We urgently request all intending purchasers of Heavy Grey Cottons, Bleached Cottons, Sheetings, Colored Shirtings, Blue Derry, Brown Derry, Ducks, Table Linens, Brown Hollands, &c., to lose no time in visiting our establishment for them. Our stock, bought previous to the great rise in these goods, amounting to over $25,00 worth, will soon be cleared out. The rush daily for them at the old prices makes Upper Wyndham Street look each day more like a fair day. We are bound to rush things lively, and our motto is good goods, cheap goods, reliable and courteous attention to every customer, and all goods fairly represented, and one price only. Our salesmen are courteous, gentlemanly and obliging, and will spare no pains to suit every patron of that Wonderful Man's, who is a terror to evil doers, and old bankrupt moth eaten goods dealers.

Choice New Season Black Teas

I have just received a consignment of the above, and would call the attention of the public to the following choice mixtures:

FOO CHOW MIXTURE.
An extra fine China mixed Tea, 75 cents per pound.

MIXTURE OF FINEST CONGOUS AND LAPSING SOUCHONG,
80 cents per pound.

ASSAM MIXTURE.
A blending of finest China and East Indian Teas, 90 cents per pound

The above are really superior mixtures of Black Teas, and one trial will commend them to all who are in the habit of using first class Black Teas.

Opening of the Grand Trunk.—Nothing could have occurred more opportunely for the shipping interests of Chicago than the opening of the new Grand Trunk extension to this city, Saturday, when the first train load of freight went over the new line through to Portland, with a large cargo of grain direct for Liverpool. For several years past Chicago has been completely under the heels of the New York trunk lines during the winter months, when only all rail routes could be used for the transportation of east bound freight. The Grand Trunk after this will be to Chicago what the lake is to it during the summer—a regulater of rates. That the Grand Trunk will be able to secure the bulk of the traffic if it offers the most favorable terms is best proven by the fact that even before the new line was open, and while it was still compelled to use the New York lines as a Chicago outlet, it has, during the last four or five weeks, carried more than one half of all the east bound grain business from this city. With its new line open, and independent of the Vanderbilt roads, it is fair to suppose that it will receive a still larger proportion, unless the New York lines should offer superior inducements for shipping over their lines. With even rates the shippers here propose to patronize the Grand Trunk, for they feel quite certain that it will never be used against their interests, as has been the case with the old roads since the establishment of the Fink pool. The Grand Trunk has no other Western outlets and must stick to Chicago, and therefore Chicago will stick by the Grand Trunk.—Chicago Tribune.

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

CHAPTER XXIX.

ANOTHER ENCOUNTER ON MARSTON MOOR—THE SEIZURE OF AGNES BORLAND—THE VAIN PURSUIT—DAVID RAMSAY ON THE TRACK.

Agnes could not forbear smiling faintly at the apt illustration. They were now within the grange gates, and through the darkness came the gleam from the cottage window, the lamp being set there as David had said by the loving hands of Mrs. Borland, that it might shine upon the footpath and help Agnes to hold a direct course. The night-darkness had now fully settled down. A pale crescent moon had been in the sky at twilight, but it had gone down in the west, and the far off stars could do little to mitigate the intense gloom. For some distance the avenue bordered with trees formed a guide to their steps, but when they quitted it to cross the open park the light from the window was not unneeded. Besides shedding a friendly light upon the path it spoke of the thoughtful tenderness of a mother's love, of affectionate welcome of the evening's quiet happy converse and the night's sweet repose.

It was not the principal avenue entered at the lodge gates that David and Agnes traversed for some distance on their way to the cottage—that wide access to the Grange mansion, lined with noble beeches was farther to the west—but a semi-private road, communicating with the turnpike by a plain, barred gate, which no one supervised. A lock had once been on this gate to prevent unauthorised entrance to the grounds, but the lock had been long disused, and the gate's only fastening was an iron bolt which any one could open, so that at this point strangers had access to the park without hindrance. The privilege was abused only by poachers, whose night depredations had not been very strictly taken account of. In the last year of Mr. Bruce's life their violation of the game laws had not been prosecuted with great severity, and Orwell had been too little at home to insist on the game being very closely preserved. The poachers therefore had it pretty much there own way, and there were but few winter nights when the moon was shining that this solitary gate did not creak on its hinges, and admit a stealthy figure with gun under his arm.

On such a dark night as the present there was no temptation for such prowlers to be abroad. It could not, therefore, be a poacher who was lying recumbent under the fence as David and Agnes passed in, who rose from his crouching attitude and noisely followed them, who kept at a little distance behind them all the way to the cottage, who waited under the shadow of a neighbouring tree till Agnes had gone inside, who watched David Ramsay to his own room near the stables, then darted away with the swiftness of a deer to the same entrance gate, emerged on the highway, and gave a low peculiar whistle, which in the silence could be heard a considerable distance off. No, this was not a poacher; but a young swiftfooted gipsy, who had been deputed to watch the homecoming of Agnes, and give intimation of her arrival at the cottage to a band of six men of his tribe, who were waiting for his signal in the recess of a fir plantation at the edge of the moor.

Unsuspicious of the evil, Agnes had bidden good-night to David Ramsay at the little gate of the garden, where they parted. The gardener sometimes on these occasions went inside and spent and hour in profitable converse with the widow and her daughter, and this night Agnes gave him a cordial invitation to do so. David's inclination was all in favour of accepting it—an evening at the cottage was among the sweetest joys of his life. But on the present occasion he had to forgo the pleasure, for Mr. Bishop had requested him to write out a list of the garden furnishings for inspection on the morrow, and as this would occupy him till late, David was obliged to bid Agnes good-night at the gate, and after receiving her grateful thanks for his valuable escort, went away to his abode, dreaming not that a terrible danger was approaching the dear girl whose safety he would have given his life to secure.

The evening meal was ready when Agnes entered, and while partaking of it she told her mother of her encounter on the moor with the gipsy woman. Mrs. Borland was naturally a little alarmed by the recital. Gipsies were considered dangerous people to meet in lonely places, and if such lawless characters had begun to frequent Marston Moor it would be unsafe to traverse it alone. Thus her alarm took only a general direction. She, no more than David Ramsay or Agnes herself, attached any personal importance to the presence of Flora Marshall or the words she had spoken, and she reprobated in equally strong terms the blasphemous claim of those people to be able to read the future or foretell what was to happen to individuals. She supposed Flora Marshall had accosted Agnes to obtain money from her by working on her fear or her credulity, and Agnes, having so sternly refused to countenance the imposture, was no doubt the cause of the woman's anger and meaningless threats. Thus all being agreed in attaching no particular significance to the interview, the matter quietly dropped from the thoughts and conversation of Mrs. Borland and her child, who spent the winter evening as they were in the habit of doing, in sewing and kitting and other useful work—talking meanwhile of those things which constituted the joys and sorrows of their simple lives, the progress of the school, the news current in the fishing village, but above all and most frequently, of that which was near their hearts, the unknown fate of Orwell Bruce. Miss Elliot and her mother were the only persons to whom Agnes could unbosom herself on this sad subject—from whom she could receive sympathy and consolation—the last indeed being very small, for neither Miss Elliot nor Mrs. Borland was now able to cherish any hope of Orwell being alive.

Agnes did not at once tell her mother what she had learned from David Ramsay, that the Grange was to be sold, for she knew how the intelligence would grieve her, involving as it did their leaving the cottage and going to a new home, which for them would have no sweet associations, no sacred memory. For some minutes after the information was communicated Mrs. Borland shed bitter tears in view of this change, but presently she dried her eyes and piously murmured, "It is God's will, Agnes, and we must submit. These trials of earth are meant to wean our affections from this world and fix them on that which is spiritual and eternal. There will be no flittings in Heaven, dear, for there we are told the redeemed 'shall go no more out.' Bring the book, Agnes, and read that beautiful chapter in John, which tells of the House of many mansions."

"Yes, mother," returned Agnes, rising with alacrity to make all ready for their evening worship—that holy exercise which never failed to fill their hearts with the peace which passeth understanding, and refresh their souls with joys which earth cannot bestow.

Agnes had just begun to read the chapter her mother wished, had just uttered its first precious sentence, "Let not your heart be troubled," when they heard the latch of the outer door quietly lifted. As the door had not been otherwise fastened it was opened without difficulty, and some one entered.

Mrs. Borland and Agnes gazed at each other in wonder and surprise. It was rare that any one came to visit them, and never at such a late hour. Could it be David Ramsy? No, these shuffling steps in the passage as of a stranger grouping the way were not his, nor his the hand that was now fumbling at the inner door leading to the kitchen where they sat. Besides, there were more than one person there, as they could understand by the rustling against the walls of the passage and sounds of suppressed whispering.

In vague alarm the inmates rose simultaneously and gazed at the door, which began to open, slowly at first, then it was suddenly thrown wide, and a number of wild, swarthy, strangely dressed men burst in upon them.

"There's the girl; seize her at once," cried the foremost, in a rough voice, and as he spoke he and two of the others pounced on Agnes, and having got her in their strong grasp began to drag her away.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Sold by all druggists.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain pawn institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. The Tories have a queer idea of maintaining the privilges and dignities of Parliament. On Thursday night J. A. Macdonnell, the U. E. Club flunkey, was an honored guest of Speaker Blanchet, and afterwards appeared in the Speaker's gallery in the Commons with his eye-glass and swallow tail coat.

The speech made by Mr. Blake on the Supreme Court on Thursday night was the finest he has made this session. It was rather an unusual sight to see an amendment moved by him carried on a vote of 148 to 29.

Dublin has the highest death rate of 23 cities of Great Britain.

Mr. Wharton Baker, ot Philadelphia, has written an open letter to Hon. George Brown, Toronto, on the subject of Canadian and U. S. trade relationships. After asserting that the recent tariff legislation of the Dominion Government has militated decidedly against the prospects of a reciprocity treaty, the writer contends that reciprocity after all will not meet the wants of both countries.

The Winnipeg Free Press takes what is probably the correct view of the Ontario Boundary question when it says that "evidently Sir John is not in a hurry to forgive the people of Ontario for sending him all the way to British Columbia for a constituency. Perhaps, also, the Liberal victory of last June still rankles in his mind."

The following scene is declared to have occurred on the North Shore railway. Two parties are on board, en route for the opening of the session at Ottawa. One of them belongs to the numerous class of aspirants for sessional work; the other is * * * well; who he is will be apparent from the sequel: The unknown (loquitur)—Hallo! How do you do? Going up for the session? You remember me, I dare say? Sessional clerk (in expectation)—Oh! yes recollect your face quite well. You are a messenger, if I am not mistaken; are you not? The unknown (confurore)—I, a messenger! No, sir! You are mistaken; I am the member of * * * * ! Tableau!

A young lady called on one of our doctors the other day to prescribe for a rush of blood to the head. While the M. D. was feeling her pulse she said, with a smile: "I have been taking so many things for it, doctor. Why, I have taken Brandreth's pills, Parr's pills, Ayer's pills and sarsaparilla, Janes' expectorant, Sherman's lozengers and—" "Good heavens!" exclaimed the doctor, "all those do your complaint no good!" "No! Then what shall I take?" "Take!" exclaimed the doctors, "Why, madam, take off your corsets!"

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

THE LAST OF THE "RESOLUTE."—Notice has been given of a gracious act about to be performed by Queen Victoria towards the Government of the United States. It seems that in 1853 the frigate Resolute was one of a fleet sent out by England in search of Sir John Franklin. Running short of provisions, her crew abandoned her in Baffin's Bay and took to their sledges. She was found by some Connecticut whalers nearly a thousand miles from the place where she was deserted, frozen solid in the ice. They rescued her and brought her home; the United States Government bought her for $30,000, fitted her up completely, manned her and sent her to England to be delivered to the Queen as a token of national good-will and personal respect to her as a woman. Her Majesty and Prince Albert received the gift in person, the occasion was made as marked and public as possible, and a picture of the presentation was ordered for the private gallery at Windsor. Now that the old ship is to be destroyed, Her Majesty proposes to return the little courtesy. A dinner set is to be made from the timbers and presented to the Government of the United States.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundredth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission to JOS. S. FISHER, president; W. I. P. INGRAHAM, vice-president; W. PAINE, M. D.; C. S. GAUNTT, M. D.; H. J. DOUCET, M. D.; R. H. KLINE, M. D.; J. R. HOLCOMB, M. D.; N. R. LYNCH, M. D., and M. R. O'CONNELL, M. D., faculty of the Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery; also the faculty of the American University of Philadelphia; also Hon. P. A. BISSELL, M. D., President of the National Medical Association.

Address Dr. W. H. PARKER, No. 4 Bulfinch street, Boston, Mass. The author may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience. MTh

A NOTABLE EVENT!

Mrs. S. A. ALLEN'S

World's Hair Restorer

IS PERFECTION!

A NOBLE RECORD THROUGH NEAR HALF A CENTURY.

Established 1832. Improved 1879

The nature of the great improvement is its wonderful life-giving properties to faided or falling hair, and MORE QUICKLY CHANGING GRAY OR WHITE HAIR to its natural youthful COLOR and BEAUTY.

IT IS NOT A DYE.

It requires only a few applications to restore gray hair to its youthful color and lustrous beauty, and induce luxuriant growth, and its occasional use is all that is needed to preserve it in the highest perfection and beauty. DANDRUFF is quickly and permanently removed.

Sold by all Druggists, at $1.25 per Bottle.

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.

During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.

I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.

Also a case of lovely new prints.

Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.

In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

JOHN ROCHE.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

TUESDAY EVENING, MARCH 2, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

London Truth hears that Queen Victoria will create Mr. Theodore Martin a K. C. B. in acknowledgment of the manner in which he has performed the task of writing the Prince Consort's "Life."

Two services were held in Westminster Abbey on Sunday, in aid of the Irish Relief. The proceeds amounted to £111.

Several moulders who were employed by the contractors of the Tay bridge testified that the quality of the iron used for the castings was very inferior. The columns were frequently defective, of unequal thickness, cracked and scabbed. The cracks and holes were filled with putty or cement and painted over.

The Vatican is dissatisfied with the conduct of the Brazilian Government, and indisposed to approve of the ecclesiastic proposed by the latter for the Bishopric of Olinda. If the Government persists it is probable the diplomatic relations will be broken off.

Burglary at Lambton Mills.

LAMBTON MILLS, Ont., March 2.—Messrs. P. & F. A. Howland's grocery store was broken into last night about half-past nine o'clock. The money that was in the drawer, a small sum, was taken, and goods to the value of $150. No clue as to burglars. They got in through a back window by breaking the sash.

Relief for Ireland.

PETERBORO, March 2.—The following telegram was sent to Dublin Castle this morning. To Duchess of Marlborough, Dublin Castle, Ireland. Please draw on me for two hundred pounds sterling, contribution of town and county of Peterboro, towards your fund for the Irish relief. Signed John Lundy, Mayor. By the kindness of Mr. Dwight, Superintendent, Telegraph Co., the above message was cabled free from charge.

FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR CAMPBELLSVILLE.—A very sad accident happened about two miles from the village of Campbellsville, township of Nassagaweya, on Friday evening last, whereby Mr. John Myers, well known throughout the township of Beverly, met his death. Mr. Myers had been to Campbellsville for the purpose of having his horses shod, and was returning home in the evening when a dog sprang out at his horses. This started the team, and as there was no box on the waggon, Mr Myers sitting on a board, he was soon thrown off. Immediately upon the unfortunate man being thrown off the horses wheeled round and ran back to the village. This of course attracted attention, and search was at once made for Mr. Myers. He was found at the spot where the accident occurred, perfectly insensible, but he soon rallied, and it was hoped that his injuries were not serious. He was impressed himself, however, with the belief that his injuries were fatal; and on Tuesday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, his belief was verified by his death. His injuries were altogether internal, only a few bruises being apparent. He was about 55 years of age, and was respected among his friends and acquintances.—Galt Reporter.

Mr. Todd's new constitutional work has been issued, and does credit to the Dominion Librarian. Among the subjects dealt with at length is the dismissal of Lieut.-Governor Letellier. Mr. Todd contends that the Governor in Council has the right to dismiss a Lieut.-Governor, but the power should not be exercised without grave cause and never on party grounds. The Government should have taken the initiative in the dismissal, and not the House of Commons and the Senate, the resolutions passed by which he declares to be vague. The dismissal is also held to be an interference with provincial rights. Coming from a man like Mr. Todd this condemnation of Sir John will not prove palatable to the Tories.

Dean Stanley it seems is still determined to put up the statue of the Prince Imperial in Westminster Abbey. Only two journals, the Daily Telegraph and the Morning Post, sustain him. The others of every shade attack him. All admit that Stanley is yielding to Court influence. The Dean's attempt to denounce Carlyle's signature as a forgery is confuted by a letter from Carlyle's niece, saying that the signature was appended to the memorial by her at Carlyle's request. Mr. Gladstone, in a published letter, announce his hostility to the project. The agitation against the statue continues.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, March 1.

The Bill to prevent Public School Inspectors from taking part in political elections otherwise than by voting was read a second time on motion by Mr. Hay. In connection with it came up the whole question of civil servants who take part in election contests, the feeling of the House, being beyond all doubt, in favour of their being compelled to choose between being public servants on the one hand and active politicians on the other. The Bill was referred to a Committee.

Mr. Mowat, in moving the second reading of a Bill respecting the administration of justice in the new territory, explained that its enactment was rendered necessary as a precautionary measure in the event of the Act of last session being ultimately disallowed. That Act was objected to (1) because it was held to assume the validity of the award, and (2) because it was held to authorize the appointment of magistrates who were practically judges, and the appointment of whom should rest with the Dominion Government.

Mr. Pardee announced that he would not move the resolution of which he had given notice respecting Government aid to railways.

Mr. Meredith charged the Government with placing themselves in a humiliating position on the question. and Messrs. Sinclair and Hunter expressed their regret that the Government had not seen fit to come to the rescue of municipalities which had not merely voted, but spent their own money in the work of construction.

The debate was continued up to recess, after which the Speaker put a stop to it on the ground of its regularity, there being no motion before the House.

The rest of the evening session was taken up with the consideration of Mr. Wood's Municipal Bill, which was passed through Committee.

Anderson's auction sale of dry goods will be continued on Wednesday night, at half-past seven o'clock, when some choice lines will be offered. d3

Local News.

GILCHRIST & HUME, of Galt, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Hume will carry on the business under the same name and style.

FOR MANITOBA.—Mr. Barclay, a brother of Mr. James Barclay, recently from Scotland, with his family, and a party of eight persons from Eramosa, left by the Great Western Railway this afternoon for Manitoba, where they propose settling.

THE ARMOURY.—The arms and accoutrements of No. 2 Company, Wellington Rifles, have been neatly arranged in a small storeroom in the drill shed. The rifles are numbered, and placed perpendicularly around the walls, above them being the bayonets, while on shelves fixed higher up are the knapsacks, &c. It is proposed to carpet the room and give it a more orderly appearance than it has at present.

LIQUOR CASE.—In referring to the case of Mrs. Golden yesterday, it was stated that she was charged with selling liquor without a license. The charge against her is for selling liquor to an Indian. She appeared at Police Court to-day, but owing to the absence of a witness who has kept out of the way since the charge was laid, the case was adjourned for a month.

THE CARNIVAL.—The prospects are good so far for the carnival, for the benefit of Mr. A. Maddaugh, the gentlemanly caretaker of the rink, on Thursday evening. A large number of persons intend going in costume, and this, together with the fact that the Artillery Band will again be present, will prove sufficient inducement to insure a good attendance of spectators.

LECTURE ON JAPAN.—On Thursday evening, March 11th, the Rev. Geo. Cochran, late missionary in Japan, will deliver a lecture in the Dublin Street Methodist Church, on Japan and the Japanese character and customs. In addition to the lecture he will have a large number of maps and curiosities, illustrative of the Japanese character. From the well known ability of Mr. Cochran as a speaker, this lecture promises to be one of no ordinary character, and will be well worth hearing.

THE citizens of Guelph will be pleased to learn that the partnership between Jones & Guthrie is to be renewed, Mr. Guthrie having given up his intention of leaving Guelph, and as the partnership agreement just expired has been of such a satisfactory nature, they have concluded to renew it, and will carry on the business at their old stand, under the name of Jones & Guthrie as before. The firm have left for the markets to purchase their spring stock, and their customers may expect to see a large stock of new goods to choose from in a few days.

NOTES ABOUT THE ICE HARVEST.—A St. Catharines man with a large staff of men has commenced cutting ice on Goldie's dam for shipment to St. Catharines. Mayor Sleeman has a large gang of men cutting on the river above his brewery. The ice there is much thicker than on any other part of the river, measuring about eleven inches through. It is understood that ice is being taken from Puslinch lake and shipped to Philadelphia. Mr. John Hewer disposed of his ice to Mayor Sleeman and Mr. F. P. Ellis, the former, taking about 250 tons, and the latter in the neighbourhood of 900 tons. Mr. Hewer realized about $1,200 on the sale.

A.O.U.W.—Last night Royal Lodge, No. 60, of this Order, was finally organized and placed on a working footing by D. G. M. Pennington, of St. Thomas, who has been successful in securing the active interests of some of our most prominent citizens in the noble Order. The following gentlemen were elected to serve as officers of the Lodge:—

W. Macgregor, M. D. P. M. W.
Fred B. Skinner, M. W.
W. J. McElroy, Foreman.
D. Thomson, Overseer.
J. Garbrett, Recorder.
W. H. Husband, Financier.
Benjamin Fairley, Receiver.
John Thompson, Guide.
J. A. Smith, Inner Watchman.
John Hayward, Outer Watchman.
Fred B. Skinner, } Trustees.
James Hewer, }
John Hall, }

The Order is to be congratulated on obtaining such a start in Guelph, both in the number and quality of its membership. Twenty-five were duly and fully initiated into the Order, and there are 31 members on its charter list. The next Lodge will be organized, we understand, in Galt.

THE WATER WORKS.—A private test of the water works was made yesterday by the Engineer and Water Commissioners. In the morning one of the engines was started and the branch opened leading up Queen street. About twelve o'clock one of the hydrants near the General Hospital was opened and a stream was thrown to a distance of 63 feet from the hydrant. It was regarded with great satisfaction that at one of the highest points in the city a stream could be thrown such a distance through a hydrant two and a half inches in diameter. Had an ordinary nozzle used on the fire hose been attached a much better stream could have been thrown. In the afternoon the different branches of the works were opened and the water allowed to pass through all the pipes. The engineer and Chief of the fire department opened most of the hydrants and were thoroughly satisfied with the test. Two leakages were discovered in the pipes, one at the Neeve street railway crossing and another at the corner of Liverpool and Dublin streets. Both were in consequence of the workmen having forgotten to place the caps over the openings of the tee pipes These matters were attended to last night, and it is expected that the trials to-day will be satisfactory. The hose is to be attached to different hydrants this afternoon to ascertain what kind of a stream may be thrown.

DEATH OF A CENTENARIAN.—Mrs. James, of Brampton, of whom reference was made in last Thursday's MERCURY, died on Sunday, at the age of 100 years and five days. She celebrated her 100th birthday on Wednesday last by holding a reception.

A NOVEL BET.—A Dutch citizen put his stomach to a severe test last night for the honor of winning a wager. He bet a friend he could eat five boxes of sardines in a given time. The agreement was that whoever lost the bet was to pay for the sardines. The Dutchman succeeded, but the sardines affected him in such a way that he sooner would have lost the wager.

ST. JAMES'S WARD.—The Council on Monday night accepted Mr. Grange's resignation as a representative for this Ward. We have heard Mr. John Anderson, of the Woollen Factory more than once spoken of as one of the best men in the Ward to fill the vacancy. No better choice could be made. Mr. Anderson is an old resident of the Ward, and would make a most efficient and reliable representative.

It is proposed to erect Central Exhibition buildings in Collingwood at a cost of $4,000 or $5,000.

Anniversary Tea Meeting.

The anniveasary tea meeting of the Norfolk street Methodist Church took place on Monday evening, and was largely attended. The Young People's Aid Society had the matter in hand, and well did they carry out the programme. Two large tables, each capable of seating about fifty persons, were arranged in the centre of the spacious basement, and well laden with the choicest of eatables. The tables were filled several times, and after all had partaken, the room was made ready for the intellectual portion of the programme. The meeting was then called to order by the pastor, Rev. W. Williams, who discharged the duties in the most felicitous manner. The choir gave an anthemn in their usual capital style, which was followed by prayer by the pastor. After a pleasing address from the chairman, four young men from the College gave a piece of music, the rendering of which gave such satisfaction that they were forced to repeat it. Master W. Bucham gave a recitation in a very creditable manner. Miss Crowe followed with a song, in good taste. Rev. Mr. Maxwell was called on for an address, but owing to a severe cold and hoarseness he was unable to comply, but promised two or three on some future occasion. After another piece of music from the choir, Miss Keables favored the audience with a reading, which was well received. The Harrington Family then gave a quartette in such an excellent manner, that they were forced to respond to a hearty encore, by singing another fine piece of music. Dr. Wardrope then gave a short but pleasing address, and after the usual vote of thanks the proceedings closed in the usual way. The Young People's Aid Society have reason to congratulate themselves upon the grand success that attended their efforts on behalf of the interests of the church, while those that were present, could not but be well pleased with the entertainment provided.

A Village Fired by Incendiaries.

Bergen, in Genessee county, N. Y., a village of seven hundred inhabitants, situated on the Buffalo division of the Central and Hudson Railway, about 20 miles west of Rochester, was fired in three places simultaneously by the explosion of a train of gunpowder on Monday morning. The explosion of the incendiary's train occurred between one and two in the morning, and soon the whole village was aroused. The entire business portion of the village was in flames. Bergen has no fire department, and a telegram reached Rochester at 3.15 asking for a steamer and firemen to save the property from flames if possible. Just as they were steaming out word came that they need not go, for they were too late, and all the buildings within reach of the fire were burned to the ground and the contents consumed. The loss will probably reach if it does not exceed, $100,000. The people are almost wild with rage, and few would hesitate to wreak summary vengeance upon the perpetrators of the deed if discovered. The conflagration resulted in the destruction of thirty-one buildings and their contents.

A Landslide in British Columbia.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Feb. 18.—The Fraser River, at a place called Maple Ridge, some twelve miles from the city, is about a quarter of a mile wide. The south bank is not far from ten feet high. The north bank rose above the water over a hundred feet. The face of the bank had a ragged look, small land slides having occurred from time to time. Trees varying from sixty feet in height to mere shrubs grew on the table land almost to the edge of the bank.

On a recent afternoon George Howison, while working on his farm, heard a noise like that produced by a gale striking a cluster of trees, and saw acres of land covered with the growth of trees disappearing in the river. About half a dozen acres were taken off Justus Howison's farm by the land slide in ten minutes. The river, which was about fifty feet deep at the point, swallowed up the vast quantity of earth that went into it, but was rendered more shallow, and the width of the channel was reduced to one eighth of a mile. When the bank was submerged, a wave ten feet deep was thrown up on the opposite bank, which reached inland for fifteen miles over the level country, destroying buildings, uprooting trees and scattering the fences. The scene is described as having been terrific. William Edge, who lived on the bank from which the slide took place, was working on the opposite side of the river. He was caught by the wave and swept against trees and other obstacles and finally cast up on a heap of debris. When found by his son he was unconscious, and died four days later.

License Commissioners.

The Government have appointed the following License Commissioners:—

South Wellington—Jas. Goldie, Andrew Lemon and John Murphy.

Centre Wellington—James Cattanach, Charles McMillan and Charles Allan.

West Wellington—Thomas Harcourt, John McLaren and Wm. Sturtridge.

South Waterloo—Isaac Clemens, Philip Erbach and John Cavers.

North Waterloo—L. Wideman, John Hayes and James Potter.

Halton—John R. Barber, G. Smith and Henry Williams.

A VALUABLE COW.—About a year and a half ago, Mr. M. Burgess, of Woodstock, bought a Jersey heifer in Pennsylvania. He has raised two calves from her and has now a herd of four pure Jerseys. To give an idea of the valuable qualities of this breed of cattle for dairy purposes Mr. B. one day last week saved one days' milk from his cow for the purpose of making butter, and the result was one pound and seven ounces of first-class butter, which for quality cannot be surpassed. The cow is not yet three years old.

A few days ago a return was asked for by Mr. Casey, giving the names of all persons connected with the Canada Pacific Railway staff as engineers and field hands. An order was sent to the proper department the other day to prepare the return. A remarkable coincidence is that all those not employed on the permanent engineering staff receive notice that their services are dispensed with. Those who remain may be numbered on the digits of a man's hand.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Irish Relief Question Again Considered and the Grant Defeated.

The City Council met on Monday evening; present, Mayor Sleeman, Ald. Lamprey, Grange, McMillan, Doran, Chadwick, Hall, Robertson, Coffee, Stevenson, Fairbank, Gowdy, Hewer, Tyson, Bruce.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Ald. Grange's resignation as member for St. James' Ward was read.

A communication from the Property Owners Association was read.

A communication from James Butler, asking remission of taxes, was read.

The South Wellington Agricultural Society presented a statement regarding the expense in connection with the Vice-Regal visit, and asked the council to relieve the Society of an unpaid balance of $134.

PROPERTY OWNERS ASSOCIATION.

Mr. David Stirton explained that it was the desire of the Property Owners Association that the Council should appoint a committee to confer with them regarding the important interests of the city. The object of the Association was not to dictate to the Council, but to get not only the Council but all the citizens, alive to the importance of doing something to forward the interests of the city by endeavoring to induce persons with enterprise and capital to locate here.

Mr. John M. Bond said the Association desired to consider with the Council the best mode of inducing manufacturers to come here, whether by reduction of taxes free water rates, or in other ways. He would like to see a committee of the Council appointed to talk over the matter.

PETITIONS.

Ald. Hart—From John R. Hood and the other lessees of market stalls, asking for a reduction of rent.

Ald. Chadwick—From A. W. Fiddler, and thirty-four others, asking for a crossing on Neeve street.

Ald. Lamprey—From A. McDonald and fifteen others, asking that Charles street be widened.

Ald. Lamprey—From W. C. Keough, for a sidewalk on the south side of Waterloo Avenue.

Ald. Lamprey—From Dennis Bunyan, asking for employment or relief.

Ald. Hewer—From Jonas Coxhead and fifteen others, asking for a sidewalk on the Elora Road.

Ald. Coffee—From the Separate School asking the use of the Council Chamber to hold Board meetings.

Ald. Coffee—From Alex. Warner and 18 others, for crossings at the junction of Neeve street and York Road, and Neeve and Richardson streets.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Chadwick, chairman, reported recommending as follows:—That the tender of R. Stewart for pine lumber at $11.25 for sidewalks be accepted; that the tender of Alonzo Birger be accepted for hemlock at $7.90, and cedar at $8.45; and of J. M. Bond & Co., for nails, at $3.75 be accepted; that McIntosh & Wanless be paid $12.50 in full of work at Pipe's bridge; that the proposition of Goodman & Crosslow for flagging a portion of Wyndham street be left over for further consideration; that all applications for sidewalks be left over till the general report be brought down; that the probable cost of an iron and wooden bridge for Heffernan street be ascertained; that the committee be allowed to secure another 100 cords of stone for $104.75 at which amount 100 cords had already been accepted; that a by-law for naming certain streets, squares, etc., be introduced and that a list of all such streets in the city be filed in the offices of the City Clerk and Registrar, and that all parties making new surveys shall search the same before naming any street, so as to avoid duplication in names. Expenditure to date $141.65.

The report was adopted.

POLICE.

Ald. Hall presented a report recommending the payment of T. J. Day's account, $1.65. Action on the communication of T. W. Saunders and Police Sergeant Docley was recommended to be deferred.

The report was adopted.

PARKS AND TREES.

Ald. Fairbank, chairman, reported, recommending that a man be engaged to take charge of the exhibition ground, parks and boulevards, under the supervision of the Committee; that the clerk be authorized to advertise for applicants to live in the house at the exhibition grounds, rent free, and to state what other salary may be required and adopted.

The report was adopted.

MARKETS.

Ald. Hart, chairman, presented a report as follows:—The payment of the accounts of Wm. Hartley for $7.50; Wm. Parkinson, $17.50; John Moffat, $12.60; that the account of James Shepherd be laid over for consideration. The report stated that the Committee had under consideration the propriety of abolishing all restriction as to the time at which hucksters and dealers may purchase on the market. The matter of providing additional means of egress from the City Hall in case of fire or panic and the constructing of lavatories in the market buildings, are also under consideration. The Committee asked for $500 to meet current expenses.

The report was adopted.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

The Mayor read the Auditor's report, stating that they had audited the books of the Treasurer, and found them correct.

The report was received.

THE DOG BY-LAW.

Ald. McMillan introduced a by-law for licensing all dogs in the city and abolishing the present system of taxing. The by-law provides for a system of checking dogs when the license fee is paid on them.

THE IRISH RELIEF GRANT.

Ald. McMillan and Lamprey moved that in accordance with the desire of a public meeting the sum of $500 be granted in aid of the Irish distress.

The Mayor pointed out that the motion was out of order. According to the rules the Council had no right to rescind a decision passed at a previous meeting without previous notice of motion.

Ald. Chadwick pointed out that he considered by passing this motion the Council would not be rescinding their former motion, as this was a grant asked at a different meeting, and was an entirely separate motion.

Ald. McMillan withdrew his resolution and moved that $499 be granted for the Irish relief in compliance with a resolution adopted at a general meeting of citizens on the 16th ult.

Ald. Robertson was opposed to sending money, but was favourable to sending provisions if anything was sent to Ireland.

Ald. Chadwick moved to the effect that $499 worth of provisions be sent to the Lord Mayor of Dublin for distribution among the distressed people.

Ald. Hart thought that technically the Council had no right either to send money or provisions, but the rule had before been broken through for a good object, and it might be broken through with impunity in this case.

Ald. Chadwick wanted the Council to be unanimous.

Ald. Bruce said there was a good deal of talk about the second public meeting. He held that the requisition for the meeting had been signed by those who were not qualified, that this matter had been sprung upon the Council and was an insult to them. He would be willing to aid the Irish distressed people, but he was not willing that the Council, should be forced to give in this way. The way to raise funds was to collect through the city, but not one cent would he vote for at the Council Board.

Ald. Tyson believed the less said about the matter the better. He voted against the grant before, and would do so again.

Ald. Hewer had voted against the grant. The Relief Committee of the Council could use every cent the Council was able to give to aid distressed people in our own city.

Ald. Gowdy was of the same opinion as at last meeting. From the handsome way in which his name was handled at the meeting in the City Hall they could scarcely expect that his opinion would be changed. He was not influenced by the remarks with reference to him, made at the meeting, and thanked the speaker heartily. The more such characters spoke of him publicly in the same way, the better. His chances for the Mayoralty for next year were after what had been said.

Ald. Coffee was favourable to making a grant in preference to raising by subscription, because the former way was the most equitable. He did not think the matter had been forced upon the Council, and would like to see the motion carried.

Ald. Stevenson thought it would be impolitic to pass a grant on which the citizens were so much divided in opinion. Nearly $900 was obtained by subscription for the Lancashire relief fund, and he doubted not they could raise a good sum for the relief of Ireland by subscription now. Times were hard and the Council should exercise care in making grants. The shape the business of the last public meeting took looked very much like trying to compel the city to make a grant.

On motion of Ald. Tyson and Hart, the Council went into Committee to farther consider the question.

Ald. Gowdy in the chair.

Ald. Tyson spoke at some length against the grant. He had been informed that there was great distress which needed relieving not so far distant as Ireland. He referred to Muskoka, where he had heard that some of the inhabitants were not properly clad.

Ald. Hart appealed to the Council in favor of the grant.. He portrayed the distress that must exist in a famine stricken district, and contrasted it with the mere poverty which might prevail, to a certain extent in Guelph, and argued that those opposing the grant must do so without realizing the extreme destitution which we have every reason to believe prevails amongst our fellow subjects in Ireland.

Ald. Stevenson thought the constituents of the last speaker should be proud of their representative for casting a slur on the Council, by saying that they were hard hearted. They did not lack sympathy for the Irish sufferers, and it was not the fact of sending aid to them, with which they were dealing, but the manner of sending it.

Ald. Hart had meant to cast no reflection on the Council.

The Mayor's opinion was unchanged since the last time the grant was considered. A good deal had been said about his refusal to call a second public meeting on the requisition presented to him. He had stood in an awkward position, but had been prepared to face it and was prepared to face it still. The requisition had been brought to him with the same heading as that presented for the previous meeting. He asked to have the heading changed, which was positively refused and he as positively refused to call the meeting. He felt that it was an insult to the Council over which he presided, and as the head and protector of the Council he resisted it. It was an effort to seek to bulldose the Council. He did not think it was right for any member of the Council to leave the Council meeting and go to a public meeting to make popularity at his expense.

Ald. Chadwick regretted that the matter had taken its present shape and the way in which the last speaker had referred to him. Out of courtesy to the meeting in the City Hall, he had moved the adjournment of the Council before he left to attend the meeting, over which he had been asked to preside. He had no idea that by so doing he was making popularity at the last speaker's expense. He was sorry the matter had been brought to a personal issue, for it should have been one of charity. He wanted to aid Ireland because it was a part of Britain, and because the people were in want. It had been said the matter was sprung upon the Council, but he could not understand in what way.

Ald. Robertson found that nothing like half the money raised for the Irish relief had been expended. He was willing to give his signature to a subscription list when he found that the money raised had been spent.

Ald. Bruce said all were agreed in sending money to Ireland, the objection was the method of raising it by taxation. The main speaker at the last public meeting was a man who was here to-day and away to-morrow, and he was not half so good a citizen as those he had taken on himself to malign by calling them ungentlemanly names.

Ald. Coffee referred to the Government grants made for the Irish sufferers, and thought the action of the Dominion and Ontario Parliaments was sufficient evidence that the Irish were in want of assistance.

Ald. McMillan advocated a grant from the Council, because that would be the most equitable way of raising the money.

The resolution for the grant was then put and lost on the following vote.

Yeas—Ald. McMillan, Hart, Doran, Chadwick, Coffee, Lamprey and Grange—7.

Nays—Ald Stevenson, Robertson, Hall, Fairbank, Hewer, Tyson, Bruce, Gowdy and Sleeman.—9.

The committee rose and in Council

Ald. Chadwick and Coffee moved in amendment that the Mayor be authorized and instructed to procure a supply of flour for $500 and forward the same to the Lord Mayor of Dublin for distribution.

The amendment was lost on the same vote as the resolution.

ALD. GRANGE'S RESIGNATION.

Ald. Chadwick and Tyson moved that Ald. Grange's resignation be accepted, and that the Mayor be instructed to issue a writ for a new election in St. James Ward. Carried.

FOSTERING INDUSTRIES,

Ald. McMillan and Chadwick moved that Ald. Hall, Gowdy, Robertson, Hart, Bruce and the Mayor be a Special Committee to consider the best means for advancing the interests of the city by encouraging manufactories in the city. Carried.

The Council adjourned at 10:40 p. m.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

LONDON, March 1.—The preliminary trial of the alleged murderers of the Donnellys was this morning resumed at the Court House before Squires Peters and Fisher. The excitement over the case still runs high, although the attendance of spectators has considerably fallen off. The prisoners were brought up from the cells at ten o'clock, and took their places in the jury box. Their confinement and the anxiety arising from their position appear to be telling on them, and they now seem to realize the magnitude of the crime with which they stand charged.

Wm. Donnelly was recalled, and was cross questioned for a short time.

Robt. Ross who had called once or twice at Kennedy's, referred to the threats Kennedy made about shooting Wm. Donnelly if he got the chance.

Henry Phair, the detective, gave evidence about the talk he had with Ryder, when he arrested him, which was mainly about the Vigilance Committee.

Chief of Police Williams was next examined, and gave an account of the different arrests made. About his conversation with the boy Connor, he said :—I saw him at his father's house ; I asked him which of the Ryders he saw, as we had arrested two or three Ryders, and I didn't know which one it was ; he told me it was Tom Ryder, and described him as having a white moustache and whiskers about the chin, and said he wore a cap with a peak ; I found out that we had not Tom, and so a warrant was issued for his arrest ; the next time I saw him was on the following Monday ; Bill Donnelly was with me ; that was the first time I heard the whole circumstances, which I made a note of. Witness here repeated the story of the little boy as he told it himself—how that the crowd broke into the house and handcuffed Tom and arrested the old man; how that they beat Tom with clubs outside and then carried his body into the front room ; how that he heard the old woman screaming in the kitchen ; how that the girl Bridget ran up-stairs, where she was beaten to death ; how that he recognized Jim Carroll, Tom Ryder and John Purtell among the crowd, and how that he made his escape from the burning building to Whalen's. The witness here gave an account of his visit to Thompson's house. This closed the direct examination. The Court adjourned till Thursday next.

The Inquest Resumed.

LUCAN, March 2, 9:45 a. m.—Preparations are fast going forward for the opening of the investigation this morning. The Crown Attorney and Mr. McMahon, counsel for the defence, arrived here at 8:30 this morning, and the prisoners, who are momentarily expected, are six in number, viz :—Jas. Carroll, John Kennedy, John Purtell, Martin McLaughlin, Patrick Ryder, jr., and Thos Ryder. The investigation continues to be held in the council chamber instead of being adjourned to the town hall, as was anticipated, but the public, all except those immediately interested and the reporters, will be excluded owing to want of space for the large crowd in attendance. The coroner took his seat at 10:05 a. m., and the inquest resumed, as per adojourned. The County Attorney then read over the cross-examination of the boy Johnny Connor, as taken in the city of London, it being agreed by the Crown Attorney and the Counsel for the defence that this mode of procedure would be adopted in order to save going over the whole evidence given in London, as it would be substantially the same.

Wm. Donnelly was then sworn and a copy of the evidence taken in London before the Magistrate's examination read over to him, the same as which has been published in the press already.

The prisoners arrived at the Court room at 13.30 a. m. precisely, having been delayed on the road by the breaking down of their conveyance. They were met at the Court room door by a large number of their friends, male and female, and cordially greeted by them.

At this time the Crown Atterney finished the reading of the first day's evidence given by Wm. Donnelly in London, and commenced to read his cross-examination.

Dr. Flock being duly sworn, on the evening of Wednesday the 4th, at the residence of Mr. O'Connor's in Lucan, I made a post mortem examination of the late John Donnelly ; there were no bruises or appearance of injuries to the head ; some blood on the right eyebrow ; when washed off there was no wound ; blood was also on the hands and face, but no wounds at the upper part of the right side of the chest in front and at the base of the neck ; adjoining these were numerous small holes or openings somewhat blackened by contusion about thirty in number, such as might be made by a gun shot.

Mr. Mackenzie has lost none of his diligence. This session, as in previous years, he is the first M. P. to put in an appearance in the morning, and is seldom out of his seat even for a few minutes.

A number of M. P.'s, instead of going to church, now visit places which are connected by telephone with the Dominion Methodist or some of the other city churches. This is what is called telephonically moral.

THE deposits in the Saving's Bank of the Post Office in this city, for February, amount to $2,589.

On Tuesday evening, some scoundrels effected an entrance into Grace Church, Milton, and left most of the cushioned seats, and even the communion table, in a most horrible mess.

The Ontario Government do not intend this session to proceed with the Superannuation Bill, which was intended to create a fund out of the contributions of the Civil servants themselves.

A subscription was taken up in the Roman Catholic Church at Walkerton and Brant, on Sunday, 21st February, in aid of the Irish Relief Fund. It realized something over one hundred dollars.

TUESDAY EVENING MARCH 2 1880

Aid to Railways.

The decision of the Ontario Government, not to make any grants to railways this session, will meet with the approval of a very large majority of the people of Ontario. Mr. Pardee announced that such was the decision of the Government on Monday, and we think that in doing so they have come to a just conclusion. Many schemes were presented to their consideration before and during the present session, and all sorts of legitimate and illegitimate pressure was brought to bear on the Government to influence them in favour of some particular enterprise. Some of these were deserving of support, and some were not. Some of them were designed to open up new tracks of country or give railway facilities to sections that did not possess these advantages ; while others were nothing but antagonistic and competing lines, which could only injure old and established roads without doing the new ones any good. Besides, the Province has already paid out a very large sum of money to aid railway enterprises, and with very few exceptions nearly every section of the Province has been to a greater or less extent accommodated. The Provincial Treasury could not stand this yearly depletion much longer, and sooner or later a stop had to be put to it. The Government have wisely done this in time, and by the withdrawal of the whole scheme have done it in the interests of the Province. The effect will be that all bogus schemes will be knocked on the head ; that bankrupt enterprises will not be for a time bolstered up with public money merely to prolong their existence. The time had come for the Government to tighten the purse strings. They have hitherto manifested extraordinary liberality, but that could not continue always, and now that they have declined to grant any bonuses this year, they cannot be accused of niggardliness, but rather a wholesome desire to conserve the public funds, and keep the surplus for future contingencies.

We think the position taken by Mr. Pardee, in announcing the policy of the Government, to be the right one. In moving for the withdrawal of the notice of resolutions, after explaining what the Government had done in the past, and how liberal their policy had been, he closed by saying:

"They found that public feeling was strong against future aid to railways in any shape at present. It was the duty of the Government to give effect to public opinion, and they would not be true to themselves or to the country if they did not do so. Finding public opinion as expressed to be so, they found themselves unable to aid those roads. Having come to this determination in reference to railways in course of construction, the Government felt it to be their duty to warn municipalities and railway promoters promoting new schemes and new roads so that they may be guided accordingly. He did not pretend to say for a moment that the Legislature would not be asked to grant aid to railways in the future. All he did say was that the public feeling was strong in the direction of withholding all aid to railways at present, and the Government felt it to be their bounden duty to give effect to that feeling. They had decided to have no railway policy this session, and he asked to withdraw the notice of resolutions."

IT will be good news to our cattle dealers and others to learn that instructions have been received by the United States Collector of Customs at Suspension Bridge, N. Y., to admit the importation of cattle from Canada.

BOTH the Dominion Parliament and the Ontario Legislature have passed congratulatory addresses to the Governor General and the Princess on their recent narrow escape by the overturning of their sleigh.

THE Ottawa Citizen gives currency to the report that the Ontario Government is to be represented before the Boundary Committee. It is exceedingly doubtful if Mr. Mowat will attach so much importance to the workings of an irresponsible body of this kind.

RIDEAU Hall seems to be an endless source of expense to the country. It seems to us that $150,000 is too much to spend in nine months. It does look a very big sum certainly and we hope some one in the Commons will ask for a bill of particulars.

As an evidence of the hard times in Nova Scotia, we have the case of a man who died of starvation in a gold mining and fishing settlement in Halifax county, and the settlement is vouched for that numbers of the fishing population have reduced their meals to one a day in order that their children may have enough.

MR. McCarthy's Bill constituting a Court of Railway Commissioners provides that there shall be three Commissioners who shall also appoint a Registrar. Any order or decision may be made a rule of the Exchequer Court, and an appeal from its decision shall be to the Supreme Court. The Commissioners are also given power to fix the maximum rate of tolls to be charged.

THE emigration from Ireland, consequent on the prevailing destitution, has already set in. We learn from the American papers that the advance guard of the coming host arrived at New York on Thursday, a good deal earlier in the season than usual, seven European steamers bringing over 1,800 emigrants, the great majority of whom were Irish.

A peculiar mode of rewarding their political friends has been inaugurated by the present Administration—viz., in the extensive purchase of so-called immigration literature. The phamphlets published by the late Administration have been cut up with the scissors, and with a few words added have been published as new pamphlets. The writers of the new pamphlets, of course, are paid for their services. Among them we find that Hon. Peter Mitchell has sold about 20,000 copies of his pamphlet on the North-West to the Department of Agriculture ; Mr. Acton C. Burrows, several thousand copies of a similar pamphlet ; W. B. Macdougall, 20,000 copies of his Guide to the North-West ; and now it is learned that Mr. Thomas White's "Chronicles by the Way" are to be extensively distributed by the Government. The Government have also purchased largely of pamphlets written on speculation. These pamphlets contain enough advertisements to defray three times the cost of the whole issue, and the purchase money paid by the Government is practically so much money taken from the public treasury without any equivalent being given.

The Ice Question Again.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Permit me once more to trouble you with a few lines in reply to Mr. Davidson's letter of Saturday last, which would have been unnecessary had he confined his remarks to the subject he first introduced, and exercised reasonable good manners, and not represented as mine statements, which were not made. Regarding personalities and a residence of thirty-five years, I hope the said writer will live in Guelph thirty-five years more, and I assure him that I will be the last to employ the public press recommending the corporation to take from him any private claim he may own ; reminding him also that it is possible a stranger of yesterday may enjoy as good a reputation as a resident of thirty-five years.

Mr. Editor, first let me notice the men of straw set up by the said writer for the purpose of knocking them down. He first represents me saying the mill made the town, which is not correct. The remarks on this point were that the dam had about as much to do in making the town as the town had in making the dam, and of course this man of straw he boldly slew.

The next one is about steam mills. I remarked that a mill without a dam or the power to run is of little value, and taxes on such a mill would not be much more than on a church. Certainly steam mills have the power to run, therefore could not be included, although many steam mills are known to the writer which are exempt from taxes.

The third one. I remarked that the dam added value to the mill property, and taxes were paid thereon in connection with the mill which would not have been paid if the dam had not been made. Over this statement the hero of straw waxes furious, declares no schedule ever appeared containing the dam as part of Mr. Allan's property to be assessed. Who ever heard such wretched reasoning ? Why, sir, there are many buildings such as stables, sheds, cooperage, root house, coal house and other buildings, which never appeared in an assessor's schedule and who will say they do not belong to the estate? And who will say the dam is not part of the estate also ?

The fourth one. He wishes the public to believe that for the first time a private claim to the ice on our rivers is made. Of such a claim I have heard nothing, and would say by all means go to the river for ice, where no private interests exist in costly dams. Provide all things honestly, even ice.

You will perceive from the above that four points have been raised, and demolished by Mr. Davidson, and it is generally the case, such tactics as the above are resorted to where a writer's position is weak, and no arguments or facts forthcoming.

The said writer as a historian wishes to set me right, and speaks of the laying out of the town plot and building several houses, as if this constituted a town. I have good authority for saying that the dam and mill were built long before Guelph became a separate municipality from the township. He also says it was not the only privilege in Guelph. Well, no one said it was, but it was the only grist mill I am told for some time, and I find his memory sadly at fault in saying the north gavel of the mill stands a few feet on the street, otherwise Mr. Cooper's last survey of the property was wrong. But one thing is clear, that during certain hours on a clear day the shadow of the mill does rest on the street.

Mr. Davidson claims for himself and others rights to the waters in the dam, but does not say what these are. If it is the privilege to use them for domestic purposes for either man or beast, or otherwise enjoy them to the full, then no one will say nay. But if he wants to sell these waters either frozen or otherwise, which are elevated and of value because a dam is there, he then claims what is only the right of the owner of the dam. Ice is an article of commerce, and where is the man possessing any degree of justice who will say that the owner of such works is not entitled to all the commercial advantages connected therewith ? I would here remind the writer of Saturday's letter that the same atmospheric changes which cause ice to form and grow, also produces such changes as causes wheat and fruit to form and grow, and fruit will not grow without planting the trees, neither will ice grow on a rapid river without building a dam. Why then should the owner claim one and not the other ?

When speaking of clearing the dam of stumps he says, to do so "Mr. Allan was asked to draw off the water." Why not draw off the water without asking ? This fact acknowledges the ownership. Another fact in the history of the dam, not mentioned is, the Grand Trunk Railway paying Mr. Allan a large sum for the privilege of placing their piers for the bridge on the dam. These facts established Mr. Allan's claim and admitted by ownership. When the Government requires a dam or mill privilege, even for the public works, no matter how temporary the erections may be, the private owners are allowed more than their whole mill dam is worth, showing that it is the dam and power that give value to the whole. As an instance, I would refer to the old Keefer mill, Thorold, and a mill at Chisholm's Rapids, Trent River. But it will be said Mr. Davidson never was in the Government, to which I add, so much the better for millers.

Yours truly,

OWNER OF WHAT IS KNOWN AS ALLAN'S DAM.

THE Ottawa Free Press justly remarks that there is a point in Mr. Girouard's Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister which should secure its rejection by an overwhelming majority. We have nothing to say against the general principle involved, but the attempt which the Bill makes to confer on priests and ministers the right of granting dispensations, is repugnant to the first principles of British liberty. Our fathers had a hard, long and bitter struggle in Canada before they got rid of church interference in civil affairs, and to seek to revive an exploded system in the manner contemplated by this Bill, is an effort which we hope will meet with prompt and final repression at the hands of the members of the House of Commons.

THE GATINEAU FIRES.—The excitement in the cases in which the charges are already brought is dying out, but there is a general belief that the bottom of the affair has not been reached, and that further enquiry should and probably will be made on Monday. Judge Bourgeois gave decision upon the applications made before him for bail for the prisoners. Richard Chamberleau and Martin have been released upon their own recognizance, but in the case of both Faure, the priest, and Dr. Langlois, the application was refused. The prisoners were therefore remanded to their cells, there to await the next session of the Court of Queen's Bench in July.

The Princess Louise is the subject of a picturesque anecdote. It is related that as she was about leaving Halifax a crippled old Crimean soldier broke through the guard, and lifting his hat, held out his hand, saying that he had shaken hands, with her royal mother before the Princess was born. The young lady heartily shook hands with the ancient veteran, and the crowd about cheered.

Dr. Orton's Little Bill.

This is what the Monetary Times—a good authority—says of Dr. Orton's Interest Bill :—Dr. Orton is author of a bill, which has made its appearance in the House of Commons, "to regulate the rate of interest on loans of money on real estate or otherwise." The bill makes all mortgages at a higher rate than seven per cent. void, and it makes the imposition of fines for the non-payment of interest illegal. Where more than the legal interest has been obtained "by any device," a judge in Chambers shall, on proof of the fact, not only declare the mortgage void, but grant a discharge, which the Registrar is directed to put on the registry. The tendency is to a lower rate. In the State of Michigan seven per cent. is the highest rate paid on mortgage. The same state of things may come about here naturally, but it cannot be brought about by legislation. Dr. Orton has got to learn that the rate of interest cannot be regulated by law. The fines which he assumes to be still charged by loan societies are now seldom exacted. They were no doubt exceptional, and would be very difficult to justify, since there can be no reason why one class of lenders should possess extraordinary remedies in the way of fines. But, after all, these fines were part of a contract into which no one was obliged to enter. It would be as well if the loan companies abolished the last remnant of fines ; since abolition might be the means of warding off such attacks as is made in this bill. As to "other devices," there can be no good reason, except that he agrees to do so, why a man should continue to pay interest on money which he has repaid. The plan of periodical payments is convenient to many borrowers, but it is not necessarily connected with the practice which the bill condemns. The loan companies would act wisely if they modified their practice in this respect, for it is not probable that they will long be allowed to continue it.

CHAPTER XXIX.

ANOTHER ENCOUNTER ON MARSTON MOOR—THE SEIZURE OF AGNES BORLAND—THE VAIN PURSUIT—DAVID RAMSAY ON THE TRACK.

The attack was so sudden and bewildering that for a moment neither of the women had power to utter a cry. But when Agnes found herself in the rude hands of these terrible men she uttered a piercing shriek and struggled violently. Her shriek was echoed by another from her mother's lips, as the latter sprang frantically forward in an instinctive effort to release the captive. Ere she could reach Agnes two more men fell upon her and forced her back into her chair, where, despite her vehement struggle, she was held fast, able only to utter shriek upon shriek, accompanied with imploring adjurations.

In the hands of her brutal captors Agnes was equally impotent; what was her weak woman's strength, even when stimulated by terror, against the exertions of three powerful men—ruthless and determined in their purpose. She was lifted from her feet and borne swiftly into the dark passage. Throwing her arms wildly forward she clutched the doorpost and cried with heart-rendering frenzy, "Mother, mother!"

Her hands were torn rudely from their grasp, and her cries were stifled by a cloak being thrown over her head. Thus silenced, stupefied, and half suffocated, she was carried through the porch into the open air, down the garden path to the gate, outside of which a covered waggon was in waiting. Into this waggon, without ceremony or consideration, Agnes was tumbled upon a bundle of rags and musty straw. Some of the men took their places beside her, others climbed up in front; the two who had been holding Mrs. Borland back rushed from the cottage, and leaped up beside their companions, then the whip was applied to the horse, and away went the waggon at a rapid rate across the park, its wheels making but little sound on the thick grass.

Who shall describe the agony and despair of Mrs. Borland when flying forth after she was released and rushing down the garden path, she was just in time to see the waggon drive away with her heart's treasure in the power of the ruffians who had seized her. Wholly beside herself, she flew forward with unreasoning steps after the retreating vehicle, though of course it was vain to expect she would overtake it. Nay, in very brief time it was lost to her distened eyes in the darkness, and she could only follow the direction she had seen it take. Though her feet were winged by a mother's love and agony, though she ran with a swiftness far beyond her strength, it was but losing time to follow such a useless course, and this she soon realized with sickening conviction, Her screams still rang through the night air with piercing intensity, she still continued to stagger forward, wringing her hands in her distraction, but every moment thus wasted was lessening the chance of overtaking the abductors; and at last, sensible of this, she stood still against a tree in panting helplessness, and strove to think what else she could do. Could no help be found, no effort made for the deliverance of Agnes? Ha! David Ramsay! he was her only hope, he would save her if any one could.

The instant this idea flashed on her tortured brain Mrs. Borland started off with unabated speed in the direction of the stables where the gardener resided. There was no house nearer, where she could give the alarm. Several labourers' cottages were situated on the fringe of the park, but they were all further from where she was. Nearest were the stables, and no one would be so ready to set off in pursuit as David Ramsay.

Though thinly clad in her ordinary house garments, she felt not the cold of the December night, felt no fatigue from her terrible exertions. Sustained by the agony of her mind, she put forth physical power wholly abnormal, yet in the wildness of her impatience she thought she was making little progress, thought she would never come to the garden wall or see the dark outline of the cluster of buildings.

In reality, however, the space of time was incredibly short ere she reached the vicinity of the offices and turned the corner of the first building into the square of which they had formed. It was in the centre block, which was superior to the rest and surmounted by a tower, that the gardener had his residence, and oh! joy, she saw that a light still gleamed from his window.

"David—David Ramsay," she strove to cry, but her panting lungs had not the power to second the efforts of her throat; her lips framed the words, but her voice could express no articulate sound. Rushing to the door she beat vehemently on it with her hands and feet; then finding the noise too feeble, she took up a stone and knocked with all her might.

David Ramsay, who sat in his room above the entrance busy writing, leapt from his seat in startled amazement, ejaculating—

"Lord keep us, wha is that knockin' at my door at time o' nicht? Gude save us, they'll hae it broken in. Can the big house be on fire, or what in a' the world is it?"

He darted to the window, threw up the sash, thrust out his head, and loudly exclaimed—

"Wha's that, and what dae ye want?"

"David—oh, help David," came from below, in a strange unearthly voice.

"Eh—wha is it—what help is wanted?"

"It's me—Mrs. Borland," she screamed forth with desperate energy.

"Lord help us a'," exclaimed David, as he rushed down the stair at break-neck speed, and tore open the door to find the visitor totter into his arms.

"David," she gasped, help, help Agnes."

"Oh, Mrs. Borland, what is it?"

"Agnes is carried off by a number of men—gipsies, I think."

"God o' mercy, what dae I hear?"

"Follow, oh, for Heaven's sake, follow and rescue her. They have taken her away in a waggon, and have gone out by the shore road gate. Save her, David; save my poor helpless girl, or I shall go mad. Oh, God, this is the worst that has ever happened."

He drew her moaning and wailing into the passage and set her down on the first step of the stair, his own mind being in a chaos of bewilderment and terror.

"I'll run after them," he cried; "I'll follow them like a greyhound. Oh, that I had a horse, but that canna be. Gang hame again, Mrs. Borland, for ye can dae naething. Yes ye can, ye can pray to the Lord for succour; gang hame and pray, and wait till I bring Agnes back. The wretches, the monsters, to dae sic a deed. It maun be Flora Marshall's gang; she spoke to Agnes on the muir this afternoon and threatened evil to her."

While David was speaking he seized his bonnet and gun which stood behind the door. He had to rush up to his room for powder and shot, but was back in a twinkling. Then again enjoining Mrs. Borland to go home, and promising not to return without Agnes, he rushed through the open door and was gone.

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly. These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

STAPLES.

Shipments of 2 and 3 ply Wool, Tapestry and fine Brussels Carpets.

has never been so lively. We are at present engaged getting up several magnificent costumes to go to Winnipeg, while orders from all parts of the country continually reach us. We have had the honor of furnishing garments for ladies at state receptions at Ottawa and Toronto, and many are the written testimonials of their approval and satisfaction.

J. D. WILLIAMSON & CO

Though labouring under overpowering exhaustion and distress Mrs. Borland had sufficient presence of mind to lock the door when she left, so that David's property might be safe in his absence. Then with many ejaculation to heaven for help she went back to the cottage, there in an agony of suspense, well nigh insupportable, to pass the long hours of the night—sometimes inside, but oftener wandering out into the park, listening for any sound that might proclaim the return of the captive, and indulging in vain conjectures as to the object of the cruel and lawless outrage.

ELORA.—Mr. John Jacob is now a full fledged barrister.—John Thomas, teamster, Elora, was thrown from his waggon in that village last week and had one of his legs broken.—While Robert Ross and W. Duncan were driving to Fergus last week the buggy upset throwing the occupants very forcibly to the roadway. Ross was picked up in an insensible condition and made no improvement for three hours. He now lies in a precarious condition.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Sold by all druggists.

Landlord and Tenant in Ireland.

Some of the Irish landlords carry things with a high hand, and sometimes the law brings high jinks to justice. A curious case has recently been tried in Dublin before Chief-Justice Morris and a jury. Widow Walsh, who had always paid her rent punctually for years since her husband's death until September, 1878, fell behind a few pounds. In September, 1879, there being due a little over six months' rent, amounting to £124 10s., the landlord, a Mr. Fitzgerald, swooped down upon widow Walsh with a posse of constables and seized and sold her horses, implements, wheat, oats and potatoes—even all her goods. The sum realized was confiscated except the trifling surplus over and above the landlord's claim, which was tendered to the widow, but was by her indignantly refused. The seizure and sale were made without previous notice, although the law provides that six days' notice must be given. Mrs. Walsh carried her case to the Court, and a jury found a verdict against Mr. Fitzgerald for £46 3s. 1d., and assessed damage £350 for trespass. The curious part of the proceedings is that the landlord's claim is fully paid by his own proceedings, while he is compelled to hand over to the widow nearly four hundred pounds.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

MR. GLADSTONE ON THE SITUATION.—Mr. Gladstone the other night addressed a meeting at Marlebone on behalf of the Liberal candidates. Regarding the dissolution of Parliament he said the present debate in the Commons deprived the Government of that opportunity. He declared that all parties were agreed that obstruction was a very bad thing. He attributed the recent Conservative success in Southwark to Liberal dissensions over local arrangements. He expressed delight at the prospect of a satisfactory settlement of the Afghan question. Responsibility for England's attitude on the Turkish question now rested on the shoulders of the majority of the House of Commons. He disclaimed any friendship for Home Rule and said the unity of the Empire and authority of Parliament must be maintained independently of every other consideration, but deprecated all angry judgments of his Irish fellow citizens. He could not forget the abominable conduct of that country towards Ireland for many generations.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

JOHN WORSFOLD & Co.

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.

During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.

I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.

Also a case of lovely new prints.

Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.

In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

WEDNESDAY EVNG, MARCH 3, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

George Eliot, it is declared, has given permission for the dramatization of one of her novels. She is about to travel for the benefit of her health.

Queen Victoria's income is $6,300 a day. The Czar has more than any other European sovereign—$25,000 a day. But therewith "gets not peace and comfort."

The election expenses of Lord Ramsay at Liverpool were $65,000—with nothing whatever to show for them.

At the election at Drogheda on Tuesday, to fill the seat in the House of Commons made vacant by the death of O'Leary (Home Ruler), Whitworth (Liberal) was elected over a Home Ruler.

The Dublin Castle authorities made representations to the Government in favor of the renewal of the Peace Preservation Act, 1875, which expires this year.

Prince George of England, the youngest son of the Prince of Wales, is described as an excellent fellow, full of pluck and spirits, and quite ready to fight any one. Prince Edward, his elder brother—"Eddy" he is called at home—is very quiet, and not so strong as George. When they started on their cruise they were very sea-sick, but the captain, after allowing them to remain in bed for a day or two, went in and told them they must get up and do their duty; so they did.

Tay Bridge Disaster.

LONDON, February 28.—Inquiry into the Tay Bridge disaster is now proceeding at Dundee before the Board of Trade. The painters who painted the bridge last summer testified that they saw numerous bolt holes empty. They found bolts in holes where there should have been rivits, and rivits without heads. Bars were loosened and nuts unscrewed. One of the supporting columns of the high girders, cracked from top to bottom, was held together by four hoop bands. Sometimes the oscillation of the bridge was so great that they feared it would fall. The evidence created considerable sensation, but its value cannot be estimated until the Railway Inspectors are heard.

IN LUCAN.

A Man Hangs Himself in a Barn.

LUCAN, March 3.—A farming man named Samuel Cole, living about five miles from here, in the Township of London committed suicide last night, or this morning, by hanging himself in his barn. When found by some of the members of the family he was quite cold, as he had been suspended for some time. The attempt made was determined, he having put several knots on the rope, when placing it round his neck. We have heard no cause assigned for the rash act. He leaves a wife and small family. Coroner Hossack has just left for the place to hold an inquest.

Sir Allan McNab and the Cockfight.

An Ottawa correspondent of the New York World gives some interesting and amusing reminiscenses of attempts to establish Court ceremonials, which were, however, a serious thing under the old French military regime, when two boys were soundly whipped for offending the Bishop by saluting the Governor before they did the lord spiritual. About twenty-five years since the Governor General, Sir Edmund Head, undertook to introduce the regulations which govern the intercourse of Ministers with the crown of England. His first order was that when Ministers left the capital they should inform him of the fact. Sir Allan McNab had occasion to go away the next day, and sent this excuse:

"The McNab begs to inform His Excellency that he has gone down the river as far as Grosse Ile to a cockfight, and if the McNab does not return to-morrow or the next day His Excellency will be justified in concluding that the McNab has fallen into the hands of the police, in which case His Excellency will doubtless be good enough to intercede for the release of the McNab."

The letter got into print, and then and there ended the attempt to imitate the old country reforms.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

It is said that Faber, the pencel maker, who began business in Nuremberg about thirty years ago with a capital of £250, will commemorate the event by setting aside £5,000, the interest of which, at five per cent.—£250—is to be annually given, under direction of trustees, to some poor and worthy young man about to start in business, and a native of Nuremberg.

Small pox is prevalent in the township of Whitchurch, County York. The number of cases of small pox in Ottawa has been reduced to twenty.

Local News.

Hawkers and their audiences occupied the greater part of the Market Square this forenoon.

THE icemen worked on Goldie's dam last night, till after twelve o'clock. They are bound to make the most of their time.

FARM SOLD.—Geo. McGill, of Puslinch, has sold his farm of fifty acres to William Laycock for $1,500.

Jerry Connors was released at the goal yesterday. He was taken to the cells last night for drunkenness, but at Police Court to-day was allowed one more chance to mend his ways. He was discharged.

FOR MANITOBA. — Mr. McFarlane, of Puslinch, with a small party, leaves by the G.W.R. to-morrow for Manitoba. Mr. Ramage, of Nassagaweya, will leave by the same line to-day for the Prairie Province.

WEATHER PROBS.—Brisk to high South Easterly to South Westerly winds, cloudy mild weather with rain, followed to-morrow by South Westerly to North Westerly winds and cooler weather.

SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD.—The regular meeting of the Separate School Board was held on Tuesday night. The only business done was the passing of the report of the Finance Committee. Afterwards some informal discussion took place on different subjects. The Board then adjourned.

FELL THROUGH THE ICE.—John McCare, an old man, living near the General Hospital, broke through the ice on Goldie's dam while crossing the river on Tuesday. He was rescued immediately after he fell into the water, by some of the men cutting ice near the place.

THE sale of Mr. Mooney's farm, Puslinch, which was offered on Wednesday at the door of the Market House by Mr. Jas. Taylor, auctioneer, has been postponed till Saturday, the 20th of March, at one o'clock.

SOCIAL AT ARKELL.—A Sabbath School Social was held in the Methodist Church, Arkell, on Wednesday evening of last week. It was very largely attended, and those present spent a most enjoyable time. The programme consisted of readings and recitations by scholars, music by the choir of the church, and addresses by the Pastor and adherents to the church.

S. S. ANNIVERSARY.—The anniversary services in connection with the Sabbath School at Erin Village will be held on Sunday and Monday, 14th and 15th. Rev. E. Kershaw will preach on Sunday, morning and evening. A Tea Meeting will be held on Monday evening. There will be addresses, recitations and music.

GOOD SAWING.—Last week four men in the employ of Mr. John Peacock, of Nassagaweya, cut and piled seventeen cords of wood in the short space of six and a half hours. The saw used was the Champion make. The men are waiting to see who can beat their work.

LIVE STOCK SOLD.—John A. Evans, last week sold seven ewes and three lambs of the Leicester breed to a stockman at Goderich. He also sold a shearling ram which took first prize at Puslinch Show to Mr. Cowan, Waterloo. J. P. Phin, Waterloo, bought the splendid young bull "Protection," got by Lord Strathallan, [3558] dam May Belle by Prince Imperial [2023] 8852. Good prices were realized.

EMIGRANTS FOR MANITOBA.—Two long trains passed through the city this forenoon on the Grand Trunk with passengers en route for Manitoba. There were a number of freight cars attached to each train, filled with luggage, farm implements, &c., belonging to the party. One train was from Ottawa, and another from Prescott. Both parties comprised over 300 persons. They were joined here by two persons. It was expected that the number of passengers would be considerably increased before the party reached Sarnia.

MARCH FAIR.—A large number of people attended the March cattle fair to-day (Wednesday) but the attendance would undoubtedly have been larger had the roads been in a better state. The cattle offered were generally in good condition, though both the quality and quantity were affected by purchases of stock made ahead for shipment to Great Britain. In some cases buyers offered good prices and were not reluctant in purchasing the finer animals. The average price paid was from $3.50 to $4.50 per hundred pounds.

NARROW TIRES.—The police have been warning icemen to-day against drawing ice on waggons with narrow tires. It seems unreasonable to expect to make a delay to procure waggons with wide tires when they are hurried so much in order to get ice at all. As the matter of having ice next summer is one of some importance to citizens, and as in a few days the icemen will cease drawing, the roads cannot be destroyed to any great extent, it would be better if the police would overlook the law on this subject for the present.

ST. GOTHARD TUNNEL.—The completion of the St. Gothard tunnel, the greatest engineering work of the kind in the world, is announced, and it is expected that in a few months trains will run from Basle, Switzerland and Germany, to Milan and Rome. The work was undertaken in order to secure to Switzerland and Germany a through line to Italy and the Mediterranean, in the face of the great natural obstacles formed by the Alpine chain. The first conference on the St. Gothard Railway was held at Berne in September, 1869, Italy, Switzerland and Germany being represented. An elaborate scheme was adopted, which it was found necessary to modify considerably in 1877. As now contemplated the road begins at Immensee, running along the Eastern shore of the Lake of Lucerne and the River Reuss and entering the tunnel at Goschenen. Its course on the other side is down the Valley of the Ticino, terminating at Pino, on the Eastern shore of the Lake Maggiore, where it unites with the Italian railroad system. The trunk road is 147.6 kilometres in length and its subsidiary lines are 39 kilometres long, making a total of nearly 106 miles. The cost is estimated at 227,000,000 francs, or about $45,000,000. The tunnel, upon which 3,000 men have been steadily employed since 1872, is 14,900 metres, or 9¼ miles in length. The famous Mont Cenis tunnel is 12,849 metres long and the Hoosac tunnel 7,630 metres, or a little more than half the length of the St. Gothard.

De Lesseps, the eminent French engineer, whose scheme for a canal across the Isthmus of Panama is attracting world wide attention, was expected at Niagara Falls on Tuesday.

The Anniversary of the Czar of Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 2.—The Official Messenger publishes a letter from the Emperor William, countersigned by Bismarck, congratulating the Czar in terms of warm and earnest friendship on the 25th anniversary of his accession, and on his recent escape from injury.

The city is gaily decorated, and the day is being observed as a general holiday. At 10 this morning vast crowds assembled before the Winter Palace, troops were massed in the centre quadrangle of the palace and the immediate vicinity. The programme of ceremonies as arranged was executed. The Czar appeared on the balcony of the palace, where he remained 20 minutes saluting the multitude amid great enthusiasm.

After the Czar had received the congratulations of an enormous crowd at the Palace he drove out in an open carriage and was loudly and continuously cheered in the crowded streets through which he passed. Up to the time no disturbances have occurred.

The report of the arrest of Vera Sassulich proves unfounded. It is believed that the rumor of her presence in St. Petersburg was circulated purposely to mislead the authorities.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAY THROUGH MANITOBA.—Mr. Ryan, M. P. for Marquette, on Tuesday, introduced to Sir Charles Tupper a deputation from Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, composed of Thomas Garland, T. B. Miller, and W. J. MacAuley, who urged on the Minister that the main line of the Canada Pacific should be deflected about seven miles to the south so as to pass through that large settlement, or failing that, to build a branch line to that place. The Minister replied that it would be impossible to bring the line any further south. With reference to the branch he would give no positive promise, but said he intended to visit Manitoba in the spring and would see about the matter while he was there.

ACCIDENT ON THE INTERCOLONIAL.—Further particulars relative to the $50,000 smash-up which occurred on the Intercolonial Railway on Monday night, were received here on Tuesday. Near Moncton a locomotive attached to a heavy freight train gave out, and the train had to be divided. The express from Campbellton going south ran into the portion of the freight train which had been left on the track. This double accident did not close the chapter, because, no warning having been given the English mail train from Halifax dashed into the double wreck, and a general smash-up occurred.

THE ROT AMONG SHEEP IN ENGLAND.—The ravages of what is commonly known as "rot" or "bane" are assuming most appalling proportions in the midland and western counties of England, in consequence, it is generally supposed, of the excessive and long continued wet weather last year. Tens of thousands of sheep, principally ewes, are dead and dying. In some parishes in Gloucester, Oxon and Warwick there are comparatively speaking very few sheep left, and in Somerset there are only 5,000 left in one district, which usually winters 50,000. Hundreds, if not thousands, of sheep have been sold off in the Bristol district at from 3s. 6d. to 10s. a head.

A DRUNKEN OFFICIAL.—The Ottawa correspondent of the London Advertiser says: A well known official in this city got jolly drunk at Speaker Blanchett's dinner on Saturday. During the evening he frequently addressed Sir Leonard Tilley as "Sir Bolus," and referred to Mr. Blake as "Ned," and asked him how his brother "Sam" was getting on. When this gentleman started for home he secured Mr. Mackenzie's overcoat, and marched off. Afterwards, when Mr. Mackenzie's things were missed, one of the messengers went down to the gentleman's residence to see if the missing clothing was not there, and to Mr. Mackenzie's horror an overcoat, tattered, torn, and covered with mud, was presented to him, showing that the wearer had experienced considerable difficulty in reaching home. The consequence has been that Mr. Mackenzie had to make purchases Monday.

MILK FROM DISEASED COWS.—A theory which has had numerous advocates among medical men of prominence in England and the United States, that the milk from diseased cows is frequently the cause of tuberculosis in the consumers, has recently been endorsed by Prof. Otto Bollinger, of Munich, one of the highest German authorities. He states that numerous experiments prove that the milk of tuberculous cows has a decidedly contagious influence, reproducing the disease in various animals. Tuberculosis in mankind is similar to that in animals, and the quality of the milk used is enjoined for the avoidance of contagion. In the dairy recently established at Munich, the strictest medical supervision is exercised, and diseased cattle at once removed. It is estimated that about 10 per cent. of the cows kept in towns and cities are unsound, which doubtless accounts for a great deal of tubercular disease.

Now that a division of the Astor property has taken place, the Duke of Westminster is the richest landlord in the world. The most remarkable feature in his property is that it has never known decline, although it may possibly feel it now. Grosvenor square was the height of fashion 150 years ago. It is the same today, and, unless Hyde Park goes out of fashion, must remain so. Go across the park from Grosvenor square by Grosvenor gate, into quite another district, but equally hinging on the park, and in view of that other magnet of fashion, the parlimentary palace of Westminster, and your nearest route will be either through Grosvenor place or Grosvenor crescent. So all the way down to the Thames you cannot look up at a street corner without being reminded of this Marquis of Carabbas. Miles and miles of houses bear the designation of his country homes or family name. There is no such property in the world. The Grosvenors are a worthy, respectable race, and the present head of the house a conscientious, princely-minded man who throws his fine galleries in London open on Sunday to the enjoyment of his poorer neighbors.

The Water Works.

A Partial Test Made by the Engineer and Firemen.

The water works were tested on Tuesday afternoon by the Engineer, Mr. Inglis, and a section of the Fire Brigade. Though the test served to show that the works are to be a success, ultimately, some little annoyance was experienced from the fact that the workmen had neglected to put the caps on some of the branch pipes, which resulted in several leaks, in consequence of which the water pressure was uneven, varying from twenty to one hundred and twenty. Of course as the pressure fell the streams thrown from the branches became weaker. The leakages were at the head of Horsman's hill, on Liverpool street, near Geo. & Alex. Bruce's carpenter shop, on Dublin street opposite the Central School, and on Waterloo Avenue, near Gordon street.

As stated, the water pressure went as high as one hundred and twenty, while all the pressure required is one hundred and twenty-five, which would easily have been reached but for these leakages. The steam pressure was kept at about forty. The works can be run nicely at from fifty to fifty-five pounds pressure, but the engines are capable of supplying between seventy and eighty pounds. While the test was in progress two engines were run at one time, but not continuously.

The first test was at the General Hospital, the highest point in the city. Two branches of hose were attached to one hydrant. For a time it was thought the water pressure was not up. The Chief opened a hydrant on a lower elevation—at the corner of Queen street and the Eramosa Road—and the water burst out with force. It was then decided to return and try the hydrant at the Hospital. The hose was again attached to it, but still it was not filled with water. Soon afterwards Mr. Inglis arrived, when it was found that the water was not turned on properly, and being turned on two streams were sent on the roof of the Hospital from nozzles, one an inch and a quarter in size, another an inch and eighth. Streams were afterwards thrown over the building from seven eighth nozzles. The hose was then taken down Queen street and one branch was attached to a hydrant at the corner of Queen and Arthur streets, a second being attached to a hydrant on Arthur street, opposite the residence of Mr. Charles Davidson. Two good streams of water were thrown over the buildings in this neighborhood. The hose was next attached to the hydrant opposite the city hall. At this time the water pressure was low, owing to the leaks in the pipes on Waterloo Avenue. The steam pressure was raised considerably and the streams from the hose became stronger. After a time one of the branches was removed to the hydrant opposite Messrs. Wm. Bell & Co's. Organ Factory. A stream from this branch was thrown high over the building, and from the other branch water was thrown half way up the flag pole on the City Hall tower, the nozzles on the branch being inch and quarter and inch and eighth in size. After playing for a time on these buildings the hose was detached and the trial completed. Doubtless another trial will be made after the leakages have been stopped. The result on the whole is satisfactory, and it is felt that after the necessary work has been done on the leakages found out, the works will be found to answer all expectations.

THE BIDDULPH TRAGEDY.

The Adjourned Inquest.

The Verdict of the Jury.

LUCAN, March 2.

The following is the continuation of Dr. Flock's evidence on the body of John Donnelly: In the upper part of the chest on the left side he found numerous small holes, thirty in number, such as made by gun shots, covering a space of about four inches. In one of them was a small sliver of wood, not a half inch long, and as thick as a match. None of these wounds were large, yet a few were larger than the rest. The right side of the cavity of the chest contained a large quantity of blood, at least three pints; some of it coagulated, the other pint fluid. In the upper part of the right lung he found numerous small holes corresponding with those on the outside of the chest. Those holes appeared in both the front and back part of the lung, as if whatever made them had passed through its substance. The lung here contained a considerable quantity of extravasated blood, and he got three or four grains of gunshot in its substance. He could not get any more shot. It appeared as if they had scattered, and passing in different directions, had buried themselves deeply in the soft part of the body, out of sight and reach. In the neighbourhood of the groin, on the right side, there was one wound somewhat confused. On the same side, behind, low down, there was another wound, irregularly circular; so that there was a hole clear through the body. There was some extravasated blood about the wound, but no great quantity. He was of opinion that deceased came to his death by shooting, the immediate cause of death being hemorrhage, in consequence of the lasceration of the large blood vessels at the base of the neck and upper part of the chest, together with bleeding from the left lung. The injuries inflicted on the parts below would probably have proved fatal; but not so soon, unless from nervous shock. Afterwards he examined the shirts that deceased were, and they presented holes corresponding with those on the body.

Johnny Connors was then called for cross-examination. The evidence he gave to Mr. McMahon at London was read and put in to save time, subject to the same conditions as in the case of Bill Donnelly, but nothing fresh was elicited.

At this stage there was a slight interruption in the proceedings, during which oranges and apples were passed round among the prisoners, and several of their female friends came up and shook hands with them.

Wm. Donnelly was then recalled. He said:—I don't think Martin Hogan was in my room before the time he drew John's body in; after that he held a blessed candle in John's hand and then lay down under the bed; I did not notice till morning whether Hogan had his clothes on or not; when it was coming near day light I asked him to get into bed with me, me, but he would not; I said it was a horrible affair, and he told me not to be talking; about the time I got up, a little before daylight, I told my wife I knew part of the gang; Hogan was at the foot of the bed then; I could not say whether he heard what I said to my wife or not; he did not ask me who they were at the time.

To Mr. Hutchinson—Hogan and I had a conversation after I got out of bed; I asked him if he had seen anybody; he raised his hand and said, "Don't talk to me about it; keep to yourself what you do know and I'll do the same," or some such words as those; he didn't seem to want to speak at all, and I considered he was very much frightened; I could hear him say, "Oh, good God! I always thought they would do this."

Mrs. Wm. Donnelly, who had been stopping at a neighboring house, entered the Court in the meantime, but being informed that she would not be called took her departure, the Crown having decided not to put her in the box at all.

Wm. Blackwell, a near neighbor of Wm. Donnelly's, then stated all the circumstances he knew about the affair, and how Wm. Donnelly came to his house early in the morning and informed him of the murder of his brother John.

Martin Hogan, who slept at Wm. Donnelly's house the night of the murder, was next examined. He said:—I recollect the night John Donnelly was killed; Wm. Donnelly, his wife, his brother and myself slept at Wm. Donnelly's that night; I slept with John in a bedroom that opened off William's; we went to bed about half-past twelve; about two or half-past two there was a disturbance; John woke me by getting out of bed; he went through Will's room and said, "Who's that hollering fire?" as he went through; there was no answer that I heard right off; but afterwards I heard a voice cry, "Fire! open the door;" John opened the door, and there were two reports, made by a gun as I thought, as close as possible together; John cried out, "Will, I am shot; may the Lord have mercy on my soul;" a little after that, as they were passing by the window of the room I slept in, I heard revolver shots, may be three or four; Will called to me in a low voice to get up, that John was shot; I answered back, telling him in a low tone to be quiet, that I was afraid they would come back if they found out it was not Will they had killed; I got up just about the time the guns went off; I sat on the side of the bed for about two minutes, then I went to bring in John; passing through William's room he called me to fetch John in, and I told him to keep quiet; I did not see William as I passed through; in the kitchen I found John lying on the floor, with his head to the kitchen door; I fetched him into Will's room, at the foot of his bed; Mrs. Donnelly was up and had the light before I went for Jack; after bringing him, Will told his wife to get a piece of blessed candle; she got it and put it in John's hand, and I held it there till he died, which was about four minutes afterwards; then I lay partly under Will's bed; I was in fear, and I think I had good reason for being so; I remained there till nearly daylight; after John died William asked his wife to look at the clock; she did so, and made answer back that it was half-past two; when William Donnelly got up he went to look at the tracks; we spoke about what had taken place; I told him to keep quiet, and anything he had to say to keep it to himself; told him that he because I did not wish to know anything about it that is all I remember saying to him.

This was the last of the evidence, it being then about eight o'clock.

The Coroner then addressed the prisoners saying they were at liberty to make any statements they liked if they chose to do so, but he reminded them that anything they said could be used against them at their trial. Each and every one answered that he had nothing to say. The Court having been cleared of everybody except the jurors and the Coroner, the latter charged them at some length, after which they entered upon a consultation with a view of arriving at a verdict.

Up to this time the crowd remained about the door, but when they learned there was not much possibility of a verdict being arrived at for hours they dispersed, and the street below the hall became deserted.

A few minutes after eleven o'clock Dr. Hossack was called up stairs and informed by the foreman that the jury had arrived at a verdict which was to the effect that James Donnelly, Judith Donnelly, Thomas Donnelly, and Bridget Donnelly came to their death by being murdered and burned by parties unknown. The verdict did not occasion much surprise among the few who had waited around to hear it. Every one expected that it would be an open one, and it will have no effect on future proceedings, although the prisoners may be a little gratified by it.

The Coroner having recorded the verdict left the jury to come to a decision as regards the death of John Donnelly, who was shot at his brother's house. But this question seems to be a more difficult one to settle than was the other, for at half-past twelve, when Dr. Hossack returned, they were still undecided. They stood eight to six for an open verdict, with no hope of coming to an understanding in a reasonable time. The Coroner therefore gave instructions to have them locked up over night. This order was received with anything but satisfaction by the jurors, but there was no help for it. The uncomfortableness of their situation intensified the feeling of hunger which lingered in the stomach of every man—none of them having had a bit to eat since dinner. But their appetites were soon satiated by a liberal supply of cheese, crackers, and beer, which had a very soothing effect, and they afterwards spent a happy hour in song.

(By Telegraph to the Mercury.)

LUCAN, March 3.—At 8 o'clock this morning the Coroner paid a visit to the locked up jury and found they had not yet agreed upon a verdict, and again at a few minutes later and no verdict, but this time the jury asked another half hour to consider ere he would send them to London to be discharged by the Judge. At the expiration of this time upon the appearance of the Coroner the jury announced that twelve out of the fourteen had agreed upon the verdict, That John Donnelly came to his death on the 5th instant, from gun shot wounds received from a gun in the hands of some party to the jury unknown.

The twelve before mentioned signed this verdict, but two out of the fourteen held out and would not agree to this, conscientiouly believing that the parties sworn to by William Donnelly should be committed for trial. Strong opinions are expressed on the streets as to the verdict arrived at in both cases, even going so far as to say the verdicts were rendered through prejudice, others maintaining that from the fact of there being no rebutting testimony given against the evidence of Connors and Wm. Donnelly, that with this before him there should be a commitment in both cases.

WEDNESDAY EVNG MARCH 3 1880

Upper Canadian College.

There was quite a sharp debate in the Legislature on Tuesday on Mr. Crooks' motion, to sanction the expenditure of $30,000 out of the Endowment Fund of Upper Canada College for the erection of a new boarding house in connection with that Institution. As an old Upper Canada College student, Mr. Crooks made the best possible case he could, but we think he failed to convince the House that this Institution should have exceptional privileges over all others in the Province. Of course among its graduates there is a strong feeling of sympathy for it, but throughout the Province the feeling is very different. The College has served its day and generation, and as far as its standing goes it is no better than many Collegiate Institutes throughout the Province. The feeling against forcing this resolution through at the present time was quite strong even among the supporters of the Government. As one member said:—"Our High Schools in late years had made vast strides, and certainly more than filled the place which the Upper Canada College had once occupied. In these schools a young man could receive a training inferior to none. Upper Canada College was not in reality a Provincial School, but would be found to educate chiefly the youth of Toronto. Giving Upper Canada College this sum of money would make it a permanency, and that was not desirable." Another member remarked that as a feeder to the University the College was getting behind the age. Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, also remarked that he was in a position to know that the work done in Upper Canada College was of an inferior nature. This should be considered before they granted the large sum asked for to this Institution. First, let a thorough search be made as to the efficiency of the work. No considerations of its history or its age should suffice to keep it alive. Let them know what is being done there, and have full particulars before they commit themselves to any definite mode of action. If Toronto felt the necessity let its people establish two Collegiate Institutes, or as many as it educationally required.

Sentiments of a similar character were expressed by other members, and after a long debate it was adjourned.

We think the Government would be wise if they allowed the matter to drop for this session at least. The people of this Province are not in favor of bolstering up the College by such grants, as they think the money could be better spent in another direction.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, March 2.

Among the petitions presented, was one by Mr. Laidlaw—From Canon Dixon and others of Guelph, praying that the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited on holidays.

Among the bills read a third time, was the one to provide for the division of the township of Luther—Mr. McKim.

Mr. Crooks moved the adoption of the following resolution:—"That this House doth ratify an Order in Council, dated the first day of March instant, directing certain payments from the Permanent Fund of the Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar school." In his speech in support of the resolution Mr. Crooks dwelt on the importance of the work performed by Upper Canada College, and the necessity for providing additional boarding-house accommodation in order to enable it to perform its functions with efficiency.

The proposal was immediately assailed with great vigour by several supporters of the Government, including Messrs. Deroche, Ross, Harcourt, Gibson (Hamilton), Badgerow, and Drs. McLaughlin, McMahon, Robinson, and Cascaden, while it was supported by Dr. Baxter, and Messrs. Sinclair and Miller. Those who spoke against the adoption of the resolution objected to its being pressed at so late a period of the session, when the effect would be to commit the Province to the permanent maintenance of an institution which it might be desirable at no distant day to discontinue. They request that the matter should be allowed to stand over for another year, as they had neither the time nor the means during the few hours at their disposal to inform themselves properly on a matter of so much importance. Several of the speeches took strong ground against the continued existence of Upper Canada College now that the work it formerly did was as well, if not better, done by High Schools and Collegiate Institutes. Others contended that the whole of the endowment fund of Upper Canada College should be added to that of Toronto University and University College, as the latter institution was already crippled very much through want of funds.

Mr. Crooks spoke in reply, taking very strong ground in favour of maintaining Upper Canada College. In reply to the statement that it was virtually a Toronto High School, he pointed out that 120 pupils from other parts of the Province attended during the year 1878, while the number from the city was only 180. After a few words from Mr. Meredith, who urged the Government to withdraw the proposal for this session, the debate was adjourned on the motion of Mr. Morris.

The House then ratified an Order in Council containing the assent of the Senate of Toronto University to the scheme for the erection of new Parliament buildings in the Queen's Park. In reply to Mr. Meredith the Commissioner of Public Works explained that the half million already voted was expected to afford a sufficient margin to cover all incidental expenses connected with the site.

When the Division Courts Bill came up for the consideration of amendments in Committee Mr. Long moved to include book accounts as well as debts cured by promissory notes in the extended jurisdiction between $100 and $200. The Attorney-General spoke briefly against the proposed change, which was rejected by a majority of 46 to 29.

After several Government measures had been advanced a stage the House went into Committee on the Municipal Taxation Bill, on some of the clauses of which a good deal of discussion took place, which was unfinished when the Committee rose, just before the House adjourned.

The Coal Oil Tests.

The following appears in the Ottawa correspondence of the Globe:—A few days ago a paragraph relating to the inferior grade of coal oil being sold in Ottawa appeared in this correspondence, and an account of the testing of coal oil consigned here from a Guelph firm was given. While the statement of the testing as given in the Globe was correct, yet it appears that without explanation an undeserved injustice will be done to the firm in question. The statement was that a consignment of oil from a Guelph firm to this city had been subjected by the Inland Revenue officers to the fire test, and was found to be 19 degrees below the standard. Before the oil left Guelph the Inland Revenue officials there tested it, and it registered 111 degrees. In Ottawa it registered 84 degrees at a flash test and 93 at a fire test—a great difference. A sample of the same oil was submitted to the Inland Revenue authorities at Toronto, and it registered a fire test of 112 degrees. What is the explanation given? In the West the taper is inserted in the orifice and withdrawn immediately, but in Ottawa the taper is permitted to remain in the orifice of the pyrometer. The result of the present difficulty will be the issuing of a departmental regulation enforcing uniformity in applying the fire test. It is also intended to increase the fire test of Canadian oil from 105 to 115 degrees, which will make the Canadian article merchantable. American oil imported has to stand a fire test of 130 degrees. At present there is a difference of 25 degrees in the fire test against the American oil, but this will be decreased to ten degrees when the fire test on Canadian oil is increased as contemplated."

Out of a dozen samples tested in Ottawa, only one was was found to comply with the test as applied there, and it was marked in the test 120, and stood out 101. The public will now be the gainers by this movement.

Several accidents are reported to have occurred to the immigrant train on the Intercolonial Railway after leaving Halifax on Monday last. There was no loss of life, but great delay in the train getting to its destination.

The Legislature in Toronto.

TORONTO, March 3.—The order paper last night was cleared pretty well, and the following are the only important measures remaining:—Attorney General's Boundary Award, which will come up this afternoon; also the Judiciature Bill, which will fall amongst general slaughter of innocents; and Crooks' proposed grant of $30,000 to Upper Canada College, which will probably be withdrawn. This work will likely keep the House occupied to-day and to-morrow. Prorogation will take place on Friday.

Sergeants Allan, Bryan, and Lucus publish the following card regarding the late military trouble in London;—"We, the undersigned Sergeants of London Field Battery, on behalf of the non-commissioned officers and men of the battery, wish to state publicly that Major Peters has explained everything satisfactorily regarding the recent trouble between the commissioned and non-commissioned officers and men of the battery."

Monday brought into New York more than fifty vessels, and among them all those whose delay in arrival has caused any anxiety. Some of those went through severe storms, and sustained considerable damage.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 1.

Several private Bills were introduced, among the number being one for the incorporation of the Winnipeg and Hudson Bay Railway and Steamship Navigation Company.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Senate stating that they had agreed to an Address to the Governor-General on the subject of relief of the distress in Ireland.

A debate, which continued several hours, unexpectedly sprang up on a motion by Mr. Casey for a return showing the list of inspectors and assistant inspectors of weights and measures appointed under the existing Act, and a list of those whose services have been dispensed with. Members from Nova Scotia to Sarnia rose and exposed the wholesale dismissals made by the Government, the injustice done, and the greed for patronage and power displayed. The Government were not slow to defend their conduct, and Sir John Macdonald had the boldness to request that the name of a single employee in any branch of the public service dismissed for political reasons be sent in; but Mr. Anglin casually mentioned the name of Mr. Ellis, ex-Postmaster of St. John, N. B., and the Premier's boasting collapsed. A noticeable feature of the debate was the announcement by the Minister of Inland Revenue that no dismissed Inspector or Assistant Inspector of Weights and Measures had applied for a gratuity or allowance. If this be so, it is unlikely that he will be able to make that statement very many days hereafter. The debate was prolonged after recess, when the motion was adopted.

Mr. Guthrie moved for the name of suppliants who have filed petitions of right in the Exchequer Court, and whose claims have afterwards been compromised or submitted to arbitration. Reference has been made several times to the jobbery perpetrated by the Government in the interest of the Conservative suppliants who had filed petitions of right in the Exchequer Court, by removing such cases from the jurisdiction of the Court, and submitting the same to a single arbitrator, before whom the strongest case for the Crown was not presented, and consequently substantial amounts were awarded the suppliants. The mover referred to a few of the cases in which complaint is made, but Sir John Macdonald denied that any such cases had occurred under the present Government.

Mr. Mackenzie refreshed the Premier's memory, and gave the details of the Government's questionable conduct in regard to the Murray Oakes case, in which a petition of right was removed from the jurisdiction of Mr. Justice Fournier just on the eve of his giving a decision, which it is believed would have been in favor of the Government, and submitted the whole case to a single arbitrator, who was not made acquainted with the strongest case on the part of the Crown, and consequently an award of $100,000 was made to the petitioners. He also recited the case of Marshall Wood vs. the Queen, which was actually submitted to the Exchequer Court several years ago, and a decision in favor of the Crown given, but now the Government reopened the case and sent it before a single arbitrator. The award had not yet been made public.

Sir Charles Tupper was very indignant that his conduct in the Murray-Oakes scandal should be viewed as suspicious, and he read from an official report to shelter himself and his conduct behind an opinion given by the Deputy-Minister of Justice.

The debate was continued by the Minister of Justice, also by Mr. Kirkwood and the Postmaster General on the Government's behalf, and by Messrs. Cameron (Huron), and Guthrie, of the Opposition.

Hon. John O'Connor before entering the Cabinet was counsel for Murray and Oakes, the suppliants in the main case under discussion, and his speech in the House was so characteristic of the special pleading peculiar to a client's counsel that Mr. Mackenzie hit Mr. O'Connor sorely in directing the House's attention to the circumstance.

Mr. Anglin spoke at some length condemning the Government's conduct in regard to the Murray-Oakes jobbery, and the motion was carried.

OTTAWA, March 2.

Mr. Casey presented another petition from the electors of Lennox attacking the seat held by Edmund Hooper.

On the order for concurrence in the amendments made in Committee on Mr. Colby's Bill to repeal the Acts respecting insolvency,

Mr. Blake moved the amendment of which he had formerly given notice, referring the Bill back to the Committee of the Whole to amend it by excepting from its provisions insolvent incorporated trading companies.

Mr. McDonald (Pictou) recognized the propriety of having incorporated trading companies, banks, and insurance companies placed in a position to wind up their affairs. As it was probable that the hon. member for Richmond (Mr. Ives) would deal with this matter in the Bills introduced by him he asked the hon. gentleman not to press this amendment.

Mr. Blake—After this statement I have no objection to withdraw my amendment.

Mr. Colby asked if the hon. member for West Durham would consent to the recommittal of the Bill in order that the amendment he had moved a few nights ago relating to banks and insurance companies might be expunged.

Mr. Blake said he had no objection if the undertaking of the Minister of Justice applied to it also.

Mr. McDonald (Pictou) said it did. He proposed an amendment to be inserted to make the provisions of the old Act continue to apply to assignees in charge of estates in insolvency at the time of the passing of the Act.

Mr. Blake—I am not sure that it would not meet with the views of the majority of this House if the hon. member would go farther and provide that official assignees shall be sent to penitentiary for five years. (Laughter.)

Mr. McDonald (Pictou)—If one half of what I have heard of them were true I think it would not be at all too severe a punishment.

Mr. Anglin said it was rather hard judgment to be pronounced by a Minister on gentlemen appointed by the Government within the last six months.

The necessary amendments were then made in Committee and concurred in by the House.

The House concurred in the Address prepared by the Senate congratulating the Governor General and the Princess Louise on their recent escape from a serious, if not fatal, accident. The Premier in making the motion rather surprised the House by his alarming remarks relative to the consequences of the accident and the continued illness of the Princess.

Mr. Mackenzie, in a speech liberally applauded by the House, seconded the motion.

Messrs. Langevin and Casgrain spoke on behalf of the French Canadians.

The Address was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Robertson, (Hamilton, moved the second reading of a Bill to amend the law with reference to procedure in criminal cases and the duties of justices of the peace out of session in relation to persons charged with indictable offences.

The Minister of Justice said that he would only agree that the Bill should pass the second reading, so that the House could retain any part it desired to in Committee and reject the greater portion. Mr. Mousseau spoke at length against the Bill, and moved the six months' hoist. The debate was adjourned on a motion by Mr. McCarthy.

Mr. Hesson moved for correspondence respecting the proposal of the corporation of the town of Stratford to donate a site for the purpose of erecting a post office. He complained that Stratford had not received that attention from the Government to which it was entitled, and the premises provided for the accommodation of a post office and Custom House were quite inadequate. This led to a long debate, in which Ministerialists from every quarter aired their grievances against the Government because the construction of public buildings and works had not been commenced in their constituencies. Every member advanced the claims of the county town in his electoral district to have a new post office erected.

Harriston Correspondence.

The charity concert previously announced came off in the town hall on Tuesday evening of last week, and though the weather was inclement a very large crowd assembled, and standing room was scarcely obtainable. The ladies, under whose management it was got up, displayed considerable taste in the manner in which they decorated the hall, giving it a brilliant appearance. The programme was well prepared and thoroughly carried out. The concert began by a few remarks from Mayor Meiklejohn, explanatory of the object. The band opened with a well performed overture, and was followed by an instrumental selection by Prof. Lee and a comic song by Jas. Kennedy. Those two gentlemen have appeared so often before a Harriston audience and established their reputation so fully that any expatiation on their merits is uncalled for. Suffice it to say that their next performance was greeted with frequent applause. The vocal renderings of the Misses Strong, Wiser, Campbell and Harris were such as will insure them a large and appreciative audience in future. Misses Campbell and Strong gave a medley on the organ and guitar which was received with merited applause. The concert concluded with a vocal selection by Mr. Kennedy, and God save the Queen by the entire company.

"Resolved that Canada is now ready for independence," will be the subject of debate by Knox Church Young People's Mutual Improvement Association on Monday evening, the 8th of March. Mr. George Bingham, Principal of the Harriston School, will lead the affirmative, and Mr. D. Cameron, teacher, of Minto, the negative. Both those gentlemen are possessed of good debating powers, and having a good subject and good supporters the debate will be an interesting one.

"Resolved that the liquor traffic has done more injury to humanity than vice," will be the subject of debate by the young people of Guthrie Church Mutual Improvement Association on Tuesday, the 9th inst.

CHAPTER XXX.

NIGHT OF EXCITING ADVENTURES—DAVID RAMSAY IN PURSUIT—AGNES BORLAND IN THE HANDS OF HER CAPTORS—THE ISSUE.

