He felt that like Esau, he had sold his birthright for a miserable mess of pottage, and it seemed that he could find no place for repentance.

At length the gate of the prison was reached, and he was quickly lodged within its gloomy portals. The passage of the vehicle through the town did not cause much observation, for no one supposed that a man of such respectable appearance was a prisoner in the hands of the constables. He was not placed in a cell, but taken to the Governor's room, and kept there under surveillance till suce time as he could be brought betore the Sheriff for examination.

It was nearly three hours till the preliminaries of this formality were arranged, a portion of the period being spent by the Fiscal and his subordinates in ferreting out from the archive of the Court-house the articles and documents which had been collected at the time of the murder—the depositions of the commander of the Revenue cutter and such of his officers and men as were present at the affray with the smugglers? also the bullet which had been extracted from the body, and the pistol wrenched from Jack's hand when he was taken. These things having at length been found with labels attached and seals unbroken, they were laid on the massive table of the Court-room, and the Sheriff gave orders for the prisoner to be brought befcre him.

It was now that Jack fully realized he was a prisoner on a grave charge. When taken from the Governor's room it was between two constables, who held him firmly by each arm, while other officials preceded and followed them. Had there been no communication between the prison and the Court-house he would have been handcuffed while walking the distance, but as the two buildings were connected by a long stone-paved passage, Jack was saved from that indignity, and after traversing many gloomy corridors was at length ushered into the presence of those who were to carry his case through its first judicial stage.

Jack's heart beat fast and strong when he was being led up the room to a place in front of the table, at which sat the Fiscal and the clerks, while the Sheriff occupied a raised chair immediately behind them. As every eye was fixed closely upon him, his face flushed, his cheeks burned, and his tongue became parched, less from fear than a sense of degradation and the humiliating feeling which a brave honest nature must experience in such a position.

William Ellery Channing.

A century ago on Wednesday was born in Newport, Rhode Island, one who was destined to exercise a remarkable influence upon the religious faith and intellectual culture of his time. It is thirty-eight years since he died, but the respectful and affectionate veneration in which he is held by the Unitarian denomination, and by those of other professions, does not appear in the least to have abated. This, as to the first, is the more noteworthy because, though Channing called himself a Unitarian, he entertained views concerning the nature and mission of the Saviour quite different from those of the extreme Humanitarians. Without involving himself in the unprofitable controversies of the latter Arians, and though he may not have regarded the Son as co-equal with the Father, he found in the Saviour a nature higher than that of man. He early held also definite views of the Atonement, considering the death of Christ as having a special influence in removing punishment. How far he subsequently modified these opinions it is unnecessary to inquire; but while he was always a warm advocate of religious liberality, singularly catholic in his treatment of others, and disinclined to limit freedom of opinion, he was never repelled by supernatural doctrines, and kept closer than any of his associates to the ancient belief of the Church. His training in the school of Jonathan Edwards and of Dr. Samuel Hopkins had imparted method, logic and a degree of cautious reverence to his theological speculations; and he was of too great a nature to be satisfied with a religion of negations. When the hot controversy between the liberal and orthodox Congregationalists arose in New England, he naturally became a leader of those who opposed Calvinistic opinions and the doctrine of the Trinity as usually received. His gentle method of discussion did much to temper the austerities and vehemence of dispute; and men who were charmed by the sweetness of his disposition and the abounding love which he brought to the discussion, forgot the abstract differences which divided them from the tender and eloquent young preacher of Federal street. —N. Y. Tribune.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

The Chili-Peru War.

PANAMA, March 31.—It is reported that the Chilian Minister of War, Satomayor, who is a lawyer, undertook to surprise the Peruvians near Moquegua with four regiments of infantry, but was drawn into ambush by the Peruvians and one of his regiments cut to pieces, the Chilians losing 1,300. During the engagement off Arica on February 27th it is stated that the Chilian ironclad Huascar suffered severely, losing 25 killed and wounded including its captain and two other officers. Another Chilian ironclad bombarded Arica, demolishing several houses and killing several women and children. In 1877 the Peruvian Government assumed the responsibility of all paper money circulating in compensation for the heavy debt due by the Government to the associated banks of Lima. The Government now orders the banks to redeem in silver all the notes then issued and promises that the debt cancelled in 1877 will be paid in the banks in silver. Silver is scarce, and the new order has caused a panic. It is reported that England has expressed to the Chilian Government its profound displeasure with its mode of warfare against Peru and Bolvia. Chilian gunboats, on March 14, destroyed all the loading apparatus, launches and lighters at the Lobos Guano Islands. The men were disembarked and allowod to plunder the extensive stores of the Loading Company, which is an English enterprise.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

TUSSLE IN WALKERTON.—The Telescope says:—As everyone almost in this County knows, there has been for a long time a bad state of feeling between Mr. McLay, County Registrar, and Mr. Donald Wilson Ross, formerly Clerk of the Peace for this county. Hitherto this feeling was manifested by innumerable lawsuits between the parties, but last Friday, as Mr. McLay was crossing the street opposite the Registry office, he was violently assaulted by Ross. Mr. McLaw happened to slip and fall just at the time. Ross seized the opportunity and snatching a stick out of Mr. McLay's hand struck him with it in the face seriously disfiguring him. Ross continued to strike until Mr. Astley, Deputy Registrar, came to Mr McLay's assistance and took off his assailant. As a sequel to this William McLay, son of Mr. McLay, on Tuesday committed an assault on Ross, and is said to have handled him rather roughly. The assizes being in session, steps were at once taken to have him indicted, and he will brought before the Court. This action on the part of William McLay was not only thoughtless, but apparently unjustifiable.

Profit $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

Captain William Wheeler died in the General Hospital, Hamilton, on the 7th inst. He was 74 years of age, and from his youth followed his occupation as a sailor. During the troubles of 1837-38 he volunteered in the Royal Navy, and was rated as Acting Master of H. M. S. Niagara, and served in the gunboat Experiment in the engagements with the sympathizers on the St. Lawrence.

Because I live free of rent, which is a large item; am independent in buying; go into the market with the ready money, and am able to take advantage of a bargan when it offers, and because I know how to buy, and am able to pay prompt cash, thereby getting the choicest goods and at lower rates than the man who has to buy on credit.

