WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XI.
A Bid For Love.

"Yes. Look here, Olivia, we've been beating about the bush long enough. You've treated me like a dog—yes, you have; or like the dirt under your feet. And I don't deserve it. No, by God! for I spared the old man—"

"You spared—?"
"Yes, I did. I could have told him what a cleft stick I'd got him in, but I didn't; I knew you wouldn't like it. I knew you'd rather he remained in ignorance till the affair was over."

"I'm afraid you are wasting your breath, Mr. Bradstone," said Olivia. "I do not in the least comprehend you—"

"But you will presently," he said, with a half-cunning, half-furious smile. "Look here; your father, the squire, is, as he put it, a fraud—"

She drew herself up, and sent a lightning shot from her eyes that made him quail.

"Leave the room!" she exclaimed, pointing to the door.

"Stop!" he said. "Wait!" for she had swept, with the dignity of an insulted goddess toward the bell. "So help me Heaven, it is true! He will tell you so himself, if you are foolish enough to ask him. He is a fraud—well, well, he's a ruined man, then. Up to his neck in debts, the Grange is sunk, the very furniture under a bill of sale; nothing can save him—nothing. He will have to turn out, neck and crop. Turn out! You don't know what that means. But he goes! The day he leaves here a ruined, broken man, dates his death-warrant! It does, by Heaven! and out he goes, unless you accept me, Olivia!"

"Unless—unless— Oh, you are mad!" she panted.

"Am I? No, I'm not. It's you who are mad—with pride. Do you think I'm an idiot and don't know what I'm talking about? What I tell you is true; and what is more, I hold your father's bonds—"

"You—"

"Yes," and he nodded, with a smile. "I've got 'em, one and all. At a word from me, he can be sold up and turned out. A word, a sign, and—with a sudden, sudden light in his suspicious restless eyes—"and, by God! I'll do it!"

Look here, it will rest with you! Say you'll be my wife—by Heaven! I'll do my best to make you happy—and the day we're married I'll put the whole of these bonds and mortgages into your hands—you can light a fire with them. And I'll do more; I'll give you twenty thousand pounds—fifty—what do I care! I tell you I'm a millionaire! Money is dirt, stones, dross—you can fling it broadcast, roll in it—"

She stopped him with a gesture, entreating, piteous, desperate.

"Does—does he—my father—know this?" she panted.

He smiled cunningly. "No," he said. "No; I knew better than to tell him. I leave it to you to decide whether he goes out of the Grange to die of a broken heart. He doesn't know it!"

"Thank God!" she cried. "Oh, father, father!" and she sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands.

He stole up to her and ventured—actually dared—to lay his hot hand upon her white arm.

"Hush! hush!" he stammered, "I can hear him coming. Don't—don't cry. You can't help yourself. I'll—I'll leave you to think of it. Remember, it's life or death for him, just that—life or death," and with a thirsty, wistful look, as if he would have liked to catch her up in his arms, he stole from the room.

As he paused outside the door to gain his breath, a smile of triumph shone on his face, wet with perspiration; then suddenly it changed, and his features were momentarily distorted by an expression of abject fear.

Then he seemed to shake off the emotion, and with a husky laugh, he muttered:

"I've got her, and by Heaven, I'll do it! She's worth it!"

CHAPTER XII.
By Proxy.

Little dreaming of the scene that was being enacted by Olivia and Bertie Bradstone, Bertie started on his way home. He meant to walk to Carfield, and to think of Olivia every inch of the way. He had always loved her as a boy, and when they were playmates; but now he found his love of that absorbing kind which masters a man's whole being and dominates his life.

Carfield was no great distance from a young man in first-rate condition, and he set out at a steady pace, thinking of Olivia at every step. Dearly as he loved her—perhaps because he loved her so dearly—he could not summon up courage to tell her so. They had been playmates together; it had been "Oily" and "Bertie" for as long back as he could remember, and yet—yet he had not the courage to go to her and say, "Olivia, be my wife!"

"I am a coward, that's what it is!" he murmured, ruefully. "Now, if it was Paradeane, instead of me—"

He pulled up short. Strangely enough, the comparison had occurred to him at the very moment he was passing the top of the lane in which The Dell stood.

After a moment's hesitation he turned into it and opened the gate. As he did so, he saw, or fancied he saw, the figure of a man cross the path and disappear in the shrubs that grew on each side.

"Is that you, Paradeane?" he said. "Who's there?"

No response came, and deciding that it was a trick of his imagination, aided by lights and shadows, he went up to the door.

It was ajar, which seemed strange to Bertie, and pushing it open, he entered, and opened the door of the sitting-room.

Paradeane was sitting beside the table; he had thrown off his dress coat and waistcoat, and was leaning on the table with his head resting upon his arms.

"Paradeane, old fellow!" said Bertie, softly.

He started, and sprang to his feet, with a look, not of apprehension, but as if it had been suddenly awakened from some painful reverie, and Bertie felt a pang shoot through him at the pallor and the wanness of the handsome face.

"Well, Cherub," he said. "Is it you?"

"Yes, I started you. I'm awfully sorry. Were you asleep, old man?" Paradeane smiled.

"No, only thinking. Well, have you come from the Grange? Sit down."

Bertie sank into the chair with a sigh.

"Yes, I've just come from the Grange. I'm sorry you didn't join us. I left them all talking of your wonderful performance—"

Paradeane made a little gesture of deprecation, as much as to say that he had already received more than his due in that way, and placing a cigar box on the table, lit his pipe.

"It was very kind of you to look in, Cherub," he said; "and I am very glad to see you. Make yourself comfortable, and accept my gratitude—and some whisky-and-water."

"As to gratitude—well, to tell you the truth—but I say, old fellow, I thought I saw you in the garden in the front as I came in just now."

Paradeane shook his head as he held the match to his pipe.

"No, of course not, because you were sitting here; but I could have declared that I saw the figure of a man cross in front of the window—"

Paradeane dropped the match, and strode to the door, then stopped short.

"My man, my gardener, groom, valet, factotum," he said. "He was looking round for the night, I dare say, and he sank down into a chair opposite Bertie's. "And now what was this truth you were going to tell me, Cherub?"

Bertie colored, and shifted in his seat nervously.

"Well, it wasn't altogether an unselfish deed, this dropping in upon you at this time of night. By the way, it is awfully late!"

Paradeane waved his pipe.

"It is never too late to receive a friend, Cherub. Day and night are all one to a man who takes no interest in either. You have come to talk to me—to ask me something. Isn't it so?"

Bertie nodded.

"You always seem to know," he said, with quiet admiration. "I did come to talk to you, to ask you to do me a great favor."

"Consider it granted, even to the half of my kingdom," responded Paradeane. "What is it?"

Bertie was silent for a moment; then, blushing like the rose, and with downcast eyes, he said:

"What—what do you think of her now—of Olivia, Paradeane?"

Paradeane was sitting with his arms folded at the back of his head, his eyes fixed in dreamy patience and kindness upon the fair, girlish face; but at this abrupt question his expression changed and his arms dropped.

"What do I think of Miss Vanley?" he said, in a slow, constrained voice.

"Yes, old fellow. You can't tell how anxious I am to get your opinion. You see, you are the dearest friend I've got, you always were my friend and all that, and I—I naturally—"

Paradeane nodded, and seemingly intent upon his pipe, which had suddenly got stopped up apparently, said: "I think she is a very beautiful girl, Cherub, and something a very great deal better than beautiful."

"I knew you'd say so, but I wanted to hear you say it!" exclaimed Bertie, with suppressed fervor. "I knew you admired her—"

Paradeane raised his head sharply. "You knew that I admired her! How should you know that? Have I shown it in any word or look?"

"No, no; don't be angry, my dear fellow," responded Bertie, quickly. "No, no; but I felt somehow that you did."

