Prisoners of War in Germany.
The following regulations, governing the regulating and despatch of parcels and money to Prisoners of War in Germany are published for the information of the public. The Newfoundland War Contingent Association is appointed by the Central Prisoners of War Committee to handle all matters pertaining to the forwarding of parcels and money to Newfoundland P. of W. in Germany.
The N. W. C. A. forward a regular supply from London to Germany as follows:-
(a) Food. Three parcels per man per fortnight containing such things as tinned beef, tinned salmon, biscuits, milk, sugar, margarine, dripping, baked beans, carbolic soap, chocolate, cigarettes, tobacco, and a few toilet necessities.
(b) Clothing. The following outfit is sent periodically to M. C. O's and men in Germany by the Pay and Record Office: 1 great coat, 1 jacket, 1 pair trousers, 1 cap (the foregoing is a special uniform for P. of W.), 1 pair of drawers (woollen), 1 undervest (woollen), 2 towels, 3 handkerchiefs, 1 pair boots.
(c) Money. It is inadvisable to send money, unless P. of W. ask for it. The amount which may be sent is Two Shillings per week for any one man. The Army Council have instructed the Central P. of W. Committee to the effect that they may not accept gifts of foodstuffs or clothing from members of the public, whether for despatch to a particular P. of W. or as a contribution to the general stock of the Association. This instruction has arisen through an arrangement with the German Authorities that all parcels forwarded should be packed and forwarded by the association. Relatives may rest assured that everything possible is being done in London for the comfort and welfare of Prisoners of War in Germany.

The Sound of Wedding Bells

—OR—
Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER XIX.
 With a shudder, Dulcie shrinks back against the balustrade, and covers her face with her hands.
 "Don't, don't, Miss Dulcie!" implores Sarah. "Don't give it up—don't cry, miss. She may pull round, even now."
 "Even now!"
 Dulcie's hands drop; there are no signs of tears in the dark eyes.
 "Let me go to her!" she says, hoarsely.
 Sarah draws her into a room—it is Dulcie's bedroom, as neat and well-ordered as if she had slept in it the night before—and turns up the gas. Then she starts, and stares at her aghast and dismayed.
 "Oh, Miss Dulcie," she exclaims, in a horrified whisper, "how ill you look! Oh, dear, dear! and I meant to break it to you properly. You'll be ill, miss—you will, indeed, if you take on so."
 Dulcie waves her hand wearily.
 "You'll find her very much changed, and it was a long journey," she falters, throwing off her ulster and hat with weary impatience.
 "And at night, too! But you didn't come alone, miss?"
 "Yes, but never mind me—what does it matter? Tell me all—tell me all. How long has she been ill? How did it happen? What is it? Oh, my poor dear!"—and she wrings her hands—"if I had only come back with her! Why did I let her leave me, after all these years? Why don't you tell me?"
 Frightened and dismayed, Sarah tells her story.
 Her mistress had come back, complaining of a cold on her chest; had taken the usual old-fashioned remedies, and got worse; had refused to see the doctor until Sarah had "taken upon herself" to send for him; had, notwithstanding the doctor's got worse and was now—"Here she stops, and puts her apron to her eyes."
 Dulcie listens to the commonplace—all too commonplace—details with dry, aching eyes and chilled soul.
 "Oh, why did you not send for me before—at once?" she asks.
 "She wouldn't let me, miss; she said it was only a cold, and that she didn't want to spoil your pleasure; you were so happy amongst the grand folks."
 Dulcie wrings her hands.
 "And it was only last night she whispered, 'Send for Miss Dulcie, miss.'"
 "And you didn't telegraph!" says Dulcie, despairingly.
 "She wouldn't hear of it, miss. She thought a telegraph would frighten you; she was always so thoughtful."
 "For Heaven's sake, don't speak as if she were dead!" exclaims Dulcie, the "was" stabbing her to the heart.
 "Oh, let me go to her now—at once! Oh! if I had but come with her!"
 "It was the journey, miss," says poor, faithful Sarah. "She caught cold in the train. But there! you look as if you'd caught an illness, too, miss. You must have something—a cup of tea. Such a time of night, too!"
 But Dulcie scorns all offers of re-

WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK IN BED MOST OF TIME

Her Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"My health was so poor and my constitution so run down that I could not work. I was thin, pale and weak, weighed but 109 pounds and was in bed most of the time. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and five months later I weighed 133 pounds. I do all the housework and washing for eleven and I can truthfully say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a godsend to me for I would have been in my grave today but for it. I would tell all women suffering as I was to try your reliable remedy."

Mrs. Wm. Green, 332 S. Addison Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

There is hardly a neighborhood in this country, wherein some woman has not found health by using this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy.

If there is anything about which you would like special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

freshments. She bathes her face and cheerfulness, and then, with an awful sinking of the heart, is ready to face—the worst.

"You'll find her very much changed, miss," says Sarah, warningly, as she opens the door of the sick room.

But notwithstanding the warning, Dulcie is all unprepared.

"The little cold" has done its work with awful speed and completeness, and the thin, white face that looks up with the old, timid, deprecatory smile, bears already the sign-manual of King Death.

Without a word, but with a stifled sob, Dulcie sinks on her knees beside the bed, and kisses the wan face, and poor Aunt Fernor puts out a hand—alas! so thin and weak—and rests it on the glossy head.

And so these two who have loved each other, who have had until lately no separation even of a day, are wrapped in silence.

Aunt Fernor is the first to speak, and the alteration in the voice sends a cold chill of fear through Dulcie's veins.

"Why didn't you wait until morning, dear?" says the faint voice. "What a dreadful journey, and so late, so late! You didn't come alone, I hope?"

"Yes, dear," says Dulcie, trying to speak in her old, light-hearted tone; "yes, and nobody ran away with me, you see. Why"—with a sudden gulp—"why didn't you send for me before? I have been scolding Sarah mightily."

A faint smile, wistful and loving, creeps into the wan face.

"I didn't want to spoil your pleasure and cut short your visit, my dear; and you must go back in—in a day or two."

Dulcie makes a gesture of emphatic repudiation of the idea.

"But you must, my dear! It wasn't Sarah's fault; she—she is a foolish, frightened creature—she always was, you know, Dulcie!—she wanted to send for you the second day, I'm glad she didn't; you have had a few days more, at least."

Dulcie groans.

"If you had but sent for me!" she says.

"I thought I should have got better," goes on Mrs. Fernor, "but"—with a piteous little smile that brings the tears to Dulcie's eyes at last—"I haven't, you see. I'm afraid!"—

And so the few remaining hours of the night pass, and the morning breaks, still finding her true to her post, and still firmly refusing to leave it.

At midday the doctor appears, an old, white-headed man who has dandled Dulcie on his knee, and who lays his hand upon her head with gentle sympathy as he looks down at the anxious inquiry in the dark, piteous eyes.

He does not repeat the old formula of "while there is life there is hope" to her. The anguished entreaty for the truth, and the whole truth, can-tries to call back some of its old pause—"I'm afraid I sha'n't get better now, Dulcie."

The warm, strong fingers close spasmodically on the thin, wasted hand.

"You see, dear, I'm an old woman. I did not feel it until Dr. Brown remarked that a person at my time of life should be careful. Yes, I am an old woman, it seems. At any rate"—with another little weary smile—"I am not going to be much older."

"Don't!" breaks from Dulcie's lips, in an agony.

The hand caresses the silken hair with tender fondness and pity.

"My dear, it wouldn't do for us to deceive ourselves. In a few days—hours, perhaps—there will be one stupid old person the less in the world. And"—with a little weary sigh—"I shouldn't mind much, but—for your sake, Dulcie. It seems hard to leave you, dear."

Trembling, and with streaming eyes, Dulcie clings closer to her.

"Aunt, you frighten me! I—I can't believe it. It can't be true. It is only a cold; the doctor said so himself, did he not? You will, you must get better. See, aunt, I'll nurse you! I—I won't let you die! Oh, no—no! don't say so! I can't bear it. Oh, if I had but been at home! Aunt, you must have another doctor, a physician, to-morrow."

The old deprecatory smile plays faintly upon the timid face.

"Dulcie, dear, not all the physicians in the world could keep me here much longer. Dr. Brown knows me too well to be deceived. And—I shouldn't like to hurt his feelings by calling in any one else, dear. I've known him ever since I was a little girl. I think he was sorry to tell me the truth, dear; and I pestered him a great deal—rather unfairly; but I told him that you didn't like to be taken by surprise, and that I should like to prepare you."

"Oh, aunt! Always! me! Always for me; no thought of yourself. Oh, Heaven! how selfish I have been. Aunt"—with feverish intensity—"I have worried, and wearied, and tired you often in the old times; but I never will again—never, never! But, with a little bob, 'I loved you all the time! You never doubted that, dear!'"

The old lady shakes her head.

"Never, dear. Yes, we have always loved each other, we two; and you never worried me, dear, more than I deserved. I was a foolish, stupid old woman, while you were a quick-spirited girl! You were always good, Dulcie! with a little touch of pride that is very pathetic. 'Always, I don't think I ever saw a girl with brighter spirits!'"

Dulcie's head drops on the coverlid. She will need her full spirits now, and where will she find them?

There is silence for a moment or two. Sarah creeps in, and stands at a respectful distance; but the eyes of the dying are sometimes very sharp.

"There's Sarah with the medicine," says the faint voice. "Medicine is no use, we all of us know; but it's a little form that Dr. Brown likes to keep up, and I wouldn't hurt his feelings. It—it—is—only—sugar and water. I think, dear; but I take it, of course, because he always asks when he comes if I have done so."

Sarah administers the medicine, and comes round to Dulcie with the awful noiselessness that is so dreadfully significant to poor Dulcie, and the weary eyes close.

