J. A. Jackson, General Secretary of the Sunday School Association of Ontario, gave an address on "How may we help in securing trained teachers for the Sunday school?" He pointed out that the Sunday school teacher should be as well trained and as well qualified as the day school teacher. If they were not the Sunday school scholars, especially those who belonged to the advanced classes in the public schools, would soon dis cover the lack of knowledge on the part of their teachers and become disgusted with the Sunday school. The teacher should never avoid questionable subjects, because the children would got the idea that the teacher was afraid of such subjects. The development in the human race should also be made clear. While Abraham would not be considered the

why God had taken him up.

Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner gave a talk on "How I prepare my lesson." Mrs. Bryner is a brilliant woman and her lecture was very lucid and convincing. She said that the Sunday school teacher should thoroughly prepare her lesson and should make it as interesting as possible. The teacher should also introduce into the lesson all the incidents in profane history or everyday life that would lead to a better understanding of the lesson. In connection with the lesson in connection with the lesson two weeks from Sunday, the crowning of King Edward should be recalled to assist the pupils in digesting the lesson. In teaching the lesson, too, the instructor should make an effort to picture the different characters as near to life as possible so that the pupils so that the pupils so the better able to understand and appreciate the incidents in connection with the lesson.

Mr. Jackson spoke on "The organized Sunday school work." He spoke about this County not having been represented in the Provincial Association in six years.

Mrs. Bryner gave another splendid address on "The Sunday school teacher's peculiar work and the preparation for it." Mrs. Bryner used a blackboard to illustrate her preparation for it." Mrs. Bryner used a blackboard to illustrate her ideas. She drew a large "C" on the board to represent Christ and then wrote child inside the "C." This was done because Christ had put the children in the midst. The teacher should study up the children, and to study up children the teacher should love the children. To be successful the Sunday school teacher had to love the children, love God, and love the work.

While the Crown Attorney was away Tuesday, Mrs. Oliver Edwards from Thamesville, called to see about beginning legal proceedings against her legal husband. She was accompanied by a colored woman. The Edwards woman was explaining all her troubles to everyone who would lend an interested ear around the hall. When she came to the part of her tale which unfolded the fact that her husband had run away with that her husband had run away with a deaf and dump woman, the colored woman explained consolingly "Perhaps you talked too much."

Mrs. Edwards is a loquacious Irish woman. She visited the police station this morning and entertained Judge Houston, Crown Attorney H. D. Smith and Chief Holmes with a discriptive narrative of her trials and tribulations. Her auditors came to the same conclusion as the colored tribulations. Her auditors came to the same conclusion as the colored woman. The forsaken wife said that she was a witlow with five children two years ago when Edwards met her and married her. Then her husband deserted her and went away with a deaf and dumb woman. The woman implored the police to give her a chance to see her man once more. Chief Holmes gave her a pass to Wallaceburg and she went to the glass town to-night.

Strathcona and Others Take Leave of Chamberlain.

Referring to Mr. Chamberlain's policy, Lord Strathcona said that differences of opinion might exist in regard to the details of the policy by which it was to be carried out, but there was generally an expressed desire among the people of the colonies for closer and more effective union with the mother country. Mr. Chamberlain had done more than any other man to promote Imperial union.

Mr. Chamberlain, in replying, apologized for having delayed to arrange the interview at an earlier date, but he had been rather severely strained during the past few weeks. He was touched and gratified at the kind terms spoken and the generous appreciation they showed of his work. He owed a great deal to the advice given by the representatives of the colonies. He had almost an assured convincion that he would be able to convince his fellow-countrymen that it would be to their advantage to adopt his policy.

Mr. Chamberlain added that he was sure he never endeavored to force his opinions on nor presumed to dictate to the colonies anything they should do or in any way interfere with their self-government. He had recognized that whatever was done must be done by them as free people, voluntarily, and with as much enthusiasm as it would be done here.

WHAT KENT MISSED

J. B. Jackson, of Ingersoll, has been appointed commercial agent at Leeds, England, for the Dominion Government. He has some experience as commercial agent. He could tell you how much money it cost to buy the South Oxford nominations for Sir Richard Cartwright when S. H. Janes of Toronto, was after it. He could tell you how much money was sent up for that purpose. He acted as commercial agent then and ought to know. Not all of it was spent, for, as we have just observed, Mr. Jackson was a commercial agent. He acted in that capacity in the South Oxford election trial. He got money in Toronto to buy up evidence whether true or false, to unseat Sutherland. He paid a man named Chambers $375 for eight charges and promised him $375 more if six of the eight were proven. Not all the money he got in Toronto was spent for this purpose, for Jackson is a commercial agent. If he had succeeded he would have been made a judge in Kent or sime other unfortunate county, but his failure saved the good people of that or some other county from the infliction. Instead of that, he got a job for which he is more fittled but at the same time it is not the job he deserves.

Can any one tell why the Dominion Government is obliged to reward the men who do dirty work for the provincial government ? Prestion after the West Eigin carnival got a valuable position from the Dominion Government, and now Jackson is similarly rewarded. Does Laurier still regard the Ontario Government as his "right hand?" If so, he had better submit to amputation, for the cancerous growth cannot be arrested by salves - Hamilton Spectator.

THE CHAMPION LIAR

The Great American Liar has been definitely located. He resides at 3501 Columbia avenue, Minneapolis, Minnesota. His name is Robert Christiansen, and he is a lawyer. He was-or says he was-in Toronto when the news in the decision in the Alaska boundary dispute was received, and he tells this story about it:

"It was really amusing, and reminded me very forcibly of the old days of the Bryan and free silver street discussions. I found, though, that the real thinking and sensible Canadiaus don't pay any attention to it, but carrain politicians and their foil wers were wild, and mounted boxes in the streets and gathered crowds about them, while they cursed the United States and talked of war.

