THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

One woman and seven men were killed, and thirteen workmen and firemen seriously injured by the burning of the Theatre Royal, Dublin. The theatre took fire from a light in the hands of a boy who was lighting the gas. Manager Egerton lost his life by remaining too long in an effort to arrest the flames.

A telegram from Constantinople to the London Standard states that terrible distress and mortality prevail at Adrianople, especially among the refugees. Fifteen of these were found dead of hunger in one day. In the months of the corpses were pieces of wood, with which the unfortunate persons had endeavored to satisfy their hunger.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have announced their intention of being present at the opening in autumn of the Melbourne International Exhibition.

Another Tory lord has renounced the traditions of his family. Lord Clifton who will contest East Surrey in the Liberal interest, is the eldest son of Lord Darnley, a strong Conservative peer.

The Duchess of Marlborough writes to the Lord Mayor that millions have been lost in the west of Ireland by the failure of the potato plant, from the fact that for years the best potatoes have been eaten and the worst sown.

The Times says the case which the Home Rulers attempted to make out against the Government is broken down completely.

A Paris despatch says the Univers has forwarded 1,000 francs to the Catholic Archbishop of Cashel for relief of the distressed in his diocese.

Mr. Nolan's (Home Ruler) Seed Potatoe Bill, has been read a second time, Sir E. Northcote stating that the Government accepted the principle of the measure. Nolan's motion for a select committee to enquire as to the best means of diminishing the frequency and extent of failures in the potatoe crop was agreed to.

The Afghan War.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—A Vienna despatch says that intelligence has been received, through an unimpeachable channel, that at the time Gen. Roberts so unexpectedly found himself in the critical position before Cabul, the Russian General Abramow, Governor of Samarcand, had secretly arrived at Derwaz, east of Cabul and the centre of the agitation. There is no longer the slightest doubt that a league has been formed in Central Asia, under the auspices of Russia, against English domination, and that one of the most prominent and influential members is the Ameer of Bokhara, whose daughter married Abdurrahman Khan, the Afghan pretender.

The Times says we shall learn with pleasure that the permission to Persia to occupy Herat does not involve the guarantee of secure possession. If England is to be liable for what may happen in the direction of Herat there seems to be an almost endless vista of responsibility opening out more and more widely at each remove. The demonstration by Russia, which would have had little or no meaning before, might be the grounds of very grave suspicions, in view of its possible effect on the state of affairs at Herat.

The blue books published concerning Russia in Afghanistan, and Russia in Merv, do not tell the whole story. It is understood that Russia is implicated up to the period of Cavagnari's assassination, and that if the suppressed correspondence were published it might necessitate the declaration of war against that Power. It is further stated that the Czar may have disowned the acts of his agents in Central Asia, and the suppression is due to this possibility.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.

Nearly the whole of the afternoon and evening was occupied with the consideration of Mr. Hardy's Bill amending the Division Courts Act. The principle of the Bill, in so far as the extension of jurisdiction is concerned, was universally accepted, the only contention in this connection being that the extension should cover open accounts as well as debts represented by promissory notes. Exception was of course taken by the Opposition to the clauses of the Bill taking from the County Judges the right to appoint clerks and bailiffs and conferring it upon the Government, and several speakers urged the insertion of a clause repealing the provisions of the Dominion Courts Act authorizing the imprisonment of debtors for alleged contempt by non-payment of debts on the order of the judge. The motion for the second reading was carried shortly after midnight without a division.

Underdunk & Co. are said to have deposited $1,500,000 in the Bank of Montreal to the credit of the Dominion Government as a guarantee of the due fulfilment of their railway work in British Columbia.

The Irish people of Montreal have withdrawn their request to the Mayor that he should deliver an address to Parnell. The President of St. Patrick's Society, F. B. McNamee, will deliver it.

Messrs. Samuel May and W. M. Baird, of Toronto; W. Bell, of Guelph; and Chas. J. Thomas, of Hamilton, are in Ottawa as a deputation for the purpose of procuring certain changes in the tariff affecting pianos, organs, billiard tables, &c.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

The Meeting of the Coroner's Jury.

Some Trouble to Procure a Place of Meeting.

By Telegraph to the MERCURY.

LUCAN, Feb. 11.—Preparations for the meeting of the coroner's jury are being hurriedly carried on, and to all appearances there will be no jar in the proceedings. The village is quiet, and no unusual stir visible amongst the detectives. Mr. Hugh McMahon, Q. C., of London, is already here on behalf of the accused parties, and the Crown Attorney, accompanied by Mr. Meredith, are expected every minute. Chief Williams and the Crown Attorney have just arrived from London, having the boy Connor and his mother in their conveyance.

ONE HOUR LATER.

Everything does not appear to be so smooth just now. The trustees have refused to allow the inquest to be held in the town hall, without remuneration for the use of the hall, which no person seems to say they have the right to pay, except out of their own pockets. If this is persisted in there will be an adjournment to the council room in the southerly part of the village, and as this is not commodious enough to admit the large crowd in attendance the coroner will only admit counsel, interested parties and reporters. Another feature of disappointment is one of the jurymen who was present at the last investigation, has been taken very ill, so much so it would appear now that he cannot attend the court. The opinion is divided on the streets as to whether this fact will cause another adjournment or not. The witnesses and all other parties who are required to take part in the investigation are now on hand, with the exception of Mr. Meredith, who has not yet arrived. It would appear from the mode of procedure about to be adopted by the Crown Attorney that the amount of evidence about to be offered before the coroner will not be very voluminous.

The village is rapidly filling up with spectators from the country, and much disappointment will be felt in case they are not admitted to the investigation.

It has been finally decided that the investigation takes place in the council room. Consequently the crowd of spectators cannot be admitted.

LUCAN, Feb. 11.—The coroner's jury assembled at one o'clock p. m. There were present on behalf of the Crown Mr. Hutchinson, County Crown Attorney, and Mr. H. McMahon, Q. C., of London, watched the interests of the prisoners. The constable opened the court at precisely ten minutes past one o'clock, when the coroner called over the names of the jurors.

Dropped Dead on the Streets.

Dr. Howitt and James Ryan played yesterday afternoon. The doctor was called away and gave up the game. In the evening N. P. Tod and Thomas Anderson played. Score—Tod 5; Anderson 34. R. Mitchell and J. J. Nichols played this forenoon. Score—Nichols 21; Mitchell 6.

A match between St. Thomas and Simcoe clubs was played at Brantford, two rinks aside, for one of the Royal Caledonian district medals, awarded by the Ontario branch, Col. Moffat, of London, umpire, resulting as follows:—St. Thomas 55, Simcoe 30.

A match of two rinks between Whitby and Toronto was played in Whitby yesterday. Whitby 49; Toronto 46.

FATAL FIRE IN ALBANY.—The County Clerk's office in Albany, N. Y., was burned on Tuesday. When the dome fell seven men were crushed. One has since died, and two or three others are expected to die. The loss will exceed $100,000. The judgment records, chattle mortgages and records of the proceedings of the Supervisors are destroyed.

THE JOYCE POISONING CASE.—Ferguson, the alleged seducer and poisoner of the girl Maggie Joyce, is lying at the Commercial Hotel, Toronto, in a very precarious condition. Like the girl, he is suffering from arsenic poisoning. It is supposed that after administering the dose to the unfortunate girl he took some poison himself. He is being kept under the surveillance of the police.

It is proposed to confer another privilege on the Mayor of Toronto, by exempting him from the responsibility of voting either on any question coming before the Council proper or the Council in Committee.

On the day the sale of tickets at the Grand Opera House, Toronto, commenced for the Neilson engagement $3,000 worth of tickets were sold.

The Napanee Beaver announces that the wife of Mr. Andrew McFarlane, of North Fredericksburg, on the 26th January last, gave birth to a "bouncing baby girl." The happy father is only 81 years of age.

The by-laws for the purchase of either the Ronald or Silsby engines in Hamilton have been defeated by large majorities.

Local News.

PROBS.—Easterly to southerly winds, partly cloudy to cloudy milder weather, followed by rain areas to-morrow.

A NUMBER of individuals suspected of being interested in every case heard at the Police Court have not yet learned to doff their hats on entering that institution.

WE are glad to learn that Mr. David Kennedy had a slight turn for the better about one o'clock, and that there are now fair hopes of his recovery.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS.—A. & W. Tolton have disposed of their flour and feed store Upper Wyndham street, to Mr. F. Fearnley.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.—Many will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Scott Siddons will appear at the city hall on the 25th inst.

LAST evening a band book was dropped on Paisley or Wyndham sts. The finder will oblige by leaving it with Mr. W. Smith, in Savage's store.

A SECOND meeting of those interested in the formation of a Property Owners Association is to be held at the City Hall tomorrow night.

MARE KILLED.—Last week James Henry, of Dromore, lost a valuable mare. By some means she got her leg broken in the stable and had to be killed.

A DESPATCH from Ottawa says:—The irrepressible C. Acton Burrows is now out with a pamphlet on the North West. His interest in that territory appears to be remarkably benevolent.

CHARITY CONCERT.—On Monday evening Miss Geddes and her pupils will give a concert in St. George's Hall in aid of the General Hospital. The concert, its object even aside, will be well worthy of patronage.

SETTLED WITH THE CREDITORS.—A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Andrew Gordon, Elora, was held on Monday, when his son George offered 80 cents on the dollar. This offer was accepted, and the business will go on as usual.

TEA MEETING.—A tea meeting will be held at the Methodist Church, Arkell, on Wednesday evening, February 25th. Addresses will be given by several clergymen, and music will be supplied by the choir of the Dublin street Church, Guelph.

PARLOR Concert and Social in connection with KNOX Church, will be held at the residence of Mr. K. McLean, Woolwich street, to-morrow evening (Thursday) at 7.30 p. m. Admission, 15 cents. All are cordially invited.

ASH WEDNESDAY SERVICES.—There was a fair congregation in St. George's Church to-day, being Ash Wednesday. The music and services generally were of the usual Lenten character. At the Church of Our Lady, High Mass was celebrated at eight o'clock and a sermon was preached by Rev. Father Hamel.

LEVANTED.—The chief of Police, Fergus, was in the city yesterday in search of a Dramatic Co. who played in the Fergus town hall the previous night, and left the village without paying either the rent for the hall or their board bill during their stay. He did not succeed in getting any clue to the company.

COMMITTED.—Philip Forester, of Howick, arrested a few days ago for forging a note purporting to be signed by Wm. Ross and Wm. Bowes and amounting to $31,60, was brought from Clifford by Chief Barton of that village, to Guelph gaol this (Wednesday) forenoon. He will be tried for the offence at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

THE KILPATRICK CASE.—In referring to the Kilpatrick forgery case, some two weeks ago or so, we stated that Messrs. Robiason & Robertson, of Harriston, held $5,000 of his paper. We learn that they held only $3,000, and that they hold collaterals to cover more than the amount of forged paper Kilpatrick gave them.

HIGH SCHOOL LITERARY SOCIETY.—The Literary Society in connection with the High School, was re-organized yesterday evening, Mr. Tytler, in the chair. The following officers were appointed:—President, Mr. Tytler; Vice President, Jas. Argo; Secretary, Jno. Strachan; Treasurer, W. Harrington, Managing Committee, Miss Pardon, Miss Brown, Miss Wardrope, Mr. Smith, W. Ward.

POULTRY SHOW.—In the price list in Section II, Brown Leghorn cock, we credited W. Stahlschmidt with second, and G. Hope with third, and in section four of the same class, W. M. Smith is credited with the 3rd prize. It should be. Brown Leghorn cock, 1st, W. Stahlschmidt; 2nd, G. Hope; 3rd, G. T. Simson. Brown Leghorn hen, 1st and 2nd, W. Stahlschmidt; 3rd, G. Hope.

RUNAWAY.—A horse belonging to Mr. W. Watson, butcher, ran away near Arkell yesterday. It took fright at a yoke of oxen and one of the reins breaking, Mr. Watson, who was driving, was unable to manage the animal. He held on to the unbroken line and drove the horse into the fence at the side of the road. When he jumped out to take the horse by the head it started off again and ran as far as Mr. Scott's place, Arkell, where it was stopped by Mr. G. Watson. Scarcely any damage was occasioned by the runaway.

GORE DISTRICT MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—The management of this Mutual fully approves the action of the Government in appointing an insurance Inspector, and expects much good to result from the examinations. This Company, indeed, has nothing to fear from his investigation. It is soundly established and gaining more strength yearly, by securing rates commensurate to the amount of risk. In declining to renew many policies upon the basis formerly agreed to, the Company suffered a decrease in old business, but this falling off was regained by the issue of 355 policies in excess of the year previous, with an increase of $428,915 in the amount of insurances. A satisfactory increase has been made in the amount of its assets. After the payment of losses, all expenses, and receiving 50 per cent. of its cash premiums as a reinsurance fund, there remains a cash surplus of $11,097. If all our mutual companies occupied the position of the "Gore" and conducted their business upon the same conservative principles, we would hear but little complaint about high assessments and insolvent mutuals.—Monetary Times. Robert Cunningham, of this city, is agent for the Company.

The Department of Agriculture has received the bronze medals and diplomas awarded to Canadian exhibitors at the Paris Exhibition. The gold and silver medals were previously received and distributed.

The Kilpatrick Forgery Case.

The Prisoner Before the Police Magistrate.

Committed for Trial on Three Charges.

A preliminary examination of the case in which David C. Kilpatrick was charged with forging a number of notes, and whose arrest was mentioned a few days ago, took place at the Police Court to-day (Wednesday). Since there was very little evidence heard, a few facts in connection with the case not given in Court may prove of interest. The prisoner is 21 years of age, and his appearance would not impress any one with a belief that he was dishonest. He has a college training and is said to be a remarkably good penman, which is sufficiently displayed on the notes alleged to be forged. About two years ago he succeeded his father in the manufacture of agricultural implements, at Rothsay. He says that for some time he carried on business honestly, and had a capital of about $10,000. About 1879 he began forging notes for small sums, and continued his nefarious practices until September, when having to meet some heavy payments, and owing to his men striking for higher wages, he absconded. A meeting of his creditors was called, and John Haffner, of Guelph, was appointed assignee. An examination of the books aroused the suspicion of the creditors, and further developments showed that Kilpatrick had been forging extensively. His mode of operations seems to have been as follows:—When he received a promissory note, he made a number of duplicates from it, making the amount, date, place, and maker the same on the forgery as on the original note. This prevented detection for a time in this way. When the future holder wrote to the maker, asking if he had given a note to Kilpatrick for a certain sum the latter would acknowledge that he had. As an instance, precisely similar notes made by Wesley Rathwell in favour of Kilpatrick, were held by Messrs. Kerr & McKellar, Guelph; Robinson & Robertson, Harriston; Alex. McDonald, Listowel, and others. After the meeting of the creditors, the assignee entrusted the case to Chief McMillan with instructions to arrest Kilpatrick. Kilpatrick had gone to the Western States and the Chief received word that he was in Texas, Kansas, New Orleans and other places. He however came to Chicago and thence to Bay City, when at the instance of Chief McMillan he was arrested. The prisoner was quite willing to come, but strenuous efforts were made by his friends to retain him. It was not necessary to extradite the prisoner, who was safely lodged in gaol here. While on the road to Guelph the prisoner admitted to the Chief that he had forged notes to the amount of $10,000.

Only sufficient evidence was heard at the Police Court to-day to warrant a committal. Mr. H. W. Petterson, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. A. Dunbar for the prisoner.

Wesley Rathwell, sworn, said,—Am a farmer in Arthur, live on lot 26, 9th concession; I know the prisoner; (note for $1450, purporting to be signed by Wesley Rathwell, at 12 months after date, from 1st January 1879, was produced) the note is not in my handwriting; it is a forgery, and I did not authorize the signature; I knew nothing about the note till Mr. Robertson sent me word to settle it; I had dealings with Kilpatrick; could not swear exactly when I settled with him, but it was either in June or February, 1879.

Samuel Robertson examined, said:—I live at Harriston and know the prisoner; I had some dealings with him respecting notes; during the summer of 1879 he gave me a note purporting to be signed by Wesley Rathwell; we advanced money to him from time to time, and he gave us different notes as security.

Chief McMillan examined, said:—I had an interview with the prisoner this morning in the presence of his counsel, in the Police Court; I showed him the note purporting to be made by Wesley Rathwell, dated at Rothsay, Jan 1st, 1879; I asked him if it was a forgery; he said it was; He answered voluntarily, and his counsel made no objection to the question

Samuel Robertson, again examined, said:—I received the note I hold, purporting to be signed by J. Freeman We got that note on the 25th September; Kilpatrick represented the note as genuine and we advanced money on it; at that time he was living at Rothsay, but his business was at Drayton; he represented that he received the note in the ordinary course of business.

To Mr. Dunbar—He did not mention this note specially as being genuine; we received it in the ordinary course of business.

Henry Williams, Moorefield, examined, said—I am a hotel keeper and know the prisoner; the note I hold is a very good imitation of my signature; it is so much like my hand-writing, that if I did not know it to be a forgery, I would believe the signature to be mine; I gave Kilpatrick a note of mine for $69.50 in September, for a buggy I bought; I had four notices to pay the very same amount, whereas I only signed one note.

To Mr. Dunbar—Shortly after Kilpatrick absconded I received four notes, for the same amount, from different parties.

To Mr. Peterson—I think the note Murton presented is the genuine one.

Chief McMillan, examined, said—I showed the prisoner the note I hold, in the Police Court this morning; it is dated Sept. 25th, at 12 months, for $69.50 and purports to be signed by Henry Williams; I asked the prisoner if it was a forgery and he said it was.

Mr. Peterson stated that Mr. A. H. McDonald, barrister, acting on behalf of Messrs. Kerr & McKellar, bankers, held several notes, supposed to be forged by Kilpatrick, but that they could be presented when the prisoner was being tried at the assizes.

The magistrate then committed the prisoner to stand his trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

"German Syrup."

No other medicine in the world was ever given such a test of its curative qualities as BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. In three years two millions four hundred thousand small bottles of this medicine were distributed free of charge by druggists in this country to those afflicted with Consumption, Asthma, Croup, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, and other diseases of the throat or lungs, giving the American people undeniable proof that GERMAN SYRUP will cure them. The result has been that druggists in every town and village in the Canadas and United States are recommending it to their customers. Go to your druggist and ask what they know about it. Sample bottles 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case.

A Virtue Little Known.

All women glory in a fine complexion and many men who are not at all conceited are proud of a clean and healthy skin. It is an established fact that Cod Liver Oil not only cures consumption, alleviates dyspepsia and saves the sickly little ones, but the constant use of it renders the skin soft and blooming, and at the same time, wonderfully improves the general stamina of the system. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA possesses all these virtues at the same time the oil is deprived entirely of its nauseous properties.

A sad case of suicide took place at Barrie on Tuesday. A Miss Mary Munro, aged 23, took about two teaspoonfuls of Paris green, and died a very short time after, notwithstanding prompt medical assistance. It is supposed that the deed was committed during mental derangement.

John Rice, who participated in Perry's victory on Lake Erie and the only survivor of that fight, died at Shelby on Tuesday, aged 88.

Ontario Agricultural College.

Annual Entertainment of the Literary Society.

If the approach of the annual entertainment of the Literary Society in connection with the Agricultural College was anticipated with pleasure, its arrival on Tuesday evening was fully enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. By 7:30 o'clock carriages began to arrive at the College, and for fully an hour afterwards guests streamed into the dining room where the performance was to be carried out. It is then no wonder that the room was found too small to seat the audience comfortably. Before the curtain rose the room was filled to its utmost with a fashionable audience.

The students displayed considerable taste and workmanship in decorating the room. The walls were ornamented with flags, and evergreens worked in with pleasing designs, while a few mottoes of welcome appeared, giving the whole a handsome appearance. The stage was situated at the southern end of the room, and though the properties were not extensive they were good.

The interest in the programme was maintained from its commencement to the close. Unfortunately through the indisposition of a principal performer who was unable to take his part, the programme was materially changed. The emergency was so well met, however, that no difficulty was experienced.

The first selection on the programme was a song, "Plow, Spade and Hoe," the solo parts being taken by Messrs. Mylne, McFarlane, Ash and McLaren, assisted by a chorus of some fifteen voices. Mr. Mills, President of the College, then in a few words thanked the guests for their attendance, and extended a welcome to them on behalf of the students. A chorus, "Music in the Air" followed, and was marked by sweetness and precision. A trio, "Jump on the coach," by Messrs. McFarlane, Ash and Mylne, was well rendered. The farce, "Dearest Mamma," was a decided success, and those who took part in it displayed both a talent for acting and a careful preparation of their parts. Though the plot is old and worn threadbare, yet the representation was amusing. Briefly, the play represents the disturbance a mother-in-law is capable of creating in her son-in-law's household. It would be difficult to make a distinction in the representation of the different characters, all acquitted themselves so creditably. Mr. R. F. Holterman did justice to the cynical character of Crocker. Harry Clinton was well represented by Mr. H. F. Anderson, and Edith Clinton, his wife, was represented as true in character as she was in kin, by Mr. W. A. Wilton. Browser, an old man was well taken by Mr. C. S. Dickinson. Mrs. Breezly Fussell, who was "Dearest Mamma" was rendered exceedingly well by Mr. G. M. Atkinson; Mrs. Honeywood, by Mr. J. P. Anderson, and Jones by Mr. H. Joyce were good.

The second part of the entertainment opened with a quartette "My Last Cigar," by Messrs. McFarlane, McLaren, Ash and Mylne, which proved appreciable. A trio "I saw Esau Kissing Kate," by Messrs Ash, Mylne and McFarlane was well rendered. The best musical selection of the evening was a solo by Mr. McFarlane, "Far on the Deep Blue Sea," and the audience showed there appreciation of the effort by a hearty encore. "Littoria," a College song was ably rendered by Mr. Ash, and a chorus. This piece was also loudly encored. A character song by Mr. McFarlane, and chorus "Emancipation Day," representing part of a negro regiment, proved mirth-provoking. "Alma Mater," the College song, was next sung, after which the entertainment closed with the National Anthem.

The musical part of the programme was under the direction of Mr. Harrington, the accompaniments being admirably played on the piano by Miss Harrington.

Toronto Grey and Bruce Railway.

A large deputation from that section of the country through which the Toronto, Grey and Bruce railway runs arrived in Toronto on Tuesday for the purpose of holding an interview with the Attorney-General. They were introduced by Mr. A. Gibson, Reeve of Wroxeter. Mount Forest, Arthur, Harriston, East Garafraxa and Orangeville in this County were well represented. Mr. Roller, Reeve of Bolton, was the first speaker. He said their errand was to set forth the bad condition of the railway, showing how it was a matter of life and death with the road that something should be done, if possible, to secure the assistance of the Government. The plan proposed was to widen the gauge, to buy new rolling stock, and otherwise put the road in a first rate condition. They came to the Government as one, believing that the only way possible to make the road pay was to change the gauge. They did not think, under the circumstances, that it was asking too much of the Government that some little assistance should be given to the people.

Other speakers followed at considerable length in the same strain.

Mr. Mowat, after some remarks, said the difficulties and importance of the road were recognized, and he hoped that a satisfactory conclusion would be arrived at, as the difficulties in the way were not insurmountable.

A locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad made the fastest run on record a few evenings ago. It was ordered from the round house to the scene of an accident, and ran 60 miles in 45 minutes and eight seconds. The engineer speaking of the run to a division superintendent, said: "I was a little skeered once when I thought I see a freight comin' down agin me; but it was only a skeer. I tell you it was a mighty purty run, but sometimes her wheels didn't seem to tech the rails for a whole minute."

THE BIDDULPH BUTCHERY.

The Approaching Inquest.

THE VIGILANCE COMMITTEE AND ITS OATH.

The Undying Desire for Revenge.

All was Quiet in Lucan on Tuesday.

The opinion grows among many that the guilty parties will not be convicted, not because the authorities are not working might and main with this end in view, but because they cannot get the evidence they want, unless some of the prisoners will tell what they know. No arrests were made on Tuesday. The inquest will be resumed on Wednesday. There can be no doubt that the burning of Patrick Ryder's barns and other out buildings on the night of the 15th of January last, was one of the causes that led to the butchery of the Donnelly family, who, rightly or wrongly, were suspected by the neighbours and the Vigilance Committee of incendiarism in their connection. The proceedings against the Donnellys were instituted by Patrick Ryder. It will be remembered that this man, along with three of his sons Patrick, James and Thomas, is under arrest on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of those whom he was prosecuting. His information charged that James Donnelly, Thomas Donnelly, Robert Donnelly, and William Donnelly did on the 15th of January set fire to and burn his barns and other outbuildings. A second information was laid against the old woman, who was charged with having aided and abetted the parties mentioned above.

The case was heard by the Magistrates on the 27th ult., and an adjournment was made to the 4th inst., when the investigation was closed for ever by the murder of the persons involved.

James Caswell, being in Biddulph says that he bought some time ago 50 acres of land near Granton that had been squatted on by Jas. Donnelly. This was in 1875, and on Christmas eve, his stables and sheds were burned. Next morning he said:—I saw tracks in the snow, and followed them. They led to the Donnellys' house, and I had no doubt in my mind that they caused the fire. Four years ago last July they burned all my hay and killed my two horses. I was satisfied that they were the parties who committed both deeds. Blood was seen on Jim Donnelly's coat at Exeter the next morning. I lost all the crop of one hundred and fifty acres that year on account of my horses being killed. I could neither borrow nor buy the animals from neighbours, because they were afraid of the Donnellys. Consequently my crops went to waste in the fields, which was a serious loss to me. Two years ago last October all my crops, worth fully $1,000, were consumed by fire. I have not the least doubt as to the parties who started the fire. I was afraid for my life to prosecute any member of the Donnelly family, who were continually trying to pick quarrels with me, and on one occasion a Lucan magistrate declined to grant me protection from them, saying that if they attacked me all Lucan could not save me. In the spring of 1878 they set fire to my reaping machine, which was standing in a field, and at the same time broke all the iron work about it, so that the machine was rendered completely useless.

The following is stated to be the oath taken by the members of the Vigilance Committee:

I, A. B., do solemnly swear, before Almighty God and on the holy evangelists, never to divulge the business that may be discussed or transacted by the Biddulph Vigilance Committee, and in case I should be arrested for taking part in said business, I hereby declare in presence of God that I will not reveal the names of my associates, even though I should be sent to the gallows for refusing to do so.

Referring to the probable cause for the commission of the great crime, one of the oldest residents in the township said to a reporter:

"Why, man, the troubles between the parties had their origin in Ireland, between thirty-five or forty years ago."

"Did the majority of the people along the Roman line come from the same district in Ireland."

"Of course they did. They're all from Tip (meaning the County of Tipperary) and when they take a spite against a man, no matter where they may be years afterwards, they'll have revenge. I heard shortly after old man Donnelly and Farrell had the row, in which Farrell was killed, that the same men fought in Ireland before coming out to Canada, and when they both got a sup of whiskey into them, the old grudge came to the top, and they went in for revenge."

"Is that a fact?" queried the reporter.

"That was the talk of the township at the time of the murder of Farrell, and I had it from old men, dead and gone now, who professed to be well acquainted with both parties before they came here.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

A unique suggestion for aiding the Irish distress is made by Industry, a weekly organ of the manufacturing interests in London. It thinks that the Government should authorize the establishment of a lottery similar to that organized in France for the benefit of the sufferers by the Spanish inundations, and that a million of money could easily be raised by such an expedient if some such authoritative body as the Corporation of London were allowed to take it in hand. Something of the kind was hinted at after the collapse of the unfortunate Glasgow Bank, but the legal authorities set their foot on it.

Mr. John Bright on the Irish Land Question.

Reference has been already made by the telegraph of Mr. John Bright's great speech at Birmingham, in the last week in January, on the land question in Ireland. In dealing with this subject the great Commoner said that in Ireland there were 10,000 owners of land, and 600,000 tenants who cultivate but do not own land; sixty tenants to one owner. That is, roughly speaking, the state of things which produces the existing discontent. The 600,000 tenants have to pay rent, and, as they allege, the rent exacted is an unjust rent; partly because it is higher than the land will bear; partly because, to a great extent, the title of the owner is a title acquired in past times by conquest and confiscation. Of course this complaint can be urged with equal force by the thousands of tenants in England and Scotland, but Mr Bright did not dwell on that, though he admitted that there was just as good reason to complain in the one case as in the other. The problem before him was how to transfer the land from the landlord to the tenant in the case of Ireland. For the tenants, says Mr. Bright, there is no other industry, or almost none. There are no manufactures except in Ulster. They must till the soil; and they struggle for the bit of land they hold as being their only chance of living. There is, for this reason, a fierce competition and a constant tendency to a rise of rents, which will continue so long as landlords and tenants continue. "What I propose," says Mr. Bright, "and what I have proposed for many years in this, that some measure should be taken by which occupiers of farms in Ireland should be transferred and transformed into owners." But then comes a qualification "that this should be done by a process which should be absolutely just, not to the tenant only, but as just to the landlord himself." There is another qualification that the process should be gradual; and these two qualifications taken together may make Mr. Bright's plan anything but palatable to practitioners on Mr. Parnell's pattern; who would establish the millennium to-morrow by Act of Parliament; and who sincerely believes that a wretched country can be transformed at once by legislation into a happy and prosperous country.

Mr. Bright proposes to accomplish the gradual transfer of the land into the ownership of its occupiers, and the gradual improvement of the condition of the people by two methods. First he would stop the formation and growth of great estates by abolishing primogeniture and entail. He would enact that whenever a man owning land died without a will, his land should be subject to exactly the same rule of division which is now applied to personal property. He would so legislate that the present generation should be the absolute owners of the land, and the next generation should be the absolute owners, but that neither this nor the next should be able to dictate to future generations who should own it. His second scheme is the creation of a commission, empowered to buy absolutely any estate that comes into the market, and to sell the land at a fair price to the tenants on that estate, in such portions as the tenants might desire. To aid the tenants to buy, the Government is to lend them the money; not all, but say two-thirds, or three-fourths. If a farm costs $2,000, the Treasury would find $1,500 and the tenant must find the other $500. Then the farm is to become the property of the tenant. But the Treasury, of course, has not made him a present of the money—the $1,500 by which he was enabled to buy his farm. They have lent it to him; and he will have to pay interest on this borrowed money. This interest is to be calculated at such a rate that at the end of thirty-five years the farmer will have paid off principal and interest together; and so the farm becomes absolutely his own, free from every sort of incumbrance, whether in the shape of rent or interest or charge of any kind for debt. Mr. Bright computes that the rents now paid for land are so high that the farmer need pay, under this thirty-five years' arrangement, no more than he now pays for rent. He believes that great quantities of land would, if such an act were passed, speedily be thrown into the market; that absentee landlords, for example, would be glad to part with a troublesome property. And he would compel the London companies, who are the owners of great estates in Ireland, to sell them to this Commission. In one way or another, he counts upon the sale and purchase being so general as to bring about a peaceful exchange of the ownership of Irish land; of the bulk of it; counts, therefore, upon the eventual extinction of the landlord class; and upon creating a State in which they who till the land shall own the land.

Such is Mr. Bright's scheme. It is a question whether Parliament would embody it in an Act, and it is another question whether—even if such an Act were passed—peace, plenty and content would even then be secured.

THE petition against the return of Mr. F. W. Glen for South Ontario in September, 1878, has been set finally at rest by a judgment of the Supreme Court in favour of the sitting member. Mr. Gibbs will have the satisfaction of paying all the costs incurred on account of both petition and appeal.

DOMINION Parliament meets to-morrow.

IT is stated that the Hon. Peter Mitchell has been offered the Lieut.-Governorship of New Brunswick, but declines it. The story is thought to have originated with the Hon. Peter himself.

THE Home Rule amendment to the Address in the Imperial Parliament was on Tuesday negatived by a vote of 216 to 66, and the Address was agreed to. Four Irish Liberals, 24 Liberals, and 38 Home Rulers voted in the minority.

THE Ottawa Free Press gives currency to the report that "the reason why Sir Alexander Galt has not assumed his post at London is because the Government find it necessary to obtain the sanction of Parliament to a bill creating the office of Minister resident of England."

ON Monday, in the Ontario Legislature, Mr. Sinclair's bill to amend the Act respecting Statute Labor, was read a second time. The changes proposed are to provide that the statute labor of non-residents should be expended in the division where the property is situate, also to give the Council of every municipality the power to reduce or abolish statute labor.

LORD HARTINGTON on Monday, in the House of Commons, said that though he did not think a large measure of emigration from Ireland necessary, there ought to be a redistribution of population. He protested against the presumption that the present distress was due to the Land Act, and defended himself against imputation in connection with Home Rule and the Liverpool election.

IN the last Budget Speech the Finance Minister estimated the revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, at $24,122,000. Seven months of the fiscal year have expired, and there has been received only $12,315.813 instead of more than $14,000,000, which ought to have been received in order to come up to Sir Leonard Tilley's expectations. So far there is, compared with the seven months of 1878–79, a decrease of over $100,000. What it will be the end of the year we cannot tell, but if it goes on in the same ratio there will be a large deficit.

WE believe there is no doubt that the Government have appointed Senator Wilmot as Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, vice Chandler, deceased. It is said that the Speakership of the Senate will probably be offered to the Hon. Mr. Macpherson as a recognition by the Government of his services in spending a large sum of money in the distribution broadcast over the country of printed misrepresentations of the Dominion's financial affairs. It is probable that he will decline the honour, perferring to hang on to the chance of being Lieut.-Governor of Ontario. In that event the position will be tendered to and probably accepted by Hon. G. W. Allan, of Toronto.

Harriston Correspondence.

The second anniversary of the dedication of Guthrie Church, took place on Sabbath, the 1st inst. Sermons were preached at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., by the Rev. G. M. Milligan, of Toronto, and notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a large crowd assembled at each service. Rev. Mr. Campbell, the pastor of Knox Church, kindly cancelled the evening service at his church in order that his people might participate in the Anniversary Service. The ladies of the church held a Social in the basement on the following evening, which was well got up and efficiently managed. The gathering was large, but the supply of eatables was so large, that none went empty away. Having become satisfied with the good things provided, the audience assembled in the body of the church, when order was restored, and the intellectual part was begun, the Rev. Mr. Baikie taking the chair. In the pulpit were the Revds. Messrs. Milligan, Toronto; Campbell and Gundey, Harriston. The proceedings were opened with a selection from the choir and prayer by Rev. Mr. Campbell, followed by Rev Mr. Milligan's lecture on "The contented man, who is he?" This lecture was certainly a literary treat. It was couched in well chosen language, and the substance was sound and practical and to the point. So interesting was it, that the lecturer held the attention of his audience for nearly two hours. On motion of the Rev. Messrs. Gundey and Campbell, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer, and on motion of the Rev. Messrs. Campbell and Gundey, a vote of thanks was tendered the choir, which was well merited, as their selections and renderings were good. This effort was a great improvement on any previous one, which reflects much credit on James Cummings, under whose leadership the choir has become efficient. On motion of Mr. John Prain, Warden of the county, seconded by James Connell, a vote of thanks was tendered the ladies for their trouble. I might just add, that Mr. Prain supported his motion by a speech, which shows that as well as being a good municipal officer, he is also a gallant ladies man, and while he thus continues, opposition to him in Minto will be futile. Mr. Connell did not, in seconding the motion, express himself so strong in words, yet showed he was endowed with a fair share of the elements of gallantry. The choir than sung a peace and the proceedings were closed with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Gundey. The musical accompaniments were played by Miss Mary Macready and Master Forbes with good taste and proficiency. The annual Sabbath School anniversary was held on the following evening. Tea was served in the basement, after which an adjournment was made to the church for the purpose of finishing the programme. Mr. Wm. Kerr, Superintendant of the school, occupied the chair. Singing by the children, a reading each by Miss Mary Wright and Master Blain, and a dialogue by a number, constituted the juvenile portion of the programme. Singing by the three Misses Waddles was particularly attractive. Rev. Mr. Campbell gave an interesting address to the children. In all a pleasant time was spent. The proceeds of church anniversary amounted to $200.

The ladies of the C. M. Church held a social on Thursday evening. Tea was served in a room erected for that purpose in the rear of the church, and the tables were plenteously filled. Tea being over the church was taken possession of, and the Rev. Mr. Gundey took the chair. The proceedings being opened by singing by the choir and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Campbell. Afterwards the Rev. James Smith, Galt, delivered a very interesting lecture. Subject, "Home Law," in which he related his trip across the ocean, and his travels through Scotland and England. The affair was an unqualified success

Mr. T. H. McKonkey, the celebrated temperance advocate, has been labouring in this section for the past week. Largely attended meetings are held in the Town Hall on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights. Quite a number signed the pledge. Mr. McKonkey is a live worker. He appeals to the people as one who had their good at heart. It is the intention to organize a central organization here for the promotion of temperance.

Death of Mr. Alexander Parks.

(From a Correspondent.)

It is our painful duty to record the death of another old Puslinch settler. Mr. Alexander Parks, of Puslinch Lake, died last Thursday morning, February 5th, being at the time of his decease nearly 69 years old. He was buried in Hespeler cemetery on Friday afternoon. He was borne to his last resting place, followed by a very large number of his old friends and neighbors. Many of these old neighbors and early settlers as they followed slowly their old friend to the grave, sadly reflected that they should see his face no more, and it reminded them that man's last resting place was but a short distance before them. About 400 people followed the body to the grave, and after they had seen it committed to the dust they went to the Methodist church in Hespeler, when the Rev. E. Holmes preached a funeral discourse, and endeavored to cheer his sorrowed hearers by reminding them that their old friend and neighbor, whose body they had that day committed to the grave, had only gone a little before them, had safely reached heaven first, and entered into that eternal and blissful rest that remains for the people of God.

Mr. Parks was born in the village of Preston, County of Waterloo, in the year 1810. His father, a native of Ireland, emigrated to America at a very early period, and died only a few years ago at the age of 99 years, and then met his death by accidentally falling into a creek. Mr. Parks left Preston when a young boy, and went to live in the township of Beverly, where he continued to reside till about the year 1843. In the fall of 1843 he removed to Puslinch Lake, where he has lived ever since, a period of 37 years. In his young days he followed the business of a carpenter. The writer has often heard him relate many interesting incidents connected with his early pioneer life in the far back woods. Puslinch Lake was then surrounded by an almost unbroken forest; with here and there a settler struggling against great difficulties, and endeavoring with uplifted axe and hard continuous toil to obtain the necessaries of life, and carve out a home in the wilderness. In those days the woods were full of game, the lake with fish. Bears and deer were numerous. The successful hunter was then an important member of society. The early settlers had often to depend upon the rifle to supply them with meat. Mr. Parks was then a keen and successful hunter. And he has often, rifle in hand, wandered round the lake, over hills, through valleys, bush and swamp, following after the swift-footed deer till the sharp crack of the rifle proclaimed ultimate success. The deer would often to escape the pursuing hunter take to the lake, and endeavor by swimming to get away from his enemies. But these endeavors were frequently unavailing, for the hunter quickly gave chase with boat or canoe, and often overtook him and despatched the deer in the water. At this period packs of wolves were often heard in the stillness of the night, howling in dismal chorus on the banks of Puslinch lake. All these things then so common are now unknown, and nearly forgotten. In a few short years all the old settlers will be gone, all the living actors in the early history of Canada will have disappeared from the scene, and we shall be left with only a traditional knowledge of backwood life and pioneer's difficulties and hardships, which our fathers passed through in the early settlement of our country.

Mr. Parks leaves behind him a widow and six children, four of his children being married, and two remaining at home. Mr. Parks was justly respected by all his friends and neighbors for his great kindness of heart, for his obliging disposition. He was generous almost to a fault, and no one ever applied to him for assistance or help in any shape in vain. He was a kind indulgent parent, full of social virtues.

It is a matter of great consolation to his family and friends that Mr. Parks was fully prepared for death. He had no doubts respecting his eternal welfare beyond the grave. His confidence was founded on a sure foundation. He has but left us and gone home to heaven.

DEATHS.

PARKS—At Puslinch Lake, on the 5th inst, Alexander Parks, in the 62nd year of his age.

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

CHAPTER XXV.

ORWELL BRUCE STRUGGLES THROUGH THE DEPTHS—DEATH OF PAUL JONES—ORWELL DEPARTS FROM EUROPE FOR THE FAR WEST.

"Captain Cranston," he said, "can I have a boat ashore for an hour or two?"

"Impossible, sir," replied the captain staring at the speaker in astonishment, "no one can be allowed to leave the ship."

"I trust you will allow me sir. You expect to be detained here for at least six hours."

"True, but I cannot permit any of the passengers to go ashore."

"I am sure no one will seek to do so but myself, and I have a very special reason for it," said Orwell, earnestly. "Not two miles from the shore is my birthplace, and what has always been my home. I have not visited it for years, and if I am denied this opportunity I may never see it again. My sister, my only sister, has died in my absence. I was not present to bid her farewell. I wish to see her grave. Surely, Captain Cranston, you cannot deny me this, when it will give you no inconvenience. I solemnly engage to be back ere you are able to sail."

The Captain stood silent and irresolute. He had a feeling heart, and Orwell's appeal touched him. But it was a serious matter to allow one of his passengers to quit the ship, so serious that he shook his head in refusal.

"I really do not see how I can allow it, Mr. Bruce," he said. "Your wish is natural no doubt, but had we not been becalmed in this bay you would not have thought of going ashore."

"Certainly not, but since we are becalmed, and the opportunity presents itself, can you not stretch a point to gratify the longing of my heart."

"Yes, but if you went your friends might prevail on you to stay."

"I will see no one. I do not wish to see any one. The circumstances in which I am leaving my native land make me shrink from meeting any one who knows me. I give you my solemn word, Captain Cranston, that I shall be on board again within three hours."

"Well, go, go," said the captain, impulsively. "Give Mr. Bruce the smallest boat, Mr. Lorimer."

"Thanks, sir, a thousand thanks," cried Orwell, fervently, in return to which the captain bowed his head and entered the cabin.

The full moon was high in the heavens, shedding the light of a veiled day over the scene, as Orwell touched the shore at a solitary beach which he knew full well. Had the night been dark as pitch he could have found his way over the well-remembered ground, but he was glad of the friendly radiance which enabled him to save time by taking the most direct paths, and to see the objects which he passed. He lingered not by the way, for his honor was pledged to return to the vessel by a given time, and not for worlds would he break his word.

The spot for which he was directly bound was a walled enclosure, surrounded by a belt of fir trees, the area thus encompassed forming a solitary churchyard for the rural district round the Grange and the fishing village on the slope. Being on a slightly raised eminence, he saw its dark incircling wood while yet a considerable way off, and made his way towards it amid a great hush of solemn silence. The strong iron gate was locked, but he scaled the wall and proceeded over the raised mounds to an oblong piece of ground close by the west wall, fenced in by a high iron railing. This was the burial place of the Bruces of Marston Grange. Orwell's ancestors had there mouldered into dust; under the thick sod his parents had reposed for many years; and there in the moonlight he saw the new-made grave which was the special object of his visit. The sod, so recently turned had not recovered its freshness, but newly gathered flowers lay near the head, laid there by loving hands—Orwell guessed by the hands of Agnes Borland, and the thought sent an indescribable thrill to his quivering breast.

He could not scale the iron railing to prostrate himself on the flower-covered turf, but he went as close to the grave as he could reach, and throwing himself on the ground with his bare head pressed against the bars he gave way to a burst of passionate grief, called his sister by name, and implored forgiveness for his cruelty and neglect. In the solemn silence and the holy moonlight he made confession of his folly and guilt, his contrite spirit accompanied in its self-accusations by sighs from his heaving bosom and tears from his streaming eyes. Then he called the hallowed dust of parents and sister to witness that by God's help he would make what atonement he could for past errors by cherishing their memory with deep veneration, and in the foreign land to which he was going strive so to live that when he met them at last in the eternal state, he might be able to say that his disgraced youth had been followed by a worthy manhood, and hear their sainted lips repeat the forgiveness which his Divine Father had already bestowed.

Who shall say that the spirits of the departed were not hovering in holy joy over the hallowed scene, and blessing with their heavenly influence the son and brother who thus vowed to be true and noble through the rest of his earthly pilgrimage? As Orwell lay in the hushed stillness, calm and passive after the violence of his sorrow, he almost fancied he heard the rustle of angelic wings, and the whispering of celestial voices passing away to the distant skies in wings of peace.

He started up fearing he had outstayed his time, pressed his lips upon the cold bars, uttered an impassioned farewell, fixed one more yearning look on the grave, then sped away towards the highroad, his fraternal feelings smoothed and gratified by the night visit he had paid to the last resting place of his darling May.

As he hastened on his eyes wandered to the left, where lay the wooded park of the Grange and the mansion concealed among the trees. Fain would he have turned aside and taken a peep at the silent walls of his forfeited home, but the inexorable passage of time forbade the act. Looking at his watch he was surprised to find that he had half an hour to spare, and still be at the ship within the given time. Half an hour! He could reach the cottage of the Borlands within that space. The temptation to look once more upon the home of Agnes was irresistible, and without waiting a moment in hesitation he leapt the wall into the park and took his rapid way to its eastern extremity, where stood the rose-embowered cottage—the dwelling place of his heart's love. Presently he saw it, nestling close to its sheltering wood, the moonbeams streaming brightly on its white walls, and flashing on its window panes. The door was closed; the blinds were down. Agnes and her mother must have gone to rest.

With a light hand he opened the little gate, and stole noisely up to the front of the cottage. There is eye caught a gleam of light through a chink of the shutter in the kitchen, and his heart throbbed wildly as he heard the clear sweet voice of Agnes reading out the hymn for their evening worship. It was that beautiful and singularly appropriate paraphrase so often sung in that lowly dwelling, and never more suitably than now:—

"O God of Bethel, by whose hand
Thy people still are fed,
Who through this weary pilgrimage
Hast all our fathers led.

Our vows, our prayers, we now present
Before thy throne of grace;
God of our fathers be the God
Of their succeeding race."

Trembling with the intensity of his feelings, Orwell laid his face close to the window and saw the countenance of his beloved, pale and sad yet beautiful as she bent over the sacred page. Mr. Borland was seated at the opposite side of the table, but her he scarcely saw. It was Agnes alone on whom his eyes gazed with consuming eagerness and wild yearning avidity. It was only by a superhuman effort of self-restraint that he refrained from uttering her name and giving vent to his bursting emotion. For a moment the impulse was strong upon him to rush in and snatch her to his heart, but in time to save him from this imprudence came the thought of his present degraded condition, the remembrance that he was not worthy to hold her in his arms and kiss her pure innocent lips. Setting his teeth like a vice, and making every limb rigid with heroic resolution, he kept silent, motionless, daring only to gaze with all the power of his vision and listen to her voice, as with fervent earnestness she uttered the prayer which the hymn contained—

"Through each perplexing path of life
Our wandering footsteps guide;
Give us each day our daily bread,
And raiment fit provide.

Oh, spread Thy covering wings around
Till all our wanderings cease,
And at our Father's loved abode
Our souls arrive in peace."

He could remain at the window no longer. He felt that if he did so he would lose control over himself and betray his presence. One final look of inexpressible love he bent on her as if he would print her image on his brain, then tore himself away as the first notes of the fine old tune St. Paul's rose with musical cadence on the silent air. The holy sound followed him across the park like a parting benediction, and remained with him long after he was beyond its physical reach.

By dint of swift walking and hard rowing he reached the ship within the specified time. As the captain had predicted, the breeze returned with the dawn, and when Orwell came on deck in the morning all that was visible of the Scottish coast were the peaks of Arran and the rocky cone of Ailsa Craig, while from the ship's prow westward stretched in boundless immensity the rolling waters of the Atlantic.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress-making Department. The numereus orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade. Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Fine Tweeds, Coarse Tweeds, Cloths, Diagonals and Overcoatings "is the lagest and choicest in the City."

SPECIAL.

Our Great 20 per cent. Discount!

will be continued a short time longer. Our growling and grumbling neighbors will just have to possess their souls in peace for a short time longer, as at the present rate of selling the stock will soon be cleared out. The Cattle Trade.

The Globe says:—Enquiries among some of the principle cattle exporters in the city disclose the following facts and opinions:—There has been a light trade during the winter by way of the Intercolonial Railway and the port of Halifax. The firm of Thompson & Flannigan have shipped two lots of 90 and 101 respectively, and will next week ship 250 American cattle by Portland. Other shippers east of here, but in Ontario, have shipped probably nearly 500 head besides. The ocean rates are now ranging from £4 to £4 10s, and the cost by railway is $95 per car from here to Halifax. Then, it is said, the number of cattle that will be offered for export this season will be greatly in excess of last year. All the principal feeding stations, Toronto, Windsor, Waterloo and Prescott, are filled with cattle, and it is known that there are great numbers fattening in stalls throughout the Province. If these cattle have been fed at moderate cost, and if the shipping rate should be moderate also, say £4 to £4 10s, then both farmers and dealers should make fair profits. It is thought, however, that ocean rates may be a shade higher than they were last year. There are great preparations being made by all the steamship lines piying to Montreal for the coming season; and it is a significant fact, as stated by a responsible member of the principal cattle-dealing firms here, that most of the steamers that will reach Montreal in May and June have been engaged for cargoes of cattle back. There is quite a spirit of activity, which will grow to keen competition, among the larger cattle-dealing concerns, and the market is expected to be good for the stock feeders. Mr. Frankland starts from here to-day, and will go home by way of Portland with the shipment of cattle already mentioned.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

THURSDAY EV'G, FEB 12, 1880.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Mr. Plimsoll has introduced a Bill requiring where more than a third of a ship's cargo consists of grain or nuts, it must be put in bags, sacks or barrels.

An indictment for fraud and conspiracy has been found against the directors and manager of the late West of England Bank.

The Dublin Mansion House Relief Committee are soliciting subscriptions in Germany.

Signs of increased opposition to the extension of foreign intercourse are visible at Pekin.

The man who recently fired at a priest who was celebrating mass in London has been sentenced to penal servitude for life.

Prussia proposes to extend the operation of the anti-Socialist Act for another period.

The Franco-German war is estimated to have cost France three thousand million dollars, exclusive of the damage done to commerce and industry.

Russia intends largely increasing her naval force on the Pacific Ocean, and closely watching those Powers which have vessels cruising in that quarter.

The revoluntionary agitation throughout Russia is reported to be steadily on the increase, notwithstanding all the efforts of the Government to stem the tide.

The Irish agitators Davitt and Killen have been visiting France and Belgium to secure information respecting the land system of those countries.

The Post says the announcement of a donation to Ireland from Baroness Burdett-Coutts was exaggerated. Only £5,000 were given, with a promise of other beneficial acts of relief where necessary.

On the subject to report upon the Address in reply to the Queen's Speech, O'Donnell (Home Ruler), on Wednesday moved his amendment calling attention to the systematic neglect of Irish affairs, and also the factious misrepresentation of all acts of Irish members of Parliament by the Government and their agents, the concluding words of which stigmatize the abuses practised by the Government as worse than treason.

Nolan's Seed Potato Bill authorizes the poor law officers in Ireland to borrow money without interest from the Commissioner of Public Works for the purchase of seed potatoes to sell to the tenants solely for planting, at cost or under, on credit or not, with or without security, as the authorities may think fit. The Treasury will be empowered to issue half a million from the Consolidated Fund if required for the purpose. The Bill to be operative the year after its passage, and thenceforward to the end of the next session of Parliament.

GORE DISTRICT MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—The management of this Mutual fully approves the action of the Government in appointing an insurance Inspector, and expects much good to result from his examinations. This Company, indeed, has nothing to fear from his investigation. It is soundly established and gaining more strength yearly, by securing rates commensurate to the amount at risk. In declining to renew many policies upon the basis formerly agreed to, the Company suffered a decrease in old business, but this falling off was regained by the issue of 355 policies in excess of the year previous, with an increase of $428,915 in the amount of insurances. A satisfactory increase has been made in the amount of its assets. After the payment of losses, all expenses, and reserving 50 per cent. of its cash premiums as a reinsurance fund, there remains a cash surplus of $11,097. If all our mutual companies occupied the position of the "Gore" and conducted their business upon the same conservative principles, we would hear but little complaint about high assessments and insolvent mutuals.—Monetary Times. Robert Cunningham, of this city, is agent for the Company.

Anticipate and prevent sickness with STANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

The annual meeting of the O. Y. B Grand Lodge of British America was opened at Port Hope on Tuesday.

James C. Flood, the well-known banker of San Francisco, has contributed $25,000 to the Irish relief fund.

On Wednesday, 3,000 unemployed working men in San Francisco, met to protest against the Central Pacific Railway employing Chinese labour.

An inquest has at last been held on the remains of Hennessy, who was murdered at the Desert, Upper Ottawa, and a verdict of wilful murder against the man Birsebois returned.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Telegraph Company was held on Wednesday. The report submitted shows that the Company's gross earnings for the year were $30,000 in excess of 1878. The pole mileage has increased 275 and wire mileage 1,169 miles, while no less than 58 new offices have been opened.

Local News.

THE sleighing has been completely spoiled by the soft weather. In the country the roads are almost impassable with mud.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.—There is some talk of an effort being made to induce Mrs. Scott Siddons to make her engagement here two nights instead of one.

RELIEF.—A number of men who had applied to the city for relief, have been set to work breaking stones, to be used on the streets.

SOCIAL.—A social will be given by the Ladies Aid Association of Knox Church, at Mr. K. McLean's residence this evening.

PROPERTY OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.—Those interested in the formation of a Property Owners' Association hold a meeting this evening in the Wellington Hotel.

LECTURE.—Mr. Leland, United States Consul, Hamilton, will lecture this evening in the Norfolk street Methodist Church. Subject—"P. P. Bliss, the celebrated singer."

SOUP KITCHEN.—This institution still proves a source of relief to many people in the city. Mrs. Edwards would be glad to receive contributions of vegetables from farmers and others.

THE COURT HOUSE.—The matting in the Court room, which has served as a covering to the floor for five years, is being replaced by new. Dust had accumulated under the old matting to the depth of about half an inch.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Walter Laing, butcher, met with an accident this forenoon while entering his stall at the outside market building. A gust of wind blew the door against his right arm with great force, bruising it considerably and rendering it powerless.

ALD. ROWE, who purchased the plant of the Winnipeg Times, has left Ottawa for the purpose of taking charge of that paper. He is accompanied by Mr. C. Acton Burrows, who is to take a position on the staff of the paper.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Brisk to high south-westerly to north-easterly winds, partly cloudy to clear, warm weather today, followed by falling temperature in some localities; snow flurries to-night and decidedly colder weather to-morrow.

RUNAWAY.—A horse belonging to a colored man took fright while near Robt. Waters' place, York Road, yesterday afternoon. It ran towards the city at a rapid pace, and before being stopped near Mr. Iles' place the sleigh was considerably broken.

OTTER SOLD.—Mr. Leonard Blain to-day sold to Mr. John Davidson one of the finest otter skins that has been seen in Guelph for some time. The price realized was a handsome one. The otter was trapped near Cedarville.

A PUBLIC meeting is to be held in the City Hall on Monday evening, to discuss the Irish relief question. Messrs. F. J. Chadwick, N. Higinbotham, John Harris and W. Hart called the meeting in response to the requisition presented to them.

MR. KENNEDY'S CONDITION.—We are happy to learn that Mr. D. Kennedy, whose illness has been noticed, has been pronounced out of danger by his physicians, Drs. Herod and Brock. His symptoms showed a change for the better yesterday, and he is still improving.

GAS TO THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—We understand that the Guelph Gas Co. have made satisfactory arrangements with the Ontario Government to extend a main to the Agricultural College during the summer, and supply that Institution with gas from the Company's works.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.—The first after tea social of the Ladies Association of the Norfolk street Congregational Church will be held in the church this evening. The programme includes a paper by the pastor, "Woman and the church, or woman's power and glory," besides readings and music by different persons.

SUPPER AT ABERFOYLE.—Mr. Daniel McLaren, Aberfoyle, gave a supper on the occasion of his birthday, at the Anglo American Hotel, at that village, on Monday night. There were about thirty guests, among whom were Mr. Hugh Reid, who acted as chairman, Councillor W. Black, and others. After the supper a number o toasts were drunk, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

THE FATAL FROG.—We notice that the Legislative Committee on railway accidents are being engaged getting all the evidence they can which will help them to make some definite recommendation to the House. They are also examining models of inventions for filling in frogs at railway switches so as to prevent accidents. Among others we notice that Mr. C. A. Post, of Guelph, exhibited to the Committee one of his newly-invented spring blocks, intended to be placed between the wing rails. At the end of the block there is a self-acting door to prevent the block being filled with ice or snow, which would be likely to throw a passing train off the track. The invention is a very ingenious one, and answers the purpose admirably, having been for some time tested on the Grand Trunk, at the freight station in this city. Several other models of appliances for coupling cars were also exhibited to the Committee.

PARLOR SOCIAL.—A parlor social will be held in the Good Templars hall on Friday evening. Parlor games and amusements will be the order of the evening.

CURLING.—The Galt Curling Club beat the Hamilton Mechanics Club at Hamilton, on Tuesday, by sixteen shots.

THE REPORT of the exchange of "B" Battery from Kingston to Quebec, and "A" Battery of Quebec to Kingston, has been confirmed. A number of Guelph boys are at present in training in "B" Battery.

GOW CUP.—A match was played on the rink here yesterday afternoon between John McKenzie and Charles Davidson, for the Gow Cup. Alex. A. Congalton skipped the former and James Emslie the latter. The score at the close stood, MacKenzie, 17; Davidson, 16.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—A grand supper and entertainment, on behalf of St. George's Society, will be given in the Society's rooms, Upper Wyndham street, tomorrow evening. After the supper a first class programme of music will be carried out under the direction of Mr. Philp.

CHECKERS.—The weekly meeting of the Guelph Draught Club was held at the American Hotel, on Wednesday evening. Sides were draw between M. McKenzie and D. Naismith, and the side chosen by the former won by twenty games to fifteen. This is the fourth time these leaders have played sides in the Club-room. The former three games resulted as follows:—The 1st, M. McKenzie won 7 games out of 9, two of which were draws; the second, he won 5 out of 7, there being two draws; and the third, he won 3 out of 6 games, three being drawn. On Wednesday evening, Mr. McKenzie won five games, and Mr. Naismith one game.

GREAT WESTERN ADVERTISERS ANNUAL.—We have received a copy of this handsome little book, a copy of which is given to every subscriber of the Advertiser for 1880. Besides containing the usual almanac matter, it gives the Complete Election Returns; Record of events for 1879; Postal Guide; Rural Hints for Every Month, by W. F. Clarke; The New Tariff Complete; Map of Manitoba and the North-west; and "The Political History of Canada Since Confederation," a brilliant piece of descriptive and historical writing, by a leading member of Parliament—the only complete, connected and independent resume, it is claimed, yet given of the period mentioned. This last essay alone deserves a careful perusal, and will be of great importance to every politician, and indeed to every one who wishes to get a truthful political history of the country since Confederation. The publishers of the Advertiser deserve great credit for their enterprise in getting up this useful Annual.

Book Notices.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL.—This journal for March opens with the first instalment of a novelette from the French, entitled "The Return of the Princess," which gives some striking inside views of harem-life at Cairo. The Duke of Argyll's second and concluding paper, "First Impressions of the New World," is given. There is a most interesting article on "Russia Nihilism"; a very striking satirical essay, under the title of "A Turkish Effendi on Christendom and Islam"; a biographical essay on Theophile Gautier; and two papers, respectively designated "Flesh-Color" and "Life at High Pressure," which embody numerous anecdotes and some telling hits at social follies. The freshest feature of the number is a group of three poems translated from the French poet Francois Coppee, accompanied with an introductory note. These poems are intensely dramatic and in their way very notable. One, called "The Benediction," made a great hit in France when it was first published. It describes a thrilling incident in the siege of Seragossa—of a priest who, with a fatal bullet in his breast, finished with his dying breath the benediction which closes the mass, with his murderers grouped before him. This poem is likely to become very popular with American readers. The editor discusses current topics and reviews the new books. For sale at the bookstores.

Hespeler Correspondence.

A man of about forty years of age, and giving his name as Weavers, alias Frank Miller, was stopping at the house of Mr. Philip Kraft, residing about half a mile from this village, and claiming to be an outstanding relation of the family, which claim, by the way, is ill founded. However, after having stayed three or four days and accepting the hospitality of the family, he seemingly had occasion one morning last week to rise earlier than usual. No notice, however, was taken, as it was almost the time that the household was usually astir. Their ungrateful guest in the meantime forgot to return, and in an hour or two afterwards it was ascertained that a new watch worth $40, and $10 in cash—the property of young Mr. Kraft—along with some other articles, had disappeared. The victimized sent some telegrams abroad, but we suspect that his would-be relation is a little too slippery to be easily secured. He has a respectable appearance, well dressed, and of medium size.

A strange disease has appeared in the East End of London. It is an affection of the eye, known in the affected districts as "the blight," and not familiar to the native oculist. It is virulent and dangerous, not seldom destroying the sight if it be not promptly taken in hand. Three weeks ago there were sixty-nine cases of this disease in Whitechapel alone. The epidemic is supposed to be a foreign importation.

The faster and more gentle a cow is milked the greater will be the amount given. Slow milkers always gradually dry up a cow, and for the reason that if the milk be not drawn about as fast as it is given down, it will subsequently be withheld, and that withheld is as a matter of course what is known as the strippings, in fact, the upper surface of the milk in the udder. Many milkers draw the milk with a strong downward pull, in fact, with a jerk. This should never be allowed; it irritates the cow, and often injures the bag. Fill the teat, and with a firm pressure of the last three fingers empty it, drawing slightly on the teat and udder at the same time; so proceed alternately with each hand until the milk supply is exhausted.

Sad Accident in a Saw Mill.

A Young Man Cut into Four Pieces, and Dies Instantly.

STRAFFORDVILLE, Ont., Feb. 12.—The son of Mr. John Smoke, a boy about eighteen years of age, was killed in Henry Stratton's saw mill to-day. His leg was first severed from his body by the large circular saw, then both arms and head. Death was instantaneous.

The Conservatives in the Legislature at Sixes and Sevens.

(Special to the Mercury.)

TORONTO, Feb. 12—2 p. m.

A good deal of discontent exists in the Conservative ranks this session with Mr. Meredith, their leader, on account of his not entertaining them, whilst the Speaker has given dinners once a week to members, and Ministers are constantly having small dinner parties. Mr. Meredith has not had his supporters once gathered round him.

Mr. Lauder succeeded this morning in delaying the business of the Committee of Public Accounts for two hours by insisting that the detailed expenses of the North West trip of the Lieut.-Governor should be inserted in the minutes of the committee. Mr. Hardy showed that such details were never published in any country respecting the expenses of the head of the Government, but to show that Ministers had nothing to fear he consented.

LUCAN INVESTIGATION.

The Prisoner John Darcy Discharged.

LUCAN, Feb. 12, 1 p.m.—The prisoner John Darcy has just been discharged from custody. He is now on the road home. This is in accord with the expressed opinion as to this man's innocence heretofore expressed.

The Guenette Murder.

The Death of the Only Witness.

QUEBEC, Feb. 12.—The servant girl at Franncours' hotel, St. Henrie, who died on Monday, was buried yesterday afternoon. Nothing has been made public respecting her alleged ante mortem with reference to the Guenette murder.

From Montreal.

Relieving the Distressed.—Curling Match.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—The St. George's Society relieved yesterday 160 English families, consisting of 670 persons.

The curling match between Quebec and Ottawa teams played here, resulted in a victory for the former by 13 points.

Killed by a Falling Tree.

LANARK, ONT., Feb. 12.—A man named Noah Lecour, in the employ of B. Caldwell & Son, was killed yesterday by a limb of a tree falling on him. The corpse was brought here to-day, and will be sent on to his friends in the Province of Quebec.

The Guelph Debenture Bill.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—In the Private Bills Committee to-day the Bill granting Guelph power to consolidate her debt by issuing new debentures was reported.

Fire in Glencoe.

GLENCOE, Ont., Feb. 12.—This morning, about two o'clock, a dwelling house belonging to J. W. Campbell, of Glencoe Bank, and occupied by Mr. L. H. Manus, painter, was destroyed by fire. Contents mostly saved but somewhat damaged; no insurance.

Fire at Lynden.

LYNDEN, Feb. 12.—On the night of the 9th inst, the saw and shingle mills of Obed Howell, of Jerseyville were destroyed. The fire caught first in the shingle mill. Loss $3,000, no insurance.

THOSE FRIGHTFUL PICTURES.—Says the Stratford Herald.—Whenever the Guelph Herald runs short of matter it jams in a picture of one of the Dominion Ministers. It has already printed and published these unfortunate gentlemen, separately and collectively, individually and in groups, sixteen times by actual count. And the plates, although looking tired and seedy, give no prospect of being speedily worn out. We can only look on and groan. Sir John A. Macdonald has done much for the people of this country. Can he not add to the debt we owe him by either choking off the Herald or changing the personnel of his Ministry? The villainous pictures which our Guelph namesake persists in printing would ruin the reputation of any Government in the world.

A HEARTLESS FEMALE.—The Sarnia Observer relates a most despicable and hard-hearted robbery which occurred in Sarnia last week. John Eady, the victim, had the misfortune to lose his wife some time ago. He had to be absent himself from his home at Point Edward to work at his trade at Marine City, Michigan. He left his children and house in charge of his sister-in-law and liberally supplied her with money. She led a fast life and finally having saved $75 of the cash received from Eady sold the furniture amounting to about $300 last week and decamped.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

The Inquest Resumed.

Johnny Connor's Evidence.

The Inquiry Adjourned for a Week.

LUCAN, Feb. 11.

After the inquest was opened,

Dr. Flock gave his evidence. He made a post mortem examination of the remains of James, Judith, Thos. and Bridget Donnelly. He said:—All those bodies had been very much burned by fire, many of the bones disarticulated, and only portions of some of them remaining, the rest having been destroyed; most of the internal organs were so charred that I could not distinguish them; some portions I could; there was no complete skulls to any of them, only a very few pieces; there were portions of the vertebral columns, temurs, ribs, etc., many disarticulated; the fire had made great havoc on all of them; the burning had been so destructive that I could not distinguish male from female; there were sufficient, however, of the remains to enable me to know that they were those of four human beings; I cannot say positively what was the cause of death; it may have been caused by burning alone, or they may have been dead or injured previous to being burned; there are no means by which I am determined.

Alfred Brown, County Constable, gave his evidence as to the finding of the bodies.

Johnny Connor, who escaped the notice of the murderers, and who fled from the house after it was on fire was then called. He said—Thomas Donnelly came down to our place on Tuesday afternoon (3rd inst.) to get our cutter to go to Granton. The old man Donnelly came down to our house to get some things he left there, and old Mr. Donnelly asked my father and mother to let me go down with them so as to be on hand when they went to Granton next day; my sister told me her father wanted me home; my mother told me to put on my overcoat and go with Mr. Donnelly; and feed the things while they would be in Granton; I went along with him down to put out the horses; went in the house and got warm; Tom and Johnny came in and sat down for a while; Tom told the girl to get some apples; the girl was Bridget; Johnny went out and got the pony, threw the harness over his neck, and went to Will to get the cutter; Tom got feed to feed the pigs, and he told me to get the blanket to put on his horse; he gave me the whip to keep the pigs away; Tom then went up on the stack and threw down some feed for the horses; Tom and me then went in the house; we sat there for while, and he told Bridget to get a few apples; after we got the apples eaten the old man went and said his prayers; he told me to take off my boots and go to bed along with him; then the old man made me go to bed with him; when I was in bed I heard some one talking out in the kitchen with Tom, the old woman and Bridget; I think it was James Feehly; then I went to sleep; between twelve and two o'clock there was a man came into the house to arrest the old man and Jack; the old man told him Jack was not in; then he asked him again, and the old man said, "Did not I tell you he was not in"; the old man told me to hold the light until he dressed himself; Tom was up at this time; then the old man dressed himself, and was looking for his coat; the man who came in to arrest him was Jas. Carroll, the constable.

To the Coroner—I was in bed next to the wall when James Carroll came to arrest the old man Donnelly; Carroll had a candle in his hand when he came to the door.

Mr. MacMahon objected to this evidence without Carroll being present.

The Crown Attorney held that the accused parties could be present at a subsequent investigation for cross-examination. There could be no possible wrong in continuing the examination. If Mr MacMahon's objections were carried out there might be any number of stoppages.

The Coroner decided that on the advice of the Crown Attorney he would continue the investigation.

Mr. MacMahon requested that his objection be noted. On account of James Carroll being implicated by the evidence of Connor he should be present before the evidence was proceeded with, as otherwise he would lose his right to cross-examination.

The investigation was then resumed.

To the Crown—Carroll had a candle when I saw him; he got the candle in the house I guess.

The Coroner—I saw nobody light the candle.

Witnes continued—Then he held the candle for the old man to find his coat; the coat was under my head, and I said, "Here it is."

To the Coroner—The old man was in room looking for his coat when he asked me where it was.

To the Crown—Carroll stood at the bedroom door when the old man got his coat; he went out in the kitchen and asked Tom if he was handcuffed, I did not see Tom at all; I heard the old man ask Tom; Tom said, "Yes, he thought he was smart"; then Tom told him to read the warrant; Carroll said there was lots of time for that; then in a few minutes the whole crowd jumped in and commenced hammering them with sticks; I seen them with a spade; Tom then ran out into the front room and got outside; I saw him running out and Bridget run upstairs, and I started to run upstairs; she shut the door, and I ran back again and went under the bed, behind a clothes basket; I heard them hammering Tom outside.

To the Coroner—The bed was about two feet one inch high from the floor, and no curtains around the bed; then they carried him (Tom) into the house again I heard them throwing him down on the floor; I heard the hand-cuffs rattle, or whatever he had in his hands; then some one said, "Hit that fellow with a spade and break his skull open;" then a fellow hit him three or four whacks with the spade; I only heard Tom say "Oh;" he was outside when I heard this; I did not see the man hit him; I heard him; then some of them told him (the fellow that had the light) to fetch it here—that is, to where Tom was; he brought the light, and they were doing something to Tom; they were all standing round him; I seen them standing there, and I seen Thomas Ryder and John Purtell standing there near the bedroom door where I was; then some of them asked where was the girl, and another man answered, "Look upstairs;" then they went upstairs, I heard them, and seen some of them too, but did not know any of them; I heard nothing going on upstairs; then they came down, and poured coal oil on the bed, and set it on fire, the bed; I was under; I heard some one saying, "That coal oil will burn off the blanket, and the bed will not burn at all; then they all ran out when they set fire to it, and I got from under the bed, put on my pants, and tried to quench the fire with my coat; I heard Tom breathing; then went out to the front room and saw Tom dead on the floor; then I went to the kitchen and I tramped upon the old woman; there was a light from the fire in the room where I was sleeping, and also from Tom's bedroom. (A diagram of the burned premises was here shown the witness, and he very intelligently pointed out every position required by the coroner as to where the bodies lay, where the beds were located, which bed was on fire, and which not.) The old woman was lying between the room door going into the house and the door going out of the kitchen; I then ran out and ran over to Pat Whelan's and rapped at the door; Mrs. Whelan asked who was there; then I pushed in the door; it was open—I mean not locked; old Mrs. Whelan got up; I told her Donnelly's house was on fire, and old man Whelan said I was dreaming; he then put on a fire, and told me to warm my feet; I then told him to call the boys up till we would go over and quench the fire, and they said no, they were afraid they would get killed; I said there was a whole pile of men come there and chased the old man out of the house, and that I thought the old woman and Tom were killed; old Mr. Whelan asked me did I ever get up at night; I do not know what he meant by asking me that; me and Whelan then looked and saw the light through the window, and the old man said, "'Tis on fire"; he (Whelan) then went down to Jack Whelan's; when he came again he went over to the fire; Mrs. Whelan gave me some boots and stockings, and then Joe Whelan and I went over; the house was all in a blaze; Mr. Whelan and John Whelan were at the burning; when I went over Whelan said he thought he saw some one in the kitchen; we went to the front door and we seen a whole lot of blood outside; we could not get up to the front door, there was too much heat and smoke; there was no other person there that I knew or seen; I did not know anyone else only what I told you; I did not recognize anybody but James Carroll, Tom Ryder, and John Purtell; know John Purtell; I also know Tom Purtell; they are brothers; I knew their father before he was killed; Purtell had on black clothes; Ryder had a peaked cap, and Carrol had grey pants; I saw one of the parties whom I did not know; his face was blackened, and he had a long coat on—a middling-sized man.

To a Juror—Carrol seen me in bed; I know he seen me, for he was looking right at me for a while; he did not speak to me; I did not see any one of them strike the Donnellys; I only heard them; there was some others there not blackened which I did not know.

To the Coroner—I could not say; I don't know how many.

To Mr. McMahon—Perhaps two or three whose faces were not blackened which I did not know.

To the Coroner—From the noise and fuss I heard there were others there besides those I seen.

To a Juror—Part of those men were in the kitchen when I came from under the bed and saw Bridget go upstairs; I seen the faces of the three men I knew; I seen a lot more of feet when under the bed.

To the Coroner—I peeped out when I saw them; I was looking out all the time; I don't remember that I ever seen them before (that is, the men he failed to recognize.)

The Coroner here gave the jury to understand that no more evidence would be taken until the accused were present to cross-examine the witness.

The inquest was accordingly adjourned until Wednesday, 18th inst., at ten o'clock, a.m. The inquest on the body of John Donnelly was then formally opened and adjourned till the same date. The probability is that both investigations will be concluded next Wednesday.

The boy Connor told a very straight story, and spoke intelligently and answered the questions put to him promptly. He has yet to be cross-examined, but the opinion is that his testimony will not be shaken much. He was very positive in his statement of the damaging facts. Chief Williams took the boy back to London, where he will be kept under strict surveillance. Several friends of the prisoners and members of the vigilance committee were present at the inquest, Purtell's brother Thomas being among the number. The mention of the names of Carroll, Ryder, and Purtell as having been seen at the butchery caused a sensation in the audience. At the next sitting of the Court other names will be divulged, and some eqidence of a damaging character admitted. It is understood that the names of all the men who participated in the crime can be named, with the exception of two. It is thought that a great many residents of the township are indirectly concerned, and knew beforehand that the attack was to be made. Judging by the callous and indifferent feeling manifested there would seem to be some truth in this. It is not only men who make so light of the terrible atrocity; women living in the village have been heard to say, "It's no more than they deserve"—meaning of course the murdered family—while the female sex throughout the township do not appear to think differently.

The New Appointments.

The appointment of the Hon. R. D. Wilmot as Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, vice Chandler, deceased, is a settled fact. Senator Macpherson, for services rendered to the Conservative party by the issue of pamphlets, etc., has been make Speaker of the Senate. The vacancy created in the Senate by Mr. Wilmot's retirement is to be filled by the calling of Mr. John Boyd, of St. John, N. B. It will be remembered that the latter party is of "My dear Boyd" fame, the one to whom Sir John sent the famous telegram which aided in the election of Mr. Tilley. It was stated that the tariff was not to be a protective one, only a readjustment. The making of Mr. Boyd a Senator, however, will scarcely satisfy the deceived electors of St. John, although it may be satisfactory to himself. Mr. Macpherson succeeds Mr. Wilmot in the Cabinet, without a portfolio. We do not think that this appointment will help to strengthen the Government. Senator Macpherson for all that he has done for his party, and the efforts he has made to make himself popular throughout the country, is by no means popular in the Senate. His appointment will certainly not tend to heal the breach in that body between the Government and its French Canadian supporters, whose claims for representation in the Cabinet have been persistently ignored. Both Mr. Wilmot and Mr. Macpherson were sworn in on Wednesday. There will now be one applicant less for the Lieut.-Governorship of Ontario, and Mr. John Beverley Robinson's chances for that post have considerably improved.

It is understood that Hon. Mr. Royal, of Manitoba, will move, and Mr. McLeod, of Nova Scotia, will second the Address to the Throne.

The Irish Canadian now thinks that the press has given Mr. Boyle a "moral acquittal" in connection with the Boyle-Globe libel suit. Don't Mr. Boyle wish he may get it. And what about that verdict of the jury?

Quite a little breeze has sprung up between Mr. Patteson, Postmaster of Toronto, and Mr. Platt, M. P., for East Toronto. It is understood that Mr. Platt had a very lively interview with Mr. Patteson with regard to his appointment, and which Platt claimed was the result of an unfair amount of patronage given to J. Beverley Robinson to distribute. It got to be so hot that at length Patteson ordered Platt to leave his office, and Platt left next morning for Ottawa to have an interview with the Postmaster-General before the opening of the House, to have Patteson removed, if possible, or at least censured. We may expect some interesting revelations.

Opening of Dominion Parliament.

The Speech From the Throne.

(Special per Montreal Line.)

Ottawa, Feb. 12.

This day at two o'clock, p. m., His Excellency the Governor General proceeded in State to the Chamber of the Senate in the Parliament Buildings and took his seat on the Throne. The members of the Senate being assembled His Excellency was pleased to command the attendance of the House of Commons, and that house being present His Excellency was pleased to open the Second Session of the fourth Parliament of the Dominion of Canada with the following

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I have great pleasure in meeting you again for the despatch of the business of the country.

The abundant harvest with which Providence has blessed Canada is a cause for the deepest thankfulness, and I heartily congratulate you on the evidences which surround us of a recovery from the commercial and industrial depression which has so long weighed down the energies of the people. Our returning prosperity should, I think, direct our attention to the less fortunate circumstances of our fellow subjects in Ireland where so much destitution prevails, and I invite your consideration of the best means of showing our practical sympathy with their distress.

We have reason to congratulate ourselves on the number of settlers who have during the past year come into our North West from Great Britain and the United States, as well as from the older provinces of the Dominion.

The visit of two members of the Royal Commission on the agricultural distress in the mother country, and the favorable reports of the tenant farmers who at the instance of my government have examined into the farming capabilities of the Dominion will, it is believed, largely increase the number of immigrants during the present year. Preparations must be made for their reception, and your attention will be specially called to this subject.

Every effort has been made to hasten the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Lake Superior to Red River, and no doubt is entertained that the railway will be opened for traffic between those important points within the time specified in the contracts. Under the authority given by Parliament last session nearly one hundred miles from Red River to the western boundary of Manitoba has been placed under contract, and tenders are about being asked for the construction of another hundred miles from the boundary westward. The completion of these two sections will, at an early day, afford railway facilities through two hundred miles of the most fertile land in the North-West. After an exploratory survey of the line from Port Simpson to the Pine River Pass, and through the Peace River country, it has been decided to adopt the location of the line to Burrard Inlet, and contracts have been awarded for 127 miles of the railway between Emory's Bar, on the Fraser River and Savonas Ferry. This work will be vigorously proceeded with, so soon as the Spring opens. Its construction will complete most difficult portions of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and secure the connection by steam of the fertile district of Kamloops, with the capital of British Columbia.

The adoption of a rigid system of economy in the management of the Intercolonial Railway has, without impairing the efficiency of its working, effected such a diminution of expense as to warrant the belief that the country will in future be relieved from any considerable burden in connection with its operation.

In consequence of the entire failure of the usual food supply of Indians in the North West, a large expenditure has been necessarily incurred to save them from starvation. It is hoped that the efforts which are now being made to settle the several bands on the reserves, and to induce them to betake themselves to the cultivation of the soil, may prevent the necessity of similar calls for relief in the future.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons.

The Estimates for the ensuing year will be laid before you. They have been prepared with all due regard to Economy. You will be pleased to learn that the effect of the tariff of last session in the development of the varied industries of the country has, on the whole, been very satisfactory. The experience acquired since it came into operation in March last has suggested the expediency of some amendments to which your attention will be directed.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

Bills for the better organization of the Civil Service, for the consolidation of the Inland Revenue laws, and for the amendment of Acts relating to the Dominion lands, to the public works, to the Indians of the Northwest, and to the Mounted Police Force, will be laid before you.

The Acts incorporating the Banks of the Dominion will expire next year, and the present would seem a favourable time for a fuconsideration of our system and of of the subject of the currency as connected with that system.

The subject of the laws relating to insolvency will doubtless engage your attention.

The increasing foreign trade of Canada and the prospect that Her Majesty's Government will enter ere long into negotiations with foreign nations on the subject of their trade and commercial relations, demand your closest attention and watchfulness, while the rapid development of the Dominion is continually giving rise to important matters requiring the support and action of the Imperial Government with the concurrence of Her Majesty. I therefore recommend you to sanction the appointment of a permanent representative of Canada in London to guard her various interests.

The subjects I have mentioned are of great importance. I commend them with full confidence in your wisdom and patriotism to your best consideration.

Visitors at the Capital.

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—There has been an unusually large influx of visitors to the Capital during this and the previous days. They have been probably attracted by anticipated brillance of Parliamentry ceremonies consequent upon the opening of the session, and also the State entertainment given by His Excellency and Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise. There will, however, be many disappointed ones, as the opportunities extended to the general public are very limited.

The issue of tickets for the general galleries in the Senate Chamber are exceedingly limited, each Senator has four tickets, each member of Commons two, and Her Majesty's Ministers six respectively. Only ten tickets were issued for the press. In previous years there has been a very irregular rush into the Senate Chamber by persons who had no right upon the floor of the Chamber, and who have by their presence seriously incommoded the members of the House of Commons.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

The Walkerton Telescope says about two weeks ago Mrs. T. Anderson, of that town, astonished her visitors by treating them to some very fine strawberries. We believe the strawberry vines had blossomed in the open air and being put into pots and taken into the house there matured.

James Walsh, a butcher and extensive cattle dealer, well known throughout the province, met with a serious accident on Tuesday night as he was driving along the Kingston road to Toronto. He was thrown from his two-wheeled cart, and received injuries to his head and spine from which he is not expected to recover.

CHAPTER XXVI.

MR. BISHOP RECEIVES A FEARFUL EXPLANATION OF THE ABSENCE OF ORWELL BRUCE.

In the absence of Orwell—the natural source of authority and action—the duties connected with May's funeral devolved on Mr. Bishop. For that gentleman the situation was rather trying and perplexing, not only because called on to give directions in a matter which should not have been left to his management, but also because he had serious doubts and misgivings regarding the absent youth. He could not help strongly suspecting that Orwell's protracted absence and inexpliable silence had a meaning of painful significance; that Anthony Langton knew the reason, though he would not admit it that he could have told where the youth was to be communicated with, but that, for some secret, and therefore suspicious reason, he kept his whereabouts carefully concealed.

Though Mr. Bishop kept these thoughts confined to his own bosom, they rendered him very uneasy, and added trouble to the sadness with which he made preparations for the interment. Though he had been enjoined to economise in all directions in his management of the estate, he was resolved that the funeral should be such as became the daughter of Mr. Bruce—neither gaudy nor pompous, but liberal in all its appointments, that the family honour might be preserved, and poor May laid in the grave with every token of respect and regard.

When Anthony Langton came to learn on what an expensive scale the preparations were being conducted, he came down to the Grange and entered a strong remonstrance, much to Mr. Bishop's indignation and astonishment.

"On what ground do you object to the style of the arrangements?" asked the lawyer with cold gravity.

"On the ground that they involve undue and needless expense," was the reply. "This thing could be done in a plainer style and much cheaper."

"I grant it, but not in accordance with the rank and position of the family, or the claim of the deed. You seem to forget, Mr. Langton, that the expenses of the funeral need not be defrayed by Mr. Orwell. His sister's own money, which will now come to him, will bear it without receiving any sensible diminution, though I am certain that had he been here he would not only have grudged nothing, but would have insisted on a much handsomer outlay, else an extraordinary change has come over him.

"Changed or not changed, I have reason for urging the smallest possible expense," said Langton, doggedly.

Mr Bishop drew himself up with dignity. "As I know of no such reasons, Mr. Langton," he observed, "I decline to take your advice. Miss May shall receive such a funeral as her father and mother had. I would a thousand times rather that the duty of seeing this done had not fallen upon me, but since it is so, I mean to discharge it to the best of my judgment. Good day Mr. Langton, as I am very busy, I must ask you to excuse my longer attendance."

"Take care, Mr. Bishop," said Anthony, with a significant nod. "You are acting without authority or instructions, and are lawyer enough to know that you are making yourself personally liable for any outlay beyond what is necessary.

"It depends on what in the circumstances is considered necessary by those who have a right to interfere," said Mr. Bishop with a haughty gravity. "As you have no such right, sir, I must decline any further discussion on the point."

"Oh, very well," rejoined the other with a sardonic smile. "Do as you please, but remember I have warned you."

"Warned me!" repeated the lawyer with contempt. "You have favored me with your sordid ideas, if that is what you mean. I shall not fail to 'remember' that, nor the fact that I scorned to adopt them. Once more, Mr. Langton—good day."

"I'll make you dance to a different tune ere long, my gentleman," growled Langton, viciously, as he made his way homeward, after offering the ineffectual remonstrance. "It would not have suited me to let you know the state of the case just yet, but in the course of a few days I expect to be able to open your eyes, and then I'll be bound you don't crow so loudly."

In spite of this ill-timed unseemly effort to stay his hand, Mr. Bishop carried out the preparations on the scale he had designed, and on the appointed day the mortal remains of May Bruce were laid in the quiet rural churchyard among the graves of her ancestors. A large company followed the hearse, a long string of filled carriages and many hundreds of footwalkers constituted the cavalcade, which wound slowly down the avenue under the trees, which showered their falling leaves on the sable plumes. It was a solemn and a sad procession, rendered more so to nearly every heart by the feeling that no footsteps of kindred or relations followed the coffin to its last resting place; that only kind and sorrowing acquaintances were there to perform the last rites, and lay the cold form in its narrow bed. In low tones, with many grave head-shakings, the unaccountable absence of Orwell was commented on, no one being able to understand why he had been away so long, and why he had left the young sister to die, cared for and tended by others, while he was seeking pleasure in foreign lands.

The funeral being over, it had now to be considered what changes May's death must produce in the mansion. With regard to most of the servants who formed the establishment it seemed as if the event would cause no alteration; but in the case of Miss Elliot and Agnes Borland, who had been May's special attendants, it was clear that their services would no longer be required. Miss Elliot spoke to Mr. Bishop about this on the very evening after the funeral, taking it for granted that she must seek a new home and other employment. The lawyer could not assure her that this necessity had not arisen, but requested her to remain in the mansion till Orwell's return, or at least till he could be communicated with. As she had no present views for herself, she readily agreed to follow this course, but Agnes at once returned to her mother's cottage, though she, too, had begun to wonder what her future course should be. The death of May, she saw, must effect the entire economy of her life, and soon she must decide on some plan of work for the means of her own support. Her mother's little annuity from the estate was not sufficient to maintain them both, nor did Agnes wish for a moment to remain in idleness. She had youth, strength, a good education, and a brave heart. Surely, being thus furnished for life's battle, she need not fear that a source of livelihood would not be found. After a short time for consideration she had little doubt but her way would be opened up, and that in some useful occupation her heart, mourning for the loss of its gentle friend, would find composure and comfort.

A week had not elapsed after the interment when it was rumoured that Reuben Langton had returned to Cairnbank. No sooner did this fact come to Mr. Bishop's ears than he proceeded thither to obtain intelligence of Orwell. If it was true that Reuben had come home alone, no time must be lost in learning where his companion was, and why he also had not appeared.

It was no pleasure to the lawyer to go to Cairnbank on this errand. His dislike to Anthony Langton had become strong—stronger even than his suspicion, and that, too, had increased from the hour of their last interview at the Grange. In reflecting afterwards on the old man's words he became more and more convinced that they contained a special though a hidden meaning. He had said he had particular reasons for recommending a plain, economical funeral, and hinted—nay, broadly declared—that Bishop was incurring personal responsibility by going to such expense. In his experience of Anthony Langton the factor had never found him a man given to unfounded assertions; therefore, in this instance he was forced to conclude that he had not spoken without warrant, though what the warrant was he was totally unable to conjecture.

He had a strong increasing belief that he was being deceived—hoodwinked; and the thought was intensely irritating. As a lawyer he prided himself on being clear-sighted, able to fathom the motives and purposes of those with whom he came in contact. To imagine that he was being played on and duped roused his professional ire, and he resolved to be at the bottom of the mystery. The rumour of the return of Reuben without Orwell offered what seemed the proper opportunity, and he hastened to embrace it.

He found Anthony Langton in his business room as usual, arrayed in his faded dressing gown and skull-cap, with account books and written papers spread upon the table. His entrance seemed to be unexpected, but Langton's surprise was feigned. He had been expecting such a visit for a day or two, and, in point of fact, had seen Mr. Bishop as he approached the house. It better suited his purpose, however, to appear ignorant of the advent of his visitor—and there were few better actors on or off the stage than Anthony Langton. The lawyer, however, detected a certain expression of security and satisfaction on his wrinkled features which he never observed there before, and he secretly wondered what it might protend.

"Good day, Mr. Langton," he said, giving the usual formal salutation as he entered.

"Ah, Bishop, how do you do? Busy as usual, you see—always busy. Can't afford to keep a factor, like some of my neighbors—eh?"

"I am sorry to take up your time, Mr. Langton, but shall not do so longer than is necessary. Is it true what I hear that your son has returned?"

"Quite true, sir. He came three days ago."

"Without Orwell Bruce?"

"Ay—without Orwell Bruce—more's the pity. Our former ward has turned out a perfect scapegrace. Who'd have believed it?"

"Believed what? Pray explain yourself," said Bishop, regarding the speaker with a scrutinizing look.

"Why, he has made ducks and drakes of everything, lost all his money at the gaming table, reduced himself to beggary, absolutely to beggary, sir. What do you think of that?"

"I think and hope that what you say is not true," returned Bishop, with a sudden sinking of heart.

"Egad but you'll find it too true. A fine story my son had to tell me of Orwell's ongoings. Against all Reuben's warnings, remonstrances, and good counsel, he went headlong, and never stopped till he was utterly ruined."

"Good God, are you serious in this, Mr. Langton?"

"Do I joke generally, sir? And is it likely I would joke on a matter like this? No, sir; what I say is true, every word or it. This explains the instructions you have had from London to keep down expenses on the estate. And high time, too, when the reckless prodigal, its owner, was plunging himself over head and ears in debt."

"This is dreadful!" gasped the stunned lawyer, who had of late received too many indications of Orwell's squandering of money to doubt but what he heard was substantially correct. "Where is he now?" he suddenly asked.

"Ay, but that is more than I can tell you. He bolted from Reuben more than a week ago, and has not been seen or heard of since."

This was blow after blow to the unprepared lawyer; but the series was not exhausted; The heaviest were yet to come.

"Good heaven! Why did he leave his companion?"

"Because, I suppose, he was ashamed to be seen by him or any of his friends after his ruin was complete."

"Oh! horrible. When do you say this occurred—more than a week ago?"

"It occurred on the very day of his sister's death. While she poor thing, was dying at the Grange, he was being robbed of his last coin in a Paris hell. Pretty conduct wasn't it?"

"But he did not know it," said the lawyer, who, though shocked beyond measure, found something in his heart pleading for an extenuation of Orwell's guilt."

"No, of course, he did not know it; how could he unless her spirit appeared to him to upbraid him for his cruelty."

"No, poor thing, she was too gentle to upbraid. Well, this is very, very dreadful. The intelligence has quiet upset me. I feared some evil, but nothing like this. Did your son lose all trace of him after he disappeared?"

"All trace whatever. He made every effort to discover where he had gone, but failed," was the unblushing reply.

"He must be advertised for," said the lawyer. "His sister's death, so sad otherwise, is fortunate in this, that it gives him the means of relief."

"How?"

"Her money, which comes to him, will, I hope, far more then pay his debts.

"Her money!" echoed Langton. "Why he squandered it all years ago."

