PROSPECTS OF ORCHARDING IN NOVA SCOTIA

R. J. Messenger of Bridgetown, President of Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association, Holds Out Tempting Possibilities to Nova Scotia Orchardists. Soil and Climate Ahead of All Other Countries for Successful Culture.

Eight years ago when I stood on this platform and advocated the establishment of an agricultural college, I felt if a standing vote had been taken on that occasion—and the people who were present were supposed to represent the farmers of Nova Scotia—not more than fifteen or twenty out of that audience would have endorsed its establishment. I would like to have that same audience here tonight to ask them if the agricultural college has been a failure.

I want, in presenting this subject, to take two or three premises and see if I can prove them, if you will bear with me in the way I shall present them. The possibilities of Nova Scotia as a fruit growing country. I want to take up this subject first from the standpoint of soils, and see if the soil of Nova Scotia is fit to grow fruit trees. We have fruit trees growing in Nova Scotia upon almost every kind of soil in the eastern part of Annapolis County, and in Kings County, we have trees thriving and bearing splendid crops of apples upon almost clear sand. I do not believe you will criticize or contradict me there. I know of orchards in Annapolis County and in other parts of the province, growing and producing good crops of apples on almost clear clay—the other extreme. I have one orchard in mind today, an old orchard that has been well taken care of, that has averaged one hundred barrels to the acre upon clay that has to be treated at just the right time. It has to be ploughed and cultivated at just the right time or it will bake up into mere bricks. I have in mind an orchard in Shelburne county, that was planted in a swampy place that has been drained, what we would call a muck swamp. I saw that orchard four or five years ago, and it was in splendid condition. Prof. Shaw said he had seen it recently and its gives promise of producing fruit. I have been in twelve counties of our province, and I think I am in a position to say, that if we take out the marshes, the places that are very rocky, and the seaboard lands, that we can grow orchards successfully, if we give them proper care, upon almost any soil in Nova Scotia, and in almost any place in Nova Scotia. If we drain a wet soil we can grow trees upon that soil that we could not do without draining it, and upon which a man would scarcely expect to grow trees from the look of it today undrained. I want to give you one instance of successful fruit growing. Prof. Shaw will speak to you later on the profits of fruit growing and he will give you some more examples. But I desire to cite a case of what a commercial proposition in an orchard has done.

"The first orchard I planted contained four acres and one of my neighbors, a hard-headed old farmer asked me how I was ever to care for so many trees. I have been planting more or less trees every year since, until I now have 105 acres in orchard, and expect to set out 10 acres more next spring. In 1906 I raised about 450 barrels of apples; 1700 barrels in 1907; 1500 barrels in 1908. The year, 1909, I had 2300 barrels, and expect before many years to get 4000 or 5000 barrels. I hope to see the day when this orchard will produce 10,000 barrels of apples.

I have one acre and a half, containing 75 King trees, planted twenty-one year ago, which has given me (as they came from the tree) 175 barrels in 1905; 225 barrels in 1906; 260 barrels in 1907; 336 barrels in 1908; and 280 barrels in 1909. I think you will agree with me that that averages up well as a commercial orchard. I want to take up the subject of our climate next, to see if I can show whether it is suitable for fruit growing. We have had in 1909 and 1910 two remarkable years. In 1909 we had scarcely any rain from the first of June to the first of October. We were feeling pretty blue about the last of September. We did not expect our apples would grow to any size; and although we had them on the trees, we expected a small crop. But you will remember the last of September and first of October, we had rains and had one of the best apple crops in the Province. That was a remarkable crop made good at the end of the season.

In 1910 we had another remarkable season. We had a period in bloom time which was hard on pollination. Some have ascribed it to frost, and some have ascribed it to the cold east rain that we had about blooming time. There may be other reasons for the apparent failure that we have had this year, but I want to say that it will not be a failure if we look over a period of

Why is Nova Scotia the Best Commercial Apple Growing Proposition in the World

BECAUSE apples grow everywhere in the Province.
BECAUSE her fertile hillsides need little expensive under-drainage.
BECAUSE her apples are in quality the best in the world.
BECAUSE her climate is right for growing apples of choicest flavor.
BECAUSE no part of her area is more than fifty miles from a good harbor.
BECAUSE she is nearest, by all water route, the markets of the world.
BECAUSE her fruit lands are the cheapest in the world.
BECAUSE with an abundant and even rainfall no irrigation is needed.
BECAUSE the greatest railway system in the world passes through her fruit districts.
BECAUSE the winter port of Canada is within her borders.
BECAUSE she has the great markets of the world at her disposal.
BECAUSE her fruit growers are intelligent, progressive, and have faith in their country.

—From the Annual Report of the N. S. Fruit Growers' Association.

the next ten years. I think most of the people here will agree with me, that we will be amply repaid for what we have lost this year. The growth of the trees this year has been exceptionally large. The trees have been thrifter than they have been for a long time; and the rest the trees have had, possibly, and the renewal of vitality which they will gain from this year, will more than compensate in the next ten years for the loss we have received in this year's apples. So I can look over a period of years and say we have had no summer from beginning to end, that has been totally unfit for the production of apples in Nova Scotia.

Perhaps one of the best things about our late spring is, it retards the opening of the buds until such a time as they are strong enough to come out and be fertilized without danger of frost. Remember this is an exceptional year. They have a good deal of trouble in Ontario that way with some of the warm days of spring—the warm days will start the buds, and if the warm are followed by frost, it will in a great number of years, affect the apple crops for the worse. But we do go not have that. This, as you all know, is an exceptional year. And as far as climate is concerned we have as much sun and suitable weather to ripen our apples and give them as much color as in any other province. Our Septembers and Octobers are normally the sunniest months of our year, and this as the season when our fruit needs the sun to give color. We hear of the western province of British Columbia being a sunnier country. You have heard this afternoon that they prune more severely than we do, and open up the tops, and so in consequence the apples have a better chance to get that sun. We do not prune so severely—but still we get excellent results on the whole.

TRANSPORTATION.

The question of transportation in the past has been a delicate one, and one that we have had a great deal of trouble over. I would just like to take you back to the days when the export of apples to Great Britain was something we could not depend upon at all—when we sent our apples off, we did not know whether they were going over in ten days, in twenty days or in thirty days, or perhaps the steamer would get off the track and we would not hear of them. Perhaps a good many here can remember the steamer "Wyandotte" that went across in which a large cargo was destroyed. The claims of the consignors were taken up by the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association and a settlement was subsequently made. I only refer to it to remind you that this Association never received the thanks it was entitled to, for taking up the various claims and pressing them to a satisfactory conclusion.

Had A Gay Winter At United States Capital

It Was a "Dinner" Winter.

(New York Tribune.)

Washington's social winter, to the surprise of the pessimists, has been an exceedingly gay one. It began with a few debutante teas and luncheons, but on the wing of the New Year the city's hospitable doors were opened wide. As one man, who has just built an enormous house near Sheridan Circle, put it (to the deep mystification of a prominent diplomat to whom he was speaking):

"Washington is a great place for give and take. Why, your excellency, I've hardly ever had my knife out of my mouth since Christmas!"

It has really been a "dinner" winter that being the favorite form of entertainment, and when Lent arrived many sought a strict diet not only as a penance, but as a first aid to the injured. Invitations had to be issued four or five weeks in advance before a worried hostess could get the desired number of dinner guests. Numerous contretemps have resulted as a consequence.

A pretty widow, who has been very much entertained since her return to Washington, went to a large tea recently. While there her hostess informed her she had been invited to meet her at a dinner Senator and Mrs. Blank were giving in the widow's honor on February 28th.

"Indeed," said the widow, "This is the first I have heard of the dinner." Her hostess expressed her surprise, and then they departed. After that other friends told the widow they had been asked to meet her, but, receiving no intimation herself, she became more and more bewildered. Several days later she met the Senator on the street and stopped to talk with him.

"My friends tell me they are invited to meet me at your house on the 28th, Mr. Senator, but your wife has not written or telephoned me about the dinner," she said, after they had exchanged greetings.

"My dear Polly"—the Senator was an old friend of her father—"it's just this way: We made out a list of guests to meet you and sent out our invitations weeks ago, thinking it difficult to find people disengaged. Unfortunately, our dining room is not large, and the seating capacity is, therefore, limited. To our great surprise we received acceptances for the proper number before we reached your name on the list. We're awfully sorry, but we just couldn't ask you this time." The Senator finished his naive confession and bowed himself off before the astonished widow could collect her wits.