Sleepless Nights

You can't sleep because the nerves are irritable and exhausted. Nerve Food cannot give you any lasting help, but Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can.

It cures sleeplessness, irritability, nervous headaches, etc., by restoring vigor and vitality to the run-down and exhausted nervous system. The benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting. 50 cents a box, 4 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edman-son, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

"Oh!"

"And I'm certain she admires you. I'm sure, if you'd seen her face as she sat to-night while you were reciting, and at dimmed time, too, with her eyes fixed upon you—"

Paradeane's pipe seemed to trouble him again.

"Oh, I could see that she was immensely taken with you; and who wouldn't be? Don't smile like that, old man; I mean all I say; and it was because I am sure that—that—she likes you and looks up to you, that I came in here to you to-night. The idea only struck me as I was passing the top of the lane."

"Oh," said Paradeane, quietly; "and what was the idea, Cherub?"

Bertie fidgeted in his chair, and sighed.

"Look here, Cly—"

Paradeane raised his head with a warning glance, and Bertie, coloring crimson, stumbled on:

"I—I beg your pardon; Paradeane, I mean. It's just this: I'm half beside myself to-night. Being with her all this evening has set me all a-quiver, and—and the sight of that fellow Bradstone has upset me so terribly that—that I must—I must know my fate. I can't go on any longer! I've got a dread upon me that if I don't speak out now, at once, and tell her how I love her, and—and ask her to be my wife, that I—that this fellow will get before me, and—"

He stopped and wiped his brow with a hand that quivered.

Paradeane looked at him with his dark, sad eyes.

"And you came to ask my advice? You shall have it. Obey the impulse, Bertie; go and tell her you love her, as you suggest—"

He paused, stopped by a look in Bertie's eyes.

"Well?"

"I—I—that isn't what I wanted," said the Cherub.

"No? What do you want, then?"

"I—I want you to do it for me," said Bertie, in a low voice.

For a moment Paradeane sat motionless and speechless; then he laughed. It was a strange laugh, fuller of pain than of mirth, almost a laugh of bitterness.

"You—want—me to tell her?" he said, slowly.

"Yes," said Bertie, in his eagerness leaning forward with clasped hands. "That's what I want. Try as I will, I can't find the pluck. You'll think I'm a coward, I know. I can't help it, if you only felt as I do! I tell you, old fellow, that when I think of going to her, and saying—what I should have to say—I—I—my voice leaves me. You don't know what she is. She might laugh at me, or she might turn on me with one of those cold, far-away looks in her eyes; and—and both ways of taking it would—would settle me."

BRITISH SUCCESSFUL ATTACK.

BERLIN, Aug. 18. The British with several fresh divisions launched an attack on the German lines north of the Somme and succeeded in driving back the German main line for a short distance on a narrow front southwest of Martinhuich, the War Office announced today. A night attack by the French between Guillemont and Maurepas was futile and costly. The battle is still raging along the German salient to the northeast of Hardecourt.

REORGANIZATION OF GERMAN FORCES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. The Journal today has the following from Paris: A complete reorganization of the German forces on the west front, from Flanders to Alsace, has been effected, it was learned today from authoritative French military sources. Field Marshal Von Mackensen, who commanded the German campaign in Russia a year ago is now in supreme command, except over the forces of the Crown Prince at Verdun. Reinforcements, including all available reserves from the training camps in the interior of Germany have been brought up to the Somme front. A great addition of heavy guns and other artillery also has been made to their defensive apparatus. Regarding the change of commanders on the western front by the German General staff it is believed here to be an acknowledgment of the threatening success of the Anglo-French offensive and at the same time a sharp rebuke to the German General staff heretofore in command on the west.

TURKISH LOSSES.

LONDON, Aug. 18. In the recent operations around Katia, east of the Suez Canal, the losses sustained by the Turkish forces are estimated at 3,000 men, including prisoners, or virtually one half the force, according to a further report on the Egyptian operations given out by the War Office this evening. The report says: The pursuit of the enemy was maintained until the 12th, and it is now possible to form a more accurate idea of the enemy's strength and losses. The enemy force amounted to probably 18,000 men. We took prisoners 49 officers, 3,871 men. Wounded estimated at 4,000. Aggregating in round numbers about 9,000.

The following material also was brought in, a one Krupp battery of 4 guns complete, with accessories and 65 rounds of ammunition, 2,300 rifles with 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition, 9 German machine guns with 30 boxes of ammunition together with large quantities of material and equipment of all kinds, 500 camels and 100 horses. During the retreat the Turks burned a large quantity of stores at Birelabd and abandoned two field hospitals.

FRENCH MAKE FURTHER PROGRESS.

PARIS, Aug. 18. French forces made further progress in the village of Maurepas on the road from Maurepas to Chézy, according to the officers report of this evening. On the remainder of the front during Friday there was the usual bombardments.

DEUTSCHLAND REPORTED.

GENEVA, Aug. 18. A private telegram received today from Berlin by the Neue Zürcher Zeitung says the German submarine Deutschland arrived safely yesterday at Bremen from the United States. The Deutschland sailed from Baltimore, M.D., for Germany on August 1st, passing out to sea the following day. Newport News, Aug. 18.—A captain of a Norwegian steamer which arrived at Hampton Roads for bunker coal, stated today he passed the submarine Deutschland on Aug. 10th, then eight days out from Virginia Cape. The Deutschland was under full sail. The captain said he took her for a sailing ship in distress but received a reply which said she was the Deutschland. The Deutschland had collapsible masts fore and aft when she lay at her wharf at Baltimore.

TURKS IN GALICIA.

BERLIN, Aug. 18. An official statement that Turkish troops are fighting with Germans and Austrians in Galicia was made today by the War Office.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY.

BERLIN, Aug. 18. The birthday of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria-Hungary was celebrated here today on a large scale in military and diplomatic circles. The German press was warm in its expressions of congratulations on his 86th birthday. Many papers extolled the aged monarch's virtues, praying the Austrian Emperor may be spared to see his own country and the world returned the blessings of peace.

MORE CABINET CHANGES.

LONDON, Aug. 18. The Marquis of Crewe, Lord President of the Council, has been appointed President of the Board of Education in the British Cabinet additional to his other duties. Arthur Henderson who is succeeded as President of the Board of Education by Lord Crewe and whose chief duty is the unpaid position of labor adviser to the Government, has been appointed Paymaster General, in succession to Baron Newton who has resigned that office and been appointed Assistant Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Henderson's new position carries with it the Presidency of the Commissioners of the Royal Hospital at Chelsea, who have charge of all military pension matters. Lord Crewe, although appointed to the Presidency of the Board of Education, presumably will continue to take charge of the Foreign Office in event of the temporary absence of Viscount Grey.

NEW ORDER IN COUNCIL.

LONDON, Aug. 18. By a new Order-in-Council the Government is empowered, under the Defence of the Realm Act, to prohibit from entering Ireland any person not a British subject, or who being a British subject has, since the first of March, 1916, come or may hereafter come to the United Kingdom from parts beyond the seas.

THE RAILROAD TROUBLE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18. "Third-day" railroad presidents today told President Wilson they stood by the decision of their managers' committee that an eight hour day was impracticable. President Wilson refused to take "no" for an answer to his proposal that they accept an eight hour day, and asked them to return to the White House tomorrow with their managers for another conference.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

LONDON, Aug. 18. The present week has brought within the range of practical politics a reform which many of its advocates feared the war would postpone perhaps for a generation, the right of women to vote. The strongest force against the realization of woman suffrage in the years immediately preceding the war was the determined opposition of Premier Asquith, hence his virtual conversion, when he said in the Commons on Monday that the undertaking of a new franchise and registration reforms in the midst of a great war was too complex and controversial a problem, implying that any new bill for franchise reforms in the future must of necessity include women as a great surprise. The Premier's announcement is taken on all sides as meaning that women will have a vote before another general election, except in the unlikely event of an election being forced upon the country before the war is ended. According to the "Nation" there are other similar conversions among men of great influence, although Earl Curzon still remains a strong opponent of the women's cause, together with some other ministers. Men of all parties realize that the capacity and willingness to help in the national cause as displayed by women during the war has removed the last obstacle to their receiving political recognition. The Liberal papers are urging the Government to grapple with the problem of adult suffrage without delay on the ground that the coalition Government would be able to smooth the path of reform and calm the fears of the House of Lords as no Liberal Government could.

