Germans Sink Fleet

London, June 22.—(By The Associated Press)—The German Officers and sailors, forming the complement of the German ships interned at Scapa Flow, sank most of their fleet today. All the big ships, the battleships and battle cruisers, excepting the Baden, and numerous craft were sunk, while others went ashore in a half sunken condition.

Eighteen destroyers were beached by tugs, four are still afloat while the remainder went under.

The wholesale sinking of the German ships which came to Scapa Flow under the terms of the armistice was carefully arranged by the officers and crews. All explosives had been removed, and therefore the only means of destroying the fleet was by opening the sea cocks. The ships went slowly down, with the German flag, which the crews had hoisted, showing at the mastsheads.

The System is Poisoned

By Failure of the Liver and Kidneys to Purify the Blood Relief Obtained by Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Too much eating of heavy, highly-seasoned foods and too little outdoor exercise are the most frequent causes. The liver is torpid, becomes torpid and inactive, the bowels are constipated, the kidneys are overworked in an effort to get rid of the accumulating poisons and breakdown. Headache, backache, aching limbs round a warning note, and when this is not heeded the natural development is rheumatism, lumbago, and painful and fatal forms of kidney disease.

To best overcome this condition Dr. Chase worked out in his private practice a prescription which has come to be known as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their combined action on these filtering organs. No treatment has ever proven so successful in averting the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels, and thereby cleansing the system of all impurities. For this reason Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have a world-wide reputation as the most thorough cure for rheumatism, lumbago, chronic indigestion and constipation.

Mrs. Alex. Gordon, Welkerton, Ont., writes: "A few years ago I suffered from kidney and liver trouble, with pains in my back. I had heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills being good for this, so I commenced taking them. I had only taken a couple of boxes when the trouble was all removed."

Mrs. M. Nickels, 194 Milton street, Sarnia, writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills an excellent remedy. I suffered considerably with kidney trouble and backache, but after I had taken five boxes of the Kidney-Liver Pills they gave me relief. Since then, which was about five years ago, I keep them on hand, and use them whenever I feel the need of them."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills one pill a dose. 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Substitutes will only disappoint. Insist on getting what you ask for.

Jumped From Moving Train

Henry Girouard a young man whose home is at Buctouche or vicinity, leaped from the car steps of the Northbound Ocean Limited Saturday evening, nine miles out of Newcastle and when he recovered consciousness walked and crawled back to town. He was trying to escape from the custody of Dominion police officers. On arriving at Newcastle he was re-arrested. Girouard was badly cut about the face and received a severe shock, which necessitated his removal to the hospital for treatment.

The young man, who is about 24 years of age, was arrested by Dominion Police Officer J. Richards at Newcastle, where he was working in a bank. Officer Richards, accompanied by Officers A. A. Fagan and Landry, was taking him to Bathurst when he asked permission to get a drink. His request was granted and he took advantage of the opportunity to escape, risking his life in a leap from the express which was running considerably over thirty miles per hour. His action was witnessed by passengers and some of the train crew, who notified the officers. The latter got off at Bathurst and returned with the results noted. Girouard, though badly injured, will recover.

All Will Hope It Is True

New York, June 17.—Influenza and pneumonia are no more to be feared than a boil on the back of the neck, according to Dr. Charles H. Duncan, one of the founders of the volunteer hospital, who, in an address here today before the convention of the Allied Medical Association of America, described his method of combating Spanish influenza by means of "immunizing a patient to his own poison." Upon 246 patients ill with pneumonia and influenza last winter, Dr. Duncan said, he had used the treatment "without a single failure or any complications."

"Briefly," said the physician, "I take one drachm of mucus from the infected area and pasteurize it in one ounce of filtered water, where it remains several hours. One cubic centimetre of this toxin, injected subcutaneously, will effect a spontaneous cure of Spanish influenza, pneumonia, catarrh or any similar localized infection. It will stop any cough except tuberculosis, inside twenty-four hours."

Oil Gusher In Albert County

An oil gusher was recently struck by the New Brunswick Gas and Oil Company at Stoney Creek, A. Co., and is the first well of the kind in the province. The strike of oil occurred in sands at a depth of 2,622 feet and the indications are reported to be most promising.

Dr. J. A. L. Henderson who arrived a few days ago from England, speaking of the recent strike in the Albert County field said: "I was naturally pleased on visiting the oil fields Friday afternoon to discover there had come in a most promising oil well. We have been spending considerable money for some time in trying to reach the lower sands and in deepening well No. 18 we have struck the lowest oil sands at 2,622 ft. At the outset it impermissibly gushed out it will be a gushing well. It is too early yet to speak of the extent of its yield but it certainly looks most promising. This is the first oil well in this field which has gushed. The depth of the sands is about 40 ft. and apparently are rich. Intermittent at the present moment naturally is very limited, the well is most promising and naturally we are encouraged."

HAYING.
The cutting and curing of hay is an operation requiring the exercise of prompt action and sound judgment if a maximum yield of hay of suitable quality is to be saved. Towards this end there are several factors which should receive consideration. The time or stage of cutting is of prime importance since it affects both yield and quality. Usually the most profitable yield is obtained when the crop is cut in blossom or just past that stage, say about one-third of the bloom has disappeared. Ordinarily the tendency is to leave the commencement of haying too late for proper curing during the latter part of the season, due to over ripeness of the crop. It is advisable, therefore, to plan to do this work during the period when there is the least possibility of loss. Beginning haying early is good practice. Clover and alfalfa cut slightly immature will make better hay under favourable weather conditions than left until fairly ripe. Besides, an early start will allow for loss of time through broken weather during the haying season and will ensure a heavier second crop which may be utilized for hay, seed and pasture purposes.