Too Much Governed.

The following letter, written by Mr. Caleb Hopkins, and published some time ago in the Hamilton Times, has been sent to us with a request to publish. Mr. Hopkins—who must now be verging on ninety years of age—was at one time the representative of Waterloo, when it was attached to Halton and Wentworth:

To the Editor of the Times.

SIR,—The attention of the people is being slowly but surely drawn to the expense of our Provincial Governments. Until Confederation, the system of governing each Province by a Governor, a Legislative Council and a Legislative Assembly was a necessity, but when in 1867 the central power of the Dominion Parliament was established, and a Dominion Cabinet instituted with power to centralize provincial legislation, the necessity disappeared. When the question is examined most men will agree that the subjects now within the power of the Local Assemblies are very simple. The Dominion Parliament deals with the highest matters, leaving the authorities of the Province to legislate on purely local matters. A reference to the statutes of Ontario, for instance, will show that these matters are entirely within the capacity of such men as are now the wardens of counties and mayors of cities. What real need is there for a Lieutenant Governor, a large House of Assembly, or a staff of Provincial Ministers, each with a staff of subordinates? The experience of Ontario, the most important of all the provinces, has proved that an Upper Chamber is useless; the business capacity of our County Councils has been proven equal to that of the Legislative Assembly. Why, then, not sweep away the cumbrous, and expensive machinery of Lieutenant Governors, Houses of Assembly, and Legislative Councils, and give to an enlarged County Council, which might be termed "Provincial Council," their powers of legislation? Or, if some of the powers now possessed by them should seem too great for the new body, why not give them to the Dominion Parliament?

The population of Canada is about 4,000,000, just about the number who inhabit the city of London. To legislate for these we have a Governor General, a Dominion House of Commons of 206, a Senate of seventy-seven and a Cabinet of thirteen Ministers; seven Lieutenant-Governors, seven Houses of Assembly, five Legislative Councils and seven Cabinets. Besides all these we have the hundreds of county councils, city councils and township councils, with their thousands of Mayors, Wardens and Reeves. There can be no doubt that this vast army of officials is too large, nor is there any doubt that the enormous expenditure involved in their remuneration is a crushing burden on the industry of our people.

We are too much governed. The taxes, so hardly earned by our people, are extravagantly spent on keeping up a worse than useless system. While, in 1841, I had the honor of giving to the people of Upper Canada, by my casting vote, the great boon of municipal government, I confess that I did not see that the principal involved in municipal institutions could ever be seized on for the purpose of governing provinces, but after a careful watch for thirty years I see no reason why it should not thus be extended. I cannot, of course, indicate with minuteness the precise mode of adapting the municipal machinery to provincial government, but I may express in a broad and general way that I can see no objection to placing nearly all the present powers of our local governments in a body of men selected from the body of the people, or country. The people of Canada are sufficiently well educated to use this power with discretion, and by this mode enormous sums of money would yearly be saved, while the affairs of the Dominion would be quite as well administered as they are at present. Fancy the little Island of Prince Edward, with its one hundred thousand inhabitants, very little more than the united populations of the city of Hamilton and the County of Wentworth, burdened with a Lieutenant-Governor, a Legislative Council, an Executive Council and a House of Assembly, with all the subordinates of such a system. And fancy British Columbia, with a population of less than one third of Hamilton, tottering under the weight of a Lieutenant-Governor, an Executive Council and a House of Assembly. I cannot pretend to give the exact cost of all this official extravagance, but it must be very serious. The silly and outrageous course taken by the Legislative Council of the Province of Quebec in refusing the supplies, will, I do not doubt, lead to the extermination of that utterly useless excrescence an Upper Chamber in those provinces where like barnacles they still cling to the Ship of State; and I hope that while public attention is being given to the uselessness, nay, the positive injurious use of these bodies, it may also be given to the extravagance of our present system of provincial government.

The Parliament of Great Britain legislates for the largest empire yet known to history and still finds leisure to make laws for the domestic government of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. These Islands have not separate Governments, though they contain a population of over thirty millions! While Canada, with a population of but four millions, and having no foreign policy to conduct, no foreign relations to keep up; having no treaty making power; having no voice in the making of war or the declaration of peace; having no army to pay, no fleet to man; having nothing to fear from Russian aggression, French jealousy, or American cupidity; have nothing to do but bask under the protection of the mighty power of Britain and provide simple laws for the domestic government of a people numbering no more than one city in England; this country is bent to the earth by a mass of officials, who infest every nook and cranny of her system and spend luxurious existence in sucking her very life blood.

As I have said, until Confederation, this system was necessary, when the Dominion was formed it would doubtless have been unwise to couple the change I am suggesting with the great measure of Confederation, but now that ten years' experience have been given to us, we can see that a new departure may be profitably taken. The more the matter is thought of, written of and spoken of, the more clearly will it appear that the next step in our history should be the extension of the municipal principal, the removal of our obnoxious provincial system and the establishment of one more simple in its machinery, inexpensive in its working and more in unison with the temper and means of our people than that which now bears us down under a load of useless expenditure.—Yours, etc.,

CALEB HOPKINS.

The Condition of Hon. George Brown.

TORONTO, April 12.—At the Police Court this morning Wm. Orr was convicted of stealing a horse from a farmer living in Scarboro, and was sent to penitentiary for two years. The Magistrate said that this offence was becoming so common that he had made up his mind to deal sternly with all offenders.

There was a rumor current yesterday that Hon. Geo. Boown was in a dangerous condition, owing to mortification having set in. On enquiry this morning it was learned that he was in no danger and had passed a quiet night.

At the Council meeting in Peterboro, John E. Cooper sent in a petition stating that he had had but a few days' work during the past six months, and had poor prospects of obtaining any if he remained here. He asked the Council to grant him $20 to pay his way to Michigan, where he could obtain employment. The Council granted him $15 for this object.

AN entertainment will be given in the Rev. Mr. Harris's church to-morrow evening. The programme prepared is one that will please, and consists of singing, recitations and readings. The admission fee is put at ten cents and the receipts go for a worthy object in connection with the congregation.