"Embezzled his sister's money! Oh, never, never, Mr. Langton. Orwell may have been thoughtless, reckless; but he could not be such a villian. You are—you must be mistaken.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress-making Department. The numerous orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade, Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Fine Tweeds, Coarse Tweeds, Cloths, Diagonals and Overcoatings "is the lagest and choicest in the City."

SPECIAL.

Our Great 20 per cent. Discount

CLOTHING SALE

will be continued a short time longer. CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I BEG TO INTIMATE TO MY friends and the public generally that I have sold out my business to Thomas Simpson, whom I can confidently recommend to my customers, and as his stock consists of meats of the best quality, I would bespeak for him a continuance of the patronage so liberally bestowed on me, and for which I return my sincere thanks. The Markets.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 11.

The English markets show an advance of from 2d to 4d in wheat, with large transactions. In Chicago the market opened strong and advanced, the closing prices being about the highest of the day. The New York market was firmer, but quiet in the afternoon. In Montreal the breadstuffs market was firm owing to advices from England and the West showing higher prices. The local demand for wheat is quiet, and millers are only laying in short supplies. Canada spring wheat is quoted at $1.33 to $1.35; corn, 70c, duty paid; peas, 77c; oats 31c to 32c. A carload of clover seed was sold at $4.50 per bushel. Flour was quiet with no sales on 'Change. In Toronto the receipts of grain were larger than for some days, and prices were firm. There were 600 bushels of wheat, which sold as from $1.24 to $1.25½ for fall and $1.19 to $1.24 for spring. Barley, 400 bushels, at from 60c to 70c. Peas, 300 bushels, at 65c and 66c. Oats, 200 bushels, at 37c and 38c. And two loads of rye at 73c. Clover seed was firm at $4.10 to $4.25, according to quality. A good supply of hay sold at from $7 to $10.50 a ton, and straw from $4.50 to $5.50. Hogs were unchanged at $6.25 for light to butchers.

GUELPH MARKETS

GUELPH, Feb'y, 12, 1880

Since our last weekly issue, this market has not been very largely supplied with produce, owing no doubt, to the very unsettled state of the weather and the uncertainty of the roads, as farmers could not very well know what kind of vehicle they would start from home with, particularly with anything approaching an ordinary sized load. For the past few days we have had snow enough around town to make light sleighing, but to-day it looks as if a thaw which exists as we write, will do away with it.

In whe t there has been no great change; whatever there has been, is for the better by a few cents per bushel, as may be seen by reference to the quotations we give below.

Peas this week fetched as high as 67c, but to-day the price receded to 64c, which is about the outside figure offered for the best samples.

Oats have moved upward in price a few cents, 36c having been paid on the market to-day.

Dressed hogs, as we informed our readers some weeks ago, have declined considerably, and such persons as did not at the time avail themselves of our gratuitous, yet cheerful advice, now find that they have grievously erred. It would be also well for some of our buyers to have taken warning, which from their present stocks they are sorry they did not take note of

In other articles there is no change worth noticing.

Montreal Cattle Markets.

MONTREAL, Feb. 10.

At the St. Gabriel market to-day the supply of cattle was small, and dealers advanced their prices so that butchers purchased very sparingly. Mr. Kennedy bought 7 head for shipment at 5c per pound. They aggregated 11,750 pounds in weight. Fred. Ritchings sold a car load of cattle at 4c per pound. The following dealers were represented by one car load each: Adam Armstrong, from Donald W. Morgan & Co., Waterloo; R. J. Hopper, Brighton; and F. W. Ritchings, Guelph.

The offerings at Viger market were lighter than usual, comprising 105 head of cattle, 5 calves, and a few lambs. The quality of the cattle was fair, but the demand was not brisk owing to the advance in price and the near approach of Lent, which exercises an unfavorable effect upon this market. The range of prices to-day was 3c @ 44c per lb. live weight. Calves brough $3 @ $4.50 each, and lambs $4.25 @ $5 each.

GALT.—Mrs. David MacIntosh was killed by a runaway accident in Beverly a few days ago. Deceased, with her son and a number of friends were driving homewards about nine o'clock at night, when a runaway collided with their conveyance, throwing out the occupants. Mrs. MacIntosh was instantly killed.——The congregation of St. Andrew's Church has decided to close the church altogether. There are still Presbyterian churches in Galt. The property of St. Andrew's congregation will pass into the hands of the Presbytery.——$13,500 has been collected for the erection of Union Church.

THE BOILER EXPLOSION AT WINDSOR, QUEBEC.—Further particulars of the terrible boiler explosion at Windsor Mills, show that Poulict, one of the killed, was thrown upon the large stove and pinned there by the shafting. The men at work rescuing heard his cries for at least fifteen minutes. His body was reduced almost to a cinder when found. The other sufferers are progressing favourably. The boiler, which weighed about four tons, was blown through the wall of the building, and over several adjacent houses, a distance of 300 feet. The number wounded altogether is ten. A double wall of great thickness alone saved the extensive paper mill from destruction.

A SCHOOL DIFFICULTY.—Principal MacCabe, of the Normal School, Ottawa, was appointed by the Minister of Education, at the request of the Separate School Board, a member of the County Board of Examiners. The County Council refuses to recognize the appointment. The Minister of Education was notified of the fact, and he advised Principal McCabe to discharge the duties of the position, and if the County Council refused to pay him for his services he should bring the matter before the Division Court.

Cornwall has a Police Magistrate, Dr. Allen, who has just escaped a conviction on the serious charge of rape. The bench of magistrates, in giving judgment, said that the resistance offered by the complainant "was not quite sufficient to sustain the charge—she should have screamed." Nice excuse for getting off a Magistrate.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of wel selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Legislative Committee Meetings—The Time of Closing Parliament—The Game Laws—Aid to Impoverished Districts in Muskoka.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, TORONTO, Feb. 13.—The Government expect the session will close at the end of present month. It may be extended a few days beyond that time.

In the Accidents Committee this morning Mr. Stiff, Superintendent of the G. W. R., was examined. He stated that he had sent a circular to a number of yardsmen and brakesmen, asking them if they thought a small step at the end of the cars, upon which they could stand while coupling, would lessen the number of accidents. Eight replies were received, which were unanimous in stating that such a change was not desirable.

This is the last day of the Private Bills Committee. The only bill reported is that of Wm. Hall, Peterboro, with reference to the Protestant Poor Tract Fund.

In the Game Laws Committee, Mr. Wigle's bill was reported the principal alteration being that those living outside of Ontario, yet belonging to a company or club organized for the purpose of holding land for the preservation of game, should have the privilege of exporting game.

Owing to the illness of Col. Ross, chairman of the Municipal Committee, that Committee did not meet this morning.

News having been received by the Government that many settlers are suffering extreme destitution in Muskoka, Hon. Mr. Pardee has ordered a supply of food to be at once forwarded to impoverished districts.

Brakesman Killed on the G. T. R.

Last night when No. 4 passenger train west, which left Bonaventure St. Station at 10 o'clock, arrived at River Beauditle Station, forty-three miles from Montreal, a brakesman, P. Filiatrault, was missing. The conductor sent back men along the track, and they found him about a mile and a half this side of the station. He was lying on the track quite dead. It is supposed he stepped off the platform, or was blown off by the high wind then prevailing.

Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

OTTAWA, FEB. 13.—A large deputation of members of the House waited upon the Attorney-General this afternoon to advocate the interests of the Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

Church Debt Cleared.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—Stanley street Presbyterian Church has raised $8,000 in a few days to pay off the debt on the building.

The stock market was stronger this morning, with a further advance in bank stocks.

Accident.

ALBERT MINES, Feb. 13.—Wm. Leavitt, son of the Henry Leavitt, formerly flour Inspector of St. John, was accidentally killed in the quarry at Hopewell Hill, today.

From Ottawa.

The address in the Senate will be moved by Mr. Carvell. The seconder is not yet named.

Curling.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—The Montreal Curling Club defeated the Ottawa club by a score of 20 to 15.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY RETURNS.—The following is the returns of traffic for the week ending the 7th of February 1880, on the Grand Trunk Railway, and for the corresponding week of 1879. 1880—passengers, mails, and express freight, $40,340; freight and live stock, $134,101—total, $174,441. 1879—passengers, mails, and express freight, $39,006; freight and live stock, $132,791—total $171,797.

Local News.

REMEMBER the St. George's Society's supper and entertainment in St. George's Hall to-night.

THE Money Orders paid at the Guelph Post office in January this year amounted to $7,534.47. In the same month last year they amounted to $4,579.72—increase $2,955.75.

AGRICULTURAL AND ARTS ASSOCIATION.—To-morrow a meeting will be held in the Grand Jury room in the Court House, Hamilton, at one o'clock, for the purpose of electing a representative at the Board of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario. Delegates from the following districts are to be present:—Hamilton, North Wentworth, South Wentworth, Halton, North Waterloo, South Waterloo, North Wellington, Centre Wellington, South Wellington, and Dufferin, ten in all. Mr. John Hobson is the Wellington candidate.

INTERESTING DATES.—Following are some interesting dates for the present year:—St. Valentine's Day, Saturday, Feb. 14; First Sunday in Lent, Feb. 15; St. Patrick's Day, Wednesday, March 17; Palm Sunday, March 21; Good Friday, March 26; Easter Sunday, March 28; Rogation Sunday, May 2; Ascension Day, May 6; Whit Sunday, May 16; Trinity Sunday, May 23rd; Queen's Birthday, Monday, 24th May; Dominion Day, Thursday, July 1st; Fourth of July, Sunday; Advent Sunday, Nov. 28; Christmas, Saturday, Dec. 25.

VENNOR AGAIN PROPHECIES.—The following is Vennor's latest: The second cold period in February will reach us on the 22nd, 23rd, 24th and 25th days. This, it is probable, will be extremely cold along the valley of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers, Northern United States, and to the westward. February will certainly end cold. The second heavy snow storm of the month should—by my theory—come on us about the 15th, and this bids fair to be heavy, with drifts and fairly cold weather. We have yet to get our heaviest snow falls of the winter, and some of these are certain to extend through March. Up to the 15th the weather should be moist.

FROM BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The Elora Express says:—"Mr. Adam Scott, who left this village for British Columbia three years ago, and who now resides at Langly, B. C., interested himself sufficiently in the weather of that country during the past year, to keep a detailed record. His father, James Hunter, Arch. Gimes and Wm. Floyd. copy of the weather report, and has kindly brought it under our notice. Upon inspection, we find that British Columbia has had as changeable weather throughout 1879, as that of Ontario. Adam thinks of visiting Elora shortly." Mr. Scott was a student at the Agricultural College the second year of its establishment.

O. Y. B.—The business of the Grand Lodge of Orange Young Britons was continued on Thursday evening. There port on returns showed a satisfactory increase in membership, twenty-two new lodges having been started in various parts of the Dominion. Victoria Lodge entertained the grand officers at a banquet later on. The usual loyal and complimentary toasts were proposed and suitably honoured. At the afternoon session the following grand officers were elected:—H. Hilber, M. W. G. M.; W. R. Fee, M. W. D. G. M.; — Parnat, G. S.; F. L. Lloyd, G. T.; W. F. Allan, Guelph, G. D. of C.; W. H. James, G. D.; W. G. Butler, G. I. T.; J. C. Harkness, G. O. T.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH FANCY FAIR.—The Fancy Fair given by the Ladies Aid Association of St. Andrew's Church, in aid of the church fund, opened this morning in Corbett's block, and will be continued tomorrow. There is a large stock of fancy goods of almost every description to choose from, including elaborate tidies, pin cushions, lace furnishings, &c. Among the articles, which are mostly hand-worked, are fancy goods, ornamented with beautiful paintings in water colours. In preparing their stock, the ladies have not over-looked the fact that goods may be useful as well as ornamental. Refreshments will be provided from 12 till 2 o'clock each day and in the evening. The fair will be kept open in the evening as well as during the day.

MATRIMONIAL.—The Mount Forest Confederate says:—Thursday last one of those happy events, which it is our lot now and again to chronicle, took place. We refer to the marriage of Mr. R. J. Hewat, the gentlemanly and respected accountant of the Ontario Bank, in this town, and Miss Edith M. Henderson, daughter of R. C. Henderson, of Maitland, and cousin of Mr. J. C. Fielde, Manager of the bank, here. The ceremony took place in the Anglican Church at Maitland, the bridesmaids being Miss Ida Fielde, a cousin; and Miss Annie Henderson, a sister of the bride; and the groomsmen Messrs. Lionel Clarke, of Palmerston; and Wm. McMullen, of this place. Rev. Mr. Lewis, Rector of Prescott and Maitland, conducted the ceremony according to the form of the Church of England. Upon the knot being tied the party returned to the residence of the bride's father and partook of an excellent wedding breakfast, shortly after which the newly-married couple left for the West on a wedding trip. They are expected here in a few days. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hewat, in this town, we are sure, wish them long life and much happiness." Mr. Hewat is a son of Col. Hewat, of this city, and was for some time a clerk in the Ontario Bank here.

THE employees on the Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway received their pay today.

CHARLES CALLUM, an old Guelph boy, is a partner in a firm styled Kent & Callum, proprietors of a saloon and billiard parlor, Yew York.

SOME of the carpenter's tools stolen by Hutton, alias Wm. Armstrong, are still in the hands of the police, having been unclaimed.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Moderate to fresh, cloudy weather with light local showers of rain or snow, followed by fair and slightly colder weather.

THE WATER WORKS.—The work of extending the Water Works services into the Wellington Hotel, will be commenced this afternoon.

AT the weekly meeting of the Chalmers' Church Young People's Association this evening, Mr. G. H. Panton, of the Agricultural College, will lecture on "Electricity."

THE New York Times of the 19th inst., says that "Mrs. Cool Burgess, of Toronto, obtained, on Friday last, under the Canadian Married Women's Act, an order from the Court, allowing her to transfer property without her husband's signature."

LITERARY SOCIETY.—The Y. M. C. A. are forming a Literary Society. Meetings will be held weekly. The first meeting will be held to-night at 7:30. Young men whether they are members are not, are cordially invited to attend.

PARLOR SOCIAL.—The parlor social given by the Ladies' Aid Society of Knox Church, held last night at the residence of Mr. K. McLean, was a successful and enjoyable affair. During the evening an excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.—To-morrow will be St. Valentine's Day, and if all our citizens do not receive valentines our merchants will not be to blame, for every variety is being displayed in the book and fancy goods stores, from the most delicate design to the most hideous caricature.

NO. 2 COMPANY, GUELPH RIFLES.—At the parade of this company last night the result of the recent examinations for promotion, made by Captain Spiers, were made known. The following are the appointments:—To be full Sergeant, Lance Sergeant James Clancy, vice, Sergeant William Clay, discharged. To be Lance Sergeant, Private Taylor, vice. J. Clancey,

HAMILTON CORBETT.—Do not fail to hear Hamilton Corbett, the leading Scotch vocalist, at the City Hall, to-night. This is his farewell visit to Guelph, and citizens should not miss this last opportunity of hearing him. Piper Major G. A. Smith, of Hamilton, will appear at the concert in full Highland costume and perform some of his best selections on the pipes. Mr. Corbett will sing in London to-morrow night in aid of the distress in Ireland, and the Irishmen in this city should show their appreciation of this kindness by patronizing him while here.

PROPERTY OWNER'S ASSOCIATION.—An adjourned meeting of the Property Owner's Association was held at the Wellington Hotel on Thursday evening. The Secretary, pro tem Mr. Charles Davidson, read the report of the Committee on the constitution and by-laws of the Association, which were adopted. The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows:—J. M. Bond, President; J. B. Armstrong, Vice President; and Chas. Davidson, Secretary Treasurer. Different matters were discussed for a time and left over for consideration to a future meeting.

AFTER TEA SOCIAL.—The first after tea social given by the Ladies' Association of the Norfolk street Congregational Church, was held last night in the basement of the church. There was a large attendance. The pastor. Rev. Mr. McGregor, occupied the chair. The programme was a lengthy one, and included a paper by the chairman on "Women of the Church, or women's power and glory," besides music by members of the choir and readings by adherents to the church. A pleasant evening was spent, and at the close of the social a handsome collection was realized.

A FRAUD.—The Hamilton Spectator says:—The members of the I. O. O. F. are cautioned against relieving one Wm. Hatten, alias James Arnold, claiming to be a member of Prince Albert Lodge, No. 26, Moncton, N. B. The Secretary of the above Lodge, in a letter to Unity Lodge, of this city, says:—"We have published him in the newspapers and in every way tried to give publicity to the fact of his being unworthy of aid, but still he changes his name so often that he is very hard to guard against. He never was a member of Prince Albert Lodge, but some time ago he belonged to a Lodge in the United States, from which I believe he was expelled. Pass him around." Hatton was sentenced here some time ago to the Central Prison under the name of William Armstrong, for the larceny of carpenter's tools, so that there will be no necessity of persons not connected with that Institution guarding against him.

Norfolk Street Methodist Church.

Lecture on P. P. Bliss.

Last evening the Norfolk Street Methodist Church was pretty well attended to hear the Hon. F. Leland's lecture on P. P. Bliss, the celebrated singer. The entertainment was under the auspices of the Young People's Aid Society of the Church, and thus was added more interest to the lecture. The splendid choir of the church, under the leadership of Prof. Harrington, with Miss Harrington as organist, was present, and sang with good taste several of Mr. Bliss's hymns.

At eight o'clock Rev. Mr. Williams, pastor of the church, took the chair, and after expressing his personal pleasure at meeting the lecturer, he introduced to the audience who said in his introductory remarks that P. P. Bliss, amongst others, was one of the men of the world; and read several eulogies on the singer by the great men of the nation. The true revivalists went out in couples now-a-days, as they did in olden time, and by that means were able to do much good. Moody and Sankey were referred to in the work, as being especial friends of Mr. Bliss. Mr. Bliss was born on July 9th, 1838, and although possessing few advantages in youth made good use of what he had. Between the years of eleven and sixteen he showed a strong passion for music, and after a hard struggle for a livelihood, gained the goal of his ambition by a strong arm and steady purpose. At twelve years of age he began to store his mind with valuable knowledge, and at nineteen entered on his labors as a revivalist. He was married on the 1st of June, 1859, and he and his devoted wife lived happily together and did a great amount of good, until the sad catastrophe at Ashtabula in the year 1874, when both himself and wife were burned to death in each other's arms. The musical voice of Mr. Bliss being noticed by several prominent musicians and vocalists, he was taken in hand at an early age. The charming sunshine of his nature was also touched upon. In 1870 Bliss and Moody met, and the latter being struck by the sweetness of his voice, they became fast friends. Bliss knew what sacred harmony should be, and he improved himself upon that talent until he reached a beautiful perfection. As a teacher of children he was a great success, the latter all seeming to take to him at once. The lecturer referred to several of his favorite musical compositions, and gave interesting anecdotes of his life. "Hold the Fort" was now translated into more languages than any other known hymn, and as music was the same in all the languages, this beautiful tune was now being sung the world over. The speaker also gave the composition of this wonderful hymn. It was during the American war in which Hood and Sherman were the opposing generals, and both in command of great forces, that this idea was seized upon by Bliss. Fanny J. Crosby, the blind girl, was referred to as the writer of many of Mr. Bliss's beautiful hymns, now the largest collection that has ever been published, many of which were being sung in China and Japan to day. The humors of Mr. Bliss's musical talent was referred to, and laughable anecdotes given. After all, the speaker said, there was an ocean of Christian manhood about his nature that made him loved by all with whom he came in contact. The lecturer referred to the incalculable amount of good that had been done by the great revivalists at the present day, and what machinery had been set in motion by the labors of these men. After giving several anecdotes of Mr. Moody's peculiarly forcible manner when preaching, the lecture was concluded with a brilliant eulogy on the late singing revivalist P. P. Bliss, who was now, he was sure, singing the praises of his Creator in the home above.

HON. F. LELAND, U. S. CONSUL AT HAMILTON,

The choir sang very nicely "What shall the Harvest Be."

The usual vote of thanks, moved by Mr. W. G. Smith, seconded by Mr. R. Ainley, was passed, and the Rev. Mr. Williams, in a speech of four or five minutes, spoke feelingly of the bond of union existing between Canada and the United States and the Mother Country. A short reply was made in the same strain by Mr. Leland, and this very pleasant meeting was brought to a close after the pronouncing of the benediction.

A lady belonging to the Society of Friends, Sparta, has handed the St. Thomas Journal the following cure for frozen limbs: Embed the frozen limb, fingers or body in newly made cold ashes. It will draw the frost out almost immediately, and leave the affected part in the same condition in which it was before being frozen. No pain or soreness whatever follows this treatment.

In 1879 (Clarke, McKim, and Jull) 1671; (Roberts, McGowan, Jelly, and McGhee) 1168; or a Reform majority of 503 in 1879 against a Conservative of 6 in 1878.

Attempted Suicide.

A Dundas Woman Tries to Hang Herself in the Cells.

Guelph is becoming notorious of late for attempted suicides. A few weeks ago a woman arrested for vagrancy had almost closed her existence by hanging herself in the police cells; last week Patterson endeavored to kill himself; and now Mrs. Rushdon, a Dundas woman, tried to hang herself on Thursday night in the police cells. On the night of the 10th inst., Mrs. Rushdon and her husband applied to the police for quarters and were supplied with them. The following morning they were discharged and the police heard nothing more of them until between nine and ten o'clock on Thursday night, when Sergeant Dooley arrested the woman near the Market House, for drunkenness. During the time intervening their discharge and the arrest last night it is believed Rushdon and his wife were living with a Mrs. Curry in the southern part of the city. Last Saturday night two of Mrs. Curry's daughters applied to the Chairman of the Relief Committee for money to buy bread and were given 50 cents. While Mrs. Rushdon was being taken to the Police Station on Thursday night she threatened to hang herself. This made the Sergeant so watchful that she could not put her threat into execution, and he returned to the Station about ten minutes after locking her up. By this time she had torn a shawl she wore into shreds, fastened one end of it to the top bar of the grating in her cell, the other being tied round her neck, and was ready to take the fatal leap Sergeant Dooley at once cut the shawl and took it away. A strict watch was kept over her the remainder of the night but she made no further attempt to destroy herself. This morning her husband was sent for and he and his wife were given one hour to leave the city.

As already stated Mrs. Rushdon says she belongs to Dundas, but latterly she has been living at the Model Boarding House, Toronto, and arrived here on the 10th inst. She claims to be Scotch, is 38 years of age, is low in stature and is altogether repulsive in appearance.

FRIDAY EVENING, FEB 13, 1880

The Speech from the Throne.

Ministers put into the mouth of the Governor-General on Thursday the best Speech they could get up under the circumstances. The late abundant harvest received due mention, and it was well credit for it was not given to the National Policy, for that seems to swallow up everything now a days. In this connection we are asked to congratulate ourselves on the evidences of prosperity which are said to abound, and on our recovery from the commercial and industrial depression which has for years paralyzed our energies. But we are not told that amid all this jubilation our farmers are not getting such high prices for their grain and produce as they did under the old tariff, and that the promises held out to them have not been realized.

Credit is taken for the increase in immigration, and some practical token of sympathy for the relief of the distress in Ireland is promised.

We don't see what credit can be claimed for pushing on the work of the Pacific Railway, and as to the extension of the road west of Winnipeg, the Government are deservedly censurable for their carelessness, for though the contracts have be let, not the first thing has been done as regards commencing operations.

Dr. Tupper takes great credit to himself for cutting down expenses on the Intercolonial Railway, but the facts do not justify the claim. The truth is that the rolling stock of the road has been permitted to deteriorate, so that the road is at the present time scarcely safe for travel. In support of this charge the road's record is given for two thorough trains during the early part of this week. A party of members of Parliament left St. John, N. B., on Monday morning. In the evening they were delayed six hours at one point because the track was blocked, owing to the mail train carrying the English mail having got off the track. The cause was defective rolling stock. Nearly two miles of the track was torn up. After this delay the passenger train first mentioned was further delayed for three hours on account of a defective wheel. Ultimately the whole of the first-class passengers were huddled into the baggage car, and the women and children placed in the Pullman car. The first-class car had to be left behind, because its wheel gave out. Even after this there was a third delay, because an accommodation train in front had meandered off the track.

Allusion is made to the construction of the Pacific Railway in British Columbia, and to the necessity for supplying the Indians of the North West with food. The faithful Commons are treated to a hollow congratulation about the development of the industries of the country as the result of the working of the National Policy, but we have yet to learn where the developement exists, and in what way the country has been benefitted.

Several measures of more or less importance are promised, among others a Civil Service Bill, which coming from such a Government we are afraid will be no reform. The Insolvency Act will likely be repealed, and as the expiration of the bank charters is near, we will no doubt have a lively discussion on this subject, and also on the question of irredeemable currency, which is now being agitated.

It is generally believed that the session of the Dominion Parliament will be quite lengthy, as there are a good many important matters to be considered, and with the tariff changes, Pacific Railway matters, the Letellier business and contract jobbing generally, there is a prospect of our legislators having more than a sufficiency of work. The Private Bill legislation will be especially heavy, and the Committee on Railways, Canals, and Telegraph Lines will have more to do than for several years past.

We cordially agree with the following from the London Advertiser on "organship." It meets the case exactly:—Nothing can be more ridiculous than any attempt at showing that a newspaper of fair standing and paying circulation could ever be fairly regarded as "an organ," either of those in office or of those out. Leaving principle and self-respect out of view altogether, such a surrender of independence as is implied in organship would not pay. The alleged "pap" in the shape of official advertisements is a very small item in the large returns which such a newspaper must have if it is to continue to exist at all. The profits from "Government advertisements" in any prominent newspaper for a whole year would not meet the publishing expenses of half-a-day out of the three hundred and sixty five; while anything else which can be legitimately thrown in its way by the powers that be, or hope to be, is still so comparatively small, and the sacrifice to be made in order to secure it so great, that no moderately far seeing man with an enlightened eye to his own best interest would ever think of giving the quid pro quo. The fact is, the newspaper that needs to be an organ is not worth even the pay it gets; while the paper which can really help or hinder, even though its conductors knew no principle above mere selfishness, could not afford to stand cap in hand to any Minister, or to take its orders with its advertisements from any Department of the Public Service.

The Government in asking tenders for engines, cars, &c., for the Pacific Railway, stipulate that the whole is to be manufactured in the Dominion of Canada. This is the true way to encourage home manufacture.

The printing contract business will be brought up in the House by Mr. G. W. Ross.

When Mr. Blake was introduced in the House on Thursday, he was received with cheers, in which both sides participated.

The result of the election in Argenteuil, on Thursday, is doubtful. So far as heard from Mr. Abbott had a majority of the votes.

So far as the relative strength of the two parties in the Dominion Parliament is concerned, matters remain precisely as they were last session.

Mr. MacMaster, the new member for Glengarry, is looked upon as the coming man, and there is talk at least of deposing the deputy leader, Mr. Morris, and giving him his place next session.

It is complained that the Government have appointed a number of recent arrivals from the Old Country as temporary clerks, while so many young Canadians who have little or nothing to do would be glad of the positions.

We are glad to learn from the Ottawa Free Press that Mr. John Horsman has been appointed hardware appraiser on the Board of Dominion Appraisers. Our contemporary says that Mr. Horsman will immediately enter on his duties.

Sir Richard Cartwright is evidently determined to learn the truth relative to the fiscal affairs of the country, and the state of the Dominion's export and import trade, since he has a series of motions on the notice paper pointing in that direction.

The insolvency law will undoubtedly lead to a long and bitter debate in both Houses of Parliament. Mr. Colby, of Stanstead, will seek to remodel the law, while Mr. Brechard will introduce his total repeal Bill. The probabilities are that it will pass both Houses of Parliament this session.

In the Private Bills Committee on Thursday, the Bill in reference to the debenture debt of the city of Guelph was brought up for consideration. It was finally amended to empower the Corporation to borrow by debenture a sum not to exceed $10,000 during the next three years, to be applied to retiring other debentures maturing within that time.

Ottawa Free Press—"South Bruce Tories met at Kincardine the other day and passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Shaw for his course in Parliament. It strikes us that these people are mighty thankful for small favors. It would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer to say what he did in Parliament worthy of thanks, except vote straight at the nod of the Tory whips and draw his allowance. An old suit of clothes stuffed with straw and set up on divisions would answer just as well as Mr. Shaw in Parliament. There was a time when the member for South Bruce meant somebody, but now—Oh, Pshaw."

By the late Ministerial shuffle the representation of New Brunswick is reduced to one, Ontario is increased to five, three of whom are in the Senate, and Quebec is left where it was before, without a French Canadian Minister in the Senate. It will not be forgotten that Senators Bellerose and Trudel took deep offence last session at the Government for not selecting a Minister from among the French Canadian Senators, and made things particularly lively for the neglect and contempt with which they were treated, and they are not likely to forget it now.

The Departmental binding contract scandal, which was exposed some weeks ago, will, in all probability, be brought before Parliament this session, and will likely prove to be as nasty a business as the printing scandal. A motion is to be made for all tenders received. It is understood that a member of the firm which put in the lowest tender was induced by Mr. Carrier, of the Citizen Printing and Publishing Co., to withdraw for a consideration—in fact, a partnership—his name from the tender, and so destroy it. He contemplates entering an action for damages against Mr. Carrier for non-fulfilment of contract. It is desirable that this disgraceful conspiracy, in which the public were defrauded in a manner equally as barefaced as Mr. Mackintosh did in the Department printing contract, should be sifted to the very bottom.

The height of industry—a girl so industrious that when she has nothing else to do she knits her brows.

A Cool Robbery.—The Palmerston Telgraph says while Mrs. Thos. McDonald and her brother, from Newbridge, were making some purchases late on Tuesday evening last, at the city grocery, some light-fingered person or persons appropriated the buffalo robe from off the horse's back at the door.

Old Lady, "I dinna ken what ails folk that canna like folk as folk should like folk; for an folk liked folk as folk should like folk, folk would like folk as well as folk ever like folk sin' folk war folk." If we catch the old lady's meaning, we are inclined to think she is right.

Terrible vengeance of a husband whose wife has gone off with a handsomer man: 'Dear sir,' he writes, 'please hand the inclosed set of false teeth to my late wife, and ask her to be so good as to return my father's which in the hurry of the moment she took by mistake.

A clergyman asked his Sunday School, "With what remarkable weapon did Samson at one time slay a number of Philistines?" For a while there was no answer; and the clergyman, to assist the children a little, commenced tapping his jaw with the tip of his finger, at the same time saying, "What's this? what's this?" Quick as thought a little fellow innocently replied, "the jaw bone of an ass, sir."

The latest method of swindling the farmers, says an exchange, is as follows:—A gentlemanly fellow drives up with blanks for statistics on the farm—bushels of wheat, number of cattle raised, acres under cultivation, &c. Between the tables and the foot of the page, where the farmer signs his name attesting the statement, is a blank space whose existence is accounted for as affording room for miscellaneous information. In a month more the farmer receives notice from a neighboring bank that his note for $150 is due. He knows nothing of the note, but investigation shows that the "census taker" has filled in the blank with a promise to pay, which now in the hands of an innocent holder must be paid by the unlucky dupe.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

More Arrests Yet to be Made.

New Developments Promised.

Lucan, Feb. 12.

All was quiet to-day in the village. It is said that only about one-half of the arrests contemplated have been made. The men yet to be apprehended are supposed to have a greater or less knowledge of the crime, and many find themselves in as unenviable a position as some of the twelve now lying in the London gaol. They all live in Biddulph, and are members of what is proved to be bloody and revengeful organization instead of an ordinary Vigilance Committee. In a few days the public will know who they are. At present their names are only known to two or three police officers, who are biding their own time pending the accumulation of evidence to justify the men's arrest. At the next sitting of the inquest Wm. Donnelly and Martin Hogan will tell what they saw and heard on the night Jack Donnelly was shot. The damaging portion of the former's evidence will be the naming of several members of the gang which surrounded his house, and the repeating of some conversation that passed between them on that occasion, which he overheard from his bedroom window. Johnny Connors and Bill Donnelly are considered the most important witnesses the Crown has, but still there are said to be many others beside them who can give convicting testimony if they choose to do so.

John Darcy, the man who was discharged on Thursday, may be used as a witness for the prosecution, it being suggested by some that he secured his liberty on this understanding.

A good deal of talk is held over Johnny Connor's evidence among the people. One point they can't understand is how the boy escaped in the face of his statement that James Carroll saw him lying in bed. They take it that when the murderers shed the blood of an innocent girl in order to put the proof of their guilt beyond discovery, it was not likely that they would hesitate at taking the life of the boy had they known he was in the house. Other exceptions are taken to the boy's story, which some men claimed was not the same as told on the morning after the tragedy. The authorities speak and feel differently, and if necessary two or three constables can be called to disprove this contention.

The prevailing opinion is that an alibi will be sworn to in the case of each prisoner at the trial, and the people say that there will be plenty of witnesses forthcoming for that purpose. "Why," said a man to-day, "the people on the Roman Line will swear to anything in order to get the prisoners off, so intense was their hatred for the Donnellys."

Patrick and William Donnelly were about the streets on Thursday, and the former stated that he had received several more letters of sympathy from his friends in Thorold. He returns there on Saturday. William Donnelly did not make his appearance in the village. He was out on Thursday.

When the jail was visited on Thursday, the prisoners were found with the morning papers before them reading the evidence of the boy Connors, given at the inquest. The three implicated by his statements are separated, Purtell being in the cell with the elder Mahar and Ryder. Thos. Ryder, Jas. Ryder, and Jas. Carroll were placed in the separate cells. Jas. Carroll, remarking upon the evidence, said, "The boy goes pretty strong for me." He appears much depressed at the revelations. He is a young man 28 years of age. The prisoners are supplied with three meals a day from the City Hotel, and are well satisfied with their treatment. The tragedy is still the prevailing topic of conversation. Wm. Donnelly has been in town all day in full communication with the police.

The Great Cause of ☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

CHAPTER XXVI.

MR. BISHOP RECEIVES A FEARFUL EXPLANATION OF THE ABSENCE OF ORWELL BRUCE.

"Am I? Do you think it likely, Mr. Bishop, that I would say this without perfect knowledge? It is plain you don't know what a man will do when he is under the influence of the gambler's passion. It is true what I tell you, and I repeat the statement: Orwell Bruce had spent—lost, rather—all his sister's money years ago, and has been running into debt ever since."

"In debt besides!" cried Bishop; "good heaven, then he may have to mortgage part of the estate."

"A part of it!" returned Langton, with a dry laugh; "why, the whole estate is mortgaged already, and to its full amount."

To Mr. Bishop this last blow was absolutely paralysing. "The estate mortgaged!" he slowly repeated. "When was this?"

"Just before he left home the last time."

An acute pang went to the lawyer's heart. Oh, that fatal interference with his love for Agnes Borland! Were its frightful consequences never to be exhausted?

"Who holds the mortgage?" he asked, deadly pale.

"I do," was the quiet reply.

"You!"

"Yes."

"You lent Orwell money to squander thus?"

"How did I know he would squander it? He came to me in a frightful state of mind, confessing that his sister's money was lost, and asking me if nothing could be done to replace it. I told him there was one way, only one—by mortgaging the Grange, and he eagerly grasped at the idea. To keep the matter from being made public I advanced the money and took the bond. I was induced to do so by believing that he would replace his sister's fortune with the money. Unfortunately, the temptation to gamble came upon him again, and for the last two years he has been engaged in losing it all over again. The mortgage money has gone with the rest, and he is, as I said, absolutely ruined. No wonder that he has fled. Who knows but he has committed suicide. It looks only too like it."

"Why did your son not interfere to prevent this deplorable catastrophe?" asked Bishop, whose horror and dismay were indescribable.

"Interfere!" returned Langton snappishly. "He interfered as far as he could. He piled him with every argument he could think of, did his utmost to keep him out of the gambling saloons; he left nothing undone to save him."

"Yes, he did leave something undone," said Bishop. "He did not write to his friends here informing them of what was taking place. Had I known it I should have gone abroad and made every effort to stop him in his infatuated career."

"Ah, well, Reuben was wrong to yield to Orwell in that," said Anthony, with a show of candor.

"Was it done at Orwell's request?"

"Rather say at his supplication. It was unfortunate that Reuben did not act on his own judgment and write home; but youthful friendship, Mr. Bishop. You and I once knew what this is."

"It was the opposite of friendship," said the lawyer, bitterly. "The strongest hatred could not have done Orwell a greater injury. Where can the poor distracted lad have gone?"

"Ah, where, indeed?" returned Anthony, with a hypocritical sigh. "I have heard that ruined gamesters generally commit suicide."

"Orwell Bruce would never do that. I am convinced of it. I will advertise for him in every paper in London and the Continent."

"At your own expense?" said Anthony with a sneer.

"At my own expense?" echoed Bishop, staring at the speaker.

"Yes; don't forget that the estate is mortgaged to its full value, and that it will take every penny of the yearly produce to pay me my interest. I mean to look strictly after that, and, in order to secure myself, I shall lay an assessment on the rents. You know what that means Mr. Bishop?"

"Yes, it means the infliction of a stroke of paralysis, which, even for your sake, you will refrain from."

"For my own sake?" repeated Anthony "How should I be harmed by securing my rights?"

"In the estimation of your neighbours, who would cry shame on you for such an act."

"Is that all? Much I care for the cry of the neighbours. I am independent of them, I trow. I owe them nothing. Why should I mind them?"

"You owe them a Christian's example."

"Pooh—pooh. I thought, Bishop, you had more sense than that comes to. Must a man lose his money in order to show a Christian example? I thought it was the other way. I think it is somewhere said in the Bible, "Owe no man anything."

"Go on sir." said the lawyer, grimly; "finish the quotation."

"What is the rest of it? Nothing to the present purpose, I fancy."

"Perhaps not," exclaimed Bishop, with an ironical smile. Then more sharply he added, "Will you show me the deed of mortgage, Mr. Langton?"

"I've no objection. Oh, you'll find no flaw in it, I'll warrant."

"I don't expect so. Nevertheless, I should like to see it. It must have been prepared and executed with great secrecy."

"Naturally. Orwell Bruce did not wish all the world to know that he was mortgaging his partimony."

"Especially his factor and former coguardian," said Bishop, with a meaning look. "I doubt not means were specially taken by both Orwell and you to keep me in the dark."

"Ah, now you are feeling sore over the business—hurt at not receiving the young man's confidence, I suppose. Well, I suppose he knew best whom to consult. There is the deed. I will spread it on the table for you to look at, but I will not trust it in your hand. It's not registered yet."

The lawyer took no notice of the implied insult. Nor did he offer to touch the document which Anthony had unfolded, and was keeping hold of with jealous care.

Mr. Bishop read the deed with slow deliberation, sentence by sentence, clause by clause, scanning every word and its connections. The Glasgow lawyer who had drawn it up, and whose name he found at the end, was known to him as one who had not the best of odours in the profession, but whose trickery was equalled by his skill. There was therefore no flaw in construction or expression; the whole was clear, explicit, and inevitably binding.

Over one clause. Mr. Bishop's eyes travelled more than once, his brow wearing a contracted frown as he did so. Having read on to the end, and examined the signatures, he turned back, laid his finger on it, and, looking up in Anthony's eager face, remarked—

"You have taken power to demand payment at any moment you choose, and, in the event of the money not being forthcoming, you can bring the estate to immediate sale."

Anthony's sharp eyes glittered with triumph as he gave an acquiescent nod.

"And now, knowing as you do, that Orwell has lost all the money at the gaming table, it is your intention to take advantage of this clause?"

"I am not bound to answer that question offhand, but I have no objection to tell you that such is my intention."

Suddenly, and with an air of conviction on his face, Mr. Bishop brought his hand down on the deed with a slap, saying with low but intense emphasis—

"I see it all!"

"See all what?" demanded the other, his sallow face taking on a shade or two of paleness, his grey eyes shifting uneasily under Mr. Bishop's fixed gaze.

"All your long-practised, cunning, diabolical plot to obtain possession of the Grange," was the quiet unqualified answer.

Harriston High School.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to a letter from R. Gordon, Reeve of Arthur, in a recent issue of your paper, and another from L. Brisbin, Reeve of Harriston, which appeared in the Herald, in reference to the appointment of a Trustee for the Harriston High School by the County Council.

The remarks attributed to have been made by me at the Harriston Council meeting on the 19th January are correct as far as they go, but were used in explaining why I accepted the office of High School Trustee from the County Council after refusing it from the Town Council. What I said was, "That I did not want the position; but upon the urgent solicitations of numerous friends of the school, and feeling that I should not turn my back on what I had been largely the means of creating, I consented to act." It had no reference to refusing a reappointment if it was made.

Mr. Gordon is correct when he states that I was appointed in December on the understanding that I should be reappointed in January, and also that Mr. Brisbin never spoke to me about it, nor did a word pass between us on the subject.

I regret that there should be any dispute in this matter, as I am satisfied that it will neither benefit the Reeve nor the Municipality.

I am, yours truly,
A. MEIKLEJOHN.

Harriston, Feb. 10th, 1880.

JEWISH ORIGIN OF THE AFGHANS.—The question has been raised by the Jewish World of London whether the Afghans are not of Jewish origin. That paper asserts that the prevailing types of the Afghan physiognomy is strongly Jewish—more so than any other living race, while in their religious customs considerable analogy can be traced between them and those of orthodox Jews. In the case of certain branches of the Afghan people this is particularly striking—so much so that one writer went so far as to conclude that he had found in them the descendants of the lost tribe of Israel. All the native Afghan histories contain detailed accounts of the early history of the Jews from Abraham down to the captivity; and although the bulk of the population was converted to Islam years and years ago, it is stated in a local history that it was not till the middle of the tenth century that Judaism was entirely given up and Islamism had become the prevailing religion.

ELORA CARPET FACTORY.—The Examiner says:—The Elora village council met on Wednesday evening, the 4th inst., and determined to use strategy in order to get possession of the carpet factory here. The same evening of the meeting a couple of men proceeded to the factory, gained admission, we don't know how, and have since held it. What move the Bank will make in the matter is not so clear, but no doubt something will shortly be done to bring matters to a head.——Mr. A. C. Duncan, who has carried on a large general business in Elora for some time past, has succumbed to the depressing times, and his stock is in the hands of assignee Haffner.

WILSON'S WILD CHERRY.

One of the most thoroughly reliable medicines now in use by the Canadian public is Wilson's Compound of Wild Cherry. The success which attends its use in cases of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, and Weak Lungs, is most remarkable.

Originally prepared to meet the demand for a good medicine of the kind, in the retail store of the proprietors, its sale increased so rapidly and became so largely extended that the manufacturers felt it was only necessary to introduce it through the newspapers of the country to ensure its adoption as the national cure for diseases of the respiratory organs. Every leading druggist in Western Ontario now sells it.

Be wise in time: get a bottle and have it on hand when required. The large bottles are the cheapest.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress-making Department. The numerous orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade. Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance.

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices" generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Fine Tweeds, Coarse Tweeds, Cloths, Diagonals and Overcoatings "is the lagest and choicest in the City."

SPECIAL.

Our Great 20 per cent. Discount

will be continued a short time longer. Our growling and grumbling neighbors will just have to possess their souls in peace for a short time longer, as at the present rate of selling the stock will soon be cleared out. In the meantime customers will remember our stock of Overcoats, Suits, etc., is all marked in plain figures at reduced prices, off which we take a discount of 20 per cent. for cash. No second price. It pleases our customers, and it suits the Lion, and that's all we care about.

FURS! FURS! FURS!

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.

After the Speech was delivered the members of the House of Commons returned to their Chamber.

Mr. Speaker made the following announcement:—Receipt of returns from the Election Court declaring the elections in Argenteuil, Cornwall, and Montmorenci to be null and void, and declaring the sitting member for St. Hyacinthe to be duly elected.

Receipt of notification of the following vacancies in the representation:—Charles Gill, Yamaska, by the acceptance of a judgeship of the Superior Court of Quebec; Edgar Dewdney, Yale, by the acceptance of office; Harvey W. Burk, West Durham, resigned; Joseph Dubuc, Provencher, acceptance of office; Daniel Galbraith, North Lanark, deceased; Hugh McLeod, Cape Breton, deceased; and Theodore Robitaille, acceptance of office.

Returns of the election of the following members:—Fabien Vanasse, Yamaska; Francis J. Barnard, Yale; H. G. Beauchesne, Bonaventure; W. M. McLeod, Cape Breton; Edward Blake, West Durham; Joseph Royal, Provencher; D. G. Macdonnell, North Lanark; and Darby Bergin, Cornwall.

The new members were then introduced.

Sir John Macdonald moved that the Speech from the Throne be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Mr. Mackenzie—Before the House adjourns I would recall to the hon. gentleman's recollection the case of a violation of the privileges of this House which occurred at the close of last Session. Upon the hon. gentleman's motion then the person who was alleged to have violated the privileges of the House so grossly was ordered to attend. That he did not the journals will show, and now I desire to know what course the hon. gentleman proposes to take.

Sir John Macdonald—I am glad the hon. gentleman has called my attention to the matter. It had escaped my recollection altogether. I will let him know to-morrow.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 11.

Among the bills read a third time, was that respecting the Agricultural College.

In answer to a question, Mr. Mowat said it was not the intention of the Government to bring down this session a bill to extend the jurisdiction of Division Courts.

Mr. Waters moved the second reading of his bill to amend the School Act, the object of which was to reduce the summer holidays to three weeks. The Minister of Education had introduced a bill which was intended to meet his (Mr. Waters') views, but it did not go far enough. The Minister's bill only provided for a reduction to four weeks, and made that reduction optional with the trustees. He would not mind the reduction to only four weeks, but he did not like that reduction being permissive, as it would in all probability lead to disagreeableness between the teachers and the trustees. He would, therefore, press his bill.

Mr. Crooks said he could not assume to go so far as the hon. gentleman proposed. If he acquiesced in the principle of the measure he would be recreant to his duty, or in other words, he could not assume to take further responsibility in the matter of reducing the holidays than his own bill proposed.

Mr. Laidlaw said that there was no desire in his section to shorten the time of holidays. If we want school children to grow up with good, healthy constitutions, the way to do it is by giving them lots of healthy summer recreation. It was also unwise to confine teachers to the school without giving them a chance to recreate themselves, as, in the great majority of cases, they were poorly paid, and therefore deserved to have some little time to themselves. He also hoped that the member for Middlesex would see fit to withdraw his Bill.

After some discussion the bill was thrown out.

Mr. Hay asked the Attorney-General what conclusion he had arrived at regarding his (Mr. Hay's) bill to amend the Railway Act so as to provide for the crossings of railways in towns.

Mr. Mowat said it was quite impossible to assent to the bill; and there was not time to deal with the matter this session.

The bill was allowed to stand.

Mr. Mowat moved the second reading of the bill to amend certain particulars of the law of real property. The object of the bill was to deal with the rights of owners of real estate. The reasonable rule was that the owner of real estate should be at liberty to do what he pleased with it, but as the law now stands, if the owner's neighbour built a house in which there was a window overlooking his property, the neighbour thereby acquired after fifty years a right over the property which the owner could not interfere with. This right was acquired without the consent of the owner of the property, and the only way of preventing it was by making the neighbour sign a deed declaring that he would not press his right, or by building a board in front of his windows. This state of affairs had been remedied in England; the only country in which it now existed was this, and the first clause of the bill abolished it so far as Ontario was concerned. The second clause was intended to wipe out a blot in the law doing away with primogeniture. Under that law, where a man devised land to his heirs, or to some one else's heirs, the property did not go to those whom we in Ontario regarded as the heirs, but to the eldest son, just as if the law of primogeniture was still in force. That was a mistake, and the present bill proposed to wipe that blot from the statute book. The third clause was introduced for the purpose of remedying an injustice which had been brought to light in various cases. The law provided that a widow must sue for her dower within a specified time after the death of her husband. In ordinary cases it had been held that the statute of limitation did not commence until the claimant had ceased to hold possession of the property; but in the case of a widow, she could not sue for her dower after a certain time, notwithstanding that she and her children remained in possession. The bill remedied that. The next clause provided that when a husband whose wife was a lunatic wished to sell property free from dower, he could do so after an order had been granted by the County Judge freeing the property from dower.

In Committee of Supply Mr. Meredith asked for particulars of the proposed expenditure of $5,000 for an Agricultural Commission.

Mr. Wood said Agricultural Commissions had been of great service in England. The present Commission had no political object in view, and it was not the intention, as had been charged, to enquire into the success of the National Policy. The idea was that the Commission should enquire into the capacity and productiveness of the Province, and the best means of improving the usefulness of the various associations aided by the Government, such as the Fruit Growers' Association and the Agriculture and Arts Association. For instance, the Commission might recommend that the Agriculture and Arts Association should prepare an annual report, or rather something more useful than a prize list. Then the Commission would report upon the different kinds of soil in different parts of the country, the kind of grain suited to that soil, the kind of stock in the Province, and the particular stock adapted to particular sections, and the best means of getting satisfactory statistics of crops.

The item passed.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.

Mr. Wood introduced a Bill to provide for the removal of prisoners from county gaols. The Bill proposed to appoint Provincial bailiffs to perform this work, whereby the cost of the service would be reduced from $16,000 to $5,250.

Mr. Crooks moved the second reading of a Bill respecting certain amendments to the Public School Act.

Mr. Mowat moved the second reading of a Bill respecting companies incorporated under the Imperial Statutes.

In Committee of Supply, the item of $5,400 for the School of Practical Science was passed.

DESTRUCTION OF THE FORESTS.—A writer in a Belleville paper calls attention to clause 30 of the assessment law, which he argues does more to destroy the forests of Ontario, and in doing so inflict untold injury on the country at large, than any other cause. The clause referred to says "the assessor shall assess uncultivated lands at the same rate as they would sell for the discharge of a just debt." The effect of these imperative instructions, it is claimed, is that wood or forest land is assessed at the same rate per acre as cultivated land, consequently farmers who have to pay the same taxes on both very soon make up their minds that it doesn't pay to keep up wood land and the axe goes to work, the proceeds of the wood yielding a fair percentage on the value of the land, and it is then in a condition to give a yearly return. It is suggested that if the clause referred to were revised so that only a nominal tax were levied, many an acre would be saved that under the present law is doomed. The question is worth considering.

CONSUMPTION—SOME REVELATIONS.—Dr. R. R. Gregg has been making some very startling statements before the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Buffalo. This gentleman has devoted a lifetime to the study of consumption and similar diseases, and has for years had charge of the Department of Tuberculosis, therefore he may be presumed to speak from well authenticated statistics. He makes the remarkable statement that in each generation "one-fifth of all mankind die of consumption alone, and one-third of all from the ravages of tubercles upon all the organs of the body, including the lungs." Comparing the mortality arising from this source with that of yellow fever during 1878, he comes to the conclusion that it "would require 450 years of such epidemics of yellow fever to equal the devastation wrought by consumption in a single generation in this country alone and 750 years of such work to equal the mortality caused by tubercles in one generation in the United States." Of late years physicians have been making many extraordinary discoveries; but there are few conclusions so appalling as this, if it is sustained by evidence, and Dr. Gregg says it is.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

AN ANCIENT BIBLE.—The Dundas Standard says: We have been shown by Mr. Thomas Caldwell a copy of the Bible printed in black letter, called the "Bishop's Bible," or by some the "Breeches Bible." The reason for the latter name is that in the seventh verse of the third chapter of Geneses, it is said that Adam and Eve "sewed fig tree leaves together and made themselves breeches." This Bible was printed in the year 1608, presented to Rev. Edward Rigley, of London, in 1848, and by him to Rev. Wm. A. Caldwell, of Dundas, in 1858.

LATEST FROM LUCAN.

The Detectives Hard at Work

An Important Link in the Evidence Found.

LUCAN, Feb. 15.—At an early hour this morning Chief Williams, who remained in the village over night, telegraphed to detectives Murphy and Pope, requiring their immediate presence, and from the fact of some developments during the night and contrary to recent announcements, some more arrests are expected to take place during the day. We have been informed that during the night the detectives made a raid on the premises of one of the accused and found thereon damning evidence of the conflict. An old blanket had been cut up and shaped into a kind of pair of rude pants or overalls. It was unearthed from a manure pile, and when examined it was found to be saturated with blood in several places. This has been taken in charge by Chief Williams, and the inmates of the house will be placed under arrest this afternoon. The chief and detective Phair, preceded by Patrick Donnelly, went out to the disturbed district to enquire further into some matters of which they got information last evening. The chief left a note for the London men, instructing them as to their movements when they arrived in the village.

11.30 a. m.—Detectives Murphy and Pope, telegraphed for early this morning, have just arrived in the village, and immediately proceeded to the Catholic settlement. Some women belonging to the accused parties and a hired man will be taken into custody, the object being to examine them in reference to the suspicious articles of wearing apparel found around their houses. The young man Maher now in jail is not the same person mentioned as being an accomplice of Purtell's in a stabbing affray, which took place in the township of Ellice, County of Perth, some time ago, but another party of the same name. Reports have just reached the village that the Chief with all his force are out ranging up the 6th and 7th concessions, searching suspected houses and premises. A rumor mentions the parties to be arrested this afternoon, but we decline to name them at present. The close of this evening will to all appearance now reveal several new features in the drama.

THE FANCY FAIR.—The fancy fair in Corbett's block, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Association of St. Andrew's Church is proving a centre of attraction. The stock is being rapidly disposed of, and it is expected will be cleaned out before the fair closes. It will be continued this evening.

HAMILTON CORBETT.—This talented Scottish vocalist, gave his farewell concert in the City Hall last night before a fair-sized house. The programme comprised a number of English and Irish songs, besides the Scotch ones. The numbers rendered best were, "The Cameron men," "Scotland Yet," and "Jack's Farewell," the latter being a companion to "Nancy Lee." The programme was interspersed with humorous ancedotes, which contributed to the interest of the entertainment.

FIGHTING.—Robert Soden, Sam Soden and Joe Emery were charged before the Police Magistrate to-day with fighting in rear of Soden's Hotel, Macdonnell street, on Thursday morning. About 12:30 a. m. Policemen Hammond and Crooks, who were on duty, while at St. George's Square, heard a row and thought it was in progress about the Market Square. After visiting the Market Square they went to Soden's Hotel and found the defendants in fighting costume and bleeding profusely. At the Police Court they were discharged.

THE CHURCHES TO-MORROW.—The numerous friends of Rev. W. S. Griffin will be pleased to learn that his services have been secured in connection with the anniversary services of the Dublin street Methodist Church to-morrow. He will preach in this church morning and evening, and will address the Bible class at 3 p. m. In Chalmers Church Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Ayr, will conduct the services. Sacrament will be dispensed in the B. M. E. Church, Essex street, by Rev. S. H. Brown.

CHALMERS' CHURCH Y. P. A.—The lecture room of Chalmers' Church was filled to the doors last night, at the usual weekly meeting of the Bible Class Association, to hear the President, Mr. J. H. Panton, deliver a lecture on "Electricity or how to make an Electrical Machine." The speaker told the audience of his first attempts at producing Electricity, and how futile his efforts were to produce a spark, how the failure had led him to think of where the defect lay and how it might be remedied. It was really his defeat that had determined him to pursue this course of study specially. He then went on to explain how easily a machine to produce electricity might be made by any person who would exercise some care and thought. After speaking for some time on the objects that would attract, and naming among them amber, wax, &c., he made experiments with a battery, amusing the audience. The most startling experiment took place when a large number joined hands, and the electric shock went through the whole form. The weather, unfortunately was very unfavourable for producing electricity, and the audience was thereby deprived of some of the best experiments, that were to have been made. When the weather becomes dry Mr. Panton intends to put the battery again in operation, and give others who were not present Friday evening an opportunity of testing its strength. The association is becoming more prosperous each week, both in regard to increased attendance, and greater interest manifested by the members.

St. George's Society Concert.

A Pleasant Evening's Entertainment.

Considering that there were other entertainments held in the city last night the concert at St. George's Hall may be put down as a success. "There was not a bad crowd there, at all," as some of the officers of the Society were heard to remark, the large hall being pretty well filled. Shortly after eight o'clock the President of the Society, Mr. Geo. Elliott, took his seat upon the platform, and to the right and left of him were seated Messrs. Fairbanks, Howard, W. S. G. Knowles, Goodeve, Chase, and Mr. John M. Bond. The bareness of the wall at the back of the platform was covered with several Union Jacks, and the presence of a fine piano gave an air of appearance to the scene that assured those present that the St. George's Society intended to give their patrons an evening's enjoyment. The presence of the Artillery Band was also an inducement to bring out the friends; and the members did their parts well, although the music did seem a little too strong at times for the size of the hall. The concert was opened with an overture by the Band, followed by a reading by Mrs. Dunn: "Over the Hill to the Poor House." Miss Goodfellow and Prof. Philp favored the company with a duet on the piano and violin; and a quartette "Dancing on the Waves," by Messrs. Wheatley, Philp, Higham and Denson, with Miss Goodfellow at the piano, gave good satisfaction; the harmony of the voices being very nice, and the time well kept. An encore was demanded, but the singers were immovable after they had once entered the ante-room. Mr. Newby was next called on, and sang a patriotic song with a good deal of vigor, giving his strong rich voice full swing, completely filling the hall, and causing great applause. The President announced that an intermission of ten minutes for social chat would follow this piece, but the company determined by their noise that they would have none of it until Mr. Newby reappeared, and sang "The Workhouse Boy," to the old familiar tune of "The Misletoe Bough." A few minutes was next spent in social chat, after which short congratulatory speeches were made by Messrs. Bond and Chase; and Mr. Knowles made a short, humorous speech, in which he very good naturedly offered his services and musical ability at any future entertainment of the Society. The President also announced that the Society intended to give a number of these entertainments in future, charging only a small admission fee, and he hoped the friends of St. George's, as well as those of other National Societies, would cheer them by their presence; and they would be always welcome.

In the second part of the programme Miss Keables gave a humorous reading on "Land and Water," which gave great satisfaction. Miss Goodfellow and Prof. Philp again favored the company with a duet on piano and violin, and Mr. Denson sang in a fine rich tenor voice, "Happy all the Day." The chorus of "Call John," by four male voices was next rendered in good time, and Mr. Coulson, sr. was called up from the audience and responded by singing "The Cork Leg." This favorite of 'ye olden tyme' did his best, pleased the company well, and received the heartiest applause, but the fire of other days is missing. "God Save the Queen," the audience joining, concluded the programme, and all separated well pleased with the efforts of the Society, and the ladies, to give them an evening's entertainment.

An excellent tea was provided previous to the opening of the concert, of which all heartily partook.

CURLING.—A game of curling was played on the rink yesterday afternoon between John Mitchell, Alex. Bruce, Skip, and George Patterson, Alex. Congalton, Skip. The game closed, Petterson 19; Mitchell 18.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—Rev. Mr. Harris being confined to the house through illness, it will fall on Rev. J. C. Smith to attend the General Hospital this week. The attending physician will be Dr. Howitt.

RUNAWAY.—A runaway occurred on the Market Square at noon to-day. A horse attached to a waggon belonging to Mr. E. O'Connor, took fright and started off. The whiffletree was broke and the dashboard of the waggon smashed befor the animal was stopped.

Fourteen thousand dollars is the estimated amount of Irish relief raised in Montreal.

A smash up occurred between two freight trains on the Canada Southern Railway near Tilsonburg, on the 13th. The trains were moving rapidly at the time of the collision. Both engines were completely smashed, the cars were piled about the track, some of them being broken into match wood. Fortunately, none of the employees were injured by the accident.

Mr. John Corbett, an old and well known resident of Arthur, and who lived in West Garafraxa for some years, died suddenly at Arthur last week.

Mr. M. C. Cameron, Goderich, has founded a scholarship of $60 a year in Queen's College, to be known as the M. C. Cameron Gaelic Scolarship.

Wm. Peters, who had his right arm terribly mangled in a threshing machine in the 5th concession of Ernesttown a few days ago, afterwards amputated, died in about twenty minutes after the operation.

An experiment—Mistress: "Why, whatever is that smell, Jane?" Jane: "Please, m'm, the brandy got spilted, and I—I done my best with the pudden; but I'm afraid it don't flare nice with paraffin!"

Lord C——, whose popularity was not excessive in the Scotch town of A——, having refused an unfortunate beggar, she renewed her supplications with:—"Now, my lord, if ye'd just give me one little sixpence, I could treat every friend ye have in the town."

RUTHERFORD has reduced his underclothing still more, being determined to clear it out.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb 13.

In answer to Mr. Gibson, (Hamilton), the Attorney-General said that it was the intention of the Government to take further steps for the maintenance of Provincial rights in the matter of Queen's Counsel.

A long discussion took place on Mr. Pardee's resolution, intended as an amendment to his Bill on the subject of free grant lands and Crown timber, to allow the locatee on timber land one third of the revenue derived from the pine cut on his lot by the license after the issue of his patent. An amendment, moved by Mr. Meredith, to leave the law as it is was voted down by a majority of 43 to 21, and the resolution was carried on the same division.

Several members who voted against the Government on the second reading of Mr. Pardee's Bill voted for the resolution last night. Nine members of the Opposition were absent, and fourteen supporters of the Administration. There were four pairs, namely, Mr. Young with Mr. Broder, Mr Dercche with Mr. Rosevear, Dr. McMahon with Mr. Monk, and Mr. Awrey with Mr Robertson, of West Hastings.

The following members were invited to dine on Thursday evening with the Speaker:—Messrs. Pardee, Robinson, MacMaster, Kerr, Robinson, Nairn, Bishop, Rosevear, Mack, Lyon, Appleby, McCraney, Graham, McKim, Robertson, Cascaden.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.

In the Senate on Friday Senator Trudel moved the Address, and Senator Vidal seconded it. Senator Scott replied, criticizing the speech and the Government's policy. Sir Alexander Campbell briefly defended the Government's administration of public affairs. Senator Alexander moved the adjournment of the debate, and the Speaker left the chair.

In the Commons, after prayers, a petition was laid on the table from the Quebec Board of Trade favorable to the construction of the Sault Ste Marie branch railroad. Mr. Speaker presented the Supreme Court order declaring Mr. Glen duly elected for South Ontario; also the librarian's report on the State of the library.

The Premier, after being again prompted by the leader of the Opposition, stated that he would at an early day move that the Speaker do issue his warrant for the arrest of Mr. Macdonnell for breach of the privileges of Parliament.

Mr. Ritchie, of Halifax, moved the Address.

Mr. Houde, in French, seconded the Address.

Mr. Mackenzie commented on the meagreness of the sessional programme, and proceeding, condemned the mismanagement characterizing the present operation of the Intercolonial Railway. The subjects of the exodus from Canada to the United States; the appointment of agricultural instructors to the Indians in the North-West, the morals of several of whom were decidedly questionable; the claim of the Government that trade had revived and the commercial depression disappearing, received notice at the hon. gentleman's hands. Sir A. T. Galt's appointment afforded him the opportunity of lantering the Premier a little on the fact that his conduct had some years ago been warmly denounced by the gentleman whom he now delighted to honor. An allusion to the Argenteuil election by the seconder of the Address afforded ground for a reference to the Ontario general elections, and the condemnation of the N. P. by the electors of the Province. In conclusion he twitted the Premier with having in Senator MacPherson a colleague who had vigorously denounced the Pacific Railway scheme.

Sir John Macdonald spoke a few minutes in reply. Naturally enough, he endorsed the utterances of the Speech relative to the alleged returning prosperity. Having briefly defended the Government's Pacific Railway policy, he claimed that, with Gowan as an exception, the choice of agricultural instructors for the North-West was unimpeached. In accounting for the result of the Ontario local elections he claimed that it did not constitute a condemnation of the National Policy, but showed that while the people thought the National Policy was safe in the Dominion Government's hands their local affairs were the same in Mr. Mowat's.

After recess Messrs. Bunster and DeCosmos showed their teeth a little, on account of the change of the railroad route in that Province.

Mr. Blake spoke next. His rising was the signal for a speedy filling of seats. His address was extremely logical, and forcibly presented. He could not reconcile the Government's conduct in appointing Sir A. T. Galt as Canadian Minister in England to watch Canadian interests with a view to extending Canada's foreign trade with the Government's protective policy, which aimed at the extinction of that trade. He threw out as a suggestion worthy of consideration the appointment of an agent at Washington to watch Canadian interests there. Much amusement was created by his reading extracts from a letter by Sir A. T. Galt boldly condemning the Pacific Scandal Ministry. Alluding to the Pacific Railway contracts just accepted for the Yale Kamloops branch, he claimed, first, as the English mission which had failed was the foundation of the scheme of which the contract-letting without submission to Parliament was a part, the Government should now submit the contracts to Parliament. Secondly, the Premier had admitted that this was the proper course under ordinary circumstances to pursue, therefore he should pursue it, especially as the contracts were not let or had not been up to within a few days of the opening of Parliament.

It was a noticeable fact that Sir John managed to be absent during the evening.

The paragraphs of the Speech were then considered seriatim, and most were carried on a division. A brief debate took place on that relating to Irish relief, during which the Opposition objected to ascribing as a reason for the gift that Canada was returning to prosperity.

On the paragraph relating to the Canada Pacific Railway Mr. Barnard claimed that the adoption of the Burrard Inlet route gave every satisfaction to the people of British Columbia.

Relative to the tariff paragraph, Sir Richard Cartwright taunted the Ministerialists with assisting to build up monopolies, and no doubt it was satisfactory to Messrs. Redpath, Drummond, Gault, and other sugar and cotton monopolists.

Amid the laughter of the Opposition Mr. Gault, one of the gentlemen alluded to, rose and expressed his utmost satisfaction with the tariff and he was the only member in the House who did so.

After the usual formal disposition of the motion the following documents and reports were laid on the table: Public Accounts, Trade and Navigation Returns, Auditor-General's Report for 1878-79, and statements for unforseen and unprovided expenditure and for special warrants issued during the same period.

The House rose at 10:10 p.m.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Wellington Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

The annual general meeting of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the County of Wellington, was held in the office of the Company, Guelph, on Tuesday, 3rd inst. Mr. F. J. Chadwick was called to the chair, and Mr. Chas. Davidson acted as Secretary.

The Secretary read the annual report for the year ending 31st December, 1879, which stated that the losses during the last year, had not been greater than usual, amounting to $9,397.23.

The following losses have been arranged for and paid:—

Charles Maddock, Guelph	$ 8 00
Johnston Bros., Fergus	1000 00
John Sole, et al, Guelph	12 00
Joseph Wallis Egremont	50 00

Wm. Wilson, Hasnell	70 00
Thos. Biggars, Elora	1443 73
Robinson, Howell & Co., Preston	2000 00

Wm. Perryman, Silver Creek	800 00
Wm. Boaking, Berlin	3 00
Settled and paid	7897 23
Elora Hotel, Elora	1500 00

The losses and expenses will require an assessment of six per cent.

The amount now insured by the Company is $2,514,330, and is covered by premium notes amounting to $256,835.10, showing a security to insurers not equalled by any other Company in the Province.

The Directors passed two By-laws—one for the purpose of giving security to the Bank for advances made to the Company, and the other to reduce the number of Directors to ten.

All losses sustained during the year have been promptly settled, with the exception of the Elora Hotel, which has been delayed in consequence of a dispute as to who was the owner of the property destroyed, and as to the liability of the Company.

A resolution was carried authorizing the President and Secretary to memorialize the Government on behalf of the Company to change the method of assessing Insurance Companies for the payment of Inspectors' fees, so that Companies pay pro rata on the amount of insurance instead of on the amount of premium notes or cash received.

The cash statement shows that the receipts amounted to $15,297 47, and the losses and expenses to $14,963.23 leaving a balance in hand of $334.24. The Report and Financial Statement were on motion adopted, and ordered to be printed and circulated in the usual way.

It was moved by Mr. James Watt, seconded by Mr. Chas. McMillan, that By-law No. 1 of the year 1880, passed by the Board of Directors of this Company on the 9th day of January last, authorizing the borrowing of a sum of $15,000 by the President and Secretary by the issuing of a Debenture of the Company, be confirmed.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. James Watt, seconded by Sheriff Davidson, that By-law No. 2 of the year 1880, passed by the Directors of this Company, for the purpose of reducing the number of Directors of this Company be confirmed.—Carried.

Messrs. Joseph Heffernan and James Watt were appointed scrutineers for the election of Directors.

A ballot having been taken, the scrutineers declared the following gentlemen duly elected Directors for the year:—

F. W. Stone, Geo. Davidson, Geo. Hespeler, Geo. Randall, Jas. Cattanach, Jas. M. Fraser, John Harris, James Goldie, F. J. Chadwick and Chas. McMillan.

On motion Messrs. Thos. W. Saunders, and Joseph Heffernan were appointed auditors for the year.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. F. W. Stone was elected President, and Mr. Geo. Davidson, Vice-President.

THE GIRL MARGARET JOYCE, whose assertion that she was poisoned by her paramour, John Ferguson, about a week ago, causing some sensation, is steadily recovering from her illness, and last night she was reported almost well. She now throws some discredit on her own story by evincing a desire to shield her alleged poisoner from the punishment due to his criminal conduct, and would apparently prefer to be punished herself to having him condemned through her testimony. She seems eager to escape from the Magdalen as soon as possible, but she is not likely to be allowed to do so easily.

PRESS ASSOCIATION.—The Executive Committee of the Canadian Press Association met at the Rossin House, Toronto, on Friday afternoon. A considerable amount of business was transacted of interest to the Association, and among other matters the question of the annual meeting and trip were discussed. It is probable that the trip will be to Fort William, and will take place early in August. A copy of the constitution of the Association will shortly be sent to each newspaper office in Ont., and those eligible are requested to avail themselves of the privileges accorded to members.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A melancholy and fatal accident occurred in Kinloss, in the neighborhood of Holyrood, on Thursday of last week. The victim was a young man named Kathel Kerr, son of Mr. Norman Kerr, of the 7th concession of Kinloss. Deceased, in company with a number of men was assisting in raising a log building, when a large log which they had raised about 8 feet from the ground fell back, striking the unfortunate youth on the right shoulder and breast, crushing him fatally.

GRAND TRUNK R. — The Kingston newspapers announce that there are good prospects that a double track on the Grand Trunk Railway will be laid this year between Toronto and Montreal. This has been caused by the increasing amount of traffic passing over the line from the west to the seaboard. Last year the carrying power of the line was taxed to the utmost, and now as important connections have been made with Chicago and other points in the west another track is an absolute necessity. Indeed engineers have already commenced at Montreal to make the surveys for the new track.

A furious bull on Friday became enraged at some red flannel streamers from a dry goods store in Montreal, and gored Mr. Brown, who will probably die. The animal was shot by a policeman after a lively skirmish.

The Problem of Self-Government Still Unsolved.

When little over a century ago, Thos. Jefferson, sitting among his peers—a band of earnest and resolute men, with clear heads and brave hearts—gave forth the first note of his immortal declaration of independence, proclaiming to the world "That he held, as self-evident truths, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these, Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just power from the consent of the governed," he became the medium through whom all the faith, hope, and patriotism of the Pilgrim Fathers became civilized into visible and well defined principles of human liberty. The fierce struggle against religious intolerance and the inordinate assumption of crown prerogative, throughout the long reigns of the Tudor, Stewart, and early Brunswick Sovereigns, had, on this side of the Atlantic, shaped itself into a national creed, amid the fires of revolution. The tyranny of centuries had evolved the abstract idea of perfect freedom, and full of the energies of a new found faith, the fathers of the American nation built up for themselves an ideal Republic. In their new found happiness they had taken no account of the dark side of human nature, so that the Constitution that may have been adapted to the men and women who had passed through the death struggle of the Revolution, and had carried with them the traditions of Edgehill and Naseby, and of the Solemn League and Covenant, may after all be found but ill adapted to their descendants.

The Constitution, which in the day of its birth, was the exact index of the inward convictions and outward character of a people trained and educated under very peculiar and exceptional circumstances, fails to-day because, when it proclaimed universal suffrage, it had not taken into account that the sewers of Europe, Asia and Africa should empty themselves on the American Continent—because when it was found necessary to press a Presidency upon a single-minded Washington, Adams, or Jefferson, it had not calculated that in less than a century there should be Presidents ready to bring themselves into office.

The glorious war cry, Freedom and Human Rights, which in the mouth of a Patrick Henry, without armies, armaments or arms, was sufficient to rouse a weak, struggling and oppressed Colony to declare war, and achieve their independence in the face of earth's most powerful nation, was not strong enough to resist the insidious encroachments of avarice and cupidity. The sword which Patriotism had found sharp and double-edged against tyranny and oppression, became equally effective for a different cause in the hands of the demagogue and the charlatan, till to-day the Star Spangled Banner waves, not over the land of the free, but over a people who seem placed hopelessly at the mercy of the worst kind of political intrigue, fraud and peculation in high places; at the mercy of tariff rings and lobbiers, at the mercy of bulldozers and truckling carpetbaggers, often encouraged as the secret engines of opposing political factions.

This, and much more, according to their own testimony, is the practical outcome of the American experiment of self-government, which at this moment possesses so little coherence that it appears ready at any hour to break up into lawless and disorganized fragments.

But unsettled and unsatisfactory as the solution of the problem appears at its present stage, we cannot see that the future promises to remove or lessen the difficulties. The opposing and rival interests of the East and West, the North and South, open up a wider field of operation for the agents and influences which already tend towards disunion and disorganization. Honest, wise and patriotic rulers might do much to reduce the present chaos to harmony. But when seized upon as the rich harvest field of demagogues and political blacklegs, the failure of the experiment appears almost inevitable. Here is the testimony of one who is well qualified to speak on the subject, which we find epitomized in a contemporary:—"Chas. O'Connor, the aged and much respected New York lawyer—a man whose good name has never been sullied in the cesspool of politics, though he has at times violently stirred its treacherous waters—comes out with declarations and a proposition so startling that one has to stop and pause in order to catch their full meaning. Mr. O'Connor unhesitatingly and unmistakingly proclaims the American political system of self government as "worse than useless,"—a failure.

He declares the whole American system a failure, and proposes as a remedy to abolish State governments, to wipe out the United States Senate, to vest all legislative power in one body, to elect the president from the House of Representatives, to limit the term of the president's office to a single month, to abolish the army, navy and postal service, to forbid Congress to meet except at rare intervals and in special emergencies, and many other strange details of government, or rather no government at all. It is not possible that Mr O'Connor seriously means all this. It may, perhaps, be but the form in which he chooses to express his judgment of the government as at present constituted. The long letter in which he explains these remarkable reforms was evidently carefully prepared, is attracting much attention and is widely discussed in the press and on the platform. Other men equally great have concluded that there are very grave defects in the American political system. Universal suffrage is everywhere acknowledged by impartial observers to be a mistake. The mobs of large cities who do not own a dollar's worth of property virtually vote away the revenues of municipalities and States, laws are made and repealed at the whim of the vulgar mass. Intelligence and virtue are everywhere silenced by the overwhelming numbers of those who sell their votes for money, and in many cases for a single glass of whisky. Government established in righteousness and wielding power to promote justice is an ideal quite out of the range of probabilities in free America. Under the present system the will of the majority, not justice, is law. Nor are the majority sure in the possession of the reins of Government. The whole country convulsed and trembling in the balance between peace at any price, and civil war in February, 1876, over the claims of Hayes and Tilden, the great labor strike of 1877, the present strife in Maine, and other instances of uncertainty, in which chance and trickery led, or is leading, the nation through to some sort of climax, are arguments too fresh and forcible to be disregarded, showing the unsatisfactory character of the American Government. The old question that almost broke up the Union in 1814 is still unsettled.

So this is the problem that some of us Canadians are anxious to assist in solving, anxious for annexation with a people who have been attempting to solve the problem of self-government for a century, but to-day appear in a much more unsatisfactory position than at the commencement of the trial. We are still the custodians and guardians of our own future, let us not lightly place it at the mercy of an overwhelming majority that are unable to govern themselves, and whose social, political and commercial interests, and future well-being, are to-day in the hands of unprincipled rings, and railroad factions, and a system of government—whatever may be its abstract promises—which has failed to answer the hopes and expectations entertained regarding it.

Ontario Manufactures in Europe.

From the report of Wednesday's proceedings in the Ontario Legislature, it may be learned what a good work the Ontario Government is accomplishing in France, where they have stationed an agent who is laboring to introduce Canadian manufactures. He receives no salary or other compensation than a commission upon the goods he sells. This is a capital idea, because his income is thus made to depend wholly upon his industry and individual efforts. Mr. Korman speaks several languages. Any of our manufacturers who wish to introduce their wares into France should communicate with him or with Hon. Mr. Hardy at Toronto, who will be happy to supply them with full information. Mr. Korman has large warerooms for the exhibition of samples.

This is what was said about Mr. Korman's mission in Europe:—In reply to Mr. Morris, who asked for particulars of the further vote of $4,500 asked for aiding the sale of Ontario manufactures in foreign markets, Mr. Hardy said Mr. Ignatius Korman, who had the spending of this money, had not yet sent in his full report, but it was well known that the result of his labors had been the sale of a great many Ontario manufactured articles in France, Germany, Austria, etc.

In reply to Mr. Merrick,

Mr. Hardy said Mr. Korman spent the $4,500 in hiring an office and warehouse and in paying necessary expenses.

Mr. Merrick—Has he a salary?

Mr. Hardy—No.

Mr. Merrick—How is it paid?

Mr. Hardy—He gets a commission from the persons for whom he sells. Mr. Korman had made several contracts for reapers, mowers, cheese, barley, corn shellers, etc., and the $4,500 which was granted last year and was to be granted again this year, was for the purpose of aiding the sale of the goods and of our manufactured articles in European markets.

Mr. Young held that the voting of such a sum of money was the legitimate way of aiding our manufacturers; and it was far better than putting upon our manufacturers—as had been done at Ottawa—such duties and restrictions as would make it impossible for the manufacturers to compete with foreign manufacturers in foreign markets.

GORE DISTRICT MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—The management of this Mutual fully approves the action of the Government in appointing an insurance Inspector, and expects much good to result from his examinations. This Company, indeed, has nothing to fear from his investigation. It is soundly established and gaining more strength yearly, by securing rates commensurate to the amount at risk. In declining to renew many policies upon the basis formerly agreed to, the Company suffered a decrease in old business, but this falling off was regained by the issue of 355 policies in excess of the year previous, with an increase of $428,915 in the amount of insurances. A satisfactory increase has been made in the amount of its assets. After the payment of losses, all expenses, and reserving 50 per cent. of its cash premiums as a reinsurance fund, there remains a cash surplus of $11,097. If all our mutual companies occupied the position of the "Gore" and conducted their business upon the same conservative principles, we would hear but little complaint about high assessments and insolvent mutuals.—Monetary Times. Robert Cunningham, of this city, is agent for the Company.

A Successful Company.

The Standard Fire Insurance Company's report is to hand, and we notice with pleasure its continued success. From its report of 1879 we take the following figures: During the year the Company received in premiums $68,557, an increase of $21,000 over its premium income for the previous year. Its losses on the business for 1879 amounted to $24,900, or about 36½ per cent. of the premiums received. The excess of premiums over losses for the year amounted to $43,000, and the excess of income over total expenditure for the same period amounted to $25,023.33. From the detailed list of losses paid, 98, averaging nearly one for every three business days of the year, the Company's patrons seem to be well distributed throughout the Province of Ontario, to which its operations are confined, and from the many pleasant letters it has received from claimants relative to the satisfactory payment of their losses the "Standard" has evidently secured an enviable position in the confidence of the public. The continuous success of this Company since its organization and the ability with which its affairs are managed warrant us in predicting for it a very prominent position among the fire insurance companies of the Dominion. CHAPTER XXVI.

MR. BISHOP RECEIVES A FEARFUL EXPLANATION OF THE ABSENCE OF ORWELL BRUCE.

"Hillo, hillo, Bishop—take care, sir, what you say. Such words imply a charge against me which is as ridiculous as it is incapable of truth, and which, if you are mad enough to repeat it, will land you in heavy damages."

"Not unless made in the presence of witnesses; and as there are none here I shall take the liberty of repeating what I have said, just to show you that I understand your mode of operation from first to last. This young man's ruin is the deliberately designed and fully executed work of you and your son. I always depreciated the influence Reuben had on Orwell. I suspected he was leading him into extravagance and dissipation, and often tried to warn him against being so led. But Orwell was too simple, too unsuspicious, too generous and trustful to believe anything against his friend, therefore he gave no heed to my advice."

"What a pity!" said Anthony, with a sneer.

"Yes, and no one has more reason to say so than Orwell himself. But my suspicions were infinitely short of the truth, else my remonstrance would have taken a stronger form. Yet I can hardly take shame to myself for not penetrating a design so monstrous as yours. Poorly as I thought of you Anthony Langton, I did not conceive you capable of a plot like this."

"Oh, thank you. Anything more to say? This is the only chance you will have of uttering your opinion of me to my face, and it is well you should improve the opportunity to the utmost."

"Unfortunately, I without knowing it helped you to play your final card, and so to gain your object. Orwell's last departure from the Grange was partly due to what I, instigated by you, said and did to separate him from Agnes Borland. Had his affections not been thwarted all the evil that has since been done would have been avoided, and your machinations rendered abortive."

"I suppose you mean to say the poor moth would have been only singed, not scorched to death?" said Anthony, with a vicious grin. "I have heard you patiently, Bishop, and think it beneath me to reply to your absurd and spiteful accusations. Return, if you please, to the ground which you, being a lawyer, should not have quitted—the ground of reality and common sense. You have read this deed. You know it will take all the Grange rental to pay the interest due on the mortgage. Until I foreclose I have no power of the management of the property; but I would advise you, for your own sake, beware how you pay away money, except to the bankers, who are empowered to satisfy my claims. You had better cut down all unnecessary expenditure, for I warn you if next half year's interest is not paid in full, there will be a strict examination of your accounts."

"How much further can I cut down the expenditure?" asked Mr. Bishop. "I have done in this direction all that is possible."

"Nonsense; there are a number of outdoor labourers that can be dispensed with, and the establishment at the mansion can be broken up. No use keeping a set of idle, lazy servants there."

"I cannot do that without instructions from Mr. Bruce."

"Can't you? And how are you to get instructions from him? Who knows where he is, or even whether he be alive? I have a strong doubt of it, and so has Reuben."

"Ah! perhaps with both of you the wish is father to the thought."

"Pah! what is it to us whether the young spendthrift is alive or not?"

"Not much, perhaps, for you have got the deed while he has lost the money. But he may be able to show how it was lost, and that showing may be an awkward if not an ugly thing for you and your son. However, for the present, Mr. Langton, there is nothing more to be said or done. In order to meet your unexpected claim I will reduce the expenditure as much as possible. There are one or two items, however, that cannot be lessened; for instance Mrs. Borland's annuity of twenty-five pounds."

"Is there a legal charge on the estate for that?" asked Anthony.

"Well, not exactly. Mr. Bruce paid it as long as he lived, and solemnly enjoined Orwell, to continue it, as you know, for it was one of the disbursements during our guardianship."

"I have nothing to do with that now, neither have you. The estate being mortgaged to its full value such payment is illegal, and you are bound to discontinue it."

"Yes, but consider—what is the widow to do—it is her only means of subsistence?"

"Let her work for her living as other people have to do," returned the old man, with unfeeling coarseness. "You don't think, do you, that she and her presuming daughter are to be kept in idleness at my expense?"

"Remember how the annuity originated," suggested the lawyer." Her husband was killed in saving the Bruces from death, the annuity is therefore not an annual gift, but a small compensation for the irreparable loss."

"Well, well, returned Langton," petulently. "That's a dozen years since; the loss has been made up since that time. Let them work, I say, as better folks have to do. Only you remember this, Bishop, if my interest isn't made up, you'll have to refund out of your own pocket what you pay away illegally. Beyond that I have no power until——"

"Until you make the Grange your own by a forced sale, you would say. I understand you, Mr. Langton. This is what you have been plotting for, and I expect you will soon act upon your bond."

"At the very earliest moment the law allows," said Anthony Langton, with venomous fierceness. The clear directness with which the lawyer saw into his design, the accuracy with which he had detected his method of working it out, and the unqualified manner in which he had given xpression to his perception, had stung the miser to the quick, and in his resentment he threw off all efforts at concealment.

"Very well," retorted Bishop. "You may rely on me placing every obstacle in your way which the law allows."

"Oh, of course; that is to be expected. You want to have your pickings from the property as long as possible. I know you must have made a nice thing of it during the years you have had the management, and don't relish the idea of having to relinquish such a fat preserve. Eh, Bishop? Aha! I have you there. I can see into people's motives and actions as well as you."

"You think you do, Mr. Langton, but you are like a man looking into a mirror, and only see your own image."

Without waiting for further insult, the lawyer lifted his hat and stalked loftily from the room.

STRAFFORDVILLE, Ont., Feb. 12.—The son of Mr. Jonn Smoke, a boy about eighteen years of age, was killed in Henry Stratton's saw mill to-day. His leg was first severed from his body by the large circular saw, then both arms and head. Death was instantaneous.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

Additional and Important evidence still being Received.

A Member of the Vigilance Committee Interviewed.

Feb. 13.—It is quite apparent that there is a growing sympathy for the prisoners. No less a personage than a magistrate was heard to say, "I wonder what they are making such a fuss about? Why don't they leave the two sides to themselves. Then things will settle down by-and-by." The question is: Where are the two sides? One was, but is not; the fate of the other rests with the law. What that fate will be remains to be seen, but as far as some are concerned it will lead them to the gallows. The evidence of Johnny Connors was subject to more harsh criticism to-day at the hands of the prisoner's friends. Their motive in doing so is looked upon as an attempt to turn public opinion against him, but people unprejudiced will believe his story until it has been disproven, which, however, is regarded as one of the things that won't happen. There is a feeling among many that whatever is the result of this affair there will be more blood shed. People are not slow to prophesy that if any of the prisoners are hung their more impulsive friends will stop at nothing short of taking the lives of the remaining members of the Donnelly family, or at least two of them, while, if on the other hand, the acsused are acquitted the prophesy is that the Donnellys will be heard from.

Until to-day there could not be found a member of the Vigilance Committee, who would submit to an interview. One after another was sounded, but to no purpose. They were all as uncommunicative as stones on anything relating to their organization, but this morning your reporter happened on a Vigilante who does not partake of the taciturnity of his brethren. The man in question is a charisteristic Irishman, well up in years, and has lived in Biddulph since 1848. For years he served as a township councillor, and for one year he was a member of the County Council. While of a communicative disposition he was guarded in his utterances, and remained silent on some interrogations.

"You're a member of the Vigilance Committee, I believe?" said the reporter.

"Yes, Sir, I am, and will stick to it if I've got to go to the other world to-morrow."

"For what purpose was the Committee organized?"

"To maintain law and order, and put down the depredations that were going on in the township."

"How was it that the authorities could not do this?"

"Because terrorism reigned to such an extent that magistrates and constables were afraid to do their duty. Besides, no one in the township could be got to give evidence against the guilty parties, although there was no mistaking who the latter were. There was a time when I myself dared not speak for fear of the consequences. I was not fool enough, after working hard all my life, to run the risk of having my barns and stables burned."

"Cattle were stolen from the adjoining township of Blanchard, and left on the farms of innocent people in Biddulph. Barns and stables were burned, and robberies of grain and such like were frequent. You could not get down one tenth of the transactions that occurred."

Who got blamed for these deeds?"

"The Donnellys, although I do not think they were guilty of all of them; still they were implicated in a good many, but always managed to escape."

"Had the Committee a large membership?"

"I don't know whether I will answer that question." Then after a pause the Vigilante said, "Well, there was a large number joined."

"Did you take an oath?"

"You will find that out perhaps when the case comes up in court."

"Did you hold many meetings?"

"We met when anything happened, and set about ferretting it out."

"Had you a president or chairman?" was the next question.

"Do you suppose," replied the man, "that men raised in the bush know what that meant? They didn't bother themselves about such things."

"How, then, were the meetings conducted?"

"It's not for me say."

"Was violence ever proposed against any one?"

"No, sir," was the reply with emphasis. "The Committee was got up in good faith to keep down and ferret out crime."

"Did the Donnellys join?"

"Not much. They knew that they were the principal cause of the Committee being formed."

"What was the last unlawful act the Donnellys were suspected of?"

"The burning of Ryder's barn. The Committee took it in hand, and knew that it was not a bit of use proceeding against any one else, for if the Donnelly's did not burn the barns they were accessory to it."

"Then the Committee must have had a strong feeling against the family?"

"They did. Besides, the priest cursed them from the altar, and as Catholics we were bound to believe that the curse of a priest would prove true. It this case it has. Father Connolly cursed them again and again, and once said to the old woman that she would be made an example of in the ditch."

"Had Father Connolly anything to do with your meetings?"

"He had not; but he was the instigator of the Committee."

"Did you ever hear of a second organization being formed specially to war against the Donnellys?"

"I never did, and don't believe there was."

"Well, who was it that committed the murders?"

"I don't know."

"Were there any members of the Vigilance Committee in the gang?"

"I don't believe there were."

"Well, how was it the Police arrested them?"

"Because they belonged to the Committee."

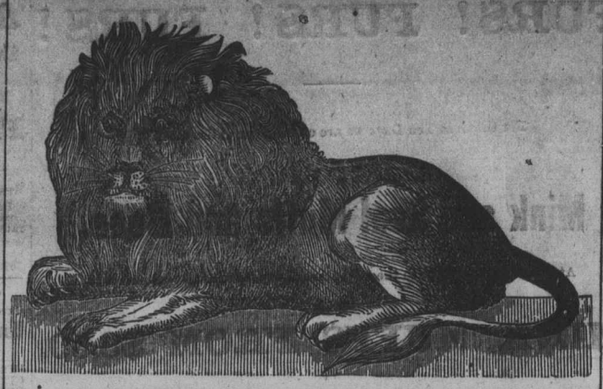
"How is it then that all of you were not arrested?"

"I am quite willing that we should be. By a mere note from the London gaol I could bring in a waggon load of men."

"Then you are convinced of the innocence of the prisoners?"

"I am, and so are they themselves. When I was in London on Tuesday, I visited the gaol and found them all jolly, and smoking and and talking, and reading the papers. I defy you or any one else to find anything against them in the criminal records of this country, where they have lived for years and years."

"Was not the murder a most atrocious one?"



"It was, and I hope the guilty men will be punished, but they haven't got the right ones yet."

"The police say otherwise."

"Maybe, but they have got to prove it."

It is understood that additional evidence of an important nature in the Donnelly case continues to be received. Constable Clay claims to have unearthed strong links of testimony against some of those in custody and others not yet arrested. Patrick Donnelly, one of the ill fated family, arrived in the city to day. The little boy Connor and his mother are the cynosure of all eyes as they pass through the streets.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress-making Department. The numerous orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade. Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance.

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Fine Tweeds, Coarse Tweeds, Cloths, Diagonals and Overcoatings "is the lagest and choicest in the City."

will be continued a short time longer. Our growling and grumbling neighbors will just have to possess their souls in peace for a short time longer, as at the present rate of selling the stock will soon be cleared out. In the meantime customers will remember our stock of Overcoats, Suits, etc., is all marked in plain figures at reduced prices, off which we take a discount of 20 per cent. for cash. No second price. It pleases our customers, and it suits the Lion, and that's all we care about.

Dairy Colleges Needed.

From the Montreal Witness.