Chapter of Accidents.

NONOGENARIAN FATALLY INJURED.
A very serious accident, resulting in death, has occurred at Holyrood, the victim being Mr. George Veitch, aged 90 years, who on Sunday last near his home was knocked down by a runaway horse. Mr. Veitch, being a deaf man was not aware of the runaway's approach until it was on him. He was found prone on the road side by friends, and bleeding copiously from several wounds he received. He was attended by Dr. Chisholm. The "surfer" must have been internally injured, as on Wednesday the succumbed without regaining consciousness. Deceased, although having reached such an advanced age was hale and hearty up to the moment he met with the accident. He was a well known landmark of Conception Harbor, a brother of Rt. Rev. Mons. Veitch, of that place and his death is sincerely regretted.

FELL FROM TRAIN.

Mrs. Ferguson, wife of Roadmaster Ferguson, of the Reid Ntd. Company, had a narrow escape from serious injury recently. While boarding a train for the Bonavista branch she was thrown violently to the ground, caused by the sudden moving of the train. However, she was not as badly hurt as at first thought and is now recovering fast.

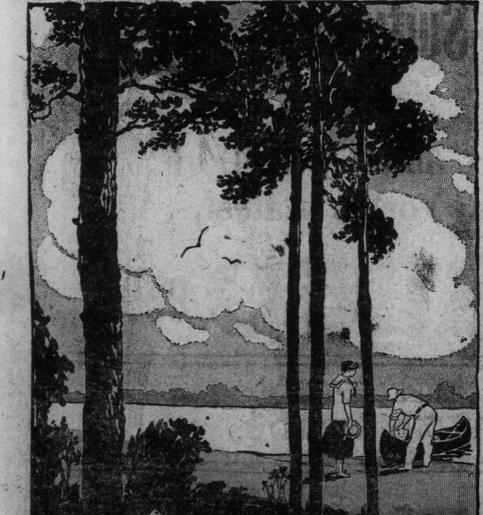

FELL OFF TROLLEY.

Section Foreman Hynes met with a painful accident a few days ago. He fell off a trolley at Placentia Junction and severely bruised his legs, causing him much pain. He is now O. K. again.

A New Foodstuff.

TEPARY BEANS FROM BURMA.
Several experiments have been carried out in Burma in association with the Imperial Institute with a view to the production of beans more suited to the United Kingdom market than those usually grown in Burma. Among the different beans tried is the tepary bean. This bean is grown largely for human consumption by the Indian and Spanish settlers throughout Southern Arizona, United States, and Northern Sonora, Mexico, and its cultivation extends westwards into California.

An analysis of tepary beans grown in Burma has just been made at the Imperial Institute. Full details of this analysis will be given in the forthcoming number of the "Bulletin of the Imperial Institute." It may be said at once, however, that the results indicate that these beans possess a high food value and compare favourably with haricot beans, lentils and peas, which they closely resemble in composition. Hitherto these beans have been practically unknown in this country, but a firm of bean importers states that they should have a ready sale in the United Kingdom and in some of the Allied countries as a substitute for small haricot beans, and if introduced during the war should obtain a good footing in the market. The tepary bean should, indeed, prove a valuable export crop for Burma provided that it grows well and gives good yields. No supplies are yet available for export but it is hoped that with these encouraging reports production on a commercial scale may become possible.

GAINS ON THE WEST FRONT.

LONDON, To-Day.—Further gains of positions in the region of Ghinchy and Guillemont have been captured by the British forces operating in the Somme region, according to an official issued before midnight. More than 200 prisoners were taken by the British during Friday. Fighting took place this afternoon (Friday) over the whole front from Pozières to the Somme. As a result we captured several strong enemy positions and gained ground toward Ghinchy and Guillemont, taking more than 200 prisoners. During the day on the right the French also made progress. Yesterday a German aeroplane was brought down affame in our trenches after an air combat, and a second machine by our anti-aircraft guns. Enemy billets have been successfully bombed at various places by our aircraft.

MANAGERS DO NOT ACCEPT WILSON'S PLAN.

LONDON, To-Day.—President Wilson's plan for a settlement of the threatened nation-wide railroad strike, accepted yesterday by the representatives of the employees, was taken under consideration by the officials of the railroads with many indications that they would reject it to-night. Some of the railroad managers last night that they had reached no definite decision.

ANGLO-FRENCH ADVANCE NIBBLING ITS WAY.

LONDON, To-Day.—Assaults by the British and French forces against German positions north of the Somme in France resulted in the gaining of several ground by the attackers. According to the British and French War Offices the French advance was in and around Maurepas, the scene of much hard fighting during the past few weeks, and the British gain in the direction of Ghinchy and Guillemont, near the southern end of their section of the Somme front. The Anglo-French attacks, London says, took place along the whole line from Pozières to the Somme. The gains reported by Paris and London were the centre of the German positions on the Somme front, and mark another step in the Anglo-French advance toward Comblès. French troops gained more ground in the village of Maurepas, following the stopping of German counter-attacks near the village. Calvary Hill, southeast of the village, was carried by assault, and the French position on the Maurepas-Clergy Road was also extended. British troops advanced successfully in the region of Ghinchy and Guillemont and seized more German positions. London mentions no other gain on any other part of this front. The Anglo-French forces captured more than 400 prisoners in their advance. The French offensive continues on the right bank of the Meuse in the Verdun region. Paris chronicles the capture of two fortified redoubts northwest of the Thiaumont woods. Progress is also reported for the French east of Vant-Chapitre Wood. Berlin reports attacks by the French and British forces of the Somme, but says they were repulsed in the direction of Martinpuich. The French gain around Fleury in the Verdun region is admitted. There is little activity on the Eastern front, according to official reports, most of the fighting being in the Carpathian Mountains region, where both the Russians and Austro-Germans claim to have made some slight advances. Petrograd says the Austro-Germans are attacking in Galicia but with no success. The Teutonic Allies have taken the offensive on the Greco-Serbian frontier north of Saloniki. Berlin reports the capture of the Greek town of Florina from Serbian troops. This movement is probably the answer to the recent Entente Allied activity on the same front. Artillery bombardments are taking place on the Austro-Italian front around Gorizia. Rome claims an advance for the Italians in the Trentino.

Our Returned Heroes.

We greet you with a loving smile;
We meet you with true hearts to-day.
Ye heroes of our native Isle
Who from us spent two years away.

In all that time we have been true;
And when from us you did depart,
Our prayers we offered for you, too,
All emanating from the heart.

We greet you, brothers, to our shores;
We meet you with the love we shared
In fancy for our souls with yours—
Were in the dangers which you dared.

It matters not about the creed,
The different ways which each possess,
For 'tis alone the noble deed
Which God above does truly bless.

You fought, and that's enough to know,
For honor, home, and liberty,
A debt we really to you owe
For fighting for to keep us free.

We greet you with a loving smile,
Long may the flag you fought for wave!
You're welcome to your native Isle
"Home of the free, land of the brave."

Gallipoli and France Veterans Receive Big Welcome Home.