Washington men, as a rule, are very temperate; at least they seldom appear the worse for wear at dinners or dances. Out occasionally, being only human, there are lapses.

Some years ago a young clubman, a member of an old and distinguished Pennsylvania family, went to a ball at the Russian Legation, as it was then. During supper one of the attaches persuaded the clubman to drink some vodka. The fiery stimulant promptly went to his head, and on their return to the ball-room the clubman leaned over and bit the wife of a Russian minister on her bare shoulder.

Her frantic shrieks alarmed the company, and the people rushed to her aid. The intoxicated clubman was immediately taken home. He told his scandalized companions that he bit Mme.—because he always wanted to know how Russian leather tasted.

There are numerous odd characters in the kaleidoscopic life of the capital whose adventures would fill a volume. There are those who are intentionally witty and those who are unintentionally amusing. Of the latter class one dame stands pre-eminent. Many stories are told of her, among them that of her encounter with George Bancroft, diplomat and historian, who was then eighty years old.

A member of the Cabinet gave a large dinner, and among the guests were George Bancroft and the woman referred to. He was assigned to take her out, and as they were enjoying their oysters she turned to Mr. Bancroft and said:

"Oh, Mr. Bancroft, we are all waiting with so much interest for your autopsy."

"Madam" ejaculated the astonished Mr. Bancroft.

"Yes," went on the unconscious woman, "My husband tells me it is to be published very soon." Like a flash her meaning dawned on Mr. Bancroft, and he chuckled as he deftly turned the conversation into safer channels; but later in the evening he could not refrain from telling his hostess, and that he thought of adding the remark to his autobiography.

On another occasion a prominent society woman went to call upon the same matron. She was shown into the drawing room and told that Mrs.— would be down in a moment. In a few seconds she came in wearing a pretty dressing gown.

"My dear," she remarked, as she shook hands with her caller, "please forgive my informality, but I did not want to keep you waiting, so just slipped on my non de plume and came down!"

Maud S. the famous trotter, reached the age of thirty-five years on April 19th. She was shot and killed to end her career, at Springfield, Ky., on that day. For many years she was queen of the turf and made a record of 2, 08 3-4 at Cleveland, in 1885.

TOWN OF AYLESFORD

SWEEP BY FLAMES

Sparks From the Anvil in Blacksmith's Shop Set Fire to Shop and Started Conflagration Which Destroyed Sixteen Buildings and Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars Worth of Property.

AYLESFORD, May 9.—Fanned by a strong westerly wind a raging fire destroyed sixteen buildings at Aylesford. Fully one third of the village was swept away in two hours. It was the worst fire ever known in this vicinity.

About noon yesterday the blacksmith shop in the town caught fire from sparks from the forge and with great rapidity the blaze spread through the building. With no fire protection it was practically impossible to stay the flames. The high wind carried the sparks and burning embers to adjoining buildings, with the result that in a short time several buildings were burned.

The fire raged with terrific fury. Men, women and children worked to save their valuables, many not having time to save anything, so fierce and swift was the progress of the flames. Fire broke out in three different parts at one time. The D. A. R. eastbound express, although it only stopped a minute at the depot, was on fire in two places. The parlor car was considerably damaged. The station and other buildings were on fire but extinguished.

MAN'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

A man nearly met a terrible death, being trapped in a house and succeeding in escaping by a small scuttle hole just as the building collapsed.

Many other buildings were threatened and at one time it appeared that the village was doomed.

At a critical moment the men some thirty strong, from Blackadar's mill arrived and they, together with those already at work and a large party from Kentville, who arrived by special train, did splendid work in stopping the flames. At six o'clock the fire was under control.

Shrubb Defeated Cameron at Boston

The English Champion Was Too Speedy for the Amherst Runner.

Boston, May 6.—Alfred Shrubb, of England, defeated Fred Cameron of Amherst, N.S., tonight in the Boston Arena in a twelve-mile race. The time was one hour, six minutes and twenty-three seconds. Shrubb finishing about two-fifths of a mile ahead of his opponent. At three miles and a half the little Englishman lapped Cameron, and toward the end of the eleventh mile he gained another lap. Shrubb ran the last three laps of the race with one bare foot. Cameron's time was 1,07.13.

Typhoid Fever Claims a Victim

Daughter of Dr. T. C. Lockwood, Who Was Attending Acadia Seminary Has Passed Away.

Wolfville, May 7.—The death occurred at Wolfville today of Miss Lockwood, daughter of Dr. T. C. Lockwood, of Lockeport. The young lady who had been attending Acadia seminary, was attacked by typhoid fever at the same time that a number of other pupils of the school became ill of the disease. The announcement of Miss Lockwood's death will come as a great shock to friends in Nova Scotia. Much sympathy with Dr. and Mrs. Lockwood finds expression here, not alone from citizens of the town but among the students. After a short service by Rev. Mr. Webber on Monday the remains will be taken to Lockeport for interment.

Seeks Enlightenment on A Few Important Matters

To the Editor Halifax Herald:-- Sir,--Being only a woman, with the natural curiosity of my sex, I am constrained to ask for enlightenment and explanation about some of the puzzling problems and difficulties that are just now disturbing the even tenor of my hitherto calm and untroubled way as I look out upon the little cloud which seems arising on the political horizon of this great country. What is the matter with Canada? Why do we want reciprocity with the United States of America? Why do we want closer relations with that country (without which we have succeeded remarkably well) than those we already enjoy. Why do they love us so much more at this present time than in the past when they loved us not at all?--The ever they have turned covetous eyes on our broad lands with their unlimited resources--their boundless possibilities--the high heritage that makes for a young nation's future greatness.

Why? Oh! Why?--When President Taft of the United States lifted his right hand and pointed a beckoning finger to the Canadian government did those two honorable gentlemen hasten, without let or hindrance, on the wings of glad expectancy, to Washington and negotiate and conclude an agreement to be forced upon this country, for we are told it must in honor be carried out so soon as congress decides to accept the measure, no matter how great the protest against it of the people of Canada. Having read both sides of the debate in the house of commons, on the reciprocity question, as well as much written discussion by men of acknowledged ability and keensighted judgment, both liberal and conservative, I fail to apprehend the great advantage to the interests of this country in a reciprocity agreement with the United States, whose government, institutions, ideals and political life differ so widely from our own, and the sentiments and traditions of the great empire to which we are so indissolubly bound. No matter how sincere those honorable gentlemen may be in their well-expressed intentions for the public good, they have too hastily accepted the proposals and helped to carry out the designs of a government and people whose persistent attitude, through many previous years, however friendly overtures may have been made to them by Canada, has been openly and determinedly hostile. Hitherto my peaceful slumbers have not been much disturbed by the annexation menace, tho it has been a well-known fact that it has been the supreme ambition and deeply cherished hope of the United States, to wrest this coveted possession from the hands of Great Britain. We recall the proposition of Senator McKinnon to congress to appropriate some millions of dollars to buy Canada from Great Britain. Within the last half dozen years the Boston Record went out with the following paragraph in broad headlines, day after day: "The thought of every man, year in and year out, should be directed to this--our greatest national economic, political and military safety--the annexation of Canada." But the dream and the hope of its fulfillment have been shattered. As well talk of annexation of the German empire, or Great Britain itself. Ever since our fathers turned their backs on the new republic which French guns and French money won for the American people, choosing poverty, suffering and deprivation, that they might make their home beneath the flag they loved, the love and devotion of the Canadian people has grown and strengthened. Until today we are British of the British, bound by indissoluble ties to the great empire that has guarded and protected us, and given us that larger liberty that goes to make a great and prosperous people.

But then, who knows? Some day President Taft or some other may beckon a little more vigorously to the government at Ottawa, and straightway two honorable gentlemen may bid themselves away to the delectable land, and make an agreement, signed and sealed, by which the aim and ambition of the American people may be attained--annexation. God forbid! For this--war. No treaty of peace or arbitration committee will prevent the roar of the old lion, or the answering cry of her cubs around her. Let us have peace. Let us cultivate the most friendly relations with our neighbors across the borders. But our house is our own, and can we open the door to any who may enter indiscriminately to usurp the rights and privileges sacred only to ourselves? Pardon my chatter. I am not a politician, not a suffragette--do not even belong to that evolution of the nineteenth century popularly called the new woman, whatever that means--only a woman seeking enlightenment from some high mightiness or meridian blaze of knowledge, in order that my disquieted mind may return to its rest.