With regard to methods of curing no definite rule or rules of procedure can be laid down to meet all requirements. A successful hay maker so to speak "knows his business," a knowledge that is acquired only by long experience with vagaries of weather, periods of cutting conditions of curing, etc. To become efficient in this work requires one vigilant and with ability to contend with emergencies. Clovers and Alfalfa are more difficult to cure than timothy and other grasses. They are more succulent, absorb rain more readily and the leaves, the most valuable part of the plant, are more easily broken off than the leaf blades of grasses. They should be cut when free from dew or other moisture, and dried, for placing in cocks, by the agency of wind rather than sun as far as possible. Exposure to rain or even heavy dew will change the green leaves to dark brown and make them crisp and readily broken off by handling. Rain and dew will also extract the aroma, of fragrance, a quality essential in making hay palatable and attractive. Mixed hay, timothy and other grasses cure more readily than clover and are not affected to such an extent by unfavourable weather conditions. Otherwise the general principles of curing laid down for clover and alfalfa apply. Timothy grown for market purposes may be cut at a later period than is recommended for ordinary farm feeding purposes. Market conditions demand well matured, though not over ripe, hay.

Shoe Prices Going Higher

The retail shoe dealers are fortunate in having purchased the bulk of their fall and winter shoes early as the growing scarcity and consequent high prices of leather make further advances in the manufacturing of all kinds of shoes absolutely certain. In fact price lists received by local merchants recently show an advance in the wholesale prices of from one to two dollars over the prices of a season ago. This is the third, and in some cases the fourth, advance made by manufacturers and wholesalers since last fall. The hope of the public and shared in by the dealers that shoes might be less expensive will not be fulfilled for a long time to come, authorities say.

"The fact of the matter is," writes one shoe manufacturer in explaining the situation, "that the action in advance prices again was made imperative because of the shorter hours and higher wages granted to employees of all shoe factories in addition to the unprecedented advance in the prices of hides, skins and finished leather, as well as the scarcity of raw materials and the fast increasing foreign demand, both for our leather and shoes. In fact the advanced shoe prices are not yet sufficiently above the old marks to cover the higher cost of leather and making and in all likelihood there will have to be further advances. No one knows. We thought the market had reached its apex when the armistice was signed more than six months ago, but the advances have been gradual until within a fortnight, since which time they have skyrocketed beyond all precedent. It is almost impossible to fix prices on shoes for future delivery for, while we have leather on order, it has not been tanned, and there is no telling whether we will get it or not, and if we do, it may cost us much more than we figured on so we are placing market orders for stock regardless of price."

A hide dealer is authority for the statement that present high prices are due principally to the unusual demand for hides and skins from Europe and to the fact that the government, which made restrictions during the war which prevented changes in leather prices, while other commodities soared, has moved these restrictions and now also allows the exportation of leather, so that with a short supply and a big demand the advance is only natural.

Another important factor to be considered is the exceptional export demand for shoes. Representatives of a Russian syndicate in New York city the other day placed a single order for $24,000,000 of shoes. Another order for 10,000 pairs went to France and still another of 50,000 pairs went to Belgium. A still larger order came from Christiania. It was for 40,000 pairs with the stipulation that 10,000 be shipped immediately. It is reported that the newly created country of Lithuania needs among other commodities, 6,000,000 pair of shoes. In Russia shoes are sold as high as $125 a pair and in France and Belgium they are $35 to $40 a pair. Germany formerly manufactured many shoes and much leather, but this industry is now at a standstill. When peace is finally declared this and other of the former Central Powers will want shoes by the million pairs also.

SOME FIGHTER.

Among the conscientious objectors service in the American army was Alvan C. Yorke, a tall, lanky, red-haired Tennessee mountaineer. His objections did not avail, however, and he was sent across, taking part in the Argonne forest fighting with the American troops where he personally, in one day, killed 22 Huns, captured 133 and destroyed 38 machine gun nests. Classed by Marshal Foch as the greatest hero of an army of the great war, wearing the French Croix de Guerre with palm and the American Congressional medal of honor, the recently promoted Lieut. Col. Alvan Yorke is a pretty good example that a conscientious objector can do some fighting when he has to, after all.

Girls Lemon Juice Is A Skin Whitener

How to make a creamy beauty lotion for a few cents

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.

Ohio Will Allow Willard-Dempsey Fight

Columbus, O., June 17—The Ohio Legislature to-night refused to interfere with the Willard-Dempsey prize fight at Toledo, July 4. The House of Representatives by a vote of fifty-seven to twenty-nine, defeated the Dunn Bill that would have given Governor Cox authority to revoke the permit issued by the City of Toledo, if in his judgment the proposed bout would be a prize fight. Sixty-three votes were needed for passage.

Representative Dunn, however, made a motion to reconsider the vote and this motion probably will be taken up to-morrow.

Starting Something in Pellton

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"You see, Mr. Pell, I'm trying to start something in Pellton," was the way Lucy Brown, reporter, "Society" writer and second mate of the Pellton Sentinel, explained her call at the old Pell homestead. "The idea is to send copies of the home-town papers to the boys at the front and there are some hundreds of our town boys who will be getting the Sentinel. Now you know how it's been with the Sentinel—how it's been with Pellton, in fact. There's never anything doing, and the boys over there don't want to read just a rebash of the news from the front that was stale to them a month before. They want local news. They want to know what's going on in Pellton."

"But nothing is ever going on in Pellton," said Mr. Francis Pell indignantly. "It's a conservative little place that stopped getting excited over itself fifty years ago. There's not anything doing in Pellton."

"No; that's just it," said Lucy, the color coming to her cheeks and the brilliancy to her eyes at the thought that she was being understood. "Nothing ever happens in this place—but I'm going to make something happen."

Lucy had a plan. She had a map and she had the boys know it. Well, he's got some bullets and things from the Civil war and some old clothes he wore seventy-five years ago. I've persuaded him to put them on an exhibition down at the bookstore, and I can make a story about that. Then there is Miss Harting that always keeps the rent shop—used to sell candy to the boys that are over there now, and she's promised to do something to make a story, and there's the pot-chess man and the old sexton—"

Mr. Pell was hardly flattered at being mentioned in the plans, under circumstances, and had Lucy Brown had as much tact as she had enthusiasm she might have made her appeal in another way. But the fact was that Mr. Francis Pell, whose ancestors had founded the old town, was quite as much a character in his own right as either the toothless Silas Small or the little stipster who had "always kept the rent shop." Although scarce forty, and although no one had ever seen him counting out bags of money, nor had he ever been known to be crafty in any money matters, he was regarded as "the old miser." There were fabulous accounts of the extent of the Pell fortune, which had once glittered large in the mind's eye of Pellton natives, but had long since ceased to be regarded as in any way available.

