A KING'S DEATH

In Century magazine is an article called "Marie Antoinette as Dauphine," by Anna L. Bicknell. After alluding to the visit of the Dauphin and Dauphine to Paris, where Marie Antoinette attended one of the masked balls at the opera, and unfortunately formed an excessive liking for such diversions, the writer proceeds to describe, after alluding to Marie Antoinette's charitable disposition, the sickness and last hours of her father-in-law as follows: "On April 28, 1774, Louis XV. felt the first symptoms of illness while at Trianon, his favorite summer place adjoining Versailles, to which he returned immediately. During the night of the 29th the characteristic eruption of smallpox appeared in its worst form. With admirable devotedness, the king's daughters came to his bedside, notwithstanding the dreadful danger of the contagion, and remained there day and night until his death. Marie Antoinette had asked admittance to his room, but, for very evident reasons, neither the heir apparent nor his wife were allowed to breathe an atmosphere so dangerous that more than fifty persons took the smallpox, merely from having crossed the gallery before the King's door." The article then refers to the bravery of the archbishop of Paris in going to Versailles because he was anxious to secure the means of repentance and a Christian death to the man who had long lived in a state of mortal sin. The prelate, however, with religious firmness, said the last sacraments of the Church could not be administered to the king unless Madame de Barry, his mistress, was dismissed from the palace, and she was accordingly taken away. Louis XV's death was made known by the extinguishing of a lighted candle in the window of the king's room, and the clock was stopped at the fatal hour, 3 p. m., on May 10, 1774. Then followed a rash of courtiers with a noise like thunder as they went to pay homage to the new sovereign. No wonder that Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette burst into tears, and with a little impulse fell on their knees exclaiming, "God help us and protect us; we are too young to reign," for he was not twenty and she was only in her nineteenth year.

JOAN OF ARC IN FICTION.

The last chapter of Mary Hartwell Catherwood's serial story, "The Days of Jeanne D'Arc," contains this striking picture of the death of the Maid of Orleans. It is so natural that it might be an actual reproduction of an incident of the time portrayed. "You say they burned a woman to-day, but she was not of the age of the pucelle?" "About the age of the pucelle," answered the old squire, and he broke into groans and tears, bending forward upon his knees and weeping aloud. Bertrand made no noise, but a audible swallowing, as if struggling for breath in the midst of smoke. He waited a long time for the other to be done waiting. "They burned a young maid alive—a young maid about the age of the pucelle," he resumed. "Did you see it done, D'Aulon?" "No, I did not see it, I could not see a thing like that done, but the streets were full of weeping women, and weeping men, too, as I came out of the prison. Her name was on every side." "Do you speak her name?" said Bertrand, sharply. "Did this young maid suffer long?" "I think not very long, though the pile was purposely built so high that the executioner could not reach her to shorten her sufferings. She had a cross brought from the nearest church, and held up before she could see it, and she called out for holy water." D'Aulon still held his face in his hands. "The priest stayed with her until he was in danger of burning also. Then she made him come down from the pile. It was afterward that she called for water. And the people say she also cried aloud the name of Jesus. No, it was not very long that the blessed maid was forced to suffer. For her head soon fell on her breast. The flames took a wonderful shape, as of wings. And there were men who heard her speak of something else." "What was it?" D'Aulon looked aside at the young squire, and whispered, "She spoke of voices. And a soldier fell in a fit. He saw a dove rise from the fire." This is only a fiction, to a certain extent founded on fact, but Joan of Arc's career was stranger than any fiction that was ever penned. Our Protestant friends can not account for it. Perhaps if they had more faith they could see with clearer eyes.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT

