CHAPTER XXIX

"You are too fond of me, child!" he demonstrates, half sadly, half laughingly, and then he moves restlessly and looks at the door, and Yolande drops her arms, which have been clasped around his neck.

"This isn't your own room, dear?" she asks, timidly.

"No, dear; it's the manager's," Dallas answers, hurriedly, in a low voice; "and I would rather he did not see you. He is a cad of a fellow."

"Then had I better go away?" she asks, meekly, but with a sudden pang as she realizes that Dallas is anxious for her to go. "And when am I to expect you?" she asks, after waiting several moments for an assurance on this point. "Late, dear, I suppose?"

"Poor fellow!"

"Late?" he repeats, staring. "What do you mean? To-night, my dear girl? I cannot leave here to-night! I sleep in the hotel, you know!"

"Well, when?" she asks, biting her lip nervously and flushing. "I thought I understood."

"My dear, I cannot leave my situation at a minute's notice in that manner!" Dallas explains, rather sharply, for the necessity he is under annoys him just at the moment. "I must give formal notice, and wait until my successor is appointed."

"How long?" she asks, feeling the dark, chill shadow growing colder and deeper each moment. "A week?" "A month, dear!" Dallas replies, in the same sharp, hurried manner. "Now you must go, Yolande! I hear that fellow, Davison's, voice. Hang it, here he is!"

The door is opened roughly and unceremoniously, and a tall, showy, flashy-looking man, with huge, black, glossy mustache and bold, wolfish eyes, enters the room and crosses over to a writing table.

"A thousand pardons, Dallas!" he says, with a smile at Yolande—a smile which is a leer—and a hasty bow. "Just a little matter of business—gone in a moment—sorry to intrude, I'm sure," and he glances keenly and appreciatively over the top of the paper in his hand at the young, girlish face and form, the shy eyes and flushed cheeks.

"It is I who should apologize for the intrusion, Mr. Davison," Dallas says, icily. "I took the liberty of bringing Mrs. Glynn—my wife—in here for a few minutes' conversation, as this room was the only one unoccupied."

"Mrs. Glynn!" the manager repeats, bowing and smiling, and curling the ends of his mustache. "Never knew you were married before—never knew your name was Glynn," he says, curiously; "knew it wasn't Dallas from something Daville said."

"You were wrong, then; it is Dallas Dallas Glynn," the other says, with a frigid smile. "We mustn't intrude on Mr. Davison, Yolande. I will put you and your servant into a cab."

"My dear, you must not come here again on any account," Dallas says, gravely, as he holds her hand at the cab door; "I cannot have you run the risk of meeting that infernal snob again! We will write to each other, and arrange a place of meeting some day."

"Very well," Yolande responds, quietly, "some day" sinking down like a weight on her heart, so glad and warm with hope a few minutes since. "Good-by, dear, now," he adds, with a hasty, backward glance. "Those fellows are all staring at us; they haven't seen me taking a tender adieu of a pretty girl before!"

He rather wishes she would not kiss him—she can tell that in some intangible way—but without a word she does put her lips to the cheek next to her, for she feels that tears will burst out with words.

And the cab drives on; and so ends another of Yolande's happy dreams.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the change of life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter-box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGLISHMAN, 2082 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Englishman. You should give it a fair trial now.

CHAPTER XXX.

The dull presentation of a boring trouble that has suddenly fallen upon Yolande hangs about her and follows her every step of the way home to the house in Rutland Gardens. Nay, it gets out of the four-wheeled cab with her.

"The bosom-weight, the stubborn gift that no philosophy can lift—and stands close to her side as she waits for a moment for the door to be opened.

There is rather an unusual delay in this being done, as if "the liveried menial" whose principal duties consist in reading the daily papers and opening the hall door were so deeply absorbed in the one duty as to be oblivious of the summons to attend to the other; and Yolande notices that a few persons seem loitering on the pavement near the house and over the way and watching her with glances of interest. But the moment the door is opened by the younger footman presentments are merged in reality.

"What is the matter?" Yolande asks, involuntarily stopping short on the great square mat.

"Master's not very well, ma'am," the young footman replies, with eyes wide open in dismay—that say much more than his mild phrases. "He—he was brought home—Mr. Sarjent came home with him, ma'am—in a cab; and the doctor's just come."

"An accident! Oh, poor uncle!" Yolande cries, her conscience reproaching her as she thinks how little she has known or even thought of her poor old-uncle's whereabouts or his welfare all this evening, absorbed as she has been in her own heart troubles.

"No, ma'am," the footman answers; "it's not exactly an accident; but he didn't seem quite himself, Mr. Sarjent said. Mrs. Sarjent's here, too, ma'am; and just as they were bringing him in—"

"He was took with a fit on the very spot where you are standing, ma'am," the butler interposes, taking the cream of the story from his subordinate—which act of high-handed aggression the footman resents bitterly for the rest of the evening. "It's a hapollectic seizure, ma'am, Dr. Corder says," the butler goes on. "Mr. Sarjent ran for Dr. Corder, ma'am; and now a nurse is sent for, as the doctor can't say how it will turn out, ma'am!"

Yolande is weeping, and Mrs. Brett is pale with alarm, but pleased to think what an important story she will have to tell Lady Pentreath and her fellow-servants in Harley Street presently; and the butler grows benign and imbued with a paternal dignity, as he sees himself suddenly at the head of the household.

"One minute, ma'am, and I'll send your maid," he says, opening the dining-room door. "It's a terrible shock to you, ma'am, and her ladyship not at home, either; but we are all doing what we can, ma'am. Shall I acquaint Mrs. Sarjent with your return, ma'am?"

"Mrs. Sarjent?" Yolande repeats, dazedly. "Yes. And where is Lady Nora? Oh, I know! Oh, dear! She is at the fancy ball!"

"Her ladyship wasn't above ten minutes gone when the poor master was brought home, ma'am," the butler says, confidentially. "The carriage is to go for her at two, ma'am, as her ladyship said she shouldn't be any manner of means stay late."

"Oh, dear me!" poor Yolande moans, wringing her hands. "Lady Nora gone for hours, and Aunt Karen seventy miles away, and—nobody to help me!"

A wild thought, but disastrous in its very wildness and boldness, flashes across her mind. She will send for Dallas! Surely at this late hour his duties must be nearly over; and the sight of his face, the sound of his voice, will help her to hear anything and everything. Her heart throbs fast in eager hope; she is ashamed of herself for the thrill of passionate selfish joy that runs through her at the thought that this domestic trouble may be the happy means of uniting them all in the bonds of pleasant family affection—Dallas, her lover and husband, and poor, dear Aunt Karen, and Uncle Elias—

"Mrs. Glynn is in the dining-room, ma'am," she hears the butler say as he opens the door.

And then came heavy footsteps, and the tones of a coarse voice, and the sound of a big, rustling, heavy-moving body, and all Yolande's hopes and wishes and ideas take flight.

"Oh, you have returned, Yolande!" Mrs. Sarjent says, severely, with a loud sigh, as she enters. "I am thankful that there is one member of the family at home at last! Wilmot and I have been obliged to send for doctors and nurses on our own respon—"

"Oh, aunt, do tell me how uncle is!" Yolande exclaims, sharply and impatiently. "Of course you have done everything that was right and kind, and I am very grateful to you. I was dining with Lady Pentreath, and Lady Nora has gone out."

Two Hundred Different Cheeses.

(John o' London's Weekly.)

Seeing what an interest most of us take in food, it is startling to realize how many sorts of food there are of which the average man knows nothing.

Take cheese as an instance in point. Some little time ago the United States Department of Agriculture set to work to find out all about cheese, and has issued a report which shows that the countries of the world make more than two hundred different kinds.

If this statement sounds a trifle startling, I might remind you that here in our own islands we make some thirty different varieties, ranging all the way from Exeter cream cheese to Double Gloucester.

The best known of English cheeses and the one most copied abroad is probably Cheddar; the best from the spicure's point of view is Stilton, followed closely by Wensleydale.

The Wiltshire, Derby, Gloucester, Leicester, and York are counties which each produce a well-known variety of cheese, while Wiltshire produces two sorts, "North Wiltshire" and "Little Wiltshire," to say nothing of its cream cheese.

With regard to English cheeses it is an interesting point that different parts of the country have very strongly-marked tastes as to the texture and colour of cheeses.

Norfolk people, for instance, prefer a cheese of a brick-red colour; Lancashire must have "Manchester White," while farther north a pale yellow or golden tinted cheese is in demand. So well is this fact known that the Canadian cheese makers colour their cheeses specially for the various markets.

France and Switzerland between them produce as many varieties of cheese as England. Of these Gruyere is probably the most popular in this country. Good Gruyere is elastic in texture, light yellow in tint, and should melt in the mouth. Interior Gruyere has a greyish tint, is dry, full of holes, and rapidly acquires an offensive odour. It is made from the milk of goats, Camembert, delicious when well made and well kept, is repulsive if over ripe.

French.

Roquefort and Brie are French cheeses well known in England. Post-Brie is too oily for some people. Roquefort, by the by, is made from sheep's milk and is richly veined with blue marblings. Mont d'Or is of goat's milk mixed with that of cows, is golden yellow in colour, and luscious in taste; one of the oddest of Swiss cheeses is Schapsieger, which is green in colour and so strong in flavour that it is merely used for grating on bread and butter. It is supposed to be valuable as a digestive.

Italians are expert cheese makers, and Gorgonzola, named from a village in Northern Italy, comes to England by the ton. It is ripened in the limestone caves of Ballabie, where the cheeses are kept on shelves until fit for use. Parmesan takes longer to make than any other cheese, for it must ripen for four whole years before it is fit for market. Gex cheese, made in the south of France, has a great reputation locally. The oddest cheese of all is perhaps the potato cheese, which comes from Thüringen, and which is flavoured with caraway seeds.

The wise folk frock for street wear has a convertible collar for added chic and convenience.

In Love With a Portrait.

REAL-LIFE ROMANCES IN WHICH THE TENDER PASSION WAS INSPIRED BY A PICTURE.

It is not only in fairy tales that a young man falls in love with a picture and seeks out and marries the original.