There are a great many Americans there, of course, all the time, on business matters, and the first day some-one mounted the steps of a public building and harangued the crowd and grew excited. The crowd cheered and shook their fists. He wanted to fight America right off.

"We licked them once, he cried, "and we can lick them again."

"There were a few Americans standing on the border of the crowd laughing at the trouble, and one of them called out that they couldn't whip one state. I expected to see trouble, but the Americans just guyed that crowd and stood there while the crawd shoo

It all grows out of the political any. It all grows out of the political following, for when a Canadian gots a little public office he thinks he is the czar, and naturally politicians are afraid of a growing sentiment in favor afraid of a growing sentiment in favor of America and they want to foster hard feeling as much as possible, But what struck me was the uniform good nature with which Americans took the insults, just as if their little brothers were angry and talking nonsense and they were bearing with them.

"But I wouldn't be surprised if the politicians succeeded in getting up a pretty big sentiment against the United States."

It is not necessary to tell Canadians that there is not a word of truth in the entire story; but, all the same, Mr, Christiansen's romance will be accepted for truth in the United States.

HANGING THE PUMPKIN.

Painting That Raised a Storm In

It is the duty of Louis Pretet, official picture hanger of the Societe des Ar-tistes Français, to distribute the can-rases which annually comprise the Paris salon throughout the rooms of the Palais des Beaux Arts. The jurors are then summoned to examine his work and commend or condemu, as they see fit. The artists are at liberty to appeal to the jurors, and an influen tial artist can make trouble for the picture hanger. The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune tells this story of Vollon, one of the most fa mous living painters of still life: Vollon had painted what he consider ed as his musterpiece, a luxurious pumpkin, orange in color and heroic in size, such as one sees at an agricinor. O. Heward's Lecture on Fruit Scales— Little Insects That Destroy Orchards and Fruit—Where Nature Comes In.

and Fruit—Where Nature Comes In.

The first of the series of lectures endowed by Sir Sandford Fleming, under the auspices of the Canadian Institute, was delivered on Saturday night in the new medical building, Toronto, by Dr. L. O. Howard, chief entomologist of the American Bureau of Agriculture, upon "Some International Work With Insects." Sir Sandford Fleming being unavoidably absent, the chair was occupied by the President of the Canadian Institute, Prof. Coleman, who spoke briefly in introducing Dr. Howard. Dr. Howard is one of the greatest living authorities on the subject of entomology. Referring to the principal insects which affect agriculture and horiculture in North America, he stated that they are not native species, but have been imported from abroad, and mainly from Europe. He said that European species when accidentally imported into the United States, particularly into the southern States, seem to thrive and multiply with extraordinary facility and fecundity. One reason for this is the tiply with extraordinary facility and fecundity. One reason for this is the longer summer and the greater sum total of heat during the breeding period. Another reason is that the natural enemies which keep them in check in their native home have been left behind.

Enormous sums have been spent by fruit-growers in their attempts by spraying and other means to destroy noxious insects. The orange and olive trees in California were almost destroyed by various kinds of scale. Twenty years ago the white scale was overcome by a ladybug from Australia. The same insect was af-terwards sent to Egypt, Portugal and South Africa, where it accomplished the same beneficial results.

More recently the olive trees have been similarly relieved of the white

He told in some detail of the search for the parasite that is the natural enemy of the San Jose scale, first in Japan and then successfully in China, where the home of the scale was found, and along with it the insect that feeds on it and keeps its ravages within bounds. Two these insects were brought to Washington two years ago and cared for until they multiplied and proved their worth, and this year 400 colonies of these insects were sent out, and on the whole the results have been satisfactory, altogether satis-factory in certain States. Investigation is to be made in South America r an insect that will destroy the an Jose scale in northern as well as outhern climates.

Another beneficial importation from abroad was described: the Smyrna fig crop of Mediterranean regions is the standard crop of dried figs of the world; America had never been able to raise any Smyrna figs; at several points in California the trees had been planted, but the fruit would fall without ripening; an investigation showed that in Asia Minkin was being repeated in all the stu-dies of Paris, and the leading artists or it is the custom of the natives to bring wild figs and hang them in the branches of the Smyrna figs, whereupon minute insects issued from the wild figs, and covered with pol-len, entered the Smyrna figs and fer-tilized them; wild fig trees were then imported into California, and after several failures the fertilizing insect was also imported and established. The result is that in certain places manded. "It kills my little pink and manded. "It kins my little pink and white nymphs."

So the pumpkin was removed. But here Cormon objected. "It shall not stay in the same room with my plein California many tons of dried Smyrna figs of a superior quality are now put upon the market annutures!" he declared. "It makes my llons and bears and tigers look like

The Seychelles.

The King has approved the issue of letters creating the Seychelles (hitherto a dependency of Mauritius) a separate colony. The formal cer-mony of publication was postponed until November 7, when Sir C. Bruce, Jovernor of Mauritius, arrived, Mr E. B. Sweet-Escott, the present Ad-ministrator of the group, will be the first Governor of the new coleny. The Sevchelles are among the hundred or more islands scattered over the Indian Ocean, which have hither-to been dependencies of Mauritius. They are between the parallels of S. neur" and popularly nicknamed the lat. 4 deg. and 5 deg., 934 miles from Mauritius, 600 from Madagas-gar, and 970 from Zanzibar. Their Chamber of Horrors. Mahe was originally captured from the French in 1794, and on the capture of Mauritius in 1810 the whole group was formally taken possession of. The finances of the Seychelles were separated from those of the Mauritius in 1872, and in 1888 they were given a separate Administrator and Council, while in 1897 the Administrator was given the full powers of a Governor.