The province of Ontario is about expending a considerable sum in enlarging the buildings connected with the Agricultural College at Guelph, formerly known as the Model Farm. It is to be hoped that the dairying department, especially will receive the attention its importance deserves, in any additional outlay to be made, as the farmers of Ontario, and also their families, have greater room for improvement in that line than in any other branch of their work. The little kingdom of Denmark, not much larger in extent than some of our Canadian counties, has given an example in dairying which Canadians should lose no time in following. Although the soil of that kingdom is comparatively poor, and its inhabitants by no means wealthy, yet they maintain a large dairy college, where many persons of both sexes receive a thorough and practical training in everything connected with dairying, the result of which is shown in the fact that Denmark exports half of its total product of butter, and the price realized for this butter in the British market is fully five cents per pound more than is received for the best of our dairy butter, and ten cents more than for our common kinds. It is well known how readily nearly all butter makers will take offence at the least suggestion that the butter made by them is not so good as it might be made under the circumstances, and the best and almost only way to convince such people of their error is by giving some of their own, or their neighbors' children a practical training at some dairy college in all the best modes for making choice butter, to be afterwards practised by them at their old homesteads and in presence of their friends and neighbors, who may now be led to copy their example without any very serious loss of dignity. There is no questioning the fact that the superiority of Danish butter is almost entirely due to the superior skill of those who make it, and it will not do for Ontario dairymen to continue so far in rear of the quiet Dane and plodding German in this most important branch of farming. It is well known that the price of inferior butter declines much more than the price of good butter when the market is overstocked; consequently the loss will be greater to its owner, who must part with it for whatever it will bring, since it will not pay to ship it elsewhere, nor will it keep for any length of time. Although the price of inferior butter is unusually high at present, owing to the great scarcity of all kinds of butter, these high prices need not be expected to continue for any length of time after the spring opens, because of the enlarged production as well as diminished consumption resulting from high prices. Since the maintenance of good prices for butter depends almost entirely on the consumption keeping pace with the production anything which will lead to increased consumption will help to keep up prices, and other things being equal good butter will be used in much larger quantities than an inferior article. It is probable that many persons have nearly abandoned the use of butter entirely because of the difficulty of securing what is really good. There can be no doubt that in a sanitary point of view, the production of good butter and that only would be a great advantage to the country. Although we look for somewhat lower prices when spring opens, yet comparatively high prices will probably continue for some time longer, as the number of milch cows in this country and elsewhere was largely reduced last summer and fall, because of the very small return received for their products for nearly two years previously. A return to low prices may be hastened by the makers holding their stocks over in hopes of receiving the prices paid last fall, and by maintaining the present high prices throughout the summer so diminish the consumption that there will be a glutted market, with consequent low prices in the fall. In any case the price of common and inferior butter will soon decline sufficiently to make its production unprofitable to all concerned, and the sooner that the Canadian dairying interests are supplemented by the establishment of one or more efficient dairy colleges in our midst the better it will be for the interests of the whole Dominion.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

NEARLY SUFFOCATED.—On Tuesday night Mr. Roberston, a commercial traveller from Walkerton, retired to his room at the American Hotel, Toronto, and was found next evening, on his chamber door being pried open, in a state of asphyxication, consequent, it is supposed, upon his having blown out instead of turning off the gas previous to going to bed. Medical aid was called in and by the kindness and attention displayed by Mr. Brown, the proprietor of the hotel, and some of his servants, the unfortunate man is now in a fair way of recovery, although at one time serious apprehensions were entertained for his recovery.

The County Council of Perth have agreed to memorialize the Ontario Government to amend the Assessment Act so as to provide for the assessment on farm property being taken as a basis for taxation for three years, except in cases of villages, which should be subject to yearly assessment.

Oshkosh, Wis., has the largest match factory in the world. It cuts up 2,000,000 feet of logs into matches, and used $300,000 worth of revenue stamps during 1879. Besides, it manufactured one-fourth of all the merchant work sash, blinds and doors made in the United States.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

The packages of tomatoes put up last year in the United States, reached the total of 19,968,000, of which New Jersey put up 5,592,000 cans.

Illinois farm products amounted to $200,000,000 last year, which is double of all the gold and silver mines in the United States.

The Ottawa Iron and Steel Manufacturing Company have decided upon the erection of a 65-ton blast furnace, a car wheel factory and an axle factory at the mines in Ottawa County.

The Chamber of the House of Commons has undergone a great change since the last session of Parliament, and now presents a vastly improved appearance.

The Tribune's special says that within the last forty-six years there have been no less than twenty Indian Commissioners, with an average term of service of only two years. The majority went out of service with damaged reputations.

LATEST FROM LUCAN.

Patrick Donnelly Trying to Hunt up Circumstantial Evidence.

AN ADVENTURE BY DETECTIVE CLAY.

William Donnelly Very Ill.

FORMOSA, ONT., FEB. 16.—The Roman Catholic Church here, collected yesterday $71 in aid of the poor in Ireland.

LUCAN, Ont., Feb. 16.—There is scarcely anything transpiring so far to-day around the village, or out in the settlement in connection with the Donnelly tragedy worth recording. Matters are unusually quiet. No law officers have arrived here from the city up to this hour and we have not heard any reports on the streets that can be traced to a reliable source. Patrick Donnelly staid in the village over night and at 9 a. m. to-day took a conveyance and drove out to the scene of the conflict and although your reporter interviewed him before starting no facts could be elicited as to the purport of his visit. Other parties hazard the opinion that he is quietly picking material for circumstantial evidence to aid in the prosecution, and there is scarcely a doubt that several articles which have been secured by the authorities will go far to establish the fact that perpetrators of the fiendish deed are residents of the settlement, but this is a long way off from being any good proof against the parties now in custody. A very sensational item appears in a morning paper to the effect that a man named Clay, styling himself a self-made detective, who has a penchant for working up criminal cases, had made a raid on the Catholic line for the purpose of fishing out evidence on behalf of the prosecution, and that during his journey two shots were fired at him by some unknown parties. That thereupon he turned round and said, "Oh well if its shooting you want you can have plenty of it" and blazed away when two parties started up and ran away. This story is to all appearances highly improbable, as no such report of anything of the kind has reached the village, and in the present excited state of the community it could not pass unnoticed. The story has evidently been concocted by Mr. Clay himself, to create a sensation in his own behalf. He was entirely ignored by Chief Williams and his staff when he appeared in the village, but he took care to publish himself as a pin peddlar detective, showing his stock in trade and exhibiting his handcuffs, &c., as emblematical of his belonging to the detective force. Such is the man who originated this sensation;

1.30 p. m.—As heretofore stated, mum is the watchword amongst the authorities, and any news furnished must only be taken as the most reliable under the circumstances. It is not expected there will be any more arrests made until after the inquest on Wednesday.

William Donnelly yet remains very ill, and no doubt from appearances to-day some time will elapse before he will be able to be around again.

Notes From Ottawa.

The Runaway at Rideau Hall—The Princess reported much better to-day—Speaker MacPherson not yet out of Danger—Collections for the Irish Relief.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—The Princess is reported much better this morning. Lady Langham is also much better.

Ex-Alderman McRae, who was stricken down with small-pox, about three weeks ago, is convalescent.

Special collections were taken up in several Roman Catholic Churches for the relief of Irish poor. In St. Patrick's, the collection amounted to $106, and in St. Joseph's, $160.

The Citizen says:—"We are requested by Mr. Burland, to state in reference to the telegram from Ottawa in the Montreal Gazette, that he nor any person on behalf of the British American Bank Note Co., had anything to do with inspiring an attack in a telegram of the Toronto Globe upon another Co. Further, that it is untrue to say the Vice-President of his Company is also Vice-President of an American Company. As respects the stock of his company, not a dollar of it is held out of the country, except by one shareholder whose absence has been caused by ill health.

Speaker MacPherson is better, but not yet out of danger.

Local News.

CITY COUNCIL meets this evening.

WAVERLY LODGE, A. F. & A. M. meets to-night.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL SOCIETY has subscribed $69 towards the Irish Relief Fund.

THE next meeting of the Grand Lodge of Orange Young Britons will be held in this city.

REV. MR. WILLIAMS of the Norfolk street MethodistChurch, will conduct missionary services in the First Methodist Church, St. Thomas, to-morrow.

CHALMERS' CHURCH Sunday School anniversary entertainment will be held in the basement of the church on Friday evening, 27th instant.

RATHER STRANGE.—On Thursday on the Galt market were two loads of pork, which had come from within one mile of Guelph. What is the matter with the market of the Junior City?—Reporter.

MR. ED. HUTTON of the Customs department here has been temporarily stationed at Berlin, in place of Mr. S. S. Weaver, Collector of Customs, who is unable to attend to his duties through illness.

ORANGEISM.—The Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario meets in Walkerton to-morrow. A number of representatives from the lodges in this city intend being present. It is understood the session will last several days.

A VETERAN.—Angus McDonald, of Acton, celebrated his 104th birthday on Thursday last. At the battle of Waterloo Mr. McDonald stood beside the Duke of Wellington when he prayed for "Blucher or night."

MISS GEDDES' CONCERT.—In St. George's hall this evening Miss Geddes' pupils give a concert in aid of the Hospital funds. The entertainment will, no doubt, be well attended, not alone for the high order of the programme, but for the worthy object it is announced to aid.

IN THE Norfolk-st. Methodist Church yesterday in the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. J. Maxwell occupied the pulpit in the morning, and the Rev. Mr. Cousins, of Preston, in the evening. At both services there was a large attendance of worshippers, and the musical part of the ceremonies was of a high order.

FROZEN TO DEATH NEAR FREELTON.—A man named Wilber T. Smith, while attending a neighbor's chopping bee on Thursday, got under the influence of liquor, and started for home alone, and had only gone half a mile when he must have laid down. He was found on Saturday morning frozen dead. He leaves a wife and three children.

MEMORIAL WINDOW.—The Kingston News says:—"The Roman Catholic Literary Association of Brockville, gave a successful entertainment at the Opera House there, the proceeds to be devoted to the erection of a memorial window to the late Bishop O'Brien. This, so far as we have heard, is the first step towards the erection of any monument to the memory of the good Bishop." The late Bishop O'Brien was a brother-in-law to Mr. Murphy, Mount Tara, and was well known here.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON LOITERERS.—Policeman Crooks made it lively yesterday afternoon for that class of young men who cannot find anywhere to go but hang around street corners or sit on door steps on Sunday afternoons, making remarks about ladies who pass. When so many church doors are open at that time where all would be made welcome to the Sunday Schools or Bible classes there is no excuse to offer, and the authorities will receive the thanks of all for enforcing the law.

DIOCESE OF NIAGARA. — The following sums were paid by Anglican churches in this neighborhood at the Episcopal Synod office, Hamilton, in January. Towards the Mission Fund: Harriston, $5.31; Guelph, $27.35; Alma, 77 cents. Guarantee account.—Acton, $40; Harriston $80.16; Erin, $46.90; Fergus, $21.93; Alma, $29.25; Eramosa, $20. Algoma Fund.—Guelph, $24.65; Erin, $4.30; Hillsburg, $1.60; Fergus, $3.05; Alma, $3; Orangeville, $15; Burlington, $6; Nelson, $2.17; Acton, Rockwood and Eramosa, $15.

THE DONNELLY MURDER.—The Biddulph tragedy set the daily papers of Toronto and London on their mettle, and the reporters seem to have worked for all they are worth to beat each other. The chief rival centured in London between the Advertiser and Free Press. While both did wonders the Advertiser seems to have got ahead. At the first it published diagrams of the house at which the tragedy occured, was first in interviewing Father Connolly, and to crown all to publish first the boy Connor's evidence, wherein he gave the names of the murderers, and then it followed these up with portraits of the principal parties concerned.

FALSE ALARM.—About seven o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was sounded from the bell on the City Hall. The alarm was occasioned through a coal oil lamp being upset and setting fire to the floor in Mr. R. Crowe's house, Norfolk Street. The flames were subdued without doing any damage worthy of notice. Had there been a fire in progress, it might have made considerable headway before the arrival of the brigade. The horse belonging to the fire department which died some time ago, has not been replaced by a new one, and last night an extra horse for the steamer could not be procured.

COLLECTIONS will be taken up in Chalmers' Church next Sunday, in aid of the General Hospital.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Moderate to fresh South Westerly to South Easterly winds, mild, clear weather to-day, followed by increasing cloudiness to-night.

THERE will be services on Wednesday evenings in St. George's Church throught Lent, with sermons, at 7:30, while the Bible class will meet as usual on Fridays at the same hour.

DRUNKENNESS.—John Gallager, of St. Thomas, for being drunk on Saturday afternoon was sentenced by the Police Magistrate to-day, to ten days' imprisonment.

DO NOT fail to remember that a public meeting called by four magistrates to consider the best means to afford relief to the distressed in Ireland, will be held in the City Hall, to-night.

ALLEGED SWINDLING.—A case marked on the Police Court calendar for hearing to-day in which, M. J. Conway, Bailiff, is accused by St. George Scarlett with charging excessive bailiff's fees, was adjourned until to-morrow.

LARGE COLLECTION. — The collections taken up at the morning and evening services at the Church of Our Lady, for the Irish Relief Fund on Sunday amounted to between $400 and $500. This sum will be forwarded to-day to Bishop Crinnon, of Hamilton, to whom the funds raised by all the churches in the Diocese will be sent.

BREACH OF THE HEALTH BY-LAW.—A case opened on Saturday at the Police Court, in which Health Inspector Stevens, charged Mr. W. H. Smith, with allowing a nuisance to exist on the premises at the Bank of Commerce, was concluded to-day. Different persons occupying rooms in the building above the Bank were examined. The case was finally dismissed without costs.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—Being the first Sunday in Lent, there were two administrations of the Holy Communion at St. George's Church Sunday, and Canon Dixon preached a remarkable sermon on the Power and Personality of the Devil, illustrating his power of putting wickedness into the minds of men without the medium of actions and words, by the atrocious crimes in Biddulph.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.—Ed. Cochrane was arrested by P. C. Crooks about 8:30 last night at the cornor of Gordon and Wyndham streets for swearing. The streets were crowded at the time with people returning from church, and it seemed as though Cochrane was trying to let passers-by have the benefit of his remarks. For the offence he was given fifteen days in gaol.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—The Rev. W. S. Griffin, President of the London Conference, occupied the pulpit of the Dublin street Methodist Church yesterday morning, and in the afternoon addressed the pastor's Bible class, after which many of his old friends renewed their acquaintance. In the evening the rev. gentleman again occupied the pulpit, when the church was filled with an attentive congregation. His sermon was based on Hosea chap. xiii, verse 9. The argument was that man fell by his own act and was neither caused by his Maker to destroy himself on the one hand or by Satan, on the other. The destruction was absolute and complete hence the necessity for a Saviour. The anniversary tea meeting will be held in the church this evening. Rev. Mr. Griffin and different city clergymen will address those present. The choir will also render some selections in music.

Contributions to the Irish Relief Fund.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—Rev. Father Dowd has transmitted $8,450 to Archbishop McCabe, of Armagh, as the joint contribution of the parishes of St. Patrick and St. Ann, in this city, to the Irish relief fund.

REV. J. THOMPSON, of Ayr, occupied the pulpit of Chalmers' Church yesterday, and preached effective sermons. He will lecture in this church on "Music" tomorrow evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Hon. Senator MacPherson, Speaker of the Senate, is seriously ill. A few evenings ago he attended at Rideau Hall in court attire. During the journey from town to the hall he must have incurred a severe cold, as he is now suffering from congestion of the lungs. At the present moment of writing his life is trembling in the balance.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Saturday morning Mr. and Mrs. John Marshal, of Trafalgar, started to drive to Hamilton. When driving down the Zimmerman hill the waggon "slewed" around at the turn near the mill and upset, throwing both occupants violently out. Mrs. Marshall received no serious injuries, but Mr. Marshall was dangerously hurt, and his recovery is considered doubtful. His spine is supposed to be injured, and on Monday night he was insensible.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.—The Cookstown Advocate gives the particulars of a shooting affray which occurred at Sisterville, near Rosemount, recently, in which a man named Foley shot his brother. It seems the two brothers had been quarreling for some time past, and Patrick, the elder, unable to control his temper, went in search of a gun to shoot his younger brother; that on returning and finding the door locked, he set to work to break it open, using the gun for that purpose, when it went off, the contents passing below the heart. He was not expected to live at last accounts.

Fatal Boiler Explosion at Seaforth.

On Saturday forenoon the boiler in Mr. J. Kidd's salt derrick, about one mile and a quarter from Seaforth, exploded with terrific force, killing Mr. John Gillegan, who was preparing to empty the boiler, with the intension of making some repairs early on Monday morning. The boiler itself was thrown a distance of about fifty yards and torn to shreds, like a piece of paper. The safety-valve was torn from the boiler and carried about 100 yards farther, while a piece of iron, weighing about 200 pounds, was lifted like a feather and thrown about 100 yards from the works. The boiler, flues, together with the bricks, of which the foundation was built, were scattered over the fields within a radius of about 300 yards. The cordwood near the place was scattered far and near, breaking one of the telegraph wires and considerably damaging the fence along the railroad track. The pipes from the boiler and safety-valve were plugged full of salt, which had gathered from the water that was used, thereby affording no escape for the steam. The boiler was encrusted with a salt scale in some places fully 2½ inches thick. Mr. Gillegan, who was a strong healthy man in the prime of life, lived until about six this morning, being totally unconscious all the time. He was found about ten yards from the wreck. He leaves a wife and several small children to lament his untimely end.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE VICE-REGAL PARTY.

Their Carriages Upset and Dragged some Distance.

The Governor-General and Princess Slightly Injured.

The Governor-General, the Princess, Lady Langham, and Col. McNeil, it appears were driving in a covered sleigh, to attend the drawing room on Saturday evening, when on turning a corner near the entrance to Rideau Hall grounds, it capsized, throwing the driver from his seat. The animals took fright and scampered off, dragging ngthe sleigh on its side and tossing the occupants about in a dangerous manner. The aide-de-camp's sleigh fortunately happened to be in front. Hon. Messrs. Harbord and Bagot took in the situation at a glance, and turned their attention to the capture of the infuriated animals. Capt. Bagot, at the risk of being trampled to death, seized the bit of one of the horses and succeeded in stopping them. The occupants were quickly removed from the sleigh and driven to Rideau Hall. Dr. Grant was summoned and dressed their wounds. The Princess received a cut on the ear and a bruise over the eye. His Excellency had his head bruised, and Lady Langham her shoulder injured. It is gratifying to know that none of the party were seriously injured, but they certainly had a narrow escape from a terrible death. The news has been cabled to the Queen. There was no escort. Had there been one it is quite probable that the accident would not have occurred.

On Sunday the doctors reported favorably as to the condition of those injured. The drawing room, of course, did not come off.

Some Items From the Public Accounts.

The bulky volume, the Public Accounts of the Dominion for the year ending 30th June, 1879, has been received, and any one who peruses it will be convinced that Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues do not forget their friends as far as a share in the public money is concerned. Their accession to power was as much a surprise to them as to every one else, but having once more got control of the public purse, they did not scruple to use it in reimbursing their friends for work done or services rendered, as well as paying other claims of which we have no explanation beyond the simple statement that the cash has been handed over, and that the parties duly received the same.

In connection with the work of framing the National Policy, we find payments made to the extent of $2,914 to a lot of subordinates who are supposed to have given the Government the benefit of their knowledge and experience in helping Sir Leonard Tilley to fix the duties. Mr. Edward Young gets the biggest plum in the lot, in the shape of $1,100 for his arduous duties. Mr. Hurlburt pockets only $400 for the same self-denying labours, and our virtuous and patriotic Mr. W. H. Frazer is put off with the same amount, but then he was quite satisfied with that, as he had at the time a promise of a permanent position on the Board of Appraisers. Mr. John Maclean is somewhat luckier than the immaculate Frazer, for he gets $478, but then that is a small amount of compensation to the father of Protection. The other sums go on the declining scale till we come to $20.

Among other items worth mention are the costs which Sir A. T. Galt incurred in his mission to France and Spain. He and his deputy Lieutenant-Colonel Bernard, received in 1878-9 no less than $5,093.04 for expenses, while as salary the former received $3,203 and the latter $933—a total of $9,234. This is exclusive of the expenditure in the present fiscal year. Senator Fabre and his assistant, J. Marcotte, who are in France to collect information and make a confidential report on the tariff system of France, on January 13th of the present year were granted $1,000 as an advance on account of expenses. John Livingston, editor of Tilley's pocket organ at St. John, N. B., is credited with $500. The Hon. Mr. Abbott got $1,950 for his trip to England in connection with the affairs of the late Government of Quebec, but we have no particulars as to his services. The publisher of L'Evenement, who has deserted the Liberal party, received as a first instalment on account of his treachery, $2,249. Mr. R. White of the Montreal Gazette, alias the member for Cardwell receives $300. Hon. J. A. C. Chapleau, Premier of Quebec, is down for the nice little sum of $700. W. H. Kerr, a Tory Q. C., gets a similar sum. The services are classified as professional. Lieut.-Col. Dennis is credited with $2,038, the recent increase in his salary being made retroactive to the year 1873. Sir A. T. Galt's son, E. T. Galt, as private Secretary to Mr. Dewdney, Superintendent of Indians in the North-West, receives a salary of $1,000 per annum. Mr. C. H. McIntosh receives a large sum from the public treasury. On account of his Parliamentary Companion he is credited with $1,141, as against $543, in the year preceding. The Citizen Printing and Publishing Company also received $5,309 on account of printing, and $8,902 on account of "Hansard" printing, making a total of $10,352. To this must be added $12,000 clear profit on account of the Parliamentary printing, making in all $22,352 received by Mr. McIntosh during the past nine months of Tory rule. Next Mr. Wallace, the Tory foster parent of the "rag baby," receives $469 for placing his accounts in a comprehensible condition, and $1,750 for loss of time, a total of $2,219. Sir Charles Tupper receives the enormous sum of $2,433 on account of travelling expenses during the first nine months of Tory rule. And so on it goes. The Tory Government is evidently bound to make the most of its opportunities, and the principals seem to be most liberal in helping themselves first to the public money.

THERE was a nice little breeze the other day between Mr. Patteson, Postmaster, Toronto, and Mr. S. Platt, M.P. for East Toronto. The latter waited on the little man to complain that his influence was not heeded in the appointment of clerks, and he even hinted that Mr. Patteson had got his appointment through the undue influence of Mr. J. B. Robinson. The interview was a stormy one, and at length Patteson ordered Platt to leave his office. Platt has gone to Ottawa in great wrath, and threatens to resign if he don't get satisfaction. But he won't; he will only meekly submit.

KINGSTON Whig: A partizan majority of the Lennox County Council has complied with Mr. Hooper's absurd request for the books of the county, which has been impounded for the purpose of the Commission, and for a self appointed expert to go through the books with him in order to make out the defence, and to show by some means that he is not after all a defaulter to the county. He has been given to May to manipulate the figures if he chooses, and so to furnish a sort of rebuttal to the adverse report of the Commission which recently and thoroughly investigated the whole case.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

MORE ARRESTS MADE

Some Bloody Clothes Found.

LUCAN, FEB. 14.

The excitement has revived in the Donnelly murder case by the arrest of additional prisoners. The prisoners in gaol in London have been remanded for another week. County Constable, Geo. W. Clay, who has hitherto been heard of but little in connection with this case has, it appears, been hard at work in the interests of justice, and has succeeded by a daring feat in bringing evidence which is of the very strongest kind against some of the murderers of the Donnelly family. Clay has a penchant for criminal work, which requires tact, skill and daring, and all of these three traits of character he has displayed in this case. It appears that he was in company with the chief of police and others on Friday and Saturday of last week in the search for evidence in the farm houses in "the Roman line." At one of the houses, while the chief and his detectives were engaged in conversation with the farmer and his wife, and drinking quantities of milk, Clay was poking his nose around on the scent for information. While in the yard, he noticed one of the boys tramping down the remains of a stack of fodder near the barns. This looking suspicious, Clay enquired in an off-hand manner the reason for tramping it, and was told "to pack it." Clay is not a farmer, but thought he knew enough about farming to know that fodder does not want packing at this season of the year, and made up his mind that there was something wrong about it. Wishing to get the credit to himself, if any credit were to be obtained, he kept his own counsel and went to work in his own way. About midnight on the same night he started on his errand and walked out to the premises in question. On the road out, as he was walking along quietly, a shot was suddenly fired at him from the other side of the fence. He turned around and immediately another bullet went whistling past him. "Oh, well," said Clay, drawing his revolver, "If it is shooting you want, you can have plenty of it," and fired at the spot whence the other shots had come. Two men, who had been watching his movements, then started up and ran away. Knowing that he was watched, Clay made a detour, and after going some distance around came to his destination. He then set to work secretly and rapidly, and after removing a portion of the fodder, found several articles of wearing apparel secreted underneath. Among them were a smock frock and a pair of pants, both of which articles were saturated with blood, The dangerous task he had set himself now became apparent, as he had now to get the evidences of guilt to Lucan. This was all the more dangerous, as there was no doubt his movements on the road would be watched, and if the watchers ascertained what he had in his possession, he stood a poor chance of getting through. After a moment's reflection he arranged the articles he had found around his body, underneath his overcoat, and stealing out of the barnyard, started for home. He walked the whole of the way with his precious burden, keeping a good lock out on all sides, but no offer was made to molest him. Arrived home, he thought the matter over and decided to keep the information to himself until he could obtain an interview with Mr. Hutchinson, which he succeeded in doing on Thursday afternoon, and then produced the bloody clothes. A consultation was held when it was decided to issue warrants for the arrest of several of the parties implicated by this evidence.

Accordingly, on Sunday, Mrs. Maher and John Shea were arrested. The bloody clothes found by Constable Clay have been identified as a dress owned by Mrs. Maher. It had been altered so as to form a complete suit of overalls for a man, and the day after the tragedy Clay saw Shea hiding it under a straw stack. It is not generally believed that Shea, who is an old pensioner who gains a living by working around among farmers in the township, had a hand in the murder. The authorities surmise that he found the bloody garments and endeavored to hide them to shield the guilty parties.

The warrant charges Mrs. Maher with being accessory to the murder both before and after the fact. This is a most serious accusation to lay against any person, especially one of the female sex, and the step taken by the authorities in apprehending Mrs. Maher is considered a bold and risky one, even by those parties pretty well acquainted with the circumstances of the case and the history of the family involved, which hitherto has been free from suspicion. The information against her was laid by one of the surviving Donnellys, and is said to be of a damaging character. Whatever the grounds are the police seem to be satisfied that they are not making a wrong move. When the Chief pronounced the warrant the woman appeared to be considerably moved, but said nothing, and having dressed herself in her best clothes went quietly along. Mrs. Maher's maiden name is Cain, and she has three or four brothers living in the township.

The prisoners in gaol still maintain their hopeful feeling, and none of them, except perhaps McLaughlin, seem to be moved by their position. They talk among themselves about the case, but will not submit to interviews, having been cautioned by their counsel not to hold communication with outsiders. McLaughlin was heard to protest against the accounts of the tragedy published by the newspapers. He said they had only given one side of the story. "There was," he said, "another side, and it would come out some day." Purtell's fear and weakness seem to have vanished, and he has now assumed an air of bravado. The manner of the other men has not changed since their incarceration.

SAYS the Toronto Telegram: The probability of Sir John Macdonald resigning the leadership of the Conservative party, and retiring from public life, is about as great as the man in the moon assuming the leadership of the Opposition. Sir John likes to talk about the day when he will lay down his bones in some quiet churchyard, and when some younger man will take his place at the head of the party. But this is done for the purpose of evoking the sympathy at the faithful and leading them to think of the terrible misfortune it would be if anything should happen to the Chieftain. But nothing can be more certain than this—that Sir John will stick to the leadership as long as he has vitality enough to hold on, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.—Ed.

The salmon catch in California and Oregon last year was worth $2,073,000, about five hundred thousand cases.

OWING to a division among the Liberals in Montmorenci, Saturday's election was carried by Mr. Angers by about 390 majority.

AT the election on Saturday in Southwark, London, Clark, Conservative, was elected by 853 majority. This constituency has hitherto returned a Liberal, but on this occasion, in addition to the regular Liberal candidate, there was one representing the working men, which divided the Liberal vote, and so secured a Conservative victory.

THE Gazette of Saturday contains a solemn announcement of the new Table of Precedence, by which the Governor-General heads the list, which embraces all our Colonial dignitaries in the descending scale down to the last, which is composed of retired judges.

THE London Standard says that on the appointment of Sir A. T. Galt as Canadian Resident Minister in London, the Canadian Government will retain Mr. Annand as Chief Emigration Agent for the Dominion, to order to afford every facility for emigration during the prevalence of the agricultural depression in the United Kingdom.

THE New York Times tell a truth as applicable to Canada as to its own country when it says that "the Congress of the United States is utterly incapable of regulating the employment of capital or the choice of markets with a tithe of the security and success that would attend the untrammeled action of the producers and consumers left to the guidance of their own interests and good sense."

AFTER a short session the Manitoba Legislature was prorogued on Saturday. Although short a good deal of work was done. Acts have been passed which provide or a complete and general municipal organization, and a scheme for drainage by drawing on capital account. An Address to the Governor-General was adopted praying for an enlargement of Manitoba's boundaries. The session was remarkable in that not one adverse motion to the Government was voted on during the whole time. There was only one Oppositionist in the House, and he once proposed an amendment to a Government motion, but could obtain no seconder. The Estimates for the current year amount to $203,340. The amount is $100,000 in excess of the estimates of last year, which excess it is proposed to meet by expending that amount out of the capital account of the Province now in the hands of the Dominion Government. The Estimates include an appropriation of $50,000 for drainage purposes, and $22,000 in aid of the grant for the improvement of roads.

A married man named Wilbur T. Smith while attending a neighbor's chopping bee near Freelton, on Thursday, got under the influence of liquor and started for home alone. He had only gone half a mile when he must have lain down. He was found on Saturday morning frozen dead. He leaves a wife and three children.

Nearly 300,000,000 postal cards were used in the United States last year. They are made at Holyoke, Mass., by a private concern, under the general supervision of a Government officer. The work is nearly all done by machinery, even to counting and putting them up in packages of twenty five. The use of postal cards is said to have driven many makers of writing-paper and envelopes out of business.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

CHAPTER XXVI.

MR. BISHOP RECEIVES A FEARFUL EXPLANATION OF THE ABSENCE OF ORWELL BRUCE.

"Oh how enraged he is at his discomfiture," chuckled the miser. "I knew I should bring him down ever so many pegs eh, didn't I, Reuben? I hope you heard it all."

"Every word," said his son, who emerged at that moment from a closet behind his father's chair.

"Ha! I'm glad you did. What a stun he has got, hasn't he?"

"He has, undoubtedly, but I don't like the way in which he spoke of our doings. He twigs our game exactly."

"What about it? Let him suspect what he likes, he can prove nothing."

"No, but if he talks like that he'll make it hot for us in the neighbourhood."

"Let him talk—I wish he would; I could then have him cast in swinging damages. But you needn't fear he will. You heard how I cautioned him; and his own legal prudence will make him keep his tongue between his teeth. As to what he thinks we needn't mind—a muzzled dog can neither bark nor bite."

"He can give an unpleasant growl, though," returned Reuben, moodily, "and should Orwell turn up——"

"Well, what then?" demanded his father, quickly. "I don't believe Orwell will turn up; but if he should, you tell me he knows nothing of the share you had in getting him fleeced."

Reuben lowered his brows and looked gloomily distrustful.

"What are you thinking of? Why do you look so distrustful?" asked his father, with vague alarm. "Is there any danger of discovery?"

"Bishop may make him as suspicious as himself," replied Reuben, who had given his father a false version of the scene in the Paris saloon, carefully suppressing the discovery which Orwell had made, and the avowal which he himself, in the heat of passion, had hazarded. In his after reflections he had deeply regretted the revelations he had made known. And he had thereby possessed Orwell of a knowledge which, if imparted to the lawyer, might furnish the latter with a dangerous weapon against them.

"I care nothing for their suspicions so long as they have no proof," said the old man. "And the only thing in the shape of proof that exists is the letter I wrote, and which you did not receive when you left Paris. If that were to fall into their hands it would be a serious matter, but of course there is no danger that it will. The hotel people will be sure to forward it when they receive your address. How stupid of you not to leave it with them."

"How was I to think you would write so soon? I don't calculate chances as you do. I think I have done very well as it is."

"So you have," returned his father, soothingly. "If I was the head that planned you were the hand that performed, and we shall have the reward of our labour, never fear. You heard me tell Bishop that I shall bring the Grange into the market immediately."

"What do you call immediately—to-morrow, or next week?"

"Why, no, not just so soon as that. Scratcher tells me it will take a few months to bring on the sale. There must be a form of advertising, and so on—a mere form, for no one will be fool enough to bid against us. The mortgage is too heavy for that. Before six months are gone the Grange will be ours. Afterwards you must lose no time in marrying into a good country family, and when you and Maria are properly settled I shall have reached the height of my ambition. Ha, ha! it shall then be seen what the Glasgow money-lender has had brains to achieve."

"I shall go and have a turn on the stubbles with my gun," said Reuben, who by no means relished the point to which the conversation had reached. The project of marriage which his father had broached on more than one occasion was disagreeable to him, for it threatened to interfere with his designs on Agnes Borland, for whom he entertained a wild, selfish passion, and whom he resolved should be his. Now that Orwell Bruce was, he hoped, out of the way, no longer owner of the Grange, and reduced to poverty, he apprehended little difficulty in his guilty pursuit. He would secure her for himself, partly to revenge himself on Orwell for the blows and insults he had received from him, partly—and perhaps chiefly—to gratify his base affection, which was as incapable of a worthy approach to such a pure, high-minded girl, as he himself was incapable of understanding honorable principle or appreciating virtuous practice. His own soul being destitute of purity and truth, he had little faith of their existence in the souls of of others, otherwise he would have known that Agnes Borland was infinitely above such as he. But immoral ignorance is always egotistical.

While Reuben Langton was sauntering with his gun towards the upland fields, cherishing in his vile heart the base project he had formed, Mr. Bishop was walking slowly homewards in a very unevitable state of mind. Never in his life had he been so staggered, deceived, and overreached. To one who prided himself on his shrewdness and sagacity the discovery that he had been so completely outwitted was galling. But this merely personal and professional feeling had not long the ascendancy in his bosom. The fate of Orwell Bruce weighed far more heavily on his heart. The wreck and ruin of the youth were calamities too tremendous to be calmly contemplated. The worst of it was the lawyer could see no means of saving him. Though Orwell had been swindled and robbed in the most outrageous manner, it had been done so cunningly that there was no legal remedy. While cursing the Langtons—father and son, he pitied Orwell even more than he blamed him, and severely reproached himself for the share he had in contributing to the consumation of his ruin. There was no comfort in the thought that in what he had done he had been actuated by the best intentions. To save Orwell from what he considered an unsuitable marriage—unsuitable only from a worldly point of view—he had sent him headlong to pardition. For this he could not doubt, had been the result of his action in the matter of Orwell and Agnes. A thousand times during the past two years he had regretted the separation of the lovers; now his regret had gained tenfold intensity, and he would have given much, very much, to achieve the impossible, to recall the past, and let true love assert its claims above the world's paltry earth-bound conventionalism.

But what signified his sorrow and regret? These were unable to remove or even to mitigate the evil; perhaps the evil was even worse than had been ascertained. For the anxious question now was, "What had become of Orwell?"

That was a question which was to torture others beside the lawyer for weeks and months to come.

An address has been adopted by the Legislature, praying the Dominion Government to contribute to the maintenance of the Hospitals in Manitoba, on the ground that a proportion of the patients relieved therein are the victims of explosions and other misfortunes while working on the Canada Pacific works outside the the jurisdiction of this Province.

Agricultural and Arts Association.

Election of a Delegate for this District.

The delegates of No. 7 Division met on Saturday in Hamilton, to elect a delegate in place of Mr. Thomas Stock, whose term was expired. On motion, Mr. Thomas Stock took the chair. The following representatives were present:—Messrs. John Hobson, West Wellington; Peter Rennie, Centre Wellington; James Laidlaw, M. P. P., South Wellington; Moses Springer, M. P. P., North Waterloo; Alexander Barrie, South Waterloo; John Renton, South Wentworth; J. B. Bessy, Halton: W. J. Middleton, Dufferin; Geo. Roach, Hamilton; Messrs. Awrey, Carpenter, Jardine, Sealey, J. Somerville and several other getlemen were also in attendance.

It was moved by Mr. Laidlaw, seconded by Mr. Bessy,

That the vote be taken by ballot, a majority to elect, and in case of a tie the delegate for South Wellington to have the casting vote, that association having the largest number of members, 371.

Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Keen were appointed scrutineers.

The result of the first ballot was as follows:—Mr. Hobson, South Wellington, 4; Mr. Moore, South Waterloo, 3; Mr. Roach, Hamilton, 2; Mr. Pettit, Halton, 1.

This necessitated another ballot, which was as follows:—Mr. Hobson, 4; Mr. Roach, 3, Mr. Moore, 3.

Another ballot was necessary. This time the figures stood:—Mr. Hobson, 4; Mr. Roach, 3; Mr. Moore, 3.

The fourth ballot resulted in a similar manner. The different representatives were then heard.

Mr. Roach advocated the claims of Hamilton. He pointed out that the city had never had a representative, and that Wellington had several. The Provincial Exhibition was to be in Hamilton, and that was another reason why there should be a representative.

Messrs. Pettit, Baine, Stock, Laidlaw, Springer and Bessy each advocated the claims of their respective districts.

At Mr. Laidlaw's suggestion it was resolved to change the manner of ballot, and that the lowest should retire and the highest be pitted against the next highest on the former vote.

The first ballot was then between Mr. Hobson and Mr. Pettit, and resulted thus—Hobson, 7; Pettit, 3.

Mr. Pettit then withdrew, and the contest lay between Messrs. Hobson and Roach. The vote was as follows:—Hobson, 6; Roach 4.

Mr. Roach then retired. The vote now taken was between Messrs. Hobson and Moore—Moore, 6; Hobson, 4.

This carried Mr. Moore's election.

Mr. Moore returned thanks on behalf of himself and North Waterloo.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the chairman, and Mr. Laidlaw paid Mr. Stock a high compliment, and also Mr. Roach as secretary.

RAILWAY CONTRACTS.—The Dominion Government solicit tenders for the construction of a second one hundred miles of railway west of Red River, which will extend near the western boundary of Manitoba to a point on the west side of the Valley of Tail Creek. The Intercolonial Railway authorities also request tenders for ballasting the Riviere du Loup branch.

U. S. MILITIA.—According to a statement laid before Congress, the Militia organization of the United States is in numbers as follows: "145 general officers, 1,605 regimental, field and staff officers, and 6,198 company officers, making a total of 8,869 commissioned officers. Of non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates there are 117,037. The unorganized force, or number of men available for military duty in the United States, is put down as 6,516,758."

A Successful Company.

The Standard Fire Insurance Company's report is to hand, and we notice with pleasure its continued success. From its report of 1879 we take the following figures: During the year the Company received in premiums $68,557, an increase of $21,000 over its premium income for the previous year. Its losses on the business for 1879 amounted to $24,900, or about 36½ per cent. of the premiums received. The excess of premiums over losses for the year amounted to $43,600, and the excess of income over total expenditure for the same period amounted to $25,033.33. From the detailed list of losses paid, 98, averaging nearly one for every three business days of the year, the Company's patrons seem to be well distributed throughout the Province of Ontario, to which its operations are confined, and from the many pleasant letters it has received from claimants relative to the satisfactory payment of their losses the "Standard" has evidently secured an enviable position in the confidence of the public. The continuous success of this Company since its organization and the ability with which its affairs are managed warrant us in predicting for it a very prominent position among the fire insurance companies of the Dominion. The County Registrar of Bruce says in regard to the difficulty between the County Council and himself that there are substantial doubts as to whether the Council is indebted to him or he to the Council, and that he has always been willing to refer the points at issue to the Hon. Attorney-General and abide the decision if against his views. He is ready at any moment to give his check for the amount in dispute.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress-making Department. The numereus orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade, Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance.

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Fine Tweeds, Coarse Tweeds, Cloths, Diagonals and Overcoatings "is the lagest and choicest in the City."

Melancholy Suicide at Barrie.

A suicide of an unusually melancholy nature was committed in Barrie on Wednesday last. The deceased, Mary Munro, was of a highly respectable family, and her sad death under such particularly painful circumstances has excited the sympathy of every one towards the bereaved parents. The story of her wrongs, and the primary cause of her rash act, is but a repetition of the history of many another unfortunate female. The statement given below was found in her handwriting, and will explain to those not already conversant with the fact, the heartless treatment she received from the hands of one in whom her confidence was ever great. Some short time ago she was seduced by a demon in the guise of man, who cruelly abandoned her soon after, and the offspring of their guilt having suddenly disappeared, and the body of a child having been found in the waters of the Bay, poor Mary Munro was quickly hurried before a court of criminal justice, after being cruelly detained several months in the jail, but there being no evidence of any crime on her part, she was acquitted of the charge of infanticide, with which she stood charged. But she had been guilty of the "unpardonable sin," and was therefore to be shunned by earth's dainty clay. She was naturally a high-spirited girl, and never seems to have abandoned the hope that the wretch who had obtained her ruin under promise of marriage would one day be her redemption. However the announcement of his marriage to another woman seems to have been more than she could bear, and she deliberately poisoned herself by taking about two spoonsful of Paris Green. After having been so ruthlessly deprived of her hitherto stainless name, and all hope having fled, it is little wonder indeed that she should be driven to seek in death that calm repose which seemed denied her here. The following statement was found as previously mentioned:

"Mary Munro, I want to be buried in this dress, don't fail to put it on, for I can't live now. He that promised me so much, and that I have lived for, has deserted me. He has lied to me all the time. I could have him punished severely for the way he has treated me. He used me brutally and now that he has gone I must, I must die. But I curse him. He never can have luck, for I will haunt him as long as he lives. He is a heartless, soulless villain. I swear he never shall have peace on earth. So ends Mary Munro's life. Never depend on a man."

A Long Reach by Telephone.

A TWO HOURS' TALK OVER 410 MILES OF WIRE.

On Sunday, the 18th ult., an attempt was made to hold a conversation by telephone between Omaha and St. Louis, distant four hundred and ten miles, which only failed on account of Manager Durant, of the St. Louis Exchange, not coming to time. At that time the weather was magnificent, and circumstances generally were propitious for a big test. It will be remembered that a conversation was at that time held between two stations eight miles apart by wire, with one of the talkers three hundred feet from the transmitter. On Sunday a second effort was made by the Omaha telephone men, and this time with perfect success. Laclanche was first put on, and St. Louis was called by telegraph, to which they responded that they were all ready, and asked if they were already at this end. A signal was then agreed upon when the wire should be attached to the telephone, and at the proper moment it was done, and the usual greeting "Hello!" was sent over the line, bringing back the same expressive and significant language in reply.

"Is that you, France?" "Yes."

"How do you get me?" "Pretty well."

"Who is talking? What battery have you on? and who is in the office?" were asked and answered.

Although the conversation was understood, it was not distinct enough to suit, and the battery was charged and two Celland jars put on. After this it worked magnificently, Messrs. Korty and France both holding a satisfactory talk with Messrs. Durant and Benedict, of St. Louis.

One of the St. Louis men then sang the "Sweet By-and-By" in a fine baritone voice, and it was distinctly heard by the Omaha boys, who repeated it to St. Louis to assure them that it had come plainly. Then France sang, "I'm a Pilgrim and I'm a Stranger," which was received with applause by St. Louis. About this time the St. Louis talker got his mouth too close to the transmitter, and was promptly told to stand back about six inches, when his voice became at once more audible.

The test was made over the wires of the new American Union Company, which are uninterrupted between this point and St. Louis, the line not yet being being on the poles. We are informed that such a test would elsewhere, especially in the East, be impossible, as the number of wires elsewhere would be fatal to the transmission of the human voice, on account of the induction. The distance to St. Louis is four hundred and ten miles, the longest ever comprehended in such a test, and after two hours' experiment, the boys returned to the city highly delighted.—Omaha Republican.

DEATH FROM TIGHT LACING.—The verdict of a Norwood (England) jury in a case where the victim, a young girl nineteen years of age, died from the effects of tight lacing, has, says the Montreal Witness, attracted a good deal of attention in the English press, and a forcible blow has been struck at a fashion which is as ridiculous as it is dangerous. The result of the post mortem examination and of the medical evidence showed clearly that the young woman's death was caused by tight lacing. The victim in this case was a domestic servant, and therefore presumably out of the reach of the eccentricities of fashion; but it is one of the characteristics of the present day that fashions are no sooner adopted by the rich than they are extravagantly copied by the poor. The finding of a coroner's jury, "Death from tight-lacing," may help to put an end to the "wasp-like" waist that bulges the bust, contracts the respiratory organs, ruins the digestion, throws the blood to the extremities, and creates heart-disease. Amongst the stories told of Abernethy is one of a mother who brought a delicate daughter to the great surgeon of the day. Some hidden disease was feared, but the operating knife was applied under conditions that would have made anæthetics useless, even if they had been invented. The surgeon cut the girl's stay-lace, and told her mother to buy her a skipping rope. It is to be feared that medical advisers of the present day would hardly resort to so simple a treatment of the ills from which a good many of their fair patients are suffering.

FEEDING CATTLE.—There is a great difference in the gain of cattle even from the same feed and the same quantity of it. P. Irving, Blenheim, is now feeding five bulls which on December 6th, weighed as follows, viz:—the first 1,350 lbs., second 1,450 lbs, third 1,630, fourth 1,750, and fifth 1,540. The same animals, although all treated alike weighed on the 5th of February inst., first 1,600, gain 250; second 1,670, gain 220; third 1,815, gain 185; fourth 1,815, gain 65; and fifth 1,750, gain 210. From which it will be seen that the total gain in two months was 930 lbs., making for each animal an average of 186 lbs., or three and a third lbs., each per day. Taking into consideration that one of the five gained only 65 lbs, the average for the other four was 33 lbs. per day.—Paris Transcript.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.—A deputation waited on the Attorney-General the other day to press the claims of the proposed Toronto and Ottawa Railway for aid from the Government. The deputation consisted entirely of members of Parliament, with the exception of Mr. Dumble, of Peterboro'. The following formed the deputation: Messrs. Deroche, Dumble, Paxton, Blezard, Baskerville, Chisholm, Gibson, (Hamilton), Boulter, Hawley, Metcalf, Merrick, Monk, Parkhill, Cook, Robinson, (Cardwell), Calvin, MacMahon, Morgan, Laidlaw, Awrey, Bell, Richardson, Awrey, Broder. Mr. Dumble stated that $1,500 per mile would build a good road. Hon. Mr. Mowat informed the deputation that the matter would receive the attention of the Government.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of wel selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

REV. DR. ORMISTON.—Favorable reports have been received from the Rev. Dr. Ormiston, late of Hamilton, who is sojourning in the highland regions of northeastern Georgia for the benefit of his health. He is gaining strength rapidly, and there is every reason to hope that next month he will be able to resume his labors in New York.

EXTERMINATING CANADA THISTLES.—Mr. Hay's Bill for the extermination of Canada thistles, introduced into the local Legislature, provides that an overseer of highways shall have power to enter upon or cut thistles upon any land sown with grain other than fall wheat, and when Canada when Canada thistles are growing upon non-resident lands, it shall not be necessary to give notice before proceeding to cut them down.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 17, 1880.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

FROM OTTAWA.

The Intercolonial Railway.

OTTAWA, FEB. 17.—The Nova Scotia deputation at present in the city have had an interview with the Government in relation to the Eastern extension of the Intercolonial Railway. It is understood they object to any extension of time being allowed the Company to complete the work which extends from New Glasgow to the Straits of Canso. Rather than allow this the Provincial Government are ready to take possession of the road, providing the Federal Government will hand over to them the control of the Truro and Pictou branch. The Government have taken the matter into consideration.

Fire at Tilsonburg.

TILSONBURG, Ont., Feb. 17.—A fire broke out this a. m., in an old double tenement house on Bidwell Street, which was totally consumed. Part of the house was occupied by a family named Holliday. The household goods were all saved. The house was owned by Chas. Thomson and Geo. Matthews, and was valued at $200. No insurance.

The Consolidated ank.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—The Consolidated Bank will resume payment on the 1st of March. This has been arrived at by the Banks and Government withholding their claims for the present.

Fatal Accident.

CARILLON, Que., Feb. 20.—A man named Charles Ceasor, was accidentally killed last night by being caught in the belt of the pump engine in use on the Carillon Canal works.

From Toronto.

The Public Accounts Committee.

TORONTO, FEB. 17.—There was a lively time in Public Accounts Committee this morning, when the Government called Mr Phillips, Chief Messenger, and J. W. Langmuir, Inspector of Prisons and Asylums, to show the practice of Sandfield's Government with reference to trips, and they testified that such expenses as liquors and cigars, ect., were always charged, only that the former Government did not bring such items in details.

Sometime between Saturday night and Monday morning the warehouse of Gordon & McKay, corner of Front and Bay streets, was entered by burglars, who carried off a large quantity of silks, velvets, etc. The excitement among the merchants occupying stores in the same block was intense, as they all expected to find traces of midnight marauders, but, fortunately, were mistaken.

Dublin St. Church Tea Meeting.

The anniversary tea meeting of the above church was held on Monday evening. In the basement, ten tables were erected—two in the centre and eight at the sides—each capable of seating from 12 to 14 persons. It was evident that the ladies were well up in making the tables present an attractive appearance, for as soon as the announcement was made that tea was ready they were speedily filled, and the lady waiters were prompt in their attentions to the wants of all. Three times were the tables filled, while quite a number had to wait for the fourth course. Between four and five hundred partook of the abundance of good things provided, and all seemed pleased at the manner in which the programme was carried out. After tea was over, the audience repaired to the body of the church, where the intellectual treat was to take place. In the absence of the Rev. Mr. Maxwell, the Rev. Mr. Griffin, President of the London Conference, occupied the chair, the duties of which he discharged in a manner that kept the audience in the best of humor until the close. On the platform were the Rev. Dr. Wardrope, Rev. Mr. Ball, Rev. Mr. Torrance, Rev. Mr. Howie, and Mr. James Hough. Each, with the exception of the Rev. Mr. Torrance, who had to leave at an early hour, gave an address, Rev. Dr. Wardrope and the Rev. Mr. Ball, especially delighting the audience with their able, eloquent and well-timed remarks. The choir was on hand and gave several anthems in fine style, under the leadership of Prof. Philp. Owing to the large amount of eatables left over, it was decided to have a tea meeting for the children this evening, the admission fee being placed at five cents up.

Local News.

THE regular meeting of the Fire Brigade takes place to-night.

AN adjourned meeting of the Guelph Presbytery is in session at Knox Church to-day.

WM. STEWART & Co's. new advertisement of new and nobby felt hats will appear to-morrow.

THE exact amount realized by the collections in the Church of Our Lady, on Sunday, was $549.

FARM SOLD.—Mr. B. Sallows, of Paisley Block, has sold his farm of 100 acres to Mr. James Wilson, of this city, for a handsome sum.

THE Y. M. C. A. give a dime parlor entertainment in their rooms to-night Refreshments will be provided and popular games will be played.

THE Annual Meeting of the Guelph and Ontario Savings and Investment Society will be held in the Caledonian rooms tomorrow afternoon, at two o'clock.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—Rev. Mr. Thomson, of Ayr, will lecture on "Music" to-night, in Chalmers' Church, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Association.

A WRIT was issued on Monday afternoon against ex-Mayor Howard, at the instance of ex-Alderman Gauhan, claiming $500 for false arrest and ejectment from the Council Chamber.

DISTILLING WHISKEY UNLAWFULLY.—John Lee, of Erin, has been committed for trial for the illegal manufacture of whiskey, at the instance of the Toronto Division of the Inland Revenue.

WE have received from Mr. T. J. Day the January numbers of the Boys Own Paper accompanied by two presentation plates. The numbers are filled with interesting reading for boys by good authors and are well illustrated. Price 15 cents.

NEW SIDEWALK.—The City Council have decided to extend the sidewalk on Gordon street from its present terminus at the Dundas bridge to the city limits. The walk will be four feet in width. The Ontario Government will continue the sidewalk to the Agricultural College.

LARCENY.—Constable Lynch on Monday arrested James McDonald, a farmer living near Rockwood, for the larceny of a collie dog valued at $25, from Ald. Cohee. The dog was lost about two weeks ago, and although the loss was advertised the dog was not returned. McDonald was brought to Guelph gaol and will be tried by the Police Magistraie on Thursday.

EMERALD BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION.—In Chambers on Monday, before his Honour Judge McKenzie, Mr. W. G. Murdoch applied for an order for a certificate under Chap. 167, Rev. Stat. Ontario, incorporating the Emerald Beneficial Association. His Honour expressed some doubts as to the propriety of granting the certificate on account of the Association being of a party character.

HESPELER AND THE MUNICIPAL LOAN FUND.—The village of Hespeler left its share of the Municipal Loan Fund distribution in the hands of the Government, drawing interest. This year the municipality finds it necessary to lay down a number of new sidewalks and to build an addition to its public school, and as a consequence is making provision to draw the money, so as to make these improvements without increasing the rate of taxation. The original amount due to Hespeler by the distribution scheme was in the neighbourhood of $1,500.

WHO IS SHE—Says the Georgetown Herald.—An insane woman created considerable excitement on Main street the other day by her actions. She came from Limehouse, but we understand she belongs to Puslinch. She was too crazy to even give her name, but it would appear from her very peculiar actions that some domestic difficulty has been the cause of the trouble. She was taken from here to Milton jail. The above should have appeared last week but owing to the change made in the paper, this, as well as other items, was overlooked. We therefore pen the above, with the hope that the relatives of the unfortunate person may be able to find her whereabouts.

SOCIETY OF ARTS.—On Monday afternoon a deputation consisting of Messrs. O'Brien, Hughes, Mathews, Howland, and others, waited upon the Attorney-General to represent the views of the Toronto Society of Artists, who are anxious to obtain a vote of $4,500 to further higher education. Petitions were presented, signed by over 4,000 persons, and it was stated that while the Quebec Government gave $7,000 to the Montreal School, this Government last year only gave the sum of $2,100. The several speakers spoke of the very useful work done by this society and hoped this grant would be made to free them from financial difficulties. The Attorney-General said he and his colleagues would carefully consider the matter. The Society deserves every encouragement, and we hope the Government will see their way clear to giving such a grant as will enable them to prosecute their work with spirit.

THE Curling Match between Toronto and Guelph, has been postponed until Friday, on account of Toronto having other engagements.

HUGH WALKER received a Hallibt fish weighing 250 lbs. It is a first-class specimen, is greatly admired and is selling fast.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh to strong winds gradually shifting towards the west; fair, warm weather, followed by local showers to-night and colder weather to-morrow.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.—Edward McCarthy, of Eramosa, was committed for trial last week at Fergus for getting eleven dollars from A. Taylor, on a promissory note, accepted on the representation that McCarthy had a horse in the Queen's Hotel stables at that village which was untrue.

THE FANCY FAIR.—The gross receipts taken at the fancy fair amounted to $234, leaving a net profit of $200. The ladies of St. Andrew's Aid Society desire to thank Mrs. Corbett for placing the store at their disposal gratis, and also to Mr. Rainer for the use of a piano for the occasion.

HEAVY BEREAVEMENT.—During last week the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell, have been sorely afflicted by death. On Monday, Mrs. Maxwell's sister died, and on Saturday, Mr. Maxwell's father, after a few days' illness. We are sure that Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell have the sympathy of the community in their heavy affliction.

Now that the Fire, Water and Gas Committee have under consideration the placing of additional lamps on the streets, it might not be out of place to direct their attention to the necessity there is for a lamp at the southern end of the Eramosa Bridge. Last year the Council promised to fix a lamp at that place, but failed to fulfil the promise.

SCARLETT V. CONWAY.—This case, in which the plaintiff claimed that the defendant who is a bailiff, had charged excessive fees for a seizure made by him, was heard by the Police Magistrate to-day (Tuesday.) Considerable evidence was taken after which the matter was settled between the parties, Conway being ordered to refund Scarlett three times the amount of fees he charged, viz., $10.60.

DRIVING ACCIDENT.—On Monday evening while Michael Smith was driving on the Eramosa road, a short distance from the city, Frank Cochrane drove into his conveyance with a lumber waggon. The buggy was badly damaged, the shaft, dash board, and one of the wheels being broken. Mr. Smith was thrown to the roadway by the collision, but fortunately escaped with slight injury.

THE ALDERMANIC QUALIFICATION QUESTION.—Mr. Geo. S. Grange has been served with a writ of quo warranto, returnable in eight days after service, issued at the instance of John Hockin and Charles Addsett, and sworn before James Hough, Clerk of the Crown, asking him to show cause why he should occupy a seat at the Council Board without a proper aldermanic qualification. Mr. Grange holds that as the statute enacts that such a writ should be issued not later than one month or six weeks after an election, and that as forty-two days have expired since his election, he is entitled to occupy his seat.

A SCHEME THAT FAILED.—Last Thursday night a Guelph butcher bought a cow from a farmer in Eramosa and drove it into Guelph to be sold. As part of a scheme for selling the cow, on entering Wyndham street he despatched his two sons ahead. When near the Western hotel they spied two cattle buyers from Toronto on the opposite side of the street. They saluted their father, asked how much he wanted for the cow. He replied $60, and they offered $58. The supposition was that this action would lead the Toronto buyers to bid an excessive price, but the scheme did not work, and the butchers and mock buyers were obliged to drive on without effecting a sale.

MISS GEDDES' CONCERT.—The concert given by Miss Geddes' pupils in St. George's Hall last evening received a due share of support, the hall being pretty well filled. Mr. Chadwick, occupied the chair, and attended to the order of the programme. Of the individual instrumental performances of the various members of the class, it is not our desire to enumerate. They certainly showed a proficiency and an amount of study that reflected much credit on the teacher. The three selections set down as the vocal part of the entertainment by the class showed a choir in miniature well balanced; also the interest taken by the young ladies in their study. The Misses Foster took an interesting part in the programme, and sang very sweetly, "Where are the Flowers?" The audience would have been pleased to have heard these young ladies oftener. The piano used, an excellent one, was furnished by Mr. H. C. Shaw, music dealer, Quebec street.

A farmer in the neighborhood of Cornwall advertises in the Freeholder a large quantity of first class hay at the "N. P." prices—$4 to $6 per ton. The fostering of manufactories at Cornwall does not seem to have helped the farmers in that vicinity.

THE IRISH DISTRESS.

The Matter again Discussed at a Public Meeting.

The Council Asked to Re-consider their Resolution—Committees Appointed to Collect.

The public meeting called by four magistrates to devise means for relieving the distressed Irish people, was held in the City Hall on Monday evening. There was a better attendance than at the former meeting held for the same purpose, the hall being fairly filled. Mr. F. J. Chadwick was called to the chair. On the platform with him were Col. Higinbotham, Messrs. J. M. Bond, Ed. O'Connor, T. Heffernan, H. Hatch, A. W. Wright, Jno. Murphy (Mount Tara) and A. Dunbar.

The chairman explained that the meeting had been called in response to a requisition presented to four Magistrates in the city. It was strange that when the citizens wanted to have a meeting they could not have it, and it was because the magistrates recognized the sovereign right of the people that they called the meeting. With reference to his reason for objecting to the grant asked at a former meeting passing the City Council, he did not think it appeared necessary to hurry the grant through so quickly. He had also objected at the Council because there was a dispute between those who were getting up the funds for Irish relief, and he had been in favour of referring the matter to the Finance Committee. They would see that he was right, for the Parnell fund had fallen through, and bankers would not accept his money. A fire brand like Mr. Parnell should not come out to a foreign country trying to raise a disturbance against the Government of his country, whatever might be his objection to it. The $500 our city was asked to give was a mere nothing as far as aiding the distressed in Ireland was concerned, but was more a mark of the city's sympathy towards the suffering.

Mr. Hatch believed the object of the meeting was to ask the Council to re-consider their objection to the $500 grant asked at a meeting a couple of weeks ago. He would like to know why the councillors should not have considered the matter on account of the petitioners being irresponsible parties. He was the mover of the resolution, and he thought the tax collectors knew he was not an irresponsible person. It was not often that Ireland was in need of aid and he thought the city should show its sympathy by granting $500.

Mr. Dunbar said since he came into the meeting he had been asked to read the following resolution moved at a former meeting by Rev. Mr. Torrance:

Moved by A. Dunbar, and resolved, that in view of the distress now existing amongst our fellow citizens in Ireland, and of the processes of famine and its attendant horrors in that portion of Her Majesty's Dominions, it behooves us in the name of Christian charity to contribute as liberally as our circumstances will allow towards the relief of the distressed people of Ireland.

He had always been opposed to the city paying illegal grants, but it was a pity the law should be adhered to in order to stay the hand of charity. Whether the country was a foreign one or not that was suffering; he thought that Christians should put their hands in their pockets and aid them. He believed the people of England were at one time starving, and in Guelph a grant was made to the Lancashire operatives. It did not look well for the persons who were favorable to that aid being given to object to the present grant. He was not altogether acquainted with the question of the Irish distress, but we had evidence enough in the newspapers of its existence. In a country where there was so little land, and where the land was in so great demand, it was easy to understand that the high rents must leave the tenants barely enough to live upon. Ireland was different from Scotland in that the people of the latter had their manufactories to depend on in the event of a failure of the crops; while in Ireland the people could not look to manufactories for relief. It was a great pity that Mr. Parnell should have come to America and complained of the treatment that Ireland received at the hands of the British Government. There was no doubt Ireland had received bad treatment, but there was no country whose case had been relieved so much within the last fifty years. It ill became Mr. Parnell to go to the United States and try to stir up antipathy against a foreign Government. He hoped that whatever course was taken at this meeting the one pursued would result in securing aid for Ireland to a greater extent than $500.

Mr. A. W. Wright, seconder of the resolution, said the audience knew the sad cause for this meeting and the object which was calling people together over the civilized world. He found from a St. John's paper that there were thousands suffering from hunger and for want of clothing and fuel in Ireland. While we were waiting to decide whether we would aid them they were starving. All over Canada aid was being granted, and surely Guelph was not going to be behindhand in respect of charity. As regarded the action of the Council in the matter of the $500 grant asked, that body was elected to watch the interests of the town, and he was not here to condemn their actions, but had he been in their place the matter would have been decided differently. It was a proud thing for Canada to say they were aiding the Irish distressed. Our County Council had granted $500 without being asked for it. Grants were being made all over Canada, and the Dominion Parliament would no doubt handsomely supplement the sum raised in Canada for aid to Ireland. Mr. Dunbar had touched on one of the causes of the distress. In Ireland the people had not the manufactures or diversity of employment, and if the potatoe crop failed starvation followed. A representative man in Guelph, and one who to a certain extent represented the opinion of the people, had said the cause of distress was drunkenness and riotousness. The Irishman who could stand in the hour of his country's distress and say that of his country was a black-hearted Irishman. The people who were starving were not vicious people, but were the sons and daughters of men who had fought the battles of Britain. Many of our best citizens came from Ireland, and if we were to pay a tenth of the benefit received from one Irishman, Thomas D'Arcy McGee, we would give liberally. He trusted we would be able to send a sum that would redound to the credit of our city.

The resolution was then passed.

Col. Higinbotham would simply state that he moved the following resolution, in consequence of the decision of the City Council on the $500 grant to Ireland asked at a former meeting. He was not here for the purpose of condemning the gentlemen who differed from him in opinion on that question. He regretted that some expressions reflecting on Irishmen had been made use of at the Council Board. Some of the Aldermen had advocated sending flour and provisions instead of $500 cash, but he had yet to learn what advantage that would be to us. The speaker then moved the following resolution:—

That this meeting is of opinion that a fund should be raised to be sent to the distressed people of Ireland, and that the following gentlemen be requested to act as collectors:

St. Patrick's Ward—D. Coffee, A. Dunbar, Walter Laing and P. Conway.

St. George's Ward—Col. Higinbotham, Wm. S. Heffernan, J. M. Bond and T. J. Day.

St. John's Ward—James Mays, sr., Thomas Goldie, Wm. Hearn, J. E. McElderry.

St. David's Ward—Wm. Hart, Scott Elliott, D. O'Connor and J. C. Chadwick.

St. Andrew's Ward—E. O'Connor, H. Hatch, F. Gauhan, Jno Roche.

St. James Ward—J. P. McMillan, John Lamprey, George Grange and J. McAstocker.

Mr. Murphy had pleasure in seconding the resolution. He hoped the people of Guelph would be liberal towards their starving fellow-creatures in Ireland, and resist the insult given the petitioners who asked for the $500 grant by the council. He hoped the gentlemen who had objected to the council giving a grant would be asked to subscribe personally, and he was satisfied they would do so.

Mr. Hatch was under the impression that the council was to be asked to re-consider their decision on the $500 grant. He moved in effect that the City Council be asked to re-consider the matter.

Mr. Geo. Hood, seconder of the resolution, contended that $1,000 from the city of Guelph would be more thought of than $2,000 raised by subscription. He thought if the matter was referred to the council again they would carry the grant. Afterwards the proposed committees could collect in the different wards.

Col. Higinbotham asked the meeting not to disperse without carrying his resolution.

Mr. Hatch's resolution was put first and carried.

Col. Higinbotham's resolution was afterwards carried.

Moved by Mr F. O'Connor that Mr. John Harvey, City Treasurer, be requested to act as treasurer for the funds collected, and that he forward the same to the Lord Mayor of Dublin.

Mr. O'Connor said a few words in support of the resolution and was sure that Providence would bless those who aided in so worthy an object.

Mr. J. M. Bond seconded the resolution.

It was then unanimously carried.

Mr. Chadwick having left the chair he was tendered a vote of thanks, which was acknowledged, after which the meeting dispersed.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

PREPARING FOR THE INQUEST.

LUCAN, FEB. 16.

The prisoners James Carroll, Thomas Ryder, and John Purtell, who were implicated by the evidence of Johnny Connors, will be present at the investigation in charge of the London police, and will have an opportunity of cross-questioning the witnesses already sworn, as well as those yet to be examined. They will be represented by Mr. Hugh Macmahon, Q. C. From all that can be heard in official circles the names of others of the alleged murderers will be disclosed on Wednesday, in which case a further adjournment will be probably necessary.

Judging by what is seen and heard, the chain of evidence against certain of the prisoners is becoming stronger and more closely connected, while at the same time further enquires have convinced the authorities that they have got hold of some innocent parties. Acting on this conviction they to-day released Michael Heenan from custody. There was no evidence to connect him with the killing of the Donnellys. Heenan took his discharge as a matter of course, and left the Police Court with his face wreathed in smiles. Heenan acknowledged being a member of the Vigilance Committee. It was evident from two or three words he let drop that the Committee was specially organized to put down the depredations of the Donnellys, for whom it bore a strong and growing hatred. In answer to the question as to whether the people of Biddulph knew who committed the murder, Heenan said, "How should they know? But the Vigilance Committee are blamed for it." At this stage in conversation a friend of his came up and gave him the nod not to say any more, and the interview ended.

The reprint of the Edinburgh Review for January has lately been issued by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay St., N. Y. The article entitled "Agricultural Depression" admits that the agriculture of England is passing through a crisis of unprecedented severity, and discusses its causes and effects under the heads of foreign competition, the land laws, and the relations of landlords and tenants. The article "Ireland, her Present and her Future," calmly discusses the schemes which have been proposed to remedy the present condition of Ireland, and indicates the chief means by which her progress is likely to be assured. "Hamerton's Life of Turner" is a favorable review of a work that will be welcome to those admirers of the great painter who will not allow their enthusiasm to make them unreasonable. "British Lighthouses" gives a history of the building of some of the more celebrated lighthouses, methods of lighting, and suggested improvement, especially in the manner of signalling with short flashes.

The orther articles are "Military Relations of Russia and England," which takes up the ever-recurring theme of Russian advances into Central Asia, and describes the country and the possibilities of an invasion; "The Persian Miracle Play;" "Russia before and after the War;" "Lord Minto in India;" and "Plain Whig Principles." Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.—Ed., NEWS.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB . 1880

Mr. Blake's Reappearance in the House.

Hon. Mr. Blake received what may almost be termed an enthusiastic weclome on his introduction to the House of Commons. Nor were the demonstrations confined to one side of the House, for the Premier himself joined in the applause which greeted the great Liberal on his return to his natural place in the council of the nation. His speech on the Address has caused unmistakable uneasiness in Ministerial ranks. His whole argument went to show that last session the Ministry supported their policy for pushing on the Pacific Railway by the statement that the Imperial Government were going to assist in the construction, and that the authority granted to the Government last session was based entirely on the strength of that pledge from the Premier. He thought that they had a right to suppose that the Imperial Government had refused assistance as the people had not been informed of the success of the mission in that particular. In condemning the manner in which the country was being plunged in debt for the road west of Manitoba, simply that the Government could secure the assistance that the expenditure of large sums of public money would give to retain control of the country, it was evident from the manner of Sir Leonard and Sir Charles that they touched a tender spot, as their uneasiness was noticeable. Sir John was absent, and no one attempted to reply to what was regarded as one of the most forcible and convincing speeches ever delivered there. Conservative members confidentially admit this morning that the country cannot stand the heavy drain on the resources that will be necessary to carry the Pacific Railway over the Rocky Mountains and through British Columbia.

The Fishery Dispute.

Speaking of the correspondence that has taken place lately between the British and American Governments in regard to the Fishery question, the Weekly Notes, a Philadelphia paper says: "We see in these circumstances an urgent reason for some general readjustment of the relations of the two countries, which shall provide us with a permanent settlement of the Fishery question, without requiring any more Commissions and their pettifoggery. And such a solution we see in the plan of a Customs or Commercial Union, by which, after the adoption of a common tariff, each country shall extend to the citizens of the other all the commercial advantages which accrue to its own people. Such an arrangement would be of especial advantage to the Seaboard Provinces, which are interested in the Fisheries. It would give them a perpetual and free access to our markets for coal, fish and lumber, besides opening our immense coasting trade to their vessels. Nove Scotia, with its natural advantages of soil, coast and climate, would no longer see its people flocking to cold and barren Massachusetts, but would become the rich and prosperous country which Providence meant it be.'

MR. ANGERS' majority in Montmorenci is 358. There can be no doubt that this large majority is due to corrupt practices. It is learned that a young man from Montmorenci, who has a vote there, and whose father is a messenger in the Senate and is also a voter in Montmorenci, applied to the Government for employment a few days ago. He was told that after he returned to his home and voted for Mr. Angers his application would be entertained. The young man went, voted, and has returned to Ottawa for his reward. His father, the Senate messenger, was given leave of absence to vote for Angers. If the election is protested these two persons can be placed in the box, and also the person who sent them to Montmorenci. That person is said to be the hero of the $32,000 affair—otherwise Mr. Langevin.

THE action of Mr. Hooper, M. P., for Lennox, in taking his seat in the House, is much commented upon. Mr. Hooper was treasurer of the county he represented but is not now, and the auditors who examined the books placed his defalcation at $35,000. His persistence in holding on to the seat under existing circumstances is an insult to the electors of Lennox, and the wonder is they have not called upon him to resign ere this. Evidently Mr. Hooper is a brazen-faced man and no credit to the party to which he belongs. But his sins are not so great as those of his leaders whom he was evidently trying to imitate.

SPEAKER MACPHERSON, of the Senate, is improving, but it is not probable, even though this improvement continues, that the hon. gentleman will be able to discharge his official duties for many weeks to come; hence it will be necessary for him to resign and another Speaker be appointed until his recovery. There is no constitutional provision for the appointment of a Speaker pro tem., and the only thing that can be done is to issue a commission appointing a new Speaker and issue another appointing Mr. MacPherson when he has recovered. In the present circumstances, therefore, the Hon. Mr. Bottsford, of New Brunswick, has been appointed Speaker, and it is believed he will retain the position permenently.

THE return of Mr. Abbott for Argenteuil is to be contested. It is stated that in one polling district ninety fraudulent votes were recorded for him, and the workmen employed on the Carillon Canal were obliged to mark their ballots in the presence of the contractor.

Will somebody assassinate Vennor? Writing on the 10th inst., he said: The week commencing Sunday the 15th, looks particularly forbidding for Ontario and the Western States; while the 12th and 13th days, this week, are situated in a stormy curve of the weather line. As far back as the 20th of September last I forecast for February cold and stormy weather.

The upset of the vehicle in which was His Excellency, Her Royal Highness, Lady Langham and Col. McNeil, was caused by the coachman turning the corner too quickly after leaving the Rideau Hall grounds, one of the runners running upon a snowbank. It is remarkable the occupants escaped without more injury, and it can only be accounted for in the fact that the sleigh, which was a covered one, was of heavy and strong build.

On Monday the ladies of the Hotel Dieu, Montreal, celebrated the 230th anniversary of the foundation of their hospital.

A train of twelve heavily laden cars was safely hauled across the ice bridge to Longueuil on Monday, the most severe test yet applied.

The list of articles which each agricultural instructor to the Indians in the North-West was commissioned to purchase is very amusing. Besides several thousand pounds of flour, pork, sugar, tea, &c., they each received over three hundred separate articles, embracing everything from a grindstone down to gimlets and corkscrews, and even Epsom salts.

Mr. Bagot was much hurt in his fight with the unruly horses which ran away with the Vice-Regal sleigh.

THE RECENT ROBBERY IN GEORGETOWN.—Last week Edward McDonald, Alfred Fletcher and John McGrath were arraigned before His Honor Judge Miller, charged with having commitied the robbery at McLeod, Anderson & Co.'s dry goods store in Georgetown, on the night of the 22nd January last. Detectives Brown and Hodgins arrested the prisoners in Toronto on the 1st February, and found on them silk handkerchiefs which were shown to be similar to those stolen. They had also given like handkerchiefs to women at the house where they stayed. A girl from this place testified that the prisoners were there on the night of the burglary. The case was remanded for evidence as to the identity of McDonald and Fletcher. McGrath was discharged.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The losses of British farmers for the past year are estimated at £100,000,000 to £150,000,000.

The British Government resolved yesterday to increase the advance for Ireland from £500,000 to £750,000.

The Guardian reports that serious complication has arisen between England and Persia regarding Herat.

In the House of Commons Sir Stafford Northcote announced that the Government would make an advance for Ireland of £750,000, instead of £500,000, as originally intended. Synan's amendment to the Irish Relief Bill was rejected by a vote of 126 to 34.

It is said to be a fact that a steam engine is being erected in a flour mill in Jerusalem. The two men arrested on suspicion of attempting the life of Arthur Creagh, magistrate of Carrahan, (County Clare), Ireland, by shooting at him in his own house through a window, have been discharged from custody, the evidence against them being insufficient.

The Duchess of Marlborough, in a letter to the Lord Mayor, says the danger of famine appears over. If the charity of the public continues to be exercised no person in Ireland need be allowed to die for lack of food; but the Committee to bring their labours to a successful close must spend over £40,000 per week for six weeks more.

A Dublin correspondent of the Times confirms the report that no fears are now felt that anybody will die in Ireland of starvation, but there are some very sad exceptions to general improvement. Severe distress is felt in many places, and there is considerable suffering among small farmers in Ulster, who are too proud to complain. Fever has appeared in some districts in the south in consequence of the destitution. Relief has been given, but late and not suited to the sufferers.

The railroad train from Andalusia, bound from Madrid, carrying the Government treasure chest, under the charge of five gendarmes, was stopped on Monday by sixteen brigands between Alcasera and Argamasilla. BY-LAWS AND LICENSES.

Ald. MacMillan, presented the report of this committee. The report recommended that the prayer of Thos. Ellis, F.W. Stone and others, asking for a reduction of tavern license from $80 to $30 be granted. It recommended that the number of taverns and saloons be limited to 20, and shops to 12. The report spoke highly of the state in which the hotels were kept, the ample accommodation which they afforded, and the efforts made by the hotel keepers to keep their houses orderly, which was a credit to themselves and also to the city.

Moved by Messrs. Chadwick and Coffee that the Council adjourn till to-morrow evening at half-past seven o'clock. Lost.

The adoption of the License and By-laws Committee report was moved and seconded.

Several of the Aldermen interested in the public meeting being held to discuss the Irish relief question, having adjourned to the city hall, a number of the members thought that it would be better to adjourn, and not discuss the report of the Licence and By-law Committee until a full meeting of the Council, on which Ald. Biscoe made the following motion to test the feeling of the Council.

Moved in amendment by Aldermen Biscoe and Hart, that the matter be left over for an adjourned meeting till to-morrow night at the usual hour.

The vote was a tie and the Mayor gave his casting vote against the amendment.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the report of the By-law and License Committee, Ald. Fairbank in the chair.

Considerable discussion arose over the adoption of the first clause of the report, which recommended the reduction of licenses from $180 to $130—$100 of which goes to the Government.

Ald. MacMillan strongly upheld the reduction of $50, and showed from communications that he had received that the hotel keepers of Guelph paid more for their licenses than most of the other cities in the Province, five of which he had communicated with and found that they paid far less than the hotel keepers of this city. He could not see any good reason why the hotel keepers of Guelph should have to pay more than those of other cities.

Ald. Stevenson testified to the fact that we had an excellent and gentlemanly lot of hotel keepers, but he considered that they were able to pay the present amount of license, seeing that the hotels were restricted to a certain number, thus giving them a monopoly of the trade. He thought this was a wise thing of a previous Council to do, as they had a better class of hotel keepers and the houses were well and orderly kept.

Ald. McLagan was prepared to meet the hotel keepers to a certain extent, but he would not go in for a sweeping reduction such as proposed in the report. From $80 to $30 would make a reduction in the revenues of the city of some $1,350 for the 17 hotel licenses granted.

Ald. Tyson was opposed to high taxation, and he thought this was taxation, and an unjust one, for hotel keepers to have to pay so much for their licenses.

Ald. Gowdy said that Ald. MacMillan in his statements had failed to show how many licenses were granted in the places which he had had reference to. In some of the places he thought that the licenses granted were two to one of that granted by this city. When they were limited such as they were here, he considered that the hotel keepers could afford to pay more for their licenses. If the licenses were reduced shop licenses could be secured, which would create a number of low liquor houses. He thought it was better to keep them at a respectable figure.

The Mayor stated that the hotel keepers had been oppressed by the license fee. He knew this from business transactions which brought him in contact with them, and gave him an opportunity of forming an opinion. He thought that a reduction should be made.

Ald. Robertson thought that the taverns ought to be reduced, and the licenses kept at the same figure.

Ald. Coffee was glad to hear the expressions in favor of the hotel keepers around the Council Board. He had not the least doubt that many of them had hard work to get along. He knew the difficulties they had to contend with, and was prepared to vote for a reduction.

In the five cities referred to Ald. Biscoe found that the average license paid for taverns was $127, and for shops $125. This certainly spoke for itself and a medium between the two he considered would be a fair thing.

Moved in amendment by Ald. McLagan and Hewer, that the report be amended by placing $50 instead of $30 as the amount to be charged for tavern and shop licenses during the year.

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Ald. Coffee and Lamprey, that $40 be substituted instead of $50.

Ald. McLagan said that he saw no reason why the hotel keepers had a better right to be exempt from taxation more than a dry goods merchant. If the Council made concession to one they had to do it to all. The running expenses of the city had to be provided for. The money had to be raised. In his opinion that class of people were better able to pay for that sum than if it were to be taxed on the poor working man, who in many cases only earned his 40 or 50 cents a day. He considered they had good reason to be satisfied with the reduction embodied in his amendment, as it was more than they had any reason to expect.

Ald. Doran thought that some concession ought to be made, seeing that the city had cheated them, as it were, out of $20 last year.

Ald. McLagan's amendment, substituting $50 for $30, was carried.

The Committee rose and the report as amended was adopted.

BY-LAWS.

The Council went into Committee of the whole on the By-law, regulating tavern and shop licenses, Ald. Coffee in the chair.

The Committee rose and reported the blanks filled up, when the By-law was read a third time and passed.

The by-law fixes the number of hotels not to exceed twenty; the number of shop licenses not to exceed twelve. The sum to be paid in addition to the $100 fixed by Government Statute, shall be for tavern and saloon $50, for a shop license $50.

Clause six of the by-law states—Every applicant for a tavern license shall have in the house for which a license is sought not less than 6 bedrooms, with one clean and comfortable bed in each, and suitably furnished for travellers, over and above those required for the family, and shall have a commodious room suitably furnished, separate from the bar, for the accomodation of travellers, and he shall have stabling for at least twelve horses, and shed and shelter for at least six vehicles.

Ald. Chadwick read the resolution passed at the public meeting, held in the City Hall during the evening, which asked the Council to reconsider the vote passed at a previous meeting of Council, for a grant of $500 to the Irish Relief Fund. The matter was laid over till next meeting of Council.

Leave of absence for two months was granted Ald. Biscoe, as he was about to leave for Europe in a few days.

Moved by Ald. Hewer, and McLagan, that the Park and Shade Trees Committe be empowered to employ a competent man to look after the trees in the Exhibition Grounds and other places in the City.—Withdrawn.

The Council went into Committee of the whole on the report of the reply to the Mayor's address, Ald. Chadwick in the chair.

The report was adopted.

On motion of Ald. McMillan and Lamprey, leave was granted to introduce a by-law to restrain, and regulate the running at large of dogs in the City. The by-law was read a first time.

A petition was read from Mrs. Newth, asking for a remission of taxes, she being sick.

The Council then adjourned.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.—Ed.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.

Mr. Colby introduced a Bill to repeal the Acts respecting Insolvency, which was read a first time.

Mr. Bechard introduced a similar Bill. (Laughter.) It was also read a first time.

Mr. Colby introduced a Bill to amend the law regulating the inspection of petroleum and the products thereof.

Mr. Mackenzie asked for an explanation.

Mr. Colby said the object was to amend that portion of the law respecting the fire test. There was now one test for foreign and another for domestic oils. The Bill provided for uniformity.

The Bill was read a first time.

Mr. Girouard introduced a Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister, which was read a first time.

Sir John Macdonald presented a Message from His Excellency transmitting the causes assigned by the Privy Council for the removal of the late Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.

Mr. Mackenzie observed that a despatch from here published during the recess, and one from England were not included in these papers. He asked if the Government would bring these papers down without motion.

Sir John Macdonald—Certainly, I will have all the papers brought down relating to the matter.

Mr. Cockburn (Muskoka) asked whether it is the intention of the Government to aid by way of subsidy or otherwise the construction of the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway between Gravenhurst and some point on the line of the Canada Central or Canada Pacific Railway.

Sir Charles Tupper—I am very much afraid it will not be in the power of the Government to give aid by way of subsidy or otherwise to the railway in question.

Mr. Ross (Middlesex) asked whether the Government have engaged counsel to argue the constitutionality of the Temperance Act of 1878 before the Supreme Court, and if so whom?

Mr. Langevin replied that the Government had engaged Mr. Christopher Robinson for that purpose, and the argument would be held on 7th of June next.

Mr. Blake asked whether the contracts for the construction of 127 miles of railway in British Columbia have been executed by both the Government and the contractors, and if so on what day; whether such contracts will be laid on the table at an early day, and whether they or any of them are made subject to the sanction of the House.

Sir Charles Tupper—I beg to say that the contracts have been entered into for the construction of 127 miles of railway in British Columbia. They have been executed by both the Government and the contractors. I don't remember the date, but that will appear from the copies of the tenders themselves, which will be laid upon the table to-day. They are not made subject to the sanction of the House, but under the authority of the House given last session

Mr. Blake asked whether there is any correspondence with the Imperial Government on the subject of the appointment of a permanent representative of Canada in London, and whether any such correspondence will be laid on the table at an early day.

Sir John Macdonald—I would answer that there is a correspondence upon this subject, but it is not yet completed; but I believe it will be completed at an early day, and as soon as it is completed it will be laid before the House.

Mr. Blake asked whether in view of the recent developments as to the practices which the contract for the printing of Parliament was procured the Government intend to propose to Parliament any steps to remedy the injurious consequences to the public of such practices in the present instance, and to prevent their repetition in future.

Sir John Macdonald—I would answer that it is the intention of the Government to ask for a re-appointment of the members of the Printing Committee of last year, and they will be specially requested by a motion made in this House to enquire into the recent developments (laughter)—to use the language of the question, and to report upon the best means to prevent a repetition of such developments in the future.

Mr. Blake—I hope that the hon. gentleman will be a member of the Committee. (Cheers and laughter.)

Mr. Blake asked whether it is the intention of the Government during the present session to propose a measure ratifying the award on the subject of the boundary between Canada and Ontario.

Sir John Macdonald—It is not the present intention of the Government to propose any such measure.

Mr. Caron moved for papers and correspondence between the Imperial Government and the Government of Canada in reference to the admission of cattle from the United States into Canada and from Canada into England. Carried.

Mr. Mackenzie moved for the reports of Mr. C.S. Gzowski or other engineers, correspondence, and Orders in Council on the subject of bridging the St. Lawrence near Coteau du Lac.

Mr. Mackenzie moved for the printing of the return of last session relative to the contract of R. P. Cooke & Co., on the Carillon works.

Mr. Mackenzie moved for copies of all tenders for works on the Pacific Railway since January 1879.

Sir Richard Cartwright moved for a return of the exports and imports also several other returns.

Mr. Mills moved a resolution declaring it desirable that the people of Manitoba and the North-West Territories be permitted to import cows and oxen from the United States.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress making Department. The numerous orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade. Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

WELLINGTON VETERINARY INFIRMARY

No. 166 Quebec Street, Guelph

Owing to the increased demand for the proper and careful treatment so essential to valuable Live Stock, I have established a Veterinary Infirmary or Stock Hospital, which is fitted with large, comfortable, airy, loose boxes and other modern improvements, for the treatment of sick and lame horses and other animals. Also a convenient room for the performance of various operations.

To meet the steady increase of practice, I have engaged the professional services of Mr. F. C. Grenside, V. S., Ont., as assistant.

N. B.—Persons having unthrifty horses should bring them to the Infirmary to have their teeth examined by my new process, as they are often the source of evil.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4d w9md

REV. DR. ORMISTON.—Favorable reports have been received from the Rev. Dr. Ormiston, late of Hamilton, who is sojourning in the highland regions of northeastern Georgia for the benefit of his health. He is gaining strength rapidly, and there is every reason to hope that next month he will be able to resume his labors in New York.

It is rumoured that the Grand Trunk Railway purpose making Kingston a railway centre, and removing their workshop to that city from Montreal.

The failure of John Brown, tea merchant, New York, has been announced. This gentleman, was formerly of the firm of Kerr, Brown & Co., of Hamilton, and was very extensively known. A few years ago he removed to New York, where he commenced a tea jobbing business, selling mainly to retail merchants throughout Canada, employing quite a large number of travellers, and pushing business very energetically.

FIVE AT A BIRTH.—Under the beneficial influence of the N. P., Mrs. Adam Murray, of Egypt, near New Glasgow, N. S., gave birth to five children—three girls and two boys—on Monday morning. Unfortunately, four of them died last evening. They were well formed—the smallest thirteen inches and the largest sixteen inches and a quarter long. The surviving one is doing very well. The mother is a great deal better than could be expected. She is one of eighteen her mother having twins three times.

Attempt to Kill the Russian Imperial Family.

A Mine Laid Under the Winter Palace.

ST. PETERSBURG, FEB. 18.—There has been an abortive attempt to kill the Imperial family by laying a mine in the Winter Palace. Five soldiers were killed, and thirty-five wounded. The mine was laid under the guardroom of the palace, which is immediately under the dining hall. Owing to an accidental delay the Imperial family had not entered the latter at the usual time. The explosion made a hole in the floor of the dining hall ten feet long by six feet wide.

The explosion ocurred at just about the usual dinner hour of the Imperial family.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

PREPARING FOR THE INQUEST.

LUCAN, FEB. 17.

The police officers were here to-day and will return to-morrow with the prisoners James Carroll, Thomas Ryder, and John Purtell, who were implicated by Johnny Connors' evidence. Carroll's brother William will also be of the party. It is understood that he is to be called as a witness for the defence. It is just probable that Coroner Hossack may not be able to proceed with the investigation to-morrow, as he has been suffering from a severe cold. The prevailing opinion is that the jury will return an open verdict implicating nobody. Bill Donnelly to-day received two anonymous letters, one being of a very threatening nature, while the other tendered him advice as to the course he should pursue in the future. Donnelly is still in bed, the sufferings and fatigues of the past two weeks having completely prostrated him. Patrick Donnelly went to London to-night, but will return to-morrow.

CAUTION.—A person signing himself "Wood Hauler" writes as follows to men engaged in the same business as himself: —When you deliver wood be sure to have it measured by some responsible person, as some people in the city make a practice of disputing about the quantity of wood after it is delivered. They will not pay for the wood unless they have the measurement their own way. They have no right to act this way after a man offers to measure it in their presence.

ASSAULTING THE POLICE.—It will be remembered that about eighteen months ago Mr. Turner, then a policeman, was seriously assaulted while trying to make an arrest among a crowd who were creating a disturbance on Wyndham street. Some in the crowd threw a stone at the policeman, inflicting a severe wound on his head, which compelled him to take to his bed for two weeks. Immediately after the assault Wm. Keleher, who was suspected of committing it, decamped. The police lost track of him for a time, but sometime ago learned that he was working in Brampton. Arrangements were in progress for his arrest, when a few days ago he came to Guelph, and went to live and work with Mr. Matthews in his broom factory, over the Dundas Bridge. He was arrested there this (Wednesday) morning by Chief McMillan and lodged in the police cells. At the Police Court the prisoner elected to be tried by the Police Magistrate and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded till Friday, by which time Mr. Turner can be present to give his evidence. Bail was granted, the prisoner being bound in the sum of $400, and two other sureties of $200 each, for his appearance on that day.

Mr. Thos. Carling, sr., father of Hon. John Carling, M. P., for London, died on Tuesday at the age of 83 years. He was born in Yorkshire, and came to that district in 1818, when London was a bush.

It is asserted that the United States Government has purchased, or is about to purchase, a pair of coaling and naval stations in Central America, with, it is hinted, the object of establishing a new canal route.

The suspension is announced of Messrs. T. Bickle & Son, wholesale druggists, Hamilton.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

LATEST FROM LUCAN.

The Coroner's Inquest Postponed for a Week.

THE INTEREST TAKEN IN THE CASE.

The Prisoners Taken Back Again to London.

LUCAN, Ont., Feb. 18.—The village is crowded with spectators in from the settlement. They are here from all other portions of the township, as well as the disturbed district. The Crown Attorney and Mr. McMahon, counsel for the defence, arrived here by the early train this morning. Chief Williams and Mr. E. Meredith, having in charge Mrs. Connors and the boy Johnny, arrived at ten a. m., as also Detectives Phair, Murphy, Pope and two or three constables, having the the prisoners Carrol, Ryder, and Purtell in charge, arrived about the same hour. They came by road in conveyances, and immediately drove to the Central Hotel. All the public resorts are crowded with parties awaiting the appearance of the coroner. The Coroner was interviewed by Messrs. Hutchinson and McMahon, and he stated to them that it would be impossible for him to attend or preside at the inquest to-day. That it was imperative the jury should repair to his bedside, in order to postpone some future day. Thus matters stand at this hour. William Donnelly is also much worse this morning, and in case the investigation did go on he certainly would not be able to attend. One of the jurymen is also ill. He has not been out of doors for a week, and doubts are entertained that he also would be unable to attend, but without him there would be still twelve men left to hear the case. The jury in charge of the constable has just passed the office door on their way to the Coroner's residence, for the purpose of having a postponement.

