LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

—OR—
THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER II.
Captain Vance's handsome eyes gleamed with interest.

"Rich, is she? Some people are fortunate. To be rich and beautiful is to have an undue preponderance of this world's gifts. Tell me about them, Gladys."

"Every one was talking about them last evening at Lady Blount's. Lady Rooden is the widow of Sir Charles Rooden, of Rood Abbey. He died quite suddenly four or five years ago—he was drowned, I believe—and left the whole of his large fortune to her."

"She will be a prize, then," commented the captain. "And what fortune has the daughter?"

"Lady Blount told me that the will was somewhat peculiar one. Although he was so wealthy, Sir Charles left no separate fortune to his daughter; but at her mother's death everything goes to her—not before."

"The daughter, then, is not such a prize as the mother?" questioned the captain.

"Not peculiarly," replied Gladys Rane.

"What will happen if the mother marries again?" asked the captain.

"Nothing. Her husband would have the full use of her wealth whilst she lived; but it would go to her daughter at the mother's death."

"And what," he asked, looking up suddenly—"what if the daughter dies before the mother?"

"Then the whole of the property becomes hers, to do with as she wills. What cold-blooded questions you ask, Vance!"

"I like to understand," he returned.

"It is rather a novel state of things, and I am getting quite interested. The young lady holds a curious position; she is entirely dependent on her mother, yet at the same time quite independent of her."

"Yes," agreed Gladys Rane; "it is a strange position. Lady Blount knew Sir Charles many years ago."

"Why did he make such a curious will?" asked Captain Wynyard.

"Lady Blount says he had an idea that it would bind mother and daughter more closely together."

"Has it produced the desired effect?" he inquired carelessly.

"I should imagine so. Never were mother and daughter more closely united; they look like two sisters, and they seem devoted to each other. Most people seem to think the mother more brilliant and beautiful than the daughter; yet Miss Rooden—so Lady Blount says—has a certain, delicate spirituelle loveliness far above mere brilliant beauty."

"I am curious to see them," said Captain Wynyard; and Gladys Rane remarked quietly:

"Yes; I knew they would interest you."

"Where is Rood Abbey?" he asked next. "I am not sure that I heard it mentioned before."

"Rood Abbey is in one of the Midland Counties," she replied. "Lady Blount says there are few more charming places in the country."

He looked at her with a sudden gleam of passion in his eyes.

"I wish to Heaven," he said, "that you had Rood Abbey and a large fortune!"

"So do I," sighed Gladys.

"What a curse poverty is," he continued. "Here are you and I—we love each other—we have not said much about it, but we love each other—and yet—"

"I know," she interrupted, raising her face, which was full of pain, to his—"I understand."

"If my career had been a little less mad!" he sighed, regretfully. "I have wasted two fortunes, and I doubt much, whether I shall ever have a third. We are in the same position, Gladys—you will have to marry money, and I must do the same."

"I suppose it must be so," she said resignedly; but he noted the pain in her eyes and the trembling of her lips.

"I know no two people in the world who would be so happy together as you and I," he added; "yet because we neither of us have money, we must stifle our love and always live apart. I wish you had a fortune, Gladys, or that people could do without money."

"So do I," said Gladys Rane, with a bitter sigh.

Yet neither of them for a moment dreamed of what want of money and the desire to obtain it would do for them in the future. On that bright May morning, amongst the hyacinths in the sunlight, no warning came to them of the shape the future was to take.

CHAPTER III.

Captain Vance Wynyard was a prominent member of London society. He was somewhat popular, though no one seemed willing to trust him implicitly, or indeed had any great faith in him. He was not yet thirty; but he had seen more of life than most men double his age. He had succeeded to a rich inheritance, and he had held a commission in the Royal Horse Guards; but before he had reached his twenty-fifth year he had spent his fortune and left the army. His friends still called him captain doubtless because of his military bearing.

Wynyard was considered a fortunate man by those who knew him, for when he had spent the whole of his fortune, another fortune was left to him by a maiden aunt, who had always looked upon him as an ideal soldier and a perfect man, who never saw a fault in her handsome nephew, and who, when any especially piquant scandal was circulated concerning him, smiled complacently, merely remarking, "Young men must sow their wild oats." With the large fortune she left him, Captain Wynyard sowed a very fine crop of those same wild oats—so fine indeed that in the sowing he very considerably reduced his banking account, and soon realised that he must give up his extravagances. Then it was that he came to the conclusion that he must marry money. He was in no great hurry to supplement his fast-vanishing fortune by such a step. There were always plenty of plain-looking girls with fortunes on hand, he told himself; when he had enjoyed a few more years of bachelor existence, he would begin to look around for a wife. In

LIFE WAS MISERY!

"I was reading the other day about Neurasthenia, about the large number of people who were troubled with this disease. It is just what my wife had. She felt miserable all the time and was constantly depressed. She would waken in the morning and tell me that something dreadful was going to happen that day. Life was nothing short of misery for her. She was so depressed that I expected she would lose her mind and have to go to a sanitarium and I kept wondering how I would get the money to pay for her. She could not eat and had no appetite for food. She was irritable and cranky most of the time. If she was crossed in any way, she would immediately work herself up into a violent temper. This worried me because she had always had a kind and gentle disposition and nothing which was said or done seemed to irritate her. I spoke to our family doctor about her and he said that her trouble was imagination and that if she would try and forget about her depression and look on the bright side of life she would be all right. Of course I didn't dare tell her this because I knew she would get into one of her fits of temper, she was always weak and ill and more depressed than ever. The doctor said a tonic might help her and gave me a prescription but this did not do her any good. She tried all kinds of other tonics with the same result. A Carnol was recommended to me and I wish to state that it is the leader of all tonics. Since taking it, my wife has changed completely. Now she is always ready for her meals and work is no burden. It is a pleasure for me to recommend Carnol to anyone who is in need of a tonic or a body builder. Excuse me for writing this letter but I want you to accept my thanks for that wonderful tonic known as Carnol."—Mr. J. M., Toronto.

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. — 7-522

Tragic Mexican Affair.

It has been disclosed that the Englishman who was accidentally shot dead by excited merrymakers in Mexico City was Mr. Wilfrid Herbert Gore Ewart, only son of Mr. Herbert Ewart and Lady Mary Ewart. He was shot in the left eye and instantly killed on the balcony of his hotel on the night of December 31 by a stray bullet. The body was discovered next day, and buried in the British cemetery. Mr. Ewart, who was writing a history of Mexico, was also engaged on the official history of his regiment, the Scots Guards, in the Great War. He went to Mexico to join Mr. J. S. Graham, the author, and they intended to tramp through Colorado and California. An ex-officer of the Guards Division who served with Mr. Ewart in France gave an interesting personal sketch of his old comrade. "He was a good-looking, attractive young man of winning, modest, and lovable personality," he said. "He enlisted for service with the 2nd Battalion, and was terribly wounded. While serving with his battalion he met Mr. Stephen Graham, then a private. They became great friends, and after the Armistice were much in each other's company. For so young a man, Mr. Ewart was a remarkable deep thinker. The events of the war, keenly observed and felt by him, made a deep impression, and the reaction of that world struggle on a sensitive nature is shown in his novel, 'Way of Revelation.' Lady Mary Ewart is an aunt of the Earl of Arran and the Marchioness of Salisbury."