Staggered Our Tactful King.

There are times when the most tactful of men are taken aback by some unexpected retort. Such an experience befell King Edward of England, in connection with the visit colonial troops to London at the of the South African contingent of termination of the Boer War. One of the Cape scouts was an unmistakable mulatto, with a magnificent re-cord for gallantry, however. The King was reviewing the men, walk-ing down their extended line, and occasionally, speaking to one of occasionally, speaking to one of them. Opposite the colored man he stopped topped.

"And who are you, my man?" he soldier straightened up, saluted, and replied gravely:

"I'm a nigger, youah Majesty."
The "most tactful ruler in Europe" was nonplussed by the unlooked-for reply. But he managed to say:
"Good! Then remain so, my brave fellow," With this he passed on.

Newaygo, Mich., Oct. 8, 1903. Prof. W. B. Patty:

It affords me much pleasure to express, voluntarily, my great appreciation of your most excellent exhibition of the two great marvels of the day—Liquid Air and Wireless Telegraphy. Your explanations were so simple and clear, and your demonstrations so conclusive, that the youngest child understood, and the most skeptical adult believed all that was asserted. During the four years I have superintended the Newaygo schools we have brought many de-lightful entertainments to the public, but never, I believe, has every person in the audience, regardless of age or previous education, left the Opera House feeling as certain that his money's worth has been obtained his money's worth has been obtained—his hard cash miraculously changed during two hours that were too short, from cents to sense—and with us much of that delightful sensation of having possession of some knowledge of two very wonderful things. I say, never as much so as from your lecture, you having done all, that was promised.

Commending you to my fellow teachers, I am,
Very truly,

A man's best capital is his ability

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach amd associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's other Medical Discovery and Pellets'. many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomin the body with soind heatily needs, and flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarth of the stomach and bowels. They attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarth of the stomach and bowels. They attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarth of the stomach and tried one year. I suppendicing their medicine and tried one of the said and nervous my heart would dister. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in fiest and strength, and can eat anything I want."

IDEALS UP SOCIETY. ldes to the World.

The ideals of society which guide The ideals of society which guide, and, according to these modified, and, according to these modifications the order of human life changes also. There was a time when the ideal of society was absolute animal liberty, by which, according to their powers, both literally and figuratively, some devoured others. Following came the time when the social ideal was the supremery of one, when all men supremacy of one, when all men adore their potentates, and not only voluntarily, but with enthusiasm submitted to them.

Then men had for their ideal an arrangement of life during which power was suffered not for oneself, but in order to establish order in the lives of mcn at large. The attempts for the realization of similar ideals endured a certain period—universal monarchy, then the universal church, uniting and guiding various states.

Next appeared the idea of national representation, then that of the republic, with universal or limited suffrage. To-day it is thought that public, with universal or limited sur-frage. To-day it is thought that this ideal can be attained when or-ganization will be such that the in-struments of labor shall cease to be private property and will be the pos-session of the entire people. Men are beginning to understand. And now they need to learn that there is only one means of realizing a good human life—to profess and to practice the religious doctrine which practice the religious doctrine which is accessible to the majority of men. And it is only when they will profess and practice this religious doctrine that they will be able to attain the ideal which has been born n their consciences and to which they

DO WOMEN WEAR WIGS?

John Sirange Winter Says the Most of Ibem Do.

The New York Herald has the following from London: "Nowadays ninety-nine women out of a hundred wear wigs!"

This somewhat startling statement

This somewhat starting statement which rests on the authority of Mrs. Stannard, more widely known as "John Strange Winter," author of "Bootle's Baby," is the outcome of a discussion raised by Mr. George Alexander on the subject of dress at vening theatrical performances in London.

Mrs. Stannard writes to The Daily Telegraph: When Mr. George Alexander touches upon the great question of feminine headgear, then he is trenching upon ground which is difficult to tread without disaster. He evidently does not realize the truth, which is this—that nowadays ninetynine women out of a hundred t.ear wigs and the woman who wears a wig is the slave of that article of adornment. If she is a rich woman she has one wig for the atternoon to wear with her hat, and she has an-other wig for the evening to wear without a hat. In nine cases out of ten she cannot take her hat off be-cause she would not be sure of the disclosures such an act would make. I know this is so, because in my day I have myself worn a wig. That day has happily gone by, and, I hope, for-ever, since L-have discovered how to make my hair grow. To wear a hat make my hair grow. To wear a hat with an evening wig would be too extravagant for any but the most wealthy and to appear in a theatre in a wig which does duty very well by daylight with a hat would be to risk that which few women would dare to face."

Where Living Is Cheap.

Dr. S. P. May, Inspector of Public Libraries, is a great traveler and a keen observer. Recently he has been taking notes of the cost of living in the several places he has visited in the province, and has concluded that Shelburne, a village less than 100 miles north of Toronto, is the cheap-est place in which to live in the proest place in which to live in the province. Good chickens sell at 15 cents each, the best of butter at 15 cents per pound, new laid eggs 15 cents per dozen, potatoes 35 cents a bag, pork five cents per pound, and other things in keeping. When turkeys were selling at 18 cents per pound in Torronto last winter they could be purchased in Shelburne at 8 cents.—Toronto Telegram. onto Telegram.

OLDEST ENGLISH PAPER.