11:50 a.m.—The inquest has been postponed until Tuesday next, the 24th inst, to meet at 10 o'clock a. m., with the intention to continue sitting until closed. One of the press gentlemen belonging to the Mail staff addressed the jury in presence of the Coroner and constable while they were assembled for the purpose of adjournment, and stated that the Crown Attorney's object in obtaining a postponment was to run up a bill of costs, that he was somewhat of a docter himself, and knew the Coronor was not sick enough to postpone to any further day than Friday next. He stated to the jury that they were spending their time without pay, whilst all other officials were being well remunerated and wished them to insist on a speedy termination of the proceedings of this Court. He was called to order by the Coroner, which suddenly put a stop to a somewhat amusing scene. The prisoners all look as if their confinement agreed with them, none of that downcast appearance which some reports attributed to them, while in jail. They are confined in a close room in the Central Hotel, and a number of their friends and relatives were allowed in to see them, but the general public was denied admittance. They seem in cheerful spirits, and evidently think lightly of the evidence adduced against them. After being furnished with refreshments they will be conveyed back to London this afternoon. Johnny Connors and his mother also returned to London in charge of Chief Williams. The boy, although born here and raised in the village, was as much of a curiosity when he alighted from the conveyance this morning, especially among his juvenile companions, as if he was a recent importation from Zululand, so great was their anxiety to gather round him to get a recital of his adventures in the city.

1:30 p. m.—The prisoners have this moment started on their journey to London. A crowd of some hundreds assembled around the Central Hotel to see them off. It is singular the amount of eagerness displayed by the people to get a glimpse of them as they took seats in the conveyances.

Fire at Port Hope.

Cabinet Factory Burned.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 18.—About 2.45 this morning fire was discovered issuing from the cabinet and furniture factory of Mr. John Walker, one of the town councillors. When first seen the fire had got considerable headway, but the fire brigade was shortly on the ground, and after working hard for a considerable length of time had the satisfaction of seeing the flames succumb to their strenuous efforts. The entire east end of the building inside is burned through, and the stock, consisting of chairs, &c., was rendered totally useless. All the machinery in the building is soaked with water, but the damage to it will not be great. The loss will be about $2,000; no insurance.

An old farmer near Ottawa, on Tuesday, deposited in one of the savings banks 800 sovereigns which he has kept for the past sixteen years in a stocking hidden in the rafters of his house. His son, finding it, induced him to put it at interest.

Robbery at Markdale.

A Store Entered and $300 Taken.

MARKDALE, Ont., Feb. 18.—About two or three o'clock this morning W. J. MacFarland's store, of this place, was entered by burglers who stole goods to the value of $300.

From Toronto.

Legislative Assembly.

TORONTO, FEB. 18—It was expected that another heavy debate would have taken place in the Public Accounts Committee this morning, as the Hon. Frank Smith and his partner were expected to give evidence with reference to the wine bills of the Chicora trip of Sandfield's Government, but owing to some mistake in sending summons they were not present, and the Committee adjourned until to-morrow.

TORONTO, FEB. 18.—The Irish Societies will hold a joint meeting next week to arrange for the reception of Mr. Parnell. His Worship the Mayor, will have nothing to do with the reception, either officially or otherwise, and none of the leading men in the city will take part in the affair. The city Irish relief committee have remitted 200 pounds to Dublin Mansion House. The collections in the Catholic churches last Sunday amounted to $1,000.

Local News.

IT was the Imperial Bank that bought for British capitalists $25,000 of Guelph city 20 year debentures (6. p. c.) at 101½.

Guelph Pork Packing House, opposite the Royal Hotel, have started operations again and are selling fresh pork cuttings at wonderfully low prices. Call and see. d1

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Fresh to brisk winds, shifting to west and northwest. Decidedly colder weather, with showers today followed by snow flurries to-night. Fair, cold weather to-morrow.

QUARRIES PURCHASED.—Messrs. Pike & Son have purchased Emslie's quarry on the Waterloo Road and will start to work in it at once.

In a paragraph yesterday with reference to the Emerald Beneficial Association, it should have been stated that Judge McKenzie granted the application to have the Association incorporated.

DRUNKENNESS.—Richard Leader, an inebriate, was found lying drunk on Macdonnell street yesterday afternoon and taken to the cells. Being his first appearance at the Police Court, he was discharged.

FIRE BRIGADE.—There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of the Fire Brigade, held last night. After the roll-call the members examined the apparatus of the department, which was found to be in good order,

A BOGUS CENSUS TAKER.—The police have been informed of irregular actions on the part of an agent who has been selling polish for plated ware. On calling at several places he represented that he was taking the census of the city, and after gaining admittance began to press the sale of his polish. His actions at different houses have frightened the occupants, hence the complaint to the police.

THE LANCASHIRE RELIEF FUND.—Mr. Dunbar in his speech at the meeting on Monday night on the relief of the Irish distress, referred to a grant made for the relief of the Lancashire operatives in 1862. Mr. George Elliott requests us to say that no grant was made at that time by the Council for this purpose. A public meeting was held to consider what would be done. That meeting decided to raise subscriptions in the town, collectors were appointed for each Ward, and Mr. Elliott was appointed treasurer. The result was that $817 were collected from 330 subscribers, and this amount was sent to the Lord Mayor of London. The Council had nothing whatever to do with the matter.

LECTURE IN CHALMERS' CHURCH.—Last evening Rev. Jno. Thomson, M. A., of Ayr, delivered a lecture on "Music" in Chalmers' Church. The lecture was listened to by an appreciative audience. Even those parts of it which were rather recondite for the average hearer were replete with interest for those who possessed some knowledge of the elements of music. Mr. Thomson, who is an accomplished musician, evinced a thorough mastery of the parts of acoustics, harmony and melody. Appropriate pieces of music for the illustration of the lecture were introduced from time to time in the course of the evening. These pieces were for the most part given by the choir. The solos by Mr. Maitland and Miss Stewart were well given and well received. Miss Cossitt rendered effective service in such instrumental pieces as "The Dead March in Saul," "Wedding March," &c. Mr. Thomson himself occasionally sang a line or a verse, showing what he might have done had he been taking part in a concert instead of giving a lecture. A hearty vote of thanks was in motion of Mr. Melvin, seconded by Rev. J. B. Mullan, and supported by Rev. J. C. Smith, tendered to Mr. Thomson. In moving the vote Mr. Melvin suggested that Mr. Thomson might gratify the audience by singing "They're a' well at hame." Mr. Thomson, to the delight of the audience, acted on the hint thus thrown out. The audience then dispersed.

RAPID CITY ENTERPRISE.—We have received the first number of this paper, which is published in Rapid City, on the Little Saskatchewan River, 150 miles west of Winnipeg. The publication of a newspaper in a region which, only two years since, was entirely uninhabited, and the solitude of whose prairies was only disturbed by the passing Indian or the roving buffalo, may justly be claimed as an Enterprise truly characteristic of the rapid growth of our great North-West. The Enterprise, considering the circumstances, is remarkably well got up, and under the management of Messrs. Pim & Carruthers, who are practical newspaper men, we have no doubt the paper will have a successful career, and be of valuable service to the settlers in that district. We wish it and the publishers every success.

New Live Stock Car.

An Ingenious Guelphite Displays His Inventive Powers.

At the last meeting of the American Humane Association, held in Chicago in October, 1879, resolutions were adopted offering a reward of $5,000 to the person who would invent the best live stock car, which would lessen the sufferings of cattle in transportation by rail. Thomas Williams, who has a shop on the West Market Square, and sharpens saws, skates etc., bethought himself of the happy idea of making a stroke for the reward, and set his brain to work to contrive a car to meet the views of the Humane Society. He worked with a will, and has constructed a model which is ingenious and complete, and will be shipped to Boston to-day (Wednesday), where it will be judged on its merits.

The model is built on a scale of ¾ inch to the foot and shows two plans of a live stock car. In both the principle is the same, the difference being in construction. The idea is to water the animals from a tank 15 inches wide, 12 inches deep, and the length of the car—28 feet. This tank is in the centre, and immediately under the roof of the car. At one end there is a sliding lid covering a tap in a pipe leading to troughs which are fixed to the sides of the car inside. It is capable of holding 100 gallons of water, or two day's supply for 28 cattle or 100 hogs, which are the usual numbers to the car load. The fact that this plan would be impracticable in winter on account of frost has not been overlooked. In winter it is proposed to place flues on the outside of the car and connect them by pipes to the troughs inside. The water supply may then be obtained from tanks along the railroad, in the same way that locomotives are supplied.

As already stated there are two systems of construction. In both the food is stored at the top of the car. The best, because the most practicable, may be described first. A trough, wedge-shaped and widening towards the edge of the car, extends from end to end. It is divided into several compartments shaped somewhat like hoppers. At the bottom of each there is a "pork hole" leading to a pipe which extends to the troughs inside the car. When this is filled the grain is held from descending by a slide. This slide is connected by a chain, rod or rope to a lever fixed near the brake wheel, and when the lever is moved the grain is allowed to descend. By means of a second lever near the brake wheel, the lid of the trough inside the car is raised, allowing the cattle to feed. The trough on top is covered by a number of lids which slope and open towards the side of the car and are easily handled. It is capable of holding 100 gallons of grain, which is reckoned two days' food for live stock at one feed each day. The plan for the second grain trough is less suitable, being oblong in shape and projecting above the top of the car. The objection is that snow would lodge behind it, and on melting the water would run through the roof.

It is generally known that cattle suffer greatly at present for want of proper attention while in course of transportation, and that in cases of delay, at times, they are for hours without food or water. Though it is supposed they are fed once a day, which necessitates a delay of from four to seven hours, very often they are left much longer without food. If Mr. Williams' invention is not chosen by the Humane Association, it will at all events recommend itself to them as a unique and novel arrangement.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

Two Children Break through the Ice on the River.

Two sons of Mr. John Rae, moulder, living on Perth street near the Eramosa bridge, aged respectively 2 years and 4 years, narrowly escaped drowning on Tuesday afternoon. They were sliding on the ice, which was in a rotten state, a short distance above the Eramosa Bridge. The younger of the lads broke through the ice and went down like a stone. When he rose to the surface his brother made an attempt to rescue him and he fell into the water also. Their sister Alice, aged about 14 years, being attracted by people calling to the little fellows, ran from the house and boldly across the ice at great peril to herself, to where they were. She grasped one after the other, but while trying to raise them she broke through the ice herself. By this time an excited crowd of people had collected along either shore and about the bridge, and it was feared that all three children would be drowned. The girl sank over her head once, but afterwards held on to the ice and managed to keep her brothers above water. Finally Mr. Leslie, of the Axle Works, rescued the children from their perilous position, sinking to his waist at every step he took. Though they were pretty well exhausted by the time they were landed to-day (Wednesday) they have almost recovered.

Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

Taking Possession of the Telegraph.

The fact that the telegraph offices were held in control by the Governor-General's Secretary on Saturday, introduces a new element into our system of government, and one that is not likely to find favor. This was done immediately after the accident to the Princess, for the purpose of preventing the transmission of sensational reports. The explanation made by the Ottawa Free Press softens the matter somewhat, still we think that the circumstances did not warrant such a course, as after the extent of the accident was known there no excuse for gagging the telegraph. The Free Press says—"The facts of the case are that both telegraph offices received a note from Major De Winton, to the effect that with the view of preventing any sensational reports of the accident to Her Royal Highness being transmitted, and consequent anxiety occasioned, they were requested not to forward any telegrams concerning the accident until the true report could be forwarded. The Montreal office conveyed the request to such press representatives as referred to the subject in their reports, but did not presume to prevent the transmission of news. The Dominion Company on the other hand acted on the request and refused to send any message whatever that alluded to the accident. Under the charters of these companies, Government messages take precedence of all others, and, when circumstances require, the Government has power to take possession of the lines. Nothing of this kind, we believe, was attempted, the Dominion office merely made too literal an application of the request, hence all the trouble."

THE total cost of the General Elections in 1878 was $115,279.

MR. VALLEE has given notice that he will introduce a bill in the Dominion Parliament to encourage the sale of farm produce, but he does not say how he proposes to do it.

HON. MR. MILLS has taken hold of the Ontario boundary award matter, and has given notice of a Bill on the subject. The Government will not be allowed to shirk the question.

A Ministerial caucus was held at Ottawa on Tuesday. It was generally supposed that the coal deputies would have raised the question of increasing the duty on coal, as was promised in the Cape Breton election, but at the last moment they caved in.

MR. MOWAT, in reply to Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, the other day assured the House that he is alive to the expediency of placing beyond dispute the right of the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint Provincial Queen's Counsel and to secure for them precedence or pre-audience in our Courts.

THE statement of expenditure charged to unforseen expenses contains an interesting item in connection with the Letellier difficulty. Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, for ninety-eight days' service to England, $1,960, the modest sum of twenty dollars a day, exclusive of expenses, the full statement of which will not appear till next year's public accounts.

IT is understood that at the meeting of the Municipal Committee of the Legislature on Tuesday, it was decided that Magistrates' salaries could not be reduced by the Council without the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and they shall be entitled to fees for all business done outside of their regular duties. It was also recommended that the privilege of paying taxes by instalment should be extended to towns and villages.

THE Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Gazette says—The Ministers are looking well, to judge from appearances; Sir John Macdonald, however, is far from strong, and more than one of his colleagues are feeling the effects of the constant hard work. Sir John was absolutely resplendent at the opening of Parliament in the extra good lace of Her Majesty's Privy Council, looking more like Lord Beaconsfield than ever, and outshadowing Hon. J. C. Pope, who was the only other Minister present in the Commons in official dress.

THERE is no little feeling about the Governor-General's attempt to gag the press in the matter of the accident to the Princess on Saturday night. The telegraph wires were taken possession of by Major De Winton immediately after the accident, and no account of the affair allowed to be sent until the official report was sent through in the afternoon. It seems to us an entirely unwarranted piece of work, that a Governor-General should put a stop for the time being, to the whole system of inter-communication simply because his wife—Royal Princess though she be—should get a shaking and her ear cut. We hope that some explanation will be given of the matter which, as it stands at present, is calculated to place His Excellency in an unfavorable light. We would much regret anything that would so place Lord Lorne. It is very desirable that exaggerated reports of occurrences connected with the Vice-Regal household should not go to the public, but we know of no proper way of preventing these other than by the furnishing of reliable statements to those who seek them. For a Governor-General in a private matter to undertake to control the telegraph lines would be an extraordinary assumption of power, and one which public opinion would not tolerate. We await with some interest further explanations in this matter.

The Trip to Manitoba.

The Tory press are making all the capital they can out of the bill of expenses connected with the Lieut Governor's trip to Manitoba last summer. It is so seldom they have an opportunity of fastening such a charge on a Reform Government, that they eagerly seize hold of the present case, and make all the capital they can out of it. The items are paraded in full type, and we must say they do not possess an inviting look. But they forget to tell us that—although this is no excuse—the present Government was simply following in the footsteps of that of Sandfield Macdonald, when in 1868, over $4,000 was spent in a pleasure trip on the Chicora. The Tories were, however, more cunning than their successors. They transmogrified the expenses on that pleasure jaunt into all sorts of accounts against Colonization Roads, messengers, dusters and the thousand and one items that can be charged against a Government. In the present case, however, the Government are honest enough to give the bare bald statement of the items as they really were, and for this, they are called to account.

We have steadily set our face against charging the country with such trips, whether they belong to the Dominion or the Province, and the one in question is no exception to the rule. There may in this instance have been extravagance or not—we cannot tell. But the whole thing is wrong in principle, and it will be a good thing if this latest jaunt shall be the means of putting an end to all pleasure trips by officials at the public expense. The object of the trip was no doubt commendable, but that was no excuse for copying the extravagance of a former Government, or for running up bills altogether out of proportion to the work on hand, or the results attained.

We trust the discussion over this bill, though conducted for no good purpose by the Opposition, will have its salutary effect on the Government and their supporters, not to encourage or countenance such doings again; and that they will resolve that however lax or extravagant their opponents have been in matters of this kind, they will not follow their example again, or place themselves in a position in which their supporters cannot conscientiously defend them in the discharge of their duty.

FROM the report of the Auditor-General it would appear that Mr. Anglin was at first refused his salary as Speaker up to the time that his successor took office, on the advice of Mr. Lash, the present Deputy Minister of Justice. The Government, however, sustained the view taken by Mr. Anglin.

THE impression is gaining strength that the Insolvent Act will be absolutely repealed at the ensuing session of the Dominion Parliament. Not only does there appear to exist a strong feeling against the Act, but from well informed sources it is gathered that the Government will not take the matter in hand this session.

Wellington Mutual Insurance Company.

In connection with the publication of the annual report of this Company, we have pleasure in copying the following from the Monetary Times of last week.—With a premium note capital of $232,507, against sums insured amounting to $2,514,330 and immediate liabilities amounting to $15,251.33, the Manager of the Wellington Mutual may well congratulate the members of that Company on its satisfactory standing. An assessment of six per cent. is all that is necessary to wipe off every one of its liabilities, and leave assets nearly equal to $9.00 for every $100 insured. The Company's expenses proper amounted to $4,424.39, or less than thirty per cent. of its receipts; and they include "law costs," amounting to $413.40, the nature of which no effort is made in the report to conceal. But the last was not an exceptional year; as the report somewhat naively puts it "the losses have not been greater than usual," the Company having been very successful ever since its commencement. But this success has not been due to luck is evidenced by its long continuance; it has rather been the result of uniformly economical and cautious management.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

GUELPH PRESBYTERY.

Adjourned Meeting in Knox Church.

At the adjourned meeting of Presbytery held on Tuesday, in Knox Church, there was a large attendance of members, both ministers and ruling elders. Mr. Millican reported by letter that he had moderated in a call at Erin which had come out in favour of Mr. Robert Fowlie, of Hillsburg and Prices' Corners. The call with relative documents was laid on the table, and Commissioners having been heard, was duly sustained as a regular Gospel call. The Clerk was instructed to take steps to have notice of call served upon the congregations of which Mr. Fowlie is pastor, and to call them to appear for their interests at next meeting. Report was made of the names of the congregations that had sent in contributions to the Home Mission Fund, and the amount in each case, when the Presbytery felt themselves justified in expressing their approbation of the diligence that had been shown in the matter. A letter was read from Mr. McMichael calling attention to the favourable opening that presented itself in a part of the township of Amaranth for preaching. The Clerk gave the substance of the reply he had sent, when it was considered that no further action was necessary in the meantime. A committee was appointed to visit St. Andrew's Church, Galt, and make all inquiry into the circumstances of that congregation, and ascertain what number of persons connected with it were desirous to have the continuance of preaching. Leave was granted to the congregations of Calvin Church, Rothsay, and Moorefield and of Hawkesville for moderation in calls they proposed to give, the first day of March being fixed for the purpose. It was moved, in accordance with notice previously given, and resolved that the time for appointing Commissioners to the General Assembly be extended from four to six o'clock in the afternoon of the day of meeting in March. Mr. Middlemiss read a long and excellent report of the proceedings of the Sabbath School Conference held in Elora on the 20th and 21st January, containing resolutions that had been adopted thereat, and a tabulated statement of the returns received from Sabbath Schools. The Clerk was instructed to forward the same to the Convener of the General Assembly's Committee on Sabbath Schools as soon as fuller returns have been received to render the statistics more complete. Dr. Wardrope and Mr. Ball brought before the Presbytery the state of the funds of Knox College, and of the Theological Department of Queen's College, Kingston, and a lengthy and interesting conference was held upon the subject by the brethren present. All the business having been overtaken the Presbytery adjourned to meet in the same place on the third Tuesday of March at ten o'clock in the forenoon, that being the stated day of meeting.

Mr. Cameron (Huron) intends moving for a statement of official assignees appointed by the present Government. It will make a voluminous return.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XXVII.

GREAT AND SUDDEN CHANGES—THE HOPES AND FEARS OF MOURNING HEARTS—DAVID RAMSAY PROVES A TRUE FRIEND, AND SAVES AGNES BORLAND FROM A DANGEROUS ENCOUNTER.

Great amazement and consternation were produced in the district when it became known, as it did a day or two after Mr. Bishop's visit to Cairnbank, that Orwell Bruce had ruined himself by gambling, had mortgaged the estate to its utmost value, and disappeared, no one know where. It was difficult to explain how the story got abroad. Certainly not a syllable of it had been told by Mr. Bishop, who, in the grief which it had occasioned him, was silently pondering the situation, and had resolved not to divulge the truth till he had found some plan of procedure such as the painful circumstances rendered necessary. He had indeed confided the facts to his sympathing sister, but Miss Grizzey was too faithful, too discrete, to speak of any affair with which her brother was professionally connected. It could only be Anthony Langton or his son, who had for their own ends given circulation to the tale. Since the former intended to lose no time in using the power which the deed of mortgage gave him, the state of the case could not be too soon made public, in order that people's minds might become familiar with the position of affairs, and be made aware of the change under which the ownership of the Grange was soon to pass. The plotters fully expected that at first the public sensation would be immense, and it was necessary that the excitement should subside in some degree ere subsequent proceedings were taken. At all events the story got quickly abroad, and produced fully the effect which might have been anticipated.

Orwell Bruce was pitied or condemned, according to the view taken of his deplorable conduct. Inasmuch as it was only Reuben Langton's version of the tale which passed into the public mind, the youth's short but wild and reckless career was portrayed in every light which made most strongly against him, while the Langton's, both father and son, were represented as having done all they possibly could to restram his headless course and wean him from his folly. The tale being primarily received with this complexion, Orwell was unsparingly denounced, his folly and wickedness being declared too dreadful to be characterised. Soon, however, this opinion began to undergo some modification. The well known frankness and generosity of the youth's disposition, the manner in which from boyhood upwards he endeared himself to all who knew him, made Reuben Langton's story seem incredible, and there grew in the public mind an inclination to regard it with suspicion. The Langtons were not popular in the district; the old man had the character of being a greedy, grasping, miserly money gatherer, whose wealth had been made in ways not very honorable or creditable, while Reuben's haughty overbearing manner to his inferiors, and the fawning plausible style he adopted towards his equals, had not tended to place him high in general estimation. So after the first feeling of amazed excitement had given place to calmer reflection, people began to wonder if Orwell Bruce had really set at nought all good counsel, and had against every remonstrance, rushed headlong to ruin. It seemed most unlikely for him to do so. His simplicity of mind, his easy good nature, those principles of honor which, as a Bruce, he had inherited, had, every one thought, a tendency to keep him from naturally or spontaneously acquiring a taste for gambling, far less imbibing a passion for it so strong and irresistable as must have seized him before he could land himself on such utter ruin.

This wavering belief in Orwell's turpitude was made the opposite of firmer, by the quiet but persistent efforts of Mr. Bishop, who lost no opportunity of expressing his conviction on the matter. He was too cautious to speak words which would give Anthony Langton a handle against him in a court of law; but he could truthfully say that means had been carefull taken to keep him in ignorance of Orwell's doings, that no hurt had been given to him of the youth's turf and other transactions, of his large money losses, or of the mortgage of the estate, and that everything had been done during the past two years to keep him from communicating with Orwell, the community was not slow to draw the natural inference which these facts suggested, and Mr. Bishop's own opinion now began generally to be held.

Then much pity and commiseration were felt for the poor youth who had been made the victim of such cold-blooded selfishness, while Anthony Langton's statement was true, that where Orwell lost his last stake in the Paris saloon he rushed from the place in wild distraction and had not since been seen or heard of, the worst fears were entertained as to his fate. "He has destroyed himself," was the idea at first whispered, then openly expressed. And so many tales were told of ruined gamesters who had rushed in their despair into eternity that few had any reasonable doubt that this act of his rashness Orwell Bruce had consummated his infatuation.

Even Mr. Bishop, who at first violently refused to entertain this horrible idea, began to have doubts in his own mind when, after weeks of advertising in London and Continental newspapers, at his own expense, no tidings of the youth reahed him. In answer to his inquiries of the Paris police, he was told that more than one dead body had been found in the Seine, any one of which might from the description have been that of Orwell Bruce, though the progress of decomposition rendered identification impossible, and, as the most diligent search failed to yield any trace of his living presence, the doctor could offer no positive testimony against the prevailing melancholy idea, which, however, despite his failing hopes, he refused openly to acknowledge.

As may be supposed, the tidings which caused such consternation in the district produced the most intense dismay in the Grange mansion house, and among the servants and employees on the estate, but nowhere did they bring such sorrow and mourning as into the cottage of Mrs. Borland—the hearts of its two inmates being stricken with anguish such as mortals seldom feel. There the blow fell with cruel, unmitigated force. For some days Agnes and her mother could only sit with closed doors, giving way to tears and lamentations. Though no words of reproach or upbraiding fell from the girl's pale lips, her look of woe told the depth of her suffering, and the consciousness that she knew the cause of the dreadful result. Before this she felt how true and deep was her love for Orwell, how strong and passionate was his affection for her, and though in obedience to the views of others, and the seeming requirements of honor and duty, she had denied him the fruition of happiness and her own, no effort of hers to believe that she had done right could bring a satisfactory conviction to her mind. All the efforts of her reason could not prevail against the feelings of her heart; she had made the sacrifice and would abide by it, hoping that time would heal the wound, and reconcile Orwell to the inevitable; but somehow her spirit could not emerge from the shadow of doubt and distrust, and the fear remained that the future would fail to justify what had been done.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress making Department. The numerous orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade. Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Crooks' Bill respecting certain amendments to the Public School Act. In moving the adoption of the first clause, making it optional to shorten the midsummer holidays by two weeks, Mr. Crooks said it was only proposed to give the trustees power to adopt the clause if they approved of it. The third clause, simplifying the machinery for the collection of school rates in union school sections was passed without amendment. Mr. Crooks amended the fourth clause so as to provide for the collection of Separate School rates by the officers of the municipality. The fifth clause, requiring Public School trustees to keep books of account, subject to examination by the Inspector, was amended by omitting that part of the clause relating to the Inspector. The seventh clause related to cases where a portion of a township school section desired to withdraw and become part of a section in a village or town. The Municipal Council of the Township was empowered to withdraw the same by by-law. The remaining clauses of the Bill were passed with some slight amendments.

The investigations by the Public Accounts Committee in the morning on the expenses of the Lieut.-Governor's trip last summer, prepared those who were present for what took place during the evening session. Immediately after the Speaker took the chair, Mr. Wood rose and moved the House into Committee of Supply. In doing so he referred in the most pointed way to the item for the expenses of the Lieutenant Governor's official visit, called attention to the fact that the expenditure for such visits was always borne by the Province, and quoted numerous instances to show that they had been the common custom during the time of the Sandfield Macdonald Government as well as since. The present was the first occasion on which charges of this character had been investigated by a Public Accounts Committee, or discussed by the public newspapers, and such conduct was all the more ungraceful when it took place within a few months of the retirement from his office of a gentleman who had so ably filled the position of Lieutenant Governor. (Hear, hear.) With regard to the expenditure he (Mr. Wood) had expected that the persons charged with the duty of purchasing the supplies would purchase about the same articles in the same quantities as had been provided for previous Lieutenant-Governors on similar occasions, and he had yet to learn that any expense had been incurred which might not reasonably have been expected to have been incurred. (Hear, hear.) Though he felt keenly the attacks which had been made upon himself in connection with this matter, he felt still more keenly the attacks which had been made upon His Honor, and the remarks made by the different journals throughout the Province. So keenly had the Lieutenant-Governor felt these allusions that he had addressed a letter to the Attorney-General, which he would now read to the House. It was as follows:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE,
Toronto, 16th February, 1880.

MY DEAR SIR,—I observe that in some of the public journals objection is taken to a number of the items (usually called luxuries) contained in the account of the expenses of my recent trip through our new territory to Manitoba. The visit was an official one, for the purpose of seeing and examining the newly acquired territory and calling public attention to it, and one which was generally thought to be in the public interest, and I am aware that the items objected to are such as according to the custom in the old Province of Canada, and in the Dominion, and also in Ontario, in like official visits and other official occasions are charged and paid with the other expenditures of the official party.

Yet as a matter of personal feeling on my part I prefer (in view of the objection) to treat the items referred to as a matter of my own individually in connection with the trip, and I decline to have it further discussed as a charge against the Provincial Treasury.

I have ascertained that the items amount to about $300, and I beg to enclose you a cheque for five hundred dollars, payable to the Treasurer, out of which you will please see that the amount objected to is repaid, and a corresponding deduction made from the estimate which I recommended to the consideration of the House.

Faithfully yours,
D. A. MACDONALD.

To the Honourable the Attorney-General.

(Loud cheers.) He (Mr. Wood) held in his hands a statement of the wine, liquors, and cigars, and the temperance drinks, including Apollinaris water (laughter)—and he might say for the benefit of the member for East Grey that it included the cork screws (laughter), and for the benefit of the member for Glengarry that it included the towels (renewed laughter). That statement showed that the total amount expended for these supplies was $236.90, and the accuracy of that statement was proved before the Public Accounts Committee. He was instructed by the Government to say that that as there might be some other items which hon. gentlemen oppos te might object to, he would in Committee of Supply, move that the item be reduced by the sum of $350. (Loud cheers.)

Dr. Widdifield moved in amendment that the House should instruct the Committee of Supply to reduce the amount charged against the trip by the sum of $350, the actual sum spent in luxuries so far as at present known being less than $300.

A discussion than began on the amendment which lasted till midnight. Mr. Morris raised the constitutional objection that the Ministry were seeking to shelter themselves behind the Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. Meredith objected to the trip altogether, and reiterated Mr. Morris' charge of cowardice. Mr. McMaster was alternately mock heroic and facetious according as he had before his mind's eye the "constitutional outrage" or the items of the "luxuries" bill. Mr. Lauder dwelt entirely on the constitutional aspect of the case, declaring that the expenditure itself was a mere bagatelle as compared with it.

Mr. Mowat replied to the charge of cowardice, repelling it in the most vigorous terms, and pointed out the expediency of such an official visit to the territory acquired under the boundary award. He took occasion also to announce that he had very recently received notification from Ottawa of the disallowance of an Act passed by the Ontario Legislature last session for the administration of justice in the new territory.

Mr. Hardy and Fraser also replied at length on behalf of the Government, ridiculing the constitutional argument, pointing out that the Opposition were openly, and still more by implication, bringing damaging accusations against the Lieutenant-Governor, and asking the Government to constitute themselves a Committee to spy round the Government kitchen.

On motion of Mr. Creighton, the debate was adjourned about midnight.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.

Mr. Blake asked whether there is any correspondence between the Canadian and Imperial Governments, or any report showing the result of the resolution of last session, whereby the Government was authorized and directed to use the best efforts to secure the co-operation of the Imperial Government, and to obtain further aid by guarantee or otherwise in the construction of the Pacific Railway, and whether any such correspondence or report will at an early day be laid before Parliament.

Sir John A. Macdonald—I beg leave to state that there has been confidential communication with the Right Hon. the Secretary of the Colonies on the subject of Imperial aid, which it is not in the public interest to lay before Parliament. There is no report on this subject, and no aid has been promised by the Imperial Government.

Mr. MacDonnell (Inverness) moved for a return of accidents which have occurred on the Intercolonial Railroad since the 1st of January last. He stated that on his journey to Ottawa a few days ago no less than four accidents occurred on the Intercolonial Railway.

Sir John A. Macdonald presented a message from His Excellency the Governor-General, recommending to the House of Commons the propriety of granting $100 000 for the relief of the present great distress in Ireland.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

We may cut a scholar able to adorn a university out of Mr. Gladstone, then carve from him a fine student and reverencer of art; next mark off a reviewer and general literateur whom professed authors will respectfully make room for in their ranks: and not only is there still left, solid and firm, the great Parliamentary Minister, but of the scattered fragments a couple of Bishops might easily be made, with if nothing at all is to be wasted, several preachers for the denominations.

During last week twenty-eight attachments have been announced in Canada, five of them against general dealers, and eleven assignments have been made.

Harper's Magazine for March.

Harper's Magazine for March is full of attractive articles, beautifully illustrated. The most fascinating thing in the number is William Hamilton Gibson's "Winter Idyl," not only from the peculiar charm of the author's pictures, but also from the beauty of his descriptions of winter scenery, and from the familiar associations recalled by every page of his delightful paper.

The Number opens with a thoughtful paper by J. J. Jarves on "The New School of Italian Painting and Sculpture," illustrated, with engravings of paintings by Morelli, Chierci, Vinea, Conti, and Gelli, and of statuary by Gallori and Albano.

The present interest in Indian affairs renders especially timely Lieutenant Lemly's article, "Among the Arrapahoes," describing the life of the tribe in the tipi and in the hunting-field, and excellently illustrated.

Equally timely is Mr J. B. Matthew's paper, "Trimfore's Predecessor," taking the reader back to the beginnings of English comic opera in Gay's "Beggar's Opera" and Sheridan's Duenna." The paper is illustrated with fine portraits of Gay and Sheridan.

Madame Moscheles, widow of the celebrated player and composer, relates a humorous musical adventure, experienced by herself and her husband many years ago in Thuringal. The story is illustrated by Abbey.

C. C. Coffin contributes a graphic description of harvesting on the larger farms in Dakota. His paper is handsomely illustrated.

J. L. Cloud, author of "The Connemara Hills" describes and illustrates "An Irish Wake." The other papers are "Vacation Aspects" a story by Rose Terry Cooke. A Swedish Romance by Karin, a paper on the American Railway System, and one on the Preservation of Hearing. Longfellow's new poem, "The Sifting of Peter," is a folk-song of unusual merit. Paul Hayne contributes a poem, entitled "Snow Messenge," giving characteristic pen-portraits of Whittier and Longfellow. Mrs. Frances L. Mace contributes an exquisite poem, entitled "Isis," and James T. Fields some impressive blank verse, entitled "Honeria."

The editorial departments furnish, as usual, some of the most useful and entertaining matter in the number.

HEAVY LIBEL SUIT.—Mr. John McLay Registrar, has instructed his solicitors, Messrs. Shaw & Robertson, to proceed against the Dominion Telegraph Company for a false and malicious libel contained in a despatch furnished by them to several of the city press. Damages are laid at $20,000, much surprise is felt here at the Company assuming the responsibility of supplying information obtained from an utterly worthless and irresponsible source.—Walkerton Telescope.

Several United States Congressmen who were instrumental in securing the Hall of Representatives for Parnell to speak in, have become disgusted with the agitator, whose mission they begin to suspect has been undertaken more with a view to his own political advantage than for the relief of Ireland.

Guelph and Ontario Investment and Savings Society.

The annual meeting of this Society was held in the Caledonian Hall on Wednesday afternoon. There was a reasonably large attendance of shareholders.

The President, Mr. D. Stirton, occupied the chair.

The annual report, which will appear in a subsequent issue, was read and adopted. Some discussion on the report ensued and those who took part expressed themselves as well pleased with the progress of the Company since last year. Messrs. Hill and Brewster were appointed scrutineers, and the election of directors for the ensuing year was proceeded with, resulting in the re-election of the old board. The only additional business of importance was the appointment of auditors, Messrs. A. J. Brewster and J. W. Kilgour being appointed.

On motion, the President was granted $200 as a recognition of his services for the past year, and the auditors for last year were granted the sum of $50 each. A vote of thanks having been tendered the scrutineers, the meeting adjourned. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors Mr Stirton was re-elected President and Mr. Petrie, Vice-President.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bronchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The decree abolishing slavery in Cuba was promulgated in the Spanish Official Gazette on Wednesday.

The Dublin Mansion House Committee have so far received £67,700, and distributed £34,400. There is still much suffering throughout Ireland, but no starvation. Accounts from the country for the past few days are summed up in the words, "Much suffering, but no starvation," except in far off islands, to which relief is being sent without delay or stint. In parts of the county of Donegal the want is great; but the Dublin Mansion House fund has been made promptly available. Meanwhile the agrarian agitation has almost completely ended.

The main column of the Russian expedition to Mery will number 20,000 men, under General Skobeloff. It will march from Tashkend so as to operate in rear of the Turkomans and effect a junction with the two other columns before the end of May.

The Attempt to Kill the Russian Imperial Family.

The Emperor Half Crazed with Fear.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18.—The official account of the attempt on the Imperial family states that about seven o'clock last evening an explosion occurred in the basement of the Imperial Winter Palace, under the principal guard room. Eight soldiers of the Finland Regiment of the Guard on duty were killed and forty-five injured, and the flooring and several gas pipes damaged. An official enquiry is proceeding.

The mine exploded last evening in the basement of the Winter Palace was filled with dynamite and gun cotton. The train by which it was fired can be traced to a cellar in the inner court where a quantity of fuel was stored.

London, Feb. 18.—A Vienna despatch says with reference to the St. Petersburg explosion:—"The addition of this fresh shock, following so swiftly upon the trying experiences through which he has passed, is said to have made a profound impression upon the Czar, who was already half crazed with fear and apprehension. It is believed that within a short time the Czar will either announce his abdication in favor of the Czarewich or issue a proclamation convening the Assembly of Notables of the Empire for the purpose of framing a constitutional form of government."

London, Feb. 18.—The various sovereigns have sent congratulations to the Czar on the escape of himself and his family from the attempt on their lives in the Winter Palace. The London and continental journals unite in expressions of horror at the plot, in which it is generally believed some of the employees of the palace were concerned.

Paris, Feb. 18.—A Russian was arrested in the Champe Elysees charged on an extradition warrant with attempting the life of the Czar.

Departmental Reports.

INLAND REVENUE REPORT.

The Inland Revenue report for the fiscal year 1878-9 shows that the accrued revenue during the year was $6,078,683, as against $5,685,710 for the year preceding, or an increase of 7 per cent. The increase was entirely upon Excise, and this was due to an anticipation of the increase in Excise duty. The increase on Excise was $520,122—less $118,149 decrease upon Public Works, culling timber, bill stamps, weights and measures, &c., making a net increase of $401,973. Illicit distillation is described as still large, while the number of seizures has decreased. The quantities of spirits held in bond at the commencement of the fiscal year was 1,626,512 proof gallons, and at the end of the year 1,265,977 proof gallons, being a decrease of 360,535 proof gallons. The quantity of spirits exported decreased 30,143 gallons. The quantity of malt liquor manufactured during the fiscal year was less than the quantity made during 1877-8 by 1,928,063 lbs., while the quantity imported for consumption was greater by 1,260,450 lbs. The quantity of malt exported was 915,391 lbs. less than in the preceding year. The quantity remaining in bond on the last day of the fiscal year was less 427,448 lbs. than in the preceding year. During the fiscal year 25,456,803 lbs. of malt were used in the manufacture of malt liquors, and 2,877,719 lbs. in distilling. The production of manufactured tobacco was 539,335 lbs. less than in the preceding year, and the quantity imported for consumption less by 18,036 lbs., and the stock of manufactured tobacco less in the warehouses by 591,451 lbs. The consumption of native tobacco is very small. The revenue on public works decreased from $507,131 to $450,855, and on canals from $361,502 to $325,392.

THE REPORT ON PENITENTIARIES.

The report of Mr. Moylan, Inspector of Penitentiaries, was laid on the table Monday afternoon. He states that the administration of this branch of the public service is about the same as in previous years. The number of convicts has increased by 150 over the preceding year, but this he states is due to the fact that there are so many persons unemployed. He urges the utilization of prison labour, and the establishment of reformatory schools. He deals at length with the first of the two last questions, and urges its claims principally on the ground that it would ensure better prison discipline.

Fire on a Railway Train.

Two Cars Destroyed.

Whitby, Ont., Feb. 19.—While the morning train for the north on the Whitby, Port Perry & Lindsay Ry. was being made up at the Grand Trunk Junction the mail and baggage cars caught fire and were completely destroyed. The fire originated in the smoking compartment which formed part of the mail carriage. A high wind prevailed, and the cars being exposed on the track, all efforts were rendered futile in extinguishing the flames which suddenly burst out and enveloped both carriages. The mail car was insured and belonged to the Whitby, Port Perry & Lindsay Company. The baggage car belonged to the Midland Railway Co. The mail matter was not on board at the time and was despatched in another car.

Strange Case in Ottawa—A Victim of a Thunder Shock.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—One of the most extraordinary cases on record is reported in this city. It appears Mr. Adams, who keeps a grocery on Sparp's street, some seven or eight months ago, received a shock during a thunder and lightning storm which so upset his nervous system that he found it impossible to obtain natural rest. A narcotic was administered which caused him to sleep for three days, continuing since that time. Strange as it may appear, he has not slept a wink, and a remarkable feature in connection with the case is that he is able to move about as usual. It is said Mr. Adams will shortly go to England in hope that a change of air will have the desired effect.

The Ice Harvest.—Unless the cold weather continues for some time there is likely to be a scarcity of ice next summer In this city, so far this winter, scarcely any ice has been secured, only a few hundred tons being taken from the river above Goldie's dam. Icemen have not commenced operations on Allan's dam yet, and to the present any attempt would have been futile, on account of the soft weather. One dealer in St. Cathrines has written Mr. John Hewer of this city asking if he can send a supply of ice to St. Catharines, but as yet no arrangement has been made for doing so. In other places in Canada their are prospects for an ice famine. One Stratford firm have orders for close upon 3,000 cords of ice to be sent to London, Hamilton and other points, for which they receive $1.30 per cord free on board the cars at Stratford. It is understood that ice is being shipped from Barrie to Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. M. C. Cameron intends moving for a statement of insolvencies, with amount of liabilities etc., in 1878 and 1879 respectively.

Mr. C. M. Mackintosh, the Mayor of Ottawa, and proprietor of the Citizen, says the New York Tribune, made the haul of $22,352 out of the public treasury within nine months. So say the Public Accounts.

Mr. Parnell is persevering in the noble work of quarrelling with all those who want to help his suffering countrymen. His latest tilt is with Drexel, Morgan & Co., which leaves him, as usual, not quite so well off as he was before.

Several lots of Canadian apples, recently sold in Liverpool, have netted shippers here $2.80 to $2.87½ per barrel.

The $20,000 jewel lost by H. R. H. Princess Louise at the time of the accident has since been recovered, and all is peace at Rideau Hall.

In reference to Major De Winton's stopping despatches, the Gazette says:—"As a matter of fact the telegraph companies overstepped their powers in declining to receive press messages, and rendered themselves liable to an action for damages by so doing. They are compelled to forward all messages handed in for transmission and only the Government, when the interests of the country demand it, can exercise the control over the wires which Major De Winton attempted to assume. The incident has called out a strong protest from the press of all sections."

The first step towards a National Currency may be considered taken in the appointment by the Government of Mr. Wallace as Chairman of the Banking and Commerce Committee.

Mr. Girouard's Bill to legalize marriage with the sister of a deceased wife, provides that all marriages thus contracted in the past are valid, cases pending in Courts of Justice alone accepted.

Montreal Gazette: "Here in Canada we have opportunities of doing something which few other countries possess. We have an immense area of land waiting to be worked and rendered habitable and productive. Would it be very difficult to establish a number of model farms on our unoccupied territory to which youthful offenders might be sent on first conviction, and where they might be trained to earn an honest living and be of service to their country and mankind. To send them to jail is to send them to a school of crime. That has been proved by experience. But if they were distributed, as we propose, and taught to labor on a farm, their energies could be made a blessing instead of a curse.

Local News.

Mrs. Scott Siddons will appear at the city hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week.

The Artillery B. B. are requested to meet at the band room at 7:15 sharp, with helmets, lamps and overcoats.

Never blow down a lamp chimney to extinguish the flame, for it is quite liable to return the compliment and blow you up.

Chimneys on Fire.—The high wind of last night caused several chimneys to take fire, but none of the fires occasioned any damage.

Social in Guelph Township.—Don't forget the social at the School in Section No. 6, on Friday evening first. The entertainment promises to be a first class one.

The Guelph Christian Temperance Club will hold a social in the Club room tonight, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, and other attractions.

Youthful Curlers.—Early this morning some lads monopolized a sheet of ice on Cork Street to play a game of curling. They were evidently warmed with interest in the game, as the cold air did not seem to trouble them, and the mercury then was in the neighbourhood of zero.

Larceny.—James McDonald was arraigned at Police Court to-day, on a charge of stealing a dog valued at $25, belonging to Ald. Coffee. Mr. Watt, on behalf of Mr. Coffee, explained that he did not want to prosecute, the dog having followed McDonald home. Case was dismissed.

Knights of Maccabees.—The tent of the Knights of the Maccabees, organized in the city two months ago, is in a prosperous condition, the number of members having increased to twenty-three. The Order though little over one year in existence, has a membership of 14,000. The Guelph tent meets the first Tuesday after the 10th day of each month.

Influences of the Weather.—While Mr. Wm. Farr was in the woods above the Victoria Bridge on Wednesday, he came across a small currant bush out in leaf. In that neighborhood the leaves on several poplar trees have shot out. The warm weather of the last few days considered, this is not surprising. There has been little or no frost in the ground. Citizens in different wards have been observed busy gardening.

Was he Crazy?—About half past seven o'clock this morning a middle aged man was observed without shoes, hat, coat or vest, to run from the Western Hotel up Macdonnell street. He turned into a lane near Neagle's Hotel and disappeared. The man was evidently not intoxicated, and it is doubted if a sane man would run about the streets in a semi-nude condition during this cold weather.

Carnival.—The second carnival of the season to be held on the rink this evening promises to be an event of more than ordinary brilliancy. For the past few days the young people have been looking after the preparation of their costumes, and it is expected that upwards of two hundred persons will be present in costume. The ice is in excellent condition for skating. A feature in the carnival will be the presence of the Artillery Band.

The Bogus Census Taker.—Mrs. Kirby, living on Mitchell street, informed the Chief of Police on Wednesday afternoon that there was an agent for polish for silverware at her house, who had represented to her that he was a census taker, and had inquired for particulars regarding her husband's income, &c. A policeman was despatched to her house, and the agent was given half an hour to leave the town. He acted on this kindly hint and went east by the 4.10 train.

An Object for Charity.—Attention was directed some time ago to the destitute condition of Mrs. Cooper, living on the London Road. The poor woman, who is 85 years of age, is stricken with paralysis, and has no means of subsistence. Her brother who lives with her is 75 years old and unable to work. They have never made any application to the corporation for assistance, though in a destitute condition, and the neighbours seem to pay them very little attention. If some benevolent ladies would take this matter in hand they would be doing a good work.

Death of Dr. Dunbar.—Dr. Dunbar, of Mount Forest, died at that town on Tuesday, of cirrhosis of the liver. He was confined to the house since last September, but his recovery was expected until the 7th Nov., when his system received a severe shock through a fire occurring in the premises adjoining his house, from the effects of which he never recovered. Dr. Dunbar kept a hotel at Rockwood while the G. T. Ry., was in course of construction. About 1842 he came to Guelph to study medicine under Drs. Clark & Orton, the latter being father of Dr. Orton, of Fergus. Early in 1855 he graduated at Kingston, and went to Mount Forest, where he built up a good practice. He was elected to the first village council, and occupied the position of councillor at differerent times. On the death of Mr. McDonald, postmaster, Dr. Dunbar was appointed to the vacancy and retained the position for a few years. Dr. Dunbar was of a kind and genial disposition, and made numerous friends. He leaves a family of seven children, two sons, the eldest of whom has assisted in his father's practice for some years, and five daughters who have the heartfelt sympathy of all who know them.

Items of Interest on the Ice.

The Gow Cup.—The following is the result of the third drawing for the Gow cup:

Hugh Turner vs. Chas. Spaulding.
Jas. Ryan vs. Fyfe or Leonard.
D. Stirton vs. James Emslie.
Geo. Patterson vs. Thos. Anderson.
Thos. Dobbie vs. Wm. Heffernan.
John McKenzie vs. Mitchell or Bruce.
H. Lockwood vs. Jas. Nichols.

The next draw will be on Wednesday evening.

Weather Probs.—Fair colder weather, with passing snow flurries.

A number of Foresters from Galt, visited their brethren in this city on Wednesday evening. A band who accompanied them played several musical selections about the streets and serenaded their Guelph friends.

Change in the Weather.—Many may not be aware of the extent of the dip the mercury took since yesterday morning. At seven o'clock a. m. yesterday the thermometer registered 40 degrees above zero, and at 7 o'clock this a. m. the mercury had fallen to 10 above zero.

Curling.—Four rinks of Guelph play the same number from Toronto, at Brampton, to-morrow, for the Caledonian Medal. Toronto telegraphed this morning with a view of reducing the number of rinks to three on each side, but that proposal fell through.

Orangeism.—At the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario at Walkerton, just concluded, the following officers were elected:—Major James Bennett, Toronto, G. M.; A. H. L. White, St. Marys, D. G. M.; T. Keys, St. Catharines, G. S.; N. C. Wallace, M. P. P., West York, G. T.; W. Niblock, G. L.

The following is the programme of the band for this evening at the carnival:

1. March—"New Year's Greeting," Boyer.
2. "Flower of the fields"—valse, Tollot.
3. Gallop—"Skating Rink," Hare.
4. March—"Germania," Zumft.
5. "Fantine Valse," Ballar.
6. Quadrille—"Princess Louise," Godfrey.
7. Fantasia—"Barber de Seville," Rossini.
8. Valse—"Deux Temps," D. Albert.
9. "Vocal March," Revere.
10. "Bombardon Polka," Bottesini.

The funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Carling, sr., took place at London, on Wednesday, and was one of the largest that has ever taken place there, there being about 140 carriages in the procession. The aldermen and city officials and police, together with the St. George's Society, attended in a body.

Rev. Mr. Cowley, manager of the Shepherd's Fold, New York, on trial for eight days for cruelly treating children, was on Wednesday convicted. The prisoner was overcome, and wept bitterly. His counsel moved for arrest of the judgment to make a motion for a new trial, and the Court remanded the prisoner until Friday. He was taken to the Tombs. The extreme penalty is a year in prison and $250 fine.

Rev. J. A. Lobley, D. C. L., Principal of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, was on Tuesday elected Provost of Trinity College in the room of Rev. Geo. Whitaker, M. A., who has decided to retire from the office.

Says the Stratford Herald:—The Vice-Regal Court at Ottawa has issued a brand new table of precedence, from which formidable ukase we learn that a member of Parliament comes 16th upon the list, Senators and Bishops holding over him. A Member of Parliament is not such a great fellow as is popularly believed, after all.

Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, the eminent Baptist divine, preaching Sunday for the first time since his return from Italy, said, "England's rulers were making bloody wars and oppressing nations. They encouraged themselves with the reflection, "we are a great people, and, by jingo, do what we like. It will all come right in the end. But they should remember that 'pride went before a fall.'" The haughtiest men and nations would yet be brought low. God's chastisements, when they did come, would be terrible if unto destruction."

Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

Ontario Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 18.

Mr. Miller moved for an Address to the Lieutenant-Governor, praying that he will cause to be laid before the House a return showing the manner in which the sum of ten thousand dollars, granted by the city of Toronto for the purpose of exploring the line of the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway, was expended, with copies of all vouchers, correspondence, reports of engineers and others, on the route or routes explored or surveyed by or on behalf of the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway Company.

Mr. Mowat said it seemed to him that this was a matter with which they had nothing to do here. The city of Toronto had chosen to grant the sum of $10,000 for certain purposes, and if these purposes had not been carried out he did not think it was the duty of the Province to interfere in a transaction between the city and the Company.

The motion was allowed to stand.

Mr. McLaughlin moved for an order of the House for a return showing the names of all the police magistrates in Ontario; the amount of salary of each, or if paid by fees the amount of such fees; number of cases brought before each for adjudication; the number of convictions, and the amount of fines imposed for the years 1878 and 1879.

Mr. Harcourt moved the second reading of the Bill to amend the Municipal Act. The Bill proposed to do away with the right of cities and town to impose market fees.

Mr. Meredith thought that the subject was of such great importance that the Government should have some policy in reference to it.

Mr. Mowat was not prepared to say what course ought to be taken in regard to the Bill. He was willing to take the responsibility of any legislation that might be adopted with respect to the subject.

Mr. Awrey thought the question was whether by right farmers should have these fees imposed upon them. Farmers who come to town generally spend the money they receive for their produce among the resident tradesmen, and in that way the markets were a mutual accommodation. The provision for shelter was most inadiquate. There was limited accommodation for dairy produce, &c., but no shelter was provided for farmers' waggons loaded with grain and other produce. He thought the imposition of market fees was a restriction on trade, and he trusted that the Bill would pass through the second reading and go to Committee.

Mr. Gibson (Hamilton) could not see any hardship in cities and towns receiving revenue from these market fees. The city of Hamilton had expended $200,000 in providing market accommodation, and the revenue derived from fees would not pay half the interest on the outlay. If the House would go so far as to do away with fees he was in a position to say that the Hamilton authorities would deprive the farmers of the benefit of the market in that city. He trusted the Bill would not pass, as it would seriously interfere with vested rights.

Mr. Deroche thought the cities and towns were equally benefited by farmers coming to their market. It was most unfair that farmers should be taxed five or ten cents for every load of produce for the purpose of aiding the revenue of the town. He did not think the question was one as between the farming constituencies and those of the cities and towns, but a question of justice to a very large portion of our population, the largest class in the country—the class which is essentially the producing class, and the class which has done most to build up the country. He supported the second reading of the Bill.

Mr. Long said that only a small percentage of the agricultural class was asking for this change. They were known as the Grange class, and were undoubtedly respectable, but they only represented a small proportion of the agricultural community. He represented a constituency largely rural, but he was not aware from any of the farmers that legislation of this kind was required. It was impossible to keep up suitable market buildings and grounds in a town without considerable expense, and he held that the agricultural class derived more benefit from this accommodation than did the cities and towns. He was satisfied that the Bill for the abolition of these fees was in the wrong direction, and he hoped it would be thrown out in the second reading, and nothing more would be heard of it.

Mr. Paxton supported the Bill.

Mr. Murray thought the House should be very slow in moving in this direction until they were assured that the people generally favored a change.

Mr. Field hoped that if the Bill went before the Special Committee care would be taken not only to preserve the interests of the farming community, but those of townspeople as well.

Mr. Calvin expressed himself as being unfavourable to the Bill.

Mr. Cascaden said it was unwise to place the interests of the farmers in contradistinction to those of dwellers in towns and cities. If he understood the wishes of those whom he represented here they were not in favour of absolutely doing away with all market fees, but it was certainly unfair that a fee should be paid on every 25 cent article brought to market. Another unmistakable grievance was that a farmer driving through a town or a corner of a town with a load of wheat should be compelled to come to the market and submit to its regulations. He believed the Grangers of Elgin favoured not the abolition, but the readjustment upon a fair basis of the market fees. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Cook thought market fees was an imposition on the farmers. A large revenue was derived from the leasing the butchers stalls, and all the shelter the farmer received for the fees they paid was a space of ten or twelve feet square in which their wives could sell their butter

Mr. Dryden hoped the Bill would go to the Committee, and that it would be modified there to suit the views expressed by hon. members.

Mr. Waters took a similar view.

The Bill was read the second time and referred to the Committee on Municipal Amendments.

Mr. Monk moved the second reading of the Bill to protect the goods of lodgers against distress for rent due to the superior landlord. He explained that it was intended to provide that upon a lodger serving a declaration upon a superior landlord authorized to levy for arrears of rent, setting forth that certain goods distrained were the property of such lodger, the landlord should have no right of seizure, and should a seizure be made, the landlord should be held to be guilty of illegal distress.

The Bill was referred to a Special Committee.

Mr. Waters moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the London Junction Railway Company.

Mr. Miller moved "That the Bill be not now read a second time, but that it be read this day three months."

After considerable discussion, the amendment was carried by 45 to 22.

Mr. Laidlaw moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the debenture debt of the city of Guelph.

The motion was carried, and the Bill read the second time.

Mr. Mowat moved the second reading of the Bill to abolish priority of and among execution creditors. He remarked that in view of the likelihood of the insolvency law being repealed at an early day he thought they might well take the step contemplated by this Bill. Indeed he could not see why they should not take it in any case, as a similar Act was now in force in the Province of Quebec. He went on to explain the technical provisions of the Bill.

The Bill was read a second time.

Britain's Negotiations with Persia.

The late intelligence from Britain confirms the rumours that the Imperial Government is making arrangements with Persia by which that power will take possession of Herat. In other words it is generally believed that the Government contemplates assuming a protectorate over Persia, and effecting with her the joint occupation of Herat. The qualified denials of Lord Beaconsfield strengthen the conviction. The Ministers in both Houses decline to say that the possession of Herat is not included in the arrangement. Continental journals confidently affirm that the terms of a treaty between England and Persia are substantially arranged. They amount to an offensive and defensive alliance. The Russian bugbear is made to do duty once more as a pretext for these fresh entangling engagements and enormous responsibilities. The Liberal leaders are undetermined what line to adopt, but sober men of both parties are alarmed at these additional Imperial burdens and consider the project the most serious news since the Turkish convention, it being perfectly calculated to inflame the Jingo spirit, captivate the masses, provoke Russian susceptibilities, increase the difficulty of withdrawing from Afghanistan, and pledge England to a policy of perpetual aggression in Central Asia.

We think there can be no doubt but that Britain is coquetting with Persia as against Russia, and it may be that the rumour was merely sent out by agents of the Government as a feeler. If the British press and public had applauded the scheme it would probably have been attempted, but it fell comparatively flat, and Lord Beaconsfield will have to try some other plan to win over the Shah, who would be a valuable ally in the conflict that is looming up in the near future. That a conflict will come, appears inevitable, and that Russia and England will be opposed to each other, no one who reads the signs of the times can doubt; nor can any one doubt that Herat or some place not far distant will be the place of conflict. When it will come no one can tell; but we may rest satisfied that Lord Beaconsfield, having apparently failed in his first attempt, will not tire until he has secured an alliance with the Shah. Herat is a centre of Eastern trade on the western frontier of Afghanistan. It is within a few weeks' march of the Merv, the objective point of the military enterprise of the Russians which resulted so disastrously last summer. Merv lies in the neutral zone between Afghanistan and Bokhara, which is a vassal state of the Northern Power. Both Balkin and Balakshan formerly paid tribute to Bokahara, but have recently been brought into closer relations with Afghanistan. If Russia extends its conquests in the South, Merv will be the principal point of attack, and the security of Herat will be menaced. If Lord Beaconsfield encourages Persia to take possession of the stronghold in advance, he must pledge the material resources of Great Britain in any frontier campaign with Russia which may ultimately arise. The magnitude of the engagement is startling, but this is not the first time he has made pretentious promises and got nothing whatever for the risks. His aim seems to be to consult England in advance to a policy of aggression and hazzard in Asia—and all for the sake of a temporary flourish of trumpets.

THE "corkscrew" discussion in the Legislative Assembly on Tuesday night, has given rise to a good deal of talk. It is admitted on all hands that three of the best speeches were made by Messrs, Fraser and Hardy on the Government side and Mr. McMaster on the Opposition. Neither Morris' lugubrious style or Meredith's simulated passion took as well. The debate brought out the fact that the Mail, by manipulating the figures, had added about 100 per cent. to the bulk of several of the items mentioned. Lieut-Governor Macdonald's action in paying for what are called the luxuries, is such as will meet with the approval of the people of the province. To be sure, such expenses as he now defrays out of his own private purse have always been taken from Provincial funds by Tory Administrations, but that is no reason why the bad example should now be followed.

SPEAKING of the "corkscrew" debate, the Toronto Telegram says:—"It is perhaps just as well that the Opposition have got something to grow eloquent over, and we may expect to see the expenditure for bath towls denounced in glowing periods and the purchase of corkscrew pilloried as the most terrible and glaring instance of political turpitude since the days of the Parliament fence, little Mrs. Blank, and the unvouched-for poker. If a general election were to take place now, it is probable that the Ministry would be buried in an avalanche of hotel bills, from which no sardine-opener or patent corkscrew would extricate them."

THE Senate is still debating the Address. It has nothing else to do, and might as well be employed in this as in any other way.

THE Bill for reviving the charter of the London Junction Railway was thrown out of the Legislative Assembly on Wednesday. This, it may be remarked, is the first railway charter ever positively and in the last resort refused by the Legislature.

MR. Isaac Buchanan is now arbitrating on a claim of Mr. Marshall Wood, who asks something like $15,000 for the model of the Parliament grounds and the pedestal of the statute of the Queen. This is a relic left by Sir John and his colleagues when in power before.

THE French Canadian Senators do not appear to take kindly to the third slight which the Government have accorded them. On Tuesday afternoon Senator Bellerose complainingly alluded to the fact that thrice the present Government had been afforded the opportunity of calling a French Canadian Senator to the Cabinet, and has failed to do so.

LONDON Advertiser:—The Montreal Gazette suggests that Mr. Blake spoke on Friday night because he was not likely to be replied to. Wonderful! The best answer to which is that any member of the house was quite at liberty to reply if he saw fit. Why, for instance, did not the Editor of the Gazette, who has a seat in the House, crush the member for West Durham with a few of his racy, versatile, fluent observations?

WHILE the cities and municipal organizations are officially congratulating the Governor-General and his Royal spouse on their miraculous escape from a terrible death the Tory Government have not submitted to Parliament motions to the same effect. Does this indicate that the Premier has not forgiven the Governor-General yet for snubbing him so severely on the Letellier matter.

THE House was considerably amused on Wednesday over a very innocent-looking motion moved for Mr. Parkhill in his absence by another member. The motion was that the fees on "Bill No. 1," less the cost of printing, be refunded, and when a request was made for explanations the mover was unable to give any. It turned out, however, that the Bill was one to incorporate the Orange Grand Lodges of Eastern and Western Ontario, and though evidently introduced at a very early period it was on second thoughts abandoned.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.

Mr. Mills introduced a Bill respecting the boundaries between the Province of Quebec and the territories of Canada. In reply to Sir John Macdonald he stated that its object was to confirm the award made by the arbitrators in August, 1878. Read a first time.

Mr. Dawson moved for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into matters connected with the boundaries between the Province of Ontario and the unorganized territories of the Dominion.

Mr. Mills called attention to the fact that he introduced a bill to ratify the award, which had been read a first time and was ordered by the House to be read a second time; and he thought the motion just submitted to seek further information upon this point was inconsistent with the Bill, and was therefore out of order.

The Speaker ruled motion to be in order.

Mr. Mills whose past intimate acquaintance with the whole bearings of this important issue, enabled him to speak with some authority on it, made a warm defence of Ontario's claims to the territory which an impartial Board of Arbitrators had awarded to the Province.

The Minister of Justice replied, arguing that Parliament was the proper tribunal to settle the question; but during his remarks, which partook more of the character of special leading than the reasoning of a Cabinet Minister, he manifested considerable ignorance of the question.

Mr. Mackenzie did not miss the opportunity of questioning the hon. member's statement that a large portion of territory recently awarded to Ontario had been purchased from the Hudson Bay Co. by the Dominion Government.

Mr. Blake spoke for the second time this session, with all his old force and acute reasoning. His contentions were: First, that the Ontario Government, when he was Premier, would not consent to constituting the Boundary Commission as the Macdonald-Cartier Administration proposed it should do; second, the solution of the matter was deferred till, in 1875, when the Mackenzie Administration agreed that the Commission should be held on this side of the Atlantic; third, when the Dominion Government announced to Parliament its course in the matter, no exception was taken by voice or note, by the then Conservative Opposition, nor even up to the time of their return to power; 4th, last session the Dominion Government had no policy on the question, but this session they appeared to have become bolder. His principal contention was that the Government's duty was to assume and not to shirk responsibility for any course the House might adopt in regard to the question.

Sir John Macdonald, it has been said, invariably displays utter carelessness in mastering the details of the subject on which he essays to address Parliament. This was particularly noticeable this afternoon in his response to Mr. Blake. The principal burden of his contention was that the Boundary Commission awarded not a true but a conventional boundary. When the Opposition questioned this assertion, he said he could prove it from the Provincial Order in Council and statute relating to the boundary, but even on reading both he failed to carry his point. He warmly denounced the injustice of ceding all the territories in question to the Province of Ontario, and appeared to favor the creation of a new Province.

Mr. Mackenzie claimed the floor, and the debate was adjourned at six o'clock.

The Princess and Canada.

The London correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, in a letter dated the 20th January, has some sensational talk about the unwillingness of the Princess Louise to return to Canada. The story may be taken for what it is worth, but we think due allowance must be made for its sensational character. He says:—

"A good deal has been said privately of late about the alleged reluctance of the Princess Louise to return to Canada. So long as talk of that sort was private only I preferred not to repeat it. Nothing could be less gracious than to represent a young wife as unwilling to rejoin her husban, and this is the construction which might easily be put upon her hesitation. But the matter has been made public by newspaper comment, so it only remains to say—at the risk of irritating our Canadian friends—that it is true the Princess did not wish to go back, but not true that domestic reasons have anything to do with her aversion to the journey. What the Princess dislikes is, to put it bluntly, the society of Ottawa; or rather, the want of society. She is passionately attached to England, and to London above all. She cares for literature, for art, for music, for conversation. She is herself one of the cleverest women in England, and one of the most cultivated. She haunts studios and concerts, and drawing rooms, where good talk is to be had, to which she contributes her full share. Here she led a full and beautiful life. What is there in Ottawa to compare with it? There are stories floating about of passionate entreaties by the Princess for liberty to remain in England, and stern refusals by her mother. To the Queen, life has not perhaps much poetry left in it. She sees that the place of the Princess is with her husband, and she is a woman capable of suppressing personal feelings relentlessly, and enforcing political duties upon her children in the most austere spirit of the sovereign."

CHAPTER XXVII.

GREAT AND SUDDEN CHANGES—THE HOPES AND FEARS OF MOURNING HEARTS—DAVID RAMSAY PROVES A TRUE FRIEND, AND SAVES AGNES BORLAND FROM A DANGEROUS ENCOUNTER.

Alas! how terribly had her fears and forebodings been realized, and realized in a form far more dreadful than she had conceived. Not only had the sacrifice been in vain, it had led to an abyss of evil, in comparison with which the supposed evils which had been shunned were of no moment. In the bitterness of her despair she was again and again prompted to reproach her mother for the counsel she had given, and exclaim—"It is you, mother, you and Mr. Bishop, who have done this;" but when she looked into her mother's anguished face, her lips were sealed into silence, and the accusations of her bursting heart found no expression in words.

But mute upbraiding is often the most bitter and cutting. Agnes's silence went deeper to her mother's heart than would loud, angry invectives, and caused her to throw herself into her child's arms, with the heartrending wail—

"Oh, forgive me; forgive me. I did it for the best."

"I know you did, mother," moaned the wounded one. "It was hard, hard; but I also tried to believe it was best. I could have borne it if he only had not suffered; but, oh, mother, it has sent him to ruin, to—to——"

"No, no; not to death—let us hope and pray not to death. David Ramsay says he is sure Master Orwell is alive and well."

"Alive he may be, mother; but he is not, cannot be well, for wherever he is, misery and despair are with him. Oh, I wish I knew where I might find him, that I might go to comfort him in the dark hour of adversity."

"God knows where he is. He can give him comfort," murmured the widow, soothingly. "But, oh, Agnes, try to forgive me for the error. Had I forseen the issue, as Heaven is my witness, I would not have counselled so; and I am sure Mr. Bishop would not either. He told me only yesterday how bitterly he had reproached himself for being the means of sending Orwell away, when he meant to remain at home in happiness and love."

"He did, he did!" exclaimed Agnes, with a wail of woe. "He had formed a bright vision for the future, and was full of dreadless joy. But when I told him it could not be, the brightness vanished from his face, the light of his joy fled, and in the dejection of his broken hopes he was driven forth, and fell an easy prey to the designers. Oh, my poor, poor Orwell! Where hast thou gone?"

Grief like this could not last long. Fortunately the necessities of life came to interrupt its flow and prevent the heart from dwelling continually on its suffering. This is the beneficent arrangement of an All wise God, who acts in kindness to His creatures, and has various ways of healing wounds and binding up broken hearts. After a few days' abandonment to this consuming grief, other thoughts forced themselves on the attention both of mother and daughter. The ruin which had overwhelmed Orwell was not confined to him alone. The loss of the estate involved the loss of Mrs. Borland's annuity, which had been granted by Mr. Bruce at the time of her husband's death, which he had charged Orwell to continue, and which had been regularly paid until now, but which could be paid no longer, as Mr. Bishop had unwillingly intimated to Mrs. Borland.

The lawyer had felt this to be one of the heaviest tasks which the unfortunate situation imposed on him. He was saved from the worst part of it by Mrs. Borland herself, who caught the meaning of the hesitating words, and relieved him of the necessity of plainer speaking by letting him understand that she was aware the annuity must cease.

"That is the least of it, Mr. Bishop," said Agnes, who, being in the room, had heard their conversation, and entered the kitchen to express her view of the matter. "The loss of mother's annuity will, I trust, be easily got over. I am old enough now to work for her, and it shall be my pride, as it is my duty, to support her by labour suited to my capabilities."

"I am glad to hear you say this, Miss Agnes," returned the relieved lawyer, "and I am sure if I can be of any service or forward your views in any way I shall be most ready to do it."

"Thank you, sir. I shall not fail to claim the fulfilment of your promise, should I require to do so."

This was said with all gentleness of look and tone, but the sight of Mr. Bishop so called to her mind the cause of all that trouble that she could not trust herself to remain in the kitchen, but sought the solitude of the adjoining chamber, where her surcharged heart endured another outburst of grief.

The intimation thus conveyed was about the best thing that could have happened just then. It forced the thoughts of Agnes into another channel, and became a call for exertion, the necessity of which was immediate, for it was nearly three months since the last quarter's payment had been made, and the money in the house was almost gone. This knowledge roused Agnes to the sense of a new duty, and came as a blessed distraction in the midst of her heavy sorrow.

The question thus suddenly and pressingly forced on her attention was not without its difficulties. It was to Agnes Borland an utterly new and strange experience to have to consider such a subject as the means of livelihood presented for the first time, and thus it had a puzzling and perplexing aspect. She knew of no practical way of treating it. What kind of work could she engage in, or rather what kind of work could she obtain? What was she able to do, what would she like to do? Her occupations hitherto had been, as it were, accidental and unmethodical. She was active enough and capable. Along with May Bruce she had received a good, useful education, which raised her above the necessity of mental employment, but this perhaps rendered the matter all the more difficult. Had her vocation been to work in the fields, or fill the place of a common servant in a large establishment, such a sphere of labour might have been easily found, but for a girl of her acquirements, her intelligence and refined taste, a suitable occupation was far more difficult to obtain. The prospect of work, however hard, did not annoy her, rather did she court the attention and exertion it would exact as a means of carrying her away from brooding thought and the weight of misery so heavy to bear.

There was another whom the same catastrophe brought face to face with the like problem. This was Miss Elliot, who, by the death of May and the upbreaking of the Grange establishment, was deprived of a home and the means of subsistence. She had been a loved and honoured inmate of the mansion for twelve years, her calm, gentle, yet firm nature making her presence felt as a blessed influence silently permeating the entire household. As a friend and counsellor, as a teacher and instructor, her services had been beyond price, and by none had these services been more appreciated than by Orwell, who had trusted her implicitly, knowing that whether he himself was present or absent, the quiet order and peaceful harmony of the household would be maintained. By her, difficulties were over come, evils were lessened, sorrows soothed, with a sweetness and unobtrusiveness of action which increased the charm and power of her influence.

But this sudden calamity affected her as it did all the rest, its suddenness taking her by surprise, and making her unprepared to meet it.

"Where am I to go? What am I to do?" were the questions forced on her as on the others, and with more perplexing effect, for the servants could easily disperse themselves among the families of the district, while from her position she could not so easily find a sphere of usefulness as well as a source of livelihood. Miss Elliot seemed to have no friends to whom to turn in the emergency. No one knew of her relations, or whether she had any. During the years of her residence at the Grange she had held no intercourse with family or outside friends; but for the shadow which some past sorrow seemed to cast on her spirit, it was conjectured by those about her that she was alone in the world. Whatever her sorrow was or had been she kept the memory of it locked within the silent recesses of her heart, known to be there only by the chastened sadness which rested on her countenance. It was understood that she came to Galloway from one of the eastern counties, having been introduced to the Grange by the minister of the parish, who alone seemed to know her history, and vouched for her respectability and goodness. As this minister had been dead for several years, and as no one now alive knew her antecedents, her previous life and its local connections, produced no associations in the mind of others. Nor did it occur to anyone to think of the matter till this crisis came, when Mr. Bishop, prompted by anxiety for her future, asked as delicately as he could if it was her intention to go to her friends.

"I have no friends to go to," she quietly answered, with a grave sadness. "All the friends I have are here."

"I am deeply grieved when I think how this calamity affects you," continued the lawyer. "Your years of invaluable service in Mr. Bruce's household entitle you to a comfortable provision for life, and Miss May, poor thing, left instructions by which your permanent comfort was to be secured. But, alas! the source whence this was to be derived has been swallowed up in the general ruin which the unguarded youth has wrought."

"I know it, sir; but I have no word of complaint to utter. The peace and happiness I have enjoyed here are abundant reward for what good I have been enabled to do; and God, who has been so good to me hitherto, will be the breaker up of my way now. I have thought of a day-school for girls."

"Ah, indeed," said Mr. Bishop, brightening a little. "There are several such institutions at Cairntree, yet I don't know but room might be found for another."

"I do not mean at Cairntree," returned Miss Elliot; "but somewhere near the shore houses. My designs are on the fishermen's children, and the children of agricultural labourers in the neighborhood."

"Ah! a capital idea—really a capital idea. There is undoubtedly a want of such a school; and you, Miss Elliot, if you can set your mind to such humble teaching, are the very person to make its usefulness felt. But I fear it will be hard, unpleasant, ill-paid work."

"I am bold enough to risk all that," replied Miss Elliot, with a brave smile.

"Then, my dear lady, you shall have what help I can give, and I know one or two gentlemen who will assist in getting a schoolhouse fitted up. There is an empty cottage, with a large boat shed attached, at the top of the Shore Brae, which I have no doubt can be had for such a good purpose. If you are firmly resolved on beginning this work, I will see to the fitting up of house and schoolroom."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Bishop. I am resolved and am confident I shall soon have quite a large school.

This important matter being settled, Miss Elliot left the mansion and took up her abode at the cottage of the Borlands till the house alluded to was ready for her occupancy. Her society was a great blessing to Agnes and her mother, into whose feelings she could closely enter, giving sympathy, counsel and comfort to both, but especially to Agnes, whose sorrow she could so well understand, into whose suffering heart no one could so well pour the balm of consolation.

More than that, she had an idea that Agnes could be associated with her in the work of teaching to which she was about to devote herself, and the suggestion once made was eagerly grasped at, for could it be carried out Agnes would not require to leave her mother. The distance between the cottage and the Shore Brae could be easily walked by her morning and evening, and perchance when the cottage itself had to be left, as alas! there was almost the certainty that it must when the estate was sold, they could live together in the school house, and have the full and permanent enjoyment of each other's society.

Quite a flutter of eager expectation was created among the fisher folk and dwellers in the rural cottages near the sea when it became known that Miss Elliot and Agnes Borland were to begin a school on the Shore Brae head. Their little ones would now be taught without trudging all the way to Caintree, a necessity which had hitherto kept many of them from school, and deprived not a few of education altogether. The proposal was received with enthusiasm, and on the opening day the boatshed, now by Mr. Bishop's hearty exertions converted into a comfortable schoolroom, was filled by a large company of children—hardy, healthy, bright-eyed children, whose rudeness and ignorance would very soon be lessened under the ameliorating influence of the gentle teachers.

The position was humble enough and the remuneration small, but by economy they were enable to supply their simple wants, and for the present their ambition was satisfied. For both, but particularly for Agnes, the occupation was good and salutary, employing as it did the energies of her mind, directing the current of her thoughts from their gloomy channel, and making her forget for a time the sorrows of her heart. No tidings had yet been received of Orwell, and time went on without bringing the slightest intelligence respecting him the worst was feared by every one.

By every one but David Ramsay. Strangely enough, he persisted in believing, and in confidently expressing the belief, that Master Orwell was not dead, and that he would be heard of sooner or later. While all else shook their heads or sighed in hopeless despondency, he spoke with such an air of certainty and assurance that Agnes had her sinking hope revived whenever she and he talked on the subject, which was indeed as often as they met, for it was the subject always uppermost in their minds.

"Tell me, David, why you are so confident in this opinion," Agnes would often say to him, and though he never gave a plain answer to the question he repeated his conviction with if possible increasing emphasis.

"Dinna be sae dowie or doon heartit, my dear lassie" would David remark, in his kind tender way. "There's naething ill but it micht be waur. It's nae doot dreadfu' for Maister Orwell to hae lost a' his siller and hae the estate mortgaged to that auld sneck drawer, the laird o' Cairnbank—for he is a sneck drawer, or I am sair cheated—I say it's the greatest o' pities that this should hae happened, but the warst hasna come to pass. Believe ye me. Maister Orwell will be heard o' yet, and when ye see him safe and weel, ye'll ca' to mind what I aye telit ye, whan a' body else had gi'en up hope. Sae keep up yer speerits, my boony doo, and live in

We Take Pleasure in bringing before the notice of the Community the following very

IMPORTANT BRANCHES

OF OUR BUSINESS:

DRESS-MAKING.

In view of the difficulties so frequently experienced by ladies in getting a nice material properly made up, we feel especial pleasure in recommending our MRS. THOMPSON, who has charge of our Dress making Department. The numerous orders which come to us from a distance—resulting solely from an inspection of the work executed by her—and the continued patronage of those ladies who in the past have favored us, give us the assurance that in the Trade. Notwithstanding that this is generally called the dull season, we are retaining the services of our full staff of hands, who are all kept busy. We ask the ladies whose orders elsewhere have not always been executed to their satisfaction—and there are many such—to favor us with a trial. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in every instance

Our Dress-making Department is without its Equal

NOTE.—Our Stock of Black and Colored Silks and Stylish Dress Goods imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the City.

MANTLE-MAKING.

The merits of the work by our Mantle-maker, MISS MANNY, are so well and favorably known as to scarcely need mention by us. Ladies, who in their general purchases have not by any means confined themselves to our store, have found it profitable, satisfactory, and, in fact, necessary to entrust us season after season with their mantle-making. We always give satisfaction and never cause complaint. For the merits of our work, in comparison with that of other establishments we refer ladies to their friends who have had their orders executed by us. The experience of others is generally a pretty safe test. During the years in which the managers of our Dress-making and Mantle-making Departments have had charge, the most complete harmony and satisfaction have prevailed—an experience, we believe, not generally shared by other merchants in the city.

NOTE.—Our Stock of Mantle Silks, Velvets, Fancy and Plain Cloths, imported by us "is the largest and choicest in the city.

Merchant Tailoring.

We refer the male portion of the community to their friends who during the past year have had their clothing made at the Lion. Since our engagement of MR. McLENNAN as Cutter and Manager, our orders for nice goods have about doubled. We do not ask the 'fancy prices' generally charged, but guarantee that for style, fit and workmanship, our garments are not surpassed.

Our $14.50 Suits Regularly Sold for $18 to $20.

has caused alike the pleasure of customers and the discomfiture of competitors, and we ask gentlemen, to whom a saving of 15 to 25 per cent. is an object, to leave their orders with MR. McLENNAN at the Lion.

hope."

Such was the influence of words like those spoken by such a man as David Ramsay that Agnes felt comforted by them, and the hope which was fading and dying in her bosom revived so much when she heard them that in order to hear them frequently repeated she would throw herself often in David's way, that the sinking strength of her heart might be sustained, though it must be confessed that when left again to her own thoughts, trembling fears were apt to gain the ascendancy.

The name of David Ramsay having been frequently mentioned, and a faint indication of his character given, it is time we introduced him personally to the reader, so that he may take form and substance with the other individuals whose actions we are recording.

David Ramsay, who was now nearly fifty years of age, was a fine type of the douce, canny Scotchman. He was strongly built, and somewhat above the average height, but constant work for many years with rake, spade, and wheelbarrow had given a stoop to his form and rounded his shoulders, causing him to walk with his head a little bent, thereby giving him a meditative aspect, which was quite in accordance with reality, for though his mind could not be called bright or active, he was quiet and thoughtful. His face, which was long, had a mild composed expression a few thin locks strayed over his brown forehead, which many a time had been covered with honest sweat; he had soft, blue eyes and pleasant features, with, of course, the high cheek-bones, which belong to the sturdy race from which he sprang. He was fairly well informed, was sincerely religious, pious and reverent, of a naturally obliging disposition, ready always to give his help when help was needed. He was not a man of many words, but when he spoke it was generally to the purpose; he had a feeling heart a love of truth,, and a thorough appreciation of all that was true and noble in others.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Hon. Mr. Macpherson was much improved in health on Wednesday. All danger appears to be past.

GUELPH MARKETS

GUELPH, Feb'y, 19 1880

There has been so little done on our market the past week that we scarcely deem it necessary to say anything respecting it. Receipts have been light, undoubtedly, on account of the weather, which is unprecedented in the memory of the oldest inhabitants. Wheat is anxiously bought at the prices quoted, and as may be seen, demands a higher price than was paid last week. Peas and oats follow in the same strain.

The Markets.

Feb. 17.

The Liverpool market was firm for breadstuffs, and a penny dearer for red winter and white wheat. Beerbohm reported floating cargoes of wheat as improving. The Chicago market opened steady, after which there was a slight decline, and the closing prices were the highest of the day. In New York the market was quiet, and prices steady. In Montreal the local breadstuffs market is inactive and without change. Canada spring wheat is quoted at $1.35 @ $1 37. Quotations—Corn, 70c; peas, 77c; oats, 31c @ 32c. Flour is dull and no sales reported. Quotations.—Superior extra, $6 05 @ $6 10; extra superfine, $5 95; fancy nominal spring extra, $5 80; superfine, $5 50 to $5 55; strong bakers', $6 05 to $6 40; fine, $5 to $5 15; middlings, $4 40 to $4 45; pollards, $3 15 to $3 30; Ontario bags, per 100 lbs., $2 80 to $2 90; city bags, $3 25. In Toronto there was a small business done, holders still asking high prices and buyers rather shy. There were about 1,800 bushels of wheat, which brought from $1 27 to $1 29 for fall, and from $1 23 to $1 28 for spring. Barley, 500 bushels, at 58c to 64c, and No 1 would likely bring 70c. Peas, 500 bushels, at 64c to 67c. Oats, 200 bushels, at 37c to 38c. Rye, 200 bushels, at 80c. Clover seed was lower, and sold at $3 30 to $3 65. Hogs were easier, at $5 to $6.

A meeting of the unemployed workingmen took place at Ottawa on Thursday. One hundred were present. There was a general condemnation of the "National Policy," which had failed to give them more work, while the cost of living has been enhanced. They were dissuaded from marching to Parliament Hill in a body and in lieu thereof appointed a deputation to wait on Mayor Mackintosh and Sir John Macdonald.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Owing to political disturbances, the failure of crops, and other causes, the silk trade of Lyons is unusually dull.

The North British Railway Company have given official notice that they intend applying to Parliament in the ensuing session for leave to introduce a Bill for an Act authorizing the Company to restore and improve the communication by railway across the Firth or River Tay.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Constantinople, the object being to prevent disturbances in carrying out military reforms.

The British House of Commons on Thursday went into Committee on the Irish Relief Bill. An amendment to the third clause, moved by Mr. Shaw, (Home Ruler), for the purpose of permitting boards of guardians to execute under the loan, and with the sanction of the Local Government Board, works of drainage, improvement of waste lands, widening and deepening rivers, etc., was negatived by 109 to 89.

Lord Beaconsfield, alluding to the late attempt on the life of the Czar, said that the Duchess of Edinburgh, who is now at St. Petersburg, refused to quit the scene of so much domestic suffering.

Sir Pomeroy Colley, Private Secretary of the Viceroy of India, has been appointed Governor and High Commissioner of Natal, and commander of the troops in the neighboring district.

The Duchess of Marlborough denies the statement that her fund goes exclusively into the hands of the Catholic clergy for distribution. She says the fund is fairly divided.

Four bailiffs, accompanied by a large force of police, on Thursday distrained cattle for rent on a farm in the county of Waterford, occupied by a widow. A crowd of five hundred overpowered the police and recaptured the cattle. The ringleaders of the mob will be summoned for assault.

Severe Snow Storm in the North-West.

A Mail Train Stuck Fast in the Snow.

Acton Burrows one of the Passengers.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., Feb. 10.—Owing to the severe snow storm at St. Paul, the Minneapolis and Manitoba line is blocked at Rolette. A passenger train got down this morning, but the pay car stuck at Rolette going north. The mail train which left St. Paul this morning for the north, is ordered to remain here all night. A number of Canadians are on board. The only sleeping car passengers ar Acton Burrows, of Ottawa; C. A. B. Brown and H. Smith, of Toronto. It is hoped communication will be resumd to-morrow.

Fire in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Feb. 20.—A fire was discovered in the Bank of Montreal this morning about six o'clock and the alarm at once given. The fire originated in waste paper in the basement. The clerk in charge for the night, Mr. Christian, was aroused by the smell of smoke and proceeded to awaken the family of Mr. Travers, the manager, and to give the alarm. Smoke passed up through the partitions rapidly and nearly suffocated some of the inmates on the upper flat. On the arrival of the fire brigade the bank was so full of smoke that the fastenings of windows and doors could not be got at, and the iron shutters had to be broken in before the water could be used. The fire was speedily got under control. Principal damage by smoke and water, the fire running up inside the north wall in a narrow strip. The building was formerly owned by the Merchants Bank and sold to the Bank of Montreal. It is not expected the fittings and office furniture will be much the worse. The furniture and effects of Mr. Travers, the manager, who resided above the bank are considerably damaged. Loss not known yet, but fully insured.

Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

A correspondent of the Halifax Mail gives some particulars concerning the ladies who have accompanied the Princess Louise from England. Lady Pelly is the daughter of Lord Elcho, a well known Scottish member of Parliament; Hon. Mrs. Langham is a daughter of Lord Macdonald, of the Isles. Both ladies are Scotch, and of the oldest and most honoured Scottish families. Many from the West Highlands now in Canada will remember Mrs. Langham as the Hon. Eva Macdonald.

Local News.

THERE are twenty-five patients in the General Hospital at present.

WEATHER PROBS.—Increasing southeasterly to southwesterly winds; fair milder weather.

SOCIAL.—A number of citizens intend going to the social in Forest's school house, Guelph Township, to-night. Teams will leave the American Hotel at seven o'clock.

CALEDONIAN MEDAL.—Four rinks left the city for Brampton this morning to play the same number from Toronto for the Caledonian medal. A telegram from Brampton states that the Toronto players failed to put in an appearance and the umpire awarded the medal to Guelph. A friendly game is in progress between the Brampton and Guelph curlers.

HAND HURT.—George Little, son of Mr. W. J. Little, met with a severe accident while skating at the carnival on Thursday evening. He was going rapidly over the ice when another skater collided with him, who knocked him down. At the same time some one struck his left hand with their skate with great force, between the third and fourth fingers, causing an ugly gash of considerable length. The sufferer was taken home when the wound was dressed.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.—As announced yesterday, this talented reader will appear at the City Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings next. Those who attended her last entertainment here will scarcely fail to repeat the visit, and there will doubtless be a greater demand for tickets than on the last occasion. It is no wonder Mrs. Scott Siddons is meeting with success and that newspapers go into extasies over her wherever she appears—she is so graceful, her elocution is so perfect and her entertainments are so pleasing.

ASSAULTING THE POLICE.—William Kaleher appeared at the Police Court to day, (Wednesday) after remand, charged with assaulting C. E. A. Turner, in August, 1878, Mr. Turner being a policeman and on duty. Aside what has already been published about the case, it was learned from the evidence that on the night of the assault the prisoner, together with two young men named Smith and Biecker, were making a disturbance on Macdonnell street. The policeman followed them to the Albion Hotel, where he tried to arrest Kaleher, but the latter outran him. Smith and Biecker continued to act in disorderly way and the police called for assistance and proceeded with the aid of Fred. Wilson to take Smith to the Police Station. When opposite Palmer's livery stable Kaleher struck the policeman on the head with a stone, and afterwards threatened to strike Wilson. The policemen fell immediately and was unable to attend to his duties for two weeks. The stone with which he was struck was produced in Court, and weighs about half a pound. The prisoner was sentenced to three months imprisonment in gaol.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.—One of the most extraordinary cases on record is reported in Ottawa. It appears that Mr. Adams, who keeps a grocery store on Sparks-street, some seven or eight months ago received a shock during a thunder and lightning storm which so upset his nervous system that he found it impossible to obtain natural rest. A narcotic was administered which caused him to sleep for three days continuously. Since that time, strange as it may appear, he has not slept a wink, and a remarkable feature in connection with the case is that he is able to move about as usual. His medical attendants are puzzled, and have resorted to all kinds of treatment to secure sleep. It is said that Mr. Adams will shortly go to England in the hope that a change of air will have the desired effect.

On Wednesday night a well known gambler of Toronto, and a member of the Local Legislature from an eastern constituency had a game at poker, in which the latter dropped close on $1,200.

The Central Irish Relief committee, of Winnipeg, have remitted $1,000 to Dublin. This is the first Manitoba contribution towards the relief of the Irish distressed.

It is said that the Deputy Ministers at Ottawa have been supplied with a kind of Windsor uniform for State occasions and that the Dominion treasury had to foot the little bill. The first class clerks have made application for a similar suit.

Dr. Parsons, of Buffalo, was last Wednesday called to be the pastor of Knox Church of Toronto. There was another candidate, and the amount of cordiality in the call is, it seems, not very great.

On Wednesday evening, Rev. David Mitchell, of Toronto, who has accepted a call to the John-st. Church, Belleville, was made the recipient of an address accompanied by a purse containing over $300, together with a handsome gold brooch and an elegant silver cake basket for Mrs. Mitchell from the congregation of the Central Presbyterian church.

It is learned that the Government are considering a proposal that all staff appointments in connection with the North-West Mounted Police shall be in future from among the graduates of the Royal Military College at Kingston.

The Dominion Art Exhibition, under the patronage of the Governor-General and the Princess Louise, will probably open on the second of March, in Ottawa. The Governor has donated an annual grant of $1,500 to the institution, and Colonel Gilmour, of Ottawa, $500.

The following bulletin was issued by Dr. Grant, on Thursday:—Her Royal Highness, although progressing favourably, must have rest and quiet, and in consequence of the severity of the injuries to the head and neck will not be able to undergo the fatigue of any public ceremony for many days.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, FEB. 19.

Among the petitions presented, was one by Mr. McKim—From the Town Council of Mount Forest, against the Bill abolishing market fees.

Mr. Mowat introduced a Bill entitled an Act for the Relief of Permanent Building Societies.

Mr. Pardee moved the third reading of the Bills to amend the Free Grants and Homesteads Acts.

Mr. Meredith moved in amendment that the Bill be not now read the third time, but that it be referred back to Committee of the Whole forthwith, with instructions to amend it by providing that settlers who have already entered upon free grant lands, and have not located upon but who shall locate upon such lands within three years of the passing of this Act, shall have the option of receiving either patents giving them the right to Crown timber which is given by the existing law, or the rights which are proposed to be given by the said Bill. The amendment was lost, 25 voting for, and 53 against it. The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

Mr. Hardy moved the following resolution:—"That the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time appoint Inspectors of Division Courts, who shall hold office during pleasure, and that such Inspectors may be paid a salary not exceeding $1,400 per annum and such actual and necessary travelling and other expenses as shall be from time to time deemed proper, and that the same shall be payable out of the consolidated revenue of this Province,"—Carried.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Division Courts Act. Several clauses were adopted. On the ninth clause coming up for discussion.

Mr. McKim said that the same machinery now in use in the Division Courts would carry out the proposed change. He approved of the Government appointment of clerks and bailiffs, and believed the time had come when a thorough inspection of Division Courts should be instituted. He ventured to say one-third of the clerks and bailiffs in the Province would be found to have given insufficient bonds for the proper performance of their duties. Many of these bonds were of old standing, and had become practically worthless, and if a more substantial security was insisted upon the public would have better security for the prompt handing over of all moneys coming into the hands of these officials.

Fruit Grower's Association.

The winter meeting of the Fruit Grower's Association of Ontario opened at Hamilton, on Wednesday, the President, Rev. Mr. Burnet, of Hamilton, presiding. There was a good attendance. Among the visitors was Mr. Woodward, of Lockport, N. Y.