A Blow For Grandfather.

To little Ethel her grandfather had always seemed the oldest man in the world. One day while sitting on his knee she looked up at him and asked thoughtfully: "Grandpa, were you in the ark?"

"Why, no, my dear!"

Ethel's eyes grew round with astonishment. "Then why weren't you drowned?" she asked.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE FIFTY-PERCENT-MAN.

He slipped into the place one day, a leg and arm, were gone.

"Just half a man," he told the boss, "right now you look upon. An accident did this to me, 'twere better that I died, if robbed me of efficiency, but left me with my pride."

The boss said kindly unto him: "This is a busy place. It takes two arms and two good legs to hold our daily pace; it's able-bodied men I need, not crippled men like you."

"Don't you suppose," he answered then "there's something I can do?"

"Could you not find some sheltered nook where I can fill the day. Where I can use my one good arm and earn my weekly pay?"

Though half of me is stripped away, the other half is proud. And it will do so useful work if only it's allowed.

"They've taught me now to use my hand, they've given me a trade. They've said I need not lose my pride and meekly beg for aid. But when the bosses look about they never seem to see. A place where they can use a man who's battered up like us."

Oh, better far than charity, and better for the town.

It is to help the man to rise whom fate has stricken down.

And better for that factory which keeps a job or two.

Where speed and strength are not required, which crippled men can do.

Film makes teeth dingy

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., cloud that film. Then it forms a thin dingy coat. Film is also the basis of tartar.

The ordinary tooth paste leaves much of that film intact. Thus most people's teeth, until lately, were clouded more or less. Beautiful teeth were less common.

10-Day Tube Free

Insert your name and address, then present this coupon to any store named below. You will be presented with a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent.

If you live out of town, mail coupon to The Pepsodent Company, 1104 So. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, and tube will be sent by mail.

Present coupon to

They use it

The dainty people you see, who show white teeth, are probably users of Pepsodent. You see them everywhere. To women it means new beauty, new charm; to men new cleanliness. To children it means new protection against troubles you have had.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

A few days will convince you that this is a method essential to you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Foch's Witty Retort.

While on his recent visit to the United States, Marshal Foch made a witty reply to a man who, when one of the guests at a dinner party in Denver, took exception to French politeness. "There is nothing in it but wind," he said with questionable taste. "Neither is there anything but wind in a pneumatic tyre," retorted the gallant Marshal, "yet it causes the joints along life's highway wonderfully."

INCURABLE.

The janitor of the law are after me at times, and many heavy fines I draw for speed and in d r e d crimes; along the dusty road I scoot, a menace dire to man and brute; the wise one, when he hears me too, for safety wildly climbs. Sometimes the judges' scold and rail, a storm of words they raise, the while they sentence me to jail, to stay there sixty days; "this term," they say, "may curb your zeal, and when again you're at the wheel you in your inmost heart may feel that safety surely pays." This speed germ is a rightful thing, when once it's in the blood; and I shall always scorch and swing through gravel, dust and mud; I am as helpless as the bloke who has to have a jolt of coke; I'll always leave a trail of smoke, and scot and ship and scud. This spoke the speed fiend as he left the house, scold and rant; of freedom he had been heretofore for many a weary day; of high resolves his heart was full, and he would dodge the cop and bull who guard the public way. Next day the village stood aghast, its face all swung ajar; a loosed motorist when past as goes a shooting star; again we saw the peelers hale the speed fiend to a dungeon staid; now he will get six months in jail, and lose his motor car.

Newfoundlander Plans Herring Oil Refinery.

F. HOWLETT TO FLOAT COMPANIES TO CONDUCT THIS INDUSTRY—GOOD MARKET FOR OIL.

Mr. F. Howlett is making satisfactory progress with his project to establish three or four plants in Newfoundland for refining herring livers into pure oil in the same way as cod oil livers are treated.

Heretofore, all the herring livers at the big packing centres have been thrown out during the herring season and only a small percentage of the herring livers saved to market.

Mr. Howlett has a patented process by which the impurities can be eliminated and, by machine pressure, is able to render out a beautiful clear, almost odorless, product of a straw color, the very appearance of which easily helps to make a sale.

As to the meal and fertilizer made from the residue of the livers, there should be an unlimited market for it.

Failures All Round.

Can International Conferences settle and adjust the future condition of the universe? Such a question seems a bit bordering on the absurd, when the history of all the gatherings of the nations, since Armistice Day, 1918, is taken into consideration and analysed from beginning to end. Diplomacy does not always terminate in brilliant successes, and there has been but scanty progress made during the deliberations marking the many conventions held by the Powers since the 11th day of November, in the year of grace, one thousand nine hundred and eighteen. The sum total of all of them can be determined by stating that the world to-day is in a much greater unsettled condition and irked by more disturbances than have been known for a considerable period. The latest failure is the Lausanne Conference more commonly known as the Near East gathering of diplomats, in an effort to conclude a Treaty of Peace with the Turks, who should never have been permitted to return to Europe, after their forced expulsion from Constantinople to Asia Minor.

Out of the Paris Conference came the Treaty of Versailles, the corollary to that being the League of Nations Covenant. So far as the latter is concerned the high ideals expected to follow its inception have not been realised. One of the reasons for this may be attributed to the fact that United States refused to subscribe to the Covenant, or to be bound either by the terms of the Treaty or by the provisions of a separate agreement entered into between the British Prime Minister, Lloyd George and President Wilson, for their respective countries, guaranteeing France against any subsequent attack by Germany. The whole secret of United States attitude need not be disclosed here. Columns and columns have been written in the press, all of which agree that the Great Republic was more inclined to take the pound of flesh in gold—rather than relinquish any of her rights in respect to the debt owing her by the European Allies. All that has been said and written about that phase of the aftermath of Treaties and agreements has become current history, of which any person who follows events as they are chronicled from day to day may become cognizant.

The Lausanne Conference from which much was expected serves to point to indications that all that can be developed from it is a dignified retirement of the Powers that have Turkey, with Russia, opposed to them. To quote a portion of a contemporary article, written by a Canadian journalist who possesses a complete grasp of the present situation, he offers the opinion that what may follow the collapse of the Near East Conference can only be feared, not guessed.

"The Straits question," he says, "might possibly be left in abeyance for the present unless British policy is assured of adequate backing. So, also, might be partly local questions concerning Turkey and her immediate neighbors. But the Mosul disagreement is of a different character. Any attempt on the part of Turkey to make good her pretensions in that quarter by military force, could not but result in war. The Mosul district is the northern section of Mesopotamia, a former Turkish satrapy over which Britain was given a mandate by the Paris Conference. She has erected it into an Arab Kingdom called Iraq, in accordance with her war-time pledges to the Arabs, and is now directly responsible for its maintenance. The Turkish attempt at the conference has been to make it appear that Britain seeks to hold Mosul for purely commercial reasons because of its valuable oilfields. This consideration may not be entirely without influence, in certain British minds, but the fact remains that Great Britain is, both by national honor and as a trustee of the Paris Conference, bound to maintain intact the Kingdom of Iraq and to hold Mosul, an important natural and historic part of it, as against Turkish claims which are without foundation in the history of international justice."

