The examination of Gonzales, the would-be regicide, has elicited nothing showing that the attempt was due to political animosity.

A fire has been raging two days at Granada, in the neighborhood of the celebrated Alhambra. A number of houses have been burned.

The following passage occurs in a letter from a high official authority at the Cape to a high authority in London: "Poor Cetewayo! In several cases recognition has already taken place and the scenes in connection with them were very affecting.

Those who take part in the Cantata have given it a good deal of attention, and are well up in the music. The music will be rendered by a choir of twenty-five voices, the solo parts being taken by sixteen different singers. The instrumental music will be rendered by an able orchestra under the direction of Mr. W. T. Vale.

DEATH OF AN EDITOR.—We regret to hear of the death of Mr. John B. Williams, late editor of the Howick Enterprise. Mr. W. was for a few years a minister of the Methodist Church of Canada, but failing health compelled him to retire from the work. Not quite a year ago he took charge of the paper which he found a Conservative organ, and soon changed it into a Reform paper. With a cultivated mind, clear and strong political convictions, and a vigorous pen, he served the cause he sustained with ability and success. At the time of his death he was a member and a very acceptable local preacher in the Methodist Church. He was the brother of the Rev. W. Williams, late pastor of the Centenary Church in this city, and now of Guelph. We extend to his friends our sincere sympathy.—Hamilton Times.

HE WANTED A DRINK.—As the 2.10 train came in to this city yesterday afternoon, a man on the way to Stratford feeling awfully dry—there being nothing but water and pea-nuts on board the train—got off and made rapid strides across to John Haugh's, of the "City," but he hadn't been gone long—just long enough to get his drink and get half-way back again—when the whistle sounded and the train was off, and with a look of dispair he stood in the middle of the road shouting at the train, saying to bystanders, "The guard told me 'twas all right, and I thought I'd just go over." The worst of all was, his valise was in the passenger coach, and his trunk was in the baggage car, but neither were addressed, and how on earth that valise and trunk was going to get off at Stratford, and wait for him he couldn't tell, and that gave him the most trouble. He did ask how far it was to Stratford, and being told it was about forty miles, very tenderly remarked "that the train would get there before him, and that the Grand Trunk had got the start of him for once." He seemed to cheer up a little when told that the telegraph operator or the station-master might do something for him, so off he started to the station to see these officials and make arrangements for stopping his valise and trunk at Stratford until he arrived. The 5.52 o'clock express took him to his destination, and if he ever gets off a railway train again his mind may revert to his experience in Guelph, and the time he lost in getting a drink.

The judgment in the case of Dobie vs. Temporalities Fund of the Church of Scotland was heard with much satisfaction by the retired Union Presbyterian Church ministers whose funds have been thus locked up. It is learned, however, that Dobie, the petitioner, has taken an appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench to carry the case to the Privy Council.

The examination of the candidates attending the Harriston and Mount Forest Model Schools, during the last session of this year, was held at Harriston and Mount Forest on Thursday and Friday the 18th and 19th inst. A Notorious Impostor.

More of the History of William Armstrong.

The following is from the Galt Reporter:—"On Friday evening last, there arrived in Galt, footsore and weary, a young man named at that particular time of day, Walter Adams. He claimed to have travelled from Moncton, N. B., where he had been working in the Intercolonial Railway shops, and on the strength of possessing one of the Oddfellows' signs was taken by some of the members of that Order in Galt, to Eby's hotel and given supper, bed and breakfast. In the meantime a telegram had been sent to the Lodge in Moncton asking if this Adams was a member, but of course no answer could be got that night. In the morning, having partaken of breakfast, the weary young man wended his way to the telegraph office, and finding a telegram had been sent to Moncton, concluded to drop the Oddfellow dodge and try something fresh; in accordance with this resolution he went to a foundry on Water street, and having struck a tender hearted Englishman, told a woeful tale of having had nothing to console his appetite for two days; of having walked untold miles hungry and tired; that he had only been eight months out from the Old Country, and had never asked charity of any one before, and so forth and so on. The sympathetic Englishman sent him to his home for dinner and gave him 50 cents to help him on the road to the Royal city. After dinner, the good wife having enquired as to the state of his finances and being told that he had not received a cent from any one in charity in his life, handed him a quarter. The denouement came when a member of the Oddfellows' Lodge showed to the Englishman the telegram he had received from Moncton to the effect that no such person was known there, and gave a description of the individual who had been known as Walter Adams at night and Walter Hatton in the morning. We would warn members of the order as well as others to look out for him. He is rather a slightly built man with dark moustache and whiskers, and has an English accent to his speech, for it has been found out that he is a dead-beat of the first water."

The young man here referred to as Walter Adams, Chief McMillan is convinced, is William Armstrong, who was arrested here on Wednesday for stealing tools from different factories in the city. The prisoner will be brought up for trial on Monday.

NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Its Observance in Guelph.

The bright and genial weather which ushered in the New Year was all that the most fastidious could have desired. Very few events worthy of note transpired, the day passing quietly, almost without incident. Of course New Year's callers made it their business to visit their old acquaintances and to find new friends, but calls were not so common as in former years.

The midnight services to usher in the New Year, at St. George's Church, was very numerously attended, quite a large congregation being present. The proceedings commenced by the choir singing the appropriate hymn "A few more years shall roll," then followed an address from Canon Dixon, taking as his theme "Jesus Christ the same, yesterday, to-day and forever." He dwelt on the great consolation to be derived from this passage, while all things earthly were liable to change and decay, illustrating this point by referring to the varied events of the passing year. This was followed by an appropriate prayer, and then the beautiful hymn, "Days and moments swiftly flying," was sung most effectively by the choir. The New Year having now commenced a few moments were devoted to silent prayer. Then all rose and a grand "Te Deum" (Vaughan's) was sung with much force and correctness. This was followed by another address on the duties of the new year, and the Canon urged upon all to take as the title of the new volume life just opened, "To do the will of God through Jesus Christ our Lord." Take it as your motto he urged, this year and all years. Then a fervent prayer was offered up for guidance, consolation and support, during the year, and the hymn "O God our help in ages past, our hope for years to come," was sung, a great many of the congregation joining.

There was in conclusion, an administration of the Holy Communion, a very large proportion of those present remaining for it, and the Rev. C. R. Lee of Acton, assisted the Canon in this service. Altogether, these services were of a most solemn and impressive character, and were felt by all present to be a most appropriate manner of commencing a new epoch of time.

At the Dublin street and Norfolk street Methodist churches, watch services were held, at the former, the congregation being addressed by Rev. Mr. Maxwell and some members of the congregation. At the latter, the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Williams. There was a good attendance at both churches and the services were very impressive.

In the forenoon short services were held in Chalmers' and Knox Churches. Rev. Dr. Wardrope addressed those present at the former church, and Rev. Mr. Ball those present at Knox Church.

At the Church of Our Lady mass was celebrated at 7:30, a. m., high masss at 10:30 a.m., and vespers in the evening. At high mass Rev. Father Hamel preached.

The rink was largely patronized, the ice being covered with skaters from early in the forenoon till late at night. The ice was in good condition during the early part of the day, but towards evening it became rough and soft. Nevertheless the skaters seemed to enjoy themselves immensely, and appearances suggest that the interest in skating will be at as high a pitch this winter as it has been during the past two or three seasons.

Friendly games of curling were played between picked sides at the rink, and it did not look as though the interest in this game was on the decrease.

The sleighing was excellent and large nnmbers spent the day driving. The Dundas and Hamilton stage upset while on Neeve street, dumping the occupants, two ladies, on the road. Though shaken somewhat they sustained no material injury. This was the only sleighing accident which occurred in the city.

Credit Valley Railway.

Now that this railway is nearly completed it will not be out of place to give the following particulars respecting the financial arrangements by the aid of which was constructed.

This railway has been heavily bonused by the municipalities along its route, one town granting to it as a free gift a sum equivalent to one-fifth of its entire assessment. The city of Toronto, recognizing the importance of the scheme, and feeling satisfied that it would receive additional business enough from the line to compensate it for the outlay, voted the large sum of $350,000. The following is a list of municipalities which granted bonuses, with the amount given by each:—

Oxford county	$200 000
Wellington county	135 000
Section of Waterloo	110 000
" Halton	70 000
" Peel	75 000
City of Toronto	350 000
Town of Milton	30 000
" Brampton	20 000
" Ingersoll	10 000
" Orangeville	15 000
" Streetsville	20 000
Total	$1,035 000

In addition to bonuses, the towns of Ingersoll and the villages of Elora and Fergus agreed to exchange their municipal debentures for the bonds of the Company—the first named to the extent of $50,000, and the two latter to the extent of $15,000 each. The Ontario Government recognized the importance of the railway to the Province by granting a subsidy of $3,000 per mile over its entire length. The bonds of the Company are limited to $12,000 per mile, which is a small indebtedness, and constitutes the only lien on the railway. The average cost of the line to the present time, exclusive of rolling stock, has been $20,000 per mile.

The full text of the letter, dated Dec. 11, from the Irish Catholic clergy of Montreal to the Committee of the Irish Societies anent the proposal to collect funds for the relief of the distressed people of Ireland, is published. It points out that in Ireland itself, where the nature and extent of the want must be well and correctly known, no general movement has so far taken place to draw help from the more favoured portions of the country. The clergy think, therefore, that the proposal to collect funds in Montreal for the relief of certain portions of Ireland is premature.

Daily Mercury.

FRIDAY EVG, JANUARY 2, 1880.

ENLARGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY MERCURY.

Some weeks ago we announced to our readers that the WEEKLY MERCURY would be enlarged, and to-day we fulfil our promise, and present them with the paper in its enlarged form. Four years ago, when we enlarged the paper, and made it an eight page instead of a four page sheet, we began to think we had reached the summit of our ambition, and that no further alteration or improvement was necessary. But in newspaper work, as in every other department of life, there is no standing still, and when there is no advancement there is retrogression. Since our connection with the MERCURY our motto has ever been onward and upward, and finding that there was ever increasing demands on our space both for reading matter and advertisements, we resolved to make still another step in advance, and give our readers the benefit of a sheet as large as any weekly paper published in Canada. In this improved form we present it to them to-day, and we feel assured that for size, appearance and make up—and in the quantity and variety of reading matter—it will meet with universal satisfaction.

The paper has been enlarged by a column on each page, making in all eight columns additional reading. Add to this the lengthening of the columns, and we have altogether added to our old quantum of reading matter about as much as country readers find in the average country paper. We ask our readers to make the comparison for themselves, and they will readily bear out our statement.

We need not inform our readers that the MERCURY will continue to be the free and unfettered exponent of Liberal opinion. By its fearless advocacy of such principles it has attained its proud position in this section of the Province, and it will continue to advocate these principles, knowing that they are founded on right and will in the end prevail. As a newspaper it has no equal west of Toronto, for its pages weekly contain a mass of information gathered from all sources that no other weekly paper in the district contains. No expense will be spared to keep it up to its high standard in the future, and even to excel all previous efforts. The latest news by telegraph and other sources will be given up to the hour of going to press. Commercial news will be carefully and accurately reported, and in addition a mass of miscellaneous and family reading will be given each week specially adapted for the domestic circle.

We thus begin the new year with the fulfillment of our promise in presenting, to our readers the MERCURY in its enlarged and improved form. We enter upon the year with the hope and expectation that in proportion to our efforts and outlay our friends will heartily endorse these efforts in the most practical form by aiding in increasing our circulation, and thereby extending its influence and popularity. The MERCURY has long held the proud position in this district as being by far the most widely circulated paper, and the large additions every week being made to our subscription lists is sufficient proof that it is still destined, far to outstrip its competitors. We leave our friends to do their share, assuring them that we will make the paper worthy of all the praise they may bestow on it among their neighbors.

And now at this festive season, and in taking this new departure, we wish one and all a "Happy New Year," and many returns of the same.

THE writ for the new (Local) election in Stormont has been issued.

THE Maine case has been referred to the Supreme Court of that State, to consider the questions propounded by Governor Garcelon.

THE members of the Ontario Cabinet intend entertaining the Government supporters at dinner at the National Club on the evening of January 7.

"MISCHIEVOUS activity abroad and masterly inactivity at home," is the correct description given by a leading journal of the policy of the British Government at present.

THE Inland Revenue returns for the month of December show an increase over the corresponding month of last year of $1,823.55, but a decrease for the year of $21,881.81. For 1878 the amount collected was $240,316.89; for 1879, $218,435.08.

THE Hon. Joseph Royal has been returned to the House of Commons for Provencher by a majority of some two hundred. As his predecessor belonged to the same side of the House, the new election does not alter the standing of the parties.

THE general feeling is that the next session of the British Parliament, which begins on the 5th of February, will run to the usual time of prorogation, in August. There seems to be ground for the belief that a dissolution of Parliament will occur as soon as the budget and other urgent bills shall have been disposed of, probably soon after Easter.

DR. WIGGINS, the defeated Tory candidate in Queen's, B. N., was last session appointed sessional clerk. After the session he was made a temporary clerk in the Finance Department, under Sir Leonard Tilley's special care, and now it is learned that this patron has promoted him to the position of clerk.

Bradstreet says:—"As time develops the heretofore hidden mysteries of the Consolidated Bank, the utter disgrace to heads of departments, or whoever may be responsible for the mismanagement and malfeasance, has never been approached in the history of this country; and what is to be regretted, the extent of the evil is but now only dawning on the unfortunates who happened to hold shares of this stock. It has hardly ever occurred to any one that the entire capital was lost; but from what is known of the researches of the gentlemen appointed by order of the court to prepare a statement of the affairs of the concern, this would now appear to be the case, with good reason to fear that even that is not the end of the disaster."

THIS is the style of criticism indulged in by some of the Tory papers in reference to Mr. Blake. The precious quotation is from the Ottawa Citizen: We should be interested in seeing a single kindly word, a single expression of generous thought, a single honest admission of good in an opponent, that Mr. Blake has ever spoken as a public man. There is no man so vindicative, no man more cruel or ungenerous than Mr. Blake. Political hatred for his opponents and political contempt for his own party, are Mr. Blake's chief public characteristics.

Toronto Telegram: The indications are that the Opposition will be asked to rally against the proposal of the Mowat Government to build new legislative buildings. But as there is not much of an Opposition there will not be much of a rally. The Mail is badly mixed on the question. It is the leading Tory organ, and should lead the Tory agitation. But, being a Toronto newspaper, it must part company with its friends on this question. Still, this is no excuse for its statement that Mr. Mowat intends spending a million dollars on the structure when he only intends to spend six hundred thousand—unless the Mail, while ostensibly favouring the project, is really trying to kill it.

SPEAKING of the Tay bridge disaster the N. Y. Tribune truly says that the imagination refuses to picture the horrors to those four score human beings of that brief, swift and awful descent. It is scarcely necessary to say that not one of those on board escaped alive; not one could escape alive, seeing that they were flung in huge coffins into a deep and raging sea. When the suddeness and the completeness of their extinction are considered, this must be regarded as one of the most singular and dreadful accident of recent times.

Harriston Correspondence.

Mr. William Connor, M. A., gold medalist of Queen's University, Ireland, and for several years Mathematical Master in the London Collegiate Institute, has been engaged by the Harriston High School Board as Principal at a salary of $1,200 per annum, with Mr. D. E Smith, B. A., of Toronto University, as assistant. Their success in preparing candidates for teachers certificates and University examinations, is a sufficient guarantee of their ability to justify the action of the Board in employing them. There is no doubt but the ability of both gentlemen will enable them to place the school in the front rank.

The ladies' of Guthrie Church held their first Social of the season on Tuesday evening of last week. The attendance was large and the spread provided was excellent. The expertness with which the waiters catered to the various wants of those present, rendered it quite almost impossible for any to go long unserved or for any to go wanting. The inner man being fully satisfied, an adjournment was made from the basement to the church proper, to participate in the musical and intellectual part. Rev. John Baikie took the chair, and called on the choir for a piece of music, which was well rendered. Afterwards, Rev. Mr. Mullen, of Fergus, delivered an address, both humorous and interesting. He was followed by Rev. Mr. McQuarrie, of Winghham, who delivered a fine address on "Church work and how to do it." Rev. Messrs. Campbell and Gundy, also delivered short addresses. The entertainment closed with the doxology. The affair was a grand success.

On Monday of last week, while Mr. Isaac Roberts was chopping a tree in the bush on his farm, 12th concession Minto, it slivered off at the stump and struck him between the ankle and the knee, breaking his leg. He was immediately removed to his house, and Dr. Adams of Harriston was called, who set the limb. Mr. Roberts is favourably progressing.

On Tuesday of last week, Mr. George Broughton, of Minto, was hitching his horses to the horse-power of a threshing machine on his farm, when one of the horses knocked him on the forehead, fracturing the skull and rendering him senseless. Dr. Henry, of Harriston, was called and dressed the wounds. Mr. Broughton was for some time delirious, and though yet in a precarious state is in a favourable way of recovery.

"That the sword has done more to advance and civilize than the pen," will be the subject of debate in the basement of Knox Church on Monday evening, the 12th of January. These debates are becoming quite interesting and are worthy of attention.

J. M. Humphrey, late of Macdonnell street Guelph, has opened a tonsorial establishment in the post office block, Arthur street, Harriston, where he is prepared to do shaving, hair cutting, shampooing, &c., in the best style and at reasonable rates.

The C. M. church held their annual Christmas festival on Christmas, at which assembled a large crowd of youth, beauty, middle aged and old, all resolved on spending a pleasant Christmas evening. The repast embraced all the delicacies of the season and were in abundance. This part being concluded order was restored and Rev. J. R. Gundy took the chair. Interesting addresses were delivered by Revs. Messrs. Campbell and Baikie, of Harriston; and Stafford, of Teeswater. The choir as usual rendered good service. The affair was very enjoyable and was a success both financially and socially.

In the paragraph of last week relating to the High School contract, it was made to read that Dowling and S. R. Lennox were the contractors of the tin work, &c. It should have been Dowling & Leighton for the carpenter work and S.R. Lennox for the tin work, eave troughing, &c.

A REMARKABLE BOOK.—A book has lately been published in London by a 'ticket-of-leave man. He solemnly declares that whatsoever things are filthy, hateful, fiendish, if there be any vice or infamy deeper or more horrible than all other vice and infamy, it may be found ingrained in the English professional thief "who has sucked vice into his nature from a degraded mother." As a class, he deems them utterly and irreclaimably lost. He shows that convict labor ought to be worth a great deal, and is worth next to nothing. The prison wardens are, for the most part, on good terms with the worst class of convicts. The cat, he thinks, should, after a time, be applied to the worst class of criminals, for it is the only thing they fear. Chaplains do little good. At worship a large number of men, while pretending to utter the responses, are really talking blasphemy. Many scoundrels take the sacrament merely to stand well with the chaplain, and it has been found needful to keep a tight hold of the sacramental wine cup. He thinks that short sentences and the separate cell system might be efficaciously combined.

Mr. L. A. Asselin, advocate, of Rimouski, has been chosen as the Conservative candidate to succeed the Hon. A. Chauvean, who it is reported will not continue to represent the constituency of Rimouski.

This Council met on Monday, the 29th inst., the Reeve in the chair. Present all the members. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The Reeve drew the attention of the Council to a matter that has arisen about the payment of school rates by Messrs. Maurice O'Connor and John Murphy, when it was Moved by Mr. Hobson, seconded by Mr. Hawes, That the Reeve be instructed to obtain the Solicitor's opinion in reference to the power of this Council to deal with the applications of Messrs. The Reeve called the attention of the Council to the By-law that was under consideration at last meeting, and was read a first and second time for the purpose of stopping up a portion of road allowances.

The Reeve read a communication from the Trustees of the late Jas. Hewittson on behalf of the orphan family, that the taxes be remitted in consideration of the lamentable loss which has befallen them. Granted.

A communication was presented from Mr. John Weir, stating that he was unable to pay his taxes at present, having met with serious losses. The Reeve was instructed to make enquiry relating to the applications.

The Reeve submitted the following report, showing amount that the R. & B. Committee have expended for improving roads and bridges since the last report was submitted:

The Council then adjourned to meet on Monday, 19th day of January, previous to the formation of new Council.

A. MCCORKINDALE, Clerk.

The Ladies' Social.

The basement in Dublin St. Methodist church was the place of general attraction last evening. The ladies of the church spared no pains in making their 400 guests comfortable. They succeeded admirably. A better Social in all respects could only be imagined. The ladies who served the tables provided an abundance of the choicest provision. The museum was a great attraction. A large collection of ancient relics were on exhibition. The candy and fruit stand was tastefully arranged and well patronized. The programme was excellent. Rarely, if ever is a company privileged with such choice selections, and so admirably rendered. The same programme would attract the same congregation if repeated. The chair lady, Mrs. Dunn, did her part with acceptance and dignity. Miss Thompson gave a witty opening address, contrasting their Social with the one given by young men. The programme was as follows:—Instrumental duet, Miss Ada Taylor and Miss Minnie Clark. Duet, Misses Oldham and Dietz; Solo, by Mrs. Elderkin; Quartette, Mrs. Savage, Misses Oldham, Goodfellow and Dietz; Reading by Mrs. Dunn (humorous); Solo by Miss Oldham; Duet by Misses Goodfellow and Clark; Instrumental Solo by Miss Annie Jackson; Reading by Miss Husband; Duet by Misses Taylor and Clark (instrumental); Recitation by Miss Minnie Wells; Duett by Miss Oldham and Dietz; Solo by Miss Minnie Wright; Reading by Miss Keables; Quartette by Mrs. Savage, Misses Oldham, Goodfellow, and Berry. The whole was carried out in the very best style. Misses Goodfellow and Oldham deserve thanks for such an excellent programme. The grand piano used for the occasion was kindly loaned by Mr. C. Kelly. Everything passed off pleasantly, and the ladies of Dublin St. Methodist church may anticipate a crowd when they try again. Proceeds amounted to $70.

The Headless Rooster.

TORONTO, Jan. 2.—At the Police Court this morning, Wm. S. Smith and Wm. Fraser, the headless rooster exhibitors, were dismissed. They have entered action against the officer of the Society for Preventing Cruelty to Animals, for false arrest, laying their damages at $1,500. Dr. Joseph Workman for defendant. At the trial this morning, stated he had seen the bird, and thought it an interesting study, he was of opinion it had not the power of suffering. The President of the Poultry Association and others also testified on behalf of the prisoners.

Among the shipments to Europe last week from New York was forty-seven hundred barrels of green apples.

Prof. William Pike, late Assistant Professor of Chemistry at Oxford University, has arrived in Toronto. He has been appointed to the chair of Chemistry in University College, made vacant by the retirement of Professor Croft.

About five hundred persons called on the Governor-General on New Year's day.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries has issued an order releasing the fishery inspectors in Ontario and Quebec from the obligation of enforcing the laws for the protection of game in these Provinces. The game laws being provincial enactments, it is out of the sphere of a federal officer to enforce them as a part of his strictly defined duties.

Winter hog packing in Montreal progresses slowly, on account of the present prices being considered by the trade unwarrantably high.

Credit Valley Railway.

The following is the most important part of Mr. Frank Shanly's report on the completion of this railway:

TORONTO, Dec. 24, 1879.

To George Laidlaw, Esq., President Credit Valley Railway, Toronto.

DEAR SIR,—Having been officially engaged by the Government of the Province of Ontario, and acting also on behalf of the City of Toronto in my capacity of City Engineer, I have inspected the successive sections of the Credit Valley Railway as now completed.

1. The main line from Toronto to Ingersoll, a distance, as now laid down to Queen-street, of 94 miles, and when extended to the waters of the Bay at the foot of John-street, of 96 miles.

2. The Orangeville Branch, from Streetsville Junction, on the main line to Orangeville, a distance of 35miles.

3. The Elora Branch, from Cataract Junction on the Orangeville Branch to Elora, a distance of 27 miles.

Making in all a total length constructed of 156 miles.

The character of the works generally will compare favourably with the best of the lines of this class, such as have been constructed in Ontario during the past ten years, and is superior to a great majority of them, both as regards alignment, gradients, structures, permanent way, &c., and the whole have been carried out, as far as I am enabled to judge, with a strict regard to economy, combined with thoroughness—especially when the rapidity with which they have been pushed to completion is taken into consideration.

The structures are, as a rule, of timber trestles, mostly resting on piled foundations, both material and workmanship being the best of their kind. The exception is in the largest bridge on the line, over the Grand River at Galt, which is of wrought iron, in five spans of 150 feet each, resting on piers of solid stone masonry.

The permanent way, as regards the steel rails (56 lbs. per yard,) the ties, and the ballasting, is excellent, more than an avarage quantity of those two last items having been used in laying down the track, which may be said to equal that of any other of the railways constructed within ten years in this Province, as referred to above.

All the other works, such as excavations, embankments, drainage, culverts, etc., etc., are quite up to the standard of other roads.

Suitable station accommodation has been provided at all the principal points, with the engine shed and workshops at Toronto.

Before closing my remarks I may observe that your railway can hardly be complete without a Western connection. This can be obtained within the shortest distance by extending to St. Thomas, some twenty-eight miles, where the Canada Southern Railwry would no doubt offer facilities superior to any other existing line. A glance at the map will show how very direct such a course would be between Toronto and the Detroit River.

Hespeler Correspondence.

PRESENTATION.—A few evenings ago, some of the members of the Presbyterian Congregation here called on the Rev. Mr. Haigh, and presented that gentleman with a pair of gold rimmed spectacles, and Mrs. Haigh with a beautiful silver butter cooler and cake basket. The gifts were very handsome ones, and bear testimony of the high esteem in which their recipients are held by the members of their congregation.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.—The entertainment held on Christmas eve in connection with the Christmas tree, which was equipped on behalf of the pupils of the Methodist Church S. S., was a consummate success. The church was perhaps more crowded than it was ever on any former occasion. Mr. J. P. Phin, the superintendent of the school, opened the proceedings by making a few well timed remarks in connection with the workings of the school, after which the audience was entertained for a short time by recitations from the scholars, and music from the choir alternately. Distributing the presents from the trees occupied the rest of the time. There were two trees, one containing gifts for the scholars and the other private gifts from friends. The trees themselves were an ornament worth looking at, and were equipped with such gifts as we are sure gladdened the hearts of those who beheld their distribution.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Sold by all druggists.

The Herald's Salt Lake special says:—It is believed Congress will take no violent measures against Mormonism except to prohibit polygamy. In connection with the story that the Mormons are arranging for a foothold in Mexico, where there leaders might take refuge in case of trouble, it is reported that the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, while offering lands for Mormon occupation, said polygamy would not be tolerated.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

A Romantic Life.

The Extraordinary Adventures of an Extraordinary Beauty.

The romantic vicissitudes of the early life of the Countess Solange de Kramer have once more become the talk of the Paris saloons, and they are, indeed, so extraordinary that, used as materials for a novel, they would spoil the book by their lack of veri-similitude. One night, in 1801, a little girl about one year old was deposited in the drawer of the foundling asylum at Brest. She was dressed with much finery, and a note attached to her skirts, told that her name was Solange, and that she would be reclaimed by her father. The claim was never made, however, and in due time the child was transferred to the orphan asylum, to be educated there. As she grew up, she developed a most extraordinary beauty, but her intellect appeared to be very weak, and she suffered from frequent nervous fits. When she was twelve years old she was sent out into the streets to sell flowers, and her beauty and modesty attracted many people's good will, but she grew weaker and weaker, and at last she died. According to French custom she was buried in an open casket, and as it was winter and the soil was frozen, she was laid into the grave, only covered with a thin layer of sand. During the night she awoke and, pushing the sand away, she crept out from this grave. Not exactly understanding what had taken place, she was not so very much frightened, but in crossing the glacis between the cemetery and the fortifications, she was suddenly stopped by the outcry "Qui vive," and as she did not answer, the sentinel fired, and she fell to the ground. Brought into the guard-house, her wound was found to be slight, and she soon recovered, but her singular history, and also her great beauty had made so deep an impression on a young lieutenant of the garrison (Kramer), that he determined to be her protector, and send her to one of the most fashionable educational establishments in Paris. During the next few years Kramer was much tossed about by the war, but when in 1818 he returned to Paris, he found Solange a full grown woman, not only beautiful, but accomplished and spirited, with no more trace of intellectual weakness or nervous fits. He married her, and for several years the couple lived happily in Paris. Meanwhile, investigations were made concerning the girl left, in 1801, in the Founding Hospital at Brest, and as these investigations were made by a Swedish Ambassador, and in a somewhat official manner, they attracted some attention. Capt. Kramer heard about the affair, and sent a note to the ambassador, and a month later on, the ambassador came in state to bring Mme. Kramer a formal acknowledgement of her father, the former Gen. Bernadotte, the present King Charles XIV. of Sweden. Capt. Kramer and his wife went immediately to Stockholm; they were ennobled, etc., and their son has just now been appointed attache to the Swedish Legation [at Paris.—N. Y. Times.

Bleeding the Poor Settler.

Hardships of the New Northwest Land Laws.

A farmer settled in the Northwest thus explains how the Government land scheme, that looks so nice on paper, works in practice: "When we took up our land in May, 1878, we got 160 acres as a homestead and 160 acres by pre emption, at $1 per acre with three years to pay it; and each settler was to get 20 acres of woodland for $20, or $1 per acre. But how different now for all pre emptions taken up since the year 1877. Those on odd numbered sections have to pay $4.50 per acre, and those on even numbered sections $2.50 per acre. Instead of 20 acres of woodland we have to pay $30 for a permit every year to get our firewood with the allowance to take timber for a house, said timber not to average more than 7 inches at the butt, and we are not allowed more than 50 pieces for a house. Now, sir, how in all creation can any man put up a house with timber of that size and quantity, high enough to stand up in? But perhaps Sir John has a new way of putting up a log house, and if so his presence up here would be a great benefit to the settlers of this plain. For stables and and granaries there is no timber allowed, but we are told to go to the sawmills and buy lumber for these purposes—a poor recompense for twenty acres of woodland, and for poor struggling settlers. I hear they have sold all the timber in this part fit for lumber, to speculators. But is there no law which will compel them to stand by the agreement which we took up our land under? If not there is only one course left for us, and that is to go where others have gone—across the lines—where we will be treated in a more upright way. New settlers are a poor class to raise money out of to make the Canada Pacific Railroad or to replenish their treasury which has been emptied by their great 'N. P.'"

Eramosa Council.

The Council met at the Centre Inn at ten o'clock a. m., on the 29th inst. Members all present, the Reeve in the chair; the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Collector was instructed to make his final returns to the Treasurer, on or before the 29th of January 1880. $2.00 were ordered to be paid to David Rea for meeting with the Public School Inspector for the purpose of making arrangements for annexing west half of lot 1, con. 1, of West Garafraxa, to School Section No. 4, of Eramosa. $1.00 dog tax, charged to William Croft, was ordered to be struck of the Collector's Roll, he having been assessed therefor by mistake. No other business being before the Council they then adjourned.

J. A DAVIDSON, Township Clerk.

Sir Leonard Tilley, Sir Charles Tupper, and Hon. Mr. Bowell arrived at Belleville, on Tuesday and went on a "hum" hunt.

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVI.

A LAPSE OF TIME AND A CHANGE OF SCENE—SAD EVENTS AT MARSTON GRANGE—AN HONEST LAWYER COMES INTO VIEW.

The course of our story brings us back to the shores of the Solway, but not until after the lapse of seventeen years from the date of its opening—that is to say, seventeen years from that April afternoon when we found Adam Borland and his brother Jack busy at work in the Grange garden—seventeen years from that memorable night when Jack quitted his brother's cottage to join the smugglers and become involved in a crime which parted him and Adam for ever. His brother and all others believed that Jack perished that night in the little boat, and nothing had since occurred to alter that belief. By those who loved him he was mourned for as dead, and as time extended its space he became but a sad and fading memory in their hearts. For a long while he was often spoken of in the cottage, but at length more terrible sorrows came, under the heavy pressure of which Jack and his untimely fate passed into comparative oblivion. The events and changes which caused these sorrows, though not related in due sequence, will be sufficiently explained in this chapter.

After an interval of seventeen years, then, we behold the scene briefly described at the opening of the tale—the far stretching park of the Grange, dotted with noble trees, fringed with sheltering belts of thick plantation, and containing near its centre—surrounded by lofty woods—the mansion-house, policies, and garden. In its external features the scene is very much the same. The trees have perchance reached the larger proportions, and wave longer branches in the summer wind; the clumps and thickets have become denser; the roses and honeysuckles which overspread the porch and walls of the cottage at the corner of the park are thicker in their tendrils, while on the walls themselves moss shows itself here and there to attest the influence of the time that has elapsed. But otherwise the natural aspect of the scene is essentially the same as on the memorable evening when Adam and Jack came home from the day's labour, and were greeted on the threshold by the smiling Jessie and the laughing child she held in her arms.

Proceeding into the interior of the cottage, the changes produced by the passing years are immediately presented to view. The appearance of the solitary inmate and the garments she wears give significant indication of the sad truth, for the middle-aged woman in dark gown and widow's cap is Jessie Borland, whom last we saw as Adam's young happy-hearted wife, full of the love and joy of early wedded bliss. Gone now is the bright gladsome smile which then lighted up her pretty countenance; gone the lustre which bloomed on her cheek; gone the bright light from her sparkling eyes. Though she is but little over forty, her hair once dark and glossy is turning grey; on her brow, once smooth as alabaster, grief has ploughed deep lines; and the sharp pale face, though composed, is grave and smileless.

Adam Borland then is dead.

Yes, he had been dead for the last eight years. His youth, health and manhood's strength had a sudden termination, for with awful unexpectedness the grave received him into its dark depths, and almost in an hour Jesse passed from the fulness of married enjoyment into the desolation of widowhood. It was a heartrending spectacle to those who saw her and her orphan child hanging over the shattered body of her idolised husband when death gave him rest from suffering, and to them the first bitterness of bereavement. Agnes was then eleven, old enough to realize the greatness of the loss and join her tears to the sobs and lamentations of her widowed mother, but too young to impart strength or comfort to that mother's stricken heart, whose anguish no words can describe.

The day that Adam met his death-wound was a day of awful accidents to to many more than him. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce with their two children, Orwell and May, were driving in an open carriage by the side of a ravine which intersected a portion of the grounds. The horse, a young high-spirited animal, took fright at the sudden rising of a wood pigeon from a bank overhead; and plunged madly forward. Mr. Bruce, who was driving, lost command of the animal, and was unable to prevent it dragging them towards the edge of a precipice by which the ravine was at that point bounded.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce saw their danger, and were appalled thereby, but could do nothing to save themselves and their children from a destruction which would speedily have overtaken them, had not some one at that moment dashed in front of the horse, seized his head, and averted for a moment his headlong speed. It was Adam Borland, who, attracted by their cries, had come to their aid and thrown himself without a moment's hesitation into a position of great danger. By the utmost exercise of his strength he strove to press back the infuriated animal and give the occupants of the carriage time to leap out.

"Quick, for Godsake, quick!" he shouted, feeling that in a minute the horse would get the mastery of him.

Mr. Bruce disentangled himself from the wrappings, and bounding to the ground, held out his hands to his wife.

"Leap, Amelia—oh, leap," he cried.

"The children!" she shrieked; "save them!" and with frantic struggles she grasped first the little May and threw her into her father's arms Orwell, a strong boy of fifteen, manfully calling out that he would get out himself, was making his way over the side when his panic-stricken mother made a frantic clutch at him. This lost some invaluable moments, during which the maddened horse was pressing himself and Adam towards the precipice, rearing and plunging as he did so.

Adam, finding that he was losing ground inch by inch, and would be unable to prevent the animal from rushing over, could have saved himself by letting go his hold and leaping aside. But to do this before Mrs. Bruce was out of the carriage would be to ensure her death, and a sense of duty and devotion kept him at his post till he and the horse were on the very brink.

Orwell was now out, and Mrs. Bruce wildly threw herself forward towards her husband's outstretched arms. Her weight bore him to the ground, and as they fell he instinctively threw her back, to be clear of wheels and hoofs. He succeeded in this, but only to involve himself in the danger he sought to avert from her, and received a blow on the nose from the horse's hind foot.

At the same moment Adam let go his hold and made a desperate leap to one side, but struck against a ledge of rock, and he, horse, and vehicle, fell over the precipice almost simultaneously.

The horse was killed on the spot, the carriage broken nearly to fragments, and Adam lay moaning with pain, fearfully mangled, and fatally injured.

The lad Orwell was the only one of the four on the top of the precipice who was in a condition to give or to get help. Mr. Bruce lay helpless, every breath he drew sending a pain through his breast so acute as to render exertion impossible; his wife lay only a yard or two from him in a deep swoon, with May weeping hysterically over her, and piteously calling to her mamma to open her eyes and speak to her.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

The Lion approaches the close of the year with a grateful appreciation of the many favors received from his numerous customers and friends in this Western Section of Ontario.

The past year has been in every sense, a highly satisfactory one. Not only has the Lion received the patronage and confidence of his friends nearer home, even in a larger degree than formerly, but many valued and esteemed customers from a distance—from many remote places of the Dominion—have been added to his large list of patrons.

The Lion rejoicing in the general feeling of prosperity, and thankful to an All Wise and Kind Providence, for the liberal dispensation of His bounties, wishes each and all of his fellow townsmen and countrymen a very happy New Year.

JAMES HUDSON.

"Run for help, Orwell—run as fast as you can"—gasped Mr. Bruce.

Orwell shot down the path like a frightened hare and soon met some of their own people, who had heard the cries and were hurrying to the spot. The boy's startling tale made them run the faster, but all that could be done now was to have the sufferers removed. A copious application of cold water brought Mrs. Bruce back to consciousness, and though laboring under a nervous shock of inexpressible severity, she was able with a little assistance to walk to the house. For Mr. Bruce and Adam two litters were speedily prepared, and they too were conveyed from the scene of the accident. Mr. Bruce in the midst of his own agony had not lost consideration for his faithful servant, who by his heroic devotion had saved them all from instant destruction at a fearful cost to himself, and ordered that he should be taken to the mansion-house also, but Adam pleaded so hard and so earnestly to be taken to the cottage that they could not refuse his request. Poor fellow, he knew he was dying, and wished to draw his last breath in his own home.

A very brief examination showed the doctor that recovery was hopeless. For two days Adam lingered in sore, sore pain, death being unable to conquer his manhood's strength in shorter time, though before the end came even his distracted wife prayed that his sufferings might cease, and that he might enter into rest. At last the struggle ended, and the sturdy, strong-hearted Adam Borland, who two days ago, rejoiced in the fulness of health and energy, was but a piece of cold, mangled clay.

It was months ere Mr. Bruce was able to move about, and he never fully recovered health and strength. From the terrible shock she had sustained Mrs. Bruce was never able to rally, and in less than a year she died. This new sorrow was more than the husband's shattered frame could bear, and though he survived two years more, these last years of life were only a burden of pain and weakness.

Arrival of Parnell and Dillon in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The steamship Scythia arrived in port this morning having on board Messrs. Parnell and Dillon, both of whom were received by a large delegation of prominent citizens from other cities and heartily welcomed to America.

The delegation at an early hour this morning steamed down the bay in a revenue cutter and boarded the Scythia on her way up. An address of welcome by the citizens of New York and another by the citizens of Chicago were presented. Parnell replying as follows: "I regret my power of language is not sufficient to convey my appreciation of the kindness and honor done me. It has always been a great pleasure to me to come to the United States. I could have wished that the circumstances attending our native land were of a more happy and prospering character, but we must hope and believe that the time is approaching when we may be able to speak of Ireland as other men speak of their own country, as really and truly among the nations of the earth. Our task is of a double character. We have to war against a system which causes discontent and suffering in our country, and we have endeavored to break down the system and, with God's help, we are determined to break it down. We have also to see that the victims of this system are not suffered to perish in the meanwhile. The physical suffering, misery and starvation in a large portion of the population of Ireland have not been exaggerated. We have been calling on the Government for eight months to relieve the distress, but only within the last few days the English Government has agreed to admit that there is any distress, now that it is too well spread for almost any effectual remedy. Do those rulers in England appear to understand their responsibility? We, who have been working at this great land question have not made any appeal to the Government for the relief of the destitution; we cannot longer shut our eyes to the terrible peril approaching, and we think we ought to put the case before our own countrymen, both at home and here in America; we know our countrymen in America will do their duty, as they have in every clime, to their suffering brethren at home. I confidently anticipate the result of our mission will be of such a nature as to give pleasure to us and also give help to our people at home."

Dillon was called upon and also spoke, referring in complimentary terms to the generosity of America to their suffering brethren at home.

RAILWAY TO HUDSON BAY.—The Ottawa Free Press says: It is said that the application for a charter to build a railway from the head of Lake Winnipeg to Port Nelson on Hudson Bay really emanates from the Hudson Bay Company. This corporation apparently realises this season more than in any preceeding one, that their real interests lie in colonizing the North-West, so we hear not only of building the line of railway alluded to, but of the transformation on the Thames of four of the company's ships into steamers, capable of breaking ice, and of an anticipated immigration under the Company's auspices of forty thousand people from Europe to the North-west during the spring and summer of 1880.

Rutherford's clearing sale has been a great boon to the people since the announcement of it. Goods were never sold at such low prices. d1w1

ASSAULT.—James Penleton appeared at Police Court this forenoon for assaulting James Swan by striking him with a shovel. Some evidence was taken for the prosecution when at the request of complainant—the case was adjourned till Wednesday. It appeared that the assault, which was not a very serious one, arose through a quarrel, and Penleton thinking Swan had said something insulting, struck him with the shovel.

INCORRIGIBLE.—This forenoon there was a scene at the Police Court when John Cunningham was being tried for vagrancy. A man named Slater thinking the prisoner had been placed in a false position, rose and was bound to testify to his good character whether the court willed or not. An order from the Police Magistrate was sufficient to satisfy the voluntary witness that his testimony was unnecessary.

RUNAWAY.—A team of horses driven by Alex. Campbell, ran away yesterday from the neighbourhood of the Victoria Bridge. Mr. Campbell was racing his horses with a span driven by Mr. Laing when they took fright. The animals made a spring, and becoming detached, drew Mr. Campbell over the dashboard. He retained his hold on the lines but was unable to control the horses, which dashed southwards rapidly, drawing him along the roadway. At length the lines broke and the animals becoming free, galloped about two miles along the road where they were afterwards found, one on each side of a rail fence. Mr. Campbell though somewhat bruised, sustained no material hurt.

REQUIRING ATTENTION.—Gordon street at the railway crossing is in such a condition as to make it dangerous for teams to cross the track. The rails project above the boards laid between them, and are an obstruction to sleighs. It is with difficulty that teams can cross the track at all, and every day they may be seen stuck at that point. Unless this defect is remedied it may occasion some serious accident as trains are constantly passing. The authorities should make no delay in repairing the roadway at that place.

The Guelph Curling Club.

A meeting of the Guelph Curling Club was held in Mr. Charles Davidson's office, Day's Block, on Friday evening, when the following resolutions relating to the competition for the Gow Cup were passed:—

Moved by Mr. Wm. Mitchell, seconded by Mr. Jas. Barclay, that the Cup be played for by time—say two and a half hours.

Moved by Mr. D. McCrae, seconded by C. Carried.

It was distinctly expressed by the meeting that all parties who had not paid their subscription fees by the above date would not be allowed to compete.

Several new members were admitted to to the Club. After the transaction of routine business it was decided to arrange for a match with Elora on the Elora rink at as early a day as possible.

The meeting then adjourned.

WHISKEY DRINKING.—The distillers would not have made and barrelled 71,892,621 gallons of whiskey and other such fiery potables during the last fiscal year, if they had not an intelligent confidence in their ability to find customers at paying prices. It is a slight relief to know that 15,000,000 gallons or so were sent across the seas to fire the brains and gnaw the stomachs of the effete despots and their subjects; but even with this deduction, there was on hand the enormous quantity of 56,893,000 gallons (in round numbers) of whiskey and its congenors for home consumption. Even if all Americans took their liquor straight—which they don't—and if the average price of a drink was ten cents—which we are not informed, is not the fact—the gurgling of the last swallow of this colossal potation down the free and equal American throat will represent an expenditure of between $341,090,000 and $455,000,000, according to the size of the average bar drink. And the distilleries are still at work.—N. Y. Sun.

A SHOEBLACK'S SERMON.—A little shoeblack called at the residence of a clergyman of this city and solicited a piece of bread and some water. The servant was directed to give the child bread from the crumb basket, and, as the little fellow was walking slowly away and shifting the gift between his fingers for a piece large enough to chew, the minister called him back and asked him if he had ever learned to pray. On receiving the negative answer, he directed him to say, "Our Father," but he could not understand the familiarity. "Is it our father—your father—my father?" "Why, certainly." The boy looked at him awhile and commenced crying, at the same time holding up his crust of bread and exclaiming between his sobs: "You say that your father is my father; aren't you ashamed to give your little brother such stuff to eat when you have got so many good things for yourself?" New Orleans Democrat.

PRESBYTERIANISM.—By a statement just published we learn that the Presbyterian church in Canada contains 860 pastoral charges; 1,350 congregations; 75,000 families; and about 130,000 communicants. Its contributions for missionary and college purposes last year reached $241,000, while for all purposes including ministers salaries, etc., there was raised nearly $1,250,000. Six theological colleges are connected with the church, besides the two ladies colleges at Ottawa and Brantford. The missionary work is divided into the home, French and foreign departments, each under the care of a separate committee.

The Cantata of Santa Claus.

This Cantata, got up by the young people and children connected with the St. Andrews' Sunday School, was produced with great success in the Caledonian Rooms on Friday night. Those who took part in it had been engaged for some time previous to the work of preparation, and when the grand test came it was found that they were remarkably well up in their parts. The piece was produced with every regard to scenery and effects—so far as the stage would allow—and the different scenes were well represented, and from the first seemed to take the fancy of the audience.

The Cantata has been specially composed for the Christmas season, and hinges on the looked for and welcome visit of Santa Claus to the children. Of course intermixed with the story, if it can be called such—are a number of choruses, which are really good, being sprightly and well adapted to the subject. The solos are simple but expressive, and in good keeping with the subject. The finest instrumental piece is "the "Reindeer's gallop," which, with the accompaniment of the sleigh bells, was received with the greatest favour.

The costume, stage fittings, etc., were excellent, and gave the greatest possible effect to the piece on the small stage at the disposal of the characters. The solo singers did their part well, and the chorus was carefully drilled, and did their part without a hitch, and with admirable effect. The entire success of the piece is greatly due to Mr. Crawford, who had all the labor in drilling the young people in the vocal parts, and to Mr. Vale who ably assisted him in the instrumental work, and who led the orchestra on Friday night.

The characters in the piece are as follows: "When the Shepherds watched by night," Misses Purvis and Anderson. Solo invocation to joy, by Miss Kirkland; Peace, Miss. McLaren; Love, Annie McGregor; Hope, Miss Stevenson; Joy, Miss McGregor; Frost King, W. Higinbothom; Mirth, Miss Stewart; Fred, E. Higinbotham; Daisey, Minnie Stewart; Lena Ellen Anderson; Gretchen, Maude McGregor; Carl, Edward Crawford; Fritz Albert Gibbon; First Fairy, Adelaide Patterson; Second Fairy, Effie Smith; Third Fairy, Mary Higinbotham; Goddess of Dreams, Miss Paterson; Santa Claus, Mr. Bish; Krako, Nicholas Jeffrey; Drake, Harry Higinbotham.

The cantata will be repeated to-night in the same place, when the admission will be only ten cents. We hope there will be a large turnout of young people, for the piece is the best of the kind yet produced in Guelph.

Are We Safer Without Trial by Jury?

When on the field of Runnymede the Barons forced from the weak but vicious King John, the Great Charter of English libetry, none of its provisions proved a greater safeguard of justice and the rights and liberties of the subject than that which provided that no freeman could be "outlawed, imprisoned or condemned without the lawful judgment of his peers;" and through the long reigns of tyranny and usurpation which followed, it stood the Palladium of the nation, and the one impregnable defence against the oppression and insane struggle for absolute power. It insured to the people the glorious boon of freedom by the public verdict and investigation of their cause, despite the strong walls of the Tower, and chains and shackles which absolutism had forged against the Montforts, the Hampdens and Sahcrofts, who so dearly purchased the freedom which we to-day enjoy.

Without its aid they should have languished in feudal towers and fetid dungeons with as little hope in the future as the political exiles whose life's horizon to-day is bounded by the penal mines and snows of Siberia, but who still leave behind them ten hundred thousand Russians ready to give them a verdict of acquittal, did their judicial system afford them an opportunity.

Canadians, as British subjects and heirs to the glorious rights of their National Constitution, and the traditions of its upbuilding, have, it would appear, come to undervalue their privileges, and seem willing to throw away the blessings of that highest of all courts of appeal, an unprejudiced jury of their countrymen. "Aye, there's the rub," an unprejudiced jury! Have we not too much evidence that such is almost a phenomenon?—not only that they prejudice a case, but that they are capable of being approached and corrupted; else why such a notorious failure of justice as in the late London manslaughter case, and others that might be cited? Why also the unaccountable variation in the verdicts of juries in dealing with crimes? Would not our rights and liberties be safer in the hands of a Judge alone, than committed to the ignorance, prejudice or cupidity of our juries? Let us not forget that if England had a Blackstone and a Coke, she had also a Bacon and a Jeffreys, by whom justice was sold, or basely and brutally administered. The genius of the whole British Constitution is opposed to the one man power. Judges, so far aswe have ever discovered, have the same physical, mental, and moral constitution as jurymen, and are sometimes accused of giving strange decisions. Instead, therefore, of seeking to overturn and destroy this feature in the administration of our laws, it might be more profitable to enquire, what are the chief causes that lead to a comparative failure in the jury system to secure the highest ends of justice?

We notice first, that the thoroughly democratic character of all our institutions, and the complete social equality of the community, leaves a juryman much more easily approached than he would be in a country where the distinctions of caste prevailed even to a small extent. It is difficult for a juryman to keep free from the society and influence of a man with whom he has perhaps hob-nobbed for years in the village bar-room; whose business may be the same as his own, and who may often in a half-jocular way be led into compromising his position as a juryman almost before he is aware of his error. A second, and we believe a more serious, evil is the system of challenging jurymen. This at the very outset goes on the assumption that jurymen are not reliable, and tends to create the very evil which it seeks to remedy. We hold that a prisoner has, or ought to have, just the same right to challenge a judge as he has to challenge a juryman—that the law which permits such a course insults both the intelligence and honesty of the man so challenged, telling him as plainly as words can do, that he has not the ability or will to act justly in the case in hand. Besides, it offers rather a palatable sop to the vanity of those who may be permitted to try the case; thus tending to create a prejudice favorable to the prisoner, even without the knowledge of those so influenced. We maintain, therefore, when a number of men are summoned, and twelve selected from among them to act as jurymen, these ought to be regarded as incorruptible as the judge, and no change or challenging whatever permitted. We do not for a moment doubt the existence of the evils complained of by our contemporaries; but say rather that our system is itself largely to blame, and tends to augment the evil. The surest and perhaps only remedy for this part of the difficulty is to remove the trial of all cases of any importance away altogether from the locality where the cases occur, thus securing a jury wholly outside the circle of influence or excitement for or against the prisoner, or litigants even in a civil suit.

There is another and still more fruitful cause of failure in securing the ends of justice by the jury system. We do not say with some of our contemporaries, that even lawyers are sometimes guilty of operating outside of the court-room endeavoring to secure a "bar-room, verdict." But we are satisfied that the generally recognized principle among the profession, which maintains that the "counsel should know nothing but the interests of his client" has a greater tendency to defeat the ends of justice, than all the other influences put together. When it is known that the chief aim of the prisoner's counsel is to prove a man innocent when he is guilty,—that the kind of confessional confidence, established between counsel and client gives him this knowledge in most cases—that for the purpose he has in view, he uses the testimony of witnesses exceedingly one-sided or notoriously false, while he makes light of or wholly ignores testimony at least equally reliable on the other side, it is little wonder that jurymen should come to the conclusion, that securing the ends of justice is but a very small matter indeed, in comparison with securing a verdict for the lawyer who displays the greatest ability in this particular line. It is little to be wondered at if the prisoner or the prisoner's friends try to make the kind of witnesses and jurymen required for the end in view. They know that they shall be winked at, if not encouraged by the ambitious pillar of the law, who glories in his scalps, altogether independent of the means by which they may have been obtained. True, the opposing counsel may try to defeat his stratagems or expose his fallacies, but the schemes of the one are about on a par with those of the other, so that the whole business tends unavoidally to lower our ideas of the dignity of law, and the sacred character of truth and justice, till at length, by familiarity with such degrading influences, jurymen descend to the recognition and practice of principles approved by their betters. We have no fears whatever for the purity and usefulness of our juries. Their position and importance will be fully established, when it is shown in our law courts, that the end aimed at is justice, and not verdicts and lawyers' fees.

We therefore submit the foregoing observations to the judgment of our readers, believing that both the evil and its remedy, lie very nearly in the line pointed out.

An influential deputation of medical men, headed by Dr. Caniff, waited on Attorney General Mowat the other day, to urge upon him the propriety of establishing a Provincial Board of Health. It was stated that to carry out the objects sought in the bill proposed to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature, a grant of $5,000 would be required. Mr. Mowat seemed to be favourable to the proposition.

Mr. Bodwell, Canal Superintendant, is to be removed to British Columbia. His position will be filled by a gentleman from Prescott. The Government first tried to ruin Mr. Bodwell by trumped-up charges, and now when they found that could not be done, they send him off out of the way to make room for some favourite. This persistent persecution of a thoroughly capable and competent officer is simply disgraceful.

The writ for the North Lanark election was issued on Friday. The nomination will be held on the 15th and polling on the 22nd.

A Western editor says one hug is worth a dozen love letters, and they cannot be introduced as evidence in a breach of promise suit.

SANFORD'S

RADICAL CURE

For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject to that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 53 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, nuring all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it. . . .

In September, 1876, I began the use of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest to this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man who found out this remedy. SAMUEL SPINNEY.

The York Road.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

Sir,—Permit me through your paper to offer a few facts for the people.

I was surprised the other day while in conversation with Mr. Wm. Ramsay, of Eramosa, when he told me he had not brought a load of wheat to Guelph for seven years, and did not intend to bring any until the York Road was fixed better, though he had five hundred bushels of wheat to sell this year; and as for the Market By-law the City could not prosper much until it was amended. Just allow me to state a few facts regarding it. The other day a farmer from Erin brought in a load of potatoes to the market, a dealer came up to him about nine o'clock and said he would like to buy his load of potatoes, but dare not. The farmer stopped on the market until the proper time, but when the dealer came again the potatoes were all frozen, therefore he could not sell them. Now, some people have an idea they would pay more for their butter and provisions if the by-law was amended, but after careful consideration I think they would not. For instance, a store keeper informed me the othdr day that a party sold butter on the market for 20 cents, and then sold the balance to him for 18 cents. The dealer sold it at 19 cents and made one cent profit, and his customers save one cent per lb. by dealing at his store instead of going to the market, The competition is so keen between dealers in the City that there is no danger of any of them charging too much for profit, and it would remove a great stumbling block out of the farmer's way to hvve the by-law amended, then their butter would not melt in the summer nor their potatoes freeze in the winter.

If our city ever expects to prosper it must be by using the farmers' decently; it is for the benefit of every citizen to get the farmers to deal with us. Just think of a farmer's wife or daughter sitting on a load of potatoes on a cold day for three or four hours after driving ten or fifteen miles, as many of them have to do, and then ask yourselves, where is your generosity.

Yours truly, WALTER LAING.

Guelph, January 3, 1880.

A large number of workingmen have been thrown out of employment by the stoppage of the work for the season on the Lachine Canal. In former years, contractors were able to carry on the work during the entire season; and the Montreal Post, which makes the announcement, cannot see why the Government should not so arrange matters as to cause the works to be continued this year.

A few days ago it was reported that a man named Thomas Mulligan was burnt to death in his shanty in Compton county, Quebec. It now appears that he was murdered by a neighbor for the trifling sum of money he possessed, and that the body was burnt to hide the crime. The murderer, a man named William Gray, has been arrested and the money of his victim found in his house. His wife is also under arrest as an accomplice.

Burned to Death.—An old and much respected gentleman named McKay, who lived about seven miles north of Dublin in the township of McKillop, was burned to death on Thursday. The other members of the household were away from home, the old gentleman being left in charge of the place. During the day he went to the barn to attend to some cattle. When he came back the house was in flames, and it is supposed he entered to remove some valuables, and being rheumatic and rather helpless, was unable to return, and perished in the flames.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." m4dw9md-

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Sold by all druggists.

THE ROVER OF THE SEAS;

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVI.

A LAPSE OF TIME AND A CHANGE OF SCENE—SAD EVENTS AT MARSTON GRANGE—AN HONEST LAWYER COMES INTO VIEW.

Of course, so long as he lived the wife and daughter of Adam Borland were his special care. Another house was found for the new gardener, and they were allowed to remain in the cottage. A weekly sum was also allowed them, equal to half of Adam's wage, and this was sufficient to support them in the plain, humble style to which they had been accustomed.

Mr. Bruce, feeling that he would soon be called on to follow his beloved wife to the tomb, was naturally anxious about the future of his two children — Orwell and May. Orwell was now fully sixteen years of age, while May was seven years younger and of a delicate constitution. As the children had no near relatives, it behoved him to be the more particular in making provision for their care and protection during the years of their minority. His solicitor, Mr. Bishop, being a man in whom he could not put thorough confidence, was by his will appointed executor and trustee, along with Mr. Langton, a neighboring proprietor, whose trust was to continue until Orwell reached the age of twenty-one. The latter was sent to complete his education at the University of Glasgow, and a governess was found for May in the person of Miss Elliott, a young lady whose high recommendations were more than borne out by the manner in which she filled the important position. Shortly after these various, but necessary dispositions were made, Mr. Bruce succumbed to the weakness which had been growing on him, and death came with gentle hand to close his earthly pilgrimage.

To the last Mr. Bruce showed every manner of kindness to Mrs. Borland. Besides the allowance made for her support, Agnes was brought to the Grange as a companion and attendant to May, and to receive nearly the same education from Miss Elliott. The executors were instructed to continue the allowance to the widow, and Mr. Bruce charged Orwell when he became master of the property to perpetuate his bounty.

Seven years had passed from the death of Mr. Bruce, and Orwell was now the proprietor of the Grange, but had seldom resided there since he came into the inheritance, his inclination being to travel in companionship with Reuben Langton, the only son of his guardian, who, being two years his senior, had obtained great influence over him, and had little difficulty in controlling his motions or directing his pleasures, except when at certain intervals young Bruce paid periodical visits to the Grange to stay a few weeks with his sister, and enjoy shooting on his own property, the management of which he had left in the hands of Mr. Bishop, the youth being wise enough to know that with this gentleman his interests were perfectly safe.

These, then, were the changes which had taken place during the seventeen years from the opening of our story, and the reader has now an understanding of the situation and position of the personages who are to play a part in the incidents now to be related. Having given the necessary information, we return to Mrs. Borland, whom we found in her widow's garments, seated alone in the kitchen of the cottage.

It was a warm summer afternoon towards the end of July, and the only sound that broke the stillness was the hum and murmur of the bees as they rifled of their sweets the roses which clustered round the open casement. The park without lay in a shimmer of hazy, sultry heat; the cattle had gathered under the trees to enjoy their shade, for hardly a breath stirred the leaves, and the ardent sun, though declining towards the west, was still high enough in the heavens to scatter his fierce beams on the landscape.

As Mrs. Borland sat at her knitting the occupation did not prevent her thoughts from wandering with subdued sadness along the pathway of the past. Ten years had indeed mitigated the poignancy of her grief, and she could now think of her loss with calmness and resignation. Though the desire of her eyes had been removed with a stroke, and darkness and desolation had fallen on her life, the severity of the blow had been broken in various ways. Nothing indeed could compensate for the loss of her beloved Adam, but she had not been made to feel the pinching poverty which often comes with widowhood to add to its bitterness and intensify its realization; she had not been left utterly friendless or helpless to fight a hard battle with the world, she had experienced the fulfilment of the Scripture promise, "Thy bread shall be given thee, thy water shall be sure," and she had always enjoyed much comfort in the society and affection of Agnes, who, as she grew to womanhood, proved a stay and solace to her mother's heart. Possessing in a large measure the excellent qualities of both her parents, Agnes had ever been dutiful and obedient, while the superior education she had received from Mrs. Elliott and the sweet companionship of May Bruce had added a sense and refinement to her nature which gave her mother unbounded satisfaction, and filled her soul with quiet hope and peace. Full of health and the cheerfulness which health gives, Agnes had always manifested a lively disposition, but never anything approaching to that giddiness of youth which often gives a watchful parent great anxiety. She seemed to have inherited her father's solidity of mind and patient devotion to duty, and much acquired knowledge having been added to natural intelligence, she possessed strength of will, discretion and judgment, as well as a warm heart and keen sensibility—qualities well fitted to make her in the real sense of the word a companion and counsellor to her widowed mother.

Mrs. Borland's silent thoughts, therefore, were far from being gloomy or despondent. If she had been chastened she had also been comforted—into the bitterness of her cup of sorrow sweetness had been poured, and she was not one to overlook the blessings she had received, or be ungrateful for them. Though a little over forty and bearing the impress of the trial she had endured, she was comely still, and had it been possible for her to forget the husband of her youth so far as to enter again into the marriage relation, she might now have been a good man's wife, for David Ramsay, who had succeeded Adam in the management of the Grange garden, had seen her worth, and offered her his honest love. Nor did she despise that love, or scorn the offerer. If she could have been a wife again none would have gained her esteem more readily than David Ramsay, or more fitly taken the place which death had made vacant; but with words of grateful appreciation she told her honest-hearted wooer that nothing would tempt her to be, even seemingly unfaithful to Adam's name, or place another human being between her and his sacred grave. David received her reply with quiet submission, honoured her for her faithfulness, and became her steadfast friend. He it was who tended the flowers round the cottage, and kept the little garden in that state of neatness in which Adam had left it. He spoke no more to her of marriage, but having failed to obtain her for his wife, it seemed as if he cared not to seek any other. If she was true to her dead Adam, he would be true to her in his own way, and to that ideal of woman which she alone had formed and fixed in his soul.

JAMES HUDSON.

Nearly Lost in a Manitoba Blizzard.

A letter from Portage La Prairie to the Winnipeg Free Press, dated December 12, gives the following thrilling account of an adventure in the late snow storm on the plains of Manitoba :—

Wednesday's storm was really a very dreadful one. The people who did attempt to brave the hurricane of wind and blinding snow repented before they had gone far. Hon. Attorney-General Walker in attempting to reach the Portage nearly lost his life. It seems that he was some six miles from this place, when his horse by plunging through the snow drifts, nearly upset the cutter, and eventually broke it. In the blinding, cutting storm, the hon. gentleman was forced to attempt to remedy the break, but in doing so he became numbed with the cold. Failing get the break repaired, he attempted to put some articles which had been thrown out of the cutter, into it again. To do this he had to leave the horse alone for a second or so. The poor animal, finding its master gone, made a dart forward, cleared itself out of the drift, and left the damaged cutter behind it in the bank of snow. The Attorney-General managed to chase the horse for some distance, until the heavy drifts so impeded his and the animal's progress that it was captured near a fence. Mr. Walker was by this time so exhausted that he was barely able to get upon the horse's back. For some two hours he battled with the blinding snow. At last, speechless, and almost frozen to death, he arrived near a house, and sank down before the door of it, too much worn out and too weak to even knock. He says he had an idea that if he could get his feet up against the door he would make an effort to rouse some one to hear him, but he had no power to even do this. Fortunately for him, the owner of the house, Mr. McDonald, happened to come outside of the door a short time after, and found Mr. Walker before his house. Mr. McDonald at once had the prostrate gentleman carried into the house and wrapped in blankets, and after about an hour's time Mr. Walker says he began to understand that he was a living man. His escape was wonderful, and thanks are due to Mr. McDonald for the expeditious manner in which he did all he could for the sufferer.

Judge Elliott at the interim sessions, London, the other day sentenced Henry Jackson to three years' imprisonment in the penitentiary on three convictions of horse stealing. The father and brother of this prisoner are at present serving terms in the penitentiary for counterfeiting.

Explanation of a Police Court Case.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Will you allow me a space in your paper, as I think it is my duty to explain myself in connection with the case of Cunningham, which came before the Police Magistrate on Saturday.

I was coming down Wyndham street on Friday night, and saw a man come out of the Western Hotel and fall down. Mr. Taylor, turnkey of the gaol, came up, and I said it was a pity to let the man lie there and freeze. Mr. Taylor went up to him, told him to get up and go with him, and he would find him a night's lodgings. He got up, and Mr. Taylor took him to the Police Station. I went with him and stood at the door till he came out. He said there was no one in, and I asked then might I go and find a policeman. I went and found one, and the case was heard on Saturday. When the charge was made against Cunningham I simply said he was not a rioter, as far as I knew, that he was a stranger to me, and that in having anything to do with him I was simply acting a humane part.

I am a stranger as regards the laws of the Police Court, but I have been taught to tell the truth, and the truth shall make me free in spite of the Chief.

I am yours truly, WM. SLATER.

Guelph, Jan. 5, 1880.

Mr. Kingsford, Chief Inspector of Western Harbors, has been dismissed by the Department of Public Works.

Local News.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Fresh easterly to southerly winds, partly cloudly, mild weather.

THE Georgetown Herald says Rev. J. Coutts of Guelph, delivered an excellent address at the tea meeting in the Baptist Church, Georgetown, New Year's night.

POLICE STATISTICS.—Last year there were 705 persons, including tramps, who found quarters in the police cells. The total number of arrests and persons summoned was 455.

CITY COUNCIL.—On account of the elections taking place to-day there will be no meeting of the Council to-night. An adjourned meeting will be held to-morrow evening.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—There are twenty-eight patients in this Institution at present. Last week the number increased to thirty-two, but a number were discharged this morning.

THE Dominion Pacific Herald of British Columbia has the following item: Two firms of Salem, county of Wellington, Ont. are sending one, a double carriage, and the other a set of silver mounted harness to a customer at Natal, South Africa.

DUBLIN ST. METHODIST CHURCH.—At the close of the Covenant Service in this church last evening, a reception service was held, when fourteen persons were admitted into the membership, and received the right hand of fellowship.

MR. GEORGE BALKWELL.—At a meeting held in Rapid City, North-West Territory, on the 12th ult., Mr. George Balkwell, late of Guelph, was appointed one of a committee to petition the Government praying for railway communication between Rapid City and Winnipeg.

THE children's Christmas service was held in St. George's Church yesterday, at 3 p.m. There was between four and five hundred children, of all ages, present, and a number of adults. Several beautiful quaint old carols were sung accompanied by the organ, and Canon Dixon addressed the children in an interesting manner, illustrating his subject by striking anecdotes.

THE RAINSTORM.—The heavy rainstorm of Saturday has completely destroyed the sleighing. No damage by flooding the city has been reported. Both the rivers have been flooded considerably. The flats, on the west side of the Dundas Road, are flooded, the river overflowing at that place. The frost of Sunday night has made excellent skating on Allan's dam. Reports from different places show that the rainstorm was general in Ontario.

CANTATA OF SANTA CLAUS.—This Cantata was repeated by St. Andrew's Church Sunday School in the Caledonian Rooms on Saturday evening. Owing to the unpropitious weather and the bad condition of the streets there were not many young people in attendance, and but half of the seats were occupied. The entertainment, as on the previous evening, passed off satisfactorily. It is to be hoped that the Cantata will be repeated at some future time in a larger hall. The way in which it was presented doubtless would insure for the school a full house if repeated.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—This week has been set aside to be observed as a week for prayer throughout Canada. The meeting in Guelph this evening will be held in the Norfolk-street Methodist Church. The subject for discussion is "Thanksgiving" and will be discussed by Rev. Messrs. McGregor and Ball. Thanks will be returned for the blessings of past years; life health, guidance, discipline instruction; for redemption through Jesus Christ, the love of the father, the grace of the Holy Spirit; for the enjoyment of the Communion of Saints, especially at the recent general Christian Conference in Switzerland; for the success which crowned efforts during the year to relieve Christians from imprisonment and from laws restricting religious liberty, for all the promises of future strength in duty, support in sorrow and temptation, peace in life and death.

G. C. T. CLUB.—At Sunday's meeting, Mr. Wilkie gave notice of meetings in future to be held in the old hall, and spoke of last year's work, and said though no great results could be seen yet, good had been accomplished. This he knew from conversations with those benefitted. He then called on Mr. Smith, who said he had been a tetotaler four months, and wished he had been so all his life. He had read in the paper that $50,000 a year was spent in drink alone in this city. He thought it would be better to give this to the poor. Mr. Williams was then introduced, and said he was glad to hear Mr. Smith's experience, and thought these did often more good than a temperance lecture. They could not be gainsayed. He was glad to see some intelligent persons of the city interested in this cause, but he wished more would come forward. Parliament had no power to produce good times or cause a general depression. Neglect of personal economy had much to do with it, but nine-tenths was caused by drink. Different illustrations were brought forward to prove this. Numbers, he knew, had been ruined by drink.

Attempted Suicide.

An Intoxicated Woman tries to Hang Herself.

Mrs. Carey, a notorious character, who has been before the police magistrate a great many times on charges of drunkenness and vagrancy, tried to commit suicide by hanging herself while in the police cells last Sunday night.

The woman is about 43 years of age. She lives with a Mrs. Cassey, and her two daughters, who are quite respectable looking, in a shanty on the south side of the Eramosa river, and west of the Dundas Road.

About 11:45 o'clock last night Mrs. Carey was found by P. C. Hammond lying in a drunken state at a stable on Macdonnell street in rear of the Queen's Hotel. He took her in charge to the police station. When she had been locked up a short time the policeman heard strange sounds issuing from the cells, but did not pay any heed to them at first. After a time he became suspicious that something was wrong and on going to the cell found Mrs. Carey suspended in the air by a woollen scarf, one end of which was tied around her neck, the other end being fastened to the iron bars surrounding the cell. P. C. Hammond had not the key to open the door of the cell, but he wasted no time in deciding what to do, and from the outside cut the scarf. The woman fell to the floor in an exhausted condition, and the policeman thinks that if she had hanged a few moments longer her design would have been accomplished.

This forenoon she appeared before the Police Magistrate on a charge of vagrancy, and was sentenced to three months' imprisonment at the gaol.

FIRE IN HOLLIN.—The barn belonging to George Lunstead, third Concession of Maryborough, was consumed by fire, together with its contents, last Friday night. The loss, which is heavy, is covered by insurance.

THE CIVIC ELECTIONS.—There is little or no stir to-day in consequence of the civic elections. The polls opened at nine o'clock and will close at five o'clock. The result of the balloting will be published in full to-morrow.

ARM BROKEN.—On Saturday afternoon while Mr. Thomas O'Callighan was proceeding along Waterloo Avenue, he fell and sustained a fracture of the left fore-arm. He was removed to his home and is progressing favourably.

PRESENTATION.—A few evenings ago, the members of the Bible class, in connection with the Baptist Sabbath School, presented their leader, the Rev. Wm. Pickard, with a magnificent arm chair, with an extension connection, to be drawn out, or otherwise at pleasure. Also a desk attachment adjustable to any desirable position. The gift is a very handsome one indeed, and most highly appreciated by the recipient.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.—A six year old son of Mr. Richard Fosbury narrowly escaped drowning on New Year's day. The lad's sister aged 11 years was skating on the Speed River, near the axle works, when the little fellow attempted to run after her on the ice. Before he had taken many steps he went through the air hole into the water. The girl went to the edge of the hole and bravely held on to her little brother until some boys in the neighborhood came to her assistance. The lad was removed to his home in an exhausted condition.

POLICE COURT FINES AND FEES.—Col. Denison, the Police Magistrate of Toronto, sent a communication to the Board of Aldermen of that city on Monday night, informing them "that as his contention for the fees of the Police Court had been decided against him in the Court of Appeal, he had paid the sum of fifty cents, recently detained by him in order that the question might be tested, into the city treasury; and that, as the Court had decided that neither the city nor the Magistrate had a right to the fees, he had decided to impose no fines or fees in the future, except those paid to the Clerk of the Court." This decision applies equally to the Police Magistrates in other towns and cities in Ontario.

LIQUOR CASE.—License Inspector Goodfellow this morning charged Thomas Holliday at the Police Court with selling liquor in quantities under five gallons, at his brewery. Isaac Mills, for the prosecution, testified to having bought less than that quantity from Mr. Holliday on the 16th ult. Mr. McLean, of the Inland Revenue Department, also gave evidence for the prosecution. A number of witnesses were examined for the defence. At the conclusion of the evidence, the defence set up that, as defendant held a licence under the Dominion Government, he could not be tried for an offence under the Ontario Statute. On this ground the Police Magistrate reserved decision till Wednesday. Mr. Goodfellow for the prosecution; Mr. E. F. B. Johnson for the defence.

The Hamilton Times is sorry to see that even our industrious Indian population have become tired of the new order of things, which has caused every necessary of life to be increased in price. The latest announcement of additions to the exodus from those parts is that Chiefs John Hill and Wm. Jacobs with a party of sixteen Cayugas of both sexes, have left the Grand River Reserve to take up their residence in the Indian Territory, U. S.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Gen. Wolseley telegraphed Sir Bartle Frere not to believe the alarming reports from the Transvaal. He says there was great want of unanimity among the Boers at a recent meeting, at which a resolution was adopted in favour of maintaining a demand for the independence of the Transvaal.

In consequence of the revolutionary agitation having extended to the troops, the Russian military authorities have ordered that henceforth no regiment shall be stationed in the district where it was recruited.

The cattle plague continues to make great ravages in the island of Mauritius, and recently it has attacked the deer.

It is reported that Col. Stanley is writing a biography of his father, the late Lord Derby, and that Lord Beaconsfield will write the preface.

The British public are slow to believe in the success of Edison's electric light discoveries. They have no faith in Edison, but an unbounded faith in coal gas. The timid ones who offer gas stocks meet with ready purchasers.

Drift ice in the Seine has become so heavy as to cause great damage, and much alarm is felt.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 4.—A terrible famine prevails in the districts of Baskaleh and Bayazid, in Armenia. The authorities are helpless, and it is feared the famine will become general in the eastern frontier of Turkey.

The Duchess of Marlborough's Irish relief fund makes slow progress. Several liberal subscriptions have been made, but the total amount is only £8,000. The emigration movement is again being urged, and the agents of American railways have gone into the distressed districts in force to promote it.

Rev. Chas. H. Spurgeon writes from Mentone that the nation should listen to Gladstone as a call to make righteousness and peace their guide instead of blustering. He declares that England is wantonly trampling Afghanistan under foot, and warns Englishmen that under such tutors as the Times they are becoming a nation of demons. The whole letter is an impassioned appeal to the Christian sentiment of the country.

The South African cable has been opened amid much enthusiasm. The event is regarded as consolidating the results of the late campaign in Zululand. The Queen has sent her congratulations to Sir Bartle Frere, Sir Garnet Wolseley, and the Sultan of Zanzibar.

Many English noblemen are reducing their rents—the Dukes of Richmond and Norfolk to the extent of 10 to 20 per cent.

On the occasion of celebrating his seventieth birthday Mr. Gladstone made another vigorous attack on the Conservative policy at home and abroad.

Mr. William Mullin, of South Dumfries, died at the age of 74 years last week. He was for many years a member of the Brant County Council, and was at one time Warden.

The Governor-General has presented a medal to be competed for by the students of Galt Collegiate Institute.

Montreal has a population about double that of Toronto, yet its police force costs but $115,000 per annum, as against about $130,000 for the cost of the Toronto force, inclusive of the cost of maintaining the police stations and interest on the monies sunk in their construction.

It appears the receipts at Oswego of barley from Canada have amounted to 3,834,000 bushels in 1879, against 2,844,000 in 1878, 3,915,000 in 1877, and 3,014,000 in 1876.

The Western Iron Association of Pittsburg have decided to advance card rates on bar iron to 3½ cents per pound on Monday, cut nails have also advanced.

A movement is on foot in Hamilton to have a new Customs House and Post Office erected. At a meeting of citizens held last week it was decided to petition the Government for the erection of those buildings.

New Year's calling is reported much less general than on previous New Year's in Montreal. In many cases it was limited to relatives and in many others no refreshments were offered.

A large number of workingmen have been thrown out of employment by the stoppage of the work for the season on the Lachine Canal. In former years, contractors were able to carry on the work during the entire season; and the Montreal Post, which makes the announcement, cannot see why the Government should not so arrange matters as to cause the works to be continued this year.

With a population of 3,000 souls all told, Paris, Ont., must be said to be pretty well supplied in the mercantile line. There are 10 dealers in groceries, 7 in dry goods, 2 in hardware, 3 in fancy goods, 4 confectioners, 5 bakers, 2 dealers in stoves, 4 in tinware, 4 druggists, 3 stationers and book sellers, 4 clothiers, 7 dealers in boots and shoes, 3 in harness and 3 in jewellery. Not much room for new comers.

The Hamilton Times is sorry to see that even our industrious Indian population have become tired of the new order of things, which has caused every necessary of life to be increased in price. The latest announcement of additions to the exodus from those parts is that Chiefs John Hill and Wm. Jacobs with a party of sixteen Cayugas of both sexes, have left the Grand River Reserve to take up their residences in the Indian Territory, U. S.

THE WINCHESTER MURDER.—Mrs. Robert Brown's case was, according to adjournment, brought up on Saturday before the Bench of Magistrates, and several witnesses sworn. The case was re-opened at 10 a. m., the same Magistrates presiding, and the same lawyers for and against. About ten witnesses were examined, amongst whom were Winnie Brown, the youngest child of the ill-fated family, and Mrs. Clarke Brown. Nothing new or strange was elicited, nor was anything brought out upon which to find a conviction against Mrs. Robert Brown. She was accordingly discharged.

PARNELL'S VISIT.—Parnell and Dillon received a delegation from Boston on Saturday; also the men of the County of Meath, who presented them with addresses. Parnell replied briefly, after which he held a reception in the parlor of the hotel. He visits Boston on the 12th. Six thousand people assembled in Madison Square Garden on Sunday night. Only a few of those invited occupied seats on the platform. Most of the London papers publish special despatches respecting Parnell's arrival in New New York, describing the enthusiasm as extremely moderate. Editorial satisfaction is expressed at American good sense.

What Has Been Done in Eighty Years.

(From the N. Y. Tribune.)

A new year dawns; may it be a Happy New Year to all! A new decade begins; may it prove as full of prosperity to all the nations as the decade that is dead has been of disaster. The last fifth of the nineteenth century opens, but who can guess what marvels and blessings this miracle-working century still has in store for us?

Eighty years ago, Whitney's cotton-gin had barely begun to work, and the spinning mule was not yet born. But these two have clothed the world. Eighty years ago, men were dreaming of the steamship, which Fulton invented in 1807. His thought has brought China nearer to us than England was when he built his first boat. Frauenhofer taught the young century spectrum analysis, and Fresnel the polarization of light, and all the arts and sciences now owe them a debt beyond measure. Eighty years ago, Jenner was stoutly battling against derision for the idea which, when the century was still young, subdued its first great scourge. To-day there is scarcely a science or useful art that is not constantly indebted to photography, but when the century was born the photograph, which Arago rightly styled "a gift to the whole world," was unknown. Iron bands have almost annihilated distance, and a capital far exceeding the entire wealth of any nation in 1880 has been expended in making this the age of railways, but the century was already thirty years old when the first railroad was opened. The use of anthracite in making iron, and the Bessemer process for making steel, have each revolutionized the world; modern civilization would be simply an impossibility if iron could still be treated only in the ways known when this century was young. The sewing machine has brought blessing and comfort to the mother of every household, and has saved much to every wearer of clothes, and yet the oldest patent of that nature is not forty years old. Into the cottage of the humblest and poorest, the oil-well has sent light, but petroleum is one of the latest children of the century. And the grandest of them all, the telegraph, which enables London and New York to whisper to each other day and night, and bring news of the industry and the commerce of the whole world to the breakfast-table of every merchant or workman or employer, has been at work only thirty-six years. Of its thousand appliances and modifications, each a miracle, the signal service and the telephone are among the latest and most marvellous. But who can guess what the new year may bring forth? It is no longer true that "Science moves but slowly, creeping on from point to point." For centuries science crept; then it marched, then ran, and now it flies on the wings of the lightning. A new year now means a new world. All our modes of life, of industry, or of enjoyment are revolutionized as this wonder-working century sends forth its years, each with its magic wand.

Other changes of a political or social character are to be expected, as great changes have already been witnessed during the century. The slave trade has been abolished in England, serfdom by Russia, and slavery by the United States. The mightiest conqueror of history has been sent to St. Helena, the mightiest Empire in Europe has been transformed into a Republic, and an Empire more powerful still has been formed by the welding of the German States. But there is this difference between the changes wrought by science and invention, and those of any other character; progress in all other directions is irregular, and, to the human eye at least, uncertain in its rate. But in science each step begets other steps; each achievement clears the path for others in great number; and progress is steady, cumulative, and continually accelerated. We cannot know what wonders invention may bring us within the coming year or twenty years. But looking at the past, and realizing what vast strides the human intellect is now making in the conquest of Nature's forces, we may be sure that every year of the twenty which we begin this day will bring us some marvellous and revolutionary change. Every hour adds to the resources of the race, to the powers available for ministering to human happiness, and to the weapons with which the work of conquest is to be pushed thenceforward.

To live in such an age is a blessing or which we may give thanks with joy. To enter upon a new year, in such an age, is to be present at the birth of a new world, and to have offered to each of us a part in the creative work.

THE TAY BRIDGE DISASTER

The Tay bridge disaster is still earnestly discussed. The investigation is steadily progressing. How many lives were lost is still a matter of uncertainty. Only one thing alone is sure, that no man escaped from the Frith of Tay. Edgar Gilkes, builder of the bridge, telegraphs:—

Present evidences indicate that some other forces than tempest were acting with it and caused the destruction of the girder. The velocity of the wind as registered at Dundee on the night of the disaster was 42. This amount of pressure was quite sufficient to overset the train and guard rails on the windward side, and could not prevent the upper part of the carriages from striking the girders. This might cause damage by destroying that unity of the leeward girder, and another violent gust would bring about complete ruin.

The Afghan War.

A speck of good tidings has been flashed from Cabul. Nobody now doubts that Roberts can hold his own, but the attitude of Russia is threatening. Confirmation is being brought of the news that Shere Ali's brother has taken refuge at Tashkend. The preparations for the march to Merv in the spring are being rapidly pushed forward. Persia is believed to be in league with Kaufmann.

The situation in Central Asia is fraught with alarm for Great Britain, and there are uneasy war rumours in the Clubs. Russia is known to be threatening the Chinese frontier, and Lord Beaconsfield's Government is constantly on the alert against aggression from that quarter.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 4.—The Viceroy at State banquet said:—The new year opened under happier auspices than the old one, but the soldier's work in Afghanistan could not be relaxed until the object sought is completely attained. That object was not the acquisition of territory, but the securing the future peace of India and solid guarantees for good behavior from India's Afghan neighbours.

Daily Mercury.

MONDAY EV'G, JANUARY5 1880.

The Annexation Talk.

Some little excitement has been caused in political circles by the formation of a club in Montreal, whose object is to discuss among other things annexation and independence. The N. Y. Herald, eager for some new sensation, took advantage of the movement, and gave currency to the opinions of several public men on the subject, including Mr. McMaster, the member for Glengarry. That gentleman seems to have given his mind pretty freely to the Herald's representative, and the conversation was duly reproduced in its columns. It created no small excitement when published, and Mr. McMaster, finding that he was getting himself into a tight place, has shown great anxiety to explain. He has written a letter in which he denies that he advocates independence or annexation, but wants the future to be considered. He complains of misrepresentation by the New York Herald. Mr. McMaster's position at this time is very much like that he filled several years ago, when a national party held meetings in the Mechanics' hall. He rapidly rose to the head of that concern, but the members would not be bulldozed, he having been called to time by the Gazette, and so the affair collapsed. He has got himself into a nice fix, and it will take him some time to get out of it.

As a set off to this talk about annexation, we may refer to some home truths recently uttered by the Buffalo Express about the growth of Imperialism in the States. It laughs at the attempt to manufacture an annexation sentiment in Canada, and declares there is a far deeper and more extended feeling in favour of Imperialism, or at all events of the abolition of manhood suffrage, among the "cultured" people—the upper ten and the financial circles of the large Eastern cities of the States—than ever existed in Canada in favour of independence or annexation. Even New York, whose newspapers are supposed mainly to guide the political sentiment of the Union, is largely imbued with a monarchical spirit, and anti-republican ideas are commonly expressed by "society" people at Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other centres of politics and advanced thought.

Dufferin Nomination.

No less than thirteen candidates were nominated in Dufferin electoral division—four Reformers and nine Conservatives. There is considerable feeling exhibited among the candidates who were nominated for the County. The nominations in the Conservative interest was F. C. Stewart, Dr. Barr, J. McGhee, R. Henderson, W. Jelly, P. M. Barker, D. L. Scott, and Jas. Allen, and they were unable to come to any arrangement, Mr. Stewart being the only one who resigned. The other names all appear on the ballot. In the Reform interest, there was Thos. Jull, W. Parsons, Jos. Pattullo, C. Graham, and J. J. Middleton, but all left the field but Mr. Jull.

A DRAWBACK of one cent per pound on all malt imported into and used in manufacture in Canada is announced.

THE total vote polled in the Provencher election was:—Royal, Conservative, 652; Molloy, Independent, 209; Hamilton, Independent, 121.

IT seems that Mr. William Ellis, of Prescott, a practical engineer, and a staunch Tory, has been appointed Superintendent of the Welland Canal, in room of Mr. Bodwell, who gets an office on the Pacific Railway.

THE canvass in North Lanark does not appear to be at all satisfactory to the Tories there, since so many of their number are coming every day to Ottawa and holding interviews with members of the Government.

THE Journal of Commerce says "the teachings of 1879 are: light stocks, proportioned to capital; limited and careful extension of credit, and the smallest possible interest account of 1880." We hope the lesson will not be forgotten.

OTTAWA Free Press:—Of one thing there is absolute certainty, and that is that both the Rag Baby and Independence will be adopted gladly by the party in office, should they think that by doing so they might secure a prolonged tenure of power.

ON Friday the firm of Messrs. E. Hooper & Sons, Napanee, suspended. The assets and liabilities are not yet known. The suspension was hurried on no doubt owing to the large deficit in the County Treasury, of which the head of the firm, Mr. Edmund Hooper, M.P., but recently resigned the office during the examination of the books and documents.

SEAFORTH Expositor: A contemporary very correctly remarks: It is rather a striking anomaly that bankrupt members of Parliment should be allowed to sit in the House of Commons and make laws on bankruptcy. Yet this anomaly actually exists in Canada. It may possibly be contended that a man who has taken advantage of the Insolvent Act and paid twenty or thirty cents on the dollar, is in a better position to judge of the merits and demerits of the Act than one who has had no such experience. But it is a question if the experience thus acquired is of the best kind, for there is experience that may be turned to bad account, as well as experience that may be turned to good.

IT is now generally known that at the late Cabinet meeting in Montreal the appointment of Chauveau to the Bench of the Quebec Police Court was resolved upon. Mr. Lynch strongly objected to the nomination, but was informed that the member for Rimouski would hold the office for a few months only, and would be appointed Sheriff of Quebec, vice Hon. Charles Alleyn to be superannuated. The appointment of this individual will be one of the grossest outrages ever attempted upon public opinion in this community.

THE Hamilton Times says:—"We learn with the most sincere regret that a reduction of wages in the moulding shops in the city has been determined upon. It is understood that it is partially necessitated by the state of trade, and partly by the friction of the tariff, which is galling to every manufacturer in iron in Canada. The tax of $2 per ton on pig iron, the tax on coal of 50 cents per ton, with duties on every other article which enters into castings, or the goods which they help to make up, form a dreadful drag on the manufacturer, who is compelled to produce cheaply if he is to live in face of the competition by which he is met. The tariff is the source of no end of trouble. It is assisting only a chosen few who are monopolists. The remainder are fast in its jaws, and are worried beyond endurance. At a time like this a reduction of wages is a calamity, but it seems it must be submitted to, as there is no help for it as matters are at present situated through the manipulation of the Ottawa Government."

A Young Lady Shoots her and then Herself.

ROCHESTER, Jan. 3.—A terrible tragedy at Lyons, N. Y., was committed by Miss Frankie Hovey between one and two o'clock this afternoon. After mailing letters to friends in Lyons and Rochester, Frankie went to her father's hat store on Canal-street. She caressed him where he sat in his chair, and waited till the clerks had all gone to dinner; then, putting a pistol to her father's right temple, she fired, the ball lodging in the brain, and killing him in a few seconds. When the dead father was found by one of Frankie's brothers, her muff in the chair indicatrd that she had done the deed, and ascending the stairs they found her lying on the floor with a hand-mirror in her left hand and a pistol in the other. She had reloaded the single barrel of the weapon to take her own life after her father's death, and held the mirror so that she might shoot herself in exactly the same fatal spot as she had shot her father. The bullet entered her brain, and she cannot live till morning. Ever since her lover and affianced committed suicide in Louisiana recently she has been regarded as a monomaniac.

The Georgtown Herald advocates the establishment of a Mechanics' Institute in that place, and invites discussion on the subject.

The Maine Republicans regard the answers to the Supreme Court of Governor Garcelon's questions as a positive triumph to their cause.

The German Admiralty is considering the advisability of blowing up the sunken ironclad Grosser Kurfurst, all attempts to raise her having failed.

The man who will toss a three-cent piece into a contribution plate, and endeavor to make it jingle like a dime, is the man to watch in a horse trade.

Dr. Turner, of Baltimore, near Cobourg, has eloped with a farmers' wife. The Doctor was Treasurer of the School Board and left with $500 of the School funds.

The Hamilton Tool Company, of Hamilton, has been attached by Messrs. Burrows, Stewart & Milne of that city. The amount of the liabilities is not yet known.