The President announced that the Ontario Government had increased the annual grant to $1,800. This was most encouraging. He was glad to inform them that Mr. Wood, in speaking of the grant to this Association, had stated that is was more beneficially expended than that given to any other organization in the province.

The President read a paper by Dr. John A. Warder, of North Bond, Ohio, on "Planting trees along our roadsides for shelter, shade ornamentation, what to plant and benefits of such planting."

Dr. Watt called the attention of the Society to the disease called yellows in peaches, and asked for some action to be taken in representing the same to the Local Legislature for some power to be given to municipalities for the proper destruction of the infected trees.

Second Carnival of the Season.

The Rink Crowded—Presence of the Artillery Band.

The second carnival on the rink this season, held on Thursday night, was an unqualified success. Not only was this the case in respect of attendance, but many of the costumes were of the finest kind. The presence of the Artillery Band which mustered in full force was also a great attraction, and the life of the entertainment. All their musical selections were well chosen, and rendered in first-class style, being marked by sweetness and precision. The pleasing arrangement of the programme was also noticeable, being interspersed with many lively dashing pieces suitable for the occasion.

By half-past seven o'clock the skaters began to crowd upon the ice, while spectators commenced to fill the seats at the western end of the rink. Another hour and the place was one blaze of light and brilliancy. The band in uniform occupied a platform in the centre of the rink, and the skaters went spinning round them in all directions. By this time there could not have been less than two hundred and fifty skaters, while the number of spectators had increased to over seven hundred. The ice was literally packed, so much so indeed that the crowd had to pass onward, and when an unlucky individual fell he had to draw himself behind some shelter or support with lightning movement. The uncertainty of standing on skates was shown in more than one amusing tumble. As one expects to find in such a crowd, there was a queer mixture of characters. Some presented smiling faces, some grinning faces, laughing faces, hideous faces, with broken noses, Chinese faces with the almond shaped eyes, black faces—faces of every description. There were representatives from the "upper ten" commingling with negroes, clowns, Chinese, &c. &c. Many of the dresses were very handsome and a few worn surpassed any ever supplied here by costumers. A very pretty make-up was worn by two persons representing a bride and bridegroom and though curiosity ran high to discover who they were, repeated attempts failed. Another character which was perhaps as good as any on the ice was the jolly farmer. He had a plump, rosy, smiling face, his body was corpulent and no one could fail to detect at once the character. Skating was continued for some time after ten o'clock when the skaters began to leave and by half-past ten the ice was clear.

The following are the names of those who attended who gave their names to the Secretary of the rink, together with the characters they represented. The few characters without names that appear at the end of the list are those that did not wish to be published. There are a few names also given in the general list that are not to be found in the city directory or any other directory:

The Hon. Mr. Blake showed in his speech in the Commons that the national debt of Canada had increased nine million dollars from 1878 to 1879 under Sir John's Government.

Western Ontario Dairymen's Association.

The third annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario was opened at London on Wednesday. The attendance of the dairymen from different parts of Canada and the United States was very large, showing that great interest is manifested in this important industry. Among those present were Rev. W. F. Clarke, of Guelph.

The Secretary read a short paper on "Our Creamery Butter," from Mr. A. Ayer, of Montreal, who was unable to be present. This paper advocated a change in the old system of churning. A cool place should be provided in which to hold the milk, a cool place in which to churn, and a cool place to keep the butter in after it was churned. It also spoke against the use of cheap machinery, cheap buildings, and poor hands for butter factories, and also recommended instead of using sawn staves for barrels in which to back the butter, the use of split staves.

Mr. C. E. Chadwick next read a paper on "The Cow and the Grass." He referred to the very honourable position a farmer holds in the community, and said that success was not attainable by even them unless they worked hard, and if they wanted good crops they would have to cultivate their land thoroughly. A great problem among the farmers of to-day is how to decrease the cost of production and increase revenue. The cow and the grass were a source from which a farmer could derive quite a revenue, provided he chose a good quality of cow. He thought that more attention should be paid to the selection of dairy stock. Without good seed a farmer could not raise good crops. He generally makes it a point to examine the seed very carefully, and to choose only the very best. The speaker could not see why the same principle should not apply to the selection of dairy stock. If poor stock were chosen the result would be that we would have poor cheese and butter. There were the Devons, Ayrshires, and other stock which were very good, but he thought that if we crossed our native cattle between these and others we would have very good dairy stock. He urged upon them the necessity of treating their cows kindly, as by kind treatment they would give more milk and better milk than if harshly treated. He held that the natural food for cattle was good grass, which could only be obtained by good cultivation. Some farmers let certain parts of their farm go to grass year after year, and yet they wonder why it is that they do not get more hay. What man has done man can do, and he held that there was no earthly reason why farmers should not raise about twenty tons of hay to the acre, as well as farmers he had known near Edinburgh. The farmers in England do not think that the farm will support itself, but they manure it, and assist it in every way, and that is the reason that such large crops are taken off some of their farms. In France 53 per cent. of the land is under cultivation, and in England only 25 per cent., and yet England produces 5 1-9 bushels of grain per head, while France only produces 5¼ bushels per head. The reason of this was because in England they put about fifteen times more manure on their farms than they do in France. In closing he urged the farmers to be more ambitious in every way.

Rev. Mr. Clarke said that he was always ready to speak in favor of red clover. It was the only plant that grows which leaves the land in a better state than we find it, and benefits the land all the more by maturing its seed. He would urge the farmers to get over their old prejudices against this kind of grass. There was not one farmer in 500 who knew how to cure red clover rightly. He would recommend them to cut the clover in the early blossom, and then cure it, but not dry it up. He knew a great deal about poor soils, and he affirmed that if those who had poor land would use more red clover, the result would be that the soil would be enriched to a great extent. When properly cured the clover made better fodder than any meadow hay. He knew a great number of farmers who were running down their farms by growing turnips. Chemistry has proved that there is 90 per cent. of water in the Swede turnip, and therefore the farmer was growing nothing more or less than a field of water in a bushel of turnips. There was only six pounds of solid food and the rest was water. He believed that red clover attracts ammonia and distributes it on the surface of the ground, which greatly enriches it, while the Swede turnips scatter the ammonia. He recommended a trial of red clover as a means of re-invigorating their impoverished soil. In answer to a question he said that he did not mean to convey the idea that red clover received all its nutrition from the atmosphere.

Mr. U. S. Loosee, of Norwich, said that one time he used to raise about 3,000 bushels of turnips, but he had discontinued raising them as he had found that they impoverished the land. He preferred feeding mangolds rather than turnips to cattle.

Mr. Geo. Hamilton, of Stratford, said that the best farmers in Perth fed their cattle on wheat and oat straw and turnips. He did not think that cattle would flourish as well as if they were fed on clover and straw.

Prof. Arnold read an essay on "The Elements of Profit in the Dairy." The essay contained a number of good suggestions to dairy farmers, urging upon them the necessity of keeping their cattle well housed, and showing that it costs less to keep a cow in good comfortable quarters in the winter than to let it be exposed to the weather. He claimed by looking after the cattle well in this respect a saving of one cent per pound in the cost of cheese could be effected. In reply to a question he said that the best milk-producing food is grasses, either green or dry. He also stated that in winter, water heated to a temperature of about 60 degrees was better for the cattle to drink than the very cold water pumped out of the wells.

Mr. Dugald Leech, of Strathroy, said that he had some experience in giving cattle warm water to drink, and had always found that when he did so they gave more milk then when getting cold water.

Mr. Clay, of Bow Park, being asked his opinion regarding this question, said that he had made no experiments in that way, but it was well known that the cold water that is generally given to the animals is very detrimental to the system. In this connection he would say that some farmers treat their cows in the most disgraceful manner. Cows may be seen with the ribs sticking out of their sides, and yet the farmer expects to make a profit out of them. But if they would have good returns they must feed their cows well. He recommended them to raise Indian corn, and feed it to the cattle in a green state, and he was sure they would be surprised at the result.

Rev. W. F. Clarke followed with an excellent essay on "Good Milk, its Importance, and how to obtain it." He said by good milk he meant milk which is both rich and pure, good in quality and good in condition. There is a vast difference in the quality of milk. Cows also vary in the quality they give. Some milk is so rich that twelve pounds of it will yield a pound of butter, and some so poor that it requires 44 pounds of it to make a pound of butter. Even so great a disparity has been found to exist in a single herd. The subject fully stated would be:—"Good milk in large quantity; how to obtain it." The profits of dairying are made out of cows that give large yields of rich milk; but there are too many of the other class. It is no slander or libel to affirm that not more than 50 per cent. of the cows in the dairy herds of Ontario pay a profit to their owners. Cows that give a small quantity of poor milk are worse than useless for dairy purposes. They not only yield no profit themselves, but they eat a hole into the profits from the cows that do pay. Poor cows hurt the dairy business more than poor markets. Facts and figures were given to prove these statements, and the evils of dairy production at a loss were forcibly pointed out. The importance of obtaining large yields of rich milk having been shown, the next question was "How to do it?" The answer involved a revision of the dairy business and a return in some degree to a system of mixed husbandry. Weed out the poor cows; use only thoroughbred bulls of the best milking strains; breed from the best milkers in the herd, and raise all the heifer calves. As young herds must to some extent be replenished by purchase dairymen must understand the signs of good milkers. The various points of the different breeds of cattle and their several uses were stated, and the feeding and general management of cows were dwelt upon. A good cow, half-starved, stinted of water, and badly cared for generally will give but a poor account of herself. Good milk as to condition requires the best of food, pure water, absence of offensive smells from the pasture and stable, avoidance of all worry and overheatings in driving cows, regular, quiet, and thorough milking, absolute cleanliness of hands, pails, cans, and all utensils, and general good management. On all these points the dairymen of Ontario have had "line upon line." Their sins are no longer sins of ignorance. They should heed those two precepts of the Bible, "Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks, and look well to thy herds"; "If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them,"

FRIDAY EVENING, FEB. 20, 1880.

The Boundary Question.

Mr. Mills has given notice in the Dominion House of a measure in regard to the Boundary award. Mr. Mills was engaged in the arbitration on behalf of Ontario, and is thoroughly informed in regard to the matter. In this connection we are pleased to see that Mr. Mowat has declared his intention to take possession of and administer justice in the territory given to Ontario by the Boundary Award. This is in direct opposition to the Government at Ottawa, who have come out flat-footed in opposition to the Boundary Award, and refuses to accept the decision of the arbitrators, although in honor bound to do so. That award was rendered unanimously by Chief Justice Harrison representing Ontario, Sir Francis Hincks representing Quebec, and by Sir Edward Thornton sitting as chairman and third party. The boundaries of this Province were much enlarged, though by no means to the extent that was claimed on the part of Ontario. Mr. Mowat at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, got an act passed by which Ontario accepted the award, and, so far as it could, made it legal and binding for all time. Sir John Macdonald, seeing an opportunity to make political capital in Quebec and in the North-west by refusing to enact the law that his predecessor had committed the good faith of the country to, he resolved to be guilty of a piece of bad faith and refuse the necessary legislation, without which Ontario cannot enter upon her own land and open it for colonization and settlement. Upon being challenged for this breach, he defended himself on the ground that the award was not fair to the remainder of the Dominion, and that it should have been made by three lawyers. Mr. Blake made a severe attack upon the treachery of the Government, and in stinging language exposed its trifling with a most serious matter. Sir John, ever ready to shilly-shally when he is faced by an unpleasant question, put up a private member to move for a Committee to look to see if the boundaries as fixed by the award were similar to those supposed to be settled in a general way by old proclamations and Acts of the Imperial Parliament. It was clear from the first that Sir John's Government are bound, at all hazards, to prevent Ontario receiving her just dues. It is the old, old story—Quebec Tory influence bound that Ontario shall not receive justice. Last spring, the leader of the Local Opposition intimated in Wingham, Chatham and St. Thomas, that if Ontario did not support the Conservative party, the newly awarded territory might not be handed over. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, took possession of the territory during his tour last summer, and as possession is nine points of the law, Ontario may secure it yet, in spite of Sir John's avowed opposition.

After a spirited debate, which closed on Thursday night, Mr. Dawson's motion for the appointment of a Select Committee to inquire into matters connected with the Boundaries between the Province of Ontario and the unorganized territories of the Dominion, was carried, 123 voting for, and 52 against it. Every Ontario Conservative—including Messrs. Drew and Orton—save Mr. Bannerman, of South Renfrew, voted for the motion, and every Liberal in the House, irrespective of Province, voted against it.

MR. Girouard's deceased wife's sister's Marriage Bill is the first measure of the kind presented to Parliament since Confederation, several having been tried unsuccessfully before that.

THE Hon. Mr. Botsford, Speaker of the Senate, has no seat in the Cabinet.

MESSRS. McLaren & Trenholme, of Montreal, have been instructed to take legal measures to contest the election of Mr. Abbott for Argenteuil. The evidence of the fraud is ample to secure the voidance of the election.

AT the Opposition caucus at Ottawa, it is understood that the Supreme Court came up for discussion. Mr. Keeler and others are said to have favored the complete doing away with the Court, while the general opinion was that some amendment to the Act was desirable.

THE Government have fixed the amount of the grant to the Irish relief fund at one hundred thousand dollars, or twenty thousand pounds sterling. There seems to be no opposition to the grant except on the score that it might have been larger.

THE Montreal Gazette condemns the scrutiny exercised by the Opposition in the Ontario House in regard to items of expenditure for provisions and liquors in the trip to Manitoba. It regrets, for the sake of the dignity of the position of the Lieutenant-Governor, such conduct.

UNDER the skilful cross-examination of Mr. Blake, the Dominion Government has been forced to acknowledge that the junketting trip to Europe last summer was barren of results, and that Canadian Ministers received no guarantee or promise whatever from the Imperial Government in regard to the Pacific Railroad.

MR. C. H. McIntosh, it is rumoured, is making another dip into the public treasury through the connivance of the Minister of Agriculture, who holds a $12,000 mortgage on the plant of the Citizen newspaper. Mr. J. H. Pope, as head of the Immigration Department, has kindly given his friend, at confidential rates, the printing of 30,000 pamphlets on "Canada as a Field for Immigration." The pamphlet is said to contain over 130 pages.

THE Constitutionality of the Canada Temperance Act will be brought before the Supreme Court of the Dominion during the present term, on appeal from Fredericton, New Brunswick. Mr. Lash, Deputy Minister of Justice, has been engaged by the Government to defend the Act, and Mr. Robinson to oppose it. Mr. Kaye has also been retained by the liquor interest in Fredericton, and Mr. Maclaren, of Montreal, by the Quebec branch of the Dominion Alliance.

DUNDAS Banner.—The escapade of Mr. Macdonnell, the eye-glassed swell Secretary of the U. E. Club, just at the close of the last session of Parliament, when he appeared on the floor of the House in a state of intoxication, and openly insulted the Hon. Mr. Huntington and the House, has not been forgotten, although when Mr. Mackenzie referred to the matter, Sir John remarked that he scarcely remembered it. The offender is to be summoned to the Bar of the House, and will probably be let off easier than he deserves to be. In the case of an ordinary drunken rowdy and blackguard the punishment would be imprisonment, but we suppose the "party of gentlemen" who now control affairs at Ottawa will let their friend off with an apology and an admonition not to do it again.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

LUCAN, Feb. 19.—The following is the text of a threatening letter received by Bill Donnelly:—

PORT HURON, Mich., Feb. 14, 1880.

WM. DONNELLY,—You and your relatives have been a disgrace and a curse to our country. Your chances are favourable to leave now. If you delay our friends will arrest you; so take warning. If your brother Patrick remains at Lucan he will take his chances with our friends for assistance when we think proper. Yours truly. One that saw your Father and Mother fall.

The letter was mailed at Sarnia.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Rain Proof Crapes, Grout's best and most reliable qualities. Also every requisite suited for funerals, all at wholesale prices.

Staple Department.

We urgently request all intending purchasers of Heavy Grey Cottons, Bleached Cottons, Sheetings, Colored Shirtings, Blue Derry, Brown Derry, Ducks, Table Linens, Brown Hollands, &c., to lose no time in visiting our establishment for them. Our stock, bought previous to the great rise in these goods, amounting to over $35,00 worth, will soon be cleared out. The rush daily for them at the old prices makes Upper Wyndham Street look each day more like a fair day. We are bound to rush things lively, and our motto is good goods, cheap goods, reliable and courteous attention to every customer, and all goods fairly represented, and one price only. Our salesmen are courteous, gentlemanly and obliging, and will spare no pains to suit every patron of that Wonderful Man's, who is a terror to evil doers, and old bankrupt moth-eaten goods dealers.

"A DEAD CALM"

A dead calm seems to have settled down upon the east end of the city, and business generally may be considered at a stand still there. Even the weather has to-day thrown its hoary mantle over the scene and the strets are comparatively deserted. Upper Wyndham street, however, continues to to enjoy the cheering presence of a

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.

During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.

I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.

Also a case of lovely new prints.

Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.

In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

CHAPTER XXVII.

GREAT AND SUDDEN CHANGES—THE HOPES AND FEARS OF MOURNING HEARTS—DAVID RAMSAY PROVES A TRUE FRIEND, AND SAVES AGNES BORLAND FROM A DANGEROUS ENCOUNTER.

Shortly arter the revelation of Orwell's ruin was made, when poverty and destitution seemed to have come on Mrs. Borland, his kind, honest nature showed itself in a characteristic manner. He appeared one afternoon at the cottage, and began occupying himself in the little garden, fastening branches, tying up straggling shoots, demolishing weeds, and raking away dead leaves; but doing it all in a restless way, as if he had something on his mind which he was anxious to unbosom himself of, yet had difficulty in doing so. When Mrs. Borland came out now and then and spoke a few words to him his fidgety manner increased, and several times he appeared on the point of saying something when his courage failed him.

At last, when the widow brought out a jug of milk, and insisted on David sitting in the porch to drink it, he summoned resolution to deliver himself of the real errand on which he had come.

"Mrs. Borland," he began; "I hae been thinking'——"

"Yes, David."

"Th—thinkin', that, as this dooncome o' the master will mak' a great change."

"Alas! yes, a great change to us all," said the widow, in a broken voice.

"And—and to you in particular," said David timidly.

"Very true, my friend. I shall feel it with special severity."

"Just that. The—the bit annuity——"

"Will cease. I am quite aware of it."

"Weel, I was thinkin' that noo—ye micht—micht——"

Here David's courage failed him again, and he stopped short.

"Might what, David?" asked the widow, wholly at a loss to gather his meaning.

"Might be induced to—to—ye mind what I ance spoke to ye aboot?"

Tears of warm gratitude came into Mrs. Borland's eyes, for now she comprehended that David Ramsay wished to save her from the poverty which impended by making her his wife, and obtaining the right to support her. This generosity touched her deeply. Had David Ramsay been less selfish than she knew him to be, this renewed offer of marriage might have hurt her pride and sensibility, for it seemed to be taking advantage of untoward circumstances for his own benefit, and implied that what she had refused to do before she would do now for a livelihood. But well aware that such an unworthy idea of her had never entered David's mind, that his renewed proposal was wholly prompted by the readiest and most generous of motives, she answered him in a broken voice with words of sincerest thanks—words which showed how thoroughly she understood his simple-minded invitation, and the unfeigned gratitude which she felt on account of it.

At the same time she let him understand that she had resolved to descend to the grave as the widow of Adam Borland.

"Very weel," returned David with great meekness, "we'll just say nae mair aboot it, and we'll be guid freends a' the same."

"Surely we will," returned the widow, earnestly. "Our friendship is too precious to be broken. Next to my daughter you are the one on earth whose regard I most value. I am now in darkness and great worldly trouble, but God, who has given a special promise to the widow and the fatherless, will not forsake me in this extremity."

It was shortly after this that the simple, beautiful faith of Mrs. Borland was rewarded by the opening of the Shore Brae School, by which Agnes was able to support her mother and herself in a humble enough way, but still in a manner commensurate with their plain and moderate wants.

No one rejoiced at this more sincerely than David Ramsay, and it was a frequent custom of his in the afternoons about the hour when Agnes was on her way home to walk in the direction of the Shore Road, and accompany her a part of the way. This he did from no idea that she required his protection, for none of the neighbors would think of annoying or molesting the fair girl, whose goodness had endeared her to all hearts. Nevertheless there came a day when this kindly attention on David's part proved of essential service to Agnes, and saved her from a disagreeable alternative, which threatened to become dangerously unpleasant.

The afternoon of a cloudy but dry and windless December day was closing as Agnes, on her homeward way, was crossing the strip of moorland which separated the seacliffs from the woods and fells beyond. Twilight had not absolutely arrived, but its first shadows were creeping down from the uplands, and the light which from morning had been dull was sensibly on the wane. As she had abundance of time to reach the cottage ere darkness had set in, she did not walk with hurrying step, but moved with her usual deliberation, her thoughts wandering, as they always did when alone, to the absent Orwell, and the dread uncertainty in which his fate was enveloped. When about the centre of the moor she saw, without particularly noticing, the figure of a man at some distance, and though by the direction he was taking they were likely to come into close contact, she was too much under the influence of the thoughts which occupied her to bestow particular attention on the person thus drawing near till he was only a few yards distant, when she perceived it was Reuben Langton.

She started when she made the recognition, and her heart throbbed painfully, not from personal apprehension, but because this was the first time she had seen Reuben since his return from Paris, and he was closely associated in her mind with Orwell's ruin, a large share in which she had been unable to avoid attributing to him. Of course she had heard the story he industriously circulated that Orwell had run his fatal career among the gambling houses in spite of his strenuous efforts to restrain him, but she strongly suspected that the tale was false. Reuben Langton had never been a favorite with Agnes. The instincts of her pure heart had recoiled from him as from one whose character was not true, and she had often regretted that Orwell was so much under his influence. Nothing had transpired within the region of her observation to give positive evidence of his unworthiness, but the clear penetration of her woman's nature made her intensely dislike him, and regard him as an unsafe friend or counsellor.

Her strange unmistakable dislike for the youth had been entertained in spite of many attempts on his part to make himself agreeable to her. For Orwell's sake she had treated him with the naturally sweet civility of her disposition, and had thus unconsciously made him believe that he had impressed her favorably, that she had seen his liking for her, and that were his simple headed rival not in the way, his chance with her would be a good one.

Seeing him now within a few yards of her—her natural dislike to him increased by her suspicion in relation to Orwell, she would have passed on with the coldest of salutations, but as this was no chance meeting on his part, but one that he had carefully planned, her evident wish was not regarded.

He stood in the path right before her, took off his hat, bowed, and smiled with the most amiable expression.

"Ah, Miss Borland, delighted to see you. Sorry I have not had the pleasure sooner. It is cruel of you to keep so much out of the way of your friends."

Agnes answered with cold gravity—"I am not aware, Mr. Langton, that I have kept out of the way of my friends."

"Oh, but you have, indeed. I have often walked in the woods in the hope of seeing you, but you never made yourself visible. A dreadful thing this about young Bruce. How astonished you must have been when the truth came out."

"I was more than astonished, sir," replied Agnes, with a firmness due to rising indignation. "I was deeply grieved."

"Not to be wondered at. And you have also a right to be very angry with him, seeing the evil he has brought on you all. I am sure I did all I could to keep him from the gaming table."

"If that be so, sir," she returned, regarding him with a steady look, "if that be so, you have nothing to reproach yourself with."

"Of course not. But he was an obstinate, headstrong fool, and would not take the advice of one older, and wiser than himself."

"Then he must have been utterly changed when abroad from what he was at home. I never found him obstinate or headstrong."

"Oh, I daresay he would agree to all you said, do all you wished. That was but natural. If you had known him as I know him, Miss Borland—— but there, I won't say any more. Poor fellow—he has suffered for all his faults."

"It is getting dark, Mr. Langton—I must proceed on my way," said Agnes, hastily interrupting him, her eyes blazing, her face in a flame.

"I will accompany you," rejoined Reuben, turning and moving by her side.

"Oh, there is no occasion for that—none whatever, Mr. Langton. I am quite accustomed to walk home alone."

"Ah, but that is from necessity, rather than choice, I hope. What is this I hear of you, this wretched drudgery of teaching the fishermen's dirty brats to read and sew; such work must be very disgusting to you."

"Indeed, it is not," she hotly answered. "I like it very much."

"Nonsense, you say so only because you have been forced into it. It must be shockingly annoying to you, who have been accustomed to a very different life, and have a right to look for something infinitely better. I am quite angry at the thought of your being subjected to such degrading slavery. Do spare my feelings by giving it up."

"By giving it up!" repeated Agnes, standing still to gaze her astonishment. "And to spare your feelings, Mr. Langton?"

"Yes, my feelings. I cannot bear to think of you placed in such a position."

"Then, sir, do not any longer annoy yourself on my account," said Agnes with an indignant smile. "I am neither ashamed of the position nor feel it irksome. Good evening, Mr. Langton. I shall not trouble you to accompany me farther."

"Nay, but stay," he cried, "I have something much better to offer you."

Once more she stood still and regarded him with an astonished look.

"You have been the object of my admiration—of my strong and passionate love. Be mine and save yourself from this state of poverty and privation.

Utter amazement kept Agnes for some moments dumb. When the power of speech returned she slowly, wonderingly, asked—

"Is this an offer of marriage you have made me, sir?"

"Do not fear but it will end in that, when I have no longer my father's opposition to encounter. Yes, by heaven, I swear, Agnes, that so soon as I can prudently do so I will make you my wife and——"

"Stay, sir!" exclaimed Agnes, drawing herself up to her full height, and fixing on him a look of unutterable scorn. "Let this insult go no further. Leave me, sir, leave me instantly—I command you."

"Why should I leave you? I see I have been too hasty, too precipitate; yet I thought you were not wholly unaware of my love."

"Your love!" exclaimed Agnes, in a tone of measureless contempt—the love of a man like you—a man as incapable of feeling pure and honourable affection as a stock or a stone. No greater degradation could I be subjected to than this—that I am considered a fit object for such base regard as yours. Had you been capable of aught manly or honourable you would not have dared to pollute my ears with such foulness. But know, sir, that had your proposal been as honourable as it is dishonourable, I would have rejected it without a thought."

"Do you affect to despise me, then?" he said; with an incredulous smile.

"No, I do not affect to despise you. My feelings of detestation and abhorrence toward you are unspeakably intense. Let me pass. I will not be longer detained. Your very presence is pollution."

"Take care, Miss Borland," returned Reuben, keeping his position, while his brow darkened fiercely. "Do not try me too far; my patience has limits."

"Which is more than your rudeness has, or your insulting presumption," retorted Agnes, whose outraged feelings made her bold and dauntless.

"Presumption!" said Reuben, in a mocking tone. "Are you so lofty in your own esteem that you deem it presumption in one of my position to offer comfort and luxury to a penniless gardener's daughter, who has been brought up on charity; or are your hopes still set on Orwell Bruce, the prodigal spendthrift who has no doubt capped his folly by ending his life? I know you had a wild dream regarding him, but that must be ended now."

"Oh, heaven! must I longer bear this?" moaned Agnes, with an imploring look towards the grey darkening sky.

"Do you still reject my proffer?"

"With unutterable scorn and loathing," she answered. Then a glad cry escaped her, and she added, "Thank God, yonder is one who will deliver me from your hateful presence."

He looked hastily round, and saw in the distance, coming towards them, the figure of David Ramsay.

"Curses on it! What brings that provoking scoundrel here?" he muttered, with an enraged scowl, and as the words fell from his lips Agnes darted past him, and sped with thankful steps towards the staunch and sturdy friend whose appearance had never been more welcome.

"Madam, you shall repent this rejection," hissed Reuben, after her retreating form, which his eyes followed with a look of baffled rage.

He did not think it prudent to remain on the spot, lest the doughty champion which Agnes had obtained should be incited by her to avenge his dastardly insult. Venting his rage in bitter maledictions, he turned on his heel and walked off in an opposite direction, firmly resolved to take sweet and ample revenge for the scorn and contempt with which she had treated him.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induce the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices ha taken place.

The Premier moved that the House today do consider in Committe of the Whole the proposition to grant relief to the distressed poor of Ireland.

The debate on Mr. Dawson's motion relating to the Ontario boundary question was resumed by Mr. Mackenzie, who defended the personnel of the arbitrators appointed to determine the true boundary of Western Ontario. He said "true boundary," because those were the precise words used in the official documents. The concluding part of his remarks dealt principally with the moral aspect of the Government's conduct in thus contemplating the violation of a solemn contract.

Mr. Macdougall, while admitting that Ontario was entitled to the whole of the territory awarded, contended that the appointment of a Committee of Investigation would assist in informing members of the House thoroughly upon the subject, but his opinion was that the Government and not a private member should assume the responsibility of adoptiug such a course. In concluding his remarks he maintained that Ontario was quite competent to administer justice in the whole of the territory which the arbitrators had awarded her.

Mr. Casey followed, and criticized the various objections to the award raised by members on the Ministerial side, and cited several illustrations to demonstrate the untenable nature of the Premier's statement that no English Ministry would have delegated such authority to the arbitrators as the Opposition claimed had been delegated.

Mr. McCarthy closed the debate by an able speech, somewhat remarkable for its anti-Ontario tone and his enunciation of the principle that Ontario representatives were in the House rather to guard Dominion than Ontario interests.

The division resulted in 123 yeas and 52 nays—a majority of 71. Every Ontario Conservative, save Mr. Bannerman, of South Renfrew, voted for the motion, and every Liberal in the House irrespective of Province voted against it.

Mr. Colby, with a few brief remarks, seconded by Mr. Girouard (Jacques Cartier,) moved the second reading of the Bill to repeal the Insolvency Law.

Mr. Mackenzie pressed upon the Government a definition of their policy in regard to the Insolvency Bill promised in the Speech from the Throne, and asked when that measure would be brought down.

The Minister of Justice replied that the matter was under the Government's consideration. Sir John, who enetered the chamber at this moment, did not hear his colleague's reply, and he claimed that the Speech did not promsie any Bill, but merely said that the condition of the Insolvency Law would be discussed.

Mr. Casey humorously predicted that in future the country might expect the Speech from the Throne merely to deal with probabilities, and that the Government would play the role of political Vendors. Sir John has been very excitable of late, and the remarks so riled his susceptibilities that in retorting he forgot the courtesy due to the House. The debate was continued by Messrs. Hesson, Sproule and Cameron (Victoria), McQuaig, Weldon, Hesson, and Robertson (Hamilton), after which the Bill was read the second time.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

MANHOOD RESTORED

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

Troubling a Postmaster.

A lantern jawed young man stopped at the post office last Saturday and yelled out:

"Anything for the Wattses?"

The polite Postmaster replied: "No, there is not'

"Anything for Jane Watts?"

"Nothing."

"Anything for Ace Watts."

"No"

"Anything for Bill Watts?"

"No, sir."

"Anything for Tom Watts?"

"No, nothing."

"Anything for 'Fool Joe' Watts?"

"No, nor for Dick Watts, Jim Watts, nor Sweet Watts, nor any other Watts, dead, dying, living, unborn, native, foreign, civilized or uncivilized, savage or barbarous, male or female, white or black, franchised or disenfranchised, naturalized or otherwise. No, there is positively nothing for any of the Wattses, neither individually, jointly, one and inseparable, now and forever, amen.

The boy looked at the Postmaster in astonishment then said:

"Please look if there is anything for John Thomas Watts?"

Mr. Colby's Bill to amend the Petroleum Act, proposes to make the test more uniform, and to remove the unfair discrimination against American oil. In the Eastern townships American oil is used almost entirely, and the effect of the present law has been to increase the price and also to encourage smuggling.

Cheering reports come from Ottawa and Quebec of the prospects of the lumber trade. The improvement in the square timber trade is about 40 per cent., and in the lumber trade prices have advanced 25 per cent. This improved state of business is owing to the foreign demand.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

It is stated that Lord Chelmsford is to be appointed to the Governorship of Malta which shortly falls vacant.

Lord Derby, in a speech at Liverpool on the 26th of January, said:—"Intellectual activity is in itself a moral safeguard. It kills vicious taste just as in the bodily life a healthy appetite for food keeps out the morbid craving for drink. Therefore it is to the spread of School Boards and of all that goes with them I look for moral and social as well as intellectual improvement.

The Kolnishce Zeitung describes an ingenious device practiced by the Nihilists to divert the attention of the St. Petersburg police. They send anonymous letters, informing the police that such and such houses are tenanted by Nihilists. The police visit the houses, where, of course, they find nothing, and thus become wearied out with following false clues. The Nihilists then enter the houses examined, and in many instances remain there unmolested.

Child Lost Under the Ice.

WINDSOR, QUE., FEB. 21.—This morning two children were playing on the river bank with a sled and were carried too far into an opening in the river. A man seeing the accident ran with a board and and saved the youngest, the eldest aged about 7 was carried under the ice and lost. They were sons of L. Gagne, one of the sufferers in the late boiler explosion here.

From Toronto.

Dr. W. J. Grant, of Weston, in making an experiment, swallowed a dose of strychnine, and but for prompt measures of relief would have undoubtedly died, as it is he is very ill from the consequences.

It is understood the Local Government intend to introduce a Bill at the present session to dispense with the system of grouping townships, for the purpose of compelling ratepayers to contribute bonuses in aid of railways.

The school population of Mount Forest is 1,007.

The Senate is about laid up for the want of something to do.

One of the amusing scenes of Thursday's debate was that of Mr. S. R. Hesson giving advice to the Leader of the Government. For the rest of the evening it was noticed that Sir John had a very wise look.

The Arion Masquerade ball in New York on Thursday night was attended by 20,000 persons. The receipts were $75,000, giving over $25,000 profit.

The county of Waterloo Sunday School Association closed its seventh convention at Ayr, on Friday evening.

At a meeting held in Wellesley the other night, it was determined to establish an entire spring horse, cattle and seed show early in April, combined with an extra cattle fair, in which there will be prizes paid for the fattest cattle, and that a Thursday fair will also be held monthly thereafter.

It was so cold in the Common's Chamber in Ottawa on Friday afternoon that the M.P.'s wore their overcoats, and press men were allowed by the Speaker to put on their capes. The cause of all this trouble is that during the recess Hon. Mr. Langevin dismissed Mr. Gilmore, the competent chief of the mechanical staff, simply because he was a Reformer.

Along the Pacific coast this has been one of the coldest winters on record. In mines which are usually intolerably hot water has frozen at six hundred feet below the surface, and in private houses water-pipes have burst, even when the fires were all burning.

SOUTH BRUCE REFORM ASSOCIATION.—At the annual meeting of the Reform Association of South Bruce held on Friday at Riversdale, the following officers were elected for the current year:—President, H. P. O'Connor, of Walkerton; First Vice-President, D. E. Cameron, Lucknow; Second Vice President, James Millar, Kincardine township; Treasurer, Wm. Pringle, Culross; Joint Secretaries, W. T. McGregor, of Walkerton, and W. M. Dack, of Kincardine.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.—The Napanee Standard says:—A few days ago Mr. Wm. Peters, of Earnesttown, about two miles west of Wilton, while assisting in dressing clover on the farm of Mr. James Hicks, met with an awful accident which resulted in his death. By some mishap, or fatal carelessness, his hand became caught in the cylinder of the mill, the sharp, closet teeth seizing the flesh and drawing the arm into the whizzing maw of the machine, slashing the flesh into quivering ribbons from the fingers to the shoulder.

FIRE IN BRUSSELS.—A fire took place in Holmes' Block, Brussels on Thursday night, about seven o'clock, in the store occupied by R. W. Tuck, general merchant. Smoke was observed issuing from the building, and considerable time elapsed before the location of the fire was discovered, which proved to be in the cellar. The fire engine was promptly on hand, but considerable time was lost in getting the water on, which, however, once started, soon put out the fire, thus preventing what no doubt would have proved to be a very destructive fire. A keg of gunpowder was happily removed in time to prevent a terrific explosion. The goods were slightly damaged from smoke and water, and are fully insured in the Ætna.

VERY HANDSOME.—The collections taken up in the Catholic Church, Berlin, on Sunday, 15th inst. for the relief of the distressed in Ireland, amounted to $152, and at St. Agatha, to $60.

The Hon. Mr. Blake showed in his speech in the Commons that the national debt of Canada had increased nine million dollars from 1878 to 1879 under Sir John's Government.

Local News.

EARLY LAMBS.—Mr. Evan McDonald has a couple of lambs nearly two weeks old.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh to strong South Westerly to North Westerly winds; partly cloudly and slightly colder weather.

A NUMBER of "cheap John" merchants have again taken possession of the Market Square to-day, and are bawling as freely as they are allowed to sell.

LEGAL.—The County Attorney of Bruce has decided that a bailiff does not exceed his duty when he breaks the lock of a barn in order to levy on goods to satisfy a judgment of the courts.

A contemporary says:—It is not generally known, but should be, that a handful of flour thrown on burning oil will quench the flames instantly. The next time you have a lamp explosion, try the experiment, and see how like a charm it will work. It is well worth remembering.

CHALMERS' CHURCH Y. P. A.—The weekly meeting of this association was held in the Church last night, there being a fair attendance of members. A good programme of music, readings and speeches was successfully carried out.

THE SWINDLING TRICK AT CLIFFORD.—Particulars were given a few days since of a swindling trick at Clifford through which Willard Huntingdon obtained $76 from John Vance. The prisoner was tried before Judge Chadwick, here, on Friday, and proved guilty of the offence. He was remanded till Monday for sentence.

THE HOGS THAT WENT TO GALT.—The Reporter last week stated that two farmers living within one mile of Guelph had each driven a load of hogs to Galt market for sale. That was true so far as it went, but it was not mentioned that they did not sell their hogs, and had to take them back home again. The farmers in question brought the same hogs to Guelph market to-day (Saturday) where they were disposed of.

ROBBERY AT ERIN.—The other night the pockets of John Clarke, hotel keeper, Erin, and a commercial traveller stopping at the hotel, were rifled while they were asleep. Clarke was robbed of $34 and the traveller of $50. Two men also stopping at the house were suspected of the theft and were searched, but the money was not obtained. No clue has yet been found as to who the guilty parties are.

NARROW ESCAPE.—John Ewing, cab driver, narrowly escaped being run over by a Grand Trunk freight train at the Huskisson street crossing this (Saturday) afternoon. He drove with his cab up to the south side of the railway track, where he stopped while a freight train was passing from the east. A freight train was coming from the west at the same time and was within a few yards of the crossing. After the train going west had passed, Mr. Ewing started to drive across the track, unaware of the approach of the other train. Before he could clear the rails the engine struck one of the hind wheels of the hack, breaking it off. Fortunately this was the only damage done.

INCIPIENT FIRE.—A fire which might have resulted somewhat disastrously, but for its timely discovery, occurred in Puslinch on Friday afternoon. As Mr. Glennie was driving along the 7th concession, he noticed a bright flame in the barn of Mr. Amos, lot 4. He drove up to the house as speedily as possible, and informed Mr. Amos that his barn was on fire. By this time a good deal of the straw in the mow was ablaze. After some exertion the fire was subdued. On examination it was found that a quantity of rags had been saturated with oil and placed among the straw. Mr. Amos is a tenant, and has no insurance on his stock. A large number of farm implements were in the barn.

SOCIAL IN GUELPH TOWNSHIP.—A most successful social was held in the school house of S. S. No. 6, on Friday evening to assist in purchasing a new bell and clock. The attendance was large and the audience passed a most enjoyable evening. Refreshments were provided in abundance by the ladies, and no less than two hundred persons sat down to the tables. When the goodthings had been done justice to Mr. H. G Roberts, teacher, was called to the chair. An interesting programme of music, vocal and instrumental, readings, etc., followed. The entertainment came to a close shortly after ten o'clock, with the National Anthem.

LEGALIZED ROBBERY.—The myrmidons of the law, it is well known, are too often in the habit of grinding out from those who fall into their hands far more in the shape of fees than they are entitled to by any principle of right or justice; hence a case in which one of these grabbers was made to disgorge will be heard of with great satisfaction by those who have had experience. At Guelph on Tuesday one Conway, a bailiff, was brought before the Police Magistrate on a charge of having collected excessive fees in a seizure which he had made. The result was that Conway was ordered to refund to the plaintiff in the case three times the amount of fees he had charged, viz., $10.60. This calls to mind an incident of sharp practice which occurred in this city a few days ago. A legal firm got a bill of $190 to collect. The money was duly obtained, but the charge for collection amounted to $115. In this case it would have been better for the creditor to have taken 50 cents on the dollar and left the law alone.—Hamilton Spectator.

FARM SOLD.—The McBain estate, comprising 100 acres, in Puslinch, was sold by Mr. James Taylor, auctioneer, from the Crown, at the city hall to-day (Saturday), for $2,340.

BREACH OF THE CAB LAW.—Joseph Emery and John Ewing, cabmen, were charged at the Police Court on Wednesday with soliciting passengers at the Grand Trunk platform, last Monday. Being the second appearance of these parties on the same charge, a fine of $4 and $3.55 costs was imposed on each. The Magistrate cautioned them that if they were charged again with the same offence he would double the fine. This forenoon James Welsh and Robert Soden, cabmen, were charged with a similar offence. It being the second appearance of Welsh, he was fined $4 and $3.55 costs. Soden was discharged, the case not being proven against him.

THE RIGHT TO LIGHT.—The first section of a bill read the third time the other day in the Legislative Assembly makes an important change in the law of real property. Under it no person will hereafter be able to acquire a prescriptive right to the use of light for any dwelling house or other building. Under the law as it now stands, if a house has been standing for a certain number of years no person can erect another house alongside in such a way as to darken any window in the one already standing. Much litigation has taken place in the past as the result of this prescriptive light, which will be prevented hereafter as the result of the passage of this law.

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—Charles Nelles, aged twelve years, son of Mr. J. A. Nelles, met with a severe accident while skating on the rink on Friday evening. The lad, with some larger boys, was playing crack the whip when he was sent with great violence against the rope dividing the ice reserved for curling, and that for skating. The rope caught him under the chin, throwing him backwards on the ice on his head. He was carried into the sitting room in an unconscious condition, where, after some treatment, he revived, and was taken home. To-day he is confined to his bed and is suffering considerably from his wounds.

DISREPUTABLE HOUSE.—Polly Goggins, about 20 years of age, was up before the Police Magistrate to-day, charged with keeping a house of ill repute on Neeve st., and Patrick Hollerin was charged with being a frequenter of the same. The girl, who is a daughter of John Goggins, had to leave home some time ago, on account of her father and mother separating. She lived at different places in the city and a short time ago started this house. The neighbors complained to the police of disorderly conduct in it, and on Thursday night the Chief visited the place, but the girl was away from home. He again visited the house yesterday and arrested the prisoners. The girl, who seemed to feel her position keenly, was given some sound advice by the Magistrate, and discharged on condition that she should leave the city immediately. Hollerin was also discharged.

A STRATFORD PRIEST ABROAD.—The following anecdote is going the rounds of the English newspapers:—The Rev. Dr. L. B. Kilroy, of Stratford, Ont., says the Notre Dame Scholastic, two years ago visited Lourdes, France, in company with the Catholic Bishop of London, Ont. While there the Bishop and he were received among the missionaries of Lourdes with the greatest hospitality. Father Semp, the superior, struck with the gigantic proportions of the Bishop, and the not much inferior dimensions of the Doctor, asked with humorous smile, "Is everybody in Canada as tall as you and your companion, Monseigneur?" "Everybody has to be," replied the Bishop, with emphasis. "Why so?" enquired the missionary. "Because," returned the Bishop, "everybody there who does not carry his head well up towards six feet above the ground would be smothered in snow." Quil pays affreux," exclaimed the good simple priest.

Some idea of the influx of population into Manitoba and the North West may be obtained from a detailed statement of last year's business in Dominion lands published in the Winnipeg Tribune. The homestead entries, preemptions, forest tree culture, claims and sales amounted in all to 1,028,386 acres, not including the half-breed allotment lands, settlement belt lands, or those disposed of under the Manitoba Act, the business in which was also considerable.

FIRE AT THE MODEL FARM.

Dwellings of the Farm and Garden Foremen Burned to the Ground.

Estimated loss $2,000—Insurance Unknown.

The Household Furniture Saved.

About half past three o'clock this (Saturday) morning fire originated in the double dwelling house, at the Model Farm, occupied by Mr. Barron, gardener, and Mr. Mahon, farm foreman. The fire must have been in progress some time, when Mrs. Barron was aroused by a crackling sound, and after listening for a time she called to the family, who were sleeping in the upper story that the house was on fire. They rose and dressed hurriedly, and rushed out of the burning building. About the same time some of the students, who had seen the fire from the Agricultural College arrived on the scene. The flames had then just extended from the porch through the doorway and the kitchen, in the rear part of the house. Some of the students formed a line between the pump and the burning building, and passed pails of water, which were emptied on the fire, but which had little effect in allaying the flames. Others went to work to demolish the wooden porch and an adjoining woodshed, while busy hands assisted in removing the furniture, and carrying it to a safe distance from the fire. A messenger was despatched on horseback to the city to apprize the firemen and procure their services. Meantime the furniture was all removed with very slight damage.

The wind blowing from the west favored the removal of the goods as it drove the flames to the rear part of the house. Here they were confined for a considerable time, but they gradually spread upwards over the roof and towards the front of the building. When they had made such headway it was useless to continue fighting the flames and there was nothing left but to stand idly by and wait the arrival of the fire brigade. Finally the messenger returned and stated that he had seen Chief Armstrong, who said it was useless to take out the engine as there was no water supply to draw from. It then became apparent that the fire must take its course, and that there was no hope of saving any part of the building. The fire was raging fiercely and though there was no danger of the other buildings taking fire from the heat, as the burning house was isolated, cinders were carried by the west wind in the direction of the large barn and stables which made a careful watch about them necessary. There was a quantity of straw outside, and this, taken together with the fact that the barn is constructed of wood, caused anything but pleasing anticipations. Had these buildings caught fire it is difficult to say how serious a conflagration might have followed. Fortunately the cinders were extinguished as they fell. The fire in the dwelling houses continued till about half-past five o'clock when nothing was left but the stone walls. The loss is estimated at about $2,000.

For some time the Government proposed removing the building in order to have the lawn unobstructed, and it is believed they intend carrying out this proposal next summer. For what amount it was insured is not definitely known. Mr. Brown, Farm Manager, states that the insurance policy was renewed at the beginning of the present year, and that the building was well covered.

The origin of the fire is not known. When the families retired for the night an examination of the premises was made, when everything appeared to be all right.

It is a matter of serious consideration to the Government whether they should not have an extension made of the Water Works to the College. One thing is clear, that the present facilities for the suppression of fire is altogether inadequate, in fact the supply of water is not more than sufficient for domestic purposes.

The License Question.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR.—I read in your weekly paper on Thursday that the Council at its last meeting had decided to reduce the license fee for taverns and groceries, and to increase the number of tavern and shop licenses. As no reason is given for this action of the Council, I would take the liberty of asking you if you know any, for outside of the Council the ratepayers don't seem to know any reason, and not a few of them are astonished that the whole question was allowed, as it were, to go by the board, when there were such advocates of temperance as Messrs. Stevenson, Robertson and others, who at least—if they could have done nothing more—might have entered an earnest protest against such work. As they seem to have failed in their duty, I feel it mine to bring the matter under the attention of the people of this city through your columns.

Yours, &c.,
RATEPAYER.

Guelph, Feb. 21, 1880.

Mr. Dunbar and the Lancashire Relief Fund.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—On reading your weekly edition yesterday evening, I noticed your paragraph inserted at Mr. Elliott's suggestion, correcting an alleged mis statement made by me in moving a resolution at the meeting on Monday night last. I then for the first time looked at the report in your paper of what I said at the meeting, and was surprised to find it stated there, that I said a grant had been made by the Council for the relief of the Lancashire sufferers. Now the fact is, I said nothing of the kind, nor did I ever hear any one else say so. When I spoke of relief having been sent to the Lancashire operatives, I made no reference to the Council. Your reporter must have entirely misunderstood me. The only reason I referred at all to the distress in Lancashire was to call attention to the fact that other portions of the old countries, as well as portions of Ireland, had required assistance in the past, and might require it in the future.

Yours truly,
A. DUNBAR.

Guelph, Feb. 21, 1880.

CURLIANA.

The Caledonian Medal.

Four rinks of the Guelph Curlers went to Brampton on Friday to play the Toronto club for the Caledonian Medal, set apart for Guelph and Toronto. It had been arranged between the two clubs to play in Brampton, four rinks a side, some time ago, and Mr. Jas. Flemming, of Brampton, was chosen umpire. After the date for playing the match had been changed twice, partly on account of the weather, and partly on account of Toronto, the day was finally fixed for Friday last. On the Thursday previous, several telegrams passed between the Toronto and Guelph clubs with regard to where they should play. The Toronto club stated that they could not play four rinks in Brampton, as all their players would not be able to get away, and invited the Guelph club to go to Toronto, or play three rinks in Brampton. A meeting of the committee who had the arranging of the match in hand were called together. It was almost unanimously decided that they should play the Toronto curlers on their own ice, but as the game had been placed in the umpire's hands for several weeks before, the committee considered that they had no right to take the matter out of his hands, and telegraphed him to the effect that they were ready to play in Brampton or Toronto, as he desired. An answer was received from Mr. Flemming, ordering the game to be played in Brampton, four rinks aside, at eleven o'clock on Friday, as previously arranged for. Accordingly, the Guelph curlers started on the morning named, and arrived in Brampton as we learn, all equipped with "besom an' stanes" eager for the fray, but to their disappointment, Toronto did not put in an appearance, upon which they had the honour of carrying home the medal by default, without throwing a stone for the fair trophy. Their ardour was not however to be dampened thus. They must play Brampton, and from the score, which stood at the close 68 in favour of Brampton, it may be imagined that there are two sore clubs to-day, namely, Toronto, which might have had an easy victory, and our home club over their sweeping defeat. The play of the Brampton "chiels" is described as something exceptional on this occasion; and the home club speak highly of them as a hearty and obliging lot of curlers. The following is the score:—

The License Question in Guelph

We had intended to say something on the action of the Council on Monday night on the license question, and the letter from a "Ratepayer," which we publish to-day, forms a fitting text for our remarks. He asks us if we know any reason why the license fee should be reduced, or why the number of tavern and saloon licenses should be increased. We can honestly tell him that we know of none—that as far as we are aware the whole thing was sprung on the Council, and that the Council grievously failed in its duty in allowing the report to pass in the shape it did without a thorough discussion of the whole question.

As to the question of reducing the license fee we have no desire to see our hotel and saloon keepers paying more than the same class does in other places, but they had not much to complain of. When the Crooks' Act first came into force the hotel or tavern licenses were fixed in Guelph at $180, and the shop licenses at $160. In the one case the Local Government received $80 and in the other $60, leaving $100 clear for each license to the Municipality. In 1877 a reduction of $20 was made in both tavern and shop licenses, the Town losing thereby $20 on every license issued. Last year owing to the incorporation of Guelph as a City before the 1st of May, the Government exacted the fee of $100 for all licenses issued in cities, instead of $80 as before, and the holders thereof had to pay this sum. But now by the action of the Council, while the Government gets its $100 for every license issued the city gets only $50, while since 1877 it got $80, and previous to that $100, for every license issued.

Not a little was said about the hardships of these license holders, that they had to contend with hard times, and had difficulty in making ends meet. And yet after all this simulated sympathy, the Committee recommended to increase the number of tavern or saloon licenses from 17 to 20, and the number of shop licenses from 10 to 12. At the same time they waxed eloquent on the respectability of our public houses, and then in the next breath increased the licenses, and opened the door to all kinds of undue competition which tends to destroy the respectability so much vaunted. We are proud to say that the majority of our own public houses are noted for their respectability, but this cannot be said of all of them in this city, and the members of the License Committee well know it, though it did not suit their purpose to say to.

The Council is without excuse in their recommendation to increase the number of licenses in this city. There can be no conceivable reason for it, either as regards increase of population or prosperity, and if such an injudicious course is followed it would do more to destroy the respectability of the houses already licensed than anything else that could be devised and would stultify the position of the License Committe and the Council, who while taking credit for the generl good character of our licensed houses, seek to cut up and kill their business, and lower the character of their places by needless and vexatious competition.

In this emergency we will have to look to the License Commissioners, whoever they may be, for we have heard nothing yet as to who are to fill the vacancies—present and prospective—to checkmate the wrongdoing of the Council, and not only in the interests of the present tavern and saloon keepers, but in the interests of morality, to sternly set their face against the increase of licenses in Guelph. The places already licensed are sufficient for all the legitimate purposes of trade, and any increase to them will be unwarranted, indefensible, and in direct antagonism to the will of the great majority of the people of this city.

MR. Forbes's article on Lord Chelmsford and the Zulu War, in the Feburary Nineteenth Century, must have one of two effects. It must draw a reply from Lord Chelmsford, or it must be accepted as an unanswerable condemnation—as a demonstration of the pitiable incapacity which marked Lord Chelmsford's conduct of the campaign from beginning to end. There is matter in it which will surely be heard of again; whether in Parliament, or, as Mr. Forbes ominously hints, before a court martial. He fastens on Lord Chelmsford the responsibility, heretofore less definitely proved against him, of the catastrophe of Islandula. It will be a greater surprise to the public to find that Lord Chelmsford's presence at Ulundi was due to an accident, and that his conduct after that victory involves him in a a graver culpability than weighs on him for his previous mistakes. Mr. Forbes calls it "a culpability that threw to the winds the results of the victory of Ulundi, devolved on another the work of finishing the campaign, and involved the country in a needless expenditure." In plain terms, Lord Chelmsford disobeyed Sir Garnet Wolseley's orders, and it is this disobedience for which Mr. Forbes intimates that Lord Chelmsford may yet be put on his defence under military law. There is, no doubt, a strong public apathy in regard to bygones, but this paper will be read for the vigor of its military criticism and for its curious revelations of the inside history of the eventful campaign in Zululand.

MR. Hooper had the indecency, notwithstanding the protest against his seat, to sit in the House on Thursday and give his vote on the Ontario Boundary matter.

The Public Guzzles in Sandfield's Time.

The inquiry into the accounts connected with the Lieut.-Governor's trip last summer over the Dawson road to Winnipeg, has brought out some interesting revelations about the expenses of the Government trips indulged in during the time of the Sandfield Macdonald Administration. We find that Mr. Phillips, the Chief Messenger of the House, when examined gave full reports of several trips organized chiefly by Mr. Carling when he was Minister of Public Works, most of the supplies for which were purchased by him (Mr. Phillips). One trip was to Lindsay to visit a lock, one to Belleville, to choose a sight for the Deaf and Dumb Institute, one to Muskoka, one to Brantford in connection with the Blind Asylum, and above all one around Lake Huron and Superior on the steamer Chicora. He purchased the supplies for that trip from Frank Smith & Co., and they were charged to Mr. Carling. When he went to that firm recently for the accounts they were refused. The supplies embraced wines of several kinds, whiskey and ale in barrels, brandy, a barber, etc., all at the public expense. Mr. Langmuir, the Inspector of Prisons and Asylums, when examined, said that he remembered an occasion in 1871, while the "Patent Combination" was in power, when an entertainment was given both in Toronto and London Lunatic Asylums to the Convention of Medical Superintendents of America, under instructions from the Attorney-General of that time. He then recited a long bill, beginning with champagne and ending with "ladies cakes" and "Aspic jellies." Among the other accounts were one of $64 for cab hire, one from the Great Western Railway for fares amounting to $222.93; Tecumseh House, London, $64.50; seats in Pullman cars, $22.50; bills at hotel, London, $7.25; cab hire, Toronto and London, $4.25; do, $13.25. All this, be it remembered, was paid out of the public money of the Province. Mr. Langmuir said he had also been on the Chicora trip which had been organized in 1868 by the Government of that day. It lasted twelve or fourteen days, and there were between one hundred and two hundred persons in the party, including forty or fifty members of Parliament and a number of outside parties. A band and a piper accompanied the expedition. Anything they wanted in the way of drinks was provided at the public expense—beer, wine and spirits. They had brandy, sherry, claret and corkscrews, and had the eatables proper for the occasion. He had also attended an expedition to Belleville in 1867 in connection with the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, and another to Brantford the same year. Wines and liquors were supplied on both these occasions; in fact they were always taken along when members of Parliament were of the party.

Such is the record of the guzzles in the time of Sandfield Macdonald's Government. We have had one such under the present Government, and that is enough. We hope never to hear of any more such trips undertaken by, or countenanced by, our friends.

MR. SPRINGER has a bill before the Ontario Legislature which provides that only members of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies who are present in person shall vote for the board of directors.

MR. WHITCHER, Commissioner of Fisheries, in his report states that the total value of the productions of the Fisheries of Canada in 1879 is reckoned approximately at $13 500,000. The official figures for the preceding year amounted to $13,215,678.83.

THE unemployed laborers in Ottawa met again on Friday morning. The city members nor the Mayor were not present. The former were seen subsequently and a deputation is to wait upon the Minister of Public Works to-day. The speeches made at the Market Hall were strongly against the "National Policy." The manner in which contracts are given out was also condemned, as the contractors grew wealthy at the expense of the workingmen. They want Government work constructed by day work.

STRATFORD Beacon: The total liabilities of the Dominion are now $183,974,753, against $174,957,268 in 1878—an increase of nearly nine millions. Canada is certainly well loaded down with debt, the proportion being nearly $50 per head of the population besides all the municipal and private obligations. In view of this fact, the wisdom of Mr. Blake's contention of the folly of a handful of people attempting to build a Pacific railway on the present plan, as well as the utter incompetency of the persons at the head of affairs, becomes very evident.

SAYS the Port Hope Guide: There is a trifle too strong a flavor of "C. H. Macintosh" pervading the Public Accounts. It is impossible to escape it in turning over the pages of the ponderous departmental blue book. The name "encompasses us behind and before, and lays its hand heavy upon us." On nearly every page it occurs, with a memorandum of something drawn from the public coffer. Now it is a trifle of $3, next it is a huge lump of $3,942. Nearly every combination of figures ranging between these two appears, and some of them with distressful frequency. "C. H. Macintosh" is an item in the governance of Canada not to be despised.'

THE total number of steamboats in the Dominion is 775, having a gross tonnage of 155,631 tons, and 94,686 tons register. Of this number 217 belong to West Ontario division. Under Reform rule the number of vessels and aggregate tonnage gradually increased, while under Tory rule there is only an increase of two in the number of vessels, with an actual decrease in the tonnage. This is the first decrease recorded since Confederation, and speaks volumes against the operation of the tariff.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

ONTARIO ought to be proud of the present Government. A committee has been appointed to decide as to its boundaries, and there are only two members from the Province on it.

EXTRAS.—Extras are costly. The carpenter's contract price for work at the new Court House at Hamilton, was $11,900, and his extras amounted to 11,870. For the stone work the contract was $42,000—extras, $12,915. For painting, &c., the contract was $2,583—and the extras were $5,349 16.—Dundas Banner.

ROAST BEEF.—Mr. P. O'Rourk, of Shakspeare, has lately purchased from Mr. Moore, of Waterloo, three of his premium steers. Two of them are three years old and weigh 2,400 pounds each, the other is six years old and weighs 3,100 pounds. They are without doubt three of the finest beef cattle in Canada and are to be shipped next week to Montreal. It is expected they are intended for the English Easter market.

AN OLD JAIL BIRD.—It appears that Purtell, one of the parties suspected of participation in the Biddulph butchery, is not the harmless creature he has been represented to be. It is shown that he once made the acquaintance of the Stratford Police Magistrate. Three years ago a party of Germans were attacked one Sunday in the huckleberry swamp in the township of Ellice and brutally beaten, one of them being stabbed so seriously that his life was despaired of. Several of the gang were arrested, among them Purtell and Maher, and when tried before the Police Magistrate they were convicted and sentenced to six months each in the Central Prison, where they both served their full time. Purtell's record while residing in this section was remarkable for ruffianism and cowardly conduct in several rows in which he was mixed up—Stratford Herald.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb, 20.

Mr. Tooley asked whether it was the intention of the Government during the present session to ask the House to vote any grant of money for the relief of the distress in Ireland; and if so, what amount?

Mr Mowat said it was the intention of the Government to ask such a grant. The amount would be made known in the Supplementary Estimates. (Cheers.)

Mr. Crooks moved the third reading of the Bill respecting the expenses of Insurance Companies. Carried.

The House considered in Committee the Grand Junction and Toronto and Ottawa Railway Bills.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill respecting the debenture debt of the city of Guelph. The Bill was adopted.

The House went into Committe on the Bill to amend the law for the protection of game and fur bearing animals, when several amendments were made.

Mr. Mowat moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the Niagara Falls and the adjacent territory. In making the motion he referred to the interest which Lord Dufferin had evinced in this matter, and to the action which was being taken by the State of New York. The intention of the Commissioners appointed by the Legislature of that State was to recommend the Legislature to pass a Bill for the purpose of valuing the land needed for the purpose in a way which was customary there. On the part of the Government he had had some correspondence with the Dominion Government on this subject, and a despatch had been sent giving a history of the subject and discussing particularly why should pay whatever money might be needed for carrying on a work of this kind. The result was that if anything was to be done at all it would have to be done by the Dominion as it could not be considered a Provincial work, and Ontario would have to contribute a large share in any event. It had been suggested that the Dominion Government might not have power to possess themselves of the territory required, and he had therefore thought it desirable to ask the Legislature to pass an Act setting aside any question upon that point. The Act provided that with regard to this matter the Dominion Government should have the same powers as the Commissioner of Public Works of Ontario should have.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Hardy's Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Division Courts, Mr. Sinclair in the chair.

The Bill was considered and adopted, with some amendments, till the 30th clause was arrived at, when the Committee rose and reported progress.

Mr. White asked if it was the intention to have plans of the new Parliament buildings submitted to the House during the present session; and if so, when?

Mr. Mowat said plans would be on hand next week.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.

The Government's negligence in not asking the House to formally congratulate His Excellency the Governor-General and Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise upon their narrow escape from a serious accident has been the cause of much comment, and after waiting patiently for the Executive to take the initiative, Mr. Mackenzie reminded the premier of his duty. Sir John is seldom very ready to accept a suggestion from the Opposition, and he afforded another illustration in that direction yesterday. He spoke briefly on the subject, but gave no indication that the suggestion would be acted on.

Mr. Robertson (Hamilton) introduced a Bill to amend the law with reference to procedure in criminal cases, &c.

Last session the Government introduced a Bill providing for the appointment and payment of two Supreme Court Judges in British Columbia, which passed the Commons, but was rejected by the Senate. The Minister of Justice has presented the resolutions to Parliament the second time. A debate opened by Mr. Blake ensued The hon. member gave several cogent reasons why the measure should not be adopted, and in this attitude he was supported by Messrs. Anglin and Mills. The Premier, forgetting the sensitiveness of his British Columbian colleagues, alluded to the Pacific Province as a "sea of mountains."

The resolution granting one hundred thousand dollars to the relief of the distressed poor in Ireland was unanimously adopted in Committee of the Whole.

After recess Mr. Farrow afforded a moment's amusement by enquiring whether the Government intended to take the census this year, and receiving the reply that next year was appointed by statute as the time.

A motion for all correspondence relative to the claims of Prince Edward Island to a portion of the fishery award afforded Messrs. Brecken and Hackett, two Island members, an opportunity to address the House. The speeches were impregnated with a vein of melancholy. The first mentioned member admitted that the N. P. was not suitable for the Island, and the latter said it was injurious, and both for these reasons, claimed that the Island should receive a liberal share of the award as compensation. The motion was carried.

The correspondence relative to the Toronto Esplanade difficulty was moved for by Mr. Oliver.

A series of motions by Mr. Anglin relative to the Intercolonial Railway led to a general debate on the present mismanagement. Sir Charles Tupper defended his management, but admitted that owing to a series of circumstances accidents had been frequent during the past three weeks. He charged the Opposition generally with pursuing an unpatriotic course in depreciating the railroad, but when challenged for proof his bold, reckless impeachment resolved itself into the assertion that the Globe and one or two Liberals had in the discharge of their public duties been critising his mismanagement.

The committee appointed by the Dairymen's Association to judge cheese salted with different salt presented their report, awarding prizes as follows:—First prize, Coleman & Gowanlock's fine dairy salt; second, Ransford's patent salt; third, Coleman & Gowanlock's common salt; fourth, Higgins' salt.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1.000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

REUBEN LANGTON FORMS A DARK DESIGN, AND SEEKS ASSISTANCE FOR ITS EXECUTION.

The altercation between Agnes Borland and Reuben Langton, which the opportune appearance of David Ramsay had terminated, served but to inflame the passion of the selfish, unscrupulous youth and add thereto a vindictive feeling, which in a person of his nature was dangerous to its object. As he strode over the moor in the December gloom his breast was filled with rage and mortification, not unmixed with astonishment. In the vanity of his ignorance he had anticipated little difficulty in the prosecution of his suit. Utterly incapable of understanding the truth, purity, and integrity of such a girl as Agnes, he fancied that the temptations he had in his power to offer would easily secure for him the prize he coveted, that in her poverty and disappointment consequent on the ruin of Orwell Bruce she would eagerly transfer her desires, and escape from poverty by accepting his offered love. Indignant and scorntul rejection was the last thing he expected. The anger and contempt with which she met his advances occasioned in him nearly as much surprise as chagrin, but ultimately roused the darkest passions of his evil soul, and made him resolve to obtain his own gratification and her submission by the worst of means.

"The proud, insolent chit," he muttered, "does she fancy I am to be scorned and despised with impunity? Oh, no, my proud-hearted madam. Had you treated me properly you would have found me kind and generous. Ere long you will have cause to rue the folly of opposing so good an offer and the insulting language you addressed to me. I am not good enough for, forsooth! in your eyes I am no better than the dirt beneath your feet, or the worm that crawls among the dirt—well, you shall find that the worm has power to sting you, and bring you down to your proper level. I must set about the work without loss of time too, lest Bruce should turn up—though I should say there is devilish little chance of it. "Ha!" he added, as a fiendish idea entered his mind, "Lawkins is the man to befriend me in this. He owes me a deal for past services, and he knows I have the means of doing him wrong. I wonder if he is to be on the coast soon. I shall go at once to make inquiry—there's nothing liking striking the iron while it is hot."

By the time the muttered soliloquy had reached this point Langton had gained the west end of the moor, but, instead of holding to the right and following a homeward road, he turned sharply to the lett, and took one of the footpaths which ran in a seaward direction.

The short December day had now closed, and, as there was no moon, the darkness, which every passing moment rendered deeper, threatened to grow very dense, so that to a stranger the faint track would have been difficult to follow. But Reuben Langton was no stranger to that locality. He had a thorough acquaintance with all the paths on the moor, though of late he had rarely frequented them. Roads across a waste, however, once known are not easily forgotten, and the youth had no difficulty in finding his way to the place he wished to reach, viz., the fishing village called the Shore, which we had occasion to describe in an early chapter.

When he gained the top of the slope he stood for a few moments on the spot where, nearly twenty years before, Adam Borland had stood when he came in search of information about the smugglers. We note this fact because Reuben Langton had come on a similar errand, though for a very different purpose—nay, he was going to the very same source for the information he sought; for Dan Bryce was still alive, and still lived by himself in the small cottage standing apart on a projecting crag a little way down the steep. As aforetime so still the old man was the standing authority in all matter pertaining to the operations of the free traders, their advisor and counsellor, the depository of their secrets, and a sharer in their success, which his shrewdness and experience had largely contributed to gain.

It was almost much the same scene into which Reuben Langton peered through the darkness as that which met the eye of Adam Borland on that memorable and now remote night. Small fishing villages on the coast are slow to change their features or their aspect. Twenty years seem absolutely to make no change upon them. The dark sea-beaten houses remain as they were, patched up it may be here and there, but having undergone no essential difference. And, of course, all else partakes in the stability of the world, the crags and the precipices of everlasting rock, the cliffs, which have fronted the sea for ages, and the sea itself with its ceaseless monotonous ebb and flow working alterations, no doubt, through the centuries, but so changeless in its doings during the passage of twenty years that such a lapse of time seems, as the psalmist says, "like yesterday when it is passed, or as a watch in the night." For anything that met the eye it might have been Adam Borland still looking down the slope at the twinkling light shining dimly through the gloom, with his gaze specially fixed at the gleam which proceeded from Dan's uncurtained window.

Yet there were also differences between then and now. This December evening was not boisterous like that April night of storm and tempest, when the wind howled over, laden with whirling snowflakes, when the angry sea dashed with furious noise against the base of the cliffs and the roar of the hurricane. From the brow of the slope where he now stood Reuben Langton looked into calmness and quiet. The wind was low, the sea was still, even the distant sound of the Solway tide was subdued, and instead of a black sky there were spaces in the grey clouds, out of which came mild sunbeams like smiles of peace to meet the upward gaze.

It was not to scan the natural aspect of the scene that Reuben Langton stood for some moments motionless on the height. He was watching narrowly to see that no one was near to observe his motions, his desire being to pay a visit to Dan Bryce unseen. So far as he could make out, the inhabitants of the village were all within doors, and having ascertained this satisfactory fact he descended from his position and glided with rapids teps to the isolated habitation of the man he sought.

Glancing through the unshaded window he saw only a little girl within, poring over a book by the light of a peat fire. Close to her was the large chair in which the old man used to sit, but it was empty.

"Can the old fellow be dead?" muttered Reuben. "It is so long since I was at the Shore that he may have hopped the twig years ago without my knowledge. It must be so. Where he alive he would not be out of his house after dark—stay, is that not a human figure in the bed?"

The bed in question was one of two box compartments which filled up the farther side of the apartment. Within this confined space, into which the light from the fire or from the oil lamp on the mantle-piece did not penetrate, the onlooker thought he discerned a slight motion and a raised pertuberance, as if some one was lying there recumbent. In his anxiety to satisfy himself as to this fact Reuben advanced his face close to the window, where the lamp light revealed it,

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers custo ners such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

when immediately a deep voice growl[ed] forth, "Wha's that?" and a human head shaggy and grizzly was thrust out of the bed.

"Lassie, lassie, I saw a strange face at the window," the same deep voice was heard saying. Run out and see wha it is."

"I daurna—I'm feared," was the tremulous answer, as the girl crouched in the corner and cast frightened looks towards the window.

Reuben now thought it time to enter and show himself. Lifting the latch he went into the dark passage, and stumbled over a basketful of coiled fishermen's line, which had been placed there ready for the bait. Thrown from his equilibrium he fell with hands and knees into the basket, getting a reception from the fish hooks which caused him in his pain to blurt out a furious oath.

The noise he made by his fall was followed first by a shrill scream of terror from the interior, and immediately after by the fierce growls of Dan Bryce, as he demanded to know who was the intruder and what he wanted there.

Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario West.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the R. W. the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario West, was held on Tuesday and Wednesday last, in the town of Walkerton. BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

During the last six months of 1878, before the National Policy was introduced, there were but six cases of insolvency in the county of Elgin. For the six months ending 1879, the National Policy being in full fling, there were 18 failures in the county. How is this for the prosperity that the N. P. was to send like a flood over the land? Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Correspondents are engaged writing to the Toronto Telegram urging the passage of a law for the punishment of wife-beaters by flogging. The lash, say these amiable writers, is the only proper penalty for such brutes.

We are informed that Mr. Geo. S. Wait took from 9 acres on his farm near St. George, 55½ bushels of clover seed which netted him $210. Two thirds of the hay from the same nine acres was also sold for $100.—Brantford Expositor.

Arrangements are being made by the Grand Trunk Railway to extend their line to Queen's Square, Galt, where a passenger station is to be erected within a short time.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is The Great Reliever of Pain. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water (sweetened, if preferred), taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

The Attempt on the Russian Imperial Family.

London, Feb. 19.—There are no special despatches from St. Petersburg this morning concerning the explosion in the Imperial Winter Palace on Tuesday evening.

The Central News says that the diabolical attempt to assassinate the Imperial Family of Russia by blowing up the Winter Palace at St. Petersburg has caused the utmost consternation and indignation in the metropolis of Russia. The first intelligence of the affair appears to have reached England through a message from the Duchess of Edinburgh, telegraphed to her husband.

Earl Beaconsfield, on behalf of Her Majesty and the Ministers of Great Britain, telegraphed the English Ambassador at St. Petersburg their great thankfulness at the escape of the Emperor and the Imperial family. A special messenger was sent to Hatfield House with Lord Dufferin's despatch for Lord Salisbury's perusal. The attempt on the Czar's life is the all absorbing topic in the London journals.

London, Feb. 19.—A St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs: Information which has come to my knowledge establishes a connection between the late attempt upon the life of the Czar and the arrest of some forty inmates of the Winter Palace the day before the explosion.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 19.—The Novoe Vremya publishes particulars of the attempted assassination of the Imperial family. The dinner was appointed for six o'clock Tuesday evening. If it had not been accidentally delayed all would have been seated at the moment of the explosion. As it was their escape was very narrow. The Emperor, accompanied by the Princess of Hesse and Bulgaria, was about to enter the dining hall through one door and the other members of the Imperial family except the Empress by another when the explosion took place. Two servants who were in the dining hall were injured. The force of the explosion was such that a number of windows of the Palace and adjacent houses were shattered. The gas was blown out and complete darkness prevailed. The bodies of two more soldiers have been found among the debris, and of forty-five injured several have since died.

Vienna despatches state that proclamations of the Nihilists had some days before the attempted assassination audaciously prepared the public for it. The shock is likely to prove fatal to the Empress.

A St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that ten were killed and sixty wounded. It is supposed that a dynamite clock was used like that employed by Thomas, of Bremen-haven fame.

London, Feb. 20.—A Berlin despatch says that the Czar was very much affected by the recent explosion. At one time he almost lost self-control. He has for months been living besieged in his own palace. His very bed has been guarded.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—Simultaneously with the explosion in the Winter Palace bombs were thrown in the adjoining streets. One person arrested was seen leaving the place just after the explosion. The cellar under the Winter Palace was occupied by four joiners, three of whom have been arrested. It is estimated that the weight of the dynamite used was about four pounds. The Winter Palace and other palaces are being carefully searched by a company specially charged with sappers. The total number killed by the explosion is ten.

The Distress in Ireland.

A correspondent in Dublin reports that he has received letters from almost every barony in Kerry, Mayo, Galway, Sligo, Donegal, South Cork, and Clare Counties, where destitution is greatest, ranking in the order named. The writers are mostly priests, and their letters indicate that the distress is greater than has been represented in America. It is increasing rapidly and spreading in numerous directions. Fever is breaking out in many districts. The physicians say it is produced by want. Pathetic accounts of nakedness and extreme want come from Arran Island, Valentia, and other isles on the west coast. Similar stories come from the counties of Cavan, Fermanagh, Leitrim, Limerick, Monaghan, and Roscommon. A Dublin paper publishes a cable despatch saying that the American contributions will now probably cease because it is reported from Dublin that the fund there is sufficient to prevent further suffering. The correspondent says that no such fund exists in Dublin, and unless liberal contributions continue he believes probably hundreds, and probably thousands, of families will perish. Priests and prominent laymen from the different districts of the West of Ireland confirm the statements in this letter.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST

More Evidence to be heard To-morrow.

LUCAN, Feb. 23rd.—Chief Williams has just arrived here from London, and after his arrival received instructions from the Crown Attorney to obtain an order from the coroner to produce other prisoners at the inquest to-morrow in addition to the three already under orders since the adjournment. The others who will be present to-morrow besides Carroll, Ryder, and Purtell, are William Carroll, Martin McLaughlin and James Ryder. Mrs. Maher who is out on bail since Saturday, will also be present. Everything promises so far that there will be no adjournment to-morrow, at least none to any future day, but owing to the action of the authorities in commencing the investigation at London, on Saturday, it is anticipated that an open verdict will be the result of the coroner's jury investigation.

SHIPPING ICE.—Mr. Powis, of Hamilton, has secured a contract to supply a Detroit firm with one hundred car loads of ice Last week he came to Guelph and began taking the supply from Goldie's dam. To-day a special train of twenty-five cars arrived in Guelph and will be filled for shipment. Mr. Powis has some difficulty in procuring teams to draw the ice to the railway.

MANY persons are under the impression that the old plan by which letters sent to an address could be re-addressed and forwarded without any additional postage after the letters had been taken out of the post office is still in vogue. But this is a mistake, except in so far as it affects letters sent to hotels, which can be re-addressed and forwarded without a fresh stamp.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH. — Through the Lenten season, there are week day services on Wednesday evenings, with sermon, at 7:30, and at 4 p. m., on Friday afternoons, while at 7:30 on same day, the meeting for Bible instruction is also held. At 3 p.m. next Friday, there will be a short service, when those who have children to be baptised are requested to attend with them. Next Sunday a collection will be taken up for the aid of the General Hospital.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—The third accident at the rink last week occurred on Saturday, when Robert McGregor, aged 13 years, son of Mr. R. McGregor, dealer in boots and shoes, was seriously hurt. The lad collided with another skater and was knocked down. Falling backwards he alighted on his head on the ice. The sufferer was removed home and Dr. Howitt was called to attend him. On examination it was found that his head had been seriously hurt by the fall. The greater part of Sunday he suffered greatly from the wound, but his condition now is much improved.

AN EXTRAORDINARY SKATER.—In these days when skating is regarded as such a favorable pastime, it is not uncommon to hear of many difficult feats on skates. Something neither seen or heard of in these parts before about skating was witnessed on the river near the Dundas Bridge on Sunday. A boy named McTague, who had one of his legs amputated near the hip three or four years ago, in consequence of a railway accident, has learned to skate, and on Sunday displayed his knowledge of the art to the amusement of not a few. He only uses one skate and supports the side from which his leg has been removed by a sharp pointed crutch. Though his movements are not particularly graceful he hops over the ice almost as quickly as an ordinary skater, and seems to derive equal amusement.

DEATH OF MRS. DR. CLARKE.—The death of Mrs. Clarke, wife of Dr. Clarke, so well known in Guelph, and now living in Palmerston, takes from our midst one of the oldest residents of Guelph. The deceased came to Guelph with her family in 1832. Her father, who was in good circumstances lived for some time in the Priory, and owned considerable land in the town, east of the river, and stretching along the face of the hill, from the Grand Trunk north. He was the first Magistrate in Guelph. The deceased was first married to Judge Powell, Judge of the County Court in this County. After his decease she married Dr. Clarke. Nearly all her years were spent in Guelph, and it was but a few months ago that the family went to Palmerston where her son has lately opened an extensive brewery. Her health had been failing for some time, but her death was unexpected, and has taken her many friends and acquaintances by surprise, who were not insensible to her amiable qualities in many respects, and who join in their sympathy for her husband and family in their bereavement. The deceased at one time took an active interest in the Ladies Benevolent Society in Guelph, and also in the Guelph General Hospital when it was first started. She leaves a family of two sons by her first marriage with Judge Powell—Bleecker Powell, of the Inland Revenue Department; the other, Clarence, is but recently returned home after a long absence from Canada. Two sons and one daughter survive her by her second marriage with Dr. Clarke.

The cause of their insanity is affirmed to have been continual thinking of depressed, in fact, destitute circumstances in which they lived since the fire.

The License Question.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me space in your journal to make a few remarks respecting the letter of "Ratepayer," in your Saturday's issue. Myself and Mr. Robertson are singled out as the two parties most to blame in regard to the reduction of the license fee, and the increase of the number of licenses proposed to be granted for the present year. I may say that the matter was not "allowed to go by the board," but a lengthy discussion took place, in which I strongly advocated the keeping of the license fee at the former figure, and as strongly objected to any increase in the number being made. Some of my reasons given were that former Councils had in their wisdom reduced the number, and placed what they considered a fair license fee to be charged for each hotel and shop, and I said that Guelph to-day enjoys the advantages of that Act, in having a better class of hotels, and in the destruction, in a large measure, of the drinking hoels of the city. I argued—using these words —"That I did not stand before the Council and plead, as a teetotaller, but that it was my firm conviction that it was in the interest of sound morals, and in the interest of good government, that the number of licenses should not be increased, or the license fee lowered." I said in reply to the remarks made that the hotel keepers were oppressed and robbed by the license fee imposed upon them, that less of their number in Guelph had succumbed to the pressure of the times than from any other calling in life, and that it was easier for a small number to pay a heavy license fee, and do all the business, than for a large number a small one with the business all cut up, and with the opening up of houses of a less reputable character. I also showed that no injustice was done to the hotel keeper, as if the business did not pay it was purely optional from year to year whether he took out a license or not.

In the excellent editorial of Saturday's MERCURY—in which all the salient points are brought before the ratepayers—and every statement made in it must commend itself to all right-thinking men, it says, "The whole thing was sprung upon the Council." It was so—at all events some of the Council had no idea that the chairman of the Lice se Committee contemplated reducing the fee nearly one half. I consulted Mr. Robertson, and he said we might have to compromise the matter, and if not able to carry the old figure a medium might be perhaps struck. By a reference to the minutes of the Council it will be seen that $120 was moved by the License Committee, $140 by another gentleman, and by Mr. McLagan $150. Had it been attempted to carry the $150, as last year, it would have, undoubtedly, been lost, and the $120 carried in its place. I regret exceedingly the action of the council, as I am sure, if carried out, it will be detrimental to the interests of the hotel keepers themselves, and also to the city generally. The MERCURY wisely says in the article referred to "In this emergency, we will have to look to the License Commissioners to checkmate the wrong doing of the Council, and not only in the interest of the present hotel and saloon keepers, but in the interests of morality, to sternly set their face against the increase of licenses in Guelph. The places already licensed are sufficient for all the legitimate purposes of trade." This paragraph will meet the approval of nearly every ratepayer in the city. The License Commissioners have control of the whole matter, and no action of the Council can compel them to issue a single license more than their judgment dictates would be conducive to the interests of the city. The council has the power to fix the amount of license fee, which, however, is a small matter compared with the damage done by issuing an excessive number. Let the Commissioners pursue the same course as has been done by their predecessors in the past, and the action of the council will be powerless for evil, as it is well known that during the past three years the Commissioners have stedfastly refused to grant even the number recommended by former Councils, on the ground that proper persons did not apply, or that there was already sufficient hotel accommodation in Guelph.

Most respectfully,
WM. STEVENSON.

The Fire at the Model Farm.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In connection with the burning of the old farm house here on Saturday morning last, I have been informed of some errors in the public press. Permit me to say that the origin of the fire is unknown, but supposed to have been from hot ashes in the outside building; that the energy, care, coolness and thorough business-like conduct of all the students in rendering help was most commendable, and highly deserving the thanks of the country. We have to thank the Chief of the Guelph Fire Brigade for his personal attendance on the occasion, but fail to perceive why the engine was not sent to assist. There are seven tanks of water and six wells within easy reach of all the buildings, and had the engine responded to the call, the main building could easily have been saved.

Your obedient servant,
WM. BROWN.

DR. LOBLEY'S APPOINTMENT.—The appointment of Rev. Dr. Lobley, of Lennoxville, principal of Bishop's College, to be Provost of Trinity College, Toronto, is deeply regretted here, as it is felt his removal from this diocese will occasion a blank which it will be exceedingly difficult to fill.—Montreal Star.

SUDDEN DEATH AT KINCARDINE.—The Reporter says:—Samuel L. Kennedy, painter, and for about two months a resident of this town, died rather suddenly on Sunday evening last from hemmorrhage of the brain. He had been ailing for some time. Mr. Kennedy formerly lived in Acton. At the time of his death he held a contract for painting at Ripley.

FINE HORSES. — The Berlin News says a fine lot of horses were taken from Berlin to Preston on Friday morning, to be shipped to Pennsylvania. The purchasers of these animals were Messrs. Shultz and Heimbach, of Berks County, Pennsylvania. They were purchased mostly in Woolwich and Wellesley, at prices ranging from $90 to $150. Most of them are young, only three or four years old, and not a blemish in the whole lot, so far as is known.

ANOTHER OLD CITIZEN GONE. — The Berlin News of last week records the death of Mr. Joseph E. Schneider, of that town, in the seventieth year of his age. Deceased was born in same place where he died, and was therefore amongst the first children born in that locality, his father, whose name was also Joseph, having come from Pennsylvania in 1807. Mr. Schneider was a man who always commanded the highest respect and esteem from all who knew him, was a deacon in the Mennonite Church for nearly forty years, and in every other way enjoyed the good will and friendship of the community in which he so long lived. Thus one by one of our old and respected citizens are called away. Deceased leaves a widow, two sons and five daughters to mourn his loss.

DRANK HIMSELF TO DEATH.—On Saturday while an express wagon was being loaded in front of Mr. George Burns' wholesale house on Front street, Toronto, a cask of rum fell to the ground and was smashed, the liquid running into the ditch. Patrick Burke, Joseph Dalton, and Patrick O'Brien, residents of Lombard street, noticed the accident, and arming themselves with a saucepan, tumbler, and other articles, proceeded to scrape the liquor up. Dalton soon satisfied himself and staggered off, followed by his more bibulous companion, Patrick O'Brine. Burke, however, scooped up several hatsful, and drank it off till he was full to repletion. He then started to his own home, No. 62 Lombard street, and while proceeding to his bed-room fell down dead.

FAILURE IN ELORA.—The Monetary Times says:—In the fall of 1878, Mr. A. G. Duncan, who was previously in the pork-packing business, began general store-keeping in Elora, then bought the bankrupt stock of W. C. Wortley of Drayton, a portion of which he took to that town. He then opened a branch store at Salem, which was afterwards sold to his brother. Mr. D., we understand, had some $1,500 capital, his own, and his wife's mother gave her $2000, which now ranks on the estate. He had experienced assistants, but has done a reckless business, and branch stores added to his difficulties, which have culminated in an assignment, liabilities $23,000! a heavy amount for such a man with such a capital.

A LARGE LEGACY.—At the home of John Zoeger, Esq., recently died an old bachelor named Joachim Philippi, who had been in the employ of Mr. Zoeger for the last seventeen years. From the old threadbare garments which he was continually wearing to church and elsewhere, no one would have imagined that he could make much of a display in his wardrobe. The family had noticed that he was from time to time storing away a number of boxes in different parts of their barn, warehouse and other buildings, but never took the pains to inspect what he was really laying up, until after his death when the following effects were discovered. No less than 100 boxes, small and large were found, containing besides wearing apparel, old rusty hammers, pliers, scissors, pieces of dishes, and as the auction bills say, a variety of articles too numerous to mention, including trash worse than useless. Such an inventory proves conclusively that man as well as woman, can never become thoroughly rid of the idea of housekeeping. In dry goods, boots and shoes, not in cash however, it is questionable whether the wealthy Rothschild will leave so "many" behind him. He leaves no less than between 20 and 30 suits of clothes, some of which he brought from Germany twenty two years ago, about 40 hats and caps, 50 pairs of mits and gloves, 50 pairs of socks, 112 pairs of boots and shoes, and strangest of all, three ladies' furs. Yes, sir! ladies furs among a bachelor's effects. Who would have dreamt it? Well, this only shows in which direction man is weakest, bachelors not excluded. Much of his goods is quite serviceable yet, some having been worn very little, while most, of course, is valueless.—Waterloo Chronicle.

The cattle fair at Mount Forest last week was well attended by buyers and sellrs. The average rates were as follows: oxen, per yoke, $75 to $100; three year old steers, each, $30 to $40; two year old steers, $25 to $35; cows, $20 to $35.

The License Question.

We gladly gave a place in our columns to-day to a letter from Mr. Stevenson, on the License question, in which he sets our correspondent "Ratepayer" right in regard to the part that he and Mr. Robertson took when the matter was under the consideration of the Council. From Mr. Stevenson's statement we gather that he and Mr. Robertson along with some other members of the Council did all they could to prevent the recommendations of the Committee being adopted, and only when they thought that they could not carry the day, they agreed to a compromise. We give these gentlemen full credit for sincerity in this matter, but we think if they had shown more vigorous fight they might have carried the day, or at least have delayed the adoption of the report till the opinion of the people was ascertained as regards the recommendations of the Committee.

We quite agree with Mr. Stevenson as to the action of the License Commissioners for the last three years, and we here bear willing testimony to the eminently wise and judicious course they followed in dealing with a professedly difficult matter, and that while doing injustice to no one they had due regard to the social and moral well being of the City. And the people will not be satisfied if the Board of Commissioners that may be formed do not follow in their footsteps, and keep the same object in view that they sought to attain.

THE British Columbia Chinamen have subscribed towards the relief of the famishing Irish. The Ottawa Free Press says :—It will now be in order for the two Irishmen in the House of Commons, who have made themselves conspicuous by their opposition to Chinese labor, to show how much they have subscribed.

THE debate in the House on Friday night on the motion of Mr. Robertson (Shelburne) for a statement of the coal admitted for the use of steamers and tugs on the lakes and rivers of Ontario and Quebec, developed the interesting fact that coal had been admitted in bond for the use of United States steamers in their trips and the privilege had afterwards been extended to Canadian steamers. Mr. Mackenzie rightly considered it unfair that a paternal Government should compel people to pay the duty on coal, while those better able to pay escaped. From admissions like this, coupled with the admissions from two of the Tory members from Prince Edward Island, that the "N P." had done that province no good, it is quite apparent everything is not so lovely after all.

THE latest victim who has been made to suffer the loss of his office because he is a Reformer is Mr. Ellis, postmaster of St. John, N. B., than whom the Freeman says "there is not a more efficient officer in the civil service of the Dominion, who is dismissed because he had at one time some connection with the Globe of that city. It is not even hinted that Mr. Ellis has any connection with the press at present, but at one time he had an interest in a Reform newspaper and that is a sufficient reason why he should be driven out of an office the duties of which he discharged to the entire satisfaction of every honest man in the city of which he has long been a highly respected resident."

THE Kingston Whig directs attention to the fact that in Mr. Mowat's Bill respecting Municipal Taxation and Exemptions there is a clause which will render the carrying of any by-law impossible. It is the fourteenth clause, which ordains that "to render valid a by-law of any municipality, for granting a bonus in aid of a railway, or promoting any manufacture, the assent shall be necessary of the majority of ratepayers named in the Voters' List who are entitled to vote on the by-law." That is to say if 500 bona fide voters are on the list the by-law must secure the votes of not less than 250, and considering the very light vote usually cast on such occasions that condition will virtually render the carrying of any ordinary money by law impossible.

The Market Fees Bill.

On Friday the Municipal Committee of the Legislature adopted a motion to lay the Bill to abolish market fees over till next session, the members agreeing to consider the question during the recess. On this subject, we think the view taken of this subject by the Monetary Times is a very fair one. It says :—"Very great confusion of ideas on the subject prevails. Market fees may be injurious to the city that receives them, and it might be good economy in the cities to abolish them. But the foundation on which they rest is a very substantial one ; they represent only a fair compensation for money spent on markets, for the convenience both of sellers and buyers. They are in the nature of building rent, and are as legitimate and as unassailable as any other building rent. It would certainly be unjust for the Legislature, merely because it has the power—if it really has it—to abolish them without the consent of the parties interested. Tolls levied for the maintenance of roads, stand on nearly the same footing as market fees ; only tolls are more out of date and less in accord with the genius of our times. There is much more reason why they should be abolished than market fees. It would not be a bad compromise to abolish both together ; but to abolish market fees, without the consent of those who have a right to receive them in compensation for a direct expenditure, and leave tolls untouched, would be very unjust."

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

The Prisoners Before a Bench of Magistrates.

Johnny Connors Again Examined.