London, May 1.--The tariff reformers are stirred up by President Taft's speech at the dinner of the newspaper men in New York, in the course of which he urged the editors to advocate Canadian reciprocity before a system of preferential tariff shall have bound the British Empire together. Norton Griffiths, unionist member, wished Mr. Asquith to immediately instruct Ambassador Bryce to cable a verbatim report of the president's speech and to lay the same on the table of the house. The question was tabled.

What You Give Yourself As Well As Your Employer

Labor, while it is itself a commodity, differs from all other commodities in that it cannot be separated from the laborer. This distinctive feature entails various obligations on both employer and employe. The law recognizes this fact and has pretty clearly defined the duties of the employer--such as to provide sanitary places for work, to exercise reasonable care and judgement for the protection of life and limb, to restrict the hours of labor, and so on. But while the statute books have taken care of the relations of employer to employe they have not taken equal cognizance of the reciprocal relations--very likely because those things one ought to give his employer come largely under the spirit rather than the letter of the law. It is for this reason and the further fact that employes often disregard these moral obligations, that business men as a class have so energetically and persistently pushed their campaign of education and appeal in their effort to secure that character of service to which they are so justly entitled.

THE MAN WHO WOULD RISE

To the man satisfied with his present position in life, to whom the contemplation of the future arouses no deep-seated desire for advancement, such a subject as this will be of little interest, except to figure out how many of these obligations he can avoid and still hold his job. But the alert man, the man eager for the work higher up with the greater pay, is as a mountain climber on a difficult cliff; he will seize each root or jutting rock that will assist in the upward advance. Certainly we shouldn't give full time. Dollar for dollar is only a fair rule. But because so many people seemed to think it legitimate to be a little late and quit a little early, the inventors of time clocks found a routing market for their wares. Strict attention to business is but another fair demand. Many a man would be a crackjack if he only had a reasonable amount of concentration. NOBODY LIKES A GROUCH

The necessity for cheerful service is a thing often overlooked. Nobody likes a grouch any more than you like sand in your sugar. Life, and business life especially, is a sufficiently hard strain without having surly associates rasping on your own angelic disposition. Employers believe that such a workman is "sure on his job"; and as that kind of a man seldom does good work he is generally given permission to resign. Dependability is also desired--that feeling that when the employer's back is turned the work goes on in the same steady manner. And then there is that obligation so desired and yet so seldom found, keeping the confidence of the employer. How common is the habit to "talk shop" and to spread broadcast information that is not always founded on fact but often on hearsay or suspicion. It is never done from any vicious instinct; but it may,

AT DEATH'S DOOR FROM KIDNEY DISEASE

SAVED ONLY BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

CLANRASSIE, ONT. "Two years ago, the doctor made forty-four calls on me, and then said he had done all he could for me. I was suffering with intense Kidney Trouble and Inflammation had set in. Two other doctors were consulted and agreed that nothing could be done to help me. On the recommendation of a neighbor, I took "Fruit-a-tives" and they cured me. To-day I take "Fruit-a-tives" as my only medicine. I am in excellent health, and "Fruit-a-tives" is the medicine that cured me after I had been at Death's Door for months. I am glad to be able to give you this testimonial. It may benefit some other woman suffering as I suffered, as I believe that it would not be alive to-day had I not used "Fruit-a-tives". Mrs. P. E. TO KEEP PEACE WITH GERMANY

London, May 1.--"The Anglo-German Friendship society" was formally launched at a meeting in the Mansion House today. The object of the organization is to dissipate any ill-will and suspicion that may exist between the two nations, and the speaker referred to the movement as a fitting complement to the great Anglo-American peace meeting at Guild Hall. The lord Mayor presided.

From Your Druggist: Psychine, the great Vitality-Builder (PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN)

You know what it would mean to us were Psychine a preparation without a definite, beneficial action. After the first bottle which we would buy, no more would be purchased. And we would go out of business. But we're not going out of business, and our confidence that we're not is based upon our third of a century's experience with Psychine. Ten years after Confederation we commenced compounding Psychine. Since that time, we have sold many millions of bottles. We have cured many hundreds of thousands of virulent and oftentimes fatal cases of disease. We have in our files many hundreds of thousands of unsolicited testimonials. And we have grown from a small beginning to be one of the largest proprietary manufacturers in this country. Here then is proof that we have in Psychine a preparation with abundant and demonstrated effectiveness, more so than any other preparation we, or anyone else, ever heard of. Here then is the reason of our unalterable confidence in Psychine, that it is in fact the greatest preparation of its kind in the world. Here then is why we have inaugurated a policy of actually buying hundreds of thousands of bottles of Psychine to give to those who should use. To those who are blindly groping in the dark for relief from their misery, who may perhaps be using wrong methods to recover their health and their strength. * * * LAGRIPPE. The greatest and most effective agents for the bodily health are the white corpuscles, phagocytes.

These white corpuscles eat any germ of disease that gains an entrance to the body, when they're in large enough numbers and sufficiently strong. When they're not sufficiently strong, the disease germs devour them and disease holds the body. * * * For centuries almost, herbs, nature's own remedies, have been the most efficient foe to disease. We have not known very definitely just how. But now science tells us that certain of these herbs increase the number of the white corpuscles and their strength. These certain herbs are incorporated in Psychine. We go to the ends of the earth for these herbs--to Arabia, to South America, to China and to Japan. They are compounded in the most costly chemical appliances in this country. And the result is Psychine--for a third of a century the most effective vitality-builder the world has known. The one preparation that has cured many thousands of the following diseases:

- La Grippe, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, Sore Throat, Anaemia, Female Weakness, Indigestion, Poor Appetite, Chills and Fevers, Sleeplessness and Nervous Troubles, After-effects of Pleurisy, Pneumonia and La Grippe, Branchial Coughs, Weak Lungs, Weak Voice, Spring Weakness, Early Decline, Catarrhal Affections, Catarrh of Stomach, Night Sweats, Obstinate Coughs, Laryngitis and Dyspepsia.

Joker's Corner

HE HAD TACT.

Harry Laughlin the billiard expert, told at an exhibition game in Toledo, a brilliant story. "Once, when I had my own parlor, in Columbus," he said, "I was a good deal disturbed by the loss of chalk. Chalk disappeared at a tremendous rate, and I said to my helper, 'Keep a better eye on the chalk, Jim. I'm no millionaire.' "I know the gent's wot pockets the chalk, Mr Laughlin' Jim said; but they're regular customers. I guess you wouldn't want to offend 'em, would you?" "Well, no," said I, "I wouldn't. You might give them a gentle hint though. Use your diplomacy."

RASTUS' PEE.

Rastus was on trial, charged with stealing seven dollars and eighty-five cents. He pleaded not guilty, and as he was unable to hire an attorney, the judge appointed Lawyer Clearam Clearam put up a strong plea in defense, and Rastus was acquitted. Council and client met a few minutes later outside the court-room. "Now Rastus," said Clearam, "you know the court allows the counsel very little for defending this kind of case. I worked hard for you and got you clear. I'm entitled to much more than I'm getting for my valuable services, and you should dig up a good-sized fee. Have you got any money?" "Yes, Boss," replied Rastus, "I still done got dat seben dollahs and eighty-seven cents."

POWER OF IMAGINATION.

"The imagination is wonderful," said a college professor. "I know a Chicago man who went last summer to Asbury Park. He in a quaint way proved my point. He didn't reach Asbury Park till ten o'clock at night, and, very tired, he turned in at once. As he settled his head comfortably on the pillow he said to his wife: "Listen to the thunder and hiss of the surges, Maria. I haven't heard that glorious sound for forty years. No more insomnia now."

"And, indeed, for the first time in three months the man slept like a log. But when he awoke in the morning he found that the uproar which had lulled him to sleep was the noise of a garage in the rear of the hotel. The sea was over a mile away."

AQUARIUM OR CEMETERY.

When visitors came Bobby was often turned out of his room and into the garret for a night or two. He did not object to this, but he felt that it endangered certain cherished possessions. When his uncle, the clergyman, arrived unexpectedly one night Bobby was transferred to his barrack quarters in haste and with small ceremony, and neglected to take any precautions to guard his treasures. "I have to thank the thoughtful person who placed a glass of water on the table near the bed last night," said the clergyman the next morning. "I awoke in the night and found it refreshing." "Oh," said Bobby, in a tone of sorrow and reproach. "You've drunk up my nice new 'quarium, and all— But here Bobby's revelation was suppressed by his mother."

