New Baptist Pastor Arrives To-day.

Rev. A. S. Lewis, Graduate of Newton Theological School, Assumes Pastorate of Bridgetown Baptist Church

REV. A. S. LEWIS.

As announced previously in the Monitor, the Rev. A. S. Lewis of Newton, Mass., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Bridgetown Baptist Church, and is expected to arrive to-day to assume his charge. Mr. Lewis is a native of Cumberland County, and received his early education at the public schools in Parrsboro. In 1896 he decided to enter the Christian ministry and went to Sackville, where he spent one year in Moses-Abbey, and one year in the college. In 1898 he entered the sophomore class of Acadia College and graduated in June 1901, and was valedictorian of his class. In January 1901 Mr. Lewis assumed the pastorate of the Aylesford Baptist Church, where he remained till June 1904, at which time he resigned to pursue a course of study at the Newton Theological Seminary, from which he graduated on the 6th inst. During the present year he has prepared an original thesis on "The aspects of Christianity to be emphasized in the preaching of today," for which in addition to the high standing maintained in the regular course, he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. Mr. Lewis was one of the speakers at the Commencement Exercises at Newton this year, his subject being "The Enrichment of Public Worship in Baptist Churches." While studying at the seminary he has had the full pastoral oversight of the Stratford street Baptist Church of West Roxbury. This church, which was organized at the beginning of his pastorate, two years ago, has grown sufficiently to warrant the erection of a twenty-thousand dollar church building. Plans for a most commodious and architecturally beautiful structure have been prepared and accepted by the church, and it is expected that the building will be erected during the present summer. Mr. Lewis was married in July 1898 to Miss Lawson, youngest daughter of the late Rev. D. C. Dawson, of Westmoreland Point, N. B. The Bridgetown Baptist Church are to be congratulated on their efforts past and present, in securing able preachers for their pulpit.

B. C. R. C. Program

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Bridgetown Civilian Rifle Club the following program was adopted:—

Dyke Cup—July 6th, 500, 600 and 800 yds.
Dixon Cup—July 13th, 500, 800 yds, 10 shots.
Dyke Medal Juniors—July 20th, 300, 500 and 600 yds.
Wade Cup—Aug. 3rd, 300, 600 and 800 yds.
Shalmer Cup—Sept. 7th, 200, 500 and 600 yds.

Daniels Cup—Oct. 5th, 500, 800 yds, 10 shots.
Pickup Cup—Oct. 12th, 500, 600 yds, 10 shots.

It was further decided that the Club hold spoon competitions on the first Saturday of each month on which dates these silver spoons will be offered as prizes, one to each of three competitors making highest scores. When a competitor has won a spoon his scores after that date shall be discounted ten per cent until every competitor has had a chance to win a spoon, after which the handicap shall be removed. A small entrance fee may be charged for such competitions.

It was also decided that the Bridgetown Civilian Rifle Association send a team of eight men to compete with other provincial teams at Kentville and Truro for Challenge Trophies on July and August 1. The team will be selected from those making highest aggregate in League matches.

Annapolis-Kings Medical Society

(Middleton Outlook.)

A few weeks ago the local physicians, Drs. Miller, Spangale and Read took the initiative in a movement to organize a medical association for the counties of Kings and Annapolis. The first meeting was held at Hotel Spa, yesterday, and was attended by Dr. G. E. DeWitt, Wolfville; Dr. J. W. Miller, Canning; Dr. W. B. Moore, Kentville; Dr. Killam, Woodville; Dr. J. B. Marsh, Berwick; Dr. F. N. Balcom, Aylesford; Dr. L. R. Morse and Dr. F. W. Young, Lawrenceport; Drs. M. E. Armstrong and Burns, Bridgetown, and the local doctors.

Dr. W. H. Macdonald, of Rose Bay, and Dr. F. S. L. Ford, of New Germany, representatives of the Lunenburg-Queens Medical Association who were present, explained the advantages of the proposed organization.

Resolved that we form a society to be known as the Annapolis-Kings Medical Society.
Dr. G. E. DeWitt was elected president, Dr. P. N. Balcom, 1st vice-president, Dr. J. A. Spangale, 2nd vice-president, and Dr. W. F. Read, secretary, treasurer. The officers together with Drs. Marsh and Morse form the executive.

Resolved that the executive be a committee to frame rules and by-laws of the society to be presented at the next meeting.
Resolved that the next meeting be held in Berwick on August 2 at 10.30 a. m.
A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Drs. Ford and Macdonald for their assistance in forming the society and they were made honorary members.

Hay $50. per Ton.

The hay famine still continues in the Cape Breton towns, says the North Sydney Herald. Last week one of the largest firms in North Sydney wired a Charlottetown dealer for quotations on a car of hay. He was informed that the lowest price was twenty-one dollars per ton in Charlottetown. There seems to be no possibility of relieving the present stringency and the loss to Cape Breton will be many thousands of dollars. A few days ago some cattle arrived in North Sydney en route to St. Pierre. It was found that no hay could be secured, whereupon the different points in the province were telegraphed, and with the exception of Truro no hay was offered for sale. Four bundles were accordingly expressed from Truro to North Sydney. On the arrival there the hay cost fifty dollars per ton.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.
Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.
Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for constipation, biliousness and stomach troubles.
Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.
One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25. For sale by W. A. Warren, Pharm. B.

