"The Die is Cast For Better or For Worse."

CHAPTER I.

A Bohemian Party. "I tell you I won't hear of it! I'm as poor as a rat; I should leave her to the mercy of the world; you know that—I'm in your debt—but I'd rather leave her to face the music than see her a star at one of Pickett's theaters. My Kittle!" his voice was low and smothered. "You don't know what you're proposing; you don't know who she is, what I am. I've sunk low enough, and God knows I've been a poor kind of father to her; I've neglected her education, let her run wild; I've kept her in ignorance—"

He paused and struggled with his emotion. "But let her go on the stage! No, no; I won't do that! I tell you—you don't know—" his voice broke, he sank into the chair, and gasped for breath, as if overcome by a sudden faintness. Levison rose, poured out a glass of water quickly, and gave it to Norton, who managed to drink some, and slowly recovered; but his voice was almost inaudible when he was enabled to speak again.

"No, no!" he said. "My girl's worth something better than that. Don't speak to me of the stage again. And don't speak of it to her," he added, almost fiercely. "I won't have the idea put into her head. Oh, I'm all right; it was only a sudden faintness. I get 'em sometimes; it's—it's my heart, I suppose. And don't say anything to Kittle about it."

Levison took up his hat and gloves and stood for a moment, looking down from under his lowered lids, at Norton, who was still pale, and breathing with difficulty.

"Better see a doctor, Norton," he said. "Why should I?" returned Norton, with a shrug of the shoulders and a laugh. "I know as much about it as they could tell me. Push the 'bacca along the table. Good-night."

CHAPTER II. A Chance Acquaintance. Her father was at work on a short story the following afternoon, when Kittle opened the door and put in her shapely head, with its aureole of soft, rippling hair.

"Busy, dad?" she inquired. "Yes—very," he replied, rather shortly. He always had a headache after one of his bachelor parties, and he had quite a big headache at that moment. "What is it?"

"She came in and sat on the edge of his chair, her arm round his neck. "I want to go to the Exhibition to-night, dad," she said. "May I?"

"No," he said. "I've got to do a play at one of the theaters; so I can't take you."

"Nobody asked you, sir," she said. "I'm going with Hagnes Hevangeline. Someone has given her a couple of tickets; it's her night off, and she wants to give me a treat. Don't be disagreeable, dad, and break her heart; both our hearts."

"I'm not disagreeable, Kit," he said, leaning back, and looking at her with a novel gravity born of self-reproach. "I don't like the idea of your going to a crowded place like the Exhibition alone, or with only a slavey to look after you. The fact is, Kittle, you gad about too much; you aren't a kid any longer; you're grown up—and—"

"TENDER THROATS readily yield to the healing influence of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It soothes the inflamed membranes and makes richer blood to repair the affected tissues—to help prevent tonsillitis or laryngitis. SCOTT'S is worth insisting upon."

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine—Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MARY ASHACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma. Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCASLAND, 509 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman. Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSOON, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"And should behave as such," finished Kittle, mimicking him lovingly. "Why are you so particular all at once, dad? I've been out with Agnes Evangeline scores of times; she's a perfect dragon of propriety. And what could happen to me? You don't suppose I should be lost in the crowd, and have to be brought home by a policeman? And I haven't been anywhere for weeks and weeks, and we've got the tickets, so that there won't be any expense, and the poor little soul has been looking forward to taking me somewhere; and—"

"Oh, very well!" he broke in, with a gesture of resignation. "Pon my soul, Kit, you'd talk the hind leg off a donkey—"

"First time I knew you had any hind legs, dad, dear," she said, kissing the top of his head, already bent over his work again. "I'm glad you've said yes, for both our sakes. I finished my new dress last night; it's a ripper; and Hagnes Hevangeline has got a new hat, a neat little thing in crimson and blue, with a 'hostrich' feather. We are going to have our tea there, spend a long evening, see all the sights, and get back early, so that my affectionate parent should not be anxious."

Norton produced half a crown, looked at it sadly and wistfully, as if he were parting from a valued friend, and tossed it up. Kittle caught it dexterously, cried, "Angel of a fate!" kissed him once more, and pronounced out of the room. Norton glanced up as the door closed, sighed heavily, and returned to his work.

Kittle ran up to her room, singing, to don her new dress. As a matter of fact, there was no cause for anxiety on the part of the father, for the little slavey, though young in years, was old in experience and wisdom, and the shrewdness which is a second nature to the Cockney. She was quite capable of taking care, not only of herself, but Kittle.

To Kittle such a place as the Exhibition was an unalloyed delight; for, though its name doesn't sound very promising to the youthful mind, it is very much more of a vast and varied show than a place of instruction and information. The two girls carefully avoided that part of the grounds devoted to buildings containing collections of more or less useful objects and to "machinery in motion," and devoted their attention to the gaily lighted stalls, displaying objects which certainly could not be classed as useful, whatever else they might be; to the mimic representation of Venice, which occupied three parts of the grounds; to the bandstand from which floated celestial music, and to the various side-shows, which, more than the brilliantly lighted gardens, the music and the crowd which streamed, ebbed, and flowed, like a living sea, fascinated Hagnes Hevangeline, who, happy in the possession of an ostrich feather, six inches longer than any she had yet seen in the garden, and proud of her companionship with Miss Kittle, was in the seventh heaven of delight.

Kittle also was very happy. Light, music, the stir of a multitude, the atmosphere of excitement, were as precious to her as the breath of her nostrils; and though she walked demurely by the side of Hagnes Hevangeline, her eyes were sparkling and her heart was beating time to the music which filled all the air.

