Bond Punishes Fishermen; Smashes Modus Vivendi

Newfoundlanders Who Shipped With Yankee Captain Heavily Fined By the Colonial Government.

St. Johns, Nfld., Nov. 17.—Two colonial fishermen, Dubois and Crane, who shipped aboard the American herring vessel Ralph Hall, Nov. 8, outside the three-mile limit, were tried yesterday before a magistrate at Bay Islands. The men were charged with having on Nov. 12 in violation of the bait act put herring on board the Ralph Hall They were convicted, and fined $500 each, with an alternate of serving three months in prison. Counsel for Dubois and Crane gave bond for the men, and an appeal will be taken to the supreme court, before which the case will be argued next month.

When the colonial cruiser Flona went to the fishing banks to serve the summons on the accused fishermen, the United States naval tug Potomac followed. Fearing trouble, the captain of the Potomac advised the captain of the schooner not to resist, and to facilitate the proceedings, thereby preventing friction and delay, and hampering the fishing industry.

The colonial government expects this prosecution will result in stopping the Newfoundlanders shipping on board American vessels, and will, therefore,

'Mr. Scott is just as anxious to celed as Mr. Studholme is, and is more able to get it done."

Hon. Mr. Hendrie, the member for West Hamilton, claims that he fought the prison labor contract, but his colleagues were against him. The attitude of Mr. Hendrie and Mr. Scott makes it impossible for a member of the Whitney Government to speak in East Hamilton without self-repudiation. The administration is placed in a humiliating positon, and the contest is almost without precedent in the political annals of the Province.

A HEN CONTEST. A competition which is causing much among farmers is in progress in England at the present time. It is a contest to prove under which of two sets of conditions a hen will do her best in the production of eggs. SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

Another deplorable ring fatality occurred Thursday night, when Mike Ward, the well-known and popular Sarnia boxer, took the last long count after nine furious rounds of fighting with Harry Lewis, the New York lightweight, at Detroit. The unfortunate occurrence at once gives rise to that much-mooted question of what constitutes gameness in an athlete, and just where the line should be drawn and a bout stopped by a ring referee. It is nothing short of criminal for a referee to permit a boxer to continue after he has become practically helpless and unable to defend himself against the onslaught of an opponent. It is high time that there was a law put into effect, making a referee liable for the death of a contestant when the official permits a bout to continue after one of the contestants is unable to defend himself properly. Almost without exception, every fatality in the history of the prize ring was caused by the referee's negligence in allowing the fecting bookmakers compelled all betcontest to go on after it had become a one-sided, brutal, and dangerous slugging affair. Among the instances can be called to mind that of Dutch Neal, who died in Chicago several years ago, after receiving a severe beat-count of 10, although apparently conscious, and informed the public that the man was a "quitter." Shortly after the affair the defeated boxer collapsed, and was never revived. Harry Tenney, the California bantamweight who died as a result of a severe beating and a subsequent knockout at the hands of maiden 2-year-olds, Regal Lad winning Frankie Neil former bantamweight channion furnished another instance of the criminal negligence of ring referees in general. Tenney was practically a beaten man after the twelfth round and wanted to quit, his face being horribly beaten up, and several ribs fractured, but his seconds, who had bet money on the result, kept him in the contest until he received a blow over the eye which caused a blood clot to form on the brain, causing his death a few hours later. The wonder is that there are not more fatalties of the same kind. Certainly it is not the fault of the referees that there are not more deaths in the ring. One notable instance where a fatality semed imminent, but failed to materialize, owing to the brute stamina of the contestant, 5, Adelinette 4 to 5, Woolwich 9 to 5. was that of the Gans-Sieger bout pulled off in Baltimore some years ago. Sieger never landed one clean blow on the negro, and received a terrible beating for 15 rounds. When the match was arranged it was , well-known fact that Gans could have whipped two like Sieger, but as a few alleged sports of the oyster town had bet that Sieger could stay the limit with the champion, and as the bout promised to draw a good house on account of the general knowledge of Sieger's gameness and Gans' punishing abilities it was allowed to go through. Sieger was allowed to stagger helplessly around the ring for the last 8 rounds, and had a close call for his life. In the Ward-Lewis affair, the former was knocked down three times in the ninth round, the last time taking the count of 9. Then he staggered, dazed and weak, to his feet, to meet the onslaught of his comparatively fresh opponent, and received the Former's Last Protest Likely First Time in History of Town blow which sent him into eternity. If there must be boxing contests, let there be laws making the referee liable when a contestant dies after the official has allowed the bout to continue beyond the bounds of reason-and humanity.