By the express which reached town at 2 p.m. to-day eleven Gallipoli and France veterans returned on furlough or as medically unfit. Their names are:—Corporals D. Hackett, S. Cornick, L. Bartlett, T. Christopher; Privates Ed. Notall, William Roberts, C. Robertson, R. G. Grieve, Y. Pearce, J. Knight. Shortly before the train reached, the station a large number of people assembled on the platform, to welcome the returning heroes. Included in the number were the members of the Ladies Reception Committee, the Hon. J. R. Bennett, Acting Premier, relatives and friends of the returning soldiers. As the veterans stepped to the platform they were greeted with hearty cheers. The volunteers now in training, headed by their drum and bugle band, were present to welcome their comrades. Hon. J. R. Bennett on behalf of the Ladies Reception Committee and the country at large welcomed the returned heroes. The men were then taken in automobiles to Government House, where Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Chairman of the Reserve Force Committee, whom His Excellency has delegated to act for him during his absence, received the men in a whole-hearted manner and thanked them for the valuable services they had rendered the Empire. Bunting flew to the breeze from almost every business place and hundreds of private dwellings.

FOR VALOUR!

AMSTERDAM, To-Day.—In recognition of his sinking one hundred vessels of the Entente Allies, Walter Prastmann, Commander of a German submarine, is being given the order of Pour le Mérite by the German Emperor says a Berlin despatch received here. The ships sunk by him, including war vessels, aggregate 250,000 tons; their total value is estimated at 20,000,000 pounds sterling, the despatch adds.

RECOGNISE AUTONOMY OF POLAND.

LONDON, To-Day.—According to special despatches to Dutch newspapers, says the Exchange Telegraph Amsterdam correspondent, Germany and Austria have reached an agreement providing for recognition of the autonomy of Poland. The despatches add that an announcement to the effect has been made at Warsaw.

11.30 A.M.

NEW DIVISIONS MOVED TO THE SOMME.

LONDON, To-Day.—The terrible losses incurred in the Somme fighting have both sides to bring up new formations. According to despatches reaching here to-day it is reported that Canadians recently transferred from the Ypres front took a large part in yesterday's attack, together with Australians and New Zealanders. The Berlin statement to-day reports the arrival of several new British divisions, while a semi-official communication issued in Paris says that the Germans have been obliged to call up twenty-two new divisions to the Somme. These troops it is said have been withdrawn from other parts of the western front. Three of the German divisions on the Somme have been badly smashed up, it is asserted, and been withdrawn, while six others after a rest have been recruited to strength and sent to hold the weak sections of the lines.

HUGE AUSTRIAN LOSSES.

LONDON, To-Day.—According to the elaborate calculations of Col. Gabionski, the Russian critic, the Austrian losses in June and July reached the enormous total of 320,000.

Banker Ashore.

While beating in the harbor at 11 o'clock this forenoon, the Lunenburg banking schooner, Frances mis-stayed and went ashore near the Southside, grounding on a rock known as "Little Pancake." The Frances was coming here for supplies from the Grand Banks, where she had been fishing the past few weeks and she had 800 qts. of codfish on board. At the time of the mishap it was calm and there was a high tide. The vessel was held firmly on the rock, but after unloading some of her fish cargo and with the aid of the tug D. F. Ingraham, the banker was refloated at noon, without having sustained damage. She was then towed to Downing's wharf to get the supplies she required.

An Appropriate Hymn.

Indianapolis News.—Hymn No. 224 in a British compilation called "Hymns Ancient and Modern," is known as "the admiral's hymn." The reason, therefore, was the bringing down of a Zeppelin off the Schleswig-Holstein coast by two English warships. The admiral recognizing this service, signalled the captain: "Hymns Ancient and Modern, No. 224, Last Verse." The last stanza reads:

O happy band of pilgrims,
Look upward to the skies,
Where such a light affliction
Shall win so great a prize.

When potting plants, put a piece of coarse muslin over the hole in the pot before putting in the bits of stone and soil, which keeps the drainage good. The muslin prevents the earth

The sweet potato makes a very pretty prior vase. Put the tuber in sand in a hanging basket and water occasionally.

The Disappointed Mrs. Scandal-Lover.

By RUTH CAMERON.

MISS CAMERON

The Howard Grahams don't get along very well together. The Howard Grahams (I call them that because of course, it is not their real name) are a young married couple in our town. They have been married only two years, and they seem very happy. The above delightful piece of news was brought to me by one of those restless women who find their greatest happiness in discovering that other people are not happy. She licked her chops over the discovery.

She fairly licked her chops over this, all the while pretending to feel very sorry about it.

I asked her what made her think they didn't get along and she told the following story:

She had seen them coming home one night on the grolley. He looked haggard and unhappy and she noticed they were talking very earnestly. She couldn't hear what they said, because they sat several seats in front of her (naive detail), but she felt sure there was something wrong. And then, all of a sudden, he got up and left the car alone, although they were at least two miles from their stop and it was after twelve at night. And then, what did she do but spring up and leave the car at the next stop. Evidently they were quarreling and they must be pretty far gone to do it so openly.

It Did Sound Like A Quarrel. It sounds bad, doesn't it?

No wonder Mrs. Scandal-Lover licked her chops. But wait a bit. A few days later Mrs. Howard Grahams came to call on me. And in the course of the conversation she said, "I was walking past your house at half-past twelve the other night and I saw a light in your study. Do you often work as late as that?" "No," said I. "Do you often take walks as late as that?" "I should say not!" said she. "My dear, I had the most awful time that night!" "Naturally I pricked up my ears. One of Those Experiences That are Funnier in Retrospect Than At The Time." "It's one of those things that seem funny to look back at," she went on, "though it was pretty uncomfortable at the time. We were coming home late from a bridge and Howard had one of his spasms of car-sickness. He said he should faint (or worse) if he didn't get off the car. I wanted to get off with him, but it was the last car, so we'd have to wait, and I had on some silly little high-heeled shoes that murder me, and he didn't want me to. He said he'd be all right and he wouldn't get off at all if I insisted. Well, I know I should be worried to death about him, but I let him get on and then I got off at the next stop. I don't know what people thought was the trouble with us." "Naturally, I didn't tell her." "But I did tell Mrs. Scandal-Lover the story." She looked disappointed. "It sounds a little bit fishy to me," she said.

The Censor Museum.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)
The war museum in the Postal-Censor's office is an interesting object lesson in Teutonic craft. It is a queer jumble of things extracted from the letter post—things that have no right to be there. The importance of the collection is that it will go far to convince neutrals that if we search the mails it is for justifiable reasons. The museum looks like a German jumble sale. The tables are loaded with an extraordinary variety of small articles, such as our blockade makes difficult for the Germans to get—anything that will go in a letter packet, from a football bladder to a piece of bacon.

If the Censor was a little less exacting the Germans would have used the letter post to some purpose. The rubber exhibits are the best illustration of the German ingenuity in finding a loophole in the blockade. Here are some neat packages of pure rubber addressed to Hamburg. They are samples of some three thousand similar packages taken from registered letter-bags and addressed to a commonplace neutral for forwarding to Germany.

A favorite dodge is to make up a packet that looks like a magazine roll, but which, when examined, is found to contain rubber in some form—sheet and valve rubber, and so on. One of the cleverest notions was to make up rubber to look so like a well-known make of golf ball that a golfer would be deceived unless he bounced it. It occurred to one exporter to slip a thin sheet of rubber in letters, and there were thousands of those letters. Many of the packets have double covers. The outer cover is addressed to a neutral, whose function is to strip it off and pass the contraband article to the real address on the inner one.

The most common form of bogus letter packet is the bundle of newspapers. They look quite innocent, but the two ends are plugs of newspapers and in between is a long salvo bag, which may contain rice, tea, cocoa, oatmeal, or anything to eat. Two pounds of coffee were discovered in what seemed a roll of hyphenated journals.

