KING'S SON IS THE GUEST OF CANADA.

Royal Visitors at Quebec—Twenty-five Thousand People Greet Them—Magnificent Decorations of Historic City—The Royal Apartments.

Quebec, Sept. 15.—(Special)—Quebec is gay today as it has never been before and there are thousands of strangers in town all eager to pay tribute to their royal highnesses, the Duke and Duchess of York, who are aboard the Ophir and within a few miles of the harbor of Quebec.

the legislative council chamber where the civic address is to be presented, freshly and richly decorated, containing the throne which is covered by a great dais in the form of a tent surmounted by a royal crown. This dais is extremely rich in character and is fringed with flags with golden borders while near the seats of the royal couple are antique vases filled with luxuriant foliage.

cabinet ministers met the royal party on the wharf.

Carriages Marvels of Luxury.

All the carriages in the procession were sent out from England and are marvels of luxury. That occupied by the royal highnesses is a road landau and was drawn by six horses without riders. Its color is dark sober auburn striped in crimson and the upholstery is in royal blue cloth, with silk and satin trimmings.

Thousands Saw the Procession.

It is no exaggeration to say that scores of thousands of people were able to witness the royal procession in its comparatively short progress from the King's wharf to the parliament buildings.

The Children's Part.

As the royal carriage passed through the arch at the parliament buildings, its occupants were greeted by a host of children.

Hon. S. N. Parent, mayor of Quebec, and the members of the city council, received the royal party, at the entrance of the parliament house and conducted them to the legislative council chamber.

To His Royal Highness Prince George of Cambridge, Duke of Edinburgh, Prince of Sax-Coburg and Gotha, and Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and Duke of Saxony; Earl of Carrick and Inverness; Baron of Renfrew and Altham; Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland; K. G., P. C., V. O., L. L. D., D. C. L., G. C., G. C. V. O.

My dear and noble Prince: In your tour of the world wide dominions of His Majesty's possessions beyond the seas, which constitute the glory and strength of the British empire, Canada, the greatest and fairest of them all, has been fittingly reserved as the scene of your closing visit.

A Hearty Welcome.

As the Ophir passed the French frigate flags were dipped and all the way up the harbor salutations were exchanged with the great fleet of pleasure vessels led by the government steamer Zephyr.

Minto and Laurier Board the Ophir.

At 10.30 a. m. his excellency, the governor general, went on board the Ophir to meet the royal party accompanied by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who is to travel with the royal party across the continent.

Royal Party Lands.

It was exactly 12.30 o'clock when the royal party landed at the King's wharf amid the booming of cannon from both the fleet and the citadel. The streets through which the royal procession was to pass on its way to the citadel, had been previously cleared of traffic, military corps now in the city lined the entire route.

our sailor prince, but we are doubly so at present when you deign to visit us as direct heir to the throne of that mighty realm, whose protection we enjoy and to which we rejoice to belong even to the shedding of our blood in its defence as our fathers did in 1775 and 1812 and as our sons have since done in the distant regions of the empire.

When the Duke and Duchess had taken their seats in the royal carriage, drawn up on Champlain street, the procession immediately started on its way to the city. It was one of the most imposing for its size, ever seen here.

Major Jiggar, who is in charge of the medals for the South African heroes is already hard at work preparing for the distribution.

The medals rolls are very complete, being entered in a large bound book and contain the regimental numbers, names, ages, and each class to which every man who went to South Africa from Canada is entitled.

PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES DEAD.

His Last Words: "Good-Bye All, Good-Bye. It Is God's Way. His Will Be Done."—Affecting Scenes—Roosevelt Takes Oath as President.

Milburn House, Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—President McKinley died at 2.15 this morning. He had been unconscious since 7.50 p. m. His last conscious hour on earth was spent with the wife to whom he had devoted a lifetime of care.

His relatives and the members of his official family were at the Milburn House, except Secretary Wilson, who did not avail himself of the opportunity and some of his personal and political friends took leave of him.

The immediate cause of the president's death is undetermined. His physicians disagree and it will possibly require an autopsy to fix finally the exact cause.

The president's remains will be taken to Washington and there will be a state funeral. Vice-President Roosevelt, who now succeeds to the presidency, may take the oath of office wherever he happens to hear the news.

The duke of the people of Buffalo against the president's assassin when they learned last night that he was dying was boundless. Thousands surrounded the jail and the entire police force of the city and two regiments of militia were utilized to insure his protection.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 13.—Before 6 o'clock it was clear to those at the president's bedside that he was dying and preparations were made for the last farewell from those who were dearest to him.

After they left the sick room the physicians rallied him to consciousness and the president asked almost immediately that his wife be brought to him.

The president in his last moments of consciousness, which ended about 5.30 o'clock, uttered the words of the beautiful hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," and his last audible conscious words as taken down by Dr. Mann at the bedside were "Good-bye, all, good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done."

Then his mind began to wander and soon afterward he completely lost consciousness. His life was prolonged for hours by the administration of oxygen and the president finally expressed a desire to be allowed to die.

Below stairs the grief-stricken gathering waited sadly for the end. All the evening those who had listened here last as steel and steam could carry them, continued to arrive. They drove up in carriages at a gallop or walked up in automobiles, all intent upon getting here before death came.

There was no need for official bulletins after this. Those who came from the house at intervals told the same story—that the president was dying and that the end might come at any time.

At midnight the Milburn house was the centre of a scene as crowded as thought it were netherday, although a solemn hush hung over the great room of watchers.

How Washington is Affected.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The news of the expected death of President McKinley came as a crushing blow to the national capital.