Judging by the route taken by David Ramsay in his headlong haste, it might have seemed that he was rushing on with blind, unreasoning impetuosity, for though Mrs. Borland had informed him that the captors of Agnes had left the park by the shore gate, he was now running at utmost speed in a direction not only different, but nearly opposite. While the shore gate was far to the east, he was running with his face to the west, towards the main avenue, which he crossed; then he entered a narrow road which led to the building of the House Farm. Soon these buildings became dimly visibly in the darkness, standing between two woods to the right; but he did not go near them; he still kept the path which ran due west, and plunged into a dense wood which bounded the park in that direction.

But though agitated and excited to a degree he had perhaps never before experienced, David Ramsay had not lost his head, nor was he rushing on blindly and abortively. His mind was clear and quickened in activity by his anxiety, his course was directed by shrewd calculation. He considered it certain that the gipsies would carry Agnes to their encampment, miles off to the west, and as the high road by which they must travel made a long bend round the Grange policies, he was now making for it, at a point which was a long distance from the shore gate, hoping that if he was not in time to intercept the party he would be but a little way in their rear, able to follow in their track and overtake them ere they diverged from the road to go among the hills, where the encampment was situated.

Crashing his way through the fir plantation, panting heavily, but with no sense of fatigue, David vaulted over the fence into the road, and stood still listening intently for the sound of wheels, which in the night stillness could have been heard a long way off.

All was silent. He threw himself down and laid his ear on the ground, but even in that position could hear nothing but the usual night sounds—the rustle of the wind among the firs, the dreary cry of an owl in the Grange woods, and the bark of a dog in the far distance.

"I'm owre late," he exclaimed, springing again to his feet; "they have passed alang already, and every moment takes them farer away. I maun rin like a mawkin, or the puir lassie will be lost."

Throwing his gun into the other hand for relief to the aching arm which had carried it till now, he rushed on as fast as ever under increased anxiety and apprehension. When fully half a mile from the spot where he had paused to listen he was approaching another wood which the road intersected when a man on horseback came suddenly from out the shadow of the trees and pulled up right in his way.

"Halt!" exclaimed a stern, commanding voice.

David did so, almost under the horse's nose.

"Who are you, and what is your business here at this hour?" were the next imperious demands of the stranger, as he bent forward in the saddle, and gazed scrutinisingly into David's face.

"Oh, Maister Dobson, is that you?" cried David, as in the rider he recognized the district exciseman.

"Ay—you know me it seems; most people do, but I want to know who you are, and what brings you abroad at this hour of the night?"

"I'm Dauvit Ramsay, the Grange gardener; ye ken fine if it was licht aneuch to see me. But for guidness sake tell me where did ye meet them? Are they far alang the road?"

"So you are engaged in this illegal work," said the other in a severe tone. "I am amazed to find it so, Ramsay. Methinks the fate of Adam Borland's brother twenty years ago might have been a warning to you to avoid connection with the smugglers—and a man of such good character to."

"Me hae connection wi' the smugglers!" exclaimed David in astonishment. Ye never was farer wrang in yer life, Maister Dobson. But oh, sir, dinna keep me here a moment, for life and death hings on't. For the love o' heaven tell me hoo far I am ahint them."

"Behind who?"

"The band o' gipsies and the waggon."

"What gispies, what waggon?" cried the gauger eagerly.

"Gracious pooers, did ye no meet them?"

"I met no one."

"And hae ye come far along the road?"

"I have been waiting near this place for the last hour."

"Ye hinna seen them? They hinna come this way? Oh, God, what's to be done?" groaned David in deepest anguish.

"Why, what's the matter? Have the gipsies been robbing the Grange hen roosts?"

"Waur, waur, a thousand times waur, they hae carried off Agnes Borland."

"Good heaven, you don't say so."

"It's as true as death. An hoor since or mair they broke into the cottage and took her by force, put her in a waggon, and drove aff. Her mother cam' tae me wi' the news like a dementit woman, and nae wonder; and I started aff on the instant in the hope o'catchin' them. I made sure that they wad be alang this road, but waes me, it mauna be the case; and where they hae gane wi' the lassie God only kens."

"The atrocious scoundrels! What do they mean by such a daring outrage?"

"What's tae be dune? Oh, Maister Dobson, can ye no help me?" said David, in tones of agony.

"I will do what I can, my good fellow. But until we learn the route they have taken it would be useless to try to follow them. Come with me. My men are in pursuit of the smugglers. I have appointed a particular spot for our rendezvous, and I am on my way there now to receive information, if any has been obtained. Perhaps some of my lads have seen the gipsies."

"Ay, that's the chance," exclaimed David. "Is the place far aff?"

"No, it is quite near—down in the hollow of Larchton Wood. You know the place."

"Brawly. It is at the side of the muir."

"Just so—and scarcely a mile away."

"Ride on, sir, ride on—I'll keep up wi' ye. And heaven grant we may get tidin's o' the puir lassie."

Without further parley, they returned along the road till they came to a gate, which David opened for the horse to pass through. They then crossed several fields, the gauger keeping his horse at a smart walk while David held by the stirrup, for he was now feeling exhaustion consequent upon his terrible exertions, and but for the intense excitement under which he laboured would have utterly collapsed.

"Did ye rarely tak' me for a smuggler, Maister Dobson?" inquired David, as they hastened onward.

"Hush; speak low," cautioned the other. "We are in hot pursuit to-night, and I require to move with stealth and vigilance. Yawkins is on the coast, and the revenue men are on the alert both on land and sea. Two cutters are on the watch in the Solway, a number of my men spread along the shores to give me notice of any attempt at running the cargo, while, to make still surer work, others are patrolling the roads, the moor, and the woods. I am in hopes we shall make a seizure this time. I know I'd give a good deal to lay salt on the tail of Yawkins.

"He's an awfu' fellow that Dutchman, according to accounts."

"A perfect dare-devil! He has baffled us all times without number, and the man who succeeds in stopping his career is booked for promotion. I wish I were that lucky fellow; it would be a feather in my cap besides. Hush; here we are on the edge of the moor, and we require to move warily. Keep a sharp look-out, David, and I will do the same."

They crossed the moor in silence, seeing or hearing nothing, and in a short time came to the edge of Larchton Wood—a long strip of dark plantation which separated the moor from the enclosed pasture land beyond. Here the officer dismounted and, fastening his horse to a tree, he and Ramsay entered the wood, which at that point descended into a deep hollow, where reigned darkness, silence, and the utmost seclusion. The two men still refrained from speech, but the snapping of dry twigs beneath their feet betokened their movements.

About 1770 there was living in London a tradesman who had disposed of eleven daughters in marriage, with each of whom he gave their weight in halfpence as a fortune. The young ladies must have been bulky, for the lightest of them weighed £50 2s. 8d.

Mr. T. C. Mewburn, Government Inspector of Customs Agencies, has gone to Fort Erie to open a court of investigation. Charges of a series nature have been made against all the Government officials at that port and Mr. Mewburn has been authorized to make enquiries with regard to them.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly, These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

British Farming.

It is pleasant in these days of agricultural lamentation—justly enough begotten—to turn to a more agreeable picture as linned by Lord Thurlow, who farms some 800 acres in Morayshire, Scotland. Having reported that during 1879 he had made a profit of ten shillings per acre on his farming operations, a sceptical "Bedfordshire Farmer" asked for details, and his Lordship has promptly responded. There is decidedly nothing sensational in his modus operandi; on the contrary it is the good old prosaic fashion of converting straw and turnips into beef and mutton, and of meat into money. Lord Thurlow is evidently a shrewd, practical, business-like man, having his set of books, in which the rent—altho' his own landlord—appears as an item of charge, fixed by a professional and impartial valuer. They show the farm stocking well maintained at its inventoried value. Each stack of corn is entered in the books when it is threshed out, and accounted for in separate columns as sold, consumed, or used for seed. The cattle book notes the price of each beast bought or sold, with the dates, and a "difference" column indicates the total sum obtained for his turnip, straw and feeding stuffs purchased. The number of cows kept is 16, together with a shorthorn bull, the calves reared, and a superior number of extra cattle required to consume the winter keep are bought in during autumn. The number of the feeding stock is usually 100 head. Lord Thurlow finds it pays best to feed off at two year old, and finds no difficulty in doing so at a profit. For several years he has sold in the spring at an average of seven pounds sterling a head (say $35) more than he gave six months before. The cattle are of coure well housed in three parts covered courts, built of stone and iron, and slated. Eight pairs of horses are kept, many of them young mares that drop foals annually, and every animal well bedded in clean oat straw. Both steam and water power for threshing are employed. Horses and cows are replaced out of income, machinery out of capital, and on it 10 per cent is charged. A dead beast is charged at its first cost price against income. The land is mixed, lightish soil, takes a fair dose of lime, and gets 5 cwt. of bones and superphosphate with a liberal allowance of barnyard manure in laying down the green crop; it also gets a little artificial aid when sown out on barley. Drainage, where necessary, is freely practised, and the fine course shift is adopted, thus bringing two-fifths of the farm under grain, two-fifths in grass, and one fifth in turnips. 200 Cheviot ewes are kept, crossed with Leicester tups. 300 lambs are sold annually in August, realizing in a good year thirty shillings each. After three or four crops of lambs are taken, the ewes are then sold at about two shillings above their cost price. This forms an ample fund for filling up both vacancies and the purchase of tups under, of course, an item of income, but how much is not stated. Barley realized for the proprietor $1,000, and oats the sum of $1,500. Three thousand stones of hay, and about $1,000 of pigs, poultry, and dairy produce.

Lord Thurlow deduces from the foregoing results, the conclusion that British agriculture suffers infinitely more from climate influences than American importations; but it must not be forgotten that Morayshire is one of the richest agricultural districts in Scotland, is blessed with a good climate, and enjoyed in 1878 a magnificent harvest, whilst that of 1879 was on many farms a full average one, and this according to Lord Thurlow's own testimony. Looking at the matter from a careful survey, we are forced to the conclusion that the case of Lord Thurlow is largely an exceptional one, and that his agricultural record for the year 1879, stands out all the more prominently and brightly in consequence of the almost unusual disaster, rain and gloom, which has pervaded the agriculture of the United Kingdom, when the tenant farmers have repeatedly declared that with the rent thrown in, the loss of the year would not be recouped.

PRESENTATION IN NASSAGAWEYA.—On the evening of the 6th inst., a number of the members of Prospect Division Sons of Temperance, proceeded to the house of Mr. Jacob Allison, of Moffat, for the purpose of making the Misses Allison a presentation, as an expression of their appreciation for the very valuable services they have rendered the Division from time to time in vocal and instrumental music. After having fairly taken possession of the house, an address was read on behalf of the Division, by J. McPhedran, when Miss Allison was presented with a silver butter cooler by Miss S. Simpson, and Miss Emily, with a silver card receiver by Miss A. J. McPhedran, to which Miss Allison made a feeling reply. Mr. Allison also replied on their behalf. The good things of this life were next in order, to which ample justice was done, after which a very pleasant and sociable evening was spent, extending into the "wee short hours," when the company dispersed, highly pleased with their evening's visit.

JOHN WORSFOLD & Co.

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.

During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.

I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.

Also a case of lovely new prints.

Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.

In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

JOHN ROCHE.

NEW SPRING GOODS.

We are showing new goods for Spring wear in White Shirtings new Prints, new Embroideries and Fancy Trimmings, and although Cottons have advanced, our prices are the same as last year.

We have opened out cases of new Felt Hats, direct from the British Market. Styles are all new, including the latest novelties, and prices are marvellously low.

Nice Nobby Hats from 25 cents.

MIXTURE OF FINEST CONGOUS AND LAPSING SOUCHONG,
80 cents per pound.

ASSAM MIXTURE.
A blending of finest China and East Indian Teas, 90 cents per pound

The above are really superior mixtures of Black Teas, and one trial will commend them to all who are in the habit of using first class Black Teas.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

In the House of Commons on Wednesday the Chancellor of the Exchequer moved that Grissel, arrested at last session of Parliament for breach of privilege in having declared his ability to bribe a Parliamentary Committee, but who was discharged on the expiration of the session, be rearrested and reprimanded. He read a most humble apology. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, amidst cheers, moved his committal to Newgate; which was adopted without debate or division. Grissell will be imprisoned during the pleasure of the House of Commons.

At Ashton-under-Lyne, 10,000 cotton weavers' struck in consequence of a refusal of their employers to grant them an advance of 5 per cent., which the spinners recently obtained.

General Melikoff, Chief of the new Supreme Executive Commission, of Russia, was fired at by a young man with a revolver on the 2nd, when alighting from his carriage at his residence. Melikoff is not hurt. The culprit was immediately seized by a Cossack.

By the new Anti Slave Trade Convention between Great Britain and Germany co operation between war vessels of the two powers in the suppression of the slave traffic is assured.

The engineers and mechanics employed in the construction of the Tay bridge testified to the thoroughness of the work, but their evidence on the whole is not very satisfactory.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Czar of Russia.

LONDON, March 3.—A St. Petersburg despatch, dated the 2nd, says that after the serenade the Czar held a reception, at which the officers of the Imperial suite and the higher grades of the army were present. At 11:30 the members of the Council and civil functionaries were received. At noon there was a solemn procession to the palace church, the Czar escorting the Czarina. After the Te Deum had been sung the Czar received the diplomatic body in the throne room. This was followed by a brilliant assembly, at which four thousand guests were present. At three o'clock a cantata composed by Prince Peter of Oldenburg was sung by six hundred school children, the performance concluding with the National Anthem, and a hymn "Long Life to the Czar." An immense crowd filled the streets throughout the day, notwithstanding the unfavourable weather. In the evening all the Imperial family, except the Czar, attended the theatre, where the national hymn was sung repeatedly in answer to enthusiastic applause. The National Opera was well attended. "The Life of the Czar," by the Russian composer Michel Glinka, was played. All passed off well. The town was brilliantly illuminated, and the streets were densely thronged. There was no disturbance anywhere during the day or evening. The Duchess of Edinburgh officiated for the Czarina at the Assembly. The Duke of Edinburgh was present at all the ceremonies, wearing the uniform of the Duchess' Regiment of Lancers.

Adjournment of the House—Parnell's Visit to the City.

TORONTO, March 4.—The House presented a very thin appearance this morning, many members having returned home. Mr. Crooks announced at the morning session that prorogation would take place to-morrow afternoon. It is likely the session to-night will be a late one.

The anticipated visit of Parnell on Saturday next does not appear to create much stir. It is more than likely that the agitator will be the recipient of a reception.

The Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, March 4.—The speaker took the chair at eleven a.m. After routine business the Attorney General moved the third reading of the bill to abolish priority among execution creditors.

Mr. Meredith moved in amendment that where a debtor makes an assignment, any goods in the sheriff's hands or on execution, be assigned on payment of his fees. Lost on division. The bill was then read a third time.

The House went into committee on the municipal exemption bill. The Attorney General moved an amendment to the effect that the personal property of railway, gas, water and road companies shall be exempt, but the revenue from shares be taxed.

Mr. Meredith moved in amendment that dividends be exempt and the real and personal property taxed with exception of banks and railways, the personal property of which shall be exempt. Lost on a division.

A few verbal amendments was made by Attorney-General, and the Bill was reported.

The House adjourned at 1 o'clock, to meet again at 3.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of this Society takes place to-night.

IRISH RELIEF.—The Committees appointed at the public meeting to collect in the city for the Irish Relief Fund, commenced making their calls to-day.

PARLOR CONCERT.—A parlor concert will be held at the residence of Mrs. Cutten this evening in aid of the poor. A good musical programme will be carried out.

MRS. CUTTEN has secured for her parlor concert, on behalf of the poor, this evening, some musical talent of a high order, not hitherto displayed in Guelph.

G. W. R.—On Tuesday night over 700 persons went west for Winnipeg, on the Great Western Railway by the first train got up by the Paris agent of the G. W. R. (Mr. Patterson).

THE fund for the memorial window to be placed in St. Francis Xavier's church, Brockville, in memory of the late Bishop O'Brien, of Kingston, has reached the neighbourhood of $600.

THE Bishop of Toronto has written to the Globe, stating his hearty approval of the appointment of Dr. Lolley as Provost of Trinity College, as a man of moderate church views and broad sympathies, and calculated in every way to heal the differences that had prevailed, with respect to that institution.

GRAND CONCERT.—The choir of the Norfolk street Methodist Church are preparing for a grand sacred concert, to take place on the 12th inst., when selections from the following works of the masters will be rendered:—Messiah, Creation, 42nd Psalm, Mount of Olives, St. Paul, and Stabat Mater.

ENGLISH CONCERT COMPANY.—W. J. Speers' English Concert Company will appear at the City Hall on Wednesday, March 10th. Those who heard Mr. Speers' recitations at St. George's Society's recent charity concert, will scarcely fail to hear him again. The company comprises Sims Richards, an English tenor, who has made a very favorable impression in Toronto; Mrs. Morris, a favorite soprano, of Toronto; T. D. Beddoe, tenor; F. Warrington, barritone, and Clara Boyd, pianist of the Toronto Philharmonic Society.

GEORGIAN BAY AND WELLINGTON RAILWAY.—The Mount Forest Confederate says: We are informed that an understanding has been arrived at with the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the running of the Georgian Bay & Wellington Railway Line. The Vice-President of the road, Mr. James McMullen, and Messrs. Hugh Wilson and George Jackson, Directors, had a successful interview with Mr. Hickson, Manager of the G. T., on Saturday in Montreal, when satisfactory arrangements were made, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors of the G. B. & W. R. The Directors meet in this place to-morrow, when the proposal as made by Mr. Hickson will be submitted. It is believed that the running of the road at an early date may be looked for.

FORGERY AND EMBEZZLEMENT.—On Wednesday and Thursday, 25th and 26th Feb., Geo. Douglas, of Harriston, was tried before Mr. Swan, J.P., at Mount Forest, and committed to Guelph gaol for trial for forgery and embezzlement. The complainant in the case is T. F. Gardiner. From the evidence against the prisoner on the charge of embezzlement it appears Douglas agreed to sell a horse for the complainant guaranteeing to receive $85 or $90 for it. After a time he sold it to Wm. Lemon receiving three promissory notes, two for $35 each and one for $15. He gave the two notes for $35 each to Gardiner representing that amount to be all he could get for the horse. Gardiner allowed him $2 commission on the sale. The horse did not suit Lemon and he returned it to Douglas who promised to procure the notes which he never did. Douglas was charged with forging a note for $18 purporting to be signed by John Craig, of Wallace township, and which he gave to Francis T. Gardiner as part payment on a sewing machine. The prisoner arrived in this city on Friday last in charge of Constable Boulding, of Mount Forest, and was locked up to await his trial.

PROSPECTS FOR AN EXTENSIVE EMIGRATION.—There is every evidence of extensive emigration from Ontario to Manitoba and the Western States this spring. Already a large number of persons have left for those territories, and every day more are going. On Wednesday, Mr. Cameron, with his nephew, of Guelph Township, left by the Grand Trunk for Nebraska. To-day, (Thursday) Richard Davis, of Guelph, with his family and son-in-law, comprising eleven persons, left for Iowa by the same line. Both parties purchased their tickets from Mr. H. D. Morehouse. On the 16th inst., Mr. John M. McCallum, of Elmira, with his family and some neighbouring families, leave for Grand Forks, Dakota, where they purpose settling. Mr. Frank W. Ware, passenger agent, at one time living in this city, has sold tickets in Ontario to 87 persons recently for different points in Dakota. During the winter he sold in all, tickets to 150 families for Dakota and Nebraska.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Donald Guthrie, M. P., was in the city yesterday.

THE carnival to have taken place to-night has been postponed till harder weather sets in.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh to brisk westerly to northerly winds; cloudy to partly cloudy, colder weather.

ANNIVERSARY TEA-MEETING.—The anniversary tea meeting of the Norfolk st. Congregational Church will be held this evening. After tea an excellent programme of music, &c., will be carried out.

FAT CATTLE SHOW.—The Easter Fair and fat cattle show is to be held on Wednesday, 17th inst. The Agricultural Society have decided to give no prizes this year; but prizes equal to those given heretofore will be collected among the butchers and cattle drovers, so that the inducement to exhibit fat stock will not be less than in previous years.

H. M. S. PARLIAMENT.—This burlesque on Pinafore and applied to the Dominion Government, has been played by E. A. McDowell's Company in Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, and other eastern places with great success. In three performances at Ottawa the company cleared $600. The burlesque is spoken of very highly by the press. E.A. McDowell and his company will present H. M. S. Parliament in the City Hall here on the 15th inst.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR.—It is understood that Mr. Donald McCaig is to receive the appointment of School Inspector for South Wellington, in place of Mr. Somerville, resigned. The appointment is to be made by the Warden, who is empowered to do so in cases where an immediate appointment is necessary until the regular meeting of the County Council, which can confirm or otherwise the temperary appointment of the Warden.

MONUMENT.—We understand that Mr. Duncan Stewart, of Esquesing, has awarded to Messrs. McQuillan & Hamilton, of the Wellington Marble Works, Guelph, the contract for erecting a large monument on his burial plot. The monument will be manufactured from granite, and when erected will be the finest in the cemetery. We believe Mr. Stewart could not have placed his order in more reliable or responsible hands, as this firm has lately erected a number of large monuments in this vicinity, and in every case have given the utmost satisfaction. The Wellington Marble Works are becoming noted in this neighbourhood for the superior work put out by them.—Acton Free Press.

PROPOSED RAILWAY EXTENSION.—Messrs. Stiff, Domville, Hobson and Tiffin, of the Great Western Railway, were in the city to-day, (Thursday) in connection with the proposed extension of the railway into the centre of the city. They examined the line along which it was proposed to build the extension to Cardigan street. While in the city they took occasion to make some enquiry as to the convenience of the water works pipes to the Western Railway, and the cost at which the Railway Company could be supplied with water for the station and for locomotives. In both matters they were given full information.

THE WATER WORKS ENGINEER.—The Water Works Commissioners after deliberation, have appointed Hugh L. Walker, Chief Engineer; George Spooner and Richard Evans, Assistant Engineers and firemen at the engine house.

Mayor Macintosh is trying hard to secure work for the unemployed laborers of Ottawa. He has had communication with railway contractors, and is anxious to get the men out of the city, as they are becoming a nuisance both to himself and the Government. An effort is being made to have the Minister of Railways provide for the transport of the laborers to the sections of the Canada Pacific Railway where work is now in progress, the contractors to guarantee a refund from wages. The workingmen are quiet at present, awaiting further developments.

SUDDEN DEATH AT A FUNERAL.—Mrs. Martin Stadtlander, of Brant, while attending the funeral of Mrs. Hasback, of Lamlack, on Wednesday, fell down on reaching the house and almost instantly expired. The deceased in the morning was in good health and conversed with her husband and other friends along the way to the funeral up to the moment of her seizure. Dr. Landerkin was summoned, but deemed an inquest unnecessary. She was about fifty years of age, and had always enjoyed good health. She leaves a husband and five children.

DEATH OF A VERY OLD RESIDENT OF PRESTON.—The death of Sophia Swartz, at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Henry Hegley, at Preston, on the 23rd ult., removes from the community, the oldest resident in Preston. The deceased departed this life at the advanced age of 92 years, 6 months and 5 days. She was born on the 18th of August, 1788, shortly after the United States had gained their independence, and before the first French Revolution had commenced. She was a Pennsylvania German, and came from that State to the County of Waterloo in 1820. She lived with her son-in-law in Preston, for the long period of thirty-two years, and until the last, retained her faculties almost unimpaired. She had no positive disease, but the system at last fairly worn out, gave way, and she passed away calmly without pain and without a murmur. During her long life she had done her duty faithfully and well, and lived to see five generations grow up and flourish round her. She was grandmother to Mrs. Allan McIntyre, of Aberfoyle. The funeral was very largely attended by friends from far and near, who met to pay the last token of respect to this venerated and aged settler.

Accidents on Railways.

The Select Committee of the Legislature on Railway Accidents, held its final meeting on Monday afternoon to prepare a report to present to the House. After considerable discussion a report was prepared embodying the following recommendations:—

1. That all overhead bridges should be placed so as to have a clear span of at least seven feet from the top of the highest freight car to the lowest member of the bridge above.

1. That the running board upon freight cars should be as nearly flush with the roof of the car as possible, and not less than from 24 to 30 inches wide, and to extend as far as the deadwood of the cars will safely admit, so as to leave as little space as possible between the ends of the running board on each of the cars; and also that a hand rail should be placed along the side of the running board, to be not less than 30 inches in height.

3. That your Committee have examined a large number of automatic and other couplers for freight cars, some of which appeared well fitted for the purpose of coupling, and would go far to do away with the necessity of the men going so frequently between the cars. The Committee would therefore suggest whether, in view of the great loss of life and injury to brakesmen in the coupling of cars, it is not desirable that the adoption of automatic couplers should be made compulsory upon Canadian railway companies.

4. That all frogs be filled in with wood, according to the system now in use on the Northern Railway.

5. That the letter of C. J. Brydges as, well as the statement of others, strongly favor the adoption of braking by means of vans as used upon English railways, but your Committee were unable to obtain sufficient evidence to warrant them in expressing a decided opinion upon this point.

An automatic coupler was shown by A. CROL, patron maker, Brantford; also a power brake by E. B. Coons, Mount Forest.

Irish Relief Fund.

Mr. Reynolds, County Treasurer, has received the following letter, which explains itself, from the Duchess of Marlborough:

DUBLIN CASTLE, Feb. 16, 1880.

SIR,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the second of February, enclosing your first bill of exchange for £102 1is. 6d. stg., being a grant made by the Municipal Council of the County of Wellington to the Irish relief fund.

Will you kindly convey my warmest thanks to the Council for their kind assistance.

I remain very faithfully,
F. A. MARLBOROUGH.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.—The license commissioners for West Wellington are Messrs. J. McLaren, of Mount Forest, W. Sturtridge and Thomas Harcourt, of Peel. Mr. Geo. Moore, of Arthur village, has been re appointed Inspector. The first meeting of the commissioners was held at Arthur village on Tuesday, 2nd inst., when Mr. Sturtridge was elected chairman and Moore re-elected secretary. The next meeting will be held at Markle's hotel, Harriston, on Monday afternoon, April 12th, at 4 o'clock, when applications for tavern and shop licenses will be considered.

LAST GENERAL ELECTION.—By the Public Accounts for the year ending 30th June last we find that the expenses of the elections for the Commons at the general election in September, 1878, were as given below. It will be noticed that South Grey is the lowest:

N. Grey—R. McKnight, Ret'g Officer,	$ 569 59.
E. Grey—T. Lauder, " "	791 36.
S. Grey—T. Maughan, " "	515 94

OTTAWA FREE PRESS.—Messrs. Brecken and Hackett must feel deeply obliged to the Ministerial press for suppressing all mention of their speeches in Parliament concerning the N. P., and, were it not for the faithful Opposition reporters, their constituents would have never known that they had raised their voices in behalf of their sorely oppressed Province. But, whether the ministerial press suppresses the truth or not, the Islanders are alive to the difficulties of their situation, and are making odious comparisons in statements of trade. These figures show that the exports of the Island have decreased from $1,961,977 in 1878 to $1.502,403 in 1879, a falling off of $469,574 during the first year of the National Policy.

ROBBERY AT GALT.—On Monday evenin Simon Pannabaker, accompanied by a friend, James Balfour, stopped at the Central Hotel, Galt, for tea on his way home from Hamilton to Washington. After tea he found a box containing his accordeon missing from his waggon and suspicion pointing to a man named Geo. Allison, residing on Mill street, Allison was arrested and brought up on Tuesday. Owing to the peculiar circumstances of Allison's family, he was bound on his own recognizance to appear when called upon. On a search of Allison's premises being made, a martingale and a pair of ivery rings belonging to Sipps & Stauffer's livery stable were found. Allison confesses to having stolen them.

A NEW USE FOR THE TELEPHONE.—Hitherto it has been a matter of some difficulty to determine the time of flight of small-arm projectiles, owing to the impossibility of seeing them strike. In a series of experiments made by the U. S. Ordnance Department this difficulty has been overcome by the use of the telephone. The telephone was connected with two Blake transmitters, one placed near the gun, the other in front of and near the target. The time between the report of the gun and sound of the ball upon the target was measured by a stop watch. The observations, founded on a large number of experiments, never differed more than a quarter or half of a second from each other, the slight delay in starting the watch being neutralized by the delays in stopping it. It was found that the time of transit was affected by the wind, being shortened by a rear and lengthened by a head wind.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, March 4.

After some unimportant business, Mr. Hardy moved the third reading of the Division Court Bill. Mr. White moved an amendment to strike out the section allowing the taxation of lawyer's fees, which was defeated by a majority of 41 to 24. An amendment by Mr. Meredith, condemning the taking away from the county judges of the right to appoint clerks and bailiffs, was defeated by a majority of 44 to 25, and a third amendment, also by Mr. Meredith, to enlarge the jurisdiction in cases where the debt is liquidated, as well as in those where it is ascertainable by the signature of the defendant, was voted down by 49 to 23. The third reading was then carried.

After the Municipal Bill had been read a third time and certain returns ordered, Mr. Crooks withdrew the motion to ratify the Order in Council authorizing the expenditure of $30,000 out of capital for boarding house extension in connection with Upper Canada College. He explained that he did so simply on account of the complaint that the matter had been sprung upon the House, and not at all because he was prepared to abandon the position he had taken the day before on the question. The discussion was carried on by Messrs. Lauder, Gibson (Huron), Bell, and Ross, who all protested against making permanent improvements on the present valuable site.

The House then proceeded to concur in the items of supply previously allowed to stand over, the Opposition insisting on divisions on seven different items, all of which were carried by large majorities, the average being about 26.

RAILWAY AID.

On the motion to go into Committee of Supply for the purpose of appropriating $10,000 for the payment of expenses that may be incurred in establishing the claims of Ontario to the disputed territory, Mr. Meredith moved the following amendment: "While this House is ready to vote the sum of $10,000 for the purpose recommended in the supplementary estimates of the 1st of March, 1880, and while it recognizes the propriety of exercising great caution in granting further public aid to railways, it does not approve of the railway policy of the Government as announced by the Commissioner of Public Works, and is of the opinion that the adoption of that policy is calculated to do great injury to deserving enterprises and to important sections of the country."

Mr. Mowat denied that any promise was made to railways, nor did any railway lose its claim on promises. Looking at the liberality of the Government in the past, these railways may have indulged in the hope that they might receive subsidies. The statement of the hon. member regarding the building of luxurious buildings for themselves was certainly a disingenuous one. He knew that a large portion of the half million dollars required for new Parliament buildings would be drawn from a sum realized by the sale of the present building. He also knew that the present Legislative Hall was quite unfitted for the purposes which it was supposed to serve. And let him inform the hon. member that the surplus funds which members of the Government claimed to exist did exist. Were they to grant aid to railways requiring aid twice the sum which they possessed woul not be sufficient to satisfy them all. But the Government held that when public sentiment clearly was against the granting of any more railway grants, it was their duty to bow to that opinion. Further investigation may show that additional grants would be generally and favorably received by the country, and when that was shown they would be only too glad in that case to meet the wishes of the country.

After some discussion the amendment was lost on the following division:—

YEAS—Messrs. Bell, Boulter, Broder, Calvin, Creighton, French, Hay, Jelly, Kerr, Lauder, Long, Meredith, Metcalfe, Monk, Morgan, Morris, Near, Parkill, Richardson, Robertson (Hastings,) Sinclair, Tooley, White, Wigle—24.

NAYS—Messrs. Appleby, Awrey, Badgerow, Ballantyne, Baxter, Bishop, Blezard, Bonfield, Cascaden, Chisholm, Crooks, Dryden, Field, Fraser, Freeman, Gibson (Huron,) Gibson (Hamilton), Graham, Harcourt, Harkin, Hawley, Laidlaw, Livingston, Lyon, McCraney, McKim, McMahon, Mack, Miller, Mowat, Nairn, Neelon, Pardee, Paxton, Peck, Robinson (Cardwell,) Ross, Springer, Striker, Waters, Watterworth, Widdifield, Wood, Young—44.

Mr. Mowat moved the resolution he had placed on the notice paper respecting the boundary award, which after reciting the facts connected with the case, expressed regret at the position taken by the Dominion Government, and instructed the Government of Ontario to take steps to make good the claim of this Province. After some discussion a division was taken, when the resolutions were carried by a majority of sixty four to one, the sole discontent being the member for Muskoka and Parry Sound.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A fatal accident took place on Saturday last near Burgoyne, County Bruce. Mr. A. Galbraith was chopping in the woods when a tree fell upon him, inflicting such serious injuries that he died in the evening.

Daily Mercury.

THURSDAY EVNG, MARCH 4, 1880

MR. BLAKE'S proposition regarding the postponement of the construction of the Pacific Railway over the Rocky Mountains is meeting with favor among a large number of Government supporters, who are becoming alarmed at the rapidity with which the country is being plunged into debt.

THE petition of the Credit Valley Railway Company, that Parliament do pass an Act giving them the right of way over the Esplanade into the city of Toronto, has been printed and circulated among the members of both Houses in Ottawa.

THE public revenue seems to be going to the dogs. From every port in the Dominion we learn that the receipts for the month of February are very far below what they were a year ago, and even making allowance for the rush that there was a year ago to get goods out of bond before the new tariff came in force, the decrease is alarming.

SAYS the Hamilton Times: The only weight and measure inspector west of Hamilton appointed in Mr. Mackenzie's time and still retained, is one Young, a Reformer, we believe, in the county of Waterloo, but the reason for his retention is not that he is a competent man, which we believe is the fact, but because he is brother-in law to Mr. Kranz, the Tory member in the Commons.

A NOTICE of motion has been made in the House of Commons that the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, notwithstanding that they form a part of the Confederation of Canada, have each claims and rights to distributive shares of the fishery award, according to the extent to which the said privileges were enjoyed on their respective sea coasts and shores, on the same principles on which the claims and right of Newfoundland were recognized, and that said claims and privileges of the said other provinces have not been impaired by the fact that they form a portion of said Confederation.

THE Kingston Whig truly says that as an instance of brazen shamelessness that of Hooper, the defaulter, insolvent, and member for Lennox, beats all precedent. He is bound to stick to his seat unless he is actually kicked out of it. As the Whig says :—"The people of Lennox are being appropriately punished, too, for their rejection of Sir Richard Cartwright. They chose the rod with which to flail their own backs, and they should not whine at the smart of self-inflicted punishment. The Hooper disgrace will surely be a lesson to the electors of Lennox for all time to come."

THE proceedings of the Ontario Boundary Committee are farcical. Except the chairman, not a solitary member of the Committee appears to have any acquaintance with the subject, and possibly the Committee was purposely selected as at present constituted on that very account. Hon. Mr. Mills was called, and gave testimony bearing on the subject. The treatment he received at Mr. Dawson's hands was certainly far from courteous. Instead of Mr. Mills' attendance being politely requested, without any previous intimation he was served with a summons as if he were a refractory witness. The Ontario Government have been requested to be present by counsel.

THE annual meeting of the Halifax Chamber of Commerce, on Monday, seemed to resolve itself into a general assault upon the Dominion Government, in which strong Conservatives took an active part. The annual Report of the Executive Committee, signed by the President, one of the leading Conservatives– condemned the tariff, and expressed a hope that it would be changed. The adoption of this clause was moved by Mr. Adam Burns, another strong Conservative, the head of a large dry goods firm, and one of the proprietors of the Government organ there. He said the tariff was unjust, impoverishing the revenue, interfering with healthy competition, promoting smuggling, and generally putting a premium upon dishonesty. The motion was seconded by John Taylor Wood, another Conservative, who said the Government's policy had ruined his business.

WE are not surprised at the verdicts returned by the Coroner's jury in the case of the Biddulph murders. Generally speaking the character of the verdicts rendered in such cases is just what was to be expected from the circumstantial nature of the evidence submitted to the jury, who living there were glad of an excuse to shun the responsibility of criminally implicating the accused. Outsiders who may not have watched the progress of this case as carefully as those personally connected with it are at the first blush liable to jump at the conclusion that the evidence of the boy John Connor was quite strong enough to convict James Carroll, James Purtell and Thomas Ryder, with having committed the tragedy at the Donnelly homestead, but it should be borne in mind that although Connor swears positively to these men being present, he never saw a blow struck all the time he was under the bed, although he heard the row and the noise made by the blows upon Thomas Donnelly. Neither was there any direct evidence to show that the family were murdered, but of course, everybody believes that they were killed before being burned. The case is now relegated to the higher courts, where no doubt the evidence both for and against the accused will be put to the severest test, and we can only with patience abide the issue.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 3.

Mr. Langevin in answer to Mr. Hay, said that the Government were considering a scheme for the preservation and improvement of Toronto harbour.

Mr. Casey asked that the petition which he had presented yesterday against the member for Lennox be read to-day in order that it might be considered along with the one previously presented.

Sir John Macdonald said the hon. gentleman had taken the responsibility of presenting one petition against an hon. member of this House, and that should be dealt with before another was taken up.

Mr. Casey said his only object was to save time and trouble by considering both petitions together instead of one at a time.

The matter then dropped.

Mr. Hooper read a statement, in which he replied to the allegations contained in the petition attacking his seat. He claimed that the matter was still sub judice, and he denied all knowledge that there was any deficit in his accounts as treasurer for the county. He appealed to the political sympathies of the majority by claiming that he was being martyrized because of his political convictions.

Mr. Casey spoke on behalf of the motion referring the petition to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. He dealt with Mr. Hooper's denials seriatim, and pointed out the inaccuracies and quibblings with which they were permeated.

Messrs. Kirkpatrick, Ives, and Cameron (Victoria) spoke strongly against the motion, contending that the proposed reference was unprecedented, that there were not sufficient facts before the House to justify it, that the matter complained of were purely municipal in their character, and finally that the hon. member assailed had denied in toto the truth of the charges. The latter gentleman moved an amendment to the effect that the reference should not be made as the petition did not disclose any facts attacking the hon. member's right to his seat, and because the hon. member denied the allegations.

Mr. Cameron (Huron) quoted a number of precedents in support of the original motion, and Mr. Casey speaking to the amendment claimed that the House had no right to pronounce judgment either on the sufficiency or non-sufficiency of the charges until it had enquired into them.

Mr. Macdougall based an argument on the election of Mr. Hooper as proof that he was then respected.

Mr. Bunster amused the House by contrasting Mr. Hooper's defalcation of $30,000 with the deficits which have appeared in the past financial statements of Canada, and claiming that there was no difference between the conduct of Mr. Hooper as a defaulter and that of the Finance Minister.

At Mr. Anglin's suggestion the last sentence of Mr. Cameron's amendment was eliminated, and the amendment was carried without a division.

Mr. McLennan moved for a statement of each contract let up to 31st December, 1879, on the Pacific Railway; also a statement of the decision, if any, arrived at by the Government in relation to the bridging of Red River with the part of the road under the construction from Thunder Bay and with the city of Winnipeg.

Considerable discussion ensued.

The Minister of Railways and Canals in the course of his speech intimated that the main line of the Pacific Railway would cross the Red River at Selkirk, and the existing link of sixteen miles to connect with the main line further west constructed. Forgetting momentarily the abuse that was lavished by the Tory press on Mr. Mackenzie because he did not proceed rashly with the construction of the Thunder Bay Branch, Sir Charles Tupper admitted that it was not until some time after he was appointed Minister of Railways and Public Works that he believed the information collected justified him in soliciting tenders for the construction of the work.

Mr. Mackenzie, continuing the debate, dwelt at some length on the question of changing the route of the main line in Manitoba from through the Narrows to south of Lake Manitoba, which change he condemned on the ground of its enormously increasing the cost of construction, the cost of working, and of lengthening the line.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

A decree has been published fixing the force of the army, for the year 1880-81 at 90,000 men for Spain; 38,000 for Cuba; 10,000 for the Phillipine Islands; 3,895 for Porto Rico.

The Galt post office caught fire on the evening of the 1st inst., through a coal oil lamp exploding. The flames were soon extinguished. The only damage being a severe scorching to the frame work and the wictet, some broken glass, and one or two scorched letters.

The wheat in Dumfries has been injured considerably of late by alternating frost and sunshine, and farmers are anxious about the weather of March.

Preparations for the first annual Exhibition of the Canadian Academy of Arts are now progressing rapidly in Ottawa, and appearances indicate that the opening on Saturday will be a brilliant affair.

It is positively asserted that Mr. Ryan, M. P. for Marquette, has been promised a position by the Government.

Mr. Vennor is still at it. He had the fulfilment of at least one prophecy of his within his power, namely, that if his last February announcement should fail he would retire. He has acknowledged the failure, but the oracle within him will not sit down. It announces heavy snow-falls from the first of March; also between the fifth and seventh; also on the thirteenth, and on the sixteenth and seventeenth; also from the first to the fourth of April.

The formation of a naval reserve force in Canada for the protection of the Canadian mercantile marine is suggested. The suggestion is not likely to be adopted, as Canada is not in a position to bear the expenses of maintaining a naval force.

Mr. Parnell had a fine reception at Peoria Wednesday. The following is a list of his appointments:—March 6th, Toronto; 8th and 9th, Montreal; 11th, Ottawa; 12th, Ogdensburg; 13th, Syracuse; 14th, Elmira; 15th, Yonkers.

Chief of Police Ferrings, of St. Thomas, and a detective of London on Wednesday arrested the defaulting city clerk of Urbana, Ohio, on a charge of stealing $60,000 belonging to that corporation. The defaulter has been living for some time near London. It is alleged that he forged the debentures in the name of the city, and, having received cash therefore at a reasonable discount, forsook his situation and came to London.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. Hespeler Correspondence.

Close of evening class—The examination of the evening class in connection with the Hespeler Mechanic's Institute took place on Friday evening last. The class was conducted 35 evenings, with an average attendance of 21 pupils. The class was divided into a senior and junior department. The premium of $20 given by Government to such classes was distributed as follows:—In the senior class, 1st James Hogarth $5; 2nd John Jardine, $3; 3rd Martha Anderson, $2; 4th Peter Lang, $1; 5th Harry Limpert, 50c. In the junior division—1st James William Cunningham, $3; 2nd James Anderson, $2; 3rd William Atkinson, $1.50; 4th Charles Martin, $1; 5th and 6th Wm. Bolduc and George Baker being a tie receive 50c each. There were present as a committee of management, Messrs. Brewster, Zyrd, Pringle and the President, Mr. Weaver. We are happy to state that several of the pupils made very rapid progress during the term. Others, however, did not take that interest that they ought to have taken, and although we are pleased to state that our average is almost as great as that in some of our neighbouring cities, at similiar institutions, yet it might have been considerably greater.

Mr. Peter Itter, auctioneer and contractor, of this place, having received the appointment of manager of the Waterloo County Poor House at Berlin, and Mrs. Itter that of Matron, they will be removing thither in a few weeks. We wish Mr. Itter much success in his new position and regret his departure from amongst us; but feel satisfied that he will discharge with much efficiency the duties he has undertaken.

Two sons of Mr. John Thomson, formerly of Killean, Puslinch, but now of this village left here on Tuesday morning last to try their luck in Dakota. We would say of these young men that they are likely to hew their way successfully, being strong, active, well behaved and industrious.

Hespeler, March 2, 1880.

As an evidence of the good accomplished through the visit of Rev. E. P. Hammond to St. Catharines, and the united labours of himself and ministers of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, and Congregational churches, the following figures have been given as the increase of each church in membership:—Methodist, 200; Knox, Presbyterian, 70; First Presbyterian, 24; Baptist, 50; Congregational, 10; besides numbers who have joined other churches.

SEWER GAS AND DISEASE.—The authorities of one of the largest hospitals in London lately took measures to vetilate all the drains and sewers in connection with their institution. Up to the time these alterations were made, pyæmia and erysipelas had almost driven the medical staff to dispair. When the whole of the ventilation was completed, and as soon as the pressure was removed from the traps of the closets and lavatories, no fresh cases were found to occur. For months the hospital was free from both erysipelas and pyæmia. Suddenly, however, there was a fresh outbreak of these diseases, but it was noticed that the epidemic was confined to one of the surgical wards, built apart from the main building, on the pavilion plan, and having only one storey. Close investigation proved that the ventilation pipe in this wing had been stopped up by a careless workman. When this was remedied, all traces of the epidemic disappeared.

TWENTY YEARS IN EXILE.

A TALE OF THE SOLWAY.

CHAPTER XXX.

A NIGHT OF EXCITING ADVENTURES—DAVID RAMSAY IN PURSUIT—AGNES BORLAND IN THE HANDS OF HER CAPTORS—THE ISSUE.

At the lowest part of the hollow a man issued from beneath a tree and advanced towards them. It was too dark to distinguish anything but his moving figure, and Dobson at once called out—

"Who goes there?"

"Rankine, sir," was the answer.

"Ah. What news—any discovery made?" asked his superior officer quickly.

"A waggon filled with men has come frem the east and gone down the shore road to the foot of the Black Scaup. It is thought Yawkins is to run his cargo there, and the men are waiting to receive it."

"It's them, it's them," exclaimed David, breathlessly.

"What kind of men are they?" asked the gauger.

"We could not make them well out in the darkness, and durst not go too near in case they should see us—but it is likely they are the shore fishers."

"Have they not rather the appearance of gipsies?"

"Gipsies, sir!" returned Rankine, in a tone of surprise. "Perhaps they are gipsies—it is like one of their waggons."

"Oh, it's them, there's nae doot it's them," again burst forth David.

"But why have they taken the girl to the foot of the cliffs—they must intend to put her on board Yawkin's lugger."

The question and supposition were uttered by Dobson, as they sped back to the edge of the wood where the horse was tied. David listened to the words with a groan, a shudder, and a fervently ejaculated prayer that they might be in time to resue her.

"Gallop, Maister Dobson, gallop!" he exclaimed with imploring earnestness. "Oh, gallop down to the Black Scaup, and us twa will follow as fast as we can."

"There is no need for such haste now, David," returned the officer, soothingly.

"In fact, over haste would spoil my game. The cargo must be landed before my men show themselves, and if the alarm is given the boats will put back."

"But the lassie—the poor lassie, think o' her, sir," pleaded David.

"She is safe enough for a time. They will not put her on board till the lugger is emptied, and that will take an hour or two."

"An hour or twa!" repeated David, in horrified accents. "And maun Agnes Borland remain in the wretches' hands a' that time? The fricht will kill her, if it was naething mair. Na, I canna let that be."

And as he spoke he rushed away in the direction of the cliffs.

"Stop, you fool!" cried the officer sternly, but as David paid no heed to his injunction, he set spurs to his horse and intercepted him in his headlong course.

"I cannot have this night's works spoiled by your rashness," he angrily said, as he bent from his saddle and laid his hand firmly on the gardener's shoulder.

"Let me gang, sir. I winna be hindered," cried David, struggling distractedly to be free.

"You must be hindered. If you get your way we'll miss the cargo, and the girl will be lost into the bargain. Come, Ramsay, you are a sensible man; don't lose your head like that. Be guided by me, and I'll get the girl out of their hands."

It was not without much difficulty that David could be persuaded to proceed in the deliberate and cautious manner which the officer desired, but the latter having at length convinced him that the course he wished to take would sacrifice rather than save Agnes, he put a strong restraint on his feelings, and went no faster than the gauger allowed, his mind the while being racked by anxiety and filled with agony at the thought of the terror and suffering which Agnes must be enduring in the hands of her captors.

In this respect his imagination did not exaggerate the reality. The horror and despair of Agnes Borland when she was lifted into the van and driven away from the cottage at a rapid rate over the smooth turf of the park were indescribable. At first she was in a state of half-suffocated stupor, for the cloak in which her head was enveloped interfered with respiration, and her frantic but vain efforts at release soon produced an exhaustion which must quickly have ended in death by suffocation, had not the man who was seated beside her unwound the folds of the cloak and given her air, saying, however, as he did so.

"Now, you keep quiet, or I'll clap on the muffler again."

After a few spasmodic gasps the suffocating feeling diminished, and the fresh air blowing in through the rents in the canvas helped greatly to revive her. The alleviation of her physical discomfort enabling her more fully to realise her position, brought an increase of mental terror, under the promptings of which she boldly exclaimed—

"Why have you dragged me from home, and where are you taking me?"

"Can't answer no questions," said the man next her in a tone of gruff, unpitying decision. "All I can say is we'll not harm you if you keep quiet, but if you scream out or make any noise you'll be locked up."

"But oh, tell me——"

"Can't tell you nothing. You'll soon know what it means, but not from us, and I'd advise you for your own good to keep quiet."

"Oh, do take pity and let me go. You have hearts—you——"

"Shall I put on the cloak?" said the deep voice, and a rough hand was passed over her head.

"No—no—I will be quiet," sobbed Agnes, and sank back into the corner with feelings of hopeless despair.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for. For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

Sold by all druggists.

From Mr. Bunting's Bill to incorporate the Mail Printing Company, it would appear that the proprietors of the paper are Messrs. C. W. Bunting, John Riordon, C. Riordon and W. J. Douglas. The capital stock is $500,000.

Parnell is expected in Toronto on Tuesday next, active preparations are being made for his reception by the Irish societies.

Mr. Chas. McLellan, of Arthur township, has sold his fine heavy draught team of horses to Mr. Smith, of Buffalo, for $300.

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly. These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of,

NEW DRY GOODS

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

STAPLES.

Shipments of 2 and 3 ply Wool, Tapestry and fine Brussels Carpets.

Dominion Rifle Association.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association was held at Ottawa on Wednesday. The Governor-General made a speech congratulating the Association on the work performed, and stated that he would double the annual subscription. Votes of thanks were passed to the Government, to Col. Gzowski and to the Wimbledon team. It was resolved to abolish the back position in firing. Lt.-Col. Kirkpatrick was elected President of the Association. Col. Gibson and Capt. Mason, of Hamilton, were present at the meeting.

The Hon. J. B. Blanchet, who captained the Wimbledon Team, makes the following mention in his report: "They carried off many prizes. The Prince of Wales' Prize, the principal one, being won by Lieut.-Col. Gibson, of the 13th Battalion, Hamilton, Ontario, created the greatest enthusiasm for the Canadians in the camp. Col. Gibson became the hero of the hour. He received from all sides congratulations for his great success. His compatriots and brother riflemen gave him an ovation. As Canadians, we rejoiced over that victory."

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

On Tuesday morning over fifty members of the Legislative Assembly called at at the Government House to pay their respects to Lieutenant-Governor Macdonald, who, before another session will find a place in the lengthening roll of ex-Lieutenant-Governors.

The contract for conveying the Canadian mail from San Francisco to Victoria, B. C., has been awarded to Messrs. Goodhall, Nelson & Perkins, of San Francisco, at $409 per trip, or between $17,000 and $18,000 per annum. The general feeling was that the Government should in awarding this contract give the preference to a Canadian or British Columbian firm. But no. Americans are selected by a Government whose policy is boastingly paraded as that of "Canada for the Canadians."

Montreal Live Stock Market.

MONTREAL, March 1.

The cattle markets were extremely dull today. Although the offerings were not large, yet not half of them were sold. Prices were rather lower than on last Monday, but not generally so low as on Thursday. Few or no really good cattle were offered to-day and prices range from 2½ to 4c. per lb. About 85 head of cattle were at Viger Market, and nearly half of these were not sold, as drovers were asking slightly higher figures and butchers wished to keep prices at the low rates which prevailed in the latter part of last week. R. J. Hopper sold 11 cattle at from $17.50 to $38 each, or 2½ to 3½c. per lb. R. Jones sold 8 cattle at from $30 to $55 each. M. Laporte sold 7 cattle at from $20 to $30 each, or 2½ to 3½c per lb. A few live hogs were sold to-day at $4.75 per 100 lbs; three spring lambs were sold for $11. The arrivals of live stock by rail at Point St. Charles last week were 21 car loads of cattle, 3 car loads of horses, and 153 hogs.

The Markets.

March, 3.

Liverpool advices report the market 1d. to 2d. lower for wheat on a small business. Floating cargoes of wheat were worse and no maize offering. The Chicago market opened strong, but under free selling it lost the advance of yesterday and closed at the lowest prices of the day. New York was rather easier. In Montreal the local breadstuffs market was rather unsettled with very little business doing. The following sales of flour were reported on 'Change: 75 brls superior extra, at $6 15; 100 do, spring extra, at $5 90; 50 strong bakers', at $6 50; Ontario oatmeal $4 50 to $4 60 per brl; cornmeal $2 90 to $3 per brl. The grain market is quiet. Canada spring wheat $1 39 to $1 41. Corn, 70c. Peas, 77c. Oats, 31c to 32c. Barley and rye nominal. In Toronto the receipts were rather better, although they were very small. There were about 300 bushels of wheat, which brought from $1 29 to $1 30 for fall, and from $1 28 to $1 29 for spring. Two loads of barley sold at 62c and 63c. Peas, 300 bushels, at 66½c to 67c. One load of oats at 40c. About 50 loads of hay sold at from $7 to $11 per ton. There was no straw. Hogs, to butchers, brought $6 25 and $6 50. Butter was firmer, and eggs easier.

Maine News.

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

The anti-Chinese Association of British Columbia have sent to Mr. DeCosmos, for presentation to Parliament, a petition asking for a measure to prevent the increase of the Chinese population of the Pacific Province. A petition will also be submitted from the Corporation of Victoria.

From correspondence brought down, it would appear that the Government has decided not to entertain the application of Prince Edward Island for a portion of the Fishery Award. But the Government of that Province has sent in another memorial on the subject and may yet be successful in obtaining what it asks for.

JOHN WORSFOLD & Co.

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.

During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.

I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.

Also a case of lovely new prints.

Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.

In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

JOHN ROCHE.

NEW SPRING GOODS.

We are showing new goods for Spring wear in White Shirtings new Prints, new Embroideries and Fancy Trimmings, and although Cottons have advanced, our prices are the same as last year.

We have opened out cases of new Felt Hats, direct from the British Market. Styles are all new, including the latest novelties, and prices are marvellously low.

Nice Nobby Hats from 75 cents.

Boy's Glengarry's from 25 cents.

Choice New Season Black Teas

I have just received a consignment of the above, and would call the attention of the public to the following choice mixtures:

FOO CHOW MIXTURE.
An extra fine China mixed Tea, 75 cents per pound.

MIXTURE OF FINEST CONGOUS AND LAPSING SOUCHONG,
80 cents per pound.

ASSAM MIXTURE.
A blending of finest China and East Indian Teas, 90 cents per pound

The above are really superior mixtures of Black Teas, and one trial will commend them to all who are in the habit of using first class Black Teas.

Special reduction to purchasers of five pounds and up.

Daily Mercury.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 5, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

An Irish Relief Committee has finally been formed in Paris. The Committee is composed of men of all creeds. 80,000 francs are already collected, to be divided into three equal portions, one for the Duchess of Marlborough's fund, another for distribution by the Bishops, and the third for the Lord Mayor's fund.

Le Temps says that the Emperor William on arriving at the French Embassy in Berlin on Monday expressed to Count De St. Vallier his great pleasure at being there, and inquired particularly after President Grevy, saying, "I esteem him highly." The Emperor added, "Convey to the premier, DeFreycinet, the assurance of my heartiest respect for his ability."

The Times states that since spring has set in considerable stir is apparent in emigration at Queenstown, people of the rural classes departing for America. The recent revival of trade in America and the arrival of large remittances from American friends are attracting people thither. It is anticipated that after Easter there will be an unusual rush.

The Attempt on Melikoff's Life.

LONDON, March 4.—A Vienna despatch says that Melikoff has been summoned by the Revolutionary Committee to abandon his post within a week. Melodetsky, who attempted to assassinate him yesterday, is a small, insignificant looking man of Jewish features, and clothed superior to his appearance, which is altogether very peculiar. He is more like a stupid tool than a desperate anarchist. His vacant semi-idiotic laugh when spoken to gave the impression that he had been made tipsy and bribed or presuaded to shoot Melikoff. Great Morskara-street is the fashionable promenade, and was crowded at the time of the shooting. The assassin was able to approach within a yard of Melikoff without causing suspicion. The bullet passed through the general's cloak and over the right hip without touching the body. The man was immediately placed in a carriage and driven to the fortress.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 4.—The man who fired upon General Melikoff is a converted Jew named Melodetsky, from Minsk, 430 miles south-west of St. Petersburg. He has been tried and sentenced to-day, and will be hanged to-morrow. He maintains a defiant demeanour.

Melodetsky said at his trial that Melikoff would be killed by some of his comrades, as a second and if necessary a third attempt would be made.

Melodetsky says he was ordered to commit the crime, and acted from principle, not from personal motives.

Mysterious Death of a Child.

Alleged Suspicious Circumstance Connected with it.

ELMIRA, March 5.—The death of the child Sophia Stadelbauer, daughter of Mrs. Casper Stadelbauer, took place on Sunday, February 22nd. Some parties suspecting that the child had been mistreated, and not seeing it for a considerable time with the rest of the children, ordered the Coroner on Wednesday to hold an inquest. The inquest was held on Monday, February 23rd. The verdict of the jury was non-committal, but censuring severely the mother and some others of the family for the way in which they had treated her. The Crown Attorney of the County of Waterloo, on the strength of the statement of the medical witness who attended the inquest, and other witnesses, ordered a post mortem to be held, which was done by Drs. Walmsley and Ulyott, the result of which cannot be ascertained until next Wednesday, the day of trial before J. Mackie, J. P., of Berlin.

MONTREAL.

Thanksgiving.—Mr. Ryan Ill Again.

MONTREAL, March 5.—The Bishop of Montreal has issued a circular to the clergy asking them to offer thanksgiving in their churches on Sunday next for the preservation of the Princess Louise and Gov.-General from the serious consequences that might have resulted from their recent accident.

Mr. Ryan, M. P., has had a relapse, and is confined to bed again.

Improvement of the Thames.

OTTAWA, March 5.—A deputation from Chatham waited on the Government today in relation to the improvement of the Thames River between Chatham and London, so that vessels drawing a great depth of water can navigate it. They asked for an examination to be made by an engineer. It is quite probable the request will be granted.

From Owen Sound.

OWEN SOUND, March 5.—The steamer Prince Alfred, Capt. Post, arrived this morning from Lion's Head and Dyers Bay, with a full load of fish and grain.

From Toronto.

TORONTO, March 5.—The Sunday concert case, now before the Police Court, was enlarged till the 10th inst., on condition that the concerts should not be repeated until the case was finally disposed of by the Magistrate.

The Irish Societies of this city have decided to celebrate St. Patrick's day by marching through the streets.

No Ice in Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 5.—This harbor is now entirely clear of ice.

Local News.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—There are twenty-six patients in this institution.

SENTENCE DEFERRED.—Sentence in the case of Willard Huntingdon has again been deferred till Monday.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons will appear in Canada next season in the drama, supported by an English company.

GRANT TO THE HIGH SCHOOL.—Inspector Torrance has received notice that the Legislative grant to the High School for the last half of 1879 is $386.

GREAT SALE.—Notice is called to the advertisement of Dempsey & Chamberlain in another column, announcing a great sale of $1,000 worth of boots and shoes at cost and under.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Brisk to high northerly to northwesterly winds; partly cloudy slightly cooler weather, with probably passing snow flurries in some localities.

COMMUNION SERVICES. — Services are being held in the Presbyterian Churches to-day, preparatory to the Communion services, which will be observed on Sunday next.

AN EARLY VISITOR.—Mr. James Millar, butcher, saw a beautiful large butterfly in his garden on Thursday. This is a sight unprecedented at the beginning of March in this locality.

LIVE STOCK EXPORT.—The first export of breeding cattle from this neighborhood to the United States since the cattle embargo was done away with was made by Messrs. F. W. Stone and George Hood, to Flint, Michigan, on Wednesday. The shipment comprised sixteen head of fine animals.

THE STORM.—Many were roused from their slumbers last night by the thunder storm which passed over this city. The rain poured down in torrents for a time and the storm was accompanied by violent flashes of lightning and heavy peals of thunder. No damage either by flooding or lightning has been reported.

NEW MUSIC.—"O Thou who dryest the mourner's tear," music by Miss B. Geddes, organist of St. George's Church, Guelph, words by Moore, and dedicated to Miss Maggie Barr, Hamilton, is a splendid little composition set in sheet form and now for sale at Nelles' bookstore. It is written in common time on two sharps, and will no doubt prove an excellent piece for vocalists.

MR. HAMMOND IN MONTREAL.—Mr. Hammond has got fairly started with his revival services in Montreal. He preached on Sunday morning in the Crescent street Presbyterian Church to a good congregation, being assisted in the service by the Revs. A. B. McKay (Presbyterian), H. Johnson (Methodist), and A. H. Munro (Baptist). The service was very fervent.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT. — The Ladies' Aid Society of the Norfolk street Congregational Church, held a social at the residence Mrs. Grundy, Elora Road, last night. There was a very fair turn out, and those present fully enjoyed themselves. The programme comprised vocal and instrumental music, readings, recitations, etc. Most of the company took part in different games which had been provided, and in various ways managed to pass the evening pleasantly.

PARLOR CONCERT.—Mrs. Cutten's parlor entertainment last night in aid of the poor, was well attended, and was quite a success. In addition to some of the most admired vocal talent in the city, Mrs. Cutten secured the valuable aid of some ladies from a distance, whose singing gave great pleasure to the audience. Mr. Shaw gave another of his brilliant performances on the piano with his left hand, and Mr. J. C. Chadwick gave an Irish reading in superb style.

THE HIGH SCHOOL INSPECTED. — Mr. Buchah, High School Inspector, was in the city on Thursday, and examined the pupils at the High School. He afterwards expressed the satisfaction he felt with the progress of the school. Mr. Murton, chairman of the Public School Board, suggested to him the desirability of publishing the reports of High School Inspectors with reference to the schools they examine without so much delay as there is at present. Inspector Buchan explained that he handed his report to the Education Department immediately after making an examination, so that he could not be accused o fany such delay.

SALE OF LIVE STOCK.—The Messrs. Hunter, of Sunnyside, Pilkington, have sold, to the Ontario Agricultural College, the very promising young bull Prince Hopewell. This purchase cannot fail to be a great advantage to the herd, as the animal is a very fine specimen of a Short Horn, combining style, substance, and heavy fleshing qualities. We consider the College very fortunate in securing such a splendid animal. Prince Hopewill is closely related to the grand show bulls Lord Aberdeen, Royal Hope and The Baron, who have taken the highest honors in the United States and Canada lately—his dam being full sister. Prince Hopewill is principally of Booth blood. His sire, Baron Booth, of Killerby, is Booth of the Mantilini family, bred at Killerby, and his grand sire, Knight of Warlaby is of the fame family, bred at Warlaby.

It has been decided to make Chatham a first-class port of entry after the session.

COMMITTED FOR LUNACY.—John McMaster aged 41 years, a farmer living in Puslinch, near Hespeler, was brought to the American Hotel on Thursday night by his friends, with a view to having him committed as a lunatic. He has several times tried to commit suicide and to set fire to the buildings on his farm. Being considered dangerous, a medical gentleman was called to examine him, and certified that he was of unsound mind. When the papers for McMaster's commitment had been made out he was locked up in the gaol to await a vacancy in the Toronto asylum.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—The regular annual meeting of this society was held in St. George's hall on Thursday evening, there being a very fair attendance of members. Mr. George Elliott, President, occupied the chair. The reports of the Treasurer and Secretary were read and adopted. From these it was shown that, notwithstanding numerous calls on the society for charity, and though the expenditure had been greater than in any previous year, yet the Society had a balance on hand, and was progressing satisfactorily. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—President, A. H. Goodeve; 1st Vice President, Caleb Chase; 2nd Vice President, James Hewer; Secretary, John James Densen; Treasurer, George Elliott; Auditors, John Read and E. R. Martin; Executive Committee, E. R. Martin, John Read, Robert Higham, John Chapman, J. T. Brill; Hall and Property Committee, Alf. Burrows, W. Read, J. W. Barry; Surgeon, Dr. Howitt; Chaplains, Revs. Messrs. Williams and Harris, and Canon Dixon. A vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring officers for their services. Mr. Philp was also tendered a vote of thanks for his services in connection with the Society's recent charity concert.

From Ottawa.

The Princess is reported much better.

A meeting of National Currency advocates will be held next week.

It is understood the Budget Speech will be delivered on Tuesday next.

SAUGEEN VALLEY RAILWAY.—The first sod of the Saugeen Valley Railway was turned at Walkerton on Thursday by Mr. McLay, President of the company, Mr. David Moore, vice-President, chopped down the first tree. The road is to be built from Walkerton to Mount Forest, there to connect with the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway for Toronto.

IMPORTANT TO TEACHERS.—Miss Shenick vs. the Trustees of Cobourg Collegiate Institute. The Board had engaged Miss Shenick for the year 1879, but during February or March gave her notice that on and after the 1st of April her services would be dispensed with. She sued for salary for the whole year. The Board claimed the right to terminate the engagement on the ground that there was no written agreement. Judge Boswell decided that by law she was entitled to nothing, but recommended the trustees to give her one month's salary. She appealed to the Minister of Education, who declined to interfere.

ELORA CARPET FACTORY.—The Express says: The Elora Carpet Factory was offered for sale, by public auction, at the town hall, on Tuesday, the 2nd. Just as Mr. David Findlay called for offers, Mr. Blakeney, on behalf of the Merchants' Bank, forbid the sale, stating that a bill in chancery had been fyled. Mr. Jacob, as solicitor for the village, said that any body could fyle a bill in chancery. The Bank had $10,000 of money belonging to the village, and the council was going to try to get it refunded. This was not the first attempt the Bank had made to stop the sale of the property. Mr. Jacob instructed Mr. Findlay to go on with the sale. The first bid was $5,000, the last bid $10,000; a reserved bid of $11,400 was then announced, and no offer above the amount was made, consequently the property was not sold.

PLEASANT REUNION AT THE WARDEN'S.—Says the Harriston Tribune:—Appearances would indicate that a large number of Warden Prain's friends in Harriston and Minto have come to the conclusion to be masters of the situation at least one night in the year. This feeling, no doubt, results largely from the hearty reception accorded by Mr. and Mrs. Prain to a large party that visited them last year. Last Wednesday evening was fixed upon by the knowing ones for a big time at the Warden's, and between 7 and 8 o'clock an unusual number of rigs might have been see leaving town in that direction. On arriving we found that though early we were not by many the first. A hearty welcome was extended to all, and soon the company felt comfortable and 'at home.' After some time spent in discussing the usual topics, supper was announced, and we sat down to a repast at once rich and substantial, and replete with every delicacy that could tempt the palate. Our reader can depend that full justice was done to this part of the evening's enjoyment, as a ride of several miles over the roads in their present state is a splendid appetizer. Supper over, the guests enjoyed themselves to their heart's content, with speeches, songs, toasts, etc. The toast of the evening, "Our host and hostess," was received with applause, and Mr. Prain responded in his usual happy manner. The company broke up at a late hour, after singing "Auld Lang Syne." It will be long before any of those present will forget the pleasant evening spent with the genial and whole-souled Warden of Wellington.

Parnell made a speech at Springfield, Ill., on Thursday, in which he attacked the British Government. He closed by saying:—"I believe the end of this English misrule in Ireland will soon come; and I believe the surest way to finish the English Government there is to finish the Irish landlords. We will never give up our country." He left for St. Louis the same day. There were no formal ceremonies at the depot, and the party were quietly driven to the Lindell House. He had an immense reception at the Merchants Exchange Hall at night, Governor Philp's presiding.

Messrs. Wright & Co., Harriston, have their new saw mill in operation. They are filling a large order for Europe of maple blocks, 650,000 of which will be shipped as soon as they are sent out. The company is supplying the Hamilton Nail Company with all the material for nail kegs.

Dominion Rifle Association.

OTTAWA, March 4.—At a meeting of the Council of the Dominion Rifle Association to-day, Colonel Kirkpatrick, of Kingston, was elected chairman. It was resolved that the Executive Committee be authorized to make the requisite arrangements for assembling the Wimbledon team, and to fix the time they shall embark for England, and incur the necessary expense for sending the team to Wimbledon.

It was decided that the annual prize meeting be held at Ottawa, on Monday, 6th September, and five following days.

The Wimbledon team for 1881 is to be selected from the thirty highest aggregate scorers in the matches selected for the aggregate prizes, and the Governor General's prize, two places being reserved for Manitoba and British Columbia, under certain conditions, which will be made known at the proper time. The members of the team for 1881 will be selected and notified previous to the 31st December next.

The Executive Committee of the Association then met and adopted a prize list based on a sum of $5,000 in cash prizes in addition to the usual valuable prizes in kind. Special features in the list are the prizes of His Excellency the Gov.-General and Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise of $500; that of Sir John Rose, Bart, of $500; the President of the Association, Lieutenant Colonel Gzowski, A.D.C., $350; and that of Hon. Mr. Masson, ex-Minister of Militia, $100.

Every branch of trade has been very quiet in Montreal for the past week, and remittances have not been coming forward to the extent which was expected. Drygoods have sold about up to the invoices of last year, and though there is only a limited demand for the leading staples, holders are not at all anxious to sell unless at something approaching the current value.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

The Preliminary Trial Resumed.

LUCAN, March 4.—The Biddulph prisoners were brought into Court at ten o'clock this morning, looking serious and somewhat careworn. Squire Peters and Fisher having taken the Bench, the Court was opened.

CHIEF WILLIAMS' EVIDENCE.

Chief Williams resumed the stand, and was further examined by Mr. Hutchinson. He said—Among other parties that I visited was the house of Patrick Ryder, sen., father of the prisoners James and Patrick, I found a seven-shooter revolver there. (Weapon produced.) It was upstairs in the boy's bedroom, on the top of a barrel; it was not covered up; examined the revolver and could see that it had been recently discharged. Witness then illustrated with the weapon how it was that he came to the conclusion.) I drew six new cartridges and one old one. (Cartridges produced.) In consequence of what was said by one of the prisoners' brothers I went down stairs to get a box of cartridges; it was in a bureau drawer, and Michael Ryder handed it over to me. These cartridges corresponded exactly with the six new ones in the revolver. Witness here repeated the story of having found a frozen pair of trousers and some flannel in a liquid dye. Continuing, he said—I thought it was suspicious to be washing pants at that time of the year; I also regarded the pail containing the flannel with suspicion; we found Kennedy at Anthony Heenans's house, where we arrested him; next day the things above mentioned were brought into Lucan, and we have them in our possession; I did not see any blood on the trousers, but there were lots of spots on them, probably grease spots; I got two articles from Clay; one was like a counterpane, and the other was a ragged shirt; I believe Clay pretended to discover them somewhere; I have not got them in my possession now; Clay was not on my staff and not employed that I know of in searching up evidence; if he was a detective at all he was independent; I never acted on Clay's representations; I don't intend to produce either the quilt or shirt at this examination.

Mr. MacMahon—about this revolver you found at McLaughlin's?

Witness—The hired man took it from under the cow house; he did not claim it as his; he said he got it from Mrs. McLaughlin the day the boss was taken away by the police; It was loaded, and looked as if it had not been discharged for some time; if it was it must have been well cleaned afterwards.

I did not discover at Thompson's the copy of the Catholic Record that would correspond with the fragment given me by Wm. Donnelly.

There was a sensation in Court when Mary McLaughlin, daughter of the prisoner of that name, appeared in the witness-box. She said:—I live at my father's house; I recollect him having a rifle. A rifle was here produced, and witness said—That's like it; the rifle was kept in the room where he slept, hanging up on the wall; he was not in the habit of using the rifle; I used to see it every day until it was taken away.

Mr. McMahon—That'll do.

The witness then stepped down, her evidence being merely to prove the ownership of the weapon. She seemed very much affected by her father's unfortunate position, and shook hands with him on leaving the Court.

Enoch Murphy sworn, said—I am a city detective, and have been employed with others in connection with this murder case; I recollect going to McLaughlin's house on the afternoon of the 5th ult. in company with the Chief, Detective Phair, and others; I arrested McLaughlin that day; he was coming from the barn to the house; I did not tell him at once what my business was, but merely that we wanted him to come to Lucan with us; Detective Phair, however, said it was no use keeping it back, and told him we came to arrest him; he made no remarks about it, but said in answer to a question from me that he had a rifle; we went into the house together, and he changed his clothes; I saw the rifle; it was lying sideways on the top of a cupboard in his bedroom; he drew my attention to it, saying, "This is the rifle"; I asked him what he used it for, saying that there was no game or anything in this country for a rifle like that; he said no, but he had bought it from the other side; I asked him when it was last shot out of; he replied, "August or September"; I ascertained that it was loaded; it is a repeating rifle, and there were four cartridges in it, one in the barrel and three in the chamber, which will hold about six. The County Attorney here produced the bullet found in Donnelly's house. Witness—As far as can judge this bullet corresponds with the one of the bullets drawn from the rifle; they correspond in two ways—by the grooves in each and by their weight, only that the one used is about a grain lighter; the loss of weight is accounted for by the fact that a notch was made in the bullet for future identification; the ridges, three in number, cannot all be traced, but I can trace one.

The County Attorney, examining the bullet, said he could trace three ridges on it.

Witness—After taking the bullet out of the barrel it smelt of gunpowder, and the barrel appeared to have been recently cleaned; the Chief put his finger in and stained it, so that it was not perfectly clean; if it had been fired recently I should say it had not been cleaned, since the grooves of the barrel held most of the dirt; the cartridge in the barrel appeared like a fresh one; the four were exactly alike and perfectly clean; there was no dust on the top or around the rifle, as it had only recently been placed there; I did not see any dust at all.

The Court then adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Immediately after the adjournment Mr. MacMahon applied to the Bench for the discharge of Wm. Carroll and young Pat Ryder.

The Magistrates said they would give their decision in the morning.

The case will be brought to a close to-morrow, there being only three more witnesses to examine, and they will not be long.

ANOTHER OLD RESIDENT GONE.—The Berlin News says:—Mr. James Cook, near Preston, one of the oldest residents of this county, died on Sunday morning at the advanced age of 80. He died at the residence of his son, one mile north of Preston. Deceased was highly respected by all who knew him.

Immigration Statistics.

From the report of the Minister of Agriculture, just submitted to Parliament, we learn that the immigration statistics for the years 1878 and 1879 show an increase from 40,032 to 61,052. The details show that the number via the St. Lawrence route increased from 10,295 to 17,251; via the Maritime Province ports, including Portland, increased from 2,488 to 3,955; entered at the Customs Houses with settlers' goods decreased from 11,435 to 9,775; and via Suspension Bridge and inland ports, including Manitoba, increased from 15,814 to 30,071. The number of immigrant passengers through Canada from the United States increased from 11,226 to 20,560, and the immigrant settlers in Canada increased from 18,372 to 30,717. Of the 17,251 immigrants who landed at Quebec 10,395 were English, 1,543 Irish, 1,448 Scotch, and 2,872 Scandinavians. The unskilled labourers of the country will scarcely view with favour the next return. The trades and occupations of the steerage adults landed at the same port for 1878 and 1879 were as follows:—Farmers increased from 283 to 340, labourers increased from 2,839 to 7,136, mechanics increased from 897 to 923, and clerks and traders decreased from 26 to 12. The number of immigrants brought out by charitable societies, chiefly children, increased from 384 to 478.

The expenditure on account of immigration had been increased from $177,044 1878 to $185,144 in 1879. The amount expended on transport service increased from $31,204 in 1878 to $68,089 in 1879. The value of the effects of immigrants for the year, is estimated as follows:—Reported at agencies, $817,000; reported at customs, $335,612. It thus appears that the value in money and property brought by the immigrants into the country in 1879 was over a million dollars ascertained, besides a considerable amount unascertained. In addition to this account, there was large unascertained, but undoubtedly very considerable, values in the tools, implements and effects brought by them, of which there are no means of taking any account.

The report among other things refers to the patents. The total number of registrations of copyrights, trade marks, industrial designs, and timber marks was 414 during the year 1879. The total number of assignments of these different rights recorded was twenty-four. The fees during the year amounted to $2,434 82. The number of patents granted during 1879 was 1,237, and the fees received $33,303. Of 478 Canadian patentees no less than 308 were from the Province of Ontario.

Some interesting statistics are given with respect to the cattle trade. We find that this trade has developed very much within the past year. In 1878 the exports through Canadian ports were:—690 horses and mules, 18,655 cattle, 41,250 sheep, and 2,027 swine. In 1879 the exports were 24,682 cattle, 79,085 sheep, and 4,745 swine, comprising Canadian cattle alone. In addition to these there were Canadian cattle exported via Boston, making a total of 25,009 cattle, 80,332 sheep, and 5,385 swine, representing $3,197,406. The St. Lawrence route for this export trade offers unrivalled facilities, lessening very much the open sea voyage. The total losses were 8 per 1,000 on cattle, 5 per 1,000 on horses and mules, and about 24 per 1,000 on sheep. Owing to the cattle disease in foreign countries several Orders in Council relating to cattle have been passed during the past year. The Order in Council of April 20th, 1876, prohibiting the importation of cattle, sheep, and swine from Europe, save through the ports of Halifax, St. John, and Quebec, where cattle quarantines are established is still enforced.

"What shall be done with the Halifax award?" is a question which agitates the Maritime Province Tory members. Thursday they held a caucus and agreed upon a coure of action. What that course is to be has not been divulged.

The Ontario Legislature was prorogued to-day at 3 o'clock, when the Lieutenant-Governor proceeded to the Legislative Assembly, and gave his assent to the Bills passed during the sittings of the House.

Sir Leonard Tilley has been absent from the House of Commons every day this week. It is understood that he is in travail with the gloomiest financial statement ever made in Canada, and the case is so serious that the Government have called in the assistance of the skilful accoucheur, Sir A. T. Galt.

At the meeting of the Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons in Ottawa on the 2nd, Mr. Oliver moved for a detailed statement of the sum of $7,000 paid for train hire, etc., in connection with the reception to His Excellency and H. R. H. Mr. White (Cardwell) and the other Conservatives opposed the motion on the ground that it would be disrespectful to His Excellency, their real object being to prevent the amount expended by the Ministry in their junketing to Halifax from being made known. It was pointed out by Messrs. Mackenzie and Cartwright that the production of these papers would not be disrespectful to His Excellency, as the amount was expended under the supervision of Ministers. The Conservatives were successful in thwarting the motion for the time being.

Mr. G. W. Ross intends to have the tenders for the Departmental printing, and the awarding of the contract therefore, rigidly enquired into, and with this clue he will move for the appearance of the Queen's printer before the Public Accounts Committee. At the Committee meeting a doubt was expressed as to the power of the Committee to examine witnesses under oath. It was decided that the chairman should consult the law clerk on the matter.

We believe there is some truth in the following from the Dundas Banner:—"It is rumored that Sir Samuel Tilley's spouse is highly indignant at the new theatrical play 'Her Majesty's Ship Parliament' which has just been introduced at Ottawa, and insists that her lord and master shall "sack" every civil service employee who patronizes the play. Such a strong-minded woman might be consulted with profit on the revision of the Tariff."

Respecting Dr. Orton's Interest Bill the Montreal Herald says:—"His intentions are, no doubt, good, but he should know that the rate of interest cannot be regulated by cast iron legislation. In a new country like Canada, where capital has to be borrowed to build railways and start innumerable new enterprises to develop the resources of the country, the ruling rates of interest must, as a natural consequence, be high. These things, like all matters of trade and commerce, are regulated by the principle of supply and demand, and Dr. Orton, or anybody else, cannot hope to place a limit on the rate of interest which capital shall be worth.

A number of bank presidents, managers, etc., are in Ottawa, and held a conference the other day for the purpose of determining the best means of preventing the enactment of the Government's measure dealing with the bank charters and the right of issue. The banking corporations apparently believe that the Government contemplate depriving them of the right of issue, or at least further limiting that right. We would not be surprised if this policy is acted on, and that it authorize an issue of bank bills, which will however, be redeemable. Their policy on this question will be watched with great interest.

The members representing coal counties in the Maritime Provinces, had an interview with Sir Leonard Tilley one day last week, and with Sir John A. Macdonald on Saturday. They pressed for an increase of twenty-five cents per ton on coal, but the Government held out no inducement to believe that the request would be granted. At present a duty of fifty cents per ton is imposed on each short ton of coal imported. A short ton weighs 2,000 pounds. The coal members desire a duty of seventy-five cents per ton on each short ton, but they appear to be willing to accept seventy-five cents duty on each long ton of 2,240 pounds, which would assimilate the duties of the United States and Canada on coal.

The question of a procession on St. Patrick's Day has caused a split in the ranks of the Irish Catholics in Montreal. At a meeting of Irish Catholic representatives on Tuesday, on motion it was resolved that on account of the Irish distress there should be no parade. This was first carried by a vote of 12 to 6. After a hot discussion the question was reconsidered, and on a vote of 10 to 8 it was resolved, That the Irish Societies simply walk from their halls to church and hear divine service, thus dispensing with the usual parade.

The Napoleonic Monument.

London Correspondence New York Tribune.

London, Feb. 12.—It is not a pleasant thing to have to refer once more to the proposed erection of a monument to the late Prince Louis Napoleon in Westminster Abbey. The unhappy project was thought to have been dead and buried months ago. Of its merits or demerits I have nothing to say beyond what was then said. But the decision turns now upon the intrinsic propriety of such a scheme, not upon the absurdity of it, not upon the offence it is sure to give—what the mere suggestion did give—to France; not upon the historical eccentricity of burying a Bonaparte in an English mausoleum; not even upon the destruction of every sentimental excuse for such an act by the public confession of the late Prince's most intimate adherents, that he went to South Africa not to fight for England, but to make military capital for a criminal enterprise against the Government of his own country. It turns now upon the question of public feeling; upon the keenness of Dean Stanley's moral responsibility as trustee of an English church in behalf of the English people. I believe the Dean maintained privately, while the discussion of some months since were proceeding, that the majority of the English people were in favor of putting up the monument. I think he was entirely wrong. I believe the majority, and the great majority, was the other way, and that nearly everybody who favored the plan was a member of the Court party—the desire of the Queen and the people about her for the admission of the memorial to the Abbey having been very strongly expressed. But let us admit for the moment, that the Dean was right, and that he did not mistake the pressure of an aristocratic coterie confined to the Palace and to the West End of London, for the voice of the nation. It is none the less true that he is bound to respect the wish of the minority, if minority it be. I should willingly rest the whole case on that point—on the proposition that the custodian of a national church has no right to admit within its walls a monument which a large and earnest minority of the people think ought not to be admitted. I should urge, also, that the people of the United States had a right to be heard in this matter. We Americans have for many years past shown, to say the least, as lively an interest in Westminster Abbey as its owners have shown. It belongs to us, in a certain sense, as much as to our English cousins. Our ancestors built it. We make as many pilgrimages to the shrine as Englishmen make. And I have yet to hear of a single American journal, or of a single American in any position of life, who approves the purpose to desecrate this shrine by a statue to Prince Louis Napoleon.

Canada in Case of a Foreign War with Britain.

The United Service Gazette (for a copy of which we are indebted to Capt. Ed. Palliser, of breechloading cannon fame) refers in commendatory terms to the progress of Canadian armaments, and adds: "That Canada could do much unaided by the Mother Country we do not believe. She could, of course, defend her harbours and materially assist the Royal Navy in protecting her merchant fleet. But something more than this might be looked for. What, we ask, would be the position of Canada in the empire if, after continued self-progress, such as we have pointed out, England were to subsidise her with two millions or three millions of money to enable her to put forth her full strength in case of war, and to take her part in the west, as India does so well in the east? We believe that General Smyth, and the English and Canadian officers under him, could give a very fair estimate of what Canada could do. When it is known that her supply of hardy sailors is almost unlimited; that her armed cruisers would appear in numbers in every sea, if required; and that an army corps complete would be ready to sail for any destination; less will be heard of war rumors, of volunteer fleets, and all such at present rather alarming threats—alarming, because the western preparations of the British Empire are progressing, and not yet complete."

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

REGENT HOUSE.

AS INTIMATED IN MONDAY'S COLUMNS WE HAVE RENEWED OUR partnership for another term. All are aware we have cleared out the most of our large stock, thus enabling us to buy a large stock for the spring trade. We have purchased some of the finest and cheapest goods ever brought into Guelph, and to-morrow (Saturday) we will show an assortment of Dry Goods which every lady in this City and Country should see. The great attraction for this season of the year will be our New Prints. In this department we excel, and never before have such beautiful patterns been shown in Guelph. We have added a new rule to our business regulations:—all goods marked in plain figures. Look out for the windows.

Our salesmen are courteous, gentlemanly and obliging, and will spare no pains to suit every patron of that Wonderful Man's, who is a terror to evil doers, and old bankrupt moth eaten goods dealers.

JOHN HOGG & SON.

Fatal Accident near Limehouse.

On Thursday last Mr. Andrew Scott, sen., of the 4th line, Esquesing, fell through a G. T. R. culvert and received injuries which resulted in his death in a few minutes after the accident. Mr. Scott, accompanied by Mr. John Fortune, were on their way to Limehouse, walking along the railroad, and when coming to an open culvert near the 5th line, Mr. Scott proceeded to cross on a plank which was laid outside the rail, while Mr. Fortune walked across the ties. When about half way across the plank broke and Mr. Smith fell through, and struck on some projecting timbers before reaching the bottom. His companion immediately went to his assistance, and without much difficulty they ascended the bank and thinking he was not badly injured, sat down to rest. In a short time he said to Mr. Fortune that he felt that "he was done for," and in a few minutes afterwards fell over dead. It is supposed that he was injured internally. Deceased was nearly 77 years of age, and has lived on the farm at the 4th line ever since he came to this country from Scotland, 45 years ago. He was a kind neighbor and respected by all who knew him. The funeral took place on Saturday and was attended by a very large number of friends and neighbors in the vicinity.—Acton Free Press.

The Scientific American says:—It is a curious fact that in some lines of manufactures the Canadians are beating the Yankees in economy of production. For example, the Waterous Manufacturing Company, of Brantford, Ontario, have, we learn, for some time past been delivering steam engines in Bremen at less prices than the American makers can put them down there.

Mr. Robert Ross, of Salem, who was accidently thrown from a buggy a couple of weeks since, still remains in Fergus. Although he has somewhat regained his bodily strength, he is still delirious. Symptoms of fracture of the base of the skull are present, and he is in a very precarious condition.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, March 4.

Mr. Haggert introduced the Bill relating to the Credit Valley Railway and the Esplanade difficulty at Toronto.

Mr. Bechard again introduced a Bill proposing certain reductions in the salaries and indemnities of Cabinet Ministers, Senators, and members of Parliament. The present Bill proposes in addition to reduce the Governor-General's salary from $50,000 to $35,000.

Sir Charles Tupper informed the House, in reply to Dr. Strange, that the Government could not see their way to give any promise of aid in the construction of the Huron and Ontario Ship Canal.

Mr. Langevin, in reply to queries by Mr. Royal, announced that the Dominion Government would commence erecting the Provincial buildings at Winnipeg this year, but would not at present agree to an extension of the boundaries of Manitoba.

Mr. Colby's Bill repealing the Insolvency Law, read a third time and passed.

Mr. Blake moved the second reading of the Bill providing for the more effectual prevention of crime. The Government apparently did not possess courage to take the initiative in asking the House to reject the Bill merely because it was introduced by the member for West Durham, so it was delegated to Mr. Baker, ex-Solicitor General of Quebec, to move the six months' hoist. The spirit of the Bill was described as a caricature on the English law and as an infringement on the liberties of the subject. Mr. Baker also went out of his way to attack Mr. Blake because of the manner in which, when Minister of Justice, he exercised the Executive clemency in cases of convictions for crime.

Mr. James McDonald, Minister of Justice, spoke in support of the amendment, on the ground that the changes were too sweeping to be adopted by the House without further consideration, and he promised that in future he would give the matter some consideration. The mover of the amendment objected to the Bill because he claimed it would place persons twice convicted of common assault under police supervision.

Mr. Blake defended the various features of the Bill, and commented on the circumstance that although the Minister of Justice failed to endorse any of the provisions in the Bill introduced by Mr. Robertson of (Hamilton), yet he thought it should be referred to a Select Committee, while his (Mr. Blake's) Bill, with many of the provisions of which he agreed, he wished to be rejected on the second reading.

Mr. Anglin stung the Municipalists into anger when he hinted that the Bill was opposed merely because it emanated from Mr. Blake, who could expect little courtesy from the other side of the House.

The amendment was carried on a division, previous to which Mr. Blake remarked that while many arguments advanced at a later stage in the debate had not been answered by him, yet it must not be supposed they were unanswerable. While he could reply to the arguments advanced by the Minister of Justice, yet there were 150 arguments he could not answer. This convert allusion to the Government's strength in the House elicited much laughter.

The discussion on the second reading of the Bill by Mr. Girouard (Jacques Cartier) to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister was resumed.

After considerable discussion the vote was then taken on the amendment by Mr. Thompson, of Haldimand, that the Bill be read the second time that day six months. The amendment was lost on a vote of 140 yeas to 20 nays, and the Bill was read the second time on the same division. The announcement of the result was received with cheers.

Ontario Legislature.

Toronto, March 4.

The consideration of the Municipal and Taxation Bill was resumed in Committee.

Mr. Calvin moved that the Bill be amended so as to provide for the deduction of the indebtedness of any person from his personal property, and that he be only assessed on the balance.

Mr. Mowat, in speaking to Mr. Calvin's amendment, said he thought the members had not quite understood the force of the amendment. He himself was convinced that no indebtedness should be substracted from the value of a man's personal property in assessing it. He would move that the matter be referred back to Committee of the Whole to have the clause inserted by Mr. Calvin struck out.

The motion was carried, and the Bill as amended was read a third time.

Mr. Meredith asked why the Supplementary Estimates for the amount proposed to be expended this year on Parliament Buildings had not been brought down.

Mr. Mowat said that such Supplementary Estimates were unnecessary, as the House had already granted the whole amount required for the new buildings.

Mr. Wood moved to introduce a Bill to vote Her Majesty certain sums of money to defray the expenses of a civil government in 1880.

The Bill was read a first, second and third time and passed.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Mowat's Bill respecting the administration of justice in the districts of Algoma, Thunder Bay, and Nipissing. The Bill was reported with some amendments, and was read a third time and passed.

Mr. Mowat moved the adjournment of the House till two o'clock to-day.

CHAPTER XXX.

A NIGHT OF EXCITING ADVENTURES—DAVID RAMSAY IN PURSUIT—AGNES BORLAND THE HANDS OF HER CAPTORS— HE ISSUE.

Forced to be still and silent, she laid her trembling hand on her throbbing head, and tried to imagine the cause and object of the outrage. She knew that her captors were gipsies, and she concluded that they were acting at the instigation of Flora Marshall, whom she had encountered on the moor in the gloaming, and who had been much angered by her refusal to acknowledge her fortune telling power. Yet this was a fearful revenge to take for such a slight and Agnes vainly strove to conjecture, what further punishment the incensed woman intended for her. Singularly enough she did not connect Reuben Langton with her seizure. Had this suspicion entered her mind her terrors would have been redoubled, for then she would have had far greater cause to fear, since, as he had dared so much, it showed how hard, reckless, and unscrupulous he must be.

So long as the waggon was rolling over the smooth turf of the park, its motion was steady and almost noiseless, but when it began to jolt and its wheels gave forth a grating sound she knew that they had reached a hard road, and guessed that her captors were leaving the park by the shore gate. For some distance further they drove along the hard high road, then suddenly quitted it, and Agnes suspected they were now on the moor. Her sense of hearing, quickened to acuteness, was exercised to discover the direction in which she was being taken. Her belief was that the gipsies encampment was the place whither they were conveying her, and she speculated with a shudder at the treatment to which she might there be subjected. Then her thoughts wandered back to her mother, whose cries of distress seemed to ring in her ears, whose agonies and distraction she could vividly picture to her mind. At the end of a period of time which seemed to the agonized girl like an age, the waggon's motion seemed to change. It no longer driven with the same rapidity, and appeared to be going down a steep, rough and winding declivity. Suddenly a sound came to her ears, a new sound, yet one startling familiar. It was the sound of the sea waves breaking on the shore. This caused her terror to assume a new form, and turned her speculations into another channel, vague, mysterious, and bewildering. Did they mean to murder her by throwing her into the sea or imprison her in one of the secret caves among the cliffs.

Her mind was in the rushing whirl of these dreadful thoughts when the jolting ceased and the waggon came to a standstill. She could now distinctly hear the sound of the water quite close, giving token that they were on the beach. The moment had evidently come when she was to learn her fate, and she sat trembling among the straw in fearful expectancy.

The waggon was quickly emptied of its living contents. One by one the gipsies leaped to the ground, and muttered sounds of conversation were heard amid the roll of the surf. But no order was given to Agnes to leave her place, and she remained seated in the waggon for another long space, her heart struggling bravely with the wonder and suspense she had to endure. One man she noticed stood sentry, as if watching her at the place of exit and entrance, the others moved and fro on the beach. She heard their footsteps among the stones and the occasional sound of their voices, but could not catch any words. One voice sometimes reached her ear, the tone of which she had not heard till then—a deep, harsh, guttural voice, with a foreign accent, raised at times in anger and dissatisfaction.

"Oh, heaven, for what am I reserved!" moaned the fair girl in the depth of her misery. "Am I delivered as a helpless lamb into the hands of ravening wolves? Will no succour come to me? Alas, how can it. Mother may have raised the alarm by this time; but how are the neighbors to know where I have been taken? Oh, if David Ramsay knew, he would spare no effort to rescue me."

Suddenly there came back on her memory the sacred words she had read as the captors burst into the kitchen, "Let not your heart be troubled." Was that not a divine promise for her shrinking heart to rely on. It must be true, for had it not been said of its utterer, "In Him was no guile, neither was any deceit found in His mouth." Being words of truth and verity they should give strength, they should impart comfort and hope. To be untroubled in such a situation meant that safety and deliverance were provided.

Somewhat calmed and tranquilised by these reflections, her fears returned in all their force when a head was thrust within the canvas of the waggon and the gruff command was given to her to descend. It being useless to dispute the order, she crept to the end of the waggon, and was assisted out by a muffled figure which stood there. From this man's touch she started with a shudder. It seemed to have for her a power of repulsion stronger even than the touch of her gipsy captors.

"Still scornful, fair Agnes," said a familiar voice in her ear, which, with its tone of triumph, caused her to start back with horrified recoil.

"Great heaven, Mr. Langton!" she gasped.

"Even so, my proud, disdainful lady."

"It is you, then, who are the author of this atrocious outrage," she exclaimed, in amazed indignation.

"Call it what you will. I own to being the procuring cause. If you dislike it you have yourself to blame for it."

"What do you mean by such a daring yet cowardly proceeding, sir?" she demanded, her anger overcoming even her terror.

"Mean," he returned with a disagreeable laugh, "My meaning is plain, I think. I mean to obtain bymy own will what you would not grant to my request. But it is to be hoped you are now ready to be more complaisant then when we met on the moor, and you were unwise enough to scorn and defy me. You must now see the folly of thwarting a man of my determination. What say you, my pretty Agnes?"

"I say that I scorn and despise you more than ever," replied Agnes, with undaunted courage. "If you have taken this monstrous course in the hope of persuading or frightening me, I tell you you are much mistaken. In doing this you have added injury to insult, and made nothing by it."

"Nay, you are wrong, my beautiful firebrand. I have made something by it, and hope to make everything I wish. See you yonder boat coming towards the beach."

"What of it?" asked Agnes, as a pang of terror rushed to her heart.

"It comes from a smugglers lugger which is lying in the offing waiting to carry us to the Isle of Man."

"No, no, no," cried Agnes, in wildest dismay. "You cannot be so cruel so wicked."

"Nay, we must share these epithets. If I am wicked it is you who are cruel, and your cruelty has made me wicked. Hear me, Agnes Borland. I have long loved you—loved you to distraction, but I

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

The Militia Act.

In the Senate the Minister of Militia, Sir Alex. Campbell, has introduced a Bill to amend the Militia Act. It provides that the next enrollment of the militia shall take place before May 28th, 1882, and such enrolment shall be made by the same day in every fifth year thereafter. The active militia shall be liable to be called out for actual service with arms and amunition to act as guards of honor, escorts, guards, sentries, or to fire salures, &c., in any of the following cases: the opening or closing of any session of the Parliament of Canada, or of the Legislature of any Province of Canada; for the purpose attending the Governor-General of Canada or any member of the Royal Family while in Canada; for the purpose of guarding any armoury or any other place where arms, guns, amunition, or other military stores are kept; upon any other occasion on which it may be considered proper by the Governor-General in Council by special order in that behalf.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A great deal has been written upon this delicate subject, and still there is great diversity of opinion as to what the ladies have a perfect right to say, do and think. There is not the slightest doubt, however, about the fact, that when a lady enters a drug store and asks for a bottle of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, she ought to get it at once; and it is no part of a druggist's duty to undertake to convince a customer that they want something other than that they are asking for.

For Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Wilson's Wild Cherry is the quickest and most reliable cure. It contains no Opium, and can be given with the same safety and effect to an infant of three months as to an adult person.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I BEG TO INTIMATE TO MY friends and the public generally that I have sold out my business to Thomas Simpson, whom I can confidently recommend to my customers, and as his stock consists of meats of the best quality, I would bespeak for him a continuance of the patronage so liberally bestowed on me, and for which I return my sincere thanks. The shop lately occupied by me will be closed after this date.

JAMES SIMPSON, Butcher.

Guelph, Jan. 31, 1880.

IN REFERENCE TO THE ABOVE I would say that, having lately bought out the business lately carried on by James Simpson on Waterloo Avenue, I will be happy to see all his customers at my stall in the Market, where they will find a large and select stock of the choicest meats to choose from, which will be sold as low as a good article can be sold for and will be delivered promptly in any part of the city. THOMAS SIMPSON, Butcher, perceived my hope was small so long as Orwell Bruce was in the way. Being rid of him I pressed my suit, and was haughtily rejected. I am not one to be thwarted by man or woman. You would not receive my love of free consent. Your conduct left only this way open to me, and I have taken it."

"Come along with the girl," cried a harsh, impatient voice from the edge of the water. "I have waited too long in the boat, and cannot wait a moment longer on you."

"I'm ready, Yawkins," cried Reuben, as he passed his arm round Agnes, and began to drag her down the slope of the beech.

She uttered a piercing scream which rang along the side of the cliff, and struggled with desperate energy to release herself from his strong grasp.

"'Tis no use, girl," he said. "You struggle and resist in vain. Come quietly to the beech, or I shall summon the gipsies to carry you."

"Mr. Langton, for the love of heaven, spare me. I never injured you. Why will you do me this great, this dreadful wrong?"

Heedless of her cries, her prayers, he caught her more firmly in his arms, lifted her off her feet, and bore her towards the boat. At that moment loud shouts broke from the path behind which led to the top of the cliffs, and numerous dark forms could be descried bounding downwards to the beach. Chief among these was a man on horseback, who urged his beast down the steep with reckless impetuosity, shouting as he came—

"Scoundrels, release the girl."

"Damnation, there's the revenue men," roared Yawkins. "Quick Langton, or they'll be upon us."

He rushed forward with outstretched arms to catch hold of Agnes and lift her in the boat. A stone took his foot, he stumbled forward, and his huge form fell heavily against them, knocking both down. With the shock Agnes was released from Reuben's hold, but it was only to be caught in the stronger grasp of Yawkins, who, with fearful growls and more fearful oaths, bore her swiftly to the edge of the water. Reuben leaped to his feet to follow, when Dobson clattered down the beach on his horse and ruthlessly rode Langton down.

The swiftness with which he rode and the steepness of the beach carried horse and rider into the water, and before the gauger had time to extricate himself from this danger, Yawkins had leapt into the boat with Agnes, calling frantically on Reuben to follow. This, however, was more than the latter could do. He lay powerless on the beach, writhing in agony from a stroke of the horse's hoof. Yawkins, divining that he was hurt, shouted hoarsely to the gipsies to lift him into the boat. Four of them sprang forward to obey the order, and, groaning with pain, Reuben was bundled over the gunwale, where he lay like a log among the other's feet.

At the same moment a number of revenue men came bounding down the slope, with David Ramsay considerably in advance of them. The boat had shoved off ere he gained the side of the water, but heedless of consequences he sprung after it and leaped in. Had it not been a large strong boat it must have been broken or capsized by the force with which he came. As it was, the lee gunwale dipped to the water's edge, and those on board fully expected it to sink. Yawkins instinctively threw himself to the opposite gunwale, his weight there causing the boat to right, and next moment they were in deep water, beyond the reach of the revenue men, who had come into the surf, but durst not venture further.

All these things had been compressed into a few bewildering moments. From the first intimation of the approach of the revenue men to the offput of the boat not two minutes had elapsed, the crowded events of which had half-stunned the breathless actors. They hardly knew what had happened. Yawkins was the only one who preserved coolness and self-command, and when the boat was fairly under weigh he shouted back defiantly to Dobson—

"Ha, ha, you'll have to be as clever as the devil himself before you trap Yawkins. I'm off for another cargo, and I'll land it in spite of all your ground sharks, for as smart as you think yourselves." Then looking about him he added, "Where is the swab of a blue jacket that got into the boat? Toss him over, and let him swim back to his blasted messmates."

This was said in relation to David Ramsay, who had scrambled to his feet and made his way to Agnes, who lay in the bow in a fainting condition, no one heeding her. When she felt some one trying to lift her up she shrank back in horror and groaned in despair.

"It's me, my pet, it's me," was whispered in tones which reached her ear with electrical effect. She opened her eyes, made the joyful recognition, and shrieking out his name flung her arms about him, and clung to him with hysterical vehemence.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&w1yr.