TIT FOR TAT.

A pompous laird advertised for a man to do odd jobs, and an old-fashioned Scottish worthy applied. The laird interviewed him personally, was pleased with his acquirements and promised him the situation. "And what is your name my man?" he asked. "My name is Tammas Jeems Pittendrich, sir." "Oh, but that's too long a name. I'll just call you Old Tom." "Well, well, sir," said Tammas; "but fat dse they ca' yer-sel' noo?" "Oh, my name is Nicholas Duff Gordon Ogilvy." "Losh me! Ye couldn' spee' me to mind sic' an awfu' lang name as that. I'll jist ca' ye Auld Nick!"

IRONY OF FATE.

An industrious mechanic pinched himself in personal expenditure in order to purchase a piano for his two daughters. He was asked how his children appreciated the gift.

"Well," he replied, "I hardly know. They appeared to be pleased enough, but the first piece they learned was, 'Everybody works but Father.'"

In a school in a western Ontario town is a little girl who has no taken quickly to the mysteries of addition. "One'n one?" asked the teacher while putting the class through the easiest of the addition tables. The little girl referred to was the only person in the class who couldn't give the answer. "Two'n one," asked the teacher. The little girl smiled confidently, but up her hand and, when noticed by the teacher said, "Shoo polish."

Kin Hubbard, the Indian humorist was assigned to cover a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Hubbard had his brain-chin, old Abe Martin report the play. This was the critique: "Uncle Tom's Cabin" played down at Malouin Hall last night. The dogs was good, but they had poor support."

UNDER THE SPELL.

Dasbaway—"A few short hours ago I was sitting with a girl, telling her she was the only one in all the world I ever loved, and so forth: Cleverton—"And she believed you, didn't she?" "How could she help it? Why, I believed it myself."

YOU CAN, IF YOU MUST.

"All that ought to be done can be done."—Kant. "I ought, I can, I will."—Vincent. Let me tell you a little story of a great change. The change is in a woman's personality and the story of it has impressed me anew with the tremendous power of the "I will" on character forming.

The young woman in question took the training for a convalescent nurse a couple of years ago.

When she made up her mind to do this, everybody prophesied failure because she did not seem at all the kind of person for this sort of work. She was impatient and nervous, inclined to quick temper and had a rather loud, unpleasant voice. The other day I heard someone speak of her, and asked how she had succeeded.

"Wonderfully, Miss Cameron," said my informant. "And you never saw such an improvement in anyone in all your life. She visited me a few days last week and really she's a changed woman."

"You know how nervous she used to be and how impatient if things didn't go just as she wanted them to? Well, now she is as well poised and self-controlled as can be."

"And her voice—why you'd scarcely know it was the same person speaking, it is so pleasant and well modulated. What has happened to her? Well, I complimented her on her improvement and asked her how she did it and she just said 'Because I had to. I realized that when I took my first position. So I did.'"

You see this woman was a living example of Kant's and Vincent's doctrine and we who would have discouraged her were altogether in the wrong.

I have read somewhere that the reason a man sometimes surprises himself by doing unusually brilliant work when he is half sick, is that he is making a tremendous effort and calling out all of his powers. The article states that under ordinary conditions, we only see about one-quarter of our powers, and that when any obstacle like illness causes us to exert our full power, we surprise ourselves by what we can do.

Doubtless, other obstacles besides illness produce the same results. All that ought to be done can be done and in the doing the ability will be created.

Just an exercise and the lifting of heavy weights develop muscle, so responsibility develops ability. It seems to me Philip Brooks must have been feeling the power of Vincent's motto, when he said:

"Oh, do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men. Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks. Then the doing of your work shall be no miracle. But you shall be a miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come to you by the grace of God."—Ruth Cameron.

Read the rest of this announcement and you will learn how you may try for a share in the $3,600 we are giving away, to encourage the use of cement upon the farm. WEDNESDAY, MAY, 10, 1911.

Every Nova Scotian, and especially every fruit-grower should hear what Mr. Messenger, President of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association, has to say about the prospects of apple raising in Nova Scotia, as re-published in this issue of the Monitor-Sentinel from the report of the Association, just issued.

Mr. Messenger is emphatically an optimist in regard to the possibilities of his native province in the line of agriculture, and his optimism is based on no visionary fancies,—but on personal experience. Advanced theories put into successful practice have made Mr. Messenger one of the foremost agriculturists of the Province, and what he has to say on the subject of apple-growing may be regarded as strictly reliable.

His statements as to the fitness of our soil and climate for the business of apple-raising should increase the conviction of every reader that Nova Scotia is fully entitled to claim the precedence over every other apple-growing county.

Though Arbor Day was chilly
and, with a high wind prevailing, hardly suitable for out-of-door planting or clean-up work, a large amount of work has been done this spring by our citizens in making their home grounds more attractive.

Principal Bustin took time by the fore-lock and before Arbor Day had arrived had planted out a number of young trees in a vacant corner of the school grounds. He has also given the grounds a thorough "cleanup" and intends still further improvement of the attractive surroundings.

Bridgetonians have a pardonable air of pride and satisfaction when pointing out to visitors our fine school building with its neatly-kept park-like environments.

Street-cleaning is somewhat backward this spring and the litter blowing about the street is rather embarassing to the citizen who would like visitors to notice cleanliness among the attractive features of the town; and who would prefer to keep his own premises clean but is unable to do so while every gust of wind bears litter and debris from the street to deposit at his door.

While on the subject of improvements the Monitor-Sentinel takes the liberty of suggesting that the shade trees along the streets would be improved by the pruning of the lower limbs which in many cases overhang the side-walks so as to interfere with the comfort of pedestrians,—especially when the weather necessitates holding an umbrella. Some of these trees are in private grounds, and doubtless it would only need the force of the civic example and a gentle hint to effect the desired improvement.

Ottawa Journal.—Ontario Western newspapers refer to George Munro, recently sentenced to three years in prison in New York for fraudulent stock selling, as a wizard of finance and a genius of promotion. There seems more of the fool than the genius about a career that ends in jail before the age of forty.

Have you ever considered, that if in the course of events your family should be deprived of your earning power by death, all the thousand and one bills that you are NOW worried about paying, MUST STILL BE PAID! Are you willing that your widow or your old parents should be obliged to have the same worry and be obliged to get the same amount of money to pay the bills, even at the sacrifice of the home! We have eliminated all need for worry by a SPECIAL POLICY CONTRACT in worth consideration.

Prospects of Orcharding
In Nova Scotia
I wish I could deal with this question of transportation as it should be dealt with. I think we have something in the future; something hopeful. The invasion of the C.P.R. into our province will be of paramount importance to us. I think you all feel that the C.P.R. is going to improve our transportation conditions in many ways.

There is another thing for which we should be thankful, and that is that we have not a long haul to the seaboard. Freight on the water is cheaper than freight on the land, and any part of Nova Scotia is within fifty miles of seaport facilities.

There are a good many abuses in connection with transportation that I will not take the time to mention
now. I only want to encourage the fruit growers, as I have in the past to endeavor to get a straight system of freights, a low rate to the markets of the world, and we can only get that by keeping eternally at it. The question of transportation will help itself just as far as we help it by our efforts. I believe you will agree with me that we can raise the apples—and after we have the apples raised, we surely can get them carried.

Now I want to see if I can show you that we can market those apples after we have them grown. In an excellent address by Inspector Vroom
at the New Brunswick Fruit Growers Association, I think he proved conclusively that we need not have any fear for markets in the future.
I want to take some of the figures that I gleaned from that address and submit them to you. Those who have not read them will be as astonished as I was at them, and the possibilities we have before us. Before taking that up let us take the possibilities of the markets of Great Britain—England, Ireland and Scotland—I think you will agree with me that those countries are raising fewer apples every year. They are out of business, and one reason is that they cannot compete with us, and as they go out of the business
the markets will be enlarged for us, and the consuming public is becoming a larger factor for us. We look upon a year of low prices as a calamity, but I do not see why we should not consider it a blessing. A man who could not afford to buy a barrel of apples in a year when the price makes it prohibitive for him, may buy a barrel when the price is exceedingly low, and thus have a taste created—and the result may be that in the following year that the taste that has been created may lead him to buy more even if they are higher. Every time that man buys it increases our sales. It increases our markets no matter where that man is. Not only that, but there are other things I hope will in the future be a benefit to England and Scotland, and thereby be a great benefit to us as a fruit-growing exporting community, and which will tend to enlarge our market, that is the possible breaking down of landlordism in England and Scotland.