They had had their tea, taking it in a leisurely fashion, and leaning back in their chairs with the aristocratic air which you are entitled to assume after such an expensive meal; they had wandered through the streets of Venice, and floated through—apparently—miles of canal, in gondolas; they had seen two or three of the side shows, each more wonderful than the others, and they were now walking with a stream along one of the broad paths lined with booths and stalls, and vividly illuminated by countless electric lights.

"It's rather too much of a crush, isn't it, Hagnes?" said Kittle—the little maid-servant would have been wounded if Kittle had omitted the "H." "Let us go down here; it leads to another show, I think."

and amazement, for the girl was the very image of Kittle herself.

Her face was the same shape; there were the dark hair, the blue-gray eyes, the lips with their peculiar curve of Kittle herself. Not only were they alike in face, but in figure. This girl's very walk, poise of her head, and general carriage so closely resembled Kittle's, that a strange feeling, almost like awe, swept over her. She wondered, while she stared, whether this other girl would see her and notice the resemblance; and she held her breath, expecting to hear the girl exclaim as she herself had done; but at that moment some people emerged from a side walk, and came between them. The girl and the elderly man passed by without either of them noticing Kittle and her humble companion.

Still half-hypnotized by her surprise, Kittle looked after the recreating pair, and, as they were being lost to her sight, she saw the young lady drop her pocket handkerchief.

"Wait there, I'll be back in a moment!" she said to Hagnes. She went after the girl as quickly as possible, dodging the people in her way, and picked up the handkerchief. When she rose, the elderly gentleman and the girl had disappeared. Kittle saw at a glance that the handkerchief was of lace, and an expensive one. She wanted to restore it, and she was also seized by a strange longing, to speak to the girl, to hear her speak, to discover whether in voice she was as exact a double as she was in face, figure and movement; so she looked this way and that, and, thinking that she saw them going toward the broad walk, she ran in that direction.

But she found that she was mistaken; she could not see them anywhere. Then she remembered Hagnes, and sought to return to her; but in her excitement, in the absorption of her quest, she had forgotten to note her way, and she lost herself. Very much annoyed, and just a trifle anxious, for she knew that Hagnes would be considerably alarmed, she went down a narrow path in the direction which led to the band, and the center of the gardens. She had almost gained the broad path again, when she heard shouting and cries of alarm, and the next moment, with the suddenness of a torrent pouring from a burst dam, a stream of people came rushing down upon her.

She turned to fly, with some other persons near her, but the living stream poured swiftly down upon her and caught her up. She was carried along by it for some yards, and would have emerged with the rest quite safely on an open space, but unfortunately she trod on the hem of her skirt, which was a trifle too long. She staggered, stumbled, and would have gone down; but suddenly she saw some one swoop down on her, strong arms clasped her round the waist, she was lifted and swung out of the human torrent, and the next moment, felt that she was standing safely on shore, so to speak.

Fine Progress.

A week ago to-day authentic news of the great German retreat was published to a startled and for the greatest part of it, a rejoicing world. A week is a short time when armies of many thousands and all their equipment must be moved over terrain which the destructive ingenuity of such an enemy as Germany has rendered as forbidding as possible to an advance. This has been the task of the British and French, and both the map and the reports that follow one another testify to the wonderful, almost miraculous, manner in which it is being performed. With everything in their favour, it may be doubted if the Germans expected the pursuit to follow so pitilessly close upon the heels of the retreat. Yet so close is it in fact, that the course of even the next few days may see nothing less than the complete upsetting of the enemy's plans, involving another retirement that he was far from contemplating when he began this one.

Everything seems at present to hinge upon St. Quentin—it is the nerve centre of the German line. A message, important enough to need confirmation, told yesterday of the capture of Roisel by the British, a railway junction north of the town; while this may be doubted, there is

First Steamer From the Sealfishery.

SABLE I REACHES PORT LOADED—RAILS FOR TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND YOUNG HARPS—REPORTS ALL OTHER SHIPS FAIRLY WELL FISHED.

The S. S. Sable I, Capt. Joe Keen, arrived back from the northern sealfishery at 8.30 a.m. to-day, reporting for 23,000 young harp seals. The ship was absent only a fortnight but the trip would have been made much quicker but for the adverse conditions encountered on the homeward run.

The Sable I left Westville at 8 o'clock in the morning of March 12th in company with all the rest of the northern fleet. After about an hour's steaming the ice was met, detaining progress. Being the most powerful ice-breaker, the Sable I took the lead, closely followed by the Seal and the wooden ships in turn. Capt. Keen saw his first whitecoat on the 13th, the day after sailing, and then shaped his course in the direction of the Crofts Islands, in which vicinity he believed the seals were (and he was right), steaming through ice all the way.

STRUCK THE SEALS.

The main body of seals were struck 37 miles south east of Cape Paul near the entrance to the Bell's Isle Straits, at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, March 14th. As the law prohibits killing of seals on that day, the ship 'burnt down' till early the next morning when the crew got on the ice and the slaughter began. The Sable I's escort, the Seal, Capt. Murley, was nearby. The Terra Nova was sighted away to the north west and at 10 a.m. the Neptune and Eagle came into the seals. None of the other ships were sighted, but it is Capt. Keen's opinion that they must have been in another end of the patch, as practically the total catch accounted for was taken out of this patch.

KILLING AND PANNING DIFFICULT.