London Gazette Is the Least Read, but Psys $100,000 a Year. The London Gazette is the oldest and least read of any English newspaper. It is at once the biggest and the east of all English papers, for it is the only paper in the land which changes ts size from one page to a hundred according to the pressure of the news. It is the only newspaper whose word is law and whose authority is accepted in the witness box. It can make and unmake bankrupts.

It is the only paper in which certain persons are compelled to advertise and in which certain other persons cannot advertise for love or money. It yields a profit of $100,000 a year.

Time was when the editorship of the Gazette was one of the spoils of office, worth $4,000 a year. It was the recognized reward of party services in the

Under the old regime the Gazette had besides its editor a staff of five clerks appointed by the treasury, but in 1889 the treasury remodele management of the paper, found the staff employment elsewhere and left the whole responsibility of the Gazette on its publishers, Messrs. Harrison & Sons. The printing of the paper has been in the Harrison family since 1773. Absolute secrecy as to the contents of any forthcoming Gazette prevails at

St. Martin's lane, and, though there are a thousand workers in Messrs. Harrisons' office, no item of news has ever leaked out before its time. Every sheet of copy is private and confiden-tial until it appears for all the world to see. The copy for the Gazette is written in the government offices, of-ten by cabinet ministers themselves, and is invariably returned with the proofs. Each secretary initials his copy, and in cases of promotion in the services no paragraph is accepted even in proof without being initiated a sec-

Chamois Vests That Fit.

There's no question about the value of chamois vests as lung protection, but most of them are so ill shapen and poorly constructed as to produce irritation instead of comfort. We have a line of vests that it is a pleasure to wear and a comfort as well. They are perfectly form fitting and so put together that no weight comes on the seams. Our prices on these chamois vests are so reasonable that you really have no excuse for exposing yourself to danger by not wearing one. Prices

One of the features of the last regular meeting of Thames Liodge, No. 101, S. O. E. B. S., was the presentation of an address and a handsome gold watch as a token of estem and regard of the brethren towards Bro. C. F. Chanter, who has been secretary of the Lodge for 14 years. The address was read by Bro. T. A. Smith and the presentation made on behalf of the Lodge by District Deputy Bro. W. A. Moore. Bro. Chanter, who was taken by surprise, made a very feeling response, which was followed by short speeches from several of the members present, all showing the esteem in which the Brother is held by the members of Thames Lodge.

Report Presented to the Provincial Board of Health.

Toronto, Nov. 19. - The Pro vincial Board of Health commenced their quarterly meeting vester day afternoon at the Parliament buildings. Those present were Dr. Kitchen St. George, Chairman; Dr. P. H.
Bryce, Toronto, Secretary; Dr. Cassidy, Toronto, Dr. Oldright, Toronto;
Dr. Boucher, Peterboro'; Dr. Thompson, Strathroy; Dr. Douglas, Cobourg.
Dr. P. H. Bryce, Provincial Medical Health Superintendent, in his report said that the Province had been remarkably free from common endemic diseases, the deaths numbering only 1,992, or 12.5 per 1,000. The death rate from consumption was lower than usual, but nearly double all the rest. Smallpox was almost wholly absent, but diphtheria, in its distribution rather than its frequency, was ominous of an increase when the schools opened, and the result had been as feared. The returns for October to date from 52 municipalities reporting show 464 cases and 54 deaths, against 240 cases and 30 deaths in 38 municipalities in Sentember, and 122 St. George, Chairman; Dr. P. H.

porting show 404 cases and 54 deaths, against 240 cases and 30 deaths in 38 municipalities in September, and 122 cases and 24 deaths in 27 municipalities in August. Reports during November indicate its continued appearance. The local health authorities seemed to be more than ever awake to their responsibilities. In Toronto the cases increased from st in August to their responsibilities. In Toronto the cases increased from 51 in August to 118 in October, with 14 deaths. Of 770 cases up to October 31 in Toronto, 445 were treated in hospitals, and the death rate was 12.72. The extension of the Isolation Hospital is expected to be completed in three months time. A medical inspector of schools has been appointed, whose duty it will be to follow up the suspects from the school-rooms.

DAYS OF THE CRIMP

THE TRAFFICKING IN HUMAN FLESH IN QUEBEC'S OLD DAYS.

Ancient Canadian City Was Noted for Its Crimping in the Middle Days of the Nineteenth Century-In 1860 There Were Seventy Dens Run on the River Front-An Item Frem an Old Journal,

Like many other enterprises, noble Like many other enterprises, noble or otherwise, the crimping business in Quebec began in a small way. in the early days of the nineteenth century. With the then comparatively few arrivals from sea, the opportunities offering for extensive traflicking in human flesh, which became yearly thereafter more inviting were lacking. With increasing activity in the construction of wooden ships, calling for crews, and augmented fleets of arriving ships, the ranks of the sailor-stealers filled up in a surprising manner.

Among the first of the guild were Dominick Dempsey and James McFay and tales of their reckless daring are and tales of their reckless daring are still related. That* they suffered from arrest and imprisonment occasionally is on record, but the laws governing such cases as theirs were less severe than they afterward became, and they in consequence got free in a much easier fashion than they deserved. From 1830 and onwerd the crimps became more numerous, until in 1860 it is estimated that about seventy dons were being run along the river dens were being run along the river front—not all of course operated in a large way, but all dangerous in their methods. With success and escape from severe punishment, such as they richly merited, how and why is to-day a problem hard to solve, they even went east in small vessels, and even went east in small vessels, and preyed upon the outports of the low-er St. Lawrence to the great danger of ships anchored in open roadsteads taking in deal cargoes. Here is an item from an old journal on this

The captain reports that while anchored Sault au Cochon discharging ballast, a cutter was seen to heave too off the harbour, but no suspicions were entertained of her errand. During the night following, however, the crew of the barque overpowered and gagged the night-watchman, one Tremblay, living in the vicinity, and lowering a boat, left the ship. As the boat was seen drifting toward the shore in the morning there is no doubt that the crew boarded the cutter, which was no longer in sight. the harbour, but no suspicions wer

The crew were not captured, neither were the rascally crimps, as subsequent allusions show. The wily gentlemen had covered their tracks and hidden their prizes so cunningly that no traces of them could be discovered. That crew were no doubt enjoying the hospitality of the crimp in safe retreat, while the ekipper they had wronged raged without.

