ADDISON.

Monday, Nov. 26.—Mr. A. Earl and lady passed through our village yesterday, en route to Clark's Crossing.

Mr. Chas. Hayes is going to exact the from Phillipsville. He was installed as second in command, on account of his intimate knowledge of the habits of the game we were in search of as well as his ability to tell a good story of his former exploits in the same region. The jolly, rollicking machine agent was unanimously dubbed chief commissariat, and upon him devolved the task of seeing that the larder was well supplied with every requisite. The faber pusher of the Reporter was installed as historian of the trip and was ordered to let no event, however trivial, escape his eagle eye. trivial, escape his eagle eye. The "Keeper of the Hounds" from California, was put in charge of the cavalry and ordered to march at once for the scene of action by the shortest and most convenient route. Christ, the Dane, was taken along—in the capacity of man of all work, guide and interpreter.

Everything that was to go overland was packed securely, and at three a.m. on Tuesday morning Josiah and Christook their departure in charge of the team. They were to take a short direct route, and were expected to meet the remainder of the party at or near Lavant station, on the K. & P. R. R. Tuesday evening the rest of the party took the B. & W. train at Elign station and went as far as West-poort where they stopped for the night, where they stopped for the night.

When at Snow Road Crossing we saw our man Josiah on the platform and were told by him that one of his horses had tired out and that it would be necessary for us to go on and try and get a team to come and take part of his load. Here was a contingency that we had not provided for, but as the train only halted a couple of minutes we could do nothing better than to go on and try and arrange for a team at our getting off place. Lavant station was reached about five o'clock and leaving our two companions the machine agent and ourselves started for an eight mile tramp towards where we hoped to be able to get a team to go to the assistance.

DEER HUNTING IN THE NORTH.

To Editor tells his Many and Varied Experiences white Searching for Game in the Wildermess.

About three weeks ago the Editor of the Reporter received an invitation to join a party on a deer hunting expedition out on the K. & P. Bailway. Wishing to get a short relaxation from the cares of office work, we gladly accepted the invitation. The party were to rendezvous at Eigin, and accordingly on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 6th, we packed our kit and took passage on the B. & W. for that classic village. When the party all got together they were found to be a joily although incongruous, lot of citizens. Allow us to give the personell of the party. the party took the B. & W. train at Eigin station and went as far as Westport, where they stopped for the night, putting up at the Wardrobe House, the genial proprietor of which did all in his power to make our stay a pleasant and agreeable one. A team had been engaged to take the party on to Bedford station, a distance of twenty miles. Just at daybreak the party left Westport passing through one of the best farming sections in the county for the first six or eight miles. therefore, to have the buildings warm. Another point to be considered is that the health of the animals is promoted and there is less liability of disease, and consequently a greater production of meat, milk and butter. With warmth, and the requirement of a smaller ration for each animal, more stock can be kept, which not only adds to the profit, but also to the manure heap, upon which the fertility of the farm depends.

It is claimed that an occasional rolling with a heavy roller will so compact the soil that ants will be driven away. Cold frames can be used for forcing some of the hardy plants in winter. Early cab-bage and lettuce are grown in this manner.

Mix wood ashes, cinders and gravel to-gether for your garden walks, and run a roller over it after each rain until it is well packed.

For forcing lettuce, radiches, etc., in reenhouse the temperature should never be more than 50° day or night. Too much

Miss Nina Webster and Mr. Elmer Thomas, both of Cleveland, O., are two very unhappy people just now. They were engaged to be married, and so sure were they both that the Democratic candidate would carry the day that the bride-elect agreed that if Grover Cleveland were elected she would marry Mr. Thomas on inauguration day. But in the gladness of their trusting Democratic hearts they also made a daring bluff at fate by agreeing that if Harrison were elected they would delay the ceremony four years.—Chicago News.

Diphtheria Carried by a Turkey.