Today's Rugby contest at Hamilton will draw the largest crowd that has witnessed a football struggle during the past season. The probable winner? Guess!

Toronto Telegram: Chaucer Elliott stated this morning that Hamilton would win. He never felt so confident as today, and he was not speaking because it was a duty he owed to the team he was coaching, but from conviction which he was backing with money. Chaucer thinks his team has the offensive tactics of the Quebec champions, and is confident that Montreal will not be able to stop his men. In addition to the Tiger-Montreal game at Blufftown, the Cubs will clash with the Argos II. in the first of the finals for the O. R. F. U. intermediate cate of undergraduate standing. championship, by way of a curtain-raiser for the big match.

To all appearances, the sporting scribes of Hamilton are very much in the dark as to the probable winner of the great struggle for the Dominion championship. Pipe this excerpt from the dope sheet of the Spectator:

"While both teams are confident of winning, their supporters are none too sanguine, and both sides are looking for odds before they will bet their money. Great advertising stunt that. There are not many as foxy as the Baltimore flyspeck in the ring, and few more crafty out of it. Of course, Billy Nolan is as "straight as a loose string," but Gans has never shown that he was any too overzealous in his efforts to keep on the straight and narrow path himself. He should take his medicine like a little man.

Fruits-The supply of apples was more than sufficient for the slow demand. Prices were steady at 40c to 60c per bushel, by the bag 50c to 75c for handpicked, $1 75 to $2 per barrel.

Vegetables and Roots-Potatoes were epresented by about 35 large loads. Owing to the large quantity which has been offered during the past three veeks, the demand, as a consequence was slow. An idea of the importance of Caradoc as a potato center may be had Canadian Pacific. when it is stated that one firm shipped 55 carloads, which would average 500 bags to the car, or 27,500 bags. As they are now paid 65c per bag, it will not Halifax Electric Railway.. pay to bring them to this city, unless they can obtain 80c per bag. Sales ere made today at 75c to 85c per bag; a few loads sold as low as 70c per bag. otatoes were cheaper today than they are likely to be during the winter. Celery sold quickly at 35c to 40c per lozen. Parsnips were scarce at 50c per oushel. Onions are in fair demand at $1

Poultry-There was a lot offered. Sales as a rule were made at lower prices. Chickens, dressed, sold at 91/2c to 10c per pound; alive, 71/2c to 8c; by the pair, 60c to 90c dressed, or 50c to 70c alive. Ducks were quite numerous. Sales were fairly brisk at 80c to $1 20 ner pair. More sold at $1 per pair than y other price. Turkeys sold at 13c to 14c per pound.

Dressed Hogs-Prices were steady at $8 to $8 50 per cwt; mostly all at the Live Hogs-Prices for Monday will be $5 50 per cwt. Small pigs sold at $5 to $6 50 per pair. Butchers' Meat-Beef sold well at $5

Today we have an average tariff on dutiable goods about 1½ per cent higher than Will Figure in 115 Municipal Camit was when the protective tariff became effective. And yet, with the infants of that period grown to the mammoth concerns of the twentieth century, we find the cry is still for The more there is given, and the less the requirement for giving, the greater are the demands made. If a halt is not at once called we shall find conditions in this country similar to those prevailing in parts of Europe, with a small class of wealthy barons at the top and serfs at the bottom-manufacturers being the barons and farmers the serfs.

That agriculture, with a capital investment four times the investment in manufacturing, should be the first care of our legislators, is self-evident. That the effect of the tariff has been to foster and stimulate manufacturers at the expense of our basic industry, can e easily demonstrated.

LOCAL OPTION VOTES

paigns Next January.

Toronto, Nov. 16 .- On Jan. 7 there will be 109 local option contests in the Province of Ontario, while six municipalities in which the measure had carried will seek to repeal the vote. These latter are the towns of Toronto Junction and Sutton, and the townships of Niagara, McLean, Ridout and Raleigh. The total vote cast in favor of the measure in the six municipalities was 4,525, and opposed to it 1,344, leaving a majority for the measure of 581.