The announcement that the sixteenth Carmelite nun who suffered during the French Revolution in 1794 are likely to be beatified soon, makes one hope that similar honors may one day rest upon the memory of the holy priests who died during the Commune of 1871. Miss Molly Elliot Seawell, writing of these heroes in Munsey's, says; "To their honor be it said that no priest or any member of a religious order of men or women ran away from Paris at the time of the Commune. All remained calmly doing their duty until they suffered death, or were saved by the entrance of the troops of the line." The courage of the priests was almost the only bright spot in that carnival of horrors. One of them, Father Guerin, chanced to be in the civilian clothes when arrested; and, his beard having grown during his captivity, there was no sign to identify him as a priest. In the prison cell nearest him was a married man, with wife and children dependent on him. The heroic priest offered to save the man by personating him. "When your name is called," said he, "I will answer. They will take no trouble to identify me: all they want is blood. You will thus be saved to your family." The other prisoner just as nobly refused the priest's offer, and it is a pleasant conclusion of the incident to say that both of these heroes were rescued by the soldiery before the time set for their execution.

Some three years ago there was published in this magazine a learned article, in which an eminent medical authority maintained that the primary cause of Our Lord's death on the cross was heart rupture. This, in untechnical language, is the Saviour of man died of a broken heart. W. W. Keen, M. D., L. L. D., now champions this hypothesis in Bibliotheca Sacra, a scholarly Protestant publication. He also makes a special study, from a medical standpoint, of the Bloody Sweat of Our Lord during His Agony. Such phenomena are not unknown in medical history, but they occur only in persons suffering from nervous disorders. Dr. Keen's explanation of the Bloody Sweat of Our Lord, who, of course, was in perfect health, gives one a new sense of the unspeakable agonies of the Passion. He writes: Our emotion can be but slight when compared with that of Him "upon whom was laid the iniquity of us all"; and who, presumably from adolescence till His death, and certainly during the three years of His active ministry, felt this burden most intensely. If bloody sweating occurs, as is certainly the case, as a result of the nervous phenomena of hysteria, how much more probable would it be from the intense nervous strain of a Gethsemane! Moreover, as though 'foxes had holes and the birds of the air had nests, the Son of man had not where to lay His head.' He was undoubtedly often subject to physical hardships, spent the night on mountains in prayer, was exposed to mob violence, and finally, combining with the same of emotion and the same of physical suffering, passed through the awful night in Gethsemane and the physical and mental agonies of the crucifixion. Under such circumstances, with such intensified emotion beyond the limit of human endurance, and with such physical suffering as culminated on the cross, it can not be a wonder either that His sweat became bloody, or that His Heart, even at so early an age as thirty-three, should rupture.

It will be remembered that Tissot, the illustrious French painter, spent ten years in Palestine as a preparation for a series of pictures which he proposed to paint, representing scenes in the life of Our Lord. Neither the country nor the social life of Palestine has undergone any noteworthy change during nineteen centuries, and it is probable that the sacred scenes pictured by Tissot are the most truthful that have ever appeared, though they will certainly surprise many of those familiar with the works of "the old masters." Tissot himself tells us how one of the scenes impressed his own father, a simple and devoted man. "What!" said he; "is Calvary not a high mountain in the shape of a sugar-loaf, covered with rocks and brushwood?" To which the painter answered: "The Mount of Calvary, though it occupied the summit of the city, was at the most only twenty-three feet high. The Christian world has for a long time had its imagination misled by the fancies of painters who have, with one accord, abandoned the ground of historical and typographical accuracy." Tissot has also written a Life of Our Lord, which these pictures will illustrate, and which is now being translated into English. It is dedicated to Mr. Gladstone, a compliment which the venerable statesman accepts as "a real distinction."

For years I was a victim of chronic catarrh. I had tried all kinds of cures, and had been treated by numbers of physicians, but no cure was effected until I had procured and used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave me almost instant relief, and in an incredibly short time I was absolutely cured from this distressing and disgusting malady. James Headley, Dundee, N. Y.—Sold by Geo. E. ROYAL BAKING POWDER