There was no small excitement in London on Saturday when it was known that the prisoners arrested for participation in the tragedy in Biddulph would be brought before a bench of Magistrates. The proceedings commenced in the Court House shortly after twelve o'clock before Justices of the Peace Peters and Fisher. It is almost needless to say that the Court room was crowded to excess, and that the spectators manifested the utmost interest in the trial. A large number of those present were from Biddulph, and friendly to the accused. Robt. Donnelly was noticed among the audience. The prisoners arraigned are : John Purtell, Jas. Carroll, Thomas Ryder, James Ryder, Martin McLaughlin, Patrick Ryder, jr., John Kennedy, Patrick Ryder, sr., Jas. Maher, sr., Wm. Carroll, Jas. Maher, jr.,—all charged with the murder of Jas. Donnelly, Julia Donnelly, Thomas Donnelly, and Bridget Donnelly. Jas. Shea and Mrs. Maher were accused of being accessory after the fact to the same. The Crown was represented by County-Attorney Hutchinson and Mr. E. Meredith. Mr. Hugh McMahon, Q. C., and Mr. Blake, of London, appeared for the defence.

The first witness examined was the boy Johnny Connors, whose evidence was substantially the same as that given at the inquest, and already published. He was afterwards cross-examined at great length by Mr. McMahon, but after being under examination for fully three hours, the counsel failed to break down his testimony in any essential point. After describing how the old man Donnelly was got out of bed and into the kitchen, and how he got under the bed, witness said : —I saw Tom running through the front when I was peeping out, I could see his feet, and he was kind of "hollering ;" the others ran ran after him ; they hammered Tom outside and knocked him down, then carried him in and threw him on the floor ; I don't know who carried him in ; some of them held a light, but I could not see it; I was looking out at the time they were doing something to Tom ; I saw John Purtell and Thomas Ryder around his body ; I think they were taking off the handcuffs ; Purtell and Ryder were standing up straight when I saw them ; I know them very well ; I have seen them often ; I know them just as well as I know Carroll ; Purtell was dressed in black clothes ; Ryder had on a peaked cap, but I took no notice of his clothes ; I can't tell the color of the cap ; it was a cloth cap ; the lugs on it were cloth ; I don't know whether the rest of it was or not ; I have seen Ryder wearing the cap before ; the lugs went all the way round, and were tied up ; I know Ryder's whiskers and his hair and face. (Witness pointed out Ryder at this stage.) No matter what people say I am positive Ryder was there ; I did not see Carroll at this time ; one of the men asked where was the girl ; I don't know who it was ; I didn't hear Ryder or Purtell speak, or see them doing anything ; my father told me to tell nothing at all about it ; I didn't tell him about any of the fellows, although he asked me ; I am not in the habit of telling untruths to my father; I didn't want to tell it all round ; after going home I told my mother ; she asked me if I knew any of them ; I asked her not to tell my father if I told her, and she said she would not ; then I mentioned the names of Carroll, Ryder, and Purtell.

The County Attorney—What do I understand as being your reason for not telling ? Were you frightened ?

Witness—Yes, sir ; I was afraid of getting into trouble—that they would have me up.

Mrs. Whalen, wife of Patrick Whalen, to whose house Connors went after the murder said : —We asked the boy how he knew Carroll, and he said he knew him by his talk ; I don't know that I said anything to that effect ; when he got up in the morning I was away at my son's house, and he was gone before I got back.

Mrs. Connors was then sworn and said :—I am the mother of Johnny Connor; on the day after the murder he came home about noon, on horseback : I said "Johnny, where is your coat ?" tears came into his eyes, and he said. "It is burned in the fire"; he said the house was burned, and Bridget was dead, and they were all dead and burned ; I asked him how he escaped, and he replied, "I got under the bed"; "Did they see you under the bed ?" says I ; he replied, "If they had I'm sure I would have been killed" ; he did not not tell me more at the time, as I was shaking, and did not like to listen to him ; afterwards he went to the village with his father ; he came home alone ; he was striving to hide it and not let me know anything about it ; I picked it out of him ; at first he would not tell me the names as he was afraid they would kill him, but later he told me that Purtell, Ryder, and Jim Carroll were there ; he asked me not to tell anybody, but I said I would, that it was too bad to let them go. I think my boy said Carroll stood in the door and beside him stood Purtell and Ryder ; he saw all at once, carried him in and threw him on the floor, and called for the spade to break open his skull.

Mr. Hutchinson said this was all the evidence he would offer at this sitting of the court, and asked for an adjournment.

Mr. McMahon, on behalf of Mrs. Maher, asked for bail, and the Crown Attorney acquiesced. The bail was fixed at $1000, and two sureties of $500 each. The counsel for the prisoners made an address, demanding that the crown counsel should state if he had evidence against all the prisoners, and if he had not such of them as were unaffected by the evidence should not be kept longer imprisoned.

Mr. Hutchinson replied that he was neither prepared to disclose the evidence he had nor what he expected to get. He stated that the arrests were justified, and he considered the detention was also. He was quite willing to accept the responsibility that was already upon him.

ELORA.—At the annual meeting of the Elora Branch Bible Society, held on the the 18th inst., Rev. Mr. Middlemiss, Secretary, read the annual report, which referred in feeling terms to the death of the late Mr. Joseph Carder, who had been Secretary and Treasurer of the society for thirty-six years, or since the society was formed. A resolution was afterwards passed, expressing their sense of the value of the important services rendered to the society by him, and their fervent sympathy with the bereaved family.—The return curling match between the old and new council of Elora was played on Monday evening, in the rink, and resulted as follows :—Old council, 24 ; new council, 2.—The branch of the Merchants' bank at Elora closed up business on Saturday.—Alexander Harris, employed in filling in the tressel work on the W. G. and B. Railway, a couple of miles from Elora, on Monday morning last, jumped from a train in motion, falling upon his hands and face, and breaking the large bone of the left arm.—Mr. A. G. Duncan's liabilities are officially placed at $23,644.08.—Dr. Eames, of Drayton, is suffering from softening of the brain, and has been obliged to give up the practice of his profession.

Paisley is bound to have a grand agricultural exhibition for 1880. It is a union of the North Riding and Elderslie Agricultural Societies.

Report on the State of the Militia.

We find in this Report, just issued, the following references to the volunteers in this District. Sir Selby Smith in his report says :—

"Lieut.-Colonel Taylor gives a justly favorable account of the troops in District No. 1, and comments upon their general efficiency, being well supplied with arms, accoutrements and uniform, and their steadiness and attention to drill. The voluntary guard furnished during the Vice-Regal progress in September is referred to in terms complimentary to the corps that participated.

Of the 30th Rifles, Lieut.-Col. Taylor says :—

"Only two companies of this fine corps were authorized to drill this year, viz. :—No. 1, at Guelph, under Captain Spiers, and No. 4, at Elora, under Brevet.-Major McBride. Knowing what an efficient corps the 30th Rifles is, I should have felt disappointed had these two companies not turned out satisfactorily, but I have to report that I was more than satisfied at my inspection ; they turned out in heavy marching order, completely equipped. Bayonet exercise was very well gone through by both these companies."

Of the Bruce Battalion, he says :—"I inspected this battalion at Walkerton on the 11th October ; where they were assembled to perform their annual drill in camp. This corps always turns out a splendid body of men and generally well officered. Lieut.-Col. Sproat, who commands, is himself an excellent drill, and takes much pride and interest in his battalion."

The following is Lieut.-Col. Irwin's report of the Wellington and Ontario Field Batteries :—

These batteries were inspected in camp together near Guelph, on the 2nd July. They were under the command of Major Macdonald, of the Wellington Field Battery.

WELLINGTON FIELD BATTERY :—Captain Nicholl, Lieutenant Bond, 2nd Lieutenant Crowe, Assistant-Surgeon Macdonald.

ONNARIO FIELD BATTERY.—Captain McCrae, Lieutenants Hood, Fleming, Assistant Surgeon Hewitt, Veterinary Surgeon Grange.

Uniforms and accoutrements, clean and in good order.

Horses, very good.

Harness, clean, in good order, and well fitted.

Standing gun drill of both batteries, very good.

Marching past, good.

Field manœuvres, under Captain McCrae and Lieut. Nicholl, good.

Brigade drill, under Major Macdonald, very good.

The mounted non-commissioned officers of the Wellington Field Battery were instructed in sword exercises, and showed a very creditable state of efficiency.

Lieutenant Crowe, of this battery, personally superintended the rifle instruction and firing of the whole of the non-commissioned officers and men.

These batteries have organized a very efficient band. Their camp ground was in very good order, and the general appearance and discipline of both batteries reflect the greatest credit upon their commanding officers.

The Ontario Field Battery has not yet received its equipment of guns. For field manœuvres and inspection, it paraded with the waggons of the Wellington Field Battery.

Both these batteries carried out their annual competitive gun practice at a range at Toronto, on the 8th September, at the same time and over the same range as the Toronto battery. The practice was good, but the scores not so high as on previous occasions, probably owing to the difficulty in seeing the target, which was placed on low, marshy ground.

Proposed Amendments to Liquor Law.

Mr. Gibson's Bill to amend the Liquor License Act is as follows :—

1. Section fifty-one of the said Act is hereby repealed, and the following substituted therefor :

(51). Any person who sells or barters spirituous, fermented or manufactured liquors of any kind, without the license therefor by law required, shall for the first offence, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than forty dollars besides costs ; and not more than $100 besides costs ; and any person who violates any other provision of the said Act, in respect of which violation no other punishment is prescribed, shall for the first offence, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty dollars besides costs, and not more than fifty dollars besides costs ; and for the second of either of the heretofore mentioned offences, on conviction thereof, such person or persons shall be imprisoned in the county jail of the county in which the offence was committed, to be kept at hard labor for a period not exceeding six calendar months.

2. For the punishment of offences against section fifty-three of the said Act, in addition to the penalties mentioned in the fifty-second section of the said Act, the license of any person who shall be convicted of any of the offences in the said fifty-third section mentioned, shall upon such conviction be and stand revoked and cancelled, and shall also thereupon be and become inoperative and of none effect, and the person to whom such license issued shall thereafter, during the remainder of the then current year and two years following after the expiration of such year, be disqualified from obtaining any further or other license under the said Act.

3. All provisions of the said Liquor License Act inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed.

Death of the Greatest Stock Breeder in Scotland.

The death occurred on the 1st inst. of Mr. William M'Combie, the well-known proprietor of Tillyfour, Aberdeenshire. He was born in 1805, and for many years of his life he occupied very prominent public positions. After quitting Marischal College he became manager of his father's business, and in a lengthened experience of over 30 years as a cattle-dealer he acquired that ready insight into the points of a beast which made him what he was—one of the best judges of cattle in the North. He forsook the lean cattle trade when he found it on the wane after the introduction of railroads, and entered with might and main into the rearing and feeding of the breed with which his name is so illustriously associated. With him polled cattle breeding became a science. On the Continent, as well as at British fat-stock shows, he was invincible. In 1867 he was honoured at Tilly-four by a visit from Her Majesty the Queen. At Poissy in 1862 he gained Prince Albert's 100 guinea cup for the best animal in the French and foreign classes. Thenceforth his showyard career increased in brilliancy till his name extended wherever agriculture was known and practised. From 1868 to 1876 he represented West Aberdeenshire in Parliament. On his retirement he was presented with a suitable testimonial in recognition of his valuable services to agriculture. Among the honours that have gone to Tillyfour cattle are 30 silver cups and pieces of plate, over 120 medals, 30 of which are gold, including two from France, and the Prince of Bavaria's Gold Medal of Honour. The death of Mr. M'Combie will occasion a great loss, and is very deeply lamented.

The Kincardine Reporter says :—Timbers of immense length are being brought into town for the construction of the revolving light house.

The Dense Fog in London.

Of the "dark days in London," about Christmas, a correspondent recently wrote :—But for education and science all London would surely have this week done nothing but prostrate herself. Jehovah did not fall upon Egypt in the days of the hardened King in denser clouds of night than those which for a whole week (one day excepted) have afflicted this metropolis. Think of it ; a week of night in a great city ! It is a fact. Day and night one everlasting fog ; night and day a curtain of cloud, thick with the smoke of coal fires, has been drawn over London. The traffic on the river has been suspended ; omnibusses and cabs have crashed upon each other in the streets ; fog signals on the railway have been startling incidents of the day and night ; the fog had occupied the theatres instead of the usual crowds of people ; the fog has pervaded all society ; it has filled our rooms in spite of fires and gas ; it has even shut off the electric lights at the British Museum ; it has tarnished our windows, sweated our china, poisoned some of our citizens to death ; it has hurled skaters at each other, it has made the gas lamps look silly, it has set pedestrians crying aloud in the streets lest they should be run over, and they have not always cried successfully ; it has delayed our mails ; it has made postmen deliver letters to wrong houses ; it has left patients to die for want of doctors whose carriages have been smashed en route ; it has plagued us at all times and all hours, in sitting, in standing, in sleeping, and waking. Not in all the history of London winters have such long and continued fogs been known. I have said they have lasted all the week, with one exception. Friday was the exception. We hoped Friday was the beginning of a permanent change for the better. Not a bit of it. The fog is here again on Saturday with all its agony of troubles and worries, fog signals, cabs that crawl, pedestrians that cry, link boys whose torches do not penetrate the Egyptian darkness.

NOT MUCH OF A BENEFIT.—Brussels contains the only steam fire engine works in the Dominion of Canada. With the new tariff this industry has protection to the extent of 25 per cent., but the duty on raw material is such a detriment to it that the institution is famishing. The proprietor is worse off now than before the introduction of the tariff ; he sells less engines, employs fewer hands, and his foundry runs on short time. Where is the prosperity Sir John promised ? When will our industries blossom and bloom as the rose ? and last but not least, when will the "greatest statesman on earth" learn to tell the truth ? We await an answer with patience.—Stratford Beacon.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

REUBEN LANGTON FORMS A DARK DESIGN, AND SEEKS ASSISTANCE FOR ITS EXECUTION.

"Ruination! why do you block your passage with this terrible thing?" exclaimed Reuben, throwing open the inner door and dragging in the line with him, for some of the hooks had fastened on his clothes beyond his power of abstraction.

"Deil tak' ye, man, ye are ravellin' the line," roared Dan. "Stay where ye are—dinna move, and the lassie will tak' oot the huikes. Lor, but Meg Crooksten will gie you a bonny fl..tin, for makin' sic wark to her. Lassie, gang forrit and loose the huiks."

The girl no longer in dread of some unearthly visitant, obeyed the old man's order, and patiently extracted one by one, the pertinacious adherents, while Reuben, less skilful in his manipulations, removed the sharp points from his bleeding hands in such a way as to produce further laceration, interjecting fierce objurgations as he did so; and inveighing in unmeasured terms against the individual which had left the basket in the passage.

"The creel is weel aneuch in the entry," growled Dan. "Whar wad ye hae it to be put but where Meg is to sit baitin' the line? What business had ye to come stammerin' in without rappin'? and what for was ye glowerin' in at the wunnock like a ghaist on bogle?"

"I was only looking to see if you were within," replied the visitor, looking ruefully at his bleeding and smarting hands. "Confound it!" he added, "these wounds won't heal for ever so long, and the pain is excruciating."

"Houts, man, what are maekin' a wark aboot," said Dan, contemptuously. "Gie your hands a rub wi' brandy, and they'll be better the morn."

"Will that heal them?"

"There's naething like it. Lay doon and ye'll find a greybeard aneath the bed. Pour a drap o' the stuff ower yer fingers, and weet yer craig at the same time gin ye like."

Thus directed, Reuben found the vessel containing a quantity of the strongest smuggled brandy, a portion of which he emptied on his hands. The moment he did so he gave vent to a yell of pain, dropped the vessel on the floor, where it was broken to pieces, and went dancing round the apartment shaking his arms violently, and roaring like a man distracted.

"The deevil tak' ye, sir! Dae ye mean to destroy everything in my hoose?" thundered Dan, almost leaping from the bed in his wrath, "Ye've confused the line and spilt the brandy. What mair ill dae ye ettle to dae?"

"Oh, oh! my hands are burning. Curse it; why did ye tell me to wash them with that stuff?"

"Get awa' wi ye. What's a bit nip for a minute? I mind the time when my hands were a' ower wi' fouk jags, and ne'er thocht it worth while to speak o't. Thole, man; thole a wee, and let's hear what ye are, and what ye want."

"Don't ye know me, Dan?" said Reuben, turning his face toward that of the old man.

"Ken ye? no me. Oh, bide a wee, I should ken that face. You are surely the lad Langton, son o' the Laird o' Cairnbank."

"True, I am, though we have not seen each other for several years."

"And wha's fau't is that? No mine, I trow, for gin ye had ca'd at ony time ye wad hae found me here. It's mony a day sin' I was ootower the door step.

"I have been abroad most of the time."

"Sae I hae heard. You and young Bruce o' the Grange hae been gaun helter skelter, and a bonny kettle o' fish he has fried to himsel'. They tell me he has boiled awa' his siller and lost the estate, and naebody kens whether he is deid or livin'. Is it true?"

"It is too true, Dan. But tell me, do you know anything of Yawkins? That is my errand here to-night."

"Maybe I dae, and maybe I dinna. I am fower score now, and haena been at the rinnin' o' a cargo for mair than twenty years, but for a' that the lads wad dae ill without auld Dan Bryce. Though I am laid up here like a hurtchin, I am nae mair doited than e'er I was, and if it wasna for the pain I wad help the free traders o' the Solway as boldly as ever. Mony a great venture me and Yawkins hae made thegether. What a sinner he was and is yet. Hoo him and me used to snap oer thoombs at the King's men and run the stuff under their very noses."

Does Yawkins still frequent the Solway?"

"What should hinder him," returned Dan. "He hasna just had the same luck since I was laid up, but the Black Prince is still on the passage, and naether gauger nor lieutenant can manage him."

"Do you expect him soon?"

"What are ye askin' for?"

"Because I have some important business with him, and am anxious for an interview."

"Hum—aye! I dinna ken," replied Dan dubiously. "Ye used to be a freend, Maister Langton, but that's a while syne, ye ken."

"I am as safe as ever. I'll renew the oath, if you wish. But why should you fear to trust me?"

"I'm no sayin' I'm feared to trust ye, but times are cheynged. There are a great mony sharks aboot noo, baith land and water sharks, and it's ill escapin' them."

"But Yawkins still comes now and then," said Reuben.

Dan's answer was an affirmative wink.

"When and where can I see him?"

"Are ye gaun in for a venture?" inquired Dan, looking keenly at the youth from under his shaggy eyebrows.

"Yes, I am going in for a venture," answered Reuben.

"Weel," replied the other in a low tone, "on the third nicht from this be at the Black Scaup at nine o'clock—that's half tide—and ane will meet you there that'll tak' ye to Yawkins."

"At the Black Scaup?" repeated Reuben.

Dan nodded.

"On Thursday night at nine o'clock?"

The nod was repeated.

"Good—I'll keep the appointment; and here's a crown piece for your trouble in the matter."

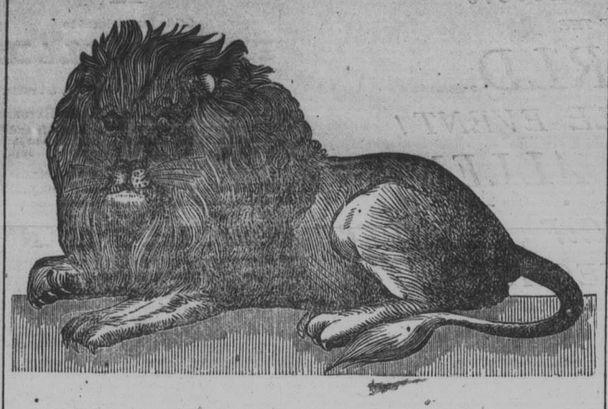
Dan thrust from the side of the bed a dirty shrivelled hand and eagerly clutched the large silver coin, for which he offered not a word of thanks. Probably he did not consider such to be due. He had given full value for the money, and received it as his rightful payment.

"Ye'll need the pass," said Dan as the other was leaving.

"Ah, true; the precaution is not unnecessary. Is it word or sign?"

"It's question and answer," said Dan. Him that meets ye—if he is yer man—will say, What's the tide?"

"Yes; and my answer must be——"



"Half, and makin'. Dinna forget it, for if ye miss a word, the deil a fit will he gang we ye."

"I shall remember. Good night. I shall leave the door open so that I may see my way past that cursed basket."

"There he goes cursin' Wull Crookston's haddock lines," muttered Dan. "If Meg ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

Dairymen's Association.

LONDON, FEB. 19.—The Association resumed at nine o'clock this morning.

Rev. W. F. Clarke addressed the meeting on improving the breed of cattle, recommending the formation of a national Society of Dairymen. The principal objects of this Society would be to test the relative worth of the various breeds of cattle, and encourage dairymen and farmers in raising an improved breed.

The next order of business was a paper on butter and butter making by Hon. Harris Lewis, of Frankfort, N. Y. After a few introductory remarks Prof. Lewis said that butter in all probability became known by accident. It had been known for centuries, but how it first became known they had never been able to find out. He referred to the different makes and kinds of butter, which he divided into three kinds or classes—good butter, poor butter, and oleomargarine butter. The first of these three, was what all desired, but few could make. To make this, it was necessary, in the first place, to have a good breed of cows for making butter. He had found in the course of his long experience that in all herds, individual cows gave poorer milk than others, and the cream from this poorer milk deteriorated from the quality of butter made by others and good cows in the same herd. In the production of first-class butter, the food and treatment of a cow played important parts. Where a cow was cruelly treated and poorly fed, she would not give as good milk as if properly cared for and fed. In this respect, many dairymen might find one of the sources of poor butter. He had found in his long experience that long grasses alone, or mixed with one-quarter of clover, formed the best food for producing butter. Milking was also an important thing to be considered in butter making. The butter making powers of many cows' milk were spoiled by improper milking, and in this part of the dairy work great care should be taken.

Of all the kinds of churns with which he had met, he found the old time dasher churn, if properly constructed, to be the best, and superior to all those of recent invention. With regard to the temperature, the churn should be stopped when the butter came into small globules, and the temperature reduced. The appearance of the butter-maker, he regarded, as having a great deal to do with the taste of his butter. He had seen some butter-makers whose hair had not been combed for seven or eight months, and he had often attempted to calculate what were the relative proportions of hair and butter in what they sold for butter. He also advised dairymaids not to eat onions whilst butter-making, as it tainted the butter, even if their breath did not smell.

Prof. Willard also read an interesting paper upon the same subject, dealing with the recent inventions for butter-making. With regard to the raising of cream, the speaker advocated raising the cream at the farm as preferable to sending milk to the factory to be skimmed. By adopting this method, cream was raised better and quicker, and in larger amounts per gallon of milk than by the other.

In the afternoon the report of the committee on nominations, wherein was recommended the appointment of the following officers for 1880, was read and adopted:—President, E. Caswell, Ingersoll; First Vice-President, L. R. Richardson, Strathroy; Second Vice, John Wheaton, London; Directors, Rev. W. F. Clarke, Guelph; Adam Spiers, Caisterville; H. L. Lossie, Norwich; Wm. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

In Macmillan's Magazine for February appears a striking article contributed by Cetewayo, the conquered and dethroned king of the Zulus. The deposed Zulu King was anxious that the glory of his tribe should not perish, and Captain J. R. Poole, who has charge of him, served as his amanuensis, a Mr. Longcast translating the King's story into English. "The story impresses one," says the Boston Advertiser, "as Standing Bear's simple, but manly eloquence did those who heard it. Cetewayo is, in his way, a statesman and a character. He has lost his authority, but the English had to pay dearly for their victory. They lost the last Napoleon and Isandula is one of the saddest days in the whole military history of Great Britain. Cetewayo's story is given in his own words, and, though necessarily one-sided, it allows some wonderful insight into his character and the nature of his government."

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

When a child in a small Bavarian village was being catechised by a priest, and asked how many things are necessary in a service of baptism, he promptly replied; "Three, father," "Ah, you stupid," replied the holy man, "I thought everybody knew that only two are absolutely necessary; first, water; and second, the Bible. Now, young sir, won't you tell me what are the three?" The boy looked up with a bland smile, and answered: "My father, the three are, first, water; second, the Bible; and third, a baby."

The sanitary inspector of Dundee has watched the effect of sewer gas on portions of the zinc eaves of buildings where it was striking, and found, in the course of two years, holes eaten completely through. This illustrates the penetrating power of this poisonous gas that so often is allowed free access to our living rooms, also the necessity of inspecting often the pipes leading from our basins, etc., for though lead offers a longer resistance, it in time is destroyed.

It is interesting, and to many people it may be profitable, to know the comparative value of different kinds of wood for fuel. Shellbark hickory is regarded as the highest standard of our forest trees, and calling that 100, other trees will compare with it for real value as fuel for house purposes as follows:—Shellbark hickory, 100; pignut hickory, 92; white oak, 84; white ash, 77; dogwood, 75; scrub oak, 73; white hazel, 72; appletree, 70; red oak, 67; white beach, 65; black birch, 62; yellow oak, 60; hard maple, 59; white elm, 58; red cedar, 56; wild cherry, 55; yellow pine, 54; chestnut, 52; yellow poplar, 54; butternut, and white birch, 43; white pine, 30. It is worth bearing in mind that in wood of the same species there is a great difference, according to the soil in which they grow. A tree that grows in a wet, low rich ground will be less solid and less durable for fuel, and therefore of less value than a tree of the same kind that grows on a dry and poor soil. To the ordinary purchaser oak is oak and pine is pine; but for home use the tree grown on dry upland, and standing apart from all others, is worth a great deal more.

The sugar tariff will likely suffer severely before very long, from the cultivation of amber sugar cane, which is now being introduced to the notice of our farmers as a profitable crop. It has proved a success in Minnesota, where during last year 700,000 gallons of syrup were extracted from the crop raised on 4,624 acres. In 1878 the acres numbered 3,207, and the gallons of syrup 429,660.

During the last fiscal year there were used in Ontario 2,876.834 pounds of malt, 51,418,007 pounds of corn, 10,713,195 pounds of rye, 1,920 pounds of wheat, 1,372,400 pounds of oats, and 169,550 pounds of mill offal, or a total of 66,549,456 pounds of grain stuffs used for distillation into spirits in Ontario. Calculate quietly how many months this vast amount of breadstuffs would feed.

From 1869, to 1877, inclusive, 194 deaths—159 of men and 35 of women—from lightning are returned by the Register-General as having occurred in England. But these returns are admittedly incomplete. In Prussia, during the same period of time, with a population exceeding that of England and Wales by only some five per cent., according to a report from the Statistical Bureau of Berlin, 1,004 deaths were caused by lightning. In the 49 governments of European Russia 4,540 deaths are recorded from this cause within five years, and 4,192 fires are attributed to the same meteoric energy.

Artificial Diamonds.

LONDON, FEB. 20.—In his letter to the Times on the subject of the production of artificial diamonds, Prof Story Maskelyne, after describing the various tests applied, concluded as follows:—

There is no doubt whatever that J. Ballantyne Hannay, has succeeded in solving the problem and removing from scientific chemistry the opprobrium so long adhering to it; for whereas the larger part of the great volume recording the triumphs of that science is occupied by the chemistry of carbon, this element has never been crystallized by man till Hannay achieved the triumph which I have the pleasure of recording to-day. His process for effecting this transmutation is hardly less momentous to the arts than to the possessors of a wealth of jewellery. It is on the eve of being announced to the Royal Society.

The crystallized particles sent to Prof. Maskelyne present exactly the appearance of broken diamond. These fragments easily scored deep grooves in the polished surface of sapphire.

The San Francisco Chronicle gives an account of the doings of a bogus English baronet, who styled himself "Sir George B. Green Bridges." The interest this section of Ontario has in his successful career is that he was for a number of months a resident of Walkerton and had rooms in Bruce's block. He turns out to be a fraud and dead-beat of the first water. He confessed that he was plain Joseph Green, a music teacher, of Hamilton.

The Mansion House Committee on Wednesday voted $10,000 to the Donegal Committee. The Mansion House Committee are printing the Herald's table as a circular appeal, and are sending it broadcast over England and the colonies. The Freeman's Journal has reprinted the table and devoted a leader to the analysis of its facts. The Irish Times says it is clear from the nature of the subscriptions to the Herald fund that the political fund element in the previous movement did not entirely satisfy the American people.

The Dominion Government so far recognizes the rights of Ontario as to place two members from the Province on the Boundary Committee. Two is a good many!

A four-months-old dog in Lexington, Ky., when any one sings or whistles, sits upon his haunches, elevates his head, shuts his eyes, and howls in union, modulating his voice to the notes of the music.

A drunken doctor in Syracuse put a man under the influence of ether and sewed up some gashes in his face. Blood flowed from the man's mouth, and then the doctor sewed up the mouth and went home. The patient recovered and by vigorous um! umming! succeeded in securing the attention of his friends, and another doctor cut the stitches.

Last year was a very bad season for the English cotton industry, largely on account of the frequent strikes which occurred in that trade. It is calculated that during the past four years the cotton spinners and manufacturers have lost £19,000,000 sterling, of which £6,000,000 was lost last year. The loss to labour, owing to reductions in wages, in the past two years was more than four millions and a half, three fourths of which was sustained in 1879. This estimate is founded on actual working only, and takes no account of the depreciation of machinery during weeks of idleness.

Daily Mercury.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB 24 1880

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

The Inquest Again Adjourned.

LUCAN, Feb. 23.—The inquest touching the murder of the Donnelly family will not be resumed to-morrow, as was anticipated, on account of the continued illness of Dr. Hossack. He has been attended by Dr. Sutton, of Clandeboye, since Wednesday last, and was progressing favourably until this afternoon, when a relapse set in, and he was obliged to telegraph the Crown Attorney at London, that he could not possibly proceed to-morrow. The answer came from Mr. Hutchinson to adjourn for a week, which will have to be done. Consequently the prisoners will not be brought up here in the morning, and there is some doubt as to whether the magisterial investigation will be continued in the city on Thursday, as the Crown representatives do not wish any more evidence produced until after the Coroner's jury has rendered a verdict.

Amid this unsettled state of affairs the London police are active and persevering in their search for further clues which may lead to the conviction of the guilty parties.

Day by day, as the officers detect a clue here and gather up a link there, their confidence in being able to bring guilt home to at least five of the number suspected increases, notwithstanding the huge efforts their counsel and friends will make to obtain the acquittal of all concerned. There appears to be a growing determination on the part of the latter to leave not a stone unturned to secure their end. This feeling permeates the whole district where the tragedy occurred, and is shared in by women as well as men. To give an illustration, an elderly female was heard to say, "Shure we're agin the law, and will not lave it a leg to sthand on."

The Prince of Hesse's Account of the Explosion in the Winter Palace.

The Nihilists Still at Work.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—A letter from Prince Alexander of Hesse to his wife, dated St. Petersburg, Feb. 17, says:

I was received at the railway station by all the sons of the Emperor and by Prince Alexander of Bulgaria (the writer's own son), and was then conducted to the Winter Palace. The Emperor awaited me at the staircase. We were proceeding through the large corridor to His Majesty's apartments when suddenly a fearful detonation was heard. The flooring was raised as if by an earthquake, the gas was extinguished, and we were left in total darkness. At the same time a horrible dust and smell of gunpowder or dynamite filled the corridor. Some one shouted to us that the chandelier had fallen down in the saloon, where the table was laid for dinner. I hastened thither with the Czarewich and the Grand Duke Vladimir, while Count Adlerberg, in doubt as to what might have happened, held back the Emperor. We found all the windows broken, and the walls in ruins. Dinner had been delayed half an hour for my arrival, and it was owing to this circumstance that the Imperial Family had not yet assembled in the dining hall.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 23. — General Gourko, Governor-General of St. Petersburg; General Drenteln, Chief of the Imperial Police; and General Zonroff, Prefect of Police of St. Petersburg, have received notices from the Nihilist Committee informing them that they need not trouble themselves to make arrangements for the illumination on the occasion of the Czar's anniversary, as the revolutionists are preparing for such an illumination as has not been since Nero burned Rome.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23 —A telegram from St. Petersburg reports that in view of possible explosions the police have ordered the citizens to be provided constantly with a supply of water for two days. The Nihilists have issued a proclamation threatening to set fire to the capital on the 3rd March. The St. Petersburg Government have decided to increase the number of house porters, who will be instructed to be ready to guard against emergencies, especially on the anniversary of the Czar's accession.

Parnell in Chicago.

Mr. Parnell reached Chicago on Monday, and received quite an ovation. Along the line of march the streets were impassable owing to the crowds, aggregating at a low estimate 75,000 people. Parnell arrived at the Michigan Central at eight o'clock, and was escorted to the Grand Pacific Hotel by a detachment of the Second Irish Regiment of the State militia. About fifty different Irish national societies, together with seventeen divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, formed in procession, marching in full regalia and presenting a splendid sight in the moonlight. Over 20,000 men were in line. The mass meeting was held at the Exposition building, and not less than 10,000 persons were present, paying large admission fees. Governor Cullom presided, and made the opening address, and Hon. Thomas Hoyne and representatives of most of the political and religious societies were on the list of Vice-Presidents. Parnell's speech was a repitition of his previous efforts at the east, and was loudly cheered. He said he had never met such a magnificent reception in any other American city he had visited. The Socialistic and labor organizations had a parade and mass meeting in honor of Parnell's political agitation, but the affair was not a great success, and the speeches were of the usual Socialistic character. The subscriptions to Irish relief from all sources in the city now amount to over $50,000.

A GOOD HINT.—A clergyman talking to some youngsters on the coming vacation and diverging into the necessity of kindness to animals incidentally remarked:—"Boys are often cruel to frogs and toads. I remember when a boy of wickedly filling up a toad with fire crackers and then lighting the slow match." He was horrified to see this remark received with the liveliest emotions of interest and delight, and utterly prostrated as he passed out at hearing one urchin say to another: "By jingo, that's a new note. Won't we have fun blowing up the bull paddles down in the medder?"

A DISPUTE ABOUT ICE.—There is a dispute between Mr. Spence, miller, and the icemen, with reference to taking ice from the dam at his mill, without paying him for the privilege. Yesterday morning Mr. Smith started cutting ice on the river above Mr. Spence's property, but Mr. Spence objected, on the ground that the ice was his to a distance where the water ceased to rise owing to the dam. Notwithstanding this objection, Mr. Smith is still cutting ice above the dam and Mr. Harris intends commencing to lay in a supply from the same place to-morrow. Mr. Spence has threatened to bring an action against Mr. Smith for tresspass. It was reported that Mr. Powis, of Hamilton, had been given the sole right of taking ice from Mr. Goldie's dam, but this turns out to be incorrect.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.—This eminent reader appears for the second time before a Guelph audience, at the City Hall, tonight. Many seats have been secured for the entertainment, and she will doubtless be greeted with a full house. The satisfaction she gave on the occasion of her last visit here will doubtless make her stay successful.

THE CASE OF MISS COOPER.—Miss Cooper living on the London Road was reported a few days ago to be in a destitute condition. Since then she has been removed to the General Hospital, and her house, which is said to have been in a filthy state, visited by the Health Inspector and renovated. The report is contradicted that she had no means of support. It is understood that she had both money and real estate which has however passed into her brother's hands.

A STRANGE HAUNT FOR MICE—This (Tuesday) morning Mr. Walter Laing, butcher, discovered three nests of mice in the platform of his weigh scale. He was trying to weigh some tallow and found that the scales would not work. Having noticed mice running towards the scales, he thought they must have made a nest about the apparatus, which turned out to be the case. On examination, no less than fifteen mice were taken from the scales and a quantity of torn paper and other rubbish used for making the nests.

THE members of the Young Peoples' Aid Society of the Norfolk street Methodist Church, will hold a tea meeting in connection with the anniversary services on Monday evening next. Tea will be served in the basement, after which an excellent programme of music, &c., will be provided. The young people are putting forth great exertions to make this the best one of the season, and those who may fail to attend will undoubtedly miss one of the greatest treats of the season, both intellectually and otherwise.

THE CITY POOR.—A number of ladies from the Benevolent Society had an interview with the Mayor and chairman of the Relief Committee of the City Council, at the City Hall on Monday afternoon, with reference to the best means of ascertaining and aiding people who are really in destitute circumstances. After some consultation the ladies for each ward were appointed to make enquiries and learn definitely the condition of applicants for relief. In the evening the Mayor and chairman of the Relief Committee met the St. Vincent de Paul Society and made arrangements with them for aiding only those deserving assistance.

RECLAIMING A BOY.—A case has come to light in which the friends of a boy named Peter Henry Picken had considerable difficulty in reclaiming him from a neighboring family with whom he had been living. The parties connected with the affair reside in Puslinch, and the circumstances seem to be as follows:—Some three years ago the parents of the boy, who was then three or four years old, died, and his guardianship was entrusted to a neighbour named Decker. After a time Mrs. Decker died and her husband handed the lad over to Francis King. The Picken family afterwards made repeated attempts to obtain possession of their little brother, but could not find him, and alleged that he was hidden on purpose. Finally, hearing that the Kings were going to remove to Nebraska they consulted a lawyer in the city, and the result was that a warrant was issued against them for maliciously detaining the boy. The Chief of Police visited King's house on Monday and arrested the lad Peter Henry Picken as a witness in the case. The Kings explained that they did not keep the boy concealed. An arrangement was made whereby they will receive remuneration for the expense of keeping him during his stay with them. It is understood they leave for Nebraska this week. Meantime the boy is under arrest.

Over 40,000 persons have died from diphtheria in two provinces in Russia since November, and in some localities almost whole villages have died out.

Demonstration of Unemployed Workingmen in Ottawa.

They Ask for Work and are Snubbed by the Premier.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—"Never before was Canada so prosperous as she is to-day" was Sir Leouard Tilley's text at Sherbrooke, but the two hundred orderly, though half starved, and unemployed labourers who marched to the Parliament Buildings this afternoon thought otherwise. These men, who daily see their children at home starving for food while Tory contract brokers ride in their carriages from palatial residences to their offices, have now learned that in elevating men of that stamp to power they only elevated baseness and ingratitude. About half past two this afternoon the unemployed labourers marched into the Parliament Square, where they drew up in an orderly line in front of the main entrance. The deputation was well behaved, and therefore unlike the mob hired by the Tories to demand "blood or bread" when Mr. Mackenzie was in power. It is an indisputable fact, that in order to swell the proportions of that gathering, almost every Protectionist employer of labour in the city gave his men leave of absence during the demonstration. To-day nothing of that character was practised. The gathering was spontaneous, and made despite the contrary efforts of several Tory agents outside the Parliament Buildings. A detachment of Dominion Police was drawn up, in cruer, it is presumed, to club the men should they attempt to enter the buildings. A deputation of three, however, were permitted to enter the vestibule to await the Premier's arrival. They had in their possession the following letter for presentation to him:—

To the Right Honorable Sir John Macdonald, Premier of the Dominion of Canada:

The unemployed workingmen resident in the city of Ottawa respectfully request that you will be pleased to authorize and commence the construction of some public work in or around this locality, so as to afford employment to the laboring classes which are now, and have been for some months past, out of work, the number of such unemployed and deserving men amounting to about 250. The men, the majority of whom have large families dependent upon their daily work for support, are unable to leave this city for other places in the country for want of means. Your petitioners therefore do respectfully request you to assist them to obtain honorable employment for a few weeks until the close of the winter. By granting the prayer of this petition your petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

Signed on behalf of the men,

FINLAY ROSE.
ADOLPHE RICHARD.
GEORGE ENGLISH.

Shortly after three o'clock Sir John Macdonald and several Cabinet Ministers left the Privy Council Chamber under the protection of a member of the Dominion police and walked to the Parliament buildings. Evidently the Ministers did not care to face without protection those whom they had so cruelly deceived and wronged. Entering the vestibule Sir John was presented with the letter, which he accepted without speaking to the men. He passed on, deliberately snubbing them. An hour later he was gracious enough to send out a message that he would see two of the men to-morrow after breakfast, but, unlike Mr. Mackenzie, he made no provision that the men should breakfast.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.—The Harriston Tribune gives the following account of an assault which occurred on the 14th instant. On Saturday evening, the 14th inst., Mr. C. Welsh, of Moorefield, received what may yet prove a fatal blow from some person or persons not yet known. It appears that on Saturday night Mr. Welsh, who lives a short distance from the village, went up to the store to buy a hat for one his boys, while there a friend met him and invited him to have a drink. Welsh, who has not touched liquor for some two or three years, but who, previous to that had indulged to excess, complied, a return treat was of course the result. The friend left, but the old appetite in Charley was up, and he must have more. He visited several places in the village, and the last seen of him as far as can be learned, was at about 9 o'clock at night. His wife who had been anxiously awaiting his return was startled at about 11 o'clock by the front door being pushed in, accompanied by a heavy thud upon the floor. She rushed to the door and enquired what was the matter. Charley replied in a faint voice that he had been murdered. Mrs. Welsh stepped quickly on side, and saw the figures of two men beating a hasty retreat, but could not recognize either. She at once turned her attention to her husband who had become insensible; blood was gushing from a fearful wound upon the back of his head, his clothes being completely saturated and his boots full. An alarm was at once raised and the neighborhood aroused. For some time all efforts to stop the flow of blood were fruitless, an artery having been severed by the blow, but at last success crowned their efforts and his life was spared for a time. It is hard to come to any conclusion as to who could commit so dastardly a deed upon one who it was supposed had not an enemy in the world. The case is being investigated by his friends. On Monday Welsh was considered to be slightly on the mend, but his case is said to be very critical.

THE HUM IN ELORA.—Mr. J. R. Wissler, of Salem, who was referred to in a recent extract reprinted in the Globe from the Welland Tribune as having "changed his tune" about the N. P., writes to say that he has even greater faith in the "National Policy" now than he had when he advocated its adoption in September, 1878. While making this confession of his faith, however, Mr. Wissler does not deny that at a meeting of the Elora Agricultural Machine Company he attempted to account for the smallness of the dividend by stating that the Tilley tariff had increased the price of iron, coal, paint, and other materials. In taking this ground he only corroborates the assertions we have already published from Mr. Glen. Of course, if Mr. Wissler chooses to stick to the tariff he has a perfect right to do so, but we imagine that he will soon find himself isolated in his attitude of admiration. —Globe.

THE BRANT MEMORIAL.—The New York Sun says:—Brant, the half-breed Mohawk chief, who led the Six Nations as allies of the British a hundred years ago, is to have a $30,000 monument at Brantford, Canada, where he died in 1817, at an advanced age. So, just as we are talking of a monument for Herkimer, who fell at Oriskany, the descendants and townsmen of Brant, who fought Herkimer, are preparing a monument for him. This shows that there are people in the world who are looking on the savage Brant with something of the respect that we have for Herkimer.

Board of Education.

The Board of Education met on Monday night; present—Messrs. Murton, (chairman), Knowles, Newton, Leonard, Inglis, Robertson, Swinford, Wilkie, Skinner, Burgess, McKenzie, Innes, Bell, and Hart.

The chairman said he was not present when the Board organized for the year, or he should have thanked them for placing him in the chair again. He felt it an honor and as in the past he would, devote all the time and attention he could to the important duties connected with the honorable position in which they had placed him.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Strickland of the firm of Stewart & Strickland, Architects, Toronto, wrote the Secretary requesting that certain statements with reference to their account in connection with the Central School should be forwarded to him. As the matter involved a question for the consideration of the Board the Secretary submitted it.

Mr. Fred. J. Chadwick communicated that he had paid 50c. as school fees for his son under protest, and would contest the matter. Mr. Chadwick is according to the school law a non-resident.

Mr. Tytler wrote asking a liberal grant for the supply of apparatus, books, maps, etc., for the High School. He pointed out that there were scarcely any apparatus for illustrating Mechanics, there were no globes, and only three maps that were any good. He trusted that the urgent necessity for these furnishings would receive the favorable consideration of the Board, and asked that a grant of $200 be set aside for their purchase.

The Principal sumbitted his report of the attendance at the High School for January. It showed that the attendance was 162—99 boys and 63 girls; with a total average attendance of 146. Non-resident pupils in attendance, 40.

Major Macdonald communicated recommending the carrying out at the High School an order issued on the 25th July last, for military instruction at Colleges and High Schools.

Mrs. McCarthy (late Miss Tiffany) sent in her resignation as music teacher at the Central School.

Applications for the position were read from Mrs. Budd, Hattie Goodfellow, and Mary Strange. A number of recommendations held by the last named applicant were read.

Mrs. Rowland submitted an application for the position of care-taker of the North Ward School.

A communication from Mr. Tytler was read, stating that the stove pipes in Miss Langley's room were out of order and filled the room with smoke. One day last week she had to let the fire go out, and on account of the cold was obliged to dismiss the scholars at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Mr. Burgess stated that since the letter was written the defects complained of had been remedied.

Mr. Strickland's communication was referred to the following committee:—Messrs. Murton, Innes, Harvey and Peterson.

On motion of Messrs. Wilkie and Skinner, Mrs. McCarthy's resignation as music teacher was accepted.

On motion of Messrs. Skinner and Wilkie, Mrs. Budd was appointed in Mrs. McCarthy's stead.

A number of accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mrs. Rowland's application was referred to the School Property Committee.

A SUGGESTION.

Mr. Skinner suggested that the Principal should bring down a paper on the inner life of the School, for the information of the Board and citizens. He believed this would be a pleasant and beneficial way of spending some evening when the Board had not much business to do.

Mr. Knowles thought the Board should go farther than that, and, commencing with the chairman, each deliver a lecture.

Mr. Tytler thought the proper channel for his communication to come through was the School Management Committee. It was not advisable to make public all matters in the inner life of the school.

THE HIGH SCHOOL FEE QUESTION.

Messrs. Newton and Innes moved that the School Management Committee be asked to consider the advisability of charging non-resident pupils attending the High School a fee and resident pupils a small monthly fee, and report at next meeting.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Messrs. Innes and Burgess moved that the thanks of this Board be tendered Mr. Thomas Greet, for the care and attention he has given his duties as High School Treasurer for the last three years.—Carried.

DESTROYING SCHOOL PROPERTY.

Mr. Knowles, Chairman of the Committee on School Management, reported that he had been informed by Mr. Tytler, that a boy named Howard, attending Miss McNaughton's room, had destroyed a desk by cutting it with a jack-knife. Also that two lads, named Philpotts and Welsh, had broken windows in the South Ward School. The boys were now under suspension.

The Board went into committee, and after some discussion passed the following resolution:—

Moved by Messrs. Swinford and Wilkie, that the damage done by the boys be repaired by their parents, and that the boys be kept under suspension till the repairs are made.

This resolution was carried in committee and afterwards in the Board.

The Board adjourned at 9.05 o'clock.

A FREQUENT CAUSE OF HEART DISEASE.—Dr. B. W. Richardson says there are few acts of a physical kind, performed by men in the regular course of life, which so demonstrably produce physicial disease of the heart and great blood vessels, as the act of running or hastening to catch the train. There is more in the act than the mere waste; there is the attendant excitement, the looking out for the signs that the train is still there; the breathless mode of enquiry how long will it be before the train starts; the hurry to get past people on the platform; the trepidation, perchance, to get a ticket, the numberless little irritations which come in the way; the pits and pats of temper, if any obstacles give trouble and annoyance; and other anxieties. These all add their quota to the general disturbance and to the strain which cripples or the strain which kills.

Daily Mercury.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 24, 1880.

New Parliament Buildings for Ontario.

The plans for the new Parliament Buildings in the Queen's Park, Toronto, were laid before the Legislature on Monday afternoon, and to-day the Commissioner of Public Works will move a serious of resolutions respecting their erection. As this is a matter of interest to the whole Province, we give a summary of the resolutions, together with a sketch of the plan of the proposed buildings.

The resolutions set out with the declaration that it is expedient that proper accommodation should be provided for the Legislature and Departments of Public Service; that the present buildings are unsuited for the purpose, and that the site being within the commercial and business portion of the city is less adapted to the purposes to which it is now applied, and is more valuable in a commercial point of view.

The site mentioned in the Queen's Park is considered to be the most eligible, and it is estimated that the new buildings can be erected at a cost not to exceed $500,000. The value of the old site, together with about eighty acres of land, situated in the western part of the city in the immediate neighborhood of the Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory, it is estimated will form a fund sufficient to recoup and reimburse the Province in respect of so much of the $500,000 as shall be expended in the erection of the new buildings.

The Government provides by these resolutions that the lands referred to shall by public auction, or by tender, be sold in such lots, and upon such terms as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall deem best for the public interest, and that all moneys to be paid for the said lands shall be applied to form a fund to be known as the "Parliament Buildings Construction Fund 1880," and that such moneys shall not be applied to any other purpose.

The plans submitted are very elaborate, and show the arrangements for the basement, the ground floor and first floor. They are in brief as follows:

The basement will contain the heating and ventilating apparatus, and the apartments of the housekeeper. On the ground floor of the main building are situated the Legislative Chamber to the right of the main entrance, and the Library to the left of it. The east wing is divided between the Departments of the Secretary and the Treasurer, and the west is devoted to the Crown Lands and Timber offices. Clustering round the Chamber and Library are the Legislative committee rooms, the post office, etc, etc. On the first floor the upward continuations of the Chamber and Library claim the same spaces as on the ground floor. To the left or west of the Library in the main building are the offices devoted to sessional clerks, etc., and to the right or east of the Chamber are the Speaker's and press rooms, as in the present buildings. The east wing on this floor is taken up with the Attorney-General's Department and that of Public Works, while the west is devoted to the Department of Education.

The main building, which will stand somewhere to the north of the cannon and fountain in the Park looking south, is 290 feet by 160, and 45 feet high. The Assembly Chamber is 70 feet square, and the Library 70 by 62. The east and west wings are each 280 feet by 80, and 40 feet high. The elevations of the building look somewhat low in the plan, but any defect in appearance arising from this cause may be guarded against by keeping as much of the basement storey above ground as may be required to give the whole building the requisite height.

The style of the proposed buildings is the early English, or Pointed, of the 13th century, prevalent when English Parliamentary institutions took their origin. It has been adopted because it affords greater accommodation and a finer appearance for the cost than any other style. The bricks used in the construction of the building can be made at the Central Prison, the slate can be procured at Melbourne, in Quebec, the waterlime can be got at George-town and Napanee, and it is expected that the sand can be got out of the excavations for the foundations. It is proposed that Canadian materials should be used in every instance where practicable, and from the specimens to be submitted it will be conceded that the Province contains abundance of sound, durable stone, bricks, slate, and waterlime, which will constitute the principal articles required for construction. Stone suitable for coursed rubble work and flagging can be procured from the Milton, Georgetown, Guelph, or Caledon quarries, on the lines of the Hamilton and North-Western, Grand Trunk, and Credit Valley Railways, and for finer work from the Shelburne quarries on the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway. Good limestone for all kinds of work could also be procured from Kingston, Belleville, and Queenston by water, and from Waubashene and Couchiching on the lines of the Midland and Northern Railways.

Two years is fixed as the time within which the wings may be completed, and three years the main building. It is estimated that $500,000 will amply cover the whole plan, including construction, plumbing, lighting, heating, ventilation, and drainage.

Reports come from China showing that the deterioration in cotton goods manufactured in England had caused an enormous falling off in the imports from that country into Chinese ports during the last five years, while the American goods, guiltless of sizing and clay, were rapidly gaining command of that market. The same story comes from Hindostan. A recent number of The Friend of India, an English journal published in India, states that while the trade of that country with other countries is rapidly increasing, it has as rapidly decreased with great Britain. In 1867 the percentage of trade was 66 30 with the United Kingdom; in 1879 it had fallen to 56.25. This is attributed to the "heavy adulterations and sizings of piece-goods of English cotton." The importations from the Mother Country fell in 1879 over 200,000,000 yards from those of 1878.

Two Ontario members on the Boundary Award Committee. That is how Sir John does justice to Ontario.

Active steps are being taken in Lennox to unseat Mr. Hooper, the member for that county in the House of Commons, on account of his mismanagement of the office of County Treasurer.

Mr. Robertson, M. P. for Hamilton, boasted some time ago that he would never take his seat in the House if Mr. Gibson, the Reform member for the Local Legislature, was declared elected for that city. Mr. Gibson has been declared elected by the Court, and yet Mr. Robertson coolly takes his seat.

The London Standard states that rumours were freely circulated on both sides of the lobby on Monday night that the immediate dissolution of Parliament is contemplated. The Standard adds: "These reports are premature, but if the business of the House continues to be systematically obstructed the Government will have no alternative but to dissolve Parliament at an early day."

The Brantford Expositor says:—"The Agricultural College is emphatically a farmers' school, and we are much pleased to see the interest manifested by the Government in it, and also that these efforts are so heartily appreciated by young men desirous of fitting themselves for the high and honorable profession they have chosen. All who attend will find it a most profitable investment of time, and one that will render a life-long return."

The official statistics of the coal trade of Nova Scotia for 1879 have not yet been made public. The Local Government, knowing that they are not satisfactory, are keeping them from the press. From other sources, however, accurate statistics of all the coal mines in the island of Cape Breton have been obtained. The coal shipped from all these mines last year amounted to 228,839 tons. In 1878 the same mines shipped 267,697 tons, so that these mines instead of experiencing the promised prosperity actually did less business than in 1878, the decrease being 38,858 tons. If the home trade alone were considered—that trade which the National Policy promised particularly to revive—the decrease would be greater, but an increased demand in Newfoundland, where there is no N. P., kept some of the mines in operation. Two mines which shipped in 1878 were closed in 1879.

Poor Relief in England, Ireland and Scotland.

The statistics of the poor relief system are facts stronger than Mr. Parnell's eloquence, and they do not make in favour of home rule. These show that in England and Wales thirty three millions of dollars are annually spent for poor relief; in Scotland eight millions, and in Ireland four millions. These figures are for 1878 and previous years before the rains of 1879 destroyed the crops. They show that the English are taxed a dollar and a half a year each for their paupers, the Scotch over two dollars a year each and the Irish less than one dollar a year each. The numbers relieved are 752,886 persons in England, 66,733 in Scotland, and 77,913 in Ireland. The Scotch paupers, thus although less numerous than the Irish in total, are much more so in proportion to population, and appear to be about twice as hungry. One thirty-third of the population of England are paupers and one fifty-fourth of the Scotch, while only one sixty-eighth of the Irish are ordinarily in the list. The present famine has no doubt changed considerably the comparative pauperism of the three countries, but it would not be fair to judge them by conditions produced by so extraordinary circumstances as those which now obtain in Ireland. There are interesting economic questions involved in these facts, which we have not space even to state, but a very interesting political question appears on the face. If home rule does not save England and Scotland from pauperism and misery, how will it be able to do it for Ireland?—Detroit News.

Dairymen's Association.

London, Feb. 20.

When the Association met to-day the chairman stated that he was happy to report that the finances of the Association were in a better state this year than ever, he had heard from an unofficial source that the Government had appropriated $1,500 towards the Association. They had enough money now to supply all the patrons with a copy of the report.

SOILING OF CATTLE.

Prof. Brown, of the Agricultural College, Guelph, read an essay upon soiling of cattle in Canada. They were accustomed to hear of different kinds of farming. He said the day was not far distant when every foot of land would be cultivated, at least in Ontario. One of the great agents in this direction was the grazing and raising of cattle. Soiling was the housing of cattle in all seasons, and from the middle of April to the middle of October the food was taken to them. They cannot secure in this country the rich pastures of England because they could not secure a variety of grasses. Our droughts, and especially the winter, operates against the richness of the pasture. Although there was sufficient rainfall in Canada per head of cattle, it was not properly distributed. On an average, cattle upon the green grass does not go back, but makes little fat, therefore the frame can be made in the field, but the preparation for the foreign markets must be made elsewhere. Whatever tended to fatten was also of benefit for milking cows. With the glorious sun, of which we have so much, we ought to have a rich succession of green fodder, such as makes so rich an agricultural produce in other countries. He would divide the subject of green fodder into six different elements, all of which were highly necessary to have in order to produce the required steady and constant supply of green fodder. These were as follows:—An early cut; repeated cuttings from the same plant in one season; a sufficient number of kinds to afford an unbroken supply of succulent herbage; the kinds to differ in constituent element, that is, in their chemical properties; the largest possible produce per acre; and lastly, a high fattening and milking property.

Mr. Weld asked Prof. Brown whether he had ever heard of the existence of pleuro-pneumonia, hog cholera, or of foot and mouth disease in Canada.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

The Fire at the Model Farm.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

Sir,—Will you oblige me by allowing me through your paper in reply to Mr. Brown's remarks on the fire at the Model Farm on Saturday morning last. Mr. Brown says if the engine had responded to the call the main building could have been saved. From what I have been able to find out about the time the fire started it was before three o'clock, and the first intimation I had of it was about a quarter past four. The building had been burning then about an hour, and by the time the engine could have got to the fire there would have been no chance of saving any part of the building, no matter what the supply of water might have been. I asked the messenger that came after the engine in presence of four or five persons if there were any tanks near the fire that that we could get water from, and his answer was that there was not, but that there were several wells. I at once came to the conclusion that there was no use in going with the engine I wish the public to understand that although the fire was outside our limits—as we are not supposed to leave the city—I would have taken the responsibility of going out with the steamer and the Brigade if I had seen there was any prospect of doing any good. Hoping this explanation will be satisfactory, I subscribe myself

CHAPTER XVIII.

REUBEN LANGTON FORMS A DARK DESIGN, AND SEEKS ASSISTANCE FOR ITS EXECUTION.

Up the slope and away across the moor went Reuben Langton, full of his dark project, and gloating by anticipation over his coming triumph—a triumph over purity and innocence by means at once desperate and despicable. He called his device a just revenge for the scorn and contempt with which Agnes Borland had treated him, forgetting—or rather let us say being incapable of understanding—that she had a better right to taunt and spurn than he so guilty to love.

It was close on midnight when he reached Cairnbank, but as his father troubled himself little about his son's movements his late arrival led to no inquiries; in fact, the old man was in bed and sound asleep, like a man at peace with the world and his own conscience. For schemer and plotter though he was, no one enjoyed more undisturbed slumber than Anthony Langton. He had retired to rest that night in a state of special satisfaction, for the way had been made clear for the Grange being brought to sale, and during the course of the afternoon he had been able to send a document to Mr. Bishop containing the information that at the end of four months—that is, towards the close of the following April, the sale would take place.

Mr. Bishop was about to quit his office for the night when the unwelcome missive reached him. It required but a glance at the writing to make him possessed of the contents, and he folded the paper with a grunt of hopeless dissatisfaction. While placing it with an air of gloomy abstraction in one of his private drawers his eye lighted on a bundle of papers which lay there, though that had not been their depository for any length of time.

He took out these papers and looked at them one by one, laying aside each in turn, till he came to one in a different handwriting from the rest, which he unfolded and regarded with minute observation.

The papers in question were an authorized copy of the will of Paul Jones, which, with relative documents, had a little time before been transmitted to him from Paris by a French notary, in order that he might act as agent for the legatees, and perform the legal work necessary to the realization of the funds. In the letter which accompanied the papers the notary said that he was following out the instructions which Captain Jones had given before his death, the particulars of which were briefly appended for the information of the deceased's relatives.

It was not this letter, nor the will, nor the attestations which was now claiming the lawyer's fixed attention, but a list of securities written out in a clear, delicate, unprofessional hand. Over this paper Mr. Bishop pored for some time, scrutinising word by word, and letter by letter, with a look of curious interest. Then he took some letters from another drawer and compared the handwriting of them with that of the paper before him.

"The resemblance is extraordinary," he muttered. "I detected it the moment I saw this paper; and the more I compare it with Orwell's letters, the closer does the resemblance become. Did I not know the thing impossible I would have declared that this paper had been written by Orwell. Really all evidence as to handwriting should be cautiously received in a Court of justice. The likeness here is so close as to deceive the cleverest expert. I suppose it was some American friend who wrote this list for the Admiral; but 'tis strange his handwriting should be so like that of Orwell's.

Little did the lawyer know that it was no mere resemblance he had detected, but the veritable handwriting of Orwell himself, the paper being one which the latter had drawn up at Paul's request, not dreaming at the time that it would pass into the hands of his manager at Cairntree, to be to him a source of puzzled wonder. The actual truth Mr. Bishop never for a moment suspected, and after scanning the paper for several moments he put the documents away in their respective places, locked up his drawer and the office, and went home to spend the evening in the society of his sister and "Nap"—the pleasant sympathetic conversation of the one and the canine intelligence of the other exerting a soothing influence, when matters of business were annoying him.

On the third night at the hour appointed Reuben Dangton did not fail to present himself in the vicinity of the Black Scaup, a beetling cliff which overhung the sea some two miles west of the Shore Brae, and not far from the Monk's Cowl, the scene of the smuggling adventure which was related in an early chapter. Every summit of a distinct eminence in the long line of rocky sea coast had a local name conferred on it according to its shape or aspect, or from some event with which it was associated, and this particular height had evidently received its designation because of its resemblance to a bald head. The precipice, which rose sheer out of the water to a height of more than two hundred feet, terminated in a round mass of bare rock, with a surface so smooth and even that at a distance it presented the globularity of a huge human skull—hence the name by which it was known in the district.

Towards the summit of this circular eminence Reuben Langton made his way on the night in question, casting his eyes sharply on all sides in search of the man whom Dan Bryce was to send to meet him. The spot was a solitary one, and the night was very dark. He was now so close to the verge of the verge of the cliffs that the Scaup rose darkly before him against the sky; but no figure could he discern upon it, and as there was no hollow or recess in which a man could be concealed, the youth began to question Dan's good faith. "Has he been fooling me?" he muttered, "and have I had the long night walk for nothing. He said nine o'clock, and that hour must be close at hand. I'll mount the Scaup and see if the lugger is in the offing."

Ascending to the top of the rock, where the cold north wind blew keenly, he looked forth upon the sea as it surged below. So far as he could discern the smuggler was not in the vicinity. Neither dim light nor dark speck was visible through the gloom. His eyes travelled slowly over the surface from east to west without lighting on a single object, but as the sea was calm enough to allow a vessel to come quite close to the rocks there was a possibility that the Black Prince had run into one of the little bays of the coast and might even then be discharging cargo within a gun-shot of him.

Suddenly, and without the warning of an approaching footstep a voice close behind him said in a deep impressive tone—

"What's the tide?"

In startled haste the youth turned round and was amazed at beholding a woman standing by his side—a tall woman in a strange outlandish head-dress, with what seemed to be a horseman's cloak enveloping her form.

The Ottawa Herald says the accident to the Vice-Regal party on Saturday was the result of the importation and the employment of a driver who is scarcely able to distinguish a handful of snow from a brick bat.

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly. These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.

Mr. Hardy presented the report of the Engineer of the Public Works Department and other papers relating to the erection of Parliament Buildings.

Mr. Lyon moved that the fourth report of the Standing Committee on Private Bills be referred back to the Committee, with instructions to declare the preamble of Bill (No. 53), Municipality of Neebing as proven. He remarked that in making this motion he wished to state to the House that this was a Bill to separate certain townships from the municipality of Shuniah and form these townships into a municipality to be called the municipality of Neebing. After some discussion the motion was lost.

Mr. Fraser moved that the House would on to-morrow resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain proposed resolutions respecting new buildings for the Provincial Legislature and Public Departments. Carried.

The Attorney-General's Bill respecting Niagara Falls and the adjacent territory was passed through Committee.

The House went into Committee and resumed the consideration of Mr. Hardy's Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Division Courts and to regulate the officers of said Courts.

Mr. White moved that the clauses providing for the imprisonment of judgment debtors be struck out

Mr. Fraser pointed out that under the Act as it stood every possible protection was thrown around the debtor, for imprisonment could only take place when the debtor admitted his dishonesty out of his own mouth. He thought it was desirable that there should be some means of reaching the man who was deliberately dishonest. The cause was carried.

Mr. Meredith drew attention to the abuses existing in reference to appeals in cases of claims for wages. He found that in many instances the time of the County Court was occupied for days in trying a claim for a trivial sum, entailing great cost upon the county and litigant alike. He was in favour of removing the jurisdiction from the County Court to the Division Court.

Mr. Hardy said he would introduce a clause to that effect in his Bill.

The remaining clauses of the Bill were adopted without amendment.

Mr. Hardy also proposed several other amendments which were adopted, after which the Committee rose and reported.

Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.

Mr. Casey withdrew, on the ground of informality, the petition against Mr. Hooper, M. P. for Lennox, and presented a new petition to the same effect.

Several Bills were introduced. Among the number was one by Mr. Blake for the more effectual prevention of crime, aiming especially at the punishment of old offenders and supplying machinery to assist in their recognition by the police authorities.

Last year's agitation for the establishment of a permanent Railway Commission, which arose out of the Credit Valley Railway Company's trouble with the squatting railway companies on the Toronto Esplanade, is likely to bear fruit. Mr. McCarthy has introduced a Bill providing for the appointment of such a Commission, endowed with most of the powers suggested in the petitions so widely circulated for signature.

Two financial returns were submitted by Sir Leonard Tilley, and Sir Charles Tupper substituted an amended report of his Department for the one presented to the House several days ago.

The Premier was forced to make a second humiliating admission in reply to a query by Mr. Blake, and announced that the North West Land Commission scheme which was to provide funds for the construction of the Canada Pacific Railway had fallen through.

The Minister of Inland Revenue informed the House, in reply to Mr. Oliver, that the Government intended to refund to the dismissed Inspectors of Weights and Measures the amounts they have contributed to the Superannuation Fund.

Several other questions of a local character were put and responded to, and the remainder of the session was occupied in the consideration of a number of motions for returns.

Mr. Thomas White, hoping to score one for the N. P., moved for a statement of the quantity of tea imported into Canada direct from the countries of production, either by the River St. Lawrence, or in transitu through the United States. Mr. Isaac Burpee very properly directed attention to the fact that last year it was claimed that the St. Lawrence River was to be the great highway for the direct importation of tea, but now the Ministerialists relied on importations through the United States. Sir Leonard Tilley questioned the statement that the St. Lawrence was referred to last year as the coming route for the direct importation of tea. This will be a surprising announcement to the country.

The next discussion of general interest occurred on a motion by Mr. MacDonnell (Inverness) for a return showing the number of dismissals and appointments in connection with the fishery protection service in Inverness. The mover cited several instances of unjust dismissals and unnecessary appointments which had come under his personal observation. Mr. Robertson (Shelburne) referred to an official in his constituency as a travelling missionary and apostle of the N. P., who devoted more time to promulgating its principles than he did to the discharge of his legitimate duties. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries said that there was no objection to the motion, but he claimed that all the dismissals made were defensible.

Mr. Plumb's annual motion relative to the depth of water at the mouth of the Kaministiquia River was the next subject debated. The mover indulged in his usual reckless charges, and thus led Mr. Mackenzie to aptly describe him as a retailer of slanders and falsehoods. Mr. Dawson endeavoured to support Mr. Plum's extravagant statements, but they were amply disproved by Mr. Mackenzie, who cited several facts demonstrating the superiority of the Kaministiquia over all other harbours in that vicinity, and by Mr Trow, who spoke from personal knowledge and observation.

After recess, Mr. Muttart claimed that out of six hundred positions in the inside Civil Service Prince Edward Island was entitled to thirteen. The islanders had not received their share of patronage, therefore he moved for a list of all Civil Service appointments according to Provinces made since 1873.

The remainder of the evening was occupied in adopting some twenty-five motions for returns, the whole of which were disposed of without important discussion.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

ARM BROKEN.—Mr. Stephen Washburn, of Berlin, met with a painful accident on Friday. He was working some machinery in the Bridgeport hub factory at the time, and in reaching forward the auger caught his arm breaking the forearm, and terribly lacerating the flesh. There was a gash some three inches long, extending right to the bone. The shoulder was also badly strained.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

Book Notices.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.—We have received from the publishers, D. Appleton & Co., New York, the North American Review for March. The Magazine is replete with interesting reading on subjects at present more or less engaging public attention. The contents are:—"The Third Term—reasons for and against it;" "The Communism of a discriminating income tax;" "Civil Service Reform;" "Our Political Dangers;" "Mr. Froude's Historical Method;" "Recent Biography." The latter includes three papers on "The life and works of Gilbert Stuart;" "The letters of Charles Dickens;" "Memories of Madame de Remusat." The papers are all well written, and fully maintain the high position the North American Review has held for so many years. Copies can be obtained through the booksellers in town.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

MARRIAGE IN FRANCE.—In France a marriage is inrailed without the actual and formally recorded consent of the parents or their representatives, and even a man of full age who wishes to marry and cannot obtain his father's consent is compelled to serve him three times with a sommation respectuse, or sort of rule visi, calling on him to show cause why the marriage should not be permitted. After three such services, and on proof of full age, the marriage is allowed. These provisions render clandestine marriage impossible. A male eloper would not only have his marriage set aside, but would be severely punished for abduction.

BEET SUGAR.—The Detroit Free Press says:—"It beats all how the beet sugar industry is growing. One company in Maine last year used 9,000 tons of beets and paid out over $59,000 for beets, freightage and storage. The company realized $111,000 for sugar, molasses, etc.; 1879 was their first year, yet they had $3,000 profit left after paying for buildings, machinery and all expenses."

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Mathew Cleary, son of Mr. Martin Cleary, of this village, who is employed by Mr. R. D. McMaster, met with a painful accident last week. While driving towards the village, a runaway team ran against his sleigh and threw him on the sidewalk inflicting very serious injuries to his whole system. The unfortunate boy did not become sensible till Sunday morning, and up to latest accounts was unable to move from his bed. —Georgetown Herald.

Brown's Household Panacea

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Re-Building of the Tay Bridge.

An official notice has been given by the directors of the North British Railway that they intend to apply to Parliament for an act authorizing the company to restore and improve the communication by railway across the Firth or River Tay. They ask for powers to make and maintain a railway commencing by a junction with the up-line of the North British Railway at a point about 120 yards southward from the face of the abutment at the south end of the railway bridge over the river, crossing it by a bridge, to be constructed parallel, or nearly so, with the railway bridge across the river, and to be braced thereto, or otherwise connected therewith, and terminating by a junction with the up-line of the railway at a point about 40 yards eastward from the face of the eastern abutment supporting the bowstring arch or span, carrying the railway over the Dundee sea-wall, esplanade and street, Powers are asked to make alterations in the levels of parts of the Tay Bridge and Newport Railway, and for the restoration of the railway bridge across the River Tay, with such alterations in the structure thereof throughout its entire length, or any part thereof, as may be deemed expedient, including, if thought proper, a reduction in the extreme height of the lower surface of the bridge and girders, respectively, over the water level; also, a contraction in the width of certain of the existing spans, and the construction, where necessary, of additional piers. The project is a bold one, and notwithstanding the recent calamity the public feeling strongly favours the re-construction of the bridge. Much greater guarantees will be provided for public safety, and to this end many of the suggestions thrown out in the discussions that have taken place will be adopted.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Dean Stanley on Tuesday received an address with 3,200 signatures and gave an audience to a deputation protesting against the proposed erection of a monument in Westminster Abbey to the memory of the Prince Imperial. Dean Stanley refused to alter his decision, and said if he were to give way it would open the door for complaints from every party against honours to rivals.

There are thousands of people in London at the present moment who are without work, and if not on the verge of starvation, they must be in great straits, and yet there was no outbreak of discontent, and not the most distant attempt at violence.

The negotiations between Germany and the Vatican are at a complete standstill. Prussia therefore proposes to deal with ecclesiastical affairs in an independent manner.

The Indian Budget for 1879 and 1880 shows a surplus of £119,000. The Afghan war expenditure for the year was £3,200,000, and the total war expenditure to the close of the present year is estimated at £5,750,000.

Prince Bismarck's organ regards the projected Russian fortifications near the German frontier, together with the colossal armaments of Russia and France, as a sure preparation for a future aggressive war with Germany.

The Duke of Edinburgh went to Windsor on Tuesday to leave his children with the Queen while he goes to Russia to bring the Duchess home.

The Bishop of Kilmore, County Armagh, has sent the Pope £400 as Peter's Pence, and £450 have been received from the Archbishop of Armagh.

In Australia the harvest is well advanced, and the yield heavy. It is expected that 150 tons of wheat can be exported.

Rumour now distinctly implicates Grand Duke Nicholas in the late explosion and plot against the Czar's life. Many additional arrest have been made, including a number of students. It is said that the Czar will close the University of St. Petersburg. There is much excitement over the frequent acts of incendiarism, and people are in constant alarm. Numerous minor explosions, fires, and outrages are reported throughout the city.

There was considerable excitement in Paris over the reported arrest in St. Petersburg of 1,200 persons suspected of complicity in the Winter Palace conspiracy. The report created a genuine sensation in the Russian Colony.

Floods on the west coast of the middle island of New Zealand, have caused serious damage to land and crops.

TELEGRAPH

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

From Toronto.

Toronto, Feb. 25.

Owing to the sudden indisposition of Mr. Ferris, chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, there was no meeting of that committee this morning.

Neither Senator Smith nor his bookkeeper put in an appearance.

It is understood that Mr. Gibson, Hamilton, before the close of the Session intends moving a resolution to the effect that the vote now given to the Upper Canada College shall be transferred to the Toronto University, the former being local and the other Provincial in character.

It is a matter of note that Mr. MacMaster is largely consulted by his leader on questions regarding the Opposition, and that he occupies the seat of Hon. Mr. Morris when that gentleman is absent.

A Government caucus is in session at present. There is a large attendance of members and the subject of debate mainly is the railway policy to be adopted.

FROM OTTAWA.

Sudden Death—The Tariff on Agricultural Products—More Tinkering Wanted.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—John A. Macdonald of Mattawa, died sudddenly last night at Pembroke of inflamation of the bowels.

A deputation of members will shortly wait on Sir Leonard Tilley, and ask for increased protection on agricultural products. Among other things they want an additional tax of 2½ cents per bushel on corn and $2 per barrel on pork.

From Quebec.

QUEBEC, Feb. 25.—In connection with the appointment of Dr. Lobbey to be Provost of Trinity College, Toronto, the name of Rev. Mr. Norman, of the Church of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, is mentioned as his probable successor at the Bishop's College, Lennoxville.

A PROPOSITION.—A correspondent writing to the Silent World suggests that the deaf mutes of this province should subscribe to erect a monumental tablet or some memorial to the late Mr. J. B. McGann, formerly of this city. The Belleville Intelligencer says: "As the late Professor may be considered the pioneer of deaf and dumb instruction in Ontario, it is to be hoped that a reverence for his memory will be shown in the manner proposed."

Local News.

FLOUR has risen in price 25c. on the 100 pounds.

THE net profits of the late St. George's Society entertainment was in the neighborhood of $50.

WE HAVE received a letter from Mr. Charles Davidson on the ice question, which will appear tomorrow.

REV. MR. HAMMOND counts on being in Montreal the end of the present week, to open a series of revival meetings.

GENERAL HOSTITAL.—The number of patients in the General Hospital has increased to 34.

THE icemen at work on Allan's dam have been privileged to draw their ice through Mr. David Allan's property to Woolwich street.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh to brisk winds, mostly southeasterly to southwesterly. Cloudy weather with rain to-day, followed by cooler weather to-morrow.

ROSANNA BROWN, who says she was betrayed by a young man in Brampton, and is enciente, applied to the police to-day for a railroad pass to Mount Forest where she has a cousin. The pass was given.

REMOVING NIGHT SOIL.—Henry Williams, a colored boy, was charged before the Police Magistrate to-day with removing night soil without permission of the Health Inspector. He was fined $1 and $2.25 costs.

OPERATION AT THE HOSPITAL.—A cataract was successfully removed from the right eye of James Hosborough, Minto, by two of the medical staff at the General Hospital, on Thursday, and the patient is doing well.

TRAVELLING is again rendered difficult and undesirable by the muddy roads. As a consequence there was no grain market this morning, and the only article for sale on the Market Square was one solitary load of wood.

INTERESTING TO BIRD FANCIERS.—The black cochin cock shown by H.G. Charlesworth, of Toronto, at the poultry show here, was thrown out of the competition at the Peterboro' show, some dyed feathers being detected in its tail. S. Butterfield, of Sandwich, was judge.

FLED FROM THE FOLD.—The latest event in the career of Margaret Joyce, the girl who accused her paramour of poisoning her in Toronto, was her escape from the Magdalen Asylum, in company with two other inmates. They made their way over the board fence on Tuesday evening, and no doubt their old haunts will harbor them once more.

IN OUR advertising columns is a notice of the parlor concert to which reference was made before. It promises to be of a high character, and it is to hoped that there will be a large attendance. Don't let any other engagement prevent any from remembering the poor, on Friday evening.

SOCIAL at Idylwyld, the residence of J. D. Williamson, to-morrow, (Thursday) night, at seven o'clock. All are cordially invited. A rich treat of vocal and instrumental music, interspersed with readings, recitations, &c., will be enjoyed. A carriage will be in waiting at Knox Church, from half past six to half-past seven o'clock, and the same will convey parties home at the conclusion.

EDWARD MCCARTHY, who was committed for trial the other day at Fergus, for fraudulently obtaining a note on the representation that he had a horse in the stable of a hotel in Fergus, writes us to say that when the facts come out at the trial, it will be found that he had a horse in the stable, and that there was no fraud in the matter. To all of which we can only say, that the facts will come out at the trial, and that we will give Mr. McCarthy the full benefit of them.

ON A TRIP TO THE OLD COUNTRY.—Mr. J. T. Brill, with his son and daughter, leaves by the 4:10 train this afternoon on a trip to the Old Country. They take the steamship Peruvian at Halifax on Saturday for Liverpool. Mr. Brill takes with him a number of medals to exhibit, which were awarded the Teeswater and Morrisburgh creameries. The medals were taken at the following places:—Centennial Exhibition, two bronze medals and a silver medal; Montreal Exhibition, one silver medal; Toronto Exhibition, two silver medals and one gold medal.

AN IMPOSITION.—A warrant has been issued at the instance of Mrs. Sellbach, Dublin Street, for the arrest of A. Griffin, book agent, whose head quarters are supposed to be Toronto. Some time ago, Griffin sold a book worth $10 to Mrs. Sellbach, receiving $5 cash and a note at three months for the balance. When the note was due the other day, Mrs. Sellbach could not meet it, and Griffin took the book from her without refunding $5 which she paid on it. The police being informed, he was summoned to appear at Police Court to day, but failing to do so a warrant was issued for his arrest.

DEATH OF MR. ROBERT GREEN.—We regret to have to record the death of Mr. Robert Green, which took place at the residence of his nephew, Mr. James Green, on the Guelph road, adjoining Fergus, on the 24th inst., of congestion of the lungs. The deceased was a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and came to Canada in 1841. He settled on lot 11, ninth con. of Puslinch, and was one of the first settlers in that neighbourhood. Some years ago he gave up farming, and enjoyed the rest which after many years of toil he well deserved. He has at last passed away at a good old age, respected by all who knew him for his many good qualities and sterling honesty. His funeral takes place tomorrow, at 9:30 a. m., and the body will be interred at the Eden Mills cemetery.

Conductor Ibbotson, of the G. T. R., saved a drunken man from committing suicide on his train at L'Islet station, P. Q., on Tuesday. The man had fired one shot and was in the act of firing another, when his hands were seized by Ibboteon.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.—This lady had a larger house than we expected last night, on account of her recent visit to Guelph. She looked as charming as ever, and went thought her programme with undiminished spirit. In the scene from "As you like it," she hit off well the salient points in Rosalind's character. Of course it would be unjust to place her—a reader—on the same level with Miss Neilson, who, in acting the same part had all the advantage of scenery, dresses, &c., but after all, we cannot but think that Miss Neilson's personification of the character is the more natural of the two, and that of Mrs. Siddons has a certain flavour of staginess which is, to say the least, not agreeable. In "Love in a Balloon" she was very successful, and in the repulsive character of "The Maniac" she truthfully depicted the horrors of such a trying scene. The poems on Ann Hathaway, Lady Clare, and, When the Cows come home, were given with taste and spirit, but to our mind the love scene between Henry the V. and the Dauphiness of France was best done, as was also the little episode of the "Stowaway." Mrs. Siddons appears again to-night in an entire change of programme.

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.—On Sunday night a colored girl aged about 15 years, named Dolly Martin, applied for quarters to the police stating that she had been turned out of a house in the southern part of the city where she was at service. On Monday morning she was discharged. She went to Mrs. Smith's house on Quebec street and while there took very ill. Yesterday she was removed to the General Hospital by the police where she now lies. The girl says she came from St. Catharines and has no friends here, but it is believed her mother belonged to Guelph, and is now serving a term in Toronto gaol.

CHECKERS—R. Fosbury and Scott Elliott played a match game of checkers at the Western Hotel on Monday night. Fosbury won the first, third and fourth games; the second was a draw game, and Elliott won the last two games.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. CLARKE.—The remains of the late Mrs. Clarke were brought from Palmerston by the 1:45 train on the Great Western railway this (Wednesday) afternoon. The funeral cortege were met at the station by a large number of Guelph people, when the procession was formed and moved to St. George's Church. Arrived there, Rev. Canon Dixon addressed the mourners and congregation, and read the service, after which the cortege reformed and proceeded to St. George's cemetery, where the remains were interred.

INHUMAN CONDUCT IN OWEN SOUND.—Considerable excitement was caused here on Tuesday over the arrest of a man named Thomas Cox. It appears that Cox drove up the street during the forenoon and deposited two little children, a few months old, on the sidewalk, in the hope, no doubt, that the would be taken in charge by the town. The little ones were soon removed by the town authorities, and their inhuman guardian duly arrested and taken before the Police Magistrate. After a preliminary examination the prisoner was remanded for a week.

ALLEGED POISONING CASE NEAR PEMBINA.—There is considerable excitement in consequence of the arrest of Frank Larose, hotel keeper, twelve miles south of Pembina, charged with poisoning his wife, who belongs to a family named Bouvelles, respectable half-breeds, of Winnipeg. Mrs. Larose was the mother of twelve children. The alleged motive for the crime is the desire of Larose to marry another woman. Larose formerly murdered a man on Lake Superior, and escaped before his sentence was completed. He is suspected of murdering an infant about three years ago. The body of Mrs. Larose has been exhumed and analysed. The analysis of the contents of the stomach discovered the presence of strychnine. The coroner's jury found a verdict implicating Larose.

INTIMIDATION IN WEST WILLIAMS.—A case of outrageous intimidation is reported from West Williams, near London. For some time hostility has been shown to a farmer named John Mathers, with the view of frightening him out of the neighborhood. He is an aged and wealthy farmer. On the evening of the 7th of February a threatening letter was pinned to the door, ordering him to sell out and leave the country on or before the 15th of February, or he would be served "like the Donnellys." Not acting upon this, fresh notices were pinned up, and a guard of five men heavily armed remained at the house prepared for any attack. It is hinted that this is a method adopted by his own family to induce the old man to sell out and go to Michigan, but may or may not be so.

ICE FOR CINCINNATI.—One of the most notable railway events in connection with the H. & N. W. Railway at the present time is the enormous ice trains passing over it from Barrie to Cincinnati. As soon as it became evident that an ice famine was probable, Mr. Dickson, the energetic Traffic Superintendent of the H. & N. W. Railway, impressed upon several gentlemen in Hamilton the probability of a large trade being done in exporting ice to the south. Messrs. Burkholder & Co., acting on their own account, and for large purchasers in Cincinnati, in consequence have been shipping four or five trains a day, taxing the carrying capacity of the road to its utmost extent. Four hundred cars have already gone through, and there is a thousand more to follow. The road and the firms interested are to be congratulated on their enterprise. On Saturday, also, twenty cars went through on the Great Western Railway, and on Monday, fifteen cars, all fully loaded. The ice was some thirteen inches thick, and of good quality. The leakage was small.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." m4dw0md

Here is an old German receipe for happiness: Wouldst thou be happy for a day, get shaved; for a week, go to a wedding; for a month, get a fine saddle horse; for six months, build a fine house for thyself; for a whole year, marry a beautiful young woman; for two years, inherit a rich uncle; but if thou wouldst be happy for all thy life, be temperate.

It is stated on good authority that the failure of Mr. Whitehead in his Canada Pacific Railway contract was due to the demands made upon him oy the members of the Government on behalf of the party, and the fleecing down by political brokers. He is said to have put $30,000 in the Winnipeg Times alone. His loss is estimated at $1,000,000, through the causes mentioned.

Lord Roseberry lately set a good example to land owners in Scotland by refusing to enforce his right of hypothec at the bankruptcy of one of his large tenants. The Earl of Fife, however, has taken even a bolder step. At one stroke he has abolished hypothec, allowed a joint right to ground game and established freedom of cropping and a permanent system of compensation on his estates. When in the House of Commons His Lordship was well known as a very strong advocate for the concession of certain demands in favor of agriculturists.

It is believed that Sir Garnet Wolseley gets the next vacant colonelcy as an exceptional recognition of his services. The dignity will be purely a sinecure, but it will be no empty honor, for the post is worth per annum from £2,200 in the Guards to £1,000 a year or so in a line regiment. A correspondent considers that when a general has a couple of regiments to back up his pay or pension he is a fairly comfortable pluralist. There is Grace of Cambridge with his five colonelcies—the Grenadier Guards, the Seventeenth Lancers, the Royal Artillery, the Sixtieth Rifles, the Royal Engineers—all netting him the tidy increment of £6,200 over and above his field marshal's income of £3,600, which again is independent of his salary of £4,440 as Commander in Chief of the Forces.

The details of the late catastrophe in the Winter Palace at St. Petersburg, are still imperfect, but enough has been learned to establish it as the most formidable of all recent attempts upon the Czar's life. This is the second time that the famous palace has been the scene of a projected murder, in singular confirmation of the gloomy legion which clings to it. After the destruction of the building by fire in 1839, Count Kleinmichael, then Prime Minister, sought to gratify the Czar Nicholas by restoring it in an incredibly short space of time. The work proceeded night and day, and not a few of the laborers employed were killed or crippled during its progress, while many more were permanently injured by the stifling fumes of the fresh paint. It is said that the mother of one of the victims imprecated a solemn curse upon the palace, saying that "as the Romanoffs had made it fatal to their people, so their people should make it fatal to them." This malediction, whether authentic or not, has, indeed, been amply fulfilled. The ill-omened building witnessed the disgrace and expulsion of Kleinmichael himself only a few years later. It saw Nicholas die of a broken heart (by his own hand, as some say), in one of the small rooms of the wing facing the Neva. It was the scene of an attempted assassination of the Czar in 1870, and it has now witnessed another and a deadlier one.

Death of Dr. Higinbotham.

We copy from the Belleville Daily Intelligencer of Monday the following obituary notice of the death of Dr. Higinbotham, brother of Col. Higinbotham, of this city:

With feelings of deep regret we to-day record the demise of Dr. Andrew Higinbotham, which sad event took place on Sunday night, about nine o'clock. The cause of his death was from a rupture, brought about by over exertion in stowing away a load of hay on the afternoon of Thursday last. His affliction presented such a serious aspect that it was decided to secure the services of Dr. Sullivan, surgeon of Kingston, and that gentleman, assisted by a corps of resident physicians, performed an operation upon the victim of the accident on Saturday morning. The deceased was held in high esteem here, and during his affliction he was frequently called on by our most prominent citizens and prayed for in the churches. On Saturday, though his condition was critical, slight hopes of his recovery were entertained, but his injury was such that medical skill could not save, and at the hour mentioned above his spirit took its flight.

The late Dr. Andrew Higinbotham was born at Cortubbea, Cavan County, Ireland, on the 27th of August, 1818. He was the son of a landed proprietor and was liberally educated. He began his studies at an early age with Dr. Lever, of Monaghan, and in 1835 passed a very creditable examination at Apothecaries Hall, Dublin. Two years later he left the home of his birth, and coming to this country settled in Hamilton, where he engaged in the drug trade, which he carried on for some time. In 1842, he was married to Mary, daughter af John and Mary Higinbotham, of Brantford, where the marriage ceremony was performed. Four children—two sons and two daughters—were the fruits of that union. The eldest son is at present carrying on the business of a physician, in the village of Omemee in the County of Victoria, and the other son is proprietor of a drug store in Lindsay in the same county. The two daugaters reside in this city. The deceased prepared himself in the study of medicine at Victoria College, which he entered in 1859, and three years later he graduated at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Kingston. In 1860 he went to the village of Bridgewater, and settled there, remaining until 1876, when he began his practice in this city. Deceased was a brother to Col. Higinbotham formerly member of the House of Commons for North Wellington; a sister of his is married to Dr. Wallace, of the village of Alma, in the County of Wellington, and another sister is married to Mr. Smith, of Guelph. Two sisters and a brother reside in the United States. Deceased was conscious up to his last moments; he was perfectly resigned and cheerfully and contented he passed to a brighter sphere, "Happy in the Lord." He was a member of the Canada Methodist Church.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy

Is an Indian vegetable compound, composed of the juices of a variety of remarkable medicinal plants and herbs; the various properties of these different ingredients, when combined, is so constituted as to act simultaneously upon the Blood, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive Organs, Nervous System, &c., restoring their functions to healthy action, and, being purely vegetable, is as harmless as nature's own beverage. This medicine is a decided benefit to all, and a permanent cure in a large majority of diseases of the blood, such as Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Canker, Pimples, &c. In prescribing this medicine we do not claim that it always performs cures; but this we do say, that it purifies and enriches the blood, permanently curing a large majority of diseases arising from its impurities. It stands far ahead and unequalled among the hundreds of competing medicines of the day. It has stood the test of ten years, and is to-day more popular than ever. As a summer restorative it stands unrivalled; it enables the system to bear up against the constant drain to which it is subjected by a high temperature. Persons who are subject to bilious Colic, Dysentery, Indigestion, &c., should take the Shoshonees Remedy. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles, $1; pills, 25 cents a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Daily Mercury.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, FEB 25, 1880

As there has been a good deal of curiosity regarding the actual expenses in connection with the Governor-General's position and office, the Port Hope News has at considerable trouble, prepared a statement, extending from the date of confederation, 1st July, 1867, to the close of the last financial year, 1st July, 1879. The figures are suggestive. We fancy that plenty of competent men could be got to fill the position for the "contingencies," without any salary. In 1867-8 during Lord Monck's time the expenses were $129,495, the contingencies being $11,559. Next year the total expenses ran up to $173,673. In 1869-70 the expenses fell to $94,224. In 1870-71 they were about the same. In 1871-72 they fell to $72,241. This was the first year of Lord Dufferin's incumbency. In 1872-73 they mounted up to $142,897, the next year to $131,274, the contingencies being over $16,000. In 1874-75 they rose to $134,823, the next they fell to $118,493, the year following they rose again to $131,976, and the year following that, namely 1877-78 they amounted to $126,000. Last year they footed up to the nice little sum of $152,052, with $18,744 for contingencies. The total expenditure in the twelve years in connection with the Governor-General's office amounts to $1,501,618. Many people will readily come to the conclusion that the luxury is rather an expensive one to Canada.

Sir Charles Tupper is a trickster or nothing. Right on top of the complaints made by the Opposition regarding the mismanagement of the Intercolonial comes the presentation of a second edition of the annual report of the Minister of Railways and Canals, evidently prepared specially for laying before the House a report from Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, in which he seeks to make out that there had not been such a very great number of accidents, although he admits that in one or two occasions accidents had arisen from broken ties, wheels, etc.

Mr. Mowat has ordered that Dr. Allen be suspended forthwith from his position of Police Magistrate of Cornwall, in consequence of the criminal accusations contained in Mr. Commissioner Dymond's report and the extraordinary developments in the criminal charge preferred against him by a young woman residing in that town. He has done quite right, and would have done better if he had ordered his instant dismissal.

Dr. Orton is trying to make a little cheap capital. He has introduced an interest Bill, which provides that not more than 7 per cent. shall be chargeable on mortgages on real estate; also, that the charges for valuation of properties shall not exceed $5 for each property, with 25c. per mileage. Any other charge to incur a penalty of $50 fine. The Dr. does not expect the Bill to pass.

Sir John Macdonald, as was anticipated, did nothing for the unemployed workingmen of Ottawa, and could promise nothing, declaring that it was impossible for the Government to find employment. His well of promises is dried up. The workingmen held a meeting on Tuesday evening, at which stirring speeches were made, and the Government were strongly denounced.