THE SCOT IN NORTH AMERICA.—Mr. Canton, of Cobourg, has been appinted agent to obtain subscriptions for the above work in this city, We have already favorably noticed this latest work published by Messrs. Macclear & Co, and have no doubt that Mr. Canton will receive a large number of orders from our citizens. He has the misfortune to be blind, but is active and energetic, and we commend him to the favorable consideration of all on whom he may call.

THE STORM. — Telegraph reports from Goderich bring accounts of a strong north easterly gale at that place, accompanied by snow, causing damage to five vessels and the narrow escape of the crews. One of the boats capsized and the crew were saved in an exhausted condition by clinging to the wreck. One boat is still missing, and it is feared that all have been swept away. From Waubaushene comes reports of ten inches of snow, and a storm of wind that will admit of no vessels leaving that place.

THE SPRING ASSIZES.—Following is the calendar of criminal cases to be tried at the Wellington Assizes which opens here tomorrow before Mr. Justice Cameron: Samuel Gray, Maryborough, arson; David C. Kilpatrick, Drayton, four indictments for forgery; Edward McCarthy, Fergus, obtaining note under false pretences; William Powley, perjury; George Douglas, Harriston, embezzlement and forgery; Philip Forestill, Clifford, forgery; William Cassidy, West Garafraxa, two charges of embezzlement.

A HANDSOME DISPLAY OF FLOWERS.—One of the best displays of flowers in or about the city, may be seen by a visit to the greenhouse of Mr. Michael O'Connell, Edinburgh Road, about five minutes walk southward from Wells' bridge. The visit will repay any person, and an admirer of flowers could not examine the stock without being tempted to buy. The exhibit is contained in two large greenhouses suitably arranged with shelves for the plants and with heating flues. The temperature is kept equal and the healthy appearance of the plants show that their growth has not been forced. There is to be seen an almost endless variety of the most beautiful flowers in bloom, amongst the most common being geraniums, chrysanthemums, petunias and fuschias. The bright and varigated colors of the flowers make a charming appearance at this season. Mr. O'Connell has besides a large number of beautiful plants which are in a good healthy state. Under cover of about 188 feet of glass are hundreds of lettuce, large quantities of which have already been marketed. Tomatoes, radish and other plants have sprouted and will be in condition to be set out in gardens as soon as the weather will permit. Mr. O'Connell has been favorably known as a gardener here for the last twenty years. For over twelve years he was gardener for the late Mr. Charles Sharpe, whose garden was one of the best to be seen in this neighborhood. Since he started on his own account he has been successful, and has nothing to thank but a thorough knowledge of his business and close attention to it.

DECAPITATED BY A SAW.—On Friday a terrible accident occurred at the saw mill of Playfair Bros., near Parham, near Kingston, whereby John Lee, was completely decapitated and one of his arms cut off. Lee, who was foreman of the mill, was engaged in fixing the guides of one of the circular saws, and by some means he fell against it. The machine was running at full speed and his neck, on touching the saw, was gradually drawn along and, before the saw could be stopped, the poor fellow's head was sawn off. It fell on one side of the bench, filling those present with horror. Besides his head, one of his arms was cut off from the shoulder.

The Bullstrode Outrage and Murder.

Particulars of the Horrible Crime.

MONTREAL, April, 10.—The Bullstrode tragedy, details of which have appeared from time to time in the MERCURY, has caused here the deepest horror. The suspected man, Cleophas Lachance, denied his guilt at first, but confessed subsequently, and the following is his ghastly story:

On the 29th of March, after dinner, I took the road leading to Babineau's house. I met the deceased Odelie Desilets, whom I saw from the garret at our place; she was about five acres from her home, near the well where the murder took place. I asked her to kiss me; she refused, and pushed me back, and I fell to the ground. I then got angry, and getting up jumped at her, at the same time striking her with my fists, and throwing her on the ground and holding her by the throat. I drew my knife, (which is the same one shown me by Mr. Bissonnette), and she took it from me, I holding her down with both my arms and legs. When she saw me pulling out my knife she said, "Oh, my God, he is pulling out his knife." I succeeded in taking the knife from her again, and it was then that I cut my hands. When I took the knife from her I stabbed her with it, and this was the wound that was visible at the inquest. After she was stabbed she tried to rise, but I pushed her to the ground, and went for a piece of board (produced in Court) on which there was nailed a hinge. When I stabbed her she was in the middle of the street. I then dragged her near the well, after having stabbed her so that she could not escape from me. It was then that I broke the piece of wood and came near the girl, who was near the well. This piece of wood was a part of the cover of the well. I split the wood with my hands. I then approached the girl, who was lying on her right side on the ground, with her head near the well and her feet on the road. I struck her with the piece of wood on the left temple, near the left eye. She then groaned so loud that if there had been any one in Babineau's house they would have heard her. I struck her again on the left side of the head, holding the piece of wood in both my hands; she then put her left hand on the wound on her head, and once more I struck her, and her hand remained in her hair. She did not stir then, so I took her and put her head-first into the well. I pushed her legs on top of her body, that she might not be seen. Her feet and part of her legs were visible outside of the well still, so I pushed her down again. Her hat and her shawl were on the road, and I put them into the well. I spread her shawl over her, and laid her hat beside her. I then took some lengths of board with which I covered her over. I afterward took some fence rails, which I stood on end on top of the body in the well. I left the body in the well and went away in the direction of home. In about half an hour I came running to the well at two different times, and looked in to see whether she was moving. I then went home to the barn by the highway and washed my hands, about eight acres from the road. On leaving the well after the murder I perceived that my hands were cut, and that there was blood upon my clothes, and when I saw that my hands were bleeding, after having wiped them on the sleeve of my coat, I put them in my pockets. I washed my hands in a little trough in the barn, and then came on to the highway and went to my brother Joseph's barn. I waited there to compose myself; it was during that time that I saw the "cure" Lessard pass. I am satisfied now that I have declared all, as for several days I have been wishing to make this declaration, but I could not bring myself to do so. I am happy now to declare this crime, so that no suspicions may be attached to any innocent person. I make this declaration that my conscience may be relieved of a great weight. I make the above declaration of my own free will, without any threat or promise whatsoever, but just on being asked to do so by Mr. A. Bissonnette, High Constable.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

All the witnesses for the Crown have been allowed to return to their homes, to be summoned when required.