One such real-life romance is recalled by the death recently of Mme. Therese Schest, the wife of a Constantinian newspaper proprietor. M. Schest, when a young man, saw her portrait.

"This is the woman I would like to marry," he said, and never rested until he met her. A little later they married.

Another case was that of a Klondike gold-digger, who, seeing a copy of an illustrated paper, was much impressed by the youth and beauty of a society debutante whose portrait was contained.

He hung the portrait on the wall of his rough cabin. It soothed his loneliness through the days when he was "making his pile." And when, at length, he was able to return to his home country, a millionaire, his first care was to ascertain if the lady of his dreams was still unmarried.

She was, he obtained an introduction, and some time afterwards the wedding bells were set ringing for the ex-digger and his society bride.

1,256,749 Victims of the Earthquake in Japan.

Eight Persons Suspected of Murder of Italian Mission Arrested—Dempsey-Firpo Fight Draws Immense Crowd to New York—The Prince of Wales Landed at Quebec Yesterday.

LEWIS ATTACKED BY WAVE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 12. A bitter attack on President John Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, for stepping in and deposing the officers of District No. 26 when the recent strike had been practically won and on the eve of settlement, was delivered at the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress here yesterday by Foreman Wayne of Nova Scotia.

PAPYRUS DEFEATED.

DONCASTER, Sept. 12. Papyrus, the Derby winner, was defeated by Earl of Derby's Tranquill at St. Leger stakes to-day. Papyrus was second and Teresina third.

LIQUOR RUNNER CAPTURED.

NORTH SYDNEY, Sept. 12. An unnamed eight ton schooner and an unchecked cargo of liquor were seized by Inspector Lamonde, at Black Rock, Boulogne, this afternoon.

A TERRIBLE TOLL.

OSAKA, Sept. 12. What is reported to be an official compilation of the earthquake casualties estimated the dead, injured and missing at 1,256,749. It is also estimated that 315,324 houses were destroyed.

EIGHT SUSPECTS ARRESTED.

LONDON, Sept. 12. The Greek Government has arrested eight persons suspected of the murder of the members of the Italian Boundary Commission in Janina. According to a Rome despatch, the arrest of Colonel Botzaris, Greek member of the Commission, is declared to be imminent.

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE PORTUGUESE PREMIER FAILS.

LONDON, Sept. 12. Three Syndicalists attempted to assassinate Premier Sylva, of Portugal, to-day, according to a Lisbon despatch, but the attempt was unsuccessful.

PRINCE AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Sept. 12. The Prince of Wales, travelling as Lord Renfrew, arrived this morning in the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France. The Prince is en route to his ranch in Alberta, where he is to stay for a month, tasting the simple life.

60,000 CREMATED IN TOKIO.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. The bodies of sixty thousand dead had been cremated by the authorities in Tokio up to midnight, September 8th, the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs said in a telegram received at the Japanese Embassy to-day. The number of bodies unrecovered is very great, the message said.

YOKOHAMA MAY DISAPPEAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. The destruction of Yokohama is so complete that the Government is considering abandoning the site of the city entirely and rebuilding Tokio on a scale large enough to absorb the population and industries of Yokohama, according to a radiogram received to-day by the Japanese Times.

LOYD GEORGE'S TOUR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. David Lloyd George will arrive in the United States on Oct. 5th, and go direct to Canada, where he will deliver the first speech of his Canadian tour at Montreal on Oct. 6th or 7th, says a despatch to the Tribune from its Washington Bureau. The Tribune claims to have come into possession of the complete itinerary of Lloyd George's tour.

RELIEF FOR JAPANESE.

MANILLA, Sept. 12. The transport Melga has sailed from here for Japan with more than a million dollars worth of supplies for earthquake sufferers. The cargo included $960,500 worth of army goods alone. The balance of the cargo consisted of Red Cross supplies. Medical supplies sufficient for a population of 150,000 for two months, was sent besides.

ANXIOUS OVER CORFU.

ATHENS, Sept. 12. Anxiety here over the Italian occupation of the Island of Corfu has been increased by reported substitution of Italian police for Greek functionaries in Corfu. A Corfu despatch last Friday said the Greek Police Force were again on duty, but was serving under orders of an Italian captain.

TRIAL BALLOONS FOR HONEST INTENTIONS.

PARIS, Sept. 12. Having informed Berlin that negotiations cannot be opened in the reparations deadlock while the German policy remains one of resistance, the French Government is waiting to see whether approachment rumors emanating from Berlin are only trial balloons sent up to attract a full expression of French opinion or whether Germany is ready to discuss a settlement that will satisfy France. France adheres to her determination to make abandonment of passive resistance the first condition to opening direct negotiations. Premier Poincare let it be known that he will consider in a conciliatory spirit any well defined German proposal that made after obstructionist tactics have ceased, but is also said to be determined not to be led on by vague offers of negotiations.

THE COMING FIGHT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. New York has become the fight fans' mecca. Advance arrivals to-day of boxing followers from various parts of the country, as well as from overseas, pointed to a gathering of one of the most cosmopolitan fight crowds in history, when Jack Dempsey enters the ring at the Polo Grounds on Friday night to defend his heavyweight crown against Luis Firpo. It is estimated that from between two and three hundred thousand fans from beyond the Metropolitan limits will view the title struggle. More than five hundred uniformed police and hundreds of plain clothemen will be in attendance. Weather conditions are predicted favorable, but if rainy the fight will be held Saturday night.

GERMANY WILL GIVE REAL GUARANTEE.

BERLIN, Sept. 12. Chancellor Stresemann, in an address to-day, declared we are ready to give a real guarantee in order to secure the freedom of the Ruhr. He admitted that solution of the problem could not be obtained by passive resistance.

REPORT DENIED.

BERLIN, Sept. 12. The Soviet Embassy here describes the report of a revolt in Moscow and the assassination of Leon Trotsky as a fabrication.

ELIMINATION RACE OCT. 16.

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 12. The Gloucester fishing schooners will race about Oct. 16th, for the honor of challenging for the International Fisherman's Cup won last year by the Nova Scotia schooner Blue-noose. The Columbia, Henry Ford and Elizabeth Howard are believed to be the likely contenders.

NEGROES SEEK SAFETY.

SOUTHEND, Ind., Sept. 12. Between 1,000 and 1,500 negroes are reported to have left the city in the last 24 hours, following receipt of a threatening letter by a well known member of the Negro community here. Although no violence has followed receipt of the letter, many Negro residents, it is said, left for fear that their safety is in danger.

A Golden Wedding Record.

To celebrate a Golden Wedding is some distinction, for the average married couple does not enjoy fifty years of happy married life. To celebrate three Golden Weddings in one family, however, is rarer still. In fact, it is possibly unique. I have just been informed, by a Steatham correspondent, that two people in his district have just completed a sort of family hat-trick by celebrating their Golden Wedding. They are Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Johns. Two brothers of Mr. Johns have likewise enjoyed fifty years of married life. Thus, there are three Mr. and Mrs. Johns with half a century of conjugal bliss behind them. May they all achieve the Diamond Wedding stage!

Dr. A. F. Perkins has resumed his practice. —Sept 11.

Yes, We Have no Bananas To-Day.

MAKES A BIG HIT.

Mr. Tesori, in his rendition of this popular ballad at the Star Movie last evening scored a big success, and was greeted with a wonderful applause, being obliged at both performances to respond to two encores, whilst in his solo Sunrise and You, he showed himself to be a finished artist. The picture part of the programme with Herbert Rawlinson in the "Universal special" was followed with the greatest of interest from beginning to end. The big production "To Harb' And To Hold," which is to open next week, is going to prove another such production as Manslaughter, and it probably has more thrills than any yet shown here. Special music has been arranged for it, and this in itself will be a treat, whilst the picture is one no movie fan can afford to miss. For to-morrow night there will be presented a unique and novel stunt in the movies, and the audiences will be in line for a big surprise.

THE UPLIFTER.

I often hear my neighbors say, "That Mrs. Bunk is truly great, inspired, she goes her noble way, and makes dire devils pull their freight. Whenever there's a high crusade to battle sins we all abhor, we see Miranda Bunk arrayed in all the panoply of war. She leads a grand and useful life, as all the moralists agree; Jack Bunk should glory in his wife, but she's a grouch, she is he. No high ideals fill his soul, no fine ambitions spur his mind, but creature comforts are his goal, to things uplifting he is blind." And yet, although it be a crime, I sympathize with poor old Jack, when he comes home at supper time, and finds no fodder in the shack. No tempting pies does he behold, unwashed are all the plates and spoons; the kitchen stove is bleak and cold, there is no scent of stewing prunes. He's labored roundly in the mart dispensing gas for limousines, and with an aching, broken heart, he eats a can of slimy beans. His noble wife has run amuck to benefit her fellow-man, and Jack, who longs for roasted duck, must eat victuals from a can. And so when people wildly boast that splendid dame and all her deeds, I think of Jack who goes to roost without the wholesome grub he needs.

How Old is Mary.

Mary Miles Minter, the screen actress, is suing her mother in the Los Angeles courts for an accounting of moneys she has earned. During the process of the action many interesting points have come to light. Of course Miss Minter's name is not Minter at all; and neither is it Mary, and neither is it Miles. All pretty, but all unreal. Her name as a matter of fact is Juliette Reilly, and her dad is a proof reader on a paper down Dallas, Texas, way. Mother's name is Shelby, another mix-up, but no matter. According to Mary's evidence, she is now turned twenty-one, and as she earned large sums during her minority she demands an accounting. Film records introduced at the hearing show that Mary entered the celluloid business in 1916, and her stated age at that time was sixteen. If this is correct, she does, Mary is not twenty-one, sister Margaret, says Pa Reilly is all right. Mary is not twenty-one as she states but twenty-three. But along three as the screen records says she thirty herself. So there you are. The comes Pa Reilly who says that if he is, but thirty, thirty years old this answer is yet to be found to the kids knows anything about it, and he month. Witness No. four, Mary's elder sis; how old is Mary?

The British Empire Exhibition.