Among the most notorious of the guild the name of James Ward stands out in unsavory prominence, and his career is even yet spoken of with unsavory between the ways. stinted admiration in the haunts where in life he flourished. That he was a man of considerable ability is not to be denied, and had he devote not to be denied, and had he devoted his powers to the prosecution of an honorable calling he would most likely have risen to success. As it was, he, in his later years, did attain to a moderate degree of respectable living in Savannah, and to a flattering obituary in due time in a local journal.

A native of Belfast, Ward, when a sailor boy, arrived in Quebec, in 1830, and, being himself immediately crimped, he studied, while in the den of his captor, the system of which he was himself an object lesson, becoming in later years the acknowledged, if uncrowned, king of the profession he had adopted, and a terror to ar-

The difficulty lay in following up the shifty tars, when their name was legion, and changeable as well; but Ward knew all about them—knew the false names under which he had shipped by others, and for a consideration gave the information to the captains, who were not slow to act. It is said, though the story may not be true, that a departing ship being in sore need of a sailor, he came alongside during the night with the corpse of an inmate, who had imbibed of his firewater too unwisely, and who being hoisted to the deck as a simple drunk, was in the morning discovered to have cros-sed over a darker river than that which laved the ship, hours before. The truth of this transaction is doubtful, but that he enticed the tramps, who in his day infested the city, into his lair, and filling them to insensibility with whiskey, tricked them out in sea garb, and shipped them as mariners, is beyond dispute. How the mate and the respectable members of the crew treated the betrayed hobos during the voyage is not recorded, and may be safely left

But while Ward enjoyed a world-wide reputation as a leader in the realms of the crimps, he had his rivals, men of no mean ability; and of these Thomas O'Leary came prominently to the front. He did not possess that plausibility which distinguished Jim Ward, but he was made of sterner stuff and more despotic in his actions. his actions.

Pepulation of China.

During the European difficulties with China no little divergence of opinion was expressed as to the population of that great Asiatic Empire. A new census of China has just been completed, and the returns indicate that the population has been rather underestimated than overcalculated. At least, it shows the enormous total population of 426,447,the friend of sailors the truth leaked out that, apart from the ruffianly manner with which, as years went on, he was accustomed to treat his captives, he was moreover guilty of a double game, and one more abhorent to the sailor than the blows and kicks of the crimp and his runners—and this was the way of it.

By the laws of shipping a seaman signing an agreement to make the round trip was entitled to be paid off in full on the return of the vessel to England only. By desertion in Canadian waters he not only for feited his rights to the wages agreed theon for the run home, but empowered the master of the ship he had abandoned to seize his pay in the hands of the owners of any ship upon

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

The Mind of the Modern Actor. The mind of the modern actor—we speak, of course, of the many, not of all-lies in his dancing legs, his side splitting grimaces, his "business," his exaggerations of peculiar lives of today. The mind thus devoted to the lighter tasks of jocularity, skipping also from one author's jokes to those of another on a moment's notice, as its ossessor skips from town to town and from stage to stage, is not a mind that can suddenly turn to the contemplation and the study of Shakespeare with any hope that the lines of the poet will get the better of the encounter. The actor who is to play Shakespeare acceptably unust not trivol away his intellectual dignity. One cannot sing "Mary Had a Little Lamb" with all the enthusiasm of his soul for 300 nights and hope to be equal to the Magnificat or a Te Deum or Siegfried's Rhine journey on the three hundred and first night. The tasks to which the modern English and American manager puts the English and American actor have destroyed the old school of Shakespeare actors. Now, we are not saying that this is not for the best; that in the processes of the evolution of the arts the theater has not naturally become what it is.—Harper's Weekly. "The making of sleigh bells is quite an art," says an iron founder. "The little iron ball is too big to be put in through the holes in the bell, and yet it is inside. How did it get there? The little iron ball is called 'the jinglet.'

When you shake the sleigh bell it jingles. In making the bell the jinglet is put inside a little ball of mud, just the shape of the inside of the bell. Then a mold is made, just the shape of the outside of the bell. This mud ball with the jinglet inside is placed in the mold of the outside, and the metal is poured in, which fills up the space between the ball and the mold.

"When the mold is taken off, you see a sleigh bell, but it will not ring, as it is full of dirt. The hot metal that the bell is made of dries the dirt, so that it can be shaken out. After the dir: is all shaken out of the holes in the bell the little iron jinglet will still be in the bell and will ring. It took a good many years to think out how to make a sleigh bell."

When lying down at night I was almost afraid to go to sleep for fear I would never wake up. When I arose in the morning I would feel a little better, but as soon as I started to work my heart would start fluttering, my head would become dizzy, faint weak spells would come over me and it seemed as if black objects were floating before my eyes. I was growing worse every day until I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. THE KING: GUD BLESS HIM me Thoughts About Mis Majosty Which the Celebration of Mis Sixty-second Birthday Gave Rise To.