Men who come from those different countries will concede that the greatest curse to the rise of the people in those countries is tenant farming, thereby putting all the profit into the hands of the landlord year after year. The large estates in those countries will soon be broken up and sold to the tenants who will become independent farmers. As those farmers become independent and own farms, their own financial conditions will improve, and they will go in to a greater extent for luxuries than they have been able to do in the past.
And if you consider an apple a luxury why should not that system increase our sales.

Obituary.
MRS. MARY E. POTTER.
The death of Mrs. Mary E. Potter occurred on April 24th, 1911 in Eustis,
Florida, aged eighty-five years. Mrs.
Potter formerly lived in Clarence N. S.
and later in North Easton, Mass.
In November she went to Eustis,
Florida to spend the winter, two daughters went with her and were with her to the last.
Mrs. Potter is survived by one brother,
Mr. Wm. Miller of Clarence, Nova Scotia.

A Eustis journal states—
Mrs. Potter, mother of A. M. DeWitt, died at her cottage on Lemon avenue Monday night about eleven o'clock after a short illness resulting from old age.
Though well along in years, she was quite smart when she came in the early part of the winter and remained so until a week or two ago.
She was perfectly happy here surrounded by her children, who came this winter to visit her and their brother,
A. M. DeWitt, and wanted to remain here the balance of her life. Nearly all her family were with her at the last and did all that could be done for her comfort her body was embalmed and shipped to her home in Massachusetts, Wednesday morning. Her cousin, Mrs. Heckman, and daughters, Mrs. S. L. Gilliat and Mrs. C. F. Lovell, accompanying the remains. At Jacksonville Mrs. Lovell left them for her home in Bay City, Mich.

She was a woman of rich abiding faith in her Saviour, and lived day by day conscious of His care and overrul-ing providence. She was conscious nearly to the last moments and happy in the thought that her last days were with her loved ones, who would ere long follow her to the Glory Land.

The members of her immediate family are: Geo. H. DeWitt, Mrs. S. L. Gilliat, A. M. DeWitt, Mrs. W. O. Chapman,

liam Potter, and Mrs. Stewart.

To the Memory of Mrs. W. H.
Weldon, who departed this life, March 13th, 1911.
Quiet now are the tired hands
As folded they lie on her still breast
The wild birds warbling o'er her bed
Will not disturb her quiet rest.

Done with worry and fret and care,
Soundly to sleep without a dream,
Knowing naught of the wintry blast
Feeling none of the sunlight's gleam.
Seasons may come and seasons may go,
Flowers may bloom and fade and die—
Little she'll reck in her quiet bed
How quickly the months and years go by.

Someone will miss a kindly word,
A tender look and a loving smile,
Will listen in vain for her footsteps near,
Will listen and wonder and wait a while.
Spring and summer will glide away
Autumn will come with its golden grain
And winter hold its chilly sway
But she will not come back again.
But heedless lie, while the flowers bloom
And the soft winds whisper and rustle by Nothing to stir her dreamless
sleep—
Not even to hear her loved ones sigh.

H. Egan has rented the store of C. L. Piggott next to the Shafter Building for his pool room.

Serious forest fires have been reported in the vicinity of Dartmouth and near Mahone Bay.

Gardeners and farmers have welcomed the gentle spring rain, which set in yesterday and continued over last night.

The rebuilding of Middleton is going on briskly, reports the Outlook. Six or seven business blocks and three or four residences will be put up this summer.

The stone crusher and power engine have arrived and are placed on a vacant lot back of Mr. Thomas Foster's place. It is the general opinion that the equipment is a bargain for the sum of $900 paid for it.

Mr. Maxwell has taken possession of the house recently purchased from Mr. O.P. Covert. Mr. Covert has not disposed of his barber business and will remain here for the summer at least.

Mrs. J. H. Healey had the honor of receiving a letter recently from the Dowager Queen Alexander through her private secretary, Mrs. Knollys, acknowledging a letter of sympathy addressed to the Queen.

Mr. A. W. Bell, Halifax, has made a good suggestion. It is that the Boy Scouts, in the districts affected by the tussock or brown tail moth, should take up the work of assisting to destroy these pests. Here is a wide open field for more than "one good act daily."—Truro News.

Truro News.—Dr. J.B. Hall, of the Normal College staff, leaves Saturday for Annapolis, of which County he has been nominated a representative. His many friends of years standing are much grieved at his departure from Truro, but hope to see him as often as duties permit.

Tennis promises to be as lively as ever this season, and some very interesting tournaments, both local and foreign are looked for. A new by-law was added to the Club's by-laws, which will enable persons who do not play tennis or quoits, and wish to become members of the club to join as Tea Members, by paying the annual fee of one dollar. This should enlarge the membership of the club considerably.

The death of Albert Munro, formerly of Wilmot, took place at Bridgetown, Wednesday night, following a stroke of paralysis. He was seventy-nine years of age. His wife, who died eight years ago, was Miss Martha Newcombe, of Upper Canada. He leaves a large family, the funeral services took place Friday afternoon and burial at Pine Grove cemetery, Middleton, on arrival of train from the west.

Mr. W.A. Chesley went to Grafton, Kings Co., Monday, having received word of the very critical illness of his niece, Miss Vivian Bowles, and yesterday word was received of her death. Miss Vivian was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Bowles and was a bright attractive girl of fifteen years. Pneumonia and other complications set in after an attack of measles from which she failed to rally. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family.

The adv. of D.W. Murray, fruit baskets, etc., appears in this issue of the Monitor. The Hantsport Advance thus refers to Mr. Murray's business:—"Mr. D. W. Murray, of the Basket Factory, Hantsport, is doing a large business this season. In the first place he has more than twice the amount of timber than he ever had previously, and intends making it all up during the season. There are sixteen hands employed steadily. He will turn out some 700,000 boxes, up to strawberry time, and perhaps make up the million during the summer, for the latter berries."

The east wing of the Seminary at Wolfville has been opened for the senior class, most of whom have returned, and also the teachers. The quiet apart. A number of the patients have been critically ill, but most of them are past the danger point. One death, Miss Lockwood, of Lockport, is reported. Miss Black, of Amherst and Miss Godfrey, of Shelburne are also very ill, but with excellent nurses and the best of medical attention it is hoped that the worst is over. One case has developed on the Ridge, outside the town, son of Mr. Lewis Murphy.

Many Thanks, Brother Journalists

(Truro News.)

The Bridgetown Monitor-Sentinel has just entered its 39th year. The present proprietor and publisher, Mrs. M. K. Piper, is to be congratulated on the highly creditable typographical appearance of her paper, its up-to-date journalism, and its clear and concise editorial utterances.

It is a credit to our Provincial press; and, by the way, our only two Nova Scotia newspapers,—the Bridgetown Monitor-Sentinel and the Windsor Tribune,—that are controlled and edited entirely by ladies, are the equal of any country journals in this Province, and superior to many of them.

Give our women a chance, no matter what the race in life, and nine times out of ten, success will be scored, and the old fogies will be surprised to hear, "dux femina facti" or freely translated, "it was the woman who did the little trick."

(Western Chronicle)

The Bridgetown Monitor has just completed thirty-eight years of newspaper-life. Mrs. M. K. Piper is the proprietor and publisher. We only know of one other paper in Nova Scotia, the Windsor Tribune, conducted by a lady journalist. We congratulate the Monitor. It is a clean, fair-play, newsy paper, a credit to Bridgetown and deserves to live thirty-eight years longer.

There is a tremendous demand from every section of the west for a Borden meeting.

NOVA SCOTIA INDUSTRIES.

When new companies are constantly coming into existence for the purpose of investing money and carrying on industrial operations it means that the country is prosperous it means that the capitalists have confidence in the continued and increased prosperity.

During the year ending September 30th, 1910, 102 companies were incorporated to do business in Nova Scotia, with an aggregate capitalization of $18,792,000. Even though a number of these may not materialize in the immediate future, yet such a record could only be made in a country already prosperous and whose prosperity rapidly increases.

CLEAN CROP THIS YEAR.