INITIAL STEPS TO BE TAKEN BY THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Just before the close of the Legislature, the sum of fifty thousand dollars was voted for the purpose of enabling Newfoundland to participate with the other parts of the Empire in the Exhibition to be held at Wembley next year.

The decision of the Government to act in co-operation with the Board of Trade will commend itself to all, and we congratulate the Prime Minister upon this practical expression of his confidence in our business representatives by leaving to them the details of the programme to be followed.

In our Advertising Columns will be found a notice of the meeting of the Board of Trade, which will be held at noon tomorrow.

The C. H. E. Examinations.

The summary of the results of the Council of Higher Education which appeared in the press yesterday presents them to the public at least in a new light, for it emphasizes the number of failures among the candidates who sat for the Junior and Senior A.A., the Preliminary and Primary examinations.

The criticism which appeared in the Daily News is very much to the point in this connection, but in stating "that it is emphasis of the conviction of many that the tendency is to push on the brilliant scholars to the disadvantage of the less gifted ones" may in a measure be true, but as it carries with it the idea of intention on the part of the teacher it is not correct in fact.

say that our contemporary's statement is made with the intention of misleading anyone; far from it. We feel certain that the Editor of the News is as sincere as we are ourselves in trying to account for the weakness in the system, but we are of the opinion that the fault is more far-reaching than the idea suggested.

It will be found upon a further analysis that the majority of the failures will appear in the lists of outport candidates, and the reason for this is obvious. Conceive a school containing anywhere from forty to sixty pupils under the supervision of one, or at the outside, two teachers. The subjects studied range from the A. B. C. of the tiny tot to the advanced work of the Intermediate. The problem which faces the teacher presents insurmountable difficulties which he should not be asked to solve.

The Colleges on the other hand are differently situated. Each grade of the work is in the care of a special teacher during every hour of the day. The anomaly of expecting one individual to be a specialist in subjects ranging from those used in the first attempts to instill knowledge in a beginner, to shall we say, higher mathematics does not exist.

It is undoubtedly with this view of the examinations (as well as others) in mind that Dr. Blackall, the Church of England Superintendent, in his last report says in part: "The more I think about this whole question and the more experience I gain, the more I become convinced that the examinations should be reserved for the top or leaving class of school."

The idea that all schools should bind themselves down to a series of annual external competitive examinations through all the stages of the education of the pupils from the age of 12 to the age of 17 or 18 has become repugnant to me. It is of the machine; there is little scope for original thought or method; no scope for experiment; no freedom; no joy save that of competition; it is the factory that turns the articles out much of the same shape and size by the gross.

Such expressions coming from a man who has had long experience in educational affairs must receive consideration. It must also be remembered that in a great measure he was responsible for the inauguration of the system at a time when Education required some such stimulus in Newfoundland. It would appear no longer a question of doubt that the stimulant has effected its purpose, and its continuance in gradually increasing amounts cannot but have injurious effects. Undoubtedly examinations are beneficial and necessary, but there can be even in a good thing indulgence to excess.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The Supreme Court on Circuit arrived at St. Anthony on Tuesday and left again for St. John's this morning for Little Bay.

Odd Fellows' Banquet.

VISITING GRANDMASTER DINED.

At the West End Restaurant last night, the Oddfellows of the city Lodge had a banquet in honor of Grand Master W. A. Mackay of the Grand Lodge of the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, who has been here during the past week on an official visit.

The affair was presided over by Bro. Wm. Quick, P.G., whilst the musical programme was looked after by Mr. Ben Fox. The most pleasing event was when Mr. James Carberry, P.G., proposing the toast "Our Guests," requested the Chairman to present to Grand Master Mackay a tiny white coat as a memento of his visit.

The following was the complete guest list:—The King—Prop. Bro. Charles Soper, P.G.P.C.P.; Resp. Bro. G. T. Phillips, D.D.G.M. and G.C. The First—Prop. Bro. Edward Spurrell, P.G.; Resp. C. T. James (Mail); P. O'Reilly, (Telegram); J. P. Moakler (News); R. T. Joy, (Advocate).

The Chairman—Prop. Bro. Isaac Sparkes, P.G.; Resp. Bro. W. T. Quick, P.G., P.C.P. AUD LANG SYNE. GOD SAVE THE KING. The affair concluded shortly before one o'clock. Grand Master McKay left by express to-day for home and en route will visit the Lodge at Grand Falls.

Big Variety Programme at The Crescent.

TO-NIGHT'S BILL HAS POWERFUL ATTRACTION.

The bill for the remaining three days of this week at the popular Crescent promises to "re-ignite anything yet seen." For variety and splendour is present in abundance. First there is an entire change of program of songs and dances by that versatile performer, Pat Harrington, who is ably assisted on the Bell and Effects by Jack Cronan and Al Pittman at the piano.

The pictures to go with this show consist of the remarkable feature, "In the Name of the Law." One of the smashing episodes in this wonderful production is the trial scene in which a brilliant young lawyer defends his own brother in his first case, and brings things out triumphantly in the end. The comedy subject "The Skipper's Policy" is one continuous scream that will keep the audience in laughs for at least a half hour. For a real good evening's entertainment, the Crescent certainly has it to-night.

MIRARD'S LINDENT FOR BREVETARIES.

A Lecture to the Veterans.

On Monday evening next Capt. G. Whitty, the Secretary of the G.W.V.A., will give a lecture to ex-servicemen only in the Grenfell Hall. It will cover the work done by the British Empire Service League at its conference in London on July 2nd, and reference will be made to the visit of the delegates to the Battle Fields and cemeteries in which many of their brothers-in-arms are taking their long rest.

The United Business College.

The first United Business College of Newfoundland opened on Monday in the Victoria Hall with an address by the Principal, Mr. P. G. Butler, B.C.S., showing the great value of commercial education in equipping pupils to become proficient as stenographers, typists, book-keepers, salespeople and clerical helpers for the business firms of the country. This training opens up a successful career to each student, affording the advantages of specialization and thoroughness.

Magistrate's Court.

An ordinary drunk was liberated upon payment of his fine. A foreign sailor was arrested last night at the instance of a resident on the Southside, charged with being a loose and disorderly person. Two witnesses who gave evidence stated that defendant was seen loitering around their premises between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock, peeping through windows and more or less frightening the neighbors. The accused, who could speak very little English, admitted his guilt, and said that he was looking for a cat. A fine of $2.00 for 7 days was imposed.

A Thrilling Drive to Branch.

Mr. Leslie Marshall in his "Chandler" car and accompanied by Mr. T. Reid and chauffeur Martin accomplished the rather dangerous feat of driving a motor car to Branch. The party left here on Monday morning last, going by the Placentia line and reached their destination at 9 p.m. after a thrilling run over the precipitous hills which prevail between the Cape Shore and Branch. On arrival in the settlement there was great excitement as the lights could be seen for a long distance before the car arrived, and men, women and children, many of whom had never before seen a motor car, assembled to give the visitors a hearty welcome. The return journey was started at 2 p.m. Monday, and the night was spent at Frobisher. A few hours was spent fishing in the pools at the Southeast, where some splendid sea trout are now to be had. The motorist returned to the city Tuesday night with not a feather out, though Mr. Marshall says "Never again." The feat is remarkable, owing to the almost inaccessible hills met with on the journey around the Cape Shore. In some cases the service of the emergency, foot brake and the engine in "low" had to be resorted to, to stop the car from going headlong.

Obituary.

Three passed peacefully away, on Tuesday, Sept. 11th, at 11.30 a.m., after a brief illness, at her home, 30 Lime Street, Annie, the beloved wife of Michael McLoughlin (Carpenter), at the age of 55 years. The deceased lady was a devoted member of the Roman Catholic Church, was well and favourably known and loved by all who knew her, being of a charitable disposition always ready to help the poor and needy. She was the daughter of the late Michael and Mary Power of Mobile (Ferryland District). She leaves a sorrowful husband, two sons, Michael and Stephen (Tailor), three daughters, Mary of the White Clothing Co., Annie of Hon. G. Knowling's, and Kathleen to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother, besides a host of relatives and friends who will learn with sorrow of her demise. May her soul rest in peace.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers crossed over of Port aux Basques by S.S. Kyle, and are now on the incoming express: Mrs. S. Leish and daughter, E. Snow, E. F. Olsen, D. F. Paul, Mrs. Kelly, Miss M. Sheppard, G. B. Brownings, Mrs. R. G. Jagger, M. R. O'Marve, J. A. Delaney, Mrs. J. Gardner, Mrs. A. Keating, Mrs. G. Morris, J. Maloney, Mrs. M. Forney, Rev. W. B. Bugden.

Successful Outing.

MEMBERS OF C. SPEND ENJOYABLE DAY AT SMITHVILLE.

Over 300 people attended the annual outing of the Columbia Ladies Association at Smithville yesterday afternoon. The grounds in and about Smithville were gaily decorated with bunting and flags in honor of the occasion. The sports programme which was participated in by both ladies and gentlemen, was both novel and interesting, and provided plenty of amusement for the gathering who had the pleasure of watching on. The programme of the sports and winners was as follows:—

Needle Race—1st, Harry Jones and Miss Thompson.
Ladies' Hobbie Race—Won by Miss Jones.
Table Race—Won by Mr. Campbell.
Table Race—Won by Mrs. (Dr.) Jones and James Organ.
Three Legged Race—Won by Doris Ellis and Jas. Bindon.
Table Race—Won by Miss Lamb and Harry Campbell.
Table Race (East vs. West)—Won by West.
Table Race (Ladies vs. Gents)—Won by Ladies.
At 6 p.m. supper was served by the West Furlons. In their usual well known style. The catering was all that could be desired. Mrs. J. F. McKeown, President of the Association, presented the prizes to the lucky winners. The beautiful cup for the winners in the Ladies' Tug of War, was presented to Miss Elizabeth Dunphy on behalf of the winning team. The winners in each case were heartily congratulated by all. At night a very enjoyable dance was held, the ball being being nicely decorated for the occasion. The Prince's Orchestra secured a delightful selection of music, and not one single hitch was noticeable throughout the proceedings. The affair which was the most successful yet held by the Association, did not terminate until an early hour on Monday.