The only city in which the voting on the act will take place is Brantford, with twenty licenses. The towns are Collingwood, with ten licenses; Ailsa Craig, two; Alliston, five; Beeton, three; Bradford, two; Embro, three; Hensall, two; Kemptville, four; Kingsville, three; Listowel, five; Midland, five; Port Elgin, three; Richmond, one; In Manitoba, where agriculture is pre-eminently the industry of the peo-woodbridge, two; Weston, three; Tot-

Chicago, Nov. 16.-Reports became current today in railroad circles that James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern road, who acquired control of the Burlington system several years ago, had decided to merge it absolutely with the Great Northern, and abandon even the name Burlington. It is said that the road will be rechristened At the annual meeting of the City and will be known as a part of the Great Northern system.

The scheme contemplates the merging of Hill's three great roads into one syscific, long under his control, he has acquired absolute control of the Burlington by purchase. That the roads would three systems seems logical.

"About three years ago I was troubled with my hair falling out at an alarming rate.

"A friend of mine induced me to try a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, which I did, and it did me so much good that I have used it ever since. I can gladly say it has made my hair grow very thick and stopped it from falling out. It certainly has no equal and I gladly recommend it."

"Knowing the composition of Herpicide, I can state that it contains nothing injurious. In twenty-five per cent of the cases of baldness, a neglected dandruff can be considered as its immediate exciting cause or associated condition. Your Herpicide will, in the vast majority of cases, cure and prevent the continuation of dandruff. It is an elegant and ideal hair dressing."

GERMAN IMPRESSION OF LORD KITCHENER

FRANCE THE LEADER IN STREET SKETCH BY ONE WHO KNEW HIM IN PEACE AND WAR.

An interesting work entitled "With general use throughout the Middle Lord Kitchener Against the Mahdi." will shortly be published by a Berlin publishing house. The writer, Major Adolf von Tiedemann, who accompanied the Soudan expedition as representative of the Berlin general staff, gives the following impressions, says a Nuremberg correspondent:

"Certainly the most striking figure owner. The light in the latter was the expedition army was the Sirdar, shielded from the wind by thin sheets then Major-General Sir Herbert Kit-

"Usually the expression of his face is little attractive, being dark and reserved. Kitchener's manner towards others seemed dependent on his mood, but generally he was silent and unapproachable. He is an absolute autocrat, and delivers his orders without asking anybody's opinion.

"Lord Kitchener's lack of consideration is well known, and for just that reason, although admired and respected, he is unpopular with other officers. Perhaps the finest of bird dancers is the South American cock o' the rock. These birds have regular dancing places, level spots which they keep clear of sticks and stones.

A dozen or more of the birds assemble around this spot, and then a cock bird, his scarlet crest erect, steps into the center. Spreading his wings and tail, he begins to dance, at first with slow and stately steps, then gradually more and more rapidly until he is spinning like a mad thing. At last, the ring and another takes his place.

The idea that for an ordinary dwelling "one stove is enough" originated in the superior cooking and heating capacity of the Happy Thought Range. Few rural homes find need of a heater where they have this magnificent range. No stove inventor ever embodied so many good ideas all in one stove as did the designer of the Happy Thought. The arrangement of drafts, the construction of the grate, the circulation of hot air around the oven, the corrugated oven-lining, the ability to heat water and keep it hot are points that put the

It can heat the whole dwelling in winter, while in summer the fire can be checked immediately after cooking, thus keeping the house delightfully cool. 130,000 households are now using it both for cooking and heating, and from all reports they would not exchange for any other stove in the world. FOOD AND A TONIC

What the leading Medical Journal of the world has to say about FERROL.

After making a thorough test of FERROL in its own laboratory the London (England) Lancet published an article from which the following is taken:

"This is a successful combination of the wellknown valuable remedies, Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus. The formula is no secret, and our analysis showed the presence and amount of constituents as described. The preparation is a good one and of distinct therapeutic value. The association of an easily assimilable oil, in a fine state of division, with a phosphatic salt of iron which does not disturb the digestive functions and which is easily tolerated, determines its success as a food and tonic in wasting

What the London Lancet recommends as a food and a tonic in all wasting diseases must have very special qualities.

No higher endorsation is possible. The results following the use of FERROL for the past ten years have proved that this endorsation is well deserved.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians. It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in prominent Hospitals, Sanitariums, etc.