In the Arena for September is an article by a Chicago journalist on "General Weyler's Campaign." The writer is Crittenden Marriot, who was in Cuba from January 19 to April 24 of this year. It is the general character of the operations of the Spanish troops, as well as of the rebels, that from a military point of view they are without result. It is a war without battles. "The thrilling combats narrated with circumstantial detail in certain newspapers," says Mr. Marriot, "simply do not take place." The Spanish forces number, he says, 250,000, and the rebels from 12,000 to 40,000, but the policy of the latter is not to fight, and the former are thus unable to put their superiority in numbers to use. Unable to find anybody to fight, the Spaniards are for the most part employed to garrison the towns and hold forts and trenches, safeguarding certain districts as much as possible from the incursions of bands of rebels. As to the method of the rebels, Mr. Marriot says: "They follow the amazing, if effective, policy of hoping to win their freedom without fighting for it; permit their friends to be butchered without an effort in their defense; their chief aggressive tactics involve the blowing up of railway trains with dynamite and the forming of ambushes in which half a dozen Spaniards are killed, followed by a precipitate flight, through fear of being brought to close quarters." Mr. Marriot is another writer who, like Mr. Murat Halstead to the fact that the news of bloody engagements "is mchete" of the mongrel blacks and alien adventurers, who call themselves the people of Cuba, with the Spanish army, as telegraphed from Key West, is the "yellow journalism" of the Cuban Junta, are false. A majority of the white people of Cuba prefer the rule of Spain. That, fact the Catholic Review states its sympathy with the Spaniards. Its articles should rule in a Republic or a world-be Republic.—Catholic Review.

During his recent tour of the Maritime Provinces Lord Aberdeen, among other places, visited Antigonish, N. S. In the course of his remarks in reply to the addresses presented to him in that town, he gave expression to the following: "Antigonish has been a place of which the name has been familiar to Lady Aberdeen and myself for many years past. This is, of course, partly due to the fact that so many notable and public men belong by birth or otherwise to this town and neighborhood. You all know, for example, that the name of the esteemed Bishop Cameron is widely known, and that he is also well beloved apart from the feelings entertained for him by his own flock. (Applause.) I see on the platform others whose names are familiar. But there is one other reason, and a very special one, why the name of your town has been of interest to us, and that is because for a considerable period one whom we shall ever remember as one of our most valued and trusted friends, a great man, Sir John D. Thompson, was so long connected with this place. (Long applause.) While we all cannot fail to continue to mourn his loss, we must also remember the example he gave, the great work which he accomplished—an example which appeals especially to the young because of that unswerving devotion—that quiet, earnest perseverance coupled with great abilities, which made him such a benefit to his country and earned for him such esteem and appreciation, not only from those with whom he was most immediately connected, but as you all know, even from our illustrious Sovereign the Queen, and all those with whom he was brought in contact in other parts of the world—that is one reason among others why we have looked forward to being with you to-day."

The New Government.

An adjourned meeting of the Liberal members-elect of the Provincial Legislature was held in the Assembly building on Monday evening last. As announced in our last issue, the object of this caucus was to choose a leader of the party, whom Mr. Peters in consequence of his own retirement, would recommend to the Honor, the Lieut. Governor, as fit and proper person to form a new administration. As already intimated, the race for the Premiership was between Hon. Donald Farquharson and A. B. Warburton, Esq. We understand that at the first meeting, on the 19th inst., the matter was practically decided in favor of Mr. Warburton; but the party of the other part did not feel disposed to yield without a supreme effort. Consequently a respite of four days was granted in order that the death struggle might not be too severe. During this interval, we are informed Mr. Farquharson made a very vigorous canvass for the coveted prize; but it was in vain, and we may reasonably assume that he died hard. At the meeting on Monday night the majority decided in favor of Mr. Warburton as Leader. Consequently he has been asked by the Lieut. Governor to form a Government and accepted the task. The personnel of the new administration will likely be as follows: Hon. A. B. Warburton, Premier, without portfolio; Hon. Hector C. McDonald, Attorney-General; Hon. J. R. McLean, Commissioner of Public Works; Hon. Angus McMillan, Commissioner of Public Lands, and Provincial Secretary-Treasurer. And others without portfolio, whose names are yet unknown to the public. So long as our Province has the misfortune of being ruled by a Grit Government, there is probably no member of the party whom the Conservatives would prefer for the Premiership to Mr. Warburton. Of course, we do not expect that he will be Premier very long, as the Conservatives will soon be in power again. The withdrawal of Mr. Peters evidently perpetuated quite a crisis in the Grit ranks for the Premiership brought to public notice some interesting facts that might not otherwise have been ascertained. For instance, the Morning Organ in its issue of Monday last made the following declaration regarding the "principles struggling for supremacy" in the matter of the Premiership: "On the one side are the elements that make for moral order in the community, and for honest, businesslike and economical management of our public affairs. On the other side are the elements that would continue the too lavish expenditures of the past and the efforts to conciliate the liquor interest, with other features of weakness." The opposition have all along pointed out that the "expenditures" were altogether "too lavish" but it is only an impending rift in the Grit ranks that forced the independent organ to confirm their contention. But what does the independent organ mean by its reference to "moral order in the community?" Does it believe the morals of the community will be less safe under the Premiership of Mr. Warburton than they would be under that of Mr. Farquharson? Government are good or bad according to their acts, and it is by this standard that Mr. Warburton must expect his Government to be judged. We congratulate Mr. Warburton on the honor conferred upon him in being called to the Premiership.