Under the presidential succession act a cabinet officer becoming chief magistrate would have to summon congress in special session but the requirement does not apply to a vice-president succeeding to the office.

Guides Beat the Country for Roosevelt—His Exciting Ride.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 14.—When Theodore Roosevelt and his guides left Tahawus Club early yesterday morning on a hunting expedition, the vice-president fully believed that President McKinley was entirely out of danger and on the road to recovery.

At 11.30 a. m. his excellency, the governor general, went on board the Ophir to meet the royal party accompanied by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who is to travel with the royal party across the continent.

Royal Party Lands.

It was exactly 12.30 o'clock when the royal party landed at the King's wharf amid the booming of cannon from both the fleet and the citadel.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 14.—The official announcement of the president's death as a result of their autopsy on the president's body that the death resulted from gangrene of the wounds led to much discussion.

Dr. Mann, on whom fell the responsibility of operating upon the president immediately after he was shot, was asked: "About the criticisms that were made as to the insufficiency of the original examination and the failure to locate the bullet at the time of operation, were they justified?"

"I think the report made today," Dr. Mann replied, "is a sufficient answer to your question. It shows very plainly that the location of the bullet had nothing to do with the final outcome. That resulted from gangrene which appeared in the path of the bullet. Even our efforts today to locate it, as stated in the report, were unsuccessful. It had not yet reached the muscle. We searched until one and a half hours for the bullet but some obstruction it surely would have killed the president immediately."

"The report speaks of a lack of evidence of repair work on the part of nature. Won't you explain just what bearing this had on the case at issue?"

"By that statement, we mean that the gunshot wound of the patient failed to result in a revival from the shock suffered by the shooting. It was due probably to a low vitality, not to poor health, mind you, but a system that was considerably run down and needed rest and recuperation."

First Bullet Might Have Killed.

"Your report says the first bullet striking in the breast did no harm."

"Yes that is correct. That bullet evidently struck a rib and then then slipped off without doing any damage. Had it not done so, it would have struck the heart and killed the president immediately."

"The report speaks of a lack of evidence of repair work on the part of nature. Won't you explain just what bearing this had on the case at issue?"

"By that statement, we mean that the gunshot wound of the patient failed to result in a revival from the shock suffered by the shooting. It was due probably to a low vitality, not to poor health, mind you, but a system that was considerably run down and needed rest and recuperation."

Heart Unable for Effort.

"The report says the heart walls were very thin. Was this condition permanent? Did the president or is it a common complaint? Did the use of smoking tobacco by the president have any important bearing on the case?"

"I don't think the smoking habit affected the president's heart to the extent of making it flaccid in the result. He was not a great smoker and at one time we even considered the propriety of permitting him to have a cigar."

A Poisoned Bullet?

"It has been suggested, Dr. Mann, that the bullet which went into the president's abdomen was poisoned and that this was what caused death. Do you think there is any basis for the report?"

Dr. Mann replied, "I don't know whether it was or not. A chemical or bacteriological examination of the remaining bullets in the pistol will be necessary to determine that, perhaps both."

All the tissues through which the bullet passed were dead. This is a very remarkable indeed. The area of the dead tissue in the stomach was perhaps as great as a silver dollar in circumference. Dr. Mann, the marine hospital expert, was strongly inclined to the opinion that the bullet had been poisoned."

A HUNT FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

THE FEELING TOWARD ENGLAND. It is not easy to reconcile some of the jarring opinions which come from across the line with respect to the feeling of the American people toward England; but the weight of judgment appears to be on the side of a kindly sentiment.

THE NEXT REDISTRIBUTION. To the approaching session of parliament attaches a special importance by reason of the fact that, under the British North America Act, a redistribution bill must be introduced by the government.

THE GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT. The presentment by the grand jury, in attendance at the circuit court, to His Honor Justice Gregory Wednesday is a very readable document.

SIR CHARLES' TESTIMONY. And now Sir Charles Tupper comes forward to rebuke those who, like the Sun, contend that the Quebec census was padded. He says: "It is the cities that have a great deal at stake in having their populations underrated."

WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE. Our morning contemporary in speaking of the Nova Scotia elections said: "Recent nominations in Halifax, Cumberland and Colchester show that the government must reason with a determined and united opposition hopeful of success, and determined to work for it."

NOTES AND COMMENTS. The American nation has lost a patriotic and Christian citizen.

THE SCHLEY INQUIRY COURT. Washington, Sept. 16.—The Schley court of inquiry will resume its sessions on Friday morning. The expectation is two sessions will be had daily.

Men's Perfect Tailoring.

Come to Oak Hall if you want a perfectly tailored suit. We'd conscientiously advise this, even if our prices were Twenty per cent. higher. That's a conservative estimate of the difference in cost here and at other stores for cloth and work and style of same character.

FIRST—The very excellent work our Cutter and Tailors have done in the past must have been satisfactory. SECOND—The very unusual assortment of fine fabrics we are showing at popular prices, an assortment you can find nowhere else, is doing its share.

There arrived on the Boston express Monday night from Rockland, Me., a woman named Mrs. McFier, accompanied by a small child. The former was almost blind. She was travelling to her home on Prince Edward Island. At the depot she was quite helpless and unable to walk with guidance. She wished accommodation for the night and was kindly escorted to the Grand Union by one of the depot officials.

Lieut. Col. McLean, Major Sturdee and George Robertson, P. P., visited Camp Sussex on Saturday in order to ascertain if sufficient of the militia of New Brunswick would come to St. John to represent the province at the exposition. Col. Dunbar was seen and also here. The officers commanding the military regiments are expected to be in the city on Monday, and after the usual have been conferred with by the government.