Ex-Attache, writing in The Chic Ex-Attache, writing in The Chicago Tribune and referring to the fact that Monday was the sixty-second anniversary of the birthday of King Edward, says: King Edward may be said to have two birthdays, a prerogative peculiar to British sovereigns, which was initiated by the late Queen Victoria. The actual date of her birth was May 24. But in order to suit her own convenience, as well for birth was May 24. But in order to suit her own convenience, as well is that of Parliament, of the Government administration, of the business world, and her subjects in general, she was wont to give orders that it should be celebrated on the Saturday nearest to May 24. King I'dward, whose birthday comes in November, when the town is deserted, and not merely Ministers, but ded, and not merely Ministers, but likewise Legislators and all the great world dispersed among the various country houses and shooting boxes, causes the official celebration thereof to take place at the end of May, or the beginning of June, designating each year a day for the purpose, which is signalized by state quets, illuminations, and military solays. But in spite of this the cople at large continue to regard ov. 9 as the King's real birthday Nov. 9 as the King's real birthday and observe it as a public holiday, while his own relatives and immediate family likewise look upon it as such and reserve their congratulations and their gifts for Nov. 9. It is merely fortuitous that the so-called Lord, Mayor's day, on which not only the Lord Mayor of Lendon, but the chief magistrates of nearly all the cities and towns of arly all the cities and towns of e United Kingdom, are inaugurat-and enter upon their duties of lice, should coincide with Edward It's birthday on Monday. Former-Mayors were installed on Oct. 29, he day after the feast of St. Simon and St. Jude. But this date was hanged more than 150 years ago to Nov. 9, so that the fact of its fallon the birthday of the King while King Edward is a grey bearded, grey-haired man of 62, he has been less than three years on the throne, a fact which it seems difficult to realize. Without in any way offenting the preserved its reaches. affronting the memory of his mother whose occupancy of the throne for a period of more than sixty years had created an impression that she was indispensible and that it was impossible to conceive the British Empire without its sceptre in her hand, King Edward has effected many admirable changes and introduced many reforms not only at his court, but likewise in connection with the domestic and foreign policy of his Government. That he takes a far larger share in the latter than did his mother cannot for one moment be denied. He gives it a much more personal note, impresses it with his views and his wishes, and with all that leaves even his closest friends in the dark as to his preferences for either of the great Parliamentary parties, differing in this respect from Queen Victoria, particularly in the latter part of her reign, found herself unable to conal her predilection for the Conser

Oneen Victoria's Papers.

The official biographer of Queen Victoria has not yet been selected, although R. R. Holmes, the librarian at Windsor Castle, wrote an authori.ed life some years ago, and she edited the manuscript herself, striking edited the manuscript herself, striking out what Mr. Holmes says were the most interesting parts. Queen Victoria's papers, covering her reign of sixty-three years, which are very voluminous and contain a mine of historical material, have been placed in the Royal archives with her autographs—perhaps the most valuable collection in the world. The late Queen was very fond of collecting autographs and fine books, although she never went at either systematically, and her collection is more incidental than otherwise. She was careful about keeping letters that were ful about keeping letters that were written to her, and among her pre-served correspondence are personal letters from nearly every sovereign and from many of the famous church-men and statesmen who have occu-pied the world's attention during the nineteenth century.

McOOIG & HARRINGTON,

The Unpopularity of Whiskers.

Commenting on the fact that Governor Alexander Monroe Dockery has just divested his countenance of a celebrated and almost immortal set of whiskers, the New York "Sun" says: "The twentieth century is beginning somewhat as the nineteenth century began, though, of course, not so strictly and universally smooth, but it is doubtful if it will run parallel through all its quarters with its predecessor. There were no mustaches, no beards, when the nineteenth century dawned. Side whiskers began to curl and sprout before it had run far in its course, and they grew bolder after a time and encircled the throat and chin, leaving bare the upper lip. The lip was submerged about 1860 and in the later years of destruction was last to yield to the assaults of the barber. The human countenance began to exhibit itself again not long after the war, and from that time down to the very recent past the unsupported mustache was the prevailing anode. Now fashion is changing again, so that the young men are commonly completely shaved, and their fathers have covered lips. The youth of to-day have the weight of civilized precedent with them shaved, and their lathers have covered lips. The youth of to-day have the weight of civilized precedent with them. An examination of the family albums of the last four centuries will demonstrate that the unwhiskered have had by far the better of it. For nearly two hundred years of that time the beard was not permitted to sprout. A great deal of encouragement for the shaven but ambitious young man may be found in the Presidency of the United States. From the beginning with Washington down to Lincoln's time whiskers found lodgment in the White House only three times, and in every case they were of the remote variety known as sideboards, which offered no considerable obstruction to the observation of the faces to which they were linked. John Quincy Adams presented a stubborn pair, Martin Van Buren's were amiable in their moods, and Zachary Taylor's were evidently the unthe better of it. For nearly two hundres Buren's were amiable in their moods, and Zachary Taylor's were evidently the unobtrusive expression of a fancy for trimmings. Lincoln inaugurated the bearded era, which was carried on by Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur (with Dundrearys), and Harrison, though Harrison yielded not a little of his expansibefore he retired from office. Cleveland was the first mustached President and Roosevelt the second, while McKinley preserved the tradition of the smooth lace.

A Lesson in Tact

A Lesson in Tact.