The police authorities continue to keep strict and constant watch over young Johnny Connor. A constable is his close companion during the day, and at night an armed policemen guards the house where the boy sleeps. The Crown officers and others in authority appear to have a fear for the safety of Bill Donnelly, and it is understood they contemplate his removal to an unknown quarter, where he will be out of harm's way.

Mrs. Donnelly, wife of Wm. Donnelly, who was in London all week, returned home to Lucan on Saturday night. While at the City Hotel she was visited by numerous strangers, both male and female, who were curious to see the woman possessed of courage enough to rise out of bed and administer succour to her dying brother-in-law while the house was surrounded by a gang of murderers.

"JACK, the Giant Killer" and "Toodles," at the City Hall to-morrow night. Tickets for reserved seats are being sold rapidly. They may be obtained as G. D. Pringle's jewellery store.

AT the Church of Our Lady Father Hamel announced at the High Mass yesterday that the Rev. Dr. Kilroy, of Stratford, would preach next Sunday a charity sermon in aid of the poor under the care of the St. Vincent De Paul Society, Guelph, also that the music would be by the full choir.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT TO A LILIPUTIAN.—Gen. Joseph Johnston, second tenor of the Liliputian Opera Company, met with a singular accident at Galt, Saturday night. During the Third Act, his business requires him to make a bold leap from the giant's shoulder, when he is caught in his descent by some person in the ring. By some miscalculation of distance, he was allowed to fall to the floor. The shock was distinctly heard, and a shiver went through the large audience, but the brave little midget, although bleeding from several cuts upon the face and head, quickly showed himself and thus satisfied them that he was not seriously injured. He will be on hand as usual to-morrow night.

Dundas has offered to remove the new toll gate lately erected on the macadamized road, west of Sheffield, and to let matters remain as they were previously, provided Galt town pays its share of the costs already incurred in a Chancery suit, with reference to the removal of the gate.

Mr. Justice Armour in a recent address attributed a large proportion of crime to idleness, and idleness to the luxurious comforts of our gaols which are in many respects much superior to those of the law abiding and orderly tax payer, who has to pay for both.

A few days ago it was announced that Miss Mary Mills, daughter of the Hon. David Mills, M. P., was lying seriously ill in Ottawa, her ailment being cerebro-spinal fever. For days past her decease has been viewed as a probability, and on Sunday, at half-past three o'clock she died. The deceased was sixteen years of age.

It is stated that where seed drills have been used in planting the fall wheat, the present and late frosts and thaws do not unfavourably affect the prospects of a good harvest, while some who sowed seed in the old fashioned way, express many fears as to the consequences.

On Thursday last, one Blakeley, of Henfryn, had an information laid against him by Mrs. Margaret Moore, of that place, before A. Hunter, Esq., J. P., of Brussels, for passing a spurious bill (an old Zimmerman $1 note) on her. Blakeley was arrested but escaped from custody and has not been recaptured.

On the 6th inst., the barn belonging to Wm. Baird, East Wawanosh, was burned together with its contents. Building valued at $500. It contained at the time of the fire two valuable fat steers, a colt, a calf, fanning mill, sulky horse rake, about 150 bushels of grain, besides numerous other articles. Insured in the Howick Mutual Co. for $1,000.;

A man named Williams living near Tara, was arrested by Constable Briggs, of Port Elgin, as a counterfeiter. On his person was found bogus money both hard and soft, and in his trunk implements and metal for coining. The evidence was insufficient to convict him, and after a preliminary examination he was discharged.

In an action for damages at the York Assizes in progress at Toronto, the jury returned a singularly worded verdict. On the usual question being put, "have you decided on a verdict"—the foreman rose and replied—"Yes, my Lord, we find a verdict for the defendant, and sympathize very much with the plaintiff."

The gale on Saturday was severe in Buffalo. The wind blew at the rate of forty-two miles an hour, and the water was the highest it has been for years in the harbour, overflowing the wharves and almost entirely submerging the island, the inhabitants of which had to flee for their lives. A number of shanties and five boat-houses were washed away.

A return has been called for by Mr. Farrow, North Huron, showing the number of actions for seduction tried in the Courts of the several provinces for the past six years, the number in each year, &c. Upon the assumption that such actions are increasing, it is probable that some new legislation will be attempted regarding the subject generally.

The Australians have a legitimate grievance in the matter of Chinese immigration, as it has transpired that many of the Celestials who ship from Hong Kong for their ports are notorious criminals who are pardoned by the Governor of the colony on condition of emigrating. Much indignation against Governor Hennessy, of Hong Kong, prevails in Australia in consequence of this discovery.

Work is expected to shortly recommence on the Stratford and Huron Railway in Wallace. It is rumored the Grand Trunk have proffered the necessary assistance "for, and in consideration," &c., &c. Perhaps it is not of much consequence, but some one has gone to the trouble of counting the number of kernels in a bushel of wheat, and we may as well give the result, for the benefit of those of our readers who have curiosity and leisure enough to figure up possible results from individual grains: The number of kernels in a bushel of Fultz wheat is 685,120, and in a bushel Clawson 545,200. This represents, at one bushel per acre, fifteen seeds to the square foot of the former, and a fraction less than fourteen of the latter.

The Issue of Licenses.

As will be seen by our report in another column, the License Commissioners for this Riding, at their meeting on Saturday, granted a number of licenses—all of them being renewals—and withheld several for further consideration. Some of these refer to new applications, and some to parties now holding licenses, but who during the past year have either been fined for the infraction of the License Law, or who on account of irregularities in their houses have brought them under the surveillance of the Inspector. We have no doubt that the action of the Commissioners in this matter will meet the approval of the ratepayers. Of course it will be for them to say whether the houses referred to shall or shall not be licensed in future, but we may be sure beforethey do so they will require some good promise or guarantee that the parties applying for these licenses will mend their ways, that their houses shall be kept in strict conformity with the provisions of the law, and that all practices which might bring a reproach or scandal on them shall be removed. The Commissioners have begun well, and if they continue in the same course, they can safely count on the sympathy and support of nine-tenths of the people in this city.

The Elections in Britain.

There have been returned to the House of Commons thus far 345 Liberals, 228 Conservatives, and 51 Home Rulers. This nearly completes the new Parliament, 624 out of the 658 members having been elected. It is expected that when the returns are completed the Liberal majority over the combined strength of Conservatives and Home Rulers will not be under 40. Saturday's elections show an additional gain of seven for the Liberals.