ADJOURNMENT OF MEETING.
The fifth ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., was called at the Board of Trade Rooms last night at 8 o'clock. There was a fair attendance. The Chair was taken by J. J. St. John, President of the Company, who was assisted by E. Barrigan, in the capacity of Secretary, pro tem. Mr. St. John, in opening the meeting, referred to the death of Capt. Edward English, one of the Directors, of which due cognizance would be taken by the Board at a subsequent meeting. The Secretary, T. J. Freeman, who has been abroad on the Company's business for some months, advised that prospects of completing a profitable and advantageous sale were bright. In the absence of Mr. Freeman there were not any reports of the years work of development on the property presented, and accordingly the Chairman moved, seconded by T. J. Hickey, that the meeting stand adjourned sine die. This was carried and ordered accordingly.

K. of C. Debate.

At this evening's meeting of Terra Nova Council, Knight's of Columbus, an interesting debate will be held. The subject: "Resolved—That Prohibition in Newfoundland is a failure"—is one that gives ample scope to the speakers on both sides. Messrs. Jas. Bindon and Michael Murphy lead for the Affirmative; Messrs. R. T. McGrath, Sr. and Matthew White, the negative. All four are good debaters and an enjoyable, interesting and instructive session is assured all members who attend the debate this evening.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. James Baird, Ltd., the Sea Scouts, who formerly held their drills and meetings on board H.M.S. Briton, have been given the use of the Fiona for further gatherings. The Fiona is owned by Messrs. Baird, and for some time has been moored at their premises. The Scouts appreciate the action of the firm in this coming to their assistance after the Briton had been sold by the Admiralty, and are pleased to see he generous interest they are taking in the movement.

Twillingate Supports U. F. M.

The delegates of the United Fishermen, Capt. Walter Carter and Joshua Winsor, arrived here on Saturday from Herring Neck, accompanied by Mr. Alfred Kearley. Arrangements were made to have the Victoria Hall closed for the meeting, and a notice was given, yet the Hall was crowded, many having to stand throughout the meeting.

Mr. Stephen Loveridge was unanimously chosen chairman and after introducing the speakers gave an outline of their campaign. Capt. Carter was the first speaker and after reading the Resolutions gave an able address, pointing out the seriousness of the situation with regard to the carrying on of the fishery and advocating retrenchment by the Government, and a short notice was given, yet the Hall was crowded, many having to stand throughout the meeting.

After the delegates had spoken others gave a few minutes, saying a few words in support of the movement. They were: Messrs. Alfred Kearley, James Primmer, Elias Young and Benjamin Smith, Sr. No interruption followed any speaker and high enthusiasm prevailed throughout the meeting, especially when the unanimous standing vote was given to help the movement. A collection was taken up to assist the delegates on their journey, after which a Committee was appointed to attend to the business of taking around the Resolutions for signatures. The Resolution calls for Reduction of Expenditure and Tariffation, and an early opening of the House of Assembly, to which we believe, all who have any interest in their country will show their appreciation by signing up.

Girl Guides.

ISLAND EXECUTIVE FORMED.
The Girl Guide meeting held at Government House on February 2nd, for the formation of Executive Committee, was well attended. The Island Commissioner, Lady Allardyce, addressed the meeting, giving just a brief history of Guiding in Newfoundland, and an outline of future work and aims, following by a detailed account of the organization and working of the Local Association, and a report of various offers of help which had been received.

The Island Commissioner asked for names of ladies wishing to become Vice Presidents—43 have generously answered the appeal. Names were again asked of ladies wishing to become members of the Local Association and 33 responded.

An Island Executive was then formed. Island Commissioner—Lady Allardyce. Deputy Island Commissioner—Lady Horwood. Island Secretary—Miss Allardyce. Assistant Island Secretary—Miss Reid. Island Treasurer—Miss McKay, M.B.E. Badges—Miss Cherrington. Lectures and Examiners—Miss Keegan. Equipment—Mrs. Urquhart. Officers Training Corps—Mrs. H. A. LeMessurier. Cold Snap Grips Country.

PLUMBER'S HARVEST DAYS.
The cold wave of the past two days apparently has the whole country in its grip. According to reports received by the Reid Newfoundland Company the following temperatures were registered at stations named: Quarry—Sunday, 31 below. Quarry—Monday, 23 below. Bishop's Falls—Monday, 18 below. Clarendville—Monday, 10 below. Yesterday's report from Nipper's Harbor stated the temperature was down to 29 below zero. At the Valley Nurseries last night the thermometer registered 6 below zero, and this morning it was one below. The cold spurt has given city plumbers the busiest day in their history, due to the frost. At an early hour yesterday morning one firm had calls from over one hundred different houses, and while they were unable to handle anything like the number of calls that came in during the day.

Yesterday's Fire.

APPARATUS RESPONDS QUICKLY.
At 2.30 a.m. yesterday a slight fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Bert Hayward, Patrick Street, which brought the Central and Western Companies to the scene. The fire was due to some spot catching in the chimney. The services of the firemen, however, were not needed, and no damage was caused by the blaze. The motor truck from the Central station reached the scene in about two minutes after the alarm, despite the condition of the streets, and was back in the Fire Hall twenty minutes after the alarm was rung in.

DIVIDEND OF 4 PER CENT. DECLARED.

The annual meeting of the Standard Manufacturing Co., Ltd., was held at the Board of Trade Rooms to-day. The reports submitted showed that the company had a fairly good year, considering the general trade depression. A dividend of 4 per cent. was declared. Last year's directors was re-appointed for the ensuing year, the officers consisting of: Sir Marmaduke Winter, President; Hon. R. K. Bishop, Vice-President; Thomas Winter, Secretary. The other directors are Messrs. Eric A. Bowring, D. Baird, Harold Macpherson, Hon. G. Knowling.

Bishop Mowl.

Bishop Mowl arrived in Halifax yesterday by the Sachem and was due to speak there in St. Paul's Hall last evening. He leaves to-day for Montreal, via St. John, N.B., and thence proceeds on a Mission tour across Canada, departing from Vancouver for China about the middle of March. While in Toronto, on February 17th, it is the intention of Wycliffe College, of which he was for some years Dean, to confer upon him their degree of D.D. The Bishop already holds the degrees of M.A. and D.D. of Cambridge University.

The Cabot sails for the Southern Shore tomorrow, taking freight and passengers. The ship will call at Bay Bulls, Tor's Cove, Cape Broyle, Ferryland, Farnese, Renews and Trepassay. S.S. Daghdid is coming to St. John's to take a cargo of iron ore from the disabled Capt. The Daghdid is due here on the 10th or 12th. S.S. Roceland was detained at New York having repairs effected to her boilers and she did not leave there till 7 o'clock Sunday morning, for Halifax and this port.