It was very discouraging, and as last Pat said, "I've got an idea, but I'll have to spend the five cents to carry it out."

"That's fine," said Mary, when he had told her, so he ran across the street and bought a big sheet of yellow cardboard and cut it in the shape of a pumpkin, and on it he wrote in big black letters:

THERE is a tradition that has come to us across seas and through centuries that the much prized grapefruit of today is none other than the mysterious forbidden fruit that grew in the Garden of Eden. Perhaps it is true. Perhaps, too, its slight bitterness is symbolical of the heritage of suffering that Mother Eve laid upon all succeeding generations when she listened to the voice of the tempter and turned longing eyes upon laid upon all succeeding generations when she listened to the voice of the tempter and turned longing eyes upon the tree of knowledge.

Certain it is that in some Eastern countries the pomela, as it is sometimes called, is still known as the forbidden fruit, yet it would be hard to find a modern housekeeper who would not willingly forgive Eve for her short-comings when this season rolls round and she can add the appetizing dainty to her menu to tempt the jaded palates of those to whom she must cater.

Grapefruit is looked upon in some households as an expensive luxury, but when you consider the heights to which the price of oranges is soaring just now and the scarcity of other fruits, and when you remember that in many markets the grapefruit may be bought three for a quarter, and that half of one is quite enough to put before each person, this notion seems a bit exaggerated. Of course, the primary use for grapefruit is as a first course for breakfast, luncheon or dinner, but it is sometimes used as a dessert for a simple lunch, and its possibilities in the way of salads and sherbets are almost unlimited.

For a simple home breakfast the core is usually removed, the fruit loosened at the sides from the skin and a tiny bit of sugar added to it. It is well to put this sugar on with a skimp hand, for many persons do not care for two much many persons do not care for two much many persons do not care for the mach sweet, and it is always possible to add it afterward.

For a more elaborate breakfast, remove all the seed and white fibrous parts, cut the pulp into pieces and mix with cracked ice. This, of course, is served in the shell of the fruit, and is perfectly permissible for the more ceremonious meals of the day. However, if you want something a little different opportunity is not lacking.

You may take red and white California grapes, cut them in halves, seed them and lay them about the edges of the grape fruit. Or you may take Malaga grapes, seed them and pile them in aga grapes, seed them and pile them in with the sugar and pulp. Maple sugar, used instead of the ordinary powdered sort, gives a peculiarly delicious flavor to the fruit.

Grapefruit glasses are now used very much by people who have wearied of the serving in the fruit shell. The cracked ice is piled in the outer glass, while the fruit and its juice are placed in the inner glass. Sometimes when this method of serving is employed the pulp and sugar are mixed and set aside several hours before they are needed. Salads are becoming more and more a matter of course in this country and Salads are becoming more and more a matter of course in this country, and the average man has a leaning toward those whose component parts are of fruit. One grapefruit salad allows the pulp of half of one to each person. This is served on crisp lettuce leaves and garnished with blanched almonds and about a tablespoonful and a half of mayonnaise dressing.

Another salad is made of the grapefruit and celery in equal parts; still another of grapefruit and pineapple. The question of dressing is very much a matter of individual taste. Many persons think that mayonnaise dressing is entirely out of place in a fruit salad and that a French dressing is the only proper thing. One of the latest ideas is to make your French dressing of lemon instead of vinegar, since the acid of the lemon blends better with the fruit.

Whether sugar should or should not fruit. Whether sugar should or should not

Whether sugar should or should not be used is another matter often discussed. There is a theory that it is out of place with most salads, yet the women who make the best dressing usually confess to adding a little-not enough to let the outsider into the secret, but enough to blend with and soften down the other ingredlents.

If the salad is served from the pantry it is always prettily piled up in half a grapefruit shell, which is set on a plate, one being put in front of each guest. If, however, the salad is put on the table in a large salad bowl and served from there, a garnishing of grapefruit peel makes a pretty and effective addition.

For the people who like sherbets of effective addition.

For the people who like sherbets of every kind, here is one that can be made of grapefruit. Squeeze every bit of juice from the pulp, being careful to allow not one seed nor a bit of white skin to drop into it. Allow half a pound of fruit to the skin to drop into it. of cut sugar to each pound of fruit juice, stir and pour into a freezer.