Some idea of the value of food in Germany can be gained from the postage paid on parcels. The prize exhibit in this line is a twelve-pound piece of bacon (or rather its wrapping, for the bacon was distinctly high when found), with stamps amounting in value to 30s. Large packages of coffee, trying to look like printed matter, were plastered with stamps. Inside the fluted cardboard, enclosing a photograph (there always is a real photograph), are inserted knitting needles or bars of nickel. Boots are favorite articles with the postal smugglers. An artistic touch is to wrap the boots in a piece of best gold leather.

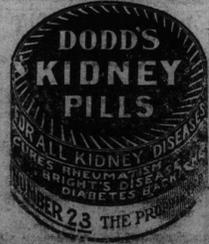

One would have thought that in all these cases the abnormally high postage paid would have been enough to give the show away. Evidently any risk is worth while just now. The jewellery, toys, and other commercial samples seized in the post are not contraband, but are detained in order to prevent enemy trading.

There is a most interesting collection of German war medals, including the notorious Lusia one, and a bitter design showing Viscount Grey as Admiral Death flying neutral flags in a ship, and Von Kluck's unlucky Paris medal. The two Iron Crosses were sent by the firm that makes them for the German Government to a German in a neutral country. The letter advised the recipient to avoid suspicion by saying that he won them in the 1870 war.

The joke of the museum is a letter addressed by a friend of ours across the sea to "William Hohenzollern, Berlin. If the party is not there please forward to St. Helena." It contained a cartoon of the Kaiser and the Crown Prince before Verdun. "Our Gallipoli father," says the Crown Prince.

Allied "Squeeze" Will End the War

Declare Lords Derby and Northcliffe.

London, August 12.—The great allied "squeeze," the latest phase of which was the fall of Gorizia at the hands of the Italians, has stopped, "the German pendulum" and will end the war in the favor of the entente powers, Lord Derby and Lord Northcliffe declared in significant statements made to correspondents here. The heavy blow delivered at Austria immensely increases Germany's burden, they say. Their interviews follow:—

We are, I suppose, firing away money at the rate of $10,000,000 daily, and our artillery never ceases against the subterranean German fortresses which I have lately explored. On the whole, the appearance of the German prisoners is quite different from those I met even a few months ago. But then we had practically no artillery. Now we have unlimited guns and shells and there is nothing old-fashioned in our equipment. Owing to the fact that we started with nothing, everything we now have is the latest and best. The Germans count the fact that the training of artillery officers in peace time is a matter of some years. Our gunners are already as accurate as the Germans. Our guns are newer, and inasmuch as the Germans are afraid to send up their aeroplanes and observation balloons, our batteries know what they are doing, whereas the Germans are firing blindly.—LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

As a whole the problem must be considered from the standpoint of the effect on other fronts, in the first place, and of the number of Germans we are able to kill. We have prevented the sending of vast German forces to the eastern front, where the Russians are making impressive progress, while it is indisputable that the latest offensive on the western front has relieved the pressure upon Verdun. Every Austrian killed or captured must be replaced with a German. This process cannot go on forever. The pendulum, now stopped, will not again swing for the Germans. We are killing many Germans, and this work will eventually end the war. It is foolish to belittle our own troops by belittling the Germans. Although they are no longer the "top tiger," they are still fighting like tigers. We are applying pressure on all sides and will continue to apply it until the successful conclusion of the war.—LORD DERBY.

AT THE CRESCENT.

The Crescent's variety programme to-day is a splendid week-end offering that is sure to please the patrons of this popular Movie Theatre. Blanche Sweet and Lionel Barrymore are presented in a powerful Biograph drama, "A Chance Deception." Joseph Byron Totten features in a strong drama of political intrigue, "On The Private Wire" produced in two reels. It Happened in Snakeville" is a fine Snakeville comedy drama, and the greatest acrobats and jugglers in America, Burns and Stull are the fun-makers in "The High Sign" a lively Vim comedy. The new musical program is a feature of this big show. On Monday a great four reel feature "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" a picturization of Maurice Maeterlinck's famous novel. Your Boys and Girls.

A normal baby immediately after birth can hear and see, feel pain, and cry when uncomfortable or hungry. If not handled up too tightly it exercises the arms and legs and muscles of the body by natural movements.

At one month it begins to locate direction of sound and can follow a bright light. At 2 months responds to the snapping of fingers and follows bright objects. At three months head erect, turns it steadily from side to side, smiles when talked to, grasps bright objects and coos. At four months begins to recognize those who fondle him and brings everything to his mouth.

At five months knows its mother, father, puts out his hands to be taken, and stops crying when food is brought near. At six months sits up in a chair with a slight support and is interested in its surroundings. At seven months recognizes familiar faces from a distance, grasps objects placed within reach and laughs aloud. Smiles to everybody and cries when scolded. Begins to imitate sounds.

At eight months attempts to stand if held erect, attempts to creep. At nine months knows its name. Holds and carries its bottle to its mouth. Able to bite off solid food. If properly trained indicates its desire for attention. At twelve months stands alone or by holding on lightly to a chair, etc. Knows the difference between the articles of food it is accustomed to eat.

We have excellent photographs of Capt. Father Nangle (N.F.L.D. Regiment) for sale at 50c., $1.00, $1.50. Outport orders receive every attention. J. C. PARSONS, Bank of Montreal Building, St. John's, Nfld. 11230.spd.11

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

TO THE WANDERERS' MANAGER.

Take seven parts of hurricane,
And eight of dynamite;
Add fourteen parts of flame and flash
And twenty parts of fight;
Toss in another twelve for speed,
And raw nerve and for vim,
And if it breaks the ball game up
You'll know the answer's TIM.

The old veterans, the Wanderers, are ably sustaining their reputation, and are now leading the League at the beginning of the second and final round.

We are not trying to alibi the B. I. S. and neither are we knocking their new catcher—O'Reilly—who considering his youth and inexperience did remarkably well but we are ready to criticize Mr. McGrath for being guilty of such "an error of judgment" in taking a chance on an unknown quantity, and playing his regular backstop (with whom they won their previous games) out in right field. The result was that of the Wanderers' nine runs, six of them were allowed or passed balls.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
All past performances which won acclaim,
Are swept aside and instantly forgot
Where A BONE IS PULLED which throws a game.

The B. I. S. had their great chance, but—The saddest words of tongue or pen,—what might have been, what might have been!

King was in great form, and had 15 strikeouts to his credit.
The Irish twirler—Carew—also had good stuff but was apparently a bit nervous. He gave 5 Hartnettites free transportation to first, but got 9 strikeouts.

The Cubs have pulled up in great style and played snappy vigorous ball. Billy Orr has a nice assortment of curves, and in Wednesday's game fanned 9 Lions.
Bill Cooney pitched well but received no support. He put 8 Cubs down for the count and passed only one.
Joe Murphy, of the Cubs, headed the batting list in both games, scoring three runs.

To the losers we would say:—
When FATE begins to land upon your head,
When FAILURE tries to drive you from the game;
Or TROUBLE starts to chase you from the scene;
There is nothing very pleasant in the clout
That will send you toppling downward but the air.
But there's nothing you should bother much about
IF—THEY DON'T KEEP YOU THERE.

Says City of Ghent lost a Man Overboard.

The chief of police is in receipt of a letter from Fisheries Protection Officer John Dillon, of Guysboro county, in reference to an occurrence near Drum Head. The letter is as follows:—
Dear Sir,—I notice by The Halifax Herald of August 8th that Mrs. James Cooper, of 21 Field Street, St. John's, Nfld., is asking for information concerning her son's whereabouts. She thinks he shipped on a steamer sailing out of Halifax and has not heard of him for some time.