One of the tenant farmers who visited Canada has written Mr. Prittie to know on what terms he would take a party of emigrants from Quebec to Manitoba in the spring.

Mr. Thomas Greenway, M. P. P., intends taking the necessary steps towards taking out in the spring a colony of settlers from the western section of Ontario to locate in the Rock Lake district.

Five of the passengers and six of the crew of the lost steamer Borussia were brought to Baltimore by an Italian barque on Saturday morning, having been picked up in an open boat, 250 miles off the Azores.

Mr. Wrenshall of Kingston purposes starting a piano manufactory in Galt, providing sufficient encouragement is given. He proposes renting a building rather than building at present, and to put $5,000 into the business.

A young lady in Chicago, when asked by the officiating minister, "Will you love, honor and obey this man as your husband and be to him a true wife?" said plainly, "Yes, if he does what he promised me financially."

Messrs. Sullivan and Gilbert have produced another opera in New York, "The Pirates of Penzance," and it scored a success that promises to make it even excel "Pinafore" in point of popularity.

On Monday morning a surveying party left Hamilton under the superintence of Mr. John Armstrong, for the purpose of locating a line of railway to connect with the Canada Pacific on Lake Superior. The headquarters will be Mackinac.

The Journal of Commerce says that the negotiations in D. McInnes & Co.'s affairs were brought to a satisfactory conclusion about a week ago, and all concerned received cheques accordingly. The new premises in Hamilton are expected to be soon ready for occupancy.

"I can't trust you," said a rumseller to an impoverished customer. "You should let liquor alone; if you hadn't drank so much of it you might now be riding in your carriage." "And if you hadn't sold it," retorted the victim, you'd have been my driver."

The increase in traffic upon the 806 miles of track of the Great Western railway since the first of August is noteworthy. The growth of traffic is from $1,723,338 in the last five months of 1878 to $1,978,701 in the like period of the present year, an increase of $255,362, or 12.9 per cent.

REMARKABLE CURE OF AN INFLAMED TEAR-DUCT OR PASSAGE TO THE EYE, WITHOUT AN OPERATION.—Mrs. Gibson, who has a large and extensive confectionery and candy store at No. 25 East 42nd street, near the Grand Depot, was about to have a silver tube inserted in the tear passage of her left eye. The enlargement and inflammation were very great. Before submitting to the operation, tried Dr. Giles' Liniment, rubbed in carefully over the inflamed duct. The inflammation disappeared, the passage became clear, and she was, through its power, able to do without a surgical operation. Also took the Liniment internally, a teaspoonful three times a day, in a wine grass of water. Giles' Pills cures Headache.

A reward of $500 is offered by the Canada West Farm Stock Association for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who set fire to their buildings on the 2nd of December and 25th December last.

In a Tight Place.

When Sir Leonard Tilley was in Fredericton, a short time since, he made a speech in reply to an address, and among other things advanced by him, with a view of excusing himself for his share of the high tariff, he urged that protection was necessary in order to punish the Americans and bring them to a sense of their reciprocal duties. In fact, Sir Leonard pictured the effect of our tariff upon the Yankees as something calculated to bring them to a state of misery sufficient to satisfy the strongest anti-annexation prejudice. Farmer Chase, who heard all his old friend, Sir Leonard, had to say, met him next day and after a hearty greeting, observed that "he had heard that speech of his last night," and, said he—

"By gosh, Sir Leonard, you've got them infernal Yankees in a mighty tight place, ain't you?"

"Pretty tight, Chase," replied Sir Leonard, with his knowing smile, and in a tone of modest self-congratulation.

"Yes, Sir Leonard," continued Chase, "and you've got us in a darned sight tighter place, ain't you?"

Sir Leonard was floored, and though he said nothing, he was, no doubt, convinced that the N. P. had not entirely paralyzed "old man Chase."—Chatham, N. B., Advance.

CANADIAN DAIRY PRODUCE.—The success of Canadian exhibitors at the recent International Dairy Fair in New York, is something to be proud of, and should stimulate our dairymen to renewed effort. Professor Willard, in an address at the gathering of the American Agricultural Association, said "The turn in the fall trade will undoubtedly stimulate the extension of business in new districts, especially in Canada, which has become a formidable competitor for English trade. The real prosperity of the American dairymen is not promoted by high prices. Low prices mean a reduction of make in England, and an outlet for increased exportation from America. American cheese makers have made some mistakes in devoting all their energies to one style of product, and in looking forward too exclusively to a foreign market. The home market is the best in the world, if properly supplied with a variety of goods.

A FASHION NOTE.—The Detroit Free Press says: Smugglers display a great deal of ingenuity in the various devices which they invent to successfully convey contraband goods from one country to another, and one of the most ingenious of these schemes was discovered by the "lady investigator" at the Windsor Custom House. Noticing a comely young woman landing from the Victoria ferry boat Wednesday evening, and suspecting something, she politely invited the damsel into her room and proceeded to make an examination. Tied around the waist of the young woman was an article that at first puzzled the inspector. It was made of coarse, thick sheeting, in the shape of a large bag, the lower part divided into six small bags, and the whole very much resembling a modern life preserver. Further investigation showed the small compartments to be filled with tea, which was confiscated by the customs authorities. The chief beauty of this article consisted in its being not only a useful receptacle for the packing of goods, but also of service as an ornamental part of the ordinary female wearing apparel. Arranged as it is, and filled with tea, so as to distribute the weight, and give an evenness of appearance, it makes a very fine bustle, and as such was employed by the fair violater of Her Majesty's revenue laws.

TELEGRAPHING GLADSTONE'S SPEECHES:—On the closing days of the week ending the 6th inst., the members of the telegraph department in Scotland were unusually busy with the transmission of press messages, describing Mr. Gladstone's movements, and reporting his very lengthened addresses. His arrival in Glasgow, and the reception accorded him by the students and the citizens generally on Thursday evening, formed the subject of press messages, extending in all to 16,202 words. Taking into account the combined messages sent by the reporters of the Press Association and Central News to journals throughout the country not specially represented in Glasgow, there were in all 53,919 words delivered throughout England, Scotland and Ireland. On Friday the single messages ran to 81,499 words, implying a total delivery, again taking combinations into account, of 429,008 words. We thus get for the two days a total of 97,701 words sent, equal to about 49 newspaper columns, and 482,927 words delivered.

THE CRAZE FOR LIQUORS.—Speaking of the propensity amongst fashionable ladies to drinking intoxicating liquors, the London World observes—"There is an ingenious novelty in the means of satisfying the craving for drink which I can vouch for. It is—this in all confidence—it is in the form of an opera glass, with the central cylinder enlarged and hollowed for the reception of choice old cognac. To this is attached a nozzle, which can be unscrewed, and a suction pipe inserted, so that the jewelled occupant of a box en evidence can imbibe the liquors for hours unobserved, while affecting attentively to watch the final pirouette of La Sylphide on the stage. This alcoholic lorgnette is as neat in its way as the device of Judge Boyd, of the Irish King's Bench. Daniel O'Connell used to tell that this legal luminary was so fond of brandy that he kept a supply of it constantly in court upon the desk before him in an inkstand of peculiar make. His lordship used to lean his arm upon the desk, bob down his head, and steal a hurried sip from time to time through a quill that lay among the pens, which manœuvre, he flattered himself, escaped observation."

Mr. S. S. Ward, whose death at Hartford, Conn., occurred on Thursday last in the 89th year of his age, was well known to all old Montrealers, having come to the city in 1820, and resided there until 1846. Mr. Ward was a director, and assisted in building, about the year 1836, the first railway ever projected in Canada, namely, that from Laprairie to St. Johns. The firm also put up and ran the first locomotive which they imported.

"No," exclaimed Mr. Penhecker. "No, Madam, I object most decidedly. Once and for all I say it—the girls shall not be taught foreign languages." "And why not, pray," said Mrs. P., with withering sarcasm. "Because," said Mr. P., with more withering sarcasm, "because Mrs. P., one tongue is enough for any woman!" Mrs. Penhecker responded not.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

THAT WONDERFUL MAN

Is the Centre of Attraction,

In the Royal City of Guelph.

The inhabitants of the city and surrounding County show their appreciation of goods that are new, fresh from the looms, of the very latest styles, and at prices even less than the old bankrupt, moth-eaten stuff that has been attempted to gull the intelligent public of this neighborhood with. The continued throng of purchasers that visit our establishment show conclusively that the Wonderful Man's system of doing business fully meets the taste of the intelligent and appreciative community. We only keep obliging and attentive salesmen, only keep the newest, most fashionable and sound goods. We have marked everything down to the lowest fraction, and we adhere strictly to the golden rule of

ONE PRICE ONLY.

We make a special run this month on Black and Colored Silks for ladies' Dress, Wedding outfits, &c. Our Black Cashmeres, which are marvellously cheap, and extraordinary bright and elegant goods, extremely hard to get in any other store in this city. Our Dress goods throughout are the great attraction of every visitor to Guelph, and we are sorry, but it cannot be helped, they make an awful insurrection among the fraternity of brag men.

The great rush is going on. Don't delay, but visit this immense establishment. This immense stock of Fancy and Staple Dry Goods, when every department is filled to overflowing with the most choice selection to be found in the British, French, American and Canadian Markets, all at bottom prices.

THE ROVER OF THE SEAS:

—OR—

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVI.

A LAPSE OF TIME AND A CHANGE OF SCENE—SAD EVENTS AT MARSTON GRANGE—AN HONEST LAWYER COMES INTO VIEW.

As Mrs. Borland sat knitting and musing, the deep summer silence was broken by the sound of a slow, deliberate footstep on the gravel path by which the cottage was approached. It was not the heavy tread of a labouring man nor the light footfall of a woman, but between the two, and the person beheld by Mrs. Borland when she raised her head and gazed through the open casement had an aspect quite in accordance with the sound of his step.

"Oh, dear! it's Mr. Bishop," she ejaculated, casting a flurried, anxious look round the kitchen to see that it was in proper order for the reception of such a visitor. The scrutinising look and the anxiety which accompanied it were needless, for everything was clean and orderly. The oft-scoured "dresser," was white as snow, the rows of plates in the "bink" had not a speck of dust on them, the cups and saucers in the unglazed corner cupboard were bright and glistering, and every thing stood in its proper place on the newly sanded floor.

He whose coming had produced this concern regarding outward appearances was a tall thin man, plainly yet neatly dressed in such garments as were then worn by gentlemen in a respectable position. His face, like his figure, was long and thin, of dark red complexion, and possessing features of a pleasant and placid character. He had large pleasant eyes, and thick bushy hair slightly tinged with grey. Looking at him one felt that he was safe to have as a friend and adviser—that his nature was honest and trustworthy, that he was a man of sense, intelligence, and experience, whose straightforwardness and integrity of purpose produced the air of quiet self-possession which he manifested.

Without waiting for his knock Mrs. Borland went into the passage and found him in the porch, with his hat off, rubbing his face and head with a handkerchief.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Borland. Whew! this is an exceedingly hot day. How I pity corpulent men under such an exceedingly hot sun as this. If such a thin, fleshless fellow as I feel the heat so oppressive, what must a fat man endure?"

"It is indeed very hot, Mr. Bishop; but pray, come in, sir. The kitchen is cool, and I have the window open. You must have had a long walk if you have come from Cairntree this afternoon."

"That is just what I have done. I called at the Grange on the way to see the laird, but my young gentleman was not within doors, and I failed to see him. I made sure of finding him in the house in the warmest hours of such a sweltering day, but young people, I suppose, don't feel the heat as older folks do. Eh, Mrs. Borland?"

"Like enough, sir. And then Master Orwell has been so much abroad where the climate is always very warm that he will not think so much of this hot sun as we do, and as it is not a week since he arrived, he will, no doubt, be renewing acquaintance with the dear old spots."

"Humph, yes; I dare say he is. I wish his absence from 'the dear old spots' would become shorter and less frequent. It would be better both for him and them. I have often told him so, and he readily agreed with me, but no sooner does young Langton propose another tour than off he goes with him, and the dear old spots don't see him for months."

"It is natural that a young high-spirited gentleman like Master Orwell should like to see foreign places. When he gets older he will not care for travelling so much. Indeed I think he has begun not to care so much for it; he has been oftener at the Grange of late than he used to be."

"So he has. I have noticed that, and it would appear others have noticed it also, though for a different reason. It is in connection with this very matter that I have come here to-day, Mrs. Borland, and we'll just have a quiet talk about it, if you please."

"About what, sir?" asked Mrs. Borland, utterly at a loss to understand to what the other referred.

"About Orwell Bruce and his frequent visits to the Grange of late."

"Why, sir, don't you like that. I thought you said a little ago that you wished he would be more at home."

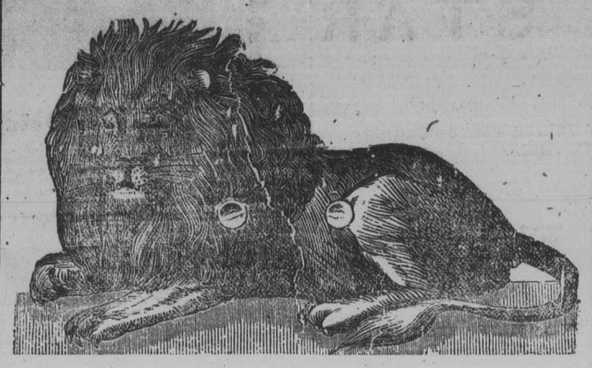
"So I do, provided he does so for a proper cause. I attributed the fact to his anxiety for his sister—whose health is now so indifferent, poor thing—but it has been represented to me, and I suspect not without cause, that there is another attraction. Have you never guessed as much, Mrs. Borland?"

"No, sir, it has never occurred to me to guess anything, and I have not the least idea of what you mean."

The genuine astonishment depicted on Mrs. Borland's face and her known truthfulness of character convinced Mr. Bishop that the idea to which he was alluding had never crossed her mind.

"I believe you, Mrs. Borland; and if you had noticed anything to suggest it, I am sure it would have annoyed and distressed you."

"Oh, Mr. Bishop, what is the matter?" exclaimed the widow in the greatest alarm.



"I hardly know how to exprse it, but I suppose in such a matter plainness is best. The idea has begun to be entertained that Master Orwell and your daughter are falling in love with each other."

"What! exclaimed Mrs. Borland, holding up her hands in speechless amazement, "who dare insinuate such a monstrous thing? It is—it must be utterly false."

"That is what I thought and said when it was first brought to my notice, but I confess that I have seen something to-day which makes me fear there is more in it than either of us likes. I have told you that I called at the Grange to see Orwell, and was informed he was out with his gun in the woods. I went up to the Birch Delf, hoping to meet with him, and there on a mossy seat, half hid by the bending branches, I beheld Orwell and Agnes sitting side by side in most lover like fashion. Of course I scorned to draw near to overhear their conversation, or even to remain on the spot where I had a view of them, but I was near enough to see the happy look upon their faces, and when I turned away and took a few moments for reflection I thought the best thing I could do was to see you on the subject."

"And I thank you very much, Mr. Bishop, for coming and telling me this; but I beseech you do not imagine for a moment there is anything more between them than the friendship of long familiar intercourse. You know Mr. Bishop, that Master Orwell and Agnes have known each other from childhood, I may say from infancy. They were playmates before Agnes was well out of the cradle. I remember the night poor Jack perished, the boy would not go to sleep till the master brought him along to see her, and after she could run about they were hardly a day separate. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Bruce saw any harm in it. I have often heard them say that Master Orwell and Agnes were like brother and sister."

Examining a Witness.

How a Sharp Lawyer Manages not to Get the Facts.

The manner in which attorneys question witnesses, says the Cairo Bulletin, is exasperating to the intelligent listener, beyond expression. The great purpose of the average criminal lawyer, for instance, is to draw from the witness all the facts in his possession, excepting the facts touching the case under consideration.

A countryman, chopping down a tree, stops his work, and buries his axe up to the eyes in the brain of his brother-in-law. The witness who saw the whole bloody transaction is brought into court, and his examination runs about thus:

"You say that the prisoner was chopping a tree down. Now will you please tell the jury where he bought the axe?"

"You don't know? Very well, sir, we'll see about that."

"Now, sir, look at the jury—don't stare in that helpless manner at me—now, sir, do you say, upon your oath, that you don't know that the defendant stole that axe before he left Paducah?"

"You say so, ah! Well, now mark me, sir. How many feet was it from the tree the defendant was chopping to the nearest grist-mill? You can't say."

"Was it ten feet?"

"Certainly—a good deal more."

"Well, then, was it a thousand miles?"

"O, certainly not."

"The court and the jury will please observe the stubbornness of this witness, his evasion, and his manifest purpose to confuse your minds as to the facts involved in this terrible murder."

"Now, sir, look me in the face. You have solemnly sworn that the man was chopping near a mill. Will you now dare say—look at the jury, sir—that there was no mill within one thousand miles of the tree defendant was felling?"

"I don't say anything of the kind."

"The jury will please note that answer."

"Now, see here, my friend—we've had about enough of this. You first declared there was no mill, and now you brazenly avow there was no mill near the wood-chopper—

"I said there was no mill within ten ee—"

"Never do you mind what you said—I know what you said, and the jury knows; and now, sir, listen to me."

"Who made your boots?"

"You don't know! Is there anything under heaven that you do know. There, there! Look at the jury—not at me. And now, perhaps, you can tell the jury what your name is?"

The witness tells his name.

"Now, sir—look at the jury! How long did you live there?"

The witness timidly asks, "Lived where?" when the attorney springs to his feet.

"May it please the court and jury, I find this man utterly incorrigible—stubborn, mulish, and bent upon keeping back the very facts the jury must have. He has clearly been tampered with, and comes here with the manifest intention of browbeating and worrying both the jury and the bar. I have temporized with him, I have led him gently from point to point, in the hope of beguiling him into a true recital of the facts connected with this dreadful murder; and what is my reward for this considerate kindness and forbearance? Speaking under the authority of an oath, he tells the court and jury that he doesn't know where he lives, and has asked me to tell him? Can such things be, and not overcome us like a—like—and not overcome us? I ask your honor, that this witness be sent to jail for contumacy, to remain there until he expresses a willingness to tell what he knows about this dreadful murder.

The court then admonishes the witness that further trifling will not be permitted; that he must answer the gentleman's questions, or he'll certainly feel called upon to commit him to prison.

The witness by this time is bewildered, scared, dazed, and indulges in contradictions and absurdities as fast and as much as the attorney requires him to; and finally, leaving the stand, it is a quarter of an hour, at least, before he can recall his own name or fix his own identity. The attorney then gets upon his feet, tears the wretched witness's contradictory and foolish rigmarole all to tatters, and asks that it be excluded from the jury as false and nonsensical.

Calling off the Dances.

The death of Irwin Russell, the young poet and dialect writer, is announced from New Orleans. Russell's pieces proved very popular, and were widely copied. His "Christmas Night at the Quarters" is thought to be the best and most characteristic thing he ever wrote. It is a Christmas medley, containing several songs. "Old Fiddling Josey" playing the fiddle and calling off for the dances is one of the best, and is given below:—

Git yo' pardners, fust kwattillion!
Stomp yo' feet, an' raise 'em high;
Tune is: "Oh! dat water-million!
(swine to git home bime-bye."
S'lute yo' pardners a—scrape perlitely—
Don't be bumpin' 'gin the res'—
Balance all!—now step out rightly;
Alluz dance yo' lebbel bes.
Fo' wa'd fosh!—whoop up, niggers!
Back ag'in! don't be so slow—
Swing cornahs! min' de figgers,
When I hollers, den yo' go.
Top ladies crcss ober.
Hold on, till I takes a dram—
Gemmen solo!—yes, I's sober—
Kain't say how de fiddle am—
Hands around!—hol' up yo' faces,
Don't be lookin' at yo' feet!
Swing yo' pardners! to yo' places!
Dat's de way—dat's hard to beat.
Sides fo' w'd—when, you's ready—
Make a bow as low's you kin'.
Swing acrosst wid opp'site lady!
Now we'll let you swop a'gin.
Ladies change—shut up dat talkin';
Do yo' talkin' arter while—
Right an' lef'!—don't want no walkin'—
Make yo' steps, and show yo' style!

A drunken ne'er-do-well blacksmith, called George, famous for his mother wit, was discovered by the minister sitting on the steps of his church, very unwell from the effects of imprudent potations. "Well, George, drunk again, eh?" said the reverend man. "No parson, answered George, "I ain't drunk. The fact is (hic) that I was thinking (hic) of jining your church; and the more (hic) I think of it the sicker I grow.'

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

Destitution in Toronto.

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—Mr. J. C. Pell, Secretary and Treasurer of St. George's Society, declares there are hundreds of families in Toronto requiring the bare necessaries of life and only living on a crust of bread a day. He declares that it is a shame no provision is made in this city for employment of the poor during the winter months.

Explosion of Gas.

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—An explosion of gas occurred at the Roman Catholic College, Saultu Recollect, last night, seriously injuring two plumbers named Abbott and Giroux, who were engaged in putting down connections with a machine for manufacturing gas. The sufferers were taken to the hospital, where their wounds were found to be dangerous.

Fluid Beef.

One hundred and fifty cattle are slaughtered here per week by one firm engaged in making fluid beef for export.

Police Conrt.

TRIAL OF LARCENY CASES.

This morning William Armstrong, an account of whose offences at different workshops has been published in the MERCURY, was brought up for trial at the Police Court on eight charges of larceny. William Carter was also tried for the larceny of a pair of pants from Cormack & Keleher's clothing store.

Armstrong pleaded guilty to stealing tools from John Berry, who is employed at Robert Stewart's plaining mill. He also pleaded guilty to the larceny of tools belonging to James Johnson, employed at the same place. To a charge of stealing tools from Charles Tanner, at Mercer & Casey's factory, he entered a plea of not guilty, and was tried on that charge. The substance of Tanner's evidence was that he left an iron plane in the shop on the night of the 28th ult. On the following morning the plane was missing and on going to Sheehan's pawn shop with the chief of police he found a plane which he identified as his.

John Sheehan, pawnbroker, was examined and said that Armstrong had sold the plane to him stating that it belonged to himself.

The magistrate thought it was unnecessary to hear the other cases against prisoner considering the ends of justice were sufficiently met by the proof of three cases. Before sentence the prisoner was given an opportunity to speak, when he said that he was an Englishman and came to St. John, New Brunswick, where he had a wife and three children, about eighteen months ago. He had tramped first to Montreal from Moncton, then to Hamilton, Buffalo, Galt and Guelph. He asked to be dealt with leniently. The Magistrate reprimanded him severely for his despicable action in receiving aid from members of any society through representing that he was a brother in that society, and afterwards plundering the property of those who assisted him. The Magistrate would not give the prisoner as heavy sentence as he might give him, but sentenced him to two years in the Central Prison.

William Carter was then tried for the theft of a pair of pants from Cormack & Keleher's store. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 3 months imprisonment at the gaol.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The Public Schools re-open to-morrow.

FEAST OF EPIPHANY.—The feast of Epiphany was observed at Our Lady's Church to-day by special services. The feast is held in commemoration of the visit of the wise men of the East to our Saviour. 10:30 Grand High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Hammel, who preached a sermon appropriate to she occasion. Our Lady's choir sang Mozart's Twelfth Mass. In the evening grand vespers will be sung by the choir and will be followed by the benediction.

Parnell on Monday received a deputation from Albony, representing the Irish Societies of that city. The delegation requested him to name an early day for a visit to Albany, and then presented him with an address.

A severe rain storm took place in the neighborhood of Goderich on Sunday afternoon, and a heavy freshet occurred in the Maitland River, resulting in the destruction of a large amount of mill and other property belonging to Mr. Samuel Platt, besides a number of valuable cows and other animals. The loss is attributed to the defective breakwater, the mouth of which had become so narrow that there was not room for the ice and water to escape.

Things are growing worse at the Chicago Stock yards. About one hundred boys employed about the packing houses, and who have materially assisted the non-Union men in their work since the strike, began to quit work this morning, and formed an auxiliary trades's union. There are fears that bloody work may result from disturbances now taking place.

The leading operators on Wall Street, New York, are reported to have reached $80,000,000 last year. Of this sum the Vanderbilt estate is credited with $30,000,000.

The frontage tax and the local improvement scheme has been defeated in Toronto.

Local News.

CITY COUNCIL.—An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held to-night.

WEATHER PROBS.—Warm, foggy weather followed by considerably colder weather.

Artillery Brigade Band practice this evening at 7:30 sharp. A full attendance is desired.

St. Andrew's Sunday School is going to repeat the performance of the Cantata of Santa Claus next week.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.—The annual meeting of the various Township Agricultural Societies takes place on Thursday, 8th of January; and of the Electoral District Societies on Wednesday, 14th January, at one o'clock.

ELECTION FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEES.—The polling for a School Trustee to represent St. George's Ward takes place to-morrow. Polling commences at 10 a. m. and continues till 5 p. m. The candidates are Mr. Burgess, the present member, and Mr. Swinford. Mr. Burgess has served only one year of his term, has been most attentive to his duties, and merits the support and confidence of the electors.

Mr. James Fahey, formerly of Port Hope, now of the Stratford Herald, an Irishman from his big toe upwards, has changed his mind now regarding a Scotchman having no sense of humor. One of the Macs. startled him the other day by sending a barrel of oatmeal to his residence as a Christmas present. Mr. Fahey then broke out in the following strain:—"Shades of St. Patrick, is it a joke, or is it only a base Grit scheme to rob us of our politics and make us Grits?"

THE choir of St. George's Church assembled at Marshall's art gallery, yesterday (Monday) morning and were photographed in a group. After obtaining a satisfactory negative Mr. Benton, on behalf of the choir, presented Mr. Joplin with a copy of the photo to be mounted and expressed to him at Marquett, Mich., whither Mr. Joplin started this morning by the early Grand Trunk train west. Mr. Joplin, by his courteous manner and willingness to aid with his voice any charitable object, has won many lasting friends in Guelph, whose well wishes he takes with him.

SAD AFFLICTION.—The Canada Presbyterian publishes the following item:—"The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Davidson, missionaries of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland in South Africa, have been terribly afflicted by the mysterious disappearance of their little son, four years old. He was missed while the colored congregation was observing the Lord's Supper, and the most diligent search by about 200 people for four days failed to discover any sign of his whereabouts."—Rev. Mr. Davidson is a brother of Mr. Alex. Davidson, of Egremont.

ABOUT ADVERTISEMENTS.—A decision of interest to newspaper publishers and the public was rendered the other day by Judge Stevenson of Haldimand. A merchant named Boyle inserted an advertisement in a Cayuga paper to run a year, which was duly paid for. Boyle did not give any further instructions about the advertisement, which was, however, continued by the publisher, and the paper carefully sent to the patron. At the end of the three years, he sent a bill for the last two. The merchant refused to pay on the ground that the card was left in, as supposed, to fill up. Judge Stevenson decided that the advertisement must be paid for.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.—This being the week of prayer, the meeting will be held this evening in St. Andrew's Church. The congregation will be addressed by Rev. Messrs. Coutts and Maxwell on the subject "Confession." Under this subject they will discuss national sins, intemperance, injustice, misuse of prosperity, the righteous permission of depression of industries, deficient harvests and grievous wars. Of personal sins; unfaithfulness to convictions, unwatchfulness, negligences and omissions; dishonour done to God's holiness, love, and mercy; deficiencies in patience, forgiveness, liberality, zeal, and usefulness. Entreaties for pardon, gratitude, purity; for greater surrender of the will, and more fervent delight in the law of God as revealed in His Son.

DEATH OF MR. WM. LOGAN.—We regret to learn of the death of Mr. Wm. Logan, which took place in the Little Saskatchewan district, Manitoba, on the 24th ult., of bronchitis, after an illness of two weeks. It will be remembered that Mr. Logan left Guelph in June last to be with his family in their new home in Manitoba. It was solely for their sake that he went out to the Province. The severe winter in the North West was however too much for him, and after a short illness his old complaint gained the mastery. The deceased was an old resident on the York Road, in Guelph Township, and some years ago he retired from farming and lived in Guelph, where he was well known and as highly respected as he was in his own section. He was a great reader, a very intelligent man, and held in great esteem as a worthy man and a useful citizen. He had attained at the time of his death the ripe age of 87 years.

Guelph Ministerial Association.

At the the usual monthly meeting of this Association held on Monday afternoon, the subject of funerals on the Sabbath day was under consideration, and the following resolutions were submitted and adopted:

1. The clergymen would renew their appeal to their fellow citizens and fellow-professors of Christianity, that when in the Providence of God any of them may be called to part with their near and dear ones, and to bury their dead out of their sight, they study to have respect to the commandment "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," and that they guard against involving themselves, or their brethren, in the sin of Sabbath desecration.

2. They would also appeal to them to discountenance the procession of organized societies in regalia, and the use of instrumental music, as inconsistent with the solemnity of the day, and a temptation to many, both old and young, who are attracted by the spectacle, to absent themselves from domestic and Sabbath School religious exercises, and thus have a snare brought upon them.

3. They tenderly and affectionately address their fellow-citizens and ask them not to invite them to officiate on such occasions, first, because of the example which they may thus, by constraint, be led to set before others, and by which they may encourage them in similar and very different modes of Sabbath desecration; and, secondly, because of its interference with other regular services to which most of them have to attend.

4. And the clergymen agree among themselves not to officiate at funerals, nor attend them on the Sabbath day, unless satisfied they are absolutely necessary.

It was also agreed that each clergyman read these resolutions from his own pulpit on Sabbath first.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Over four hundred villagers have been driven from their homes by the flood near Nancy, France. At Loban Island, Austria, eleven have been drowned by the overflow of the Danube. In Paris still more damage is reported to have been caused by the rise of the Seine.

A fund has been opened in Brimingham for relief of the distress in Ireland.

The Times says that in the eyes of the Afghan people Abdul Rahman Khan, the pretender to the Throne of Afghanistan, counts for little; but in Turkestan from Balkin to Badakshan his influence is not inconsiderable.

A St. Petersburg despatch says that Abdul Rahman is reported to be at Balkh. Whether the recently reported understanding between England and Russia will survive such a blow is a serious question.

A Vienna despatch says that notwithstanding the peaceful professions of Russia she has ordered the War Office to prepare for the use of the army as many breechloaders as possible. A trustworthy correspondent, who has just returned from a visit to the larger towns of Russia Poland, says these towns are full of troops.

The bridge of the Invalides in Paris has been destroyed by floating wreckage and ice. Considerable damage has been done in the Provinces. Around Nancy 450 villagers have been driven from their homes.

The Afghan War.

CANDAHAR, Jan. 5.—The leader of the Herati troops escaped after the defeat to Ghorian, near the Persian frontier, where he is collecting forces to attack the Cabulese, who are virtually besiged in Herat. The country people attack them whenever they venture out in small parties. Fifty troopers while foraging were all killed by the villagers.

The famine in the province of Seistan is very severe, and people are selling children for food.

LAHORE, Jan. 5.—Further disturbances are expected at Herat, and a brigade will embark at Bombay immediately for Bolan

The Anti-Rent Question in Ireland.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—A very serious affray occurred on Friday between the Royal Irish Constabulary and some peasants of Galway. The police fired on the people, but nobody was injured. Galway County is in a very disturbed condition, and two hundred extra police have been drafted there.

An anti-rent meeting was held at Claremorris, County Galway, on Sunday, at which 3,000 people were present.

A tenant-right meeting was held at Killarney, Ireland, yesterday. 6,000 were present. The usual resolutions favouring a peasant proprietary and condemning the action of the Government were adopted.

LOSS OF LIFE BY A FIRE IN NEW YORK.—A fire broke out on Monday morning in Turner Hall, on 4th street, between the Bowery and 2nd Avenue, and occupied by William Winkle as a ball room. It was known that Winkle, the proprietor, with his wife and employees, slept in the building, and before the heavy doors could be broken open several of them appeared at the window, imploring help. But after the doors had yielded the unfortunate inmates could not be reached, as the flames swept up the broad and only stairway. The firemen went to the roof of an adjoining house, hoping to release the imperilled people by means of a scuttle, but there was no scuttle to the building in which they were confined. A hole was broken through the roof, and by this means only they were reached. By this time four persons had been burned or suffocated to death. The fire burned out the inside of the building, and the firemen were obliged to crawl through the smoke in some instances on their hands and knees to recover the corpses that were found within.

CONSUL GENERAL'S REPORT.—The Consul-General at Montreal reports the Canadian trade with Great Britain has decreased, while with the United States it has increased nearly $2,000,000 last year. The increase is partly due to the large imports from the United States in anticipation of the new Canadian tariff. The effect of the tariff, in the opinion of the Canadian authorities, will probably be to reverse results. A large emigration to the United States is continually taking place. A general improvement in business is manifest, but not so marked, however, as in the United States. There is an increased demand for labour, and a rise in the prices of all kinds of provisions.

CIVIC ELECTIONS.

Full Returns of the Polling.

There has seldom, if ever, been so little stir over a municipal election in Guelph, as there was over the one on Monday. Reliance Lodge, I. O. O. F.

Installation Ceremonies and Presentation to the Late Treasurer.

At a meeting of Reliance Lodge, I. O. O. F., held last night in the Lodge rooms, Upper Wyndham street, the following officers were installed for the ensuing year by Bro. Cottis, D. D. G. M:

Bro. J. F. Thackray, N. G.
" J. Henderson, V. G.
" W. Bourne, P. G., R. S.
" W. S. Smith, P. G., P. S.
" J. H. Dietz, Treasurer.
" D. B. Watson, Warden.
" Albert Robinson, Conductor.
" J. Brimfield, I. G.
" Thos. Barber, O. G.
" R. Henderson, R. S. N. G.
" H. H. Maddock, P. G., L. S. N. G.
" Ed. Curtis, R. S. S.
" D. McLeay, L. S. S
Bro. Regt. R. S. V. G.
Bro. Hartley, L. S. V. G:
" J. T. Ellis, Chaplain.

After the installation ceremonies, the retiring Treasurer, Mr. John Read, who has held the position of Treasurer for a number of years, was presented by Bro. Cottis on behalf of the members with an ebony walking stick. The stick was highly finished. It was finished with a heavy silver head beautifully engraved, and bearing the following inscription, "Presented by the members of Reliance Lodge to Mr. John Read, Treasurer, Jan. 1880." The "three links," together with different emblems characteristic of the Order appeared nicely engraved on the silver work. In making the presentation, Mr Cottis addressed Mr. Read briefly on behalf of the members of the lodge, expressing the high esteem in which they held the recipient.

Mr. Read, who was completely taken by surprise, made an appropriate reply, thanking the members for such an evidence of their kind regards towards him.

The company then adjourned to the Mitchell House, where an hour was spent in social enjoyment.

The Argenteuil Election Case.

Dr. Christie Unseated.

Dr. Christie has been unseated, Mr. R. McIntyre of Grenville, and Thomas S. Higginson, of Ottawa, both Conservatives, gave evidence that Higginson promised to pay McIntyre an old account of $25 to influence him, which the respondent's counsel admitted as sufficient to void the election on a strict interpretation of the Election Law. The election, consequently, is voided.

Much indignation is felt at the behaviour of Higginson, who has always passed for a Conservative, and who at the last election pretended to be a friend of the Reform candidate, Dr. Christie, the respondent in this case. Higginson admitted having turned against Dr. Christie shortly after the election, having been disappointed in not receiving an official appointment from Hon. Mr. Mackenzie. The determination of the Reform party there is to re-elect Dr. Christie, who has consented to stand again.

Higginson, it seems, applied for a post on the Grenville Canal immediately after the election, and Mr Mackenzie refused to appoint him. Dr. Christie said he had not asked Higginson to support him, but he professed to be a friend at that election, and he understood he was working for him.

The losses by fire during 1879—those for December being partly estimated—amount to $78,898,700 in the United States, and $7,381,200 in Canada, a tolerably close approximation to the ratio of population. The American losses are larger than those of any previous year, while the Canadian total has several times been exceeded.

It is with pleasure learned that Mr. Letellier's health is rapidly improving now, and that there was no foundation for the alarming despatch telegraphed over the Dominion a few days ago.

Mr. Walter Shanly is now mentioned as the forthcoming General Manager of the North Shore Railway.

A daring burglary was perpetrated on Monday night about seven o'clock at the residence of Hon. Wm. McMaster, Toronto, but fortunately the burglar did not succeed in securing much booty to reward him for his pains.

A delegation from Montreal will wait upon the Governor-General on Wednesday next for the purpose of presenting him with a petition relating to the distress in Ireland.

It is thought in some quarters that Gen. Grant's mission to Mexico is to advance a scheme for the annexation of that country to the United States, and thereby make himself popular with the South as the Presidential candidate.

TUESDAY EV'G, JANUARY 6, 1880.

The Ontario Legislature.

The Ontario Legislature meets to-morrow in Toronto. Being the first meeting after a general election, more interest will be felt in its proceedings, and in the policy which will be enunciated in the Lieutenant-Governor's speech. The Government meets the House with an increased and compact majority, which is sufficient to carry through any measure initiated so long as it meets the approval of members, and is calculated to advance the interests and develop the resources of the Province. In some respects Mr. Mowat and his colleagues have an easy task, and yet their responsibilities are increased in proportion to their increased support. Every Government with a large majority following at its back is naturally inclined to be too self confident, and to act on the impression that secure as they are in power, they can carry things with a high hand irrespective of the feelings and wishes of those who helped to place them in power. We hope the Mowat Government will not follow such a suicidal course, but learning a wholesome leason from the past failures of the party in that respect, will, true to the policy of its Premier, continue to manitest the same deference to public opinion as he has hitherto done, and by the force of argument and reason and justice convince his followers and the people of the Province of the wisdom of his policy. We have full faith that this course will be pursued, and that the Government will be as cautious and careful in their measures and in their general conduct as they were when they could scarcely count a majority of a dozen.

So far as we can judge no special interest will attach to the proceedings politically, for the result of the elections was so decisive as to excite little fear on one side or hope on the other, with the exception of the announcement that a vote for the erection of new Parliament buildings in Toronto is likely to be placed in the estimates, which will doubtless excite some discussion. As our neighbor the Herald truthfully and pithily put it the other day in its annual review of political affairs in referring to the Local elections: "Dispassionate and intelligent observers, if they are minded to speak plainly on the subject, will have little difficulty in discovering the main cause of the Conservative disaster; the rock on which the party made shipwreck, or we should say rocks, for there were two, poverty in men and poverty in measures. We will venture to say that out of all the candidates the party had in the field no man would venture, in sober earnest, to name six capable of taking the places of Mr. Mowat and his colleagues, had the verdict of the people called for a change of government. Then the opposition did not go before the people advocating a single measure worthy of the name. They were destitute of a policy, and their platform had only one plank, office. Victory without a policy was impossible, but had the impossible happened a victory without leaders capable of administering the affairs of the Province would have been more fatal even than defeat. When a political party, by its actions plainly intimates that it knows of no reasons for its existence, it need not be surprised if the electorate take it at its own estimate of itself."

Truer words than these were never spoken or written, and the candor and outspokenness are all the more creditable to a journal that has fought long and valiantly for its party.

If we judge aright, the chief feature of the approaching session will be the large number of private bills to come before the people's representatives. If we may judge from the official Gazette these are likely to be unusually numerous, and in many cases the legislation desired is of such a nature as to call for very careful scrutiny on the part of our legislators.

As regards the tactics of the Opposition, it is understood that Mr. Meredith wishes to remain quiet, feeling that the Opposition would be useless, while Mr. Lauder, who is the terrior dog of the party, advocates factious opposition, and in this he is backed by Mr. Moris. It is not likely the discussion of political questions will occupy much time, but a great deal of interest is felt in the question of the route of the proposed Pacific Junction Railway. Owing to the deflection in the route of the Pacific Railway, Mr. Miller, of Muskoka, contends that he can lay a line that will be forty-six miles shorter than the route of the line advocated by J. D. Edgar.

THE Monetary Times forecasting the financial prospects for the coming year says: "Retailers are enjoying a general wave of prosperity and failures are very sensibly diminishing. Not that there will be no more bankruptcies, nor that we shall have no more commercial or financial trouble. It would be vain to expect that. No doubt there are sore places that still require healing. No doubt there are persons who have been 'nursed' for some considerable time, but for whom all the 'nursing' will prove to be vain. And failures may yet transpire that will develop a wide circle of indirect consequences. But in spite of this, we firmly believe that the worst is past, that trade on the whole is good, that most of our sores are healed, that the greater part of the rottenness has been cut out, and that we as a community have as hopeful a future before us as any similar number of people in any part of the world.

MR. JOSEPH PARRAULT, of Montr is about to start a paper in French, The Colonial Emancipator, to see daylight next week. Mr. Perrault, who is a harmless fellow, is no doubt afflicted with the annexation craze to some extent, and Sir Francis Hincks' story that he was in Washington and announcing a coming annexation movement may not be far from correct.

Social and Presentation.

A very pleasing social and surprise party took place at the residence of Mr. Thomas Armstrong farmer, residing near Gourock Post Office, on Friday evening. Mr. Armstrong having taken up land in Muskoka, and being about to remove to his future home, his friends and neighbors resolved that he should carry with him some token of esteem in which he was held by them. Accordingly on Friday evening last, Jan. 2nd, about sixty of his friends and neighbors, old and young, repaired thither with well filled baskets of choice provisions, and took quiet possession of the house.

After a short time spent in wishing the compliments of the season, Mr. Kerningham moved, seconded by Mr. T. Flynn, that Mr. James Beirnes, of Guelph, take the chair. The chairman, in a brief speech, explained the object of the meeting, and referred to the many acts of kindness which he had performed during the time he had been amongst them, and concluded by calling up Mr. James Keough to read the following address:

Dear Friend and Respected Sir,—It is with feelings of pleasure, mingled with regret, that we, your friends and neighbors, approach you this evening before taking your departure from amongst us. When we recall the manifold associations which link the past with the present, your kind and courteous disposition, your readiness to lend a helping hand in our necessities, we not only feel it a pleasure, but a duty, to express in some sensible manner to you and Mrs. Armstrong and family our warmest sympathies and best wishes. Be pleased to accept of this Family Bible, not so much on account of its money value, but as a souvenir and memento of the genial friendship and happy relations which have always existed between you and your friends and neighbors, and that one more link may be added to the living chain so as not only to connect the past with the present, but the present with the future. Although we regret your departure from amongst us, we believe it to be in the interest of yourself and family and we hope you may be long spared to receive the reward of your industry and self-sacrifice, that peace and prosperity surround you in your new home and crown your every effort is the humble prayer and sincere desire of your old friends and neighbours.

Signed on behalf of the Committee,
JAMES KEOUGH,
JAMES BEIRNES.
SARAH STEEL.

Mr. Armstrong, who was overcome with emotion, said: My dear friends and neighbors, I must say that I am more than surprised at the many expressions of kindness and regret at my departure. My feelings are quite overcome when an address so feelingly written and so numerously and respectably signed has been presented to me. I can assure my friends and neighbors that it will always be a source of great pleasure to me to have this family Bible coupled with those old and young familiar names to look over in my lonely hours when I arrive at my new home. The persons whose names are signed to the address will always be before me though we will be so far apart that my eyes cannot see them. And now that I am about to leave, you I hope that mutual love and friendship will forever remain behind, and though our love and friendship is divided by space, that we may still be united in spirit. I again thank you for your many kind expressions for myself and Mrs. Armstrong and family.

During the reading of the address, Miss Sarah Steel stepped forward and presented Mr. Armstrong with a bound copy of an illustrated family Bible. After the address the health of Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong was drank with great enthusiasm, after which the room was cleared for dancing. At midnight a bountiful repast was partaken of, and a number of songs were given by Mr. and Mrs. Beirnes, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Armstrong, Mr. McQuirk and Mr. Devoe. Dancing was again resumed and kept up with spirit until daylight, when the party broke up.

Capt. Chambers will give to any party desirous to start a factory of almost any kind at Smith's Falls, free, any amount of land that may be required for such a purpose, either at the station, or on the borders of the Rideau canal, all included in the corporation of the village of Smith's Falls. The lands offered by Mr. Chambers and from which a choice may be made, are in good localities, one parcel adjoining the Canada Central railway, a siding being built within a few feet of the property; and the other bordering on the Rideau canal."

On Wednesday and Thursday, the 21st and 22nd of this month, one of the most important events in connection with Freemasonry ever held in Canada will take place in the Masonic Hall, Hamilton, when the Sublime Bodies of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite under the Supreme Council of the Dominion of Canada will hold their annual reunion.

The Mayor of London, Ont., has given his salary, $1,260, to the poor of the city.

CRUET STANDS and other plated ware, ivory handled knives, pocket knives, tea trays and waiters, skates, sleighs, and other goods suitable for Cristmas and New Year's presents, in large variety and very cheap, at J. M. Bond & Co's.

Some queer stories are afloat here in regard to the competition of a firm which has lately taken a deep interest in the Canada Pacific Railway contracts. Some strange developments are expected at no distant day.

No HUMBUG.—Otwell's celebrated mixed and Mustard Pickles are now used by nearly every family. The reason is that they are superior to any bottled pickle in the market and only one-half the price. They are sold at 15c per pint and 30c per quart, imperial measure; 3 lb. cans Tomatoes at 20c; 2 lb. Sweet Corn at 20c a can. R. MURRAY, Sole Agent.

Now is the time to buy at Day's book store, balance of Christmas stock to be sold off at any price. Day sells cheap.

COTTON MILL IGNIS FATUUS.—"The citizens of Sarnia have resolved to submit to the ratepayers the question of a grant of $20,000 bonus to a cotton manufactory to have a capital of $250,000 and employ not fewer than 200 hands. It is thought that the bonus will be accepted by a certain projected company, although $5,000 less than the amount asked for."—Dundas Banner. We believe this to be the Company that have proposed terms here; but we understood the capital to be $180,000 not $250,000. We believe similar proposals have been made to Peterboro' and other towns.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.—A man whose name we have not learned, while in the employ of Mr. Afflolder, Township Clerk, St. Clemens, committed suicide by hanging on Friday forenoon. He climbed to the highest point in the roof of the barn, fastened the rope to the ratter, then around his neck, and deliberately jumped into eternity. Deceased, who had no friends, was addicted to drinking, which was probably the cause of the rash act. Dr. Vardon was called but considered an inquest unnecessary.—Berlin News.

ARTILLERY PRACTICE.—Col. Lewis Price having offered a prize of $20 to the detachment of not more than 20 men of any battery of Garrison Artillery in the Maritime Provinces who will, in the shortest time, dismount a gun from one carriage and mount it upon another; and the Dominion Garrison Artillery Association having also offered a prize to any company in the Dominion for the same work, 19 men of Captain J. E. Curren's company, H. G. A., tried it last night, and accomplished in 1 min. 20 sec. A Charlottetown company carried off the prizes last year.

A novel wedding took place at Uxbridge on Tuesday the 23rd inst. Mr. Henry Boden, the bridegroom, being in the neighborhood of 68 years, whilst the blooming bride, commonly known as "Granny Wren," was said to be of the ripe age of 72 years. The "happy couple" seemed to enjoy their position very much, and we hope they will have no cause to regret the important step they have taken at this late hour of the day. May they be happy. No cake.

ABOUT CORN AND WHEAT.—Corn loses one-fifth by drying and wheat one-fourteenth. From this the estimate is made that it is more profitable for farmers to sell unshelled corn in the fall at 75 cents than at $1 a bushel in the following summer, and that wheat at $1.25 in December is equal to $1.50 in the succeeding June. In the case of potatoes—taking those that rot and are otherwise lost—together with the shrinkage, there is but little doubt, that between October and June the loss to the ownor who holds them is not less than 33 per cent.

SOUP.—The Spectator used to brag, last summer, that the N. P. had shut up the soup kitchens of Hamilton. The soup kitchens of that city are now doing a rushing business, and the Mayor is besieged every morning by about fifty applicants for relief—men, women and children.

One-third of the gold that is mined goes to wear and tear, one-third goes into circulation, and one-third into the arts and manufactures. All the gold in the world would make a pile only 25 feet wide, 45 feet long and 25 feet high.

All work is ahead of time on the Grand Opera House, Toronto. The roof is being raised. Plastering and lathing is going on inside. The fly galleries are erected, and it is enough to say that it will be open on the 9th prox.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

CHAPTER XVI.

LAPSE OF TIME AND A CHANGE OF SCENE—SAD EVENTS AT MARSTON GRANGE—AN HONEST LAWYER COMES INTO VIEW.

"Very true," returned the lawyer gravely, "and if they were alive they might think so still. But they are dead, and Orwell is now his own master, and this is just what makes it dangerous. They are both of an age when the feelings of children are likely to give place to others much more warm and tender, and I leave you to judge, Mrs. Borland, if in the circumstances it would be right to encourage it. Agnes is a good, clever, sensible girl, and, thanks to Mr. Bruce, she has got an excellent education, but the wide difference between their stations puts the idea of marriage out of the question."

"Marriage!" cried Mrs. Borland, in horrified consternation. "Master Orwell marry the daughter of his father's gardener, he who should wed with the proudest and richest in the land. Mr. Bishop, you do him a great wrong by even dreaming of anything so preposterous."

"No, I don't. Such things have been; and, so far as personal qualities go, Agnes would be no unsuitable wife for him."

"No, no; a thousand times no," exclaimed Mrs. Borland, in wild alarm. "This would be to requite Mr. Bruce's kindness with the basest ingratitude. Master Orwell could not so far forget himself; and if he did, Agnes is incapable of listening to words bearing such a meaning. Oh, sir, do not believe it—do not believe it."

"I am afraid, Mrs. Borland, you give young people credit for more judgment and reflection than they possess. The heart of youth is apt to give way to its impulses without consulting the colder dictates of the judgment. Orwell and Agnes might love each other before either of them knew the exact state and character of their affection, or saw how wrong it was to encourage the young feelings they cherish. I am no longer the young master's guardian, and have no power to interfere; but you are Agnes's mother, and can warn her, if warning be necessary. I do not require to show you the necessity of doing so, for your own good sense and proper feeling are sufficiently alive to it."

"Oh, Mr. Bishop, how terribly you have alarmed me, lest there be any ground for your thought!" said Mrs. Borland with inexpressible concern, as the possibility of the existence of a heart affection between Orwell and Agnes dawned upon her. "But rest assured that this very night I will question Agnes and learn the truth; and if there has been any danger of anything so dreadful and disgraceful there will be danger no longer, for Agnes has only to see it to make it impossible."

"I wish for Orwell's sake that it were not impossible," said the lawyer as he rose to go. "To marry such a girl as Agnes in his own rank of life would be the best thing he could do. It would draw him away from influences that I think are doing him no good, and settle him in domestic habits, where the fine qualities which I know he possesses would come into proper exercise. It would give me immense relief were this to take place."

"And no doubt it will happen before long," said Mrs. Borland, hopefully. "Such a fine, frank, freehearted, generous gentleman as Master Orwell is meant to be married, and among the many fine ladies he meets some one will take his fancy. Who knows but we shall have gay doings at the Grange soon."

"I hope we may, I hope we may. Good afternoon Mrs. Borland. The heat is not so strong now, I shall be able to walk across the park with more comfort."

"Good day, sir," said Mrs. Borland, who had come with him as far as the porch. "And pray do not be under any more anxiety about the matter we have been talking off. If there has been danger it will cease from this day forward."

"She's a sensible woman that," said Mr. Bishop to himself as he took his way under the tree towards the mansion. "A superior, right-thinking woman. Many a one would do all in their power to grasp at such a chance, and leave no stone unturned to get such a splendid marriage for her daughter. But she regarded the matter in a proper light—she sees that this young inexperienced lad, having no one to control him, should not be allowed to contract a marriage which would bring on him the world's censure and severe blame on us all. Yet I do wish Orwell would marry a suitable person and abandon those extravagant habits that are daily growing on him. I cannot help thinking that young Langton is leading him into evil courses. How else should he spend so much money? One third of his income ought to be ample for his requirements, yet I believe he squanders the whole, and is in debt before rent day. I suspect he goes on the turf and bets largely, which means that he loses heavily. Thoughtless, foolish fellow that he is; yet I blame Reuben Langton. Orwell in his simplicity is no match for that cunning, selfish fellow who keeps by him to serve his own ends. I wonder his father allows it, seeing that he hopes to have Orwell for a son-in-law. Ah, he fancies I don't see his object in being so anxious to stop Orwell's intercourse with Agnes Borland, but I understand it perfectly. Marston Grange and Cairnbank lie temptingly contiguous; it would be a fine thing to have the two estates in one family. Oh, I see the laird's name distinctly, but I question if Maria Langton has power to cajole Orwell. Put station out of view, and Agnes Borland is her superior in every respect. Ah, things seem ill ordered sometimes; yet, as a lawyer, I should be the last to complain of that, seeing that it is by strife and confusion we principally thrive. Bruce used to tell me I was too honest for a lawyer, and egad! I begin to think I am. I must do something sharp and tricky if for no other reason than to maintain the credit of the profession."

Mr. Bishop's mental soliloquy having reached this point, the conclusion in which he had landed caused a smile to overspread his thin yet ruddy countenance. It amused him to fancy a case in which he used the arts and quibbles of law to overreach an opponent or fleece a client, a course which lawyers are proverbially said to follow. No doubt the unscrupulous members of the profession resort to such tricks and devices, but Thomas Bishop, solicitor at-law in the town of Cairntee, Stewartry of Galloway, was of too honest and upright a nature to use the roguish arts which his profession put at his command. Nor did he in the long run lose anything by his just and straightforward way of conducting business. It earned for him the good character he deserved, and gained for him a large country business of a kind both lucrative and respectable. Many a tangled skein he got to unwind; many a family secret he had in his keeping; many important services he was able to render beyond the strict limits of his legal duty; and his influence was correspondingly great and beneficial.

Application will be made at the next sitting of the Manitoba Legislature to incorporate a company for the purpose of supplying the city of Winnipeg with water, also for a company to supply gas or electricity for lighting purposes, and also for a company to construct and operate a street railway.

Phosphate as a Manure.

We find the following letter in the Kingston Daily News from Mr. S. D. Mills, the agent there for the phosphate:

SIR,—So many enquiries have been made of me respecting the value, etc., of 'ground phosphate" as a manure, that I thought a letter on the subject might be deserving of a place in your columns, more especially as we hope that the manufacture of this article will yet become one of the leading industries of Kingston. "Ground phosphate" owes its value as a manure to the following facts: The deterioration seen in our old farms, particularly in wheat growing districts, arises chiefly from the exhaustion of the phosphoric acid, which is necessary for the growth of the grain, etc.; every bushel of wheat sold off the land contains a considerable percentage of this acid, the cattle sold off also carry away a large percentage, the bones being composed largely of phosphate of lime, to say nothing of what is contained in other portions of the body. Ordinary manure does not replace the loss thus sustained by the land, and the proportion of phosphoric acid contained in ordinary earth being alway very small, it must sooner or later be exhausted. In the addition of phosphates, artificial or natural, we have the necessary remedy. According to Prof. Chapman's analysis, the "phosphate mined in this section of the country contains 82.34 per cent. of phosphate of lime, the remainder being carbonate of lime and other different matter. Hitherto, the practice has been to reduce this phosphate to a soluble condition by treatment with sulphuric acid, the great expenses attending this treatment prevented the resulting super-phosphate from being placed in the market at a reasonable rate. New experiments in Scotland, the results of which have been recently published, have shown that by having the mineral reduced to a fine powder the action of the weather, etc., is sufficient to render it available for the nourishment of plants, and though the effect is not so great the first year as that of the prepared superphosphate, yet each succeeding year shows its superiority over the latter as regards the duration of its influence. Respecting the mode of application; my own experience in the matter of such manures would lead me to apply it at the rate of about 500 lbs per acre, mixed, in order to assist in its distribution with four or five times that quantity at least, of leached ashes, lime (air slaked), or dry earth. Another excellent material for mixing it is the shell marl found in many parts of the country. The moisture which this marl retains for a long time after it has been dug up, would cause the fine ground phosphate to adhere to it in some degree, and thus facilitate its being sown broadcast. Ordinary plaster is not to be recommended as an addition for this purpose, it being generally injurious to grain. Hoping that this will not occupy too much of your valuable space, I remain, yours truly,

SAMUEL D. MILLS.

Cutting Glass with Scissors.

Many persons may not be aware that glass can be cut under water, with great ease, to almost any shape, by simply using a pair of shears or strong scissors. In order to insure success two points must be attended to—first and most important, the glass must be kept quite in the water while the scissors are applied; and, secondly, to avoid risk, it is better to begin the cutting by taking off small pieces at the corners and along the edges, and so reduce the shape gradually to that required, as if any attempt is made to cut the glass all at once to the shape as we would cut a piece of card board, it will most likely break just where it is not wanted. Some kinds of glass cut much better than others, the softer glasses being the best for this purpose. The scissors need not be at all sharp, as their action does not appear to depend on the state of the edge presented to the glass. When the operation goes on well, the glass breaks away from the scissors in small pieces in a straight line with the blades. This method of cutting glass has often been of service when a diamond has not been at hand, for cutting ovals and segments, and though the edges are not so smooth as might be desired for some purposes, yet it will answer in a great many cases. The two hints given above, if strictly followed, will always insure success.

NOTHING LILE SUCCESS.—"There is nothing," said Mr. Barkingdale, who was jumping at the top hook in the hat rack with his new silk hat—"there is nothing"—he panted, with another desparate jump—"succeeds"—and up he went again—"like"—and he made a jump that a kangaroo would have envied—"like"—he shouted, as he slapped his hat fairly over the hook, hung on to the brim just a second too long, tore it clean off, pulled the hook through the side of his hat, and then, as the whole hat-rack came over on top of him, and he thrust his head through the mirror in the middle of it, he roared in desperate and legitimate conclusion—"success!" And all the rest of the guests seemed to think that way, too, for the enthusiasm was tremendous.

The subject of a line of telegraph from Rosseau to Nipissing has been mooted of late amongst some of the leading men of the district. It is understood that the Montreal Telegraph Co. have offered to set up the poles and wire and provide instruments and operators if the settlers will place a sufficient quantity of good cedar poles along the route.

A large shipment of dressed beef and mutton was made lately from Seaforth to Winnipeg, with a view to opening up such a traffic should the venture prove successful.

THE EFFECT OF WORK ON THE HEART.—Dr. Stone, lecturer on experimental physics at St. Thomas' Hospital, has lately made some very interesting experiments tending to show that not only the action but the size of the heart may be materially changed by any extra work which may be thrown upon it. In its normal condition the weight of the heart of an able-bodied man should be about 9 ounces 8 drachms; yet, without any vavular or other disease, persons whose occupation subjects them to sudden muscular strain, accompanied by a forcible holding of the breath, may actually increase the size of the heart to upwards of 40 ounces. As everybody is interested in this particular organ of the frame, it would be well to learn how far worry and annoyance, on the one hand, or pleasure and enjoyment on the other, act upon it. Nine ounces of heart would appear to be small measure, but 40 ounces are decidedly too much. How is the happy medium to be best and most easily obtained.

A butcher enters the office of a lawyer. "Sir, I want your advice. Is the owner of a dog responsible for any damage that animal may do?"

"Certainly."

"Then your dog has run away with a leg of mutton from my stall, and I will trouble you for ten francs."

"Very well, my friend, have you five francs change?"

"Yes sir." [Produce them.]

"That just makes it square; my fee for advice is fifteen francs.

It Hums.

(Owen Sound Tribune.)

The National Policy is commencing to "hum." and the consumer who has to pay the tax begins to "hum" also. And no wonder. Times are bad, and the Government promised they would be better—that is not strong enough—we would all get rich together, by paying high duties, of course; for was not the N. P. instituted for the purpose of increasing the duties and aiding manufacturs to get rich at the expense of the consumer? We have received the following communication from a gentleman who has always been a Conservative. He says:—

What has the National Policy done for me? I will tell you. I received a present of wool goods from the Old Country, valued at $5, carriage paid. It was ripped open, of course, by the Government knife, and then charged to me as follows:

Twenty-five per cent. duty	$1 25
Ten cents per pound on 12 pounds, in addition to above	1 20
Fees in Halifax	25
Fees in Owen Sound	30
	$3 00

Balance left to me of my present, $2. Hurrah for National Policy! I was going to buy a Christmas present for one of my children, but found National Policy has raised its price 25 per cent., and so I went home without it. Hurrah for the National Policy!! Perhaps some wiser man than myself can tell me where all the grab goes to, and then we can all throw up our hats together in honor of this glorious institution.

Yours truly,
A POOR MAN.

"That 'ere Tennyson."

"I'm kinder lookin' around for a book of poetry to give to my daughter on Christmas," explained an oldish-looking man the other day as a clerk in a bookstore came forward to wait on him.

"Yes, sir. Have you any choice of poets."

"Waal, I s'pose they are all of the same piece," replied the old man as he scanned the shelves. "I don't know much about 'em, but the gal she seems to think a heap of that 'ere chap named Tennymoon."

"Tennyson, you mean."

"Waal, I guess so, I hain't no hand to remember names. Do you know anythiug about this 'ere Tennyson?"

"Why, he's one of the leading poets."

"Married man?"

"Yes."

"Move around in purty good society, does he? Ever hear he wasn't exactly straight?"

"Why, Mr. Tennyson is supposed to be a gentleman," said the astonished clerk, "though, of course, I don't know anything about his private life."

"Does he use any slang words in his verses?"

"Of course not."

"Anything about girls elopin' away from home with pirates and robbers?"

"Not a word."

"The reason I'm a leetle partickler," said the old man, "is because my gal is rather on the romance. She's just dying to slope off with some pirate, or be lugged off by some Injun-killer, and if that ere Tennyson is on the slope I don't want his verses."

"Oh, you can be sure that his poems are all right. They contain nothing but the purest sentiment."

"'Nother thing is, one of the gals in our neighborhood sent off after some one's poems, and that 'ere pamphlet come nigh workin' a heap of evil. There was a song in it about a boy with a glass eye, and another about flirtin' with a feller on the corner, and I can't tell you what. 'Twasn't a week afore our Sarah begun to say she'd to 'collar a beau,' and askin' her mother not to 'give her away,' and all such slang as that. I keep her churnin' butter from six in the mornin' till ten at night, and I guess it reformed her, but I don't want to set her goin' agin."

"I assure you that Tennyson's poems are all right," said the clerk.

"Wall, I'm goin' up on the market just now, but after dinner I'll call and see the book. If there's a single crooked word I won't have it, for I hain't goin' to have Sarah slidin' down from her chamber winder at midnight to meet no brigand, and if she ever tells me agin that I'm a kicker I'll box her ears, even if she is going on 23!"

Coal in Manitoba.

Mr. Hugh Sutherland, of Winnipeg, who discovered coal on the Souris River, Manitoba, was lately in Ottawa interviewed about the matter. In addition to the information already published he stated that he had a number of men at present employed on the Souris at coal mining. They were thoroughly equipped and provided with six month's supplies. It was intended to transport the coal to Winnipeg as soon as navigation opened via the rivers Souris and Assiniboine. Arrangements have been made for the exploration of the River Souris next spring, and to facilitate this purpose and the transportation of coal a steam tug has been procured. It is also desired that the practicability of the rivers' navigation shall be thoroughly tested. At present coal is worth $20 per ton in Winnipeg and wood of a rather inferior character at $7.50 per cord. By the introduction of the Souris coal it is anticipated a considerable reduction in the price will be effected. This discovery settles apparently the great fuel problem of the Northwest and meets a long felt want.

HOW AN IRISHMAN GOT A FRENCH NAME.—While at Quebec last summer the Princess Louise made the acquaintance of several Irishmen who could speak nothing but French. In 1848 and 1849, when the Irish emigrants fleeing from famine were stricken with cholera, thousands died at the quarintine station and along the Gulf, and the orphan children were adopted into French Canadian families, and are now French Canadians in every thing but birth and name. At Cacouna, opposite Tadousac, there is a large family of Sasriens who have a strange history. Fifty years ago an Irish sailor was shipwrecked in the Gulf and started to travel afoot. He could speak but four words of habitant French, and these formed his stereotyped reply as to where he came from and whither he was going—Je ne'en sais vien. I don't know. These words he had readily picked up, because their pronunciation resembled that of his name which was John C. Ryan. At Cacouna he went to work for a wealthy French Canadian in whose household he was known as J'en Sais Rien and married his daughter, the parish register describing him as "Jen Sais Rien dit l'Irlandais"—I don't know, alias the Irishman—and Ryan's numerous progeny bear the name to-day. The Princess met young Saisrien at Cacouna in the summer and the lad showing marvellous skill as an artist she placed him in the hands of a Quebec painter, and will send him to Europe when he is old enough.

There is not much of the dandy about Mr. Gladstone. Last session it came to pass that he appeared in Parliament with a white hat, a blue necktie, a pair of really well made trousers, and one lavender kid glove. He was never seen with more than the one glove; he had probably dropped the other, after being carefully dressed at home and sent off to the House. His appearance created great sensation, and he maintained this disguise for nearly a week. Then he gladly got rid of the new clothes, and returned to the familiar garments which date back "a many years ago."

Edmonton, in the North West, is now in telegraphic communication with the rest of the world.

A chime of nine bells and a clock are to be placed in St. John, N. B., Trinity Church, as a memorial to the Loyalist founders of the city. The cost will be about $5,000.

It is said that about 30,000 settlers went into Manitoba and the North West during the past year, and that some 10,000 more, of whom a large portion will return, visited the country for the purpose of prospecting.

Probably you never heard of a gingerbread barometer. A French editor has one—a general in gingerbread. He buys one at a fair once a year and nails it to the wall at home. Damp weather softens and dry weather hardens gingerbread, and the editor can tell by touching the figure with his finger what kind of a day it is going to be.

If your name is Jennings you will perhaps be interested in knowing that the following advertisement appears in the English papers. "Jennings estate-$3,000,000--next of kin. All persons by the name of Jennings are requested to send their addresses to F. H. Dougal & Co., 223 Strand, London, when they may hear of something to their advantage."

A small boy got up to read a composition on "The Tree," He got as far as "This subject has many branches," when the teacher said, "Stop! you have not made your bough yet." "If you interrupt me again," said the boy, "I'll leave." "You give me any more impudence and I'll take the sap out of you. Do you understand?" said the teacher. "I twig," said the boy, and then the regular order of business proceeded.

During the year just closed, one hundred and one persons—all men—were executed in the United States. The sentence of the only woman condemned to the gallows was commuted. Two of the murderers were shot in localities where the law permits the condemned to choose between the bullet and the rope. Fifty-five of those executed were whites, thirty-seven colored, eight Indians, and one Chinaman. In addition to those legally executed seventy-four men perished by lynch law in the West and South.

The British coal product last year reached nearly 133,000,000 tons, an enormous total, though 2,000,000 tons less than that of the year previous, while the continental mines have increased their outport. The coal mines of Westphalia, Germany, have quadrupled their yield since 1866, last year's product being nineteen million tons and the industry has steadily increased in Belgium and Northern France to the detriment of the British trade. Westphalian coal is superseding English in Holland and the German ports, and France now draws a large part of its supply from Belgian mines.

There is some apprehension here on the part of cotton manufacturers that business will be overdone. It is stated the capacity of the cotton mills already running is nearly 30,000,000 yards of cotton a year, with another factory just completed in Cornwall.

Local News.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES. — Moderately fresh winds, and cloudy to partially cloudy, continued mild weather, with rain areas.

WM. Noble was charged at the Police Court with allowing his cow to run at large. Case was dismissed.

THE DRAUGHT CLUB.—A meeting of this club will be held to-night at 7.30, at the American Hotel. A full attendance requested. 1td

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHIEF OF POLICE.—By reference to the report of the City Council's proceedings last night it will be seen that Chief McMillan has submitted his annual report. Besides giving the convictions in the City for the year it contains other interesting information.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS.—About 12.30 this morning, Sergeant Dooley arrested two suspicious looking characters who were prowling about Mr. Charles Davidson's stable, Queen street. He took them to the Police Station where they were locked up. To-day they appeared at the Police Court and were discharged.

ASSAULT.—James Swan charged James Fenleton at the Police Court this (Wednesday) morning, after an enlargement, with assault. The particulars of the case have already been given. The case was dismissed with costs, $5.05, which have to be paid by plaintiff. Defendant having obtained the enlargement of the case will have to pay $1 as costs for the enlargement.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—At noon to-day (Wednesday) Messrs. W. S. G. Knowles & Sons sold by auction at the City Hall the following property: Two lots and a house on Fergus street belonging to Mr. Churchhill Humphries, was bought by Walter Grierson for $490; a two storey-brick house and lot on Dublin street belonging to Mr. Hyde was bought by Mr. Jas. Watt for $1,350.

THE PUSLINCH FARMERS' CLUB purpose holding a social this year as usual, and if we are to judge of the coming entertainment by the success which attended those that are past, a grand treat is in store for those who can make it convenient to attend. The spread provided on former occasions would have done credit to more pretending localities, and was a proof that the ladies of Puslinch understand how to act the part of caterers when their services are required.

THE JANUARY FAIR.—The January fair held to-day (Wednesday) was not largely attended, and there was but a small number of animals offered for sale. This was doubtless due to the bad state of the roads and because it is such a short time since the Christmas fair was held. The prices realized were higher than usual, ranging from $3 to $3.25 for cattle, live weight. There was a good attendance of buyers and a few animals were purchased readily. On the whole the fair may be said to be one of the poorest held in Guelph for some time.

LARCENY.—Francis Green, a lad of about 14 years, well known to the police, was charged at the Police Court this (Wednesday) morning with the larceny of 10 lbs. of bacon from Albert E. Rice. Mrs. Rice had bought the pork and took it home leaving it in the kitchen. It was missed in a short time afterwards, and Chief McMillan obtaining information that the lad Green had been about the house went to his house on Essex street and found the bacon. He arrested the boy who was sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

IMPORTANT LIQUOR CASE.—In the case of Goodfellow against Thomas Holliday for selling liquor in less quantities than five gallons, the evidence in which was heard Monday, the Police Magistrate gave judgment as follows this Wednesday morning: "I am of opinion that the defendant cannot be convicted under this information, and I think the evidence produced is not of such a character as to warrant me on substituting for the offence charged, any other offence against the provisions of the Liquor License Act. I dismiss the charge without costs."

WEEK OF PRAYER.—This evening the meeting will be held in the Baptist church. Rev. Dr. Wardrope and Rev. Mr. Williams will address the congregation on the subject, "Prayer for the Church of God." The prayers will be that all who rule and teach in the Church, with Evangelists and Missionaries in all lands, may be filled with the Holy Ghost; that believers may be strengthened in faith and love, drawn to one another, kept in unity and mutual affection, enriched with knowledge and sound doctrine, preserved from the spirit of the world, and conformed to the blessed God. That those especially who are suffering from infirmity, sickness, anxiety, and losses, and from prosecution for Christ's sake, may be comforted and delivered.

TOO PARTICULAR.—A party who lives near a post office not far from Guelph, wanted to remit some twelve dollars to a party in a northern county. Thinking that by depositing the letter in the Guelph post office it would arrive at its destination sooner than if posted at his own office, he accordingly handed the letter to a railroad navvy who was just on his way to Guelph and instructed him to put it in the office here and register it. The navvy was only too happy to oblige the party. The sender was somewhat surprised, a few days after, by receiving a letter from the party to whom the letter had been sent, stating that the letter had been received but it contained no money. The post office authorities were consulted, and an investigation revealed the fact that the original envelope had been destroyed and another substituted, showing conclusively that the navvy had abstracted the money, procured another envelope and enclosed only the letter. The sender would like to find the navvy. Moral, patronize your own post office.

The Civic Elections.

The Declaration.

Mr. Harvey, City Clerk, made the declaration at noon, to-day (Wednesday) of the returns for Mayor and Aldermen for 1880. In St. John's Ward, where there was a tie between Messrs. Hall and Read, he gave his casting vote in favour of the former. In doing so, he explained that he had not taken the merits of either gentlemen into consideration, and voted for Mr. Hall because that candidate lived on the west side of the river. He had always advocated that one candidate should live on that side of the river and there were already two representatives from the other side. The declaration of the other returns were made, and are the same as published.

Ald. Sleeman, the Mayor elect, made a brief acknowledgement of the honour done him, which terminated the proceedings.

Montreal Irishmen are making arrangements to receive Mr. Parnell.

Johnston's fluid beef factory in Montreal is putting through some 150 cattle a week in order to fill their contracts for fluid beef. Quite a demand seems to have sprung up for the manufactured article, and Mr. Johnston states that he employs sixteen men and four boys merely in making the tins he uses for packing, while two experienced cattle men are always engaged in purchasing animals for slaughter.

Tenders are called for the demolition of the stone walls of Fort Garry, the material being required for the foundations of the new buildings which the Hudson Bay Company intend erecting.

It is understood that a determined effort will be made at the annual meeting of the Montreal Telegraph Company, on Thursday next, to ensure a radical change in the Directorate. This movement is headed by a Brantford capitalist, who is reported to hold that the infusion of new blood into the Board would have the effect of materially advancing the interests of the Company.

ROYAL CITY MILLS.

A Large and Well Arranged Flouring Establishment.

Introduction of New Machinery—Improved Mode of Making Flour—Inspection by Expert Judges.

On Tuesday afternoon Messrs. McCullough, of Goldie & McCullough, Galt, David Allan, James Packman, head miller at Goldie's, G. L. Gratiot, of Platteville, Wisconsin, and a number of other gentlemen visited the Royal City Mills for the purpose of inspecting some new and improved machinery which has lately been added to the establishment. The party was met by Mr. Spence, senior partner of the firm of Spence Bros., owners of the mill, who conducted them through the different departments and explained the modus operandi of the various machines.

It may be mentioned that W. Spence, purchased the Royal City Mills, which were part of the Allan Estate, something over a year ago and shortly afterwards took possession. At that time the mill was furnished with first class machinery, but notwithstanding this the proprietors decided on obtaining better facilities for turning out superior flour, and from time to time have been improving the property. With this view, they have added a large number of new, uncommon and expensive machines to their establishment, which will be spoken of hereafter. At present there are four run of stones, constantly going night and day, and a staff of ten men are employed. The manufacturing department is in charge of Charles Spence, who enjoys the reputation of being an efficient miller, and who has established some of the largest mills in the United States.

Every citizen is acquainted with the location and outward appearance of the mills. They occupy a position on the west side of the Speed River, south of the railway bridge, which as a water privilege is scarcely excelled and which is convenient to the railway for shipping purposes. A more substantial structure would be difficult to find. It is built of limestone dressed, the roof being slated. There are three sections to the building. The water mill proper is four storeys and a half in height, extends northwards 130 feet, and is 40 feet in width. The steam mill extends eastwards, and is five storeys and a half in height, being 54 by 50 feet in size. Another section extends from the south end of the Water mill westwards 80 feet and is 30 feet in width. The eastern section is used as storehouses and offices. On entering the water mill, the first object of interest met with were two improved Wheat Heaters, which have just been completed, under the supervision of G. L. Gratiot, of Platteville, Wisconsin. The usefulness of this apparatus is undeniable while its construction is simple and its cost nominal. Steam is generated in a small upright boiler, stationed a few feet distant from the hoppers. A pipe conveys the steam to the heaters, which are fixed immediately above the hoppers a distance away from them. The heaters are twelve inches in diameter by about two feet in length. They are of copper material. The interior of each heater is supplied with two cylinders through which the wheat passes downwards from the elevators to the hoppers. The steam circulates around these cylinders heating the wheat while on its downward course. It is claimed that this process starts the sweat, and draws it to the outside of the berry, which toughens the bran and has a tendency to make the flour purer, and whiter in colour. The apparatus is capable of heating fifteen bushels an hour, while sufficient steam is generated in the boiler to heat the mill as well as supply the heater. When the steam mill is running the heating apparatus can be supplied with steam from the main boiler. The heaters, though scarcely known in Canada are extensively used in the United States. The visitors examined the flour manufactured by this new process and after comparing it with other brands expressed their satisfaction with the manufacture, pronouncing it a very superior article.

MORE IMPROVED MACHINERY.

Spence Bros. have added other machinery besides that spoken of, but as all who take an interest in milling are already acquainted with their working it will be unnecessary to do more than mention them. The firm have placed in the mill two excellent purifiers, one known Smith's and the other as the Garden City make, for purifying middlings and manufacturing a patent flour. There is besides a separator in the mill of Liverpool's manufacture. There is a smut machine, made by Hawes, Babcock & Co. There is a Troop brush machine used also for cleaning wheat. A new chest of boults has been constructed and the old boulding chest has been thoroughly repaired and furnished with new silk.

THE FLOUR.

The firm are turning out three different qualities of flour — the Patent, which is the highest grade, the Straight grade, which is the next class, and the Family flour, which is also a choice manufacture. Under the first quality are made the brands, Jack Frost, Golden Star, and Gem; under the second are made the brands, Solar, Royal City and Bright Bun, and under the third, River Speed and Navy. All these brands are of superior quality.

The party, after examining the new machines inspected the old ones which were found to be in good running order, and having expressed their satisfaction with the whole establishment they took their leave.

During the seven months that navigation was open the Northern and Hamilton & North western Railways carried to Hamilton 4,295,992 bushels of grain, 84,934 barrels of flour, 57,560,000 feet of lumber, 106,500 feet of square timber, 39,057 tons of general merchandise, and 29,149 passengers.

A curious case of the liability of a father for his son's debts arose lately in the Edinburgh Small Debts Court. A tobacconist sued a man for $5.50, being the amount of an account incurred by his son for "tobacco, pipes, lights, ginger beer, &c." during a period of three weeks. The parent appeared and denied liability, on the ground that the articles specified in the account were not necessary for the maintenance of his son, who was sixteen years of age, and lived apart from him. The Court held that the goods supplied were not necessaries, and therefore absolved the father, and gave decree against the son.

REPORT OF CHIEF OF POLICE.

Ald. Gauhan submitted the annual report of the Chief of Police as follows:

I have the honour to submit my report for the year ending 31st Dec., 1879.

During the year two Police Constables have resigned. Two others have been appointed in their place. John Dooley has been promoted from a P. C., to be a Sergeant.

The conduct of the men has been good, no complaints have been reported against any of them.

The work of the patrolmen have been increased this year over previous years, by the addition of Sunday duty. The same number of hours of duty are done on Sunday as on other days, while at the same time, the hour of changing duty is so arranged, as to allow sufficient time for two men to attend church on each Sunday. The duty as now performed is as follows;

Day duty, 9 a.m. till 1 p.m., 2 p.m. till 6 p.m and 7 p.m. till 9 p.m. Night duty, 9 p.m. till 4 a.m. and 11 p.m. till 6 a.m. Each patrolman does one week day duty and two weeks night duty.

A great amount of work has been performed by the police, of which the following is a part:

About 500 notices of Committee meetings have been served upon members of the Council.

Juries have been summoned and inquests attended before Coroners in five cases of accidental death.

Twenty-nine cases of store doors open at night have been tracked and reported.

THE HUSKISSON STREET CROSSING.

Ald. Bruce and Fairbank moved the adoption of the report of the Board of Works.

Ald. Stevenson objected to the clause recommending the acceptance of Pike's tender for the Huskisson street crossing.

The Council went into Committee in consideration of the report.

Ald. Biscoe in the chair.

Ald. Gauhan asked for the names of the tenderers besides Mr. Pike and the amount of their tenders.

Several members thought that it would not be wise to make that information public.

Ald. Sleeman thought the clause should not be carried, and moved, seconded by Ald. Hewer to strike it out.

Ald. Bruce thought the matter should not be delayed longer and should not be left over till next year. The Committee would rather submit what Ald. Gauhan had asked for than throw the responsibility of constructing this crossing on the incoming Council.

Ald. Coffee said the crossing should be built at once, pointing out that the present crossing was dangerous and the city would never secure a more advantageous agreement than Mr. Pike's.

Ald. Mitchell had always objected to constructing an underground crossing as it would be a deformity to the street.

Ald. Chase was not in favour of the resolution, but suggested that it be laid over.

Ald. McGuire and Chase moved as an amendment in substance that the clause be laid over for the consideration of the Council of 1880.

After some additional discussion the question was put and Ald. McGuire's amendment was carried,

The remainder of the report was passed.

In Council

Ald. Bruce and Fairbank moved the adoption of the report as amended.

Ald. Sleeman moved in amendment that the 3rd clause of the report be struck out.

Ald. Bruce's motion was carried.

Ald. Mitchell and Tyson moved the adoption of the 15th report of the Relief Committee. Carried.

BY-LAWS.

Ald. Sleeman—To raise money in advance of assessment of 1880 for carrying on ordinary expenditure of current year.

Ald. Hewer—A by-law to regulate market fees.

In Committee, Ald. Sleeman's by-law was read a second time, when the blank was filled in with $40,000 at 7 per cent.

The Committee rose, the by-law was read a third time, numbered 18, and passed, when it became law.

Ald. Hewer moved the Council into Committee to consider the by-law to regulate market fees.

Ald. Chase and Biscoe moved the adjournment of the Council till Tuesday 13th inst., at the usual hour.

Ald. Gauhan was allowed to move that the report of report of the Chief of Police be received. Carried.

Ald. Chase explained that he wanted to adjourn on account of the large number of accounts to be considered by the Committees. His motion was carried.

The Council adjourned at ten p.m.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The German Emperor has ordered that the fund of more than $60,000 collected on the occasion of his golden wedding, be exclusively devoted to the relief of the famine-stricken Silestans.

The flood in the Seine has abated and the traffic in Paris is resumed. In the Provinces serious damage was done by the floods.

The new tariff has caused wheat to rise 3½, rye 55, barley 25, and oats 40 per cent. The German shipping trade has appreciably declined in consequence of the tariff.

The Panama Canal survey was begun on Monday.

The Lord Mayor of London's Irish relief fund amounts to £5,000.

A great land agitation meeting was held on Tuesday at Riverstown, on the borders of Sligo island. Ten thousand peasantry were present.

A large meeting of the unemployed workingmen of London lately adopted resolutions urging the authorities to provide them with temporary employment; also asking contributions of relief during the present great distress. A resolution in favor of emigration was rejected.

Earl Dunraven writes a long letter from Ireland to the newspapers here treating of the condition of the peasantry of Ireland, the present and past system of land tenure, and the reasons why the proposed alterations in the proprietary system are chimerical. The Earl says he looks in vain through all the speeches of Parnell and his adherents for one glimmer of practical common sense.

The Afghan War.

CABUL, Jan. 6.—The city is perfectly quiet, and supplies plentiful. An amnesty has been offered to the insurgents, except to a few leaders.

Before evacuating Cabul Mahomed Jan wrote to Roberts saying that although for the present retiring, the Afghans would not cease hostilities until the English were driven from Afghanistan.

LAHORE, Jan. 6.—A flying column of a thousand men has been formed for service in the Khyber Pass.

The Times military correspondence writes that with Gough's 2,000 men occupying the Bala Hissar and dominating Cabul there need be no fear of a re-enactment of the scenes witnessed during the occupancy of Mahomed Jan in December, and the occupation of the Bala Hissar will do much to reassure the city people.

Warlike Attitude of Russia.

Troops Converging to the West.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Telegraph vouches for the trustworthiness of a communication dated Konigsberg, December 31st, asserting that the distribution of the Russian army shows a striking convergence towards the western portion of the empire, and that Russia's effective forces are being increased in far greater proportion than would be justified by the object of filling up the vacancies left by the late Russo-Turkish war. Within the past few weeks the strong force already quartered in the Western Provinces has been increased by four divisions of infantry and one of cavalry. This raises the force along the Western frontier to nearly half the entire Russian army on a peace footing. Extensive measures of reorganization and improvement in all departments of the service are being pushed forward. The greatest activity also prevails in increasing the means of communication and providing halting places. Military railways are being constructed, supplies for arsenals, building material, uniforms, etc., are being made on a fast scale, with scarcely any attempt at concealment. The work of arming the frontier fortresses is being effected with the utmost promptitude.

BERLIN, Jan'y. 8.—Russian troops are again permitted to speak of an impending war against Russia and Germany. The coming campaign is the talk of the day in the military coffee-houses of Kieff, Kamienec, Podolsk, Khitomeer, and other garrisson towns near the Austrian frontier.

VIENNA, Jan. 6.—A Pesth correspondent semi-officially denies the recent reports of movements of the Russian army towards the Austrian frontier.

Governor Cornell, of New York, for his New Year's dinner, had a gift of a turkey weighing dressed for the fire exactly forty-one pounds.

The Directors of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway have effected arrangements with the English bondholders, and the work of broadening the gauge will be commenced at once. Terms have also been made with the Grand Trunk by which the cars of that Company will run through over the Toronto, Grey & Bruce.

WEDNESDAY EV'G, JANUARY 7, 1880

Are County Councils Necessary?

This is the age of change and revolution. Emperors and kings feel most convincingly the instability of their positions, and realize more keenly than ever the truth of the epigram:—"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." Long established forms of government, civil and social institutions, appear on the very verge of anarchy or the eve of dissolution; while heritors of long pedigrees and vast estates find that titles and riches no longer serve to keep the masses in awe, but are rather the elements of danger and weakness which now serve only to expose them to the envy or rapacity of their fellows.

Even in our own favored Dominion, where the will of the people is the recognized power which makes and unmakes the law and the officer who enforces it, the spirit of restlessness and change is abroad loudly clamouring for a hearing. At our last Local election, "Over representation" was thought to be an effective and judicious war cry, and as such was put forth in many counties to catch the vote of the electors, and now our august "County Parliaments" are thought to be an expensive and unnecessary part of the machinery of our much governed country.

From our exchanges we learn that this feeling is very general and wide spread, arising it would seem chiefly from the conviction, that the work done and the expense of doing it, might be much more economically and better done in some other way. It is very generally admitted that in Counties where from thirty to fifty members constitute the Council, the whole work is done by six or eight men; while, as the Stratford Beacon puts it, the remainder may be found at all hours of the day kicking up their heels about town, to the tune of several dollars a day and mileage. But this is not the only charge brought against them in the same quarter. They are, it is said, "supposed to be in session from Tuesday till Saturday afternoon, while the whole work done would not occupy six business men more than five or six hours." The whole business is for the most part rushed through on Friday and a few hours on Saturday morning, while all the early part of the week is taken up in logrolling and parading the streets. These abuses which seem to be very general, are not the only ones which are found connected with this division of our municipal system. It is a principle utterly subversive of all true economy, which allows any set of men to vote away Township or County money which they themselves have an interest in spending, since it is a fact that the revenue which flows into the pocket of any Commissioner has a very intimate relation to the amount spent under his supervision. Little wonder that under the operation of such a principle County indebtedness is rapidly augmented.

But apart from the view that may be taken of the foregoing charges, the main question after all is; Can we do without County Councils? or how can the work which they are now supposed to do, be equally well and more economically performed? First, what is the work to be done? The different items to which their duties or supervision extends are perhaps nearly all embraced in the following list:—They levy the County rates and direct the expenditure on gravel roads, bridges, &c. They have the care of the County buildings and other County property. They equalize the assessment in some incomprehensible way, and have something to do with the administration of justice and our High and Public School education. With regard to the first, it is altogether more than probable that each Municipality could much wiser and more economically levy and expend its own money on its own roads and bridges than have it voted away to some other municipality (as is now very generally whispered), to secure a longer tenure of office, or buy another year's Wardenship for some of those more ambitious or tenacious of honor. As to boundary and boundary line bridges, it is certain that these could be much better managed by the Municipalities more immediately interested than they are managed at present. With regard to the second, the Beacon very pertinently asks, if it requires "fifty able-bodied men to look after our old gaol and courthouse." We in Wellington might find it necessary to divide the force, leaving one-half to watch the Poor House. This supervision as it now exists, is to all intents and purposes an expensive farce. Does any one at all fit to judge in the matter pretend to say that a periodical report, say from our County Judge, Sheriff and County Attorney, as a Committee of Supervision, would not be much more effective than a hurried parade through a few cells and coridors at the close of the Council session? If it be objected that these officials would not make their report with a due regard to economy, but on the other hand advocate an extravagant expenditure, let their incomes, salaries and money investments be taxed for County purposes, as those of poorer men, and they will have a sufficiently keen eye to economy, while they will be altogether free from the temptation of voting money to keep themselves in office.

We have said the assessment was equalized in some incomprehensible way? A few men sit in Committee to levy rates and equalize the assessment on lands, a great part of which they have never seen, so that the whole thing rests largely upon the report of others, while the wise guardians of the public good settle the whole business in the dark. Surely three Commissioners who might be appointed to do this work at intervals, say of three or five years, from personal inspection, and independent of the varying assessment sheets of the different municipalities, would be a much more satisfactory method of attaining to a correct estimate, and consequently a just equilization of County Assessment. But if the view taken of County roads and bridges be admitted, this would be altogether an unnecessary piece of labour and expense, since this work could be more satisfactorilly and economically performed by each Municipality for itself. Under such an arrangement the very interesting business of equalizing the assessment and caring for our County gravel roads would disappear altogether, when like Othello, some of our County fathers would find their occupation gone. Their duties in connection with the Administration of Justice and the educational affairs of the County can easily be put on a more satisfactory footing, so soon as they themselves are able to define what those duties are, and how they are performed. We venture to say that very few of their constituents know of any very important service they have rendered to either the one or the other. Looking, therefore, at the whole case from the different points of view above stated, we are lead unavoidably to the conclusion that our County Councils are very much in need of a remodeling, if they cannot be dispensed with altogether. In their present form, and with their present numbers they are a clumsy, unmanageable and not very efficient part of our machinery, of which it may be safely said, "their usfulness is gone," and their uselessness becoming every day more apparent.

During the coming session of Parliament it will be found that an enlarged system of "National Currency" notes will be adopted.

No writ has yet been issued for a new election in Cornwall. The delay is inexplicable, and augurs ill for the success of Dr. Bergin. However the contest may end in Cornwall, all reports from Stormont, where an election for the Local Legislature shortly takes place, point to the fact that the constituency will be redeemed by the Reformers.

The contest has commenced vigorously in North Lanark. All reports from the Riding assert that Mr. Macdonell, the Liberal standard-bearer, stands a good chance of winning the victory. Mr. Jamieson's friends are dispirited. They know that steps have been taken to provide their candidate with a judgeship in the event of his certain defeat.