The special exhibition which this year is to be held over five days, from September 18 to 22, promises to be the most successful one that has been held here. It shows that have been never seen before. The agricultural displays have been secured. The agricultural displays will be usually good and the railway programme as announced in the advertisement columns will bring out the best of the province. The street track is admitted very fast and excellent sport is looked for. The convenient train service and low rates make it easy to get there. Take a day off and see the show.

An order has been issued by the customs department providing that in future tourists' bicycles hereafter brought to Canada by members of the League of American Wheelmen will be subject to customs. The privilege granted to members of the league of bringing in their bicycles without deposit has been withdrawn. They will have to deposit the amount of duty the same as other tourists, subject, however, to refund within six months if the bicycles are exported. The reason for this change is the American wheelmen, who agreed through the Canadian Wheelmen's Association to indemnify the government for loss, has now retired to do this.

KILBURN'S LUMBERING.

Will Not Cut as Much as Last Season, Because of Hang-up This Year.

John Kilburn, the lumberman, who operates in the province of Quebec, has decided to curtail his operations somewhat during the coming season. He cut about 12,000,000 feet last season, the bulk of which is still in the hands of his agents. He does not expect to cut more than 6,000,000 feet during the coming winter. Mr. Kilburn operates on a northwestern branch of the St. John, and has experienced more or less difficulty in getting his lumber out of the woods. With a smaller cut he thinks the trouble will be abated to a considerable extent.

ADMITTS FORGERY.

Murray McCutcheon Arrested -- Clearing Up the Case of Letters from the Steamer May Queen.

Murray D. McCutcheon, whose home is at Lake View, Queens county, and who has been taking a course at the Currier Business University, was arrested Friday by Detective King on the charge of forgery. Early in the week an order was presented at Slipp & Fawcett's authorizing the payment of $40 to bearer. The amount was due Mr. Kane, who had sold sheep to the firm and the order was promptly paid. Thursday Mr. Kane appeared to collect the money and when shown the order pronounced it a forgery. Detective King and Sgt. Hastings arrested McCutcheon. The prisoner admitted to Chief Clark and other officers that he was the person who a couple months ago obtained a gold watch, the steamer May Queen, and of which Harry Nelson, the North End barber, was accused, tried and acquitted. A search of the records in the city showed that McCutcheon, residing on Mecklenburg street, resorted in the finding $40 in a sack in the bottom of a trunk and, in a wooden mit, $80. There was found on the watch a gold watch, recently purchased from Sharpe, the King street jeweller, for $20, and a gold ring. The prisoner's excuse was that he was hired up. He was taken before the police magistrate and remanded.

TOWED TO PORT.

Tin Plate President's Pleasure Yacht Disabled; Picked Up.

Steamer Sahara, which arrived on Saturday from Greenock, had in tow a rich prize—the pleasure yacht Aileen, owned by President Leeds of the United States Tin Plate Trust. The yacht was picked up last Thursday 30 miles east of Cape Sable and was in tow of the Sahara until St. John was reached.

When picked up the yacht was crippled owing to her engine being disabled and was in a dangerous position. Captain Beran signalled for assistance and when the Sahara bore down he asked to be towed to Halifax. Capt. Beran and the steamer did not care to deviate his course and made an arrangement to tow the Aileen to St. John. The yacht was towed until it was reached, but the yacht was brought here without further mishap. Heavy repairs were effected to the yacht and she sailed again yesterday afternoon.

The Aileen was bound from Halifax to New York when she met with an accident. She was towed to St. John by the Steamer Sahara, which was a personal friend of the late president, and left the Aileen at Halifax in order to go to Buffalo.

It is said that the Sahara will get two thousand pounds under the arrangement for towing the yacht.

The Sahara, which is commanded by Capt. Caye, a skipper of long experience, will load here for South Africa.

A 10,000 MILE ROW.

Much-Travelled Virginians Arrived Here Friday in 18-foot Skiff.

Two adventurous young Virginians who are making a 10,000 mile cruise in an 18 foot skiff, rowed into port Friday. Alvan D. James and Burton B. Nolan, the latter being a member of the New York Yacht Club, are making the trip in the interests of Field and Stream, a New York publication. This paper provides the expense of the trip, but otherwise the Virginians are making the trip on their own. They commenced their trip on May 29 and rowed, for the conditions do not permit the use of a sail, 2,100 miles since that time.

The start was made from Irvington, Va., and the course taken was the Virginia coast up to Delaware and thence by an inside channel to New York. From New York, James and Nolan proceeded up the Hudson, across Lakes George and Champlain to the St. Lawrence, where temporary disaster to the skiff caused a delay of a week or more. From the St. Lawrence, James and his comrade rowed here by the way of the Northumberland Strait to the western coast, then coming to St. John.

The skiff used is 18 feet long, 3 1/2 feet wide, weighs 120 pounds and is constructed of white cedar five-sixteenths of an inch thick. Although they have encountered some rough weather and experienced considerable hardship, the Virginians consider they have been fortunate so far on their trip. Besides stores, they carry a tent for the purpose of camping on beaches, which they usually do at nightfall. They are expected to reach St. John in about 15 minutes. She is on a highway, it was 8 o'clock when the schooner started, 1 1/2 m. 10th inst., last jibboom, foremast and headgear, also sustained damage to stem, causing leak; will be detached about a week from this date.

The Eliza Bell is 50 tons register and is owned by the Beaver Harbor Trading Company and Captain Edgar Washin, who commanded the craft. The cargo was consigned to John Seely and W. Frank Halliday, it was 8 o'clock when the schooner started, just as she was to enter the west channel to the harbor.

SCHOONER A WRECK.