Bridgetown Has Another Fire

On Sunday morning at half past one o'clock the barn of W. Anthony on Church road was discovered to be on fire. The fire had then made so much headway that when the fire department arrived on the scene their efforts were principally given to saving the house with which the barn was connected. In this they were successful, the rear of the house only being slightly damaged, but it had a narrow escape from destruction. The barn was entirely consumed, though its contents, with the exception of a ton of hay and a few carpenter tools, were saved including a pig and some chickens, the only live stock on the place.

The place is the J. G. H. Parker estate purchased by Mr. Anthony last year and on which he has made many improvements. Mr. Anthony, with his wife and child, was away from home, spending a couple of days at his father's at Port Lorne. The only occupants of the house were Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Anthony's aunt, an elderly lady who resides with her, and the housemaid. The latter discovered shortly before the fire started that two men, whom she describes as tramps, had occupied the barn during the night. One of them came to the door to beg for breakfast for himself and companion and when refused returned to the barn. Following the man to the barn the woman saw his companion coming down from the barn loft and seeing his pipe in his cane, and saw him drop two matches on the barn floor. She remonstrated that "he had better be careful or he'd set the barn on fire," to which he replied with an oath that he "wouldn't care if he did." Both men then left the place. After the fire Policeman Anderson was put on their track, but up to the present time no trace of them has been found.

There was a small insurance of two hundred dollars on the barn.

SUPREME COURT.

The proceedings on Tuesday were reported last week.

The criminal prosecution against Daniel Barnes for criminal assault upon Rose Maud Dunn was tried Wednesday and revealed a state of moral degradation which is generally not supposed to exist in Christian lands. J. J. Ritchie, K. C., took charge of the crown's case after dinner and rendered valuable assistance. The jury, after long deliberation, returned a verdict of guilty, and recommended the prisoner to the mercy of the court. The judge sentenced him to one year's imprisonment in the county jail. Later his counsel moved for a reserved case or to quash the verdict upon the ground that the jury had been subjected to interference from outside parties, while deliberating upon their verdict, and affidavits were read sworn to by two of the jury, to the effect that they were only led to agree (upon a verdict of guilty by reason of statements made by an outside party. The motion will be disposed of at the expiration of thirty days.

The only other case tried was a prosecution against Captain Fata for fraudulently converting the proceeds of apples shipped by his schooner to Joggins. The captain had taken a small vessel load of apples last fall from Margareville and suffered shipwreck near Sackville, but he and his cargo floated off the vessel, some going adrift and some reaching land. He did what he could to sell the fruit, but alleged that the proceeds were insufficient to cover the expenses. He was acquitted by the jury in short order.

The second case of DeMoune vs. May, tried Tuesday, resulted in a judgment for plaintiff for thirty dollars, the amount claimed.

How to Distinguish and Combat Injurious Insect Pests.

From a Bulletin Published by the Superintendent of the Department for Extinguishing Gypsy and Brown-tail Moths of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

THE BROWN-TAIL MOTH.
This insect, like the gypsy moth, a common European pest of fruit and shade trees, has been an object of interest to gardeners from the earliest times. Throughout Europe it is known as the "common caterpillar," and accounts of its habits and periodical ravages are to be found in nearly all European works on entomology and horticulture. It found its way essentially to Somerville, Mass., in the early nineties, probably in a shipment of roses from Holland, and is now generally disseminated over eastern New England.

Damage by the Brown-tail Moth.
While at first a pest of the pear and other fruit trees, the brown-tail moth has now adapted itself to feeding on various species of forest trees, notably the oaks. In the spring, as soon as the buds unfold, the young caterpillars begin to feed, and where numerous completely strip even large trees. When the food supply gives out they swarm forth along fences, walls, etc., in search of foliage.

The damage by the caterpillars to the fruit trees is only a part of the harm wrought by them. Whenever these insects come in contact with human flesh, they produce a most severe and painful netting. This is due apparently not to any poisonous material in the hairs, but rather to the finely barbed and brittle hairs themselves. So severe is this affection that in many cases people have been made seriously ill by it. The best remedy for it is the liberal use of cooling lotions, or what is more satisfactory, even if less pleasant, the free use of common vaseline.

Where the brown-tail moth caterpillar exists in great numbers, it at times gathers upon houses and even enters them, causing extreme annoyance. Like the gypsy moth, the brown-tail moth, where it abounds, depreciates the value of residential property.

LIFE HISTORY.

The Egg.—The egg mass of the brown-tail moth somewhat resembles that of the gypsy moth, but it is laid on the under side of a leaf—usually on a tree trunk and is more or less elongated and of a bright reddish-brown color. From July 15 to the end of the month, the white moths lay their eggs in brown, hair-covered masses on the leaves near top of pear and other trees. Each egg cluster contains about three hundred eggs, closely packed in a mass about two-thirds of an inch long by one-fourth of an inch wide.

The Caterpillar.—The eggs hatch during August, and the young caterpillars begin to feed in clusters on the upper surface of the leaves. They soon commence the work of spinning their winter webs. In making the web a number of leaves in the vicinity of the egg clusters are drawn together and carefully spun in with a tenacious silken web. The web is grayish in color, composed of dead leaves and silk, and is very hard to tear apart. Each web contains about two hundred and fifty caterpillars, and varies in length from four to six inches. With the approach of cold weather the caterpillars enter the web and close the exit holes. We then have the strange phenomenon of a caterpillar wintering over when only one-quarter grown, and emerging the following spring to complete its life history. The extremes of cold in Massachusetts do not seem to affect these insects adversely. They emerge in the spring, usually early in April, eat first the buds and then the blossoms, and attack the foliage of fruit trees as soon as it develops. The full grown caterpillar is about two inches in length, with a broken white stripe on either side and two conspicuous red dots on the back near the posterior end. Stripping the foliage of one tree, they go to others, and continue to eat until full grown, when the cocoons are spun within the leaves at the ends of the branches or sometimes on the tree trunks.