VENTILATION.—In the course of an address delivered lately in Hamilton, Rev. Dr. Potts, of Toronto, said that "not long ago, in a village church not a hundred miles from Hamilton, he asked the sexton to let in some fresh air and that worthy dignitary informed him that the windows were nailed down for the winter. They kept them open in summer and shut in winter." Sextons as a general rule are profoundly ignorant on the subject of ventilation. A public school of instruction in the matter would be a benefit to suffering humanity, at least the church going portion.—Dundas Banner.

Brown's Household Panacea

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&w1yr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&w1yr.

Read and Remember.

THE ADVANTAGES OF SECURING not only the best and cheapest goods, but the class of goods best adapted to the wants of the general public, is what is best suited to the wants of the community.

During the present stringent times, owing to my large experience in buying and selling dry goods, I have had many opportunities of judging of the wants and tastes of my customers. I now flatter myself that I am enabled to offer them not only a nice stock to select from, but as good and as cheap a stock as any in our Royal City.

I am now opening out, and offering for sale, one of the largest and best stocks of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds I have ever had the pleasure of showing in Guelph, and being all bought before the recent advance in prices, I am therefore enabled to give my patrons the advantage of my cheap purchases.

Also a case of lovely new prints.

Will announce the completion of new Spring goods in a few days.

In addition to all the other branches of our business we have opened a Dressmaking Department. Ladies can now have their dresses made on the premises; and have the assistance of a practical dressmaker to assist customers in choosing suitable styles, making or cutting dresses to order,

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundredth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

Local News.

IF the weather continues favorable the carnival will take place on Monday evening.

REV. MR. COUTTS will deliver an address in the Y. M. C. A. Rooms, on behalf of the temperance club, to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock.

PRIMITIAE METRODISTS.—A stranger will occupy the pulpit of this church in the morning, and in the evening the regular pastor will officiate.

CARETAKER APPOINTED.—Mr. Charles Banting of Fergus has been appointed caretaker of the Guelph Post Office and Custom House.

OUR LADY'S CHURCH.—To-morrow the Feast of St. Joseph will be celebrated at this Church. The singing at both the morning and evening services will be by the full chorus of Our Lady's Choir.

MESSRS. Coffee and Laing, collectors for St. Patrick's Ward, have handed over to Mr. Harvey $112 to-day at noon—what they have collected in that Ward for the Irish relief fund.

CANON DIXON requests that those who were prevented by inclement weather from attending St. George's Church last Sunday, will give their contributions to the Hospital fund, in the offertory to-morrow.

TEMPORARY CHANGE IN THE CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT.—Mr. Brooks, of Sarnia, has been appointed to take Mr. Hutton's place at the Guelph Custom House, while the latter is stationed at Berlin to attend to the duties of Mr. Weaver, Collector of Customs for that port, who is confined to the house through illness.

THE DUFFERIN BUILDINGS.—The Orangeville Sun says:—Messrs Grierson & Dobbie, of Guelph, to whom have been awarded the contract for the erection of a Court House and Jail for the County of Dufferin, are delivering the materials on the grounds; and will proceed with the buildings early in the spring.

CONCERT.—The ladies of St. Andrew's Church have been fortunate in securing, for their concert on Monday evening next, besides our own local talent, the services of persons from a distance, and judging by the programme that has been prepared, an enjoyable evening may be expected. The concert will be held at the residence of Mr. John Hogg, Monday evening, 8th inst. at 8 o'clock. All cordially invited. d1

ST. JAMES'S WARD ELECTION.—The nomination for an alderman to fill the place of Geo. S. Grange, resigned, took place to-day (Saturday), at the South Ward School House. Nicholas Burns, was nominated by Fred. J. Chadwick and Geo. S. Grange. James Cormack, by W. M. Todd and Albert Pike. John Roche, by H. Cuthbertson and Geo. Smith. John T. Cunningham, by Jos. Jackson and Peter Sullivan. David Kennedy, by Robert Morrison and Geo. Smith. James Cormack withdrew.

NEW SPRING GOODS.—John Roche announces in to-day's issue the arrival of a large and complete stock of seasonable dry goods. The success he has met with since his commencement in business here has induced him to go larger into the different lines of staple and fancy dress goods than heretofore, and he is now in a position to show, as he says, one of the nicest and cheapest stocks in the city. In addition to his other business he has opened a dressmaking department. Such enteprise is worthy of success.

GOLD FLAKE TOBACCO.—We are in receipt of a copy of the Public Leader, of Detroit, containing an account of a visit to the Globe Tobacco Works, Detroit, and also a short account of the branch at Windsor. The report is minute and gives one an idea of this large factory, and the amount of tobacco produced. We have to thank Mr. Saxon for a package of his Gold Flake, which is first class. It is greatly in favor in this section, and is largely taking the place of the old fashioned plug.

A COLD HOUSE.—The Swindlehurst family who prosecuted Henry Weldrick for trespass some time ago are still living in a house belonging to the latter. The Swindlehursts charged Weldrick with taking the windows out of a house they rented from him because they failed to pay the rent. The windows have not been replaced, but the Swindlehurst family are living in it and seem to be indifferent to a draught of wind which must constantly be passing through it.

HIGH SCHOOL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—The Literary Association, in connection with the Guelph High School, gave the first entertainment of the present session on Friday afternoon. The programme was rather short, owing to the difficulty in procuring a piano; however, a pleasant, and also a profitable time was spent, the several performers acquitting themselves creditably. After a short and pithy address by the President, Mr. Tytler, the following pieces were given: Duet, by Misses Wardrope and McMillan; Essay, "Nervous Man," by Mr. W. Ward; Reading, "Edinburgh after Flodden," by Mr. J. Argo; Trio, by Misses Wardrope, Brown and Thompson; Recitation, "Chautrey's Sleeping Children," by Mr. J. Strachan. The next meeting will be held on Friday, March 19th, when a good programme will be presented.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Persian letters state that Shah Baz Khan, the Governor appointed by the British, has fled from Kohistan.

In the debate on Article 7 in the Senate on Friday, M. Ferry declared that the Society of Jesus was a permanent conspiracy against the State.

By a boiler explosion in Glasgow on Friday six persons were killed and thirty severely injured.

La Civilization, a clerical organ, has been fined 1,000 francs for insulting President Grevy and M. Waddington.

A Woman Outraged Near Toronto.

TORONTO, March 6.—Mary Manse, a servant employed at the house of Mr. Tollen, Lake shore road, was returning from this city to her home on Wednesday last. She was overtaken by five men, who induced her to partake of some liquor, which is supposed to have been drugged. They then forcibly carried her to an adjoining wood, where they brutally outraged her, and she was found in an unconscious state and removed to the General Hospital, where she at present lies in a critical condition. A young man named Morooney, living in the neighbourhood has been arrested on suspicion.

Fire in Collingwood.

COLLINGWOOD, March 6.—Last night at 12:30 a fire broke out in a frame building on Front street, used as a store and dwelling owned by Wm. Liddell, and occupied by a man named Blakely, as a machine shop. The building being old the flames soon spread to an adjoining store owned by Graves, which was unoccupied. By the strenuous efforts of the fire brigade the flames were confined to the two buildings, which were totally destroyed. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, as also another building known as the Malacoff was fired, but was checked before any damage was done. The loss is estimated at $1,600. Liddell's property was insured in the Phœnix for $1,000. Grave's no insurance.

Parnell's Visit to Toronto.

Anticipated Trouble.

TORONTO, March 6.—The Parnell reception committee have been busily engaged all morning making such arrangements as they deem necessary to prevent any disturbance to night. Various rumours have been current of a well matured plan that will cause the lecture to come to a sudden termination, and many believe that trouble will arise.

It is stated that the gas pipes in the Opera House have been so arranged that the supply can be cut off, leaving the place in darkness. As the hour approaches the talk becomes more general, and all expressions clearly point towards discountenancing the Irish agitator and his friends.

Two of the committee of management left for Hamilton this morning, where they will meet and escort Parnell to this city.

The newspapers have said very little about the anticipated visit.

Mechanics' Institutes.

From the annual report of the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario, for 1879, it appears that the Toronto Institute Library is still heading the list, and contains 9665 volumes; that Hamilton follows with 6635; and that Elora maintains the third position with 4230. The City of St. Catharines has 3362; Brantford, 3280; Guelph, 2337; London, 1681; Kingston, 1359; and Belleville, 923. Dundas has fourth place with 3641 volumes, while Fergus has a respectable position with 2132. Toronto claims clear assets of $26,325, Hamilton, $30,527; London, $5,800; Preston, $4,313; Dundas, $6,906; Elora, $4,082, and Fergus, $3,478. The number of members in the Guelph Institute are 375; number of books changed during the month of February, 1880, 920; number changed during the same month in 1879, 590. This is gratifying and shows what an increased interest is taken in the library. Since the returns contained in the above report were given in, a considerable number of books have been added to the library, making now in all 2587, which are classified as follows:—

Fiction	675
History	287
Illustrated works	64
Miscellaneous	534
Poetry and Drama	72
Religious literature	139
Science and Art	217
Voyages and Travels	134
Works of Reference	241

THE ICE HARVEST.—John Hewer left for Rockwood to-day (Saturday), with twenty men to cut ten cars loads of ice for shipment to Hamilton.

John McMaster, of Puslinch, who was committed as a lunatic on Friday was taken to the asylum at Toronto to-day (Saturday.)

In the Minister of Agriculture's report are included the insolvent statistics for 1878. The total number of insolvents were 1,495. Of these 752 were in Ontario. The liabilities, as furnished by the insolvents, were $24,836,359. Of this amount $10,929,672 were in Ontario. The claims proved amounted to $16,228,896.

Pork packing ranks as the third American industry.

Lots of bargains at Anderson's auction sale to-night.

Shocking and Deliberate Suicide.

JOHN A. McMILLAN HANGS HIMSELF IN HIS OWN HOUSE.

He Leaves his Body to the Toronto Medical School.

The news that John A. McMillan, for some years a resident of Guelph, had committed suicide by hanging, spread rapidly through the city this morning and on enquiry the report was found to be too true.

Martha Haggart, who carried milk to Mr. McMillan's every day, called as usual this (Saturday) morning, and on going through the house saw his lifeless body suspended from the bedroom door. She ran to Sallows' blacksmith shop and informed Mr. Sallows of what she had seen, and he at once notified the police. On the arrival of the Chief, he and Mr. Sallows went to Mr. McMillan's house and made a thorough examination of it. The body was suspended by a leather strap fastened round the neck, the other end of the strap being tied to the door nob. It had been placed over the top of the door and Mr. McMillan had stood on a chair while fastening it round his neck. Though the body presented a ghastly appearance it did not look unnatural. It was in a semi-nude condition, the only covering being a clean white linen shirt. The feet was on the floor with the knees bent forward to admit of the terrible deed being fully carried out. On a table in an adjoining room were found numerous letters, and those bearing on the case will be found subjoined.

GUELPH, Feb. 9th, 1880.

W. T. Aitkens, Esq., M. D.

MY DEAR SIR,—Since I wrote you on the 8th Dec. last, my life has been one continuous feeling of misery. I was born in 1826. Sept. 28th. consequently my next birthday would find me 54 years old.

My ear has stopped running since about the date of my last—except when I sleep—and my head is dull and heavy, no acute pain but a depression dull and dreadful to bear.

He here alluded briefly to his symptoms, describing a rush of blood to his head and a feeling of dullness which followed. The letter continued:

I can't give you any more information, the outline you have got may, and I hope will assist you in investigating the disease in my head, and help you to ascertain some remedy to help in future some poor souls afflicted as I have been for several years.

I am happy at the approach of death, the grim monster has no terrors for me, and I rejoice that my suffering is nearly over—this is no bravada—and when you dissect my body I want you to do it slowly and carefully—minutely watching for the cause of the effects I have indicated.

I am, yours truly,
JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

P. S.—I may state to you that I used to be full of vigor. Any amount of go. Excellent memory, till of late years when all seemed to leave me and lassitude took their place. J. A. McM.

My dear Dr. I owe a little money, please send $30 or $40 or as much as you can Address as follows:—Richard Fyfe, carver, Guelph. He has instructions how to pay it out. Please favor me in this.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

The following is an answer from Dr. Aikens to a former letter of Mr. McMillan's:

TORONTO, Dec. 12th, 1879.

MR. J. A. MCMILLAN,

DEAR SIR,—Your favor of the 8th inst. duly received by me.

In order that your body may be given to the Toronto School of Medicine when you have passed away, you should put a note in your will to this effect.

I think that by doing this you set a good example to the people of Ontario, and are a public benefactor. I hope, however, you may live for many a long day.

I would like to have your age.

If you were coming down to Toronto, I would be very glad to see you and examine into your case.

With best wishes,
I am, dear sir,
Yours very truly,
W. T. AIKENS, M. D.,
Per F. T. A.

On a blank leaf of Dr. Aiken's letter was the following:

My dear friends [Fyfe and Tripp.]

E. F. B. Johnston will give you money to buy my coffin, the cheapest you can get. Fix this card on it and send it to Toronto as per address. Do this now—and no fuss or Coroner's Inquest. There is no need for anything of the sort. Please carry out my desire in this respect, and all matters as I have written them, and honour my last request. I am glad it is over, and I die your friend.

JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

The card referred to in the last letter read as follows:—"W. J. Aikens, M. D., Toronot School of Medicine, Toronto."

The next letter was to Mr. Fyfe, and is given below:

FYFE,—Now remember I want you to send my body to the Toronto School of Medicine for dissection. This is my last and special request of you. Get a box and pack me in, anything will do. Old Joe Bowers can team me to the railway, no funeral. Tripp and you can put me in the waggon, and that the end. Remember this.

JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

Various articles of furniture were labelled and willed to different friends. The following label appeared on the bureau:—"This bureau is Mary Lennox's. 'Tis in my will for Maggie Hood, but Mary has waited on me often and well and she must get it. All the unmarked articles are Maggie Hood's. John A. McMillan." Labels appeared on a writing desk which was left to Mr. McMillan's daughter Emma;" on a complete edition of Shakspear's works, left to Richard Fyfe; on some books to Wm. Roper, and on a few articles to David Tripp.

When the Chief had taken in the surroundings he notified Coroner Keating who viewed the body. It was afterwards viewed by Coroner Herod, and it was decided to hold an inquest at four o'clock in the afternoon. The body remains in the position in which it was found.

The house in which the suicide occurred is situated on Gordon street immediately north of the Dundas flats and belongs to Mr. Wm. Roper. Mr. McMillan had been living in it for upwards of two years, most of that time alone. For some time he was unwell, and a few months ago was confined to his bed when his recovery was unlooked for. His trouble was an affection of the ear and head. During his illness Dr. McGregor was his medical attendant. When he was sick Mrs. Lennox, spoken of above as Mary Lennox, waited on him frequently. The interior of the house was kept in good order and this (Saturday) morning the furniture was not found disarranged. There are three rooms in the house—a sitting room, kitchen and bedroom. The door of the bedroom where Mr. McMillan hanged himself was open. The clothes of the bed were partly turned down from the top, but the pillows were unruffled, and the bed did not look as though he had slept in it. From this fact it is supposed the suicide was committed late on Friday night. He was last seen by Mr. and Mrs. James Little, who met him going towards home about seven o'clock on Friday evening. The neighbors did not see him after that time. In fact they seldom did see him, and from his eccentric actions and reserved manner some of them are not slow to assert that mental derangement was the cause of the suicide.

The deceased, who is fifty four years of age, was well known to the people of Guelph, and we may say of this County. He began business about twenty years ago in the Village of Douglas, Township of Garafraxa, as a boot and shoe maker. Being possessed of great energy, both mental and physical, he soon found this quiet village too small for his ambition, and soon moved into Fergus, where for years he carried on a large and lucrative business in the boot and shoe line. Here he took a prominent position among the business men of the place, and was made a Magistrate. At this time he also took a great interest in the Volunteer Force, and his connection with the Fergus Company ultimately led to his promotion as Major in the Force.

In the winter of 1869-70 he was burned out in Fergus, and shortly after that he came to Guelph and started business on an extensive scale. During that year, however, he was deeply involved in law suits with the Wellington and Gore Mutual Insurance Companies, who contested his claims for damages at the fire in Fergus on account of alleged frauds. He lost the cases, and his appearance in the witness box did not at all help his reputation.

He threw himself into insolvency after, but the revelations connected therewith did more injury than good to his character, and this ended in his being for a time put in gaol.

His life, subsequently, need not be referred to. The death of his wife, the scattering of his family, and his abandonment of all good influences are well known to the people of this city. He abandoned himself to the gratification of his passions. His old friends either forsook him or gave him the cold shoulder, and he was in a sense left alone to a conscience devoid of feeling or remorse. In this state of mind he sunk lower and lower, until at last wearied of life he rashly took it, and so put an end to a miserable existence.

The Game Law.

No Bill introduced into the Legislative Assembly this session has excited more widespread or active interest than those proposing amendments to the Game Law. The Bill introduced by Mr. Wigle early in the session is the basis of the following text. It was read a first and second time and referred to a special committee, which recast it to a considerable extent. On Friday afternoon it was considered by the House in Committee of the Whole and further modified, being left then in the shape in which it appears below. It is quite certain that further attempts will be made to change it when it comes up for its third reading, and as the Bill is not likely to be reprinted with the latest amendments, those interested in its progress would do well to preserve it as given here.

1. The Act passed in the forty-first year of Her Majesty's reign, and chaptered eighteen, is hereby repealed.

2. None of the animals or birds hereinmentioned shall be hunted, taken, or killed within the periods hereinafter limited; (1) deer, elk, moose, reindeer, caribou, between the fifteenth day of December and the first day of October; (2) grouse, pheasant, prairie fowl, or partridges, between the first of January and the first day of September; (3) wild turkeys or quail, between the first day of January and the first day of October; (4) woodcock, between the first of January and the first day of August; (5) snipe, between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of August; (6) water fowl, known as mallard, grey duck, black duck, wood or summer duck, between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of August; (7) other ducks, swans, or geese, between the first day of May and the fifteenth day of August; (8) hare, between the first day of March and the first day of September.

3. No person shall have in his possession any of the said animals or birds, or any part or portion of any of such animals or birds, during the periods in which they are so protected; provided that they may be exposed for sale for twenty days and no longer after such periods, and may be had in possession for the private use of the owner and his family at any time, but in all cases the proof of the time of killing, taking, or purchasing shall be upon the person so in possession.

4. No eggs of any of the birds above mentioned shall be taken, destroyed, or had in possession of any person at any time.

5. None of the said animals or birds, except the animals mentioned in the seventh section of the Act, shall be trapped or taken by means of traps, nets, snares, gins, baited lines or other similar contrivances; nor shall such traps, nets, snares, gins, baited lines or contrivances be set for them, or any of them at any time; and such traps, nets, snares, gins, baited lines or contrivances may be destroyed by any person without such person thereby incurring any liability therefor.

6. None of the contrivances for taking or killing the wild fowl known as swans, geese or ducks which are described or known as batteries, swivel guns, sunken punts or night lights, shall be used at any time.

7. No beaver, muskrat, sable, marten, otter or fisher, shall be hunted, taken or killed, or had in possession of any person between the first day of May and the first day of November; and no mink between the first day of April and the first day of November; nor shall any traps, snares, gins, or other contrivances be set for them during such period; nor shall any muskrat house be cut, broken, or destroyed at any time; and any such traps, snares, gins, or other contrivances so set may be destroyed by any person without such person thereby incurring any liability therefor: Provided that the section shall not apply to any person destroying any of the said animals in defence or preservation of his property.

8. Offences against this Act shall be punished upon summary conviction on information or complaint before a Justice of the Peace, as follows: (1) In case of deer, elk, moose, reindeer, or caribou, by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars nor less than ten dollars, with costs, for each offence; (2) in case of birds or eggs, by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than five dollars, with costs, for each bird or egg; (3) in case of fur bearing animals mentioned in the seventh section of this Act, by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than five dollars, with costs, for each offence; (4) in the case of other branches of this Act, by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than five dollars, with costs.

9. The whole of such fine shall be paid to the prosecutor, unless the convicting justice has reasons to believe that the prosecution is in collusion with and for the purpose of benefitting the accused, in which case the said justice may order the disposal of the fine as in ordinary cases.

10. In all cases confiscation of game shall follow conviction, and the game so confiscated shall be given to some charitable institution or purpose, at the discretion of the convicting justice.

11. In order to encourage persons who have heretofore imported, or hereafter import, different kinds of game with the desire to breed and preserve the same on their own lands, it is enacted that it shall not be lawful to hunt, shoot, kill, or destroy any such game without the consent of the owner of the property wherever the same may be bred.

12. It shall not be lawful for any person to kill or take any animal protected by this Act by the use of poison or poisonous substances, nor to expose poison, poisoned bait, or other poisoned substances in any place or locality where dogs or cattle may have access to the same.

13. No person shall at any time hunt, take, or kill any deer, elk, moose, reindeer, or caribou for the purpose of exporting the same out of Ontario, and in all cases the onus of proving that any such deer, elk, moose, raindeer, or caribou so hunted, taken, or killed, is not intended to be exported as aforsaid shall be upon the person hunting, killing, or taking the same.

(a) Offences against this section shall be punished by fine not exceeding $25, nor less than $5 for each animal.

14. No owner of any dog, trained or accustomed to hunt deer, shall permit any such dog to run at large (if such dog is accustomed or is likely to resort to the woods unaccompanied by such owner or any of his family or other person) during the period from the 15th of November to the 15th of October, under a penalty, on conviction, of not more than $25, nor less than $5 for each offence. Any person harboring or claiming to be the owner of any such dog, shall be deemed to be the owner thereof.

SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 6, 1880

The Ontario Legislature.

The session of the Ontario Legislature closed on Friday, and if we cannot chronicle anything remarkable in its proceedings, we can at least say that it has given close attention to the business brought before it, and that the legislation on the whole has been of a very important character. The session spread over two months, but no fault could be found with the Government on the score of delay, for they had their measures ready at the commencement of the session, and had it not been for the long list of private bills, the work might have been done in less time than it was. But in all legislation of this kind, the interests of all parties have to be consulted, and in deference to them, the most ample time is given so that no one will have any cause to complain that any particular measure which he is looking after has been overlooked or slighted.

The Government have come well up to the fulfillment of their programme, as announced in the Lieut.-Governor's speech at the opening of the House. They promised measures for reorganizing the Reformatory for Boys, for the future management of the Agricultural College; for making alterations in the jurisdiction and machinery of the Division Courts, and consolidating the Superior Courts of Law and Equity; for abolishing priority among execution creditors; amending the law regulating municipal taxation; and altering the mutual relations of the settler and the lumberer with respect to free grant lands; for the protection of railway employees who are liable to fatal injuries from the nature of their employment, and for the erection of new Parliament and Departmental buildings. All these measures have been passed with the exception of two; that relating to the jurisdiction of the Courts, and the protection of railway employees. Besides these, the Government also carried through measures relating to the following subjects:—Co-operative associations, the qualification of land surveyors, the holding of coroner's inquests, the amendment of the Agriculture and Arts Act, real property, the collection of taxes in the various judical districts, the amendment of the Act relating to Public Schools, the selection of jurors, the inspection of insurance companies, the transfer of prisoners, the amendment of the Municipal Act, &c.

The above record is, therefore, exceedingly creditable to the Government, and is very good proof of their industry, and the amount of work they have done during the session. Though well aware of their strength, they have not abused it, but while carefully studying the interests of the country, they have sanctioned any legislation that had this object in view, and have wisely set their face against any measures that they might have been tempted to go into by undue pressure, which however, their good sense and desire for the good of the Province led them to reject.

On the whole we consider that the work of the Government during the session just closed is about the best, most practical and creditable they have done for years, and this credit is due as much to the legislation they prevented as to that they felt it their duty to carry through. While no doubt their policy was a source of annoyance and disappointment to advocates of certain schemes and interests, it met the approval of the great bulk of the people in the Province, and they close the session as strong, if not stronger, than when they met the House in January, and had to trust to its good feeling and loyalty to support their policy and their programme of business.

It was Mr. Shaw, the member for South Bruce, who seconded the motion to give Mr. Blake's Prevention of Crime Bill the six month's hoist. In common decency he might have allowed some one else to do it.

The Senate is doing wonders. On an average these venerable "lords" sit from twenty minutes to an hour, and then adjourn. But their pay goes on all the same. Their motto is:—"Nothing to do and much to get."

The correspondence and resolutions relative to the Ontario Boundary Award, printed by the Ontario Government has been distributed among the members. The principal document is a lengthy representation to the Dominion Government on the subject, and dated September 23rd, in which the introduction of a Bill to ratify the Award is asked for.

It is understood that the Estimates will be submitted to Parliament on Monday afternoon, and that Sir Leonard Tilley will deliver his Budget Speech on Tuesday.

The annual report of Mr. John Smith, Government Agent at Hamilton, states that some of the immigrants arriving at this agency during the close of the season were not of a desirable class, being composed of pensioned soldiers, who were induced to come out on the recommendation of the ticket agents interested in the different steamship companies, the principal one being a Mr. Odell, of Dublin, who, he is informed, has made a practice of canvassing the discharged soldiers for the purpose of inviting them to emigrate, in order to make his commission, under promises which he must have known could not be fulfilled. This class of p[illegible] are entirely unfit for the labor of this country. On their arrival here they are without any means, having used their pension in advance to pay for their passage.

The Globe rightly says that the state of feeling in Biddulph is such that we cannot feel assured that justice will be done in the Donnelly case unless the trial of the men now charged with murder takes place in a part of the country where an impartial jury can be obtained. The two verdicts of the coroner's jury show a total disregard for the evidence adduced at the inquests.

The Attempted Murder of Melikoff.

Speedy Trial and Execution of the Prisoner.

London, March 5.—St. Petersburg specials state that the assassin Vladetsky, when first arrested behaved so as to suggest derangement. The trial of the prisoner opened at eleven o'clock. The prisoner was insolent and refused to stand up or take any part in the proceedings, and said he had nothing to say nor did not want to be troubled any more; he wanted the matter finished. Depositions were then read, the prisoner withdrawing while the Court deliberated. He was brought back at one o'clock, when judgment was pronounced. Vladetsky was brought to-day from the fortress to the place of execution, strapped in a sitting posture on the black vehicle, with his back to the horses. A placard bearing the words State Criminal was attached to his breast. A company of Cossacks formed an escort. The scaffold was surrounded by infantry. On the way to the scaffold, and after reaching it, Vladetsky was quite calm, smiling occasionally. After the sentence had been read, he turned and bowed on all sides to the people. Just before being delivered to the hangman he said a few words to the priest and kissed the cross. The execution took place in the presence of an immense concourse. The body remained hanging twenty minutes. The police arrested seven men in the crowd having the appearance of students. They were taken to the fortress under a strong escort.

Artillery Association.

Ottawa, March 4.—The annual meeting of the Dominion Artillery Association was held in the tower room this afternoon. The chair was occupied by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Selby Smith, K. C. M. G. Among the members present from this section were Major Macdonald of the Wellington Field Battery, and Capt. McCrae, of the Ontario Field Battery.

The chairman stated that the Minister of Militia was unavoidably absent. He thought that the Government would pass the annual grant of $900. There was a surplus of $700 on hand over from last year.

Col. Strange presented the following series of resolutions prepared at the meeting of the Council in the morning:

Proposed by Lieut.-Col. Strange, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Irwin,

"That six points be given for a direct hit with a common shell, fired with a plugged or percussion fuse."

Proposed by Lieut.-Col. Strange, seconded by Major Macdonald,

"That the subject for next year's essay be 'taking into consideration the peculiarities of climate, physical features, means available, etc., of Canada; what is the most suitable form for a battery armed with sixty-four 32-pound guns on standing carriages on a water front to oppose unarmoured vessels similarly armed, and the best means to facilitate and encourage the construction of such works by the militia engineers and artillery themselves at important points, plans, etc.,' to be the bona fide work of the writer."

Proposed by Capt. McCrae, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Strange,

"That rule 3 be amended so as to admit the artillery branch of the North-West Mounted Police, but being under exceptional circumstances that rules as to batteries armed with a special weapon be applied."

Proposed by Lieut.-Col. Strange, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Fraser,

"That prizes at the rate of $5 per battery affliating and practising at the station, be given for competition with Palliser converted guns, to be called the 'Palliser prize.'"

Major DeWinton said he had been instructed by His Excellency to state that as a mark of his appreciation of the work of the Dominion Artillery Association, he would offer a cup for competition in such a manner as the Council might deem proper, and the prize would be supplemented by a small money grant. Major DeWinton said His Excellency took a good deal of interest in the Association, and wished them success.

The announcement was received with applause, and the chairman returned thanks in suitable terms, stating that the gift was another proof of the interest which His Excellency evinced towards the institution.

Lieut.-Col. Strange, moved, seconded by Major DeWinton.

"That the cadets of the Royal Military College be admitted as a special case, and that special prizes be offered for field artillery practice, garrison artillery practice, and shifting ordnance."—Carried.

Lieut. Col. Strange thought that renewed application should be made to the Government for a Provincial meeting of artillery corps and asking for free transport.

Lieut.-Col. Lewis suggested a week's drill and practice similiar to that at Shoeburyness in the Maritime Province. They could meet at Halifax, camping at Mount Pleasant, if the Government would grant free transport. That was all that would be required, and it would do much to improve the corps in that section of the Dominion.

Lieut. Col. Price Lewis moved, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Fraser:—

"That the Government be request ed to grant free transportation to artillery corps desiring to form provincial camps for drill and practice."—Carried.

The officers were re-elected, and the meeting adjourned.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

The Preliminary Trial Continued.

London, March 5.—The investigation of the Biddulph tragedy was this morning continued before Squires Peters and Fisher. There was a considerable falling off in the attendance of spectators, but still the Court was pretty well filled.

Constable Hodge was examined, and Chief Williams was recalled, but their evidence was of no special importance. Geo. Pett, an expert, was examined as to the condition of Mc-Laughlin's gun.

Young Carroll and P. Ryder, jr., were then brought up and admitted to bail, themselves in $1,000, and two sureties of $500 each advanced by Patrick Ryder, sr., and Timothy Toohey.

The court adjourned till Tuesday next.

The adjournment was made in order to hear the evidence of three more witnesses Wm. Donnelly's wife, James Keefe, and another person whose name Mr. Hutchinson did not remember Mrs. Donnelly will tell what she knows of the murder of her brother in-law. Keefe will repeat the story Bill Donnelly told him four or five hours after the gang left his house, and the other witness will probably be examined as to the formation and operations of the now notorious Vigilance Committee. A copy of Martin Hogan's testimony given at the inquest will be put in, which will close the case for the prosecution.

Ontario Legislature.

The House Prorogued.

Toronto, March 5.

At three o'clock His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, accompanied by Captain Law, A. D. C., drove down to the Parliament Buildings. As soon as the carriage debouched from the gates of the Government House the Field Battery, which was stationed on Wellington street, began the firing of a salute. The galleries and body of the House was well filled. The following are the more important bills assented to:—

Act to provide for the erection of new buildings for the accommodation of the Provincial Legislature and the Public Departments.

Act respecting public officers of Ontario.

Act to make further provision respecting the estates of persons confined in asylums for the insane.

SPEECH.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I am glad to be able to relieve you from further attendance upon your Legislative duties and to thank you for the careful consideration you have given to the many useful measures to which I have to-day been called upon to assent.

It gives me great pleasure to know from the action you have taken that my Government will have your cordial and loyal support in asserting the just claims and rights of this Province, more especially in their efforts to sustain the Award of the arbitrators by which the northerly and westerly boundaries of Ontario have been determined, and I have to acknowledge the promptness with which you have placed at the disposal of my advisers the necessary funds for that purpose.

It is gratifying to me to observe that the subject of providing new and increased accommodation for the Legislature and Governmental Departments has engaged your attention. I trust that, without exceeding the estimated cost, buildings will be erected fully equal to the demands of the public service and in all respects worthy of this great and wealthy province.

The readiness with which you have voted a sum of money for the relief of our suffering fellow-subjects in Ireland will I am sure, be warmly appreciated by them, and afford a fresh proof of the common sentiments of interest and sympathy which unite the people of the many widely separated portions of Her Majesty's Dominions.

The Bill incorporating the Agricultural College, which has just become law, shows the sense entertained by you of the importance of that institution to the farmers of Ontario, and I have no doubt your views thus expressed will be shared to a constantly increasing extent by all classes of the people. As the utility of this institution is further demonstrated by experience, steps will be taken by my Government to give early effect to the proposition to appoint an Agricultural Commission, and to assure for any outlay so incurred the most practical and beneficial results.

The extension of the jurisdiction of the Division Courts will tend to secure to a large number of suitors a more ready and less expensive means for enforcing just demands, while other amendments in the law sanctioned by you will add materially to the efficiency of the tribunals.

The important amendments in the Municipal law resulting from your deliberations, more particularly those which reduce the number of statutory exemptions and effect certain changes in the incidences of local taxation, cannot fail to be of great public benefit.

While the subject is surrounded with considerable difficulty, it may reasonably expected that your enquiries as to the best means for providing security against accidents to brakesmen and other railway servants will in due time result in the attainment of that most desirable object.

The measures to prevent the wasteful destruction of pine timber on free grant lands, to bring Mechanics' Institutes under the cognizance of the Minister of Education, to abolish priority of claims among execution creditors, to check the unnecessary holding of coroner's inquests, and to introduce an improved system of management into the Reformatory for boys at Penetanguishene; all demonstrate the lively regard of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario for the good government and welfare of the province.

I thank you for the supplies you have voted for the public service. They will be expended with all the regard for economy that is consistent with efficiency and the public requirements.

In addressing you probably for the last time in my official capacity, I cannot help giving expression to my earnest desire for the future prosperity of the Province of Ontario and the permanence of those institutions by which its present proud and happy position has been largely secured.

May Divine wisdom ever guide the counsels of its statesmen, and a blessing attend the industry of the people.

The Provincial Secretary then said: Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly, it is His Honor's will and pleasure that this Legislative Assembly be prorogued, and this Legislative Assembly is accordingly prorogued.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, March 5.

Sir John Macdonald introduced a Bill to consolidate and amend the Acts relating to the North-West Territories.

Mr. Fleming introduced a Bill providing that the captains of vessels shall be personally held responsible for bringing pauper immigrants to this country.

Mr. Ouimet this session will again attempt to repeal the Bill preventing dual representation, and introduced a measure in that direction.

The Ministerial measure providing for the salaries of two additional Judges of the Supreme Court of British Columbia was advanced a stage.

The debate was resumed on Mr. McLennan's motion for a statement of the contracts let on the Pacific Railway up to January 1st last.

Mr. Mackenzie concluded his speech, and indicated that the Opposition would hesitate in sanctioning the extravagant expenditure on account of the Pacific Railway, which the present Government appeared to have initiated. The enormous annual expenditure threatened to be pursued by the Government would ultimately land the country in inextricable debt.

The motion was carried.

Mr. McCarthy's Bills to amend the Supreme and Exchequer Courts' Act, and to amend the Act relating to procedure in criminal cases were advanced a stage.

The House adjourned at 9:45 p. m.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

The International Park at Niagara Falls.

The State Survey Commissioners met at Albany on Wednesday concerning the International Park at Niagara, drawn by ex-Lieutenant-Governor Dorsheimer, President Barnard, of Columbia College, and Francis A. Stout, who were appointed for that purpose at the Utica meeting last autumn. It recommends the creation by law of a Commission to take measures for the sequestration and appraisement of the necessary land on the New York side of the Niagara River in accordance with the plans of Mr. Garoner, the Director of the Survey, and Frederick L. Olmstead, which are appended. All the documents will be printed and laid before the Senate and Assembly next week, together with drafts of the proposed legislation. The matter of money appropriation to pay for the land is advised to be postponed till next year, inasmuch as the sum must remain indefinite until the appraisement is completed. Extensive enquiry satisfies me that the project is very favourably regarded in the Legislature. Simultaneously with the adoption of this report a memorial was laid before Governor Cornell beseeching his favour to the undertaking. It bears the most extraordinary collection of signatures of prominent American citizens and British subjects which we have ever seen appended to a public document.

Among the former are the Vice-President, the Chief Justice of the United States, and his associates, the Secretary of War, the Admiral of the Navy, the most prominent Senators and Representatives in Congress, the Governors of several States, Cardinal McCloskey, and distinguished ecclesiastics of every denomination; the Presidents of Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, St. John's, and most other Eastern Colleges; Daniel Huntington, President of the National Academy, and numerous famous artists; Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Palfrey, Parkman, Agassiz, Grey, and a kindred array of poets, historians, and scientists; the Mayor of New York, and the chief merchants of the metropolis, and hundreds of famous men in private life, such as Horace Seymour, Charles Francis Adams, Thurlow Weed, Edwin D. Morgan, and John Day. Among the Canadian signatures are Chief Justice Dorion of the Canadian Court of Appeals, and almost all the judiciary of the Dominion; the Lord Bishop and the Mayor of Montreal; Principal Dawson, of McGill College; and various leading members of the Canadian Parliament and eminent private men, such as Sir Hugh Allan and Sir Francis Hincks, together with such Englishmen as Professor Jowett and Max Muller in behalf of the University of Oxford, Thomas Carlyle, Ruskin, Lord Houghton, Sir John Lubbock, Leslie, Stephen, and Frederick Harrison. The list also bears the names of many members of the British Parliament.

The undersigned citizens of several States and countries, address you by reason of a suggestion recently made by Lord Dufferin that the State of New York and the Dominion of Canada should secure and hold for the world's good the lands adjacent to the Falls of Niagara. The Falls are peculiarly exposed to disastrous injury. The heights of snow, the precipitous crags of great mountains, however they may be disfigured by man, can rarely be disfigured in a way which would destroy their sublimity. But should the island and the declivities of Niagara River be stripped of their natural woods and occupied for manufacturing and business purposes, should even the position, size, and form of the constructions which the accommodation of visitors will call for continue to be regulated solely by the pecuniary interests of numerous individual land owners, the loss to the world will be great and irreparable. The danger may be measured by what has already occurred. The river banks are denuded of the noble forests by which they were originally covered. They are degraded by the incongruous and unworthy structures made for advertising purposes wilfully conspicuous and obtrusive, and the visitor's attention is diverted from scenes to the influence of which he would gladly surrender himself by demands for tolls and fees and offers of services, most of which he would prefer to avoid. Objects of great natural beauty and grandeur are among the most valuable gifts which Providence has bestowed upon our race. The contemplation of these elevates and informs the human understanding. They are instruments of education; they conduce to the order of society; they draw together men of all races, and they contribute to the union and peace of nations. The suggestion, therefore, that an object of this class so unparalleled as the Falls of Niagara should be placed under the joint guardianship of the two Governments, whose chief magistrates we have the honour to address, is a proper concern of the civilized world, and we respectfully ask that it may by appropriate methods be commended to the wise consideration of the Legislature of New York.

A similar memorial has been addressed to the Governor-General of Canada.

Utilizing Saw Dust.—The Mail makes the following remarks: Lumbermen have for many years been looking about for a profitable mode of utilizing saw dust. Burning it as fuel for their steam engines makes no appreciable diminution in the supply, and though various means of turning it to good account have been suggested, their adoption is not always practicable on the spot. Mixing the saw-dust with tar and converting it into fuel has been found to answer in some cases; in others, the manufacture of fire lighters, by mixing the sawdust with petroleum or resin, and pressing it into small cakes has been adopted. An ingenious American inventor has devised a machine for working up the material into a pulp and compressing it into various shapes, such as barrels, brackets, doors, etc. It is said that articles of furniture made in this way are in certain respects perferable to those made of ordinary wood, the pulp becoming perfectly hard and impervious to water.

CHAPTER XXX.

NIGHT OF EXCITING ADVENTURES—DAVID RAMSAY IN PURSUIT—AGNES BORLAND THE HANDS OF HER CAPTORS— HE ISSUE.

All in the boat were struck dumb with amazement at the scene. All but Reuben Langton, who lay writhing and groaning among the rowers' feet, knowing what none else knew as yet: that his leg was broken below the knee, and suspecting also that his thigh was out of joint. Even in his agony he was filled with rage, and when not groaning with pain he was gnashing his teeth with fury.

"Hullo!" exclaimed Yawkins, making his way forward to where David sat with Agnes clinging to him. "What fellow are you? Ain't you one of Dobson's land-sharks?"

"No," replied David resolutely. "I hae come to protect this lassie, and take her hame. Turn back the boat, and land us on the beach."

"Ha! Langton, do you hear that? What's to be done with this insolent fellow."

"Throw him overboard," said Reuben, grinding the words savagely through his set teeth.

"No—no," screamed Agnes. He has come to save me from wrong. You shall not throw him over, or if you do, we shall go together." And she twined her arms round him with increased tenacity.

"Over with him," yelled Reuben. "It was he who brought the revenue men upon us."

"Ha!" cried Yawkins, with a fearful oath. "That treachery dooms him. Take the girl one of you, and I'll pitch him over the gunwale."

"I didna bring the revenue men on ye," exclaimed David. "The gauger and his men hae been watchin' you a' nicht. They expected ye to rin a cargo somewhere amang the rocks. I met the gauger when I was seekin' for the gipsies, and that's hoo I kenned whaur to come."

"It's a lie he's telling you," roared Reuben.

"It's nae lee, Maister Langton. I wad scorn to lee, man, even to save my life. Ye seem sair hurt if ane may judge by the way ye are groanin'."

"Ay, my leg is broken; my thigh is out of joint—curse you."

"Dinna curse me; curse yersel', for had ye no hired the gipsies to carry awa' Agnes this wadna hae happened ye. It's a judgment on ye, sir, and mair will come if ye dinna put us baith ashore; and gin it be true yer leg is broken the sooner ye are at hame to get it set, the better for it and you."

"I'll be hanged if I go back," growled Yawkins. "The lugger is waiting to set sail, and you must all go to the island. I've lost too much time already with this work, and bad luck it has brought us. Give way, men; row with a will, or we'll lose the morning tide. Donner and blitzen! what's that?"

It was the sound of a gun coming from seaward that had startled all in the boat and elicited the wrathful utterance of Yawkins. It came from the lugger, which lay little more than half a mile off, and was a signal that danger was at hand. Yawkins stood up in the boat with a night glass at his eye, and had not fixed his gaze many seconds when another flash was seen, and another reverberating sound rolled over the water.

"Der devil! yonder is a revenue cutter," he furiously ejaculated.

"Is there no twa o' them?" queried David Ramsay. "Maister Dobson tell'd me there were twa, lookin' oot for the Black Prince, if that is the name o' your lugger."

"Two! curse it, yes—there are two," roared Yawkins, "If Vanderbolt hasn't the sense to slip cable and make sail the lugger will be captured. What is the idiot waiting for and firing gun after gun? There goes another. Does he think I will come on board with these pirates alongside? Make sail, you fool. Hang your eyes, make sail at once, or the Black Prince will bear the broad arrow in a jiffey."

The Huge Dutchman, frantic with rage, stamped and swore till the boat quivered and oscillated in a dangerous manner. At every shock received by the bottom timbers Reuben Langton, who lay on them, shrieked with agony; but his cries were unheeded by Yawkins, whose whole attention was occupied by the danger to his vessel. Towards the latter a king's cutter was drawing near from each side. There was still time for escape if Yawkins' chief officer, who was in charge, made sail with all promptitude, for the Black Prince was a faster sailer than any cutter on the coast, and Yawkins had more than once taken it out of the teeth of an eager lieutenant, who thought himself sure of his prey. His absence from the ship at this crisis threatened to prove fatal. Vanderbolt, who was evidently aware of the danger that menaced him, did not seem to know what to do. The guns he was firing were obviously signals to the boat, but whether meant to hasten its progress or to warn it back, could not be determined. If he waited till the boat had time to come alongside capture was inevitable. He had now barely time, even with the lugger's superior powers of speed, to get away—a few moments longer and all chance would be gone.

To the choleric Yawkins this delay was infuriating. In his excitement he shouted orders as if he had been on deck, and foamed and blasphemed because they were not executed. At length, to his extravagant joy, sheet after sheet of canvas was shaken out by the lugger, and she bore away between the two cutters who did their best to intercept her, but being too much in shore came short of doing so by a few fathoms.

"Well done, Vanderbolt, exclaimed the now delighted Yawkins, "crack on every stitch, my fine fellow, and you'll soon leave them in your wake. That's it, mainsail, jib, sky rakers, every one of them, and off you go. Ha! you hired spies and cutthroats, how do you like to see sailing like that. Ay, fire a shot if you like, but you'll never make the gallant-going Prince lie to? You've lost the heat again, my prowling sharks. Keep up the stern chase for an hour, and the lugger will not only be out of your reach but out of your sight. Your teeth and your eyes both baffled. Confound you, it serves you right for molesting us free traders, who are honester folk than you."

While this scene was enacting the rowers had sat with motionless oars, and the boat was slowly drifting with the tide. When all dubiety as to the safety of the lugger was removed, Yawkins resumed his seat and began to consider what was now to be done. The departure of his vessel brought him into a new position. It was no use proceeding further seaward. He knew the lugger would return as soon as it was safe for her to do so; but as that was not likely to be for a night or two, it was necessary to find a hiding place in the interval. For this purpose the boat must return to the shore, a proceeding to which risk was attached, for if Dobson had remained on the beach long enough to become aware that the lugger had set sail before the boat reached her, he and his men might be lurking among the cliffs in anticipation of the return of the latter. There was thus a danger of capture in that direction which must on no account be incurred.

For some minutes Yawkins and the boat's crew conversed anxiously in Dutch, and as the result of their deliberations it was resolved to land much further west, at the foot of the Monk's Cowl, and find concealment for a day or two in the large cave at the base of the rock. But what were they to do with their disabled associate, Reuben Langton. A broken leg and a dislocated thigh were serious injuries which required to be attended to without delay, and when the groaning youth was appealed to on the subject, he said, with gnashing teeth, that they must carry him on a little to the nearest house and leave him there.

"All right, my hearty. We'll get you to a berth somehow," said Yawkins. "But what about the girl. You'll not want her now?"

"Curse it, no; this mischance makes her useless to me. You may have her yourself if you fancy her."

"Not I; she ain't my sort."

"Throw her into the sea, with the meddlesome old gardener for company," said Reuben, with brutal malevolence.

"Wouldn't be safe," muttered Yawkins. "I can run a cargo fast enough, but don't go in for murder. I don't mean to risk going up a ladder or walking a plank. No we'll have to think of a better way to get rid of them."

"Here you old Scotch clodhopper," he added suddenly addressing David, who, with Agnes, had been happily ignorant of the murderous proposal which had been made regarding them. "If I were to put you and the girl ashore, I suppose you'd repay the service by giving information of our return to land, and send the sharks in search of us."

"'Deed no; we'll dae naething o' the kind."

"Ay, you'll promise that I daresay, but you must swear it; and I have heard the Scotch are always true to an oath."

"Very weel, we are ready to swear it, but our word is just as guid as oor aith."

"Your word won't satisfy me though. Now you both hold up your hand and swear by heaven that you'll not speak a word to any one of what you have seen and heard since you came into the boat."

It may easily be supposed that David and Agnes made no scruple about taking the oath thus imposed. The seizure of Yawkins and his men would prove of no benefit to them. Deliverance was the one thing they desired, and they were eager to observe it on such easy terms. This was an issue to the night's adventures far more favorable than they at one time expected.

So the oath was taken, and Yawkins was satisfied. The next thing to do was to find a suitable landing place, and after skirting the shore for a considerable time in an eastward direction, and finding all appeared solitary and deserted, they ran into a cove shut in on all sides by high rocks. The moment the keel of the boat grated on the strand Yawkins said in a suppressed, impatient tone, "Quick, out with you," and the pair were ready to obey with alacrity the welcome order.

In stepping over the side Agnes had to pass close to where Reuben Langton lay, and, as he gazed for a moment with his upturned face, she shuddered at the look of deadly hate with which he regarded her. But as it was the look of a baffled, disappointed, impotent plotter, whose power to injure was destroyed, she answered, it by a glance more of pity than of fear, and next moment stood free and safe on the beach by the side of her faithful and devoted friend, David Ramsay, who uttered fervent ejaculations of thanksgiving as the boat was pushed off and disappeared behind an outlying rock.

The beach on which they stood was, as we have said, shut in on all sides by frowning precipices, the only access to it from the land being by a pathround the edge of the lower rocks when the tide was back. They presently discovered that, though the tide was receding, this path would not be open for passage for more than half an hour, and during that period they had to remain where they were with feverish impatience, so intense was their anxiety to reach the cottage and terminate the agony of sorrow and suspense which they knew Mrs. Borland must be enduring.

It was some consolation in the enforced delay to know that they had not far to go, for the secluded beach on which they had been landed was in the immediate vicinity of the Shore Brae, to which the path of access directly led. Thus they could console themselves with the thought that so soon as the imprisoning water was sufficiently retired a few minutes' walk would bring them to the fishing village, and half an hour more would land them at the cottage.

Urged by the consuming impatience which both experienced, David tried the path again and again, watching along with Agnes the slow receding water till at last they were able to pass round the corner of the obstructing rock, and make their somewhat hazardous way to less rugged slopes. Soon they were on drier, safer ground, and walked smartly up the braes till the scattered houses came dimly into view.

It being now long after midnight no one was abroad. Every house was dark and silent, the inmates enjoying the repose of health and peace. Like the rest, the little schoolhouse, where Miss Elliott resided, was still and dark, but it required some self denial on the part of Agnes to pass without rousing her friend and acquainting her with the terrible dangers she had escaped. Mindful, however, of her mother's misery, she resisted the impulse, and walked resolutely forward by the side of her companion.

In crossing the moor Agnes was painfully reminded of her encounters there with Reuben Langton and Flora Marshall. She could now better understand the gipsy's meaning in waylaying her, and believed that had she given heed to Flora's proposals the latter meant to warn her against the outrage that impended. It was useless to speculate on that now. The danger had been incurred and was ended, therefore regret was valueless, and she felt inclined to blame herself in the matter, which even in view of the consequences she did not find cause to do. In her interview with the gipsy queen she had kept true to her moral and religious principles, and in the end had received the reward of her integrity.

The scene that took place on their arrival at the cottage we shall not attempt to describe. By the bright gleam proceeding from the window, they knew, ere they reached the gate, that Mr. Borland was keeping a distracted vigil. While they were yet fifty yards away, David heralded their coming with shouting in joyous tones, "Here we are, a' safe and weel;" when immediately a dark form flashed from the open door, a responding glad some cry was heard, a figure flew forward to meet them, and mother and daughter were locked in each other's embrace—a joy and rapture filling their hearts which words could not adequately express.

An hour later David Ramsay left the cottage amid a shower of blessings, and enjoying a satisfaction of soul which was to him a sufficient reward for the good deed he had that night accomplished.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

UPPER WYNDHAM STREET IS THE SPOT

Where every Attraction is to be found.]

The Suburbs of the Royal City is fitly supplied with the class of Merchants and Goods suited for such a trade.]

What a lively spot Upper Wyndham Street presents, especially at the Wonderful Man's.

GOLDEN MAN OVER THE DOOR.

Great Rush has been going on by ladies coming from all quarters of this section of country to secure those new and beautiful comprising the most lovely Silks, Pompadours, Moire Antique, Crape du Pekan, Cecilian du Chong. The Princess Louise uiting, &c., &c.

Wedding Outfits,

Also Our Millinery Department.

embracing the most nobby things in Bridal Hats, Bridal Bonnets, Bridal Flowers, Bridal Feathers, Bridal Ribbons, and Bridal Everything, in order to add happiness, joy and bliss to the already happy couple.

Tailoring Department.

Mr. James Foster, who is the most obliging gentleman in his profession, is ready to make gentlemen honoring him with their orders, the most perfect fitting suit of clothes. Indeed the old saying is at once brought to your mind, "he fits you like a kid glove. Suits made to order at $10, $12 and $14 that are the admiration of every gentleman. Especial Suits made from the best material in the trade at $16, $18, $20, perfectly surprises every one. That Wonderful Man assisted by the great talent of Mr. Foster as a cutter, is bound to lead the respectable order clothing trade of Guelph.

MOURNING GOODS.

We are happy to say that our efforts to secure the best makes, dyes and colors in Black goods for family mourning and funerals has been most successful, in black Cobourgs black Lustres, black Crape Cloths, black Thibet Cloths, black Cashmeres, black French Marino a, black Serges, indeed every class of manufacture is always to be had of us and the quality reliable.

BLACK CRAPES.

Rain Proof Crapes, Grout's best and most reliable qualities. Also every requisite suited for funerals, all at wholesale prices.

Staple Department.

We urgently request all intending purchasers of Heavy Grey Cottons, Bleached Cottons, Sheetings, Colored Shirtings, Blue Denim, Brown Derry, Ducks, Table Linens, Brown Hollands, &c., to lose no time in visiting our establishment for them. Our stock, bought previous to the great rise in these goods, amounting to over $35,000 worth, will soon be cleared out. The rush daily for them at the old prices makes Upper Wyndham Street look each day more like a fair day. We are bound to push things lively, and our motto is good goods, cheap goods, reliable and courteous attention to every customer, and all goods fairly represented, and one price only. Our salesmen are courteous, gentlemanly and obliging, and will spare no pains to suit every patron of that Wonderful Man's, who is a terror to evil doers, and old bankrupt moth eaten goods dealers.

JOHN HOGG & SON.

REGENT HOUSE.

AS INTIMATED IN MONDAY'S COLUMNS WE HAVE RENEWED OUR partnership for another term. All are aware we have cleared out the most of our large stock, thus enabling us to buy a large stock for the spring trade. We have purchased some of the finest and cheapest goods ever brought into Guelph, and to-morrow (Saturday) we will show an assortment of Dry Goods which every lady in this City and Country should see. The great attraction for this season of the year will be our New Prints. In this department we excel, and never before have such beautiful patterns been shown in Guelph. We have added a new rule to our business regulations:—all goods marked in plain figures. Look out for the windows.

R. McGregor & Co.

Epps's Cocoa.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

On Thursday night an extremely severe lightning shock struck in several quarters of Rochester, N. Y. In less than ten minutes thereafter a fire alarm was sounded, and it was discovered that the great carriage, hearse, and casket manufactory of James Cunningham, Son, & Co. had been struck and fired by lightning. Loss, $300,000.

Maine News.

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

On his return from the Court of Appeal on Thursday Chief Justice Moss was taken suddenly ill with an alarming attack of hemorrhage of the stomach. During the night his illness caused great anxiety, but on Friday he took a turn for the better, and in the evening all alarming symptoms had disappeared. The doctor thinks that his patient will be able to be around again in a few days.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

MANHOOD RESTORED

Prescription Free. For the speedy Cure of Seminal Weakness, Loss of Manhood, and all disorders brought on by indiscretion or excesses. Any Druggist has the ingredients. Address DAVIDSON & CO., 78 Nassau St., N. Y.

The Baptists propose ere long to erect a new and handsome church in Kingston.

A special despatch from Fort McLeod says that one of the murderers of Mounted Policeman Grayburn has been arrested in Montana Territory, and is confined at Fort Benton.

It is stated on good authority that the Rev. Alfred J. Bray, who was instrumental in establishing the Canada Independence or Political Economy Club in Montreal, is about to withdraw from the pastorate of Zion Congregational Church, there to found an independent congregation of his own on broad principles.

Special Business Notices.

A new line of birthday cards opened up at Day's bookstore. Every one can be suited in style and price.

The Family Herald and other English magazines for February, are received at Day's bookstore.

A fresh assortment received of the celebrated mottled granite ware, lamps, bird cages, and other goods, at the lowest possible prices, at John M. Bond & Co's.

In no establishment are the different departments so full and complete as at the Lion. The Lion's trade is not of the spasmodic kind, but represents a constant stream of business. Read the Lion's new advertisement.

TAKE THEM IN!—It is utterly useless for any of our opponents to imitate our style of exhibiting embroideries. Ladies cannot be induced to buy inferior stuff by any such futile attempts, not as long as they can spell F a s h i o n a b l e W e s t E n d.
A. O. BUCHAM

NO HUMBUG.—Otwell's celebrated mixed and mustard pickles are now used by nearly every family. The reason is that they are superior to any bottled pickles in the market and only one-half the price. They are sold at 15c per pint and 30c per quart, imperial measure; 3 lb. cans Tomatoes at 20c; 2 lb. sweet corn at 20c a can. R. MURRAY, Sole Agent.

WORLD.
A NOTABLE EVENT!
Mrs. S. A. ALLEN'S
World's Hair Restorer
IS PERFECTION!

A NOBLE RECORD THROUGH NEAR HALF A CENTURY.

Established 1832. Improved 1879

The nature of the great improvement is its wonderful life-giving properties to faided or falling hair, and MORE QUICKLY CHANGING GRAY OR WHITE HAIR to its natural youthful COLOR and BEAUTY.

IT IS NOT A DYE.

It requires only a few applications to restore gray hair to its youthful color and lustrous beauty, and induce luxuriant growth, and its occasional use is all that is needed to preserve it in the highest perfection and beauty. DANDRUFF is quickly and permanently removed.

Sold by all Druggists, at $1.25 per Bottle.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 8, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The court of enquiry into the collision of the Guion Line steamship Arizona with icebergs, on the 7th November, found the lookout on the steamer defective and suspended the certificates of the captain and second mate for six months.

In consequence of representations made by the Russian Embassy, a portion of the fire brigade of London, completely equipped, was held ready last week to proceed to St. Petersburg.

It now looks as if Paris is to become a fresh centre for the operations of the Nihilists

The French Government refuses to surrender Hartmann, the Russian charged as one of the parties to the Moscow explosion. He will, however, be expelled from French territory.

The ex-Empress Eugenie is visiting the Queen at Windsor. On arriving there the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold met her at the railway station. Lord Beaconsfield has joined the party.

The Empress of Austria is expected in London next week, returning from Ireland, where her hunting season was interfered with by the bad weather and several accidents.

The Marquis of Salisbury is convalescent.

The deaths by the boiler explosion in Glasgow on Friday, have now reached sixteen.

Galbraith's spinning mills, Glasgow, are burned. Four thousand spindles are destroyed, and the damage is £50,000. Two lives were lost.

China is preparing for war. In view of frontier disputes with Russia, China is adopting a more defiant attitude towards all foreign Powers.

Heartrending accounts have been received from Armenia. Fifty-two persons have already died from starvation in Van alone.

London is very dull, and a great many houses belonging to the nobility are to let.

The retinue the Empress of Austria brings with her to England is enormous. Twenty-five sit down in the steward's room, and sixty-five in the servants' hall, every day to meals—ninety in the household. In the stables are about fifty horses, though out of these only six are for Her Majesty's own riding. So far she has never ridden a horse after he has once thrown her, which this year will be an expensive rule. The Empress' carriages are very neatly turned out; the head coachman is English, of course—more than half the servants are English or Irish.

TORONTO.

Parnell's Departure—Vital Statistics.

TORONTO, March 8.—Mr. Parnell left for Montreal on the morning express. There was a large gathering of friends at the station, and as the train moved off the agitator was lustily cheered.

There were 10 marriages, 63 births and 35 deaths registered at the City Clerk's office last week.

Killed on the Railway.

NEWBURY, Ont., 8.—Mr. George Middlemiss, a well known and highly respected gentleman of this village, was killed on Saturday evening, 6th inst. at the village of Newbury, by No. 10 express going east on the G. W. R., both his legs being cut off at the knees. His death was instantaneous.

Says the Brantford Expositor:—London East Car Works are closed; Hamilton can't furnish soup enough for its poor; St. Catharines ship builders are going to the States for work, and Brantford is losing its young men by the score. Verily the hum is an "invisible green."

The McCulloch Scholarship at Queen's University College, given by Mr. Hugh McCulloch, of Galt, Ont., has been limited by the donor so as to be only open to pupils of the Galt Collegiate Institute. It is worth $500 per annum.

Mr. J. H. Brown, a Canadian, a graduate of Harvard University, and formerly assistant master of Belleville Commercial College, has, after a tour of the United States, been selected to fill the position of articulation teacher in the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Belleville, vacant by the death of the late Mr. McGann, formerly of that city.

In the report of a "swell wedding," it was written:—"Her dainty feet were incased in shoes that might have been taken for fairy boots," but the compositor made it read, "shoes that might have been taken for ferry boats."

They had their usual evening quarrel as they sat by their heath. On one side lay quietly a blinking dog, and on the other a purring cat, and the old woman pleaded with her growling husband. "Yust look at dat gat und tog; der nefer gwarrels nor fights like us." "Yah," said the old growler, I knows dot; but yust tie dem togedder one time, und den you see wot!"

A well known insurance agent went into an office in Bridgeport the other day, and was handed a note with the remark that they were all too busy to talk with him then and that the note would explain all. He took the note, and went away and opened it. It contained $2 with the explanation that they considered it cheaper to pay him that amount than have him talk to them.

A young man preparing for the Unitarian ministry was introduced to a prominent Episcopal clergyman in Boston, and gave some examples of the advice he had received, including that of an old Unitarian professor, who had insisted very strongly upon the necessity of "pitching into the orthodox." The minister replied that he depreciated the practice of persistent "pitching into" anybody or anything. "For my own part," he added, "I should get tired of abusing the devil right along!"

Nearly every family in Milton has been attacked with measles. There have been two fatal cases.

Local News.

THERE were no Police Court cases today.

RAILWAY section men are repairing the Neeve street railway crossing.

THE WATER WORKS.—The Water Works engineer and his assistants commenced their duties to-day in connection with the works.

"THE GREAT MARRIAGE QUESTION."—Mr. F. S. Spence, of Toronto, will lecture on the above subject in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Thursday evening.

MEMBERS of the Artillery Band that were notified for Thursday's carnival, will meet this evening in the band room at seven o'clock, sharp—helmets and overcoats.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES. — Fresh to brisk northerly to easterly winds, partly cloudy weather, possibly followed by snow to-morrow; stationary or rising temperature.

WE are glad to learn that Mr. Thos. H. Taylor of this city, has been appointed travelling advertising agent for the Globe. We feel sure that Mr. Taylor will make a most efficient agent.

A NUMBER of citizens visited the Water Works engine house yesterday, to see the engine at work. The engine house is not kept open for visitors on Sunday and they turned away chagrined.

DON'T forget the carnival on the rink tonight, for the benefit of Mr. Arch. Medaugh, the obliging caretaker of the rink. The ice is in splendid condition, and the Artillery Band will be present.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.—The newly appointed License Commissioners for South Wellington—Messrs, Goldie, Lemon, and Murphy—met on Saturday, when Mr. Lemon was elected chairman. No other business was transacted.

HAMILTON has 524 vacant houses in 1880, against 200 in 1878. Ottawa has between six and seven hundred vacant houses and the number is steadily increasing. How stands the comparison in Guelph under the hum?

FOR MANITOBA. — Messrs. John Boyd, Arthur King, of Guelph, and Mr. Inglis, of Elora, left by the G. W. R. this (Monday) morning for Manitoba. In the afternoon Mr. Harry Pearce and wife left by the same line for Minneapolis, Minnesota, where he purposes going into the book business. They purchased their tickets at the G. W. R. city agency.

CHURCH OF OUR LADY.—At mass in the Church of Our Lady yesterday, the choir, comprising about forty voices, rendered for the first time here "Mahaul's Oratorio of Joseph." The rendering was very effective, beings weet and powerful, and good time was observed, notwithstanding the difficult music. The choir is now larger than ever it was, and is considerably improved.

ENTERTAINMENTS.—Three very excellent public entertainments are announced to be given in three churches in this city this week, viz: A lecture on the Manners and Customs of the Japanese, in the Dublin street Methodist church, by Rev. Mr. Cochran, a returned missionary of ten years residence in that land, on Thursday evening. A sacred concert in the Norfolk street Methodist church, given by Prof. Harrington and his talented choir and others, on Friday evening. There will also be a literary and musical entertainment in the Rev. Mr. Harris's church on Thursday evening, in which some of the best talent in the city will take part.

CANADIAN MONTHLY.—We have received from the Rose-Belford Publishing Co., the Canadian Monthly and National Review for March. From a glance at the contents and names of the writers, the literary diet promises up to the usual standard of this excellent magazine. The contents are as follows:—The National Development of Canada; Sonnet; A Romance of Underground Railway; Federation, Annexation, or Independence; The Fallen Leaves; The Changes Required in the Senate; Fashionable Murder; Legal Education; Precocity, a Sonnet; The Militia System of Canada; Ireland, a Poem; Pessimism; Poverty, a Sonnet; Round the Table; Book Reviews; Music and the Drama; The 'Monthly's' Scrape Book."

Manufacturing clothing in Chicago gives employment to 30,000 people, and the value of the goods made is $15,000,000. This industry has doubled in four years.

At a meeting in Cooksville the other day a resolution was passed in favor of improving Port Credit harbour, and building a line of railway to connect it with the Credit Valley Railway.

Numbers of young men are leaving Montreal for the Western States, and among the French Canadians the movement is in progress to a large extent, though many of the latter are bound for Manitoba.

A fire took place at Chatham on Sunday morning by which several stores were burned. Loss about $27,000.

The investigation as to the cause of the conflagration at Bergen, Genesee County, has resulted in the arrest of Samuel C. Tulley, who was proprietor of the burned hardware store, where the fire started.

Early on Friday morning there was a heavy gale in Cleveland. The Female Seminary was half unroofed and part of the upper west wall torn off. The roof of the new brick wire mill of the Cleveland Rolling Mill Company was uplifted. One end of the wall was thrown in, killing one of the workmen and severely injuring several others.

News Items.

The Grand River at Galt is clear of ice.

The by-law granting power to the Grand Trunk Railway Company to lay their rails down George street, in Galt, has been introduced in the Council, and read a first and second time.

A petition has been received from the Mayor and Councillors of Victoria, B. C., praying for the adoption of such measures as will restrict the further immigration of Chinese into British Columbia.

A painful accident occurred at Harper Hospital, Detroit, on Saturday morning, when Agnes McGregor, the chief cook, who belonged to Galt, was seriously burned by her clothing catching fire.

The Chinese of California seem determined to "go" of their own accord. Hundreds are arriving almost daily at New York, and Mott Street bids fair to become a veritable Chinese quarter.

McLean, Roger & Co., Parliamentary and Departmental printers, have entered a petition of right against the Government to recover $200,000 damages for work taken away from them and done elsewhere since 1874.

On Friday evening last Mr. Thos. Anderson, who for some years past had carried on the shoemaking business in Brussels, was stricken with apoplexy, and although medical aid was summoned, he died the same night.

The Revs. D. W. Cameron and P. L. Spencer, of Palmerston, have declined to pay taxes for the houses they live in, these houses not being owned by the churches they serve. The town council have sought legal advice on the subject.

The earnings of the Great Western Railway for the last half year have been sufficient to pay off the arrears of dividend on the preference stock of the last and the previous half years, and in addition one and one-half per cent. per annum on ordinary stock.

A military court was held at Owen Sound on Friday last for the purpose of inquiring into certain charges preferred against Captain Rorke by his lieutenant, After a long and thorough investigation Captain Rorke left the court without the slightest stain on his character.

The post office authorities at Montreal, have notified the department at Ottawa of the existence of a lottery agency there, driven out of the United States by the enforcing of the post office regulations. It is thought the Government, to prevent this country from being made a base of operations for these lotteries, should make similar laws.

An Esquesing man has received a letter from his son in Manitoba, in which the latter mentions his first experience fishing through the ice on Lake Manitoba. A party of thirty caught 4,800 fish between noon of one day and noon of the next. The ice on the lake was three feet thick.

The excuses of the Dominion Government for dismissing efficient and tried Reform civil servants, to make way for their own party hacks are about as novel and untenable as that of Mr. Say, of Lafayette, Ind., who demanded a divorce from his wife on the grounds that she "although well knowing that the plaintiff was a Democrat, refused him the privilege of bringing Democratic papers to his house."

A Government surveyor in Manitoba relating his winter experiences there, says he was out nearly three months without any kind of a tent, sleeping on the snow in the open air every night. His bed consisted of a single buffalo robe made in the form of a bag, which he had to get into feet first. This, with his ordinary clothes, was all the protection he had from the winter frosts. He had no frostbites, and looked healthy and vigorous.

About two weeks ago a child was born to a family in New Philadelphia, O., which was a natural curiosity. It was two-faced inasmuch as the back part of her head had also the appearance of a face, lacking only a mouth. On the front face it had two mouths, two eyes and a nose that extended to its chin. It nursed and cried from either mouth. The child was otherwise fully developed, but it only lived ten days. Many people called to see it during its short life.

A new version of the "National Anthem," composed by Arthur Sullivan, author of "Pinnafore," who has been a guest at Rideau Hall, will be sung for the first time in Canada in public. The piece will be issued in sheet form soon.

PLEASURE AND BUSINESS.—Lady: "A pretty sight, isn't it, doctor? I don't see any of your little ones here! I hope you don't disapprove of juvenile parties?" Dr. Littletume (famous for his diagnosis on infantile disease): "I my dear madam! On the contrary—I like them.—Punch.

The "Know How."

There was much gumption evinced by that particular darkey whose master was a surgeon, who had performed on another darkey an operation requiring a high degree of skill. This latter darkey was well-to-do, and the surgeon charged him $25 for the operation. Meeting the doctor's servant afterwards, this dialogue occurred: "Dat was a mighty steep charge of the doctor's for cutting on me tudder day." "How much did de boss charge?" "Well, Julius, he charge me $25." "Go 'long, niggah, dat ain't much charge." "Well, he wasn't more dan three or four minutes doin' it, and I tink five dollars all he oughter took." "Look-a heah, Sam; you don't un'stan' 'bout dat ting. You see de boss have to spend a great many year larnin' how to use dat knife, an' it costs him heaps o' money. Now de fact am dat he only charge you five dollars for de operation; de tudder twenty he charge for de know how."

That's it—the time and money to learn the know how.—Harper's.

THE TELEPHONE AS A DETECTOR.—Several horses had been stolen from the settlement. Suspicion fell upon an Indian chief. A telephone was procured and put in operation at a distance from a house into which the Indian was called. He was told to take up that cup and hear what the Great Spirit had to say. After hearing several things spoken by the Great Spirit, and while his excited astonishment was still bewildered, the telephone solemnly told him to give up those horses. He then and there confessed himself the thief, and promised to bring them back, and he did.

DESTITUTION AMONG THE INDIANS.—Mr. John Scott, Presbyterian missionary, writes from Emerson to the effect that "the Indians of the Rosseau are almost starving. The severe weather of December affected their fishing, and as for hunting there is very little of it. To get food to keep them alive, they are cutting posts and trying to sell them to settlers for 5 or even 2½ cents a piece—$2.50 per 100. They are offering posts, rails, and firewood for very little—trying to trade them off for flour or anything that they, their wives, or children can eat. Is our Government aware of this? Can nothing be done for them?"

A SUMMER PORT FOR CANADA.—The Government of Canada has now under consideration a proposal, emanating from Sir John Glover, G. C. M. G., Governor of Newfoundland, for making St. John's the summer port for the whole Dominion. The idea is to connect St. John's with the mainland by a railway across the island and a line of ferry steamers across the Straits of Belleisle, whence a line would form a junction with the Intercolonial. By this arrangement two or three days could be saved to vessels, and the resources of Newfoundland would be opened up.—Liverpool Post.

BURIAL OF MRS. JAMES.—Mr. John B. Bagwell, of Hamilton, at the funeral of Mrs. James, Brampton, who had reached her hundredth year on the 25th Feb., and whose anniversay and death a few days after we have already recorded, thus speaks of her last days and funeral in the Hamilton Times:—She continued to sleep, as it were, the remainder of her life away, until the morning of Monday, March 1st, 1880, when as quietly as a babe this good and aged parent and friend passed away from earth at the great age of 100 years and five days. She was buried in the family burial lot at Harriston's Church, on the 5th line, East Chinguacousy, on Wednesday, March 3rd. The casket, a very beautiful one, made of oak and handsomely mounted, was placed in the church, when her well preserved remains were seen for the last time on earth by many of her old neighbors and friends. The attendance at the funeral was large, and would have been more so if the weather and roads had not been so very bad.

THE CANADIAN ACADEMY OF ART.—On Saturday evening the Canadian Academy of Art opened its first annual exhibition at Ottawa. The formation of the Society was due to the suggestion of the Governor General. The scheme upon which the Academy is established is that there shall be forty Academicians and an indefinite number of Associates (not less than twenty), from whom future Academicians shall be elected as fast as vacancies occur. There are on the Associate list twenty-eight painters, sculptors, and designers, and twenty-nine architects. The officers of the Academy are as follows: President, L. R. O'Brien; Vice-President, Napoleon Bourassa; Treasurer, James Smith, Toronto; Secretary, M. Mathews, Toronto. The opening was quite a success. The building—the old Clarendon Hotel—was admirably adapted for the occasion, affording plenty of room for the large assembly without uncomfortable crowding. His Excellency arrived at nine o'clock, and in an excellent address declared the Exhibition opened. The President and Vice-President also gave addresses, and His Excellency at the close assured the company that the Princess took the deepest interest in the Academy. Many of the pictures possess great merit, and the more ambitious works of our Canadian artists show themselves fully capable of holding their own alongside the productions of many more popular masters of the present day from the other side of the Atlantic.

Mary had a pair of bangs,
They matched her other hair,
And every night before she slept
She hung them on a chair.

She wore her bangs to school one day
Which made her classmates sore,
And hints went 'round that Mary's pa
Had worked a dollar store.

This kind of talk produced a fuss—
The teacher took it up;
She locked the bangs within her desk—
Oh! full was Mary's cup.

Schoolboy with a big apple. Another boy without any: "O Bill! give us a bite, won't you?" "No, I won't." "Well, then, give me the core." "H'm! h'm! I tell you there ain't going to be any core,"

DR. PUNSHON.—The death of Sir Isaac Morley, of Doncaster, England, uncle of the distinguished pulpit and platform orator, William Morley Punshon, is announced. A reverend correspondent of the New York Christian Advocate says it is rumored that Dr. Punshon will be the recipient of a handsome legacy by the death of Sir Isaac Morley. He is now one of the Secretaries of the British Methodist Missionary Society.

LEX TALIONIS.—Philanthropic Old Lady: "Bless me, child! where did you get that black eye?" Street Arab: "Mother! But—(triumphantly)—she got her three months for't, ah can tell ye!"—Punch.

The Late Suicide.

Additional Particulars About the Case.

The Inquest and Verdict.

An inquest was held by Coroner Keating on Saturday afternoon into the circumstances attending the death of John A. McMillan. The only new particulars brought out by evidence were as follows:—That Mary Lennox and her husband were the last persons who saw Mr. McMillan alive. They were at his house on Friday evening and left it sometime between eight and nine o'clock when he seemed to be unusually cheerful. The next new feature was that a number of books and other articles had been labelled and directed to different parties since about November. This together with the nature of his communications with Dr. Aikens, Toronto, would suggest that he had anticipated death for some time. A very important matter in the evidence is that he had twice been found under the influence of laudanum. On these occasions after recovering his senses he first denied having taken laudanum, and afterwards acknowledged that he had taken it, but said he had often taken fifty times more.

The inquest was opened at 4 o'clock in the Police Court, Coroner Keating presiding. The following jury was impanelled:—G. T. Boulding, foreman; Frank Sweetnam, David Little, J. W. Lowrey, Michael Conway, John Oliver, Wm. Carter, Richard Ward, Wm. Goulding, John Roberts, Robert Cowan, James Quinn, George Brill.

When the jurymen had answered to their names the Coroner stated that he had been requested by the County Crown Attorney to hold the inquest.

The jury then proceeded to the house of deceased and viewed the body, where it was still hanging to the door. Having returned to the Police Court the following evidence was taken:

Richard Fyfe, sworn, said—I live in Guelph and was intimately acquainted with deceased, John A. McMillan, for a number of years; I was in the habit of seeing him about once every fortnight; he was very depressed at times; sometimes he seemed confused and moody and other times sharp and passionate; his habits were not temperate; of late from his manner and conversation—expressing the wish that his troubles were at an end—I had suspicions that he would commit suicide; of late I considered him perfectly crazy; my opinion was that if he had left liquor alone he would have been all right.

The letters left by Mr. McMillan for Mr. Fyfe and Tripp, giving instructions as to the disposal of the body, already published, were read.

Mary Lennox, sworn, said—I have known deceased since I knew anything, but had not much to say to him till within the last two months; I had seen him almost every day during the last two months; went to make his bed; sometimes in the morning and sometimes in the evening; I fixed up the house generally on these visits; I was at the house about 8 o'clock on Friday evening and stopped about fifteen minutes; I then went home with the key and when I returned Mr. McMillan had on his overcoat and had been out for a walk; he said he was lonesome and was glad I had come; I straightened up the house and afterwards read a newspaper account of the Biddulph tragedy to him; my husband came and wanted me to go home, and Mr. McMillan said "Don't be in a hurry Jim, stay with me a little longer and keep me company;" we stayed about ten minutes longer and then went home and did not return; deceased then seemed to be in good spirits, and when we were going he came to the door and bade us good night; I saw nothing about him which led me to believe him to be of unsound mind; he was always pleasant and I saw nothing wrong with him; he seemed to be well enough off and had everything he wanted as far as I could understand; some person told me this morning that Mr. McMillan had got a bottle of liquor last night, but I do not remember who told me so; he had told me that he was tired of life; but not on Friday night when he seemed to be in better humor than usual.

To the foreman.—I have noticed the labels on the different articles for over a month, he told me that he wanted to have them labelled in case anything should happen to him; he was at my house Friday morning for about five minutes; on two occasions I found him under the influence of laudanum; the first time, I went into his room and he was lying in a stupefied state, and I found a letter read to-day by Mr. Fyfe, and addressed to some one in Toronto, lying on his table; I afterwards found a bottle of laudanum on his table; the second time, there was laudanum in a tumbler on his washstand; Dr. McGregor was called and said he had only taken enough to put him to sleep; he afterwards told me he had taken it to make him sleep.

Richard Fyfe, recalled, said—On the night of he 12th November was the first time he took the laudanum; about 8 o'clock I was sent for; it was said Mr. McMillan had taken something and it was thought he would die; I found him under the influence of laudanum and sent for a medical man right away; McMillan denied taking laudanum when he recovered, and then he acknowledged it but said he had often taken fifty times more.

To a juror—At that time we did not think that he should be left alone, and some one remained with him several days.

Martha Hoggarth sworn said—I knew Mr. McMillan; I was in the habit of going to his place with milk; this Saturday morning I went to the house about half past nine o'clock; the doors were unlocked; I went into the house and looked into his bedroom, when I found him hanging up to the door by a strap; I went to Sallows' blacksmith shop and told Mr. Sallows that Mr. McMillan had hanged himself; I then went and told Mrs. Lennox and afterwards went home.

Wm. Sallows, sworn, said—I live about a hundred yards from the deceased's house; I went to see him the first time he took laudanum; I saw he had taken an overdose of something, but considered he would come round again; on being informed on Saturday morning that Mr. McMillan hanged himself, I sent up for the police, and when the Chief came I went with him to Mr. McMillan's house; when we entered the house I saw the body dead hanging to the bed-room door.

To the foreman—I cannot say I ev saw Mr. McMillan the worse of liquor.

A. L. McMillan, Chief of Police, sworn, said—About 10:30 Saturday morning Jas. Lennox and Richard Fyfe came to my office and said Mr. McMillan had hanged himself; I went to Mr. McMillan's house, and found the doors unlocked and the key inside; I went through the house and in the bed-room found deceased hanging by a strap over the door; he was dressed in a white shirt; a strap was tied round his neck and placed over the top of the door and fastened to the nob at the other side; his feet were on the floor and his knees were bent forward; all his goods and clothing were packed and some of them labelled and directed to different parties; I concluded that he had committed suicide after premeditation; I telegraphed Miss Storey, of Collingwood, and received a telegram that she would leave for Guelph this afternoon.

This concluded the evidence.

The coroner did not think there could be any doubt from the evidence how Mr. McMillan had come to his death. It was by an act of his own hand. It was clear that he had contemplated destroying himself for some time. There was not much evidence to show whether he had been insane at the time he took his life.

Those in the court room besides the jury then retired. After a few moments deliberation the jury returned the following verdict:—

"That on the night of the 5th of March, 1880, at his residence, on Gordon Street, in the City of Guelph, the said John A. McMillan, came to his death by hanging by his own hands, and the Jury further find that he was labouring under depressed spirits at the time."

After the inquest, High Constable Armstrong was left in possession of Mr. McMillan's house. The body which had been allowed to hang in the position in which it was found until viewed by the jury, was cut down, and later in the evening placed in a coffin. In the evening Miss Storey, sister-in-law of deceased, together with deceased's son, arrived from Collingwood, having been telegraphed for in the forenoon. It was then decided that the remains would be interred in the cemetery here, and not sent to the Toronto School of Medicine. The funeral was fixed for four o'clock this (Monday) afternoon.

MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 8, 1880

The Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway.

The Mount Forest Examiner of last week, speaking of the decision of the Ontario Government not to grant any aid to railways this year, goes on to say:

"Fortunately for the promoters and others interested in the success of the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway this change of policy will not materially affect the prospects of the project. During the latter part of last week, at Montreal, terms of an exceedingly liberal character were agreed to between Mr. Hickson, the General Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, and representatives of the Georgian Bay and Wellington, for the completion and running of the latter by the end of July next. The proposal includes the supplying and laying of the iron from Palmerston to Durham, via Mount Forest, by the Grand Trunk Company—connection being effected with the Grand Trunk system at Stratford by means of the Stratford and Huron Railway at Palmerston. Some of the friends of the line will doubtless regret that the original intention of a connection with the Great Western has not been adhered to, but the shifting policy of the management of that railway, together with the cool reception given to the scheme by Guelph, Hamilton and other business centres along the Great Western Railway has rendered any other course than that adopted impossible. The proposal of the Grand Trunk Manager was submitted to the Directors of the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway at a meeting held in this place on Wednesday, and we understand it met with general approval. The grading of the line has been finished, the bridging is on the point of completion and the station buildings are well underway. There seems abundant prospect that everything will be ready for laying the iron after the opening of spring, and that the iron horse built on a broad guage will be heard snorting along the line in time to remove the produce of next harvest. So may it be."

We can quite understand the feeling of the Examiner in this matter, and can fully sympathize with it in its remarks about the policy of the Great Western Railway. We think that Company made a great mistake when it gave up its negotiations with the Georgian Bay and Wellington Company. But if we are rightly informed the fault was not all on the one side, and if all the facts were known it would be found that there were faults on both sides. As regards the statement of the Examiner about the cool reception given to the scheme in Guelph, our contemporary is entirely—but no doubt unintentionally—in error. Guelph never from its first inception regarded the scheme with coldness. On the contrary our people looked upon it from the first in a favorable light, and we happen to know that not many weeks ago, at a meeting of the leading business men in this city, a deputation was appointed, and waited on the Manager of the Great Western Railway, to endeavor, among other things, to get the two Companies to come to some amicable arrangement by which the Western would work the road from Palmerston to Durham. This action of the business men of Guelph was entirely spontaneous, and without solicitation from the Georgian Bay Company or from any other quarter. It was done out of friendly feeling to that Company, and a desire to see the line opened, and that section of the country supplied with efficient railway accommodation. If the people of Mount Forest had been as solicitous for their own interests as the people of Guelph are, they would not to-day be in the position they are now in. If they had years ago given the encouragement to the Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway that they one time promised, and that was fully expected of them, they could have secured that road, which would have answered every purpose required. But in an evil hour they dropped that scheme, and took up the Narrow Guage one, and they are to-day suffering for their folly, and are at last obliged, at much trouble and great expense, to get this new line built, and thereby give them an outlet to places, and means of transportation, which the Narrow Gauge has not provided, and never will be able to do. While saying this, however, we are glad to learn that the Georgian Bay Company have at last come to some definite arrangement, though we would have much rather it had been with the Great Western than with the Grand Trunk, and we shall be pleased in due time to announce the opening of the new line, which will be something more than an apology for the railway the people of Mount Forest now have.

In the month of February in Ontario attachments were issued against 22 traders. 16 went out of business and 6 assigned.

Dr. Orton shows his regard for the Guelph Conservatives by importing a man from Fergus to take the paltry position of caretaker of the Government building here.

The Prince Edward Island Legislature was opened on Thursday, and among the Government measures promised is one to diminish the cost of the administration of justice and one to abolish the Legislative Council. When shall we have a bill to abolish our useless Senate?

The Public Accounts for the fiscal year 1879 show that the Customs Revenue from Ontario amounted to $4,966,444, and that from all the other provinces to $3,141,941. The Excise Revenue of Ontario was $3,364,820, and of the other provinces $591,198.

The American Congress is bound to stand by the Monroe doctrine, that no foreign power shall meddle with matters on the North American continent without the consent of the United States. The House Committee at Washington have just reported a resolution setting forth that it is the right and the interest of the States to possess and control any railway or canal which may be built across the Isthmus or Darien, no matter by whom built or whence the source of their capital.

The Ottawa workingmen had another meeting on Friday night, when the city members denied that at the time of their election they promised plenty of work and good wages. They got a poor hearing. Perhaps now they regard these men pretty much as the Mail does when it says:—"In political conversation, as well as in the Opposition, one sees that an attempt is being made to fasten on the present Government the charge of having promised to provide work for anybody, including the idle, the dissipated, the incompetent and the worthless, by means of the 'National Policy.'"

The exodus from New Brunswick promises to be continued with increased volume this spring. In Nova Scotia it is equally large. Reports from all parts of the Province speak of active young men leaving or preparing to leave. One paper says that $1,100 in cash were received at the Amherst Station of the Intercolonial Railway on one day for tickets to the Western States. Amherst is the chief town of Sir Charles Tupper's county. The movement has already set in in Quebec and Ontario. In the face of these statements by his supporters in his own Province, Sir Samuel Tilley will hardly have the assurance to say:—"Never before was Canada so prosperous as it is to-day."

The booksellers are not at all satisfied with the present tariff, and on Saturday they laid their grievances before the Minister of Finance. They set forth that the specific duty of six cents per pound should be abolished and an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent substituted. That, with regard to magazines and periodical literature, the present tariff discriminates against the Canadian booksellers. Besides bearing heavily on book importers, the present tariff discriminates against book manufacturers, so much so that a large amount of work hitherto done in this country is now done in England or the United States. They therefore submit the advisability of allowing bookbinders's cloth mill and straw boards to come into the country free of duty, and to charge an ad valorem duty on all books, so that the binding be taxed equally with the printed matter.

It is rumored at Ottawa that Chief-Justice Wood of Manitoba is to be superannuated, and that Hon. Wm. Macdougall will be appointed his successor. The story lacks probability.

The Bankers and the Finance Minister

Further particulars relative to the interview between the bankers and the Finance Minister, on Thursday, have been obtained, and the following is believed to be a correct recital of the facts:—The bankers held a preliminary conference, at which they discussed the proposed alterations in the banking law. So far as ascertained the feeling of the meeting was unanimous against the suggested scheme of creating a Bank of Issue. Finally a deputation of twenty-five, with the Hon. T. N. Gibbs as spokesman, waited on the Finance Minister at one o'clock. Sir Leonard enquired what particular objection the deputation had to the creation of a Bank of Issue, and to this he received the reply that banks of issue had almost invariably culminated in the adoption of an irredeemable currency. Sir Leonard next asked whether the deputation did not think there was too much banking capital in the country, and to this it was replied that the existing bank capital was not in excess of the country's needs during normally good business years. Sir Leonard then asked what objection the deputation had to the introduction of the United States national banking system, and the deputation replied that sufficient elasticity could not be given under that system. Sir Leonard asked whether the expansion was not only healthy, but absolutely necessary to enable the business of the country to be transacted. Sir Leonard enquired if the bankers would be willing to give up the circulation of four and five dollar bills, but this proposition the bankers thought would be practically equivalent to withdrawing the right of circulation altogether. Sir Leonard stated that the whole matter was under consideration, but he added that it was not the Government's intention to create a single bank of issue, but to deal independently with the different banks. He further promised that if the bankers would appoint a committee from among their number he would submit to their consideration the Government's scheme before it was introduced in Parliament. The interview then closed in consequence of the Minister of Finance being very much pressed for time, owing to the near approach of the delivery of his financial statement.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

Arrival of Mr. Parnell in Toronto.

Mr. Parnell arrived in Toronto on Saturday at one o'clock by the G. W. R. As his arrival was not looked for till a quarter to seven o'clock there was little excitement at the station. The party were at once driven to the Rossin House, and there Mr. Parnell was engaged during the afternoon with his correspondence. At 7:30 Mr. Parnell was waited upon at the Rossin House by a reception committee, and Mr. John O'Donoghue read an address of welcome, to which Mr. Parnell made a suitable reply. In the evening the meeting on behalf of the Irish Land League and Relief Fund was held in the Royal Opera House which was well filled. Very good order was maintained throughout the evening, and some who came more from a spirit of hostility than sympathy for Mr. Parnell's cause soon ceased to interrupt by derisive "hear, hears." On the platform together with Messrs. Parnell and Dillon appeared Mr. John O'Donohue, who acted as chairman of the meeting, Ald. Hallam, Ald. Ryan, Mr. Howells, U. S. Consul, Mr. Patrick Boyle, Mr. Jury, Mr. P. Hughes, Mr. Edward Hanlan, Mr. George Evans, Mr. N. Murphy, and other well known citizens.

The following from the Globe will give our readers a pretty good idea of Mr. Parnell as he appeared before the Toronto audience on Saturday night:

If any of the audience had formed their conception of the Irish agitator on descriptions of Dan O'Connell, they would have been very much disappointed in the member for Meath. No one could be less Celtic in appearance, in manner, in accent, or in the mode of developing his ideas. He looked like an eminently reasonable being addressing the intelligence rather than the prejudices and passions of his hearers. A slight erect gentleman, of confident bearing, apparently about thirty-five years old, wearing a light brown moustache and beard, advanced when the name of Parnell was announced, and bowed profoundly in recognition of the long cheers that arose from every part of the house. His refined and almost ascetic face showed at first no trace of self-consciousness or emotion, it was placid as that of one accustomed to be greeted with enthusiasm, who regards preliminary cheering as part of the usual proceedings. As he raised his eyes to scan the house one saw how well his head was set on; when he stands erect it has the slightly thrown-back appearance that so often distinguishes the man of good ancestry. He was plainly of "the quality"—one whose sympathies might naturally be with his own order of landlords rather than with the oppressed peasants whose cause he champions.

Perhaps he had heard it rumored that many with a hostile intention would be present, for, as the cheering broke out afresh, he manifested some surprise, which was replaced with a smile of genuine pleasure as the hurrahs continued to gather force. After the cheering had at last subsided he announced that he had not received in America so warm a greeting, and decided from the fact a strong Canadian sympathy for Ireland, with the air of a man who disposes of some liar who had teased him with a contrary assertion.

The speech which followed was delivered calmly, with little gesticulation, mostly inappropriate. He often stands for minutes with both hands behind his back, bringing them forward occasionally to clutch his waistcoat or to turn the corner of an argument with the tips of his right fingers laid on the left palm. He is not in the least an orator, but has a convincing way of leading up to his points, and talks always as to a deliberative assembly. On Saturday night he defined his position and guarded against possible misconception with the evident thought that the accusations of his opponents had probably prejudiced his audience. His voice is not strong, but he manages well, enunciating each word distinctly, in a pure accent which has no trace of brogue. Judging from his quotations from a letter in his hand he is probably one of the worst readers alive. On the whole, he gave one the impression of a sincere, determined, and courageous man, possessing, however, no great mental power. He receives more strength from his cause than he imparts to it. He leans on it, it is necessary to him rather than he to it. One does not understand how a speaker so passionless could have made the wild statements with which he is credited in reference to the Queen and Lord Arthur Churchill. He indulged in no vituperation on Saturday evening, but made a moderate, sensible, and gentlemanly speech.

Mr. Dillon, who followed Mr. Parnell, copies him in quiet demeanor. He is a living skeleton; his young face is emaciated, dark circles are around his eyes, his long hair slants downward from left to right over a tombstone forehead of painful pallor. He speaks disconnectedly, his subject is too great for him, but some points were made with deadly art, and some of his blighting jests, delivered in a rich brogue, were very neatly aimed. He is a typical Irishman, one of those into whose soul the iron has entered almost at birth, one who lives always haunted by the wrongs of his country. He and Mr. Parnell both look almost worn out with labour and travel.

After the speeches, resolutions in sympathy with the Land League were passed.

Contributions were then taken in aid of the League Fund. The sums handed in aggregated $464, which was enlarged to $975 by the addition of the box office receipts for admission. After a vote of thanks to the speakers, the band started to play "God Save the Queen" as the meeting broke up, but the music of the National Anthem was greeted with hisses from different parts of the house, and was left half finished, Mr. Parnell's valedictory remark being the expression of a hope that when he next visted Toronto the band would be able to play "God Save Ireland," a sentiment which elicited cheers enough to drown the hisses.

When the audience was dispersing a number of gentlemen made their way to the stage and were introduced to Messrs. Parnell and Dillon, who expressed in the warmest terms their pleasure at the character of the reception they had met with.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

The Lennoxville College buildings and the village generally was brilliantly illuminated on Thursday night on account of the Rev. Dr. Lobley, Principal of Bishop College, having decided to remain there. Early in the evening the reverend gentleman was presented with an address by the College Council, and also one by the students of the institution.

In Owen Sound the refusal of the Ontario Government to grant aid to railways is not looked on favourably. But Owen Sound is interested in the construction of alteration of three railroads for which more or less Government aid was expected, viz.:—the Toronto Grey and Bruce, the Georgian Bay and Wellington, and the Stratford and Lake Huron roads. On these, the decision of the Government will have a very serious effect, although it is difficult to forsee, just at present, what the ultimate result of the refusal will be.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

DEMPSEY & CHAMBERLAIN.

Recently there has grown up in large cities quite a business in cutting images in ice for evening parties. It is a big thing on ice. These ice figures are generally used for holding raw oysters, and the oysters have no difficulty about keeping cool in them. Ice dishes are also made for holding fruit. In Philadelphia one ice sculptor uses nearly 4,000 pounds of ice a week in this way. He makes Atlas with the globe on his back, the globe being hollow to contain the oysters, and charges from $2 to $5 for this cool mythological gentleman, globe and all. A very popular image is an elephant wite an oyster dish on his back. Swans of ice are made that float in a dish of ice water and are stuffed with oysters. The images last about three hours in a warm room without melting. This ice employment is a hard business to be frozen out of.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of wel selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. The Little Saskatchewan section of the Northwest sends down a protest against annexation to Manitaba. The people object to be "absorbed" into the Prairie Provinces for the following reasons:—That it would prove injurious to the great Northwest in many ways, particularly in the introduction of intoxicating liquors; that the people are not in a position to support and carry on municipal government; and that the system of government as carried on by the Northwest Council is more conducive to the prosperity of that section.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Our cousins on the other side are beginning to discover that their public schools give pupils too much to do, and that the result is: (1) to undermine the health of many; (2) to make the acquirements of all superficial. We earnestly hope that a similar discovery may soon be made in regard to our schools.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is noble benefactor.'

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission to JOS. S. FISHER, president; W. I. P. INGRAHAM, vice-president; W. PAINE, M. D.; C. S. GAUNT, M. D.; H. J. DOUCET, M. D.; R. H. KLINE, M. D.; J. R. HOLCOMB, M. MESSRS. Coffee and Laing, collectors for St. Patrick's Ward, have handed over to Mr. Harvey $112 to-day at noon—what they have collected in that Ward for the Irish relief fund.

CANON DIXON requests that those who were prevented by inclement weather from attending St. George's Church last Sunday, will give their contributions to the Hospital fund, in the offertory to-morrow.

TEMPORARY CHANGE IN THE CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT.—Mr. Brooks, of Sarnia, has been appointed to take Mr. Hutton's place at the Guelph Custom House, while the latter is stationed at Berlin to attend to the duties of Mr. Weaver, Collector of Customs for that port, who is confined to the house through illness.

THE DUFFERIN BUILDINGS.—The Orangeville Sun says:—Messrs Grierson & Dobbie, of Guelph, to whom have been awarded the contract for the erection of a Court House and Jail for the County of Dufferin, are delivering the materials on the grounds; and will proceed with the buildings early in the spring.

CONCERT.—The ladies of St. Andrew's Church have been fortunate in securing, for their concert on Monday evening next, besides our own local talent, the services of persons from a distance, and judging by the programme that has been prepared, an enjoyable evening may be expected. The concert will be held at the residence of Mr. John Hogg, Monday evening, 8th inst. at 8 o'clock. All cordially invited. d1

ST. JAMES'S WARD ELECTION.—The nomination for an alderman to fill the place of Geo. S. Grange, resigned, took place to-day (Saturday), at the South Ward School House. Nicholas Burns, was nominated by Fred. J. Chadwick and Geo. S. Grange. James Cormack, by W. M. Todd and Albert Pike. John Roche, by H. Cuthbertson and Geo. Smith. John T. Cunningham, by Jos. Jackson and Peter Sullivan. David Kennedy, by Robert Morrison and Geo. Smith. James Cormack withdrew.

NEW SPRING GOODS.—John Roche announces in to-day's issue the arrival of a large and complete stock of seasonable dry goods. The success he has met with since his commencement in business here has induced him to go larger into the different lines of staple and fancy dress goods than heretofore, and he is now in a position to show, as he says, one of the nicest and cheapest stocks in the city. In addition to his other business he has opened a dress-making department. Such enteprise is worthy of success.

GOLD [FLAKE TOBACCO.—We are in receipt of a copy of the Public Leader, of Detroit, containing an account of a visit to the Globe Tobacco Works, Detroit, and also a short account of the branch at Windsor. The report is minute and gives one an idea of this large factory, and the amount of tobacco produced. We have to thank Mr. Saxon for a package of his Gold Flake, which is first class. It is greatly in favor in this section, and is largely taking the place of the old fashioned plug.

A COLD HOUSE.—The Swindlehurst family who prosecuted Henry Weldrick for trespass some time ago are still living in a house belonging to the latter. The Swindlehurst charged Weldrick with taking the windows out of a house they rented from him because they failed to pay the rent. The windows have not been replaced, but the Swindlehurst family are living in it and seem to be indifferent to a draught of wind which must constantly be passing through it.

HIGH SCHOOL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—The Literary Association, in connection with the Guelph High School, gave the first entertainment of the present session on Friday afternoon. The programme was rather short, owing to the difficulty in procuring a piano; however, a pleasant, and also a profitable time was spent, the several performers acquitting themselves creditably. After a short and pithy address by the President, Mr. Tytler, the following pieces were given: Duet, by Misses Wardrope and McMillan; Essay, "Nervous Man," by Mr. W. Ward; Reading, "Edinburgh after Flodden," by Mr. J. Argo; Trio, by Misses Wardrope, Brown and Thompson; Recitation, "Chautrey's Sleeping Children," by Mr. J. Strachan. The next meeting will be held on Friday, March 19th, when a good programme will be presented.

A Woman Outraged Near Toronto.

TORONTO, March 6.—Mary Manse, a servant employed at the house of Mr. Tollen, Lake shore road, was returning from this city to her home on Wednesday last. She was overtaken by five men, who induced her to partake of some liquor, which is supposed to have been drugged. They then forcibly carried her to an adjoining wood, where they brutally outraged her, and she was found in an unconscious state and removed to the General Hospital, where she at present lies in a critical condition. A young man named Morooney, living in the neighbourhood has been arrested on suspicion.

Fire in Collingwood.

COLLINGWOOD, March 6.—Last night at 12:30 a fire broke out in a frame building on Front street, used as a store and dwelling owned by Wm. Liddell, and occupied by a man named Blakely, as a machine shop. The building being old the flames soon spread to an adjoining store owned by Graves, which was unoccupied. By the strenuous efforts of the fire brigade the flames were confined to the two buildings, which were totally destroyed. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, as also another building known as the Malacoff was fired, but was checked before any damage was done. The loss is estimated at $1,600. Liddell's property was insured in the Phœnix for $1,000. Grave's no insurance.

Parnell's Visit to Toronto.

Anticipated Trouble.

TORONTO, March 6.—The Parnell reception committee have been busily engaged all morning making such arrangements as they deem necessary to prevent any disturbance to-night. Various rumours have been current of a well matured plan that will cause the lecture to come to a sudden termination, and many believe that trouble will arise.

It is stated that the gas pipes in the Opera House have been so arranged that the supply can be cut off, leaving the place in darkness. As the hour approaches the talk becomes more general, and all expressions clearly point towards discountenancing the Irish agitator and his friends.

Two of the committee of management left for Hamilton this morning, where they will meet and escort Parnell to this city.

The newspapers have said very little about the anticipated visit.

Mechanics' Institutes.

From the annual report of the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario, for 1879, it appears that the Toronto Institute Library is still heading the list, and contains 9665 volumes; that Hamilton follows with 6635; and that Elora maintains the third position with 4230. The City of St. Catharines has 3362; Brantford, 3280; Guelph, 2337; London, 1681; Kingston, 1359; and Belleville, 923. Dundas has fourth place with 3641 volumes, while Fergus has a respectable position with 2132. Toronto claims clear assets of $26,325, Hamilton, $30,527; London, $5,800; Preston, $4,313; Dundas, $6,906; Elora, $4,082, and Fergus, $3,478. The number of members in the Guelph Institute are 375; number of books changed during the month of February, 1880, 920; number changed during the same month in 1879, 590. This is gratifying and shows what an increased interest is taken in the library. Since the returns contained in the above report were given in, a considerable number of books have been added to the library, making now in all 2587, which are classified as follows:—

Biography	224
Fiction	675
History	287
Illustrated works	64
Miscellaneous	534
Poetry and Drama	72
Religious literature	139
Science and Art	217
Voyages and Travels	134
Works of Reference	241

THE ICE HARVEST.—John Hewer left for Rockwood to-day (Saturday), with twenty men to cut ten cars loads of ice for shipment to Hamilton.