The Sable's men started to engage in the kill at 5 a.m. The crew were divided into three watches, two for killing and panning and one for hauling aboard, as the ice was broken up, caused by a heavy swell, which ran the day previous. At first the seals were very numerous thick, but small and jagged, only averaging about 27 lbs. After the first day's work the ocean for miles around presented a scarlet appearance. The master watches reported for 8,000 panned and half of the slain were hoisted aboard. The next day, Friday, March 16th, the ice began to get looser, but the working of the seals was expedited materially by the division of the watches. Four thousand were batted on that day and an equal amount stowed down on the 17th (St. Patrick's Day) 3,000 were killed and 3,000 taken aboard. The ice continued to get looser and some of the men got marooned, but all reached the ship each evening and no accident happened. Though the panning was done under difficulties, the ice conditions enabled the steamer to pick up the "dead" easily and quickly. March 18th, Sunday, was devoted entirely to picking up fat. On the 19th, 20th, and 21st 3,000 were killed each day and about half of them were taken aboard. The crew had killed more than they actually brought in, but lost several pans, which drifted away out of sight.

The young harp pelts taken during the latter part of the voyage averaged 160 pounds, so that on rough calculation the Sable I's entire cargo should turn out an average of about 45 lbs.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

On Thursday morning last at 10 a.m. Mar. 22nd, the Sable took her last 800 pelts aboard and bore up for home. Her position then was 30 miles north east of Cabot Island, Bonavista Bay. Heavy ice was met from then until she docked this morning. On Monday night a stiff nor'd-easter raged, closely packing the ice, and the ship became jammed. She did not do much butting owing to her heavy and dangerous cargo, but remained wedged in the floe until Friday night when a swell loosened the ice and she released herself and came along, though very slowly. Capt. Keen had a wireless from Capt. Murley saying that the Seal had borne up for home on Friday morning last. She was not seen later by the Sable I, and is believed to have been jammed coming home. However, she is expected to be the next arrival. The Sable I spoke the Diana at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon off Trinity Bay and some of the latter's crew were aboard. Capt. Keen reports the catch of the fleet as follows:

Sable I 23,000	Eagle 16,000
Seal 16,000	Njord 12,000
Terra Nova 23,000	Diana 10,000
Erik 23,000	Bloodhound 10,500
Thetis 23,000	Ranger 10,000
Neptune 20,000	Total 185,000

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GARTER IN COWS.

It is a singular coincidence that the homeward passage of the Sable I, has been marred both in 1916 and 1917 by weather and ice conditions. Congratulations to Capt. Joe and to his hardy crew, who are all well after their venturesome experience.

PRICE OF FAT. The Sable I is berthed at Job Bros. & Co's South Side premises, but had not started to discharge up to 1 p.m. to-day, the price of fat not yet being fixed. Last year the sealers were paid $6 per hundred weight for young fat, this year they are asking for $7 a swt. It is thought that a compromise will be effected this afternoon.

For the first time since the beginning of the war, the British have consisted in repulsing a German bombing attack. WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day.

The French forces and the Germans have again been engaged in heavy fighting on the several sectors of the front between the Somme and Aisne Rivers. Again the French made an advance towards the strongly defended town of St. Quentin. According to the French War Office the French troops have pushed forward over a front of about two and half miles south and southwest of St. Quentin to new positions, taking in the town of Castles, three miles southwest, and Essigny-le-Grand, four miles south of St. Quentin. Berlin admits the retirement of the Germans, according to orders, before the British between Beaumont and Roisel, northeast of Peronne, but says the Germans repulsed French attacks northeast of Soissons. For the most part the fighting on the British end of the line has consisted in reciprocal raiding and bombing attacks. There has been considerable fighting in the air. The Berlin War Office records the loss of seventeen airplanes by the French and British, while London reports eight German machines driven out of control, but admits that four British machines failed to return to their base. Bombs have been dropped from German air craft on Calais and Dunkirk. While only small raiding operations artillery duels have been reported from the Russian front, a despatch from Petrograd says there is indisputable evidence that the Germans are bringing up a large number of troops to the northern part of the line for an effort to break through toward Petrograd. Spring thaws are holding the Russo-Rumanians and Teutonic Allies' troops in check in Roumania. In Macedonia near Monastir much artillery activity prevails. The usual artillery duels and small infantry activity continue in the Austro-Italian theatre.

FRENCH TAKE FIVE FORTS.

PARIS, To-day.

Two advance forts of the defensive system of LaFere, a strong point in the Hindenburg line, have been captured by the French, who have occupied the west bank of the River Oise from the outskirts of LaFere as far north as Venduil, a distance of about four miles. The new French success is chronicled in an official report issued by the War Office to night, which adds that several villages on the east bank of the Ailette River have also been taken. The German rearguards being driven back.

NEARING ST. QUENTIN.

PARIS, To-day.

Further progress was made last night by the French towards St. Quentin, from the north at Grand Serau-court as well as on the east bank of the Ailette, from the south at Clunancy and in the region south of Soissons. The War Office announced to-night that in the Verhan region the French captured parts of a German trench in the Halancourt Wood sector and repulsed a German attack near Aumont.

FRANCE PROTESTS TO THE WORLD.

PARIS, To-day.

The French Government gave notice to-night of its intention to address to neutral countries a protest against the acts of barbarism and devastation on the part of the Germans in the French territory which they are evacuating.

2.00 P.M.

THE BATTLE OF ST. QUENTIN.

PARIS, To-day.

The Battle of St. Quentin continues to rage with unabated fury. The honors of the last 24 hours' fighting have been with the French, who are pressing forward steadily, taking all the precautions that the nature of the operation calls for, and in the face of desperate resistance by the Germans the advance is continuing. St. Quentin is protected on the northwest by the Oignon River, which, although only a brook like most of the Somme tributaries, runs through a broad valley full of swamps and clumps of trees which greatly increases its defensive value. To the west the approaches to the city are over a bare flat plain devoid of any natural obstacle and with but few villages. Here the French advance is naturally most rapid, but the plain narrows and ends in a sharp point at St. Quentin. At the most favorable point the Germans have built their main defensive,

THE LIBERATED FRENCH BRITISH HEADQUARTERS

IN FRANCE, Mar. 25.

