The Press-Responded to by J. K. Clindenin, Esq., in a most cloquent address. 7th. The Agricultural, Commercial and Manufacturing preserving of Canada Pa this? The answer is briefly told. Loud agitation preceded the procuration of Res-ponsible Government; it was lauded as the road to national fortune; it was painted in glowing colours by enthusiastic admirers; it was inisunderstood by a people who con-founded the means with the results, and looked for the effects in the cause. When the Imperial Government said "to your own legislation," the mass thought the legislation done, and were well content to rest from the labors which had produced so much. Apathy followed energy, and the politician laid down his axe when he hadnearly felled the tree; he forget that an ad-terse wind might crush him beneath the fallen trunk, and that the log would lie and rot, unless newn and carred into useful shape. A Tory Administration, imbecile, selfish, wavering, and unfit to govern, through the treachery of a wily politician, several excellent volunteer toasts and songs were given by Messrs. Colerick, Laniu, &c. &c. A duet sung by Colerick and Unfitness for office soon ran its course, and Unfitness for office soon ran its course, and a Reform Ministry supplanted a Tory one. Two Sessions have since been given to the workers of Responsibility, by its admirer. The fruits of these are not to be despised its admirers twal," the company broke up much pleased with the proceedings of the evening. The fruits of these are not to be despised, but they fall far short of the wishes of the people. The one idea, Responsible Government, has so long absorbed popular atten tion, that its proper products have been forgotten. I intend to devote a series of TEACTS FOR THE TIMES, to a consideration of the measures which should now attract of the measures which should now attract a share of notice, at the hands of those most likely to be affected by their passage. The leading want of Canada, tacitly ac-knowledged by at least two thirds of its inhabitants, is, self-government. A real difference of opinion exists only as to the form in which it should be administered; the Tory being the only one acting the dissentient in folo, and he is scarcely wor-thy of consideration.