A few weeks ago, says James MacA thur in "Harper's Weekly," I quote some passages in these columns from correspondence between the Browning in the days of their early acquaintance on Carlyle's strong dislike of poetry, have just heard of a new story on the same theme which is told by Professor Goldwin Smith. It appears that Professor Smith was once a visitor with Carlyle at Lady Ashburton's house whe fennyson was one of the circle at "Ill range." Tennyson was asked to rea one of his own poems aloud, but, to the surprise and disappointment of his gettle hostess and her company, he refuse—a thing he was never apt to do. Lool ing across the room, Professor Smith sat the cause of the difficulty. Close to Tenyson sat Carlyle, who was wont to make a universal sweep of poetry in it relation to common sense when arouse by the programmy of the Muse. Profes make a universal sweep of poetry in it relation to common sense when arouse by the proximity of the Muse. Professor Smith, devoting himself to the public good, and, we may add, in courteou consideration of his hostess, crossed the room, and invited Carlyle to take a stroll in the grounds. The Sage accepte the invitation, and, during the stroll, the poet brought off his reading.

Good talking is largely dependent on "good hearing." The fact that a man is able to do his mental powers the justice of brilliant expression may be due to the presence of some receptive mind, ready to invite and appreciate Wits may clash to the point of deafening themselves. The sympathetic and silent listener is the buffer between.

Ruskin is said to have been excellent company. He spoke in a tone of "gentle and playful earnestness." He had floods of thought and knowledge to pour forth, if only he could get the right hearers. But there were the barren occasions when listeners were absent.

One day a friend gave a little dinner for him. Doctor Jowett and Dean Stanley. But no sooner had the dinner for him. Doctor Jowett and Dean Stanley. But no sooner had the dinner begun than the host realized his mistake. He had provided no setting for his jewels, rio junior men as hearers. "They wanted to meet one another," he said. "It should have gone off brilliantly, but the soup came, and the fish followed, and they simply would not the had a treed us all off. Then all went well. But I shall never make the same mistake again."

JOS. A. TILT,

The Brother as a Chaperon

A chaperon is a luxury not within the reach of all girls, and the only real substitute of value is a brother. But when a brother accepts this most useful office he is looked upon as a "makeshift," and as a person undesirable and incompetent. Therefore, a mother takes pains to secure for her daughter the companionship of almost anyone of her own sex rather than a brother:

This is a gross injustice to brothers. Any girl who has been chaperoned by her brother will tell you that he is the best possible person for the office. Any man who has enjoyed the society of a young lady under the chaperonage of her brother will say the same. Brothers who have acted as chaperons say that a man takes to the work quite naturally and with plenty of confidence. In addition to this evidence, it is common knowledge that the chaperon dislikes her office, is disliked by the young lady.

A man is liked best as a chaperon because he is broad-minded and generous. He does not want to lead his sister into

A man is liked best as a chaperon because he is broad-minded and generous. He does not want to lead his sister into the most crowded parts of the flowershow and talk inanities to old bores; he doesn't reprove her if she dares to say something funny. He doesn't preserve a countenance of prim severity, and pose as the goddess of propriety. Neither does he take his sister into the commany of undesirable men, as lady Neither does he take his sister into the company of undesirable men, as lady chaperons often do; he gives such persons a wide berth, and introduces his little sister only to those men who are good, honest, whole-hearted fellows.

The brother chaperon can give his sister much advice that will be of more use to her than etiquette books. He sister much advice that will be of more use to her than etiquette books. He can point out the men she should not know, and he can unhesitatingly expose their worthlessness. He can tell her a dozen little things that stamp the good man as a good man, and a dozen others that mark the bad one for what he is.

There is no fear of a brother leading his sister into indiscretions. That is the last thing he would do. He takes at the same time a lively interest in a love affair, and does his best to leave the young couple alone together for five minutes at intervals.

The brother chaperon is rare, because the only one available is he who has a greater fondness for his own sister than somebody else's.—"Modern Society."

One of Bangs' Political Experiences.

At a recent fraternity dinner John Kendrick Bangs told this story as one of his political experiences, says the New York "Times":

of Yonkers I saw a laborer digging in a trench, and I thought I would try to capture his vote. I went up to him and aid: "'Hello, Pati'

"Hello, Pat!"

'He looked at me without recognizing me, and said: Good mornin', sor.'

"I said it was a fine day and asked him if he had made up his mind how he would vote at the election.

"'Oi don't know, sor; but wan thing is sure, Oi'll not vote for that dahm fule Rangs.'

Bangs."
"Why not?"
"Well, said he, 'he's a swell and a roostercrat and a dood.
"I explained to him as best I could

"I explained to him as best I could that Mr. Bangs was none of these things and, even if he was, it was because he couldn't help it. I invited him to come and have a drink with me; he accepted, and, after having taken two or three drinks, we became very friendly. While he was in a seemingly affable mood I confessed that I was Bangs.

"I had a cigar in my pocket, and as it was the last of a box that Robert Louis Stevenson had sent me from Samoa, I prized it highly. But much as I prized it, I thought it well spent if I could clinch Pat's vote with it.

"I asked Pat if he would smoke, and he said he would. He took the cigar, bit off the end, put it in his mouth, and lit it. Then suddenly he grasped the cigar and threw it violently to the ground.

"In astonishment I asked him: "Isn't it a good cigar?"

The Female Barber.

"Most fellows have a fancy barmaid," says "David Harum" in the "Sydney Bulletin." "My fancy is a pretty little ady barber, who has to pat every common Johnny in creation under the chin, and soap him with both tongue and orush at the same time. It makes me jealous. I visit her three times a week, generally at slack times, and as she scrapes my face she tells me her troubles and sometimes allows a big tear to drop on my nose.