So Lucy told her first call on Mr. Pell and was very politely shown to the door after she had made herself quite clear, and she went away feeling as much confused and disheartened as she had some seven years before, when she had sent out on her first assignment for the little paper. For Lucy was not a native Pelltonite. If she had been she would have known better than to try to make news out of anything that Francis Pell might be doing. But she knew he was one of the most suspicious about personalities in town. Failing to find anything more fertile for discussion about him, the women discussed the size of his grocer bills—though they were perfectly normal—or kept close track of his harmless old manny housekeeper or the new coat of paint on his house or the condition of his apple orchard. But these things wouldn't make news items for the Sentinel.

Lucy was rebuffed the first time, politely but effectively, and went away perhaps more upset over a certain gracious courtesy that Mr. Pell had shown toward her than because of the actual rebuff.

But Lucy had not been a reporter for seven years for nothing, and once her cheeks had stopped tingling from that first call she decided to make another. She would get some sort of story out of him—that she determined. It was on her third call that Mr. Pell showed signs of weakening.

"You say you want me to do something to make a story about," he began cautiously, looking uneasily into Lucy's eager face and studying the nervous twitching of her still girlish lips. "What sort of thing would you suggest—not, of course, that I intend to do it."

Lucy chose to take him entirely seriously. "Make some gift to the town," she announced. "Every one thinks you 'I know' better than Mr. Pell. They call me the old miser. It has always amused me. But I choose to keep my benefactions to myself. I will tell you confidentially that I have just sent a rather important contribution to an astronomical observatory in Labrador that my father endows, and the hospital for lepers in Shanghai that my mother was interested in—"

"Pellton people don't care about that," interrupted Lucy. "They want you to do something for Pellton, if it is only a drinking fountain for the stray dogs or a new curbstone around the town hall. Just think how the boys over there would sit up and read the Sentinel if you were to do something like that, and there would be presentation speeches and every one would turn out and there would be a big time—and then maybe if you did something like that they'd put you up for mayor and—well, you can see what a lot you might do to keep things going." Lucy sighed, and somehow her concern amused Mr. Pell more than anything she had done before. She had already proved immensely diverting.

Then one day Mr. Pell called at the Sentinel office to see Lucy, and that was enough to keep Pellton tongues wagging for a few days. He told her he wanted her to tell him exactly what sort of thing he might do for the old town. Lucy that afternoon had been reporting a picnic given by the employees of one of the local factories. It was chosen for it was part of the old Pell estate, and because of a babbling spring of water that flowed out from the shale there it had proved a favorite spot for picnics for some years past; and Mr. Pell had never objected in spite of his reputation for miserliness. Children, too, from all over the neighborhood came with their mothers and bottles to get this water, which seemed to be more quenching than ordinary water, and it was a favorite spot for pedestrians on hot Sundays, who came there with little folding cups to quench their thirst at the miser's spring, as it was sometimes called.

Lucy had seen the picknickers drinking at the spring that afternoon, and she was ready with her suggestion. The thing to do was to give this tract of land as a picnic ground and to put up a sort of fountain of rough-hewn rocks from the neighborhood around the spring so that thirsty folks might always quench their thirst there. And there should be a drain so that the water when it ran off should not make a bed of mud around the spring. Mr. Pell may have had some questions concerning this, but he agreed, and within a few days he and Lucy were meeting occasionally in a secluded woodland path to discuss designs for the fountain and to plan the presentation. And all the time Lucy had visions of the big writing it was going to make for the Sentinel and the surprise that people would feel when they learned about it. And Francis Pell—well, he still watched the eager working of Lucy's lips and the color as it came quickly when she became especially interested in the plans, under way, and sometimes he laughed at her, too, but she had ceased to be nettled by that.

The eve of the day when the announcement of the plans was to be made came at last, and Lucy had the first big story ready to send to the Sentinel press. There was even to be a cut showing the design for the fountain. And it had all been kept a secret between Mr. Pell and Lucy, though people were beginning to wonder why there had been surveys and workmen on the old picnic grounds of late.

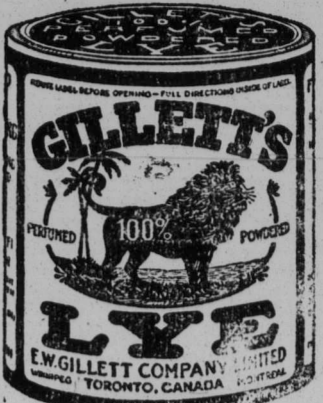

The Sentinel was just going to press and Lucy was putting the last touches on the great announcement in the dingy little office long after other good Pelltonites had retired for the night. The owner-editor, an errand boy, the other reporter and a handful of compositors and pressmen constituted the entire staff, and they were too preoccupied with their tasks to notice the figure of Francis Pell as it passed quickly across the floor to Lucy's desk. He sat down beside her, laid a nervous hand on the copy she was still working on. "There's a hitch in our plans. I can't tell you now. But trust me. You mustn't make the announcement now." Then he went, telling Lucy he would wait for her outside the little office and tell her more as he escorted her home as soon as she had finished her work.

"In this way," he began. "Men from the water department have been telling around lately, and today I got a notice from headquarters. That spring isn't a spring at all. It's a leak from the main. That water is just the same water every one has piped into their houses, and now they send me formal word that in future I'll have to have it metered and pay for it at regular rates. I don't mind paying the few hundred dollars it would cost a year, but no one would care about the fountain if it was plain city water, and they're likely to have the joke on the old miser. So we'll have to think of something else to do." They walked along in silence for a few minutes, Lucy's pretty lips working overtime trying to hold back the tears of disappointment. Two or three times Mr. Pell tried to begin his next speech before he succeeded.