"She will sleep now, poor dear," she whispers. "You must take some rest, Miss Dulcie, or you will be ill! Come, miss!"

But Dulcie declines with a shake of the head, and crouches down with her face against the thin wasted hand.

And so the few remaining hours of the night pass, and the morning breaks, still finding her true to her post, and still firmly refusing to leave it.

At midday the doctor appears, an old, white-headed man who has dandled Dulcie on his knee, and who lays his hand upon her head with gentle sympathy as he looks down at the anxious inquiry in the dark, piteous eyes.

He does not repeat the old formula of "while there is life there is hope" to her. The anguished entreaty for the truth, and the whole truth, cannot be met so easily.

"You must bear up, my dear," he says, with a sigh. "She is very ill, very, and I am glad you have come."

"But," pleads Dulcie, with clasped hands, "is there nothing that can be done—nothing?"

He turns his head away, then looks at her suddenly.

"Yes, my dear; we can make her last few hours happy ones. That is something, is it not? Don't let her see you give way, she dreads that, poor soul, more than anything. I am glad you have come, my dear. Send for me if you want me before I come again, and"—and he takes her by the arm and draws her to the light—"you must take more rest, my dear—at once, mind."

Then he goes, and Dulcie returns to her post. The day passes, and the night comes again, and with it the angel of death draws nearer.

The thin, wasted hands, has got weaker, the voice feebler, and the weary eyes are loathe to open; but whenever they do they rest upon the pale, beautiful face they have loved, and the old, timid smile comes with them.

So the hours pass, pass as if with the unreality of a dream. At times Dulcie thinks that she is indeed dreaming; that she will awake presently and find herself at Holme Castle, sitting beside Hugh, or listening to the languid voice of Lady Falconer.

Was that only a dream, and is this a reality? She scarcely knows. Sarah's muffled tread as she goes in and out seems like the footfall of a ghost; the thin, wasted face lying so still and peaceful on the pillow at her side is the only thing that seems real and that she can cling to with any reality.

The night comes, and the thin voice is heard murmuring that beloved name:

"Dulcie."

"I am here, dear. I am always here. See!" and she lays her cheek on the hand.

"Dulcie, I want to speak to you. Is—is—Sarah—the doctor—here?"

"No one is here but me, dear."

The wasted hands feels blindly for the girl's firm one, and closes over it warmly.

Italy Faces Grave Crisis

Need for Three Million Tons of Wheat is Most Urgent.

Turin, Oct. 18.—The Italian government has re-opened its session at Rome under peculiar circumstances, two facts being so prominent as to make a Ministerial crisis possible. Owing to their nature they will probably be discussed only by secret session.

One has to do with serious riots which occurred in Turin the latter part of August, die, in part, by the delay in providing the town with sufficient bread, and in part to political discontent. The other question concerns the general food crisis that has broken out in Italy, which led to the resignation of the Food Controller, Gaspare Canepa; whose place has been taken by General Alferi.

The Turin riots lasted several days and the authorities were obliged to use machine guns, while some of the rioters were destroyed by bombs thrown from aeroplanes, this being the first time aeroplanes have been used for such a purpose. No reliable figures have been published as to the number of dead and wounded in the riots.

Calculations vary from fifty or sixty dead to five hundred. The latter number being given in the report of a non-Italian authority in Turin.

The question of supplies is especially grave regarding wheat, coal and wool. Italy produces no coal and must import all she needs. Her wool is insufficient, owing to the immense consumption for military clothing.

But the most serious of all is the necessity of importing this year about three million tons of wheat. Otherwise it will be almost impossible even with the restrictions imposed on bread cards, to reach the next harvest. The Government is being called upon by Parliament to justify its action with respect to both of these situations.

Whatever the result is, in view of the present ministry in power, under a new Cabinet, the minister determined to carry on the fight for the victorious end, and defeat the forces of the intransigent Socialists, who are trying to spread dissension among the troops and induce them to cease fighting after October 1st.

5 YEARS OF SUFFERING ENDED

The little son of Mrs. W. Adams of 489 La Salle Rd., Verdun, Montreal, suffered for over five years with the worst form of eczema. Mrs. Adams tried everything—look the child to various hospitals, where he received the best possible medical treatment, but it was of no avail. The doctors said the case was incurable. Then she heard of Zam-Buk and used it, with the result that to-day the child is completely cured of the terrible disease.

Mrs. Adams writes: "The eruption started on my little son's neck and spread rapidly until his body was entirely covered. It was terrible to see how he suffered with the burning and irritation. I took him to a hospital for treatment, but the sores became worse. I then took him to another hospital, where he remained for some time, and although the first he seems to be getting better, the improvement was only temporary, and the doctors finally pronounced the disease incurable.

"Five years had now elapsed since the sores first appeared, and I was beginning to fear the doctors were right, when I was advised to use Zam-Buk. This balm was so highly spoken of that I determined to give it a trial, and a few weeks after commencing its use I noticed a decided improvement. This was so encouraging that I continued. Gradually my boy got better and better until after four months of Zam-Buk treatment he was entirely cured and his skin absolutely clear.

"Although it is now six years since this wonderful cure was effected, there has not been the slightest trace of the disease returning."

Zam-Buk is unsurpassed for eczema, chronic sores, ringworm, bad legs, blood-poisoning, pimples, boils and piles, as well as for cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries. All dealers, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 59c. box, 3 for $1.25.

Authors as Pedestrians

It is calculated that Wordsworth, in his many years of sauntering, must have travelled a distance of 150,000 miles. What sights he saw during such prolonged and delightful wanderings only those who have the poet's mind and eye can even guess.

Charles Dickens was a confirmed tramp, and no doubt acquired his experience of "life on the road" from actual acquaintance with all sorts of vagabonds and odd characters.

One of the most remarkable of unprofessional walkers was Professor Wilson, the "Christopher North" of Litchfield. His life, physique and great endurance prompted him to the performance of wonderful feats, which seemed to him entirely a matter of course. He once walked forty miles in eight hours, and at another time walked a distance of eighty miles in twenty-four hours.

Henry Fawcett, also, was a tireless walker, and one who, when deprived of sight, did not think of relinquishing his long walks. He was a familiar figure on the roads about Cambridge, and there is no exaggeration in saying that few men blessed with all his senses could enjoy Nature more thoroughly than he.

Southey, worn and preyed upon by mental application and the practical anxieties of everyday life, found his greatest relief in tramping about the country.

John Stuart Mill delighted in pedestrian tours, and Charles Lamb, though he was a confirmed invalid, the country, was one who believed in sweeping cobwebs from the brain by brisk and continuous walking—Til-Bits.

Lair of the Gothas.

(From the London Chronicle.)

In view of the Admiralty announcement of the bombing of the Gothas in their lair at St. Denis aerodrome, near Ghent, a story told in the 'Petit Parisien,' in the beginning of the week is worth recalling.

The tale, told by a German prisoner taken by the British, is that on Monday morning an English aviator descended gently near a German sentinel. The airman asked him in the purest German where the officer in command of the Gothas was to be found, saying he had an urgent message for him.

The sentry replied: "The herr commandant of the Gothas lives where the Gothas are, but the herr lieutenant knows that."

"Yes, my lad," replied the aviator, "but in the fog I have missed my way, and now I am lost."

"Ah, yes, I know the same thing happened the other day to Herr von Schultz, my captain," and the sentry, with the greatest deference, forthwith gave directions how to get to the Gothas.

The aviator had hardly taken to the air when the sentinel noticed to his horror the British marking on the plane.

Russian Handicap.

Russia has fought all along under a tremendous governmental handicap. The amazing disclosures of the Sukhomlinoff trial sticken and exasperate the reader. As early as October, 1914, the Generals in the field were begging for shells. Then there came a lack of rifles. Hundreds of thousands of soldiers were sent into the trenches, and even into battle, unarmed, waiting to pick up the rifles of any front-rank men who fell. Often they were totally unacquainted with their use, even when they got them. During the campaign of 1915, the gallant and capable Brusiloff attributed all his misfortunes to want of munitions. At one time, he reported: "Yesterday the Germans fired three thousand heavy shells against the sector of our first regiment. They have swept clear everything. We could only fire one hundred shells." In June the report came: "We have no rifles and 150,000 men stand without arms." The following extract from the evidence of General Yanushkevich, Chief of the General Staff at the time, is as pathetic as it is maddening.

"When it had been decided to examine the state of supplies of shells to the Caucasian army, a Commission was sent down there, which included General Froloff. On his return General Froloff related the following fact: He had been invited by General Komandoroff, the leader of one of the sections of the Caucasian army, to come with him to the trenches to witness the artillery fire. In the words of General Froloff, Komandoroff had 'permitted himself the luxury of firing four shells.' No sooner had the shots resounded than the soldiers, baring their heads, began making the sign of the cross, murmuring: 'God be praised, our artillery is talking again.' When telling this story General Froloff broke down and sobbed. This story so profoundly impressed me that when I asked for shells I used to add that even a blank cartridge was of importance, and I ordered at that time to make use of all the available oil barrels."

In the face of such revelations, what can we say of the splendid Russian soldiers who marched against the well-equipped troops of the Kaiser, almost with bare hands, and produced so important a diversion as to save France and the cause of liberty again and again! The voice of criticism is stilled. The appalling casualty lists of the Russian armies are explained. The fury of these same soldiers against the officials who betrayed them and led them to useless and hopeless slaughter, is abundantly justified. It is no wonder that they were found ripe for revolutionary propaganda, and that they now think the German enemy less of a menace than a possible return to reaction. We must have infinite patience with them while they learn the stern lesson that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.—Montreal Star.

Too Nervous to Sleep.

Nerves Wrecked by Accident—Was Afraid to Go to Bed—Tells of His Cure.

