GENERAL NEWS.

Annapolis sends 3,000 barrels of apples to the States. An item for our farmers.

A young woman in Ottawa, last week, tired of her life, stood in front of a full speed locomotive. She had her wish.

A LUCKY SLIP.—A man while walking in the woods near Lynn, Mass., recently slipped into a hole, from which he took out, after considerable hard work, a tin box containing about one hundred Portuguese silver coins. Some of the dates are very old. It is supposed that they were buried in early times by Portuguese pirates.

The Eddystone Lighthouse is situated on the Eddystone rocks in the English Channel. The first lighthouse was built in 1696 and stood until November, 1708. W. Winstanley, the architect, with a party of workmen, went to it to make some repairs. A terrible storm arose on the night of the 26th and not a trace of the lighthouse or its inmates was ever seen afterward.

YARMOUTH, Nov. 6.—Willie Perry aged about sixteen, was kidnapped from the residence of his adopted father, Mr. Freeman Dennis, on Sunday night, by three villains, chained and carried a few miles into the woods and secured. After enduring the rigors of the severe weather of the past few days he succeeded in extricating himself and got home this afternoon. There is no little excitement in town over the matter.

Alexander, Emperor of Russia, takes, in early morning, a cup of coffee and a biscuit, and then a walk. He can't drink tea because his nerves are shattered by his persistent attention to the government of his country. At 12 he takes luncheon—a simple one, as he is not able to eat rich food. Then he walks or rides, and then goes to his study. He dines at 5 or half-past, and after several hours of work retires at midnight, sometimes concluding his labors with one round of whist.

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH.—The greatest show in Europe is a caravan of Nubians, conducted by Hagenbeck, an enterprising dealer in wild animals, who has furnished the most interesting specimens to the various zoological gardens. He is king in his trade, having agents and experienced hunters in all parts of the world to buy or track wild and curious animals. The caravan, consisting of sixteen men, one woman, and a number of small elephants, rhino ceroses, giraffes, ostriches, etc., has created a sensation in the German capital. The show will soon be in Paris.

Lord Lytton, Governor-General of India, is said to be far less careful of the pomp of office than were his predecessors. His manners are so easy and cordial that the native princes can hardly understand him. On one occasion, says a French observer, Lord Lytton learned that the Prince who was visiting him was the author of several poetical works, and in his poetical ardor he told the interpreter to inform the Prince how happy he was to make the acquaintance of a brother poet, while on another occasion a Hindu prince, remarkable for his beauty, having offered him a beautiful work of Lord Lytton told him that he was delighted with his present, but that the work he admired most was the prince himself.

The Aquarium is again opened, after a brief suspension of performances, with new attractions. Evolutions pleasant to look upon and tricks suggesting painstaking drill are performed by Mons. Oscar's troupe of American thoroughbred horses. An excellent double-trapeze act is done by Miss Geraldine and Mons. Leopold, after which is introduced the sensation of the performance—the shooting of the young woman out of a cannon's mouth.
This is given a literal exemplification of what it is to be "fired out." The cannon seems to be made of wood and is mounted after the manner of a mortar. It stands at the front of the stage, pointing at an angle of about thirty-five or forty degrees, between the upturned faces of the spectators and the rafters overhead.

At the close of her trapeze act Miss Geraldine comes down the rope head-foremost by twining one leg around it and with her disengaged toe describing an Archimedian spiral. She is then assisted to the raised muzzle of the cannon, into the bore of which she slips feet first, lying on her back. Her head and neck are just visible when the gun is charged. Then she gives the word, the report of the cannon is heard, and she flies toward the spectators, going some twenty-five or thirty feet in a straight line before she drops to the net spread to catch her. When she again steps upon the stage and smiles her acknowledgment of the applause, her bright garments are not at all blackened by powder—a fact which is doubtless due to the interior mechanism of the cannon. This act and the performance by the trained horses are to be the attractions of the Aquarium for a season.—New York Sun.

FREDERICTON, NOV. 9, 1878.

A Voice from Spirit Land.