New Glasgow Eastern Chronicle.—"There will probably be a splendid crop of apples in the valley of Annapolis and in King's county this year. What makes that probable is that the enemies to the apple crop in those places were rust and maggots. Last fall owing to the scarcity of apples the growers were able to sell at unusually high prices all the rusty and maggot bored apples in the places, so that no rust for boring maggot was left and thus this year's crop should be free from these plagues. Anyway the apple eaters down this way have shared more apples with worms and discarded more parings on account of rust than ever in their lifetime before."

When you buy Paint, get the real thing

It is extravagant and foolish to buy and pay for paint, and instead of paint, get a mixture containing cheap adulterants.

Pure paint—the real thing—spreads easier, covers more surface (and covers it better) and wears longer than adulterated paint. Pure paint is far more economical to use. Pure paint gives the handsomest finish.

Pure paint insures you against paint "troubles", the cracking, the peeling, scaling, etc. that comes from the use of impurities.

B-B "English" Paint is pure paint—made from 70% pure white lead (Brandram's B.B. Genuine) 30% pure zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. It will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money on your paint bill.

Test of Temperament

A Study in Spiritual Development.

Can a leopard change his spots? No; and why should he? His spots are the very thing that make him interesting. Can a man change his temperament? And why should he in turn? His temperament is the very thing that makes him of value to the world.

Yet how many times we feel that we are distinctly handicapped in life because of our own peculiar temperament! Each of us feels that his own life is entirely different from all others, and we often sadly say that methods which have proved successful with others will not prove successful with us. As a matter of fact, if we could know all the circumstances and all the difference that separate us from others, we should probably find that we are more different than we even suspected. It is this difference that is often made a ground of complaint, whereas it should be a ground of congratulation, and the beginning of hope.

There are fundamental differences of constitution which separate us into the classes that we call temperaments. The ancients used to divide temperaments into four groups; the sanguine, the phlegmatic, the choleric, and the melancholic. The sanguine man sees things in a rosy light; cheer is his natural element, and victory always seems easy to him. The phlegmatic man sees things in a more subdued light; nothing seems to warrant excitement or special effort. The choleric man finds life full of opposition, and everything causes irritation. The melancholic man sees everything in a sombre light; the prospects of the future are discouraging. There are combinations and gradations between these classes of temperaments; but in the main we find ourselves generally nearer one than the other, and usually we envy the other man his possession. The sanguine man who has made so many mistakes because of his impetuosity envies his more steady-going and phlegmatic neighbor. The phlegmatic man, who realizes how many opportunities he has missed because he did not act quickly enough, wishes he had something of his sanguine neighbor's vivacity. The choleric man wishes he had something of the resignation of his melancholic neighbor. And the melancholic man envies all the rest of them. And all the while a man's temperament, no matter what it is, is his greatest gift. The beauty of God's world is its variety, and it would be a sad thing indeed if there were not a variety in temperament as well as in trees, flowers, scenery and faces.

Therefore, to despise our own temperament is not a sensible thing to do. Though we were to change it, we should have no different set of problems. Far happier is the man who recognizes in his temperament God's peculiar gift to him. The leopard does not need to change his spots; God made him for a leopard, and his greatest success in life will come, not from trying to be other than he is, but in trying to make the best of that which he undoubtedly is. A cabinet-maker has on his bench a great variety of tools. There are large planes and small planes; chisels with straight edges; augers for boring wood, some large and strong, and some almost as fine as a needle. It would be a sad thing for the product of that cabinet-maker's shop if all the tools were compelled to be just alike. It would be a sad thing for this world if there were just one type of man.

It is more than likely that a large part of our unhappiness comes from the attempt to make ourselves over into something that God never intended us to be. Our Lord must have recognized temperament in his disciples. The twelve represented men of widely differing temperaments and gifts, yet none of them were inclined toward the change of temperament or gift in any of His followers, but they were all addressed to their hearts and wills. It is never temperament that determines our life, but the willingness to use our temperament and have it developed. Efficiency, success, peace of mind, power, and heaven are possible to every man—not of the change of his temperament, but by the developing of it. God never asks one to be any other man, but only to be the best man that he may.

Mood is temperament run amuck and no man is more to be pitied than he who is thus the victim of his own temperament. Clear down underneath the ocean steamer is the whirling screw that drives the ship and mass of machinery through the waves. Sometimes a great wave lifts the stern of the steamer, so that the crew is projected out into the air; and then you feel that wild running screw jarring and shaking the steamer from stem to stern. Clear down at the bottom of our life is our divinely given temperament. So long as it continues working we make progress, but when we allow it to come to the surface it becomes a menace and a danger. There is no tyrant like a mood. There is no more certain way to come to disaster than to allow moods to control our actions. No man is naturally efficient. No man ever becomes truly great, nat-naturally. Great orators, musicians, poets, engineers, become great by the faithful cultivation of some one bit of their temperament. No amount of pitiable straining and effort would enable the leopard's spots to be changed. He is always a leopard. God means that he shall be a leopard. And no amount of agonizing can make us other than God intended we should be. He had a specific purpose for us, and to accomplish that purpose our particular temperament was given to us. The glory of life is for man to take what God has placed within his hands, and to let God magnify and beautify it that it becomes over and over again the instrument of his will. The open secret of the life of power is to appeal to Christ to transform the dust into the image of the Creator. The great secret of usefulness is to begin with what we have; take the talent that is entrusted to us; and let Christ add thereto His Own transforming and glorifying power. Peter did not naturally have an enviable temperament, but when Christ was added to it, how beautiful it became! Saul of Tarsus was not a man whom the world would have delighted to honor and to follow, but after he could say that Christ lived in him, what beauty his life took on! It is not the change from what I am, but the addition of Christ to what I am, that brings me nearer God's expectations.—Sunday School Times.

The performance continued until the nerves of all the family were so unstrung that Mr. Weary said one day they would not stay in the house another night, and they engaged rooms outside.

Mrs. Weary was by this time, much improved in health and decided to come home a few days earlier than was expected and take the family by surprise. When she arrived in the evening, much to her amazement, not a light was to be seen in any of the windows, while the house presented a singularly deserted appearance. After ringing the bell vigorously several times and becoming much alarmed a passing neighbor called out that the family were boarding across the street.

Mr. Weary and the children were delighted to see her and immediately began to recount their strange experiences with the musical spirit, which haunted the house. Also that night, Mr. Weary confessed with much repentance, how he had schemed to get her away.

Laughing at the idea that the house was haunted, as she had her suspicions with regard to the spirit, Mrs. Weary insisted that they all return home the next day.

In the night the mysterious music started again and Mrs. Weary got up and went down stairs, Mr. Weary, with his teeth chattering, following in her wake. Turning on the lights and going up to the piano, which stood cornerwise in the room, Mrs. Weary poked a long stick through a narrow space between the instrument and the wall, and out ran sleek pussy, the ghost which had innocently caused so much anguish during the past month.

"There is the spirit that alarmed you all and which has given our home the name of 'Haunted House,'" exclaimed the "triumphant lady." "As soon as I heard your story I suspected Muff at once, for, one day while I was sitting by the piano, she ran in and jumped up on the keyboard. Instead of being frightened and running away as I supposed she would do, she kept passing up and down on the keys, occasionally tapping them with her paws, thus making a rather weird, but not unpleasant sound. Several times after this she repeated the performance, but no one except myself happened to be around."

"Why did she play in the night?" asked the astonished man.

"For the simple reason that I always used to put her down cellar the last thing before going to bed for fear she might wander upstairs and sit on baby's chest. It is evident you didn't obey my parting request in this particular, or you wouldn't have been kept in such torment all these weeks."

"Served me right," muttered Mr. Weary. Then the ludicrousness of the situation caused the relieved man to laugh so persistently that the tears rolled down his cheeks and he became as nearly hysterical as is possible for a lord of creation.

"Stop, stop, Phil! This is clearly a threat of cerebro-spinal meningitis. You need a change of air and scene," was the climax of his wife's revenge.

At this turning of the tables, he laughed more loudly than ever, when at the whole household was aroused and rushed to the spot. When the musical apparition was introduced, how crest-fallen they all felt.

Gradually the facts leaked out through the town, and there was a general feeling of disappointment that to it belonged not the distinction of containing a dwelling with a sure-enough ghost.

To this day when Mr. Weary's friends meet him, they cannot forbear asking:

"Say, Weary, how about the haunted house? Burning electric lights all night comes pretty high, eh?"