The Radical section of the Reform Club is putting the strongest pressure upon Gladstone to take the Premiership. He has promised to re-consider his previous decision. Every leading paper, Liberal and Tory, concurs in the necessity of the Premiership being offered to him, leaving with him the responsibility of refusal. It is certain that Gladstone will decline a subordinate office.

The elections will be substantially terminated to-day, after which there is no reason why Beaconsfield should hold office a day longer.

THE Government of Nova Scotia obtained on Saturday authority to borrow half a million dollars for public services, after which the Legislature was prorogued.

LOUIS BLANC condenses the result of the British elections into a phrase, declaring that the Liberal victory is a triumph of political morality.

THE nomination for Chateauguay county took place at Ste. Martin on Saturday, when Mr. E. Holton, son of the late member, and Dr. Laberge, were duly nominated to the vacant seat.

SOME nineteen tenders have been received for the second one hundred miles west of Red River, on the Pacific Railway. The work is to be completed in three years.

MR. ANGLIN'S speech on the Budget occupied four hours and twenty minutes. It is regarded as one of the most powerful ever delivered, and astonishing from the fact that he quoted figures and facts with unerring accuracy, without examining a note, during the whole time that he was addressing the House.

During Friday night's debate Mr. Mackenzie mentioned the circumstance that when Mr. Robert Hay, M. P., was asked how an old Reformer like him could support such a policy, especially the duty on furniture, he blandly replied:—"Why, Lor' bless you, it's every man for himself in this world."

MR. WALTER, proprietor of the London Times, came near being defeated in Berkshire, which he has represented for nearly twenty years. This narrow escape is likely to result in the complete conversion of the Times, which is already wavering. Lord Beaconsfield has returned to London, and is engaged in Downing street, preparing to move out.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Letellier de St. Just is reported by La Concorde, of Three Rivers, to be engaged in preparing a requisition for presentation to the Governor-General, by him to be forwarded to the Imperial authorities, asking for redress for his dismissal by the Dominion Government from the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Province of Quebec. It is understood that the petition will be ready for transmission by the end of next week. The report is also current that there is a strong opinion entertained by many that the reference to England, for which it now appears the Government were not only constitutionally but morally responsible as the advisors thereof, was in itself a dangerous precedent, and therefore it is not at all unlikely that Parliament may, before it rises, be asked, without stultifying its previous vote on the Letellier question, to place on record its disapproval of the reference to England; and there can be no doubt that such a set of resolutions will receive the cordial and warm support of Messrs. Ouimet, Mousseau, and other prominent French Canadian Conservatives who so vigorously denounced the reference last session when Parliament first learned that it had been made.

The Queen v. Duncan.

The Elora Insolvent before the Police Magistrate.

The case against Alex. G. Duncan, insolvent, Elora, for not making correct returns after his assignment, to the official assignee, was opened at the Police Court on Saturday afternoon. The evidence of three witnesses occupied the attention of the Court till about six o'clock.

Mr. Peterson appeared for the Crown and Mr. Jacobs for the defence.

John Haffner, official assignee, sworn, said in substance, that Alex. G. Duncan had given a statement showing that his capital was $1,000 on starting business, and liabilitise $8,000 on closing. Witness got W. G. Duncan's pass-book after the other books were handed to him. There was an entry in the insolvent's Ledger under date of Jan. 8th, 1880, relating to goods mentioned in the pass book, being merchandise charged to insolvent's private account, $2,175, and the balance $1,612.89 charged to W. G. Duncan. According to the insolvent's story, Albert McCrea got the goods, but they were got by W. G. Duncan and the latter is not charged in any of these book with that sum. The insolvent said the $2,157 worth of goods was secured by his brother on two cash payments on $1,600 and on another for $557, but there is no trace in the books for my such payments, and witness found that there was to insolvent's credit on 4th November last, as cash paid under the business account, $27,000. This showed what he had paid into the business over what he paid out. The books show that at the time of insolvency, there was a deficit of nearly $4,000. It would appear by his cash account that he had drawn $6,000 not accounted for in his business. He accounted for a loss on pork of between $2,000 and $3,000, and mentioned a loss upon an endorsation for Henderson of $2,000, but no other losses that witness remembered of. It appeared stock was taken on 31st January, and the stock amounted to $8,210. Witness went into possession six days afterwards, and in the time intervening the sales appeared to have amounted to $288.33. On stock being taken again, there was a deficiency of $700, after allowing for sales, and this is unaccounted for.

In cross examination by Mr. Jacobs, witness testified:—That he did not know what goods had gone out on due bills since January 31st. The cash book showed an item charged to A. G. Duncan, on November 4th, 1879, being composed of $100 paid to Andrich and $50 paid to Biggar, and another item charged to A. G. Duncan on 8th December, but there was no entry made of either articles in the cash book. These sums were entered in the journal as having been paid on Foote's note. As to an item of $500 of 15th Dec., to pay the note of Kerr & McKellar, and as to an item of Jan. 27th last of $240, those appear in the ledger as being paid to Foote. An item of $100 on the 7th of Jan. appears in the journal as charged to board account, C. H. Biggar $50, and balance of $50 to insolvent. On the 13th Jan. $117.91 appears in the journal as being transferred from merchandise to cash account as goods purchased for his house for private use. An item of Feb. 5th, amounting to $196.35 appears to be charged in the journal, but it is not said what for. An item of Feb. 6th of $134.59 is charged in two separate items. On the 6th Feb. he is also charged with the paymen of a note for 565. These entries were in the handwriting of the bookkeeper. The books were posted after the insolvency on the 5th February last. The entries of $447.98 and $2,172.24 under date of Feb. 12, are charged to insolvent for bills receivable. The Insolvent said the McCrea goods were sold by him to W. G. Duncan.

Re-examined—There is no trace of what became of the $2,172 mentioned in the insolvent's books. The claims filed before me show a large indebtedness by the Insolvent to parties other than those from whom he bought his goods. His outside liabilities did not appear in the books. Some of the liabilities occurred before he went into business.

James Henderson was also examined, and in his evidence contradicted a statement made by Alex. Duncan that he lost $2,000 through an endorsation.