"I was thinking," he said. "In fact, I've thought it for a long time—ever since a little while after you came to me that first time—that I couldn't give the Pelltonites and the boys at the front from Pellton much more of a surprise than to get married. That would be a real piece of news, wouldn't it?"

"Yes—but," and the lips worked overtime. "I didn't know there was anyone you—" Lucy couldn't get any further.

"There's you," said Mr. Pell simply. "How'd that be for starting something? We could run off and be married, and then when we come back we can do the other things, the curb around the town hall and the drinking fountain for stray dogs and cats and the picnic ground and anything else you say." Lucy's mind failed to revolve around the interests of the Pellton Sentinel, and when she said that it would be "perfectly wonderful" she was thinking only of her own selfish point of view.

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1919
WINNIPEG ARRESTS.

Among those placed under arrest in Winnipeg are the following:
R. B. Russell, who participated in the Red Convention at Calgary which passed resolutions for the release of German agents, for the establishment of Soviet Government, and for minority dictatorship of labor by manipulated votes.
O. B. Bray, who poses as a returned fighter but who never saw the firing line. On June 2nd, this man told Premier Norris that he was a Bolshevik out and out and intended to work for the establishment of Soviet Government in Winnipeg.

George F. Armstrong, another notorious Red, drew down upon himself the wrath of returned men over the conscription issue. Later he floundered returned soldiers who laid up a Bolshevik meeting which had passed resolutions of greeting and support to the Soviet Government of Russia and the Republic of Germany. His wife, Mrs. Helen Armstrong, is another agitator, who has spent some years of her life in an insane asylum.

Alberna John Queen, a Socialist, participated in a meeting held in Winnipeg Market Square in 1917, counselling everybody to burn their registration cards and to resist conscription. He had to run for his life from the returned soldiers, who became enraged at his conduct.

Rev. William Ives is editor of the Western Labor News and pastor of the Labor Church.
Alberna A. A. Hoops is an agitator by trade and has been arrested in many of the workers of Winnipeg to resist.

Other names of who may be expected with the "Vanguard" of Vancouver, the leader of the new socialist strike in that city is in August last he held a meeting in the city who were to be held in the city. He is a member of the Vancouver branch of the Communist Party. A. P. Peterson, another Vancouver man, participated in the same general strike—Joseph Lambert, of Vancouver, is possibly one of the most influential of Western agitators in the advance of the German release of traitors who were actively working in Canada for the German Government during the war. Joseph Mafer, of Winnipeg, frankly admits himself a Bolshevik who is out to overturn the present system of government. R. J. Johns, one of the sons of the gang, is a Winnipeg man who endeavored to promote a general strike against conscription and national registration. He went to France and was instrumental in bringing about the unsuccessful general strike there. E. J. Dixon, a member of the Manitoba Legislature, was knocked about by returned soldiers after counselling everybody to burn their registration cards and resist conscription. Andrew Scoble is another prime agitator who favors the release of German spies, the establishment of Soviet rule and proletarian dictatorship.

THE GERMAN PEACE.
Paris, June 13—The peace treaty with Germany will be entirely rewritten and reprinted for the incorporation textually of the explanations and classifications contained in the allied reply to the German counter-proposals.

While unchanged in principle virtually a new document will be presented to the Germans. It is understood that the new treaty will be made public on the day of its delivery or the day after.

The Council of four, it develops, decided that simply to attach the reply to the original document was impracticable as important clauses would be left obscure and imperfect. Hence the decision to rewrite document.

It was comment in peace conference circles today that this action renders absolute the text published abroad.

Germany Will Sign To-Morrow

Paris, June 22—The German note to which the Council of Four replied today by definitely rejecting any suggestions for an alteration in the treaty, declared that the Germans regard the terms of peace as impracticable and that their signature is given under duress. Protests were made against the clauses concerning reparations, the forfeiture of Colonies and others.
Asserting that the terms cannot be carried out and that the German government cannot be held responsible for what may occur, the note concluded by saying that the Germans will sign, with reservations relative to the turning over of those alleged to be guilty of crimes and also the admission of the guilt of Germany in causing the war.
In replying the Council of Four said: "The Allied and associated powers have considered the note of German delegation of even date and, in view of the shortness of time remaining, feel it their duty to reply at once. Of the time within which the German government must make its final decision as to the signature of the treaty less than twenty-four hours remains. The Allied and Associated governments have given fullest consideration to all representations hitherto made by the German government with regard to the treaty, and have replied with complete frankness. They have made such concessions as they thought it were just to make. The present note of the German delegation presents no new arguments or considerations, not already examined."

Senate Re-Affirms Stand it Took On Prohibition Bill

Ottawa, June 19—The position of the Senate on the prohibition measure was reaffirmed today. The government took issue with the Senate's position that the amendment of a certain section of the bill, which shall continue in force until after the termination of the war, should not be considered by the Senate. The bill, as amended, was read the first time and will go to the committee that they may suggest it in the amendment.

In a message that the Senate should not pass upon its amendment, Sir James said that the effect of the amendment would be to destroy the bill. In view of the fact that the measure in the common, it was quite unlikely that the other House would agree to the amendment of the Senate providing that Dominion production of the manufacture and transportation of liquor should terminate with the signing of peace. The amendment would interfere with the power of the provinces to make and sell liquor, and would also be a violation of the constitution.

The bill, as amended, would be a violation of the constitution. The provinces would be unable to make and sell liquor, and would also be a violation of the constitution. The bill, as amended, would be a violation of the constitution. The provinces would be unable to make and sell liquor, and would also be a violation of the constitution.

Aviators Receive The Prize Money

London, June 20—Capt. John Woodcock and Lieut. Arthur W. Brown, themselves who made the first non-stop flight from North America to England, were entertained at a luncheon at the Hotel Savoy today by the Daily Mail, at which the trans-Atlantic prize of more pounds, offered by the newspaper, was presented to the aviators. Those attending the dinner included members of the British cabinet and others.

It was announced later that King George has conferred the Order of Knight of the British Empire on both Captain Woodcock and Lieut. Brown.

St. John To Get $2,000,000 For Harbor From Gov't.