Should the ocean throw up its long buried dead, the hidden caves and mines of earth cast up their treasures, we could not wonder half so much as when words and sounds come from Spirit Land, from the dark shades of Eternity—that "bourne whence no traveller returns." We pause ere we write a line on a subject not for mortal pen to unravel, or a "blazon," not for ears of flesh and blood. But since the Amherst papers and the Mon-ton Times have written this story of the Eternal World, we too, now with awe, give a brief recital:

The scene is between spirits and mortals and opens in the house of a Mr. Teed in Amherst. Spirits infest the house, and seem to pay particular attention to a girl named Esther. In the still hours of night when Nox throws a black cloak over nature and an ordinary sized cat with sparkling ee is turned into a devil as large as an ox,— and while everybody about Mr.
Teed's house enjoy "nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep" sudden sounds awake the stillness.
The roof of the house is pounded as if 56 pound weights were being thrown upon it, tappings are heard on the ceiling and under the bed though no one can be seen. Transfixed with terror the inmates regarded the noises. No explanation could be given, none could trace it to other than supernatural causes. A wise son of Esculapius was called in and he too heard the noises. He stood in the room and listened.

The sounds resembled—a drumming on a board with the fingers and nails of a person's hand. It was first heard on the slats under the bed, on the wall and around the bed posts. To an unpracticed ear it is suggestive of telegraphy, but it is not that and is more like the tippy-tap of an idle and impatient boy.

It haunts Esther and seems to be on some such mission to this ter-rene as was the "Royal Dane."
"For when she goes into the cellar it sounds as if

A COLLOSSAL FIST were pounding on the beams with the fury of a demon. In order to test Esther's good faith, her hands have been tied behind her back and she has been sent into the cellar but the pounding was as instantaneous and as loud as before. Other persons have accompanied her and have satisfied themselves that the noise was made by no human hand or by any agency visible to mortal eye. Sometimes the pounding is in one room and sometimes in another. It is as heavy as the blows of an axe would be, but has more of a dead sound as if it were a flesh covered fist. One night while Esther was lying in bed and Dr. Carriette was in the room, this terrible pounding commenced on the roof, directly over the Doctor's head.
So convinced was he that it was on the roof, that he at once ran out to see if any person could be up there.
It was a brilliant moonlight night, and every portion of the roof could be seen. Not a person was in sight, but the pounding continued, so loud as to be audible blocks away.

So long as Esther is present, it taps and raps upon everything.
One night as the doctor watched, and the lamp in Esther and Jane's chamber burned, Jane cried out:
"Oh, Doctor, it has got hold of me." The doctor at once ran to the bed and discovered that some invisible agency had ripped open the front of her garments and had left on her chest marks as if a red hot hand had passed over it. The marks were the colour of a scorch, two or three days old, but there was no abrasion of the skin.
Soon after Jane cried out that it was taking hold of her again, and this time it pressed violently on both her sides, compressing the chest and causing much pain. At another time Esther's shoulder was grasped with great force, and she describes the feeling as precisely that of a powerful hand.

But the strange spirit dumb to all but Esther, gives greater terror to the simple folks than it did to satraps and princes at Balhazzar's banquet. It leaves handwriting on the wall, and Esther's hand when she has a pencil it is drawn forcibly thither and forced by some strange power made to write things of which she has not the remotest thought. Some of the sentences are very wicked and horribly profane. It is evidently no good spirit but a "Goblin damned—and it must bring the "blasts from hell" else it would not burn its victim.

The spelling is atrocious, one of the sentences reading thus:—"I ded rit to her Cister." Parties strangers in the house, have had their names scratched on the wall by the great unknown with a pin.

Here is the solution given to this most extraordinary story: A young man once loved Esther. He told her his vows, but she turned the deaf ear. He then said dreadful things and sought another part of the province, where he now by the magnetic force of will transfers action and word to her who had jilted him. He has, perhaps, a wire put up, and it may be is working in accord with Edison. If this view be not taken then it falls on either that Doctor, the Editor of the Borderer, or Mr.
Teed himself.

One more feature of this spiritual phenomenon ere we wish the spirit the Requiescat in pace.
On one occasion, when twelve persons were in the room, Esther lay in bed with her hands out side of the coverlet. The bed clothes were violently agitated, but the pillow as if literally "possessed of a devil."