London, October 26th.—"My sympathy was felt in this city for Mr. Dorsey, who met with a distressing accident when his foot was smashed in an elevator.

The shock to the nervous system was so great that Mr. Dorsey was in a pitiable condition for a long time. He was unable to get any sleep, and he required his mother's care nearly all the time. He feared a crowd, could not stay alone and could not sleep but for the help of a doctor. He was so weak and nervous that he required his mother's care nearly all the time. He feared a crowd, could not stay alone and could not sleep but for the help of a doctor. He was so weak and nervous that he required his mother's care nearly all the time. He feared a crowd, could not stay alone and could not sleep but for the help of a doctor.

Detroit doctors told what they could, but they could not get back his strength and vigor until he fortunately heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

There is no more accident that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proves to be exactly what is needed in so many cases of exhausted nerves. It is composed of the ingredients which nature requires to form new blood and create new nerve force. For this reason it is the best and most effective remedy for all cases of nervousness, and it is not exceeded by ordinary medicines.

Mr. Lawrence E. Dorsey, 33 Stanley Street, London, Ont., writes: "About three years ago I got my foot caught in an elevator in Detroit, which completely wrecked my nerves. I doctored with the doctors there, but they did not seem to be able to help me. My nerves were in such a state that I could not go down town alone, or go any place where there was a crowd. Sometimes my mother would have to sit and watch over me at night, and sometimes I could not get any sleep at all. But one day last winter I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had completely used the first box I could see a difference in my condition. I continued using these pills for some time. The result was splendid. I feel so much better, can sleep well at night, can go out on the street and attend gatherings like the rest of people. I am so pleased to be able to tell you what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done for me, and to recommend it to other people."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75. All druggists, or Equipment Bases & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

A Child Cross, Gets Sick and Feverish When Constipated

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated clean little liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Birds as Musicians.

The real musicians are the birds, and it is interesting to know that the young fledglings, in some cases at least, have regular singing lessons from the mother. A wren whose nest was in a box near a country house was watched by the family as she patiently instructed her little ones. Placing herself on one side of the opening, and in front of her pupils, she first sang her entire song very distinctly. One little fluttermore opened its mouth and tried to follow her; but after a few notes its voice gave out and it lost the tune. "Mamma Wren immediately took up the melody at that point, and sang it through as clearly as possible, when the youngster tried it again and finish triumphantly.

Then the mother sang again, and another nestling followed her, breaking down as the first had done, and beginning afresh. "Sometimes there were three or four failures before the tune was carried through," but the wren always began where the little one broke down and sang to the end. These singing lessons lasted for some time, and several of them were given every day.

THE MENTALITY OF THE AVERAGE GERMAN.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. Captain Von Salzmann, military critic and far Eastern expert of the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, warns his readers that they no longer have a right to count upon future war between Japan and the U.S. which became a fixed idea with the average German.

GERMAN RETIREMENT LIKELY ON THE AISNE.

Germany under pressure of the French victory on the Aisne may endeavor to effect a general retirement to a new Hindenburg line well in the rear of their present position. Various hints from German sources lately have indicated that German experts, recognizing the menace particularly to the exposed salient south-south-west of Laon, were preparing a new fortified line somewhere between Laon and their former front, to which they expected to effect an orderly retreat like their spring withdrawal as soon as the menace became a pressure. The French attack seems to have anticipated this strategy and the German withdrawal if made now under the hammering of a victorious opponent is likely to be quite a different operation from that planned.

AN AWFUL THREAT.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Attempts of the pro-German element in San Francisco to frustrate the Government's food conservation policy were reported to the Food Administration to-day by its advisory committee of California hotel men. A committee of restaurant men have informed me, says the Chairman, that a large pro-German element in San Francisco who patronize their places of business, are insisting on having beef served to them on our beefless Tuesdays and threaten if we don't serve them that they will cease their meals in their restaurants.

BIG LOAN FROM U.S. TO FRANCE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Another loan of twenty million dollars was made to France to-day bringing the total credits extended to the Allies by the United States to two billion eight hundred and twenty-six million four hundred thousand dollars.

"BONEHEADS."

WASHINGTON, To-day. The presence of American troops in France caused great astonishment to the crews of the Zeppelins L-49 and L-50 brought down by the French last Saturday while returning from the raid on England. The prisoners declared that not one of them knew of the landing of any American forces.

HOOVER REVIEWS THE FOOD SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, To-day. In a statement to-night reviewing the world food situation, Food Administrator Hoover said the fight against the sub. would be won if the U. S. and Canada could stimulate production and effect economy so as to feed the Allies from this continent. Ships, wheat and hogs are the great needs emphasized by Hoover. This country's pork consumption had increased during the war until production had been outstripped. The situation must be changed. If we discontinue exports, Hoover said, we will move the German line from France to the Atlantic seaboard. The production of fats is to-day a critical necessity for the preservation of the Allies and the maintenance of their constancy in the war. Every pound of fat is as sure of service as every bullet and every hog is of greater value than a shell. As to wheat, the Administrator said, the Allies' deficiency of production is 196,000,000 bushels, with imports of 577,000,000 bushels required for the maintenance of the normal consumption. He estimated the aggregate American, Canadian, Australian, Indian and Argentine exports at a surplus of 770,000,000 bushels, but pointed out that the lack of ships makes it necessary for this country and Canada to bear the burden of meeting the Allies' deficit. Placing the States' wheat export surplus from this year's crop at 80,000,000 bushels and Canada's at 150,000,000 bushels, Hoover urged that domestic economics should increase this country's surplus to 150,000,000 bushels. This we could do if our people would eat one pound less of wheat flour per week and one pound of corn meal instead. The question of who wins this war is who can endure the longer and the problem of endurance in a large degree is a problem of food supply and conditions next year are right, he estimated the wheat crop in this country at a billion bushels. For this the food control law guarantees a minimum price of two dollars per bushel. If the war continues this wheat will be vitally necessary, he said, but if the war should come to an end there will be no foreign market for at least four hundred million bushels. The Government must then take over the wheat and probably find a market for it at a very great loss. I should anticipate that the Government may lose from $300,000,000 to 500,000,000 on this wheat guaranty if peace arrives before the 1918 harvest is marketed.

Turning to the meat situation Hoover said that pork products were more vitally needed by the Allies than beef. In the matter of beef he said the Allies can support themselves without any consequential expansion of imports from the U.S. In view of the European situation and the American shortage in hogs he pointed out that there would be a higher average price for pork production and therefore it would be to the vital advantage of every farmer to raise hogs, adding, we need "to keep a pig" movement in this country. He also said that further production of sheep, both for meat and particularly for the wool extensively used in uniforms, is needed. Our American farmers, he said, would be wise to realize that for a considerable period after the war there will be a very poor export market for American bread grains, whereas there will be wide demand for meat products.

SMUTS' HIGH IDEAL.

SHEFFIELD, Eng., To-day. In the course of his speech here yesterday General Smuts, South Africa, said: We want to arise from this carnage and slaughter to a new and better world. We want to see more justice in this country, less poverty, less luxury. We want to see better standards of living, more economy, freedom and security for all workers in a world where there will be no idlers, rich or poor. To gain this end militarism must be swept away from the face of the earth. I hope we will never sheathe the sword, never make peace until we know there is no longer the threat of militarism as the principal achievement of war. There should be established a permanent machinery for securing peace. After the war we want to see arbitration that will prevent future wars. We want a league of nations with force behind it, ensuring that there will be no future threat to peace. It would be suicide to western civilization if this cataclysm is to be repeated. What is the good of peace? I would like to see a peace settling the vital issues that have been raised. The Pope would express no judgment on the conduct of nationals or the causes which led to the war. I can't agree. We cannot make a peace machine which becomes a scrap of paper. Germany must learn the lesson that war doesn't pay, that the wages of sin is death. Germany must not retain an inch of her war map at the end of the war. Let our motto be "No spoils to the spoiler, no peace until Germany is prepared to evacuate the countries she has invaded."

AMERICAN STEEL SHIPS FOR ITALY.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The Shipping Board agreed to-day to charter to the Italian Government 25 American commandeered steel ships of an aggregate of 100,000 dead-weight tons to relieve the Italian shortage of shipping and to transport vitally needed supplies. This action was made late to-day. Britain has been supplying France and Italy with shipping to meet its emergency needs, but cannot continue to do so in view of the increasing British requirements. Part of the ships chartered will be old, part new. Some may be taken from these on the way from the Great Lakes to the Ocean. They will be used between the United States and Italian ports.

CONFIDENCE IN FRENCH GOVT.

PARIS, To-day. The Chamber of Deputies to-day passed a vote of confidence in the Government by 288 to 137.

FINE PROGRESS BY THE FRENCH.

PARIS, To-day. French forces on the Aisne to-day continued their successful advance, capturing several important villages as well as two thousand additional prisoners. Since the beginning of the present operations, says an announcement made to-night by the war office, more than twelve thousand Germans have been captured as well as 120 big guns and many guns of smaller calibre. The text of the statement reads: Our troops carried out this morning a general advance beyond the positions reached last evening, extending to the Oise-Aisne Canal. The village and forest of Pinon are in our hands as well as the village of Parigny-laun. South of Pinon, where our patrols penetrated, we occupied the farms of St. Martin and La Chapelle Ste Bertine.