I wish to inform you that some fishermen in Drum Head, east of Isaac's Harbor, informed me that the City of Ghent, while sailing thru the sound of Drum Head and Seal Harbor on her voyage to England, is supposed to have lost a man, as he was seen by the people from the shore and by men in boats fishing near, swimming in the water and crying for help. The steamer was stopped and

The only difference between the Submarine and the Lions is—that the submarine finally came up for air.
Some batters are objecting to the delivery of the Wanderers' pitcher. They state he is using a foreign substance in shooting the pill.
Better look into this; perhaps it's brains.

We have received a letter from "An Old Cricketer" agitating for better English in reporting ball games.

All wrong, kid. Only rotten English can describe a punk ball game, although at that when the swatter takes two, breezes a couple of more, wrecks the next away stern of the backstop, and finally picks a splitter to the centre field barrier for a four-ply gallop with the sacks soused, we agree the reporter should spill the facts so the average fan can swallow 'em with his eggs in the morning. Pure English? Well, we should swallow a camel. That's us, Rollo.

"You are old, Doctor Pritchard," the MAC-MEN cried.

"And your arm is decrepid and lame."
"It's many a day since your old whip dled—"

"Pray how do you stick in the game?"
"I am stale and off colour," the Doctor replied.
"And my arm's a bit bum I admit."
"And I often feel peevish about it," he sighed.
As he slammed out a two-base hit.

One way of beating the Weather Man might be to keep the date and hour of the ball games a strict secret until the last minute. That's why we'll just whisper that the B. I. S. and Cubs are scheduled to clash at 10.30 Wednesday morning, and the Lions and Wanderers in the afternoon at 2.30.

This last round which will start next Wednesday's games will likely witness the hardest fought contests yet played since Baseball was introduced into Newfoundland. The Wanderers are the favourites, with the B. I. S. and Cubs splitting honours fifty-fifty close up to them, though the Irishmen are leading the Cubs in points. Still, there's no telling when the Lions will come to their senses and display that old-time dash and vigour for which they were noted two or three seasons ago. That is why we are constrained to say for the benefit of all the teams:—

You've got to keep going on NERVE. The finish is not like the start.
Your Club may have won at the flash of the gun.
But the bell lap takes gameness and heart.
When the Ball Clubs are bunched near the wire
It's up to the players to land.
The ARM and EYE keep you up in July.
BUT YOU WIN IN THE END ON YOUR SAND.

We have to thank someone for a poetic effusion on why shouldn't Baseball be played here on Sunday's. Appreciating the fact that the topic is rather a delicate one, the sender writes us rather timidly requesting us to publish it. It reached us too late for publication in to-day's column, but it will appear on Tuesday. We don't know who the author is, and the fact of its being published in this column does not necessarily imply that we agree with his views, for we are ready to publish anything (sender's name not necessary), provided it's not an abusive tirade on the League either its officials or players.

a boat put out, but the people at Drum Head claim he was not rescued.

"Since then I understand, a man's cap has been picked up in the vicinity. The fishing boats who saw the trouble also went after him, but did not get to the spot as quickly as the steamer's boats.

"When the men in the steamer's boat was asked if they had lost a man they did not answer and the people of the Drum Head claim the man was lost, although the steamer did not report losing a man when she arrived in Louisburg.

"I thought I had better let you know of the report as this may be the man in question."—Halifax Evening Mail, August 12.

WITH Welch's Grape Juice!

When you buy WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE you are buying QUALITY. When you buy inferior brands of Grape Juice costing a cent or two a bottle less than WELCH'S, why not buy a five cent bottle of Red Ink instead and be done with it. You won't notice the difference in the flavor.

WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE has come to stay, and next season I have plans for starting some premium scheme in connection with WELCH'S along the lines of that one so excellently conducted by The Imperial Tobacco Co. (Nfld.), Ltd. For the balance of this year I will exchange tickets at The Nickel Theatre for labels from WELCH GRAPE JUICE bottles; one ticket will be given for the following number of labels:

- 3 Labels from the Half Gallon size, or
- 2 Labels from the Quart size, or
- 10 Labels from the Pint size, or
- 15 Labels from the Half Pint size, or
- 30 Labels from the "Nip" (4 oz.) size.

If tickets are preferred at any of the five cent theatres only half the number of labels given above are required for one ticket.

Labels from the outports received through the mail will be redeemed for Cash—the number of labels required for one Nickel ticket having a Cash value of 8 cents.

IN ADDITION TO ABOVE: TO THE PERSON COLLECTING THE GREATEST NUMBER OF THE TIN CAP STOPPERS FROM WELCH GRAPE JUICE BOTTLES BETWEEN THIS DATE AND DECEMBER 1ST I WILL PRESENT—

(If a Lady) AN ORDER ON MISS MAY STICK OR MISS MAY FURLONG FOR A HAT TO BE CHOSEN BY WINNER AND TO COST $15.

(If a Gentleman) AN ORDER ON GEORGE KEARNEY OR JOHN ANDERSON FOR HOSIERY TO THE SUM OF $15.

Labels can be redeemed at any time.

Stoppers will be received at any time after November 1st.

Remember: WELCH GRAPE JUICE Labels and Stoppers only. Those from other brands of Grape Juice will be dumped in the waste paper basket as quickly as received.

NOW GET BUSY! DRINK WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE AND SAVE THE LABELS AND CAPS.

A Florizel Passenger

Describes the Drowning of Fireman Babstock.
The following letter was received yesterday by a gentleman in town from Mr. Edward Rudolph, a representative of the Evening World, New York. Mr. Rudolph was here on a visit arriving by the Florizel; he was an eye-witness of the loss of the unfortunate fireman Babstock, which sad event, as our readers know, occurred this day week.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 14, 16.

My Dear Sir,—You have probably heard about the drowning of Stanley Babstock, coal trimmer, who leaped overboard as the Florizel was passing out of the "gap" of St. John's last Saturday. Here are the facts and you may use them as you see fit: There had been trouble between certain coal trimmers before the Florizel threw off her yegs. Soon after the pilot left the vessel, Babstock appeared on the forward deck and acting as though his mind was unbalanced. His fellow workers collared him, when suddenly he broke away and ran over to the port rail. Before those near could take hold of him he jumped into the water. Capt. Martin, who was on the bridge with his officers, signalled to stop the vessel and ordered a lifeboat lowered. The lifeboat was cut away and a crew was soon making for Babstock who was about a hundred yards astern. As the boat pulled away another coal passer named Hearn jumped from the aft main deck. The lifeboat crew picked him up and then continued on to get Babstock. Then Whalen, a coal passer, was about to leap overboard but was pulled back over the rail by the deck steward and some passengers. Meantime the Florizel was compelled to make for the open sea owing to the narrowness of the entrance. Once outside Capt. Martin headed the Florizel back towards St. John's. It was seen that the lifeboat was returning in tow of the pilot motor boat, Babstock having gone to his fate. The Florizel had to and the lifeboat was lifted to her davits. Let me say here that under the existing circumstances, a narrow entrance and a choppy sea, Capt. Martin, his officers and crew did everything possible to save Babstock. The passengers were high in their praise over the coolness of Capt. Martin and his officers, and the efforts they made to get the drowning man. Of course there was the usual excitement attending such an incident, but the passengers are satisfied that the drowning of Babstock was no fault of the steamer's company or officers and crew. There were other smaller boats nearer Babstock, but the men aboard them probably did not see him.

I remain, Yours very truly, EDWARD RUDOLPH.

Grand Complexion Improver! Better Than Cosmetics

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth to faded cheeks, when skin disfigurements can be removed, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics? Go to the root of the trouble—remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of. How much happier you'll feel—plump cheeks, rosy cheeks, eyes bright, spirits good, joyous health again returned. Never a failure with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, get a 25c. box to-day.