Wm. Robins explained in his evidence that the depositions of the defendant had not been signed by the latter, because he did not go to the Official Assignee's office to sign them.

Owing to the absence of Wm. Duncan, who was summoned to appear, and who is a material witness, the case was adjourned till the 20th inst.

The Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway.

The Mount Forest Examiner of Friday says:—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway held in this place on Tuesday last, some consideration was given to the financial condition of the scheme. Owing to the refusal of the Ontario Government to grant expected assistance from the Provincial funds to this among other railway projects, the Directors find themselves short of the requisite funds to complete the first section of their road from Palmerston to Durham. It has been decided therefore to appeal to the municipalities more immediately interested for further aid, and, in pursuance of a resolution of the Board of Directors, the Town of Mount Forest and Durham and the Township of Egremont will be asked to contribute each $7,600 and the Township Glenelg $3,000—in all, $24,000—in addition to the bonuses already voted. It is estimated that at least this amount will be absolutely needed to complete the work required to place the line in a condition to be operated by the Grand Trunk Railway Company. A meeting of the Directors is to be held at Durham this (Friday) afternoon at which it is understood the agreement with the Grand Trunk Railway for ironing and running the line will be formerly ratified—subject, of course, to the completion of the work required of the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway Company.

A most brutal case of rape is reported from the Upper Ottawa, committed by a man named Charles Levin, residing near Fort Coulonge, on a little girl named Bellique, aged ten years. The offence was committed on the way home from church. Lavin is under arrest.

County Councils.

For some months past the question of the abolition of County Councils has been discussed by the Press, as their cost of maintenance, it was held by some, was far too great for the duties performed. This discussion led to a return being asked for in the Ontario Legislature, which throws considerable light on the expense attending the sessions of County Councils. The following return shows the number of Reeves and Deputies respectively, with the number of sessions held in 1879, as well as the number of days each Council was in session:—

CHAPTER XXXVII.

MR. BISHOP TO THE RESCUE—THE PROOFS OF INNOCENCE—A TRIUMPHAL RETURN—WESTWARD HO!

The Sheriff was an elderly man with a grave severe face, the expression of which was not wholly stern. As became a judge he was calm and impassive, but there was also a certain mildness in his countenance giving indication that he would incline to the side of mercy when justice did not bar the way.

He regarded Jack for some moments with a steady earnest look, and when he spoke it was in an involuntary tone of respect, as if the appearance of the prisoner had taken him by surprise. Probably he expected to see a coarse, rough fellow, on whom lawless and desperate deeds had set their loathsome seal; but instead he beheld a ruddy, fresh-coloured, frank-faced man, invested with the strength and comeliness of true manhood. It was therefore in a kindly sympathetic voice that he addressed the prisoner, and informed him that he was free to answer or not to answer the questions which were to be put to him, warning him at the same time that what he did say would be written down and become part of the evidence in the case.

"My Lord," said Jack in a clear, firm voice, "I thank you for the caution you have given, but in my case it is not needed. I have no other desire than that the truth should be told in all its particulars. I am, therefore, ready to answer all questions freely and fully so far as I am able to do so."

"Still I am required to remind you that you are not bound to commit yourself."

"I understand you, my lord; but I am anxious that it should appear how far I am guilty of the crime with which I am charged, and how far I am innocent of it. I know how greatly appearances are against me, and if you will allow me to make a statement it will enable you to judge how far appearances may be compatible with my innocence."

"If you wish to make a statement," said the Sheriff, "it is my duty to listen to it."

"Thank you, my lord," replied Jack, and without hesitation he gave a faithful and accurate account of the doings of that April night so far as he was connected with them, telling also how he escaped from the cutter, and how he was picked up by a passing vessel (though he did not think it neccessary to say whose vessel that was), how he ultimately reached America, and had resided there ever since, until pressing business had brought him to Scotland a few weeks ago.

His story was told very slowly and with many breaks, for the clerk had to write it down word by word, the others listening intently, evidently impressed with the truthfulness of the narrator.

"Then you admit that it was you who fired the pistol, the bullet of which entered the man's heart," said the Fiscal, who had been carefully attending to Jack's declaration, and seeing that clerk was literally transcribing it.

"No, sir, I do not admit that," replied Jack. "I was not at the time conscious of firing the pistol, but I certainly raised it, and as it was pointed at the man, when I saw him fall I believed that I had fired it. I lived in that belief all the time I was in America, but since my return to Scotland I have learned that one of the smugglers by name Bob Andrew, who was mortally wounded in the scuffle, declared with his last breath that he had shot the man who was killed."

"Is that the only ground you have for maintaining your innocence," asked the Sheriff, with a grave look.

"Yes my lord; the only ground. But if any of those who heard him are alive, they will give testimony to that effect."

"Possibly; but that evidence if forthcoming can only be received and considered in another place. It is my painful duty, John Borland, to commit——"

Here the Sheriff was interrupted by the noise of voices outside the closed door, as if some altercation was taking place there. He stopped and gazed in the direction of the sound a moment later, the door was opened and in stepped, Mr. Bishop with a large quarto volume under his arm.

At sight of him Jack felt glad of heart for he knew that he would now have such help as could be afforded. The others present did not look on the lawyer with the same favour; in fact, one and all regarded him with astonished surprise, for such an examination as was then going forward is a strictly private proceeding, no one being allowed in the room but the necessary officials.

It seemed by the bland smile and air of quiet assurance with which the lawyer walked up the room as if he were ignorant of this legal regulation though being a lawyer it was incredible that he should. So thought the Sheriff and the Fiscal, to both of whom he was well known, and who consequently gazed upon him with intense disapprobation.

"Mr. Bishop," said the Sheriff, "you cannot be aware that this is an examination."

"I am perfectly aware of it, my lord. I am Mr. Borland's legal adviser, and find it necessary to interfere in his behalf.

"My lord, I object to Mr. Bishop's presence at this stage of the case," cried the Fiscal, promptly.

"Really, Mr. Bishop," remonstrated the Sheriff, all this is very irregular; in fact, as you know, entirely inadmissible."

"Not if I can show your lordship that you have no ground for procedure—that there is no case at all."