The Pupa.—The caterpillars pupate within their cocoons at the tips of twigs. Usually the mass of cocoons is formed within a spray of leaves, but at times the cocoon is made on a house wall, fence, tree trunk, etc. The pupa is a compact, dark brown body, about five-eighths of an inch long, with yellowish-brown hairs scattered over its surface. Pupation takes place the latter part of June, and the moths emerge about the middle of July.

The Moth.—The moths are paraguise on the wings. The male is slender bodied, while the female has a conspicuous bunch of brown hair at the tip of the abdomen. Hence the name "brown-tail moth." The female has a wing expanse of about one and one-half inches, the male being slightly smaller. Both the male and female brown-tail moths fly mainly by night, and are greatly attracted to lights. As in the case of the gypsy moth, all the destructive work of the brown-tail moth is done by its caterpillar, which, unlike the gypsy moth caterpillar, habitually feeds by day.

DISTRIBUTION.

The brown-tail moth is known to have spread at least as far as the northeast as Eastport, Maine, and as far south as Cape Cod, Massachusetts. To the west it has been found at Amherst, Massachusetts. The eastern portion of Massachusetts from north to south is now quite solidly infested, though less so south of Boston, and the moth doubtless exists in many communities in and out of Massachusetts from which it has not yet been reported.

The female winged brown-tail moth, like the male, is a strong, swift flyer and can carry her eggs long distances before depositing them. For this reason the brown-tail moth has spread much farther from its point of introduction in Massachusetts than has the gypsy moth. In its flight the brown-tail moth is often aided by strong winds. It is also transported over steamer trails and in electric and steam cars to which it is attracted at night by the lights.

The caterpillar of the brown-tail moth has, when young, the "spinning down" habit already described in the case of the gypsy moth caterpillar, and is similarly transported by vehicles and pedestrians. The neighborhoods of travelled highways, therefore, should be kept free from the brown-tail as well as from the gypsy moth.

THE SPECIES CONTRASTED.

The gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth are constantly confused in the minds of many people. The following marked differences between the two should be noted:

- a. The egg cluster of the gypsy moth is rarely found on the under side of a leaf, and is commonly a rather robust looking object, often two inches long and relatively thick and broad.
- b. The egg cluster of the brown-tail moth is almost always deposited on the under side of a leaf, and is smaller and more slender than a typical gypsy moth egg cluster.
- c. The gypsy moth caterpillar, when well grown, has a dark grayish or sooty colored body, marked conspicuously along the back, counting from the head, with a double row of blue spots followed by a double row of red spots.
- d. The brown-tail moth caterpillar, when well grown, is of a bright tawny or orange brown color, marked along each side of the body by a conspicuous row of pure white spots, and having two bright red spots at the lower end of the back.
- e. The female gypsy moth has a wing spread of about two and one-quarter inches, and her general color is a dingy white lightly streaked and blotched with blackish and faint grayish. Her abdomen has no thick, conspicuous patch of golden or brownish hairs at the tip. Though she has large wings (which she often flutters), she does not fly, but merely crawls short distances.
- f. The female winged brown-tail moth is much smaller than the female gypsy moth, with much less spread of wing. Her color is a remarkably pure, unspiced, snow white. At the tip of

The Emmerson Crockett Case

Fredericton, N. B., June 18.—There was a large crowd in attendance at the opening of the June session of the York county circuit court here this morning, the source of attraction being the now celebrated Emmerson-Crockett criminal libel suit. Attendance from the county districts was made up chiefly of those summoned to serve as jurors. Ex-Attorney General Pugsley, Hon. A. St. White, K. C., and J. H. Barry, K. C., the trio of attorneys engaged to conduct the prosecution, arrived first and took their seats at the left of the long table assigned to barristers.

Messrs. J. D. Hazen, K. C., O. S. Crockett, M. P., and H. F. McLeod, counsel for the defence, arrived a few moments later and lined up on the opposite side of the table. Hon. H. R. Emmerson, M. P., complainant in the suit arrived shortly before the opening hour, and took a seat at the end of the barristers' table in front of the prisoner's dock.

J. H. Crockett, defendant, was not present at the opening of the court, the train on which he is returning put in an appearance at twelve put in an appearance at twelve from Montreal not having arrived. He o'clock.

The judge's charge to the grand jury was brief and impartial. He congratulated them on their large attendance and called attention to several local matters which he thought they should investigate, and if the circumstances justified it make a presentment to the court.

Referring to the case of the King vs. Crockett, he warned the jury that it was not their duty to make a finding, but to simply decide whether or not the evidence would justify a presentment to the court. The evidence to be submitted by the prosecution sufficient to justify them in placing the accused on trial. His Honor then quoted from the depositions in the case, and remarked that he considered the evidence would justify the grand jury in returning a true bill. First, however, they would need to be satisfied that the alleged libel was published and sent broadcast, also that it was written or published by Mr. Crockett and had reference to the complainant in the suit. If they were satisfied that the publication was made without justification or excuse and exposed Mr. Emmerson to hatred, malice and ridicule, it was their duty to find a bill.

A PARENT'S PLEA.