Canadian Captain

Looks for Speedy End of the War. The following letter was received by Mr. Robert French, of Harbor Grace, from a captain commanding a battalion of the Canadian Brigade to which Mr. French's son "Sandy" belongs:

France, 25/11/16. Dear Mr. French—Sandy just left here for his billet. I was so glad to see him. Although we are both in the same brigade it is remarkable how seldom we have been able to look one another up. Our first meeting was at Valcartier, the next at Baillou last January, and then we lost sight of one another until yesterday when he came over for a lecture and stayed to have a drink of "enthusiasm" with me.

He tells me that Levi Verge and Arch Courage have been killed. I am very sorry indeed to hear that, and no doubt there have been a great many more of our boys knocked out in the Somme offensive. I reek of the out-ging of the four Ayres. How dreadful for the poor folks at home. One is brought to think that there is something Christ-like in the sacrifice on the field and something God-like in the quiet grief at home, for one "Gave his life for his friends," and the other "Gave his only Son." How true it is that in this "War on War," the soldiers give their lives for their friends and the fathers and mothers are giving their only sons and more often than not their only two. Out here of course we do not think of our pain but that of those at home, while you are always wondering how goes it with my boy in France. That makes the worry general and it is a question as to who is bearing the bigger load.

Sandy looks well. He is a very big and healthy looking fellow and God help the Hun he marks for his man in his Colonel's platoon commander tells me that in the last fight (June 13th) your son distinguished himself and his name is mentioned for mention by his Colonel. I am sure you will be pleased to hear that.

Things are growing more lively every day. It portends the speedy end of the war, I hope. We have been at it a long time now and while one cannot imagine a war becoming monotonous, still, it is getting wearisome for the old hands.

With kind regards to your family. Very sincerely yours, D.S.

Whaling News

Up to a fortnight ago the whaler Cachalot, operating at Hawke's Harbor, Labrador, had landed thirty-three of the leviathans. At the time the Labrador mail steamer was passing, whales were reported to be plentiful, and conditions for hunting them were favourable, so that it is supposed the Cachalot has augmented its catch considerably since last report. News from her is expected by the 8:30 Sagona now due.

When he highly recommends the Buddy Boot to fishermen, they understand he knows from experience that the Buddy Boot is the kind that they have always been looking for, and the kind that will ensure the greatest amount of satisfaction.—aug12,s,w,t

The Wrecked Steamer Matatia.

Virtually all the lumber cargo of the stranded steamer Matatia at Peter's River, has been taken out of her. Three Halifax wrecking tugs, including the Stella Maris, with the necessary equipment will endeavor to refloat the vessel, which is estimated by divers she will come on here to be dry docked for repairs.

His Grace Visits Placentia Bay.

Special to Evening Telegram. PARADISE, To-day. Archbishop Roche accompanied by Monsignor Reardon and St. John and Father Fyne arrived here this evening after having completed visitation of Bar Haven Parish where His Grace confirmed 250 candidates. The archiepiscopal party left Bar Haven on Thursday and harbored for the night at St. Kyran's. To-day His Grace arrived at Odein and Pett Force and confirmed one hundred and fifty. To-morrow he will administer confirmation here to about one hundred and then proceed to St. Kyran's.

S. A. Congress.

Salvationists and their many friends are arranging to give a very hearty welcome to their Territorial Leader, Commissioner Richards, who is scheduled to arrive in St. John's on August 24th. The purpose of the Commissioner's visit is to conduct the Annual Congress, and make a general inspection of the Army's work on the island. About one hundred and fifty officers, from all parts of the Island, will take part in these meetings, and already a number of them from the more distant settlements have arrived, and others will be arriving during the early part of the week. The first meeting of the Congress will be held in the S. A. Citadel, New Gower St., on Thursday evening, August 24th, when the local forces will welcome their Leader. The College Hall has been secured for Sunday, August 27th, and at 3 p.m. the Commissioner will lecture on the "Social and Missionary Work of the Army." His Excellency the Governor has kindly consented to preside at this meeting, he will be supported by the Commissioner of Citizens. Extensive preparations are being made for the public gatherings, and great enthusiasm prevails among the local Salvationists, who are anticipating a very successful series of meetings.

The Governor's Visit.

Under the direction of the zealous and energetic pastor, Rev. F. O'Brien, the annual garden party at Bay Bulls for church purposes will take place to-morrow. The affair promises to be the best yet and nothing is being left undone for the pleasure and enjoyment of visitors. A special train leaves St. John's at 12:30 p.m. to-morrow, and returning leaves Bay Bulls at 2 a.m. Monday.

DUNLOP TIRES
SEAL OF QUALITY
AUTOMOBILE
TRACTION TREAD

Twenty-two years experience means that into Dunlop Traction Tread, and into Dunlop Special, we put all the knowledge which has been accumulated through those years of successfully serving Canadians because we thoroughly understand Canadian conditions.

It means that years ago we faced and mastered the issues with which other tire-makers are confronted to-day.

True, a few tire users occasionally swing their allegiance from Dunlop to some other make, but it is almost a certainty those same tire users will come back to "Dunlop Traction Tread" or "Dunlop Special."

In the end, it is the tire maintaining the best quality average that wins out; and we surely know more about quality averages in Canada than any other maker, seeing our experience is as great as that of all other tire makers in this country combined.

The guns themselves are blind. On the western front—which is essentially our front—the days of direct fire have passed. They went away after Mons and the Great Retreat, the Marne, the Aisne, and the degeneration of open fighting into siege warfare. It is true that on very rare occasions since—Ypres has seen most of the occasions—guns have been presented the target they delight in, something they can see. How, then, are the guns directed upon suitable objects which may present themselves, when the gunners cannot see them? They are guided by observers stationed in favourable places from which the enemy's territory can be overlooked. The observers are linked with the batteries by telephone. The observers are the eyes of the guns.

There are several systems of observation in use at the present time. Some of them are secret and therefore sacred. But the three most extensively used are common property and will pass the censor.

Practically all the observation for artillery is done by officers, as the work is of a highly technical and complicated character. Observation posts—commonly spoken of as "O. By a wonderful code of signals they "tip the wink" to the great creatures of iron and steel concealed below them whenever they sight a target far behind the enemy's lines worthy of their attention.

The "sausage" balloons stand sentinel over the distant territory, lying behind the German lines. They are a permanent watch, whereas the aeroplanes are scouts. The "sausages," floating high in the air like mines set in the depths of a light blue sea, form a chain of guards along the whole of the British front. Sitting in the light basket suspended from his balloon the officer in charge sees below him a vast panorama of country rolled out like a great map beneath his feet. At present most of it is as inaccessible to our troops as the moon, but—some day—

On this enormous map he sees threads of silver along which clouds of white smoke travel up and down. The threads are railway lines, the smoke rises from the stacks of locomotives pulling German trains. He sees dark caterpillars crawling along networks of roads which look like spiders' webs. The caterpillars are German troops. Occasionally he telephones to his batteries far below him, and immediately afterwards the trains or the caterpillars disappear in a cloud of smoke. There are other things which do not move—fortified houses, camps, dug-outs—and when our artillery choose to destroy them the "sausage" directs their fire.

The observation posts are numerous. Every mile of German line is watched by several of them which spend their time noting every movement and reporting on the result of each British shot. The gunners are a curious set of men. They do not deal in blood like the infantry, and the work of smashing up the Boche is to them merely a scientific process. The subaltern who sits in his "O. Pip" takes the same pride in the ability of his battery to demolish an enemy earthwork with one shell as that of a crack bowler in taking wickets.