St. John, June 20—Definite private word came from Ottawa today that St. John is to receive two million dollars for its harbor on transfer to the Dominion government. The city authorities are not fully pleased. The original request was for $2,000,000, but later it was deemed satisfactory if $2,000,000 be the figure, and this it was believed, would be agreed to at Ottawa. The matter is being taken up again with the city representatives in Parliament.

Henry Girouard Is Recovering

Henry Girouard, who was arrested at Maloney's Mill, opposite Newcastle, Saturday, charged with deserting, and who leaped off the train that evening and on his recapture had to be taken to the hospital here, is recovering. His escape from death was remarkable. He must have landed in some bushes which broke his fall, else the severe cut he got on the top of his head would doubtless have been more and killed him. He was also badly bruised and cut around the face. He cannot leave the hospital for some time yet.
The officers who arrested him thought him a deserter. He declares he is not. He says he belongs to Buctouche district and to have a farm there.

Fine Program of Racing for Chatham

St. John, N. B., June 19 F.M. Tweedie, secretary of the Miramichi Agricultural Exhibition Association, was in the city yesterday. He said that the association planned holding a monster exhibition from September 22 to 26 inclusive. A feature of the fair would be three days horse racing which will be held on Sept. 24, 25 and 26. The classes arranged are as follows: 2:24 trot and pace, purse $400; 2:34 trot, purse $100; 2:37 trot, purse $400; 2:16 trot and pace, purse $400; 2:14 trot and pace, purse $400, and a free-for-all, purse $500.
The meet promises to be one of the most successful held on the North Shore as a very large field of horses are expected. Chatham holds the track record for a mile, 2:09 1-2, which record was made by Peter Farren last summer. This horse is owned by Patrick Keefe of this city. The management is also arranging for special prizes for the drivers and others connected with the horse racing. Entries close on August 15, and entry blanks are to sent out very soon.

The last exhibition held at Chatham was in 1915, and since, owing to the war, none has been held. This year the management is making a special effort for a very large exhibition to be conducted on a larger scale than ever before. The grounds and buildings which have been in the hands of the military since the war, will be renovated and fitted up to meet all requirements.

Many special attractions are being arranged, among which will be the bringing of an aeroplane to the fair and the holding of a Veterans' Day when more than 1,000 men with guests as service are expected to be present. Everything points to a large number of entries for stock and other exhibits, and in this line the exhibition promises to surpass all others held by the association.

SUGAR IN INDIA.

Something About the Crops in That Mighty Country.

Since the opening of the war the imports of sugar into British India have decreased some 400,000 tons, presumably freeing that amount of eastern sugar for the use of the western world. As this decrease is not due to decreased consumption owing to high war prices, but to increased home production stimulated by higher prices, the release is substantial.

The peculiar thing about India is that, whereas it is the second largest sugar producing region on the globe, its production is insufficient even for home requirements. There are 300,000,000 persons in India, and roughly there is an acre of cane and a ton of sugar for every 100 inhabitants of the Empire. This gives each inhabitant about 22 pounds of sugar per annum, which is not enough, so Javan sugar has been drawn upon to make up the deficiency.

The increase in production has been about 1,000,000 tons, of which 500,000 tons were attained in the last crop finished in March, 1918. Since that date Java sugar has continued to go to India in normal quantity, but as shown by H. C. Primm Goertels in the International Sugar Journal, the movement of these sugars inland from Indian ports has been very slow.

As a result of the war, he says, India has increased its import duty on sugar from 5 to 10 per cent ad valorem. This, combined with scanty arrivals from Java due to lack of ships, had advanced the price of home-grown India sugar to a point which induced the native sugar planters to increase their sugar output.

"For a number of years," he continues, "the Indian Government had taken measures to improve the cane cultivation and sugar manufacture by establishing experimental stations and farms by introducing new cane varieties, and better mills and evaporating apparatus, in order to try and increase the production of sugar per unit of area. These efforts had on the whole been successful, but the cane crop of the native planters had up to now not shown much interest in the matter. In these days of high sugar prices, however, they see how great the advantages of a better crop may be to them and how they profit by all the work which has been done for their benefit over whole series of years. The consequence is that a large part of the interior of India can act on very well without supplies from overseas and that the supplies lying at the Indian ports have remained to a large extent idle."

The outlook for the crop just opening was estimated by the India Trade Journal of August 23 as 2,550,000 tons against 2,525,000 tons for the last crop, which amounted to 2,229,000 tons.

However, growing conditions have not been quite so favorable this year as last, and a smaller output is probable.

Special conditions are being tried, says the Journal, not only favorable to the cane but also to the sugar. One of the most interesting is the building of the cane fields on the greater part of the United Provinces, which is locally known as the "Cane Belt." The Government has generally been successful.

Army Pigeon Tells.

One of the many uses to which the London pigeon has been put in France is as a home for messages. Outside of the omnibus is roofed in to form a cage, while the men occupy the inside—or rather, three quarters of the inside, because the front part is also part of the cage, which is entered by a door from the men's room, and also by a door at the top of the back staircase.

There is an opening in the front of the cage cleverly arranged to let the birds enter when they return from their flights, but not to let the message when they are loaded. A bird is delicately poised just inside the opening, so that when a bird steps on it an electric bell rings inside the omnibus, to tell the men that a pigeon has come home.

The pigeons are taken out in baskets to the trenches to bring messages back in case the very communications should be cut by the enemy's fire. If not wanted for this purpose they are sent flying back after twenty-four hours with a message, just for practice.

As soon as the bird arrives at the loft a man creeps into the cage, catches it, reads the message, writes it down in duplicate, and sends an orderly at once with a copy to the signal officer, whence it is sent forth like an ordinary telegram to its destination. Birds are always sent in couples, each with the same message, in case one should be shot by the enemy.—Tit-Lits.

PIPE SMOKING BY ENGLISH WOMEN

London, June 19—Pipe-smoking by women will be no longer common to the poverty-stricken or rural districts, according to tobaccoists here. One member of trade has disclosed publicly that short cigarettes of large diameter are smoked in holders resembling pipes by numerous women of all stations at this time. It is supposed that this practice will lead to the appearance soon of highly ornamental pipes for women for use with real pipe tobacco.