John McMaster, of Puslinch, who was committed as a lunatic on Friday was taken to the asylum at Toronto to-day (Saturday.)

In the Minister of Agriculture's report are included the insolvent statistics for 1878. The total number of insolvents were 1,495. Of these 752 were in Ontario. The liabilities, as furnished by the insolvents, were $24,836,359. Of this amount $10,929,672 were in Ontario. The claims proved amounted to $16,228,896.

Shocking and Deliberate Suicide.

JOHN A. McMILLAN HANGS HIMSELF IN HIS OWN HOUSE.

He Leaves his Body to the Toronto Medical School.

The news that John A. McMillan, for some years a resident of Guelph, had committed suicide by hanging, spread rapidly through the city this morning and on enquiry the report was found to be too true.

Martha Haggart, who carried milk to Mr. McMillan's every day, called as usual this (Saturday) morning, and on going through the house saw his lifeless body suspended from the bedroom door. She ran to Sallows' blacksmith shop and informed Mr. Sallows of what she had seen, and he at once notified the police. On the arrival of the Chief, he and Mr. Sallows went to Mr. McMillan's house and made a thorough examination of it. The body was suspended by a leather strap fastened round the neck, the other end of the strap being tied to the door nob. It had been placed over the top of the door and Mr. McMillan had stood on a chair while fastening it round his neck. Though the body presented a ghastly appearance it did not look unnatural. It was in a semi-nude condition, the only covering being a clean white linen shirt. The feet was on the floor with the knees bent forward to admit of the terrible deed being fully carried out. On a table in an adjoining room were found numerous letters, and those bearing on the case will be found subjoined.

GUELPH, Feb. 9th, 1880.

W. T. Aitkens, Esq., M. D.

MY DEAR SIR,—Since I wrote you on the 8th Dec. last, my life has been one continuous feeling of misery. I was born in 1826. Sept. 28th, consequently my next birthday would find me 54 years old.

My ear has stopped running since about the date of my last—except when I sleep—and my head is dull and heavy, no acute pain but a depression dull and dreadful to bear.

He here alluded briefly to his symptoms, describing a rush of blood to his head and a feeling of dullness which followed. The letter continued:

I can't give you any more information, the outline you have got may, and I hope will assist you in investigating the disease in my head, and help you to ascertain some remedy to help in future some poor souls afflicted as I have been for several years.

I am happy at the approach of death, the grim monster has no terrors for me, and I rejoice that my suffering is nearly over—this is no bravado—and when you dissect my body I want you to do it slowly and carefully—minutely watching for the cause of the effects I have indicated.

I am, yours truly,
JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

P. S.—I may state to you that I used to be full of vigor. Any amount of go. Excellent memory, till of late years when all seemed to leave me and lassitude took their place. J. A. McM.

My dear Dr. I owe a little money, please send $30 or $40 or as much as you can Address as follows:—Richard Fyfe, carver, Guelph. He has instructions how to pay it out. Please favor me in this.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

The following is an answer from Dr. Aikens to a former letter of Mr. McMillan's:

TORONTO, Dec. 12th, 1879.

MR. J. A. MCMILLAN,
DEAR SIR,—Your favor of the 8th inst. duly received by me.

In order that your body may be given to the Toronto School of Medicine when you have passed away, you should put a note in your will to this effect.

I think that by doing this you set a good example to the people of Ontario, and are a public benefacter. I hope, however, you may live for many a long day.

I would like to have your age.

If you were coming down to Toronto, I would be very glad to see you and examine into your case.

With best wishes,
I am, dear sir,
Yours very truly,
W. T. AIKENS, M. D.,
Per F. T. A.

On a blank leaf of Dr. Aiken's letter was the following:

My dear friends [Fyfe and Tripp.]

E. F. B. Johnston will give you money to buy my coffin, the cheapest you can get. Fix this card on it and send it to Toronto as per address. Do this now—and no fuss or Coroner's Inquest. There is no need for anything of the sort. Please carry out my desire in this respect, and all matters as I have written them, and honour my last request. I am glad it is over, and I die your friend.

JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

The card referred to in the last letter read as follows;—"W. J. Aikens, M. D., Toronto School of Medicine, Toronto."

The next letter was to Mr. Fyfe, and is given below:

FYFE,—Now remember I want you to send my body to the Toronto School of Medicine for dissection. This is my last and special request of you. Get a box and pack me in, anything will do. Old Joe Bowers can team me to the railway, no funeral. Tripp and you can put me in the waggon, and that the end. Remember this.

JOHN A. MCMILLAN.

Various articles of furniture were labelled and willed to different friends. The following label appeared on the bureau:—"This bureau is Mary Lennox's. 'Tis in my will for Maggie Hood, but Mary has waited on me often and well and she must get it. All the unmarked articles are Maggie Hood's. John A. McMillan." Labels appeared on a writing desk which was left to Mr. McMillan's daughter Emma;" on a complete edition of Shakspear's works, left to Richard Fyfe; on some books to Wm. Roper, and on a few articles to David Tripp.

When the Chief had taken in the surroundings he notified Coroner Keating who viewed the body. It was afterwards viewed by Coroner Herod, and it was decided to hold an inquest at four o'clock in the afternoon. The body remains in the position in which it was found.

The house in which the suicide occurred is situated on Gordon street immediately north of the Dundas flats and belongs to Mr. Wm. Roper. Mr. McMillan had been living in it for upwards of two years, most of that time alone. For some time he was unwell, and a few months ago was confined to his bed when his recovery was unlooked for. His trouble was an affection of the ear and head. During his illness Dr. McGregor was his medical attendant. When he was sick Mrs. Lennox, spoken of above as Mary Lennox, waited on him frequently. The interior of the house was kept in good order and this (Saturday) morning the furniture was not found disarranged. There are three rooms in the house—a sitting room, kitchen and bedroom. The door of the bedroom where Mr. McMillan hanged himself was open. The clothes of the bed were partly turned down from the top, but the pillows were unruffled, and the bed did not look as though he had slept in it. From this fact it is supposed the suicide was committed late on Friday night. He was last seen by Mr. and Mrs. James Little, who met him going towards home about seven o'clock on Friday evening. The neighbors did not see him after that time. In fact they seldom did see him, and from his eccentric actions and reserved manner some of them are not slow to assert that mental derangement was the cause of the suicide.

The deceased, who is fifty four years of age, was well known to the people of Guelph, and we may say of this County. He began business about twenty years ago in the Village of Douglas, Township of Garafraxa, as a boot and shoe maker. Being possessed of great energy, both mental and physical, he soon found this quiet village too small for his ambition, and soon moved into Fergus, where for years he carried on a large and lucrative business in the boot and shoe line. Here he took a prominent position among the business men of the place, and was made a Magistrate. At this time he also took a great interest in the Volunteer Force, and his connection with the Fergus Company ultimately led to his promotion as Major in the Force.

In the winter of 1869-70 he was burned out in Fergus, and shortly after that he came to Guelph and started business on an extensive scale. During that year, however, he was deeply involved in law suits with the Wellington and Gore Mutual Insurance Companies, who contested his claims for damages at the fire in Fergus on account of alleged frauds. He lost the cases, and his appearance in the witness box did not at all help his reputation.

He threw himself into insolvency after, but the revelations connected therewith did more injury than good to his character, and this ended in his being for a time put in gaol.

His life, subsequently, need not be referred to. The death of his wife, the scattering of his family, and his abandonment of all good influences are well known to the people of this city. He abandoned himself to the gratification of his passions. His old friends either forsook him or gave him the cold shoulder, and he was in a sense left alone to a conscience devoid of feeling or remorse. In this state of mind he sunk lower and lower, until at last wearied of life he rashly took it, and so put an end to a miserable existence.

The Game Law.

No Bill introduced into the Legislative Assembly this session has excited more widespread or active interest than those proposing amendments to the Game Law. The Bill introduced by Mr. Wigle early in the session is the basis of the following text. It was read a first and second time and referred to a special committee, which recast it to a considerable extent. On Friday afternoon it was considered by the House in Committee of the Whole and further modified, being left then in the shape in which it appears below. It is quite certain that further attempts will be made to change it when it comes up for its third reading, and as the Bill is not likely to be reprinted with the latest amendments, those interested in its progress would do well to preserve it as given here.

1. The Act passed in the forty-first year of Her Majesty's reign, and chaptered eighteen, is hereby repealed.

2. None of the animals or birds hereinmentioned shall be hunted, taken, or killed within the periods hereinafter limited; (1) deer, elk, moose, reindeer, caribou, between the fifteenth day of December and the first day of October; (2) grouse, pheasant, prairie fowl, or partridges, between the first of January and the first day of September; (3) wild turkeys or quail, between the first day of January and the first day of October; (4) woodcock, between the first of January and the first day of August; (5) snipe, between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of August; (6) water fowl, known as mallard, grey duck, black duck, wood or summer duck, between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of August; (7) other ducks, swans, or geese, between the first day of May and the fifteenth day of August; (8) hare, between the first day of March and the first day of September.

3. No person shall have in his possession any of the said animals or birds, or any part or portion of any of such animals or birds, during the periods in which they are so protected; provided that they may be exposed for sale for twenty days and no longer after such periods, and may be had in possession for the private use of the owner and his family at any time, but in all cases the proof of the time of killing, taking, or purchasing shall be upon the person so in possession.

4. No eggs of any of the birds above mentioned shall be taken, destroyed, or had in possession of any person at any time.

5. None of the said animals or birds, except the animals mentioned in the seventh section of the Act, shall be trapped or taken by means of traps, nets, snares, gins, baited lines or other similar contrivances; nor shall such traps, nets, snares, gins, baited lines or contrivances be set for them, or any of them at any time; and such traps, nets, snares, gins, baited lines or contrivances may be destroyed by any person without such person thereby incurring any liability therefor.

6. None of the contrivances for taking or killing the wild fowl known as swans, geese or ducks which are described or known as batteries, swivel guns, sunken punts or night lights, shall be used at any time.

7. No beaver, muskrat, sable, marten, otter or fisher, shall be hunted, taken or killed, or had in possession of any person between the first day of May and the first day of November; and no mink between the first day of April and the first day of November; nor shall any traps, snares, gins, or other contrivances be set for them during such period; nor shall any muskrat house be cut, broken, or destroyed at any time; and any such traps, snares, gins, or other contrivances so set may be destroyed by any person without such person thereby incurring any liability therefor: Provided that the section shall not apply to any person destroying any of the said animals in defence or preservation of his property.

8. Offences against this Act shall be punished upon summary conviction on information or complaint before a Justice of the Peace, as follows: (1) In case of deer, elk, moose, reindeer, or caribou, by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars nor less than ten dollars, with costs, for each offence; (2) in case of birds or eggs, by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than five dollars, with costs, for each bird or egg; (3) in case of fur bearing animals mentioned in the seventh section of this Act, by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than five dollars, with costs, for each offence; (4) in the case of other branches of this Act, by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than five dollars, with costs.

9. The whole of such fine shall be paid to the prosecutor, unless the convicting justice has reasons to believe that the prosecution is in collusion with and for the purpose of benefitting the accused, in which case the said justice may order the disposal of the fine as in ordinary cases.

10. In all cases confiscation of game shall follow conviction, and the game so confiscated shall be given to some charitable institution or purpose, at the discretion of the convicting justice.

11. In order to encourage persons who have heretofore imported, or hereafter import, different kinds of game with the desire to breed and preserve the same on their own lands, it is enacted that it shall not be lawful to hunt, shoot, kill, or destroy any such game without the consent of the owner of the property wherever the same may be bred.

12. It shall not be lawful for any person to kill or take any animal protected by this Act by the use of poison or poisonous substances, nor to expose poison, poisoned bait, or other poisoned substances in any place or locality where dogs or cattle may have access to the same.

13. No person shall at any time hunt, take, or kill any deer, elk, moose, reindeer, or caribou for the purpose of exporting the same out of Ontario, and in all cases the onus of proving that any such deer, elk, moose, raindeer, or caribou so hunted, taken, or killed, is not intended to be exported as aforsaid shall be upon the person hunting, killing, or taking the same.

(a) Offences against this section shall be punished by fine not exceeding $25, nor less than $5 for each animal.

14. No owner of any dog, trained or accustomed to hunt deer, shall permit any such dog to run at large (if such dog is accustomed or is likely to resort to the woods unaccompanied by such owner or any of his family or other person) during the period from the 15th of November to the 15th of October, under a penalty, on conviction, of not more than $25, nor less than $5 for each offence. Any person harboring or claiming to be the owner of any such dog, shall be deemed to be the owner thereof.

SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 6, 1880

The Ontario Legislature.

The session of the Ontario Legislature closed on Friday, and if we cannot chronicle anything remarkable in its proceedings, we can at least say that it has given close attention to the business brought before it, and that the legislation on the whole has been of a very important character. The session spread over two months, but no fault could be found with the Government on the score of delay, for they had their measures ready at the commencement of the session, and had it not been for the long list of private bills, the work might have been done in less time than it was. But in all legislation of this kind, the interests of all parties have to be consulted, and in deference to them, the most ample time is given so that no one will have any cause to complain that any particular measure which he is looking after has been overlooked or slighted.

The Government have come well up to the fulfillment of their programme, as announced in the Lieut.-Governor's speech at the opening of the House. They promised measures for reorganizing the Reformatory for Boys, for the future management of the Agricultural College; for making alterations in the jurisdiction and machinery of the Division Courts, and consolidating the Superior Courts of Law and Equity; for abolishing priority among execution creditors; amending the law regulating municipal taxation; and altering the mutual relations of the settler and the lumberer with respect to free grant lands; for the protection of railway employees who are liable to fatal injuries from the nature of their employment, and for the erection of new Parliament and Departmental buildings. All these measures have been passed with the exception of two; that relating to the jurisdiction of the Courts, and the protection of railway employees. Besides these, the Government also carried through measures relating to the following subjects:—Co-operative associations, the qualification of land surveyors, the holding of coroner's inquests, the amendment of the Agriculture and Arts Act, real property, the collection of taxes in the various judical districts, the amendment of the Act relating to Public Schools, the selection of jurors, the inspection of insurance companies, the transfer of prisoners, the amendment of the Municipal Act, &c.

The above record is, therefore, exceedingly creditable to the Government, and is very good proof of their industry, and the amount of work they have done during the session. Though well aware of their strength, they have not abused it, but while carefully studying the interests of the country, they have sanctioned any legislation that had this object in view, and have wisely set their face against any measures that they might have been tempted to go into by undue pressure, which however, their good sense and desire for the good of the Province led them to reject.

On the whole we consider that the work of the Government during the session just closed is about the best, most practical and creditable they have done for years, and this credit is due as much to the legislation they prevented as to that they felt it their duty to carry through. While no doubt their policy was a source of annoyance and disappointment to advocates of certain schemes and interests, it met the approval of the great bulk of the people in the Province, and they close the session as strong, if not stronger, than when they met the House in January, and had to trust to its good feeling and loyalty to support their policy and their programme of business.

It was Mr. Shaw, the member for South Bruce, who seconded the motion to give Mr. Blake's Prevention of Crime Bill the six month's hoist. In common decency he might have allowed some one else to do it.

The Senate is doing wonders. On an average these venerable "lords" sit from twenty minutes to an hour, and then adjourn. But their pay goes on all the same. Their motto is:—"Nothing to do and much to get."

The correspondence and resolutions relative to the Ontario Boundary Award, printed by the Ontario Government has been distributed among the members. The principal document is a lengthy representation to the Dominion Government on the subject, and dated September 23rd, in which the introduction of a Bill to ratify the Award is asked for.

It is understood that the Estimates will be submitted to Parliament on Monday afternoon, and that Sir Leonard Tilley will deliver his Budget Speech on Tuesday.

The annual report of Mr. John Smith, Government Agent at Hamilton, states that some of the immigrants arriving at this agency during the close of the season were not of a desirable class, being composed of pensioned soldiers, who were induced to come out on the recommendation of the ticket agents interested in the different steamship companies, the principal one being a Mr. Odell, of Dublin, who, he is informed, has made a practice of canvassing the discharged soldiers for the purpose of inviting them to emigrate, in order to make his commission, under promises which he must have known could not be fulfilled. This class of people are entirely unfit for the labor of this country. On their arrival here they are without any means, having used their pension in advance to pay for their passage.

The Globe rightly says that the state of feeling in Biddulph is such that we cannot feel assured that justice will be done in the Donnelly case unless the trial of the men now charged with murder takes place in a part of the country where an impartial jury can be obtained. The two verdicts of the coroner's jury show a total disregard for the evidence adduced at the inquests.

The Attempted Murder of Melikoff.

Speedy Trial and Execution of the Prisoner.

LONDON, March 5.—St. Petersburg specials state that the assassin Vladetsky, when first arrested behaved so as to suggest derangement. The trial of the prisoner opened at eleven o'clock. The prisoner was insolent and refused to stand up or take any part in the proceedings, and said he had nothing to say nor did not want to be troubled any more; he wanted the matter finished. Depositions were then read, the prisoner withdrawing while the Court deliberated. He was brought back at one o'clock, when judgment was pronounced. Vladetsky was brought to-day from the fortress to the place of execution, strapped in a sitting posture on the black vehicle, with his back to the horses. A placard bearing the words State Criminal was attached to his breast. A company of Cossacks formed an escort. The scaffold was surrounded by infantry. On the way to the scaffold, and after reaching it, Vladetsky was quite calm, smiling occasionally. After the sentence had been read, he turned and bowed on all sides to the people. Just before being delivered to the hangman he said a few words to the priest and kissed the cross. The execution took place in the presence of an immense concourse. The body remained hanging twenty minutes. The police arrested seven men in the crowd having the appearance of students. They were taken to the fortress under a strong escort.

Artillery Association.

OTTAWA, March 4.—The annual meeting of the Dominion Artillery Association was held in the tower room this afternoon. The chair was occupied by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Selby Smith, K. C. M. G. Among the members present from this section were Major Macdonald of the Wellington Field Battery, and Capt. McCrae, of the Ontario Field Battery.

The chairman stated that the Minister of Militia was unavoidably absent. He thought that the Government would pass the annual grant of $900. There was a surplus of $700 on hand over from last year.

Col. Strange presented the following series of resolutions prepared at the meeting of the Council in the morning:

Proposed by Lieut.-Col. Strange, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Irwin,

"That six points be given for a direct hit with a common shell, fired with a plugged or percussion fuse."

Proposed by Lieut.-Col. Strange, seconded by Major Macdonald,

"That the subject for next year's essay be 'taking into consideration the peculiarities of climate, physical features, means available, etc., of Canada; what is the most suitable form for a battery armed with sixty-four 32-pound guns on standing carriages on a water front to oppose unarmoured vessels similarly armed, and the best means to facilitate and encourage the construction of such works by the militia engineers and artillery themselves at important points, plans, etc.,' to be the bona fide work of the writer."

Proposed by Capt. McCrae, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Strange,

"That rule 3 be amended so as to admit the artillery branch of the North-West Mounted Police, but being under exceptional circumstances that rules as to batteries armed with a special weapon be applied."

Proposed by Lieut.-Col. Strange, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Fraser,

"That prizes at the rate of $5 per battery affiliating and practising at the station, be given for competition with Palliser converted guns, to be called the 'Palliser prize.'"

Major DeWinton said he had been instructed by His Excellency to state that as a mark of his appreciation of the work of the Dominion Artillery Association, he would offer a cup for competition in such a manner as the Council might deem proper, and the prize would be supplemented by a small money grant. Major DeWinton said His Excellency took a good deal of interest in the Association, and wished them success.

The announcement was received with applause, and the chairman returned thanks in suitable terms, stating that the gift was another proof of the interest which His Excellency evinced towards the institution.

Lieut.-Col. Strange, moved, seconded by Major DeWinton.

"That the cadets of the Royal Military College be admitted as a special case, and that special prizes be offered for field artillery practice, garrison artillery practice, and shifting ordnance."—Carried.

Lieut. Col. Strange thought that renewed application should be made to the Government for a Provincial meeting of artillery corps and asking for free transport.

Lieut.-Col. Lewis suggested a week's drill and practice similiar to that at Shoeburyness in the Maritime Province. They could meet at Halifax, camping at Mount Pleasant, if the Government would grant free transport. That was all that would be required, and it would do much to improve the corps in that section of the Dominion.

Lieut. Col. Price Lewis moved, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Fraser:—

"That the Government be requested to grant free transportation to artillery corps desiring to form provincial camps for drill and practice."—Carried.

The officers were re-elected, and the meeting adjourned.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

The Preliminary Trial Continued.

LONDON, March 5.—The investigation of the Biddulph tragedy was this morning continued before Squires Peters and Fisher. There was a considerable falling off in the attendance of spectators, but still the Court was pretty well filled.

Constable Hodge was examined, and Chief Williams was recalled, but their evidence was of no special importance. Geo. Pett, an expert, was examined as to the condition of Mc-Laughlin's gun.

Young Carroll and P. Ryder, jr., were then brought up and admitted to bail, themselves in $1,000, and two sureties of $500 each advanced by Patrick Ryder, sr., and Timothy Toohey.

The court adjourned till Tuesday next.

The adjournment was made in order to hear the evidence of three more witnesses Wm. Donnelly's wife, James Keefe, and another person whose name Mr. Hutchinson did not remember. Mrs. Donnelly will tell what she knows of the murder of her brother in-law. Keefe will repeat the story Bill Donnelly told him four or five hours after the gang left his house, and the other witness will probably be examined as to the formation and operations of the now notorious Vigilance Committee. A copy of Martin Hogan's testimony given at the inquest will be put in, which will close the case for the prosecution.

Ontario Legislature.

The House Prorogued.

TORONTO, March 5.

At three o'clock His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, accompanied by Captain Law, A. D. C., drove down to the Parliament Buildings. As soon as the carriage debouched from the gates of the Government House the Field Battery, which was stationed on Wellington street, began the firing of a salute. The galleries and body of the House was well filled. The following are the more important bills assented to:—

Act to provide for the division of the township of Luther.

Act respecting water works for the town of Wingham.

Act respecting the Stratford and Huron and the Port Dover and Lake Huron Railway Companies.

Act to incorporate the village of Wiarton.

Act to incorporate the Grand Ontario Central Railway Company.

Act respecting the Agricultural College.

Act for the relief of Co-operative Associations.

Act respecting Coroners' Inquests.

Act to make valid certain Municipal By-laws.

Act respecting Ditching Water-courses.

Act to amend the Revised Statute respecting Mortages and sales of Personal Property.

Act respecting the support of Destitute Insane Persons.

Act to amend the law for the protection of game and fur-bearing animals.

Act to amend the Agricultural and Arts Act.

Act to amend the Act respecting land surveyors and the survey of lands.

Act to amend the Free Grants and Homesteads Act.

Act to prevent the spreading of Canada Thistles.

Act respecting the debenture debt of the city of Guelph.

Act to extend the jurisdiction of Division Courts, and to regulate the officials of the said Courts.

Act to abolish priority of and among execution creditors

Act respecting certain amendments to the Public Schools Act.

Act further to amend the Jurors' Act.

Act respecting the incorporation of Cemetery Companies by letters patent.

Act respecting companies incorporated under Imperial Statutes.

Act respecting Municipal taxation and exemption.

Act respecting the removal of persons from county gaols to Provincial Institutions.

Act to protect goods of lodgers and boarders against distress for rent due to the superior landlord

Act respecting the Ontario Reformatory for Boys.

Act respecting Niagara Falls and the adjacent territory.

Act to extend the powers of Joint Stock Companies for the erection of Exhibition Buildings.

Act for the relief of Building, Loan, and Saving Societies and Companies.

Act to amend the Municipal Act.

Act to provide for the erection of new buildings for the accommodation of the Provincial Legislature and the Public Departments.

Act respecting public officers of Ontario.

Act to make further provision respecting the estates of persons confined in asylums for the insane.

SPEECH.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I am glad to be able to relieve you from further attendance upon your Legislative duties and to thank you for the careful consideration you have given to the many useful measures to which I have to-day been called upon to assent.

It gives me great pleasure to know from the action you have taken that my Government will have your cordial and loyal support in asserting the just claims and rights of this Province, more especially in their efforts to sustain the Award of the arbitrators by which the northerly and westerly boundaries of Ontario have been determined, and I have to acknowledge the promptness with which you have placed at the disposal of my advisers the necessary funds for that purpose.

It is gratifying to me to observe that the subject of providing new and increased accommodation for the Legislature and Governmental Departments has engaged your attention. I trust that, without exceeding the estimated cost, buildings will be erected fully equal to the demands of the public service and in all respects worthy of this great and wealthy province.

The readiness with which you have voted a sum of money for the relief of our suffering fellow-subjects in Ireland will I am sure, be warmly appreciated by them, and afford a fresh proof of the common sentiments of interest and sympathy which unite the people of the many widely separated portions of Her Majesty's Dominions.

The Bill incorporating the Agricultural College, which has just become law, shows the sense entertained by you of the importance of that institution to the farmers of Ontario, and I have no doubt your views thus expressed will be shared to a constantly increasing extent by all classes of the people. As the utility of this institution is further demonstrated by experience, steps will be taken by my Government to give early effect to the proposition to appoint an Agricultural Commission, and to assure for any outlay so incurred the most practical and beneficial results.

The extension of the jurisdiction of the Division Courts will tend to secure to a large number of suitors a more ready and less expensive means for enforcing just demands, while other amendments in the law sanctioned by you will add materially to the efficiency of the tribunals.

The important amendments in the Municipal law resulting from your deliberations, more particularly those which reduce the number of statutory exemptions and effect certain changes in the incidences of local taxation, cannot fail to be of great public benefit.

While the subject is surrounded with considerable difficulty, it may reasonably expected that your enquiries as to the best means for providing security against accidents to brakesmen and other railway servants will in due time result in the attainment of that most desirable object.

The measures to prevent the wasteful destruction of pine timber on free grant lands, to bring Mechanics' Institutes under the cognizance of the Minister of Education, to abolish priority of claims among execution creditors, to check the unnecessary holding of coroner's inquests, and to introduce an improved system of management into the Reformatory for boys at Penetanguishene; all demonstrate the lively regard of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario for the good government and welfare of the province.

I thank you for the supplies you have voted for the public service. They will be expended with all the regard for economy that is consistent with efficiency and the public requirements.

In addressing you probably for the last time in my official capacity, I cannot help giving expression to my earnest desire for the future prosperity of the Province of Ontario and the permanence of those institutions by which its present proud and happy position has been largely secured.

May Divine wisdom ever guide the counsels of its statesmen, and a blessing attend the industry of the people.

The Provincial Secretary then said: Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly, it is His Honor's will and pleasure that this Legislative Assembly be prorogued, and this Legislative Assembly is accordingly prorogued.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 5.

Sir John Macdonald introduced a Bill to consolidate and amend the Acts relating to the North-West Territories.

Mr. Fleming introduced a Bill providing that the captains of vessels shall be personally held responsible for bringing pauper immigrants to this country.

Mr. Ouimet this session will again attempt to repeal the Bill preventing dual representation, and introduced a measure in that direction.

The Ministerial measure providing for the salaries of two additional Judges of the Supreme Court of British Columbia was advanced a stage.

The debate was resumed on Mr. McLennan's motion for a statement of the contracts let on the Pacific Railway up to January 1st last.

Mr. Mackenzie concluded his speech, and indicated that the Opposition would hesitate in sanctioning the extravagant expenditure on account of the Pacific Railway, which the present Government appeared to have initiated. The enormous annual expenditure threatened to be pursued by the Government would ultimately land the country in inextricable debt.

The motion was carried.

Mr. McCarthy's Bills to amend the Supreme and Exchequer Courts' Act, and to amend the Act relating to procedure in criminal cases were advanced a stage.

The House adjourned at 9:45 p. m.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

The International Park at Niagara Falls.

The State Survey Commissioners met at Albany on Wednesday concerning the International Park at Niagara, drawn by ex-Lieutenant-Governor Dorsheimer, President Barnard, of Columbia College, and Francis A. Stout, who were appointed for that purpose at the Utica meeting last autumn. It recommends the creation by law of a Commission to take measures for the sequestration and appraisement of the necessary land on the New York side of the Niagara River in accordance with the plans of Mr. Garoner, the Director of the Survey, and Frederick L. Olmstead, which are appended. All the documents will be printed and laid before the Senate and Assembly next week, together with drafts of the proposed legislation. The matter of money appropriation to pay for the land is advised to be postponed till next year, inasmuch as the sum must remain indefinite until the appraisement is completed. Extensive enquiry satisfies me that the project is very favourably regarded in the Legislature. Simultaneously with the adoption of this report a memorial was laid before Governor Cornell beseeching his favour to the undertaking. It bears the most extraordinary collection of signatures of prominent American citizens and British subjects which we have ever seen appended to a public document.

Among the former are the Vice-President, the Chief Justice of the United States, and his associates, the Secretary of War, the Admiral of the Navy, the most prominent Senators and Representatives in Congress, the Governors of several States, Cardinal McCloskey, and distinguished ecclesiastics of every denomination; the Presidents of Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, St. John's, and most other Eastern Colleges; Daniel Huntington, President of the National Academy, and numerous famous artists; Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Palfrey, Parkman, Agassiz, Grey, and a kindred array of poets, historians, and scientists; the Mayor of New York, and the chief merchants of the metropolis, and hundreds of famous men in private life, such as Horace Seymour, Charles Francis Adams, Thurlow Weed, Edwin D. Morgan, and John Day. Among the Canadian signatures are Chief Justice Dorion of the Canadian Court of Appeals, and almost all the judiciary of the Dominion; the Lord Bishop and the Mayor of Montreal; Principal Dawson, of McGill College; and various leading members of the Canadian Parliament and eminent private men, such as Sir Hugh Allan and Sir Francis Hincks, together with such Englishmen as Professor Jowett and Max Muller in behalf of the University of Oxford, Thomas Carlyle, Ruskin, Lord Houghton, Sir John Lubbock, Leslie, Stephen, and Frederick Harrison. The list also bears the names of many members of the British Parliament.

The following is a copy of the memorial addressed to Governor Cornell:

The undersigned citizens of several States and countries, address you by reason of a suggestion recently made by Lord Dufferin that the State of New York and the Dominion of Canada should secure and hold for the world's good the lands adjacent to the Falls of Niagara. The Falls are peculiarly exposed to disastrous injury. The heights of snow, the precipitous crags of great mountains, however they may be disfigured by man, can rarely be disfigured in a way which would destroy their sublimity. But should the island and the declivities of Niagara River be stripped of their natural woods and occupied for manufacturing and business purposes, should even the position, size, and form of the constructions which the accommodation of visitors will call for continue to be regulated solely by the pecuniary interests of numerous individual land owners, the loss to the world will be great and irreparable. The danger may be measured by what has already occurred. The river banks are denuded of the noble forests by which they were originally covered. They are degraded by the incongruous and unworthy structures made for advertising purposes wilfully conspicuous and obtrusive, and the visitor's attention is diverted from scenes to the influence of which he would gladly surrender himself by demands for tolls and fees and offers of services, most of which he would prefer to avoid. Objects of great natural beauty and grandeur are among the most valuable gifts which Providence has bestowed upon our race. The contemplation of these elevates and informs the human understanding. They are instruments of education; they conduce to the order of society; they draw together men of all races, and they contribute to the union and peace of nations. The suggestion, therefore, that an object of this class so unparalleled as the Falls of Niagara should be placed under the joint guardianship of the two Governments, whose chief magistrates we have the honour to address, is a proper concern of the civilized world, and we respectfully ask that it may by appropriate methods be commended to the wise consideration of the Legislature of New York.

A similar memorial has been addressed to the Governor-General of Canada.

UTILIZING SAW DUST.—The Mail makes the following remarks: Lumbermen have for many years been looking about for a profitable mode of utilizing saw dust. Burning it as fuel for their steam engines makes no appreciable diminution in the supply, and though various means of turning it to good account have been suggested, their adoption is not always practicable on the spot. Mixing the sawdust with tar and converting it into fuel has been found to answer in some cases; in others, the manufacture of fire lighters, by mixing the sawdust with petroleum or resin, and pressing it into small cakes has been adopted. An ingenious American inventor has devised a machine for working up the material into a pulp and compressing it into various shapes, such as barrels, brackets, doors, etc. It is said that articles of furniture made in this way are in certain respects perferable to those made of ordinary wood, the pulp becoming perfectly hard and impervious to water.

CHAPTER XXX.

A NIGHT OF EXCITING ADVENTURES—DAVID RAMSAY IN PURSUIT—AGNES BORLAND THE HANDS OF HER CAPTORS— HE ISSUE.

All in the boat were struck dumb with amazement at the scene. All but Reuben Langton, who lay writhing and groaning among the rowers' feet, knowing what none else knew as yet: that his leg was broken below the knee, and suspecting also that his thigh was out of joint. Even in his agony he was filled with rage, and when not groaning with pain he was gnashing his teeth with fury.

"Hullo!" exclaimed Yawkins, making his way forward to where David sat with Agnes clinging to him. "What fellow are you? Ain't you one of Dobson's landsharks?"

"No," replied David resolutely. "I hae come to protect this lassie, and take her hame. Turn back the boat, and land us on the beach."

"Ha! Langton, do you hear that? What's to be done with this insolent fellow."

"Throw him overboard," said Reuben, grinding the words savagely through his set teeth.

"No—no," screamed Agnes. He has come to save me from wrong. You shall not throw him over, or if you do, we shall go together." And she twined her arms round him with increased tenacity.

"Over with him," yelled Reuben. "It was he who brought the revenue men upon us."

"Ha!" cried Yawkins, with a fearful oath. "That treachery dooms him. Take the girl one of you, and I'll pitch him over the gunwale."

"I didna bring the revenue men on ye," exclaimed David. "The gauger and his men hae been watchin' you a' nicht. They expected ye to rin a cargo somewhere amang the rocks. I met the gauger when I was seekin' for the gipsies, and that's hoo I kenned whaur to come."

"It's a lie he's telling you," roared Reuben.

"It's nae lee, Maister Langton. I wad scorn to lee, man, even to save my life. Ye seem sair hurt if ane may judge by the way ye are groanin'."

"Ay, my leg is broken; my thigh is out of joint—curse you."

"Dinna curse me; curse yersel', for had ye no hired the gipsies to carry awa' Agnes this wadna hae happened ye. It's a judgment on ye, sir, and mair will come if ye dinna put us baith ashore; and gin it be true yer leg is broken the sooner ye are at hame to get it set, the better for it and you."

"I'll be hanged if I go back," growled Yawkins. "The lugger is waiting to set sail, and you must all go to the island. I've lost too much time already with this work, and bad luck it has brought us. Give way, men; row with a will, or we'll lose the morning tide. Donner and blitzen! what's that?"

It was the sound of a gun coming from seaward that had startled all in the boat and elicited the wrathful utterance of Yawkins. It came from the lugger, which lay little more than half a mile off, and was a signal that danger was at hand. Yawkins stood up in the boat with a night glass at his eye, and had not fixed his gaze many seconds when another flash was seen, and another reverberating sound rolled over the water.

"Der devil! yonder is a revenue cutter," he furiously ejaculated.

"Is there no twa o' them?" queried David Ramsay. "Maister Dobson tell'd me there were twa, lookin' oot for the Black Prince, if that is the name o' your lugger."

"Two! curse it, yes—there are two," roared Yawkins, "If Vanderbolt hasn't the sense to slip cable and make sail the lugger will be captured. What is the idiot waiting for and firing gun after gun? There goes another. Does he think I will come on board with these pirates alongside? Make sail, you fool. Hang your eyes, make sail at once, or the Black Prince will bear the broad arrow in a jiffey."

The Huge Dutchman, frantic with rage, stamped and swore till the boat quivered and oscillated in a dangerous manner. At every shock received by the bottom timbers Reuben Langton, who lay on them, shrieked with agony; but his cries were unheeded by Yawkins, whose whole attention was occupied by the danger to his vessel. Towards the latter a king's cutter was drawing near from each side. There was still time for escape if Yawkins' chief officer, who was in charge, made sail with all promptitude, for the Black Prince was a faster sailer than any cutter on the coast, and Yawkins had more than once taken it out of the teeth of an eager lieutenant, who thought himself sure of his prey. His absence from the ship at this crisis threatened to prove fatal. Vanderbolt, who was evidently aware of the danger that menaced him, did not seem to know what to do. The guns he was firing were obviously signals to the boat, but whether meant to hasten its progress or to warn it back, could not be determined. If he waited till the boat had time to come alongside capture was inevitable. He had now barely time, even with the lugger's superior powers of speed, to get away—a few moments longer and all chance would be gone.

To the choleric Yawkins this delay was infuriating. In his excitement he shouted orders as if he had been on deck, and foamed and blasphemed because they were not executed. At length, to his extravagant joy, sheet after sheet of canvas was shaken out by the lugger, and she bore away between the two cutters who did their best to intercept her, but being too much in shore came short of doing so by a few fathoms.

"Well done, Vanderbolt, exclaimed the now delighted Yawkins, "crack on every stitch, my fine fellow, and you'll soon leave them in your wake. That's it, mainsail, jib, sky rakers, every one of them, and off you go. Ha! you hired spies and cutthroats, how do you like to see sailing like that. Ay, fire a shot if you like, but you'll never make the gallant-going Prince lie to? You've lost the heat again, my prowling sharks. Keep up the stern chase for an hour, and the lugger will not only be out of your reach but out of your sight. Your teeth and your eyes both baffled. Confound you, it serves you right for molesting us free traders, who are honester folk than you."

While this scene was enacting the rowers had sat with motionless oars, and the boat was slowly drifting with the tide. When all dubiety as to the safety of the lugger was removed, Yawkins resumed his seat and began to consider what was now to be done. The departure of his vessel brought him into a new position. It was no use proceeding further seaward. He knew the lugger would return as soon as it was safe for her to do so; but as that was not likely to be for a night or two, it was necessary to find a hiding place in the interval. For this purpose the boat must return to the shore, a proceeding to which risk was attached, for if Dobson had remained on the beach long enough to become aware that the lugger had set sail before the boat reached her, he and his men might be lurking among the cliffs in anticipation of the return of the latter. There was thus a danger of capture in that direction which must on no account be incurred.

For some minutes Yawkins and the boat's crew conversed anxiously in Dutch, and as the result of their deliberations it was resolved to land much further west, at the foot of the Monk's Cowl, and find concealment for a day or two in the large cave at the base of the rock. But what were they to do with their disabled associate, Reuben Langton. A broken leg and a dislocated thigh were serious injuries which required to be attended to without delay, and when the groaning youth was appealed to on the subject, he said, with gnashing teeth, that they must carry him on a little to the nearest house and leave him there.

"All right, my hearty. We'll get you to a berth somehow," said Yawkins. "But what about the girl. You'll not want her now?"

"Curse it, no; this mischance makes her useless to me. You may have her yourself if you fancy her."

"Not I; she ain't my sort."

"Throw her into the sea, with the meddlesome old gardener for company," said Reuben, with brutal malevolence.

"Wouldn't be safe," muttered Yawkins. "I can run a cargo fast enough, but don't go in for murder. I don't mean to risk going up a ladder or walking a plank. No we'll have to think of a better way to get rid of them."

"Here you old Scotch clodhopper," he added suddenly addressing David, who, with Agnes, had been happily ignorant of the murderous proposal which had been made regarding them. "If I were to put you and the girl ashore, I suppose you'd repay the service by giving information of our return to land, and send the sharks in search of us."

"'Deed no; we'll dae naething o' the kind."

"Ay, you'll promise that I daresay, but you must swear it; and I have heard the Scotch are always true to an oath."

"Very weel, we are ready to swear it, but our word is just as guid as oor aith."

"Your word won't satisfy me though. Now you both hold up your hand and swear by heaven that you'll not speak a word to any one of what you have seen and heard since you came into the boat."

It may easily be supposed that David and Agnes made no scruple about taking the oath thus imposed. The seizure of Yawkins and his men would prove of no benefit to them. Deliverance was the one thing they desired, and they were eager to observe it on such easy terms. This was an issue to the night's adventures far more favorable than they at one time expected.

So the oath was taken, and Yawkins was satisfied. The next thing to do was to find a suitable landing place, and after skirting the shore for a considerable time in an eastward direction, and finding all appeared solitary and deserted, they ran into a cove shut in on all sides by high rocks. The moment the keel of the boat grated on the strand Yawkins said in a suppressed, impatient tone, "Quick, out with you," and the pair were ready to obey with alacrity the welcome order.

In stepping over the side Agnes had to pass close to where Reuben Langton lay, and, as he gazed for a moment with his upturned face, she shuddered at the look of deadly hate with which he regarded her. But as it was the look of a baffled, disappointed, impotent plotter, whose power to injure was destroyed, she answered, it by a glance more of pity than of fear, and next moment stood free and safe on the beach by the side of her faithful and devoted friend, David Ramsay, who uttered fervent ejaculations of thanksgiving as the boat was pushed off and disappeared behind an outlying rock.

The beach on which they stood was, as we have said, shut in on all sides by frowning precipices, the only access to it from the land being by a pathround the edge of the lower rocks when the tide was back. They presently discovered that, though the tide was receding, this path would not be open for passage for more than half an hour, and during that period they had to remain where they were with feverish impatience, so intense was their anxiety to reach the cottage and terminate the agony of sorrow and suspense which they knew Mrs. Borland must be enduring.

It was some consolation in the enforced delay to know that they had not far to go, for the secluded beach on which they had been landed was in the immediate vicinity of the Shore Brae, to which the path of access directly led. Thus they could console themselves with the thought that so soon as the imprisoning water was sufficiently retired a few minutes' walk would bring them to the fishing village, and half an hour more would land them at the cottage.

Urged by the consuming impatience which both experienced, David tried the path again and again, watching along with Agnes the slow receding water till at last they were able to pass round the corner of the obstructing rock, and make their somewhat hazardous way to less rugged slopes. Soon they were on drier, safer ground, and walked smartly up the brae till the scattered houses came dimly into view.

It being now long after midnight no one was abroad. Every house was dark and silent, the inmates enjoying the repose of health and peace. Like the rest, the little schoolhouse, where Miss Elliott resided, was still and dark, but it required some self denial on the part of Agnes to pass without rousing her friend and acquainting her with the terrible dangers she had escaped. Mindful, however, of her mother's misery, she resisted the impulse, and walked resolutely forward by the side of her companion.

In crossing the moor Agnes was painfully reminded of her encounters there with Reuben Langton and Flora Marshall. She could now better understand the gipsy's meaning in waylaying her, and believed that had she given heed to Flora's proposals the latter meant to warn her against the outrage that impended. It was useless to speculate on that now. The danger had been incurred and was ended, therefore regret was valueless, and she felt inclined to blame herself in the matter, which even in view of the consequences she did not find cause to do. In her interview with the gipsy queen she had kept true to her moral and religious principles, and in the end had received the reward of her integrity.

The scene that took place on their arrival at the cottage we shall not attempt to describe. By the bright gleam proceeding from the window, they knew, ere they reached the gate, that Mr. Borland was keeping a distracted vigil. While they were yet fifty yards away, David heralded their coming with shouting in joyous tones, "Here we are, a' safe and weel;" when immediately a dark form flashed from the open door, a responding gladsome cry was heard, a figure flew forward to meet them, and mother and daughter were locked in each other's embrace—a joy and rapture filling their hearts which words could not adequately express.

An hour later David Ramsay left the cottage amid a shower of blessings, and enjoying a satisfaction of soul which was to him a sufficient reward for the good deed he had that night accomplished.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly, These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of,

NEW DRY GOODS

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

STAPLES.

Shipments of 2 and 3 ply Wool, Tapestry and fine Brussels Carpets.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I BEG TO INTIMATE TO MY friends and the public generally that I have sold out my business to Thomas Simpson, whom I can confidently recommend to my customers, and as his stock consists of meats of the best quality, I would bespeak for him a continuance of the patronage so liberally bestowed on me, and for which I return my sincere thanks. The shop lately occupied by me will be closed after this date.

JAMES SIMPSON, Butcher.

Guelph, Jan. 31, 1880.

IN REFERENCE TO THE ABOVE I woul say that, having lately bought out the business lately carried on by James Simpson on Waterloo Avenue, I will be happy to see all his customers at my stall in the Market, where they will find a large and select stock of the choicest meats to choose from, which will be sold as low as a good article can be sold for and will be delivered promptly in any part of the city.

WEDNESDAY EVNG, MARCH 10, 1880

Local News.

There is skating on Allan's dam.

THE New Hamburg Easter fat cattle fair takes place on the 17th inst.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh northwesterly to northeasterly winds; partly cloudy to clear cold weather.

MR. WEAVER, Custom's Collector, at Berlin, whose illness was noticed a day or two ago, is getting weaker and his recovery is despaired of.

THE names of the Misses Foster were omitted from the list of those who took part at Mrs. Hogg's parlour concert, published yesterday.

MR. MIMMACK'S CHALLENGE, which appeared in yesterday's paper, with reference to the game of "fifteen," has been accepted, and will be settled this evening at 8.30.

A DISORDERLY CHARACTER.—Matthew Sheady appeared at Police Court this morning for raising a disturbance while drunk on Gordon street. His case was adjourned till Saturday.

SUMMONSES ISSUED.—Martin Cantwell and Theodore Cross, of Puslinch, have been summoned to appear at the Police Court for fighting at Waite's hotel on Wednesday evening.

EASTER FAT CATTLE SHOW.—This show will be held in Guelph on the 17th inst., under the auspices of the Butchers and Drovers' Association. The prizes are equal to those offered in former years.

JAPAN.—This lecture will be delivered in the Dublin Street Church on Thursday evening next, by the Rev. Geo. Cochran, and will be profusely illustrated with heathen curiosity of rare interest.

DRUNKENNESS.—Peter Green was "gathered in" for being drunk on Sandilands street yesterday afternoon. He was discharged by the Police Magistrate, this being his first appearance at the Police Court.

THE Teeswater News says:—Mr. A. Little, we understand, has rented his mills to Messrs. Nixon, Howson & Co. of Aberfoyle, who bear the reputation of being first-classbusiness men, who will work the mills to full capacity.

ORDER FOR AN ENGINE.—Thomas Worswick has received an order from Messrs. Gooderham & Worts, Toronto, for a three hundred and fifty horse-power engine, and a pair of the largest cut spur gear wheels ever manufactured in Canada.

THE QUEEN'S HOTEL.—A change was made to-day in the management of the Queen's Hotel. For sometime it has been under the management of Timothy and John Coughlin. The former is retiring from the business, and it will now be carried on by John Coughlin.

SALE OF STOCK.—On Tuesday Mr. James Taylor, auctioneer, sold the stock belonging to Mr. Jas. H. Glennie, Puslinch, consisting of cattle, working oxen, and sheep. The stock was all sold at good prices, which is creditable to the ability of the auctioneer.

MILITARY SCHOOL.—The Military School at Toronto closed on Saturday, when the following gentlemen living in this district, provisionally appointed officers, obtained second-class certificates:—Lieutenants, B. Grant Jeffries, Bruce; Edward Williams, Grey; John Booth, Wellington.

LEGAL.—Mr. E. R. Martin for some years past residing in the United States, but for many years previous a resident of Guelph, has resumed the practice of his profession here. Mr. Martin was well and favourably known some years ago in Guelph as an able and painstaking solicitor, and we now bespeak for him a share of public patronage.

ENGLISH CONCERT CO.—W. J. Speers English Concert Company appear at the City Hall to-night. All who want to hear a musical treat should not fail to attend. Besides Sims Richards, the English tenor, the company comprises some of the best musicians of Toronto. The fun will be furnished by Mr. Speers, who created so much amusement by his readings at the St. George's Society's late charity concert.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.—"Chris" Merlihan was arrested on Nottingham street last night by P. C. Hammond for being drunk and disorderly. He had been drinking at different places during the evening and at some of them broke the windows and made considerable disturbance. At length he got on to Nottingham street, and started to batter in the doors of some dwelling houses. On being locked up in the cells he demolished every piece of furniture he could lay hands on. The Police Magistrate this morning fined the prisoner $3 and costs and ordered him to pay the damage he had done.

HOW THEIR ARDOUR WAS COOLED.—Two lads, one named Birmingham, the name of the other unknown, ran away from their homes yesterday afternoon. They got into a Grand Trunk freight car and rode as far as Rockwood, when the car was set aside to be filled with ice, and the runaway boys were left behind. Bound to put a greater distance between themselves and their homes, they took the next freight going east, but the car they were stowed in was shunted off at Acton. Their exposure to the cold weather made them reflect on the bright, cheerful homes they had left behind, and influenced them to return, which they did by a passenger train last night.

FINES IMPOSED FOR FIGHTING.—On Saturday evening a dispute occurred at the Mitchell House, which ended in an open fight on Macdonnell street, the antagonists being Daniel McPhee, James Welsh, Robert Chambers and George Clayton. Clayton and Welsh went to the Mitchell House about seven o'clock and began disputing, when they were ordered out of the house. They proceeded to Anderson's saloon and commenced threatening McPhee. A fight ensued between Chambers and McPhee which was finished in rear of the saloon. Sergeant Dooley arrested two of the parties who were afterwards released. Those implicated were then summoned to appear at the Police Court and were tried this morning. Clayton was fined $3 and $4-95 costs, and Welsh, McPhee and Chambers were each fined $3 and $3.85 costs.

REVENUE.—The Inland Revenue collections at Walkerton, for the months of January and February, were as follows:—January, $757.08; February $609.31. Total, $1,366.39.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

LONDON, March 9.—The trial of the men charged with the murder of the Donnelly's was resumed in the Court House this morning before Squires Peters and Fisher. The prisoners were brought into Court at ten o'clock; they were looking better than they did last week. The room was crowded with spectators, among whom were a good sprinkling of ladies. Wm. Donnelly was recalled and testified as to the apprehensions at his father's house in regard to arson and other violence. He said the old man was well armed and prepared to shoot any one who intruded for a bad purpose. He was ready to protect his premises from an expected attack. Nora Donnelly (William's wife) followed with a general recital, corroborating her husband's story of the assassination of John. Both were subjected to a long cross-examination.

A rumor is abroad that James Keefe, who was depended on as a witness for the prosecution in the Donnelly case, has left the country. The report goes that he purchased a ticket last Thursday or Friday for Nebraska. It will be recollected that Keefe is the man that William Donnelly is said to have first told his story to, and he was expected to corroborate the evidence of Donnelly. It is hard to say what the effect of this will be.

Departure of Parnell.

MONTREAL, March 10.—Mr. Parnell, accompanied by his Secretary, took his departure this morning for New York for Ireland.

Death Under Suspicious Circumstances.

PETERBORO', March 10. — On Monday night, a woman named Fradenberg, a widow, residing at Lakefield, was taken seriously ill after taking a dose of some unknown medicine, and died on Tuesday a. m. Circumstances give rise to the suspicion that the medicine was administered to procure abortion, and to-day the County Attorney ordered an inquest, which will be held at Lakefield to-night.

Arthur Correspondence.

A meeting of the directors of the Arthur Junction Railway was held at Paisley's Hotel on Monday, the 9th inst., when Mr. Alex. Fraser, Reeve, was elected President in room of Joseph Draper, deceased. After the meeting a number of gentlemen, including the village council repaired to lot 9, township of Peel, adjoining the village, and turned the first sod, and performed such other ceremonies as is necessary to preserve the charter. The President, Messrs. Graham, Buehler, O'Callaghan, Anderson, and Jas. Clarke, of Peel, participated in the operations. At a subsequent meeting, held by the Railway Committee, it was decided to appeal the case against Arthur Township.

It was also resolved to petition the Peel Council to submit a sectional bonus for $6,000. The petitions are being numerously signed, and the committee entertain strong hopes of success.

Our village is passing through a business revolution. Never were changes so frequent among our business men as they are this winter. Some people say we have touched bottom, the latest change being a new barber. Messrs. Davis & Rockliff, the parties who bought out Hathaway's grist mill, are contemplating making alterations, additions and improvements, involving an expenditure of $5,000. Milling operations will be suspended during the summer to enable the proprietors to effect these improvements, when one of the best flouring mills in this part of the country will be located in Arthur. Success to the enterprise is our wish.

The congregation of the church of England in this place are preparing to build a new church. A site has been secured on the property of Mr. W. H. Clark, near the Orange Hall. Liberal subscriptions have been signed, and there is no doubt by next fall a beautiful and substantial edifice will be built. The temporal and spiritual matters of the church have been badly managed during these last ten years back, but under the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Rikston, matters are beginning to improve.

Rev. Mr. Robinson, Baptist minister, for some years, a resident of this place, left here last week for St. Mary's. His place will be filled shortly.

Special meetings are being held in the Methodist church. Some good has been done, and there are signs of more. Rev. Mr. Mills, the pastor, has been located nearly the allotted time. During the three years which he has been here he has made himself popular with all classes. He is earnest and sincere. Although a man of more than ordinary ability he lacks what some people call force. He is very plain and unaffected in his preaching and address. His simplicity reminds one of Moody as a revivalist. He lacks that animal magnetism which electrifies a whole congregation. He is held in high esteem by the members and congregation of his own church.

Harriston Correspondence.

Miss McEwing has removed her dressmaking establishment and fancy goods store to the premises lately occupied by Mrs. Allan on Elora street, opposite the Collison House, where she will carry on the business more extensively than heretofore.

The regular annual anniversary of the dedication of Knox Church will be observed on Sabbath, 21st March. Sermons will be preached at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., by the Rev. Mr. Murray, of Kincardine. The ladies will give a social in the basement on the following Monday evening, in connection with which there will be addresses and selections of vocal and instrumental music.

A meeting of the Minto Farmer's club will be held at the Collison House here on Monday the 15th inst., for the purpose of making arrangements for seed, &c. Farmers wishing to procure seed are requested to attend.

The partnership heretofore existing between Preston & Henry in the drug goods and grocery business has been dissolved. Dr. Henry retires from the business, but will continue the practice of his profession. The business will hereafter be carried on by George and John A. Preston.

The Harriston Branch Total Abstinence Club held their first public meeting in the Temperance hall on Thursday evening of last week. Dr. Henry, President, occupied the chair. The entertainment consisted of vocal and instrumental music, readings, recitations, addresses, etc. The meeting will hereafter be held on the first and second Mondays of the month in the Temperance hall.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

Fixing Values by Law.

(From the Montreal Star.)

In the House of Commons Dr. Orton brings in a bill entitled, "An Act to regulate the encumbering of Real Estate by loans of money or otherwise," and Mr. Methot has a bantling which he calls "An Act to fix the Rate of Interest and prohibit Usury in the Province of Quebec." Dr. Orton's bill provides that no higher rate of interest than seven per cent. shall be charged upon mortgages on real estate and that no mortgage or other lien whatsoever on real estate shall be valid in which a higher rate than seven per cent. is charged. Mr. Methot proposes to fix the rate of interest in this Province, when no rate is agreed upon at six per cent. and to limit the rate which may be legally stipulated, to eight per cent. Briefly stated this is the position of these interest tinkers. Both bills, however are full of penalties for the infraction of their provisions. Thus Mr. Methot's bill provides in cases where one pays a greater sum of interest than eight per cent. he may recover any time within the course of one year, not the amount paid in excess of the legal rate simply, but the whole amount of interest paid. This will give artful dodgers an excellent opportunity of out-shaving the note-shavers by paying in excess of the legal rate, which is always an easy matter with note-shavers, then taking action and recovering the whole amount. There is one weak point in Dr. Orton's bill which it is not too late to remedy fortunately, as the bill has not yet passed its third reading; he has made no provision to compel loan societies and individuals to loan their money at the legal rate. A man of Dr. Orton's intelligence will at once perceive that this is a weakness which is going to be fatal to his scheme to benefit the agriculturalists by a cheap rate of interest, or unless capitalists are prevented they will carry their money to places where higher rates are obtainable. If a compulsory measure of this kind is not added to the bill it is to be feared that many of Dr. Orton's unfortunate constituents, whose real estate is not good enough value for seven per cent loans, will have to go without any and have their land brought under the Sheriff's hammer as well. "Mr. Method's methots" are quite as out of joint as Dr. Orton's. After giving us eight clauses of a bill bristling with conditions and hedged about with contingencies, he suddenly anounces in his ninth clause that the provisions of his Act shall not extend to or affect any incorporated bank. If it should appear in the course of the discussion upon the bill that the member for Nicolet is a heavy holder of bank stock there would appear to be more "Methot in his madness" than is now apparent. Evidently there is a great political future in store for both those "interesting" gentlemen, for men who can so jauntly wrestle with and throw such economical problems, are bound to rise to higher efforts. When they have got through with the bills in hand we recommend Dr. Orton to introduce an Act to regulate the price of butter and cheese, which have been altogether too high of late, and Mr. Methot to bring in a bill to fix the price sucre d' erable and to prohibit a corner in bottes sauvages. In order to anticipate enquiries we would say that members of the House of Commons receive, in consideration of their valuable services, $1,000 per session, besides mileage and the traditional trunk of stationery. And, considering the class of men we get, the taxpayer, no doubt, regards their services as cheap as dirt.

THE BRITISH ARMY.—The British army is composed of 121,444 Englishmen, 13,916 Scotsmen, 36,883 Irishmen; besides these there are 2,854 foreigners, serving mostly in the Colonial Corps, and 8,970 men concerning whose nationality no particulars are given. The religion of the soldiers appear to follow his nationality pretty closely, as there are 13,708 Presbyterians and 39,743 Roman Catholics; the Church of England claims 114,031, and 7,462 are described as other Protestants." There is one Jew in the cavalry, and 150 Hindoos and Mahometans are to be found in the Colonial Corps. The statistics as to the height of the men serving in the army will be somewhat disappointing to those who are wont to boast of the statue of an Englishman; 415 men per 1,000 are under 5 feet 7 inches, and only 20 per 1,000 are 6 feet and upwards. As regards the age of men now serving there is a slight improvement as compared with former years, 106 men only per 1,000 being under 20 years of age, while 261 per 1,000 are over thirty, leaving nearly two-thirds of the non-commissioned officers and rank and file in the prime of life.

BOLD COUNTERFEITING DETECTED.—Parties have been detected in making and counterfeiting Hop Bitters, and illegally using the name Hop Bitters, a registered trade mark, which subjects every person who makes or sells anything with the name Hop Bitters, or pretending to be like it, to a fine of $100 for each sale, however small the sale is. The Hop Bitters Manufacturing Company, of Rochester, N. Y., and Toronto, Ont., the sole owners of the trade mark, are prosecuting all violators of the law and enforcing heavy penalties, but are dealing very liberally with those who stop violating the law and settle without suit, and commence dealing in the genuine article, which is a valuable medicine and not a drink, as some of the counterfeits are. The genuine is sold by all druggists.

DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.—Mr. Robt. Thomas Johnston died after a lingering illness at his home con. 8, lot 18, Puslinch, on Saturday morning. He emigrated from the north of England and settled on the farm in Puslinch where he resided till the time of his death. For many years he was Township Clerk and held the position until about five years ago. He was a man of quiet habits, and well informed, and much respected by all who knew him. Mrs. Johnston has been long dead and the family have grown up.

The Financial Statement.

OTTAWA, March 9.

After formal business, Sir Leonard Tilley made his financial statement. He commenced with a review of the difficulties by which he and his colleagues felt themselves surrounded on taking office in 1878, including the promise to initiate a policy that would be at once protective and revenue-producing. Having prided himself on the fact that their pledges had been fulfilled by the tariff of last session, he proceeded to dilate on the heavy engagements to which they found themselves committed by the policy of their predecessors, the large deficit they had to meet, and the heavy expenditure they had to face in connection with the opening up of the North-West—all by way of preface to the admission that on the financial transactions of the year 1878-79 there was a deficit of $2,000,000 in spite of the abnormal receipts in anticipation of and immediately previous to the enactment of the tariff. But for these abnormal receipts, he contended, the deficit would have been $3,400,000 instead of $2,000,000, and he sought to throw the responsibility for this enormous deficit on the Mackenzie Government in connection with the estimated receipts and expenditures of 1878-79 and the supplementary estimates brought down a day or two ago for expenditures belonging to that year. Passing on to the current financial year, the Finance Minister admitted that up to the present time his estimate of revenue had not been realized, but he argued that there was good ground for expecting so much additional buoyancy during the next four months that before the end of June the leeway would be all made up. Having revised his estimate of revenue for the current year in the light of experience he fixed it this time at $24,450,000, and having similarly revised his estimate of expenditure he fixed it at $24,978,900, leaving an estimated deficit of half a million. He next referred to the estimated receipts and expenditures of 1880-81, fixing the former at $25,517,000 and the latter at $25,007,000, leaving an estimated surplus of about half a million. Incidentally he referred to his London loans, and in connection with the question of borrowing, announced the intention of the Government to extend the present Dominion currency from twelve to twenty millions in amount, the banks being compelled to hold guarantee securities for twenty-five per cent. of the amount they put in circulation. After an attempt to prove that the tariff had operated less injuriously on British than United States trade, that it had not alienated English public opinion, that it had not injured the national credit, that it had not increased the cost of goods to consumers, that it had not operated more injuriously on some Provinces than on others, that it had given an impulse to manufacturing, and that it had been the means of reviving general prosperity, he proceeded to give a summary of the changes he proposed to make in the Customs tariffs and excise duties.

Sir Richard Cartwright criticised at considerable length the Finance Minister's statement. He agreed with him that time was necessary for the full development of the tendencies of the tariff, but maintained that these tendencies would prove increasingly mischievous instead of beneficial. He repudiated the charge that the late Government was accountable for the enormous deficit of 1878-79, and pointed out the dangerous ground taken by Sir Leonard Tilley in his arguments from recurring deficits such as he might himself have to encounter for years to come. The "heavy engagements" the Finance Minister complained of his own Government were entirely responsible for, and they were now reaping the fruit of their own sowing. He proceeded to analyze the Estimates for 1880-81, comparing them with those of 1878-79, and pointing out the increases in the various items. After a trenchant comparison of the various English loans, he rallied Mr. Tilley on the confusion into which he fell with respect to the calculation of interest and his explanations about other wrong estimates. He cited what he regarded as the true causes of returning prosperity ridiculed the absurd doctrine that a diminution of imports was a sign of prosperity, and quoted from a former Budget speech of Mr. Tilley's to show that he once held sounder views on this point. He discussed at some length the incidence of the tariff and its injustice to the poorer classes, and commented with caustic raillery on the Finance Minister's late "progress" from place to place in search of the "hum"

Sir Charles Tupper then occupied the floor for two hours. His speech was entirely devoted to an abusive attack upon Sir Richard Cartwright, to whom he applied the coarsest epithets and the most unparliamentary allusions.

Mr. Mackenzie rose to address the House shortly after midnight. He rebuked the Minister of Railways for his abusive attack upon the ex-Minister of Finance, saying it was more creditable for Sir Richard Cartwright to have left the Conservatives in favor of the Liberal party than like Sir Charles Tupper, who was formerly leader of the Liberal party in Nova Scotia, to have gone from light into darkness. After replying to several features of Sir Charles Tupper's speech, he dwelt on the proposition to increase by a number of millions of dollars the issue of Dominion notes, and he commented on the meagre information respecting the scheme which had been revealed to Parliament. In his opinion the natural result of protection was to injure the country generally. A striking proof of its already baneful effects was the gloomy financial statement made by the Finance Minister that there was a deficit of about two millions of dollars. Notwithstanding the series of accidents which had occurred during the past eighteen months, he believed the people as a whole would pronounce in favor of the Opposition if the opportunity were afforded them. The Minister of Railways in his speech claimed that the price of sugar was lower than in the United States, but he challenged him to make a comparison of the quotations in the New York and Canadian journals.

At this stage it was agreed that the House should adopt the resolutions pro forma, making certain changes in the Customs tariff and excise, Mr. Mackenzie to have the floor on the debate being resumed. The resolutions were passed in Committee, and concurred in by the House, which adjourned at 1.05 a. m.

The Forthcoming Elections in Britain.

Preparing for the Struggle.

The Liberal leaders met on Tuesday to decide upon the course to be adopted.

Earl Beaconsfield in a letter to the Duke of Marlborough furnishes the key note of the Conservative campaign, which is opposition to Home Rule and the maintenance of English influence in foreign affairs.

Mr. Forster, Liberal member for Bradford, has issued an electoral address condemning the foreign policy of the Government, and declaring that he is determined to do all he can to preserve union with Ireland.

In the House of Commons on Tuesday the Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to Mr. Chamberlain (Radical), said the writs for the new election would probably be issued on the 24th inst.

Mr. Shaw, head of of the Home Rulers, will at once proceed to Dublin, where a conference of Home Rulers will be held and a manifesto to the Irish constituencies issued. The first public speech of a Minister will be made on the occasion of the Southwark Conservative banquet to Mr. Edward Clark the recently elected member, on the 16th instant, when a leading Cabinet Minister, probably Mr. Cross or Sir Stafford Northcote, will be present.

The Marquis of Hartington had a long interview with Earl Granville on Tuesday.

The Markets.

MARCH, 10.

The Liverpool market was dull and prices 1d lower, while floating cargoes of wheat were steady and maize firm. The Chicago market was depressed, and sold down three cents, after which it advanced one cent. In New York the market was quiet and lower; in Montreal inactive. In Toronto the market was unsettled for wheat and flour, and buyers and sellers were wider apart than usual. 400 bushels of wheat sold at $1 25 to $1 27 for fall, and from $1 24 to $1 26 for spring; 200 bushels of barley, at 58c to 63c; 200 bushels of peas, at 66c to 66½; one load of oats at 39c; and a few bags of rye at 80c.

Changes in the Tariff.

Immediately after Sir Leonard Tilley had made his financial statement in the House on Tuesday night, the following changes in the Tariff were telegraphed to Collectors of Customs all over the Dominion, the new duties to come into force immediately. We are indebted for the following to Mr. Heffernan, the Collector of Customs for Guelph:

A duty of 25 per cent. to be collected on the following:

Artificial flowers and feathers, chromo cards and valentines, braces and combs, china and porcelain ware, silver plate glass, gloves and mitts, and all materials medicinal, malt extracts, ruled paper, watches and watch cases, slates all kinds.

A duty of thirty per cent. on the following:—Bird cages, blank books, fishing rods, milk food, collars, cuffs, fronts of all materials, trunks and valises.

An ad valorum duty on the following has been raised to fifteen per cent., while the specific duty remains the same:—Billiard tables, piano fortes, organs.

Bagatelle tables, thirty-five per cent. duty.

Books bound, fifteen per cent. instead of 24 cents per pound.

Cans containing fresh fish, one and a half cents each.

Grapes, all kinds, twenty per cent.

Fire proof paint, dry, quarter cent per pound.

Grapes, two cents per pound.

The duty on drawn boiler tubing is repealed. All wrought iron tubing, fifteen per cent., iron slabs, blooms, etc., ten per cent.

Bituminous coal, 60 per cent.

Export duty on sugar to be charged in all cases.

The explanations in regard to these changes, made by the Finance Minister, are as follows:—The amendments that I desire now to submit to the consideration of the House will show that there are no radical changes whatever to submit for the approval of Parliament. There are many of them framed rather with the view of removing the difficulties in the working of the tariff than as changes of policy. In the working out of the propositions of last session, there necessarily was a good deal of precaution. In the first place, it is proposed, as it was found that the duty on demijohns, when they were brought into the country, should be charged ten per cent. ad valorem instead of twenty per cent.; asphaltum, used in making varnish, ten per cent. ad valorem instead of twenty per cent; bagatelle tables or boards, with cues and balls, thirty-five per cent. ad valorem; billiard tables raised from ten to fifteen per cent. ad valorem; the same will apply to pianos; bird cages of all kinds will come under uniform duty, no matter of what material they are composed. Shoemakers' ink is placed at twenty-five per cent. Books are changed from six cents per pound to fifteen per cent, in consideration of our hon. friends opposite, who advocated that course last session. After a year's experience by gentlemen interested in the trade, it is proposed to change the duty from six cents per pound to fifteen per cent,, including British copyright works. Account books, twenty-five per cent, instead of thirty; valentines, chromos, and cards generally, a specific duty of thirty per cent. They were classed under different heads before. Some paid twenty some twenty-five, and some thirty per cent., and it led to confusion in collecting the duty. Braces and suspenders were placed on the 25 per cent. list, they having previously been charged different rates, according to the materials of which they were made. Cans containing fish, under the Washington treaty, would be charged 1½ cent per quart can, and the same price for each additional quart. This duty was imposed in order to counteract the effect of the American action in imposing a duty of that amount. China and porcelain was increased from 20 to 25 per cent. Combs were placed at 25 per cent, instead of a duty being charged on materials. Crapes were placed at 20 per cent; fishing rods at 30 per cent; fire proof paint, ¼ cent per pound; flagstones, dressed, $1.50 per ton. Artificial flowers were reduced from 30 to 25 per cent. Grapes were increased from 1 to 2 per cent; mattresses of all kinds, 35 per cent. Silvered, plated glass, imitation porcelain, shades, decanters, &c., 25 per cent.; gloves and mits 25 per cent; wrought iron tubing plain, not threaded, coupled or otherwise manufactured 15 per cent; slabs, bloomes, loops or billets were reduced from 12½ to 10 per cent. Liquorice, was placed at 20 per cent; when in extract or confection, 1 cent per pound and 20 per cent. Malt, extract of, or for medical purposes, 25 per cent.; potted poultry and game, 20 per cent.; milk food, 30 per cent. The duty on cabinet organs was increased from 10 to 15 per cent. Bismuth was placed on the free list. Ruled paper was charged 25 per cent. All collars would be charged 30 per cent. On pianofortes the duty was increased from 10 to 15 per cent. Quicksilver was placed at 10 per cent. In regard to the duties on champagne, it would be provided that the quarts and pints in each case should be old wine measure. Steel and manafactures thereof were placed on the free list for another year. In regard to sugars, syrups and mollasses, it was provided that the duty should be charged on fair market value, including the export duty or other Government tax. Trunks were increased from 25 to 30 per cent. The duty on cigars and cigarettes was increased from 50 to 60 per cent. Tomatoes in cans were placed at two cents per pound. Watch actions, movements and cases were made 20 per cent. Hubs and spokes were reduced from 20 to 15 per cent

It is proposed that ten cents additional per short ton shall be charged on bituminous coal. That will make the duty sixty cents per short ton. Then slates of all kinds and manufactures of slate not otherwise specified are made twenty-five per cent. ad valorem. Wool, viz.: Leicester, Cotswold, Lincolnshire, and combing wools, such as are found in Canada, are to be placed on the tariff at three cents per pound. The following is the free list:— Sulphate of ammonia; horses, cattle, sheep and swine for the improvement of stock. We take bismuth; cinnabar; machinery of worsted and cotton mills until October 1st, 1880; muriate of potash crude; settlers' effects, under regulations to be made by the Minister of Customs; live stock when imported into Manitoba or the North-West Territory by intending settlers, until otherwise ordered by the Governor-in-Council; steel till 1882; paintings or water-colours: quarterly, monthly and semi-monthly magazines, unbound; wool and animals not elsewhere specified, and place them on the free list.

Several resolutions were also moved with respect to changes in the Inland Revenue, but they have not yet been adopted.

The Approaching General Election in Great Britain.

Full Text of Lord Beaconsfield's Letter to the Duke of Marlborough.

LONDON, March 9.—The following is the full text of Beaconsfield letter to the Duke of Marlborough:—

"Measures respecting the state of Ireland, which Her Majesty's Government have so anxiously considered with Your Excellency, and in which they were much aided by your advice and authority, are now about to be submitted for royal assent, and it is at length in the power of the Ministers to advise the Queen to recur to the sense of her people. The arts of agitators, which represented that England, instead of being a generous and sympathizing friend, was indifferent to the dangers and sufferings of Ireland, has been defeated by measures to once Liberal and prudent, which Parliament almost unanimously sanctioned. During the six years of the present Administration the improvement of Ireland and the content of our fellow countrymen of that island have much occupied the care of the Ministry, and they may remember with satisfaction that in this period they have solved one of the most difficult problems connected with its government and people by establishing a system of public education open to all classes and all creeds. Nevertheless, a danger in its ultimate results scarcely less disastrous than pestilence or famine now engages Your Excellency's anxious attention and distracts that country. A portion of the population is attempting to sever the constitutional tie which unites it to Great Britain and that bond which has favored the power and prosperity of both. It is to be hoped that all men of light and learning will resist this destructive doctrine. The strength of the nation depends on unity of feeling, which should pervade the United Kingdom and its widespread dependencies. The first duty of an English Minister should be to consolidate the co-operation which renders irresistable a community educated as our own, in equal love of liberty and law, and yet there are some who challenge the expediency of the Imperial character of this realm. Having attempted and failed to enfeeble our colonies by their policy of decomposition, they may perhaps now recognise in the disintegration of the United Kingdom a mode which will not only accomplish but precipitate their purpose. The immediate dissolution of Parliament will afford an opportunity to the nation to decide upon the course which will materially influence its future fortunes and shape its destiny. Rarely in this country has there been occasion more critical. The power of England and the peace of Europe will largely depend on the verdict of the country. Her Majesty's present Ministers have hitherto been enabled to secure the peace so necessary to the welfare of all civilized countries and so peculiarly an interest of our own, but this ineffable blessing cannot be obtained by a passive principle of non-interference. Peace rests on the presence not to say the ascendancy of England in the Councils or Europe. Even at this moment the doubt supposed to be inseparable from popular election, if it does not diminish, certainly arrests her influence, and is the main reason for not allaying an appeal to the national voice. Whatever may be its consequence to Her Majesty's present advisers, may it return to Westminster a Parliament not unworthy of the power of England and resolved to maintain it.

(Signed) BEACONSFIELD.

Lord Beaconsfield's letter to the Duke of Marlborough furnishes the keynote of the Conservative campaign, which is, opposition to Home Rule and the maintenance of English influence in foreign affairs.

The Times thinks Lord Beaconsfield's letter ingenious and its language occasionally a little startling.

Beaconsfield's statements are a plain declaration that there are dangers in the present position of affairs in Europe, which can only be averted by the due exercise of English influence. The announcement of the dissolution of Parliament was such a surprise that the rush of members to the telegraph office in the House in a few seconds blocked it up and left Ministers, ex-Ministers and members struggling to get off messages to friends in the country. Between five and six o'clock 400 messages were handed in and the strain on the clerks was not removed before nine. There has been no such pressure since the night when Lord Derby and Lord Carnarvon resigned.

The Times says the country has a right to know what position the Liberal statesmen intend to assume in view of such dangers and duties as Beaconsfield refers to. The whole result of the coming struggle will, in all probability, depend on the manner in which these questions are answered within the next few days. The public will not prejudge the case until both sides have been heard. The issue of the election will depend on the verdict of the mass of impartial opinion. At present, on the question of foreign policy, the presumption is decidedly in favor of the Ministry, and it is upon the foreign policy the battle will be fought. But the Liberals have yet to declare themselves, and the country will scan their utterances without prejudice.

The American Marine.

The continued briskness of the transatlantic shipping trade brings to our harbor steamers from almost every maritime country of Europe. British steamers largely predominate, but French, Spanish, Belgian, Dutch, German and Danish flags are not an uncommon sight. In fact the only flag that is a novelty on sea-going steamers in this chief American seaport is the American flag. It is seen only on coasting craft and on the vessels that run to Havana, Vera Cruz and Aspinwall. For the past fifteen years Congress has debated off and on, the question of how to obtain a portion of the transatlantic steam carrying trade for American ships, but nothing has come of all the talk and of all the schemes devised for that purpose. Save the four vessels plying between Philadelphia and Liverpool, which are sustained by the Pennsylvania Railroad, no steamer flying the Stars and Stripes makes regular trips across the Atlantic. When a great commercial nation like the United States has to call on the ships not only of its rivals, but of nearly all the little countries of Europe, to carry its products to market, common sense shows that there is something wrong in the affairs of that nation. Our sailors are the best in the world, our mechanics the most skilful, our merchants the most enterprising, and yet we are obliged to ship our products abroad under every flag but our own. The topic is an old one, we are well aware, but it is of such importance that it ought to be kept before the public mind until the cause of this great. National weakness is understood and the remedy applied.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Great Cause of

HUMAN MISERY

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

CHAPTER XXXI.

A GLOOMY PROSPECT—THE STRANGER IN THE CHURCHYARD—JACK BORLAND INCOGNITO.

"Guid save us a'," ejaculated David. "Ye hae gi'en me an awfu' fricht."

"I am sorry I startled you," returned the stranger. "I did not intend it."

"May be no, sir, but ye see this is sic an eerie place, and I didna ken anybody was in the kirkyaird."

"I saw the gate open and came in, and perceiving you at work in this burial-place I took the liberty of accosting you."

"It's nae liberty ava, sir," remarked David, who was now eyeing the speaker with undisguised curiosity. He was a man seemingly a little over forty years of age, full sized without being conspicuously tall, was broad chested, had well-developed limbs, a frank pleasant face, and spoke in clear, manly tones. As David had never seen him before, he wondered who he might be and how he had found his way to that secluded spot. As his appearance and manner of address was highly prepossessing, David hastened to repeat the assurance that the stranger had taken no liberty whatever in claiming his notice.

"But," he added, "bein' a stranger, as I see ye are, it's queer hoo ye reached this oot o' the way spot, for there's nae road this way but to the kirkyard itsel'."

"Yes, I am a stranger here," returned the other slowly, in tones which had a tinge of sadness, "but the quietness and sweet repose of the place attracted me. The spot and its surroundings are very suitable for its use as the last resting-place of man."

"Oh, aye, it's a bonny little kirk-yard," responded David, "and lies very quiet among the woods. Maist folk think it eerie, and very few think o' visitin' it, except to attend a funeral."

"You are the person who takes charge of it, I suppose?"

"Me! oh, no; and for that matter there's naebody tak's charge o' it, as ye may see by the lang grass and nettles, and the dockens that cover maist feck o' the graves. Na, na, sir, I hae nae charge o' the place."

"I beg your pardon," said the stranger courteously. "I concluded so from seeing you at work in this aisle, which is certainly kept in very fine order, and is in striking contrast to the rest of the place."

"Weel, I might tak' that as a compliment to mysel', seein' that nae hand but mine has touched it for mony a year. But as ye may see, sir, by readin' the stanes, it is the burial-place o' the Bruces o' Marston Grange, and I hae been head gardener there for—let me see, aye, for twal year come Whitsunday."

"Ah!" said the stranger, suddenly regarding David with special attention, "you are the Grange gardener are you? That explains the neatness and beauty of this burial-place."

And as he spoke he continued to fix his eye on David's face with a strange and strongly interested expression, by which the latter was somewhat disconcerted. To escape the steady eager gaze he went on with his raking, merely observing that "nae true gardener likit to see ony place ill keepit." Then with a sigh he added—

"But I was just thinkin', sir, when ye first spoke that this place is very likely to get sair oot o' order sune for there will be naebody to look after it after Whitsunday."

"Are you leaving the Grange at the term?" was the quickly asked question.

"'Deed am I. And a sair heart I'll hae when I gang."

"Then why do you go? Surely such an old and faithful servant is not discharged?"

"Discharged, sir, atweel no. I'm no discharged, for though I say it mysel', they ken weel aneuch that a better gardener than I am couldna be easy got. It's my ain will to gang, and muckle fleechin' the factor had to get me to stay. But I wadna listen to him."

"That is strange. You say you are very sorry to leave, yet tell me that you go of your own free will."

"Just so, sir. You see the estate is to be selt in a week or twa, and I canna bide the man that is to buy it."

"Sold in a week or two?" returned the stranger, breathlessly, his eye kindling with peculiar animation. "Did you say in a week or two?"

"The eighteenth o' this month is the precease date."

"Why is the owner selling it?" was the next question, put in a tone which evinced singular interest on the part of a stranger.

"Because he canna better dae. Ah, it is a waefu' story, sir, and I dinna care to speak o't. But as ye may hear it frae ithers there's nae reason why I shouldna. Maister Bruce, wha's name ye see on that stane, dee'd at the date mentioned, and left a son and a dauchter baith o' them under age. When young Maister Orwell cam' o' age he got a' the pooer into his own hands, and proved our young to wield it."

"He went to the bad, did he?"

"In a sense he did, in anither the didna. A finer lad never breathed than Maister Orwell. He was frank, generous, guid-heartit, and everything that was honourable, but he was easily influenced, and gangin' abroad got into the hands o' sharpers, wha ruined him. He mortgaged the estate for maist its haill value, and it is the man that lent the money on it that is bringing it to a sale."

"Ah, that is truly a sad story," responded the stranger. "If the young man be such as described he must now bitterly repent his folly."

"Ay, that he dis, sir, I dinna doot. He has ta'en it sae sair to heart that he hasna been able to show himsel' here since, and naebody ken's aught aboot him."

"Of course his conduct is spoken of with universal reprobation?"

"There ye are wrang, sir. He is mair pitied than blamed, and it is firmly believed that his ruin was planned and effected by—by them that soucht to benefit themselves. But ane isna safe to speak o' that unless there's proof to make the charge guid. Only I want ye to understand, sir, that Maister Orwell wasna the prodigal and spendthrift that the loss of the estate wad imply. And if the puir chield had the courage to come back he wadna meet the scaith and scorn that he evidently dreads."

"Does no one know where he has gone to?" asked the stranger, with a sideloug look.

"No, sir; naebody kens that. Indeed, it is believed noo that he isna to the fore, and a sair heart that has gi'em to some folk here that dearly lo'ed him. I'm the only ane that lives in hope o' his backcomin'."

"Oh, you believe in that do you?"

"Firmly. But, alack, there will be nae hame for him to come to, for the estate o' his ancestors wull hae passed into alien hands, and he'll be like a stranger in the place o' his birth. Ye can fancy, sir, what a feelin' that will be."

"I can fancy it," replied the other, with mournful emphasis, as if the words were forced from his lips by personal experience, for as he uttered them he heaved a sigh, and a deep shadow came upon his manly face.

As David's task was now finished, he gathered up his tools and prepared to leave the aisle.

"There," he lowly murmured, as reverently he lifted the bonnet from his grey locks. "This is likely to be the last time I shall work among their graves. Fareweel, tha dust of my honoured maister and mistress — fareweel the floo'ry sod that covers the grave o' bonny Miss May, muckle, muckle it wid grieve ye, could ye ken the misfortune that has come upon yer hoose and yer name. But the kind oblivion of death spares ye that sorrow, and when the dust o' strangers and aliens comes to mingle wi' yer ain ye'll no be conscious o' the profanation. Ay—ay—there I hae locked the yett for the last time, and noo, sir, I'll hae to bid ye guid day."

"Nay—I am going too," said the other, "and I suppose our roads lie together for some distance."

As the stranger spoke, he cast his eyes over the little churchyard, and noticed, on the other side of the Bruce aisle, a grave the appearance of which formed a marked contrast to the rest. Its surface was smooth and level, not formed of an unsightly mound like all beside. The grass upon it was also finely shorn, and spring flowers bloomed brightly in the narrow weedless border by which it was surrounded.

"Yonder is another well tended grave," he remarked. "Nothing like it outside the aisle. Belongs to some body of consequence, I presume."

"That," replied David, "is the grave o' ane that didna leave his equal in the parish o' Cairntree. His untimely death opened my way to the Grange garden. He was my predecessor there, sir; Adam Borland was his name, and if ever there was a true Christian on earth he was ane. Ay, gang forrit, sir, and read the stane, it will tell ye something o' his virtues."

With hurried steps the stranger approached the grave, the name of whose tenant he had just heard. He had begun to move towards it ere David had done speaking, and if the latter had not been specially occupied at the moment by the locking of the gate he must have observed the violent start given by his listener, the half-suppressed exclamation he uttered, and the impulsive manner in which he moved away in the direction of the tomb.

When the rusty lock was got into its place David followed and found the stranger standing motionless at the foot of the oblong space gazing fixedly at the inscription on the neatly executed stone which fronted him. The stone itself was far superior in quality and dressing to the rude slabs with which the churchyard abounded, and bore the following in black letters, on a white marble tablet, inlaid upon its front:—

ERECTED BY MR. AND MRS. BRUCE
OF
MARSTON GRANGE.
To the memory of their faithful Servant
ADAM BORLAND,
Who heroically sacrificed his life to save theirs.
After two days suffering
He entered into Rest
July 16th, 1787, Aged 35 years.

"It was a carriage accident," whispered David, and if Adam hadna held the horse back by main force till Mr. Bruce and the family had got oot they wad a' hae been sent ower a precipice and killed. He saved them, but lost his ain life. Was it no a noble sacrifice he made, sir."

The stranger answered not, but his strong frame shook as with inward emotion.

"I'm sayin, sir, was it no grand and brave o' him?"

"It was—it was, responded the other in a husky tone. "And who—who tends his grave with such loving care?"

"Partly me, sir, and partly his dauchter, puir thing. She was but a bairn at the time, she is now a bonny young lassie, and as guid as she is bonny. There's no a week passes that she disna come to pick the weeds and water the flooers. I maist expected her this afternoon, but it's oftenest on the Saturday's, when she has maist time; and noo, sir, I maun be gane, for its warin' to sundoon, and I hae the frames to cover."

David turned and walked in the direction of the gate, expecting that the stranger was following, but when he looked back he saw still standing motionless with bent head over Adam's grave.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

KING OF THE DRY GOODS

THE LION ALWAYS AHEAD.

THE FIRST TO OPEN

The Boom for the Spring

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly, These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of

NEW DRY GOODS

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

STAPLES.

Shipments of 2 and 3 ply Wool, Tapestry and fine Brussels Carpets.

550 Pieces Fancy Prints.

75 Bales Grey Cottons.

15 Cases Bleached Cottons.

195 Pieces Linen Hollands.

10 Cases Plain and Fancy Ducks.

350 Pieces Wool Tweeds

300 Pieces Cotton Shirtings

125 Pieces Blue and Brown Denims

Bales of Tablings, Towellings, Furnishings, &c.

Dress and Fancy Goods.

Hundreds of pieces of new and stylish Dress Goods.

125 pieces Black Lustres.

Large quantity Black Cashmeres.

Magnificent lot of Colored and Fancy Silks.

Silk Fringes, Passamenteries, and Buttons, &c

Our Silk and Dress Department

has never been so lively. We are at present engaged getting up several magnificent costumes to go to Winnipeg, while orders from all parts of the country continually reach us. We have had the honor of furnishing garments for ladies at state receptions at Ottawa and Toronto, and many are the written testimonials of their approval and satisfaction.

AS INTIMATED IN MONDAY'S COLUMNS WE HAVE RENEWED OUR partnership for another term. All are aware we have cleared out the most of our large stock, thus enabling us to buy a large stock for the spring trade. We have purchased some of the finest and cheapest goods ever brought into Guelph, and to-morrow (Saturday) we will show an assortment of Dry Goods which every lady in this City and Country should see. The great attraction for this season of the year will be our New Prints. In this department we excel, and never before have such beautiful patterns been shown in Guelph. We have added a new rule to our business regulations:—all goods marked in plain figures. Look out for the windows.

DEMPSEY & CHAMBERLAIN.

MORE GOOD SAWING.—Our Puslinch correspondent sends the following:—"Mr. John E. McPherson, Crieff, says:—If the Peacock gang did big sawing, what do they think of two young fellows at Crief sawing a solid maple log 22 inches through in 44 seconds. This they can repeat and are ready to saw against any two of the Peacock men either by the hour, cord, or cut, when and where they please and for as large a sum as they can afford to lose." Our correspondent from Erin sends the following:—"Isaac and John Teeter sawed, on their father's farm, 11 con., lot 9, Erin, on the 4th of Feb. last, 12 cords of beech and maple wood in eight hours and a half. The saw used was the "Eclipse," purchased at D. & J. Wood's hardware store, Erin village. Their father split and piled the wood next day. This, we think, eclipses all the feats of sawing yet noticed."

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

FATAL RESULT.—The Clifton Review says:—At a charivari at Point Abino, one night last week, a young man by the name of Michael drank three cups of whiskey and immediately fell to the ground. His comrades carried him to Mr. Isaac Shisler's house, and before morning he was dead.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

The Presbytery of Toronto has appointed a committee to prepare petitions to be presented to Parliament praying that the bill now before the House of Commons legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister be not passed.

Owen Sound is to be made a Port of inspection.

Maine News.

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Special Business Notices.

A new line of birthday cards opened up at Day's bookstore. Every one can be suited in style and price.

The Family Herald and other English magazines for February, are received at Day's bookstore.

A fresh assortment received of the celebrated mottled granite ware, lamps, bird cages, and other goods, at the lowest possible prices, at John M. Bond & Co's.

IN no establishment are the different departments so full and complete as at the Lion. The Lion's trade is not of the spasmodic kind, but represents a constant stream of business. Read the Lion's new advertisement.

TAKE THEM IN!—it is utterly useless for any of our opponents to imitate our style of exhibiting embroideries. Ladies cannot be induced to buy inferior stuff by any such futile attempts, not as long as they can spell F a s h i o n a b l e W e s t E n d.
A. O. BUCHAM

NO HUMBUG.—Otwell's celebrated mixed and mustard pickles are now used by nearly every family. The reason is that they are superior to any bottled pickles in the market and only one-half the price. They are sold at 15c per pint and 30c per quart, imperial measure; 3 lb. cans Tomatoes at 20c; 2 lb. sweet corn at 20c a can. R. MURRAY, Sole Agent.

THURSDAY EVNG, MARCH 11, 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Italy is now importing foreign cereals at the rate of three hundred and sixty thousand per year, its own agricultural products being insufficient.

The Mansion House Relief Committee says the munificent contributions continue. Received on Tuesday:—£2,000 from Brisbane; £1,500 from Adelaide, and £1,000 from Sydney, Australia; £300 from Nelson, New Zealand; £600 from Launceston. Had it not been for the Australian contributions the operations of the Committee would long since have ceased.

Twenty-four persons were burned to death and twenty-nine injured during a great fire at Moscow on Monday.

The Austrian Minister of Finance has resigned.

A fire of accidental origin has destroyed three-fourths of the Herzegovinian town of Neyesinjo.

The Duchess of Marlborough lately received the following: Lee, Kent—Madam: I send you a sovereign for those poor, starving people in Ireland. It is my pocket money, and my brother's and Violet's, and I hope it will give two or three of them a good tuck out (an English schoolboy's expression.) From George Francis Pittar. P. S—I think it would be best to buy Bath buns, but Vyvyan thinks chocolate."

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

From Toronto.

TORONTO, March 11.—Alice Miller, who was found guilty of being the keeper of a house of ill-fame was to-day fined $100 and cost.

A young man named Bennett, an engineer, was before the court this morning charged with wife desertion.

A painter, named Wm. Gibb, was fined two dollars and costs at the police court this morning for working at his trade on the last Sabbath.

From Uxbridge.

UXBRIDGE, Ont., March 11.—Prospects for the fall wheat are very poor in the townships in this district, the growth being completely killed out in some places, and nowhere looking promising.

From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 11.—The Railway Canals and Telegraph Committee met this morning and passed the Bill authorizing the establishment of a superannuation provident insurance fund of the Great Western Railway Co. The Bill respecting the Niagara and Grand Island bridge was also passed.

The Gatineau Fires.

Father Faure, one of the Gatineau incendiaries, has been admitted to bail, himself in $2,000, and two sureties in $1,000 each.

Better than Gold.

The grand climax of success is at last achieved. The poor rejoice, the sick arise and walk, the rich bask in the golden sunshine of perfect health. The physical miseries of the human frame need no longer be endured. DR. KING'S CALIFORNIA GOLDEN COMPOUND, for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Sick Headache, Coming up of Food, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Biliousness, General Debility, Drowsiness and Low Spirits. This wonderful remedy will positively cure, and that where every remedy has failed. To prove that this wonderful remedy will do all that we claim for it you are presented with a trial bottle free of cost, by which you will readily perceive its wonderful curative qualities, and which show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by A. B. Petrie, Guelph.

Throw Physic to the Dogs.

When Mr. and Mrs. Macbeth committed the little indiscretion about King Duncan, and the lady took to walking in her sleep, it is very doubtful that Mr. Macbeth would have exclaimed "Throw Physic to the Dogs," if the attendant had presented him with a bottle of SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. It is one of the best medicines extant, and as the old prejudices against the nauseating properties of castor oil are done away with, by the fact that the palatable castor oil is true to the name and is really agreeable to the taste. Price 25 cents.

TAKE THEM IN!—It is utterly useless for any of our opponents to imitate our style of exhibiting embroideries. Ladies cannot be induced to buy inferior stuff by any such futile attempts, not as long as they can spell FashionableWestEnd. A. O. BUCHAM

NO HUMBUG.—Otwell's celebrated mixed and mustard pickles are now used by nearly every family. The reason is that they are superior to any bottled pickles in the market and only one-half the price. They are sold at 15c per pint and 30c per quart, imperial measure; 6 lb. cans Tomatoes at 20c; 2 lb. sweet corn at 20c a can. R. MURRAY, Sole Agent.

Local News.

REMEMBER Mr. Spence's lecture this evening in the Y. M. C. A. Rooms.

THE damage done to the police cells by "Chris" Merlihan is being repaired to-day.

PETER GREEN, who appeared at Police Court yesterday for drunkenness was sentenced to 15 day in gaol.

THE court room is much improved since the new matting was placed on the floor and the repairs made to the ceiling.

REMEMBER the entertainment in the Rev. Mr. Harris' church this evening. The programme prepared is a first class one.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—Fresh to brisk winds, cloudy, mild weather, with snow, followed to-morrow by westerly to northerly winds and clearing and colder weather.

SEVERAL icemen from Stratford are cutting ice at Acton and Rockwood. If the present spell of frost continues there will be good ice of fair thickness on the Guelph dams.

NO. 2 COMPANY.—It is particularly requested that every member of No. 2 Company will be on hand at the drill shed this evening, as important matters in connection with the Company will be introduced.

FIGHTING.—Martin Cantwell and Theodore Cross were fined by the Police Magistrate to-day (Thursday) for fighting at Waite's Hotel on Wednesday of last week. Cantwell was fined $3 and costs and Cross $1 and costs.

IRISH RELIEF.—Ald. Coffee and Mr. Laing have increased their collection in St. Patrick's Ward for the Irish Relief Fund from $112, reported a few days ago to $175. They are still canvassing and expect to raise $200 before they quit.

ST. JAMES' WARD ELECTION.—The election of alderman in St. James Ward to fill the place of Ald. Grange at the Council Board, is in progress to-day. There is little or no excitement in consequence of the election. The polling-places are the old Central and South Ward School houses.

THE ICE HARVEST.—Mr. Morris received a car load of ice by the G. T. R. from Rockwood yesterday. Mr. John Hewer, who is cutting ice at Rockwood, is making arrangements to supply a Brantford firm. There has been no ice cut in that city this winter.

CURLING.—The curling contest for the Gow cup is rapidly drawing to a close and will be completed in a day or two if the hard weather continues. In a game for the cup yesterday afternoon Thos. Dobbie defeated C. F. Leonard by 26 to 11 shots, and in a game this morning Thos. Dobbie defeated H. Lockwood by 27 to 11 shots.

LECTURE ON JAPAN.—In the Dublin street church, this evening, the Rev. George Cochran, of Toronto, late missionary in Japan, will deliver his celebrated lecture on that interesting country. In addition to the lecture there will be on exhibition a large collection of views and curiosities of rare interest. The choir will be present and give several choice anthems.

EXPECTED IMMIGRATION.—Mr. Gercie, a prominent merchant of Manitoba, and well known in Guelph, has just returned to Canada from a business visit to Glasgow. He reports that the number of tenant farmers who are likely to come to Canada in the spring will be very large. The reports of the delegates sent out last year have given every satisfaction, and made a deep impression on all parts of Scotland.

TRESSPASS.—Thomas Eagle was charged at the Police Court to-day by Jas. Graham with trespassing on his land, in Puslinch. The parties own farms adjoining each other in Puslinch, near Rockwood. Some eight years ago Graham bought his farm and Eagle now contends that the line fence dividing the two farms encloses part of his land with Eagle's farm. The Magistrate had no jurisdiction to decide in the case.

THE Speers Concert Company were greeted with a house last night that completely discouraged them, and as a consequence those who paid, had their money refunded. That the company did wrong in acting in this manner was remarked by several; they might have gone through their programme, and if it had been of the superior order that many thought it was to have been, they would have been greeted with a better house on their next appearance. As it is their chances are slim if they intend to perform before a Guelph audience at a future time.

BRONZE MEDALS.—Mr. Thomas Scott Elliott, yesterday received the medal awarded for the best washing machine exhibited at the Paris Exhibition in 1878. It is of bronze material and measures two and three quarters inches in diameter. On one side appears the figure of the Goddess of Liberty, which is surrounded by the words "Republique Francaise." On the obverse side there is a symbolical figure. In the centre is the name T. Elliott. The figure is encircled by the words "International Exhibition of 1878." Messrs. Hamilton, Dunlop & Co., of the Pelee Island vineyard, who have their warehouses at Brantford and Montreal, have received a similar medal for their wines. The workmanship on the medals is very superior, and they are handsome trophies.

CHASE'S CARRIAGE WORKS.—Our advertising columns to-day contain a mammoth adv't of Chase's Carriage Works, on Woolwich street, opposite the Wellington Hotel. The proprietor has a large stock of family phætons and carriages, single and double buggies, democrats, etc. Mr. Chase's works are well known for the excellent stock kept, and also for the fine finish of the work. Only first class men are kept, and repairs of all kinds in his line are attended to specially by a staff of workmen employed for the purpose.

DRUNKENNESS.—The following prisoners appeared before the Police Magistrate to-day charged with drunkenness:—Martha Laycock, arrested on Neeve street yesterday afternoon in a beastly state of intoxication, was fined $1 and costs or 10 days imprisonment. Matthew Squires was found by P. C. Dooley near the skating rink last night in a stupified condition. As he is not in the habit of drinking, and as the effects of his debauch have not left him, it is thought the liquor he took must have been drugged. He pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and costs or 10 days. Jerry Connors was charged with drunkenness. He explained that he had not been drunk, and accounted for having a black eye by a kick received during the night from a prisoner with whom he slept in the cells. He was sent to gaol for 21 days.

DEATH OF MR. WM. TAWSE.—Mr. Wm. Tawse, dealer in boots and shoes, died at the house of his family, Mont street, on Wednesday morning. About a year ago Mr. Tawse had a severe attack of congestion of the lungs, from which he never fully recovered. About the time of this illness an internal tumour was discovered, and this prevented him from leaving the house and was the principal cause of his death. Deceased was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in 1822, and at the time of his death was 58 years of age. He came to Guelph in 1869 from Georgetown, and soon built up a large business, which is at present under the management of his sons. By his straightforward dealing he won many friends who mourn his demise.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 10.

A motion was passed empowering the Joint Printing Committee to take evidence on oath in the "Printing Scandal" investigation.

An important announcement by Sir Leonard Tilley, in reply to a question by Mr. Farrow, was that arrangements were being made for the issue of $150,000 in silver coinage of five and ten cent denomination. The proportion of twenty-five cents in fractional currency now in circulation amounts to $116,940, in the hands of the Receiver-General $43,091, and in the vaults $172,500.

The annual debate on the suitability of the Northern Light as a means of maintaining winter traffic between the island of Prince Edward and the mainland came up.

Mr. Haggart moved the second reading of the Bill relating to the Credit Valley Railroad Company. Messrs. Hector Cameron and Caron addressed the House against the spirit of the Bill, while Messrs. Oliver, Macdougall, and Holton spoke in favour of referring the Bill to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

Mr. Boultbee, the member for East York, somewhat astonished the House by throwing cold water on the measure and ignoring the wishes and interests of his constituents, especially those of Don Mount, to whose votes he particularly owes his election.

Sir John Macdonald claimed that in the Committee on Railways all objection to the measure should be taken, and not on the second reading. The Bill was read.

The House went into Committee on the Bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister, and on motion of Mr. Mills the proviso was expunged, and the words "that such marriage shall be legal," retained. A further amendment was offered by Mr. Girouard, making the operation of the Bill retroactive in certain cases under specified conditions, but providing that injustice shall not be done to the children who may have previously acquired property by virtue of their being the issue of the first marriage. The amendments were adopted in Committee, but the concurrence by the House postponed for a week to enable the Bill to be printed, and those opposed to the change in the law an opportunity of expressing that opposition.

An anonymous citizen of New York writes to the Herald offering to supply one-tourth of a cargo for a vessel which the Government proposes to send to Ireland. The Herald offers to supply another fourth.

News received from the North-West intimates that the Indian who murdered policeman Grayburn, is now known, and that the Mounted Police will shortly be able to accomplish his arrest.

Returns from nearly three hundred points in the west in regard to the wheat crop indicate almost uniformly a favourable condition and flattering prospects.

The Perth Assizes lasted about two hours on Monday.

In the meantime the child was unable to swallow any food, and the most serious apprehensions were felt as to the result.

Agricultural College.

Meeting of the Agricultural, Industrial and Experimental Union.

The first annual meeting of the Agricultural, Industrial and Experimental Union in connection with the Agricultural College, was held in the lecture room on Wednesday evening. The Union is composed of the officers of the College and present and ex-students, and its objects are to bring those who have attended the College in previous years together again to learn the results of experiments they have made in the farm and garden, or other information which may tend to the advancement of agriculture. The lecture room was well filled, there being present besides the present students the following ex-students:—Messrs. Robinson, Middlemarch, Fleming, Galt; Ottey, Mitchell; Chase, Sparta; Gillespie, North Gwillimbury; Jopling, Perth; Fyfe, Guelph Township; Naismith, Grey; Farlinger, Quebec Province; Nicol, Kingston; Randall, Newmarket; Gow, Guelph. The President, Mr. Wm. Brown, occupied the chair.

The first business was the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows:—President, Mr. Brown; Vice President, Mr. Ford; Recording Secretary, Mr. Randall; Corresponding Secretary, Mr. Howitt, Treasurer, Mr. A Nicol; Editor, Mr. J. G. Ross.