Now a Centre of Interest in Newsprint.

ST. JOHN'S—Interest in the pulp and paper development of Newfoundland is being created by the visit of Sir Glyn West, president of the Sir Glyn West Paper Company, who is now in Newfoundland, also by the announcement of the formation of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Corporation. Sir Glyn West has gone to Newfoundland in connection with the pulp and paper plant being developed by his company under guarantee from the British and Newfoundland governments at Humber Bay. About $25,000,000 is being invested in this plant, and it is understood that Sir Glyn is accompanied by John Stadler, now general manager of the Canadian Paper Company, who is going to be in charge of the new plant in Newfoundland. Mr. Stadler has been acting in an advisory capacity for the Sir Glyn West Paper Company for a number of years, and it is understood that he is likely to give up his present position with the Belgo-Canadian Paper Company to take over complete control of the plant in Newfoundland.

The Anglo-Newfoundland Development Corporation, which is controlled by Sir Glyn West's interests, is extending its operations to all the St. John's Falls, with accompanying timber limits, has been purchased and here a new newsprint mill is to be installed which, when completed by the fall of 1924, will produce 25,000 tons of newsprint per annum. This added to the present production at the mill at Grand Falls will give an output of 75,000 tons a year. The company has also acquired a 500-acre interest in the new saw-mill at Alexander Bay, 90 miles from Grand Falls. This will produce 100,000 tons per annum. The company owns or controls 6,300 square miles of timber limits—Financial

Personal.

T. A. Hall, Govt. Engineer, who was on an inspection tour up country, returned by special car last evening. W. R. Warren, Prime Minister, returned by the Digby for England to attend the Imperial Conference. He is accompanied by Mrs. Warren, his Private Secretary, Mr. W. J. Brown, Brian Dunfield leaves for England tomorrow for England where he looks for his husband who is now a member in the firm of Messrs. Hawes & Co. Mrs. Dunfield's departure will be a loss to the city in musical circles. It has always been very willing to give its talents to all philanthropic causes. The sweet music of her voice will be heard for the last time when she appears at the concert of the Marise Disasters Fund. Mr. W. B. Bugden, is amongst the guests arriving by to-day's steamer from Canada.

Popular Stars in Contrasting Picture Roles.

Rodolph Valentino and Wanda Hawley Are Lovers in "The Young Rajah"

A splendid contrast is afforded by Wanda Hawley and Rodolph Valentino, leading woman and star of "The Young Rajah," a Paramount picture coming to the Majestic Theatre today. Miss Hawley is a blonde of the Dresden shepherdess variety; Valentino is, of course, dark and Latin in appearance. They make a very pleasing picture as lovers in this strange screen tale.

A moment of brilliancy, a mad tumult, a riot of color, of naked blades, of falling figures, of victors triumphant upon the throne they have usurped—that's your tiny revolution in the small Indian state. A night of storm and fury in New England—and an old couple ready for bed; a knocking at the door; two dark men with a child standing dripping upon the threshold; jewels poured from a bag; stacks of banknotes—a farewell and a small and miserable Hindu lad who strives to hide his tears at parting from the only friends he has known—that's the story of the adoption.

The gift of prevision—he sees his own death—his own meeting with the girl he learns to love; but he is rescued by faithful retainers in the nick of time. Then he sees in a vision the marriage of himself and his beloved in Hindu fashion—with all the wealth of gorgeous color and ceremony. The vision of the battle in the clouds in the years of ancient Hindu history, when Arjuna, commanded by Krishna, slays father and brother for the good of the race, is one of the most striking things ever portrayed on the screen; the same for the heavenly meeting between Arjuna and Vishnu. And by clever double exposure, Valentino plays both roles.

It is a picture that will repay a visit to the theatre if only to study the possibilities of the screen. But there is also good acting on the part of Valentino, of Wanda Hawley, Charles Ogle, Fanny Midgley, Pat Moore, Robert Ober, Edward Jobson, Joseph Swickard, and others.

Wedding Bells.

REID—BASTOW.
On Wednesday, September 11th, at the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist a very pretty wedding was solemnized, the contracting parties being Miss Winifred Reid, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reid, this city and Mr. William A. Bastow, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bastow of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Bolt. The bride, who was daintily attired in a gown of ivory crepe-de-chene with overdrapes of silver embroidered net with hat to match and carrying a bouquet of carnations, sweet peas and maiden-hair fern, entered the Church leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Walter Reid and was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel Reid and Miss Marjorie Bastow, sister of the groom. The bridesmaids were beautifully gowned in sage crepe-de-chene with black beaver hats and carried bouquets of pink and white asters. The Groom's present to the bride was a handsome pearl lather and a to the bridesmaids birthday rings. Following the ceremony, throughout which very appropriate music was rendered by the Organist, Mr. F. J. King, a reception was held at Donovan's where Rev. Canon Bolt proposed the health of the bride which was ably responded to by the groom. The groom proposed the health of the bridesmaids and was responded to by Mr. Malcolm Stone, best man. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bastow were the recipients of many handsome presents, testifying the esteem in which they are held. Amidst showers of congratulations and good wishes the happy couple left by motor for Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent.

Women Who Fight for an Empty Throne.

"Kaiserin" and the Crown Princess—
"At Daggers Drawn"—Hated, Plot and Counter-Plot.

Sensational Story of Intrigues.

No sooner does the threat of revolution and the overthrow of the Republican Government alarm Germany than two women, each continually keeping an eye on the throne, begin intriguing against each other. Herminie, self-styled "Kaiserin," and Cecilie, erstwhile "Crown Princess," both want it. The "Kaiserin" and "Crown Princess" say nothing, but their women are at daggers' points.

Heinrich Petermeyer, once tutor to the children of Count Bentinck, at Amerongen, now a Dutch journalist, has just visited both Herminie and Cecilie at their Silesian castles and obtained the first interview with the latter that has been granted. He tells how the "Kaiserin" and the "Crown Princess" evidence their hatred of each other and plot each for her own family's precedence to a throne which does not exist.

How the Trouble Began.

The trouble started before the ex-Kaiser's second marriage. Princess Herminie demanded the title of "Kaiserin" as the "Kaiser's" legal wife, which all the Hohenzollern Princesses contended was not hers by right. Finally, the ex-Kaiser insisted that Herminie be addressed "Your Majesty," and, obeying his energetic orders, his children gave in. But not so Cecilie. Cecilie refuses all contact with the ex-Kaiser and Herminie, telling me she does so "in the interests of my husband and my sons." The feeling of hatred is mutual. I have just spoken with both the persons in this fight for a throne, and, to use the commonplace expression, there is no love lost between them.

What the "Kaiser" Says.

When I spoke to the "Kaiserin" about the hopes of the "Crown Princess" for her family she replied: "The Crown Princess and I are not on a friendly footing. She does not want to recognize me as Kaiserin. She probably believes that through that she might harm the interests of the Crown Prince and her children. You may publish throughout the world that as the legal wife of the Kaiser I represent all his rights. Who will be the Kaiser's successor will be decided, I hope, in the most distant future. The Kaiser waits—ready to go back when Germany calls."

"Meanwhile, the Kaiser is not a sick man, as reported. He sees the reality with clear eyes, and the Kaiser is waiting for a moment when his people shall cry out to him from their deep misery. Then the hour will come when he and I shall return to Berlin, he as Kaiser, I as Kaiserin at his side, and we will show the German people their monarchs in their true form. It is not ambition which dictates my actions but true love, which compels me to do my hard duty, and no dark intrigues of our adversaries will prevent me from doing it."

Princess Herminie is an extremely talented and ambitious woman, and her influence with the ex-Kaiser is great. It is she who has enlisted the support of many Monarchists, who confirm the ex-Kaiser's hopes in himself. Here in Silesia Princess Herminie has her own newspaper. She has had journalistic experience, she writes well, and she does not hesitate in using the Press for systematic large-scale propaganda for her throne ambitions. On the other hand, Princess Cecilie insists that she represents both her husband and her sons, and claims that the ex-Kaiser by his second wedding, lost her last bonds of sympathy with him.

Against the Crown Prince.

Cecilie is administering her own household with wonderful energy, supervising the education of four sons and two daughters. But the power radiates through Germany from Doorn. Since Herminie took over the ex-Kaiser's affairs, she has organized sentiment. She stresses the fact that the people of Germany never liked the ex-Crown Prince, and many think she hopes not only to make herself Kaiserin, but to have her Royal-born sons by her first marriage declared the legal inheritors of the German Imperial Throne. So she concentrates upon everything to defeat Cecilie's pretensions.

Insanity Rumours—"Why Don't They Say the Kaiser Has Gone Crazy?"

She received me in her castle of Sanbor, Silesia, and said:—"There is talk abroad that the Kaiser's mind is clouded. Why don't they go a step further and say the Kaiser has gone crazy? Where do these calumnies come from? I give you authority to state that the Kaiser has fully recovered from his ear disease, and that his brain is more active than ever. We are sharing our work reading the same German and foreign newspapers. We clip the papers, and every evening the Kaiser holds a conference with his closest friends.
"Naturally sometimes he takes the liberty of criticizing the situation as his empire, and I want to stress the fact that his opinions on government and German feeling toward the spirit of monarchy are entirely different from those the Crown Prince holds. I regret that father and son disagree, but they will probably never come to an understanding. The German people should ask themselves now what the present democracy—the so-called—has given them, and whether politically or economically Germany's position is better now than it was when the Kaiser governed the world from Berlin."

Crown Princess and Poverty—"The Young Princess Sole Their Own Boots."

"I asked the "Kaiserin" to introduce me to the "Crown Princess," but she refused, laughingly saying, "Impossible! The Crown Princess and I never see each other. She refused to attend my wedding. She hates the Press, and I am a Journalist. We shall never be friends." I want to the Crown Princess's home, and asked her why she was not visiting Doorn this year. "The present family situation keeps us back," she answered. "I hope that the time will come when the German people will allow my husband, the Crown Prince, to return to Germany, so that he may breathe German air again and act as a father to his children. But we do not complain, we do not cry out; we only demand our rights as human." The ex-Crown Princess told me that she is very poor. "Financially we are distressed," she said. "We must live a very retired life, avoiding all contact with Potsdam. We must restrict ourselves to the simplest ways of living, and when necessary the young princess sole their own boots. I am educating our children so that they can earn their own living. Work never was shameful, and they shall all have trades or professions. I hope they won't take Castle Gels away from us."