A fowl with diphtheria was brought to the house of a veterinary surgeon on April 24th and died on the 29th. The feeding and nursing of the bird devolved on a lad aged 14, who was assisted by his brother, aged 5. On the evening of May 11th the writer was called to see the little boy of 5, who had been poorly for a day or two. He had enlarged cervical glands on the left side, which had come on rapidly. He was a delicate little fellow, with fair hair and animic aspect. The fauces were more or less covered with diphtheric membrane, the left tonsil more especially. Under the administration of binicidie of mercury and iron the throat symptoms cleared up and the child made a good recovery. On the day after this case was first seen the boy who fed the fowl was feverish and had similar patches over his fauces, but not to the same extent as his brother. A sister, aged 9, had slao a similar explosion on the fauces. On the 18th the mother, who nursed them, was attacked, and was similarly treated. They were all kept well up with beef tea and stimulants.—British Medical Journal. Diphtheria Carried by a Turkey.

But how can a woman smile when she is suffering untold misery from complaints from which men are exempt? The answer is easy. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an infallible remedy in all cases of "female weakness," morning sickness, disorders of the stomach, nervous prostration and similar maladies. As a powerful invigorating tonic it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. As a soothing and strengthening nervine it subdues nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteris, spasms and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Sold by druggitzs, under a of Land in Ireland. GLADSTONE'S AMENDMENT

STARL DIFFIGURE ATT.

GLADDTONE'S ARTINDENT'L.

It is the flower of Common type of the State of s operations.

When Mr. Madden had finished Mr. ladstone arose. He was received with rolonged cheering from the Opposition. Ir. Gladstone moved the following amendient to the Government proposal: "That, the continue of the When Mr. Madden had finished Mr. Gladatone arose. He was received with prolonged cheering from the Opposition. Mr. Gladatone arose. He was received with prolonged cheering from the Opposition. Mr. Gladatone moved the following amendment to the Government proposal: "That, in lisu of voing £5.000,000, it is expedient, in view of the immentable sufferings arising from recent evictions in Ireland, to empower the locars to reduce or cancel arrears of rents that are found to be excessive." He complained that the Government had broken their pledge to the House. Ame at the disposal of the moment and broken their pledge to the House. Ame at the disposal of the moment and the measures should be introduced, here was called the far limpostance, challenging discussion. It was submitted with the threat that it would be post forward daily until it was assisted. His protest was equally saginst the mode of presenting the Bill and the method by which its discussion was to be presend. His amendment did not strike at the Ashbourne Act, nor would it necessarily stop its operations. He did not desire to stop the operations of the Act, whatever he might consider its danger, and he did not oppose the Bill because it proposed to keep the Act alive, but he objected to it because of the amount demanded. The Government ought to have asked Parliament for a forth of the protection of the Act with the spring, when Parliament one of the whole matter. The Oppose the Bill because it proposed to keep the Act alive, but he objected to it because of the amount demanded. The Government ought to have saked Parliament for result the spring, when Parliament one of the Act would be allowed. The Opposition was not incended the manufacture of the protection of the Act with the strength of the Government to withdraw the subject of frish land from the Liberal side, when Mr. Gladatone design of the Government to withdraw the subject of frish land from the Liberal side, when Mr. The principle of the previous Land Act was to stolly different from the Ashbourn obtained, apparently as a precedent for another £5,000,000, thus drawing the House by slow degrees into a system under which there was no escape from putting the land into the hands of the State, making the Estate the immediate landlord without properguarantees. How different was the proposal from the Liberal side, when Mr. Trevelyan laid down the principle that the Government should not ask the national taxpayers to advance purchase money unless the taxpayers in reland evinced confidence in the tenants by offering local guarantees. He (Gladstone) had always objected to the Ashbourne Act as giving the initiative of purchase to the landlord, whom he considered second, as the peasants ought to have the initiative. If an Imperial guarantee was ever given for the purchase of land in Ireland the security must convey a moral certainty to the Government. (Cheers.) What resson had the Government for refusing with such tenacity to deal with the arrears? Were they the means of ensuring the servitude of the tenants? (Parnellite cheers.) It was certain that this Bill would give the landlords a leverage to being means a while in tain that this Bill would give the landfords a leverage to bring up rents, while it would enable only a handful of tenants to acquire holdings. Certainly it would assist the Government in their land purchase scheme, but under what inadequate and precarious security for the repayment of advances! Doubtless the Irish tenants could be praised as scrupulous in the payment of fair rents, but if another collapse of agricultural prices occurred the farmers might be unable to pay their instalments of agricultural prices occurred the farmerer might be unable to pay their instalments under the Bill. The Government were not justified in relying upon the tenants will so pay after the recent declaration of Lord Salisbury that the majority of 3,000, 000 in Ireland were bent upon rutting down the minority of 2,000,000 in order to get at and rifle their pockets. (Cheers, If Irishmen hadno respect for the pockets of their countrymen, were they likely to respect the English exchequer? Were those who have been thus described by the head of the Government the people to be trusted as debtors of the Siate? (Laughter and cheers). This land purchase had no immediate claims to the character of the arrears question. The tenants themselves had urgently demanded a settlement of arrears. A similar necessity had been acknowledged in the case of the orderes of Sociland. Much greater had been the need of Ireland, where the arrears were running without limit and l8d to a paralysis of the farmers' engagements and an unceasing flow of evictions. Evictions upon arrears prevented the tenant from obtaining the benefit of judicial rent. (Hear, hear) They made the landlords masters of the Land Act, and masters of the conditions for the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenants of the tenant sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenant sale of the land and she fortunes of the tenant sale of the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenant sale of the tenant sale of the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenant sale of the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenant sale of the tenant sale of the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenant sale of the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenant sale of the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenants sale of the sale benefit of judicial rent. (Hear, hear) The varrears were thus a weapon against the tenants, defeating and annulling the land law, which had be in passed for their benefit. (Hear, hear.) They made the landlords masters of the Land Act, and masters of the conditions for the sale of the land and the fortunes of the tenants if the Government had the tenants welfare carnestly at heart, instead of supporting the landlords, if they meant to relieve distressed tenants, they would deal with arrears instead of pressing deal with arrears instead of pressing a dangerous measure, which provided ma-chingery for preventing a reduction of rent, and which afforded facilities for augment