"Eh—what!" demanded the Sheriff, in an astonished tone, while the Fiscal and the clerk sat in dumb amazement.

"Had I known of the apprehension when it took place I should have prevented this examination from being entered on. I have acted as promptly as possible after being appraised of it, and your lordship will pardon me for any seeming disrespect in appearing before you during an examination."

"But—you said there is no case?"

"I repeat it, my lord. Will your lordship be good enough to ask the prosecutor what is the date of the alleged crime?"

"Have you any objection to answer that question, Mr. Ward?" said the Sheriff, looking down to the Fiscal.

"Oh, none in the world. The date is—let me see. Ah, here it is, the night of the eighteenth of April, 1778.

"And this, my lord," observed Bishop, is the nineteenth of April 1798, twenty years and one day after the date of the alleged crime."

The Sheriff lay back in his chair and looked at the Fiscal, the Fiscal turned in his seat and looked at the Sheriff, the clerk looked at Mr. Bishop, the latter looked at all three with a satisfied smile, and Jack stared at everybody wondering what had happened.

Given up by Doctors.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."

A sample of excellent starch made from potatoes was shown in Charlottetown last week.

INSPECTORIAL "FINE WRITING."—Under this caption the Educational Monthly asks: "Is there no means of repressing, in the interest of a chaste and sober diction, the bathos indulged in at intervals by inspectors in the reports to the Educational Department? There is scarcely an annual report issued by the Minister which is not disfigured by instances of highfalutin' writing on the part of those whose official position should incite them to set better models of composition before their brethren in the profession." The last specimen of this "tall writing" is to be found on page 124 of the annual report on education for 1878, issued by order of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. It is only an "extract," and the sober mind will be grateful that there is fortunately no more of it, though how ruthlessly the metaphor may have been torn from its context who can say? Here it is: "There are many considerations which enable me to state to you that the wave of progress flows onward to the maturity of perfection, gradually deepening and widening. I regret to have to state that the strength of this wave is greatly dimmished and its velocity retarded as it strikes against the rocks of frequent change of teachers, irregularity of attendance of pupils, and erroneous conceptions of the nature of education. In the whole course of school legislation, there has been nothing calculated so well to augment, clarify and beautify this wave as the regulation requiring all teachers to be professionally trained before they assume the momentous responsibility of educating youth. The intermediate examination is a grand tributary to the great educational wave," The schoolmaster is evidently abroad here.

The Greatest Blessing.

A simple, pure, harmless remedy, that cures every time, and prevents disease by keeping the blood pure, stomach regular, kidneys and liver active, is one of the greatest blessings ever conferred upon man. Hop Bitters is that remedy, and its proprietors are being blessed by thousands who have been saved and cured by it. Will you try it? See another column.

A paper box factory is about being opened in Berlin by Messrs. A. & C. Boehmer.

A fatal accident occurred on the farm of Mr. A. McKinnon, Caledon, to a boy abont 13 or 14 years of age named Franklin J. Fields, on Friday afternoon. He and another workman were underbrushing, and while he was cutting a stub the man started to cut one a short distance away, intending it to fall in the opposite direction, but cutting too closely on one side it broke off suddenly, and fell across the stump on the boy and killed him instantly.

The Jesuits in France.

The laws in force in France against the Jesuits are numerous and rigorous enough. First of all there are the decisions of the Parliament of Paris of 1762, in which the Jesuits were accused of every crime under the sun, and ordered to evacuate their colleges and other establishments within a week. In 1764 the Parliament pronounced the definitive suppression of the Order, the King declaring it to be his pleasure that the Jesuits should have no place in his kingdom or possessions. In 1746 the Parliament pronounced an order of expulsion against the Jesuits individually, and in 1777, Louis XVI. issued an edict more severe than any which had preceded it. In 1790 the Constituent Assembly suppressed all the monastic orders, and in 1792 all the religious corporations were suppressed. By the Concordat of the year X some modification was consented to; but no aggregation or association of men or women could be formed under the pretext of religion without the special authorization of the Government. To prove that these decrees and decisions are still in vigor one need only look at the declarations of the tribunals of the present century. For example, 1826 the Court of Douai decided a case against some Jesuits on the ground that they had been banished and could not inherit; and this decision was confirmed by the highest court in the realm under the monarchy. In the same year all the courts of Paris assembled and declared, by 53 judges against 2, that the above-mentioned edicts were still in force. In 1828 a petition to the Chamber of Deputies invoked the edicts of Louis XV. and Louis XVI. against the Jesuits, and a report in favor of this was carried by a large majority. In 1845 M. Guizot wrote to M. Rossi, the French Ambassador at Rome, complaining that the Jesuits, whose Order had been specially abolished in France by edicts, were endeavoring to re-establish themselves contrary to the laws of the State; in May of the same year, on an interpellation by M. Thiers, the decrees against the Jesuits were confirmed by an immense majority; and the Chamber, confident that the government would see the laws of the State executed, passed to the order of the day.

MANHOOD RESTORED

Prescription Free. For the speedy Cure of Seminal Weakness, Loss of Manhood, and all disorders brought on by indiscretion or excess. Any Druggist has the ingredients. Address DAVIDSON & CO., 78 Nassau St., N. Y.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

The Mount Forest Examiner announces the death on Thursday of Mrs. Kilgour, wife of Mr. Robt. Kilgour, formerly Reeve of that town. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late John Hay, was born in the city of Glasgow, Scotland, and was sixty-two years of age at the time of her death. They removed to Mount Forest in the year 1860, since which time Mrs. Kilgour has been a resident of the place. She had a family of nine children—five sons and four daughters. Her husband, five sons and two daughters survive to mourn her loss.

The women waited to see if her relations or law would punish him for the brutal treatment to his wife before they took this unusual way of giving him what he deserved. His cries brought Mr. Jas. Upper, who pleaded for them to desist, as they had punished him enough, Smith promising not to do so again.

BOATING.—Those who take a delight in this healthy pastime during the summer months will learn with pleasure that Edward McKague has received from Hamilton six new boats from fifteen to eighteen feet in length. These boats are the best and most convenient that have as yet been procured for boating purposes on the Speed, being light, neatly and substantially constructed, and contain cushioned seats, a chair in each boat for steerer, with improved oars and steering gear. With this addition McKague will be able to place a fleet of eleven first-class boats on the river this season, when he will be in a position to meet all demands. These boats will no doubt be in great repute, and his efforts to supply this want will be fully appreciated by those who have been in the habit of enjoying a row on the Eramosa branch of the Speed.