Hon. Mr. Mills has asked for a statement of the amount expended by the Government in advertising the Manitoba Land Regulations. He is of the opinion that more money was thus expended in propping up Tory newspapers than has been realized from the sale of the lands.

In the Public Accounts we find that the expenses of the Returning Officers for this county at the election in 1878 are as follows:—J. P. McMillan, Centre Wellington, $778.41; John Anderson, North Wellington, $727.41; Peter Gow, South Wellington, $614.21.

The Supplementary estimates of the Ontario Legislature contain a vote of $20,000 for the Irish relief fund, also, $2,000 for two farm cottages at the Agricultural College. The estimares in all amount to $75,371.

Mr. Bunster signifies his intention of "going for" Sir John Macdonald for calling his province "a sea of mountains," and will remind him that he was very glad to find a resting place there when no other province would take him in.

Mr. Guthrie has moved an address for a statement showing the names of all suppliants who have filed petitions of right in the Exchequer Court, and whose claims have afterwards been compromised or submitted to arbitration.

The production of "H. M. S. Parliament" in the Opera House cleaned out H. M. House of Parliament pretty thoroughly on Monday night. The gallery reporters consequently sent the following request to the Premier:

That we, "on pleasure more than 'biz' intent"
(To make request our pens we dip),
Adjourn the House of Parliament—
We want to go and see the Ship."

The request was not granted.

British Agricultural Depression.

Amongst the many alleged causes for the existing agricultural depression in Britain, the influence of the law of entail occupies a somewhat prominent position. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon, and the Marquis of Salisbury have lately, at public meetings, discussed the question, and as might be expected from their admittedly strong Conservative tendencies are stout upholders of the existing land laws of the Old Country, and deny in toto that they exert any influence for evil in the prevalent agricultural depression. The Duke demands, before agreeing to condemnation of the present law of settlement, that its opponents should show that upon their estates—be they large or small—which are subject to the law, agricultural depression prevails in an undue degree. The tenants of these estates are discontented, the labourers are badly housed, ill-fed, and not properly paid, and the estates generally managed inferiorly to non-entailed ones. On the other hand Mr. J. Shaw-Lefevre, Liberal M. P. for Reading, gives some startling facts which go to show that the law of entail was a very serious impediment to the advancement of the agricultural interests of the United Kingdom. He instanced a case of a friend of his own who was tenant for life of an estate of about 10,000 acres, and which, on his death, would go to a distant relation. There were hundreds of things, his friend said, he would like to do to his land, but which he was deterred from doing by the consideration that every shilling so spent would be taking it away from his family and daughters, and be it to the benefit of a distant relative. Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, declared that there were numerous instances of this kind. Moreover, the position of some of these limited owners was a most trying and difficult one, and in some cases as disastrous as the tenant farmers themselves, many of them being encumbered to the extent of half their income. If, therefore, they were compelled to make an abatement of their rent to the extent of 20 per cent. on the whole of their income, whereas one half was mortgaged, it really amounted to 40 per cent. of their available resources. He knew a gentleman in Lancashire, with an estate bringing in $100,000 a year, which was encumbered by family charges under the law of settlement to the extent of $60,000, leaving him $40,000 which in ordinary times was a very handsome income. During the present year he had not been able to collect any of his Michaelmas rents, and was obliged to postpone their payment till next Lady Day, but in the meantime he had to pay the ordinary family charges. The effect was that he had to borrow on his life interest $25,000 in order to tide over six months. What his position was at the end of that time can be readily imagined. The speaker strongly urged greater facilities for the sale of land, as by that means they would not only free such entailed property from some of the shackles under which they groaned, but afford a possibility of proprietors undertaking the improvement of their land, and the erection of suitable buildings by which the tenant could farm more profitably, and the landlord be rendered more certain of the punctual payment of his rent.

Women in Canadian History.

The other evening, Professor Hicks, M. A. lectured in the Natural History Society's Rooms, Montreal, on "Women in Canadian History." He referred to the history of the colony under French rule, when, unfortunately, women were very scarce. La Hontan says concerning this period, "Those who had daughters had no difficulty in marrying them, the women being much less numerous than the men. Also from this time (1640) until about 1670 almost all the girls of the country were married very young—often at fourteen, at thirteen and even at twelve years of age." In accordance with the paternal system of government, it became the duty of the authorities in France to remedy this unequal state of affairs. To this end large numbers of marriageable girls were sent out every year. These were, according to La Hontan, divided into three classes and placed in three different halls, where the bridegrooms chose their brides as a butcher chooses his sheep out of the flock. At the end of a fortnight not one was left. The plumpest were taken first, because it was thought that being less active they were more likely to keep at home and could resist the winter cold better. The government also was not satisfied with merely facilitating marriage, but went so far as to stimulate it by bounties on early marriage and by penalties for celibacy. In addition to the king's dowry which was generally fifty livres in household supplies and a barrel or two of salted meat, twenty livres was given to men who married before the age of twenty and to girls who married before sixteen, while any father who neglected to marry his children when they had reached the age of 20 and 16 was fined. Orders were given just before the arrival of the yearly ships from France that all single men should marry within a fortnight after the landing of the King's girls. A number of old writers were quoted in a description of the girls of that period. "They have wit," says one, "delicacy, good voices and a great fondness for dancing. They are discreet, and not much given to flirting." Another says, "They dress out very fine on Sundays. One of the first questions they propose to a stranger is whether he is married."

The License Question Again.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

Sir,—I have read with interest all that has appeared in the columns of the Mercury respecting the action of the City Council, on the license question.

Some one has said that those communities that have power to elect lawmakers to occupy Municipal or Parliamentary Council Chambers, have as good municipal or national legislation as they have any right to expect. If electors have not sense enough, or what is practically the same, do not take interest enough in election matters to place men in the Council who are not favourable to the liquor traffic, they have but little ground for finding fault if those who do get elected, transfer taxation from the shoulders of the liquor traffickers, whose profits from the traffic are such that they are best able to bear it, to the shareholders of those who are least able.

But the recommendation of the License Committee that there be an increase of Tavern and Shop license is still worse than the reduction of the license fees; such a recommendation should be sternly opposed by every one who is desirous of the material and moral prosperity of the city. What is now needed is not complaint, but sharp, decisive action. Let the Ministerial Association at its very next meeting take this matter up, draw up an earnest memorial to the License Commissioners requesting them to diminish rather than increase the number of places where intoxicating drinks may be sold, get one such memorial numerously and influentially signed in each congregation; and let a influential deputation of ministers and laymen present these memorials to the License Commissioners, and thus neutralize the recommendation of the License Committee in the the matter of increasing the number of licensed drink shops; which are a bane, rather than a blessing, always and everywhere, while they are tolerated.

But to go to the root of the matter, and prevent a repetition of such action on the part of a License Committee it is needful that the Municipal Act be so amended that each voter whose name is on the list shall be compelled to go to the polls whenever votes on any matter are taken. If this were the case, and each elector who did not put in an appearance were within a week after the election summoned before the Magistrate and fined (say five dollars) for neglecting to perform his duty as an elector; unless he could produce a physicians certificate showing that he was too old, or infirm, or ill to attend, or he could show that his business had required him to be absent from the city all the time the polls were open, we should then have a true gauge of public sentiment on all matters on which votes are taken, and many a man who now occupies a seat in Councils, and Parliaments, would be left at home; and we should have better municipal and national legislation. So thinks

An Elector.

Harriston Correspondence.

A neck tie social in aid of the C. M. Church came off in the town hall on Thursday night of last week, and was well attended, principally by young people. Those who could, with the exception of a number who were not ambitious, matched their ties, and for once spent a while in company with one of the fair half of creation. The musical part consisted of selections by the choir, and singing by Misses Clapp and Widdes, and readings by Messrs. Blackwood, Eakins and Bingham. Rev. J. R. Gundey, who acted as chairman, gave a short address on Matrimony, in which he advised those who had not yet done so to embark wedded life, as it was a splendid turning point in a person's life.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will (D. V.) be dispensed in Gethrie Church on Sabbath the 29th inst., and not the 24th as stated in last correspondence.

Mr. A. Ferguson, the Highland humorist, assisted by a number of others, gave one of his mirthful entertainments in Wilkinson school house, on the 6th concession of Minto, on Tuesday of last week, which afforded a side splitting laugh for those who were present.

On Wednesday evening of last week as people were about preparing to retire they were suddenly aroused by the fire alarm. The streets were soon thronged with people in search for the cause of alarm. The rumor somehow got abroad that it was the C. M. Church, to which place the people proceeded at full speed. On arriving at the church instead of finding a fire all was still. Attention then wandered in a different direction, but no signs of fire were visible. A less hasty retreat was then made, for, with a natural feeling of indignation at being brought out amid the storm on such a wild goose chase.

A Mrs. Bloomer, of Minto, had her husband, Mr. Bloomer, arraigned before his Worship, Mayor Meiklejohn, on Saturday last, for assault and battery. The nature of the evidence being sufficient to sustain the charge, his Worship imposed a fine of $5 and costs, which seemed to have the effect of satisfying the wrath of the plaintiff.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

REUBEN LANGTON FORMS A DARK DESIGN, AND SEEKS ASSISTANCE FOR ITS EXECUTION.

"In the name of Juperit who are you, and how came you here?" gasped Reuben, overcome for the moment by superstitious terror.

"What's the tide?" repeated the voice, more sternly than before, and her listener had just sense enough remaining to remember that this was the question agreed on as the first part of the password.

"Half and making," he answered, with as steady an utterance as he could command.

"Then follow me," was the abrupt rejoinder, and the strange, weird figure turned and descended the height with rapid, noiseless steps.

Reuben was too astonished and nervous to obey the command she had given. Under a feeling which rooted him to the spot, he gazed down upon the retreating figure, vaguely wandering if his eyes were not deceived by a phantom.

At the foot of the Scaup she turned and waved her arm imperiously.

"Why stand you there, Reuben Langton?" she angerly exclaimed. "Is the December night wind so pleasant that you must needs linger to enjoy it?"

This ironical inquiry, coupled with the utterance of his name, broke the spell which bound him. He rapidly descended the slope, but she waited not his coming, for the moment he began to move she resumed her pace, which so vigorous that Reuben had to increase his to a half run ere he could overtake her. Now that the first effect of his amazement was past, he grew cool and collected, and resolved to know exactly his position.

"I did not know my guide was to be a—woman," he observed.

"What matters it it you did not," was the gruff rejoinder. "If I can guide you to him you seek what more would you have?"

"But are you guiding me to him I seek?" asked Reuben. "You are going inland, when I should fancy the man whom I am in quest of will not be found away from the shore."

"If you know where he is why do you seek a guide?" returned the woman, shortly.

"I don't know were he is, but would imagine ——"

"Imagine nothing. Yawkins can rove by land as well as by sea. If you have any acquaintance of him you should know that by this time."

"Nevertheless I should like to know something of the route we are going and whither we are bound," said Reuben dubiously. "I have no inclination to go blindfold."

"You have no choice if you want to speech with the Dutchman. But why do you hesitate, Reuben Langton? Does a night walk among the uplands frighten you?"

"Nay, but we are not on equal terms," he returned. "I am evidently known to you, while you are a stranger to me. Why this mystery if all is fair and square?"

"And what would it benefit me to harm you or to lead you into danger? As to knowing you, there are few people in the country side that I don't know—ay, and more about them than they fancy. Shall I tell you Reuben Langton, what is your business with Yawkins?"

"That you can't, unless you are the devil in woman's form."

"I am neither the devil nor one of his emissaries, yet I know the purpose which, by Yawkin's help, you wish to carry out—you would take revenge on the girl who scorned you three days ago on Marston Moor."

Reuben recoiled a step and stood still, amazed—almost horror stricken.

"In the fiend's name, who are you?" he gasped.

She came close to him and threw back the hood which had hitherto concealed her face.

"Look well at me," she said, "and see if I am the stranger you think. The night is dark, but there should be light enough for you to recognize me. We have met before, though not for years."

With much eagerness and sharp scrutiny he scanned the strange features which were turned towards him, and in the coal-black hair, the dark piercing eyes, the oval face, whose beauty, though fading, had not wholly vanished, he beheld a countenance once familiar, yet not at the moment to be identified.

"Are you still at a loss?" she slowly asked. "Have you forgot the tents in Harecleuch wood?"

"Flora Gordon!" he exclaimed, as a sudden recollection flashed upon him.

"That was my name then. I am Flora Marshall now. I am the wife of the Caird Barullion."

"The wife of that old man."

"If he is old he is also gipsy king," she proudly answered." I am the queen of the tribe, I came to the Black Scaup to be your guide, when scores were at my back and call. See what it is, Reuben Langton, to have once befriended a gipsy girl."

"You have not forgot those days then?"

"No, nor the boy who said he was my lover, and wished to follow the brave and kind tribe. I knew better than to return your boyish passion, but what maiden is she, brown gipsy or pale faced house-dweller, who does not feel pleased with her admirer, though she cannot return his affection. When I left you as I did, it was for the good of both. Now I am the wife of the gipsy king, and you are in love with Agnes Borland."

"How know you that? Above all, how do you know she scorned me on the moor and my plan of revenge?"

"How do I know it? Is there anything hid from the Romany?"

"Bah! You can't gammon me, you know. You may play on the superstition of others, but with me the game fails. How do you know it?"

"Easily enough. I was on the moor and saw you together. Though too far off to hear the words you spoke, I can read signs and know she rejected your suit. After that you passed close to where I sat, and I heard you muttering. Then I followed you to Dan Bryce's house, and listened to your conversation. I saw Dan afterwards, and arranged with him to be your guide to Yawkins."

"But you did not tell him what you suspect?" cried Reuben, in alarm.

"What I suspect!" what I know, you mean?"

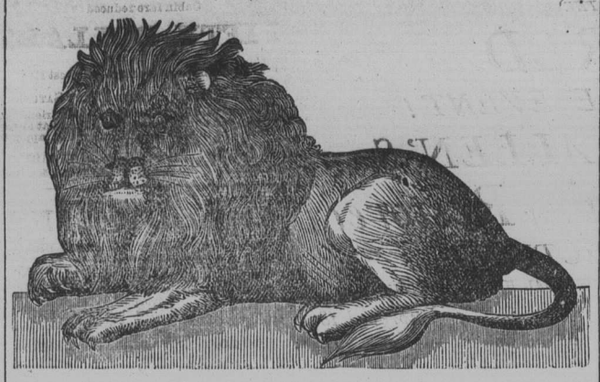
"As you will. But if you gave Dan the tip the scheme will get blown and miscarry."

"Trust me, Reuben Langton. I have not the tongue of a babbler. My power would soon fail if I did not know when to keep silent."

"Then he knows nothing?"

"He neither knows nor suspects. He thinks your business with Yawkins is to engage in a venture, and I took care to strengthen the belief."

"Good. Now tell me where you are taking me."



"To our encampment in the Fairies' Howe, where Yawkins shares to-night the gipsies' supper."

"How comes he to be so far from his lugger?"

"He had a cargo to get rid of, and our men are away with it over the hills. The

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

"Gad, Flora," laughed Reuben, next to myself, you are the best friend I have. You must tell me how I can serve you in return."

"You cannot serve me, and I seek no return," she replied. "I am doing this for the sake of our past friendship. But that had best not be told to the Caird. You understand?"

"Would it make him jealous?" asked Reuben, with another laugh.

"If it did his jealousy would be without cause. It shall never be said of Flora Marshall, the wife of the Gipsey King, that her heart was given to a whitefaced house dweller. Besides, you now love another—one of your own people—though she rejects it and with scorn. Why should Agnes Borland scorn you Reuben?"

"Why, indeed!" he fiercely and bitterly returned. "'Tis fit her pride should be humbled, and I shall yet see her as submissive as she is now haughty. How far have we yet to go? It seems as if he had already walked miles."

"Oh! your indolent life in foreign cities has made you weak. When we roamed through Harecleuch wood you thought little of a few miles. But yonder is the light of the tents; our journey will soon be over."

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 24.

The School Bill was read a third time and passed, as were also the Bills relating to the Grand Junction and Toronto and Ottawa Railways, and the Bill authorizing the Minister of Public Works of the Dominion to take steps for the formation of a pleasure ground in the neighbourhood of Niagara Falls

Mr. Wood introduced a Bill based on the report of the Committee on proposed amendments to the Municipal Act, and on his motion the Bill relating to the Reformatory for Boys at Penetanguishene was after a brief discussion read a second time. The Bills providing for the abolition of priority among execution creditors and amending the law respecting the collection of taxes in the new districts were passed through Committee.

Some debate took place on the motion for the second reading of the Attorney-General's Bill respecting municipal taxation and exemptions. His explanatory speech was followed by a somewhat carping one from Mr. Meredith, and a very able discussion of the whole subject by Mr. Ross, whose speech was heartily cheered when he sat down. Objections from various points of view were urged against certain features of the Bill by Messrs. Morris, Bell, Calvin, and Creighton, while Mr. Sinclair urged the abolition of the exemption enjoyed by clergymen on their residences. After a few remarks by way of reply from Mr. Mowat the motion for the second reading was carried without a division.

Mr. Fraser's Bill providing for the erection of new Parliament Buildings in the Queen's Park was read a first and second time by special consent, the understanding being that the discussion on the measure would take place on the motion to go into Committee of the Whole on the resolutions.

Additional estimates of expenditure to the amount of $75,371 were brought down, accompanied by a message from the Lieutenant-Governor. The items of chief interest are $11,582 for the maintenance of the Mercer Reformatory for Females, which will be ready for occupation in a short time; $3,400 of a special grant to the Ontario School of Art and Design; $20,000 for the relief of distress in Ireland; and $1,500 for the distribution of emigration pamphlets.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.

A number of Bills were introduced, dealing principally with matters of purely local interest. The most important exception was a measure brought down by Sir Leonard Tilley, proposing certain changes in the law affecting the security given by officers of the Dominion of Canada. It is intended to register all such securities in the Department of the Secretary of State, and to empower that Department to watch over the interests of the Dominion and see that the new security be given in the event of the original becoming impaired in value.

Sir John Macdonald made a formal motion adopting an address to the Governor-General respecting the sum voted to relieve the distress in Ireland.

Mr. Mackenzie, in seconding the motion, availed himself of the opportunity to urge upon the Government the necessity of seeing that no persons participating in the benefits of the money voted should be disfranchised, as was contemplated by the Imperial Government in their Relief Bill. It was imperative that the attention of the House should be directed to this matter, because the money voted by the House of Commons had been placed to the credit of the Imperial Government, to be distributed as they see fit for the purpose indicated. After further discussion, participated in by several members, the address was adopted.

Among the returns laid on the table were the supplementary papers re the dismissal of Mr. Lebellier.

The next order of the day, and one which excited considerable interest, was "that Mr. John A. Macdonnell do attend the bar of the House." The circumstances respecting the disgraceful conduct of this young man last session of Parliament towards the Hon. Mr. Huntington are well known. This afternoon when the [illegible] was called he appeared in the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms at the bar.

Before Mr. Macdonnell's entrance Mr. McLennan expressed a desire to read an apology on behalf of Mr. Macdonnell, but this the House could not very well permit, it having commanded the presence of the offender against its privileges. On the arrival of Mr. Macdonnell the old formula was observed in every particular, save that the young man was not forced to kneel. By motion of Mr. McCarthy he was commanded to make any apology or explanation of his conduct he desired to do, and the wish of the House being conveyed through the Speaker he read an apology.

Mr. Kirkpatrick next moved that as Mr. Macdonnell admits the use of the language ascribed to him, he be declared guilty of having committed a breach of the Privileges of Parliament. A discussion ensued as to the sufficiency of the motion, during which the treatment received by one Opposition member disclosed that a certain section of the Ministerialists were apparently under the impression that rowdy conduct contributed to the dignity of the proceedings.

Mr. Kirkpatrick's motion having been adopted, the whitewashing process was continued by Mr. McCarthy in a motion the purport of which was that the House under the circumstances did not feel called upon to proceed further in the matter. The best comment on the absurdity of the motion is to cite Mr. Mackenzie's biting sarcasm, wherein he asked whether or not it was the intention of the House to apologize to Mr. Macdonnell.

Dr. Caven entertained the opinion that the apology offered was insufficient, and he moved in amendment that Mr. Macdonnell be commanded to apologize also to Mr. Huntington.

Mr. McCarthy, speaking to the amendment, questioned the right of Parliament either to bring Mr. Macdonnell to the bar, to detain him in custody, or punish him, and he criticized somewhat the contradictory contentions advised by Mr. Holton, the member preceding him.

Mr. Blake, who, being absent last session, did not feel called upon to interfere at a previous stage, in a caustic manner completely disposed of Mr. McCarthy's contention respecting the powers of Parliament by quoting 31 Vic., cap. 23, which conveys to the Parliament of Canada the rights and privileges enjoyed by the members of the Imperial Parliament. The reply was so complete and crushing that no Ministerialists vouchsafed a response.

Mr. Macdonnell (North Lanark) made his maiden speech, which was well received although somewhat out of harmony on this question with the views entertained by his Liberal colleagues. The amendment was lost on a division and the motion carried. The determination arrived at by the House was made known to Mr. Macdonnell by the Speaker, and that gentleman was liberated from custody.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Mont Blanc is not the highest eminence in Europe. According to the latest measurements, the Elburz, a mountain of the Caucasian chain, exceeds it by more than 2,300 feet.

Some timber in a yard on Glasshouse street, Vauxhall, London, fell on Wednesday, killing five persons and wounding sixteen.

It is reported that the Queen contemplates going to Germany in the spring to visit the tomb of her daughter who died in 1878.

Cardinal Newman is suffering from a fall by which one of his ribs was broken. He is progressing as favourably as can be expected considering that he is in his seventy-ninth year.

"Alas for the mutability of public opinion!" exclaims the London World. "Two years ago, when the carriage containing the Turkish Ambassador passed through the Mall on its way to the houses of Parliament, it was enthusiastically cheered. Last Thursday it was received in many places with hisses or derisive remarks."

Should the Duke of Marlborough resign the Lord Lieutenancy of Ireland, there is every possibility of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught succeeding him at the Vice-Regal Court. This has long been a pet scheme with Lord Bacconsfield, and as the Duke is popular in Ireland there would be much rejoicing at the appointment in Green Isle.

Hopes are entertained that the Czar of Russia will make important concessions to his subjects on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his accession should the Nihilists give him leave to see that day.

The New Brunswick Legislative Buildings Burned.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Feb. 25.—A fire broke out in the Legislative Council Chamber about 10.30 o'clock to-night, burning slowly for an hour or so, when it was hoped that it was got under control. Soon after, however, it was seen to burst through the roof of the building at several points. The firemen and others were on hand early, and worked most determinedly, but were unable to check the progress of the fire in time to save the building, which contained the House of Assembly and the Provincial library. Most of the books were saved and considerable of the furniture, but some of it was badly damaged by water, etc. The building was wooden. Now (1 a.m.) the fire is said to be under control, and part of the building may be saved, but much damaged by water.

7 a.m.—The House of Assembly was summoned for the despatch of business to-day. The Government are in session at this hour, considering as to a place of meeting. It is thought that after a formal opening the House will adjourn for several days, to give the clerk a chance to get papers in order.

QUEBEC, Feb. 26.—The contract for the construction of cars for Lake St. John Railway has been awarded to Mr. Rose, ship builder.

The Fire at Fredericton.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Feb. 26.—At one o'clock a.m., the House of Assembly Building caught fire. The wing was badly burned and the main building much damaged.

The House of Assembly was summoned to meet for the despatch of business today. The Government are in session at this hour considering as to a place of meeting. Is is thought that after a formal opening the House will adjourn for several days, to give the clerk a chance to get papers in order.

Terribly Fatal Accident.

PETERBORO, Ont., Feb. 26.—A terrible fatal accident occurred here this morning. Work was just begun in T. & W. McKee's furniture factory, when a few minutes after seven o'clock a lad aged 17, named Anthony Fowler, mounted a ladder to oil the gearing on the shaft, where he was at work. In so doing he displaced the belt of the adjoining lathe, and in endeavouring to adjust it again caught his arm in the belt and was hurled around the shaft with terrible velocity. The water power was at once shut off, but the poor lad was past all human aid, the body having dropped on a pile of blocks, both feet and one hand torn off, the neck, shoulders, and in fact almost every bone in his body broken. Dr. Hincaid is holding an inquest.

Fire in Wellington.

WELLINGTON, Ont., Feb. 26.—At four o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the new Garrott Hotel, which was burned down. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Two months ago it was with great difficulty that John E. Clarke's dwelling was saved. Loss about $4.000, partly covered by insurance.

STRANGE FATALITY. — The Brantford Expositor of Wednesday says: Three weeks ago to-day Mrs. Steele, wife of Jos. Steele, Paris Plains, was buried. She was found dead in her bed in the morning. Two weeks ago to-day a married daughter's funeral took place, and to-day Edwin Steele, the son, was buried. The latter was only sick four days. Mr. Steele, the elder, and one daughter, Mrs. Depew, are the only ones left of the family.

Local News.

Mr. Samuel E. Horne is about to publish a directory of the town of Galt.

WEATHER PROBS.—Cloudy weather followed by rain which will probably be followed by snow in some localities.

THE report of the Postmaster-General shows that the revenue derived from the Guelph Post office in 1879, was $12,362.61.

CARNIVAL. — Another carnival is to be held on the rink on Thursday evening. Skaters will again supply their own costumes. The Artillery Band is to be in attendance.

SOCIAL.—There will be a social held in the Baptist Church tomorrow evening. A good programme has been provided, and an interesting meeting is expected.

REMEMBER, to-night, the parlor concert at Idylwyld, the residence of J. D. Williamson, at seven o'clock. Conveyances from Knox Church from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

A SOCIAL will be held in the lodge room of Refuge Lodge I. O. G. T. this evening, (Thursday). A good programme has been prepared, and a small admission fee will be charged.

THERE is likely to be some changes among the store keepers shortly. A few intend giving up business and other merchants in the city are looking after the premises they will vacate.

THE police are after icemen for drawing ice on waggons with narrow tires. Something like two tons and a half are taken at a load, and under such a weight the narrow tires are most destructive to the roadways.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT—Summonse's have been issued for the appearance of James Lynch and John Beicker, at Police Court on Saturday, they being charged with fighting on Cork street last night.

MEETING OF CREDITORS.—A meeting of the creditors of A. G. Duncan, of Elora, insolvent, was held at the office of Mr. Haffner, Official Assignee, on Wednesday. There was a good attendance. Mr. Haffner was appointed assignee of the estate. The insolvent offered to compound at 45c on the $, which offer will be considered.

THE DEAD MEAT TRADE.—Mr. Coughlan, of St. John, N. B., is in the city purchasing cattle and pigs which he intends killing here for shipment to St. John. He will kill about seventy head of cattle. The hides and tallow will be sold here and the carcases cut up for the market. Mr. Coughlan also purposes killing a quantity of hogs for shipment.

DYEING FEATHERS IN BIRDS.—The Canadian Poultry Review says:—We are sorry to learn that a number of our fanciers resort to plucking, trimming and coloring in order to secure prizes at the late shows. There were birds plucked and colored in Guelph, three cases known, and one glaring case of coloring was shown up at Peterboro. The officials of the societies should make an example of such unscrupulous exhibitors.

SECURING ICE.—Mr. Ralph Smith has become apprehensive that if he does not lay in his store of ice in a hurry he may not lay it in at all this winter, and has contrived a plan for storing it away in quick time. He has a derrick erected beside where he is cutting and by means of it hoists the ice to a slide sloping to a lot belonging to Mr. D. Allan. The blocks are there piled up and a building will be erected over them afterwards. He wants to lay in 100 tons of ice in this way.

IS HIS STORY GENUINE? — A man of about 33 years of age giving his name as Henry Brown, who says he is a discharged soldier from the American army, is at present calling on citizens for assistance. He is lame and his right arm has been amputated, he alleges in consequence of a wound received in the American service. He exhibits a recommendation from Dr. Young, of Toronto, but if such a doctor lives in Toronto he is quite unknown here. In some cases he has received as much as $3 from one person. The police think his case will bear investigation.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.—In common with other first class entertainments in Guelph, those of Mrs. Scott Siddons on this visit have failed to attract large audiences. The unpropitious weather, for one thing, kept many at home who would otherwise have gone, and her recent appearance in Guelph, together with the fact that she remained here for two nights, also militated against her. Last night the seats were more sparsely occupied than on the first night, but the programme was carried out as thoroughly as it would have been before a full house. It comprised some good pieces from varied works, so arranged as to display the reader's talent, not only for rendering heavy and emotional, but also humorous selections, and allowed ample scope for her powers of elocution. The pieces in which she excelled were a scene from "King John" relating to the prison interview between Young Prince Arthur and Herbert; a selection from Scott's, "Marmion;" "The Curfew shall not ring to-night, by request; and "A Royal Princess." The reader was repeatedly applauded and held the undivided attention of her audience from the commencement to the close of the entertainment.

THERE was a clear calendar at the Police Court to-day.

THE thermometer reached 57° in the shade to-day, being 25° above freezing point and a higher temperature than in average spring weather.

PETTY LARCENY.—Some unknown person entered the back door of the City Hotel the other night and abstracted a small quantity of meat and some other articles.

A DUCKING.—A boy named Connors while crossing the ice above Allan's dam this morning fell through a hole and went down over his head. A companion fished him out by means of a pole, none the worse for his ducking.

LIVE STOCK PURCHASED.—Mr. John Lee, ex-Warden of Kent, has bought for the East Kent Agricultural Society, from Mr. J. S. Armstrong, Speedside, two bulls, "Fancy Duke," aged 13 months, and "Fancy Prince," aged 10 months, for $100 each. He also bought a young bull from Mr. Peter Bathgate, Eramosa, for $100.

THE MATTER OF A HIDE INSPECTOR.—The Secretary of the Board of Trade has received answers from the Boards of Trade of Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford giving information with reference to the Hide Inspectors of those cities. The matter of asking for the appointment of a Hide Inspector here will be considered at the next meeting of the Guelph Board of Trade.

TOO QUICK FOR THEM.—Rather an amusing incident occurred at a house on Northumberland street last night. A posse of policemen went to the house to arrest a girl who has evaded them for some time, being wanted as a witness in a liquor case. One of the most imposing men was stationed at the front door to prevent her escape, but the girl darted between his legs and made off before he could recover himself. She had a good start and was not captured.

SOIREE AT ARKELL.—The anniversary soiree of the Methodist church, Arkell, was held on Wednesday night, and was not very largely attended. After refreshments were partaken of Mr. A. O. Bucham, of Guelph, was called to the chair. During the evening the choir of the Dublin street Methodist church sang a number of anthems, and interesting addresses were delivered by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Freeman, and Revs. Messrs. Rogers, Erin, and Wilkinson, Fergus.

ANCIENT ORDER OF UNITED WORKMEN.—A move is being made to establish a lodge under this order here. P. M. of the Grand Lodge, John Lee, of Highgate, Kent, and Mr. Gordon, of Toronto, who are in the city, are making arrangements for the inauguration of a lodge on Friday evening. Persons between the ages of 21 and 50 who can stand the test of a medical examination are admitted to the order. There is an assessment of $1 made on each member for every death occurring in the lodge, and twenty days allowed to pay this fee. The order is at present in a flourishing condition.

100 YEARS OLD.—On Tuesday, Mrs. William James, of Brampton, celebrated her 100th birthday. Mrs. James, with her husband, who died a few years ago, resided in Chinguacousy for over half a century. For a few years back Mrs. James resided with her son in Brampton. On the above day members of the family, to the number of about forty, assembled at her son's residence, where a very pleasant time was spent. Mr. Thos. James and Mrs. John Leadley, of Guelph, and Mrs. Robt. Bell, of California, are grandchildren of Mrs. James. Those present represented four generations. Mrs. James has until recently enjoyed good health, but it is apparent that the infirmities of age are fast coming on, and that her stay here will be short.

Some New York women after long and grave discussion have found a plan for the treatment of husbands, and when a man says, "My dear I have some business to attend to and will be back in an hour or two," they make him whirl about in the middle of the room fifty times, and tell him that that will do him as much good as going out to attend to his business.

There does not appear to be any reason to doubt the report that Sir Leonard Tilley has again found himself unequal to the task of preparing his budget speech, and that Sir A. T. Galt delays his start on the English mission in order to work up the Finance Minister's "sums" for him.

The Ice Question.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In last evenings's paper you mention that there is trouble with the ice men: that parties have been warned not to cut ice on what is familiarly known as Allan's dam. I am interested in the property adjoining the dam, and knowing how the titles to the properties along the banks of the river run, as well as having a pretty clear recollection of the suit Allan vs. Harvey tried some years ago, when it was clearly shown that by Mr. Allan's deed he only had the right to put a wall or dam dyke across the river so as to use the water to drive his machinery, but no greater right to the water for any other purpose than any other citizen. The river within high water mark has not been deeded to any party holding property along its banks, and, Mr. Editor, I consider that any individual within the corporation has a right to cut and carry away for his own use or that of the citizens within the city limits, what ice may be required during the summer, of any of the rivers within the city limits, so long as he or they do not trespass on private property.

A season such as this may not occur for many years to come, although all must admit that our winters are not now nearly so cold as formerly. I think it would be well for the Mayor and Aldermen to see that in such a season as this when there is a scarcity of ice in cities and towns south and west of us, that they should charge a small fee, either by the ton or load for the benefit of the poor, or the hospital from all parties outside of the city limits. I was informed yesterday that a party from Hamilton was cutting and taking away a large quantity, and shipping it by rail for Hamilton and Detroit, without paying a farthing towards the revenue of the city, and having no authority from the corporation, who I maintain is the only power that can give permission to cut ice and take it out of the city limits, but when I suggested such a course to a prominent citizen, I received for an answer that the party was employing a great number of idle men and teams, and therefore he ought not to be charged, just as if that party or any other would come to Guelph to take ice merely to give employment to our idle men and teams.

I hope the Mayor and Aldermen of the city will look into the matter as to their power to sell ice to outsiders, and that we will hear of no more objections being made to any of our citizens taking what ice they require from the river for their own use or the use of the citizens.

Yours, &c.,

CHARLES DAVIDSON.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.

Mr. Young asked whether in view of the refusal of the Dominion Government to confirm the award of the arbitrators in regard to the North-West boundaries of the Province, the Government propose to takeany, and if so what, action to vindicate the rights of the people of Ontario to the valuable territory in the North-West.

Mr. Mowat—The Government do propose to take action to vindicate the rights of the people of Ontario to the territories referred to, but exactly what action will be taken is still under consideration. (Cheers.)

On motion of Mr. Gibson (East Huron) a return was ordered of the receipts and expenditures of the Agriculture and Arts Association for 1878 and 1879 with a view of its being printed. Several members spoke the reverse of enthusiastically about the work of the Association while Mr. Young defended it.

Mr. Gibson's bill to amend the Liquor License Act was withdrawn.

Mr. Patterson's bill to provide for the construction of railway crossings in cases where a farm already provided with a crossing was divided into two or more parts under separate ownership was withdrawn on the understanding that the Government would endeavor to arrive at a solution of the difficulty which would be fair to both the owner of the farm and the railway company.

The Division Courts Bill was passed through Committee and set down for its third reading.

Mr. Fraser moved the House into Committee of the Whole on the resolution for the appropriation of half a million of dollars for the erection of new Parliament buildings in the Queen's Park, and the disposal of the old site and the ordnance lands in the west end as a means of recouping the Province for the expenditure. We have already given a synopsis of the resolutions. Mr. Fraser in a lengthy speech supported these, and made all necessary explanations.

Mr. Meredith regretted that the Government had not brought the matter before the House at an earlier stage of the session and spoke in favor of delay. The people had not been permitted to pronounce an opinion upon a question of so much importance, and the Government would be taking advantage of the people if they forced the question upon them at the present time, because it could not be justified. He moved in amendment that all the words in the motion after "that" be struck out, and the following substituted therefor, "While this House is prepared to assent to the appropriation of such reasonable sum as may be required for the protection from fire of the records of the Crown Land Department, it is of opinion that no sufficient reason exists for incurring at the present time the large expenditure involved in the erection of new Parliament and Departmental buildings, and that an opportunity should be offered to the electors of pronouncing upon the question before the Province is committed to so large an expenditure, and to that end that the consideration of the question should be postponed until after the the next general election.'

Mr. Mowat expressed his surprise at the position which had been taken with regard to this question by the leader of the Opposition. Everybody knew, and admitted, that these buildings were inadequate to their purpose, and they had daily experience and observation of that fact. That they were unhealthy even the hon. gentlemen did not dispute.

Mr. Mowat said he believed that his friend was the only person he had met who took that ground. Every traveller who visited these buildings in the course of his travels spoke of them as being disgraceful to a Province having the resources and prospects of the Province of Ontario. The Government thought the time had come when buildings so inadequate, so unsightly, and so disgraceful to the Province should no longer be the buildings in which the work of Parliament and the Departments should be carried on, and that their resources and means of paying for them were such as to justify the action which the Government were about to take. The hon. gentleman complained of the lateness of the time in which they had brought the matter before the House, but he should remember that the subject had been mentioned at the earliest possible moment, namely, in the Speech from the Throne, so that the House and the country were made aware that the appropriation was to be asked for, and the matter had been discussed by the newspapers and otherwise ever since. After combatting other arguments advanced by Mr. Meredith he said the Opposition seem to think it was no disgrace to the country that the public documents were unsafe, and that the Government rented two buildings. If the question was submitted to the country he would not hesitate to say that such a position would not be endorsed by the people. No county council would be content unless they owned their buildings, and the people would certainly think the country poor indeed that was not able to own its buildings. He apprehended that the House would recognize the propriety of erecting suitable buildings for the business of the country without undue strain upon the finances, and that the pretence of economy would be repudiated by all.

After considerable discussion the amendment was put to the House and lost—Yeas, 25; nays, 55.

YEAS—Messrs. Baker, Beaksville, Boulter, Broder, Calvin, Creighton, French, Harkin, Jelly, Kerr, Lauder, Macmaster, Meredith, Merrick, Metcalfe, Monk, Morgan, Near, Parkill, Richardson, Robertson (Hastings), Rosevear, Tooley, Wigle—25.

NAYS—Messrs. Appleby, Awrey, Badgerow, Ballantyne, Baxter, Bell, Bishop, Blezard, Bonfield, Caldwell, Cascaden, Chisholm, Crooks, Deroche, Dryden, Ferris, Field, Fraser, Freeman, Gibson, (Huron) Gibson, (Hamilton) Graham, Harcourt, Hardy, Hawley, Hunter, Lidlaw, Lees, Livingston, Lyon, McCraney, McKim, McLaughlin McMahon, Mack, Miller, Morris, Mowa, Murray, Nairn, Neelon, Pardee, Peck, Robinson, (Cardwell) Robinson, (Kent) Ross, Sinclair, Springer Striker, Waters, Watterworth, Widdifield, Wood, Young—55.

But for the absence, unpaired, of some Government supporters the majority would have been greater, as Mr. Morris and Mr. Bell both voted for the new buildings.

The motion being carried the House went into Committee of the Whole. The several resolutions were adopted in Committee, reported and concurred in.

The Bill founded on the resolutions was adopted in Committee, and reported.

THURSDAY EVENING FEB 26 1880

Macdonnell on His Marrow Bones.

The conceited prig, who, until lately, was Secretary of the U. E. Club, was taught a wholesome lesson on Tuesday, when he had to read an humble apology to the House of Commons for his gross and unwarrantable insult to Mr. Huntington during the previous session. It will be remembered that this Macdonnell, who represents the pink of Toryism, and sports a very conspicuous eye glass, while the worse of liquor, on the floor of the House, grossly insulted Mr. Huntington. The Government and their friends—it being so near the close of the session — tried to shield the cowardly fellow, and he returned to Toronto chuckling over his dastardly feat, and in the hope that nothing more would be heard of the incident. He was mistaken, however, for Mr. Mackenzie very properly brought the matter under the notice of the Premier, who—innocent man—affected to have forgotten all about the matter. So Macdonnell was ordered to appear at the bar of the House, and although the Government and their friends tried hard to let down their hireling gently, he had still to make a most abject apology. They were successful, however, in preventing him from making an apology to Hon. Mr. Huntington. The first order of the day was the appearance of Mr. Macdonnell at the Bar of the House, and consequently, after some preliminary business had been disposed of, the boards were cleared for action at four o'clock sharp. The Speaker having read the order, called upon the Sergeant-at-Arms to produce J. A. Macdonnell. While this ceremony was going on, Mr. McLennan, of Glengarry, rose in his seat and before the summons was obeyed asked to read a written apology. Hon. Mr. Mackenzie objected, and Mr. McCarthy declared the motion was not yet carried. The Speaker, however, sustained the objection, and a moment later the offender appeared at the main entrance to the Chamber in charge of the Sergeant and Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, and the bar was let down before him. The "prisoner," if a man who was at no time in custody can be called such, came in with a nervous smile and made a most profound bow. He carried in his hand the written apology which Mr. McLennan had attempted to read and had since managed to hand him. He was faultlessly "got up," but minus his eye glass. In fact he got along without that article very well. There was an awkward pause for a minute, and then the Speaker read the summons, afterwards calling upon Mr. Bourinot, First Assistant Clerk, to read Mr. Mackenzie's statement. While this was going on, Mr. Macdonnell glanced compacently about him. The charges over, Sir John Macdonald rose and moved that the following question b asked Mr. Madonnell:—"Have you anything to say with respect t the charge just read:" The Speaker repeated the question, and in reply got a verbal apology from the person at the bar for the remarks he had made on the 10th of May last. Mr. Bourinot repeated the reply. There was a pause during which Mr. Macdonnell brushed his coat sleeve by way of relieving the monotony of the proceedings. Mr. McCarthy moved, seconded by Mr. Kirkpatrick, that Mr. Macdonnell be granted leave to make the apology he desired to make. The motion was carried, and the party referred to having first looked at the Sergeant at-Arms to see if the time to speak had come, read his letter of apology. After he had been allowed to retire until his case was considered, he went into the gallery to overlook the proceedings. One of the most disgusting features of the case was the attempt made by Mr. Jno. White and others to applaud the accused.

Sir John Macdonald may fancy that he has his little triumdh in manipulating things so that Macdonnell did not apologize to Mr. Huntington for what he has done, but he will find that this, like some other of his chickens, will come home to roost very much earlier than he imagines. The stand taken by the Government in this matter, that the letter sent to Mr. Huntington was not a breach of the privileges of the House, looks strange beside the contention of Mr. Mackenzie Bowell two years ago, when a clerk of one of the departments wrote a letter that appeared in one of the Ottawa papers, reflecting on Mr. John White, was a breach of the privileges of Parliament, and whom Mr. Mackenzie dismissed from office on account of having infringed on the dignity of Parliament; but it makes all the difference in the world whose ox is gored. Mr. Rymal told the truth when he said the individual was not a gentleman or he would have offered an ample and full apology to not only Mr. Huntington, but to the House.

Mr. Huntington, like a gentleman, was not present during the scene, preferring not to witness the qualified humiliation of the snob who had so grossly insulted him. One great feature of the debate was Mr. Blake's exposure of Mr. McCarthy's ignorance of constitutional law. The member for North Simcoe was completely "flattened out," and no doubt felt so bad over it that the Mail had to come to his rescue the next day, and blackguard Mr. Blake for gently showing up his ignorance.

The daily Globe during the session of Dominion Parliament for one dollar at Day's bookstore.

THE correspondence laid before the House on Wednesday on the Letellier matter shows that His Excellency the Governor-General was exceedingly adverse to dismissing Hon. Mr. Letellier, and that when he had heard the decision of the Imperial Government, in asking the Cabinet if they still adhered to their former decision, he called their attention to the majority which Hon. Mr. Joly possessed in Quebec; also that when the Cabinet refused to give way, in bowing to their decision he asked that the Order-in-Council should be so prepared as to place the responsibility on the right shoulders. On the 21st of July last, a memorandum was forwarded by the Cabinet to His Excellency insisting upon the dismissal, and he replied as follows by telegraph:—"23rd July, 1879.—Shall consent to act on advice given after consideration of case by Cabinet. Order-in-Council should be so drawn as to make clear sole responsibility of Cabinet for action taken."

THE hard times are so severely felt in Halifax that the city treasury cannot meet the calls upon it for small bills. Not much more than half the taxes of last year have been paid. The Public Accounts Committee, including several strong Tories, say in a report upon this subject:—"The Council must be aware that not much more than half the taxes for 1879-80 have been so far paid, though the city treasurer has been actively employed endeavouring to collect. Your Committee may here remark that they believe it is more the inability of the citizens to pay than a disposition to evade their taxes." Evidence of a substantial character like this in a matter which deals with the whole community, and not with one or two individuals, ought to put to shame the men who tell the Dominion Parliament that there are good times in Halifax.

COMMENTING on the visit of the Agricultural Delegates to Canada, the London Times speaks of the distress in the British Isles and the lessons conveyed. It points out that while the delegates recommend emigration as a means of relief for the agricultural community of England and Scotland, agitators in Ireland advocate a totally different course, their suggestions being to stick to the land and make the owners come to terms. What is good for English and Scotch cannot be bad for the Irish, the Times thinks, and it favors emigration as a means of relief.

Prevention of Crime.

The following are the chief features of Mr. Blake's Bill, which was read a first time on Monday:—He (Mr. Blake) did not think any one who had observed the statistics which were accessible would view with unconcern the results they seemed to present of an increase of crime in this country. Some years ago, when the late Government had called attention to this subject, the circumstances indicated a very extraordinary and alarming increase of crime. He then took steps to ascertain the general rate of the increase of crime in the country, and he hoped ere now there would have been presented to the House a report of criminal statistics, which would have given them accurate information on the subject. From such statistics as they had he learned that the prisoners in the penitentiaries had been as follows:—On 31st December, 1876, only 1,048; on 30th June, 1877, 1,081; on 30th June, 1878, 1,150; and on 30th June last, 1,318, showing an increase in two years and a half of no less than 270, or at the rate of 25 per cent. Even these figures did not represent the true character of the increase, because the ratio of increase was unfortunately greater in the later than in the earlier years, being in the fiscal year 1878 about 7 per cent., and in the last fiscal year 14 per cent. Considering the slow rate of increase in our population during the last two or three years this increase in the graver classes of crime was extremely disheartening. It was in order to some extent to remedy this state of affairs that he ventured to submit to the House the measure he had introduced. He believed that many offenders escaped the consequences of prior conviction owing to the difficulty of indentifying them. Whatever might be their opinion with reference to the treatment of persons convicted for the first time, he thought there was a tolerably strong concurrence of sentiment among those who had looked into the matter, that a person charged with crime after two or three convictions should be regarded as an enemy of society; that the interests of society required such a person to be imprisoned for a long term of years, and that there was better chance for his ultimate reforming during the discipline of a long than of a short term. One of the provisions of this Bill was, therefore, that there should be kept in the principal towns of each Province a register of convictions, materials for it being supplied by the Wardens of Penitentiaries and Reformatories and Sheriffs. It also authorizes the photographing of prisoners on the order of Governor in Council. The second set of provisions in the Bill were applicable only to persons who had been a second time convicted. It was provided that for a period of years after the expiration of his sentence on his second conviction the prisoner should be guilty of an offence against the law punishable by imprisonment in several circumstances: First, if he were charged with getting his livelihood by dishonesty, and it appeared to the Court that there was proof of that charge. Secondly, if he were charged with any crime and gave a false name and address. Thirdly, if he were found in circumstances which satisfied the Court that he was about to commit crime or waiting an opportunity to do so. Fourthly, if he were found in a dwelling house, warehouse, or other premises without being able to account satisfactorily to the Court for his being there. In addition to the sentence inflicted upon the prisoner convicted for the second offence, the Bill authorized the Court to subject him to police supervision for a period of years, and the prisoner was required to give notice to the chief police officer of his district of his residence, and of every change of residence, and to report himself monthly to such police officer, and his failure to comply with these requirements was made a punishable offence. None of these provisions were novel. They had been introduced into the criminal law of 1869, amended he thought by the Act of 1871, and he brought them before the House as in his opinion eminently suited to mitigate if not remedy the very serious evils to which he had referred. He entirely recognized the view that legislation relating to criminal law might more properly be in the hands of the Government, and having brought the matter before the House he would be only too glad if the Minister of Justice would take charge of the measure, and propose such modifications in it as he thought proper.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.

The reference of the petition attacking the seat held by Edmund Hooper, as representative of Lennox, to the Committee on Privileges and Elections was moved by Mr. Casey. The determination of the Ministerialists to retain as their colleague a person who has been officially declared a public defaulter was manifested by their eager cries of "Lost" on the text of the motion being communicated to the House. At the Premier's request the debate was adjourned on the understanding that the petition should be printed in the Votes and Proceedings.

The Minister of Customs, in reply to a query by Mr. Casey, led the House to understand that no drawback will be allowed on Indian corn imported for feeding purposes.

A long and varied debate, somewhat wide in its scope, was incited by Mr. Fleming's moving for a copy of the Order in Council prohibiting the landing of immigrants at Halifax who are not possessed of $20. The speakers of the Opposition benches unanimously denounced the Government's course in thus placing a duty on the farmer's raw material.

Mr. Mackenzie sarcastically quoted extracts from Sir Charles' Tupper's speech made in introducing his Pacific Railway resolutions last session, when with all the descriptive powers of the projectors of the Eden to which Martin Chuzzlewit was induced to stray he described the North West as a paradise which was to afford happy homes for the starving millions of the Motherland and Europe. Now, unless the starving millions are, after incurring all the expense attached to the transatlantic passage, possessed of $20 on landing in Canada, they are cruelly excluded from entering into the joys foreshadowed.

The Minister of Agriculture and Mr. Thos. White made the principal speeches on the Ministerial side. The former addressed his attention particularly to certain Globe editorials on the subject, but both reflected on Sir Samuel Tilley's great N. P. by defending the Government's conduct, on the ground that the cases of the distressed unemployed in the great centres of population were such that the Government could not disregard them, and permit European paupers to add to the number of unemployed already resident in the Dominion.

Messrs. Mills, Anglin, Patterson (Brant), and Bain spoke against the Order in Council.

A passage at arms between Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Plumb, which excited considerable interest, was brought about by the latter gentleman repeating the old slander that the former had praised Texas as a field of emigration. The truth of the matter is well known to the fair-minded public, and Mr. Mackenzie's exposition of the slander need not be recited here. The debate was then adjourned.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Colby's adopted Bill to repeal the Insolvency Law. A free and easy debate regarding the scope of the measure and the amendments, which have been published, took place, and the general view appeared to be that the repeal clause should be as thorough as possible in its operation. Whether or not the Bill take immediate effect is open to doubt, but as it now stands such will be the case. Yet a widely supported opinion was advanced that before finally passing, a clause should be added determining that the repeal shall not come into force till some future date—say the first of May. The amendment, notice of which was given by Mr. Colby, providing that the repeal shall not affect such clauses as are in the hands of the assignees, at the time of the Bill coming into operation was adopted by the Committee, and concurred in by the House.

Mr. Bolduc moved the second reading of a Bill to amend the Act respecting the election of members of the House of Commons. At the present time each candidate has to make a deposit with the Returning officer of fifty dollars, and the Bill proposes to increase the amount to three hundred dollars—the deposit to be returned to the successful candidate, and also to the unsuccessful one in the event of his polling half the number of votes polled by the former. This, it will be seen, is a thorough Tory measure, and revives property qualification in its most objectionable form. After a short debate the House divided on the Bill, which, however, was defeated on a vote of 69 yeas and 71 nays.

An Eventful Month.

January would seem to be a month of evil omen for modern sovereigns, whose deaths and disasters form a very great proportion of its most noteworthy anniversaries. On the 1st, Charles the Bold, of Burgundy, was killed by the Swiss, in 1477, and the the allied armies entered France in 1814 to begin the campaign that overthrew Napoleon. On the 5th, the death of Edward the Confessor ushered in the series of complications which ended in the Norman conquest of England. On the 9th, Napoleon III. died in exile. Louis XVI. was beheaded on the 21st, and the 22nd brought the same fate to the ambitious Duke of Somerset, regent and the virtual King of England during the minority of Edward VI. The 30th was doubly fatal to the house of Stuart, having witnessed both the execution of Charles I. and the death of Prince Charles Edward, the hero of the final attempt to expel the Hanoverian dynasty in 1745. But apart from these tragedies, the Wolf month, as the Saxons called it, is rich in other and less gloomy associations. The present Emperor of Germany became King of Prussia on the 2nd. Sophia was taken by the Russians on the 3rd, (1877) and the Turkish army captured at Schipka Pass on the 8th. The destruction of England's Kabul army in 1832, the 9th. The 14th witnessed the seizure of Danish ships in British ports (1801), which produced the destruction of the whole Danish fleet by Nelson at Copenhagen. Two days later Fort Fisher fell on the 16th. General Skobeloff's brilliant victory at Shenove, which virtually ended the Russo-Turkish war, marks the 17th, which has also the greater renown of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. On the 18th the German Empire was established by King William's accession to the throne. The day witnessed the birth of Louis XIV's famous Minister, Louvois. Lord Beaconsfield and Byron were born on the 22nd. On the 23rd, the Duke of Edinburgh married the Czar's only daughter, Mary Alexandrovna. The 24th is the birthday of Frederick the Great. Paris was taken on the 27th, (1870), and Ehrenbreitstein, for the first and last time, on the 29th, (1790). The 30th witnessed the execution of Guy Fawkes and the marriage of Napoleon III, to Eugenie de Montijo. To the same list may be added the first sailing of Warren Hastings for India as an unknown civilian, (1750), the storming of the great Sikh Fortress of Mooltan by the British (1849), and the reorganization of the Russian army (1874).—*N. TORONTO Telegram.—Somebody has discovered that in various speeches from the throne for the last half dozen years or so, the country has been congratulated on the approach of better times and the lifting of the commercial depression. But somehow or other the commercial depression does not seem to lift and the better times are still to come.

AN effort is being made by several protectionist M. P.'s to have the duty on corn increased two and a half cents per bushel additional to the sum imposed now, and to place two dollars more duty on each barrel of pork than is imposed at present. The object sought by the agricultural protectionist in increasing the duty on corn is undoubtedly to foster the cattle-breeding industry, and by increasing the duty on pork to give a much needed impetus to the lumbering business.

CAN anything be done by a long suffering community to put a stop to the publication of the frightful pictures that disfigure the Globe daily, of the chief actors in the Donnelly murder? Our "devil" has cut them all out, and now exhibits them in what he calls his "Chamber of Horrors." And a horrid looking lot of engravings they make. We have heard of several cases of nightmare resulting from a protracted study of these hideous pictures, and we ask our big brother for mercy's sake to shut down on the job, and give us no more such beastly caricatures.

HAMILTON Times.—The goodly Mr. Boultbee, during the debate upon the Macdonnell breach of privilege case, rose and gave Macdonnell a character, as he knew him "intimately." It is rough upon the Secretary of the U. E. Club when he stands in need of the commendation of a Boultbee. But it is rougher on Macdonnell for a Boultbee to state publicly that he knew him "intimately." Mac.'s associates cannot have been too choice.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

REUBEN LANGTON FORMS A DARK DESIGN, AND SEEKS ASSISTANCE FOR ITS EXECUTION.

The roads they had traversed had taken them far from the cliffs, over undulating pasture lands, and among secluded hills and hollows. It was from the crest of one of these eminences that the bright gleam of light was seen, which the gipsey woman declared to proceed from the encampment. Yet it took them another half-hour of smart walking till they entered the long hollow at the upper end of which the tents had been pitched by the side of a stream. The place being shut in on all sides by hills was at once sheltered and remote from observation. Here the tribe had been located during the autumn, and as the winter had as yet been mild, they had lingered till now, though in a few days they intended migrating southwards.

The scene presented all the well known features of a gipsey encampment—dingy tents, a few travelling waggons, horses and asses, dark-skinned ill-clad men, old wrinkled-faced women, with black hair and flashing eyes; brown-limbed children, half-naked, yet full of sturdy health, and a number of curs of various colors and breeds. The ruddy light shed by a large fire burning outside and from one or two flaming oil lamps rendered the spectacle weird and picturesque. The eye and imagination of an artist would have been deeply impressed by it, though the philanthropist who reflected on its moral and social significance would have sighed over the human degradation connected with such a mode of life.

The arrival of Flora and Reuben did not cause any commotion. Their coming had evidently been expected, and preparations were going forward for a savoury supper. From a huge cauldron hung over the fire by iron hooks came clouds of steam, and an odour of viands which filled the air with appetising incense. In the principal hut sat Yawkins and the King of the tribe, the far famed Willie Marshall, a man now touching on a hundred years of age, yet full of strength and vigor. The wives he had outlived were almost past counting. His exploits had made him famous throughout the district, though naturally his great age was now telling on him, and causing him to commit to younger men enterprises which in former years no one but himself would have conducted.

Yawkins, the daring and successful smuggler, who was that night enjoying the hospitality of the gipsies, was a man of short stature, but immense breadth and great strength. By his courage and hardihood he had made himself feared by the revenue officers, whom he had baffled and defied on many occasions. That very night he had eluded a hot, determined pursuit among the hills, and had successfully dispersed his cargo, the gipsies being his chief assistants in the work. When Reuben entered the tent he and the old king were celebrating the achievement in cogs of brandy, accompanied with boisterous hilarity.

The smuggler, who had got a hint of the youth's visit, received him with rough cordiality. Years before this time they had known each other, having been associated in more than one contraband expedition. Yawkins imagined this to be the nature of Reuben's business now, and was considerably astonished when the latter solicited his help in seizing Agnes Borland, carrying her on board the lugger, and conveying her to the Isle of Man.

2EOD

This was a piece of work so different from anything in which Yawkins had been engaged that he took some time to think of it. Reuben, seeing his hesitation, represented that it could be done with no danger.

"Danger!" exclaimed Yawkins, scornfully. "Donner and blitzen! I am not thinking of the danger, and wouldn't if it was ten times greater. But a woman on board the Black Prince! Why, I don't know where to put her. She can't be stowed under hatches like a bale of cargo."

"Bah! what does it matter where you put her for all the time?" remarked the Caird. "You'll be at the island by daylight, and the younker will look after her. No, look here, Mister Langton. For a few gold pieces some of our folks will carry the girl from the cottage after dark and bring her down to the Shere in one of the carts. Yawkins will have a boat waiting at a certain place, and all that has then to be done is to place her aboard. Why, the thing is as easy as hen-cribbing."

"I'll give your men five guineas for the job," said Reuben.

"You will—then consider it done. Hey, Yawkins, you don't say no, do you?"

"Not I, faith," said the smuggler, with a careless laugh. "A pretty wench may bring luck to the lugger, who knows. Der devil, mynheer, I'll take you and the girl to the island."

A few minutes more were spent in settling the details of the seizure, then the smoking supper was brought into the hut, and a scene of wild joviality ensued, in which Reuben Langton had his full share. It was long past midnight ere he left the encampment, but his mission had been successful, and the following night would witness his triumph over "the proud contemptuous girl" who had scorned his offered love.

Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly, These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission to JOS. S. FISHER, president; W. I. P. INGRAHAM, vice-president; W. PAINE, M. D.; C. S. GAUNT, M. D.; H. J. DOUCET, M. D.; R. H. KLINE, M. D.; J. R. HOLCOMB, M. THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN VERY POOR CONDITION

It may interest the reader to know that black tea as compared with green is used in proportion of about thirty to one. The deliveries in old London in 1880 were 15,392,911 pounds of black, and 548,140 pounds of green.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

GUELPH, Feb'y, 25 1880

The changeable weather we have been having for the past week has prevented large deliveries of grain here, and it is surprising that farmers could market with the bad state of the roads even the quantities they did.

Prices are looking upwards, which can be seen by reference to the quotations appended.

The only article dull of sale and lower in price since our last weekly issue is dressed hogs, which to use a common phrase is a perfect drug on the market, not alone here, but at all outside points. Had the weather been favorable matters even in this line might be different.

Here we give the latest prices paid for all kinds of grain and produce offered for sale on this market up to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A CREDITABLE TRANSACTION.—On Sabbath the 15th inst., the congregation of the Roman Catholic Church, in this place, was asked to make a contribution in aid of the Irish Relief Fund. The sum of about $23 was raised then and there. Considering their having had no previous notice of the request, and that the congregation in this place is not large, we say "well done."

FINANCIAL.—We believe that we are a thorough going and economical people here. All our rates are paid by a levy of one cent in the dollar, with a residue of from $30 to $100 to our credit each year, and so far as the amount realized at this rate can be appropriated, no municipal improvement is neglected. We have still further reason for congratulation in the fact that an asset amounting to some two thousand dollars lies to the credit of our municipality in the hands of the Government, and from a letter received by our Reeve from the Provincial Treasurer, we are informed that this amount is available and at our disposal. The original sum was $1,594, being the share of the Municipal Loan Fund, which fell due to our municipality in 1874, and has borne interest since that time.

On Wednesday evening last a meeting of the ratepayers was held in the Town Hall here to discuss the advisability of appropriating said money towards public improvements in the village. The chair was occupied by John Chapman, Reeve, who in his introductory remarks explained the object of the meeting, which was largely attended. After a very interesting discussion, and which at times became amusing, it was finally decided that $1,400 be applied to building and repairing sidewalks during the present year, and that the balance be applied to seating and making other necessary improvements in the Public School.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

Brown's Household Panacea

Daily Mercury.

FRIDAY EVENING, FEB 27, 1880.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Davitt, Daly, Killen and Brennan, having been served with copies of the indictments against them, will plead on Saturday, the last day for pleading.

The cause of the banishment of the Countess Hendrikoff, wife of one of the Masters of Ceremony at the Imperial Court, St. Petersburg, is reported to have been that she had said in case the Empress should die the Emperor would marry the Princess Dalgorenki.

Edmund Yates says:—"In the case of Cardinal Manning exemplary blamelessness of life is united with indefatigable public activity. That impressive and ascetic presence, with the face whose sharp outline takes us back into the Middle Ages, is well known on every platform on which social improvements are advocated, and is a power with the English public."

The imports of fresh meat and live cattle into Great Britain, from Canada and the United States, during the week ending 7th of February showed an increase over the returns of the previous week. Eight steamers arrived at Liverpool, from various ports, having on board a total number of 1,901 head of cattle, 201 sheep and 158 pigs. Ten steamers arrived bringing fresh meat, the totals being 12,487 quarters of beef, 2,226 carcases of mutton and 409 dead pigs.

The Mansion House Relief Committee announce that the fund amounts to £78,035, and that grants have been made amounting to £39,004. The Committee estimate that the total amount required to complete their work will be £184,000, which means a sum of £105,965 in addition to the amount thus far received. The relief fund instituted by the Duchess of Marlborough up to Monday last amounted to £63,042, and the expenditures to £32,048.

The citizens of St. Petersburg charge all the recent menaces and crimes in that city against the students, and threaten to burn the University and lynch every student who falls into their hands should any criminal act occur on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Czar's accession.

Increased distress is reported from Galway.

TELEGRAPH

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

From Toronto.

Sentenced to Gaol—Aid to Railways.

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—Sidney Wright, aged eleven years, was sent to gaol for three days this morning for stealing articles of clothing.

A bill, extending power of joint stock companies for erection of Exhibition buildings, passed through the special committee this morning.

A Government caucus was held this morning to discuss the aid to be granted to railways seeking assistance. It is understood the Government had some trouble in securing unanimity, as the ministers wished to make more liberal grants than their supporters were willing to vote.

It is thought that the House cannot adjourn before next Thursday.

The ice has disappeared from the waters in this vicinity, and the weather is spring like.

FROM QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Feb. 27.—A full and complete survey of the proposed line of railway from this city to Lake St. John has been decided upon and is now being carried out.

The remarkably mild weather of the last few days is giving promise of farther continuance. The streets are now in a very slippery condition and in many instances are covered with water.

From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—A deputation waited to-day on Sir Leonard Tilley, and asked that an increased duty be placed on corn, pork, wool, and plaited straw. Sir Leonard promised to take the matter under consideration.

The following account of the Gatineau outrage has been received from Aylmer On Wednesday last, Mr. Flatters received warrants to arrest Rev. Eusebe Faure, parish priest of Wright, Jean Berthe, Chas. Richards, one Sime Chambreau.

The Inquest on the Late Accident.

PETERBORO, Feb. 27.—The jury in the inquest upon the factory accident returned a verdict in accordance with the facts, no blame being attached to any one, at the boy was acting against orders in attempting to adjust the belt.

From Montreal.

Vennr Admits a Failure—The Mild Weather—Members Convalescent Again—The Ice Bridge—The Stock Market.

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—Vennor in a letter to-day admits his failure to forecast the weather for the latter part of this month.

Weather continues extremely mild and spring-like. Snow almost disappeared and the country roads throughout the province are reported as in a very bad state.

Mr. Ryan, M.P., who has been confined to the house for five weeks by severe illness is out again, and will be in his seat in Parliament next week. Mr. Coursal is also recovering and will be able to proceed to Ottawa in a few days.

The Stock market is firm to-day.

Local News.

THE Eramosa River is clear of ice.

MR. GEORGE MOORE, of Arthur, has been re-appointed License Inspector for West Wellington.

FORE-RUNNERS OF SPRING.—Several blue robins were seen in the neighbourhood of the city yesterday.

THE net proceeds of Miss Geddes' concert in aid of the Guelph General Hospital were $23.10.

WE have to thank Mr. David Hogg, of the firm of John Hogg & Son, for late London newspapers.

MR. DAVID KENNEDY was out for a drive yesterday for the first time since his late illness. He is improving rapidly.

THE MILD SEASON.—Mr. John Carter, Puslinch, brought into the office to-day, a twig cut off a lilac bush, with the buds quite full and ready to burst open.

YESTERDAY a horse attached to an ice plow at work on Goldie's dam fell through a hole into the water. The workmen rescued the animal by means of pike poles.

THE man who don't take a paper because he can borrow one, is trying to invent a machine with which he can cook his dinner by the smoke of his neighbour's chimney.

REV. GEORGE GRAFFTEY, formerly pastor of the Baptist congregation here, now living in Oswego, is on a visit to his friends in Kingston, where he resided for a time after leaving Guelph.

THE Lord Bishop of Niagara has appointed the Rev. C. R. Lee, of Acton, to the incumbency of the parish of Port Colborne. Mr. Lee has accepted the appointment and will remove to his new charge on or about the first March.

WINNIPEG FREE PRESS.—A rumour having been circulated on the Big Plain, that Mr. Geo. Balkwill's flour mill had been frozen up, that gentleman desires us to state that this report is entirely false, as his mill has been running day and night ever since the beginning of the season.

SAYS the Dundas Banner:—Guelph City Council has decided to reduce the license fee and increase the number of licenses this year. This is certainly a step backward for the Royal City, and ere the year is out many of her citizens will have cause to regret the greater freedom thus given to the liquor business.

PARLOUR CONCERT.—The parlour concert given by the Ladies' Association of Knox Church, last night, at the residence of Mr. J. D. Williamson, was a decided success, being well attended, while the entertainment provided was excellent. A number of pieces of vocal and instrumental music were rendered during the evening, and different games were introduced, and thus the company spent a pleasant evening.

YOUNG WOMEN WANTED. — The Black Hills Daily Pioneer, of the 14th, left at this office, published at Deadwood, Dakota, has an editorial item advising young women who can, to emigrate to that part of the country, and they would have no difficulty in procuring situations as servants; the difficulty now being that as soon as a young woman arrives there she gets married, and the Black Hills people are as hard up for servant girls as ever. The same paper states that 200 young women could find homes there without any trouble.

THE IRISH RELIEF.—A joint meeting of the different committees appointed at the Irish distress meeting to collect in the various wards was held last night. It was resolved that the committees would take no action towards raising money for the Irish Relief until the City Council has decided with reference to the $500 grant, asked. The following were then appointed conveners of the ward committees:—T. J. Day, St. Patrick's Ward; J. E. McElderry, St. John's Ward; J. C. Chadwick, St. David's Ward; E. O'Connor, St. James' Ward; F. Gauhan, St. Andrew's Ward.

ENTERTAINMENTS TO-NIGHT. — The following entertainments take place to-night: Parlor concert will be given at the residence of Mr. Lemon in aid of the poor. A good programme of music has been prepared. The anniversary soiree of Chalmers' Church Sabbath School will be held in the basement of the church. An interesting programme of music, readings, &c., will be given. The scholars have been in training for the affair for some time, and are sure to acquit themselves well. In St. Andrew's church Rev. E. W. Waits will lecture on "Stephenson, the Engineer." The subject should draw together a large audience. In the Baptist church a social will be held for which a good programme has been prepared.

THE ICE HARVEST.—The ice on Goldie's dam has melted away to such an extent, besides being considerably broken up, that the icemen have suspended operations there. Mr. Hewer has succeeded in laying in about 1,500 tons. Mr. Powis has not managed to fulfil his contract with the Detroit firm. On Allan's dam Mr. Smith is still at work with a gang of men, and has landed about 350 tons of ice on a vacant lot belonging to Mr. David Allan. The ice is breaking up rapidly on Allan's dam, and if the mild weather holds out the icemen will not be able to work there much longer. The derrick used by Mr. Smith for hoisting the ice fell yesterday in consequence of the ice lowering, owing to the sluice gates at the dam being opened by Mr. Spence, which emptied the dam of water. It was reported that one of the workmen had been hurt through the accident, but this turns out to be incorrect. Mr. Harris has not as yet secured a ton of ice.

MR. JAS. HODGSON has sold his butcher stall in the market to Mr. Samuel Barber.

THE Property Owners Association will meet to-night in the Wellington Hotel.

G. B. FRASER'S advertisement received too late for publication to-day; it will appear to-morrow.

THE law students and some of their friends hold a supper at the Queen's hotel to-night.

A FARMER from Puslinch was in the city yesterday trying to effect the sale of a pond of ice on his farm.

THE regular meeting of the second Methodist Church choir will be held to-morrow (Saturday) evening, in the church.

MRS. ANDREW SWARTZ, one of the oldest remaining settlers in Waterloo County, died at Preston on the 23rd Feb., aged 93 years. There are five generations represented in her descendants.

At a special meeting of the Waterloo County Council on Tuesday, 25th inst., Mr. Peter Itter, of Hespeler, was appointed keeper, and Mrs. Itter matron, of the County Poor House, the former at a salary of $360 and the latter $140 per annum.

WEATHER PROBS.—Increasing North-Easterly to South Easterly winds, partly cloudly mild weather to-day followed by rain to-night or to-morrow morning. There is every appearance of decidedly colder weather by Sunday.

BOOK AGENT ARRESTED.—A. Griffin has been arrested in Toronto for swindling Mrs. Selbach, of Dublin Street, out of $5, through the sale of a book she purchased from him. The facts of the case were related a day or two ago. Griffin will be brought to Guelph for trial.

GOLD COIN FOUND.—While Wm. Edwards was sweeping out the City Hall, after Mrs. Scott Siddons' entertainment, he found a gold coin which had been broken from a chain. The owner can have it by applying to Mr. Edwards.

A HEAVY DIVIDEND.—Having learned that a balance sheet had been prepared in connection with A. H. Havill's bankruptcy, and being in Guelph on Saturday last, we called on Official Assignee Smith to inspect the document and found that the creditors are entitled to 2½ cents on the $. We pointed out to Mr. Smith the claim we had against the estate, and although the dividend—which is a first and final one—is not payable till March 1st, he immediately filled up a form, to which we attached our signature and received the sum of eight cents! — Palmerston Telegraph.

INCENDIARY FIRES.—The village of La Visitation, in the township of Wright, Ottawa district, is at present in a state of great excitement. For nearly a year fires and alarms of fires have been of a frequent occurrence, and a suspicion arose in the minds of the people that they could not all be the result of the accident. Private detectives have been on the look-out in the village for some time, but without obtaining any clue to the perpetrators of these outrages until a few days ago, when five men were arrested at the Pickanock, one of them being a priest named Father Faure. Two of the parties, it is understood, have agreed to turn Queen's evidence and give very strong evidence against the priest. They say he not only paid them to burn Ellard's timber, but watched one of the men apply the torch. The parties have been committed for trial by the District Magistrate.

MASONIC TROUBLE.—The struggle which has been going on for eighteen months past between certain lodges of the Scottish Rite of Freemasons and the Supreme Council, which had refused these lodges the privileges of electing a president, fixing the orders of the day and date of meeting, has resulted in a split. Since it has been decided that the new Government buildings are to be erected in the Queen's Park, Toronto, the value of real estate has taken a leap upward. Property adjoining the Yonge street avenue that sold three weeks ago for $70 a foot, on Thursday was disposed of for $95 a foot, the reserve being $90. Eight acres were sold and seven more were withdrawn at the reserve price.

From private despatches received it is evident that the fire at Fredericton where by the Government buildings were burned, was the work of an incendiary.

That Ice.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In yesterday's paper a letter signed Charles Davidson appears, stating he learns there is trouble with the ice men who have been taking ice from what is known as Allan's dam, and that he, being interested in property adjoining the dam knows how the titles to the property along the banks of the river run. But he did not inform the public that all the titles to the property along the dam only run to high water mark, thereby showing the whole dam clear on both sides as a reserve, established for the use of the mill and connected therewith.

The deed from the Canada Company to William Allan conveys all their right, title and interest to the said property, and his successors have held quiet possession, and paid taxes on the property, including the dam, for over twenty-five years. It will be remembered that a mill without a dam or power to run, is of little value, and the taxes on such a mill would not be much more than there is on a church. It is the dam therefore that adds value to the property, and the greatest portion of taxes paid by water mills is on, and on account of the dam.

The deed from the Canada Company is before me, and I cannot find anything in it about Mr. Allan's only right to build a wall or dam dyke across the river, so as to use the water only to drive his machinery. And suppose this as well as what is mentioned about the right of any citizen to the water exists only in the imagination of the writer. But why should he limit this right to the citizens of Guelph? This is also a mystery. Surely, the whole Dominion have just as good a right.

I understand the dam was built before the town, and had much more to do in making Guelph than Guelph had in making the dam.

There is another fact to be considered, ice would not form without this dam; and I dare say no one will deny that the building and keeping up the dam has been done at great cost. Now, will the previous writer say that the citizens paid for it; or those men who are taking the ice for the purpose of making money, did they pay for any portion of it? Yet he very liberally thinks they have a right to step in and carry off a crop produced at the cost of another. Wonderful liberality! Freely take, says he, it costs me nothing.

The next item mentioned by the writer, is a plan for charity. And, Sir, we all admit that charity properly distributed is a noble virtue. But kindly notice, Mr. Editor, the way in which this charitably disposed person proposes to raise the means. Simply to have the Mayor and Aldermen of the city take possession of all the milldams, sell the crops thereon, and give the money to the poor! No matter although these dams cost the owners large sums of money to build and maintain; no matter although the owners may be at inconvenience to have the ice successfully formed and removed; sell it and give to the poor! This is charity, and such charity is colder than the ice from whence it is proposed to be extracted.

But why should such a slow method be adopted to raise funds when it could be done much quicker and equally as just, by simply recommending the Mayor and Aldermen to take possession of the wood piles which the mill owners have secured for fuel to run their mills. True, they have not held possession of the latter as long as they have the former, nor do they ever hold deeds of the latter, and it also requires more heat to produce power from wood than from ice. Then by all means sell the wood. Mr. Editor, or both, if necessary to keep the poor from want, and certainly the moral and legal chances of confiscation are in favor of the wood. But in either case I apprehend no trouble from the Corporation of Guelph, they being altogether above interfering with the private rights of any of the citizens, even for charity.

Mill owners are generally large contributors to the local revenue, and I am aware of several instances where they sell their ice crop and I mention Port Hope and Stratford, but according to Mr. Davidson any man, if he is only a citizen of Guelph, can convey water from the dams in the shape of ice, and if so water may be conveyed in any shape, and sold for any purpose, in any quantity. This is a dangerous doctrine for the miller, although very liberal for the citizens. By the way, if my memory serves me right, the same writer some time ago recommended our city to offer inducements to manufacturers to locate in Guelph, and who can tell but his fertile imagination will conceive the idea to convey from one or all of of the mill dams in the city a portion, or even all of the waters, and offer them as a bonus to some new manufacturer. This would not increase general taxation such as our water works will, and would only be another step in the same direction.

Yours truly,

OWNER OF WHAT IS KNOWN AS ALLAN'S DAM.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The adjourned examination of the prisoners charged with the Donnelly massacre took place to-day at the Court House here, which was crowded to the doors by spectators. The only witness examined so far was Charles Hope, a county constable, who related the circumstance attending the arrest of Carroll, Furtell and Ryder. His evidence contained nothing more than has already been published tending to implicate the prisoners. Charles Pope and Mrs. Mary Thompson were also examined.

The last witness' husband was also called, and his evidence was devoted to a description of the doings of the Vigilance Committee, of which he was a member. He described it as an informal affair without any recognized head. He signed the book of enrolment in the lobby of the church, the priest having invited all to do so from the pulpit.

Mr. McMahon applied for the discharge of those against whom the Crown had no evidence.

The Crown Attorney refused to discharge, but allowed several of the prisoners to go on bail.

The following prisoners were then admitted to bail in the sum of $2,000 each:—Patrick Ryder, sr., Patrick Ryder, jr., Jas. Mahar, sr., Jas. Maher, jr., Wm. Carroll, Wm. Shea and Mary Maher.

A farmer named Bowman, living near Milton, had his barns and sheds with their contents of hay, grain, &c., burned about seven o'clock on Thursday morning. It is supposed that it was the work of an incendiary. Insured for $1,500.

FRIDAY EVENING FEB 27 1880

The Labour Question in California.

The labour question in San Fancisco is still the most serious one the people on the Pacific coast have to deal with, Kearney, the Socialist agitator, is keeping things lively. At a meeting of the workingmen in that city on Wednesday, he said he had been informed of a secret movement to crush the crusade instigated by the Chinese six companies and some merchants, with the police and national guards as tools. They were to start a fire or a row. Himself and the Mayor were to be assassinated by policemen disguised as Chinese. Armed Chinamen were then to massacre the workingmen, women, and children. Kearney said that no decision excepting that of the people would be accepted as to the constitutionality of the law forbidding the employment of Chinese. He would leave a list of persons who must be guillotined in case he was assassinated. The unemployed on Wednesday waited upon Alexander Sharon, of the Palace Hotel, who declined to allow their interference with his business. The leaders of the movement informed the crowd of the result, and added that in their opinion it was no harm to kill such a man. Mr. Smith, who has been prominent in the movement lately, suggested dynamite as a means of removing the China-town nuisance. Parades will be continued during the day, unemployed women joining in the ranks. Judging from the above these agitators are determined to enact over again, on a small scale the frightful scenes of the First French Revolution. Surely the authorities in that city are strong enough and determined enough to crush this desperate spirit that has taken possession of Kearney and his associates.

HON. MR. MILLS is going for the Senate. He has given notice of a motion for a statement of all expenses connected with the maintenance of that body, and a brief debate may be looked for.

As a sample of the prosperity in Kingston, and of the benefits of the N. P. the Whig has it from a reliable source that no less than fifty-six shoemakers, employed in that city in 1878, are now in Detroit.

MR. DAWSON'S Ontario Boundary Committee met on Thursday. It is quite apparent that the Committee is utterly incompetent to deal with any such question, and to place any award made by them against the decision of Sir Edward Thornton, Sir Francis Hincks, and the late Chief Justice Harrison, would be an absurdity.

HAMILTON Times:—Should Mr. McCarthy become Minister of Justice he will have to be a shrewder man than he at present bids fair to be if he hopes to escape the criticism of Mr. Blake. The latter clean bowled him on Tuesday on a point of parliamentary practice, and left him sprawling in the depths of his ignorance, which appears to be as "crooked" as it is dense.

IN drawing attention to the clause in the English Bill for Irish relief, which proposed to disfranchise all who accepted aid, Mr. Mackenzie performed an act worthy of a Canadian Liberal statesman. It would be an outrage of the most cruel character, for a generous donation, from the people of Canada, to be made part of an engine to crush and degrade the very people it was given to assist in days of want and suffering.

IN the debate in the House the other day Mr. Thos. White boasted of the beneficial results achieved in Montreal through the medium of the "N.P." It was the most prosperous town in Canada he said. If so, asked Mr. Patterson, of Brant, why does it not pay the vote of $10,000 made several years ago to St. John, N. B., a city which is in great straits and has lost several thousands of its population?

HON. FRANK SMITH appeared before the Public Accounts Committee on Thursday and stated that the goods were supplied by him to Hon. John Carling for the Chicora. They were ordered by Hon. The account amounted to $534.39.

MR. BAIN, of North Wentworth, made a very able speech on Mr. Fleming's motion for the production of the Order-in-Council prohibiting emigrants from landing at Halifax unless they were possessed of $20. The admission of the Minister of Agriculture that the order had to be passed because there was no employment to be found in our cities afforded a splendid opportunity to the Opposition of showing the blessedness of the "N. P."

THE Yarmouth (Nova Scotia) Tribune says: "There was never a time in the history of Yarmouth, within our recollection, when the condition of matters was so bad as at present, when the commercial outlook was so utterly helpless, or when our business men seemed so thoroughly discouraged. Our shipyards are mostly silent and deserted; labor is a drug in the market; enterprise is literally at a standstill. If the next month or so does not bring some appreciable improvement, the coming spring will witness such an emigration of young men from our shores to the United States as will throw into the shade any previous movement of the kind." This disheartening picture of the state of affairs in Nova Scocia, be it remembered, is given by a paper friendly to the Dominion Government, and it would not have published such a statement were it not a melancholy truth which had to find utterance. As a commentary on the Speech from the Throne it is simply crushing.

The Ontario Boundary Award.

It is quite apparent from the complexion of the Committee appointed by the House of Commons to deliberate on this subject, that if they can help it Ontario will not get fair play. The chairman of the Committee, Mr. Dawson, is simply a pliant tool in the hands of the Government, who was put up to move for its appointment at their bidding, and whois bound to carry out their views in the matter. That a clear case of injustice to Ontario was meant, is evident from the fact that only two members from this Province are on it. But more than that, the manner in which Sir John Macdonald attempted to break the force of Mr. Blake's arguments in the House when the question was under discussion, clearly shows that he fully estimated the position he has assumed in attempting to sacrifice the territorial rights of Ontario to the obstructionists of Quebec, and in setting at defiance a most solemn and binding contract. As a contemporary truly says:—"He has assumed the task of endeavoring to enlist the sympathies of the outlying provinces against Ontario with a plausible excuse for voting against the bill proposed by the Hon. Mr. Mills to give effect to this award. Sir John Macdonald has ever been a pliable instrument in the hands of the enemies of Ontario, and has maintained himself in power for years by truckling to the jealousy and retrogressiveness of the Lower Canada Blues. His present action in relation to this boundary question was therefore anticipated. We were prepared to see him take the course he has adopted, and, knowing the unscrupulousness of the faction which in this case demands of him the guerdon of their service, we shall be equally prepared to see him violate all obligations, and set every principle of reason, justice and expediency at defiance."

The people of this Province, we believe irrespective of party will applaud the determination of Mr. Mowat, who when asked what course he intended to pursue in this matter, said.—"Whatever course the Dominion Government might see fit to pursue with reference to the territory acquired by this Province under the boundary award, the Ontario Government meant to take possession and administer justice." And under the circumstances Mr. Mowat will be perfectly justified in acting on the award, confirmed as it is by an Act of the Ontario Legislature, and in proceeding with the organization of the territory. It is manifestly absurd to imagine, after both the Provincial and Dominion Governments had acquiesced in in an award, delivered by three of the most eminent and impartial gentlemen in America, that a party temporarily in possession of a majority in the House of Commons could deliberately undo the sacred compact thus created, and in order to secure a questionable partizan advantage, violate the most firmly established principles of political morality. Once admit that either party is not bound by the obligations of arbitration, and there is an end to all arbitrament save that of the sword. The people of this Province will, to a man, stand by Mr. Mowat if he takes possession of the new territory and proceeds to settle it and administer justice. Let Ontario determine to have its right and just award, and what can Sir John, even though backed by his Quebec followers, do about it?

THE vote on the appropriation for the new Parliamentary buildings in Toronto was, with two exceptions, purely a party one. The Toronto members voted with the Government.

A CURIOUS bit of news comes from Africa. The little black Republic of Liberia, that rather sickly offspring of the misdirected philanthrophy of the American Colonization Society, which a little while ago was fearful of being swallowed up by the British colony of Sierra Leone, has been seized with the annexation fever itself, and has actually appropriated an entire native kingdom bearing the euphonious name of Medina. The new territory adjoins the interior frontier of the Republic, and was acquired by friendly negotiation.

M. de Lesseps, of Suez Canal fame, arrived in New York on Tuesday, and was well received. He made a public address in French on the Panama Canal scheme. He said he would have abandoned his project had not the eminent engineers who accompanied him to the Isthmus approved of it. He said this movement is purely commercial, and the United States has the opportunity of taking half the stock and having practically the controlling interest from the outset. He felt perfectly confident of being able to overcome all engineering difficulties, and of completing the work at less expense than estimated.

Five Cent Counterfeiters.

Arrest of Three Men and Seizure of Materials and Tools in Lambton County.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 24.—Of late a gang of counterfeiters have been operating in the vicinity of Reuvenswood, Lambton County. Search was made, and it brought to light a complete set of counterfeiter's tools, crucibles, dies and metal in various stages, a lot of old silver watch cases, a lump of what looked like block tin, and a number of five cent pieces. A man named William Pinkstone, an engineer, was arrested. He was brought before Messrs. Hiram Rawlings and R. Stutt, J. P's., who sent him to Sarnia jail to await trial. G. R. Taylor, fisherman, Stoney Point, and Wm. Pinkstone were also arrested at the instance of Mr. Wm. Nimmo, Postmaster, the latter tendering four five cent pieces of spurious coin in payment of the postage on six letters. The Postmaster asked Pinkstone how the coins came into his possession. He said he got two at a Thedford tavern and the rest from Taylor, above named, a statement he subsequently denied. He also denies ever making any, though numerous pieces were found in his trunk, along with a heavy stock of metal and tools. The box and tools, he pretends, came into his possession in payment of an old debt, which one Waterman owed him. Constables were at once dispatched to apprehend Waterman, who was said to be living at Port Franks with one Ward, but he had taken leg-bail to the States. The instrument for working the dies Pinkstone got made at the Forest foundry about three weeks ago. About the same time he was seen treating freely in a Forest tavern, paying for all in five cent pieces. Fisherman Taylor was liberated on his own recognizance of $100 to appear at the Assizes in Sarnia. Pinkstone pretended that the instrument he got at Forest was for gumming saws.

A Military Scandal in London.

The Commander of a London Corps Charged with Falsification of the Pay Sheets.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—There is a scandal in military circles here over charges made by certain of the men of a volunteer corps against their commanding officer. The charges mainly refer to a falsification of the pay sheet, and the complaint asks for a court of enquiry. Col. Moffatt, the brigade major, has not yet forwarded the papers to Ottawa, but it is understood he will do so immediately. One of the sergeants complains of many irregularities since his connection with the corps, principally the falsification of the pay sheets, either by the orders of the officer or with his knowledge. He has made out the pay sheets, upon which were names of men who never belonged to the corps and who never drilled with it. Some of the facts are specified as follows:—Two men were on the pay day of the annual camp brought into the stores and fitted with a uniform in the presence of the officer. Previous to going on parade, at the officer's personal request, the men signed the pay sheet for $7 each, being the full Goverment allowance per head for the twelve days they were in camp. They then paraded with the awkward squad, and answered to roll call in the presence of the commanding and inspecting officer. It is asserted by the members of the corps that these men were never members, never did any drill with them, and were at that time sworn members of another corps. The pay sheet after being signed by all the men was certified to by the officer, and a sergeant was despatched to the paymaster, who struck off the two names, asking the sergeant if he could swear to the correctness of the sheet. The sergeant candidly replied that he could not, and the paymaster refused to allow any portion of the amount. The officer afterwards attended at the paymaster's office and the paymaster promised to allow the amount if he could produce the two men within three hours. This he promised to do and left, but never produced the men. The men has never received the amount of pay they signed for and want to know what has become of it.

The officer charged with falsifying the paysheets belongs to the arttllery. It is stated on the one hand that the officer, Major Peters, is the victim of a cruel conspiracy to get him discharged from his position in favour of another man, and on the other hand that the system of falsification, as alleged, is an almost universal practice in the volunteer force, being continually indulged in by many officers. All agree that the matter requires a thorough overhauling.

Major Peters denies the statements in toto, and demands an investigation. He has called in all the clothing.

Strange Mortality Among Cattle.

WELLESLEY TOWNSHIP, Feb. 23.—Adam Espaugh, a farmer living in the 9th line of this township, has lost all his cattle during the past week under strange circumstances. On Sunday morning, the 15th inst., on going to the stable, two of them were found dead, and this morning the remaining six were found cold and stiff, having died through the night. The man left the stables at about 9 p. m. last evening. At that time they were feeding, and nothing unusual was noticed by him in their actions. Neither have they shown at any time previously any symptoms of disease. The writer was informed that when the cattle were examined after death, no trace of injury or disease could be found. Many suppose that some evil disposed person had given them poison, but so far the case is wrapt in mystery. Mr. Espaugh is a farmer in good circumstances, has been one of the assessors for this township for the past thirty five years. He is a person that is quiet and inoffensive, and well respected by all who know him, and he does not know that he had an enemy in the world. It is only a short time since Mr. Starr's house, his next neighbour, was entered at night by some thief, and over six hundred dollars carried off, and although some persons circulated the story that the money had been obtained since through the confessional, such is false and without foundation. Up to the present Mr. Starr has not received one cent of it, and is perfectly ignorant of who committed the theft.

The Book Duty Imposition.

A meeting of the booksellers and publishers of Toronto was held on Thursday. It was resolved, first, that the Government be asked to substitute an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent. for the present specific duty of 6 cents per pound; second that the attention of the Government be called to the fact that books and magazines coming through the post from abroad to private persons are admitted free, while booksellers have to pay a duty on similar packages; third, that the Government be requested to place binders' materials on the free list; and, fourth, that a committee be appointed to embody the foregoing in a memorial to the Government.

SMOTHERED IN A WHEAT BIN. — On Thursday morning a son of Mr. D. McCallen, of Woodstock, aged 10 years, while playing in Mr. H. Parker's grain elevator at the Port Dover & Lake Huron Railway by some means got into one of the large wheat bins which was being moved, and before help could be obtained was drawn to the bottom and smothered. No blame can be attached to the employees, as they were not aware of him being in the building.

Winter in British Columbia.