(Peter McArthur.)
My little boy is eight years old
He goes to school each day,
He doesn't mind the tasks they set—
They seem to him but play;
He heads his class at rattia work—
And also takes the lead
At making dinky paper boats—
But I wish that he could read.

They teach him physiology,
And, O, it chills our hearts
To hear our prattling innocent
Mix up his inward parts.
He also learns astronomy
And names the stars by night—
Of course he's very up-to-date,
But I wish that he could write.

They teach him things botanical,
They teach him how to draw,
He babbles of mythology
And gravitation's law;
And the discoveries of science
With him are quite a fad.
They tell me he's a clever boy,
But I wish that he could add.

her abdomen is a very conspicuous, unattractive, sharply contrasted, thick, rounded patch of golden or brownish hairs.

The female brown-tail moth is a swift, strong flyer, mainly flying by night, and is greatly attracted to lights.

The gypsy moth caterpillar never weaves a nest or web in which to hibernates during cold weather. The gypsy moth winters in the egg form never as a caterpillar.

The caterpillar of the brown-tail moth always weaves a hibernating nest or web in which to rest torpid during the winter. Throughout cold weather the brown-tail moth is in caterpillar form, dormant and snugly enclosed inside its nest, which is placed at or near the tip of a twig. With the warm weather of spring the brown-tail moth caterpillar does not "hatch," but simply awakens to animation, crawls out of the nest and begins to feed.

The gypsy moth does not, in any of its forms, produce noteworthy irritation of the human skin.

The brown-tail moth caterpillars and cocoons, by reason of their hairs, cause a most annoying and painful irritation. The female brown-tail moths in their struggles to emerge from the cocoons, often acquire a certain number of caterpillar hairs, and hence are sometimes, though rarely, the cause of the irritation above mentioned. (To be continued.)

Swears to Terrible Crimes

Some of the doubt that has existed with reference to Harry Orchard's alleged confession has been dispelled at Boise, Ida. He has told his revolting story on the witness stand. The trial of William B. Hayward, secretary of the western federation of miners, for alleged complicity in the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho, is at last well under way. The jury is made up chiefly of farmers, and none is a member of a labor union.

After introducing testimony to show how Steunenberg was assassinated by a bomb placed at his gate, and other minor evidence, Orchard was called to the stand and told his story. Briefly, it was in substance that while a miner in the Coeur d'Alene region of Idaho, he joined with other members of the western federation of miners in the destruction of property, and causing the death of several men, that he was hired and paid by big officials of the western federation of miners, including Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, to commit many murders and destroy mining property in Colorado.

These crimes, he claimed, included blowing up the Vindicator mine at Apple Creek, where the superintendent and a foreman were killed, the blowing up of the railroad station at Independence, causing the death of 14 non-union miners, and, finally, the assassination of Steunenberg in revenge for the action he took as governor to suppress rioting in the mining regions, during the Coeur d'Alene trouble. In his story he closely connected the labor union officials with his crimes and claimed that they praised him for his work, and from time to time paid him for it. He represented that he was assisted on several occasions by Steve Adams, who is also held awaiting trial for taking part in the Steunenberg murder.

The cases against Hayward, Moyer and Pettibone rest largely upon this alleged confession of Orchard, and much depends upon whether the state can back up his story with good evidence in corroboration of it. Orchard's story alone would not be sufficient to convict the accused men.

Orchard was born in Canada, but the man as he is today is not a Canadian product, says the St. John Star. The fact that he deserted his family when he left Canada and his confession that he burned his cheese factory indicates that he was good raw material for the lawless conditions of society in the Western States, and upon and produce the finished fraud that had remained in Canada or gone to a civilized part of the United States, he would probably never have become any worse than, say, a defrauder of life insurance companies or a wild bankrupt. He is, to all appearances, simply a man in whom conscience and remorse are dead or perhaps never actively existed. A short association with the leaders of that mafia of America, the Western Federation of Miners, developed the Ontario cheese maker and brought out possibilities which he doubtless never suspected he possessed. A Quebec paper gives an interesting account of Orchard's, or Horsley's, earlier life in Wooler, Ontario. His wedded life was apparently very happy. "He was a church member, and found that his grasp on things spiritual was slipping from him. He was not known at this time to have sinned greatly. He was merely 'taking up with the bad gang' and losing ground. Finally, in despair, he said to a man with whom he was living at the time that he felt obliged to withdraw from church membership, as he couldn't go on being a hypocrite. Shortly afterwards he held his own case before the church authorities here, and secured his connection with the sanctuary. This action, with no disgrace to prompt it, was quite unusual, and seems to indicate a character swayed by the motives of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Horsley was sinful enough to slip into a state of almost rebellion against his Maker; yet frank and upright enough to choose an open confession of his weakness rather than continue sulking under false colors."

The fact is that the man seems to be a subject for the alienist rather than the jurymen, such a contradiction is he. When free, prepared to do any amount of indiscriminate killing at a moment's notice, after a short period of confinement and under the influence of religious enthusiasm ready to confess his sins to the uttermost, and apparently expecting to pay the penalty for them as he surely must. It is impossible to imagine Orchard's story involving as it does such an awful reflection on the condition of labor organization in the United States, as having been manufactured, and yet after days of constant cross-examination remaining without one serious contradiction or discrepancy. The ablest lawyers in the United States could not frame a story so circumstantial as Orchard's and stick to it in every essential detail through out the trying ordeal which he has just gone through. The inevitable impression of Orchard's testimony is that he has told the truth, damning as it is to Hayward and his fellow friends. It will be interesting to see if the witnesses to be called in rebuttal will make as good an impression.