A Sherbrooke, Que, despated says: Rev. Frederick Powell, a Congregational minister, came to this country from Birmingham, Eng., a few years ago, bringing with him his daughter Lily, a beautiful and accomplished young lady. For three years Mr. Powell travelled for Cadbury Bros., after which he purchased a farm near Dudswell, but not being an experienced farmer the profits of his labor were inadequate to meet the wants of his family. Lily then decided to go out and earn her own livelihood, and thus lighten the burden on her father's shoulders. a though she was of an amiable disposition, she was unacoustomed to the light of the had been reduced, and as a consequence, she did not remain any great length of time in one place. She was here last spring searching for a situation, when she met George Allen, a mill-owner of Danville, who engaged her as a domestic. She remained in his house but a short time, her excuse for leaving being that he had made improper proposals to her. She then secured employment in the house of one of Allen's neighbors, where she remained until one dark night a few weeks later, when she was waylaid on a lonely road and murdered, her body afterwards being dragged across a field and thrown into a small millpond. The murderer, whoever he was, evidently attempted to ourseg the poor girl, who struggled in defence of her honor and who, being unable to maintain the unequal fight, was finally overcome and ruthlessly choked to death. The murderer then attempted to concest the evidences of his terrible crime by throwing the body into the pond. Suspicion pointed to Allen, who, with his mistress, Algie Worthen, were arrested at Coaticook. Or October 31st, and lodged in jail here. It was alleged that Allen had induced Miss Powell to accompany him home for immoral purposes, that she had repulsed him, and that determined to accomplish his fiendish purpose, he had waylaid her and in the struggle killed her. It was also believed that he was leaving the country when capturedat Coaticook. The prisoners appeared

