STRATEGY AT STRATFORD

MARSHALL LAW SUPERSEDES THE NATIONAL POLICY.

Customs-Officers on the Track-The Usual Appeal to Political Influence. STRATFORD, Oct. 1.—Something of a sen has been in the habit for a year or moresome say two years—of smuggling in wheat from the United States under untruthful nvoices. Speculation as to the facts has been increased by the timidity of the local press. One journal has referred to the natter, but in such a general way as to mislead rather than to inform. Inquiry hows the facts to be about these:

Walter Marshall, formerly a miller here, has been for some time in the United States operating in grain, with head quarters in Michigan. He has been in th quarters in Michigan. He has been in the habit of shipping large quantities of grain here, chiefly for Hood & Cullem of this place and the Snyders of Waterloo county. Marshall's son did the clearing at this point, and made the affidavits to the invoices. The charge of the customs authorities is that Marshall invoiced say four hundred bushels of wheat, and loaded five hundred bushels, thereby getting ahead of the railway by the amount of freight upon one hundred bushels, and ahead of the government the fifteen cents duty.

The marvel long has been how Marshall could import wheat from the United States in the teeth of the national policy, and undersell the local buyers of Perth county wheat. The customs authorities are sure in the teeth of the hational policy, and undersell the local buyers of Perth county wheat. The customs authorities are sure they have solved the problem. Marshall has been put under bonds to the amount of about $3000, and an appeal has been or is to be made at Ottawa to deal leniently with him. If such transactions are to be condoned the duty on wheat ought be repealed, say the other Stratford operators, if only in justice to those grain dealers who are trying to make an honest living in a lawful way.

The Stratford Times remarks in a general way that the offence must not be condoned even if some of the parties to it are conservatives. The World correspondent has been unable to learn of a single conservative being implicated. Mr. Marshall is not himself a party man, and the millers mentioned above are strong reformers. But the general feeling here is that the politics of the parties concerned should have nothing to do with the case. Stratford is a strong tory town, but both whigs and tories agree that the authorities at Ottawa have but one course to persue, and that lies along the plain line of their duty.

Just what the row is in connection the Riordan newspapers is known only a few, but it is lively of its kind. special in the London Advertiser says:

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—There is a big row go ing on in Mail circles. The question practically is as to whether the Mail will swallow the News, or the News swallow the Mail. Neither is paying, and it is proposed to amagamate them, but it is said there is a disarrement as to which is to be given up. One set of influences wants to get rid of Bunting as well as Griffin, and allow the Mail to swallow the News. Bunting demands a considerable sum for his stock as the price of going out, but the reply is that if he is stubborn more money will be put into the News and the News made the tory organ, in which case, good-bye Mail! The opening at Knox college was characterized by a practical address from Principal Caven. He said the institution required another permanent professor, and the books in the library valued at $10,000 the books in the library valued at $10,000 were, in poor condition as to binding. Money was needed to engage the professor and to re-bind the books. He hoped the friends of the charch and the college would come forward with donations. The large andience of ladies and gentlemen appeared to be deeply interested in the principal's statements, which will doubtless have effect in the manner desired. The alumning executation in connection with Knox met effect in the manner desired. The alumni association in connection with Knox met subsequently, the president, Dr. Laing, in the chair. There were about 100 members present. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Rev. Mr. Wilson of the Carlton street church, president; Rev. R. W. We regret to say that there is a prevalent idea that a man who smuggles goods into Canada may escape the proper consequences of his illegal conduct provided he have sufficient influence at Ottawa. It goes for the saying that it is competent for the head of the department to review the action taken by the customs officers in their warfare against smugglers, but the minister of customs should regard every petitioner whose case is advocated who is afraid to stand upon his merits. If subordinates make improper or unjust seizures, a simple statement in writing ought to be sufficient for all proper purposes. When the idea gets abroad, as

From its western home malaria has spread eastward, and it is no longer fashionable to attribute a red nose to the wearing of tight boots, or red eyes to sleeping with the key-hole of one's bedroom unclosed. Malaria is like charity, because it covers a multitude of sins. Matrimonial malaria is the latest and most romantic development of the disease. It is coincident with the elopement epidemic, and a Miss Meyer from Louisiana has it. A few weeks ago she arrived in New York with her relatives, and was immediately smitten by the amorous air of that city. Her people are wealthy, and the daughters of the wealthy families of New York were eloping with their fathers' coachmen. Miss Meyer was in the same predicament as the man in Calaveras county, described by Mark Twain, who had ne jumping frog for competition until he went and caught one. Miss Meyer's people did not bring their coachman with them. All the neighbors' coachmen had run away with neighbors' daughters. What did she do? She eloped with herself, and going to a hotel registered as a married woman. The detectives were put upon her track, and, for a wonder, soon had her back in the family circle. The elopement reporter, who is now a necessity upon the American press, inquired for particulars at the Meyer mansion, and was assured that the young lady had eloped

Doctors differ, doctors of divinity as well as doctors of medicine. Dr. Talmage of Brooklyn says that no sane man who is not an infidel commits suicide. Mgr. PLICHTED TO A GIRL BURGLAR.