Through the narrow slit in the "O. Pip," cunningly sited and hidden, he sees a picture. The scene contains a few shattered houses, perhaps a wood or two, rows of shell-stripped trees, and far away an indistinct line of grey, which wriggles across the country from one side of the picture to the other. Seen through the subaltern's telescope the grey line becomes the German parapet of sandbags and soil.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.
Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything; my glasses are unnecessary; my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The doctor's remedy seemed busy with me without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear; can even read the print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bone-Opto tablets. Drop one Bone-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Notes: Another prominent physician to whom the above prescription was submitted, says: "I have used it many times. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent ophthalmologists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturer's guarantee fits to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances without glasses. It is a guaranteed true eye good draught and is one of the very best prescriptions I have had for years and has cured me in almost every family."

Fashions and Fads.

To make a faded cotton dress pure white, boil it in water which has half a cupful of cream of tartar to two gallons of water.
The simplest of all salads—lettuce with French dressing—is never too little for a light meal, nor too much for a heavy one.
Screw small hooks inside some of the cupboard doors—they are exceedingly handy for hanging articles like potholders, corkcrawls, etc.
Rusty steel should be covered with a thin coat of oil to prevent rusting. It should first be wiped as dry as possible, and it should not be very cold before dipping into the fat.
A Russian salad is made from one onion, two apples and four cucumber pickles, all chopped fine and seasoned with salt, cayenne and vinegar.
The good housekeeper is the one who keeps her house in perfect condition all the time instead of having a wild housecleaning every little while.
Almost any cold vegetable is delicious in a salad but is should be remembered that there should be two parts of oil to one of vinegar in the dressing.
When you have not quite enough new peas for pea soup, cut up a few new potatoes, boil them with the peas until tender and make the soup in the usual way.
Stuffed eggplant is a delicious dish which few people appreciate, and eggplant stewed like squash is another. Both require a great deal of seasoning.
Avocado salad is made of the chilled avocados pared and halved, then filled with French dressing, the edges being garnished with slices of stuffed olives.
Rusty steel should be covered with sweet oil, well rubbed in, and in forty-eight hours use unsalted lime finely powdered and rub until all the rust disappears.
If the plumbing about the house is shabby and new nickel piping out of the question, give it all a coat of aluminum paint and it will at least look fresh and clean.
If you are mixing a pudding or cake with a wooden spoon beat the mixture with the back of the spoon. It is far easier and becomes beautifully light in half the time.
Rusty irons should be heated, rubbed on a piece of beeswax tied in linen and then with a coarse flannel cloth sprinkled with household salt. This will give a polish like glass.
When a kettle is badly burned, do not fill it with water, but set it aside to cool, then put in a handful of washing soda and water and allow it to boil for an hour or more.

On his map that strip is represented by a bewildering embroidery of blood-red lines.
The officer sits in the "O. Pip" and watches the bursts from the shells which his guns are firing, telephoning to them the result of each shot. During a big "shoot," which is a bombardment intended to wreck the enemy's position without attempting to take them, he sees a white fog gather and thicken, eddying and swirling in the wind, above the tortured trenches. When the fog slowly drifts away during a pause in the firing he informs the guns as to the result of their work.
Sometimes the merciless fusillades of our batteries will so batter and destroy a trench that the Germans will at last abandon it and fall back a few yards into another. Then the joy of the observing officer reaches its climax. He takes his pencil and scribbles a wavy line across the thin red vein on his map, which represents that trench. So doing, he marks the gradual retirement of the enemy towards Berlin. Were we to attempt to retake the lost provinces of France by this method we would never finish the war. But the subaltern is pleased all the same.

Lastly comes the forward observing officer. His is undoubtedly the most dangerous and exciting duty open to an artillery officer. The British Army instituted him at the first clash of arms seen in 1914, and he has been at work ever since.
The "F. O. O." conceals himself in the front trenches with a telephone, and from this close proximity to the German line keeps the guns informed as to the result of their firing. When the powers of Germany and Britain are united in one stupendous effort to hammer the hostile trenches out of all recognition his place is no sine-cure, as can readily be understood. But he sticks there and gives his orders in spite of everything. Gas may sometimes shift him, as one cannot telescope through a respirator. But the bayonets of enemy infantry have often found him, the last man alive among a shambles of dead, coolly directing his battery to wipe those bayonets out of existence. For the eyes of the guns must see in their masters as long as they can see. That is the law.

They have not been waiting upon the hungry giants behind the British front for two years without performing epic deeds of heroism. They live a hazardous—if interesting life. They die a very lonely death. The stories of voices gasping along the humming wires a last message—"My God! Bill! They've got me! A bomb!"—and then sobbing into eternal silence are too numerous to repeat. We have most of us heard the story of the observing officer who fell at the telephone during the Great Retreat. His last words were: "Do not obey any further orders from here. The Germans are here!"
From those days to these is a far cry, but they are still doing these things. Less than a month ago, when the Hun at one point drove into our front line and our men were forced to withdraw for a time, a "F. O. O." was left behind in our trenches. He stayed there undiscovered, serving his battery, directing it on to good targets, and giving it little items of information as to the enemy's actions, for nearly two hours. After that straggled out his wire. As he saw that he could do no more good by remaining, he calmly took the telephone in his arms, scrambled out of the dug-out, and fled towards our lines. The enemy pursued, but he escaped and won through to his guns, as he deserved.

This will help to tell you what the eyes of the guns are doing out here. They are strong eyes and they are never closed.—Daily Mail, July 25.

THE MARTYR.
"My wife and seven daughters," said G. Augustus Grimes, "beside the briny waters are having gorgeous times. This climate is a hummer for heat and dust and flies, and so they'll spend the summer beneath more kindly skies." I said, "But why in Cadiz are you thus left behind? Why don't you join the ladies, and drop this beastly grind?" "That girls may have their pleasure no some man must find the dimes, and so I hump for treasure," said G. Augustus Grimes. "I like to sweat and swelter, to give the girls a treat, and so I leave my shelter, and tread the burning street, to earn an extra shilling, that they may have their fun; of course, I'm more than willing to keep them staked with mon. My daughters all are peaches, my wife's long may they bask and fop." Oh, cheerful, manly martyrs, who drag their spavined feet, and toll like gravel carters, that girls may have a treat!

BEST VALUE OBTAINABLE IN TEA.

If the tea you are now getting is high in price and poor in quality, try our Teas. Ours are low in price and high in quality and have been causing a sensation lately, for we have been introducing a couple of broken Orange Pekoe Teas at 40c. and 45c. per lb., and our customers say they are equal to teas at 50c. and 60c. lb. The reason is we import direct from Ceylon in large quantities when the markets are low, and also we price our teas very moderately.

We beg to introduce to you a New Gramophone at only $5 ea

This is the make of a new company, viz., the Emerson Phonograph Co., and is having a tremendous sale in the United States and Canada. This machine is not equal to a $100.00 machine, but we would sooner listen to it than to some $25.00 machines. It will play most all well known makes of records, though the Emerson record is a smaller record. Prices for Emerson Records are: Single Faced, 18c. each; Double Faced, 25c. each. We anticipate a large demand for the Emerson Phonograph.

Ladies', Get a Vanity Box, Free.

Despite large price reductions, we give every lady making a purchase of $2.00 or more, of any class or classes of goods, a Vanity Box absolutely free, containing Mirror, Compressed Powder and Pad. We do this partly for the sake of the advertisement—they have our name on them. It pays to advertise, when your goods are up to the mark and your prices are down to the lowest level. You will always find this to be so with us, and now more especially.

 3/4 floating rear axle, which means there is no strain on the axle shafts, the load is carried on the housing. Springs are of the latest shock absorbing cantilever type as used on high-priced English cars. Four cylinder motor valves in head and improved double jet zenith carburetor, which gives twenty-seven miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Plenty leg room in front, also in Tonneau; in fact the biggest small car ever offered to the motoring public. Replacement parts of these cars are exceptionally low. A full line already