The Eliza Bell Hit Partridge Island in the Fog Saturday Night.

Schooner Eliza Bell, bound from Beaver Harbor to St. John, with a cargo of fish, ran ashore Saturday night on the southern-west corner of Partridge island, and will be practically a total loss. The vessel struck almost under the fog whistle during the night.

The crew landed on Partridge Island where they remained yesterday. An examination Sunday afternoon showed the schooner to be a total loss. The bottom of the schooner badly damaged. Dried fish and sardines constituted the cargo, a good portion of which was saved. The schooner was in a scow which was taken down by a tug.

PASTOR'S FAREWELL.

Rev. P. J. Stackhouse Leaving Baptist Tabernacle--His Successor.

A congregation, which utilized every seat in the building, assembled at Haymarket square Tabernacle church Sunday evening to hear the farewell sermon of its retiring pastor, Rev. P. J. Stackhouse, who spoke from 2nd Corinthians, 3rd chapter 18 verse: "But we are with open faces beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, and are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord." At its conclusion the pastor would the Rev. H. H. Roach, of Annapolis, who would arrive in the city this week and meet the church officials next Friday evening.

The congregation assured the congregation that they were fortunate in securing as their pastor such a clever speaker and consecrated man of God as Mr. Roach, with whom he had been a classmate at college.

Mr. Stackhouse will be leaving the city early next week for theological study at Chicago University.

Union Church Dedicated.

Brooks, Me., Sept. 13.—The new union church was dedicated today, the sermon being preached by Rev. Geo. S. Mills, of Belfast.

HARVESTERS WERE NOT TREATED WELL BY FARMERS OF MANITOBA.

Were Beaten Down in Wages, Farmers Taking Advantage of Faulty Distribution of the Workers.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—(Special)—The farmers of Manitoba have been very short-sighted in their treatment of Ontario men, who have gone west to assist them in saving the harvest, remarked George H. Bradbury to a Journal reporter today. Mr. Bradbury was one of the men who went out to Manitoba, who came east in July to engage men for harvesting operations, and went west with harvesters, returning again to Ottawa yesterday.

"There is no denying the fact," continued Mr. Bradbury, "that these men were not properly treated. In the first place the C. P. and provincial government are both to blame for not attending to the proper distribution of the men, although later the government remedied this mistake as best it could. This, however, was not done in time to save the harvesters from being beaten down in wages by the farmers. The farmers took advantage of the faulty distribution, and secured men for $30 and $35 a month, instead of $40 as they are first expected to pay. All men who went out to Manitoba in getting employment, although some of them had to wait a while for it. Five hundred men could still obtain work. At least there were two thousand men because of shortage of help and in other districts there is need of more help."

Mr. Bradbury added that there was dissatisfaction in Winnipeg over the arrangements as outlined by Major Maude for the entertainment of the Duke and Duchess of York during their coming visit. The citizens have been refused permission to hold a procession and only a limited few are to be allowed to present themselves at the presentation of addresses at the city halls. The people of Winnipeg think they are not being fairly treated.

IN THE COURTS.

Proceeding Before Judge Gregory in Matters Connected With Morrison vs. St. John Railway Co.

The circuit court opened Monday morning at 10 o'clock to proceed with the case of Morrison vs. the St. John Street Railway Company. Dr. Stockton announced that it was his painful duty to inform the court that since the last sitting his client, Dr. Morrison, had died. Under these circumstances he felt that it was impossible to proceed further, and he asked that the proceedings in this case be considered at an end and the jury discharged.

His Honor Judge Gregory, in discharging the jury, said that it was a very sad and tragic conclusion to a very serious matter. He did not want to say that the death was the result of the accident in question. All must feel impressed with a sudden sense of sadness, and discharged from further duty.

The judge then referred to the contempt cases against Frederick Morrison and James Crawford which were to have come on Tuesday.

Dr. Pugsley said that Mr. Morrison could hardly be expected to attend under the circumstances. As to the case against Mr. Crawford the Railway Company were prepared to go on with it, but he would rather not appear on Monday, however, he would come if required to do so, but would rather have the investigation postponed.

James Crawford, who was in court, stated that he wished the case against him to be proceeded with. His attorney had been enriched, and he wanted an opportunity to clear himself. He had no counsel.

His Honor agreed with the opinion of the counsel. He thought the cases had better be postponed. In fact he had thought that if the accused could not be dropped altogether. However, he would adjourn these cases until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AROUND THE TOWN.

The social stricker for the observance of great etiquette I have heard of for some time, is a Brookfield lady who has lately lost her husband. Our readers had occasion to mail some letters at the local post office and was horrified to observe that the postmistress placed red stamps on the black bordered envelopes in which the lady's letters were being posted. She called the postmistress at once to account with the remark: "Don't you know I am in deep mourning for my dear husband. In future you must put black postage stamps on all my letters." And the courteous official smiled at the newest thing in mourning effects.

Newspaper men, as a rule, see and hear many things, and when convenient can place their eyes and noses even when the law is violated. A few Sundays ago I was strolling along the streets accompanied by a prominent King street merchant, when there suddenly emerged from the door of a house in the residential portion of the city a well-known lady. The lady is very prominent in religious work about the city and is noted for her extreme piety and upright and a faithful follower of the Lord's Day Alliance. Her husband is also a strong supporter of the alliance and sometimes employs his pen in urging the enforcement of the Sunday law. To return to the lady. Both of us instantly observed that she carried a porcelain pitcher in her hand, and when she was asked the question, it was decided that her mission was the Sunday purchase of milk for family use. The pitcher was corrected as she disappeared into a little shop and reappeared with her pitcher filled with the local fluid. What Chatterer would like to know is the difference in the morality of purchasing milk and soda water on Sunday.