MARRIED.

At the R. C. Cathedral, on Jan. 30th, by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott, Teresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patk. Walsh, of Western Bay, to W. George Seward, of this city.

DIED.

On Monday, Feb. 5th inst., Lloyd Carson, darling child of Samuel and Rose Taylor, aged 7 months. Funeral to-day, Tuesday, at 2.30 p.m. "Gone to be with Jesus." Last midnight, Feb. 5th, James Scott Thompson (cooper), eldest son of the late J. W. and Elizabeth Thompson, aged 78 years, leaves to mourn, 2 sisters. Funeral on Wednesday, from his late residence, 45 Monkstown Road, R.I.P.

Personal.

Congratulations to Inspector S. Noseworthy of the Police Department, Probation Officer, who to-day celebrates his 52nd birthday. The genial inspector has been 42 years in the Constabulary, having entered at the age of 10. May he long live to have other honours bestowed upon him for meritorious and capable service.

Kyle in Blizzard.

SHIP REPORTED HOVE-TO.
Last evening the Reid Newfoundland Company received a message stating that S. S. Kyle had passed St. Pierre at 5 o'clock making slow progress. The ship was considerably led up, owing to freezing spray. This morning at 8 o'clock a further report was received stating that the Kyle was lying to. No position was given. The message reported a N.W. blizzard raging.

Races Postponed.

The horse races, which were set to take place tomorrow afternoon on Quidi Vidi Lake have been postponed until a more suitable time. The meeting of the Association, which was to have taken place tonight at the Board of Trade Rooms, has also been postponed until Monday, 12th inst. There will be practice on the pond tomorrow afternoon if the weather at all permits, and lovers of the track will be afforded an opportunity of seeing some of the new importation in action.

Train Notes.

EXPRESS STORM BOUND.
Sunday's express, which left here for Millertown Junction, is storm bound at Arnold's Cove. No trains are running to-day on account of a storm, which prevails along the line. The Carbonar train which was to leave here this morning was cancelled, owing to the condition prevailing west of Topsails. Big drifts are reported across country, but it is hoped to have the line clear when the storm abates. The rotary plow is operating west of the Topsails.

St. Bon's Rink.

FORMAL OPENING SHORTLY.

St. Bon's new and spacious skating rink is now approaching completion, and fine it looks. On the north end especially quite an ornamental finish is being attained by the introduction of the battlement cornice on the two buttressing towers. This building is certainly an enhancement to this section of the city and will put new life and light into what has been to date an almost deserted stretch of Mullock Street. As we entered the interior the lights were suddenly turned on revealing a magnificent sheet of ice with the goal nets set on either end and in the glare and glitter it needed but little effort to imagine the multitude of cheering fans that will applaud the future champions that will be recruited from this nursery of expert stick handlers and feet footed hockeyists. When one thinks of the amount of labour and the ordering of material to erect a structure like this and that it was done under the superintendence of Rev. Brother Ryan who, in this case is his own contractor, and that in spite of this fact his school classes, to which he also had to attend, went on without any break or interruption, it is no wonder that the Irish Christian Brothers possessing men of such energy and enterprise within their ranks, have been made welcome in every class. As has already been noted in these columns, from the laying of the first sill till the building was covered in, took but ten days, which shows that there were no slackers on the job and Brother Ryan is loud in his praise of every man of them and says "that their industry and willingness through every hour of the day (and some were frosty days) redounds to the credit of the hardy manhood and honesty of the Newfoundland workmen." The formal opening of this rink will take place probably before the 14th inst. and though it is intended principally for the boys there is a rumor that it may be open to the public two nights each night.

A Photoplay With a Sincere Message.

IS SEEN AT THE NICKEL THEATRE

There are so many fine things in the new Goldwyn picture, "Poverty of Riches," by Leroy Scott, that opened at the Nickel Theatre last night, that it is difficult to say what its strongest impression is. The story is one of family life, simply led, yet replete with drama, as real life is. The acting of the all-star cast leaves nothing to be desired; and the story shows an actual progression in the unfolding of the characters of the people in the photoplay. At the end of the story, life has taught them something, and they are diligent people from the young married folk we met at the beginning of the first reel. It would be unfair to disclose the plot of the story, but it is gripping, entertaining and delightfully told.

Reginald Barker directed "Poverty of Riches," and injected many subtle bits of action that are rarely seen in photoplays. In the cast are Leatrice Joy, Irene Rich, Louise Lovely, Richard Dix, John Bowers, and half a dozen wonderful children.

Heroic Wife's Ordeal.

How the life of Mr. Robert Ershaw, an English sculptor, was saved by the devotion of his wife as he lay terribly injured in the jungle is told in a letter received from Georgetown. For several months Mr. and Mrs. Ershaw had been diamond hunting along the Manuruni River, and were camping alone in the heart of the jungle. On September 6 Mr. Ershaw was filling a lamp with petrol drawn from a big supply tank carried on their motor boat, when the lamp exploded, setting fire to his clothing. Mrs. Ershaw with great presence of mind snatched up a blanket and wrapped her husband in it. The flames were put out, but Mr. Ershaw had been terribly burned on the arms and legs. His wife tore up her clothing for bandages and made a healing lotion of coconut oil and boracic acid. For three weeks she nursed him while he hovered between life and death—the two of them alone in the jungle. Then the sculptor began to recover, but it was another six weeks before he could leave his hammock, and his nerves were so badly shattered that the sight of fire filled him with terror. During these long weeks their only food consisted of rice, salt fish, and condensed milk. This finally gave out, and they were dying of starvation when a party of natives came down the river in a small boat and took them back to civilization. Mrs. Ershaw lived for many years in Paris, where she is well known in musical circles. Mr. Ershaw met her there while serving as an officer in the British Army during the war.

Not a Stroke Does Fair Gloria Swim

Gloria Swanson, Paramount can't swim a stroke! That didn't deter her, however, when it became necessary for her in "Beyond the Rocks" to start a starring vehicle, showing at the Theatre to-day from the Atlantic into the ocean near Catalina. Out of her own boat and then being rescued by Rodolph Valentino, plays the leading man's role. "I never knew it was so hard to deliberately fall out of a boat into the water until I tried to do it the natural way," observed the star. "The perilous scenes had been planned. One of my oars accidentally fell out of the oar-lock, however, that gave me the idea. By leaning hard on one oar and then slipping out, and throwing myself on my side, I would seem naturally to fall right over the side of the boat into the water. "The camera started and I lost all my courage. I splashed on my side into the water. When I took a breath, I screamed for help. The signal and soon Mr. Valentino reached me. At first I ducked my struggles, but finally I gave up and calmed down a little. Then they pulled me out of the water. We were in the water twenty minutes altogether for the scenes. I was sick for a while, due to having swallowed salt water."