The enemy under our pressure was compelled to abandon important material, including a score of cannon of which several were howitzers of 150 mm. The total number of cannon captured by us since October 23rd is about 120, to which may be added several sundry machine-guns and machine guns. In the course of the day we took more than two thousand prisoners. The number of prisoners taken since the beginning of operation exceeds 12,000, of whom more than 200 are officers. On the right bank of the Meuse the Germans followed up their bombardment indicated this morning of our positions in Chaume Wood with an attack which our fire arrested. The Belgian Communication: Our artillery has been very active during the course of the last two days. On the 24th more than 20 enemy batteries were subjected to our destructive fire. Numerous observation and enemy works were violently bombarded. Barrage fires by our artillery and machine guns were carried out on the same organizations, while during the night the fires of destruction continued. On October 25th our aviators gave effective aid to these various operations. Eastern Theatre, Oct. 24th.: There was feeble artillery action along the whole front by reason of bad weather.

THE FRENCH VICTORY.

LONDON, To-day. The French forces in the Aisne region continue to develop their success of Tuesday, when they made an advance over a front of about six miles capturing important German positions and thousands of prisoners. The number of prisoners now exceed 12,000 and more than 200 officers. Two thousand prisoners were bagged on Thursday, and an indication of the rapidity with which the drive has been carried is the total number of guns the Germans were forced to leave behind them, aggregating 120, among them several howitzers, not to mention several hundred small calibre pieces like machine-guns and machine guns. The Germans had announced successes and on the west slope of Monte St. Gabriel enemy attacks were repulsed and the Italians even took several hundred prisoners. Not alone does the German War Office assert that the Italian line barring the way to the valley of the Flieth basin and Tolmino was overrun and that positions also were captured on Bainsizza Plateau, but that large quantities of booty were taken by the Austro-Germans and that more than ten thousand prisoners fell into their hands, including divisional brigade staffs. While operations on the Tyros sector of the front in Flanders continue to be carried out mainly by artillery, with the British and French guns hurling the greater weight of metal, the Germans have launched another strong counter attack south of Houthulst Forest where the British and French armies have joined hands. In air fighting on Wednesday night French airmen shot down or forced to land in a damaged condition twenty-five German machines. The retirement of the Ger-

HAIG'S REPORT.

LONDON, To-day. A report from General Haig to-night reads: A raid attempted by the enemy last night east of Loos was met with fire and failed to reach our wire. Early this morning two hostile raiding parties attacked our line north of Labasse Canal. One party was repulsed before reaching our trenches, the other succeeded in reaching our trenches but was driven out. One of our men is missing. We captured a few prisoners during the night in patrol encounters. Our artillery was active during the day on the battle front.

BRAZIL GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

RIO JANEIRO, To-day. Parliament will vote to-morrow on the question of authorizing the Government to declare that a state of war exists between Germany and Brazil and also on all necessary legislation for the carrying on of the war.

HARD ON MICHAELIS.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. Despatches from Berlin say that the German Emperor does not consider the resignation of Dr. Michaelis as Chancellor necessary and that it is therefore probable that Michaelis will remain in power.

2.00 P.M.

DUBLIN, To-day. The Sinn Fein Conference opened to-day under the presidency of Griffiths, founder of the organization. There were seventeen hundred delegates present, including many young priests. The Secretary reported that more than one thousand clubs had been organized with a membership of quarter of a million.

WILL STAND BY RUSSIA AND ROMANIA.

LONDON, To-day. In the Commons yesterday Lord Robert Cecil gave a categorical denial to rumors circulated by Germany that the western powers were contemplating a separate peace at the expense of Russia and Roumania. The Government, he said, is determined to abide by our Russian ally and assist her in the consolidation of her new found liberty. The Government also realized the great debt owing to the Roumanian Government and the Roumanian people can rest assured that this country will not desert her in the present crisis.

BRAZIL AT WAR.

RIO JANEIRO, To-day. The President of the Republic, Dr. Braz, has sent a message to Congress declaring that it is impossible to avoid noting already the state of war which Germany has imposed on Brazil. He proposes the seizure of a German warship now in the port of Bahia. The majority leader of the chamber discussed relations between Brazil and Germany and counselled the chamber to approve the presidential messages.

GERMANY UNEASY.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. German newspapers are uneasy over the French advance northeast of Soisson. Those at Cologne say it is impossible to minimize the importance of the French blow. The Volkzeitung says: We must not exaggerate the meaning of the French advance. It is only an initial success. We must not forget what resistance our brilliant troops have offered to a numerically superior enemy army. The Frankfurter Zeitung characterizes the battle as "Painful for Germany but not desperate and believes France's aim is the capture of Laon."

AERIAL WORK.

LONDON, To-day. With excellent results three and one-half tons of explosives were dropped on the Burbach works just west of Saarbrücken by naval machines. The damage caused was considerable, many fires being observed. Three thousand three hundred and thirty-five pounds of explosives were dropped on railway stations, junctions, good and sidings in and around Saarbrücken by another squadron. Many direct hits were obtained resulting in numerous explosions. One train proceeding to Saarbrücken received a direct hit from a big bomb and was destroyed. The enemy's anti-aircraft defences were strong.

EXACTLY.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. The Austro-German press has carefully seized the occasion of the statement regarding a basis of peace announced by the Russian Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates to reopen the discussion of peace, which they had declared closed after the reply to the Pope. One writer points out that the all important thing for Germany is to get representatives of the various belligerents around a council table and the rest will take care of itself.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN THE AIR.

LONDON, To-day. An official statement on aerial operations issued last night says: Last night factories and railway communications in the vicinity of Saarbrücken were attacked by our airplane squadron. At first the weather conditions, were good but later became bad, with rain and low clouds and a strong wind, rendering the return of our machines most difficult. On Wednesday there was a slight improvement in the weather on the British front, though drifting clouds and very strong west winds made observation and fighting over the enemy lines difficult. One hundred and fifty-four bombs were dropped during the day on enemy billets, twelve heavy bombs on an air-drome near Courtrai and seventy-one others on German troops in trenches and in the open. At times fighting was severe. Four hostile machines were downed by our airplanes, one was shot down by our infantry and three other machines were brought down out of control. Six of our machines were missing.

THE GERMAN RETIREMENT IN RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, To-day. It is considered in well informed military circles that the object of the German withdrawal beyond the Dvina is to consolidate the defence of Riga so as to make its recapture impossible. The enemy is also operating his Baltic front by about thirty miles, rendering useless positions of Russian army on which much work had been expended and necessitating establishment of other positions close to enemy's new lines.

BIG DRIVE AGAINST ITALIAN FRONT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. The great Austro-German drive against the Italian front, now in full swing, was fully expected by General Cadorna. For several weeks past he has been placing his army in readiness, selecting with great care proper defensive positions for the Italian troops. Official telegrams received here to-day declare that in addition to heavy reinforcements which the Austrians have received from troops withdrawn from the Russian front, many German divisions have appeared on the long front from Tolmino to the Carso, so that there are now twenty full divisions with a great amount of artillery in German trenches. The Italian headquarters recognized in this easy force confirmation of reports that have been leaking out from Germany and Austria of the conclusion reached by the German General Staff that the real issue of the war is to be fought out on the Isonzo and not on the fronts. It was also learned that the German general staff has freely conceded the high strategy and military ability shown by the Italian commander-in-Chief in his choice of positions. Many days of extremely cold and clear, made possible the beginning of the Austro-German offensive. This was necessary according to information received by Italian officials here, to encourage the suffering and starving people in the interior of Austria, who are thoroughly tired of the war and spirited by the long defensive campaign of the Austrians. BIG DRIVE AGAINST ITALIAN FRONT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.

The great Austro-German drive against the Italian front, now in full swing, was fully expected by General Cadorna. For several weeks past he has been placing his army in readiness, selecting with great care proper defensive positions for the Italian troops. Official telegrams received here to-day declare that in addition to heavy reinforcements which the Austrians have received from troops withdrawn from the Russian front, many German divisions have appeared on the long line from Tolmino to the Carso, so that there are now twenty full divisions with a great amount of artillery in German trenches. The Italian headquarters recognized in this enemy force confirmation of reports that have been leaking out from Germany and Austria of the conclusion reached by the German General Staff that the real issue of the war is to be fought out on the Isonzo and Tyrol fronts. It was also learned that the German general staff has freely conceded the high strategy and military ability shown by the Italian Commander-in-Chief in his choice of positions. Many days of extremely bad weather, which finally gave way to cold and clear, made possible the beginning of the Austro-German offensive. This was necessary according to information received by Italian officials here, to encourage the suffering and starving people in the interior of Austria, who are thoroughly tired of the war and spirited by the long defensive campaign of the Austrians. To-day's reports state that in this drive German troops for the first time have appeared on the Italian front, and German airplanes and much German war material on the Bainsizza Plateau. One German airplane was brought down yesterday within the Italian lines.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.

ROME, Oct. 25.

To-day's official statement says: Yesterday morning after an interval of a few hours the enemy resumed a violent bombardment all along the front with especially destructive fire on that portion between the southern slopes of Monte Rombo and the north edge of the Bainsizza plateau where afterwards a strong infantry attack was launched. The enemy succeeded in breaking through our advanced lines on the left bank of the Isonzo. Taking advantage of his capture of a bridgehead of Santa Maria and Santa Lucia he then brought the battle to the slopes of the right bank of the river. At the same time powerful attacks were made to the west of Volinik, on the Bainsizza plateau and on the western slopes of Monte San Gabriele, but they were kept in check by our troops which in the course of successive counter attacks captured a few hundred prisoners. On the Carso a violent enemy bombardment was effectively countered by our batteries.

HAIIG'S OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Oct. 25.

Haiig's official report reads: Following on the activity of his artillery already reported the enemy delivered another strong counter attack yesterday evening south of Houtholst forest. His troops were again completely repulsed. Successful raids were made yesterday afternoon and early in the night against the enemy's positions between Rosen and Gevelte. Many Germans were killed and enemy dugouts destroyed, and we captured a machine gun.

AMERICAN STEAMER ESCAPES.

A FRENCH SEAPORT, Oct. 25.