A drink made from grapefruit, and known as bitter sweet, is made by cutting the fruit into sections, extracting the seed and covering with boiling water, a quart of water to a quart of fruit. When cool, strain and sweeten. This is served in glasses that are one-third full of cracked ice.

little girl, in short frocks and pantalettes, sitting demurely in the chimney-corner, hemming my daily "stent" of cambric rufflingmy mother and two young ladycousins read by turns and aloud, a story in Godey's Lady's Book, called "Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wood-It was written by Miss bridge." Eliza Leslie, noted for the broad satire and wholesome teachings of her domestic tales and as the author of a standard cook book.

WHAT HE HAD TO EAT

The story turned upon the fortunes of a sensible young husband and his pretty, extravagant bride. There were several chapters of it. I recall but one. That described a dinner-party, and the ingenuity with which the pound-foolish, pennywise wife served to the wretched man of the house for a week thereafter the miserable remnants of a repast which had been a failure throughout. Day after day she "fed him upon the poor shadows of a shade," related the author -- a phrase that stuck fast in my memory. It has been revived there times without number by the open murmurs and unspoken yet evident disrelish of men and children for the "leavings" of great occasions. "One broad streak of fat and six narrow streaks of lean!" I once heard a 15-year-old schoolboy growl in the week succeeding Thanksgiving. "Our house has been a regular hashery ever since that one big blow-out. Turkey-rack and turkeystuffing; odds and ends of chicken pie, oyster pie and pumpkin pie; fat ham and rusty lean ham; dabs of cranberry-sauce and apple-sauce and vegetables warmed up until you can't tell potatoes and turnips apart -that's the bill-of-fare with us nowadays. By Jiminy! when I have a house of my own, I'll see to it that every blamed bit that isn't eaten on the first day goes into the garbage pail-instanter!"

We cannot do away with the stubborn fact that the remnants of the holiday feast must be utilized by the prudent housemother. Nor can we deny that the discontented lad had some reason on his side. Leftovers and staleness are synonyms to some minds. There is reason, too, in this prejudice. Divorce of the two ideas is a fine art. To acquire this art is better worth the cook's time and pains than any other part of her profession.

When a hungry collegian called the galantine he nad devoured with gusto "glorified head cheese," and

N THE very long ago-so far a contented husband declared his back in the past that I was a wife's "second-day dinners better than any other woman's first," they paid unconscious tribute to this same domestic art.

The "motif" of this familiar talk with my fellow-students is such transmogrification of the flotsam and jetsam of the abundant Thanksgiving dinner as shade down the festivities gradually and gracefully to the level of everyday living. That "transmogrification" is a long word, but it expresses my meaning as no other can. The character of the left-overs must be changed for the eve and the palate or the art is defective.

Begin we with the first course of the family dinner: Soup may be made, as I shall show presently, of the bones, or, technically speaking. the "rack," of the big turkey. I advise that this be deferred until a late day of the week, when the meat has been stripped off for other purposes. Even bones are more juicy when they are kept covered. A palatable bisque may be compounded of the traditional chickenpie, without which the conventional Thanksgiving dinner would not deserve the name.

MAKING CHICKEN BISQUE

Mince the meat very fine. The hest way to do this is to run it through the meat-chopper. Meanwhile, put the bones over the fire with the gravy, thinned with warm water. The bones must be cracked. Simmer, covered, for two hours. Mince and crush the remnants of pie-crust, and dry them in the oven crumbs, the finer the better. Half an hour before dinner strain the soup from the bones, and set it back on the range, seasoning to taste, and adding a cupful of oyster-liquor. When it boils, put in the minced chicken, cook ten minutes, slowly, stir in the dry crumbs: bring to the boil, add half a cupful of hot milk in which has been melted a tablespoonful of butter rolled in a teaspoonful of cornstarch and

As a "chicken-and-oyster bisque," this will pass muster at any dinner. no matter who the guest may be. If you have not enough pastry, substitute dried breadcrumbs. Judgment is required to apportion ma-terials properly. If there be much meat left, increase the quantities of other ingredients. The cornstarch is added to prevent separation of the ingredients.