This is about a railway conductor who knows a thing or two and says so once in a while, but will probably be dumb on the yachting question for a time. He is a city manufacturer and some friends he was enjoying a trip up river and occupied a commanding position in the stern of the yacht and from it he commanded and directed his knowledge of yachting. The knowledge was later waded as well as kicked man into the deep. A line was thrown him by the manufacturer and as he towed the railway man along to safety he did not forget to say that yachting knowledge which did not enhance familiarity with the means of keeping on board wasn't the best kind after all.

She was a little golden haired-fairy of probably five years with soft creamy skin and soft brown eyes, with a work of white floss in their liquid depths, and a shadow of sadness unusual to babyhood. On the neat little coat was fastened a tag informing all concerned that the little one was bound for Centre River, Illinois, U. S. A. When the train drew in at the Union depot from which she had journeyed, took it upon herself to recompose.

She displayed the deepest interest in her surroundings and her mother's attention to a party of newspaper men and took them into her confidence regarding her journey, her relatives and her friends. Her face lit up with the unknown hand towards which she was bound. Her smiles and her favors were impartially distributed and she was the center of collective to the interesting traveler. It was a merry party, too, but in the midst of it the little one started forward with dilated eyes and the shadow of trouble in the brown eyes was intensified.

"Oh! Oh!" she faltered with a little shudder, and a look on the big hand which held her own. "It's the box, the big, ugly black box. They put my mamma in a box, as big—" and the little one looked around in search of a comparison—"as big as anything." A coffin had just been lifted from the baggage car, and one glance had explained the cause of the little girl's outburst of grief.

But childish tears and smiles are never far apart and a moment later a peal of laughter rose high and clear above the din of the train—and the little girl boarded all the train and waved an adieu to her admirers outside, her eyes wandered to the long black object surrounded by a little group of mourners, and her pathetic enquiry was: "Do you 'spose anybody's mamma's in that box?"

Into those lives, where more of the gloom than the sunshine has entered, and whose days are overshadowed by affliction and who are denied the priceless blessing which we are prone to consider as our common enjoyment, a few words of hearty encouragement, an expression of tender sympathy, or the contribution of material assistance—all of which it is within our power to furnish—are welcomed by the recipient with an appreciation and relish which it is impossible, perhaps, for us to understand.

In the civilization of today, when each of us is so actuated with the ambition of personal enrichment or advancement, and when our thoughts are held by all matters which pertain to our individual advantage or profit, it is with an honest pleasure and a sense of renewed faith in the goodness of human nature that one becomes witness to examples of charity—becomes witness to those who pose as models of that virtue, but direct from the rough heart of the masses.

We have upon our streets and appearing to our generosity for their existence a few aged men, who, through force of circumstances have become practically helpless and in many instances, the practical heeding of a responsive and humane heart. It is not in the extent of the amount which is given, for the coin is more often the cheerless and unquestioned readiness of the giver that makes the act especially meritorious.

The trout fishing season is drawing to a close and all who have, during the past summer, enjoyed the excitement attendant upon a battle with "a half pounder" regret the fact that with the departure of trout time comes the season for shooting and the sports who, during the last few months, spent their good money on fly, casting rods, gut hooks and smokes powder, etc. Then they'll go into the marshes and sloop around, get wet, contract rheumatism, lose time, burn pot, get mad, swear, finally buy some game from a farmer's boy, return home in triumph, and then—oh well, then they will do just like the rest of the world and what a lot of fun is to be found in blowing the tail feathers out of a money duck with about 40 cents worth of shot.

"Two into one won't go" is a well known principle of arithmetic, the truth of which is not generally questioned, but "two into one did go" at the Opera House last Monday night. It was the opening night of Gorton's minstrels. Chatterer was there with another lady friend and just ahead was the "two into one." The "two" in this case comprised a prosperous looking man and a boy apparently about 10 years old. The "one" was a reserved ticket. This gentleman, who was evidently of an economical turn of mind, bought one ticket and lugged the youngster past the doorkeeper with a knowing wink. The doorkeeper was so much astonished at the remarkable display of nerve that he thought to check the man, who by this time had ambled joyfully into one of the best seats in the house, and with the kid on his knee, settled down to enjoy the show. The face of some people is enough to give an ordinary person not possessing that quality a complicated attack of "bats in their bellies" or softening of the brain. But perhaps that's the proper caper after all and perhaps the Opera House people are only in business for their health.

CHATTERER.

PEOPLE WE KNOW.

Charles Dickens in his Christmas Tale has presented the world with an inimitable presentation of the hardened man of business whose temple is the counting house, and whose god is the mammon of wealth. Mr. Scrooge lives in our memories as the living picture of one who has forgotten his childhood days and the general impulses of the times when only the noble thoughts found refuge in our minds. As Tennyson nobly expresses it, "Heaven lies around us in our infancy" and the chief aim of man seems to be to get as far away as possible from this infantile type—it is necessary to follow the auction sales of furniture at the various residences. From April last to June he is a very busy woman. Almost every day has its auction sale, and sometimes two or three in the same day. Her face is as familiar to the auctioneer as is the regular church attendant's to the minister. I can imagine the auctioneer regarding one specimen of the type as a mascot and another as a hoodlum. I can imagine him even stopping a sale until a regular attendant was in evidence. I had an attention to my own house one spring and was quite amused at one of these regular auction attendants. She was a friend of mine and could have purchased anything in the house she desired at pretty much her own figure, but her professional tendencies forbade. She preferred the joy and confusion of the busy-burly, the showing, posting and good natured banter, the excitement, bidding before the "going, going, gone," made her the happy possessor of some household treasure, and she could not forego it on that occasion. Among the things she bought was a sofa which I had bought second-hand some ten years before for $10. A household of racketeers years had made it their playground, while in my possession, and the lady in question knew that fact as well as I did. But in the bidding on the sofa, she grew interested, became entangled and finally started to bid. She became the happy possessor for $9.50, after a spirited struggle. And I smiled as I thought of the peculiarities of mortal women.