The Victoria Colonist of January 29th has the following particulars of the state of affairs in different parts of British Columbia after the late great snow storm:—

Mr. Bennett, M. P., left his home at Spellamacheen on Wednesday, the 14th inst. The weather for more than a month had been very severe, the thermometer ranging from zero to 30° below. At Okanagan the forest was several degrees lower. At Kamloops and Nicola the mercury froze. At Douglas Lake a spirit thermometer registered 52° below zero. The snow at Okanagan was two feet in depth, at Spellamacheen it was three feet deep. Six feet of snow had fallen altogether. In the Salmon River valley he saw deer in the snow as thick as rabbits in a warren. They had not suffered any then, and would not unless a crust formed on the snow, when Indians and wolves would kill them by hundreds. Stock had not died to any great extent, but all who had feed were feeding their animals. O'Keefe and Greenhow, at the head of Okanagan Lake, were feeding 800 head. Others were taking care of all they could get hold of. So much stock was scattered through the country in the deep snow that few had ventured far out to see how they were faring. Some who went out were frost bitten severely. At the head of Okanagan Lake two bulls and a steer were seen standing in the snow frozen to death. Stanford, at Cache Creek, had his stallion frozen standing up in the bush where he was sheltered from the wind. On the Kamloops range there were from two to three feet of snow, and cattle were suffering for want of feed. Cattle owners were gathering all they could find for the purpose of feeding. Before getting the Cache Creek Mr. Bennett saw evidence of a thaw, and from there down to Lytton there was comparatively little snow. Cattle in the neighborhood of Cache Creek were all right, so far as feed was concerned, plenty having been exposed by the thaw, which, it is thought, reached Nicala Valley and relieved the stock there. At Jackass Mountain snow was met, and it gradually deepened as they came down the road. At Boothroyd's flat the snow three or four feet deep. Most of the passengers left the stage seven miles above Boston Bar and took canoe to relieve the horses, which were completely used up and had lost the shoes from their forefeet. From Boston Bar the passengers walked to Rombrot's, seven miles, in eight hours. Here they made snowshoes, and come on the next day to Yale, sixteen miles. At Yale the snow lies from four to five feet on the level. In the Little Canon the snow in places where avalanches had occurred was said to be 50 feet deep. The party left Yale, the canoes being dragged over the ice, some of the party breaking through many times. From Hope they took a canoe three miles, then footed it among the banks seven miles to Jones'; and from Jones' to Chilliwhack in sleighs; at Chilliwhack they got a canoe and ran on to New Westminster, where their troubles ceased.

We agree with the Stratford Herald when it says:—A Toronto despatch says that Bishop Sweetnam has forbidden a clergyman of the diocese having an election cake at a tea meeting on the ground that they are indelicate and impolite. The Bishop is to be commended for his manly and sensible action in this regard. There have been so many of those grab games introduced in connection with church affairs and countenanced by clergymen that they have become by-words. Any Bishop who frowns down such pious frauds deserves well of the community.

GAELIC SOCIETY IN TORONTO.—A number of the Scottish Highlanders of Toronto feeling the want of a bond of union among the Gaelic speaking people of that city—of whom there is a large number—held several meetings at the house of Mr. Donald McEwan, which finally resulted in the formation of a Gaelic Society, whose motto is "Clannan Gaidheal an guilleadh a cheile." The proceedings of the society, so far as practicable, are all to be carried on in the Gaelic language. The meetings are to be held monthly, or oftener, if deemed desirable, in one of the parlors of Shaftesbury Hall. The following gentlemen have been elected office bearers for the current year: Patron, Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, M. P.; President, Mr. Patrick McGregor; 1st Vice-President, Mr. David Spence; 2nd Vice-President, Mr. Robert McLean; Secretary, Mr. Donald McEwen; Treasurer, Mr. James McCuaig; Executive Committee, Messrs. William J. Mackenzie, John McPherson, and John Campbell.

CHAPTER XXIX.

ANOTHER ENCOUNTER ON MARSTON MOOR—THE SEIZURE OF AGNES BORLAND—THE VAIN PURSUIT—DAVID RAMSAY ON THE TRACK.

Agnes Borland was not greatly alarmed by her encounter on the moor with Reuben Langton. The outrage done to her pure woman's nature by his degrading proffer, had produced greater indignation than fear. The knowledge that she had become the object of such a man's base passion brought a feeling of bitter humiliation, but she could find no ground of reproach against herself. She could not call to mind one occasion on which she had given him the slightest encouragement. When a choice was given her she had shunned rather than sought his society, and when they had met, either alone or in the presence of others, she had been cold and distant within the bounds of ordinary civility. How then had she inspired him with the feelings he had avowed? Above all, how had he made himself believe that she was capable of listening to his insulting proposal? The hot tears of wounded sensibility sprang forth at the thought that any man, however slightly acquainted with her, however wicked in his own nature, could so misjudge her, and she wept as sore over the reflection as if she really had been guilty of some imprudence by which the liberties had been misled. A better knowledge of the wickedness of human nature—at least of that phase of human nature which governed Reuben Langton—would have mitigated her pain, or at least lessened her self-abasement, for then she would have known that Reuben Langton was incapable of understanding the reality of such purity and virtue as resided in her innocent soul, and therefore could not believe in it. His conduct had been the fruit of his own sinful ignorance, not of her unconscious levity. She might therefore have safely dismissed all her self-doubts and regarded with supreme though pitying indifference the procuring cause of the offered outrage.

It was now that she felt more keenly than ever the bitterness of her desolation in the loss of Orwell. Reuben Langton had not dared to treat her thus had Orwell been at hand; but safe in his absence, safe in the belief that he was dead and would never return, the ruffian had presumed on her defenceless condition to to insult her with his unhallowed suit.

There was one grave mistake which Agnes committed—she did not tell David Ramsay the nature of the conversation which had passed when she joined the latter. After her hurried separation from Reuben her agitation was too great to be concealed, but she put sufficient restraint on herself to conceal its real cause, and David was left to guess it. Of course he could not guess the truth. He likewise was too simple-minded to suppose anything so vile. If he had suspected it, or if Agnes had but hinted it to him, his sturdy nature would have been roused as it had never been roused before, and even he, the humble gardener, would have caused the heir of Cairnbank to rue his audacity. Unfortunately, the honest fellow was left in ignorance, and evil consequences were the result.

David's supposition was that Agnes and Langton had meet by accident, that they had spoken of Orwell, and that Agnes had charged him with perfidy and deceit in relation to the ruined and missing youth. He attributed the girl's strong perturbation to this cause, therefore apprehended no future danger, as assuredly he would have done had he been made aware of what had transpired and known the threat which Reuben had flung after her. He would in that case have made it a point to meet her every afternoon as she issued from the schoolhouse at the shore brae and be her escort to the cottage. But knowing nothing he suspected nothing, and Agnes was left without additional guard.

The latter did not mind this in the least; she was not apprehensive of danger. The idea that Reuben Langton would again approach her after being so scornfully rejected found no place in her mind, still less did she dream that he would secure by force that which he had not gained by persuasion. She therefore continued her daily walk without dread of a second meeting.

For three succeeding evenings nothing occurred to disturb her confidence, but on the fourth, as she passed over the moor in the gloaming she saw a strangely dressed woman sitting on a stone at the most solitary part of the road. A dark grey cloak was wrapped closely round her, for the air was chill; her head was enveloped in a scarlet hood, the front of which came forward till the shrouded face was almost concealed; but Agnes noticed within the folds of the hood a pair of piercing black eyes watching her approach.

The woman sat quite motionless till Agnes was within a few paces of her, then she rose, and her tall form and weird aspect, as she strode into the path with an evident intercepting intention, caused an undefined fear to rush into the girl's mind.

Agnes suffered no manifestation of this inward tremor to betray itself; she grew somewhat pale, but her step did not falter, nor did the usual calmness of her aspect depart.

She would have bid the stranger good evening and passed on, but the narrow road was at this point bounded by a thick unbroken clump of whins, which made deviation impossible, and as the woman's tall form filled so much of the open space that Agnes could not proceed without rudely jostling her, she was forced to stand still or turn back. As the first course was too cowardly for her spirit to adopt she followed the latter.

Being close to each other, Agnes gazed for some moments in silence at the shrouded figure, which in the fading light had a dismaying aspect. She expected the woman to speak, but as no sound came from her lips Agnes could no longer bear in silence the keen and steadfast scrutiny to which she felt she was being subjected.

"Can I serve you in any way, my good woman?" she asked, not in the firmest of tones.

"Not more than you are doing," was the answer in a deep, startling voice. "I wanted to have a good look at you, and you have stood till I did so. For a white-faced girl you are very pretty, I cannot deny it. Cross my hand with silver, my bonny lass, and I will tell you your fortune."

Agnes's hand went mechanically into her pocket in search of her purse, when she suddenly remembered that it was at home.

"I am sorry I have no money," she gently returned. "If I had, I would willingly give you some to get food and lodgings."

"I require neither food nor lodgings. I can obtain both without asking; and since you have no money to pay for the knowledge of the future I will impart it for that pretty brooch you wear."

"I cannot part with the brooch," said Agnes.

"Why not—is it a keepsake?"

"It contains a lock of hair—a sacred treasure, which I value above all things."

"A lock of hair!" said the woman. "Your lover's, I suppose?"

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

"No; it is my father's hair, and he is dead. You would not ask me to give it away?"

"Well, what will you give me to know what is before you?"

"I can give you nothing for that purpose," replied Agnes firmly. "No one knows the future, and it is wrong to pretend to tell it."

"Pretend!" returned the woman, angrily. "You are bold to speak that word to me. Those who slight my power have always cause to repent it. Come, show me your hand and you shall soon learn that my knowledge is not pretence."

Agnes quickly drew away the hand which the woman sought to take.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.

An unusually large number of private bills were introduced.

A reference, on motion by the Premier, was made of the whole printing scandal charges to the Committee on Parliamentary Printing, with instructions to investigate the same and report on the best means to prevent such occurrences in future.

Mr. McCarthy introduced two public Bills, the first for the purpose of giving the Supreme Court of Canada the power of amendment, not at present enjoyed by it, and the second removing from the Quarter Sessions the power of trying cases of homicide or any charge of attempt to murder.

Mr. Fleming's motion for a copy of the Order in Council prohibiting the landing of immigrants at Halifax who are not possessed of $20 in money was carried without debate.

Mr. Keeler's Bill proposing to abolish the Supreme and Exchequer Courts of Canada was moved for the second reading. The debate was long, and allowing for recess occupied five hours. Both the Minister of Justice and the Premier changed front somewhat from last session, and opposed the measure on the ground that its adoption would be a retrograde step. It was generally admitted by speakers on both sides of the House that the Court was not so popular as it was desirable it should be, but this circumstance was generally attributed to an apparently studied indifference on the part of the judges of the Court in acceding to the expressed wishes of those who appeared before them, rather than to any defect in the principle permeating its constitution.

Mr. Langevin has won considerable notoriety in the Province of Quebec by his pronounced hostility to the Court; and when twitted by Dr. Fiset with this fact he apologised for his sudden conversion on the ground that, as a member of the Cabinet, it was his duty to accede to the expressed wish of its Premier.

The debate, as well as the division, showed conclusively that while the Court is not giving general satisfaction the necessity of its existence is a recognized alternative. With the exception of three or four Ontario Conservatives and one or two from the Maritime Provinces, the opposition to the Court was confined to French speaking representatives from Quebec.

For hours the debate dragged along, the speaking being almost confined to members who speak rarely, but about half-past eight there was a general rush of members to their seats on the word being passed that Mr. Blake was addressing the House. The member for West Durham delivered by far his ablest speech so far this session. He dealt with the question of expense, demonstrating that a great saving had been effected by retaining the appeal in Canada instead of taking it to England; on the ground of increasing the efficiency of the lower Courts, because the judges therein knew there was a revising power above, he claimed the Supreme Court should be retained. His matter-of-fact reasoning was momentarily enlivened by a gleam of humour when he said that while representatives from Quebec expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied with their Provincial Courts, yet the bulk of Canadian appeals to the Imperial Privy Council were a few years ago from that Province, and he added that it still maintains a similar reputation in the Supreme Court of Canada. In conclusion, he moved in amendment a six months' hoist. The yeas and nays were taken on Mr. Blake's amendment, and it was carried on a vote of 148 yeas to 29 nays, the majority against the Bill being 119.

The public are becoming interested in Sir Samuel Tilley's forthcoming budget speech, and this afternoon Mr. Mackenzie enquired of the Government when the financial statement will be made. Sir Samuel evidently did not like the question. He appeared confused, and apologetically said he was waiting until certain returns asked for by the House could be laid on the table. The earliest possible day that the speech can be delivered now will be next Friday, the beginning of the fourth week in the session, whereas under the late Administration a week to ten days earlier was the rule.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 26.

A considerable portion of the afternoon was taken up yesterday in the discussion of amendments proposed to be made to the Game Bill on its third reading, which, after some amendments being made, was passed.

The Bill to amend the Municipal Act was read the second time.

On the order being called for the motion to go into Committee of Supply, Mr. Morris rose to a point of order, which was debated for some time, and was disposed of adversely to him, the debate, as might have been expected from the length of the interval during which Mr. Creighton has had the floor, was as flat as anything could be, hardly a new idea being thrown out to justify its continuation. The debate was adjourned.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

The depopulation of the Ottawa Valley under Tory rule promises to continue with increased volume during the coming season. From Ottawa, as a central point, there will leave on March 2nd a party of one hundred persons, and on March 15th, a party of eighty. The majority of these people, it is understood, contemplate settling in the Western States.

Famine like that which is now devastating Ireland have been lamentably frequent during the last few years. In 1869 absolute starvation prevailed for several months throughout Fitzland and along the Baltic seaboard, aggravated by a frost of unexampled severity, which destroyed hundreds of those who made for the towns in quest of relief. In 1871 a yet more terrible famine decimated the population of Northwestern China, many of the sufferers being driven to gnaw the bark from the trees and even to devour the bodies of the dead. Similar horrors were enacted on a smaller scale in Eastern Russia during the great drought of 1873. The failure of the Bengal rice crop at the close of that year swept away, during the months of 1874, at least half a million lives. The dearth in Bulgaria in 1876, and that in Cashmere a twelvemonth ago, are still fresh in public memory, while the present year has been ushered in by three distinct famines—in Ireland, in Silesia and in the Persian Province of Seistan.

Ellen Pierce, a crazy woman, who was brought from Georgetown recently, to Milton gail, died on the 24th January. At an inquest held the jury returned a verdict that the deceased, Ellen Pierce, came to her death by typhoid fever, brought on by starvation and previous exposure, brought on before her commitment to jail.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

A case has come under out notice where the inhuman father of a most promising child suffered from a violent attack of Croup, which threatened every moment to terminate fatally, actually refused to spend 25 cents upon a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, although assured by a neighbor that she knew it would give the little sufferer immediate relief and effect a speedy cure.

Wilson's Wild Cherry never fails; it is pleasant to take, and equally efficacious for children and adults.

In General Debility, Chronic Bonchitis or Weak Lungs, the tonic properties of the Wild Cherry Bark are fully brought into play, and its continued use will be found to increase the appetite, improve the digestion, and give tone and vigor to the whole system.

The larger sizes hold more in proportion than the small, and those who study economy will purchase either the 50 cent or $1 size.

Sold by all druggists.

Brown's Household Panacea

A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

FORGERY AND EMBEZZLEMENT.—The Confederate says:—For some time back a man by the name of George Douglas, of Harriston, has been acting as agent for the sale of instruments and sewing machines for Messrs. Gardiner Bros., of Mount Forest. For a time he did well and was looked upon as an energetic salesman and things went along smoothly. The Messrs. Gardiner were considerably surprised, however, to find that when notes in payment of articles came due no remittance was made to meet the same. They took the trouble to visit the lots mentioned on the notes as the residence of the parties making the same, but were much surprised to find that no such party was residing there, and further, that no person of the name given ever lived there. Our townsmen naturally suspected all was not right, and upon informing Douglas of the facts they would be met with the reply that the notes were all right, the parties were good, and he would take them to their place of residence. Repeatedly Gardiner Bros., wanted him to go with them and see the parties about the notes, but Douglas always had other business which wanted attending to at once, or he would arrange to go along and when all was ready to make a start he would slide quietly off and get out of reach for that time. The other morning the Messrs. Gardiner were bound on having Douglas take a trip round and see the maker of the notes. He was reluctant to do so, but go the Gardiner's held he must. While Mr. R. G. Gardiner, was hitching up, Douglas came to him and asked if he was bent on going. Being met with the reply that he was Douglas turned round and walked off. Mr. Gardiner thought he was gone to get ready, but was taken back to find that he had "lit out," and could not be found. Gardiner Bros. then went to Justice of the Peace Swan and laid an information against Douglas for forgery and also embezzlement. Constable Boulding was given a warrant for his arrest who secured his man in Harriston. He was brought to Mount Forest on Tuesday night.

The Acton tax collector handed in his roll on 15th Dec., 1876, all taxes being paid over to the village treasury by that date. The municipality has no outstanding liabilities, has over $1,850 in the treasury, and in addition thereto has about $1,400 bearing interest. Good for Acton.

Local News.

A WOMAN fell in a fit while in the cellar under the Market House this morning. Restoratives were applied and she recovered in a short time.

REMOVING NIGHT SOIL.—Henry Williams for removing night soil without the permission of the Health Inspector, was today fined $1 and $2.25 costs by the Police Magistrate.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.—John Beicker and James Lynch, appeared at Police Court to-day, to answer for fighting on Cork Street on Wednesday night. They were each fined $1, and $3.23 costs.

THREATENING.—Michael Kelly, charged at Police Court to-day with threatening to set the house, occupied by Mrs. Matthews, opposite the Royal Hotel, on fire, was bound over to keep thepeace towards the occupant.

THE following officers of the Grand Branch of the Emerald Beneficial Association were present at the meeting of St, Patrick's Branch last evening:—L. O'Byrne, Organizer; D. A. Carey, Grand Secretary and James McElroy Grand Marshall. They found the branch in a very prosperous condition.

RUNAWAY.—On Friday afternoon a horse belonging to Mr. Geo. Hood, ran away from the corner of Cork and Norfolk sts. Becoming detached from the buggy almost as soon as it started off, the driver, a boy, was drawn over the dashboard to the roadway. The animal then ran as far as the city hall where it was captured.

WATER COMMISSIONERS.—The Water Commissioners are considering applications for the positions of engineer and firemen at the Water Works Engine House. There are a very large number of applications, and the Board of Commissioners do not expect to decide in their choice till Monday.

AN HONEST BOY.—On Friday afternoon a lady dropped her purse containing $60 on the Elora Road. She walked some distance before discovering her loss and then turned back. She met a lad who was asking two ladies if they had lost a purse, and the owner on satisfying the boy that she had lost the purse he returned it to her.

LARCENY AT ARKELL.—Two whips were stolen belonging to Guelph parties, from the stable of Mr Duthie, Arkell, on Thursday night while the owners were at the social in the Methodist church. After the social some one entered the church and stole six large fruit cakes. They afterwards spread mustard on a quantity of eatables that remained.

BAPTIST CHURCH.—The monthly social of the Baptist congregation was held in the church last night, and was well attended. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Coutts, occupied the chair. An excellent musical and literary programme was satisfactorily carried out. At the close of the entertainment a collection, amounting to $14.81 was taken up in aid of the Sinking Fund of the Church.

THE Guelph Gospel Temperance Club meet to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock, in the Young Men's Christian Asssciation rooms upper Wyndham street, when an address will be given by the Rev. E. Wallace Waite, of Stratford, an eloquent speaker. All are cordially invited to these meetings.

COLLECTION FOR THE GUELPH GENERAL HOSPITAL.—There is to be a special collection taken up in St. George's Church tomorrow independent of the ordinary offertory, on behalf of the Guelph General Hospital. Last Sunday Canon Dixon expressed the hope that the appeal would be in keeping with the vast benefits this institution conferred on the poor and afflicted, giving them all the care and comforts, and attendance, and hopes of recovery that the rich possess, and which they could not possibly have were it not for this institution and the liberality of its supporters.

CHECKERS.—The Georgetown Herald says:—There is considerable talk just now concerning the championship of this county which has been assumed without warranty by an outsider, Mr. McKenzie, of Guelph. While not at all depreciating Mr. M's abilities, we are decidedly of the opinion that he should come into the County and play a set-match for the same. A merely informal play of a few games is certainly a slim foundation upon which to build so lofty an assumption. Mr. Leslie is certainly a good tactician and admittedly not so groovy as McKenzie, but lacks the opportunities for practice which McKenzie possesses, who is reported to devote every spare moment to the game. As far as we can collect from persons who are certainly fair judges, Leslie possesses the greatest analytic ability, and, if playing continuously with McKenzie, would soon learn to master him.

ANDERSON'S auction sale of dry goods begins at half past seven this evening. d1

MR. COUGHLAN, of St. John, N. B., ship a car load of meat for that city from Guelph to-day.

ANCIENT ORDER OF UNITED WORKMEN.—A lodge under this Order is to be established in the city to-night.

REMEMBER the auction sale of dry goods at Anderson's to-night. As this is a clearing sale great bargains are to be given.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—To-morrow the pulpit of this church will be occupied in the pastor's absence by Rev. E. W. Waits, of Stratford.

WEATHER PROBS.—Easterly to South Easterly winds; mild weather with rains to-day, followed by Westerly and Northerly winds and probably snow flurries tomorrow.

"H. M. S. PARLIAMENT."—E. A. McDowell and his Company will present the Burlesque "H. M. S. Parliament," at the City Hall, on March 15th. The play is having an immense run in eastern cities.

EXTENSION FUND.—The Relief and Extension Fund of the Methodist Church of Canada, which was commenced last July, has now reached the large amount of $100,000, of which $60,000 has been paid in cash. This amount has been subscribed by 498 circuits and 937 ministers. There are yet 294 circuits to hear from, and the amount of $150,000 is expected to be collected.

ALLEGED CASE OF SWINDLING.—It was stated yesterday that A. Griffin had been arrested in Toronto for swindling Mrs. Selbach, Dublin street, out of a book on which she paid $5. He sold her the book, receiving $5 cash and her note for $5 at 3 months. When due she could not meet it and he took possession of the book. Griffin appeared at the Police Court today but there was no case against him, as Mrs. Selbach had agreed to forfeit the right to the book if she failed to meet the payment. The matter was arranged between the parties.

PARLOR CONCERT.—There was a large attendance at the parlor concert held last night at "Ashcote," the residence of Mr. Lemon, in aid of the poor. The musical part of the programme was ably carried out. Miss Morse played several selections; Miss Dickson also played, and sang in good taste. Mr. Hugh Walker contributed his valuable service, and his musical efforts were well received. Mr. Shaw played some cornet solos, which were well appreciated. Miss Dickson gave a French recitation with true accent. Mrs. Lemon sang with her usual power and cultivation. The proceeds will foot up handsomely, and as the object of the concert was one of charity, Mrs. Lemon deserves the thanks of the community for her effort in that behalf.

COAL OIL.—The Globe and Mail of Friday had sensational reports from their correspondents in Ottawa, that a consignment of coal oil from Guelph had been seized because it was nineteen degrees below the fire test standard. This report was calculated to injure the Wellington Oil Company, whose oil was referred to in the despatches. This oil was carefully tested and passed by the Inland Revenue officers in Guelph, and also by the Collector in Toronto, and now when the matter is thoroughly looked into in Ottawa, it is found that there is no truth in the statement that the oil is below the standard. We understand that Messrs. McLagan & Co. have received a telegram from their agent in Ottawa to whom the oil was consigned, that there is no truth in the report that the oil is below the standard, and as regards the fire test it ranks as high as any produced in Canada.

Tinsmith vs Gentleman.

The Ottawa correspondent of the N. Y. World says:—When the British regiment were quartered here a colonel sent for a tinsmith to put up his stovepipe, and while watching the operation recognized in the tinker the colonel of a volunteer corps with whom he had been associated at a review the day before. "Excuse me, sir," said the astonished regular, "but upon my soul, weally, I took you for a gentleman yesterday!" It is universally felt that in promulgating this order the Imperial authorities have done the Marquis and the Princess a grave injury. To attempt to sort into grades a community whose common cradle is the emigrantship and whose very existence is a protest against the class distinctions of the mother country is supreme folly; they might as well seek to bind the influences of the Pleiades or guide Arcturus with his suns.

Class distinctions such as are found in England do not, and from the nature of things cannot exist here. Faber meæ fortunæ is the only motto in Canada. When the old noblesse were boasting of their ancestry Junot said; "Jen'en sais rien, moi je suis mon ancetre;" and that is eminently true of Canadians. The Prime Minister, Sir John Macdonald, was a country lawyer; Sir Charles Tupper, a country doctor; Sir Leonard Tilley, a druggist; Mr. Bowell, the Minister of Customs, the editor of a six by seven evening paper in Belleville; Mr. O'Connor, the Postmaster-General, a school teacher and a police court lawyer at Windsor, opposite Detroit; Mr. Mackenzie, the leader of the Opposition, stone mason; Mr. Macpherson, the President of the Senate, a Sergeant in a Highland regiment; Colonel Gzowski, A. D. C. to the Queen and Princess, a Polish dancing-master in Boston and then a Grand Trunk contractor. And so on, from the first to the last of the public men. Crests they have none, except that of rude toil or endeavor more or less honest, and as foe arms they can say with Sydney Smith, when somebody asked him for his: "The Smiths never had any arms, and have invariably sealed their letters with their thumbs."

Property Owner's Association.

A meeting of this Association was held at the Wellington Hotel on Friday evening, Mr. J. M. Bond, President, in the chair. The President stated that the meeting though called for general business was specially for the purpose of taking into consideration what manufactories were most wanted in the city, and after some discussion it was moved by Mr. Petrie, and seconded by Dr. Keating, that Messrs. Barclay and Michie be a Committee to make inquiry as to what buildings were available for manufacturing purposes, and on what terms they could be obtained. Carried.

Moved by Dr. Keating, seconded by Mr. H. A. Macdonald, that the President, Vice-President, and Messrs. Stirton and McGregor, and Mr. C. Davidson, the Secretary, be a Committee to wait on the Council and confer with that body as to the propriety of taking such steps as they might deem advisable to advertise the capabilities of the city, and the inducements to be held out to manufacturers to locate in this place, and to report at the next meeting.

The meeting then adjourned, to meet again at the call of the President.

Chalmers' Church S. S. Anniversary.

The anniversary of this school was held on Friday night, and was well attended not only by the scholars but by the members of the congregation. Mr. George Anderson, the Superintendent, occupied the chair, and after the meeting was opened with devotional exercises by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Wardrope, the annual report was read which showed that the school continued in a flourishing condition. The number of scholars on the roll are 153; number in the Bible Class 73, making in all 226. The Bible Class now taught by Professor Panton, is exceptionally prosperous, and his instructions highly valued. The Bible Class Association, organized in October, is doing well, and Mr. Panton's lectures are highly appreciated. The number of teachers and officers in the school are 24. The collections during the year amount to $102.33 which were distributed as follows: French scholarship, $40, Home Missions, $20; Foreign Missions, $10; Juvenile Missions, $10; College Fund, $10; Manitoba College, $12.33. The report referred to Mr. Guthrie's resignation as Superintendent on account of his Parliamentary and other duties, and the appointment of Mr. Anderson in his place.

During the evening the children under the leadership of Mr. Maitland sang a number of choice pieces. They have often done well in previous years, but this time they excelled all previous efforts, and gave the choruses and solos in admirable style. The greatest credit is due to Mr. Maitland for his care and skill, and to the children for the way they profited under his instructions. The special pieces were: "Just beside the river," by T. and L. Scroggie and Jenny Moir; "Beautiful vale of rest," by the infant class. Recitation "Religion, Faith, Hope and Charity," by Maggie Stewart, Emily Burgess, Mary Grant, Lizzie Henry, and Minnie Barclay; dialogue by Maggie McPherson, Bertha Barclay and Maggie Stewart; duet by Annie Forbes and Mary Stewart; motto song "Jesus is our Shepherd" by the whole class, which was the finest piece of all. Mary Grant played the accompaniments nicely. Mr. Maitland favored the company with "Sweet Home" on the violin to Miss Grant's accompaniment. Altogether a very pleasant evening was spent.

Maine News.

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

PARNELL'S VISIT TO TORONTO.—As has already been announced, Mr. Parnell will visit Toronto on Saturday, 6th March. He will arrive on the Great Western express at 1:05 p.m. He will be met by a number of prominent citizens, with whom he will drive to the Rossin House, where a suite of rooms have been engaged for his accommodation. In the evening he will address the citizens from some public platform. On Sunday Mr. Parnell will probably attend St. James' Cathedral and in the afternoon dine privately with a friend. On Monday he will leave for Montreal.

GENEROUS.—We mentioned last week that Mr. John Walker, bill poster, had been seized with a fit of apoplexy while putting up the bills announcing the visit of Mrs. Scott Siddons to Galt, and that the attack had proved fatal. When Mrs. Siddons and her escort reached Galt on Monday, Mr. Lowell explained the circumstances to the party, and presented the bill for the work poor Walker had done. This amounted to $4.50, but Mrs. Siddons at once directed that a $10 bill be handed to the family from her. This was a kind and generous act.—Galt Reporter.

During last summer Sir Charles Tupper sold about $100,000 worth of old Intercolonial rails by private sale without tenders or anything of that kind. Returns in this connection have been asked for by the Hon. Mr. Burpee, so that interesting "explanations" may be expected.

CHILLING.—Man: "I say mister, can't yer give us a shill'n'; I're turble hard-up." Farmer: "Ah Proctor, I always told you to look out for a rainy day." Man, "So I did master: but I never thought it wur a-going to snow." Master gives him a shilling.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 27.

Among the Bills read a third time was the one respecting the debenture debt of the city of Guelph—Mr. Laidlaw.

Several motions for returns were made, and a number of bills passed through Committee.

On resuming the debate on the motion to go into Committee of Supply,

Mr. Deroche said he did not wish to re-open the discussion on the expenses re the Lieutenant-Governor's trip, and in the hope that the debate would not be continued further, he would refrain from making any remarks on the subject.

The amendment of Mr. Meredith was put and lost on a division. Yeas, 54; nays, 25.

Several items in the Supplementary Estimates were passed.

Mr. Lauder withdrew a motion looking to the disqualification of members contracting with the Government for the purchase of Crown lands or timber.

Mr. Pardee declined to allow the motion to be withdrawn without an expression of opinion on so absurd a proposal, the more especially as it had emanated from a man who formerly voted against motions condemning the practice of members holding positions of emolument under the Crown.

After a number of Bills had been advanced a stage a division was taken without further debate on Dr. Widdifield's motion to reduce the item for the Lieutenant-Governor's trip by the amount of the Bill for "luxuries," which was carried by a majority of 55 to 25. Subsequently a motion of Mr. Meredith's condemning the expenditure was voted down by 53 to 27, and a motion by Mr. Ross declaring that in all future official trips liquor bills should not be charged to the Province was carried by 52 to 25. The last two motions were voted on in concurrence, and they therefore dispose finally of the matter.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.

Mr. McCarthy introduced a Bill to extend the operation of the principle contained in Mr. Tymond's Bill, adopted several years ago, in which persons charged with common assault were made competent as witnesses.

Mr. Casey has re-introduced the Civil Service Bill rejected last session.

The debate on receiving the report of the Committee of the Whole on the resolutions respecting the better administration of justice in British Columbia was resumed by Mr. Blake. The resolutions were concurred in, and a Bill embodying the same introduced.

Mr. Mackenzie, pressed the Government to state when the promised Banking Bill would be introduced. The Finance Minister was unable to mention a date. "When will the Budget Speech be delivered?" was the next query. To this Sir Richard Cartwright received no satisfactory reply. Messrs. Mackenzie and Blake both protested against the inexplicable delay, which had been twice defended by the same flimsy excuse, and thus raised Sir Samuel's ire.

The Insolvency Law Repeal Bill was again under discussion, and an amendment by Mr. Blake, providing for the winding up of insolvent banking and insurance companies, adopted in the Committee of the Whole. Progress on the Bill was reported.

After recess the consideration of the Bill was resumed, and an amendment by Mr. Blake providing for the winding up of insolvent incorporated companies was lost on a division. The Government in the afternoon assented to Mr. Blake's amendment relative to banking and insurance companies, but after recess the Premier said that as some objections unforeseen at the time had been raised to the amendment, the Bill as amended had better stand for consideration until Tuesday next.

A debate sprang up on the second reading of the Bill legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister. Mr. Girouard in moving, and Mr. Cameron (North Victoria) in seconding, the motion, spoke favourably to the measure. Mr. Thompson (Haldimand), objected on scriptural grounds. Messrs. Mills and Abbott both supported the Bill, but on slightly varied grounds. Mr. Blake also approved of its principle, but objected to its provisions as being ultra vires, and an infringement on Provincial rights. Mr. Anglin thought the objection founded on Biblical interpretation was a matter to be fought out among the Protestant members alone The Catholic Church deemed such marriages objectionable, but retained the right to grant dispensations under special circumstances

The debate was adjourned and the House rose at 10:45 p. m.

The Australian Meat in London.

Australian meat was sold in London a fortnight ago. Fifty-two days were occupied in the outward voyage, and four or five more in the homeward voyage. The work of taking meat on board at Sydney and of freezing it began on November 18, and on the 19th the vessel set sail for Melbourne, where additions were made to the stock, raising the total 563 sheep and 65 bullocks, weighing together about thirty-five tons, and on December 6 began the voyage to England. The meat was kept in a room about 28 feet square, and the temperature maintained during the voyage was from 10° to 15° below freezing point. No chemicals were employed in the freezing process or during the voyage home. By means of an engine the air was drawn out of the room, washed and chilled, being compressed in the washing process, and then forced back into the chamber. Four or five hours' working of the engine per day was sufficient throughout for the purpose. No difficulty was experienced during the voyage through the Indian Ocean and by the Suez route, though naturally some had been apprehended, twenty-three days being spent in the tropics. Some of the meat was occasionally used as food, and in one instance at least a part of what had been taken out of the room was left hanging for three or four days in the rigging, and then found fit for use. On Christmas Eve, when the vessel was nearing home, 100 pounds was given out, and the whole proved all that the crew could wish for, even at such a festive time. When the vessel arrived in London the freezing and storing rooms were visited by marketmen, and there were seen quarters of beef and carcasses of sheep with the familiar look presented by such things in the butchers' shops, save that the meat was covered with hoar frost, and had surroundings of snow. An excellent hot luncheon was served in the vessel, the meats—beef, mutton and lamb, cooked on board—being all, it was stated, part of the recent importation. Among the viands, lamb cutlets led the way, being succeeded by minced collops. The former seemed rather deficient in flavor; the latter were capital. Then came beef, olives, and stewed chops. As a climax there appeared a handsome sirloin of beef, which, as it was carried round the room for inspection, was greeted with hearty cheers, and this was followed by a shoulder of mutton.

A Discouraged Debtor.

One could see that he had a grievance as he walked up and down the post office corridor, and pretty soon he met with a friend and began:

"I'll be 'anged if I know what to make of this blarsted country!"

"What's the matter with our great and glorious America?" asked the other.

"Hin Hingland, God bless her, my grocer sends me 'alf a barrel of wine, or a box of tea, or ten pounds of coffee at the end of the year as a present."

"Yes."

"While hover 'ere in the frozen up country my grocer drinks the wine himself, blast his heyes! and sends me a statement showing that I'm howing 'im a balance of $13 hon account. What sort of a way is that to hincourage me to run up a bill there his 1880?"

"George Stephenson, the Great Engineer."

The lecture by Rev. Mr. Waits, of Stratford, on "George Stephenson, the great Engineer," delivered in the lecture room of St. Andrew's Church on Friday evening, was poorly attended, a fact due no doubt to the number of entertainments held the same evening. The lecture occupied nearly two hours in delivery and throughout the rev. gentleman held the attention of his audience. He was introduced by Rev. Mr. Smith, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, and President of the Young Men's Association, in connection with it, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

At the outstart the Rev. Mr. Waits compared the old system of travelling by stage coach with that of travelling by rail, in this way showing the great good George Stephenson had done the world as inventor of the locomotive. It took the stage coach ten days in summer and twelve days in winter to travel from Edinburgh to London, while by steam the distance was accomplished in from eight to nine hours. In 1672 it took four days to travel from Notingham to London, while now the distance could be covered in five hours. He described at some length the difference surrounding one travelling by stage coach to make travelling disagreeable. Some of these were exposure to the weather, surly landlords with whom the passengers came in contact at the inns, and disagreeable fellow-travellers. The lecturer then passed on to relate the history of George Stephenson who was born at Wayland, and like many great men was the son of parents in humble circumstances, his father being a colliery engineer. He was reared wholly uneducated save what he learned by attending night school for a time. His first attempt at the construction of an engine was made with a companion named Woods when both were boys, their engine being made after the pattern of that of Robert Stephenson's. As the colliers passed they examined the engine and were attracted by the mechanism. He worked first as a plow boy at four pence a day and then at a colliery at eight pence a day. He now began to make the steam engine the study of his life and feeling the want of education went to a night school where he learned to read, but even in his old age he never cared for books save to gain information. His slate was his constant companion and he stuck to drawing and planning with a perseverance which characterized his success through life. When he had grown up and was married his son Robert became the sharer of his study. In 1810 George Stephenson showed his superior knowledge of the engine and its working. The Killingworth mines were abandoned without hope of drawing the water out. Stephenson said he could clear it out and set to work with the steam pumps. In less than three days the pit was clear of water, and the miners were at work again in less than a week. This procured for him a recognition from his employers, and he was advanced and preserted with £50. All this time he had been studying mathematics, and became a thorough mathematican. In 1800 Ben. Outram constructed a line of rails supported on stone blocks used for trucks at the collieries. This system took the name of its maker, but working people not being fond of long names the first syllable was dropped, and it was called tram, and this was the source from which railroads sprang. Stephenson was first to propose the idea of running steam engines on rails. The improvements that Stephenson made on on the old steam engine were to enlarge the heating surface, close the cylinder at both ends and manufacture steam more rapidly. His great object was to perfect the locomotive, and he afterwards constructed a railroad at Killingworth colliery eighth miles in length. The first great railway was built between Stockton and Darlington by Stephenson which was opened on the 17th September, 1825, when a train of passengers were drawn at the rate of twelve miles an hour between the two places. The success of this road established Stephenson's name throughout England, and it was proposed to connect Manchester and Liverpool by rail. His proposition was met with every opposition and ridicule, and when questioned in the House of Commons one of the members said, "Suppose you were going at the rate of twelve miles an hour, and there was a cow on the track, would it not be an awkward thing?" "Yes," he replied, "it would be awkward for the coo." A government grant was passed for the line of rail which crossed 63 bridges, ran under a tunnel a mile and a half long, and through a cut 100 feet deep and two miles long, and the road was completed through the perseverance of an illitirate and almost unknown man. The secret of his success was indomitable perseverance and humble self-confidence. Thus the man who could not sign his own name became a man to be consulted by kings and corporations. Almost all the railroads in Britain were built under the superintendence of himself and son. His later years were spent in a country retreat, and many were the men of eminence who visited the successful engineer. He died in 1868 aged 67 years, leaving as a monument of his greatness the system of railroads.

The Cattle Embargo.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.

Senator Christie, as President of the Shorthorn Breeders' Association, which embraces both the United States and Canada, has for some time past been in correspondence with the authorities at Washington relative to the removal by the United States Government of the embargo at present placed on the importation of Canadian cattle into their territory. The representations made by Senator Christie have been so far successful that to-day he received a letter from a prominent United States Senator which contains the following intimation, which will be hailed with satisfaction by the agriculturists of Canada: "I am informed by the Secretary of State at Washington that on or about March the first he will revoke the order preventing the importation of cattle into the United States of which you complain, believing that the Canadian Government will now properly enforce the quarantine regulations it has adopted.

Mr. Mackenzie gave $50 towards the relief of Ottawa workingmen in 1877. Sir John's subscription is not yet forthcoming.

Arthur Junction Railway.

This case, it will be remembered, was an application to the Court of Queen's Bench for a mandamus to compel the Township of Arthur to pass a by-law granting a bonus to the Arthur Junction Railway. The by-law had been carried when submitted to the ratepayers by a majorfty of seven, but it was represented to the Council of the township that the majority had been obtained by corrupt practices on the part of those interested in the Railway, and a petition was presented to the Council, largely signed, requesting them not to ratify it. The Council upon inquiry satisfied themselves that there were good grounds to believe that corrupt practices had extensively prevailed, and they accordingly refused to ratify the by-law. Those interested in the Railway then procured Langdon, the plaintiff, to apply to the Court to compel the ratification of the by-law. Evidence was taken at considerable length in Toronto, on the 20th January last and judgment was reserved, On Friday, Mr. Justice Osler delivered judgment, holding that the Council were entitled by law to set up the defence of corrupt practices to the application, and that upon the evidence it was clear that the by-law had been carried by corrupt practices, and that even on a scrutiny a sufficient number of votes would have been struck off to change the result. He therefore refused the mandamus with costs against the applicant. Mr. J. K. Kerr, Q. C., represented the applicant, and Mr. H. J. Scott, of Toronto, and Mr. Watt, of Guelph, the Township.

Light Literature.

(CONTRIBUTED.)

It is a circumstance to be regretted that light literature circulates to such an enormous extent among the young people of to-day. If not an actual sign of mental degeneracy in the race, it accounts for many false ideas and schemes at present prevailing, which are conclusive proofs of mental weakness. There are numbers of young people, and some of mature years, who from constantly reading trashy novels have gained wrong impressions of what true character is, and are through years the ridiculous imitators of some imaginary hero. Few, indeed, among grown-up people—especially among natives of the Mother Land—have any accurate conception of the evils attending the circulation of trashy literature. In their younger days novelists and their productions were not so common as in these times, and in their maturity they had no taste for this class of reading. That is one reason why they do not understand the evils attending its constant perusal—not having a personal knowledge of it, a suspicion that it is hurtful has not entered their minds.

To say the light class of novels in circulation benefit the community, is nonsense. It may be granted they benefit the community slightly, but the evil they cause far outweighs the good. In some instances light reading may engage the attention of persons who at first would read nothing else. In time, however, not only the improbabilities but also the impossibilities of the plots in such works may disgust and drive them to seek information and pleasure in more healthful literature. On the other hand the ideas of many never reach a higher stage and the perusal of such new novels brings to their mind—already enervated by nonsense—some additional chimera. At the outset we stated that light literature accounted for many wild schemes prevailing. We will go farther now and say that its influence is to a certain degree the cause of fastness and extravagance among the younger classes. Nor are those the only evils arising from the same source, for to it may be traced idleness and recklessness among young readers. Becoming interested in the perusal of a novel they neglect duties in following it through, thus forming the habit of procrastination which is among the worst of all habits. Many too become convinced that they entered the world to be the sole consideration and care of others who will rear them like gentlefolks and leave them rolling in opulence. If this illusion vanishes it may not do so before that "time in their affairs, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune," has passed and the efforts of a life-time may fail to supply the omission. The man who succeeds in life is he who depends on his own energy and perseverance for his success, but he never learned that he depended on those qualities by constantly reading the trashy novels which comprise the yellow covered literature of the day.

THE Senators are desperately hard worked just now. On Wednesday their session lasted the whole of half an hour, and yesterday it was cut down to five minutes. The opening prayer is hardly over before the benediction comes.

This is getting to be a well-padded world. There are horse-pads, foot-pads, hip-pads, liver-pads, kidney-pads, lung-pads and stomach pads, and some one will soon have a pad for bald heads.

A teacher endeavoring to familiarize a little girl with the various countries of the Western Hemisphere, with little evidence of success finally asked. "If I were to bore a hole through the earth, and you were to go through that, and where would you come out?" "Come out?" replied the child. "Why, I'd come out in the hole miss!"

They were sitting together Sunday evening, with an album or two between them when she pleasantly asked. "How would you like to have my mother to live with you?" In just fifteen seconds he had his hat down half way over his face and was bolting through the gate.—Danbury News.

The Ice Question.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I regret that my letter of the 25th inst., should have been the cause of bringing out the views of "The owner of what is known as Allan's dam," to substantiate what I stated was merely a rumor of trouble among the icemen. The letter in the MERCURY to-night, as a reply to that, has a great many personal allusions which I pass over, merely stating that after a residence of thirty-five years in Guelph, the public can judge of my actions better than of a stranger of yesterday.

But, Mr. Editor, from the tenor of the letter of to-day, a claim of ownership is made for the first time to the whole of the river from the dam to Inglis & Hunter's property, with the ostensible view I take it of depriving me, and the other owners of property along its bank, as well as the public generally, of the privileges and advantages which we have heretofore enjoyed, which I for myself am not prepared to surrender. But as it is plain from many of the statements made, that the writer of the aforesaid letter is not well posted with the early history of Guelph, I wish to set him right on that subject, so as, if possible, to allay the feeling that has been aroused throughout the city, by what is considered to be one of the most high handed acts that has ever taken place in it.

First, he speaks of the mill having made the town. Now the facts are that the town plot was laid out and buildings erected years before the mill was built, and it was not the only mill privilege in Guelph. Then the mill reserve did not extend north of the street, in fact, if my memory serves me, the north gable of the mill as it now stands is a few feet on the street, and so guarded was the Canada Company that the head race did not extend to the north boundary of the street, thus not interfering with private property in the least. Also the dam was so constructed as to form a part of the bridge or roadway, on the then leading road from Guelph to Little York, now Toronto, and latterly the dam was raised some eighteen inches higher than its original height, which may be called in question if the rights of the citizens are to be interfered with. That Mr. Allan never claimed the ownership of the dam, it will be recollected, when the bed of the river was full of stumps, which gathered around them all manner of filth, and the town knowing that Mr. Allan did not own it, could not compell him to remove them, made an appropriation out of the funds of the town, which was supplemented by private subscriptions, and Mr. Allan was asked to draw off the water for a given time, so that the bed might be cleaned of stumps, which he did, and the citizens have had the privilege of enjoying themselves on a fine sheet of clear water ever since, but which they are now sought to be deprived of.

Then, Mr. Editor, who ever heard of ice being used to drive machinery. Something new, but not so startling such an announcement for by meeting it into water it must be made to act on machinery) but the writer of to-day's letter refers to the public stepping in and carrying away a component of the cost of another. Surely the writer never intended to say he made the ice, and we cannot be wondered at if the public should take what has been made by Him alone who dispenses his blessings liberally for the benefit of all His creatures.

I am sure the citizens of Guelph will be astonished to learn that Mr. Allan paid taxes on the dam. No schedule that ever appeared before an assessor from Mr. Allan, (I am safe to say ever contained the dam as a part of his property to be assessed, and consequently he never paid taxes on it.

Then another remark in the same letter, is to the effect that a mill without a dam or power to run is of little value, and taxes would not be more than on a church. Would that not be glad news to owners of steam mills, if these taxes were to be no more than on a church. You conceive if any calculated on it they would be woefully deceived.

Then as to the privilege of the taking of ice free by the citizens of Guelph, and not throwing it open to the whole Dominion. The citizens pay taxes for keeping up the streets, etc., within the city limits, and by allowing outsiders to use our streets and take away our ice without paying anything for it, would be an act of great injustice to those who have to pay the burdens imposed by the city in the shape of taxes, and as to what purpose the funds derived from the sale of ice might be put to, I have no doubt the proper authorities would apply it as they considered most for the public good. I merely suggested in my former letter what it might be put to—as to the slow method of making money by the sale of ice, and the method prepared by the said writer, I leave to the public to judge of their merits or consistency

I now leave the matter to those who have a right to guard the interests of the public, and the public themselves to see that no encroachment is made on their rights, as this is the first instance in the history of Guelph, when any attempt was made to claim a private right to the ice in our rivers, and as I said my former letter, I trust that such a claim will not be further persisted in, as I hold that all rivers, whether they have dams or not, which can be approached by public streets or without trespassing on private property, are as much the property of the citizens, as are the streets and highways. These are my views, and I apologize for their length.

Yours, etc.,
C. DAVIDSON.

An Artificial Skating Rink.

There is a skating rink in New York, whose ice is supplied by an artificial process known as the Rinkin Patent. The operation, as described in last week's Spirit of the Times, is substantially as follows:—The rink was first floored with continuous rows of iron piping, arranged as in the registers used for steam heating. In the basement are huge tanks, in which each day ten tons of ice are transformed, by the use of salt and some unknown chemicals, into a liquid many degrees colder than the freezing point. By the help of a ten-horse power engine and steam pumps this freezing liquid is made to circulate constantly through the labyrinth of piping, and necessarily freezes the pipes and everything near them. The liquid makes its rounds until its temperature rises above the freezing point, when it is drawn off into the waste pipe and a fresh supply put in. At the commencement the floor was flooded four inches above the top of the pipes, and this shallow lake was soon turned into a field of smooth and solid ice. Nothing is easier than to keep this in working order. Three times a day—at noon, 6 p. m., and midnight—the rink is cleared for an hour, the ice swept, and flooded deep enough to leave a smooth level surface. The pump is started at full speed, the freezing liquor hurries through the pipes, and in half an hour there is a new sheet of smooth and solid ice. This operation is independent of the weather, and is successful alike on cold or thawing days. Indeed, it has been tried in June, and actual ice-skating enjoyed while the roses were blooming outside.

For the first time in Canada native talant in dramatic art has achieved a decided success in "H.M.S. Parliament." Although only a burlesque, the talent displayed by the author in its composition, and the splendid manner in which it has been put on the stage, deserved the unbounded applause which greeted the presentation. The merit of the piece lies in the accuracy of its hits at personages and politics of the day, given with perfect impartiality, and with a humor of expression utterly irresistable.—Ottawa Free Press.

The Incendiary Fires in the Gatineau District.

The Story of the Prisoners.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—The prisoners arrested for being implicated in the incendiary outrage at La Visitation, on the Gatineau River, about sixty miles from Ottawa, were brought to Aylmer to-day. There names are Rev. Eusebe Faure, Jean Berthe, Auguste Martin, and Onesime Chambreau. The first two are more deeply implicated than the others—in fact, Berthe has turned Queen's evidence, and has sworn most positively that he set fire to at least two places, being instigated by the priest, Father Faure. The others were arrested on slight suspicion. Father Faure, while understood to be under arrest, was not confined in gaol as the others were, but was allowed to go at large on parole. He is staying with his nephew, Rev. Mr. Faure, who is priest of the village of Aylmer. It is expected that application will be made to-morrow before the County Judge to have the prisoners allowed out on bail. The result of the investigation showed that a man named Doyle, a storekeeper in La Visitation, had some knowledge of the affair, and he, on finding that he was suspected, agreed to make a clean breast of it. Accordingly he laid information before W. Henry, J. P., that Ellard's lumber had been fired by Jean Berthe, incited by the priest, Faure, himself (Doyle), and his partner, Dr. Langlois, who has since left for Windsor, Ont. He laid another information that a fire which had occurred in the office of Mr. James Bainbridge, in June, was also caused by Berthe, acting at the instigation of the priest. Warrants were issued, and the arrests effected. A preliminary investigation was held before Messrs. Wm. Henry, J. P., and John Little, J. P. The evidence there taken shows very strongly against Rev. Father Faure. There were two cases really, but it was almost impossible to keep them separate, as the witnesses examined as to the one gave information likewise as to the other, and their evidence could not well be divided.

Doyle not only in the information but on examination as well stated that in his presence Rev. Mr. Faure offered Berthe $500 to set fire to Ellard's property. Berthe agreed to do the deed, and was frequently admonished by the priest not to get drunk, so that he might be able to perform the work rightly. When it was found that only the lumber was burned Father Faure said any fool could have done better than that. An inquest was held to find out the cause of the fire, and on the 29th November last the priest asked him (Doyle) to give money to get Berthe out of the country, and when this was not agreed to he asked him to give Berthe some clothes. Doyle gave these clothes on the order of Father Faure. Previous to the fire he frequently heard Faure and Langlois ask Berthe when he was going to do the job on Ellard.

At the conclusion of the evidence the priest was asked if he had anything to say. He replied in French, the following being a translation of his utterances as it appears upon the deposition:—

The depositions made by Jean Berthe and some others are not correct. I never had the intention to do what I am accused of—not to burn the properties of Mr. Ellard, neither his house, nor those of Bainbridge, nor of any one else. What was said or testified to about setting the fire I never expected would come to such serious facts. I regret that Mr. Langlois and Doyle have come to destroy the fruit of my ministry for thirteen years. I often heard them speak of setting fire to Ellard, Bainbridge and Grace's properties, but never thought it was serious or that they would have the audacity to perform it. It is easy to see that I could not be serious when it was talked of setting fire at Bainbridge's, for I had notes of about $2,300 in his office. I could not speak seriously if I did say so in saying that Grace's should be burnt, as that would burn the church, presbytery, and all the surroundings, especially as I had no insurance on them. I would have had no reason to act against Mr. Ellard when I heard reports, but I never had any intention to injure him in any way. The depositions against me say I am guilty. If I am sent to prison I will kiss my irons. If I am exiled like St. Jean Chrysostom I will say "all the universe belongs to me."

The Royal Insurance Company having several risks in Wright county employed Detective Fahey, manager of the Dominion Detective Agency, of Montreal, to work up the case. That officer, with his well known energy, commenced three weeks ago, resulting in the arrests referred to already. From the affidavit of the man Doyle and from other evidence secured the officer proceeded to Belle River, a small village twenty miles from Windsor, to arrest Dr. Langlois, the former partner of the prisoner who had "squealed" upon the gang. Assisted by Chief of Police Bains, of Windsor, Mr. Fahey secured his prisoner, and on Friday took his prisoner to Ottawa.

Letters were found upon the prisoner Langlois from the priest. They advised him to keep out of the way for a while, because it would not be safe to appear in public. Langlois, it seems, removed from Wright to Belle River in July last, on account of an abortion case in which he was mixed up. He is a small-sized, thin-faced Frenchman, a graduate of McGill College.

From the successful way the case has been worked up by Mr. Fahey and the large amount of evidence secured against the prisoners there is little doubt but that several convictions will ensue.

How He'd Do It.

Sevreal men were gathered at the door of a blacksmith shop on Cass avenue the other morning, when a school-boy not over nine years of age came along with tears in his eyes one of the group asked:

"What's the matter boy—fall down?"

"N-no, but I've got a hard 'rithmetic lesson and I expect to get licked!" was the answer.

"Let me see, I used to be a king-bee on fractions."

The man took the book, turned to the page, and read.

"RULE 1—Find the least common multiple of the denominators of the fractions for the least common denominator by each denominator and multiply both terms of the fractions by the quotient obtained by each denominator."

He read the rule aloud and asked if anyone could understand it. All shook their heads, and he then continued:

"Well, now, I think I should go to work and discover the least uncommon agitator, I would then evolve a parrallel according the intrinsic deviator and punctuate the thermometer."

"So would I!" answered every man in chorus, and one of them added: I've worked 'em out that way a thousand times!"

Not one of the men, all of whom were in business and had made money, could even understand the working of the rule, much less work examples by it, and yet it was expected that a nine year-old boy should go to the blackboard and do every sum off-hand—Detroit Free Press.

Staple Department.

We urgently request all intending purchasers of Heavy Grey Cottons, Bleached Cottons, Sheetings, Colored Shirtings, Blue Derry, Brown Derry, Ducks, Table Linens, Brown Hollands, &c., to lose no time in visiting our establishment for them. Our stock, bought previous to the great rise in these goods, amounting to over $35,000 worth, will soon be cleared out. The rush daily for them at the old prices makes Upper Wyndham Street look each day more like a fair day. We are bound to rush things lively, and our motto is good goods, cheap goods; reliable and courteous attention to every customer, and all goods fairly represented, and one price only. Our salesmen are courteous, gentlemanly and obliging, and will spare no pains to suit every patron of that Wonderful Man's, who is a terror to evil doers, and old bankrupt moth-eaten goods dealers.

A Colonial Secretary Treed.

Treed by pigs is not exactly the position in which we should expect to find a Colonial Secretary—at least not often. But when Mr. Fowler, Colonial Secretary of the Honduras, was recently exploring the interior of the colony he was overtaken by a drove of peccaries, and had only time to take a snap shot at the first of them and scramble up a tree, dropping his rifle in the performance, before the whole pack were round his perch, gnashing their teeth at him, grunting and sharpening their tusks against the tree. Now, the peccary is not only ferocious but patient, and, rather than let an object of its anger escape, will wait about for days, so that the Secretary had before him only two courses,—either to remain where he was until he dropped down among the swine from sheer exhaustion and hunger, or else to commit suicide at once by coming down to be eaten there and then. While he was in this dilemma, however, what should come along—and looking out for supper, too—but a jaguar. Never was beast of prey so opportune, for the jaguar has a particular fondness for wild pork, and the peccaries know it, for no sooner did they see the great ruddy head thrust out of the bushes than they bolted helter-skelter, forgetting, in their anxiety to save their own bacon, the meal they were themselves leaving up the tree. The jaguar was off after the swine with admirable promptitude, and the Secretary finding the coast clear came down,—reflecting as he walked toward the camp, upon the admirable arrangements of Nature, who having made peccaries to eat colonial secretaries, provided also jaguars to eat the peccaries.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

Famines like that which is now devastating Ireland have been lamentably frequent during the last few years. In 1869 absolute starvation prevailed for several months throughout Fitzland and along the Baltic seaboard, aggravated by a frost of unexampled severity, which destroyed hundreds of those who made for the towns in quest of relief. In 1871 a yet more terrible famine decimated the population of Northwestern China, many of the sufferers being driven to gnaw the bark from the trees and even devour the bodies of the dead. Similar horrors were enacted on a smaller scale in Eastern Russia during the great drought of 1873. The failure of the Bengal rice crop at the close of that year swept away during the early months of 1874 at least half a million lives. The dearth in Bulgaria in 1876, and that of Cashmere a twelvemonth ago, are still fresh in public memory, while the present year has been ushered in by three distinct famines—Ireland and Silesia and in the Persian Province of Siestan.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Sold by all druggists.

CHAPTER XXIX.

ANOTHER ENCOUNTER ON MARSTON MOOR—THE SEIZURE OF AGNES BORLAND—THE VAIN PURSUIT—DAVID RAMSAY ON THE TRACK.

"No, no," she cried; "I am not a believer in these things. It is sinful, it is wicked, even to seek to know what God has hidden from us."

"Ah, this is three times I have asked and three times you have refused. Have a care girl. You surely do not know who I am? Say, do you know?"

"I think you are a gipsy," answered Agnes, who now began fervently to wish for the coming of David Ramsy, and as the wish came into her mind she cast her eyes with anxious glance along the moorland path.

"You need not look for the gardener, he is far from here," was the startling remark. "I shall have time to tell you my secret ere he come, but I would have you less defiant of my skill. Those who know me best fear me most—fear me for the power I have over their destiny. You above all should fear me, Agnes Borland, for the influence for good or evil which I have upon your fate."

"You have no influence over my fate," returned Agnes with undaunted courage, her religious faith making her bold in the cause of truth.

"I have influence—much influence over it. Be patient, girl, and submissive, or you will dearly rue it. You are exposed to a danger which I alone can aver."

"You must listen to it. I have come here to warn you, to give you the power of escape; and if you value your life's happiness you will give eager heed to my words, and will not in your poor deluded ignorance call them blasphemy."

"I will call them blasphemy," exclaimed Agnes. "You incur the anger of heaven by presuming to declare the future, and I will not be partaker of your guilt. Please to stand aside and let me pass; if you will not, I must turn back."

"And is this your grutitude for the trouble I have taken to serve you. Did you know me, the distance I have walked, the reason I have sought you, the evil I can avert, you would fall on your knees on this hard road and thank me as fervently as ever you thanked your Maker for His mercies."

"Oh, horrible, I will fly," cried Agnes, and turned so rush back, when her arm was grasped, and her course arrested.

"Stay," said the intruder, with deep concentrated imperiousness. "My words are neither saving nor blasphemous, as you in your ignorant conceit imagine."

"Woman, please let me go. I will not listen," exclaimed Agnes, more and more horrified.

"I am Flora Marshall—I am the wife of Willie Marshall, the Gipsy King. If you have never seen, you have heard of me, and must see that I am not to be classed with the vulgar imposters whom you call blasphemers. Now take your choice. You are free to go or free to listen. I have to tell you which as a maiden it must concern you to know; but such knowledge, and from me, must be bestowed as a boon—not thrust upon unwilling and ungrateful ears. I shall stand aside that you may pass if you wish to do so. Will you go and meet the fate which awaits you, or will you bow your stubborn pride and solicit good at my hand—the good that I have come miles to do you?"

"I can receive no good from you," replied Agnes, her religious zeal still in the ascendency under the rooted conviction that the gipsy was but plying her unhallowed profession of "spae wife"—a profession held in abhorrence by the rigid sectaries of that day and which Agnes had been taught to regard with uncompromising hostility."

"You can receive no good from me," reported Flora. "Are these your final words?"

"They are; now keep your word and let me pass."

"Girl, your pride and obstinacy have sealed your doom. Go, the way is open."

She drew back among the whips as she spoke, and Agnes, the moment the way was clear, darted past at a speed which stayed not till far from the spot.

The gipsy stood gazing after her wild retreat.

"Ay, run on," she muttered, "run on, not from harm, as you think, but to the ruin your pride has brought upon you, and from which I would have saved you had you not spurned my offer with contempt. I knew not last night the kind of fate for which Reuben designed you. I deemed his purpose in carrying you off was to make you his wife, but when I listened to his conversation with Yawkins I learned otherwise, and was sorry for you—so sorry that I trudged five miles to warn you to stay away from home to-night. You would not receive my warning, therefore perish in your pride. By this time to-morrow you will have bitterly regretted your rejection of the aid of Flora Marshall."

Having delivered herself thus, the gipsy gathered her cloak closely round her, drew her tall form up to its full height, and struck across the moor with majestic strides, which soon caused her to be lost in the darkness.

Agnes sped on, looking once or twice to assure herself that she was not pursued. Never had she looked so anxiously for the appearance of her friend and protector, and when at last she recognised his form approaching in the gloom she moderated her pace and uttered a fervent ejaculation of thanksgiving.

David Ramsay was coming along at a speed very unusual for him, and presently they met.

"Dear me, ye are surely very late the nicht," he said, in a tone which indicated the alarm he had experienced.

"Indeed I am, David," replied the breathless Agnes. "I have been detained on the moor ever so long by a tall gipsy woman, who met me at the whinny place and wanted to tell my fortune."

"The impudent randy. But surely ye wasna sae foolish as let her. It's a' nonsense, besides bein' profane and wicked."

"No; I would not have it, and that made her very angry. I was greatly frightened by her wild, wrathful manner."

"Confoond the limmer," cried David, with sudden and hot indignation. "Gin I had come on her I wad hae made her decamp very quickly. Many folks are feared for thae wanderin' folk, thinkin' they hae poorer to harm them, as if the Almichty wad gie them mair knowledge o' the future than ither and better folk. They should be banished the kintra—that's what they should be. They gang prowlin' about farm toons, stealin. whate'er they can lay their hands on. What like o' a wife was she that daured to stop ye on the muir?"

"She was very tall, and seemed quite young, though I could not see much of her for her cloak and hood. She called herself Flora Marshall."

"Guidsake, the wife o' the Caird o' Barrulion.'

"Do you know her?"

"Not I—guid be thankit, but I hae often heard o' her. And an awfu' hizzy she is, if a' tales be true. But what is she daein in Marston Moor, five miles frae where her tribe is?"

"She would have me to believe that she ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

had come for the express purpose of seeing me."

"Oh, the lacin' jaud. And for me to be keepit back this nicht o' a' nights in the year, when I was sae fair needit by ye. Maister Bishop has been in the garden a' afternoon lookin' owre the pits and frames and glass hooses, for waes me, the Grange is to be selt next April."

"Sold next April," repeated Agnes with sad and sorrowful surprise.

"E'en sae. The laird o' Cairnbank has power to sell it, when he likes, and Maister Bishop thinks he'll get it altogither for his bond—the very thing he has been workin' and plottin' for, the auld scoondrel."

"Alas, then mother and I must soon leave the cottage," said Agnes, mournfully.

"We'll a' hae to leave," responded David. "At least I for ane winna bide after the estate fa's into Langton's hands. Though I should hae to break stanes by the roadside I'll ne'er ca' him maister. The Lord forgie me if I am less than just, but let me dae my best I canna exercise Christian charity towards Anthony Langton, nor his son either, Miss Agnes, for its my settled opinion they are baith tarred wi' ae stick."

"Let us not speak of them," said Agnes, with an irrepressible shudder. "This will be sad news for poor mother. To leave the house in which she has lived so long, where she enjoyed her wedded happiness, where every stone and beam is associated with heart-stirring experiences—eh, it is for her a hard, hard trial."

"And a' broucht on by the thouchtlessness, nay the folly o' Maister Orwell."

"Hush," said Agnes, "cast no reflections on Orwell, for we do not know how far he was to blame. He is gone, and cannot explain—cannot vindicate——."

Here sobs choked her utterance, and she gave way to a violent burst of weeping.

Her companion was thrown into a state of great distress by her grief, accusing himself of being its cause.

"I wish my tongue had been outtit oot afore it had vexed ye by speakin' a word against Maister Orwell," he piteously exclaimed. "As ye very justly say he is na here to answer for himsel', and maybe if a' was kenned he has been ill dune to. But when he comes back the truth will appear."

"When he comes back," said Agnes, with a wailing sigh. "Oh, David, will he ever come back?"

"Ay, will he; dinna despair o' that. I hae said it a' along, and I could stake my life on it."

"Heaven grant your hope may be realized," breathed Agnes in a fervent tone. But where can he be? Why does he remain abroad and silent, leaving those who love him to fear that he is—is—"

"Dinna speak the word, my pet. The Maister's livin', and he'll come back, tak' my word for it."

"You have always been confident of this, and your confidence cheers me. It is the one hope I cling to, yet at times—when I hear the opinion of others—it dies almost wholly away."

"Dinna let it dee. Keep it bricht and strong like yon lamp that has plenty oil, which your mother has set on the window sole to licht ye hame."

The Biddulph Tragedy.

CONTINUATION OF THE EXAMINATION.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The trial of the Biddulph prisoners was this morning continued at the City Hall, which was crowded to the doors with a deeply interested audience. The accused were brought up from gaol at ten o'clock.

Mr. MacMahon commenced the cross-examination of Wm. Thompson, who was subjected to a lengthy examination.

Jas. Feeley was the next witness, but nothing important was elicited.

Robert Donnelly was next examined and said:—I am a son of the late James Donnelly; I was not at home on the night of the murder; I was at St. Thomas; I heard of it on Wednesday; I got to Lucan about two o'clock on Friday morning; I went to my father's place on Saturday in company with John O'Connor; Joseph Whalen came over while I was there, just to see where they had been burning; I visited the place again on the 12th or 13th inst.; while walking round I found a stick about ten rods from the house, in the direction of the school house and my brother's place.

The stick was here produced. It is a stout elm club, about three feet long, rounded at one end, and smeared with blood.

Witness contiuued—I gave the stick to my brother William to hand over to the Chief of Police, which he did.

To Mr. MacMahon—The school house is on the north corner of our farm; there is a fence about it between four and five feet high; it was about half way between the ruins and the school house where I found the stick; it would be about seventy feet from the school house fence; the club looks like elm; it looks as if it had been cut for something; I never played baseball; the stick is something like a baseball club; I don't know whether there was baseball played about there or not; I took the stick away because I thought the stains on it were blood stains; I was at Matthew McGrath's on Wednesday of this week; Detective Phair was with me, and we searched the premises along with James McGrath; we found a pair of overshoes under a pile of manure; I don't think McGraths had anything to do with the hiding of the overshoes; it was in consequence of Purtell having lived there that we made the search; I don't know that Phair had any suspicion of the overshoes being under the heap; I had not.

William Donnelly was again called but he did not put in an appearance, and a consultation ensued between the counsel and the Bench, the result being that the proceedings were adjourned till to-morrow morning.

The bail of the prisoners liberated was renewed and they were allowed to go. The others were removed back to gaol.

The population of the globe is estimated at about 1,300,000,000, and is ruled by 12 emperors, 25 kings, 47 princes, 17 sultans, 12 khans, 6 grand dukes, 1 vice-king, 1 bey, and 28 presidents. Of the republics, 19 are said to be found on American soil, leaving only 9 for the rest of the world.

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.
During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.
I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.
Also a case of lovely new prints.
Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.
In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

The beneficiary fund, which is the most prominent, though by no means the only feature of the order guarantees $2,000 to the widow and orphans of each member, and this at so low a rate that no possible objection can be urged against by the most prudent and economical. DISHONEST SERVANT.—We learn from the Berlin Telegraph that in September last Maggie Leicht, of Morriston, who was at service in the house of Mr. A. H. Miller, Berlin, stole from her employer $150 and some papers, which were afterward found in her trunk, only $18 having been taken from the sum. On promising to pay the deficiency to her employer she was retained in the family. Since then every thing went on all right till Saturday last, when Miss Miller missed some wearing apparel, a search was instituted and on Maggie Leicht's trunk being opened almost enough stolen goods were found to start a small country store. The lot comprised a piece of factory cotton, silver teaspoons, handkerchiefs, glass ware and crockery, ties, sash ribbons, aprons, gloves, lace, buttons and various trinkets of small value, too numerous to mention. Upon being asked if the things were hers, she said they were not, and could not give any satisfactory explanation why she had appropriated them. She was immediately discharged, Mr. Miller not caring to prosecute or be bothered with her any longer. She left for her home in Puslinch by the first train.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

THE PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION.

William Donnelly Examined.

His Story of the Shooting.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—When the Court opened to-day there was considerable talk and stir among the audience, as it was understood Wm. Donnelly would be the first witness called. The prisoners, since they have sat in the jury box, have to a large extent, dropped the air of indifference they first assumed, and now pay more serious attention to the evidence.

Wm. Donnelly was the first witness examined. He said:—I reside at Whalen's Corners, Biddulph; I am the eldest living son of the late James Donnelly; I am married; I recollect the night of the murders; I was at home that night; my wife, Martin Hogan, and my brother John were also there; John came about dark to borrow my cutter to go Granton next day: it was half-past twelve when I wound the clock and went to bed; I showed Hogan and John to bed just before this; my wife went to bed about nine o'clock; we stayed up talking about the Vigilance Committee; about half-past two I was disturbed by John coming out of his room through mine and into the kitchen; he spoke as he passed through, saying; "I wonder who is hollering 'fire' and rapping at the kitchen door," that was the first I heard; the path leading from the front gate around to the kitchen door passed by John's bedroom, so that he would not be able to see or hear anything before I did; when John opened the door leading to the kitchen I heard a cry of "Fire, fire! open the door!" Then John opened the kitchen door and I heard shots in rapid succession almost together; John fell back against the door, which he had just passed through, with his head against the jamb of the door; he cried in falling, "Will, Will, I'm shot! May the Lord have mercy on my soul!" immediately after John fell there were seven shots fired in front of the house; Hogan got up but did not come out of his room; he said to me, "Lay quiet or we will be all killed; it's you they want!" The shots sounded like revolver shots; I could not tell in what direction they were fired; the report of the shots fired at John were very loud; the guns must have been thrust inside the kitchen door, because the smell of the powder came into my room; after Hogan spoke I lay quiet in bed; our bed stood against a door, the top half of which was glass, which looked out into the road, being in the front of the house; I turned the corner of the blind and looked out; I saw John Kennedy, Jim Carroll and James Ryder; Kennedy was standing within two or three feet of the glass door, the other two were standing about six feet further off; there were three others standing outside the fence whom I did not know, but I took them to be Michael Heenan, Wm. Carroll, and Patrick Ryder, jr.; I would not swear to them; I speak positively of Jim Carroll, Kennedy, and James Ryder; I have known young Ryder since he was born, and Kennedy, who is my brother-in-law, as long as I can remember; Carroll I have known two or three years; I was well acquainted with him—too well in fact; he has been dragging us round the country; a year ago the 14th of October he began, and has hardly ever quit since; he was getting us arrested continually, and when he became constable he arrested us himself; I am sure there was a bad feeling on the part of Carroll towards us; he showed it every chance he could get; Kennedy seemed to be 'round with Carroll all the time, as if he was deputy to him; we have been bad friends ever since I got married to his sister; we had a quarrel one day at Lucan.

Mr. Hutchinson—Now we will go back to your house.

Witness—My wife said she would get up, whether she was shot or not; John was chocking with the blood coming out of his mouth; she got up and lit the light; I don't know whether there was anybody around at this time; before this, while the three men were standing outside, Carroll said something, either "What's next?" or "What's best?" I can't say which; he was speaking to Ryder and Kennedy; there were some words among the parties outside the fence, but I could not hear what they were; there was a reply to Carroll's question; Kennedy said "Brother-in-law was easy at last;" he always spoke about me in that way; the answer confirmed my opinion that it was me they wanted, and me they thought they had killed; at that time I was still peeping out of the window; I only turned the blind back sufficient to look out; I could hear others in the direction of the big gate besides the six I have mentioned; they were talking but I could not see them; the cry [of "Fire, fire: open the door, Will!" was made by two parties; I recognized the voices of Martin McLaughlin and James Ryder; I have known McLaughlin as long as I have known any body; he spoke pretty loud, in about the tone one would give the alarm of fire; after lighting the lamp my wife pulled John in towards my room about a foot; she cried, "Oh, Lord, oh, Lord, he's dying!" by this time Hogan got out and drew John in; my wife got a piece of blessed candle and Hogan held it it in John's hand till he died; the whole thing didn't last over five minutes; I remained in bed during this time; Hogan kept saying "Not to speak, for if they found out I was not dead they would come back and kill me and him too;" at the time of the shoutings I whispered to my wife to look at the clock, which she did; she said it was half-past two; I did not look out of the window again till four; at the time I saw Kennedy and the others it was pretty light; snow was on the ground but there was none falling; at four it was snowing and darker than at half-past two; my wife and Hogan remained with John's body, which lay on the floor in our room; I did not get up till almost the break of day; I opened the kitchen door, and looked at the tracks outside; about six feet of a roof projected out over the door, and there was snow beneath it; there were the tracks of a pair of boots and a pair of overshoes on the boards before the door, which were covered with snow; the door faces the south; from one of those tracks it was apparent the foot had slipped; the tracks were made by about an eight size boot; there were footprints outside in the yard, but they were partly covered by the snow that fell after the gang left; there were tracks about the stable door; there were tracks around all the windows the house except the one in the kitchen which is opposite to the door where John was shot; the snow was tramped down pretty much all around; and there were also tracks about Mr. Blackwell's house, which is about twenty feet south of mine; after observing the tracks I called Blackwell; he was already up, and came out when I called him; then I got out the pony and went down to James Keefe's, who lives over half a mile away; he was in bed, and I called him out; I told him what had happened and what I saw; he told me not to speak of it, but to get Phair and Murphy the first thing; there were tracks about half way to Keefe's, as if the crowd had walked along the road; they led from my house; there were two other tracks on the road leading to the Mahers'; on coming home Blackwell asked me if I had seen the fire; I said no; he showed me the direction in which it was, and I was satisfied it was at my father's; I was just preparing to go over and tell my father about John being shot; I said to Blackwell, "We've not heard the worst of it; at my request Walker, a neighbour, took my cutter and drove over to see if all was right; I remained at home till he came back; while Walker was away I told Nelson, the storekeeper, about what had happened; he said he had heard no shots, but Walker and his wife had; when Walker returned he told me the house was burned down and all the family consumed; I examined John's body; there were 29 holes in the left breast just over the lung; the collar-bone was broken; a bullet had passed through John's body and lodged in the wainscoting under the window; I cut the bullet out; I gave it to the Chief, having marked it first; I also found a piece of paper which appeared to have been used as wadding for a gun; it was torn and blackened; I noticed some of the reading on it, and I knew by the print that it was a piece of the Catholic Record; I also handed it over to the Chief. The bullet was produced and recognized by witness, who said—I sent James Keefe to see the Coroner at Lucan, and to telegraph to my brother and sister; I remained at home all day; two constables arrived at 5 p. m. bringing a coffin with them; John's body was placed in the coffin, which was taken back to Lucan; I accompanied the constables to Lucan; the corpse was left in Mr. Connor's house; I remained at McLean's hotel with the Chief till about nine o'clock, after which I went over to Connor's where a Dr. Flock made a post mortem examination of the body; he extracted several shot smaller than buck-shot from the breast.

Mr. Hutchinson—With regard to Martin McLaughlin, what terms were you on with him?

Witness—On the very best of terms till the Society was formed; after that he would not speak to me; I don't know for sure whether he was a member of the Society or not; I never was asked to join, and I kept my father from joining; I know nothing about the Committee, except from hearsay.

Witness was then cross examined by Mr. McMahon. He was six hours in the witness box. He was quick and brief in his replies and never blundered. It was now six o'clock, and Mr. Hutchinson said he would offer no more evidence at that sitting.

The following prisoners were discharged from custody:—James Maher, Sr., Mrs. Maher, James Shea, James Maher, Jr., and Patrick Ryder, Sr. The Crown had no evidence of guilt against them, and therefore consented to their discharge. There are eight parties still held in connection with the murder, viz.:—James Carroll, John Purtell, John Kennedy, Thomas Ryder, James Ryder, Martin McLaughlin, Wm. Carroll, and Patrick Ryder, Jr. The last two mentioned were admitted to bail. The Court adjourned till Monday morning.

The Crown officer has ten or a dozen persons yet to call. One of them is regarded as a very material witness. He is a boy named Patrick Heenan, son of a farmer living on the ninth concession of Biddulph. It is said of him that he overheard a conversation about the murder between two members of the Vigilance Committee on the morning after it was committed. The lad who is young, but intelligent, is now in the city under police surveillance.

It is said that his testimony will implicate the two men in question. Another disclosure promised on Monday affects the Vigilance Committee. A history of their organizations, their meetings, and operations will be drawn out as far as the Crown can possibly obtain it. Altogether the evidence yet to come will be interesting to the public and damaging to some parties.

BOOK NOTICES.

We have before us the London Quarterly and the Westminster Reviews for January, reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay St., N. Y.

In the former we have reviews of the three very interesting biographies. That of Lord Bolingbroke, who was distinguished alike for his brilliant talents and his intemperance, is to a great extent a political history of England during the fourteen years that preceded the death of Queen Anne. The review of the recently published life of Bishop Wilberforce gives a delightful sketch of the man, with many anecdotes. Scarcely an Englishman has enjoyed a larger share of personal celebrity. Most readers, however, will perhaps turn to the paper on Prince Metternich whose recently published Memoirs are attracting great attention. Those who may not have access to the work will have much satisfaction in reading this paper, which aims to exhibit the character and policy of that illustrious statesman.

Other articles are "The Progress of Taste;" "The Successors of Alexander and Greek Civilization in the East," which estimates the effects of the conquests of Alexander on the whole Oriental world; and "The Romance of Modern Travel," which calls to mind many old friends among sportsmen and wanderers in distant lands, and introduces us to some new ones. We have little space left for the Westminister Review. Besides an article on "The Relation of Silver to Gold as Coin," advocating a bimetallic currency, there are articles on "Colonial Aid in War Time," "Early Greek Thought," "The Grand Dukes of Tuscany," "Social Philosophy," "Russia and Russian Reformers," and "Contemporary Literature," forming a valuable number of this well known Review. For sale at the bookstores.

The prejudicial manner in which the Northwest land regulations of the Dominion Government is operating against the country is revealed in the large number of persons who are almost daily leaving districts in Ontario for the Western States. On Wednesday night a party of farmers from the line of the London, Huron & Bruce Railway passed over the G. W. R. en route for Nebraska. They are to be followed by others; and, as will have been seen from our Ottawa despatches, large numbers of agriculturists are shortly to leave for Texas or Nebraska.

A strike which begun on Monday on contract 15 of the Canada Pacific Railway still continues. The cause is represented to be the failure of the contractors to pay the men punctually.

Hon. Isaac Buchanan is out in the public prints again on the currency question. On Thursday he has a letter in the Free Press headed, "What should be done by Parliament when the bank charters come up for renewal?"

The Hamilton Times says that in 1878 there were 877 houses vacant in that city, while to-day there are 528, an increase under the "N. P." of 151.

The Guelph Debenture By-Law

The following is the text of the bill respecting the debenture debt of the City of Guelph, as it passed its third reading:—Subject to section two of this Act the corporation of the city of Guelph may from time to time during the years one thousand eight hundred and eighty, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, and one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two pass by-laws authorising the issue of new debentures of the said city for an amount not exceeding in any one such year the sum of ten thousand dollars, for the purpose of retiring or renewing a portion of the debentures now outstanding against the said city and falling due within the year in which such new debentures may be issued as aforesaid; and such new debentures to be issued as aforesaid under said by-laws may be in such sums and to such amounts, either in Canadian or sterling currency, as said corporation may deem best: provided always that such by-laws be in conformity and shall comply with the provisions of the "Municipal Act" and of the general municipal law from time to time in force in this Province, except that it shall not be necessary to obtain the assent of the electors of the said city to the passing of any such by-law as aforesaid, nor of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, either under "The Municipal Act" or any other general Act now or hereafter to be in force in this Province: and provided further that subject as aforesaid the said new debentures so to be issued as aforesaid under said by-laws, and all debentures so to be issued as aforesaid under said by-laws, and all moneys arising therefrom shall to the full extent thereof be applied only to retire and redeem the said outstanding debentures so maturing and becoming due as aforesaid in the said years.

Section two, referred to, is as follows: Notwithstanding anything in this Act contained all of the said now outstanding debentures which are public school debentures, or which have been issued for public school purposes, or which are debentures for or towards the payment of which the supporters of separate schools or their property in the said city of Guelph are not now liable or compellable to be rated or assessed, shall be provided for, retired and paid in all respects as if this Act had not been passed.

The Customs revenue for February at the several ports heard from show a very marked falling off as compared with the revenue for the same month last year.

London Advertiser:—Dr. Orton's new Interest Bill, which provides that no more than seven per cent. shall be chargeable on mortgages, savors of the demagogue. He does not expect it to pass, and evidently his only desire is for a little cheap popularity with the unthinking.

Foreigners in China are sometimes no better treated than the Chinese are by the hoodlums of San Francisco. There is rather aggravating information of the brutal way in which the Rev. Nathan Sites, of the American Methodist Episcopal Mission, has been misused by the mob of Yenping-foo.

Sarnia Observer:—One of the wholesome signs elicited by the liquor and luxuries discussion in the Ontario House, was the unanimity with which the Reform press condemned the practice of footing unnecessary bills incurred by public officials, under the pretence of acting in the public service. If the Conservative press had been half as outspoken in condemnation of the contract scalpers and parliamentary brokers who have been robbing the Dominion treasury so successfully under the sheltering wings of the present administration, it would not take long to rid the capital of the army of leeches that have settled upon the public departments there and are sapping the very existence of this Dominion.

In their dire extremity the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature are trying to make capital of Mr. McMaster's speech on the Lieut.-Governor's trip to Manitobia, which has been printed in slips, and sent to all the Opposition papers in the Province. They are evidently put to great straits when this matter is the only one they have any hope of making capital of. Two blacks do not make a white, so that the expenses of the Lieut.-Governor's trip to Algoma are not condoned by the fact that the former Ontario Government did exactly the same thing. But what we do think peculiar is that the Tory newspapers never made the slightest allusion to the "Chicora" trip while denouncing the recent excursion, and now when the facts of that bit of extravagance are made known they refuse to publish them.

It is not likely that the workingmen of Ottawa will demonstrate any more as the Corporation deputation will wait on the Minister of Public Works to-day. Mayor Mackintosh has applied to the contractors of the Canada Central Extension for work, and also telegraphed to Messrs. Purcell & Ryan, at Thunder Bay, for work for the laborers. He is anxious to get the "chickens" out of town. In connection with this we notice that "chronic whinings at Ottawa" is what the London Free Press dubs the modest request of the starving unemployed workingmen at Ottawa, who desired Sir John Macdonald to provide them with the employment he promised them when he received their votes at last election.

St. George's Church.

Appeal for the General Hospital.

There was a collection taken up in behalf of the General Hospital in this church on Sunday. The sermon by Canon Dixon was, like the hymns, very appropriate to the occasion. The text was taken from Luke 10, 37—"Go and do thou likewise." Having dwelt on the incidents of the parable, he said that there was no passage in Scripture more suitable for the guidance of our thoughts in connection with the support and maintenance of our General Hospital. He pointed out that hospitals were unknown to Judaism or Heathendom, even amongst nations the most cultivated and refined. The first of which there is any record was erected by Fabiola, a wealthy Christian widow, of a noble Roman family, in the fourth century, and ever since they have been regarded as one of the best and most enduring exponents of the teaching of the Great Master—of the practical influence of Christian charity in a Christian community. The Canon then dwelt on the eloquence of the fact, that the hospital, so creditable to this young city, commanded the confidence of all classes of the community, and that there was no diversity of opinion as to the great benefits it had conferred on suffering humanity. It was a grand work of philanthropy in which Christians of every shade of religious belief and of diverse political opinions could engage in advancing with perfect harmony of action. Here they could hold out the right hand of fellowship, and on the broad basis of a common humanity and a common legacy of suffering and disaster, meet as children of a common parent—united under the Fatherhood of God and in the Brotherhood of Christ—who died for one and all. Here is a work in which all can combine—in unity of spirit and in the bonds of peace. And there is an eloquence beyond all that can be said from the pulpit, that during the year, 148 of our afflicted brethren were admitted to all its privileges, and since the 1st of October, the large number of 90. And there are many now speaking to us from their sick beds—not audibly, but by their pale faces—their quivering lips—their mutilated forms, all eloquently beseeching us not to forget their sorrow in our day of health and prosperity—all preaching that pain and sorrow are our lot, and that if we would have the solace of the blessed hope in that evil time, we must now behold in them, poor, pallid, crippled sufferers, the radiant glory of Him who in the last crisis of the world's agony will declare to the chosen, "I was sick and ye visited me." The Canon then showed that this Hospital was founded and maintained by Christian charity. It is that Divine principle that leads its Directors to give their time, their attention, their careful supervision, toward the carrying out in the best manner, and to the best advantage, the trusts reposed in them. It is the same principle that leads the medical gentlemen to devote to the afflicted ones the time, the talents and the care that are given to the rich. In the close stifling abodes of the poor, when often a couple of small dingy rooms form bedroom, kitchen and sitting room for a whole family, medical aid has to fight against terrible odds, but in the airy wards of the Hospital, rich and poor are on an equality, for the destitute sufferers are provided with medical aid as skillful, and nursing as tender as riches could purchase or affection supply. And it is the same Divine Spirit that has led to the establishment of the Sunday afternoon mission services,—a joyous break on the monotony of the sick wards—and which have proved so great a comfort and so rich a blessing to the afflicted inmates, being truly to them as "the shadow of the great rock in a weary land."

The Canon then spoke of the readiness of the relief. Our Bethesda or House of Mercy was not like that of old, where a great multitude of impotent folk had to wait for a long period, for its door is always open to receive and relieve all legitimate objects of charity. The sermon closed with a thrilling appeal not to pass by the poor wounded brother. Lazarus is at all our gates. Be we rich or be we poor, there are always some on whom we might confer benefits if we would. And even to-day, He to whom the cry of bodily suffering was never raised in vain, whose tender loving heart still beats in sympathy with the needy and afflicted, stands in a special manner among us, impressing on their minds His wondrous parable, and saying to every one of them, "Go thou and do likewise."

Business Laws in Daily Use.

The following compilation of business laws contains the essence of a large amount of legal verbiage:—

If a note is lost or stolen, it does not release the maker; he must pay it, if the consideration for which it was given, and the amount can be proved.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of special partnership.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

An agreement without a consideration is void.

A note made on Sunday is void.

Contracts on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note made by a minor is void.

A contract made with a minor is void.

A note obtained by fraud or from a person in a state of intoxication, cannot be collected.

It is a fraud to conceal a fraud.

Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

A receipt for money is not always conclusive.

The acts of one partner bind all the rest.

"Value received" should always be written in a note, but it is not necessary.

No consideration is efficient in law if it be illegal in its nature.

Cheques or drafts must be presented for payment without unreasonable delay, and during business hours.

A note endorsed in blank is transferable, by delivery, the same as if made payable to bearer.

If the time of payment of a note is not inserted, it is held payable on demand.

If a letter containing a protest for non-payment be put in the post-office, any miscarriage does not affect the party giving notice.

Notice of protest may be sent either to the place of business, or to the residence of the party notified.

The loss of a bill or note is not sufficient excuse for not giving notice of protest.

If two or more partners are jointly liable on a note or bill, due notice to one of them is sufficient.

An endorsement may be written on the face or back.

An endorser may prevent his own liability to be sued by writing "without recourse," or similar words.

All claims that do not rest upon a judgment must be sued within six years from the time when they arise.

An oral agreement must be proved by evidence, a written one proves itself.

Joint payees of a bill or note, who are not partners, must not join in an endorsement.

"Acceptance" applies to bills and not to notes.

Heartless Conduct of a Husband.

Victims of Small Pox.

Ottawa, Feb. 29.—The particulars of a sad case have been learned, by which it appears that small-pox made its appearance in a family on Richmond Road, some distance from town, about a fortnight ago. The man of the house positively denied the presence of the disease, and refused to allow the approach of neighbors to his dwelling, although he went among them. On Thursday of last week he was stricken with the disease, and on the Saturday following his wife was confined and died, with her child, from want of attendance and the necessaries of life. In one part of the house lay the dead mother and her babe, in another was the heartless husband covered with the loathsome disease. A physician of the city heard of the case on Saturday and went out to the scene of distress. He found the woman dying, and had the husband brought to the civic hospital, where he now is. To make matters worse, there are six children who are almost helpless to do anything for themselves, and for whom the dead mother found the necessaries of life during the past winter by her own exertions. The conduct of the husband all through is said to be most heartless, as he refused to the last to send for assistance, although aware of the condition of his wife.

The Trouble in Afghanistan.

Lahore, Feb. 29.—The English Envoy to Ghuzni has been unsuccessful in his negotiations with Mohammed Jan. Abdul Rahman Khan is communicating from Balkh with Mohammed Jan and Ayoob Khan. The latter is reported to have received the offer from the Shah of a large bribe for the surrender of Herat, but has declined at the instigation of Abdul Khan.

Cabul, Feb. 29.—The early submission of Mahommed Jan is still expected. There are many signs that various chiefs wish to negotiate with the British. The son of the Khan of Bokhara has arrived at Jellalabad on his way to Peshawur with a hundred and forty followers.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

Senator Campbell stated in the Senate, the other night, that the Government had received no information from Senator Fabre, now in France, to the effect that he had been successful in having the duty on Canadian ships sold to the French greatly reduced. And yet the Government took credit some two weeks ago for having accomplished this.

The Emperor of all the Russias must e weary of life. He no longer wears coat of mail, but his carriages are plated with iron, and such is the mysterious secrecy with which he is surrounded that even the most trusted policemen are ignorant half an hour beforehand in what direction he is going. The cook is watched at his work by two special employees, and the kitchen door is guarded by two special employees, and the kitchen door is guarded by two sentinels. The viands are tasted by experts, and only offered to the Czar when they are convinced that no poison is lurking in them. Fond as he is of a good cigar, he is obliged, from similar motives of prudence, to forego the pleasures of smoking.

Mr. Mackenzie gave $50 towards the relief of Ottawa workingmen in 1877. Sir John's subscription is not yet forthcoming.

A singular monstrosity is reported from Philadelphia, Charles Erling, a Jersey boy, whose head is so large that he has been compelled to lie abed all his life. He is four feet eleven inches tall. The Times says that his head appears to be about six times the ordinary size, and his mother says, has always been as disproportionate in weight to the rest of his body as it is now. The measurement around the head at the middle of the forehead is thirty-three inches, while the line passing over the crown and under the chin is forty-four inches. Of course the head could never be weighed accurately, but its estimated weight at present is eighty pounds, which is about two-fifths of his entire weight. The inner corners of his eyes are four inches apart, the distance from temple to temple is thirteen inches, and the bridge of the nose is six inches below the upper line of the forehead. If it were a case of hydrocephalus, it would doubtless be less remarkable, but there is every physical evidence in support of statements made by several physicians, that it is neither more nor less than an abnormal growth of skull and brain. The head is solid and its parts nearly proportionate, except the forehead, which in both height and breadth measures about one and a half times as much as it would if symmetrical with the other parts of even so abnormally large a head. The trunk of the body is about the same in size as that of many a big fat boy, who walks the street, but the muscles are soft and weak from want of activity. The measurement around the chest is forty-four inches, and around the waist thirty-five inches. His legs, however, are no bigger than those of an eight-year boy of ordinary size.