The following were appointed to act with officers of the Society as an Executive Committee:—Messrs. Dickenson, Chipman, Motherwell, Leisk, Milne.

Letters were read from James Gardiner, Ireland; Bruce A. Lawson, Northwest Territory; James T. Barclay, Morris, Manitoba, and Wm. Stewart, Hornby, Huron, who are ex-students. These letters dealt with the way in which the writers were conducting their farms, and with what measure of success, and contained their varied observations about agriculture. They were interesting, particularly Mr. Stewart's, which set forth the opposition the College met with from many farmers in Huron county and showed that the students after leaving the College were closely watched by those who wanted to see how they had benefited by attending it.

Some interesting addresses were afterwards delivered by a few of the ex and resident students who gave full information as to the kind of farming carried on in the various sections in which they lived, statistics as to the amount of butter and cheese shipped, opinions as to the best methods of fattening cattle, etc.

One opinion suggested by Mr. Robinson, of Middlemarch, for fattening cattle, proved of more than ordinary interest. He stated that in the district whence he came farmers bought cattle in the spring and turned them out to fatten on the green pasture. This was found to be more profitable than stall fattening, as the cattle could be bought cheaply in March and sold to better advantage in August than in the spring. Considerable discussion took place on this point.

At 10:30 the Union adjourned till 9 the following morning.

H. M. S. Parliament.

Speaking of the first appearance of the McDowell Company in Toronto in the above piece, the Telegram says:—There was a crowded house at the opening of "H. M. S. Parliament," at the Grand last night, when the McDowell Company appeared to good advantage. The play is a Canadian political adaptation of "H. M. S. Pinafore," written by Mr. W.H. Fuller, of Ottawa, and is very cleverly done, abounding in political hits at both parties. The character of Captain McA. (Sir John), Sir Samuel Sillery (Sir S. Tilley) and Alexander McDeadeye (Mr. Mackenzie) were the best, both in point of resemblance, in the make-up and as regards the caricaturing of the peculiarities of the gentlemen personated. After these came several other leading politicians, who were almost life-like, and who contributed greatly to the success of the piece as a skit upon both parties. The Grit and Tory proclivities of the audience were made plain by the applause which followed as a Grit or Tory head was hit, while the N. P. was subject to no end of cuffs and slaps. The hits are all given in such a good natured way that the politicians who are represented could see themselves without taking offence, while the ludicrous position in which they are occasionally placed and the breakdowns which they indulge in are too funny for anything. The senators are dressed up as old women, and are about as useful in the play as the real Simon Pures are necessary to the country. Mrs. Butterbun added much to the success of the play by her vivacity, or rather by his vivacity, for Mrs. Butterbun is a man. The characters were well distributed, and the play ran very smoothly. The piece is very amusing and keeps the audience in the best of humour, which is after all the best proof of its success.

The play will be performed by the Company in Guelph, on Monday night.

The Quebec Superior Court has dismissed the petition against the return of Hon. F. Langelier. There is now no doubt that the prosecution was vexatious in the extreme. The proceedings were evidently only taken to embarrass Mr. Joly and his followers at a time when both parties were very evenly balanced.

The report of the Department of Inland Revenue on the adulteration of food, just received, shows that during the year 896 samples have been analyzed, of which 235 or a little more than 26 per cent. were adulterated and 42 returned as doubtful. Compared with previous years there is a perceptible improvement. In 1876 the percentage of adulteration was 51.66 per cent., in 1879 it had fallen to 26.22 per cent.

Changes in the Inland Revenue Regulations.

The following are the proposals made by the Finance Minister at the close of his budget speech on Tuesday night, and which will doubtless be adopted by the House:—

1. That any party in whose favour a license is granted to have and use a chemical still shall upon receiving the said license pay to the Collector of Inland Revenue the sum of ten dollars.

2. That any person in whose favour a license for manufacturing tobacco, wholly or in part from foreign leaf is granted shall pay therefor to the Collector of Inland Revenue the sum of seventy-five dollars.

3. That any party in whose favour a license for manufacturing tobacco exclusively from Canadian leaf is granted shall pay therefor to the Collector of Inland Revenue the sum of fifty dollars.

4. That any party in whose favour a license for manufacturing in bond for exportation is granted shall pay therefor to the Collector of Inland Revenue the sum of three hundred dollars.

5. That any party in whose favour a license to have an excise bonding warehouse is granted shall pay to the Collector of Inland Revenue for one such warehouse the sum of forty dollars and for each additional warehouse the sum of twenty dollars.

5. That as respects the duties of excise on spirits: (a) When the material used in the manufacture thereof consists of not less than 90 per cent. by weight of raw or unmalted grain on every gallon of the strength of proof by Sykes' hydrometer, and so in proportion for any greater or less strength than a gallon, one dollar.

(b) When manufactured exclusively from malted barley taken to the distillery in bond, and on which no duty of Customs or excise has been paid, on every gallon of the strength of proof by Sykes' hydrometer, and so in proportion for any greater or less strength, and for any less quantity than a gallon, one dollar and two cents.

(c) When manufactured exclusively from molasses or sugar taken to the distillery in bond, and on which no duty of Customs has been paid, on every gallon of the strength of proof by Sykes' hydrometer, and so in proportion for any greater or less strength, and for any less quantity than a gallon, one dollar and three cents.

8. That as respects the duties of excise on manufactured tobacco the said duties shall be as follows:—On manufactured tobacco and snuff of all kinds, except cigars, made in whole or in part from foreign or imported leaf tobacco, and containing not less than ten per cent. by weight of moisture, and so in proportion for any greater or less degree of moisture, on every pound or less quantity than a pound, twenty cents. On cigars made in whole or in part from foreign or imported leaf tobacco, and containing not less than ten per cent. by weight of moisture, and so in proportion for any greater or less degree of moisture, on every pound or less quantity than a pound, forty cents. On manufactured tobacco of all kinds, except cigars and common Canada twist, when made solely from tobacco grown in Canada and in a manufactory where no imported or foreign tobacco is used or kept, and containing not less than ten per cent. of moisture, and so in proportion for every greater or less degree of moisture on every pound or less quantity than a pound, fourteen cents. On cigars made solely from tobacco grown in Canada and made in a manufactory where no foreign or imported tobacco is used or kept, and containing not less than ten per cent. of moisture, and so in proportion for every greater or less degree of moisture, on every pound or less quantity than a pound, 30 cents.

9. That as respects the duty of excise on vinegar, vinegar containing 6 per cent. of acetic acid, the strength to be determined by such tests as may be established by Orders in Council, and so in proportion for any greater or less strength, on every gallon or less than a gallon, four cents.

10. That as respects the duty of excise on methylated spirits, being composed of alcohol mixed with wood naphtha in such proportions and subject to such regulations as may from time to time be made by the Treasury Board, there shall be paid a duty of 15 cents for every gallon of the strength of proof, and so in proportion for every greater or less strength, and for every less quantity than a gallon.

11. That any provisions imposing any new duty or making any alteration in any duty of excise imposed by the laws now in force, or any alteration in the mode of calculating any such duty by which the amount thereof may be increased or diminished, shall come into force immediately on the day of passing of the Act making such alterations, shall apply to the duties hereby imposed, and shall be payable on all spirits and tobacco, vinegar, fermented beverages, methylated spirits, distilled, manufactured, or made or taken out of bond for consumption, on and after the said day; and such alterations as aforesaid shall apply to and the duties hereby imposed shall be payable on all malt held by any brewer, malster, distiller, or other person on the said day, or manufactured or made thereafter; and the duties hereby made payable, or licenses, shall be payable only on licenses issued after the said day, existing licenses remaining in force during the time for which they were granted.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

ANOTHER FROG ACCIDENT.—Last week Mr. Jas. Enright, a young man employed as an assistant to Mr. Donnelly, station agent of the T. G. & B., at Mount Forest, met with a serious accident. The train from Harriston was approaching the station, and Mr. Enright went down the track to uncouple a car which it was necessary to have shunted to a side track. Unfortunately his foot caught in the wing rails near the switch and before he was enabled to withdraw it, one of the wheels of the tender ran over the foot crushing it in a frightful manner. The foot had to be amputated.

The Finance Minister's Statement.

The Financial Statement of Sir L. Tilley is at present the all absorbing topic of conversation, and the feeling is general that he has failed to show any improvement in the business of the country. In his speech on Tuesday night, while referring to a probable deficit that might occur in 1878-79, he calculated that the change to a higher scale of duties would cause an additional revenue of $800,000, so that the actual deficit of 1878-79 would be but $1,600,000. He now brings down accounts which show a deficit in that year of $1,938,000, and asserts that it would have been $3,400,000 but for the change of tariff. We have yet to learn, however, that such a change would have had the effect predicted. Sir Leonard last year estimated that the changes in the tariff would bring him in about $2,200,000 more revenue, but at the present time he is forced to acknowledge a deficit so far of $500,000, which will probably mount up at the end of the year to two million dollars.

So far as regards the financial outlook. But a greater danger than that lurks behind. In the face of a deficit, and of their increased obligations in the construction of railways the Government now proposes as a contemporary says to resort "to the old device of extravagant Governments—an issue of paper money and a forced loan from the banks. As the currency resolutions have not been brought down, we only know that $8,000,000 of new Dominion notes are to be issued. The Government now issues ones and twos, and will probably put other notes of small denominations into circulation, taking from the banks the privilege of issuing similar bills. The banks will be supplied with the new Dominion notes, and apparently required to deposit Government securities in exchange. The effect will be to reduce the means from which the banks discount the notes of their customers, and consequently to raise interest on business loans. The issue of paper money is a dangerous resort for a Government at any time; it is a particularly perilous thing to do now in the face of the agitation for an irredeemable currency. There is no saying to what length a reckless Administration may go under the pressure of ignorant and unscrupulous followers."

The few changes made in the tariff are mainly in the interest of the manufacturers. No doubt these will be advantageous to certain classes of manufacturers, but while they benefit them the consumers will suffer, while importations will decrease and the revenue will suffer in proportion. Every change made—with one or two exceptions—is in the interest of the manufacturers, and enables them to make greater profits. The changes in the tariff seem to be altogether in favor of the well off and the rich. Everything that the poor man might want, or that might minister to his comfort, has been enhanced in value, while the luxuries or supposed necessities of the rich are let off easily. Ten cents per ton has been added to the duty on coal, in the hope that the Nova Scotia and Cape Breton coal can be brought to Ontario. So far—with a duty of 50 cents per ton—this coal could not be brought west at a profit, and we have yet to learn that 10 cents additional duty will secure the trade for the Maritime Provinces.

We might mention other anomalies in the revised tariff. As an instance the Minister of Finance proposes to put three cents a pound on those classes of wool which are produced in Canada, which never have been imported, and in all human probability never will be. The other classes of wool—those which could be produced here—were there a high enought duty on them—he leaves carefully alone. If he thinks the farmers can be swindled in this outrageous manner he is mistaken. The cool impudence of his proposition is enough to make one believe that his chief object is to get the N. P. destroyed as soon as possible. His wool duties may very slightly benefit wool dealers. It is impossible for them to benefit the farmers. These duties are perfectly useless.

In whatever light we view this revised tariff of the Finance Minister, we find that it discriminates in favour of the manufacturer as against the consumer. As the Globe says:—"The dry-goods trade will continue to be harrassed by diverse classifications and suspicions that importers who are politically right are favoured and others robbed. The farmers will continue to lose ten or twelve cents a bushel on their grain consequent upon our severance from the great Western markets. Our ship-building trade will still languish. Our lumberers will be hampered and taxed by the duties on their supplies. Our fuel and light will still be subject to taxes which are anachronisms fit only for the middle ages. A general state of uncertainty and hopelessness will prevail."

SIR A. T. GALT was on the floor of the House during the delivery of Sir L. Tilley's Budget speech, and the general opinion was that he was the power "behind the throne."

Late letters from Newfoundland state that it is proposed to build a railway line from St. John's to Harbour Grace, the cost of which will be £300,000. The Newfoundland portion of the Fishery Award will probably be spent on this work.

Sir Richard Cartwright on Sir L. Tilley's "Hum" Hunt.

The following is a part of Sir. R. Cartwright's able speech on the budget in reply to the FINANCE MINISTER:—

There is no doubt one important factor in our present prosperity to which my hon. friend's characteristic modesty has prevented him from making more than a passing allusion, but which I cannot allow to pass unnoticed. It is that we all know he was good enough to made a progress through the country in order to see how well the policy was promoting the welfare of the people. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) I desire to say that I entirely repudiate the view taken by some who likened the hon. Minister to a commercial traveller who had filled his customers' orders and returned for further instructions. (Renewed laughter.) I commend his zeal, but I may have doubts whether that zeal was wholly according to knowledge. I may have doubts whether the best means of finding out how the policy actually worked was by means of a number of interviews with different manufacturers, lasting from three to thirty minutes, according to the predilections of the parties. I may doubt whether the information gleaned was always as strictly accurate as might be desired. I may doubt that it was possible for him to gain accurate information, for wherever he entered went the shadow of the hon. member for North Hastings (Mr. Bowell), with the Customs cat-o'-nine-tails in his hand, as a slight hint of what those manufacturers who failed to acknowledge that there was but one Minister of Customs, and that the Finance Minister was his prophet. (Loud laughter.) I am inclined to think that my hon. friend's simplicity and good nature have been somewhat imposed upon in the course of his peregrinations. (Cheers.) That in some of the manufactories he visited the number of parties employed was increased for that day only. I have also heard that the

WAGES WERE RAISED

before the hon. gentleman came to a town, and lowered after he retreated. But, sir, like Lord Chesterfield, I only believe half of what I hear. I won't believe that the wages were raised before he came, but that they were lowered after he was gone. (Cheers and laughter.) But such was the zeal of the workingmen to get a glimpse of their great benefactor that I am told they actually proceeded with the Finance Minister from floor to floor of the manufactories in order that they might see him and be seen by him as much as possible. (More cheers and laughter.) As the hon. gentleman was good enough to give us a statement of the factories that were likely to open in the Dominion—particularly in New Brunswick—I would like him to give a list of those which have actually opened since the 1st of January, 1879, within the Dominion, and then we could form some idea of the actual bona fide result of the "N. P." While the hon. gentleman was disporting himself I was not altogether idle. I took the opportunity of making enquiries throughout the various towns of Ontario as to the actual state of things,

HOW FAR NEW FACTORIES HAD OPENED;

how far those gentlemen engaged in manufacturing enterprises could report direct benefit from the increased duties. I corresponded with Ottawa, Prescott, Brockville, and some 25 or 30 other towns in Ontario, containing an aggregate of about 300,000 souls, and I regret very much to say that the result of my enquiries was, that although no doubt there have been the usual number of small factories started in various places, there have been likewise the usual number of small factories shut up, and those with whom I communicated were unable to see any benefit accruing from this policy except to two or three industries. I would ask the hon. gentleman one plain question. Is he able after all his enquiries, to lay his finger on as many as twelve factories in the Province of Ontario, each employing 100 hands and upwards, which have opened since the first of January, 1879? (Hear, hear.) I don't say that even if he could that would be sufficient justification for the burdens he has inflicted upon the people. But I say if he cannot do that I think the House can form for themselves a tolerably accurate estimate of what the "National Policy" has done to the present time in the way of providing employment for the idle people of Canada. (Hear, hear.) For my own part, sir,—I am open to correction if I am wrong—I don't believe that apart

FROM SUGAR REFINERIES AND COTTON FACTORIES,

the hon. gentleman would be able to name from one end of the Dominion to another so many as twelve factories, each employing 100 men and more, which have opened since the commencement of this policy. There is no doubt that some few individuals must reap benefit from the operation of the tariff, but when you put this additional taxation on the people, even if most of it is wanted, a large portion goes into the pockets of a favored few; and while nobody has asserted that the hon. gentleman has put seven millions into the Treasury, what we have asserted is that of the seven millions which he takes out of the pockets of the people of this country a very small part goes into the Treasury, but the greater portion goes into the pockets of manufacturers. I have no doubt the hon. gentleman has fostered some industries; the industry of smuggling, which was depressed some years ago, is rapidly reviving under the fostering influence of the hon. gentleman. (Hear, hear.) Moreover, sir, although the hon. gentleman dwelt very lightly with this point, I am afraid he will find that his excise duties have already resulted in a great development of in different parts of the country (hear, hear), and also in the adulteration of liquors, although the hon. gentleman cannot regard that as a very serious evil. Now, sir, I now observe that I think the hon. gentleman himself has—and I know his organs have—made it a matter of complaint that we had not praised him for the general rise in prices that has taken place. Although this is a curious cause of exultation so far as the consumer is concerned, I am willing, for my part, to give the hon. gentleman the credit which he undoubtedly deserves for the rise in prices that has taken place in sugar, iron, bread and fuel, and in almost all the articles of prime necessity within the Dominion of Canada—and I might add that things are not only dearer but worse. The fact of the matter is, in Canada our market is so small that it is easy in many cases for existing manufactories to combine together—and I am afraid that this is one of the weak points which put us at a disadvantage with the people of the United States, for, however mistaken their policy may be in the great majority of cases, their market is so large that competion is enabled to secure reasonableness of price, and as a rule excellence of workmanship.

The Dominion Estimates for 1880.

The Dominion Estimates as brought down, show an increase in the expenditure under the Consolidated Fund of $1,474,384, and a decrease of $886,893, included in which is an item of $166,780, decrease in railways, canals and public works, the greater part of the balance being due to the fact that last year the amounts asked were for special services, so that in point of fact they cannot be considered as practical evidences of economy on the part of the Government. In the redemption of debt there is a decrease of $4,786,691, and a decrease of $1,353,200 in public works, railways and canals chargeable to capital. Items that come under the heading of ordinary expenditure show an increase of $559,979. Under the head of civil government there is an increase for salaries, etc., of $42,570, which is partly made up by an increased staff in the Privy Council, Department of Justice, 2nd senior second-class clerks in the Militia and Defence Department, five additional officials in the Secretary of State's Department, eleven in the Department of the Interior, two in the Auditor-General's Department, two in the Finance Department, two in the Inland Revenue Department, two in the Customs Department, eight in the Post Office Department, three in the Marine and Fisheries Department, and an increase of $25,545 in Railways, Canals and Public Works Departments. Under the heading Legislation there is provision made for twenty-five Sessional Clerks, but the number that the vote was taken for last session is not shown, for the reason that they are very much ashamed of last year's exhibit. Towards assisting immigration and immigration expenses there is an increase of $15,000. In arts, agriculture, and statistics there is an estimate made for $200,000, to meet expenses in connection with the census. For the construction of the Pacific Railway, chargeable to capital, the amount asked for was $8,761,000, an increase of $1,851,000 over last year. This is the first full year that the present Government have been in power, and they have certainly lost none of their aptitude for increasing the public expenditure. The further supplementary estimates for the year ending June 30th, 1880, were placed on the table on Monday. From them it will be seen that the Government have either expended or arranged to expend $1,511,792 more than was voted last year. The following are the heads of the various expenditures: Civil government, $3,650; administration of justice, $300; penitentiaries, $2,400; legislation, $4,046; art, agriculture and statistics, $25,000; militia, $25,420; railways, canals and public works, chargeable to capital, $418,182; railways, canals and public works, chargeable to income, $20,700; public buildings, $265,275; ocean and mail service $325; lighthouse and coast service, $8,000; fisheries, $3,000; marine hospitals, $1,200; Indians, $201,000; miscellaneous, $102,971; collection of revenue, $102,000; post office, $60,000; Dominion lands, $234,678. The Government boasted last session that they had economized the public expenditure, but the first thing they are doing this year is to add one million and a half to last years' expenditure.

Garafraxa Council.

GARAFRAXA, 2nd March, 1880.

A special meeting of the Council of this Township was help here at 2 p.m. on the above date. All the members present. The Reeve, Matthew Anderson, presiding.

The Auditors report for 1879 was laid on the table to be finally audited.

Moved by Leonard Short, seconded by William Louttit, that the clerk is hereby instructed to insert in the Auditors report the sum of $136.34 being a liability due by the late Treasurer as funds received from the County Council, and also to add to the assets of said report the sum of $460, now lying in the hands of the County Treasurer as wild land tax. Carried.

Moved by Leonard Short, seconded by Robert Kennedy, that the Auditor's report as now presented be received and adopted, and that the Auditor's be allowed payment four days each at $4 per day, and also thirty cents for stationery Carried.

Moved by Leonard Short, seconded by Wm. McDermott, that the Clerk be instructed to get four hundred copies of the Auditor's report and minutes of Council for last year printed in pamphlet form for distribution. Carried.

Moved by Wm. McDermott, seconded by Robt. Kennedy, that the Reeve and Clerk be instructed to draft a petiton in support of the bill introduced into the House of Commons by our representative, Dr. G. T. Orton, to regulate the rate of interest on loans of money on real estate or otherwise. Carried.

Petition prepared and signed by Reeve and Clerk, and sealed with township seal and forwarded.

Moved by Wm. Louttit, seconded by Leonard Short, that the account of Messrs. J. & R. Craig, amounting to $58, be paid for printing for 1879. Carried.

Moved by Leonard Short, seconded by Wm. Louttit, that the services of the learned counsellor, Donald Guthrie, is no longer required by the Council of this township, and that the Reeve notify the learned counsellor to that effect Carried.

Moved by Robert Kennedy, seconded by Wm. McDermott, that David Bannerman be paid the sum of $2.50 for covering culvert on side road between lots 15 and 16, con, 7. Carried.

Moved by Robert Kennedy, seconded by Wm. McDermott, that the tender of Messrs. J. & R. Craig for printing be accepted. Carried.

Moved by Wm. McDermott, seconded by Wm. Louttit, that the Clerk be instructed to notify the Superintendant of the Credit Valley Railway, to put the crossings on the several concessions and side lines in a proper state of repair, and also to have their fences put up to keep farmers cattle from the railroad allowance. Carried.

Moved by Robert Kennedy, seconded by Wm. McDermott, that the report of the committee appointed to examine the bridge on the 5th con., opposite lot 17, be received and adopted, and that Wm. Louttitt be a Commissioner to have said bridge properly finished. Carried

The Reeve presented a letter from Harry Vincent, barrister, Fergus, relating to uncollected taxes for the year 1875 on lot 32, con. 4, and owned by Mrs. Blair. The Council after mature deliberation decided not to take action therein in the meantime. Carried.

Moved by Leonard Short, seconded by Wm. Louttit, that leave be given to introduce a by-law to empower the Reeve and Treasurer to borrow the sum of $600, and that the same be read a first and second time. Carried.

The by-law went through the requisite number of readings and was read a third time and passed and numbered 87.

Moved by Wm. McDermott, seconded by Robt. Kennedy, that Paul Couse be paid the sum of $2 for work done on Douglas bridge, and that Thos. Conolly be paid the same amount for repairing hand rail on said bridge, and that the Clerk be paid the sum of $5 for extra services rendered to this Township Carried.

Moved by Leonard Short, seconded by Robert Kennedy, that the Reeve and Deputy Reeve be and are hereby authorized to employ James Muir, barrister, &c., Fergus, to prosecute the suit at the coming Assizes against the ex-Treasurer, Wm. Cassidy. Carried.

Moved by Robert Kennedy, seconded by Wm. McDermott, that leave be given to introduce a by-law for the purpose of reducing the amount of commutation for Statute labor per day. Carried.

The by-law went through its several readings and the Council resumed, the Reeve in the chair. The by-law was then read a third time and passed, and numbered 88.

The Council then adjourned.

Hespeler Correspondence.

AN AUCTIONEER.—The removal of Mr. P. Itter from our village has not deprived this section of country of an auctioneer, as he, Mr. Itter, is succeeded by Mr. A. J. Brewster, who has already obtained a license to act in that capacity, and is now ready to do business for any who may wish to patronize him. Judging from Mr. B's extensive experience in general business we feel confident that he will prove a very efficient person in the performance of an auctioneer's duties.

THE ICE TRADE.—Twenty-six car loads of ice have already left here for Detroit. The ice was taken from the dams of Messrs. Hohn and Clemens, and the operation has given employment to a set of our men and teams for a few days, which fact we have reason to be glad of, and for which we may thank our American friends.

The Great Cause of
HUMAN MISERY

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

CHAPTER XXXI.

A GLOOMY PROSPECT—THE STRANGER IN THE CHURCHYARD—JACK BORLAND INCOGNITO.

"Wha can he be?" said David to himself. "He's a braw guid-looking chield and has a feelin' heart."

David waited at the gate for fully a minute, and as the stranger gave no sign of leaving, he had to cough loudly to draw his attention. This had the desired effect. With a sudden start, the strong form drew itself up, and, after an elaborate use of his pocket handkerchief, the man wheeled round and came slowly along the faintly trodden path to the gate.

"I beg pardon if I have kept you waiting," he said, in a tone quiet and subdued. "I—I became absorbed in thought. But we can walk fast, if you choose."

"There's nae occasion for that, sir, nane ava," observed David, as he fumbled at the gate fastening it up. Had he looked into the other's eyes he would have seen them red and tear-stained. When he had finished the opportunity was gone, for the stranger had drawn his hat over his brows till the eyes were deeply shrouded by its broad brim.

"Can you tell me where I can obtain lodgings for a week or two in this neighbourhood?" asked the man as they walked along the road leading from the churchyard.

"Lodgin's?" repeated David, scratching his head with an air of perplexity, "I doot that wull no be easy to find. Dae ye think o' stoppin' hereaboots for a while?"

"Only for a few weeks. Any quiet place will suit me. I don't care how humble it is."

"Ye wadna care aboot a room in ony o' the fisher's hooses at the shore, I fancy?"

"No, I would rather be inland in a rural place.

"Man, there's nae place that I can think o' nearer than Cairntree—that's a toon a mile or twa west. Ye wad get a choice o' lodgin's there, or ye micht stay at the inn for that maitter if they didna charge ye owre dear."

"I would much prefer to be near—where we are now. As I came along I observed a small cottage here and there, with two or more apartments. Could I not be taken in at one of them for the short time I have to stay. I would gladly pay the inmates at a liberal rate."

"Oh, now I think o't. I ken a place that wad suit ye nicely," said David, suddenly brightening up. "I believe Mrs. Borland wad be glad to accommodate ye, an' it wad be a help to her at the same time."

"Mrs. Borland," said the other with a violent start.

"That's Adam Borland's widow," explained David. "She still lives in the gairdener's cottage, but she maun quit it sune, and it will be wi' a sair heart she does sae."

"Why must she leave it?" asked the other huskily.

"Because when the estate is selt her hoose will gang wi' it, and Anthony Langton isna the man to let her sit rent free. Puir woman, the misfortunes o' Maister Orwell hae tauld heavily on her. Ye maun ken, sir, that Maister Bruce, as it weel was his duty to dae, allooed her an annuity o' twenty-five pounds a year and the hoose that she and her guidman had been sae happy in. But noo she looses baith. The annuity stoppit six months syne, and she maun flit at Whitsunday."

"Good heavens! and what has she subsisted on during that time," exclaimed the other, in a strangely distressed tone.

"Weel sir, she wad hae been badly aff if Agnes and Miss Elliott hadna set up school at the shore. That has keepit them baith in a fair way, but teachin' is ill paid, and I'm thinkin' they hae eneuch to dae to keep the pot boilin', as the sayin' is. There's mair than ane or twa wad hae been glad to help them. But Mrs. Borland is proud, sir, and wadna accept charity. I mysel'—oh, but that's neither here nor there," said David, suddenly checking himself. "Hoever, sir, as ye are just to be a few weeks, I think she wadna refuse to lodge ye in the ben end o' the cottage, and I'm shure she wad mak' ye perfectly comfortable."

Somewhat to David's surprise the stranger received this proposal in silence, and for fully a minute appeared to ruminate on it with strange hesitation, his face working meanwhile under powerful feelings, which would have further surprised his companion had not the broad brimmed hat concealed the fact from his notice. The silence caused David to think too, and he began to fear that he had done wrong in proposing the cottage of Mrs. Borland as lodgings for a man who was an utter stranger. He certainly seemed respectable enough, and his manner was altogether prepossessing; still he was unknown, and David reflected that often appearances are deceitful. He therefore thought it might be better for this man to seek lodgings elsewhere. There was a mystery about him; for why should a man of his appearance want to stay for a few weeks in such a quiet solitary part of the country? He had admitted that he desired seclusion; why should he do so? It was not to recruit his health he had come; one glance at his strong, burly figure, rendered that idea inadmissable. What, then, could be his object?

As these doubts and dubieties were quickly running through David's honest mind their course was interrupted by his companion suddenly saying—

"I will follow your recommendation and take lodgings with Mrs. Borland."

"Ahem!" coughed David, under the influence of his vague suspicion; "Ye will understand, sir, that I dinna just guarantee that she will tak' ye in."

"Why not? Being in the straits you mention she will be inclined to adopt any honest means of assistance."

"I dinna ken. There being but twa women in the hoose, she may scruple to tak' in a—a person that she kens naething aboot—nae offence, sir, but ye ken ye are a stranger, ye said sae in the kirkyaird."

"Oh, I think I can satisfy all scruples on that score," returned the other with a smile. "My name is John Wilson, I am from America, I have come to Scotland on particular private business, to accomplish which it will suit me to stay in this particular neighborhood. I can't promise," he added laughingly, "to offer written testimonials of respectability, but gaze at me well and say if I look like a rogue."

And pausing he turned towards David, and taking his hat from his head presented a full front to his deliberate inspection.

The form and face on which David's eyes rested were such as effectually to banish suspicion. Those broad shoulders, that fully expanded chest, the straight and erect figure, the comely features with their frank, pleasant expression, the open brow, the unshrinking blue eyes which had no downcast tendency, all proclaimed a character of sterling worth deserving of confidence and respect.

"I am quite satisfied, sir," said David, with hearty emphasis. "I am sure ye hae a guid heart and an honest mind if appearances are to be trusted."

"Nature, my friend, never puts a good stamp on an evil character. I don't claim for myself any very great qualities of virtue or excellence, but I believe those who know me would endorse your opinion, and say I am no worse than I look."

"I am shure o't," responded David, in a tone from which all distrust had vanished. "There's the ring o' truth in the very soon o' yer voice. And ye come frae America a' the way. That's a grand place, I hae heard tell."

"A capital place for an active, industrious man to succeed in. No one with a moderately good head, a stout heart, and a strong arm need ever be poor there."

"Sae I believe; and were I a younger man, I am no sure but I micht hae emigrated, noo that I am tae be oot o' a place."

"Have you not engaged elsewhere then?" asked the stranger, who had called himself John Wilson.

"No, I hinna speired for a place, but I think Mr. Bishop will maybe fa' in wi' ane for me amang the landed gentry that he is acquaint wi."

"But you would rather stay at the Grange, would you not? That is, you would not have left but for the estate changing hands?"

"Ye may swear that Maister Wilson, ye may swear that. I'll never be in a place that I like sae weel."

The other gave an approving nod, while within the recesses of his bushy beard a smile of satisfaction lurked around his pleasant lips.

The pair were now on the high road, and had for some time been skirting the boundary wall of Grange park. When they came to what was known as the shore gate, the American turned towards it, and laid his hand on the hasp by which it was fastened.

"Dear me, sir, hoo did ye ken that we gang in there?" said his guide, not a little surprised at what he saw.

"I—oh, I guessed it," replied the other, colouring violently. "I am right, am I not?"

"Ye be quite richt; but it bates me to think hoo ye gaed to it like ane used to the place."

"Why, there is nothing so very strange in that," responded the other with a forced laugh. "This is the Grange park, and I was sure you would enter it by the first gate we came to."

"Ay, but are ye shure that Mrs. Borland's cottage is within the park?"

"I think it is. Being the gardener's cottage, it is certain to be. I am right again, am I not?"

"Dod, sir, I see it's nae use tryin' to get ayont you. Ye are richt wi' everything. Maybe ye can guess what side o' the park the cottage is on."

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

Mr. Wm. Buchanan, an old settler living near Branchton, is dead.

Quite a fuss is being raised by the action of the Dundas Council in putting on a new toll gate this side of Sheffield on the Dundas and Galt road.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

The unemployed laborers in Ottawa are threatening to demonstrate again, the Corporation having failed to give many employment. Mayor Mackintosh is trying to fool them by specious promises, and thus save the Government.

GUELPH MARKETS

GUELPH, March, 11, 1880.

The weather for the past week has been such that farmers found it utterly impossible to reach the market with any quantities of produce; consequently deliveries have been very light, a fact our readers in the country will readily understand. Yesterday and to-day, however, the leading thoroughfares in the city have somewhat hardened and improved, and the effect is seen by a better attendance at our market.

There are no great alterations in prices compared with our last report, if we may except wheat, which has lowered a few cents per bushel.

Peas on the other hand have improved, as may be seen by reference to the quotations appended.

No material change in other articles.

The latest prices paid here up to 3 this p. m. are.

Montreal Live Stock Market.

MONTREAL, March 9

The arrivals of live stock at this market during the past week consisted of 13 car loads of cattle and 3 do. of horses. The offerings to-day were 9 car loads of cattle, which was much under the average, and caused a brisk demand at rather better prices than prevailed last week. The sales reported were:—J. Robertson, 39 head of shipping cattle at $55 each; R. J. Hopper, 20 head at $42 each; James Eakins, 3 head at $45 each; F. Kitchings, 11 head at 4c per lb, live weight; W. Walters, 1 car load at prices ranging from 3c to 4c per lb. live weight; 4 head of small cattle, belonging to a habitant, sold to a butcher for $60; a fairly good cow changed hands at $41. 4 calves were sold in one lot at $40, but the range for calves outside these was from $3 50 to $6 50. Sheep brought from $5 50 to $6 00. Mr. McShane intends shipping 140 head of Canadian cattle this week to Great Britain from Portland per steamship Newfoundland. As this will be the first shipment of cattle from the Dominion to Great Britain under the slaughtering arrangements the result is looked forward to with much interest.

REGENT HOUSE.

AS INTIMATED IN MONDAY'S COLUMNS WE HAVE RENEWED OUR partnership for another term. All are aware we have cleared out the most of our large stock, thus enabling us to buy a large stock for the spring trade. We have purchased some of the finest and cheapest goods ever brought into Guelph, and to-morrow (Saturday) we will show an assortment of Dry Goods which every lady in this City and Country should see. The great attraction for this season of the year will be our New Prints. In this department we excel, and never before have such beautiful patterns been shown in Guelph. We have added a new rule to our business regulations:—all goods marked in plain figures. Look out for the windows.

The prevalence of small-pox in Paris is causing much alarm and the Municipal Council is taking measures against its spread.

A marked revival in the silk and ribbon trade is reported from Basle, Switzerland. Very considerable orders have lately been received from the United States.

The Home Rule Confederation of Great Britain issued the following violent manifesto to Home Rule Associations and the Irish people of Great Britain: "Lord Beaconsfield drs issued, in the guise of a letter to the Viceroy of Ireland, a declaration of war upon your country and your friends. The Ministry is seeking to obtain a renewed term of office by sowing dissension and hatred between Englishmen and Irishmen, and Beaconsfield's vicious manifesto directly appeals to the worst passions and prejudices for the purpose of stirring up Englishmen against Irish nationality. The Ministry neither knows nor cares how to relieve our distressed fellow countrymen. Beaconsfield's foreign policy has been an inglorious and disastrous failure. Vote against him as you would against the enemy of your country."

THE LUCAN TRAGEDY.

The Donnelly Investigation.

Examination of Martin Hogan.

LONDON, March, 12.—The Donnelly investigation was resumed this forenoon, when Martin Hogan, the friend who was stopping with Wm. Donnelly on the night of the murder, was examined. He proved a rather reluctant witness, not from want of a desire to tell what he knew concerning the shooting of John, but evidently from fear of the consequences to himself. He corroborated the evidence of Wm. Donnelly and his wife in its general particulars. However the case is still in progress.

Accident at the London Car Shops.

As John Bailey was last night returning from work at the car shops in London East, he jumped on a pony engine to get a lift, his head came in contact with a blind switch and he was knocked off, being also struck by a journal as he fell. He was taken up very much hurt, but is now doing well.

Dr. Langlois, one of the Gatineau incendiaries, has been admitted to bail by consent of the Crown.

ACTION FOR FALSE ARREST.—Mr. James O'Donnell, of Eramosa, has commenced legal proceedings against Ald. Coffee, to recover $1,000, as damages for false arrest. In January Ald. Coffee lost a valuable dog, and learning that it was in possession of O'Donnell laid a charge against him for larceny. When the case came up in the Police Court it was dismissed. O'Donnell claims damages for false arrest on the charge of larceny.

SACRED CONCERT.—The choir of the Norfolk street Methodist Church, under the direction of Prof. Harrington, with Miss Harrington as organist, give a concert in the church this evening, which promises to be of a very high character. For some weeks they have been practising the selections to be rendered, and are prepared to give a first class concert in every way. Miss Geddes will assist, and perform several selections on the organ. The entertainment promises to be one worthy of the best patronage.

RUNAWAY.—About two o'clock this afternoon, a team of horses belonging to a man named Stewart, which had been left standing at Inglis & Hunter's foundry, took fright and ran away. They dashed madly along Perth Street, thence over the Eramosa Bridge and up the hill to Wyndham street. They continued on their course as far as Quebec Street, when they were stopped by John Murphy. The horses were cut a little about the legs after their dash, and the harness was somewhat broken, which was the only damage done.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Wesley Tindale of Eramosa, met with a serious accident while driving with Robert Abbott into the city this (Friday) forenoon. When opposite Mr. Robertson's foundry, on the Eramosa hill, the breeching strap broke and the horse taking fright started off. Both occupants were thrown to the roadway violently, and Mr. Tindale received injuries which will confine him to the house for several weeks. His collar bone on the left side was dislocated and his right thigh was broken. The sufferer was removed to the Hospital and Dr. Herod sent for, who attended to his injuries. Mr. Abbott was shaken somewhat, but escaped with a few bruises. The horse ran across the Eramosa bridge, up the hill, and on to Wyndham street, where it was stopped opposite R. Stewart's planing mill. The buggy was considerably broken.

Mr. Sargent, of California, who is befriending the newly arrived Chinese in New York, is overwhelmed with applications for Chinese servants.

Primitive Methodist Concert.

An Evening's Pleasant Enjoyment.

The entertainment committee of the above church undertook a new departure last evening in the getting up of their concert, this time doing away with the tea that has always been their custom at such entertainments; and the new departure seemed to work splendidly. The attendance was just as large as if a good tea had been provided, and as a consequence, the treasury receipts are large while the expenses are nil. At a little after eight o'clock, Rev. Mr. Harris took the chair, and in his usual good natured way opened the programme. The Harris Bros. contributed largely to the instrumental part of the programme, their performances on violins and organ receiving worthy applause. With the recitations, dialogues, and readings the company were well pleased, Messrs. Beirnes and Thomson, and others, being ready when called upon. Several young ladies also took an interesting part in the dialogues and recitations, and Miss Harding sang a couple of songs to the pleasure of the audience. Rev. Mr. Harris and his son Arthur, sang "The Minute Gun at Sea," and at another time favored the company with a song entitled "Our Homes." A quintette club, (not a professional one) sang an old favorite song, "The Good Old Days of Yore," and with this the programme was brought to a close. The chairman then called upon the audience to join heartily in the doxology, after which a blessing was pronounced, and the company separated a little after ten o'clock well pleased with the entertainment provided.

Agricultural College.

The Agricultural Industrial and Experimental Union resumed its session at nine o'clock on Thursday morning.

The President, Mr. Brown, addressed the members on "The difficulty of securing pastures in Ontario," recommending greater attention to the laying down of permanent pastures and growing green fodder. The points in the lecture were afterwards pretty thoroughly discussed. Brief addresses were then delivered by Mr. Panton, and Mr. McTavish. Mr. Barron, gardener, and Mr. P. Mahon, farm foreman, also made a few practical remarks, with reference to their respective departments on the farm.

The Union then adjourned when the Executive Committee met to draft a constitution and by-laws and arrange the programme for the next annual meeting. It was decided to hold the next meeting two days preceding the public examination, in order that the ex-students may be present at the closing exercises.

CURLIANA.

Items of Interest on the Ice.

Four rinks from the Guelph Curling Club went to Elora to-day to try ends with four rinks of that village.

Mr. James Barclay, on behalf of a Guelph rink challenged to play any of the rinks that played Brampton, Preston or Fergus. The challenge was accepted, and the game was played yesterday. These doughty players are now somewhat mollified having defeated two rinks during the season. The following are the sides and score:

Geo. Murton	John McKenzie
Wm. Mitchell	D. Stirton
A. Robertson, sr	A. Congalton
Jas. Barclay—11.	Jas. Emslie—26.

The officials in the Civil Service played a game with the employees of the Bank of Montreal on the rink yesterday. The Bank received a sweeping defeat. Following are the teams:

MONTREAL BANK.	GOV'T. OFFICIALS.
F. Locke	J. Robson
P. Todd	T. Heffernan
H. Lockwood	D. Stirton
J. Findlay—3.	J. T. Nichols—13.

A game was played yesterday between a side captained by John McKenzie, and a side captained by Chas. Davidson, for a quantity of fish and the rink medal. The sides were as follows:

Wm. Mitchell	Jas. Hewer
Jas. Barclay	Wm. Heffernan
Jas. Mavis	J. T. Nichols
W. H. Mills	Geo. Patterson
John McKenzie—15.	Chas. Davidson—13.

A game was played between A. Bruce and Chas. Spaulding yesterday afternoon for the Gow cup which resulted in a defeat for Spaulding of 19 to 16.

SHOOTING OUTRAGE IN BERLIN—At about 9 o'clock on Wednesday night a fairly-well dressed tramp entered the house of Mr. Connor, High School Principal, and asked the servant girl for something to eat. The girl went upstairs to ask permission from her mistress to give him something, which was granted. Before the family retired, Mrs. Connor went to the kitchen, where she found the girl lying on the floor tied, gagged and unconscious, her body being quite cold. She was with difficulty restored. She said that after giving the man food he made some improper proposals and assaulted her, which she promptly resented with an iron poker. She was, however, easily overpowered, and her person outraged, and she was left for over an hour in the position her mistress found her. The scoundrel meantime made good his escape.

He was a young fellow in the hardware store. One day, when the boss was at dinner, a countryman came in to buy some nuts. He found an article that suited him and wanted a dozen. Young Blakie looked at the price list and found they were listed "twenty-five cents a dozen, thirty off." He gave a low inverted whistle, and then, with a sudden inspiration he handed the customer five cents and told him he could buy the nuts at the other store. "By George," he said, when he was telling the governer of the transaction. 'I thought the best thing I could do was to save the nuts, anyhow."

"The Great Marriage Question."

Lecture by Mr. C. F. Spence.

The above was the subject of a lecture delivered on Thursday night by Mr. C. F. Spence, of Toronto, at the Y. M. C. A. rooms before a small audience. Mr. W. Anderson occupied the chair. After a few introductory remarks the lecturer went on to deal with the question of old maids and old bachelors. He strongly opposed the idea that old maids should be spoken of in a contemptible way, as they often were. Old age was no disgrace, and certainly maidenhood was none. There were old maids who had flirted with every man with whom they had come in contact and had trampled under foot a true man's love. They richly deserved to be left old maids. With reference to old bachelors there was a time when they were not allowed citizenship, but that day had passed, and now their only punishment was ridicule, of which they received not a little. Looking at married life it was not always found to be full of pleasure. The question was not whether was it right that the old folks were married, but was it right that the young folks should get married. On the negative side he showed why young people should not get married. First, because of inexperience with the world, second because young married people were apt to sink into insignificance. As arguments in favour of matrimony, he advanced:—First, that married couples found much pleasure in each other's company; second, that a man's thoughts for his wife's welfare spurred him on to nobler actions; and third, there were the comforts of a happy home to return to after a day of work and anxiety. Marriage was the foundation stone of life, and young people should be careful how they placed it. The following rules were given to young men in choosing a wife:—Do not be so dazzled by gold so much as to overlook faults; do not go crazy after a pretty face when there is nothing more to recommend it. The advice to young ladies was:—First, if a young man had made up his mind to be an old bachelor leave him alone, he was not worth winning; never trust yourself to one who tampered with the intoxicating cup. In conclusion he said the French girl was the gayest and best to spend an evening with; the American girl was full of fun; but for a good wife recommend to him a Canadian girl.

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker.

Guelph Rifle Company.

Social Supper at the American Hotel

Last (Thursday) night after drill the newly-promoted officers of No. 2 Company invited their comrades in arms to the American Hotel, where a splendid supper was waiting, on the table, the arrival of the guests. After discussing with hearty relish the delicacies provided, the cloth was removed, and song, sentiment and good humor prevailed the entire evening. Captain Spiers was chosen chairman, and called the company to order. The toast of "The Queen" was responded to by the company rising and singing the national anthem. "The Wellington Battalion" by Major Armstrong. Sergeant Clancy sang "The Minstrel Boy." Captain Spiers responded in fitting terms to the toast of "Our Captain," and Corporal Gillies sang "The Lancashire Lass." "The Lieutenants of No. 2" called forth replies from Lieutenants Crowe and Anderson. Bugler Clements sang "My Old Hat." "The Civil Authorities" was suitably responded to by Chief McMillan, who was present for a short time. Sergeant Ward sang "The Home of Englishmen." The of "The Men of '66" received replies from Sergeant McKenzie and Quartermaster Mann. Private Berry followed with a song, "The Garden Where the Praties Grow." The toast of "The Artillery" was responded to by ex-Hospital Surgeon Moore, President of the Guelph Rifle Association. "The Press" was responded to appropriately by Private P. J. McKeague, of the MERCURY, and Captain Spiers sang "The Red, White and Blue." The toast of "The Sergeant-Major" brought forth a reply from Sergt-Major Clements, and also a song, "Widow Mahoney," from Sergeant McKenzie. Corporal Hunter and Lieutenant Anderson suitably responded to the toast of "The Ladies." "The Host and Hostess" was responded to by Mr. Ellis, and after singing the national anthem, the company dispersed.

FRIGHTFUL BURNING CASUALTY.—A frightful and fatal casualty occurred late Wednesday night at the Episcopal residence of Bishop B. J. McQuaid, Rochester, N. Y. Catherine Jones, a widow, aged fifty-five years, who has been housekeeper for the Bishop twenty-six years, retired much fatigued to her room. Setting her candle upon the floor, she seated herself for a breathing spell before preparing for bed. In a minute or two she had fallen asleep. While in this state her clothing was either moved by the wind or her own motion so that the candle flame ignited it. Her clothing had burned off nearly to her waist before she awoke from her weary sleep. Then her frantic and frightful screams aroused the household. The flames were not extinguished till her entire body from the knees to the breast was burned horribly. A large portion of the body just below the waist was burned to a crisp. Rochester's oldest and best physician says it is the worst case of burning alive he ever saw. Mrs. Jones remains conscious in her agony, but the doctors says she cannot live.

A petition has been received from Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, by the Government, suggesting that an association of Irishmen be formed for the purpose of assisting out residents of Ireland and setting them upon lands in some part of the Dominion, the association to guarantee repayment of moneys advanced, they being secured by liens on the homstead of the settlers.

The first mail since February 15th arrived on Tuesday night, at Bismarck, Dakota, having been brought by waggons from a snow-blockaded train 70 miles east. Not a pound of flour in the city.

Japan and the Japanese.

Lecture by Rev. Geo. Cochran.

The Rev. Geo. Cochran, of Toronto, gave a lecture on Japan, on Thursday evening in the Dublin street Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. There was a fair attendance. The Rev. Mr. Maxwell, pastor, presided, and after devotional exercises introduced Mr. Cochran, who, for two hours and a half held the undivided attention of the audience. Mr. Cochran's six years' residence in Japan, as a missionary, gave him an excellent opportunity of becoming acquainted with the country and its people, and although he succeeded well in packing the greatest amount of information in the short time at his disposal it is easy to be seen that he has materials for a dozen excellent lectures on this little known people. From a large map he gave a hasty sketch of the geography of Japan, which consists of four islands. The country is about a fifth larger than Britain, and about a third of its surface is mountainous. It is well watered with beautiful rivers and streams and the landscape is quite picturesque—its appearance being greatly enhanced by the rich green verdure which never loses its freshness or beauty. Irrigation by hydraulic appliances is also quite common where it is not supplied by nature. The islands are volcanic, and earthquakes and typhoons prevail. The climate is temperate, and ice is seldom formed thick enough for skating. The land is very fertile, the chief productions being rice, barley, millet, buckwheat, tea, tobacco, cotton, hemp, &c. A remarkable feature of its natural productions is the variety and beauty of its flowering shrubs. No large wild animals haunt its solitudes, though the smaller kinds abound. Another remarkable feature of the country is that there are no cattle to crop the rich herbage growing all the year round on its thousand hills. It possesses some beautiful birds of plumage, also song birds such as the lark. Its population is about thirty-four and a half millions. It has three Imperial cities, and the country is divided into sixty Provinces. The Emperor—who of course holds the highest rank in the state—is assisted in governing the country by what are called Councils of State. The present Emperor is the 121st in a direct line. The yearly revenue is sixty-eight and a half millions of dollars, the land tax alone amounting to fifty-one millions. The national debt is about 148 millions, and the total productions of the country is estimated at 400 millions of dollars. The propagation of the silk worm is a profitable business in Japan, as the eggs are exported in large quantities to Spain and Italy. Hemp, cotton and tobacco are also profitable productions. The lecturer then rapidly sketched the history of the country and went on to speak of its mythology. The people held that their Emperors were of divine descent. They believed in a heaven, and also in another indefinite region called the "high and heavenly places" where reigned a race of celestial spirits. They had a confused idea of chaos, and of the Supreme Being whose existence was more or less mixed up with that of the empire. The ball, mirror and sword were emblems of the empire, the existence of which they traced to 600 years before Christ, and claim that the empire and the dynasty is the oldest on earth. The governmental and feudal systems were then fully explained, and the positions and duties of the Emperor, the Tycoon, the Shogoon, and the Daimios. In Yeddo the Shogoon reigned supreme, and the Daimios were the great federal chiefs. There were 250 of them, and they had in training about a quarter of a million of soldiers. The closing of the ports of Yeddo in 1853 by the Shogoon was referred to—the Dutch only—who had had the privilege for 250 years—being allowed to enter; also the revolution in 1868, and the inauguration of the present liberal policy that now prevails. A very interesting sketch of society in Japan then followed, beginning with the emperor, then the military and official classes, next the agricultural classes, then the labourers, and last and lowest according to the Japanese idea, the trading class. Such is the rating of classes in Japan. A delightful visit to the country was then described, with a minute account of the houses, the rooms, furniture, &c., also a description of the hotels, likewise an interesting sketch of the city of Tokio.

The lecture was illustrated with numerous pictures, engravings, such as pictures of their divinities, the death of Buddha, inscription on a tombstone, articles of wearing apparel, shoes, socks, praying beads, &c., &c.

At the close, Mr. Maxwell conveyed the thanks of the audience to Mr. Cochran for his highly interesting lecture, and after the doxology and benediction, many came forward and examined with great interest the pictures, curiosities and other things which Mr. Cochran had brought with him, and which he had not time to exhibit during the lecture.

There is a child in Bangor, Me., whom, according to the old theory, Providence manifestly designs for either the pulpit or the gallows. This enterprising youngster has not yet reached the age of five years, but he is old in experience. Two years ago he swallowed a quantity of paint which the doctor finally succeeded in removing from his little stomach. While the recollection of this exploit was still fresh, a mouthful of laudanum found its way down his throat to that bourne whence such travellers seldom return, but again his physician was equal to the emergency. Not long afterwards his parents took their darling to Belfast to make a visit, and while there he introduced into one of his nostrils a kernel of corn which it required heroic efforts to dislodge. Without waiting for an encore the child repeated this performance immediately on his return to Bangor. This time the kernel of corn remained so long in his nose, that when finally extracted, it was found to be on the point of sprouting.

The 25th March is the day fixed by the agitators in San Francisco for abating the Chinatown nuisance. It is certain that Communism is the real object of the Kearneyites. Every arrangement is made to meet the first act of violence. Kearney was arrested at his residence this morning on two charges of misdemeanour based on remarks at a meeting on Tuesday night. He has been released on bail.

FRIDAY EVNG, MARCH 12, 1880.

The Policy of Slander.

Sir Richard Cartwright's great speech in answer to that of the Finance Minister is spoken of as the best he ever delivered. It hit so hard that Sir Charles Tupper—the great stretcher and abuser—was put up to reply to it, which he did by a coarse personal attack on Sir R. Cartwright. Mr. Mackenzie, however, fairly countered him in his reply, when he said:—"My hon. friend from Centre Huron (Sir R. Cartwright) has good reason to be proud of this, that hon. gentlemen opposite have found it impossible to answer his arguments, and have put up their most abusive man to reply to him. (Cheers.) It is an enviable position. The hon. member for Cumberland (Sir Charles Tupper) holds the stand pre-eminent even among members on his own side for the sort of work he has accomplished so fully to-night. I do not propose to follow the hon. gentleman in the use of strong language, but to endeavor by certain arguments to show that the position he has assumed is entirely untenable, and that my hon. friend has entirely justified the claims he set forth. In the first place, let me refer for a moment to the hon. the Finance Minister, against whose utterance I have nothing to say, like what I have said against his colleague He was not, however, as candid or as fair as he ought to be, but that is a fault to which we are quite accustomed in hon. gentleman opposite. (Cheers and laughter.) We do not expect them to be either fair or candid when such a course would prejudicially affect their position. The hon. member for Cumberland reproached my hon. friend for being a "renegade Tory," and says that I acted very improperly in taking a renegade Tory into my Cabinet. I might characterize the hon. gentleman himself as a renegade free trader. (Cheers.) I might characterize the Minister of Finance as a renegade Reformer, ("hear, hear," and laughter,) for I believe he was the leader of the Liberal party in New Brunswick for years. The hon. gentleman has changed his views, and I don't blame him for it if he has done so conscientiously. If he has gone conscientiously from light to darkness I give him credit, not for the intelligence displayed, but for the step he has taken. (Laughter.) But if my hon. friend is to be denounced as a renegade because he has come from darkness to light, with how much more justice and severity may the hon. member be called a renegade for having gone from light into darkness. (Loud cheers.) The present leader of the Liberal party in England was for years a Conservative, but who thinks of raising the cry against Mr. Gladstone that the hon member for Cumberland raises against my hon. friend. No man ever became a member of my Cabinet who was not entirely in accord with myself and the other members."

THE changes in the tariff caused no excitement in Montreal.

THE Ottawa Free Press says that Mr. Masson will retire from the Cabinet, and will be succeeded by either Mr. Mousseau or Mr. Ouimet, and that the Hon. John O'Connor will be appointed to a judgeship either in British Columbia or Manitoba, to be succeeded by Mr. Costigan, who will be sent for re-election to an Ontario constituency.

THE petitions presented to Parliament against the present tariff on Tuesday from electors in the city and county of St. John, N. B., were signed by three thousand bona fide electors. There are just four thousand five hundred actual electors in the joint constituencies, and the foregoing numbers show that there is undoubtedly a majority of one thousand votes in the two constituencies opposed to the policy fathered by the member for the city of St. John.

THERE is a scandal current in Ottawa that certain Conservative tradesmen there have received liberal orders from the Government without competition by tender, and that the prices charged the Government are enormously in excess of the normal charges.

THE County Council of Lennox and Addington have been dealing this week with the affairs of the ex-Treasurer, Mr. Hooper, M. P. At the January session the report of the Commissioners appointed to investigate the financial affairs of the country was laid before the Council, reporting a deficiency in the Treasurer's accounts of over $32,000, with a probable deficiency of $50,000. Mr. Hooper appeared before the Council and disputed the finding of the Commission, and asked to be allowed till the March session to investigate his accounts and prepare a statement in rebuttal of the report. On Tuesday last the Council met and the matter was again taken up as the first order of business, and Mr. J. D. Ham, one of the Treasurer's sureties, stated that the sureties would make a statement on the following day. Thursday the sureties appeared, and after pointing out some minor discrepancies in the report, stated that they were ready to pay the amount of the liability. They accordingly paid the full amount of their bonds, $4,000 each, and the third has agreed to make good the amount of his bond. Notwithstanding that Mr. Hooper, the ex-Treasurer, was granted time to examine his accounts on the distinct pledge that he would appear in person before the Council at the present session to present his statement, he has paid no attention to the matter since that time.

How the Money Goes.

The Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons are doing a good work this session, as will be seen by the following business transacted at their meeting on Wednesday morning:—It was decided to ask the Senate to authorize its accounts to appear before the Committee relative to the amount paid for salaries and contingencies by that body. On motion of Hon. Mr. Blake, it was decided to recommend that the accounts of the Senate and House of Commons Printing Committee, &c., should be audited by the Attorney-General. It was decided that the Deputy Minister of Agriculture should appear before the Committee relative to the amounts paid for criminal statistics, and the Queen's printer, relative to payments for departmental printing, &c. Mr. Hartney, Accountant of the House of Commons, appeared before the Committee and was asked for particulars regarding the manner in which eighty-nine messengers and sixty sessional clerks had been paid last session. The appropriation was only $10,000, while the expenditure was $33,000. Mr. Hartney replied that he had been authorized to take this amount out of the balance remaining to the credit of the Indemnity Fund. A discussion followed on sessional clerks, sessional messengers, &c., generally, in the course of which Sir Charles Tupper stated that this force had been reduced and the salaries of clerks decreased from $4 to $3 a day. Mr. Farrow said he could see no use for two messengers to each door. He could open a door for himself, and when he couldn't thought his usefulness as an M.P. would be gone. At the sametime, however, he considered that $3 per day was not enough for sessional clerks.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 11.

The resolution embodied in a report from the Public Accounts Committee, recommending that the Auditor-General be authorized to audit the House of Common's accounts, was concurred in; also a resolution asking the Senate to permit one of its officers to furnish certain information relative to expenditure in connection with that body.

Sir L. Tilley, in reply to a question, stated that the Government had securities for Civil Service employees to the amount of $277,100 from the Canada Guarantee Company.

Mr. Masson informed the House that 20,000 members of the active militia would be on drill this year, and that a review on the Queen's Birthday is to be held at the City of Quebec.

Mr. McCarthy's Bill to amend the Act respecting procedure in criminal cases and other matters relating to criminal law was considered in Committee.

Mr. Mills objected to the Bill as ultra vires because the Provincial Governments prescribe the constitution and the jurisdiction the Courts, and this Bill orders that minor courts shall have jurisdiction in certain cases. A short discussion ensued on this objection, in which Mr. Mills' position did not appear to be weakened. The measure was, however, advanced a stage.

Mr. McCarthy's Bill to amend an Act to provide that persons charged with common assault shall be competent as witnesses was considered in Committee, and one or two verbal amendments made.

The Bill to regulate stock brokers and suppress gambling in stocks was read the second time.

The other business was not of special interest

American Beef for Europe.

The N. Y. Tribune of Monday says:—The shipments of fresh meat and live stock on the European steamers last week were not only large, but far in excess of any previous week in several months. Besides other freight on outgoing steamers last week, the following were the consignments in live stock and fresh meat:—Germania, for Liverpool, 120 tons fresh meat; City of Montreal, for Liverpool, 41 tons fresh meat; Helvetia, for Liverpool, 163 head of cattle, and 55 tons fresh meat; Mantana, for Liverpool, 200 tons of fresh meat; Erin, for Liverpool, 246 head of cattle, 300 sheep, 150 hogs, 338 quarters of beef; Holland, for London, 440 head of cattle, 350 sheep, 150 hogs, 102 tons of fresh meat; California, for London, 125 head of cattle, 300 carcasses of sheep, 87 tons of fresh meat; Ethiopia, for Glasgow, 49 head of cattle, 550 carcasses of sheep, 2,070 quarters of beef; Gloucester, for Bristol, 78 head of cattle. This makes a total of shipments to Europe for one week of 1,221 head of cattle, 650 sheep, 300 pigs, 2,408 quarters, and 605 tons of fresh meat, and 850 carcasses of sheep.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL.—This Journal for April contains a paper giving an inside history of the Suez Canal, that is likely to create no little sensation at the present moment. The figures given of the cost of the canal are in themselves startling, but the revelation of the means taken to secure the completion of the work, of the disaster it brought upon the Khedive, and the ruin upon the trade and finances of Egypt, affords a very extraordinary chapter of history, which at the present juncture should be well pondered. The other contents of the number are of varied interest. A paper on Huth's just published Life of Buckle and an examination of the tendency of New Fiction are the distinctive literary articles. A series of papers by the famous Dr. Richardson, of London, on "Health at Home," begun in this number, are full of valuable practical suggestions. The second part of the striking story, "The Return of the Princess," is given, and "The Seamy Side" is concluded. There is a paper on Middle-Class Domestic Life in Spain; on Stage Anomalies, with some good anecdotes; one on Forgotten Aspects of the Irish Question; on the religious sect of India known as the Jainas; on a National Theatre, and editorials on a number of current topics. Copies for sale at the bookstores.

The bangs on a lady's brow are better than a barometer. In wet weather they straighten down; in dry weather they frizzle up.

ADVERTISING AND ECONOMY.—The Monetary Times some months since in an article on business failures, stated that the lack of advertising was one of the chief causes of business failures. There are business men who don't understand the value of advertising. They do not see the direct connection between advertising and the entrance of a customer, or the demand for any particular article. They also, with a self-importance which is amusing, fancy that they and their business are known to the whole community, changing as that community is to an extent which they have no conception of. The principle upon which business men should act is—advertise, and advertise the truth. If you have a good thing let the people know it. Furthermore, never let an advertisement get stale.

A Scotch landlady, being told by a customer that he hoped she put no pernicious ingredients into her liquor, retorted: "There's naething pernicious put into our barrels but the exciseman's stick."

London World: "I observed at a ball the other night some of the professional beauties wore sacks. Anklets, alias bangles for the ankles, are now openly displayed for sale in the shop windows, as well as in some cases on the feminine extremities. What next?"

Terrific Boiler Explosion in Indiana.

Ten Men Hurled into Eternity.

FRANKFORT, Ind., March 11.—A fearful explosion occurred here this afternoon. At the time of the explosion all the employees of the mill, ten in number, were gathered in the boiler room, apparently for the purpose of warming themselves preparatory to going to work. The explosion completely demolished the building, shaking the neighbouring town, and hurling pieces three hundred yards. Not one of the men escaped. When help arrived the engineer was the only one alive. He never spoke, and died in a few moments. Two of the men were buried in the debris, the rest being blown through the walls and horribly mutilated. The body of one man was found five hundred feet from the boiler-room. The head of one man was blown entirely off, and others were torn to pieces. In the absence of any survivors the cause of the explosion remains a mystery. The gauge of the boiler was fixed for one hundred pounds, but it has been the custom only to carry sixty pounds. The engineer Claxton only held the position two days. One report says his predecessor left because the boiler was unsafe, and another because an advance of wages was refused. After the explosion the mill burned. The loss is $10,000.

It is stated that a member of the Conservative party who is dissatisfied with the leadership of Mr. Meredith, and more particularly the sub-leadership of Mr. Morris, has sent circulars to all the Opposition party asking an expression of opinion on the matter.

The Grangers of King's county, Nova Scotia, are about shipping 4,000 barrels of potatoes to England. A vessel at Canada Creek, King's county, is also being loaded with 6,000 bushels potatoes, also for the English market.

The following statement shows the quantities of the several classes of grain imported in bond in the Dominion from March 15th to December 31st, 1879:—Barley, 800 bush.; rye, 770 bush.; Indian corn, 4,426,832 bush.; oats, 139,011 bush.; wheat, 7,069,759 bush.

It is reported that a terrible blizzard prevailed in Northern Minnesota on Thursday, and it is expected that soon the blockade will be re-established worse than ever. Manitoba has happily escaped this visitation.

The private theatricals at Rideau Hall were largely attended on Thursday evening. One of the principal features was the redention of the Canadian National Anthem, set to new music by Arthur Sullivan, who was recently a guest at Rideau Hall.

Mr. Bliss, a conductor on the Rock Island Railroad, was only five feet in height, and Mr. Henry, a passenger was almost seven. Henry put his ticket in his hat band and stood up straight when the little conductor came along. Bliss could not reach the ticket, even by standing on his toes, and his comical efforts made the passengers, laugh uproariously; but, without changing countenance, he brought a step ladder, leaned it against the big man, climbed up to the ticket, and then went on as though nothing had happened.

A gentleman walked into a grocery store yesterday morning and meeting a friend made the usual inquiry, "What's the latest news this morning?" "I have just bought a barrel of flour for a poor woman." "Ah, just like you; whom have you made happy by your charity this morning?" "My wife."

A Vermont woman went to a store and asked for a "cook-book," and they gave her a volume of Joseph's lectures, and after she had got up a dinner by it they found it necessary to call four doctors to get the family through the night, and rival sextons roosted on the fence for two days, prepared for emergencies.

CHAPTER XXXI.

A GLOOMY PROSPECT—THE STRANGER IN THE CHURCHYARD—JACK BORLAND INCOGNITO.

Wilson cast towards the other a sharp glance to note if his words sprung from any special idea that had entered his mind. To his relief he saw nothing in the expression of David's face to indicate anything of peculiar significance. He resolved, however, to be more guarded in word and action, and ere answering his companions question sent what seemed an inquiring look round the park.

"O! course," he observed, "the mansion stands yonder where the trees are largest and densest."

David smiled and nodded in assent.

"I conclude also that the garden, stables, and the offices are in the vicinity of the house."

"So they are. And ye think, Mrs. Borland's cottage is there?"

"I did not say that. The gardener's house is often at a distance from the other buildings, and I should not be surprised to learn that it is at the east side of the park. Am I right of wrong this time?"

"I never heard the like of that," exclaimed David, with a burst of wondering admiration."

"I am right then."

"You are indeed. The cottage is at the upper end o' yon belt of firs. Ye'll see it when we get up a bit. Wad ye like me to gang wi' ye as a kind o' introduction to Mrs. Borland."

"Oh, no, I shall not trouble you so much. I hope to be able to prevail on her to take me in. But I shall not fail to let her know that it was you who sent me."

"Dae that, sir. Say that ye forgathered wi' David Ramsay in the kirk-yard, and when I heard ye wanted lodgin's I mentioned her cottage."

"And that I come to her recommended by your good opinion," added the stranger gaily.

"If ye like, for it's true," was David's frank response.

"For which I thank you and hope to prove that your trust in me has not been misplaced. I am glad, David, very glad to have met in the successor of Adam Borland a man of your stamp. I may pay you a visit at the garden one of these days."

"I shall be proud to see you sir, and show you owre the place. It's no just sae well worth seein' as it ance was, for truth to say, the expense o' upkeepin' has been sair curtailed of late. But it's a dainty place still. Ye wunna miss the way I hope. When ye come to the offices ye'll see the high garden wa' afore ye."

"I hardly think I'll miss the way," was the answer, accompanied by a flickering smile.

Thus they parted, David turning to the left, and the stranger walking straight on into the eastward region of the park.

When he had walked far enough to be out of sight of his late companion he stood still and breathed heavily, not with exhaustion, but with emotion. Every object that met his gaze, every tree with which the park was dotted, each part and portion of the entire scene, seemed to the eyes which now gazed on them to roll back the tide of time for twenty years, and bring the memorable April night when he had last walked through that park a wilful headstrong youth with his sober-souled brother by his side—the brother over whose grave he had that afternoon shed bitter tears.

Jack Borland—for it was he—stood under the spreading branches of a chestnut, gazing round him with misty eyes and a bursting heart. Oh, how often had he beheld that scene in the visions of memory while his outward gaze rested on the richer aspects of a Virginian landscape. How often in dreams of the night, in that land of his exile, had his sleeping fancies visited the spot where now he stood, and pictured the Grange park as it now lay before him in actual reality. And every time when the visions vanished and the dreams merged in waking consciousness had he sighed to think that never again would his feet tread the dear-loved ground, or his bodily eye behold the place which haunted his imagination and his sleep, over which his memory so fondly lingered, towards which his heart turned with indescribable yearning.

Yet here he was with this sad thought satisfied, with the park before him, and all its features unfolded to his view. But a few months ago and he had not deemed such an experience possible. Between him and his native land were three barriers—an epoch of time, an ocean of water, and the ban of exile, the last of which, and the strongest of the three, he dared not overpass. It had separated him from land and kindred, cutting him utterly off from both, and dooming him to a domestic oblivion which for nearly twenty years had not been broken, and which he had come to suppose never would be broken. During all these years he had heard no more of his friends in Scotland than they had heard of him. He had accepted it as his fate that they should never more hear of each other on earth, but that only in the hereafter, when earth's sins and sorrows were ended, would they meet again to know even as also they were known.

Such was the position into which Jack Borland's mind had settled, when, a few months ago, a young man arrived at his residence in Virginia, bearing to him the sad tidings of the death of Paul Jones, and a long letter written by Paul himself in the near prospect of dissolution.

The letter informed Jack who the young man was, the lamentable position into which he was plunged; and the dying writer added that he doubted not when the youth had opened his heart fully to him, as he had advised him to do, Jack would do his utmost to afford him help, who had been the friend and solace of his old companion in his last days, ministering to him with loving hands, and who would, no doubt, receive his last breath and close his eyes when death had come.

Needless is it to say how greatly Jack was overcome by the tidings thus brought to him, how with passionate eagerness and deep respect he took to his heart the son of his old master, whom last he had seen an infant at the Grange; and who could tell him what sad and sorrowful changes had taken place there during the intervening years. At first Orwell knew nothing of the man to whom Paul had sent him. To him he was but John Wilson—the name Jack he had taken on his arrival in America—the friend of Paul, the faithful manager of his property; but he opened his mind fully to him, induced to do so not only by Paul's injunction, but because he found him so wise and kind, so warm, so profuse and sincere in his friendship. He kept back nothing, but told him all—all his folly, the completeness of his ruin, his love for Agnes Borland and how their united hearts had been sundered, his determination to relieve himself by hard, honest work, and when his prospects were brighter to write to Agnes and implore her to come to him. All this and much more he told to the deeply interested John Wilson, who listened to his story with a quivering heart, and at the close of his narrative electrified him by exclaiming with a burst of emotion—

"I am Jack Borland, the uncle of your Agnes."

The declaration struck Orwell dumb, and he could only gaze at the speaker in wild bewilderment.

"You Jack Borland?" he at length managed to gasp. "You the Uncle Jack who escaped from the cutter, and was lost in the Solway?"

"Not lost, my dear young sir," was Jack's reply, "but picked up by Paul Jones, who made me his companion, the sharer of his naval exploits in British waters, and afterwards brought me to America and gave me the management of his property."

Bit by bit Orwell was made to understand the strange eventful history, and the two spent days together in relating all that each could tell the other. How the news of Adam's death went like a barbed arrow to Jack's heart, but it was a consolation to know that he himself was believed innocent of the crime which had sent him into exile, and that Adam for years before his death had never doubted that his brother was guiltless of that night's murder. Thus Jack's bitter cup of sorrow had some drops of sweetness mingled with it.

Paul Jones had judged truly when he assured Orwell that the man to whom he was sending him would do his utmost to assist him in retrieving himself, but even Paul's idea of Jack's willingness to save Orwell from the consequences of his folly, and from the ruin into which he had been treacherously led, fell far short of the truth. There was no sacrifice Jack was not ready to make to render these consequences less heavy, and restore brightness to the two lives which had been made dark and miserable. It gratified him exceedingly to know that Orwell had set the love of his heart on Adam's child, and that Agnes had grown up to be in all respects worthy of that love. He was proud, too, of the nobleness of mind she had displayed in refusing to be Orwell's wife because of the social gulf between them. The feeling itself he understood and admired, but he viewed the matter much as Orwell did, and saw nothing in mere difference of birth to stand in the way of higher equality of heart and mind. As to the barrier constituted by Orwell's wealth and the poverty of the girl he loved—that had been effectually removed by Orwell himself, and Jack's heart gave an exultant bound as he thought how far he was in a position to remove this particular scruple from his niece's mind, of the way in which he meant to do this he said nothing to Orwell, but at the end of the second week he amazed the latter beyond expression by informing him that he was on the eve of setting out for Scotland, and that he would leave him to manage affairs in his absence.

"Keep up your spirits, my dear boy," said he. "I think I shall be able to make matters pretty right, only there is no time to be lost, for I have a notion these Langtons will seize the earliest opportunity to secure the prize for which they have been secretly working. So off I go, to try to circumvent them, and he added with a merry twinkle in his eye "if you have any letter to send to a certain young lady, I take in hand to deliver it."

Orwell's astonishment and gratitude deprived him for some moments of the power of utterance. He could only grasp Jack's hand, and blurt out broken ejaculations, but his radiant countenance was eloquent of thanks.

"The estate is gone," he said, when he became calm enough for speech. "I have no hope of saving or regaining it, but if you can prevail on Agnes and her mother to come to America, I will show my repentance for the past by working hard to provide a home for them. Oh, accomplish this, Mr. Borland, and bring Agnes to me, and I will bless you with my whole soul."

"I have not much knowledge of female nature," returned Jack, with a smile, "but I have a strong hope that your letter and my persuasions will succeed in causing her to say yes when before she said no."

In a few days after this Jack set sail from New York, and now we see him arrived in Scotland. He knew the danger he ran in coming back to Galloway, but he trusted that his change of name and the thorough alteration in his appearance would prevent him from being recognized by any of his former acquaintances. He was so utterly unlike the Jack Borland of twenty years ago that he deemed it scarcely possible his identity could be discovered, but to lessen the risk he resolved to remain very secluded during his stay, and as far as he could, avoid attracting observation. For this purpose nothing could be more fortunate than his rencontre with David Ramsay, resulting in the proposal to obtain lodgings with Mrs. Borland. It seemed as if Providence was working in his behalf, and he looked upon it a happy augury of the success of his mission.

But we have kept him long enough under the chestnut tree in the Grange park, with deep emotions crowding through his soul. As the slanting rays gave intimation that it was drawing towards sunset he moved from under the opening leaves and walked across the park in the direction of Mrs. Borland's cottage.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

STAPLES.

Shipments of 2 and 3 ply Wool, Tapestry and fine Brussels Carpets.

The Biddulph Tragedy.

LONDON, March 11.—Since Tuesday the police have been engaged working up new evidence, with a view of submitting the same at the next sitting of the Court. They are reported to have met with considerable success in this direction, consequently some interesting and perhaps damaging developments may be expected before the case concluded.

At an early hour this morning Chief Williams, Detective Phair and William Donnelly drove up to Lucan and were absent all day. While away they subpœnaed several persons for examination to-morrow. One of the number was Stephen McCormick, storekeeper of Elginfield, a post-office three miles south of Lucan. He will probably be questioned as to his knowledge of the Vigilance Committee. Another witness to be called is James Keeffe, sr., farmer living on the Roman Line, about a mile north of the Donnelly farm. He is the father of the young man who has gone to Nebraska in search of evidence for the prosecution, and was always a staunch friend of the Donnelly family, the old man and he being cronies. Old Keefe will probably tell where he saw some of the prisoners the night before the crime was committed. His evidence is expected to be pretty good. A third witness who is looked upon as reliable and material is a young farmer named Martin Hogan—a distant relation by-the-bye of the man who slept with Bill Donnelly the night he was shot. He will be examined as to a conversation he had with Purtell some time in January last relative to the murdered people. Another of the parties summoned was old man Whalen, who lives opposite the scene of the tragedy. He was about the first to know of the fire, having been aroused by Johnny Connors after the boy escaped from the burning building. Whalen went to Granton the following morning and spent some time there in company with Carroll, so that he will doubtless be asked to tell what the constable said and did that day in his presence. While in Biddulph the party met Martin Hogan, and warned him on pain of arrest to attend the Court to-morrow, which Hogan promised faithfully to do. His testimony will in the main be the same as he gave before the coroner's jury at Lucan, which must still be fresh in the minds of our readers. Father Connolly drove down from Biddulph to-day, bringing with him the book about the Vigilance Committee of which so much has been heard. He left it in charge of Mr. MacMahon, who will produce it in Court to-morrow if the Crown wishes, but from the changed aspect of the case it is thought Mr. Hutchinson will not call for the book, in which event it will be returned to the priest.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for curing Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Cough, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.

Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.

"If we are to live after death why don't we have some certain knowledge of it?" said a sceptic to a clergyman. "Why don't you have some knowledge of this world before you come into it?" was the caustic reply.

Maine News.

Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

Landlord (who comes up to his guest at breakfast, rubbing his hands together gleefully)—"Well, sir, how do you like your sausage?" "It's dog gone fine!" said the guest coolly. "Dog gone fine!" said the landlord slowly. Then his face sobered down and turned several colors before he exploded.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Daily Mercury.

SATURDAY EVNG, MARCH 13, 1880.

Local News.

THE last carnival of the season will take place on Thursday evening next.

A NUMBER of Guelph people attended the carnival in Galt last night.

THERE was as much dust flying about the streets to-day as is usual in midsummer.

THE money paid to employees on the Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway each month amounts to $20,000.

A REPORT in circulation that a child had been left on the doorstep of W. Mann's house the other night is untrue.

BAPTIST CHURCH.—The ordinance of Baptism will be administered in this church on Sabbath evening by the pastor.

GEORGE DOUGLAS, the Mount Forest forger and embezzler, was a dealer in organs and sewing machines in Georgetown some two years ago.

WEATHER PROBS.—Brisk northerly to easterly winds, partly cloudy to cloudy weather, followed by snow areas; no decided change in temperature.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.—Matthew Sheady was to-day fined $3 and $4.50 costs at the Police Court for being disorderly at the Gordon street Railway crossing, one night last week.

JOURNALISTIC.—We have received the first copies of the Elgin Gazette published at Aylmer. It is a neatly printed paper, and is issued semi-weekly. We wish it every success.

THE Rev. W. Williams will address the Guelph Gospel Temperance Club in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. All are invited; no charge. These are very interesting meetings.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—This railroad presents a scene of activity at the present time. Heavily laden trains are following each other eastward in quick succession, and whole trains of cars are being sent west to be loaded.

WITH reference to the donation of $30 made to the School Board by Mr. D. McLean, of the Inland Revenue Department, the Galt Reporter says: "All of which goes to show that our old friend's heart is in the right place."

A HEAVY WEIGHT.—The Kincardine Reporter says:—Last week this town was visited by a young woman who would be eligible to the fatmen's base ball club in Guelph, as a reserve 'man.' She is only twenty-two years of age and weighs 345 lbs.—the exact weight of Fatty Cook, captain of the fat men's team.

PERSONAL.—Mr. G. G. Rutherford, V. S., Woodstock, formerly a resident of the Agricultural College, is about leaving that town to practice in Logansport, Indiana. During his stay in Woodstock Mr. Rutherford gradually won for himself many warm friends, who universally regret his departure, and whose good wishes he takes with him.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The fortnightly meeting of the Young Men's Association of this church was held last night, when the following were elected officers: Honorary President, Rev. J. C. Smith; President, Mr. Wm. Guthrie; Treasurer, Mr. J. Mowat. Messrs. John Findlay and John McDonald, afterwards took part in a dialogue. Impromptu addresses on different subjects closed the programme.

ST. PATRICK'S SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of St. Patrick's Society was held on Thursday evening. Owing to the distress in Ireland it was decided that the Society would not observe St. Patrick's day by any demonstration. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. S. Heffernan; First Vice President, A. T. Kerr; Second Vice-President, J. L. Murphy; Secretary, J. Coffee; Treasurer, J. C. Chadwick.

COMMITTED FOR ARSON.—Samuel Gray was tried before Messrs. J. Landerkin, John Burrows, John Grose and John Walker, J. P's., at Drayton, on Thursday for arson. The charge was laid by John Tate who believes that Gray, and John Morgan an accomplice, set fire to his barn on lot 5 Con. 8 Maryborough, on the 10th November. After hearing the evidence the magistrates committed him to gaol here, where he was lodged the following day to await his trial.

INTERMEDIATE EXAMINATIONS.—The Minister of Education has revised the regulations affecting intermediate examinations. If a candidate in future obtains only 30 per cent. of the marks on each subject, and 40 per cent. on the group, he or she will be entitled to a non-professional third class teacher's certificate; if 50 per cent. of the whole number be obtained a second class B will be granted; while 40 per cent. on each subject, 40 per cent on each group, and 60 per cent of the whole will entitle the candidate to a second class grade A certificate. The standard will not be raised.

RUNAWAY.—This forenoon a horse attached to a splendid pop wagon, got frightened, and ran along the Market Square at a furious rate. The shafts had dropped down, but still the animal could not get out from between them and the waggon was jerked along, making as crooked a path as a rail fence. The driver held on to the reins, and at West Market Square became master of the situation and nobody hurt.

JUMPING ON TRAINS.—Some newsboys make a practice of going to the Grand Trunk station with the evening papers on the arrival of the 4:10 express train every afternoon. They get on and off the cars while the train is in motion, at considerable risk to their lives. One of the boys was caught in the act of jumping off the express train yesterday afternoon, and handed over to P. C. Crooks. The policeman warned him that if he were caught jumping on trains in future he would be locked up for trespass.

PROMOTION OF AN OLD GUELPH RESIDENT.—The many friends of Mr. Jas. Lockie in this city will be glad to read the following from the Waterloo Chronicle: At the recent meetings of the Directors of the Mercantile Insurance Company, and of the Waterloo Mutual of this town, some important changes were made in the official staff of each company. These changes may be briefly stated as the transfer of Mr. Huether, copying clerk in the Mercantile, to a similar position in the Waterloo, and the transfer of Mr. James Lockie from the post of correspondence clerk in the Waterloo to the important and responsible post of inspector of risks and agencies in the Mercantile. The latter company has for some time had under consideration the advisability of appointing an inspector, and in selecting Mr. Lockie for the position they have made choice of a gentleman who is not only very pleasant and affable in disposition, but is possessed of a very intimate knowledge of insurance business. We heartily congratulate him on this recognition of his worth and ability, and have no doubt that the Mercantile will find in him the right man in the right place. Mr. Huether has also been a faithful and painstaking officer, and the Waterloo has made no mistake in securing his services.

GEORGE LITTLE, son of Mr. W. J. Little, of Guelph, took second prize for fancy skating at the Galt carnival last night.

"Rev." Mr. Breese Once More.

Love-Making and Deadbeating Combined.

The London Free Press of Friday thus refers to the doings of Rev. J. T. Breese, well, if not favorably, known to many of our readers:—

On Saturday last the "rev. gentleman" arrived in this city and made application to Mrs. Portwood, living on the corner of King and Wellington streets, for board. He represented himself as a clergyman of the Congregational Church, who would be in the city while he sold one thousand books of a high classical order, and through this plausible talk was admitted to the house. [It may be remarked that the rev. gentleman is an accredited minister of no denomination.] His manner then was polite and his conversation of that character which might be expected from a man in holy orders. On the following morning he announced that he had a daughter—a lady of rare beauty—whom he intended to bring to the house, with Mrs. Portwood's kind permission. He talked freely to the boarders on the subjects of religious advancement; and while he never offered to conduct family worship or ask a blessing on the "mercies" provided, he managed to gain a substantial reputation as a man of earnest piety and respectability. At the tea table on Monday evening, however, he suffered a serious fall in the estimation of the household. During a temporary lapse in the conversation he prepounded this query:—"Mrs. Portwood, are you a widow?" Somewhat taken back the lady explained that she was not, but that her husband was away for a short time on business. This seemed to inspire Breese with unpardonable boldness, and before the meal was over he said:—"Mr. Portwood, I have telegraphed for my daughter. She is the most beautiful lady I ever saw, excepting yourself. Indeed, I am compelled to say that you are the most handsome woman I have ever met—a lovely woman!" Mrs. Portwood said she would be flattered to have such a statement made about her little daughter, but as for herself, could not think of permitting it. Breese treated the matter coarsely and in a manner sadly out of place in a house where the strictest propriety had always been exercised. On Tuesday morning he wrote a poem, entitled "The Beautiful Mrs. Portwood," and after having read it before the persons at dinner, sung it in a loud voice. The subject of the rhyme was very much annoyed, but was loth to take harsh steps against the sleeky "Divine." In the afternoon Mrs. Portwood had occasion to leave the house, and, during her absence, Breese dropped in to chat with the servant girl, a modest unassuming girl of 16 or 17. He patted her on the head and cheeks, and called her his "dear Mary," and proposed that she should go and live with him as his wife. He said he would buy her silk dresses, and between himself and daughter would manage to make her live comfortably and luxuriently. This "laying on his hands" was something to which the young woman was entirely unaccustomed, and, owing to the boldness with which Breese acted, she grew alarmed and excited. When the mistress of the house returned, the girl told her what had occurred, and Breese was peremptorily asked not to visit the kitchen again. He said the girl had lied, and, his remarks being overheard, Miss Mary entered the room and said, "You know it's true, every word of it." Breese turned pale, and was unable to reply. Next morning he left, and in the afternoon a postal card arrived bearing the following laconic message: "My dear Mrs. Portwood, gone to the Bishop's; will be back in a day or two, and continue with you. Yours very truly, J. T. B." He has not yet turned up, and his indebtedness to Mrs. Portwood remains unliquidated.

Norfolk Street Methodist Church.

Sacred Concert by the Choir of the Church.

The full choir of the above church, under the leadership of Prof. Harrington, gave a Sacred Concert in the church last evening. There was not a large number of persons present to hear the musical programme prepared. At a little after eight o'clock the concert opened with the piece "As the hart pants," by the full choir, in which the voices did not blend so nicely as has been heard before, in some cases appearing too strong, and in one or two instances, not so well balanced as they might have been; one half the number of voices engaged would have made a decided improvement. The duet for men's voices, "On to the field of glory," was much better rendered, there being an amount of vigor running through the piece that made it very acceptable. The "Hallelujah" (Mount of Olives) was pronounced by several present to be good. Following this Mr. C. W. Harrington sang the bass solo "Crucifixus" in his usual excellent way. This gentleman, as has been stated before, has a fine bass voice, and has had it well trained. Miss Clara Stevenson sang very sweetly "I know that my Redeemer liveth," the crescendo and dimuendo parts being very nicely given; the organ accompaniment of Miss Harrington also greatly assisted the singer. In the rendering of "The Storm King," and "The Heavens are Telling," the choir seemed to have had more confidence in themselves, both these pieces being admirably sung. In "Inflammatus," in which Miss Harrington sang in good taste the solo parts, and Miss Geddes presided at the organ, the same may not be said, the chorus being rather strong. Of the instrumental selections by Miss Geddes and Miss Harrington, the musical abilities of these ladies are too well known to require any lengthened notice here. With the few minor drawbacks mentioned, the concert was of a high order, and proved quite a treat to every lover of music present. The programme closed with the National Anthem and the Doxology.

How England Takes Her Census.

In Great Britain a census has been taken every ten years since 1801; and the system is now one of the most perfect in existence. Until the close of the last century there was no real method, and all previous estimations of the population of the United Kingdom were mere guess work. It seems the more strange that such should have been the fact, considering that, in the American colonies, enumerations of the population had often been made by order of the Home Government. In 1790 a beginning was made in Scotland by Sir John Sinclair, who, through his personal efforts in enlisting the co-operation of all the clergymen of the established church, collected returns which were of great value, although necessarily incomplete. After seven years he completed his compilations, and published the results in twenty-one volumes, probably the greatest statistical work ever undertaken and carried through by one private enterprise. Under the system adopted in 1851, the census in Great Britain is now taken in one day, the 31st of March. In 1851, 30,610 enumerators were appointed in England and Wales by the 1,190 district registrators in those countries, each enumerator having a distinctly defined district assigned to him. In Scotland the thirty-two sheriffs appointed the temporary registrars—generally parish schoolmasters—and 8,130 enumerators. For the smaller islands, the Government appointed 257 enumerators, and in Ireland the census was taken by the constabulary. Some days before the census day printed schedules were delivered at every house or tenement; in Wales these were printed in Welsh for the benefit of the lower classes. These schedules contained questions about the name, relation to head of family, condition, age, sex, occupation, and birthplace of every person in Great Britain, and also as to the number of deaf, dumb and blind. Measures were taken to secure accurately the names of night laborers, persons out of the country, travellers, seamen, soldiers, etc. These schedules were all filled up in the night of March 30-31 and were taken up at an early hour on March 31, the collector filling up the parts that had been left blank through their negligence or inability. All unoccupied houses and buildings in course of construction were also noted. The floating population—persons who spent the nights in boats and barges, in barns, sheds, etc., were required to be estimated as nearly as possible. The enumerators were allowed one week to make their returns in, all transcribed, and the summaries and estimates completed according to detailed instructions. The districts registrars had to complete their revision of the returns of their subordinates in a fortnight, paying particular attention to nine specially defined points. These revised returns were again revised by the "superintendent registrars," and then transmitted to the census office. The census was the most successful, in quickness and accuracy, accomplished in any country up to that time, and the same system has been pursued, with little variation, ever since. The digestion of the census reports by the central authorities is conducted most thoroughly and scientifically, and the compilations are of the greatest value to statisticians and economists. The British system has served as a model for many other countries, where the census is now taken in one day by by means of printed schedule.

The New National Hymn.

The following is the first verse of the new Canadian National Hymn, by Arthur Sullivan, the composer:—

God bless our wide Dominion,
Our fathers' chosen land,
And bind in lasting union
Each ocean's distant strand—
From where Atlantic terrors
Our hardy seamen train,
To where the salt sea mirrors
The vast Pacific chain.
O bless our wide Dominion,
True freedom's fairest scene;
Defend our people's union,
God save our Empire's Queen.

CURLIANA.

Guelph Defeats Elora by 18 Points.

Friday was a red letter day in the annals of the Guelph Curling Club for this season, when they sustained on the Elora ice their former prestige, and retrieved to a certain extent their ill-fortune of this season. Four rinks of the Club left here about eight o'clock, and drove to Elora, arriving there about eleven o'clock, to meet that club in a friendly match. The players were well "wiled" and the interest in the Gow Cup having centered itself to two, the energies of the club were bent on securing a suitable team to play Elora, and they left here with the determination of giving the Elora club and McSpurtle—a person who has been writing several letters to the Scottish American Journal anything but appreciative of the abilties of the Guelph Curling Club—a well deserved chastisement. This they did to good effect. They led their opponents all through the game, as will be seen by the score, finally wound up with eighteen shots ahead. We learn from McSpurtle's communications that the Elora club have managed to erect a rink in that rather diminutive village, and are furnished with a glowing description of its size, plan of construction, &c., &c. This correspondent also states that in times gone by the Elora club had been able to beat the Guelph club on the old dam, but when this new rink was in full operation the defeat would be something more than has been recorded heretofore. Perhaps this may account for the reason that the home club put off the game to the last moment with Elora club, being afraid to meet such men on such a rink, and may also account for the grit displayed in our curlers on this occasion throughout the game. We would advise Elora, when they next play Guelph there, to play on the old dam; they seem to be more familiar with the lie of the ice on it, and have hardly got into the way of playing on a rink yet. Apparently any club can play on a dam, but it is not every club that can play on a scientific rink like that of Elora, and give them a good respectable threshing on their own enchanted ice.

The Guelph Club report that they spent a splendid time with their Elora friends, and hope soon to meet them on the Guelph rink.

The Guelph team was entertained to an excellent dinner, by the Elora Club, which was spread out in first class style by Mr. Biggar, of the Commercial Hotel.

FIRES.

GODERICH, Ont., March 13.—A fire occurred here this morning at three o'clock on the premises owned and occupied by J. Story, tinsmith and stove dealer. The family had a narrow escape, as also had the families residing in the adjoining houses. Mr. Story's loss is upwards of $8,000; insured in the British American for $1,600; in the Liverpool and London and Globe for $1,800. The fire was caused by incendiarism.

MORPETH, Ont., March 13.—Mr. Wm. Proctor's house, a mile above this village, was destroyed by fire this morning Cause, carelessness; loss, about $200; insured for $150.

TORONTO, March 13.—Wm. Woodley's carpenter shop and stable, Ontario street, together with $400 worth of tools and machines, were destroyed by fire this morning. Mr. Howell rented the stables and had in it a horse valued at $200, and also a quantity of hay, a waggon, harness, etc., valued at $200, all of which were lost. No insurance.

MONTREAL.

Accident—The Court House—The number of Judges Insufficient.

MONTREAL, March 13.—Wm. Sinclair, a labourer at Lachine, got badly hurt by the boom of a derrick falling on him. He lies in the hospital in a low condition, without much hope of recovery.

Judge Rainville characterized the accommodation in the Montreal Court House as shamefully inadequate. He also states that the number of judges here are not sufficient for the work.

Deputy Judge of Bruce.

OTTAWA, March 13.—The Canada Gazette to-day contains the following appointment:—Mr. Barret, of Walkerton, County of Bruce, to be Deputy Judge of the County Court of Bruce.

Toronto.

TORONTO, March 13.—Alex. Dyce, employed as foreman by J. H. Rogers, hatter, was found dead in his bed yesterday. Cause—heart disease.

It is rumoured that a prominent member of the Ontario Legislature, with a brilliant University record, will shortly publish a Canadian novel, dealing with the N. P., Canadian Independence, and other problems of the day.

A young girl named Mary Swinburne, was brought before the Police Magistrate this morning on a charge of drunkenness. In a conversation with the detective, Mary stated this was the first time she had publicly given way to her liking for liquor. She was one of the combination which performed in Washington when President Lincoln received the fatal bullet, and afterwards appeared in Montreal, Hamilton, Guelph, London and Toronto, in "Article 49." Leaving the Company in Syracuse, she followed a gambler to this city. Since that time she has been drinking incessantly until she has become a common street walker and an inebriate.

SATURDAY EVNG, MARCH 13, 1880

The Forthcoming Elections in Britain.

The approaching elections in Britain are at present the all-absorbing subject of discussion among the people of the old country at present. There seems to be a feeling of relief on all hands that this appeal to the constituencies will be made so soon, and both parties are anxiously preparing for the struggle. Supporters of the Government admit that they are likely to lose a number of Scotch and Irish votes, but say that after deducting all doubtful constituencies they will retain a majority of 20 to 30. The Liberals, on the other hand, seem in good spirits and appear confident of success. It is calculated that in Ireland seven Conservatives will lose their seats and be replaced by Home Rulers, and eight Conservatives will be replaced by Liberals, and that two Liberals will be replaced by Home Rulers. On the other hand, the several Home Rule contests will be watched narrowly, and where an opportunity offers a Conservative will be brought forward. The Home Rulers count on returning with seventy votes, and the active section claims that thirty of these will support Mr. Parnell. The Conservatives, though strong in their union, look with much concern at their prospect in the North, and the Liberals, pure and simple, are still more alarmed at the affairs in other Provinces. The Home Rulers, never very cordially united, are discouraged and in advance of Mr. Parnell. The party which though small, seemed to be gaining the ascendant, and to be more firmly bound together by a progressive policy, are as perplexed as the rest. It is expected that there will be a general scramble, in which many seats will be lost and won by different sections, according to the skill and energy with which the changes and opportunities of the occasion are taken advantage of; but the belief is entertained by many shrewd observers that in the counties the more advanced section of Nationalists will obtain more strength, while in the boroughs a more moderate policy will find favour.

The Marquis of Hartington in his manifesto to the Liberal party repudiates any desire on their part to alter the imperial character of the realm, or to enfeeble the Colonies by a policy of decomposition. He describes the demands of the Home Rulers as impracticable, and considers any concession to them would be mischievous. He deprecates Earl Beaconsfield's exaggerated language in treating Home Rule as a danger worse than pestilence or famine. The agitation must be met- not by passionate exaggeration—but by firm resistance, combined with proof that Parliament is willing to grant the just demands of the Irish for equal laws and institutions. The address endorses the Government in its Irish educational measures, and condemns the foreign policy of the Government. He says:—"The Anglo-Turkish Convention which is the key-stone of the settlement of the Eastern Question which the Government claims to have effected, remains a dead-letter. The Greek frontier question is as far from settlement as ever. Thus the Government policy has failed, but the immense responsibilities incurred by England remains. The Afghan war brought neither honor nor advantage. In Afghanistan the Government destroyed a nation whose independence and strength of friendship they declared important to the safety of the frontier of India."

Mr. Gladstone has issued a very able address to the electors of Midlothian, and is thus criticized by the Times, which is at present in sympathy with the Beaconsfield Government. "The address is a brilliant and concentrated summary of his familiar indictment against the whole Government and all it has done. It is very effective as a declaration, but has a tone of weakness. There is nothing throughout it to remind us that there are any political realities to be considered in pronouncing judgment except the Ministers themselves. Gladstone leaves out of sight the essential circumstances with which the Ministry were concerned—the Eastern Question, the depression of trade, and the worst harvest of the generation. There is nothing visible to his gaze but the military feature, which has been gratuitously misusing the resources and discrediting the honour of the country. The great facts of the political world of the day are elements which Gladstone leaves out in his sketch, and unfortunately they are indispensable to a satisfactory review of the situation."

The Insolvent Act Disposed of.

In the Senate on Friday Hon. Adam Hope moved the "six months' hoist" with respect to the Bill from the Commons amending the Insolvent Act. But in view of the reiterated opinion expressed in the popular branch of Parliament the motion was defeated by a vote of 47 to 17. The Bill was then read a second and third time and passed. The commercial public will now have to conduct their affairs with reference to the Sheriff rather than the Official Assignee.

The British Budget.

In the House of Commons on Thursday, the Chancellor of the Exchequer introduced the Budget, showing that the revenue this year yielded £2,195,000 less than estimated, leaving a deficit of £3,356,000. The Chancellor said the supplementary estimate would have further increased the deficit to about five millions if all the money asked for under these estimates had been spent, but their amount was more than covered by savings in other branches of expenditure. The cost of the Zulu war was £5,138,000, nearly all of which has been defrayed by England. The estimates for next year are:—Expenditure, £81,485,000; revenue, £81,560,000. The Chancellor proposes to alter the probate administration duties in a manner which will increase the surplus to £557,000, and he also proposes to make co-operative stores liable to the income tax, though the exemption in favor of industrial and provident societies will be continued. Eight millions in Exchequer are now out. Six millions of these will be converted into terminable annuities. Of the yearly fund necessary for the payment of these annuities, £1,400,000 will be raised by a new sinking fund, and £800,000 by increasing the permanent charge of debt. This will absorb the increased surplus, £775,000, and the proceeds of the income tax on co-operative stores, leaving a surplus of £178,000. The eight millions of Exchequer bonds before referred to were issued on account of the expenditure for preparation during the Eastern excitement and the cost of the Zulu war. He had no intention to submit a vote for a contribution from this country towards meeting the expense of the Afghan war. He declared that the result of the six years' tenure of office by the present Government would be a reduction of the funded debt by £20,342,000.

The National Game.

How it is Played and How it is Not.

The Perplexing "13, 15, 14," and a Solution for the General Trouble.

"It's merely a question of time."

"And eternity—"

"What? Humph!"

Three heads were side by side in a Detroit news depot. Before the central one was a square paper box, in which were 15 blocks, numbering from one up, and not arranged in consecutive order. The first speaker wasthoughtfully moving the blocks here and there, striving to ultimately secure anorder like this:

1	2	3	4
5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12
13	14	15

When he began the blocks were well scattered, No. 7 being where No. 1 should be, etc. Gradually the upper row got into line, then the second row and then the third. The faces brightened.

"It's a mere question of moves now," the mover said. The lower row read 13, 15, 14. No. 14 was moved one space to the right; No. 11 was dropped down; No. 10 was moved over; No. 15 into its place.

"I've got it now—nearly."

A few more moves, aided by many fingers from right and left—for the group had increased—brought the lower row all right, 13, 14, 15; but the third row read 9, 10, 12.11—not quite correct, but "I'll soon have it," said the player.

There were more moves, and the way to success seemed clear, when suddenly a stout man, a little apart from the others, unperceived, been working away at the same game jumped up,clapped his nearest neighbor on the back with a blow heavy enough to knock the wind out of an air pump, shouting, "Hooray! I've got it! There! look at that, every number where it should be. I'm the first man in the country to do it. I knew I could!"

Half a dozen faces brightened, half a dozen men asked excitedly, "How'd you do it?" and all looked at the box as if it contained one of the seven wonders of the world. There was a long gaze; then some one laid a finger solemnly on the second row. It read 10, 9, 11, 12!

"That's so," said the stout man cheerfully; "I didn't see that," and he went to work with a zeal worthy of a book agent.

As the historians say when they come to sum up a great battle: "The whole world knows the result." The stout man is still at work,while he man who thought the solution of the problem merely a question of time, has considerable time as well as the game unsolved still on his hands.

There is hardly an owner of the game but has solved it at least once, but how he did it he is unable to tell. There is one man in Detroit, however, whose success in obtaining the consecutive order, is far above the usual. Col A. M. Edwards, of the customs service, handles the blocks with a rapidity unknown in anyone else, and he affirms that he can invariably bring a consecutive order out of any arrangement of the numbers except when the blocks are transposed, as 15, 14; or 8, 7,o 5 4. Take for example the following situation, from which possibly Mr. Edward's principle can be learned: Every row in perfect order, except the last, which reads 15, 13, 14, with the open space where, according to the box cover, the 13 should be.

First 9 is dropped to where 13 should be; 10 is moved one space to the left; 15 one space up; 13 and 14 to the left; 12 down; 11 to the right; 15 to the right; 10 to the right; 9 up; 13 and 14 to the left; 15 down; 11 to its proper position; 12 to its, and the consecutive order is obtained, and you are happy.

In case Mr. Edwards, after arranging three rows, finds his last row reading 13, 15, 14, he can by displacing any other two numbers, secure readily the consecutive order which millions are to-day striving after; but he believes that unless a change is made, it is impossible to solve the problem of 13. 15, 14.