At half-past 10 o'clock a car was started from the stable at Park and Nostrand avenues. One hundred policemen, twenty-five of them mounted, surrounded the vehicle. They had proceeded only a few blocks when a mob of frantic, howing men advanced upon them, hurling all kinds of mis-iles in the air. Inspector Reilly ordered a charge, and the big body of policemen swept down the street like a cyclone, driving everything before them. Right and left they whacked their long sticks on the heads of the rioters, scattering them. The mounted men drove into the mob, trampling upon them fearfully. Still the rioters rallied. The stones, bricks, mud and clubs continued to fly through the air and many officers were badly injured. Finally a last charge was made by the police and the mob was dispersed. Six men were arrested. At ten minutes past 11 o'clock another car was started from the Nostrand avenue stables. A light was burning in the house. Young Densett went home and returned with his father and a few meighbors. They broke into the house and found everything in confusion, the rooms having been ransacked. The searchers went to the large barn, the doors of which were also locked, and broke in. A human hand was found protruding from a pile of hay. The covering was quickly thrown off and the horribly mutilated body of Miss White was brought to light lying face downwards, the feet and hands bound with hay ropes, the throat out from ear to ear, as though by a razor, while there was an ugly wound on the head behind the right ear. Suspicion points strongly to John Thompson, the hired man, who came to the farm only last Monday from a Nove Scotia agency on Washington street. "It's a Hextra."

At an old-fashioned hostlery in London two gentlemen were dining, when a dispute arose as to what a pineapple was. One of the diners insisted that it was a fruit. The other, with equal confidence, gave it as his opinion that a pineapple was a vegetable. A bet was made, and the friends determined to accept the decision of the waiter, who was called to the table. "John," asked one of them, "how do you describe a pineapple—is it a fruit or is it a vegetable?" The waiter rubbed his hands, placed his head on one side, and with a pitying smile replied, "It's neither, gentlemen; a pineapple is a hextra."

Inquisitiveness Rebuked.

Farmersville has long been noted for the number and superior abilities of its cheese makers. Year after year they have added to their laurels, until it is only necessary for them to be known as from this vicinity to enable them to get the best factories and the highest wages. Last year Jas. Sheldon of this village, had a factory near Ogdensburgh, and the cheese made by him won a silver tea set, the most valuable special offered at that fair. This season Mr. Sheldon worked at Orchard valley factory, and succeeded at Unionville Fair in securing the special prize offered by J. F. Wood, M. P., for the best colored cheese. Another cheese maker who has won distinction for himself in his chosen avocation is Chas. Wing, of this village. For the past two maker who has won distinction for himself in his chosen avocation is Chas. Wing, of this village. For the past two seasons he has superintended the factory of Jas. Miller, Esq., Spencerville, Last year, at the close of the season, the patrons all brought in one day's milk to the factory and presented it to Mr. Wing. As the factory is a very large one this made a very nice present. This year the proprietor increased his wages, and gave him an offer of a further increase of salary if he would return and take charge of the factory next year. There are numerous other cases of a like nature that might be recorded of our cheese makers, but this will suffice for hhe present.

VILLAGE INCORPORATION

Monday, Nov. 19.—The weather to the present time has been very vorable to those who are short of 1 for their stock. We have refrained from making comments upon this petition, not because of any fear as to the expediency of the measure, nor from lack of sympathy with it, but simply because we did not wish to bias the minds of any who might hereafter regret that they gave the project their countenance and support. Now that the petition is signed and incorporation practically secured, we do not hesitate to say that incorporation will be a benefit to nearly all the citizens of the village. It may, and no doubt will, increase the taxes; but so long as the money is expended for needed improvements we cannot see why anyone should or even dollars.

One thing is certain, we must have a tester and more serviceable sewer running through the centre of the village than we have at present. A good drain is a necessity from a sanitary point of view. Several cellars have been flooded with water nearly all the fall, and we know of one family at least who have decided to remove from an otherwise desirable residence because their medical attendant declares their lives to be in jeopardy