Escaping from a German submarine after a bitter fight lasting nearly four hours and with seven of her crew wounded, two of them seriously, an American steamer arrived here to-day. The timely intervention of an American torpedo boat alone saved the ship from being sent to bottom.

NO NAVAL ACTION.

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 24.

There has been no naval action in the Baltic or in the Gulf of Finland during the last two days. The Russian fleet is guarding vigilantly the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. It is not believed that Helsingfors is menaced by German successes in the north of Riga. No measures of evacuation have been taken except that families of officials have been advised to leave the Finnish capital owing to the scarcity of provisions.

KING ALBERT TO VISIT ITALIAN FRONT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.

King Albert of Belgium has decided to visit Italy soon. He will make an inspection of the Italian armies at the front and visit the trenches. The King will be accompanied by his Minister of Justice, M. De Wiart. Both have daughters in the Convent of Assumption in Italy, whom they will visit during their stay.

GOVERNMENT DEFEATED.

LONDON, Oct. 25.

Premier Lloyd George's Government suffered first defeat. Provision was made for the payment of a royalty of ninepence per ton. An amendment striking this provision out was carried by 44 to 95. The defeat of the Government is regarded as purely mechanical, and will not affect the Government's tenure of office.

THE WORLD'S WHEAT CROP.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.

The world's wheat crop is one per cent. less than it was last year for countries which thus far have reported to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. Cables to the Department of Agriculture from the Institute issued to-day place the production at 1,775,000,000 bushels.

The King Fishers.

Fifty drifters were steaming, with their fleets of nets adrift. With their miles of nets of strong steel mesh a-stretch athwart the tide; Their mizzens holding up their heads to windward, to the lift Of the lipper washing southward from the Adriatic's bride.

Three cruisers were cruising on the hunt for these same craft. Were a-cruising with their heavy guns all ready to be trained To command these little drifters, and to take 'em fore and aft. If they dared remain to do their gallant duty. They remained.

They remained and fought; those drifters till the potty little gun Which comprised the total armament of each was smashed or burst; And a dozen of the noble drifter fleet sank one by one. While Watt, aboard the Gowan Lea, cried "Strike! We'll perish first!"

Oh! the men upon the drifters, who refused to leave their ships, Although blasted, rent, and sinking; who dared all to "play the game!"

Let the story of their bravery be told by British lips So long as British waters wash the shores from whence they came.—London "Daily Express."

NOTE.—The herring has been called the King of the Fish, and in peace time the herring forms the chief spoil of the drifters.

Interesting statistics have been issued of the accommodation and transport arrangements made in London for the benefit of men on leave during a recent month.

The total number of persons engaged in the carrying out of these arrangements was 9,360. During the month in question 55,846 men—an average of over 1,800 a day—were conveyed across London and to rest-houses at hours when the railways and omnibuses had ceased running. For this work 815 cars and 472 lorries were used.

In the eighty-three rest-houses, which contain 10,500 beds, 160,760 officers and men slept—or a nightly average of 5,185. Still greater is the total of 515,613 meals served at the seven free buffets—an average of 2,373 at each buffet per day.

The free buffets which have been established at the principal termini for the past two and a half years for the purpose of providing free refreshments for sailors and soldiers, traveling independently are entirely supported by voluntary subscription and worked without exception by ladies who take no remuneration and pay their own expenses.

The number of lorries and cars referred to the total number of vehicles employed. As they are all driven by voluntary drivers, who provide their own vehicles and who cannot work more than one or two nights a week, only a proportion of these motors is operated at lightning speed by an electric motor. The cutter sends his knife with incredible swiftness along the chalk-lines, and cuts through sixty layers of khaki as if they were a sheet of tissue paper. A slip would mean the ruin of sixty sections of as many garments: but expert cutter is as sure as he is swift. The smaller and shorter lengths of cloth are cut by a saw. The saw is stationary, and the operator has to pilot the cloth, turning and twisting it to make the saw follow the chalk-lines.—Tit-Bits.

Although prices continue to rule at the highest level in years, there is no cessation in the demand for Newfoundland Scotch-Cured herring in the New York market. There have been a number of quotations on this grade among the trade in New York, but the market for fall herring has sold within the range of $20 to $25 for good quality. This same goods was offered ex dock a few months ago at from $9 to $12 by one concern, and others were willing to sell as cheaply. Higher prices have been obtained for small quantities, but the market has not reached the stage where it will accept Newfoundland herring at more than $25 at wholesale. The exceptional cases, according to merchants, have been in quantities below 50 barrels, and some lots have sold as high as $27. The quality of the herring now offering is not the fancy stock known in this market a few months ago. On the contrary it is an ordinary quality which in normal times would not bring more than $14 or $15 per barrel, perhaps less if there was not a good demand at the time of its sale. There is a scarcity of goods in first hands at present, but the jobbing trade seems to be well supplied. Locally the consumption of Newfoundland Scotch-Cured herring has not been lessened to any great extent since high prices came into vogue. The East Side is taking about all the herring it can buy, and the small herring merchants are rushed with orders. Likewise in Harlem the demand is good. The future market depends largely upon the fall catch of herring in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, and according to reports the prospects are not over bright. If there should be a small catch, it is probable that the price will soar; if the catch is large it may be expected that there will be a sharp break in the market during the winter.—New York Fishing Gazette.

Something very like magic is going on every day in the world of commerce. The demand for khaki is tremendous, and in a certain factory 30,000 uniforms a day are being turned out. A clever cutting-out process makes this output possible. Sixty uniforms can be cut out at one operation and by one man. Khaki in 20 ft. lengths is laid out on long tables until there are sixty layers. A designer chalks in the various parts of the pattern, and then comes the cutter with a circular knife that is used every night. The nightly average of vehicles is about twenty-three small cars and seventeen lorries, and that of men carried 1,822.—Tit-Bits.

It is doubtful, indeed, whether, except in the matter of arboricultural pursuits, the present Prime Minister has derived a precedent from any of his predecessors. The nearest approach, perhaps, is Mr. Balfour, who goes in for farming at his Scottish home at Whittinghame, where some splendid cattle have been turned out. The late Lord Salisbury found his principal source of recreation away from the cares of office in his laboratory at Hatfield House, where he followed the peculiar bent of his family in scientific and electrical pursuits.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who was an omnivorous reader, was never so happy as when staying at his beloved Dover; Mr. Asquith is credited with a passion for novel reading; Lord Rosebery, whose literary tastes are well known, spends most of his time between Mentmore and his Scottish seat; while Mr. Gladstone, when not at Dollis Hill, enjoyed a sea trip, or a sojourn at some east coast resort.—Tit-Bits.

"Tommy Atkins" on Leave.

Interesting statistics have been issued of the accommodation and transport arrangements made in London for the benefit of men on leave during a recent month.

The total number of persons engaged in the carrying out of these arrangements was 9,360. During the month in question 55,846 men—an average of over 1,800 a day—were conveyed across London and to rest-houses at hours when the railways and omnibuses had ceased running. For this work 815 cars and 472 lorries were used.

Good-Bye.

To-day Sir Walter and Lady Davidson leave Newfoundland. We have become accustomed to the coming and going of Governors, who have been to us in ordinary times little more than the representatives of our King, responsible officials whose appointment and departure concern us no otherwise than as matters of state. But these are not ordinary times, nor has Sir Walter Davidson been an ordinary Governor. He has been much more, and if part of the cause must be attributed to the unusual circumstances that have surrounded him, to himself belongs the greater part of the credit. He has risen higher than the occasion demanded, set for himself a higher standard of duty than his office, even in such a time, imposed, and continually exceeded his own standard. How far and in what manner he has done so we have already endeavored to show and it is sufficiently known to a grateful country. It will be a general regret, which we think their Excellencies will share, that they could not have remained in Newfoundland for the remainder of the war and shared with her people the rejoicings that will come with peace. They have been, truly and literally, at the helm of our little ship; and if it has attracted notice and won a word of praise for gallant conduct among the great armada, to their guidance large part of the cause is due. We are sorry that they must relinquish it, even to assume one more important and more responsible. It is not often that such a leave-taking character that seems inseparable from this one, and it is no disparagement of those who succeed the Governor and Lady Davidson to say that they will find it hard to fill the places that they leave vacant. They have earned the gratitude of the country, and it is expressed in the warm good wishes of the country, which they take with them.

The French Advance.

As we predicted on Wednesday, the French victory on the Aisne, which is being still pushed with vigor, has assumed a character of the greatest importance. The critic who writes the daily war review says that the Germans had evidently been contemplating a withdrawal in this region from the embarrassing menace which the French lines held out to a prepared line in the rear, in the same fashion as the retreat of March last; but that the French have anticipated the plan. If it is carried out now it will be under immediate compulsion, a very different matter from the execution of a deliberate purpose. The situation here brings us back six months, when the Germans had taken up their new positions after the retreat and this region was pronounced one of the most important on the whole line. It is, in fact, right at the angle which marks the change of direction of the western front, and any advance in strength by the Allies at this point will compel a retirement of the German line on both sides. If a cleavage in it is to be avoided, slowly but surely the German line in France is becoming untenable; that is the meaning of this victory. It is a most serious threat to Hindenburg's forces and will have the further value of offsetting considerably the enemy offensive against Italy.

In Memoriam.

Sergt. Frank Hannon of Hr. Main.