Turkey Rack Soup. Break the newly denuded carcass of the turkey into small pieces, and put over the fire with the juice of an onlon, a stalk of celery, cut into inch lengths, and a bay leaf. Cover with two quarts of cold water and cook slowly for three hours. Take from the range, turn into a bowl: cover, and leave it as it is un til the next day. Then skim it, and strain the bones, etc. Season to taste, add the stuffing, which has been rubbed through a colander, and set the soup on the range. Prepare in another saucepar a cupful of hot milk, adding a pinch of soda, and a "roux," made by heating a heaping tablespoonful of flour with one heaping tablespoonful of flour with one of butter, and working to a bubbling paste. When the thickened milk has cooked one minute, stir in a beaten egg, and pour into the soup. Remove at once from the fire and serve.

A tablespoonful of minced parsley added to the liquid on the fire two minutes before the thickened milk goes in is an improvement to this savory family soup.

Turkey Scallops.

Turkey Scallops.

Cut—not mince—cold turkey into small pieces of uniform size, when you have freed it of gristle and skin. Mix with these one-third as much fine bread-crumbs. Season with salt, pepper, and a little onion juice. Moisten with gravy, or stock—or, if you like, oyster liquid. Fill silver or china scallop shells with the mixture, cover with fine cracker crumbs, stick bits of butter on top, arrange in a shallow baking pan, and bake, covered, ten minutes, then brown lightly and quickly.

Set in order on a platter and garnish with parsley or celery tops. with parsley or celery tops.

Potato Souffle.

Scald two cupfuls of milk, adding a Scald two cupfuls of milk, adding a pinch of soda to avoid curdling. Stir into it a heaping tablespoonful of butter. Have ready in a bowl one large cupful of cold mashed potato, and work the hot milk into it gradually until you have a smooth puree. Season with pepper and salt. Beat two eggs very light, and whip them into the puree. Turn into a buttered bakedish, and bake in a quick oven to a light brown. Serve at once, as it soon falls.

Fried Celery.

The refuse stalks of celery may be used here, and those which are slightly withered. Scrape off the skin and rust, and cut into pieces from two to four inches long. Leave in iced water for an hour. Cover, then, with boiling water, and cook ten minutes after the boil begins again. Drain and set in ice until cold and firm. Roll in beaten egg, then in cracker dust, seasoned with pepper and salt. Leave on the ice until you are ready to cook, and fry in deep fat to a delicate brown. delicate brown. Drain and serve upon a dish lined with a hot napkin.

Cabinet Pudding.

Crumble the fragments of the Thanksgiving plum pudding with your fingers until almost as fine as coarse salt. Add to a cupful an equal quantity of cracker dust, and moisten with a cupful of milk. Beat three eggs light, with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, and stir into the mixture. Beat hard for one minute, and bake in a buttered mould or dish. Serve with liquid sauce.

Turkey Salad.

Turkey Salad.

You may prefer to make other use of the cold turkey than to convert it into scallops. Turkey salad is better than chicken, although not so often served, probably because of the expense of the big bird.

Free the meat from strings and skin and cut into dice. Mix two cupfuls of the turkey and one of celery cut into dice. Season with pepper and salt, and with a mixture of three tablespoonful of oil beaten to an emulsion with one tablespoonful of vinegar. With a silver fork toss and stir this into the meat and celery; turn into a chilled salad bowl, and pour a good mayonnaise dressing over it.

Rules of Health. I have hesitated long as to the propriety of admitting to my column letter I am now about to lay before our family. Perusal of it will reveal the cause of my doubts. I should be untruthful, as well as ungrateful, if I failed to confess that words of honest praise and affectionate appreciation, such as come to me with the opening of every mail, stay my heart and animate my courage to attempt yet greater good for those I gladly serve. withhold these precious evidences that I have not spent my strength in vain and labored for naught, partly because they would sometimes lose sweetness if shared with the public, but chiefly because delicacy and taste forbid the publication of complimentary mention of myself. This is a column devoted to serious work, and not to "advertising purposes."

I am so confident of the faith our members have in the sincerity of my motives that I trust them to believe what I now affirm. I print the letter before me because I know the advice the writer quotes to be sound, through and through: because I owe my own marvelous vigor, and, I devoutly believe, my very life, to obedience to the precepts here laid down, and, finally, because I would strengthen the faith of others by the added testimony of an intelligent and responsible advocate of my common-sensible reg-advocate of my common-sensible regimen.

I feel I should tell others what I have enjoyed through the Housemother's Exchange. After my first child was born I feared that I should go insane, so much did I suffer. For months I was afraid to be alone, for fear of doing some great harm to myself and child.