Would help toward Esther's head, she felt her and bound back, and this it continued to do several times. Two persons then took hold of the corner of it and stood several feet away from the bed. The pillow straightened itself out horizontally in the direction of Esther, and those who held it declare that a weight of twenty-five or thirty pounds seemed pulling against them.
When it could not get away it elongated itself to its utmost capacity just as a piece of elastic rubber would do, and wriggled and squirmed like a leech in a jar of water. A hat placed on the bed stood on the edge of its rim and promoted and danced around as if suspended by a string. This was witnessed by at least a dozen persons, several of them being ladies of high respectability.
A marvellous story, and one which Dr.
Carriette can verify on oath, is yet to be told. One evening, the girls were lying in bed, while the Doctor, in order to test matter sat outside the bedroom door.

Mr. Teed was also in the hall. The bed was in plain sight from the door, though in a wide recess and the Doctor could see the girl's face lay with their arms extended outside of the quilt.
Suddenly one of the girls called out:
"Look, Doc, the clothes are moving!" He looked and saw that they were moving as they had often moved before. He took his eyes off of them for a second, as he tried to call Mr.
Teed's attention, and as he did so, the bed was agitated in the room and the Doctor began to press against his foot as if some one was pushing it.
He looked at it and was astonished to find that a pile of bed clothes had come out of the room in a heap and was piling up against the door.

The girl has been advised by the spirit to leave the house. She has done so. We may hear of a marriage between her and the spirit soon. Peace to the Troubled One's ashes!

Afghanistan.

Thousands of Afghans rally to the Ameer's standard. The plain and the mountain send down their hordes, expert at the lance as the Mamelukes, that fell like angels of destruction on Napoleon's army, agile and dexterous on horse backs Cossack or Zouave. In the green glens where smile an almost eternal summer between the hills that wear the year round their garlands of snow, the Afghans rally. To think that these men will not fight bravely or yield even to England's polished steel or royal red is to aug a delusive phantom. Ten thousand strong the native soldiers assemble and away from the north joins the Russian with secret aid and words of encouragement.
The poor Afghan welcomes him.
He sees not both sides of the picture. England he sees bringing her forces that he thinks will compel him to annexation. Russia he sees not the designs of who only opposes England's advance that she herself may in time get possession. Afghanistan is a coveted bone,—for it, no doubt, England would lose blood as well as Russia.
Against England the Afghan will fight and sink all petty animosities to join in a common cause. Hear what an Afghan prince says in England:

"I am the nephew of Shere Ali, who cast me into a dungeon and loaded me with chains, and I have lived in this country and learnt to admire its institutions and its freedom; but I tell you frankly, and I believe I speak the sentiments of every Afghan, if you send your troops to Quetta, every Afghan, and I myself, who hate my uncle, would take up arms against you. We, Afghans, have read your history in India, we have seen how you progressed. Troops on the frontier. Then frontier questions. Lastly, annexation. Now, we Afghans don't want to be an-nexed."

Little faith have they in England. Her treaties they say are written in ice. England will meet with stout resistance, and backed by Russia the Afghans might be a formidable foe. And this, however impossible it may seem, seems now the outlook.

The Afghans are not barbarians without a sense of morality. Hear what an Afghan popular poet sings: Shouldst thou bestow but a drop of water on the thirsty,
It will become an ocean between thee and the fire of hell; Shouldst thou give but a grain of corn to the hungry, Verily, it will be hereafter thy provision in eternity.

This would do credit to more christian and more civilized nations.

What will come to Pass?

Gelos that is to the Muscovite what the Times is to England, says that Russia cannot comply with the terms of the treaty of Berlin.
May next, is fixed for the final compliance. If Russia refuse there seems to be naught for the powers but to compel her with the sword.
Something there must be, behind the scenes that inspires the phantom-haunted Czar with courage.
Probably Shere Ali with his semi-savage thousands is the power behind the throne.

Then Uncle Sam, who, according to stipulation, is to pay his five millions, and odd the 24th of this month, for a paltry excuse, says he will not hand over. Because Newfoundlanders in compliance with their local laws would not tolerate the Yankee fishermen to violate the Lord's day, the objection is dressed in a garb of Yankee justification. It is not an offset, nor will it be regarded as such. If the Americans refuse to pay, at least it will be a blot upon their national honor.

Earl Dufferin.