THE MORNING MAIL.

The morning mail grows more and more.
And brings me little thrills.
I drop the circulars on the floor
And toss aside the bills.

"A wedding invitation next."
I open it and read the text:
I mutter with a grin,
"Our autumn styles are in."

Well, here is one beyond a doubt
From some good friend and
I tear the linen missive out:
The letter boasts a car.

This one on paper superlative
From Paris, I can't guess;
I read the first typewritten line—
About the newest dress.

Well, surely this one, scented, pink,
Is personal, I say;
But here is more speed printer's ink
Concerning stocks which pay

Friends may forget me now and then,
But should that chance to be,
I'm sure the advertising men
Will all remember me.

By Ruth Cameron.

"DON'T TRY TO ANSWER"

When you do anyone a kindness you do not mean to lay a burden on his or her shoulders, do you?
Yet there are people who make their kindnesses such a burden, and complain if those who have received them are not willing to accept the burden.
This is the sort of thing I mean. I heard a neighbor of mine criticizing a mutual friend of ours for rudeness. And the rudeness consisted in the fact that she had not answered a letter of sympathy sent to her at a time when she was very ill.
A Burden For A Convalescent.
Now I happen to know that this friend had had a long and slow convalescence. Like the rest of us she has a part to play in the routine of family life and she has tried to take up her household duties as soon as possible in order that the burden imposed on other shoulders by her illness should not rest there any longer than necessary. And that is the strength that she could summon.
If, in addition to that, she had tried to acknowledge all the kind letters her friends sent her at the time of her illness she would have placed a very heavy burden on herself. And so she has let the letters go for the present.

Which I think is just what any true friend would wish her to do.

A Wise Friend.

I have a very dear friend who has on several occasions written me letters of encouragement or sympathy or condolence. And each time she has ended the letter with: "Don't think of trying to acknowledge this in any way. I know what a burden that is and I want to be able to express the way I feel without making it a burden to you."
And knowing that she meant it, I have taken her at her word.
Moreover this cancelling of the obligation in so gracious a way has impressed me so much that I have adopted her gracious custom and end any letters of condolence or sympathy or congratulations that I write in a similar way.
When You Feel Like It.
Of course there may come a time when it is not a burden to answer and when you will want to respond to such letters. Or perhaps when you see your correspondent in person you can just press her hand and say: "Thank you."

I know the etiquette books prescribe an answer within a definite period of time either by formal card or by a brief note or thanks but I don't care. I believe in knowing the rules of etiquette and also in knowing when to modify them or to permit others to modify them.

A Four-Hour Day.

"O Dream of Rapture!" sing the lovers in "Tristan and Isolde." But without either their impulse or their ecstasy we can sing the same words with equal enthusiasm—if Dr. Chas. B. Steinmetz is correct in his recent little message to the world. Dr. Steinmetz is an electrical expert of international renown. He believes the time is coming very shortly when there will be no long, backbreaking drudgery, and when nobody will be working more than four hours a day. Electricity will do the rest.

It is a great and glorious prospect, and it causes a great and glorious feeling to creep over us and to make our blood go singing merrily through our veins. No longer shall we have to labor at that which wears without satisfying. For instance furniture will be shifted by merely connecting up the electrical furniture mover with the nearest socket. The dishes will wash themselves up in an automatically rotating dishpan, heated by wire coils. Floors will clean themselves when the violet rays are turned upon them, and similar treatment will remove all footprints from Persian rugs. Potatoes will rub their skins off through rubbing against each other in an electric rocking bath. Cabbage will shake its own leaves loose. Beds will revert to their original condition of inviting and immaculate smoothness, and pyjamas will fold themselves up, when the radio ironer sends invisible waves of electricity through the bedroom air from the wall socket.

But will it be entirely an unmitigated blessing, the relief from all work that worries? Will automatically cooked meals taste just as nice as those prepared by some devoted housewife? Will a room set to rights by the manipulation of self-regulating wave measures from an electric straightener or leave the same impression of the dete, aquatic touch, that marks the perfect housekeeper? Will a drive in an automatically driven automobile be as pleasurable or as comfortable or as free from nerve strain as one which the knight of the road labors strenuously at the wheel?

We fear just there be an embarrassment of relief from labor. Let us be free once and for all from all toil that degrades, debases or crushes humanity, in whatever form. But let us retain our right to do that work which is inspiring, which enables us to realize the dignity of labor and give us at the day's long ending that quiet, calm, supreme satisfaction of a task well done and rest well earned—the peace that Healey realized so well.—Montreal Star.

GUARDS SPORTS.

The third time is lucky. So it was with the Guards Sports yesterday afternoon, having been twice postponed owing to rain, got one of the season's best days yesterday. The result was that there was an unusually large attendance who were favoured with an exciting sport program.

100 Yards.—1st, S. Parsons; 2nd, J. Hamlyn. Time 11 1/5 secs. 200 Yards.—1st, S. Parsons and Raymond Halley. Time 26 secs.

Whippet Race.—1st, H. LeDrew and F. LeDrew; 2nd, J. Barrett and B. Sexton.

1 Mile Walk.—1st, T. Piercey; 2nd, F. Piercey. Time 8:35 2-5.

Throwing the Hammer.—1st, J. Howlett, 68 feet, 10 inches; 2nd, Ralph Stick, 68 feet.

3 Mile Race.—1st, W. Linegar; 2nd, G. Stone. Time 16:14 1-5.

Football Five—Guards vs. Star, won by Guards.

Tug-of-War—Guards vs. Truckmen won by Guards.

One Mile.—1st, H. Skirving; 2nd, G. Perry. Time 4:53 1-5.

Hop, Step and Jump.—1st, L. Spurrell; 2nd, T. Hall, 35 feet, 9 in.

Final Football Five—Guards vs. Saints, won by Guards, 1-0.

Half Mile.—H. Skirving; 2nd, R. Halley, time 2:15 1-5.

Tug-of-War (final)—Guards vs. Cadets, won by Cadets.

Obstacle Race—Won by Gower Stone.

Mr. W. J. Higgins was Field Captain and the programme was carried out with every despatch thanks to him and his committee.

Parsons, an untrained and inexperienced sprinter, has been throwing monkey wrenches into the athletic machinery all summer.

Nothing about starting yet he tied with Ray Halley twice yesterday in the 200 yards, which necessitated the Committee's awarding them a prize each. He also won the 100 yards against a string of favourites.

Tom Morrissey came back in great form, and with the regulation A.A.A. shot established a new record of 30 feet, 7 inches.

The two Pierceys won the 1 mile walk in splendid fashion, as did Skirving the mile and half mile.

The Tug-of-War was most exciting and saw the defeat of the veteran Guards' team after several years of straight victories. In the semifinals they pulled and defeated the Truckmen by a close margin. The Cadets had the bye. In their first tug the Cadets won by a few inches after the 10 minute period allowed was up.

In the second pull, the Cadets got the Guards on the hop, and were settled away before the Guards got down. This caused a little dispute but the judges held to their original decision and the Cadets were awarded the prize.

Billy Linegar of the Blackhead Rd. showed he could run yesterday when he showed his heels to Piercey, Willar, Ralph, and Stone. Absolutely a dark horse, no notice was taken of him, but when he clipped off his first mile in 5:06, and completed his second in 16:23 the racing fans began to open their eyes. He finished in 16:14 1-5, beating his second man, by over 200 yards, and lapping the rest of the field. Remarkable as his performance was it does not constitute a record as O'Toole in his 19 mile race the other day passed the 3 mile mark in 15:55 3-5. Linegar is a son of Mr. Tom Linegar who made such a splendid showing in the 90 mile "go-as-you-please" race in the Parade Ring some years ago.

This will be the final outdoor sports for the season, though the A.A.A. will be holding their annual Indoor Meet at a date to be announced later.

INJUNCTION AGAINST FIRPO-DEMPESEY FIGHT.

New York—Supreme Court Justice Magary late to-night reserved decision in the action brought by Harry Willis, negro heavyweight contender, seeking an injunction against the Firpo-Dempsey fight at the Polo Grounds to-morrow. Willis claims a prior right to box Dempsey for the heavyweight title.

Attorney William Klein, representing Willis declared State Boxing Commission has acted in a "tyrannical manner," and had not given Willis a fair opportunity to meet Dempsey.

Representatives of the Commission stated that no complaint alleging injustice had been lodged before them by Willis.

Counsel for Promoter Tex Rickard declared that he had spent $20,000 in preparation for the bout between Dempsey and Firpo and that if the fight did not take place he would lose $50,000.

SCORELESS GAME IN JR. LEAGUE.

The late finish of the Guards Sports spoiled the gate receipts for the big Cadet-Holy Cross game in the Junior League last night. No scoring was done in the first half, the game resolved itself into a dull, complicated, gentle reader, but there it is and who will eventually emerge from all this tangle and win the trophy, time will tell. In the meantime these "youngsters" are handing out good football, which should be appreciated.

TO-NIGHT'S JR. GAME.

When St. George's Field is unavailable, all future Junior games will be played on the Shamrock grounds. The Scouts and Wesley play there to-night.

ANSWERS.

ACQUATIC.—Previous to this year, the Channel had been swum twice in 47 years. Capt. Webb was the first in 1875, and Burgess in 1911. This summer it has been crossed five times.

ANOTHER ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP!

Saratoga Springs, N.Y.—Harry Willis the negro challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, will never have a chance to win the title while Jack Dempsey is champion.

The title holder made this declaration to-night after receiving word that Paddy Mullins, manager of Willis, had instituted legal action in an attempt to stop the Dempsey-Firpo match to-morrow at the Polo Grounds.

"This means that Willis never will get a chance at the title while I am champion," Dempsey said. "He does not deserve a chance after such tactics. I had intended taking him on if I still held the title after boxing and I will not do it now under any consideration."