The following,from the New York Herald, will show that he is correct only with the restriction that the box be not turned a quarter round:

"W. H. S." sends a clear letter showing that the puzzle can be done in 14 moves from the 13, 15, 14 position, and asks, "Can it be done in less?" He says, "Turn the box so that 1,5, 9,13, lie at the bottom. Then move 4 to the right, 1 up, 13 to the left, 12 down.3 to the right, 1 up, 14 to the left. 8 down, 2 to the right, 5 up, 13 to the left, 11 down, 6 to the right, 9 up, and 15 to the left." This is the quickest solution yet shown.

All study of this game may be said to result in the following statement: There are just two kinds of situations which come from moving the numbers to establish consecutive order; one kind can always be worked out successfully,and the other kind—as 13, 15,14,or 10, 12,11—cannot unless, as in the above from the Herald, the box be turned one quarter round.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 12.

Mr. Jones presented a petition signed by the Anglican Bishop of Ontario against the Bill proposing to legalise marriage with a deceased wife's sister or a deceased husband's brother.

Mr. McCarthy moved for leave to introduced a Bill to explain clause 12 of the Act relating to the Northern Railroad Company.

Mr. Mackenzie objected to the Bill because it proposed to amend the Company's charter against the wish of the Company as a Company.

Mr. McCarthy then movedthat the rule be suspended, so that the Bill should be introduced at this stage.

Mr. Mackenzie objected on the ground that the rules of the House required imperatively that all private Bills should be printed before their introduction.

The Speaker ruled this objection fatal.

Messrs. McCarthy and Kirkpatrick sought to speak to the ruling, but amidst the derisive cheers of the Opposition the "brains of the party" and the member for Frontenac were called to order by the Speaker.

The debate on the budget was then resumed. Mr. Mackenzie on rising to continue his speech was greeted with Opposition cheers. Referring to the important duties on sugars, he claimed that the tariff legislation was so directed as to preclude the possibility of a sugar refinery being established in the Province of Ontario, as every obstacle was thrown in the way of sugar being imported via the railway system of the State of New York from the city which bears its name. The result of the tariff on sugar was, even with an increased importation, to decrease by half a million of dollars the revenue derived from the article, and the price per pound to the consumer was increased one cent more than it would have been had not the change in the tariff taken place. Considerable stress was laid by Sir Charles Tupper the other evening upon the circumstances that, owing to the commercial depression when the late Administration was in office, there were financial deficits four out of the five years, and he claimed that the deficits amounted to nine millions of dollars. Mr. Mackenzie disposed of this as many other "stretchers"have been disposed of in past debates, by quoting the facts and figures. In 1874 5 there was a surplus of $935,649; in 1875-6, a deficit of $1,900,795; in 1876 7, a deficit of $,460,027; in 1877-8, a deficit of $1,128,147; in 1878-9, a deficit of $1,937,999, making a total of $6,426,968. That is even including the deficit of the past year, for which the Opposition deny all responsibility. From this total deduct the surplus, and it leaves a net deficit of $5,491,324, and from this again there should be deducted $4,090,064 paid in redemption of debt, leaving a true deficit of only $1,401,360, instead of the eight or nine millions claimed by the Minister of Railways. A feature, however, which should not be overlooked is that on assuming power in 1873-4, after the Conservatives had controlled the expenditure for eight and a half months, the Liberal party succeeded in keeping the expenditure within the estimates prepared by their opponents. But the Conservatives assumed power in 1878-9, and although the Liberals had controlled the expenditure only three months and a half, yet the present Government exceeded the estimates by an enormous sum of money. Mr. Mackenzie then referred to the duty on wool, which, on the authority of several letters received from gentlemen well informed on the subject, he foretold would be unproductive of revenue and non-protective to the farmers; to the badbargain made by Sir John Macdonald in relation to the Washington Treaty — the bartering of important privileges for no equivalent; Senator Fabre's mission to France, and Sir A. T. Galt's mission to Spain, for which he had been paid $12,000 to accomplish nothing; to the lamentable results of a retaliatory policy upon the United States, as instanced in the malt duties now being imposed at Washington on malt imported into that country, and in conclusion he narrated the circumstances which led to the expulsion of the Conservative party from power in 1873.

Mr. Rykert followed, dealing principally with the past record of the ex-Minister of Finance and several members of the Liberal Opposition. Stripped of its extracts from a scrap book, its gross personalities, and its abuse, his speech resolved into nothing.

Mr. Ross (Middlesex) spoke next, and he devoted his prelatory remarks to a caustic treatment of the member for Lincoln, who had charged several members of the Opposition with an inconsistent career.

The debate was adjourned, and the House rose at midnight.

The Advance Guard of the Salvation Army.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Among the immigrants who arrived by the steamship Australia,from London,on Wednesday were eight persons, one man and seven women, dressed in a peculiar uniform. They attracted much attention by their singing, prayers, and religious services while in Castle Garden. They said:

We come here for the purpose of extending the work of the Salvation Army, and will make our head quarters in New York. The organization is an army of men and women mostly belonging to the working classes. Rev. Wm. Booth, formerly a Methodist minister, was led to establish the mission by noticing the immense multitudes in London, that went to no place of worship, and for whose conversion no special efforts were made. He took a stand alone in the open air in the east end of London in July,1865, and on September 30, 1879, had enlisted 122 corps under command of 195 officers. These were using for services weekly 148 theatres, music halls, warehouses, and other buildings, and were holding open air services at the rate of 45,000 annually, and indoor services at the rate of 60,000. There were 257 persons employed as officers,ministers, missionaries,. colporteurs, and Bible women, and 3,250 others ready to do service at any time. Our work is not sectarian, since we seek those who have no religion, and our service is that of the early Methodist, so far as doctrine and principles are concerned, but our form of service is what might be called here an "experience meeting."

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Dr. Duff the Great Indian Missionary.

On his first journey to India in 1830, Mr. Duff, then a young newly married man, was with his wife twice shipwrecked. The first time the ship ran on a sand-bank about forty miles from Capetown, and the passengers escaped as by a miracle to a small island. Walking along the shore a sailor noticed an object cast ashore. It proved to be a quarto copy of Bugster's Bible and a Scotch Psalm-book, which had been packed in a box with other books belonging to Mr. Duff. Of the eight hundred volumes which he had taken out with him, all were swallowed up by the ocean save forty, and of these forty the only books not reduced almost to pulp were the Bible and the Psalter. The instinct which led all the passengers to recognize in this incident a message from God became in the case of the young minister a conviction that henceforth human learning must be to him a means only, not in itself an end. At the entrance of the Hooghly, the "East Indiaman," in which the missionaries sailed from Cape Town was seized by a cyclone and driven on a bank of clay, where it slowly keeled over. By means of a rope attached to a tree the passengers escaped, and drenched with mud, spent their first twenty-four hours in India in an idol temple. At length boats came from Calcutta to the rescue of the shipwrecked party, and Mr. Duff and his wife received a warm welcome from a number of residents of the Capital, including Lord William Bentinck, the Governor-General.

Alexander Duff was little more than twenty-four years of age when, a tall and handsome man, with flashing eye, quivering voice, and restless gesticulation, he first told the ruler of India what he had given his life to do for its people. Heir of Knox and Chalmers, he had to begin at the heart of Hindooism what they had carried out in the mediævalism of Rome and the moderatism of the kirk of the eighteenth century. He had also to make it a missionary kirk. His work was to be two-fold—in East and West. Need we wonder that, when the Calcutta newspapers told the story of the repeated shipwrecks, the very natives remarked—"Surely this man is a favourite of the gods, who must have some notable work for him to do in India."

The Biddulph Tragedy.

LONDON, March 12.—After Wm. Hogan's evidence, at the inquest, was read over to him, Mr. MacMahon proceeded to question Hogan, as to the position of Wm. Donnelly's bed and the window, etc. It was hard to make out what the witness meant, and he went astray on one or two points.

The Crown Attorney followed with a string of questions, but they only tended to mix up the witness worse. By-and-bye the two counsel managed to set him right and his evidence was taken down. It referred merely to the position of the bed, stove and windows in Wm. Donnelly's room where Hogan slept.

Patrick Whalen was next sworn. Mr. Hutchinson read the evidence witness gave at the inquest. Whalen said there were three or four passages not correctly taken down. He acknowledged to the Crown Attorney that the evidence was read over to him by the Coroner before he signed it. He made the following correction:—I did not let young Connor in our place after the fire; he shoved the door in himself; I did not ask him his name—it was my wife; the first thing the boy told me was that a lot of men dressed in women's clothes had run the Donnelly's into the woods; he did not tell me that James Donnelly was called up and that they tied his hands.

The witness was then subjected to a severe cross-examination.

Martin Hogan, jun., gave evidence about his connection with the Vigilance Committee. He said when admitted that there was "something said about an oath; I think a man asked me if I would take my oath; they didn't tell me what the oath would be; we were standing in the porch and I asked them where they wanted us to swear me; they said "come on up;" we went up to the head of the school house, where there was a division; I had not promised to take the oath before this; John Heenan asked me if I would take the oath; I don't know who raised the question of division; the majority went to one side, and it was a very large majority, including Carroll, Kennedy, McLaughlin and Heenan; they were pretty near all against it.

The young lad Wm. Maher was the next witness, but his evidence was of no importance.

The name of Michael Carroll was then called, but he failed to appear. Carroll was a brother of the constable, and also lives at Maher's. The Chief said a constable went out there with a subpœna that morning and they had told him Carroll was in the city.

This closed the case. Mr. MacMahon called no witnesses.

The Magistrate reserved their decision.

CHAPTER XXXII.

AN INTERESTING MEETING—A RESEMBLANCE DETECTED—JACK BORLAND IS DOMICILED IN HIS OLD QUARTERS, AND MAKES FRIENDS OF AGNES AND HER MOTHER.

As Jack Borland went across the park towards the cottage, the recollection rushed upon him of the time when last he walked along the path. It was about the same hour and an equally fine evening in April twenty years ago, his brother was by his side, and they were winding their way homewards after the day's work in the garden. Well did he remember their conversation during that walk, the very tree under which they were passing when Adam laid his hand on his shoulder and earnestly entreated him to have no further connection with the smugglers. What momentous issues had resulted from his refusal to give heed to his brother's advice. Standing on that spot now after the lapse of twenty years Jack could not determine whether these issues had been on the whole advantageous or adverse, but there could be no doubt that his self-will had inflicted heavy sorrow on Adam's heart, that it separated them for ever on earth, and cast a shadow on the rest of his brother's life. For this, if for nothing else, Jack had cause to feel deep regret, and that day the thought of it had caused much bitterness to mingle with the tears he had shed over Adam's grave.

For himself he had no real cause to regret the consequences of that night's events. Providence had been far kinder to him than his rash and reckless obstinacy deserved. His twenty years of exile had been to him profitable in every respect. They had brought him an immensely larger experience of life, elevated his position in all its aspects, raised him to a much higher social sphere, and enabled him to acquire property and wealth. Thus comparing himself as he now stood with what he was twenty years ago, and with what in all likelihood he would have been had he remained at home that night as Adam wished, Jack gratefully confessed that good had come out of evil, and that for once the prodigal had not come to grief in the far country.

But at a moment like this such a comparison could not dwell in Jack's mind. He could think only of that last walk with his brother, and so vividly did his present surroundings recall it to his mind that the intervening twenty years seemed but a dream. It required no stretch of fancy to imagine that he and Adam had just quitted the Grange garden, that his brother was still by his side, and that the youthful Jessie and the wee Agnes were in the porch awaiting their coming. The scene on which he gazed served to complete the illusion, for the appearance of the park was hardly changed. The same trees stood in the same places, their very forms were as he remembered them, and as they had appeared a thousand times to his mental vision in the Far West.

A tumultuous throbbing was in his heart as he approached a thicket of densely growing shrubs, for he knew that when he emerged on the other side of it the cottage would come into view, and when at length his eyes fell on it standing by the side of the wood his bosom swelled almost to bursting. There it was with its bright lattices, its white walls, its rose-embowered porch, and a thin wreath of blue smoke rising from the kitchen chimney.

It was visible thus for only a few moments, for as Jack's eyes filled with tears they brought a mist to make it indistinct and render necessary the use of his handkerchief.

"Oh, heaven!" he huskily whispered, "I never hoped to see the dear place again. But I must repress this emotion. I must be cool and try to play the part which it is necessary for me to assume. Should Jessie recognize me the consequences may be serious. But surely it is impossible she should, I am so utterly changed; and besides she believes, as Adam and the others did, that I perished that night in the Solway. No; there is no fear of discovery unless I betray myself, and this I must not do till the proper time comes."

Unquestionably Jack was utterly changed from what he had been at the time of his departure. Then he was a raw, beardless, country youth, dressed in home spun clothes, with a blue bonnet on his head, and hob-nailed shoes on his feet. Now he was a broad powerful well formed man, with a brown complexion, and an immense beard, well dressed, with a bearing and comportment such as a large experience of the world can alone contract. Despite, however, these material alterations, there was a family likeness of which he was not conscious, and which he could not get rid of. Had he known how closely his eyes in their color and expression resembled Adam's he would not have been so sure of non-recognition on the part of Jessie. The build of his frame, too, was solid and muscular as Adam's had been, only Jack had developed into greater smartness, and the arms which fell from shoulders of the same broad type were fuller of emotion and activity. Still, there was a general likeness, strong enough to draw the attention of one who cherished Adam's memory as she did, who had been the wife of his bosom.

Ignorant of a fact which would have increased his uneasiness had he known it, Jack, who was now approaching the cottage, drew his broadbrimmed hat close over his brow, and held the travelling bag he carried with a more nervous grasp, walked with a resolute step up the garden path into the porch, and gave a hasty knock upon the open door.

It was answered by Jessie herself, who gazed in silent astonishment at the huge form that filled up the doorway.

"May I ask if this is Mrs. Borland's cottage?" said Jack, with pardonable dissimulation, but with a voice singularly low for such a big man. The sight of Jessie in her widow's dress had nearly deprived him of the power of articulation.

"Yes, sir, it is," was the quiet answer.

"Oh—then perhaps you are Mrs. Borland herself?" was the next dissimulative observation.

"I am. Would you please to walk in sir?"

"Thank you. I was so fortunate as to meet with a friend of yours—David Ramsay, the gardener—who was good enough to say to me that you would perhaps accommodate me with lodgings for a few weeks."

"Lodgins, sir?" echoed Mrs. Borland, in amazement, as she led the way into the kitchen—the apartment which Jack knew so well, every object in which he recognized at a glance.

"Yes madam. I have recently landed from America, and, being desirous of spending a short time in this neighbourhood, I shall take it as a very great favour if you could accommodate me for the time. I promise to give you very little trouble."

They were now in the kitchen standing in the middle of the floor. The clear light of evening had begun to fade, but was still strong enough to show fully to Mrs. Borland the form and features of the stranger, and at these she gazed like one stunned or petrified, making no answer to his proposal, evidently unable to do so from some powerful influence under which she laboured.

The imports at the port of New York for February are $13,174,000 greater than for the corresponding month last year, while the exports are $4,546,000 less.

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

Last session, when the matter of the printing of the Library catalogue was brought up in the House of Commons, Sir John Macdonald tried to excuse the matter and promised that no more than contract rates would be charged. From a return brought down in the Public Accounts Committee it would appear that the Citizen Printing Company got $1,000 more than contract rates.

The Government has decided to grant $800 to Mr. McKinnon for injuries sustained by an accidental discharge of a weapon in the hands of one of his men while on duty in Montreal during the 12th of July trouble.

The rumour current on the Stock Exchange that the Montreal Telegraph Company had transferred all its business to the American Union is denied by Sir Hugh Allan. The relations existing between the Western Union and Montreal lines are entirely amicable, the former Company having made a liberal concession to the Canadian Company.

The Christian Guardian speaks approvingly of Mr. Blake's Bill to secure a better supervision of the criminals of the country, necessitated by the recent great increase of crime, and adds: "It was just the measure to make Canada a dreary spot for criminals, and we regret that the House did not see fit to pass it, but treated it to the six months' hoist.

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitter, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

REGENT HOUSE.

AS INTIMATED IN MONDAY'S COLUMNS WE HAVE RENEWED OUR partnership for another term. All are aware we have cleared out the most of our large stock, thus enabling us to buy a large stock for the spring trade. We have purchased some of the finest and cheapest goods ever brought into Guelph, and to-morrow (Saturday) we will show an assortment of Dry Goods which every lady in this City and Country should see. The great attraction for this season of the year will be our New Prints. In this department we excel, and never before have such beautiful patterns been shown in Guelph. We have added a new rule to our business regulations:—all goods marked in plain figures. Look out for the windows.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The defeat in the French Chambers of the article providing for the expulsion of the Jesuits from the public schools in that republic is being widely discussed in Europe. For the time being the Jesuits have the best of it; but it appears that there is a statute prohibiting the members of this religious body from holding positions of public trust, which dates as far back as 1830. It is stated in clerical circles that the French Jesuits intend seeking refuge in Spain if expelled from France.

MONTREAL.

The Late Mr. Holton, M. P.

MONTREAL, March 15.—The remains of Hon. Mr. Holton arrived here this morning from Ottawa. A large number of members will attend the funeral. A special train will be run for that purpose.

Murderous Assault at Peterboro.

PETERBORO, Ont., March 15.—On Saturday afternoon, two Frenchmen, living in the lower end of the town, named Joseph Lavasseur and Peter Dugnout, were arrested by Constables McGee and McFadden, of London, on warrants charging them with having committed a murderous assault on Mr. Bronker, hotelkeeper, Kinmont, one day last week.

From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 15.—Senator MacPherson is convalescent.

Fires.

ST. THOMAS, March 15.—About ten o'clock last night a fire broke out in Thornton's livery stable. The alarm was quickly given, and the firemen were promptly on hand and soon had it under control. Damage slight. Cause, explosion of a coal oil lamp.

ORANGEVILLE, March 15.—About 12 o'clock last night fire was seen issuing out of a one and a half story frame building situated on east side of John st., occupied by W. L. Clark & Bros., broom manufacturers. Owing to the character of the building, the inflamable nature of contents and the distance from our system of water works, nothing could be done to save the building or contents. The building was owned by Thos. Wilson, now of Toronto, and the contents by the tenant, who was in the neighborhood, but not in the house. The origin of the fire cannot be accounted for, as there had been no fire in the store for some hours, and the house was locked. The contents were insured in the Western. The loss on both is total.

BARRIE, March 15.—A fire broke out about 4 o'clock this morning, destroying H. G. Bigelow's Hotel, the Singer Sewing Machine office, L. B. Warnicas jewellery store, K. W. C. Penton's fruit store, John Woods' drug store and C. H. Clark's Dominion Telegraph and Express office. With the exception of Bigelows, all is a total loss, estimated at $16,000; insurance not yet known. The fire is supposed to have originated in Penton's, but from what cause is unknown. The losses are estimated: At Garton's building at $2,500; insured for $1,000 in London, Liverpool and Globe and $500 in the Queen's. L. B. Warwick, watchmaker, goods, $2,000; insured for $500 in Canada Fire and Marine. Singers Manufacturing Co., goods, $800; no insurance. J. M. Bothwell, goods, $4,000; insured for $1,000 in Scottish Commercial and $1,000 in London, Liverpool and Globe. C.H.Clark, goods and improvments, $1,000; insured in Standard for $400. E. S. Meeking, $2,000; insured for $400 in Royal. John Wood's, drugs, &c., $1,000; insured in Northern of Scotland for $400. Bigelow, stock and furniture, hotel, $3,000; insurance $600 in Imperial, $600 in Queen's and $1,500 in Hartford. C. P. Reid & Co., of Toronto, building, $800; insured for $2,500, company not known. Mrs. Sheridan, building, $3,000; insured for $2,000, company not known. Penton, goods, loss not know, said to be insured for $1,000.

THE ICE HARVEST. — Mayor Sleeman commenced cutting ice on Barber's dam to-day with a staff of fourteen men. He has employed Mr. John Hewer to cut a quantity on Goldie's dam, and Mr. Hewer started to work with a number of men this morning. The ice varies in thickness from five to six inches. Mr. Fairbank has commenced cutting on the pond near the old Bull Frog tavern.

"H. M. S. PARLIAMENT."—The McDowell Company arrived in the city to-day, and the scenery required in the representation of "H. M. S. Parliament" has been arranged in the City Hall. The reserved seat tickets are selling rapidly and the Company are quite sure of a bumper house. In Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, and other places where they have appeared they have met with the greatest success, and the press compliments both the play and company very highly.

CHURCH PARADE.—The Ontario Field Battery under command of Capt. McCrae attended divine service in Chalmers' Church on Sunday forenoon. There was a good muster and the men presented a fine orderly appearance while marching from the Agricultural College to the church. Rev. Dr. Wardrope occupied the pulpit and preached a very effective and appropriate sermon based on 1 Corinth. ix chap., 26th verse: "I therefore so run not as uncertainly; so fight I not as one that beateth the air." After service the battery reformed and marched to the Agricultural College.

CLEARED OUT. — The Monetary Times says: A few days ago, a farmer in the township of Amaranth, James Jones by name, made a claim on the Agricultural Ins. Co. of Watertown for $500, being indemnity for the loss by fire of a barn. This he swore was worth from $700 to $800. On inspection it was found to be worth only about $25. This being his third attempt to raise the wind, the first two having succeeded, proceedings were taken against him for perjury, and when the constable went to search for him he was among the missing.

SACRED CONCERT.—A sacred concert is to be given in the Church of Our Lady on the evening of Wednesday for the benefit of St. Joseph's Hospital, when Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be rendered by the full choir. Rossini's compositions of a religious character are few, but they would suffice to establish the fame of any author. His "Stabat Mater" is a conception of the highest order. But, to be understood, it must be given with the original words, or at least with words that are a faithful, literal translation of the original, for the great beauty of the the work consists in the admirable rendering of the words in music. The words are an exquisitively devotional hymn to Our Lady of Dolors, and were composed by some unknown but truly pious churchman of the 13th century.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.—Some unknown persons attempted to burglarize the grocery store of George Wilkinson, Gordon street, early Sunday morning. Mr. Wilkinson was wakened about three a. m. by the dog in the store room barking. He did not pay much need at the time but was aroused again about five o'clock by the dog barking on the sidewalk in front of the store. Mr. Wilkinson asked his sons if they had closed the dog in, and receiving the reply that they had, he went down to the store. He found that the door at the entrance to the dwelling of the family had been forced, and that the fastening of the store room door was broken. This was all the damage done, the burglars being probably prevented from carrying out their intentions by the dog.

FAST SKATING.—There has been considerable talk of late amongst our skaters about fast skating, and some appear anxious to know who can move fleetest on the ice field. That there are a few in this city who can make good time on their skates is easily to be seen on the rink any evening in the week, and it may not be an unprofitable undertaking for the managers of the rink to get up an entertainment of this kind, and set the minds of some of their patrons at ease. The affair, a correspondent suggests, could be arranged easily; two or three efficient time keepers could be appointed, three or more could race at a time, and the one that made the best time in a tour of fifty, or more or less, times round, would be declared first, and then second and third in order as they followed. The writer adds, the skating might be continued for two or three evenings, a slight fee made for competitors and spectators, and a portion of the receipts go towards the prize list. A ladies' competition, it is suggested, would also add to the interest. With the centre of the ice filled with spectators, a band of music present, and the sides and ends reserved for the competitors, the scene would it is said, be highly amusing and exciting.

PETITIONING TO REMOVE A FINE.—Several years ago one Robert Hicks, of Amaranth township, county of Wellington, was charged by the Inland Revenue Department with having an illicit still on his premises. The case was brought into Court, and a fine of $1,700 ordered to be imposed. The late Government were approached for the purpose of having the penalty removed, but they refused to do so. Now that Mr. Hicks' political friends are in power, a deputation within the past few days waited on the Government renewing the pressure, but it understood that no decision has been given yet.

POLICE COURT.—Owing to the illness of the Police Magistrate Mayor Sleeman and Mr. George Elliott, J. P.'s, presided at the Police Court to-day. The only cases tried were one of disorderly conduct and another of interfering with the police, both arising out of a row in rear of the Queen's Hotel, on Saturday evening. The prisoners Gilbert and Alex. McCaig, with some other parties from Puslinch, were acting in a disorderly manner at different hotels during the evening, and though the police were sent for several times they could not find the offenders. Finally, the Chief and P. C. Crooks came across them at the Queen's Hotel, and when they ordered the disorderly characters to be quiet Gilbert McCaig spoke back insultingly. The Chief handed him over to P. C. Crooks to be taken to the cells, when the prisoner's brother, Alex. McCaig, tried to prevent the arrest. He was also arrested for interfering with the police. Alex. McCaig was fined $5 and costs and Gilbert McCaig $1 and costs.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

A Model Farm Student Falls Into the Speed River.

M. A. Dawes, a student at the Agricultural College, narrowly escaped drowning in the Speed on Saturday afternoon. He was skating near the Eramosa bridge when the ice gave way under his feet and he sank overhead in the water. When he rose to the surface he caught the ice surrounding him, and thus held his head above water. His cries soon brought a number of people on to the bridge, but no effort was made to rescue him till George Bond arrived, on his way to the store. He ran across the ice to where Mr. Dawes was, and grasped him, but while trying to raise him, the ice broke again, and he himself was precipitated into the water. Mr. Bond was tall enough to stand on the river bed and yet keep his head above water, and though his position was cold and uncomfortable he was in no real peril. His companion's position was more dangerous, and he struggled desperately to scramble on to the ice, but, as often as he tried to raise himself as often would the ice break, and the unfortunate young man would be sent down under the surface of the water again. Finally a clothes line was procured by some of the people on the bridge and thrown to those in the water. By this means Mr. Dawes was first enabled to gain a secure foothold on the ice, and he was followed by Mr. Bond. Both were naturally very cold and wet, and the former was pretty well exhausted, but in a few hours fully recovered the effects of his ducking.

FROZEN TO DEATH.—On Saturday, 6th March, the body of Robert Morrow was found in the neighborhood of Riversdale. Morrow had been at Walkerton the previous day and was drunk when he left for his home at Riversdale in the evening. It is supposed he had fallen where he was found and was unable to rise. In this position he was frozen to death. It was not thought necessary to hold an inquest.

Steamship "Montana" Stranded on the Rocks.

Passengers all Safe.

LONDON, March 13.—The steamer Montana, of the Guion Line, from New York, which arrived at Queenstown yesterday and proceeded for Liverpool, is on the rocks in Church Bay. Some of the crew and passengers have been landed at Holyhead.

Friday night was beautifully clear until midnight, but a fog rose at half-past three on Saturday morning. When the Montana struck, Captain Gadd and second officer O'Neill were on the bridge. She struck with a heavy grating sound which aroused the saloon passengers. Dr. Gairdner, who ran on deck, was told by the captain to arouse the passengers, and boats were at once got out. There was no confusion, nor the slightest panic, the captain telling the passengers that if they obeyed orders all would be right. Six females, with the third officer, Williams, and the pilot, were placed in one boat, and six males in another with the fourth officer. These were pulled to Holyhead. In the meantime guns were fired and blue lights burned, showing the locality of the disaster. Church Bay is four miles from Holyhead.

The lights of the Montana were seen by a tug which was in the neighborhood, and it immediately went to the assistance of the steamer, arriving alongside at five o'clock. The mails and luggage were got up, and at six the tug started for Holyhead with the doctor and part of the crew and the remaining passengers, and taking on board other passengers who landed at Holyhead, she returned to Liverpool. The pilot was asleep below when the ship struck. The passengers speak in the highest terms of the conduct of the officers. At last accounts the fore part of the vessel was fast on the rocks, and the afterpart afloat. The fore compartments were full of water. Three tugs have been sent from Liverpool to assist the Montana. The Superintendent of the Guion Line is at the scene of the disaster, and will endeavour to float the steamer. She will become a total wreck, but it is hoped that all the cargo will be saved, as the beef certainly will be.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The wrecked steamer Montana is an iron vessel of 4,300 tons, with accommodation for 2,400 passengers. Her cargo comprises 34,000 bushels of wheat, 1,100 bales of cotton, and a large assortment of provisions and merchandise.

A special correspondent in Ireland says men, women, and children in some of the famine-stricken portions of Ireland are reduced to the last stages of nakedness and destitution. Families are huddled together without fire, food, clothing, or bedding either in miserable huts or the former abodes of animals. Thousands and thousands are begging, not bread, but the humblest and cheapest food that can be supplied for human use, Indianmeal. All this exists and there is little prospect of much improvement before August. It appears that in some districts the distress is even greater than it was in the appalling famine of 1847.

Information was laid a few days ago by Alex. Cowan, Collector of Inland Revenue, Goderich, against Robert Clarke, tinsmith of Mount Forest for having in his possession and offering for sale without a license, appliances for the manufacture of whiskey.

Sudden and Unexpected Death of the Hon. Mr. Holton.

The sudden and unlooked for death of the Hon. Luther H. Holton, one of the oldest and most respected members of the House of Commons, will be learned with universal regret throughout Canada. The facts connected with this melancholy event are as follows:

Mr. Holton on Saturday was in his usual health and spirits. In the evening he dined at the Rideau Club, being the guest of the Minister of Customs. He returned to the Russell House shortly before midnight, and retired to rest. Between twelve and one he left his room, and complained to the night porter that he did not feel very well. A second time he retired to rest, but about one o'clock rang for the porter, who immediately answered the summons. He told the attendant that he was very ill indeed, and requested him to procure medical assistance. There being no medical man in the house that night, the porter telephoned for Dr. Grant. Meantime Hon. Mr. Burpee was called, and did all he could for his friend. He found him lying unconscious in bed, and apparently suffering considerable pain. Finding that he was getting still worse Mr. Burpee summoned Sir Albert Smith, who entered the room in time to see him breathe his last. About nine minutes after his decease Dr. Grant arrived. The cause of death in this case is doubtful, but the general verdict appears to be that of apoplexy, while others incline to believe that Mr. Holton was disposed to suffer from heart disease.

Early in the morning the leading members of the Liberal party were notified of Mr. Holton's death, and they telegraphed the sad tidings to his son in Montreal, Mr. Edward Holton, and to his son-in-law, Mr. Britton, Q. C., of Kingston. On Sunday afternoon a special train arrived in Ottawa from Montreal containing his son and a number of his intimate friends. At the station the party were met by the leading Liberal members. The party were driven to the Russell House, where the body was placed in a casket brought from Montreal, and the funeral cortege returned about midnight to the depot, where the body was placed on the special train and taken to Montreal. This was in accordance with Mrs. Holton's wish. The crowd of members and of the general public at the hotel when the funeral cortege left for the railway station was very large notwithstanding the lateness of the hour. The funeral has been definitely appointed to leave Mr. Holton's late residence, Sherbrooke street, Montreal, on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. It is expected that a special train will leave Ottawa on Wednesday morning for the accommodation of members of Parliament who desire to attend the obsequies.

The deceased was held in high esteem by men of all parties, but especially by the Liberals, with whom he was from his earliest years identified. He was born in 1817 on a farm in the County of Leeds, Ont., and when nine years of age, removed with his family to Montreal, where he resided ever since. He became a very successful merchant, and took an active interest in everything tending to the moral and material advancement of the city. Subsequently he had a large interest as a contractor in the construction of the Grand Trunk from Toronto to Sarnia, being associated with Sir A. T. Galt and Lieut.-Col. Gzowski. As we said, he was a Liberal from the first, and during all the struggles in Lower Canada for responsible government, he took an active interest, and lent his time and influence in that direction.

In 1854, Mr. Holton in conjunction with Mr. (now Chief Justice) Dorion, ran for Montreal, both being elected. At the general election in 1857 he was beaten in Montreal, but shortly after was elected to the Legislative Council for Victoria Division, comprising a good part of Montreal. In 1863 he resigned his seat and ran for a seat in the Assembly for the County of Chateauguay. He was elected, and sat for this County for seventeen years. In 1858 he became a member of the short lived Brown-Dorion Government. In 1863, on the formation of the Macdonald-Dorion Government, Mr. Holton was made Finance Minister, and showed great ability not only in his own department, but in managing the House, which at the time, was almost evenly divided. The Government, however, fell in 1864, and then followed the negotiations which were followed by Confederation. Mr. Holton did not take any part in these, but while criticizing sharply every step that was taken, and many features of the measure, was firm in his adherence to Liberal principles—in consistency with his life-long political career.

Since Confederation he had not taken that part in politics which marked his career previously, but he never swerved from the principles of his youth, and while sometimes differing from his party on certain questions, he was always willing to aid in the common cause. He gave valuable assistance in helping to turn out the Macdonald Government at the time of the Pacific Scandal. He was offered a seat in the Mackenzie Government, but for generous personal reasons declined it, but at the same time gave the Government all the aid in his power. He was thoroughly posted on Parliamentary rules and modes of procedure, and was looked upon as an authority on these subjects. Although not a brilliant speaker he was a most valuable and faithful representative, a true-hearted Canadian, a thoughtful, enlightened, upright politician and a just and good man, and it will be many a day before Montreal can send his equal to Parliament.

A public meeting was held in Fergus last week to reconsider the decision to accept the offer of the Messrs. Craig for Credit Valley Railway bonds held by the village. The meeting resolved to ask the Council to reconsider the offers from both Mr. Beattie and the Messrs. Craig for the bonds before accepting either.

Repeal of the Insolvent Act.

The Senate this Session have reversed their decision of last year on the question of the repeal of the Insolvent Act, and on Thursday, by a vote of 47 to 17 have endorsed the action of the House of Commons. All that now remains is for the Governor-General to give his formal sanction to the Act,

It is too late now to discuss the wisdom of this step, but there can be no doubt that the result is looked forward to by the mercantile community with fear and anxiety. Granted that there were many defects in the Insolvent Act, the sweeping away of its provisions by one stroke of the pen may bring about such a state of affairs in the mercantile world as will paralyze business, and create such a feeling of uncertainty and dread in the minds of merchants and traders as will be most hurtful not only to them but to the country at large.

With thoughtful prescience the Hon. Mr. Mowat, during the late Session of the Ontario Legislature, carried a measure through his House, which is designed now the Insolvent Act will be repealed, to secure an equitable distribution of assets, and for the abolition of priority among execution creditors. In the Act it is announced that the measure is "not intended to interfere with the Insolvency Laws which may from time to time be in force in this Province, but this Act is intended to be subject to such laws, and subject as aforesaid to apply to all debtors whether solvent or not." The Monetary Times a good authority on the subject, "cannot, help feeling that the object of the Bill, a rateable distribution of an insolvent debtor's assets, could have been much better accomplished by abolishing the discharge clauses of the Insolvent Act, and continuning the other parts with such amendments as might be deemed wise. Such a course would have had one advantage, the importance of which it is difficult to overestimate, viz.: That it it would be based upon a settled and now tolerably well understood practice. There are several respects in which the Local Act cannot fail to prove inefficient as compared with the machinery of the Insolvent Act. The delay will probably be as great as, if not greater, than formerly, and the expense is certain to be quite as large."

We shall take the first opportunity to give a summary of the provisions of the "Creditors' Relief Act."

THE Senate is said to have passed an order prohibiting persons from wearing their caps within she precincts of that venerable institution. The dear old fogies!

THE Government intends to take Thursdays for the remainder of the session. This looks as if an attempt would be made to push Government business with rapidity.

It is rumored that Mr. Colby will succeed Mr. Pope, the present Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Colby has well earned a seat in the Cabinet, as he stands in the front rank of Ministerial supporters.

SIR SAMUEL TILLEY, in his budget speech was forced to admit that the result of the last fiscal year's financial operations was a deficit of $2,000,000. So much for his attempt at tariff tinkering.

MR. Charles Rykert received a castigation from Mr. G. W. Ross on Friday night, which is likely to last him his lifetime, and it will be a longer time ere he again seeks by vulgar abuse to injure his political opponents.

Is is stated that the bottom of the printing scandal has not been reached yet. If the whole truth comes out some still more interesting details than those brought out in the Boyle-Globe suit may be developed.

ON Friday the Speaker of the Commons read a message from the Senate to the effect that they had passed the Act to repeal the Insolvent Act without amendment. The announcement was received with cheers.

A deputation from the Winnipeg Government intend interviewing the Government in relation to an increase of territory, an increase of subsidy, a cession of swamp lands, and an increased representation in the Senate and Commons.

MR. CAMPBELL, in the Nova Scotia Legislature, has given notice that unless the Dominion Government gave to this Province a fair proportion of the Fishery Award he should move a resolution asking that Nova Scotia be separated from the Dominion.

THERE is war between Sir Leonard and Sir Charles, as may be seen from the galleries any day when Sir John is absent. If the latter would only tell these gentlemen confidentially that Sir A. T. Galt is to be his sole and only legatee, it would save a world of doubt and jealousy.

SIR John Macdonald dismissed Mr. Buckingham from the position of Deputy Minister of the Interior on the plea of "economy." He has now brought out a Bill constituting a Department of Indian Affairs, with himself Supt.-General, in addition to being Minister of the Interior. Provision is also made for the appointment of a Deputy Supt.-General and such other officers as may be required. Tory economy seldom goes further than the dismissal of Reform officials.

THE Department of Agriculture has accepted a large number of Mr. Macdougall's "Guide to Manitoba and the Northwest," which contains several advertisements of lands for sale in the Northern States. Very suitable literature this to distribute among intending settlers in Canada.

A return submitted to Parliament shows that during the year 1879, in the County of Inverness, N. S., no fewer than twelve fishery wardens and overseers were dismissed, and twelve Government supporters appointed in their places. In addition to the foregoing, there were three supplementary appointments.

A rumour has been current for some days that the Quebec Legislature is about to be dissolved soon, and it has received significance from the visit of the Lieutenant-Governor to Ottawa, which it is said is connected with this business and a reported difference of opinion on some important subjects between His Honour and his Cabinet.

THE Philadelphia Weekly Notes gives a pretty correct idea of the character Sir Charles Tupper has managed to secure for the Intercolonial Railway among our American cousins. It says: "The Government have abolished their workshops, and thrown the manufacture of their rolling stock open to competition. They have reduced the force employed, and allowed both the road and rolling-stock to run down, until not a single train gets over the road without serious accidents or detentions, and soon no one will think of travelling by this route unless his life is well insured, and he has serious doubts on the great question discussed by Mr. Mallock."

THE Montreal Herald takes the carping organs of the Ontario Opposition severely to task for their criticism of the results of the recent session of the Legislature. It says: "Ontario has had a Liberal Government for a number of years, Quebec has been under the protecting wing of Conservative rule, almost without interruption, since Confederation. We are willing to compare notes to establish whether Liberal accendancy in Ontario has not proved as beneficial to the public welfare as Tory rule in this province. Ontario should have a taste of the DeBoucherville period to fully understand our experience."

SOME doubt having been raised as to whether the change in the tariff respecting magazines implied that magazines as ordinarly circulated by publishers to their subscribers would be considered by the Government as "unbound," Sir L. Tilley's attention was the other day directed to the matter, and he courteously stated that the term "magazine unbound" means a pamphlet as it comes from the publisher and as now circulated through the post office and sold by booksellers. There is, however, doubt as to whether the Franklin Square, Seaside, and Lakeside library series will be passed by the Customs authorities as magazines the same as they are circulated in the United States.

THE St. John, N. B., Globe says—"We read with pleasure that Mr. Blake's proposition regarding the postponement of the construction of the Pacific Railway over the Rocky Mountains is meeting with favor among a large number of Government supporters, who are becoming alarmed at the rapidity with which the country is being plunged into debt. It is to be hoped that the patriotic men in both parties will have their eyes opened to the danger that threatens Canada because of this railroad. It will be an utter impossibility to meet the public demands unless something be done. How can this country go on spending year after year from ten to twenty millions of dollars more than its income?

OTTAWA Free Press:—It is worse than the 15 puzzle—that is, the task of harmonizing the Budget Speech of Sir Leonard Tilley, and Sir Richard Cartwright's criticism of it. Sir Leonard said that, under certain circumstances, the deficit the last year under Mr. Mackenzie's administration would have been about three millions, that the deficit the present year, under his (Mr. Tilley's) financial management, will be about five hundred thousand dollars; and that next year this will be made up, so that in two years the finances will be about evened up. Sir Richard Cartwright said this was not correct; that in Mr. Mackenzie's last year the expenses were half a million less than the estimates, and that the present deficit was nearly two millions. It all depends on the way you manipulate the langnage and the figures. "Now you see it, and now you don't." "You pay your money and take your hoice."

The Late Concert.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—The writer begs leave to intimate his belief that your report of the late concert in the Norfolk street Methodist Church lacked information as to the number of voices requisite to best render such choruses, as were given on Friday evening last. Prof. Torrington, of Toronto, does not think the Philharmonic Society too large a chorus to undertake the Oratorio of the Creation, and the writer has heard the Handel and Haydn Society, of Boston, render the Stabat Mater with a chorus of four hundred voices. Several competent musicians have also as decidedly averred in the writer's hearing that the harmony was well balanced, the solos good, and the one thing needed was the education of a Guelph audience to the appreciation of so good a class of music as that given them by Prof. Harrington's choir on Friday night last.

Yours respectfully,
B.

The Late Concert.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Just a line Mr. Editor, in reference to the above. My report was impartially given, without prejudice or feeling, and was suggested on the knowledge of others as well as my own. I merely offered the remark that the choruses in two pieces were rather strong, and in this,—I think it will be understood,—I meant for the size of the building.

THE CONDITION OF TURKEY.—The reports from various parts of the Ottoman Empire give an idea of an almost hopeless condition of confusion and delapidation. The Consuls at Salonica report (except in the immediate vicinity of towns) that the whole region is dominated by brigands. They levy blackmail upon the Mussulmans and Christians indiscriminately. Appalling accounts continue from Armenia and Kurdistan. The famine extends over a hundred thousand square miles. Five months must pass before another harvest can bring relief. An appeal for help has been published, signed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Marquis of Salisbury, the Earl of Shaftsbury and a number of others. The financial situation of the Empire is very bad. A solution to require the revenue to be paid in gold has caused a further depression in the debased metallic currency. The price of bread has risen.

H. M. S. Parliament.

This popular little piece will be produced in Guelph to-night, by Mr. McDowell's Company. It is cleverly written and has any amount of hits for both sides of politics. Speaking of it editorially the Toronto Telegram says:

Everybody is laughing at the Mail for being so thin-skinned in regard to the political "Pinafore." It felt so sore over the hits to which the "N. P." was subjected that it denounced the whole affair as being without pith or point, although all the other newspapers in the places in which the play has been performed speak in the most complimentary terms of it—an estimate which has been endorsed by all who have seen the play in this city. Besides this, it is known that the author is a Conservative, so that there can be no pretence that the element of spite entered into the literary composition of the work at all. The Mail always makes a great goose of itself by showing its morbid sensibility to anything designed to make light of its idol, and in this case will be the laughing stock of everybody who sees the play and observes for himself how good-naturedly the heads of prominent politicians on both sides are hit. The Globe takes a very much more sensible view of the subject by giving the play the praise to which, as a political skit it is justly entitled, notwithstanding that Mr. George Brown is among those who are personated. The Mail has always given such hard knocks itself that it ought to be ashamed to take the sulks because Sir John and the "N. P." get a few friendly knocks in return.

The Repeal of the Insolvent Act.

The Debate in the Senate.

OTTAWA, March 11.

In the Senate to-day the debate on the Insolvency Laws Repeal Bill was resumed.

Hon. Mr. Hope said the leading bankers and merchants of Canada petitioned against the repeal of the Act, yet Messrs. Dickey and Bellerose had condemned it as a law which promoted commercial immorality. The cost of winding up insolvent estates was due to carelessness on the part of creditors themselves. He contended that the repeal of the Act was not an issue in the last general election, and the decision of the House of Commons could not therefore be regarded as representing public opinion on the subject. If it had been an issue he would not have opposed this Bill, though he could not approve of it. The legislation in Ontario provided no such machinery as the existing Act for the equitable distribution of insolvent estates. The repeal of the Act without a substitute for it would be disastrous to the trade of the country. He therefore moved the six months hoist.

Hon. Mr. Lewin seconded the motion. He was not prepared to say that the present law was entirely satisfactory, but it was as perfect as could be expected, if creditors would only see that it was properly carried out. He contended that mercantile interests would suffer by the repeal of the Act, as if the question was left to Local Legislatures each Province would enact different laws, and thus create confusion. As England was about to change her insolvency laws it would be better for Canada to wait and see what would be done there before repealing the law here.

Hon. Mr. Dever opposed the repeal of the law as he was in sympathy with the mercantile community, though out of trade himself. He read letters from a merchant and judge in St. John declaring that the repeal of the Act would be a calamity, and asking that New Brunswick be excepted from the operation of the Bill. He pointed to the fact that Mr. Lewin, himself, and Mr. Boyd, who had not yet reached Ottawa, were in accord on this subject, and therefore New Brunswick should not be deprived of the advantage of an insolvency law.

Hon. Mr. Flint said he had voted for the repeal of the Act last year, and would do so again, believing it would be in the best interest of the country to remove it from the Statute Book. He regarded official assignees as blood suckers, who absorbed estates that fell into their hands.

Hon. Mr. Brouse contended that the rural constituencies demanded the repeal of the Act, and justly so, because it was a measure designed for the benefit of a single class. He disapproved of class legislation.

Hon. Mr. Wark opposed the repeal, believing it unwise to remove an Act which was understood by those it affected. He thought the Government should have prepared a measure during the recess to replace it. Since last year five members of the Government in the other House and two in the Senate had opposed the repeal.

Hon. Mr. MacMaster said the prejudice against the law was due more to the manner in which it had been administered than to any of its provisions. He was satisfied that the trade of the country would suffer from its repeal.

Hon. Mr. Simpson said he occupied a position which gave him an unpleasant knowledge of the working of the Act, and he concurred in Mr. Bellerose's view that it led to gross immorality. In the last five years the insolvencies in Canada amounted to more than seventy-five millions. There must have been a good deal of dishonesty to produce such a result.

Hon. Mr. Read doubted whether the legislation of Ontario provided a substitute for the Act. The great objection to the law was the expense of working it. A debtor to pay fifty cents in the dollar should have assets worth three times as much.

Hon. Mr. McLean (Londonderry) called attention to the fact that in the Province of New Brunswick, from which the strongest opposition to the repeal of the Act came, they had the least experience of its working.

Hon. Mr. Trudel said the reason given by advocates of the Insolvent Act for its unsatisfactory operation was that the creditors did not look after their own interests. Would they be made less negligent by legislation?

Hon. Mr. Dickey summed up the debate, replying to various arguments against the Bill.

The House then divided on Mr. Lewin's amendment, which was rejected by 17 to 47. The Bill was then read a second and third time and passed.

At the meeting of the County Council of Lennox and Addington on Saturday, the adoption of the Government Commissioners' report in reference to the deficit of Mr. Hooper, ex-Treasurer, was rejected by 8 to 13.

CHAPTER XXXII.

AN INTERESTING MEETING—A RESEMBLANCE DETECTED—JACK BORLAND IS DOMICILED IN HIS OLD QUARTERS, AND MAKES FRIENDS OF AGNES AND HER MOTHER.

"My name is John Wilson," went on Jack, whose own feelings as he gazed at his sister-in-law threatened to grow beyond control, though at the same time he dreaded a premature discovery, and hastened to seat himself in the corner, where the evening shadows had begun to settle. "I shall be happy to pay any charge you like to make for the accommodation I ask, and consider it a great obligement besides."

"Really, sir—I—I don't know what to say, stammered Mrs. Borland, in great confusion. "I have never taken a lodger."

"I am quite aware of that, madam. David Ramsay told me as much; but he added that you had a spare room, and as there is no chance of obtaining such a thing in any other cottage near, he thought that in the circumstances you would consent. He even offered to accompany me by way of introduction, but I could not so far trespass on his go od nature."

"Do you know David Ramsay?" asked Mrs. Borland, in an earnest tone.

"I never saw him till this afternoon. I chanced to find my way to the churchyard, where he was at work in one of the graves in Bruce aisle. We got into conversation and I learned from him some interesting particulars concerning the present unfortunate position of the Grange property. He—here Jack's voice began to falter a little, but he fortified it with a determined resolution—he also pointed out to me the grave of your husband, and told me of his distinguished virtues, the nobility of his character, the heroic self-sacrifice which cost him his life."

"Yes," responded Jessie, with a sob, "my husband was all that you say."

"The circumstances of his death showed it, madam. The gardener's story interested me deeply. 'Tis a thousand pities the estate is to be sold—that you have to leave the place where you have lived so long."

"It is indeed a terrible misfortune, sir. But it is the will of Heaven, and I must submit. I have had many trials to bear, though this is one I did not expect to meet."

"It is one you never should have been called on to meet," responded the other. "I am told it is owing to the folly and dissipation of the young man who heired the estate, and who lost it and ever so many thousands of pounds at the gaming-table."

"True, sir, but he was not so greatly to blame as a stranger would suppose, and poor, poor boy, he has paid dearly for his faults."

"I understand he is believed to be dead." "Alas—yes."

"There must have been something good about the lad that those who are to suffer most by his folly are ready to extenuate it."

"Sir," cried Mrs. Borland, with fervour, "Master Orwell was as fine a young gentleman as our hearts could wish. Good and honourable, himself, he suspected no evil in others, and this led to his ruin, to his death, if indeed he be dead."

"Which perhaps is not the case," said the visitor. "Possibly the young gentleman, ashamed of what he had done, has gone abroad and may be heard of yet."

Mrs. Borland shook her head and met the suggestion with a hopeless look. "I cannot think that sir," she replied, "There was at least one reason why he would have communicated with us—that is with his friends—had he been alive. We have no hope now, sir—none—none."

The heavy, sorrowful sigh with which the words were uttered was almost more than Jack could bear. A strong impulse seized him to start up, clasp Jessie in his arms, declare his identity, and turn her sorrow into joy. But he put a strong restraint on himself, and gulped down the emotion that nearly mastered him. All he could venture to say was that David Ramsay could not believe in Orwell's death, and that after all possibly he was right.

"God grant it may be so," was the low spoken prayer of Mrs. Borland's lips, then she added, "David has said this from the first, but of late he has not spoken so confidently, and I had come to think his hopes also had died away."

"I can assure you, madam, it has not," returned Jack, glad to get upon surer ground. "He spoke quite strongly upon the matter this afternoon, and I think he is a very sagacious man."

"He is my best and truest friend," returned Mrs. Borland.

"Then let us hope," cried Jack eagerly, "that on his recommendation you will let me lodge with you for a few weeks. As I have said I will give you little trouble, and I think you will have no cause to regret the favor. I am aware it is asking a great deal to solicit your confidence in one who is a perfect stranger, but all strangers are not rogues, Mrs. Borland, and I trust my appearance is not such as to make you fear I am one."

"Your appearance does not alarm me, sir. On the contrary, it impresses me with a strange feeling of—of something I cannot explain. If I have seemed to hesitate it is because the idea of a lodger is new to me. We live alone here, my daughter and myself, and it was for her sake more than my own that I was startled at your proposal. I expect her home in a few minutes. Will you excuse me if I do not give you a definite answer till she has returned.

"Certainly, my dear madam; I respect your scruples. They are at once natural and proper."

"Oh, if she only knew who I am," thought Jack with an inward smile, "how all her scruples would vanish. But what a joy is in store for her and Agnes, whom I long to see. Would that the moment would come when I can reveal myself and bestow on them the great happiness I have brought. Patience, Jack, patience, and all will come right."

Mrs. Borland now busied herself in preparing the evening meal, and as she moved silently to and fro in evident inward perturbation, Jack from his seat in the corner watched her with intensely eager eyes. What a change he saw in her from the Jessie of former days, from the bright, blooming young wife as last he beheld her in the full bloom of wedded joy maternal happiness. Time and grief had taken the roses from her cheeks and the sparkle from her eyes, but had only mellowed her fine qualities of heart and soul, and left her the picture of meek and tender resignation. Her features he thought were little altered, he could trace every one of them in the pale grave, now much thinner and sharper, and bearing the marks of the fierce furnace through which she passed. These and the added years had stamped themselves on her outward appearance, while the black dress and widow's cap were sad reminders of the difference between the past and present.

As the evening shadows were now perceptibly gathering Mrs. Borland cast many an anxious look from the window down the path by which she expected Agnes to come. She was much later that evening than usual, but the delay was not unexpected, Agnes having said in the morning that she would remain for some time after school hours assisting Miss Elliot in the making of a dress. But the coming of the stranger and the proposal he had made caused her mother to long for her return, as she did not feel equal to deciding the matter on her own responsibility. Startling as the proposal at first seemed, she was secretly inclined to accept it. There was something in the appearance of this man—this Mr. John Wilson, of America—which had produced a strange indescribable feeling in her mind, and sent a wondrous inexplicable thrill through her heart. What it was, how it was produced, she could not tell. Somehow it did not seem as if he was an utter stranger—at least, she was unable to regard him in this light. His form in its size and outline, his features so far as she could behold them, the glance of his eyes, the sound of his voice, touched a cord in her nature which vibrated with a tremulous sensitiveness, and drew him towards her with a power she could not explain.

Once and again she stole a sidelong glance at him as she moved to and fro, and tried from these repeated furtive examinations of his person to discover what it was in his aspect that so powerfully affected her. For a time she was baffled in the quest; but once, when he suddenly looked up and his eyes met hers in full gaze, their expression gave her sudden illumination.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

One day last week as Mr. John Lindsay, of Limehouse, was walking home from Georgetown, he fell through the bridge at the 6th line. He was badly bruised, but received no serious injuries.

The Boom for the Spring

COLOSSAL ARRAY OF NEW GOODS.

We have just received notice from the Customs authorities here, of the arrival of an immense quantity of Dry Goods, and also advisals from our agents and manufacturers in Britain, of still further shipments which will be to hand very shortly. These goods, together with our heavy purchaes of Staples from Canadian manufacturers, will give us without exception whatsoever, the choicest stock of

NEW DRY GOODS

ever brought to the Royal City. Friends, we mean exactly and literally what these words imply. We know that the struggle among certain puny institutions, and others whose life seems to be to indulge in nonsensical exaggerations and extravagant statements, induces the public to read advertisements with a good deal of reserve. But friends, prove our words. Come and see. Aside from a conscientious regard for truth

It never Pays to Mislead the Public.

No other house in Guelph buys anything like the quantity. No other house buys direct from the manufacturers. No other house buys as cheap. No other house offers customers such advantages as the Lion. No other house does as large a trade. While other parts of the city are described as having the appearance of a "deserted village" deserted alike by customers and business men who find it possible to leave, no such "silence of the tomb" rests upon the enchanted corner of Wyndham and Macdonnell streets—at the Golden Lion—into whose invigorating and life giving presence and company everybody seems anxious to come.

The following are a few of the lines to be opened, and let us remark in many instances patterns were selected and orders placed with the manufacturers as far back as September last, since which the great advance in prices has taken place.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is noble benefactor.'

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission to JOS. S. FISHER, president; W. I. P. INGRAHAM, vice-president; W. PAINE, M. D.; C. S. GAUNTT, M. D.; H. J. DOUCET, M. D.; R. H. KLINE, M. D.; J. R. HOLCOMB, M. ALLEGED INCESTUOUS OUTRAGE.—Francis Cassidy, residing on the 2nd con. Normanby, was recently arrested on a warrant issued by Justice Ryan, on the charge of outraging, or attempting to outrage his daughter, a girl aged twelve. The Judge considered the evidence sufficient to demand bail to the amount of $400 for the prisoner's forthcoming when required.

FARMS SOLD.—Lot No. 1, concession 7, Luther, 200 acres, has been sold to Mr. Hugh McQueen, of Fergus, for the sum of $6,850.—Mr. Jas. Taylor has sold the farm in Arthur, lots 25 and 26, 10th concession, 100 acres, to Mr. Henry Cook, for the sum of $2,600.—Mr. Jesse Kaiser, of York township, bought from Mr. R. Arbuckle, on Thursday, last week, lot 26, con. D, Minto, 100 acres, for $5,250.

THE HORSE TRADE IN MONTREAL.—The unusually brisk business in horse flesh reported on Tuesday last, when no less than forty-four buyers were operating in yards at the American House, has continued ever since, and we have now to record the heaviest week's business known for several years. Four hundred and forty-five horses, costing $5,320, were shipped from the city to the United States for the week ending Friday, as compared with the shipments of the previous week of 288 horses, valued at $23,127. The demand is good for all classes of useful animals, from the heavy workers to roadsters. During the week quite a number of small working horses have been purchased for New York State and New Jersey. Buyers admit that an advance in price has taken place of from five to ten per cent., while the sellers claim they are getting fully fifteen per cent. more than they were a few weeks ago. The average price paid per head during the week was $79.10 against $80.30 for the week previous.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any simi lar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Fire in Stratford.

STRATFORD, March 16.—Shortly after midnight a message was sent to London asking that an engine and men be sent as soon as possible. It was stated that a large fire was raging in the centre of the town, and that four stores had been burned at the time of sending.

The Venue in the Biddulph Cases.

LONDON, March 16.—A telegram from Toronto yesterday says: Understood that the venue of the Biddulph murder case will be changed from London to that city and that Messrs. Æmelius Irvine, Q. C., of Hamilton, and James Magee, of London, will be Crown prosecutors. It is probable that Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q. C., and Mr. Nicholas Murphy, of that city, will be engaged with Messrs. Meredith and McMahon, of London, to defend the prisoners.

Narrow Escape in St. Mary's.

ST. MARY'S, March 16.—Two men narrowly escaped being drowned yesterday in the creek while taking out ice.

The Observance of Sunday.

TORONTO, March 16.—P. M. Denison gave judgment in the Sunday concert case this morning. He read a voluminous finding in which he upheld the contention of the County Crown, and found the proprietor of the Royal Opera House guilty of giving secular concerts on Sunday.

Destructive Fire in London.

LONDON, March 16.—Shortly after 8 o'clock last night, a fire was discovered in the rear premises of Alley's dry goods store. The origin of the fire is involved in mystery. The flames must have ascended with terrific fury up the stairway leading to the second story, as the woodwork at every step was seared to the depth of a quarter of an inch or more. At the head of the stairs, Mr. Alley had a large number of pigeon cotes, in which about fifty of the most valuable birds in Canada were kept. The stifling heat and dense smoke played sad havoc with them, and on examining the premises after the fire had been extinguished, every one of them were found lying dead on the floor. Two pairs of "carriers," a rare species, were valued at $50 a pair, while the "tumblers," and other breeds comprised a selection not surpassed in Canada. Mr. Alley's loss from this source, will not be less than $400. The building, owned by Mr. George G. Magee, was considerably wrecked.

KNIGHTS OF MACCABEES.—The regular meeting of this Society will be held this evening in the Good Templars hall, at half-past seven.

TUESDAY EVNG, MARCH 16, 1880

Canadian National Hymn.

The following is the Hymn which has been composed by Lord Lorne, and dedicated to Canada. It has been set to music by Mr. Arthur Sullivan:—

God bless our wide Dominion,
Our fathers' chosen land;
And bind in lasting union
Each ocean's distant strand.
From where Atlantic terrors
Our hardy seamen train,
To where the salt sea mirrors
The vast Pacific chain.

O bless our wide Dominion,
True freedom's fairest scene;
Defend our people's union,
God save our Empire's Queen.

Fair days of fortune send her.
Be Thou her Shield and Sun!
Our land our flag's Defender,
Unite our hearts as one!
One flag, one land, upon her
May every blessing rest!
Her loyal faith and honor
Her children's deeds attest.
O bless, etc.

No stranger's foot, insulting,
Shall tread our country's soil;
While stand her sons exulting
For her to live and toil.
She hath the victor's nurture,
Her's are the conquering hours,
No foeman's stroke shall hurt her,
"This Canada of ours."
O bless, etc.

Our sires, when times were sorest.
Asked none but aid Divine,
And cleared the tangled forest,
And wrought the buried mine.
They tracked the floods and fountains,
And won with master hand,
Far more than gold in mountains,
The glorious Prairie land.
O bless, etc.

O, Giver of earth's treasure,
Make thou our nation strong;
Pour forth Thine hot displeasure
On all who work our wrong!
To our remotest border
Let plenty still increase,
Let Liberty and Order
Bid a client feuds to cease.
O bless, etc.

May Canada's fair daughters
Keep house for hearts as bold
As their's who o'er the waters
Came hither first of old.
The pioneers of nations!
They showed the world the way,
'Tis ours to keep their stations
And lead the van to-day.
O bless, etc.

Inheritors of glory,
O countrymen! we swear
To guard the flag that o'er ye
Shall onward victory bear.
Where'er through earth's far regions
Its triple crosses fly,
For God, for home, our legions
Shall win, or fighting die!
O bless, etc.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

Lord Hartington in a speech delivered on Saturday gave an explicit denial to Earl Beaconsfield's charge that the English Liberals are endeavoring to separate the Colonies from England by a policy of decomposition.

The second reading of the French Education Bill was carried in the Senate Chamber on Monday. The Premier declined to restore the rejected article 7, but announced that the Government will apply the existing laws against the religious confraternities.

The police surprised a meeting of the socialists at Warsaw, and captured two civil engineers, a student and thirteen artisans.

There is a rupture between France and Madagascar in consequence of a misunderstanding between the French Consul and Government of Island. The Consul hauled down his flag and appealed to his Government.

The Central Arctic Committee have appointed May, 1881, as the time for sailing of the new British Arctic expedition.

Dixon's colliery, near Glasgow, is on fire from a gas explosion. One thousand men are out of employment. One death has resulted.

Everything tends to show that Melikoff does not entirely depend on harsh measures in St. Petersburg. The system of wholesale arrests has been discontinued. There are individual arrests under special circumstances, but they include nobody of note. Signs of the times are noticeable in the greater freedom of the press. The Strano dwells on the harsh treatment of the students. The Golos quotes Strano's article, and urges that the young men be treated with more consideration.

It is announced that Queen Victoria will during the approaching sojourn on the continent meet the German Emperor at Baden or Wissbaden.

Mr. Carlyle has not been well of late, having been unable to take even carriage exercise. He sees no society beyond his own family circle and a few literary friends, including Mr. Froude and Mr. Lecky. An occasional failure of memory is said to be the only sign of mental weakness shown by the Chelsea Sage.

The life of General Melikoff, it appears, was saved by a chain shirt worn under his uniform.

A despatch on Monday says:—The steamer Montana has settled down on the rocks, and her taffrail is covered at high water. A large part of her cargo, including all the meat and live stock, has been saved. Salvage is still proceeding. The vessel lies heavily on the rocks, which are under her boilers.

The Anti-Rent Meetings.

LONDON, March 15.—Lord Oranmore and Browne (Liberal Conservative) called attention to Beaconsfield's letter to the Duke of Marlborough, and enquired whether it was not the duty of the Premier to take measures to stop meetings held with the avowed object of inciting tenants to non-payment of just debts.

Lord Beaconsfield said he thought it unnecessary to apply to Parliament for fresh powers in governing Ireland, as he understood that the anti-rent demonstrations were decreasing. The Peace Preservation Act will expire shortly, and the new Parliament will, according to circumstances, either repeal it or if necessary grant fresh powers. His letter to Lord Marlborough, as a letter from one Lord to another, he said required no explanation.

A detachment of engineers from the Pacific Railway offices leaves this week for British Columbia to superintend the carrying out of the Onderkonk contract. Mr. Crombie will act as Chief Engineer to the party and receive a salary of $3,000. The men expect to be absent at least six years.

Local News.

THE Presbytery of Guelph is in session to-day at Knox church.

THE Liliputian Opera Company appear at the City Hall on April 13th.

GONE WEST.—R. C. Lindsay and Tim. Coughlin have taken Horace Greeley's advice and gone west. They left by the G. T. Railway yesterday for Chicago.

THE Expositor contradicts our statement that there was was no ice cut in Brantford this winter. A number of citizens have all they require.

WEATHER PROBS.—Lake brisk to high north easterly to north westerly winds, snow to-day, followed by partially clearing weather and lower temperature.

NEW CHURN.—Mr. James Merlihan has bought the right to manufacture and sell in the county of Wellington a new patented churn, by W. B. Banton, paying therefor $250.

SENTENCED.—Willard Huntington, after several remands, was sentenced by Judge Chadwick on Monday to one month's imprisonment for swindling at Clifford some time ago.

OIL INSPECTION.—On Friday Mr. Godson, of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, arrived in Hamilton, and he and Mr. Foster, Collector of Inland Revenue, seized a quantity of oil of the Silver Star brand, from Petrolia, said to below fire test.

THE Montreal Star is not aware that Guelph is connected with Hamilton by the Great Western Railway. It says:—"Guelph merchants are making efforts to have an extension of the Great Western Railway made between Hamilton and Guelph.

A PARLOR CONCERT, in connection with Knox Church will be held at "Athol Terrace," residence of Mr. J. C. McLagan, on Thursday evening, March 18th, commencing at half past 7 o'clock. A good programme has been prepared, and all are cordially invited. d2

TEA MEETING.—A tea meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church here, on Tuesday evening, 23rd inst. A programme of vocal and instrumental music will be carried out on the occasion, and addresses will be delivered by clergymen living in the city. Further particulars will shortly appear.

FATAL RESULT.—Mrs. Thomas Moore, of Rockwood, died on Sunday from the effects of injuries she received through a fall, down the cellar stairway of her house, on Thursday. Her most serious wound was a broken thigh bone, which was referred to in Monday's issue. She was very old and infirm, and the shock was too great for her constitution.

DIOCESE OF NIAGARA.—Anglican churches in this district contributed as follows to the receipts at the Episcopal Synod office in Hamilton during February:—Offertory collections, Fergus $1.18; Parochial collections, Erin, $16.05; Orangeville, $40. On guarantee account, Luther, $18; Drayton, $15; Clifford, $38. Algoma Fund, Milton, $10.83; Drayton, $2.30; Arthur, $9; Luther, $6.50.

FOR THE PRAIRIE PROVINCE.—Two car loads of families from sections north of this city, passed through on the Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway to-day (Tuesday), en route for Manitoba. Their baggage, which occupied four cars, passed through on Monday. The following persons joined the party at Guelph:—J. Ramage and family of four members, Eden Mills; Peter Awrey and family of four members, Hillsburg; J. Harvey, of Guelph. Those who joined the party here purchased their tickets from F. Gauhan, city agent, G. W. R.

DEATH OF MR. WEAVER.—Mr. Weaver, collector of Customs, Berlin, died at his residence in that town on Saturday, aged 52 years. Over thirty years ago Mr. Weaver started as a merchant, in the village of Preston in partnership with Mr. Wenger. Subsequently the firm removed their business to the place where Elmira now stands, and they were virtually the founders of that village. A few years ago he was appointed collector of Customs at Berlin and moved to that town where he resided till the time of his death. He was much respected by all who knew him, and his genial manner and generous disposition will not soon be forgotten. He was twice married, and leaves a widow and four sons to mourn his loss.

PETTY THIEVING.—About two weeks ago the police were informed that some parties were making a practice of stealing tumblers from the sitting rooms of the hotels. They took the case in hand and discovered that a number of newsboys entered the sitting rooms, and, taking glasses from the tables, pawned them at Sheehan's Pawn Snop, West Market Square. On Monday, the Chief of Police called at Sheehan's and instructed the latter to send whatever these boys had pawned, to his office, together with the amounts they received on them. This was done, and most of the owners claimed their property. Among the stolen articles besides the tumblers, were a large sea shell belonging to W. Murray; a quantity of toilet soap, belonging to J. E. McElderry; a scrubbing brush belonging to H. Loch; a clothes line belonging to John A. Wood, and a broom belonging to J. A. Cameron. The Chief censured Mr. Sheehan very strongly for receiving goods from boys, when, from the low terms on which he received them in pawn, he must have suspected they were stolen. Ten glasses stolen from the Western Hotel were taken in pawn at two cents each and their real value is $1.50 a dozen.

THE Easter fat cattle fair will be held to-morrow.

"H. M. S. PARLIAMENT."—The receipts of the McDowell Company last night amounted to $276.

EXHIBITION GROUNDS.—Mr. Marriott Gardener, has been appointed caretaker of the Exhibition Grounds.

POULTRY FOR MANITOBA.—Mr. J. C. Greenshields, Guelph, has sold to Mr. Ramage, of Eden Mills, a valuable pair of black Spanish fowls for export to Manitoba.

THE weather of the last few days has been more wintry than at any time during the winter. If the snow continues falling as it has done to-day it would be no surprise if there were sleighing to-morrow.

THE BOYS OWN PAPER for February is to hand at Day's with an appropriate selection of reading matter, also a handsome colored plate entitled "The Chariot Race," and a tinted plate showing the vessels of all nations.

THE ACCIDENT ON THE ERAMOSA HILL.—In the account of the accident on the Eramosa hill a few days ago, it was said Wesley Tindall and Robert Abbott, were the persons injured. The correct names are John Tindall and William Abbott.

FELL THROUGH THE ICE.—While Dr. McGregor was skating on the river above Goldie's dam on Monday evening, he went into one of the holes made by the icemen. When he rose to the surface of the water he caught the ice surrounding him and held on till some persons who saw his mishap came to his assistance and pulled him out.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Benj. Gregor, an old and well known resident of Morriston, who for many years attended to the repairs on the Brock Road in that neighborhood, died suddenly at the age of about sixty years, on Monday. He was at work on Saturday and seemed in his usual health on Sunday. The following day he took suddenly ill, and Dr. Orton was sent for to attend him, but medical skill could do nothing for the patient, and he died after a very brief illness. He leaves a family of sons and daughters, most of whom have grown up.

H. M. S. "Parliament."

This clever comic opera—which may well be called the Canadian Pinafore, as it is a parody on that well known opera—was produced last night by the McDowell Company to a splendid house. So great, indeed, was the rush for the 25 cent seats that they were filled in a few minutes, and many had to be refused. The audience was composed of both political parties, and both seemed to be much amused by the frequent sallies and hits levelled at both political parties. So far the piece has had wonderful success wherever played, and for Canada at least it is the best theatrical hit ever made. In every city and town where it has been presented crowded audiences have been drawn to it, and judging from the reception it met with here last night, its success where presented may be set down as a certainty. "H. M. S. Parliament" is a keen satire on the N. P., and the fact that the sallies are hailed with laughter and applause may be looked upon as significant. Supporters of both political parties come in for "knocks," however, it being the author's purpose, as expressed in the preface, "to get a little harmless fun out of political peculiarities and weaknesses irrespective of party." The new piece is purely an adaptation. The music is, except in one or two instances, identical with that in "Pinafore," the plot is very similar, and many portions of the dialogue and most of the songs, choruses, and other musical pieces closely resemble those in Gilbert & Sullivan's charming opera. But this resemblance does not in any way mar the success of the piece; perhaps if it resembled "Pinafore" less, its success would not be so pronounced. "MacDeadeye" is a splendid make up, and in the character Mr. Mackenzie was at once recognized by every one in the audience, and a perfect storm of applause was the result. The role of Capt. McA. is ably filled by Mr. Arnold, whose resemblance to the "Chieftain," with the help of the customary aids, is remarkably good. Mr. Arnold's acting lacked in nothing, and he was loudly applauded. "Sir Samuel Billery" was aptly represented by Mr. Sydney Smith; and Mrs. McDowell as "Angelina" and Mr. McDowell as "Snifter" played with their accustomed ability and good taste. Both were repeatedly and warmly applauded. The other characters are fairly represented, and altogether the company is a good one.

CURLIANA.

Guelph Defeats Preston by 19 Shots.

The Preston Club visited Guelph yesterday for the purpose of playing the return match between that Club and the Guelph Club. The game started at one o'clock and continued till shortly after four. The play was very good considering that the ice was somewhat heavy. Rink No. 1 of Guelph, skipped by Mr. Jas. Emslie, against Mr. W. D. Hepburn's rink of Preston, came out 24 shots ahead, while rink No. 2, skipped by Mr. A. Congalton, against L. A. Barber, of the Preston rink, got "skelped" by 5 shots; thus making the Guelph Club 19 shots ahead. The following is the total score of each rink, with the names of the players:

RINK NO. 1.

GUELPH.	PRESTON.
Jas Anderson	C E Klotz
Geo Patterson	Samuel Cherry
Alex Bruce	M A Abbey
Jas Emslie—Skip 30.	W D Hepburn—Skip 26.

RINK NO. 2

Wm. Hefferman	Epp Erb
Jas Mays	John Sedear
A Robertson	Isaac Hagey
A Congalton—Skip 21	L A Barber—Skip 6.
51	32

Jas. Kay and Ned McKenna had an idea before yesterday afternoon that they were pretty well up in the game of curling, and thirsted for an opportunity to show their skill. John Haugh, of the City Hotel, was chosen as their victim, the agreement being that Mr. Haugh should play two pair of stones to their one. At the close of the match the score stood 1 to 4 in favor of John Haugh, who is now resting on his laurels and patiently awaiting the return match.

A game was played this morning between the superannuated members of the Club, and a rink picked from the club generally. The superannuated players got a bad beating, the score standing 8 to 32 against them. Score:

SUPERANNUATED.	CLUB.
Wm Mitchell	John Mackenzie
Adam Robertson	D Stirton
James Anderson	A Congalton
James Barclay—Skip 8.	Jas Emslie—Skip 32.

The Stirton point medal will be played for to-morrow at half past one sharp.

THE CLUB.—A meeting of the Club will be held in Mr. Chas. Davidson's office at half-past seven o'clock this evening. A full meeting is necessary as very important matters in connection with the club have to be decided.

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

Intelligence has been received of the death by an avalanche of snow, near Carson City, Nevada, of Samuel Kennedy and M. Lane, late of Argenteuil County, and serious injuries to one McFaul. While passing along the face of one of the mountains, where they were cutting wood, an avalanche came down, burying them in snow and ice. Seventeen men were engaged eighteen hours digging in the snow before the bodies were reached.

A very important case came before the Police Magistrate of Toronto on Monday which will involve thousands of dollars. It is charged that Andrew F. Mercer, who claims to be heir to the Mercer estate, committed a fraudulent act last January by assigning $9,270 to his wife Margaret for the purpose of defrauding his creditors. The case was sent for trial at the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

A little girl named Annie Flanigan narrowly escaped death in Compton's Corset Factory, Toronto, on Saturday. While attaching a belt to a sewing machine at which she was working her hair caught in the belting and she was drawn to the shaft running along the ceiling. The foreman, with great presence of mind, cut the belt, and the girl fell heavily to the ground, sustaining some ugly bruises but no serious injuries.

CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council met on Monday evening. Present,—Mayor Sleeman, Ald. MacMillan, Burns, Gowdy, Bruce, Hewer, Fairbanks, Robertson, Stevenson, Doran, Chadwick, Coffee, McLagan, Lamprey.

ST. JAMES' WARD ELECTION.

The clerk reported that Nicholas Burns had been elected representative for St. James' Ward, and had duly subscribed to the proper Aldermanic qualification.

A LATE ACTION FOR DAMAGES.

The Mayor read a petition from Eliza Cook, asking for the balance due her,—if there was such—in a suit gained by her for damages against the Corporation.

PETITIONS.

Ald. Lamprey—From A. Doherty and twenty others, asking for a plank sidewalk on Surrey Street between Devonshire and Gordon Streets.

Ald. Fairbanks—From George Webber and some thirty others, asking for two lamps on Perth Street.

Ald. MacMillan—From John Thomas Cunningham, asking remission of taxes.

Ald. MacMillan—From Henry W. Bailey, asking for a license for a billiard room.

Ald. Fairbanks—From residents in the neighbourhood of Perth Street, asking for an additional lamp, to those already asked, on Perth Street.

On motion of Ald. MacMillan it was decided to grant Henry W. Bailey's application.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS.

The Fire, Water and Gas Committee reported that the amount expended to date was $75.41, leaving a balance of $429 to the credit of the committee. Adopted.

RELIEF COMMITTEE.

Ald. Hewer, chairman, reported, recommending that the Clerk be instructed to to advertise in the city papers daily and weekly, for one week, for the adoption of the child in possession of Mrs. Bone, as the mother of it could not be found. The committee could not recommend action on the petition of Dennis Bunyan asking for relief or work. The committee recommend the payment of the following accounts:—Jackson & Hallett, $43 96; A. D. Green, $13.20; Geo. Murton, $10.75; John Risk, $54.20; J. E. McElderry, $17.02; W. T. Tanner, $8; W. Noble, $4.75; Present Bros., $45; D. Scroggie, $7.45; Michael Nolan, 26 nights at hospital, $26—total, $230.33. The committee have paid the following accounts: W. Newport, $3.25; T. Mason, $2; R. Smith, $3; Mrs. Farrel, $1.65; Mrs. McCloskey, $1; Mrs. Haly, $2.20; railway pass to Stratford, 65 cents; two passes to Brampton, 85 cents; Mr. Collier, $3.30; A. Thompson, 28 cords wood at $3.45, $96.60—total, $114.50. Expenditure to date $707.87. Balance on hand, $92.13.

On motion the Council went into Committee, when some discussion took place as to the class of people the chairman of the committee was relieving.

Ald. Coffee alleged that the chairman was supporting some common street walkers.

The statement was fully refuted by the chairman and the Mayor, and Ald. Stevenson spoke in favor of the Report.

The Report was passed in committee and adopted.

EXHIBITION GROUNDS.

Ald. Fairbank and Hewer moved that the Council ballot for a caretaker for the Exhibition Grounds.

The ballot commenced with Fairley at 8, Jones 1, Lynch 2, Marriott 4, McAnemy 1, Clancy 0.

Fairley led for eight consecutive ballots. On the eleventh ballot, Marriot went up from 4, on the preceding vote, to 11, and was thus elected.

The balloting occupied over one hour and a half.

THE DOG BY LAW.

This by-law came up for its second reading.

The Council went into committee in consideration of the by-law—Ald. Hewer in the chair.

Ald. Chadwick objected to the clause enacting that each dog shall wear a collar and medal with the name on it, because a poor man could not afford to buy a collar and have the name engraved on it.

Ald. McLagan said, the by-law could not discriminate between a rich man's dog and that of a poor man.

The committee rose on the understanding that the by-law should be published, and discussion on it resumed at the next meeting.

ALD. BURNS.

Ald. McLagan and Gowdy moved that Ald. Burns be a member of each committee of which Mr. Grange was a member.—Carried.

THE LATE MR. HOLTON M. P.

Ald. McMillan proposed that the Council pass a resolution of condolence in respect to the memory of the late Mr. Holton, M. P.

Ald. Chadwick and McLagan objected. They both entertained the greatest respect for the great statesman, and regretted his demise, but thought it out of place for the the Council to pass such a resolution.

The Council then adjourned.

The San Francisco military companies have been called out to protect the armouries during the agitation now going on in that city.

An old settler says that the winter of 1837 was simular to this. Many persons made gardens in March, 1838, but after that the cold continued so persistently that on the 6th of June the fields of wheat and meadows just showed a little green. The harvest, however, was not bad.

The World's Washington special says:—M. de Lesseps is much chagrined at the merely formal manner of his reception by the President, and at the emphatic way in which Hayes assured him that the American people believe they must have a preponderating influence in any isthmus thoroughfare scheme.

Immigration Reports.

The Quebec Chronicle praises the Ontario Government for having published such a valuable guide book to emigrants as has just been issued, and commends the action of Mr. Mowat as worthy of being followed by the Government of that Province. We are happy to say with the Chronicle that the praise is well deserved. We have before us a copy of this guide, which has lately been issued by the Government, under the direct superintendence of the Hon. Mr. Hardy and Mr. David Spence, the Immigration Secretary. It contains a plain and well got up map of Ontario, which will be of the greatest value to the immigrant. The guide gives all needed information respecting our Province—its free grant lands, its schools, its markets, its roads, its system of Government, &c. Then follows a minute and correct account of each county, with its resources and capabilities, price of land, climate, &c. Then follow chapters on the different kinds of crops grown, stock raising, dairy farming, fruit growing and flax growing. The chapter devoted to information to farm labourers is very valuable, and the experiences of old settlers, of which there are quite a number—gathered too from all parts of the country, and written by farmers who came from England, Ireland and Scotland—will be of special interest to the people in the mother country. Much other information of a miscellaneous character is given in this handy guide, which, moreover, is embellished with several good wood cuts of the Agricultural College, farm scenes, implements, &c. It also contains at the close a valuable, practical letter on farming in Ontario, by Mr. Wm. Brown, Professor of Agriculture at the College here, which will prove at once interesting and instructive, affording as it does a great amount of information in relation to all the branches of farming which it is of importance for intending immigrants to know. At the close we have quoted portions of the reports of the Tenant Farmers' Delegates which relate to this Province. We regard this as the best guide to Ontario which has ever appeared, and its circulation in the old country cannot fail to do much good in inducing a large immigration to the Province.

We have also received a copy of the Reports of the Tenant Farmers' Delegates on the Dominion of Canada as a field for settlement, which have been gathered together, and put in pamphlet form by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture for circulation in Britain. The idea was a good one, for in this little book we have gathered together the opinions and observations of the fourteen practical farmers from England and Scotland who travelled through the country from Nova Scotia to Manitoba, and who give the result of their observations in these reports. We have already noticed nearly all of these, and given copious extracts from them, but we find one not referred to hitherto, and that is the report by Mr. George Wilken, the delegate from Aberdeenshire. Mr. Wilken's report is among the longest and best in the collection, and deals in a fair and intelligent manner with every part of the country through which he travelled, from Montreal to Manitoba. We understand that Mr. Wilken's report was received with much favour in his own district, and we have no doubt it will have an excellent effect in inducing immigrants to come to this country.

The Late Hon. Mr. Holton.

The sudden death of Hon. L. H. Holton produced a deep sensation in Ottawa. Sunday was indeed a sad day about the Commons and expressions of sincere regret were to be heard everywhere. Suitable references were made to the event in all the city churches. Mr. Holton did not appear to have an enemy, and no man in Parliament was more universally respected. The Citizen (Government organ) this morning, in reference to the event, says: "The death of such a man is a national loss. The death of such a man is a political as well as a social calamity. A vacancy is created difficult to fill, either upon the floor of the Chamber or upon the Committees, where most of the practical work of Parliament is accomplished. The English speaking section of the Liberal party of the Province of Quebec loses its frontispiece, and the nation loses a son, the best part of whose life was spent in her service. Snatched from the midst of his fellow-members without a moment's notice; summoned into eternity at a period when he was most loved and had most endeared himself to all classes of politicians, the name of Luther Hamilton Holton will be treasured amid the records of a grateful country and stand bright beside those of Baldwin, Lafontaine, Cartier, McGee and other brilliant and patriotic contemporaries."

Mr. Mackenzie was almost overcome when he learned of Mr. Holton's death, and he is said to have cried like a child. It will be remembered that Mr. Holton sat beside Mr. Mackenzie in the House, and on Monday morning the latter packed up his late companion's papers and forwarded them to Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 15.—The late Hon. L. H. Holton will be buried on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Already the St. Andrew's Society has taken action, inviting its members to turn out in procession. A movement was made this afternoon to ask the Mayor to invite business men to close their houses during the hours of the funeral, but as the Mayor has always refused such appeals it will not likely be done. The Montreal Board of Trade tomorrow will meet in full session, and will pass resolutions of condolence, among which will be one asking that members and others shall close their places of business during the afternoon, and attend the funeral in a body. The death of no public man has created so profound a feeling of gloom in Montreal, and business men generally speak of the event as a loss Montreal can ill afford in these critical times.

Rev. A. C. Falls, Episcopal minister, of Amherstburg, has been sadly bereaved of late by the serious illness of his five youngest children and the death of three them. Scarlet fever and measles combined did the fatal work.

The newspapers have wrongly announced the return of Lady Cartier to Canada. She is with her two daughters in Naples, where she has been living for two years.

Lord Derby has written a letter announcing that in future he will rank himself among the Liberals.

OUR Tory Government spent $7,000 in going to Halifax to meet the vice-regal party, and charged it all in three items. No disgusting details about apollinaris water or "sundries" at Halifax.

THE tender that was accepted from the Port Hope firm for the construction of $75,000 worth of flat and box cars for the Pacific Railway has been dropped, the parties failing to immediately complete the necessary preliminary arrangements on being notified of the fact, so that the contract has since been given to a Moncton, N. B., firm. It is claimed that the Port Hopers wanted a few hours delay, and the Government failed to respond to the request, but sent the job to the Lower Provinces.

Mr. Farrow, the Conservative member for North Huron, has been reading his leaders a lesson in private. At a recent meeting of the Internal Economy Committee he entered a solemn protest against the extravagance displayed by the Government in the following style, according to current report: "I thought that when I would come to Ottawa this time I would find that economy had been exercised, particularly in the appointment of messengers and door keepers, but there seems to be just as many as there was last session. This is a great outrage on the people of the country, and I protest against it. When a man is elected to Parliament I do not think he should be above opening and closing the doors on entering or passing out of the House. It is a gross piece of extravagance to have two men at every door in the building—one to open it as a person enters, and another to close it as he passes through." Mr. Farrow could do good service if he ceased straining at gnats while swallowing camels.

MR. Grant Duff, M. P., says the present Beaconsfield Government "floated in by beer, and floated out by water." There is abundant evidence that the dissolution was contemplated from the beginning of the session. The Government was waiting for a favorable occasion, but was compelled finally to dissolve to escape disaster, which was otherwise inevitable. The Liberals expect to gain in all thirty-three seats, and thus deprive the Government of a working majority. As these gains include the Home Rulers, some Liberals would be satisfied with less, fearing the reaction which may result were they to gain power through Irish votes. Lord Beaconsfield's manifesto has, however, had the effect of impelling the Irish to make common cause with the Liberals without exacting conditions. This may render a Parliamentary alliance more feasible hereafter. The Tories are somewhat depressed by the reports from the country at large, but they are likely to hold their own in the counties where the Liberals find it difficult to select even suitable candidates. The cry of threatened dismemberment, which it appears Lord Beaconsfield devised when the Irish members seemed bent on obstructive tactics, has now lost its power, so that before the contest closes the Government may find itself forced to act largely on the defensive. It has taken care to propose few fiscal changes in its revenue statement, but cannot fail to awaken much hostility by compelling co-operative enterprises to pay income tax.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 15.

In the House of Commons yesterday no public business was transacted, on account of the sudden and untimely disease of Mr. Holton, member for Chateauguay.

At the opening of the sitting the attendance of members was unusually large, and when Sir John Macdonald rose to move the adjournment of the House as a mark of respect to the deceased the stillness of death passed over the assembly. The Premier's speech was sympathetically real and earnest. He spoke with considerable emotion and entirely free from any attempt at dramatic effect. The key note of his remarks was his unbroken and personal intimacy and friendship with Mr. Holton, extending over a long political career—a friendship and intimacy he was now pleased to say had never been marred by personal differences, although during the whole period they were respectively ranged on opposing sides of politics. He kindly alluded to the grief which he knew the opposition must experience at losing a trusted and valued colleague and leader, but he bade them remember that the whole Dominion as well as the House had also sustained an irreparable loss and shared in their mourning.

While he was speaking several members on both sides of the House were observed to be visibly affected. For once political bitterness and asperity were cast aside, and both political parties offered their devotions at the shrine of a common humanity.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie rose to second the motion. He characterised the decease of his trusted friend and colleague as a national calamity, and he was proceeding to eulogize the memory of the deceased when, as was not quite unexpected, he was completely overcome by emotion. The opening words of his last sentence fell with a mournful cadence on the ears of the House. He faltered the words, "I feel myself utterly unable to say"—when he was confused by emotion. He made an apparent effort to continue, but failed. His grief and emotion spoke far more eloquently his thoughts than mere words could express.

Mr. Laurier followed, and notwithstanding the sorrow he experienced paid a graceful tribute in English to the memory of one who had been to him a political father and friend.

Mr. Alonzo Wright, who speaks rarely, but always well, said he could not refrain from placing a sprig of Ottawa pine on the coffin of one so revered and respected.

Messrs. Langevin, Coursol, Bechard, Mousseau, and Tasse, on behalf of the French Canadian element, paid a tribute to Mr. Holton's memory.

Mr. Gault, on behalf of the city of Montreal, contributed to the eulogy of one of her noblest sons.

Mr. Plumb said that Mr. Holton had won the white flower of a blameless life; and Mr. Macdougall, as an old colleague of the deceased, as one who had been intimate with him for thirty years, held up his life to the young politicians of either party to mould their careers upon, and when they came to terminate lives of usefulness they would pass away deeply and sincerely regretted by the Dominion at large, as he had.

The motion was carried, and the House adjourned at 4 o'clock.

FIRE IN STRATFORD.—A destructive fire broke out in Stratford on Sunday night, in the rear of the buildings occupied by J. Williamson & Co., dry goods merchants, totally destroying the other three adjoining buildings, occupied by J. Welsh, jeweller, A. McNair & Co., dry goods merchants, and Miss Burn, dry goods and millinery. The stocks of the several parties were partly saved, although terribly damaged by removal. Owing to the exertions of the Stratford fire brigade and the prompt assistance rendered by the Grand Trunk Railway, the fire was soon under control. It is understood that the loss is very heavy, although partly covered by insurance.

The Creditors' Relief Act.

The following is a summary of the provisions of this Act, which comes in force in Ontario as soon as the Royal Assent is given to the Bill for the repeal of the Dominion Insolvent Act.

The Sheriff will take the place assigned by the Insolvent Act to the official assignee. The Act shall not affect the rights of execution creditors under the writs of execution delivered to a sheriff or division court bailiff before the Act takes effect.

There shall be no priority between or among execution creditors, unless in certain cases specified. In case a sheriff levies any money upon an execution against the estate of a debtor, he shall forthwith post up in his office a notice that such levy has been made together with the amount thereof; and such money shall thereafter be distributed rateably among all execution and other creditors whose writs have been sent to the sheriff within a month after the first posting of such notice, except in the case of contested claims, which are provided for elsewhere in the Act. The distribution of subsequent levies is ordered to be done in a similar manner. If a bailiff of a division court makes a levy upon an execution against a creditor's property, he shall pay the proceeds over to the clerk, who in turn shall pursue a course as to distribution similar to that incumbent on a sheriff. No creditor shall be entitled to a share in the distribution of money thus levied, unless by the delivery of a writ of execution or by having established his claim on the estate, alone or jointly with other persons. If a debtor permits an execution issued against him, under which any of his goods or chattels are seized by a sheriff, to remain unsatisfied in the sheriff's hands till within four days of the time fixed by the sheriff for the sale thereof, or for fifteen days after such seizure, or allows an execution against his lands to remain unsatisfied for nine months after it is placed in the sheriff's hands, an affidavit of the debt and the particulars thereof must be made by the creditor or his clerk. This declaration must be served on the debtor, and a duplicate copy shall be placed in the hands of the County Court Clerk of the county, the sheriff of which has execution. If the claim is not disputed within ten days, a certificate to that effect must be given by the County Court Clerk. If part of the claim is disputed, the creditor may elect, by a writing fyled with the Clerk, to abandon such part, and obtain a certificate for the residue. On this certificate the claimant shall be constituted an execution creditor, and shall be entitled to share with creditors who have in the sheriff's hands executions against lands or goods whatever money may be made under such execution. On receipt of the certificate, the sheriff is bound to make a further levy. Provision is made for the debtor fyling an affidavit disputing the account, said affidavit to have endorsed on it a statement of some place in, or within three miles of, the county town of the county in which the proceedings are being taken, at which service may be made upon the debtor, or the address of some solicitor in the province who may be served in the debtor's behalf, or the affidavit may be served by mail in a registered letter. If a creditor disputes a claim, he must fyle an affidavit with the sheriff before distribution is made. In case of contestation, unless otherwise ordered by the judge, the sheriff shall levy as if such contestation had not taken place, but he shall retain the sum contested in bank till the dispute is settled, which shall be as soon after the expiry of a month as possible, and then he shall distribute the residue of the money amongst those entitled. In questions in dispute, the judge may either order them to be tried summarily or by jury. It is provided that a Division Court judgment shall be as good a memorandum of a claim as a writ of execution on property of a debtors in one county shall be binding on property in other counties. Provision is also made that the Sheriff shall receive costs on the Superior Court scale in claims over $400, and on the Court scale on claims exceeding $200 and not exceeding $400; or the amount paid to the Division Court bailiff on claims of $200 and under. Where there is no contest the sum of $5 is stipulated for fees of a solicitor (if employed), unless the amount of the claim is within the jurisdiction of the Division Court, in which case the sum of two dollars only is to be allowed to be granted. In case of a contest such additional costs are as the judge may allow. In case the Sheriff does not find sufficient property in the possession of a debtor to satisfy an execution, he is entitled to obtain whatever goods may be in the hands of the Division Court bailiff belonging to the said debtor. When the amount levied is insufficient to meet all claims, the sheriff's duty is to make out a list of the creditors entitled to share in the distribution, and the amount going to each, which shall be mailed to the respective creditors, or handed to their attorneys; and if no objection is made in eight days, the sheriff shall proceed with the distribution. Frivolous objections the sheriff need not take notice of; but if a regular affidavit objecting to the distribution is booked within the prescribed eight days, the judge shall be called upon to adjudicate upon it. The decision of the judge in the County Court shall bind all creditors, unless it can be shown that it was obtained by fraud or collusion by the parties to the contestation. Provision is further made that any person dissatisfied with the decision of a judge in sums greater than $100 may appeal to the Court of Appeal.

In case several creditors are intrusted in contestation for or against the same, the judge shall have power to give such directions for saving unnecessary expense in the shape of trials, and shall decide what proportion of the expenses each should bear. In case the sheriff has money in his hands which he cannot immediately pay over he is required to deposit it in some bank, and in a specific account. There are several other directions for sheriffs how to deal with estates.

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See other column.

Clarence E. Davis, a gay young swell in Hamilton some 14 years ago, is in gaol at Chicago on a charge of bigamy, he having no less than four lawful (?) wives living at the present time. In fact, they have already held a caucus at Chicago and resolved to give the gay deceiver, who is yet but 36 years of age, the benefit of the law to the fullest extent. Three of the wives are Americans. The wife which Davis married whilst living in Hamilton has lately tarried in Brantford, and she has a son learning telegraphing in the Dominion Telegraph Co. office.

Toronto is to have a fancy dress calico ball on the 7th April, under the patronage of Lieut.-Governor and Miss Macdonald, Toronto.

An Ottawa correspondent writes:—"I don't think Ottawa has been so absolutely dull any session since it became the seat of Government." The sickness of the Princess Louise is given as one of the causes.

The Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army, the advance guard of which, in the shape of half a dozen women and a man, landed from the Australia the other day at Castle Garden, have been well known in England during the last two or three years. The idea of their founder, Wm. Booth, seems to have been rational and commendable enough—the same, in fact, as that of the Wesleys and the Countess of Huntingdon—to bring the Gospel into the streets to the hordes of ignorant poor who will not go to the churches to find it for themselves. No right minded person can visit England, even now, without wishing that the gulf could be bridged over between the stately and costly church services and the wretched gin drinking paupers in the London slums, although the Dissenting churches on the one hand and the Ritualists on the other, have done much in that direction.

This Salvation Army makes assault upon the devil by a new kind of tactics. Their usual plan, according to the English press, is to take hands, dressed in fantastic garb, and march abreast into some crowded throughfare, singing hymns set to some popular tune. When the attention of the mob is gained they begin to preach. Converts, no matter what their past history or education, are immediately enrolled as preachers and exhorters, and carry on the warfare against the world and the devil. Such an organization and ministry must necessarily attract to it such fiery, untempered zeal and (as the ministers are supported by contributions of the faithful) quite as much humbuggery and fraud. Navvies, whether real converts or dead-beats who step out of the gin-shops to the pulpit are not likely to practice all the Christian graces: hence our English files have reported regularly for the last two years encounters between the police and the officers of the Salvation Army. On the whole, however, these people appear to be sincere, and the worst side of their character and actions would certainly be reported in England—a country which, more than any other, abjures innovations in religion. At Eton, it will be remembered, the boys were officially punished for going to hear Mr. Moody, though they can drink or gamble, if they choose, with impunity.

The leaders show their shrewdness in adopting a distinctive dress, catchwords, &c. Ignorant and emotional people like these dramatic accessaries to their religion, as the Catholic Church well knows. The Salvation Army will find they are not needed here as in England. Churches are plenty and open to the poorest. Still, so long as they conduct themselves properly they will no doubt be treated civilly and generously.—N. Y. Tribune.

New Class of Immigrants for the States.

The penniless, half-starved immigrants in sheepskin coats who lately landed at Castle Garden, and whom the reporters call Hungarians, are in reality Slovaks, a race numbering about 1,030,000 souls, which inhabits the northwestern portion of Hungary, and has no kinship in language, ancestry or customs with the Magyars, who are the Hungarians proper. The Slovaks are perhaps the most ignorant and miserable peasantry in Christian Europe. Their country is rough and poor, and they subsist mainly on potatoes. Their language belongs to the Slavonic group, and is more closely related to Bohemian than to any other tongue. It has no literature. Bands of Slovaks frequently leave their farms and go to the cities of Austria and Hungary, where they perform the rudest kind of labor. The women work with the men, and can scarcely be distinguished from them in features or dress. It is not an uncommon sight, in Vienna, to see Slovak women digging sewers, cleaning the streets or carrying bricks and mortar to the tops of buildings. The immigrants who have come to New York seem to have been driven from their homes by famine, resulting from the destruction of their crops by floods. The condition of their country resembles that of Silesia. The Magyars, with whom these poor people are confounded, rarely emigrant. They have a fertile country, and are intelligent, industrious, and intensely patriotic.

CHAPTER XXXII.

AN INTERESTING MEETING—A RESEMBLANCE DETECTED—JACK BORLAND IS DOMICILED IN HIS OLD QUARTERS, AND MAKES FRIENDS OF AGNES AND HER MOTHER.

"I see now why it is," she said to herself, with a rush of emotion. "He bears a resemblance to Adam. Yes, undoubtedly he does; his eyes are wonderfully like, and he has the same broad, manly frame. This may be only fancy, but it is a fancy which raises a kindly feeling in my heart, and for the sake of that resemblance I have a wish to accede to his proposal. But Agnes must decide. I do wish she would come—Ah! at last I see her on the path."

"My daughter is in sight now, Mr. Wilson," she said, addressing her visitor. "Pray excuse me while I go to meet her and explain."

Jack scarcely allowed her time to be as far as the garden gate when he was off his seat and gazing eagerly through the rose branches which overhung the window. His gaze shot down the park to the form of Agnes, who was slowly approaching by the side of the wood, and his eyes remained fixed on her with a penetrating earnestness. From Orwell's description he had formed an idea of her appearance, making allowance for a lover's partiality and subtracting a little from the sum total on the ground of supposed exaggeration. But now that his glistening eyes beheld her, his throbbing heart acknowledged that Orwell had done Agnes no more than justice. Her tall, handsome figure, her graceful motion, her finely formed countenance, whose sweetness and gravity he could detect even in the distance, filled him with pride, tenderness, and emotion.

"What a fine girl she has grown, to be sure," he said as a big lump rose in his throat. "I see something of both Adam and Jessie in her. And to think that is the chubby little infant I kissed and fondled twenty years ago? Oh, I fear this is going to be too much for me. When I meet her I'll break down unless I tighten every nerve to its utmost strength. Poor, dear girl, how pale and sad she looks; how she is suffering. Ah, a few days longer—a week or two at the most, and then——. The mere thought of it makes me wild with impatience."

In breathless silence he watched mother and daughter, saw them stand and speak together, saw the surprised start with which Agnes received her mother's communication, saw her attitude of intense interest as she listened to her mother's words, and watched the pair as for some minutes they stood in deliberation."

"Shall I have to tell them at once," he murmured. "Of course, rather than leave the cottage I will; but it would be much better if I can delay till after I have seen Mr. Bishop. Ah, they come; they have decided; I'll go and meet them. Now, to preserve my firmness."

By the time Jack reached the porch Agnes and her mother were at the garden gate. As his huge form emerged from the rose-covered trellis Agnes fixed her eyes on him with steady scrutiny. Her look while free from shyness was quiet and earnest, her mother having prepared her for the resemblance which had so greatly influenced her in the stranger's favour. Agnes was eagerly searching for it—a fullness of heart having come upon her at the mention of her mother's fancy.

"Well, Miss Borland, what is to be my fate?" said Jack, as he advanced down the garden path and stood before her. "Are you afraid to take in such a big fellow as me, whom you never saw before, and know nothing about; or have I such an appearance of respectability and good principle as to induce you to trust me? Here I present myself for your full inspection. Look at me well, and announce the result."

As he spoke, Jack took off his hat and turned towards her frank, honest, truthful face, lighted up by a peculiarly winning smile. For several moments Agnes continued her silent steady scrutiny, during which a powerful undoubting conviction of the stranger's trustworthiness rushed upon her—came with the force and authority of an intuition. Frankly, heartily, as if she had known him for years, she held out her hand saying, in a tone entirely free from doubt.

"I have perfect faith in you, Mr. Wilson. Mother and I will be glad to have you as a lodger, and do our best to make you comfortable."

If Jack had given way to the impulse which rushed into his heart he would in the instant have clasped her to his bosom, and given way to an outburst of deep, tender, passionate emotion. With an exercise of self-restraint which he wondered at, he contented himself with taking the hand she gave in both his own; pressing it warmly, and saying in a rather shaky voice, but with the heartiest manner—

"Thank you, Miss Borland; you shall find this trust you put in me is not misplaced. Will you shake hands with me also, Mrs. Borlond, in token that you share in the young lady's faith?"

"Willingly, sir," replied the widow, and next moment she touched a hand she had not touched for twenty years—a hand which she took in the belief that it was that of a stranger, yet which in the warmth of its pressure sent a strange thrill of tender feeling through her being. She looked quickly up at the face which was bent over her, and for a brief moment caught that expression of the stranger's eyes which she had noted before as startlingly familiar. It was only for an instant, for the other immediately withdrew his gaze and resumed his hat which shadowed the upper part of his face.