It is yet questionable whether Mr. Ellis will succeed Mr. Bodwell or not as Superintendent of the Welland Canal, owing to the row raised by the Rykert men, some of whom are anxious for the position. What the result will be cannot be foretold. The removal of Mr. Bodwell from the superintendency of the Welland Canal is considered to be a very small piece of business by the friends of the Government as the appointment of Mr. Ellis, of Prescott, as his successor has been made purely out of political reasons.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Colonel Clarke Elected Speaker.

Toronto,—Jan. 8. Shortly after two o'clockthe members began to file into the old Legislative buildings at three o'clock, when Attorney General and the rest of the Members of the Government filed into the chamber. There was a pretty full muster, but this being only preliminary opening for election of speaker, the attendance of the public was very limited. Messrs. Meredith, Morris, Lauder, Parkhill and Bell, occupied front benches to the left of the Speaker's chair, while on the right, members of the Government were in front, all their old followers being in near proximity, while the new members sat behind the retired desks.

Shortly after the Clerk of the House called the members to order. Silence prevailed.

Mr. Mowat rose, and addressing the Clerk pointed out that the first duty of a newly elected Legislature was to elect one of their number to preside over the Council, or in other words to chose a Speaker. He gave several reasons why he thought it was advisable to maka a change and concluded by nominating Col. Clark, member for Centre Wellington, for the Speakership. In doing so the Attorney-General pointed out the many years experience Col. Clark had had as a legislator and said he felt sure not only his own friends but hon. gentlemen opposite would unite with him in the opinion that there was no hon. gentlemen in the House more entirely qualified for the position.

Mr. Mowat resumed his seat amidst general applause from both sides of the chamber.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Col. Clarke then advanced to the Speaker's chair and thanked the members for the honor done him. He promised he would discharge his duties impartially, and to the best of his abilities.

The House then adjourned to meet tomorrow at three o'clock for formal opening by the Lieut.-Governor, who will then deliver his speech.

This evening the members of the Government entertain their supporters at a dinner in the National Club.

OTTAWA,

Sault Ste Marie Railway Scheme.—Death of the Privy Council Clerk.—Fire.

Ottawa, January 7.

Sir Charles Tupper will meet a deputation at Montreal, on Thursday afternoon, in connection with the Sault Ste Marie Railway scheme.

Mr. W. A. Himsworth, Clerk of Privy Council, died at four o'clock this morning after a protracted illness, at the age of 60 years.

Between eight and nine o'clock this morning, E. B. Eddy's dry houses at Hull were discovered to be on fire. They were filled with tub and pail staves, the greater portion of which were destroyed or so damaged with water as to interfere with their immediate use. Loss estimated at about $3,000 or $4,000, fully covered by insurance.

Toronto Mayoralty.

Toronto, Jan. 7th. Mayor Beaty was elected by 900 majority.

More Annexation Talk—Sir Francis Hincks on the Subject.

Montreal, Jan. 7.—A letter appears today from Sir Francis Hincks, on the questions of annexation and independence. He maintains the views which he stated lately in the New York Herald, and asserts that annexation could only be accomplished after civil war. He thinks the present position of Canada an enviable one, and any attempt to give effect to the principles of independence or annexation, would lead to civil war.

Gas Explosion.

Quebec, Jan. 7.—An explosion of gas occurred this morning at Gilbert's foundry, Champlain street, by the bursting of a main. The brigade was called out, but no damage was caused.

Personal.—Mr. James Laidlaw, M.P.P., left for Toronto to-day to attend to his Parliamentrry duties.

Mr. Jas. Shannon, senior proprietor of the Kingston News, has been appointed postmaster of that city, filling a vacancy which has been kept open for nearly a year. We congratulate Mr. Shannon on his appointment.

Election for School Trustee.—The contest between Messrs. Burgess and H. H. Swinford for representative on the School Board for St. George's Ward is in progress to-day (Wednesday). The polling is going on at the Court House, the vote being an open one. There is no excitement over the election. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the vote stood:—Mr. Burgess 66, Mr. Swinford 4.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

CHAPTER XVI.

A LAPSE OF TIME AND A CHANGE OF SCENE—SAD EVENTS AT MARSTON GRANGE—AN HONEST LAWYER COMES INTO VIEW.

So long as he was Orwell Bruce's trustee the affairs of the estate and the youth himself were well looked after: but, as by the terms of Mr. Bruce's will, the youth obtained full power and independence when he reached his majority, neither the one nor the other were any longer in his careful keeping. The lawyer was still factor and law agent for the Grange, and in virtue of his former position continued to exercise an informal influence over the youth; but his legal power was gone, and of late he thought there was reason to regret that it was so. The nature of the soliloquy in which he indulged as he walked across the park gives full indication of the cause of his misgivings.

Having learned from one of the servants whom he met near the mansion that Orwell had not yet returned he abandoned his purpose to call at the house, and going down the avenue passed out by the lodge gate into the road which led to Cairntree.

The visit of Mr. Bishop to the cottage on that sultry afternoon had thrown Mrs. Borland into a state of intense anxiety. The idea he had presented to her mind that an affection was growing up between her daughter and the young proprietor of the Grange which might lead to untoward consequences was something too preposterous ever to be dreaded of by her, but now that it had been placed before her an hour's silent reflection seemed but to increase her uneasiness. Young, guileless, unconscious of the nature of her feelings and of the impropriety of indulging them, Agnes might have allowed herself to regard Orwell Bruce with a tenderness wholly unfit for her to cherish, while he on his part might have come to like his playmate too well, now that she had grown into the beauty and loveliness of opening womanhood. Out of such an affection only pain and disappointment could come, and the anxious mother longed for the coming of her child to set her mind at rest, and put Agnes on her guard. She clung to the hope that it was all a mistake; yet, when in the dusk she saw Agnes coming slowly across the park to the cottage, with Orwell walking close by her side, a great fear come upon her, and a dark foreboding of coming evil took possession of her soul.

CHAPTER XVII.

AN IMPORTANT CONVERSATION BETWEEN AGNES BORLAND AND HER MOTHER—A MAIDEN'S HEART MAKES ITS FIRST ACQUAINTANCE WITH TROUBLE.

There was a seat in the rustic porch of the cottage, facing the west, and there Mrs. Borland sat herself down to await the coming of her daughter. She expected that Orwell Bruce, having accompanied Agnes so far across the park, would come to the cottage itself, and she felt so flurried after the interview with Mr. Bishop, that she was afraid her discomposure would be observed. It gave her great relief, therefore, to see the pair come to a stand under one of the large trees, and, after lingering there for a minute or two, separate—Orwell going back in the direction of the mansion, and Agnes walking forward with a light elastic step towards the cottage.

What proud swelling thoughts rose in the mother's bosom to mingle with the anxious ones which had found a place there, as she contemplated the fair form and naturally graceful movements of the advancing girl. The figure of Agnes was nearly faultless in its symmetry. Without being strikingly tall, she was, even at the age of nineteen, above the ordinary height of women, was well grown in all respects, had a full rounded robust appearance denoting perfect health and the physical energy which health supplies. Her form was singularly well proportioned, and as the character of her dress was exactly suited to her handsome shape, it served to enhance her naturally fine appearance. Her walk was in pleasing harmony with her external aspect, unstudied in its gracefulness, entirely free from affectation, without indication of pride or affectedness, so often assumed in the vanity of female youht, yet instinctively refined and artistic in movement, betraying, as a girl's walk almost invariably does, the elements of her character and qualities of heart and disposition.

Looking with eyes of a mother's fondness and affection, Mrs. Borland confessed that so far as outward appearance went her daughter was fit mate for any man, even for Orwell Bruce; and knowing also how her mind had been developed and elevated by the education she had received, she had further to acknowledge that she was capable of conducting herself with perfect propriety even as mistress of the Grange—a social elevation which she was certain would not turn her head or cause her to bring disgrace on the man who raised her to it. But Mrs Borland quickly remembered that bodily and mental fitness constitute no claim to such a high position when weighed against humble origin and mean social rank—these mighty disqualifications in the eyes of the world, which nought else might overcome. She saw, however in the light cast on the matter by Mr. Bishop's observations how possible it was for such a generous impulsive youth as Orwell to be smitten with her charms, and therefore the imperative necessity which existed of warning Agnes against allowing either his affections or her own to centre upon each other in the form of love.

If the figure of Agnes Borland was thus attractive, her face was no less charming in its comeliness. The freshness of her complexion, the bloom on her cheeks, the the fine regularity of her features, the calm intelligent expression of her countenance, the clear light in her open dark blue eyes drew forth admiration and inspired regard. She seemed to have inherited her mother's beauty, and in combination therewith a good share of her father's strong solid nature. In her the Jessie Borland of seventeen years ago was preserved, but with added grace, refinement, and intellectual power—the result of paternal derivation and educational training.

Her aspect as she came towards the cottage in the rich light of the summer gloaming was happy and animated as if the day that was ending had been to her one of special enjoyment. There was gladness in the sparkle of her eyes, in the warm flush upon her cheeks, in the lingering smile upon her face, as if life to her was then bright and joyous—without a shadsw, and full of precious promise. But a deep, dark shadow was coming to cloud the sunshine of her spirit; unknown to her, it was very near. Ere her head pressed the pillow that night its chilling gloom was to come upon her.

Harriston Correspondence.

There has been a Caledonian Society in existence here for nearly three years. The two first annual entertainments of the Society were in the shape of a ball and supper, which were in all respects successful. This year they took a new departure, and placed it in the shape of a musical and literary entertainment, which was attended with equal success. The entertainment succeeded in bringing a larger and more diversified crowd together than could be done by the old method, though the old method had a good effect on the bearing of the society. The annual gathering this year took place on Tuesday evening of last week, and the only fault in the writer's opinion in connection with it was the absence of lady singers—something unusual here. While our Scotch friends in Harriston and vicinity are desirous of perpetuating a national sentiment by the means of such a Society, they think the Caledonian's should not lose sight of the very essential element of gallantry and ignore the services of the fair sex. Had this entertainment been more varied by the presence of one or two lady vocalists, it would be less subject to unfavourable criticism. Prof. Lee, of Brantford, presided at the piano with his well known ability, and gave several instrumental pieces, as well as playing the accompaniments for the singers. Prof. Maitland enlivened, yea doubtless, inspired the hearts of his fellow countrymen by his fine renderings of the songs of his Father land, taking them, in imagination, back to the heather hills and other scenes of their childhood. James Kennedy, of Brantford, who has become a favourite, acquitted himself nobly in his rendering of both comic and sentimental songs. The manner in which he gave Uncle Tom's Lament, is worthy of special praise, and the loud encore he received was well deserved. His horse act, which is a new feature originated by himself, was grand and could not help bringing a laugh from the most sedate old sage in the land. Our old friend Snyder delivered a humorous oration, or how to put out a fire, which was good. Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, of Guelph, figured as the mental portion of the programme by an address on the use of such Societies, in which he acquitted himself most nobly. He dwelt with considerable pathos on the love which Scotchmen bore for their native land and held in doing so, they made better citizens of Canada. Mr. Johnston pointed out how Scotchmen had distinguished themselves both as soldiers, statesmen and in other public capacities, showing they held the most important positions, or if they didn't they would like to. Mr. Johnston wound up his speech with eloquent praise of Canada, the land of our adoption, and hoped all nationalties would work together for its benefit. The affair was brought to a close by all singing Auld Lang Syne and God Save the Queen.

The advancement of christianity and civilization having naturally awakened the conscience of the people to the fact that churches must be built, and also that churches must be paid for as a matter of course, have taxed the financial genius of the people to devise means whereby to wipe off the large debts incurred by their erection. Private subscriptions are a prime movement. Some years ago private house socials were inaugurated, and the result is they are to be a great source of strength to the monetary concerns of the church. Now if a man builds a new house instead of employing a fiddler, inviting his friends and having a dance, he is expected to give a house warming, in the shape of a church social, and extend a general invitation to the public to come and contribute their mite towards liquidating the church debt, receiving in return, over and above the spiritual benefit he receives from the church, the kind hospitality of the host and hostess, besides meeting in social intercourse with his friends and neighbors. Mr. John Copland, of Minto, built during the past summer, a fine farm residence, and having some time ago got it comfortably furnished and fitted up in such a manner as to render home attractive, he felt that the duty devolved on him of giving a house warming in aid of the church. He accordingly chose New Year's night, which is a favorite day among his countrymen,the Scotch. The crowd began to gather about 6 o'clock p.m, and were most corteously received by Mr. and Mrs. Copland and family. Tables were erected in the splendid large dining room of his splendid new brick residence, and were laden with a spread that could scarcely be surpassed. Having partaken of the good things, singing, parlor croquet etc., were indulged in, Miss McNevin gave some fine selections of instrumental music. Mr. Blackwood gave one of his popular readings. Short addresses were given by the Rev. Mr. Campbell and Messrs A. Meiklejohn, Thos. Thompson and R. Blackwood, after which the crowd despersed, wishing Mr. and Mrs Copland and family a happy New Year.

Mr. C. F. Ming, late Principal of the Central School, has great reason to be proud of the result of the tenor of his incumbancy here. The school generally has made rapid progress under his management. At the midsummer examinations sixteen of his pupils succeeded in passing their examination for entrance to the High School ,one of whom won the gold medal which was offered for the pupil who took the highest number of marks. And at the late examination he had 26 pupils up for examination for entrance to the High School, all of whom succeeded in passing. This certainly speaks well for the future of Paisley school where Mr. Ming has gone to enter on the duties of principal.

The C. M. Church Sabbath School anniversary was duly celebrated on New Year's day by a sleigh ride and social. The day being fine the affair was very enjoyable. The social in the evening was also good and heartily enjoyed by both parents and children.

The first carnival of the season took place on the skating rink on New Years night. Owing to so many other things absorbing public attention it was not largely attended. The ice and other arrangements however were well managed, and had the turn out been equal to Mr. Lavin's preparations it would have been much more brilliant. He purposes having another soon which will doubtless be patronized more in accordance with its merits.

A DIPLOMATIC SAVAGE.—Savages have always been remarkable for shrewdness in their simplicity, and Cetewayo, the Zulu, is no exception. When leaving his kingdom as a prisoner of war he expressed great anxiety about his own welfare, about his wives, and about certain relations; but he never said a word about a son. This reticence, while disparaging to his parental tenderness, reflects the highest credit on his diplomacy, for, though Cetewayo might be a prisoner, his son, so long as he was in Zululand, would, he knew, still keep a corner in the Zulu heart warm for him. Visitors to the King have come away delighted with his candor and his loquacity, but that secret of a son never escapes the lips of the candid and talkative monarch. To the conjurers sent to amuse him he seemed to open his heart without any reservation, and when the pipers of the Ninety-first squealed and droned before him he confided to them, after his first astonishment and bewilderment had subsided, his inmost thoughts. He imparted to them details of his daily life and his most cherished hopes. Above all, he told them how he longed to be dressed himself like a Highland piper—but he never said a word about a son. This youth, however, is a very substantial fact, twelve years old, and very fat. He is living at present with Cetewayo's brother, Umdwakwaha, and has interviewed the British authorities at Ulundi.

In 1878, the shipments of coal from Cape Breton were 234,071 tons; this year it has reached only 191,000 tons—a falling off of 43,000 tons, or fully 18 per cent. The whole country has been afflicted with a most oppressive tax on one of the first necessaries of life, to foster an industry which has produced 18 per cent. less than its annual product before the imposition of the tax.

From the criminal statistics just published by the Government of Italy it appears that in the first nine months of 1879 there were no fewer than 2,900 murders or attempts at murder committed in the kingdom being an average of ten and two-thirds a day. In the same period of three-quarters of a year there occurred 1,900 cases of highway robbery, of the perpetrators of which as many as 800 had entirely escaped the hands of justice.

Mr. Parnell and His Errand.

(From the N. Y. Tribune.)

With the arrival of Mr. Parnell begins the anticipated systematic effort to raise money for Ireland. Indeed, the effort begun some days ago as the Reception Committee obtained subscriptions to pay all the expenses of the formal welcome, "in order that the total receipts of Sunday evening's meeting might be given to "relieving the distresses in Ireland." THE TRIBUNE has no wish to chill the ardor of the welcome given to Mr. Parnell. Every man is entitled to a fair hearing; and this modern agitator appears to be a man o exceptional ability and tact, and plays the role of defender of a class who, undoubtedly, have suffered much from depression in the past and from neglect in the present. His personal motives for adopting this role are matters with which we are not concerned. Whether he is a pure patriot or a demagogue is a fact of real importance only to Mr. Parnell and his Irish constituency. The substantial aid for which he asks is, however, our concern.

His objects in coming here are authoritatively stated to be three in number. First, to enlighten the American public as to the principles of the Home Rule party; which is an act of superfluous benevolence on his part, as all intelligent Americans who are likely to take any interest in the matter have long ago had every opportunity of informing themselves of Mr. Parnell's side of the question from his own published speeches. We can hardly conceive it possible that the leader of a political party should desert his post to make converts at three thousand miles distance if he wanted nothing from them but sympathy. Secondly, Mr. Parnell comes, we are told, to raise money for the starving poor of Ireland. By all accounts, there will be distress in Ireland this Winter; but there are as yet no authentic reports of immediate want. No movement for relief has taken place in England, or even in Ireland itself. The Roman catholic clergy of this city, who are quite as likely to know and sympathize with the physical wants of the Irish peasantry as this purely political leader, declined last week to collect money for the purpose, as "such a movement was premature." Nor, if the help was needed, was it necessary for Mr. Parnell to quit his post and come and ask for it. He knows, and all the world knows, that a statement of real suffering in Ireland would meet with as speedy and generous relief from the United States in 1880 as it did in 1846 and '47.

Thirdly (and now we come to the real purport of the visit), Mr. Parnell comes to solicit money to sustain the cause of Home Rule. There is little doubt that he will get it. There are ardent Irishmen of Fenian proclivities who will pour out their dollars to keep up a cause which they hold to be patriotic and just. But the Americans to whom this orator appeals for help will, we strongly suspect, make haste but slowly to give hard cash, either to support inflammatory orators or to arm malcontents in Ireland. Having none of the patriotic sentiment about the Green Isle so natural to Rory, they are able to see clearly, which he does not, that the Green Isle never has yielded him a maintenance, and never will. There is a poorer chance for an Irishman in Ireland than anywhere else in the world, and this is not entirely the fault of the English. Suppose the battle fought, the Home Rulers victorious, and Rory the owner of his worn-out patch and mud cabin. Rory, with his social and religious surroundings unchanged, the moral moralis of his serfdom yet tainting the air, would, in nine cases out of ten, remain the thriftless, generous, discontented, drunken, idle fellow he is to-day. Pick Rory up bodily, and set him down on a rich virgin soil, among alert, sober, pushing Protestant Americans, and you give him in a day the consciousness of manhood, actual comfort and boundless possibilities in the future for himself and his children.

We are told by those who speak for Mr. Parnell that the Irish are too poor to emigrate. A steerage ticket and a few dollars to support them while looking for work, cost but little, and Americans will be more likely to contribute that little, which will result in practical, real good both to Rory and to their own country, than to throw their money into the gaping, bottomless gulf, open for a century or two, of Irish reform. Mr. Parnell should change his tactics and appear as agent for an emigration fund.

Pay-up and Then Talk.

There is a whole sermon in the following incident, which we find in a religious newspaper, and which inculcates one's duty to his neighbor in a way too direct and plain to be misunderstood. It is best, moralizes the journal referred to, to settle up, and pay up: and then it will be in order to talk in the prayer-meeting. The story is this:

"At a church prayer meeting not far from Boston, a man whose credit was not the best, and who was somewhat noted for his failure to meet his obligations, arose to speak. The subject for the evening was, 'What shall I do to be saved?' Commencing in measured tones he quoted the passage, 'What shall I do to be saved?' He paused, and again more emphatically asked the question, 'What shall I do to be saved?' Again, with increased solemnity and impressiveness of manner, he repeated the momentous enquiry, when a voice from the assembly, in clear and distinct tones, answered, 'Go and pay John Williams for that yoke of oxen you bought of him!' The remainder of the gentleman's address was not reported. All present appreciated the fitness of the unexpected word in season, and were saved from hearing a lengthy exhortation from a swindler's lips."

The incident has led us to think that there are a good many people who, before they make much progress in walking in the way of salvation themselves, or guiding others therein, will have to "Go and pay John Williams" or John somebody else, the money that they honestly owe him. We are enjoined to do rightly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly. There is no lack of talking Christians in commerce, but many of these, to be consistent, must set an example of doing.

The Injury of the High Protective Tariff.

The New York Times, like many other sensible American journals, is coming to the conclusion that high protective tariffs are an economic mistake. Speaking of high import duties, it says:

"These interfere with foreign commerce by checking imports, since foreign commerce, as much as domestic, is normally an exchange of goods for goods, rather than goods for money. They also check such commerce because every duty which protects one industry necessarily imposes a burden upon others, generally more extensive and important, taken together. Thus the duty on iron is a tax on every industry in the land, since, besides the burden it lays on the raw material of all tools and machinery for export or for home use, it enters into the cost of every process of manufacture by increasing the cost of transportation and of living. A like effect, though less extensive, is exerted by the tax on ship-building material and the prohibition of foreign-built ships, by that on wool and woollens, and in a most striking afshion by the tax on copper."

The despatch sent to some of the Western papers regarding the prevalence of small-pox in Ottawa is overdrawn. The evil is not so serious as reported, there being only from ten to twelve cases now known to the Board of Health.

Northern Municipal Councils are petitioning the Governor-General in Council for aid in the construction of the Pacific Junction Railway.

THE MORMON TEMPLE.—The new Mormon tabernacle, which has been three years in course of erection at Salt Lake, was opened on Saturday by the Conference. Apostle President Taylor attacked the enemies of polygamy, severely censuring the nation for its opposition to the choice institution of Mormonism. Now he wanted to see whether heaven or Uncle Sam was going to prevail. For his part he was going to stick to the Lord. He called for an expression from the audience, which embraced 5,000 people, asking them to raise their hands before God if they sympathized in his defiance of Government interference. The enthusiasm was intense. All hands went up and mothers lifted aloft the hands of their children. Apostle Smith followed in the same strain, exhibiting a defiant attitude. There is considerable rivalry among the Mormon chiefs for power in Church government and the struggle promises to come to an open rupture.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER AT PORT ELGIN.—Mr. Joseph Stirton, one of the early settlers of Saugeen, having decided owing to the ill health of himself and family, to remove to the County of Wellington, was tendered a complimentary supper last Friday evening at the Tremont House. About forty gentlemen sat down to a sumptuous repast. The chair was occupied by J. Pierson, Esq., Reeve of Saugeen; H. Hilker, Esq., Reeve of Port Elgin, acting as Vice. Mr. Stirton, in a neat little speech, thanked his friends who accorded to him this mark of appreciation of his services. He felt that he had done nothing but what was his duty. He had come into this settlement when it was an unbroken forest, and had worked his way steadily along. He regretted leaving Saugeen, and the many friends he had in the section. As he had not sold out his place, he would occasionally pay the old home a visit, and would feel much pleasure on meeting with old associates. A number of gentlemen expressed their regret in parting with Mr. Stirton. They had always found him a kind and warm friend, and they hoped that he might spend his last days in this neighborhood.—Free Press.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

A Liverpool correspondent says that Judah P. Benjamin has been retained for the Claimant in the Tichborne case.

The Irish rent agitation has entered a new phase, and extends from rural to urban localities. A movement is afoot to agitate for remission or reduction of rents on the part of the poorer householder-tenants in Dublin and other large towns.

The Irish Times states that the Government has determined to use $1,250,000 of the Church surplus as a fund, to be loaned at exceptionally low interest to landlords and local bodies for expenditure in the construction of permanent works, in order to provide labour for unskilled workmen. It is said the loans are to be repaid in thirty-five years.

It is curious that the central parts of France and the North of England seem to suffer most from the weather. Probably the comparatively warm currents of the sea protect the south and west coasts of England, of Scotland (where the air is intensely cold, but flooded during the day with brilliant sunshine), and the parts of France bordering on the Channel.

The Indian Government has decided that the rules respecting war correspondents shall no longer be enforced, but the military commanders shall be allowed to impose such restrictions as may be deemed necessary.

In the building of the Tay bridge a warning was given that seems not to have been heeded. On the first day of February, 1877, a storm carried away a pier and two immense iron girders, each of which weighed two hundred tons. The engineer that bridged the Tay is now engaged on a similar structure over the Frith of Forth, which is near the Edinburgh end of the same railroad that crosses the Tay.

Immense damage has been caused to property by floods in Michigan. Large quantities of lumber and several bridges have been swept away, dams washed out, and cattle drowned.

Suits are to be entered against the corporation of Montreal for endeavoring to collect taxes by threats and false pretences—by threatening to publish the names of defaulters and then neglecting to do so.

WEATHER PROBS.—Foggy, continued mild weather with rain areas.

PERSONAL.—Messrs J. C. Larkin and B. S. Burrows, New Zealand, are registered at the Wellington Hotel.

THE annual meeting of the Bible Society will be held in Chalmers' Church this evening, Thursday, at 7.30.

THE Globe has sent us a counting house calendar for 1880, which is very neatly got up, and will be highly appreciated by business men especially.

DRUNKENNESS.—Maria Laycock was arrested while drunk on Macdonnell street yesterday afternoon. At the Police Court this morning she was discharged.

THE BIBLE SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Guelph Branch of the Bible Society will take place to-night in Chalmers' Church. Chair to be taken at 7.30.

THE SOUP KITCHEN.—Several farmers who have promised to contribute small supplies of peas to the soup kitchen have forgotten to do so. The present stock is almost exhausted, and Mrs. Edwards would feel obliged if those who made promises would hasten to fulfil them.

EDUCATIONAL.—The education department have given notification that from January 1st 1880, the department propose only to allow thirty-three and one-third per cent on appropriations made by School Boards for purchases made from the Educational Depositary or booksellers. The allowance formerly was fifty per cent.

DRAUGHT CLUB.—At the meeting of this Club, held on Wednesday night at the American Hotel, Mr. Naismith, President, and Mr. Michie, Vice-President, chose sides, and played a match. The result being that Mr. Naismith beat his opponent by 22 to 14.

RUNAWAY.—This (Thursday) morning a team of horses belonging to Mr. John Porter, and being driven by his son, took fright while on the Market Square and ran away with a load of hay. They turned down Essex street and when opposite Dr. Keating's office the load upset, throwing the driver to the ground with great force. The horses continued on their mad course a short distance farther when they were stopped. Mr. Porter, jr., did not sustain any material injury through the fall.

PROF. W. C. RICHARDS, M. A., Ph. D., who for the past sixteen years has given delightful and instructive popular Science entertainments with wonderful success in cities and towns from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, will give under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., a course of three lectures, also a grand matinee, on the 29th, 30th and 31st of January. These lectures will impart, in an evening, more knowledge of Physical Science in its present advancement than the reader can obtain from books in weeks, and bring to his eye as well as his mind, the recent achievements of Science.

THE SOFT WEATHER visiting us at present seems to be pretty general over Ontario, and as a result, the rivers lately frozen are being fast covered with water, which, if it should freeze up again shortly would gladden the hearts of the votaries of the skates, and give them any amount of chance to enjoy themselves. An old country man remarked this morning that he thought London must have shifted round this way, for he had not seen much more disagreeable weather in that city at this season of the year. Some enthusiastic curlers are awfully down in the countenance at the way Dame Nature is serving them.

WHERE THE COATS WENT TO.—We referred the other day to the stealing of two overcoats and an undercoat from the hall of Reynold's Hotel, Cork Street, on Monday night. Chief McMillan has just found a clue to the theft, but, unfortunately, too late to get hold of the suspected parties. On Monday night two tramps were given a nights' lodgings in the Police Station, they must have prowled round all day on Tuesday, and on the evening of that day stolen the articles from the hotel. On Wednesday morning Mr. Patterson, who has charge of the lumber yard at the G. T. R. Station, found among the lumber pile some old cast-off coats, which were identified as belonging to the two tramps who got lodgings in the station on Monday night. They had, evidently, changed their worn out rags for the good coats stolen, and likely made their way east or west on some freight train on Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, and thus got beyond the range of arrest.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION.—At the close of the poll in St. George's Ward, yesterday, the vote stood Burgess, 113; Swinford, 7.

IMPROVED BOATS.—Mr. A. Craig, who intends letting boats at the Eramosa River next summer, is determined on having a good supply of boats. He is going to Toronto in a few days to superintend the construction of a number of pleasure boats, skiffs, and one or two shells, which will be placed on the river for hire next spring. Mr. Fred. Ellis is also about purchasing a sliding seat racing shell, which he is going to place on the Speed River, above Allan's dam.

THE COAL TRADE IN GUELPH.—On Tuesday last, we are informed, fourteen car loads of coal arrived in Guelph by the G. W. R., from Pennsylvania, and our informant tells us that more coal has been brought into this city this year than any year previous. The great bulk of the coal arrivals this year has been taken up by the dealers, although private parties have in some instances taken car loads. The prices average from $5.50 to $5.75 per ton, although we have heard of sales at $5.00. The number of teams that are to be seen daily employed carting it over the Paisley road into the city will give an idea of the quantity consumed.

About the Price of Bread.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Can you explain why bread in Guelph costs fourteen cents per 4 lb. loaf and in Toronto only ten to eleven cents?

Also, how it is that gas is sold at $3 per 1,000 ft. here, while in Brantford, a place situated like Guelph, as regards facility for obtaining coal, &c., it is sold at $2 per 1,000?

Does not the reason why manufacturers avoid our city as a location lie in the existence of such a state of affairs? Perhaps a further comparison may do no harm. I am sure the consumers in Guelph are no better able to pay overprices than those at Brantford and Toronto.

Yours, &c.,
A CONSUMER.

Guelph, Jan. 7, 1880.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md-

The annual report of the Montreal Telegraph Co. has been issued, preparatory to the annual meeting. It shows that the contingent fund has been reduced about $27,000, to pay the seven per cent. dividend of the year, but the earnings of the Company and the expenses were about the same as last year, the latter being, however, a trifle less. The statement of assets and liabilities gives the former at $2,362,734 and the latter at $2,078,467.

An important case is being tried at the Assize Court before Judge Cameron and a special jury. The action is one brought by Mr. McLaren, of Carleton Place, against the Canada Central Railway Co. for $150,000 for lumber destroyed by fire caused by a spark from a locomotive. Plaintiff contends that the Company is guilty of negligence in not having the most modern scientific appliances to prevent sparks issuing from the bonnet of the engine.

On Wednesday afternoon as two newsboys named Downs and Orr were playing together in Toronto, the former struck the latter a blow with a broom-handle in the stomach, causing him to swallow a quarter which he had in his mouth. The boy fell in convulsions and became black in the face and insensible. A medical man was sent for, who succeeded in forcing the silver piece down his throat. He lies in a precarious condition.

The St. John, N. B., relief society in December assisted 706 persons and refused 334. Provisions were issued to 427, clothing to twenty, shelter to 295.

An Order in-Council has been approved by the Lieutenant Governor, based upon the report of the Inspector of Insurance, prohibiting the Empire Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Toronto, from taking any further risks, on the ground that its assets are insufficient to warrant it in continuing business.

The Dominion Telegraph Company having been successful in the suit, "Western Union vs. Dominion Telegraph Company," it is understood they will immediately lay their cable across the Strait of Canso, and have their lines to Cape Breton completed in a few weeks.

A dastardly attempt was made on Tuesday evening to wreck a passenger train on the Niagara Falls Branch of the New York Central Railroad. The engineer was horrified to find just ahead of where the locomotive stood a huge barricade of eight ties, firmly fastened across the track. In another moment the heavy train would have plunged into the obstructions, and the result would have been a ditched train and a horrible accident.

Fashionable Wedding.

Interesting Ceremony in St. George's Church.

Last (Wednesday) night a large and select audience assembled in St. George's Church to witness a fashionable wedding, the contracting parties being Mr. James Gordon, merchant, of Stratford, and Miss Emily Jones, of Guelph. It was not astonishing that the church was crowded to the doors, that every seat and aisle were filled, for the wedding had formed the great topic of conversation among the youthful classes in the city during the last few days. The hour appointed for the marriage was six o'clock. Shortly after that time the invited guests, of whom there were a large number, entered the church and occupied the front seats. A few minutes later the groom, accompanied by the groomsmen, Mr. Daly, of Stratford, and W. H. Jones, brother to the bride, walked up the centre aisle and seated themselves in the chancel. They were plainly attired in evening dress. Shortly afterwards the bride, leaning on Mayor Howard's arm, and the bridesmaids—Misses Robinson, of Aurora, and Adela Howard, of Guelph, followed. The bride wore a dress of ecru gross grain silk, trimmed with brocade and fringe of the same color. The head dress and veil were exceedingly tasteful and were greatly admired. The bridesmaids were dressed in blue gros grain silk. They wore neat caps of the same color. The dresses were stylish and were made with princess trains. When the bridal party had taken a position in the chancel the services were commenced by Canon Dixon and occupied half an hour. During the service, Miss Geddes played some appropriate pieces on the organ, among others, "Home, Sweet Home," the "Wedding March," etc., etc.

At the close of the service, the wedding party and guests repaired to the residence of Mayor Howard, where refreshments were provided. After supper a few hours were spent in pleasant social intercourse. The happy couple were afterwards accompanied to the G. T. R. station where they took the 9:15 train for Toronto en route for New York, where they spend the honeymoon. The best wishes for their future happiness was freely and fervently expressed.

The guests returned to Mayor Howard's residence where festivities were kept up for some hours. During this time the presents, which were valuable and numerous, were inspected with much interest. The presents and their donors are as follows:—From friends in London—Ivory brush and comb, C. E. Naysmith; jewel case, vase and toilet, R. Simpson; honiton lace, Miss Grace McDonald. Stratford—Card receiver, Mr. Charles and Miss McKay; napkin ring, Miss Minnie and Bertie McKay; silver ice pitcher, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. There have been lately sold in Edinburgh some interesting relics of Burns, being his Masonic apron and the mallet and minute-book of the Lodge of St. Andrew, Dumfries, of which the poet was an affiliated member. The minute-book bears his signature to the by-laws. There was a keen competition, but the lot was knocked down to Mr. Murray Lyon, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, (acting for Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, Baronet,) for twenty guineas. The relics will be presented to the Grand Lodge by Sir Michael, the Grand Master.

REMOVAL OF STATION MASTER.—We regret to announce that our station master, Mr. William Hoggarth is about to be removed to Kincardine Mr. Hoggarth has filled the position of station master on the G. W. R., passing through here, for the past eleven years. Although glad to know that in being removed he is also being promoted to a much better position than he formerly occupied, yet it is with feelings of sorrow and regret that we part with so kind a friend as he has always proved himself to be. His promotion is an evidence that towards the Company he was employed by, duty was his motto, while at the same time his continuous and obliging manner towards every one has caused him to be a universal favorite. He is to be succeeded here by Mr. Forbes, of Eastwood. On Tuesday night last Mr. Hogarth was treated with an oyster supper at the Germania House, when about sixty of our townsmen assembled to do him a parting honor. The chair on this occasion was ably filled by our esteemed and venerable townsman Mr. Jacob Hespeler. Supper being over a toast was drank to Mr. H, after which the chairman, on behalf of the rest of the friends presented him with a handsome gold chain as a parting gift and token of their profound respect for himself and family. Mr. Hogarth replied in a very feeling manner, expressing the deep regret he felt at parting with the people of Hespeler. After this the routine of toasts, songs, speeches, etc., usual on such occasions, was indulged in until about eleven o'clock, when all quietly dispersed, after having spent a few hours very pleasantly. Much credit is due to mine host, Mr. C. Pabst, for the manner in which the tables were furnished, as it was done on very short notice.

The St. Thomas Council for 1880 is composed entirely of married men.

TORONTO LEGISLATURE.

THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.

TORONTO, Jan. 8th.

At three o'clock to-day His Honor proceeded to the Legislative Assembly, and the members being present, he was pleased to open the Assembly with the following

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I have great pleasure in meeting you on this the first session of the Legislative Assembly being convened since the general election of the past year.

The deep interest manifested in the opportunity then afforded for a full discussion of public affairs, and the quietness and order with which the elections were everywhere conducted, were striking proofs of the intelligence and public spirit of the people of the Province.

I am happy to be able to congratulate you on the beneficial effects upon the country, arising from last year's abundant harvest, and on the fact that an increased demand for certain classes of lumber has indicated some tendency to a revival in that long depressed industry.

I had the pleasure last summer of paying an official visit to the Thunder Bay district, and to the Territory declared by the late award to be part of the Province of Ontario—lying between Lake Superior and the Lake of the Woods—and I have reason to believe that my visit was not without public advantage.

I commend to your attention the reports relating to the resources of this and other sections of the North-Western and Northern portions of the Province, received from the Stipendiary Magistrates appointed under the provisions of an Act of last Session, and which will be laid before you.

The existence of gold deposits in the Island of the Lake of the Woods has lately attracted much attention, and should this circumstance, as is anticipated, occasion a considerable influx of population to that locality during the ensuing spring and summer, some additional measures for the preservation of peace and order may be necessary.

Some correspondence has taken place between my Government and the Government of Canada, respecting the amount of the boundary arbitration. I trust that at the approaching Session of the Dominion Parliament, the award will receive from that body legislative recognition.

The attention of my Government has recently been directed to the duty of bringing the management of the reformatory for boys at Penetanguishene more thoroughly into harmony with the original design and intention of such an institution. The system it is proposed to pursue is modelled on the improved method adopted at the most successful establishments of this kind elsewhere, and with the view of substituting for penal discipline a treatment and influences of a strictly reformatory character.

A bill will be submitted to you for this object, and your assent will be asked to an appropriation to cover some necessary outlay in connection with the changes contemplated.

The Ontario Agricultural College has been so far a success as to justify, in my opinion, legislation providing for its permanent management. I trust a measure, framed with that object, will meet with your approval.

The intimate connection between the prosperity and advancement of the agricultural interests of Ontario, and the welfare of all other classes of the community, is universally recognized. You will be asked to provide for the appointment of a Commission to inquire into various matters affecting this great industry, and especially to ascertain by what means increased efficiency may be given to the efforts of the Government and Legislature in its behalf.

In view of the satisfactory results that have attended past efforts towards the fusion of law and equity procedure in this Province, you will be invited to consider a measure which by consolidating the Superior Courts of law and equity, and providing for the adoption of a uniform and improved system of practice and pleadings, will complete the work of assimilation. Some extension—with due safe-guards of the jurisdiction—of the Division Courts appears to be called for by public opinion, and a Bill with that object will be laid before you.

From proceedings in the Dominion Parliament at its last session, the early abolition of the Dominion Insolvency Law appears to be imminent, and in view of that event it may be desirable that a measure for the equal distribution of the property of execution debters should be placed on the Statute book of Ontario without delay.

The frequent and serious accidents, attendant in many instances with loss of life, to brakesmen employed on railways, suggest the importance of some legislation making it the duty of Railway Companies to provide means by which the damages of this necessarily perilous avocation may be diminished. I invite your earnest attention to the subject.

Certain of the statutory exemptions from the burdens of municipal expenditure have been felt to be a grievance in some of our municipalities. A bill on this subject will be proposed for your acceptance, and at the same time you will be asked to consider some other in the incidences of local taxation.

The requirements of the Legislature and Public Departments have long since outgrown the accommodation afforded by buildings erected at a time when the population of Ontario comprised but little over 200,000 souls, and when the business transacted was proportionately limited. As long since as the year 1873—and again in 1877—the Government Architect called attention in his reports to the Commissioner of Public Works to the necessity, on the grounds of health, safety and economy for the early erection of a new Legislative Chamber and public offices. For some years it has been necessary to secure a hired house for the business of two of the departments, while that of a third is transacted at a distance of nearly a mile from the main building. Meantime large sums have been unavoidably been expended in repairs incidental to the deterioration effected by time. The public records constantly accumulating have been in great peril from insufficient security against fire, and increasing inconvenience has been experienced year by year, owing to the want of the space demanded for proper departmental arrangements.

The report of the Architect, with plans and estimates for the construction of new buildings on a more eligible and healthy site will be laid before you. The value of the present site for other purposes will naturally reduce the cost of the new structure, while the price of material and labor is favorable at this time for such an under taking.

It appears to me therefore to be worthy of your verr serious consideration, whether the erection of an edifice, commensurate with the needs of public service, and creditable to the Province, should be no longer delayed. The annual reports of the several Departments will be submitted for your information in connection with the report of the Minister of Education.

It is satisfactory to observe that the improvements introduced within the last two years into the system of training teachers through the agency of the Normal and County Model Schools have been attended with the best results to the great cause of public school education.

The public accounts of receipts and expenditure will be laid before you. The estimates for the current year will on an early day be presented for your approval. They will be found to be framed with all due regard for that economy which is consistent with the demands of the public service.

Experience in the working of the Free Grant Acts has shown that the absolute relinquishment of the rights of the Crown to the pine timber upon the issue of the patent has encouraged a wasteful treatment of our fine forests, and has been attended with loss to the revenue without corresponding benefit to the locatee. You will be asked to consider a measure designed to protect the public interests in these respects.

The depressed condition of the agriculturists of Great Britain leads to the expectation that a considerable immigration of farmers and farm laborers to Canada may be anticipated during the present year.

Care will be taken by my government to place the claims and advantages of the Province of Ontario favorably and and prominently before that portion of the population of the United Kingdom.

I trust that on this last session of the Legislative Assembly during which I am likely to be occupying the position of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the work accomplished may be of so permanent and useful a character, as to leave in the minds of all who are engaged in, or identified with it, a feeling of true and lasting satisfaction.

Presentation in Erin.

On the 19th ult., the pupils of Miss Kennedy, in School Section No. 8, Erin Township, met for the purpose of presenting their teacher with a mark of their respect. The following is the address:—

MISS ANNIE KENNEDY,—Dear Teacher: It is with heartfelt regret that we hear of your early departure from us as our teacher during the year which is about to close. We cannot allow you to depart from us without accompanying you with some token of the esteem with which we regarded you, both as our teacher and faithful guider in all our actions for the time you have been among us. You will, therefore please accept this mantle-piece set, as a small token of our affection and esteem for you, as our teacher, accompanied with our best wishes for your future welfare.

Signed by the following on behalf of the school, No. 8, Erin:—Ilonia McLoughlin, Edith McKeown, Mary Duff, Jane Aitken, Maggie Yamons, Susan Waud,

Miss Kennedy replied as follows:—

DEAR PUPILS,—I think it rather a difficult task to make a suitable reply to such an eloquent address as this. Believe me when I say that I cannot express my thanfulness and pleasure on receiving these tokens and expressions of your affection. They assure me of the respect you had for me and the confidence you placed in me, while I was teacher, and I hope no act of mine may cause you to withdraw them from me.

I shall value these articles not for their pecuniary value only, but because they are from you, my Erin pupils.

I thank you all, but more especially those who have gone to so much trouble in procuring this handsome set. Many thanks also to the people of this section for the very many instances of friendship which I received from them.

The Speakership.

As we foreshadowed some two or three weeks ago, Col. Clarke, member for Centre Wellington, has been elected Speaker of the Ontario Assembly. As we said before Col. Clarke is fully entitled to the honor, and we congratulate his constituents in Centre Wellington, and the Reformers of his County on this just and timely recognition of his services to the party with which he has been so long identified, and of which he is such a prominent member.

Parliamentary Affairs in Toronto.

(From our Correspondent.)

TORONTO, Jan. 7.

The curtain has fallen on the first scene of the first act of our new Local Legislature. It rose at three o'clock today when His Honor the Lieutenant Governor came down and informed the trusty advisers of Her Majesty that as no proper channel had been provided for communication between them, it would be impossible for him to afford a glimpse of the measures which were to form the staple of their work for the next six weeks, and he advised them accordingly to proceed at once to the election of a Speaker. His Honor appears hale and hearty though years are fast telling on him, and his trip this summer through the newly acquired portion of our fair Province that lies towards the setting sun has not done him all the good that his friends expected. Yet as he ascended the semi-regal (!) throne to-day no more distinguished looking man stood before him, and his tall and erect figure, graceful bearing, finely chiselled features and clear intonation bespeaking a "depth of calm repose," well upheld the traditional dignity of the clan Macdonald.

After the departure of His Honor, the House resolved itself into a state of chaos for some fifteen minutes, and gave one an opportunity to look around. There was not much change in the Chamber itself. It was as dingy as ever, though a little painting, papering and general repairing had given it a cleaner appearance than usual. For the first day of the session it, as well as the galleries, was wonderfully well filled, proving the truth of the old adage that "new brooms sweep clean," for about forty new members have taken their seats, and as many old faces have vanished from the scene. And yet though new all are not strange. Sitting to the left of the Treasurer is seen the well-known face of Jas. Young, ex-M. P., for South Waterloo, whilst immediately behind him towers aloft the tall athletic form of H.H. Cook of North Simcoe. At the north eastern door is an old acquaintance here in the person of R. McKim, of West Wellington, whilst beside the ladies' gallery is seated the man of election petition fame as a welcome substitute for the irrepressible Charley Rykert, translated to another and let us hope a better sphere—S. Neelon of Lincoln. But the majority of the new members are here for the first time and are busily engaged putting in their desks the stock of stationery placed there by our cautious friend, John Notman; determined evidently, on doing their whole duty in distributing Parliamentary documents amongst their supporters. The old members are flitting to and fro with smiling countenances, receiving old acquaintances or making new ones, whilst the prominent leaders on both sides are doing a sufficient amount of hand shaking to be worthy even of equalling the newly elected Aldermen of the Royal City.

Gradually order is beginning to evolve itself out of confusion, and seemingly by a process of natual selection, though in reality it is likely of predestination, each finds his own seat and it then becomes apparent that few of the old members have changed their place of abode. Behind the Treasurer appears the youthful form of J. M. Gibson of Hamilton, J. M. Ferris of East Northumberland getting tired of the Speaker's left has a seat immediately in rear of the Provincial Secretary; two seats behind him in Mr. Massie's old place is the goodly figure of your own member for South Wellington, James Laidlaw of the Paisley Block, whilst to complete the changes, behind Dr. Boulter on the other side of the House sits a young looking fellow apparently about thirty, tall, spare, with a Roman nose and low but broad forehead, who has become lately doubtfully conspicuous as one of the Independence—anexationists—political what-do-you-call-them, of Montreal, at present representing here the Lieutenant-Governer's old County of Glengary.

But now the Clerk—Col. Gilmour—moves in and taking his seat calls for order, and the Premier, who has been as quietly busy amidst the confusion as in his own library, rises, and in a neat speech, paying a high and well deserved compliment to the gentleman's parliamentary ability and experience, he proposes Col. Clarke, of Centre Wellington, for Speaker. It is appropriately seconded by the ex-Speaker, Mr. Wells, and agreed to by the leader of the Opposition, who says that they on that side of the House have the utmost confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the Col. and draws the first blood of the Session by expressing his assurance, "that the proposal must be especially pleasing to the Treasurer, who is well known to have a deslike to professional men having any place of honor except as colleagues to himself." Col. Clarke is led to the Speaker's Chair by his proposers, makes a very appropriate speech on being installed as the custodian of the rights and privileges of the House, the curtain is rung down, and the principal actors retire behind the scenes to the greenroom in the Speaker's Chambers.

The second scene of the first act will open at three to-morrow when the Lieutenant-Governor will come down in state, and surrounded by the beauty and fashion of the City, open the House and read in person the speech from the Throne.

The Government give a dinner this evening at the National Club to its supporters—not in their "corporate capacity." In about ten days, but not sooner, the Legislature will have fairly commenced work, when you may again hear from me on parliamentary affaiirs in Toronto.

THE writ for the Cornwall election has at last been issued. The nomination will be held on the 20th, and the polling on the 27th inst.

FOR the first time in five years Lincoln was represented on Wednesday by a sitting member, Capt. Neelon being in his seat.

THE Ontario Government on Wednesday night gave a dinner at the National Club, at which most of the supporters of the Government in the House were present. The other gentlemen invited were Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, Hon. Edward Blake, Hon. George Brown, Messrs. D. Blain, ex-M. P., A. H. Dymond, ex-M. P., P. Hughes, J. D. Edgar, John Leys, Dr. Ogden, Jas. Maclennan, Q. C., G.W. Pattullo, &c., &c.

VICE CHANCELLOR Proudfoot delivered judgment on Wednesday in the suit by the Grand Trunk Railway for an injunction restraining the Credit Valley Company from trespassing on the strip of land once forming part of the Garrison Reserve, and over which the Grand Trunk, Northern, and Great Western roads pass into the city of Toronto. The final judgment of the Court is that the Grand Trunk and the Northern Railway have prior claims, that the Credit Valley are trespassers, and are consequently ordered to pay damages and costs. The decision settles a question of great importance, not only to the litigants, but to the general public. It is to be hoped that it will not seriously embarrass the Credit Valley, which, after overcoming many difficulties, is now virtually completed from end to end.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 7.

The first session of the fourth Parliament of Ontario was opened this afternoon at three o'clock. The attendance of members was large, and the galleries were partly filled with spectators. At three o'clock, His Honor the Lieut.-Governor having taken his seat,

Mr. Hardy, Provincial Secretary, said he was commanded by the Lieut.-Governor to state that it was not his desire to declare the causes for summoning this Legislature until after they had elected a Speaker, but that to-morrow at 3 o'clock in the afternoon he would declare the causes of his calling this Parliament.

His Honor then withdrew.

The Clerk, Col. Gilmour, then called the House to order.

COL. CLARKE ELECTED SPEAKER.

Mr. Mowat in rising to propose a Speaker, said:—I am satisfied, and the House will be satisfied, if I propose one who has qualifications inferior to none, and claims likewise inferior to none. (Hear, hear.) I believe I am doing that which is agreeable to this House in naming for this purpose the hon. member for Wellington Centre. (Cheers.) That honorable gentleman has been now a member of the Legislative Assembly of this Province for eight years. This is his ninth session, and those who have had the opportunity of becoming acquainted with him, whether they sit on that side or this side of the House, I am sure share equally in the esteem and confidence and respect with which we regard him. As Chairman of the Printing Committee, as Chairman of the important Committee on Public Accounts, and as Chairman of Committee of the Whole, my hon. friend has had opportunities for showing his fitness for the office to which I now nominate him, and he has efficiently performed the duties attaching to all these positions. My hon. friend, as a matter of taste, has not chosen to take that part in the debates of the House which his abilities would have enabled him to do, but no member of the House, as long as he has been a member of it, has done more efficient work in all matters connected with the business of the House other than the debates of the House. (Hear, hear.) And I have all the more satisfaction in making this nomination because, in doing so, I believe I name that gentleman who has been, perhaps, of all members of the House, the longest time an active politician. My hon. friend commenced his active political life in a very early period, and took part in all those old questions which were contested in this Province in days gone by, and which are now matter of history. As a political writer, my hon. fried took a very active part in the discussion and agitations with reference to those old principles of representation by population, of freedom from the domination of another Province, and the secularization of clergy reserves. He was also among the earliest and most persevering agitators of such measures as the ballot, the reasonable exemption of goods of debtors from execution, the abolition of property qualification for members of Parliament, the extension of the sufferage, and various other matters with which we are now familiar, and as to the propriety of which all parties now concur, and which now no longer set dividing lines between the two political parties of this country. My hon. friend has the satisfaction of knowing that all these questions in which he took so deep an interest have been settled as he wished them settled—all these agitations have resulted in the triumph of the principles he advocated. (Hear, hear.) I venture to hope that the nomination of Col. Clarke will be received with the unanimous concurrence of this House; for we must all agree that there is no man on whom we can more confidently rely to discharge the duties of the office with ability, dignity, and impartiality. I propose that Charles Clarke, member for the Centre Riding of Wellington, do take the chair of this House. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Wells—I am very glad that I have been given an opportunity of seconding the proposal of the hon. the Attorney-General. Having occupied that chair so recently, I can hardly allude to those qualities which should belong to the Speaker of the House, and which Col. Clarke unquestionably possesses, without reminding myself and reminding this House of how few of these qualities I possess. But this I can say, that there is no gentlemen who is more deservedly popular than Col. Clarke, there is no gentleman who has paid more or closer attention to the rules of this House, nor more highly enjoyed its respect and confidence that he—a respect and confidence now about to be shown by his election as Speaker. As Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means for the last three or four years, as Chairman of the Whole House, and of Select Committees, he has acquired a knowledge of many of the details of Parliamentary practice which can only be acquired in that way. But he has acquired a tact and skill in the management of the House, and that habit of prompt and quick decision which is so necessary to the proper discharge of the duties of Speaker. He has acquired even more than that—that graceful ease and pose which can only be attained by actual and sometimes long exercise of the judicial capacity. (Laughter and cheers.) He goes into that chair with the good will of every member of this House, and with the warm congratulations of every member of both sides. This is not a trifling matter to him or to the House. Having the sympathy of the House he will have its support, and it is the support of the House which constitutes the only sure and certain foundation for the moral authority of the Speaker. The Speaker has often been called the guardian and custodian of the rights and privileges of the House; but the House ought to be—is, in fact—the guardian of its own rights and privileges. But it can be, I venture to say, more the guardian of its rights and privileges than it has been in the habit of being. It is in the power of the House to assist the Speaker to a large extent in the discharge of his duties, and Col. Clarke will, as I think, always accept with gratitude the assistance of the House in calling attention to any departure from the rules. And I know it to be one of the most disagreeable duties the Speaker has to perform to call the attention of disorderly members, particularly when honorable Ministers of the Crown are involved (Opposition cheers and laughter) or leading members of the Opposition—(Government cheers and laughter)—although I am very glad to admit that such cases occur only at long and rare intervals, perhaps only in the lifetime of an exceptionally long-lived Speaker do they occur at all. But I must not detain Col. Clarke from the honor which awaits him. In a few moments he will be Speaker of this House, and I may take the opportunity of offering him in advance my warmest congratulations, and I think I can congratulate the House as well upon the fortunate choice which has been made. (Cheers.)

Mr. Meredith—I do not rise for the purpose offering any objection to the motion which has been made by my hon. friend the leader of the Government, but to express the feeling of this side of the House in favour of the selection that the hon. gentleman has made. (Cheers.) I have had the good fortune of sitting in this House along with my hon. friend the member for Centre Wellington since 1873, and I can bear testimony to his urbanity, dignity and impartiality in all the positions he has occupied. My hon. friend the member for South Bruce has not, perhaps, said all that he ought to have said. He said that the rights and privileges of this House are largely in the hands of the Speaker. I may add that the rights and privileges of the minority are largely in the hands of the Speaker of this House, and it is because I and my friends on this side of the House have every confidence in the impartiality of the hon. member for Centre Wellington that we are in favour of his nomination. My hon. friend, it is true, is not a member of the legal profession, which may be thought a disadvantage, but I venture to think that long experience and the application of his good common seuse to the affairs that may occupy his attention as Speaker will enable him successfully to discharge the duties of that office. His selection may be considered as an honour to the lay members of the House, and will be particularly gratifying to the hon. the Treasurer, who has a decided objection to lawyers occupying any position anywhere except as colleagues of that hon. gentleman. (Cheers and laughter.)

The newly-elected Speaker was then, amid the cheers of the House, conducted to the chair by the mover and seconder of his nomination.

Mr. Speaker—Before taking my seat I will be permitted to render my warm and earnest thanks to my fellow-members for this proof of their confidence, and to express the hope that during my continuance in this chair I shall do nothing to lessen in the slightest degree that confidence. I do not accept this position without a full knowledge of the responsibility it entails. I would not accept it if I did not know that there are gentlemen on both sides of the House with larger parliamentary experience than myself who will be always ready to tender their assistance in my efforts to maintain the rights and privileges of the House. In taking this chair I cannot forget that I am a member of a party, and that I represent a constituency in which that party is largely in the majority, but in this chair I trust I shall not be influenced by partisan feelings. I trust that when I come to leave this chair I shall still retain the confidence that I have at this moment. (Loud cheers.)

The House adjourned at 3:40.

Warlike Attitude of Russia.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The Pesth correspondent which denies the reported movements of the Russian army towards the Austrian frontier is not an authority of sufficient weight to justify the acceptance of its contradiction of the detailed reports of Russian military preparations which come from various points on the Austrian and German frontiers. Those reports are beginning to excite attention throughout Europe. A pamphlet has just been issued by a Berlin publisher entitled "Fortifications of the German Russian Frontier," wherein the defences of each country are elaborately discussed, and the respective advantages of the different plans of invasion on either side canvassed. The author is evidently a German military man. The appearance of such a pamphlet under the present circumstanees is regarded in Berlin as highly significant. The writer expresses his belief that the German eastern frontier is sufficiently defended by the German forces, which can be easily and quickly mobilized and thrown upon important points in sufficient strength even on the shortest notice, to hold the Russians at bay on the frontier until measures for resistance to the interior can be thoroughly organized. The following passage closes the treatise: "Should those restless statesmen and generals, notwithstanding their experience in the Russo-Turkish war, venture to satiate their thirst for glory by an attack upon Germany, they may perhaps find their object a trifle more difficult of attainment in this country than it proved in Turkey."

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

The fishermen of Westaisies, Grand Manan, N. B., have the past week been reaping a rich harvest in Passamaquoddy Bay, where the herring are swarming in millions. Ten to fifteen thousand is the average catch to a net. Sixty sail of fishing craft of all sizes were counted in St. Andrew's harbor on Saturday, including nine Gloucester fishing schooners. The latter bring up the fish as brought in, and it is estimated that they paid out $30,000 the past week. It is a great many yerrs since there have been such schools of herring in the bay, and the fish are large and fat.

THAT WONDERFUL MAN
Is the Centre of Attraction,
In the Royal City of Guelph.

The inhabitants of the city and surrounding County show their appreciation of goods that are new, fresh from the looms, of the very latest styles, and at prices even less than the old bankrupt, moth-eaten stuff that has been attempted to gull the intelligent public of this neighborhood with. The continued throng of purchasers that visit our establishment show conclusively that the Wonderful Man's system of doing business fully meets the taste of the intelligent and appreciative community. We only keep obliging and attentive salesmen, only keep the newest, most fashionable and sound goods. We have marked everything down to the lowest fraction, and we adhere strictly to the golden rule of

ONE PRICE ONLY.

We make a special run this month on Black and Colored Silks for ladies' Dress, Wedding outfits, &c. Our Black Cashmeres, which are marvellously cheap, and extraordinary bright and elegant goods, extremely hard to get in any other store in this city. Our Dress goods throughout are the great attraction of every visitor to Guelph, and we are sorry, but it cannot be helped, they make an awful insurrection among the fraternity of brag men.

The great rush is going on. Don't delay, but visit this immense establishment. This immense stock of Fancy and Staple Dry Goods, when every department is filled to overflowing with the most choice selection to be found in the British, French, American and Canadian Markets, all at bottom prices.

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVII.

AN IMPORTANT CONVERSATION BETWEEN AGNES BORLAND AND HER MOTHER—A MAIDEN'S HEART MAKES ITS FIRST ACQUAINTANCE WITH TROUBLE.

On catching sight of her mother seated in the porch she ran gaily up the garden path and affectionately kissed her.

"My dear darling mother," she murmured, "what a pretty picture you make within the rose covered trellis work! And how have you passed through this awfully hot day? Did you have a walk in the park?"

"No, dear. The heat made me lazy, and I preferred to sit in the kitchen with the window open."

"And now you are enjoying the evening breeze in the porch. Oh, what a delightful perfume the roses are sending forth! Everything is so fragrant and beautiful just now, mother—the garden, the shubbery, the park—a" are lovely. Orwell thinks the Grange is looking so nice. Did you see him? He came nearly the whole way with me."

"Yes; I saw he came with you as far as yon tree, and thought he would come and have a cup of milk."

"I daresay he would had he not thought you would consider it too late. But he is coming to see you soon. He is not brown at all after his travels on the continent. Indeed, I think him pale, and not so fresh looking or in such good spirits as when he was here last. I don't think the climate abroad agrees with him like the strong, free air of the Solway."

"Perhaps not. Native air is generally best for everyone; and yet a change is sometimes wanted. Miss May, I think, would be the better of a change. Does Master Orwell not think a trip to France would do her good?"

"He has spoken of it more than once," returned Agnes, "but she will not hear of such a thing. She says she would not be happy anywhere but at the Grange. Poor dear! I think she is weaker than ever, and I know Doctor Mayfield is anxious about her as well as Orwell. He was quite shocked to find her so thin and white; but she is always cheerful and contented, and never complains to him or anyone."

"Just like her mother. Ah, well, perhaps it is best; and if they were to take her abroad she might fret and pine. No one I am sure could take such good care of her as Miss Elliott and you, and I think she feels that."

"She is never tired of saying so," laughed Agnes. "But what a shame it would be if we did not try all we could to make her happy, seeing she is so good and kind to us. Oh, mother, I wish I knew what to do to make her strong. If it were possible to give her some of my own strength I would gladly do it."

"I know you would, my darling; but she suffers now from the shock she got on the dreadful day of the accident, a day which brought such terrible sorrow to us all."

"Ay, yes, when my dear noble father sacrificed himself to save them from death."

"Yes, dear, it was brave and noble, but just like him. He knew his duty and always did it. When duty called on him to die, he did it all the same. You cannot remember your father very distinctly, Agnes; you were too young."

"Indeed, mother, I remember him well, and how fond he was of me. He was large and strong, yet gentle and tender. I don't think I ever saw him angry."

"And I hardly ever. He was from the time of your infancy very grave and serious. After his brother—your poor uncle Jack—was lost he never recovered his former spirits. For years he mourned for Jack, and would not be comforted. Ah, well, let us hope he found him in heaven. But your father and I were very happy, Agnes, oh, how happy, and what a blow it was to me when—when—"

Here Mrs. Borland was overcome with emotion, and mastered by tears and sobs. Instantly Agnes's arms were round her, and for a minute or two mother and daughter wept quietly together in the twilight.

"We must not think of this, dear," said Mrs. Borland, raising herself and drying her eyes. "I have learned resignation long ere this, and you my child, have always been such a comfort to me. You could not in the nature of things fill your father's place, but in many things you have grown just like him—and, like him, I think you will be true to duty, even if you have to sacrifice yourself—is it not so, my darling?"

"I don't know," said Agnes; "I think I should; but then I have never had anything to try me; my duty has always been so easy and pleasant."

"You are very young yet, dear, and no one knows what is before them. But I am sure if that comes you will bear it bravely. But now tell me how you have been employed to-day. You were not indoors all the time."

"That is true," said Agnes, with a pleasant laugh. "I was out with Orwell in the afternoon."

"Yes—in the Birch Dell."

"How do you know?" exclaimed the girl in wonder.

"I was told by some one who saw you."

"I guess who it was," cried Agnes, merrily.

"Who?"

"David Ramsay."

"No; David has not been here to-day."

"Then it must have been one of the outdoor servants. Let me think which of them it is likely to be."

"No use guessing. It was not any of the servants; it was Mr. Bishop."

"Mr. Bishop. Did he come to visit you? I heard he had called at the Grange."

"Yes. Not finding Master Orwell there, he was told he was out shooting, and went into the wood in the hope of meeting him. He saw master Orwell and you seated on a bank in the dell."

Mrs. Borland watched Agnes's face very keenly while she spoke, to see if her words caused the latter to blush or look confused. But to her relief no such effect was produced. With entire absence of self-consciousness Agnes said in a tone of surprise—

"Why did he not come down or call out when he had business with Orwell?"

"Because, seeing you absorbed in conversation, he did not wish to disturb you."

"What nonsense. Orwell was telling me about the lands he had visited and the wonders he had seen abroad, which so interested me that I gave no attention to anything else. But what do you think, mother? Orwell says he has seen nothing abroad equal to the beautiful scenes in Galloway. He is more enamoured of the Grange every time he returns home, and speaks of giving up travelling and remaining here always."

"Does he? Then what will Miss May and Miss Elliot and you do when that happens?"

"What will we do?" asked Agnes, with a wondering look.

"Yes. Where will Miss May go to reside? Of course she will wish to have Miss Elliot and you with her."

"Why, what do you mean mother? Why should Miss Elliot leave the Grange?"

"Well, you see, she might not wish to reside there after Master Orwell marries."

"Marries!" exclaimed Agnes, more surprised than ever. "Orwell is not going to marry!"

"Indeed? Has he told you so?" asked her mother, with another keen steadfast look at the girl's face,

"No, no! Of course not! But I don't think—that is, I have never heard—that—Orwell was engaged to—to any one."

Agnes had colored deeply now, and stammered and faultered, causing a pang of pain to strike to her mother's heart. She took those signs as an evidence of the truth of her forebodings, and her fears returned in all their force.

"But—my dear," she said, making a great effort to speak with composure and in a tone of indifference, "it is natural and right for Master Orwell to marry. He is now old enough to do so, and it is his duty as the owner of the Grange and the head of the family. Society will expect this. It is one of the duties of his station, if nothing more, though I cannot doubt that the lady of his choice will not only be of suitable birth and rank, but one on whom the love of his heart is set. Master Orwell is of too honourable and generous a nature to marry without affection."

"Oh, I am very, very sure of that," cried Agnes impulsively.

"Then no doubt he is affianced, and since he speaks of settling permanently at the Grange he means soon to bring home his bride."

"Impossible!" burst forth Agnes. "I m sure Orwell has no such intention."

"Why do you feel sure of it?"

"Because he would have told me. To me he has always been frank and open and without reserve. Oh, stay, this may be the meaning of what he said to-night. I did not understand him. Yes, it must be that; but I—I never dreamed it."

"What did he say to-night that you did not understand?" asked her mother eagerly.

"He asked me to come with him to the dell again to-morrow, as he had something very particular to tell me. Can this be the communication he is going to make?"

And Agnes, who was now very pale, heaved a long sigh, and became silent and abstracted. She sat with her head half averted, gazing with eyes from which the bright sparkle had vanished, across the park, now becoming indistinct in the deepening twilight. With trembling anxiety her mother guessed the nature of her thoughts, and saw that the time had come to dispel the wild dream ere yet her heart had learned to cherish it.

"Agnes," she gravely asked. "what means this silence and that dispirited look? Are they caused by the thought of Master Orwell's marriage? Surely you will not forget your position as to feel anything but pleasure at hearing that he is about to form a suitable alliance. Remember that though you have been companions from infancy, and have maintained free and familiar intercourse, you are the daughter of his father's gardener; that between his station and yours a wide gulf is fixed; that while he is the head and representative of a rich and ancient family, related, some say, to the Royal line of Bruce, you, as his sister's attendant, are not more than a hired servant in his household, while I, your mother, am a dependent on his bounty."

"Why do you remind me of this?" exclaimed Agnes, turning suddenly towards the speaker a flushed face and flashing eye. "You a dependent on his bounty! No, mother; I will not hear that. In giving you what he does he but meets a claim of justice which falls infinitely short of the loss you incurred for him and his family. Had my father not sacrificed his life on that fatal day the whole of them would have been carried over the precipice to destruction."

"Yes, dear, I know it."

"Then why do you call it an act justice, an expression of gratitude, bounty. Mr. Bruce would have been the last to consider it such, and you deeply wrong Orwell if you attribute such an idea to him."

"I do not attribute it to him, and would not for a moment imagine that he has ever so regarded it. I only desire that you should be mindful of your true position, and presume not, even in thought, on the familiar intercourse you have had with Master Orwell. He is far beyond your sphere, and time must soon come when the friendship of youth must give place to the actual relative positions which separate you. Dear Agnes, have you not understood this?"

"Why do you speak these cruel words to-night?" again demanded Agnes. "Why, at the end of a day of unmixed enjoyment, have you met me in a mood you have never shown before? You are so changed, mother—so different from what I have seen you that I am amazed—bewildered. There is something under it—something I do not understand. Tell me what it is—keep me no longer in the dark."

"Be patient, my darling," said her mother in tender, soothing accents. I am not cruel in what I have said. What I am still to say is for your good. If I pain you to-night it is to save you from far greater suffering hereafter. Answer me this, Agnes. Is there any feeling of love between you and Master Orwell?"

"Of—of love," faltered Agnes with what seemed an aspect of terrific consternation.

"Yes," added her mother with unflinching firmness. "Has he given you to understand that his feelings towards you are more tender than those of friendship?"

"No, he has never uttered a word of such import."

"Or by look, tone or action conveyed the impression?"

Agnes was silent.

"Darling, you do not speak."

"Because you ask me of that which has never shaped itself in my thoughts, and if I do not answer it is because I cannot."

"Yet it is of the utmost importance that you should ponder this, and come to a clear understanding as regards both Master Orwell and yourself; for if, after careful reflection, you have a suspicion—ay, but a suspicion—that his affections are unduly drawn forth towards you, or yours towards him, you must instantly take measures to have them crushed and extinguished."

"Oh, heaven!" "There is some terrible insinuation under all this," said Agnes, in a voice of pain. "Has Mr. Bishop's visit to you to-day anything to do with what you have said?"

"You have guessed truly. Mr. Bishop has shown himself the true friend of both of us, by opening my eyes to a danger which had never dawned upon me. It is being reported in the neighbourhood that Master Orwell and you are lovers, and Mr. Langton has made a remonstrance to Mr. Bishop on the subject.

"Mr. Langton," said Agnes, scornfully. "Oh, now I understand the origin of the rumour. It is evident to every one that he is anxious that his daughter Maria should be the mistress of the Grange, and he is uneasy lest anything should come in the way of his scheme. His hope is a vain one, for I know Orwell's sentiments regarding Maria Langton, and they are not favourable to such a union as the owner of Cairnbank desires."

"My darling, that is no concern of yours. The all important thing for you is to give no encouragement to the belief that you are seeking to entangle Master Orwell's affections, for such a thing as love between you would be infatuation or, what is worse, dishonour."

"Dishonour, mother," cried Agnes, with angry amazement.

"Yes, were Master Orwell foolish enough to wish you to become his wife, and were you base enough to yield to the solicitation, the dishonour you would thereby do to yourself, to me, to your dead father would pass description."

"Mother—mother, you terrify me. Let me understand the meaning of these dreadful words."

"Yes, dear, I will. Were such a thing to take place people would say you had presumed on your father's heroic deed of self-sacrifice—that you took advantage of the familiar intercourse to which you were admitted, to inveigle Master Orwell into marriage, and that I had planned and schemed with you for the same end. Oh, such a thing would be enough to cause your father's bones to shrink in their grave and cause me to hide my shame under the same sod; and you—when too late you realized the sin you had committed—would become a prey to life-long repentance and remorse."

"Hush, mother," murmured Agnes,—"you have said enough. I understand your meaning now. Let me have a few moments to think. This has come as unexpectedly to me as you, but be assured I shall do nothing to bring reproach on my self, shame on you, or dishonour on my father's name."

"My own, my noble girl! what joy you have given me!" murmured Mrs. Borland, throwing her arms round Agnes, and pressing her to her bosom.

"Mother, did you fear I would prove unworthy of my father and of you?" asked Agnes, gently, as she returned her mother's embrace.

"No, dear, not knowingly. But what Mr. Bishop said greatly alarmed me, and I did not know how far tender relations might be established between you and Master Orwell. Love often steals into hearts unsuspected even by themselves, and under its influence wise and prudent thoughts are forgotten. You and he are so young, so unselfish, and have always maintained such unreserved intercourse, that I thought it not only possible, but probable that you had unthinkingly permitted the growth of an affection which in your relative positions would be the worst of calamities. I am so glad to know this is not the case, and now I am certain the danger is over, for I have perfect confidence in my child."

"You may rest in that confidence, mother," said Agnes, slowly, firmly, yet in a voice strangely altered, as if a deep inward pain accompanied the words—a pain to which no vocal expression might be given.

GUELPH MARKETS

GUELPH, Jan., 8, 1880

Our market business here for the past week does not particularly call upon us to say a great deal, for the reason that the sleighing has not been what either farmers or Guelph people would desire. This fact, to a certain extent, has a tendency to make matters dull, which no doubt exist, not alone in Guelph but all over the Province.

However, everything offered for sale met ready buyers, particularly in the dressed hog business, whose views we must notice are ahead of others, regardless of location.

By this we mean, that prices paid for hogs here in Guelph, are higher than we can see are paid any where in Ontario, which, to a great extent, should satisfy our farmers, yet we must admit that some of them will be dissatisfied, but if they only knew what their direct interests are they should admit that this market stands second to none under the present regime.

Wheat, peas, oats, barley, &c., find ready buyers at our outside quotations, which are the latest paid up to our going to press.

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease, the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

Sudden Death of an old Elora Lady in California.

We copy the following from Marysville (California) Appeal of Dec. 27th. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cattanach formerly lived in Elora, and her sudden death has evoked the sympathy of their many friends in Elora, and also in this city:—

On Christmas Eve the wife of John Cattanach died suddenly of heart disease under peculiar and very affecting circumstances. The husband and wife during the early part of the evening attended the exercises at the M. E. Church. After they closed Mr. and Mrs. C. walked over to the Marysville boarding house, a distance of half a block, in response to an invitation to witness the delivery of presents from a small family tree, erected by Mrs. Aulman, an acquaintance. The cermony had hardly commenced and only about a dozen articles had been taken off the tree, when Mrs. Cattanach, sprang suddenly upward from her seat and exclaimed to her husband, "take me out." Instantly the lady's head dropped and she was dead, though supported by her husband to an adjoining room, who supposed she had fainted. Mrs. C. was laid upon a bed, physicians sent for, but "all was over." The energetic efforts made to restore the vital spark were all in vain. The parties were married but a year ago, the betrothed coming from Ontario to fulfill her pledge, arriving with the mother of the bereaved husband. The husband and wife were devotedly attached to each other, highly respected by all who knew them, and the bereaved have the deepest sympathy of all."

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md-

A despatch from Pretoria of the 8th, says that Pretorious, Ex-President of the Transvaal has been arrested on a charge of high treason, the specification being that he addressed a letter in conjunction with Bok to Wolseley, forwarding resolutions passed at a late meeting, thus giving proof of their connection with a treasonable project. Bail for Pretorius was refused.

The Duke of Marlborough, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, passed through Queenstown on Thursday on his way to Dublin. The large crowd at the station was twice called upon to cheer the Duke, but maintained a dogged silence. Mr. Archibald Forbes was to have lectured in Cork on the evening of December 22, but the audience declined to listen to a single word from him. The house was accordingly filled with a hostile audience, who refused to hear the lecturer He retired and the gas was turned off.

The Agitation in Ireland.

The Government Policy.

DUBLIN, Jan. 8.—The Government have made an important change in their policy with respect to the condition of Ireland. They have resolved to grant loans for the construction of drainage ways in the distressed districts, which are now on the schedule annexed to a circular of the Board of Works, or which may be scheduled from time to time. If these measures be found inadequate to meet the exigency the Government will apply to Parliament to sanction an appropriation of £2,500,000 out of the Church surplus fund for the prosecution of relief works, to be carried on by the Board of Works, and to authorize the formation of baronial sessions to determine the nature of such works.

There are some further reports of disturbances by riotous assemblages in resistance to process servers in the counties of Mayo, Galway, and Sligo, but no serious conflicts have occurred, owing to the forbearance of the police. The process servers in most cases have been compelled to abandon the efforts to do their duty.

A paragraph telegraphed here about Parnell's speech at Newark, N. J., leads to the inference that exaggerated accounts of the affair at Carraroe, county Galway, on Friday reached the United States. The facts are that the police, who were protecting the process servers, were assaulted and stoned by a mob, which assembled to prevent service of the processes. The police fired four shots over the heads of the mob, and then charged with fixed bayonets, whereupon the mob fled. The were reports amongst the peasantry that six or seven of their number had been injured, but the authorities have been unable to find any of them. Four ringleaders of the mob have since been arrested.

Canadian Salmon in Glasgow.

One of our enterprising fish merchants have now on sale fresh salmon (salmo salax)—brought all the way from Canada,—a 22 pound fish which we examined yesterday being in excellent condition, and apparently nothing the worse for its long journey. Having partaken of part of a cooked fish, we can vouch for the gastronomic qualities of the Canadian salmon as being much superior to those of the Dutch and Norwegian fish which we usually receive during the winter season, and of the former of which owing to the Rhine being frozen over, there is this season no supply. The Canadian salmon are brought to Europe on the same plan as has been adopted for the carriage of American dead meat—in refrigerated chambers—a cargo which reached Billingsgate some weeks ago on another plan having proved a failure. The fish now being sold in this city are, we believe, taken in the Bay of Chaleurs, a wide inlet of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and are in every respect equal to our good clean salmon. The bay in question receives the waters of the Restigouche river, which will doubtless afford the fish a procreant cradle during their spawning season, which, in the case of the samples we have examined, does not appear to be within the limits of the close time appointed for our British rivers, and gives us further proof that what has been asserted in the Herald is something more than theory, namely, that we ought to be able to capture clean salmon in the Tweed all the year round. A large number of salmon are annually captured in the Bay of Chaleurs, the take of last year having been computed at 500,000 lb. weight, the fish averaging from 15 lb. to 20 lb., one or two of 50 lb. weight being occasionally captured. Canadian salmon will never, however, become cheap. —Glasgow Herald.

The emigration to the United States from the Ottawa district still continues, and a warm supporter of the National Policy is scattering broadcast literature praising the lands in Kansas as the best for settlement.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.

The Lieut.-Governor having retired after reading the Speech,

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received from the Judges of the Election Court certificates of the trial of petitions relating to the following constituencies:—Dufferin, West Hastings, South Norfolk, Stormont, South Wentworth, and Russell; that new writs had been issued for Dufferin, Stormont, and West Hastings, and that the clerk had expunged the names of Ira Morgan and F. W. Carpenter from the roll, and inserted those of Adam Baker and Nicholas Awrey instead, as the members for Russell and South Wentworth respectively, in accordance with the decision of the Election Court. He also informed the House that, to prevent mistakes, he had obtained a copy of the Lieut.-Governor's speech.

Mr. Mowat introduced a bill to provide for the administration of the oath of office to persons appointed as Justice of the Peace.

The Bill was read a first time.

Mr. Mowat moved, "That the speech of the Lieutenant-Governor be taken into consideration to-morrow." Carried.

After some business of a routine character the House adjourned.

Ferguson vs. Queen's College.

An Important Case in the Surrogate Court.

An important case was tried in the Surrogate Court on Thursday, before Judge Chadwick. It was a contested suit brought by Alexander Ferguson, of the Township of Maryboro', to establish and obtain probate of a will dated 23rd of May, 1876, made by his late aunt, Miss Jane Anderson, of Glenallan. By this will Miss Anderson gave all her property and means to her nephew. This will was disputed by Queen's College, Kingston, and on their behalf it was alleged that the testator had never made a will in favour of her nephew. Queen's College set up a claim to Miss Anderson's money under a will dated 18th June, 1875. After hearing the evidence, the Court decided in favour of the will giving the property to the nephew, and ordered probatory to be granted. The question of costs was reserved. Mr. D. Guthrie, for plaintiff; Mr. Drew, for defendant.

Board of Education.

A statutory meeting of the Board was held on Thursday night. Present—Mr. Murton, chairman, Messrs. Inglis, Gowdy, Robertson, Burgess, Leonard, Wilkie, Mackenzie, and Innes.

The Secretary reported that the following members were elected in the different Wards:—

St. Andrew's Ward, Mr. Wilkie; St. David's Ward, Mr. Hart; St. George' Ward, Mr. Burgess; St. James' Ward, Mr. Peterson; St. Patrick's Ward, Mr. Mackenzie; St. John's Ward, Mr. Leonard.

Information has just been received of a horrible murder which occurred at Manitwalki, about 100 miles north of Ottawa, on the Gatineau. Full particulars have not yet been received, but it is said that a man named Brisbois quarrelled with his partner, and literally chopped him to pieces with an axe. The murderer has escaped.

Mr. James Shannon was on Wednesday appointed postmaster of Kingston, and Ogg, A. Burnham, of Toronto, Assistant Postoffice Inspector.

A new Canada Methodist brick church, commodiously finished, was dedicated in the 9nd concession of Arran on Dec. 28, by the Rev. W. Tindall, Chairman of the Walkerton District. At a soiree on the day following the whole of the debt was promised in good subscriptions.

The shipping vessels of Yarmouth county, N.S., exhibit a marked decline for last year. The falling off as compared with 1878, is twenty one vessels and 9,161 ton burden. This result is easily accounted for by the extra cost of $800 per 1,000 tons under the Canada-for-the-Canadian policy.

The Mitchell Advocate commenced the new year in an enlarged shape. This journal, which is nearly 20 years old, is still in the hands of the gentlemen who started it and its prosperity increases every year.

Dundas Banner, Mr. Andrew Hunter, of Beverly, harvested 20 tons of hay off 7 acres of land as first crop during the past season, which he sold for $100, and he threshed his second crop for seed and sold the produce for $240—making a total yield from the seven acres of $340. Who can beat this?

A butcher of London, at a supper given by ten of his brother butchers on Tuesday night, ate twelve pounds of solid food. He claims to be the champion eater of the Dominion.

A considerable demand for brandy is reported, which is due to the anticipated advance in prices from the failure of the vintage in the Cognac district. According to Hennessys & Co's last circular they will have no brandy of 1879 for shipment.

The different Government offices will shortly be connected by telephone. There is one thing about the instrument; it won't report confidential chats.

A DANGEROUS LUNATIC.—A young married woman named Effie Reed, aged 17, of Ekfrid, was brought to London on Thursday, under arrest as a dangerous lunatic. She had before her marriage been suspected of a tendency to lunacy, and after marriage she made several attempts to take her husband's life. He abandoned her without support in consequence, and she went home to her parents. There she manifested her murderous propensity repeatedly. Once she boiled lucifer matches in the tea. Again she put poison in the porridge, threw her child out of a window, swallowed a large dose of Paris green herself, from which she was saved by timely medical aid; she then declared her intention of hanging herself, and proceeded to an out of the way shed for that purpose. Her friends could bear with her conduct no longer, and had her locked up.

UPPER CANADA BIBLE SOCIETY.

Forty-fourth Annual Meeting of the Guelph Branch.

The forty-fourth annual meeting of the Guelph Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held on Thursday evening in Chalmers' Church. There was not a large attendance, a fact probably due to the unpropitious weather. The following clergy—clergymen were present:—Rev. Dr. Wardrope, Rev. Messrs. Ball, Torrance, Smith, Williams, Maxwell, and MacGregor.

The President, Mr. Hough, took the chair at 7:30 o'clock and read the following ADDRESS.

Our greetings are alike befitting the season and this auspicious occasion which has brought us together. Another year has passed away, with its joys and sorrows, blessings and bereavements. Its notable events have become the subjects of history; and we are advanced so much nearer the great future—unknown only, as it is revealed in the Word of God. As Protestants we believe the Holy Scriptures are "the only rule of faith and practice," and that by their Great Author they are intended like the Gospel for the world and every intelligent creature therein; and according to our ability, confronting all opposition, it is our bounden duty to supply the destitute of every nation and tribe with a copy thereof, without note or comment, so that every man, woman and child, in their own tongue may read the Word of God.

This is the object of our Branch Bible Society. The Upper Canada Bible Society and the British and Foreign Bible Society with which we are affiliated and of all its Branches, auxiliaries, agencies, and illustrious patrons from our beloved Queen to the humblest subscriber, whose two mites are equally acceptable in the sight of God, as the external donations of the rich and the great; and the results of their combined efforts, thus far, in pursuance of this object are truly wonderful.

According to the Seventy-fifth Annual Report of the British and Foreign Bible Society, ending March 1879, the translation, printing or distribution of the whole, or parts of the Bible and Testament and parts thereof, has been promoted by the Society since its formation, directly or indirectly in 225 languages or dialects; its issues numbered 85,388,057; its expenditure amounted to £8,606,966, 2s, 50 sterling.

Surely the origin, gradual growth and beneficial results of these Societies are among the evolutions of Divine goodness and mercy—manifestations to fallen man of the great love existing in the Infinite Mind of Him who before the day was—I am. From everlasting to everlasting a personal God; who said "Let there be light" and light was; and they shall not cease to evolve, until the system of Christianity be unfolded, and His gracious purposes of mercy for a redeemed world be fully developed. We need not fear, Truth will prevail. "The entrance of Thy Word giveth light." The prejudices of the Jews, the dwindling dissensions of Christians, the false doctrines of the Mahommedans, Brahmins, Parsees and Buddhists and the Feteshism of Africa, America and Polynesia, and all the absurd theories of God dishonouring scientists shall vanish as shadows before the light of day "and that wicked be revealed whom the Lord shall consume with the Spirit of His mouth and shall destroy with the brightness of His coming, and the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." "The truth of the Lord endureth forever. It shall not return unto Him void; it shall prosper in the thing whereto He sent it."

Mr. H. H. Swinford, Secretary of the Branch, read the annual report of the Committee as follows:

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

Simply to warn you of the flight of time and to give those who are willing, an opportunity of taking their share in God's work, do the Committee remind you that this is the 44th year of the existence of this Branch of the Bible Society. It is a matter of serious reflection to look round this assembly and to find so few here who listened to the reading of the first years of the Society in this neighborhood.

The officials and committee of the Society in Guelph are 31 in number, and the few that have taken an active part in its management regret that they receive so feeble a support from the majority of the Committee chosen at the last annual meeting. The highest number attending Committee on any occasion has been 8, and the lowest 4. This is not as it should be in a Christian land, and the system of voting in Committees en-bloc year after year does not tend to infuse much life and energy into a Society, specially organised for the purpose of increasing the interest of our fellow creatures in the world to come, and decreasing the anxieties and cares in this.

At the first meeting of your Committee held on the 26th of September last, a series of suburban meetings were projected, and they feel much pleasure in reporting that all these engagements have been fulfilled, and at each one a fair gathering of people took place and an earnest desire to promote the objects of the Society was exhibited.

The work of the collectors has not been completely finished, but the most of them have made their returns to the Treasurer, in whose report a statement of the amounts will be given. The Committee would here express the sense of the great obligations under which the Society is laid to the collectors for the cheerfulness and diligence with which they have prosecuted their work.

The voluminous report of the parent Society is in the hands of your Committee, as far as the copies furnished would go, and they will only be too happy to respond to any enquiries you may feel disposed to make, but the report is far too lengthy and exhibits too many figures to be interesting to a meeting of this kind. The results, however, will most probably be referred to in the address of the various speakers.

Your Committee avail themselves of this first opportunity to express publicly their deep sorrow at the loss of two of their members during the past year. They refer to Mr. George Smith and Mr. Charles Mickle, who have passed away to their reward since the last annual meeting, and in them this Society lost sincere and earnest Christian members.

The Depositary, Mr. Savage reported through Mr. Swinford that there was no change in particular in regard to the working of the Depositary. The cash sales are, however, $30 less this year than last, owing no doubt to the continued depression in business; last year being the largest since the opening of the Guelph Branch.

After the missionary hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," Messrs. McCrae and Rev. Mr. Maxwell moved the following resolutions:

"That the Report which has been read, be adopted and printed under the direction of the Committee.

That the thanks of this meeting be presented to the officers, committee and collectors of this Branch for their able services during the past year, and that the following be the officers, committee and collectors for the present year:—President, Jas. Mr. McCrae while moving the resolution referred to the portion of the report stating that the Committee meetings were not well attended. He thought that Committeemen could not prevent being absent often, but said they should be present at the meetings as often as possible, for it was only by taking a deep interest in the work that it could be carried forward to success. With reference to the thanks expressed in the resolution he could heartily endorse that. It gave him pleasure to see the President, who had been connected with the society for thirty years, still spared to preside over its deliberations. To the lady collectors, who had most laborious work, were also due the heartfelt thanks of the Society.

Mr. Maxwell as seconder of the resolution merely endorsed what the mover had said.

The resolution was carried.

Rev. Messrs. Williams and Ball moved "That this meeting, believing the Bible to be the Word of God, and recognizing its authority as supreme in all matters of Christian faith and practice, gratefully acknowledges the importance of the work in which Bible Societies are engaged, and earnestly prays that the Holy Scriptures may soon be placed within the reach of all mankind."

Rev. Mr. Williams in the course of some remarks made in connection with the resolution expressed his belief that the Word of God was the most efficient barrier to the spread of infidelity, and also the best barrier against priestly intolerance.

Rev. Mr. Ball, as seconder, supported what Mr. Williams said, believing that the Bible was the christian power of enlightenment.

The resolution was then carried.

Rev. Messrs. D. Macgregor and R. Torrance moved, that this meeting rejoices in the success which has attended the efforts of the British and Foreign and Upper Canada Bible Societies in the past, and pledges itself to continue, earnest and liberal support to these institutions in the future.

Mr. Macgregor, moved the resolution without any remarks.

Rev. Mr. Torrance, as seconder, gave a sketch of the Bible Society since its establishment, ranking it as one of the foremost Christian institutions, because of its comprehensiveness. Seventy six years ago it was established, and though it had a small beginning, it had gathered strength in its course, like a mighty river, streaming into foreign lands, and had a mighty moral and religious influence. Since the Guelph Branch was organized how many were left like the President to see its steady progress. Since the organization of the Society it had circulated 85,000,000 copies of the Bible. Last year it circulated 3,340,995, being 400,000 more than was circulated the preceding year. Under the direction of the Society directly, the Bible had been printed in 175 languages and dialects, and indirectly in 55 more.

The resolution was then carried, after which the meeting concluded with the Doxology.

The officers of the Department of the Interior have as yet got no clue to the murderer of the mounted policeman Graburn at Fort Walsh, but are confident from what they know of Indian character in that locality that more than one native was implicated in the atrocious act, and that one will eventually tell upon the other.

Daily Mercury.

FRIDAY EVG, JANUARY 9, 1880.

The Programme for the Session

No accusation can be brought against the Ontario Government, inside or outside of the House, this session, for its meagreness of a programme. The Speech read by His Honor on Thursday is one of the longest we have ever placed in our columns, and it refers to almost every question that has been the subject of public discussion, or which was thought to form the basis for legislation.

The great North West and its interests naturally call for some comment, and some legislation. The boundary question is referred to, and it is hoped the Dominion Government will give effect to the decision of the arbitrators, which will greatly enlarge the boundaries of our Province.