Why Sunken Ships Never

When an ocean-going ship goes down, it is a tragedy. How it is that the mighty sea has up no tales, and that though the sea may have been built of water, she remains buried out of sight, to be seen by mortal eyes only till the roaring main shall give dead. But the explanation is a long one, after all. When a ship goes deep water, the pressure of the elements about it forces down quantities of the sea into the hull. "The wood, in this case, is heavier than the surrounding water, and is as incapable of rising surface, even when detached the submerged ship, as a head or a lump of coal. Gradually covered with heavy hull thus sinks slowly, sight even of the fishes. The ground it is very improbable any success would attend the of the treasure-trove sections. different parts of the world. Indeed that Spanish galleons three centuries and more ago, fleets submerged in the sea, Greece or Rome, might be fully grafted for. "The ocean is a jealous mistress, and it is highly probable that any considerable portion wealth which Neptune keeps lock and key will ever be the hands of man."

The Milk Loaf.

Answer to the City for More Vitamins in Bread.

(A Reprint from the Bakers Weekly.)

The most satisfactory as well as satisfying part of man's daily diet. But bakers, as the purveyors of man's most important food, are naturally always anxious to lend a willing ear to public demand, and hence the cry for a more nutritious loaf has not gone unheeded by the industry.

MOSCOW.—Moscow is rapidly assuming some of its old-time splendor in the shopping district; so far as the stores are concerned it is becoming normal.

The tactics practiced by some bakers, as above referred to, have, no doubt, caused the Committee on Definitions and Standards to include in its recent rulings that a milk loaf, in order to deserve that name, must contain at least one-third of the fluid content in milk.

Wise bakers long ago not only forestalled such a definition, but have greatly increased this official demand for milk content, using, in most instances, two-thirds of milk, and not infrequently displacing the water in their doughs entirely by milk.

Men of science have paid such bread, made from the best flour and the best milk, the high compliment that it contains all the elements needed to sustain man in his daily work, and insure the healthy growth of budding childhood.

A Liberal Offer.

An insurance company advertised for an experienced clerk, salary 21 shillings a week, and among the replies received was the following, according to a London paper: Dear Sir,—I would respectfully apply for the position you offer. I am an expert in all insurance in all its branches. In addition I converse freely in Gum Arabic, Gorgonzola, Zola, and Billingsgate. I write shorthand, longhand, lighthand and right-hand. I can supply my own typewriter if necessary, and I may mention that I typewrite half an hour in ten minutes—the record for Great Britain. I would be willing also to let you have the services, gratis, of my large family of boys, and if agreeable to you my wife would be willing to clean your office regularly without extra charge. The cost of postage for your answer to this application can be deducted from my salary. Please note that if you have a back yard, I would make bricks in my spare time.

Swedish Surgeon

COMPLIMENTS AMERICAN COLLEAGUES.

STOCKHOLM.—America is ahead of Europe in brain and nerve surgery, add the American surgeons work with remarkable skill and precision. Thus speaks Einar Key, head physician of the Maria Hospital in Stockholm and one of Sweden's best known surgeons, upon returning from a three months trip to the United States where he had visited leading hospitals and observed the work of the most eminent surgeons within America. Dr. Key lectured at a medical congress arranged by the American College of Surgeons in Boston. He visited large clinics in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Cleveland, Baltimore, Syracuse, and other places. He declares that American hospitals have better laboratory facilities than those of Europe, while he finds the Swedish hospitals, as a rule, are brighter and more cheerful than those of America.

Mexico Needs Friendly Relations.

HAVANA, Cuba.—Mexico needs a Messiah in the form of a man who has the courage to brave unpopularity by ending the friendship of foreign countries, especially the United States, declares Emeterio de la Garza, pre-revolutionary Mexican statesman, who has arrived in Havana from Europe after nearly a decade of exile. "Mexico needs foreign capital and immigration," Senor de la Garza continued, "and must encourage and protect them. We must lay aside our exaggerated patriotism, which tends to isolate us from the world. We must consider ourselves from an international viewpoint." Senor de la Garza, who asserts that Mexico is being estranged even from her Latin-American sister republics, is unable to find even a ravelling of silver lining to the cloud he sees lowering over his country.

British Commerce in Brazil Forging Ahead.

LONDON.—Great Britain is overhauling her American rivals in Brazil, according to E. Hambloch, British Commercial Secretary in that country, who has turned in a financial and economic report to the Board of Trade Journal. Mr. Hambloch says: "The United States has been, and is still making a strong bid for Brazilian custom. The war years enabled her to establish a preponderating position as regards Brazil's import trade. But Great Britain has been slowly but surely overhauling her American commercial rivals, and the official statistics for the first quarter of 1922 show that Britain has once more occupied her original position as the most important of Brazil's suppliers. Although official statistics are not available for a later period, there is every reason to believe that this position is being maintained. The United States has been successful in securing year by year a renewal of tariff preference on various goods, and although the position of that nation is a favored one, inasmuch as it is the largest consumer of Brazil's principal product, coffee, there is no reason to suppose that these factors will be able to outweigh the solid advantages which Brazil's importers and merchants recognize are offered them in their dealings with Great Britain."

Duel With Lion.

COLONISTS' ADVENTURE — LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE.

A graphic story of a Kenya settler's life-and-death struggle with an infuriated lioness in Tanganyika territory has been related, Mr. G. H. R. Hurst, a Kenya settler, well known in the Uasin Gishu district of the colony, was staying in November on a farm near Aruscha, in Tanganyika territory, and when out hunting one day in company with a small party of natives. Spotting a lion some distance away, Mr. Hurst took a pot shot at it, and badly wounded it; but the lion managed to make off and take refuge in a thick bush on the other side of the bush. Mr. Hurst instructed them to beat through and drive the wounded lion towards him. For a few moments Mr. Hurst stood there expectantly; then, with a sudden crashing of the undergrowth, instead of the wounded lion, a full-grown lioness sprang into view and made straight for the hunter.

While it was yet in mid-air on its final leap, Mr. Hurst fired, and the bullet struck the lioness on the shoulder, bringing it to the ground all of a heap almost at his feet. But before the hunter had time to reload the animal had sprung up again, placed its forepaws on Mr. Hurst's chest, and borne him to the ground. A fierce struggle for life then ensued between man and beast. Mr. Hurst had retained hold of his rifle—a heavy double-barrelled .375—and this he eventually managed to ram into the lioness's gaping mouth and down her throat. The weapon broke off short at the animal's maw. The lioness drew away for a moment, gasping and choking. But before Mr. Hurst could regain his feet it had succeeded in ridding itself of the obstruction, and once again made for its victim, this time picking him up and shaking him like a terrier shaking a rat. Just as Mr. Hurst was losing consciousness, the lioness suddenly dropped him, and stood for a moment quivering. Then blood poured from its mouth, soaking Mr. Hurst from head to foot. The lioness took two or three staggering steps, but finally collapsed a yard or two away. With one last expiring effort, she half rose to her

"I Was Terribly Weak After Baby Was Born"

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont., writes:

"After my baby was born, I was terribly weak and run down, with pains across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash which broke out on the baby, and the rash disappeared completely in a short time."

ON GUEST BOOKS.