We trust our friends in the country who have been furnished with statements of their subscription accounts will lose no time in remitting the respective amounts due by them. THREE men, Fletcher, McIntyre and Coxon, are under arrest for starting the fire that destroyed Windsor. McIntyre's place was searched, and evidence is said to have been discovered sufficient to send him to the penitentiary. Fletcher has practically admitted everything charged against him, but applying the torch. Coxon is an accomplice who knows a great deal about the plans of Fletcher and McIntyre.

We inadvertently omitted to acknowledge, in our last issue, the receipt of the statistical Year Book of Canada for 1896, issued by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and compiled by George Johnson, F. S. S. Statistician. This work is a compendium of most useful information on subjects of the greatest interest to all Canadians. The constitution and government of Canada, as well as the different departments controlled by the Government are here set forth in the Statistical Year Book is a most valuable book of reference.

The recent heavy gale greatly wrecked the bridge across the Head of St. Peter's Bay. So great was the damage that, in order to facilitate any degree of traffic immediate repairs were necessary. Consequently notices were posted, and the repairs, we are informed, were sold at public auction. The cost of the repairs, we understand, will be between three and four hundred dollars. The remarkable feature of this transaction is that the job was put up to public competition. It appears that in almost the first instance on record since the Liberals came into power in this Province in 1891, in which a government job on the roads or bridges was sold at auction. The occurrence is so unusual that it has been remarked upon by every one under whose notice the matter has come. What is going to happen?

The price of oats in this city has scarcely undergone any change since last week. Yesterday the price paid was twenty-six cents. Potatoes were lower yesterday than a week ago. They brought from twenty-two to twenty-four cents. There was quite a large supply of pork in the market. The price for pork was from five to five cents and three quarters per pound. The lighter carcasses brought the higher prices. Heavy pork averaged about five cents a pound. In some of the other shipping ports prices of produce are higher than they are here. At Montague Bridge, for instance, a few days ago, potatoes ranged from 25 to 28 cents a bushel, according to variety, oats brought 27 cents, and pork 6 cents a pound.

WITH the resignation of Mr. Peters disappear from Provincial politics four Grit Premiers, in power at the time of the Dominion election in 1896. The Premiers of Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia waited till they saw their friends in power at Ottawa and then secured for themselves good fat offices. Mr. Peters might possibly have done likewise, had Sir Louis not been in the way. Now, however, he avails himself of the first opportunity to accumulate wealth, and leaves the affairs of the Province to look after themselves as best they can. All this shows how little these gentlemen had at heart the welfare of the Province they were running in debt at such a rapid rate, and that self was at the bottom of the whole business.