"There is no chance for either Mullins or Willis or their lawyers stopping my bout with Firpo. I am confident of that."

Dempsey to-day started to ease up in his training, reducing his customary five rounds instead of the customary six or eight, and eliminated the work of attacking the heavy leather-filled swinging dummy. The champion's workout aside from his usual morning run and the boxing, consisted of a round each of shadow boxing, tugging at chest weights and punching the light punching bag.

Manager Kearns explained the reduction by saying Dempsey was ready to enter the ring to-morrow and that he did not care to risk the danger of having the champion become too untidy drawn.

N.Y. GIANTS PURCHASE HOME RUN SLUGGER.

New York—The New York Giants to-day announced the purchase of Moses Solomon, first baseman and star batsman of the Hutchinson, Kansas Club, of the Southwestern League.

TO-NIGHT'S SENIOR GAME.

The Saints and C.E.I. will play to-night at St. George's Field, the third game of the Tie Cup Series. Both will be strong contenders for the silverware and the clash should draw a large crowd. To-morrow night the Cadets and Star will play.

YORKSHIRE CHAMPIONS RESULT OF OLD COUNTRY CRICKET.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(By Canadian Press Cable)—Yorkshire won the County Cricket championship for 1923 with a percentage of 55.90, this being the second year in succession that the team has been victorious in the county championships matches. Last year Yorkshire's percentage was 51.53.

Nottinghamshire was again this year second, with a percentage of 68.00, having been runner-up last year with a percentage of 71.53.

Lancashire was third this year with a percentage of 60.00. In fifth place last year, Lancashire's percentage then was 56.42.

Surrey last year was third with 66.95, but was fourth this year with 58.26.

Kent, 55.35, was fifth; Sussex, 23.66; sixth; Hampshire, 45.92 seventh, and Middlesex, 40.30 eighth.

Rain interfered everywhere in the final games yesterday.

Gloucester, Sept. 12.—The Gloucester fishing schooners will race about October 16th, for the honor of challenging for the International Fishermen's Cup won last year by the Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose.

Doucaster, Sept. 12.—Papyrus, the Derby winner, was defeated by Earl of Derby's Tranquil at St. Ledger stakes to-day. Papyrus was second and Teresina third.

New York, Sept. 12.—New York has become the fight fans' mecca. Raymond Poincare.
THE MAN WHO KNOWS HIS OWN MIND.
By SIR NEVILLE PEARSON, Bart. in John o' London's Weekly.
"Failure," said M. Poincare, "should never come. It usually means want of preparation. There is no difficulty in getting what you want either for yourself or for your country, if you take time and trouble."
That little sentence gives us clearly as anything can the key to the character of the French Prime Minister, on whom at the moment all eyes in Europe are turned.
Whether we agree or not with Poincare the politician, we are bound to have some admiration for Poincare the man. Strength, courage, and patriotism are the keystones to his existence. Born sixty-three years ago at Bar-le-Duc (Meuse), in the much-disputed province of Lorraine, he was old enough in 1870 for the events of that tragic period to have left a considerable impression upon his character. He comes of a strong, virile stock, belonging to that upper middle class which is the backbone of French influence to-day. In his early days his ambition was to write, and his work even came under the notice of the great Daudet, who criticized it for him; but his parents did not feel that the pen was a sufficiently secure occupation for a young man, and acting upon their advice he began studying for the Bar.
Clemenceau's Epigram.
In the legal profession he had a most distinguished career, and the law in its turn had no small influence on his politics. He has always shown the legal quality of being unable to see any arguments except those of his brief. Clemenceau, with whom he was, until the war, almost continuously at loggerheads, in making a comparison between him and Briand, is reported to have said: "Poincare knows everything and understands nothing; Briand understands everything, and knows nothing."
M. Poincare is of medium build, with a high, smooth forehead and penetrating eyes. Work is the only thing that matters to him, and he gives his whole life to it. No form of games or sport appeals to him, and even when, as President of the French Republic, he was entertaining the King of Spain at Rambouillet, he declined to take part in the shooting party which had been organized for the amusement of the Spanish sovereign because he did not like to participate in the slaughter of birds, which he loved. Similarly, when he returned the visit by going to Spain, where he had a considerable political success, he would not attend a bull-fight which had been arranged in his honour. He has a great love of animals, and history says that two days before he was elected President of France he paid a special visit to his brother, Luden, because his pet goldfish was ill. I am glad to say that he managed to diagnose and cure the fish's illness.
Winning a Case and a Wife.
He had many interesting experiences during the time that he was practising at the Bar. He was the favourite advocate of all who were in any way connected with literature, and on one occasion he defended Jules Verne, the famous author of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." However, so far as he was concerned, I suppose the greatest case that he was ever engaged upon was the one in which he was acting for a lady client, when he marshalled his arguments with such skill that he not only won the case but the lady's heart into the bargain. His charming wife free his imagination with just as much zest to-day as she did when he fought for her and won in the battle in the Law Courts.
A Great Reader.
He is a great reader and a great thinker, and when he talks he talks perhaps not so volubly as is the way of many of his compatriots but with great force and directness. In 1914 he was made Lord Rector of the Glasgow University, an honour which he greatly appreciated, and when he visited America a few years later he was made a member of the Society of Philosophy at Philadelphia. No subject is too deep or too complicated for him. He delights to find interest in

MASTERPIECES OF FICTION THAT WERE DICTATED.
The man who walks about his study or lounges in an easy chair whilst his secretary takes down a dictated novel or article for the Press is sometimes regarded as a product of these modern days of haste.
Yet there are great precedents for both "Parallels Lost" and "Paradise Regained" were dictated. Milton was blind and unable to transcribe his own works. His method was to compose a number of lines in his mind, and then dictate them to anyone who happened to be handy.
Wordsworth, the great interpreter of nature, used to ramble over hill and dale composing poems. When, after his death, an inquirer asked an old village if he knew him, the old fellow said: "Aye, sure, I've oft seen him goo bumm'n' past." He was referring to the poet's habit of murmuring his lines as he walked.
Stored in the Memory.
In this way he could compose and memorize a couple of hundred lines. When he returned home he would call his sister or his wife to his side, and dictate the whole to them whilst they wrote.
Sir Walter Scott is another example. The whole of "Ivanhoe" and "Guy Rannering" was dictated to secretaries, who took turns in striving to keep pace with him. But it was not Scott's usual habit to dictate. He was unwell at the time and unable to write.
It is certain that the Iliad of Homer, as well as most of the ballad literature of the world, were spoken or sung for years, perhaps for ages, before they were committed to writing.

Forty Years Ago.

Oh, what changes in St. John's took place since that boy I rambled in by Rennie's River, catching "prick-les" in a can. When in the dam I swam, and among the fields I gambled, and to-day all come before me, as I muse, a gray-haired man.

The dress and salutations of those far-off days have altered. They're not at all like what the days of boyhood used to know. For those happy hours of bygone times, my love has never faltered. For I often dream and think and talk of forty years ago.

Oh, then there were no "stuck-up" airs among the rich or poor men. Ah, God be with the good old stock, time has left us but a few. Then at the Christmas season, you were welcome to each door, men. And they'd give a cut of sweet cake and a drop of stuff to you.

But now 'tis dress and pleasure, and 'tis gold that folks are hunting. To get rich quick they're planning as their records plainly show. And if you haven't got the "dubs" your "friends" will you be shunting. But I tell you that it wasn't so some forty years ago.

At that time I am sure a sport would think himself a merry man. At a cricket match at Pleasantville, or playin' a game of "draw," or if he drove to Topsall long with Daniel Kane, "the Kerryman" Or at the beach, a "tag" with no fear of the law.

Talk how you may 'bout pleasure now, of dress and all we see, Sir. Of learned and polished ladies, and of gentlemen, also; But for modesty and honesty, and kindness, you'll agree, Sir. Folks are not like what they were some forty years ago.

St. John's, Sept. 13th, 1923.

Wedding Bells.

DEE-DEVEREUX.

The Oratory of the Sacred Convent of Mercy, Military Road, which has been the scene of many beautiful ceremonies, presented one of the prettiest of the season on Tuesday evening, when Miss Alice Dee, only daughter of J. H. and Mrs. Dee was joined in Holy Matrimony to Mr. Frank J. Devereux, son of Mr. E. J. Devereux of the G.P.O. The nuptial knot was tied by the brother of the bride, Rev. Adrian Dee, P.P., of Argentea, while the very solemn exhortation with which the Church practices the marriage service was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Carter of the Cathedral. The bridesmaids were Misses Mary Bates and Isabella Calahan, while Mr. Gerald Foley supported the groom. Mr. Jack Dee and P. Dobbin performed the duties of ushers. The bride entered the Church on the arm of her father to the strain of the Mendelssohn's Wedding March beautifully rendered by Mrs. Bernard Norris. The Church altar was tastefully decorated by the good Sisters from whom the bride received her education. The bride wore a dress of ivory satin trimmed with pearls and veil of tulle with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaids were attired in henna canton crepe and robin blue with corsage bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern. Following the ceremony the party adjourned to Smithville where the reception was held. After supper the health of the bride was proposed by the Rev. Dr. Carter in his own inimitable style, which was suitably responded to by the groom. The health of the parents of the bride and groom to which was coupled the name of the groom's uncle Mr. Thomas Bates was proposed by Mr. George Kearney and responded to by the brides father. The toast of the bridesmaids was made by the groom to which the best man Mr. Gerald Foley replied. Especially mention should be made of the solos rendered by the Rev. Dr. Carter, Mrs. Comer and E. O'Hagan. Amid the best wishes of the assembled friends the happy couple left for Donovan's where the honeymoon will be spent. An enjoyable dance was kept up until a late hour. The bride and groom leave about the end of the month for Punta Alegre, Cuba, their future home, where the groom holds a responsible position. The many beautiful presents received testify to the esteem in which the young couple are held.

Silver Cliff Mine.

HIGH CLASS CONCENTRATES PRODUCED.