It being decided that Mr. Wilson should become their lodger, wonderful progress was made during the rest of the evening in establishing free and cordial intercourse. Jack purposely strove to make himself agreeable, and to increase that confidence which his appearance had inspired in their minds. He allowed the natural frankness of his nature to have full play, and entertained them with descriptions of America and other matters, which his wide travels enabled him to enlarge on. So that by the time the hour for rest arrived Jack had somehow made them feel that he was no stranger but a friend, and caused them to experience a sense of security and protection in his presence.

In the exuberance of his frankness, however, Jack never forgot the part he required to play, and was careful not to afford Jessie and Agnes any information concerning himself while studying them closely and thinking with a full heart of past times. The preservation of his secret was ever present to his mind, though every object by which they were surrounded affected him deeply by its association with the past. The "settle" on which he sat was the same one he had often reclined on in former days. The "dresser," the "bink," the corner cupboard, everything that met his eye was a powerful remembrancer of the past, which it took all his firmness to withstand. Once he very nearly allowed his feelings to get beyond control. It was when his eye lighted on Adam's blue bonnet on the peg which it used to occupy. The sight of that memento caused his heart to throb with a power almost overwhelming.

At last he was glad to retire with his overcharged feelings to the solitude of the chamber which was to be his sleeping apartment, that there he might give vent to them unseen. Here also the past pressed upon him with rushing strength. It was the room in which he had slept in former days, the very box-bed which was to receive him was the veritable bed he had slept in when weary with his day's work in the Grange garden. He gave one brief glance round, softly fastened the door, and safe now in the privacy of his apartment, he threw himself on his knees in front of his bed and burying his face on the coverlet found relief in a burst of emotion which shook his strong frame to its centre, but which gradually subsided in violence till his calmness and firmness returned.

Like a thunderstorm which clears the troubled air and brings peace, Jack experienced much good from the outbreak of this storm in his soul. Being thoroughly tired with travel, he passed into a sound sleep so soon as his head was laid on the pillow.

Agnes and her mother sat for some time by the embers of the kitchen exchanging views and opinions regarding their unlooked-for lodger.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is noble benefactor."

ALLEGED MALPRACTISE.—A woman named Mrs. David died recently in Kingston in childbirth and in consequence of rumours in circulation an inquest was held. The jury returned a verdict that she came to her death through unnatural causes in childbirth, hastened through a mistake by Dr. Evans in his treatment of the case. The County Attorney gave as his opinion that the verdict did not necessarily amount to a charge of manslaughter against the physician, and he was therefore, discharged, Troubles between capital and labor are again becoming very frequent in the United States. The iron puddlers in several districts of Pennsylvania have struck work, and owing to a dispute between employers and employees at the Steinway piano factory in New York thirteen firms of piano makers locked out their men on Monday.

In the Canada Gazette on Saturday, to the surprise of almost everybody, the announcement was made that all the dismissed officers of the Toronto Tenth Royals had been reinstated to their respective ranks. The head of the Militia Department has had to come down from his high horse when he cancelled these gentlemen's commissions.

The Primate of the English Church does not appear to advantage in a peculiar correspondence recently published in Bristol. A lady, Mrs. Edwards, had been refused communion by the Vicar of Cheddar, on the ground that she had married the brother of her deceased husband. The Bishop of Bath and Wells was appealed to, but he supported the Vicar. Ultimately John Edwards, the lady's husband, appealed to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and his reply, if correctly given, seems the strangest of all. He is represented as saying: "In similar circumstances my advice has been that persons so circumstanced desiring to communicate should go to some church where their history is not known." Mr. Edwards says this advice is somewhat startling, as it recommends persons so situated to obtain the benefit of the church sacraments, if not by false pretences, at any rate by a concealment of the truth.

The remarks of the Duke of Argyll on the scarcity of song birds in this country has again directed attention to the subject. A scheme is now on foot to introduce the Chinese lark, a bird which adapts itself to any description of weather, and is wiry and graceful in form. A number of them will be let loose in Tennessee and Kentucky.

A Sample of Gush.

The Hamilton Spectator has a correspondent at Ottawa who occasionally spills over. This is how he talks concerning the Marquis and Princess:

"When they approach their august mother at the expiration of their rule, and return Canada into the hands of our beloved Queen, they will be able to say: 'You gave us your fair daughter loyal and loving; we return her with her loyalty deepened and her love intensified. You gave her suffering under the general depression of the age, but bearing her burden bravely and hopefully. We return her prosperous and buoyant, blooming and happy. You gave her contented with her lot as a portion of her great empire. We yield her up ardently looking forward to a more intimate connection with its imperial system. You gave her sighing for the polish and refinement of her European cousins. We return her an apt and successful student of the graces of artistic life, and your Majesty need not hesitate to seat her by your side, since she is now as cultured as she is fair, as polished as she is noble, and as graceful as she is loving.

More, oh, give us more!

The sudden death is announced of Dr. Philip, a well known Galt physician.

REGENT HOUSE.

AS INTIMATED IN MONDAY'S COLUMNS WE HAVE RENEWED OUR partnership for another term. All are aware we have cleared out the most of our large stock, thus enabling us to buy a large stock for the spring trade. We have purchased some of the finest and cheapest goods ever brought into Guelph, and to-morrow (Saturday) we will show an assortment of Dry Goods which every lady in this City and Country should see. The great attraction for this season of the year will be our New Prints. In this department we excel, and never before have such beautiful patterns been shown in Guelph. We have added a new rule to our business regulations:—all goods marked in plain figures. Look out for the windows.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

St. Patrick's Day.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 16.—Several bands of music have been parading the streets since eleven o'clock, ushering in St. Patrick's day.

QUEBEC, March 17.—St. Patrick's Day is being quietly observed here. There was no procession this morning, but grand mass was performed in St. Patrick's Church at ten a. m.

MONTREAL, March 17.—St. Patrick's day was celebrated by the various Irish National Societies forming at eight this morning, on Craig street, and marching in procession to St. Patrick's church, where mass was celebrated. The Societies separated immediately after divine service.

TORONTO, March 17.—There is very little commotion on the streets to-day, and one is only reminded of its being St. Patrick's day by meeting an occasional enthusiast wearing the national color in the button hole of his coat.

OTTAWA, March 17.—St. Patrick's day is being observed quietly. There was no public demonstration. High mass was celebrated in St. Patrick's Church by Bishop Duhamel.

Vennor on the Weather.

Mr. Vennor predicts very cold weather with heavy snow falls for the remaining portion of March.

A Little Boy Wanders from Home and Perishes in the Cold.

ST. MARY'S, Ont., March 17.—A little boy, about two years and a half old, son of Mr. Geo. White, a farmer, residing about five miles from town, wandered away from his home on Monday morning last. He was not missed till eleven o'clock the same morning, when a search was at once made, which was continued Monday afternoon, all Monday night, and yesterday. Up till eleven o'clock last night the little wanderer had not been found. He has been traced as far as the bush on his father's place, but on account of falling snow they have lost all trace further than above mentioned.

GRANTON, Ont., March 17:—Mr. Charles White's little son, who wandered from home on the 15th inst., was this morning found in the woods about three miles from home quite dead, having perished with fatigue and cold. During his wanderings he had crossed several creeks until he reached the spot where he was found.

In Manitoba there now thirty Presbyterian ministers as against four in 1870, between 1,500 and 2,000 Presbyterian families as opposed to the less than 200 of ten years ago, and about 120 preaching stations as opposed to the eight in 1870.

The Iowa Legislature has adopted a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor.

Daily Mercury.

WEDNESDAY EVNG, MARCH 17, 1880

Local News.

THERE were no cases for trial at Police Court to-day.

THIS being St. Patrick's Day the flag is flying above the tower on the City Hall.

A LARGE number of farmers attended the Easter fair and fat cattle fair to-day.

THE Police Magistrate has so far recovered as to be able to attend his duties at the Police Court.

WEATHER PROBS.—Brisk to fresh winds mostly between north and west, generally clear cold weather.

LARGE PURCHASE OF CATTLE.—Mr. James McShane, M. P. P., of Montreal, purchased 250 head of cattle at the Easter fair here, which he will ship to Montreal for export to Britain.

An after tea social will be given by the Ladies' Association of the First Congregational Church, Norfolk street, on Thursday evening in the basement. A good musical and literary programme has been prepared, and a hearty welcome will be extended to all. During the evening a collection will be taken up in aid of the funds of the Ladies' Association. d2

WATER WORKS.—The Water Works engines are now pumping every day, and the works are giving every satisfaction. Most of the leaks in the pipes have been repaired. As yet there have not been many orders received for services, but a number are expected in the spring. At present the Commissioners are not favorable to laying service pipes, owing to the frost in the ground.

PERSONAL.—Hon. S. C. Wood, Provincial Secretary, and the Minister of Agriculture is in the city to-day visiting the Agricultural College. James McShane, M. P. for Montreal West, arrived in the city yesterday and registered at the City Hotel, to attend the cattle fair. Mr. C. Acton Burrows arrived here yesterday from Winnipeg.

INCIPIENT FIRE.—About ten o'clock last night an alarm of fire was sounded occasioned through a fire having originated in the engine house at McCrae's wood yard, Quebec street. The brigade were promptly on hand and attached two branches of hose to the water works hydrant opposite Chalmers' Church. The fire was put out in a very few minutes. The fire must have caught from a spark from the boiler. The damage done is trifling.

EMIGRANTS FOR MANITOBA.—Two passenger trains passed through the city on the Grand Trunk Railway this (Wednesday) forenoon en route for Manitoba. The passengers were mostly of the farming class, came from the neighbourhood of Ottawa and eastern districts, and intend settling in the Prairie Province. There were a number of freight cars attached to each train, filled with agricultural implements, live stock and household effects, belonging to the party. About two o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon, two more trains containing in all fifteen passenger cars, passed through the city loaded with emigrants bound for Manitoba.

CONCERT IN NASSAGAWEYA.—Mr. Black, music teacher, Guelph, gave a concert in Nassagaweya Township on Monday evening, which was largely attended. The entertainment throughout proved most enjoyable, as was evinced by frequent rounds of applause. Those from Guelph who took part in the concert were Mr. Wm. Kennedy who sang Irish and negro songs in character with good effect. Mr. James Maitland played the accompaniments in a highly satisfactory manner. Mr. Black sang a number of songs which were highly appreciated.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—There is an unusual stir in the city to-day in consequence of the anniversary of the birthday of the patron saint of Ireland. Many people from the green sod may be seen about the street wearing the badge of their country, but the day is being very quietly observed. The services at the church of Our Lady have been largely attended. Mass was celebrated as usual at 6.30 and 8 o'clock in the morning and high mass at 10 o'clock. At high mass Rev. Father Ryan, of Montreal, preached an appropriate sermon. The observance of the day will conclude with a sacred concert in the church this evening.

FOOLHARDINESS.—On the arrival of one of the special trains with emigrants for Manitoba to-day, a few of the passengers got off to purchase some articles in the city. Before they returned to the station the train started, and the passengers referred to ran across the Market Square to the Gordon Street crossing, where two of them attempted to get on board. The train was moving rapidly, and one of the two failed to grasp hold of the railings of any of the cars, but another who did so, after being drawn a distance along the track, was thrown violently to the ground and came nearly being run over. He was very badly bruised by the fall. The train was stopped and the two young men taken on board. Some others who got off the train at the station were left behind altogether, being unable to catch it.

TEACHING YOUNGEST CHILDREN. — The system of teaching pursued for some few years in the school of Quincey, Mass., has attracted wide attention, and the town is described by a leading paper as the one bright spot in the American educational system. A cotemporary remarks that the chief difference—and it is a most important difference—between this system and that pursued in the best schools of Ontario is that inexperienced teachers are not put to teach the youngest children. The Quincey trustees do not allow any teacher to experiment on that which is most tender and most easily injured. They act on the opinion, "It takes double the capacity, ingenuity, patience and experience to teach a child five years than it does one of ten, therefore, the best teachers shall be promoted to the primary department." There is also more extensive use of the kindergarten principles; but the principle laid down is worth the careful consideration of the friends of education.

THE Globe of Wednesday says that Mr. Wetherald, late a member of the Society of Friends, has been baptised at St. Catharines, and will probably become the minister of the Congregationalists there. We believe that this refers to Mr. William Wetherald, late of the Rockwood Academy.

Post Office Statistics.

It is perhaps of interest to note the revenues derived by the Post Office Department from various towns, as an index of their relative commercial or literary activity as well as of their size. Beginning with Ontario, we have Toronto, $154,263; Hamilton, $49,150; London, $32,918; Ottawa, $28,025; Kingston, $15,331; Guelph, $12,392; Brantford, $12,058; Belleville, $11,183; St. Catharines, $10,872; Brockville, $8,254; St. Thomas, $8,197; Chatham, $7,793; Stratford, $7,[illegible]; Peterboro, $7,408; Woodstock, $7,046; Cart, $6,179; Ingersoll, $6,150; Port Hope, $6,019; Barrie, $5,933; Cobourg, $5,476; Windsor, $5,294; Lindsay, $5,234; Napanee, $5,026; Sarnia, $5,001; Owen Sound, $4,351; Walkerton, $4,297; Collingwood, $4,078; Orillia, $4,068; Simcoe, $4,013; Bowmanville, $3,947; Seaforth, $3,360; St. Mary's, $3,675; Whitby, $3,663; Berlin, $3,612; Perth, $3,240.

The revenues derived from the larger towns and cities in Quebec are as follows: Montreal, $154,903; Quebec, $31,943; Sherbrooke, $6,614; Three Rivers, $3,875; St. Johns, $3,270; St. Hyacinthe, $3,228; Coaticook, $1,536; Joliette, $1,299; Hull, $1,277; Danville, $1,265; Arthabaskaville, $1,151; Granby, $1,041.

The Postal revenues contributed by the principal towns of Nova Scotia were as under: Halifax, $55,511; Truro, $4,102; Pictou, $3,235; New Glasgow, $2,425; Amherst, $2,977; Liverpool, $1,668; Kentville, $1,673; Digby, $1,402; Windsor, $2,491; Sydney, $1,135; Wolfville, $1,355.

New Brunswick's chief towns paid into the Postmaster General's department as follows: St. John, $32,127; St. Stephen, $10,903; Fredericton, $7,812; Moncton, $4,658; Chatham, $2,813; Newcastle, $1,973; Woodstock, $1,972; Sackville, $1,650; Indiantown, $1,129; Dorchester, $1,194; Shediac, $1,159; St. Andrews, $1,116; Sussex, $1,134.

The returns from the other Provinces show that Victoria, B. C., returned $9,198, and New Westminster, $2,220. Winnipeg, Man., $11,838; Emerson, $1,039; Portage la Prairie, $773; Charlottetown, P. E. I., $9,525; Summerside, $2,384; Georgetown, $679; West Souris, $749.

Meeting of Presbytery.

A large amount of business was transacted by the Presbytery of Guelph at their meeting yesterday, the 16th instant, in Knox Church, Guelph. We give a brief summary of the principal items. Session Records were called for and Committees appointed to examine those produced. On the report of these Committees at a future stage of the proceedings the Records were attested in terms thereof. The following were appointed Commissioners to the General Assembly at its meeting in Montreal in June next:—Messrs. Hamilton, Torrance, Middlemiss, Dickson, Tait, and J. C. Smith, Ministers, and Messrs. Thomas McCrae, Charles Davidson, James Dalgliesh, J. M. Muir, Archibald Campbell, and James Cowan, Ruling Elders. The Finance Committee gave in their report, showing the amounts received by the Presbytery Treasurer, the arrears due by congregations, and the balances to the credit of the different funds. The Conference on the State of Religion and the consideration of the Report of the Committee on the Validity of Romish Ordination was deferred till next ordinary meeting to be taken up in the forenoon. Mr. Dickson reported that according to appointment he had moderated in a call at Rothsay and Moorefield, which had come out unanimously in favor of Mr. Henry Edmison, A. M., of the congregation of Melcourne, in the Presbytery of Quebec. Mr. Davidson's conduct in moderating was approved, the call was sustained, after hearing Commissioners, and careful deliberation, and the Clerk was instructed to forward it to the Clerk of the Presbytery of Quebec, with the accompanying reasons of translation. Mr. F. Tully was requested to prosecute the call before that Presbytery, when it comes up for consideration. The Committee appointed to visit St. Andrew's Church, Galt, gave in their report, and the same was received. The Committee was re-appointed with additions, and Mr. J. C. Smith was appointed to supply the pulpit of that Church on the 28th inst., and Mr. Middlemiss on the 4th April. It was also decided that a meeting of the congregation be held on the evening of Monday, 5th April, to consider their present position, and what they should do in the circumstances. The call from the congregation of Erin and Ospringe, to Mr. Fowlie, was then taken up. Commissioners on both sides were heard. Mr. Fowlie was then asked to state his mind regarding it. A motion that the translation of Mr. Fowlie be granted was carried by a large majority over one that it be not allowed. Mr. Bryant reported that he had moderated in a call at Hawkesville, which had come out unanimously in favor of Mr. Alexander Russell, Probationer. His conduct in moderating was approved. The call, signed by twenty-five members, was next sustained, and the Clerk was instructed forward it to Mr. Russell for his decision. The Clerk reported the replies he had received to the Circular of Presbytery sent out to congregations asking if they had contributed to the Ordinary Fund of Knox College, and of the Theological Department of Queen's College, Kingston. He was then directed to apply again to those congregations which had not sent in any answer. A statement was also submitted of the amounts still due to the Synod Fund. A Circular on Temperance was read, and a Committee composed of Messrs. Ball, Torrance and Mullen, was appointed to draft a reply to the same, and present it at the next meeting in Erin. It was agreed to nominate Mr. D. McRae, of St. Stephen's Church, St. John, as Moderator of the next General Assembly. Mr. Torrance was nominated as Moderator of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston at its first meeting, in May next. Next ordinary meeting was appointed to be held in Knox Church, Guelph, on the third Tuesday of May, at 10 o'clock forenoon.

Mr. Gladstone started on Tuesday on an electioneering tour through Midlothian. In addressing a crowd at the railway station before his departure, said: "I am going to gain a victory. I expect to be supported with zeal such as will make Scotland an example for the rest of the Kingdom." He had no doubt he should secure the object he had in going to Scotland, which was not only to win the seat for Midlothian, but sweep out of their seats a great many who now represent constituencies in Parliament.

Guelph Curling Club.

A meeting of the club was held in Mr. Chas. Davidson's office on Tuesday evening, when communications were read from the Toronto club, protesting against the award of the Caledonian medal to the Guelph club. The communication was a lengthy one, and was anything but complimentary to the intelligence of the Guelph Curling Club.

The following resolution was moved by Mr. Stirton, seconded by Mr. Davidson: that inasmuch as this club has in every respect complied with the ruling and decision of the Umpire, and conformed as near as possible with the rules of the Caledonian Club, we therefore decide to leave the case to be settled in the usual course as laid down in the Manual, chap. 4, sec. 4.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE STIRTON MEDAL will be played for to-morrow afternoon, at one o'clock sharp, the day having been changed on account of the fair. All those who wish to play for the medal will govern themselves accordingly.

The Late Mr. Holton.

OTTAWA, March 17.—The House of Commons this morning wears a desolate appearance. The morning train to Montreal took a large proportion of the members to attend the funeral of their late colleague, Mr. Holton. The flags are half masted on buildings. His Excellency has sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Holton, and it is said a strong friendship existed between the Governor-General and the deceased.

Large Party for Manitoba.

LONDON, March 17.—Mr. Paterson's second party for Manitoba, comprising over 400 persons, from districts around Paris and Centralia, passed up last night. The emigrants were mostly well-to-do farmers. The passenger train numbered 10 first class cars, one Wagner and four baggage. The freight carried by the party filled 61 cars, 36 containing the settlers' baggage and live stock, and 25 general merchandise. 35 men were on board as caretakers.

THE FIRE IN STRATFORD.—After the fire had been got under on Monday night, it broke out again this time in the Beacon Office, but was soon got under. The fire engine and men asked for in London was ordered back just as they were leaving the depot, the Stratford brigade feeling equal to the task of subduing the flames. Mr. Matheson's stock and losses are so complicated that just now he can hardly estimate the figures, which are about as follows:—On type and small presses, $1,500 in the North British; do Queen's $500; do Scottish Commercial, $1,000; large press, $1,500 in the Royal; on stock, Royal, $1,000; Queen's, $2,500; National, $1,000; Lancaster, $1,000; and Scottish Commercial, $1,000.

Easter Fair and Fat Cattle Show.

Under the Auspices of the Drovers and Butcher's Association.

A Very Successful Show.

The Easter Fair and fat cattle Show held to-day, (Wednesday), for the first time under the auspices of the Drovers' and Butchers' Association, was highly successful. Though the number of cattle offered for sale was not so large perhaps, as in former years, owing to the number of cattle bought ahead for export, yet it was by no means small. The market had a firm tendency and prices ranged from $3.50 to $5 per 100 lbs., for ordinary cattle, but of course premium beef brought a higher price. Where sellers seemed desirous of disposing of their animals on reasonable terms they had not long to wait to sell. In fact most of the cattle was bought up early in the forenoon. There has been such a demand for cattle for export this winter that buyers advice feeding young cattle for the June market.

The following are the sales reported:—

John Youle, 5 head for $284.
Peter McNee, 3 head for $120.
James Leybourne, 3 head for $157.50.
James McCullough, yoke of oxen at $4.
James Scarrow, heifer at $4.50
Henry Reed, Erin, 2 steers at $4.50, and bull for $38.
H N J Groff, 4 head at $6, 2 cows for $130, and heifer for $50.
George Moore, ox, 3,000 pounds, and pair steers, 4,420 pounds, at $9.
Angus Thompson, Erin, cow, at $4.50.
Fred Ritchie, cow, at $3.50.
John Ellis, two head for $54, and $60 each.
J Tovell, 3 head at $50 each.
Henry Duffield, heifer for $34.
David Matheson, cow at 5c.
James Smith, 3 head, $128.
Ephraim Barber, 2 head at $4.12½.
Jas Stewart, 3 head at $5.
Andrew Thompson, cow at $3.75.
Robt Bilton, heifer for $28.
John Smith, 4 head at $4 50.
Thomas Hamilton, yoke of oxen for $180.
George Coghlan, 12 head at $4.50.
John McCullough, heifer for $48.
Patrick O'Boyle, cow for $47.
Thomas Wilson, 3 steers and cow for $150.
John Fitzimmons, 4 steers for $175.
David Wilson, 2 cows for $88.
Thomas Lush, heifer at $5.12½.
Wm. Lush, 2 steers for $95.
Henry Reed, 2 steers at $4.50, and bull for $38.
R Kirby, cow, $52.
Thomas Willoughby, heifer at $5, and heifer and steer for $92.50.
William McCrae, yoke of oxen for $130.
Patrick Blanchfield, 4 steers for $210.
John Sallows, cow for $45.
Lawrence Baker, cow for $50.
James Crane, bull for $77.50.
John Thompson, cow and heifer at $4.50.
Wm Maude, cow for $34.50.
John Mellon, 2 steers for $90, and 2 heifers for $27.
J Quarrie, steer at $5.50, and bull for $65.
Hector Parker, 2 steers for $100, and steer and cow for $62.
M Careher, 2 heifers for $90.
Richard Tobin, 11 head at $38 each.
Wm. Herbert, 2 cows for $66.
John Watson, steer for $60.
John Walsh, steer and heifer for $90.
H Barber, 2 steers and cow for $115.
John Hawes, 4 heifers at $5.
Amos S Bowman, steer for $43.

Montreal Live Stock Market.

MONTREAL, March 15.

The arrivals of beef cattle continue very light, being only thirteen car loads during the past eight days, and as three car loads of these were bought for shipment to Britain, the amount left for city consumption is very small. Prices of good butchers' cattle are nearly one cent per pound higher than the prices paid a fortnight ago. G. Webber, of Peterboro', sold 14 cattle for shipping to Britain. The prices paid were 4c per lb for choice bulls, and from 4½ to 5c per lb for oxen and steers. R. Cochrane, of Guelph, sold a car load of cattle at from 2½ to 4¾c per lb. J. K. Wilder sold 4 cattle at 4½c, and 9 do, at 4¾c per lb. R. J. Hopper bought 19 cattle from N. Kennedy, which were small cattle culled from a lot which he is shipping. Mr. Hopper resold 14 of these for $684, or from 3c to 4½c per lb. About forty head of rough cattle were offered on Viger Market, some of them being rather lean in flesh, yet they were readily sold at higher prices than good cattle would have brought some weeks ago. There was a very active demand for good calves, sheep and lambs, and so eager were the butchers to buy, that numbers were bought up before reaching the market. J. Bourassa bought 3 spring lambs for $16. He had previously offered $6 50 for the best one in the lot. R. Nicholson bought 2 good sheep for $20, and 2 others for $22. Calves sold from $2 to $10 each. There have been no live hogs brought to market for some days past. R. Craig, of Brampton, is shipping 240 head of cattle to Britain, via Halifax, this week.

The Markets.

March 17.—The English markets were from 1d to 2d higher, and floating cargoes were quiet but steady. The Chicago market displayed some strength in the morning, but became weak and unsettled in the afternoon. In New York the prices were irregular. In Montreal the local breadstuffs market was quiet, but steady. The sales of flour report on 'Change were 100 barrels choice bakers', $6 60; 100 do. spring extra at $6 90; 100 do medium bakers' at $6 05; 250 do. superior extra at $6 15; 50 do. fancy at $5 97½; 50 do. strong bakers' at $6 30. Canada spring wheat was steady, at $1 39 to $1 40; peas, 76c to 78c; oats, 30c to 31c; corn, 68c to 70c; barley, 55c to 65c; rye, 79c to 80c. In Toronto the business done was small, and prices were firm. Wheat is changing hands to some extent, but as a rule buyers and sellers are wide apart. There is no demand for flour. The prices of wheat and peas were higher. There were about 1,400 bushels of wheat, which sold at $1 28 and $1 29 for fall, and from $1 26 to $1 29 for spring. Barley, 100 bushels, at 58c to 62c; peas, 600 bushels, at 68c to 69c; oats, 300 bushels, at 39c and 40c; rye, 200 bushels, at 78c to 81c; clover seed, 200 bushels, at $3 45 to $3 60. Hogs were firm at from $6 10 to $6 40. Eggs were easy, and butter and poultry firm.

A return submitted to Parliament show that from 1856 to 1867 the Province of Ontario received $19,824 on account of sales in St. Joseph's Island.

How the Italian Peasants in Perugia Tread the Wine Press.

A resident in Italy vouches for the following: In the vineyards near us the girls mount ladders and clip the rich bunches, dropping them into the baskets. With the industrious one day is enough to clear an average vineyard. When the grapes are all gathered in they are carefully picked from the stems for the pressing. This last operation is the same primitive simple operation that was performed by the patriarch Noah. The grapes are thrown into an enormous vat, where the juice is tramped out of them by the bare feet. At this stage of the vintage you may see hundreds of young girls of the city of Perugia coming forth in groups in the morning, beaming with pleasant mystery and excitement.

Your ordinary tourists, whose only intellectual and instructive pabulum is gathered from the guide books, has not the remotest conception of their object. He may think they are out for an early constitutional. But early constitutionals are not the rage with Italian ladies. Shall I tell you the secret of all the mystery and excitement? They are off to the country to tread in the wine presses. It is a novel holiday for them, besides being a most salutary exercise. Even prim old dowagers are known to 'wade in' and banish the rheumatism by a half-day's exercise in the wine press. Apart from the healthful exercise of tramping, the new mash acts as a bath to the limbs, while the uprising fumes are considered eminently stomachic. After the treading performance the ladies wash themselves in hot wine, taking a moderate decoction internally, for the stomach's sake. The effect is pleasant and rejuvenating, and is especially noticeable in the vim with which they participate in the dance, which is the usual sequel to treading the wine press.

About Fodder and Milk Cows.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—At a meeting of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association, in looking over the remarks made by some of the speakers, it seems to me they were ridiculous. Mr. Chadwick speaks of them cutting twenty tons of hay per acre around Edinburgh. Can the farmers of Ontario put confidence in such statements? For my own part I do not believe it can be grown on one single acre. But if Mr. Chadwick is a practical farmer himself, let him use any amount of manure he pleases, and show to the Ontario yeomanry that they are losing time and money in their system of farming here, for it would put money in our pockets and with less labour, and the N. P. times would be a glorious lift for it.

Next I refer to some of the remarks of the Rev. Mr. Clarke, and I want him to prove this problem for the benefit of farmers. He says weed out the worst and improve only from a good milker and a good sire. Now, I have one cow 8 years old, she is what I consider a good milker in quality and quantity. She has about two parts of the Bates blood in her. From her I have two of her progeny, one five years old and the other four years old, both from one sire of the Bates blood. This five year old is equal to her dame in quality and quantity of rich milk. The four year old has neither quality nor quantity. Now they are both from one dame and same sire. He says breed from the best milkers and raise their heifers. Now, Mr. Clarke prove this:—How these two cows are not alike? There must be some other way adopted for your theory fails with me. I feed well and good stabling, and the cows are in the best of order.

Yours, &c.,
A. FARMER.

March 12, 1880.

A correspondent of the London Times gives a specimen case of how the tariff works. He says that "colonial tailors, as a rule, fit one most wretchedly," and he consequently sent out to his brother in Montreal three suits of clothes. On these the recipient had to pay $43, and he richly complained that if his friends continue their generosity he will be ruined.

The Panama Canal.

The renewed assertion and extension of the Monroe Doctrine, as regards the Panama Canal excites a good deal of interest in Britain.

It is understood that the Standard expresses the Foreign Office view in saying that the Government is bound to watch American pretensions and to resist them if necessary. The other leading papers use similar language, claiming that British commerce is more concerned than American. These sentiments are called forth by President Hayes' recent message, on the subject, which was occasioned by the recent visit of M. de Lesseps to Washington. A Philadelphia contemporary puts the matter fairly as follows:—"Mr. Hayes takes the ground that such a canal would be virtually a part of the coast-line of the United States, as it would revolutionize the relations of our Atlantic and Pacific Coasts toward each other. He therefore insists that it must be under such control as will ensure a proper regard for American interests. There is some strength in this position, but the President ignores the claims of other nationalities, which might be put upon the same ground. Central America and Mexico, to say nothing of the Dominion of Canada, might each claim that it formed a virtual part of their coast-line, and ask to be associated in its protection and control. Exactly what Mr. Hayes and those in Congress who agree with him, want to have done, we do not understand. Do they desire to forbid the Frenchmen to undertake the work, or do they insist that Americans shall own a controlling interest, or do they wish the route of the canal to become American territory? America, either by private subscription or public appropriation, can secure a majority interest in the stock, and can thus transfer the property of the company by sale to any American corporation at any future date. But we see no indication of such a desire; the opponents of the canal do not talk about money, and, for that matter, neither do its friends to the extent necessary. The $168,000,000 needed to cut a ship canal at sea-level across the Isthmus is still far from subscribed.

"We must suppose that the real aim of the Presidential and Congressional opposition is to put a damper on the plan. Some are actuated by a mistaken patriotism,—a jealousy lest this French company should come to mean another European hold upon this continent. Others are acting in the interest of the great trans-continental lines of travel, either already constructed or in course of building. We think that either of these motives is quite worthy of the occasion."

A RETURN was submitted to Parliament the other day showing the number of farm instructors and assistants appointed to teach the Indians agriculture, the amount expended for outfit, amount paid for travelling expenses, and the yearly salary paid each person appointed or employed; also the names and former residence of the persons so appointed. The total amount expended for outfit was $43,388; the amount paid for travelling expenses and transport, $9,388. All instructors receive $730 per annum; assistants receive from $30 to $40 per month, according to location.

MR. CLAY, one of the members of the Imperial Commission appointed to visit Canada and the United States, and from personal investigation to report on the extent and resources of this continent, from an agricultural point of view, as having a bearing upon the agricultural industry of Great Britain, called on the Minister of Agriculture the other day, relative to the object of his mission. The Minister of Agriculture promised to place every possible information at his disposal. During the afternoon the Commissioner called upon the Governor-General at Rideau Hall, and was cordially received. He explained to His Excellency the object of his mission, who appeared to be willing to render every assistance in his power to place all necessary information at the disposal of the Commissioner.

THE consequences of the rejection of Article seven in the French Education Bill are likely to be serious. It was considered by some as the only possible compromise between the Government and the Clerical party, and the latter are filled with apprehension at the declaration of M. De Freycinet, President of the Council, at the second reading of the Education Bill in the Senate on Tuesday, that all that remained now was to enforce existing laws against the Jesuits. He said the Government was compelled to accept this view of the situation in view of the vote of the Senate. This decision of the Ministry had been kept a secret up to the last moment. The Legitimists and Bonapartists, who had calculated on the Government weakening itself by yielding to the opposition of the dissentients of the Left Centre, found their hope at once crushed, while the Dufaure and Jules Simon party discovered when too late that they had cut away the only plank of safety left for them and those whom they wished to protect.

PARLIAMENT is likely to have a long Easter adjournment this year. Thursday, the 25th inst., will be Annunciation Day, and a holiday, and it is consequently probable that the House will adjourn from Wednesday night until the Monday following.

Holding the Fort.

An Extraordinary Point of Law between Landlord and Tenant.

A curious question of law has arisen in the locality of the Grand Trunk Station. A landlord there is afflicted with an obnoxious and defiant tenant, who will neither pay rent nor move out. Threats cannot intimidate, nor bribes budge him. He is determined to "Hold the Fort." The other day a bailiff was put in possession, having gained entrance by stratagem. But in the course of human events, he left for a few moments, after being for sometime at his post. Immediately the key was turned, and he found himself a "prisoner" out of doors. What next. He cannot get in again either by stratagem or force. The process is "off." The inmates keep the door locked, and all their needs are served after nightfall, when, the coast being found clear, one of the members of the family is let out, and the door locked again with the promptness of a steel trap. The same when he returns. The bailiff cannot use force. If he attempts to mount the roof or get in at the window, he may by the law of the country be treated as a burglar, and the inmates threaten to shoot and slay all trespassers in that behoof. Under these circumstances the landlord feels himself in a serious dilemma being dispossessed of his own property by the most summary and unjust of all processes, and against which the law has provided no remedy. The question with him now is, how can he regain possession of his own house, which stands at present as absolutely forfeited as though it had been taken from him by a direct course of legal procedure? The lawyers have been appealed to in vain. They can render him no aid in the premises, and advise the landlord that he stand at the good will and pleasure of the obstinate tenant. Can it be that this is really the case? If so a change in the law seems to be imperatively called for.—London Free Press.

The Late Hon. Mr. Holton.

The Ottawa correspondent of the London Advertiser says:—The scene in the House of Commons on Monday will not be forgotten for many a year. It was expected that reference would be made to the sudden death of Mr. Holton, so that the galleries were filled by ladies and gentlemen drawn thither by a kind of melancholy curiosity. All the Opposition wore heavy black neckties, and also a large number of Ministerialists. Nearly every member was in their place, and when Sir John Macdonald rose to move the adjournment of the House it seemed as if a heavy pall was resting on the Chamber. In a low tremulous voice he referred to the many excellencies of the deceased member and the strong personal regard that has always existed between them. In touching terms he referred to the vacant seat beside the member for Lambton—a vacancy which could only be regarded as a national calamity. A deathly stillness reigned as Mr. Mackenzie rose to speak, and all leaned towards him to catch his words. In a voice that was almost beyond control this veteran in political warfare articulated slowly a few sentences, and it was evident that sooner or later he would have to succumb to the deep feelings that were moving his heart. In the middle of a sentence he hesitated, stopped and remained standing for a few moments as if endeavoring to master his strong emotions, but he found it impossible and sat down raising his hand to his face. An involuntary sob was heard from all parts of the Chamber, and there seemed not to be a dry eye in the House. The world may ask for no clearer manifestation of the respect and veneration with which the late Luther Hamilton Holton was held than the remembrance of that spectacle. Mr. Gault, of Montreal, also broke down, while Sir John and Hon. Mr. Laurier were scarcely able to restrain their feelings.

As soon as the news of Mr. Holton's death was heard in Montreal, Mr. Hickson, of the G. T. R., very generously offered to place a special train at the disposal of the family.

Mr. Holton was, with one exception, that of Sir John A. Macdonald, the oldest member of the House of Commons, and, party feeling apart, there was probably no man more generally respected on both sides of the House.

The funeral of Mr. Holton will be attended by the St. George's and St. Andrew's Societies, the French National Club, and other societies. The pall-bearers will be Hon. Mr. Blake, the Hon. L. S. Huntington, the Hon. Chief Justice Dortion, the Hon. Henry Starnes, Judge Cross, Mr. Joseph Mackay, and Mr. Thos. Workman.

The House will not sit to-day, so that members desiring to attend the Hon. Mr. Holton's funeral at Montreal may do so. A special train leaves Hull depot, via the North Shore Railway, at eight o'clock. It is understood that the Opposition will attend the funeral as a whole, and that a large proportion of the Ministerialists will accompany them.

THE Senate is having a hard time of it this session, and is in danger of expiring from overwork. A motion will be made to-day that when that House adjourns on Friday, it stands adjourned till Tuesday, the 30th inst.

OFFICIAL figures show that, so far from being benefitted by the National Policy, the coal industry of Nova Scotia has fallen off during the past year, the sales being nearly five thousand tons less than in 1878, the number of hands employed less and the amount of labour performed less.

THE defection of Lord Derby is a severe blow to the Conservatives. The Derbys, with the exception of the late Earl were Whigs for many generations, and it was whispered in the Clubs years ago that young Derby went with the Tories more out of deference to his father than from the strength of his own convictions. So he is only falling back on his old love.

IT is evident that the Quebec Government's following in the House is numerically very weak, and there seems a dread to meet the Legislature. This fact, coupled with the recent visit of Lieutenant-Governor Robitaille and his Ministers to Ottawa, has given rise to the rumour with reference to a possible early dissolution of the House. Nothing is, however, definitely known except that the position of the Government is a trying and critical one. It is hardly likely that Mr. Chapleau will go to the country except as a dernier resort. Before deciding upon this course it is thought probable that an attempt will be made to strengthen the Government by bringing in new blood.

Jacob Weigel, eldest son of Mr. Joseph Weigel, Formosa, was thrown out of a waggon on Tuesday, the horses having run away, and died about five minutes afterwards.

Sebastian Herringer, a butcher of Neustadt, was kicked by a horse on Tuesday, and died two hours afterwards.

Tenant Farmers' Report.

The following portions of Mr. Wilken's reports, refer to places in this section of country. After a very laudatory notice of the Agricultural College and Model Farm, he says:—"Mr. Johnston, President, late of the Agricultural College, drove me to Puslinch Fair, 7 miles from Guelph on the Hamilton Road. Passed some very good farms, including one for sale, which I afterwards enquired particulars about. 209 acres mostly cleared, good stone house and bank barn, large orchard, well fenced, good land and in good order. The cash price for farm, including houses, fencing, all crop (unless turnips) was £15,000, or $75 per acre. The stock on the farm consisted of 11 horses, 42 cattle, and 40 sheep, besides pigs. For the farm, live and dead stock, minus the household furniture, the proprietor offered to take "£3,300 cash." I got a valuation of the stock from a competent man in the district, who considered the farm worth the money, and the stock more than the farmer had put upon it. It is beautifully situated, and within two miles of Guelph which enhances its value considerably. Puslinch district different from any I have seen, plenty of boulders and stone dykes, the latter all I saw in Canada. Autumn wheat everywhere looking well, in some cases the crop is laid and sheep on it eating it down.

8th October.—Left for Fergus, one of the districts where a number of Aberdonians took up their abode some 30, some 40 years ago. In some few cases came across the original settler who told you there was nobody between him and Huron (some 70 or 80 miles) when he settled, now fine farms line the roads all the way; in many cases the sons occupied the places their fathers had cleared. Visited the farms of Mr. Rennie and Mr. McQueen. The former from Aberdeenshire; both have good farms, well stocked and good stone houses. Saw his mother and father, very old people, who came out nearly 40 years ago and hacked their way out of the bush, and now seem very comfortable. Had a good crack with the old lady in real Aberdeen doric.

9th October.—Had a drive of some 40 miles round Fergus. Visited a good many Aberdonians and other Scotchmen; most had hewn their farms out of the forest, and all seemed to be doing well and pleased at farming their own lands, and it is astonishing to see what they have done in the short space of 30 years, as, go where you will, there are any number of fine cleared farms, good houses, and good gravel roads.

In the town of Fergus are some Aberdonians, seemingly all doing well. I may mention some I met: Mr. Argo, senr. and junr., and Mr. Michie, large storekeepers, and Mr. Cadenhead, a brother of our own Fiscal, who had another brother a model farmer (lately dead), and yet another in the far off land of Manitoba along with his son and nephew and several others.

10th October.—Attended fair at Elora. Here met a number of Aberdonians, the Bon Accord Settlement being in the neighbourhood. Here the display of cattle was far superior to anything I had seen, and a good many of the shorthorns would have taken a deal of beating in our best showyards at home. The exhibits of the Watts, Hunters, and Armstrongs were both excellent and numerous, and included the first prize cow at the Dominion Show. Met Mr. John Mair, late Reeve of his Township, whom I knew by his friends at home, and arranged to visit the Bon Accord Settlement.

11th October.—Visited the Messrs. Watts' farm and others in the Bon Accord Settlement, and will here give the produce of two farms, the first as a sample of a fair farm well farmed, and the other selected by Mr. Mair as an average of the district. First Farm: Messrs. Watts', given me by themselves; 200 acres, 170 in cultivation, balance wood. A rotation is observed as under:—1st after sod, peas or oats; 2nd, wheat; 3rd, green crop; 4th, wheat or barley, seeding down with Timothy and clover; 5th and 6th, cut for hay; 7th, pasture. Average Produce:—Oats, 60 bushels; peas, 25 to 30; wheat, 25; barley, 40; turnips, 900; hay, 2 to 3 tons. I saw the turnips and estimated them at 23 to 24 tons per acre. This year they had 14 acres oats, 30 wheat, 10 peas, 6 barley, 14 turnips, 28 hay, and 68 in pasture. Part of the latter is permanent, unless when ploughed up to renew the grass. Live Stock: 10 to 12 horses, 45 cattle, and 40 sheep. All are mostly grazed six months outside. Pigs not stated.

The first farm would sell from 70 to 75 dollars per acre, perhaps more, having good houses and fences. The other farm from $35 to $40, with fair houses. From prices quoted of various farms I have seen for sale, I should think the average price of farms in the County of Wellington, said to be the best stock county in Ontario, would average about $50 per acre.

October 13th.—Left Fergus for Galt, in County Waterloo, and was met by Mr. John Brown, one of the cattle judges at Elora fair, who drove me over a part of this county. Called on Mr. MacCulloch, who runs one of the largest mill engineering business in Canada, who told me I was in good hands. Land much lighter and braeset than in Wellington County, and reminds one not a little of lower Dee side. Autumn wheat everywhere looking well, and turnips a good crop. Saw some fences formed of pine roots, which certainly look like a caution to dyke loupers, are said to last forever, and would need it, as they must have cost a deal of money; first, to pull up (which is done by a root extractor), and then to trail and pile up. Mr. Brown in our travels bought two well-bred cross steers by the trot for £74 the pair, or £7 10s. a piece, which would be about 1250 lbs. at three cents. Barns times are, I would like a few of them to finish at a ten pound note profit, or £17 10s. a piece. Mr. Brown adopts a regular rotation—breeds a few and buys in such as the above in Autumn, to finish for the New York or British market in Spring. Saw 150 lambs going off to New York at $4½ per 100 lbs. live weight, the New Yorkers also getting the benefit of paying an additional duty of 20 per cent. when they cross the Niagara. This duty they seem to think is a wretched thing for Canada; forgetting apparently it is the consumers and not the producers who pay in the end for protection. I wonder at these people on both sides tolerating these duties at all; you are told it is all done to protect their manufactures. I expect the agricultural West will have something to say to that very soon, as they wish, like sensible people, to sell in the dearest and buy in the cheapest market, wherever it is manufactured, and I expect it must end in that. Mr. Brown is also a canny Aberdonian, who went from about Huntly some 20 years ago, a farm servant. He said he saw no prospect before him at home but hard work to the end, so thought he would have a try here, where there was held out a prospect of even a labouring man becoming his own laird. He now occupies his own farm with good stone houses and well cultivated fields, very much on the Aberdeen mode, growing turnips and feeding cattle.

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See other column.

FALL IN THE PRICE OF IRON.—Blacksmiths, waggon makers and contractors generally are now rejoicing over the fact that iron shows signs of a decline in price A little over a year since iron of a certain quality sold at $1.70 per cwt, and in three months thereafter advanced to $3.25, an increase almost unprecedented in the annals of trade. This sudden advance, of course, put money in a few men's pockets, but took it out of those of the great mass, and those the least able to bear it, namely, the poor man and the operators of small capital. It is the belief of those who are interested that the decline which has commenced will continue until iron reaches a proper and paying figure.

THE UNBURIED DEAD.—There has been more disgraceful blundering out in South Africa. It has always been the custom of the British authorities, at as early a period as possible, to bury the dead who had fallen in defence of their country. That, it seems, has not been done in Zululand. The Natal Mercury of the 26th of January, which has just been received says: "We are sorry though not surprised to hear that a private expedition has been organized to proceed to Isandhiwana, in order to complete the task of burial there. A year have these sad tokens of individual gallantry and public neglect mutely appealed for the decent rites which we accord even to the hangman's prey."

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 16.

A number of petitions against marriage with a deceased wife's sister were presented from ecclesiastics of the Anglican Church.

Mr. Mackenzie embarrassed the Minister of Agriculture somewhat by enquiring when copies of the immigration pamphlets asked for so long ago were to be brought down, but the Minister could give no satisfactory reply.

Sir John Macdonald remarked that as it was the usual practice to adjourn at six o'clock on St. Patrick's Day, and as a large number of members would be absent to-morrow on a melancholy occasion, he would move that when the House adjourns to-day it stands adjourned until Thursday, at three o'clock.

The motion was carried.

Sir John Macdonald moved that Government business shall have precedence immediately after routine proceedings on Thursdays during the remainder of the session. Carried.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on resolutions submitted by the Hon Mr. Baby relating to the inspection of smoked red herrings and the imposition of a fee of two cents upon each box of herrings inspected. A debate ensued. All the members speaking opposed the fee intended to be imposed as too high, while only one person, Mr. Lobgley, even approved of the principle. The Committee reported progress.

The debate on the Budget was resumed by Mr. McCalumn, who retailed all the old charges against the late Administration. He also offered a rambling defence of the National Policy, spoke favourably of the national currency proposals, and applauded the Government's protective policy because it would facilitate the speedy formation of a reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Oliver, of North Oxford, spoke after recess. He prefaced his remarks by referring to the tendency of the present tariff to bring about annexation and disruption of the Provinces. He rallied the Government with having appointed a Yankee as Dominion Commissioner to the Sydney Exhibition, and quoted from an English paper to show that since the introduction of this tariff Canada's loyalty to the British Empire was being questioned. The National Policy had utterly falsified the predictions of its sponsors. Instead of benefitting the agriculturists it had imposed additional burdens upon them. In concluding he commented upon the the serious aspect of the country's financial situation, and claimed that the time to call "halt" to any further excessive expenditure on capital account had arrived.

Mr. Sproule, as the representative of an agricultural constituency, defended National Policy from a farmer's standpoint, and Mr. Gigault spoke in a similar strain.

Mr. King, of New Brunswick, followed, and assailed the National Policy from the standpoint of a representative of that Province, pointing out the lamentable results which had followed its adoption in the destruction of the shipbuilding industry, the crippling of manufacturers, and the depletion of population. Especially severe had the policy been in exercising its baneful influence upon the city of St. John, which Sir Leonard Tilley represented. His was an effective impeachment of Sir Leonard's claims respecting the influence of the National Policy in New Brunswick.

There is one boy in Rochester whose bosom is filled with a pure and calm delight. For some offence his father took his sleigh away from him in the early part of the winter with the promise he should not have it again until another season, and the confidentially remarked to a friend that "this warm weather was the best rig on the old man he had ever heard of.'

CHAPTER XXXII.

AN INTERESTING MEETING—A RESEMBLANCE DETECTED—JACK BORLAND IS DOMICILED IN HIS OLD QUARTERS, AND MAKES FRIENDS OF AGNES AND HER MOTHER.

"Guid gracious me! Maister Wilson," he exclaimed, "Did ye ance work in the Grange garden? And under Adam Borland tae!"

"Hush, David—for heaven's sake don't take up such an idea as that."

"Aha! it mak's mony a thing plain that I didna understand afore," cried David, in great glee—"yer conduct at Adam's grave amang the rest. And it is possible that Mrs. Borland disna ken ye, ane o' Adam's journeymen? The change on ye maun be prodigious. Hoo lang are ye gaun to hide incog., Maister Wilson?"

"You are too sharp for me, David," returned Jack, who saw it was now useless to hoodwink his companion. I admit that I did at one time work in this garden under Adam Borland."

"The like o' that!" ejaculated David. "But it is of the utmost importance that no one should suspect this at present, or know who I am, least of all, Mrs. Borland or her daughter, and you must give me your solemn promise, David, not to speak a word that will lead anyone to discover what I have inadvertently revealed to you. Promise me this, for much, very much depends on it—much to me, much to Mrs. Borland and Agnes."

"Sae nae mair, sir. Ye may depend on me never to mention the thing. But wull you gang awa' and never tell them?"

"They shall know, and that ere long. You will then understand the reason why I have observed this mystery; but for the present secrecy is of the utmost importance. Oh, how could I be so forgetful," added Jack, in a tone of great vexation.

"Dinna pit yersel' about in the least, sir," said David, earnestly, anxious to assure him. The secret is just as safe as it was an hoor syne. Cairt horses wadna drag it frae me."

"I know I can trust you implicitly, but I might have made the slip in the hearing of one on whom I could not rely. There—let the matter drop between us till the time comes for explanation."

If Jack was at the moment deeply concerned at the partial discovery of himself which he had inadvertently made, he had no reason to be uneasy for any length of time. David never again alluded to it, even most distantly, either by look or word. So far as demeanour went it seemed to have passed entirely from his mind. He was keeping his promise most religiously.

One afternoon a week after Jack's arrival, when the latter entered the Grange garden, he found David in an unusual state of excitement. His usual placid face was inflamed, and working under a strength of feeling which was for him extraordinary.

On seeing Jack he threw down his spade in a violent manner and burst forth in wrath.

"What daa ye think?" he exclaimed. "That vagabond Reuben Langton has been here just now, and had the impudence to tell me that I am no workin' half enouch, that I am just playin' mysel', and lettin' the garden get into a disgrace fu' state. What think ye o' that, Maister Wilson?"

"I call it a downright lie," replied Jack. "But were it true, what business is it of his?"

"Oh, he considers the estate as guid as his ain property, and wants tae act the maister aforehand. But I tellt him plainly that he was nae maister o' mine and ne'er wad be. I wonder hoo he had the face to come hirplin' to me after his scoondrelly play at the New Year. If he had his deservins he wad be banished, the blackguard that he is."

"I have some curiosity to see this man Reuben Langton," said Jack with knitted brow.

"Weel, it wunna be ill for ye to get a sicht o' him. He went oot by yon door no five minutes syne."

"Ah, I'll take the liberty of going in that direction. It won't be difficult to know him, I suppose?"

"Nae difficulty ava," responded David. "Ye'll ken him at ance by his blotched face and red een, the result o' his bad livin'. But he walks lame after his broken leg—nae maitter though it had been his neck—ye canna mistak' him."

With an understanding nod, Jack moved along the walk and passed out by the west door, which gave access to the grounds in the immediate vicinity of the mansion. Just as he had merged from the shrubbery, he was crossing the lawn when he heard a voice addressing him in an imperious tone.

"Hilloa. Who are you? What are you doing there?"

Jack looked round and recognised the speaker by the description David had given. He stood silently awaiting the youth's approach.

"Why don't you answer me?" demanded Reuben in an insolent tone. "What are you doing on these grounds?"

"Nothing in particular," answered Jack, coolly, while he steadily surveyed his questioner.

"Don't you know you are trespassing?"

"I was not aware of it."

"Then you know it now, and be off with you. There is the avenue; don't leave it till you reach the gate."

"I see the avenue quite well," returned Jack, "but I am not disposed to go in that direction."

"What, fellow! Dare you be insolent to me?" cried Reuben, his face flaming with passion.

"It occurs to me, young man, that the insolence is on your side, not mine."

"Confound you, sirrah; do you know who you are talking to?"

"I think I do. Your name, I believe, is Reuben Langton."

"Oh, then your impudence is not given in ignorance. But if you were not a low, vulgar fellow you would address a gentleman respectfully."

"So I do when I meet one. I cannot say that I find you entitled to the name, and from what I have heard of you I did not expect it."

"You impertinent scoundrel!" roared Reuben, now foaming with rage."

"Oh, don't further exhaust your vocabulary of choice epithets,'" observed Jack contemptuously. "Were you to pour out your whole stock they would have no effect on me. I estimate words by the character of the man who utters them. But by what right do you challenge me for being in these grounds? You are not the owner, and as the place is advertised for sale, it is surely open to public inspection."

"Yes to gentlemen who are in a position to buy it. Have you the effrontery to say that you have such an intention?"

"I am not bound to answer such a question. All that I say is that I have as good a right to be here as as you."

"That's a lie! The estate is virtually mine."

"No, it isn't. Your farther has a mortgage on it, I believe, but that does not make it his nor yours neither."

"It will on the 20th though."

"Which is a week hence. When it is absolutely yours it will be time enough for you to order me off the ground, but not before."

"I tell you what it is, you infamous rascal," hissed Langton, "you would be a devilish deal the better of a horsewhipping. It would teach you manners, and cure you of your insolence."

"I would not like to be in the shoes of the man who tried to administer it," said Jack, in a quiet tone, but with an ominous flash of the eyes. "However, as I do not feel inclined to hold further parley with a person of your stamp, I shall take no further notice of you—at present."

And with a look of unequivocal scorn and contempt, not unmixed with stern indignation, Jack turned on his heel and continued his perambulation, heedless of the oaths and epithets which Langton belched after him.

On the other side of an adjoining yew tree he came upon David Ramsay, who stood there grinning with delight.

"Man, ye handled him weel," said David, rubbing his hands with intense satisfaction. "He's limpin awa' owre the lawn fit to choke wi' rage."

"It would be a good thing for society if he did choke," observed Jack. "The world would be well rid of such a reptile."

"That it wad," said David, with emphatic approval. "But creatures like him are no the first to dee—mair's the pity."

"Ah, well! he won't get beyond the length of his tether, though I admit it has been a very long one. I shall go now and see what Mrs. Borland has in her cupboard. I feel quite an appetite after that encounter."

"Dear me! I had almost forgot to tell ye," said David, as Jack was leaving him, "Maister Bishop has come home this afternoon."

"Has he?" exclaimed Jack, with animation.

"So that callant o' his ca'd Penwiper has just been tellin' me."

"Then I shall see him in the morning; and now my action begins," muttered Jack, as he sent a friendly nod to David, and took his way in the direction of the cottage.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission to JOS. S. FISHER, president; W. I. P. INGRAHAM, vice-president; W. PAINE, M. D.; C. S. GAUNTT, M. D.; H. J. DOUCET, M. D.; R. H. KLINE, M. D.; J. R. HOLCOMB, M. The Puzzle Craze.

(From the Spectator.)

W. E. Renwick, of Galt, writes as follows concerning "fifteen :"

"Dear Sir,—Since you gave us the diagram of the game of 'fifteen' in the Spectator of Saturday the checker problems are laid aside and we are working away for a solution of the puzzle. My wife is confident that the 13, 15, 14 position can be solved. We have both done it several ways, but when we tried it again were lost. I determined to lose no more games at this thing, and, to know just what we were doing all the time, numbered the squares in the box, so the moves could be recorded. They are numbered just as in diagram, except the last numbers, which are in regular order, 13, 14, 15, and 16 in the lower right hand corner. Now, we will throw in the blocks all together and proceed to bring order out of chaos. Here we have fifteen pieces and 16 squares to work on. It is not much of a puzzle to get No. 1 on No. 1 square, No. 2 on No. 2 and so on, until we have the following position : 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 13 in place, 12 on 11, 11 on 12, 15 on 14, and 14 on 15. Here we have your position of 13, 15, 14. Now it is an easy matter to bring these numbers upon their respective squares. There are two openings to the game. Blocks 11 and 14 can be moved to square 16. We will take block 14."

Then Mr. Renwick proceeds and makes 84 moves to get a solution, which is certainly a roundabout plan. Taking the position from which he started, we suggest the following : 13, 15, 14 to the right, 9 down, 10, 12 left, 15 up, 14 left, 11 down, 10, 12, 15 right, 9 up, 13, 14, 11 left, 15 down, 12 right, 11 up and 15 left. Of course neither this solution nor the one given by Mr. Renwick is the one which so many are seeking. He did not start from the celebrated position of 13, 15, 14, for in that case the only blocks out of position are the 14 and 15, which are simply reversed. Mr. Renwick will observe that when starting out on his 84 moves he has two pairs reversed instead of only one, and this is a position easy of solution, as shown above.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Workingmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is The Great Reliever of Pain. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle, d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

Says the Winnipeg Free Press : Some of the Ontario papers are full of pictures supposed to represent the actors in the Biddulph tragedy. If the likenesses are correct, and the originals are fair samples of the balance of the population, it would be two dollars in Ontario's pocket if the whole township would drop through to China and be heard of no more forever.

Relief for the Irish Distressed.

BERLIN, Ont., March 18.—The concert given last evening by the pupils of St. Jerome's College, in behalf of the sufferers in Ireland and Silesia, was a great success. The proceeds amounted to $100.

PARIS, Ont., March 18.—A lecture was delivered by Mr. Glass, of London, in the town hall here last night under the auspices of St. Patrick's Society, for the benefit of the Irish relief fund. Proceeds over $100.

Verdict in the McMullen Case—Suspicious Circumstances Connected With the Death.

SEELEY'S BAY, March 18.—The verdict returned by the jury in the McMullen case is that the deceased, Wm. McMullen came to his death by a blow from a source unknown to the jury. The evidence went to show that the wound was caused by falling backwards from a chair, but the circumstances seem to make this improbable.

Opening of Navigation.

TORONTO, March 18.—Lake navigation will be open at least four weeks earlier than last year. It is doubtful however if the Welland Canal will be open for traffic any earlier than usual. Ship owners look forward to a brisk season.

At the Assize Court this morning the case of Moyer vs. Grand Trunk Railway Company was commenced. It was an action to recover the value of a box shipped from Montreal to the plaintiff. After its arrival he left it in charge of the Company, and on returning to take it away found it had gone astray. The jury found for the plaintiff damages to be settled by arbitration.

Princess Louise's Birthday.

OTTAWA, March 18.—To-day being the 33rd anniversary of the birthday of Princess Louise, the Royal Standard is floating from Government buildings, Government House, and Nepean Point; flags also are floating from many private buildings and hotels, giving the city a holiday appearance. A Royal salute was fired from Nepean Point battery at noon.

Banking Question.

A large deputation of Bankers are in the city, and will to-day have an interview with Sir Leonard Tilley. It is understood the Government policy will not be submitted to Parliament before two weeks.

Workingmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

THURSDAY EVNG, MARCH 18, 1880

Local News.

MR. DAVID KENNEDY was on the street to-day for the first time since his illness.

MR. COUGHLAN, of St. John, N. B., shipped another car load of dead meat for that city by the G. T. R., to-day.

A NUMBER of young Irishmen in the city are taking steps to organize a Celtic class, for the study of the Irish language.

REDUCTION in the price of magazines at Day's bookstore, owing to the Government placing them on the free list. Day sells cheap.

MR. R. S. KING, of Parkdale, is in the city to-day on a visit combining business with pleasure. He looks hale and hearty, and reports business in his line pretty fair at Parkdale.

THE three special trains which passed through on the Grand Trunk on Wednesday for the West, contained 1,200 emigrants, half of which number go to Manitoba and the North West Territories.

A PARLOR CONCERT, in connection with Knox Church, will be held at "Athol Terrace," residence of Mr. J. C. McLagan, this Thursday evening, March 18th, commencing at half-past seven o'clock. A good programme has been prepared, and all are cordially invited.

BASE BALL.—Mayor Sleeman has received a letter from the Secretary of the Harriston Brown Stocking base ball club, asking information as to the rules under which the Maple Leaf Club played for the championship ball. The letter states that the Brown's intend purchasing a cup the coming season to be played for by Canadian clubs.

MR. GAUHAN has received a letter from our old townsman, Mr. George Balkwell, now of Rapid City, N. W. T., in which he refers to the coldness of the weather this winter; and speaks of how Adam Watson, and Thomas Hewer, who are both in his employ, are succeeding. He says he has now gristed over 2,000 bushels of wheat in his new mill, and from the tone of the letter, he expects yet to do a very large milling business where he is located.

RUNAWAY.—An exciting runaway occurred on the Market Square Monday afternoon. A farmer's team which was left standing opposite the City Hall took fright and started off. One man ran after the waggon and jumping into it grasped the lines. Another confronted the runaways and held on to their heads When they had gone a few yards one of the lines broke and they turned throwing the occupant of the waggon out. The horses ran back as far as the corner of Wyndham street and Market Square where they were stopped having occasioned trifling damage.

HANDSOME CARVING.—Mr. Edward O'Brien, carver for Wm. Bell & Co., exhibits in the furniture warerooms of Worsefold & Co—of which firm he is a member—a beautiful production of his handiwork. It is a wall pocket about 18 inches in length by about 12 inches wide. The face of the pocket is adorned with hanging game and connected with the group are hunting implements. The ground work is highly polished. Sourrounding the pocket is a wreath of cleanly and beautifully cut ivy leaves, and surmounting the whole appears a bird with drooping wings. At the lower end of the pocket there is a bird on a nest, and at either side are well formed beavers. The work on the ornament is well and carefully executed and shows that it is from the hands of a thorough workman.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION DIPLOMA.—The very many admirers of our excellent Battery Band, will be pleased to learn that the diploma awarded it at the competition at the Industrial Exhibition in Toronto last September, has been received, and has been very neatly framed by Messrs. Waters Bros., Quebec street, in whose gallery it was on exhibition to-day, from where it will be removed to the Band room this evening. The design of the diploma is very handsome, and the lithographic part of it will be found hard to excel. It has the stamp of the Association, as well as numerous illustrations of agriculture and horticulture round the reading, and also a picture of the Exhibition buildings in Toronto. It has also the signatures of Messrs. J. J. Withrow, H. J. Hill, and Jas. McGee, officers of the Industrial Association, Toronto. The receipt of this important testimonial is a genuine memento of the worth of our excellent Band, and its talented teacher, Prof. Philp.

BEEF FOR OTTAWA.—Satchell Bros., of Ottawa, bought two of the finest animals exhibited at the fat cattle show to be dressed for the Ottawa market. They purchased the heifer exhibited by Henlock Young which weighed 1,750 pounds and brought 8c a pound. They also bought the prize Hereford calf shown by J. & R. Millar which sold for $30. The calf is from the stock purchased for the Model Farm from Her Majesty's stock at Windsor.

THE City Hall and the rooms in the same building are to undergo a thorough renovation.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh to brisk, mostly between southerly and easterly winds; partly cloudy to cloudy weather with areas of snow or rain.

THE FAT CATTLE SHOW.—In connection with this show it might have been stated that the judges discharged their duties with efficiency and gave every satisfaction.

STONE FOR THE STREETS.—About 500 square yards of stone have been broken for the streets. 108 square yards of this amount were broken last week.

SKATING CARNIVAL.—What will in all probability be the last carnival of the season takes place on the rink to-night. The Artillery band will again enliven the proceedings with music. The ice is in excellent condition for skating.

KNIGHTS OF MACCABEES.—Former chief officers of the Knights of Maccabees, visited Buffalo, Wednesday, to investigate charges against the present officers installed last January, who, they claim, have unconstitutionally issued a call for a grand review, and have only deposited $270 out of $1,000 collected. Upon visiting the office at that place, J. A. Osborne, the present chief officer of the order, ordered them out, and upon their refusing, the police were called in and the visiting officers ejected, who afterwards held a session at the Mansion House and decided to suspend Buffalo tent, 121, and J. A. Osborne, the chief officer, and to commence an action in court against Mr. Osborne and Captain Dickenson, the officer in charge of the police who ejected them from the chief office. The Auditing Committee, it is stated by Mr. Osborne, reported the books correct up to March 1st.

PICKING POCKETS.—Sam. Soden, of unfavourable notoriety, appeared before the Police Magistrate to-day (Thursday) charged with picking pockets. On Tuesday afternoon Soden, with John Porter and George Hood, of Guelph Township, visited a number of hotels and imbibed pretty freely until in the evening they were under the influence of liquor. In this condition they called at Mrs. Waite's hotel, corner of Norfolk and Macdonnell streets. While there Soden went through Porter's pockets under the pretence of looking for a small article. An occupant of the bar-room saw him take out Porter's purse, which the latter afterwards missed. It contained $12, and both the purse and money are as yet unrecovered. Porter informed the police who arrested Soden at his mother's hotel this (Thursday) morning. The prisoner, on being arraigned, elected to be tried at a higher court. He was remanded till Friday to undergo a preliminary examination.

POLICE STATISTICS.—The Chatham Banner contains a statement of the number of cases tried at the Police Court, the number of arrests made and the amount of fines and fees imposed in that town for the quarter ending 10 March. A similar statement for the same quarter in Guelph will serve to show that though the population of Guelph is 2,000 more than that of Chatham better order is maintained here at less expense and that our revenue through Police Court fines and fees is larger. In Chatham there are six policemen, and for the quarter the fines and fees average $53.71 for each policeman, while in Guelph there are only four policemen and the fines and fees show an average of $62.29 for each. In Chatham during the quarter there were 114 arrests, 180 cases before the Police Magistrate and fines and fees collected to the amount of $322.30. In Guelph for the same time there were only 55 arrests, 80 Police Court cases, and fines and fees collected to the amount of $249.16.

"ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER."—The performance of the above Oratorio took place in the church of Our Lady last night before a good audience. The proceeds are to be appropriated for the benefit of St. Joseph's Hospital funds, and this in a measure drew out a large portion of the congregation of the church, as well as a good sprinkling from the other churches. Entering the church the first thing that met the eye were the decorations around the altar, which with the many lights formed a very pretty scene, a tinge of green here and there in honor of the day adding to the effect intended to produce. Seated at the back of the altar was a choir of some forty voices, and the musicians who took part, Messrs. Vale, Lawrence and the Masters Harris assisting with violins, and Mr. Wheatley the trombone; Messrs. Philp and Emery were unable to attend through indispcsition. Mrs. Harkin presided at the organ. A few minutes after the hour the playing of the prelude announced to the audience that all were ready, and the Oratorio was gone through with a precision that reflected credit on all who took part, the choruses being rendered in splendid style. The singing of the different soprano and bass solos by the male and female voices sounded very nicely, and could be distinctly heard throughout the church. Much credit is given to Father Fleck for the excellent manner in which the choir was trained for the Oratorio, and also for the interest the rev. gentleman takes in introducing such music in the church, himself being conductor of the choir, and an accomplished musician.

About Editors.

Every editor loves to have his friends and particularly his readers, call on him. They belong to the same family, as it were. But when you call to see the editor don't stay too long. Editors are generally very busy in business hours. If you have a suggestion to make, or news to communicate, state it in the fewest possible words. Don't offer any excuses, or indulge in a preface to what you have to say. Blurt it right out; all the editors dote on such men as that; they love to receive calls from them. Don't argue with them—don't try to do it. They have no time for argument while at work.

When you write to an editor for publication, cut it short—boil it down. Pitch right into the middle of your subject, and be sure to stop when you are through. Editors always like to have something fresh and original in the way of communications, and are especially fond of news. But the editor must always be judge of what is worthy of publication. Of course every writer thinks his own publication the best, just as every mother thinks her baby the prettiest ever born. But the editor may be so stupid as to have a different opinion. If so it can't be helped. Don't try to argue him out of his notion, if he is too stupid to remedy his dullness. You may think you are a great deal smarter than the editor, and this may be true; but the editor may be responsible, and you are not. There is no class of people who are so anxious to please a majority of people as editors are. There are no class so covetous of the good opinions of others. It is well to remember this fact.

FEES.—The trustees of the Stratford high school are considering the advisability of imposing fees upon the pupils.

DEATH OF A CENTENARIAN.—An old man aged 103, named John Kelly, residing on Maria street, Ashburnham, Peterborough County, passed away on Wednesday last.

DEPOSED.—"Pro Bono Ecclesiæ" writes to the Globe to say that on Sunday, the 7th inst., Bishop Lewis' sentence was read in a Picton church deposing the Rev. Mr. Lepper, a deacon, for, among other causes taking the sacrament in a Presbyterian church.

SKELETON FOUND.—The Galt Reformer says:—The workmen engaged in digging the cellar for Messrs. Jas. Warnock & Co's iron ware room, Galt, disinterred a small box containing the skull and bones of a very young infant. The box was found about a foot beneath the surface of the ground and must have been buried there several years ago.

THE INCOME TAX.—In the case of the Collector of Customs at Kingston, who sued the city to recover back taxes on his official income for the year 1874 and the three subsequent years, Judge Price decided that inasmuch as the Collector made no protest against the payment for 1874 and 1875, he cannot recover for these years. For 1876 and 1877, he was awarded forty-nine dollars.

THE CROPS.—Farmers in the region round Hamilton are considerably alarmed at the state of fall wheat. It is reported that in some sections the crop has been considerably damaged already, while it is prophesied that if there should be a dry spring, it will be a total failure. It seems to be accepted as a settled fact that next year's yield of clover will be very small, owing to the continued mild weather that has prevailed this winter.—Hamilton Spectator.

A SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.—The Sarnia Observer says: "A child named Waldron, aged about five years, was successfully treated for croup here recently by an operation that is performed only as a last resort, and which is rarely successful in the case of young persons. The child was in the last stages of membraneous croup, when Drs. Johnston, Maclean and Vail determined to try to relieve its sufferings by opening the windpipe and inserting a silver tube. The operation was skilfully performed, and by careful nursing the little sufferer rallied and in a few days recovered. The case is considered a remarkable one by the profession, and the gentlemen who performed the operation are to be congratulated on their success.

THE CENTRAL PRISON.—There are at present 346 convicts in the Central Prison. Of these are 135 making brooms, a number is employed in the shoemaking room, another lot is employed in tailoring, others again are employed in the carpenter and machine shops, and there are about 40 engaged at the big sewer from the Mercer Reformatory. During February 41 prisoners arrived and 40 obtained their discharge. The Central Prison authorities have contracted for 250 cots for the Mercer Reformatory; 150 dozen brooms are turned out daily in the prison. The brick yard is also highly profitable. Last year those employed made 2,500,000. This year they will make 3,000,000.

HINTS TO PROSPECTIVE SETTLERS.—Mr. Geo. Wood, of Preston Post, Manitoba, sends the following:—As a great many people are intending to emigrate to Manitoba the coming season, I thought a few hints from one who has had one year's experience here might be of interest. First, come and secure your land, put in a small crop and build a house before fetching your family, as a house can't be had here, and camping out here in the spring is anything but pleasant for women and children. Every one coming here should fetch a good yoke of oxen and as many cows as he can, a breeding sow and some poultry and a well filled pork barrel. For all the above named articles you will have to pay ruinous prices here the coming season. The people here, as a rule have a faculty of asking the full value for everything they have to sell.

THE FATE OF QUEENS.—The happiness of Queens forms the text for a homily that has appeared in the French papers. Queen Victoria in her long retirement of grief-stricken widowhood; Marie Henriette, Queen of Belgium, in childless solitude mourning over a blighted life; the Empress of Russia, plunged in the intoxication of tears, refusing to be comforted for the lost love of her husband, and the crown of wifehood that has passed from her brows; Margaret, Queen of Italy, dying slowly of a terrible malady; Eugenie bereft of all that made life worth living—the saddest spectre ever seen on earth of fallen greatness; Queen Isabella in neglected exile; the fair Mercedes sent to the tomb as if by lightning stroke; her successor Christina haunted at every turn by the noise of the pistol and the gleam of the dagger; the Duchess of Aosta in the agony of a living death; last of all in the dark list, the poor maniac Carlotta; all show how sorrowful is the lot of those whom the world regards as exceptionally happy.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

In a little more than ten years in England Justice Hannan's tribunal has dissolved 1,279 marriages, nearly 300 judicial separations have been granted, and now the Divorce Court is busier than ever.

The great event of the season in Paris was the grand reception ball given by the Chinese ambassador and suite on Tuesday night. It is doubtful whether Parisian society ever has had a similar surprise and such a novel treat. The affair came off at the magnificent hotel of the embassy on the Avenue Kleber, which is within a short distance of the Arc de Triomphe.

Canada's Donation to the Irish Relief Fund.

LONDON, March 17.—The Dublin Mansion House Relief Committee announce having received £355 from the New York Relief Committee, 600 francs from the French Relief Committee, £333 from Oxford University, £165 from Wellington, New Zealand, and £100 from Burlington, Iowa. A letter was read from Bishop Logue, Chairman of the Donegal Central Relief Committee, asking further aid, and stating that there are 75,000 individuals in Donegal needing relief. Bishop Logue says the distress is increasing, and it will not decrease till August. A grant of £2,000 was made for Donegal. A letter was read from Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Colonial Secretary, stating that the grant of $100,000 voted by the Canadian Government had been left to him to decide the way it should be applied, with the stipulation that it should not be expended so as to deprive the recipient of the right of franchise. The Colonial Secretary proposes to hand the amount of the grant to a committee of three members of the Mansion House Relief Committee and three members of the Duchess of Marlborough's Relief Committee, and suggests that it be applied in reproductive works such as providing boats, nets, etc., for fishing purposes. The Committee have resolved to accept the offer, and have appointed the Lord Mayor of Dublin one of the three members to represent the Committee, and asked him to nominate the other two. The Lord Mayor said he felt no alternative was offered. Although the Committee were of opinion that all the money that could be had would be needed to purchase food, fuel, and clothing; yet inasmuch as the money would be spent in wages immediately, it would indirectly purchase food, etc.

Bunster and the "Heathen Chinee."

The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Times sends the following:—A good joke, according to current report, has been perpetrated on Mr. B. B. Bunster, the friend (?) of the "Heathen Chinee" on the Pacific Slope. A few days ago a Celestial from the Flowery Kingdom named Wang Wo See, arrived in the city and opened out a laundry. Some practical joker sent the Chinaman to the Parliament Buildings with a note to Mr. Bunster, having made him believe that through the influence of the British Columbia member he would be able to secure the washing of a large number of the members of Parliament. Not the washing of the members, as the people's representative are supposed to wash themselves, occasionally at least, but the washing of dirty linen and the like. Now, John Chinaman walked into the lobby Tuesday afternoon shortly after the House was in session, and handing the note to one of the attendants, intimated that he wanted to see "Misser Blunster." The note duly passed in, and as it was not "a give-a-way" in any respect, Mr. Bunster duly put in an appearance. "Who desires to see me?" he asked of the middle doorkeeper; and on the attendant pointing to the "Heathen Chinee" the ire of the British beer advocate was at once aroused, and, in language more strong than elegant, ordered the Chinee to "get out." Wang Wo See got out without delay, so as to escape the toe of Bunster's boot. It was the best practical joke of the season.

Just So.

Speaking of the "Grain Ring" and the immense quantity of grain locked up in Chicago, the Hamilton Spectator makes the following candid admission:

This unusually desperate struggle for higher prices has no doubt been of some benefit to Canadian farmers. They have not obtained the prices which, distance considered, corresponded with the high speculative prices paid in Chicago, but the price has been favorably affected from their point of view, by the locking up of so vast a quantity of grain there.

Oh, that's it! Well, we thought from the previous talk in which the Spectator so freely indulged, that neither the Chicago, New York, nor Liverpool markets would affect the price of wheat in Canada provided the "N. P." was put in operation. So they (the farmers) havn't received the prices which, "distance considered," they ought to have received, and it takes this "locking up of a vast quantity of grain" to favorably affect them, does it? Oh, what an unadulterated fraud upon the farmer that "N. P." has been and now is.—St. Catharines News.

The Registrar-General's report shows during the year 1878 the registration of 40,236 births, 12,720 marriages and 17,808 deaths in the Province of Ontario. Of twin births in the Province, there were 425, as against 411 in 1877; of these 850 twin children, 456 were male and 340 female.

In the Newfoundland Legislature the Receiver-General has presented the Budget. The total revenue for 1879 was $962,921, unexpended grants $28,622, and balance to the credit of the colony $14,648. In 1869 the deposits in the saving bank amounted to $649,152, and at the end of 1879 they had increased to $1,134,505, or nearly double in ten years.

Five hundred people passed over the G. W. R. on Tuesday for Manitoba. An interesting incident happened at London whilst the train was waiting to proceed. An accident of a most painful nature, says the Paisley Advocate, befell a young lad about 16 years of age, son of Mr. Angus Munn, Gillies Hill, the other day. It seems that one of his school companions was playing with a bow and arrow, when the arrow went off, striking young Munn in the right eye. It is feared that the eye has been injured to such an extent that the unfortunate youth will lose the use of it for life.

The Grand Trunk and the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway.

The Owen Sound Advertiser, after quoting from the Mount Forest Confederate the paragraph about the arrangement made between these two Companies to run the new line from Palmerston to Durham, says:—It will be observed that in the above extract nothing is said as to what the terms of the arrangement are, or whether the Grand Trunk is arranging about the whole road or only a part of it. We have reason to believe, however, that the arrangements so far include the running of the road only as far as Durham. The terms of the proposed agreement make no provision for the running of the road to Owen Sound, nor is there anything said as to what conditions the Grand Trunk will assume this section of it on. Nothing in fact is said about the part of the road lying between Durham and here. A meeting of the Directors is to be held at Durham at an early date, so that in all probability the entire scheme on which the agreement is based, including the understanding, if any, as to the section between Durham and here, will be made public. It is altogether unlikely that the Grand Trunk would consent to take up any part of the road without having an understanding of some kind as to its being continued through to Owen Sound,—without in fact being certain that it was to terminate here. Unless the road is pushed through to Owen Sound, it is as much as certain that the Grand Trunk will have nothing to do with it. But how this end of the road is to be built, now that the Government has refused assistance to it, is not very easily seen, and it is very questionable, with the new bonus law, if another cent can be got out of the municipalities. If there were difficulties in the way before, these must be very much increased now. It is quite certain, however, that if the Grand Trunk takes up the road it does so with the intention of making it pay. And it is equally certain that it cannot make it pay so long as it terminates at Durham. It must come through to the lake and receive its share of the lake trade. Unless the Grand Trunk sees its way through to the lake there is every reason to believe that it will have nothing to do with the road. But how, under the present circumstances, it is to be pushed through, we confess we have not the faintest idea.

Trouble Between Russia and China.

It seems there is trouble between Russia and China, and that war is imminent. The London papers think the dispute grave enough to merit leading articles. The Standard says that Russia is preparing to fight China in alliance with Tashkend, and that a proclamation has been issued at Kashgar asking the people to bear patiently the yoke of China, until the Czar is ready to re-establish the independence of the country. It says also that Russia is forcing Japan to quarrel with China on the Loochoo question, and that the Mikado is on the point of sending his ultimatum to Pekin. It is also stated that China has raised from her own people $80,000,000 for war purposes. The Berlin correspondent of the same paper attributes the perverse course of China to British influence. Other reports are to the effect that Russia and England are striving to foment war between China and Japan, England backing China in the hope of weakening Russia, Russia backing Japan as a defence against the aggressions of China. Japan has a good army, trained in the principles of European warfare. She has several ships, and in naval equipment stands far ahead of China. The Japanese Cabinet is showing a strong warlike spirit and a yearning for adventure. The Vienna correspondent of the Times alludes to the gravity of the situation, and to the rumour that in consequence of Chinese menaces, Russia abandons the Merv expedition, taking measures to employ the Mahommedans of Central Asia against the Chinese of Kashgaria. The Ameer of Bokhara declares his readiness to join the expedition against China. The Berlin correspondent of the Chronicle says that Russia will not enter into negotiacions with China until the Chinese give them guarantees that the new arrangement shall be final, and the signature of the Plenipotentiaries shall not be ignored. Putting all these things together there is evidently a prospect of a bitter, barren, and cruel war between China and Japan, which will weaken both countries, retard their civilization, and leave them exhansted, at the mercy of European Powers, who covet their independence.

ADVICES from the Province of Prince Edward Island indicate that a strong anti-protection feeling is being developed, and petitions protesting against the present iniquitous system of taxation are being circulated and freely signed.

THE Conservative cabal at Quebec are endeavoring to win over Mr. Parent, the newly elected Liberal member for Rimouski. The question of a coalition is also being discussed. The organ of the French Liberals publishes what is called the ultimatum of the party as to the conditions upon which a coalition can be formed.

MR. KING made some good points against the Finance Minister in his speech on Tuesday night. For instance, he quoted that gentleman as promising, before confederation, that taxation would not be increased, and yet himself bringing in a tariff that imposed heavy burdens on the people of that province; as stating that twelve millions would cover the expenditure of the Dominion, while he himself brought in estimates for $25,000,000; as promising that in 1881 the population of the province would be 400,000, while there was only 300,000—and he would urge the Government to take the census immediately, as the people were rapidly leaving it.

THE New York Bulletin, in announcing that the Welland Canal will not be opened until early in May, says that "owners of vessels that have been laid up all winter on Lake Ontario complain of the bad management which has thus delayed these repairs until so late in the season, and allege that there is no reason why the canal should not be thrown open for business while the repairs are progressing. As the Erie Canal will be open early in April, the best thing shippers can do is to use that, and let the slow-going Canadian route take its time."

SAYS the Ottawa Free Press:—Nova Scotia passed under the yoke of Conservative rule at the same time as the Dominion in 1878, and here is the record. When the change took place there was an adverse balance of $118,000 against the Province. During the year the Government have taken no less than $229,905.22 from the railway fund at Ottawa, and have also drawn $50,000 in advance on the Provincial subsidy for 1880. In addition to these sums they expended $73,786 53 in excess of their receipts, thus piling up the provincial debt in one year to the very handsome figure of $353,691.74. Here we may see how singularly alike Tory rule is in the Provinces and the Dominion. Only give that party a chance and they display a capacity for squandering, limited only by the amount which they can beg, borrow and steal.

The Sarnia Observer has an observant correspondent at Ottawa, who gives in the last number of that paper a very amusing sketch of dii majori legislators in the Commons, led by the tuneful Mr. Plumb. Here is a verbatim report, given by the correspondent, of one of this distinguished party—the member for Quebec County:—"Mistah Speakah; the member for Quebec County is not in the habit of voting on both sides of the same question; but having been, ah, engaged in convahsation, ah, with my hon. friend, the member for Niaghwah, I did not, ah, observe that the vote was being taken, ah. I desiah to have my name, ah, recorded against the amendment. (Loud cheers and laughter.)

A New Milking of the Northern Railway Cow.

A Bill is now before Parliament which proposes to constitute a Court of Railway Commissioners for Canada, who will have power in railway matters to decide all questions as regards the crossing of roads, alienment, arrangement, disposition and limitation of tracks; as to the compensation payable by railway companies for land taken or occupied by them in which municipalities are interested; of by-laws passed by municipalities in aid of railways, and agreements made in relation thereto; of disputes between railway companies as to traffic arrangements and adjustment of rates for passengers and freight, running powers, haulage, use of tracks, use of stations, adjustment of time tables, transhipment and interchange of freight, and generally to all questions likely to arise between public corporations, railway companies, traders and passengers. In connnection with this matter we see that the Managing Director of the Northern Railway has gone to Ottawa to do a little lobbying. He travelled in his own car, said to have cost $10,000, and fitted up with dietary apparatus, baths, and every luxurious convenience. It is said that in this car the princely hospitality is to be extended to members of Parliament, in order to superinduce that accommodating frame of mind which will fall in with the desires of the Northern Railway. It is evident that the Northern Railway cow has to be milked over again.

LAST year Ontario paid about $400,000 tax for American coal, and we are told that the duty on this article would foster mining in the Maritime Provinces. Let us see what the result of this imposition has been. In 1878, before the tax was imposed upon coal, the output from the Cape Breton mines was 113,229 tons; last year, with the supposed advantage of a tax on foreign coal in their favor, the same mines were only able to dispose of 112,539 tons, a decrease of nearly 700 tons. The fact is patent that the coal tax is an imposition upon Ontario coal consumers, while it affords not a particle of benefit to Nova Scotia miners.

HON. JAMES MACDONALD has given notice of the introduction of the following Bills: Further to continue in force for a limited time the Better Prevention of Crime Act, 1878, respecting the returns made and required to be made by certain Loan Companies doing business in the Province of Ontario.

Funeral of the late Hon. Mr. Holton.

The funeral of the late Hon. Mr. Holton took place in Montreal on Wednesday, and was the large ever witnessed in that city.

The deputation from Ottawa was very large, and its influence showed the great esteem in which Mr. Holton was held, but the spontaneity of the people of Montreal in meeting and the representative character of those present showed that the city recognized and appreciated a friend and counsellor. All creeds and national preferences or prejudices were sunk in the desire to show that his loss is felt. Political animosity and intrigues were laid aside. Ministers and ex-Ministers of State, merchants and clerks, stock brokers and stock owners, bench and bar, press and pulpit, tradesmen and others from more humble ranks of life joined in the throng. There may have been more pompous and imposing demonstrations before in Montreal, but there never has been a demonstration simpler in character or more telling in its silent solemnity than this. There must have been between three thousand five hundred and four thousand marching four deep, and long before the middle of the line had reached the American church door, that edifice had been filled.

The funeral cortege left the residence of the deceased at half-past two p. m. The pall bearers on one side were Sir Alexander Galt, Thos. Workman, Hon. Edward Blake, Hon. Chief Justice Dorion, while on the opposite side were Sir Francis Hincks, Mr. Thomas Cramp, Hon. L. S. Huntington, and Hon. Alex. Mackenzie. The hearse was drawn by four horses heavily draped. The chief mourners were, Mr. Edward Holton, son of the deceased, supported by Mr. E. L. Gilbert; Charles P. Holton and W. E. Holton, nephews of the deceased; Mr. J. B. Learmont and B. M. Britton, sons-in-law; Mr. Ford, Mr. Ross, and Dr. Sutherland, relatives. Then followed a great many members of Parliament, and after them came representatives of the Montreal Board of Trade, members of the St. George's Society, St. Andrew's Society, Le Club Nationale, St. Patrick's Society, Irish Protestant Benevolent Society, and citizens. As the procession moved silently along it passed at street corners miscellaneous groups in hundreds composed of ladies and children, with a sprinkling of gentlemen among them, all as mournful as the procession itself. Inside the church the ladies had taken possession of the gallery, while the mourners at the head of the procession found seats in the body of the church. Hundreds were unable to obtain admission, and hundreds stood in the crowded aisles during the hour and ten minutes occupied by the funeral services. The casket, as is customary, was placed at the foot of the dais opposite the pulpit, and Mr. Ed. Holton and the relatives occupied seats in the front pews. A glance around the church served to show that the afternoon must have been a half holiday in mercantile and professional circles. The Stock Exchange had adjourned its afternoon Board. There must have been no judges in Court; mayor and aldermen were grouped together.

The service at the church was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Cordner, of the Unitarian Church, to which body deceased belonged, which was followed by a very impressive address. At the close of the service, the procession re formed and took its way to Mount Royal cemetery, where the remains were laid.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

Easter Fair and Fat Cattle Show.

A Very Successful Show.

About eleven o'clock the cattle and sheep competing at the live stock show were taken on to the Market Square to be judged. The Judges were Thomas Featherston and Thomas Crawford, Toronto, and William Williamson, Brampton. The show on the whole was very good though in some respects it did not equal that of former years, another fact due to the best animals being bought ahead for shipment. Mr. P. O'Rourke, of Shakspeare, had the best show of cattle, exhibiting a number of animals purchased from George Moore, of Waterloo. They were of the Durham grade class, and the quality was pronounced very fine. The oxen exhibited in this class were also good, but not equal in quality to that seen at many Easter shows here. In the aged cow class, some very fine animals of the Durham fed were shown, and there was a close contest between Messrs. Stone and McQueen for first place. The heifers in the two and the three year old class were also good, Henlock Young taking the lead. The half-bred Hereford calf exhibited by J. & R. Millar, was particularly fine, and was from the Model Farm stock. A calf from the same cow, got by the same bull, was the best calf in Canada a year ago, and sold in Montreal for $50. The sheep exhibit compared very favorably with that of previous years. The sheep shown by Mr. Hood carried off all the best prizes, and he claims the animals cannot be beaten on the continent.

Customs Curiosities.

Some of the Absurd Wrinkles of the New Tariff.

A meeting of the hardware trade of Toronto was held on Tuesday. The object of the gathering was for the discussion of matters affecting the trade. The chairman, Mr. Thompson, referred to the extraordinary treatment which the Government had ordered should be meted out to importers. They were looked upon as if their only object was to defraud the revenue. In place of securing to the trade the benefits of the discounts, the Government would fix a rate of discount which in many instances would be higher than the real one, thereby increasing the duty some 12½ per cent. It mattered but little what duty was imposed, because it ultimately fell upon the people; the grievance was in having the duty changed so often. They could not estimate what their goods would cost. In one instance goods were all sold two weeks after arrival. Six weeks afterwards he was called upon by the Customs authorities to supplement the entry, which had to be done, and in this way he suffered a positive loss.

Mr. John Levs said one of the difficulties experienced was the fact that they could not understand the discrimination made at the Custom House, especially in the matter of steel. Again, the rules are that merchants shall give the value of goods at the time of purchase. Often between the time of purchase and that of shipment prices would vary. Now it was a poor rule that would not work both ways, but what they were suffering under at present was, that they were not allowed to change the entry if prices had decreased, but if there had been an increase they were told that the goods had not been valued at the price paid. The result was the officials altered the valuation. He understood that the Department at Ottawa were determined to take a stand against American manufacturers. If that was the case, they were going about it in a very detrimental way to the trade and to importers in Canada.

Mr. Andrew Darling referred to the difficulty in purchasing goods in the English markets under existing tariff laws. The officials at Ottawa insisted that duties on the increased prices between the time of buying and shipping should be the values named. It was a very hard thing to tell what market to go to, and what the goods cost. The result was that they were forced into the American market, because the time between buying and receiving the goods bought in that market was so much shorter than when they went to the English markets that the values did not vary as much. This was not only unfair to them but also to the English merchants.

Mr. T. H. Lee gave similar testimony.

Mr. Robert Wilkes demonstrated how greatly smuggling had been increased by the discriminating duty on certain articles. In regard to clocks, the duty on Connecticut clocks had been imposed because a maker at Hamilton had assured the Finance Minister that his factory could supply the demand if he was protected. A duty was imposed, and what was the effect? Since the change not one clock had been made in Hamilton. An effort had been made to remove the concern to Montreal, but it had collapsed, and the duty of 35 per cent. was paid all the same. He had recently imported some clocks from the United States. They were valued at $4 by the Departmental orders. The discount brought them down to $2.60. He was doing business in New York, and all he asked for the clocks was $1.71, and at that price they were higher than he had ever known them to have been during his twenty years' experience in the business.

Mr. Joseph Robertson complained of being badgered and treated badly at the Custom House. Importers were now looked upon as if they desired to cheat the Government. He advocated sending a deputation to Ottawa.

Ald. Darling said the system now in vogue developed smuggling to alarming proportions. There was not proper discrimination at the Customs House. A friend of his from Guelph asked his advice a short time ago. He had entered an invoice of locks, and after the goods had been sold the Customs officials called upon him to make a supplementary payment of $60 or $70 on an order of $300 or $400. He rebelled at such a demand, and on investigating a little in Toronto he found the same kind of locks had been entered at a much lower value. In the face of that fact he was forced to pay the additional duty.

Mr. Lee said that he was a strong supporter of the present Government, but under the present Custom laws a man could save money by going to Buffalo if he wanted to buy a watch.

A Committee was appointed to confer with the trade in Hamilton, Montreal and elsewhere.

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

WOOLENS.

SHAW & MURTON WOULD RESPECTFULLY announce that having placed their orders for imported and Canadian Woollens, for this Spring's trade, early last fall, they are enabled, notwithstanding the great rise that has taken place in all classes of goods during the last few months, to take orders for clothing at old prices.

SUITINGS.

They would most especially direct attention to their Worsted Coatings and Scotch Tweed Suitings, which this season excel both in quality and design. Also to a new style of English Hard Felt Hat, which is much finer in quality, and lighter in weight than has been manufactured in Britain heretofore.

FURNISHINGS.

In the Furnishing Department we have a new make of Spring Kid Gloves, equal in quality to the celebrated Dent's Gloves, and much cheaper. Also French Cambric Shirts—the nicest colors ever introduced. A general assortment of fine Furnishing Goods can always be obtained from,

Yours most respectfully,

CHAPTER XXXII.

AN INTERESTING MEETING—A RESEMBLANCE DETECTED—JACK BORLAND IS DOMICILED IN HIS OLD QUARTERS, AND MAKES FRIENDS OF AGNES AND HER MOTHER.

"You cannot trace that resemblance to your father which strikes me so much?" said Mrs. Borland, in a very low agitated tone.

"I think I do," replied Agnes. "I have a distinct recollection of my father's appearance, and this gentleman's figure is of the same character."

"It is the colour and expression of the eyes which particularly remind me of him. Then the likeness is somewhat wonderful. It induced me more than anything else to accede to his request."

"There is that in his face which satisfied me," observed Agnes. "Truth, kindness, generosity, and sincerity are stamped on his features with unmistakable legibility. I feel, mother, as if this Mr. Wilson is in some way destined to signally befriend us."

"In what way, dear?"

"I cannot say. It is only a feeling I have, but the feeling is very strong. In any case, I have formed a liking for him, which, considering he is a stranger, is wonderful."

"I am greatly drawn towards him," returned Mrs. Borland; "but to me that is not wonderful—he reminds me so much of him whom the grave has long hid from my sight. Had he been with us in December these wretches would not have been able to carry you off."

"I am sure they would not."

"I wonder what his business can be in this quiet place? Don't you think that is a little mysterious? He told me he wished quietness and seclusion. It cannot be for his health he has come?"

"Oh, no," said Agnes, with a smile; "he is the very picture of health, and looks so strong. Perhaps he once lived in this neighborhood, and has come to visit old scenes. But we must not be too curious on that point."

"That is true, dear. There is a secret in almost every life with which strangers have no right to meddle. Whatever Mr. Wilson's may be, but I am sure it does him no discredit."

As the red glow had now faded entirely from the embers, and the chill of the April night began to penetrate into the kitchen, the pair ceased their low-toned conversation, and retired to rest.

During the days which followed, the favourable impression which Jack had produced by his first appearance did in nowise diminish. On the contrary the confidence he had inspired was increased by further intercourse. The more he was known the better he was liked. He gave little trouble, and was best pleased with the simplest food, paying for everything with a liberality which elicited strong remonstrance from Mrs. Borland, to be met, however, only with laughing indifference. Most of the day he spent out of doors roaming about the park and the grounds, sometimes taking solitary rambles along the cliffs and on the secluded beaches which lined the shore.

In these walks Jack neither courted nor particularly shunned observation. He was not wholly without the dread of discovery, though that was much lessened from the fact that Jessie had not recognised him. Since she failed to do so, he argued that it was exceedingly unlikely any other would. Now and again in his walks among the rocks he met an old smuggling confederate who eyed him with suspicious attention, a circumstance which at first alarmed him exceedingly. Soon, however, he understood that this unwelcome regard did not arise from any dawning recollection of his personality, but from the fear that he was there in the capacity, of a spy, that, perhaps, he was a revenue officer trying to find out their places of concealment. Such a belief was a source of great danger, as Jack well knew, for it once became a conviction in the minds of these rough men that he was engaged in an effort to circumvent them he ran the greatest risk of serious personal injury.

Prudence, therefore, suggested that he should take his walks in a different direction, but these scenes of his former adventures had intense fascination for him, and he could not forbear paying a visit to all the old spots which recalled that self-willed period of his youth. In particular he made a descent to the beach at the base of the Monk's Cowl, the scene of the events of that memorable night which sent him into exile. Once more he stood on the shingle and gazed up to the ledge of rock which formed the entrance to the cave, and as his eyes ran over point by point the unforgotten features of the place, he recalled with vivid distinctness every particular of the occurrences to the moment when he rashly confronted the revenue men, and in his excitement fired the pistol which he held in his hand.

"I did fire that pistol," said Jack to himself, "and as the man fell the moment after, of course I naturally supposed that it was the bullet from my pistol that killed him. But what amazed me beyond the horror of the deed was to find that my weapon had done such execution, for I was certain was not pointed at the man and went off at random. I meant to strike with it, and had it raised for that purpose, when off it went, and down went the man shot in the heart. The thing is now thoroughly explained to my mind by what Orwell has told me of Bob Andrew's confession ere he died. Bob was behind me, and fired his pistol over my shoulder point blank at the revenue man, so I was innocent of the murder and did not know it; no, and I never could have proved I was innocent even if I had known it. Bob was dead, and the testimony of those who heard his dying words would not have been taken. I am glad, however, very glad, to know I was innocent of that deed. It takes from my mind a weight which long oppressed it, and makes the memory of that night's occurrences less bitter."

As these thoughts ran through Jack's mind his eye inadvertently passed up the side of the cliff, and he was petrified to behold a shaggy head and rugged face scowling at him from the ledge at the mouth of the cave. He had sufficient presence of mind not to start or give any sign that this human figure had caught his attention. With an air of unconcern and unconsciousness, he began to potter with his stick in the water as if interested in the examination of seaweed or shellfish, and at the end of a minute or two, without daring to lift his eyes to the spot where the head had appeared, he sauntered up the beach in an indifferent manner, slowly mounted the zig-zag path, gained the summit, then walked off at a rapid pace, vowing that he would not again go near any of the smuggler's haunts.

Was Jack, then, while wandering thus, day after day, in the neighbourhood, unmindful of the mission which had brought him across the Atlantic. Surely not. On the day after his arrival he made his way to Cairntree to seek an interview with Mr. Bishop, but found the lawyer was in Edinburgh engaged in an important local case which was being brought to an issue in the Court of Session. All that he could do was to arrange means by which he would know whenever Mr. Bishop returned, and as the particular business he had with that gentleman would not spoil by a few days' delay he was waiting patiently for the intelligence to reach him.

That intelligence was to come through David Ramsay, though David himself was not an informed medium. Jack and the gardener had by this time become great friends, and many an hour the former had spent in the Grange garden, where David was kept hard at work at putting things in order for the approaching sale. Having no assistant the work was too much for one man to accomplish, but often Jack would come in and work for hours by his side with such professional dexterity that David declared Mr. Wilson must have been bred a gardener.

"Oh, I have done a deal of gardening work in my day," Jack would evasively reply to such a hazarded opinion.

"Weel, sir, that's easy to be seen," would David respond, "Nane but a bred gardener handles the tools as ye dae. At ony rate, I am muckle obleeged to ye for the brave help ye are gein' me. I'll by weel forrit now by the 20th, and Anthony Langton, the auld skinflint, wunna hae to say that when the estate fell into his clutches the garden was in a mess o weeds."

"No indeed, David," said Jack. "You have the place in very fair order, considering that you have had the whole spring work on your shoulders. It took Adam and me to work our very hardest to——"

The speaker ceased in sudden consternation. His mind dwelling on the garden work of former days had become wholly oblivious of his present situation; and he was horrified to find that he had uttered words full of revelation. When he turned round in dismay David had stopped work and was gazing at him in breathless astonishment.

NEW KIND OF BARLEY.—The Globe says: Messrs. W. D. Matthews & Co. have samples of a new variety of barley which has been grown to a small extent near Toronto. It is dark colored, almost black, and looks as though it might be a hybrid between rye and barley. It is stated to be very productive, and to possess great value as food for hogs and other stock."

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

THE CARRIAGE & WAGON TRADE

FOR 1880.

Chase's Carriage Works

Woolwich-st., Opposite Wellington Hotel.

I beg to call the attention of the public to the fact that I have now in stock and in cource of manufacture for the season of 1880, the following first class stock:

FAMILY PHÆTONS, open and covered.
CARRIAGES, open and covered,
BUGGIES, Single and Double.
DEMOCRAT AND MARKET WAGGONS.

I am also manufacturing to order some

FIRST CLASS FARM WAGGONS

Should I not have in stock any vehicle you want, call and leave your orders early, and they will receive prompt attention.

Being a practical workman, and superintending my own business, and using good material, combined with the best workmanship, I can guarantee a good article at reasonable prices.

REPAIRING, RE-PAINTING AND RETRIMMING.

Particular attention paid to the above. My facilities for this branch are second to none, as I employ two sets of hands—one for new work and one for repairing—thus enabling me to turn out my work on short notice. A call solicited.

P. S.—My motto is a good job, fair prices and short credit.

Yours respectfully,

CALEB CHASE

St. Petersburg letters state that the Czar is suffering from his old complaint, and his mind is failing more rapidly than his body. The gap between the Czar and the Czarewitch is said to be irreparably widening.

The Daily News says it is estimated that in Scotland the Conservatives will loose ten seats. In the North of Ireland the Conservatives expect to lose seven seats. Of the English and Welsh seats there is reason to believe that 39 seats will be transferred from the Conservatives to the Liberals.

From the Registrar-General report for the year ending December 31st, 1878, we find that the number of births in the County of Halton for the year were 589, of which 312 were males and 267 females. The number of marriages, 432, and the number of deaths, 188, of which 105 were males and 83 females.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

Fires.