The shattered French towns evacuated by the Germans celebrated to-day their first Sunday of liberty in two and a half years. It was a brave showing they made. Countless French flags fluttered in the sunshine from both ruined and half ruined homes, and women, old men and children who had passed through such a long ordeal of captivity strolled through the streets dressed in the best clothes each could muster. The incongruous French genius for dress revealed itself even in such pathetic bits of finery as the women could find. Here and there groups of persons gathered to listen to graphic stories of the natives concerning their experiences under German rule. The villagers dwell particularly on the time of terror which immediately preceded the retreat of their enemies. All the civilians were herded in certain buildings from which they heard explosions and saw fires which testified that their homes were being destroyed.

What She Wanted.

An elderly lady on her first railway trip noticed the emergency bell-cord overhead, and was told by a mischievous boy that it was there to be rung when she wanted anything to eat. Shortly afterwards the old lady reached up with her umbrella and gave it a vigorous pull. The whistle sounded, the brakes were put on, and the carriages bumped together sharply in the driver's effort to stop. Presently the guard came rushing along the train and asked:

"Who pulled that bell?"
"I did," replied the old lady, meekly.
"Well, what do you want?" snapped the official impatiently.
"You may bring me some sandwiches and a cup of tea, if you will."

Tea is Still Advancing

But We Intend to Protect Our Customers as Long as Possible

We notice the Canadian Press expresses the opinion that good tea may soon be a dollar a pound. This may appear rather pessimistic but it is not impossible, as at the moment there are a variety of reasons which contribute towards considerable advances in the price of tea.

We are to-day offering a MAGNIFICENT TEA in 1 lb. packets only, at

50c. per lb.

This is better than many teas offering at 60c. per pound, and on to-day's market quotations should be selling at 70c. per pound. This tea is being used by many of the best families in the city and has gained many encomiums.

We are also offering a SPLENDID TEA at

45c. per lb.

Both of these teas are specially put up by ourselves and are better value than can be obtained anywhere.

We shall be forced to advance our prices later or reduce the quality and we would sooner advance the price than reduce the quality. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Pansy League.

Government House,
March 23rd, 1917.

Editor Evening Telegram,
Dear Sir,—Will you kindly let me write this letter to your paper. To tell of friends, I have now 687 members, but still a very long way from 1,000. But I am quite happy because so many members have promised to ask their friends to come and join. I have a dear friend who represented me at the ice carnival. She really is an ideal cat and her tail was carried to perfection. And while skating so gaily round the rink her gay mow, mow was answered by many other members. In her sweet little Pansy Bow she collected for the League $5.00. She carried many members of the Pansy League geese, turkeys, ducks and chicks. Not forgetting the prize rooster who had top place on her head still carrying his prize colours. And we are so pleased that Miss Ethel Johnson carried also her prize and a very useful and handsome one too. Her dress was so well carried. We hope to see that dear Pansy again some day. I hope she won't grow out of her dress too soon. You see I cannot do that with mine and cannot even take it off to lend to even my best and kindest friends. But I do thank you with many thanks for your generous help and sweet compliment to the Pansy League, mow, mow.

I have also to thank two little friends who sent me 50 cents each for my box. Thank you dear Dolly Nancy and Flosie, you will be so pleased to hear my box is really quite heavy. What a nice lot of bricks it will buy. Many thanks to the fourteen members who have already sent in their subscriptions for this year.

I hope every member has received their certificate and medal. If they have not received them I wish they would let me know. I did hear of some little people who sent their subscriptions but it did not arrive here. But through their kind teacher I heard they were quite unhappy because Pansy did not answer their letter, but having gone and got lost in the post how could I answer it? But they are happy with their medals now. I have had two letters returned not properly addressed. Please where do you live in Monkstown Road? Libby and Minnette, you did not give your owner's name. Marjey, Olive, Frisk and Beck of Westerville, if you please, send me your owner's name. I think you would like the medals. Then you know all your friends will want one too and I should love for all your friends to join. I should like all the horses to join. Do you know one day I saw a horse taking such care of a tiny girl, and this is how he did it. He was coming up a hill in St. John's when a very little girl ran out from between some houses just in front of the horse. The driver of the express was just then very busy trying to light his pipe; he looked up to see why his horse had stopped. And then said "Go on, Jim." I wonder if he thanked his horse for that very kind act. Yes, he was on the foot path. But then I have seen motors and motor cycles on them too, but they are not as gentle as that dear old horse. And in winter one does not know which is road or foot path here. And it is good to see a driver choose the best way for his horse as that driver was doing, and he was walking too. I am sure he thought a load of coal was enough without his weight, so gave the horse a help up the hill.

May I mention that I have just a few flowers to sell and also a few hats. They will be on sale in the billiard room any afternoon of next week from 3 o'clock till 5.

I must away. With many happy purrs,
Your loving friend,
PANSY, Mow, Mow.

The following have joined:—

Kismet.

(Boston Transcript.)