Mr. W. A. McKay, Manager of the Silver Cliff Mine at Argentea, is at present in the city on a short business trip. He reports splendid progress being made at the mine. A new motor fuel oil engine put in motion yesterday has been found to work satisfactorily, so that the crushing of the stock pile of ore consisting of several hundred tons, will be started immediately, and the mine resume operations on a three-shift scale. The concentrating plant will also work night and day, this being facilitated by the installation of an electric lighting plant, the power for which will be taken from the 75 h.p. motor engine. The concentrates produced to date run $2.75 lead which is said to be within one half per cent. of a world's record. When one realizes that the best concentrates coming out of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, the largest lead producing district in the United States, run but 60 p.c. a big vista appears for the possibilities of galena concentration in Newfoundland, as there are many known deposits of galena needs capital and initiation to develop. Should two or three operations such as Silver Cliff materialize the inevitable result would be the establishment of a local smelter works.

The professional fisherman has an equal dislike of seeing a cat when setting out, and he thinks it is a bad omen to meet a flat-footed person. The worst thing that can happen, however, at such a time is for anyone to throw water on him. This means that he will not only catch no fish, but also stands a good chance of being drowned before the cruise is over.

A boat in which you are going some fishing must never be used for any other purpose. Another common belief is that in the course of fishing, the boat must never be turned the opposite way to the course of the sun.

When Salt is "Taboo"

Scottish fishermen are not fond of salt, and it is considered an unfortunate event if a line is the first fish brought up on the line. The rest of the catch is sure to be a poor one. In the far North it is considered unlucky to look at bait when it is fresh, while if a man wants to put an evil spell upon the whole trip the safest way is to either mention "minister," or "kirk."

To go fishing on Sunday is considered very wrong in Scotland and in Cornwall, but if you really want to risk your luck for a whole year the safest way to do it is to go fishing on Christmas Day.

A Golden Bubble That Burst.

The skipper of the yacht just back from Labrador, who declared that there is not enough gold in Labrador to fill a tooth, is probably guilty of as great an exaggeration as those who sent out the wild tales of the fabulously rich placer mining deposits of St. Bay. However, there is nevertheless information contained in the skipper's report and that is that the alleged placer fields are non-existent. Labrador's vast wilderness may sometime produce gold. It has the formation, but the gold will not come by the easy placer method. As a mining engineer, who returned to civilization with the skipper, succinctly put it, "the man who says there's gold in paying quantities in St. Bay is a bally liar."

This information will prove a blow to many optimistic souls who, carried away by the rosy stories of the riches to be had, put up their funds for leases. The Financial Post constantly warned against this wild gamble. It suggested that those who desired speculation in mining ventures should rather turn their attention to established mining fields in other parts of Newfoundland.—Financial Post.

Omens That Frighten Fishermen.

WHEN "GOOD LUCK" BRINGS BAD LUCK.

When fishing is such an uncertain sport that it is not surprising to find that almost every angler has his pet superstitions.

Nearly every angler starting out for a day's sport will spend some time making sure that he has everything he needs. Flies, casts, hooks, bait, sandwiches, flask, scissors and knife, reel, spare line—everything must be with him when he leaves the house.

The reason is that once he has started he must not turn back; if he does he believes he will return with an empty creel. The writer has known a man to go off without his landing net, and although he remembered before he had gone a quarter of a mile from home, nothing would induce him to return for that essential property.

People Anglers Hate.

This type of fisherman hates to be wished "good luck." Such a greeting he considers fatal to his chances of sport. If there is one thing worse, it is for some kindly busybody to stop and ask him how many fish he has caught. However well he has been doing up to date, that question will certainly put a stopper on any catch for the rest of the day.

The superstitious angler often pins his faith to some particular garment. One well known West of England sportsman never thinks of wearing any other headgear than an old tweed hat. It is falling to pieces with age, its original color has quite gone, and its fabric is full of old flies. It no longer affords any real protection from sun or rain, yet it remains the owner's mascot as it has been for the last quarter of a century. The same man is always upset if a cat crosses his path when on his way to the river.

The professional fisherman has an equal dislike of seeing a cat when setting out, and he thinks it is a bad omen to meet a flat-footed person. The worst thing that can happen, however, at such a time is for anyone to throw water on him. This means that he will not only catch no fish, but also stands a good chance of being drowned before the cruise is over.

Wireless messages received here late to-day report the destruction by a tidal wave of San Jose de Cabo, a small fishing town on the west coast of lower California. The number of lives lost is not known. Most of the five hundred residents of the town are believed to have escaped to the higher ground when the tidal wave swept over the place yesterday.

MARRIAGE OF MR. J. TRAPNELL IN SYDNEY. NORTH SYDNEY, Sept. 13.

Mrs. George McIvor, daughter of M. J. Ross, North Sydney, was married here at five o'clock this afternoon to J. Howard Trapnell, son of John Trapnell of St. John's, Nfld.

"LORD RENFREW" BEGINS HIS HOLIDAY AS AN ORDINARY CITIZEN. QUEBEC, Sept. 13.

The Prince of Wales began his vacation in real earnest here to-day. He had not been ashore an hour before he had started out to act just as he would if he were really no other than Lord Renfrew, under which title he is to be known in Canada. On this occasion he came down from his rooms in Chateau Frontenac and wandered around the town for a few moments, then seeing a side door leading to the street he struck out and strolled up Dufferin Terrace looking with interest at the shipping on the river below. Thence he went to the Citadel which he looked through, after which he sauntered back to town and made several purchases in the stores along the way.

In the afternoon he played eighteen holes at the Quebec golf course, losing several balls into Montmorency Falls adjacent to the greens. Hon. Martin Barrwell played with Renfrew and Sir Godfrey Thomas and beat them. "Yes, We Have No Bananas," played by the orchestra decided the Royal visitor to change his mind about remaining in his rooms during the evening. This famous jazz melody set his feet a-linging to dance and he discovered that the Chateau staged a dance every night. He announced his intention of attending and news went like wildfire about the town, with the result that in a short time the greater part of Quebec's fanfare band, four hundred were on the way to the Chateau. The Prince danced with several girls he had met when here in 1913 and with many others. One novel incident and the only occasion of any person disregarding his incognito occurred. When the Prince entered the Citadel the guard, recognizing the visitor called out to the buglers who sounded the Royal salute. The Prince was evidently pleased and thanked the guard personally, but asked them not to repeat the salute when he departed. He will leave for the west to-morrow afternoon and will make no stops en route.

A well-known English entertainer, who prides himself on being able to speak the Doric like a Scotoman, was appearing in Glasgow, and at a dinner told a few stories in his best Scottish accent.

"What part of Scotland would you say I belonged to, judging by my accent?" he asked his host afterwards. "Penance," replied the Scot, promptly.

Kicking Uncle Sam's Dog.

The United States Commissioner of Immigration, Mr. Curran, recently complained that Sir Auckland Geddes in arranging conditions for immigrants at Ellis Island was just "kicking Uncle Sam's dog around again." As he himself would probably express it, Mr. Curran "said a mouthful." Apparently Ellis Island is a good deal like a dog kennel. The British Ambassador says that it took him three days to get the smell of it out of his nostrils.

Sir Auckland Geddes did not speak merely on behalf of British immigrants, but of the sojourners from all nations who have the misfortune to be detained there. Mr. Curran is referring to the familiar trick of American political placemen, in trying to divert attention from his own neglect by appealing to anti-British sentiment. It is undeniable that the United States is being bothered by an influx of immigrants that it does not want—a condition for which unscrupulous steamship agents are largely responsible. But this is no reason why the poor folk who have been brought across the Atlantic under a misapprehension should be inhumanly treated. The United States justly prides itself on its sanitary laws, but apparently sanitation as well as friendship ceases when it comes to handling immigrants at Ellis Island. Mr. Curran in his attempt to justify himself by twisting the lion's tail evidently has a shrewd knowledge of the people to whom he wishes to appeal. The enemies of Great Britain in the United States, are chiefly of the unwashed and ignorant class, and complaints about smells on Ellis Island will gain no sympathy with them.

President Who Washes Up.

Mr. Calvin Coolidge, the new President of the United States, is the poorest man in worldly goods who has ever occupied the White House, and maintains a very modest establishment with his wife and two sons. Mr. Coolidge cooks the meals, while his husband helps her to bring in the food. He is not above washing up plates and dishes, or cleaning knives and forks.

The President, who was in his youth a farm hand on his father's farm, is a silent individual. A woman who once sat next to him at a dinner party was afterwards heard to complain that she was placed between "a Frenchman who spoke no English and an American who would not speak at all."

Household Notes.

The popular "club" sandwiches are easy to prepare, and served with a hot or iced drink, and a simple dessert, make an excellent luncheon or light Sunday supper.

A delicious sauce for nut and rice croquettes is made by adding to one cupful of finely chopped peanuts and a few drops of lemon juice.

Cauliflower leaves can be boiled, chopped, seasoned with butter, or bacon drippings, and the stalks can be peeled, sliced, boiled, and served with cream or cheese sauce.

Salt mackerel is delicious baked in milk. Soak overnight, as usual, drain, dredge with flour, season, nearly cover with equal parts of boiling water and milk, and bake until tender.

Oil a good-sized casserole dish, line with three cupfuls of well-seasoned mashed potato, fill in the hollow with one and one-half cupfuls of dried dairy cheese mixed with one egg, cover with two more cupfuls of mashed potato, brush with milk, and bake.

To one cupful of cold boiled rice, add one cupful of warm milk, a pinch of salt and pepper, and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Stir in two well-beaten eggs, and pour mixture into a trying pan in which one tablespoonful of butter has been melted. Bake, fold together, and serve with cheese sauce.

Very chic is a hat of black velvet with a brim of black raffia silk and cockades of silk braid.

Fortunes Made Twice Daily!
THE WORLD'S MOST WONDERFUL MINE.

One of the little-known wonders of the world is the Morro Velho gold mine, in Brazil.
Almost every day for nearly a hundred years this wonderful mine has yielded a fortune in gold and its allied products, while more wonderful still is the fact that, instead of giving out, the lode shows signs of becoming, if anything, richer than ever.
The mine was first exploited systematically a few years before Queen Victoria's coronation. Prior to this it was worked for nearly a century by the Brazilians themselves, while there is evidence that it was known to an even older generation.