Tobaccoists declare that increasing consumption by women accounts for the shortage of cigarettes.

Some of the London papers print today pictures of an officer and lady both smoking cigarettes, immediately after the ceremony, the lady still wearing her wedding gown. Two women smokers are seen at the bathing beach and on the Thames at a distance from one another. Many of them are wearing ponchos in rolling their own cigarettes.

Hyesther's old class on the town pump has about the best of many years as found an interesting population, but now that the "Mays" have gone, the town pump as an institution has disappeared. It is the irony of fate at work again.

TAKE NO ADVANTAGE OF FOE

Fuedists in Italy and South America Display Signs of Chivalry That Is Remarkable

Before one can truly realize the terrible depravity to which human nature can occasionally descend one has to obtain just a hazy notion of that horror of horrors known by the name "vendetta." This means, the suffering, fear sometimes engendered by these awful feuds it is impossible to paint in language too denuncatory, observes a writer in London Answers.

A gentleman not long returned from South America described the other day the scene of a vendetta and had the misfortune to witness in the Doers (most quarter) of Buenos Aires. The antagonists had their knives strapped to their hands so that the weapons could not possibly drop from their fingers, however badly injured they became. Before the police had separated them one of the combatants had received no less than 17 wounds. On being examined it was discovered that this individual had a loaded revolver in his belt.

"Whyever did you not use your firearm?" asked the perfect police.

"No," he replied, "with knives," explained the other, with a gasp, and the next moment he sank unconscious to the ground.

In Naples, where warring of a vendetta is almost invariably given in private, a member of the Camorra is sometimes called in to settle a dispute, and in this way occasionally what might otherwise have been a brutal feud ends in the chink of glasses at a sumptuous banquet. If a Camorrist meets his death at the hands of a foe it becomes the bounden duty of some other member of the Camorra to avenge it, notice being almost invariably given to the relatives of the deceased that it is absolutely unnecessary for them to take any steps in the matter whatever.

In Naples, curiously enough, the sympathy of the people is much more with the murderer in these cases than with the victim, judging that if he had had no grievance the former would never have bared his blade; and it is quite surprising how far people are prepared to go in order to protect him from the law.

It is an unwritten law among the hot-blooded races among whom the vendetta still exists that, in an open street fight, no adversary must be assailed with a knife until he has had time to unclasp his own.

Not the least extraordinary feature of several of the vendettas is the refusal on the part of its dying victims to disclose the name of those who have mortally wounded them.

COPENHAGEN CHEWING TOBACCO

Copenhagen is used differently from ordinary chewing tobacco. Take a small pinch, for a start, and put it between the lower lip and gum, in the center.

Afterwards you can increase the size of the pinch to suit the strength of the chew you desire.

Copenhagen is strong, because the tobacco of which it is made is cut into fine grains, which makes it thrust its strength thoroughly and quickly.

Hence, a little "pinch" goes a long way, showing that Copenhagen is not only an unusually economical chew, but also one of the finest quality being made of the best, old, rich, high-flavored tobacco.

Weekly Agricultural Report

June 19, 1919
 Weekly Report Agricultural Conditions in New Brunswick, are reported by District Representatives of Dept. of Agriculture.

Seeding and planting of all crops in Maritime and northern Victoria is reported as practically finished, with an estimated increased area in crop over last year of from five to ten per cent. In the eastern portion of the province the grain seeding is finished and farmers are now sowing buckwheat and turnips. Frost during the week, June 11th, retarded the growth of crops generally, but no serious damage reported. Reports from all sections of the province state that rain is needed. Clover wintered well and is making good growth. With a few more good rains, the hay crop will be heavy.

The market demand for all classes of livestock is good. Horses are selling at from $150 to $350, for good average farm horses; grade dairy cows at from $100 to $125; young pigs $4.50 to 5.00 each.

Reports on Labor Supply for farms indicate that the supply is fairly adequate in the northern and north-eastern counties, the greatest shortage being reported from Carleton, Kings and Westmorland. Wages being paid for farm help range from $40 to $60 per month, with board.

President Wilson has issued an order directing that returned soldiers, sailors and marines may be exempt from the physical requirements for any civil service position.

Germany's Last Day June 21st.

Paris, June 15—(By The Associated Press)—Germany is to be allowed an army of 200,000 men for three years. This is one of the changes in the peace terms which has been studiously kept secret.

Paris, June 14—(By The Associated Press)—The council of four finished its labor today on the reply to the Germans, which will go to Count von Brockling Hantau Monday. The last day permitted them for acceptance or rejection of the treaty is June 21.

If the German reply is in the negative, the Allied armies will start to march into Germany the following day and a new blockade will be immediately effective.

If the Germans express their willingness to sign the document, the ceremony will probably take place in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles.

Thrift Still Necessary

The need of continued thrift on the part of Canadians is set forth in the following, which is opening paragraph, in the May Commercial Letter, issued by the Canadian Bank of Commerce:

—The need for personal and community thrift is as great now as in the black days of 1918 when it was realized that the most stringent self-denial was requisite to enable us to meet the demands of the Government for more and yet more money with which to carry on the war. The great dread which hung over all a year ago has happily been removed, but we still have a duty to perform, and it is essential that it should be faced. It is necessary to carry on public works that will aid production, such as roads and railways, on a considerable scale, in order to provide employment for the workers. We have also a heavy burden of interest imposed on us by the war, and we have great obligations to those who were maimed as well as to the dependents of those who laid down their lives for our security. These obligations can be met only by a continuance of self-denial on the part of every one in the Dominion.

President Wilson has recommended to the Senate an agreement promising American aid to France in case France is again attacked by Germany.

Fateful Years For All Women

How Best to Overcome the Troubles That Afflict Women Only

The most fateful years in a woman's life are those between forty-five and fifty. Many women enter this term under depressing conditions through overwork, worry or a neglected condition of the blood, and so they suffer heavily. Still, variations of health at this time can be relieved by home treatment.