Lord Lytton the popular author and poet is now Governor General of India. It is a trying time,— when all the ability and the courage of a Clive might well be required. England's minister, Lord Russell, Sir Henry Havelock, and others murmur loudly against Indian rule under Lord Lytton, and to set matters right, Earl Dufferin is spoken of as his successor. To our mind India now has as good a ruler as she would get by the change. Both it seems to us are better calculated to rule in peace than in war. The nature of the poet and the philosopher seems to enter more largely into their composition than that of the soldier or even the Statesman.
Yet in both we may be mistaken.

Hon. Peter Mitchell.

It is rumored, semi-officially, in Montreal, that Mr. Mitchell is to be appointed general superintendent of the Government Railways for the present, and that in time a Railway department is to be formed of which Mr. Mitchell will be Minister.

HALIFAX expects to have 10,000 to 20,000 strangers to see the Princess Louise.

Mr. SHERMAN of this city loads two Schooners with shingles and scantling for St. John.

The captains in this city are awfully scared of the ice. They need not for a while.

The Clan Campbell are rallying at Montreal for a grand reception to the Marquis of Lorne.

A social dance was held Thursday night, in this,—another last night, in Gibson.

SERMON.—Mr. Brewer will preach a sermon "to young men" in the Methodist Chapel Sunday evening, D. V.

THE RICH JEWESS, M^{lle} Margaret Rothschild, is to join the Roman Catholic church before she marries the Duc de Guiche.

Mr. P. McPEAKE takes all the P. E. I. money he can get for goods and wants more. Bring it along to him. He takes it at the face.

THE LADIES collecting for the Saint Dunstan's Bazaar, are meeting with unprecedented success. Let all give their mite.

Mr. A. A. Miller's New Store is a complete hive of business. It is finely fitted up, well stocked and manned by able and obliging clerks.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. McCane the bride attends Miss Thorne's department in the York Street School.

Hon. Judge Skinner was at the Queen yesterday.

WINTER.—Clad in snow, old Hiems has left his icy home and is now a visitor here. Snow has fallen almost continually since Wednesday night. Several inches on the ground.

FREDERICTON leads off with five or six inches of the beautiful, and according to a correspondent "the city resounds with the tinkling of the sleigh bells."—Moncton Times.

A GENTLE HINT.—It is only politically we go for the doctor, this is private. Doctor for your own sake pay that $15 to the Reform Club, or your name will be published. What if it got into print? O, we forgot!

MISS ARMOUR'S BOOK.—We have received a copy of "Lady Rosamonds Secret," by Miss Armour. We have not yet had time to examine it. In our next we shall have a word on it. It is for sale at Mr. M. McLaughlin's.

A LITTLE TOUCH OF QUINN.—Tomorrow is Sunday; there will be preaching. Mr. Moran got in his winter's wood. No minerals this week. Pity poor Bill does not "go and die" for the sake of a local.

MR. MORAN'S GOOSE.—It was a "rower." It weighed 12 lb, measured from tip to tip 6 feet, and from aft 3 feet 9 inches. The bird was a resident of Grand Lake. M. H. G. C. Wetmore perpetrated the purchase.

ROBBERY.—On Thursday night last some thief entered a lady's chamber in St. Marys, through some means, and stole therefrom a jewel case containing a gold watch and chain, a ring, &c., to the value of $200. The guilty party is spotted, and our able detective, Sergt. Woodworth is on the trail.

"GRIP" has a cartoon of "hard times" presented as an old man Sir John sits in an easy chair and tells the old fellow that, the elections over, he has no further need of him. The old fellow says he is "not agoin' yet."

THE SUTE of the Marquis of Lorne, it is said, will be composed of the following gentlemen: Major DeWinton, Governor-General's Secretary; Honorable Colonel Littleton, Military Secretary; Hon. Mr. Montar, Comptroller; Hon. Mr. Harbord, of the Scots' Guards, and Captain Chater, of the 91st Regt's ment, aides-de-camp.

ERRATA.—Mr. Wilson's writing, like our own sometimes, is not very good. Our devil got confused over his late letter, and said something in the last sentence that William did not intend. No doubt everyone will buy the WEEKLY STAR when we announce that there will be found the "RETRIBUTION" of that letter in its "entirety."

A LITTLE FRIEND JOHN.—The King of France have some trouble—probably affected like John with an inflated gall. Mr. J. Fred Richards has been bettering his state. He is one of our most promising young men. Mrs. Murphy (Betty) has been robbed of a large turpin and other things from her cellar, and a well stocked cellar she keeps too. Now, now, by two headed Janus!