The Government promises that at last tardy justice will be done to the Agricultural College, in the shape of a bill, which will not only provide for its permanent management, but will add largely to the resources and usefulness of the Institution. In this connection we are glad to notice that the Government, with the view of advancing the prosperity and interests of the agricultural classes, intend to appoint a Commission to make necessary inquiries into the condition of this great industry.

Several measures of considerable importance are promised, among others a bill framed with a view to lessen the accidents to brakesmen on railroads.

The proposal to put up new Parliament buildings claims considerable attention, and the Government makes out a good case why something should be done for the erection of new and more safe and suitable buildings in another part of the city.

The importance of taking advantage of the depression in Britain in the way of encouraging immigration is very properly referred to, and a promise is made that the matter will be properly represented to the classes most interested in the United Kingdom.

On the whole we have in this Speech a very full and comprehensive programme of work, and it the Government carry out even half what they promise, they will have accomplished a good session's work, and show that they are not only desirous, but capable, of directing the affairs of the Province with a skill and caution unmatched by their opponents.

It is said that the Government have it in contemplation to superanuate a large number of officials shortly.

The Chapleau banquet took place in Montreal on Wednesday night. Tupper, Tilley, Langevin, Pope and Baby were present. Sir John was absent.

The reply to the Address from the Throne will be moved and seconded by Mr. J. Waters, of North Middlesex, and Dr. McLaughlin, of West Durham.

Last spring the present Government wanted oilcloth for the Parliament buildings, and they imported it. Now they have done the same with the new carpet for the Commons Chamber. This is how home industries are being encouraged.

Mr. Bouthillier, M. P. P., has resigned from the Political Economy Club which, by the way, has a dinner to-night. The statement in his letter of resignation is very simple and straightforward. He was asked to become a member of the Club; he found the object of the Club was independence from Great Britain and declines to take part in the movement, no matter under what name its promoters range their Association.

Dundas Banner.—And now they are talking about a new cotton mill in Port Hope and another in Sarnia. This is the natural result of Protection, and overproduction will soon ruin the cotton trade in Canada. The capacity of the mills at present in operation in Canada is 28,600,000 yards annually, or about seven yards to each person in the Dominion. Dealers of experience give it as their opinion that 5½ yards is a fair average.

Mr. Lauder has given notice for a return showing the names of all persons appointed by the Ontario Government as special commissioners or committees of enquiry regarding matters pertaining to Provincial affairs since the year 1871. A statement of the subject matter of investigation or enquiry in each case. A statement of all expenses connected with each commission or committee of enquiry in detail.

The cheering intelligence has been received from Cornwall, which removes Mr. McLennan's success in the contest for the Commons against Dr. Bergin from the sphere of possibility to that of probability. In the town of Cornwall the supporters of Bergin were successful by fifty-three majority, and in the township the supporters of Mr. McLennan were successful by one hundred and fifty-four. If the vote cast in the Dominion contest will be practically the same—and those usually well informed claim that such will be the case—then of Mr. McLennan's success there can scarcely be a doubt.

On both sides the press speaks in approval of Col. Clarke's appointment to the Speakership. The Hamilton Times says:—"Col. Clarke is a gentleman of mature experience; he has sat through two Parliaments and has given invaluable aid to members as Chairman of Committees. He is, moreover, a layman, and his unanimous election to the Speakership, while a tribute to his ability, is a further proof of the high esteem in which he is held by his fellow members on both sides of the House. A more popular selection could not be made. We venture to prophesy that the Colonel's future will not be disappointing to his friends. Those who resided in the city between 1848 and 1850 will remember Col. Clarke as the editor of the Journal and Express of that day.

The printing of the Departmental reports for the ensuing session is very backward. The Government printers are not to blame, but the Departments are in not having sent the copy in as early as was done last year.

The Law of Leap Year.

(Albany Law Journal.)

As leap year is coming it is well to know what the law of leap year is. The law, it is said, takes no notice of parts of days, and as to the 29th of February, it takes no notice of the whole day. The 28th and 29th of February are computed as one day. For example:—Suppose a note is dated on the 28th of February, 1880, payable in one day from date. Ordinarily it would be payable on the 4th of March; and so it is on leap year, and not on the 3rd. In Indiana the question has recently come before the Supreme Court in respect to service of process in 1876, the last leap year. The law there requires ten days previous service for the entry of judgment. In the case before the court the judgment was premature if the 28th and 29th of February were to be computed as one day. The Court said: "It must be regarded as settled in this State that the 28th and 29th days of February in every bisextile year must be computed and considered in law as one day." The question is set at rest by our statute 1 R. S. m. p. 610, s. 3, which provides that "the added day of a leap year immediately preceding, if they shall occur in any period so to be computed, shall be reckoned together as one day." This embraces statutes, deeds, verbal or written contracts, and all public or private instruments.

Overwork.

Unwise above many is the man who considers every hour lost which is not spent in reading, writing or in study, and not more rational is she who thinks every moment of her time lost which does not find her sewing. We once heard a man advise that a book of some kind be carried in the pocket, to be used in case of an unoccupied moment—such is the practice. He died early and tatuous. There are women who, after a hard day's work, will sit and sew by candle or gas light until their eyes are almost blinded, or until certain pains about the shoulders come on, which are almost insupportable, and are only driven to bed by physical incapacity to work any longer. The sleep of the unworked, like that of those who do not work at all, is unsatisfying and unrefreshing, and both alike wake up in weariness, sadness and langour, with an inevitable result both dying prematurely.

Let no one work in pain or weariness. When a man is tired he ought to lie down until he is fully rested; when, with renovated strength, the work will be better done, done the sooner and done with a self-sustained alacrity. The time taken from 7 to 8 hours' sleep out of each 24, is time not gained, but time much more than lost; we can cheat ourselves, but we cannot cheat nature. A certain amount of food is necessary to a healthy body, but if less than that amount be furnished, decay commences that very hour. It is the same with sleep; anyone who persists in allowing himself less than nature requires will only hasten his arrival to the madhouse or the grave.

Strange Freak of Memory.

On the 2nd of January, 1879, Mr. Royal Cowles, jeweller, of Cleveland, Ohio, disappeared from that city. His disappearance naturally aroused excitement in all circles, as Mr. Cowles as his father before him were well known business men in Cleveland. No trace, however, could be discovered of his whereabouts, and his friends made up their minds that he had committed suicide. One day in August last, a mysterious letter came to the residence of the missing man's mother, written in his familiar style and addressed to his little daughter, who at the time, with her mother, was out of the city. The letter stated in substance that the writer was sorry he had nothing to send his little girl on her eleventh birthday except the living love of her father. No date was given or anything that would indicate whence the letter came, but the postmark quite faintly printed on the envelope. With this as a clue, the search for the missing man was renewed. It was learnt that a man answering his description had arrived at Bellaire, Belmont, about the time of Mr. Cowle's dissappearance, and going to the hotel told the proprietor a curious story of his loss of memory. He was apparently sane, though he had lost his identity, and his history prior to that day was to him a blank. He remained at the hotel a few days, and one evening attended a temperance lecture. What he heard took such hold upon his mind that he became temporarily insane and started on a tour through the saloons of the place, demolishing in his zeal for the temperance cause everything he could lay hands on connected with drinking shops. In his crusade he was set upon by roughs and severely handled, his arm being broken in the fracas. He was taken to the infirmary at East Richland, where his injuries were attended. On his recovery, not having any other place to go to or any aim apparently in life, he was retained in the institution and employed as an assistant keeping books and dispensing medicine to the patients. His case excited great curiosity among medical men, none of whom could cite any parallel case of loss of memory. An old friend of Mr. Cowles, who had formerly worked with him in the jewellry business, called at the office and identified the inmate whose case had excited so much interest, as the missing man. Mr. Cowles retained his usual gayety of spirits, could converse freely and intelligibly on current topics of the day, but had not the slightest recollection of anything concerning himself, either his name or any other circumstance, previous to his arrival in Richland, nor did he, when confronted with his friend, recognize him or recall any of the events of his past life with which the latter tried to refresh his memory. He made no objection to returning home, and it remains to be seen whether the meeting with his family will restore to him the memory of his past.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

Mr. J. J. Burrowes, for many years Judge of the County of Frontenac, died at Petrolia on Thursday evening.

"And how does Charlie like going to school?" kindly inquired the good man of the six-year-old boy, who was waiting with a tin can in hand the advent of another dog. "I like goin' well 'nough," replied the embryo statesman, ingeniously, "but I don't like stayin' after I git there." And then he made a dive for a yellow cur with a long tail, while the good man rubbed his head as if in preoccupied thought.

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVII.

AN IMPORTANT CONVERSATION BETWEEN AGNES BORLAND AND HER MOTHER—A MAIDEN'S HEART MAKES ITS FIRST ACQUAINTANCE WITH TROUBLE.

The mother's quick ear noticed the tone, and caused her to bestow a silent, searching, anxious look into the girl's face. It was now too dark for even a mother's eyes to see all that the face revealed, but to the keen apprehension of maternal love enough was said to grieve and distress her. Much she feared that her child's heart affection had unwittingly been given to Orwell Bruce, and though she well knew that now the danger pointed out by Mr. Bishop was averted, she had a sad suspicion that Agnes would do her duty at a great cost to herself. She felt, however, that at that moment nothing more ought to be said, and after sitting a while in silent thought they retired into the cottage to prepare for rest.

That night their evening worship was made peculiarly sacred and significant. This holy duty had been regularly discharged by Mrs. Borland from the day she became a widow. The very night of Adam's death, after kind hands had dressed him in his shroud and sympathizing friends had taken their leave, she called Agnes, then a mere child, to her side, and, amid sobs and tears, took the place which the dead one had filled, and the hearts of the widow and fatherless went forth in prayer to that God whose sweetest and most precious promises they could now claim. Even then, in the first bitter hour of bereavement, in answer to the cry for help, strength and succour came, and all through the days and years of mourning this source of comfort had never been neglected and had never failed. When Agnes became old enough she took an official part in the sacred exercise, and many a time a stray wanderer in the park had listened with thrilled soul to the sound of melody which came from the lowly cottage in the slow and measured cadence of an old psalm tune. Sometimes it fell on the poacher's ear, and he hastened from the spot to escape the rebuke which it brought to a soul out of unison with the sacred lay. At other times the sweet and sacred music was listened to by some pirus shepherd or outdoor laborer, whom it blessed on his homeward way with a sanctifying influence, which added fervour to his own devotions at the family altar. But oftenest of all had it been heard by one who came purposely to listen to the simple soul-impressing strain, or to join in it unheard or unsuspected by the worshippers within. This was David Ramsay, the simple, honest, Christian-minded man, who had sought in humility and reverent affection to fill the place in the cottage which death had made vacent, and who, having failed in that well meant endeavor, strove by all manner of service which could be received, to show his respect and goodwill. Often in the summer gloaming or in the winter moonlight, when he knew the hour had come, would he leave his solitary room near the stables, come across the park to have his soul refreshed by the music of that evening psalm, and retire to his lonely couch unseen by mortal, but feeling that he had been richly blessed. Thus the spirit and example of Adam Borland were present in the home from which he had been taken to enjoy the blessedness of those who, dying in the Lord, rest from their labors, and their works do follow them.

On that particular evening, Mrs. Borland having lighted the lamp and opened the carefully covered Bible, read one or two of those psalms which abound so richly in comfort and promise to the people of God, who do His will and put their trust in Him. Specially and with particular emphasis she recited—for so fully was it on her memory that she scarcely needed to look on the book—Psalm xxxiv., beginning, "I will bless the Lord at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth," and ending with the inspiring assurance, "The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servant, and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate." Then having sung the sweetest of Zion's songs, "God is our refuge"—Agnes leading the tune in a clear unfaltering voice—they knelt side by side and hand in hand while Mrs. Borland in simple, eloquent language, with special earnestness, besought strength from on high for every trial and duty, and made a solemn surrender of herself and her child to the will of the Lord.

No words were spoken when they rose from their knees, but another silent and warm embrace testified to the feelings of their hearts, and they went to rest with a kiss of love upon their lips.

Under the soothing influence of the sacred act with which the summer day had ended a peaceful sleep soon visited the mother's pillow, but more than an hour elapsed ere the eyelids of Agnes were sealed in slumber. For the first time in her life the latter had troubled thoughts to keep her wakeful. Forced to reflect on the character of her intercourse with Orwell Bruce and to examine the state of her heart in relation to him, she had made the discovery that he had become dearer to her than a mere friend; that of late they had felt a deeper tenderness and a sweeter happiness in each other's society than in the joyous freedom of childhood they had known, and though no pointed words of love had been uttered by him, there was that in his manner which indicated that his long liking had developed into a warmer affection. She had felt this without understanding it, for in her guileless simplicity she had never thought of questioning the nature of their intimacy of the consequence to which it might lead. Content only to enjoy the happiness produced by each other's companionship, the real character of that happiness was unknown to her. What it was in the present, what it meant for the future she had never once considered.

Nor had Orwell. Of this she was certain, her belief being grounded on the fact that his manner had not changed as it must have done the moment he discovered the nature of those feelings into which he had been betrayed. The impossibility of a union between them appeared to Agnes as clearly as it had appeared to her mother, and she never doubted that Orwell would see it in the same light the instant the idea presented itself. As yet then it had not presented itself, or she would have known by his altered demeanour; yet, instead of such a change as this discovery necessarily implied, Orwell's show of friendship had increased, she even detected more tenderness in his manner, a greater anxiety to seek her presence, roam with her in the grounds, spend the bright summer hours with her alone in some sequestered nook, where the quietness and beauty of nature enhanced the pleasure of their conversation. That very day they had enjoyed such sweet and solitary communion, and he wished it to be repeated on the morrow. All this was sufficient indication to Agnes that Orwell had not divined the real nature of their friendship.

Had Agnes been dull in mind or doubting in disposition she might have fancied there was nothing more than friendship on his side produced by their association in childhood, but her woman's instinct could not deceive her in this matter. With riper years there had come more tender manifestations, which the heart fails not to interpret. These had been unmistakably shown by Orwell, and now Agnes discovered that they had been responded to by herself.

How was it to end, or rather how was it to be ended. This was the serious, the perplexing, the painful, heart depressing question which faced her as she watched the slow coming of the dawn. The first impulse of pride and duty prompted her to shun his society, and when circumstances threw them together to check the danger of their intercouse by an apperance of coldness and aversion. But scarcely had the idea formed itself in her mind than she rejected it with a decision bordering on anger and self-reproach. Agnes Borland was too truthful in her nature to play a part—to act the hypocrite for any purpose whatever. Orwell had done nothing to merit either coldness or aversion. Her own feelings towards him had undergone no change. Why then should she dissemble by simulating an alteration which did not exist ?

"Never," she mentally exclaimed as the picture of such behaviour presented itself. "I will not think so mean, so wicked, as make him think I dislike him. I will show no difference whatever, but wait till his eyes are opened as mine have been. Then he will withdraw of his own accord, and—and—so the dream, which has not even reached the consistency of a dream, will pass away."

"Yes, this is best—this is best," she murmured, though her heart ached as she said it. "He will learn the truth soon, and go away till he has time to forget me."

Through all this train of thought ran the assumption that Orwell Bruce would view the matter in the light in which she and her mother did. The idea did not once occur to her that he might lightly regard the social gulf which separated them, and prefer his own happiness to any conventional or worldly consideration. That garment of humility which in the simplicity of her nature she wore kept her from adequately estimating her personal qualities—these graces and accomplishments of body and mind which raised her in all but social rank to a level with her worldly superiors, which endowed her with a heritage of worth more valuable than birth or blood, and fitted her for the sphere which Orwell's wife would fill. In her own eyes she was but a humble, obscure gardener's daughter—heir certainly to the honor and integrity possessed by one parent and bequeathed by the other, and furnished mentally with those advantages which education confers, but removed by her origin to an immense distance from the young owner of Marston Grange, to whose father her father was a hired servant, to whose bounty her mother and herself were indebted for subsistence. Could she have conceived it possible that Orwell estimated her by a different and truer standard she would have started in sore affright, and understood how much harder was the duty which lay before her. This, however, was something which her lowly heart never imagined, and perchance it was just as well, for the trouble which had come upon her was great enough as it stood, and sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

All unused to such distressing nocturnal meditations, the girl's healthy organism put forth a vigorous claim for its wonted rest, and as the rosy tints of dawn were beginning to suffuse the eartern sky her senses were overcome by sleep into which was crowded many troubled dreams. When she rose in the morning it was to enter on the most momentous day her life had ever known.

London Working Girls.

Their Mode of Living and of Amusement.

Along the embankment between Blackfriars and Westminster the student of social science may on Sunday evening observe the most remarkable spectacle in Europe. There is not a city on the continent, not even Vienna, where anything like can be seen. Under the gleam of the electric lights thousands upon thousands of men and women are strolling, and it is easy to see that all of them belong to the humblest walks in life. It is no exaggeration to say that thousands of young girls may be seen wandering entirely unprotected by any male escort, and laughing, jeering, pushing, dancing, shouting, sometimes behaving in what the French would call an "unqualified manner." These are the work girls of London. Heaven help them! and they are so little conscious of their degradation that they seem to take positive delight in it. "Do you suppose they are happy?" I asked an old Londoner. "Happy?" they are as pleased as Punch with what they call a lark. Lor' bless you, they don't think they're doing wrong. They're not brought up in a way to know much about the finer feelings, I can tell you." They see immorality all around them, and never know anything else themselves. If one of them remains personally pure, it is considered a [great stroke of chance. They are ignorant as savages of ten thonsand things which they ought to know for their own protection. They wander here by the river, talking sometimes in language which pen may not record. It is easy to see that some of them have been visiting the numerous public houses, and by the time they reach the paternal roof's projecting shadow, some of them are oblivious of external circumstances. Large gangs of men and boys of all grades, from the coorse and dangerous villain in hob-nailed shoes to the small city clerk with his too tight-fitting clothes and his jargon of the counting house, parade the broad sidewalks, now engaged in an amateur dance with some merry party of girls, now talking to some other groups in language which would be insulting if they chose to consider it so, and now getting into a sound encounter at fisticufis. A fight among the girls is not at all uncommon. And these are the future mothers of the working classes; these the creatures that must be in the shop and market at sunrise, and remain there until sunset every day except Sunday And what a use they make of their Sunday! Of course the fathers and mothers, careless and callous as the majority of them are, still would feel a certain compunction about allowing their daughters to wander through the streets alone until long after midnight, if it were not a custom which has become time-honored. What per cent. of the working girls of London are thus exposed to every danger of a great metropolis I do not know, but it must be very great. Judging from the language which one hears from these Sunday promenaders on the embankment they have been touched by no moral influence whatever, nor by any æsthetical one, except that produced by a view of the public house walls and rows of lights around "Cleopatra's Needle."

"But, Freddy, how could you ever think of calling aunt stupid? Immediately go to her and tell her that you are sorry," Freddy goes to aunty and says: "I am sorry that you are stupid."

At a legal investigation of liquor seizure the Judge asked an unwilling witness, "What was in the barrel that you had?" The reply was, "Well, your honor, it was marked 'whisky' on one end of the barrel and 'Pat Duffy' on the other end, so that I can't say whether it was whiskey or Pat Duffy was in the barrel being as I am on my oath."

A poet asks:—"Where are the dreams of the days gone by?" This is a singular query even for a poet. The dreams of the days gone by are like the days themselves gone by—gone by. A dream can't be preserved like quinces and pears and other fruit. The poet can witness just as lively and startling dreams as those that have fled, if he will eat a mince pie, a dozen raw oysters, and some pickled pig's feet, and drink a pint of cider before going to bed.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.—At a recent convention of the stove manufacturers held at Detroit, Mich., the President said: If we would make the best possible use of our money, we should patronize ably conducted and responsible newspapers. The newspaper is immeasurably the best medium open to our trade; the most liberal and expert advertisers testify to its value, and in the employment of its columns we would find a means of escape from wasteful, undignified and ineffective methods."

SMOKERS,

I will unhesitatingly guarantee my

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process through which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial.

The French Canadians.

The Montreal Star says:—A dispute is at present in progress between French Canadian papers in Canada and the United States, concerning the French speaking inhabitants of the latter country. The American papers estimate the number at 400,000, while our journals will admit at the most only half that population. It might be supposed that statistics of some sort would be easily obtainable to determine the question, but it seems not. Among the facts brought out in the discussion, however, are some of much interest, that is if they are facts and not fancies. Le Canada, which takes the lead in the debate, asserts that in the Province of Quebec the English-speaking inhabitants are steadily decreasing in numbers, and that in the other sections in the Dominion the incoming immigrants, and the natural increase of population, scarcely make up for the losses which we are sustaining through emigration to the States. Therefore, argues Le Canada, only the great fecundity of the French-Canadian race accounts for the increase in the inhabitants of the Dominion. It is shown by statistics that the French-Canadians double in number every twenty-eight years. In 1765, the French-Canadians in America numbered 84,000. In 1877, they numbered 1,350,000, and the rate of increase is still undiminished, notwithstanding the asserted stoppage of the advance of the English-speaking Canadians. These statements are uncompromising, and should afford much comfort to our French speaking fellow-citizens. According to their tenor the French-Canadians are taking Canada more effectually than the Dutch ever took Holland.

PERSONAL.—Mr. S. W. Galbraith, of the Wingham Times, who has been visiting the city for the past few days, returned home yesterday.

This will be a large gain to the butchers of Ontario.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—The usual Friday meeting of the Bible Class Association of Chalmers' Church was held last evening in the lecture-room of the church. A good number were present, considering the inclemency of the weather. Mr. Panton, the President, delivered his third lecture, on "The dawn of Life, as read from the Geological Records." These lectures have proved very interesting to the Association and the third the most interesting of all, as the lecturer pointed out some of the Darwinian notions, and showed the lack of "connecting links," that are so necessary to this system's success. He has induced some of the members to study the subject, on account of the pleasure his lectures have afforded.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE.—Mr. Spicer, Assistant Superintendant of the Grand Trunk Railway, issued the following circular to the employees on the line before the close of 1879:—"The Grand Trunk Railway Temperance movement, which was started in 1873, has been continued from year to year with most satisfactory and encouraging results. Before entering on the New Year, I would ask you to make a good commencement by joining in a renewal of the declaration in favor of Total Abstinence. All who have so far supported the movement can, I feel sure, look back upon the last six years without experiencing a single regret on account of the stand they have taken against the many deplorable evils and troubles which we know too often result solely from drinking habits. I only urge you to do what you know and feel to be right in this matter for your own personal advantage and welfare, for the well-being of your families, and for the benefit and best interests of your fellow-servants and the Company. With these good objects in view, let us use our best influence with those about us to give Total Abstinence a faithful trial for another year.

WE are sorry to announce that the Rev. Mr. Harris is very unwell.

A HEADLESS ROOSTER.—The Burford correspondent of the Woodstock Sentinel Review, says:—A man here named Silverhorn while killing some fowls on the 20th inst., beheaded one which immediately sprang up and ran off. He bethought him of the one on exhibition in Brantford, he took it into the house and matted some down over the incision, and now has a duplicate of the one which has caused such a sensation. Chas. Adams is off to Guelph exhibiting it, dreaming of the gold mine it will bring him.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 9.

The House met at three o'clock when Mr. McLaughlin, member for West Durham, rose to move an Address in reply to the Speech. He touched upon several topics, more especially the commercial improvement due to the late bountiful harvest, the brightening prospects of the lumber industry, and the new territory acquired under the North West Boundary award.

Mr. Waters, of North Middlesex, seconded the address in a vigorous speech of some length, the most significant part of which was his frank testimony in favour of the necessity of new Parliament buildings.

Mr. Meredith in a speech showed considerable temper. The only part of the Ministerial programme he assailed was the proposal to erect new Parliament buildings. He denied that there was any special necessity for the erection of new buildings. Historic memories surrounded the present buildings as the scene of action of some of the greatest Canadianstatesmen and of the passage of some of the greatest measures, and these memories should not be disregarded It was also said this House was unhealthy—that there were all sorts of gases in it. (Hear, hear, and loud laughter.) In spite of its unhealthiness, however, the hon. gentlemen in the Government who had been there for eight years still looked hale and hearty, and there seemed to be plenty of people throughout the Province who wanted to come there. (Laughter.) It was a serious matter to take so large a sum out of the treasury unnecessarily, and unless efforts were made to equalize the revenue and expenditure one of two results would happen—either a change in the present system or a withdrawal or reduction of our subsidies. It would be more for the benefit of the people, he thought, if the sum proposed to be expended for new Parliament buildings were devoted to the erection of training schools for teachers. He hoped the Government would be prepared to submit their measures early next week. He had only one remark more to offer. Last session feelings ran high, and occurrences took place which perhaps might have been avoided. This Legislature had been inaugurated under the most auspicious circumstances, and it was his earnest desire that they should continue to conduct the proceedings with the same good feeling. It would be his endeavour to do so, and he hoped they might all learn to give and take, and be actuated with a desire to serve this their common country. (Cheers.)

Mr. Mowat on rising to respond was received with loud and long continued cheers. He expressed pleasure at the remarks which had last fallen from the leader of the Opposition, and took it for granted that the spirit they set forth would be exemplified by the members on that side. He could assure his hon. friend that if so they would find that spirit equally manifested on the Government side The hon. member desired that the Min. of Public Works should be asked the reason for the increased majority of the Government. He presumed that meant that the Roman Catholics had very largely given their votes in favour of a Reform Government. He could see no reason why Roman Catholics should not support a good Government. (Cheers.) But the Roman Catholic vote formed only one-fifth of the total vote of the Province, so that the support of the Government was not only from them, but from Protestants as well. He acknowledged and was proud of the support he had received from all parties, as it was an acknowledgment that the Government had dealt fairly by all denominations, creeds and nationalities. As to new Parliamentary buildings he said the proposal was not made for the erection of new Parliament buildings. The real question was not whether new buildings should be erected or not, but when they should be erected—whether they should be built now, under a new Government, or at a future period under a bad one. His hon. friend, in speaking of this matter as if it were to be done entirely in the interests of the city, should remember that not a member of the Government represented the city. Four members of the Government resided, and always had resided, out of the city, and they permitted him to mention that it was at their suggestion that the matter had first been taken up. Not one word had been said about it until after the elections were over. After due consideration the Government had come to the conclusion that the expenditure was a proper one, and they might assume the responsibility of making it. He thought he might fairly determine from the speech made by the leader of the Opposition that there were really no faults to be found with the Speech from the Throne, and he hoped to be able to carry out all the measures there indicated. (Loud cheers.) He was glad to notice that such accessions of strength had been made to the Reform ranks in the House by the last election, and he particularly complimented the mover and seconder of the Address upon the able speeches they had made.

The resolution for an Address, in answer to the Speech from the Throne was carried.

The Address was reported and passed unanimously.

Mr. Wood gave notice that he would on Monday move the House into Committee of Supply.

Mr. Wood gave notice that he would on Monday move the House into Committee of Ways and Means.

High Court In Belleville.

(From the Belleville Ontario.)

The centennial sittings of this Court were held in the Police Court room last night, before an immense audience, one of the largest and most disorderly ever assembled in this or any other city. This is not to be wondered at, however, when the fact is taken into consideration that the court was held for the purpose of disposing of libel suits brought against the proprietors of the Guelph MERCURY and a local Belleville paper, by James Gay, the master post to this day.

The bar was ably represented.

While waiting the arrival of His Mightiness Judge Sterly, by request of the audience, the poet Gay entertained them with some of his choicest selections, his own compositions all of which elicited thundering plaudits. In the midst of one of these pieces he was silenced by the stentorian voice of that limb-of-the-law, W. B. Dublin crying "silence." All eyes were turned towards the entrance and His Mightiness was ushered into the ante-chamber with all due pomp.

After a short lapse of time the door of the Judge's Chamber was thrown open and silence still as death fell upon the vast throng as the grand entree was made, and His Mightiness proceeded to his seat upon the throne.

The proclamation was made in accordance with time-honored custom by the High Cryer, after which a jury was impanelled, composed, as the learned counsel for the prosecution said, of the hardest lot of citizens in Belleville.

The jury being sworn in, a lengthy consultation took place as to which of the gentlemen learned in the law was to be retained on behalf of the prosecution. This question was finally settled by N. B. Irish and W. B. Southrup taking the brief, though without "slabs." E. B. Cowslick appeared for the defence, in the absence of the senior counsel, E. McGinnis.

The jury were each in turn challenged by Mr. Irish, found to be "solid men," and the case proceeded.

The opening address to the jury was made by W. B. Southrup, in a highly creditable manner, in which he depicted the grevious injury that had been done to his client. His address would have done credit to the celebrated Sergeant Buzfuz, of Pickwickian fame.

The first witness examined was, the poet Gay, who truth to say, did not get fair play, from his senior counsel. His evidence, however, was of such an overwhelming nature, that it carried conviction to the hearts of the jurors, who were heard to exclaim, in whispered tones "his verdict is sure!" His life was traced from the time of his becoming a "Devonshire Dumpling" to the time of his being dubbed a "rotten poic" by the Guelph MERCURY and subsequently "an imposter" by the Belleville paper. It was clearly proven that he was a natural-born poet, his muse blossoming at the early age of 14 years, when he wrote a beautiful poem on "the cat, the rat, and the blacksmith." Several samples of his poetic genius were given to the Court, and once an intermission took place for the purpose of allowing him to play a couple of selections on his flute, to show that he was not only a poet but a musician.

Several other witnesses were examined, after which N. B. Irish addressed the jury in a very exhaustive speech, interlarded with copious remarks on the debased condition of the press of the present day. So eloquent did he wax at times that he donned the poets silk hat and spectacles for the purpose, he said, of getting inspiration.

We exceedingly regret that our space will not allow of a more extended notice.

His Mightiness summed up briefly, and after an absence of about half a minute the jury returned into Court with a verdict of $10,000 against the Guelph MERCURY, and $5,000 against the Belleville paper. In addition to this, the learned judge sentenced the culprits to one year each in the Central Prison at hard labor. Several other persons, witnesses, and jurymen were sentenced to six and nine months each in jail at hard labor.

An appeal was entered, and the Court rose at about 11:30.

To-day the Master Poet Gay, was presented with a handsome medal, on behalf of the citizens, by His Worship the Mayor.

He wears his honors meekly,
And receives them every day,
He gets them by the handful,
He's the poet of the day.
Tho' he's advanced somewhat in years
And never crossed the bay,
He's as proud as a little butterfly,
Is our happy Poet Gay.

The Halifax Reporter discourses thus sensibly on a subject that every journalist of long experience has had a taste of:—"Some people think that they are very smart when they abuse a newspaper or an editor. They fo get that many papers have largely profited by becoming the object of attack, and that some editors have thriven on being assaulted. Aside from this consideration it should be remembered that an editor is often obliged to occupy a very delicate position. His sense of right will sometimes cause him to defend or attack a man, a business, a class or a cause at a risk of making enemies of others only, to find those in whose interests he has labored display ingratitude. Of course no level-headed editor expects to find much gratitude or charity. He must generally be content with the approval of his own conscience, and pursue the course that he believes to be right, regardless of either frowns or smiles suported by his conscious rectitude. It will all come out right in the end. It is hard to be misunderstood, and to find those to whose support you have earned a right desert you to meet alone the attacks of those whom you have incensed in pursuing the course that you were convinced was right, but you will thereby learn a lesson of self reliance and from a habit of judging entirely for your self that will be invaluable. You will, after a time be able to tell the truth, however distasteful, and to refuse to utter a falsehood, no matter how much pleasanter and smoother it may promise to make things go."

The Waterloo Chronicle says:—The heirs of Christopher Springer have been notified to attend a meeting at St. Louis next month. The estate is said to be worth $8,000,000, and embraces 800 acres, on which Wilmington, Del., stands; also a large property in Sweden. Among the heirs is Mr. Moses Springer the jovial M. P. P. for North Waterloo, and all who know him would be glad to learn that a goodly portion of that eight million had found its way in his direction.

SATURDAY EVG, JANUARY 10, 1880.

The New Departure in Political Economy.

It would certainly have startled the grave author of the Wealth of Nations, had he ever suspected that after coning his logical, if somewhat prosy discussions, for more than a century, his disciples should at this time of day have learned their lesson so indifferently, and have made such a departure from the exact methods of their master as to dignify a porous after dinner annexation speech with a title connecting it in any way with a science so uncompromising and inflexible as Political Economy. It is no doubt a revelation to many, as it is to ourselves, that Political Economy, or indeed any other kind of economy, should be the forte of our blue-blooded Eastern patriots. But when the definition of this almost exact science is rendered so accommodating as to include such subjects as Imperial Representation, Colonial Independence, and especially Annexation, we are forced into the admission, that either our tutors were at fault, or we have fallen immeasurably behind in the march of progress.

This is a very humiliating blow to our vanity, for after this, we are not at all sure that the poor benighted Grit, whom we had regarded as the "heir of all the ages" is any longer in the "formost ranks of time." In fact, we have a kind of dim conviction that the poor fellow is not in the ranks at all, but rather to be found amusing himself with the musty records and defunct grandeurs of his past achievements. We are admonished that, "'tis distance lends enchantment to the view," but nevertheless cannot avoid re-calling the high aims and glorious promises of Confederation; and the greatness and stability and influence, and social, and political, and commercial importance which were to be the first fruits of our Colonial unity; but above all, we cannot forget the security which it was certain to afford against the unutterable Yankee. And then its privileges and opportunities, and fields of exercise for the vaulting ambition of our free-born sons:—nne great Parliament, and a dozen, more or less, smaller ones, with their thousands of members, and ten thousands of offices, and power to add to their numbers, ad infinitum; and the privilege of being two members of Parliament at once! All this we had concluded was sufficiently grand and imposing to satisfy our national vanity, and it is certain, the non-progressive Grit thinks so still. The poor fellow may be still found lingering about the portals of this fair temple of promise, little suspecting that he is, and has been all along, building castles in the air. In his long reverie over the magnum bonum and multum in-parvo of Confederation, he has not heard the herald of progress as he passed through the land, blowing his primal tout Canada first. He was not even aroused by the second call, for he failed to assist in securing Canada for the Canadians. Indeed, he is only at this late hour opening his eyes to the conviction that he has dreamed too long in Sleepy Hollow, when he finds to his astonishment that Confederation is a failure and a fraud. Canada first vanished to the utmost extremity of nowhere, and Canada herself, by no manner of means half enough for the Canadians. The genus Politician has multiplied so amazingly in this fruitful land, that even after the miserable Grit has been pushed to the wall, there is no longer room for the irrepressible Tory. He is, therefore, willing, nay anxious, to throw himself and his country into the fraternal embrace of Brother Jonathan, if he may only have a hand in civilizing the Utes, or curtailing the Mormons, or be initiated into the mysteries of the counting out or in system, or be allowed to return to his bulldozing instincts, and have a shie at the Solid South.

All this opens up a wide field for the exercise of his political enterprise, and he may possibly come to the surface in the struggle, for he has ihfinite faith in the survival of the fittest. This harmless by-play of his inward consciourness crops out in the borrowed guise of political economy, and goes forth to the world as the latest outcome of science. It has not occurred to him that it might be a dangerous experiment to place his country at the mercy of a powerful majority whose social, political and commercial prejudices have been for many long years in opposition to all the interests he is so willing to jeopardize. But if this be only an imaginary fear, do the political institutions across the lines run so smoothly and so free from the influence of baseness and bribery, or the force of the mob-demon, that as a professed lover of his country he is willing to adopt them in preference to his own.

So long as there can be a legitimate and very grave doubt as to the wisdom of such a course, what can be the meaning of the agitation which characterizes the meetings of the Political Economy Society, lately organized in Montreal, for the discussion of Annexation, Imperial Federation, and Colonial Independence. Ontario can only look upon discussions in favour of Independence or Annexation as an attempt to form a revolutionary party out of the restless, dissatisfied or disappointed spirits who in every country are ready to connect themselves with the promoters of any change that promises a new field of activity for their laten tenergies. If this be the object of the Political Economy Society, it may possibly succeed in rendering itself notorious, though we have little fear that it will ever become either famous or successful.

MR. WIGLE, the member for South Essex, has been re-elected the Opposi- "Whip."

A MEMBER of the Reform party intends during the session to introduce a Bill providing for sanitary reform.

MR. VALIN, Conservative M. P. for Montmorenci, acknowledged bribery by agents yesterday, and his seat will be declared void to-day.

F. H. PERREAULT & Co., printers, advertise their "Canadian Emancipation and Commercial Union with the United States," as a monthly review. The press in Montreal consider it will be short-lived unless subsidized by the Ameircans.

"So far as we can make out the situation in Russia," writes the London Spectator, "the misery of the peasantry is not the source of revolutionary feeling but rather the impotance of intelligence, that impotence being most paintully felt in the utter incapacity of the educated to move the peasantry."

THE Toronto Telegram says:—This is the last occasion upon which the present Lieutenant-Governor will be called to open the Legislature, as his term of office expires in the course of a few months. He has done the few public duties that appertain to the office as well as it is possible for anybody to do them, although the Mail lifted up its voice and wept aloud on one occasion because he did not get up a series of private theatricals and invite the members of its staff to witness them.

THE Ottawa Free Press says that Mr. Hooper, M. P., having demonstrated his great ability as a book-keeper and financier for the County which he so ably represents in Parliament, it is whispered that his services will be secured by the Finance Minister to straighten out the revenue returns so that the deficit will disappear next session. Judging by Mr. Hooper's experience in Napanee we should say he would be more successful in making the returns disappear, while he could profitably devote his spare moments to "straightening out" his deficits.

THERE is some little talk as to the reason why Sir John Macdonald did not attend the banquet in honor of Mr. Chapleau. The Conservative orators, especially the French, all referred to this as a matter of regret. It is hinted that the feeling between the two Conservative leaders is not of the most cordial, but of this we are not in a position to speak. Mr. Chapleau is not the man to stand any slight, and it is stated that Sir John did not send his congratulations on the result of the recent elections in the Province. Be that as it may, Sir Charles was the object of the Provincial Premier's praise and not Sir John.

THE Arthur Enterprise, if nothing else, is noted for the elegance of its diction, and it now leads the way in its novel mode of spelling, which is however scarcely phonetic. Here is how it moralizes on the late municipal elections in that clachan:—"The electors can now repent at their leisure, the folley of being led away, by the animosity and bad feeling of those, whom the Lord specially fitted, the one for a second class follower and the other a first class swallower. We are aware that all centures should be mild, and we feel disposed to make them so, but when opponents assume a dishonorable attitude defence is necessary."

The St. Catharines News says that it is doubtful whether Mr. Ellis gets the position to be vacated by Mr. Bodwell on the Canal, "owing to the row being kicked up by the Rykert men." Then it follows that there were sore heads, not of the Reform party, growing out of this disgraceful act. Who among the Rykert men are kicking up the greatest racket it would be interesting to know. They all want it, no doubt, but they can't have it. This fact does not prevent them rowing, however. And the more they row the less will be the enjoyment of the stolen fruit. The principal reason for the removal of Mr. Bodwell, whose efficiency no one has ever called in question, is to provide a situation for Mr. Ellis, who unsuccessfully contested South Grenville in the Conservative interest, spending his own resources freely, doubtless in expectation of a future reward.

SOMETIMES the truth reaches us from unexpected sources. The Conservative press of Quebec is not noted for its independence, but here is one paper (Le Nouvelliste) which ventures to tell some unpalatable truths. It says:—"Those who see the last of the closing year without regret are numerous. Opened under the most brilliant auspices (of Sir John, Sir Samuel and Sir Charles), 1879 has not been faithful to the fine promise which it made. The commercial and industrial crisis which has held us in its fetters for many years has not relaxed its rigors. It has struck right and left, casting hundreds of families into straits and embarassments." This, coming from a Conservative paper, speaks volumes as to the success of the N. P. in the sister Province.

Dufferin Election.

The contest on Friday in Dufferin resulted in the election of Mr. Wm. Jelly, Opposition, by a majority of about 300 over Mr. Thomas Jull, Ministerial. The polling showed that of the three Opposition candidates Mr. Jelly was by far the strongest, the vote standing as follows:—

Jelly	767
Jull	506
McGhee	399

Majority about 250.

Mr. Henderson was nowhere, and the other candidates practically retired before polling day.

THE KINCARDINE REPORTER.

Mr. Dack begins his career as proprietor and editor of the Kincardine Reporter with a spirited introductory article. If he keeps straight to the promises made in it—and we have full confidence he will do so—his success is assured. He says:—

"With the present issue of this journal a change takes place in the proprietorship. In assuming sole control of the Reporter, it is with a full knowledge of the responsibilities attached to the position of a public journalist. Knowing this, we have no fear of the result. If fearlessly dealing with questions of vital interest to the welfare of this section particularly, and the Province at large generally, in a broad, liberal spirit; if using our utmost endeavors to advance the prosperity of the town of Kincardine and the business men in it; if publishihg a live, newsy, local newspaper, untrammelled by anything but a conscientious spitit to pursue a course that will redound to our credit and be a benefit to others; if striving at all times to deserve the title of a patriotic journalist, rather than that of a partizan, and by so doing gain the respect and good will of our fellow townsmen; if these principles will ensure success, we will have no cause to regret taking up our abode near the waters of Huron and the Penetangore.

"In politics, our friends, both Reform and Conservative, will always know where we are to be found. We have every confidence in the great Liberal party in Canada, and while the Reform leaders still pursue a course which is in keeping with a noble record, no change can possibly take place in our views. All good measures—measures calculated to foster and develop the resources of the country, as well as prove a benefit to the very back-bone of Canada—the agricultural classes—no matter whether they emanate from Conservative or Reformer, will be endorsed by us and receive our cordial support."

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The Proposed Alterations—Some Radical Changes.

The Mail makes the following statement in regard to the changes in the working of the Weights and Measures Act, contemplated by the Minister of Inland Revenue, which will likely be published and put into force at once:—

It is probable that for the first verification and stamping at the place of production, the fees may be paid at once, or it may be postponed till the articles are sold and are ready for sending out to purchasers. In order to guard against collusion a proper number will be attached to each machine which will also be the number of the certificate of verification, and thus absolute certainty will be guaranteed as to the verification of each weight or measure. If the fees are paid at once by the manufacturers the ordinary black stamp will be affixed to the certificate, which must be attached to the article. If payment is postponed, a special red stamp will be affixed to the certificate, which must also be packed with the article. Articles thus verified and stamped will be allowed to pass from the manufacturer to the dealer, but articles bearing a red stamp signifying that fees are not paid will be subject to the reverification if found in use without a certificate of indemnification. Manufacturers may remove their goods in this line to the premises of dealers provided articles are stamped with the name of the maker and the number of the articles, that the package is marked "uninspected" and that the inspector is advised of such removal. In the case of imported goods in this line, the collector at the ports where such articles are imported will notify the nearest inspector, giving the number and description of the articles as invoiced and the names of the consignees. These goods so imported may be transferred while in the original package if due notice is given to the inspector and the package is marked "uninspected." Private persons importing weights and measures must send them direct from the custom house to the nearest inspector for verification and stamping. All weighing machines may, of course, be placed in proper position before being stamped. Complaints having been made against the prohibition of small iron weights, it is understood that the Department will permit the use of iron weighis of under half a pound, provided they are of sufficient softness to admit of the official stamping.

ELORA.—The receipts of the recent polytechnic exhibition held here amounted to $225.06, the expenses footed up to $110.20, leaving a net balance of $114.86.——Mr. Norwood, proprietor of the Elora tannery, was at Elora last week. He is making arrangements to carry on an extensive business, and expects to turn out one hundred and and fifty sides of leather a week. He also contemplates going into the malting business at an early date.——At a special meeting of the Elora Council last week, the Reeve, Messrs. Carter and Bain, were appointed a committee to confer with the Directors of the Merchants' Bank, regarding the offer of a monied gentleman to purchase the carpet factory at Elora.——The monthly fair at Elora was tolerably well attended. Prices were better than at the December fair, ranging from $3.50 to $4.00 per 100 pounds live weight.——An inquest was held on the body of Samuel Auger before Dr. Paget, Elora, last week. The post mortem examination revealed that death was indirectly caused by a cancer in the bowels, which had affected the whole of the internal organs.

The Dominion Alliance is now turning its attention to the Local Legislature for measures to promote temperance reform. Why don't they apply also to Sir John?

An American on our North-West.

Mr. J. Waterous, of Passaic, New Jersey, writes to the New York Sun:—

Without a doubt the most profitable wheat farms on the prairies are not larger than 640 acres, and, perhaps, even 320 acres. These will warrant the use of the most improved machinery, such as gang ploughs and self-binding harvesters, and at the same time the owner can oversee his own farm; while on the larger farms overseers are necessary, and the attending expense of managing men in gangs. I have no hesitancy in predicting that for an indefinite time to come the most successful farms will be contained within one square mile each.

To the farmer who wishes to grow wheat exclusively, and manage the business himself, fine opportunities are presented in the new region now being opened for settlement. One can plough a furrow with but few breaks for one thousand miles, from Red River up into the Saskatchewan valley, through as fine prairie soil as exists in the West. Wherever the railroads have penetrated it is being settled with great rapidity. The developments of the past three years have been simply amazing, yet the tide of people have only begun to roll into that wonderfully fertile country. It is the country for small farmers, and there are plenty of rich homesteads waiting for the hand of the Northener, or of those who like the cold bracing winters of the North.

There is no occasion to raise any alarm about any immediate over production of wheat. When the great body of wheat land in California was first cultivated, the price of wheat was affected very little, and there is is no probability that as large farm will ever be opened elsewhere. But the number of small farms will be very large whenever the railroads pierce those fertile prairies.

But my object in writing this is to correct the that the very large farms are the principal sources of the production of wheat from these new regions. There are now hundreds of small farmers to every one of the large ones, and with a few exceptions, the bulk of the wheat in all those new countries is grown by men who drive their own teams, or immediately over see the driving of them. I do not think that the small farmers there have the least to fear from the competition of the larger capitalists any more than they did during the early settlement of Illinois.

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

THE ROVER OF THE SEAS:

—OR—

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A GREAT CONFLICT BETWEEN LOVE AND DUTY—AGNES BORLAND IS TRUE TO HER PROMISE — THE LOVERS IN THE RICH DELL.

No one who saw Agnes Borland walking through the park to the mansion on the following morning would have supposed that she had passed a restless, unquiet night. She had such a fund of natural vigour, such a store of healthful vitality, that this first trouble which had come upon her maiden life—great though it was, and far reaching as it was seen to be—had not, to an ordinary observer, made any perceptible impression on her. A girl of her age with a weak physical organization would in the same circumstances have shown a visible wretchedness, pale cheeks, dull, troubled eyes, a drooping form, and dejected attitude. But Agnes Borland possessed a strength of body and mind which prevented inward distress from showing itself by these outward signs. Her face might be somewhat graver, her step quieter and a little less elastic, her habitual composure more of an approach to pensiveness. But the change was so slight that those who knew her were not likely to notice it, and in point of fact no one did notice it except Miss Elliott when Agnes entered Miss May's room at the Grange. This lady did certainly perceive that Agnes had some trouble weighing on her mind which was not there on the previous evening when she left the mansion. But then Miss Elliot was a lady whose powers of observation were unusually acute. Having in early life passed through a session of suffering, she was quick to detect a shadow on the spirit of another—especially when that other was one whom she knew so intimately and loved so fondly as she did Agnes Borland. Miss May, the poor invalid, whom they both tended, loved Agnes too, but, lacking the same power of penetration, she noticed nothing of change in Agnes, and if she did not, it was unlikely that the other inmates of the mansion would.

Miss May's room was a large cheerful apartment, looking to the south, and in it the invalid was surrounded by everything that could minister to her ease and enjoyment. Her disposition was naturally lively, but increasing weakness had subdued her spirits to a gentle sweetness which won the love and sympathy of all who came near her. As we see her now in this July day, reclining on a couch, and wrapped in shawls notwithstanding the warmth of the atmosphere, we observe how fragile and delicate she is. Her thin taper fingers, white as Parian marble, the red and white complexion of her sharply chiseled features, her eyes unnaturally large and ominously bright, proclaim at once the nature of her disease, and the progress she has made towards the sad consummation. The very beauty which flushed her features was a sign to those who could read its meaning that the flower so chaste and fair was doomed to early decay. Young though she was, she probably knew this herself, but with the reticence distinctive of the Scotch nature, she kept such thoughts of her condition to herself, occasionally, however, dropping a significant word, which abode sadly in the minds of those who heard it.

It was the province of both Miss Elliot and Agnes to tend the fair young creature in her weakness, and it was a labor of love to both of them. In their society her days of langour were brightened by their watchful care, all her wants were supplied and her wishes carried out, and as she was singularly free from the peevishness of an invalid, their duties were as pleasant as they were beneficent.

To Agnes Borland Miss Bruce clung with the eagerness with which the weak lean upon the strong. It was Miss Elliot who read to her, and who chiefly sang and played to her, but it was the arm of Agnes which supported her in her little walks, it was Agnes's bosom on which she loved to recline. When Agnes was beside her she was content. Yet in her felt dependence, she was not selfish or inconsiderate, and, when at noon Orwell looked into the room to remind Agnes of her promise to walk with him, she was the first to cry out for the promise to be kept. Agnes herself had an instinctive desire not to accompany Orwell that day, which must, no doubt, be set down to the account of the previous evening's conversation with her mother. When she gave the promise to Orwell to repeat the walk which both had so much enjoyed, she attached no special importance to either his request or her acquiescence, but the consciousness to which she had been awakened made both now seem fraught with a momentous influence, which she shrank from encountering. The only excuse she could put forth for remaining indoors was obviated ere it proffered, for May said she was going to sleep and would require no help during the afternoon but what Miss Elliot could render. Deprived, therefore, of the only feasible plea for staying in the house, she quietly went upstairs and made herself ready to go.

When she came down Orwell was waiting in the hall, and they went out together—Orwell putting her arm within his, and turning towards the path which led through and beyond the wood to the birch dell, where they had spent some happy hours on the previous day.

The time had been when Orwell and Agnes had rambled up these slopes and through the dell, not arm-in-arm, but in the wild freedom of happy youth and boisterous animal spirits; sometimes hand in hand as they ran down a steep place or crossed the burn by stepping stones, but oftenmost unheedful of more precise social observances. Of late, when they were boy and girl no longer, but he a tall, stout-limbed youth with the beard coming on his chin, and she attained to woman's dimensions, a greater consciousness had come upon them, and more refined attentions were given and received. This was after Orwell had been absent finishing his education in Glasgow. When he paid a visit to the Grange he ceased to treat Agnes in the old unceremonious manner, and the careless ways of ungrown youth were exchanged for the greater refinement which comes with enlarged intelligence. Agnes accepted the change as a thing natural and agreeable, for she, too, had been mentally expanding into a finer and deeper life, which sought for new and higher outward expression than childhood dreams of. But had they reflected on its meaning the silent change in their attitude would have given them to understand that their relation towards each other had changed to the very centre—that new thoughts and feelings would possess them partly as a development of the former intercourse and partly as the result of childhood being now left behind, and entrance made into the fulness of man and womanhood. They had lost nothing of their old frankness—their companionship was nearly as free and unreserved in character as it had always been, only a certain tenderness had been infused, and a sweeter joy than even their childhood with its gladsome glee had known.

We have not as yet formerly introduced Orwell Bruce or given a personal description of him. Tall, well-formed, and muscular, broad and full chested, erect in the shoulders, on which his head lay well back; his physical aspect and bearing were attractive and gentlemanly. His complexion was not fair, neither could it be called dark; his face was handsome in contour, and the set of his features pleasant and agreeable. If his appearance suggested any defect in his character it was the want of firmness. He had the look of a youth who would be likely to pass under the influence of a stronger nature, and it would depend on the quality of that nature what the kind of influence would be; if he had for his companion an evil or designing man, who sought to serve a sinister purpose by his means, the designer would apparently have no great difficulty in swaying him to his ends. So said the easy gait, the mobile mouth, the open, unsuspicious countenance of Orwell Bruce.

It will be remembered that Agnes in the conversation with her mother on the previous evening had represented Orwell as not looking so well as formerly. He was pale, and had dark rings round his eyes, as if late hours and a vitiated atmosphere had contributed to deprive him of some of his rural freshness. When his sister and the rest remarked on these signs of deterioration, he hastily, yet laughingly, called the idea imaginary, and led the conversation elsewhere, as if to get rid of an unpleasant recollection. Could they have beheld him in the solitude of his chamber left to his own silent, uninterrupted thoughts they would have been still more concerned, for there he sometimes sat moody, uneasy, dissatisfied under some secret cause of disturbance, till suddenly he would start up with the aspect of one who determinedly shook himself free of the thing which opposed him, and to say to himself—

"It can't be helped now. I was foolish to go so far, but I'll make it all right for May, and settle down in a better groove. A few years of economy will recover the loss, and by living at the Grange I shall be out of the way of temptation. Yes, thank goodness, the thing can be mended, and I shall set about it at once. Reuben has shown me a way out of the difficulty, and I'll follow his advice. Good for me and her that I can."

Whatever this might refer to the resolution he had reached served to clear his brow and relieve his mind, and he went down to seek Agnes for the very walk they were now taking.

It would seem as if Orwell had effectually disposed of the weight which had oppressed him, for as he walked with his fair companion through the wood he was gay and aminated, full of the old exuberant spirits which he had possessed as a boy—more like himself than he had been since his arrival. The glow of his pleasure banished the paleness of his face; his eyes sparkled with their wonted lustre, his voice, deeper in its tones, had the same hearty sound with which in days of yore he woke the echoes of these summer woods.

Infected by his gaiety, Agnes grew aminated likewise, and forgot for the time the shadow that had crossed her path.

"You are in capital spirits to-day," she observed, as they were descending the slope of the dell.

"I am," he briskly rejoined. "Yesterday's heat made me dull and languid, but this cool breeze makes it a pleasure to breathe, and the sight of these familiar woods, the society of my early playmate and lifelong friend inspires me with quite a new life. Upon my word, there is no pleasure to be met with abroad equal to the pride and joy one feels in his native land. As I said yesterday, I am resolved to settle down. Don't you think it is time?"

"I think it is more a matter of feeling and inclination," returned Agnes with a smile.

"Perhaps it is, but why should a fellow knock about the world as I have been doing, seeing things that have no interest for him beyond the hour, meeting people he don't know and don't care for?"

"Why, indeed, if he feels no enjoyment in it?"

"Well, I did like it very much at first. Everything was novel and wonderful, the people and their ways, the fine buildings, the gay cities, the fine landscapes, and so forth. But when these became familiar they ceased to attract, and now I don't care a fig for them. In short, Agnes, I mean to stay at home and look after the property."

"A very sensible resolution, Orwell. You have duties here which you cannot discharge by deputy, efficient though that deputy is, and you are now old enough to take the place in life to which Providence has appointed you."

"My very thoughts, and since we are of the same mind, let us have a serious talk about it. In fact I have brought you here for the purpose; it is such a nice secluded spot, just the place for a talk of the kind."

They were in the dell now, surrounded by its wild summer beauty, which had been left free from artificial adornment. On the slopes the birches waved their feathery branches in the breeze, their slender silvery stems forming a fine contrast to the deep green of the whin and broom, whose clumps, deprived of the golden blossoms which had so lately covered them, were scattered irregularly on the bare, among wild flowers and bracken. Everything grew as nature's wayward fancy directed, and left there to the freedom of her laws, untrammeled by human hand, she had clothed the hollow with a picturesque loveliness, which exactly suited its romantic conformation, and which artificial arrangement would only have spoiled.

Finding a mossy bank by the side of the little stream, overshadowed by a clump of hazel, Orwell and Agnes seated themselves, the latter feeling that the conversation had assumed a serious complexion, and that she was to be made the recipient of the youth's confidence in matters likely to touch very closely the feelings of her heart.

"Now this is what I call delicious," exclaimed Orwell, looking up at the screen of foliage and round upon the slopes which shut in the scene. "The glints of sunshine striking through among the branches, the soft rustle of the wind as it ruffles the leaves, the low murmur of the burn, the twittering of the birds in the bushes, and this refreshing shade, in the delightful coolness of which we are ensconced, are charming beyond expression. Positively I never saw the beauties of the dell till now, though you and I have roamed in it a hundred times."

"That is because you see it now with older eyes and an expanded soul. In these days we thought only of our play; the discovery of a bird's nest was then the highest part of our enjoyment. Now it is far, far otherwise."

"Otherwise indeed," assented Orwell. "Childhood is said to be a time of happiness—a happiness realized most in retrospect. Happiness with us now is a present enjoyment, as this day bears witness Don't you feel as I do, Agnes."

"I am not sure that I could do so," she replied, "I have not been absent from these scenes like you; they have always been my every-day surrounding; and thought they give me delight, I do not—cannot feel the special pleasure you enjoy in renewing their acquaintance."

"Ah, well, that is an experiment I don' intend to repeat." "Home pleasures are henceforth to be mine, and of course the first thing to be done is to get married."

"Married," gasped Agnes, taken wholly unawares by the abruptness he used.

"Yes, married. Don't you agree with me in that."

"Oh—yes,—I—certainly. It is right that you should marry—quite right. Only I did not know you were engaged to any lady; you—you never told me."

"Engaged to any lady," repeated Orwell, regarding her with an astonished stare. "I never told you," he added. "But I thought you quite understood it."

JOHN A. CAMERON.

A bull dog which on Friday was following a man up Spadina avenue, Toronto, suddenly sprang out into the road and attacked the horse of a passing street car. The dog, with the stubbornness for which the breed is noted, repeatedly attempted to seize the horse by the throat, but finally the latter animal got his enemy under his feet, which he used with such effect that the ferocious brute was placed completely hors de combat.

Three coloured young men ranging about nineteen or twenty years of age, were arraigned on Friday on a charge of rape, at the St. Catharines Police Court, preferred against them by a white girl named Emma Fewster, the occurrence having taken place on the Welland Railway track on Tuesday night, between six and seven o'clock. They were committed for trial.

Out of a lot of 205 swine shipped by Dan. Coughlin, of St. Thomas, for the British market, 156 died on the passage out, and the Inspector for the Privy Council pronounces the disease to be malignant typhoid fever or hog cholera. The hogs were said to be perfectly healthy when inspected at Point St. Charles, and it is thought that the disease was contracted by exposure and rough weather at sea.

Johnston's Fluid Beef Factory in Montreal, the other day, received an order from England for 12,000 cases of his goods.

The citizens of Montreal are petitioning the Queen, through the Governor-General, for changes in the relations of landlord and tenant in Ireland which they believe will go far towards improving the condition of the people of that country.

It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md-

Weights and Measures Regulations.

The new regulations in regard to weights and measures appears in Saturday's Canada Gazette. The following are among the provisions:

1st. For the first verification and stamping of weights, measures and weighing machines at the place where they are manufactured, the fees may be paid at once, or payment may be postponed, at the option of the manufacturer, on certain conditions.

2nd. Articles verified and stamped may be taken for use in trade or may pass from the premises of the manufacturer to the premises of the dealers in such articles, or from the premises of one dealer in such articles to the premises of another, but

3rd. Such articles as are accompanied by a certificate bearing a red stamp, or which are not accompanied by any certificate wherein they are identified, will be subject to reverification and to the payment of fees on the first occasion on which they are found in use for trade purposes by an inspector or inspector's assistant.

4th. When a manufacturer of weights or measures or weighing machines desires to remove any of the products of his manufactory to the premises of any dealer in such articles without submitting them for verification, may do so on the following conditions: They shall bear the name of the maker and a consecutive "shop number," or some other marks by which the articles may be identified. If packed, the packages shall bear the shop number or other marks by which the articles may be identified, the name of the manufacturer, and the word "uninspected." The manufacturer shall notify the Inspector of the Division from which the uninspected articles are sent of such removal on a form which will be supplied by the Department. Nothing in the supplementary regulations, nor in any previous regulations, is to be construed as preventing the importation, manufacture or the removal of and setting up before they are verified; of dormant scales or weigh-bridges of any description coming within the requirements of the law but which cannot be used nor properly verified until they are placed on a fixed foundation, but the use of such weighing machines for trade purposes is illegal until they have been verified and stamped.

Sierra Nevada has been visited with a two days' snow storm, and snow has fallen to the depth of eight or ten feet, blockading the track of the Central Pacific Railway, crushing the snow sheds, and filling the cuts in some places to the depth of twenty-five feet.

MONDAY EV'G, JANUARY 12, 1880

The Afghan War.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A Cabul despatch says that Mohammed Jan, with Musa Khan, son of the ex-Ameer, occupies the fortress of Ghuzni with a strong force. Mohammed is said to have twelve guns, and a serious struggle is anticipated in case of attempting to dislodge him. In reply to a communication from Roberts he is declared to have exhibited no disposition to listen to a proposition looking to a compromise. Mohammed is believed to have been reinforced by several thousands of Shere Ali's regulars, from whom the cannon was probably obtained. He has assumed political as well as military authority, and is collecting revenues in the name of Musa Khan, whom he pretends to regard as the rightful riguing Ameer, though temporarily kept out of the capital by the British. He has sent emissaries to Turkestan commissioned to stir up the people there to engage in immediate warfare upon the British as a common enemy. The probabilities are said to be that on account of his high reputation as a soldier and commander he will have no inconsiderable success in raising men to join him at Ghuzni or to begin hostilities on their own account from a home basis. It is not believed that Roberts will hazard an advance on Ghuzni before spring. The rumour that Abdul Karan is raising a force in Konistan for Mahmmed Jan is regarded as well authenticated. The fact that while Ghuzni is understood to be a most important centre of military operations of the insurgents, and is the strongest fortress in the country, no efforts are proposed towards its capture, is held here to be significant of the existing situation of the British in Afghanistan.

LAHORE, JAN. 9.—The wife and mother of Yakoob Khan, ex-Ameer, are on the way to India as prisoners.

The Tay Bridge Disaster.

Mr. Alexander Robertson, of Perthshire, Scotland, now sojourning in New York, writes as follows to the New York Times: I hope you will allow me space to make a few remarks on the Tay Bridge disaster, particularly as I had more than one opportunity of seeing the structure while in the course of erection, and since. I pass over many circumstances which still remain in obscurity as to the proximate causes of the accident, and wish to draw attention to the defective engineering of the building. As is well known, the girders both on the Fife and Forfarshire ends of the bridge were under the road, while the thirteen centre girders were overhead. These large pieces of ironwork, weighing 250 tons each, were laid on the level of the pier-heads, but they were entirely devoid of anything more than a lateral connection with the piers, and derived no strength from them whatever where an overset was concerned. So far as can be judged, the girders were only designed to prevent lateral breakage—that is, to keep the trains from falling down between the supports or pillars. Now, had the structure been entirely a homogeneous one, then the girders and the piers must have stood or fallen together, whereas, as has happened, the girders must have toppled over while the pillars remain quite unharmed, and as erect as they were when the bridge was opened for traffic.

What then was the defect? Simply this, that the overhead girders should have been firmly secured to the piers, so that any pressure brought to bear upon them should have received the strength which the piers could have afforded to yield. In other words, the centre girders should have been securely fastened not to the level way, but to the piers in the way of a guy, or a bracing at each corner. Any fixing of the girders in the arch style could not have formed any obstacle in the passage of ships under the rail-track, as the point of the mast would come in contact with the centre of the open space, and certainly not to the side corners. A glance at the structure itself, or at any of the sketches of it which have appeared, will be enough to show that the bridge would have been greatly strengthened had the centre arches, or rather openings, presented the appearance of a Gothic window. In order to counteract the leverage of the high girders, there should have been as much fixing below the road-way as there was weight above.

Tired of Life and Resolved to End It.

As already briefly stated in our telegraphic columns, an inquest was held at Toronto on Friday on the body of Thomas Lane, found lying in a mutilated condition upon the railway track at the foot of Peter street on Thursday night. The following letter tells the entire tale:

I am tired of my life and have been for a long time. I shall only bring my wife and children to beggary if I live. My name is gone. I cannot work, and I never shall again. I don't know what I am doing. I have been living for the last twelve months or more in misery of mind. The Lord will help my wife and children but He won't help me any more. I have tried to make myself contented, but I can't do it. My wife is as good a woman as ever was born. She has been a kind and loving wife to me, but I have allowed myself to go so far that I cannot love or respect her, or any one else. I cannot take an interest in anything—my life is a complete source of misery to me, so I have resolved to destroy my life. I know I am doing wrong, but I cannot live in such a state any longer. I am powerless to do anything. My wife and children will be better off without me. I have prayed to God to make me a new man with a loving heart and right mind, but all to no purpose. He will not answer my prayers. He has blessed me with plenty of temporal things, but never rightly enjoyed spiritual things. I never had a heart that was right. I am not fit to live or die. God help me! God help my wife and children! I know He will do that. God himself knows that I am helpless and useless.

T. LANE,
40 Nelson street.

Every day I think of my wife's kindness and patience, and I have tried every day to make a resolution to work hard to make my home happy. I "done" it, but can do it no more. Everybody seems happy but me. I am miserable and make every one else the same. Wherever I go I can't help it. I have nothing to say to any one; nothing to live for. God have mercy upon me!

Lillie Lousdale (Mrs. Wavell) an actress well known in Canada, is dead. She was the eldest daughter of the late Sir Thomas Littleton Holt, Bart., of Warwickshire, England, and very much against the wishes of her family she most successfully followed the the theatrical profession, in which she held always a first position, though for a long time past she gave it up, only appearing when a charitable object was in view. She practised charity unostentatiously and to the full extent of her means and many will now miss her cheering words and liberal hand. Her loss will be much felt and regretted by the numerous friends she has made through Canada.

Local News.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—There are now twenty-seven patients in this institution.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Partly cloudy colder weather; probably snow flurries in some localities.

DOMINION TELEGRAPH CO.—Dividend No. 17 is now being paid Dominion Telegraph shareholders.

PERSONAL.—Mr. James Gow, of the Customs Department, Windsor, is in the city.

THIS year, Lent will begin February 11th, Good Friday is March 26th and Easter Sunday March 28th.

THE finder of a gold ear-ring, set with aqua-marine stones, will be rewarded by returning it to the Federal Bank.

PARLOUR CONCERT.—The Ladies of St. Andrew's Church, hold the third parlour concert of the season, at the house of Mrs. Webster, Woolwich street, this evening.

NORFOLK ST. METHODIST CHURCH.—Rev. Mr. Williams, of Berlin, occupied the pulpit of this church, Sunday, and preached to large congregations.

CALEDONIAN SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Caledonian Society will be held to-night. A full attendance is desired as the election of officers for the ensuing year takes place.

LIQUOR CASES.—Michael Murphy, of Mount Forest, was fined $20 and costs at Arthur a few days ago for selling liquor without a license. E. B. Teevin, of Fergus, was fined $25 and costs at Elora last week for a similar offence.

ENLARGED.—The St. Mary's Journal comes to hand this week in an enlarged form. The Journal is a good local newspaper and its much improved appearance is an evidence of its prosperity.

RECOVERING.—John Morrisey, of Elora, who was admitted to the General Hospital about two weeks since, having fractured one of his legs is recovering.—Mr. James Hodgson, butcher, who broke his leg two weeks ago is also recovering.

THE lecture to be given by the Rev. W. Williams on Thursday evening next, was given by special request three times in Hamilton, once in Centenary Church. It was also given before the Literary Society of Metropolitan Church, Toronto.

COMPLIMENTARY CONCERT.—A complimentary concert was given to Mrs. Keltie and Miss Barr, in the Mechanic's Hall, Hamilton, on Friday night. They met with an enthusiastic reception in every appearance which must have been gratifying to both those ladies.

MALICIOUS INJURY.—George Pearson was arrested on Saturday night for breaking a lamp at the Grand Trunk passenger station last November. This morning he appeared at the Police Court charged with malicious injury, but was remanded till to-morrow, in order that some witnesses may be subpœnaed.

DEATH OF PROF. MCKERRAS.—Intelligence has been received of the death of Prof. McKerras, of Queen's University which took place at Peterboro, where he was visiting his friends. He was greatly beloved in Kingston, and his early demise is deeply regretted by all classes of citizens.

CORRECTION.—We learn that we were wrong in our statement on Saturday that Messrs. Harris and Howie addressed the union prayer meeting in the Congregational Church, on Tuesday evening. Neither of these gentlemen is able to leave his house through indisposition. Mr. Torrance was the only speaker on that occasion, and the only other minister of the city present, with the pastor, was Mr. Ball.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Martin Lynch, son of Michael Lynch, met with a painful accident while attending a threshing at his father's place, 4th con., Puslinch, last week. While working about the machine he got one of his feet beneath the traveller which crushed the toes frightfully. Dr. Howitt was called to attend the sufferer. It is doubtful yet whether a part of the injured foot will not have to be amputated

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—At the temperance meeting, Sunday, Rev. Mr. Maxwell spoke for half an hour on Temperance, giving various reasons why persons should take a decided stand against the use of intoxicating liquors. He especially urged young men to do so, pointing out that the first principle which made a young man was self control; second, self culture, and third, God's Grace. But many when in the social circle had not the resolution to say "No" when asked to take the social glass. He stated that many obtained liquor after hours on Saturday night and wondered that the law in this respect was not more stringently enforced. At the close of the meeting Mr. Wilkie thanked the rev. gentleman. He stated that some time ago the temperance club had given their attention to suppressing the sale of liquors after hours on Saturday night, but lately they had been doing good in other ways. It was intimated that the Club would give a free social on Friday night—a collection to be taken.

The town of Mitchell has abolished the custom of charging market fees.

The Cotton Mills Question.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I saw in a recent number of your paper a paragraph under the above heading, that the citizens of Sarnia are about to offer a bonus to a cotton manufacturing company to start a cotton manufactory in that town. Cannot something be done in city? Although I have always been opposed to the giving of bonuses, yet I believe other inducements could be held out to any company who would start here.

Many years ago the late Mr. Wm. Day had an offer by a party to purchase his large building on the corner of Essex and Gordon streets for such a purpose, but at the time not considering their offer sufficient the same parties located themselves in Dundas. Now since new enterprises are being considered of much importance to the towns and cities, and the same buildings are still available for such purposes here, and from their construction are every way suitable, and which I know could be had at a very reasonable price, would it not be well for the citizens of Guelph to take some steps to induce capitalists to look at those premises, and endeavour to induce the erection or rather the fitting of such a building for a cotton manufactory, or a manufactory of a kind that is not at present in our city. The building is 5 stories high, strongly built and capable of standing any strain required for machinery, with a good spring in the basement with any quantity of water, not to speak of the water works, and having the advantage of the railway, would give facilities not always to be obtained. Surely it is worth trying. Yours,

CHAS. DAVIDSON.

The quantity of grain handled during the past year at Montreal, shows a very marked increase over the previous year's movement. Flour, on the other hand, shows a decrease in the quantity received during 1879.

The municipal tax in the township of Albertmarle, County Bruce, is two cents in the dollar, exclusive of schoolrates, and that of Keppel, County Grey, two mills in the dollar over and above school rates. These are the highest rates in the two counties.

London Advertiser: The Hamilton Spectator is no doubt right when it says that "the truth may as well be recognized first as last, that there is no room for a Protectionist in the Grit party." A general election at this time would enable the Spectator to enlarge its remarks, and to say that there is not much room for a Protectionist to any party.

On Sunday, at the Hatton Garden Italian church, London, a priest was celebrating mass when a man in the audience fired a pistol at him. The church was crowded, and the explosion caused a semi-panic. The altar was struck by the bullet and subsequently flames started out from the side of the altar, and the church was damaged to the extent of $5,000. The man was arrested after a hard fight, in which he attempted to stab those who seized him with a stiletto.

From some remarks in the columns of the Detroit press an idea has got abroad that there is an intention on the part of the Grand Trunk Railway to remove their head offices either to Toronto or Detroit. The only thing to be removed is the headquarters of the Great Eastern Fast Freight Line; which means simply the changing of an office, with a clerk or two, to Toronto. The Grand Trunk general offices will not be removed from Montreal.

The N. Y. Commercial says that the rapid advances in the prices of all kinds of American manufactured products have completely demoralized every brance of export trade which previously was returning a rich harvest of gold. The situation is growing worse rather than improving. Already it is affirmed that purchases are made here only because of the superior quality of goods or because they cannot be had elsewhere, rather than by reason of any advantage in prices compared with England.

Four Hereford steers brought into Chicago by Mr. Miller, of Beecher, Illinois, were sold at $5 per 100 lb. to the Transit House, their aggregate gross weight being 5,260 lbs, or 1,315 lbs each. Their net weight was 688,695,780, and 900 lb of net meat. The four hides weighed 364 lbs and the tallow 357 lbs. These weights in the aggregate show a weight of fully 58 lbs to the hundred of live weight. From the difference in weights, it is inferred that the steers were of different ages.

A Block in the Grain Trade in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—A grain blockade of prodigious proportion is the feature of the grain trade in this market at present. The elevators of the city, which contain an aggregate of 16,000,000 bush. are very nearly filled to their utmost capacity, and several roads are refusing to receive grain for this market, because when it arrives there are no accommodations for it. A large number of cars are lying along the tracks in the city loaded with grain unable to deposit. There are in storage 14,250,000 bushels, against 10,000,000 this time last year. The explanation is that a grain syndicate, of which Keene is the representative, have by constant purchases forced the market price of wheat in this city to a point where it cannot be shipped to New York, nor from New York to Liverpool. Farmers are unable to market their grain, although prices are satisfactory. The outcome of this unprecedented situation will be watched with much interest.

Good Thing on Grace.

A young clergyman having agreed to supply the pulpit of an elder brother absent from home, escorted to church the daughter of the pastor, and after seeing her safely in her father's pew, ascended to the pulpit, unconscious that this natural attention to the young lady was sufficient to excite lively imaginations and inquiries in the audience. Upon reading the hymn to be sung, the young clergyman was surprised to perceive evident efforts in the congregation to suppress laughter. The daughter of his friend possessed the mellifluous name of Grace, and all unsuspicious of that fact, he had chosen the hymn beginning with the words "Amazing grace," and proceeding with:—

'Twas grace that taught my heart to fear,
And grace my fears relieved.
How precious did that grace appear
The hour I first believed!

Through many dangers, toils and snares
I have already come;
'Tis grace has brought me safe thus far,
And grace will lead me home!

A LOSS TO THE CITY.—On going to the stable yesterday morning where the horses of the fire department are kept, the fireman of the engine found the horse which ran in the reel lying dead on the floor, with one of its hind legs broken. How the animal broke its leg he does not know. The stable is badly arranged, the stalls being made in such a way that the horses can kick each other. Some time ago this was pointed out, yet the defect was not remedied. It is supposed that the horse broke its leg either by having its foot caught in the window ledge while kicking, or by slipping on the floor. The animal was the best horse in the department, being valued at $200, a sum which would have been sufficient for the erection of a good stable.

On Saturday evening Mr. Robert Martin, who lives behind Palmer's hill, left his horse standing on the street in front of No. 54 Suffolk Street while he was calling at that house. On coming out of the house the horse was missing. Thinking the animal had returned home he went in search of it but failing to find it informed the chief of police, whom he requested to telegraph regarding the matter to different places. Mr. Martin took the message home intending to send it away yesterday morning. But yesterday morning he found the horse standing quietly in the orchard at his house.

EXTENDING THEIR BUSINESS.—The Galt Reporter says:—"We are pleased to learn that the firm of Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, of this town, are about to engage largely in the manufacture of safes, and for that purpose are at present engaged in extending their shops by turning what has hitherto been occupied as offices into workshops for this new branch of the business. We hope they may make it as successful as they have the other lines of their extensive business."

CAN LANDLORDS' BAILIFFS SELL BY AUCTION:—The Ottawa police magistrate gave a decision on Saturday in the test case of Brewer v. Huckell, involving the right of landlords' bailiffs to sell goods seized by public auction. The decision was in favor of the plaintiff, the magistrate giving it as his opinion that landlords' bailiffs did not have the right to sell by public auction. A fine of $10, the heaviest allowable, was recorded with costs, but the magistrate stated that, as the case was a test one, he would only require the costs to be paid.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

A letter from an officer on board H.M. ship Bacchante, on which vessel the Princess Albert Victor and George Frederick are now serving, states that they are under orders for a cruise in the West Indies, and will in all probability be able to make Halifax, N. Princess Louise arrives there, about the latter end of January; and, in the event of this, the young Princess will be granted leave of absence to pay a visit to their Royal relative at Rideau Hall, Ottawa.

The Herald's London special says that the arrest of the three Boers for high treason is very generally condemned, and now the Historian Froude denounces in the strongest language England's conduct in the matter, saying that England had annexed a country as large as France belonging to the Dutch Boers, and had broken her faith with that Republic.

The terrible storm which destroyed the Tay bridge blew down 8,000 trees at Abergeldy, and at Ross 3,000. Indeed, the weather has been so abominable that last week there was only eight hours of sunshine.

A number of unemployed labourers in Cork on Saturday plundered the meat and bread shops. Process-serving is violently resisted in Killanan, county of Golway, the parish priest causing the chapel bell to be rung to give warning of the approach of the servers.

John Humffreys Parry, the eminent sergeant-at-law, is dead, aged 65 years. The death of Mrs. Parry from grief at the loss of her husband is also announced.

It is rumoured that the Government is in possession of startling and alarming news from India, which it is endeavouring to keep secret.

An extraordinary feat at billiards was performed in England by Mitchell last week in a game, 1,000 points, with the younger Bennett, ex-champion of England. The score stoop:—Bennett, 360; Mitchell, 322. The latter then got on the "spot" and pocketed the red ball 294 times running, winning at 1,001. Being asked to continue Mitchell ran up his total to 727. This was the largest break ever made by means of the "spot" stroke alone.

A Berlin correspondent of the Times says that the establishment of Krupp, at Essen, within the last three months have received considerable orders as well for articles of peace as war. In the latter category Russia and Chili particularly figure for railway materials. Orders have come in such masses that the largest number of workmen the establishment can employ have been engaged to the end of the year 1881, and many orders have had to be refused. The establishment is executing numerous commissions for England and America, and is making steel plates for the construction of a bridge across the Frith of Forth in Scotland. Prices are 50 to 60 per cent. higher than three months ago.

Penny Postage—40th Anniversary of its Introduction.

The Mayor of Hamilton on Saturday received from the Lord Mayor of London the following cablegram which speaks for itself:

LONDON, Jan. 10, 1880.—To-day being the 40th anniversary of the introduction of the penny postage system, founded by Sir Rowland Hill, a meeting has just been held at the Mansion House, and a committee formed to commemorate the event by an international memorial. Looking at the immense commercial, intellectual and social advantages derived by the world at large through this reform, might it not claim your hearty sympathy and support in this movement by placing it before the citizens of your great city? Mr. John Pender, the President of the Direct United States Cable Company, who was present at the meeting, has kindly offered the free use of the Direct Cable for any telegram on the subject.

THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.

Russia's Policy.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The Republique Francaise, Gambetta's organ, in discussing the condition of Russia, says that without troubling to see if all went well at home, Russia has cast herself upon the path of conquest and chimeras. She has taken the wrong road. Instead of following the Utopian dream of striking Turkey, at the risk of obtaining but a meagre share of spoil, how much wiser it would have been to have entered upon a transformation at home? Her best policy now is resolutely to take in hand those reforms which a vast majority demand and expect. We must always reckon on more or less trouble with Russia, but so long as she remains in her present unhealthy state she will be feeble, and play an unimportant part in the destinies of Europe. When one's house is on fire there is decided originality in running out of doors and setting fire to the houses of others. Reasonable people at such times endeavour to extinguish their own conflagrations.

EXTENDING THEIR BUSINESS.—The Galt Reporter says:—"We are pleased to learn that the firm of Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, of this town, are about to engage largely in the manufacture of safes, and for that purpose are at present engaged in extending their shops by turning what has hitherto been occupied as offices into workshops for this new branch of the business. We hope they may make it as successful as they have the other lines of their extensive business.

SAVINGS BANKS RETURNS.—Suits-at-law have been instituted against a number of loan and savings societies for damages, for failure to make the required return to Government. The actions are entered in the name of Thomas Johnston, of London East, Ont., through regular counsel. The penalty claimed in each case is about $75,000. It is not probable that success of this kind will be attained, but rather that the whole matter will be remedied by legislation.

PECULIAR DEATH.—The Uxbridge Guardian of last week has the following paragraph:—"About two weeks ago a fine healthy-looking young man named Wm. H. McMullen, residing on the 8th Con. of Whitchurch, had occasion to have a tooth drawn, and strange to say, up to the time of his death, which melancholy event took place on Christmas Day, he bled profusely from the mouth and nose.

Daily Mercury.

MONDAY EV'G, JANUARY 12, 1880.

The Dominion Board of Trade.

There is to be no meeting of the Dominion Board of Trade this year. For some years past this Board professed to be a very lively organization, and volunteered to the late Government a great deal of advice on matters connected with trade and protection. In fact its proceedings were pretty much controlled by avowed opponents of the Mackenzie Government, who sought in more ways than one to use it as a political lever in behalf of their friends, and those who constitute the present Government. But it seems that now Sir John Macdonald is in power, and the National Policy in operation, the Dominion Board of Trade's occupation is gone. At least we should judge so from the announcement made, that no meeting will be held this year. It is strange that the Board can find nothing worthy of consideration this year—that they have no recommendations to make to the Minister of Finance with regard to the tariff. Sir L. Tilley himself, in his peregrinations throughout the Dominions, has confessed that the tariff is not perfect, and that changes will be made in it. Could not the Board in their extreme wisdom find something to discuss or some changes to recommend, or are its chief members so solicitous for the consistency and reputation of the Government that they would rather overlook all errors and cry peace while there is no peace? The action of the Board in this matter looks as though it was prompted by partizan motives, for there can be no doubt there are as many subjects which in the interest of the public demand discussion now as there were in former years.

The reasons for this postponement of the meeting are among others that some Boards have dissolved. That Hamilton and Toronto had elected delegates, but the questions to be asked were much the same as those which had already been before the Dominion Board. Halifax decided to send no delegate, Brantford Board was but recently formed. Quebec had also fallen away, and would send no one, while the St. John's Board for local reasons refused to affiliate. The Secretary in his circular adduces these and other reasons why the Executive Committee decided not to hold a meeting this year, and goes on to say: "The chief questions that may by-and-bye be pressing for consideration are the amendment of the banking laws, the hastening forward of public works, and the Customs tariff. The first of these will certainly command the serious attention of Government, and be discussed in Parliament next year; the work on railways and canals appears to be an all engrossing subject with the Minister of that Department; and there is not, and cannot be sufficient data or experience at present by which the Board could be guided in discussing the fiscal policy of the Government."

The Qualification of Aldermen.

Several correspondents having written enquiring as to the qualification of Aldermen for taking their seat at the Council board. We find on looking up the statute bearing on the case, that in order to qualify they must be assessed for freehold property to the amount of $1,500, or leasehold to the amount of $3,000. The qualification may be on an estate legal or equitable. Free hold property need not be free from all incumbrance. If incumbered, and after deducting the gross amount of the incumbrance from the assessed value of the premises, there be still left a sufficient value in respect of which to qualify, the qualification notwithstanding the incumbrence is sufficient. In all other respects the conditions of qualification are positive, and any infringment of them renders the party who is guilty liable to be unseated. The above qualification of course applies to cities.

At the Reform Convention for West Hastings, held at Belleville, on Saturday, Mr. E. G. Sills, Reeve of Sidney, was chosen to contest the Riding for the vacant seat in the Ontario Legislature.

His Excellency on the advice of the Privy Council has been pleased to order that a special drawback be allowed of duty paid for each bushel of corn, the product of which in starch is shown to have been exported.

Some dissension exists in the Opposition ranks of the Local House. Messrs. Morris and Bell are strongly in favour of new Parliament buildings, while Mr. Meredith, whose London organ has been repaid on the subject, is opposed to the expenditure and is backed by several country members.

Mr. Creighton has a notice on the paper to enquire of the Ontario Government whether it is the intention of the Government to introduce during the present session any measure providing for the reduction of the number of members or otherwise altering the constitution of County Councils.

Toronto "Telegram":—Mr. Meredith and his friends will have to content themselves, for this session at all events, with looking at the treasury benches through the small end of the telescope. But if the Opposition is not large, it may be able to make itself useful, and Mr. Meredith will have the consolation of knowing that whatever may be said of it, it is at any rate not open to the objection of being unwieldly.

The statement published in the last official "Gazette" shows that the revenue of the Dominion for the first half of the current fiscal year was $10,551,391, and the expenditure $11,749,904. For the corresponding half year of 1878-9 the revenue was $10,592,658, and the expenditure $9,201,402. It will thus be seen that while revenue has decreased by $41,267, expenditure has increased by $2,548,502.

It is semi-officially announced that on the opening of the British Parliament, early next month, they will introduce a measure for the appointment of vacancies in the representation of England or Ireland. A vote of credit will be asked for three months' supplies and a few formal motions passed. These disposed of, the Prime Minister will in all probability advise the Queen to dissolve Parliament, thus permitting the elections to take place before the end of April.

The Jury System.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

Sir,—I have read your editorial in Saturday's issue under the heading of "Are we safer without trial by Jury" with considerable interest, and I certainly think that you have dealt with the subject in a very fair and frank manner, from your stand point: but will you allow me to say a few words in reference to your second proposition with which I do not quite agree.

Having served at the last Court of Quarter Sessions, in the capacity of juryman on the two criminal and two civil cases, I had a good opportunity of judging of the merits of the jury system, and the administration of justice in this city, and I am decidedly of opinion that at present we cannot dispense with the jury system.

In your second proposition you say, "a serious evil is the challenging of jurymen." In some of the cases tried at the last sessions as many as six jurymen were challenged before a panel could be secured. I spoke to some of these men about it afterwards, and they expressed themselves pleased at being relieved of a very unpleasant task of deciding cases in which their neighbors were concerned, and in the cases in which I took part each said that they were better able to give a verdict according to the dictates of their conscience as they knew nothing about the parties interested. You say "an unprejudiced jury is almost a phenomenon." No one will deny but there is some truth in that statement, especially in a neighborhood where the parties are known, but I think the right of challenge is in a great measure a protection against this evil, by giving an opportunity to select strangers. If the press is really in earnest in trying to secure unprejudiced jurymen, let them set the example by giving unprejudiced reports of cases which come under their notice. Is it not notoriously true that when persons break the law, especially if they are leading politicians, the paper representing the party to which they belong will give a very highly colored and exaggerated report of the affair, in order to exculpate or make the best of the case for the one which claims relationship with their party. How can jurymen who read these reports form an unbiassed opinion. Let newspapers give fair and impartial reports of these cases without any reference to politics, and it will do a great deal to bring about the desired object by an unprejudiced jury.

Your third proposition, viz: "That one generally recognised principle among the profession which maintains that the Counsel should know nothing but the interest of his clients, has a greater tendency to defeat the ends of justice than all other influences put together." There can be no doubt but that practice is greatly abused, and must prove very injurious when jurymen allow themselves to be influenced. But I am pleased to be able to testify to this fact, that in the cases in which I took part, the speeches of the Counsel for or against were altogether ignored, with the remark that they were paid to make the best of their case, and were not tied either by an oath or the principles of truth.

The course adopted by the jurymen was first to examine the evidence as given on oath and contrast the story of one party by that of the other. Again, the conduct of the parties while under examination was closely watched and their readiness or otherwise to answer questions put to them in cross examination was eagerly discussed. The judge's charge to the jury carried with it great weight, and this seems to me to be a very important part of the present system of administering justice. The comments made by the Judge were generally short but clear, and easily comprehended by the jurymen, and were often referred to by them during the discussion which took place.

No one who has not been on a jury can form any idea how the evidence is dissected in a case in which there is a division among the jurymen. Every weak point on one side is brought up, to be fiercely met by the strongest point on the other side until the whole thing becomes threadbare, when a pause ensues, during which some new idea takes possession of some one, and he at once starts the discussion again. All men join in, and the war of words goes on as earnestly as ever until some argument is put forth which the minority believe to be unanswerable because supported by the greatest weight of evidence. This convinces them that the view they take is not the correct one, and they consent to give in their verdict. This was my experience, and judging by this I am fully convinced that one of the greatest safeguards of British liberty is the jury system.

I am,
Yours truly,
M.

Its organ and its choir are alike famous, and its services are crowded by both the religious and the critical. The credit of this superb preeminence belongs to the organist, Professor Wm. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

THE ROVER OF THE SEAS:

—OR—

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A GREAT CONFLICT BETWEEN LOVE AND DUTY—AGNES BORLAND IS TRUE TO HER PROMISE—THE LOVERS IN THE RICH DELL.

"No, I thought you did not care for Miss Langton. I have heard you say as much."

"Miss Langton! Good gracious, Agnes, what makes you mention her name. Surely you never dreamed of me marrying her."

"I understand that her father wished it."

"I know he did; but I have always lived in the belief that a man has the sole right to choose a wife for himself, and as Maria Langton is not my choice, her father's wish is nothing to me. But of course in what you have said you are only joking. You know where my choice is set—you have long known it."

"I—I know it?" said Agnes, looking at him in genuine surprise, "how could I know it?"

"By that intuition which cannot deceive. I never said in words, 'Agnes, I love you;' I never verbally asked, 'do you love me?' because I considered such formality between us was unheeded. I know we love each other deeply, truly, eternally, and it is the dearest wish of my heart to make you my wife as soon as you will consent to go with me to the altar.—What means that start—that wonder-stricken affrighted look? Is it possible Agnes, that my words take you by surprise? Has your heart not told you to expect them? My God! do not tell me that I have been mistaken—that you have not given me your love in return for mine Oh, if that be so my life is——But no—I cannot—cannot have been mistaken."

"Mistaken, indeed, Orwell," returned Agnes, now pale as death and trembling with emotion; "most terribly mistaken, if you have looked on me as your future wife."

"Merciful heaven, do I hear aright?" ejaculated Orwell, the blood banished from his face likewise. "Have you promised yourself to another?"

"No. You are the only one whose lips have spoken to me of love."

"Thank God for that! Your words sent a fearful pang to my heart. Why, oh why did you terrify me so?"

"It was your own supposition. I did not mean to convey such an idea."

"But you said I was mistaken—"

"In thinking of me as your wife, for that I can never be."

"Never be! Agnes, you agonize me. Have you no love for me such as I desired?"