I want to tell you about a most interesting guest book which I saw the other day.

No, I don't wonder that you pass through a spasm of distaste at the sight of that phrase, guest book. I know just how you feel.

If there is anything in the world I hate it's a guest book in which you are expected to write not only your name but some touching or amusing sentiment.

There ought to be a law against them.

Never would I willingly go to a house if I knew that such a deadly contraption was hidden in mine hostess's desk.

Write Something Original.

But that is the worst of it, you never do know because it always is hidden until the time for your departure draws near. Then your hostess suddenly appears with it and says brightly: "Oh, I want you to write in my guest book. Write your name and then write something original." You look around for something to crawl under, then seeing nothing that looks adequate you accept the pen she thrusts into your hand and look at the bright sayings the other guests have produced, while you make your useless protestations.

The bright sayings usually run something like this:

"Oh, you clans."

"I'll tell the world Ada can spend more time dressing than my chicken in this state."

"A fine view, cordial hosts, and a wonderful dinner."

Some Idiotic Sentiment.

You get your hostess to translate the bright allusions and think thereby to distract her attention and keep her going until train time. But she has had that experience before, and you finally perpetrate some abjectly idiotic sentiment, the memory of which makes you turn cold when you wake up in the middle of the next night and remember that it is inscribed in that guest book under your name. I wonder if there have ever been cases where, what seemed some guest returning to try and tear out the page on which he had inscribed himself an idiot.

And I wonder that murder has never been committed when some hostess trapped a man in this way. In such a case could it not be called self-defense?

To return to the interesting guest book (and considering the fact that I've used up most of my space in ranting about it's abominable relative, it's high time I did so) it was kept by an original friend of mine and was used to make guests happy, not to torture them.

A Pleasant Guest Book.

In it this hostess kept a record of all her guests' special preferences in the way of food and other comforts. Consequently the guest who never ate eggs in the morning was delighted the next time he came by having his preference remembered, and the guest who adored flap jacks was served them the next time he came, and the guest who preferred mayonnaise to French dressing found it ready for him.

Not an awful lot of trouble and a very gracious custom, don't you think? Let's start an association to get a law passed that all the other kinds of guest books shall be thrown away and these substituted in their place.

In direct contrast to the sleeveless badice are the new long sleeves which reach the hand.

Four silhouettes seem good for the spring, the draped, the circular, the straight and the bouffant.

Remarkable Operation

The eminent Danish surgeon, Professor Thorvald Rovsing, in a lecture to the Medical Society, has just disclosed details of a highly interesting and quite successful operation he performed in the early part of 1921. The patient was a woman, aged 34, and, owing to trouble in the gut, it was impossible for food to pass to the stomach in the natural way. Professor Rovsing therefore made a double incision down the skin of the chest, and, raising the two edges of the skin lying between the two incisions, wrapped them around a temporary rubber tube in such a way that when the edges of the skin joined together they themselves formed a natural tube. The skin of the chest beyond the two incisions was then stretched over the exposed parts. Subsequently the upper end of the natural skin tube was, by a further operation, attached to the gullet, and later the lower end was attached to the stomach, thus making a continuous channel for food chewed in the ordinary way in the mouth to pass inside, through the gullet, and thence outside, the body through the skin tube into the stomach. The complete operation took about six months, but it was the first of the kind, and future operations should not require so long a period. The patient left the hospital in August 1921, and is now able to look after herself, her home duties, and her five children.

Personal.

Mr. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., who has been very ill during the past couple of days, showed some improvement yesterday, and his many friends are looking forward to seeing him about again shortly.

Capt. Bob Bartlett of Arctic fame is expected to arrive here by S.S. Rosalind. The gallant Captain will take a trip to the icefields with his father, Capt. W. Bartlett in S.S. Viking.

Inspector General Hutchings, who has been confined to his home during the past week suffering from a cold, was able to get about again yesterday.

Late reports of the peregrinations of the Prime Minister advise that he is at present in New York. Sir Richard is sure some hiker.

Mr. F. Puer of The Harris Abattoir Co., Ltd., has left St. John's on a business trip to Bermuda and the West Indies. The firm will be represented in Newfoundland by Mr. W. M. Stewart.

Nothing in Particular

By TRINCULO.
GUIDES AND GUIDED.

Angela met me in the hall. My face must have told her of the excitement under which I was labouring, for she immediately asked me to get it off my chest, or words to that effect.

"Tandem Aliquand," I quoted, in the best Ciceronian manner of declamation.

"Oh, dear, what a cold you have," exclaimed Angela. Unfortunately she is not a Latin scholar.

"Nothing of the sort," I retorted. "That was mere a preliminary to telling you some good news. I have at last realized an ambition. I am no longer one of the common herd, but a distinguished member of the community."

"Reginald, this is so sudden," exclaimed my very much better half. "Have they made you a Chief Imperial Wizard of the United Order of Independent Bricklayers, or have you become the heir to a decayed dukedom?"

"This humour, woman, is misplaced," I assured her. "I have become a Vice-President of the Girl Guides Association of Newfoundland." Angela was astonished. I could see that, but I was annoyed when she failed to go into the transports of joy which should have been the natural sequence to my announcement. Instead, she asked:

"What on earth did they make you a Vice-President of the Guides for?"

"For five dollars," I replied proudly.

Angela smiled brightly. She has a lovely set of teeth, her own, and they show to great advantage when she smiles.

"How lovely," she said. "I am so glad you are interested in the Guides. You see, I have undertaken to organize a company, and now you can help me the some knots."

"To be or (k)not to be," I quoted, trying to look pleasant.

Angela pleasantly forgave my feeble attempt at a pun, for she continued to smile. Ah, who could resist Angela's smile. At her request, I hurried in search of some twine. After a few minutes, I succeeded in finding some, and returned with it to my wife.

She took it and began to twist it into funny shapes, informing me that this was the reef knot. As she proceeded with her task she mumbled "Right over left, left over right."

"Now you do an about turn, form fours, and stand gracefully on your head," I said, trying to be helpful.

"You do nothing of the sort," she replied, indignantly. I apologized.

For several minutes I watched her in silence. She had apparently been successful with the reef knot, for she was now studying a different diagram in the book, which lay open before her.

"This one is a bowline," she informed me.

"Indeed," I said. "And what do you do with a bowline?"

"Why, you save people from drowning."

"Well, I should hate to fall overboard and trust to a bowline to save me if you had to tie it," I said.

"Oh, don't be silly," said my wife. "You know very well that you would have to tie the knot around yourself."

"But, I'm not a Girl Guide," I retorted. "In any case, even if I could tie a bowline, how am I to know if there's a rope around when I happen to get out of my depth?"

"Girl Guides," said Angela. "Always carry a rope."

"Oh, I see. They tie a bowline around their necks and throw the other end ashore."

"Ass," came the unwelcome retort.

I asked her if that was one of the expressions she had learned in the Guides. Ignoring me, she proceeded to tie a sheep bend or a half shank, or something like that.