When the sad news of Frank's death reached Harbor Main there was deep and universal regret, but no place outside of his own family circle was it felt more than at Grand Falls where he was intimately known and esteemed. He was the son of the late Capt. Patrick Hannon and Mrs. Bridget O'Gorman and was in the 24th year of his age. For seven years he worked with the A.N.D. Co. Grand Falls, and at the time he enlisted he was occupying a foremost and lucrative position on the plant of that company. But when the call came "to arms for his King and Country," being of good old Irish stock he could not resist it. Donning the khaki two years ago, in due time he crossed over to France, and has been in the thick of the fight ever since. But up to the fatal day he had received neither scratch nor arrow and was in the pink of health. He stood high in the estimation of his fellow soldiers, and his estimable qualities and his heroic and brave deeds of conspicuous gallantry had singled him out for a number of decorations from his commanding officers, and although we find no V.C. or D.C.M. after his name to tell of his gallantry we know that characteristic of his race he valiantly played the game and that the memory of his valor will endure so long as there is one of his company left to tell of the heroic action in which he was killed on Oct. 9th and which he must have taken a foremost part. Sergt. Frank Hannon now sleeps the sleep of the brave somewhere in France. To his widowed mother, Mrs. Bridget O'Gorman, to his brother Patrick, teacher at Chapel's Cove, and John, P.T.O., Holyrood and sisters: Sr. M. Dolores, Pres. Convent, Aberdeen, S.D., and Sr. M. Columba, Pres. Convent, Carbonear, we tender our sincere and heartfelt sympathy and from all his friends we would ask them a remembrance in their prayers for the eternal rest of our fallen hero. How sleep the brave who sink to rest by all their country's wishes blest.

Trouble About New Prohibition Regulations

A dispute arose yesterday afternoon at the Government bond store or liquor controller's department, as to the date the newly adopted Prohibition restrictions were to become law. A representative of the Control Board and a prominent Minister of the Crown were the parties engaged. From what we can gather it appears that the Minister had reason to believe that the new regulations governing the dispensing of liquor were not to come into effect until November 1st next. The control member was of the opinion that the liquor regulations, as published by proclamation were effective at once because they had been gazetted. The Minister, however, maintained that he understood that as the view Controller was appointed to assume office on November 1st, therefore the new regulations were to come into effect at the same time. Meanwhile the Control Board representative was ordered out of the Controller's office.

Indians in the Great War.
Indians have been volunteering for service in the United States Army since 1861. In 1892 Lieutenant Scott, now Chief of the Staff, organized and trained a troop in the Seventh Cavalry, which was highly commended by the Inspector-General of the War Department.
The Indian is trained as the Swiss train their boys, so that they may be able to fire a gun accurately, and earn a living. He has all the qualities of a good soldier—endurance, patience, courage, and an instinct for scouting.
The Canadian Government recognized the great fighting ability of the many Indian nations and tribes who volunteered their services for King and country at the outbreak of the war, and there are hundreds of Indians enrolled in many of the different Canadian regiments at the Front. Many have made the supreme sacrifice, among the first to fall being

The Boy Who Loved His Mother.

She sat on the porch in the sunshine,
As I went down the street
A woman whose hair was silver,
But whose face was blossom sweet.
Making me think of a garden,
When in spite of the frost and snow
Of bleak November weather,
The fragrant flowers grow.

I heard a step behind me,
And the sound of a merry laugh,
And I knew the heart it came from
Would be like a comforting staff.
In the time and hour of trouble,
Hopeful and brave and strong,
One of the hearts to lean on,
When we think all things go wrong.

I turned at the alk of the gate-latch,
And met his manly look;
A face that gives one pleasure,
Like the page of a pleasant book.
It told of a steadfast purpose,
Of a brave and daring will,
A face with a promise in it,
That God grant the years fulfil!

He went up the pathway singing,
I saw the woman's eyes
Grow bright with a wordless welcome,
As sunshine warms the skies.
"Back again, sweetheart mother,"
He cried and bent to kiss
The loving face uplifted
For what some mothers miss.

The boy will do to depend on,
I know that this is true—
From his love with their mother
Our bravest heroes grew.
Earth's grandest hearts have been loving,
Since time and earth began;
And the boy who kisses his mother
Is every inch a man.

Naval Reservists Here From Hong Kong, China

By the s.s. Meigle which reached port at noon to-day, Royal Naval Reservists G. Wiseman, of Newman's Cove, B.B., and J. Martin, of Trinity, returned to the city after an absence of three years. Leaving here with the first draft of naval reservists in October, 1914, they proceeded to England and after a few days in barracks were placed on board H.M.S. Diana, doing patrol duty in the English Channel. On July 12th, 1915, their ship was ordered to report for patrol duty in the Far East and after a long and tedious voyage they arrived at a port in China and for one two years were actively engaged in watching the movements of German and Austrian, a great number of whom are to be found in the chief cities of China. On about twenty different occasions subjects of the Central Powers who were attempting to smuggle their way back to their own countries in neutral ships were taken prisoners. This often meant much delay to the ships on which the subjects of the enemy were travelling and neutral ship owners soon found that traffic of that nature was not the kind that pays and now only the most daring captain will run the risk of having undesirable on board his ship. On Sept. 26th Reservists Wiseman and Martin were given an extended furlough and on the following day left Hong Kong on board the Empress of Asia for Vancouver, B.C., which port they reached after a run of 17 days across the Pacific Ocean. From there they came across Canada to North Sydney via the Canadian Pacific and Inter-Colonial Railways. At the latter place they joined the Meigle for this port.

London Germans Among Prisoners.

Strange how you run across erstwhile nomad Huns, writes "Motor Driver" in "The Autocar." One of my gang of stretcher-bearers in the fighting-line, he says, had the pleasure of capturing his own landlord, a chap who had bought a house at West Hampstead, and then let it. I don't know whether to laugh or not, but my chum told him his place had been Zepped, and the bold head Hun let loose a most comprehensive flow of invective concerning the careless aim of his compatriots of the baby killing air squadrons. It may have been a little over the fence to let him fret about his house, but impartially speaking it was a bit funny to hear. My Hun tried to be conversational; he was peculiarly interested in the reports of London gutted, and no doubt in safe keeping he had a bit of a stock which he considered would be useful when the war finished. It is colossal, their arrogant demand for the world, and it's funny, too, their absolute destiny which cannot see the maniacal egotism that expects a treatment which on no account would be personally meted out were the positions reversed; but they are that way of thinking, and that is the fountain-head of this world-wide conflagration. Whether the German character will improve after the war remains to be seen. No doubt, like the wayward boy, a needful thrashing will require to be administered first.

Formality vs. Familiarity.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Do you believe in being quick to call new friends by their first names? I must say, I do not. Someone marvelled at me the other day because two friends whom I met about a year ago and whom I like very much, I still speak of and to as Mr. and Mrs. G. I should think you people would call each other by your first names," she observed, "it seems so stiff and formal to say Mr. and Mrs."

Perhaps it is. If so I like a degree of stiffness and formality at times.

I had never spoken her first name.

I tried the other day to remember the first name of a woman who was once my close friend—and could not because I had never spoken it.

A little formality keeps people from getting too close to each other too soon. You know what a familiarity does and that is especially true of a quick familiarity. Haven't you ever had friends with whom you were so delighted that you "rushed" them, and didn't you feel sorry afterwards that you didn't let the intimacy ripen more slowly?

Friendship should ripen slowly.

Emerson speaks of the danger of "sucking a sudden sweetness" from friendships. It is a danger which all young people are prone to run. Friendships, like fruit, want to ripen slowly to be more perfect. The fruit that ripens suddenly is apt to have a false heart.

Even between husbands and wives I believe in more "stiffness and formalty" than there usually is. It may serve as a cushion to keep the two personalities from getting too close, and perhaps save a little of the inevitable friction of their daily-life together.

I think Husbands and Wives might be Less Familiar.

I wonder what my critic who objected to my calling a year's friend "Mrs." would say if she realized that oftentimes our great grandmothers called their husbands Mr. So-and-so. I do not mean that I would advocate a return to such formality, but I do believe that husbands and wives should respect each other's privacy more; knock before entering a closed door; never open each other's letters; each let the other alone more; not try to make the other talk when he wants to read, not intrude on the thoughts by asking what he or she is thinking about when he chooses to be silent (as I have heard some husbands and wives do).

The Union of spirit will only be the closer and sweeter if each respects the other's individuality and allows him as much freedom of personality as possible.

THE BICYCLE.

The bicycle is a two-legged renascence which started out as a common carrier, but is now almost as rare as the chicken in a chicken sandwich. The time was when bicycles were as thick as wheels of fortune at a street carnival, but nowadays they are a bigger curiosity than a fresh egg.

The bicycle was put on the market about thirty years ago, and the first model was not intended to be used by anybody except reckless individuals who were at least three-fourths pure para rubber. This model consisted of a front wheel seven feet high, followed by a small wheel with a step on it. This step was responsible for more broken "silhouettes" than all the split balls ever thrown, as it had to be laced with one wildly waving leg, which usually ran into it in the wrong degree of longitude. This bicycle was also highly productive of the unpremeditated header, which ruined thousands of new Derby hats and filled the hospitals with people who had to be treated for a concussion instead of a vacuum.

It consisted of $12 worth of mechanism and $118 worth of patent rights, and did not net weigh much more than a prize steer.

There were so many accidents and dislocated ears as a result of trying to subdue this dangerous machine that the safety bicycle was invented. This had one big advantage over the high-wheel machine, as it could be mounted without climbing out of the second story window. It consisted of $12 worth of mechanism and $118 worth of patent rights, and did not weigh much more than a prize steer. When the owner of one of these early models had pushed the machine down to the postoffice and back, without having to stop for lunch and a Swedish massage, he felt able to propel a player piano through a four-reel overture without bucking at the knees.

The bicycle is ridden in these days mostly by messenger boys who are not in a hurry to reach any particular spot and by elderly citizens who have grown tired of acting as chambermaid for the family driving horse. A man with long, lithe legs can learn to ride a bicycle in a short time, as he can prop himself up at a moment's notice, with one leg pointing rigidly toward the setting sun. It is harder work for a short man, who usually has to spool a few picket fences before becoming proficient.