I was away from all my near relatives. As I could not find courage to tell any one of my dread I determined to take Marion Harland's free prescription. Now a mother of three children—my youngest a boy 7 months old—and at the age of 28, I feel younger and look younger than I did when I was 22 and am perfectly well.

The prescription is this:

Breathe fresh air through the nose deep into the lungs, and often.

Drink plenty of fresh water.

Hold yourself erect always.

Take plenty of sleep.

Don't get cross; don't worry.

Keep the body clean.

Read good books.

Don't work too hard if you have to do all your own work. If you have three children you can't do it. Let it go, and don't worry about it. Twenty years from now they will have a mother who is altogether sane, which will be a greater blessing than all the pretty clothes and such things they are deprived of now.

I teach my children to breathe through their noses and to hold their shoulders straight; give them wholesome food and teil them stories which interest them.

KITCHEN RECIPE BOOK

VERY good housekeeper has her special set of recipes which she constantly uses, and the tidy souls of many are tried by the soiled condition of the cover of any book that is kept about the kitchen. Flour will stick, butter will smear, sugar has an annoying habit of making itself felt; and in a little while she is constrained to copy her treastres into a fresh blank book, or else to recover the old one.

Now, if in the beginning she would make a cover for her book of kitchen recipes out of white oilcloth, she would obviate much of her woe. Oilcloth is pliable and it is durable; moreover, it can be wiped off with a damp cloth after each using, and is thus kept in a presentable condition for a very long time.

KEEPING THE SILVER BRIGHT IN SPITE OF GAS AND HEAT

THERE is nothing uglier than dull, smeary-looking silver. It is bad enough in a toilet service, but when ill-kept silver is seen on a dining table, it presages a carelessness that is far from reassuring to the diner. I have even seen at a formal dinner where every other appointment was handsome in the extreme knives, forks and spoons that would not have passed muster with a careful house-such conditions are absolutely inexcusable, as much for an ordinary family meal as at a formal function.

There are dozens of silver polishes, soaps, liquids and powders, so quickly applied and effective in results that even the heavy repousse dear to the housewife can easily be kept shin-

It is not enough to give silver a It is not enough to give silver a weekly cleaning, as is so much the custom. Coal gas, steam and furnace heat all tarnish it quickly, while the dust from even the best-kept house will soon dim a polished surface.

To keep silver bright after use, it should be washed at once with a chamois leather soaked in warm, soapy water, rinsed thoroughly in boiling water, and dried and polished quickly with a soft cloth or a fresh chamois skin. This, to a well-trained dishwasher, should be as expeditious as the ordinary slipshod methods of drying the table

If it becomes too clouded, yet one does not find it convenient to give it a regular cleaning, silver can be wonderfully improved by a rub with a rouged chamois. The most persistently and brilliantly

The most persistently and brilliantly shiny silver I have ever seen belongs to a woman whose maid confided to me the secret of its good appearance. She always used pure alcohol instead of water to moisten her silver powder. Never use a stiff brush or a rough cloth on a plain surface, for scratches dire will result.

RAINY-DAY CLOSET

RAINY-DAY CLOSET

RAINY days often mean trouble in the household where there are plenty of children, and some one has suggested that the mother of such a brood would do well to provide herself with a rainy-day closet.

To it will find their way special playthings, reserved for state occasions; pletures, scrap books, paste pots, scissors, old magazines and paint boxes. Anything, in fact, that can provide indoor amusement. When the rainy day comes round the closet may be opened and a distribution of its blessings made. Children delight in novelty, and the very fact that there is a special treat reserved for the days when the sun doesn't shine will go a long way toward alleviating any disappointment over the putting off of out-of-door games and pleasures.

RENTIN GROOMS AS A PROFESSION

WOMAN who found herself with-A out friends, and with only house and furniture at her comout friends, and with only her mand, pluckily stuck the sign "Rooms to let" in her front window and sat down to await the result. It came in the shape of three young men, college students, who looked her three best rooms over, engaged them on the spot, and remained with her for their entire college course.