Is there anything in all this world that is of more importance to you than good digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and converted into blood. POKER GAME CAUSED BANGOR FIRE.

Many of the Families Burned Out Are Still Destitute.

Bangor, Me., May 2.—A Sunday afternoon poker game played in a hay shed caused the fire that swept Bangor, leveling almost four hundred buildings, causing the loss of two lives, rendering thousands homeless and entailing a money loss to-day conservatively estimated at approximately $4,000,000. A longshoreman today told the city authorities that the fire was caused by a number of men playing poker in a hay shed dropping a lighted match on the floor. The loose hay burst into flames and in a moment the interior of the place was ablaze. The card players barely had time to dash out of the door.

Of the two hundred and fifty families burned out seventy-five are destitute. Most of the owners of the business blocks and hotels that were burned are financially able to rebuild as soon as material can be obtained.

THINK PLEASANT THOUGHTS.

In reflecting upon the different types of modern women one is struck by the fact how completely the morbid, reserved woman is out of date and how remorselessly the drooping, despondent type has been pushed to the wall.

The world of today has swung far away from any sort of morbid thinking, and the woman of a reserved, melancholy temperament finds herself peculiarly alone. In this day of sane thinking and cheerful talk, a woman of this type has no place.

She has been forced to make way for a healthier, more inspiring type and this transformation has been accomplished by the simple power of thoughtful thinking. We realize now thought in power and women who are successful use that power in creating for themselves an atmosphere of strength and courage and friendliness. The power of thinking pleasant thoughts must make its inevitable appeal. It spreads comfort to the darkest corner of the morbid mind and gives an atmosphere of attraction to even unattractive women. It is a habit, which, if practiced constantly, will rob an irritating situation of its sting and turn a melancholy temperament from its brooding.

Cultivate the habit of this kind of thinking, and you can work wonders not only on others, but upon yourself. And the beauty of it is that it is so simple. All one has to do is to open one's mind and heart to beautiful and pleasant thoughts, and immediately the world about one is beautiful and pleasant.

It is a fact that you can change temperament and make it what you like by the power of thought, and undoubtedly you can overcome most of the annoying situations in life by this happy process.—New York Times.

THE CHILD'S BED TIME.

The old rule that children should go to bed, as it was phrased, "with the chickens," is in danger of being disregarded in these over-filled days when even the child in his first year at school gives an excuse that he hasn't time. In the country when the chickens have been smuggled under their mother's wing, and the various farm noises have subsided in the deepening twilight, the baby's eyelids grow heavy, and he is ready for his cot. But in town, the child whose nerves are more worked upon by the harsher and incessant noises of the street, is less inclined to go to bed when the chickens do, even if he had their example to follow. As he grows older the city baby will get into the habit of paying wakened attention to what ever sounds penetrate of the street, or to the comings and goings of his elders, unless he is brought up to go early to bed and to sleep. In every generation, to get sitting up seems to be a desire of childhood, even though, as David Copperfield found, the coveted liberty can hardly be taken advantage of by reason of eyes that refuse to stay open.

Regularly in bed time, the exact hour depending on the age of the child, and to some extent on its temperament, is essential to its present and future well-being. The "children's hour" before bed-time should be a quiet one, without active games or excitement of any kind. This should be especially observed with nervous or easily excited children in order that they may go off to sleep quietly.

NUTS IN THE BILL OF FARE.

Nuts have hardly attained the position they deserve as a food instead of a relish. Like cheese, they offer so much meat value in compact form that it is desirable to grind them and combine with less solid foods. The intense vegetarian uses nut cream on his cereal, and others may like it for variety; or we may try grated almonds with our oatmeal, walnuts with our wheat, or mixed nuts with corn.

Nuts lend themselves admirably to substitution, etc., and with slight changes in favor may be used in place of meat in many such recipes with which we are familiar. Meat choppers now are often provided with a special plate for making nut butter. If we provide ourselves with nuts of the best quality, the churning and grinding need not be more laborious than the preparation of vegetables. Once we learn to think of nuts (with the exception of the chestnut) as containing on the average as much protein as cheese and more than half as much fat as butter, we shall see that they must be used sparingly but may find many ways of using a few spoonfuls here and there to increase the nutritive value of some simple dish.

PALATABLE SPRING DISHES.

In spring, when fresh vegetables are rare and expensive, the housekeeper is obliged to make use of the canned variety, some of which, fortunately are really excellent. One of the very nice preparations from canned corn is a dish of fritters, and the following is a good recipe: Beat two eggs, add a cup of milk, salt to season, a little sugar, and a tablespoonful of butter, then stir in a pint of canned corn, and enough flour with a teaspoonful of baking powder sifted in it, to make a thick batter. Fry in hot lard.

Hominy guffs are a delicious Southern dish, served for luncheon or breakfast. Take one quart of cold boiled, thoroughly cooked, hominy, four heaping tablespoonfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one coffee cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of salt, and four eggs. Into the cold hominy stir the well-beaten yolks, then salt, milk, flour and baking powder. Add last the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth and stirred in slowly. Have lard very hot, drop the mixture in with a spoon, and fry a rich brown.

Cut up a fowl, with the exception of the breast, which should be left whole. Put the pieces in a stewpan, with a small quantity of parsley, and a bay leaf or two. Cover with water, season well with salt and pepper, and stew slowly until tender. Take the fowl out of the liquor, cut the meat of the breast into three or four long strips, and the rest of the meat into small bits. Put the bones back into the saucepan with an ounce of gelatine dissolved in a little water. Boil for twenty minutes, strain through a cloth and pour sufficient of the liquor into a deep dish to cover the bottom. When this has set place one or two of the large pieces of chicken in the centre with smaller pieces around. Pour in another layer of jelly, and when it has set, place a layer of chicken as before. Continue the jelly and meat alternately until the dish is full, putting a layer of jelly over all. When the jelly is quite firm dip the dish into warm water and turn out its contents quickly upon a platter. Garnish with parsley and slices of lemon.

FOR THE BATH ROOM

The simple bath which is made by slicing a lemon into the water ten minutes before using is excellent for the woman whose skin is inclined to be oily. Lemon in the bath is refreshing at the close of a hot, dusty day. A jar of borax shod stand in the cupboard of every bathroom where the water is hard, as it is an excellent water softener. Muslin bags a few inches square, filled with equal parts of bran and oatmeal, will also make a tub of hard water into a soothing and cleansing bath.

A more elaborate bath, which will soften and whiten the skin, is made by mixing oatmeal into a paste with rose-water. Add to this some shavings of a good soap and a little bicarbonate of soda. This is an excellent skin tonic when stirred into a bath of hot water.

A home-made toilet vinegar consists of four ounces of alcohol, half an ounce of ammonia, and one drachm of oil of lavender. This should be bottled and used in the proportions of a teaspoonful to a basin of water.

The Doctor's Question

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders.

A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is, "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that 98 per cent. of illness is attended with torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.

Recall Orderlies are a positive, pleasant and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Recall Orderlies are eaten like candy, they are quiet and have a soothing, strengthening, healing influence on the entire intestinal tract. They do not purge, gripe, cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea or other annoying effect. They are especially good for children, weak people, old folks. Two sizes 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, W. A. Warren.

When making a call with my two-year-old I carry a small box of dominoes, with which he will entertain himself indefinitely. The wooden ones are cheap and cannot scratch even the most beautiful floors, besides making little noise. I have yet to find a hostess who objects to this simple harmless method of entertainment, which so completely solves the problem of "something to do" in a strange house.

W. B. H.

A good use for discarded feather beds is to put a small portion of the feathers into a tick made of muslin the size of your bed, spread the feathers out evenly, tack the case on quilting frames, cover both sides with pretty silkine and knot or tie as you do a comfortable, using either pretty worsted tufts or knots of narrow ribbon. A most excellent substitute for a down quilt is the result.

A good way to overcome self-consciousness and to get rid of the sensation of not knowing what to do with the hands is to deliberately start for a long walk along a crowded thoroughfare without even the tiniest of coin purses between the fingers. You will be surprised to note how few really graceful women are making their hands work simultaneously with their feet.

The woman who never starts dinner until it is too late to get it ready on time should remember that procrastination always enters the race with one tug unhooked. A hungry husband who has to sit around and wait for the potatoes to boil is quite apt to become a liability sooner or later.