ENTERPRISING.—The Rubicon is passed. The Fredericton Reporter has actually got up nerve enough to poke fun at the STAR. We advise and commend our contemporary for his pluck, and the public should appreciate it. What we want is men who are not afraid to poke their hand or their nose into the lion's mouth.

POLITICAL.—Messrs. Blair and Thompson are to meet with the prodigious opposition of one Mr. Hansen living across the river. We shall be sorry for either Mr. Blair or Thompson, for both gave good promise. Some of Mr. Hansen's friends are naming him as leader of the opposition. Don't kick Mr. Willis.

A large pit or cave has lately been discovered on Mr. W. Errington's farm, near Wyebridge, Ont., in which to all appearance were the remains of about two thousand persons, besides brass kettles, beads, pipes, and other Indian relics. It is supposed to be in the vicinity of an old Jesuit fort, St. Louis, where in 1649 there was a terrific struggle between the now almost extinct Hurons and the Iroquois.

HONORABLY ACQUITTED.—Mr. L. C. Macnutt who has been before the Tribunal of the Board of Education on the charge of having entered in the "stilly night" into the precincts of the Normal school—after being kept dilly dallying till he has lost all chance of getting a school for the winter—has been honorably acquitted. No title of well-founded evidence appeared against him. He succeeded in getting his license with the creditable average of 81.42, and will again become a "trainer."

THAT DRUG STORE.—did not think it necessary to stand out the suit, but acknowledged having sold liquor without license. Mr. Marsh imposed a fine of $30, with the option of forty days jail. It is thought the fine will be paid instead of going to jail. This is pretty severe, but an entirely just example, and we hope all will profit by it. The duties of the magistrate are onerous, but Mr. Marsh shows himself as fearless as he is just in the discharge of his duties.

THE C. T. U. LADIES.—It is cowardly and dastardly for a man, feeling himself such, to strike another over the shoulders of ladies. This Mr. Foster has done. He had spite against us and to vent it, charges the STAR with insulting ladies. At the time it took; and many ladies yet believe themselves insulted. This is not true,—avouched by all that Truth or Honor holds dear, it is not true, but is false. A coward of the blackest heart and smallest soul only could stoop to it. Those who now think Mr. Foster sincere in making the charge, will sometimes, like us, find out that his gallantry is only glad, and his rhetoric and eloquence merely polished, grammatical pow-wow. We had rather be in the position of the charged, the innocent,—than that of the cowardly charger,—the calumniator.

A CORRESPONDENT in Bathurst sends us the following:— BATHURST, N. B., Nov. 4th, 1878. At a regular meeting of the H. F. R. C. L. S. Society, held in their hall on Sunday evening, 3rd of November, 1878, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Society be tendered to L. F. McManus for having so liberally presented it with a valuable Universal Gazette; and further Resolved, That this Society express its regret at the departure from amongst them of so useful a member, and requests that the Recording Secretary convey to him its best wishes.

Keewick Notes.

BEARS AND PORCUPINES.—One day last week two young men of this place started on a hunting expedition. They had not proceeded far when their attention was attracted by a strange noise issuing from a hollow stump near by. Their curiosity being aroused they determined to examine the stump and find out what denizen of the forest had therein concealed itself. One of them, with reckless daring, climbed to the top. On looking down a sight met his gaze that caused his blood to curdle, for there, about ten feet below him, was the great leviathan of the forest—the much dreaded "brown bear."

He descended from his elevated position with alacrity. After a brief consultation with his companion it was determined to "beard the lion in his den," or, in other words, attack Bruin in his snug retreat. But Bruin, not being anxious for an encounter, was in no hurry to show himself. Recourse was then had to a very cunning stratagem to force him from his den. Fire was set to a number of fagots and they were dropped down upon him. He, of course, no sooner felt the fire than he made a gallant attempt to escape, but had barely reached the top of the stump when the report of a gun broke the stillness of the forest, and poor Bruin fell mortally wounded at the feet of the hunters.

Pest on it! What was their chagrin to find that their labor had all been for naught. It was a "porcupine."

The club meeting was a failure here Tuesday night owing to the inclemency of the weather.