"That is not the question, Orwell. You cannot but know that marriage between us is impossible, and if you have generously forgot it, it is my duty to remind you."

He sat gazing at her in speechless bewilderment, the picture and embodiment of consternation.

"Will you explain this enigma, Agnes," at length he gasped. You have not denied that you love me, yet you say our marriage is impossible. Why impossible?"

"Because there is a barrier between us which neither you nor I can remove"

"A barrier! What barrier?"

"The barrier of birth, which lies an impassible gulf between us."

"Oh!——," said Orwell, drawing a long breath. That is the barrier you refer to. Is it the only one?"

"The only one," she answered, casting down her eyes before his ardent gaze.

"You do love me then?"

"Forbear, Orwell. Why press a useless question."

"Agnes, by the truth and honor of your nature answer me. Why should you hesitate? Our thoughts have been known to each other since childhood, why should they be concealed now? By our early friendship, by all the years of our unbroken intimacy, I adjure you to tell me if you love me with the love I seek—the love I have avowed for you."

"Orwell," she cried, "I cannot resist that sacred appeal. I do love you, but——"

He caught her in his arms, pressed her vehemently to his heart, and showered kisses on her lips with wild impetuosity.

"My darling—my darling, that is enough. You love me, I am happy now. You cannot frighten me again. We are ours for ever."

Oh, it was sweet to be held close in those arms and receive the impassioned endearment of him who was the object of her heart's undying affection. A thrill of exquisite bliss ran through her being, her heart beat with wild tumultuous throbs against his, and, with her head leaning on his shoulder, she felt as if she would swoon with happiness.

But, alas, the delicious dream was soon ended, and bitter, bitter was the necessity which commanded her to put the cup of happiness away from her. She would have been more or less than human had she felt no pang in the relinquishment which duty forced upon her to make—a pang on his account as well as her own. It was noble of Orwell thus to ignore the social gulf which yawned between them, and make no scruple in raising her to the level of his rank and station. She loved him at that moment more deeply than she had ever done, but her very love demanded the great sacrifice.

As every moment given up to the rapturous bliss made that sacrifice the harder, she strove to release herself from his embrace; but he, supposing she was now securely his own, held her close, and renewed his burning kisses on her lips.

"Orwell, hear me," she murmured. "For both our sakes hear me. You are under a mistake—a delusion."

"Now you cannot frighten me again, try as you may," he gaily exclaimed. You have owned that you love me, and that settles the whole matter."

"No, no, it does not settle it," cried Agnes, in a tone of distress. "Orwell, we have been like two children walking along a pleasant road, gathering flowers as we went; thinking only of the delights of the path, and knowing not wither it might lead. Lured ignorantly forward we have taken a wrong direction, and must stop and turn back."

"A very poetical illustration but most defectively applied, my darling. Our road has been bright and beautiful all along, and now it is leading us to still better radiance and lovlier regions than any we have passed."

Agnes shook her head with despairing emphasis. "No, no, no," she emphatically exclaimed. "It you will but hear me, Orwell, if you would but patiently hear me."

"Very well. I will hear you, and as patiently as I can. Now, what is this mighty thing you have got to say?"

"What I have said again and again since we began the subject, that you and I can never be man and wife."

"Agnes!"

"Remember you promised to hear me patiently."

"I promised to hear you, and I will, but patiently—when you speak so—that I cannot do."

"At least hear me. When you asked me if I loved you, I was too truthful to avoid the confession. We have unwittingly and most untortunately allowed our intercourse to awaken an affection that should never have been indulged by us. Now we have come to the knowledge that we love each other, but with that knowledge has come the consciousness that such love as we cherish cannot be consummated as with others. A stern unalterable fate prevents our union."

"Why?" asked Orwell, with rigid, compressed lips.

"Because I am the daughter of your father's gardener. I am a peasant child; you are a gentleman's son."

Orwell broke into a wild laugh, which in a woman would have been called hysterical.

"Is that the barrier you spoke of? is that the gulf you represented impassible? Why it is not even a shallow ditch. What matters it to us who our parents were, or what the rank to which we were born. The one question is—Do we love each other; can we make each other happy? That question has been satisfactorily answered, and a reference to our separate origins is as unworthy as it is irrelevant."

"Oh, Orwell!" Though you are noble and generous enough to overlook it, I cannot, and the world will not."

"The world! What have we to do with the world?"

"Much. Every one has. The world has the power to promote our happiness or destroy it."

"Has it come to this, then, that because I am a certain man's son, and because that certain man had a number of acres of land which I have inherited from him I am debarred from marrying a girl my equal—nay, my superior in heart and mind—for the sole reason that her father had no acres to leave her. My darling, you have conjured up a bugbear which is utterly chimerical."

"Not in the world's estimation."

"The world again. But the world has often been defied. A marriage has often taken place between those whose stations, even in the eye of the world, were infinitely further apart than ours. Pshaw! Agnes, dismiss this airy fancy. We are indepenpent of the world—of every one—for there is not a man or woman on earth who has the right or power to interfere with us. I am free. I am my own master. You, too, are——"

"Not free, Orwell—not free," interrupted Agnes. In your last words you have educed one of the strongest reasons against our union. You are your own master. You have no one to guide and control you. Were I to become your wife it would be said—and the facts would so justify the allegation that I could not challenge it or blame those who made it—it would be said, Orwell, that mother and I took advantage of your youth, and the position in which circumstances have placed us, to ensnare your affections, to inveigle you into making me your wife. The envious and malicious would say that I had basely trafficked on my father's heroic act of self-sacrifice to raise myself above my station. I could not repel such an aspersion Orwell. I could not clear myself to my own conscience; it would bring disgrace to me and mother and dishonor to my dead father. Were I wealthy or were you poor, Orwell, gladly would I show my love by sharing your lot, but fate in the shape of circumstances has decreed that we can be no more to each other than we have been."

"Nay, less, infinitely less," returned Orwell, bitterly. Having learned to love each other as we do, if we are denied the natural result of that love, we cannot go back to the enjoyment of our former friendship. Are you so blind as not to see that, Agnes?"

"I see it perfectly;" she murmured.

"Then if your idea is to be carried into effect, we must henceforth be strangers, all intercourse between us must cease."

"I—I fear it must."

"Then, Agnes, I would ask you what we two have done to incur such a punishment? Is companionship like ours which began so early, which has continued so long, which has been so sweet—a sin and a crime, meriting only heavy retribution? Has it been forbidden fruit that we have been plucking and eating all these years, for which sin we are now to be banished from our paradise into the wilderness, there to wander apart and alone? Answer these things, Agnes, if an answer you can find."

"I can find none," she sadly responded. "We must suffer for the mistakes of others—for a mistake it has been to allow us to grow up together as we have done. Had the consequence been foreseen the guardians of our childhood would surely have prevented it."

"But seeing they have not prevented it, are we to be the sufferers for their error—if error indeed it was, for I am far from thinking so? Are we, I ask, who are innocent, to be treated as if we had been guilty of a heinous fault?"

"Oh, I cannot answer these things, Orwell," cried Agnes, with a wail of pain. "I only know that we cannot marry, that duty and honor forbid it."

"Nay! nay! take a little time to decide. Consult your mother or Miss Elliott, and they will tell you how mistaken is your feeling. I am very sure no one will view it as you do."

"They do indeed, Orwell. Others viewed it as I do ere the matter had even crossed my mind."

"Others—who? cried Orwell, fiercely. "Who has dared to interfere between us?"

"One whom I will not name, but whose judgment we should have regard for, visited by mother yesterday to warn her, and remonstrated against what seemed likely to happen. There was no need for remonstrance. My mother is as keenly alive to my father's honour and our good name as I am, and last night I gave her my solemn promise that should you ever speak to me as you have now spoken I would answer you as I have done."

"Who was the officious individual who visited Mrs. Borland on this errand?" asked Orwell, with ill-suppressed indignation.

"I would rather not mention the name," replied Agnes. "The visit was dictated by the best of motives."

"Was it Bishop?" he sharply demanded.

"Why will you press me? Even had the visit not been paid my mother would have given me a similar charge the moment she learned the nature of our converse to-day. I only mention this to convince you that others view the matter as I do."

"Then vanishes all my dreams and expectations," said Orwell, in a gloomy tone. "If I cannot marry you, Agnes, I shall marry no one else, and, as I cannot remain here and see you suffering daily pain, I shall become a wanderer again, and heaven only knows what may happen me."

"Oh, do not speak thus, Orwell," she tenderly returned. "Say nothing, do nothing to make this sacrifice harder to bear. I would gladly go from home, but they would miss me so——"

"No—a thousand times no. May cannot want you. You and Miss Elliott are indispensible to her comfort and, and not for the whole world would I have her distressed. Let things remain as they are at the Grange. I will go."

"Oh, I am so sorry for this," said Agnes, falteringly and lifting her tearful eyes to his face. "But my hope is that time will heal the wound we have both received."

"Time will prove a greater healer than I imagine then," returned Orwell, in anything but a hopeful tone. "If you only knew, Agnes, what hopes I had built on our union—but there, I will not reproach you. I believe you mean it for the best. I cannot see the matter in the same light and never will. My hope is that time will heal the wound by crowning our love with happiness."

"Say at least that you forgive me,' she pleaded gazing up with an expression on her beautiful face so sad and wistful.

"Yes darling I forgive you," he huskily

THAT WONDERFUL MAN

Is the Centre of Attraction,

in the Royal City of Guelph.

The inhabitants of the city and surrounding County show their appreciation of goods that are new, fresh from the looms, of the very latest styles, and at prices even less than the old bankrupt, moth-eaten stuff that has been attempted to gull the intelligent public of this neighborhood with. The continued throng of purchasers that visit our establishment show conclusively that the Wonderful Man's system of doing business fully meets the taste of the intelligent and appreciative community. We only keep obliging and attentive salesmen, only keep the newest, most fashionable and sound goods. We have marked everything down to the lowest fraction, and we adhere strictly to the golden rule of

ONE PRICE ONLY.

We make a special run this month on Black and Colored Silks for ladies' Dress, Wedding outfits, &c. Our Black Cashmeres, which are marvellously cheap, and extraordinary bright and elegant goods, extremely hard to get in any other store in this city. Our Dress goods throughout are the great attraction of every visitor to Guelph, and we are sorry, but it cannot be helped, they make an awful insurrection among the fraternity of brag men.

The great rush is going on. Don't delay, but visit this immense establishment. This immense stock of Fancy and Staple Dry Goods, when every department is filled to overflowing with the most choice selection to be found in the British, French, American and Canadian Markets, all at bottom prices.

answered.

Just then a thrush perched among the hazel overhead burst forth in a warbling song which filled the air with melody. His clear trilling notes, so full of joy and happiness in their sound, only deepened the sadness of their spirits, and spontaneously they rose from the mossy seat and moved slowly away down the dell.

Their walk home was sad and silent, and when at length Agnes reached the privacy of a room at the Grange, she threw herself on a couch, and wept as she had not done since her father died.

CELLULOID.

A Remarkable Invention—Its Extensive Use and Danger in Manufacture.

Celluloid is one of the most remarkable of modern inventions, and bids fair to be not less extensively or variously used than vulcanized rubber. It is produced by mixing gum camphor with a pulp of gun-cotton, and subjecting the combination to a high degree of pressure and heat. The result is a hard product of extraordinary toughness and elasticity. It can be made plastic again and moulded into any required form. Any color can be given to it by the use of coloring matter during the process of manufacture. The uses to which culluloid is put are numerous, and are constantly increasing. It is extensively used as a substitute for ivory, which it resembles so closely that it is sometimes difficult to detect the difference. It is said to equal ivory in strength and elasticity, and not to warp or discolor with time. It has proved a good material for piano and organ keys, billiard balls, backs of brushes, looking-glass frames, handles for knives, forks, umbrellas and many other articles. It is much cheaper than ivory, and is claimed to be better for decorative purposes. It is also used with much success to imitate tortoise shell, malachite, amber, pink coral, and other costly materials. In imitation of tortoise shell it is made into combs, napkin-rings, match-boxes, card cases, etc. Imitations of pink coral jewellery are made and sold at prices much below those of the genuine. The same is true of imitations of malachite and amber. Mouth-pieces for pipes, cigar-holders, etc., are common. It is also used as a substitute for porcelain in making dolls' heads. The frames of eye glasses, opera glasses and spectacles are made of it. More recently it has come into use in combination with linen, cotton or paper, for shirt bosoms, cuffs and collars. The material has a hard, glistening surface, like that of newly laundered linen; is elastic and impervious to moisture, and when soiled can be renovated with a moistened sponge. It was an explosion of colluloid which was the cause of a factory being burned down in New York the other day, causing considerable loss of life.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Lively Scene in a Brantford Church.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 12.—Last evening the Congregational Church was thrown into a state of great excitement. On Sunday the 4th of January the Rev. S. P. Barker resigned his pastorate of the church, and last evening he preached his farewell sermon to a crowded house. Before commencing his sermon the rev. gentlemen gave as his reasons for resigning that his congregation were guilty of duplicity and meaness towards him, and turning on the choir he made a rather personal attack on them, when some retired. This caused one of the gentlemen in the choir to stand up and request the rev. gentlemen to stop his insult. The rev. gentleman requested the speaker to sit down, when the gentleman threatened to start the organ and drown his voice. At this stage a lady in the congregation fainted. The rev. gentleman continued his attack, and when a number were leaving he requested them to be seated as the objectionable part of his sermon was over. He then proceeded with his sermon.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The Russian press and various continental special correspondents now freely discuss the probabilities of the British occupation of Herat.

Particular attention is being paid in Berlin to the affairs of France. It was hoped that time would remove the national antipathies, that war might be avoided. This hope has been much shaken by recent events in France. The new French Cabinet, particularly De Freycinet, the Premier, is mistrusted, the latter being regarded as the creature of Gambetta.

The Agitation in Ireland.

LONDON, JAN. 12—Correspondents report that the distress in Ireland is increasing. Five hundred inhabitants of the Skulebog district, county of Limerick, are on the brink of starvation. They proceeded today in a body to Croom and obtained four cart loads of bread by urgent representation of their extremity.

The streets of Cork are patrolled by mounted police, and the magistrates of that city have passed resolutions urging greater activity in suppressing demonstrations partaking of the nature of bread riots and asking for the appointment of additional police.

REMARKABLE CURE OF AN INFLAMED TEARDUCT OR PASSAGE TO THE EYE, WITHOUT AN OPERATION.—Mrs. Gibson, who has a large and extensive confectionery and candy store at No. 25 East 42nd street, near the Grand Depot, was about to have a silver tube inserted in the tear passage of her left eye. The enlargement and inflammation were very great. Before submitting to the operation, tried Dr. Giles' Liniment, rubbed in carefully over the inflamed duct. The inflammation disappeared, the passage became clear, and she was, through its power, able to do without a surgical operation. Also took the Liniment internally, a teaspoonful three times a day, in a wine grass of water. Giles' Pills cures Headache

LEGAL.—At the sitting of the Western Division Court in Toronto on Wednesday Judge Boyd gave a judgment of interest to the legal profession and others having business in that Court. It arose out of a case where a man sued his employer for a balance of wages. It appeared that the suitor had previously summoned defendant before a Justice of the Peace, under the Masters' and Servants' Act on this same charge but the Justice delivered judgment against him. He then brought suit in the Division Court to recover the amount, but Judge Boyd at once nonsuited him, holding that as judgment was already standing against him, he could not reopen the case.

LAST evening the first meeting of a "Young People's Prayer and Conference Meeting" was held in the Norfolk Street Congregational Church, and was largely attended. The church although not crowded was well filled. Rev. Alex. McKay, D. D. was appointed chairman, Rev. Mr. Laing, of Dundas, opened by prayer. Afterwards the choir sang part of the 100th Psalm. The Coldest Town in the World.

From the Bucyrus Journal.

Here it may relieve us when the mercury has crept into the nineties, to think of a town which Humboldt and other travellers have pronounced the coldest on the globe. This is Jakutsk (or Yakoetsk), chief town of the province of that name in Eastern Siberia, or on the left bank of the river Lena, 62 degrees 1 minute north, longitude 119 degrees 44 minutes east, and distant from St. Petersburgh 5951 miles. The ground remains continually frozen to the depth of 300 feet, except in midsummer, when it thaws three feet at the surface. During ten days in August the thermometer marks 85 degrees, but from November to February it ranges from 42 to 68 degrees below zero, and the river is solid ice for nine months out of the twelve. The entire industry of the place—population 5300—is comprised in candle works, and yet it is the principal market of Eastern Siberia for traffic with the hunting tribes of the Buriats. The former, mostly nomadic, having large herds of horses and cattle, bring to market butter, which is sent on horseback to the post of Okhotsk. The Buriats, also nomadic, bring quantities of skins of sables, foxes, martens, hares, squirrels and the like, and many of them are sold at the great fair in June, which, with May, is the active period of the year. In May the collected goods are conveyed to the sea ports, whence they are sent in every direction. The merchandise, chiefly furs and mammoth tusks, sold at fairs, amount in value to 400,000 rubles ($300,000).

PRESBYTERIANISM IN CANADA.—The Presbyterian Church in Canada contains 860 pastoral charges; 1,350 congregations; 75,000 families; and about 130,000 communicants. The average stipend is $850 per annum. Its contributions for missionary and college purposes last year reached $241,000, while for all purposes, including minister's salaries, etc., there was raised nearly $1,250,000. Six theological colleges are connected with the Church, besides the two ladies' colleges at Ottawa and Brantford. The missionary work is divided into the home, French, and foreign departments, each under the care of a separate committee.

THE FORTH BRIDGE.—Circulars have been issued to the shareholders of the four companies guaranteeing the erection of the Forth Bridge—the Great Northern, Midland, North Eastern, and North British—regarding the issue of stock to the value of a million and a quarter. The stock will be issued in 111,600 shares of £10 each, bearing interest at 5 per cent. from the date of calls during the construction of the works, and a dividend of 6 per cent. when the bridge is completed. The shares will be issued at £2 premium, and the calls will extend over five years in equal installments.

The remains of the late Prof. McKerras reached Kingston on Monday, and were met at the depot by a very large assembly of students and alumni of the different colleges and a great number of citizens. The deceased professor's mother, aged ninety years, died on Sunday and her remains were interred at the same time as those of her son.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for. For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Presentation to Mr. Jas. Massie.

The Bible Class of boys, of St. Andrew's Church, taught by Mr. Jas. Massie, Superintendent of the Sabbath School, met on Monday night, at the residence of Mr. Massie for the purpose of presenting him with a silver headed cane, as a token of their appreciation of his efforts in the Bible Class for their instruction and spiritual advancement.

The presentation was made by John Higinbotham, and John Finlay read the following address:

GUELPH, Jan. 12. 1880.

To Mr. Jas. Massie,

DEAR SIR,—At this the season of good wishes and joyous gatherings, we desire to express our appreciation of the interest you have ever manifested in our spiritual welfare, both as teacher and Superintendent. Many of us have received our first religious impressions in the Sabbath School under your superintendence, and as year after year has passed on, we have ever found you a faithful guide in the path of truth. Let us hope that the seed sown may bring forth good fruit both now and in our after lives. Will you kindly accept this small present as a token of the regard we feel for you. Hoping that you may be long spared to be with us, and wishing you and Mrs. Massie a very happy New Year, we remain your affectionate class.

Signed on behalf of the class.

JOHN D. HIGINBOTHAM.
JOHN MACDONALD.
JOHN J. FINDLAY.

Mr. Massie was completely taken by surprise, and addressed the scholars of the Bible Class in a few brief and appropriate words. He thanked them kindly for the handsome present they had presented him with, and the kind motives which had dictated the action. For the sixteen years that he had been connected with the Sabbath School of St. Andrew's Church as teacher and Superintendent he had always been opposed to presents being made by Sabbath School scholars to their teachers. He highly appreciated the gift and the spirit in which it was given. It had always been his aim to work in the Sunday School with a single eye for the Master's glory, seeking nor expecting any greater reward. This he said had been his chief end in the Sabbath school, and he hoped he had fulfilled his duty. He looked to the Bible Class for the future teachers of the Sabbath School. While he would do everything in his power to educate them concerning the great truths of the Bible, he expected them to assist him as far as possible by paying attention to the lessons taught, and giving them due study and preparation. Seeing that they had just entered upon another course of seven years of lessons, he thought it hardly to be expected that they should be all together at the close of the period. Many would no doubt be removed to other places, but he trusted that they would carry through life with them the impressions that they had received in the Sabbath School. Judging from the past close attention bestowed by many, he had no hesitation in predicting that before that period expired they would be teachers themselves, and would well fulfill the duties assigned them. He again thanked them for their present, and assured them that he had always felt a special interest in their welfare, and that this present would incite him to even greater efforts in their behalf in future.

The cane, is of rosewood, handsomely mounted with elaborately chased silver head, and bears the following inscription:—"To James Massie, from the Boy's Bible Class 1880." The cane was purchased from the establishment of Messrs. John Kennedy & Co. of this city.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Discussion About the North Ward School.

The Board of Education met last night; present—Messrs. Murton, chairman; Dr. Keating, Messrs. Newton, Knowles, McKenzie, Skinner, Hart, Innes, Burgess, Gowdy, Leonard, Wilkie and Peterson.

ACCOUNTS.

The Inspector submitted the following accounts, which were referred to the Finance Committee:—J. M. Bond $34.25, Mr. Nelles $12.48, Wm. Sunley $25, T. J. Day $2.75, George Stevens $9.16, Patterson 60c, Wm. Day $38.93.

THE WARD SCHOOLS.

Mr. Wm. Stevenson sent to the Board a communication, complaining that the School Inspector refused to admit one of his children to the Central School, on the ground that her place was properly the North Ward School. He stated that six years ago the school had held an unenviable reputation, that indecent boys then attended it and that it was a reproach for a girl to go to school there. For the last three or four years he did not know personally anything about the school, but if its appearance from the road might be taken as an index he did not wonder at people being prejudiced against the school. This morning he had asked the Inspector to admit his daughter to the Central School, but was told that the only school she could attend was the North Ward school. Some of the scholars attending the Central School resided as far from it as he did, and he thought if there were exceptions made and these girls should be admitted to the Central School his daughter should be admitted also. He was informed there were sixteen vacant seats in the room where he wanted to place his daughter.

Mr. Innes moved the Board into Committee to consider the communication.

Mr. Wilkie did not wonder that the Inspector had difficulty in dealing with matters like that complained of. He had no doubt if application were properly made the Inspector would acquesce in what Mr. Stevenson desired.

Mr. Innes said there should not be further discussion till the Board went into Committee. He admitted that what Mr. Stevenson said about the condition of the North Ward School six years ago was correct, but it had improved since then.

Mr. Skinner seconded Mr. Innes' resolution and the Board went into Committee, Dr. Keating in the Chair.

Inspector Torrance being asked to explain, held that the children should attend the ward schools before being promoted to the Central School except in cases where they lived near the latter. When applicants for admission to the Central School came to him he questioned them as to what books they were studying to determine their standing and where they should be placed. Mr. Stevenson said his daughter was in the second book, and he (the Inspector) told Mr. Stevenson that the girl would have to attend the North Ward School. Why should she not go there when there was a second book and plenty of room, while Miss Budd's school would be filled up before long with scholars entitled to attend there. He had refused different scholars admission to schools on the same ground that he refused Mr. Stevenson—among them a girl of Mr. Skinner. When he refused Mr. Stevenson the latter became excited, and said the North Ward School was a disgrace.

Mr. Tytler, as Principal, was well aware the North Ward School was better than it was six years ago. Mr. Stevenson was not prepared to testify as to the present condition of the school, what he said about it being hearsay. Its appearance was not favorable, but he pointed out to the people that the large expenditure the Board had made on school buildings, would not allow them to fit up the Ward Schools as they would like to. He heard nothing wrong about the school and did not think it a disgrace for a child to go there.

Mr. Skinner had been refused admission for his daughter to the Central School. The distinction between the Ward and Central Schools was well founded, with respect to cleanliness and habit. He hoped the Ward Schools would be improved this year. If the trustees in the different wards would visit the respective schools he thought it would raise the tone of the scholars. He did not see why an exception should be made in the case of one scholar who lived a distance from the Central School and was allowed to attend it, while another in a similar position in respect of distance was excluded from that privilege.

Mr. Peterson thought Mr. Stevenson misapprehended the rule regarding those who should attend the Ward Schools and those who should attend the Central School. Mr. Torrance and Mr. Stevenson had been long acquainted with each other, and it seemed unreasonable that Mr. Torrance would overstep the rule and gratify Mr. Stevenson's desire to give admission for his daughter to the Central School rather than frustrate that design. Mr. Torrance's explanation of the rule would, he thought, be satisfactory to Mr. Stevenson.

Mr. Peterson moved that the matter complained of in the letter be referred to the School Management Committee.

Mr. Murton said citizens had an ambition to get their children into the Central School Miss Budd's room was certainly full. As long as he had been on the Board he had never heard any complaints of indecent conduct at the North Ward School. If there was such conduct it was the duty of parents to inform the Board. It was hardly fair to say that the North Ward School was in the same condition as it was six years ago, without a personal knowledge of the matter.

Mr. Innes agreed with what Mr. Peterson had said, and could appreciate Mr. Stevenson's feeling with regard to his children. It was the duty of the Board to have a proper knowledge as to the condition of the North Ward School. Nothing had been said in Mr. Stevenson's communication against the School but what was taken from vague reports. If the charges had any foundation they should be investigated. It was imperative on the Board to keep the Ward Schools as efficient as the Central School, and if they were not kept so the Board and officers were not doing their duty. He seconded Mr. Peterson's resolution.

Mr. Gowdy said if it was the duty of the Inspector to place scholars in the different schools the Board should not deal with this matter.

Mr. Skinner was glad the discussion had taken place for it might result in an improvement in the Ward Schools. He repeated what he had said with reference to the present condition of the Schools, and said the West Ward School was a disgrace to the Board.

Mr. Innes suggested that the member from St. David's Ward should come to the North Ward School and get a lesson from its cleanliness. If the West Ward School was disgraceful then it was a disgrace to the members from that Ward that it was so.

Mr. Leonard said the West Ward School was a model of cleanliness. The Ward schools were not furnished so well as the Central School but they had as efficient teachers as it had. He hoped to see the Ward Schools improved some.

Messrs. Gowdy and Wilkie moved in amendment to Mr. Robertson's motion that the action of the Inspector in placing the children in the different schools be sustained.

Mr. Hart suggested that Mr. Stevenson withdraw his communication. It would be a pity that it should be published as it might injure the Ward Schools. Some persons would read the letter and read no further and would consequently catch a wrong idea of the Ward Schools.

It was pointed out that what Mr. Gowdy moved was not an amendment, that those who moved the resolution were in favor of the amendment.

The chairman held that it was an amendment.

The amendment was finally incorporated in the resolution and read in substance as follows:—

That the matter be referred to the Committee on School Management for investigation, and that the Inspector be sustained in his action on the present occasion in placing the scholars in thedifferent schools.

Mr. Hart could see no ground for an investigation. The charge against the North Ward school referred to its condition six years ago and was a slur on the Board.

The resolution was then carried.

The Committee arose and the resolution was adopted in the meeting.

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

Mr. Newton, chairman, reported, recommended the payment of the following accounts:—Burr and Skinner, $70.50; Herald office, $21.35; Wm. Tytler, $7.22; George Howard, $26.01; G. and A. Hadden, $5.93; C. Cross, $5; P. Grant, $2.50; J. A. Nelles, $4.25, and $3.63; W. S. G. Knowles, $15.65; W. H. Mills, $2.45. E. Stovell, $3; Robert Stewart,$25.45; Inglis & Hunter, $9.25; J. M. Bond & Co., $11.48; W. G. Smith & Co., $9.09 and $6.03; Thurston Groom, $7.35; George Murton, $136.12 and $27.90; Wm. Day, $12.24; J. McPherson, $3.50.

The chairman introduced, for consideration, the question of charging fees to non-residents who attended the city schools. He thought it was a question which should be dealt with at once.

Mr. Peterson moved that non-resident children attending the schools be charged 25c per month, except those whose parents or guardians are taxpayers to the city.

It was shown that such an exception could not be made and Mr. Peterson withdrew the resolution.

The Inspector reported that the attendance at the schools for December was 1195, being an increase for the month of sixty-four.

Mr. Leonard moved the adjournment of the Board at 9.50. Carried.

TUESDAY EV'G, JANUARY 13, 1880.

Despotism and Nihilism.

The Nihilists have issued their manifesto in justification of the late attempt on the life of the Czar. To us, in this Western world, under our responsible institutions, and the recognized position of the people in the government of the state, it is only a matter of surprise that a secret organization whose aims and demands seldom reach us only as they may be gathered from their dark plots and desperate deeds, should set forth to the world so mild and reasonable a document. We hear the words Socialism and Nihilism, and a conscious shudder creeps over us as we feebly realize only in imagination the insecurity of the hearths and homes built over the terrible volcano of political anarchy, and hostily gathering up the reins of our startled fancies, we bless our stars, and congratulate ourselves on the safety, liberty and privileges enjoyed under our own free institutions. Under the generous thrill of this quiet happiness, we extend for a moment a feeling of pity and sympathy to the Kaizer and the Cadi and the Czar, while only execration and hate are meted out to those whom we are prone to regard chiefly as their ungrateful and rebellious subjects. We forget that while the military, and to some extent, the commercial progress of Russia has kept pace with other European nations, her political and social institutions, and her religious intolerance have been stationary, and are to-day almost where they were two centuries ago under Peter the Great.

With a considerable flourish of trumpets it was published to the world that the Russian serf had become a freeman. He, however, soon discovered the boon was only in name, as it was granted only on condition of redoubled surveillance and espionage, for the first aspiration to assert his manhood or give voice to his new found liberty, brought down upon him the wrath of the Autocrat administered through the strong arm of the servile Gendarme. As a serf he felt, and he feels still, that his only use in the nation is that of the horse or ox which he drives. If he be content to toil through life coarsely fed, and coarsely clad, and poorly housed, and yield the results of his toil without complaint to others, then he shall have fulfilled the highest destiny which the state has marked out for him, and may be regarded as a true and faithful subject of the Czar. This is the extent of his liberty, and the only recognition he receives from the state as a rational being, having within him the passions of humanity, the hopes of happiness, or the promptings of ambition.

The great truth has scarcely yet been recognized by the most enlightened nations, that labour is really the only article of intrinsic value; and it has never yet reached the intelligence of a Muscovite lord through the dimly lighted galleries of his conscience, that without it, the rich mines, the heaps of gold, and fertile fields are valueless as barren rocks or heaps of dust. He may realize that the income, the equipage, the dignity and the rank he is able to maintain are in some way or other remotely connected with the heritage of unrequited toil to which the millions of his countrymen are unchangeably doomed should he be able to maintain the present political and social system intact. But it has never occurred to him that as human beings they have any other rights than those they now enjoy, and, therefore, he sets all the vast machinery of the empire to check or crush out any yearnings for liberty that dare show themselves above the dead sea of sullen resignation. Despite the direst tyrany, however, human hopes and human aspirations come to the surface, and if they can only show themselves in the guise of Nihilism or Socialism, our sympathy is rather with the oppressed than with the oppressors, while at the same time we cannot but condemn the wild and murderous schemes which they put in force with the view of assassination, as if that would free them from the thraldom of tyranny.

Let them obtain their ends by constitutional means says the cool advocate of legitimate measures. But what measures are at the disposal of the Russian peasant or the Russian serf? No popular vote enables him to send an advocate to proclaim his wrongs in the councils of the nation. There no O'Connell, Wilberforce or Plimsol, seeks or dares to utter his voice. The whole political machinery of the Empire has been long completed and matured without his having any say in the matter. The Czar, the Nobility and the Army, the slave and embodiment of power, include all, while the millions are ignored except as the brick and mortar that furnish the dead material, subject to the will of the Imperial builders.

True, answers the legitimist, but was not British freedom obtained or purchased under similar difficulties? No! The invading, struggling and changing dynasties of England have been the salvation of the masses. The Norman invasion and the wars of the Roses divided the governing classes and broke the arm of absolute power which otherwise would have been consolidated into the absolutism attempted too late for success by the Stuarts and Henry the Eighth.

The autocracy which Russia has been able to maintain so successfully up to the present time, has been due almost wholly to the unity of the interests which has left the Nobility undivided, and the dynasty without usurpers. Had it been otherwise each aspirant would, as in England, have felt the necessity of new concessions to secure new adherents to his cause, till the prerogative of the crown would have become more and more circumscribed, and the constitution of Russia, like the constitution of England, would have grown out of the demands of those whom contending kings and nobles found it prudent, if not necessary, to conciliate. No such opportunities or advantages offered themselves to the Russian serf. The constitution under which he finds himself placed, has been built up independent of his interest or his will, and leaves, or rather keeps him where it found him two centuries ago.

As in all despotisms, the army is the all powerful instrument of oppression, ever ready to be directed against the first manifestation of the popular will, whether it seeks utterance from the platform or the press. What then is left for the Russian peasant who seeks to throw off the chains and shackles of his serf-dom? If the deeds of the stealthy midnight assassin be abhorent to our sense of security and law, if the masked pistol and stilletto lower him to the level of the freebooter and brigand, there seems still no other mode of revenge left, but murder and assassination can never wrest from the oppressor the inalienable rights of humanity and true freedom.

But after all, the much maligned and we think misunderstood Nihilist, may be able to bring about the important end of his own emancipation, and that of his countrymen, with much less cruelty and bloodshed, and much less rapine and sacking and burning of towns and villages, than is every day sanctioned and perpetrated in carrying on cruel and agressive wars, to gratify national vanity or resent an imaginary insult.

Human judgment is strangely warped by the greatness and the glamour of military glory. If the "thundering cannon and the prancing steed," the waving banner and the flash of swords and the sleen of spears, the great general or the conquering hero, be the dramatis personae in the dance of death, we sing the glories of our Cressys and Agincourts. But if a miserable slave to whom the present yields no happiness and the future promises no hope, strikes a blow in the dark at his haughty oppression, we anathematize the doer, and condemn the deed, strangely forgetful of his heavy wrongs and the bitterness of his spirit.

"Then let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a' that,
That man to man the warld o'er
Shall brithers be and a' that."

Guelph Township Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

The annual general meeting of the members of the above Company took place at the American Hotel on Saturday last. The report of the Directors for the past year, having been read by the Secretary, was, on motion made and seconded, adopted.

A ballot having been taken, the following gentlemen were elected Directors:—John Hobson, Thos. McCrae, M. Sweetnam, James Wright, Geo. A. Darby, Benson Medcalfe, and John Card.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors, in presenting their report for the past year, have to state that the loss sustained by the Company is greater than in any former year. In the beginning of May last the farm buildings of James McQuillan were struck by lightning and totally destroyed by fire, with the whole of the contents therein. The total liability of the Company by said fire amounted to $1,250 67, namely, $900 on the buildings and $350.67 on contents. The dwelling houses of Robert and John Amos were slightly damaged by fire. The former to the extent of $4, and the latter to $10. To meet the above loss of Mr. McQuillan an assessment of 7 per cent. on the premi nm notes on hand on the first day of May last has been levied, and we are happy to state that it has been promptly paid. During the past year the amount of all property insured is $110,675, of this amount about $96,575 has been for renewals of policies expiring and $14,000 by the admission of new members. The amount of premium notes received on the above property is $5,278.50, and the cash payments on the same is $205.38. Along with this report the Directors submit the following financial statement, showing the sum of $369.90 to the credit of the Company. All of which is respectfully submitted.

A Novel Feat at Draughts.

On Dec. 8 an extraordinary game at draught playing was accomplished in the rooms of the Central Club, Trongate, Glasgow. The Draughts Committee having invited Mr. Wm. Strickland, of Leeds, the champion blindfold draughtsplayer, to give an exhibition of his skill under their auspices, played ten games simultaneously against as many opponents, without seeing either boards or men. At Hull, Newcastle, Edinburgh, and other towns, Mr. Strickland had already successfully conducted from four to six games under similar conditions, but this was the first occasion on which he attempted to play ten games at once. The mode of conducting the games is as follows:—The ten players are seated at tables, each having a draughtboard and men before him, while Mr. Strickland is seated in a corner of the room with his back to his opponents. The boards are numbered 1 to 10, and the blindfold player (who gives his opponents the first move) calls out his reply for each in succession. This having been done, the teller goes back to No. 1, who makes his reply; the move made is called out to Mr. Strickland, who replies; and the teller then proceeds to the next game (No. 2), and so on till he reaches No. 10, when he returns again to No. 1. The following was the result:—

THE ORIGIN OF THE DOLLAR MARK.—Very few persons know the origin of the peculiar mark, $, used to designate the dollar. The prevailing opinion is that it is a monogram of the letters U. S., the contraction of the words United States, but the mark is also to be found on Spanish dollars of great age. An expert now states that the mark originally was a representation of the pillars of Hercules. On the old Spanish dollars these pillars are to be found, and around each is a scroll, with the inscription "plus ultra." The scrolls are supposed to be emblematic of the two serpents sent by Jesus to destroy Hercules in his cradle, according to the legend told in classical mythology.

Over 3,500 homestead entries were made we are told, in Manitoba during the year ending the 31st of October last, which is more than double the number entered the previous year. The number of sales made during the same period was 900, which is slightly in excess of the number made in 1878.

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

CHAPTER XIX.

SECRET ENEMIES—RUBEN LANGTON AND HIS FATHER PLOT TOGETHER AGAINST ORWELL BRUCE—A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP AT CAIRNTREE.

The presence of the lovers in the Birch Dell on that summer afternoon had not been wholly unobserved. One pair of eyes had lighted on them as they steadily moved side by side along the stream, and these eyes, as they fastened on them, acquired a hateful and vindictive expression.

"So," muttered the owner of these eyes, as from the top of the opposite slope he stood watching them, his form being concealed from their view by the intervening shrubs; "so the billing and cooing proceeds apace, and as sure as fate his infatuation will go the length of marriage. Were I within earshot now I would doubtless hear his honeyed words and see the smile of gratified vanity on her lips. There need not be any wonder that I have no chance with the girl while she has the hope of becoming the mistress of the Grange—she, the low-born penniless gardener's daughter. How well they have played their cards, she and her mother together, and how like a blind fool he is running into the snare they have set for him. Gad! if I don't work promptly he'll baulk both my father and myself by marrying right off. Curse it, I can't stand the thought of that. I admire the girl as much as he does, and mean to have her in the only way that such as she should be possessed. Yet he becomes between us with his idiotical intention of marriage to dazzle her eyes and set her against my more sensible plan—the simple soft-hearted muff. Let the thing go on, let him marry her, and not only do I love her, but my father's plans fail likewise, and that concerns me too, though not so closely. I must to the governor and show him the necessity for quick action. Ay! yonder they go into the thickest part of the dell to dream away the afternoon together no doubt; and as it is useless for me to go to the Grange as I intended, I'll go back to Cairnbank and warn the old man of what may be expected. He is keen enough on his own project, I know, to help me in working at mine."

The reader has probably divined that the speaker of these words, who now turned on his heels and walked back the way he had come, was Ruben Langton, who has been referred to more than once as the companion and evil counsellor of Orwell Bruce. He was Orwell's senior by several years of time, and much more so in mental sagacity and worldly experience. Looking at him as he moodily retraced his steps to Cairnbank, a shrewd observer of humanity would not have been favorably impressed by his appearance. He was of middle stature and rather slender build, was smartly dressed in a black shooting coat to match. His thin face was almost beardless, with a complexion approaching to blue, he had a large sharp nose, a close firm set mouth, a pair of grey impenetrable eyes, and a narrow receding forehead. His hair was black in color, but not abundant, and as it lay straight and smooth upon his head the shape of that head was presented in fullest outline. Not a nicely shaped head by any means: wide at the base and narrow at the top, it gave index of a character which men had need to beware of. Nature did her best to warn the confiding in trusting him by showing his character in the shape of his person, the aspect of his face and the conformation of his cranium, but she had fallen short of her duty in endowing him with a smooth beguiling tongue, a persuasive manner, and a species of cleverness which enabled him to appear to others what he was not. Hence he was a dangerous man to those whom he had any interest in deceiving, for it was only the most penetrating minds who discerned the truth, and were on their guard against him.

But Orwell Bruce had not a very penetrating mind. He was open, generous, unsuspicious, easily influenced, easily persuaded by a stronger will than his own, and as Ruben Langton had a stronger will and was actuated by a special purpose, he took great pains to acquire influence over Orwell, and succeeded only too well. By specious reasoning Ruben could turn him almost any way he wished, always being careful, however, to keep suspicion from rising in his friend's mind, for he knew that Orwell abhorred baseness in any form, and once enlightened would be as inflexible as now he was facile. Langton had thought to manifest a show of virtue in the other's eyes, while all the time he was leading him to the precipice of ruin, over which he meant that he should plunge and be made incapable of any longer thwarting him or his father. He had all along to work against a current in Orwell's nature, and that current was becoming too rapid in its flow that unless it could be quickly stemmed his purpose would be rendered abortive.

He found his father in his business room, a small, barely furnished apartment at the back of the dining room in Cairnbank mansion. Here, surrounded by account books, chartularies, deeds and bonds, over which he had been poring, the old man sat dozing in a high-backed leathern chair. The parchments on which his attention had been engaged were not more yellow or wrinkled than Anthony Langton's face, as seen beneath the cloth skull-cap which enveloped his small round head. He must have become drowsy in the midst of his occupation, for his gold-rimmed spectacles lay loosely on the bridge of his shrunken nose, and his boney fingers had in their grasp an open manuscript, the dingy color and quaint caligraphy of which told that it had lain in the charter chest for several generations. An ancient dressing gown, once richly brocaded, but now bare and sombre, enveloped his spare form and hid the meagre limbs, which had never been sturdy, and at the age of sixty were lean to very bareness. In his person, features, and surroundings Anthony Langton presented the aspect of a greedy, grasping man on whom the world had a firm hold—a man whose energies had been given to the work of acquisition with a zeal which had eaten him up and left him as unsatisfied as ever: as indeed the kind of acquisition to which he had devoted himself must always do, for when a human soul is bent on gaining money, houses, and lands, it is the body in which it is encased must live in a region of starvation and give the usual tokens of the sad deprivation to which they have been subjected.

Few men have set themselves more assiduously, patiently, and perseveringly to this absorbing pursuit than had been present owner of Cairnbank. He had begun life as a lawyer's clerk in Glasgow, and by the exercise of a frugality seldom witnessed in youth of that class, managed to scrape together a hundred pounds, when by the death of an aunt he came into possession of two hundred more. By the ways and means he adopted these three hundred pounds soon doubled and expanded till they became thousands. Mortgages were his favorite investments, and foreclosures the grand means of filling his coffers, for the properties on which he had lent money generally fell into his hands in the long run, and as his accumulations increased these enabled him to extend his operations and lay his greedy clutch on lands in the country as well as houses in the city. It was thus he became possessed of Crainbank and secured the position of a country magnet. Had an ample competency been the aim of his endeavors he would now have rested contented with what he had got, and rationally enjoyed the fruits of his labors; but when a man gives himself up to the acquisition of worldly wealth he loses the capacity of enjoying that wealth. It is his in knowledge but not in experience; he is its nominal owner but not its real possessor; it has power over him rather than he over it; instead of being his servant it is his master, and a hard taskmaster it proves, continually crying, "Add to me, add to me. Increase your hoards, extend your territorial grasp. There is nothing else worth living for. It is the sole pleasure of life—the highest gaol that man can know."

CANADIAN MONTHLY.—This magazine for Jan. is fully up to the mark of excellence presented in former numbers. The following is the contents of the present number:—A Christmas Carol, Canadian Life in the Country Fifty Years Ago, Jean Ingelow and her Poetry, Stanzas for Music; Charlotte's System, a Story by Mrs. F. Rye, Barrie; Greetings, a Poem; The Dairy of Samuel Pepys, Esq.; To the New Year, a The Fallen Leaves, New Year's Eve, Burns and Ferguson, Ballads of Fair Faces, The Future of Morality. In a Studio, A Poem; Under the Roof; The Higher Law, a Poem; Round the Table, Book Reviews, The Month's Scrap Book.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL for February appears early in the month, as it is the intention of the publishers shall be the case with every number hereafter. It opens with the second and concluding part of Cherbuliez's brilliant novelette, "A Stroke of Diplomacy." This is followed by a gossipy and eminently readable paper on "The Comedy Writers of the Restoration." "Life in Brittany" is the simple title of a peculiarly bright, vivacious, and entertaining paper. If magazine writers generally would imitate the style of the writer of this article, the pleasure of readers would be greatly enhanced. Charles G. Leland's eminently entertaining papers on "The Russian Gypsies" are given complete. The first part of the Duke of Argyll's "Impressions of the New World" is reprinted, and this paper all the world this side of the Atlantic will want to read. A very acute paper entitled "Miracles, Prayer, and Law," will prove comforting to those whose faith has wavered under the pressure of scientific skepticism. An admirable and touching narrative poem, "Teaching Grandmother—Grandmother's Teaching," by Alfred Austin, completes the list of body articles, which are followed by the Editor's Table and Book Reviews.

Archbishop Lynch leaves Toronto shortly for Halifax to meet the Rev. Dr. Scamella, Apostolic Delegate, who comes to this country to take the place of the late Rev. Dr. Conroy.

A deputation of workingmen in Ottawa, waited upon Sir John Macdonald on Monday, asking for employment, but only got fair promises. His Worship the Mayor was also waited upon, but could do nothing for them. The labouring men of the city are in a far worse position than they were last season, provisions being dearer and less work.

There are some sixty-five known cases of small pox in Ottawa, twenty-five being in the hospital. Active measures are being taken to suppress the disease.

Mr. Sydney Bellingham, now in England, has been cabled for. It is said he will contest Argenteuil with the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott.

A boy named John Gilbault slipped on coming out of the Ottawa Cathedral on Sunday, and falling, broke his back. He died in less than half an hour from the effects of the accident.

By a peculiar combination of circumstances the sudden breaking of the bell wire on board the steamship Lancaster in Boston harbour on Tuesday morning came very near resulting in a terrible disaster to a passenger train on the New York & New England Railroad. The steamer struck the railway displacing the rails, but the driver of the train saw the accident in time to stop his train.

THAT WONDERFUL MAN

Is the Centre of Attraction,

In the Royal City of Guelph.

The inhabitants of the city and surrounding County show their appreciation of goods that are new, fresh from the looms, of the very latest styles, and at prices even less than the old bankrupt, moth-eaten stuff that has been attempted to gull the intelligent public of this neighborhood with. The continued throng of purchasers that visit our establishment show conclusively that the Wonderful Man's system of doing business fully meets the taste of the intelligent and appreciative community. We only keep obliging and attentive salesmen, only keep the newest, most fashionable and sound goods. We have marked everything down to the lowest fraction, and we adhere strictly to the golden rule of

ONE PRICE ONLY.

We make a special run this month on Black and Colored Silks for ladies' Dress, Wedding outfits, &c. Our Black Cashmeres, which are marvellously cheap, and extraordinary bright and elegant goods, extremely hard to get in any other store in this city. Our Dress goods throughout are the great attraction of every visitor to Guelph, and we are sorry, but it cannot be helped, they make an awful insurrection among the fraternity of brag men.

The great rush is going on. Don't delay, but visit this immense establishment. This immense stock of Fancy and Staple Dry Goods, when every department is filled to overflowing with the most choice selection to be found in the British, French, American and Canadian Markets, all at bottom prices.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 12.

Mr. Mowat moved the appointment of the following to strike the standing committees: The Attorney General, Messrs. Baxter, Boulter, Ferris, Ross, Gibson, Hardy, Lauder, Meredith, Morris, Scott and Wood.

Mr. Mowat presented a message from the Lieutenant Governor, transmitting Preliminary Estimates.

Mr. Hardy presented the report of the Committee of Public Works for 1879.

Among the notices of motion is one by Mr. Wigle for correspondence, &c., relating to the dismissal or resignation of Mr. Johnston, Principal of the School of Agriculture, and the appointment of his successor.

PUBLIC WORKS REPORT.

With characteristic promptitude the Commissioner of Public Works brought down on Monday his report for 1879. The most important announcements made are: (1) that owing to additions and improvements made during the year the arrangements for the accommodation of the inmates of the public institutions are now complete and efficient; (2) that the drainage of swamp lands has been going on under the auspices of municipal councils, to which loans for that purpose are made by the Government; and (3) that considerable progress has been made in the construction of railways aided by the Legislature.

The Government Architect complains of the want of committee rooms and apartments for departmental clerks in the present Parliament and departmental buildings, and intimates that if the centre portion is to be occupied much longer it will be necessary to have new roofs constructed over the Legislative Chamber and the Library. He points out once more, as he had already done in 1873 and 1870 the urgent necessity for the erection of new buildings. It is also announced that the Andrew Mercer Reformatory for Females is rapidly approaching completion, and will be ready for occupation by the end of June next.

The Public Works Engineer reports that construction works have been in progress during the year on eight new lines of railway, which have an aggregate length of 407 miles, and two of which have been completed and opened for traffic. The total length of road completed during the year was 208 miles, the principal part of which was on the Credit Valley line. Construction was begun in 1879 on two new roads, the Huron and Erie, and the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway, and it has been continued on six which were begun prior to 1879, namely, the Credit Valley, Grand Junction, Midland, Prince Edward, Canada Central, and Stratford and Lake Huron Railways. All these roads are constructed on the continental gauge of 4 feet 8½ inches.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of wel selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

SMOKERS,

I will unhesitatingly guarantee my

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process through which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial. J. E. SAXTON,

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

It is reported that Lord Alexander Geo. Russell, at present in command of the South-eastern Military District in England and who it may be remembered served here with the 1st Batt. Rifle Brigade, will in all probability succeed Gen. Sir Selby Smyth in command of the Dominion militia forces.

We hear that the War Office authorities in England is being urged to turn their attention in the direction of Canada for the purpose of recruiting for the army, as most of the regiments at home and in foreign service are in many instances below their compliment and a great difficulty at present is experienced at obtaining recruits for the service at the various recruiting depots.

The Ex-Empress Eugenie will embark with a small retinue for the Cape of Good Hope on the 29th of March. Arrangements will be made to expedite the voyage so as to enable the ex-Empress to arrive at the scene of the Prince Imperial's death by the 1st of June, the anniversary of that event.

The French Chambers re-assembled on Tuesday, after the holiday vacation. Gambetta was re-elected President of the Deputies.

The Duchess of Marlborough's fund for the relief of distress in Ireland, amounts to about £17,000.

The opposition to process-serving in Ireland still continues and at Maam, on Monday, 300 peasants surrounded the farm houses and refused to permit the service of ejectment processes. By the interposition of the priests bloodshed was prevented.

It is considered certain that Lord Derby is in friendly accord with the Liberal party on the question of the Government's foreign policy, and that he will take an attitude of cordial association with the Liberals when Parliament meets.

Prof. Colladon, of Geneva, has improved on the contrivance recently invented in America for enabling deaf mutes to hear through the teeth. For the somewhat costly India rubber apparatus used by the American invention the Geneva professor substituted a piece of elastic cardboard.

DRUNKENNESS—Charles Hogan, aged 25 years, was "gathered in" by P. C. Hammond on Macdonald street for drunkenness, last night. This morning at Police Court, he was sent to gaol for 20 days.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY—Some twelve or fourteen locomotives on the G. T. R., passed through the City from the east this morning to run on the section of the line between Detroit and Chicago.

A QUESTION OF MUNICIPAL QUALIFICATION—The election of Mr. Anderson as Reeve for West Garafraxa, is to be contested. The ground of contention against his election is that he is a non-resident of the township, and that though he owns property in the township his name does not appear on the assessment roll.

CURLIANA.—Two games of curling were played on the Rink Tuesday afternoon for the Gow Cup. One was between Mr. George Patterson with Mr. A. Congalton as skip, and Mr. Jas. Anderson with Mr. A. Bruce skip. The former won by a score of 16 to 11. Time 2 hours, 5 minutes. The other game was between Mr. Thomas Anderson with Mr. A. Robertson skip, and Mr. D. McCrae with Mr. T. McCrae, skip. The "Lance Tooth," "Fiearn Tooth," "Diamond Tooth," "Self Gummer," "Lightning" and the "Champion." The saws in each case were worked by the ablest young men in the locality. The timber was a maple tree fifty feet in length, and two feet in diameter. The "Champion" saw worked by Jas. Rodgers and A. Smith, carried off the red ribbon, making three cuts while the others made only two cuts. The "Champion" is of Galt manufacture, and was put in racing order by J. Rodgers who is a skilled hand in the saw business.

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—Although the number of students attending the Ontario Agricultural College is greater than at any time before, still the President has been forced to refuse over 180 applicants within the last four or five months. From this fact alone, it is manifest that the farmers of the Province are really beginning to understand and appreciate the aims and benefits of the College.

PAY-DAY AMONG PENSIONERS.—Major Hesketh, staff officer of pensioners, London, is in the city to-day (Wednesday,) paying pensions to discharged soldiers from the British army. There were about fifty pensioners residing in this district received their pay, among them being veterons who had served in the Crimean War. Between eleven and twelve hundred dollars were paid out.

CANTATA OF SANTA CLAUS.—This cantata was presented for the third time last night by the children of St. Andrew's Church Sunday School, in the Caledonian rooms. There was a much better attendance than on the previous occasions. The Cantata was well represented, the experience the scholars gained in their former efforts having given them a more thorough conception of the parts, and the full confidence necessary to easy acting. The affair passed off without a hitch.

FREE READING ROOM.—The Y. M. C. A. have a nicely fitted up reading room—thanks to the exertions of the ladies located in the same building and flat as St George's hall. It is surprising that so few persons take the opportunity offered of spending their idle hours in this comfortable parlor. Places half the size of Guelph would gladly welcome the privelege of such a comfortable room in their midst. Let the citizens come and examine it for themselves, and let the friends of young men advertise this free reading room, that was specially fitted up for their benefit.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for. For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. WHERE IS YOUR BOY TO-NIGHT?

Life is teeming with evil snares,
The gates of sin are wide,
The rosy fingers of pleasure wave,
And beckon the young inside.
Man of the world with open purse,
Seeking your own delight,
Pause ere reason is wholly gone—
Where is your boy to-night?

Sirens are singing on every hand,
Luring the ear of youth,
Gilded falsehood with silver notes
Drowneth the voice of truth.
Dainty ladies in costly robes,
Your parlours gleam with light,
Fate and beauty your senses steep—
Where is your boy to-night?

Tempting whispers of royal spoil
Flatter the youthful soul
Eagerly entering into life,
Restive of all control.
Needs are many, and duties stern
Crowd on the weary night;
Father, buried in business cares,
Where is your boy to-night?

Pitfalls lurk in the flowery way,
Vice has a golden gate;
Who shall guide the unweary feet
Into the highway straight?
Patient worker, with willing hand,
Keep the home hearth bright;
Tired mother, with tender eyes,
Where is your boy to-night?

Turn his feet feet from evil paths
Ere they have entered in;
Keep him unspotted while he may;
Earth is so stained with sin;
Ere he has learned to follow wrong,
Teach him to love the right;
Watch ere watching is wholly vain—
Where is your boy to-night?

For the young and aged, and the infirm, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

Harriston Correspondence.

The excitement, agony, etc., incident to the late municipal elections, has now subsided. The contest here was a keen and exciting one. Mr. Meiklejohn, the Mayor, appealed to his constituents for a renewal of their confidence and was opposed by Mr. Samuel Robertson, the same gentleman who opposed him last year. The verdict of the electorate was in favor of the former by a majority of eight, which shows the respective strength of those gentlemen to be pretty evenly divided. But it adds to the honor of Mr. Meiklejohn, as he has triumphed in two of the hottest contests ever fought here. For the Reeveship, the battle was waged by the same gentlemen as last year, viz., Messrs. Brisbin and Wait. Mr. Wait last year defeated Mr. Brisbin by a majority of 36, thus gaining the distinction of being the first Reeve of the town of Harriston, Mr. Meiklejohn, who was its first Reeve as a village, being its first Mayor as a town. Mr. Wait, feeling that his course as Reeve, was worthy of a renewal of confidence appealed to the electorate for another official term. The friends of Mr. Brisbin thinking his abilities to champion their rights superior to that of Mr. Wait, placed him once more in the field, as Mr. Wait's opponent. Whether through fault of Mr. Wait's official course, or a belief in Mr Brisbin's superior ability as a representative, the writer cannot say, but Mr. Wait's majority of 36 of last year, was reversed to a minority of 2, being given in favor of Mr. Brisbin, which scarcely amounts to the defeat of Mr. Wait, but merely legally leaves him out. Though Mr. Wait was ever zealous in the discharge of his duties and would likely have been so again, yet there is scarcely a doubt but in his successor Mr. Brisbin, the electorate, will find a public servant equally devoted to the interests of his constituents, and one endowed with no mean mental qualifications. Though Mr. Wait is for the present left out his sphere of usefulness is by no means terminated, and he will doubtless yet be welcomed back to the Council board. The only contest for councillors was in Ward number two, which was contested by Messrs. Bailey, Welte and Haight. It was Mr. Haight's first attempt, and though the electors of the Ward chose Messrs. Bailey and Welte, two old councillors, he at least got a view of the promised land, as he was only three votes behind, which shows he is not unpopular in the Ward. At some future time his popularity will place him among the chosen. Of the members of the old council board Messrs. Yule, Gray, Lambert and Groft retired from the contest, and are replaced by Messrs. Wilson, Taylor, Welte and Douglas respectively. It was not the wish of any of those gentlemen's constituents that they retired, but their own business engagements that made them do so.

The Township of Minto being so closely unto Harriston—both forming one municipality—previous to the incorporation of Harriston as a village in 1878, and Harriston now being the rallying point where the returns are brought in, the interest of the people of the town in the election in Minto is almost as great as the people of Minto feel themselves. As every seat from Reeve down was this year strongly contested, the result was anxiously looked for. The Reeveship was contested by the old Reeve, John Prain, and Mr. James Connell. Both these gentlemen having heretofore been faithful servants, whose character stood above reproach, it was presumed by some that the contest would be close, but it was generally admitted that Mr. Prain would lead the poll. His most sanguine supporters had no idea that the opinion was so large in his favor. Fifty of a majority would have been no surprise, but when it rolled up to 190 it was a surprise, especially when Mr. Prain was confronted by a man like Mr. Connell. For the Deputy Reeveship the old Deputy, Robert Scott, was opposed by John Darroch. Mr. Darroch's name has frequently been before the people in connection with municipal affairs, but this is the first time he really took the field, and the run he made shows he has a good place in the affections of the people. Though he did not attain the desired goal, he very nearly did so. Mr. Scott, however, got a renewal of public confidence, which appears, after all, to be his just due. All the council who ran are returned save Mr. Fallas, who, after possessing the full side of public opinion for seven years, was this year defeated by the small majority of four. The gentlemen who take the places of Mr. Fallas, defeated, and Mr. Laing, resigned, are Messrs. John C. McLeod, and Joshua House. The result of the elections in both Minto and Harriston has been the introduction of new blood to the council, and the bringing back of some old blood. On the whole both municipalities have not been injudicious in their choice, but have placed men at the helm, who are largely interested in the welfare of their constituents, and will therefore endeavor to legislate in a manner that will redound to the honor of themselves and those they represent.

Your correspondent has been shown a beautiful gold medal by Robt. Blackwood, Chief of the Harriston Caledonia Society, which was presented to the Society by Mr. A. Meiklejohn, mayor of Harriston, to be competed for annually at quoiting. It bears the following engraving:—On one side a Scotch thistle and the words "Me Impune Lacessit." On the other "Presented by A. Meiklejohn to the Harriston Caledonian Society, 1879." The trophie is now held by Donald McNevin, junior.

The anniversary services of Guthrie Church will take place on the first Sabbath in January. The ladies of the congregation will give a social in the basement on the following evening, the programme of which will be made known in due time.

The new High School opened here on Wednesday of last week, with Mr. William O'Connor, M. A., as principal, and D. S. Smith, B. A., as assistant. This new branch of education in Harriston promises to stand second to none in Western Ontario.

The central school opened on the same date with Mr. George Bingham as principal, P. A. Cowan in charge of the second department, Miss McIntyre, late of Glenallan, in charge of the third department; Miss Wright, in the fourth department, and Miss Clark in the fifth department.

Dr. Cowan, who has for sometime been seriously indisposed with an attack of inflammation of the lungs, has sufficiently recovered to be able to attend to his professional duties.

Messrs. Stewart & Wilson, who have carried on the lumbering business here for some years, have dissolved partnership. The business hereafter will be carried on by Mr. J. F. Wilson.

On Friday night of last week, about eight o'clock, the citizens were aroused by the ringing of the fire alarm, and though there was a storm raging at the time, the people rushed at lightning speed to the scene of the fire, which was, fortunately, found to be only the burning out of a foul chimney in Gowanlock block.

D. B. White has now got his new grist and flouring mill in full blast, and is prepared to do milling in first class style.

The Ward Schools of the City.

We must take exception to the remarks of the Herald of Tuesday, when in referring to the communication of Mr. Stevenson, it says there was a desire on the part of some of the members of the Board to suppress Mr. Stevenson's complaint, on the ground that "it was not desirable that the people of the city, and the people of other places, should be prejudiced against the school by being informed of the complaint." If the Herald was so solicitous to give Mr. Stevenson a hearing, it should have published his communication to the Board. In that letter we find that he makes a charge against the North Ward School of a six year old date, and admits that during the last three or four years he knows nothing about its management, or the conduct of the pupils attending there, and yet he objects to send one of his children to this school, and gives no reason whatever for his conduct but one of a most vague and unsatisfactory character which he cannot substantiate by any satisfactory evidence or proof.

It is very strange that Mr. Stevenson now manifests such a remarkable interest in this North Ward School, and that six years ago, when it bore—as he says—such an unenviable character, and when he had some of his children at that school at the time, we never heard a word from him about the conduct of the scholars. He seems to have all at once woke up to the fact that there is a grievance, and because that grievance was of his own imagining the Board must forsooth shape their action according to his wishes, or incur his terrible displeasure.

Both Mr. Stevenson and the Herald confess that as regards the North Ward school, they don't know what they are talking about, and after that, their insinuations and indirect complaints scarcely merit consideration. They have not the courage or honesty to make straightforward charges, and yet by hints and muendoes and other disreputable and unmanly means they seek —on account of the merest petty and personal grounds—to decry our whole school system, and bring our city schools into disgrace.

We are well aware what a difficult and delicate position it is for the Public School Inspector to occupy in the discharge of his duty, and we believe he does it to the best of his ability in the discharge of his onerous duties. We can well appreciate the difficulty he has to contend with in the maintenance of the Ward Schools as in a sense competitors to the Central School. But we are free to say that the Ward Schools are as well looked after as the Central School, that the same care is taken in their management and oversight as in the Central School; and that the prejudice against them — and especiallly against the North Ward School—is unfounded. In their own sphere they are doing as good a work as the Central School, and if we were to follow Mr. Stevenson's rule and desert them, Guelph would find herself far shorter of school accommodation than she was since incorporation. We have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Stevenson's complaint cannot be substantiated by facts, and the School Management Committee will not be doing their duty it they do not make a thorough investigation into the subject, and give the results to the public.

THE feeling among the members of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislation is, that if new Parliament buildings are to be erected, they should not be built in Queen's Park, as that location is inconvenient, being away from the railway stations and principal hotels. They are canvassing Government supporters to vote with them in favor of erecting new buildings on their present site.

THE second dinner of the Political Economy Club was held on Tuesday evening at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, when some fifty gentlemen sat down, the numbers having been materially thinned, as the Secretary said, by the attacks of the Globe. It is a great thing to have a watchful and timely censor, and the exuberant members of this new Club will be all the better of a little careful attention from the Globe.

OTTAWA Free Press: It is said that the page who was refused appointment to the House of Commons by Hon. Mr. Langevin for the alleged reason that he was a Protestant, has been offered a similar appointment in the Senate by Hon. Mr. Aikens. The Mail poohpoohs the whole story without denying it, and looks upon it as a small matter, anyhow. Yes, the mere appointment of a page is a small matter, but if Mr. Langevin refused to make this one because the applicant belonged to a particular religious persuasion, then we submit it is a matter of considerable importance which cannot be ventilated too much.

The Late Fat Stock Show at Chicago.

We have pleasure in publishing the following letter from Mr. George Hood to the Editor of the Chicago Drovers' Journal respecting the late show of fat stock there. It will be seen that Mr. Hood gives our cousins a bit of his mind in very plain language, and we have every reason to believe that his charges of partiality and unfairness are correct, and can be substantiated:

ROSETTA FARM, GUELPH, CANADA,
December 29, 1879.

To the Editors of the Drovers' Journal:

With your permission I will make a few remarks concerning the fat stock show held in the Exposition Buildings, Chicago, last November. To say that the exhibition was not a success, as far as the numbers and quality of a large majority of the stock was concerned, would be saying what is not true. Being interested in the

SHEEP DEPARTMENT,

I will confine myself more to that feature of the show. And to begin with, I claim the right to criticise not only the actions of the Board of Management, but also the awards made by the different committees. Let me ask the Board if it was fair either to the committee on long-wools, or to the exhibitors in this lot, to one for the different sections of the lot, and another for the sweepstakes in the same lot? Were the judges competent (?) In the first instance, if so, it was an insult to them and an outrage on exhibitors to have two sets of judges on the same sheep. What were the consequences? Just this, that my Leicester two-year old wether, ripe and without a fault, turning the scales at 300 lbs., took first prize, $15, while Mr. Miller's Cotswold wether, also two years old, weighing 262 lbs., and although a very fine sheep, still he had no business alongside of my very superior Leicester. Again in wethers under one year, although there was no competition, why should my well formed lamb, weighing 150 lbs., only receive a second prize?

In grades and crosses, I consider that I was unfairly beat out of the first prizes on two-year old and one-year-old wethers. I make bold to state that neither of the wethers shown in this lot were fit to enter the same ring with mine. Was the committee competent, or was it controlled by an OUTSIDE RING?

I hope not. The grand sweepstakes wether—was there not a half a dozen others entitled to that honor before Mr. Wilson's sheep should come in? Certainly there was. That challenge cup—was Mr. Pickrell's half bred, half fat wether entitled to that trophy? No! And if it had not been for uncalled-for and ill-timed harangue, the gilded ornament would now be in Canada, for it was open to be won by the best fat sheep, any age or breed. Had I not the best sheep? Yes and could have picked it out of more breeds than one. Car lots. Considering the number of prizes taken by me, the variety of breeds and crosses, and the high condition of

MY WHOLE EXHIBIT

I think I should have come very near taking a car-lot prize. About the block test, did not the management agree to give a first and second prize for the two fattest sheep dressed? Also first and second for the two best quality sheep, and first and second for the two sheep that would dress the most mutton to the 100 lbs. live weight? The competition being open to all the exhibitors, I concluded to have six sheep slaughtered, only one being a prize taker. Messrs. Cotten, Pickrell and Carey had six dressed, that is, Cotton three, Pickrell two, and Carey one. The Board took the matter into their own hands, telegraphed for butchers, had them slaughtered under the supervision of a master butcher, and all watched over by a superintendent appointed by the Board.

It was while this test was in progress that your poor Canuck might have been seen with a tear in his eye, well knowing that the sacrifice he was making of his pets would put his cousins to the blush. As already stated, I only had one

RIBBON SHEEP KILLED,

while the other six were nearly all prize sheep. What was the result? Did I not win at least five out of the six tests? Were the judges and superintendent manly enough to place the prize cards or ribbons on the winners? No! but left me to fight it out with Secretary Fisher and Treasurer Mills, two gentlemen to whom I take this opportunity of thanking for the kind assistance they lent to me all through the exhibition. I was told that the Board will meet in January, when the mutton business will be disposed of, which is very unsatisfactory to me at least. Think not, Mr. Editor, that I wish to injure the show. On the contrary, nothing will give me more pleasure than to see it growing and prospering from year to year. No one knows better than I do the difficulties that attend the raising of a fat stock show. I consider that three experts would have got through the sheep in less time and given more satisfaction, say three men out of the sheep yards of Chicago, New York, Albany or Buffalo, would be about the

for it is only in the Eastern markets where there is any number of these extra sheep handled. Perhaps it would be better to run the show without Canada. Canada must either have a fair show or quit. Is it fair to say the competition is open to the world, when I had to pay duties on my sheep crossing the lines? Nor was it refunded upon my return. The railroad companies also refuse to give me the promised rebate on car bills. Seeing that I enter the lists so heavily handicapped, have I not a perfect right to see that the concern is run properly and in order?

When will any Canadian enter the show yard as strong in fat sheep as I did last November in Chicago? But what's the use spending time and money trying to bring animals to perfection if there is not men sent into the ring that know their business, and will do their duty? If not, it is in vain that the Master has opened the doors of his granary to the shepherd; in vain has the shepherd lingered on the hill at dewy eve to see that his flock is all laid down right side up with care; in vain has he disturbed the lark at early morn, when leading his charge to partake of the sweetest herbs of Flora's dew bedecked carpet; in vain has he led them into the shady grove by the babbling brook to save them from the scorching rays of the noonday sun; all has been in vain if the prizes are to be distributed among the exhibitors like

TAFFY AT A CHARITY PIC-NIC.

Have you ever considered, when you have seen J. D. Gillet, Elkhart's veteran cattle king, grouping his peerless herds into bands of five, tens or fifties, is it by chance that he is able to turn into the arena a group of blood-reds, all so uniform that it is only a practised eye that can tell the difference between any one of them; another lot, strawberry roans; yet another band lily white by chance? Not by any means. Nothing but a can produce these results. Such a man stands in the front ranks of one of the noblest of all the professions, and vies with the most gifted masters of the fine arts as he works upon animated nature, turning the creature into a form all his own, which baffles a Kirkpatrick to imitate, and blends the colors of his lowing herds, which throws the efforts of a Page or a Dewey in the shade. A thing of beauty is a joy forever; and, if Col. Graves should never be able to take another sweepstake, yet his name will go down to posterity as having produced a steer the like of which has seldom entered a show ring. Then it behooves all concerned in the welfare of these exhibitions to see that justice is done.

The block test is a grand idea, and will do more to settle the relative merits of the different breeds as beef producers, than all the controversies of a Jones or a Miller. I was pleased when the Hereford was declared the winner, to hear the ringing cheer that went up from the small but noble band of Hereford breeders, who have stuck to their priceless pale faces, through good and evil report. Permit me to say that I have shown Herefords in the fat stock ring from time to time and have never failed to carry off the highest honors. Having already trespassed too far on your valuable space, I will say no more at present.

Yours truly,
GEO. HOOD.

P. S.—We have them shaking their tails on the north shore of Lake Ontario that will struggle hard for first place next fall in the city of Chicago.

Mr. Hood has sent us the following supplementary letter, which he intends to send to the Journal, explanatory of a paragraph in the one above:

GUELPH, JAN. 13th 1880.

To the Editors of the Drover's Weekly Journal:

DEAR SIRS,—In looking over my remarks of the fat stock show, published in your Weekly of last week, what I meant to say in regard to Mr. Millar's wether, was, that while my Leicester wether, weighing 300 lbs., took first prize, $15, Mr. Millar's Cotswold, the same age, weighing 262 lbs., got second prize, $10, but when it came to the sweepstakes, the same sheep in the ring, Mr. Millar's wether got the prize, $25, a circumstance not easily reconciled, if the Judges were competent in the first instance. In my comments on the block test, you say the poor Canuck might have been seen with a tear in his eye. Oh! no, Mr. Editor! Call it a leer! a beam! an Edison spark! anything you like but a tear! Why, it was the other chaps were struck. It was their funeral not mine at all, at all. By inserting this in your next issue you will oblige.

Yours truly,
GEORGE HOOD.

Horses Shying.

(From the Huron Expositor.)

This vice or habit in horses may arise from various reasons—may be from a natural nervousness or timidity, or from cunning, or from defective eyes, short-sightedness. Those which shy from nervous irritability are the most dangerous, because they give no warning. Those which shy from defective vision see almost everything strange A stick of wood or a stone becomes an object of terror, simply because the animal does not see it as it really is. The one which shies from cunning is always on the lookout for some excuse to "scare," because, some time or other, he has been let turn around and go back, and this is what he wishes to accomplish again.

A few general remarks as to the best mode of dealing with this vice will be all that is necessary. First, then, keep your stable clean and fresh, so that no ammonia will be generated. Don't whitewash the stalls or paint them white; let in as much light as you would into your own parlor; feed from a manger; drive with an open bridle and no check. When he is frightened at a broken culvert or the like, don't whip and slash him past it, but let him stop and have a look at it; speak quietly and encouragingly to him; never whip him after he has passed any object which has frightened him—this will only make him worse; never consider it beneath your dignity to get out of your buggy and lead him past the "scarecrow." If possible, get him to examine it with his nose. Of course these remarks don't apply to the horse which shies from pure cunning. First make yourself perfectly sure that this is the case, then apply the whip until you give him something else to think about, remembering to stop the chastisement immediately when you see that he is inclined to go straight on.

British Christmas Fat Stock Shows.

British Agricultural papers recently to hand, contain full and interesting reports of the great fat cattle shows that usually precede the advent of Christmas in Merrie England. A perusal of the list of prize-winners and exhibitors reveals the fact that Scottish feeders, and notably those belonging to Aberdeenshire, stand in the very front rank of successful competition. At Birmingham, whose exhibition of prime animals, is scarcely, if indeed at all, inferior to that of the great Smithfield of London, a polled heifer belonging to a Northern feeder, Mr. Merson, of Craigwillie, carried off the champion plate as the best beast exhibited, distancing a Hereford cow, "Leonora," a famous prize winner; and a very remarkable short-horn heifer "Primy Princess," the champion at the subsequent Smithfield Show. And strange as it may seem, and undeniable as the merits of Mr. Merson's black beauty was, she was not really the champion beast of the show. That veteran of "the black," Mr. McCombie, of Tillyfour, had on exhibition, and prize takers in their respective classes, several polled Aberdeens, one of which would have out distanced their lady friend; but the rules forbade, Tillyfour being merely the feeder and not the breeder of the animals.

On examining the record at Smithfield, we find that the blue ribbon of the show—a piece of plate of 100 guineas value—has been awarded to the short horn heifer, "Primy Princess," the winning polled heifer at Birmingham being for some unknown reason disqualified. The champion belongs to a Mr. Ratcliff, of Reading, Berkshire. She is said to be the heaviest animal of her class, being 3½ years old and weighing 2,212 lbs. The class for young short horn steers was headed, as at Birmingham, by a very handsome animal belonging to Mr. Adamson, Balquham, Aberdeenshire. This steer, weighing at 29 months old 1710, also took the silver cup, value $250, as the best steer or ox in any of the classes. The steer also won the $500 prize as the best shorthorn at the Birmingham Show, and his owner refused the same sum for him from a purchaser anxious to secure him. The Hereford's are said to have been a remarkably fine lot, both at Birmingham and Smithfield. Mr. T. Platt's steer, 28 months old and weighing 1680, took first prize for young steers. Breeders and feeders will take note of the almost exact weight—taking average increase of weight due to difference of age into account—of these two prize winners, and representatives of their respective breeds. Tillyfour was not an exhibitor at Smithfield this year, the principal honours in the polled classes falling to Sir W. G. Cumming, Forres, Morayshire, with some grand specimens of the "hummleys." Middleton and Reid, both Aberdeenshire farmers, were also very successful exhibitors. The classes or grades appear to have been striking features of the Show; the favourite cross being undoubtedly that between the Scotch Polls and the Shorthorn. Fully five-tenths of the crosses shown were so bred. Lord Lovat carried the cup as owner of the best cross-bred Scot. The younger class were particularly fine, each animal of the ter exhibited deserving a prize. Mr. Reid's red and white Poll was placed first, and it is said there was nothing in the hall finer, at 34 months, weighing 2048 pounds, and of uncommon width in front. One critic declares him to have been one of the sights of the show.

The show of fat sheep is pronounced to have been very good. The Southdowns are said to have been the best class of sheep exhibited, and although Lord Walringham swept everything before him at Birmingham, they had to succumb to a pen belonging to a Mr. Humphrey, of Ashington, Sussex, which in addition to the cup for the best of the land, were awarded also the Champion Plate of $250 as the best pair of sheep on exhibition, and declared to be of marvellous beauty and excellence and also of great size for sheep of the bred. Hampshire Downs were large and good, and lambs of the breed are allowed to weigh no less than 32 lbs. per quarter, dead weight, a remarkable testimony of the extent to which lambs may be feed for the shambles. The Oxfords and Devons were also a very good class, Mr. A. Brassy, of Chipping Norton, Oxfordshire, being an extensive and successful exhibitor. Rams, from the well known flock of this gentleman, as well as from Lord Walsingham. Southdowns have been regularly exported for service at the Modal Farm, and the progeny distributed annually by auction far and wide throughout the Province, and no doubt with the most advantageous results to all concerned.

Amongst other matters of interest it may be noted that the best Hereford animal exhibited was the cow "Leonora," belonging to Mrs. Edwards, of Leominster, 4 years, 3 months old, and weighing 2016 lbs. This cow has brought her proprietress numerous honours both during this and preceding years. Amongst the shorthorn heifers, Lord Dunmore exhibited a pair of his famous "Oxford" tribe. The Shorthorn cow class was remarkable for a matronly dame of 12 years of age, with a list of six calves, from the herd of Mr. Walter Scott, of Glendronach, Huntly, Aberdeenshire, having the courage to enter himself for competition in such a trying contest as Smithfield usually brings about.

Turning for a moment from the show proper, and glancing at the well packed enclosure of prime beeves, which, when consigned to the shambles, are to grace in sirloins and rounds the Christmas tables of the Londoners, and their country cousins, one is attracted with the remark of an extensive English settler to an extensive English buyer "What would the market have been without the Scotch beasts." It is an undoubted fact that the latter were immensely superior to their more southern competitors. Aberdeenshire, as usual, tops the list both with numbers and quality; indeed the number of polled animals exceeded the number of any previous year's market. The taste of the Londoners seems this year—perhaps owing to the commercial depression—to have gone in the direction of smaller beasts. Prices ranged from 8c to 12c per stone of 8 lbs. in advance of last year, or $1 to $1.58 per Smithfield stone of 8 lbs. The number of beasts exhibited were 5,900 as compared with 6,580 in 1878, and 7,510 in 1877. The greatest number brought forward were in 1863 when 10,370 animals were yarded. Many prime lots sold from $175 to $225 each, and some superior Norfolk Polls of heavy weight reached from $225 to $250 each.

What is a Heifer?

A spirited controversy is being carried on in some of the English Agricultural journals as to what is a heifer? arising out of the disqualification of an animal at one of the English fat cattle shows, because she had not produced a calf. One writer contends that a cow must have yielded milk to an offspring, to be entitled to bear the name. This declaration is hotly disputed by another literary combatant, who maintains that the distinction between a heifer and a cow is one of age, and not principally of breeding, or yielding milk; and he illustrates the correctness of his assertion by a reference to the prize schedule of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, where female beasts under three years old are treated and denominated as heifers. Whichever contention is correct—and the writer endorses the latter, it is certainly a good rule that requires animals, competing in the cow classes, to have produced a calf.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan 13.

After routine business the following Bills were introduced and read the first time.

To Amend the Municipal Act—Mr. Calvin.

To Amend the Division Courts Act—Mr. Gibson (Hamilton.)

Mr. Lauder moved for a return with respect to Commissions.

Mr. Ross moved for full returns of the late elections.

Mr. Metcalfe moved for a return of the students at University College for the past five years.

Mr. Creighton asked whether it is the intention of the Government to introduce during the present session any measure providing for the reduction of number of members, or otherwise altering the constitution of County Councils.

Mr. Mowat—I have the pleasure of saying in reply that the matter is under consideration. (Laughter.)

Mr. Hardy submitted the report of the Inspector of Division Courts for 1879. Also the report of the Inspector of Asylums and Prisons for 1879.

Beverly Agricultural Society.

The annual meeting of the above society was held in the Town Hall, Rockton, on Thursday, Jan. 8th, at one o'clock p. m.

The attendance was large.

Mr. Henry Bugner, President, occupied the chair.

The annual report, which was read by the Secretary, showed that the society was in a flourishing condition, and notwithstanding the large amount paid out for prizes, &c., in 1879, there still remained a surplus of $86.40 in the Treasurer's hands.

On motion of David Patterson, seconded by Wm. Menzies, the report was adopted.

A very long and animated discussion took place on the advisability of enclosing the show ground with a high board fence, and charging an admission fee at the gate. Nearly all the Directors present took part in the discussion, as it was a matter of vital importance to the Society. It was ultimately decided by a unanimous vote to erect a tight board fence in front of the ground, and charge an admission fee of ten cents at the gate. Arrangements will be made so that persons may have ingress and egress to and from the grounds for a limited number of times without any additional fee.

Mr. Henry Bugner, the retiring President, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for his able services during the past year.

The following officers and directors were elected for the ensuing year:—

President Brewin Cornell.

Vice-President—Edwin Gray.

Secretary-Treasurer—David Beltz.

Directors—Henry Bugner, Richard Bannen, Joseph Boyle, Emerson Clement, Robert Young, John Patterson, Christopher Ricker, Thomas McQueen, David Patterson, Henry Chambers, William Menzies, Thomas Purdy, William Tait, Thomas McDonald, Jeremiah Cornell, Samuel C Cornell, John A. Cornell, Angus McKellar, Robt. Henderson John F. Thompson, James Collins, Henry Howard, George Atkins, William Baird Charles Patterson, George H. Mullholland, Wallace McDonald.

Auditors—J. B. Plastow and Wm. Wood.

Burns Correspondence.

SALE OF PROPERTY.—Mr. Wm. Robertson has sold his blacksmith shop for the sum of $850, to one Thos. Ferguson, of Stratford, who takes immediate possession. Mr. Robertson intends to try farming in future, and if he guides the plough in any such a manner as he wielded the hammer in the past he will doubtless take a front position among the Canadian farmers. We heartily wish both success in their new enterprise.

PERSONAL.—Messrs. J. & J. Watson, young men of diligence and integrity, left for St. Catharines on Friday last, where they purpose attending the Collegiate Institution.

OBITUARY.—It is with regret we announce the sudden death of Mr. Wm. Grieves, who on Monday morning last succumbed to a severe attack of inflammation of the brain. Mr. Grieves was a native of Rosshire, Scotland, whence he emigrated to Canada when quite young. A number of his first years in this country were spent at Galt, where by perseverance and economy, qualities which he continued in possession of until the end, he amassed considerable wealth. Leaving Galt he went into the then unsettled Township of Mornington, and purchased a farm. Being one of the first settlers he undoubtedly had many vicissitudes to contend with, over all of which he long since triumphed, and by the hand of industry and honesty, for which he was characteristic, succeeded in converting a portion of wilderness into a garden. Fruitfully may it be said that Mornington will miss this, one of her early settlers; miss him not merely out of her numbers, but in her church and in her politics, he being a living member of the Presbyterian Church and a wholesouled patron of Liberalism. He leaves an aged widow and a large family to mourn his departure, all of which have the sympathy, as he had the respect, of a large circle of friends and admirers. The funeral procession, which accompanied his remains to their last resting place, despite unfavorable weather, was very large, consisting of upwards of fifty vehicles.

THAT WONDERFUL MAN

Is the Centre of Attraction,

In the Royal City of Guelph.

The inhabitants of the city and surrounding County show their appreciation of goods that are new, fresh from the looms, of the very latest styles, and at prices even less than the old bankrupt, moth-eaten stuff that has been attempted to gull the intelligent public of this neighborhood with. The continued throng of purchasers that visit our establishment show conclusively that the Wonderful Man's system of doing business fully meets the taste of the intelligent and appreciative community. We only keep obliging and attentive salesmen, only keep the newest, most fashionable and sound goods. We have marked everything down to the lowest fraction, and we adhere strictly to the golden rule of

ONE PRICE ONLY.

We make a special run this month on Black and Colored Silks for ladies' Dress, Wedding outfits, &c. Our Black Cashmeres, which are marvellously cheap, and extraordinary bright and elegant goods, extremely hard to get in any other store in this city. Our Dress goods throughout are the great attraction of every visitor to Guelph, and we are sorry, but it cannot be helped, they make an awful insurrection among the fraternity of brag men.

The great rush is going on. Don't delay, but visit this immense establishment. This immense stock of Fancy and Staple Dry Goods, when every department is filled to overflowing with the most choice selection to be found in the British, French, American and Canadian Markets, all at bottom prices.

Montreal Cattle Market.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19—The markets were well supplied with good cattle to-day, and as butchers seemed to require less than usual, sales were slow, and a large number remained unsold or were bought by jobbers. The following sales were made at St. Gabriel market:—Robt. Craig, of Brampton, sold a car load of choice cattle to Mr. Kennedy, who is shipping them to Great Britain. The price paid was over $4 30 per 100 lbs. F. Shields, of Toronto, sold two car loads of cattle to jobbers at about $35 per head. W. Kinmear, of Toronto, sold a car load of cattle to a jobber at $3 75 per 190 lbs. D. McDonald sold 12 cattle to another jobber at $45 each, or about $3 50 per 100 lbs. Some of these cattle were afterwards re-sold at Viger market at 3c to 4½c per lb. R. Jones, of Mitchell, sold a car load of cattle at from $3 25 to $3 75 per 100 lb. L. Hilliker, of Stratford, sold a car load of cattle at about 3c per. lb.

Viger market was well supplied with cattle by jobbers, who held a number at from 3 to 4c per lb, with about half a dozen of the best at 4½c per lb. About 4 or 5 car loads of cattle remain on the market unsold. D. McDougall sold 36 live hogs at $5.37½ per 100 lbs. No sales of dressed hogs were reported to-day. A few sheep were offered at Viger market this forenoon, but were of common and inferior quality; 4 of the best were sold at $4 each. The arrival of fat cattle at Point St. Charles last week were 31 car loads of cattle and 3 mixed loads of cattle and sheep, also a few small lots of hogs.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of wel selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

The Puslinch Election.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—After seeing the result of the last election in our Township, and speaking to some of the leading ratepayers, we have come to the conclusion that to get justice done to every section of the Township, we will have to have recourse to the old ward system, and then we can elect a man to suit ourselves. I have been now eighteen years in my section of the Township and think we have had some $30 expended on the improvement of our roads over and above statute labour, while in other sections hundreds have been expended because they had a majority of the representatives, who advocated their claims at the Council Board. It is too bad that we are left without a representative in the section west of the Brock Road. I hope that a public meeting of the ratepayers will be called before another Municipal election to have the matter fully discussed, and if possible, fall back to the old system, which I think will give general satisfaction I am dear Sir

Yours truly,
JAS. ANDERSON.

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

SMOKERS,

I will unhesitatingly guarantee my

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process through which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial.

Extensive strikes among the cotton operatives at Bolton. Burnley and Ashton-under-Lyne, are imminent, in consequence of the masters refusing to grant an increase of ten per cent.

A Paris correspondent says that Gambetta Wednesday, though re-elected, received only 259 votes, or slightly less than half the House. One year ago he received 314 votes.

Advices from India state that a movement is about to be made against Ghuzni and Herat to prevent a junction of the Afghan forces at those places prior to another attack upon Cabul. Preparations are also being made for the immediate resumption of offensive operations against the Kohistanis.

It is now thought certain that the Government intend to proceed with the trials of Davitt, Daly, Killen, and Brennan for sedition.

A Dublin correspondent says the presence in London of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Chief Secretary for Ireland will afford the Government a seasonable opportunity for consulting on the present condition of the country.

There are indications that the distress in County Kerry, Ireland, will amount to a famine.

The Duke of Schleswig-Holstein died suddenly at Wesbaden on Wednesday.

The Vatican organ, in long leading article, advocates Home Rule for Ireland.

In consequence of the nature of the communications from the Russian representative at the various European courts, the peace party is now in the ascendant at St Petersburg.

A terrible flood occurred on Sunday on the West Indian Island of St. Kitts, by which two hundred lives were lost, and property of the value of $250,000 destroyed. Large quantities of provisions, and all the sugar crop ready for shipment were swept away. Great distress prevails, and earnest appeals are made for help.

Great Storm in Oregon and Washington Territory.

Loss of Life and Property.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14.—Despatches state that on the 9th inst. middle Portland was visited by the most severe storm known since the settlement of the country. Very little rain accompanied the gale. Damage to property in the city $75,000. While the gale was at its height Bremen Hall, a large two-storey wooden building, was prostrated, and four men were caught under the ruins. Harry P. Heinrich was instantly killed. In East Portland the new Catholic Church is a complete wreck, and a number of buildings were blown down. Reports from the interior indicate that the storm raged with great violence. It is impossible to estimate the value of property destroyed. The obstruction to roads in many localities will for a time stagnate business. Trains will be delayed several days. The lines between here and Dalles were buried under fallen timber so deep that new lines will have to be constructed. A number of houses were blown down. So far as is known there is little loss of life. Great numbers of cattle are reported to have been killed by falling barns and trees.

At Tacenter, Washington Territory, a tree was blown against the school house, demolishing it. There were twenty children in the building. A son and daughter of John W. Bartlett were instantly killed and another daughter was dangerously injured. Several houses at the Garrison were prostrated; no lives were lost. Much damage was done at Salem; a portion of the roof of the State House was torn off.

Ordination at Blenheim.

The Paris Presbytery met in St. Andrew's church, Blenheim, on Tuesday, the 13th inst., for the purpose of hearing the trial discourses of Rev. D. M. Beattie, B. A., and ordaining and inducting him into the united charge of St. Andrew's, Blenheim, and St. Andrew's, East Oxford. The Presbytery having heard his trial discourses and having examined him at length on the subjects prescribed, expressed great satisfaction with his attainments, culture, and abilities displayed in all his exercises and proceeded with his settlement. Mr. Anderson, of Paris, Moderator of the Presbytery presided; Mr. Munro, of Embro, preached; Mr. McMullen, of Woodstock, addressed the minister, and Mr. Aull, of Ratho, the people. The services were very solemn and appropriate.