A famous beauty's advice on how to keep young is, "Be cheerful, keep busy." In a word, the woman who wants to look attractive in middle age, and afterwards, must recognize the power of mind over matter.

AMERICANS WARNED TO LEAVE MEXICO.

Nogales, Ariz., May 2—High officials of the Southern Pacific Railroad lines in Mexico arriving here today from the Mexican interior, said that they had received notice from the rebels, advising all Americans to remove their families into the United States. The rebels are quoted as having said that if there was no peace agreement by Thursday night of this week, they would attack all Mexican border towns. Many American families are leaving Mexico daily.

DRIVING OUT DISEASE DEVIL.

Ceremony of Mangs, One of Lowest Indian Castes.

One of the lowest castes in India is the Mang, concerning whom a writer says: "Of all the practices in which the Mangs have a part perhaps the most significant is that which has reference to the ceremonies of 'ridance' in connection with epidemics. Such ceremonies would seem to have been universal at one time or another among all primitive peoples, and are apparently of two different kinds. Either the 'disease devil' is driven forth by force with much uproar or he is persuaded by methods of kindness and propitiation to remove his unwelcome presence. The latter method is employed in certain parts of the Deccan and on such occasions the Mangs play an important part."

A male buffalo, purchased by the contributions of the village, is led to the temple of Mar Ai, the goddess specially associated with epidemic diseases. A Mang woman is then dressed to represent the goddess, red paint is applied to her forehead and the horns and flanks of the buffalo and a procession is formed, headed by the woman and by the buffalo, which is usually led by Mangs. In the buffalo walk seven Mangs, each bearing an earthenware pot containing a mixture of four intoxicating drugs and seven kinds of grain.

The buffalo is out with a sword and a hole is pierced in one after another of the jars, so that as the procession circumbulates the village its passage is marked by a trail of blood and of the liquid dripping from the jars. On reaching once more the temple of the goddess the buffalo is killed and the woman, who all the time is forbidden to look behind her, drinks of its blood. The head of the buffalo is then buried before the goddess.

Notes on New Knights.

King George has celebrated his first New Year as sovereign by adding handles to the names of many gifted persons.

One of the best known is "Sir" Joseph Lyons, who supplies 400,000 people with meals every day.

"What would you do," he was once asked, "if you were ten times as rich as Rockefeller?"

"I would cover England with free hospitals," was his prompt reply. "I would," J. Wood, the famous conductor, is another who exchanges the commonplace "Mr." for the distinguished "Sir." He insists on silence while he is presiding over his orchestra. On one occasion, at Queen's Hall, when Mr. Answers was present, a baby up in the gallery cried so persistently that the conductor laid down his baton and left the platform. The audience had to choose between him and the baby. And they did—to the fond mother's indignation.

Cricketer, athlete, K.C., M.P., and now, knight, Arthur Priestley is the central figure of a fund of good stories. During a recent election meeting, a particularly irritating heckler particularly irritated Mr. Priestley, who turned on him suddenly with the demand, "If you were in my place, and I was to interrupt you, what would you do?" "I'd jolly well knock you down!" shouted the heckler. To which the athletic candidate retorted: "Then kindly step up!"

Friend of Kings.

Lord Farquhar, who, as chairman of the League of Mercy, has received a letter from King George expressing his interest in the good work which the League is doing, was for many years King Edward's adviser on all matters relating to His Majesty's private, financial, and business affairs. It was Lord Farquhar who, when King Edward ascended the throne, discovered the many abuses had crept into the working of the royal household, and these he promptly brought to an end. Lord Farquhar, in every way, a man of the world, and, say his friends, has been so from of his walking into a village school near Cromer on his tenth birthday and in a lordly way demanding to inspect the children's writing. The copybooks were laid out and inspected, and then the royal critic said: "Well, boys, I can't say much for your work, but as it's my birthday you may all take a holiday from now." In one minute the school had cleared.

Long-Service Members of Parliament.

The fact that just before the end of the session, Hon. Mr. Haldane celebrated the twenty-ninth anniversary of his Parliamentary connection with East Lothian is a reminder of the few members of the British House of Commons whose career at Westminster dates back to the 'eighties. The present "father" of the House, Mr. Burt, has represented Morpeth since the general election in 1874, when Mr. Balfour likewise entered the assembly, but the defeat of the leader of the Opposition at Manchester deprived him of the position of "Father," though a very few weeks later he was elected for the City of London. Both Sir Charles Dilke and Mr. Chaplin entered Parliament as far back as 1868, but they have not sat continuously; so that Mr. Chamberlain, who first appeared at St. Stephen's in the summer of 1876 for the then undivided constituency of Birmingham, is the "Father-act."

Baby Hair to Millions.

Some idea of the wealth to which the baby son recently born to Earl Fitzwilliam is heir may be gathered from the fact that the late peer's estate was valued at considerably over $10,000,000. Earl Fitzwilliam has large estates in England and Ireland which are said to produce him nearly $700,000 a year. A practical-minded peer, the earl has played many parts, and distinguished himself as a mechanic, mining engineer, big game hunter, soldier, politician, and magistrate.

THE FARROWING SCW.

Warm Pen Necessary to Handle the Early Litters.

If the sow has been properly fed and handled during pregnancy very little attention will be required at farrowing unless the weather should be severe. Each sow should be placed in a pen by herself three or four days before due. For the early litter a warm pen is necessary. It should be dry and supplied with a small amount of straw or chaff. A barrel or box wrapped in blankets is excellent for this purpose. The pigs may be placed in the warm box or barrel and when thoroughly dry and warm put back with the sow to suckle. Sometimes it happens that a sow will be too cross and nervous to submit to having the pigs removed in this way. The man who has made friends with his sows previously will commonly have little difficulty in working about them at this time.

Possibly some may not be aware of the fact that a newly farrowed pig will very seldom squeal if picked up by the tail or ear. Many pigs are lost annually through carelessness at farrowing time, probably more than by over-attention at this time, although too much solitude may result in harm. The sow should be kept as quiet as possible the first twenty-four hours, receiving nothing but water, which should be warmed, especially if the weather is at all cold. The feeding for three or four days should be light, a warm brin slop being given at first, gradually working up to a full feed at the end of a week or ten days.—Kansas Farmer.

General Utility of Mules.

In feeding mules, it may be well to remember that they will keep fat on about three-fourths the allowance of a horse of the same weight, that they will eat up roughage and their grain ration will only be about two-thirds that of a horse. When it comes to daily care and attention the mule will live where the horse will soon die. These large eared friends are also more sure footed than the horse, resist heat and flies better and do not chafe or gal so easily. The objection many farmers raise to the use of mules is that they do not breed, that they are stubborn, often vicious, and that they are entirely unsuited to pleasure purposes. These objections are worthy of consideration, but the many good qualities of these sturdy beasts seem to more than offset them.

Haphazard Farming.

The man who says that dairying doesn't pay is the man who never uses the Babcock test and keeps no record of his individual cows' doings. He is the man who thinks because he keeps twenty cows he ought to get so much milk without any thought upon his part. If you are keeping animals which are eating up the profits of good milkers in the same herd, why not find it out right away and get rid of the lazy ones?

Importance of Bone and Muscle.

The farmer raises cattle and hogs with a view of rapid development of fat, but the horse is used for mechanical power and should develop great bone and muscle. Muscular development cannot be attained in close confinement, and the young animal should not be tied to a stall and fed corn and timothy hay to fatten him for the shambles.

A Horse Pointer.

Did you ever notice that when out in the field a horse always stands with his face away from the wind and storm? Here is a pointer for you. Hitch your horses with their heads away from the wind.

The Buttermaker.

Absolute cleanliness is the first requisite in making good butter: sanitary surroundings come next, and right temperature, with attention to details in the care of cream third.

THE SWINEHERD.

A mixture of a little salt, charcoal, ashes and air slaked lime has a good effect on parasites of the digestive system of either young or old pigs. If the pigs develop a lighter bone than that possessed by the sire and dam then there is something wrong with the feeding. Pigs must have bone and muscle forming feed and should never be allowed to lose their baby fat. No animal on the farm will respond to kind treatment quicker than the hog, and kind treatment means a good deal in the accumulation of marketable meat. Smaller pigs are kept stunted if left with the larger, stronger ones by being crowded from the feeding trough. It pays to grade the pigs carefully. Put the smaller ones by themselves and give extra care.