As for the Turk, none will sorrow for him outside of Berlin and outside of that Vienna, which he once so valiantly menaced. His empire began with the homeless Turkish adventurer Eroghrul, who, six centuries ago, with 440 horsemen, and his women and his women and children with him, started out on a raid into the upper waters of the Euphrates. Out of that raid, which had in it no more of imperial intention than a cattle stealing expedition of Arapahoe Indians, the Ottoman empire sprang. The rise of that oray into an empire is one of the most romantic stories of history. But always the Turkish mind has contemplated the possibility of the return of the Ottoman strength to something like that original band of cattle stealers. Kismet! The return is due; for in all the countries of the Turk's occupation of Asia Minor and of one of the choicest lands of Europe, the grass has not grown where his horse's foot has trodden. After this present cataclysm of war which has fallen upon the world, not only grass but corn must grow abundantly everywhere, if the human race is to be once more established in peace and wisdom on the earth. A regenerated world cannot afford the Turk.

WARNER'S RUST-PROOF CORSETS.

More exacting than Dress fashion, is the fashion for Corsets, since the gown is entirely dependent for its lines and fullest beauty upon the foundation of Dress—the Corset.

Have you ever counted the cost in disappointment of the gowns that failed to fit, all for want of a fashionable fitting Corset beneath? The Warner's trademark on a Corset ensures the right lines to fit over—and, best of all, that those fashionable lines will last to the last day of wear.

Wear a Warner's Corset

and your figure will be correct; your gowns will look their best; and you will still be wearing it long after an ordinary Corset would have gone to pieces, for

Far From Mean.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a woman once of our town whom I had always looked upon as very mean. She is married comfortably and moved away. Her father and mother are in straightened circumstances, she seldom visits them, and does nothing for them.

Could anything be meaner? Certainly not if it were true.

And until a few days ago I never doubted that it was.

Then I happened to say something about Gertrude's selfishness to a mutual friend. "You call her mean in spite of all she does for her father and mother?" she said.

"Why I thought she didn't do anything for them. She almost never comes to see them."

She had a Good Reason For Not Coming.

Because her mother isn't strong and she doesn't want to make it harder for her, and if she comes she has to bring one of the children.

"Well, wouldn't you think she would have them come and live with her if her mother isn't strong?"

"That would be the easiest and least expensive way but they want to keep their home and she is making quite a little sacrifice to make that possible. She pays most of their bills out of the money her husband gives her for clothes and luxuries. Do you call that mean?"

"I should say not." I admitted "but I always heard a very different story."

Where I Got My Misinformation.

Later I tried to think what I had heard to give me such an impression.

And I remembered that most of my information had come from two or three of Gertrude's friends who had not married as well as she. They had indulged on the fact that Gertrude seldom came to see her people; they had said that it was too bad that she didn't do anything to help them financially. They had known nothing of the true state of affairs, and knowing nothing had assumed everything.

I think people are often misjudged about such matters.

One Cannot Go About Explaining.

One cannot go about explaining all the details of one's financial family affairs.

I know another case where the widowed mother lived with an unmarried daughter, a stenographer.

Everyone said how selfish of the comfortably married daughter not to do anything for her. As a matter of fact she was contributing the major portion toward the mother's support, and the mother preferred to live with the unmarried daughter.

Well bred people seldom talk about the things they do for their own. Is it fair to reward their honorable reticence by misjudging them?

THE EARS AND BEAUTY.
We have all of us become quite accustomed to the uncovered ears, and it seems as if Dame Fashion has decreed that it shall be the Spring style, as well. Although it may be the style to pull the hair back like a scared rat, it is not always becoming to different types, and especially if the ears are, unfortunately, unattractive in shape.

If for any reason, it may be thought wise that the ears should not be exposed to the gaze of the public, cover just the upper part and allow only the lobe to be seen and also see that the lobe is delicately tinted if it should be too white. It is the clever French woman who teaches us just such dainty additions to the toilet.

Narrow and high is the accepted cōliture of the present. The hair is drawn up to the top of the head and arranged to the point most becoming to the individual. The simplest arrangement is the roll or single puff placed at the most becoming angle. To say that this is a trying mode is evidenced on all sides, for few women possess an interesting hair line and decidedly few possess a well shaped head.

When one's hair does not grow in the fascinating point in the middle of the forehead it is wise to soften the trying and severe lines by a careful arranged curl or two at the temple and in front of the ears.

When the hair is raised from the forehead to the puff at the top of the head the line will be found in most cases to be very trying. Then it is wise to arrange a sort fringe of curls across the forehead.

Cherry curtain shades will be favorite colors in straw millinery for early spring.

Although Jersey is said to be as smart as it has been, there is a great deal of work.

Straw hats have brims embroidered with chenille and not an atom of other trimming.

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

"Man wants but little here below." He wants his meals cooked just right, and composed of the particular things he likes to eat. He wants his clothes kept in perfect order, and the buttons sewed on. He wants to get up when he gets ready, and then he wants to swear because he misses his car to the office. He wants to be cross when he comes home and not have it mentioned. He wants to leave his coat and hat and shoes just where he happens to take them off when he came in. He wants his slippers right in a certain place where he can find them without effort. He wants to put the ashes from his cigar in the most convenient place while he smokes. He wants to yawn and go to bed when his wife wants him to go out with her and make a call. He wants everything just as he wants it, and he wants no talk about it.—Judge.

Original buttons and needlework stitchery are effectively introduced, among other details of dress.

"Souvenirs" at Hall

(From the Boston Transcript)
Great Britain has issued a series of travellers that for the purpose of peddling their journeys, they send their "documents" through mails instead of carrying them in their persons or in the ship's trunk. The reason is obvious. The ordinary examination of travellers' papers makes for long delays in the line. The tedious stay of the Erik VIII in the waters of Halifax striking case in point. The delay, carried by the Bernstorff party, greatly to the delay. In Halifax, though, there was a double amount as results proved; and it is suspected that Washington's considerable light from certain documents discovered there. The cases than documents were there were 1,500 boxes of oranges—the first two layers were Sunkists, the layers after War Veterans Welcomed.