In the evening an excellent tea was served in the school room adjoining the church. After tea the large audience filled the church to its utmost capacity. Prof. Tanney and his choir from Chalmers' church, Woodstock, supplied the music, and speeches of a most, varied, interesting and profitable kind were delivered by Messrs. Little, Aull, Cockburn, McLeod, McKay, McMullen and F. Beattie, of Baltimore, brother of the newly inducted minister, and by the new minister himself.

Mr. Beattie is a son of Mr. Robert Beattie of Puslinch, and enters on a most inviting field of labor. He is the third minister in the Paris Presbytery from Duff's church, Puslinch. Mr. Little, of Princeton, and Mr. McRobbie, of Tilsonburgh, and now Mr Beattie may be proudly pointed to by the Puslinch people as theirs.

The Paris Presbytery is now without a vacancy, and has long been known throughout the church as the "Model Presbytery."

MONTREAL.

Collision and Narrow Escape.

The Coteau Bridge.

MONTREAL, Jan. 15.—The immigrant train, arriving here yesterday from Halifax, came into collision with an engine standing on the line near Rimouski. The train and passengers escaped being damaged but the engine was wrecked.

In a long letter to the Montreal Gazette, Mr. Fortin, the member for Gaspe, quotes columns of figures showing that our fifty millions of dollars has been expended for improvement of St. Lawrence, concludes his argument against Coteau bridge by quoting from a memorial made by Mr. Page, Chief Engineer of Department of Public Works to House of Commons in 1878, which says, before closing these remarks I consider it proper to state that in my opinion there is no part of river St. Lawrence between Kingston and Montreal where the piers of a bridge would be likely to cause so much damage to navigation by back water as they would at the place selected for a bridge at Coteau.

On Wednesday, Mr. Charles Magill Hamilton, sent the following despatch to the Duchess of Marlborough:—"Draw on me at sight for two hundred and fifty pounds sterling, on account for Irish Relief Fund." As the Times says:—"Hamilton has the credit of having been the first Canadian City to show her sympathy with the suffering Irish people in a practical and therefore appreciable manner."

Mrs. J. J. Astor sent out recently 100 homeless children to homes in the West and South, at an expense of $1,500.

GRAND TRUNK R'Y.—For some time there has been considerable talk about the Divisions on the Grand Trunk Railway being lengthened. It is now stated on good authority, that such a change is to be made. It is proposed to extend the Montreal division to Kingston, and the Kingston division to Toronto. The division between Toronto and Stratford will remain as it is at present, under the superintendance of Mr. Cooper.

THE CHRISTIAN Temperance club have arranged to have an open Social in their Hall, J. D. Williamson's block, next to MERCURY office, Macdonnell street, on Friday evening next, at half-past seven. A very fine programme has been prepared, consisting of several special pieces by an excellent choir. Songs by amateurs, readings, recitations, &c., and addresses by ministers and members. It will be a pleasing entertainment, to which all are invited free. We hope to see a large gathering to encourage members in their work. A collection will be taken up.

RUNAWAY.—An exciting runaway occured this (Thursday) forenoon, a team of horses belonging to Mr Stovell, Rockwood, starting from the City Hall, and running along Wyndham, Douglass & Woolwich sts. as far as Chase's waggon shop. Mr. Stovell left the horses standing at the East side of the City Hall while he was attending the Police Court. While standing there they took fright and turning around started up Wyndham street at a furious pace, drawing the light waggon to which they were attached on its side. There were a great many vehicles on the street at the time, and some of these narrowly escaped being run into. The horses were stopped at Chase's waggon shop none the worse for their run. One of the springs on the waggon was broken and the dashboard pretty well shattered.

A YOUTHFUL EXPEDITION.—Three lads, Thomas Cockman, aged about 14, Frank Sturdy, aged about 11, and Wm. Grant, aged about 13, years, left the city hurriedly and without giving any warning on Wednesday. After their flight their friends suspecting they had run away, informed the Chief of Police. The Chief telegraphed to different places and on Wednesday afternoon received a reply from Detective Heenan, of the G. T. R., stating that he had arrested the boys while passing through Stratford on a Grand Trunk train. They were locked up in the gaol there for the night, and this (Thursday) morning an elder brother of Frank Sturdy's left for Stratford to bring them home.

ONTARIO SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE.—The contracts for the supplies to this institution for the present year have been given as follows:—Meat, Messrs. J. & R. Millar; bread, Messrs. Sole & Johnston; groceries, Mr. John A. Wood.

ONTARIO RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The Marquis of Lorne, Hon. G. W. Allan and Judge Macdonald, have been elected life members of the Ontario Rifle Association. Major Macdonald has been elected a member of the Executive Committee of the Association.

COSSITT'S AGRICULTURAL WORKS.—We are pleased to learn that Mr. Thomas Gowdy, acting for the bondholders, has got control of the whole concern, and that the works will be started on Monday, in full blast. We are glad to hear that this arrangement has been perfected, as the re-opening of the works will give employment to a number of men.

ASSAULT AT ROCKWOOD.—An assault case which took place at Rockwood, on the 8th inst., was tried at the Police Court here before T. W. Saunders, P. M., this (Thursday) forenoon. John Nelson was the complainant in the case, and John Turner the defendant. The assault arose through a dispute about the liability of defendant to pay an account he was said to be owing complainant. Turner had ordered a suit of clothes from Nelson, who is a tailor, but as he claimed they did not fit, he would not take them nor pay for them. On the 8th inst., Turner went to Nelson's store, when they had a dispute about the account. An exchange of angry words followed and Turner struck Nelson—hence the action. Turner was fined 50 cents and $6.75 costs.

MEMBER FOR THE AGRICULTURAL AND ARTS ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO—The County or Riding Agricultural Societies in this division will at their annual meetings on the 21st inst. have to elect a member of the Council to the Board of Agriculture and Arts, Mr. Thomas Stock, the member for this Division having retired. We understand that Mr. John Hobson, of Guelph Township, and an old and prominent member of the South Wellington Agricultural Society, is a candidate for the position. Mr. Hobson would make an active, intelligent and influential member of the Board, and the Societies interested could not do better than appoint him. The Societies comprising this Division are the three in Wellington, two in Waterloo, two in Wentworth, City of Hamilton, Halton and Dufferin. Waterloo has already two representatives at the Board—Messrs, Young and Klotz—and we think it is no more than is due to the proud position that Wellington holds as an agricultural county that one of its leading farmers should have a seat at the Board in trun with those from other counties in the district. We trust the Societies interested will elect Mr Hobson as their member.

Separate School Board.

The R. C. Separate School Trustees held a meeting in the Rectory on Wednesday evening, 14th inst.

An account of $9.25 from the ladies of Loretto was referred to the School Management Committee.

O'Donnell; St. James' Ward, Jas. Collins; St. John's Ward, Jas. Mays, sr.; St. David's Ward, Jas. Ryan; St. Andrew's Ward; E. O'Connor.

The Gow Cup.

The Managing Committee of the Guelph Curling Club have decided to extend the time for members paying their subscription, up till noon on Saturday, for competition for the Gow cup. No member who has not then paid his fee to the club will be allowed to compete.

A very interesting game was played for this cup on Wednesday night between Hugh Turner and James Hewer, and was so well contested that an extra end had to be played, being ties on the 19th end. A, Congalton directed the game for Hewer. and Jas. Nichols for Turner. The score at the close stood Turner 18, Hewer 17. Time 2 hours and 20 minutes.

In the afternoon a game was played for the Gow cup between James Nichols, with A. Bruce skip., and Wm. Russell, with A. Congalton skip. At the close the score stood, Nichols 22, Russell 14. Time two hours.

It is understood that the Roman Catholic See of Ottawa will shortly be erected into an arch-diocese, to which will be attached the suffragan sees of Pembroke and Hull.

Considerable shipments of Nova Scotia cattle to England are being made.

It is said the murderer of the mounted Policeman Grayburn will shortly be under arrest. He is said to be an Indian.

Messrs. Parnell and Dillon will visit Montreal on the 15th prox., and Ottawa and Toronto on dates yet to be fixed.

The Ward Schools.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—I was somewhat tickled on reading the substance of Mr. Stevenson's communication to the School Board in your paper of Tuesday. I think there is a strange inconsistency running through the communication. How was it that Mr. Stevenson, knowing, as he imagines he does, that there was a grievance in the North Ward School of six years standing, never opened the subject before, and I mistake not if at that very time, Mr. Stevenson was a member of the Board himself, and for that very Ward. That being the case he must have been a very untrustworthy servant when he did not immediately see that the alleged grievance should be righted. It certainly must have been a very slight one when he had to rake it up five years or so after to patch up a complaint to lay before the Board. I do not think, sir, that the stigma which Mr. Stevenson wishes to attach to the North Ward School is the real cause of his anger on the present occasion, but because his daughter, forsooth, had been denied admission to the Central School. And who is his daughter, pray, more than the daughter of any other man attending that school that she should have the special privilege granted her of entering the Central School when she can receive as good instruction in her own particular Ward? The same question might be asked in regard to Mr. Skinner, who has the hardihood to say that the School in the Ward which he represents is in anything but an enviable condition. This does not speak well for that member of the Board, and I have no doubt, that the parents of children in his Ward will hardly thank him for having things in such a condition, if such is really the case. If Mr. Stevenson's and Mr. Skinner's children receive admission to the Central School, I can see no reason why my children may not reap the same advantage—if advantage it be—for I think that they are equally as good, and as well prepared as either of the two gentlemen's mentioned. If this sort of thing is to continue, sir, you will have to do away with Ward Schools altogether and make, I am afraid, a rather large extension to the Central School, when the ambition of such men as Messrs. Stevenson and Skinner will be gratified, but at the expense of those who are content to have their children at the Ward Schools, until they are far enough advanced to go to the Central School, and whose standing and respectability are just as good as the children of those who are now making such unreasonable complaints. Yours &c.,

Guelph, Jan. 15, 1880. A PARENT.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 14.

Mr. Mowat presented the report of the Standing Committees, Mr. Laidlaw is on the Private Bills and Standing Orders, and Mr. McKim on the Railway and Standing Orders Committees.

Mr. Wood introduced a bill respecting the Agricultural College, which was read the first time.

Mr. Mowat introduced a Bill for consolidating the Superior Courts of Ontario, introducing a uniform system of pleading and practice therein, and to make further provision for the administration of justice. It consolidated all the Superior Courts of the Province. Instead of there being the separate and independent Courts which we possessed now—the Courts of Chancery, Common Pleas, Queen's Bench, and Appeal—it was proposed that henceforth all these should constitute one Court—the Supreme Court of the Province; that these should be divided into two branches, one of original jurisdiction, and the other with appellant jurisdiction; that the Court of original jurisdiction should consist of judges of the Courts of Queen's Bench, Chancery, and Common Pleas, and together constitute a High Court of Appeal; and that the appellate branch of the Court should be left very nearly as it was now. The Bill further provided for a uniform system of practice in the High Court. For the convenience of business of that Court he proposed that it should be divided into three divisions, though retaining their old historic names, for the present at all events.

Mr. Mowat introduced a Bill for the relief of Co-operative Associations. The object of the present Bill was to raise the limit to which persons might hold stock in them from $400, the present limit, to $1,000, and to enable co-operative associations, which were now prohibited from incurring any debt whatever, to buy on credit the land or houses in which they carried on their business, to pay a portion of the purchase money, and to give a mortgage for the balance.

Mr. Mowat introduced a Bill to make provisions respecting coroners. He explained that the object of the Bill was to prevent, as far as possible, the holding of unnecessary inquests, which were a cause of considerable needless expense to the Province. The Bill provided that each coroner in presenting his bill of expenses should make affidavit that there was good reason to believe that an inquest was necessary.

The following Bills were also introduced and read a first time:

Mr. Mowat—To make further provisions respecting supplementary drainage by-laws.

Mr. Cook—To provide for the examination and licensing of persons employed as engineers elsewhere than on steamboats.

Also to further amend the General Railway Act.

Mr. Cook moved for an order of the House for a return from each County Treasurer of Ontario for all moneys collected and disbursed by them separately, and how expended in each year, from 1868 to 1879 inclusive.

Mr. Mowat suggested that the return for the years say 1868 and 1879 would be enough, and also that the only items needed were the expenditure to members for mileage and attendance, and further, that it would be sufficient to learn simply the aggregate amount of moneys received. This was agreed to.

Mr. Dryden moved for an Order of the House for a return showing:—1. The number of Councillors comprising the several Councils of this Province; 2. The number of miles travelled and the amount paid for the same; 3. The number of sessions held in 1879, with the duration of each. Carried.

The Mission of the Scotch Farmers' Delegates.

The North British Agriculturist of the 24th of Dec., contains lengthy reports of meetings held in the North of England and South of Scotland, at which the Farmers' delegates, sent out at the suggestion and expense of our Government, made their reports to their brother farmers as to their impressions of Canada. At Albert Hall, in Carlisle, on the 20th ult., Mr. John Maxwell, delegate from Kirkcudbright, delivered a a lecture on his visit to Canada. On the 16th, Mr. Geo. Hutchinson, of Brougham Castle, delegate from the Penrith Farmers' Club, read an elaborate address. On the 19th, at Stow, the Gala Water Club assembled to hear addresses from Messrs. Elliot, Logan and Snow. Mr. Snow on the 9th had also delivered a lecture on Canada in the town hall at Stow. On the 22nd, Mr. Biggar addressed a meeting of the Kirkcudbright farmers, supported by a splendid platform of representative men from neighbouring districts. Messrs. Elliot and Logan also spoke at a meeting of the Farmers' Club at Galashiels.

On the 19th Mr. George Cowan addressed a meeting in the town hall at Strantaer on the results of his investigations in Canada. These lectures and addresses were all of a favorable character, and were listened to by great numbers of thoughtful people.

The report of Mr. Elliot, one of the delegates who visited Guelph, is given in full. He speaks on the whole very favourably of the different parts of Canada visited, and as regards Guelph and the surrounding districts makes the following special references :

Oct. 18. Visited the Agricultural College and Model Farm, 560 acres in extent; established about five years ago. It is an excellent institution, and doubtless will be of great benefit to the country. There is generally about 100 students, who perform most of the work upon the farm, and undergo a special course of training to fit them for farmers. The various breeds of cattle and sheep are kept, and all the different grains, roots and vegetables grown upon the farm, of which a correct account is kept, enabling them to judge which is the most profitable. We called at Mr. Whitlaw's, originally from Berwickshire, a fine farm of 350 acres well cultivated. We saw there a very fine flock of Leicester sheep, and some good cattle. Moving on we called on Mr. Hobson, who has also a very fine farm of 350 acres, and a herd of good shorthorns.

Oct. 19. After church drove with Mr. Laidlaw, member for Guelph (originally from Hawick), to his farm about 7 miles from the town. He has a fine place and good stock. He has kindly sent me a statement of what he considers can be made of a 200 acre farm under ordinary circumstances. This I believe to be a very fair and moderately drawn statement as far as I am able to judge, and which goes to prove that six per cent. can be made of farming capital. Remained over night with Mr. Laidlaw, who drove me into Guelph in the morning.

Oct. 20. Took a drive into the country round about Guelph. Generally speaking, the cattle are good in this district. Some of the land has the appearance of being worn out, while some was in very good condition. We visited Messrs. Watts' farm, Nichol, a good place. They have an excellent herd of shorthorns. We observed that a good crop of swedes was being lifted (23 tons per acre.

Mr. Logan followed Mr. Elliott at the Stow meeting, and gave a full and exhaustive report of his visit to Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. Mr. Snow followed with his report, which was also comprehensive and carefully prepared. The opinion among these delegates, generally, seemed to be, that while they greatly admired Ontario for its agricultural capabilities, they preferred Manitoba as the best field for old country farmers.

The feeling of the delegates as to their reception in Canada, is well expressed by Mr. Logan, when in closing the report he says—"I cannot conclude my remarks without expressing heartily my gratitude for the thorough kindness I universally experienced from the Canadians during my sojourn among them. They are a most hospitable as well as a most industrious people. The delegates have also to thank the Canadian Government for the great kindness shown them, as well as the comfortable arrangements made for them while travelling through their country."

THE defeat of Dr. Bergin in Cornwall is considered certain, and such an occurrence will not at all trouble the Government, inasmuch as Mr. Bergin has been desirous of entering the Cabinet while Sir John and his colleagues do not want him, other than a subservient supporter.

MR. BADGEROW intends introducing a Bill to amend the Division Court Act. It does not in anyway interfere with Mr. Gibson's measure, but proposes to do away with judgment summonses, to increase the pay of jurors from ten to thirty cents a day, and a reduction of the challenge of jurors to two.

IT has been well understood for some time that the Minister of Justice has been inclined to change his present temporary position for a seat on the bench, and that he had his eye on the Chief Justiceship of Nova Scotia, but Sir William Young stands in the way, and he is not disposed to retire into private life. Rumor has it that a plan has now been arranged to effect the object in view. Lieut.-Governor Archibald is to be appointed to some sort of a commission in connection with the Pacific Railway, Sir William Young to become Governor of Nova Scotia, and James Macdonald Chief Justice, to be succeeded in the Cabinet by Daly, of Halifax, who would go in as an Irish Catholic representative, O'Connor then to retire and be succeeded by Dalton McCarthy. It is believed that there is some scheme of this sort afloat, and that it will go into operation immediately after the Parliamentary session, if not sooner.

Report of the Minister of Education.

The Hon. Mr. Crooks has laid upon the table of the Provincial Parliament his report on the Public, Separate and High Schools, also on the Normal and Model Schools of Ontario for the year 1878. The volume is not so bulky as some of those published in former years, but it contains a large amount of information on the state and progress of our educational institutions. We can give only a very brief outline of its contents upon one or two subjects.

SCHOOL POPULATION AND ATTENDANCE.

According to the reports received from trustees, whether of rural or urban districts, the school population, comprising only children between five and sixteen years of age, was 492,860, being a decrease of 2,444 on that reported for the previous year. Of these the number attending schools was 467,433, leaving about 25,000 of the ages specified, not receiving the benefit of instruction. There were, however, 21,582 of other ages in attendance; thus making the entire number 489,015—thus also showing a decrease on the attendance of the preceding year. Of boys 260,400 are reported as attending, and of girls 228,615, both of these showing a falling off. There is an increase in the number attending less than four months in the year, the total number not at any school for that length of time being 27,415. From these figures it would appear that School Trustees are not carrying out the provisions of the law requiring them to see that all the children in their school districts attend school for four months in the year.

NUMBER OF PUPILS IN DIFFERENT BRANCHES

A table (C), bristling with figures, shows how many pupils are studying the different subjects comprised in a Public School education as prescribed by the Department. The reading classes range from the first to the sixth, the latter being understood to be the limit to which a Public School education will go. Those who seek a higher must seek it in other institutions. By far the largest number of pupils is in the first reading book, the next largest number being in the third, the next in the second, and the smallest, only 260, in the sixth. More are studying arithmetic than learning to write, upwards of 22,000 are in Grammar and Composition. Only 6,606 are in Canadian History; 7,330 are in English History, and 1,399 in General History. The numbers in the higher branches, such as Algebra, Geometry and Mensuration, are comparatively few. Book-keeping has 1,062 students, and Domestic Economy (for girl's only) is taught in only seven schools, and has 889 in its class.

RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONS, CERTIFICATES AND SALARIES.

Of the 6,473 teachers employed in the 4,990 schools that have reported, 949 belong to the Church of England; 789 to the Roman Catholic Church; 2,042 to the Presbyterian; 2,052 to the Methodist; 337 to the Baptist; 106 to the Congregationalist; 20 to the Lutheran; 17 to the Quakers; 49 to Christians and Disciples; while 65 are reported as Protestants; 2 as Plymouth Brethren; 5 as Unitarian, and 40 other persuasions.

Of the entire number of Roman Catholic teachers, 456 are employed in the Public Schools and 333 in the R. C. Separate School.

All the teachers reported possess legal certificates of qualification. Of these 210 are first class Provincial; 1,409 second class; 3,904 new County Board, third class; 470 possess County Board Certificates, First and Second Class, of the old standard, and 480 were teaching under Interim Certificates.

Salaries paid to male teachers in counties range from $800 to $125. In a city the highest paid is $1,000, and the lowest $500. In a town the highest is $1,200, and the lowest $200. There is an average decrease of $3 per each male teacher throughout the Province for 1878.

ROMAN CATHOLIC SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

The number of these is 177, showing a decrease of 9 during the year. The number of pupils enrolled in them was 25,280, giving an increase of 328, and the increase upon the average attendance was 623. Of teachers, 333 were employed, of whom 104 were males and 229 females.

The total amount received from all sources for the support of these schools was $127,549, being an increase of $7,282 of the receipts of the preceding year. Of this sum $12,620 (an increase of $244) was received from the Legislative grant; the school rates amounted to $79,120, or an increase of $6,942 on the income from that source for 1877, and the subscriptions from supporters and from other sources were $35,019, an increase of $537. From these figures it will be seen that the revenue for the support of the schools shows a decided increase.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE OF PUBLIC SCHOOL MONEYS.

Receipts.—The apportionment from the Legislative Grant, which is made to the several Counties, Cities, Towns, and Incorporated Villages, according to the ratio of the population in each, compared with the whole population of the Province, amounted to $258,538. The amount from the same source for the purchase of maps, apparatus, prize and library books was $15,756. From County Municipal Assessment there was received $872,354, an increase of $14,049, on the year before. From Trustees' School Assessment there accrued $1,405,686, a falling off of $158,439. The receipts from Clergy Reserve Moneys and from other sources, applied to school purposes were $694,984, a decrease of $35,702. The total receipts from all sources were thus $3,247,321, being a decrease of $175,863, over the total receipts of the year 1877.

Expenditure.—The entire expenditure for all school purposes was $2,889,347, decrease $184,142. Of this sum $2,011,207, were paid by Trustees as salaries of Teachers; $42,507 were expended for maps, globes, prize books and libraries; $413,392 were laid out for sites and school buildings, and $422,239 for rent and repairs: When the returns were made at the end of the year there was an unexpended balance of $357,974.

HIGH SCHOOLS

The number of these is 104, with an attendance of 10,574 pupils, being 1,345 more than in the previous year. Of these, 10,486 were in English Grammar and Literature; 9,844 in Composition; 10,184 in Reading, Dictation and Elocution; 7,683 in Penmanship; 2,881 in Linear Drawing; 4,011 in Book-keeping; 10,450 in Arithmetic; 10,212 in Algebra, 9,713 in Geometry; 5,383 in Mensuration; 9,855 in History; 10,074 in Geography; 2,375 in Natural Philosophy; 2,979 in Chemistry; 242 in Natural History; 328 in Physiology; 3,588 in French; 516 in German; 4,729 in Latin; 883 in Greek, and 1,822 in gymnastics and drill.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE.

Receipts.—The amount received by High School Boards is from Legislative Grant for the salaries of teachers was $77,106, an increase of nearly $2,000. The apportionment from the same source for maps, prize-books, etc., was $1,796. The amount of municipal grants was $202,848, showing the large increase of $44,054. The receipts from pupil's fees were $21,581. Balance from preceding years and other sources $103,045, making the total receipts $420,188, or an increase of $62,667.

Expenditure.—The total expenditure for the year was $396,010, of which $223,010 were paid for salaries of masters and teachers; $83,963 for building, rent and repairs; $88,904 for fuel, books and contingencies; and $5,126 for maps, prize-books, apparatus and libraries.

The Report of the Minister of Education contains a general statistical abstract of the progress of education in Ontario from 1842 to 1878, both years included. In the former years there were 1,721 schools, in the latter 4,990. The number of pupils in attendance has increased from 168,159 in 1851, to 489,015 in 1878. The amount paid for the support of Public Schools in 1851 was $468,644, and in 1878, $2,889,347. It must be evident that there has been great and rapid progress.

One of the tables forming part of the report, shows the progress or decline of each High School for 1877 and 1878. Turning to Guelph we find the whole number of pupils in 1877 was 128, with an average attendance of 69 for the first, and 78 for the second half year. In 1878, the whole number was 176, an increase of 48, with an average of 106 for the first, and 87 for the second half year. The total received from Legislative Grant was $742.95 in 1877. Expended on salaries, $2,866.66, and on improvements and other expenses, $1,182.66. In 1878 these figures had increased to $824.83; for grant there was a decrease to $2,750, in expenditure on salaries, whereas that on improvements and expenses, had risen to $6,825.31.

In another table we have reported the fee per term of three months charged per pupils and those schools that are free. Glancing over these, we learn that 76 of the 104 are free. Some charge seventy-five cents, others as high as $5. In some instances residents are free, and non-residents charged. As appears from a former part of this review, $21,581 have been raised from fees. The subject is one of special interest to those in the neighbourhood at the present time, as from remarks made by members of the Board of Education at their last meeting, there seems the purpose to impose a fee on pupils attending the Guelph High school.

Once in travelling the Rev. Dr. Bledsoe was exceedingly annoyed by a pedantic bore who forced himself upon him, and made a great parade of hts shallow learning. The doctor bore it as long as he could, and at length, looking him gravely he said: 'My friend, you and I know all that is to be known.' 'How is that?' said the man, pleased with what he thought a very complimentary association. 'Why,' said the doctor, 'You know everything except that you are a fool, and I know that.'

The North Ward School.

Dear Sir, it's with much interest
I've read your news of late;
I never dreamed our North Ward School
Was in so sad a state.

Last Monday's revelations
I heard with much surprise;
That there was cause for such complaint,
I did not e'en surmise.

'Tis true, those charges are but vague,
Their nature I can't trace,
But that they're very serious
And full of dark disgrace.

Yet six dear little ones of mine
Have learned at this same school:
Three have to higher classes passed,
Nor passed against the rule.

An' if the school was so depraved
They must have learned some ill
Yet I'll prove my trust in the North Ward School
By sending three there still.

Just give a dog an ugly name,
The rest, dear, sir, you know;
So must our school now suffer
For its name of years ago.

Surely the monster Prejudice
Is Jealousy's own son,
For both possess the power to make
The food they feed upon.

REAL SWISS EMBROIDERIES.
After some little negotiations we have just succeeded in closing a rare purchase of lovely new Swiss Embroideries, in handsome medium and wide widths, at a very low figure, and purpose at once submitting them to our customers for sale.
This purchase comprises somewhat in the neighborhood of 3,000 yards all new, handsome and lovely patterns, and having been bought away down below anything like regular prices, will at the prices we shall put upon them dispose from our counter rapidly. We fully expect that ten days will clear the lot, so that intending purchasers will have to look lively.
The like of these goods will probably never be seen again in Canada.
We may just say, too, in connection with these goods that the latest spring and summer fashions indicate that White Skirts, handsomely trimmed with embroidery, will be all the rage. This will therefore present to the ladies of Guelph a favorable opportunity of purchasing the right material almost at their own price.
ON THURSDAY MORNING,
at 10 o'clock, these goods will be to hand, and ladies will please bear in mind that those who come first will have the best choice.
ON THE SAME DAY WE SHALL SHOW

CHAPTER XIX.

SECRET ENEMIES—RUBEN LANGTON AND HIS FATHER PLOT TOGETHER AGAINST ORWELL BRUCE—A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP AT CAIRNTREE.

Such was Anthony Langton; and as a careful, prudent money-getting man he was able to command a certain kind of respect in the district. Seeing that he was so careful a manager of property, Mr. Bruce, when he had found that death was slowly but surely approaching him, selected him to be the co-trustee of Mr. Bishop, assured that in the hands of two such men the worldly interests of his son and daughter would be safe till they came of age and would undertake the management of these for themselves. The result showed that his belief had been well founded. During the time of minority the money and property had been duly looked after, but Anthony Langton had not concerned himself about the affairs of Mr. Bruce without an idea of making them his own. His grand scheme was to marry his daughter to Orwell Bruce and thus join the estates. Had May Bruce been in the possession of health, he would have marked her out for his son's wife, and so secured her fortune, but, as it was evident enough that the fragile girl would never reach womanhood, this part of the scheme never attained to consistency, and had long been abandoned.

The other part, however, had been tenaciously grasped, and determinedly clung to, till the alarming fact made itself patent to Anthony Langton that Orwell Bruce had a mind of his own in marrying Maria. This caused him to set about the accomplishment of his purpose in another way—a way which involved much manœuvring on the part of Reuben as well as himself, and which was now seriously threatened to be thwarted.

"Back already," cried Mr. Langton, whose light sleep had been disturbed by the entrance of Reuben, "I thought you were off to the Grange, and would not return till evening."

"I meant that, sure enough, but I saved myself the trouble of going when I knew I should not find Orwell Bruce there."

"Oh, you learned he is not at home; gone down to the village to see Bishop, maybe?"

"No," Returned Reuben, with a dry laugh. "He is not off his own grounds, but is very particularly engaged. He and Agnes Borland are billing and cooing in the Birch Dell."

The old man started forward in his chair, jerking the spectacles off his nose and causing his dressing gown to fall from his knees, revealing his spindle shanks encased in silk stockings and the burnished buckles of his leather shoes.

"Why did you allow him to come home?" he asked, testily and reproachfully.

"I could not hinder him. I did all I could to keep him on the Continent. But when Orwell is determined on a thing, soft and simple as he is, there's no turning him from it. I wished him to go with me to Italy, but he wouldn't. He would be home, and I know the reason. It has brought him back pretty often of late."

"So it has, Reuben—too often for my good and yours. Do you really think he means to marry the girl?"

"I haven't the slightest doubt he means that, if something is not speedily done to prevent it."

"And something might be done to prevent it—for a time at least," cried his father excitedly. "By-and-by it may not matter anything to us though he does marry her."

"When may that be?" asked Reuben, with a scowl.

"When the Grange is mortgaged to me past his power of redemption. He may marry her then if she'll have him, and they can starve together—the sooner the better. But of course that won't happen. The girl is not such a fool as to marry Orwell Bruce without a penny or an acre of land."

"I don't think she is," muttered Reuben, who gauged a woman's nature by his father's low standard, and privately built by his own base plans upon it. "Meanwhile, how is he to be made penniless and landless?"

"I trust chiefly to you for that," returned his father. "Get him abroad again; work on his passion for gambling, which you have awakened; take him to places where high play is practised; put him into the hands of those who know how to pluck the geese, and the thing is done. Do you feel incapable of accomplishing that?"

"No, I don't despair of accomplishing it if time and place serve," answered Reuben, with a malicious laugh. He lost the last ten thousand of his sister's money this season."

"You are sure of that?" eagerly exclaimed his father, as he rubbed his withered hands against each other. "You are really sure of that, Reuben?"

"No mistake about it, and the fit of remorse caused him was something I didn't like to see. When the last stake was swept away he threw down the dice and vowed he would never touch them again."

"Bah! Don't believe it. The common resolution of the unsuccessful gambler, which yields before the next temptation. Get him abroad with funds in his possession, and if you are half as clever as I think, the work is done."

"Yes, but there's the difficulty. How is he to have funds in his possession?"

By the mortgage I speak of. Have you not sounded him on that point?"

"I have, and he seems inclined to it, but only to replace May's fortune; for that alone will he consent to mortgage the Grange."

"An excellent motive, Reuben—a most excellent motive. Encourage him in it; take every means to persuade him that it is the right thing for him to do, and should not be delayed. Show him how his honour will suffer if it becomes known that he has squandered away his sister's dowry."

"No need; he sees that well enough already. He spent the first half of the journey home in venting reproaches against himself for his folly—his cruel crime, as he called it. Then when I showed him how the money could be replaced he grasped at the idea and said he would settle down at the Grange and become economical."

"Make it up by a rich marriage, Orwell," I said.

"Ah, and how did he receive that idea?"

"Scornfully. He said not for millions would he marry a lady for her fortune; he would marry only the woman he loved. I knew he meant Agnes Borland, and the thought of soon being beside her made him happy for the rest of the journey. Oh, it would not be difficult to get him to mortgage the estate, but who will advance such a sum even on the Grange?"

"I will," said the father, promptly. "It is a large sum, thirty thousand pounds, nearly as much as the estate is worth, and an ordinary money lender would scruple to risk it. But I know how to make it secure, and to me it is more valuable than to any one else. Go down to the Grange at once, Reuben—this very evening; get him persuaded, bring him up to me, and my life on it, in a day or two, the deed will be in my possession which makes me owner of the Grange, Away, Reuben, and if you know what a fine property is worth, you will use all your persuasive power upon him till he is brought to our purpose."

"I have a stronger motive than that," "muttered Reuben, as quitting the room he went forth to obey his father's instructions. "The possession of Agnes Borland, is more to me than the acquisition of the Grange; and, by heaven, I'll make a bold stroke to win her."

The conversation just recorded has given the reader an idea of the machinations practised by Anthony Langton and his son against Orwell Bruce, the objects they had in view, and the success which had already attended their disgraceful efforts. So soon as it was seen that the plan for marrying him to Maria Langton was to fail and that there was no prospect of May living to be the wife of Reuben, the grasping money lender, whose acquisitive desires had been fixed upon the Grange, set his vile wits to work to secure his object in another way. He had so often found a mortgage a sure stepping-stone to another property that he resolved to resort to this plan now. Time and labour were necessary to bring Orwell into the position of a mortgagee; but his youth, his inexperience, his facile character, and unprotected condition combined to give the desired opportunity, and Reuben Langton was an apt agent in carrying out his father's design. Worming himself into the position of Orwell's bosom friend and companion, he led him on to the flowery and alluring paths of dissipation, and induced in him a taste for gambling, which is as insidious in its growth, and so powerful when it obtains the mastery that the plotters knew it would, if developed in Orwell's nature, produce the result at which they aimed.

IRON, NAILS AND HARDWARE IN TORONTO.—The hardware trade is fair for this season of the year, and merchants express themselves as satisfied. Prices are firm, and advances which have been made have been sustained on the strength of advices from abroad. Although some orders have been taken ahead, the majority of merchants persistently refuse to do so, so great is their confidence in the future course of the market. The demand for pig iron in the United States still continues, and the increase in prices does not seem to deter buyers from purchasing, as they believe the increased production will not keep pace with the consumptive demand. The market is liable to slight reactions, but the year just entered upon presents a bright outlook. There has been a further advance in nails, and merchants are now asking $3.50 for three inch nails, and extra prices for smaller sizes. Bar iron has advanced to $2.60 and $2.75 for ordinary, and from $2.75 to $3.25 for hoop and bands. As much as $2.60 has been refused for a car of ordinary, $2.75 having been asked, Travellers are pretty much all out and report a fair business in the west.—Globe.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

WALLACKS ORCHESTRA.—The orchestra of Wallack's Theatre, New York, is famous for its extraordinary precision. This is due entirely to Thomas Baker, an Englishman, who has conducted it for years. Mr. Baker used to suffer terribly from rheumatism, but now is as supple and nimble as a schoolboy. He ascribes his freedom, as he ought, to GILES' LINIMENT IODIDE AMMONIA. HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

The Quebec Government has completed certain temporarily arrangements for the management of the Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa and Occidental Railway, which will be taken possession of by it immediately following the progress of the express train which leaves this city at 2:20 p. m. for Montreal.

A collision occurred on the East River, New York, on Wednesday, between the ferry-boat Warren and the Long Island annex steamer G. T. Olypham. Owing to the strong tide the crash was tremendous. The Olypham was badly shattered, and sank in a few minutes. Her passengers and crew, 25 in all, were rescued, only one or two being slightly injured. The Warren was damaged but little. She had a few passengers, none of whom were hurt.

There is considerable slack in the shipment of iron ore from the Madoc mines for the last few days. The average from the only two miles now shipping is eight cars per day.

George Walker, of Fort Gratiot, a fireman on the Grand Trunk R. R., undertook to climb over the engine tender to uncouple it from the train, on Sunday night, at the Junction. He missed the footing and fell, catching the boot-heel in a frog in such a manner as to hold him while the tender ran over his leg and side, crushing him in such a manner that his bowels protruded. He was not killed, but received injuries which it is thought will prove fatal.

GUELPH MARKETS

GUELPH, Jan., 15, 1880

The past week on this market has been one of general quietude considering the season of year; but of course, this state of affairs has been caused by the very open and soft weather. For the past few days however, the weather has somewhat hardened, which in itself, even in the absence of the necessary quantity of snow for sleighing, has induced farmers to offer their grain and produce in larger quantities.

It is a positive and undeniable fact, that with the reported quantities of grain, &c., in the hands of farmers, should sleighing be sufficient, buyers would have their hands full to handle all and everything offered. Yet if holders, of ferm produce, in our opinion, act the wise part (from what we can glean from foreign and outside exchanges and advices,) they will as soon as possible, dispose of every article they have for sale. From Liverpool, by cable, for the past few days, we notice a daily decline in wheat, as for the Western States markets, they to-day, are lower fully six cents per bushel than was freely offered a week ago, and the same may be repeated with regard to all other marketable articles now occupying the whole attention of the largest and most extensive operators and speculators over the whole world.

This market as usual, keeps ahead of all others in the Province, so far as prices are concerned, but how such is, and can be successfully carried out, we fail to ascertain, and yet notwithstanding, complaints daily made of weights, &c., it appears. Customers, both in the buying and selling line generally deal fairly with one another. Others again there are who complain that honesty in a Guelph market buyer at present is something that does not exist, consequently such people, although anxious, are debarred from operating as in their own words, "they cannot compete with people now buying." One thing certain is that there are higher prices paid here to farmers for produce, more particularly hogs, than the same buyers sell for. How such a state of things can so long exist, without correction, we do not attempt to explain, for it is generally known that all sellers on this market are thoroughly conversant with the rules of our city market, and very well know that there are scales of all sizes with attentive weighers always ready to attend to the weighing of all and every kind of produce and grain, if the farmer is not too stingy to avail himself of such facilities, for the paltry consideration of a few cents, where perhaps otherwise he loses, dollars, and does not know it.

Another cause complained of by buyers, who themselves pretend honesty, but are debarred from buying here, is too much leniency on the part of banks by the too free use of discounts to parties whom they should deal carefully with. This, however, we claim not to have anything to do with, but merely give such items under this heading as from time to time may come to our notice. And as every person in Ontario and Quebec who have ever had any Guelph Market business to see to, knows that the system here in the shape of ticket arrangements, is by long odds one of the best if not the very best they ever knew of anywhere, and for this and several other reasons, we should be, as we always are, acknowledged to be, the best market in Ontario. But buyers must be careful, or matters can get easily disarranged.

Another complaint we hear of, not about the old buyers, but of "greenhorns," is that new market men once in a while crop up, not alone here but elsewhere, who, as the saying has it, always wish to sweep clean, but in the majority of instances generally wind up quite the contrary. Whether their actions are due to ignorance, stupidity, or instructions from their employers we know not, or care not, but such as running as if for a person's life from one end of the market to the other extreme end, on the appearance of a vehicle of any kind, whether such is intended for the market or not, is such a low business that it must and will be put a stop to. We only hope, without entering farther on this subject, that such practices will cease at once, as old buyers are not at all satisfied. They say, and justly so too, that their experience on the Guelph market has been such as to allow every waggon to come fairly on the market and let the highest bidder be the purchaser, and if the old system of honesty and market regularities are not adhered to, we will be compelled to give and expose the names of the parties guilty of such conduct.

There are no material changes in prices since our last report. Such as there are will be found appended, which are the latest up to 2:30 this p. m.

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process brough which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) Ladies don't buy old goods at any price. Come to us for new, dressy, bright goods. A. O. BUCHAM.

FRIDAY EV'G, JANUARY 16, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

M. Tirard, Minister of Agriculture for France, has declared himself unreservedly for Free Trade and it is stated that is the policy of the Government.

The First Lord of the Admiralty in England says the country may expect a general election within a twelvemonth.

D'Oubril has given the most assuring explanations to the Emperor William regarding the concentration of Russian troops in Poland.

The recent duel in Pesth, between Baron Maithenyi and Verhovay, a Radical journalist, in which the latter was fatally wounded, has led to serious disturbances in the city. A mob of students and workingmen on Wednesday night attacked the National Casino Club, and the military were called out to preserve order. It is reported that two men were shot.

A pretty quarrel is on foot between Sir Garnet Wolseley, commander in chief of Her Majesty's forces in South Africa, and Dr. Russell, formerly correspondent of the Times and now of the Telegraph. Sir Garnet charges the famous scribe with falsehood and exaggeration in the letters written by him from the Cape. Russell had denounced the conduct of some of the British soldiers in the Transvaal.

It is not the intention of the Government to set a very large sum aside as the cost of the new Zulu Residency. This sum, as sanctioned by the Colonial Secretary, is under £1,000 per annum. The British Resident will be appointed with a salary of £600. His dignity will be supported by native guard for which an allowance of £226 has been sanctioned. A further sum of £100 will be allowed under the comprehensive definition of contingent allowance, making altogether a grand total of £926 per annum.

Help for Ireland.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—At a Cabinet Council to-day, it is believed that Irish affairs will share attention. All accounts agree that the situation in the distressed districts is becoming extremely critical. A Cork correspondent states that sixty able-bodied men, with their families were yesterday admitted to Killarney workhouse. A woman applied for admission on Tuesday with three children—one dead in her arms, from hunger and exposure, the woman having walked forty miles. The Mayors of Sheffield, Brighton, and other towns have opened relief subscriptions. The universal opinion is that private relief cannot cope with the distress. The Government's plans for meeting it will probably be determined to-day.

Sir. S. Northcote, Chancellor of the Exchequer, at a Conservative banquet in Stroud, confirmed the announcement of the intention to issue loans in Ireland, and said that the Government authorized the various Boards to overstep their powers if necessary. On the assembling of Parliament the Government would present a bill of indemnity for all expenditures thus incurred.

The Mayor of Sydney, New South Wales, telegraphed that $10,000 had been subscribed in that city, and Liverpool merchants engaged in the American provision trade subscribed $5,000 to the relief of Irish distress.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Dillon called on the Mayor to-day in regard to opening a subscription for the Irish Famine Relief Fund. The Mayor, acting in conjunction with leading wealthy residents, decided to open a subscription list at his office to-morrow.

Ontario Manufacturers' Association.

A meeting of this Association was held in Toronto on Wednesday, at which there were representatives from Toronto, Hamilton, London, St. Catharines, Dundas, Oshawa, Belleville, Berlin, Guelph, Brampton, Almonte, Paris, Limehouse, Eglington, and other places. The President, Mr. G. Gurney, jr., gave the annual address, in which he spoke strongly in favor of the present tariff, and characterized it as the boldest piece of legislation ever attempted in Canada. He said "the Council at its last meeting issued a schedule of enquiries which was sent to the members, inviting them to testify as to the action of the tariff in increasing or reducing wages, developing new industries etc. He trusted that they would all be returned in good time, so that their representations to the Government might be put in the right shape. Their friends in the Lower Provinces had taken similar action, so that at the meeting of Parliament a vast amount of information would be ready." The Treasurer's report showed the receipts to by $800, and the expenditure $778.44. The retiring officers were re-elected. The following motions were carried:—

Moved by Mr. W. H. Howland, seconded by Mr. McKenzie:—"That this Association desires to express its general approval of the tariff legislation of the last session of the Dominion Parliament, which it is evident, has in a large measure helped to bring about the marked commercial improvement, and financial confidence now existing in this country."

Moved by Mr. Jas. Simpson, seconded by Mr. James Watson:—"That in view of the expansion likely to be given to Canadian industries by the legitimate operations and efforts of the National Policy, and further, in the belief that the merits of our productions entitle them to recognition beyond the limits of our own markets, this Association considers it desirable and recommends to the consideration of the Government the importance of appointing one or more commissioners to promote this desirable end—viz: the opening of new markets for the sale or exchange of the products of our increased and improved industries."

In consequence of an accident which Hon. R. D. Wilmot, Speaker of the Senate, met with some time ago, it is doubtful if he will be able to resume his Parliamentary duties at the approaching session.

Of these 760 are incarcerated in Kingston Penitentiary, 340 in St. Vincent De Paul, 80 in Dorchester, 80 in Halifax and the remaining 40 are destributed between the B. C. and Manitoba Penitentiaries.

A number of English capitalists are negotiating for the purchase of the Gaudet timber limits on the Lievres.

The city news boys numbering 102, were entertained at an oyster supper last night by a generous hearted citizen.

TORONTO.

Defaulting Treasurer.

Queen's Own Rifles—Suicide.

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Crozier, the defaulting Secretary of Toronto Typographical Union, has been traced to Buffalo under an assumed name. He was making use of the card of a printer named Glennin from London, and was discovered by the Buffalo secretary sending the card on here for verification, Glennan most singularly happening to be be talking to the Secretary of the Toronto Union when he opened the letter.

A deputation of the non-commissioned officers of the Queen's Own Rifles met their comrades of the Victoria Rifles, who come to present them with a souvenir of of their visit last September, at the Union Station, and escorted them to the Rossin House. MONTREAL.

Arrest of a Mail Carrier.—Parnell's Visit Postponed.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—Simon Cortes, mail driver between Berthier and St. Norbett, was arrested here to-day for stealing a letter from the mail. On his person was found a letter addressed to Mr. Bourne, treasurer Montreal Telegraph Company, containing $50 in American bills, which had been forwarded by the operator of the Company at Berthier. The prisoner, although only seventeen years of age made a desperate resistance on being arrested, and it took four men to take him to the station. He had absconded from his employment and came to this city.

Parnell's visit to Montreal is postponed until the 15th of February.

A. O. BUCHAM informs us that he can always tell who reads the daily papers from the prompt responses given to his advertisments. Yesterday, although generally a very dull day in town, the Fashionable West End was kept fairly busy throughout the entire day, with a most intelligent class of customers. Real Swiss embroideries as advertised in the MERCURY being the great attraction.

LIKES THE WEST BEST.—Mr. Thos. Irwing, one of the delegate farmers to Canada, in the course of a recent address at Bowness, said:—"He saw some magnificent farms during his journey. Of the numerous counties he visited he preferred Kent and Huron. In the county of Wellington, near Guelph, he saw the finest crops of turnips. The result of his examination of the eastern and western portions of Canada was that he preferred the western.

THE BERLIN News has the following complimentary paragraph:—"Mr. Bollert (of J. D. Williamson & Co.) looks fat and jolly, evidently enjoying the atmosphere and prize beef which the royal city rejoices in. ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—A meeting of St. George's Society was held on Thursday evening, when there was a fair attendance of members. Mr. James Hewer, chairman of the Concert Committee, reported that the concert had not been a paying enterprise. Mr. Brill, reported for the Relief Committee, reported that provisions had been distributed among forty families, comprising in all, one hundred and forty persons, at Christmas. It was shown that the contributions were so large, that many more poor people might have been relieved had they applied. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Tolton for collecting the subscriptions. Messrs. Brill, Fairbank and Read, were appointed a committee to arrange for holding a social some time soon. A few unimportant matters were disposed of after which the meeting adjourned.

JUSTICE WITHOUT LAW.—The other night while a prominent gentleman was going along Paisley street, he noticed a man carrying a cordwood stick on his shoulder. A quantity of wood had been stolen from a pile belonging to the gentleman, and thinking that perhaps the man he met was one of the thieves he "braced up" and ordered the fellow to return the wood, as he did not want to raise any disturbance about it. The man said he would, and left it on the wood-pile belonging to the gentleman. The latter rushed into the fellow and gave him such a sound handling as will prove him more courageous than sneak thieves generally are, if he attempts any more theft's from that woodpile.

LICENSED VICTUALLERS.

Deputation to the Provincial Secretary.

A largely attended meeting of the Licensed Victuallers of this Province took place on Wednesday at St. James' Hotel, Toronto. After electing Mayor Sleeman, of Guelph, Chairman, and George G. Robinson (of C. P. Reid & Co.), Secretary, the meeting appointed the Chairman and Messrs. Tims and Hodge a deputation to wait on Mr. Hardy, Provincial Secretary, to arrange for his receiving a deputation from the Association. The deputation subsequently waited on the Provincial Secretary.

Mr. Hodge, in addressing Mr. Hardy, said, in speaking for the deputation, that one of the principal reasons for waiting upon him was to ask him so to amend the laws as to give the Inspector more power for the suppression of the unlicensed houses. There were other amendments wanted, but the nature of these he could not state until the License Board for the city was complete, and they had had an opportunity to confer with them, and by their united efforts suggest some means for the suppression of the unlicensed traffic, which has assumed large proportions not only in the city, but throughout the province.

Mayor Sleeman, in speaking in behalf of the county associations, heartily endorsed the sentiments expressed by Mr. Hodge.

Mr. Hardy thanked the deputation for their valuable suggestions, and assured them he would consult his colleagues at the earliest possible moment, when they would consider the advisability of making legislative enactments which would meet with the wishes of the deputation.

After thanking Mr. Hardy for the courteous manner in which he had received them, the deputation withdrew.

"ELBOW ROOM."

Lecture in the Norfolk St. Methodist Church.

The announcement that Rev. W. Williams, pastor of the Norfolk street Methodist Church, would lecture last night under the auspices of the Young People's Association in connection with the church, drew together a very fair attendance.

Mr. Mills, President of the Agricultural College, occupied the chair, and in a few appropriate remarks called upon the lecturer.

Rev. Mr. Williams on coming forward met with applause. After referring to the Young People's Association as an organization which might accomplish great things, he passed on to deal with his subject, "Elbow Room." The universe was a scene of activity from the smallest atom to the great sun. All nature seemed to move. Where there was no other motion there was that of change—destructive or restorative. When we cast a grain into the ground and it reached perfection it had reached its sphere. First there was the embryo, then the full blown rose and the fruit within the germ. Light was not imprisoned in the sun nor in the atmosphere surrounding it, but made day radiant. Rising to a higher plane of being, from the smallest animalcule to the greatest animal there was action going on, either moving towards perfection or imperfection. We found man asserting his right to a place in this world. Where there was a babe in the house it was the king and the time was coming when the babe would gain a higher ascendancy—"A little child shall lead them." Your school boy knew he had a right to a place in everything, but after all he was an uncertain negotiator. He was rash, unconquerable and uncivilized. The bully of the play ground fifty years ago was not the man now he was fifty years ago. He had found that bullying did not constitute manhood. But there were no boys now, the species was extinct. Some geologist going down among the rocks might find petrified what was once a boy, but you would not find him in the nineteenth century. The boy of one hundred years ago did not know so much as the boy of to-day. The boy of one hundred years ago did not part his hair in the middle, wear a moustache or smoke cigars. But though there were no boys now, there were young men, and they thought they could run any institution from a wheelbarrow to a Corliss engine or a steamship—that was the typical boy of to-day. He would advise boys not to know so much, and to wait a few years before they tried to teach the world. Neither were there girls of the past, now-a-days. They did not know so much about kitchen work, but after all, there were more genuine girls left than genuine boys. The boys and girls of to-day did greater miracles than Joshua did when he commanded the sun to stand still. Every man strove for a place in this world, and there was plenty room for every one. If the world was filled up as China was, there would be three times the present population. There were plenty of lands yet unsettled, Africa, Central Australia, South America and our own fair land with its sunny rivers and its placid lakes. In this beautiful country there was room enough for 60,000,000 people, while we only had 4,000,000. Many did not gain position in the world, because they were content to stand still and offer no resistance to the greatest oppositions. It was almost impossible to route them to anything that might lead to success or good, so sunk were they in apathy. There were some people again who never would be heard of unless they were appendages to some person who was known. There were also people who dwelt in wilful ignorance on religious and other matters, and as a consequence became narrow minded. He recommended the cultivation of a general information. There were many who found a place in the world through trickery who had not sound ability. Among men called great were those who gained the name by stains of blood in battle. It was better to remain in the deepest obscurity and be forgotten when the dust of the earth covered them again than gain a name and place in that way. Other men who had the power to push onward did not use it rightly. The man who secured place and power was he who made his opportunities. God knew their moral and mental powers and balance and he would not allow those who were able to contend with the world to pass through it without a struggle. Like vessels, some men were made to sail on the smooth waters of life, while the grandeur of character of others were only seen when they were tossed about on the rough ocean of life. In the great influence that moved society you always found some men who trusted God to aid them in securing a great end Among these were Wilberforce, Clarkson, Livingston and others whose names had found a place in the history of England. There were men, too, whom the world said were born too soon, and who went before the main body, but they were born in the right time, and men coming after them were benefitted by their ideas. If you wanted to be great be ambitious to be the best. In the things of this life they should not forget to secure a place in the next world, where there was room for all, and where they might work out the broken plans of this life.

Rev. Mr. Cross, Indian Missionary, near Brantford, said a few words at the close.

A hearty vote of thanks was afterwards tendered Mr. Williams for his able lecture.

During the evening the choir rendered a number of anthems in good style.

FRIDAY EV'G, JANUARY 19, 1880

The North Ward School Case.

Few words will suffice in reply to Mr. Stevenson's long and rambling letter in the Herald of Thursday, on the complaint that he brought before the Board of Education on Monday night. At the outset we pardon him his impertinence in his personal allusions in that letter, as we charitably suppose it is through ignorance that he deals with the MERCURY'S article in a purely personal way, and instead of dealing with it on its merits continually introduces the name of its supposed writer. Perhaps Mr. Stevenson does not know that this is contrary to all the rules of honorable newspaper discussion.

Mr. Stevenson, in this fresh communication, weakens his case still more by his admission that since six years ago he has had no complaint against the North Ward School, and we are in a position to say that even at that far back date referred to no formal complaint was made by him, and the change made was entirely apart from any representation he made. His child was at that time promoted in the ordinary way to another school, just as other children were.

It is strange, indeed, that such trumped up charges against the North Ward School should now be revived after the lapse of years, when according to Mr. Stevenson's confession he does "not mean to insinuate or make indirect complaints" against it. Why, then, his objection to have his child sent there? Does not the whole transaction bear the appearance of unjust and unfounded prejudice against this particular school, in order that Mr. Stevenson might have carried out his special wish to have his child sent to the Central School in spite of the Inspector and the whole Board put together?

Mr. Stevenson makes certain statements respecting the examination of his child, which being now the subject of inquiry by the School Management Committee, we leave for it to pronounce on.

The other portion of his letter is easily disposed of. He claims to have spent a whole lifetime in working for the schools of Guelph. We could name not a few more in this city who have done as much as he has in this matter, and who, judging from Mr. Stevenson's past public career in this respect, have done their work with much more forbearance, breadth and charity than ever he manifested. What will our readers think of the fairness or impartiality of Mr. Stevenson, who since this late trouble arose, has expressed to more than one member of the School Board, that nobody but the Scotch have any show in the Central School. If this is a sample of his fairmindedness or impartiality in dealing with public questions, then we sincerely hope that no other individual in this city, whether an Alderman or a simple ratepayer, will ever be embued with such feelings in the solemn discharge of a public duty. We might be tempted to say more on this subject, but it is too paltry and contemptible for further notice.

Mr. Stevenson in his closing paragraph seeks to make a martyr of himself in connection with the appointment to the Principalship of our Schools. We are not cognizant with the history of the case, but we well know that Mr. Stevenson's course at that time was condemned almost unanimously by the Board, and that those who were then on the Board, and aware of all the facts in the case, have a very different opinion of Mr. Stevenson's conduct from what he seems himself to entertain.

To sum up, Mr. Stevenson makes the admission that he knows nothing now against the North Ward School, and his objection to it, therefore, falls to the ground. With respect to the remarks of the Herald in which it speaks of "misconduct of such a nature that it cannot even be hinted at in the columns of a respectable journal," we would say that any person in this city who is cognizant of such is not doing his duty if he does not at once inform the proper authorities in order to have the whole thing thoroughly sifted. Until that is done we cannot believe that such misconduct exists, but if there is let it be brought forward and at once inquired into. The Board of Education, we feel satisfied, are anxious to prob every such charge to to the bottom, and he is no friend to the Public Schools if such are kept in the background.

THE nomination for North Lanark took place at Almonte on Thursday. Mr. Macdonnell is the Reform and Mr. Jamieson the Conservative candidate.

E. G. SILLS has decided to contest West Hastings, in the Reform interest, against Alex. Robertson, lately unseated for bribery and corruption by agents.

THE Montreal Herald commends the law reforms of Mr. Mowat in Ontario, and asks for similar reforms in that Province.

THE Telegram rises to remark that England has spent ten millions sterling in the Zulu war, and all she has got for it is the privilege of making Cetewayo wear a plug hat.

Dundas Banner: The farmers who were promised protection for their corn will be disgusted to learn that His Excellency, on the advice of the Privy Council, has been pleased to order that a special drawback be allowed of duty paid for each bushel of corn, the product of which in starch is shown to have been exported. And thus it is that the poor farmer is kicked and cuffed by the Tory Government after he was gulled into voting for protection.

The Tay Bridge Disaster.

The Thrilling Story of an Eye-Witness.

By the last Scotch mail we have details of the terrible accident at the Tay Bridge:—

STORY OF AN EYE-WITNESS.

The following narrative is furnished by an eye-witness of the calamity: "Enjoying the cozy comforts of my own parlor fireside on Sunday night, I lestened to the fierce clamor of the storm without and felt a deep sense of gratitude for the security I possessed, mingled with a feeling of compassion for the poor sailor on the sea battling with the storm. The children had gathered round me for their usual Bible stories, and with an instinctive sense of fear they nestled close to my side as they heard the wild efforts of the blast to batter in the casement of the window. I chose the story of St. Paul's shipwreck on the Island of Melita, thinking that the storm without might help me to impress upon their young minds the terrible nature of the dangers to which the Apostle was exposed as the ship lay riding helplessly upon the waves with four anchors between it and certain destruction. While thus engaged a blast of wind more furious than before had caught the chimney tops of a house almost opposite my parlor windows and brought them down to the ground with a thundering crash that startled every one of us to our feet. Stepping over to the casement I gazed out upon the street, and just then a blaze of moonlight lighted up the broad expanse of the Tay down below, and the long white sinuous line of the Tay Bridge came into view. I looked at my watch and saw it was exactly seven o'clock. "The Edinburgh train will be due immediately," I exclaimed to my wife; "come and let us watch to see if it will attempt to cross on such a night." So saying, we turned down the gas in the parlor and prepared to await the appearance of the train. The light by this time had become most fitful. Great masses of clouds were sweeping across the expanse of the heavens, at times totally obscuring the light of the full moon. "There she comes,' cried one of the children, and at that moment the slowly moving lights of the Edinburgh train could be distinctly seen rounding the curve at Wormit, and, passing the signal box at the south side, entering upon the long straight line of that portion of the bridge. The train once on the bridge seemed to move along with greater swiftness, and, when the engine entered the tunnel-like cloisters of the great girders, my little girl exactly described the effect of the lights as seen through the lattice work, when she exclaimec, "Look, papa, isn't that like light, ning?" All this takes some time to write down, but to the eye it seemed as if almost simultaneous with the entrance of the train upon the bridge, a cometlike burst of fiery sparks sprang out as if forcibly ejected into the darkness from the engine. In a long visible trail the streak of fire was seen till quenched in the water below. Then there was absolute darkness on the bridge.

OVER THE BRIDGE.

A silence fell upon our eager group at the window. Then, with stunning force, the idea broke upon my mind. "Heavens!" I cried, "I fear the train is over the bridge!" With a growing horror I watched the curve at the north side to try if I could see the train pass that point; but, as several minutes passed and no moving object broke the continuity of the bridge at that point, I snatched up my hat and hurried down and across the Magdalen Green, to meet several individuals all bent upon the same errand as myself. The terrific nature of the gale at this time may be inferred from the fact that, descending the slope of the green, I had to crouch down upon the grass to prevent my being blown bodily away. It seemed as if the wind had become a solid compelling power. One gentleman was blown against another on the green, and both tumbled together. The massive signal-post beside the signal-box on the north end of the bridge was bent by the wind like a willow wand, and on entering upon the esplanade the sand and pebbles were dashing about with such force that the hands and face were positively sore with the violence of the impact. My hands, held behind my back for a minute, were completely filled with the drifting sand and pebbles. Looking towards the river nothing clearly could be made out. The water from the broken Newport water pipe on the bridge was pouring into the river and, being caught in its descent by the wind, was lashed in a misty spray that helped to veil the gap that had by this time been made in the iron highway. A number of gentlemen having now collected below the bridge on the esplanade, one of them climbed up into the signal-box above, and there learned from the man stationed less than a mile from the scene of the great catastrophe that he knew nothing more of what had happened than that the train signalled to him as having entered upon the bridge fully fifteen minutes before had never reached his station, and that all telegraphic communication with the other side had ceased. What had in reality happened the public know now as well as they will ever be likely to know. An entire train, with its living freight, had been swept into the bosom of the Tay. The rest was left to the imagination. In the clear sunlight of the morning I have again visited the spot, but so calmly was the river then rolling onward toward the sea that, save for the incontestable evidence of the great gap in midriver, it was difficult to think that the significant scene of last night was other than a horrid nightmare.

THE SCENE IN DUNDEE.

The sensation produced by this sad event over the whole of Scotland has been immense. The pride which the people of Scotland have in their Tay Bridge has led large numbers to visit it and cross it since its opening in 1877, and there are a few families whose sense of the gravity of the accident is not rendered more vivid by familiarity with the scene, and the power with which personal reminiscence assists imagination to realize the awful event, in Dundee, of course, the excitement reached a painful climax. As for the agony of the parents and friends who waited the arrival of the train on Sunday night, who could describe it? "True sorrow," said Balzac, "is difficult to describe, it requires so much simplicity." In this case neither the simplest phrase nor the whole host of intensifying adjectives would adequately portray it. It is revealed to the people of Dundee by their own keen sympathies, and in like manner it will be gauged by all those who read the harrowing tale and the too simple facts. From an English point of view such a catastrophe at such a moment seemed to come at the close of a joyous season as if in mockery of recent holiday mirth. In Scotland, where New Year's Day is the popular festival, it mocked festivity in advance and cast a dread shadow between the people and pleasures still in preparation. It was a sad New Year's Day week in Dundee. One of the unfortunate passengers, George Johnstone, was the only son of the park-keeper on the St. Fort estate. He was engaged to be married, and his betrothed went down with him. In the Tay Bridge station there were not a few heart-rending scenes. A son trembling from excitement told of his lost mother, Mrs. Meldrum. One lad bewailed the loss of his comrade, Joseph Anderson, a printer in the Courier office. There too were the weeping parents of William Veitch, an only son, who had gone to visit his grandparents in Cnyar. Several remarkable escapes are recorded. Two gentlemen who had intended to travel by the train from Edinburgh were prevented by circumstances which detained them till they were too late. A Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who had been in Edinburgh from Dundee on a wedding tour, were to have returned home on Sunday afternoon. They were, however, pressed at a small party to remain, and at the last moment, chiefly on account of the boisterous weather, they were reluctantly persuaded to postpone their return for a day.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, JAN. 15.

Several petitions were presented, and five bills introduced.

Mr. Fraser moved for a Committee to enquire into the subject of the frequent accidents, in many instances with loss of life, to brakemen and others employed on railways, and the means by which dangers of this perilous avocation may be diminished; with power to send for persons and papers, and to report by Bill or otherwise; the said Committee to consist of Messrs. Bell, Boulter, Cook, Fraser, Gibson (Hamilton), Harcourt, Hay, Lees, McLaughlin, Peck, Parkhill, Ross, Wells, White, and Young. Several difficulties presented themselves in connection with this subject. It was doubtful whether this House could control any but Provincial railways. The Dominion Parliament had authority to make any Provincial railway a Dominion railway, and then they passed from under our control, He was inclined to the opinion, however, that they might indirectly reach the desired end. But there were other difficulties, arising partly from our position as a Province, partly from our climate, and partly from the way our railways are worked. The cars of American railways frequently passed over our lines, and it would be impossible, by our legislation, to reach these without materially interfering with traffic.

Mr. Morris expressed satisfaction at the course suggested by the Minister of Public Works in this question. He believed the Government were acting wisely in moving for the appointment of this Committee, and he trusted that the question would be thoroughly examined.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Badgerow asked when the return to the Address of this House, passed on the second of February, 1877, relative to the value of the present site of the Parliamentary buildings and grounds, and the probable cost of new buildings in the University Park, will be laid before the House.

Mr. Mowat stated that it was the intention of the Government to submit this and a good deal more information upon the same subject in asking the House to decide upon the question of the erection of new Parliament Buildings.

Mr. Wigle moved for Orders in Council and correspondence relating to the dismissal or resignation of Mr. Johnston, Principal of the School of Agriculture, and to the appointment of his successor. He said his object was to learn whether Mr. Johnston was dismissed or had resigned.

Mr. Mowat said Mr. Johnston had not been dismissed, but had resigned in spite of their strongly expressed desire that he should remain, his intention being to enter another profession. So far from being incompetent he had shown himself to be extremely well fitted for his office, and the Province was very much indebted to him for the high position the Agricultural College now occupied. His resignation and the appointment of his successor being verbal, there was no correspondence.

The motion was therefore withdrawn.

After some other unimportant business the House adjourned.

CHAPTER XIX.

SECRET ENEMIES—RUBEN LANGTON AND HIS FATHER PLOT TOGETHER AGAINST ORWELL BRUCE—A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP AT CAIRNTREE.

Alas! their success had only been too great. It was on the English turf that Reuben Langton succeeded in first getting Orwell embarked in the gambler's career. At the outset, and until the first feeling of the fatal passion was aroused, the tempter took care that the stakes should be small and unimportant. He also contrived that Orwell should win as often as he lost. Thus the eager absorbing excitement was produced, the feverish eagerness to go on and on in the hope of winning—first from the mere pleasure of winning, but by-and-by from the keen desire to regain what had been lost. Then the play grew deeper, for cards and dice were added to betting on the race course, Reuben Langton all the while making it appear to Orwell that he thoroughly disapproved of his gambling practices, yet artfully putting temptation in his way. So soon as he saw his dupe was ready for operations on a larger scale he had him away to Continental gambling saloons, were thousands are lost in a night, and there Orwell abandoned himself to the hateful vice so far as to risk and lose not only the proceeds of his rent roll, which he drew from his bankers, but the money which belonged to May under his father's will, and of which by the same will he had been made custodier when he reached his majority. Mr. Bruce made a grievous mistake when he inserted this provision in his settlement. Had Mr. Bishop's trusteeship continued by the constitution of the will until May came of age or was married much dreadful mischief would have been prevented. Unfortunately Mr. Bruce followed his own counsel, and gave Orwell full control of his sister's fortune as well as of his own; having, no doubt, entire confidence in his son's honour and integrity, which confidence the issue would have fully justified if cunning and deceit had not been used to make a breach in the citadel of the youth's naturally noble nature, and caused him to betray the trust—the sacred trust—which had been committed to his fraternal care.

Orwell did not follow the downward course without many compunctious feelings, many cheeks of conscience, and many sharp pangs of remorse, which had he been left to himself, might have rescued him from the abyss to which he was gliding. But Reuben Langton was always at hand to administer an opiate, and with consummate skill and subtle influence soothe his troubled heart, and put him in the way of further temptation. As yet Orwell's heart was wholly uncorrupted, and his principles intact. Even the passion of gambling had not become self-feeding in his nature; he did not spontaneously seek the gaming table; he was lured thither, and even then it was only by slow degrees that the passion was inflamed into fierce action. Apart from this he was sound, even on the surface of his nature, and actually so at the core, so far as an unrenewed son of Adam could be sound and uncorrupted. In his hours of reflection too he despised the habit to which he so freely yielded, and found lessening pleasure in the excitement of the game. Thoughts of Agnes Borland and of his love for her were exerting a stronger influence over him, and making his homeward visits more frequent. Even Reuben Langton's influence, though strenuously put forth was not strong enough to keep him on the Continent when a longing for her pure, enobling society came upon him, and the subtle plotter was obliged to indulge him with visits which were growing more alarmingly frequent. The loss of the last portion of May's dowry at Baden-Baden had so roused Orwell to a sense of the enormity of his wickedness that he resolved to return home at once, and reside permanently at the Grange, make Agnes his wife, and under her pure influence and the sweet joys of home, cast out for ever the demon that had crept into the outer courts of his soul, redeem the errors of the past, restore the money he had squandered, and live true to those high instincts which had not been lost, or even weakened, by the great lapses he had been tempted to make from the path of virtue.

Such were the feelings, hopes, and intentions with which Orwell Bruce had returned to the Grange a week ago. Reuben Langton had divined these with almost prophetic accuracy, and the sight he had beheld that afternoon in the Birch Dell had filled him with alarm lest his long pursued scheme was to be frustrated. For he had allowed his impure and unholy love to light on Agnes Borland; he had dared to look upon her beauty with a degrading passion; and believed that were Orwell Bruce and the bright visions he was offering removed from between them his vile suit would prosper. Degraded and debased in his own nature, he was incapable of understanding the character of such a pure being as Agnes Borland. In connection with Orwell Bruce he credited her with the meanest and most selfish motives—with vanity and ambition, with anything but the holy affection of which he knew nothing, which rises high above worldly aggrandisement, and is capable of making every sacrifice for the sake of the object of its regard. His one fear now was lest he should not be able to prevail on Orwell to take another tour abroad, and come again under his insidious and baneful influence. What he had that day seen, threatened a blow to his hopes which it made him furious to think he might be unable to avert. What satisfaction it would have given him had he known that the issue of that afternoon's meeting between Agnes and Orwell had been such as to favour the particular design he had in view in paying his present visit to the Grange, and to pave the way for his own and his father's ulterior projects.

After the return of the lovers from their momentous interview in the Birch Dell, Orwell, without waiting for dinner—what cared he for dinner in his present mental distraction?—ordered his horse to be saddled, and rode rapidly down the avenue on his way to Cairntree, whither he intended going to see Mr. Bishop, whom he greatly blamed for what had taken place—for the dashing of his fond hopes, the thwarting of the pleasant life-plan he had formed. He believed that if Agnes had been left entirely to herself she would not have refused to crown their love with union. He was therefore intensely irritated by an interference—which he attributed to the lawyer—so disastrous in its effect, and, as he considered, so uncalled for and unnecessary.

A rapid trot soon brought him to Cairntree, a fairish sized, thriving, market town, the centre of a large agricultural district, from which it chiefly derived its business and prosperity. It consisted of a main street, with the market square in the centre, a few narrow bye-streets, and in the outskirts a few good houses, surrounded by gardens, the comfortable residences of maiden ladies, retired officers, and professional men, such as the ministers, the doctors, and lawyers of the place. Mr. Bishop resided in one of these suburban villas, but as it was at the end of the town opposite to that by which Orwell entered, the youth resolved to call at his office, where perchance he might be found.

On market day Cairntree was a busy, animated place. As this was not market day, it presented a quiet, sleepy appearance. The shops were without customers; the shopkeepers lounged at their doors, doors, talking to each other; and in the silence the iron-shod hoofs of Orwell's horse made such a sound on the causeway that many people looked out, attracted by the unusual passage of a horseman along their High Street when it was not market day.

The large square in which Mr. Bishop's office was situated was dull and empty. Even the inn seemed deserted, but at the sound of the echoing steps on the stones an ostler came running out to take charge of the coming horse. Orwell, however, did not alight at the inn, but rode on to one of the better houses at the other side of the square, on the door of which was a brass plate with the inscription—"Mr. Bishop, solicitor." Here he pulled up, and from a boy who ran out to hold the bridle rein he received the information that the lawyer was within.

The appearance of young Mr. Bruce of the Grange before the office door of his factor was a circumstance so natural as to occasion neither surprise nor curiosity. A much greater sensation had been made among the inhabitants of the square about an hour previously by the entrance into the lawyer's office of two middle-aged ladies neatly dressed in semi mourning. There was nothing in the appearance of these ladies to draw special attention towards them. It arose simply from the fact that they were strangers in Cairntree, and the visit of two unknown ladies to a lawyer's office generally means something of importance. Who are they? where do they come from? what can they want with Mr. Bishop? were the questions which the neighbors eagerly asked at each other, but as no one of them had better information than the rest, answers to the questions were not forthcoming from any quarter. The moment Orwell entered the lawyer's office, Mr. Sands, the grocer, darted from his shop door to question the boy who held his horse about the ladies, who were still closeted with his master. But Mr. Sands and those in the distance who hoped to receive enlightenment from the grocer's strategic movement, were destined to be disappointed. Young Penwiper had no notion who the ladies were—never had seen them before, neither had the clerk Dobbs, who was Penwiper's senior by several years. As to what their business might be with Mr. Bishop, that was a matter not to be guessed at. All that could be learned was that they were with Mr. Bishop in his own inner room, the door of which had been shut all the time. So Mr. Sands had to retire discomfited, and the gossips who eagerly joined him, expecting that he had been told what they were so anxious to know, were made to share in his disappointment.

"Mr. Bishop is engaged just now sir," said Dobbs to Orwell, as the latter entered the outer office—a large oblong apartment lighted by three windows, and furnished with one huge double-sided desk.

"Will he be long engaged?" asked Orwell.

"Don't think it, sir. The ladies have been here for a good hour now, and it's likely they will be going soon,"

"Ladies?" observed the visitor in a tone of surprise.

"Yes, sir, two ladies. Don't know who they are——"

"Oh, it doesn't signify. I can wait till they are gone."

And Orwell swung himself into young Penwiper's high stool, which was on the opposite side of the desk from where Dobbs sat, and faced the door of Mr. Bishop's private apart. Mr. Dobbs would like to talk to such a grand gentleman, but as Orwell gave no token of a desire for conversation, he had to take his pen from behind his ear and resume work.

At the end of about a quarter of an hour the door of the inner quietly opened, and Mr. Bishop appeared, conducting forth his two lady visitors and with his usual calmness and deliberate self-possession.

Seated where he was, Orwell could not help seeing the ladies as they came out, but beyond noticing that they were respectable in appearance, and were somewhat good looking, he bestowed no special attention. That they were visitors of some importance he inferred from the fact that Mr. Bishop accompanied them to the street door and took leave of them in a very friendly manner.

"Sorry to have you waiting, Mr. Bruce," he said as he came briskly back. "You have not been here long, I hope."

"No, only a few minutes."

"Pray walk in. You can go, Dobbs. I shall not want you again this evening, and tell Penwiper he will get away so soon as Mr. Bruce takes his horse. Now, sir, step into my room, if you please."

"Who do you think those two ladies are?" asked the lawyer, when the door of the inner room was closed upon them.

"Haven't the least idea."

"They are the sisters of Paul Jones, whom you have heard so much about."

"What! the sea-pirate, who burned Whitehaven harbour and plundered the Earl of Selkirk's mansion?"

"Ah, there you go, Mr. Bruce—just like the rest of them—believing in a myth—shares of a prejudice. Paul Jones is no pirate, neither was he a mansion plunderer. True, his men insisted on despoiling the Earl's mansion of its silver plate sorely against their captain's wish, but he bought back the plate with his own money and sent it back to St. Mary's Isle, with a letter to the Countess apologising for the act of his men, and declaring his true position as a regular commissioned officer in the American navy."

"Did he really send back the plate asked Orwell incredulously.

"He did. The Earl publicly ackowledged receipt of it, and testified to the honourable conduct of Paul Jones in that and other matters."

"It is true he is a Scotchman then—a native of Kirkbean?—or is that a mistake also?"

"That is true, so far. He was born at Kirkbean, but left his family and the country when quite a boy. He has been for many years a naturalized American."

"You seem quite intimate with this man's history and doings," remarked Orwell, with a faint approach to a sneer, due to the irritation of mind he was at the moment enduring.

"I know more about his character and actions than ever I expected to do," returned Mr. Bishop. "As I said the two ladies who have just left me are his sisters, with whom he corresponds occasionally, and to whom he has once or twice sent money through me."

"You are acquainted with him then?

"No more than you are. It is quite explicable to me how he knew there was such a person in the world as your humble servant. But he wrote me some time ago from Paris, where he now resides, saying he had a little business to transact in connection with his relations in Galloway, which he hoped I would take in hand, as he had perfect confidence in me, though goodness only knows how he acquired it. He must have peculiar sources of information."

"Very likely; a man of his stamp must work largely through spies and secret channels of intelligence. However, to tell you the truth, Bishop, I am not in a mood to-day to be interested in Paul Jones or his sisters either. My own affairs are such as to claim all my attention and concern, and I have ridden down this evening about a matter in which I have reason to believe you have done me a grievous injury."

"I hope not, Orwell," returned the lawyer, gravely. "You know I am too sincerely anxious for your welfare to say or do anything that is not calculated to promote it. But wait a moment till I see if Dobbs is gone. He is a worthy fellow, Dobbs, but a little troubled with curiosity, and this probably a matter which cannot be kept too private."

Saying this in a low tone, Mr. Bishop went into the outer office to make sure that Dobbs had taken his departure. Finding this to be the case, and that young Penwiper was fully occupied in attending to the horse, he returned to the sanctum, and sitting down in his business chair calmly waited Orwell to speak.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. A REMARKABLE DECISION.—The following case, which will be interesting to smokers, we take from an exchange: "A rather remarkable decision was given in England a fortnight ago. An old man was charged by officers of the Inland Revenue with selling tobacco, in the shape of cigars, without a license. The defence was that cigars were not mentioned in the act of Parliament bearing upon the alleged offence, and that in fact the cigars were not made of tobacco but of bay and cabbage leaves. The magistrates decided to dismiss the charge, whereupon notice of appeal was given."

"Are the people honest?" inquires the New York Times. It is a little difficult to say; but we are quite certain they would be if Sir John Macdonald would only leave them alone.

It is made by a new and original process hrough which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial. J. E. SAXTON,

News Items.

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—The students of this Institution intend to give their annual entertainment in about a month.

THE bread question having been thoroughly ventilated, we do not think it would serve any good purpose to continue the discussion in our columns.

SABBATH TEMPERANCE MEETING.—The Rev. Mr. McGregor will address the meeting to-morrow afternoon, at a quarter past 4 o'clock, in the Hall on Macdonnel street, near the MERCURY office.

CHEAP CLOTHING.—The Lion has a great clearing sale of clothing, during which, besides great reduction in prices, acash discount of 20 per cent. is made. This affords an opportunity to buy clothing very cheap.

IT is understood that a tent of the Knights of the Maccabees is to be organised at Acton. The tent started here some time ago is in a prosperous condition.

MRS. ELGIE informed the Chief of Police this forenoon that she had lost her watch. On searching the watch was found on Wyndham street where she must have dropped it while getting out of her buggy.

AT the opening of the magnificent new English Church in Woodstock last Sunday, we learn from the Review-Sentinel that Miss Geddes, organist of St. George's Church in this city, presided at the organ at the evening service, and gave great satisfaction.

F. G. ALLENBY, of Galt, has issued a writ at the instance of John King, Berlin, claiming $5,000 and $30 costs, from Peter E. W. Moyer, of the Berlin News. The latter has decided that as he has not that amount to his credit in the bank, he will contest proceedings in court.

REV. R. BOYLE will preach in the Primitive Methodist Church, to-morrow morning and evening. Special collection in aid of the Circuit Fund. On Monday evennig following a tea social will be held, which Mr. Boyle will give his popular lecture, subject, "The Formation of Character."

THE REV. P. L. SPENCER, Missionary at Palmerston, has been appointed Incumbent of St. John's Church, Elora, and is now in residence there at the Rectory. Previous to his departure from Palmerston the parishioners presented him and Mrs. Spencer with a valuable piece of plate and a purse of money as a testimonial of their affection and esteem.

OPENING OF THE CREDIT VALLEY RAILWAY.—The Credit Valley Railway will be opened for general traffic all along the line on Monday, commencing at 8:45 a. m. Three express trains and one accommodation train will leave Toronto daily, and the same number will reach the city from the West. All trains depart from and arrive at the Queen street station.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—The Bishop of Algoma will give an account of the mission work among the Indians and white settlers in his wide spread diocese, to-morrow, in St. George's Church. The offertory will be devoted to the furtherance of mission work under his jurisdiction. He is a guest at the Rectory during his stay in town.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The regular fortnightly meeting of the Young Men's Association in connection with St. Andrew's Church, was held on Friday evening. There was a very fair attendance. The president, Rev. J. C. Smith, occupied the chair. After general business a few recitations were given by Messrs. W. Higinbotham and Gordon. It was afterwards arranged to hold the next lecture under the auspices of the Association in the church, on Friday evening, when Rev. W. Williams will lecture on "Wait and You'll See."

FRONTAGE TAX.—The City Council of London has decided to submit a by-law to the ratepayers with a view to selling the exhibition grounds in that city, and introducing a frontage tax system for building streets. It is proposed to tax the property benefitted according to its value. Improvements on streets already constructed will be paid by general taxation. Voting on the by-laws takes place on March 3rd, and will be open. Every one entitled to vote at the municipal elections will have an opportunity of voting on these questions.

THE GENERAL LICENSE LAW.—In almost any well regulated town or city in Ontario, there are By-laws compelling hawkers and peddlers, to pay a license before disposing of their wares. Not so in Guelph, where, judging from the frequency of their visits, these dealers manage to do a paying business. They are allowed to sell without a license. On the Market Square today, there were no less than three dusky individuals selling quack medicines and other articles, freely. It is a positive injustice to impose a license fee on auctioneers who resides here permanently and pay taxes to the city, while itinerant merchants of the the above class are allowed the privilege of selling without being licensed.

HOSPITAL DUTY.—Rev. Mr. Ball, will be the visiting clergyman at the General Hospital next week.

MECHANICS ASSEMBLY.—The Mechanics' Assembly will be held in St. George's Hall, on Friday the 30th inst.

DUBLIN STREET Choir are requested to meet in the church this evening, at 7.30, sharp.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Moderate to fresh winds, cloudy warm weather with rain areas.

FARM SOLD.—Mr. Hugh Black, has sold his farm, lot 20, con. 8, Puslinch, to Mr Allan McIntyre, of Aberfoyle.

THE CHIEF ENGINEER and fireman of Fire Brigade look out the engine yesterday afternoon to test it. The engine was found to be in satisfactory working order.

ZION CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.—A social will be held in this church on the evening of the 29th inst. Those present will enjoy a sleigh ride into the country, providing there is snow.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The pastor of this Church, was officiating to-day at the precommunion services in Galt. He will (D. V.) occupy his own pulpit to-morrow forenoon and evening.

CITY COUNCIL.—The last meeting of the present City Council will be held on Monday forenoon. The meeting will open at 9 o'clock, and is supposed to continue till eleven o'clock, when the Council for 1880 take their seats at the Board, and hold their first session.

THE MARKET.—There was a very fair attendance at the market to-day, and considerable quantities of farm produce were offered, considering the bad state of the roads. The only material change in prices are in those paid for hogs, the price having fallen to $5.75 and $6.10. The wheat business is very flat, scarcely a load being brought in.

THE GENERAL HOSPITAL.—It is claimed that the action the county took in allowing the managers of the General Hospital $1,000, for the admission of county patients to the institution was a sensible and economical one. Already it is said, the cost of medical attendance on county patients, alone, at the Hospital exceeds that amount. If the cost of supporting the patients was added to the amount it would reach a much higher figure.

THE Ottawa Police Magistrate gave a decision on the 10th inst., in the test case of Brewer vs. Huckell, involving the right of landlords' bailiffs to sell good seized, by puplic auction. The decision was in favor of the plaintiff, the magistrate giving it as his opinion that the landlords' bailiffs did not have the right to sell by public auction. A fine of $10, the heaviest allowable, was recorded with costs, bnt the magistrate stated that, as the case was a test one, he would only require the costs, to be paid.

SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT AT THE HOSPITAL.—Malcolm Johnston, aged 8 years, of Erin township, was brought to the General Hospital a few weeks ago for treatment. Some three years ago the lad's right arm was sevevely burned, and the wound became ulcerated while the sinews grew contracted, preventing the use of the arm. An operation was performed on the arm after the boy's arrival at the hospital, and so successful was it that the wounds have almost healed, and the patient has recovered the use of his arm.

THE APPOINTMENT F HIDE INSPECTOR.—The butchers are opposed to the appointment of a Hide Inspector in this city, as proposed by different buyers, to the Board of Trade. Some of them state that rather than subject their hides to inspection by such an officer, they will send them direct to Toronto for sale. A meeting of the butchers is to be held in the City Hall at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, to discuss the matter, with a view to taking steps against the proposed appointment.

GOWDY'S AGRICULTURAL WORKS.—As is already known to some of our readers, Alderman Thoms Gowdy, at the earnest solicitation of many of our citizens, has been induced to purchase the agricultural works of Messrs. Cossitt & Son in this city, one of the best if not the largest agricultural establishments of the kind in Ontario. On Monday morning work in the establishment will be resumed, and the factory thereafter run to its full capacity, giving employment to the many mechanics who for the past three months have been idle. The farmers of Ontario will be glad to learn that it is Mr. Gowdy's intention to manufacture none but the very best of modern agricultural implements, being determined to attain the first position as an argricultural implement manufacturer. Mr. Gowdy is enterprising, energetic, persevering and bound to make all enterprises in which he was a leading part, a perfect success. He will surround himself with an excellent staff of reliable agents, employ none but the best of workmen, using the best material, both in wood and iron, that money can purchase, and of his success there cannot be a possibility of doubt. We are also pleased to learn that Mr. Andrew Crosby, has been appointed general agent for the works throughout the country, who is a gentleman of the highest standing and responsibility.

$85,000 has already been subscribed towards the $150,000 asked last fall to wipe out the debt of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of Canada, and to extend the work. A number of places have not yet been heard from. $35,000 have already been received by the Treasurers.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

It is reported that a meeting has been arranged in London, of the representatives of all the revolutionary societies throughout Europe. It is stated that Germany and Russia have asked the British Government to prevent it.

The police escorting a party of process servers at Kilmina, County Mayo, were severely maltreated on Thursday night, and obliged to retreat, though they had rifles loaded and bayonets fixed. Several of the police were cut. The process servers' clothing were torn and the process captured by the mob.

Five thousand Mohammedans, who crossed the Cabul River near Dakha, have been completely defeated.

By a railway collision in South Lancashire three persons have been killed and twenty injured.

It is maintained that Russia, so far from making preparations for the war, actually reduced her army 36,000 below a peace footing in December, and further measures and a further reduction of the army are contemplated.

A Berlin despatch reports Bismarck more improved in health.

The Irish relief fund instituted by the Duchess of Marlborough now amounts to $95,000.

A Vienna correspondent says the worst Pesth mobs are composed entirely of labourers and roughs. The International Society is believed to be at the bottom of the mischief. All the newspapers denounce the authors of the tumult.

The four liquidators of the City of Glasgow Bank charge £37,248 as a year's compensation for their services, exclusive of legal expenses, £38,076, and salaries, travelling expenses, etc., £15,659. The liquidation seems to have developed more unblushing rascality and barefaced swindling of the luckless shareholders than the conduct of the concern itself.

BURNED TO DEATH.—A fire took place at Parkhill on Friday night, destroying the furniture store of S. Manning, a building occupied by a Mrs. Wilson, a store by Mrs. Munroe, and an empty store. A young man named William Grieves was burned to death in Manning's furniture store. The contents of the buildings were saved in every case, except in Manning's. The total loss is about $5,000, partially covered by insurance.

MILLS BURNED AT CULROSS.—The Muscow Mills, situated in Township of Culross, and owned by Mr. Andrew McLean, were destroyed by fire on Monday night last. They consisted of a saw and grist mill with two run of stones, and were insured for $5,000. There was a good gristing business done and the mill will be a loss to the neighborhood as well as a loss to Mr. McLean.

A VERY DIFFERENT MATTER.—Southern lord (staying at Highland Castle), "Thank you so much, I—ah—weally enjoy your music. I think of having a piper at my own place." Sandy the piper—"An' fat kin' o' a piper would your lordship be needin'?" Southern lord—"Oh, certainly a good piper like yourself, Sandy." Sandy (sniffing.) "Och! intect!—ye might eesily fin' a lord like your lordship, but it's nae sae easy to fin' a piper like me whatever!"

CLIFFORD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Clifford Horticultural Society was held in Featherston's hotel, Clifford, on the 8th inst. A fatal accident happened last Friday at Spring Hill Farm. Mr. Rivers had a threshing on that day and Michael, a son of Gotleib Polfuss, was assisting. He jumped up into a mow five or six feet above the level of the barn floor to throw a fork to those engaged with the straw. In jumping down on the floor again he came in contact with a broken rake handle. The head of the rake was among some chaff and was standing up in a slanting position. The break in the handle of the rake was long and slanting and this sharp point penetrated his abdomen. He did not appear to think he was much injured, and went on with his work but had to stop. He said he would go home and send his brother in his place. He walked to his home, a mile and a half distant, rapidly grew worse and died early the following morning. Two doctors were summoned but could do nothing to save his life. He was about 19 years of age.—Walkerton Herald.

Presentation to Mr. J. H. Osborne.

On Friday afternoon the employees of the Guelph sewing machine factory assembled in the tool room to pay a parting tribute to Mr. J. H. Osborne, who is about leaving the city to take up his residence in Chicago. He was presented with an address, read by Mr. G. Anderson, jr., and a handsome, watch was handed to the recipient by Mr. W. Shaw. The watch bore the following inscription:—"Presented to J. H. Osborne by the employees of the Guelph Sewing Machine Co., Guelph, 1880." The address read as follows:—

To John H. Osborne, Esq.:

DEAR SIR,—For many years you have been indentified with one of the large manufacturing establishments of Guelph, and have during that time made many warm friends and pleasant acquaintances. By your courtesy and obliging manner you have gained the good will and esteem of those with whom you came in contact. But by none are you more highly respected than by us the employees of the firm of which, until lately, you were a member. Although a long period has elapsed since we first met in our business relationship, there has not yet been the slightest jar in our intercourse, and we look back on the past years with no other feelings than those of gratification and pleasure. You have always been attentive to the wants and requirements of those under your authority. Ever ready to overlook errors and pardon faults which occurred, and willing at all times to assist in rectifying that which was wrong, it is not to be wondered at that you have endeared yourself to us all, and that in parting with you on this occasion we experience no ordinary feeling of regret. We sincerely trust that on your new sphere of life in one of the great centres of commercial enterprise you may long be spared to make yourself useful and that you may be prosperous and happy is the earnest wish of those whom you leave behind.

We would ask you to accept this watch as a token of our appreciation, and trust that you and your partner in life in the days to come will find as warm friends as those who are now surrounding you.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Guelph Sewing Machine Company.

WILLIAM SHAW,
ROBERT E. CONGALTON,
GEORGE ANDERSON, JR.

Guelph, January 16, 1880.