Again, I watched her silently. Then, Angela, I remember how the Prime Minister referred to the Girl Guides at the public meeting last month?" I asked.

"He called them Girls Guide," was the unsuspecting answer.

I edged cautiously towards the door.

"I know what he meant," I said. "He did not make any mistake. He merely implied that every girl who went in for Guide work had been GUIDED."

I edged an unthinkingly thrown cushion, and as I closed the door behind me, I heard a crash which told me that it had missed me it had found some other target.

I poked my head inside the room. "Before I go to the Club," I told Angela. "I think I ought to remind you that accuracy is one of the aims of Girl Guide work."

I think it was the Guide Book which hit the door as I closed it behind me for the second time.

The ostrich fan is again conspicuous. Favorite shades are red, green and white.

"Stop! Look! Listen!" The reflective man stopped to read the railway company's warning. "Those three words illustrate the whole scheme of my life," said he. "How?" asked his friend. "You see a pretty girl; you stop; you look; after you marry her you listen."

A GREAT SUCCESS.

"Was your church bazaar a success dear?" "Yes, indeed—a great success." "What were the profits?" "Oh, there weren't any. But six of us girls got engaged."

Fads and Fashions.

Striped cotton and flat crope are combined in a charming frock for spring.

Renee braiding is used on the popular blouse of Paisley plaid crepe de chine.

With a sleeveless evening costume was worn a wristband of bolinsky tulle.

A marked feature in spring dress models are the front aprons and front draperies.

The Juliette hat in fine bead work straps, is a charming evening head-dress.

A great deal of silk and wool materials are used for the popular jacket blouses.

Yellow seems at present to be the favorite color of the hostess for dress and decoration.

Many different shades of wool are used to embroider a flaring coat of black tulle.

Velvet flowers and fruits combined with fur are featured as millinery trimming.

Beu-tinted net is used for the collar and cuffs of a printed silk frock.

NOTICE TO FISHERMEN

On the 13th June, 1922, the Government reduced the Export Tax on fish, viz.: Cod, Haddock, Hake, Ling Pollack and Halibut, dried or otherwise preserved.

On the 17th November, 1922, the Government removed the export tax altogether from the above named fish, and the amount paid as export tax was to be paid the Exporters and they to repay the fishermen.

This was found impossible because the Exporters could not be sure of whose fish was exported and whose was not, so on the 22nd January, 1923, the Government decided to pay 10 cents per quintal to all fishermen who actually caught any of the above named fish provided he produced a receipt or certificate when it could be proven that the fish was sold between the 13th day of June, 1922, and the 17th day of November, 1922, both days inclusive, and thereby was entitled to the 10 cents per quintal that the Government had decided to give.

The following Committee:—

- H. V. HUTCHINGS, Esq., Asst. Deputy Minister of Customs;
- W. H. CAVE, Minister of Shipping;
- HON. W. W. HALFYARD, Minister of Posts & Telegraphs;
- HON. ELI DAWE,
- A. W. PICCOTT, Esq.,
- ROBERT PIKE, Esq.,

under the direction of H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., Deputy Minister of Customs, has been appointed to go into the payment of this refund. As this work represents the payment of 10 cents per quintal on somewhere near one million quintals of fish to about twenty or twenty-five thousand fishermen, it must be understood that the payment of such a sum to such a number will take time. Therefore for the guidance of the fishermen, and to facilitate the work and quick payment, the following is requested of those who are entitled to receive payment:

1st.—Have you sold any fish either for cash, barter or credit of your account to anyone between the 13th day of June, 1922, and the 17th day of November, 1922, both days inclusive?

2nd.—If you have the original receipt from the person to whom you sold fish, with the purchaser's address, forward it to the Secretary.

3rd.—If you have no receipt, get a sworn statement from the person to whom you sold the fish, stating the date of sale and quantity sold, with the name and the address of the purchaser.

4th.—A Shareman applying for repayment must get an account of the total catch as landed and sold in each case a record of the vessel, and the name and address of each man composing the crew, so that he may get the payment direct for himself.

Owing to the large number of fishermen involved the first payment will not be made until March 1923 and it will be for receipts received up to February 25th.

Second payment will be made April 10th and will be for receipts received up to March 25th.

Third payment will be made May 10th, and will be for receipts received up to April 25th.

Fourth payment will be made June 10th, and will be for receipts received up to May 25th.

Fifth payment will be made July 10th, and will be for receipts received up to June 25th.

Sixth payment will be made August 10th, and will be for receipts received up to July 25th.

Last payment will be made September 10th, after which date the accounts will be closed and no further applicants will be considered.

Positively no payments will be made other than on dates named, and it is useless for anyone to bring receipts to the office and expect payment.

Save time and expense by NOT coming but address all communications to

Scotts' Celebration, 1923

GRAND FALLS--SCOTIA'S POET HONORED.

When the question of a celebration was mooted in Grand Falls, it was in the nature of an accident, that an enthusiastic committee, to make arrangements to do honor to the National Poet, the toast to the "Immortal" was put on the program beyond the period of preparation and the last year's gathering brought with a drop of Scotch blood to join the throne, which evening of January 25th, kept memory green.

Procedure adopted was similar to that of the previous year, and at 8 p.m. there were present and ten (10) persons around the beautifully laid table. The qualifications for guests were: (1) Scots descent or grandparents; (2) Mar-Scott.

A few brief remarks by the Toast to the King were made, and then the Haggis was served. Along with the Haggis were both black and white puddings, oat cakes, shortbread, scones, pan cakes, shrimps, and other typical of the good things provided by the committee.

Number on the programme were: (1) The Haggis, which was recited on account of the items. The detailed programme was as follows:—

Remarks.—J. H. Bal-
Haggis.

1. Toast—"The King."
2. Song—"There Was a Lad."—W. Simpson.
3. Recitation—"Tam O'Shaanter."—J. H. Ballen.
4. Toast—"The Immortal Memory."—W. Frew.
5. Song—"A Wee Deoch and Doris."—H. Baird.
6. Recitation—"The Spirit of Burns."—A. Roe.
7. Song—"Hall Caledonia."—Mrs. Campbell.
8. Toast—"Scotland."—J. D. Gilmour, H. Baird.
9. Song—"Captain Mac."—E. Powley.
10. Song—"Of a' the Airts."—T. Sandie.
11. Recitation—"The Cotter's Saturday Night."—J. Ballen.
12. Highland Fling.—Masters A. Frew, A. Ballen.
13. Song—"The Wee Hoose Among the Heather."—P. Deckers.
14. Recitation—"To a Mouse."—Winnie Taylor.
15. Toast—"The Ladies."—H. Fletcher, Miss Fletcher.
16. Flora MacDonald's Lament.—Miss Campbell.
17. Song—"Duncan Gray."—W. Simpson.
18. Duet—"The Crookit Bowbee."—W. Simpson, F. Ballen.
19. Song—"Border Scots."—H. Baird.
20. Song—"Bircher Ballad."—E. Powley.