Ella Larrabee, the girl burglar of Brooklyn, pleaded guilty on Saturday in the court of sessions to a charge of grand lar-BOARD OF DIRECTORS. eny and burglary. She was sent back to Raymond street jail, and will be sentenced H. P. Dwight, Esq., A. MoLean Howard Esq., C. Blackett Robinson, Esq., K. Chisholm Esq., M. P. P., John Ginty, Esq., D. Mitchel McDonald, Esq. on Friday. Yesterday morning when Judge Moore had completed the regular business of the court, Daniel Shugru, the oung Connecticut farmer, who a month ago came to the city to look for a wife, and young Connectieut farmer, who a month ago came to the city to look for a wife, and selected the girl burglar as the most desirable, approached the bench and requested Judge Moore to give him a hearing. "Go on," said the judge.

"I have come," the young farmer said, "to intercede for Miss Larrabee, and secure your aid in marrying her."

"You can't know what you are about," replied Judge Moore, "I will not do anything for you in that direction. If you have regard for your future welfare and happiness I would advise you to give up this idea. The girl has been twice in the penitentiary already, and is sure to go there again. It may be different with Connecticut thieves, but I would not advise you to marry a Brooklyn thief, more particularly this one you are after. Is there not one decent girl in Connecticut who will marry you? If you have any friends who care for you, I advise them to take charge of you at once and put some sense in your head. It will be some time before you or anybody else will have an opportunity to marry Miss Larrabee."

Shugru turned away evidently much disappointed. Undismayed, however, by the cold water thrown on his matrimonial purposes by the judge, he hurried to Raymond street jail and paid his respects to the girl burglar. The meeting was a very affecting one, and the Connecticut youth renewed his protestations of devotions, and he assured Ella that he would make her his wife after she had served out her term, which he understood would be two years. Ella promised to be true to him, and that in future she would give up her thieving ways. Shugru gave her a tendollar bill, and also sent her some delicacies. He returned to Connecticut last aight with a heavy heart. He is 23 years old, short and thick set, and very hard of hearing. He does not look very intelligent.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per during the past six months, fully ninety per cent have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other ad-vertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally be-lieved by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adanted his oure to their extermination; Irish-Scotch-Canadians there is no reason undoubtedly it has got abroad, that such affairs can be "settled" at Ottawa through political influence, officers are discouraged, smugglers are emboldened, and honest importers are put at a disadvantage. Inoculation Against Love Sickness.

From the New York Sun. Thomas Hughes reports a curious fellow passenger on board a transatlantic steamer. His name was Adriance Ward Ainsley, as he gave it, and he said that he had been a curate in some remote part of England, He was a man of much learning and had been carried away by Pasteur's discoveries in the treatment of hydrophobia by inoculation, and he believed that the principle could be applied to purely mental allments or conditions. His argument ran in this way to be a discovering the conditions of the conditions of the conditions of the conditions of the conditions. ments or conditions. His argument ran in this way: Hydrophobia is as much a disease of the mind as of the body. The remains of those who die rabid show, on dissection, no sign of physical disturbance. The malady is largely of the mind. Now, Pasteur has proved that inoculation with hydrophobia gives a dog immunity from the disease, though he may be repeatedly bitten by rabid beasts; and it is believed that the same effect would be produced on human beings. If that be so, it is clear that all of the positive emotions, especially those which are apt to drive persons crazy, that all of the positive emotions, especially those which are apt to drive persons crazy, can be guarded against. All we have to do, for example, is to obtain the virus of love from a madman sellicted with it, inculate a sentimentally healthy man, and octilate a seminate the seminate that make him forever proof against the affliction. Ainsley's visit to America is to lay his idea before the British association at Montreal.

"I might have spared myself the trouble of speaking," she said, "if I had only known that Mr. Allston does not know his acquaintances in the atreet!"

"I daresay he was thinking of something else," said Effic Wallis, apologetically.

"But I called his name," persisted Lilian, "and he looked me full in the face!"

Well, you shall call him to an account for it when he comes to night."

"I have half a mind not to see him!"
"That would be nonsense," said sensible Mrs. Wallis. "Come along; we shall be at home in two minutes."

Lilian Graham looked very pretty as she sat in her father's drawing room that night, with the soft light from the chandelier streaming round her slender figure. She was a blonde, of that rare type of beauty which boasts a complexion like damask roses, and hair of shining gold, in contrast to eyes of the darkest hazel, and the somewhat plain face of Mrs. Wallis served as an unconscious foil to set off her own fresh young loveliness.

Mr. Alliston's face brightened as he en-

Miss Graham's cheeks flushed.
"Mr. Allston, I can hardly discredit the

He looked pained, but offered no further explanation of the mystery.

"Are you ready for the concert?" he

"The truth is," she said, rising to her feet, and playing with the gold which was looped around her neck, "I do not care to go out with a gentleman who sees fit to repose so little confidence in me!"

Mr. Allston bowed submission to her fist.

"Very well," he said, quietly. "I can not, of course, dispute your decision. I wish you a very good evening."