Among the commonest symptoms are headaches and pains in the back and sides, fever-flushes, palpitation, dizziness and depression. Women stand in need of rich, red blood all their life, but never more so than in middle age, when the nerves are also weak and over-wrought. Now every woman can prove the prompt help afforded to her health by renewing her blood supply. It is a test that any ailing woman can make by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for these pills make rich, red blood, which in turn helps the appetite, strengthens the nerves and restores robust health. Thousands of women have found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the means by which new health and a brighter outlook of life were gained. In proof of this is the voluntary testimony of Mrs. H. S. Peterson, Milford, Ont., who says:—

"I have suffered greatly from those troubles that afflict my sex, and I have found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in such cases not only do all that is claimed for them, but more. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done so much for me that I urge every weak woman to try them, and they will soon realize the great difference in one's health they make."

If you suffer from any of the ills that particularly afflict womanhood you should avail yourself at once of the health help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get them from any dealer in medicine or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Through the Canadian Alps

in Canada, opening up an Alpine region of entrancing beauty. It will be possible to motor from Calgary to Windermere between sunrise and sunset through a hundred miles of the most glorious scenery in North America. A good automobile road runs south to Fort Steele and Cranbrook, and from Cranbrook there are excellent roads to Spokane, or eastwards through the Crow's Nest Pass, and back to Calgary. The Good Roads Association of Alberta is enthusiastic over the prospect as this will mean the advent of many tourists from all over America. The new road will also be of great benefit to the Upper Columbia Valley which has many attractions for settlers on account of the fertility of the soil and suitability for mixed farming. This valley is served by the Kootenay Central Railway, a recently constructed branch of the Canadian Pacific.

Between Banff, the popular summer resort in the Canadian Pacific Rockies and Lake Windermere, the head waters of the great Columbia River, lies an Alpine ridge of spectacular beauty, forming part of the Great Divide. This ridge is penetrated by two comparatively easy passes, the Simpson, and the Vermilion which lead into the Valley of the Kootenay River, a region abounding in game on account of its being well south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Between the Kootenay River and the Columbia River is a small range of mountains through which the Sinclair Pass and Chayron provide an easy road. When the first surveys were made for an automobile road between Banff and Windermere it was planned to use the Simpson Pass, named after Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who made this crossing in 1841. But the route over the Vermilion was found to be easier and at the same time more beautiful, and construction of the Highway of the Great Divide was commenced from opposite Castle Mountain in this direction. At the same time the road from Windermere through the Sinclair Canyon was also commenced and at the time of the outbreak of war a gap of only thirty miles separated the two roads. War put an end to construction, and a great washout destroyed several miles of the western end, so that the project seemed to have been abandoned. Now, however, the Dominion Government has made an arrangement with the British Columbia Government by which the route of the road comes under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parks, and a substantial appropriation has been allotted to finish the work. In this way there is every prospect of the early completion of what will be the most wonderful automobile road

'CANADA AS A BEAR LAND

(1) Grizzly bear at Banff. (2) Polar bear in Banff Zoo. (3) Black bear cub, Alaska.

CANADA grows bears as well as grains and fruits and other products of the soil to be seen in every province, but it is in the mountain region of British Columbia that he flourishes. There one will find grizzlies and silver tips, browns and blacks and grays, and all the sub-varieties in between, including Teddy and Johnny cubs, among the children. All of these specimens may be seen in the interesting Zoological gardens at Banff, where they are lined up like soldiers on parade, in front of their cages—especially as dinner time nears!

But it is more interesting and exciting too, to see brown as he rups wild in the woods. One day while following a narrow mountain trail in the Rockies, I was surprised to see a few yards ahead, what seemed like a piece of the trail move to one side.

It was a half-grown black bear. Our surprise was mutual, as we unthinkingly voted to separate. Or, on another occasion in Muskoka, when we almost walked on a big shaggy specimen enjoying a supper of wild berries. Here, too, we apologized for disturbing him at his meal, and graciously and quickly withdrew.

On yet another occasion we came upon bear footprints on a snowfield in the Rockies in the Franconian Pass, north of Lake Louise. They were freshly made on new fallen snow. "He's a whopper," remarked our guide, as the toe marks were studied. "and somewhere near too—an old grizzly I guess."

That led to some great bear stories that night around the camp-fire by our guide, who is a hunter as well as a prospector and mountaineer. One especially gave us lively nightmares, of a long struggle he had, alone and single-handed, with a monster grizzly, who, when he stood upright towered above his human foe. It was literally a fight to the death, with the grizzly the loser.—F. Y.

Co-Operative Live Stock Marketing

To get better and quicker results from any industry or calling it is generally necessary to have some external or internal stimulation. No matter how favorable the soil and how high the quality of the seed, the plant does not reach its best possible growth unless care has been given to the cultivation of the soil. It was with this principle in mind that the Government of Saskatchewan five years ago established a branch of its department of agriculture to foster among the farmers of the province the idea of co-operative marketing of their products. Natural conditions in the province have always been favorable to the development of husbandry, but the stimulation given to the farmers in providing markets by means of co-operative organizations in the sale of their products has been responsible for the development of many phases of farming which were hitherto comparatively speaking, almost negligible. Dairying, sheep-raising and beef production have all grown to a point of considerable importance in a province which has earned its reputation for grain growing, and the end is not yet reached, though the yearly revenue from the farmer is gradually catching up to the latter.

One of the first steps undertaken by this branch of the Provincial Government was the organization of a co-operative system of live stock marketing, which would eliminate all needless middlemen, and secure for both the smaller and the larger producers the benefits of competitive bidding obtainable on central markets. A bulletin explaining these benefits to farmers was compiled in 1914, and sent to farmers in the province. As a result nine co-operative stock marketing associations were formed the following year.

During the first year thirty cars of stock which realized $42,084.00 were handled by these associations. By 1918 the number of associations had grown to fifty, which handled seven hundred and fifty cars of stock of a value of $1,452,000. This does not show the whole growth of the movement, however, for its success included the Grain Grower's Association, the largest co-operative association in the province, to take up the handling of stock, and the considerable numbers handled by this association through its locals in all parts of the province are not included in the figures quoted.