THE LILIPUTIANS.—The Toronto Mail says:—"It is seldom that our city is favored with a performance containing so much genuine merit, so mirth-provoking and so exceedingly novel, as that presented by the Liliputian Opera Company at the Royal on Monday night. A majority of the audience present no doubt attended merely to see a collection of dwarfs, and were, in a measure, unprepared to witness such a thorough and pleasing entertainment. Apart from the admirable and well-trained voices they display an ability in rendering their respective parts." The Liliputian Opera Company occupies the boards at the City Hall here to-night. All who want to spend a most enjoyable evening should attend without fail. The advance sale of seats indicates not only a large audience, but it will be composed of a class of our citizens seldom seen at an entertainment of any description.

The Canada Temperance Act.

OTTAWA, April 13.—Judgment was given in the Canada Temperance Act in the Supreme Court to-day. Chief Justice Ritchie held that the British North American Act gave the Dominion Government power to enact laws tending to secure order and good government of the country, and the legislation cannot be ultra vires where the Act aimed at the regulation of trade and commerce. He held that the Federal Government had the power of prohibitory legislation, for to his mind power to regulate was power to prohibit. He therefore thought the appeal should be allowed, thus confirming the constitutionality of the Act.

Justice Fournier concurred in this.

Justice Henry dissented, submitting that the Act was ultra vires, and not within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government. It was quite evident from the preamble that Parliament did not intend the Act as a regulation of trade and commerce, but aimed at the suppression of the liquor traffic. As to the question of the jurisdiction of Local Legislature, were the Act declared constitutional serious consequences might arise, for it would then be within the Province of the Federal authorities to assume the licensing power now exercised by Local Legislatures.

Justice Gwynne held that the whole question arose out of misconception of the British North America Act. It was only necessary if the Act enumerated any subject assigned to the Provincial Legislature. If it did not effect all matters whether enumerated or otherwise are within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government. The Act was constitutional and the appeals should be allowed.

The appeal was allowed with costs.

Wholesale Slaughter in Burmah.

Seven Hundred People Buried as a Propitiatory Sacrifice.

LONDON, April 10.—A Thyetmyo correspondent telegraphs that the public mind is very unsettled, Mandalay astrologers maintain that in order to remove evil influences a great propitiatory sacrifice is requisite. The victims are to be taken from all ranks to the number of four hundred. The priests are to contribute one hundred, and the remainder will consist of women and children. Numerous arrests have been made to secure a sufficient number from which to select the intended victims. The priests, who have hitherto enjoyed immunity from sacrifice, are quitting Mandalay in great numbers. A Roman Catholic convent was recently entered to procure victims from among the girls there, but the attempt was frustrated. The internal condition of the country is most unsatisfactory. The people, while seeing the folly of the King, are helpless to effect a change.

A Rangoon despatch says 700 men, women, boys, girls, priests and foreigners have been buried alive under the towers of the city walls as a sacrifice for the restoration of the King's health. The panic in Mandalay was frightful. Hundreds of people are leaving the city. The King's illness is said to be leprosy.

The following is an explanation of the massacre at Mandalay: When a city is built in Burmah, human sacrifices are offered. The new monarch usually has a new capitol. The evil spirits are irritated that there has been no change in the capitol, and the virtue of the old sacrifices being gone, to appease them the astrologers declared it necessary to offer up 700 lives. The sacrifices were made by order of King Theebaw.

A Rangoon telegram says King Theebau's son and heir, who was only a few months old, and the brother of the late King, have both died of smallpox.

A private cable despatch received at Liverpool states that the King of Burmah is dead. No further details are given of the horrible scenes which preceded his death. The despatch states, however, that the death of the King, who was almost universally feared and hated, has had a tranquilizing effect upon the people. The question of a successor to the throne may be attended with some difficulty, but no cause for anxiety is thought to exist as to the future tranquility of the kingdom.

The Biddulph Murders.

APPLICATION FOR CHANGE OF VENUE.

Guelph Likely to be the Place.

LONDON, April 12.—On Monday afternoon Mr. Irving, Crown Counsel, moved for a change of venue for the trial of the prisoners now waiting their trial for the murder of the Donnelly family. He said: I wish to move that the place of trial be changed from the county of Middlesex to some county other than the county of Middlesex. I am moving here upon indictments which have been found upon the depositions, information, and commital which were taken before the committing magistrates, and also upon the coroner's inquest, as materials on which to found my motion. I have informed counsel for the defence that in respect of the difference in expense which would be incurred by reason of its being tried in some county other than this, the Crown would, at all events in case of acquittal, be prepared to meet the expense. I wish to say distinctly here, although perhaps unnecessary as a matter of fact, that this is not a private prosecution. I am applying on behalf of the Crown, instructed only by the Crown, and instructed specially in respect of this application that I am making to your Lordship, and the suggestion is that the trial should not take place in the county of Middlesex but in the county of Wellington. The affidavits on which I am moving are two, one by Mr. Hutchinson, the County Crown Attorney for this County, and the other by the Chief Constable of the city of London.

The affidavits were then read. They are quite lengthy.

Mr. MacMahen then read affidavits from the prisoners, Kennedy, Purtell, Carroll, and Thos. Ryder, giving simply the number and the kind of relations each has in the county, all of which were favourable to the trials being held in the county.

The Court rose at 5:45 till one o'clock to-day, when His Lordship will give his decision in the matter. It is probable that his judgment will be in writing. The prevailing opinion around the Court House was that the order for a change of venue will not be issued. Guelph is looked upon as a very suitable place for the trial, but still the feeling among the majority of people in this city is that the case can be tried just as well here. There is considerable betting as to which place the Bench shall name. In case the Crown's application is not successful the probability is that they will ask for the postponement of the trial till the Fall Assizes.

Wellington Assizes.

The Spring Assizes for this County, opened at the Court House to-day, at 2:30. Mr. Justice Cameron presiding. The following are the names of the Grand Jury. Thos. McCrae, being appointed Foreman:

GRAND JURY.