But little Lilian found the hours by the

"I beg your pardon," said Lilian, "you were at the opera, for I saw you there!"

but she would have died ere she would have sent to her lover saying, "I have been wrong—come to me once more!"

For Lilian Graham persisted in believing that Meredith alone had been in the wrong. She sat at the head of her father's din net table one evening, mechanically devoting harself to the duties of hospitality, when a well known name sounded on her ear.

This, then, was the secret of the strange misunderstanding which had parted herself and her affianced lover. She could hardly sit through the tedious courses of the formal dinner party, and rejoiced when the time came for herself and Mrs. Wallis to leave the table!

"Effle," she cried, breathlessly, as soon as they were alone, "did you hear what Mr. Van Ness said?"

He came, somewhat surprised, yet not lacking in dignity.

"Meredith," she said, softly, coming up to him, "will you forgive me? I have been wrong and hasty, but I love you still. I never knew until to night of—of the cloud which overshadowed your household." "I knew you were misunderstanding me, Lilian," he said calmly, "but my lips were sealed by a promise exacted by my father!"

"Then you will forgive me?"

He smiled.
"It is easy to forgive one we love," he said, gently.
"Meredith!" she whispered, "do you "You are looking very well, Lilian," he said, with something of the conscious pride of propietorship.

Lilian bit her lip.

"Just as you choose," said Effic Wallis, who was not unaccustomed to the sudden caprices of her pretty little cousin's mind.

The opera house was crowded, but the party with difficulty found seats at the back of the dress-circle—but Lilian was hardly seated before she pressed her cousin's arm.

"Effie, look there—in the parquette—close to the orchestra stalls!"

AN ESSAY ON ABSCONDERS. w to Boom Canada's Cashier Tr

-A Few Hints to Mr. Mowat. From the Bobcaygeon Independent. Canada is certainly not much liked in the States. The Yanks have no desire to any nearer to us than they are. They find Canada an exceedingly useful place to Ladies who have occasion to carry parcels abscord to, and use it largely for that purpose. We have a very large number of first-class Yankee absconders among us. We rather cultivate that kind of business and make our laws to suit them. They always b ing lots of money and are much shades and are selling rapidly. sought after. It, therefore, grieves us unpopular in the States, for those who have been robbed don't like to look across the line and see the robbers living in style, and opulence, respected, visited, and courted by the cream of Canadian society. It makes them sort of mad. This is unreasonable. It isn't our fault. If the absconders didn't come to Canada, they would go some where else, and why shouldn't Canada have them? Why, it would be a good plan for municipalities to offer a bonus to attract absconders. Lindsay, for instance, might do a good business in absconders, and should advertise its attractions in the States. That town is greatly in need of residents possessing money and a taste for society,

A Placky Rosser.

Bothwell Times: One day last week, on the farm of Billy McIntosh, Zone, a strange fight was witnessed. Mr. McIntosh heard an unusual noise in the hen yard, and on repairing thither saw one of his large roosters engaged in a fierce combat with a large chicken hawk, while another lay dead on the ground, pierced through the head by the rooster's spurs. Billy did not wait to see if his rooster would be successful in despatching the second hawk, but took the matter in his own hands and laid his hawkship out with a club.

Itse its attractions in the States. That town is greatly in need of residents possessing money and a taste for society, and af few first class absconders with abundant bank funds, would be a great help to the town, both financially, commercially, and socially. A circular to all bank still faster. Something ought to be done, still faster. Something ought to be done. When Mr. Mowat reads this next Sunday morning to Mrs. M. at breakfast, he will at once catch our meaning, and act upon it. Oliver will settle this absconding business in a jiffy when he takes hold of it. In the meantime there's lots of room in Lindsay.

always b ing lot of money and are much sought after. It, therefore, grieves us greatly to find that some members of the noble army of absconders don't treat and the secondary of the noble army of absconders don't treat and the secondary of the National bank, N. J. Why that man was a mean and contemptible viliain. He had come out "short" some two or three hundred thousand dollars, and instead of taking as much more and absconding to Canada, what did the blackguard do but commit suicide. Such a man deserves public execration. Canada lost heavily by that contemptible transaction, for the example set by the scoundrel was contagious, and three other "shorts" committed and three other "shorts" committed and three other "shorts" committed suicide instead of visiting this Canada of suicide instead of visiting this Canada of sours. It is important that the matter should be looked after carefully, for there is a boom at present in "shortages" in the Americon banks, and a great many absconders may reasonably be expected to come to Canada. So numerous are the bank defalcations that it is a subject of public discussion whether bank officials are becoming more dishonest than was formerly the case. The degree of honesty is probably no greater or less than of old, but the temptation is stronger, and leads to men living beyond their incomes. Then they take money not their own, some out "short," and abscult the relics of a bird battle field, so diverse is the pumage on on hat.

That's where the is. The desire for show, and pomp, and splender is excessive, and leads to men living beyond their incomes. Then they take money not their own, some out "short," and abscult the should be used in preference to clamada. Considerable American capital by such means is brought into the country.