THE customs department has issued the consolidated and amended regulations respecting the entry of goods under the reciprocal tariff. Two new points are embodied in the order. The obligation on the exporter to make a declaration that the goods are the product of the country, and entitled to a reciprocal rebate, before a magistrate, notary, etc., is abolished, and subscribing witnesses substituted. In other words, the exporter may make a declaration before one of his own employees. This change is made because it has been found in England that all these officials charge a fee for taking a declaration, varying from one to five shillings, which the importer eventually had to pay. Both the Canadian importer and consumer will benefit from this change. The second new point is the substitution for the exporter's declaration a declaration by the importer when the goods are of less value than ten dollars for the whole importation. The Government's "preference" tariff seems to be an interminable source of trouble and annoyance.

Sir Charles Tupper.

A recent London cable to the Montreal Star says: "A member of the government in close touch with the colonial office, in speaking of Sir Charles Tupper, said: 'Sir Charles showed a nice sense of delicacy in declining the invitations which poured in upon him to occupy a place of honor at all the functions in which the colonial representatives participated.' There is no doubt that with the high esteem in which Sir Charles is held by the men of both sides of English politics, he would have had a reception little, if any, less enthusiastic than that accorded to the accredited representative, the premier of Canada, but Sir Charles knew that he could not sit silent and hear references to the extraordinary attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in refusing to contend for an advantage to Canadian producers in English markets in return for the English advantage in Canadian markets, and at the sacrifice of most promises for himself avoided the functions. The Canadian mining companies, in which Sir Charles Tupper is interested are successively floated almost without an effort. Of the stock exchange it may well be known that during Sir Charles Tupper's residence in London he never knowingly identified himself with any transaction of a dubious or even of a questionable character, hence the confidence in his judgment in this connection. There is a large job in financial circles at the expense of one of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's ministers, Sir Louis Davies. When the 'announcement of the gold company appeared, having Sir Charles Tupper's name, the minister made a violent speech, denouncing the Klondike and inferentially all Canadian gold mining enterprises, saying in these words: 'A gold mine is only a hole in the ground and a liar.' It had no effect on Sir Charles Tupper's colleagues in the enterprise who attributed it to jealousy, and the capital was immediately subscribed. Laurier and his followers are not so easily deceived. Another company was almost immediately launched, in which Col. Donville and some other liberals were interested. The same Canadian minister who warns Londoners against all Canadian gold mines appears as one of the promoters. People are asking if this is a sample of Canadian fair dealing."

None of them suited my case like Laxa-Liver Pills. They suited me exactly and removed the troubles promptly and effectively. I willingly recommend them to all who suffer as I did."

NEWS OF THE WEEK. The Dominion trade returns for September, show exports valued at $26,500,000, being an increase of $3,900,000. The increase is general, consisting of products of the mine, lumber, agricultural products and animals and their products. The imports for the month are valued at $13,057,115; increase, $722,007. The customs revenue increased $99,874; increase in exports for the quarter over last year amounting to a total of $3,264,914. The imports however, are practically stationary. The duty collected in the quarter shows only an increase of $83,000.

Indian Mint Will Not be Reopened.

London advices of the 22nd say the reply of the government of India upon which Lord Salisbury based his decision is a long document giving emphatic negatives to the proposal to reopen the Indian mint. It says: "The first result of the suggested measures, if they were to succeed even temporarily in their object, would be an increase in the Indian trade and industry. There would be a decided rise in exchange which, if the ratio of 16 to 1 were adopted, would be to about 83 to the rupee. Such a rise would be a point far lower than the present level, probably 93, and even lower. Such a fall, apart from other disastrous results, would necessitate additional taxation to the amount of crores." The reply then proceeds to point out that the proposed agreement would fall upon India. If the agreement broke down the United States and France could take pre-emption against a depletion of their gold reserves, but in India the rupee, when the collapse came, would fall heading and the government would have no remedy against fluctuation in the exchange value of India's standard of value with the fluctuation in the price of silver.

Fighting Fire Aboard Ship.