RHEUMATISM IN PIGS.

How to Combat This Dangerous Disease in Young Animals.

This is a very common disease among pigs, especially young ones, it is impossible to say what causes rheumatism in the pig, as it is found under all conditions, where they are well kept, or where they are in a state of neglect. There is lameness in one or more legs, which is more or less noticeable according to the severity of the case. The joints often swell at the attack. When the muscles are affected it may assume the form of inflammatory rheumatism and will cause an elevation of temperature and sickness. In such case the animal will be very stiff and refuse its food, its breathing will be fast and short, and its snout dry, and if the animal is made to move, it may squeal with pain. When the legs are the parts affected, it may shift from one leg to another, but the joints will likely remain stationary until relieved. Treatment: Keep the animal in a comfortable place, and give Epsom salts, one to two ounces, or two to three drops of Croton oil in a spoonful of sweet oil, or it may be dropped in the mouth. Croton oil seems to be a useful medicine in rheumatism. Follow this by giving from five to ten drops of oil of gaultheria to the adult pig three times a day in a little sweet oil. For pigs two or three months old give half this quantity. I have given iodine and the bicarbonate of potassium in ten-grain doses two or three times suits; but I have excellent results against the disease with good results giving the oil of gaultheria. Rub the sore, swollen joints with equal parts of oil of turpentine and sweet oil. In casting urine, be mistaken for rheumatism, after giving the physic, give from three to five drops of the tincture of acetic acid two hours for the first two days, then give the oil of gaultheria as directed. Young and old pigs are liable to sprains of the ligament at the top of the hoof and fetlock joint, which may be mistaken for rheumatism, as the symptoms resemble it; but as the treatment for rheumatism of the joints will answer the purpose for sprains, it will be a week as to what great shots they are and what a lot of fun is to be found in blowing the tail feathers out of a money duck with about 40 cents worth of shot.

CHEAP BREEDING SIRS.

Stock Cannot Be Improved With Low Quality Animals.

Many a man has thought he would like to improve his live stock, but he didn't want to pay much more than best prices for a bull or pork prices for a boar or scrub pigs for the service of a good stallion. The National Stockman. Thus he drifted along in the old way and raised stock that cost him every year or two years the sum he considered extravagant for breeding animals. There are of course limits beyond which the man who buys a sire for the purpose of improving grade or common herds and flocks should not go. But it is not necessary for him to go beyond reasonable price limits for this purpose. He can get the improving sire well as actual value nine times out of ten if he is willing to put up the money. On the other hand, there are limits below which no man can afford to buy stock for the purpose of improvement. The extremely cheap pure bred sire is the costly one nine times out of ten. It is costly to the buyer, he is costly to the seller and indirectly costly to all other sellers of pure bred stock. This live stock of this country would average much higher in quality if there were fewer men who wanted low priced breeding animals and fewer breeders who would sell the kind that is worth only a low price. Better for the buyer to pay a fair value for the better kind and better for the breeder if he sells only the kind that is worth a fair price.

BRIDGE OVER FARM BROOK.

adders badly soiled, with consequent trouble at milking time. It hardly pays to build a regular modern bridge, however, it costs too much and is not durable enough, especially under such conditions as usually exist in pasture streams. Rather should the simple affair be resorted to shown in the illustration. Stumps are set at an angle against each other, thus bracing one another perfectly, and over these are laid rough logs, the remaining spaces being filled in with dirt. Grass will soon grow over all, and keep the soil from washing, and this will add to the strength of the bridge. Such a bridge can be built strong enough to drive over with heavy loads.

Sorting Apples Pays.

A Fact Which Intelligent Fruit Growers Should Bear in Mind.

Market peculiarities have to be met and their demands satisfied. The man that sells apples should always sort them for the different sizes if sorted, than if sold together. No one does buyers want a uniform lot of big apples in the same lot. Buyers are governed by different motives in their purchases. Some want large apples for the children more satisfaction. The purchasers of these apples prefer them even at the same price they might have paid for the large ones. Another very large class of people purchase small apples. They are the keepers of boarding-houses and hotels, and the purchases of these people are very large in quantity. The boarding-house keeper knows that, as a general thing, each guest will eat only one apple, whether large or small, and as a matter of economy the small fruit is purchased. These things show the necessity of sorting all fruit like apples.

Live Tree Fences.

The best post for a wire fence at a corner of a field or on a bluff or in a hollow is a live tree, says Alva Agee. Fifteen years ago I set out a few trees here and there along rough land, and since then some more have been set, and this is much cheaper and better than trying to get a solid row of posts. It is a good idea to set a live tree in a depression crossed by a wire fence, as it is surer than an anchored post. I should not want a great number of trees, but the extra expense is worth the extra amount of shade, but it is a good idea to set them wherever one sees that they will serve a good purpose. The extra expense is worth it because the trees can be used in a very few years if the wire is stapled to a stake that is tied to the tree. By this swing a man dressed a 300-pound hog alone.

Of course the fire boils the water. By this swing a man dressed a 300-pound hog alone.

Care in Dressing Poultry.