"She works from 8:30 to 6 on weekdays and till 10 on Saturdays, and gets afteen shillings per week. There are two other women in bile shop—the proprietress and a slave, like my little woman, who does the same and gets the same—viz., fifteen shillings per week. My girl reckons the hawk-eyed proprietress is a devil to get on with, and clears £10 a week. She fines the girls sixpence every time they cut a man. My girl loses on an average four shillings a someone's throat, she said yesterday. Poor little beggard She's miserable. Took her out last Sunday afternoon. Passed two Johnnies; heard one of them say. There's the little girl from the barber's shop!' Felt mad, and would have imped on him—only it was Sunday. The Origin of Coffee.

As to the history of coffee, the legend runs that it was first found growing wild in Arabia. Hadji Omar, a dervish, discovered it in 1285, six hundred and seventeen years ago. Ha was dying of hunger in the wilderness, when, finding some small round berries, he tried to eat them, but they were bitter. He tried roasting them, and these he finally steeped in some water held in the hollow of his hand, and found the decoction as refreshing as if he had par-

he finally steeped in some water held in the hollow of his hand, and found the decotion as refreshing as if he had partaken of solid food. He hurried back to Mocha, from which he had been banished, and, inviting the wise men to partake of his discovery, they were so well pleased with it that they made him a saint.

The story is told, writes Thomas R. Dawley, jr., in "Success," that coffee was introduced into the West Indies in 1723, by Chirac, a French physician, who gave a Norman gentleman by the name of De Clieux, a captain of infantry on his way to Martinique, a single plant. The seavoyage was a stormy one, the vessel was driven out of her course, and drinking water became so scarce that it was distributed in rations. De Clieux, with an affection for his coffee plant, divided his portion of water with it, and succeeded in bringing it to Martinique, although weak, not in a hopeless condition. There he planted it in his garden, protected it with a fence of thorns, and watched it daily until the end of the year, when he gathered two pounds of coffee, which he distributed among the inhabitants of the island to be planted by them. From Martinique coffee trees in turn were sent to Santo Domingo, Guadaloupe and other neighboring islands.

The coffee tree is an evergreen abrub, growing, in its natural state, to a height of fourteen to eighteen feet. It is usually kept trimmed, however, for convenience in picking the berries, which grow along the branches close to the leaves and resemble in shape and color ordinary cherries. The tree cannot be grown along the branches close to the leaves and resemble in shape and color ordinary cherries. The tree cannot be grown above the frost line, neither can it be successfully grown in the tropics. The most successful climate for production is that found at an altitude of about four thousand feet. Authing much above that found at an altitude of about four thousand feet. Anything much above this is in danger of frost, which is fatal to the tree; and, when coffee is grown much below this, it requires artificial shade, which materially increases the cost of production and does not produce as marketable berries. It is owing to this particular requirement that coffee has never been successfully produced north of the Mexican boundary.

with using the Tablets I think my food was properly digested and gave me flesh and strength."

Mr. Bailey figured the matter out exactly right. If the food is not properly digested the different parts of the body do not get the nourishment they require. They become starved and weak. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food and make the body strong and healthy.

London, Nov. 19. - Henry Birchenough, a writer on statistical and political subjects, who was sent to South Africa by the Board of Trade as a special commissioner, in a report, published in the Blue Book, lays stress on the magnitude of the South African market, which, he says, has increased 250 per cent. in the last ten years, the greatest increase having years, the greatest increase having been shown in the last two years. The value of this trade now exceeds the sum of $235,000,000. He points out that a decade ago British exports to South Africa were under $45,000,000, while during the last year they exceeded $130,000,000.

In 1803 South Africa stood sixth in the list of Great Britain's customers, but last year it was only beaten by India. The commissioner predicts that South Africa will this year be the largest buyer in the world of produce and manufactures of the mother country. The most serious competitors of the British tradesmen are the manufacturers of the United States and Germany. American rivalry is in concentrated and well-defined branches of trade, but in the natural products, such as feachtings. trade, but in the natural products, such as foodstuffs, timber and parafin, which form a large portion of American imports to South Africa, the United States competes with Australia and Canada, but not with Great Britain.

IMPERIAL TRADE.

Montreal Board Endorses Mr. Chamberlain Montreal, Nov. 19.-The question of preferential trade within the empire was discussed at a special meeting of the Montreal Board of Trade held yesterday. The meeting, which was presided over by the President of the board, Mr. Arthur H. Hodgson, was one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings of the board ever held, and the feeling was decidedly in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals. The mention of the ex-Colonial Secretary's name was frequently applauded.

The President in this opening remarks gave an outline of the proposed fiscal gave an outline of the proposed fiscal policy. He was followed by Mr. Robponcy. He was followed by Mr. Robert Meighen, who spoke at some length, expressing his firm adherence to the proposals of Mr. Chamberlain. Mr. Meighen spoke of the position of Canada in. the fiscal policy of the empire, and was strongly of the opinion that the Dominion would benefit greatly under the policy that it was proposed to put into effect. Mr. Meighen moved the following resolution, which was seconded by the Hon. George A. Drummond:—

was seconded by the Hon. George A. Drummond:—
"That having followed with great interest the action of the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain in advocating a system of tariff preference within the empire, the Montreal Board of Trade now reiterates its belief that the best interests of the empire would be served by the adoption of such changes in the fiscal policies of the several parts of the empire as would encourage preferential trade."

Mr. Meighen's motion was a mani-

Mr. Meighen's motion was unanimously adopted, and it was decided that a copy should be sent to Colonial Secretary Lyttelton and Mr. Chamberlain. The meeting broke up with cheers for Mr. Chamberlain.