SCHOOL MEETING.—The examination of the school here reflected much credit on the teacher, Mr. S. D. Alexander. A number were present, the M. P. P., Mr. Colter, among the rest. All the ordinary branches were examined in with credit to teacher and pupils. Speeches were made by Mr. Colter and others.

St. Stephen Diamonds, (From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Oh, the snow the beautiful snow, Filling the sky and the earth below, Over the housetops, over the street, Over the heads of the people you meet.

Overtaking the lady on a shopping expedition, spilling her gloves and dampening her feet, drifting down the necks of those unprovided with overcoats, filling one's eyes and ears, covering one's moustache, looked upon by the poor man with sorrowing heart as he thinks of the little feet to be protected from his chill, and the hungry mouths to be filled the long, cold winter, smiled at by the school boy, and regarded with a shiver by the rich man as he draws his sealskin cap over his eyes and buttons tightly around him his fashionably cut coat. Yesterday afternoon we had our first snow storm. Down it came, dancing and whirling, chasing and racing, until it had covered every exposed surface to the depth of about an inch. Then the clouds cleared away and the bright moon's one fathom, her light being rendered more dazzling by being reflected from the pure white covering of the earth.

Shortly before the snow storm yesterday afternoon fire was discovered issuing from a chimney of C. B. Eaton's residence, but it was extinguished before doing any damage.

Messrs. Vroom Bros. are erecting a building in the rear of their furniture warehouse to be used as a workshop. The enterprise of this firm is commendable.

And now designing mamma with marriageable daughters give little whist parties to which are invited eligible young men. Now, lovely and modest young ladies visit the Post Office for the purpose of getting the male. What a pity we married so young?

WEO AM I? St. Stephen, Nov. 5.

The Last Link of Imperialism Going.

To the Editor of the Star:

DEAR SIR.—We understand that McKenzie, —we don't mean the ex-Premier, nor the temperance agitator, nor the very respectable ostler in the Barker House stables,—but McKenzie Pacha, the drill sergeant, who used to amuse the boys in the military school, like the last rose of summer. He is "faded and gone" to St. John, where, no doubt, his idiosyncrasies will be better appreciated than in the Celestial City. The McKenzie Government's last act was "flushing the hash" of the (so-called) military school here. We could forgive it for this; but the taking of the weed drill sergeant from us is too much "at one fell swoop." The boys will miss his stentorian notes and his most amusing grimaces; our local papers will no longer be graced with his military marching of the Queen's English; and, "now Barney, if you must spit, whysit in my hat," will not soon be forgotten among the military school loafers. We commend him to the suspicious care of the "citizen soldiery" of the commercial metropolis. They lose a decent man in his successor, and gain a rather questionable addition in one whose long barrack-room experience ought to put them on their "guard." After confederation, the imperial authorities removed the troops, allowed the barracks to fall to the late George L. Hatheway's prophesy; they smashed the sentry-boxes, knocked the wheelbarrow into smithereens; removed the balustrade of the flagpole, and tipped up things generally. We bore all this patiently; but "there are times when forbearance ceases to be a virtue." We must solemnly protest against this last piece of vandalism. They might take his cow "and wheelbarrow" but we'll miss him. When will we see his "like again?" The two local bands and the Base Ballists, and the cricketers, whom he deprived of the use of the square, and the special vindictive military reporter of the "Agriculturist," and the men who marked at the left targets at the Provincial Rifle Competition here, and all the little boys around town, and all the "Barney's" of the military school, are all going to unite in presenting him with a leather medal as a testimonial of their appreciation of his "military" of imperialism. Is he going to take the cow, though? CRITICEN.

A Terrible Story.

THE WRONG SAID TO HAVE BEEN DONE A VILLAGE SCHOOLMISTRESS.

PORS JERVIS, N. J., Oct. 31.—A terrible story comes from Thompson, a small hamlet on the Jefferson branch of the Erie Railway, some 70 miles west of this place. It is that a young and beautiful school teacher named Alice Kennett was brutally assaulted last Friday by two tramps, who completed their work by cutting her tongue from her throat. The young lady had dismissed her school at the usual hour, and was arranging the room for a meeting of the trustees in the evening, when two burly fellows entered the school house and committed the crime. The appearance of the room showed that she made a stout resistance. At the time for the meeting of the trustees they found the lifeless body of the girl on the school house floor. Search is making for the ruffians in every direction, and if caught they will be promptly hanged. The young lady lived long enough to write upon a blackboard a description of her assailants.