There was a large gathering of citizens at the Railway Station last night to welcome the following returning war veterans who reached the city at 9.30 by the cross country express. The returning heroes are:—Lance Corp. Bussy, Privates J. Carter, D. Churchill, E. Knight, W. LeDrew, J. Michell, A. Wiseman and E. James.

As usual the energetic workers of the Ladies' Reception Committee were in attendance and extended a hearty welcome home to our gallant lads. Mr. J. Browning called for three cheers for the returning heroes and the response was deafening. Owing to the lateness of the hour the visit to Government House had to be cancelled.

No Indigestion Gas Or Stomach Misery In Five Minutes

"Pape's Diapepsin" for sour, acid stomach, heartburn, dyspepsia.

Time! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know Pape's Diapepsin will save them from any stomach misery.

Please for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which don't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest, surest relief known.

Fads and Fashions.

While gowns are simple they are not quite so simple as they were. There will be adaptations of the smock in many of the new blouses. Wool sweaters are a little ahead of silk sweaters for fashionable sports wear.

The pleats on both skirts and coats are apt to be separated by panels. The new sand and beige shades predominate in all spring tailored clothes. Even though skirts are mostly hanging straight, there is always fullness. Marine blue and navy blue will be combined with beige, stone and fawn color. Gay stitchery, beads and worsted are all used to give color to white velvet costumes. Necks are frequently cut straight across the neck line and are finished with embroidery. An ideal finish for the new one-piece frocks is a chain necklace or a string of pearls. The new silhouette really looks a good deal as if it had been inspired by the harem skirt. The wool ball finishing the ends of girdles and trimmings is a little new, or than the tassel. Many of the new small hats turn up abruptly on the side and are trimmed with quills. Very many of the new dresses for the young girl are fashioned on the lines of the middy. Effective trimming for the picture hat is a band of velvet ribbon around the crown and a single rose at the side. A chic appearance is gained by wearing pumps and stockings that match in color or tone in with the color of the costume.

WALTY MASON

But little time has journeyed by, since he who owned a motor car had won distinction fair and high; we all admired him from afar. We may have said, when in his pride, he followed his triumphant way, that he was putting on more side than one frail mortal should display. But we admired him, just the same, and raised our lids at his approach; for he had scaled the heights of fame who owned so glittering a coach. But now the man who has no car creates excitement in our town; he is unique—so few there are who do not hold their motors down. Men say of him, "I'll bet my lid he likes a car, as much as we; but he would make a thorn bid for cheap john notriety. He'll run for alderman this year, and try to get the public vote, by claiming he's the one man here who doesn't own or drive a boat." The Tattooed Man has had his day; the Bearded Lady's lost her goat; the Dog-faced Boy must now make way for him who doesn't own a boat.

"Souvenirs" at Halifax.

(From the Boston Transcript.)
Great Britain has issued a notice to travellers that for the purpose of expediting their journeys they should send their "documents" through the mails instead of carrying them on their persons or in the ship's baggage. The reason is obvious. The necessary examination of travellers in war time makes for long delays in shipping. The tedious stay of the Frederick VIII in the waters of Halifax is a striking case in point. The papers carried by the Bernstorff party added greatly to the delay. In this case, though, there was a double necessity as results proved; and it is more than suspected that Washington received considerable light from certain documents discovered there. Other articles than documents were found. There were 1,500 boxes of alleged oranges—the first two layers of each were Sunkists, the layers below substitutes for oranges made of rubber. A man with an apparently broken arm was found with a whole arm fairly well plastered with code information and other code stuff was removed from under the flowers of the ladies' hats. A large amount of glycerine, two or three hundred suits of woollen underclothing, rubber heels and probably still other substances very welcome in Germany, not yet reported, accompanied the fleeing and innocent travellers—naturally taking home a few souvenirs of a very rude country.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless When She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells of the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells can be restored, and herein lies hope. In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results. Nervous prostration, locomotor staxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthful condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong, will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments. Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. F. No. 2, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all, but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold, and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used there would be much less sickness." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigor. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Another Schr. Sunk by Raider.

Messrs. Crosbie and Co. received a message from their London agents on Saturday night informing them that the schr. Jean had been sunk by the German raider Moewe and her crew were held as prisoners of war in Germany.

About five months ago the Jean left here for Pernambuco with a cargo of drum fish and after delivering her cargo, loaded with tobacco for Lisbon. From the latter port she was to take a cargo of salt for home, but as ill-luck would have it, she fell a victim to the commerce raider. The ill-fated ship was upwards of 100 days unreported and grave fears were entertained for the safety of those on board. She carried seven of a crew including Capt. Edgar Burke, mate John Doody, boatswain Ted Merrigan, seaman Thomas Colford and Peter Cullen, Carboner, Samuel Newell seaman and William Kenny, cook, of St. John's. There was also a young boy named Matthew Primm, a stowaway, whose parents reside in the city.

At Rest.

The executive of the T. A. and B. Society attended the funeral of the late Denis Chancy yesterday afternoon. At the R. C. Cathedral Rev. Dr. Greene officiated, and interment took place at Mount Carmel Cemetery.

The funeral of the late Peter McDonald also took place yesterday afternoon. Interment was at Belvidere Cemetery.

Enlists as Musician.

Grandson of the late Sgt. McBay, of this City, Joins U. S. Naval Forces.