What is a Blended Flour

Looking schools and cooking experts have never grown so enthusiastic over any other flour, as they have over blended flour. And the enthusiasm is well merited.

What is a Blended Flour, you ask?

It is a blend, adopted for some time by most millers, consisting of Ontario fall wheat (which is sown in the autumn and ripens in the late summer), and Manitoba spring wheat (sown in the spring and harvested in the fall). The first is mellowed, and given a rich consistency and fine flavor by remaining all winter in the ground, maturing slowly during the summer months. Up in the Northwest they have several hours more sunshine every day in the summer than comes to most southern fields, and wheat matures quickly into hard, flinty grain, containing a large percentage of gluten. These two wheats, when blended scientifically in just the right proportion, make the most nutritious, finely flavored and successful flour that can be obtained.

Blended Flour is unreservedly recommended by those learned in culinary mysteries for both bread and pastry.

There is no doubt that the Blended Flour is the perfect flour.

Possibly no town in our province with a population not greater than is claimed here can boast of as many good horses as are owned by our local horsemen. Great as has been the future predicted for the automobile, man has manifested no great desire to forsake his old friend, the horse, and to-day fine roadsters are in greater demand than ever before. Not only are good roadsters eagerly sought, but those standard bred and of acknowledged speed are also coming in for their share of the honors.

SAVED THEM ALL.

"Eve ybody's Magazine" tells of a good Samaritan, passing an apartment house in the small hours of the morning, who noticed a man leaning limply against the doorway.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Drunk!"

"Do you live in this house?"

"Yes."

"Do you want me to help you upstairs?"

"Yes."

With much difficulty he half dragged half-carried the drooping figure up the staircase to the second floor.

"What floor do you live on?" he asked. "Is this it?"

"Yes."

Rather than face an irate wife who might, perhaps, take him for a companion more at fault than her spouse, he opened the first door he came to and pushed the limp figure in.

The good Samaritan groped his way downstairs again. As he was passing through the vestibule he was able to make out the dim outlines of another man, apparently in worst condition than the first one.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Are you drunk, too?"

"Yes," was the feeble reply.

"Do you live in this house, too?"

"Yes."

"Shall I help you upstairs?"

"Yes."

The good Samaritan pushed, pulled and carried him to the second floor where this man also said he lived. He opened the same door and pushed him in.

As he again reached the front door he discerned the shadow of a third man, evidently worse off than either of the two. He was about to approach him when the object of his solicitude lurched out into the street and threw himself into the arms of a passing policeman.

"For heaven's sake, officer," he gasped, "protect me from that man. He's done nothing all night but carry me upstairs—I throw me down the elevator shaft."

THE LONG WAIT.

Bill Nye when a young man once made an engagement with a lady friend of his to take her riding of a Sunday afternoon. The appointed day came, but at the livery stable all the horses were taken out but one old, shabby, exceedingly long horse.

Mr. Nye hired the nag and drove to his friend's residence. The lady let him wait nearly an hour before she was ready, and then on viewing the disreputable outfit flatly refused to accompany Mr. Nye.

"Why," she exclaimed, "surely, that horse may die of old age any moment."

"Madam," Mr. Nye replied, "when I arrived that horse was a prancing young steed."—Harper's Weekly.

NOT CURIOUS.

"I never saw such a rubberneck," sneered Mrs. Gabbie. "Just because the doctor stopped at our house yesterday she immediately wanted to know what was the matter."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Naylor; "I wonder how she'd like the rest of us to be that curious about her. You know the doctor stopped at her house today, too."

"You don't say? I wonder what's the matter there?"

WHAT THE MEN SAID.

"Well," growled the first man at the five o'clock tea, "if it were not for my wife, I wouldn't be here."

"No, hang it! And neither would I if it were not for my wife. I'm the hostess's husband."—Philadelphia Press.

Important to the Farmer

(Maritime Merchant.)

G. E. Barbour, of the G. E. Barbour Co., St. John, remarked to the Merchant this week that there is a very noticeable improvement in the financial position of the people of the Maritime Provinces. The fact is made known to the business man by the increased demand not only for high-grade staples, but for what a few years ago would have perhaps been called luxuries. He has observed a great change in this respect, gradually taking place, in recent years. A leading fish merchant had lately said to him that the trade in the common and cheaper grades of pickled fish had reached its limit, the demand turning toward the more expensively cured or canned fish, and to fresh fish. Wholesale grocers found a much more general demand for fancy groceries. The working man insists on having as good a grade of flour and other staples as the moneyed man.

Another matter to which Mr. Barbour referred was the amazingly large quantity of agricultural products brought into New Brunswick from Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba. If people could get hold of the actual statistics they would be very much surprised. A broker had told him that he could sell a hundred cars of beans in the Maritime Provinces in a year. Several hundred cars are so disposed of by Western shippers in this market. And yet the St. John valley in this province and some sections of Nova Scotia produce beans of excellent quality. Mr. Barbour noted the fact that hay is now worth $20 per ton, and the Merchant man remembered to have learned the day before that a Kings county farmer had bought a half of ton of hay in this city a few days before, which cost him, including freight, $10.60 at his barn. The inference from these facts is that provincial farmers are not taking advantage of their opportunities.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

UNBREAKABLE FIRE-POT

The lower portion of a fire-pot is usually nearly or partly filled with dead ashes, leaving the live, red-hot coals in the upper part. The result is that the upper portion expands much more than the lower.