Her success as a lodging housekeeper began that day and continued until a fortunate change in circumstances released her from the necessity for earning a living, but her case is worth recording. One of the three first lodgers explained their coming in this wise:

"We had been looking for rooms all day, and were feeling pretty well disgusted when we chanced upon Mrs. P—'s sign, and somehow it had a 'different' look. Her parlor was comfortable, too, not a bit suggestive of a boarding house; her halls had no smell of cooking, and the bathroom was O. K. I think the thing that took most with us, however, was the 'livedmost with us, however, was the 'livedin' look that the bedrooms had.
"Other houses were quite as clean, and often the furniture was handand often the furniture was handsomer, but in almost every instance the landlady had said, 'Of course, this room will be very different when the beds are made and the covers are on the dressing tables and washstands.'
I suppose they would have looked different, but somehow you can't always imagine that difference when you are running around looking for a place to live in, and you are mighty apt to freeze on to the thing that seems the most like home."
That young man had hit upon the primary essentials for a successfully conducted lodging house—cleanliness, proper ventilation, good bath arrangements and a comfortable, homelike and a comfortable, homelike

ments and a comfortable, homelike aspect.

System is very necessary if a lodging house is to be kept clean. If the mistress can afford a maid to help her, she should outline the duties of that maid so that no day shall be too full of work, and so that no room or floor will ever be neglected. If she must do the work herself with only occasional outside assistance, she should try to have that assistance on a regular day or days of the week so that the work will never accumulate.

In some cities regular window cleaners go about from house to house cleaning windows for a small sum, and these workers are a boon to the busy lodging housekeeper. In addition to the windows, she must see to it that her steps or porch are always in good condition and that dust and cobwebs are fought with diligently. Rugs which can be taken up and shaken are better than carpets. Some women prefer mattings under the rugs, some the bare floor. If your taste runs to the latter see that the staining is evenly and carefully done, and that the floors are wiped off regularly with a flannel cloth upon which there is a little coal oil.

Shades and curtains are an impor-

there is a little coal oil.

Shades and curtains are an import tant item. The latter may be of the cheapest swiss or cheese cloth, but they must be fresh and clean. Towels should be of medium size, as good quality as you can afford, and there must be a plentiful supply. Make your bathroom as attractive as possible. If it is of the old-fashioned sort, the effort is all the more necessary. Tiled oilcloth, varnished to make it wear better, will take the place of regular tiling on the floors. If the tub is tin instead of porcelain, a coat of white enamel paint will im-prove its appearance mightily. Indeed if the lodging housekeeper is clever if the lodging housekeeper is clever with her fingers she can, at very little cost, repaper her bathroom herself in a glossy white paper, and paint all the woodwork white, thus adding much to its attractiveness.

Of course, she will have a little cabinet for bottles, brushes and other necessities. She will see that the tub and basin are immaculate, that fresh towels are on the rack, and soap on the washstand, and she will keep an ever vigilant eye upon the drainage the washstand, and she will keep an ever vigilant eye upon the drainage pipes, using plenty of disinfectants to prevent any odors.

Ventilation is to a certain extent a question of the position of windows and doors. Some halls will be stuffy, no matter how careful the owners may be, but every woman can open her windows and doors for a little while every morning and it she avoids heavy draperies ing, and if she avoids heavy draperies ing, and if she avoids heavy draperies she is much better off.

The rooms that the lodgers actually inhabit must next be considered. It is one thing to be sure that the house in which you live is well heated and lighted, that it is kept clean and that the hot-water supply is plentiful; it is another to have the room which is your not-water supply is plentiful; it is another to have the room which is your very own comfortable.

Of course, you don't look for handsome furniture, but you do expect it to be in good repair. Metal beds are better than wooden ones. A good mattress has a price above rubies in the estimation of the usual lodging house habitue. Bed linen must be whole and fresh, blankets in good condition, counterpanes, either white or of the dark bine or pink patterns that are popular just now, and an extra quilt of some sort must always be supplied.

Covers on washstand, dressing table and table; rugs arranged to add to the appearance of the room, a comfortable chair or two and nice curtains are among the essentials to comfort. Pictures and ornaments are not necessary, most people preferring their own; and, of course, the lodgers bring their own toilet accessories. Some houses supply soap, but this is by no means always necessary.

A comfortable couch adds immensely A comfortable couch adds immensely to the furnishing of any room, and if the lodger is a student, he will be apt to ask for a lamp, in addition to the gas, or in place of it, and he will want a larger table than the business man, and perhaps a bookcase, though this last is a luxury rather than a necessity. Renting rooms is by no means a rose-term path but attention to details will strewn path, but attention to details will insure success to the woman who has hit upon this way of making her bread and butter.