TWO MILES DEEP.
It was not until about thirty years ago, however, that up-to-date machinery was installed, since which time the mine has owed much of its prosperity and fame to the skill of an English mining engineer, who in a short time made Morro Velho one of the most completely equipped mines in the world.

Thirty years ago the descent into the mine, which is now reaching the two-miles mark in depth, was made by means of ladders and occupied nearly forty minutes. To-day electric lifts take one down in a little more than two minutes.

A wonderful system of air locks is installed at the various levels, the pressure at some of which is so great that a complete change of clothing becomes necessary, ordinary garments being exchanged for thick woollen jackets and trousers.

Blasting operations take place twice a day, and to be in the mine at the time of one of these occurrences is to undergo an experience which is not easily forgotten.

Imagine yourself standing in an electrically-lighted chamber a mile below the surface of the earth. Far beneath your feet, and perhaps half a mile wide of where you are standing, the miners are laying the dynamite charges, in readiness for getting out the ore.

Suddenly a sharp tap, like the sound of a hammer meeting wood, comes to the ear, and, following it, a mighty rush of wind that, unless you are prepared for it, sweeps you off your feet.

A minute later comes a low, rumbling noise that increases in volume until it roars like thunder, while the whole mine trembles as if shaken in the fury of a great storm.

You are then at liberty to descend to where the miners are sending the ore to the surface to be crushed and subjected to the various processes of obtaining the ounce of gold which is yielded by every ton of ore. The processes include cyaniding and purification by what is known as "roasting."

Every blasting operation means that five hundred pounds' worth of gold has been wrested from Mother Earth, the value of the daily output being, roughly, a thousand pounds. In addition there are various valuable by-products—among them silver, palladium, and arsenic.

Cupid in the Tate Gallery.

A picture in the Tate Gallery was responsible for the following romance some thirteen years ago. Mr. Harold Titcomb, an American mining engineer on a visit to this country, happened to see there Mr. Ralph Peacock's painting, "The Sisters."
The face of the younger girl appealed to him so greatly that he wrote to the artist. He then learned that the lady was Mr. Peacock's sister-in-law, Miss Ethel Brignall. The sequel was a marriage at Beddington in July, 1908.

But not all such love affairs have ended in wedding bells. One of the most romantic of them, indeed, which had as heroine the lovely and ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots, finished in smoke.

While Mary was imprisoned in England, Don John of Austria, the illustrious but inconstant son of Charles V. of Spain, saw her portrait. He fell in love with it, and conceived the idea of invading England with Spanish troops, dethroning Elizabeth, and marrying Mary. But just then he met Queen Margaret of Navarre and forgot the portrait in a new infatuation.

Even more disastrous, for at least one of the parties concerned, was the case of Anne of Cleves.
Henry VIII., that much-married monarch, was shown this lady's portrait by his Minister, Cromwell, and decided that her beauty made her worthy to be Queen of England.
Unfortunately, however, the artist, being a court painter, had not been over truthful, and Anne proved less lovely than her portrait. Henry was furious, and, though the lady escaped with a divorce, Cromwell paid for the artist's transgression with his life.

Insuring a Ship.

Marine insurance, though very few people know much about it, is fascinatingly interesting.

When a man has a ship to insure, or a cargo which he wishes carried, he generally goes to a broker, and places the matter in his hands. Ships hulls are usually insured for yearly periods by their owners and only the cargoes are covered for the voyage. But special circumstances creep in, as for instance in the case of a ship bound to sea in which she is not covered by her policy. Then a special cover must be taken.

The broker furnishes himself with all the details that can possibly influence an underwriter in quoting a rate of premium and, arming himself with a long slip of paper, he starts on his round.

The art of the broker is to know where to begin, for the underwriter who puts his name down first with a certain rate against it will probably influence a dozen others. So the broker, having made up his mind which underwriter to tackle, goes to him and mentions that he has such-and-such a cargo being carried between two specified ports in a certain ship at a certain time.

The broker's experience tells him which of the men, Mr. Jones, did very well out of similar risks a year or so ago, underwriting several without getting a single claim, and taking a special personal interest in that type of business. So he goes to Mr. Jones' desk in the Royal Exchange and probably has to line up in a queue of brokers on similar errands.

—Is to "Get Round" the Underwriter.
The underwriter listens to what he has to say and either turns it down at once or else quotes a premium rate which he considers to be fair. He generally represents several others, so that if the broker agrees to the premium he finds that a syndicate of half a dozen men has agreed to insure a percentage of his risk.

For instance, the cargo may be worth a hundred thousand pounds, and Mr. Jones may be willing, on behalf of his syndicate, to cover a tenth of it at twenty shillings per cent.

Perhaps the whole sum to be insured will be covered at the rate fixed by the man who gave the lead or perhaps the premium will double itself. Mr. Smith may object to the ship, Mr. Brown to the owner, Mr. Robinson to the captain, while others may object to the broker and the class of risk which he usually brings them.

Thus it will be seen that the business calls for a combination of a huge general knowledge, a cyropaedic memory, and a cool judgment.

When a Ship is Missing.
But the real excitement of marine insurance comes when ships get on the overdue market.
Immediately there is any suspicion that there is anything wrong with a ship, whether she has stranded, been in some mishap, or has taken rather longer over her voyage than is usual, reinsurance starts.

Mr. Jones, who has covered ten thousand pounds at twenty shillings per cent, and does not like the look of things, promptly reinsures his risk with Mr. Green at a guinea and a half. If the ship turns up safely he is more than half his premium out of pocket, but on the other hand if there really was cause for anxiety Mr. Green has to stand the whole loss.

After a few days Mr. Green may get anxious of what he has done and approaches Mr. White, who knows the ship and guesses what has happened. He relieves Green of all or part of the risk at the rate of two guineas.
So the rate mounts until somebody who has backed up his judgment at a high rate makes a very big sum or loses fairly heavily.

Buying Stolen Goods.

WHO IS THEIR RIGHTFUL OWNER!
If Mrs. Jones, who has lost a valuable fur, sees Mrs. Brown wearing it two days later, and finds that Mrs. Brown can show a receipt proving her to have bought it from Mrs. Smith—to whom does the fur now belong?
If Mrs. Jones can be certain that Mrs. Smith stole it, and can prosecute and get a conviction, there is an end of the matter. The fur must be returned to Mrs. Jones and the unlucky Mrs. Brown must lose her money.
But if Mrs. Jones can't definitely prove anything of the sort, then the question of "market overt" comes in. If Mrs. Brown bought the fur in the open "market," say, at a stall of some country town, on the recognized market day, then she has acquired a clear title to her purchase, and Mrs. Jones has lost her property.
But Mrs. Brown must have bought the fur in perfectly good faith, and without any reason to suspect that the fur was stolen. If she was only asked an absurdly low price, she should have suspected something and loses the fur.

In the City of London, every shop counts by ancient custom as an open market. But in this case Mrs. Brown must have bought the fur at a fur shop. If she had gone into, say, a sweet shop, and the proprietor had whispered that by luck he happened to have a magnificent fur to sell at a bargain price; that would not make it a legal purchase.
It is possible, therefore, to acquire a perfectly legal title even to stolen goods, but the law doesn't make it easy.

More Play Grounds Wanted.

More and more important cities are calling attention to the very vital problem of acquiring ample playground facilities. Montreal makes a very poor showing in the matter of the number and size of its recreation places. It was stated a few days ago by the civic official who has charge of the playgrounds that it was a matter of urgency, considering the rapid growth of the city, that more breathing spots should be secured. In the most congested parts of the city there are few if any playgrounds; and it is necessary for boys and girls who wish to reach these places to travel quite long distances.
Without doubt the acquiring of playgrounds in densely populated quarters is beset with many difficulties—chiefly financial. Usually such quarters are grouped about industrial sections where land values are high. There is before us the fact, however, that other large cities have successfully overcome these same difficulties. The plan was pursued when poor quarters were bought up of converting the sites into "playgrounds." In consequence of this, the value of the lands fronting the model playgrounds rapidly increased in value. As precautions were usually taken of purchasing larger areas than were actually required for playgrounds, it was possible to sell the residue at such enhanced prices as practically to liquidate the cost of these parks.—Montreal Star.

The World's Book-Shop.
Have you ever wondered how many books there are in existence? On the average, two hundred thousand volumes are published each year throughout the world, and as eight and a half million books appeared last century, one can obtain a fairly good idea of the size of the world's book-shop.
Adding together the number of volumes published in each century since printing was invented, the astonishing total of sixty millions is reached.
The amount of energy, time, paper, and printer's ink which have gone to produce all these books is incalculable.
A great many of these publications are each worth more than five thousand pounds, and the total value of the world's book stocks must run into many millions. Stacked together, they would form a fair-sized mountain, the ascent of which would take several hours.
The three largest libraries in the world are the British Museum Library, which has four million volumes; the Bibliotheque Nationale, at Paris, which has three million; and the Library of Congress, at Washington, with just half a million less. Thus, between them alone, these three great institutions possess nine and a half million books of all kinds.

Asquith's Slip.

he generally found that Mr. As- quith's slip was particularly care- ful when he was speaking, said a well-known man when I looked in at the the Commons, "but on one oc- casion I remember his informing his- torians that his party would not abate its demands "by one pill or tottle," and a laugh, the ex-Premier went on to correct himself by say- ing, "of course, not by one tit- tle."

ance is exceptionally inter- esting, when flavored with a few very well-chopped crystalline cherries and a dash of cream of color, and it gives a well-beaten egg, and is especially white pouring.

Wallace Silverware.

Is your Table Silver as good to-day as when you bought it?

Have you noticed that at the parts most exposed to wear, the plate has become worn?

Do you think this condition of your Silver is in keeping with your idea of a well appointed table?

Then why not, when you decide on replacing your old ware, give place to it with the "Wallace" Brand, the Silver that refuses to wear and is guaranteed without time limit.

Start with the Tea Spoons and gradually complete your Set with the one pattern—there are several for you to choose from and the price is very moderate.

Tea Spoons cost $8.00 for a Dozen.