This uneven expansion causes a strain too great for a one-piece fire-pot to stand. Sooner or later it will split, allowing precious heat and sickening gases to escape.

But the fire-pot of the Sunshine is constructed to meet this condition. It is in two sections. The upper half expands, as much as necessary, independently of the lower. When cool, it contracts back to its original size, fitting to the lower half perfectly.

And this strong, unbreakable, gas and heat-tight, two-piece fire-pot is just one of the many superior features of the Sunshine.

The Flour of The Family

For unflinching success in baking — for health — for economy — for every day satisfaction — "BEAVER" FLOUR is the pride of the pantry. It is a blend of ^{Manitoba River Wheat} and ^{Canada Fall Wheat} — combines the food properties of one, with the bread-making qualities of the other. It is the only flour blended especially for home baking. This blending of two kinds of wheat into one flour, enables the housewife to get the best results. With for all your baking, the bread and biscuits will always be white and light — the cake and pastry will always be delicious and inviting.

Beaver Flour

"Beaver" Flour is always the same — always the best flour that money can buy. And the best costs no more than the next best.

Your grocer will get it for you if you specify "BEAVER" FLOUR whenever you order.

Self Helps for Rural Communities

Gradually during the last two decades there has been a spread of the arts and crafts movement in different parts of the country. The communities in which have been made these efforts at establishing industries which shall promote individual skill and expression of feeling in the products, have, for the most part, been benefited, not alone in the revenue derived, but in a larger way. These industries have tended to bring the people of the several communities closer together in a bond of common interest and more that this they have attracted to the communities artists and art lovers, who have so far entered into the spirit of the work that they have given all their trained skill and talents to the promotion of better work.

This has brought the workers in personal contact with the outside world and especially with that element which makes for the uplifting and the beautifying of daily life. The results have been educational in the broadest sense, and interest in the higher and better things of life has been aroused in people who, before the establishment of the industries, had been content to lead the humdrum life which too often is typical of rural districts. Interest in literature, art and things beautiful has been aroused and at the same time the individual workers have been prompted to develop their originality and talents along lines useful in a double sense.

One of the most successful of these industries is located at Deerfield, Mass., and is known as the Deerfield Industries. It started with the establishment of the Deerfield society of blue and white needlework, the result of discovery by two women of artistic temperament of some rare old heirlooms in this kind of work in the Deerfield farm houses. There followed an attempt to reproduce this style of work, which met with an immediate market and prompted the revival of other old time hand industries, rug making, raffia basketry, palm leaf baskets, etc. Not only has the effort been made to reproduce the best of the old designs, but by means of vegetable dyes, hand ground, the lasting colors of our great grand-mothers have also been produced for the dying of the materials used.

Deerfield is but one of the number of towns in which industries of this nature have been started and have flourished. Women who otherwise would have no means of self support, have been enabled to make a fair living, to say nothing of the pleasure which has been brought into their lives by the occupations in which their work has led them and by contact with their fellow workers, and with summer visitors who have sought their products.

Washing Ribbons

I have never found any method of washing ribbons equal to mine. I put them to soak for an hour or more in a basin of soft, soapy water and then wash out, squeezing and rubbing gently. A few drops of ammonia in the water seems to hurt no color and renders the soaking more effective. Soap is best shaved and melted in a little hot water, using a very good quality of soap or washing powder, then dilute to the needed quantity for soaking the ribbons on hand. Do not rub the soap on the ribbon. When rinsed thoroughly in several waters put into clear water and set beside your ironing board. Have hot irons, and lift the ribbons, one by one, out of the water and iron them while dripping. This may sound "crazy," but for years I have been washing white, black and delicate colored ribbons in that way, and I defy anyone to tell them from new, until, of course, they begin to wear out. If a very "leazy" ribbon has been unfortunately purchased, mix a spoonful or so of cooked starch in the last water, and you will find the new look restored. Remember — "don't" wring out the ribbons, and "do" use hot irons.—M. M. F.

STOVE PAD.

Take two pair of old black stockings (ladies size) and cut off the feet. Take one leg and turn wrong side out and lay smoothly on table. Take remaining three and fold in a pad about seven inches square, then lay the stocking on table, about four inches from bottom. Now turn bottom end up over pad, and with strong thread stitch firmly through and through the end, that would be towards the ankle. Now take upper end and turn right side out and backward over pad at same time, and again stitch the end at which the hem of the stocking is, and you will have a handy little article, for if rightly made it will slip on like a mitten and the whole hand is protected while polishing the stove.

FAMILY ANNIVERSARIES.

"Thanksgiving and Christmas, wedding days and birthdays, are occasions that should never be neglected in the life of the family," writes Margaret E. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion for June. "Even though the married children go far from the early home living in widely separated neighborhoods, they should make an effort to get together at stated intervals, and so long as their parents live, the old home, with its dear memories, should draw them like a magnet to its hearth. Little cousins ought to know one another and be acquainted as brothers and sisters are. When long trips across the continent involve too great an expense for frequent visits, there is always the letter box on the street corner or the mail from a friend, and the post may be trusted to carry love messages safely from Maine to California, or around the circuit of the globe. How the mother at home watches for tidings from her married children, and how she grieves when for weeks and months she never receives a word and feels that she has dropped out of the daily lives of those for whom she toiled and saved years ago.

"Do you owe your mother a letter or a visit or a gift, you who are far away from her now? Do not let the sun go down until you pay that debt of love.