Owing to the rising cost of gasoline and differential gears, the bicycle is becoming more popular than heretofore with people who object to being towed into town after dark by some kind Samaritan whose time is worth $3.75 an hour.

At the Crescent.

"The Four Cent Courtship" is the Black Cat Feature that's shown in the week-end variety programme at the Crescent Picture Palace, Bryant Washburn in the lead supported with an all star Essanay cast. The daring Helen Gibson features in "The Open Track," another thrilling episode of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series. "Mr. Wright in Wrong," is a splendid comedy drama with Billy Mason. An educational scenic travelogue is entitled "A Railway Near the North Pole," and "A Disciple of Plato" is a rich Vitagraph Comedy. The usual high class musical programme accompanies the pictures; don't miss this, it's some show, believe me.

Your Boys and Girls.

The children of the poor, compared with those of the well-to-do, are not usually overburdened with the solicitous attentions of anxious parents or nurses. Their attention is usually directed in the direction of getting a living for the family. The poor children develop more rapidly, because circumstances demand of them quick decisions and the constant exercise of whatever resources they have.

On the other hand, the children of the more prosperous are handicapped by too monotonous an existence which fails to develop self reliance—a trait sometimes confused with self satisfaction. These children do not so readily show what there is in them; they are called upon simply to exhibit what the parents, teachers and nurses call for.

The only thing I can say to a mother is: Give your child at least as good a chance as ordinary folks give their children. Let her show what she can do when she is not coached or prompted.

Pulling Her Leg.

A good story is going the rounds just now concerning an American army officer, a member of one of New York's wealthiest families, up in London on short leave, and a young society woman whose knowledge of life in the States seemed, judging by her conversation, to have been derived chiefly from Bret Harte's stories of camp and mining life in the wild and woolly west.

Following a string of queries of a somewhat similar character:

"Have you ever seen a man lynched?" she inquired.

"Yes, ah, yes," she assured her brightly. "The last lynching I was at was just before I joined up. I was dining with some friends at a restaurant in New York when the waiter brought us some pudding that we didn't like. So we just strung him up to one of the chandeliers."

"And do you mean to tell me," she gasped, "that you took part in this horrible crime?"

"Well, not exactly," explained the officer blandly. "That is to say, I did not take part in the actual hanging; I was too busy down in the kitchen." "Busy!" she said. "Doing what?" "Shooting the cook!" he replied firmly.—Pearsons' Weekly.

Secret Wire From Berlin

Discovered in of $1,700,000
lied Spy, Now

Further evidence connecting the German Foreign Office with the transfer of a $1,700,000 fund by Count Johann von Bernstorff to Bolo Passa, who is now in prison in France, charged with being a spy, was revealed today by Merton E. Lewis, State Attorney General, who is conducting an investigation of the activities of Bolo when he was here in the early months of 1916.

In a series of wireless telegrams, which Mr. Lewis made public at the Murray Hill Hotel in the afternoon, the authorization for the payment of this money was shown to have come directly from the German Foreign Office in Berlin through the German representative of the Deutsche Bank in New York, with an office at 60 Broadway, produced the wireless message and gave the key to the code by which the names of the principals were kept secret.

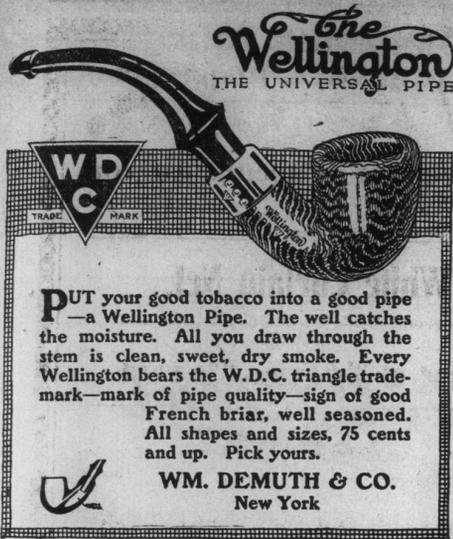

Schmidt, a well-set-up man of 40 or thereabouts, of decidedly military bearing and with a heavy jaw, resided in his rooms at the Murray Hill all morning. At first he was not disposed to talk, but when he was asked that practically everything he had done was known, he decided to reveal his side of the story. He was merely as a go-between, according to his tale, and knew nothing of the transactions aside from the fact that the amounts mentioned in the messages and the names of the principals were not what they purported to be. Where the money went or what was done with it, Schmidt did not know.

According to the code disclosed by Schmidt, Count von Bernstorff was Charles Gladhill, the German Foreign Office was William Foxley, and the Guarantee Trust Company who acted as the agent of the Deutsche Bank

Secret Wireless Code From Berlin to Bolo

Discovered in New York—Sum of $1,700,000 Paid Over to Allied Spy, Now Held in Paris.

Further evidence connecting the German Foreign Office with the transfer of a $1,700,000 fund by Count Johann von Bernstorff to Bolo Pasha, who is now in prison in France charged with being a spy, was revealed to-day by Merton E. Lewis, State Attorney General, who is conducting an investigation of the activities of Bolo when he was here in the early months of 1916.

In a series of wireless telegrams which Mr. Lewis made public at the Murray Hill Hotel in the afternoon, the authorization for the payment of this money was shown to have come directly from the German Foreign Office in Berlin to the Deutsche Bank of that city. Hugo Schmidt, a representative of the Deutsche Bank in New York, with an office at 165 Broadway, produced the wireless messages and gave the key to the code by which the names of the principals were kept secret.

Schmidt, a well-set-up man of forty or thereabouts, of decidedly military bearing and with a heavy jaw, was closed with Attorney General Lewis in his rooms at the Murray Hill all morning. At first he was not disposed to talk, but when he was told that practically everything he had done was known, he decided to reveal his side of the story. He acted merely as a go-between, according to his tale, and knew nothing of the transactions aside from the fact that the amounts mentioned in the code messages and the names of the principals were not what they purported to be. Where the money went or what was done with it, Schmidt did not know.

According to the code disclosed by Schmidt, Count von Bernstorff was Charles Gladhill, the German Foreign Office was William Foxley, and the Guarantee Trust Company who acted as the agent of the Deutsche Bank in this city, was Fred Hooven. Furthermore, where a telegram mentioned the sum of $500, the decoded message was $500,000.

These are the messages in the order in which they were transmitted between Berlin and New York.

The first from Schmidt to the Deutsche Bank, Berlin, reads as follows:

March 6, 1916.
Deutsche Bank Direction:
Communicate with William Foxley (Foreign Office), and telegraph whether he has placed money at my disposal for Charles Gladhill (Count von Bernstorff).
Hugo Schmidt.

The reply to this referred for the first time to the Guaranty Trust Co., which under a power of attorney was the agent for the Deutsche Bank in this city:

March 9, 1916.
Hugo Schmidt:
Replying your cable about Charles Gladhill (von Bernstorff), Fred Hooven (Guaranty Trust Co.) will receive money for our account. You may dispose according to our letter of November 24, 1914, to Fred Hooven, Deutsche Bank.

Schmidt communicated with the Berlin bank again on March 13. This was his message:

Your wireless received. Paid Charles Gladhill (Count von Bernstorff) five hundred dollars (five hundred thousand dollars) through Fred Hooven (Guaranty Trust Co.) Gladhill (von Bernstorff) requires further $1,100 ($1,100,000) which shall pay gradually.

Then on March 17, 1916, the Deutsche Bank sent Schmidt the following message:

You may dispose on Fred Hooven (Guaranty Trust Co.) on behalf Charles Gladhill (Count von Bernstorff), $1,700 ($1,700,000).

This was followed by a message from Schmidt to the Deutsche Bank on March 18 to the following effect:

Paid Charles Gladhill (Count von Bernstorff) further $200 ($200,000).

The three remaining messages which passed from Schmidt all had to do with the payment to "Gladhill" of the balance of the sum of $1,700,000. They were as follows:

March 20.
Deutsche Bank Direction:
Paid Charles Gladhill further $300. ($200,000.)
Hugo Schmidt.

March 24.
Deutsche Bank Direction:
Paid Charles Gladhill further $200. ($200,000.)
Hugo Schmidt.

April 4.
Deutsche Bank Direction:
Paid Charles Gladhill $483.50 ($483,500) as final payment.
Hugo Schmidt.

Schmidt was the only witness heard by Mr. Lewis to-day, and the investigation was adjourned until tomorrow morning. Mr. Lewis would not say what witnesses would be called, but he indicated that his investigation would continue until the whole Bolo plot, in so far as it was held in New York city, was disclosed. One fact the Attorney General has not yet been able to unearth is how the checks which went to Bolo were actually transferred from the Guaranty Trust Co. to the man now in prison in France. Von Bernstorff, according to the disclosures made yesterday, directed Schmidt to transfer the money from his own accounts to Bolo's credit. The transfer of the funds of the Deutsche Bank in the Guaranty Trust to Count von Bernstorff's account was apparently only a matter of book-keeping because the German Ambassador carried an account there.

The Attorney General made further revelations concerning the dinner which was held at Sherry's while Bolo was in the city. That dinner, an elaborate function, was attended by twelve persons. According to the disclosures made yesterday, William Randolph Hearst and Bolo Pasha were the only guests whose names were known. But to-day Mr. Lewis stated that in addition to these two, Mrs. Hearst, Mrs. Owen Johnson, Jules Bois, the French lecturer, who was touring the United States a year ago, and Adolph Pavenstedt, then of the firm of G. Amsinck & Co., were also present.