LUCAN, March 19.—The barn and outbuildings belonging to Timothy Collison, on lot No. 10, North London road, Biddulph, one and a half miles from Lucan, was totally consumed by fire last night about eleven o'clock, together with its contents. It is supposed to have been set on fire by tramps staying there overnight.

MONTREAL, March 19.—A fire broke out this morning in a house occupied by the late Recorder Sexton, through the drapery in the room, where his remains were laid out, catching fire from the burning tapers around the catafalque. Three woman and a servant girl, who were sleeping in the upper storey, were lowered from a balcony in the rear, fifty feet, in their night dresses by means of a rope, their hands being much lacerated in the operation. A boarder in the house ascended to the roof and was rescued by the firemen. The body of the dead man has been removed to the City Hall, from which the funeral is appointed to take place. The deepest sympathy is felt for his widow at this strange catastrophe.

200 immigrants from Halifax passed through this city by the G. T. R. last night en route for the West.

From Toronto.

TORONTO, March 19.—Judge Boyd gave judgment in the case of County Crown Attorney Fenton vs. the County of York. Mr. Fenton, sometime ago, personally expended $14.26 in the interest of criminal justice, at the instruction of the county, and the latter, when the bill was presented, refused to entertain it. Mr. Fenton consequently brought a suit, which was of much interest to lawyers. His Honor spoke decidedly against the action of the county and found for plaintiff with costs.

The bay is clear of ice, and there is considerable activity in shipping circles. Vessel owners are shipping men at union wages, $1 for Lake Ontario and $1.25 through Welland canal. There is every prospect of an early start of grain shipments and a prosperous season is expected.

Frank Derman, the boy boarding house thief, was to-day sentenced to four years in the reformatory prison. Fred. Jackson, also a well known youthful thief, was committed to the same institution for three years.

The Lambton Mills Shooting Case.

TORONTO, March 19.—Robert Decoursier, the man who, last fall, shot and killed his brother at Lambton Mills, is rapidly failing in health. Medical men who have seen him in gaol here say that since that day in which he laid wait and shot his brother his mind, ever brooding on the event, has gradually collapsed, and to-day he stands a man without reason. It is said his counsel will make application at the present Assizes for a further postponement of trial to the Summer Assizes. Should the application be granted, which is considered likely, Decoursier will, before the time comes round, have passed beyond the fear of legal tribunals to answer for his crime at a higher court.

Local News.

THE Berger family will re-visit the city shortly.

THE GUELPH MERCURY was represented in a skating carnival at Harriston last week.

A FEW sports from Guelph attended a pigeon pop near Harriston a few days ago.

BILLIARDS.—Mr. Frank Conn in a three ball game of billiards last night, made the exceedingly good run of 52 points.

WEATHER PROBS. — Moderate to fresh winds, partly cloudy to cloudy weather, with showers of rain and snow in some localities.

THE calf which carried off first prize at the fat cattle show and which was sold to Satchell Bros., of Ottawa, was bred by J. & R. Millar.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Messrs. W. S. G. Knowles sold on Wednesday the south half of lot 13, concession 2, township of Luther, comprising 100 acres under power of mortgage, to James Kerr, for $1,025.

DEATH OF A SISTER AT ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL.—Sister Mary Ursula (Annie Keenan) died at St Joseph's Hospital this (Friday) morning, aged 39 years. She was a sister of the Very Rev. E. J. Keenan, Vicar General of the Hamilton Diocese. She had spent ten years in the community of Sisters, and died on the anniversary of her entrance to the religious profession.

THE Methodist Sabbath School anniversary, at Erin, was held on the 14th and 15th inst. Excellent sermons were preached on Sabbath by Rev. E. Kershaw, of Elora. On Monday evening a good tea was served, and an interesting performance of recitations and singing was gone through with by the children, and addresses were given by Revs. E. Kershaw and R. Redmond.

THE POCKET PICKING CASE.—Sam. Soden appeared at the Police Court to-day (Friday) on the charge of picking John Porter's pockets and relieving him of a purse containing $12, at the Albion Hotel, on Tuesday evening. The evidence of George Hood was contradictory to the information he gave the Police when the charge was laid against Soden. He then stated that he saw the prisoner abstract the purse from Porter's pocket, and in his evidence he denied it. Owing to Porter's absence from court, and for other reasons, the case was enlarged for a week, the prisoner being refused bail.

VISIT FROM AN OLD FRIEND.—We yesterday had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. William Van Buren, who served his apprenticeship in the MERCURY office some twenty-five years ago. Mr. Van Buren went to the States many years ago, and at last settled in Lansing, Michigan. The esteem in which he was held there, resulted in his being elected Mayor of that thriving city, which honour he now holds. We are proud to think that one of the old MERCURY boys holds such a high position, and that he has attained it by his own industry, intelligence and perseverance.

PULLMAN AND HAMILTON'S SHOW.—Pullman and Hamilton's Great London Confederation, embracing in its catalogue of attractions everything pleasing, novel and attractive, from the funny antics of clowns, to the difficult feats of the gymnasium, will revisit Guelph the coming season. The pavillion will be lighted by the electric light which produces the effect of a thousand jets of gas. A thirty horse-power engine, and 20,000 yards of insulated wire are used to produce the light which our citizens will be on the qui vive to see when the show arrives. The proprietors have enlarged their show since their last visit adding a large number of new and novel features.

CONCERT IN BERLIN.—The concert given on Wednesday evening by the pupils of St. Jerome's College, on behalf of the sufferers in Ireland and Silesia was a very great success. The hall was crowded by an appreciative audience, and the various performances gave great pleasure. The opening address of Mr. Has was very good, and the presence of Father Funcken, the highly respected head of the College, gave a zest to the performance of his pupils, in which he appeared to take great interest. The proceeds, after paying expenses, will be about $160. St. Jerome's College deserves credit for being the first in behalf of the sufferers in Ireland.

AN EMBARRASSING PREDICAMENT.—A passenger on one of the trains of the Wellington, Grey & Bruce Railway relates an incident which occurred on that road on Thursday morning. A newly-married couple arrived at a hotel in Southampton the night before, and on retiring the young husband gave instructions to be called for the first train. In the morning they were summoned just a few minutes before the train was due to leave, and hastily donning their garments they rushed to the station, arriving just in the nick of time. The bridegroom, however, discovered to his dismay that he had left his pocket book under his pillow at the hotel. There was no time to go for it, so, putting a bold face on the matter, he explained his position to the conductor, saying that "under these peculiar circumstances a man scarcely knows what he is doing, anyway." The difficulty was arranged, and the pocket-book was brought down to the owner at Harrisburg on the next train.—Hamilton Spectator.

MR. WALTER LAING shipped a car load of cattle to Montreal on Thursday.

MR. FRANCIS EVATT left the city yesterday to visit his son in Manitoba.

THE St. Andrew's and Chalmers' Church Young Men's Associations meet to-night at the respective churches.

PRIZE WINNERS at the fat cattle show express their satisfaction at the promptness with which their prize money is being paid.

A FINANCIAL PUZZLE.—The latest puzzle, which will scarcely take the place of the 13—15—14 one, is submitted to some of our readers to decipher:—"Don't U O us a $ or 2?" Answers may be sent to this office, by registered letter at our risk.

THE DOG BY-LAW.—The new dog by-law now before the City Council for consideration will be found in another column. Those who propose changes in the by-law should lay their views before the Aldermen representing the ward in which they live.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS.—Petitions are being sent to the Dominion Government asking that Government officials be assessed on income tax. At present they are exempt from such taxation and the feeling is pretty general that with their large salaries they should be taxed.

PARLOUR CONCERT.—A very successful parlor concert was given by Mrs. J. C. McLagan last night, in aid of Knox Church building fund. There was a good attendance and everything passed off pleasantly. The usual parlor games were indulged in, and a musical and literary programme of a high order was carried out, some of the best local talent taking part.

SEIZURE OF AN ILLICIT STILL.—Mr. A. Cavin, Collector of Inland Revenue at Stratford, on Thursday seized the brewery premises of Geo. Gray, Egremont; also an illicit malting establishment and a quantity of malt in the cellar of the dwelling house. Twenty-five bags of malt were also found secreted under some straw in the barn. The kiln and steep tub were destroyed, and the other property confiscated.

THE SOUP KITCHEN.—We are informed that some farmers decline to send vegetables to the soup kitchen, being under the impression that tramps are fed there. This impression is a false one, as at no time are tramps fed at the soup kitchen unless they have a written order from the Chief of Police or some other responsible person. Farmers in sending vegetables to the soup kitchen are doing an act of charity, and they cannot realize the amount of good they do.

SPORTING.—D. C. Ross, the athlete, leaves Ontario for San Francisco in April. Before his departure he challenges any man including the unknown of Toronto, to a wrestling match, two Scotch falls and one Cumberland out of three to decide. The stakes are placed at $100 a side. For the fifth time within a year Mr. Duncan C. Ross and Capt. J. C. Daly met on Wednesday, and wrestled for the valuable championship belt, awarded by the Cook Manufacturing Company of New York, to be held by the heavy weight athlete who proves himself most worthy of it. The contest resulted in another success for Ross.

STIRTON MEDAL.—The Stirton medal was played for on the rink yesterday afternoon by a large number of curlers. At the close James Emslie and John McKenzie were tied, being 13 points each. They played off twice before the game was finally settled in favor of the latter, who is, consequently, the winner of the medal or the season.

The death of Mr. Thomas Kershaw, one of Montreal's best known grain brokers, is announced in Chicago.

The Nova Scotia Government has failed to get any satisfaction from the Dominion Government anent the fishery award claim.

Recorder Sexton, of Montreal, died on Thursday morning. Five hungry Tory office seekers are already fighting for the dead man's shoes.

PRESENTATION.—In virtue of Mr. J. N. Cober being ex-Superintendent of the Methodist Church Sabbath School, Hespeler, he was called upon by a large number of friends last Monday evening and presented with a handsome volume of Scripture, being a reference Bible and commentary combined. The presentation was accompanied by a very flattering address, to which Mr. Cober responded in a brief but very touching reply. An unusually good time was indulged in, the ladies having brought a supply of the good things necessary for this life, after partaking of which, and having sundry other amusements, the company quietly dispersed.—Reformer.

THE CROP PROSPECTS IN THE NORTH-WEST.—In order to obtain an approximate estimate of the prospects of the winter wheat crop in the Northwestern States, the Chicago Times has made special enquiries in eleven States, the result being generally favorable reports as to the outlook. The crops throughout Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri and Kansas promises very well, and in most, if not all of these States, a great increase in the wheat acreage is reported, consequent upon last year's bountiful harvest. The increase in the yield in Illinois is estimated at 50 per cent., and in Michigan at 75 per cent. In Iowa, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Nebraska the condition of the crop is not so good, the weather having been unfavorable, but the increased area devoted to wheat growing will probably make up any deficiency. Taken altogether the Times foreshadows that the augmentation of the total production throughout the eleven States included in the estimate will be about 60 per cent. unless severe changes in the weather should occur of a character to damage the crops.

Last Carnival of the Season.

Brilliancy on Ice and Another Large Attendance.

The last carnival of the season was held on the rink last night, there being a large attendance of skaters and spectators, though neither were so large as at previous carnivals this season. In all there were about one hundred and fifty skaters in costume. The music of the Artillery Band enlivened the proceedings and seemed to rouse the skaters to new life, for they shot around much faster when the band struck up. The ice was covered with the same variety of characters as seen at carnivals heretofore. In fact so many excellent costumes have been made up for Guelph carnivals that it is now a difficult matter to discover some new one to wear. Last night some of the best worn at previous carnivals were to be seen. In the motley crowd there was the same sprinkling of negro, Chinee and eastern characters, as well as clowns and other indescribable characters. The ice held out well, and the skaters must have enjoyed themselves, with everything so favourable to them. The affair was a decided success, and suggests that carnivals will not be less popular next season.

The following is the list of costumes and names given in to the Secretary, many of whom are genuine; others have adopted a name that neither belong to their parents nor themselves; some have also preferred to just announce the costume, which is perhaps the most sensible of the two.

The action of the Town Council of Dundas in erecting a toll gate on the macadamized road north of Sheffield, is meeting with prompt opposition from Galt.

Mr. Martin McDonald, son of the Minister of Justice, has three thousand acres of land in Manitoba.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March, 18.

Mr. Thomson (Haldimand) presented several petitions from the Maritime Provinces against the Bill legalizing marriage with deceased wife's sister.

Sir L. Tilley in reply to a question was forced to admit that the details of the expenditure incurred by the Cabinet Ministers who went to England required special preparation.

The debate on the Budget was resumed by Mr. Domville. His speech was a sore disappointment to Ministerialists. Instead of disproving the charge that the tariff was unpopular, he admitted that such was the case; also that the only industry in St. John benefitted by the tariff was a cotton mill. He even went so far as to admit that every industry in which he was personally interested had been detrimentally affected by it. In the course of his address he threw out the suggestion that the duty on coal should be removed and placed on iron, so as to encourage all industries interested in the production of raw material.

Mr. M. C. Cameron (Huron) addressed the House until recess in the Liberal interest. He amused the House by reading the previous speeches by Mr. Domville, and citing his votes in the Dominion Board of Trade against any duty on breadstuffs or coal. Proceeding, Mr. Cameron twitted Sir Charles Tupper with being jealous of Sir L. Tilley, who was a joint claimant with himself to the Premier's boots. He analyzed Sir Charles Tupper's speech thus:—"Bouncers" twenty-five in number, or 75 per cent. of the whole; 15 per cent. of facts, but these invariably got the worse of it, and 10 per cent. of statements in which there were tiny grains of truth. In the remainder of his speech he presented to the House an array of facts, collected from every Province of the Dominion, showing the detrimental effects of the National Policy and its utter failure as a scheme for the fostering of native industries.

Mr. Boultbee, M.P., said that the country had demanded the N. P., and its desires were acceded to by the present Government.

Messrs. Wallace (York), and Arkell followed in a similar strain, and ascribed wonderfully beneficial results to the N. P.

Mr. Paterson (Brant) delivered an effective speech, enumeratory both of the Government's general and fiscal policy. He dwelt at length upon the folly of agricultural protection, the injustice of fostering such monopolies as that of the Redpath Sugar Refining Company, and the failure of the tariff to protect or foster the mass of industries. Last session of Parliament he claimed in his speech on the tariff that the N. P. would be judged adversely in the then imminent Ontario Provincial elections. This prediction was accepted by the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mr. Boultbee, both of whom hoped that the Liberal opposition would continue assailing the N. P. because it would materially injure Mr. Mowat's success in the Ontario elections. The Mail even gave the prediction editorial reference, and expressed itself glad that the N. P. was to be the issue. He claimed that his prediction was realized, that it became an issue, and that the N. P. was condemned. As proof of the latter statement he quoted the speeches delivered by the Premier and Sir Leonard Tilley and Sir Charles Tupper during the contest. In conclusion he expressed a fear that the Government's scheme of forcing a loan of eight millions of dollars from the people of Canada was a second step taken by this Government in destroying the confidence of the Motherland in Canada, and rupturing the ties which bound the two countries together.

Dr. Orton said he believed the Opposition would before long have to come to the principle of protection. It had been adopted, not as the best principle in the abstract, but as the only means of carrying out the principle of free trade successfully. Protection had been adopted in Canada as a measure of self defence against the encroachments of the American trade. He believed now was the time, when the British elections were coming on, to bid before the British workingmen, who had derived the benefit of the repeal of the corn laws, the advantages of imposing the duty on American productions, and allowing colonial production to go in free. Hon. gentlemen who decried the effects of the N. P. should remember that that policy had been adopted at the dictum of a vast majority of the intelligent people of Canada, and the views of the people so expressed should be carried out till they were able to judge whether or not it was a success. If the gentleman who declared this tariff was not a-ben fit to farmers went among the farmers of Ontario they would be laughed at to scor . The increase of the cost of sugar and tea was a mere trifle to the ordinary farmers of Canada, while the advantage they derived from the duty on wool alone more than counterbalanced the burdens placed upon them. A year ago wool was worth only 20 cents a pound, and the market was so full that it could not be sold in the United States. The effect of the N. P. had been, not only to consume a large quantity of wool on hand, but to stop the importation of the same class of wool as our own farmers produced, and it had increased to between 35 and 40 cents a pound. Owing to the N. P. there had been an increase in the price of oats, wheat, rye, and other produce, while there had been hardly any advance in the cost of articles the farmer consumed. While the average increased price—according to hon. gentlemen opposite—each farmer would have to pay for goods he bought would not be more than $5.17 annually, he would receive no less than $83 additional for the produce he sold.

There are twenty-three pages of names less in the Hamilton directory for 1880 than in that for 79, though the same type is used, and set up in the same form. The N. P. appears to be developing the cities backwards.

The Buffalo Sunday Morning Times says: "Forty-nine years ago scarcely a pound of ice had been housed in Buffalo, and the crop was gathered in April." This looks much as though that bit of history might repeat itself.

The people of St. Thomas have offered Messrs. Haggert Bros., of Brampton, such inducements as to lead them to remove their agricultural implement works to the former town.

A joint stock company is being organized in Brampton for the purpose of carrying on the business about to be vacated by Messrs. Haggert.

Last week Mrs. White, an aged widow, from Howick, was being driven to Harriston to attend the Division Court. When a short distance from Clifford she was thrown from the waggon, breaking one arm and severely injuring her head in the fall.

The Milton News has instituted a libel suit against the Georgetown Herald.

Mr. R. H. Robertson, of Walkerton, who some weeks ago came near being killed by coal gas in the American Hotel, Toronto, is still suffering, so that he cannot attend to his business.

Paper coated with sulphide possesses the extraordinary property of absorbing daylight and slowly giving it out again in the dark.

Aunt Mary; "Well, Tommy, shall I carry your bat and cricket stumps for you? Tommy: "No, aunty, tanks! Me tarry bat and 'tumps. 'Oco carry I."

Mrs. Connors, mother of Johnny Connors, the principal witness in the Biddulph murder case, was seized with a fainting fit at London on Wednesday evening, and for some time her life was dispaired of. Father Tiernan was summoned and administered the last rites of the Church. Dr. Woodruff was also called in, and at midnight she was sleeping, with no apparent symptoms of danger. Excitement and fear for Johnny's safety induced the illness.

Complaints in regard to the Hansard are again being made, it being represented that portions of speeches are eliminated by the speakers and other portions inserted instead.

FRIDAY EV'NG, MARCH 19, 1880

Issue of more Bank Notes by the Dominion.

The proposition made by the Finance Minister, in the financial statement, to have an increased issue of Dominion notes is looked upon with fear and suspicion by those who are well versed in the subject of finance. The Government repudiate the idea of any intention to issue an inconvertible currency, but if their proposal is carried out it will seriously affect the position of the banks, inasmuch as by an increased issue of Dominion notes it will largely curtail the circulation of the notes of the chartered banks. This result is inevitable, and if the Government scheme is carried into effect it will no doubt affect the position and business of our banks. Of course, the Government notes would be issued under the best guarantee, and would be perfectly safe, but the tendency would be—if the scheme is carried farther—to lessen this guarantee in proportion to the amount of issue, and gradually drift into the production of an irredeemable currency with all its evil consequences.

We can well understand that the whole scheme is one of Government finance, forced on the Government by the exigencies of their position. The Minister of Finance wishes to avoid the necessity of appearing as a borrower in the English market this year, and the extension of the Government note issue will enable him to get what he wants without. He tried it last year, and could not raise a penny in England. Driven to extremity he now falls on this method of filling a depleted treasury without any thought or consideration of the evil results of his policy. He forgets that the currency of the country ought to be established without reference to the wants of the Government. It is true the Dominion notes, payable in gold, afford a perfectly safe currency, so long as they are confined to a reasonable amount, and the provision for their conversion and redemption is ample. The danger is that the thin end of the wedge having been got in, these guarantees might, in some emergency, be broken through, and the security for the issue assume a totally different character. There is always a tendency in this direction; and that tendency is visible in Sir Leonard Tilley's proposal to extend the issue. At present, the Government can only exceed the limit of ten millions of dollars by holding gold to the full amount of any issue beyond that sum. It is proposed to carry up this limit from ten to twenty millions at a bound; and we cannot say that, at some future time, it may not still be greatly extended. The gold reserve which is to be kept for the first nine millions is twenty per cent.; for the remaining thirteen millions or only part of it, the gold reserve is to be fifty per cent.; besides which guarantee securities are to be held to the amount of twenty-five per cent.

The effect of this will be to largely decrease the circulation of the banks unless the volume of the currency is increased, which would be nothing more or less than undue inflation. It is a question whether there is any necessity for such addition, or whether it is wise to change the present convertible circulation of Government and bank notes. Under any circumstances the change would have to be very gradual, and the announcement of an increase of twenty millions is calculated to produce alarm. There are expressions used with reference to the reserve which require explanation. We find that the reserve is to consist of guarantee securities, Dominion guarantee securities, and gold. Everything depends on the meaning of "guarantee securities," which are to constitute 25 per cent. of the 50 per cent. heretofore held in gold.

The whole question is beset with difficulties, and until the conditions on which the Government propose to renew the bank charters are known, the full effect of the present Government proposition cannot be rightly estimated.

It is expected that Hon. Mr. Blake will take the seat adjoining that of Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, which has been made vacant by the death of Hon. Mr. Holton.

At the meeting of the Committee on Banking and Commerce on Thursday, Sir L. Tilley stated that a provision would be introduced in the new Banking Bill to provide that two-thirds of the shareholders might wind up a bank.

The St. John N. B. petitions presented to the House of Commons against the N. P. tariff were signed by 3,000 bona fide electors There are just 4,500 actual electors in these constituencies, which shows what the feeling must be with regard to the Tariff.

The so called workingmen's demonstration in Ottawa, in honor of Mayor Mackintosh, was under the secret management of the conductors of the Conservative organ there, of which Mr. Thos. Sterrett is President. An address was presented signed by some 400 laborers, nearly all of whom were deluded into the belief that they were signing a petition for employment.

The Saturday Evening Herald, speaking of the unwise land policy of the Government, says: It is very nice to talk about "the finest country in the world" but such declamations lose their force when we look at the map and find but an infinitesimal portion of that country available for actual settlement—when we see "reserved" written on more than half the land. The "illimitable possibility" theory becomes, where shall we find a lot?

The question of the Liberal candidature in Chateauguay to replace the late Hon. Mr. Holton, is exciting much interest. No definite announcement can be made until the leading Liberal electors in the constituency have been consulted, but there can be no harm in mentioning that the names of Hon. Mr. Joly and Mr. Edward Holton, son of the deceased representative, are freely spoken of in Liberal circles.

The report of the Tuesday's session of the House of Commons contains the following:—

Mr. Ross, (Middlesex)—Will the Minister of Finance be good enough to tell us when the return giving the expenses of the Ministers to England, which was asked for sometime ago, will be brought down?

Sir L. Tilley—It will be brought down shortly. We had to send to Eng and for some of the particulars.

Did the three Knights leave England in an oblivious state, forgetting to pay their hotel bills?

There is every probability of a conflict of authority occurring at an early day between the Dominion and Provincial authorities in the territories recently awarded to Ontario. The Minister of Justice has submitted to Parliament a Bill to facilitate the detention and safe keeping of persons convicted in the North-West Territories or the district of Keewatin, and sentenced to imprisonment, in which the Dominion Government claims jurisdiction over the territory west of a line running due north from the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. This territory will embrace the greater portion of that ceded to Ontario by the Boundary award.

The Proposed City Dog By-Law.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF GUELPH.

BY-LAW NO.—

A By-law for restraining and regulating at large of dogs, and for the owners and harborers.

Whereas it is expedient to restrain and regulate the running at large of dogs in the City of Guelph, and to impose a tax on the owners, possessors or harborers thereof,

Therefore the council of the corporation of the said city of Guelph enacts as follows:

1. That every person owning, possessing or harboring a dog or bitch in the said city of Guelph, shall annually, on or before the first day of June in each year, report such fact to the Chief of police in the said city, and procure such animal to be registered, numbered, described and licensed for one year, from the first day of January preceding, in a book to be kept for that purpose in the office of the said chief constable, and shall cause such animals to wear around its neck a collar bearing the name of the owner, to which collar shall be attached, by a metallic fastening, a metallic plate, having engraved raised or cast thereon the letters C. L. P. (city license paid), and the figures indicating the year for which the said license has been paid, together with a number corresponding with the number under which the said animal is registered in the books of the said chief constable, and every such person shall pay to the said chief constable for the use of the corporation a tax of one dollar for every dog, and three dollars for every bitch owned, possessed, or harbored by him or her in each year, together with the sum of thirty cents for each dog or bitch, to cover the expenses of registration, and which latter sum shall in all instances be received by the said chief constable for his own use

2. That the said chief constable shall keep a book in his office for the purpose aforesaid, and shall register therein, as aforesaid, the name of every owner or harborer of the animal in respect of which the said tax is paid as aforesaid, and such book shall be open to the inspection of every ratepayer without fee.

3. The said chief constable shall, on the first day of each month, pay to the city clerk and treasurer the whole amount of such tax which shall have been paid to and received by him during the preceding month, and shall at the same time deliver to such clerk and treasurer a statement in writing of the names of the persons who shall have paid him.

4. Any person in possession of any such animal as aforsaid, or who shall suffer the same to remain about his house or premises shall be deemed the owner thereof for all the purposes of this by-law.

5. No person or persons shall permit or suffer his, her or their dog or bitch, and no such animal shall be permitted or suffered to run at large in this city without the collar and metallic plate mentioned in the first section of this by-law, and it is hereby made the duty of the said chief constable and of every policeman in the city to enforce the provisions of this by-law, and to ascertain the owner, possessor or harborer of every unregistered animal as aforesaid in the city, and to prosecute such owner, possessor or harborer promptly.

6. Any person or persons guilty of removing any such collar or plate from any such licensed animal as aforesaid, shall upon conviction as hereinafter provided be subject to all the penalties of this by-law.

7. If any such animal as aforesaid running at large shall attack any person traveling on the street or highway or place of public resort in the city or do any damage whatsoever and complaint thereof shall be made to the police magistrate or any justice having jurisdiction in said city, such police magistrate or justice shall enquire into the complaint, and if satisfied that such complaint is substantiated, shall either fine the owner or order such owner to deliver such animal over to a policeman at the police station of the said city in order that it may be destroyed, or the owner fined in the discretion of the said police magistrate or justice and the owner or possessor of any such animal aforesaid who shall refuse or neglect on the order of the said police magistrate or justice to deliver the same over as aforesaid shall be liable to the penalty hereinafter mentioned.

8. The chief constable shall keep up notices in at least one hundred of the public places of this city, warning persons of the provisions of this by-law.

9. Any such animal as aforesaid, known to be rabid, shall be immediately destroyed.

10. Any person or persons guilty of an infraction of any of the provisions of this by-law, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay at the discretion of the police magistrate or justice convicting, a penalty not exceeding the sum of five dollars for each offence exclusive of costs, and in default of payment thereof forthwith it shall and may be lawful for the said police magistrate or justice to issue a warrant under his hand and seal to levy said penalty and costs only, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the person offending, and in case of no sufficient distress to satisfy the said penalty, it shall and may be lawful for the police magistrate or justice convicting, as aforesaid, to commit the offender or offenders to the common jail of the county of Wellington, with or without hard labor, for any period not exceeding twenty-one days, unless the said penalty and costs be sooner paid.

11. This by-law shall come into operation and take effect on the day of A. D. 1880

By a unanimous vote the congregation of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, have agreed to advance the salary of their pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Hall, from $10,000 to $15,000 per annum. This too in the face of his own protest.

The Chatham Banner says:—What celebrated man was it who told his son, amongst other parting advice, that if he told a lie to stick to it? We have forgotten his name. Sir Charles Tupper must be of this same opinion, when he reiterates that prices have not increased under the new tariff of the N. P.

The new Exemption law brings $2,000,000 worth of property under taxation in Toronto, leaving $50,000,900 still exempt.

It appears that Zion Church, Montreal, is in a bad way. $13,000 has a correspondent of the Gazette says, been drawn by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bray, in three years, while the debt of the church has increased from $7,600 in 1875 to somewhere between $18,000 and $20,000 to-day.

The Dakota-Manitoba party which left Ottawa on Tuesday numbered 450 by the time that Toronto was reached. Nearly all the "emigrants" were bound for Dakota, less than a dozen having tickets for Manitoba, while only one car of freight was marked for that Province.

On Thursday soon after the Galt accommodation train on the Grand Trunk Railway left Brampton Station, and while it was passing the Queen street crossing, the engine struck, and fataly injured an old man named Michael Hickey, who was attempting to cross the track at that point.

Whither We are Drifting.

At the present juncture, and in view of the extravagant estimates recently submitted by the Minister of Finance for next year, the following statistics will not be without either interest or value. The first table shows the rate at which the public debt of the Dominion has increased since Confederation, and also the rate of increase of that portion of the annual expenditure made up of charges on our indebtedness:

Year.	Net debt.	Charges on debt.
1867	$ 75,728,641	$ .....
1868	75,757,135	5,221,022
1869	75,859,319	5,799,474
1870	78,209,742	5,513,586
1871	77,706,517	6,013,624
1872	82,187,072	6,074,247
1873	99,848,462	5,795,675
1874	108,324,965	6,503,039
1875	116,008,378	7,373,763
1876	124,551,514	7,432,002
1877	133,235,309	7,833,475
1878	140,362,669	8,486,714
1879	147,481,070	8,509,876

A Prolific Cow.—Mr. Sam. Heath, of Chinguacousy, has a cow that has had six calves in twenty months—twins three times—the last two heifer calves in January, 1880. Raising stock at this rate must be a profitable business.

Breese's "Sunny" Nature.—The other day a London reporter was talking to Rev. J. T. Breese, whose rather unclerical conduct has been causing so much comment lately. "How does it happen, Mr. Breese," said the reporter, "that you get into these little difficulties wherever you go?" and the reply came as follows: "Because I have a sunny nature, simple and childlike. God made me so. I answer a great end in existence. My being and the life it issues is a protest against the sophistry and falsehood of formal life. I have great powers to enjoy and to endure. I brave the world as it comes. I have been four times arrested and four times cleared. I have had several church trials, and always come out with public sympathy. Society everywhere learns a great lesson by my life. I live for a great purpose. Eternity will show me in a better light than time, and men of broad genius and wide culture will always love me. I have letters from the first minds on this continent. My troubles are only as I come in contact with jealousy and the mean side of human nature, and is always by some designing person trying to crush truth and build up falsehood." As a sample of unadulterated hypocrisy the above is worth preserving.

Coroner's Inquests—The law respecting coroner's inquests passed at the last session of the Local Legislature does not appear to be very satisfactory to the coroners. The effect of the Act is to decrease the number of inquests and to keep fees from flowing into the coroners' pockets as freely as they used to do. Under the law as it was, a coroner could hold an inquest on any dead body that he came across, and instances have been given in which two or more coroners wrangled over the same corpse for the sake of the fees. Under the law as it is, no inquest can be held until the coroner has made an affidavit that he believes the deceased did not die from natural causes but from violence or neglect. This would seem to the ordinary layman to cover the cases in which inquests were really necessary. The change in the law will vastly effect some practitioners in the large cities who depend to a great extent on inquests for a respectable income.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack us wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. —Sold only in packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœpathic Chemists, London, Eng." n4dw9md

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and purely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. TOBACCO.

Authorative Opinions.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In last week's WITNESS I read a letter from John Dougall, of New York, on tobacco, every word of which I endorse, and with your permission will add my testimony to Mr. Dougall's letter.

"Were it possible," says Dr. Rush, "for a being who had resided on our globe to visit the inhabitants of a planet where reason governed, and to tell them that a vile, poisonous weed was in use among the inhabitants of the globe he had left, which afforded no nourishment; that this was injurious to health and life, and that the use of it was attended with a considerable loss of time and property, the account would be thought incredible."

Dr. Jackson, of Dansville, New York, says: "As a physician I have for a long time entertained the opinion that the use of tobacco by our people is far more deleterious in its effects upon their health than is the use of alcoholic drinks. Tobacco may justly be classed as one of the most powerful poisons known to man."

"Tobacco," says Mr. Graham, "is one of the most powerful and deadly poisons in the vegetable kingdom. Its effect on the living tissues of the animal system are always to destroy life."

Mr. Dougall in his letter says that "the two practices, smoking and drinking, are nearly akin." Dr. Jackson corroborates that statement: "These two poisons, therefore, stand over against each other. The one as a stimulant or excitant, the other as a narcotic or depressant—they work in each other's service—tobacco playing an original part in the destructive processes, and alcohol completing the ruin." Enquiry on a very large scale into the habits of men who have been known as habitual drinkers of alcoholic liquors, have settled the point conclusively that their appetites for strong drink were created and made clamorous by their previous use of tobacco, whose depressing effects upon their nervous systems were such as to establish an instinctive or impulsive desire for a offset. I have never heard of but one habitual drunkard who had never used tobacco. I have never yet known a single man who was an habitual user of alcoholic drinks who was not a tobacco liker."

Says Dr. Stephenson: "Chewing and smoking tobacco exhaust the salivary glands of their secretions; thus producing dryness and thirst. Hence it is, that after the use of the cigar and the cud, brandy, whiskey, or some other spirit is called for."

Dr. Brown says: "The use of tobacco produces a dryness or huskiness of the mouth; thus creating a thirst, which in many cases, is not satiated with anything short of alcoholic drinks."

Says Dr. Woodward: "I have supposed that tobacco was the most ready and common stepping stone to the use of spirituous liquors which leads to intemperance."

Dr. William Alcott (I quote largely from Alcott's "Pamphlet on Tobacco") says:—"My own observation would confirm the idea of a connection between tobacco and stimulating drinks. Though there are many honorable exceptions, it is nevertheless, the general rule that they go together, and that is injurious to the voice."

Dr. Mussey says that the habitual use of tobacco, in any of the forms of snuff, cud or cigar, will sometimes produce weakness, tremulousness, &c.

"It impairs the appetite," says Dr. Rush. "It destroys digestion. It must be obvious to the most unprejudiced mind, that the immense quantity of saliva expended during the use of the cud and pipe, retards the digestive process." On another occasion, he says, "Physicians meet with thousands of cases of dyspepsia, connected with the use of tobacco in some of its forms."

Dr. Cullen says, "I have found all the symptoms of dyspepsia produced by snuffing."

Dr. Hosack says "That the great increase of dyspepsia among us is attributable in part to the use of tobacco."

"It excites indigestion," says Professor Hitchcock.

That it produces thirst and leads to intemperance, has already been shown. That tobacco leads to various diseases, we have the most undoubted testimony. The authorities on this subject are exceedingly numerous and highly respectable. Among foreign chemists, physicians, and other scientific men, whose experiments and statements go to establish the poisonuous character of tobacco, are the highly respectable names of Conwell, Vauquelin, Brodie, Berzelius, Hermstadt, Posselt, Reimann, Fontana, Albinus, Henry, Hooper, Boutron, Rees, Buchner, and Wilson. Among Americans are—Franklin, Rush, Silliman, Wood, Bache, Bell, Condie, Mussey, Graham, McAllister, Waterhouse, Woodward, Ives, and Eberle. I shall not attempt to follow out and present in detail the numerous experiments of these distinguished men. A few only will be given:

By the ordinary process of distillation an alkaline principle is procured from tobacco, called nicotin, one drop of which is sufficient to destroy life in a dog of moderate size.

Dr. Brown says, "The symptoms which are liable to arise from the habitual use of tobacco, whether chewed, smoked, or snuffed, may be any of the following: Dizziness, headache, faintness, pain at the pit of the stomach, weakness tremulousness, hoarseness of the voice, disturbed sleep, incubus or nightmare, irritability of temper, seasons of mental depression, epileptic fits, and sometimes mental derangement."

Indeed the death of the French poet, Santa Sauteuil, was caused by a thoughtless person emptying the contents of a snuff box into his wine. As soon as he had swallowed the draught he was attacked with excessive pains, of which he died in fourteen hours.

The late Rev. Dr. S. Copper, by the constant use of snuff, brought on a disorder of the head, which it is thought to have ended his days. A very large quantity of hardened Scotch snuff was found after death, between the external nose and the brain.

"Again," says Dr. Alcott, "The German physicians state in their periodicals that of the deaths occurring among men in that country, between eighteen and thirty-five years of age, one half die from the effects of smoking."

Agriculturists say that it impoverishes the soil on which it grows more than any other plant in the vegetable kingdom.

"It impairs," says Dr. Stevenson, "the functions of the brain, clouds the understanding, and enfeebles the memory."

Dr. Cullen said he knew several instances in which the use of tobacco produced "loss of memory."

Says Dr. Abott, "In nothing, however, are we more certainly injured by the use of tobacco than in memory."

Gov. Sullivan says, "It has never failed to render me dull and heavy, and to weaken the power of my mind in analyzing subjects and defining ideas."

Says Prof. Hitchcock, "They (alcohol and tobacco) tend directly to weaken the organs; and we cannot take a more effectual course to cloud the understanding, weaken the memory, unfix the attention, and confuse all the mental operations, than by thus entailing on ourselves the whole hateful train of nervous maladies. These can bow down to the earth an intellect of giant strength, and make it grind in bondage like Samson shorn of his locks and deprived of his vision."

Dr. Fowler says, "The actual loss of intellectual power which tobacco has hitherto occasioned, and is still causing, in this Christian land, is immense.

King James I., who in 1600 wrote a treatise against it, says that it is "hateful to the nose, baneful to the brain, and dangerous to the lungs, its black stinking fumes resembling the horrible Stygian smoke of the pit that is bottomless."

Dr. Mussey estimates the weekly expense of a single smoker, in Cuba, at eighty-seven cents. In this Dominion of ours there are many families that consume at least twenty-five cents a week, throughout the year. This in forty years would amoun tto $520; or if placed at compound interest from year to year, to more than $2090.

Let us set our faces as flint against this fashionable nuisance—place ourselves against the use of this poison. The rising generation is being ruined by it; and God who is eternally just, and whose laws are His testimonies on behalf of right doing, and everywhere against the doing of wrong, will assuredly visit the sins of the fathers, on this respect, upon the children to the third and fourth generation.

ANDREW MONROE.

HAMILTON.

At No. 36 James St., in the Ambitious City of Hamilton, the attention of the traveller will be attracted by the splendid large Drug Store of Messrs. Archdale Wilson & Co., the manufacturers and sole proprietors of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. This most popular cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Loss of Voice, &c., is having a most astonishing run. Even at this season, when diseases of the respiratory organs are comparatively rare, orders are coming in for half gross and gross lots, from druggists who have sold out of last year's stocks; and the proprietors have found it necessary to purchase new and improved apparatus to enable them to turn out the Compound of Wild Cherry in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

KNOW THYSELF

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR, SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundreth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail postpaid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission to JOS. S. FISHER, president; W. I. P. INGRAHAM, vice-president; W. PAINE, M. D.; C. S. GAUNTT, M. D.; H. J. DOUCET, M. D.; R. H. KLINE, M. D.; J. R. HOLCOMB, M. The Pacific Railway.

The present state of the Canada Pacific Railway is summed up from the report of the Minister of Railways and Canals as follows:—"So far as the present measurements admit the determination of the distance, the total length from the eastern initial point at Lake Nipissing to Fort William, Lake Superior, is estimated at 565 miles, and from thence to Burrard Inlet, at the Pacific ocean, at 1,966 miles, the total being 2,531 miles. The actual work of construction is as follows: The line from Fort William to Selkirk, 400 miles, is in different stages of completion. From Fort William to English river, 113 miles, the permanent way is completed but not ballasted. From English river to Eagle river, 118 miles, and from Eagle river to Keewatin, sixty-seven miles, the work is under contract since March last. From Keewatin to Cross Lake, thirty-six miles, the work is unusually heavy. The whole of the work from Lake Superior to Selkirk is of a comparatively heavy character. From Cross Lake to Selkirk, seventy-five miles, the track has been laid and partially ballasted. The engine house at Selkirk to hold the locomotives is nearly completed. West of Selkirk there are 100 miles of railway, with a branch to Winnipeg, under contract since August, 1879, and tenders will soon be called for 100 miles from the western boundary of Manitoba to Bird Tail creek. The Pembina branch still requires some ballasting, but is in good order. The Canada Central—part of the Canadian Pacific—is laid and ballasted to the forty-third mile. The bridging and grading have been carried on to the sixty-second mile. The subsidy for this portion of the line is $1,400,000. The total length of the line is estimated at 142 miles. In British Columbia, the Yelekamloops section is under contract for 127 miles. To sum up, the total length of the Canadian Pacific Railway under process of construction and completion is 735 miles. The largest part of the expenditures on the sections recently put under contract will not appear till next year's reports are published; but the total expenditure up to date is $12,444,537."

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

How St. Catharines is Affected by the National Policy.

The St. Catharines News in referring to Mr. Rykerts assertion in his speech on the budget that his constituents were satisfied with the National Policy, says:

In regard to the effects of the National Policy in Lincoln, we may mention the closing of the Union Foundry that once employed fifty men, the Spoke Works with a pay list of sixty men; the Dolphin Works, 20 men; the shipyards—Shickluna, 200 men, and Simpson, 75 men; Sullivan's Planing Mill, 20 men; McCormick's, Dyer's, Sword's, Dolson's, Riddle's Switzer's, Dougan's, Jare's, Badgley's, Ness Bros., John Sutton's, Wilson Bros'., and others, builders, not a single man of whom, with the exception of Mr. Dougan, who has three or four men employed, is now employing labor, and the most of whom have come to financial grief. Indeed there is not a single building enterprise unscathed in the city by commercial depression. And besides these, G. & N. Oille, who a short time ago employed 60 men, now have 10 on their roll; Abell Bros. have been reduced from 15 men to three men; Holmes & Greenwood from 15 to three men; Wales from 12 to three men. And dark as this picture is, it is by no means complete. Not less than 2,500 inhabitants have left the city during the past eighteen months for the United States—19 families, representing about 150 people, within the past month, by the Great Western Railway alone. Rents have been reduced on all unleased property in the city fully 50 per cent. There are not less than 400 vacant dwellings and places of busines. As against this most painful revelation of depression, we have only to record the establishment of a single new enterprize within the limits of the city, viz.: a Cotton Batton Factory capable of a business of from $12,000 to $15,000 a year, and employing some six or eight men and boys. We defy Mr. Rykert to enlarge upon this list of advantages, or to gainsay a single item of information here placed on record. It is true that the Saw Factory, especially protected by the Government Tariff, has been able to maintain its prosperity, though there has been no appreciable increase in the number of hands employed or the amount of wages paid. The Axe Factory is also in operation, though employing many men less than three and a half years ago.

Workingmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

FROM KITCHEN TO THRONE.—We read of peculiar things happening in life, a wise man should be surprised at nothing. In like manner a comely and modest woman has often a fortune in her face, if she knows how beauty should become her. To wit: During the troubles in the reign of King Charles I. a country girl came up to London in search of a place as servant maid, but not succeeding, she applied herself to carrying out beer from a brewhouse, and was one of those then called tub women. The brewer, observing a well-looking girl in this low occupation, took her into his family as a servant, and, after a while, she behaving with so much prudence and decorum, he married her. He died when she was yet a young woman, and left her a large fortune. The business of the brewery was dropped, and the young woman was recommended to Mr. Hyde as a gentleman of skill in the law to settle her affairs. Hyde (who was afterwards the great Earl of Clarendon), finding the widow's fortune very considerable, married her. Of this marriage there was no other issue than a daughter, who was afterwards the wife of James II., and mother of Mary and Anne, Queen of England.

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

The National Irish Land League has sent an appeal to all the local branches in Ireland to give Parnell a fitting welcome, and to light bonfires on the hills and in the towns throughout Ireland next Sunday evening.

The House of Commons has adjourned until the 24th inst.

Joseph Cowen, Home Rule member of Parliament, was crushed by the crowd and severely injured while entering the hall at Newcastle-on-Tyne to address his constituents.

The Times says nothing can be more worthless than the conjectures which are put forward by the partisans of either side concerning the results of the approaching Parliamentary elections. The Ballot Act and the new registrations under the extended franchise have made a great change in the character of the constituencies. Political organization cannot evade the effect of secret voting, nor make sure beforehand of results, in spite of great changes in population and public opinion.

William Beckwith, champion swimmer, starts for America at the end of April. He will offer to swim any American or any one in the world a match of from one to twenty miles.

The Consul-General at Vienna, February 18th, reports a remarkably cold winter in Australia, the coldest of the last fifty years. The lowest is 4° below zero. In consequence lakes are frozen that are never known to have been closed before.

A despatch from Berlin says that in consequence of the Pope's friendly attitude it is probable that direct diplomatic relations between Germany and the Vatican will shortly be resumed.

Nothing has yet transpired as to the measures which the French Government propose to adopt in regard to the Jesuits and other unauthorized congregations, nor is it probable that there will be any formal announcement of them until the Chambers resume their sitttings after the Easter holidays.

Attempted Suicide in St. Catharine's.

ST. CATHARINES, March 20.—A case of attempted suicide took place in this city on Friday afternoon. Mr. W. H. Brownlee, jr., aged about 36 years, went into the law office of Messrs. McClure & Gilleland, and shot himself in the left breast with a revolver. The ball struck one of his ribs and glancing upwards lodged near the shoulder blade. Drs. Sullivan and Downey extracted the ball and pronounced the wound not fatal. The cause of the rash act is not known. Some attribute it to accident and others to troubles arising from endorsed notes.

A Lady in Montreal Blows Out the Gas.

MONTREAL, March 20.—A lady guest in the Ottawa hotel, here, blew out the gas last night in her room, and but for one of the employees in the house discovering the escape in time, she would have been suffocated. As it is, she suffers considerably, and is not out of danger.

For British Columbia.

OTTAWA, March 20.—A number of British engineers left by the St. Lawrence & Ottawa Railway last night, for British Columbia.

The contract for the Pile Bridge, Winnipeg, has been given to Messrs. Chas. Whitehead and Ruttan, who will commence the work immediately.

ICE AT HESPELER.—There has been a lively time of it at Hespeler in the matter of getting out ice for the American market. The ice was bought for Judd & Co., Detroit, and was shipped under the superintendance of a foreman named Newbry. This agent, after shipping a number of cars, left ostensibly to go on to Guelph to draw some money to pay the men and teams employed; but as he failed to return as promised the men thought they were about to be cheated out of their earnings, and the loaded cars at the station were detained. However, on Friday morning Mr. Judd himself appeared upon the scene and promptly paid up everything. Since then, some Buffalo men have been operating in the neighborhood, and a large quantity of ice has been shipped.—Galt Reporter.

What is Being Done About Manufactures?

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—It will interest many of your readers at the present moment to learn what progress, if any, has been made by the committee appointed at a late meeting of the Property Owners Association to aid in the establishment of new manufactures in our midst?

It was reported in your paper a few weeks ago, that a sub-committee of the "City Council" had also been named for the same purpose, and instructed to co-operate with the Citizen's Committee above referred to. Now, Mr. Editor, will you kindly inform an anxious public what progress has been made by this Joint Committee, to what extent have they prosecuted their enquiries necessary on which either the Council or a meeting of citizens called for the purpose, can take action, or are we to drift along as we have been doing all this winter, "expecting something to turn up?" If anything is to be done, it should be at once, before our working people have all left the city.

Yours truly, CITIZEN.

Local News.

KNIGHTS OF MACCABEES.—The upshot of the difficulty among the Knights of Maccabees at Buffalo has been to remove the Great Tent of the Order back to London.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh southwesterly winds, cloudy to partly cloudy weather with showers or snow flurries in some localities. No decided change in temperature.

CHECKERS.—Mr. Leslie, of Georgetown, has accepted Mr. Murdoch McKenzie's challenge to play a game of checkers on Good Friday, under the rules laid down in the second edition of Anderson.

THE Gospel Temperance Club will be favored with a special address from the Rev. Jas. Howie, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. All are welcome. It will be interesting.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—As may be seen by advertisement in another column the closing exercises and distribution of prizes at the Agricultural College, takes place on the 30th inst. The presence of the farmers of the County of Wellington and citizens is respectfully asked.

THE young ladies of St. Andrew's Church have formed an Association, and held their first regular meeting for work last Wednesday afternoon, at Mr. John McCrea's. They intend holding a fancy fair the first week in December, similar to the one held last St. Valentine's day.

DOUBLE WORK.—The city is to be assessed in about six weeks for the second time this year. The assessors had just completed their work when an order to take the school census came from Toronto. The assessors have about six weeks office work, and when that is completed they will start taking the school census.

SHIPMENTS FROM GUELPH.—Mr. Harry Murton to-day shipped 1,000 bags of oat meal to Glasgow. During the week he has also shipped 500 barrels of peas and split peas to the West Indies. We are glad to learn that he is doing such a thriving business.

HOME SONGS.—We have received from the Toronto News Company the following songs bound in one cover and sold at the remarkably low price of 25 cents:—"Drifting with the tide," "Keep pretty flowers on my grave," "Will you remember me?" "The old log cabin in the dell," "Roses underneath the snow," "Kathleen of Kilkenny." In some of the songs the words are very good and the music pretty.

COLLISION.—While Mr. H. W. Reid was driving towards the city on the Brock Road this (Saturday) morning, and when about two miles this side of Aberfoyle his buggy was run into and smashed by a lumber waggon, belonging to Mr. John Hanlan. The shafts of the buggy were broken and the buggy otherwise damaged. Mr. Hanlan offers to pay for half expense of repairs which Mr. Reid will not accept, and threatens to bring an action to recover the whole amount of the damages.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The Young Men's Association in connection with this church held their weekly meeting last night. There was a good attendance. Mr. Wm. Guthrie, President occupied the chair. The programme which was successfully carried out consisted of an essay by G. Gordon on "The advantages and disadvantages of city and country life." A reading by Mr. Kelso from Mark Twain's "Innocents abroad" and a debate on "Resolved that ladies should be admitted to the learned professions." The merits of the question were discussed by James Findlay in the affirmative and Wm. Gordon in the negative. Decision was given in favor of the negative.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, GALT.—Rev. Mr. Smith, of Guelph, and Middlemiss, of Elora, have been appointed to preach in St. Andrew's Church, Galt, on Sabbath, the 28th inst., and Sabbath, April 4th, when they will give notice to the congregation of a meeting of the members and adherents, to be held on Monday evening, April 5th, for the purpose of taking into consideration the present position and circumstances of the congregation, and deciding with reference to a resolution passed at a meeting of the congregation to the effect that St. Andrew's congregation amalgamate with the other Presbyterian churches in that town.

THE STRATFORD "BEACON."—We were very glad to receive the Beacon on time after the scorching the office got on Monday night, and to find it looking as nice and neat as ever. Mr. Mattheson has great pluck and enterprise else he never would have been able to get it out in such good shape in so short a time. The announcement is made that the printing office will remain where it was, and that the bookstore attached to the office will have to undergo extensive repairs. We trust Mr. Matheson will soon get over this temporary upset. The Beacon says that the losses by the late fire having not been adjusted, it is of course impossible to give any correct figures. It may be said, however, that the value of the property wiped out of existence and damaged reaches well up in the thousands, there being the consolation that all were pretty well insured.

ASSAULT AT MORRISTON.—An assault occurred at Morriston on Thursday night, which arose through a dispute between a man named Flodding and Wm. Wiser, as to who should see a lady home from an entertainment. Flodding started to walk home with the lady when Wiser attacked him and assaulted him brutally. The case was investigated on Friday before Messrs. Leslie and Smith, J. P.'s at Morriston, and a fine of $8 and costs imposed.

POLICE COURT.

The Assault at the East Ward School.

Before Mr. T. W. Saunders. P. M.

SATURDAY, March 20.

In the report of the last meeting of the School Board, it will have been seen that the Board decided to prosecute Mrs. Cordery for assaulting Miss Jeannie McLay, teacher at the East Ward School, in the event of her not apologizing. The case was heard at Police Court to-day, (Saturday) Mr. Murton, chairman of the School Board, appearing for the prosecution, and Mrs. Cordery in her own defence. Both Miss McLay and the defendant were examined. From the evidence it appeared that on the day of the assault, which occurred about three weeks ago, Mrs. Cordery hearing that her adopted child was being whipped, went to the school in a passion, and, Miss McLay says, after calling her a brute and other names, clutched her by the throat, but did not hurt her. She says she did not strike the girl on the head nor give her a black eye as Mrs. Cordery alleges, but because the girl would not hold out her hand to be whipped, struck her on the back with the strap and then slapped her five times on the hand with it. Mrs. Cordery on the contrary, testified that she met her adopted daughter coming from the school with a black eye, and that she herself then asked Miss McLay why she had whipped the child so severely, and said she must have been a brute to do so. Mrs. Cordery denies taking Miss McLay by the throat, but admits that she put her hand on Miss McLay's shoulder to detain her. At the conclusion of the evidence, Mr. Murton stated that the reason the action was brought was to make an example of the defendant, and thus prevent a repetition of such conduct at the schools. After summing up the evidence, the Magistrate imposed a fine of 50 cents and $2.60.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.—William Wood, arrested on Friday night for being disorderly at the Royal Hotel, pleaded guilty and was fined $3 and costs.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—Rev. J. C. Smith and Dr. Brock will attend the General Hospital next week.

HORSE SHOW.—The matter of holding a horse show in the city shortly is under consideration, and doubtless will be carried to a successful issue.

A MORRISTON firm are filling an ice house in the village and intend shipping ice by the Credit Valley Railway next summer.

HAND HURT.—A day or two ago while Mr. Walter West was cutting up a calf, he drew the knife he was using across the front of his left hand, inflicting a very severe gash.

COAL OIL.—Mr. John Davis, Inspector of Inland Revenue, was in London on Monday. There is considerable excitement in that city among oilmen concerning the reports of crooked oil being sent from there.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.—The report of this entertainment came too late for to-day. Parties furnishing reports of whatever kind should not leave them over till the last minute.

IRISH RELIEF FUND.—Those appointed to collect in the city for the Irish relief fund do not seem to be doing a great deal in that direction. The only money recieved by the City Clerk for the fund is about $185 from Messrs. Coffee and Laing, collected in St. Patrick's Ward. Besides these gentlemen and Messrs. McElderry Mays, who have collected some in St. John's Ward, the other collectors have done nothing.

SHEEP WORRIED.—On Thursday night twenty sheep belonging to John D. McWilliams, lot 17, concession 5, Puslinch, were worried by dogs. Eleven of the animals were found dead and the remainde were terribly torn. Mr. McWilliams has made application to the township Council for the payment of his loss. If the application is refused it is understood he will bring an action to recover the damages, on the ground that as the township Council collects a dog tax, it is responsible for the injury done by dogs.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—There was a good attendance at the fortnightly meeting of the Young Men's Association of Chalmers' Church last evening. After the ordinary routine business, Mr. Panton, President, delivered the sixth and last lecture of the series on "Geology." The lecture was interesting and was listened to with marked attention. At the conclusion the Association took the opportunity to present Mr. James Ritchie, caretaker of the Church, with five dollars, as a recognition of his services.

THE LATE SISTER URSULA.—The funeral of the late Sister Ursula took place this morning from St. Joseph's Hospital to the Church of Our Lady and was largely attended. The procession was met at the entrance to the church by Rev. Father Hamel together with a number of acoylites. The remains having been placed in the chancel, requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Bardon, of Brantford, assisted by Rev. P. J. Maddigan, Brantford, as deacon, and Rev. J. S. O'Leary, Hamilton, as sub-deacon. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Father Hamel. There were present in the congregation Vicar-General Heenan, of the diocese, brother of the deceased Sister, Rev. Fathers McNulty, Dumortier, and Nolin. At the conclusion of the service, the remains were interred under the new church.

The H. & N. W. R. Co. are about to start running grain trains from Collingwood. The Collingwood elevators are full, over 1,000,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat being in store, or about 2,500 car loads.

Mr. Wallace has another series of Rag Baby resolutions on the paper, which will doubtless be strangled in the due course of time. The debate, however, cannot come on until after Easter.

A by-law was voted on on Friday by the ratepayers of Kincardine for a bonus of $10,000 to Messrs. I. J. Fisher & Co., for the manufacture of the steel horse collar. The by-law was carried by 102 majority.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Sarnia Canadian says:—"Our own versatile" Tom White does not promise to make much of a figure in Parliament. He is a facile and pleasant after dinner speaker but in the House he is considered rather a light weight.

The majority report of the U. S. Congress Committee on Chinese immigration declares that unless some decisive action is taken by Congress on the Chinese question there is danger to be apprehended regarding the welfare and solidity of the Government of California.

The English speaking civil servants in some of the departments—especially that of Public Works—are indignant at the policy of French domination which is being inaugurated by Mr. Langevin. They say that before long there will not be an English speaking clerk in some of the departments.

A letter received in Ottawa from one of the agricultural instructors to Indians, states that he has "seven hundred hungry Indians" to feed, and that already this winter, up to the date of mailing, he has distributed among them sixty-six bags of flour, seven barrels of pork, twenty-one hundred weight of beef, besides a quantity of other provisions.

The Government have received information to the effect that American cattle will be permitted the privilege of transit through Canada from one American port to another. Resting places for food and water will also be provided at Lynn. This will effect a very large saving to American shippers. The cattle, however, will have to be slaughtered at Liverpool.

Thursday was a gala day among the brethren of the A. F. & A. M. of the thriving town of St. Thomas. The occasion was the celebration of the dedication ceremonies of a new hall to the mysteries of the ancient Order. The ceremony was performed by M. W. B. James Henderson, G. M. of Canada.

J. J. Hawkins is beginning to get his reward for his subserviency to the present Government. The Brantford Expositor says that he has had his son and a brother-in-law appointed to offices in the Customs, although the work could be quite easily performed without them. This abuse of patronage ought to be investigated.

The London Advertiser announces that the humbug of "N. P." industry is heard at the Ontario Car Works. Ninety men only have been employed since New Year's. The full strength of the works is 340, and this number was employed there up to last fall. This is one of the blessings of protection; 250 idle men from one factory alone!

Mr. Thomas White has a habit of interrupting—and sometimes coarsely—gentlemen on the Opposition side who happen to have the floor. On Friday afternoon Mr. Cameron, of Huron, was quoting the opinion of a certain newspaper, when Mr. White interrupted by shouting across the floor that the editor of that paper was the biggest liar in the country. "There is one exception," sarcastically rejoined Mr. Cameron, and it took Mr. White several minutes to realize why all eyes were turned in his direction."

"Oh, indeed, it is a very busy time with us," said charming Miss Fitzjoy. "There are a great many services to attend, and then we have so much shopping to do just now." "Pardon me, but is not this the season for humiliation—" "Why certainly, John, you darling; but you see if we should fail to come out on Easter in the new styles, the season of humiliation you speak of would continue longer and be much more dreadful."

When any office-hunter puts himself into the hands of his friends, and his friends don't set him down before a wood pile and a sawbuck, they are not doing their duty—not by a long shot.

A gentleman having occasion to praise a kind-hearted Irish woman for her good deeds, said to her: "Well, well, Kate, if there is a heaven in the next world you will get to it." As quick as lightning came the reply, with all the heartiness of the race: "God bless ye, Mr. P. An' sure, if I do he gate open for you."

The Salvation Army.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Commissioner Railton of the Salvation Army called at the Mayor's office yesterday, and presented to Mayor Cooper "the ultimatum of the Salvation Army." At its head is a coat of arms with the motto, "Blood and fire." The paper, after setting forth that it is essential that the operations of the army be carried on in the streets, and adding that the Mayor has refused permission to so conduct the campaign, says: Now, therefore, I hereby most respectfully request and require, in the name of the Lord God of Hosts, that before six o'clock on the evening of Thursday next, the 18th day of March, 1880, an engagement be delivered to me at the above address from the government of this city to permit any person acting under my direction to proclaim salvation in the streets upon the same terms and conditions under which permission to do so would be granted to any other citizen whatsoever. And I hereby further give you notice that failing the delivery of such engagement before the above named time, I shall forthwith remove the headquarters of this army in America to some city where equal privileges are enjoyed by all citizens, ordained or not ordained, in the matter of serving the Lord and saving souls. The Mayor said that the Corporation ordinance must remain in force. The Commissioner said that he would not swerve from the terms of the ultimatum.

The Fate of a New York Murderer and Bigamist.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 19.—Wm. B. Pierson was executed on a gibbet to-day at Genesee for the murder of Leman Bradley Withey at Avon, February 8th, 1877. The victim of the homicide died under peculiar circumstances, and careful chemical analysis of the vital organs in his body resulted in the discovery of a very large proportion of arsenic therein. There was abundant evidence, circumstantial and direct, tending to establish collusion between Rosetta Withey and Pierson to poison the blind husband of the former, and as the couple eloped on the 20th of the same month in which he died, and were married in Jackson, Mich., on the 26th, there was plainly enough a motive for the deadly deed alleged. This motive was the more apparent from the fact that Pierson already had a wife and five children in Livingstone county, and assumed in the new alliance full responsibility for the crime of bigamy. For the cowardly poisoning of Withey, Pierson, who was jointly indicted with Mrs. Withey, was tried first. He was convicted, and sentenced to be hanged at Genesee April 19th, 1878. His case was subsequently taken by appeal to the General Term and Court of Appeals. Before these tribunals the conviction was affirmed in every respect, and he was remanded to the Livingstone Oyer and Terminer Court to be resentenced by Justice Dwight. This latter sentence was executed to-day. From the outset Pierson stoutly maintained that he was innocent of the murder, though he has frankly admitted his bigamous and terribly imprudent marriage with Mrs. Withey. Strangely enough Mrs. Withey, as the principal to the crime, was tried and acquitted in July, 1878. This fact led six of the jurors who convicted Pierson to sign a petition with two thousand other citizens of Livingstone county, asking Governor Cornell to commute the sentence to one of life imprisonment. The Governor refused to interfere in the case, which had been so carefully and fully tried, and so emphatically sustained by the appellate tribunals.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 19.

The attention of the House was directed by Mr. Gault to a rumoured misappropriation by the English Tory Government of the $100,000 granted to purchase food for the relief of the starving poor of Ireland by the Canadian Parliament. From telegraphic reports it appears that the Imperial Government have determined to expend the money sent for the purchase of food in the procuring of fishing boats and fishing tackle for the fishermen of Ireland.

A discussion participated in by Sir Leonard Tilley and Messrs. Anglin and McCuaig (Prince Edward) ensued, during which Sir Leonard promised to enquire into the statements, and ascertain their foundation.

A few days ago a petition was received, suggesting that the Dominion pecuniarily assist by a loan the immigration of the distressed Irish people to the North-West Territories. A reference of this petition to the Committee on Immigration and Colonization to enquire into and report on the feasibility of such a scheme was moved by Mr. Ryan (Marquette).

Mr. Blake suggested that the motion involved a monetary expenditure, and was out of order. This opinion was sustained by the Premier, who added that the Government could not consent to the proposition at the present time. The motion was withdrawn.

The debate on the Budget was resumed by Mr. Weldon, of St. John, N. B. He referred to the injurious effects of the tariff upon the city of St. John and the Province of New Brunswick, and argued that the imposition of this policy was a gross violation of the pledges made to induce the Province to enter into Confederation, one of which was that the tariff should be moderate and for revenue purposes alone.

Mr. Douil, as the representative of a coal producing county, argued that the tariff had benefitted the coal mine workers, but he admitted that the duty on coal was not quite so high as it should be; still, the concession made this session would be beneficial.

Messrs. Bourbeau and Robertson (Hamilton) continued the debate on the Ministerial side, and spoke until recess, after which several private bills were advanced a stage, including Mr. McCarthy's Bill to define clause twelve of the Act incorporating the Northern Railway Company.

A number of reasons were advanced and illustrations cited by Mr. Casey to show that the Government's much vaunted protective policy was abortive so far as fostering native industries was concerned.

Mr. Hesson, much moved by the, as he claimed, erroneous arguments advanced by the Opposition, gave the House the benefit of his judgments.

Mr. Cockburn (Muskoka) made a few common sense suggestions as to the cause of the increased activity in commercial circles last fall, which activity, he claimed, was entirely due to natural causes.

Statistics of Insolvency.

The statistics of insolvency as collected by the Department of Agriculture make the following exhibit for 1879:—

ONTARIO—Insolvent estates, 788; liabilities as furnished by insolvents, $8,612,907; claims proved, $6,344,815.

QUEBEC—Insolvent estates, 638; liabilities as furnished by insolvents, $13,650,914; claims proved, $9,360,442.

NEW BRUNSWICK—Insolvent estates, 85; liabilities as furnished by insolvents, $991,329; claims proved, $712,970.

NOVA SCOTIA—Insolvent estates, 177; liabilities as furnished by insolvents, $2,542,557; claims proved, $1,811,131.

OTHER PROVINCES—Insolvent estates, 74; liabilities as furnished by insolvents, $974,658; claims proved, $769,270.

Young housewife: "Dear me! What very small eggs for twopence-halfpenny each! It seems quite extravagant to take them!" Affable dairy woman: "Well, yes, m'm, so it does. But I've always noticed that new-laid eggs are small."

Daily Mercury.

SATURDAY EVNG. MARCH 20, 1880.

About Manufactures.

We publish a letter to-day from a "Citizen," asking if we know what has been done by the Joint Committee—composed of members of the Property Owners Association and the City Council—which was appointed to consider the best means for bringing in or fostering manufactures in the City. In answer to this question all we can say is that as far as we can learn nothing has been done in the direction indicated, and we question very much if the sub-committee appointed by the Council have ever met with the committee chosen by the Proderty Owners Association. While all the members of the Council profess to be anxious to do something in any direction which will benefit the City, we have yet to learn that anything of an really practical character has been done, and the fear now is that this movement—which was meant for the best, and which if it was only followed up by earnest and united effort would be productive of great good—will remain among the good intentions, and be quietly shelved for the balance of the year.

We should like that this Joint Committee would get to work at once. They have no time to lose. Neither they nor our business men can shut their eyes to the fact that Guelph is not what it was a year ago. They are well aware that many of our mechanics are leaving weekly, that none come in to fill their places, and that this depletion in our population is having a sensible effect on business. We have no wish to magnify complaints, or exaggerate the condition of things, but we appeal to every observing man in this City if our statement is not correct, and we defy any one to come forward and contradict it. In the face of such depressing and discouraging circumstances what are we to do? In this emergency we have to look to the men whom we have sent as our representatives at the Council Board, along with other prominent citizens, who are anxious for the City's welfare, and willing to co-operate in every way with the Council with a view of improving our position. But this cannot be done by simply passing resolutions, and allowing them to remain a dead letter. The people of this City look to this Joint Committee for some practical work. They can at least meet and discuss the whole subject if they cannot do anything more. Less than this will not satisfy the ratepayers, and the sooner they show that they are honest and sincere in their desire for the welfare of the City the better.

If the Government would copy the scheme of the British Ministry for issuing a postal currency, so as to facilitate the transmission of small currency by mail, they would confer a favor on the community.

The London correspondent of the Manchester Times says:—That there exists at the English Court the most intense antipathy to the French Republic is undoubted. I have been privileged lately to see a letter from one of the most eminent men in England, in which he expresses the deliberate opinion that one of the strongest wishes of the Court is to join an alliance with Germany and Austria against Russia, France and Italy, and in which he speaks from personal knowledge of the dislike with which the Court—that is, the royal family and their entourage—regard the Republic of France.

A circular has been issued by the U. S. Consul-General, in which the following official statement is made in regard to the authentication of invoices: Collectors of Customs are prohibited from admitting to entry goods upon an invoice authenticated by a consular officer other than that in whose district the goods were purchased and shipped from. * * By the place of shipment is meant the place where the merchandise has been manufactured, finished or finally prepared for exportation, and when the journey to the U. S. commences, and is not necessarily the place where it is actually put on board ship.

Says the Berlin Telegraph:—"Were we not informed by the Tory organ of this town a few days ago, that there were then some forty-nine applicants for the vacant Collectorship at this port, we could not have believed the statement. By this time there may be double that number. After this the Tories should forever cease to upbraid Reformers as "hungry Grits." We have long been of the opinion that office and power, not a desire for the welfare and good government of the country, was, and still is the main object of the Tories, but now it is confirmed by the statements of their organ in this County. Poor Mr. Kranz, he certainly deserves the prayers both of the clergy and laity to sustain him in his very trying position."

In his speech on the budget, Mr. Mackenzie nailed a Tupperism in this style: The hon. member for Cumberland (Sir C. Tupper) stated, in the most pronounced manner, that in 1876 my hon. friend (Sir Richard Cartwright), and the late Government had determined upon the introduction of a higher tariff, and they were deterred from doing so by a deputation headed by Mr. Jones, who represented to the Government his determination to oppose the Government if such an increase was effected. I have to tell the hon. gentleman that his story is wholly imaginary. (Hear, hear.) The Government never determined upon any such policy. (Hear, hear.) The Government were never visited by Mr. Jones with any such message. (Hear, hear.) There was a question at the time as to the policy of obtaining additional revenue or allowing the past deficit to accrue, and as a matter of course, there were discussions amongst those who might anticipate the purpose of the Government to impose a higher rate on imports. I hope the hon. gentleman will not in future repeat that statement. (Hear, hear and laughter.)

There are not so many unemployed workingmen in Ontario now as there were a few days ago. Because all that can get away are leaving the Province.

The first volume of criminal statistics for the Dominion of Canada are issued. It covers the years 1876, 1877, and 1878. The summaries for the Provinces are altogether too detailed for publication in abstract form. A glance at the returns, however, show that the uneducated and elementarily educated classes are overwhelmingly in the majority among criminals.

At the meeting of the Committee on Immigration and Colonization on Friday, Mr. Farrow (Conservative) complained that the selection of tenant farmer delegates was badly made, because the finest agricultural districts in England and Ireland were unrepresented. He might have said the same thing of the Scottish delegates, with one or two exceptions.

The Committee on Immigration and Colonization met on Friday and examined Mr. Lowe, Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, relative to immigration matters. He stated that the arrivals last year amounted to 610,000, principally of the immigration class. He declined to give the amount which the Government had paid to the Allan Company in addition to that paid by the immigrants. The expenses of the delegates who visited the country last year amounted to $10,000. He anticipated most beneficial results from the reports of those delegates. 10,000 immigrants came into Canada from the United States last year, but he had no means of telling how many went from Canada to the United States.

It was agreed by the Senate to send a message to the House of Commons to request that they will concur in the appointment of a joint Committee from both Houses to consider the question of amalgamating the law department of both Houses.

G. A. Sala on American Railroads and Newspapers.

From an Interview in the San Francisco 'Chronicle.'

"I consider that American railroad travelling is now so wonderfully comfortable that the inconveniences have been brought down to their minimum. It is all the more remarkable because the change for the better has been wrought in so short a time, for when last in America (during the time of the war) the carriages were low and stuffy, the apologies for sleeping cars full of dirt and fleas, and calculated to make one's life on a railway as miserable as riding a rail. In the hotel car which brought us from Chicago to Omaha we were as comfortable as though reading the 'Sentimental Journey' in the best London club rooms instead of making a practical journey some thousands of miles long.

"Compared with the European railways, how do those of America stand?

"Oh, to the immeasurable advantage of those of America," replied Mr. Sala. "It would be impossible to make the journey we have made, for San Francisco and New Orleans are the termini of this trip—it would be impossible to make such a trip in Europe without being fatigued into utter helplessness, whilst now we feel that a bath will render us as nimble and lively as could be expected of two people who have only an uncertain number of years to live."

The entrance of a newsboy turned the conversation upon newspapers. Asking his opinion upon American journals, Mr. Sala said: "In their manner of succinctly presenting news—that is, in the epitomizing of information—the American papers are far ahead of the English, but they seem to lack the element of solidity—stupidity, if you will. I have noticed an almost entire absence of what we call heavy 'leaders,' which in England are all powerful. To give you an illustration of what I mean, interesting because of the result reached, and not as being in my experience: You know Temple Bar, that wretched old obstruction to Fleet street, has been removed. Our paper, The London Daily Telegraph, made a solemn covenant with me that once a month I was to write a leader against the old Bar until it was taken down. Iconoclastic as this proceeding was and conservative as we English people are, this persistent attack on a cherished but inconvenient memento of past times attained its result, and Fleet street is now clear.

'In America this monthly attack made in heavy, sober earnest, would I presume, be without the least effect, for here if a thing is to be written up or down it must be done pungently and at once. To convince you of the value I place upon American journals as newspapers, I can assure you that during this last absence from England I have not thought it worth while to look at an English paper, because I have felt sure that all the information it was necessary for me to gain could be gathered from the American daily publications."

Terrible Fatal Accident.—A terrible fatal accident occurred at Cheltenham, Peel County, on the 13th inst, Lemeal Sanderson being the victim. The little fellow was in the habit of going to a tannery near his brother's house. Under the entrance to the tannery was a vat filled with boiling water. A plank had been removed from the covering of the vat, and while the lad was going to the tannery he fell through this hole. He was not missed for a time. After about two hour's search the body was recovered. The liquid from which he was taken was boiling hot and must have caused instantaneous death. The body was one shrivelled cooked mass.

Members' Indemnity in Time Past.—A return presented to Parliament the other day shows the indemnity paid to members of the Legislature as sessional allowance or otherwise, and the amount per mile for travelling expenses in the year 1841, the date of any subsequent alterations in the rate of such indemnity, the amount thereof from 1841 to 1878 inclusive. In 1841 the indemnity was placed at £65, and the travelling expenses at ten shillings for twenty miles. In 1854 the indemnity was increased to £100, but no change made in the mileage. In 1847 the indemnity was decreased to £75, and in 1848 to £50. In 1849 it was placed at £1 per day, and by resolution of the House ten shillings were added. In 1859 the indemnity was placed at $600 and the mileage at ten cents. In 1873 the indemnity was increased to $1,000, at which rate it now stands.

"The Fifteen Puzzle."

Mr. Spoopendyke, of Clinton street, is one of the most cherry, cheerful gentlemen in Booklyn, says the Brooklyn Eagle, and his wife is the soul of good humor.

Friday afternoon Mr. Spoopendyke brought home a "fifteen puzzle," and told his wife he had bet a hat he could solve it.

"Deed you can," said she, preparing to assist him. "I'd like to know what you can't do," and she dusted off the table so he would't muss his cuffs.

He pulled out the box. "Now," said he, "You see these blocks run four in a row up to 12, and then there are three, numbers 13, 14, and 14. I must them around, and the object is to make them come out just as they were, consecutively, you know."

"Certain! That's easy," and she put the 15 block in her mouth while she swished around with the rest.

"What'n thunder yer doing?" demanded Mr. Spoopendyke. "You mustn't take 'em out!"

"Oh!" said she, putting the block back upside down, "you mustn't take 'em out, eh! well, we'll do it with them in."

Mr. Spoopendyke moved the cues around and then pondered.

"I see," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, "I've got it! put that twelve down there and the 11 up here, and then move 'em around."

He did it and they were worse than before.

"Hold on!" she exclaimed, "now put ——"

"S'pose you hold on," he responded. "This think works by hand, not by steam. You've got to go slow. Now I'll put the 14 there and that lets the 13 come up in place. Then we put the 15 here and slip down the 9."

"That ain't right. That makes it 11,10 12. You want to get the 9 up and transpose those."

"Lemme be, will ye? I'm to fix those. There, now, I'll bring down the 12 and carry——"

"But you can't. You've got——"

"I havn't either. There's the 14,15,13. I've only to make them run 13, 14, 15, and then——"

"Why, you can't even count. What are you going to do with the 10, 11, 12?"

"Do with them. What d'ye s'pose I'm going to do with them? Think I'm going to bore a hole in 'em and wear them for socks! Talk sense if you know any. Now I'll put the 10 in here and that lets the 9 in. Then we move the 11 up and get the 12 into place."

"But where's your 13, 14 and 15?"

"They are right here, Mrs. Spoopendyke; did you think they'd gone to prayer meeting? Confound a woman around a puzzle, anyway. Just you lemme figure on this alone, will ye? I guess I know how to fix this."

"Of course you do," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly, "you can get it if anyone can."

"Just see, now. If I can only get the last three straight. I've got it. H'm—ah! yes. The 15 goes here. Now I've got it. Then the 13 and then the 14. Just move—hold on."

"I see where you're wrong," said Mrs. Spoopendyke. "You want to move——"

"I don't want to do any such thing."

"Yes, you do; just move——"

"Well, if I move it'll be about eight miles from here, where I can have some peace."

"Don't be so touchy; all you've got ——"

"If you don't let this puzzling business alone, I'll just make a hole in the air with it. What do you know about it anyway? I've got it all but three blocks——"

"Well, I'll show you how to get those."

"Then show me; show me. Why don't you show me how it's done?"

Mrs. Spoopendyke moved them around and then studied awhile.

"Why don't you show me?" demanded Mr. Spoopendyke. "You said you'd show me. I'm waiting to be shown. Go on with your showing. Let the show proceed."

"If one could only get that 12 out of the way so the 13 would come in, we'd be all right," mused Mrs. Spoopenkyke.

"Oh, certainly, certainly. If—the 12 had a pair of legs and could build a railroad around the 15, and then would give the 14 a free pass, he might ride into his place. Say, Mrs. Spoopendyke, if you'll quit handling that 15 block like a stovelid and take your thumb out of the blank square, I'd be obliged to you. Le'see now. The 14 goes here——"

"No, it don't; it goes there."

"Goes where?"

"Why, there."

"There! Where? There may mean up the chimney or down my throat. Where? Where do you mean?

"Why, there, of course, can't you see? I believe you're crazy!"

"I'm not crazy, Mrs. Spoopendyke, nor am I woman. I might as well put that block in the fire as where you say. I'll put it here."

"Then you're all wrong. It goes here."

"A minute ago you said it went there. Let it alone, I tell you. Drop it. Put it back where you found it. Now, let things be. I'll move this 12 down here."

"That makes a fine arrangement. Nobody but a lunatic would put it there. Put it here!"

"Go way from here. You ain't half witted. I can do that puzzle."

"You can't do anything, you old idiot. You deserve to lose your hat. Go, stand around bareheaded and cool your skull, you old heathen. You do a puzzle! You don't know the bottom of the box from the top."

Crash! Down went the outfit, and Mr. Spoopendyke crawled into bed.

Mrs. Spoopendyke rearranged the blocks and went to work at them.

"Thomas," said she timidly, after a while. "Look here."

He looked. She had solved it.

"I could have done it," he growled.

"Yes," said she, "if you had done it in my way.'

"You only did it just as I was doing it," he responded. "You picked it up where I left off."

"Yes," she replied, putting out the light, "I picked it off the floor."

Copying the States.

In his speech on the Budget, Mr. Mackenzie said:—"We are only doing an injury to our own country in attempting to retaliate against a people twelve times as strong as we are. (Hear, hear.) When we were in office we found that the malt trade between Canada and the United States was a profitable one, and we found that the nominal duty under the old tariff—for it was never realized—was looked upon by the people of the United States as intended to exclude their products from this country. Hon. gentlemen opposite took off the excise duty we had on malt, and reimposed two cents per pound on the malt coming from abroad. The result of that is this, that in the United States Legislature at present they have taken up the challenge to retaliate and have imposed such a duty on malt going into their country as will make it impossible for Canadian malsters long to continue that trade, and this action is caused by the mischievous meddling of hon. gentlemen opposite with matters which they do not understand. (Hear, hear.) They pretend to have an unlimited knowledge of the trade, but, sir, the very tariff resolutions which they introduced last year were borrowed, with everything attached to them, from the United States. (Hear, hear.) And all will remember that some of the rags of the United States hung around them after they were brought in. Words which were only applicable to Washington we found printed in the resolutions which were placed on our desks—(hear, hear, and laughter)—showing that the hon. gentleman, while he was determined to have a protective tariff, did not know exactly what he meant, and so had to "look to Washington" for a model. (Hear, hear, and laughter.)

Amendment to the School Law.

The School Bill, as finally passed, enacts:

Holidays—That after the present year it will be optional with the trustees whether the holidays cease on the third day of August or the eighteenth. But no appropriation of the School Fund can be made on their attendance during said two weeks.

Non Resident Fees—That the non resident rate not to exceed fifty cents per calendar month, may be imposed on all except those whose parents and guardians pay the average school rate in the section.

Unions—As stated two weeks ago, except that the equalization of the rate of taxation shall remain in force five years, unless the Council should in any year require another reference to be held for the purpose of changing the basis of equalization.

The clauses relating to assessment, taking the census, time of paying the trustees' estimates, clerks' returns to the inspectors, methods of keeping the treasurers' accounts, application of c. 34, s. 29, 42 v., points affecting changes in union sections, remain as we previously stated.

Much litigation will be avoided by the power conferred on the Minister of Education to authorize and confirm by-laws respecting the formation, alteration, or dissolution of school sections.

A Good Housewife.

The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and purely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. SHAW & MURTON

WOOLENS.

SHAW & MURTON WOULD RESPECTFULLY announce that having placed their orders for imported and Canadian Woollens, for this Spring's trade, early last fall, they are enabled, notwithstanding the great rise that has taken place in all classes of goods during the last few months, to take orders fo clothing at old prices.

SUITINGS.

They would most especially direct attention to their Worsted Coatings and Scotch Tweed Suitings, which this season excel both in quality and design. Also to a new style of English Hard Felt Hat, which is much finer in quality, and lighter in weight than has been manufactured in Britain heretofore.

FURNISHINGS.

In the Furnishing Department we have a new make of Spring Kid Gloves, equal in quality to the celebrated Dent's Gloves, and much cheaper. Also French Cambric Shirts—the nicest colors ever introduced. A general assortment of fine Furnishing Goods can always be obtained from,

Yours most respectfully,

SHAW & MURTON.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JACK BORLAND PAYS A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP—HE FINDS THE FACTOR IN DESPONDENCY AND LEAVES HIM IN ECSTASIES—ANTHONY LANGTON PROVES IMPRACTICABLE—TWO OLD ACQUAINTANCES MAKE A MUTUAL RECOGNITION.

On the morning after Mr. Bishop returned from Edinburgh that gentleman sat sipping his breakfast in a very listless, preoccupied manner. Miss Grizzey was greatly concerned at beholding her brother so downcast, though she well knew the reason of his despondency. It wanted now but a week to the sale, and the prospect of that event was anything but pleasant to the lawyer's mind. All his efforts to prevent it had failed. None of his wealthy clients would in the extraordinary circumstances interfere with the doings of Anthony Langton, either by taking a transfer of the mortgage or becoming a competitor for the purchase of the estate. It was, therefore, evident that it would fall into the hands of the mortgagee, who had succeeded in getting the upset price fixed at thirty thousand pounds, the exact amount of the bond he held over it. Mr. Bishop strove hard to have the upset increased to thirty-five thousand, which was something like the real value of the property, but as it was now universally believed that Orwell Bruce was dead and had left no heirs, the additional five thousand was of no interest to any one—indeed, were it obtained, the question of its disposal would be an embarrassing one. The selfish shrewdness of Anthony Langton enabled him to set this so strongly forth that the point was conceded; and that was equal to handing over the Grange to him for the sum he had lent on it. The wily money-lender had calculated his chances very closely, but the disappearance of Orwell was the circumstance in his favour—paralysing, as it did, all, the efforts of the factor to thwart his project.

Thus matters stood on the morning to which we refer; and Mr. Bishop sat brooding over the situation with a heavy heart. His sister sat opposite for sometime silently regarding him; but seeing that he ate almost nothing and looked miserable besides, she could not forbear offering earnest sisterly remonstrance.

"Dear, me, George," she said, "you are hardly looking at your breakfast this morning. Are you well enough? I doubt you have been mislippened in Edinburgh. Did you get your meals properly? and was your bed well aired?"

"Oh, yes he replied, with a touch of impatience in his tone. "I was all right in Edinburgh. There is nothing the matter with my health. But can't you see how this Grange business annoys me? It was a little off my mind when I was in town, for there I had other things to attend to; but now it is wholly in my thoughts, and makes me confoundedly seedy."

"But you should not let it annoy you so very much," said his sister soothingly. "You are not to blame for what has happened, and have done everything in your power to prevent the laird of Cairnbank from getting the place.

"I have done what I could, but what has my doing amounted to? Nothing. And then I don't feel so free from blame as I could wish. I can never get rid of the idea that I was the one who prevented Orwell's marriage with Agnes Borland, and sent him abroad to ruin and death."

"Nonsense," returned Miss Grizzey, in a decided tone. "You did what you thought was your duty, and the young man's folly does not lie at your door. No one would think of blaming you for it, and why should you blame yourself? It is no doubt dreadful to think that Master Orwell did as he did, but to say that you are in any way responsible is absurd. If he had consulted you and taken your advice, instead of putting himself in the hands of that old schemer and his wicked son, he would not have lost the money, the estate, or his life."

"That may be, but it is no comfort to me in view of what is to take place next Tuesday."

The lawyer rose with a sigh, sought his hat in the hall, and departed for the office, the depression of his mind making itself visible in the slowness of his walk as he proceeded down the street. Ere he reached the Square he was met by his office boy, Penwiper, who had been despatched to hasten his coming.

"Who wants me?" he listlessly asked.

"A strange man. He called when you were away."

"Why, you stupid callant, don't you know who he is?"

"I might if I had seen him before," was the pert reply.

"Bah!—one of the neighboring farmers, I suppose. Run back and say I will be at the office immediately."

Away went Penwiper kicking up his heels, and the lawyer followed at his previous leisurely, listless pace, little dreaming that the visitor who awaited his coming would revolutionize his whole mental condition, and throw him into transports of delight. Those who saw him go to into his office that morning and who beheld him two hours later crossing the market place towards the bank, in company with the stranger with whom he had been closeted, never before saw such a difference on any man. The tall form which at ten o'clock was drooping like a bullrush was at twelve erect as a poplar; his long face so grave before, was absolutely so radiant and wreathed in smiles; his step was elastic as if his joints had suddenly been set on springs; his whole aspect had undergone such a wonderful transformation that Sands the grocer, Britchen the saddler, Lawn the draper, and several others came to their shop doors to gaze at him, wondering among themselves what could have made the factor so gay.

"I ken wkat it is," said Cleaver the butcher, showing his red face over the under half of his door. "He has won his plea in Edinburgh, and that man wi' him wad be the chief witness."

"Ay, that's it; that's it," they all cried, entirely satisfied with this explanation of the phenomenon, while Sands volunteered the information that he had seen the stranger who had entered the bank with the lawyer come out of his office a week befcre.

Paying no heed to this commotion among his neighbors, Mr. Bishop and his companion, who was none other than Jack Borland, alias John Wilson, disappeared within the swing doors of the bank. Britchen, whose curiosity was even stronger than that of the rest, thought he would get it gratified by going into the bank for change, but this laudable effort to increase his social knowledge was not rewarded with success. Mr. Bishop and the stranger were not at the bank counter, but in the agent's private room, in close confab with that functionary, and no amount of ingenious questions could elicit the slightest information from the clerk, as to the lawyer's special business in the sanctum.

Nearly half an hour elapsed ere the two issued forth, but instead of returning to the lawyer's office they parted on the street, Mr. Bishop shaking the stranger's hand with amazing cordiality, and returning through the Market Square alone, while Jack Borland, who had been the object of some erroneous conjecture, started down the High Street at a sturdy pace, and left Cairntree by the eastern entrance.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

STILL THEY COME!—The latest received copy of the Chicago News thus refers to the wife hunt after C. E. Davis, the much married former Hamilton merchant:—"The most successful marrier of the country appears to be the man Clarence E. Davis, now enjoying the hospitality of our police hotel. Train after train bring in wives to confront this genius of matrimony, and more are to come, if promises made are fulfilled. There was never such an ingress of women after one exoduster of a husband. It is a severe comment on the fair sex that these representatives have so hungered for a husband as to take a man without credentials, and already overloaded with spouses.

Workingmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring-work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The value of Wheat in the Canadian Market is controlled to a great extent by the foreign demand. If crops are short in Russia, France and India, England must buy more Canadian Wheat, and the price consequently advances.

But the price of Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry never changes. A twenty-five cent bottle will cure any ordinary Cough or Cold and give marked relief in old standing cases of Bronchitis. In hundreds of cases 50 cent bottles have cured Coughs and Colds, which have been proof against all other remedies, and the proprietors positively claim that a $1 Bottle will ensure a large family against any danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, Coughs and Colds, and all kindred diseases, for a whole season.

This is no empty boast, but a fact which has already been proven by thousands of Canadian Families to their entire satisfaction.

The Reporter says:—On Thursday afternoon last, while a little son of Mr. Alfred Higinbotham, Galt, was playing with some companions, he got up on the top of a fence when by some means he slipped and fell off, falling with such violence on his shoulder and arm as to fracture the collar-bone and elbow.

Mr. Richard Burrow, a very old resident of Galt, who came to that town in 1845, died at the house of his son-in-law Mr. Nicholas Wilkins, on Tuesday afternoon. He was much respected by all who knew him.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the outside wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. 25 cents a bottle. Beware of imitations. d&wlyr.

Bar iron is reported slightly easier in England, but prices remain very firm here with sales at $2.75 for Scotch and Staffordshire.—Montreal Herald of March 18th.

The business in nails during the week was light. Manufacturers, however, are holding prices firmly, and we quote 10c to 60c, $5.40, net, in small lots of 200 kegs and over, $5.30, net.—Iron Age, New York.

It is intimated that the Dominion Government has ordered twelve Palliser 64 pounders, with the intention of arming a certain number of ocean-going Canadian steamers.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JACK BORLAND PAYS A VISIT TO MR. BISHOP—HE FINDS THE FACTOR IN DESPONDENCY AND LEAVES HIM IN ECSTASIES—ANTHONY LANGTON PROVES IMPRACTICABLE—TWO OLD ACQUAINTANCES MAKE A MUTUAL RECOGNITION.

On the morning after Mr. Bishop returned from Edinburgh that gentleman sat sipping his breakfast in a very listless, preoccupied manner. Miss Grizzey was greatly concerned at beholding her brother so downcast, though she well knew the reason of his despondency. It wanted now but a week to the sale, and the prospect of that event was anything but pleasant to the lawyer's mind. All his efforts to prevent it had failed. None of his wealthy clients would in the extraordinary circumstances interfere with the doings of Anthony Langton, either by taking a transfer of the mortgage or becoming a competitor for the purchase of the estate. It was, therefore, evident that it would fall into the hands of the mortgagee, who had succeeded in getting the upset price fixed at thirty thousand pounds, the exact amount of the bond he held over it. Mr. Bishop strove hard to have the upset increased to thirty-five thousand, which was something like the real value of the property, but as it was now universally believed that Orwell Bruce was dead and had left no heirs, the additional five thousand was of no interest to any one—indeed, were it obtained, the question of its disposal would be an embarrassing one. The selfish shrewdness of Anthony Langton enabled him to set this so strongly forth that the point was conceded; and that was equal to handing over the Grange to him for the sum he had lent on it. The wily money-lender had calculated his chances very closely, but the disappearance of Orwell was the circumstance in his favour—paralysing, as it did, all, the efforts of the factor to thwart his project.

Thus matters stood on the morning to which we refer; and Mr. Bishop sat brooding over the situation with a heavy heart. His sister sat opposite for sometime silently regarding him; but seeing that he ate almost nothing and looked miserable besides, she could not forbear offering earnest sisterly remonstrance.

"Dear, me, George," she said, "you are hardly looking at your breakfast this morning. Are you well enough? I doubt you have been mislippened in Edinburgh. Did you get your meals properly? and was your bed well aired?"

"Oh, yes he replied, with a touch of impatience in his tone. "I was all right in Edinburgh. There is nothing the matter with my health. But can't you see how this Grange business annoys me? It was a little off my mind when I was in town, for there I had other things to attend to; but now it is wholly in my thoughts, and makes me confoundedly seedy."

"But you should not let it annoy you so very much," said his sister soothingly. "You are not to blame for what has happened, and have done everything in your power to prevent the laird of Cairnbank from getting the place.

"I have done what I could, but what has my doing amounted to? Nothing. And then I don't feel so free from blame as I could wish. I can never get rid of the idea that I was the one who prevented Orwell's marriage with Agnes Borland, and sent him abroad to ruin and death."

"Nonsense," returned Miss Grizzey, in a decided tone. "You did what you thought was your duty, and the young man's folly does not lie at your door. No one would think of blaming you for it, and why should you blame yourself? It is no doubt dreadful to think that Master Orwell did as he did, but to say that you are in any way responsible is absurd. If he had consulted you and taken your advice, instead of putting himself in the hands of that old schemer and his wicked son, he would not have lost the money, the estate, or his life."

"That may be, but it is no comfort to me in view of what is to take place next Tuesday."

The lawyer rose with a sigh, sought his hat in the hall, and departed for the office, the depression of his mind making itself visible in the slowness of his walk as he proceeded down the street. Ere he reached the Square he was met by his office boy. Penwiper, who had been despatched to hasten his coming.

"Who wants me?" he listlessly asked.

"A strange man. He called when you were away."

"Why, you stupid callant, don't you know who he is?"

"I might if I had seen him before," was the pert reply.

"Bah!—one of the neighboring farmers, I suppose. Run back and say I will be at the office immediately."

Away went Penwiper kicking up his heels, and the lawyer followed at his previous leisurely, listless pace, little dreaming that the visitor who awaited his coming would revolutionize his whole mental condition, and throw him into transports of delight. Those who saw him go to into his office that morning and who beheld him two hours later crossing the market place towards the bank, in company with the stranger with whom he had been closeted, never before saw such a difference on any man. The tall form which at ten o'clock was drooping like a bullrush was at twelve erect as a poplar; his long face so grave before, was absolutely so radiant and wreathed in smiles; his step was elastic as if his joints had suddenly been set on springs; his whole aspect had undergone such a wonderful transformation that Sands the grocer, Britchen the saddler, Lawn the draper, and several others came to their shop doors to gaze at him, wondering among themselves what could have made the factor so gay.

"I ken wkat it is," said Cleaver the butcher, showing his red face over the under half of his door. "He has won his plea in Edinburgh, and that man wi' him wad be the chief witness."

"Ay, that's it; that's it," they all cried, entirely satisfied with this explanation of the phenomenon, while Sands volunteered the information that he had seen the stranger who had entered the bank with the lawyer come out of his office a week befcre.

Paying no heed to this commotion among his neighbors, Mr. Bishop and his companion, who was none other than Jack Borland, alias John Wilson, disappeared within the swing doors of the bank. Britchen, whose curiosity was even stronger than that of the rest, thought he would get it gratified by going into the bank for change, but this laudable effort to increase his social knowledge was not rewarded with success. Mr. Bishop and the stranger were not at the bank counter, but in the agent's private room, in close confab with that functionary, and no amount of ingenious questions could elicit the slightest information from the clerk as to the lawyer's special business in the sanctum.

Nearly half an hour elapsed ere the two issued forth, but instead of returning to the lawyer's office they parted on the street, Mr. Bishop shaking the stranger's hand with amazing cordiality, and returning through the Market Square alone, while Jack Borland, who had been the object of some erroneous conjecture, started down the High Street at a sturdy pace, and left Cairntree by the eastern entrance.

Brown's Household Panacea

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES, and is THE GREAT RELIEVER OF PAIN. "BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water [sweetened, if preferred], taken at bedtime, will BREAK UP A COLD. 25 cts. a bottle. d&wlyr

Much Sickness,

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. The valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. 25 cents a box. d&wlyr.

STILL THEY COME!—The latest received copy of the Chicago News thus refers to the wife hunt after C. E. Davis, the much married former Hamilton merchant:—"The most successful marrier of the country appears to be the man Clarence E. Davis, now enjoying the hospitality of our police hotel. Train after train bring in wives to confront this genius of matrimony, and more are to come, if promises made are fulfilled. There was never such an ingress of women after one exoduster of a husband. It is a severe comment on the fair sex that these representatives have so hungered for a husband as to take a man without credentials, and already overloaded with spouses.

Workingmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring-work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

Daily Mercury.

MONDAY EV'NG, MARCH 22 1880

THIS MORNING'S TELEGRAMS.

It is stated that the Pope, while not approving of it, will submit to the expulsion of the Jesuits from France.

Archibald Forbes, the war correspondent, expects to visit America next autumn and deliver a hundred lectures.

By a railway collission at Halle, in Saxony, on Saturday, seven passengers were killed and a large number injured.

General Roberts has received a letter written ostensibly by the boy Prince Moosa Khan, and signed by all the chiefs at Ghuzni, intimating that they are ready to submit.

The Queen departs next week for Baden and will remain away a month. As a change of Ministry would be impracticable during her absence, it is inferred that Beaconsfield intends not to resign before Parliament meets in May, whatever may be the result of the elections.

Prince Orloff, the Russian Ambassador to France, left Paris without the customary official leave-taking of the President and Premier. The refusal of the Government to extradite Hartmann is said to be the reason.

Parnell arrived at Queenstown on Saturday. He was enthusiastically received, and that night entertained at a dinner by the Farmers' Club. Among those present were several members of Parliament, Davitt and Daly, the indicted agitators, and Finnegan. A large crowd with bands, tar barrels, and torches accompanied Parnell to the station on his departure for Dublin. The demonstration was much smaller than anticipated, and was marked by the absence of persons of local influence.

Prof. Sheldon, of the Royal Agricultural College, London, states that in England "great numbers of farmers are insolvent, and many more are giving up the business to save the remnant of their capital. Farms to let are advertised by hundreds, and rents are falling rapidly. Many heavy land arable farms do not find tenants at any price, and the owners have to farm them as best they can. Sound grasslands, have, however, depreciated very little. Numbers of English farmers are in quite as bad plight as the Irish.

This Afternoon's Dispatches

UP TO THREE P.M.

Boat Racing in England.

(Per Montreal Line.)

LONDON, Eng., March 22.—In the Oxford-Cambridge boat race to-day Oxford won easily.

Rumoured Loss of a Steamer with Gen. Grant on Board.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Rumour comes from Washington, that the vessel on which Gen. Grant was a passenger has been lost in the Gulf of Mexico.

Death from Apoplexy.

HANOVER, Ont., March 20.—Mr. Wm Stephenson, of the eighth concession of Bentinck, dropped dead yesterday morning. He had attended a barn raising at Mr. Cunningham's on Thursday, and appeared to be in good health. He retired to bed well Thursday evening, and upon rising this morning while dressing took a fit of apoplexy and instantly expired.

Fires.

OSHAWA, Ont. March 20.—Pedlar's tinware manufactory caught fire this evening; loss trifling and covered by insurance.

LACHUTE, Quebec, March 22.—The large wooden-ware factory occupied by Mr. McLaren, as well as the woollen factory of Mr. F. Poitras was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire is supposed to have originated near the furnace. The loss is about $25,000.

Cruelty to a Chinaman.

TORONTO, March 22.—William O'Brien, was fined $5 and costs at the police court this morning for committing an assault upon Sam. Sing, a Chinaman. O'Brien and several companions, while celebrating St. Patrick's day, met the chinaman and chased him two blocks, cruelly ill using him.

The Case Against the Globe.

The case of Martin and the Globe publishing company, came on at the assizes this morning. The plaintiff sues the Hon. George Brown for $1,300 of arrears of salary, as advertising agent, it being alleged that defendant broke the contract. Mr. Brown has been in the witness box all morning. The case is still proceeding.

THE "SUNNY" BREEZE.—Accounts from all quarters continue to come in about the doings of the "Rev." Breeze. The Chicago Times a few days ago gave a long account of his love making, book making and selling in Wisconsin, and how he married a widow there and then left her. A person from Bothwell or the G. W. R. also writes:—Rev. J. T. Breeze, some two years ago, put in an appearance as an Episcopal Methodist minister, and stated he formerly was a Presbyterian minister, but preferred the Methodists, and was sent by the latter body to preach in the village of Florence. He represented himself as a widower having a daughter that was going to keep house for him. After an unsuccessful attempt to get furniture, stove, etc., on credit there, he came to this town and made the same attempt, but failed to accomplish his purpose in swindling our people out of their goods by making false representations. Then he came near getting a coat of tar and feathers for making too free with a respectable girl in Florence and other females in the vicinity. He made tracks for parts unknown. He is a bad man and a hypocrite, and wants passing around.

Local News.

THERE were a number of chimney fires in the city on Saturday evening.

"STABAT MATER" is to be repeated at the church of Our Lady by the full choir shortly.

DRUNKENNESS.—Thomas Stedman, of Toronto, was the only prisoner at Police Court to-day. He was arrested for being drunk by Sergeant Dooley, last Saturday night, and was fined $3 and costs.

W. H. SOUTHAM, an American Stockman well known to live stock breeders about Guelph, is in the city to-day. He intends visiting some of the herds in the neighbourhood with a view of purchasing some Hereford cattle.

WITNESS ARRESTED.—John Porter, of Guelph township, the informant against Sam Soden for picking pockets was to-day arrested as a witness, having failed to appear at the Police Court in answer to a subpœna on the day of trial. He will be released on furnishing sufficient bail for his appearance to give evidence in the case next Friday.

THE Woodstock Sentinel-Review, says:—As John Murray and Isaac Ingraham were crossing a field on the farm of the latter on Wednesday, St. Patrick's Day, a little bird flew up from the ground. This excited their curiosity, and on looking they found that this early little feathered visitant had actually built her nest and already laid three eggs. Who can say that they ever read such a thing at this season of the year before?

IMPORTANT DECISION.—In the County Court at Toronto on Wednesday a case of rather a peculiar nature was disposed of. Mr. Wilson, a Toronto milk vender, sued Mr. Holmes, proprietor of the Red Lion Hotel, Yonge street, for $200, the value of a horse burned in the stables of the defendant. The evidence went to show that Wilson, in September last, left his horse over night in Holmes' stable. A fire occurred, and both the building and horse were consumed. At the close of the plaintiff's case a non-suit was recorded, on the ground that no negligence was shown.