He enlisted as a musician. Young McBay is well known in musical circles in Brockton, where he has made his home for seven years. He was a member of Dr. Fred. E. Ladd's orchestra of the Y.M.C.A., the Colonial orchestra and Hancock's band. He has conducted an orchestra of his own for some time and was a pupil of Timothy Cotter, the well known trombone player.

Rod and Gun.

The March issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, that representative Canadian sportsman's publication, is now on sale on the newsstands. A glimpse through this issue reveals the fact that the March issue contains much that is of interest to lovers of outdoor life. The regular departments, which are a feature of this magazine, and one that is of interest to its many readers, are as usual well maintained and the devotee of gun, rifle, or rod will find much of interest and value in the perusal of its columns. In addition for the more general reader there are stories of outdoor life to hold the attention and divert it for a time from the current newspaper and magazine recitals of things pertaining to the war. Such stories as "Gentleman Jones" by Jean Stevinson, "The Dweller of Darkness" by Wm. McMullen, "The Treacherous Snow," "King of the Big Swamp" by F. V. Williams, "A Brother Fisherman" by H. C. Haddon, etc., etc., are all redolent of the cut-of-doors. W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont., are the publishers.

"Gallant Capt. Joe."

Captain Kean's a jolly man, and he's no bombast talker. Brookfield, Bonavista Bay, is "Joe's" native home; The man who "struck a cinch" in him he's name is Capt. Farquhar, Joe is as fine a fellow as has ever sailed the foam.

To the westward and eastward to the sudard and the nor'dard. A household word his name is, and he's welcome everywhere, And those who travel with him, in the cabin or up for'dard, He's friendly, and he's manly, tis a truth they all declare.

Once more he comes among us, and with outstretched hands we'll greet him, He comes from frozen regions with a bumper trip of fat; All our hearts go out to-day with joy to go and meet him, And above all, Captain Farquhar for our Joseph dotts his hat.

A chip from off the "old block" that's "What you are my "laddie." There's very few that you know more 'bout where the whitecoats grow; You are most worthy to be called a son of your good "daddy," Hurray, my boy, for the Sable I, and gallant "Captain Joe." JAMES MURPHY, March 26th, 1917.

EAGLE, (Saturday night)—"Passing through families of hoods all day; scattered white coats."

VIKING, (Saturday night)—"Men have painted 1400 to-day; very difficult to pick up pans."

RANGER, (Last night)—"Nothing new to report; all well."

VIKING, (Last night)—"Five miles S.E. of Bryan Island; total on board to-day 8,000; ice very loose as far as can be seen."

By Job Bros.
NEPTUNE, (Saturday night)—"Ice broken up; got two or three hundred more."

FOGO—Entire fleet report all aboard and well; Sable I on way to port; Seal still jammed."

The estimated catch to date is 185,000, or more than an average of 15,000 each steamer.

Judging from Capt. Kean's report as regards the future prospects of the other ships, it is not unreasonable to expect the whole fleet in by the end of this week.

Over 30,000 bottles of Stafford's Liniment sold last year.

A Deadly Parallel.

Germany must be shivering in her shoes at the parallel with the French Revolution. There is no foe like a democracy aroused. France under the later Louis was relatively harmless. But France, even bereft of her usual leaders and with a paralyzed navy, swept over Germany like a tidal wave when the democratic forces of "liberty, fraternity and equality" sprang to arms to beat back "Cimmerian Europe"—a Europe which blindly sought to restore the Bourbon. Jena, and Austerlitz were victories of the Revolution. Ever since the war opened, the German press has longed for a Revolution in Russia which should paralyze the power of our great Slav Ally. The alleged "funny" papers of Munich pictured "the Russian Revolution" as a fearsome figure arising in the background to destroy the armies on the Russian front. Well, Germany has got her Russian Revolution now; and we hope that she likes it. Happily, it was not the abortive and bloody crushed Revolution for which she plotted and planned. It was a successful Revolution, which has buried her friends in the very prisons they intended for the leaders of the Russian people. This is a great war—a great time to be living—"an age on ages telling." Pray God that we, in this free and favored land, play our part.—Montreal Star.

Great Britain's Great Year.

"This is going to be Great Britain's great year in the war," said a French Deputy in Paris recently. "Her armies are active and eager everywhere. On the Western Front their constant worrying is badly scaring the Germans, who, as they have admitted, are dreading the day when the great final push will come. In Mesopotamia each week brings a new advance and a new victory. On sea everything tends to prove that the boasted German blockade will soon break down miserably before Great Britain's new methods of attacking submarines. The splendid success of the latest War Loan proves to the world the financial stability of Great Britain, and her recent civil organization and the drastic new economies must be making Germany feel that the British bulldog's jaws are closing on her vitals. France woke far too slowly to a recognition of Great Britain's immense and revolutionary effort, but she knows to-day and in her press acknowledges gladly all that this means and will mean."

Greater Russia.

Mr. George Kennan, the distinguished American publicist, who is so well known to Nova Scotia as a summer resident of Baddeck, is of the opinion that the upheaval in Russia will result in tremendously increasing the vigor of prosecution of Russia's share of the war. If the army stands back of the Duma, as there is now almost absolute certainty, Mr. Kennan affirms that order will emerge from chaos, the people will become united as never before, and the offensive against Germany will assume a character beyond anything of which Russia has shown herself capable in the past.

Mr. Kennan has spent many years in Russia, he speaks her language, has written much concerning this great country and its people, and has kept in close touch with its trend of thought and the progress of events. He is therefore entitled to speak with an authority which perhaps no other living American possesses in this respect. He believes that the revolution is the result of forces which have been operating in the Empire since the beginning of the war, and which have been brought to a climax by the increasingly acute food situation. These forces have been slowly spreading education of the people and a growing appreciation, as disclosed in war activities, of the failure of the bureaucracy to meet the complex situation arising from the war.