The Attorney General gave as his opinion that Bois and Mrs. Johnson, both of whom are French, were dupes and knew nothing of Bolo's activities. Pavenstedt was the man who arranged the transfer of money for Bolo through the Royal Bank of Canada. He was at that time a member of the firm of G. Amsinck & Co., but has since been forced to retire because of his too pronounced German leanings.

Acids in Stomach Sour the Food and Cause Indigestion

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sour, gassy, upset stomachs in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes. Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation. This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

THE HANDS IN WINTER. Pretty hands are considered a great mark of beauty, but even if your hands are not beautiful in the first place, you can, by careful attention make them look pretty enough to satisfy the eye. When the winter comes upon us it may be well for me to call the attention of the damsel who adores milk white hands, to the fact that her habit of swinging down the street in the cold weather with her hands covered only with a paste that I shall give will obviate chapping and will whiten the hands.

This helpful mixture is made according to the following formula: Fresh yolks of eggs, two drams; rose-water, one ounce; glycerine, one ounce; oil of sweet almonds, two drams; tincture of benzoin, two drams. Beat these ingredients together with a spoon or fork until they mingle smoothly then slowly sift in enough rice flour to make a very thin paste.

Cover your hands with the paste and when going out, if you object to wearing the dainty silk knitted mittens, which by the way are going to be the thing this winter, see to it that your hands are always kept in your muff when facing the chilling winds. Keep your hands warm and they will refuse to redden. This is a secret worth remembering.

It would be well to smear the hands with the paste at bedtime and draw over a pair of thing gloves.

Once you have attained your goal of white hands be careful not to court disaster again by going out in the winter air without first drawing on a pair of mittens or yielding your hands to the soft embrace of a muff.

NOTICE—I hereby give notice that on Saturday last I purchased at Public Auction the Fox Ranch and 21 Foxes, the property of The Exploits River Black Fox Co., Ltd., in liquidation, and will take over the property on November 1st. S. B. KESNER.—oct22.61

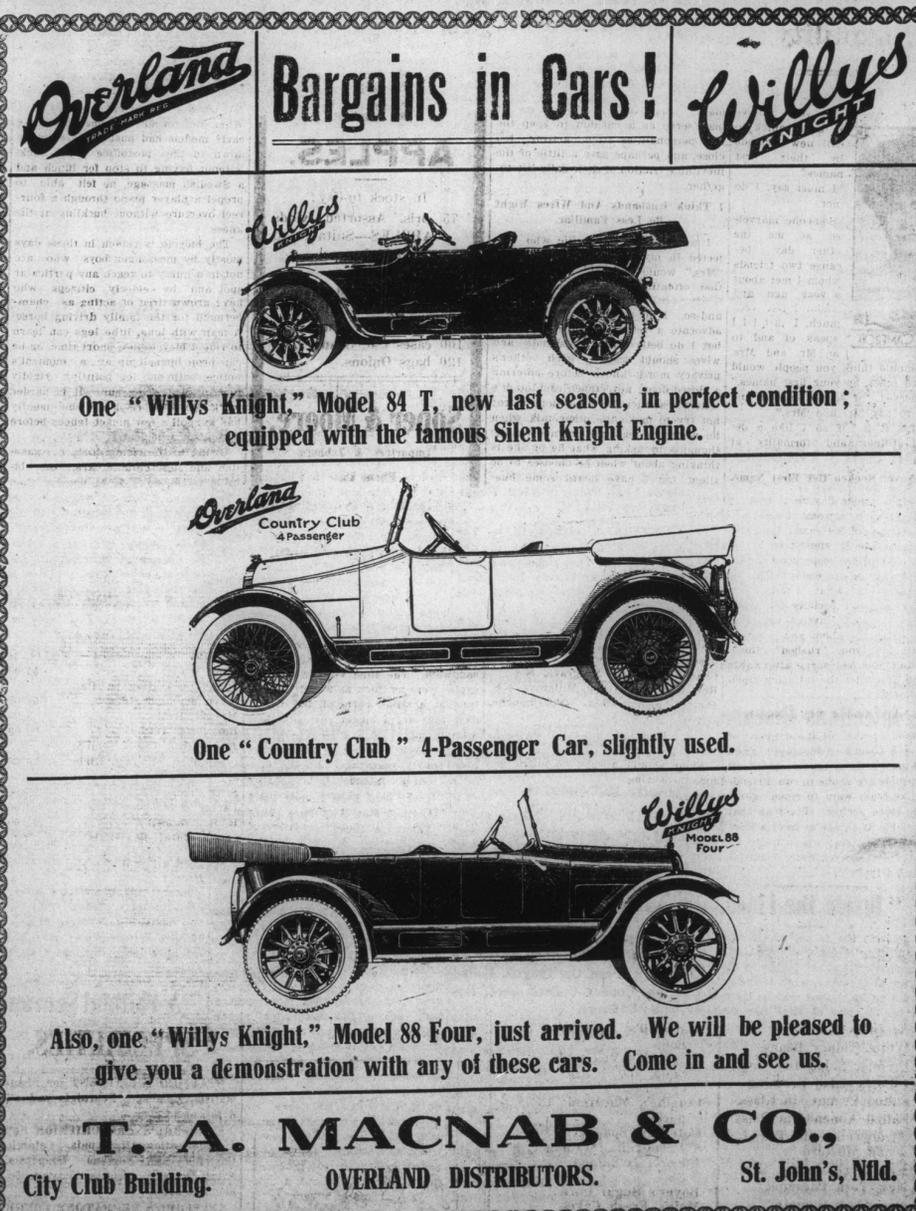

Try this Thirsty Flour

A very thirsty flour. Absorbs a lot of water. Because it contains so much gluten. Manitoba wheat is wonderfully rich in sturdy gluten. And, think of it, FIVE ROSES is milled exclusively from the very cream of the Manitoba wheat berries. So FIVE ROSES must be awfully thirsty, don't you see. In your mixing bowl it greedily absorbs more water. So you get more loaves than usual without using more flour. You use less. Your flour lasts longer, doesn't it? Less trips to your dealer. That's how FIVE ROSES saves money. Actually saves YOU money. Use this economical flour.

Food in season is economy. Glass jar are the best containers for cereals. Save all the string that comes into the house.

When flies collect on the outside of the screens, spray the screens with kerosene. Fish should be cleaned in strongly salted water.

When a quick fire is needed coal can often be saved by using pine kindling. Staples, as a rule, should be bought in bulk.

The Massacre of the Armenians by the Turks.

The Entire Faculty of a College Slaughtered, Together With 1,300 Others—The Murders Committed at Night by Order of the Turkish Government.

New York, Oct. 7.—The slaughter with axes of all the Armenian faculty members of Anatolia College, Marsovan, Northern Asia Minor, together with 1,300 others, by Turkish peasants, whose pay for the work was the privilege of stripping the clothing off their victims' bodies, was described here yesterday by the Rev. George E. White, president of the college, recently returned to this country. The massacres were committed at night by order of the Turkish government, he said, the Armenians being sent out in lots of a hundred or two to their doom and their bodies rolled into prepared burial trenches.

"Some groups of our college boys asked permission to sing before they died, and they sang 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' Then they were struck down," Dr. White said. "The situation for Armenia became acute in the spring of 1915, when the Turks determined to settle the Armenian question by eliminating the Armenians. The Armenian question arises from political and religious causes.

"On the pretext of searching for deserting soldiers, concealed bombs, weapons, seditious literature or revolutionists, the Turkish officers arrested about 1,300 Armenian men at Marsovan, accompanying their investigations by horrible brutalities. There was no revolutionary activity in our region whatever.

Girls Sold at $2 Each. "The men were sent out in lots of one or two hundred in night 'deportations' to the mountains, where trenches had been prepared. Coarse peasants, who were employed to do what was done, said it was a 'joke' to waste bullets' and they 'used axes.

"Then the Turks turned on the women and children, the old men and little boys. Scores of ox carts were gathered, and in the early dawn as they passed the squeaking of their wheels left memories that make the blood curdle even now. Thousands of women and children were swept away. Where? Nowhere. No destination was stated or intended. Why? Simply because the Armenians and Christians are now in the hands of the Turks."

"Girls and young women were snatched away, at every turn, on the journey. The girls sold at Marsovan for from $2 to $4 each, I know, because I heard the conversation of men engaged in the traffic. I know, because I was able to ransom three girls at the price of $4.00. The suffering was beyond power of words to express—almost beyond the power of hearts to conceive. In bereavement, thirst, hunger, loneliness, hopelessness the groups were swept on and on along roads which had no destination."

Soldiers Demanded Inmates. "I received word from Ambassador Morgenthau that our premises would not be interfered with. Next morning the chief of police came with armed men and demanded surrender of all Armenians connected with the college, girls' school and hospital. We claimed the right to control our grounds as American citizens.

"More than two hours we held them at bay. They brought more armed men. They again demanded surrender of the Armenians. I refused. They challenged me for resisting the Turkish government. They said any good-will was liable of immediate execution.

"They broke open our gates, brought in ox carts and asked where the Armenians were. I refused to tell. They went through the buildings, smashing down the doors. Then our Armenian friends, feeling that further attempt on our part to save them would bring more harm probably than good, came forth, professed themselves loyal Turkish subjects and offered to do what was required.

Took Seventy-Two From College. "An ox cart was assigned each family, with a meagre supply of food, bedding and clothing. The mother sat on the load, with her children about her, the father preparing to walk beside the cart. I offered prayer, and then the sad procession, carrying seventy-two persons from the college and hospital, moved away.

"These teachers were men of character, education, ability and usefulness, several of them representing the fine type of graduates from American or European universities. The company went in safety for about fifty miles. Then the men were separated from the women. Their hands were bound behind their backs and they were led away. The eight Armenian members of the staff of instruction of Anatolia College were among the slain. The women and children were moved on and on. No one knows where and no one knows how many of them are still living."