Mr. Osborne replied in feeling terms as follows:—

For me to say I thank you for this address and for this splendid present would but very poorly express what I feel. I always had great difficulty in finding language to express my feelings, and it seems to me that my difficulty in that direction was never greater than at the present moment. I hardly knew how from your broken wages for some time past you have been able to spare so much, as I am sure this watch has cost, but the fact that you have done so, is all the more evidence—if any were needed—that the feelings towards me which you have so well expressed in this address are genuine. I shall certainly prize it all the more highly, when I remember the circumstances under which it was given. And I may say here, that you could not have selected anything more acceptable, or that would fit the place better than this beautiful watch, which I shall always carry, and it will not only remind me that time is passing, but will often bring to my remembrance the kindly feelings and willing hearts of those with whom I have been so long associated in connection with the Guelph Sewing Machine Co.

I am thankful that I can endorse what you have said in your address. Although many of us have been for a long time together, there has not been any jaring nor unpleasantness of any kind, as a proof that we have been able to get along amicably together. I can paint to several of those around me who were among the very first men employed by the Company. You have kindly and patiently borne with all my faults and failings, and I may say, that I never expect again to be associated in any capacity with a better lot of workmen than those around me. I have always tried to consider your interests, and to advance them as far as I could under the circumstances and if at any time I may have done some things that did not seem so to you, you must remember there are always two sides which I have always been obliged to consider. I thank you heartily for all your kindness and forbearance. I thank you for the hearty co-operation and the willingness you have always shown to meet my wishes and assist me in every way. I wish for the proprietor, the employees and the business of the Guelph Sewing Machine Co., a future of prosperity and success. We shall meet no more in the relationship we have sustained to each other, we may none of us, when we do say good-bye, meet again here, but I trust you will all remember that there is another life, and although we may not meet again in this life it is possible that we may all meet in that better land. I thank you again for your splendid gift, and more than all for your kindly feeling towards me. May God bless you all.

In the evening the employees were invited to Mr. Osborne's residence where a pleasant evening was spent. The guests took advantage of their visit to present Mrs. Osborne with a beautiful silver pickle cruit, the presentation being made by Mr. G. Anderson, jr. Afterwards refreshments were provided, and the company after spending some time longer in social intercourse took their departure. Mr. Osborne leaves the city in a few days for his new home.

A great strike exists among the coal miners, extending through the Monongahala and Mahoning Valleys and along the Pan Handle, Balto & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads. The miners having demanded an advance, were ordered to stop work by the Miners Organization. New men being put at work in some of the mines, there will probably be the usual riots.

Shocking Accident.—An Old Woman Burned to Death.

NAPANEE, Jan. 17.—Last night about 8 o'clock people living in the vicinity of Samuel Hay's residence were shocked by seeing a woman on the street with her clothing in flames. An alarm was raised and several persons run to the rescue and succeeded in smothering the flames and removing the burning clothes from her body, but not before she was fatally burned. She died this morning at six o'clock. The accident was caused, it is supposed, by the upsetting or bursting of a coal oil lamp, as her clothes were saturated with oil and the table and other goods where the lamp stood were destroyed.

IMPROVED HORSES AND CATTLE.—It is a universally acknowledged fact that poor lean, and ill-conditioned horses and cattle are so proverbially unprofitable that the fact has grown with horse dealers into a proverb. The man, therefore, who applies himself to improve this state of affairs, to fatten the lean, to relieve the hide-bound and bring into marketable condition animals suitable for the tan yard, will have conferred a boon on dealers that must invariably draw out their honest gratitude. So effectually has this been done by some firms that scores of testimonials have rushed in unasked to Dick & Co., of Montreal, from men whose horses and cattle have been benefitted in some form by their medicines. Dick's Blood Purifier is sought for at every point by anxious dealers when a concoction of vile nostrums have been cruelly administered to the poor animals. The effect has been described as "electric," "extraordinary," "never saw anything like it." "Where did you get that stuff?" "I am going right off for a package." This is no exaggerated picture, but one of life, a true condition of affairs. Therefore, farmers, in your own interest don't postpone the day of your visit to the nearest drug store. Your horses want it, your cattle want it, you are losing your money hourly without it. If you want the Purifier, 50 cents is the price of a package. The Ointment Blister or Liniment costs only 25 cents each.

SATURDAY EV'G, JANUARY 17, 1880

The New City Council.

The City Council for 1880 will meet on Monday, when their duties for the year will commence. Every member, we hope, is well aware that the work of the Council this year, and the very responsible duties devolving on them, are of the most important character. The position that Guelph occupies this year is one of a peculiar nature, and in many respect calls for the serious consideration and well considered action of our representatives at the Council Board. We have every faith in the disinterestedness, the capability and earnestness of the members recently elected to so shape the year's legislation that it will redound to the best interests of the city, and start it on a new career of prosperity.

It is true we have had our drawbacks and disappointments, but these are not of such a character as to discourage us as regards the future, and the Council that now undertakes to manage our business can do much to inspire us with new hope, and open the way for the introduction of new enterprises. A wise and judicious system of encouragement of manufacturing enterprises, will, we feel assured, receive every countenance from the ratepayers of this city, but they must be of that character that will not conflict with, or enter into competition with any existing interprise in the city.

Another very important duty of the Council will be to watch with a jealous eye the various railway enterprises which may in a near or remote way effect our interests, and to use to the best of their ability their influence in so shaping legislation or any other movement as will giveus the most benefit of any changes contemplated, or of new schemes completed, as regards the railways which in any way affect our interests.

There is a general feeling in the city that some changes should be made in our market regulations, which while doing every justice to the buyor will keep an eye to the interests of the seller. We are satisfied the new Council will give its earnest attention to this work, and so arrange matters that all parties will be satisfied, and that our market will attain its old prestige. All it requires is the name, for in reality it is one of the best in the Province, and this winter has maintained its reputation against all competitors.

The consolidation of our debt will no doubt engage the serious attention of the Council, and any well considered scheme which has in view this object will we are sure meet with the approbation of the ratepayers. The initiatory steps have been already taken to obtain the sanction of the Legislature, and if the matter is properly laid before it, and a well matured scheme proposed, we have no doubt it will receive the sanction of the Government.

Changes in the Cabinet.

The anticipated changes in the Dominion Cabinet have been made. Hon. Mr. Masson retires as Minister of Militia, becoming President of the Council, and is succeeded by the Hon. Sir A. Campbell. Hon. John O'Connor is the new Postmaster General. The changes have evidently been made to influence the election in North Lanark, the Cornwall election not troubling the Government in the least, each of the candidates in that constituency having a mixed following. As regards this last shuffle it may be stated that the appointment of Hon. John O'Connor as Postmaster General is regarded by the IrishCatholics as adding insult to injury. First Mr. Langevin was the Postmaster-General, and he discharged every Reformer he possibly could, and crammed the Department with French Canadians. Next it passed through Sir Alex. Campbell's hands, and he finished the work. The Hon. Mr. O'Connor enters the Department, but he cannot find a vestage of patronage to dispense, and he has lost the opportunity of naming the appointee to the position of Clerk of the Privy Council.

SARNIA Observer:—It is seldom that a newly elected Legislature is called upon to discuss at its first session so many important public measures as were foreshadowed in the Speech at the opening of the Ontario Legislature. Ministers must have been hard at work since the elections preparing measures on the subjects referred to in the Speech. Should the programme laid down be carried through, this will be one of the most important sessions, so far as the public interests are concerned, that has been held since Confederation.

LONDON Advertiser: The "trouble in the choir" at Brantford brings into play a new element in theological discussion. If a burly organist can choke off all debate by simply turning on the most powerful stop of his instrument, it is evident that preachers who are not quite in accord with their choirs must resort to some measure in self-defence. A foghorn might answer the purpose, but it is unwieldy, and a Chinese gong seems incomplete. Till this problem shall have been solved the organist remains master of the situation.

AN Augusta despatch from a Democratic source states that evidence has been elicited by the Bribery Investigation Committee demonstrating that Blaine furnished the funds for corrupting the Legislature. The story is very doubtful.

KINGSTON News:—There was very little force in Mr. Meredith's argument against the erection of new Parliament buildings—that as connected with the existing rickety concern there are many historical and venerable associations, it should not be deserted. Necessity and not historical and venerable association is what is to be considered.

The North Ward School Six Years Ago.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Seeing that the discussion regarding the character of the North Ward School has assumed such large proportions, and as at the period particularly referred to, I taught there, under these circumstances a few words from me would not, I think, be deemed out of place.

In order to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion as to the standing of a school two questions would in my mind require to be answered. First. How stands it in regard to attendance? Second. Has the teacher been called upon to expel pupils?

Now, in answer to the first question, I have only to refer you to the school rolls of some six years back to show that the average attendance was very large, and I think the Inspector will bear me out when I say that numbers had to be refused admission on account of its being overcrowded from time to time.

In regard to expulsions, not one was permanently expelled, nor was the Board ever called upon to sustain the teacher in a single case, while in other schools in the town they were several times called upon to sustain the action of teachers It is true that at the time Mr. Tyler assumed the oversight of the schools, in a report submitted to the Board, the many shortcomings of the teacher were pointed out, but never once did he attempt to show that the school was bad, by the withdrawal of the children by their parents, but in that respect it stood as high as ever it did up to the time I resigned. Since that time I have made no special enquiries regarding it.

Yours &c.,
ALEX. ANDERSON.

Model Schools.

One of the most interesting sub-reports in the report of the Minister of Education, just submitted to the Ontario Legislature, is that on county model schools, the most recently adopted educational scheme. Mr. G. W. Ross, as Chairman of the sub-committee appointed to inspect the model schools, reports that the Committee had come to the following conclusions:

1. Universal satisfaction with the Model School scheme, and a generous appreciation of its success.
2. That the great want of young teachers is practice in teaching, more than literary culture.
3. That Principals, owing to the demands upon their time by their own regular work, are unable to give that attention to the supervision of the teachers in training which is desirable.
4. That the lengthening of the term would be an advantage.
5. That the appropriation from the County Councils should be a certainty.
6. That trustees are, in few instances, still alarmed lest the Model School should damage the Public Schools.
7. That the lecture course should not be extended.

Mr. R. C. McCorquodale, of Toronto, has written to Kingston asking the council for a bonus as inducement to start an iron manufactory in that city. It has been proved that there are valuable deposits of iron ore in the vicinity of Kingston, which is another inducement for the establishment of smelting works there.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 16.

Mr. Speaker announced the election of Mr. Wm. Jelly for the county of Dufferin.

The new member was at once introduced by Messrs. Meredith and Parkhill amid the cheers of the Opposition, and conducted to his seat.

Mr. Graham moved for an order of the House for a return showing the number of applications, since last session for loans which have been made under the Tile Drainage Act of 1878; also the amended Act of 1879; the municipalities by which such applications have been made; the sums actually paid out of the fund, and municipalities to which such payments have been made.

Mr. Lauder asked the mover to state how this measure was working in Western Ontario, as it had been a hobby of the hon. members.

Mr. Graham assured the hon. member that the Act had worked well during the past year in his county, and it was going to do still better in the future.

Mr. Gibson (Hamilton) moved for an Order of the House for a return for the years 1877, 1878, and 1879, showing for each License District in the Province the number of convictions under the Act respecting the sale of fermented or spirituous liquors, for:—(1) Selling without license, and (2) selling on Sunday or after seven o'clock on Saturday night, or during any other days or hours contrary to any statute in force in the Province or any by-law in force in any of such districts, showing also how many of the latter class have, subsequent to conviction, been re-licensed.

After some discussion the motion was carried.

Mr. Calvin moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the Municipal Law. He found much fault with the present system of equalizing township assessments, and proposed in his Bill that the Court for hearing appeals in respect to assessments should consist of one county judge, jointly with two other associate county judges of adjacent counties. He moved the second reading of the Bill, and asked the Government to refer it to a special Committee.

Mr. Mowat said the present law on this subject was only passed last session. There was a general feeling then that the county judge should not be the sole tribunal for hearing appeals from the County Council, and various suggestions were made as to the best tribunal. Whatever tribunal had been selected there would still have been dissatisfaction in some counties, and the committee who had charge of the matter did the best they could. It was thought the sheriff was as likely to be independent as any one else. It was only a short time since appeals could at all be made from the County Council. and he did not think it would be at all expedient, after only one year's experience of the present system, to make the change the hon. member suggested. It was necessary that the person hearing the appeals should know something more of the county than could a judge of a neighboring county. He must therefore oppose the second reading of this Bill.

Mr. Meredith suggested that as there were on the paper several Bills to amend the Municipal Act, this Bill should be allowed to formally pass its second reading and go to Committee with the others. There was no doubt some danger of the majority in County Councils imposing an injustice upon the minority, and the present law was not altogether unobjectionable.

Mr. Mowat agreed to allow the Bill to stand.

Book Publications.

The Christian Guardian, the organ of the Methodist Church of Canada, published at the Methodist Book Room, Toronto, and edited by Rev. E. H. Stewart, D. D., is the oldest and best religious weekly in Canada. It has completed its fiftieth year as a faithful witness for the truth. It has a record of which no one need be ashamed; and which should prompt its friends to do all in their power to give it a wider influence in the future. In its prospectus for 1880, the editor promises that there shall be no decline in the future:

"No pains will be spared to make the GUARDIAN for 1880 more instructive and attractive than it has ever been. Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario.

The Annual Convention of this Association will be held at London on the 18th, 19th and 20th of February, 1880, and the committee hope to make it both beneficial and interesting. In changing the place of meeting this year, the committee have been actuated by a desire to hold their convention in the most central place so as to make it accessible to dairymen throughout Ontario, inasmuch as it is their desire that all should have the benefit of the celebrated lectures and useful discussions that will form the attractive feature of this year's convention. As usual, eminent gentlemen from the United States and Canada have been employed at a large expense to be present, and there is no doubt but that in point of members and importance, this will exceed any former Convention Any parties wishing to attend and become members may obtain certificates by applying at once to the Secretary, Mr. J. C. Hegler, Ingersoll, which will entitle them, owing to special arrangements made with the leading railway companies, to tickets at one fare and a third the double journey. It is desirable that parties wishing to attend should apply to the Secretary, at once for certificates, so as to avoid confusion and delay, and it is earnestly hoped all dairymen will endeavor to attend.

THE ROVER OF THE SEAS:

—OR—

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XXI.

A LONG UNEXPLAINED ABSENCE—MR. BISHOP'S BASINESS—ANTHONY LANGTON'S DUPLICITY THROUGH THE VALLEY.

Weeks have passed away. The glorious beauty of summer with its radiant brightness has began to merge in the mellow and still richer hues of autumn fruitfulness. The yellow grain is waving in the fields ready for the sickle. The parterres of the garden are showing their greatest wealth of colour and sending forth their strongest fragrance. A purple glory is o'erspreading the mountains, and nature's annual maturity rests like a crown of life on the sunny landscape.

A month ago Orwell Bruce left the Grange, taking a more than usually affectionate leave of his sister, who clung to him with unwonted tenderness, and wept on his bosom at the moment of parting with greater vehemence than she had done on any previous occasion. Neither of them had a conscious understanding of the influence which prompted them to such special display of brotherly and sisterly love; perhaps it would have a meaning for both of them by-and-by, and be a solacing remembrance in after hours of weakness and sorrow.

The parting between Orwell and Agnes was quiet and outwardly undemonstrative, but intense feeling restrained itself under their external composure. The eyes with which they frankly gazed on each other spoke with the light of unconcealed love, and when they kissed each other and said farewell their lips trembled and their voices faltered, but no further signs of emotion were allowed to appear. The scene, however, was ineffacably imprinted on their memory, not to abide there so constantly and so vividly with Orwell as with Agnes, for the changing and exciting scenes into which he was about to plunge made it dim and intermittent, while she in the calm silence of her rural life had daily leisure to cherish its image in her heart, and dwell on it with sad abstraction as she wandered alone among the scenes of their companionship, where every object spoke to her of Orwell. She could proceed nowhere out of doors without being reminded of him. Every spot had its association connected with their long and happy intercourse. The woods, the glades, the uplands teemed with memories of the joyous past, with incidents of childish sports, with their youthful communings, and the sweeter and more tender intercourse of the more recent years. She could not escape from these recollections of the object of her hapless love even had she wished—but, truth to say, she had no desire to do so. It was perhaps unwise of her in the circumstances to feed her fancy with thoughts of one whom a cruel destiny had removed from her. She would best have consulted her own peace of mind by striving to banish Orwell fom her mental domain, but her act of self-sacrifice did not reach to this extent of deprivation. In obedience to the stern dictates of duty she had put the full cup of happiness from her lips, but some of the ingredients with which it had been mingled could be tasted by her without harm to anyone, and she saw no reason to deny herself that melancholy pleasure.

Had a morbid effect been produced on Agnes Borland by thus dwelling on the recollection of vanished joys, and the fruition of a love that could not be realised, the course she followed was to be deplored. On many natures this must have been the inevitable issue. But the inherent strength of her physical, mental, and moral constitution wholly averted this danger. Her meditative walks did not unfit her in any degree for the daily duties she had to discharge. They did not rob her of her cheerfulness, take the bloom from her cheek, the lustre from her eyes, or the strength from her limbs. She preserved her usual kindness and consideration to others, tended the invalid with unremitting attention, and suffered nothing either in health or spirits.

Before Orwell went away the deed of mortgage was executed, and Anthony Langton had received a power over the estate the extent of which Orwell himself did not at the time understand. Owing to the secrecy with which the mortgage was effected, the youth put himself into the hands of those who took full advantage of his ignorance, inexperience, and innocent trustfulness, introducing clauses into the deed which he did not take the trouble to read when he appended his signature to the document, yet which gave Anthony Langton the power to sell the estate if the mortgage was not paid off at any time he might choose to demand the money. In fact, Orwell Bruce had by the deed parted with his rights to an extent of which he had no conception.

Of course the existence of the document was not known to Mr. Bishop. Had he received any inkling of the matter, a most determined opposition would have been made to the selfish and unscrupulous scheme of the money lender. But Anthony Langton took particular pains to keep the matter concealed from the lawyer's knowledge, and as Orwell was himself anxious to hold Mr. Bishop in profound ignorance regarding it, the desired secresy was easily effected. It was a Glasgow writer who drew out the deed, a lawyer who had done a great deal of professional work for Anthony Langton, who was well acquainted with his sharp exactions, and made no particular inquiries as to the circumstances of the present transaction, though its magnitude and the large issue of the stake might well have caused him to think it of an extraordinary character.

With unsuspicious alacrity Orwell put his signature to the important paper, and when in return he received the sum which enabled him to replace his sister's money, which he had squandered, his face assumed and expression of deepest satisfaction.

"There," he exclaimed, "that takes a heavy weight from mind. Let come what will, May's inheritance is intact; and I must economise, Mr. Langton, to pay you back the cash from the rents."

"Oh, don't trouble yourself about that, Mr. Bruce," returned the wily lender. "I am only too happy to have been of service to you."

It did not suit him to remind Orwell that there was no chance of the mortgage being redeemed from the rents, that it would require within a fraction of these rents to pay the interest specified in the bond, and that in point of fact the youth would have little or no income on which to live. These stern facts were carefully kept in the background, though Orwell might have been awakened to their existence by learning as he did that the deed stipulated that his bankers, to whom Mr. Bishop paid the rents as he collected them, must pay the interest of the bond ere making any advances to himself. Had he taken the trouble to compute the free produce of the estate after all necessary charges were defrayed, and struck a balance between that and the amount of interest he had bound himself to pay, he would have been dismayed to find how inadequate the remainder was to meet his own necessities. But, with the heedlessness of a man who had been used to trust all these matters to others, Orwell never allowed his mind to encounter them, but went away under the delusion that he had rectified the evil of his past indiscretions, and resolved that he would not fall again into such courses of extravagant dissipation.

Alas! he had at his elbow the tempter who, with cunning wiles, had lured him into the former abyss, and whose object it was to sink him hopelessly in its depths.

Autumn came and went. The wintry winds stripped the woods, and howled fiercely over the bleak landscape. With the short and dark December days came a heavy snow storm, shrouding the fields in white, shutting up the by-paths, silencing the streams under a seal of ice, and causing a cessation of all outdoor labour. Often had May wondered that Orwell had stayed away so long, and still more that he had not written to her. He had never been absent for such a lengthened period, and on no former occasion had he neglected to send brief notes informing her of his whereabouts, and giving an address to which to write to him. But since that day in the latter end of July, when he and Reuben Langton had departed together, no tidings of him had come to the Grange, and they knew not whether he was in England, on the Continent or still farther away. Anthony Langton professed to be equally ignorant of the young men's movements, and loudly rated them for their remissness in holding correspondence with home. He conjectured that they must be travelling among the Alps beholding the grandeur and simplicity of nature in that region of mountain glacier and eternal snow; or perhaps they had gone farther, to Norway, where the means of communication were scanty; or even to Palestine, to view the sacred spots which have a strong fascination for all devout souls. The wide deserts of Arabia might be accountable for their long absence and unbroken silence; in fact, there might be a thousand natural reasons why they had not returned or sent home letters, and Miss May must not fret or become impatient.

Such were the kind, encouraging messages sent from Cairntree, and if they did not satisfy May, they allayed her anxiety. To Miss Elliot and Agnes Borland, Orwell's protracted absence was no surprise; knowing what they did, they hardly looked for the youth to come back before a considerable period had elapsed—till months of separation had deadened the wound of his disappointment, and made residence at the Grange bearable. But they were both surprised and grieved at the non-arrival of letters from him. It could be no sacrifice of his feelings to write to his sister to keep her informed of the course of his travells and send interesting accounts of the strange lands he visited. Many an hour of anxious conference the two had on this subject when their sleeping charge left them at liberty to indulge in private conversation. But beyond the exchange of thoughts which could not be proved, and conjectures which could not be verified, these dual conversations were productive of nothing.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

Bethel C. M. Church, 2nd Con. Arran, was dedicated on the 20th ult. At a meeting held the cost incurred in the erection of the church had been promised in subscriptions varying from $4 to $150.

Mr. John Collie, son of Mr. Joseph Collie, of Egmondville, has purchased the Paisley Advocate, and left on Wednesday for his new field of labour. Mr. Collie is a graduate of the Expositor office, and for the past three years has been connected with the Galt Reformer.

The Waterloo Chronicle says: We are informed, on authority we have reason to believe, that the account published by us some two weeks ago, relative to the restoration of moneys stolen from the Treasures of Wellesley by the instrumentality of the Confessional, was at least premature. We regret to learn that Mr. Starr has not yet recovered the money.

An old bruiser named Burke, working in a Philadelphia chair shop, being a great lover of Shakspeare, used, when drunk, to spout the bardisms of the immortal bard, generally taking the apprentice boy, killing him with a paint brush, and reciting Marc Antony's speech over the dead Cæsar. The boy thus came to like Shakspeare, and grew up to the stage as John McCullough, one of the finest Shaksperean actors that has visited Canada.

In his astronomical lecture in Toronto on Monday evening, Professor Proctor, the celebrated English astronomer, estimated that more than 100,000,000 of years had elapsed during which the frame of the earth was as it is at present. In the course of that time a process of evolution bringing the earth to its present stage was in progress; that the period of the earth's cooling process must have been at least 300,000,000 years; and that 100,000,000 of years must have elapsed in changing the earth from the vaporous to its solid condition;—thus, he pointed out, requiring 500,000,000 of years to make the earth a fit place for the habitation of human beings.

A Christmas experiment — Mistress:—"Why, whatever is that smell, Jane?" Jane:—"Please, m'm, the brandy got spilted, and I—I done my best with the puddin; but I'm afraid it don't flare nice with paraffin!"

MESSRS O'DONNELL & Co.

THE PUBLIC WILL BE PLEASED to hear that the above firm, on Wednesday, November 5th, will open out a fine stock of fresh Teas, Coffees, Sugars, &c., in their new store, on Upper Wyndham Street opposite Ellis' American Hotel.

As they had a large stock of Teas purchased before the last rise in prices, they will be able to give bargains that cannot be got elsewhere.

Owning to their great experience in this special line there is no doubt but they will monopolize a large portion of the tea trade of Guelph.

SMOKERS,

I will unhesitatingly guarantee my

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process through which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency). All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial.

The Failures for 1879.

The annual compilation of statistics, showing the number of failures that have occurred throughout the United States and the Dominion of Canada during the past year, has just been issued by Dun, Wiman, & Co. For the purpose of comparison the figures are given for the preceding five years as follows :—

CANADA.

	No. of Failures.	Am't of Liabilities.
1874	966	$ 7,696,765
1875	1,968	28,943,967
1876	1,728	25,517,991
1877	1,892	25,523,903
1878	1,697	23,908,677
1879	1,902	29,347,937

The number in business in Canada during the past year was 55,964, and in the United States, 702,157.

The statistics, while showing a marked improvement in the mercantile business of the United States show just the opposite as regards Canada. There the failures in 1878 were 10,478, with liabilities of $234,383,132; and in 1879 only 6,658 in number, and $98,149,053 in amount. Here the number of failures in 1878 was 1,697 as compared with 1,902 in 1879, and the liabilities in 1878 only $23,908,677 as compared with $29,347,937 in 1879. The average liabilities in Canada in 1878 was $14,088, and in 1879 $15,430.

The climax of the depression in Canada appeared to have been reached in 1875, for, as the statistics show, there was a steady decrease in the amount of liabilities from that year down to 1878, indicating that the country was slowly but surely recovering from the effects of the commercial disaster which overtook it in the fall of 1873. But in 1879 it experienced a sudden and an alarming relapse. The amount of the liabilities is found to exceed that of any previous year since 1873, while the number of failures is greater than for any year excepting 1875

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

For the young and aged, and the infirm, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

THE GRANGERS AND LEGISLATION.—At the session of the Executive Committee of the Dominion Grange the other day a petition was drawn up praying for amendments to the Act of incorporation, which the Secretary was instructed to transmit to the Dominion Parliament, accompanied by a bill containing the proposed amendments. The principal change will be a clause granting the Dominion Grange power to establish Provincial Granges. A petition to the Ontario Assembly was also drafted asking that the imposition of market fees on farmers produce in cities, towns and villages be abolished.

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THESCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundredth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease, the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. MONDAY EV'G, JANUARY 19, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The chief editor of a Nihilist newspaper has been arrested at St. Petersburg.

Masonic emblems have been discovered in the foundation of the obelisk at Alexandria, now in process of removal to the United States.

Fears are entertained of serious riots at Buda-Pesth should the results of the recent duel between a member of the aristocracy and a journalist prove fatal. A large number of foreign workmen who took part in the recent riots have been arrested.

A Berlin correspondent states upon the highest authority that news has been received from Persia announcing the second defeat of the Russians by the Turcomans. The Russians were compelled to evacuate Tchikislar and take refuge in their ships. The story is regarded as sensational.

People believe that the prospects of Germany attacking Russia is daily increasing.

Calcraft, the hangman, left his autobiography in manuscript, and it is to be published forthwith. It purports to give an account of all the executions at which this great man assisted during his fifty years of office—a cupful of horrors which ought surely to satisfy the most morbid readers of the Newgate calendar class of literature.

The Brussels European says that the conclusion of a concordat between Germany and the Vatican is near at hand, and that several obnoxious enactments of the Falk Laws will be suppressed.

Explosion on Board a Steamship.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—When the passengers of the steamship Greece, from London, were leaving the vessel yesterday afternoon, a terrific explosion occurred and a column of fire and smoke shot up from the hatchway, setting fire to the rigging. The fire was soon extinguished and it was discovered that two longshoremen had been instantly killed. Several others were terribly mutilated and burned. The explosion is believed to have been due to coal gas generated in the hold during the voyage. The dead are Michael Walsh and Patrick Dunn. Walsh was blown through the timbers fifty feet into the air, and the clothing torn from his body. Dunn was blown thirty feet through the hatchway and fell on the bridge, his clothing being set on fire.

The Agitation in Ireland.

A woman has died of starvation in Kilkenny. There is a large influx of tramps in Kilkenny from the distressed district, and in consequence of the insufficiency of police frequent burglaries are being committed.

The Viceroy of Ireland, the Duke of Marlborough, announces a plan of giving relief to the distressed districts by means of loans to landlords on liberal terms through the Board of Works. Money is to be spent in carrying out works of public utility, and which shall be completed in six months time. A quarter of million dollars has already been loaned on this plan.

Irish questions absorb deep attention, and that of the famine more than all else. Cases of actual starvation are reported in the papers day after day, proving that the distress threatens to become equally fatal as the famine in Silesia. In Dublin, Sligo, and Mayo large crowds are seen daily marching through the streets carrying black flags and poles surmounted by loaves of bread. Canon MacDermott says that in Mayo there are seven or eight thousand people actually without food or fuel. In Galway the labourers refuse work at the rate of two shillings or eighteen pence a day.

Mr. Vennor Tries it Again.

A WINTRY FEBRUARY AND MARCH PREDICTED.

In a letter to the Witness on Saturday, Mr. Vennor says:—

"The peculiar nature and short duration of the "dip" on the night of the 10th and morning of the 11th days, gives one a further insight into the probable behaviour of the weather for the remainder of this month and for February, and strengthens my former impression respecting the severe and wintry character of the latter month. I see, then, clearly, we are yet to have some remarkably mild and slushy, possibly rainy, weather between now and the end of the month, over a great extent of country. That this, however, will probably be interrupted by a cold term and "dip" on the 19th, 20th, 21st or 20th, 21st and 22nd days, the severity of which may be greater or less but decided enough to be noted; and that this term will terminate in a fair snow-fall and mildness again. I think that the end of the month will, with the exception of one day's "dip" be mild again, and that February will enter in the same manner. After the entry of February I bid adieu to mildness and slush for a season. Possibly the first week of this month may continue moderate, but it is probable that either the 4th or 8th day will see the mercury settling down to the uncomfortable points I have alluded to, and for the second time this winter registering a series of very "low readings." This dip will moderate in some heavy snow falls, and the month will give us more snow than we have yet had this winter. A second dip is probable farther on in the same month, also severe, but this I cannot locate precisely from my present standpoint. March bids fair to give the heaviest snow falls of the winter of 1880, but these will not delay the early arrival of spring.

News Items.

PARLOR SOCIAL.—A parlor social will be given in the Good Templars' Hall on Friday evening.

COUNTY COUNCIL.—The County Council for 1880 hold their first meeting to-morrow.

REV. MR. BOYLE, of Brampton, as announced, preached two very acceptable sermons in the Primitive Methodist Church, in this city, yesterday. This evening, the same gentleman will deliver his celebrated lecture on "Formation of Character." There will be a social tea provided, and the admission fee to the tea and lecture is placed at fifteen cents.

INDIAN CONCERT.—A Indian concert troupe of singers of the Mohawk and Chippewa tribes, from the New Credit Grand River reservation, will give a concert in St. George's Hall to-morrow evening. The Indians will appear in full national costume. The proceeds are to be denoted towards the organ fund of the New Credit Mission Church.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.—Jas. Lynch, a brakeman on the G. T. Railway, was fined $2 and costs at the Police Court to-day for being drunk and disorderly. Yesterday afternoon while in company with some young men, Lynch shoved a man named Bacchus, who was coming from the Y. M. C. A. rooms, off the side walk. His action was observed by one of the policemen who arrested him.

CREDIT VALLEY RAILWAY.—As the train on the Credit Valley Railway moved off from Leslie's Corners, Puslinch, on Saturday morning the residents in that locality were aroused from their slumbers by the explosion of fog signals and the unfamiliar sound in those parts of the steam whistle. Regular trains through from Toronto to Ingersoll commenced running on Saturday evening.

NARRO ESCAPE.—While two lads, whose names could not be learned, were crossing the river near the Eramosa Bridge this (Monday) morning, one of them went through a hole in the ice into the water. His companion grasped him by the hair and held his head above water till Mr Robinson, employed at Caleb Chase's waggon shop, and who saw the accident, came to his assistance. The boy was removed from the water, being pretty much frightened. The ducking may serve to prevent him crossing the river in future when the ice is rotten as it is at present.

ROWDYISM.—Last evening a number of young men must have imagined they held possession of the city. For a time they wandered about the streets shouting and yelling and jostling against every person they met. Such conduct is disgraceful at any time, but more so on a Sunday. One of the number was arrested and fined at the Police Court to-day. If others were similarly dealt with they might understand that though they are privileged in being allowed to live in a civilized community they have to comply with the laws of civilized people.

PAPER CHASE AT THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—The first paper chase of the season, came off on Saturday morning. The hares started from home at 8.30 a. m. They were allowed ten minutes law. After a long and exciting run of two hours, in which fifteen miles or more were covered the hares (Messrs. Joyce and McClelland) were sighted about three quarters of a mile from home, to which place they at once headed when seen. After a killing run across ploughed fields, they reached their goal, closely followed by the leading hounds, who came in in the following order:—1st, C. S. Dickinson, who was close on the hares; 2nd, K. Chapman, about fifty yards behind; 3rd, J. Fenton, twenty yards behind him, closely followed by W. R. Jarvis, the remainder bringing up the rear. The track was laid through the heaviest land in the neighbourhood. We understand that there will be a run of this kind every Saturday, wind and weather permitting.

GUELPH'S MUSICAL FAME.—We find the following in the Musical and Dramatic Times of New York on the late concert in the Dublin street church:—Guelph is a brand-new city, christened only recently the Royal City. The said Royal boasts of some very handsome churches, in one of which the "great organist, Mr. E. Fisher," was to hold forth. The choir numbered about thirty-five voices, pretty evenly balanced, assisted by first and second violins, cornet, horn, and saxaphone, which latter instrument told well in the choruses. The chorus from "Samson," of the three on the programme, went the best, and was quite an undertaking for an amateur choir. The instrumental part of the programme was brilliantly performed. Mr. Fisher, the organist from Toronto, is first-class. His rendering of the classical portions were good, although he does not play his fugues as fast as some of our American organists. He was repeatedly recalled, and the large audience expressed their pleasure in a very hearty manner. Mr. Philp, the organist of the church, is well known in Western Ontario as a painstaking and clever musician. I was considerably disappointed in not hearing him more on the organ. It is gratifying to all lovers of good music to note of late years the number of first-class organists imported to this country.

The manufacturers of axes in Belleville, St. Catharines, Galt and Dundas, met on Wednesday, in Toronto, to arrive at a basis of prices for next season's business, and there is every likelihood of an advance.

The Gow Cup.

A meeting of the Managing Committee of the Guelph Curling Club was held on Saturday night for the purpose of completing the drawing of names for the first competition for the above cup. The following is the result:—

Jas. Ryan vs.	George Anderson, Jr.
Dr. McGuire,	J. H. Finlay.
T. Y. Greet,	Wm. Brown.
Jas. Mayes.	C. A. Post.
Thos Dobbie,	Wm. Ruth
N. P. Todd,	John Spalding.
Chas Spalding,	James Philip.
R. Fife,	R Macgregor.
W. C. Cubitt	Wm. Heffernan.
Chas Leonard,	Wm. Day.

It was decided to hold a full meeting of the club on Tuesday evening in Mr. Chas. Davidson's office, Day's Block, to take into consideration the acceptance of challenges from other clubs and the transaction of other business.

WEATHER PROBS.—Cloudy to partly cloudy weather, with light rain in some localities followed by cooler weather.

MECHANICS' BANK.—Our telegraph despatch on Saturday made us fall into an error in regard to this bank. In referring to an offer that the Mechanics Bank had made to effect a compromise with their creditors, it was put Merchants Bank. We are happy to say that the Merchants Bank is all right, and doing a good business.

AGENCY BUSINESS.—We direct attention to the card of Capt. Jas. S. Spiers, who has resumed business as a general and insurance agent and conveyancer in his new office over Smith's drug store. We commend Mr. Spiers to the attention of the public, and feel assured he will endeavor to give all satisfaction who do business with him.

G. C. T. CLUB.—At yesterday's meeting the Rev. D. MacGregor, M. A., expressed his pleasure at being present for the first time to advocate the cause of temperance, he hoped that the Club would consider him as one with them in the work. He then spoke of the grand and glorious results that had been accomplished in the Lower Provinces. Many illustrations were drawn to show the evils of intemperance, how the poor degraded drunkard was like one of the numerous wrecks he had so so often seen on the sea shore, and the wrecks of humanity were to be found all along our coast. He depicted a home, the family circle complete, love and peace were there, a perfect type of heaven, but here too the tempter had come, and the son the joy of the mother's heart had fallen a victim to intemperance. Oh, the agon of that mother's heart. Who can describe this? She refused to be comforted. It is impossible to put such scenes as these in black and white—they cannot be materealized. He thought the Church of Christ should be found more actively engaged in opposing the great evil, all such organizations or clubs that had for their end the welfare of their fellow men and God's glory, should centre around it, there is where strength was to be found. He hoped the day was not far distant when there would be no need for temperance societies. Then our fair Dominion, God would greatly bless. The address was listened to with much interest.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—There were large congregations at both morning and evening services yesterday. In the morning the Bishop of Algoma gave an interesting account of the wonderful growth of his diocese. At his appointment in 1873, the whole population Indians and whites amounted to about 12,000. Two years since it had increased to 80,000, and he had now reason to believe that there were 100,000 inhabitants. His diocese has a coast line of 800 miles along the great lakes. He gave a very interesting account of the school for Indian children at the Sault. At the close of the service the holy communion was administered to a very large number, the Rev. Mr. Lee assisting the Bishop and Rector. The offertory was devoted to missions in that diocese. The Bishop addressed the Sunday School also and preached in the evening an excellent sermon.

On Sunday morning, 4th inst., a son of T. Hughes, near Cotswold, in Minto, fell and broke his leg. He is doing well.

On Saturday morning between three and four o'clock, a man named James H. Lawrenson, was arrested while trying to force an entrance into the grocery store of W. & E. Dickie, Dundas.

Mr. Parnell has written a letter to the President of the St. Patrick's Society, Montreal, foreshadowing that he may not be able to visit Montreal before returning to Ireland.

Seven or eight freight cars were badly smashed up on Saturday night, west of Princeton by a run off. One of the brakemen was severely hurt.

Goulet, the recently appointed Minister of Agriculture in Manitoba, was re-elected by acclamation on Saturday.

An order in Council has been passed prohibiting the landing of pauper or destitute immigrants in Halifax until such sums of money as may be found necessary are provided, and paid into the hands of the Canadian Immigration agent at that port by the master of the vessel carrying such immigrants for their temporary support and transport to their place of destination. The sum of $20 is declared to be necessary for such purpose.

The county of Huron has no less than 47 members in its county council, and a great many people naturally think that number altogether too large to attend to the business that requires to be done. At the Hullett nomination the other day the question was practically tested—a request to the county council to petition the Legislature to do away with deputy-reeves, was carried by an almost unanimous vote.

Mr. Warren Hathaway, Arthur, has disposed of his new mill to Messrs. Rockliff Bros., & Davis, late from England, at present residing in Lindsay. The new proprietors intend adding additional machinery for the manufacture of merchant flour. It will be a great advantage to this place as well as to the surrounding country.

CITY COUNCIL.

Last Meeting of the Council of 1879.

Winding up of Business, Reports from Committees, &c.

The last meeting of the City Council of 1879 was held this (Monday) forenoon, the session beginning at 9:30 o'clock. There were present:—Mayor Howard; Ald. Holliday, Bruce, Roche, Tyson, Hewer, McMillan, Chase, Fairbank, McGuire, Stevenson, Coffee, Biscoe, and Sleeman.

FINANCE AND ASSESSMENT.

Ald. Sleeman, Chairman reported, recommending that the following accounts be passed: T. J. Day, $6.65; Innes & Davidson, $30.85; Wm. Hans, $4. That in the matter of the account of the County of Wellington, for the administration of justice to Dec. 31st, 1879, the account amounting $961.22 be referred to the auditor's with the request that they visit the County Treasurer's office to get a more detailed statement.

That the petition of George Bracey asking to be relieved from Separate School taxes be not granted, as Bracey has for a number of years contributed to the support of the school.

This being the last report which the Committee will have the honor of presenting, they feel they would be ungrateful did they not thank the different members for the assistance rendered in keeping down the various expenses of the city during year. It gives the Committee great pleasure to inform the Council that they wiped out the deficiency of $4,467 which was left over from last year. Also provided for the increased debenture debt amounting to $5,885. This has been done notwithstanding the assessment and rate were lowered, reducing the revenue $4,243. Yet the Committee is able to report that it still has a considerable surplus on hand.

The report was adopted.

MARKET AND BUILDINGS COMMITTEE.

Ald. Holliday, chairman of the Market and Buildings Committee, reported in substance as follows:—The revenue derived from the market fees for the years 1878 and 1879 are as follows:—1878—Jan. $352, Feb. $227.39, March $217.02, April $164.38, May $164.79, June $208.88, July $79.99, August $130.71, Sept. $198.49, Oct. $318.45, Nov. $329.03, Dec. $421.72.—total $2,814.01.

1879—Jan. $295.65, Feb. $270.13, March $231.34, April $217.58, May $225.17, June $209.21, July $136.97, August $122.25, Sept. $261.28, Oct. $398.08, Nov. $324.12, Dec. $461.33—total $3,153.11. Increase of revenue 1879—$339.10.

The committee recommend the payment of these accounts:—John Horsman's $14.93, G. Pike $6.25, B Savage, attending town clock $40. Balance on hand $150.30. The report was adopted.

RELIEF COMMITTEE.

Ald. Mitchell, Chairman of the Relief Committee, reported that the committee, out of its appropriation of $1,800, had a balance on hand of $448.31. Adopted.

PARKS AND TREES.

Ald. McGuire, chairman, reported recommending the payment of $2.15 to A. McBean. Adopted.

CONSOLIDATION OF THE CITY DEBT.

Ald. Sleeman submitted a petition to the Ontario Legislature, praying for an Act to empower the corporation to issue new debentures in place of those out standing, with a view to consolidating the city debt. The petition was adopted.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mayor Howard, chairman, reported that during the last year the health of the city had been in a satisfactory condition, and that the Inspector reports the city in a cleanly condition.

The committee recommend that the Board for 1880 take into consideration the advisability of appointing a contractor for the removal of night soil at a fixed rate; that the Health Inspector be paid $120 per annum from the date of his appointment, and that the salary be paid up to Dec. 31st, 1879, the amount being $90.

The Board had expended, including the Inspector's salary, $104, leaving $96 unexpended. The report was received.

THE VICE-REGAL VISIT.

The Mayor reported as follows with reference to the expenditure in connection with the vice regal visit in September:—The total expenditure for the vice regal reception amounts to about seventeen hundred dollars, the vouchers for which are not in his possession.

The Council made an appropriation of eight hundred dollars, but that amount will not be required, the city's appropriation of the whole being not more than six hundred and fifty dollars. As soon as the accounts are all closed a detailed statement will be handed to the Clerk. He adds:

I must congratulate the Council and all who took part in the arrangements for the reception of the Governor and Princess on the splendid success which attended their efforts, and would suggest that the thanks of the Council be specially conveyed to Mr. Chas. Raymond for the handsome accomodation provided at his residence for the use of the Vice-Regal party.

The report was received.

THE UNION CEMETRY.

Mayor Howard on behalf of the Union Cemetry Committee, presented the annual report as follows:—

During 1879 there have been 149 interments in both cemeteries; 120 in the Union and 29 in the St. George's Cemetry. 27 burial lots have been sold, and 42 lots for single graves. Five graves have been provided for indigent persons; four in the Union and one in St. George's Cemetry. The grounds are kept in good order.

On motion, Mayor Howard left the chair, when it was occupied temporarily by Ald. Sleeman.

Ald. Roche and Hewer, moved that $200 be placed to the credit of Mayor Howard, as a slight recognition of the able and efficient services he has rendered during the past year.

Ald. Coffee, moved as an amendment, that as Mayor Howard had already received $600 in connection with his position as a Water Commissioner, the amount be not granted.

It was pointed out that what Ald. Coffee moved was not an amendment, it being a direct negative to the motion.

Ald. Biscoe and Mitchell, then moved that the Mayor be tendered a vote of thanks as a recognition of his services for the past year.

The yeas and nays being called for by Ald. Coffee. Ald. Biscoe's amendment was lost on the following vote:—

Nays—Roche, Bruce, Holliday, Chase, MacMillan, Hewer, Fairbank, McGuire, Stevenson—9.

Yeas—Coffee, Mitchell, Tyson, and Biscoe.—4.

The motion was then carried on the same division.

On motion Mayor Howard took the chair.

The Mayor said he was exceedingly obliged for the motion they had passed during his absence. In taking his leave of office he had to return thanks to the Council for their courtesy during the year. As was shown by the report of the Finance Committee, the finances were in a better condition than when the Council assumed office. Now that he was retiring he might state that he thought a salary should be fixed for the Mayor. He thanked them for the liberality they had shown him. He believed that a better or more economic Council had not occupied the Board in Guelph than the retiring one.

When the minutes of the meeting were confirmed the Council rose.

Meeting of the New Council.

The new Council met at eleven o'clock, when Mr. Sleeman having taken the declaration and qualification took his seat as Mayor.

Mr. Harvey, Clerk, reported that the following Aldermen had been elected for the different Wards:

St. David's Ward—Messrs. Tyson, Hewer and Hart.

St. Patrick's Ward—Messrs. Chadwick, Coffee and Doran.

St. John's Ward—Messrs. Robertsor, Fairbank and Hall.

St. James' Ward—Messrs. Lampry, McMillan and Grange.

St. George's Ward—Messrs. Stevenson, McGuire and Biscoe.

St. Andrew's Ward—Messrs. Gowdy, Bruce and McLagan.

The Clerk reported that all the above had taken the necessary affidavit of qualification except one who had taken the qualification of a Councillor.

The Mayor elect on taking his seat gave the following address:

MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

To the Municipal Council of the City of Guelph.

GENTLEMEN,—Having been elected to the important office of Mayor of our young city, and finding that it has been customary on the part of my predecessors in office, at the first meeting of the council of the year, to present to them an address in which such matters as in the opinion of the Mayor are of importance to the city, are brought before the members, I deem it expedient to continue the custom. Occupying the civic chair for the first time, I must ask the kind forbearance and co-operation of the members of the council to enable me to maintain proper order and decorum in carrying on the business of the city at the meetings of the council, and on my part I shall faithfully endeavor to preserve strict order in business, and carry out the rules laid down for that purpose, relying, as I feel I may confidently, upon the support of the council to enable me to do so, not only in this particular, but in everything that may be brought forward for the promotion of the interests of the city.

I am pleased to inform the council that the financial standing of the city is much better than it has been for many years. This is in a great measure attributable to our separation from the county, and also to the rigid economy practiced by the members of last year's council. I hope and trust that it will be the aim of every member of the council of this year to economize, and thus lay as light a burden as possible on the taxpayers during the present period of depression.

I am well aware that the debenture debt falling due this year will be in excess of that of last by about three thousand four hundred dollars, but as we have no deficiency left over to provide for, which was the case last year, I see no reason why we should not be able to show at the end of the year as satisfactory a financial statement as that of the council of 1879.

There are some matters that should receive your early attention, among them being the revision and consolidation of our by-laws, of those now in existence many were enacted a number of years ago, from various changes in the statute and municipal law some of the by-laws are effete, and others are simply repetitions of the provisions of the statutes, and still others do not impose all the powers given to cities. From these causes it is necessary that a complete revision and consolidation of the city by-laws should be made without delay, either by the committee of the council or by calling in other aid as the council may determine.

Another matter should also engage your attention, and that is to provide a different system of distributing relief, the present system has proven to be very unsatisfactory, many receiving aid that do not require it, and many who are worthy are allowed to suffer. I would recommend that a certain sum be set apart to be spent under the surveillance of the Ladies Benevolent Society. I feel confident that beneficial results would follow from this system as the ladies would undoubtedly give more time and attention to ascertaining those that are worthy of relief than a member of the council could be expected to give.

I am pleased to inform you that the revenue derived from our market fees last year shows an increase over that of the previous one, this, however, cannot be expected to continue, as the railways which are now being built almost encircling us must have the effect of opening up fresh markets for produce that would otherwise come here. In view of this and other reasons I think it would be well that we should hold out what inducements we can offer to encourage manufacturers to establish themselves amongst us. I do not favor the granting of bonuses, but am in favor of exempting from taxation any manufacturer whose business does not conflict with those already established here.

I feel it incumbent upon me to call your earnest attention to the suffering of the mercantile interests caused in a great measure by the network of railways with which we are now surrounded. I deem it of the utmost importance that our united efforts should be directed in assisting to open up railway communication with the northern country which has been cut off from us, viz: Arthur, Mount Forest and Durham. If this could be attained and in addition a connecting link established to Orangeville, we could then feel secure against any inroads being made upon our business by any rival project, and the trade which has been for some time past cut off from us would again be secured.

Two years ago a matter was referred to by Mayor Howard in his address which I think would prove beneficial if adopted. The matter is the collecting of our taxes in two instalments, instead of one payment as at present. I hope this year's Council will give it consideration. I feel confident that by collecting the taxes in two instalments the ratepayers would find it much lighter to pay them, and a great deal now paid in interest to the bank would be saved to the city. Besides this, I feel satisfied, that a considerable gain would be made in the statute labour tax by collecting earlier, as many persons escape payment through leaving the city before the collectors call. I would also recommend that in future the dog tax be collected through the system of licensing—this would compel all owners of dogs to take out a license for them or have them destroyed.

In conclusion, I would say I have only referred to matters that require your early consideration, believing that it would be superfluous to do more, being aware that the Council over which I have the honour to preside, is composed of gentlemen who know and are capable of dealing with all matters that may engage their attention during the year.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
GEO. SLEEMAN.

Guelph, Jan. 19, 1880.

Mayor Sleeman named as his auditor for the current year, James S. Spiers.

Ald McLagan and Fairbank moved that W. S. G. Knowles be auditor for the current year. Carried.

Ald. Chadwick and Gowdy moved that the following be appointed to strike the Standing Committees for the year:—Ald. Robertson, Stevenson, Coffee, McMillan, McLagan and Hart.

Ald. McGuire objected to the resolution, giving as his reason that the members of the old Council had been almost ignored in the proposition of the motion. It had been a rule heretofore to appoint a committee from members of the old Council to strike the Standing Committees.

Ald. Chadwick said such was not the case, that it had been the rule to appoint senior members to strike the Standing Committees.

After some further discussion, Ald. Chadwick's motion was carried.

Ald. McLagan moved that the Mayor's address be referred to the following Committee;—Ald. Chadwick, Biscoe, Hall, Bruce and Lamprey. Carried.

The Mayor was sorry to draw their attention to the fact that one gentleman occupied a seat at the Board who was not qualified as an Alderman. He read the section governing the qualification of Aldermen. He hoped the member would leave his seat and avoid any unpleasant action being taken.

On motion, the Council adjourned, to meet at 7.30 in the evening.

Another Letter from Mr. Anderson.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Since writing you my last letter I have seen Mr. Stevenson's communication in the Herald, and truly the sight of it nearly paralyzed me. The effrontery of the man almost baffles belief. Has he entirely forgotten the very flattering terms he made use of when my brother and I went to see him about some trees to be sent to my brother in Manitoba. He told me at that time that he had always spoken of me very highly as a teacher. This was after I had taught a year or two in the North Ward school.

Again, about removing his girl from the school. This he did not do until by a a course of gradation she was promoted to a higher school by the Inspector.

In regard to the "long letter" he speaks of, he makes a mistake. It was not long, but contained truths which went uncontradicted. By-the-bye, the visit referred to in that identical "letter" in which he is shown to have spoken in very laudatory terms of the school was, I think, the only official visit ever made, and I am positive the only time he ever heard a class of mine, so that he must have made use of another's judgment besides his own when he pronounced me an incapable. It may be all true he says, still I hold he is not a judge.

I do not like to be hard on any one, but when a man who occasionally declaims from the pulpit stoops to utter some things very nearly akin to untruths, such an one, I think, ought to be exposed.

I am, &c.,
ALEX. ANDERSON.

Another Racing Shell for Hanlan—Peculiar Accident---Promoted--A Ball Anticipated at Rideau Hall.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—Hanlan was so well pleased with several shells made by Sampson, of this city, that he has ordered one to be made for him.

Last evening shortly after dark, a telegraph wire running across O'Connor street on York street became detached from one of the poles and dropped forward forming a dangerous loop. A gentleman passing at the time did not observe the wire which caught him under the chin and suspended him in the air. He was fortunately rescued by a policeman, but not before he had became unconscious.

Mr. John G. McGee, of the Survey Branch Department of the Interior, has been appointed Assistant Clerk of the Privy Council, vice Mr. Cote, recently appointed Clerk.

Mr Bruce, one of the Inverness delegates, who has been visiting parts of the Dominion that escaped the attention of the other delegates, left for the West. He expresses himself very much satisfied with the country and will doubtless give a favourable report of his visit on returning home.

The Monopoly in School Books.

The letter of Mr. Warwick, one of the Toronto booksellers, in the Globe of the 15th inst., brings to light the working of the school book monopoly as it now is, and has been for some time past. Outsiders would scarcely credit the tyranny and coercion which wealthy trade monopolists bring to bear upon their smaller and weaker rivals in business. The school book monopoly is only one out of many examples that might be furnished, in almost every wholesale manufacturing business throughout the Province. The case of Mr. Warwick and the Toronto booksellers is an excellent example of the practical working of protection in all its phases. It is true that the protection enjoyed by Campbell & Son, and their confreres in the trade, has little to do with the N. P., Protection, but it illustrates on a small scale the wide spread and damaging influence of the principle when extended to every manufacturer in the Province.

The advantages which the wealthier firms enjoy arise from the fact that they have been keen enough to secure the copyright of works likely to be placed on the list of authorized text books; consequently they are not only able to shut out their rivals in the trade from any legitimate share either in the manufacture or sale of those particular books, but also to make their own terms with the public as regards the selling price.

By-the-way, the secret of the frequent changes in text books has much to do with this same system of monopolies. Those who are obliged to purchase school books are often at a loss to understand why the changes are made. The difference in favour of a newly authorized Grammar, Algebra or Arithmetic, often seems to be so very slight. All but the publisher must find it very difficult to account for the change. Or why, at a loss of many thousands of dollars to those who purchase school books, it should be made to supplant one already in use.

The secret of the whole matter, however, lies in the fact that it is not the interests of the trade that the copyright of any text-book should become Provincial. So soon as this is the case it breaks up a monopoly, throwing the publication and sale open to the whole Province. It then becomes the interest of every large firm in the trade, to put before the public some new text-book with some real or fanciful advantage over that already in use on the same subject, and by every possible artifice to foist it upon the attention of School Boards and teachers, by free distribution and otherwise; thus securing in many instances recommendations as well as public notice. Making sure, however, that if the work is likely to become authorized, that they themselves have secured the copyright, or sole right to publish for five, ten or more years. This is the real cause of more than half the changes in our school text-books. Knowing the period which any copyright covers, it is quite easy to predict the appearance of a new candidate for public favor.

We are glad to see that the Minister of Education has taken up the question with some spirit. There is only one course to be taken in the matter, and that is, the moment any new text-book is added to the list of our authorized school books, let the copyright become Provincial, that is, let it become the property of the Government, and the publication be thrown open to Provincial competition, more especially as the Government dictates the books to be used, it should see that they are not subject to any monopoly prices.

Whatever the merits of the quarrel between Warwick and the trade may be, one thing is certain, viz.: that it is quite easy to double the price of any text-book under a copyright monopoly. The tables of prices given by Campbell & Son, in their reply to Warwick, proves nothing. We know that reprinting of any British works can be, as a general rule, furnished in this country for about half the original price, and often less. What we ask, therefore, is, that so long as the Government assumed the right of dictating what our text-books shall be, they shall be furnished to us under the influence of a healthy competition, and not at prices arranged by firms who may have obtained a copyright, or publishing monopoly.

THE Hamilton Times remarks that it will soon be a year since Sir A. T. Galt was appointed Canadian Ambassador to England at a large salary. It is eminently satisfactory to learn from the Mail that he will leave Ottawa in a few weeks to assume his duties. How comforting. Just imagine how Mr. Mackenzie would have been abused had he permitted such a gross dereliction of duty.

THE Montreal Gazette commends the law reforms of Hon. Mr. Mowat. It says:—There is little doubt but that the Bill introduced by Hon. Mr. Mowat will be subjected to amendments in Committee and pass into law, and that before many months a most beneficial change will be made in the administration of law in Ontario—a change which will render strictly true the aphorism that "law is the height of reason."

THE N. Y. Tribune's London special says that there are fresh rumours of an early dissolution of Parliament, but they can be traced to no good authority.

What Our Contemporaries Say of the Weekly Mercury.

THE Guelph Weekly MERCURY was recently enlarged by the addition of a column on each page, making it now one of the largest as well as best conducted newspapers in the Province. The well-directed energy of Messrs. Innes & Davidson keeps the MERCURY in the vanguard of successful newspapers.—Clifford Arrow.

ENLARGED.—Our sterling contemporary, the Guelph MERCURY, has made another stride forward, and now publishes 64 columns of matter in its weekly edition, the make up at the same time being decidedly improved. The MERCURY has one of the wealthiest and most enlightened constituencies in the Dominion to cater to, and we are glad to know its enterprise is sufficiently appreciated to justify it in making such extensive improvements. Continued success to it.—Stratford Beacon.

THE GUELPH MERCURY.—The proprietors of this excellent journal have enlarged their borders from a fifty-six column paper to a sixty-four, and at the present time it is not only the largest but best weekly published in the county.—Lucknow Sentinel.

THE publishers of the Guelph MERCURY, are to be congratulated on the fine appearance of their paper in its enlarged form. The general "get up" of the journal is very good and its typhographical appearance is equal to any paper in Canada. The MERCURY is really one of the growing enterprises of the Dominion.—Bowmanville Canadian Statesman.

THE Guelph MERCURY has favored us with a copy of its weekly edition, apparently with the idea of showing what can be done in the circumstance of an active and generous support of a newspaper by the inhabitants of a live community. A few years ago, a great stride was made in advance in the enlargement of the MERCURY; and now we see it surpassing itself by the issue of a sheet of sixty-four long columns, filled with an excellent assortment of general matter. The MERCURY well deserves the generous and paying support which it is getting. Long life to it.—Cobourg World.

It is with great pleasure we observe that the WEEKLY GUELPH MERCURY is showing unquestionable evidence of increasing prosperity. It has been recently enlarged by adding a column to each page, besides lengthening the pages. It has always been exceedingly well got up, both as regards matter and printing, and the recently enlargement places it among the first class weeklies in the Province. —Durham Review.

The GUELPH MERCURY has enlarged its borders. It is now a huge eight-page sheet, bearing on its face unmistakable evidence of prosperity. We wish our contemporary continued success.—Listowel Standard.

The GUELPH MERCURY has made another stride forward in its progressive career,—and on New Year's Day again enlarged, taking rank with the largest weeklies in the Province. It is conducted with ability and deserves the support of the Royal City, as well as adjacent counties. We wish the publishers success and congratulate them on their enterprise.—Newmarket Era.

JOURNALISTIC. — The Guelph weekly MERCURY has been enlarged to sixty-four column quarto. The MERCURY is one of the best papers in this Dominion, and its enlargement but proves its increasing popularity.—Paris Transcript.

The Guelph Weekly MERCURY has recently been enlarged to a sixty-four column paper. The MERCURY ranks amongst the best papers in the Dominion. We wish its enterprising proprietors every success.—Owen Sound Advertiser.

We have received from the publishers a copy of the Guelph MERCURY in its new and greatly enlarged and improved form. It now contains sixty-four columns of matter, and is undoubtedly one of the best county papers in the Province. We are pleased to note the success which attends the efforts of the enterprising publishers, and trust that the new departure may meet with due acknowledgment from the reading public.—Mount Forest Examiner.

A Toronto subscriber to the MERCURY writes as follows: "I must congratulate you upon the appearance of the WEEKLY MERCURY in its new form. All parties to whom I have shown it acknowledge it is the best country weekly paper in Canada—the best got up, the best printed, and very, very good selections. I heartily endorse all the above, and hope you will reap the reward you deserve."

Another subscriber in Toronto says:—"Allow me to congratulate you most heartily, as I do, upon the splendid appearance your Weekly makes in its enlarged form and typographical appearance. Long may you have such proud satisfaction in witnessing the sustained and progressive strides the MERCURY has made, and as I am sure it will continue to make under your auspices, I wish you the utmost prosperity your hearts could desire."

A subscriber from Kincardine writes:—"The Weekly MERCURY makes a magnificent sheet as enlarged, and many of your subscribers here claim they could not do without it."

We could give dozens of similar extracts received from all parts of the country.

ENLARGED.—We have received a copy of the Weekly MERCURY in its enlarged form. It now contains 64 columns instead of 56 as before. The readers of the MERCURY will appreciate this effort in their behalf. The MERCURY is certainly a great credit to its publishers, Messrs. Innes & Davidson.—Walkerton Telescope.

A CURIOUS fact in connection with the European situation is that nearly all the foremost men in the present complications have passed the allotted period of human life—three score years and ten. Beaconsfield, Bismarck, Gortschakoff, Andrassy, Moltke, Emperor William, Gladstone. Already the hand of dissolution is upon some of them, and it is clear that none of those named can long survive.

The remarkable weather of Charleston, S. C. has ripened the strawberries, and shipments to New York will probably commence this week.

The final assessment of Toronto is $50,088,520. The city has 168 miles of sidewalk, 62¾ miles of sewers and 10½ miles of street railways.

It is said that notwithstanding the hundreds of new wells, the production of petroleum, has fallen off within the past eighteen months from 43,000 barrels to 23,000 barrels per month.

It is believed that an Irish Catholic has been appointed to the position of Assistant Clerk to the Privy Council. Sir John is credited with having stated as much to a civil servant—an applicant for the position on Saturday.

It is probable that an effort will be made to repeal the Bill prohibiting the selling of pools at races at the coming session of Parliament.

West Garafraxa Reeveship.

The Fergus News Record explains at length the trouble about the Reeveship in West Garafraxa. It appears that Mr. Mathew Anderson's name does not appear upon last year's assessment roll; and consequently should the question be tested in court he is disqualified to occupy the position to which he has been elected. The law is so clear upon the matter as to leave no room whatever for doubt. Page 1610 of the Consolidated Statutes of Ontario sets forth, under the heading "Qualification of Officers," that every member of a Township Council must be rated in his own name on the last revised assessment roll for a freehold of at least four hundred dollars, or partly freehold and partly leasehold in sufficient proportions. Mr. Anderson is not rated either as a freeholder or as a householder, and consequently he is deficient in the necessary qualification.

There is a penalty attached to omissions of this kind, but in this special case the News Record says:—"The assessor is a man altogether above the perpetration of a fraudulent act; and while he erred in judgment, we have reason to believe that every man who has held the position of Reeve of Garafraxa within the past twenty years viewed the matter and interpreted the law the same as he did. They all seem to have run in the error of supposing that if non-residents desired their names to appear on the assessment roll they must give notice to the Clerk in writing to that effect on or before the 30th of January. Therefore, under the whole circumstances, however much the omission of Mr. Anderson's name may be regretted, it is extremely improbable that any action will be entered against the Assessor."

The News Record then goes on to discuss the question whether Mr. Dobbin under the circumstances is entitled to his seat, and concludes that he is not. It says:—"While we are convinced that, were it within his power, Mr. Dobbin would scorn to accept of any office in the election for which a majority of the legal votes had been used against him, Mr. Anderson's disqualification gives him no legal claim whatever to the Reeveship. The courts have decided that to entitle a candidate for the Reeveship to the office because of his opponent's disqualification, the qualification must be objected to at the nomination in time to enable the electors to propose some one else."

As regards Mr. Anderson's course, the News Record indicates that as he has been formerly declared elected by the Clerk, and as owner of the farm, he is in a position to make the statutary declaration of qualification, which is worded as follows: "I, Mathew Anderson, do solemnly declare that I am a natural born subject of Her Majesty; and have had to my own use and benefit, in my own right, as proprietor, at the time of my election to the office of Reeve, hereinafter referred to, such an estate as does qualify me to act in the office of Reeve for the Township of West Garafraxa, and that such estate is of the value of at least $400 over and above all charges, liens and incumbrances affecting the same."

CHAPTER XXI.

A LONG UNEXPLAINED ABSENCE—MR. BISHOP'S BASINESS—ANTHONY LANGTON'S DUPLICITY THROUGH THE VALLEY.

Their concern was rendered the greater when they saw that all through the autumn and winter the weakness of the invalid increased. When Miss Elliot questioned the doctor on May's condition, he gravely shook his head and observed—

"Had she been taken to a warm climate two years ago she might have recovered and spent a moderately long life; but now it is too late. She is too weak to bear the journey; the disease is too far advanced to be stayed. Be good to her—be very good to her—it is all you can do—for I must tell you that you will not now have her long to minister to."

With many tears Miss Elliot communicated this sad intelligence to Agnes, and they wept together in heartfelt sorrow, and wished more than ever for the return of Orwell. The responsibility of their position was becoming distressingly great, and if the doctor's gloomy forebodings were warranted by the state of his patient, the desirability of Orwell's presence was commensurately increased.

Contrary to expectation, when spring came, May rallied, a new measure of strength was given to her; even the bloom returned to her cheek, a wondrous beauty irradiated her countenance, and in her eyes shone the brightness of animation.

Fain would her loving attendants have believed that these were the tokens of returning health and a prolonged life. But the doctor in kindness warned them against cherishing this delusion. At best the improvement meant that she would be spared to them through the coming summer, but that in all probability the fall of the leaf would see their fond hopes blighted and the gentle spirit released from its decaying tabernacle. Therefore through the outward brightness of that passing summer Mrs. Elliot and Agnes were in the valley of the shadow of death, though it seemed that the fragile being who was called to walk through it had little experience of its terrors, and was not dismayed by its gloom.

It was now nearly a year since Orwell's departure and still they had no tidings of him. Their anxiety and perplexity were now shared by Mr. Bishop, who had greater reason than even they knew of to feel apprehensive. He had received strict injunctions from Orwell's London bankers to practice strict economy in the management of the estate, to incur no expense that was not absolutely necessary, and to reduce all necessary charges to the lowest limits. He wrote again and again asking the meaning of this tightening of the reins, but received only vague replies, obscure intimations of financial difficulties, and explicit declarations that economy was imperative. To his repeated inquiries after Orwell himself no answer was given, and he was left to ponder in the dark on the strange unpleasant situation of affairs, his knowledge of the circumstances connected with the youth's departure the previous summer being just sufficient to aggravate his anxiety and increase his disquietude.

More than ever did the worthy lawyer reproach himself for the part he had played in causing Orwell to quit the Grange, believing as he now did that had the latter not been thwarted in his affections he would have fallen into a settled mode of life and abandoned those extravagant courses which he suspected were impoverishing him to a dangerous extent. Compared with this, the consequence of his marriage with Agnes Borland was but a feather's weight, which time might soon have overcome. Now heaven only knew what the issue might be, but assuredly the prospect was troubled and unpromising.

Once more the summer was ended, and as the fall of the leaf approached the doctor's grave anticipation threatened to be realised. The deceptive improvement in the condition of the invalid, which in the spring had raised the hopes of her two faithful attendants, was shown to be but the prelude to a sudden relapse into greater weakness and deeper prostration. The thin, attenuated frame became day by day more shadowy and ethereal, the taper hands were white as alabaster, the eyes grew unnaturally large and brilliant; yet the face retained its loveliness, and those who gazed on its wondrous beauty could not believe that the cold, dark grave was soon to swallow it up.

May knew now that she was dying, and openly spoke of the coming change to those about her. Patient and gentle still, she had no shrinking of soul from the awful darkness into which she was going. During her long period of weakness she had learned where to find strength. Pure and innocent as she had ever seemed to others, she had lain low in self-abasement, called herself vile and sinful in the sight of the Divine absolute purity, seeking pardon, and cleansing at the fountain which has been opened for all mankind. Then in answer to her prayer of faith a deep peace had come into her soul, a holy joy and spiritual serenity known only to those who have been born again, and have become heirs to a better inheritance than earth can yield. From that moment doubts and fears had vanished, and she looked forward to death as a release from bodily pain and the entrance to a higher life.

She had but one regret to disturb the peaceful ebbing of existence, one wish yet bound her to life, the wish to see Orwell and bid him farewell. Every morning her plaintive cry was "Oh, will he not come to-day," but every evening closed without the cry being heard, for Orwell came not. The sorrowing hearts bled, the hands that ministered to her wants trembled with emotion as the tender wish was so often and so vainly repeated, and hard bitter thoughts of Orwell crept into their bosoms because he had so cruelly forsaken in her extremity the only being who could call him brother. To leave May as he did, so weak, so ill, to remain away so long, never to seek for communication—these things were indicative of a coldness and heartlessness which neither of them had thought Orwell capable of manifesting. Yet so it was. He had acted thus, and now that the last days of May's life had evidently arrived, and she yearned to breathe her last sigh on his bosom he was away no one knew whither.

"Oh, it is so unlike, so very unlike Orwell," murmured Agnes. "I fear some evil has happened to them both. Does Mr. Langton feel no anxiety on his son's account?"

"I for one am not able to say, but I mean to go and see," responded a voice behind them, and looking round they beheld Mr. Bishop standing within the door of the room, his footfall having been unheard on the thick carpet. "Yes, ladies," he added, his face wearing an aspect of settled gravity, "I am on my way to Cairnbank to seek an interview with Mr. Langton. It is high time some determined effort was made to communicate to Mr. Bruce the state of his sister and what the doctor apprehends. I called in passing to ask if any news had come, but I suppose it is a needless visit?"

Miss Elliot sadly shook her head. "There is still no news, sir," she answered, in a low tone, while Agnes silently turned to the window to hide her flushed and tearful face.

"And how is Miss May to-day?"

"No better. Weaker and weaker every day. She is at present asleep."

"Poor young creature," sighed Mr. Bishop, and walked tautely away.

The path followed by the lawyer to Cairnbank led to the western side of the Birch Dell, and as he gazed down into the ravine he called to mind the last time he had seen it, and the picture he then beheld of the two lovers seated on the mossy bank by the margin of the stream.

"I wish to heaven I could recall the past up to that moment," he muttered. "Had I been as wise then as I am now I would have turned on my heel and gone home instead of paying that unfortunate visit to Mrs. Borland. How different everything might have been now. Pshaw! why indulge such vain, profitless thoughts. The past can never in any case be recalled nor its errors cancelled. What is left for us mortals is to correct them as far as we can. Yes, but unfortunately some errors cannot be corrected, and I fear the present is of that sort, and its consequences threaten to be very serious."

Though we have set down this colloquy in consecutive order, it was not mentally uttered by Mr. Bishop with the same unbroken sequence; it was rather the outcome of the thoughts that occupied his mind between the Birch Dell and Cairnbank, and was brought out of his abstraction only to find himself in front of the latter mansion, yea, at the very bottom of the steps which led straight up to the terrace.

Mr. Langton was, as usual, found in his business room, seated in the same large leathern chair, and arrayed in the same faded dressing gown as when he and his son held the conversation recently narrated. Mr. Bishop was not shown into the apartment without the due warning being given to its inmate, for Anthony Langton never received visitors there without their names being sent up beforehand. When informed that Mr. Bishop was in the dining room and wished to see him, he debated with himself for a few moments as to whether he should go and see him or have him sent in. He decided on the latter, and hastily putting away one or two papers which he did not wish to fall under the visitor's eye, he told the servant to admit him.

The owner of Cairnbank cast a brief, keen, scrutinising glance from under his eyebrows at the lawyer's face, as if he hoped in the expression to read the purport of the visit; but lawyers' faces don't generally betray their mental workings, and in the countenance of Mr. Bishop, Anthony Langton read nothing.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

The Government Strength and Opposition.

The Toronto correspondent of the Seaforth Expositor says:—

The Government's strength appears to be so greatly increased as to be almost a subject of uneasiness; for no patriot should observe the permanent aggrandizement of any party in the State with complacence. The sterling honesty of Mr. Mowat and his colleagues in the Government, however, disarms of its force any apprehension of this kind. The really able supporters of the Government are so numerous that it would be invidious to name one or two without naming many more.

* * * * * * *

The Opposition retain Mr. Creighton, the almanac man and an interminable talker; Mr. Merrick, who rides the Orange Association donkey; Mr. Rosevear, the buffoon of perennial smiles, but without a grain of sense; Mr. Calvin, an eccentric old gentleman in his dotage, who has got into Parliament through the influence of his wealth; Mr. Tooley, who never opens his mouth, but is a good voter; and lastly, that great hulk of nothingness, Mr. Lauder, who labours under the hallucination that he is the Edward Blake of the Tory Opposition, but is really a dead weight on his friends. Their acquisitions include Mr. McMaster, a young Montreal lawyer, who represents an Ontario constituency (Glengarry), and who has within the past few weeks sprung into some notoriety from his annexation-independence theories. They have certainly, apart from numbers, lost much of their previous strength, while their original weakness has been considerably augmented. Mr. Meredith must have recognized this, for he has intimated his desire that the asperities of last session might be absent from the debates of this. The snubbing he and his party received at the hands of the people, has brought his high stomach down.

New Method of Customs Collection.

A bill has been introduced in the American Congress providing for a new and convenient means of collecting Customs Revenue through the post office. It is proposed to issue six series of stamps, similar in size and general features to the internal revenue stamps, the several denominations to be based on a gold value of 5cents, 10 cents, 25 cents, 50 cents, $2 and $5, said stamps to be legal tender for all duties on imports when used according to the provisions of this Act, and for no other purpose. It provides that when such stamps are attached in foreign countries to parcels of merchandise subject to ad valorem duties destined for and received into the United States through the Post-office or Custom house, such parcels when stamped, provided the stamps represent the full amount of duty required by law, and provided that if received through the Post-office the required postage is prepaid, shall be regarded as having filled the requirements of law, and after the cancellation of the stamps at the Custom house, shall be forwarded to their destination by mail, express or otherwise as the case may be. It provides that such parcels shall be accompanied by a bill of costs, that it may be readily ascertained whether the required amount in stamps has been affixed. It further provides that if any article or parcel be found to be insufficiently stamped, if it shall be shown to have occurred through ignorance or innocent mistake, it shall be delivered to the consignees upon payment of the balance found to be due; but if it occurs through any collusion or fraud, the goods shall be confiscated and sold on account of the Government. Information shall at all times be furnished to the persons interested in regard to withheld or missing articles. Stamps shall be furnished to all the post-offices in the United States, and all United States consulates and consular agencies in countries of the International Postal Union. The Bill has been referred to Committee of Ways and Means, and as its object seems to be to facilitate business with other countries, Canada included, it will doubtless pass.

The first number of the Morris Standard, a non-political journal, has been issued in Manitoba.

To Keep Your Horses Healthy.

A writer in the Journal of Chemistry says both the health and comfort of horses have of late years been greatly improved by the better construction of stables. They are made more roomy and lofty, and provided with means of thorough ventilation. In many new stables lofts are done away with, or the floor of the lofts is kept well above the horses' heads, and ample shafts are introduced to convey away foul air. By perforated bricks and gratings under the mangers and elsewhere round the walls, and also by the windows and ventilators, abundance of pure air is secured for horses, while, being introduced in moderate amount and from various directions, it comes in without draught. Too much draught is almost an unknown stable luxury. To secure a constant supply of pure air horses require more space than they generally enjoy. Even when animals are stabled only at night, a minimum of 1,200 cubic feet should be allowed. In England the newer cavalry barracks gave a minimum of 1,500 feet, with a ground area of fully ninety square feet per horse, and the best hunting and carriage horses have more room.

Mr. Henry Schulter, of Paris, maker of stone ware, now manufactures mustard jars; a Hamilton firm, Dunn & Co., imports mustard seed, grinds it, and fills these jars, which are then sold with their contents to the wholesale grocer of our various cities.

The Hamilton sewing machine firm of Messrs. Wilson & Co., who some months ago obtained an extension on their payments, have failed to meet the second instalment, and are now attempting to settle at twenty-five cents in the dollar, but creditors ask twice that proportion. Their assets have been depreciated severely.

TUESDAY EV'G, JANUARY 20, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The Prince of Wales and Princess Louise go to Liverpool on Wednesday, where the Princess will embark on the 22nd for Halifax.

The Tay bridge, the scene of the recent disaster, is to be rebuilt twenty feet lower than before.

The Irish political prisoners intend to take no further notice of the writs issued against them, as they consider that they have already satisfied the law's demands.

Russia is credited with offering to withdraw her troops on the western frontier if their presence there is likely to disturb friendly relations with Germany and Austria.

The Council of the Home Rule Club has passed a resolution thanking the people of America for their prompt aid to the distressed in Ireland.

The English Postal Department will shortly apply for an injunction against the telephone lines, on the ground that they are an infringement of the Government monopoly of telegraphs.

The Duc de Gramont is dead. He was French Minister of Foreign Affairs at the outbreak of the Franco-German war, of which he was the principal instigator.

A sister of Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone is dead.

A Berlin correspondent reports that Russia has addressed notes to Vienna and Berlin, stating her willingness to withdraw the troops concentrated on the frontiers of Austria and Germany if their presence there is regarded as likely to disturb friendly relations.

Five professional roughs, ringleaders at the late bread riots in the County of Cork, have been sentenced to six week' imprisonment.

The Kennedy Family of Scottish vocalists have gone to India to sing. Two of Mr. Kennedy's sons are studying music at Milan.

THE AFGHAN WAR.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—A Cabul despatch says that two high hills on the west of the city are being crowned by strong blockhouses by General Roberts, which will partly command the neighboring defile. Communications between Shirpur and the Bala Hissar will be secured by the erection of fortified posts on the Siah Sang hills. The river will be bridged between Siah Sang and Shirpur, all the walls within a thousand yards of Shirpur are being levelled, and roads are being made in all directions.

A Lahore despatch says the projected railway to Jellalabad has been abandoned. The terminus of the railway will be at Jumrood.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—A Cabul despatch says that dissensions have arisen among the Afghan leaders at Ghuzni. Mahommed Jan has gone to Zurmat, and Priest Muski Alim to Wardak, Sirdar Wali Mahommed son of the former Ameer, Dost Mahommed has entered upon his duties as Governor of Cabul. He is the best choice Roberts could make—neither strong of character nor inferior. He hoped doubtless to rise later to the Ameership. Roberts has been greatly extending his position.

A correspondent at Lahore has reason to believe that a new frontier province will soon be organized. It will include a portion of the Khyder and Kurum Valleys, mentioned in the Gundamuk Treaty, with part of Scinde, having the River Indus for an eastern boundary.

EXPLOSION.—A despatch from Prince Arthur's Landing, Thunder Bay, says that about 5.45 a. m., on the 16th inst., the powder and glycerine works, which were situated about a mile from that place, and on the lake shore, were completely wrecked owing to an explosion caused by a fire. The explosion made a hole in the ground some ten feet deep and about fifty feet in diameter, and throwing earth and timber a distance of a quarter of a mile. Fortunately nobody was injured. Not a particle of the magazine can be found. From the position of the office and the mysterious way in which the magazine exploded, it is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. The loss to the works, &c., will amount to about $3,000, and the damage done to the town property to about $1,000. Nearly every building in the place was shattered in some way, and the shock was felt some ten miles away.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A few days ago Mr. Wm. Robinson, living in the township of Mosa, came to Glencoe to transact some business. Before leaving home he shut up a young colt in the stable. Shortly after he left Mrs. Robinson went out to the stable to let the colt out. The colt knocked her down, and kicked her very severely about the head and face. Dr. Lumley was immediately called, who did all in his power for the injured lady, but to no purpose, as she died about sixty hours afterwards. Mrs. Robinson was about 56 years of age.—Free Press.

The by-law had been carried by a majority of nine, but the Council contended that the majority was made up of illegal votes, and that the promoters of the by-low were guilty of bribery and corruption. Messrs. Blake, Kerr & Boyd are acting for Langdon, and Messrs. Guthrie, Watt & Cutten, for the Township.

INAUGURAL BANQUET.—Last night after the meeting of City Council, Mayor Sleeman entertained the members of the present and late Councils at Anderson's saloon. The company partook of an excellent supper which was provided for them. After the repast the boards were cleared and toasts were in order. Among those drank were "The Mayor," proposed by ex-Mayor Howard, and responded to in suitable terms by Mayor Sleeman. The latter proposed the "ex-Mayors," which was replied to by Messrs. Howard, Mitchell, Harvey and Ald. Chadwick and Robertson. "The ex-Aldermen was proposed and drew forth suitable replies. Ald. Stevenson replied to the toast of the oldest Councillor, he having occupied that position when Guelph was a village. The proceedings were continued till after 12 o'clock, when the company dispersed, having spent an enjoyable evening.

Two Old Settlers of Eramosa Gone.

At his own residence, in Guelph, on Monday afternoon, the 19th inst., Mr. Thomas Dryden, in the 83rd year of his age.

Mr. Dryden was a native of Roxburghshire, Scotland, in which he spent the early years of his life, and well remembered, almost to the close of his days, the excitement and trouble in which Britain was involved in the early part of the century with France and Napoleon. In 1823 he married Miss Elizabeth Scott, who still survives him, and who has proved a valuable helpmeet to him during the long period of their married life. In 1830, with his wife and family, he emigrated to America, proceeding in the first place to the United States, where they remained for nearly a year, but not finding a home suitable to them they came over to Canada and took up land in the 2nd Con., Eramosa, where they continued to reside till three years ago, when owing to the increasing infirmities of advancing age he moved, with his partner in life, to Guelph, and spent his closing days in retirement. Often was he to be seen taking his customary daily walk, as long as his strength permitted, and was remarkable for the vigor of his step.

Mr. Dryden had a large family, of whom three sons and four daughters remain, with a large number of grand-children, all of whom are sorrowing over his loss.

About a year ago he was seized with what threatened to be jaundice, and from this attack he never thoroughly recovered. Little more than a week ago he was attacked again, although apparently not with the same violence, and hopes were entertained of his recovery until Sabbath morning, when indications presented themselves that the end was approaching. He retained his consciousness to the last, and gave such assurance of his interest in the work of salvation, that his relatives feel that they are not called to sorrow as those that have no hope.

Mr. Dryden was a highly respected member of society, and by dint of industry, honesty and integrity won for himself a comfortable position, and the esteem of his most intimate friends.

In Stratford, on the 17th inst., James Parkinson, late of the Township of Eramosa, aged 65 years.

The deceased was one of the oldest settlers in Eramosa, and though he had for some time resided in Stratford, he was still regarded as one of our old settlers, and esteemed as such. For some time he had been afflicted with the disease known as diabetes, but it was through an attack of congestion of the lungs that he was carried off, and until the last it was hoped that he would overcome the attack. On Friday morning, when his brother, Mr. Lazarus Parkinson, left him, he was thought somewhat better, but after that the disease took a turn for the worse, and on Saturday the deceased succumbed to its power.

The deceased, with his father and mother and the rest of the family, came from Dundas to Eramosa in the year 1824—three years before there was a tree cut where Guelph now stands, and settled on the farm now occupied by Mr. Lazarus Parkinson. He took his share in all the toils and hardships of those early days, and made himself most useful in many ways as a carpenter and framer. Afterwards he settled on the farm he occupied until lately, near Rockwood, and in his own quiet and unostentatious way discharged faithfully his duties as head of his house, as a neighbor and a citizen, and earned the respect and good will of all who came in contact with him. His death leaves a blank in the ranks of one of the earliest and best known settlers in Eramosa.

IN LUCK.—Mr. J. J. Betts, a former resident in this city, but now proprietor of a grocery store in Orangeville, has fallen heir to a fortune in England, estimated at $150,000. Mr. Betts has left for England to claim his property.

NORFOLK STREET CHURCH.—The Ladies Aid Society, in connection with this church, give an entertainment in the church on Tuesday evening next. Refreshments are to be provided, after which a programme of music will be gone through with.

AT a meeting of Galt Town Council, held on Monday, it was unanimously decided to adopt a petition to the Governor-General in Council, praying that a Dominion subsidy may be granted in aid of the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway.

THE readers of "PAUL JONES" will no doubt be interested in the portion published to-day. An unusual amount of tenderness runs through the tale at this portion, and the writer has very nicely portrayed the closing scenes in the life of one of its characters presented.

C. V. RAILWAY.—A despatch from Fergus says the Credit Valley Railway was opened on Monday for passenger and freight traffic. The first train left at 8.25 a. m., and returned from Toronto about 7 p.m., a number of passengers being on each train.

THE SOCIAL AND LECTURE in the Primitive Methodist Church last night, was pretty well attended. After tea the company adjourned to the body of the church, and after singing and prayer the Rev. Mr. Boyle was introduced, and entertained the company with a very able lecture, taking for his subject "Formation of Character."

MANY of our readers will be pleased to learn that the Rev. Mr. Harris, who has lately been very unwell, was able to attend the entertainment in his church last evening, although the rev. gentleman is by no means in good health yet. Our best wishes are that he may soon be convalescent.

CITY COUNCIL.

Meeting of the New Council on Monday Evening.

Appointment of Standing Committees—A Question of Qualification.

The new Council met at 7.30 again on Monday evening; present, Mayor Sleeman, Ald. Stevenson, McGuire, Coffee, Gowdy, Chadwick, Robertson, Biscoe, Bruce, Hall, Grange, MacMillan, Doran, Lamprey, Tyson, Hart, McLagan and Hewer.

THE MINUTES.

Ald. Biscoe pointed out that the Returning Officer had mentioned at the morning session that one of the gentlemen at the Council Board was not qualified, as an Alderman which was omitted in the minutes. He rose to a question of privilege and moved, seconded by Mr. Robertson, that the Mayor be requested to rule on the question whether a member only qualified as a Councillor had a right to occupy a seat at this Council Board.

Ald. Coffee said this was a question which might take a good many legal gentlemen to decide, and it being beyond the Mayor's jurisdiction it was unfair to ask him to decide in the matter.

Ald. Bruce suggested that the matter be left over for consideration. There was a suit against the late Mayor arising out of a similar question on which the late Mayor had ruled.

Ald. Gowdy said Ald. Grange might simplify the matter if he were allowed to explain why he took his seat when only qualified as a Councillor.

Ald. Grange said that he took his seat under the following, being section 5, chapter 41, Ontario Statutes:—

"At any election in the said city prior to the first day of February next, after the passage of this Act, the qualifications of the electors shall be the same respectively as required in towns, and at all elections the qualifications of the electors, Mayor, Alderman and officers, shall be the same as that required in cities."

He had been elected and here he intended to stay till "led out by the ear."

Ald. McLagan and Gowdy in order to simplify the matter, moved that the Mayor be authorized to obtain the opinion of the city solicitor as to whether a gentleman, having the qualification of a Councillor was allowed to occupy a seat at the Council as an Alderman.

Ald. Biscoe withdrew his motion.

Ald. Tyson said it was useless to obtain the opinion of the city solicitor since the Council had done so in a precisely similar case.

Ald. MacMillan had never doubted but that the intention of the act was to place the privilege of the candidates and the electors on the same footing, If they saw fit to return a candidate only qualified as Councillor they were responsible, and it was not for the Mayor to decide. He believed that a qualification under the old act would prevail until February next.

Ald. Hart asked whether if Ald. Grange chose to vote and his vote carried a question it would be legal.

The Mayor said that it would not, and since the question was pressed so hard he would tell them that the gentleman referred to was not even qualified to sit at the Council as a Councillor according to the assessment roll.

Ald. McLagan and Gowdy moved that in order to ascertain the qualification under which Councillors and Aldermen can take their seats at the Council Board and whether persons tendering their qualifications papers as Councillors, instead of Alderman, can take their seats, the Mayor be authorized to consult the city Solicitor and report at a subsequent meeting of this Board.

Ald. Grange said he was assessed for $2,000 on the assessment roll.

The Mayor said he was assessed on Freehold property for $700 and on a leasehold for $1,300, but he had not occupied the leasehold property for upwards of nine months. The ground on which he had asked the gentleman in the forenoon not to take his seat was Harrison's Municipal Manual, the latter part of section 65:—"The office of Councilman in cities no longer exist."

Ald. McLagan's motion was then carried.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Messrs. J. D. Hutton and James Armstrong sent communications, asking to be re-appointed assessors.

PETITIONS.

Ald. Bruce—From Nelson Baker, praying to be refunded $1.50 paid as Separate School tax for James Robson.

Ald. Bruce—From Charles Davidson, asking remission of $9.50 paid as taxes on an unoccupied house.

Ald. Bruce—From J. G. Sutton, asking for six weeks in which to pay his taxes, amounting to $12.10, he not having been notified that he had to pay them until recently.

Ald. Bruce—From Mrs. Gibbs, asking to be exonerated from payment of taxes amounting to $9.

Ald. McLagan—From Thomas Cooley, asking to be refunded $1 paid as dog tax.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Board of Works—Ald. Chadwick, Lamprey, Bruce, Tyson, Stevenson and Hall.

Market House—Ald. Coffee, McLagan, Hart, McGuire, and Robertson.

Ald. Chadwick and Hall, moved the adoption of the report. Carried.

A MESSENGER.

Ald. Chadwick and Bruce, moved that the Mayor be authorized to secure the services of a messenger to attend all meetings of the council. Carried.

Ald. Biscoe and McGuire, moved that the By-Law Committee be instructed to introduce a by-law at next meeting for the appointment of Assessors for the current year. Carried.

Ald. Biscoe and Hall, moved that the Clerk be authorized to advertise for two collectors of taxes for the current year, all applications to be in by the 1st of Feb.

Ald. McGuire pointed out that it would incurr an unnecessary expense to advertise for collectors, and that it might not be well to supplant the present collectors, when they were getting properly acquainted with their work.

Ald. McLagan, thought Ald. McGuire was at fault. To his knowledge, the late Mr. Smith had held the office of collector for 15 years, and the position had been advertised each year. It did not follow that because they advertised for applicants for the position, that the present collectors were going to be supplanted.

The resolution was then passed.

Ald. McMillan and Lamprey, moved hat the Council adjourn. Carried.

The Council adjourned at 8.45.

CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEES.

After the meeting, the following were appointed Chairmen of the Standing Committees :—

Finance—Ald. McLagan.
Works—Ald. Chadwick.
Fire and Water—Ald. Gowdy.
Markets—Ald. Hart.
Relief—Ald. Hewer.
Parks and trees—Ald. Fairbank.
By-laws and Licenses—Ald. MacMillan.