There have been many speeches made in connection with the immortal memory of Robert Burns, and it is hardly possible to say anything that is new and original about him or his life. I do not intend to trace his history from the wee "clay biggin'" to the less melancholy scene at Dumfries, because in a gathering of this kind, not to honour his memory, it should not be necessary to go into details of a life that many of you are better acquainted with than I am myself. I intend rather with the few minutes at my disposal to renew our acquaintance with Burns as he has revealed himself to us in his poems and songs. And I know of no better way of getting a true knowledge of a man, especially a poet, than by a study of his writings, for it is there above all other places that he bares his heart, and soul to the whole world. Burns, as you know, was a very prolific writer and a very spontaneous one besides. Many of his choicest bits of wit and learning were produced in a few minutes by the power of his wonderful genius, for let it be stated at once, his was a poetic genius unlike anything known before or since. He is in a class by himself, and in all probability will remain Scotland's one and only National Bard. It would be impossible for me to attempt a review of even a small number of his poems at a gathering such as this. Time would not permit; but we will look at one or two which we cannot afford to pass by. You have just heard once again the extraordinary adventures of "Tam O'Shaanter," which for sheer descriptive power has never been surpassed. Burns himself considered it his best piece of work, and we can readily agree with him. It was written at Mossiel, at the request of Capt. Grosse who asked him for a satirical story which should have reference to Auld Aulday Kirk, and the masterpiece "Tam O'Shaanter" was the result, which has ever been accounted the best of its kind in all literature. When we remember that such a marvellous piece of literature was composed in one short forenoon, we begin to realize the greatness of his genius. His other great descriptive work was "Hallowe'en," which rightly takes its place amongst the Scotch classics. Burns had the rare gift of taking old songs and stories, and by the power and witchery of his pen, transforming them into living things. In that respect "Hallowe'en" is a great object lesson. In his time it was more or less a country pastime of little significance, enjoyed mostly by farm servants, but after he had written about it, it sprang into new life, and its observance has now become universal. We get another glimpse of his character in his poems of satire. Of all things he despised nothing so much as hypocrisy and sham. Whenever he found them he fearlessly attacked and exposed them to the scorn and laughter of the world. Few poets ever had the gift of satire as Burns had it. It was of that quality which produced roars of laughter at the expense of the unhappy victim, who having been once satirized by Burns, never recovered from such withering treatment. To you who may not be well acquainted with the works of our Poet, I would recommend to your notice such pieces as "Death," "Dr. Hornbook," "Holy Willie's Prayer," "The Two Herds," and "The Holy Fair." In them you will encounter a wit so keen that not even Byron could have improved upon. Many questionable customs which prevailed in Church and State in his time owe their decline and final abolition more to his satirical treatment than any other agency. "Sinners, he could not abide, either in men or monarchies. While it is true that Burns was a master in satire, it was not by any means the most prominent feature of his character. He was naturally of a most kindly disposition; always full of sympathy, not only for his fellow men, but also the beasts of the field and fowls of the air. There was no distress too small or insignificant to be refused the tributes of his kindly heart. No one acquainted with his works can forget the tender compassion displayed in his lines: "A Mouse."

"Wee sleekit, cowrin, tim'rous beastie,
Oh wad a birdie in thy breastie,
Thou wadst start awa' an' haste,
Wi' lickerin' brattle,
I wad be laith to rin and chase thee,
Wi' markerin' pattle."

In this poem occurs one of his flashes of genius which has ever since been a world-wide proverb—"The best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft agley and lea's us nought but grief and pain for promised joy." Even the wee modern crimson-tipped flower which perished on his ploughshare, caused him much depression, as its fate so much resembled what he feared his own would be. So comprehensive was his sympathy, the very "deil" himself was not excluded. In his famous poem it that important passage he ends by saying:—

"But fare ye weel auld Nickie-beg,
Oh wad ye tak' a thought o' auld me,
Ye ablinn might—I dinna ken—
Still hae a stake—
I'm wee to thirk upon ye den,
E'en for your sake."

I would now like to draw your attention to another of his poems which Professor Wilson has so finely termed "The noblest poem genius ever dedicated to domestic devotion." You will see by your programme that the privilege of hearing it once more will be given you; there is consequently no need for me to dwell upon it, but I would ask you to give it your closest attention, as it is a true picture of our poet's home, and the influences that surrounded him during his earlier years, and it is safe to say that the impression he received under such conditions remained with him to the end. Such a poem as "The Cotter's Saturday Night" could never have been written but by a heart of deep rooted piety and family affection. There are many more of his poems worthy of our attention but on occasions like this, time will not permit me to dwell longer upon them. I come now to another phrase of the poet's genius. If there was one thing he excelled in more than another, where he felt entirely at home and at his best, it was as a writer of songs. His facility in that respect was simply marvellous. Social songs, patriotic songs, humorous songs, and love songs, all came from his pen with astonishing rapidity and beauty. He was pre-eminently the national bard of our beloved country, for he felt he never could sing her praises long or long enough. Love of country with him was indeed a passion of the soul, deep and indestructible. If his claim to patriotism rested only on that noble song of "Scots Wha Hae," it would be sufficiently vindicated. No song with greater power to stir the fires of patriotism was ever penned.

"Who will be a traitor knave?
Who can fill a coward's grave?
Who see him as he a slave?
Traitor, coward, turn and flee."

It is easy to understand Scotland's greatness when she had men capable of writing like that. Let us view him now in a different role. Burns, if anything, was the heart of goodfellowship. Through all his work runs the gospel of friendship. In the social circle he, above all the rest, "was wont to set the table in a roar" with his merry jest and song. We can easily imagine such a scene, whatever our opinions of it may be. His was the dominant figure, the hearty laugh, withal the kindly heart. It must have been while thinking of such an occasion that he wrote those immortal lines:—

"Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to min',
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And the days o' lang syne."

Never was a song so human as that. It has been appropriated by the whole world and used upon more occasions than any other, a universal tribute to his greatness. Other songs there are plenty, but I can only glance at one or two more. It would never do at a gathering to celebrate the memory of Burns such as this is, to omit mentioning that wonderful song to the dignity of men. Of all the songs of Burns, this one is in a class by itself, and is generally entitled, "A Man's a Man For a' That." It has been said by the late Norman McLeod who used to read to Queen Victoria at Balmoral, that the piece she preferred above all the rest, was this very one; but what I consider of still more importance, is the statement from Professor Wilson, whom I have quoted before, where he says:—"The poor man, as he speaks of Robert Burns, always holds up his head and regards you with an elated look." No man with any sense of manliness can read such lines without being thrilled to the heart with honest pride. It is a monument to the intrinsic worth of our common humanity and independence of mind. No matter how poor in worldly goods we may be, we can be rich in the nobler attributes of the mind. That was a doctrine dear to the heart of

The music rendered by Mrs. Little and Mr. L. Edwards was all that could be desired, and in the "wee wee" hours a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close. One result of the successful meetings of 1922 and 1923 is that a meeting has been convened to make arrangements for the founding of a "Burns" Club, and we trust that the better acquaintance with the works of that great apostle of the dignity of man will result in the continuance of such meetings as that held last Thursday.