"Do not forget that although we may have many friends, we can have but one mother, and that no friend can be quite so intimate as she."

MEDICAL INSPECTION OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

"In the fall of 1896 a child in one of the public schools in New York was found picking pieces of skin from his hands and arms and passing them around to his little classmates. In a short time all the children involved in this hospitality were taken sick with scarlet fever.

"On investigation it was found that the child who was responsible for the epidemic was permitted by ignorant parents to return to school during the peeling—the most dangerous stage of the disorder. That fact led to an investigation of a large question—the transmission of disease among children—and the result was medical school inspection under the board of health. New York City now employs one hundred and fifty physicians, who visit each public school once a day, shortly after nine o'clock, to examine those children set aside by the teachers as requiring attention."

The Natural Cure For Rheumatism

"Fruit-a-tives" remove from the blood the poison which causes Rheumatism.

Rheumatism means poisoned blood. The kidneys, bowels and skin should rid the system of waste matter. If either of these vital organs become weakened or diseased, the body cannot throw off this waste fast enough.

One of these body poisons is UREA, which is eliminated both by the kidneys and skin. If the skin action is poor—if the kidneys are inflamed—urea stays in the system— is changed into uric acid— carried by the blood to the nerves and joints—and causes Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Rheumatism because they eliminate urea, by increasing the action of bowels, kidneys and skin. This is the only possible way in which Rheumatism can be cured to stay cured. And "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy in the world that completely eradicates the disease from the system.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in which the natural medicinal action of fruit is many times increased by the process of combining them.

Then tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into tablets, six a box—4 for 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure almost any case of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia.

PUZZLE CORNER

START A POSTAL CLUB.

Dear Puzzle Editor—

I am in the eighth grade at school and I like algebra, literature and history best of all my studies. I am very fond of books.

We have great fun at school playing ball, now that the fine weather has come again. Sometimes on fine summer days we girls go picnicking and we have fine times.

Perhaps some of the Puzzle Corner girls and boys would like to exchange postals. I would be glad to exchange with any of them. I am collecting them and have about 130 now.

Wishing this column much success.

I remain,
Your little friend,

Dear Puzzle Editor—

I am a little boy ten years old. I go to school and like to study. I am interested in the Puzzle Corner and or I am glad you take an interest in us children. It helps us to look for the coming of the paper. I like to try and puzzle them out myself but have to get help sometimes. I am sending answers to puzzles, hope they are right. I wrote this myself.

AVARD E. WITHERS.

Dear Puzzle Editor—

I am ten years of age and go to school at Paradise West and am in the 7th grade. I like going to school and also like farming, especially taking care of stock. I am glad it is coming summer after such a long cold winter.

Yours truly,

I. AN AGE PROBLEM

When first the marriage knot was tied
Between my wife and me,
My age was to that of my bride
As three times three to three.
But now, when ten and half ten years
We man and wife have been,
Her age to mine exactly bears
As eight is to sixteen.
Now tell, I pray, from what I've said,
What were our ages when we wed?

I am composed of nine letters,
My first is in joy but not in pleasure.
My second is in work but not in leisure.
My third is in school but not in play.
My fourth is in year but not in day.
My fifth is in pen but not in ink.
My sixth is in white but not in pink.
My seventh is in noise but not in laugh.
My eighth is in grain but not in chaff.
My ninth is in wine but not in gin.
My whole is a girl's name.

Edison Makes a Prediction

New York, June 18.—Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, in the course of an interview, says—

"A scientific discovery which I expect to see before I die, is the direct generation of electricity from coal. This has already been achieved in an experimental way. I have heard of several men who have done it. I myself have generated an electrical current by burning carbon and Chilean saltpetre together in an electricite, although at an expense which made the process a commercial impossibility.

"Imagine what will be the consequences. When locomotives will be thrown onto the scrap heap. All trains will be run by electricity. No longer will coal be laboriously transported to the cities, but there will be great power plants established at the mouths of the mines, from which the electricity will be sent out over the country by wire.

"There will be no horses in the streets, no stables, no flies. Wagons will be propelled by electricity. Houses will be lighted entirely by electricity, for it will be so cheap it can be used by the humblest tenement dwellers.

"Ships will no longer be driven by steam. Electricity will be their motive power, and then it will be possible to cross the Atlantic in three days.

"At the present time nine tenths of the power obtained from coal is lost by the use of boilers, wheels and dynamos. With the direct generation of the electrical current, therefore, the world will have ten times more energy than now."

The Boy Who Would Succeed

Between the stupid, lazy and generally mediocre toilers who seldom get beyond the bottom of any ladder, and those who have taken possession of the top are many planes or rungs, and each is attained chiefly through the personal effort of the fellow who is doing the climbing. As the result, everything depends upon the manner in which each individual starts his struggle for supremacy.

If, for example, the boy who steps out into the world of affairs in a shiftless, careless manner, he has either got to turn over a new leaf before these habits of life become settled upon him, or he might as well make up his mind that he is fated never to amount to anything. If his interests are centered in the pay envelope, and he is constantly exhibiting evidences of his fears of working too hard, his employer soon knows in what general class to place him. If, instead of paying attention to his employer's business, and making all such interests his own, he proves himself to be not only a shirk, but generally incapable of mastering anything beyond the ordinary first rudiments of his trade or profession, it is a foregone conclusion that he will remain around the bottom rungs of the ladder.