Poorly dressed poultry is not wanted on the markets of any city. It will, indeed, sell—always sell, and it brings no profit. There are in the cities two classes of buyers—the buyers of first-class goods and the buyers of the poor and cheap. The latter class is the one that takes the poultry of this poor stock make a business of it. They stand around waiting till the commission man arrives to get rid of the poor stuff they always get concessions. Our readers can see that the profits in this kind of business are small. Such birds should be eaten at home or disposed of locally.

Get Rid of Oxyde Daisies.

Sheep are very fond of the oxyde daisies either as pasture or to eat and will eat them so closely as to kill them out. In some parts of England they sow the seed of them to make a sheep pasture. Those who have sheep, where they prevail might do well to pasture them with sheep one or two seasons, then plow up and sow the seed of better grass. We have eradicated them by two seasons of liberal mowing, keeping the land in hoed crops and then reseeding, but they would come in again as soon as the land became poor again.

LIFE OF PRESIDENT MCKINLEY.

His Rise in the World an Interesting Story—Home Life Has Always Been Beautiful.

William McKinley was born January 29, 1823, at the little village of Niles, Trumbull county, Ohio...

A great exploit was that which he performed at the battle of Kesternburg, near Winchester, July 24, 1864...

As he returned to the side of Hayes, the latter said: "Lieutenant, I feared I would never see you alive again."

On July 25 following he was promoted to be captain. On June 26, 1865, he was mustered out with his regiment...

He at once began the study of the law, first in the office of Glidden & Wilson, at Youngstown, Ohio...

Hamilton, Bermuda, Sept. 14.—The British transport Montrose landed on Tucker's Island today 932 Boers and 37 Cape rebel convicts...

London, Sept. 13.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Times says there are indications that the government is not sanguine of a speedy end of the Boer war...

The wearing out process is still going on in South Africa, and no radical change of plan is expected -- Cape Parliament will assemble Nov. 20.

BOERS PLANNING TO INVADE NATAL AT EARLY DATE

Indications Are That Cape Colony Government is Not Sanguine of Early End.

We asked the Colonel how it was that he had left the army so young, considering that he had himself chosen a military career...

THE TELEGRAPH'S CONTINENTAL LETTER.

Militarism in Germany—Empress Frederick's Will—Religious War in Austria—The Balkan Volcano—Morocco Question—Maltese Question.

Jena in Thuringia, Sept. 1—Lieber M.—The amusing feature of the past week is the arrival of Prince Chun at Jena on the occasion of his reception. The prince made a halt at the latter town as the papers said on account of illness, but really because the arrangements for his reception, which he liked, he forgot the nature of his mission and assumed that he should be received with a banquet and a reception, or any military honors tendered him. The whole affair is a farce as the Chinese are insincere about the mission. The prince will probably arrive in Berlin when it suits him and deliver his message and probably the emperor will make a short, pithy and pointed reply and then Prince Chun will be turned loose as an ordinary tourist and the fiasco will be at an end with China having all the advantages.

Dr. Germaut, of Paris, offered himself to Prof. Koch as a subject upon which to test his theory as to bovine tuberculosis not being communicable to human beings. Koch has refused the offer and says he does not expect to prove the theory by actual inoculation, but by nourishing a subject for several months on tuberculosis milk. The general impression is abroad that Koch has been engaged on his experiments on human beings for months, but dare not give publicity to the details. He is rumored that certain persons offered themselves to Koch a year ago, and that they have been fed on tuberculosis milk and at the same time the dejects and everything examined to prove without doubt the presence of the bacillus of bovine tuberculosis. These persons are reported to show not the slightest symptoms of tuberculosis. They give the matter a double value. It is a very likely thing for Koch to do, but if you were to write Prof. Germaut, who is at present absent from Jena, he would probably inform you what Koch has done and what he proposes to do.

Workmen in laying out a new cemetery at Nauthem, Hesse, have discovered Roman remains. The general opinion is that the Romans had a colony there and had established baths at Nauthem. The pillars, walls, etc., which remain, found indicate that they are Roman and probably date from an unusually early period. A systematic investigation will be made.

The Dutch have been celebrating the birthday of their queen. Among the honours was the appointment of the Dutch consuls-general at Cape Town and Pretoria as Knights of the Netherlands Lion, and the consul at Durban as Knight of Orange Nassau.

Royal visitors are collecting at Fredericksburg, Virginia, the Dowager Empress of Russia, Prince and Princess Waldemar and Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, are there. The king of the Danubian royal family will be at the castle. A royal marriage may be arranged and announced as a result of this gathering. The Danish Liberal party are delighted at the prospect of a Liberal prime minister. They will celebrate the occasion by a gathering of Liberals from all over the country at Copenhagen.

Italy. There has been erected near the birthplace of Pope Leo XIII. on the summit of Monte Capreo, a gigantic cross, 60 feet high. This was unveiled last week in the presence of Monsignor Torricelli and clergy and the Pope's family, and a large number of worshippers.

The Dalmatian residents of Rome are being greatly incensed at the pope's action in founding a Croatian College in Rome and last Thursday the Dalmatians stormed the building and drove out the Croats. Great excitement prevails in Malta over the threatened order in council of Hon. J. Chamberlain. The police force has been strengthened in case of any disturbance. The relations between the Maltese and English are not very amicable. The Gazette of Malta, the organ of the elected members of the council, is very defiant. The assembly of Maltese nobility have elected Baron North that they support the present members of the council in reference to the language and taxation questions. The chamber of commerce is expected to protest against the taxation scheme.