Daily Mercury.

TUESDAY EV'G, JANUARY 20, 1880

The Mayor's Address.

The Mayor in his inaugural address to the City Council, at its first meeting on Monday, deals in a most liberal and enlightened spirit with every question of importance that is likely to engage their attention during the year. The subjects which would probably call for special attention during the year are very properly referred to in the Mayor's Address, and the recommendations connected therewith are judiciously advanced and ably supported. In short, the Address presents in an epitomized form the work that lies before the Council for the year, and if they do not act on the suggestions therein given, and take up, and act on them in due time, it will be their own fault, and not that of the Mayor, who has with a single eye to the future welfare and interests of the city, forshadowed the work that will be necessary to ensure its prosperity.

The Boundary Question.

We are glad to see that Mr. James Young has brought up the boundary question in the Ontario Legislature. The delay of the Dominion Government in settling this matter last session was without excuse, and could only be accounted for on the ground that that Government was anxious in every possible way to embarrass the Ontario Government in view of the forthcoming elections. Mr. Young stated the case well when he said :

"At the close of the last session of the Dominion Parliament there was a general feeling of regret that the result of the award had not formally been acknowledged by the Federal Government. Prior to the 5th of June last it was stated by one party that it was absolutely necessary to have the Dominion and Ontario Governments in accord, and there had been some who said that the Dominion legislation on this point was withheld until after the time of the election with a view to influencing the result so as to secure this accord. He did not claim that this was the case, but whether the Dominion Government had any good reason for the delay—and he had seen no such reason advanced in any of the public prints—would be shown by the returns when they were brought down. In a question of such gravity—one in which the rights of the Province were at least temporarily withheld—they should forget party and work together for the benefit of the Province. He trusted that the Attorney-General would fully understand that men of both parties would support him in any measure he might adopt which would secure the rights of the Province."

THREE additional French Canadian messengers from Point Levis have arrived for the House of Commons. It is rumoured that in order to economise time Speaker Blanchet, who has been in Levis for some time past, has engaged the whole sessional staff from among his own constituents. Of course the western Conservatives will humbly submit to the insult, and defend the action of Speaker Blanchet, for they cannot help themselves. The rule now is that no western man need apply where a French Canadian is available.

THE appointment of Mr. John J. McGee, brother of the late D'Arcy McGee, to the position of Deputy Clerk of the Privy Council, has caused dissatisfaction among Conservatives and Irish Catholics alike. Prominent Irish Catholics complain that some representative Irish Catholic should have been chosen, and not a person who is unknown to any considerable number of even his co-religionists.

THE Mail says :—"A noteworthy deviation from the generally prevalent spoils system in the States is to be made in the taking of the decennial census. Under the direction of General Francis A. Walker, the superintendent of the census, the appointment of supervisors and other officials will be made not on party grounds but by reason of fitness for the position. This is the more praiseworthy because the result directly affects politics, the appointment of Congressional representatives and Presidential electors among the States being made on the basis of the census returns." Might not the Mail recommend Sir John to pursue the same policy in his appointments for taking the next census in Canada. Its advice is most opportune and ought to be followed out to the letter.

THE Ottawa Herald—which is now the recognised organ of those Conservatives who repudiate the Mackintosh ring—referring to the shuffling of portfolios, says:—"We do not appear as apologist for the Government, but out of a spirit of justice we consider it our duty to state that Mr. O'Connor was promised the portfolio which he now holds several months ago—we might say, we believe, from the day Sir John resumed the reigns of power. There was nothing more likely than that the Reform journals would put forward the accusation that the recent Cabinet shuffle was done for political effect, or, in plainer language, to catch the Catholic vote in the approaching elections, and in making the changes at the particular moment perhaps the Government have been guilty of a piece of indiscretion that is much to be regretted."

THE Monetary Times says:—"We observe that it is proposed by the Local Government of Ontario to pass this session a measure providing for rateable distribution of assets of insolvent debtors among their creditors. The object of this is that such a law may be upon the Statute Book, to be available in case the present Insolvent Act is repealed at the approaching session of the Dominion House. This precaution is a wise one, for the manner in which the subject was handled less than twelve months since shows the impossibility of predicting what course may be taken this year. Still, it is by no means certain that the present act will be repealed, for there are reasons which will tend to make the opposition to the bankrupt law less urgent than it was a year ago. It is well, however, to be ready as far as possible for what may occur within a few months. A grave responsibility will rest on the Dominion Government if they allow the matter to be dealt with at all except as a Government measure."

THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC FOR 1880.

The simple announcement that THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC FOR 1880 is now ready is the only hint which the American public requires in reference to this annual register. This is the only Almanac published in the United States that has a National reputation. After the calendar pages and astronomical observations is placed a digest of the public laws of the regular and extra sessions of Congress, with summaries of the party platforms adopted in 1879 and the Constitutional Amendments enacted and sanctioned in various States. Among the Government, commercial and miscellaneous statistics are tables relating to railroad mileage and business, imports and exports, imports and exports of coin and bullion, National Bank, currency and savings bank tables, internal revenue statistics, public debt of the United States, and value in United States money of foreign coins, etc., etc.

THE ALMANAC has been compiled by the Hon. Edward McPherson, a statistician of National reputation, who has conducted the series for several years. The price remains as before—twenty-five cents for each copy—with the usual discount to the trade. THE ALMANAC for 1880 will be sent postpaid to any address in the United States, on receipt of the price, and all orders will receive immediate attention.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.— In the North American Review for February the first article is by Cardinal Manning, and treats of the relations of the Roman Catholic Church to modern society. Ex-Senator Howe contributes a pungent article entitled "The Third Term." He turns to ridicule the fears that have been expressed by sundry organs of popular opinion, lest by electing General Grant to a third term of office our republican institutions should be overturned, and "the empire" established. Rear-Admiral Daniel Ammen makes a very effective reply to M. de Lesseps's article on the American Interoceanic Canal. The advantages of a canal with locks over a canal a niveau are pointed out, and the French engineer's objections to a locked canal shown to be futile. George Augustus Sala contributes an entertaining article entitled "Now and Then in America," "now" being this present year of grace, and "then" 1863, the third year of our Civil War. "The Emancipation Proclamation," by James C. Welling, is a calm, judicial review of the crowning act of President Lincoln's administration. The considerations which forced Mr. Lincoln to issue that memorable proclamation as a measure of political expediency are convincingly set forth. The author furthermore learnedly discusses the legal effect of the proclamation, its constitutionality, etc. The book notices of this number of the Review are from the pen of M. W. Hazeltine.

The Review is for sale by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

Fire at St. George.

ST. GEORGE Ont., Jan. 20.—A building used as a drying or storehouse in rear of Snowball's waggon shop, was consumed by fire last night. A stable adjoining, belonging to Dr. Kitchen, was also destroyed with it. The former was full of hubs and other waggon material which was almost all lost. In a small stable in rear of it a cow belonging to L. Myers, was burned. Origin of fire unknown. Snowball's loss is about $1000, and Dr. Kitchen's about $500. Insurance light.

The English newspapers, in discussing the probability that Canada will join the American Union, say that Manitoba developes a capacity to supply the civilized world with wheat, and therein lies the source of renewed strength to the Empire.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.

Among the petitions presented was one by Mr. Laidlaw, from the County Council of Wellington, for a change in the system of conveying convicts, &c.

The following Bills were introduced and read the first time :—

To provide for the division of the township of Luther—Mr. McKim.

To amend the law for the protection of game and fur-bearing animals—Mr. Meredith.

Mr. Awrey asked if it is the intention of Government during the present session to introduce an amendment to the Election Law, so as to change the mode of marking the ballot, or to assimulate the form of ballot used at the Ontario elections to those used for Dominion elections.

Mr. Mowat said it was not the intention of the Government during the present session to introduce an amendment to the Election Law in the direction indicated. He did not think it was expedient to amend the Election Law from year to year. It might be proper in the last session to see whether some useful amendments might not be introduced, but until then he thought they had better postpone any legislation on this subject.

Mr. Metcalfe moved for an order for a return showing the cost of Grand Juries for the years 1876 and 1877 respectively, in each of the counties in Ontario. Also the number of criminal charges preferred, and how such charges were disposed of—Carried.

Mr. Young moved for an Address to the Lieut-Governor, praying that he will cause to be laid before this House any papers or correspondence which may have passed between the Government of the Province and that of the Dominion in regard to the confirmation of the award of the arbitrators in reference to the north-west boundaries of the Province. Carried.

Mr. Harcourt moved for an Order of the House for a return showing the aggregate fees received by each Judge of the County Court in this Province in connection with his duties as Judge of the Surrogate Court for the years 1878 and 1879. Carried.

Mr. Ross moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the Municipal Act. The present Bill is intended to legalize by-laws which had been voted on in accordance with the municipal law as it stood before the amendments of last session were made. Carried.

Mr. Mowat moved the second reading of a Bill for the relief of Co-operative Associations. Carried.

Mr. Mowat, the second reading of the Bill to make further provisions respecting Coroners' Inquests, explained that according to the existing law inquests were to be confined to cases where, from information received by the coroner, there is reason for believing that the deceased came to his death by other means than through mere accident or mischance, but that provision was somewhat ineffective in the operation of the law. The object of the present Bill was, therefore, to give effect to the provision by requiring coroners to make an affidavit in its terms before holding an inquest. In the less settled districts, however, it might be necessary for coroners to hold inquests without making such a declaration, and this Bill provided that where a County Attorney, or, in the Districts of Muskoka, Parry Sound, Thunder Bay, and Nipissing, a stipendary magistrate applied for an inquest in writing, the coroner was relieved from making any such affidavit. It was further proposed that a coroner should make a similar declaration with regard to post mortem examinations.

The bill was read a second time.

Proposed Appointment of a Hide Inspector.

The Butchers Protest Against the Appointment.

A meeting of the butchers was held yesterday afternoon to consider the matter of the proposed appointment of a Hide Inspector.

Those present were James Millar, Thomas Simpson, John Ellis, W. Fairbank, James Simpson, John Tyson, J. W. Tyson, John M. Tyson, B. B. Presant, J. W. Smart, James Hales, S. Barber, F. Smith, George Clayton, John Fennel, Wm. McHardy, George Woods, John Roberts, W. Woods, F. Simmons, John R. Hood, W. Watson, James Hodgson, John Hood, A. Johnston. W. Farr, W. Barney, John Hodgson, Leonard Barber.

Ald. Tyson was called to the chair, and Mr. J. R. Hood was appointed Secretary.

The chairman explained the object of the meeting which was to endeavor to counteract the action recently taken by the Board of Trade, with a view towards the appointment of a hide inspector. Such inspector was unnecessary, and the whole matter was brought up by a person who was an applicant for the position.

After some discussion

Messrs. J. Miller and J. W. Tyson moved, that the secretary be instructed to forward a memorial to the Board of Trade, pointing out to that body the fact that hide inspection has given great dissatisfaction in Toronto and Hamilton; that the meeting feels assured that the appointment of a hide inspector in Guelph will be not only unnecessary but positively injurious to the trade; that the trade in hides has always been conducted here in a manner quite satisfactory to all parties concerned; and that it is the unanimous desire of this meeting that no inspector be appointed. Carried.

Messrs. Roberts and Clayton afterwards moved that the Chairman, Secretary and Messrs. Fairbank, Millar, Clayton, John Ellis and Thomas Simpson be a Committee to wait upon the Board of Trade with the petition, at the next meeting of that body. Carried.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Chairman, after which the meeting adjourned.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Cloudy rather colder weather with snow areas.

Maine's troubles are not yet ended. The Republicans hold possession of the Capitol, and on Monday it was guarded like a feudal castle. The Fusionist Legislature marched in a body to the gates, but were refused admission, whereupon they held a short session on the pavement. They have secured a hall, and will continue to sit as a legislative body from day to day. It is thought probable that they will appeal their cause to the National Congress.

MGR. SCANDELLA.—The Toronto Tribune says : "The newspapers are again busying themselves with the report, first started about three months ago, and which we then pronounced inaccurate, that Mgr. Scandella, Bishop of Gibraltar, has been appointed Apostolic Delegate to this country, as successor to the late Mgr. Conroy. We have good reason to believe that this is merely a revival of the old report; and that it has no better basis to rest upon than it had before. Parties circulating such statements seem not to be aware that the office with the duties of which the late Mgr. Conroy was charged, is not one requiring the appointment of a successor in the ordinary course of events; when occasion requires a like appointment in the future, the new Apostolic Delegate will come not as successor to any one, but simply as the representative of His Holiness the Pope."

DOMINION TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE. — At the meeting of the Ontario Branch of this Alliance, held in Toronto last week, the following officers were elected for the current year :—President, Rev. E. H. Dewart, D. D. Secretary, Mr. John McMillan. Treasurer, Rev. T. W. Campbell, M. A., Vice-Presidents, T. W. Casey, Napanee; Thomas Webster, Brantford; Rev. Father Stafford, Lindsay; Rev. Dr. Davidson, Chatham; Rev. A. M. Phillips, Chatham; Rev. Mr. McAllister, Oakville; Mr. D. B. Chisholm, Hamilton; Judge Jones, Brantford; Mr. John Cameron, London; Mr. Wm. Beatty, L. L. B., Parry Sound; Rev. Wm. McKay, Woodstock; Sir L. Tilley, Ottawa; Prof. Mowat, Kingston; Sir W. P. Howland, Toronto; Rev. John Shaw, Whitby.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

CHAPTER XXI.

A LONG UNEXPLAINED ABSENCE—MR. BISHOP'S BASINESS—ANTHONY LANGTON'S DUPLICITY THROUGH THE VALLEY.

"Good morning, Bishop! How do you do, sir; how do you do? We don't see each other often now!" he exclaimed, with a show of cordiality which to the lawyer, who knew him well, seemed unnatural.

"How do you do, Mr. Langton? As you say, sir, our meetings have been seldom since the trust we jointly held came to an end," returned Mr. Bishop, as he took the chair to which the other pointed.

"Just so. We have each our own affairs to attend to. How are you getting on at the Grange?"

"Not well, I am sorry to say. This prolonged and unaccountable absence of Mr. Bruce is greatly to be regretted. Are you still in ignorance, Mr. Langton, of where he is to be found?"

"In perfect ignorance, I assure you."

"It is very strange, I should have thought your son would have kept you informed of their movements."

"Oh dear no. Reuben is the very worst of correspondents. Many a blowing up I have given him for it, but it makes no difference. However, I don't think you need be under any alarm. The young men are safe enough, I daresay."

"They may be safe enough, but that is not the question," returned Mr. Bishop gravely. "Are you aware, Mr. Langton, that Miss Bruce is dying?"

"Oh dear, oh dear, I am very sorry to hear it. But I hope you are mistaken. She has been as ill before and rallied."

"The doctor assures me she will not rally this time—that in point of fact she has not many days to live. You see then how desirable—how essential it is for Orwell to be here. I have done all I can to hasten his return. I have sent a letter under cover to his London bankers, who must surely know how to forward it to him, telling him of his sister's condition, and imploring him to come home immediately. This was a month ago, and I have had no reply."

"Oh, it is unfortunate certainly, but you see I question if the bankers do know where to send your letter. Doubtless, Mr. Bruce when he left, took a stock of money sufficient to serve the trouble of application to London for more, in which case the bankers will be as ignorant of where he is as we are.

"I am very sure that is not so," returned Mr. Bishop in an emphatic tone. "I have too good reason to think that Orwell since he obtained the control of his affairs, has been recklessly extravagant, and could not be absent for more than two years without drawing on his bankers."

"Ah, you think he has been extravagant then," said Langton in an interrogative tone, and another momentary look of sharpest keenness into the lawyer's face.

"I do think so, I have had various tokens of it; and between ourselves I may say, Mr. Langton, that these same London bankers, to whom I make all remittances direct, have instructed me to reduce expenses and practise all possible economy."

"Have they indeed," returned the other lowering his eyes to the glazed sleeve of his dressing gown. "Then, if I were you, I would obey their instructions to the very utmost of your power, for depend upon it they would not have sent them had they not been necessary."

"I am aware of that, and shall not fail to give strict attention."

"That's right—that's right," cried Langton in a tone of satisfaction, which did not escape the lawyer's notice.

"But why should there be such pressing need for economy?" he observed. "When Orwell came of age he received, as you know, a large sum which had accumulated during our trusteeship. The free annual income from the Grange is far more than a young man with almost no domestic establishment to maintain should spend. Why then should there be any tightness?"

"Well, of course, there should not be any tightness," returned Langton slowly, "but at his age young men are generally thoughtless, especially when free from supervision as Orwell is. It was a thousand pities his father's settlement gave him absolute power so soon."

"It was indeed. Then do I understand, Mr. Langton, that you can suggest no way of communicating with Orwell?"

"No, my dear sir, I really cannot. Let us hope he will return soon."

"Unless he do so very soon he will not see his sister alive. She is quite aware that death is near, and I don't know what to advise regarding her testamentary arrangements."

"Why should you advise anything?" asked Langton quietly. "Orwell is her only brother, her only relation, therefore her heir. A will is not necessary."

"She may wish to leave legacies to her attendants and the servants. I am sure she desires to provide for Miss Elliot and Agnes Borland, also to leave some token of remembrance to the rest of the domestics."

"She is not of age, she can't make a will," said Langton, sharply.

"I know that, but had Orwell been here she would have told him what she wished, and he would not have failed to give effect to her desires."

"But as Orwell is not here nothing can be done. I advise you, Bishop, not to interfere in such a matter. You are not called on to do so."

This counsel and the manner in which it was given, occasioned a feeling of surprise in the lawyer's mind. It seemed as if Anthony Langton had a personal interest in keeping May Bruce from making even an informal settlement of her affairs. Yet how could this possibly be? There was no conceivable reason why he should feel any such interest, and, unable to reconcile the idea suggested by Langton's manner with the facts of the case, Mr. Bishop took his leave, utterly disappointed in the object for which he had come to Cairnbank.

From one of the windows in the dining room Anthony Langton watched the lawyer's receding figure as he walked down the avenue, and when that figure had gone quite out of sight he returned to his business room by the door of communication, where, unlocking one of his private drawers, he took therefrom a letter which he had received by post that very morning. The outside cover bore the London postmark, and the address was in a round business hand, but the letter itself was dated from a German watering place, and was written and signed by Reuben Langton. The following is an abstract from it:—

"All is gone but the last five thousand, and, as he refuses to play any more here, I must take him to Paris to get rid of the remainder. It will be difficult, for he is sometimes in a dreadful way about what he has lost, and vehemently vows never to touch card or dice more. Upon my soul, I am afraid to think what the upshot may be when the whole is gone, he has already given signs of such mental desperation; but, of course, when he is cleaned out in Paris I can leave him and not be a witness of his mad violence. I half believe he sometimes suspects me, and I have to take special pains to put his suspicions to sleep. When the last stake is lost I quite expect a scare; but, as we shall then have gained all we want, I shall quarrel with him and separate. Don't you think this the best way?"

To the last question in Reuben's letter his father was busy writing an emphatic YES, when Mr. Bishop was announced. He had also expressed in guarded words his satisfaction with the manner in which Reuben had carried out their plans, adding that Miss Bruce was very ill, and not likely to survive the autumn, but of course, to say nothing of that to Orwell—to suffer nothing to interfere with the completion of the project which had taken them abroad. Thus far had he got in the penning of his epistle when interrupted by his visitor. No wonder that he paused a moment ere admitting him to his business room; no wonder that he carefully put Reuben's letter and his unfinished reply into a drawer ere he gave orders for the lawyer to be admitted. Now that the latter was gone, he resumed writing, and gave Reuben a succinct account of the interview which had just taken place. "Evidently," he went on—"evidently his sister is now very near her end, which is extremely fortunate. In fact, nothing could happen better for us. Bishop spoke of her making a will, leaving legacies to this one and the other, little knowing that she has nothing to dispose of, but well enough aware that, even if she had, she is not of age to execute such a deed. Should she die soon, I will not lose a moment in sending you word. Meanwhile, I hope to hear from you that the last five thousand are gone, after which everything is safe."

This reply the writer despatched under cover to a confidential agent in London, who would report it to the address in Paris which was given in the letter. He had just sealed the precious missive and deposited it in the mail bag when an intimation that dinner was ready reached him, and, entering the dining room, he ate a hearty dinner, dispensed to him by his daughter Maria, who wondered why "papa" was in such high spirits and insisted on having two helpings to everything.

Meanwhile as the dark-souled, cruel-hearted plotter sat gobbling up the dishes, which would never fatten his withered frame, and chuckling over the well assured prospect of success, a very different scene was transpiring in the invalid's chamber at the Grange between its fragile dying occupant and the lawyer who had so lately quitted Cairnbank. Mr. Bishop had no intention of calling again at the mansion on his way home, but, as he was pursuing the path which skirted the policies, Agnes Borland, who was on the outlook for him, interrupted his progress with a message from Miss May to the effect that she wanted to see him. On entering her chamber he found her reclining on a couch near the window, propped up with pillows, gazing with her large wistful eyes on the sunlet autumn landscape with its glorious purple, red and yellow tints—the most beautiful which the foliage wears when hastening to decay.

The lawyer was startled by the strange unearthly vision which his eye beheld. The thin frame seemed transparent, spiritualised, as if the body which had hitherto concealed as well as contained the soul, had wasted away till its groseness was gone, and its immortal inhabitant revealed itself through the attenuated organism. A feeling of profound awe and tenderest pity filled his bosom as he carefully, timidly, touched the wasted hand she held towards him.

"Oh, Mr. Bishop," she said in a weak voice, "has Mr. Langton been able to give you any tidings of Orwell?"

"None, my dear young lady, I am sorry to say he is as ignorant of where your brother is as we all are."

"Alas! alas! then I shall die without seeing him. God's will be done. If I do not see him again on earth we shall meet in the better land. Tell him, Mr. Bishop, that was my hope, my prayer."

"He may return soon, and you may grow stronger," said the lawyer, with a pardonable effort to disguise his real conviction.

May slowly shook her head. "I am so weak now," she murmured, "that I feel as if this were my very last day here; and but for the wish to see Orwell, I should be glad—oh, so glad—to exchange this prostration for the heavenly strength which through a Saviour's mercy shall be mine. I am not afraid to die, Mr. Bishop. I do not feel sad though I think I am gazing on that beautiful landscape for the last time. Very beautiful it is, oh, beautiful, exceedingly, but what is it to the glories of the heavenly country—where I am going—which I shall, perhaps, see to morrow with other eyes than these poor orbs of clay which now can hardly bear the unveiling of their lids— stay, I must not exhaust myself in speaking thus. I have other words to speak to you. I want to leave a thousand pounds to Miss Elliott, a thousand pounds to Agnes Borland, and fifty pounds to each of the servants."

"My dear young lady, I do not know how that can be arranged," faltered the lawyer, his voice trembling with emotion. "You are not of age, and cannot legally execute a will."

"That is not necessary," she returned, with a faint smile. "Tell Orwell this was my wish, and he will give them the money."

After a minute of silent, troubled perplexity, the lawyer said—"I had better write a letter to Orwell in your name to this effect, and you will sign it."

"Oh, yes, yes, that will do nicely. You will find writing materials on that table."

She sank back exhausted with the interview, and Mr. Bishop in alarm was about to ring for Miss Elliot and Agnes, but she gently requested him not do so—not till she had written and signed the letter.

A very few minutes sufficed to reduce to writing the wishes May had expressed. The bequests, as she had named them, did not amount to more than three thousand pounds, not a large portion of the money which had been left to her by her father, and such as the generous heart of Orwell would not grudge who knew it was his sister's dying wish. But, of course, Mr. Bishop knew that the letter he had written was of no legal force, even when signed, as it was now about to be; but the lawyer said within himself that Orwell's nature must be utterly changed if he refused to execute its provisions with scrupulous exactness.

At May's request Mr. Bishop lifted her into a sitting posture and held the letter before her on the blotting book till she should affix her signature. This she did with wonderful firmness and regularity, but the moment the last letter was formed the pen fell from her weak fingers, and with a sigh she lay back on the cushions and closed her weary eyes. He saw her lips move, and bent his ear to catch the words,

"Keep the letter," she whispered, "till—till Orwell come."

In obedience to this direction he dried the writing, and folding the paper, deposited it in his pocket-book. As his long stay would now have been cruelty to the exhausted girl he prepared to go, and again bending over the fragile form he softly said—"Good-by, my dear."

"Not good-by," she murmured, "but farewell. Kiss me, Mr. Bishop, and say farewell."

With the gentleness of a mother towards her babe the lawyer, his eyes filled with tears, gathered her wasted form to his bosom, laid his lips gently on hers, and in the fullness of his emotion fervently whispered—

"Farewell, my dear, dear May! The Lord bless thee and keep thee, the Lord lift his countenance upon thee and give thee peace."

"Amen!" she answered, as her cold, blue lips returned his kiss.

REAL SWISS EMBROIDERIES.

After some little negotiations we have just succeeded in closing a rare purchase of lovely new Swiss Embroideries, in handsome medium and wide widths, at a very low figure, and purpose at once submitting them to our customers for sale.

This purchase comprises somewhat in the neighborhood of 3,000 yards all new, handsome and lovely patterns, and having been bought away down below anything like regular prices, will at the prices we shall put upon them disappear from our counter rapidly. We fully expect that ten days will clear the lot, so that intending purchasers will have to look lively.

The like of these goods will probably never be seen again in Canada.

We may just say, too, in connection with these goods that the latest spring and summer fashions indicate that White Skirts, handsomely trimmed with embroidery, will be all the rage. This will therefore present to the ladies of Guelph a favorable opportunity of purchasing the right material almost at their own price.

ON THURSDAY MORNING,

at 10 o'clock, these goods will be to hand, and ladies will please bear in mind that those who come first will have the best choice.

ON THE SAME DAY WE SHALL SHOW

MESSRS O'DONNELL & Co.

THE PUBLIC WILL BE PLEASED to hear that the above firm, on Wednesday, November 5th, will open out a fine stock of fresh Teas, Coffees, Sugars, &c., in their new store, on Upper Wyndham Street opposite Ellis' American Hotel.

As they had a large stock of teas purchased before the last rise in prices, they will be able to give bargains that cannot be got elsewhere.

Owing to their great experience in this special line there is no doubt but they will monopolize a large portion of the tea trade of Guelph.

SMOKERS,

I will unhesitatingly guarantee my

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process brough which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial.

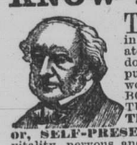
ay across the park, with his eyes so dim and such a lump in his throat that, turning aside into a thicket, he was not ashamed to relieve his feelings by a fit of weeping, which did honour to his heart, and brought no reproach on his manhood or his professional reputation.

Three days later the most solemn of all earthly scenes was witnessed by streaming eyes in that same room where the lawyer's feelings had been so deeply touched. Early in the afternoon it was evident to those about her that May Bruce was about to realize the great change—that the death-angel, who had long hovered near, was at length stooping down on sable pinion to release the spirit and waft it away to realms of light. At the dying one's request, the servants were summoned to behold the peaceful close, for very peaceful it promised to be. The body was too much spent to make any struggle with the last enemy, but while it lay in the very extremity of weakness the mental lamp seemed to burn as clear as ever. She whose life was thus ebbing away was by far the calmest of the group, the grieving onlookers being prevented from bursting forth in lamentation only by the knowledge that it would disturb the last moments of their beloved mistress. On one side knelt Miss Elliot, on the other Agnes Borland, each holding a hand which cold chill of death had already touched, and Miss Elliot at intervals uttering words of comfort from the Divine source which all comfort flows, the oft repeated murmur of her lips being—

"When I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."



"True—oh—how true," said the dying one in a breathing whisper, while a seraphic smile illumined her pale face. "I am in the valley—I fear—no evil—I am happy—happy."

As the last rays of the setting sun lighted with golden radiance the tree tops and the uplands, May's pure, ransomed spirit took its silent flight. She glided peacefully out of the dark valley into the region of eternal light, and in heaven a new voice was heard in the celestial choir which ceases not day nor night to sing the song of the redeemed.

An Exodus to the States.—The emigration to the United States from the Ottawa District still continues and a warm supporter of the "National Policy" is scattering broadcast literature praising the lands in Kanzas as the best for settlement. On Thursday next a large party of young men leave for California to work in the Samona County gold diggings at $75 per month, and on the same day a second party leaves to try their fortune in the Pacific Province.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4d w9md

DISTRESS IN IRELAND.

Appeal to the People of Canada.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—The following is the appeal to the people of Canada from the Dublin Mansion House Committee of Relief:—

The distress is of an accute and exceptional character, and certain to involve actual starvation if extraneous aid be not promptly and liberally forthcoming. It exists over wide districts of Ireland. This distress daily increases in area and in its intensity; so much so that it seems almost impossible to avert until next harvest an absolute famine in very many places. Every effort is made in Ireland itself, as well by local as by central relief committees, to mitigate the calamity, but owing to the general commercial and agricultural depression and to the widespread character of the distress these have proved totally inadequate to meet the crisis. We therefore appeal with confidence to all Irishmen and all friends of Ireland for aid in our efforts to save the people from destruction. Already munificent donations or promises of assistance have reached us from several parts of the United States, from Australia and elsewhere. We feel that we have only to make known the sad position of the Irish people to ensure everywhere a generous response. We would point to the constitution of our committee, which comprises representative men of the highest character and position in the country, and of all creeds and politics; both as an assurance that this appeal is justified, and that any funds entrusted to us shall be distributed in the manner best calculated to meet the emergency. It will be seen from the resolutions we append that this Central Committee distributes its relief through local Committees, of which the clergy of all denominations in the district and the Poor Law medical officers must be members, and requires that the relief shall be given only in kind and not in money.

Here follow the signatures of the treasurers, secretaries and committees.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Jules Favre, an eminent French statesmen and Republican member of the Senate, also a member of the French Academy, died on Monday at Versailles, aged seventy-one.

A Rome despatch says the Pope is surprised and indignant at Cardinal McCloskey's reception of Parnell in New York, and has ordered the Papal Secretary of State to telegraph Cardinal McCloskey for information. The Pope is confined to his bed.

There is much surprise in Tokio over the announced intention of Japan to fix higher Custom duties upon American than upon English imports. The remonstrances of the United States Minister will doubtless prove effective.

The Government of South Australia are prosecuting an action for nearly $1,250,000 against Messrs. Hopkins, Gilkes & Co., the great English ironmasters, for supplying defective railway rails.

Thomas Landseer, R. A., engraver, elder brother of the late Sir Edwin Landseer, is dead.

Daoud Shah, late commader-in-chief of the army of the ex-Ameer, and now a prisoner, has arrived in Calcutta.

Confirmatory intelligence has been received of the defeat of the Russians at Tchikishlar.

Owing to strong intercessions from foreign private sources, the barbarous sentences of mutilation passed upon the surviving relatives of Yakub, the ex ruler of Kashgar, have been commuted to life imprisonment.

THE TROUBLES IN IRELAND.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Near Balla in the County on Sunday the parish priest ordered a meeting in favor of a National Land League dispensed, and said he would have no secret organizations in his parish. The crowd became excited, cheered Parnell, and refused to disperse.

The Irish National Land League resolved to hold a great meeting in the Phœnix Park in furtherance of the land movement, on February 22nd.

Vere Foster, of Belfast, offers to denote $75,000 to assist emigration from Donegal, Clare, Kerry, Cork and Connaught to Canada and the Western States of America.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—A meeting of thirty-three Home Rule members of Parliament, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, passed a resolution calling upon the Government to institute relief works. Shaw said the Government wilfully shut its eyes to the distress of Ireland. Henry said if demands were not complied with they must force compliance by constitutional action or otherwise.

The meeting passed resolutions in favor of fixity of tenure and peasant proprietary, and to move an amendment to the Address should the Queen's speech contain nothing in reference to the distress in Ireland. The Lord Mayor refused to receive a resolution expressing sympathy with the peasantry of West Ireland in their struggle to retain their holdings, on the ground that the struggle has assumed an aspect of physical force. During an excited debate Biggar declared that Shaw was not the leader of the Irish people, but Parnell was.

Guelph Curling Club.

A meeting of this club was held last night, Mr. Mills, President, in the chair.

It was moved and seconded that the following skips be appointed to play in the match between Guelph and Toronto, with power to choose their own men: D. Kennedy, A. Robertson, jr., Thos. Dobbie, Robt. Mitchell.

The skips to play against Elora were also appointed. The names are the same as those appointed for Toronto with the exception of Robt. Mitchell, Jas. Emslie, being appointed in his stead.

It was agreed that the rink medal be played for by ends. Nineteen ends was the number fixed on.

The Secretary, Mr. Murton, reported that there were now 55 members in good standing on the membership roll.

PAY UP.

We are now sending out our accounts for advertising and job work, and have to request that prompt payment be made.

Local News.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES. — Colder weather, with snow areas.

Mayor Sleeman and Mr. Harvey, City Treasurer, left for Toronto today to draw $25,000 on Water Works Debentures.

DISORDERLY HOUSE.—Isaac Mills appeared at the Police Court to-day for keeping a disorderly house on Waterloo street. The case was enlarged till Monday, the prisoner being remanded.

THE Ladies' Aid Society of the Norfolk street Methodist Church hold their entertainment on Thursday evening of next week, instead of Tuesday evening.

FOR THE OLD COUNTRY.—Mr. David Hogg, of the firm of John Hogg & Son, left this afternoon to visit the European markets, where he goes to purchase a fresh stock of dry goods.

MISS NEILSON.—Tickets for Miss Neilson's performance in Hamilton next Thursday evening, are being bought up rapidly. A special train is to run on the Great Western Railway from Hrrrisburg on the occasion, for which tickets will be issued at reduced rates.

THE DOG TAX.—The Mayor in his inaugural address recommended the abolition of the present dog tax to be replaced by a system of licensing dogs. Under this system a check will be given on payment of the license fee, and dogs not licensed will have to be destroyed.

CONCERT AT ROCKWOOD. — On Monday evening Rev. Mr. Banyons' band of jubilee singers, gave a concert in the Village Hall. The hall was well filled with a highly interested audience. The programme was most successfully rendered, and if repeated would draw a crowded house. The proceeds amounted to $66.75.

RELIEF. — Alderman Hewer, chairman of the relief committee of the city council, is having an office fitted up in the western part of the city hall. He will be at this office from three to four o'clock each afternoon to receive applications for relief. He will not hear applications at any other time, and applicants must bring their recommendations with them.

DRUNKENNESS. — John Mitchell was arrested while on Wyndham street in a drunken state, by constable Lynch, yesterday afternoon. When arrested Mitchell was trying to break through the window of Marcon's seed store. At the police court this morning he was sentenced to ten days in gaol.

PRESENTATION.—At the annual meeting of the Erin Presbyterian congregation, Mr Jas. Young, precentor, was made the recipient of a pocket-book containing $40. Mr. Wood, on behalf of the congregation, read an address expressive of the high esteem in which the members of the congregation held him, and trusting that he would long be among them. Mr. Young thanked them kindly for the handsome present. He felt that his connection with the congregation had always been a pleasant one, and hoped that it might long continue.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS' DRESS.—Mrs. Scott Siddons gave a reading at the Asbury University, Greencastle, Ind., for the benefit of the Institution. She wore a handsome evening dress, cut as low at the neck as is ordinarily worn. On the following morning she attended the religious service, and was vehemently prayed for by a professor, who described her dress to Providence as disgraceful to herself and insulting to the audience. The students, however, have taken her part, and the controversy is very warm.

BRITISH MORTGAGE LOAN COMPANY OF ONTARIO.—We have received the first annual report of the British Mortgage Loan Company of Ontario, located at Stratford, which shows the company to be in a flourishing condition. Our old friend, Mr. Wm. Buckingham, late Private Sec. to Hon. Alex. McKenzie, is manager of the company, and we are glad to see that the company has been so prosperous under his care.

DIVISION COURT RETURNS.—The annual report of the Inspector of Division Courts for the Province of Ontario, gives the following statistics in connection with the Division Court at Guelph:—The number of suits entered in court exclusive of transcripts of judgments and judgment summonses were 733; the amount of claims entered exclusive of transcripts of judgments and judgment summonses was $20,013.79; the number of transcripts of judgments received from other courts were 41; the amount of transcripts of judgments from other courts was $1,148.30; the number of judgments summonses issued were 68; the total amount of suitors money paid into court was $7,524.28; the total amount of suitors money paid out of court was $7,150.21.

FRANKLIN'S KITE.—The following is from the Pioneer Press, St. Paul:—It is only just to say that Prof. Richards has kept the best for the last; for his work last night was of surprising interest, and gave unqualified delight to the audience gathered at the Pavilion. * * * * Prof. Richards seemed like a magician, bringing out of simple glass tubes the most exquisite forms of variegated light—crosses, crowns, and figures of great beauty. His display of electric fireworks was far more fascinating than ordinary fireworks, and kept the great audience in continuous excitement and applause. * * * * One of the greatest wonders of the evening was the beating of the so-called "goblindrum," which illustrated the principle of the telegraphic transmission of sound. Altogether the entertainment was one of the rarest ever given in the name and interest of science in the great Northwest.

LARCENY OF SKATES.—It will be remembered that about two weeks ago four pairs of skates and a pair of shoes were stolen from the skating rink. Last week it was announced that the police had recovered the stolen property. Some of the lads implicated in the theft kept out of the way, and the police did not make any arrest in connection with the affair until all the miscreants could be captured. On Tuesday night they were arrested and this (Wednesday) forenoon appeared at the police court. Samuel Platt, Daniel Keough and William Keough were tried for stealing the articles. The Magistrate discharged them on account of their youth, but they will not be dealt with so leniently on a further appearance. John Brown, aged about 15 years, for receiving the skates and shoes, knowing that they were stolen, was sentenced to 30 days in gaol.

Meeting of Presbytery.

The Presbytery of Guelph held their usual bi-monthly meeting on Tuesday, according to appointment, in Chalmers' Church, Elora. After the making up of the Roll, and sustaining the minutes of the last meeting, congregations were called on to make their payments to the Treasurer of the amounts falling due from them to the Presbytery Fund. The Committee appointed to prepare for a Conference on the state of religion reported, recommending that the same be held at the meeting in March, in the afternoon, immediately after the election of Commissioners to the General Assembly, and that the question for consideration be the best means of promoting greater cordiality in and among our congregations, to be introduced by Mr. Torrance. The remits from the General Assembly were then taken up. It was agreed to recommend that ministers retiring from the active duties of their office, with the permission of the Assembly, in consequence of old age or infirmity, and residing in the bounds of the Presbytery in which they held their charge, should be allowed to retain all their powers as members of the Court. Considerable discussion was caused by the remitt on Theological Degrees, but the decision arrived at, by a majority of thirteen to seven, was to disapprove of the principle of establishing a Presbyterian University for the conferring of such Degrees. Three motions and amendments were proposed on the question of recognising the validity of ordination by the Church of Rome, but ultimately it was resolved to appoint a committee to consider the question, prepare a deliverance, and report at next meeting. The Draft Act on the reception of ministers was approved, and the Assembly recommended to enact it as a standing law. A petition for a moderation in a call was presented from the congregation of Calvin Church, Rothsay and Moorefield, when it was resolved that it be not granted in the meantime, but that instructions be given to call a regular meeting of the congregation through the Session, see that all arrears due their late minister be paid, and that arrangements be made to pay in future the stipend promised quarterly or half yearly, instead of at the end of the year as proposed. Mr. Millican was authorized to moderate in a call at Erin and Aspringe, on such a day as may be found most convenient. These congregations offer a stipend of seven hundred dollars and free house. Arrangements were made for the supply of St. Andrew's Church, Galt, till next meeting. The attention of the Presbytery was called to the fact that one of the members had not fulfilled his appointment to this church, and the clerk was instructed to write him and inquire the reason.

It was also reported that a tea meeting was to be held this evening in one of the congregations in the bounds, and the clerk was instructed to write to the minister of the same, ascertain the facts, and ask an explanation. Certain claims by Probationers and Missionary Catechist, who had been labouring in the bounds were submitted, examined, and ordered to be paid. The clerk submitted his report of supply and distribution among the vacancies for the quarter; he further gave in the names of congregations that had paid the sums due by them to the Synod and Assembly Expense Funds. A circular was read from the convener of the Home Mission Committee, asking the Presbytery to inquire at congregations if they had contributed to the Home Mission Fund, and the amount raised by each. The Clerk was authorized to collect the information and submit it to an adjourned meeting appointed to be held in Knox Church, Guelph, on Tuesday, 17th February, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and to intimate that those congregations which had not contributed, would be visited by a Presbyterial deputation. A statement was submitted from the General Agent of the Church, showing the amounts paid by the several congregations in the bounds to the different schemes of the Church up to the 15th January. Next regular meeting was appointed to be held in Knox Church, Guelph, on the third Tuesday of March, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

In the evening at seven o'clock, the Presbytery met as a Sabbath School Conference, and is to continue its sittings over Wednesday. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Ball, Moderator.

CITY COUNCIL.—The following is the Finance and Assessment Committee of the City Council:—Ald. McLagan (chairman), Coffee, McMillan, Hart and Robertson.

VAGRANCY.—Moses Weldon, arrested yesterday, and charged at the Police Court to-day with vagrancy, was discharged.

BREACH OF THE HEALTH BY-LAW.—Joseph Murchy was charged with a breach of the Health by-law, having emptied slops on the public street. He was fined $1 and costs amounting to $3.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—Our informant omitted the name of Mr. B. Fairley in the list of managers of this Church. Mr. R. W. Stewart was appointed Secretary-Treasurer and Mr. James Bryce, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer.

GEORGIA MINSTRELS.—Mr. C. W. Pringle, general agent for Sprague's Georgia Minstrels, is in the city. These minstrels who have gained a wide spread reputation for their excellence will occupy the boards on Tuesday evening.

CHEAP FARMING LANDS.—Those of our readers in want of good farms, on which there are considerable improvements, should not fail to read the advertisement in another column, of the extensive auction sale, to be held on Wednesday, 4th February, fair day. This will offer a rare chance to procure well improved farms cheap, and on reasonable terms of payment. See adv't.

INDIAN CONCERT.—The Indian concert in St. George's Hall last night, passed off satisfactorily as far as the performance was concerned, but there was anything but a good attendance. The interest of those present was kept up from commencement to conclusion of the programme, the different selections being exceedingly well rendered. Each member of the company is gifted with a good voice, well cultivated, but the base of Mr. Mah-Kooce surpassed that commonly heard in first-class concert companies. The performance concluded with the National Anthem.

Mr. Bodwell is still in Ottawa, and has not yet received his instructions. He is busying himself perfecting a system to carry on the railway work in British Columbia.

Cure for Hard Times.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—That hard times is a serious disorder, and of a complicated character there can be no doubt, and as yet no system of treatment has been discovered that will speedily remove the malady. It is true there are certain simple remedies known to the faculty which if applied in time will do much to alleviate the complaint. But alas, sir, you know as well as I, that the sufferer is often so obstinate as to refuse to be treated until the disease becomes so serious as to endanger the patient's existence, who often indeed becomes so emaciated that ultimate recovery is despared of. Sir, it is said that "coming events cast their shadows before," the adage is an old one, but wears well, and is as true to-day as at any former time. I remember that only a few short years ago, hard times in this fair country were a mere tradition, a thing of the past, and that the poor were not then with us. Ah! sir, these were happy days indeed, and truth to say, the National Policy was then unknown, and the rag baby lay in the womb of the future. As the Survivor would say, "I have made a slight deflection, and must get on the line again." I do not wish to be understood as being in opposition to a prudent National Policy or to a practicable paper money scheme, if it be an honest one. To come to the point. It is too much the habit of people to attribute their misfortunes to anything rather than their own improvidence, and I am bold to maintain that the crisis we are just now happily emerging from proceeded chiefly from the extravagance of the people. The masses were living improvidently, and contracting habits inimical to thrift, and the curse has been a pernicious one, whose future is influenced by their present extravagance.

Adversity is a hard yoke to bear, but it has its uses—the lessons it teaches are salutary—and he only is wise, who profits by the lesson.

I hope, sir, I am too well disposed to envy happiness in others, and the pursuit of happiness seems to be the chief concern of most folks. When I stand by and gaze contemplatively on the pursuers, I cannot but think, Sir, when I consider their various paces and directions, how many will fail in their endeavors.

Moral—Be frugal, industrious, waste not, want not, avoid shoddy and vulgar ostentation. How many of the vulgar shoddy people come to grief whenever there is a commercial difficulty. Indeed, it may be, that our troubles are traceable to the shoddy mode of life that has of late years largely prevailed.

I had not intended when I set out, to write a homily, but such is my humour at this writing, that I could not resist the inclination.

The writer having some little stake in this city, desires to the best of his ability, to assist in promoting its interest, and is willing on conditions, not at all difficult to perform, to give a clear deed of two good corner lots near the Great Western station. The conditions are that the citizens, who like myself are interested in the general prosperity, contribute a sum of two thousand dollars in cash for the erection of a Malleable Iron Foundry—that will employ not less than a dozen hands—for a period of five years, the property in the meantime to be held by a trustee, who, at the expiration of the time mentioned, and the other conditions being fulfilled—shall convey the property to the individual or company who runs the concern. Finding it too much the fashion to fold the hands and bemoan the times, I address this to you, who have at your command a journal as widely circulated as it is esteemed, in the hope that it may be the means of rousing to action some of the despondent.

Yours Truly
CITIZEN.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT.—On Friday evening last as the 6 o'clock train on the S. H. R. R. was going north it ran over a man named Jas. Hollis. The engine driver, it seems, noticed some object lying in the track, but as it was dark he was unable to distinguish it, and as he thought it was a dog or a calf, paid no heed to it, not even so much as to stop his train and see what he had run over. There the mangled remains lay until they were found by some section men about 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, having been run by the three train. They were placed on a gigger and taken to Milverton, where they were interred. When found they presented a sickening spectacle, being so badly mangled that, had it not been for the boots, some fragments of clothing, and a hand, which lay on the outside of the track, they could scarcely be distinguished as the remains of a human being. Hollis, it seems, left Milbank station on Friday evening in company with a man named Martin, and proceeded northward along the R. R. track for about two miles, where he left Martin to go to a neighboring house, after which time nothing more is known of him until he was found on Saturday. Both men were under the influence of liquor. A coroner's inquest was held on Monday, at which the jury returned the verdict "accidental death."

DEATH.—On Saturday last the remains of the late Mrs. Robinson were borne to their last resting place amidst the tears of her many friends and acquaintances. The deceased, in company with her husband, came to this neighborhood when it was in its infancy, where with admirable perseverance they hewed for themselves a homestead out of the forest, on which they spent many happy days, until deceased fell victim to consumption, to which after a long confinement and much misery, her physical powers gave way. She leaves a large family to bemoan her much regretted departure, who have unquestionably the heart-felt sympathy of the whole neighborhood.

DISTRICT OF ALGOMA.—Mr. Frederick S Forbes, of St. Joseph's Island, has been appointed a Commissioner for administering Affidavits, &c., in Queen's Bench, for the District of Algoma.

GREAT FIRE AT TOKIO.—The latest from Japan says: Public attention is entirely absorbed by the disastrous conflagration at Tokio, on December 26th. This is the third similar overwhelming calamity in seven years. Miles were laid waste, nearly fifteen thousand homes destroyed and fifty thousand persons rendered destitute. A considerable part of the foreign district was destroyed, including several missionary establishments and one church. The Legation of the United States was in danger, but escaped. The loss of life is about 100.

The friend of temperance and sobriety, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

The remains were brought from Stratford to Eramosa on Monday and interred on the following day, in the burying ground on Mr. L. Parkinson's farm.

The World's Washington special says that the action of the House in allowing Parnell and Dillon to speak in the Hall of Representatives is universally commented upon as a bad precedent. It may compromise the Government by seeming to endorse the Parnell movement.

HARRISTON.

A social in aid of KNOX Church, Harriston, was held at Wilkinson's school house, 6th con., Minto, on the 14th inst, which, notwithstanding the unfavorable state of the weather, was very successful. The spread provided was such as could not fail to satisfy the most fastidious. The physical part being concluded the intellectual part began. The Rev. Mr. S.R.Ith, of Clinton, took the chair in the absence of Rev. Mr. Campbell. He called on the choir to open the proceedings, which they did in good style. The three Master Wilkins, brothers, gave two dialogues, which showed that they were possessed of good memories. The correctness with which they spoke would have done credit to boys of maturer years. Readings by two young ladies were well executed. Mr. Chas. Ferguson, gave a Gaelic speech, which evoked considerable mirth, and in response to a very enthusiast encore, he imitated the German character. He also gave an amusing imitation of the bag pipes on the melodeon. At this stage Rev. Mr. Campbell arrived, and Rev. Mr. Straith vacated the chair. Mr. John Henderson gave two readings in his usual happy style. Rev. Mr. Straith gave a short address, in which he gave an interesting, detailed account of his adventures in the North-west. A very pleasing feature in connection with the social was the presentation of a collection of Books to Mr. John Fleming, who has for sometime filled the position of superintendent of the Sabbath School here, and a silver butter cooler to Mrs. Fleming. The presentation was made by Mr. John Campbell, junior, Miss Wilkinson and Miss Kean, in behalf of the school, as a token of the esteem in the recipient's indefatigable efforts for the well being of the school. Mr. Fleming made a very feeling reply, thanking the donors, not for the intrinsic value of the articles, but for the tangible evidence of their interest in Sabbath School work. The choir was Wilkinson's School House Sabbath School choir, and they acquitted themselves very creditably, their rendering of the music being well performed. Miss Wilkinson presided at the melodeon, with no ordinary proficiency. The social throughout was good, both socially and mentally, and it was a financial success.

It having become known among a number of the Rev. Mr. Campbell's congregation that Tuesday, the 6th inst., was the fifth anniversary of his marriage, the happy idea occurred to them of giving the rev. gentleman a surprise in the way of a wooden wedding, and they set to work to make the affair successful. They arranged to meet at the residence of Donald McNevin, to repair from there to the manse in a body. A good crowd having assembled they proceeded thither, bearing with them their wooden trophies. A few minutes walk landed them at the manse, and on entering Mr. Campbell was completely taken by surprise. But the unveiling of the wooden mementoes soon explained affairs. The donors seemed to have studied well the selection, as they were well arranged and embraced rocking and other chairs, clothes, hat racks, mirrors, rolling pins and brushes of all kinds. In fact it would be difficult to correctly enumerate all the articles, among which was a flour barrel, one of Mr. Wright's patent manufacture at his factory. Mr. Campbell was absent at the time, and on his arrival was surprised to find himself stumbling over various wooden articles, and also to find a crowd of ladies and gentlemen at his residence enjoying themselves, some in conversation, others playing carpet balls, others croquet, some at one style of amusement and others at another, but all enjoying themselves. As the evening advanced a sumptuous repast was furnished by the ladies. This part being concluded the crowd dispersed, all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Campbell a term of wedded life which would permit them to enjoy the various anniversaries of wedded life till it would reach that period known as the golden wedding.

The disappearance of the sleighing has caused a stagnation in business, which makes all interested wear long faces. The agricultural portion are debarred from bringing the marketable products of their farms to market, which, of course, is the prime cause of the quietness in business.

In the last Harriston correspondence it was stated that this year was the first time Mr. Darroch took the field for municipal honors, which the writer has since been reminded was wrong. He contested the Beeveship against Mr. Prain in 1876, and was defeated by over two hundred of a majority. His name has since then been frequently mentioned in connection with elections, but he did not enter into a real contest till he opposed Mr. Scott this year for the Deputy Reeveship, when the previous verdict of the people was repeated by placing Mr. Scott once more at the head of the polls.

Messrs. Blackwood & McNevin, harness makers, of this town, say their business continues to increase, notwithstanding the rise in the price of material. The great secret of their success is using nothing but the best leather and other material, and employing none but first class workmen, and lastly, conducting their business in a straightforward business like way.

Owing to the multiplicity of other duties devolving on him, Mr. George Gray, who filled with credit a seat at the Council Board for 1879, retired from the arena of municipal politics, so that he could give that attention to business which its exercise required, and in order to adequately cope with its fast growth he is making large additions to his planing mill by adding first class machinery and well requisite appliances, to make it a first-class planing mill. This will also enable him to carry through a greater amount of carpentering. Mr. Gray is a first-class mechanic, and can always be relied on to do good work.

Guthrie Church Sabbath School anniversary will be held in the basement on Tuesday the 3rd of February, being the day following the social in connection with the church anniversary.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Wilkins were out driving when the horse became frastious and ran away, throwing both out of the buggy. Mr. Wilkins was only slightly hurt; Mrs. Wilkins was more unfortunate, as she received a dislocation of the shoulder and other internal injuries.

Montreal Cattle Market.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—The arrivals of live stock have not been very large and yet the markets are overstocked and prices continue very low for the season of the year. Very few choice cattle are offered, but there is very little demand from exporters, which causes slow sales among really good cattle. Ald. McShane bought 8 oxen and steers from Mr. A. Picard at $65—or near 4c. per lb. Mr. Laporte also sold 11 other cattle to a jobber for $105, or from 3½c. to 3¾c. per lb. Thomas Kelly sold 2 cattle to L. Monette and 1 to G. Bridgeman, at from 3¼ to 3½c. per lb. About 200 head of cattle were offered at Viger Market, of which about two-thirds were sold and the balance held over to another market. Jas. Eakins had about three carloads of cattle for sale, and sold about a dozen head at from $30 to $40 each, or from 3c. to 3½c. per lb. G. Patterson sold nine cattle, bulls, steers and dry cows at $30 per head, or less than 3c. per lb. R. Cochrane s

CITIZEN'S LETTER.—We publish a very practical letter on the hard times, and how best to cure them. We think we are justified in saying that the writer is one who has a very large stake in this city, that the offer he makes is a bona fide one, and that he is prepared to carry it out to the letter. We are authorized to give his name to anyone who is inclined to interest himself in the project referred to in his letter, or to co-operate with him in getting the enterprise started. We commend "Citizen's" letter to the serious consideration of all who are willing to aid manufacturing enterprises in Guelph.

THE Board of Water Commissioners of London have taken a step in the right direction. At their first meeting, they unanimously resolved that their meetings should no longer be held in secret, but that the reporters should be notified of them.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.

Among the petitions presented were the following:—

By Mr. Chisholm—From the Provisional Council of the County of Dufferin, for an extension of their powers.

By Mr. Hunter—From the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway Co., for certain amendments to their Act of Incorporation.

By Mr. Laidlaw—From the Corporation of Guelph, for power to issue debentures.

Mr. Mowat, in moving the second reading of the Judicature Bill, said the Bill was not an untried experiment; on the contrary, the general framework of of the Bill corresponded with what had been on trial for several years in England, during which time whatever had been discovered to stand in the way of its smooth working had been removed by legislation, by rules of Court, and by judicial decision. After some discussion the bill was read a second time on the understanding that it would be referred to a Committee.

Mr. Cook moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the general Railway Acts. He explained that it provided that the frogs of railway tracks should be filled up, and that switches, instead of being thrown three inches apart, should be thrown six inches apart, so that a person's foot might not be caught in them. Those provi ions, he believed, would greatly tend to diminish the loss of life on railway tracks.

Mr. Fraser said he had no objection to the second reading of the Bill, with the understanding that the House did not commit itself to any principle in the Bill, and that it should go to the Special Committee which had been appointed to consider the whole question.

With this understanding the Bill was read the second time.

Mr. Hay asked whether, in anticipation of a settlement with the Dominion Government, and the payment by them of the Improvement Fund due on sales of Crown and School lands, if it is the intention of the Government to pay the fund in question to municipalities, and if such payment is not to be made, what prospect there is of an early settlement being effected with the Dominion authorities.

Mr. Mowat—It is not the intention of the Government to pay this money in anticipation of settlement with the Dominion Government, but it will be paid as soon as we obtain it. Negotiations have been in progress for a settlement of this and other matters by the Dominion Government, but in consequence of political changes at Ottawa and Quebec it has not been found possible to bring the negotiations to a conclusion. I have no doubt, however, that before next session this matter will be settled.

Mr. Hay moved for a return of any papers and correspondence which may have passed between the Provincial and Dominion authorities in respect to the payment by the latter of the improvement fund accruing on school land sales, and due under the Quebec Award, and also in respect to the payment of the improvement fund due on account of sales of Crown lands made between 14th June, 1853, and 6th March, 1861, and on collections made between 6th March, 1861, and 1st July, 1867. It was now over a year since the award of the Commissioners on this matter had been completed Under that award there was due to the Province on account of school lands $124,785, and on account of Crown lands $101,771, making altogether $226,456. The municipalities entitled to receive this money were of course anxious to get it as soon as possible.

Mr. Miller moved for a return showing the amount of money expended respectively by each overseer employed on colonization roads for the year 1879.

Mr. Gibson (Huron) moved for a return from the Treasurer of the Agricultural and Arts Association giving a detailed statement of its income and expenditure for the years 1878 and 1879.

The cause of the delay in finding the fated train and its imprisoned victims at the bottom of the Tay was the excessive muddiness of the water. The divers could not see an inch before them. The water is twenty feet deep where the train sank. Fox the diver, walked along the bottom until he came plump up against some object of iron. He at first thought it was a part of the bridge, but when he felt over it with his hands he found it was the engine. The first thing brought up was the lamp of a railroad carriage.

Attempted Suicide.

THOROLD, Ont., Jan. 21.—Mr. Arthur Gordon, an old resident of this town, while alone in his bedroom, about ten o'clock this morning, attempted suicide by shooting himself in the region of the heart with a small revolver, the ball entered the upper part of the breast. He may recover. Cause of the rash act is attributed to melancholy, caused by reverses in business lately.

Puslinch Insurance Company.

The annual meeting of the Puslinch Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held at the town hall, Aberfoyle, on Saturday, the 17th instant. Duncan McFarlane, Esq., occupied the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read, with account of James McPherson's and John McPherson's losses, which was on motion confirmed. The annual report was read and submitted to the meeting as follows:

The directors in presenting their annual report beg leave to state that the above named company passed through another year in a very satisfactory condition, considering the many obstacles it has to meet with from year to year, especially the untruthful statements of agents for other Companies. Three cents on the $ on premium notes would cover all our losses for 1879, but your directors thought it better to borrow $100 rather than incur the expense of making an assessment. During the year 67 policies have been renewed together with 8 new members, making 75 policies in all issued during the year, insuring property to the amount of $120,585, with a deposit of $125.48. Total property insured $347,050, leaving notes in hand to $6,941.

The Arthur Junction Railway Case in Court.

The regular proceedings having been taken by publication and otherwise, a vote was taken on the 26th day of March last in the east half of the township of Arthur as to the granting of a bonus of $10,000 towards the construction of the Arthur Junction Railway. The polling resulted in 116 votes being cast for the by-law, and 109 against it. Since that time the Council of the township of Arthur, notwithstanding the vote, have declined to pass the necessary by-law. Proceedings have in consequence been taken at the instance of Mark Laugdon, a director of the Railway Company to procure a mandamus to compel the Council of Arthur, to give effect to the vote taken.

The case came up before Mr. Justice Osler on Tuesday in Toronto. Mr. J. K. Kerr appeared for the Railway Company; Mr. Scott for the Council of Arthur township. The aim of the Council appears to be to invalidate the election by showing that bribery and corruption had been rife at the polling places. The witnesses called for this purpose by the Council were:—

Richard Cole, who stated he was a voter in Arthur township; he had got no money for voting; he had got a horn of whiskey from a man named Moore, but it was not for his vote, for he had voted against the by-law.

James O'Donnell, sworn, said—He had got a dollar from a man named Callaghan.

James Crowley, sworn, said—He was going towards the polling-place when he met Callaghan; they went on talking together; witness said he had got $4 from Callaghan, and that during the day whiskey was "pretty numerous"; it was "going round" at O'Donnell's tavern; witness asked Callaghan if there was any management, and Callaghan said there was; Callaghan seemed to have the most money; witness afterwards saw other two "parties," and asked them if there was any management, and a man named Moore give him a dollar; witness then asked Callaghan for two dollars more, and got them; then Callaghan said he hoped witness wouldn't do as another man had done, who took his money and went right off and voted against the by-law; "Another man" got $4, too, but witness did not tell his name, as he was a neighbour, and he did not like to talk about his neighbours, for himself, he said at first, he did not care which way the matter went—but he voted against the by-law; he was a pretty big farmer, but he thought he was right to take money for his vote; if he could have got $100 out of them he would have taken it; he told Callaghan there was money on their side too, but this was not true, for he did not know of any, for the men on his side would never vote for the by-law; nothing they could offer him would make him vote for the by-law, but he thought he would take a few dollars out of them, seeing they were giving money any way.

J. W. Rothwell, sworn, said—He was a farmer, and lived in Arthur; he went out in the afternoon to the polling-place, and going there he met Moore, Callaghan, and a man named Quart, they went to O'Donnell's, where they treated him; he told them he would vote against the by law, and they were persuading him to vote for it; after a while Callaghan pulled out a bill and shoved it into witness' pocket—he did not remember what pocket it was; told him he would never run it; a while after that he met Moore and Quart at the hall, and Quart took him into a corner and gave him $2, and then witness went in and voted for the railway; he said, "Yes, he voted for the money;" he also told Callaghan he would come down to Toronto and swear he had got the two dollars to pay his tax; afterwards, when Quart told him the $2 he had given him was out of his own pocket, witness returned him the money.

Edward Deady, sworn, said—Callaghan had come to his house one day before the election; there were some of the children playing on the floor, and Callaghan gave each of them—well, some money; after Callaghan went out, Deady's little boy told him that Callaghan had put some money behind the glass; Deady examined behind the glass and found $3 in bills; he went out and spoke to Callaghan and asked him to take the money back, but instead of that Callaghan had given him another dollar.

Michael Mansfield, sworn, said—He was a voter, and voted that day on the by-law; he got a little, he said, for his vote; he got it from Callaghan; it was in O'Donnell's tavern where Callaghan gave him $2; Callaghan saw him and Crowley together. (It appeared that Mansfield was the "other man" spoken of by Crowley in his evidence.) He remembered having had a drop too much that day, and was sorry for it—in fact he could not tell which way he voted, whether it was for the by-law or against it; but he always was "agin it."

At this stage the case was stopped, in the absence of witnesses that were expected on the part of the Council. It was expected the case would be concluded on Wednesday.

Another Report from the Farmer Delegates.

Mr. Biggar, one of the Scotch Farmer Delegates, in his report to the farmers of the Stewartry of Dumfries, thus speaks of his visit to some farmers in the vicinity of Guelph:—

The party spent two weeks in Ontario, which was not sufficient to see it thoroughly, but the visit was cut short by an early fall of snow. They visited some farms near Toronto, also that of Mr. McCrae, of Guelph, and the School of Agriculture, about which they give many details very interesting to strangers. Mr. Biggar goes on:—

At Mr. McCrae's we saw good turnips and a nice herd of Galloways, including some of the principal prize winners at Ottawa. At Mr. Hobson's farm we saw some excellent Shorthorns. Mr. Hobson feeds a good many cattle, buying half fat cattle in December and January, and feeding till June. He allows 12 to 15 pounds meal daily, and 60 pounds roots. He also feeds off 400 lambs on rape, buying them in August at 10s. to 12s. each, and making them worth 22s. to 24s. by middle of December. The rape is sown in drills and worked same as turnips. On this farm of 300 acres, 240 cleared, four men are employed in summer and two in winter, with some extra help at busy seasons. Mr. Hobson estimates the necessary capital for such a farm at £3 per acre. Of course where pedigree stock is kept it is much higher. We visited a farm of 180 acres, all good land except 20 acres, which was for sale at about £13 per acre. It was a nice place, near a railway station. The house was new—had cost £800; and the buildings fair. Another farm of 200 acres let at 12s. an acre was considered too dear. The soil was a fair sandy loom, on a clay subsoil, intersected by a gravelly ridge. The turnips were a very good crop. The divisions of crop on this farm were as follows:—70 acres hay, 60 acres pasture, 15 turnips, 20 fall wheat, 20 peas, 20 oats. The taxes, payable by the tenant, were about £13, in addition to eight days' statute road labour. This farm was part of a block of 500 acres for sale at £12 per acre. Near Guelph he saw two farms of 400 acres, farmed by two sons of the late Mr. Gerrand, Marchfield. They pay about £200 a year rent and taxes, and are said to be doing well. These seemed very desirable, in a good situation, and were for sale; price £12 to £13 per acre. We passed through part of the Paisley Block, a district settled a good many years ago by emigrants from Paisley, few of whom had been brought up to farming. They have in nearly all cases been successful, and posses very comfortable residences, and tidy, well-managed farms. We next visited Galt, where a large proportion of the people are of Scotch descent. Mr. Cowan, a native of Dumfriesshire, has a good farm of 540 acres in the neighbourhood. Mr. Cowan is a member of Parliament, and well known as a breeder of Leicester sheep. We saw a first rate flock of ewes. He also breeds Shorthorns. The land is mostly rolling—a deep sandy loam, and free from stones.

A young man who was pleasantly engaged in dealing out taffy to his girl over the telephone wire yesterday, was much disgusted at hearing a voice from the central office remark: Please hurry up if you have anything to say; there is a business man waiting for the wire."—Albany Express.

"And how is your neighbor, Mrs. Brown?" enquired one nicely dressed lady of another. "She's well enough, I suppose. I haven't seen her to speak to her for six weeks." "Why, I thought you two were on the most friendly terms." Well, we used to be; but we've exchanged servants."

A Family's Fearful Fate.

Terrible Experience in a Lake Michigan Ice Field.

LITTLE TRAVERSE, Jan. 19.—On the 13th inst. F. M. Rouse, Charles Odell, wife and two children, started from Beaver Island in a sail boat to go to their home in Little Traverse. On Tuesday night they attemped to land at Little Village, but were prevented by the ice. During the night they were caught between two bodies of ice several miles in extent, and drifted with it into the Lake. The boat sprang a leak, and the men were kept busy the next day and night bailing. On Thursday morning they were in the vicinity of Waugoshance Light and Grape Island, when they abandoned the boat and started on foot over the ice field for Grape Island. After travelling for miles they were stopped by a wide crack in the ice, and Rouse went back to the boat for an axe with which to cut a cake of ice to float them across the fissure, but when they returned and found that it could not be done, owing to the amount of slush ice intervening. They then turned about and started for Waugoshance, Rouse leading and Odell and family following. After going about a mile Rouse came to a fissure about six feet wide, which he leaped over; but by the time the rest of the party came up it had enlarged so much that they could not get across. Rouse was powerless to render them any assistance, and after exchanging farewells, Odell and family turned back toward the boat and Rouse went on towards Waugoshance Light, which he reached after many hairbreadth escapes in and out of the water, and with one foot badly frozen. Here he found fuel and matches, but no food. On Friday morning he took a skiff belonging to the lighthouse and started for the mainland, arriving at Cross Village in the evening, when he obtained the first food he had tasted since Wednesday morning. On Saturday morning he reached home. The last he saw of the Odells they were at the break with several miles of ice on each side of them. They undoubtedly perished during Thursday, as they were without fuel, food or dry clothing, and the boat was fast filling with water when first abandoned.

The Markets.

JANUARY, 21.

The latest despatches state that the English market is 1d lower in certain grades of wheat, while floating cargoes were quiet but steady. In Chicago the market has become more settled, and prices rule within the range of one cent. The New York market was somewhat irregular. In Montreal the breadstuffs market is quiet and unchanged, quotations being more or less nominal. The only sales of flour reported on 'Change were 100 brls. spring extra at $5 92½, and 100 do. strong bakers' at $6.50. There was little done in butter, except for local consumption. Shippers are holding off for lower prices owing to the weakness of the English market. In Toronto fall wheat on Tuesday was selling at $1 25 to $1 26, and spring at $1 24 to $1 25. About 200 bushels of peas brought 65c and 67, while 70c would have been paid for No. 1. There were no oats, but they would have brought 39c and 40c. Hay sold at from $7 to $10 25. Hogs sold in small lots on open market at $6 50 to $6 65.

The Wonderful Man

In balancing our books for the year ending 31st December, 1879, we cannot but express our sincere thanks to each and every person who has favored us with their patronage and influence.

The past year, but especially the Fall Season, has shewn very gratifying results, which we attribute to the good judgment of our buyer, together with our old time custom of making our goods as low as possible; and as far as we can learn, not a single complaint has been made by our customers, but on the other hand, hundreds have assured us of the pleasure they have had in making selections from our large stock, thereby securing as good value as can be had in the Province.

As our business has shown such a marked increase during last season, and we expect for the coming season to make an additional show of prosperity, we can at this early date assure our customers and friends that no effort will be spared to make the Wonderful Man's store second to none in Canada.

We placed orders for our supply of Cottons, etc., etc., early in December, and the rapidly advancing market in these goods confirmed our judgment in this instance.

OUR BUYER,

David H. Hogg, leaves for the European Markets on Thursday, 22nd instant, to make purchases for the spring trade.

We will offer until further notice, all qualities in White and Grey Cottons at old prices, and the balance of our stock in Dress Goods, Furs, etc., will be submitted at market reductions.

CHAPTER XXII.

ORWELL BRUCE AND REUBEN LANGTON IN PARIS—THE SCENE IN THE BOULEVARD —ORWELL FALLS INTO THE SNARE LAID FOR HIM.

On that very October afternoon which witnessed the solemn death-scene at Marston Grange Orwell Bruce and Reuben Langton were seated under the shadow of a tree on one of the Paris boulevards. France had just passed through the terrible scenes of the first Revolution. The horrors of the Reign of Terror were over, the frightful guillotine, red with the best blood of the nation, no longer showed its hideous form in the streets, and Paris, relieved of the nightmare of madness and death, was holding something like a gay carnival as a reaction from the bloody tyranny under which it had suffered.

Under the trees on the Boulevard, in front of the cafes, gay groups were seated round small tables drinking wine and other beverages, enjoying the splendid autumn weather, congratulating each other on the system of order and safety which had been established, and relating the adventures they had individually experienced, almost every one having some thrilling story to tell of danger incurred and death narrowly escaped.

Surrounded on all sides by those light-hearted joyous groups, Orwell and Reuben sat at a little table by themselves, not being expected as foreigners to enter freely into the feelings of their volatile neighbours, yet showing, at least so far as one of them was concerned, a gloomy exterior, totally at variance with the prevailing gaiety of the scene.

Reuben Langton smoked his cigar and sipped his wine with unruffled mien, or, as a close observer might have noticed, with an air of suppressed satisfaction, casting an occasional look at his silent companion, who sat in gloomy abstraction paying no heed to the surrounding mirth and laughter, but absorbed in thoughts which seemed anything but pleasant, if his countenance was to be taken as an index of his mental condition.

Orwell Bruce looked pale, haggard, and wretched. A mighty change had passed over him since last we saw him, upwards of two years ago. The stamp of dissipation which was then but faintly, almost imperceptibly, visible on his countenance, had now made its impress with unmistakable and painful distinctness. There were blue rings round his heavy eyes, his once glossy hair hung in dull disorder over his temples, his features were sharp set, a cadaverous hue was on his cheeks, his very dress showed a neglectful aspect, but it was the utterly wretched and intensely miserable expression of his countenance which gave most emphatic indication of the terrible change which had taken place, adding as it did to the signs of dissipation a tortured mind and an upbraiding conscience.

So much was the youth a picture of mental misery that his appearance had drawn the attention of more than one seated near, especially of a bronzed-faced man who sat at a table only a yard or two distant, and who, with his elbow placed on the table and his head leaning on his hands, regarded Orwell with special attention.

The stranger did not himself seem in the best of circumstances. He was too haggard and melancholy. Not evidently from dissipation or self-indulgence, but from ill health, under which he seemed to be suffering greatly. He had also the look of a man who had experienced bitter dis appointments, whose life had yielded results far below his hopes and landed him in disease and dejection.

Despite the heavy character of his own thoughts, this man, who seemed a stranger and a foreigner, but whose nationality it would have been difficult to determine, had his attention drawn to Orwell Bruce, whom his large, sharp eyes scanned with an inquiring gaze, bestowing also some show of observation on Reuben Langton, who was ostensibly the other's friend and companion.

Rueben was also somewhat changed in appearance. He was by no means so fresh looking; his face was red and a trifle blotched, as if he had not been keeping free from dissipation any more than Orwell, but his countenance had none of the haggardness which that of the other manifested, while his mind, instead of being disturbed or depressed, seemed to be elated, as if he had reason to be well satisfied with himself and his doings.

After sitting for some time in silence, during which he favoured Orwell with sundry furtive glances, Reuben exclaimed—

"Come, Bruce, rouse ye, man; don't mope like that. I declare ye are as melancholy as an owl in an ivy bush. Take up your wine, somke your cigar, and obtain amusement from the gay scene around."

Orwell slowly raised his drooping form and heaved a sigh.

"How can I be anything but melancholy," he returned, "when I think, as I constantly do, of the position into which my cursed infatuation has plunged me."

"Then why think of it? It's the worst thing I know to brood over what is done and can't be helped. I brought you to Paris, thinking the gaiety of the French capital would restore your spirits, but you are dull as ever—nothing interests, nothing amuses you."

"No, I cannot forget what a wretch, what a scoundrel, I have been to squander May's money a second time, and not only ruin myself but bring her to beggary."

"Nay, it is not just so bad as that, Of course you have played a deal oftener than I thought was advisable, as I often told you, but you have still a few thousands left, so things might have been worse. Anyhow, it is foolish to get so downspirited. That won't mend matters one bit, and I am sure a spectacle like this should bring you out of the blues. Did you ever see anything so bright and animated?"

"I have seen when I could have enjoyed it as much as any one, but I have no heart for it at present—and never will," he added, with another heavy sigh.

"Nonsense. You'll get over this turn."

"How can I? My sister's money, which I have lost, I have no means of replacing. The interest on your father's mortgage will swallow up the annual produce of the estate. I have not even an income for myself, but that does not matter. I deserve to suffer; but May—poor, innocent, trusting May—it maddens me to think I basely robbed her and brought her to poverty. What would my father say if he could come alive again and find that I have squandered all, and put a bond on Marston Grange which it can barely carry —worse still, that I have brought disgrace on the honoured name of Bruce, which till now all Galloway has held in esteem. I tell you, Langton, it is enough to turn my brain."

"And I say again your brain should not brood on it. There is nothing so foolish as to cry over spilt milk."

"What must May think of me," went on Orwell, under the sting of remorse. "What must she think of my long absence, my unbroken silence. I might at least have written to her, but I could not—I could not, till I had won back her money. God knows it was for this object I played latterly."

"So it was, I know. I can attest that," remarked Reuben, soothingly. "Had it been for any other object I should have strenuously kept you from the table; but knowing the purpose for which you went, my heart pleaded against my judgment that you should try another and another chance. Alas! my hopes and yours were both vain, and when I found you had but five thousand left I positively brought you off from Hamburg lest you should again be tempted. What wonderful luck that Russian Count had. What a spiteful jade Fortune is at times. When it was of such immense importance for you to win what you lost, and when money is of no importance to h'm whatever he swept it up like chaff."

"Is Count Homanoff rich?" asked Orwell, gloomily.

"Oh, as Crœsus! I am told that he has estates in Russia of ever so many square miles, and that his coffers are filled with fabulous sums. Had he lost a hundred thousand instead of winning your money it would have been all the same to him—his pleasure would have been the same the one way as the other."

"Then fortune is vengeful," sighed Orwell.

Winter Egg Production.

To obtain a supply of winter eggs, we must have the chicks out in March or April. Leghorns and some of the smaller breeds will do in May or the first of June, but the Brahmas or Cochins must come off early, that they may have the full season for growth. The Asiatics are generally good layers in winter, and need less artificial heat, as nature has not furnished them with any ornamental appendages which suffer by exposure to frost. For them it is not necessary to spend large sums for warm buildings. What they can dispense with in this respect they demand in feed, which must be given regularly. The feed must be kept up and varied with animal and vegetable diet. The supply of water must never jail. We must feed and feed a long time before the eggs will come. Any breed of hens will consume an enormous quantity of feed before commencing to lay, but after having once begun they will not require, or even take so much grain. When laying their great craving is for vegetable and animal substances, and crushed clam or oyster shells. Fowls that are regularly trained have certain proportions of the day for their different feeds. My birds require their shells at night, as well as their green and grain in the morning, and always fresh water. When one has the time and convenience, and enjoys the petting of fowls, making warm stews on very cold day is an admirable plan, and the birds relish them marvellously. Take beef or pork scraps and put into a kettle, having them previously chopped fine, and fill it half full of water. While stewing throw in a dozen chopped onions, two dozen cayenne peppers, and the day's coffee and tea grounds. Thicken the mixture with cornmeal, and serve it around among the hens hot. They relish it amazingly when once taught to eat it, and will look for the ration daily at the certain time. On cold days give this feed between two and three o'clock in the afternoon, and the chicks get their crops warmed up for the coming cold at night. If scraps are not handy boil unpeeled potatoes, and serve in the same manner, adding a little grease or cold gravies left over from yesterday's dinner.

The combed varieties require warmer quarters and sunnier exposures than the Asiatics, and are good winter layers after December and early January. They will lay in the fall if early hatched, but the change of fall to winter, and the getting into winter quarters affects them, and they seldom commence again before the days begin to lengthen, at which time Brahmas will cease egg-production and become broody. Where one has the convenience it is well to keep both kinds, in order to insure a supply of eggs. It is useless to expect many eggs from old fowls of any variety. Have the buildings ready early, and the fowls of the right age and in condition to insure success. The business of our domestic hen is to produce eggs, and we must feed her for it.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

Such a severe winter as that under which the populations of Silesia, East and West Prussia, and the Duchy of Posen have been suffering for more than a month past has not been experienced in north-eastern Europe since the year 1812. It has come like a doom upon the poor people after an almost total failure of the potato crop, upon which the peasantry of these sterile regions mainly depend for their winter sustenance. We read of parents all but naked in wretched empty rooms forlorn of fire, the corpses of their children, victims of typhus, lying uncovered on the floor, with no means left to obtain the rudest coffin for the dead, or the coarsest morsel of food for the living; and of women, driven to despair, lying down deliberately in the snow to die, in order to put an end to their intolerable misery.

JUVENILE THEOLOGY.—Mother, at tea-table—"Jack, who helped you to those three tarts?" Jack, age seven—"The Lord, Mother"—"The Lord? Why, what do you mean, Jack?" Jack—"Well, I helped myself; but father said yesterday that the Lord helps those who help themselves."—Boston Traveller.

The death of George Edson, of Seneca Falls, N. Y., affords a strange instance of premonition. He arose in the morning in apparent health. During the forenoon he gave his sister-in-law a ring, saying it was his last gift. Then he called on his most intimate friend, and with tears bade him farewell. He visited four young men asked them to be pall-bearers at his funeral, and invited the members of the village band, to which he belonged, to attend his funeral in a body. Seeking his brother, he made arrangements for disposition of his property, and at 4 p.m. on the same day died. He was buried in exact compliance with the preparations which he himself had made.

GREY BRANCH AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the above Society was held in the Town Hall, Brussels, on Thursday, 8th inst. The Treasurer's report showed the receipts for the year to have been $793; disbursements, $472; balance on hand, $61, with a paid up membership of 59 for 1880. The following officers were elected for the current year: President, W. G. Hingston; Vice-President, James Ferguson; Sec. Treas., D. Stewart; Directors—Robt. Martin, John Broadfoot, Thos. McLauchlin, Robt. Brown, John Hislop, Thos. Kelly, W. H. McCracken, Alex. Forseyth, Wm. Smith; Auditors—John Leckie, John R. Smith.

SMOKERS,

I will unhesitatingly guarantee my

Gold Flake Cut Plug

to be the BEST SMOKING TOBACCO in

CANADA.

It is made by a new and original process brough which the rank nicotine is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue

As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post paid, to one address, on receipt of 50 cts. (postage stamps or currency.) All lovers of the pipe are invited to give it a trial.

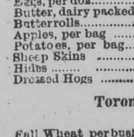
Elora News.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday morning of last week Mr. Anderson, a farmer living near Salem, met with an accident while working about a threshing machine on the farm of Mr. George Fergusson, a neighbour. The machine was running at high speed and while Mr. Anderson was stepping over the tumbling rod, a pin projecting from one of the knuckles which was uncovered, caught his pants, throwing him forcibly to the ground. His pants were torn fortunately, disengaging them from the shaft. Medical attendance was sent for, when it was found that Mr. Anderson had sustained a fracture of the shoulder bone, his knee also being sprained, and the patient being otherwise injured. The sufferer is now doing well.

PILKINGTON AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Pilkington Agricultural Society was held at Elora on Thursday of last week. It was resolved to defer the question of amalgamation with the Centre Wellington Agricultural Society for the present. The following officers were elected: President, Mr. Jas. Ross; Vice President, Mr. W. L. Gordon; Auditors, Messrs. D. Foote and J. Henderson. Directors, Messrs. John Hill, senior; James Haig, Charles Nicklin, Henry Larter, George Whitlaw, David Findlay, John Bain, John Godfrey, Robert Cromar.

SUDDEN DEATH.—James C. Laird, a farmer living near Elora, died suddenly a few days ago. He was walking from his house to the barn when he was seized with a fit of coughing, bursting a blood-vessel and died almost immediately. The body was afterwards found lifeless where Mr. Laird fell, by a member of the family.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The following officers in connection with this Society have been elected for the ensuing year:—A. Cuthbert, President; Vice-President, Councillor Bowes; Secretary, J. Bain; Treasurer, Reeve Godfrey; Auditors, W. Snyder and J. M. Shaw; Collector, R. Topham; Directors, G. B. Slipper, J. Henderson, R. Topham, D. Foote, P. Simpson, W. Snyder, W. Gay.



Mr. Norwood, proprietor of the Elora tannery, offered $14,000 for the carpet factory here, but the Bank refused, saying, an offer of $16,000 would be considered.

The annual report of the Agricultural Implement Company shows a diminution as compared with last year in the amount of business transacted, occasioned to a a considerable degree, by the refusal of orders that did not appear perfectly safe.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundredth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease, the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

Fifteen hundred tons of iron ore have been taken out of mines in Hull Township and shipped to the States during the past month. It is expected that between 25,000 and 30,000 tons will be taken out during the current year, which means an expenditure of about $100,000 in Canada by this one American company. We are now sending out our accounts for advertising and job work, and have to request that prompt payment be made.

Local News.

NORFOLK STREET CHURCH.—The annual supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, will take place this evening. The excellence of former similar entertainments is a guarantee that this one will also be a grand affair. The musical part of the programme, under the leadership of Prof. Harrington, will itself be worth the price of admission. We regret that through some stupid blundering the two previous notices were incorrectly given.

THERE are sixteen prisoners in the gaol —fourteen males and two females.

THE repairs at the County Court room are completed.

REMEMBER the annual supper and entertainment in the Norfolk street church this evening.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—The annual meeting of the Missionary Society of this Church, will be held to-night in the church.

PERSONAL—Government Detective Murray, passed through the city on his way northwards this forenoon.

PROF. HARRINGTON will conduct the musical part of the entertainment at the Norfolk street church this evening.

"WAIT and you will See," is the title of a lecture to be delivered in St. Andrew's Church by the Rev. Mr. Williams, tomorrow evening.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Cloudy, mild weather with rain, preceded by snow in Eastern Ontario; followed by colder weather to-night or to-morrow, possibly with snow flurries.

CALEDONIAN SOCIETY.—A meeting of the above Society will be held in the rooms of the Society this evening at 8 o'clock, to receive the report of the committee and for the transaction of other business.

CURLING CLUB.—A meeting of the club will be held in Mr. Chas. Davidson's office this evening, at half past seven o'clock, to make final arrangements for the match with Toronto.

MARRIED.—We are glad to learn that on Wednesday Mr. Wm. B. Torrence, eldest son of the Rev. Robert Torance, Guelph, was married at St. Stephen's, New Brunswick, to Miss Sarah G. Stevens, daughter of Judge Stevens, of that place. We congratulate the young couple on the auspicious event and wish them every happiness.

EXCURSION TO MANITOBA.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company announces that they will run a special excursion train to Emerson and Manitoba, on the 2nd of March next, starting from Ottawa. Every accommodation will be furnished persons requiring cars for freight, live stock, household goods, &c. An official agent of the Company will accompany the excursion. All particulars regarding the excursion may be learned from H. D. Morehouse, G. T. R. agent, Guelph.

BROUGHT TO TIME.—About the first of January Mr. Purcell, who keeps the Cabinet Hotel, in Stratford, was robbed of a quantity of goods. He reported the theft to the police of that town, but no trace of the thief was got until Saturday morning, at which time Detective Heenan, of the G. T. R., arrested a man named J. E. Rogers on the train after leaving Dublin station. Mr. Heenan took Rogers before P. M. O'Loane, when Rogers pleaded guilty to the charge, and was remanded for sentence. Rogers came from Guelph recently. Heenan recovered one of the gold rings which was stolen.

President Lincoln's walking stick, which was stolen from the box occupied by him at the theatre on the night of his assassination, has been recovered at Troy.

A civil war seems to be impending in Mexico, owing to the hostile attitude of the rival candidates for the Presidency.

Pitiful stories are told of the extent of the distress prevalent among the poor of Quebec.

Mr. L. H. Smith, of Strathroy, has sold a brace of his setters for $750—Temple Bar for $250 and his sister, Las o' Gowrie, for $500.

The estimated expenses of the Hayden trial at New Haven will reach $30,000. The jurors received over $200 apiece. Hayden will be bailed.

Messrs. Gilbert, founders, of Montreal, have signed a contract with the Government for $50,000 worth of heavy guns for Canadian defences. The same firm offers to take up the rocks in the Galops Rapids, and is looking after the contract.

Mr. Arthur Gordon, an old resident of Thorold, while alone in his bed room, on Wednesday attempted suicide by shooting himself in the region of the heart with a small revolver. The ball entered at the upper part of the breast. He may recover, though the doctor in attendance considers it doubtful. The cause of the rash act is attributed to melancholy, caused by reverses in his business lately.

On Wednesday arguments in the case of the City of Toronto vs. the Northern Railway Company for the possession of fifty-five acres, upon which the the Company's station and freight houses are built, were opened before Hon. Mr. Pardee. The case is an important one, as should a patent be issued in favor of the city it will carry with it a heavy amount of accumulated rent.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

Boiler Explosion.

One Man Killed—Another Injured.

VARNA, Ont., Jan. 22.—While Arthur Wandless was threshing at the farm of Mr. Cameron, 2nd con. Stanley, the boiler exploded, injuring him and one of his assistants, and killing a Mr. D. McQueen who had just gone to see the machine working. He was thrown about 100 feet, and one of his boots blown off. The front end of the boiler was thrown on the front of the separator, breaking down the feed board and crushing the feeder, Mr. L. Nunn, who is dangerously hurt. Strange to say a horse standing along side was not injured in the least. The boiler is one of Haggart Bros. make. Cause not known.

Brakeman Killed.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 22.—A brakeman named Finn, of Montreal, fell from the top of a car on a freight train last night between here and Maitland, and was instantly killed.

Fire in Rothsay.

ROTHSAY, Jan. 22.—About 10 o'clock last night a fire was discovered issuing from the roof of a vacant blacksmith shop recently occupied by D. C. Kilpatrick. By active exertions the fire was extinguished before much headway was made. Supposed incendiarism.

Fire in Dunnville.

DUNVILLE, Jan. 22.—About 12 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the machine shop of Burrow & Griner, the upper flat was used by Scholfield & Bros. as a cabinet shop. Total loss $4,000. Insured in the Canadian Fire and Marine for $1,000.

Curling.—The Distress in Ireland.

OTTAWA. Jan. 22.—A team from the Vice-Regal club defeated a team of the Gov.-General's Foot Guards, by four points yesterday afternoon at the Rideau Hall Rink.

The St. Patrick's Literary Association met last night to consider the best means for raising a subscription for the relief of the distress in Ireland. After some consideration it was decided to request the Mayor to call a public meeting to take the matter into consideration.

Agricultural Association—Oka Indian Trial.

Hon. Jas. Skead was elected president of the Ottawa city agricultural association last night.

The Oka Indian trial commenced this afternoon before Judge Burgeois, at Aylmer, Xaines Karenties. The case is now in progress. The Indians are being cared for by the Methodist congregation there.

Sudden Death.

RONDEAU, Ont., Jan. 22.—Stephen Lane, about 66 years of age, while preparing to retire on Wednesday night, dropped dead, from, it is supposed, a fit of apoplexy.

Irish Relief Fund.

QUEBEC, Jan. 22.—It was decided last night by the Irish Relief Committee that the funds raised in this city by them be transmitted to the Dublin Mansion House.

A $3,000 Blaze at Port Elgin.

PORT ELGIN, Jan. 22.—A fire occurred here between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning, destroying the residence of Allan Barbour and his weaving shop adjoining. The loss is estimated about as follows: House and contents, $2,000; weaving shop and contents, $1,000. Insurance in the Mercantile, $1,400. The cause of the fire is unknown. The flames were first seen issuing from the roof.

An Explosion in an English Coal Mine.

Seventy Lives Lost.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—An explosion occurred at eight o'clock this morning in the Lycett Colliery, near Newcastle-under-Lyne, Staffordshire. There is little hope that any in the pit at the time—estimated at from seventy to ninety—will be saved. The search for them is delayed by the damage to the shaft. The explosion is attributed to gas.

A later account fixes the number of persons in the pit when the explosion occured at 77. It is believed not more than six of the rescued corpses had lost part of its head, and some others were burned to cinders, while some appear to have been killed by the concussion. Gangs of volunteers are descending frequently.

A latter despatch says the fire is being subdued. Large quantities of debris has been removed, enabling the explorers to proceed more rapidly. A still later report places the number of deaths at 70. Another explosion is feared.

LATEST.—Five more bodies have been recovered from the mine. Twenty others have been found in the pit. They will be brought up to-night. Ventilation has been restored.

A temporary arrangement has been reached in the case of the British Post-office Department against the telephone companies by which the latter will keep certain accounts until the final hearing of the application for an injunction. Public opinion appears to be against the Government on the question.