To go higher any young man must develop some of the traits that work towards success, and as one by one these traits are developed the ascent gradually becomes easier, the competition grows less and less severe, the opposition to further ascent more easily surmountable, until at last there is a clear sweep ahead. It is, indeed, true that there is lots of room at the top, and there will always be plenty of room there, simply because it requires something more than mere industry to "make this ascent. Any fool can stay at the bottom, but it takes a man with determination, ability, self-confidence, and a dozen other good traits to climb to the top. It is these men who are rare, not the "opportunities." It is lack of ability that keeps men down, not competition. The genius fatigues on competition. It is the inferior workman who starves.

In brief, this is the secret of the success and failure of men. Everything depends upon our individual effort. If your natural inclinations keep you at the bottom of the ladder you will be mighty lucky if you find anybody who is willing to boost you up, but, if, on the other hand, you are made of the right kind of stuff, up, but, if, on the other hand, you are made of the right kind of stuff, you will climb just as far as you can, and you won't worry a bit about over-population or excessive competition.

The Libel Case Adjoined

Fredericton, N. B., June 20.—As a result of the proceedings today in the trial of the King vs. James H. Crockett, managing editor of the Gleaner, the chances of the case going to a jury at the present sessions are regarded as remote. It is generally believed here that there will be an adjournment tomorrow until September, at the earliest, to enable the points raised by the demurrer submitted today by the crown and disallowed by the judge to be argued before the full bench and to give time for the crown to obtain the evidence by a commission of a man named O'Brien, believed to have been one of the porters at St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, in March, 1906, and now out of the country.

After hearing arguments of counsel on both sides, the judge in giving his decision disallowed the demurrer on the ground that in his plea the defendant used language which technically covered the two elements in issue, to a jury at the present sessions are regarded as remote. It is generally believed here that there will be an adjournment tomorrow until September, at the earliest, to enable the points raised by the demurrer submitted today by the crown and disallowed by the judge to be argued before the full bench and to give time for the crown to obtain the evidence by a commission of a man named O'Brien, believed to have been one of the porters at St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, in March, 1906, and now out of the country.

PREDICTS GOOD TIMES.

The Montreal Witness looks for another year of "tremendous if not feverish" activities in Canada. There are, it says, two factors in favor of such conditions. We quote—

"The first and more important is the overflowing order books of the large manufacturing firms and of those who supply the raw material for such manufactures. The fact that manufacturers and wholesale houses are busy to the fullest of their capabilities would seem to show that the consumptive power of the people has not in any way diminished, but has rather been accentuated by prosperous years that have passed and by the ever increasing population in every part of the country. As neither the laborer nor the employer has any serious setback, it may be assumed, for a time at least, that the full force of business development will go on its course unhindered.

"The second is the various satisfactory crop reports that have come from the west during the past week. There has not been an exception in the large number of reports that have come over the wire, many of which are of undoubted authority."

By authority of the new law a suspicious looking package was opened at the station on Friday last by Scott Act Inspector Crowell, and was found to contain a quantity of liquor. The management of the D. A. R. was notified when an order was given that the case be returned to the shippers at Halifax at their expense. This order was carried out and the goods returned by the afternoon train. The package was shipped by Kelley & Glassey and was addressed to Harry W. Taylor, Wolfville. As there is no such person known here suspicion was aroused that all was not straight. A sharp look out will be had for future goods of this kind.—Wolfville Acadian.

The Value of Names

A Contrast Between Yorkshire Choirs and the Mendelssohn Choir.

Names are sometimes used to conjure with. But, after all, names are only substitutes for things, means whereby we express ideas.

The name of Bayard will always be a synonym for purity and knightly honor because of the life of the admirable Chevalier. In like manner, the name of Sheffield Chorus stands for splendid achievement in choral singing.

The great choir of that county have been in existence for years and can recall events of great importance with which they have been connected.

Notable composers have been enraptured by the singing and these facts no doubt aid in the creation of enthusiasm. But traditions are not vital to success.

The Mendelssohn Choir captured New York after only ten years of existence and with only a local reputation. It is well to remember this fact, for there is a tendency on the part of some people to believe that only a piano which has been on the market for fifty years can have merit.

It may have traditions, but traditions do not make a pure and even tone. That depends on careful workmanship and good material. The Goutley Piano has been on the market only a little over four years, yet it is recognized everywhere by connoisseurs as an ideal instrument.

It has no traditions yet, but its name is known as that of a piano made conscientiously from the best possible materials. It will get the traditions in time. Now it is getting customers, and from all over Canada.

WHY RAILS BREAK.

In a recent issue of Saturday Night there was a paragraph calling attention to the frequency with which news came of late from points in Canada and the United States telling of railway accidents due to the broken rails.

The question was asked: "Why should rails break in this way?" Nothing of the kind was heard of until quite lately, and the suggestion was offered that "the makers of rails are cheapening their product."

This is how the Scientific American has created a sensation, by charging that such is the case. Rail-making in the United States is the monopoly of one big company, and the charge in that concern has so cheapened its product that all these disasters with loss of life and property are the result.

The rail makers have introduced cheaper and quicker methods of manufacture—they make money, but others lose money—and the death roll increases enormously. The Scientific American proposes to produce evidence that the rails being made are unfit for the uses to which they are being put.

The Canadian Railway Commission should at once investigate the matter and prohibit the laying of shoddy rails. There appears to be no point beyond which some men will not go in the pursuit of profits, and it seems to be necessary even in matters of life and death to guard against the adulterator.—Toronto Saturday Night.