"The cause of the general discontent may be summarized in this way," said Mr. Kennan. "Keep in mind that the war party is the people. The peace party is the bureaucracy, which naturally fears for its jobs if victory in the war should lead to the grasp of greater power by the people. Now, it was seen early in the war that the bureaucracy was unable to cope with the tremendous problems the conflict created. There had been many Germans in Russian service and many of these professed their allegiance and stuck to their posts with the hope of hindering Russia's military procedure. How well they succeeded became known when it was reported to the Duma that a railroad of ammunition had been dispatched across Siberia to Vladivostok while the Grand Duke Nicholas was awaiting it anxiously in Poland."—Halifax Chronicle.

CORN MEAL MUSH.

Corn meal mush is an old-fashioned preparation which was formerly used to tire out the appetite, but has now become more popular than carrying gossip to the new minister.

There was a time when corn meal mush was not considered much of a delicacy in this country. It is a heavy durable kind of food and after being allowed to stand in one spot for a few days does not digest with the ease and unconscious grace of the cream puff. Corn meal mush originally sprang from the New England States, having been invented by the Puritan Fathers, who were accustomed to eat it cold and then have prayers immediately afterward. The Puritan Fathers were thoughtful people and did not believe in taking any unnecessary chances.

With the growth of wealth and culture in the United States, however, people turned away from corn meal mush and began to eat light, frivolous articles which did not lie flat on the stomach and leave bitter memories in their wake. Money was cheap and the cold boiled potato was fed to the cow with reckless abandon. Thousands of children grew up, nurtured on Sarafoga chips and ice cream cones, without running into a single mess of corn meal mush and skimmed milk.

All this is now changed. The war has obliged our first families to retrench in order to buy winter tops, and as a result the wan, sickly countenance of the corn meal croquette is beginning to peep shyly over the horizon. It is a pathetic sight to enter a richly furnished home, with electric lights in the cellar and a hired girl to keep them turned on, and see people who formerly thought nothing of eating a T-bone steak for breakfast now struggling with sliced corn meal mush which has had time to set. It requires more heroism to go up against a corn meal diet for three weeks in succession than it does to win the Iron cross and yet it is said that as a nation we are growing soft!

Household Notes.

Use radishes once in a while as a relish as the spring comes on, and the family will appreciate it. A good way to serve cold chops is to mince the meat off the bone and then simmer the meat slowly with the bone. Serve when creamed on toast.

er Russia.

Kennan, the distinguished publicist, who is so well known in Scotland as a summer resident, is of the opinion that the Russian revolution will result in increasing the vigor of Russia's share of the world. He stands back of the view that Russia is now almost absolute. Kennan affirms that if Russia emerges from chaos, she will become united as never before in an offensive against Germany. He affirms that Russia has shown in the past.

has spent many years in speaking her language, has a deep knowledge of the people, and has kept pace with its trend of progress of events. He is entitled to speak with authority which perhaps no other man possesses in this country. He believes that the revolution will be a force which have not been in the Empire since the beginning of the war, and which will lead to a climax by the acute food situation. It has been slowly spreading among the people and a revolution, as disclosed in the course of the war, to meet the complex situation arising from the war. The general disorganization is summarized in this way: "Keep in mind that it is the people. The bureaucracy, which is not for its jobs if victory could lead to the grasp of power by the people. Now, in the war that the Russian has been unable to cope with the problems the conflict has had been many German services and many of their allegiances and posts with the hope of the Russian military procedure. They succeeded because it was reported to the Grand Duke that the Grand Duke was awaiting it anxiously in the Fax Chronicle.

"HIPRESS"

RUBBER BOOTS

with the "RED LINE 'Round the Top"

Better Footwear for Fishermen

HOW far ahead of the flat bottomed dory is the fast power boat? About as far as "Hipress"—the wonderful ONE-PIECE rubber footwear—is ahead of the old style black footwear.

What does ONE SOLID PIECE mean to you, Mr. Fisherman? It means that your boot won't crack, peel or leak. And because The B. F. Goodrich Company puts the toughest, longest wearing rubber ever known—actually the SAME RUBBER that has made its TIRES celebrated the world over—into "Hipress" footwear, it will positively outwear 2 and 3 to one any rubber footwear you ever bought.

No one ever made a boot by this method before we invented it—and no one has succeeded in duplicating it yet—although the market is full of boots and shoes imitating the rich "Hipress" Brown color. But YOU want the BEST—"Hipress"—and you can always tell it, by the "Red Line 'Round the Top."

Don't take a "just as good" boot. Come here for Goodrich "Hipress."

The woman who has a complexion that is naturally youthful and velvety is the envy of those who are not so fortunate. But a good or bad complexion usually indicates the amount of care you bestow on your skin. You cannot have a bright, clear skin unless you keep your skin clean—if you do not protect it from the ravages of cold winds and other enemies.

NYAL FACE CREAM

is a delightful preparation that will help you towards your aim of a beautiful complexion. It is pure, soothing and stimulating, giving a glow and pleasant sensation of health when applied to the skin. It helps nature overcome wrinkles, pimples, roughness and blotches and imparts that clear, velvety texture that you like to see and touch.

DRI-FOOT

Waterproofing

You do not need to wear heavy, uncomfortable rubbers if you treat your shoes with it. Dri-Foot is a liquid composition that waterproofs your shoes and gives them longer wear. It is invisible—does not prevent polishing, costs but a fraction as much as rubbers and one application lasts all season. Children's shoes as well as yours should be treated with Dri-Foot.