Little or no capital is required in the formation of these societies. Though some of the associations at the beginning find it necessary to obtain a loan from the local bank to pay advances on stock, the practice is generally discontinued, as they become firmly established. A number of farmers in a district get together and form an association, which is incorporated under an act of the province, called the Agricultural Associations Act. Each organization is required to submit a statement annually to the government, showing the amount of business transacted during the previous calendar year. This statement serves to show the progress of the association, besides enabling the government to keep a check on its transactions and protect the interests of the shareholders.

In the marketing of stock all the associations employ a somewhat similar method. A manager is appointed whose duty it is to look after all the details. He is usually remunerated at a set rate per hundred on the number of stock sold, or he may receive a commission on the proceeds of each sale. Goods shipping days are set every week or every month, and the managers deliver their stock at the local stockyards on these days. Many

 (3) Group of sheep in feeding experiment after being shorn.

Associations in the province have regular weekly shipping days. Others ship only once every two weeks. Several associations ship more frequently at one season of the year than they do at other times.

When stock is delivered, the animals are first weighed. Hogs are usually graded according to weight and quality. Cattle and sheep are usually banded, so that each farmer's animals may be properly identified. The farmer receives a receipt specifying the number and kind of animals delivered, and showing the grade or brand assigned to his stock. The animals are then loaded, shipped to market, and sold through one of the live stock commission firms. On receipt of the proceeds, the manager prepares individual accounts showing the amount realized on the sale of the animals of the various shippers and the expenses incurred, and mails a check for the net amount to each shipper.

Provision against loss in transit is made by many associations by the formation of insurance funds, shippers contributing a portion of the proceeds of the sale of their stock generally about two or three cents a hundred pounds, for this purpose. Other associations prefer to insure their shipments with local insurance companies.

Does the farmer secure any financial benefit from the market of stock in this manner? To answer this question, the Saskatchewan Government sent each association marketing stock in 1917 a questionnaire, a summary of the replies to which shows that on an average a net saving of one cent a pound has been

Warm Praise From Britain

Something that should have an important bearing on trade relations between the Motherland and Canada, whose opportuneness the Canadian Trade Commission impresses upon our business community, is the British public's warm appreciation of what was done by the Dominion in the war. The very name of Canada appears to strike a chord of sympathy, and to arouse a desire for closer association. It would be putting a somewhat ignoble and mercenary construction on this to state that it simply opens a new era for business connections across the ocean. Yet so curious is the Anglo-Saxon race to which we belong that it is exactly this feature which would appeal most to the practical British mind as the only consistent form in which the national sentiment could be expressed. More foodstuffs and still more produce of our vast farmlands could be sent to Great Britain where the consuming public learned in wartime to know that in times of stress food from under "the Old Flag" may always be relied upon. On their part they are doing all possible by granting a government preference as well as fostering private profection for all goods from within the Empire.

If proof were wanted it would be found in the cordiality of the remarks recently published broadcast in English and Scottish newspapers of the British Food Controller, the Right Honorable George H. Roberts, M. P. (by the way, one of the finest types of the democratic, self-made labor men in the British Parliament.) Mr. Roberts, after remarking that Canada had not found it necessary to adopt compulsory rationing in its food control methods, said:

"The policy adopted in Canada to increase production and conserve food, combined with the fact that the British Government was able to keep the sea route clear, made it possible for Great Britain and her allies to overcome what was their greatest enemy, insufficiency of food. In 1918 the situation was very critical and food became as important a problem as that of munitions. For example, in December 1917 France held supplies of wheat and flour sufficient only to meet the needs of its civilian population for about three days. It has been my privilege to become acquainted with the measures adopted by Canada, particularly during the last two years of the war, and I know the difficulties that had to be encountered and the remarkable efficiency achieved. Production was thoroughly organized, and having regard to its enormous territory, its diverse conditions of climate, the few crowded towns and the sparse settlements, the achievements of Canada in furnishing food supplies at the gravest period of the war, have won for the Dominion an admission of deep and profound appreciation."

An instance of the readiness and effectiveness of Canadian assistance, Mr. Roberts added, was in regard to butter. When the stock in Great Britain fell abnormally and it was impossible to maintain the small weekly ration of one ounce a head, the Food Ministry was able to secure the whole butter output of Canadian creameries for six weeks; which meant the addition of 6½ million lbs. to available supplies.

"Although the Canadian Government did not hesitate to apply compulsory powers where necessary, it is interesting to observe that a great part of the splendid results ensued from propagandist appeals to the patriotism of the people. Producers were thereby stimulated to greater effort and consumers were induced to adopt voluntary rationing and so increase the surpluses available for export."

Mr. Roberts said in conclusion:—"The record of the Food Board, though its machinery was necessarily hastily improvised, shows wonderful results which contributed substantially to ally the sceptre of privation in Great Britain, and so assisted in preserving the moral of our people and their determination to persist in a victorious prosecution of the war until the enemy was compelled to acknowledge defeat."

The Rt. Hon. J. R. Clynes, who preceded me as Food Minister, our acknowledgments of the splendid assistance rendered and our appreciation of the spirit in which it was given I would only add that since I have been Food Controller I have made myself acquainted with the efforts of Canada and I affirm that if they were known to all our people they would develop a profounder understanding of the meaning of Empire, and if properly recorded would show to future generations that Canadians and moral issues involved in the war, were as quick as the Home people to perceive the tremendous democratic and moral issues involved in the war, and to realize that no sacrifice was too great to uphold the purpose which it was undertaken."

CORNER LOAFING.
The habit of corner loafing is becoming altogether too apparent in town and should be stopped. It is almost impossible on some occasions for pedestrians to pass some of the corners especially around the Park, without going out on the street, and thus subjecting themselves to the danger of being run over either by automobiles or horses.
This should not be so, and the language used by persons frequenting these holdup places is sometimes not of the most elevating order.
A condition of this kind is not tolerated in our cities and should not be allowed here.
It is merely a habit, a bad one at that, and if the offenders were told, by the authorities, in no uncertain terms, that it must be stopped, we would in a very short time be rid of a great and ever increasing evil.