The Westwater, Captain Stephen, which put in to Halifax with a cargo of cotton on fire, is discharging at Canada's wharf. Hundreds have visited the ship. Every effort was made during the night to extinguish the flames but to no avail. At one time the fire had assumed such proportions that it was thought that the scuttling of the ship would have to be resorted to. The Ing L. Bayer had two heavy streams of water pouring into the forward hold, but even this did not have any appreciable effect in staying the flames. No. 2 Victor steam fire engine was sent for, and soon had a powerful stream on. A line of hose was run from a hydrant on the wharf, and this assisted materially. But even with this great volume of water, the fire gained headway. The hatch

ARE YOU LOSING FLESH?

There something is wrong. To the young man it always means trouble. It is a warning to any one, unless they are already too fat. Scott's Emulsion checks this waste and brings up your weight again. Diseases often lurk in the blood before they openly manifest themselves. Therefore keep the blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla. The steamer Dago from Baltimore, put in to Halifax Friday morning. She has a large general cargo, and came to Roche's wharf. During the passage heavy weather was met with and the cargo shifted badly. The Dago had a great list on as she steamed up the harbor. Misses Lalonde and Graham, two work girls, attempted to cross the aqueduct street crossing of the Grand Trunk in Montreal last Friday evening when the gates were closed and were struck by a passing train. Miss Lalonde had both feet amputated at the general hospital and is in a critical condition, while Miss Graham was badly injured.

STOUT PEOPLE.

Stout people are in great danger of having the muscles gradually weakened by infiltration of fat. This can be prevented by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Mr. Jas. Kelly, Hamilton, Ont., says: "I have been sick and feeble for five years, was weak, fluttering heart, sinking feeling, nervousness, shortness of breath, etc., but am now glad to say that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have completely removed all my troubles, and I feel as well as I ever did, and give me back my health."

"They Suit Me Exactly!"

"I have had dyspepsia and stomach trouble for the past two years," says Miss Ellen Whelan, Niagara Falls, and took various remedies in search for a cure. None of them suited my case like Laxa-Liver Pills. They suited me exactly and removed the troubles promptly and effectively. I willingly recommend them to all who suffer as I did."

The Imperial, of Madrid in an article entitled "The Denouement of the Drama—Another attack of the United States," declares Spain cannot remain silent in the face of America's president injustice. The government must not forget the material and moral support of the United States. It would have a great moral effect, unless notions of the justice, and rights of nations no longer exist.

A Madrid despatch of the 22nd says: "Senator Sagasta, the premier, presided at the cabinet council today. The draft of the proposed reply to the United States presented through General Stewart L. Woodford, the American minister, called for his arrival here, was under consideration and was unanimously approved. Its full text has not yet been published. The reply explains that General Weyler has been repudiated for political reasons, and includes a statement of the government's decision to grant autonomy to Cuba and a protest against dilatory negotiations from the United States. The council also approved unanimously the proposal introduced by Senator Moret, minister for the colonies, to grant amnesty to political prisoners in Cuba and Porto Rico. Prior to the meeting of the council Senator Sagasta had a long conference with the Queen Regent at the palace. Senator Gullon, the minister of foreign affairs in the course of an interview to-day denied that there had been the least difference of opinion between the premier and himself as to the course to be pursued, adding that he had communicated to Senator Sagasta the contents of all the despatches from Senator de Lome, the Spanish minister at Washington, and had consulted the premier on all instructions sent to Senator de Lome."

BETTER THAN THE KLONDIKE.

Mrs. E. Winkworth, Morrison Street, Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "I was attacked by kidney trouble about two years, and steadily grew worse until November last, when I became so low that I thought I would live only a short time longer. The doctor here pronounced me a complication of Bright's disease and dropsy, and said I could not get well. Dr. McDonald advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills as it was my only chance to get well. I did so and now can truly say that I owe my life to following his advice for I am strong and well to-day. My life has been spared to my three children and I think Doan's Pills are worth their weight in gold."

The Drummond county railway was formally opened from St. Hyacinthe to Chaudiere on last Friday by a special train passing between these points containing one hundred and seventy-five persons, members of parliament, judges, and the most prominent business men of Montreal. Nine cars made up the train, which was greeted at all stations along the line by large crowds of applauding people.