Our Farmer's Column.

WAS IT INSTINCT OR REASON?

The New England Homestead tells us the following story:—

"As a farmer in a neighboring town was getting in his hay, he noticed an unusual commotion among the swallows which had built a long row of nests under the eaves of his barn. They appeared greatly excited, flying rapidly about and filling the air with their cries of distress. As the load of hay upon which he was riding passed into the barn, he saw that a young swallow in a nest directly over the door had caught its neck in a crack between two shingles and was unable to liberate itself. He stopped his team and set the young bird free, restoring it to the nest.

"Upon his return to the barn with his next load of hay, noticing that the swallows were quiet, he examined the crack, and found they had filled it completely with mud, so that, no matter how enterprising or how foolish the young swallow might be he could not again endanger his life, or the peace of that community, by any experiments upon that crack."

An Imprisoned Owl.

The owner of a large farm, in Lancaster, tells the following: A pair of Martins had taken possession of a small box, and were building their nest. One day, while they were absent, a screech-owl took possession of the box, and when the martins came home at night, would not allow them to enter.

The smaller birds were nonplussed for a while, and in a short time flew away, seemingly giving up the fight. But if the owl was of this opinion he was sadly mistaken, for in a short time the little ones returned, bringing with them a whole array of their companions, who immediately set to work, and procuring mud, plastered the entrance to the box. They then all flew away. In a few days the box was examined, and the owl was found dead.

The Origin of Horseshoeing.

The origin of horseshoeing is a subject which has been enlarged upon by numerous writers. Although the horse is frequently alluded to in the Scriptures, there is nothing said of its being shod. Among the early Greeks and Egyptians the art was unknown, although, by carelessness or license in the translation of classical history, the idea has been given, in some instances, that the hoofs of horses were shod, sometimes with iron, sometimes with brass. There is no doubt that the first shoeing of the horse was of leather, attached with things, as sandals were with men. According to Pliny and Aristotle, camels were shod with rawhide, and this practice obtains among the Arabs of the present day. When the hoofs of cattle were injured, they were shod with shoes made of rushes, hemp, and other fibres, woven and plaited. In Japan, before the introduction of the iron shoe, the horses wore shoes of straw, as many as a half-dozen sets being worn out in a day's journey.

In the wars of the ancient Greeks and Romans, immense bodies of cavalry were rendered useless, because the hoofs of the horses were worn away during long and fatiguing marches. During the siege of Cyzicus, Mithridates was forced to dispense with his cavalry on that account. Diodorus Siculus, a Greek historian of Julius Caesar's time, in speaking of Alexander the Great's army, says that at one time the hoofs of his horses became totally destroyed. The cavalry of Hannibal, which were principally Numidian, lost all their hoofs during the march through the marshy lands between Trobia and Fesula. The hoofs being expanded by damp and wet, and then contracted by heat, the result was perfectly natural. The timely protections spoken of not being of material use, various methods were resorted to, of hardening the hoofs. Xenophon, in his work De Equitatu, recommended that an outer court should be strewn with small round stones, so that, by long continued treading upon these, the hoofs might acquire hardness. He also states that the Asiatics were in the habit of using socks (patterns), to prevent their horses from sinking in the sands.

In the British Isles, horseshoes of the Romano-British period have been found almost all of them on Roman sites. We will now go back. Xenophon and Vegetius, both of whom lived some centuries before Christ, in their works do not speak of horseshoes, although they both wrote upon the horse. Neither did their contemporaries of other nations speak of horseshoes. Catullus and Appian, Roman historians, the first of whom lived in the century before Christ, the latter in the first century A. D., wrote upon the horse. Catullus speaks of shoes made of iron wire or plate iron. Appian also speaks of an iron shoe. Catullus, who died 40 B. C., lived in the time of Julius Caesar. Fifty-five years before the birth of Christ, Caesar invaded Britain. Although coming with fire and the sword among the savage islanders, Caesar brought civilization in his train: Now hers is a curious circumstance. In Norfolk, England, among other remains, were found Roman urns, and a horseshoe of peculiar shape, being round and broad in front, very narrow at the heels, pointing inward, and with the nail holes still perfect.