Peninsula. Two Spanish subjects have been detained by the Moors and the government have demanded their immediate release. The Sultan of Morocco has not been successful in locating Spaniards. A cruiser has been sent to Tangier to make a demonstration in support of the diplomatic note regarding the captures. The papers of Spain are busy discussing alliances. Patria, which is the organ of the army, says that Spain's policy with a point which exercises maritime supremacy. Therefore it must be Britain, as the French fleet cannot prevent the bombardment of Spanish ports. The British are generally opposed to an alliance with France. The democratic organ, Herald, urges a good advantageous alliance with Britain. A special ambassador is soon to arrive from St. Petersburg to pay homage to the queen regent. The announcement is causing considerable talk in diplomatic and political circles. The Russian protests violently against Spain entering the dual alliance, on the ground that such a step would be quite foreign to her interests.

King Charles of Portugal will attend the naval manoeuvres of the Channel and Mediterranean squadrons, which will take place about Cape St. Vincent. There is the best of feeling between Portugal and Britain.

Austria-Hungary. The following story comes from Vienna: Last year a millionaire, Julius Kristussek, an Austrian, residing at Buenos Ayres, married a penniless governess named Paula Brucha, of Prague, and took her to South America. The ungrateful wife soon planned his death with the help of her lover, a young physician in Buenos Ayres. She, however, previously had persuaded her husband to make his will, which was drawn up by her own father, who was a lawyer. The husband was immediately kidnapped on his arrival last February and placed in a lunatic asylum. The major, although quite sane, is still confined in a madhouse. The Austrian government are now taking the matter up and sensational developments may be expected.

The Austrian Clericals are seriously alarmed at the steady progress of the "emancipation from Rome movement" and they have every reason, for, from all parts of Austria, come reports of the efforts to destroy the political supremacy of the Ultramontane. Two great political meetings were held last Sunday at Leitmeritz and Prosnitz by the Clericals and two counter demonstrations at the same places, where the Protestants were in the majority. The Clericals described their opponents as infidels who deny the deity of Christ, and some time ago they were apostles of free thought, free love, lawlessness and high treason. Bishop Schochleiter urged his hearers to boycott them, to have no commerce or political life; and Prof. Probst said that Protestants were revolutionists who, if they secured political freedom, would introduce anarchy for law and order. At the counter demonstration at Leitmeritz, Dr. Eisenkolb described the Clericals as traitors to every monarch, and urged the Protestants to re-establish the institution and all the other evils of the Ultramontane rule. Dr. Eisenkolb was proceeding to denounce the temporal power of the pope when the police interfered on account of the speaker's attack on the established State religion. The Russian troops are in the east and accused the Russian government of bad faith towards Austria-Hungary. Statue of General Wolfe at Quebec. Handsome One Replaces That Which Was Removed Four Years Ago. Quebec, Sept. 13—(Special)—The handsome new statue of General Wolfe was today placed in a niche in the building on the corner of Palace and John streets, known as "General's Headquarters." The statue replaces one which occupied the same place from 1771 up to about four years ago, and was then removed for some unknown reason. Lieut. Governor Jette presided at the ceremony, which was witnessed at the anniversary of the death of the brave general, whose memory the statue perpetuates.

CIVIC COMMITTEE ABANDONS THE IDEA OF A PROCESSION

Then Proceeds to Allot Money for Other Features of Celebration of Royal Visit--The Design for an Arch Accepted.

The citizens' committee in charge of the arrangements for the royal reception had a meeting Saturday afternoon. One result was the abandonment of the intention to have a procession. A design for an arch on King street was approved and progress made in the matter of decoration arrangements. Mayor Daniel presided and there were present Hon. R. J. Ritchie, Alex. Macaulay, Ald. Baxter, Seaton and Christie, R. O'Brien, Alex. Rowan, Henry Hilliard, A. O. Skinner, A. J. Charlton and Director Cushing.

The latter reported that no tenders for arches had been received. Ald. Seaton submitted the reports of the committee on a procession. The H. M. S. and North End Polymorphians would parade and collect $200 each. The question of funds was discussed and members felt that there was not enough to make these grants.

Ald. Seaton held that the $1,000 taken back from the firm was available but the minutes showed that this $1,000 included for decorating engine houses, apparatus, bands, torches and fireworks. Ald. Seaton said his impression was that the engine house decorations were not included.

It was moved that inasmuch as the committee has not received a sufficient number of light processions as proposed by the societies wishing to take part that the committee decide it can not make the grant asked for by the H. M. S. and North End Polymorphians.

After further discussion it was finally decided to pass a resolution that it was deemed undesirable to hold a procession under existing circumstances, and this was done on motion of Mr. Rowan seconded by R. O'Brien.

A. J. Charlton then submitted a model of an arch he designed to be placed at the crossing of King and Germaln streets. It represents a very pretty double arch, the apex 38 feet from the ground. Above the point of intersection of the arches it is proposed to have a globe 20 feet in diameter and on this to be shown the map of the world with the British possessions shown by illumination. The arch is proposed to be of wood materialized. The arch will bear mottoes, probably shown by colored incandescent lamps. Flags will be used in decorating and at the pillars which rise at the four corners.

The members were much taken with the design and Director Cushing's idea was that the arch could be had for a sum within the appropriation of $700. It would be made in sections and these taken to the site and fixed together. The arch would be illuminated with incandescent lamps.

The committee voted $750 and the municipal finance committee is going to meet to consider decoration houses. Amounts were set for the water and sewerage bill the director will decorate; for toll houses and Rodney what amount. It is proposed to have a steamship illuminated with incandescent lamps and Ald. Colwell and Baxter were appointed to deal with the programme.

Ald. Baxter will also see to the firmen in regard to decoration houses in Carlton and in other matters.
